Jobless Rate Drops To 5.8 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unemployment rate dropped from 6 percent to 5.8 percent in October, as more adult women succeeded in finding jobs, the Labor Department said today. The report indicated the job situation was a bright spot in an economy plagued by rising interest rates and inflation all year. October's jobless rate was the lowest since a 5.7 percent rate last June. For adult women, the unemployment rate dropped from 6 percent to 5.6 percent, the lowest level since August 1974, when it was 5.4 percent.

About 35.7 million women over age 20 held jobs last month out of a population group of 76 million, the department said. About 2.1 million adult women were reported looking for work.

Strong activity in the airline, construction and service industries contributed to continued big increases in new jobs among all workers, the department said.

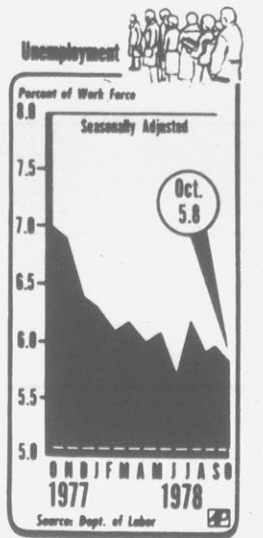

The number of persons holding jobs advanced by 325,000, about average for the year, to 95.2 million. Over the past year, strong economic growth has increased employment by 3.6 million.

However, some economists predict that the government's credit-tightening measures to protect the dollar will push unemployment upward next year.

Here are the unemployment rates for different categories in October:

- All workers 5.8 percent, down from 6 percent.
- Adult men 4 percent, unchanged.
- Adult women 5.6 percent, down from 6 percent.
- Teen-agers 16.3 percent, down from 16.6 percent.
- Whites 5.1 percent, down from 5.3 percent.
- Blacks and other minorities 11.4 percent, up from 11.2 percent.
- Full-time workers 5.3 percent, down from 5.5 percent.
- Non-farm laborers 11.3 percent, up from 10.7 percent.
- Black teen-agers 34.3 percent, down from 34.6 percent.

The report said the average work week was 35.8

hours, unchanged from August and September. Average hourly earnings of production workers increased 0.9 percent during October and 8.6 percent from a year ago, about the same as the rate of inflation. Average hourly earnings were $5.86 and weekly earnings were $210.37. Unemployment reached a peak of 9.1 percent in October 1974 before steadily declining to about 6 percent where it stood last month.

Seeks Turn Tuesday Vote Into Referendum

Carter Concluding Hectic Tour Today

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter, making a fast-paced campaign swing through six states, is talking as if he wants to turn Tuesday's election into a referendum on his administration's programs. The president completes the hectic two-day tour today with appearances at Democratic rallies in Oregon, California and Minnesota before heading to Camp David, Md., for the weekend. After three stops at "get-out-the-vote" rallies Thursday, Carter spent the night at the home of Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic, protege of the late Mayor

Richard J. Daley. In nearby Skokie, Ill., in New York City and in Flint, Mich., the president repeatedly asked crowds Thursday if they "cared enough" about programs he has embarked upon — reducing unemployment, inflation and the federal deficit and maintaining peace — to vote.

"We have raised the banner of principle, of honesty, of decency, of protection for human rights," Carter said at a rally on Wall Street in New York City for Gov. Hugh L. Carey and other Democrats. "But the only way we can keep this strength... is for you to keep a Democratic team in office."

The same basic message was delivered at a Skokie rally for Rep. Abner Mikva. "I need all the help I can get," Carter said after receiving a loud, prolonged welcome. "Do you care enough about your country between now and next Tuesday to work hard to elect Abner Mikva to help me get inflation under control?"

In Flint, he used the same phrases in supporting Carl Levin, the Democrat running against Sen. Robert P. Griffin, a Republican, and William Fitzgerald, who is trying to unseat Republican Gov. William G. Milliken. Carter is campaigning strenuously to minimize the usual gain of House, Senate and gubernatorial seats by the party out of the White House in midterm elections.

Deny A Paycheck For Donald Duck

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government investigators may have slipped Donald Duck onto a federal payroll, but they never got him a paycheck, says an official upset about publicity given a General Accounting Office fraud experiment.

And the GAO was able to ease Donald, Mickey Mouse and 28 other bogus employees onto the Department of Housing and Urban Development payroll partly because it was given easy access to computers — access denied regular workers, William A. Medina of HUD said in testimony prepared for a House subcommittee hearing today.

GAO representatives testified last week that their investigators, checking how well federal computers protect against fraud, slipped the cartoon names onto the payroll with salaries ranging up to Donald's $99,000 a year — more than twice the $47,500 salary of top-level bureaucrats. The computer went right along, they said.

Medina, assistant secretary for administration at HUD, said in his prepared remarks that the test took place nearly five years ago and the problems discovered have long since been corrected.

And, he added, "No paychecks were actually issued or pay given by the department to any of the fictitious entries created by the GAO."

"I do not wish to appear defensive but this matter has been so distorted and exaggerated in the press based on the GAO testimony that I believe clarification is required," he told the House subcommittee on compensation and employee benefits.

Medina said HUD allowed GAO investigators "complete and uncontrolled access" to its computers, a step that bypasses normal computer safeguards.

"Existing human checks and double checks in the total payroll system before and after this mechanical step in the computer were bypassed for computer system test purposes," he added.

Vote Funds

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Arab leaders have approved an $11 billion fund to counter the Egyptian-Israeli peace plan, conference sources reported today.

The approved amount was $2 billion more than one proposed by the hardline Iraq regime, which called the meeting that got under way Thursday evening.

The sources, who have direct access to the deliberations at the presidential palace, could not immediately confirm whether the $11 billion would be an annual allotment or a one-time investment.

The delegates had not yet determined how much each country would give other than to establish the general principle that the richest states would give the most.

Charge Bribes By ITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is accusing International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. of paying millions of dollars in bribes abroad and is demanding fines of $100,000 a day until ITT surrenders subpoenaed documents.

The Securities and Exchange Commission complaint also asks the appointment of new directors to the firm's board and a special master to investigate the giant conglomerate.

The complaint — filed in May but unsealed only Thursday — charges the "illegal, improper, corrupt and questionable" payments went to foreign government officials and employees of commercial customers "to obtain business for ITT and to improperly influence governmental action."

It alleged $8.7 million in payments were made in Indonesia, Iran, the Philippines, Algeria, Nigeria, Mexico, Italy, Turkey and Chile among "numerous countries."

The payments "relate to contracts and transactions aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars which involve business operations of major subsidiaries of ITT, including its subsidiaries in Belgium and Germany," the complaint said. The charges cover the years 1970 through 1975.

ITT had fought release of the charges on grounds that they identify the nine specific countries and detail the alleged transactions. The Supreme Court on Monday refused to consider ITT's plea. U.S. District Judge George L. Hart then ordered the unsealing after listening to renewed arguments.

In a statement Monday, ITT insisted most of the payments were "consistent with the laws of their jurisdictions, but may have been applied in a manner contrary to current corporate policies." It said the questioned practices were stopped two years ago.

The statement called the amount involved immaterial "since it represents two-hundredths of one percent of sales of $50 billion during the period in question."

Dollar Still Gains Value

LONDON (AP) — The dollar put on more muscle on foreign exchanges today in continuing response to President Carter's rescue measures. The price of gold dropped.

The pound weakened in London to $1.9825, compared to $1.9860 Thursday, but was looking stronger against leading European currencies.

There was no trading in Tokyo because of a national holiday. But on Thursday the dollar closed at 186.025 yen, up from 178.80 Wednesday.

Early dollar rates in major European financial centers, compared to Thursday:

- Frankfurt — 1.8725 marks, up from 1.8705.
- Zurich — 1.6265 Swiss francs, up from 1.6000.
- Paris — 4.3075 French francs, up from 4.2700.
- Milan — 834.5 lire, up from 830.5.

Gold prices fell back in London to $219.55 per Troy ounce, compared to $221.75 Thursday. In Zurich, Europe's other major bullion market, the price was $220.00 an ounce, compared to $221.50 Thursday.

Despite the initial promising results of Carter's plan, world currency dealers are having second thoughts about the rescue moves.

"The measures were definitely a step in the right direction but I would still like to see some action on slowing inflation and reducing the U.S. trade deficit," a dealer in a Qaris bank said Thursday.

Terry Ellis, senior foreign exchange manager at London's National Westminster Bank, said, "The thing that's good about the Carter plan is that it is a package. But it is defensive, rather than offensive."

An American businessman in Tokyo said, "The dollar still has a long way to go before I can recoup my losses from the 30 percent decline of the dollar in the last 12 months."

The dollar's slump was caused largely by the United States buying much more abroad than it sells. The excess dollars piled up in foreign countries and drive down the value. Oil producers were hard hit because they trade in dollars. Some Arab diplomats welcomed Carter's moves, and there were predictions they might minimize or forestall an expected oil price increase by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Senate Panel To Be Briefed On Inflation Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's top inflation fighters are going before Congress for the first time to answer questions about the administration's plan to control rising wages and prices.

The Senate Banking Committee, taking testimony after newly announced sharp increases in wholesale prices, arranged to hear today from Alfred Kahn, the man tapped by Carter to take command of the anti-inflation effort.

Carter unveiled his anti-inflation program after the House and Senate adjourned for the year and most members of Congress were out of town. The Senate panel's hearing today was the first time a congressional committee has had an opportunity to review the plan.

While most of the program has already been put into effect, Carter will need congressional approval for his system of "real wage insurance." The president proposed tax rebates to protect workers who comply with the wage guidelines and would suffer economically if inflation exceeds 7 percent.

Besides Kahn, the witness list included Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability; Charles Schultze, the president's top economist, and representatives of big labor and big business.

It seemed likely Banking Committee members would use the opportunity for questioning the administration about steps announced this week to prop up the dollar in foreign markets as well as talking about inflation at home.

To fight inflation, Carter proposed a guideline of 7 percent in 1979 for increases in wages and fringe benefits, and laid out a complicated formula aimed at holding price increases to about 5.75 percent. The administration hopes its plan will cut inflation to between 6 percent and 6.5 percent.

Carter's plan for the dollar includes higher interest rates, the borrowing of $30 billion in foreign currencies to buy dollars abroad and an increase in U.S. gold sales.

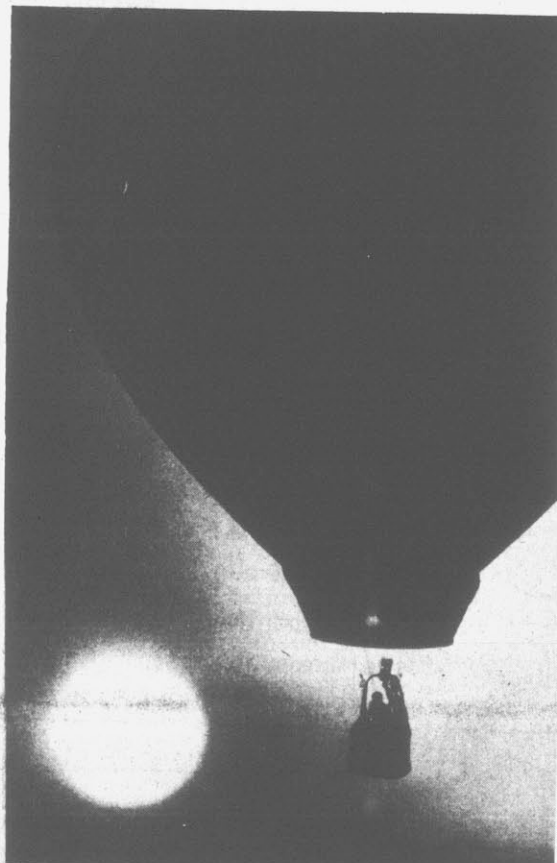

The government announced Thursday that wholesale prices rose 0.9 percent for October, an annual rate of over 10 percent. The increase was determined largely before the president announced his new inflation program last week.

County Board Agenda

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. in the Pitt County Court House.

Items on the agenda include consideration of bids for a tractor and backhoe, recommendations on bank bids for county accounts, consideration of an ordinance regulating parking for a juror parking lot, appointments to several boards and committees, as well as consideration of recommendations by the Planning Board of an ordinance regulating the term of office for board members and an ordinance regulating the size of lots for mobile homes.

Other items of business include consideration of a proposal for filling in a ditch between employee parking lots at Pitt Memorial Hospital, and a proposal from Greenville Cable TV for a franchise in the area around Greenville.

FILM SHOWINGS

I am taking a course at Pitt Technical Institute about cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, or CPR. I believe the portion we just went over would interest all eating establishments and fast food restaurants in the area. It was the Heimlich method or the hug of life. The Greenville Rescue Squad has a film by Dr. Heimlich which they will show and demonstrate at no extra charge. I feel the owners of these places should make watching this film and learning the method mandatory for their employees. S. H.

Hotline talked with Greenville Fire Department Assistant Chief of Rescue Tony Brannon, who says that the squad has shown the film, "How to Save a Choking Victim," to a few restaurants in the area, which explains the Heimlich maneuver. According to Brannon, the film runs about 18 minutes, with a demonstration following, given by squad members. The Greenville Rescue Squad will be happy to show the film to groups, but requests that two or three groups get together for the most efficiency. The Squad must have some notice in advance to plan the showings and demonstrations, Brannon said. Interested firms may call the Squad, 752-4090.

Symphony Ball Chairmen

N. C. SYMPHONY BALL — The 18th annual ball will be held Saturday, Nov. 18, at the North Ridge Country Club, Raleigh. Committee chairmen, from left, are Mrs. John W. Greene Sr., decorations, Grover Proctor, entertainment, Mrs. V. H. Creech Jr., statewide co-chairman for the ball, Mrs. Thomas Bradshaw, member of the dinner committee, and Mrs. A. C. Menius Jr., decorations. Bill Harrington Sr. and his orchestra will play for the ball. Governor and Mrs. James Hunt will host a reception at the Executive Mansion prior to the ball. Proceeds from the ball go to benefit the symphony's programs across the state.

Woman Sets Sights On Being Priest

BOSTON (AP) — The odds are against Margaret A. Donahue's becoming what she believes she has been called upon to be, but she says that won't stop her.

The 26-year-old Lynn, Mass., native wants to become a Catholic priest.

With help from the Catholic Women's Seminary Fund which awarded her its first scholarship, she is studying at St. John's Seminary as part of her full-time program at the Methodist-affiliated Boston University School of Theology. St. John's, in the city's Brighton section, is run by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston.

Deciding to go to the seminary was "a big step in faith because I wasn't sure of what God wanted," she said.

Her confidence in the decision grew through working as a hospital chaplain for three semesters, "enabling God to work through me to reach people whatever their needs might be," she said.

"If God wants me to be ordained, the only thing I can do is say I'll try."

And, she says St. John's educates her in her own Catholic tradition, something she misses at BU.

The Women's Seminary Fund, which awarded her $500, has asked Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, archbishop of Boston, to co-sponsor Ms. Donahue in her studies, according to the group's president, Alice Bender of Woodstock, Md.

Ms. Bender said the organization tried to encourage the Catholic Church to devote more of its resources to developing leadership roles for women, even if that did not lead directly to ordination.

Admitting a need to "prepare for some sort of alternate ministry," Ms. Donahue says she is taking courses at BU to enable her to teach at a seminary.

She had hoped to teach after graduating from Salem State College, but couldn't find a teaching position and took a job at the telephone company.

Her job was eliminated, though, and during the next year, which she decided to take off, Ms. Donahue says she had a "spiritual experience" that led her to do volunteer work in youth agencies.

"She's really going against the grain in wanting to be ordained," says the Rev. Stephen Wroblewski, a chaplain who supervised her when she worked at New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn.

But, he says, "she approaches her goals realistically, dealing with friends who don't expect women priests and developing skills she can use in different settings."

Cutting Down Fat? Read Cheese Labels

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you are trying to cut down on total fats in your diet, choose cheeses carefully, says Elaine Rose of Cornell University's Extension Service.

Cream cheese, for example, is one-third fat. Cottage cheese can contain as much as four percent milk or as little as one half of one percent. Read the label to find out which is which.

In general, says Ms. Rose, process cheese foods and cheese food spreads contain less fat than the natural cheeses they imitate. A process American cheese food has 23 percent fat, about seven percent less than natural cheddar.

She Moonlights In Chinese Cooking

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

My friend Margaret Spader has done as much as anyone in this country to introduce Americans to the delights of Chinese cooking. In 1960 she took a cooking course at New York City's China Institute and was so enthralled with it that she arranged some special sessions there for groups of food writers.

Through her collaboration with the instructors at the institute in writing recipes for Chinese dishes for Americans, and through her scripts for films demonstrating Chinese cooking methods, she interested people all over the country in this rewarding cuisine.

She has visited the Far East four times. And last summer a dream of hers came true — she spent several weeks in China. With her went her camera; she enjoys having color slides as records of her travels.

Margaret was born and brought up in Nebraska and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. She taught home economics in that state before coming to New York to work in the business field. She specializes in food-product information and consumer education, but her domain does not encompass Chinese cooking.

So she moonlights. She gives a "Beginning Chinese Cooking Class" one evening a week in her New York apartment. Last summer one of her pupils, particularly enthusiastic about Margaret's recipe for Spicy Beef, wrote about it for a magazine audience. That inspired me to try it and it was so much enjoyed at my house that I am happy to pass it along to still more cooks. It makes a pound of chuck beef go a long and savory way.

MARGARET SPADER'S CHINESE SPICY BEEF Sauce Mixture, see below
2 tablespoons peanut oil
2 scallions, cut in 1-inch lengths
1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger root
1 pound boneless chuck beef (3/4 to 1 inch thick), cut into 3/4 to 1-inch cubes
Have Sauce Mixture ready.

Preheat a wok (range-top or electric) to medium heat. Add the oil, scallion and ginger and with a spatula (plastic if wok is non-stick) toss for about 30 seconds. Add the beef and increase heat to high; with the spatula turn cubes until all their surfaces lose their red color. Stir in the Sauce Mixture; bring to a boil. Adjust heat so mixture simmers; cover and barely simmer until meat is tender — about 30 minutes. Uncover and increase heat to high; turn the meat over with a spatula until the sauce is very thick and sticky. Place cubes, well apart, on wax paper to cool; they will have a chewy, gumdrop-like texture. Serve with picks as an hors d'oeuvre or with rice as one of the courses in a Chinese-style meal. The number of servings will vary, depending on what is served with it and whether it is used as an hors d'oeuvre or as part of a meal.

Sauce Mixture: Stir together 1/4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons Japanese-style soy sauce, 1-3rd cup dry sherry or Chinese rice wine, 1 cup water, 1 whole star anise and 1/2 teaspoon dried red-pepper flakes, until sugar dissolves.

At our house, my husband's soliloquy usually begins at the breakfast table. "Did you read this story that says you are more likely to catch cold from shaking hands than from kissing?"

"I read it."

"Just listen to this. 'Government financed research by the Virginia School of Medicine indicates that the common route of infection is from the hands to the nose...'"

"I read it."

"...and eyes. It says the virus can survive up to..."

"I told you, I've read it."
"...three hours on the hands once it is transmitted by an intermediary surface such as — where are you going?"

"I do not like to be read to. How would you like it if you were reading Playboy and I was turning the pages?"

"It's not the same thing," he said. "You tend to skim and I want to make sure you get the total impact. I'll bet you raced right over the part about volunteers who were contaminated with rhinovirus..."

"I am a high school graduate," I said evenly, "and I read what interests me. Do you have any idea how frustrating it is to have someone read the comics to you? It's like listening to a magic act... on radio."

Minutes passed. Then, "State won by 16 points, but I suppose you want to read the story yourself."

"Why would I read it after you've just told me the scores?"

The listeners of this world can't win. They get a few words read over them when they are baptized, a few more when they get married, a few when they're buried, and every time this newspaper is delivered.

If there's anything worse than having my own column read out loud to me, I don't know what it is.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

This newspaper will be read out loud today by one half of every married couple in the United States.

The other half of every married couple in the United States would like to stuff this newspaper into every opening of their faces.

I call it the E. F. Hutton syndrome, where people assume from the moment they open their mouths to speak that everyone within a 90-mile radius is mesmerized and strains for every word.

To me, reading a newspaper should be as private as dyeing your roots, as privileged as a confession, as quiet as a dinner table when you ask, "Whose turn is it to do the dishes?"

At our house, my husband's soliloquy usually begins at the breakfast table. "Did you read this story that says you are more likely to catch cold from shaking hands than from kissing?"

Religion Is Deeds As Well As Words

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We don't go to church. Instead, my husband and I and our three children sit down to a hearty breakfast on Sunday morning and afterwards have a friendly discussion around the breakfast table.

We talk about school problems, family gripes and relations with relatives and friends. We support each other in overcoming bad habits and faults and come to an understanding about allowances, TV watching, homework and chores. Then we seek ways to improve family life and ways to contribute to our community and our nation.

We believe that God's spirit is within us (all) and that ours are helping hands which can be used to make this spirit evident here on earth.

Recently, some of the neighborhood children have been calling our children "atheists" because we don't go to church. They are shocked and upset and don't know what to answer. Do you in your wisdom have an appropriate answer?

AT A LOSS

DEAR AT: How is this: "We are NOT 'atheists.' We accept the existence and influence of God in our lives. But to us, God's spirit is within all of us, and we offer helping hands which can be used to make this spirit evident here on earth." (P.S. In my opinion, yours is a stronger religious commitment than many church-goers make. But that, too, is their business.)

DEAR ABBY: SHELDON'S WIFE couldn't understand why her husband came home with red smudges on his shirt and red hairs on his coat. Don't jump to conclusions, Abby. He may have been feeding strawberry jam to a cocker spaniel!

CHATTANOOGA DOG LOVER

DEAR LOVER: True. But there is always an outside chance that he had been feeding a line to a redhead.

DEAR ABBY: I have been invited to an evening wedding at 6 p.m. A friend of mine tells me that I must wear a long dress.

I do not own a long dress, and I have no intention of buying one. If I must buy one for this occasion, I cannot afford to buy a wedding gift.

Please tell me if you think I absolutely must get a long dress, or would a dressy short dress be acceptable?

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Wear what you have, and don't give it a second thought. What's a few inches of fabric more or less?

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

First Aid For Eye Injuries

By United Press International

First aid tips for eye emergencies from a copyrighted chart prepared for school children by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness:

—If a speck of wood is caught in the eye. "Wash hands. Lift upper eyelid out and down over the lower lid. Tears should wash out the speck. If not, bandage eye lightly. Get medical help."

—If a flying piece of metal cuts the eye or eyelid. "Bandage lightly. See nurse or doctor at once."

—If a piece of equipment causes a sudden blow to the eye. "Apply cold compresses for 15 minutes. Repeat each hour as needed."

—If alkalis or caustic soda gets into the eye. "Gently flood the eye with water for at least 15 minutes. Hold eyelids open during flooding."

—If sand or dust gets into the eye. "Wash hands. Lift upper eyelid out and down over the lower lid. Tears should wash out the sand or dust. If not, bandage eye lightly. Get medical help."

—If chemical irritants accidentally are rubbed into the eye. "Gently flood the eye with water for at least 15 minutes. Hold eyelids open during flooding."

—If a blow causes a black eye. "Apply cold compresses and see a nurse or doctor as quickly as possible."

In all cases of eye damage from chemical burns or irritants, do not use an eye cup and do not bandage, the Society warns.

For all cuts and punctures of eye or eyelid, bandage lightly and see a doctor at once. Do not wash out eye with water. And do not try to remove an object stuck in the eye.

If you are prepared for the worst, you will often find that nothing more is needed to overcome the perils of distribution than careful technique. Consider this hand.

North-South conducted an excellent auction to get a sound six spade contract. After South jumped to three spades, North's hand became very powerful despite its flat distribution — every card was pulling its full weight. However, North could not drive to slam unilaterally, for South might only have been offering a choice of game contracts. So North indicated his willingness to play a spade slam by cue-bidding his ace of clubs. When South showed that he, too, was interested in bigger things by bidding over game in spades, North went right to slam.

West led the king of hearts, and when dummy came down, South was mildly disappointed that he was not in a grand slam. However, the picture changed when, after winning the ace of hearts, declarer cashed the king and queen of spades and West showed out. East had a sure trump trick, and declarer still had to worry about his fourth club.

Declarer had to be careful lest East could ruff a high club and draw dummy's last trump, thus stranding declarer with a club loser. However, careful play neutralized that threat.

Declarer cashed the ace of clubs and led a club towards his hand. Since it would not have helped East to ruff with his trump trick (declarer would follow with his losing club), he sluffed a diamond and the queen of clubs won.

After crossing back to dummy with the king of diamonds, declarer led another club. East parted with his last diamond and declarer won the king of clubs. Now he led his remaining club and ruffed with dummy's last trump.

East was helpless. Declarer and dummy had nothing left but winners except for a trump. East could score his trump trick whenever it pleased him, but that was the only trick for the defense.

Tentative Trial Date Set For Dumping Of Toxic Chemical

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A tentative trial date of Jan. 22 was set for three Jamestown, N.Y. men charged with violating a federal law in connection with the dumping of a toxic chemical along North Carolina highways.

Robert Burns, 49, and his son Timothy, 23, and Randall, 20, pleaded innocent to eight counts each of violating the federal Toxic Substances Control Act. The bond in the federal cases was set at $5,000 each.

Burns, owner of Transformer Sales Inc. of Jamestown, N.Y., and his sons are accused of dumping thousands of gallons of oil laced with polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCBs, along the shoulders of highways in 10 North Carolina counties during July and August. The chemical has been linked to cancer in laboratory animals and severe health effects in humans.

The three also were arrested Thursday on charges in a seven-count indictment returned in Halifax County.

Superior Court Judge Edwin S. Preston Jr. set bond at $10,000 each, despite pleas by defense attorney Joseph B. Cheshire V that bond be set at $5,000. The judge followed the recommendation of a special prosecutor from the state attorney general's office, Don Stevens, that a $100,000 bond previously set in Halifax County be reduced to $10,000.

The men were scheduled to enter their pleas Nov. 22 on the state charges.

The bonds on all charges total $45,000 and were paid Thursday.

State investigators say they linked the Burnses with the spills when about 27,000 gallons of PCBs they say belonged to the transformer company were discovered in a warehouse in Warren County, Pa.

Each count of violating the federal law carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $25,000 fine.

Although free on bond, the three face travel restrictions.

Repair Bill Backfired

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A woman who was told it would cost $30 to fix her car was handed a bill for $98.08. She paid it under protest, turned around and successfully sued the garage for $650.

Barbara Bates, a high school counselor, said she took her 1970 foreign-made car to International Motor Cars Ltd. after water started gushing from beneath the hood last month.

She said a mechanic told her it would cost $30 to fix a split radiator hose. When she returned the bill was $98.08. The mechanic said he discovered the auto needed a new thermostat, too.

Miss Bates said she hadn't authorized the work. The manager refused to release the car unless she paid.

The manager also suggested Miss Bates see a lawyer. That wasn't hard, since her roommate is an attorney. Miss Bates sued the garage in small claims court — for the difference in her bill, court costs and $530 in attorney fees.

County Judge Howard Whittington ruled that the garage had violated the Florida Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Law and ordered it to pay Miss Bates $652.18.

Avoid Problems

ECU News Bureau
 ECU officials encourage use of free shuttle buses to and from Ficklen Stadium for the ECU-Appalachian State football game Saturday night.

Buses will leave at 10 minute intervals from the Willis Building, First and Read Streets, beginning at 5 p.m. and at 15 minute intervals from the stadium after the game. Kickoff is at 7:00 p.m.

It is hoped that many fans will avoid traffic and parking problems in the stadium area by using the free shuttle buses.

The senior Burns surrendered his passport and all three are limited to travel in the Western District of New York and the Eastern District of North Carolina.

PCBs are used mainly as a heat retardant in electrical transformers. State officials have said the chemical along the highways posed no immediate threat to human health, although they recommended that some crops be destroyed.

State officials estimate that it will cost more than $2 million to remove the 52,500 tons of contaminated soil. No permanent site for disposal has been determined, and the dirt remains along the roads under a layer of emulsified asphalt.

A Community College Status?

One of the matters which will face Pitt County voters when they go to the polls on Nov. 7 will be the issue of community college status for Pitt Technical Institute.

While the vote will not be binding it will furnish the guidance to Pitt County commissioners in determining their action on this matter.

Community college status for Pitt Tech has long been an issue in our county. The most prevalent argument against it seems to be a concern that providing of two years college level training might cause a deemphasis of vocational and technical training.

If that were to be the case, there would be reason to oppose community college status. Actually, however, the reverse seems to be true.

A community college and technical institute is an institution that young people—or those of any age—can attend and seek a number of avenues of training. Often students change direction and Pitt Tech reports that more than half of the students who take the college parallel program move to vocational and technical programs.

So actually students attending Pitt Tech need as wide a variety of programs as possible to give them many choices.

Those who stay in the college program will have two years of college training and a certificate when they complete it, along with the opportunity to transfer to senior colleges and universities.

We are convinced that community college status won't harm the vocational and technical programs at Pitt Tech, and in fact, will increase the attractiveness of these programs.

Learning institutions should grow and change to meet the needs of the public. The growth process has brought Pitt Tech to the point where community college status is essential if it is to meet our needs.

We heartily recommend a vote in favor of community college status.

Pendulum Swings Again

By BILL NOBLITT

Too Easy

Getting somebody into a mental hospital was pretty easy: get a magistrate and any doctor to sign some papers, and get the sheriff to haul them away.

By some descriptions, that is a reasonably accurate portrayal of how some of the system worked at some times in the past.

The pendulum raced across. Law now requires a day in court with a defending attorney for any person being involuntarily committed. For those who enter voluntarily, the door is open to leave at any time. Further, communities are supposed to provide alternative programs locally. Funds, however, are often short.

Most importantly, before an individual could be committed against his will, it had to be proven in court that he was actually dangerous to himself or to others.

The warehousing stopped. Hospital population declined sharply. There was a minor problem. Deputies spent a lot of time shuttling back and forth from the hospitals to the local courts. The law was modified to allow a judge to go to the hospital for the proceeding.

As months have gone by, other more serious problems have become apparent, and now the Mental Health Study Commission of the General Assembly is getting an earful from the public, relatives of the mentally ill, hospital staff and other mental health people, and social workers.

someone else—are turned out on the streets.

Individuals not guilty of a crime and often not in condition to understand what is happening are subjected to trial-like legal proceedings, and both relatives and mental health or social services specialists are spending an inordinate amount of time involved in court proceedings.

Legal mumbo-jumbo has replaced what might well have been psychiatric mumbo-jumbo.

The net result, at any rate, is that one professional competency system (mental health) has been pre-empted by another (legal), and complaints are numerous that people in need of treatment quite often are not getting it.

Complicate matters with shortage of local funds to provide community alternatives, and with relatives who don't know how to cope with the situation, and it is clear that the pendulum swings again.

Action will be sought in the 1979 General Assembly. How far and in which direction will the pendulum move this time?

BILL NOBLITT

Here is a description. The mental hospitals have become revolving doors. Those who enter voluntarily traipse in and out with no time to diagnose or treat them. Those committed involuntarily are in and out depending on the legal proceedings.

The Liberated Woman

WASHINGTON—This is the story of a liberated woman who is sorry she became liberated. Her name for this article will be Ghiselda Manifesto.

She is a friend of mine and as far as I know she is as happily married as most people are these days. She doesn't have to work but decided that when her children went off into the world to find themselves she would get her degree and become a lawyer.

She did. She was accepted by a law firm and is now working for Blah, Blah, Objection & Sustained.

I saw her the other day at lunch.

"How's your tennis?" I asked her.

"I don't have time for tennis any more. In fact I don't seem to have time for anything."

"But you loved tennis," I said.

"I loved drinking coffee and watching soap operas, too. But now that I'm a liberated woman I can't do that either."

"I don't understand it. It seems like only yesterday you were telling me how wonderful it would be to get out in the give-and-take of the real world. You dreamed of becoming a lawyer and being somebody in your own right."

"Yes," she said, "but I didn't think it would mean giving up the King Tut exhibit at the National Gallery."

"You missed the King Tut exhibit?" I tried to keep the shock out of my voice.

ART BUCHWALD

"I was in court every day trying to keep the FCC from taking a radio station away from somebody in Hoboken, N.J."

"I guess the thrill of being a lawyer wears off very fast. Do you know what my dream in life is now that I'm a liberated woman?" she asked.

"I can't guess."

"To see a matinee of 'Hello Dolly' with Carol Channing."

"Why can't you go in the evening to see it with Charlie? Is he too tired?"

"I'm too tired. When I get home I just want to sit in a chair and drink a glass of white wine and watch the evening news."

"Why can't you?"

"I have to do the shopping at the supermarket on my way home, and then make dinner, and then do the dishes and clean up the house. I may be a liberated woman to the world, but I'm still 'good old Ghiselda' to Charlie, 'the best little woman a man could have.'"

"But isn't Charlie proud of the fact that you're a lawyer and a person in your own right?"

"Oh sure. He tells everyone: 'Meet my wife, she's a lawyer and makes $40,000 a year and she still has time to cook, clean, do exercises, take vitamins and Geritol every day.' Then he kisses me on the cheek and says just as they do in the commercials, 'My wife, I think I'll keep her.'"

"That's tender," I said.

"You want to hear of another fantasy I have?" she said.

"Sure."

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Last Symbolic Hope

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

EVANSTON, Ill.—Democratic Rep. Abner Mikva, whose possible defeat represents a last symbolic Republican hope in a disappointing national campaign, abruptly changed the subject from economics to gun control a week before the election.

Addressing students at Evanston Township High School, Mikva pulled from his pocket a National Rifle Assn. (NRA) letter attacking him as "the foremost anti-gun spokesman in the House" and calling Republican John Porter "immensely preferable." In Chicago's North Shore suburban district, a candidate with the NRA as a friend needs no enemies. Asked by newsmen about it later that day, state Rep. Porter protested that his position on handguns is identical to Mikva's.

To political insiders, Mikva's sudden recourse to gun control was a distress signal. In rising from a 16 percentage point deficit to a virtual dead heat, Porter has exploited his own support for tax reduction and Mikva's liberal spending record. Reversing the traditional pattern, pocketbook issues were running so decidedly in the Republican's favor that the Democrat felt compelled to switch to social issues.

This lavishly financed race represents what Republican strategists had hoped would be the national pattern. But the single act of defeating Mikva, the most effective, influential liberal in the House, would partly compensate for dreary Republican showings elsewhere. "Beating Ab Mikva would give us at least

Other Editors Say To Unveil Inequity

(Jacksonville Daily News)

It is apparent that there is widespread dissatisfaction with not only the implementation but also the idea of competency testing, and we confess to some mystification as to why.

The correctness of testing high school students to determine whether or not they've learned enough in 12 years to function in our society seems crystal clear in its rightness.

The appearance of Governor Hunt on the Public Broadcasting System Thursday night, and the questions generated from Tarheel residents by that appearance, indicates intense interest in the tests.

We're of the opinion that the testing will serve at least a two-fold purpose, from which all sorts of valuable information should be gained. In the first place, it will tell us how much the students are learning. And in the second place, it will tell us how well the teachers are teaching. And frankly, at this point it's difficult to determine which is most important.

The results, in other words, should provide some measure of just how effectively all those tax dollars are being spent and perhaps will give some clues as to how they may be better spent.

The dissatisfaction of which we speak, registered in protest marches and angry diatribes in Raleigh and some other North Carolina cities, focus primarily on the fact that the tests might be unfair to minorities and the poor.

We disagree. While they may initially be unfair, the ultimate result should be a strengthening of the opportunities afforded to those groups through improvement of the system.

If minorities and the poor are being shortchanged by the system of education as it is now set up, any corrective measures taken prior to administration of the tests would be a waste of time and money. The tests should reveal, more glaringly than at any time in the past, those inequities. We look forward to the results.

H. P. Tucker, farmer, who lives east of Winterville, is making quite a record as a sweet potato grower.

Tucker brought in several unusually large potatoes to Greenville this week and left them on display in the window of "The Daily Reflector". The potatoes weighed up to eight pounds, 14 ounces.

Syphilis accounted for almost one-fourth of all communicable diseases reported in North Carolina during the calendar year 1937, according to Bulletin No. 6 of the N. C. something this year," a national Republican leader told us.

Accordingly, organized labor and big business have opened their warchests for Mikva and Porter. Jimmy Carter and Jack Kemp scheduled late visits especially for this contest (following Walter Mondale, John Rhodes, Gerald Ford and Edward M. Kennedy). Henry Fonda left Broadway to tape a Mikva television spot. No other House race gets such attention.

The reason is Mikva. Of 1977 test votes selected by the Americans for Democratic Action on which Mikva actually voted, he was 17 for 17 on the liberal side. Nobody else with that record could dream of surviving in this swing district. The perception of four-term Rep. Mikva as an exceptional man of character carried him to narrow wins in 1974 and 1976 (after losing in 1972) against Rep. Samuel Young and nurtured hopes of an easier win against the lesser-known Porter.

But Mikva this year pooh-poohed the force of the tax revolt. On the House Ways and Means Committee, he dug in against tax relief for the middle-to-upper income

The Christian doctrine of vocation is the Biblical teaching that men and women find their salvation amid the surroundings in which they happen to live.

The way people make their living is not an external thing unattached to religious experience, which is supposed to take place only in quiet sanctuaries or in hours of meditation and devotion. The Endangered Check Program

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

DALLAS (AP)—"They'll have to tear the dam down," said the attorney. "This case is like the snail darter."

His comparison was to a famous environmental decision in which a judge ruled a tiny fish should be permitted to survive at the expense of a multimillion dollar dam.

The endangered specie, said William Prather, legal counsel for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, is the free checking account.

Judge Oliver Gasch ruled Tuesday that it is permissible for money to be transferred from savings to cover checks, which means interest-bearing checking accounts are effectively here.

His ruling came during the league's annual meeting here, and officials say it will be appealed.

The league, whose 4,000 members are limited to offering savings accounts and lending for homes, sought to bar commercial banks from offering interest on checking accounts.

"The law says that by no device whatsoever can they do so," said Prather. The Federal Reserve, which regulates commercial banks, had no authority to permit the move, he said.

Robert McKinney, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, agreed when the Federal Reserve announced plans to consider the move last winter.

And so we have two financial regulatory agencies seeking to counter each other—the Fed in an effort to protect commercial banks, the bank board to protect savings and loans.

The banks resent attempts by S&Ls to obtain checking accounts. The S&Ls resent efforts by commercial banks to eliminate the one-quarter point interest rate advantage enjoyed by the S&Ls.

S&Ls, or thrift institutions as they are called, have a commitment to housing. They must lend most of their funds. In return, they are allowed to offer a slightly higher interest rate on passbook savings, the purpose being to assure them of funds to lend.

The commercial banks, however, have observed that S&Ls are maneuvering to get checking accounts. Big as they are, the banks don't think that's fair.

And so their regulator, the Fed, came up with the idea of covering checks by permitting money to be withdrawn from the same person's savings accounts in the same bank, in effect, paying interest on checking.

The league fears that, put at a competitive disadvantage, its members' customers will withdraw from their savings accounts to take advantage of the allegedly free services.

Its members warn of higher mortgage rates if S&Ls have too little funds to lend and have to charge more for whatever they do lend.

Disagrees On Helms' Assessment Of Hunt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The chairman of the state's Republican Party says he doesn't think much of Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' friendly assessment of Democrat Gov. Jim Hunt's performance.

And Jack Lee, the chairman, says that right after Tuesday's election, he'll start recruiting GOP candidates for 1980 for all races.

Helms has been widely quoted recently saying that his political thinking wasn't so far from Hunt's and that Hunt has been an effective governor. Helms also said Hunt would be supporting him if he were a Democrat, a statement that Hunt didn't much care for.

But Lee said Thursday he doesn't particularly agree with Helms' assessment of the governor. "I've got to disagree with my friend, the senator, on that," he said. "There are more state personnel now and the budget is bigger."

Lee was asked whether he felt Helms had been trying to wrap himself in the Democratic banner in his re-election campaign.

"I think he's been running a campaign that you have to run in this state," he said. "We're outregistered three to one. He hasn't really turned up his nose at any Republican. But he's running his own campaign."

Lee also said he'll start trying to find Republican candidates for 1980, especially on the legislative level. "And we'll have a full ticket on the Council of State," he said. "I'm sure we'll have some good candidates for governor."

Lee declined to comment on who the gubernatorial candidates might be.

Lee also charged that Democratic senate candidate John Ingram has a miserable

Composers Win Accord

NEW YORK (AP) - Marvin Hamlisch will take the money and run, and Henry Mancini will be enjoying the days of wine and roses if they and 63 other composers come out on the long side of a settlement in a $300 million class-action lawsuit.

It was announced Thursday that the 6½-year-old suit, which had sought damages for alleged conspiracies designed to restrain trade and deprive the music writers of copyright, will be settled out of court.

The composers also charged major motion picture producers and distributors and two television networks with monopolizing the U.S. market for publication of movie and television music.

The suit was filed by Mancini, who wrote "The Days of Wine and Roses," Hamlisch, who composed the music for the film "Take the Money and Run," and 63 other composers and lyricists on behalf of 400 to 1,000 colleagues.

Terms of the out-of-court agreement are expected to be submitted to U.S. District Judge Charles L. Briaent next month.

record as insurance commissioner, losing most rate reduction cases in court and flubbing a chance to cut property insurance rates by $16 million.

He said the court has decided against Ingram's decisions on rate cases in 35 out of 37 appeals. On the property matter, Lee said the insurance industry applied early in 1973 for a rate reduction for extended coverage property insurance, but Ingram said he was too busy to hold a hearing.

Deputy Insurance Commissioner Roy H. Rabon said Lee's interpretation of Ingram's record was misleading.

now opposes the neutron warhead. Porter is one of the few Republican candidates who made defense even a tangential issue.

Speaking recently to the Wilmette Rotary Club, Mikva preached fiscal conservatism. He called lower capital gains taxes "something I could support," called for getting "the handle on federal spending" and quoted the late Paul Douglas as saying, "You don't have to be a wastrel to be a liberal."

The polls say it isn't working. Porter's one-to-three point lead is less important than the trend in his direction. So, Mikva now contends that Porter is abandoning past liberal positions on abortion, ERA - and the gun issue. In a district where street crime is not a principal concern and hunting is not a principal pastime, Mikva brought up gun control.

At a recent taped interview at NBC in Chicago, Porter reaffirmed his anti-handguns position. After the taping, an obviously distressed television technician told him he is participating in an NRA phone bank against Mikva. Now he wondered if this could do any good with Porter also against handguns. "I'm afraid that's the way it is," Porter replied.

With district polls showing 80 percent support for gun controls, Porter was rejecting special interest backing usually irresistible for Republicans in favor of broader support on overriding economic questions.

This race, at least, will measure the tax revolt's political impact.

Every individual needs representation (a person) to whom they can carry their thoughts, to whom they can talk, who will listen to them, who will understand and share their concerns. There is no problem too small or too large that should not be considered. These various needs should be met with a pleasant attitude toward a rightful solution. Please feel free to write me or contact me.

My employment was in public service and I have always been active in any activity for the good of our Community, County, and State. I am an active member of the Baptist Church, teach the Sunday School Class in the Tarboro Convalescent Center on Sunday Morning and am a Cubmaster. (A recipient of Scouting's Beaver Award.) I am on the Senior Citizen Advisory Council.

I'm a resident of Edgecombe County but attended Elementary School in Martin County and Junior High School in Halifax County; married the former Miss Ruth Wooten, daughter of the late Mr. John Henry Wooten and Sudie Cunningham Wooten, Route 1, Ayden, North Carolina (Pitt County); three children, George Alton Grayiel, Jr., Postal employee, Gwenda Sue Grayiel, Tarboro Recreation employee, Mrs. Brenda G. Marks, a two year student at East Carolina University, a graduate L.P.N. from Edgecombe County Technical Institute working toward her R.N.; a twin brother, Joe Grayiel.

George Alton Grayiel is interested in our Tax Dollar as to where it is being used and if it is being used to the best value of the North Carolina State Tax Paying Person. I ask your support and your votes.

Thanking you,
George Alton Grayiel

November General Election

Vote Against Waste, Duplication Save Pitt Tech

Those favoring the proposed Community College say this won't cost anything.

NOT SO! It will increase our county and state taxes. The only other choice is to use money earmarked for the public schools. That is, take money away from the schools to support the Community College. New programs and duplication are not free!

Those favoring the proposed Community College say the present PTI technical and vocational programs won't be affected.

NOT SO! The proposed Community College will clearly use space and divert teaching and staff resources—and money—from other programs.

Those favoring the proposed Community College claim a major educational need is not being met.

Again, NOT SO! We are privileged to have a major public university in Pitt County. E.C.U. is an ongoing $100 million investment in a wide range of educational programs available to all of the people. It offers special programs which the proposed Community College would only duplicate. These special E.C.U. programs have the same entrance requirements as those proposed for a community college.

Don't risk wasting money needed for our public schools.

Don't duplicate existing college programs.

Don't weaken our valuable technical and vocational programs.

VOTE AGAINST converting our Technical Institute into a college.

Host Band Day

Twenty bands from across Virginia and North Carolina will compete Saturday, Nov. 4, at Ficklen Stadium, according to Dennis Reaser, band director of East Carolina University's Marching Pirates.

Competition will begin at 12:20 p.m. and continue to approximately 4 p.m., according to Reaser. The Marching Pirates will give a demonstration at the end of the competition.

The second place winner will perform in the pre-game show between ECU and Appalachian State University tomorrow night. The first place band will perform at the half time, said Reaser.

The public is invited to view the competition tomorrow afternoon, said Reaser and admission is free for the competition.

Church To Observe 99th Anniversary

Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church will observe its 99th anniversary Saturday and Sunday.

The celebration will begin Saturday evening at 7:30 when the choirs of the church and visiting choirs will be in concert. The Frazier Family of Havelock and the Gospelaires of Greenville will be participating. The concert will follow a candlelight ceremony which will open the program.

The 50-year members of the church will be honored Sunday during the worship service. A historical presentation "Cornerstone Over The Years" will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. The presentation will be directed by Mrs. Erma Carr and the church young people will give a playlette "The True Givers," directed by Mrs. Christine Jetter. The Rev. Farney Moore is anniversary chairman and Douglas Barnhill and Edward Carter are co-chairmen.

The Rev. O'Kelly Lawson, pastor, invites the public to attend.

The Pastor's Aide Club will meet immediately after morning services Sunday in the Educational Department of the church to give away food baskets.

To Be Speaker On Youth Day

Bishop W. L. Jones announces the Rev. Anthony Westly will be Youth Day Speaker Sunday, Nov. 5, 11 a.m., at Mt. Calvary F. W. B. Church. Music will be provided by the Junior Choir. The public is invited to attend.

The Pastor's Aide Club will meet immediately after morning services Sunday in the Educational Department of the church to give away food baskets.

Eldress Brown Will Preach

Eldress Louise Brown will preach Sunday, 11 a.m., at Oak Grove Church, accompanied by the Brown Singers.

A gospel program will be held Sunday, 7 p.m., at the church, featuring several singing groups. Bishop Lucille Chance, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Piano-Organ Concert Sunday

Larry Jones, organist, and Donald Waters, pianist, will be in concert Sunday night at the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

The services will start at 7:30 and the public is invited to attend. The church is located on 264 By-pass.

Promotion For JROTC Cadet

Major Jeff Worthington of the D. H. Conley JROTC unit has been promoted to Battalion Executive Officer.

His new duties include assisting the Battalion Commander and dealing with all JROTC administration. Worthington was formerly rated Battalion S3.

Date Corrected PTL Unable To Meet Payroll

A resolution correcting the date of adoption of the bond order authorizing $1.9 million Public Works facility bonds was passed Thursday night by the City Council.

The Council, meeting in a brief special call meeting, corrected the adoption date on the bond order to read Sept. 7 rather than Aug. 24.

The formality, necessary in order to correct the date error made by the city's bonding attorneys in New York, puts the issue in order for Tuesday's special bond referendum.

The resolution was the only item considered during the call session at city hall.

Leaf Prices Said Steady

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Nearly 800 employees of the PTL evangelical television network won't get paid today, PTL president Jim Bakker said Thursday.

"There's just no money in the bank to clear the tremendous payroll we have to make," Bakker said during the PTL show Thursday.

Friday is normally payday at the network, and the employees were notified by a memo after Bakker made the statement on the air.

"We are doing all within our power to have payroll by Monday," Bakker said.

The network, which syndicates religious television shows, has run into financial problems in recent months, reportedly due to Bakker's new construction projects for the network.

Minor Damage In Dorm Fire

FARMVILLE — According to Louis N. Williams, sales supervisor, Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade, prices have remained steady in Farmville since Monday on practically all grades.

Minor damage resulted this morning from a fire in Jones Dorm room 144 on the East Carolina University campus.

Greenville Fire Department officials said occupants of the room apparently left a hot plate on. Heat from the unit caught a shelf and cabinets in the room on fire.

The blaze was reported at 7:53 a.m.

Thursday's offerings consisted of mainly low grade primings and nondescript grades, according to Williams. Volume of leaf grades has shown a gradual decline in the last several days, Williams noted.

Stabilization receipts accounted for 5.24 percent of gross sales. The Farmville Market sold 270,391 pounds Thursday for $336,434, an average of $124.43 per 100 pounds. To date, the Farmville market has sold 34,205,138 pounds for $47,173,399, an average of $137.91.

Find Drugs In His Car

Edwin Roosevelt Staton, 25 of Farmville, was charged with possession of marijuana and heroin, possession of syringes, careless and reckless driving, speeding and failing to stop for a blue light and siren in connection with a 12:05 p.m. incident here yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers spotted the Staton car on Memorial Drive and stopped the vehicle on Martin Street, where they allegedly found marijuana, heroin and syringes on the front seat of the auto.

A passenger in the car jumped and ran when the car stopped, the chief noted.

Staton was placed under a $2,000 bond pending a hearing of the case in District Court.

JESSE HELMS' RECORD against SOCIAL SECURITY/SENIOR CITIZENS

A man who has found no problem collecting over $6 million dollars for his re-election bid, much of it from out-of-state oil companies, turned his back on the elderly of this nation and of North Carolina when many of them could not afford fuel or food to live on due to high inflation.

An amendment was made to the 1973 Debt Limit Extension Bill (HR8410) that put a much-needed coat of living increase in Social Security benefits that would have gone into effect in 1975. It was to provide for about a 5.8 percent across the board increase in benefits.

This bill passed 86 to 7. All Democrats voted for it, and so did 33 of 40 Republicans.

Jesse Helms voted NO.

Jesse Helms has voted against every Social Security increase to come before the U.S. Senate during his term.

John Ingram will listen to the people of North Carolina, not the oil companies of Texas and California, when votes on Social Security come before him as your next Senator.

Speaker At Church Marking Its 178th Year

The Rev. Charles Michael Smith, founder of Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, will be the guest speaker at homecoming services at the church this Sunday, 11 a.m.

REV. CHARLES M. SMITH

The Rev. Smith, a native of Washington, graduated from the Washington high school and received his bachelor and master of divinity degrees from Duke University. Smith has served various churches in eastern North Carolina and Scotland. He was associate minister at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Greenville, from 1971-74, and minister at Holy Trinity prior to that time. The Rev. Smith, who is married and has two children, has established himself as a soloist at Duke University.

The public is invited to attend the services, with dinner on the grounds afterwards. The church is located at 1400 Red Banks Road.

WINTERVILLE — The 178th anniversary of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, located near here, will be celebrated Sunday.

The celebration will begin with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. followed by morning worship at 11 o'clock and lunch at noon. The choir and singers of the church will present an old time song fest beginning at 1:15. The morning sermon will be presented by the Rev. Willis W. Wilson, who has been minister of the church for 15 years. The choir is directed by Blaine Moyer while Tommy Manning is organist and Mrs. Lou Nanney, pianist.

The church has undergone numerous changes since its origin including new additions and remodeling. The church facility includes 12 Sunday School rooms, church parlor suitable for small weddings and receptions and a new building which includes a kitchen and has an area for basketball, shuffleboard, volley ball and other activities. A concert organ was given to the church this year by W.M. Scales Jr. of Greenville in honor his of his wife, Virginia Gaylord Scales.

Walk A Mile In His Shoes

They say you don't really know a man until you've walked a mile in his shoes. Maybe it's impossible to know our own children because we can't fit into their shoes. Our sons and daughters at every level of growth have needs which depend for fulfillment on our awareness. One of these is their need for early and continuing religious education. The Church is your ally in providing your youngsters moral and spiritual training. The initiative must come from you. And the example. But the Church's educational program can be a decisive factor in fashioning your child's future.

Bring your child to church this Sunday!

Unusual Car Accident Can Be Avoided

A patient, badly banged up in an automobile accident, was brought to the emergency room of our hospital. Fortunately, she and the other survivors of the three-car crash were not critically injured.

Such injuries occur thousands of times a year. What impressed me particularly was the strange way in which this accident occurred.

It deserves to be brought to the attention of my readers, with the hope that the knowledge of such a possibility will help to avoid accidents of this kind.

On the floor of the car there was a plastic tray designed to hold two plastic cups. (This, incidentally, is not standard equipment on any car.) While making a turn, one of the cups bounced out of its position in the tray and rolled under the brake pedal. The driver of the car, unable to exert pressure on the brake, tried desperately to control the car. This was impossible. She crashed into the two cars ahead of her and caused an enormous amount of damage to all three cars. That their lives were saved is the only happy part of this story.

Somehow, I had never before heard of this particular kind of "avoidable" accident. I was more than surprised, therefore, when I learned that other people had experienced variations of this.

One woman told me that a grapefruit had bounced out of her grocery bag and had rolled under the brake pedal. She barely got away without an accident. Another man told me that his small puppy had jumped off the seat and had lodged himself beneath the brake pedal.

I emphasize these potentials for danger because it is easier to prevent a fractured rib than it is to heal one.

Too often the erratic mental behavior of elderly people is casually dismissed with the implication that they are "just senile."

A recent conference, sponsored by the National Institute on Aging, devoted itself to the concept that not all elderly people with apparent brain dysfunction are senile. Yet a tendency to make this assumption is cheating about 300,000 people out of the care that would restore them to useful lives.

It is surprising how many of the mental disorders affecting elderly persons can be attributed to medical conditions. Dr. Richard W. Besdine, of the Harvard Medical School, said at the meeting that hardly a week goes by that he doesn't see a patient (elderly and so-called "senile") who can't be treated medically in one way or another. Only by careful examination can there be revealed some of the medical conditions that present themselves as "mental disturbances." The elderly deserve to be carefully studied before they are arbitrarily condemned with the label of "senility."

Ehrlichman To Be Wed Again

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman will wed the daughter of a Raleigh woman, the bride-to-be told a Raleigh newspaper Thursday.

And a reception is reported to be planned in a New York ice cream parlor.

Christy Peacock McLaurine, daughter of Robin Peacock of Raleigh, would not say when or where the wedding will take place.

"We are going to be married," Mrs. McLaurine told The News and Observer of Raleigh in a telephone interview from her New York home Thursday night. "We want a very private situation."

Ehrlichman could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Several sources told newspaper that Ehrlichman, 53, and Mrs. McLaurine, 30, will marry Friday in New York.

It was also reported separately that the wedding reception will be held at a Baskin-Robbins ice cream parlor in New York. The wife of the store's owner is said to have been a classmate of Mrs. McLaurine's at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. The report said the reception is a wedding present for the couple and will feature a three-layer ice cream cake.

Mrs. Peacock, head of adoption services for the North Carolina declined to comment on her daughter's wedding plans.

Mrs. McLaurine is a 1966 graduate of Goldsboro High School and has a degree in interior design from UNC-G. She lived in Greensboro and Chapel Hill before moving to New York two years ago.

She said she met Ehrlichman in Walter's Wicker Inc., the design showroom where she works.

Ehrlichman, who spent 18 months in prison for his part in the Watergate scandal, lives in Santa Fe, N.M. He divorced his wife of 29 years last month. Mrs. McLaurine also is divorced. She has a 3-year-old son.

The newspaper said in Friday's editions that Ehrlichman visited Raleigh recently. Asked whether the couple might visit Raleigh on their honeymoon, Mrs. McLaurine said, "We haven't planned one at all."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOV. 4, 1978:

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Organize your day on a more solid structure for you find that an older and more experienced person then becomes aware of your deep-seated needs and will work along, helping you to get them with less effort. Use your cleverness to advance goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Gain the favor of bigwigs by showing your finest talents. Give support to conscientious official. Take no chances with reputation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put that plan across through which you can expand and make a brighter future. Make new contacts who can be of assistance to you. Don't neglect necessary shopping.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to organize your living better so that you have more leisure time and gain greater profits in the future. Don't be extravagant.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A partner could seem cold to you but is actually too busy with an important plan, so be patient and all works out fine.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can now handle work that you have no time for during the week. Explain what you want to do with co-workers and gain their intelligent cooperation.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You need to relax from the tenseness of your particular work, so get into recreational activities you enjoy. Buy a gift for a loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study the situation at home and know how best to improve it. Entertain at home but avoid inviting a party bore.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to see those persons for whom you have little time during the week. Talk over mutual problems and come up with right answers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your monetary situation well and know how best to improve it. Plans necessary repairs to property and get right estimates.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Pursue anything of a personal nature today and get good results. Good day for sociability, too. Take no risks with health.

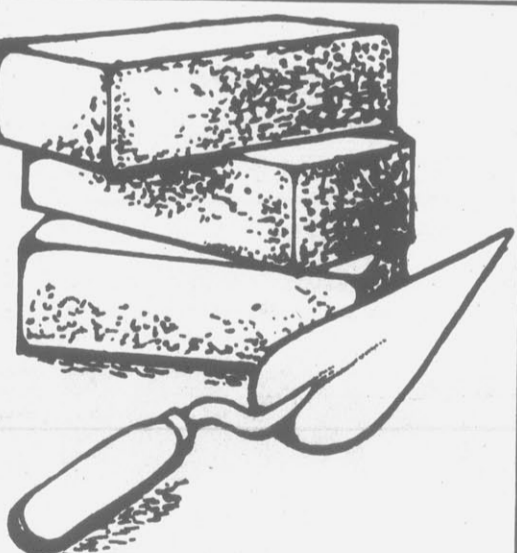

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get down to practical affairs now and make big headway, become more successful. You are able to understand loyal admirers, others you know.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Know which pals you can count on to be of assistance to your career and contact them. Get advice you need on personal problems.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be of a most practical nature and should be given a chance to work with the hands early in life. Teach early not to be such a disciplinarian, but to discipline self more. A self-willed person here who will buck if thwarted, so use tact in training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

John Wayne's Vessel Seized By Mounties

OTTAWA (AP) — The Wild West it wasn't, but it took a posse of Royal Canadian mounties to catch up with John Wayne's converted minesweeper and capture the booze it allegedly carried in violation of customs regulations.

The raid, which took place in August at Pender Harbor, northwest of Vancouver, British Columbia, "upset Mr. Wayne to no end," Capt. Bert Minshall, skipper of the 141-foot vessel, The Wild Goose, was quoted as saying this week.

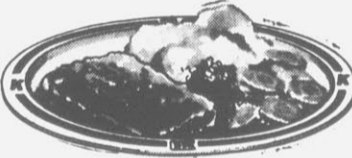

"He's been bringing his boat into Canada for 15 years," said Minshall, who sent a letter that prompted Canadian customs officials to announce Thursday a review of the seizure of $2,000 in liquor and imposition of an $800 fine on the vessel.

Wayne was not aboard the vessel at the time. It had been chartered by a group of real estate developers from Washington state.

The $800 fine was paid in lieu of seizure of the ship. The Wild Goose also was fined $500 for not having a fishing license and was required to buy a license for $400.

"I think they had it in for U.S. vessels this year," Minshall was quoted as saying.

When you graduated from high school, did you know what your career would be?

Vote for Pitt Community College and increase the opportunities for our citizens.

Most students graduating from high school are faced with a big choice. Four years at a university. Or, two years learning a trade. That's why we need to add college parallel courses to Pitt Tech's technical and vocational offerings. To fill the educational gaps in Pitt County. And, to give our young people an opportunity to look at vocational, technical and general college while making a choice.

College parallel courses can strengthen our technical and vocational programs.

Over half the students who enter college parallel programs end up graduating from vocational and technical programs. So, adding a college parallel program can attract students that need additional time and training before making a choice. When you're young, it's hard to decide what you want to do for the rest of your life. We want to offer the opportunity for learning a trade or continuing on to college.

Give Pitt County students the opportunity for a choice.

Support Pitt Community College. The college option can attract students to make our technical and vocational training even stronger. Existing classrooms can be used more fully. And the revenue from the state will more than offset the cost to Pitt County. So, give Pitt County students a choice for the future. Add a great new program to our Technical Institute.

Look at the opportunity. Vote for Pitt Community College.

Poultry.
RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was higher, supplies moderate to short, demand good, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for next week is 42.02 for "small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today, 1,333,000.

Hens.
The North Carolina hen market was steady, supplies moderate to short, demand good. Prices paid per pounds for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter 27 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged upward a bit today as traders continued to appraise the government's first-aid plan for the dollar. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.08 at 819.04.

Gainers held a very slight lead over losers in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The Dow had posted a record 35-point gain Wednesday in a euphoric initial response to the dollar-rescue plan, which includes measures to exert strong upward pressure on interest rates.

Wall Street's mood turned more wary Thursday, and the Dow fell back almost 11 points, amid increased attention to the heightened prospect of a recession as a result of the interest rate rise. Today activity was considerably quieter.

A separate development working in the market's favor was the surprise $5.4 billion drop in the basic measure of the money supply reported late Thursday by the Federal Reserve.

Analysts said the news was tentative evidence of progress in the Fed's effort to restrain inflation by curbing monetary growth.

Exxon led the active list, up 1/4 at 50 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index rose .10 to 53.30. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed 1.19 to 144.69.

Volume on the Big Board dropped off to 10.73 million shares by noontime from 19.69 million at the same point Thursday.

Offense Vs. Defense In Ficklen Clash

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 Saturday night has all the promise of an excited spectator football game for Eastern North Carolina fans.

Appalachian State brings in one of the nation's top offensive teams to Ficklen Stadium for the 7 p.m. game. And the home-standing Pirates of East Carolina will field one of the country's best defensive units.

Somewhere, somehow, something has got to give. Consider this, Appalachian State has the number five offensive team in the country, averaging 451.6 yards a contest through eight games. They are 12th in rushing with 272.7 yards a game, and fifth in scoring, averaging putting up 32.5 points a contest.

Defensively, the Pirates of East Carolina stand fifth, allowing 228.4 yards a game. They are sixth against the pass, giving up just 92.0 yards a game through the air. On the ground, the Bucs are allowing 138.4 per game, just out of the top 15 in the country.

Charles Fowler is eighth in kickoff returns with a 26.8 average. On the Pirate side of the field, Gerald Hall ranks eighth in punt returns with 12.9 yards a carry, and Anthony Collins is 15th in kickoff returns with 24.4 yards a kick.

So all the potential is there for one slam-bang collision of two strong teams whose forte is the opposite of each's strong point. Coach Pat Dye of East Carolina is somewhat worried about the game. "Appalachian presents problems to us that no other wishbone team might. The only way they could offer us more problems would be to have a line like Southern Cal's that just blows you off the ball."

"They do a fine job of running the option and they attack the perimeters of the defense with their passing game. They are very, very hard to stop." Dye heaped praise on ASU quarterback Brown, saying that the Goldsboro youth should have been recruited by the Pirates. "That was a mistake we made," he said.

Defensively, while the ASU team has given up a lot of points, Dye said that have the potential to be dangerous. "They never give up and are very aggressive. If you are not ready for them both mentally and physically, they can really hurt you."

Summer Hot For Opponents

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 Two weeks ago in the Oyster Bowl when the ballots for the game's Outstanding Player were collected, most of those who voted for an East Carolina player listed linebacker Tommy Summer as their choice to get the award.

While it eventually went to Richmond running back Jesse Williams, there were those who felt that Summer more than did his job in helping the Pirates to the win.

He was all over the field making tackles, including three for losses. In the eyes of Pat Dye and the other members of the Pirate coaching staff, Summer was definitely a "winner" for that game.

But for Tommy, it wasn't his best game. "I guess it was my best from the standpoint of making the big play," he said. "But technique-wise, it was not one of my better games. I was just glad to be able to make a couple of those big plays."

"I really got knocked on my rear end a couple of times and that was embarrassing," he added. While Summer has been grading out a winner all season, much of the publicity has gone to his running mate at linebacker, Mike Brewington. But that doesn't bother Summer.

"I think it really motivates you to do a little better job when you're in someone else's shadow. While I don't have the size that Mike has, I try to make up for it with a little extra hustle. And I guess I've always been in the shadow of another linebacker," he said in reference to Harold Randolph, his running mate last year.

"I guess it's because we are the two 'outsider' schools in the state. You've got the 'Big Four,' and maybe the 'Little Two' is one way of looking at us. 'But heck, I think we're better than any of 'em, the Big Four and all. We just had some hard times in our games this year.'"

Losing to the Mountaineers is no picnic for the Cherryville native, either. "Just about everyone in my high school class went to Appalachian, and two year's ago, it was terrible when I went home after losing to them. My junior high school coach and principal are real big ASU fans, and one of them stuck an Appalachian sticker on my dad's car after that game."

"Of course," he laughed, "they haven't been able to give me much grief lately, and I hope that continues after Saturday night."

Both teams have individuals in the national stats. ASU quarterback Steve Brown is 11th in total offense (200.9) and receiver Rick Beasley is third in receiving with 6.0 catches a game. Halfback Scott McConnell is 11th in scoring, with an eight point average.

So all the potential is there for one slam-bang collision of two strong teams whose forte is the opposite of each's strong point. Coach Pat Dye of East Carolina is somewhat worried about the game. "Appalachian presents problems to us that no other wishbone team might. The only way they could offer us more problems would be to have a line like Southern Cal's that just blows you off the ball."

"They do a fine job of running the option and they attack the perimeters of the defense with their passing game. They are very, very hard to stop." Dye heaped praise on ASU quarterback Brown, saying that the Goldsboro youth should have been recruited by the Pirates. "That was a mistake we made," he said.

The Secret Scout

...the radar detector that looks like a fog light

It's the most sophisticated radar detector you can buy ... disguised as a fog light that mounts on the front of your car

No other radar detector offers such sensitivity and range ... plus maximum concealment and protection from theft. The exclusive aerospace parabolic antenna is hidden in an actual fog light housing that mounts on your bumper or grille. Compact control unit mounts under your dash.

Secret Scout is so sensitive, it detects radar as much as two miles ahead of other units. And the exclusive "beep/flash" alert emits a beeping tone and flashing light that increase in frequency as you get closer to the radar source. A continuous tone and light let you know you're close enough for your speed to be recorded. Detects both standard X-band and newer K-band radar from hand-held "guns." Less false triggering, too.

Comes with power cable and mounting hardware. Matching fog light available as an accessory.

As we expected, last week's panel picks produced some shaking up of the standings, with a new leader, and some changes elsewhere in the ladder.

This writer passed Tom Baines and moved into at least temporary possession of first with a 9-3 record, while Baines posted an 8-4 mark. Baines has a chance to get back into a tie this week, since we have only one difference in our picks.

Overall, we stand 73-32-1, while Baines has a 72-33-1 mark. Fellow sports department picker Jim Kyle has continued his move up the ladder, climbing past our guests to take over third with a 70-33-1 mark. The guests are next at 69-36-1, followed by Joe Jenkins, 68-37-1, and Vickie Spivey, 65-40-1. Vickie is slowly closing the gap on Jenkins and vows to catch him before the bowl games are over.

Last week's guest, co-publisher David Whichard posted only a 6-6 mark although he was the lone one to pick the Tar Heels to win.

This week, our guest is Pirate Club director Gus Andrews, who hopes to do better.

In the high school picks, we were 5-1, bringing us to 40-10 on the year. The regular season comes to an end tonight, and only Farmville Central, of all the local teams will be continuing into the playoffs.

Outside the ECC, we find Williamston at Roanoke. The Redskins didn't play well at all last week, while Williamston has made steady improvement throughout the season. Roanoke won an earlier meeting this season, and a second meeting is usually fatal for the first-game winners. And we'll follow that rule by picking Williamston.

In the ECC, North Lenoir tries to break Farmville Central's domination of the league. It's been a long time since the Jaguars lost to a fellow conference member, but we don't think that tonight will see that string ended, as the Jaguars will win again.

Ayden-Grifton visits Charles B. Aycock. The Chargers, who will finish second in the conference race, should have little trouble here in chalking up the victory.

Greene Central visits Southern Nash. The Firebirds have come on strong late in the season, while Greene Central has shown steady improvement also. But Southern should be the better team in this one.

Finally, North Pitt will be going for its first ever winning season against Conley. The Vikings, out of a chance for a winning team, would like some revenge for last year. It promises to be the best of the high school games in the area, and we'll go with the Panthers to win this one.

Turning to our panel's picks, in the two area games, we find Rose traveling to Northeastern and East Carolina playing host to Appalachian State.

The Rampants will be trying to wind up the season on a winning note. Their defense has been their best thing, and Northeastern has dropped its last three after being the pre-season favorite to win the title.

How will it go? The panel can't say for sure, as it picks the game as a toss-up, 3-3.

East Carolina's defense is among the best in the country. Appalachian's offense is right up there in the top five in the nation. It's like the old irresistible force vs. the immovable object. The panel likes the Pirates, going down the line, 6-0.

Other consensus picks: Clemson over Wake Forest; Penn State over Maryland; N.C. State over South Carolina; Western Carolina over Tennessee-Chattanooga; Notre Dame over Navy; Tennessee over Duke; North Carolina over Richmond; West Virginia over Virginia; William & Mary over The Citadel; Florida over Auburn.

Waltrip Solves Problems, But Cale Again In Sitting On Pole

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — The uncertain status of the oft-controversial stock car driver, Darrell Waltrip, apparently has been resolved with the renegotiation of his long-term contract with car owner Bill Gardiner.

Waltrip announced at a news conference Thursday following pole position qualifying for Sunday's $185,000 Dixie 500 Grand National race that he and Gardiner had come to agreement earlier in the week over the key issue in their bitter dispute: money.

"Now I've got a long-term contract with everything on it. I couldn't ask for a better deal," Waltrip declared after qualifying seventh fastest, at 163.798 mph. Cale Yarborough took the pole with a record of 168.475 mph.

Waltrip, who had already announced he would replace Lennie Pond on the Harry Ranier team next season, said there had been "mutual concessions," then added, "I asked for everything and I got it."

"There had to be considerable changes and improvements made for me to come back. But now I'm very, very pleased and happy."

"A good sponsor, a good car, a good driver and a good team don't just come about. It takes a long time to build a winner. I didn't want to throw it all away. I think we both realized we were gonna lose a lot over very little. We both saw the light."

Waltrip didn't elaborate on what concessions were made, or what his compensation would be. "I feel I ought to be paid on the same basis as Cale and Bobby (Allison) and the rest if that's the level I'm expected to compete on."

Waltrip's decision to stay with Gardiner may have given Pond his job back, although Ranier made no statement. Pond found out he was getting the ax after he scored his first Grand National victory at Talladega, Ala., in August.

Pond was the third fastest qualifier Thursday behind Yarborough and Allison.

Ninth fastest Dave Marcis also announced his 1979 plans. "I don't have any," Marcis said. "Which is to say, I won't be back with Rod Osterlund's team for personal reasons."

Pressed about those reasons, Marcis said, "If you're winning every race, maybe you should think about putting two cars on the track. If you're not winning them all, you're not ready."

Marcis' team has two cars that qualified in the top 12 Thursday, his and Dale Earnhardt's (10th), and is renting a third to Neil Bonnett, who was 14th quickest.

"The only way I would reconsider is if I get the authority to call the shots on my own car, hire and fire my own people, and so forth. And I don't see that happening," Marcis said.

The Dixie 500 is traditionally the scene of team divorces and marriages since it is the next to last race of the season. Last year's Dixie 500 pole position winner, Sam Sommers, who is not here this year, found out that weekend he had been fired and replaced by Buddy Baker.

Cubs Bow In Finale

Northeastern High School's junior varsity football team handed Rose High School its first loss of the year yesterday, taking a 10-8 victory.

Northeastern scored in the first period for a 7-0 lead, but Kenny Barnes scored both a touchdown and a two-point conversion in the second quarter for the Cubs, giving them an 8-7 lead.

Northeastern came back, however, to score a field goal and take a 10-8 lead at the half.

Rose twice got the ball inside the five yard line, in the second and fourth quarters, only to fumble the ball away.

The Cubs, who rushed for over 300 yards in the game, finished the year with a 9-1 record overall and a 4-1 Division I mark. Northeastern claimed the JV championship with a 5-0 league mark.

Ayden In Win Rally

AYDEN — Ayden Middle School rallied to gain an 18-16 victory over Cox of Winterville yesterday.

Cox scored first as Willie Green put them on the board, and they added a two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead. Ayden came back on a 75-yard run by Kenneth Randolph to cut it to 8-6 at the end of the first half.

Green scored the second Cox touchdown in the second half, and Cox again added a two-point conversion to move to a 16-6 margin. Ayden cut it back with Jarvis Koonce passing 37 yards to Tyrone Gay, making it 16-12.

With 1:02 left, Koonce hit Jesse Stewart on a 29-yard scoring aerial to give Ayden the lead and the win.

Ayden is now 4-0 and Cox drops to 4-1.

Trio Share Golf Lead

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Three teams of young lions seeking qualifying exemptions led the Disney World National Team Golf Classic going into today's second round, but old pros Sam Snead, Miller Barber and Don January were right on their heels.

Sharing the first-round lead with 9-under par 63s in the best-ball tournament were the teams of Joe Porter-Bob Zender, Keith Fergus-Phil Hancock and Bill Calfee-Eddie Pearce. Among them, only Porter, from Scottsdale, Ariz., has won a PGA tour event.

Four other teams — including the Barber-January combo — were one stroke back at 64. And four more shared third place with 65.

The event will not count on the PGA's money list for the year, but the winners will earn a year's exemption from qualifying.

Blacks Call For Boycott After Chattanooga Players Suspended

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Blacks plan to boycott a University of Tennessee-Chattanooga football game Saturday to protest suspension of 20 black players from the squad.

The players were suspended for the remaining three games when they stayed away from a practice session and failed to do makeup laps.

About 250 blacks attending a rally Thursday at a downtown Chattanooga church enthusiastically approved a succession of speakers who urged the game be boycotted.

"We think the students had unusual, cruel, and inhuman punishment," Johnny Holloway, head of Operation PUSH, said.

Nineteen of the players agreed to accept the punishment after a meeting Monday night with football Coach Joe Morrison and Athletic Director Harold Wilkes, who told the players they could keep their scholarships and play next year.

A statement handed out at the meeting said the players were threatened with loss of their scholarships if they did not agree to terms of the punishment.

One player, senior defensive back Kenny Mitchell, joined the protest rally and told how a trainer's curt "so what" when he complained of a neck injury after a game touched off the sequence of events leading to the suspensions.

Mitchell said he missed practice due to the sore neck but was told to do makeup runs since the trainer had not approved his absence. He agreed to do so but other black players meanwhile urged him and three other seniors to take numerous grievances to Morrison.

Mitchell said the players understood Morrison was to meet with them to hear their complaints, but when he didn't, they stayed away from practice.

George Key, local president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and representatives of 10 other black groups broke off a meeting Monday night with Chancellor James Drinnon when Drinnon rejected an ultimatum to investigate the incident and reinstate the players by midnight of the same day.

Key said later they did not know of a statement by Morrison earlier Monday that the players were definitely out the rest of the season.

Mitchell told the crowd Thursday night the racial problem "is not only on the football team but through the whole university, but it took the football team to bring it to the light."

Grievances included lack of a black coach, alleged unequal treatment from coaches and trainers, and de facto segregation on team buses. The university has promised to hire a black coach next season and investigate other charges of discrimination.

Key urged all blacks to stay away from Saturday's game against Western Carolina, the team currently tied with UTC for the Southern Conference lead.

He urged blacks to demonstrate peacefully outside the stadium and said any blacks seen going to the game need not ever come to the NAACP for future help. "You can go to the National Association for the Advancement of White People when you are in trouble," he said.

PRESSURE FOR PAM

LUTHERVILLE, Md. (AP) — Pam Shriver, the new wonder miss of tennis, is back in McDonogh High School after her brilliant play at the U.S. Open in New York. Pam was the youngest person, at 16, to make the finals in the women's division, losing to the defending champion, Chris Evert, 7-5, 6-4. Pam upset Martina Navratilova, the Wimbledon champ, to reach the finals.

"The victory over Martina changed my life overnight," the 6-foot teen-age girl said. "I'm into a crucial stage of my career, and I expect to turn pro next summer. I think I can handle the pressure."

Most ACC Eyes On Penn State, Terps

By The Associated Press
A tie for first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference will be at stake Saturday when on unbeaten Clemson meets struggling Wake Forest and tries to tie 5th-ranked Maryland. The Tigers-Deacs clash is the only league game this week.

But many eyes will be on the nationally televised game between Maryland's unbeaten Terps and Penn State, which is riding the crest of a 16-game winning streak — the longest in the nation — and a No. 2 ranking.

The two teams are among only four unbeaten major college teams in the nation. In other action, South Carolina is at North Carolina State, Duke visits Tennessee, North Carolina calls on Richmond and Virginia plays at West Virginia.

MARYLAND at PENN STATE
A big bowl bid may be at stake in this game.

The Nittany Lions (8-0) are probably the toughest team Maryland (8-0) has had to play this season. But the Terps have won only twice in 23 tries against Penn State.

Penn State leads the nation in rushing defense, allowing only 56.1 yards per game, and is third nationally in total defense. The Terps are seventh in rushing defense and fourth in overall defense.

Scouts from many of the top bowls will watch the 12:50 p.m. game, and the winner could be in a position to pick the bowl it wants to attend.

CLEMSON at WAKE FOREST
Clemson (6-1, 3-0) is a heavy favorite against a Wake Forest team (1-3, 1-7) that has dropped seven games in a row. The Tigers have won in their last six outings and are now number 16 in the nation. But they're still number two in the ACC, a situation they could remedy by this win.

Clemson quarterback Steve Fuller, the ACC's total offense leader, who took off of last week because of a leg injury, was back at full strength in practices this week.

The Wake Forest attack is guided by freshman quarterback David Webber, who is averaging 161 yards a game passing. However, the Deacons have been picking up less than 100 yards a game on the ground.

SOUTH CAROLINA at N.C. STATE
Both teams will be trying to rebound from losses last week. N.C. State (5-2) got a 33-10 drubbing from Clemson last week as Ted Brown, the ACC's career rushing leader, was held to 70 yards running, his lowest output of the season.

Gamecock Coach Jim Carlen is planning to start Skip Ramsey at quarterback in recognition of his role in a fourth-quarter rally last week.

South Carolina trailed North Carolina 24-6 going into the quarter of the game last Saturday at Columbia, S.C., but Ramsey came off the bench to spark a comeback that fell short in the 24-22 loss.

State may still be in line for a bowl bid if it wins this one.

DUKE at TENNESSEE
Both teams are looking at losing seasons, but they have run up against several teams in the top 20.

Duke (3-4) will be out to break a three-game losing streak, including a 27-0 setback last week against Maryland. The Blue Devil defense had a fine game but the offense was ineffective and made several turnovers that led to Maryland scores.

Quarterback Mike Dunn was sidelined with a thumb injury but is expected to be back in action against the Vols.

Tennessee (1-4-1) will be trying to avenge a 21-18 upset loss to the Blue Devils in 1973, the last time the teams met, and a crowd of 80,000 is expected for the game in Knoxville. The Vols' only win so far this year was a 31-13 decision over Army.

and the once-mighty team has a lot at stake.

NORTH CAROLINA at RICHMOND
A little bit of Carolina Fever returned last week when the Tar Heels (3-4) got their offense together and beat South Carolina 24-22 last week. Coach Dick Crum will try to make it two in a row and even the team's season record.

Carolina is a heavy favorite over 1-7 Richmond, and a small turnout is expected.

Returning to last season's form, Amos Lawrence rushed for 155 yards in North Carolina's win over South Carolina and freshman quarterback Chuck Sharpe threw three touchdown passes.

The Spiders have managed to beat the Tar Heels only once in 13 games.

VIRGINIA at WEST VIRGINIA
Virginia and West Virginia have won only three games between them this year, but the Cavaliers got their offense back together and beat Virginia Tech 17-7 in their last game two weeks ago.

West Virginia has lost seven consecutive games, including a 49-14 drubbing by Penn State last Saturday.

Virginia has gained 1,165 rushing so far this season — more than the Cavaliers got the entire 1977 season. Greg Taylor and Tommy Vigorito have combined for 898 yards on the ground.

Homecoming A Victory

ELIZABETHTOWN — It doesn't matter to some whether the East Bladen High School football team wins its homecoming game tonight. One team member has already had a victory.

For the past three months, defensive lineman Scott Fisher has been in a Wilmington hospital, partially paralyzed from the chest down.

But Fisher, 17, will be introduced with the rest of his fellow senior teammates just before the school's final home game of the season against Whiteville High School, although he won't play.

"I'm really looking forward to just being back home with my family and friends. It's kind of exciting to be introduced with the seniors in the last game," Fisher said.

Doctors gave him little hope of returning home before Christmas when he entered the hospital Aug. 9 after suffering a broken back in a routine block and tackle drill. The fracture left him with virtually unable to move his legs and only limited use of his arms.

"Scott's recovery has been remarkable," said Dr. Thomas Craven, his doctor. "I just didn't think he'd recover so quickly. He has surprised everybody."

But Craven said Fisher was strong-willed and not about to give up. Soon after an operation in September to fuse his spine, Fisher wanted to get off his back and start using his legs.

"He began to think if he could get his shoes on he'd like to be able to use the parallel bars and get motion back in his feet," said J.W. Fisher, the youth's father.

Since then the younger Fisher has gradually regained partial use of his legs and arms.

"I'm sure that someday he'll be able to walk, and he may even reach the point where he can play some non-contact sports," Craven said.

Fisher is still confined to a wheelchair but doesn't sound bitter about his experience.

"Football: I'm all for it. I still like it. If I could I'd be out there playing it right now," he said.

The Trouble With Men

KENTFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Psychologist-author Phyllis Chesler says the trouble between American men and women can be traced to the relationship — or lack of it — between fathers and sons.

The solution, she says, is for men to take a greater interest in their children.

"Not only would men and their children be closer, but it would help men to learn to handle the violence within themselves," said Ms. Chesler, who is in California this week for a series of lectures.

Most men never experience a warm, open, sharing relationship with their fathers, said the author of the recently published book, "About Men."

"They have had to settle for a few rare hours of companionship, usually with fathers who are tired, preoccupied with work, who would rather watch television or drink beer," she said.

In her research for her latest book, Ms. Chesler said, "I'd ask the men to tell me about their fathers and they wouldn't or couldn't. They'd say, 'My father's all right. What else can I say.' Or, 'Oh, you want to know about my childhood, let me tell you about my mother.'"

The yearning for paternal approval "creates many problems," she said. "It makes men hate and distrust other men, despite the myths about male friendship."

And women, Ms. Chesler said, become "opiates which keep men from killing one another."

She interviewed prison inmates in researching her book, she said, "curious as to what men did together when they didn't have us to kick around...."

"Well, what they do is pretty ugly.... They rape each other and they even kill each other. Without their opiates, men are very brutal toward other men," she said.

The psychologist said men would learn to deal with their emotions in caring for their children.

"If you're taking care of children, you can't just let yourself go," she told a College of Marin audience. "If you get angry at a baby and throw it on the floor, it dies. Women have had to learn to handle these negative emotions in a way that men never have...."

"I'm convinced it would improve the relationships between men and women because it would make them more realistic."

Ms. Chesler is also author of "Women, Money and Power" and "Women and Madness." She is an assistant professor of psychology at the College of Staten Island, City University of New York.

Veterans Employment Is Up

Gainful employment of veterans in Pitt County has shown an increase during the past fiscal year, according to Kendrick Taylor, Veteran Employment Representative with the Greenville Employment Security Commission.

For the past fiscal year — Oct. 1, 1977 through Sept. 30, 1978 — a total of 662 veterans were placed in jobs. This compares with 540 placed in the preceding fiscal year, Oct. 1, 1976 through Sept. 30, 1977.

This is particularly significant considering that the number of new individual veteran applications in the 1977-78 fiscal year totaled 701, which is 132 fewer new applicants than the 831 figure for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Speaking of the higher trend for veteran employment, as well as all fields of employment, Taylor said: "In fact, there has been an increase in each of the last six years in all placements made in the Greenville ESC Office."

"Several factors have contributed to this success," Taylor added. "Foremost has been the continuing cooperation of employers in their willingness to place job openings with the Employment Security Commission. So far as veterans are concerned, these employers have most often given priority to the hiring of veterans."

Taylor noted that efforts to give qualified veterans priority in hiring "is a year-round job in our office here."

Another factor mentioned by Taylor is the successful job training made possible under the new HIRE II (Help Through Industry Retraining and Employer Program).

"Even though the HIRE program has been around for some time," Taylor remarked, "it achieved the most success during the past year."

This he attributes to the restructured version of the old HIRE I program. "HIRE II is more inclusive in its application and is not bound by restrictive eligibility criteria normally associated with government programs," he commented.

Veteran organizations, along with the ESC, carried out intensive efforts to locate unemployed veterans and to refer them to the Employment Security Commission to be assigned to the HIRE II program. "The primary purpose of the program is to get unemployed veterans into jobs," Taylor said, "and as in other CETA funded programs, the employer is reimbursed for part of the wages paid the employee while he or she is in training."

Of the veterans for whom employment was found, approximately a third of this force represents veterans who are students seeking part-time work. He notes there is a great deal of competition for good part-time jobs.

The Employment Security Commission is a state non-fee agency, which means that those looking for work and those wanting to hire people have full use of the agency without any charge.

Employers or employees seeking more information or assistance in job testing, counseling or placement are urged to contact the ESC, located at 3101 Bismarck Street.

Pecot Talks To Council

David Pecot, plant manager of Union Carbide Corporation, addressed the Pitt County Safety Council Thursday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, speaking on safety as a management obligation and concern.

Pecot stressed the necessity of believing in safety before trying to promote the idea to employees.

"All accidents are caused, therefore, they are preventable," Pecot said. "Not one employee or visitor should risk injury in a safety oriented plant."

According to Pecot, concern for the health and safety of all employees is also a part of a manager's job, which he should maintain for them both on and off the job.

Safety standards at Union Carbide must meet both company and legal standards, said Pecot. He noted that the payoff at Union Carbide approaches the four million man-hour milestone without a time loss due to injury at the Greenville plant.

The Pitt County Safety Council will meet Dec. 17, noon, at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Visitors are welcome.

To Observe 76th Year

Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church will celebrate its 76th anniversary Nov. 6-12 with services beginning nightly at 7:30.

The following churches will serve: Monday, Elder Lindsey. The Gospel Pliers and the congregation of Goldsboro; Tuesday, Elder J. N. Gilbert and the Arthur Chapel Church; Wednesday, Elder Willie Joyner and St. Paul or Patrick Chapel Church; Thursday, Elder Robert Phillips and Crisp Chapel Church; Friday, Elder W. E. Bowser and Wynn Chapel Church; Sunday 11 a.m., the pastor, senior choir and ushers of the church.

The services will close Sunday afternoon, Nov. 12, with Bishop Kleeber Bryant and Savannah Free Will Baptist Church of Kinston in charge. Bishop W. L. Phillips, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Homecoming At Church Sunday

GRIFTON — The First Christian Church of Grifton will observe its annual fall homecoming Sunday, Nov. 5, at the 11 a.m. worship service.

Dr. Harold C. Doster, president of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, will serve as the guest speaker at the morning services.

Dinner will be served in the church fellowship hall after services. All members, former members and friends of the church are invited to attend. The Rev. Edwin G. Respass is now serving his seventh year as minister of the church.

Reports Prenatal Test Of Sickle Cell Anemia

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — An inherited blood defect that dooms one in 500 American black children to suffering and early death can now be spotted safely during pregnancy with help from the tools of DNA research, a doctor says.

The defect, sickle cell anemia, afflicts as many as 50 million people worldwide and an estimated 70,000 in the United States. Nearly all its victims are black. About half die before age 20, and few others live past age 45.

Parents who are carriers of the recessive gene that causes sickle cell anemia are not affected by the disease, but can pass it on to their children.

Dr. Yuet Wai Kan, developer of the new sickle cell test, said it offers hope that similar techniques could be adapted to detect other inherited defects, such as hemophilia.

The test, which is done on the amniotic fluid surrounding the fetus, replaces an earlier and more risky procedure requiring a blood sample from the fetus, Kan said. The new test can be done as early as the 15th week of pregnancy, when an early abortion is still possible.

"Prenatal diagnosis will allow couples who otherwise wouldn't have wanted to risk having children to plan families," he said in a telephone interview from San Francisco Thursday night.

Sickle cell anemia gets its name from the characteristic C-shaped or sickle-like appearance of the red blood cells of its victims.

Victims lack the proper genetic instructions in their cells to make hemoglobin, the iron-rich substance which carries oxygen in the blood. The result is that body tissues are slowly choked to death for lack of oxygen.

Sickle cell children often are poorly developed and have a short trunk and elongated extremities and skull. Death is usually caused by tuberculosis, heart failure, stroke or other complications.

Kan said he and coworkers at the University of California at San Francisco discovered the sickle cell test almost by accident as they used enzymes to slice up human DNA — deoxyribonucleic acid, the basic chemical of heredity — in an investigation of the hemoglobin gene.

They noted that after the slicing, which produced many fragments of varying but characteristic lengths, the DNA from some blacks had one gene fragment that was twice as long as the same fragment from whites or Asians.

The extra-long fragment came from the same area of the DNA molecule as the gene for hemoglobin. Most of those who had it were carriers of the sickle cell trait.

This discovery enabled physicians to test for the sickle cell trait by analyzing fetal cells that stray into the amniotic fluid surrounding the unborn child.

No Test Among Church Schools

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Christian school leaders said at a state Board of Education meeting Thursday that they will not give the state's minimum competency test and that they are prepared for further litigation.

The board said it will take the fundamentalist Christian schools to court if they do not administer the state minimum competency test to their high school juniors by Dec. 15.

The Rev. Daniel Carr, president of the Organization of Christian Schools, said his school has not given the test. And he does not know of any church school that has or any that intends to, he said. The organization claims more than 40 schools as members. Carr is also the minister of South Park Baptist Church in Winston-Salem.

The board also must protect itself because of a related lawsuit, he said.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference filed a class action suit in federal district court in New Bern this week asking for a temporary restraining order to block the competency tests. That suit is still pending.

The competency test was given to the state's more than 80,000 high school juniors Wednesday and Thursday.

The board Thursday officially set the passing scores for the test at 72 percent for the reading portion and 64 percent for the math section.

In a motion made by board member John A. Pritchett, the board agreed to set a Dec. 15 deadline for all private schools to administer the competency test. The motion stated that all schools failing to give the test will be reported to the N.C. Attorney General's office for appropriate legal action.

State Deputy Attorney General Andrew Vanore said the board must prosecute those schools who do not comply to "maintain the board's integrity."

Vanore said the board will have to file suit because the board has mandated that the tests be given.

Article Examines Resource Programs

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Resource development, both proactive and reactive, is examined in an article in the November issue of the "Community and Junior College Journal," magazine of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges. Director James H. Young, director of institutional development at Pitt Technical Institute, charges that educational institutions too often "jump headfirst into a program to secure extra-institutional funds without considering the implications or consequences." It would be more sensible, he writes, to look at a rationale for outside fund raising. Reactive projects, according to Young, are likely to be sought with little thought as to how they join with the overall functioning of the school. Often, projects are not compatible with current and long-range plans and purposes. In some cases, the projects have been known to "violate regulatory or legislative parameters of institutional mission."

Proactive resource development, by contrast, is precipitated by "existing and legitimate needs that can be sensibly addressed by the institution," Young says. This approach allows involvement at all levels of institutional operation, according to Young.

The American Association of Community and Junior Colleges is a private, non-profit organization serving faculty, administrators and trustees in more than 900 member colleges.

Pipeline Explosion Nearly Wiped Out Small Town

By GORDON D. MOTT
Associated Press Writer
COLONIA BENITO
JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Sobbing survivors of a natural gas pipeline explosion that practically wiped out this tiny southern Mexican truck stop held a midnight requiem Mass in its church — one of the few buildings still standing. "What good has the pipeline done us?" a woman at the service asked a reporter. "It's killed all our people." Fifty-two persons were killed and 11 were severely burned, officials said, when the crossroads village of roughly 100 inhabitants was almost leveled late Wednesday. The blast left a crater about 300 feet across and 20 feet deep. Authorities speculated gas seeped from a faulty weld in a pumping station valve, moved 20 yards into a residence and was ignited by a cooking fire or a cigarette. The pipeline was 21 inches in diameter.

The resulting explosion was heard nine miles away and sent up a huge fireball that consumed most of the crossroad's flimsy wooden structures in seconds.

Victims were so badly burned that officials had a hard time identifying them. Charred timbers and an occasional foundation were all that was discernible among the rubble, still smoldering many hours after the explosion.

"There was a flash," said a survivor. "It spread like wildfire through the village."

The national petroleum company PEMEX, which operated the pumping station, said the facility served four pipelines, two for natural gas, one for refined petroleum and one for unrefined oil. All were shut down, but Adolfo Arroyo Villaseñor, chief security officer for PEMEX, said service would be restored today or Saturday.

About 200 men were working around the clock with bulldozers and cranes to restore service.

Arroyo said the line that ruptured carried 15 million cubic feet of gas daily to Mexico City, 360 miles to the northeast of this petroleum district in Tabasco state. He said the flow was cut off at pumping stations along the line.

Officials said another, larger line in the area was providing gas service to Mexico City. Tabasco state Police Chief Capt. Jose Serna Garcia said the flames destroyed about a dozen huts and some small residents. He estimated 100 persons that served bus and truck drivers and the village stop.

Insanity Plea Fails To Help; Rapist Gets Life

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court jury in Greensboro has found a McLeansville Prison inmate accused of attacking two Grimsley High School students five months ago guilty of rape and assault with intent to commit rape.

Michael Anthony Mayhand was sentenced to life in prison for the rape conviction and 12 to 15 years in prison — to begin at the end of the life sentence — for assault with intent to commit rape.

The jury of seven men and five women rendered their verdict after 55 minutes of deliberation.

Mayhand had pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

Judge Douglas Albright also recommended that Mayhand become a maximum security prisoner without further benefit of parole commutation, work release or community relief.

Mayhand's lawyer, Chief Public Defender Wallace Harrelson, plans to appeal the rape conviction to the state Supreme Court and the assault with intent to commit rape conviction to the Court of Appeals.

During testimony this week, a 16-year-old girl identified Mayhand as the man who raped her while she was in a girls' restroom at the school. About 20 minutes later, a 15-year-old girl said, he nearly raped her in a bathroom in an adjoining building.

The rape incident at the school prompted some personnel changes at McLeansville and a new school board policy which prohibits prisoners from being on school grounds during school hours.

Mayhand was brought to the school with a group of inmates in the prison's high school equivalency class. School officials said they were not notified of the trip.

County Schools Saved Money

According to George Laws, Pitt County Schools Energy Control Officer, Pitt County schools saved over $6,000 during the first month of school.

Despite rising electric rates, the school system was charged about $2,000 less by the electric utilities this September than last year, due to the 16.2 reduction in electricity use.

According to Laws, when increased electric rates were taken in consideration, a "ball park" figure was estimated to show how much the county schools avoided paying by not using more electricity. The $6,000 figure does not include savings from reduced fuel charges.

Laws said that energy conservation committees have been formed or are being initiated in two county schools. Bethel Elementary School has formed such a committee, primarily made up of homeroom representatives from each grade.

Another committee is being formed at A. G. Cox School, Winterville, through its Student Government Association.
