Pope John Paul II Urges World Religious Freedom

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — John Paul II marked his installation as the first pope from Communist-ruled Poland with an appeal to different economic and political systems to "open wide the doors to Christ."

An estimated 300,000 persons, one of the largest crowds ever, jammed St. Peter's Square under cloudy skies Sunday for the investiture of the 264th pontiff on the steps of St. Peter's Basilica.

"Today a new bishop comes to the chair of Peter in Rome, a bishop full of trepidation, conscious of his unworthiness," the pope said in fluent Italian, uttering his vowels with a slight Polish accent.

Thunderous applause swelled from the jammed square when he told the predominantly Roman crowd:

"To the See of Peter in Rome there succeeds today a bishop who is not a Roman, a bishop who is a son of Poland. But from this moment he too becomes Roman. Yes — a Roman."

Then the new pope, turning his eyes from the sector where world dignitaries were sitting to the vast crowd, shook the sheets of paper he was reading and said in a loud voice:

"Open wide the doors to Christ. To his saving power open the boundaries of states, economic and political systems, the vast fields of culture, civilization and development. Do not be afraid. Christ knows what is in man. He alone knows it."

Many believe that having a pope from Poland may speed up improving relations between the Vatican and communist nations that was begun under Popes John XXIII and Paul VI.

Today, the pope receives representatives of the 102 states who attended the ceremony, including Polish President Henryk Jablonski, and there was speculation Jablonski would invite the pope, the former archbishop of Krakow, to visit his native land.

The investiture began with prayers inside the basilica at the Altar of Confession, built atop what is venerated as the tomb of St. Peter.

The new pope, clad in gold-trimmed robes, then entered the square, followed by a procession of 112 cardinals as the pontifical choir sang the hymn "Veni, Creator Spiritus" — "Come, Creator Spirit."

The pope kissed the altar, on a portable, red velvet-covered platform in front of the basilica, then received a simple white stole, foregoing the elaborate triple crown just as his predecessor, John Paul I, had done because of its implications of worldly power.

The last pope died Sept. 28 in the 34th day of his reign. John Paul I succeeded Paul VI who died Aug. 6, and with Sunday's investiture the world's 700 million Roman Catholics had their third pope in as many months.

Each cardinal filed by the 58-year-old John Paul II, seated on a golden velvet throne, kneeled and kissed his hand in a sign of obedience.

When the Polish primate, 77-year-old Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński, approached, the pope stood up and kissed his hand to show respect.

obedience to the new pontiff by kissing the Pope's ring during the ceremony of inauguration for the first non-Italian pope in more than 450 years. (AP Laserphoto)

Egypt, Israel Approach Brink Of Peace Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egypt and Israel stand today on the verge of completing a peace treaty that will end 30 years of war and change the political and military situations in the Middle East.

"The principal issues in the negotiations have been resolved so far as the Egyptian and Israeli delegations are concerned," State Department spokesman George Sherman announced Sunday.

The next steps are up to the Israeli and Egyptian governments. They will have to approve the draft of the treaty before it can be signed.

In addition, the delegations must resolve several other issues, Sherman said, including terms for the sale of oil Israel discovered in the occupied Sinai, which will be returned to Egypt.

The breakthrough in the talks came Friday and Saturday, after the Israelis announced they were going home to consult with their cabinet about issues Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said he was "very doubtful" the delegations could resolve themselves.

But the Israelis observed the Jewish ban on travel during the 24 hours of the Sabbath, beginning Friday at sundown. President Carter used that time.

He met until nearly midnight with the delegations at the White House Friday. Then, the two sides met for four hours Saturday, Sherman said. During those meetings, the two difficult issues dividing the delegations were resolved.

One was the timetable for establishing full diplomatic relations. It had not been specified in the agreements reached at Camp David.

The second was satisfying the Egyptian demand for language in the treaty linking the Egyptian-Israeli peace to solving the West Bank, Gaza Strip and Palestinian problems.

Egypt had demanded the language so it could show the Arab world it was not abandoning the Palestinians. Israel resisted on the grounds that the peace with Egypt should not be contingent on any other developments.

The eventual result, according to American sources, was a "50-50 compromise."

Egypt got "something on paper," a loosely worded formulation in the preamble of the treaty.

But the link apparently is not tight enough to have prevented Dayan from telling reporters the treaty "stands on its own" and "is not conditional or depending on any other agreement."

The text of the draft treaty has not been released, so full details are not available. Dayan was presenting it to the Israeli Cabinet today. There is no schedule for President Anwar Sadat's consideration, according to Egyptian embassy spokesman Mohammed Hakk.

No date has been set for signing the document, but both sides have discussed the possibility of a joint ceremony in Cairo and Jerusalem on Nov. 19, the first anniversary of President Anwar Sadat's historic visit to Jerusalem.

If the treaty is signed, it will mark an historic turning point in the 30-year history of Israel, which has never been recognized by an Arab state or had formal peace with neighbors.

It will have both from Egypt. In return, Egypt will regain sovereignty over all of the Sinai territory it lost in the 1967 war. The first, interim Israeli withdrawal is to take place three months to six months after the treaty is signed. Final withdrawal is supposed to come two years to three years later, according to the Camp David framework.

There will be demilitarized zones in the Sinai to prevent either side from massing troops along the border.

Recover Bodies Of Two

ST. INGOES, Md. (AP) —

Divers resumed their search this morning for nine men missing from a Coast Guard cutter that sank after a collision with a coal freighter. But a Coast Guard spokesman said, "I don't know if you call that hope or not."

The bodies of two other crewmen were recovered by divers Sunday. Petty Officer Charles Crosby of the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve Training Center at Yorktown, Va., identified them this morning as Fireman Apprentice James L. Hellyer, Newcastle, Pa., and James W. Clark, officer candidate, of Clovis, N.M. Their ages were not immediately available.

"A surface search is still going on," Crosby said Sunday after divers had suspended their underwater probe for the night. "As far as I know, the divers haven't gotten well inside the boat. One body was found outside the boat and the second was just inside the hatch leading to the forward crew department."

Crosby said divers tapped on the hull of the sunken Cuyahoga "just in case someone was trapped inside," but they got no response. It is impossible to know whether the missing crewmen were above or below decks when the collision occurred, he added.

The dead and missing men were among 29 aboard the Coast Guard's oldest cutter. The collision between the cutter and the Santa Cruz II, a 521-foot coal freighter bound from Baltimore to Buenos Aires, occurred at 9:15 p.m. Friday under a clear sky and bright moon.

Early SALT Agreement Prospect Again Dimmed

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Prospects dimmed today for quick conclusion of a U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said another round of negotiations "presumably" will have to be held.

"We are working, we are working very hard," Gromyko told reporters during a luncheon recess in the second day of talks here with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. "The matter is very complicated."

With Vance at his side, Gromyko said: "We are a little closer than we were in Washington."

Added Vance: "I would agree with that. As I said before, these things are built brick by brick."

Washington was the site of the last round of talks, three weeks ago, in the joint effort to complete a SALT II treaty limiting strategic bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Vance's spokesman, Hodding Carter, refused to specify what the remaining obstacles were or what progress may have been made here. Asked whether the results measured up to Vance's expectations, Carter said: "This is roughly where he thought he would be."

The search for a treaty is now six years old. This is Vance's eighth set of negotiations with Gromyko in less than two years.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev was joining the final session in early evening. Vance's schedule calls for him to leave for Washington Tuesday morning, and U.S. officials said they were virtually certain his stay here will not be extended. Gromyko is scheduled to leave on a visit to France.

If a SALT II pact is not completed now, U.S. officials have said, another round of talks probably would be held within the next month.

Vance said earlier in a luncheon toast the American side was determined "to do everything within our power to ensure the success of these negotiations."

"There are some problems that remain to be resolved," he said, but added: "We believe that there are no problems that cannot be worked out fairly and reasonably given good will and determination on both sides."

Vance noted that a large part of the treaty has been worked out over the last several months, and said, "We can take heart from the very substantial progress" achieved so far.

Concluding a weapons limitation accord, he said,

"is of urgent and paramount importance," with the consequences of failure far outweighing the problems of negotiating the remaining provisions.

Choo-Choo In Coronary Care

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice, an All-America halfback at the University of the North Carolina in the 1940s, was reported in stable condition today in the coronary care unit of Moore County Hospital.

Justice, 54, was admitted to the hospital Sunday morning after complaining of chest pains. Doctors were making tests to determine whether he suffered a heart attack.

"He had a comfortable night and his condition is stable," a hospital spokesman said this morning. "There isn't any word from the physician as to the source of his chest pains. He's still under observation and will be getting routine tests that the physician would order for chest pains."

A Greensboro insurance executive, Justice was to have served as grand marshal for the American 500 stock car race at Rockingham Sunday. He experienced the chest pains at a motel where he was staying and was taken to the hospital about 8 a.m.

New World Opens Up To Handicapped Pupil

FUQUAY VARINA, N.C. (AP) — New state and federal laws stipulating that public schools must offer programs for all handicapped children have made a world of difference in the education of young Gary Revels of Fuquay Varina.

The 12-year-old son of Bobby and Ruby Revels is deaf and suffers from cerebral palsy. Before this school year, his parents used to put him on a bus every Sunday for a four-hour ride to the Central North Carolina School for the Deaf in Greensboro where he attended classes during the week. This meant tears, worry and the misery of a divided family.

And after all the trouble and trauma, Gary wasn't progressing in school as well as his parents thought he should have been.

Last year the Revels decided to take Gary out of the Greensboro institution and place him in a new program for children with hearing impairments at nearby Cary Elementary School.

There Gary attends class with other deaf children who are taught sign language. His classwork has improved and his parents say he is much happier.

Now the family is united and the Revels are able to help Gary with his homework and involve him in more family activities.

"He's an altogether different child," said his father. "He is a contented child. He is relaxed."

Before legislation went into effect this school year, the Revels did not have the choice of sending Gary to the public schools. Now he has a chance to attend school in as close to normal classroom settings as possible.

Swine Flu Immunization Decision-Making Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's ill-fated mass immunization drive against swine flu in 1976 was the product of too much confidence in weak theories, the zeal of health professionals and bad public relations, according to a government-financed study.

The $85,000 study titled "The Swine Flu Affair—Decision Making on a Slippery Disease" was written by Harvard University faculty members Richard E. Neustadt, a political scientist, and Dr. Harvey V. Fineberg, a public health professor.

They told reporters Saturday that "there were no villains in this story," but the 114-page report was unflattering.

Overconfidence by specialists in theories spun from meager evidence, zeal by health professionals to make their lay superiors do right, and botched public relations are among the mistakes cited by the report prepared for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The report also said then-President Gerald R. Ford was not trying to make political capital in an election year with his March 24, 1976, decision to try to inoculate 200 million Americans against swine flu.

The authors quote Ford as saying, "you ought to gamble on the side of caution."

Ford's decision to order the program followed reports that an Army recruit at Fort Dix, N.J., had died from swine flu.

But the report said uncertainties were minimized and the threat of a deadly epidemic maximized as HEW health officials convinced Ford and then HEW Secretary David Mathews to begin the campaign against a widespread disease that never materialized.

According to the report, members of the Center for Disease Control's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices had pointed out that antibiotics available at the time were likely to hold down deaths even if swine flu struck widely in the winter of 1976-77.

Those experts also met with CDC officials about two weeks before the immunization program began and, the report said, "members tell us they had in their heads such likelihoods of epidemic spread as 2 percent or 20 percent, which translates into odds of 49-to-1 to 4-to-1 against."

However, the report said the program "may go down as a qualified success" because of the lessons learned and the outcome may "turn out on balance to have been more positive than negative for public health. Swine flu may have a bad ring in public ears, but millions have heard of flu shots for the first time."

About 46 million Americans received swine flu shots from Oct. 1 to Dec. 16, 1976, during the $135 million immunization program. But the effort was stopped after some persons contracted Guillian-Barre Syndrome, a rare paralyzing disease, from the inoculations.

Meanwhile, the government is now facing lawsuits or claims from more than 2,200 persons seeking about $1.5 billion for injuries or deaths allegedly caused by the shots. The government assumed liability so that drug companies would agree to make 200 million doses of the vaccine.

Restructured Capital Gains Taxes At Heart Of Argument

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will a restructuring of capital-gains taxes proposed by the tax-cut bill provide a needed boost for the economy or simply a wind-fall for the rich?

That is the battle raging over the most controversial section of the $18.7 billion tax cut measure awaiting action by President Carter.

If Carter signs the bill, taxpayers who profit from the sale of property are likely to benefit. The capital-gains section reduces from 49 percent to 28 percent the government's maximum share of such profits.

Those calculations don't take into account a once-in-a-lifetime capital-gains exemption of up to $100,000 for persons 55 or older who sell their homes. The Treasury estimates that 92 percent of the $377 million involved in this exemption would go to persons making below $50,000.

Whatever benefits the new method of taxing capital gains might have for the economy, it will add considerable complexity to the tax laws.

In addition to the general reduction in capital-gains taxes, the bill would delay for three years a 1976 law aimed at increasing capital-gains taxes on persons who sell inherited property. Opponents of that delay view it as the first step in repealing the 1976 provision.

Three Men Charged In Theft From Apartment

Three men were arrested and a warrant issued for a fourth person in connection with the theft of items from a 112B Avery St. dwelling about 9:45 p.m. Friday, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

Cannon identified three charged with breaking, entering and larceny Friday as Wayne Anthony Locust, 24 and Lawrence J. Madison, 23, both of Newport News, Va., and David L. Knox, 25 of Ft. Eustis, Va.

According to the chief, Leslie Little told investigators he found one man inside his apartment, a television and stereo speaker under his arms, when he went to investigate his front door closing several times. Little, Cannon noted, had been visiting next door when he heard his front door close.

Two other men were outside — one inside a car parked on Baker Street and the other near the car — when Little went to investigate, according to the chief.

Cannon noted that some $1,500 worth of stereo and tape equipment, allegedly taken from Little's dwelling was recovered.

Attend Lineman Safety School

GOLDSBORO — Warren Bailey and Willie Guy, both of Greenville, recently attended an electrical lineman safety school at Wayne Community College.

I. W. Edwards of Elizabeth City served as instructor for the week-long course, which provided basic information for the beginning and the experienced linemen.

That would be done mainly by exempting from regular income taxes 60 percent of such capital gains, rather than the current exemption of 50 percent. The higher exemption would take effect Nov. 1, 1978.

According to the Treasury Department, only about 5 percent of the 88.5 million couples or individuals who file tax returns claim capital gains. The only gain for many comes from the sale of their homes.

Backers of the reduction are predicting it will provide a shot in the arm for the stock market, encourage more people to invest in American business and create new jobs.

Opponents call this method of stimulating investment a wasteful windfall for the rich. They note that three-quarters of all capital gains arise not from the sale of stocks but from transactions involving art collections and land speculation, which do little for the economy in general.

The Treasury Department estimates that nearly 79 percent of the benefits from the $2.1-billion capital-gains reduction would be claimed by those with incomes above $50,000. Only 4.3 percent would go to those under $20,000.

Now I can't find the clipping and I'm afraid she may think I just want to keep the recipe to myself. Do you still have it? I like her very much and want her to know I enjoy / sharing. — LIVE-ALONER.

DEAR LIVE-ALONER: Forget that old recipe for sweet and sour pork! I have a new one for you to pass along. It's from a Chinese cookbook, "Harmony of Flavors" by Yung-chi Chao Chen. Mrs. Chen teaches Chinese cooking classes, with great success, at the Princeton Adult School in Princeton, N.J.

When I met Mrs. Chen she told me that she learned to cook when she was a young girl in China: "At holidays and festivals, my mother always prepared our favorite dishes, and I was right there by her side. I practiced dicing and slicing, shredding and mincing, and saw everything that was going on. Even though my mother didn't do our everyday cooking, she was trained to supervise it, and she saw that I had the same education."

Many dishes such as sweet and sour pork have become popular in the United States via Chinese restaurants. However, Mrs. Chen feels strongly that this fare does not always reflect the high standards of Chinese cuisine. Her book includes authentic recipes, made with widely available ingredients, for these family-style dishes. — C.B.

Forget Size, Judge Boots By Their Fit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women shopping for boots make the mistake of buying by size, not fit, says Dr. Harold Whitney, a podiatrist.

To judge the fit, he says, see that the bunion joint — that's the largest outcrop on the foot — coincides with the widest part of the boot.

Whitney offers additional tips for boot comfort:

—Make sure they are neither too long, too short or too wide.

—Choose boot with leather soles and uppers. They provide maximum dryness and foot comfort.

—Boots made with synthetic materials can cause perspiration, itching, blistering and other discomfort when worn with nylon hose or pantyhose — unless the hose have cotton feet.

—The most comfortable heel height is similar to that of your other footwear.

—If boots rub against the calf muscles, treat them with a leather softener. If they are too tight at the calf, have the tops widened by a shoemaker.

Whitney says all-leather boots are safe to wear all day indoors or out, as long as they aren't soaked from rain or snow. Boots that wet should be removed, stuffed with paper and dried completely, away from heat.

Dear Abby

Deaf Alcoholic Should Consider Lip Reading

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can help me. I am an alcoholic. I am also quite deaf. I have attended two Alcoholics Anonymous meetings and I couldn't hear what was being said so it didn't help me one bit.

I wrote to the A.A. main office and they suggested that I go to a certain chapter and explain my problem. Well, I did—and they started to shout at me. I know they meant well, but they sure didn't know how to deal with deaf people because shouting is not the answer. It only made me nervous. Naturally, I beat a hasty retreat.

Any suggestions? I am certain that I am not the only deaf person with this problem.

DEAF ALCOHOLIC

DEAR DEAF ALCOHOLIC: Have you considered lip reading? If not, that might be your solution. You don't say where you live. Please write again and let me know. Perhaps I can put you in touch with an A.A. member who shares your problem and has a better solution.

DEAR ABBY: I just read your answer to RENO—a widow, 44, with two nice children, a lovely home, no debts and a steady income, who wonders where all the decent men are. (All she meets are men who want to rush her into bed. You assured her there were still plenty of decent men out there somewhere.) Nowhere did you mention how lucky she was to have had one man, two nice children, a lovely home, no debts and a steady income (without working, probably).

I'm 45, have never had a husband, will never have children, and have supported myself for 25 years. I'm struggling to stay out of debt, and pray that my income will continue to be steady.

You're a little naive, Abby. There aren't that many decent men around—if you mean by that a man who wants to get married to other than a 22-year-old who's slept around for five years.

I can't find a decent man. RENO has already had one. That's better than some of us. Plus she's had all those nice fringes. Try it without a husband. No lovely home, no kids, and everyone thinks you're a lesbian because you've never married. Believe me, Abby, the widows and divorcees fare better.

J. IN CHICAGO

DEAR J.: Thanks. I never realized how lucky that 44-year-old widow was until you pointed it out. That reminds me of the man who complained because he had no shoes—then he met a man who had no feet.

Cope With Life In Public Eye

Public officials are accustomed to living in the proverbial gold fish bowl, and generally their families do, too.

That often means their personal crises become of public interest, with varying reaction from those affected.

A number of wives of top political leaders have recently concluded that frankly talking about their situations is the best approach.

Marvella Bayh, wife of Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, has just revealed that she has inoperable cancer.

But she spoke candidly of it, pointing out that it brought a new "personal relationship with God."

She continues to plan for trips in the future and hopes for time to see her family progress.

Mrs. Bayh is facing her situation bravely and she is sharing her feelings at this crisis time in her life with the nation. It can give other people in more private lives the strength to face the serious problems than all of us sooner or later encounter.

Original Paving Bricks See A Demand

Chicago's State Street is being dug up for construction of a mall, and original paving blocks, put down in 1883, are being offered to history buffs and collectors.

The blocks have been under the streets for 95 years.

It brings back memories of the tearing up of Evans from Third to Fifth to create the downtown mall. The operation upturned original paving brick which were given to those who wanted them for souvenirs.

Greenville's paving brick might not have the same historical significance as Chicago's State Street, but there was definitely a demand for the Evans Street variety.

N.C. Among Big Spenders

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — When the drumbeating begins in the 1979 General Assembly, it would be good to know that North Carolina ranks among the tops in the nation in support for higher education.

By any measure, this state is coming up with considerably more than its average share of the nation-wide total of nearly $17 billion spent for publicly supported colleges and universities.

For the current year, North Carolina is spending better than half a billion dollars for higher education. That's a 28 percent increase in just two years; and that total spending puts the state in the same league with the Top-10: California, New York, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Florida.

California leads the way with $2.3 billion this year, but that inflated figure results from a sudden spurt of spending to beat the Proposition 13 trimming deadline. Normally, that state spends less than $2 billion to support its open-door junior and senior college network.

Big Spenders

Here are the ranks and totals for the big spenders: California ($2.3 billion); New York ($1.4 billion); Texas ($1 billion); Illinois ($815 million); Michigan ($733 million); Pennsylvania ($699 million); Ohio ($604 million); Florida ($535 million); North Carolina ($521 million); and Wisconsin ($433 million).

But there are other significant measures which need to be taken into account; including ability to support higher education.

At a time when North Carolina continues to rank at the bottom nationally in per capita income and in average manufacturing wages, the state paradoxically continues to rank among the top nationally in support for higher education.

Take state appropriations per $1,000 of personal income based on U.S. Commerce Department figures. North Carolina spends $15.91 currently to rank ninth in the nation.

The track record on spending is good, too. Over a 10-year period, appropriations have increased 355 percent. That is the fifth best and most consistent increase in the nation, falling behind only Alaska, Alabama, South Carolina and Mississippi.

BILL NOBLITT

Was all that due to inflation? When the figures are adjusted to reflect the 90 percent 10-year inflation factor, North Carolina still shows a 140 percent spending increase.

Another way to measure growth is to figure how much is spent for higher education for each citizen of the state: appropriations per capita.

Your Share

North Carolina spends nearly $95 for each of her 5.5 million residents. Put another way, if you are a family of four, your share each year in supporting the North Carolina University System is almost $400.

The leader is Alaska which spends $170 per capita; Hawaii at just under $130; Wyoming at $115; then California, Utah, Washington, and Alabama each spending just over $100 per capita.

This state ranks 14th, but is clustered with a number of other states (13 of them) all spending between $90 and $100 per capita.

Measured against nationwide averages rather than individual states, North Carolina ranks consistently on the high side. Per capita spending averages $78.67 nationwide compared to our $94.45. Appropriations per $1,000 of personal income averages $11.22 nationwide compared to our $15.91.

The statistics presented here were reported in The Chronicle of Higher Education, and were compiled by M.C. Chambers, professor of educational administration at Illinois State Univ.

THE INSIDE REPORT

SALT And Civil Defense

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Repudiating the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) and Paul Warnke, its ousted director, President Carter on Sept. 29 quietly signed Presidential Directive (PD) 41 ending 15 years of dangerous inattention to the role of civil defense as part of the strategic balance of power against the Soviet nuclear threat.

Mr. Carter's approval of the secret directive is given political importance by the White House beyond its pledge for a sizable boost to civil defense. Lobbied hard by Zbigniew Brzezinski, Mr. Carter's national security aide, the new plan is also perceived as a vehicle to soften Senate opposition to SALT II, the new strategic arms limitation treaty expected to be signed later this year.

"What is imperative in selling SALT II," one administration official told us, "is to dispel suspicions among Senate skeptics that it points to future weakening of the U.S. strategic position across the board."

Questions about Carter administration defense policies in the post-SALT II period will figure heavily in the Senate treaty debate, certain to be prolonged and bitter. For example, Henry Kissinger — whose views on SALT II could critically influence its fate in the Senate — has confided to key senators that his own position may depend on whether

Mr. Carter can make a credible case for a strong strategic U.S. posture, including nuclear arms, in the post-SALT era.

Behind PD 41 may be Mr. Carter's hope of smoothing the way for SALT II. But considering the long months of study in the Pentagon and NSC that preceded its adoption, PD 41 seems less aimed at SALT II than at correcting a grave deficiency in the U.S. strategic posture by raising civil defense annual spending from less than $100 million to almost $400 million. The SALT II palliatives are far more obvious:

First, the ouster of Paul Warnke, controversial ACDA director and chief U.S. negotiator for SALT II. Clearing Warnke out of ACDA before the Senate gets the new treaty was essential. With Warnke as SALT II salesman, the prospect of the treaty being bought by the two-thirds majority needed for approval would have been negative.

Second, the surreptitious courtship by administration officials of Paul Nitze, probably the most rigorous proponent of U.S. strategic strength. The White House is desperately eager to win Nitze's nod of approval for Warnke's successor. The first serious White House effort to recruit a new ACDA boss who might meet the Nitze test failed when Brent Scowcroft, Brzezinski's predecessor as national security chief under Gerald Ford, turned it down. Retired Army Lt. Gen. George Seignious Jr. is now under consideration.

The new civil defense directive stands on its own feet even though the administration hopes it will have marginal significance in the SALT II debate. Its real importance lies in Mr. Carter's recognition that civil defense — population safeguards for survivability against a Soviet nuclear strike — must be counted as a factor in the U.S.-Soviet strategic balance. That policy decision buries dreamlike arguments of the arms control lobby that nuclear war is unthinkable because both sides know they are mutually

A GENIUS WHO CRAWLED

Richard Wagner was one of the greatest composers of all time. Down through the generations millions of listeners have been inspired by spiritual quality of his music. Yet his private life was a shambles, and the people who knew him best considered him to be despicable.

A pathological egotist, he made friends only to use them and cast them aside. He borrowed money with no intention of repaying it. He persuaded the wives of two of his close friends to leave their husbands and run away

Conserving Doesn't Pay

WASHINGTON — The Washington Gas Light Co. just announced that it was seeking permission to impose new charges ranging from $7.80 to $14 a month on customers who cut their gas consumption significantly by substituting for it electricity or some other form of energy.

Companies around the country that supply electricity have warned people that if they conserve too much electricity their rates will also have to go up; and during California's drought last year the water companies raised rates on customers because they were not using enough water.

What is dawning on people in this country is that conservation may not guarantee anyone cheaper utility bills.

The Antrobus family was sitting around the living room during a freeze in 1989. They had all their clothes on but were still frozen. Mr. Antrobus had thrown most of the dining room furniture into the fireplace when there was a ring at the door.

It was the man from the gas company:

"Mr. Antrobus, I see you're heating your house by furniture instead of gas. We'll have to add an additional $50 to your bill."

"But we can't afford to heat with gas ever since they took the controls off. We have to conserve every cubic inch we can."

"That is not our problem, Mr. Antrobus. We're willing to provide you with gas at a price. If you don't buy it, it costs us money. We're not in the energy business for our health."

Mr. Antrobus threw a table into the fireplace.

"But we need gas for cooking, not for heating our home. We can't afford both."

"Then you'll have to pay for it. We don't like consumers who just want to cook with gas, but prefer to heat by burning their tables in the fireplace. I'm sure an extra $50 surcharge is not out of line."

"I guess not," said Mr. Antrobus wearily. "Would you give me a hand with this dresser? The top is formica and won't burn."

The gas man left by the front door. A few minutes later the man from the electricity company came in the back one.

"Why is everyone reading by candles?" he wanted to know.

"We're trying to save on electricity," Mrs. Antrobus said. "This is supposed to be the worst winter in years, and we need what little electricity we can afford for the television set."

"Our reports indicate you've only used a third of the amount of electricity you used three years ago."

ART BUCHWALD

"Yes, sir. We've been very careful, we never put on a light unless we have to."

"We'll have to charge you an extra $100 a month."

"Is that a surcharge?"

"No, that's a fine. Anyone who uses less than half the amount of electricity he used in a previous year is subject to a $100 fine and six months in prison. In your case the fine will be sufficient warning. But watch yourselves because we're keeping files on you." He exited.

"This conservation is really costing us," Mrs. Antrobus said.

"It's still cheaper to burn the furniture than to pay the gas bills," Mr. Antrobus told her.

There was a knock on the door. It was a man from the Washington Furniture Energy Co. He said, "I regret to inform you that we will have to raise the price of furniture you are burning by $18 a chair."

"But why? We're using everything we can burn."

"So is everybody else. At this rate, all the furniture in the country will be used up by 1995 and we will be unable to supply our customers. We hope that by raising our rates, people like you will give some thought to conserving furniture which is the

Foreign Affairs 'Shine'

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that Congress has shut down, Jimmy Carter can focus his energies even more directly on the foreign field. He will be excused if he looks at the world, at least for a while, through rose-colored glasses.

In the Middle East, there is the hint of peace after 30 years of war. Egypt and Israel, with more than a gentle nudge from the president, are near agreement on a treaty.

The United States and the Soviet Union appear on the brink of a breakthrough to limit their long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Even southern Africa, so long resistant to solution, offers new promise of peaceful transition to black rule in Rhodesia and Namibia.

U.S. relations with West Europe and Japan are smoother than they have been in years. China isn't demanding instant normal relations. The Panama Canal treaties are part of history. Turkish troops still occupy almost half of Cyprus but the pressure on U.S. bases in Turkey has eased with a restoration of regular American arms aid to Ankara.

Most satisfying to the man in the White House, no Americans are in combat. There are no casualty figures. Americans are helping to keep the peace in the Sinai Peninsula. They are not fighting other nations' wars or their insurrections.

All this makes Carter look as good as he probably feels about the situation. Presidents get the blame for international disasters, even when they are faultless. The corollary, and it seems fair enough, is that they also get the credit when peace flickers over the horizon.

Better Times For Secretaries

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Better times are coming for secretaries, those wonderful people who type the letters, order the supplies, maintain the records, pay the bills and sometimes keep the boss from being fired.

Better times means, for one thing, more appreciation, and appreciation is spelled the same as dollar. Five years from now, says one secretary, top grade executive secretaries will earn $24,000 to $30,000.

That's the forecast of Beverly Hamby, president of the National Secretaries Association, and it applies to those who achieve through study and experience the rating of Certified Professional Secretary.

Her optimism for CPSs, who now earn about $16,000 to $18,000 a year, emanates from two observations: 1. "Jobs are going begging," and 2. Without a good secretary "executives can't get their jobs done."

Things are also looking up for well-trained, competent beginners, who now are being offered $750 to $800 a month. Five years from now, Mrs. Hamby predicts, they'll command "at least $1,000 to $1,200 a month."

Why the shortage? Mrs. Hamby, secretary to Albert S. Golemon, a Houston architect (senior partner of Golemon and Rolfe), believes the occupation has fallen out of favor with many young women.

"For one thing," she believes, "it's less attractive to women who have been exhorted to be assertive."

And in her opinion the salaries aren't commensurate with the training and effort required by the job.

The foundation remains a solid high school education, but it must be built upon through private study and formal training.

"To be a proper aide, a secretary should understand financial statements, some law and management theory," Mrs. Hamby said recently. She learned them in night courses at Tulsa and Houston universities.

But the basic skills of shorthand and typing are still necessary too, although in offices automated with transcription and word processing equipment, neither is the same skill it used to be.

Still, in Mrs. Hamby's opinion a skilled secretary should be able to take dictation at the minimum rate of 120 words a minute, and be able to type a letter at 65 to 70 words a minute.

"Anybody who isn't able to do so is not really skilled," she said flatly, observing later that they should aspire to 150 words a minute in shorthand, regardless of the style, and 80 to 85 words in typing.

Neither, she commented, is quite as old-fashioned as some people might lead one to believe, and they must be accompanied by other skills and abilities, especially good grammar, punctuation and spelling.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK7 ♥952 ♦AQ10653 ♣Q
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ 1 ♥ 1 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Without the overall, it would probably be right to rebid your diamond suit. However, the fact that North bid spades freely and you know that he is missing the two top honors make it a moral certainty that he has a five-card suit or longer. Under the circumstances, we feel that it is wiser to show your support right now by raising to two spades.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AKJ92 ♥J7 ♦A83 ♠A107
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass Pass 2 ♦
? What action do you take?
A.—While you have a reasonable hand, you have no margin of safety. Unless partner has a long suit of his own or spade support, any action by you could be disastrous. It is wiser to pass and see how the bidding develops. If West also passes, partner might still come to life.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K9872 ♥8 ♦93 ♣K10762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ 2 ♥ 4 ♦ Pass
5 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Bid six spades. Trust partner. He knows that you have a weak hand with great trump support. Nevertheless, he is trying for slam, and his only possible concern can be two quick heart losers. Since you have second-round heart control, you must bid the slam.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A1065 ♥93 ♦Q1072 ♣K98
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦
Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—It is not clear whether partner is showing a distributional hand in an effort to get to game, or cue-bidding for a slam. Regardless, you should be happy to cooperate, since your fitting cards in partner's second suit increases the value of your hand. On the way to five diamonds, however, we would stop off to cue-bid the ace of spades. If partner is looking for slam, he would like to know about our spade control.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠3 ♥KJ94 ♦K10762 ♣QJ5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦
? What do you bid now?

A.—We wouldn't criticize a jump to four hearts. However, since partner might have made a light opening bid in third seat, we feel that a raise to three hearts describes your hand adequately. The one thing you cannot do is temporize with two diamonds—that is not forcing and partner might pass.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQJ9874 ♥K ♦K1083 ♣3
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♦ 4 ♥ 4 ♦
Pass 5 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—The enemy has taken advantage of the vulnerability to make you guess at an uncomfortable level. Nevertheless, we would take our chances at six diamonds, in the hope that partner has two aces—there is no scientific way to investigate the possibilities, but partner should have a reasonable hand at his vulnerability.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠72 ♥1085 ♦QJ8 ♣KQ943
The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♥ 3 ♦ Pass Pass
Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Since partner's double is for takeout (you have not yet bid), you have to say something. Four clubs is a huge underbid—you would make that bid with six little clubs and nothing else in your hand. However, a jump to five clubs is a bit drastic and could bypass your best spot. We would settle for four hearts, for partner almost certainly has a five-card suit on this auction.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K92 ♥74 ♦109752 ♣872
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
2 ♦ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—You have some useful values—the king in partner's first-bid suit and a doubleton in his second suit. To bid a mere three spades, which you would do with absolutely nothing, is an underbid. Our choice is a jump preference to four spades.

Tourists Flocking To West; Water Is Short

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Several North Carolina mountain communities are sort of between a rock and a hard place these days. The beautiful fall colors are drawing tourists in huge numbers. And those tourists are drinking water that is as scarce as those leaves will soon be.

Old timers are saying that the drought now forcing mountain towns to resort to strict conservation measures is the worst since 1925. Evidence of its severity is the fact that despite the influx of tourists, some towns like Andrews are closing restaurants at 7 p.m.

Andrews Mayor Ty Burnette said that town's water system is at the lowest point its ever been. Now water is being drawn from an old well owned by Baker Furniture Co.

"I trust this well with my fingers crossed. If it goes dry, we will have to start drilling another one," the mayor said.

And the dry weather is not helping the forest fire situation any either. Burnette said one match could set off a fire under the current conditions.

At Robbinsville, Mayor Frank Rogers said Burlington Industries has cut down from 35,000 to 6,000 gallons of water a day by using creek water in its boilers.

Laundromats are closed and car washing is forbidden. Robbinsville citizens have cut back water usage by a least a third, according to the mayor.

The town is drawing extra water from Long Creek, but the water is so low that daily checks are made to ensure that no hazards to health are present.

"We are playing it day by day, and watching consumption," Rogers said. "If we have to go to the recreation center well and private wells, there will have to be drastic changes. We would have to close the schools and businesses and hold water in storage only for drinking and sanitary and fire purposes."

Town officials say the situation is still critical in Brevard, also. Mayor Charles Campbell said the town's water system is being augmented by water drawn from a nearby stream.

vulnerable to attack under what is called Mutual Assured Destruction (MAD).

The MAD theorists have now collided with hard facts made known to Jimmy Carter by reliable Central Intelligence Agency studies last summer. Annual civil defense spending in the Soviet Union is at a rate of at least $2 billion and more than 100,000 full-time personnel are engaged in civil defense efforts to minimize the loss of human and industrial resources in case of attack. In the words of the CIA's July analysis of Soviet civil defense, the Soviet government remains convinced that "civil defense contributes to war-fighting and war-survival capabilities."

The President's decision to set up the new Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) for civil defense and to give it nearly $2 billion over the next seven years is a commendable step, in no small part due to the bulldog determination of ex-McGovernite Democrat Bardyl Tirana. With FEMA's birth, Tirana worked himself out of his job as the Defense Department's civil defense expert, but the legacy he left sets the U.S. on a new track from which there should be no retreat whatever happens to SALT II.

What is so strange about Carter's good fortune is that the settlements taking shape in the Middle East and between Washington and Moscow are not exactly what he had in mind a year ago.

The embryonic peace between Egypt and Israel was really fathered by Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin, however practical it is for them to take out insurance with Uncle Sam.

The Egyptian and Israeli leaders flew into each other's arms last fall after Carter tried to reconvene the Geneva conference and offered the Russians a leading mediator role again. Sadat and Begin figured the odds were against an agreement at Geneva involving all of Israel's neighbors at once. Neither wanted to dance with the Russian Bear. The only way to avoid his grasp was to open direct negotiations between Cairo and Jerusalem. So they did.

The SALT treaty Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is trying to nail down in the Kremlin is very different from Carter's original plan. He wanted a big cut-back in strategic weapons on both sides. There was almost no chance that the Russians would go along with that sudden shift in negotiating aims.

Whatever slim chances there may have been were reduced to none when Carter began blasting the Russians over human rights violations.

The president reverted to more modest goals. And in these last critical weeks of negotiations he has curbed his criticism of the treatment of minorities and dissidents.

EXCEPT FOR THE CHANGE IN YOUR POCKET, YOU CAN NOW PUT ALMOST EVERY PENNY YOU OWN TO WORK.

It's a well-known fact that you can't write a check on your savings account. And you can't earn interest on your checking account. So unless you're willing to switch funds constantly back and forth, how can you earn interest on all your money?

Well, now there's a way. BB&T's Customer's Choice™ Transfer Service.

It's a new service that will let you put just about every penny you own to work.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS.

When you open a Customer's Choice Transfer Savings Account, we'll automatically tie it in to your BB&T checking account. Like all regular BB&T savings, you'll earn 5% interest from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal, compounded quarterly. But here's the interest-earning difference.

Now you can make all your deposits into your Transfer Savings Account. Then whenever it's needed to cover your checks, we'll automatically transfer the money in $100 multiples into your checking account. This means you'll keep earning interest on every cent in your savings right up to the day it's transferred.

And since no checking account service charge is required with your new Customer's Choice Transfer Account, the cost to you is just a $3 per month maintenance fee—plus $.25 for every day a transfer is made. If you keep a balance of $2,000 or more in your Transfer Savings Account at all times, no maintenance fee will be charged.

Naturally, the higher your savings balance, the more this service will mean to you. Not only will you be earning interest you could not have earned before, but with a high average balance, your earnings can easily exceed your service fee. And just imagine the additional convenience to you if all your savings and loan or credit union funds were placed within this one easy-to-manage account.

CUSTOMER'S CHOICE MEANS JUST WHAT IT SAYS.

For those who don't wish to maintain a high average balance, our new service lives up to its name by offering you another choice. This optional plan, designed as protection against accidental overdrafts, works just like the first plan. All you pay is $1 for every day a transfer is made, plus your regular checking service charge. So with money in your Transfer Savings, there's no more worry about "bouncing" checks—or paying an overdraft fee.

The only way to decide whether or not Customer's Choice Transfer Service is right for you is to come to your nearest BB&T office and discuss it with us. If it does make sense, we'll get you on the road to earning new interest right away.

We think it's time you got the most out of every penny you own. Don't you?

"What are hog prices going to be next year?" This is a question often asked by livestock producers as they look ahead. According to the October "Farmers' Newsletter" published by USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperative Service, livestock prices should remain favorable through the next year. Both the short-term and long-term prospects for raising livestock are looking good as feeds are abundant and moderately priced, inventories have been reduced and there is still a strong demand for meat.

Pork production for 1978 will be only slightly larger than the 1977 level. Hog producers in the 14 major hog-producing states, surveyed for the September 1 "Hogs and Pigs" report, indicated that they intend to farrow only three percent more sows in the September 1978 to February 1979 period than they farrowed a year earlier. Such a gain would be comparatively small and if these intentions are realized, hog prices would remain strong.

Some of the major reasons pork production has not expanded at the rate of economic conditions might suggest are a larger incidence of death losses attributed to severe winters in the major hog-producing states, the uncertainty of the issue concerning preservatives and curing agents used in pork products, and the requirement of large capital investment in buildings and other facilities as most pork production is now on larger units.

An indicator of the profitability of pork production has always been the hog-corn price ratio. This ratio indicates the bushels of corn equal in value to 100 pounds of hogs. For example, if hog prices were $40 per hundredweight and corn $2 per bushel, the hog-corn ratio would be 20 to one. Such a high ratio has traditionally been associated with profitable conditions for producers and large increases in production. However, with nonfeed costs such as building, equipment, and labor expenses rising as well as high-protein supplement costs, producer profits may not be as large with a 20 to one hog-corn ratio now as they were in past years.

In other words, corn costs account for a smaller percentage of the total cost of pork production. Therefore, the production response to higher hog-corn ratios could be less than in earlier years.

In conclusion, it appears that the next few years will provide better than average opportunities for hog producers. Producers should strive to be more efficient in reducing their production costs as non-feed costs account for more of the producer's dollar.

'Definitely' Talking Site

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The senior vice president of Adolf Coors Co. says the company is definitely considering North Carolina as the site for a major new brewery and said a Coors spokesman who denied that last week didn't know what he was talking about.

Peter Coors, the vice president of the family-owned company, said a breakdown in communications at the company headquarters in Golden, Colo., was responsible for the confusion.

It was reported earlier in the week that state officials and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., were wooing the company, which now brews its beer only in Colorado. The story was based, in part, on an interview with Coors board chairman William Coors.

"Quite simply, what happened was that he (William Coors) gave the interview and just didn't tell the public relations department," Peter Coors said. "We're a little embarrassed over that."

But, Coors said, any plans the company may have a long way off. "We're a long way from capacity (at Golden) right now, but we've got to look ahead to the future," he said. "There are no current plans to build a plant there (North Carolina) but we're looking."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Executive recruiting has become one of the most profitable professional vocations in America.

One nationwide recruiting firm expects to do $32 million to $35 million in fees this year.

American executive recruiters aren't credentialed and licensed like doctors and lawyers but must have intensive experience as well as natural ability and personality. It's also a profession with a fair sprinkling of women, some of whom are quite successful.

Moreover, executive recruiting and management consulting appear to be merging fields.

Growth in the recruiting business stems both from the global needs of American and foreign companies and from the changing attitudes of executives themselves.

The magazine Psychology Today recently published a survey showing that American executives and highly paid professionals are a restless breed. The article said 59 percent of executives and 57 percent of the professionals were looking to make a change within five years and that many seemed more interested in change for the sake of change or "self-fulfillment" than in money.

The needs of the employers are much more concrete, according to several recruiting firms.

Peter Vosburgh who runs the London office of Handy

Associates of New York cited the following off-beat client requests:

—A Saudi Arabian trading combine needed a very international-minded marketing vice president to settle in Jeddah.

—An American conglomerate was under urgent pressure to find an English-speaking Frenchman to serve as a countrywide telecommunications manager in the African republic of the Ivory Coast.

—A British-American firm operating in Saudi Arabia wanted an Arabic-speaking real estate development specialist with extensive experience in homebuilding.

—A big American company that was entering a joint energy equipment manufacturing venture with a French firm wanted a Frenchman to set up the new plant. It was specified that the person must have high acceptance from French government agencies.

Offbeat as these requests may seem to most Americans, they are not really uncommon, says Vosburgh, who opened Handy's London office in 1973 and has spent 16 years placing executives throughout Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

Vosburgh also takes part in Handy's burgeoning business of recruiting executives, both American and foreign, to work in the United States for the larger number of European and Japanese firms establishing American branches or buying into American business.

Vosburgh said while executive hiring trends change more slowly in Europe than in America, they are changing. He said many European companies no longer are dazzled by whiz kids who have crossed the Atlantic to get MBA's in American graduate business schools. They insist on proven, relevant experience.

In Germany, he said, a harsh rationalization is closing many small businesses and giving the banks, which have a lot more freedom in Germany than in America, a bigger control of industry and commerce. Also he said an oligarchy of the executives of the largest companies exercised increasing power in West German business.

He said the "Old Boy" network from England's famed public schools is starting to fade out of executive control in Britain but that in France a "Grand Ecole" diploma still is the most important ticket of entry into executive ranks and the tightly interlocking corporate manufacturing directorates.

Although the British still enjoy the most executive mobility among Europeans, Vosburgh said the Dutch are by far the most adaptable to difficult foreign environments.

In America, the executive recruiter is having to deal with an increasing demand for chief executive officers with exceptional skills and the ability "to think small," says John Main managing director of Main, Jackson & Garfield, Jr., a New York consulting firm.

Main said a new age of conservatism has resulted in financial experts overtaking the supermen of marketing and sales as choices for the top posts. He said that of 106 new CEOs appointed by big American companies last year, only 10.4 percent came out of sales and marketing and 37.6 percent out of financial departments.

There are some real eye opening situations in the executive recruiting field. Who would imagine that an executive recruiter based in Kearney, Neb., a farm community of a something over 20,000 inhabitants, would earn $300,000 a year?

But "Chuck" Dummer has been doing that much business at Kearney for several years. As a franchisee of Dunhill Personnel System of Carle Place, N.Y., Dummer has become the principal executive and technician recruiting specialist for the farm machinery industry.

But Dummer's commissions are currently dwarfed by three other Dunhill franchise holders who specialize in recruiting specialists and executives for the oil and gas industry. Top earner is Dan Atwood of Pasadena, Tex., a suburb of Houston. Dunhill reports his commissions were $66,000 in the month of June alone and he has grossed over $600,000 so far this year. Marinus Vanden Hul of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Don Hilbert, who works for Tom Sinyard's Dunhill New Orleans operations, also have raked up around $600,000 each in commissions so far this year. But the fees of these recruiters result from the current oil and gas exploration boom. Dunhill which is owned by TWA, is the firm that expects all its franchise holders to earn $32 million to $35 million this year.

Korn-Ferry International, Inc., which claims to be the largest non-franchised executive recruiting firm, says it collects commissions of about $12 million a year for recruiting executives whose combined salaries will amount to $40 million a year.

The fees paid by firms to recruiters for finding executives sometimes run as high as three-quarters to a full year's salary for the job.

One interesting trend in the business comes from Lamalle Associates, Inc., a large firm with five offices around the country. Only a year or two ago, Lamalle said it kept running into the remark "I'll go anywhere but New York City," from executives and highly-paid professionals.

"This attitude is starting to change," said Lamalle Vice President Donald E. McManners. He said the country is getting a much less negative image of New York now and the city government and business community are working hard to sell New York around the country.

'Blitz' By GOP In Commercials

By CLAY F. RICHARDS

UPI Political Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For two weeks this fall, television shows such as "Charlie's Angels," "All in the Family," "Good Morning America," and the NFL "Game of the Week" will be brought to viewers in part by the Republican Party.

Republican Congressional Campaign Committee Chairman Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., will announce Monday that $800,000 is being spent on an 11th-hour blitz of network television advertising.

The program is on a scale unmatched by previous efforts of a national campaign committee working for congressional candidates.

The committee has bought 21 half-minute spots on CBS and ABC.

The advertisements will be aired during the major viewer hours — the early-morning talk shows, evening prime time, weekend sports events and the late movies between Oct. 23 and Nov. 5.

Each features an unknown professional announcer, Bryan Clark, whose message is that Republicans can cut government spending and trim the federal bureaucracy.

In an advertisement labeled "bureaucracy," Clark says the American people are complaining about too much government red tape and the Republicans would like to do something about it.

"But we haven't run the Congress in many years," he said. Then extolling GOP candidates, he adds, "he or she may be your best chance to fight big government this year."

Another advertisement contends Congress, not the president, "has the real power" in Washington because it appropriates the money that runs government.

Republicans are better at cutting the cost of government so "give a good look at your Republican candidates," it concludes.

A spokesman for the committee said the ads are intended to "level some pretty direct criticism at the record the Democrats have amassed."

Who do you know in Greenville who'll lend you $5000?

We will. Call or stop in for the money you need to solve a money problem. We lend millions to business everyday. And we lend even more to help people.

We find ways to help.

SINO-JAPANESE SMILES — Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping, left, and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda are all smiles following signing of a peace and friendship treaty between their two countries. Teng, highest ranking Peking official to visit post-war Japan, will stay for eight days. Moscow claims the treaty is a plot to create an anti-Soviet alliance of Japan, China and the United States because the pact opposes hegemony, or dominance, which the Russians interpret as aimed at them. PRODUCTIVITY REPORT
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet industrial production in the first nine months of 1978 was 4.8 percent higher than in the same period last year, says the government newspaper Izvestia.

Former President Of Soviet Union Succumbs

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Anastas Mikoyan, the durable Bolshevik who survived 40 years of often bloody Kremlin intrigues and managed to retire with honor, is dead at 82.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the former president died Saturday after a long illness. The Communist Party and government made the announcement Sunday "with deep sorrow."

Mikoyan's death leaves only two of the old Bolshevik frontliners — Vyacheslav M. Molotov, 88, and Lazar M. Kaganovich, 84.

Molotov retired in 1961 to live out his life in oblivion, having been branded an accomplice to dictator Josef Stalin's crimes. Kaganovich was ousted from the Politburo in 1957, reportedly sent to run a cement factory in the Ural Mountains, and has not been heard of since.

Mikoyan, a dour-looking man with a black moustache whose nose was twisted from an old fist fight, had an uncanny ability to weather political storms often fatal to his comrades.

He escaped Stalin's purges in the 30s and 40s, and some said even as it appeared his luck might run out, he was saved by Stalin's death in 1953.

He denounced Stalin as a murderer in 1957 and backed Nikita Khrushchev that year. But when it was time for the ax to fall again, Mikoyan was on the side of the Andrei Kosygin-

Leonid Brezhnev thrust which in 1964 forced Khrushchev from power.

Mikoyan was born in Armenia, the son of a carpenter. He studied for the priesthood — as Stalin did — and despite winning top honors in school, joined the Bolshevik Party when he was 20.

The revolution of 1917 came two years later, and Mikoyan was a member of the Communist Party presidium in Baku. He was wounded during fighting there and was jailed when the Baku commune collapsed.

He was turned over to British forces and the White Guards and was to be executed along with 25 other top party leaders. They were shot, but he wasn't, apparently because his name was mistakenly left off the list.

Five months later he was released from custody and traveled to Moscow where he met with revolutionary leaders Vladimir Lenin, Stalin and Trotsky, who launched him on his career.

Before the Oyster Bowl game in Norfolk, Va., got underway Saturday afternoon, there was a public address announcement. For some fans, it may not have had any meaning.

But for most Pirate fans, it brought forth a laugh. "Your attention please," the P.A. announcer said. "Jim Johnson is requested to remain in his seat in the stands."

Most Buc fans will remember that Johnson, a former Pirate player and coach from some 30 years back, was the man who threw the hit on William & Mary's Tom Rozantz in last year's Oyster Bowl game between the Indians and the Pirates. Rozantz scored on the play anyway, but for ECU people, it was probably the highlight of the 21-17 loss by the Bucs that day.

There were probably a few times, however, when the fans might have wished for Johnson to be on the field this past weekend.

The Bucs defense did not have one of its better days, but fortunately, the offense was able to get its spark lit on a few occasions.

Dye was happy to get away with the 21-14 win, and was pleased to see quarterback Leander Green come to life. But he will probably not be at all happy with the fact that the Pirates fumbled the ball 11 times in that game, losing five. They also had two interceptions for seven turnovers. Things like that make it tough to win.

Richmond lost all three of its fumbles, and had two passes intercepted for five turnovers.

One of the Pirate turnovers, however, was directly responsible for one of the Spider touchdowns, coming on the ECU two yard line.

For Green, who had been coming under increasing fire for his lack of the same throughout much of the first six games, the game brought back some vindication from his critics. He finished the game with 102 yards rushing in 23 carries, and made several key pitches at just the proper time to spring free other runners. His early pitch to Sam Harrell on the first touchdown drive was one of the finest executed options of the year.

Green's passing, while only three for eight, saw several just plain dropped by receivers, but it was his pass to Billy Ray Washington that set up the winning touchdown. And it was Green's extra effort on the final run that got him the touchdown when it began to look like the Bucs might have to settle for a field goal.

Defensively, Tommy Summer had perhaps his best game. Playing in the shadow of big Mike Brewington most of the time, Summer again didn't have as many tackles as his teammate behind the line.

Unofficially, Summer was credited with 12 tackles, while Brewington was given 17. But Summer was cited for eight individual tackles, including three for losses. (Official tackle charts are made out by the coaches in game film reviews.)

Eddie Hicks, who continues to draw rave reviews on his blocking, had one of his better games with 56 yards in ten carries, nearly breaking one option run down the sidelines for a touchdown. He had broken into the clear and was headed in when it was noted that he had just nibbled the sideline, killing the play.

Hicks, too, has started a new ladder climb for himself. He has moved to 1,893 career yards, passing Tom Michel for tenth place. Michel had 1,892. Next up for Hicks is Billy Wightman with 1,927.

Billy Ray Washington also has made some moves. With one catch for 39 yards, he had moved to 424 yards for the year, the eighth best single season total. He passed Carl Gordon's 1970 figure of 412, and is headed for teammate Terry Gallagher's 1975 figure of 433. Washington's career total of 521 has moved him past Gordon and Jimmy Anderson into ninth place on the career yards receiving list. Gordon had 508 and Anderson, 517. Next up is Bog Grant with 641.

Gerald Hall will probably break two season records in the Bucs' next game against Appalachian State. He has 23 punt returns, and he shares the single season mark of 26 with Jack Patterson, and needs just four to break that. He has 296 yards in punt returns and needs just seven more to break the record he set last year.

Hall already owns the career records for punt returns and yardage.

Upsets, both on and off the scoreboard, were the order of business Sunday as the National Football League season approached its midway point.

The Los Angeles Rams were knocked from the unbeaten ranks by the New Orleans Saints and Seattle and Tampa Bay flexed their muscles with impressive victories on a day which saw seven of 13 games go to the underdog.

Meanwhile, people were upset in Dallas, too.

Not the Cowboys, who defeated the Philadelphia Eagles 14-7 to climb into a tie with Washington for first place in the National Conference's East Division. It was their coach, Tom Landry, and their star running back, Tony Dorsett, who were at odds.

It seems Dorsett missed a practice session this week, a no-no the way Landry runs the Cowboys. So Landry benched Dorsett for the Eagles game in favor of veteran Preston Pearson.

Archie Manning fired a 19-yard scoring pass to Tony Galbreath with 2:28 remaining for the game's only touchdown as the Saints shocked the penalty-plagued Los Angeles Rams 10-3.

That leaves the Pittsburgh Steelers as the NFL's only unbeaten team. The Steelers play host to the Houston Oilers tonight, winding up the eighth week of the NFL's first 16-week season.

The two most recent expansionists both evened their records at 4-4, the Seattle Seahawks knocking off the Oakland Raiders 27-7 and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers beating the Chicago Bears 33-19.

Tampa Bay Coach John McKay said it best: "We're no longer a pretender but a contender."

In the day's other upsets, the Baltimore Colts trimmed the Denver Broncos 7-6, the New York Giants beat the Washington Redskins 17-6, the Detroit Lions stopped the San Diego Chargers 31-14 and the Kansas City Chiefs defeated the Cleveland Browns 17-3.

In other games, the Minnesota Vikings beat the Green Bay Packers 21-7, the New England Patriots defeated the Miami Dolphins 33-24, the Buffalo Bills blanked the Cincinnati Bengals 5-0, the New York Jets topped the St. Louis Cardinals 23-10 and the Atlanta Falcons defeated the San Francisco 49ers 20-17.

Cowboys 14, Eagles 7
Dallas got all its points in the second quarter. Bob Newhouse scoring on a one-yard run and Roger Staubach throwing an 11-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson.

Saints 10, Rams 3
The Saints scored the game's only touchdown by going 69 yards in seven plays after a razzle-dazzle pass attempt by Los Angeles punter Glen Walker was intercepted by New Orleans cornerback Eric Felton, setting up Manning's scoring pass to Galbreath.

Seahawks 27, Raiders 7
The Seahawks turned four interceptions thrown by Oakland's Ken Stabler into 17 points. Stabler has now thrown 19 interceptions in eight games. Sherman Smith led Seattle's offense with two short TD runs.

Bucs 33, Bears 19
Rookie quarterback Doug Williams completed 11 of 19 passes for 180 yards, throwing for two touchdowns and running for a third, as the Bucs dealt Chicago its fifth straight setback. Walter Payton, the Bears' great running back, managed just 34 yards on 15 carries.

Colts 7, Broncos 6
Bill Troup threw a 19-yard scoring pass to Glenn Doughty and Toni Linhart kicked the extra point in the second period. That stood up as Denver's Jim Turner, trying for his third field goal of the game, had his 27-yard attempt blocked by Baltimore defensive tackle

Giants 17, Redskins 6
Washington lost its second in a row after winning its first six. Giants quarterback Joe Pisarcik completed just three passes, but one of them was a 43-yard scoring strike to Jimmy Robinson and another was a 46-yard heave to James Thompson on a flea-flicker play that set up the Giants' other TD, a three-yard run by Pisarcik.

Lions 31, Chargers 14
Detroit quarterback Gary Danielson had a big day, completing 22 of 32 passes for 210 yards and three touchdowns, two of them to rookie wide receiver Jesse Thompson. Detroit had lost five in a row.

Chiefs 17, Browns 3
Unheralded Arnold Murgado, who had spent most of his time on the special teams, rushed for 74 yards and two touchdowns to help the Chiefs end a six-game losing streak. The Hawaiian-born Mercado, the only player in the NFL of Japanese ancestry, teamed effectively with Tony Reed, who gained 97 yards for Kansas City.

Vikings 21, Packers 7
Minnesota won the game it had to win in its bid for a 10th divisional title in 11 years as Fran Tarkenton completed 26 of 43 pass attempts for 262

'Mean Joe' Greene Is Ready For Oiler Guns

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steeler defensive tackle "Mean Joe" Greene says his fellow Texan, Houston Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips, is up to something.

"He gives you that old soft sell, but he'll come out with both barrels blazing," Greene predicted as the National Football League teams prepared to renew their American Conference rivalry here tonight in a nationally televised game.

Greene will be helping the 7-0 Steelers in their effort to try to remain the only undefeated NFL team. He anticipates a clean game from "Bum's" boys, who trail the Steelers in the AFC Central Division with a 4-3 record.

"I'll tell you one thing about Bum," Greene said. "He'll meet you at high noon in the center of town, but he won't try to dry gulch you."

Earlier in the week, Phillips talked up the Steelers, Super Bowl champs in 1974 and 1975.

"I think they're better than when they won the whole thing," he said.

"Theoretically, we're still in there against Pittsburgh. But I don't think anybody can catch the Steelers."

"We're getting ready, trying to stop them, but there ain't nobody stopped them yet."

Both teams seem to be in good shape.

Oiler wide receiver Billy "Whiteshoes" Johnson was rested last Sunday when he recovered from a sprained knee, but the five-year veteran is expected to play.

There's apparently nothing wrong with running sensation Earl Campbell, last year's Heisman Trophy winner who's rushed for 608 yards his rookie season with the help of four 100-yard games.

He'll be trying to become only the sixth runner to gain more than 100 yards against the Steelerz. Three Rivers Stadium.

It will be Steeler running back Franco Harris' ninth Monday night game. He's gained 806 yards in the first eight. Terry Bradshaw enters the game with the highest quarterback rating in the NFL, following his performance in Pittsburgh's win over Cleveland last week.

Houston is off to a disappointing start and a loss here tonight would make it very tough for the Oilers to overtake the Steelers in the standings.

All that won't count for much, however, because of the Oilers' tendency to play better against tougher opponents.

"The coaching staff doesn't have to say much to get players up for Pittsburgh," said Oilers offensive line coach Joe Bugel.

"The thought alone seems to bring out the best in our guys."

Steeler rookie safety Ron Johnson, the team's first draft pick this season, is hoping to put forth his best effort too.

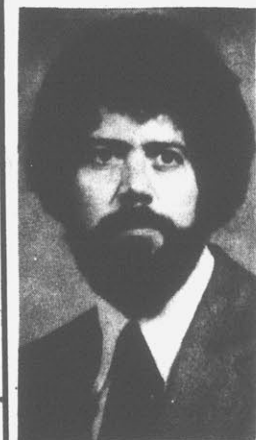

The 5-foot-10, 200-pound Eastern Michigan graduate has big plans, but probably will be matched up against veteran wide receiver Ken Burroughs, a 6-foot-3, 210-pounder who leads the Oilers with 19 receptions for 259 yards.

"I need a big game if I'm going going to make rookie of the year," Johnson said.

NO PRACTICE, NO PLAY — Dallas Cowboys' running back, Tony Dorsett, sits alone on the Cowboys' bench during the Cowboys vs. Philadelphia game at Cowboys' Stadium Sunday. He was demoted to second string and played only sparingly during second quarter. The disciplinary action was taken by head coach Tom Landry because Dorsett failed to show for Saturday's practice. THREE-TIME DRIVING CHAMP — Driver Cale Yarborough, of Timmonsville, S.C., climbs from his car in victory lane after winning Sunday's 14th Annual American 500 stock car race run at the North Carolina Motor Speedway. Yarborough also clinched his third straight NASCAR Grand National Driving title with the victory. (AP Laserphoto)

Cale's Crew Are Early Birds

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — If you go down to the garage area at six o'clock some morning — any morning — before a Grand National stock car race, it's really not that hard to figure out why Cale Yarborough has won an unprecedented third consecutive national championship.

At that hour Sunday morning, prior to the American 500, Yarborough was, as was every other driver in the 36-car field, in dreamland. At the race track, however, his crew members were waiting for NASCAR officials to open the garage gates.

Almost an hour before the sun came up, Tim Brewer, Travis Carter, Henry Binfield and other members of the Junior Johnson crew were beginning to rake their fine-tooth comb over Yarborough's Oldsmobile.

Other crews began showing up later, some almost two hours later. They all finished the day similarly behind Yarborough.

At the checkered flag Yarborough was nearly three miles ahead of Bobby Allison, the closest to him, and more than 50 miles ahead of the last car running.

"I don't look at today as racing — more as chasing an Oldsmobile all day," Allison said remorsefully. "It kind of makes you feel like crying."

"All I could think of was, 'Unbelievable but true.'"

David Pearson added, "Cale never had a problem, so it just made him look that much better."

Richard Petty: "The way Cale was running, I feel like we ran 380 and Cale ran the full 500. He was as tough as I've ever seen him."

victories since joining the Johnson team in 1973, is not mystified about the reasons for his success. There are many drivers — few as talented as Yarborough, obviously — who never have cars as fast or reliable in which to show off their talents.

"I'm just happy to be here," said Yarborough after his 10th victory of the season, equalling a personal high. "It's hard to say enough about this organization."

With two races remaining on the 30-race Grand National calendar, Yarborough has piled up an insurmountable 396-point lead over his closest challenger in the season point standings.

"If anyone ever questioned the ability of that racing team ... well, I think the performance of that car today showed them," Parsons said with just a twinge of envy. He probably wasn't alone in his feelings.

Wadkins Breaks 3-Way Tie To Win European Open's Sudden-Death

WALTON HEATH, England (AP) — The inaugural European Open Golf Championship finished in the gloom of an English fall evening Sunday, just about the way every organizer dreams — in a three-way tie after 72 holes of see-saw golf.

American Bobby Wadkins came out the winner and local hero Bernard Gallacher tied for second place with another American, Dr. Gil Morgan, after a sudden-death playoff.

Wadkins, from Richmond, Va., came off the 73rd green after sinking from 3 feet for a birdie-3, to hear that elder brother Lanny had won the Garden State PGA in Melbourne, Australia.

He said happily: "It's a great day for the Wadkins boys. Our parents will be proud of us today."

Bobby, 27, two years younger than his more famous brother, picked up the $36,000 first prize after a sudden surge to the front with two birdies and an eagle on the last nine for a 68-283. Until then, Greg Norman of Australia and then Gallacher had held the lead with Morgan in close touch.

It was a see-saw affair throughout the tournament's four days, with Tom Weiskopf and Britain's Nick Faldo fighting for the lead for two rounds, and then Norman and Mac McLendon taking over after Saturday's third round.

Weiskopf, going great guns after a first-round 70 and a second-round 69 on Walton Heath's par-36-73 course, dropped out of contention in the third round when he strained his left wrist and took 81. He played on Sunday but could only card a 74 and finished well down the list with 294.

This first-ever European Championship was the brainchild of Sven Tumba, former Swedish ice hockey star, with Jack Nicklaus — who could not play because of business commitments — as chairman of the tournament's advisory board.

It was the first top international event played at Walton Heath, a tree-lined, 7,130-yard course with fairways flanked with heather, 30 miles from London. During the four days, more than 25,000 British golf enthusiasts followed play.

Tumba said he hoped the $200,000 tournament would take its place among the world's major championships and eventually rank with the British Open and the U.S. Open, Masters and PGA.

Spinks Crashes Through Fence, Escapes Injury

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Leon Spinks escaped injury over the weekend when he lost control of his 1979 Corvette and crashed through a cyclone fence here.

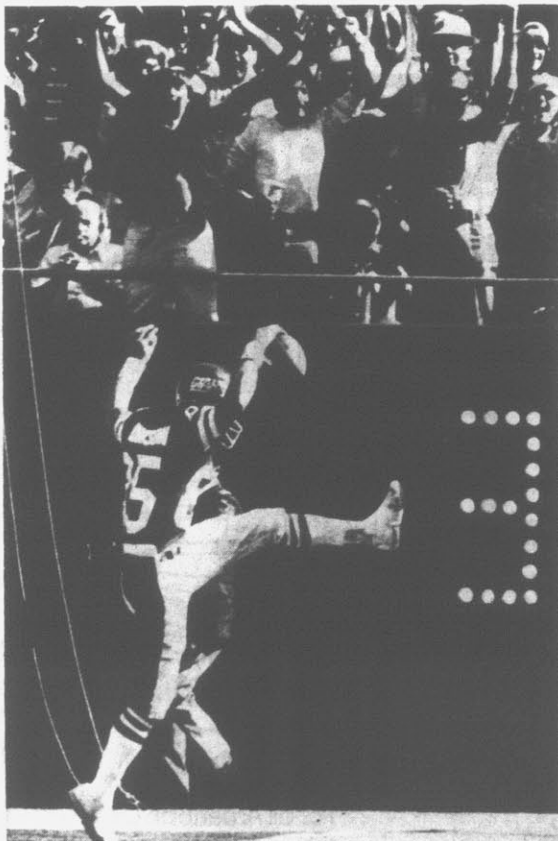

Elyria Police Sgt. John McLean said Spinks was driving north on Ohio 57 early Saturday, and when he started to exit near the Midway Mall, he struck some loose gravel and lost control of his car.

He slid off the roadway and traveled about 130 feet before going through a cyclone fence.

McLean said Spinks told police he turned quickly because he didn't see the exit sign. He was given a traffic ticket for failure to control a motor vehicle and will have to appear in municipal court on the citation.

There was one passenger in the car at the time, who also escaped injury. Police had no estimates on damage to the car or the fence, except that both were over $150.

Spinks lost his World Boxing Association championship to Muhammad Ali in New Orleans Sept. 15 after winning the title in February.

VICTORY KICK — Jimmy Robinson of the New York Giants imitates a Radio City Music Hall Rockette after he scored a touchdown in the first quarter of Sunday's game with the Washington Redskins at Giants Stadium. Robinson grabbed a 43-yard pass for the TD and the Giants went on to pumel the Redskins 17-6. (AP Laserphoto)

Donna Charged

HOUSTON (AP) — Donna Caponi Young got a hint of what was to come Sunday when she came out of a bunker to save par on the No. 4 hole at the Newport Country Club.

"I told everyone if I ever parred No. 4 I would win the tournament," Young said. "I went bogey, bogey, par on the three days and when I got the par I knew something was up."

More important than the par, however, were the three birdies and one eagle that allowed Young to charge past second-day leader Alexandra Reinhardt with a three-under-par 69 to win the $50,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament by a three-shot margin.

Reinhardt, who led at the end of the first two rounds, faded with a final round 73 to finish second. Sally Little of Dallas flirted with the lead early in the final round but finished with an even par 72 for third place.

Young's nine-under-par 207 total earned her a first-place check of $7,500 while Reinhardt got $5,400 for her 210 runnerup position. Little was another shot back at 211 and she earned $3,620.

"I missed birdies from 12 feet, eight feet and six feet on the first three holes," Young said. "I was close all day so when I got the birdie on six I was real excited."

Young, who recorded her 15th tournament victory, followed up with an eagle on seven for the second straight day. She bogied the next two holes to fall back into a tie with Reinhardt but birdies on 12 and 13 put Young into the lead for good.

"I'm only an average putter," said Young, who counted seven makable birdie putts that she missed. "I'd win more tournaments if I could putt better."

"I didn't play well enough to win and Donna did so she deserved it," Reinhardt said. "I can't feel too bad about that."

Little said she made two "dumb" mistakes that put her out of contention.

St. Louis, like Cincinnati, is now 0-8 after bowing to the Jets. Scott Dierking scored two touchdowns for New York and Pat Leahy, the NFL's leading scorer, booted field goals of 20, 38 and 45 yards.

Falcons 20, 49ers 17

Atlanta erased a 17-7 deficit in the final 5:38, beating San Francisco on Tim Mazzetti's last-second, 29-yard field goal.

Steve Bartkowski directed the comeback, hitting a 71-yard bomb to set up a 21-yard field goal by Mazzetti.

Drop Decision

HIGH POINT — East Carolina University's field hockey team lost to High Point College here this weekend, dropping their season record to 2-7.

The hockey squad dropped a 2-1 decision to the host team on penalty strokes after an overtime period.

The team will travel to Boone this Friday to compete in the state field hockey tournament.

Brian Winters Set The Stage

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Marques Johnson sank the winning points at the final buzzer, but he never would have had that chance if it hadn't been for Brian Winters.

The score was tied 107-107 in the Milwaukee Bucks' National Basketball Association game with the Golden State Warriors Sunday night when Winters blocked a shot from Phil Smith, grabbed the ball and called time out with one second remaining, setting up a winning basket by Johnson.

Before that, Winters scored 37 points, including seven straight baskets that accounted for all but two of Milwaukee's points in the last 6:45. The other basket was Johnson's shot that gave the Bucks a 109-107 victory.

Won 2 Of 4

BOONE — East Carolina University's volleyball squad won two of its four games here this weekend during competition in the Appalachian State Invitational.

ECU topped Concord College 15-11 and 15-9 and beat Catawba 15-1 and 15-2 before dropping a 7-15, 15-7, 15-6 set to the University of South Carolina, the eventual tournament winners. East Carolina also lost to the College of Charleston, 15-6, 14-16, 15-9.

The team, which now has a 15-10 season record, travels to Lenoir-Rhyne tomorrow to meet Duke University.

Lose Ed Kea

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Flames have lost veteran defenseman Ed Kea for three months to an ankle injury.

The 30-year-old Kea suffered shattered bone and torn ligaments in his ankle when hit by a puck in a game Friday night against the Montreal Canadiens, said Cliff Fletcher, Flames general manager.

Fletcher said Kea would be out of action until January, leaving the Flames with five defensemen, none older than 24.

A Review

Surperb Production Of Broadway Show

The East Carolina Playhouse opened its 1978-79 season Friday night with an impressively superb production of the long-running Broadway musical "Pippin". The acute professionalism which shines from such Playhouse productions is a testament to the fact, as stated in the program, that ECU drama school graduates are now working on Broadway, in films and in regional theatres across the country.

Having seen the Broadway production of "Pippin", I can honestly say that this show possesses the same energy, vitality and charm of the original. Directed, adapted and restaged by Ken Miller, who himself appeared in the Broadway company for the last year and a half of the show's run, this most recent production incorporates some new and interesting special effects.

The story centers round Pippin, eldest son of Charlemagne, ruler of the Holy Roman Empire. Pippin seeks to find something that will give his life meaning, without tying him down to menial existence. In his quest he explores war, revolution, sex, and death in order to accomplish a "totally perfect act". He discovers that nothing is totally perfect, and "if I'm never tied to anything, I'll never be free."

Tony King as Pippin, totally mesmerizes the audiences with one of the most angelic voices I've ever heard. His first musical number, "Corner of the Sky", is so beautifully done that it brings chills. Steven Willford as Leading Player, a sort of alter-ego for Pippin, demonstrates astonishing dance talent. His rhythm and form are so captivating that one can not keep their eyes from him when he is on stage. He also possesses a commendable singing voice.

Some of the supporting performances were also outstanding, particularly Holly Jerome. She was delightfully despicable and deliciously seductive as Fastrada, Pippin's step-mother.

"Pippin" is a "modern" musical that stimulates both the eyes and ears. The sets, done for this production by Chuck Giles, are simple yet quite inventive, and the costumes, designed by Maria Jurganis from the original Broadway production, are often bizarre and always eye-appealing.

David Downing's lighting and the special effects enhance the imaginative aura of the play itself. And, as last year, Barry Shank's orchestra beautifully plays the outstanding score by Stephen Schwartz, which the audience leaves the theatre humming.

The standing ovation given the cast was well deserved. "Pippin" plays October 20, 21, 22, 26 and 27. The next Playhouse production will be "Hotel Baltimore," another Broadway hit, on November 2, 3, and 4, in the Studio Theatre.

ECU News Bureau
Seventeen East Carolina University students are preparing for a semester of study in Costa Rica early next year, under a cooperative arrangement with Costa Rica's Universidad Nacional and the ECU Department of Geography.

The Costa Rican campus is located near Heredia, a suburb of the capital city, San Jose. Students will live with a native Costa Rican families and attend classes on campus, taught by Costa Rican and ECU professors.

According to Dr. Robert Cramer of the ECU geography faculty director of the Costa Rica-ECU program, the 17 students will meet with Jorge Arturo Saenz, Universidad Nacional administrator when Saenz visits Greenville in early November.

Sees Appeal In Old Smoothies

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Spin the FM knob on your radio a time or two. Plenty of rock and strings, says Bill O'Shaughnessy, but none of that country club music you may really want to hear.

O'Shaughnessy, you may have figured by now, runs a radio station with an 18-hour-a-day playlist picked with the "old smoothie" in mind — the fan of the country club, big band, society, sound.

More simply, at WRTN-FM, Fred Astaire and Judy Garland singing "I Love a Piano" are in and "noise and elevator music" are out.

O'Shaughnessy calls it "Returnradio," and he's convinced the new format can work almost anywhere.

"I don't mean to make more of 'Returnradio' than it is," he says, "but I really believe people all over are dressing up more, trying to make their marriages work, going to church again, getting back to the basics."

"I sit there in our modern new building in Westchester, but I can see rowhouses out the window, and I know there are people there waiting to hear something they like — big band, jazz, country club, twobeat rickety-tick ..."

O'Shaughnessy, 40, uses phrases like "hand-holding music," "the grabbers" and "old ain't necessarily good" to describe WRTN's music. "Attention ... old smoothies. Your music has returned," reads one newspaper promo.

The station, he says, is after people of any age, though especially those in the 35 and up age group. "suburban couples with kids, a mortgage, two cars, lime green slacks, Guccis, into soccer — country clubbers."

An hour on WRTN might include songs by — well, the ad says — Sinatra, Tony Bennett, Jerry Vale, Sergio Franchi, Nat "King" Cole, Lena Horne, Patti Page and Ella Fitzgerald.

Bill O'Shaughnessy is indeed a suppersalesman with a ledger of big-name advertisers as long as his arm. "Most stations wouldn't let this out," he says, waving the typewritten list.

In fact, billings for the suburban station with a relatively ju7kkoigo. signal total about $50,000 a month, O'Shaughnessy says, after barely eight months on the air. And that's in a market that includes, by O'Shaughnessy's count, nearly 100 stations.

WRTN, he says, serves the region's most affluent homes, and reaches another 150,000 in the metropolitan area by cable.

The station has five full-time employees, including O'Shaughnessy, who helps pick the records, some from his own collection. "You can have a thousand people," he says, "but if you don't have an idea, it doesn't mean a thing."

"I love it. We were picking records the other day, listening to people like Pearl Bailey. Can you imagine spending your time on the job any better?"

LARGEST VOLUME

Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co. reported new life insurance sales totaling $590,440,000 for the first nine months this year, the largest nine-month sales volume in company history.

The nine-month sales figure represents a gain of $41,492,000 or 7.6 percent over volume for the same period last year, according to Seth C. Macon, senior vice president-agency.

Macon said that ordinary life insurance in force with the company was reported at an all-time high of $5,510,427,000 on Sept. 30, a record gain of $284,150,000 for the preceding nine months.

MEMBERSHIP GAINED

The Ford Division of Ford Motor Co. announced that Rickie Moore of Farmville Motors Inc. has attained membership in the Ford Society of Professional Sales Counselors for 1978.

Society membership, it was noted, is attained by Ford salesmen who display outstanding sales achievement during the calendar year.

BOARD APPOINTMENT

W. F. (Bill) Weston, superintendent of the Gas Department, Greenville Utilities Commission, was appointed to the board of directors and elected treasurer of Utility Locating Co. Inc.

Utility Locating Co. is a non-profit company formed by the utilities in North Carolina. The company offers a toll free number (1-800-632-4949) for anyone to call who is planning to dig underground and would like to have the utilities located in that area.

The service, which is free, is aimed at cutting down on the damage costs to underground utilities, it was noted.

REGULAR DIVIDEND

The board of directors of Vermont American Corp. declared a regular quarterly dividend of eight cents per share on the company's Class A and Class B common stock, plus a 12 percent stock dividend on both classes of stock.

The cash dividend and the stock dividend are payable Nov. 30 to shareholders of record Nov. 17. The company also noted that cash will be paid in lieu of fractional shares.

Vermont American, which operates a plant here, is a manufacturer of precision cutting tools for consumer and industry.

NEW OWNERSHIP

Dunn Concrete and Supply Co., located at the corner of Memorial Drive and Chestnut Street, is now solely owned and operated by Frank S. Goins.

The new owner said that the company, which has been in operation here for over 25 years, offers not only concrete but sand, mortar mix, and other masonry products with delivery to job sites.

Goins, who attended high school in Charlotte, is a business administration graduate of East Carolina University. He was associated with Union Carbide here for five years and for the past three years worked with the company in Vermont.

He and his wife, Darla, reside in West Haven with their four children. The family attends First Presbyterian Church.

Representing a cross section of subscribers, the 11 statewide advisory councils keep Blue Cross in touch with the health care needs and attitudes of its subscribers, it was pointed out.

Askew serves as personnel safety director for the Greenville Utilities Commission, while Taylor is a co-owner of the Taylor-Payton Co. of Greenville. Both were elected to three-year terms.

March Date For PTI Building

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer

March 9, 1979 is the projected date for completion of a new shop, laboratory, and classroom building on the campus of Pitt Technical Institute.

According to Dr. Ed Wright,

PTI Dean of Instruction, the building, roughly estimated at 26,000 square feet, will house four shops, three labs and five classrooms.

"We're going to bring over our carpentry, electrical insulation, and heating, air conditioning and refrigeration classes, as well as expand our auto mechanics to include diesel mechanics," Wright said. The classes are presently located off campus.

The commercial art, early childhood education and human services technology classes will move from the administrative building to the new facility.

"Those places freed in the administrative building will house some health programs, radiologic technology and operating room technician," stated Wright. "We need to bring those programs from the old nursing building at Pitt Memorial Hospital because the county needs it, but the clinical work will still be done at the hospital."

Located next to the new facility is a metal building which houses the electric motor repair and rewinding classes, as well as welding. According to Wright, the building has been expanded in the past year.

In front of the metal building stands a 4000 square foot brick building totally built by Pitt Tech brick masonry, carpentry, electrical, and heating, air conditioning and refrigeration students, supervised by Pitt Tech instructors. According to Wright, the building is near completion, except for some brick veneer work to be done on the back of the facility.

MARCH 1979... completion date is planned for the 26,000 square foot building shown here under construction. The new building will house four shops, three labs and five classrooms. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest)

Offer Prizes For Area Decorations

The Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival will sponsor a decorating contest for retail stores and businesses, restaurants and area motels located in Pitt County.

Three divisions will be used, with division one including retail stores and businesses with ten or less employees. Division two will include retail stores with 11 or more employees.

Divisions one and two include service stations, beauty shops, professional and business offices, banks, grocery stores, to name a few. The number of employees shall be determined by the number employed at the individual store decorated. Retail stores and businesses will be judged from the window or front office.

Division three will consist of restaurants and motels, with decorating to be done in check-out counters, lobbies, table decorations or appropriate areas.

Plaques and cash prizes will be awarded to the first, second and third winners for each division. Cash prizes are as follows: first place, $300, second, $150, and third, $100. Suggested uses for prize money include special events for employees such as parties, luncheons or gifts.

Rules are as follows: — The theme for all decorations must be centered around some segment of the tobacco industry or tobacco farm life. — Judges will consider attractiveness and all-around appeal.

— All judging will be on originality (not on who spends the most money) and neatness of decorations, as well as tasteful use of any material used.

— All retail stores, businesses, restaurants and motels in Pitt County are eligible.

— Entry forms must be completed and returned by Oct. 30 to the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, Inc., P. O. Box 7366, Greenville, N. C. 27634.

Trish Byrum is the chairman of the decorating contest.

Blame It All On Little Red Box

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The theft of a little red box from a tourist's room at a Kenyan game lodge has led to a sudden increase in the country's baboon population.

The strange story came to light after it was observed that baby baboons scamped about everywhere in the area around the Treetops Game Lodge, near the town of Nyeri about 100 miles north of here.

As hotel manager Geoffrey Gachihi explained Saturday, "Normally, none of this would raise an eyebrow, except for the fact that these little fellows were born out of season — or out of wedlock, one might be tempted to say."

The lodge's resident hunter, who acts as escort to visitors who venture out of the lodge, said it was learned that some months ago a woman guest had left the window of her bedroom open.

Popping in and out of the room through the window was easy for the baboons, who made off with a small red box.

The box contained fertility pills.

Dr. Daniels is a professor in the ECU Department of Business Education and Office Administration.

Seeks Record In Kissing Women

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Phillip Friedrich estimates that he has kissed 495 women this month and hasn't been slapped even once.

Friedrich, who is retired and in his 70s, is out to set a record for kissing the most women in a single month.

To verify his claim for the Guinness Book of Records, he carries a clipboard as he visits shopping malls, stores and other businesses. He asks women to kiss him and then sign a list on his clipboard. "I've never been refused, and I have never gotten a slap in the face," Friedrich says. He says the Guinness record book contains no listing of such a feat.

GSA Keeps Trying To Unload Old Furniture

By DONALD LAMBRO
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Each year, more than $36 million in new furniture pours into Washington's federal office buildings from a crumbling, leaky government warehouse in nearby Maryland, much of it filled with soot-covered cartons of unwanted furnishings.

The Middle River, Md., facility near Baltimore, larger than a football field, is run by the General Services Administration, the mammoth housekeeping agency for kickback and bribery scandals.

The GSA operates 17 such furniture warehouses around the country. They "sell" an estimated $123 million in furniture to the government every year.

Overall, the government spends about a quarter of a billion dollars each year solely on new furnishings.

What was wrong with the old furniture and how the government can consume so many desks, chairs, tables, bookshelves, lamps and other furniture warehouse after year is a mystery to the GSA officials who stock and deliver the supplies for the $5 billion procurement agency.

"You would think there is enough now to give every bureaucrat in the world a desk, but it never ends," said James Cook, a GSA regional official.

An official of the White House Office of Management and Budget suggested the reason it never ends is that "offices are often refurnished when agencies move to new quarters, are reorganized, or just when a new administration comes in."

UPI's tour indicated much of the Maryland facility's $8 million to $11 million inventory consisted of dust-covered cartons of unused furniture GSA cannot unload.

Officials said the unused cartons, identified by a circled "X," have been there up to three years or more.

Furniture in the warehouse is predominantly from Art Metal USA Inc. of Newark, N.J., which makes 75 percent of all furniture bought by GSA. Art Metal's products have come under intense criticism from government officials who charge they are shoddily constructed.

The Maryland facility moves an average of $3 million in furniture into Washington each month, and still has $5 million to $8 million worth left on hand.

The volume is vividly illustrated by the line of railroad cars being unloaded in the warehouse, each boxcar crammed to the top with desks.
