

Salvage Begins

NAVY FLOATING CRANES staffed with civilian crews begin effort to raise the 125-foot Coast Guard cutter Cuyahoga from the bottom of the Chesapeake Bay, off Smith Point. The ship sank Friday when it collided with an

Argentine collier. Eighteen of the 19 men aboard were rescued; six of the 11 missing have been recovered. The others are expected to be found inside the wreckage. A Coast Guard board of inquiry is meeting in Baltimore to determine the cause of the collision. (AP Laserphoto)

Carter Finding Support For Anti-Inflation Plan

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is picking up important support for his anti-inflation program from Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller and business and labor groups. Miller, in a speech Wednesday night, called Carter's new program "a balanced, concerted and sustained program to fight inflation."

Miller's support was important to White House inflation fighters, who must avoid any collision course with the independent Federal Reserve's interest rate policies.

If labor and business will support Carter's program, Miller said, "it gives us running room to eradicate inflation."

Some business groups have pledged cooperation with the program, although many of them had opposed the idea of wage-price guidelines. Most of them like Carter's promises to cut government spending.

General Motors Corp. praised Carter for "his recognition that government must take the lead to slow inflation." It also applauded his rejection of mandatory wage-price controls.

And Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons said he would back the plan if "adjustments" were made in the wage standard and if the program helped moderate price rises.

"If this program establishes some credibility on the price side and adjustments are made on the wage standard, I am sure that the 2 million Teamster members and their families will do their share to assist in resolving this difficult problem," said Fitzsimmons.

He said the wage adjustments might involve health care, pensions and other fringe benefits.

Initial response to Carter's plan in world money markets was not good. The dollar fell to new lows in West Germany, The Netherlands, Austria, Belgium, Denmark and Norway and also was sharply down against the yen in Japan.

Announcing his plan Tuesday, Carter set guidelines limiting wage and benefit increases to 7 percent next year for all workers except those making less than $4 an hour. The plan aims at limiting price increases to 5 1/2 percent across the economy, excluding food.

If the program works, Carter said it will lower the inflation rate to between 6 percent and 6.5 percent in 1979, compared to more than 8 percent forecast for this year.

The program is voluntary, but the government could withhold contracts or use other sanctions against companies that do not follow its terms.

Israel To Strengthen Its West Bank Settlements

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israel-Egyptian peace drive was shaken today when Israel announced it is strengthening existing Jewish settlements in the West Bank in apparent pique at the United States, and Egypt said it may recall its Washington peace negotiators for consultations.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance issued a statement in Washington saying the Carter administration was "deeply disturbed" by the Israeli move, which he called a "very serious" matter.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan acknowledged that the settlements decision may "make it more difficult" to reach final agreement with Egypt on a peace treaty.

Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil told reporters in Cairo a recall of the Egyptian negotiators would be "purely routine." But it would rule out the scheduled resumption of the peace talks Friday in Washington.

In another development today, Syria and Iraq signed a "charter for joint national action" to oppose the Camp David peace framework agreed to by Egypt and Israel. The alliance is particularly significant because it ends a long bitter feud between the rival factions of the Baath Socialist Party that rule the two Arab neighbors.

Israeli government officials said the decision to expand Jewish settlements in the West Bank of the Jordan River was made in angry reaction to statements made privately by Undersecretary of State Harold Saunders over the future of the Palestinian-populated zone.

In a closed meeting with West Bank Palestinian leaders last week, Saunders reportedly hinted that Israel might evacuate its West Bank enclaves at the end of the five-year transition period envisioned by the Camp David agreements. He also reportedly reaffirmed the U.S. position that Arab East Jerusalem, annexed by Israel after the 1967 war, is considered by Washington to be occupied territory.

"If you want to give the plan a name, you could call it the Saunders project," one Israeli official quipped about the settlements expansion.

The decision to build more apartments and send more Jewish families to settlements in the West Bank was made at a lengthy Israeli Cabinet meeting on the proposed treaty with Egypt but wasn't revealed until the end of late night political meetings.

What Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet decided Wednesday to accept in principle the draft peace treaty but sent Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman back to Washington today with instructions to seek amendments in the text.

Khalil did not explain why the Egyptian team might be called home for further discussions, telling reporters simply, "I am in consultation with the president (Anwar Sadat) about the possibility of asking them to come to Cairo for consultations."

But he said the possible recall was "not in reaction" to Israel's West Bank decision.

ALFREDE. KAHN

To lead the program, Carter selected Alfred E. Kahn, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Kahn gained prominence with his success in reducing airline prices by increasing competition.

Kahn will take over from Robert S. Strauss, who will continue in his job as special trade representative, but who said he was too busy for the expanded program.

The program must work, Kahn said, or it will lead to "ever tighter fiscal and monetary restraints" that could lead to a recession or result in mandatory controls.

Another Geneva Trip Planned For Vance To Try Complete SALT

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter plans to send Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to Geneva next month for another round of strategic weapons limitation talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, according to U.S. sources.

The idea is to try to complete a treaty and have it signed at a summit meeting by Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev before the end of the year.

The treaty would limit each country to a total of 2,250 strategic bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles. Soon after completion, U.S. and Soviet negotiators would get to work on a follow-up treaty with further cutbacks.

After the last round of talks, in Moscow earlier this week, a number of key issues remain unsettled. They include the range limitations to be placed on land- and sea-launched U.S. cruise missiles and the details for restricting new weapons on both sides.

Still, U.S. officials say they have not lost hope of completing the treaty by Christmas.

Vance's meeting with Gromyko will mark their ninth round of weapons talks in less than two years. Overall, the Americans and the Soviets have been working on a treaty for six years.

On Wednesday, the Soviet newspaper Izvestia said "definite circles" in the United States that cling to cold war attitudes are trying to impede the arms limitation talks.

The article also accused the unnamed groups of "artificially" tying up the negotiations with other questions of Soviet-American relations.

City Inspections Dept. Rezoning Request Is Tabled By Commission

By LYNN CAVERLY
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission Wednesday considered a rezoning request of the City Inspections Department.

The property in question lies on West Gum Road between U.

S. 13 and Fred Webb's grain elevators. The land is presently zoned as IU, which prevents any rebuilding by property owners should their structures burn or if they should wish to expand or remodel.

No property owners were present at the meeting as the request was sponsored by the City Inspections Department. After much discussion, the commission moved to table the motion for 30 days, during which time a study of present land use patterns surrounding the property in question could be made.

The commission considered a rezoning, request of the Louis Clark Agency, Inc., for 21.8 acres at the southwest corner of the intersection of Red Banks Road and 14th Street Extension. Petitioner was seeking a change from the present zoning of R-20 and RA-20 to R-9.

This request had previously been denied by the commission as it did not meet R-9 specifications. However, the property had been redesigned by petitioner to meet those specifications and the committee voted to recommend the proposed change to the City Council.

The only new item of business the agenda was the approval of a revised plat of Bryton Hill Subdivision. The property is zoned R-6.

The commission then went into joint city-county matters.

PESTICIDE HAZARD

In regard to the Oct. 5 Hotline item concerning whether it is safe to eat fish from farm ponds, I would just like to say that fish in these ponds can be unfit to eat if the ponds receive run-off water containing agricultural pesticides. C. O.

Hotline contacted Dr. T. J. Sheets, Director of the Pesticide Research Laboratory at N. C. State University. He said that, under normal conditions, farm ponds do not receive drainage containing sufficient amounts of pesticides to be harmful. Also, if the pesticides being used are those considered "legal," they would have been sufficiently decomposed so as not to present any danger if taken in by the fish.

He added that, by the time the fish are cooked, the heating would further degrade these pesticides. "It would be a rare situation in which pesticides transmitted by fish from farm ponds could pose any real danger to humans consuming them," Dr. Sheets said.

ECU News Bureau

The formal installation of Dr. Thomas Bowman Brewer as chancellor of East Carolina University will take place Saturday in ceremonies marked by pomp and both traditional and symbolic flourishes.

The sound of trumpets and horns will herald the approaching event across the campus Saturday morning.

Music in the form of fanfares, marches and anthems will be provided by the ECU Symphony Orchestra and the ECU Concert Choir as a continuing feature throughout the program.

A procession of more than 600 dignitaries in academic regalia preceded by a bearer, the chief marshal clad in purple satin and gold, carrying a silver mace will open the ceremonies on the North Lawn at 10:30 a.m.

The platform party will include Governor James B. Hunt Jr., University of North Carolina President William C. Friday, the Hon. Susie Sharp, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, Chancellor Brewer and others.

A long-term friend of the new chancellor, Dr. William Edward Tucker, president of Bethany College, W. Va., will give the invocation. President Tucker is former dean of Brite Divinity School and professor of church history, Texas Christian University, and previously chairman of the Dept. of Religion and Philosophy at Atlantic Christian College, Wilson.

An audience of some 3,000 is expected to attend, including many invited guests and official delegates from colleges and universities across the country.

In the event of inclement weather, the Installation program was scheduled to go on as planned at Minges Coliseum instead of on the North Lawn.

A shuttle bus schedule was arranged to bring guests from Greenville area motels and from designated parking lots in downtown Greenville and along Tenth Street to the North Lawn area. Fifth Street adjacent to the main campus was to be closed to vehicular traffic during the hours of the ceremony, from at least 10 a.m. until noon.

UNC President Friday will preside at the ceremonies and will introduce the governor and the Installation speaker, Dr. Jack W. Peltason, former chancellor of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and now president of the American Council on Education.

The oath of office to Dr. Brewer as seventh chief administrative officer in ECU's 71 year history will be administered by Chief Justice Sharp, and the charge as a chancellor of the UNC system will be given by President Friday. Dr. Brewer will then respond.

An informal luncheon for invited guests is to be held at Mendenhall Student Center following the ceremonies.

The Installation of the Chancellor has been attended by several days of special events, programs, receptions and open house affairs.

Highway Hearing

Two public hearings have been scheduled on the preliminary environmental impact statement for an improved U.S. 264 between Wilson and Greenville.

Department of Transportation officials said this morning that hearings will be held at the old Saratoga High School building in Saratoga at 7:30 p.m. November 28, and at the Wellcome Middle School just North of Greenville at 7:30 p.m. November 29.

Spokesmen said the DOT Planning Board approved the draft statement October 18 after making "extensive modifications."

The draft statement includes several possible locations for the four-laned roadway, linking Greenville and Wilson.

The final determination of the corridor for the improvement project will be made following the public hearings and will be included in the final environmental impact statement.

Health Hinders Brezhnev

LONDON (AP) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's difficulties with speech and other functions are hindering U.S. and Soviet negotiators in their efforts to reach a new strategic arms limitation agreement, the London Times reported today.

The newspaper said Brezhnev's health has become so uncertain that Western observers believe he is no longer capable of serious negotiations.

Intuition Bears No Fruition

DEAR ABBY: I suspect that my husband has been cheating on me for a long time, but I haven't been able to pin anything on him. I even hired a private detective to follow him, but he couldn't come up with a thing. It's just a feeling I have. My husband goes out a lot and tells me he is going to such and such a place, but he's never where he says he'll be, and that makes me suspicious.

I finally went to a lawyer, and he told me to grow up—that every man cheats on his wife at some time in his life. Is this true? I always believed my father was a faithful husband to my mother, and I've got brothers who I am sure wouldn't go out on their wives.

My lawyer says I should quit trying to catch my husband, and accept the fact that all men cheat. Do they?

CHICAGO TRIBUNE READER

DEAR READER: No! There are plenty of married men who never cheat, and your husband could be one of them. The only thing you can be fairly sure of is that you lawyer cheats on his wife.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from CANT TELL HIM, the girl who couldn't tell her fiancé that he had bad breath.

I, too, suffer from chronic bad breath, and it's ruining my life. I'm a young, attractive, single girl and a very clean person. My dental hygiene is excellent. I brush twice a day, and floss, too.

Commercial mouthwashes are worthless. Please, Abby, can you ask some of your doctor friends if I could have a medical problem? Perhaps it's a vitamin deficiency.

Please answer in your column because I'm sure there are many others who suffer from this terrible affliction.

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Bad breath could be a symptom of so many physical ailments that it would take a full column to list them.

It could be poor nutrition, a vitamin deficiency, or emotional stress. But don't assume anything. Start with your physician. It's even possible that the affliction is only imaginary, in which case psychotherapy is the answer. Get help now and put an end to this needless suffering.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Recycle Icing Cans For Plants

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI)—Panelist members of National Family Opinion, Inc., a market research firm, have some ideas for recycling prepared icing cans with resealable lids:

- Make drainage holes in the bottom to use as a flower pot and use the lid as a saucer.
- Put a slit in the top and use as a children's bank.
- Use for food storage on picnics or to hold snacks for children while traveling.
- Store spices and cake decorations.

'Coming Of Age Charter Night Held'

The Greenville Pilot Club celebrated its "Coming of Age Charter Night" Monday at the Immanuel Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Five members of the Raleigh Pilot Club were present for the celebration since their club sponsored the Greenville club in 1957.

The welcome was given by Mrs. Irene Pruett, president. Mrs. Kay Whitehurst introduced Walter Wilder, artist in residence at Pitt Tech. He entertained on the lute with music primarily from the 18th century.

Mrs. Whitehurst explained "What Pilot Expects of Me" and Ms. Lab Hayes recalled "Pilots of Yesterday." Local Pilots signed the "Coming of Age Charter" and Trudy Blessing read the Code of Ethics.

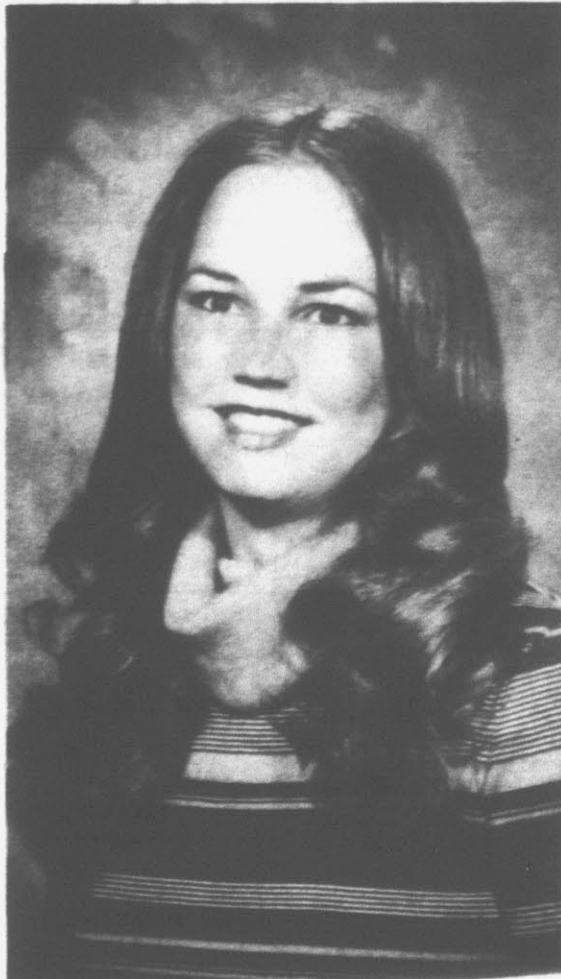

Guests from Raleigh were Ms. Joyce Sykes, president, Ms. Bonnie Moore, Ms. Lab Hayes, Ms. Frances Thomas and Miss Mildred Mallard, former president of both the Greenville and Raleigh clubs. Other guests included Dr. Malene Irons and Mrs. J. B. Spilman, honorary members, Ms. Annette Morris, Mrs. Betty Brewer, Mrs. Nancy Middleton, Ms. Virgie Easterling, Mrs. Rose Howell and Dr. Helen Steer.

Charter member Mrs. Sue Howell lighted the candles on the birthday cake. Mrs. Tomenak Hudson was "spoke of the month."

The next meeting will be Nov. 27 at the Ramada Inn.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I heard a man remark the other day that he did not know how his wife could go to the supermarket, purchase $85 worth of groceries, come home and have nothing to cook for dinner.

Isn't that just like a man? Men like that probably don't even understand why a woman has a closet full of clothes and still has nothing to wear.

Grocery shopping is one of the last of the little-known sciences in the world. All the experts know is it's demanding, requires great concentration and split-second timing.

Researchers a few years back tried to pin down why women bought as they did in supermarkets. They discovered that when women entered the store and their hands curled around a cart handle, something happened. Their "eye-blink" rate dropped to 14 a minute, putting them into a hypnoidal trance, which is the first stage of hypnosis. (One researcher said it was incredible how women passed by friends and neighbors without realizing they were even there.)

At the check-out, however, their consciousness seemed to be triggered by the cash register bell which brought their "blink-rate" up to 45 a minute. (Which is normal.)

Women spent 20 seconds on each aisle, tossing and throwing. The list-makers went around mumbling, "Do I have oregano?" and answering themselves, "What kind of a question is that? Of course, you have oregano. You're Italian, aren't you?"

Every woman has her "system." I am not a list-maker. I found that when I made out a list of everything I needed for well-balanced, attractive meals I had to arrange for financing at the check-out.

I tend to stick to the basic things I've been buying for the past 20 years and hope that something wonderful will happen to it during the week.

As for not having anything to cook when you've just returned from the supermarket, I have a rather interesting theory about that. I equate shoppers with the pioneer hunters who dragged home a 300-pound moose, lugged it to the log cabin door and said, "I shot it. Now YOU cook it!"

If you don't understand that, then you deserve to have frozen pizza, a set of cookware, a room deodorizer, and an encyclopedia for your dinner!

Track System For Housewives

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP)—Housework more and more is becoming a nighttime occupation.

A growing number of household chores, such as dishwashing, baking, laundry and vacuuming are being performed after 8 p.m. to help reduce daytime use of electricity, according to a survey just completed by General Public Utilities Corporation. This helps minimize increases in the cost of electricity and conserves energy, explains Robert W. Smith, GPU's consumer affairs manager.

The survey, covering 65,000 of GPU's residential customers in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, indicates that 58 percent of them have changed their household routines to do more housework at night. This compares with 53 percent in a similar survey conducted by the company in 1976.

Decreasing daytime use of electricity lessens the need to build costly new generating plants, Smith said. He added that electricity is generated at night by the most efficient plants using the most economical and plentiful fuels, such as coal and nuclear.

Mental Health Award To Pitt Unit

Student Is Finalist In Senate Program

Wanda Elaine Barnes, a junior at D. H. Conley High School, has been selected as one of the 16 finalists for the 1979 U. S. Senate Youth Program.

From the finalists, two elected high school student officers will be selected to represent North Carolina. The winners will receive a trip to Washington and a $1,000 William Randolph Hearst Foundation college scholarship.

The Senate Youth Program is sponsored by the members of the United States Senate and the trustees of the William Randolph Hearst Foundation.

The 1979 program will provide a week's internship of the government with emphasis on the United States Senate. Among the activities scheduled are briefings of the Department of Defense, Department of State, Department of Justice and Supreme Court and meeting with legislative and government leaders.

The students selected will be notified by their senators on Friday, Dec. 1.

Miss Barnes is a member of the Pep Club, Literary Club, Yearbook Staff, and National Honor Society at D. H. Conley. She is also a Junior SCA representative and a varsity basketball statistician. Miss Barnes is the daughter of Mrs. Virgie Barnes of Winterville.

The Mental Health Association in Pitt County has received a Silver Bell Award from the Mental Health Association in North Carolina for the fourth consecutive year.

This award demonstrates that Pitt is an outstanding chapter of MHA in NC.

Attending the convention at which the award was presented were Patsy Mills, Margaret Shelton, Nancy Middleton, Virgie Easterling, Lib LeConte and Melba Howard. Mrs. LeConte and Mrs. Howard are members of the state association board of directors.

The silver loving cup representative of the award was shown to the county association board of directors yesterday. Mrs. Dorothy Hardy, vice president of the Eastern Region of MHA in NC spoke on the activities and growth of the Wake County MHA and the future growth of the MHA in Pitt County.

Special guests were Peggy Hill, staff member of MHA in NC and Mrs. J. B. Spilman, first executive director of MHA in N. C.

Sara Albritton, membership chairman, asked the 20 board members present to promote new memberships in the association. Dr. Charles Mitchell, president, announced that the annual membership meeting would be held Jan. 11, 1979, with Ms. Pat Evans serving as chairman.

Arrested 12 In Larceny Ring

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Twelve Tarboro residents were arrested this week in connection with a larceny ring here, police said Wednesday.

Police Chief Floyd W. Lucas said the arrests resulted from an anonymous tip from a witness who had seen the stolen goods discarded in a forest. Lucas said more than 30 burglaries were committed.

A special police unit recovered several thousand dollars worth of stolen goods, including firearms, tape recorders, cameras and jewelry, Lucas said.

The suspects were being held Wednesday in Edgecomb County Jail under bonds totalling $55,000.

It Could Work If We Comply

President Carter announced his voluntary wage and price guidelines in a nationwide address Tuesday night.

He called on labor to hold wage and fringe benefits to 7 percent during the coming year. Business would voluntarily limit price increases to 0.5 percent below increases of 1976-77.

In return for the wage hold-down workers would get a tax rebate for excess of the inflation rate over 7 percent.

The president also promised that federal spending would be held down and hiring would be limited to filling one of two vacancies.

Nitpicking Still Leaves Us Wondering

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration announced this week that it was dropping 928 "nitpicking" safety standards.

Included were such things as toilet seat selection and specifications for mounting fire extinguishers.

There was little to require business or labor to comply with the standards, other than governmental threat to open foreign competition or deny contracts to those industries which don't.

Like most voluntary programs this one is doomed to failure if it is left solely to the conscience of business and labor.

It can succeed but it will depend on how tough the federal government gets with businesses and unions which fail to comply. Equally important it will depend on how tough government gets with itself in limiting its own inflationary spending.

We applaud OSHA for branding the dropped standards as being more of a nuisance than a help, but we still have to wonder how in the world some of these "nitpicking" standards were instituted in the first place.

THIS AFTERNOON

We Hold More Money

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There is more money than ever in North Carolina, judging from the records on collection of the intangibles tax for the past fiscal year.

But a major shift in its form is apparent: there is more money owed than ever, and shares of stock are worthless.

The intangibles tax collected $35 million last year for distribution to city and county governments across the state.

This is without a doubt one of the most unpopular taxes — perhaps equalled only by the sales tax on food as a source of complaint in the state.

It is applied against wealth: money on deposit in checking or savings accounts; money on hand; accounts receivable; bonds or notes; shares of stock; interest; deposits with insurance companies.

The General Assembly at every session is faced with demands for repeal of the onerous tax. Study commission after study commission has grappled with the subject.

Again

The 1979 session will again face the same topic. And again, the power of the local governmental lobbies will be brought to bear against repeal — unless the revenue loss to local governments is replaced.

Replacement would have to come from the state's General Fund, and it is doubtful that legislators with minds set on providing general tax relief will welcome the prospect of a lump sum $35 million whacked out of the state's available revenue.

Many North Carolinians hardly know the tax exists; or, if they do, it's merely a nuisance. For those whose incomes result largely from dividends or interest on stocks and bonds, the tax is a real burden.

For corporations headquartered in this state, the tax is not only a burden, but in the view of some experts a genuine barrier to wooing and winning certain types of economic growth for North Carolina.

BILL NOBLITT

For retailers, paying the tax on accounts receivable is especially unpopular. Particularly in a year such as that just past in which that category has skyrocketed. For retired people, the tax is pressing against hard-earned savings designed to see them through old age.

But the strongest argument against the tax is that it represents double taxation. Year after year the tax is collected as applied to money which has already been taxed as income in one form or another whether held by an individual or a corporation.

And the fact that many other states do not have an intangibles tax stands in the way of the state's booming either as a retirement haven or a site for corporate headquarters.

Rates

The tax rate varies depending on categories. It is 10 cents per $100 on deposit and funds deposited with insurance companies; it is 25 cents per $100 on money on hand, accounts receivable, stock, bonds and notes, and interest.

Collecting $35 million in this tax represents more than $21 billion owned by North Carolinians. The figures show that money on deposit is up more than seven percent, but money on hand is down more than three percent. Money on deposit totals $9.8 billion.

A disturbing factor is an increase of more than 11 percent in accounts receivable, to a total of more than $2.2 billion. Stock value is down more than two percent, possibly due to price drops, but still totals nearly $6 billion. Money on hand totals $380 million; bonds total $2.2 billion; and insurance deposits total $17.7 million.

Double Standards Prevail

By PHILIP C. CLARKE

When the State Department finally gave in and allowed Rhodesia Prime Minister Ian Smith and Executive Council Chairman Nkomo to visit the U.S. for the first time, it marked a victory not only for the embattled people of Rhodesia but for Americans as well.

For too long, a small but influential group of Administration officials headed by UN Ambassador Andrew Young had blocked entry visas for the Rhodesian government leaders. As an excuse, they used a UN resolution imposing sanctions against the former British colony because of its refusal to transfer rule from the white minority to the black majority.

Months ago, however, Prime Minister Smith and his government had agreed to the principle of one-man, one-vote, and a transfer to black majority rule after a period of orderly transition. Even the Soviet and Chinese Communist-armed guerrillas of the so-called "Patriotic Front" were invited to participate in free, supervised elections, provided they would stop shooting. Instead, the guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe scorned the democratic process and opted instead to continue their bloody bid for power through the barrel of a gun. Thousands of innocent civilians, most of them blacks, have been killed, maimed or driven from their homes in an unrelenting campaign of terror.

Among the tens of thousands of Soviet weapons captured by Rhodesian security forces in the past few years are: AK-47 assault rifles and the newer AKM model; the SKS Carbines with attached folding bayonets; DP, RPD and RPK light machineguns; Tokarev and Makarov pistols; 60 millimeter mortars and 40 millimeter rocket launchers. The weapon that was used to shoot down a Rhodesian airliner last month reportedly was a Czech or Soviet-made mobile, heat-seeking, surface-to-air missile of the type used to shoot down many U.S. helicopters during the Vietnam war.

The people of Rhodesia, both the six million blacks and the quarter-million whites, are painfully aware what fate would befall them if Nkomo and Mugabe and their guerrillas should take over. Despite all this, Andrew Young and company have insisted the Communist-armed-and-led guerrillas be given a role in creation of the new state of Zimbabwe. With this kind of tacit backing from the U.S. Britain and other Western powers, guerrilla leaders Nkomo and Mugabe naturally saw little reason to give up a war they felt they were winning, for elections they knew they would lose. The guerrillas' position hardened still further after Nkomo was given a visa to enter the U.S. last August so he could confer with State Department officials and black supporters. At the same time, Prime Minister Smith and moderate black leaders in Rhodesia's transitional government were refused an opportunity to come here to explain their side of the story firsthand.

Not until a bipartisan group of 27 U.S. Senators personally invited the Rhodesian leaders and pressured the State Department to give them visas, was this shameful policy of hypocrisy and double standards finally rectified.

Regardless of how State Department and Administration officials felt about the Smith-Sithole visit, there was no valid reason for keeping them out. Unless, that is, the U.S. policy-makers were afraid of the people of Rhodesia, both the six million blacks and the quarter-million whites, are painfully aware what fate would befall them if Nkomo and Mugabe and their guerrillas should take over. Despite all this, Andrew Young and company have insisted the Communist-armed-and-led guerrillas be given a role in creation of the new state of Zimbabwe. LIVES WITH NO SIGNIFICANCE

There are some people across whose minds no thought of God ever seems to pass. Such people live and die without any vital connection with the church, without any prayer in their lives, without Bible reading. Virtually their entire religion consists of a few superstitious beliefs. St. Paul spoke of such people as being without God in the world.

At the center of the created universe abides a Creator, and everything in the universe must, if it be vital and living, have a relationship with the Creator. To turn one's back on the Creator or to act day by day as if He does not exist, is a piece of effrontery which a just God must punish both in this world and in the next.

A person without God may live a successful, and even admirable secular life, but the person is really a shell. Without the sense of God's existence, life is devoid of significance, even though the person does not know it.

The Ways Things Are

WASHINGTON — To work in Washington, as all of us know who work there, is to live in the midst of Alice's Wonderland. In support of that proposition, let me submit a pending proposal of the Internal Revenue Service having to do with tax-exempt schools.

"Alice in Wonderland" concludes, if you recall, with the famous trial of the Knave of Hearts for stealing tarts. The King of Hearts, as presiding judge, directs the jury to consider its verdict.

"No, no," said the Queen. "Sentence first — verdict afterwards."

That was the way things went in Wonderland, and that is the way they go in Washington. The IRS has promulgated a decree as to private schools that amounts to a sentence of execution: "Off with your heads!" Hundreds of schools that have been established in the past 25 years are to be presumed guilty until they prove themselves innocent. And to justify this astonishing business, the IRS has not one shred of statutory authority.

To go back to a point of beginning: Under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, Congress provided for the deductibility of contributions to certain tax-exempt organizations. These are defined in Section 501 (c) (3) as funds or foundations operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary "or educational" purposes.

In 1970, the Internal Revenue Service decided to add a Wonderland touch of its own. The IRS announced that, henceforth, it would no longer approve deductibility status for private schools that maintain racially discriminatory admissions policies. In effect, the IRS was saying that an educational institution with no minority students is not an educational institution. Therefore, Section 501 (c) (3) would not apply.

Congress, mind you, had not changed so much as a comma in the applicable statute. This was entirely rule-making undertaken by the bureaucracy in a spasm of social enlightenment. The Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., attempted to challenge this ruling, but got thrown out of court on a technicality.

The Supreme Court acted in the Bob Jones case in May of 1974. Speaking for the Court, Mr. Justice Powell acknowledged the importance of deductibility status to an educational institution. To be stricken from the Cumulative List of Exempt Organizations causes "serious damage" to any non-profit institution. Donors cease to give, or they give less. But the Anti-Discrimination Committee has been working on a budget for some time and have set it at $5,000.

An emergency relief fund has been added to the budget this year. This was deemed wise due to the pressing need that is anticipated and because of the fact that the public apparently looks to the Community Chest as the proper body to handle such a fund, declared J. S. Ficklen, chairman of the Community Chest.

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

To the woman who placed the anti-E. R. A. ad in the Sunday "Daily Reflector":

Those of us who have been working for equal rights for women are not your enemy. We, too, are wives, mothers and grandmothers. We are your next door neighbors, we attend church or temple with you, we serve on PTA's, we are Girl Scout leaders and all of us work, whether at salaried jobs or unpaid at home. Many of us do both. We respect the right to choose. We respect your choice. Where we differ is that we recognize that not everyone has that choice.

You may show appreciation for your representatives and senators who voted on ERA by casting your ballot for them, but please remember that women died for your right to vote and it took a Constitutional amendment to give it to you, (which North Carolina ratified in 1971.)

If you see no need to erase laws that have allowed women to be abused physically, mentally, economically, socially or in education, then please permit us the opportunity to try in the name of all human beings.

Mrs. Daniel Jacobson

To the editor:

I hope a large percentage of the readers of Sunday's "Daily Reflector" read the articles dealing with the pheris machine. It makes one aware that there is the necessity of having a pheris machine available in a location that is convenient to the people of Eastern North Carolina. It is a hardship for those in need of treatment to have to travel to Norfolk, Va.

The Jaycees are to be commended for undertaking a drive to raise funds to provide a pheris machine. As members of our community, we, too, should feel a responsibility and try to do our part by contributing to the fund according to our means. Since the machine will be serving the people of the area, it should not be left mainly to the businesses to provide the funds — as residents and responsible human beings, we, too, should help shoulder the cost. The need is there and we should give our support.

'Guidelines' Said Inconsistent

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The administration's new wage-price guidelines aren't likely to succeed, says Prof. Michael Wachter, one of the economists who advised Jimmy Carter during his election campaign.

This outlook is by no means unique, even if held by a former adviser. In fact, it is shared by thousands of other economists, and there are suggestions that some even work in the administration.

Wachter, who says he is sympathetic to the administration's plight, is disturbed because, as he sees it, the guidelines contradict other policies, and because they do little to build up the private economy.

Part of the problem, he believes, is that "Carter is not as close to his economists as were other recent presidents," who had economists in their kitchen cabinets. "He's getting political advice."

In his view, "A controls policy makes sense only if you move toward fiscal and monetary restraint." But the administration and the Federal Reserve, he said, have not been achieving such restraint.

"The guidelines being put out," he said, "are entirely inconsistent with present fiscal and monetary policy," both of which the University of Pennsylvania economist said have been nonrestrictive.

"What is the purpose of controls in this environment?" he asked in an interview. He said guidelines cannot contain an expansive economic policy, and that any attempt to do so is futile and misleading.

Wachter said he did not wish to appear insensitive to the pressures faced by the administration, and that his comments were meant to be constructive. But, he said, he and other were discouraged.

Because, he said, while seeking restraint through guidelines, Carter not only runs a big deficit but seeks 5 percent unemployment within the next year or so. It's contradictory, he indicated.

Wachter, who terms job studies "a specialty with me," believes full employment — the level of joblessness below which

Word Coined By Amy

By JAMES R. GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amy Carter has coined a new name for folks 10, 11 and 12 years old. Her father isn't very happy with it.

In fact, says the president, the phrase — a reminder of the difficulty of controlling inflation — is forbidden at the White House these days.

It all came up when Amy celebrated her 11th birthday a week ago. Carter related the tale a few days later at a political rally in Minneapolis.

John Travolta, star of the movies "Saturday Night Fever" and "Grease," was the guest of honor at a private birthday supper for Amy and a few friends.

It seems that Amy wanted to see the two movies but her parents decided she wasn't old enough.

"Well, Daddy, I would like to remind you that I am a preteen-ager," the youngster said, according to her father, prompting him to reply:

"Amy, you have been a preteen-ager for a long time, ever since you were born."

"Yes, but I am a double-digit pre-teen-ager," Carter said his daughter answered.

That prompted the president to remind his audience that "we don't let people use double digits around the White House anymore until we get inflation under control."

Unlike some public speakers, Carter rarely appears to have any trouble keeping the length of his speeches under control.

When the White House releases a text of a speech in advance of its delivery, it rarely runs fewer than five pages or more than seven. That means, invariably, that the speech will take just about 20 minutes, give-or-take a minute, to deliver.

But when the president gives a speech without the benefit of a prepared text, the address still lasts about 20 minutes. Sometimes 18 minutes. Rarely more than 22 minutes. And you won't catch him looking down at his watch.

Now it can be told how the president manages this feat of timing.

Almost all of his speeches are

Closing Segment Of 5th St. On Saturday For Installation

Fifth Street, from Holly Street to Rotary Avenue, will be closed to vehicular traffic from 9 a.m. until about 12:30 p.m. Saturday, in connection with the installation of Dr. Thomas Brewer as Chancellor of East Carolina University.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that barricades will be erected to restrict access to Fifth Street and provide a direct traffic flow pattern around the North lawn area without unnecessary turns and detours.

Barricades will be erected at the intersection of Fifth and Holly Streets and Fifth and Rotary Avenue to turn Fifth Street traffic toward Fourth Street. Other barricades will be erected at the intersection of Fourth Street and Summit, Jarvis, Student, and Biltmore

CHICKEN PASTRY SALE

The Chicod Booster Club will sponsor a chicken pastry supper Friday, Oct. 27, from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Chicod School cafeteria on the New Bern Highway. Plates will be $2. The public is invited to attend.

In the event of rain, the 10:30 a.m. ceremony will be held in Minges Coliseum, on schedule.

Cannon noted that the university will provide shuttle buses from five local motels to the North Lawn area every 15 minutes, beginning at 9:15 a.m. Shuttle buses will also operate from the Willis Building parking lot at the intersection of First and Reide Streets and an adjacent parking lot at the intersection of Third and Reide Streets each 15 minutes, beginning at 9:15 a.m.

The shuttle bus service will return guests to the motels and parking areas following the luncheon, leaving Mendenhall Student center at 15-minute intervals, beginning at 1:15 p.m.

— the Rhodesian leaders might win support from Americans who had heard only the other side of the story. Nor did the alibi of adhering to UN sanctions against Rhodesia hold water. Those sanctions were imposed by the Soviet-bloc in collaboration with the so-called "third world" countries whose dominance at the UN long has made mockery of that world body. To subordinate U.S. national interests to the whims and connivance of our adversaries could, if pursued further, only lead to disaster.

The handful of demonstrators who protested against the visitors from Rhodesia actually were practicing the very principle of free speech they would deny to others. In permitting the Rhodesians to come here and have their say, the U.S. government acknowledged, however belatedly, that freedom is indivisible. Whatever the final outcome in Rhodesia, it was a triumph of light and reason over the darkness of censorship and suppression.

Sponsored A Workshop

The Pitt County Mental Health Center sponsored a Language Development Workshop Tuesday at Moyewood Developmental Center.

Conducted by Pitt County Mental Health Center speech pathologist, Dianne Kerr, the session was designed for parents and caretakers of pre-school children. Films, puppets and a time for making educational materials were shared by those participating.

Ms. Kerr said the purpose of the workshop was to stress early intervention methods for parents to help young children develop language. Assisting Ms. Kerr were Vivian Roach, teacher at the Winterville-Ayden-Grifton-Greenville Child Development Center; Joseph Stines, children's librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library; Wanda Hill, student teacher in the Remedial Education Activity Program; Nancy Middleton, Pitt County Mental Health Center Coordinator of Consultation and Education; and Ann Hemby, Pitt County Mental Health Center technician. Dr. James R. Markello of the ECU School of Medicine was welcomed as a special consultant.

Injunction Act plainly prevents a tax-exempt organization from suing to prevent the IRS from collecting taxes, said Powell, and Bob Jones's petition could not prevail.

In a footnote to his 1974 opinion, Powell noted that "the question of whether a segregative private school qualifies under Section 501 (c) (3) has not received plenary review in this Court, and we do not reach that question today." The Court has not touched the issue since then.

But the IRS suddenly has decided, with neither statutory nor judicial sanction, to broaden its attack on private schools that have no (or few) minority pupils. Any private school "formed or substantially expanded at or about the time of public school desegregation in the community served by the school" would be consigned to a "reviewable" status. The sweep of this provision takes in hundreds of non-profit schools, both north and south, that have been formed during a quarter-century of progressive disenchantment with public education.

For these private schools, the IRS decree is truly a death sentence. Unless the schools can prove their innocence, by meeting four of five criteria that the IRS has created from whole cloth, they are to be deemed non-deductible. The burden is to be upon the school "clearly and convincingly" to rebut a pre-judgment of guilt.

Nowhere in the proposed regulation does the IRS proclaim flatly that a non-integrated educational institution is not an educational institution. This threshold question of law is nimbly skipped over. Brazenly, despotically, the IRS is attempting to legislate by interpretive decree. Sentence first, verdict afterwards! In "Alice in Wonderland" Alice awoke with her head in the lap of her sister. But the Washington Wonderland is no dream. This is how things truly are.

Countdown On Wipeout Of Smallpox

MERKA, Somalia (AP) — A one-year countdown starts today to see if smallpox, one of the five killer diseases to ravage the world since the dawn of history, is licked for good.

If by Oct. 26, 1979, no new cases are reported in six nations in East Africa and the Middle East, the World Health Organization will declare the disease wiped from the face of the earth.

The only remaining chance of infection would be from virus stocks stored in laboratories.

As recently as 1966, smallpox accounted for between 500,000 and 1,000,000 deaths a year worldwide.

Ali Maow Maalin, who has the dubious distinction of being the last man known to catch smallpox naturally, lives in this small town on the edge of the Indian Ocean.

Maalin, a 23-year-old hospital cook, was infected Oct. 26, 1977 during a three-minute ride in a jeep that was carrying two children with smallpox.

If there are no new cases in Somalia, Ethiopia, Kenya, Djibouti and North and South Yemen by the second anniversary of Ali's infection, medical experts say they will consider the disease beaten.

"I am fully confident that in one year's time we will be able to confirm that the disease has disappeared," says Dr. Isao Arita, head of the WHO smallpox eradication campaign.

"Smallpox is carried by the breath so anybody close to a victim can catch it," said Dr. Zdenek Jezek, who organized the campaign against the disease in Somalia.

WHO doesn't count the infection of two people in Birmingham, England, in August, apparently from virus stored in a laboratory.

Jezek, who was in charge of the program that eliminated smallpox in India, Bangladesh and Pakistan, says he is confident the Somali hospital cook will be the last person to catch the disease naturally.

Dr. Charles Snow, coordinator of East Carolina University's Preschool Programs and associate professor in the ECU School of Home Economics, was installed as a member of the board of directors of the N.C. Association for the Education of Young Children at the recent NCAEYC meeting in Winston-Salem.

Dr. Snow will represent eastern North Carolina on the governing board.

The largest group in the state specifically concerned with the education of children from birth to eight years of age, NCAEYC has a membership of about 2,000. The organization's concerns include programs for young children, research, legislation and teacher training.

Other ECU delegates at the conference included Dr. Elaine Goldsmith, Sandra Houston, Patricia McMahon and Mary Jo Creech. The conference was coordinated by the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

Outdrawing Local Airport

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)

— A survey released Wednesday shows that business leaders in the Rocky Mount-Wilson-Tarboro area took most of their air business to the Raleigh-Durham Airport last year instead of using the local airport.

The survey of 178 business and industrial leaders in the Rocky Mount area showed that they took 77.5 percent of their air business to Raleigh-Durham.

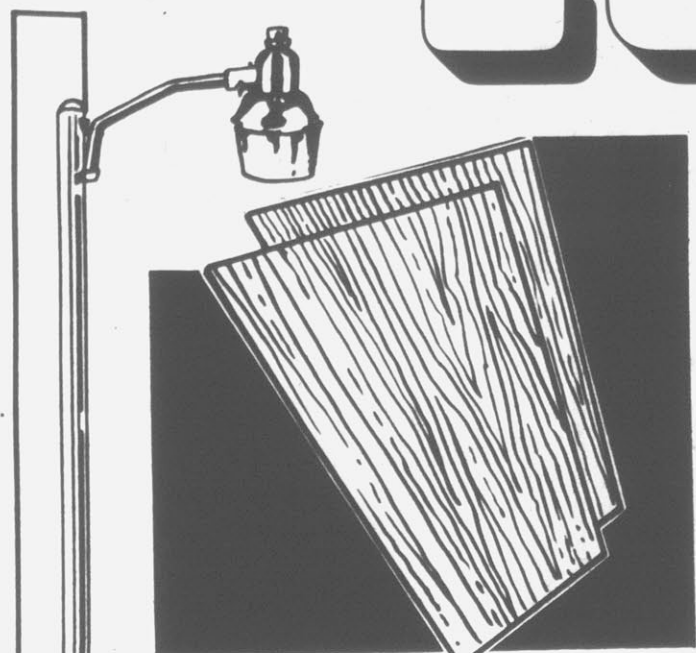

The Rocky Mount Area Chamber of Commerce has urged Piedmont Airlines to increase service to Rocky Mount.

Chamber President Theo Pitt said at a news conference Wednesday that the survey is "the first step in working toward the goal of improved service" at the Rocky Mount Airport.

Society Can Help Locate Pine Coffin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Before Jenny Moore died of cancer five years ago she had a seemingly simple wish — to be buried in a pine coffin.

As it turned out, finding her a gilded, filigreed casket might have been easier.

There were plenty of mahogany caskets with velvet linings or crepe interiors on the market, but there were no plain pine boxes to be had.

Her friends finally found a manufacturer of unpainted furniture in suburban Rockville, Md., that employed a craftsman who had made coffins in Europe.

He built a simple coffin for Mrs. Moore, whose husband, Episcopal Bishop Paul Moore of New York, was then suffragan bishop of Washington.

As a result of the search for Mrs. Moore's casket, the St. Francis Burial & Counseling Society, Inc., a non-profit organization that offers information on funeral alternatives, a line of inexpensive funeral products and counseling on death and dying, was founded in 1973.

"The founders thought if one person wants this, there must be others out there who are stymied at a time of great need, of great stress," said Julie B. Slavik, the society's executive director.

"She (Mrs. Moore) was very happy to know she had her coffin before she died," said Mrs. Slavik.

Rev. William Wendt, one of the founders of the society, said he encourages families to become more involved in the funerals of their loved ones.

"People (the survivors) feel removed, as if they were in an audience — in an event that is very important in their lives," said Mrs. Slavik.

Two very personalized funerals the society aided in were for a teenage boy who was killed suddenly and a 15-year-old girl.

The boy's body was taken to a large funeral home. He was dressed in his blue jeans, wrapped in a family blanket and the lid of his coffin was nailed down.

"It was a wonderful thing for that family, although it may be a perfectly dreadful thing for some other family," said Mrs. Slavik.

The other teenager's mother dressed and washed her daughter's body and her friends painted her wooden coffin with the rainbows and butterflies that she loved to write about in her poetry.

The society offers birch and pine coffins, assembled and in kit form for between $115 and $185, inexpensive cremation trays and boxes, and coffin plans for do-it-yourself enthusiasts.

An orthodox Jewish coffin that has no nails or metal fasteners is available in birch veneer. It comes in kit form only and takes about five minutes to assemble, according to the society.

The society has only three paid staff members and has not made an aggressive effort to market its products nationwide. Since 1973, about 150 coffins have been sold but Mrs. Slavik said "business has been picking up."

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — More than 400 prostitutes have opened a self-help rehabilitation center in the south Sumatra town of Palembang, the official Antara news agency said.

Industrial Relations, Human Relations Reviewed

director of the State Human Relations Council, Melvin Moore, chairman of the Industrial Relations Committee, Leonard Wiggins, State Human Relations consultant, and Jesse Harris, local Human Relations director. (Chamber photo)

The functions of the Equal Employment Opportunity Council (EEOC) and the State Human Relations Council were discussed at the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce's Industrial Relations Committee meeting Tuesday morning.

Henry McKoy, Executive Director of the State Human Relations Council, Leonard Wiggins, State Human Relations Consultant, and Jesse Harris, local Human Relations Director, were the guest speakers at the meeting.

McKoy discussed the system of settling EEOC discrimination complaints. According to McKoy, since 1977 three methods of settling discrimination complaint charges have been established: no fault settlement, backlog unit, and systemic unit.

"With the no fault settlement a letter is sent to the company informing it of the complaint and then a settlement can be made before EEOC conducts an investigation," McKoy said.

According to McKoy, EEOC's backlog unit system deals with all cases over three years old and the systemic unit deals with cases which show a system of discrimination.

"Let me encourage you to have an in house audit of your firm for possible discrimination," McKoy commented. "Most often we find that the head of a company is unaware of the hiring and firing methods of a company."

"EEOC is not the bastard agency many think it is," said McKoy. "We find as many non-discrimination cases as discrimination cases."

"EEOC is a legal process. The State Human Relations Council is a voluntary process.

When the state finds probable cause or no cause for discrimination, we write you. At least 80 percent of the cases investigated by the State Human Relations Council are backed up by EEOC," McKoy continued.

McKoy also said that the State Human Relations Council is willing to help companies determine possible discrimination problems.

Wiggins said that the State Human Relations Council is responsible to the needs of a complainant and the company (respondent).

"Now that the complainant must show a statement of harm not just file a discrimination charge, we meet with the complainant and respondent. Our responsibility is as much to you as the complainant," Wiggins added.

"If we get a Greenville complaint, we send it to Jesse Harris, your local director who asks many questions about the case," Wiggins continued.

Wiggins said that Harris works with both the complainant and the respondent on the local level.

Harris said that he is concerned with working with companies to try preventive methods for discrimination.

According to Melvin Moore, Chairman of the Industrial Relations Committee, 26 members of the committee representing industries of Pitt County were present for the meeting.

Poll Puts Helms Ahead In Sentatorial Campaign

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is leading Democratic challenger John Ingram by 18 percent, according to a poll conducted for the Charlotte Observer.

But elsewhere, U.N. Ambassador Andrew J. Young told a group of southern black leaders to work against Helms' re-election because of his record on human rights.

The University of North Carolina School of Journalism took the poll of 614 registered voters from around the state last week.

The poll showed that 50 percent of the voters asked favored Helms and 32 percent favored Ingram. Fifteen percent said they were undecided, and 3 percent gave no response.

Ingram, speaking to an agricultural group in Asheville Wednesday, called the poll unreliable.

"This same kind of UNC School of Journalism poll was conducted in the primary. The primary poll was wrong, and I won substantially," Ingram said. "This new poll shows me almost three times stronger, which means our victory will be even stronger in the general election.

The school's poll conducted before the first primary predicted that Ingram would finish second to Luther Hodges Jr. Ingram came in second to Helms in the first primary but defeated him in the run-off.

Helms said in Lumberton that he was gratified by the polls results but said he believes the vote will be close.

"A poll doesn't mean anything before the election," he told about 50 people in a campaign appearance.

At the White House Wednesday, Young told about 190 southern blacks, including about 56 from North Carolina, that both Helms and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., should be defeated.

Cher Brooks, a federal official at the meeting, said Young's remarks along with those of John C. White, Democratic National Committee chairman, "really stirred up the people in the room against Helms."

Miss Brooks, associate chief counsel for the Federal Aviation Administration, said White read the blacks an editorial from the News and Observer of Raleigh criticizing Helms for joking about Young.

While campaigning recently, Helms said, "Andy Young sent me a get-well card. He said some of his friends in Africa wanted to have me for dinner."

"Mr. White said, 'This is a funny statement Jesse Helms made, but it shows you what kind of person Helms is,'" Miss Brooks said.

Young has been an outspoken advocate of the Carter administration's international human rights campaign.

Ivey Beasley Relic-Hunters Is Missing

BROOKSIDE VILLAGE, Texas (AP) — Two questions remain after a natural gas pipeline explosion and fireball killed five people: what caused the blast and where is Ivey Beasley?

Philip Hogue of the National Transportation Safety Board said Wednesday that there was no evidence of maintenance or operating failure by the United Texas Transmission Co., owners of the 30-inch pipe that exploded Tuesday near the Royal Trailer Park.

Joe Piotrowski, director of the Texas Railroad Commission's gas utility division, said the "cause is anybody's guess. You can't point a finger at anything. We can't see any negligence on anyone's part."

All area residents affected by the blast, which injured 43, have been accounted for except Miss Beasley, 65, whose small frame house was leveled.

"Ninety percent of the opinions out here are that she was in the house at the time of the fire," said Tom LeClere, a Pearlman police officer. "Her whole house was leveled except for some concrete stairs."

Firemen said the intense heat was capable of incinerating a human being. A friend who visited Miss Beasley Monday saw her lock her front gate and return to her home.

Guard Against Relic-Hunters

PITTSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Nothing is more glamorous to relic hunters than the site of an Indian village, says the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

So the corps has asked park rangers to patrol the area that will become the B. Everett Jordan Reservoir in Chatham County to prevent relic hunters from making off with artifacts from 300 sites showing evidence of Indian and colonial life there.

David Hewitt, public affairs director at the corps Wilmington office, said all relics and artifacts must be removed before the lake is filled, probably by next spring.

"We've had a problem with relic hunters," Hewitt said. "To alleviate the problem we have rangers from Kerr Lake patrolling the area around the clock. They have citation authority and they will use it."

Landed Inside The Institution

COMSTOCK, N.Y. (AP) — When two men came over the wall at Great Meadow Correctional Facility, guards reacted by sharing the champagne.

It was an unscheduled landing by a hot air balloon carrying WTEN-TV meteorologist Bob Kovachick and piloted by Phil Jackson.

Kovachick, who was doing a story on ballooning for the Albany television station, said they were forced down when they ran out of fuel.

So they broke out the champagne for guards — who checked their identification before allowing them to leave — in the balloonists' tradition of toasting the owner of property on which they land.

Sought And Won Special Election

WATKINSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — It took a special election to do it, but City Councilman Byron Williams won re-election to his vacant seat on the council.

Williams forgot to file for the general election, and nobody else sought the job.

City officials promptly called a special election, which Williams won Wednesday — whipping Gary Ward 38-22.

Receive A 'Marvelous Variety' In Photographs For Competition

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"There's a marvelous variety among the entries," Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the Greenville Art Center said, referring to the photographs turned into the art center for

Librarians At Ass'n Meeting

ECU News Bureau

Eight members of the East Carolina University library staff attended the recent joint conference of the Southeast and Southwest Library Associations in New Orleans.

ECU's delegation included John Baker, Anne Briley, Dorothy Brockmann, Janet Kilpatrick, Sallie Mann, Judy Moore, Ralph Scott and Ann Watson.

Among conference events were business sessions, new book displays, and workshops on such topics as adult services, library materials for the Spanish-speaking, library communications, career development, on-line data bases and children's services.

the R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc. photographic competition. For the past week, the Greenville Art Center, as one of four points in the state for submission of entries, has been the scene of continuing activity as individuals personally delivered entries and others came in by mail and commercial delivery carriers.

"Our tabulation shows a total of 422 entries," Mrs. Walker remarked. She said this represents about 150 photographers, "as the majority of the photographers submitted the permitted maximum of three entries."

A considerable number of entries came from local area photographers. Quite a few, however, were mailed or hand delivered from all parts of the state — as far east as Manteo and as far west as Waynesville.

Color photos, black and white photos and a few examples of photographic processes such as Xerox have been entered from Greenville. Sizes ranged from postage stamp size to the largest entry — a collection of photographs mounted on a 30 by 40 inches board.

"There's many nice things the judges will have to choose from," Mrs. Walker noted. "I think Greenville is certainly going to be well represented as they were in the earlier Reynolds Art Competition."

The photography competition sponsored by Reynolds provide opportunities for North Carolina photographers to have their work considered for purchase by Reynolds and also to be judged by a panel of renowned photographers.

Reynolds Industries, Inc. is purchasing photographs for its permanent art collection to be displayed at the firm's new headquarters building in Winston-Salem. From the purchases, a traveling collection will be formed.

Entries not purchased will be returned to the Greenville Art Center shortly after November 6, at which time they will be returned to the owners.

Announcement of the three top winners — for a first prize award of $1,500; a second place award at $1,000; and a third award at $500, will be made later in November.

Registration of entries was carried out by George Brett, and the entries were picked up by a truck from the Reynolds firm on Wednesday morning.

The 422 entries have a total value of over $40,000 — based on the individual photograph price listed by the photographers.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 27, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There could be some confusing incidents today, so be sure to have your facts and figures correct. Then you will be able to make rapid headway towards gaining your goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Keep busy at regular work and forget about going off on a tangent that could lead in the wrong direction. Be more cheerful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do only that work that is important and devote yourself to recreation today. Think along happier lines and be cheerful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Strive for increased happiness. Do some entertaining of friends and relatives later in the day. Show that you are generous.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Contact good friends and come to a fine understanding with them. Plan the future wisely. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrating on how to make your business affairs more profitable is wise today. Avoid the expenditure of too much money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) There are fine opportunities for you to advance in the business world so don't get bogged down with personal matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with advisers and find out how to handle your business affairs more efficiently: Avoid a temptation to brag.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Endeavor to please friends you admire and gain their goodwill. A private matter can now be resolved to your satisfaction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are not thinking very clearly today, so get advice from a higher-up where an important matter is concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new project is fine to engage in without further procrastination. Make sure you show more kindness to your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be silent for a while early in the day and let your intuitive faculties work so that you will know to proceed in important matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Know what your true position is with the one you love and try to please. Obtain the data you need from the right sources.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who is very good at whatever is standard, so don't try to push your progeny into something radically new or you will meet with opposition. Sports are good here, and religion is a must.

Over half of the students entering our general college program will graduate from our vocational and technical programs.

Over half of the students who enter college parallel programs at community colleges end up transferring to vocational and technical programs. That's because most students are unsure of what they want to do when they enter school. So, many Pitt County residents travel to community colleges outside the county. Because a community college offers both college transfer and technical education. That gives these students a chance to make up their minds before jumping into a vocation.

Making Pitt Tech a community college actually helps our vocational and technical programs. The only difference between a technical institute and a community college is that a community college can offer college parallel courses in addition to technical and vocational programs. Our technical programs will be strengthened. In fact, our technical and vocational programs will benefit from the calibre of students transferring in from the college parallel program. More students stay. More students learn trades. More students have more opportunities.

Look at the opportunity. Vote for Pitt Community College on November 7th.

Local Pastor Honored By Louisburg College

LOUISBURG — The Rev. James H. Bailey, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Greenville, received the Louisburg College replica of the President's Medallion here during Parents' Day ceremonies, held this past Saturday.

The Rev. Bailey, who has had two of his three children graduate from Louisburg College, spoke on "The Values of a Church-Related College for Student Identity."

Presentation of the medallion came at the end of

of the convocation program, performed by Dr. J. Allen Norris Jr., president of the College, and C. Edward Brown, Academic Dean.

"For 25 years, the Rev. Bailey has served his church as a pastor, as an outstanding preacher of the Word, and as a Conference leader," Dean Brown noted. "He has been active in promoting Christian higher education as a member of the faculty of one United Methodist college and as a trustee of another, through membership on North Carolina Conference agencies related to higher education, and as an author of articles and books."

In presenting the medallion, President Norris remarked, "Louisburg College is proud to honor you, in recognition that a life of intellectual pursuit and service to church and society personifies the philosophy on which this college is based."

The medallion bears the seal of Louisburg College on one side, and Old Main Building on the other, with the inscription of "Wisdom Is Better Than Gems."

PWP Group Activities

Supt. of City Schools Gleen L. Cox will speak Friday night to Parents Without Partners here.

His topic will be "Parents and the Schools. He will emphasize parents' responsibility in education and give special attention to the "unique position of the single parent."

The meeting will be held at Jarvis United Methodist Church at 7:30 p. m. Babysitting will be available at a 50-cents per family charge.

Saturday at 2 p. m. the group will have a family Halloween party at the home of Janice Luper. Parents are reminded to bring a baked item. Saturday at 8 p. m. an adult Halloween party will be held at the home of Jim Ricks. Members and courtesy card holders are asked to bring a snack and beverage.

Sunday at 2 p. m. family skating will be held at Sportworld. Skating for children of members will be paid for by the chapter.

Teachers' Program Offered In Raleigh

ECU News Bureau

A special institute for distributive education teachers is being offered in Raleigh Oct. 26-28, directed by Dr. William Durham, chairman of the East Carolina University Department of Business Education and Office Administration.

The institute is co-sponsored by the N.C. Department of Public Instruction's Division for Exceptional Children and division of Vocational Education.

Purpose of the program is "to improve the expertise" of participating teachers in providing instruction for handicapped and exceptional children at the high school level, Durham said.

Institute sessions will be devoted to teaching reading and teaching marketing mathematics.

Special consultants who will appear at the program are Justine Corbett, vocational reading coordinator for the Wilson County Schools; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swank, co-directors of Swank's Exceptional Education Programs, Burlington; and Dr. Leon Silber of the state Division for Exceptional Children's learning disability section.

About 30 teachers are expected to participate in the program.

Ticketing The 'Gas-Guzzlers'

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gasguzzling cars in Madison are ticketed even if they are legally parked.

"You have been cited for irresponsible use of common resources — gasoline and air," the "tickets" say. "By using your large car, we and many others feel that you are wasting resources precious to all of us. We aren't happy breathing air polluted with tetraethyl lead, unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide."

The tickets, which carry no fines, are issued by the Hoofers Environmental Action Committee, part of the University Outing Club.

Hooper Mary Ellen Vollbrecht says some people are irritated by the tickets, but the Hoofers aren't worried. "We'd rather have people mad at us than indifferent," she says.

Dunn's Traffic Back To Normal

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — Train traffic got back to normal here Wednesday afternoon along a stretch of Seaboard Coast Line railroad track after a 13-car derailment Monday.

Seaboard officials said the accident caused more than $1 million in damage.

The derailment occurred when a pin coupling two cars fell beneath the train. Several 1979 cars and trucks were being carried on 11 of the cars that jumped the track.

Crews Wednesday moved the wrecked railroad cars from beside the tracks to a temporary storage area at the old Durham and Southern yards about four blocks away. An 800-foot section of new track was expected to be put into place by late Wednesday.

The Stars and Stripes was adopted as the United States flag in 1777.

Ingram Continues Rap Rival's Record

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Democratic Senate candidate John Ingram continued his attack Wednesday on his Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' voting record, saying that Helms has voted against important farm legislation.

Ingram told farmers and employees of the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service that Helms voted against a law that made farmers eligible for disaster relief similar to the relief measures for small businessmen.

The law paid off for North Carolina farmers during a drought a couple of years ago, Ingram said.

"Because this law was passed, farmers in North Carolina were entitled to almost $50 million. Our opponent (Helms) voted against that law," Ingram said.

He also told the agricultural group that as state insurance commissioner, he cut in half insurance rates for mobile tobacco barns and cut by one-third the rates for tobacco sales warehouses.

Ingram told a news conference earlier in the day, "The $6 million man has called veterans benefits welfare and has voted against the bills that provide money for the VA (Veterans Administration) to operate. These disabled Americans have given their blood in defense of our nation. Their benefit checks are not welfare, as our Republican opponent has said."

Ingram also told the Charlotte Board of Realtors Wednesday that Helms was a tool of "big oil well barons."

"The $6 million man has solicited and accepted money from big money oil barons," he said.

Ingram said Helms' campaign war chest included contributions from political action committees that had received money from Standard Oil Co., Ashland Oil Co., Getty Oil Co., Union Oil Co., Shell Oil Co. and the National LP Gas Association.

"Our Republican votes 'no' to small business people and votes 'yes' to big oil well barons."

Ingram said, citing negative votes by Helms on measures to make farmers eligible for certain federal loans and to raise state tax credits for small businessmen and family farms.

Local Scout Given Eagle Badge Award

Eugene Parsons of Greenville's Boy Scout Troop No. 826 was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout Wednesday night at a ceremony conducted in St. Peter's Catholic Church parish hall.

Parsons, who has completed 26 merit badges, received his eagle rank from Father Paul Bryon, pastor of St. Peter's and chaplain of the troop's sponsoring organization, the Knights of Columbus.

Parsons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parsons of Rt. 9, Greenville, began as a Cub Scout and from 1972-76, served with Troop 777 at Fort Bragg.

Upon moving to Greenville in 1976, Parsons helped organize Troop 826 and has served continuously as a leader. He currently holds the position of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster.

A student at Farmville Central High School, Parsons is active in the Science and Literary Clubs and serves on

Add-a-Gold Bead®

... The Gift of Love that grows with the years

"The Story of the GOLD BEAD"

It all began with one gold bead on a chain... the beginning of a necklace which was to be cherished through the years. Then, as other beads were added, the necklace grew in beauty and value, until at last the chain was full... lovely and sentimental.

Archeologists Seek Century-Old Georgia Graves

IN SEARCH OF THE PAST—Polly Worthy, a recent anthropology graduate from Georgia State University, who is now working for that department, has spent much time surveying the field and excavating 13 old graves in historic Oakland Cemetery in Atlanta.

$97,824 Grant To ECU Work

ECU News Bureau
A grant of $97,824 has been awarded the East Carolina University Department of Child Development and Family Relations by the N.C. Dept. of Human Resources to provide training services to eastern N.C. day care personnel. Involved in the program will be employees of federally certified day care facilities, in Bertie, Edgecombe, Pitt, Wayne, Wilson, Tyrrell, Nash, Lenoir, Washington, Craven, Beaufort, Greene, Jones, Martin, Pamlico, Hude and Carteret Counties. Basic goal of the program is to improve the quality of day care service to children by helping service personnel become more effective in their jobs.

Administrators of the project are Drs. Charles Snow and Nash Love of the ECU School of Home Economics faculty. Project trainers are child development specialist Sandra Houston and Patricia McMahon. Training activities will include short-term workshops and visits to day care facilities by the project staff for consultation and on-the-job assistance, and visits by day care employees to select demonstration centers for study and observation.

Sierra Club's Hike Oct. 29

The Sierra Club dayhike to Medoc Mountain has been rescheduled for 10 a.m. Sunday, October 29. The parking lot at Penney's at Pitt Plaza has been designated as the starting point. Medoc Mountain, the highest point in eastern North Carolina at about 300 feet, is located near Rocky Mount, an hour and a half drive from Greenville. The hike is moderate and appropriate for children. Hikers should bring a picnic lunch. Non-members are welcome to attend. For further information, call the Kanes at 756-0751.

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — In a grassy field at the corner of a downtown cemetery, a hardy band of archaeologists spent much of the summer scraping Georgia clay in search of century-old graves.

But cemetery officials' hope that the area would yield no graves and thus could be used for new projects ran counter to a legend that about 10,000 paupers had been laid to rest in unmarked graves.

"We were hoping nobody had ever been buried in that area," said Jim Whitnel, an assistant sexton at Oakland Cemetery. If the field were clear, the cemetery could sell new plots or build a columbarium—a sort of high-rise mausoleum—to finance restoration and preservation of its old tombs.

A group of friends of the municipal graveyard, Historic Oakland Cemetery Inc., hired two Georgia State University anthropologists—Roy S. Dickens Jr., 40, an archaeologist, and Robert L. Blakely, 33, a specialist in physical anthropology.

To get started, the professors borrowed a road grader from the city and shaved a layer of soil from north-south and east-west strips laid out in a grid on the 10-acre tract.

"We had the motor grader then carefully strip a couple of inches at a time until he reached subsoil," Dickens said. A tight pattern of deep red rectangles emerged, as the original sandy clay subsoil contrasted with red clay brought up when the graves were dug.

"We were overwhelmed to find them laid out like this," Dickens said. "We were expecting to find nothing, or scattered graves."

Analysis of the sample strips placed the total of gravesites at 10,000 to 11,000. They chose to excavate 13 graves, choosing a mixture of large and small rectangles spread around the field. Children were buried in the small graves.

Surprisingly, there were indications that not all those buried were paupers. One coffin had an oval pane of glass inset, apparently to allow viewing of the body. The wood had decayed long ago, leaving pieces of shattered glass all that remained of the coffin.

Metalwork, such as handles, from the coffins survived. Blakely hopes a comparison with contemporary coffin catalogs will fix precisely the years the graves were dug.

Lab work is also expected to determine the age at death, sex and race of the individuals whose skeletons were recovered, in some the cause of death. The results should give some clues about how, when and why they got where they are.

"The folks up there with the tombstones, people know a lot about them," Blakely said, gesturing toward the main section of the cemetery.

"These are Atlanta's forgotten people. Part of our objective is to let Atlanta know who they are," he said.

"Most of the time anthropologists are studying people who lived in remote times and for us what appear to be remote cultures. This time we have an opportunity to learn about our own culture and the recent past."

More and more, this exception is becoming the rule.

"There's been a boom in the last 10 or 15 years in what we call contract archaeology or public archaeology," Dickens said.

Fueling the boom are federal laws requiring archaeological surveys before federal money is used in construction or before a site listed on the National Register of Historic Places is disturbed. Oakland Cemetery is listed.

"Archaeologists like myself, located at a local university, with a student force and laboratory facilities, we would be called on," Dickens said.

"This brings archaeology into a whole new realm I like to call applied archaeology. It's a thing that excites me—it really does," he said. "We're applying archaeology to try to learn something about the history and prehistory of this area."

NEW YORK (AP) — Bluechip stocks turned in a steady showing today, but the rest of the market continued to sink under the weight of interest-rate worries and concern over the slumping dollar.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials stood at 830.21, unchanged from Wednesday's close.

But losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-1 margin in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar's decline against leading foreign currencies continued today.

Meanwhile, analysts said the market was still feeling the effects of a gloomy assessment of the economic outlook by Henry Kaufman, partner in the investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers and an influential analyst of money and credit conditions.

"A further sharp rise in interest rates is unavoidable because the options available to official policymakers are limited," Kaufman said Wednesday in a speech to the American Bankers Association convention in Honolulu. "In the broadest sense, there are only two."

"One is a continuation of the current approach of feeding inflation, which of course will drive yields higher. The other is to tighten monetary policy, which for the near term will also ratchet interest rates higher."

Diamond Shamrock led the active list, up 1/4 at 24 1/4. A 113,100-share block traded at 24.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .16 to 54.18, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was off .56 at 149.75.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 11.48 million shares at noontime, down from 14.14 million at the same point Wednesday.

First No Longer

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — The "First in Freedom" slogan displayed on North Carolina automobile license plates is on its way out.

The Division of Motor Vehicles has directed that the space at the bottom of the license plate be left blank. Department of Transportation spokeswoman Doris Gupion says the decision came at the behest of Elmer Peters, motor vehicles commissioner.

Mrs. Gupion said the slogan, which aroused criticism from activist groups when it originated several years ago, will be left off of new tags as they are turned out at Central Prison.

Board Meeting Is Rescheduled

According to Pitt County Schools Superintendent Ott Alford, the regular meeting of the Pitt County Board of Education will be held Nov. 14, 2 p.m., instead of Nov. 9, because of Election Day.

The meeting will be held in the Pitt County Courthouse.

ALUMNI MEETING

The Pitt County Chapter of the N. C. Central University Alumni Association will meet Friday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson, Colonial Trailer Park, 102 N. Bubba Boulevard. All members are urged to attend.

SHERRIES CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

The Sherries Club will meet tonight, 8 p.m., at the home of Jennie Clark.

Raising Prices Of Newsprint

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent price announcements by major producers of newsprint are expected to result in an industrywide price of about $345 a ton by spring, according to an industry analyst.

Great Lakes Paper Co. of Thunder Bay, Ontario, kicked off what is expected to be a new round of price increases earlier this month by announcing that its U.S. prices will increase $25 a ton to about $345 a ton effective Jan. 1.

Abitibi Paper Co. of Toronto, which frequently took the lead in previous industry pricing moves, and Price Co., which is 68 percent owned by Abitibi, have since followed suit. Both announced price increases to $345 a ton from the $320 per ton price which prevails in the industry. But the companies said the higher prices wouldn't take effect until March 1.

"By March of next year, I expect the $25 increase to be effective industrywide," said Edward Dunleavy, an analyst at Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, Inc. He cited strong demand for newsprint and the continuing effects of mill strikes on the West Coast as influences.

The latest industrywide price increase occurred last winter and spring when major producers raised newsprint prices $15 a ton to $320. Bowater Sales Co., of Old Greenwich, Conn., which is a U.S. unit of the London-based Bowater Corp., announced in August a $15 price increase to $335 a ton but the rest of the industry held to the $320 a ton price. Bowater's $335 a ton price went into effect Oct. 1.

Planning-Zoning...

Under old business, the commission voted unanimously to recommend to the City Council a rezoning request of J. H. Blount for 50.6 acres located between Westhaven, Club Pines and the Seaboard Coastline Railroad. Petitioner was seeking a change from RA-20 to R-6, R-9, Highway Commercial and Unoffensive Industry.

The final item of old business was a rezoning request of Cherry Oaks, Inc., for 17 acres located on the east side of Fourteenth Street Extension just south of the Southern Railroad was tabled for 30 days to allow for an inquiry into the legal status of the request.

The 30-day waiting period was waived in the rezoning request of Sunnyside Eggs, Inc., for 6.52 acres at the intersection of estate road 1708 and Seaboard Coastline Railroad. The petitioner was seeking a change from RA-20 to IU to allow for expansion of physical plant. The commission voted to recommend the motion to the City Council.

The 30-day waiting period was also waived by the commission in the rezoning request of Coastal Chemical Company. The petitioner was seeking a change from RA-20 to Industrial District to allow for expansion. The motion was approved and will be favorably recommended to the City Council.

A rezoning request of Ed and Rosemond Tipton for 7.38 acres located between Elizabeth Heights Subdivision and the Seaboard Coastline Railroad was tabled for 30 days. The petitioner is seeking a change from RA-20 to R-6.

A conflict of interest arose in the sixth item of new business due to petitioner, J. T. Manning Jr., being a member of the commission. Manning would have had to remove himself from the quorum, creating an insufficient number with which to conduct business. The motion has been deferred until the full commission is present so Manning's withdrawal will not create this problem.

The final plat of Louis W. Evans Subdivision Section I, located in the southwest quadrant of the intersection of N. C. Highway 43 and Red Banks Road was approved by the commission. The property is zoned Office and Institutional and lies outside the corporate limits.

The preliminary plat of Professional Center Section III, Carroll and Associates Developers, was approved by the commission. The property is zoned Medical Arts and also lies outside the corporate limits. The land is located west of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

In the final item of business on the agenda, the commission failed to approve a preliminary plat of Quail Ridge Subdivision due to the fact that landowners have yet to be notified concerning the preliminary plat.

The commission discussed changing the dates of their meetings in November and December due to conflicts with the upcoming holidays. The new dates for the meetings are Wednesday, November 15, and Wednesday, December 13.

Conducted ERA Course

ECU News Bureau

Tennala A. Gross of the East Carolina University mathematics faculty conducted a short course on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to the U.S. Constitution in New Bern Oct. 17.

The course was sponsored by the 21st District of the N.C. Nurses Association, as part of its continuing education recognition program.

Ms. Gross discussed the history of women in the U.S., the campaign for women's right to vote, the original introduction of the ERA in Congress in 1923, the effect of the ERA upon each sex and the current status of ratification.

The N.C. General Assembly is expected to consider ratification early in 1979. Three more state ratifications are required before the amendment becomes part of the Constitution.

An active participant in professional and political organizations, Ms. Gross is a past president of the N.C. Women's Political Caucus.

Rampants Host Fike For Homecoming

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School celebrates Homecoming tomorrow night, but Rampant Coach Dave Bumgarner isn't looking forward to the festivities.

"I've got to confess that every Homecoming, I get scared to death," he said. "There is so much other stuff going on besides the football game that I worry that our players will not have their minds on the game like they should, but on the parade, the dance and the other stuff."

"And when you have an opponent like Wilson Fike coming in, you really have to worry," he added.

The Rampants and Golden Demons clash Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

For Rose, it is the chance to continue to have a shot at a post-season playoff contest, while for Fike, it could be the chance to do the same after a horrible start.

The Golden Demons topped Northeastern, 14-0, last week, after losing their first seven games of the season.

Rose meanwhile, knocked off Northern Nash, 20-8 to record its first Division I win in three starts. The Rampants could still gain a post-season berth by winning their last two games, proving Bertie loses to Northeastern and Northern Nash in its final two games.

Bumgarner was quite pleased with the offensive effort in last week's victory over the Knights. "We moved the ball well. We didn't get a whole lot of yardage, but we did control the ball and we played more on offense than we did on defense, and that's good."

"We did a lot of important things. We had several youngsters who picked up a lot of yards, and that's a good sign for us."

Bumgarner noted that defenses are beginning to stop the fullback option of the Rampants, and forcing the team to make the quarterback keep or option to the trailing back. "We've got to work more on getting our fullback option back into the game," Bumgarner said.

While he admitted that he wasn't disappointed in losing the shutout late in the game, Bumgarner added that the 70-yard scoring play, against the reserves, more than doubled Northern Nash's offensive effort for the evening.

"We have several good things going for us this weekend," he said, turning to the Fike contest. "We come in after a win, and it's Homecoming."

Garrett Young

We did some good things against Northern Nash that we haven't been doing, and we were able to score. And even though we got the ball in good field position several times, we did get off some real good runs, too."

Bumgarner feels that Fike will be "high as a kite" following its upset win over Northeastern.

"We're going to have to do something on offense or defense quickly to get a score on the board and knock the wind out of their sails. Then we need to hold them and get another score as quickly as we can."

Bumgarner acknowledged that the Rampants could be caught looking past the Demons. "That, plus the Homecoming festivities really scare me. We're really trying to make the players aware of what's at stake here. We've got to win this game first, then celebrate, then get ready for Northeastern."

"And when you haven't beaten a school in three years, you can't afford to look beyond them," he added.

Rose's last win over Fike came in 1974 when the Rampants gained a 28-14 victory. Fike, although not the same Fike as is playing this year, has won the past three games.

Fike, following county-wide consolidation, has practically a new student body from last year, and many of the players from last year's team are gone.

The Demons run out of the power-I on offense, and field a 5-2 defense.

Donald Hamm is the leading rusher with less than 500 yards. Quarterbacks Jeff Williams and Rob Rhodes will put the ball in the air, usually going to flanker Duke Lackey.

Jeff Speight, offensive guard, anchors the line, while Michael Faison (linebacker), Ronald Whitehead (tackle), Joe Sharpe (end), and Lackey and Rhodes (backs) led the defense. Williams is the leading punter in the division.

Fike opened the year with seven straight losses, including four shutouts. Prior to beating Northeastern, they bowed to Bertie, 20-7, and to Northern Nash, 22-2, in conference play.

Rose will close out the year at Elizabeth City against Northeastern next Friday.

Aycock Takes Junior Title

E.B. Aycock Junior High romped to a 46-20 victory over the Rocky Mount Gold team yesterday, clinching the Eastern Carolina Junior High School conference championship.

Aycock got two first half touchdowns, both coming in the second period. Roderick Harrell scored on an eight yard run, then Robert Brown scored from four yards out. Harrell added a two-point conversion after the second score for a 14-0 halftime lead.

Aycock came back with three third period scores after Rocky Mount scored first in the half on a 47-yard run.

Ronnie Worsley scored on a 17-yard reverse, with Roger Williams kicking the extra point. Then, Williams scored on a 13-yard run, and Dwayne Fisher returned a pass interception 44 yards for the third Jaguar score of the period, boosting the lead to 34-0.

Rocky Mount scored two fourth period touchdowns on a 60-yard pass and a two-yard run, while Aycock got a four-yard run from Jeff Porter and a 27-yard run by Chris McLawhorn for its two scores.

Aycock finished the year with a 5-1 record.

OFFICIAL NORTH CAROLINA STATE INSPECTION STATION

Jim
Kyle

(Editor's Note: Jim Kyle is on vacation. His column today is written by Woody Peele.)

Just in case anyone didn't notice, the official attendance figures for last Saturday's N.C. State-University of North Carolina football game was 50,250.

We harken back to a few weeks earlier in the season when the Pirates of East Carolina visited Chapel Hill and the attendance was then listed at 51,150, a record crowd.

Certainly, it can be argued that the ECU-UNC game was the season opener, and that the Tar Heels were expected to be doing a lot better than they are. But State is doing quite well, and it's only a hop-skip-and-a-jump from Raleigh to Chapel Hill.

Perhaps, it would be wise to reconsider the dropping of East Carolina from the Tar Heel schedule after all.

There are those, too, who believe that the crowds that have attended the ECU-State games were larger than officially announced. In each of the past three seasons, press box observers have called the crowd at that game the largest they had ever seen, but each time, a below-record crowd was claimed.

Thus, it may be that the Tar Heels, while dropping the Pirates, are more honest with their feelings.

Look Around, Rozantz

It is perhaps the most ironic note of all for the William & Mary Indians that they come into East Carolina's Ficklen Stadium in two weeks and face a Homecoming crowd. During those Homecoming ceremonies, the new members of the ECU Sports Hall of Fame will be installed.

And one of those to be installed will be Jim Johnson, who might best be remembered by the Indians as the man who made the "tackle" on Tom Rozantz on the final touchdown of the game.

Indian Coach Jim Root and Rozantz both have forgiven, but probably not forgotten the incident, and may be forgiven themselves if they assign an assistant coach or manager or someone to keep a constant eye on the former star athlete at East Carolina.

Johnson's induction, by the way, had nothing to do with the "play," as he is well-qualified from his playing days at East Carolina, where he was a 16-lettermen.

In fact, when the selection committee voted on this year's inductees, no thought was given to the fact that William & Mary would be the opponent.

A Deserved Award

Gaylord Perry was awarded the Cy Young Award for the National League earlier this week, and we can only add that it was justly received by the Williamston native.

While there seems little doubt that the only thing standing between Perry and a nitch at Cooperstown, the fact that he has become the first man in the history of baseball to receive the award in both leagues, will just add more luster to his credentials. Already, he has 3,000 strikeouts, only the third man in baseball history to reach that goal. He should become the second-leading strikeout artist of all time before he finally hangs up his glove and spikes.

He is one of two pitchers who has won 100 games in each league, and feels that he can achieve his 300th victory before he retires.

It makes one wonder what the folks in Texas might be thinking now. Ranger manager Billy Hunter wanted to stick Perry into the bull pen after last year, and the Tar Heel instead asked to be traded to a team where he can start.

Not only did he start, but he became the top pitcher in the league. Texas should have had it so good.

It's Monday Night Tonight

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry and Minnesota Coach Bud Grant don't mind Thursday night "Monday night" National Football League games.

"When television wants to put you on the air nationally it's an honor," said Grant. "That means you are a contending team or they wouldn't call."

"I'm sure it would be nice to play at 1 p.m. every Sunday, but if you are a contending team you just have to bear the cross of unusual starting times. I'm not so sure Dallas has an advantage because we have to travel. The important thing was that we both played at home last Sunday. It (the travel) is not a major handicap."

Landry said, "It's an honor to be asked. They don't ask you to play in games like this unless you have a good football team. I think we can recover from our tiredness Sunday but maybe our bruises won't heal as fast. I think we probably have a little advantage — I don't know how much — because they have to travel."

Then he laughed — "Knowing Bud they probably won't be here until the last minute anyway."

Playing on the artificial turf of Texas Stadium was a bigger worry to Grant.

"Well, it's a distinct disadvantage to play on your (the Cowboys') field coming off grass," said Grant. "It's a handicap we find it difficult to adjust to. There is so much more traction. It's a faster, finer, more precision type of game. A Tony Dorsett type field."

And Landry added: "All I know is that we've been on grass twice and lost."

The Cowboys were sevenpoint favorites for the nationally televised 7:30 p.m. CDT kickoff with a sellout crowd of 65,000 expected.

Dallas, 6-2, has a chance to move a half-game ahead of Washington in the National Conference Eastern Division with a victory while the Vikings, 4-4, were trying to stay close to Green Bay in the NFC Central.

The game marked the return to starting grace of Tony Dorsett, who regained the Cowboys No. 1 halfback job after he apologized to the team and Landry for sleeping through a workout last week. Landry had demoted Dorsett to second string.

Tackle Football

The Cardinals gained a 6-0 victory over the Pirates in the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department's tackle football program yesterday.

The lone score came in the second period when Bobby Casey recovered a fumble in the end zone.

Mont Carter intercepted a pass, while William Rhodes recovered a fumble, and Arthur Grice recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass for the Pirates. Traye Fuqua and Donnell Lee each intercepted a pass to pace the Cardinal defense.

Flag Football

The Steelers raced to a 25-12 victory over the Eagles in the Flag Football League yesterday.

The Steelers scored first on a 23-yard run by Bryan Clark, with Michael Jones taking a pass from Daryl Perkins for the PAT. Mike Shock then scored on a four-yard run for the Eagles, making it 7-6 at the half.

The Steelers scored three times in the third quarter. Tyrone Barrett scored on a 28-yard run, and Ryner Clark took an 18-yard pass from Barrett for a second score. Frankie Atkinson returned an interception 15 yards for the other Steeler score.

The other Eagle score came in the final period, with Dale Hudson returning a kick 55 yards.

Doyle Kirkland was cited for his defensive play for the Eagles, while Shock had an interception.

Soccer

The Strikers and the Capitals picked up Soccer League wins yesterday.

The Strikers took a 1-0 victory over the Rowdies in the first game. Ralph Harper scored in the third period on an assist by Kelly Barnhill.

Players cited by the Strikers were goalie Chris Meeks, along with Harper, Billy Helms, Barnhill, Andy Edwards, Amy Dohn and Dallas McPherson. Tom Moye, Tim West, David Johnson and Steve Horne led the Rowdies.

In the second game, the Caps took a 6-0 win over the Aztecs.

Bobby Orr scored a minute into the game on an assist by Mike Herrin, then David Tinglestad scored on a throw-in assisted by Herrin.

Herrin scored three times in the third period in a two-minute span. The first came on a penalty shot, the second when he stole a pass from the Aztec goalie, and the other came on a drive. Chris Sams got the final goal on an assist from Tinglestad.

Mike Uhlman and goalie Joey Jenkins were Aztec leaders.

Ducks Unlimited Meeting Here Raises $36,000 For The Cause

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County members of the national Ducks Unlimited organization continued to do their part to boost the waterfowl conservation program last night as over $36,000 was raised at the annual DU dinner meeting.

This year's fund total, representing an increase of some $9,000 over the 1977 figure, involved some $24,000 in sponsor memberships and also money from general DU memberships and auction proceeds.

Women In Net Win

GOLDSBORO — Greenville's women's tennis team in the East Carolina Tennis Association gained its fifth straight victory yesterday, nipping Goldsboro, 5-4.

The two teams split the singles, each winning three, but Greenville came back to take the first two of the three doubles matches to sew up the victory.

Summary:

Frances Cain (Gv) defeated Sissy Weil, 6-4, 6-2.
Carlie Wille (Gv) defeated Beth Gril, 6-2, 6-1.
Nancy Powell (Gv) defeated Lyn Canterbury, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3.
Kathleen Bell (Gv) defeated Betty Concha, 6-2, 6-0.
Rosemary Sugg (Gv) defeated Mary Angela Lee, 6-2, 6-4.
Lila Everett (Gv) defeated Calla Wallace, 6-1, 6-3.
Wille Powell (Gv) defeated Weil Bell, 6-1, 6-3.
Cain Lee (Gv) defeated Canterbury Everett, 6-0, 6-7, 6-1, 6-3.
Sugg Griffin (Gv) defeated Concha Wallace, 6-4, 6-1.

The meeting ended with 95 area sportsmen on the roster of DU sponsors, pledging a contribution of $200 or more this year. Dr. Ray Minges of Greenville, who is serving as co-chairman of the sponsor program with Vance Taylor of Farmville, noted that the meeting began with 80 sponsors.

Minges, who serves on the DU national board of trustees, told the gathering at the Greenville Golf and Country Club that North Carolina ranked high on the national list during the past year in a variety of categories.

He said that the state ranked second in the nation in the number of sponsors, first in the number of sponsor increases, fifth in funds increase over the previous year, ninth in total state DU income, ninth in total members, and second in money raised per federal Duck Stamp sold.

Noting the strides made by the state in its support and participation in the Ducks Unlimited program, Minges recalled that North Carolina was "just a dot on the DU map" up until some ten years ago.

One of the highlights of last night's session was the auction of various items on behalf of the conservation program, including the DU print of the year, "Fall Kaleidoscope-Wood Ducks," painted by O. W. Gromme, and the Ducks Unlimited commemorative shotgun.

Among the other auction items were a valuable collection of paintings by noted artist Bob Timberlake, a locally handcrafted hunting knife, a shallow-water duck boat from Louisiana, several waterfowl prints, fishing and hunting trips, and a special .20 gauge single-barrel shotgun designed for the young hunter.

Don Manley, North Carolina's DU representative, attended the area meeting and cited the DU committee here as well as the general membership for its part in the national program.

Vitale Returns, But Not For Long

By The Associated Press
Dick Vitale finally injected his vibrant personality into a National Basketball Association game — and was handed his first ejection.

Vitale, in his first season in the league, suffered physically and mentally as his Detroit Pistons lost their first five games of the season. He was on the bench for the first two games and in the hospital — because of a stomach disorder — for the last three.

He returned to the bench

Wednesday night when the Pistons handed the Cleveland Cavaliers their first loss of the season, 110-105, but didn't last through three quarters.

With two minutes remaining in the third period, Vitale, who has promised to "revitalize" the slumbering Pistons, went wild after incurring his second technical foul of the game, resulting in automatic ejection. The technical was assessed when Vitale protested a personal foul against the Pistons' M.L. Carr.

The excitable Pistons' coach chased referee Tommy Nunez around the floor, threw down his jacket and threatened to fight the official. The feisty Vitale had to be restrained by police and team aides before being removed from the playing area.

"I coached my personality tonight," the angry Vitale said afterward. "This is the first time I have coached my personality since I have been in the league. I see too many players being protected and I'm going to fight when I think I'm right. Around the league, they're going to know who Dick Vitale is."

"I didn't lose my head. I'm just a fighter...to coach in this league, you've got to be crazy." In some saner NBA games, the unbeaten Seattle SuperSonics trounced the Washington Bullets 121-92, the Philadelphia 76ers nipped the Atlanta Hawks 118-117, the Denver Nuggets defeated the Phoenix Suns 108-104, the Houston Rockets downed the New York Knicks 106-101, the San Diego Clippers topped the Milwaukee Bucks 125-116, the New Jersey Nets edged the Golden State Warriors 121-118 and the Kansas City Kings beat the New Orleans Jazz 114-109.

Bob Lanier's 26 points paced the Pistons, who rallied from a 71-59 deficit in the third quarter by outscoring Cleveland 17-1 for a 76-72 lead. Rookie John Long scored 11 of his 19 points during the burst.

Campy Russell and Austin Carr each scored 20 points for the Cavs.

Sonics 121, Bullets 92
Seattle, 6-0, the only unbeaten team in the league, crushed defending NBA champion Washington in a matchup of last season's playoff finalists. Gus Williams' 24 points and Lonnie Shelton's 23 led the Sonics.

76ers 118, Hawks 117
Henry Bibby hit a field goal with 31 seconds remaining while he was falling toward the floor, giving the 76ers, 4-1, their victory over Atlanta. Philadelphia's Doug Collins led all scorers with 31 points.

Nuggets 108, Suns 104
Denver, 5-1, playing without high-scoring David Thompson, sidlined with the flu, got a big game from George McGinnis in rallying from a 16-point, third-quarter deficit and beating Phoenix. McGinnis scored 33 points and grabbed 24 rebounds.

"I've had some time to get over the shock and I'm looking forward to going there," said Hargrove. "But I didn't want to leave. I don't understand it other than maybe the economics involved."

But Hunter was axed with just one game left in the season, and now the player he prized has been become the latest bargaining chip in an apparent economy move by the Ranger's wheeling and dealing owner.

Basketball rules clinics conducted by the North Carolina Athletic Officials Association are scheduled across the state, October 30 to November 16 as a prelude to this winter's high school season.

Officials and coaches are encouraged to attend these clinics at which rules changes and the 1978-79 points of emphasis, play situations, and mechanics of basketball officiation will be reviewed.

Charlie Adams, Supervisor of Officials for the NCAOA, will serve as clinician at these sessions. Clinics will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Eastern North Carolina dates and sites include: November 6, King Auditorium, UNC-Wilmington; Nov. 7, Music Building, East Carolina University; Nov. 8, Marks Hall, Chowan College; and Nov. 9, Music Building, Atlantic Christian College.

Funds raised by the local organization will be channeled to the national DU pot for continued work towards improving the waterfowl breeding areas in the northern regions.

It was announced that this year Green Wing outing for boys 16 years old and under will again be held at Lake Matamuskeet on Dec. 2. Last year, some 30 Green Wings made the trip from the Greenville area.

Hargrove Goes To Padres For Gamble

DALLAS (AP) — Former Texas Rangers first baseman Mike Hargrove, sent to the Padres in a five-player deal, says he is surprised and hurt, but looking forward to playing in San Diego.

"They probably did a good thing to trade me to the other league," Hargrove said. "If they hadn't, I'd come in with a crowbar, a stick of dynamite and a shotgun and would have eaten first base if I had to to help beat Texas."

Rumors of a trade circulated for weeks, but the American League Rangers made it official Wednesday. Hargrove in fielder Kurt Bevacqua and catcher Bill Fahey will go to San Diego of the National League for outfielder Oscar Gamble, catcher Dave Roberts and an undisclosed amount of cash which was estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000.

"I knew it would come someday, but I'm surprised and hurt it happened this soon," said Hargrove, the AL Rookie of the Year in 1974 with Texas. He finished 1978 with seven homers and a .251 average.

Hargrove got the word Tuesday night during a dinner with Rangers owner Brad Corbett, the Dallas Times Herald said.

"I'm not mad at anyone but Robinson (General Manager Eddie Robinson). I cannot stand that man," said Hargrove, adding that he thought Robinson was the force behind the trade.

Gamble expressed his pleasure with the trade. "I hit better in the American league," said Gamble in a telephone interview from his home in Montgomery, Ala.

Gamble powered 31 home runs with the White Sox in 1977. But last season he finished with just seven homers and a .275 average with the Padres.

"Yes, I'm happy because they didn't want me to play here," said Gamble. "It got to the point where I had to fight to get into the lineup."

Hargrove was once described as "the kind of guy you like to build a team around" by former Texas Ranger Manager Bill Hunter.

But Hunter was axed with just one game left in the season, and now the player he prized has been become the latest bargaining chip in an apparent economy move by the Ranger's wheeling and dealing owner.

"I've had some time to get over the shock and I'm looking forward to going there," said Hargrove. "But I didn't want to leave. I don't understand it other than maybe the economics involved."

Injuries Hit Terps

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Injuries have started to build up on Maryland's football team, and that worries Coach Jerry Claiborne.

"I'm really getting concerned," said the Terp coach. "If we had to play today, Don Dotter, Ralph Lary, Mickey Dudish, Steve Kozio, Scott Collins and Ric Cummins would not play."

Maryland is ranked number five in the country and has an unbeaten record. The team plays Duke in Durham Saturday.

"We've been staying ahead of the injuries fairly well, but now they're starting to build up," Claiborne said at his weekly news conference Wednesday. "One of the keys to a successful season is staying well."

The most critical position is fullback, where sophomore Rick Fasano is the only healthy player. He will start Saturday.

But Claiborne says he is not alone. "I think injuries have already caught up with Duke," he said. "They started out the season real strong but have run into problems lately."

Duke quarterback Mike Dunn has a thumb injury, and split end Jeff Comer separated a shoulder against Navy and won't play against Maryland.

Meanwhile, the Clippers' defense held Milwaukee's Marques Johnson, the NBA's leading scorer with a 33-point average, to 18.

Nets 121, Warriors 118
Bernard King's 27 points and Wilson Washington's 26 points and 18 rebounds — both career highs — carried New Jersey past Golden State. The Nets converted 43 of 59 fouls to only 22 of 27 for the Warriors. Phil Smith topped Golden State with 29 points.

Kings 114, Jazz 109
Kansas City hit 11 of its first 13 shots and went on to build a 15-point lead with eight minutes remaining in the game, but then had to hang on for the victory after missing 14 of its last 16 shots. Scott Wedman led the Kings with 22 points, while Truck Robinson scored 37 for New Orleans and Pete Maravich had 31.

Rampettes Lose, 5-4

Rose High School's girls' tennis team closed out the regular season with a 5-4 defeat at the hands of Roanoke Rapids.

The two teams split the singles matches, but the Yellow Jackets came back to win two of the three doubles to gain the close victory.

Rose finished the season with a 5-8 overall record, and the top six singles players will advance into the Sectionals, to be held starting Monday at Wilson Fike.

Bad News Accompanies Reports Of Bumper Crop

By PAMELA J. HUEY
United Press International
Midwest farmers harvesting the bulk of this fall's bumper corn crop are between the proverbial devil and the deepblue sea.
They already have a large carryover of the 1977 crop, there is little room to store this year's crop, slumping prices make selling an untenable alternative, and crop conditions and surpluses elsewhere in the world may crimp sales overseas.
Government forecasters have pegged the harvest at a whopping 6.8 billion bushels which would be far and away the largest production ever. That estimate was based on conditions Sept. 1, and some agronomists and other agriculture leaders have expressed skepticism that the crop will actually be that high.

Late-summer heat and corn borer infestations, they say, may have damaged the crop, reducing yields and cutting total production.
A survey of the seven major corn-producing states by the National Corn Growers Association indicates the crop will not be of the magnitude projected by the USDA.
"This was a little larger figure on corn than I had expected," said Bob Wisner, an Iowa State University extension economist. "And, I guess, larger than most trade analysts had expected."

But even so, Illinois Agriculture Director John Block said there still will be a glut of corn.
"I'm reluctant to bet against the USDA. They have a good record over the years," Block said. "But even if they're off by 5 percent, it'll still be entirely too much corn."
According to the USDA, Iowa and Illinois farmers will harvest one-third of the entire U.S. crop at yields of about 115 bushels per acre. Farmers in Minnesota, Nebraska, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Pennsylvania and Michigan will reap most of the remaining crop.
The nationwide average yield is estimated at 100.3 bushels — three bushels above the record set in 1972.
Midwest agriculture leaders said both storage facilities and hopper cars to move all that grain are in tight supply.
"We're tight all over," said Richard Fitzsimmons, Nebraska deputy agriculture secretary. "The elevators are full and the on-farm storage is full."
Wisner said the absence of storage space could force farmers to sell, thus pushing prices even lower.
After making its September estimates, the USDA said the huge crop would mean farmers will receive between $1.95 and $2.05 a bushel — 10 cents a bushel less than experts had predicted a month previous.

Both USDA Secretary Robert Bergland and Iowa Secretary of Agriculture Robert Lounsbury expressed fears prices could drop as low as $1.50 per bushel, especially, Lounsbury said, if transportation problems disrupt the orderly movement of the crop.
Block and participants at a recent University of Illinois conference on foreign markets said the alternative for farmers, then, is to find more overseas buyers. The cheap price and the low value of the dollar would seem to make this country a bargain basement for overseas corn buyers.
But, Darwin Stolte, president of the U.S. Feed Grains Council, an organization that promotes the sale of domestic corn, sorghum and barley around the world, said that might not be the case.

Crop production in Western Europe and the Soviet Union appear to be at near-record levels and another large U.S. customer, Japan, has overproduced rice for the last three years and will be feeding some of it to livestock, decreasing a demand for corn.
"Our corn is a good buy for most countries right now," Stolte said. "The devaluation plus low market prices make us a cheap market. But if the consumption isn't there, then a country won't buy our corn."
The president of the National Corn Growers Association, Don Schlichte, said there was no easy answer to the multitude of problems faced by the corn farmer, and agriculture in general.
"There is no question about it," he said. "We are going to be up to our butts and beyond in corn."

Farmers, however, cannot afford to make any hasty moves or over react.

"Efficiency of operation and of marketing," Schlichte said, "is the bottom line to the mense corn crop."

Pope, French President Discuss World Problems

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II and President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing of France discussed a wide range of "burning world issues" today, including ways and means to bring about "peace in a unified Lebanon."

The French president, who was received for 45 minutes in the pontiff's first working audience for a chief of state, said he had discussed the wide range of subjects with the pontiff, including prospects for peace in war-torn Lebanon.

During a brief visit after the audience to the Basilica of St. John the Lateran, where French chiefs of state have been honorary canons since King Henry IV, Giscard d'Estaing said he agreed with the pope that "there is a great renewal of spirituality in the world at the moment."

"I was deeply moved by the beaming personality of John Paul II," Giscard d'Estaing added. "We also discussed and agreed on the universality of the faith and that each person is free to accede to the spirituality of his own faith."

The pontiff's predecessor — John Paul I — reportedly had planned to make a trip to Lebanon to underscore his personal commitment to the settlement of the internal strife. The Sacred College of Cardinals, which ran the affairs of the church during the interregnum between John Paul I's death Sept. 28 and John Paul II's election Oct. 16, twice appealed for peace in Lebanon. The church recently received a plea from Lebanese Christians seeking the church's help in putting an end to the internal strife.

In his first papal speech on Oct. 17, John Paul II indicated that he would pay prompt attention to the Lebanese question. He spoke of the "grave" problem in "the beloved land of Lebanon and its people who earnestly desire peace and liberty."

Last year, Giscard d'Estaing proposed sending French troops to Lebanon to act as a peacekeeping force in much the same way U.S. Marines intervened in the Moslem-Christian fighting in the 1950s. French officials said at that time that they were willing to accept this responsibility in view of the long-standing ties between France and Lebanon, which go back not only to French colonial rule but to the Crusades.

The plan was welcomed by Lebanese Christian leader Pierre Gemayel and others but was vehemently opposed by the Moslem community and died quietly.

Some 37,000 persons died in the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war between the Christians and an alliance of Moslems and Palestinians. The Syrians ended the fighting 23 months ago, saved the Christians from defeat and prevented establishment of a radical regime on Syria's doorstep.

But the Israeli-backed Christian militias refused Syrian orders to disarm in February because the Moslems and Palestinians weren't told to give up their guns, and the Syrians began cracking down on Christian enclaves.

Eight months of clashes followed, culminating in a furious, 10-day bout in Beirut that left some 1,300 dead. The Beirut fighting tapered off after a cease-fire Oct. 7, but sporadic gunfire and shelling continue on a daily basis.

Sue For Tighter Laws For Stockowned S&L

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's depositor-owned mutual savings and loan associations are trying to force the state to tighten its regulation of stockowned savings and loans. In a suit filed in Wake County Superior Court last week, the North Carolina Savings and Loan League asked that the state Savings and Loan Commission be barred from approving any more stock S&L applications until it adopts regulations governing them. The league has 189 members, most of them mutuals. However, most of the 18 new stock-owned S&Ls are also members. As an alternative, the suit asked the court to require the commission to adopt regulations proposed by the league before acting on any more applications. A hearing is set for Nov. 6. The commission is scheduled to act on some of the 17 pending stock applications at its next meeting Nov. 9. Mutual savings associations are owned by all their depositors and borrowers. Stockowned S&Ls are owned by investors seeking a profit. Since stock-owned associations started opening last January, managers of some mutual associations have expressed resentment that stockowned S&Ls are offering higher interest rates on savings than do mutuals. Stock-owned associations have countered that mutuals are trying to stifle competition. Most stock-owned associations are insured privately and have no ceiling on interest rates, while the federal government, which insures mutuals, limits the interest the mutuals can pay. The league contends in the suit that the 1977 law authorizing stock-owned associations requires the commission to adopt regulations. Savings and Loan Administrator William L. Cole declined to comment on the suit. Lucien Capone, an assistant attorney general who will defend Cole and the commission, said the commission has not adopted regulations yet because the law allowing stock-owned S&Ls is so new. He said the commission has been considering applications on a case-by-case basis.

Exhibit Took Award At Fair

Carpentry students at Rose High School took the second place award at the recently held North Carolina State Fair in Raleigh. The award carried $250 in prize money. Entering an exhibit under the theme "Vocational Education: A Continuing Process," the carpentry students utilized a physical building to symbolize the building of vocations.

Their exhibit incorporated a FARMVILLE — According to Louis N. Williams, sales supervisor, Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade, an increase in variegated and non-descript grades of tobacco caused a slight decline in Wednesday's averages.

Primings and lugs accounted for the largest percentage of volume, Williams noted. Top price paid by a company was $1.76. Stabilization receipts totaled 7.12 percent of gross sales Wednesday, compared with 43.93 percent a year ago.

The Farmville market sold 730,445 pounds Wednesday for $963,632, an average of $131.92 per hundredweight. To date, the Farmville market has sold 30,880,315 pounds for $42,885,526, an average of $138.88 per 100 pounds, compared with $116.27 a year ago.

Williams reminded all sellers and buyers that the Farmville market will open at 8:30 a.m., beginning next week, instead of 9 a.m.

presentation of stairsteps type pyramid, with each step inscribed with applicable words related to the topic "Building A Vocation From The Foundation Up."

The students, members of the Rose Chapter of VICA, carpentry division, built the entry under the direction of Gary Wooten, carpentry teacher and advisor of the VICA Club, carpentry division. "The main feature of the display was a scale model of the live project house now under construction," Wooten said. He explained that the $250 prize money will go into the club treasury for various activities, "such as field trips or the appearance of guest speakers."

Prior to the showing at the state fair, the display was shown at the Pitt County Fair and took a first place award there.

The live project house currently under construction by the Rose carpentry students is being built in the Lake Glenwood Sub-division just east of the Greenville city limits.

Bond Set In Theft Case

FARMVILLE — Bond for three Dunn area men charged with breaking and entering and larceny of Family Center Pharmacy here last Thursday night is kept at $20,000 each, following a bond hearing here Monday.

Officer Ken Godwin of the Farmville Police Department said James Willard West, 26, of Rt. 3, Lillingham has been released after making bond.

Richard Wayne Pope, 20, of Dunn has been picked up from the Pitt County Jail by the Duplin County Sheriff Department to be jailed in Duplin until he is tried on breaking and entering and larceny charges there. These charges stem from a drug store robbery in Duplin County, Godwin said.

Gary Dixon Honeycutt, 22, of Dunn remains in Pitt County Jail.

The probable cause hearing for the three is set for Thursday, Nov. 2 in District Court. Charges against each of the three are breaking and entering and larceny, possession of dangerous drugs, and possession of stolen property.

Free Boat Examination Is Offered On Saturday

A late in the season free Courtesy Marine Examination of boats is being held by the Greenville Flotilla of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary on Saturday.

Qualified examiners will be available from noon until dark on Saturday, October 28 to make "house calls" and examine boats at any home in the Greenville area.

Persons interested in this service are to call Jim Hecker at 756-0500 during the Saturday hours.

Hecker stresses that to qualify for the decal, distress flares are required in addition to all other safety equipment specified by federal law.

In addition to the examination, Hecker passes on some hints from the Office of Public and Consumer Affairs of the U.S. Dept. of Transportation on winterizing recreational boats.

The basic recommendations are: — If a boat is removed from water for the winter, it should be stored with adequate support all around, placed in storage, or covered with a weatherproof tarp in a manner to allow air to circulate through and around the craft. — For outdoor motors that use an electric starter, the battery should be taken out and put on "trickle charge." For boats left in water, use the battery to run the automatic bilge pump, and arrange to have the battery placed on trickle charge.

Three Venerable Sunday Morn TV Shows Face January Demise

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — In mid-January, three venerable Sunday morning CBS shows — "Lamp Unto My Feet," "Look Up and Live" and "Camera Three" — will expire at the respective ages of 30, 24 and 25 years.

And "Morning" will dawn. It's the name of the new 90-minute news and feature show CBS henceforth will air Sundays. It's also what CBS will call what now is the "CBS Morning News" on weekdays.

The latter show, still third in ratings in its hour against NBC's "Today" and ABC's "Good Morning America," also will get a new look that could include another anchor change after only a year.

There've been rumors Richard Threlkeld and Leslie Stahl, who succeeded Hughes Rudd and Bruce Morton as the show's co-anchors in the fall of 1977, may depart for other duties soon.

"Well, it's possible," says Robert "Shad" Northshield, who last month became the executive producer of their show and is the guy who'll run the six-day "Morning" venture when it begins in 1979.

But he hastens to add there's been no decision the current "Morning News" anchors will be hoisted and others installed: "When I say it's not decided, I mean it hasn't been talked about."

"I know they (Threlkeld and Stahl) are absolutely going to be involved in the Sunday operation in a big way, and that's about all I know now." He was asked if they'd shift to Sunday-show hosting.

"Not necessarily, there may not even be anchors," he said by phone from New York. He said he wasn't trying to be vague, "it's just that we haven't even talked about it."

Everything still is in the planning stages, emphasized

Northshield, 55, a respected ex-NBC News documentary, specials and "Today" producer who last year rejoined CBS, where he toiled in 1953-58.

Right now, he said, he's busy enough just trying to hire a staff, get office space and secure the gear needed for the new Sabbath show, which he likens to the Sunday edition of a daily newspaper.

"It'll have hard news, a review of the week's news, plus a lot of cultural stuff, the kinds of things you only get on Sundays (in newspapers)," said the former Chicago newspaperman.

It'll also probably have staff critics to criticize art, music, theater, movies and even TV, he added.

CBS says the Sunday effort, to regularly carry religious as well as cultural news, will be pre-empted several times each year for "important religious specials."

As for the new look of the "Morning" show weekdays, Northshield said, it "will be similar to what we're doing Sundays" with more essays, features and comment on advances or retreats in the arts.

The veteran producer conceded the new look will mark a departure of sorts from the traditional straight-news approach of the "CBS Morning News," now in its 16th year.

"Yeah, except that I would think that in the program, of its given 60 minutes, 40 minutes of it will be hard news," he said. "It's still going to be predominantly hard news."

Vernon Presley Mime Wanted To Do Visual Comedy

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Vernon Presley, 62-year-old father of the late rock and roll star Elvis Presley, remained in serious but stable condition at Baptist Hospital.

He was hospitalized Tuesday after suffering dizziness and a rapid heartbeat.

By GAYLE FISHER
Associated Press
RENO, Nev. (AP) — Mime artist Robert Shields says he can do without the building blocks of this very sentence — words.

"Everything is words," said Shields, 27, during performances in Reno. "Singers, comedians and actors all use words. I wanted to do something without them."

He and his wife, Lorene Yarnell, 29, form Shields and Yarnell, a successful "visual comedy" team which has risen to stardom from the streets of San Francisco about two years ago.

"I don't like the word 'mime.' I prefer to say 'visual comedy,'" Shields said when describing their versatile act.

The couple had their own variety show on TV recently and more TV specials are planned, but he said nothing was definite. Also in the works is a movie, which would consist of eight short skits.

"A lot of people just know Lorene and me as the Clinkers on the TV show, but there's a lot more to us than that," he said.

Shields studied under Marcel Marceau, a famous mime artist in Paris, France. But he left after a short period because he said he wanted to develop his own act.

He performed in the Union Square in San Francisco. Eventually dancer Lorene Yarnell joined him in his act and in marriage.

Shields says he is making plans to start his own school. "The first thing I would have them do is study people," Shields said. "That is what Lorene and I do all the time. We'll sit in a hotel lobby and watch people go by. We get a lot of ideas that way."

He also said that it was just as important to learn techniques such as dance in order to perfect an act. "When I met Lorene she told me that if I didn't take care of myself, I was going to end up in a hospital because I was not treating my body right," Shields said. He was referring to his constant leaps over bushes and other obstacles in the streets, always landing on his knees. "She told me I needed to learn technique," he said. "And I taught her how to do mime. She said she could never do it, but I showed her that she could."

They live in a ranch-style house in California, which is filled with toys on the inside and animals on the outside. Lorene is the animal lover in the family. He said they get a lot of ideas from toys and children. "Children are so natural. They can act out things using only their imagination. Then they get older and learn how to sit right, eat right, and so on. It's all broken down, which is a shame," Shields commented.

Canned Beans A Remembrance

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — When Elizabeth Aigner wants to recall the good old days, she looks at a jar of green beans.

Mrs. Aigner canned the beans 57 years ago. She liked the way they looked, so she kept putting off using them. They eventually became a remembrance of her long-departed youth.

"For years I've kept the jar on my pantry shelf, and whenever I want to think about the days when I had more time, I look at them," she says.

And she says the beans will stay where they are: at age 80, she's not about to change a pattern of a lifetime.

Grace Slick Is On Probation

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Grace Slick, the 38-year-old lead singer for the Jefferson Starship rock group, was put on two years' probation by a judge who warned her she would be jailed if she drank alcohol during that period.

Marin County Municipal Judge Gary Thomas on Wednesday also ordered Miss Slick to attend semi-weekly meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous for six months and not to leave the state without permission.

Miss Slick was arrested at Corte Madera, near her Mill Valley home, on July 25 for allegedly being drunk in public while on probation. She pleaded no contest last month to charges she had violated probation imposed by Thomas in March following her conviction in January on a charge of drunken driving.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — MANY PAINTERS OF POP ART WILL FROWN ON SYMMETRY.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: F equals E

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 2 NT Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♠.

One of the basic principles of card play technique is to first develop the suit in which you expect to gain the most tricks. But South was well aware that there are exceptions to this rule.

With 8 points and a good five-card suit, North might have taken the bit firmly between the teeth and bid the game himself. However, he was content to issue an invitation. South accepted despite the fact that he had a minimum of 16 points—he had all suits stopped and the tenace positions, which would be led into, considerably improved his hand.

West led his fourth-best spade and declarer captured East's jack with the queen. The natural instinct would be to go after the club suit, but declarer saw that that could easily cost the contract. The danger hand was West, and West's entries had to be attacked first. If West held the king of clubs, he was in no danger: the monarch could always be picked up later via a finesse. But if West held the ace of hearts, that card had to be knocked out before West's long suit, spades, could be set up.

At trick two, therefore, declarer led a heart to the queen. When that held, he continued with the jack of hearts. West won the ace and returned the king of spades, which was allowed to hold, followed by the ten.

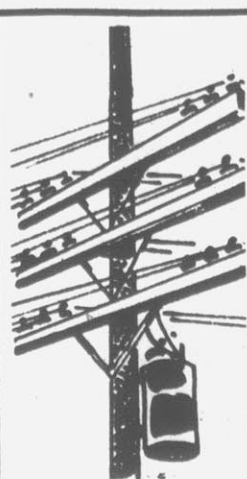

Declarer won the ace and ran the eight of clubs. East held off one round, but he was compelled to win the king on the next round. Declarer's technique now paid off, for East was out of spades. Although he made the best shift to a diamond, declarer had no problem. He rose with the ace and cashed his tricks in hearts and clubs, and ended up with an over-trick.

Rebuilding Their Soil To Make Productive Farms

BY CHARLES M. MADIGAN

VLADIMIR, U.S.S.R. (UPI)

The skies were heavy and gray and on the horizon, they seemed to be stitched to the soft rolling hills of the Vladimir Oblast some 150 miles northeast of Moscow.

It is an ancient land packed full of the history of the birth of the Russian state, a fertile place for scholars interested in what happened during the 12th and 13th centuries.

But not a very fertile place for farmers at all, and despite the quaint old buildings and huge, ancient monasteries, rather an embarrassment for the Soviet state.

Vladimir is in the heart of what Soviet agricultural experts call the "non-black earth zone" — a vast stretch of the Russian Federation that has ground that is as poor as its population.

As the crops went, so went life in the non-black zone. It has become a poverty pocket and the government has decided to invest an immense amount of money on a scheme to turn it around.

And the planners in Moscow have decided that the key to success in the region is the development of agriculture aimed at making the non-black zone self-supporting.

The Soviet government in its current five-year plan has earmarked 35 billion rubles ($52.2 billion) to what has become known as the "non-black Earth Zone Project."

But if the project is to succeed, the government will have to sweeten soils that are plagued by high acidity. It is sandy ground that will not produce without maximum attention.

And it will have to reclaim lands long since lost to bogs, filling them in and pumping them full of organic and chemical fertilizers so they will be able to produce crops.

Why bother? Why not put the investment into other regions with good soils and a more likely chance at success?

Mikhail Ponamaryev, first secretary of the Vladimir Oblast Communist party, says that although the soil is poor, the conditions for agriculture are excellent.

"Despite the infertility due to sandy soils, despite the poor soils, the region has favorable conditions for the development of farming," Ponamaryev said. "There is good weather and an abundance of precipitation."

Ponamaryev is responsible for only one section of the nonblack earth zone. His region occupies 18,009 square miles with a population of 1,565,000.

The whole non-black earth region is a vast section of the Soviet Union that includes more than 140 million acres of farmland.

The size of the project is indicated by the statistics: by 1990, when it should be completed, the Soviet Union wants to triple the agricultural output of the region. There are 142,000 villages in the region now. By 1990, the population will be moved into 15,400 "large and well appointed townships," according to the magazine Soviet Union.

The expenditure per resident for housing and services under the plan is double the national average. When the project is completed, it will cover a land area five times as large as France and 11 times as large as West Germany.

Agriculture has never been strong in the region, Ponamaryev said, but the quality of life has been improved because of a wide and thriving selection of industries.

Vladimir oblast produces everything from tractors to crystal and china plates. There are 86,000 people working in agriculture or agriculture-related industries.

Ponamaryev said the average agricultural salary in the region is 136 rubles ($194) a month — about average for the Soviet Union, where rent is very low and many other services — medical treatment, for example — are free.

He defined the agricultural problems and laid down the four point program the government wants to pursue to solve them.

Basically, lack of humus in the soil and high acidity have turned the region into a poor agricultural zone. Humus is organic matter, the remains of dead plants and animals.

At its worst, humus content registers only one half of one per cent in the Vladimir Oblast. At its best, it registers about four per cent. Prime agricultural land has humus content of 20 per cent and up.

The soil is sandy in most regions, further complicating the task by causing drainage problems.

"We are raising soil fertility of poor lands with chemicals, organic fertilizers and land reclamation," Ponamaryev said.

Second, the government is trying to increase the mechanical base for agriculture, basically adding more tractors, harvesters and trucks.

Third, it is trying to provide better housing and more industry, both viewed as elements that will help keep the population figures of the region stable.

Finally, programs have been set up to improve the quality of life in rural areas — a problem Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev called attention to in a number of agricultural addresses.

The project was initiated in 1974, and Ponamaryev indicated the effort has already achieved modest gains throughout his region.

"The volume of gross agricultural product on collective and state farms increased by 20 per cent," he said.

"Labor production increased by 21 per cent. Crop production is up 35 per cent. Milk production is up 17 per cent, meat 19 per cent, and eggs two fold. The profit over the period is 120 million rubles ($180 million).

But the gains have been costly, and a look at the statistics on fertilizer application indicates why.

Currently, the farmers apply an average of 7.2 metric tons of organic fertilizer — manure mixed with peat — to each 2.4 acres of land. Some 12 pounds of mineral fertilizer is used on the same area.

And because 75 per cent of the soils in the region are acidic, more than a million acres of land has been limed.

Ten years ago, the farmers were applying only a fraction of that amount of fertilizer to the land. According to Ponamaryev, there was simply not enough fertilizer available. That changed in 1974 when the government committed itself to the project.

The project has also drained and irrigated over 50,000 acres of Vladimir Oblast land in the past four years.

Gennady Suschinsky is the chief of the land reclamation project for the region. He explained the goal while standing on the bank of a huge lake created for irrigation purposes.

"We took 500,000 tons of peat from this reservoir site and used it on the bog lands," he said. "This project alone cost 5.6 million rubles ($8.4 million)."

The artificially irrigated, reclaimed bogland has been used for pasture and fodder for feeding some 10,000 cattle and to provide feed for three dairy farms.

The reclaimed land is constantly under drainage. Although it is not considered suitable for grain crops, its use means that other areas previously used for fodder can be cultivated for grains.

Despite the modest success achieved thus far, the project is plagued by the age-old demons that have affected so many other Soviet farming enterprises — inefficiency and waste.

"Some fertilizers are not being used rationally enough," said Ponamaryev. "We also have a shortage of manpower and all of the objectives are not put into operation all of the time."

He said the party tries to use criticism and socialist emulation — a substitute for competition — in an attempt to increase efficiency and pinpoint problem areas.

The project has received criticism from one of its biggest backers, President Brezhnev.

In a major agricultural address last July, Brezhnev said the region has failed to meet targets for land reclamation and the improvement of soil fertility.

"Obviously, not all the workers of central, republican and local agencies have grasped the economic and political importance of the solution of the problems of the nonblack earth zone," Brezhnev said.

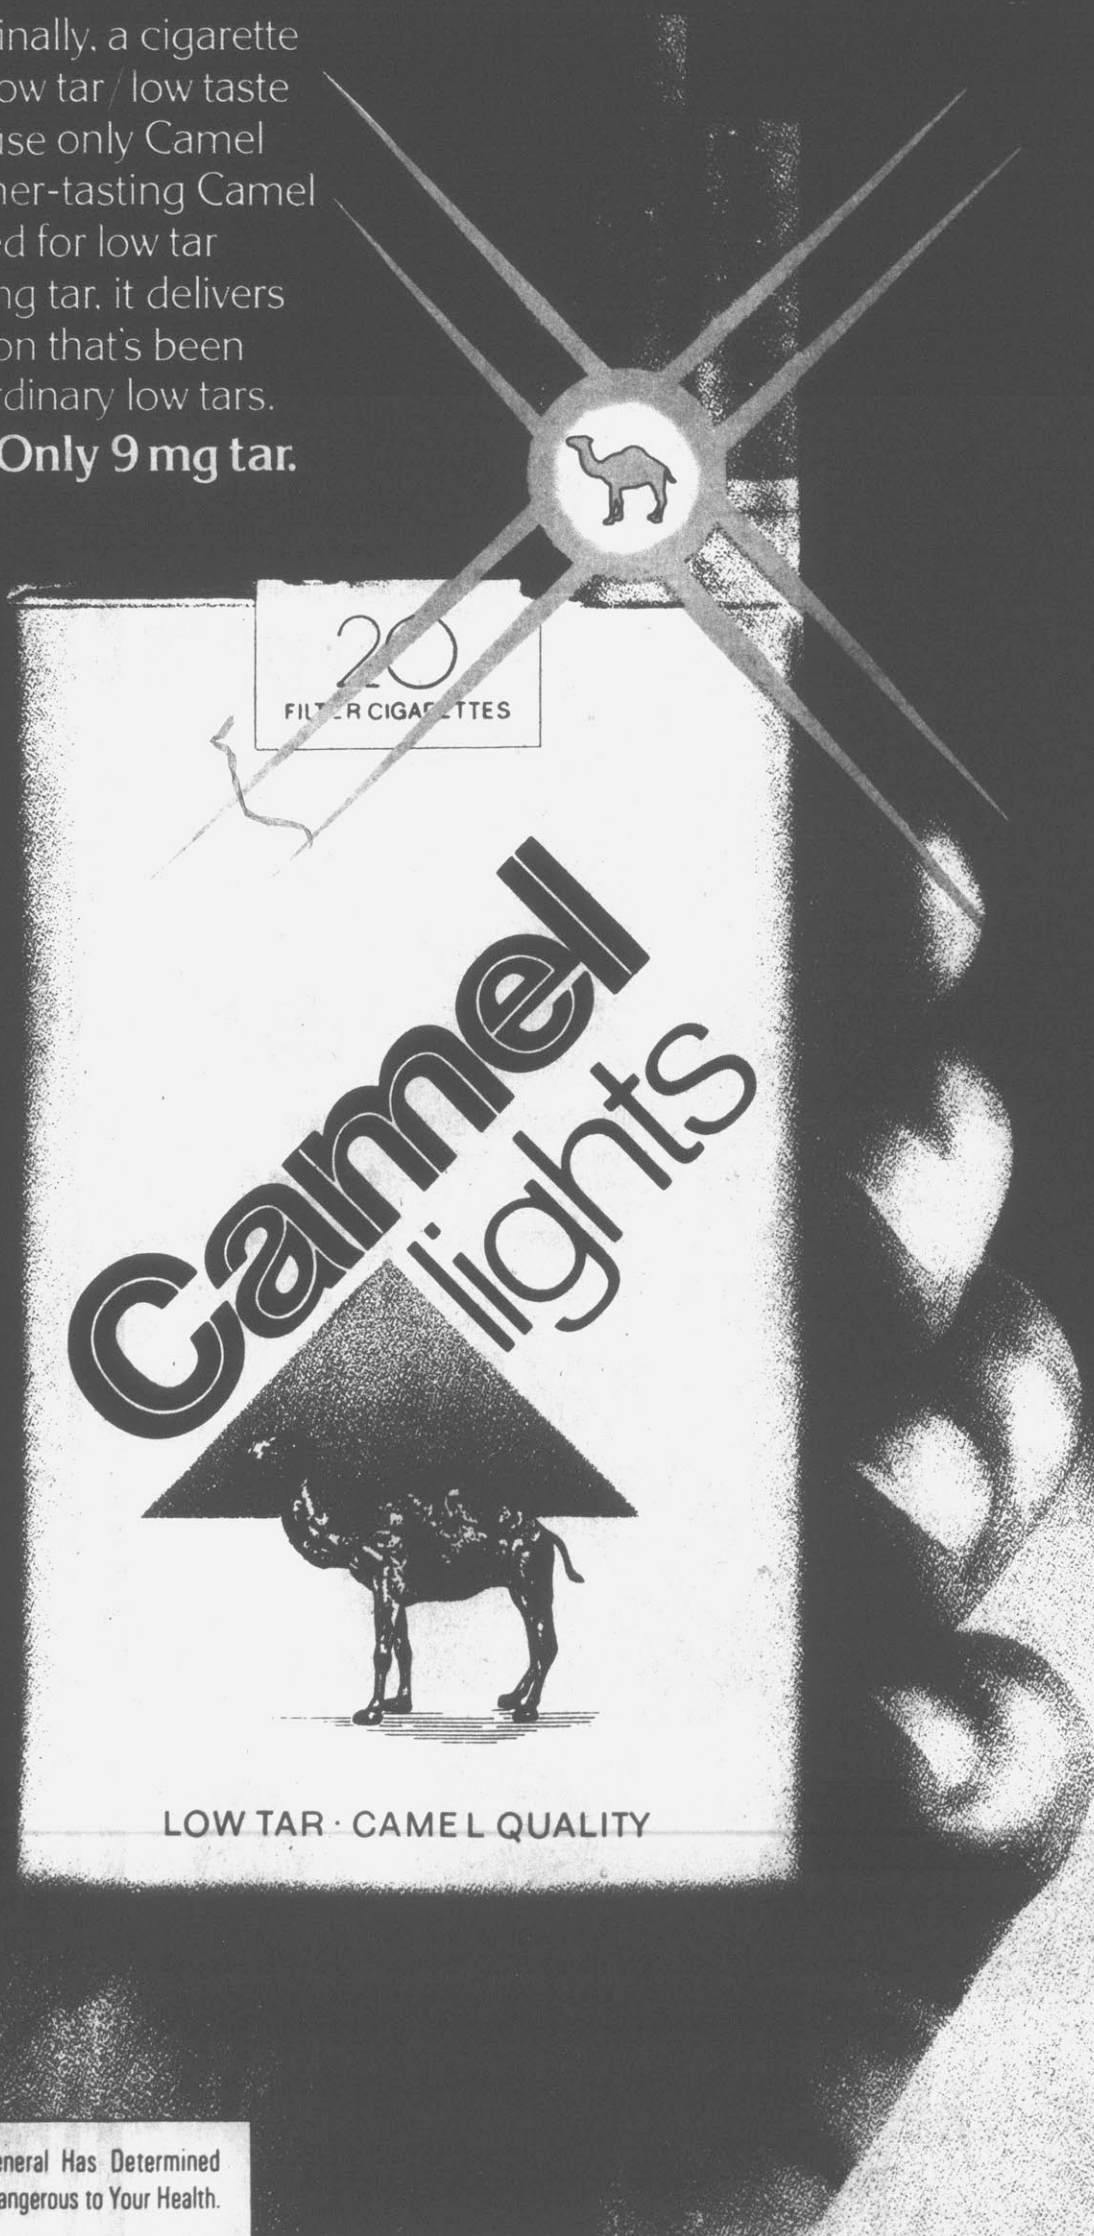

But Brezhnev noted the project would continue and urged everyone involved "to overcome the lag and to fulfill the targets for the entire range of measures for transforming the agriculture of this territory on schedule."

Ponamaryev, who has worked in the region for 17 years and holds three Orders of Lenin for his previous efforts, believe the problems can be solved.

"We are not satisfied with what has been done," he said. "We can see that a lot must be done to solve our complicated problems."
