Pres. Carter Signs Diluted Energy Bill

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed a diluted energy bill that is a far cry from the original plan he submitted to Congress 18 months ago as the "moral equivalent of war."

After signing the measure into law at a White House ceremony, Carter left for Kansas City, Mo., to address a Future Farmers convention and hold a news conference.

The 95th Congress completed work on the energy package just before adjourning Oct. 15.

Although it was a big domestic victory for the president, the compromise legislation omitted many of the tough proposals in his original package.

Among items scuttled along the way were stiff new taxes on gasoline, crude oil and industrial fuels.

While the bill provides tax credits to consumers for various energy conservation steps, it also is expected to increase costs for natural gas users.

Individuals who use gas for heating and cooking will be affected directly, and everyone is likely to feel indirect effects from higher costs passed on by industrial users, who will bear the brunt of the price increases.

Natural gas prices will be allowed to rise by about 10 percent annually until 1985 when price lids will be removed from most natural gas. In the meantime, price controls will be extended for the first time to intrastate gas — that used in the state where it is produced.

There has been no clear resolution of what the new pricing plan will cost consumers. Various opponents of deregulation have claimed it will transfer $200 billion from consumers to producers over the next seven years. That could mean increases averaging $100 to $200 a year for typical families who heat with natural gas.

Deregulation supporters concede gas prices will go up, but say the additional cost attributable to deregulation will be closer to $20 a year for the average family. And they say it will mean more gas in the long run.

Other features of the new law:

—Taxpayers can take a tax credit of 15 percent on the first $2,000 for home insulation, storm doors, storm windows and other energy-saving equipment, up to a total credit of $300. The credit applies to purchases made as far back as April 20, 1977, the day Carter submitted his energy proposals to Congress.

—A tax credit of 30 percent on the first $2,000 and 20 percent on the next $8,000 — up to a total credit of $2,200 — can be taken for solar, wind and geothermal energy equipment.

—New cars that get poor gasoline mileage will be taxed, beginning with 1980 models getting less than 15 miles per gallon. By 1986, the tax will apply to cars getting less than 23.5 miles per gallon and will range from $400 to $3,850.

—New energy efficiency standards will be set for home appliances. Utilities will have to offer consumers help in better insulating their homes and in arranging financing for such improvements, and home insulation grants will be available for low income families, schools and hospitals.

—Industries and power plants will be encouraged, and in some cases required, to switch from natural gas to coal. Residential ornamental gas lamps will be banned by 1982.

—State commissions which set utility rates will be required to consider plans for lower rates to residential consumers who use power in off-peak hours and to consider eliminating discounts to large industrial users.

—Construction will be expedited on proposed pipelines to carry natural gas from Alaska to the lower 48 states and oil from the West Coast to the upper Midwest.

Probe Of Shah's Family Is Ordered

By PARVIZ RAEIN

Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi had the man who was his prime minister for 13 years arrested and also called for a probe into the holdings of the imperial family in another bid to defuse anti-government violence.

At the same time, the National Iranian Oil Company said intense negotiations were underway to end walkouts in Abadan, where the world's largest oil refinery is located, and in the nearby city of Ahwaz, in the heart of the oil fields.

The shah also ordered Jamaliddin Akhavi, a respected legal expert, to head an investigation into the holdings of the Iranian royal family. They include 64 of the shah's relatives who were sent abroad two months ago.

The United States, meanwhile, offered its support to the shah by agreeing to supply tear gas, police clubs and other riot control equipment to Iran, a major oil supplier to the West.

State Department officials in Washington also said the homes of three Americans in Tehran had been firebombed and that the U.S. Embassy had requested police protection for some areas of Tehran where Americans live. But it said none of the estimated 40,000 to 50,000

Americans in Iran had been injured.

Amir Abass Hoveyda, who headed the Cabinet from 1964 to 1977 and was one of the shah's closest advisers, was arrested Wednesday in a bid to puncture opposition claims that the shah sided with corruption or abuse of authority. Dozens of other ex-officials, including the former head of SAVAK, the secret police, were arrested earlier.

More than 1,000 persons have died in anti-government rioting in Iran since the beginning of the year.

Intended Only A 'Warning' Says Colcord

By STUART SAVAGE

Joashley Marshall Colcord, charged in connection with an explosion and fire at Tarheel Truck Rentals here May 17 in which the firm's owner G. Vinson Howell was injured, testified in Pitt County Superior Court yesterday that he dropped two gasoline-filled jugs on the floor of the firm "to warn him (Howell) to stay away from my wife."

Earlier yesterday, Howell told how he was injured when Colcord dropped the jugs of gas on the floor of his firm. Howell testified that he and Mrs. Colcord were close friends, but denied that they had a sexual relationship.

Colcord, 54, testified that he met Howell in 1974, and became friends with him after purchasing a car from him in 1975. "We became right good friends," Colcord said, adding that Mrs. Colcord went to Norfolk, Virginia with Howell to buy a car for the Colcords.

The East Carolina University accounting professor, saying he visited with Howell at his business from two to four or five times a week, testified that he "found the two of them (Howell and Mrs. Colcord) in a car" parked at a local apartment complex November 10, 1977.

"I was not suspicious. I was concerned," he said, adding that when he opened the door to the car in which the two were seated, "the smell of whiskey just about knock-

Between $500,000 and $750,000 worth of cocaine, $7,500 worth of marijuana and $5,050 in cash were confiscated by Greenville Police, assisted by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and Drug Enforcement Administration agents at a Dickinson Avenue home here early this morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Hugh Wesley Ledford was arrested on charges of possession with intent to sell cocaine and marijuana following the 1:15 a.m. search of Ledford's 2505-B Dickinson Ave. home.

According to the chief, officers found three pounds of cocaine, 12 pounds of marijuana and $5,050 in cash in the dwelling as well as some 10 pounds of marijuana seed. Value of the cocaine was set at between $500,000 and $750,000. The chief explained that if the drug was pure, cut to 20 per cent, it could be sold on the street for $750,000.

Cannon noted that the 12 pounds of marijuana has a wholesale value of $4,000 and a street value of $7,500. Value of the seed, he estimated, is about $100.

Ledford, 29, is a Kentucky native who has lived in North Carolina for 16 years. He has lived in Greenville for the past several years. Ledford was placed in Pitt County jail under $20,000 bond pending a hearing in the case.

Artist Norman Rockwell Dies At 84 Following A Protracted Illness

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Artist Norman Rockwell, whose freckled-faced boys, pigtailed girls, kindly doctors and small town scenes mirrored Americana on Saturday Evening Post covers and Boy Scout calendars in a career spanning six decades, is dead at age 84.

The pale, lean-limbed, pipesmoking illustrator worked seven days a week — with a half-day off for Christmas — to produce a canvas mirror of the nation he loved, but once described himself as "a hack illustrator."

He should be remembered, his wife, Molly, said after his death late Wednesday at his Stockbridge home as "an artist and illustrator, well-known artist and illustrator."

Mrs. Rockwell said her husband's death was not unexpected, and that he "had been ill a long time."

Funeral arrangements were incomplete early today.

Rockwell's America was a nation of rough-hewn but gentle workingmen, prim grandmothers and soldiers home from the great war. In the turbulent 1960s, it was a nation torn by Vietnam and divided by race.

It was an America of the Four Freedoms, a series of paintings for the Post taken from a speech to Congress by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1941. The paintings became part of the nation's war effort and its rallying cry.

But always it was an America depicted with a passion for visual truth — he worked invariably from live models and props, even to posing a chicken, which he said would "stand just as you've placed him for four or five minutes."

Perhaps the most popular artist in the United States, Rockwell died without attaining status in the world of "real art."

Critics found his work simplistic, corny and superficially photographic — however much he touched and delighted millions.

Rockwell never claimed to be anything more than an illustrator who made a lot of money. "I just do the things, and people pay me very high prices," he told The Associated Press in 1974.

His labors, which began when he left high school at 16, produced uncounted works — including more than 360 covers for the Post, which first bought his illustrations when he was 22. He later switched to Look magazine when the ownership of the Post changed hands.

Although much of his work was nostalgic, he was also an illustrator of his times: he spent 26 straight hours on a Post cover saluting the historic flight of Charles Lindbergh, and depicted Neil Armstrong's footprint on the dusty surface of the moon after the first moon-walk in 1969.

Late in his life, he was often ill and confined to a wheelchair. But in late 1977, he still made occasional journeys to his studio in a barn next to the white colonial home he shared with his third wife, Molly.

"It's hell to grow old," he said then.

Mrs. Rockwell, 82, a retired teacher who married the illustrator in 1961, said shortly after his death that her husband's "work was his passion." His "greatest delight," she said, were his Post covers.

"He was very happy and he was devoted to his work," she told the AP.

Stockbridge, the small western Massachusetts community in the Berkshires that was Rockwell's home and supplied his models for many years, also holds his prime achievements: at the Old Corner House run by the historical society.

There is Norman Rockwell — his originals, appearing larger, wiser, funnier, richer than on the covers of magazines or the 30 years of Boy Scout calendars.

And there, Police Chief William Obarnein was one of the first of many to recall the town's No. 1 citizen. "It's sad," said the police chief. "It's going to be a great loss... He was a well-respected man... a nice guy. He was a great man and everybody loved him."

Rockwell loved America, on his terms. "I paint life as I would like it to be," he once said. "If there was sadness in this created world of mine, it was a pleasant sadness. If there were problems, they were humorous problems. The people in my pictures aren't mentally ill or deformed. The situations they get into are commonplace, not the agonizing crises and tangles of life."

But Rockwell touched on the crises of life: one

Visitation Day Scheduled On Nov. 13 For County Schools

Monday, Nov. 13, has been set aside by the Pitt County Board of Education as Parent Visitation Day in county schools.

Students will not attend school Monday in order for parents and teachers to meet and discuss children's interests, concerns and achievements, as well as give parents a chance to enter the school environment.

Last year, a day was emphasized in the county schools for parent visitation, noted Pitt County Schools Superintendent Ott Alford, which enjoyed "tremendous success." "The Board of Education hopes to make every contact possible with parents," Alford said. "We want parents to take advantage while their child is not having a problem."

"We want the parents to see the good things their boys and girls have been doing so far," Alford explained. "Too often parents wait until there are problems to come visit the school and its teachers."

The extended day schedule for each school is as follows: A.

'Only Child' Research Reported

By Francine Perry
ECU News Bureau

"Who Wants an Only Child?" is the title of a recent study by two East Carolina University sociologists which challenges some widely-held beliefs about couples who choose to limit their family size to one child.

Since the one-child family is "a violation of a basic norm," enforced by relatives, neighbors and churches, it is easy to assume that one-child couples are likely to live in large cities away from where they were reared, have little interaction with relatives and neighbors and reject religion.

But Drs. Kenneth Wilson and David Knox of the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology report that such assumptions are "inaccurate," as indicated by their analysis of data collected by the National Opinion Research Center for the 1975 General Social Survey.

Involved in their study were a representative sample of married adults of various ages who have one or more children and do not expect to have others.

The Wilson-Knox findings do not support the belief that social interaction and religion are significant factors in a couple's decision to have a single child.

"In older families, no statistically significant significant associations were found between family size and size of the community, interstate mobility, socializing with relatives and friends, church attendance or divorce rate," Dr. Wilson says.

"Older couples with one child did marry later than older multi-child couples. However, the older one-child families also visited their neighbors more often than their multi-child counterparts."

The researchers found that in younger one-child families (parents aged 39 years or less there was a tendency for mothers to reject religion more often than mothers of larger families.

But no relationships were observed between type of family and community size, mobility, interaction with others, or age at first marriage.

Even the level of commitment to the wife's career is not a constant factor; older mothers of one child were likely to be full-time housewives, while younger mothers of one were generally not only employed but committed to a high-level career.

"The data used in the study seem to indicate that there is no association between the level of social integration and family size, but that the decision to have one child is based upon a couple's own internal values rather than the expectations of society," says Knox.

"American culture has traditionally prescribed large families run by a mother whose most important mission in life was to see that the home functioned smoothly and that the children grew up to be proper adults," he said.

"Strong normative pressures existed to prod the reluctant couple who failed to internalize this idea. While some families have always chosen to rear an 'only child' to realize advantages in maintaining two careers, lowering expenses, or developing intense, high-quality parent-child relationships, they have had to bear the stigma of violating a basic family norm."

The two most powerful challenges to this norm have come from two major social movements—widespread awareness of over-population problems and the women's movement, which questioned many cultural conceptions of women's roles.

"One of the primary targets of this movement was the belief that women could be fulfilled only through the bearing and rearing of children," said Knox.

Throughout the nation's past women have made "substantial economic contributions," but these were regarded as secondary to the responsibilities of home and family, he added.

During the 1950's working mothers were blamed as potential causes of a variety of social problems, ranging from juvenile delinquency to mental illness, but despite this pressure, an increasing number of women being working outside the home.

"As the predicted problems did not occur, these norms began to weaken and the women's movement has provided a highly visible and supportive reference group for those couples who chose to limit their family size in order to advance the wife's career," said Wilson.

Daughter-In-Law Says Nothing

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law and I are separated by 3,000 miles. I never visit unless she invites me. She and my son have been married for 10 years and I'm invited for one week every year.

A half hour after my arrival, my daughter-in-law goes into her bedroom and leaves me with her two children, 7 and 8. Two hours later my son comes home and inform me that his wife has a headache.

I prepare the evening meal and my son takes his wife hers on a tray. This goes on every day until I leave. There is never any communication between us. She stays locked up in her room until I leave. She hardly says hello, and she never says goodbye. She doesn't even talk to her children. She acts as though they aren't there.

How can anyone be so hateful? She has a beautiful home, new car, money, clothes, jewelry—everything a woman could ask for.

This "sick" routine is a fake. If she doesn't want me to visit, why does she invite me? Her letters are so sweet. What is your opinion?

TEARS IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR TEARS: It's obvious that your daughter-in-law feels unable to handle any kind of communication with you, and she refuses to try. Before condemning her, ask your son what's going on. (She could be in therapy.) For you to have tolerated her disappearing act for 10 years without asking for an explanation seems strange. I can't blame you for shedding tears, but take comfort in the French philosophy: "To know all is to forgive all."

DEAR ABBY: Re the man who hired the four teen-age boys to mow his lawn and clean his garage. Glad to hear that the boys did such a good job, but I wonder whether this man complied with all the federal and state laws regarding employment.

Did he get the Social Security number of all four boys? Did he pay them with four personal checks? He must have these records for Social Security reports on withholdings if he pays more than $50 per quarter for domestic help. In fact, he should be able to verify or prove that he did not pay more than $50 per quarter in wages.

Did he pay the four boys all at the same rate of $2.65 per hour to comply with the federal minimum wage law? Then, too, I wonder whether he was adequately covered for accident liability with a private insurance policy or by a state-operated insurance plan. If the latter, this would involve more record keeping.

I am all in favor of employing teenagers. But it is not as simple as it sounds if you comply with all the laws, keep all the necessary records, and are adequately covered by liability insurance.

Must Prove Fears Baseless

Pitt County voters approved the conversion of Pitt Technical Institute to a community college in a referendum held with the general election on Tuesday.

While the voting on the issue was close as votes were tabulated all evening, the final results showed community college status winning by a vote of 7,591 to 6,972.

It was the second time that Pitt Countians had voted on community college status, with the issue failing to carry in the first balloting.

"The Daily Reflector" has supported community college status because we feel that the addition of the college level work will be a great advantage to the young people attending the local institute.

Pleasing Aspect Of Tuesday's Voting

One of the pleasant surprises of the Tuesday general election was a larger than expected turnout of voters.

Preliminary figures showed nearly 52 percent of the 28,021 registered voters in the county going to the polls.

THIS AFTERNOON

Battle Brews Over Drunks

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A major showdown on how North Carolina handles treatment of alcoholics is brewing for the 1979 General Assembly.

At stake are millions of dollars which are spent in this field, and an even more significant clash between philosophies of treatment.

United Health Services of North Carolina, a division of the state United Way organization, is preparing to take the fight to members of the General Assembly in an attempt to reshape the program.

"The technology to deal with alcoholism exists, and is well known," says Tony Mulvihill, executive director of the Durham-based health agency which concentrates primarily on alcoholism and drug-related ills.

That technology centers around community treatment; at home where family, employers, friends can bring the pressures to bear which can help an alcoholic face his problem and work through to a cure. Alcoholics Anonymous has devised workable programs for the majority.

Hospitals
But North Carolina clings

to the idea that mental hospitals are the prime treatment facilities for drunks. The result, charges Mulvihill and his agency, is untold millions of dollars spent — some would say wasted — on ineffective treatment programs.

The state program is run by the Mental Health Division of the Department of Human Resources. The figures are produced by the bureaucracy, and hard to nail down, but Mulvihill claims that a total of $22 million in local, state and federal funds are being spent on alcoholism programs. That's the official line. Another $12 million is going into detox centers in state hospitals or local centers, he said.

State mental hospitals report that 38 percent of all admissions are for alcoholism treatment, yet alcoholic patients make up only 8.4 percent of the total patient days logged because so many are in — sobered up — out. There is, Mulvihill charges, very little actual treatment or follow up, or work with the family to help them learn to deal with the problem.

Last fiscal year there were

At the same time we recognize that those who opposed community college status did so largely out of concern for preserving the vocational and technical programs which have made Pitt Tech so valuable to our community.

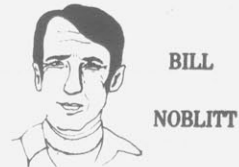

We have not felt that technical and vocational education would be impaired by community college status, and it is up to PTI administrators to prove to the taxpayers that emphasis on these valuable programs won't be decreased.

PTI will now be able to offer a broad and flexible range of programs to our area. It can improve the services it has been offering and add to them with a college level program.

In some elections the number voting falls well below 50 percent.

We are happy that high interest was shown by voters in the issues and candidates. We hope this is an indication of continued increased interest in the political process.

11,942 admissions for alcoholism to mental hospitals or area rehabilitation centers, but more than 3,000 of those were revolving door patients admitted more than once.

BILL
NOBLITT

Boiled down to their essentials, Mulvihill makes these charges:

Mental Health is spending more than budgeted or publicly reported on alcoholics, and that ineffectively;

Hospital admission figures are being used to beef up statistics in order to increase the budgets for the system, and to perpetuate institutional hospitals rather than more effective local programs.

Too Costly
Needy mentally ill patients are shortchanged as a result, as are local alcoholism programs which could benefit from more money (local treatment, for example, can be provided for about $15 daily compared to $55 per day at a state hospital).

All of which comes down, Mulvihill complains, to "Perpetuating the system with outrageously expensive programs...operated for the benefit of certain bureaucrats.

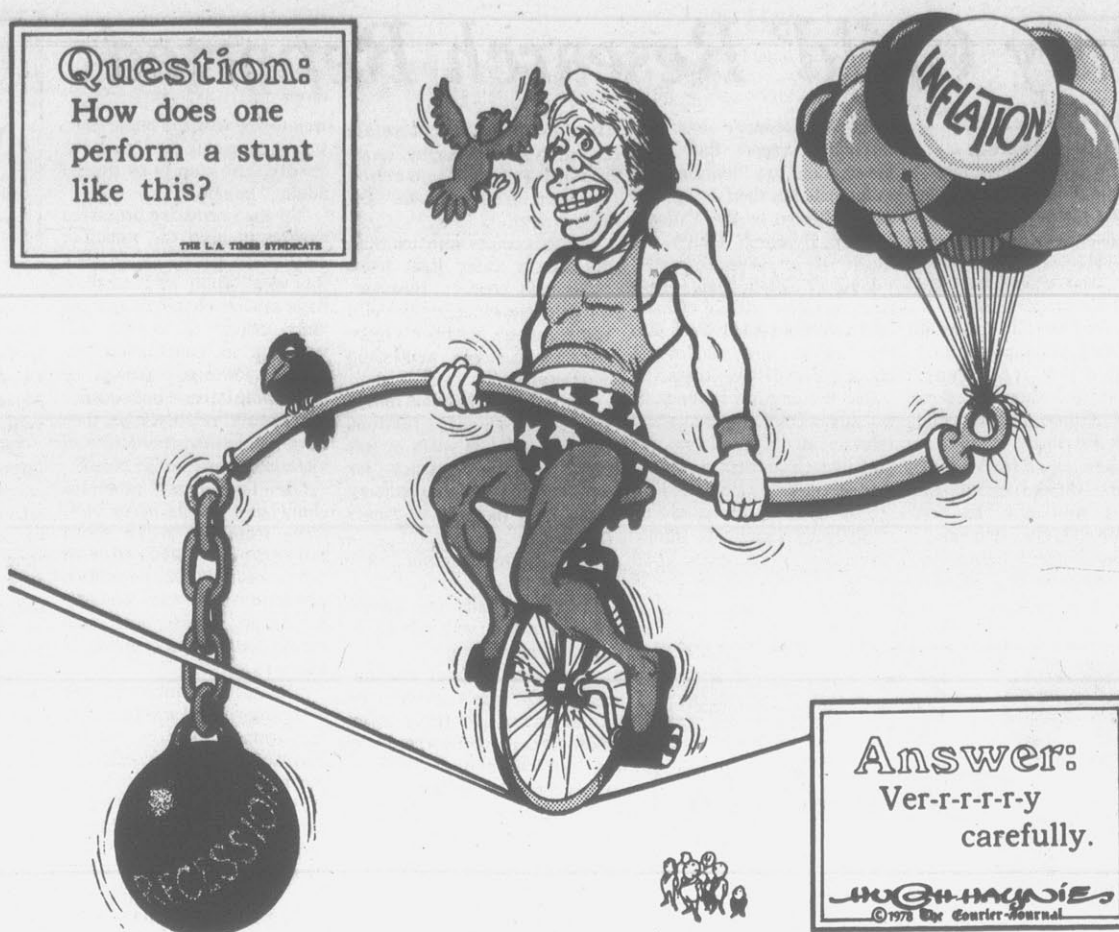

"The state is offering very costly and marginally effective institutional services without requiring any show of interest in treatment or in prolonged sobriety on the part of the individual," he says.

Additionally, with decriminalization of public drunkenness taking effect, it is expected that the Mental Health Division will seek more millions to deal with alcoholics who will be institutionalized rather than jailed.

United Health Services will propose to legislators that a statewide policy board complete with local advisory councils be established to run all alcoholism and drug programs, calling on agencies for approved programs and services.

TV Outlook Brightens

Billie Sol Estes went on trial for swindling in the fall of 1962. The Supreme Court reversed his conviction in June of 1965, holding that the "evils" of television in the courtroom had denied him a fair trial. Now, 13 years later, TV's prospects are looking up. We may yet see the day when televised coverage of the courts becomes a routine thing.

Two events suggest a significant change in the judiciary's view. Last August, meeting in Vermont the annual conference of State Chief Justices voted 44-1 in favor of permitting TV in the courtroom. Last week, in Florida, after a year's test in courtrooms across the state, participants indicated increasing approval of television coverage of judicial proceedings.

Florida's experience carries particular weight. The state's experiment began in July of 1977 and ran through June of this year. The experiment was comprehensive. TV stations were granted the right to cover the state courts, all the way from traffic cases in the county courts to oral arguments before the Florida Supreme Court.

When the year was up, a survey was undertaken to get the opinions of those who had participated. Last week the results were tabulated. Lumping together those who were "completely" in favor of TV and those who were "slightly" in favor, it appears that the idea won the approval of 64 percent of the jurors, 56 percent of the witnesses, 47 percent of the court employees, and 46 percent of the lawyers.

If the figures suggest something less than unanimous enthusiasm, the data nonetheless demonstrate a wholesale change from the ice-water attitudes expressed 13 years ago by Justice Tom Clark and Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Speaking for the Court in the Estes case Clark inveighed against television on a dozen grounds. The process would distract a jury; it would jeopardize a new trial; it would impair the quality of testimony; it would intrude upon the solemn decorum of the courtroom; it would heighten public clamor and thus "inevitably" result in prejudice.

Chief Justice Warren delivered himself of more strident denunciations. With Douglas and Goldberg joining him, Warren handed down a concurring opinion asserting that TV coverage of a criminal trial is "inherently" a denial of due process. Such TV coverage diverts a trial from its proper purpose, gives the public a wrong impression about justice in action, and Pitt County citizens evidenced little interest in yesterday's general election, only about 25-30 percent of a normal vote having been registered.

No Republicans were on the county ticket and the state Democratic candidates piled up large majorities over their Republican opponents, but no tabulations were available here, a number of precinct officials having deferred counting the ballots.

Results of voting in the county, however, will be available tomorrow when the county Board of Elections canvasses the vote.

The sales committee of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade announced this afternoon that the Greenville tobacco market would close on Friday, November 18, the earliest closing date in several years.

Through today, the Greenville market had sold 49,963,420 pounds for $11,740,888.83, and average of $23.80 per hundred pounds.

Other Editors Say Wages Of Beer

(The Raleigh Times)

Miller Brewing Company, settling in at the little town of Eden in Rockingham County, is cast in the role of the rich uncle come to live among poor relatives in Cannery Row.

Paying twice the going wage of $4.50 an hour at established and respected Fieldcrest Industries nearby, Miller, paying $9.25 an hour, is seen by other nervous Tar Heel textile firms as a harbinger of high wages and complex labor problems. It is the same sort of skittishness experienced by some local business leaders when Miller feinted once or twice in the direction of Wake County during its preliminary scouting for a Southern site.

It is not likely that Miller and Schlitz Brewing Co. in Winston-Salem, with their high wages and good working conditions, will have any impact of note on North Carolina's generally low wage scale — an average of $4.49 per hour. But that is not to say that a $23,000 per annum salary for what amounts to raw, unskilled labor will not be a psychological tool in the hands of unions pressing for higher pay for their members.

For example, the North Carolina Association of Educators, gearing up for its pitch to the 1979 General Assembly, has already used the Miller contract in rebutting in its house organ "Education" criticism from a state newspaper of NCAE's proposed range of up to $20,000 for a teacher with a Master's degree and 30 years experience.

The article noted Miller employees' $23,100 salary plus a paid lunch hour, 12 paid holidays, three sick days for which the employees will be paid if the days aren't taken, plus life, medical and dental insurance. "I guess the brewers all have doctorates," the writer concluded.

One might read into the Miller and Schlitz employee bonanzas the implication that brewing beer is more vital to the state's welfare than educating children or growing food or making clothing. But we see it as more of a misplaced phenomenon than anything else—a typically high Milwaukee wage scale.

In a state where the hourly wage averages $4.49, a wage twice that, plus generous fringe benefits and free beer, is bound to attract attention.

Foretell A Possible Downturn

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — More banks join in a prime rate rise to 10 3/4 percent. General Motors cuts its year-end dividend to $2.50 a share from $3.25. The founder of a medium-size Midwest business decides to retrench.

All moves were revealed on the same day, Tuesday, and all are links in the same chain of thought: They foretell a possible business downturn. Recession? Nobody likes to say, but they're thinking.

As always, General Motors had been rather bullish about prospects for the next year and, as expected of an industry leader whose forecasts can be self-fulfilling, it broadcasts its confidence widely and loudly.

But numbers sometimes declare themselves more forcefully than rhetoric. The reduction leaves GM's shareholders, about 1.25 million of them, with about $210 million less than they had expected.

Why did GM do it, especially after those bullish forecasts? Because, it said, "pressing demands of the business and uncertainties (which) require that the corporation maintain its strong capital position."

In other words, money is getting too costly to borrow. No amount of confidence or hopes can change that fact. To survive, a person or company adjusts. A little pain now saves more later.

The Midwest businessman, who hasn't yet told his employees and so asks for anonymity, had been quite bullish, as you would expect from a man who personally built a successful company from nothing in 15 years.

"Nothing the president can do is going to salvage the situation," he said. In his opinion, he continued, "we're going to have a recession that is deeper, more widespread and more prolonged than believed."

And so, after an almost steady expansion that included the acquisition of his chief local competitor just a few years ago, he said he would soon consolidate two factories into one, with resulting layoffs.

The company that is overextended, particularly in the amount of money it owes, can be mortally wounded in the coming recession, he said. "I might lose a few pairs of milk," he said, "but I'll save the cow."

And then? After a year or two the economy will be moving ahead again. "I'm positioning myself for that right now," he said.

While his retrenching might or might not be good business, depending upon the course of the economy, he contradicts himself in maintaining the president can do nothing to alter the course of events.

He, himself, is evidence of that: because of Washington's efforts to restrain inflation, if perhaps belatedly, he is cutting back when otherwise he might be planning further expansion.

If he and his counterparts continue to do so, then inflation might be reduced to what is now considered an acceptable 6 percent annual rate. The question then becomes: Can it be accomplished without recession?

Every economist and business person interviewed in the mid-section of the country during the past week conceded that the Washington decisions of last week increased the possibility of inflation.

Strength For Today

A KINGDOM AT HAND
When Jesus began to preach it was with the declaration that the kingdom of heaven was at hand.

Here is a basic teaching which many people fail to comprehend. The New Testament tells us that Jesus established the Kingdom of God on earth. That is, he brought down a portion of heaven into earthly environment and established it by changing men's hearts until they were filled with heavenly light and supported by a power far above anything known to the common ways of life.

The kingdom will never be fulfilled until the last great day. But the kingdom has been established. Its doors are open, inviting us to enter. The opportunities to live a heavenly life begin here and now and find their complete possibilities in the opportunities which we believe eternity will offer us.

We can start here and now by accepting the invitation which God gives us to enter the kingdom. Then we can bestir ourselves to spread its beneficent influence and power.

Elisha Douglass

And, asked to suggest the best blueprint for reining in inflation, spending cuts topped the list — preferred by 38 percent of voters surveyed — followed by imposition of wage and price controls, favored by 23 percent.

The public's economic restlessness reflects a widespread feeling that the economy is in trouble.

Forty-four percent of those interviewed said they expect the nation's economy to take a turn for the worse in 1979, while only 14 percent predicted better days ahead. Some 33 percent said they expect things to stay the same.

Finally, the poll says that apathy afflicts voters and nonvoters alike. While millions of Americans avoided the polls all day Tuesday, the survey indicates that one of every three voters agrees with this dim view of the electoral process: "No matter who is elected today, this election, like most others, won't make my life any better or worse."

But 52 percent disagreed with the statement. Presumably, they're hopeful.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News street poll can vary from the opinions of all voters because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with about 35,000 interviews, the results should vary no more than 1 percentage point either way

Amateur Radio Club Will Meet November 14

The Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club will hold their regular meeting November 14 at the Planters National Bank basement conference room, Third and Washington Streets, at 7:45 p.m. This meeting will be to honor past presidents and charter members.

New officers for the coming year will preside: Bernard Nobles, president; Danny Sullivan, vice president; and Jan Beckwith, secretary-treasurer.

The planned program will be a talk by a representative from Motorola.

On November 4, club members of Greenville, Jacksonville and New Bern met in Kinston for a dinner and discussed plans for next year's "Hamfest". The 1978 affair, sponsored by the three clubs, on October 15, was considered a great success.

That is, if one could talk to all voters in country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 1 percentage point.

pations and excesses. He feared that judges, lawyers, witnesses and jurors might play to TV cameras. He spoke of the "desecration" of a courtroom. He supposed a day might come when TV networks would have expert legal commentators in the fashion of expert football commentators. Judges would time their recesses to coincide with station breaks and commercial messages. And so on.

The chief justice's anathema did not command majority support. Justice Harlan concurred in the judgment that this particular case must be reversed. Justices Stewart, Black, Brennan and White dissented altogether.

In the ensuing 13 years, the technology of television steadily has evolved. The present state of the art provides unobtrusive electronic cameras that demand no special lighting. In Florida, the rules permitted one such camera in a courtroom, to be shared on a pooled basis by the broadcast media.

Dow Smith, news director for WPLG in Miami, is convinced that the year-long experiment greatly informed the public without jeopardizing anyone's constitutional rights. His own reporters covered some court proceedings on an average of two-and-a-half times a week. They found no problems whatever with ham-actor judges and lawyers. None of Warren's forebodings of 1965 came true.

For my own part, I favor TV coverage because I believe it would bring out the best, and suppress the worst, in the whole judicial process. The impassive eye of the TV camera would inhibit the judge who is tyrannical, argumentative or drunk. By watching the real-life drama of a trial, the public could better understand the phoniness of TV's prime time make-believe. I might be sorry, of course, if such TV coverage inspired a million youngsters to become lawyers, but the risk is worth taking.

N.C. 11-N.C. 13 Improvement Plans Are Talked

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
A public meeting on proposed improvements to N.C. 11- U.S.

13 between Greenville and Bethel was held at North Pitt High School last night, by the Department of Transportation.

DOT representative Bill Riggs said the purpose of the session was, "to let you know that a study is under way," and to provide area residents, "an opportunity for you to tell us what you would like for us to do."

Riggs said the project, including in the 1979-1985 Transportation Improvement Plan, involves, "a widening project, rather than a relocation project...although some relocation might be considered."

The four-laning of the highway is included in the plan for right-of-way acquisition to begin in fiscal year 1983 and for construction to begin in 1985.

Riggs noted that Kimley-Horn Associates, a Raleigh consulting firm, has been employed to conduct the environmental study of the project. The draft study will include several alternatives for the project, while the final environmental statement approved following a public hearing on the draft, will include the final plan.

One of the possible alternates, according to officials last night, would be a by-pass to the East of Bethel, rather than widening the existing highway through town.

Projected cost for the project is estimated at $13 million.

Ed Vick of Kimley-Horn said there are a number of study objectives, including, "the best possible way to widen from a two lane facility to a divided four lane facility," N.C. 11-U.S. 13, to attain an, "environmentally sound and economically obtainable program...to best serve your needs."

Vick said such things as land use planning, archeological surveys, probable impact on the environment (natural, ecological and scenic), relocation of people and businesses, air quality, noise quality, water resources and construction impacts, will be taken into account in the planning study.

According to Vick, field survey work should be completed by January, and the draft environmental impact study completed about May, 1979. Hearings would be held in mid-summer, he noted, with the final environmental impact statement ready about January 1980.

Bruce Leonard of the consulting firm noted that the present roadway saw 124 accidents between January, 1975 and June, 1978. Of the total, 43.5 per cent were one-car mishaps, 31 per cent occurred at night, 34 per cent were recorded in bad weather, and 32 per cent of the total were at intersections along the route. "You're talking about traffic doubling from now to 2005," the design year of the four-lane roadway, Leonard noted.

Leonard noted that generally, the project calls for widening the existing roadway to 24 feet and adding two more traffic lanes, with a desirable 60 foot wide median.

Officials noted that there would be partial control of access along the route. Driveway access would be maintained, while limited median crossovers would be provided for partial control of access.

Any questions, suggestions or comments on the project can be addressed to T. L. Waters, Planning and Research Branch, Division of Highways, Department of Transportation, Vick Jr., Kimley-Horn and Associates, Inc., P. O. Box 33037, Raleigh, N.C. 27606. Water's telephone number is 467-6351.

File Protest On Charter

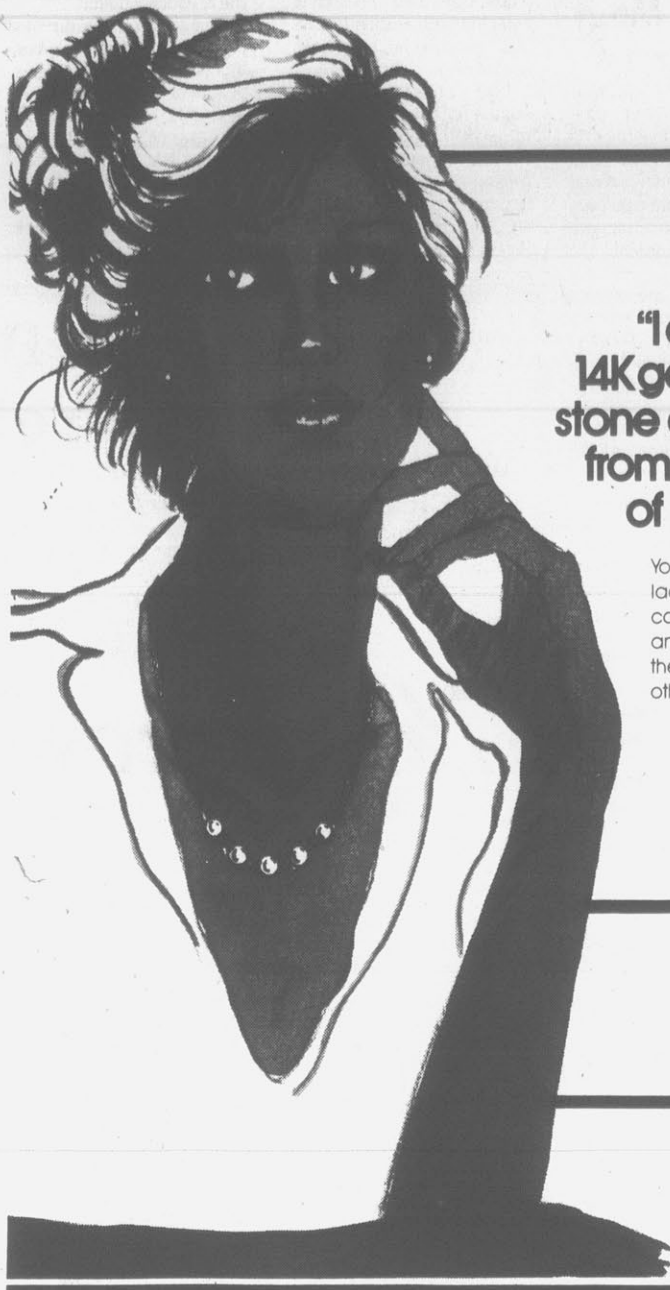

First Federal Savings and Loan of Greenville and Home Savings and Loan have filed a formal protest against the chartering of a new stock-owned savings and loan for the city.

North State Savings and Loan (Proposed), has applied for a charter and is scheduled to be heard by the Savings and Loan Commission on December 14. Two-hundred forty-eight local residents have subscribed the stock in the proposed new savings and loan.

Seaboard Savings and Loan of Washington has also filed a protest, but Seaboard did not request a formal hearing, as Home savings and First Federal did.

I. J. Edwards Jr., chairman of the proposed savings and loan, said, "We are very disappointed that the local savings and loans are making this effort to squelch competition in the third fastest growing community in the State."

Dr. Nenno Speaks To Area Ministers

The Greenville Ministerial Association met Monday at 10 a.m. at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Father Paul Byron is association president. Dr. Robert N. Nenno spoke about aspects of marriage counseling.

Dr. Nenno, Pitt County Mental Health Center Medical Director, discussed societal background factors in personal problems affecting modern lives. Citing lack of education for marriage and parenting as presenting problem areas in modern family life, the psychiatrist talked about maturity for marriage. Suggesting the possibility of mental health professions and clergy working together, Dr. Nenno proposed consideration of a pre-marriage workshop. The format and curriculum content could be formulated by ministers in conjunction with the mental health center. "Dr. Nenno will meet again next with the group as the association continues to assess pastoral counseling and its coordination with workshops for pre-marriage," Rev. James Bailey added.

Bible Week Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed Nov. 19-26 as Bible Week here and urged "all men, women and children of all faiths to observe the week by reading the Scriptures."

In his proclamation, Cox observed, "The Bible is the foundation book for Christians and Jews and a priceless collection of history, literature, poetry and divine revelation for the edification of all people."

The mayor said that "Biblical principles strengthen the moral and legal system which governs our way of life" and he pointed to the "continuing need to understand more fully the moral and spiritual insights of the Bible that shape personal character and foster social responsibility."

He added that "all the major religious groups and hundreds of clubs and organizations are united behind the Laymen's National Bible Committee's program to motivate Bible reading and study."

Balloon-Launch Slated Friday

Plans are set for 53 elementary students at Chicod Elementary School to release their own personal helium-filled, letter-bearing balloons to the air on Friday.

The students, members of two third grade classes, will send the lighter than air balloons skyward shortly after one o'clock Friday, weather permitting. In case of inclement weather, the experiment will be carried out on another day.

The youngsters have expressed excitement over the possibility of getting a response from their letters, and hope that area people will be on the lookout for descending balloons and will reply to the letters attached.

Honor Pupils Announced

BETHEL — The following students were placed on the honor roll for the first marking period at Bethel Elementary School: Keith Chandler, Juddy Joyner, Martha Rollins, and Scott Rawls.

Principal's list students are Lee Manning, Emily Smith, Ken Whitehurst, Chris Ayers, Bill Blount, Wanda Chandler, Daniel Keel, Quintin Yarrrell, Rose Bell, Anne Hamm, Greg Briley, Peggy Jenkins, Paige Latham and Steve Strickland.

ed the boy (his son, who was with him) over. It wasn't funny to me then or since."

Saying that he had seen his wife's car at Howell's home after the November, 1977 incident, Colcord testified that on the morning of May 17, he left home about five minutes after Mrs. Colcord left for work at 7:30 a.m. and "found her car parked in his garage. I went out to see if that isn't where she had gone," he explained.

"The guy had essentially stolen my wife," according to Colcord, who said he then went home, filled two glass jugs with gasoline, and drove to Tarheel Truck Rentals on Airport Road.

Parking in front of the building, Colcord said he walked to a point near the office door and, "dropped them (the jugs) at his (Howell's) feet," then turned, walked to his car and left.

"My intention was to warn him to stay away from my wife. I didn't intend to burn him or his building. I wanted to see that man and warn him to stay away."

When asked by defense attorney Milton Williamson if he recognized the consequences of his act, Colcord said, "No sir, I hadn't anticipated anything of this magnitude. At that time, the world was just unreal."

Under cross examination by Assistant District Attorney Tom Haigwood, Colcord said, "I wanted to hang onto my wife. That's what it's all about. I just hope something like this never happens to you."

Saying he is still living with his wife, Colcord said, "you know, love is a funny thing. No, it wasn't hate...it was trying to put a stop to the thing."

Colcord testified that the events of May 17 were, "like a dream...a nightmare," and that he was "in a fog," and not thinking clearly. "If you call this thinking, then you have a different definition of thinking than I do," he told the court.

"All I wanted to do was to warn him...not burn him" I hadn't given a thought that I might kill him."

This morning, Dr. H. D. Lambeth, a counselor with the East Carolina University counseling center, said, "absolutely" that the knowledge Colcord had of the involvement between Howell and Mrs. Colcord could have acted on his mind so Colcord might not have known the difference between right and wrong or the nature or consequences of his act.

Testimony in the trial ended before noon today.

memorable painting showed a tiny black girl walking with two husky white policemen.

"I went to Russia and they had it in the newspaper that these guards were taking her to prison," he once said. "I meant they were trying to take her to school."

Rockwell painted the famous — Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, John Wayne and John F. Kennedy.

He said his favorite president was Eisenhower. "When Ike gave you that grin he was an artist's delight," he once said.

Born in New York City, he had his only formal art training as a teen-ager in the Manhattan Art Students League. He later lived for many years in Arlington, Vt., before moving to Stockbridge.

His first marriage ended in divorce. His second wife, Mary, who died in 1959, was the mother of his three sons.

Speaker Expects Labor Reform Bill Up Again

Alfred Pollard, legislative aide for U. S. Senator Robert Morgan, was the guest speaker at the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Congressional Action Committee meeting Wednesday.

Pollard discussed the upcoming business legislation and answered questions concerning

Sen. Morgan's position on several issues.

Pollard listed labor law reform, product liability, workmen's compensation, export policies and wage-price controls as five of the top business legislative issues for the next session of Congress.

"We expect that the Labor Law Reform Bill will be brought back up during the next session. There will be changes, but many of the same issues will be included. This bill left a bad taste in the Senate before, so it will be interesting to see what form of legislation and what reaction will be in the Senate," Pollard said.

He encouraged the committee to keep an eye on the bill's proposed changes and to keep in contact with its representatives. "We appreciate your input. We need more of it," he said.

Pollard received his B.A. and Law Degrees from UNC-CH. Morgan, Pollard worked with committee on constitutional Prior to working with Sen. Sam Ervin's sub-rights.

Correction

In a news article in Tuesday's edition of "The Daily Reflector," reporting that the Board of County Commissioners agreed with a suggestion from the Pitt County Bar Association that a portrait of the late J. Frank Harrington be hung in the Court House, Harrington was incorrectly identified as a former Justice of the Peace.

Harrington actually served as Clerk of Superior Court in Pitt County.

Ten-Year-Old Suffers Ten Heart Deformities

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Edwin Tate of Durham has heart problems that in a lesser number would be considered normal in anybody else. But Edwin is 10-years old, and he has a heart deformity for each of his years.

But his mother, Rose Ward, says there are other problems the two of them must consider before Edwin enters Duke Medical Center for open heart surgery that could save his life. The main problem is money.

"Edwin has had heart problems since birth," said Mrs. Ward. "We just didn't know how short time was getting."

Mrs. Ward supports herself and her son working as a telephone operator at Durham County General Hospital. Her salary, however, cannot pay for the tremendous medical bills she now has and those facing her.

Since Edwin was born with his heart condition, he cannot get health insurance, according to his mother.

Edwin was at Duke last week for tests and evaluation. "We have bills now of over $3,000 for just that week," Mrs. Ward said.

Duke officials say the hospital has always admitted emergency patients for treatment. "We do ask if the surgery is elective and can be postponed for a few weeks that it be postponed until third party sponsorship is found," said Edith Rosenblatt, a hospital administrator.

Doctors say Edwin needs the surgery soon. "The doctors tell me he will probably in surgery for one whole day," his mother said.

"Edwin is showing tremendous courage," his mother said. "He's such a live wire no one believes he is victim of such a rare heart problem. We just pray for a successful operation."

Sierra Club To Meet Monday

The Joseph LeConte Chapter of the Sierra Club will meet Monday, Nov. 13 at 8 p.m. in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church, 14th and Elm Streets.

At the meeting, plans for improving and maintaining water quality in North Carolina will be discussed.

Guest speaker will be Roger Sharrett, the public participation representative for the Water Quality Planning Program in the N. C. Department of Natural Resources.

Anyone interested in fishing, swimming, boating, or other activities on North Carolina's rivers and streams is encouraged to attend.

Perfect SAT Score By A Walnut Cove Student

WALNUT COVE, N.C. (AP) — Ted Gentry is in something of a select group of high school students in North Carolina and across the nation.

At South Stokes Senior High School here, he had a grade point average of 99 out of 100 in his sophomore and junior years. This year he is ranked first in his senior class of 342. And the last time he took the Scholastic Achievement Test, he made 1600—a perfect score.

"It was something I'd been shooting for for a while," Gentry said recently. "The goal had been in the back of my mind. To be honest, I enjoy taking tests like that."

The Educational Testing

Service of Princeton, N.J., said Gentry is part of an estimated 1 percent of 1.5 million high school students in the country to make a perfect score on the test during the 1977-78 school year.

Gentry got his perfect score when he took the test in March. The previous time he took it, he scored 1510.

The SAT is given six times each school year to high school juniors and seniors. Colleges use SAT scores as a means of determining which students to accept. Grades are not Gentry's only fortune, however. For three consecutive years he has been named to the all-state band as a bassoon player. During the past two summers, the 17-year-old has toured Europe with a 125-piece band. He also lettered as a junior in basketball and is on the South Stokes team again this year.

Gentry says he has always made good grades, but apparently he has no system for his success.

"I'm haphazard about studying," he said. "I don't have a system, by any means. If I see something that needs doing, I just get it done. Occasionally I won't want to do things so I'll do just what it takes to learn the material. I'm grade-oriented; I do like to see those big numbers. So far I haven't run into too many problems."

South Stokes has nominated Gentry for the Morehead Scholarship at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. But he says he is considering Wake Forest, Duke, Dartmouth and Princeton in addition to UNC.

At the moment he plans to be a malpractice lawyer or work with the appeals portion of the law when all the schooling is finished.

"I'm always glad to move on to something new," Gentry said. "I think I'd have a ball being a lawyer."

Charge Driver In Collision

Sue Ann Young of Washington, D. C. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 12:15 p.m. collision yesterday on Greene Street, 63 feet North of the Martin Street intersection.

Police reported the Young car collided with a truck operated by Franklin Grady Vaughn of 1609 South Elm St., causing an estimated $800 damage to the truck and $250 damage to the car.

Mart Closing At Farmville

FARMVILLE — Offerings on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday consisted of mostly damaged and non-descript leaf, according to sales supervisor Louis Williams.

He reported that the volume of sales Wednesday was approximately the same as on Tuesday with low grades and primings accounting for a large percentage of sales.

Williams said that very little top quality tobacco appeared on the warehouse floors for Wednesday's sale.

Stabilization receipts accounted for 6.42 percent of gross sales.

The market sold 138,176 pounds for $155,600, an average of $112.61 per hundred pounds. For the season, Farmville warehouses have sold 35,247,976 pounds for $48,467,400, an average of $137.50 per hundred pounds.

Williams noted that the Farmville Market closes today following the conclusion of sales activity.

Frinks Seeks Join Forces In Fighting Competency Tests

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina leader of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said Wednesday he plans to meet with some of the leaders of the state's Christian schools to see if the two factions can join forces in opposing the state minimum competency test.

And, Golden Frinks charged Tuesday that state officials had given an easier version of the test to the state's juniors last week to get those opposing it to back down in their efforts to block it.

Frinks, in a telephone interview, said he would meet with the Rev. Daniel Carr of Winston-Salem next Monday to exchange information and ideas on the competency testing program. Carr is the head of the Organized Christian Schools of North Carolina and the minister of South View Baptist Church. He did not administer the test at South View's school and said few other Christian school administrators did either.

Frinks said he was meeting with Carr to find out if the Christian schools would support the SCLC in its attempt to block the test. The conference filed suit in federal court in New Bern Oct. 31 asking for a restraining order to stop the test from being given. However, the suit still has not been heard, and the test was given scheduled Nov. 1 and 2.

Many of the students who took the test claimed it was easy and some even said the state shouldn't bother with it. Those remarks led Frinks to charge that what students took last week was an easier, substitute version of the test and not the one that will be used later.

However, state education officials and the head of the state Competency Test Commission denied there had been any substitution.

Frinks said the outcry from groups protesting the competency test prompted the switch.

"They did it so the children would come home and say it was easy and then the parents would draw back in their protest and say, 'well if it is that easy, go ahead and take it.'"

However, Dr. James Gallagher, chairman of the test commission, said this was not true. He answered a flat no when asked if there had been any kind of substitution.

And Dr. Jerry Melton, deputy state superintendent of Public Instruction said, "The test that was given is the same verbatim as the one approved by the commission."

Melton said it was too early for a decision on the ease of the test. He said people should wait until the scores are in Dec. 15 to make that judgment.

Candidate Is A 'Ghost'

SEATTLE (AP) — Democratic Party officials are still looking for Rich Nordstrand, the phantom candidate.

It was what Nordstrand didn't do during the campaign for the 36th District legislative seat that gained him publicity. He made no personal appearances or campaign speeches. State and county party officials couldn't find him, and neither could the Public Disclosure Commission, which sought him for failing to file a personal financial disclosure report.

Still, more than 5,800 voters found his name in the voting booth. Unfortunately for Nordstrand, more than twice as many voters marked the name of his opponent, Joe Tallier, the Republican incumbent.

"I've never seen him," Tallier said during the campaign. "No one has."

The 36th district is considered a swing district. "The Democratic nomination could have meant something," Tallier said.

The King County prosecuting attorney's office still wants to find Nordstrand. The office filed suit against him to force compliance with the disclosure law — but couldn't find Nordstrand to serve the papers.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a modest gain today as Wall Street awaited President Carter's news conference.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off about 4 points in early trading, was up 2.25 at 809.86 by noontime today.

Gainers held a 5-3 lead over losers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said some buying had been encouraged by the Dow's successful stands at the 800 level Tuesday and Wednesday.

But they also noted no relief in the news background from such lingering worries as inflation and high and still-rising interest rates.

Meanwhile, traders appeared to be moving cautiously prior to President Carter's scheduled news conference this afternoon.

Middle South Utilities led the active list, off 1/4 at 14 1/2. A 619,000-share block of the stock traded at 14 1/4.

Celanese climbed 1 1/2 to 41 and Olin shares were delayed in opening, following word that the two companies had ended

Jags, Tarboro Clash In First Round

By JIM KYLE

Reflector Sports Writer

Farmville Central's football team is in better shape right now than it was last season when the Jaguars entered the state 3-A playoffs, according to coach Gene Brewer, but whether it is in good enough shape to defeat powerhouse Tarboro remains to be seen.

The Vikings are considered the best team in the eastern part of the state and the Jaguars have to tackle them on the road in Friday night's first round game. Brewer's team is excited about the prospect of tangling with the Vikings, but knows it will be up against some stiff competition.

It will be the third trip to the playoffs in as many years for the Jaguars, who compiled a 9-1 record during the regular season. The team went all the way to the eastern finals two years ago, but were knocked out in the second round last year.

"I think at this time, that we're a better offensive and defensive football team than last year when we went to the playoffs," Brewer commented. Most of the players off last year's team returned, and Brewer said they have worked hard to improve the team.

"The kids have worked hard this year. They really improved the ballclub. They could have been satisfied with what they did last year, but they weren't. Without the improvement, we still stood a good chance to win the conference championship."

The Jaguars have shown a good deal more consistency this season, the coach said, especially on offense. "The blocking and running have been more consistent, and we have handled the ball pretty well." Fumbles were a problem for the Jaguars last season.

One of the biggest areas of improvement has been on defense, Brewer said. "We went into the season with the biggest problem being the defensive secondary." The problem was inexperience as graduation and an injury left the team to start the season with no experience in the defensive backfield.

"They have come along, and now they are a good secondary. That's the biggest area of improvement, but the whole front line has also improved," Brewer praised tackles Phillip Gordon and Ronnie LoLocust, along with ends Allen Moore and Mike King.

The Jaguars are happy to be entering the playoffs for the third straight season, but are wary of "jumping on Tarboro, probably the strongest team in the East, in the first round," Brewer said. But he quickly added, "I feel like we're capable of doing some things we hope can help us win the ballgame."

The Vikings boast an outstanding running attack that will test the Jaguar defense. But defense has been a strong point for the Eastern Carolina Conference champs all season. They have allowed less than 150 yard per game.

"Their running attack is their strongest point," Brewer said. "They throw the ball fairly effectively, but they're going to come out to run the ball against us."

The Vikings have two 1,000-yard rushers, including Kelvin Bryant, considered to be the top college prospect in the state this year. "If he's not the best, he's one of the best backs in the state," Brewer commented. "He's got speed, good size and gives second and third effort."

Defensively, Brewer said the Jaguars "feel like we're in pretty good shape. Of course, we haven't gone up against the caliber of offensive team that Tarboro is." Anchoring the tough Farmville defense are twin linebackers Ronald and Donald Reid. The defense is geared around this hard-nosed pair and they will shoulder much of the responsibility for stopping the Tarboro ground game.

Brewer expects the Viking defense to line up in a 5-2 or 5-3 formation against the Jaguars, who gained well over 3,000 yards offensively this season. The Tarboro defense has "good size; they're big, strong and have above-average quickness."

Farmville has depended on the passing arm of quarterback Donald Freeman, who passed for over 1,200 yards with a 59 per cent completion rate this season, along with the running of Donald Reid, who gained over 1,100 yards.

The team's other running back will be either Roger Joyner or David Dunn, recently returned to the team after an injury. Billy McLawhorn and James Tyson are the leading targets for Freeman.

The Jaguars will base their attack on what the Vikings do, Brewer said. "We'll do it just about like we did all year. See what they're going to give us and then try to take advantage of it."

Play will continue through Saturday.

Perry Day Is Set For City

Greenville Mayor Percy Cox has signed a proclamation naming Friday as "Gaylord Perry Day" in Greenville.

The proclamation honors Perry, a native of neighboring Martin County, for his winning the Cy Young Award in the National League this year. Perry is the first man to win it in both the National and American Leagues and the oldest ever to do so.

Mayor Cox' proclamation reads: "Whereas, the citizens of the city of Greenville recognize and appreciate the achievements and honors bestowed upon Mr. Gaylord Perry as an outstanding athlete; and,

Whereas, Gaylord Perry is a native of the Farm Life community of Martin County, North Carolina; and,

Whereas, he is a 20-year veteran in baseball having played with the Texas Rangers, Cleveland Indians, San Francisco Giants, and now San Diego Padres; and,

Whereas, he has obtained 3,000 strikeouts thus making him third on the all-time list; and,

Whereas, he was the winning pitcher in the National League; and,

Whereas, he has had 21 wins and six losses this year; and,

Whereas, Gaylord Perry is the recipient of the Cy Young Award and is the oldest person ever to be selected; and

Whereas, he is the first person ever to win the Cy Young Award in the American League and the National League; and Now therefore, I, Percy R. Cox, Mayor of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, do hereby proclaim Friday, November 10, 1978, as "Gaylord Perry Day" in the City and Greenville and urge the citizens of this city and community to recognize the honorable achievements made by this deserving athlete and native North Carolinian.

Done this 7th day of November at City Hall, Greenville, North Carolina. Percy R. Cox, Mayor."

Kicking Game Displeased Dye; But Rest Was Apple Of His Eye

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Sometimes football coaches like to catch you by surprise.

One would have thought that after East Carolina University's 33-8 victory over Appalachian State that Coach Pat Dye would have a lot of praise for his Pirates.

Wednesday afternoon, at his weekly press luncheon, he did have plenty of praise, but he didn't start out that way.

"Our kickoff coverage was terrible," he sprang to the press. "It's awful to be so scared to score because you know that when you kickoff there is the danger that they'll run the kickoff back on you for another touchdown," Dye said.

"And our extra point kicking was terrible. We missed two out of three. And I can't understand how he (Bill Lamm) can kick two 40-yard field goals and then lose his concentration on two extra points."

So much for the bad news. It was on to the good news after that.

Dye praised the punt return game and the coverage game on punting. ASU did not return any punts, and Gerald Hall put the Pirates in good field position several times with his returns.

"I was very pleased with the way we played defense, and I still think that Appalachian has an excellent offensive football team," Dye said. "I don't know how much not having (quarterback Steve) Brown out of there. But we had an excellent game plan and we performed it well."

Dye said that two crucial penalties (one for facemasking on Hall, and one for pass interference on Willie Holley) kept Appalachian's lone touchdown drive alive. The latter gave ASU a first and goal at the one, and even then, it took a fourth down two-yard run for the score. Aside from that, the Mountaineers never got inside the 35 yard line of the Pirates.

"Holding ASU to 168 yards was not a bad night when you consider that they are the number five team in the country in offense. It was an excellent team effort."

Offensively, Dye was also happy. "If there was anything that was disappointing it was that penalties kept us from scoring more. Our passing game was not as sharp as it should have been, but I think maybe we tried to go deep too often instead of opening things up with the short game. We killed two scoring opportunities with a lost fumble and a penalty. But one turnover in the entire game is very good when you compare it with some of our past games."

Dye added that the Pirates' execution showed continued improvement from that of the Richmond game. "But we still are not where we want to be. We haven't gotten a complete game from the team in every respect. "And I still think that if we do, we can be the best football team in this state."

Holmes Makes Title Defense

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "Anytime you get over $200,000 you can call it a main event," says Ken Norton.

But Norton's scheduled 10-rounder against Randy Stevens Friday night at Caesars Palace is certainly not the main event. That honor, plus a purse of $1.5 million, belongs to Larry Holmes and Alfredo Evangelista, who is getting not only $150,000 but also a chance at the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship.

Holmes gained that title by scoring a split decision over Norton here June 9.

Holmes did a little gloating over that accomplishment Wednesday at a news conference when he said:

"I don't want to be like Ken Norton ... to have the title for three months and lose it. He worked hard and it's a shame that in his first defense he had to fight me."

"He has to say something," said Norton. "It doesn't bother me. I have nothing to say."

Norton had to work his way back after a two-round knockout in a title bid against George Foreman in 1974 and had to scrap his way back after a decision loss to Muhammad Ali in 1976. Now, he knows, he has to do it again.

When introduced at Wednesday's news conference, Norton said, "Well, I haven't a lot to say because I'm a supporting actor on this show."

A loss to Stevens, who has a 10-4-0 record, would probably make Norton an ex-fighter.

Norton, who has made two movies and plans to make more, wants another shot at the title, but there is a time limit on that goal.

"I plan on fighting possibly another year," he said. With or without the title, he was asked. "Hey, why punish yourself, regardless of what happens."

The Norton-Stevens fight is scheduled to open an ABC-TV show which will run from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. EST.

Also on the card will be a WBC junior lightweight title bout between champion Alexis Arguello of Nicaragua against Arturo Leon of Tucson, Ariz.

Holmes will be fighting for the first time since he won the title from Norton. Should he succeed against Evangelista, and he is a heavy favorite, he has said he would fight Norton next year. But the people around Holmes have indicated Norton would not be the champion's next opponent.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S MATCH-UP between Farmville Central and Tarboro in the first round of the state 3-A playoffs has all the ingredients of a classic battle.

It features the top two teams in the eastern 3-A ranks, which include two powerful offensive squads and two of the toughest defenses around. The game will be at Tarboro, the Northeastern Conference champion and top team in the eastern 3-A. Some say Tarboro may be the best team in the state in any classification.

By comparison, Eastern Carolina Conference representative Farmville appears nearly as strong as the Vikings, and it would be no great shock if the Jaguars proved themselves to be the better team Friday night. At any rate, an outstanding high school football game is expected.

Tarboro comes into the ballgame undefeated, sporting victories over Rocky Mount, which will play in the 4-A playoffs Friday night, and conference rival Ahoskie, another highly-regarded team. The Vikes downed the Gryphons 28-18 in the first game of the season and clinched the loop championship with a 14-6 win over once-beaten Ahoskie.

THE OFFENSIVE CAPABILITIES of the two teams are unquestioned. The aforementioned two Tarboro wins were the only games in which the Vikings were even threatened. They won by at least three touchdowns in their eight other encounters and defeated Southwest Edgecombe 62-0.

Farmville Central averaged over 38 points per game in gaining a 9-1 record this season. The Jaguars went over 40 points in their last eight ballgames, while they were held to a low of six against 4-A Eastern Wayne. That game was the team's lone loss, 21-6.

The Vikings boast a pair of 1,000-yard rushers, halfbacks Kelvin Bryant and Darryl Howard. Bryant, considered the top college prospect in the state this season, ran for 1,131 yards while playing just half of most games. He averaged nearly 10 yards per carry.

Bryant will probably choose a North Carolina college to continue his career, according to Tarboro coach Jim Brett. He has narrowed his choices down to four schools, three in N.C. Most likely, they are Carolina, East Carolina and N. C. State, with UNC the suspected front-runner.

Howard picked up 1,034 yards this season, taking advantage of the fact that many opposing teams keyed on Bryant. Both backs were aided by the blocking of fullback Jimmy Williams, who seldom carries the ball.

The Jaguars have a 1,000-yard rusher of their own in running back Donald Reid. Reid was the leading rusher in the ECC with 1,108 yards on 148 carries, a 7½-yard per rush average.

Two top-notch passers will line up at quarterback, Jaguar Donald Freeman and Viking Tim Crisp. Both are college prospects, completing well over 50 per cent of their passes, although Freeman is probably a better runner than Crisp.

DEFENSIVELY, THE TEAMS are also strong. Farmville Central's defensive squad is led by linebackers Ronald and Donald Reid, twin juniors. The hard-hitting pair have been instrumental in helping the Jaguars hold their opposition to just 72 points this year. That averages out to a little over one touchdown per game given up.

Bryant, who doubles as a defensive back, and tackle Kenny Brown, are considered the leaders of the Tarboro defense. It has been even more successful against scoring than Farmville, allowing just 57 points.

A large part of Friday night's ballgame will depend on just how successfully the two defenses perform, especially Farmville's ability to stop Bryant. But as the statistics show, keying on Bryant will not necessarily stop the Vikings.

THE WINNER OF Friday night's game will advance to the eastern semifinals and have a total of three more games for a state championship. All except the semifinal game will be on the road.

Farmville Central has defeated the Northeastern Conference representative for the past two seasons and reached the eastern finals two years ago. In both of the past two years, Clinton has knocked the Jaguars out of the playoffs.

With the top two teams in the East meeting this week, the winner should be favored to go all the way. Friday night's game could be the best in the state this year, and no doubt many college scouts, as well as fans, will be there.

Nebraska Picked To Upset No. 1; Pirates Given Nod Over Indians

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

It's a proud number to wear — No. 1 — but it's as deadly as a black cat tripping under a ladder and smashing a mirror into 13 pieces. It's like making the cover of a slick magazine. If you're No. 1, you worry about keeping it. If you're not, you play your innards out to get it.

Such are emotional factors Saturday in the game between No. 1 Oklahoma (9-0) and No. 4 Nebraska (9-1), hungry for revenge. Even if the Sooners have the muscle, the Cornhuskers should have an edge in desire. We'll see.

Last week's score: 45-12, 780. Season: 309-109, 739.

Nebraska 33, Oklahoma 30: After the race horse backs of both teams run each other out of breath, Billy Todd's FG wins it.

Penn State 27, North Carolina State 14: The Nittany Lions prolong major college football's longest winning streak.

Alabama 24, LSU 14: The Tide trumps the Tigers' ace, Charles Alexander, and leads with Tony Nathan.

Southern Cal 32, Washington 20: The Trojans refuse to be upstaged by their northern rivals in the Rose Bowl race.

Texas 18, Houston 14: It's Texas' version of the shootout in the OK corral.

Michigan 30, Northwestern 7: The Wolverines have to be looking ahead to the Purdue game.

UCLA 35, Oregon State 6: The Californians won't give the Beavers much meat to gnaw on.

Florida 19, Georgia 14: The improving Gators put a crimp in the Bulldogs' SEC title hopes.

Purdue 28, Wisconsin 13: The way Purdue throws the ball around, who'd guess Coach Jim Young learned at Woody Hayes' knee?

Maryland 33, Virginia 7: The Terrapins get a chance to let wounds heal from the Penn State clobbering.

Notre Dame 25, Tennessee 14: The Vols' Johnny Majors knows what to expect, but can do little about it.

Clemson 28, North Carolina 14: The Tar Heels have fallen upon lean times and Clemson can't be too sympathetic.

Arkansas 25, Baylor 10: The Razorbacks have the talent —

ASK DR. SNEAD

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Pro golfers have long contended that Sam Snead has the perfect swing. One who will attest to that is JoAnne Carner of the LPGA.

Carner was in a slump midway through the 1978 season and she went to see Snead, a longtime friend of her husband. After watching her for 20 minutes, Snead came up with a prescription. JoAnne's left arm was bending slightly on the downswing and she was losing power. Snead told her that he had encountered the same thing three decades earlier.

The result of the lesson was a three-week surge during which time JoAnne won one tournament and finished second in two others.

Big Eight Title, Orange Bowl Bid Ride On Sooner-Husker Tilt

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — They ascended five years ago at Norman, Okla., and at Lincoln, both inheriting successful football programs, the offensive and defensive alignments their teams still use and fans with a voracious appetite for victory.

Both won much more often than they lost.

But there is a critical difference in the records of Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer and Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne, whose squads battle Saturday on national television for a share of the Big Eight Conference title and almost certainly an Orange Bowl bid.

Switzer, the winningest active coach in bigtime collegiate football among those with at least five years experience, has not lost to an Osborne-coached team since each became head coach in 1973.

Switzer, whose Sooners are undefeated and ranked No. 1 nationally, has a lifetime record of 60 wins, five losses and two ties.

He pondered his record against the Cornhuskers and Osborne this week and said, "If those games had been reversed, he (Osborne) would have been the winningest coach in major college football."

Spurs Crush San Diego By 163-125

By The Associated Press
The San Antonio Spurs took no prisoners Wednesday night. "They just beat us in every phase of the game," said San Diego Coach Gene Shue after dropping an embarrassing 163-125 National Basketball Association decision to the Spurs. "They run and shoot better than anyone. They are also one of the best passing teams I've seen."

The total was the highest in the NBA this season and set a new franchise record for the Spurs. The old mark was 160 when the team was known as the Dallas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association.

It was the Spurs' rebounding that set up a brilliant fastbreak. Often whipped on the boards last season and so far this season, San Antonio overwhelmed the opposition on the boards, 61-43.

In other NBA action, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Boston Celtics 112-109; the Los Angeles Lakers turned back the Indiana Pacers 113-111; the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the

New Jersey Nets 137-133 in double overtime; the Detroit Pistons crushed the Milwaukee Bucks 117-106; the New York Knicks beat the Seattle SuperSonics 104-100; the Kansas City Kings downed the Golden State Warriors 105-97 and the Phoenix Suns whipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 118-96.

George Gervin scored 38 points in only 26 minutes of action for the Spurs, who also got 28 points off the bench from Paul. Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer, sat out the fourth quarter after hitting 17 of 20 field goal attempts in the first three periods. He got 19 of his points in the third quarter.

Trail Blazers 112, Celtics 109
Lionel Hollins hit two free throws with 25 seconds left to enable Portland to foil a second-half comeback by Boston. Portland opened up a 10-point halftime lead, 60-50, sparked by the inside shooting of center Tom Owens.

Boston, trailing 76-61 midway through the third period, caught the Trail Blazers and moved into a four-point lead, 98-94, with 6:25 remaining in the game. But key baskets by guard Dave Twardzik and forward Maurice Lucas helped Portland take a 110-109 lead.

With just 25 seconds left, Nate Archibald fouled Hollins, who sank two free throws to ice the game.

Lakers 113, Pacers 111
Adrian Dantley sank two free throws with 22 seconds left to lead Los Angeles over Indiana. Dantley led all scorers with 34 points, hitting all 10 attempts from the free throw line.

Seaver, Reds Agree To New Money Pact

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tom Seaver and the Cincinnati Reds did not waste any time in reaching agreement on a contract that makes the veteran righthander baseball's latest millionaire.

Seaver calls his five-year, reported $2 million salary package "the easiest contract I ever negotiated."

The contract, which reportedly calls for $400,000 a year, makes Seaver, 33, one of the highest-paid pitchers in baseball.

The three-time Cy Young Award winner could have played out his option in 1979 and put himself up for bids in the free agent draft. He reached agreement with the Reds while touring Japan with the National League club.

"I had in mind a figure that I thought was fair and equitable. The Reds were willing to pay me that. What more could I ask?" he said in a telephone interview from Nagoya.

He said he decided on a figure "that I thought was fair to both sides, a figure that took into consideration the way things are today and my contribution to baseball over the years. I mentioned the figure and the Reds agreed to pay, almost immediately."

The Reds acquired Seaver in June 1977 after a bitter salary dispute with the New York Mets' chairman of the board M. Donald Grant. He was earning $275,000 a year with the Mets and he agreed not to renegotiate until his New York contract expired after the 1978 season.

The signing comes at a time when the Reds are embroiled in a heated contract feud with veteran batting star Pete Rose.

"I've been down that road myself," said the veteran right-hander. "I know what it's like and it's a shame that relationships like that have to develop."

In signing Seaver, the Reds noted in a statement that the pitching great "will assume a large leadership role with the team." The remark was interpreted by one local newspaper as meaning that the

A jump shot by Henry Bibby with 3:14 left in the second overtime period put Philadelphia ahead to stay as the 76ers edged New Jersey.

The 76ers recovered from a 17-point deficit at the end of the first period and led by 119-117 with three seconds left in regulation. But Eric Money, who scored 37 points for the Nets, tied the game with an eight-foot jumper to send the game into overtime. The Nets had a four-point lead with 48 seconds left in the first extra period, but couldn't hold on.

Pistons 117, Bucks 106

Bob Lanier scored 16 of his 35 points in the final period as Detroit came from behind to beat Milwaukee. The bullish center hit Detroit's first three baskets of the closing period and added a free throw to put his team in front to stay at 95-93.

M.L. Carr followed with another three-pointer and rookie John Long with a jumper that made it 100-93 with just under seven minutes left. After the Bucks cut the gap to 104-100, two free throws by Terry Tyler and two more baskets by Lanier quickly vaulted the Pistons in front by 10 points and they coasted the rest of the way.

Knicks 104, Sonics 100

Bob McAdoo came off the bench to score 31 points and help break open a tight game in the last 3½ minutes as New York beat Seattle. The Knicks trailed 93-92 with 3:33 left before McAdoo went to work. He scored eight of the Knicks' final 12 points as New York claimed its sixth victory against seven losses.

Gus Williams scored 22 points for the losers.

Kings 105, Warriors 97

Phil Ford scored 21 points and did a good defensive job on John Lucas, leading Kansas City over Golden State. The 21 points was a professional high for Ford, the All-American guard from North Carolina. Golden State's top scorer was another rookie, forward Purvis Short, who also hit his NBA high with 26 points.

Suns 118, Cavaliers 96

Ron Lee scored 24 points and Mike Bratz added a career-high 20 as the Phoenix bench tallied 66 points to lead the Suns past Cleveland. The Cavs, playing without Campy Russell, managed only 37 points in the first half as the Suns pulled away to a solid 25-points lead at intermission and coasted home.

Act Hoped To End Squabbles

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed into law legislation expected to stop squabbling among U.S. amateur athletic groups and to beef up the nation's participation in international athletic competition, especially the Olympic Games.

The Amateur Sports Act of 1978 promotes and coordinates amateur athletic activity in the United States, recognizes certain rights for the amateur athlete and provides for resolution of disputes involving national sports governing bodies such as the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Carter, in signing the measure, said, "I hope this legislation will strengthen United States participation in international amateur sports competition and broaden opportunities for all Americans to enjoy amateur sports."

The President's Commission on Olympic Sports, created in 1975 by President Ford, studied amateur sports in this country and concluded that 50 years of feuding between sports organizations had hampered the nation's athletes.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm, sunny weather is expected in the forecast period, Thursday until Friday morning, from southern California to the Atlantic coast. Cooler weather is due from northern California to the upper Great Lakes. Snow is forecast from eastern Idaho to North Dakota. Rain is expected for South Dakota and Minnesota. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

North Carolina's weather got off to a cloudy start over much of the state this morning with some heavy fog in a few areas. The fog was expected to burn off later in the morning and skies were expected to become mostly sunny.

Temperatures that ranged in the 30s and 40s in the northwest to the 50s in the southeast this morning were expected to give way to readings in the 60s and low 70s later in the day.

A small craft advisory that was in effect along the coast Wednesday night was discontinued as of 5 a.m. today.

Wednesday was a cloudy, cool day over most of the state and much needed rain fell over some eastern sections. Only the south coast managed to reach the low 70s during the day while elsewhere high readings for the day generally were in the 50s and low 60s.

Praise Verdict In Spanking Case

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Educators praised the innocent verdict handed Lenoir County teacher Charles C. Richburg in a child abuse case Wednesday, saying it would restore the confidence of classroom teachers.

A Lenoir County Superior Court jury found Richburg, a music teacher at Woodington Junior High School, innocent

Wednesday overturning a May 3 District Court conviction in which he was given a 60-day suspended sentence and fined $75. He is believed to be the first teacher in the state charged under the 1971 Child Abuse Reporting Law.

"I'm glad it's over with," Richburg said. "Now maybe I can go back to teaching." Jim Fuller, who represented Richburg said that "if the verdict had been different, teachers would have been very reluctant in the future to mete out corporal punishments."

Christine Barnes, district 14 director of the North Carolina Association of Educators, called the verdict fair, declaring, "We must maintain discipline in the classroom."

The charge against Richburg stemmed from his paddling of Todd Jones on April 11. According to District Court testimony, Richburg stopped the boy for running in a hallway and gave him the option of three hits with a paddle or a trip to the school principal.

Previously, most charges against teachers in paddling incidents were filed under a law dealing exclusively with education. The law prohibited school officials from banning corporal punishment and gave teachers the right to use reasonable force to maintain discipline.

The Child Abuse Report Law makes it a misdemeanor to purposefully inflict injury on a child.

Dollar Dips

LONDON (AP) — The dollar dipped again on European exchanges today. Gold bullion prices eased on what dealers called "technical factors."

It was the third straight day of decline for the dollar following four days of modest improvement from record lows last week.

Dealers said they were taking a wait-and-see attitude pending a news conference by President Carter later in the day and also watching to see how the U.S. Federal Reserve would react to the latest setbacks.

In Tokyo, the dollar sank to 186.70 yen from 188.40 Wednesday. That was despite a $180 million support purchase by the Bank of Japan, dealers said.

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.9740, compared to $1.9735 Wednesday.

Find Homemade Bomb Rigged On Parked Car

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Two Cabarrus County deputies were admiring a silver-gray Cadillac limousine parked outside the Holiday Inn here Wednesday when they noticed a homemade bomb under the car.

The bomb containing eight sticks of dynamite was safely removed from the limousine owned by Jim Stacy, a NASCAR Grand National racing team owner. Stacy, of Scottsdale, Ariz., was here for a court proceeding.

Cabarrus County officials say an investigation is continuing but so far they have no idea who planted the bomb.

Deputies Bobby Canupp and Charlie Howell ate breakfast at the Holiday Inn and stopped to admire the Cadillac parked in the lot on the way out.

That's when they noticed loose wiring underneath the car. When they looked closer, they saw eight sticks of dynamite and loose wires lying on the ground under the driver's seat.

Canupp said each stick of dynamite was eight inches long and two inches in diameter, with wires connecting the dynamite to the car's battery and exhaust pipes.

"It was wired such that when the car moved the wires would come together and it (the bomb) would go off," Canupp said.

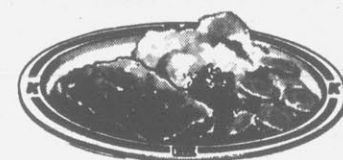

The bomb was dismantled by a bomb team from Fort Bragg which took it out to a field near the inn where they detonated the caps on the dynamite.

One wing of the motel was evacuated and traffic on U.S. 29 was stopped briefly during the incident. Authorities said they found no note with the bomb.

"I feel fine — because it didn't work," Stacy said late Wednesday. He said he wasn't afraid to continue driving the car because bomb experts checked it thoroughly.

Big Check-Passer Was 'Joking'

DALLAS (AP) — The district attorney's office has bad news for a cocktail waitress and two dancers who thought they had quick-stepped their way into riches: your checks for $2 million are no good.

"It was all just a joke," city prosecutors were told by the bodyguard-secretary of a Pakistani man who tipped his waitress with a $1 million check and awarded two dancers with prizes of $500,000 checks.

The customer was identified by authorities as F. Masood Khan, who said he was president of the National Construction Co. of Pakistan and worked out of an office in Washington, D.C.

Frank Dorn of the district attorney's special investigations department said Khan's aide, Chris Portugal, said stop-payment orders had been placed on the checks given the waitress and the dancers.

"He told me these three checks would not be honored because they had been given as a joke," Dorn said. He said no charges had been lodged against Khan.

Mike Christensen, 26, winner of one of the "dance prizes," said he had taken the check seriously and failed to see the joke.

"I would like to talk with him ... even if it was just for the satisfaction of telling him what a chump he is," said Christensen. "I've got an attorney working on it and he claims that it was a breach of promise."

Christensen said he made already made a down payment on a house because of the money "and he left me hanging."

Kahn walked into "elan," a Dallas nightclub, Monday night and started spending. He ordered Dom Perignon champagne for the house and ran up a wine and dinner tab of $2,365.30.

Craig Stultz, manager of the nightclub, said "elan" decided to reject a $10,000 tip — also a check — because of policy.

"He used his gold American Express card to pay for the champagne and other activities at the club and added a $10,000 tip. But when American Express heard of the extreme amount of purchasing being done they decided to put a hold on that card," said Stultz.

"When we told him of the hold, he immediately came over and wrote a check for $2,365.30. He wrote another check for the $10,000 tip, which we declined."

"The price already had a 15 percent tip built in," Stultz said. "We just thought the $10,000 was exorbitant."

Applies Magic In Hair-Cutting

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Getting junior's hair cut is no longer the ordeal it once was — at least not here, where Jerry Benson is teaching barbers some sleight of hand to keep the little shavers occupied.

Benson is the magician on the Public Broadcasting System's "Infinity Factory" who teaches counting through magic tricks.

Two years ago, he and barber Nancy Berns set up their own barber shop, "The Magic Hare." As Benson pulled sponges out of ears and made ropes dance, business boomed.

A chain of major department stores here has decided to replace its traditional salons with "Magic Hare" shops and let Benson school their barbers in how to turn misery into magic.

"What child wants to give up a sunny afternoon for such a boring necessity as a haircut?" Benson asked. Ah yes, but how about the kid who's got a front row seat for the next magic show? Now you see it, now you don't. The hare is gone and so is the hair.

Frogmen Hunt Bodies In Oil Tanker's Wreck

MANILA, Philippines (AP)—Frogmen searched the sunken wreckage of an oil tanker in Manila Bay today looking for at least 30 crewmen missing after a deafening explosion ripped the ship apart.

The underwater rescuers had penetrated the sunken stern of the 20,824-ton ship and were probing the engine room and cabins where most of the missing crewmen were believed to be.

The Philippine coast guard said five other crewmen and a security guard were known dead and another 21 crewmen were hospitalized, some with serious burns.

Newspaper reports said the crewmembers were mostly Indonesian and Hong Kong Chinese. The ship, the Feoso Sun, was based in Hong Kong and registered in Panama to Feoso Sun Tankers, S.A.

The ship had already of-flooded its cargo of Chinese crude oil when the explosion erupted Wednesday.

"It was empty, and there were fumes, and there probably were sparks from some source that set it off," Coast Guard Cmdr. Simeon Balitas said.

Balitas said the ship had returned to its anchorage and was being surveyed for damage when the blast took place. The tanker was damaged earlier when it rammed the pier while docking.

Balitas said the captain, Ng Wing Sum of Hong Kong, was ashore trying to get clearance from the owners to drydock the ship when the blast shook the area.

The explosion was offshore from Limay, an industrial complex on the Bataan peninsula 30 miles west of here.

"The explosion was deafening, and it thundered through Limay," said Rene D. Herrera, fire protection supervisor at the Bataan Refinery Corp. where the ship had unloaded some 5.9 million gallons of oil.

"Black smoke rose about

1,000 feet above the ship immediately after the explosion," he said.

The blast split the hull and the bow protruded from the water about 1,000 yards offshore.

Plan Christmas Parade Dec. 9

The Greenville Jaycees will present their annual Christmas Parade Saturday, Dec. 9, beginning at 11 a.m.

The theme for the parade this year will be "An Old Fashioned Christmas." All church groups, school groups, and other organizations are encouraged to enter a float in the parade.

Float judging will begin at 10 a.m. Dec. 9, with all floats to be judged in line by 9:45 a.m. Trophies will be awarded immediately before the parade. Lining up will begin on Ninth Street, just off of Dickinson Avenue.

Trophies will be awarded in the following categories: Grandmaster's Trophy for the overall winning float; Jaycees Trophy, second runner up; Mayor's Trophy, third place winner; Greenville Trophy, fourth place winner; and Chancellor's Trophy, for ECU entrants only.

Suit Avers World Series Label False

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Is the World Series really a world series? An inmate at the Hillsborough County jail doesn't think so.

John Lee Hilton, 51, has filed a $3 million federal suit against a Tampa television station that he contends indulged in false advertising because it called the national baseball championship the World Series when only teams from the United States can play.

The suit brought laughter Wednesday at the federal courthouse here and station WFLA is declining comment.

"How can the N.Y. Yankees be called the world champions when they haven't played any other teams from other countries?" Hilton asked in the suit he wrote in pencil and filed as a pauper.

Hilton, serving a 150-day sentence on four bad-check charges, overlooked Canadian representation from teams in Montreal and Toronto in his suit against NBC-affiliate WFLA, which last month televised the series between the Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said he appreciated Hilton's point about the "World Champion" label but didn't quite agree. "I don't know what else we could have done," Steinbrenner said. "We beat everybody that showed up."

The two-way finesse is a common animal. Sometimes it is a pure guess who holds the missing honor. But there are times when you can determine with certainty the right way to play the hand. Consider this example.

Despite the fact that he held a minimum opening bid, North had to find a rebid since South's new-suit at the two-level was forcing. Since rebidding his own suit or two no trump was out of the question, raising partner's suit with excellent three-card support was the only logical action.

West led his singleton club and East took three club tricks to complete the defensive book. He then exited with a low heart in the hope that partner had a high honor and that the setting trick could be developed in that suit. Declarer won the king and drew trumps. On the third trump West discarded a heart.

To make the contract, declarer had to avoid losing a diamond trick. Since he could play either defender for the queen, it might seem that it was a pure guess. Some might even be tempted to play the overcaller for the queen.

Before committing himself, declarer decided to try to find out as much as he could about the hand. He led a heart to the ace and ruffed a heart, noting, with relief, that both defenders followed to these tricks. The diamond situation now became a sure thing.

East had already shown up with six clubs, three trumps and at least three hearts. Therefore, twelve of his original thirteen cards were

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's David Brinkley was in fine, wry form, CBS' Walter Cronkite was as steady as ever, but I'd say ABC's Election Night show was the best on TV, despite the night's only wrong call.

ABC's troops, their main man Frank Reynolds, projected GOP Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire a winner, then, at 12:57 a.m. EST Wednesday, accounted for, and he could not possibly hold more than one diamond. Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds in case East held a singleton queen, then led a diamond to the ten, and confidently claimed the trick and his contract even before East showed out.

emitted a discreet oops and withdrew the call.

But their work seemed the most concise, the most visually interesting with brisk scene changes and occasional candidate profiles. And back-and-forth anchor talk in the studio was at a merciful minimum.

Such chat appeared a major flaw at the NBC and CBS studios in New York, where 10 featured anchors — four at NBC, six at CBS — evoked a sedate seminar atmosphere more suitable for Princeton than public.

And their frequent voter-poll results, fine for print and the reflection it allows, further slowed the proceedings. ABC had its polls, but whisked them on and off with little fuss.

Occasional levity did brighten NBC's night, as when Tom Brokaw noted that one millionaire candidate who owns a mansion with 13 bathrooms might move into a governor's mansion with only six.

Mused Brinkley: "He obviously has decided to sacrifice himself on the altar of public service."

Such moments were rare at CBS, where retired-but-recalled commentator Eric Servareid gravely suggested a very "middle-class, middle-age and middle-brow."

ABC also was mostly business, but much crisper about it.

That network's $1 million inquirer, Barbara Walters, sat next to Reynolds all night, keeping busy with 11 interviews — on the phone, on long-distance TV or simply saying what various worthies told her.

Oddly, her on-camera phone chats were the most effective. Not so her only in-studio interview, with New York Gov. Hugh Carey, where she appeared both rushed and flustered.

She also made a wee goof in introducing Sen. Strom Thurmond as from Mississippi (South Carolina, he said sternly). His manner suggested she'd never say Anwar Sadat hails from Israel).

No headline news came from the interviews, but they enlivened ABC's night. Another plus: its good, quick Capitol Hill reports on key House and Senate changes and meanings thereof.

NBC had former President Gerald R. Ford, its paid guest lecturer, on several times. Alas, his major contributions were to detect no national trend midway in the returns and to stay vague about his 1980 plans.

NBC also had two reports from a Beverly Hills garden party. Lord knows why. But there was much food for thought in a great Kenley Jones interview with an elderly man in Orlando, Fla.

The old-timer said he favored only new politicians. Jones asked whether age and experience don't count in Congress. Quoth the ancient: "Not to me it don't, no."

For the record, CBS says its Election Night ended at 1:06 a.m. EST Wednesday. ABC closed at 1:30 a.m. and NBC retired 15 minutes later.

'The Sting' Top-Rated Prime Time Offering

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC brought the Oscar-winning film "The Sting" to television and could hardly have asked for more. The movie was the highest-rated prime-time program during the week ending Nov. 5, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

ABC, in fact, listed six of the week's 10 most-watched shows and chalked up its sixth week as No. 1 in the networks' ratings competition. The season is eight weeks old.

"The Sting," starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford, had a rating of 31.9. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 31.9 percent saw at least part of TV premiere of the box-office smash.

Two of ABC's top-rated regulars, "Three's Company" and "Laverne and Shirley," trailed "The Sting," although "Laverne and Shirley" had to share third place with CBS' "60 Minutes."

Indeed, CBS had four shows in the Top 10, and perhaps as significant as ABC's continuing grip on first place was CBS' second straight runner-up finish after five weeks in a row in last.

"Little House on the Prairie," tied for 10th with a CBS special, "Puff the Magic Dragon," was NBC's best show of the week.

ABC finished the week with a rating of 22.3, followed by CBS at 17.2 and NBC at 16.9. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 22.3 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to ABC.

NBC had three of the five lowest-rated shows, No. 57

Shakeups Hit TV Programs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS has cancelled the new "People" series, and "WKRP in Cincinnati" has been temporarily removed from the air until decisions about its future are made, a CBS spokesman said.

"People," with host Phyllis George, formerly of the CBS pro football show "NFL Today," suffered low ratings in recent weeks. The final broadcast of the news magazine show was aired last Monday, CBS said.

Plans for "WKRP in Cincinnati," also a victim of poor ratings, will be announced later, CBS said.

The Monday programs will be replaced on Nov. 27 by "The White Shadow," starring Ken Howard as a former pro basketball coach at a racially mixed high school.

The three major networks have dropped six series so far this season. All but one, ABC's "Operation Petticoat," were new. The others are CBS' "In the Beginning," ABC's "Apple Pie" and NBC's "W.E.B." and "Waverly Wonders."

George Dickel Tennessee sippin' whisky. Smooth as moonbeams.

"Tastin' is believin'."
—Merle Beatty, Store Owner, 1871

"I remember we were tryin' to tell this city feller that George Dickel's whisky tastes smooth 'cause it's made with clear, sweet springwater.

"And it's mellowed good and proper 'cause Ol' George gives his sour mash extra time to get into the flavor.

"Well, I could see this city feller wasn't much impressed with our jawin', so I stopped talkin' and started pourin'.

"One sip was all it took. Said he'd never tasted a finer Tennessee Sour Mash. Didn't surprise us none. 'Cause when it comes to George Dickel's whisky, tastin' is believin'."

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

The centenary of the phonograph is hailed by Togo with the issuance of six new stamps.

Depicted on the adhesives are the men who were responsible for this invention which changed the lives of millions throughout the world.

The lowest value features a portrait of Thomas Alva Edison with a sound wave sketch in the background. Edison, who invented the electric light, discovered that a needle etched with a piece of tinfoil could be played back with the same tonal qualities.

Togo's second set of stamps to be issued this fall consists of four stamps to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Henri Dunant, who founded the Red Cross.

Canada's Christmas stamps feature three paintings of the Madonna and Child. Early Renaissance paintings from the collection of the National Gallery of Canada were chosen to illustrate the 12, 14 and 30-cent denominations.

The 30-cent stamp shows the earliest of the three works — a center portion of a 14th-century triptych entitled "Virgin and Child, with Saints, the Annunciation, the Nativity and the Crucifixion."

The 12-center depicts "The

The fourth stamp shows Emile Berliner's phonograph of 1888 playing a flat disc. Berliner invented the disc plate which was etched chemically. The fifth displays Berliner's improved phonograph of 1894.

The highest value bears a sketch of a phonograph of 1900. This stamp also appears on the souvenir sheet which has a border picturing Edison cranking his phonograph.

The next stamp in the set shows the famed "His Master's Voice" Victor phonograph of 1905 with a couple dancing in the background. The third

The 12-center depicts "The Madonna of the Flowering Pea," an early 15th-century work of an anonymous master of Cologne. The flowering pea is a sign of birth and regeneration.

The 14-cent stamp reproduces a detail of "The Virgin and Child with St. Anthony and Donor" by Hans Memling, the Flemish painter of the late 15th century. The golden apple in the Christ Child's hand symbolizes redemption and salvation.

Canada has three postage rates at Christmas time. The 12-cent is for postal cards only. The 14-cent is for first-class mail. The 30-cent is for international airmail.

DID YOU KNOW THAT ...

The United States once issued Chinese postage stamps! In 1919, postage stamps of the U.S. 1917 series were overprinted and issued to our Postal Agency at Shanghai, China. The overprints are in black and in red. Sold in Shanghai at the local currency which was half of the U.S. value at that time, the stamps were for use on mail to the U.S. After the closing of the U.S. Agency at Shanghai in 1922, the stamps were sold for a short time at the Philatelic Agency in Washington, D.C.

And, did you know that, back in the early days of the U.S. postal system, the regular postage charge paid only for the delivery of mail from post office to post office. For an additional charge the post office would act as a carrier and deliver letters to the addressee. Two stamps were issued for this purpose. One featured a portrait of Benjamin Franklin and the other a view of the American eagle. The denominations? One Cent.

Results Signal Future Trouble For White House

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

President Carter can celebrate the prospect of two more years of large Democratic majorities in Congress, but results of the 1978 mid-term elections also could indicate trouble ahead for the White House.

Voters turned out five Democratic senators who were considered likely backers of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty that Carter hopes to send the Senate for approval next year.

And the House of Representatives will have 75 new faces, continuing the youth movement that made the 95th Congress often unpredictable.

The election results also fed presidential ambitions of several potential Carter rivals in 1980.

With all but a handful of votes counted, the results showed the Republicans picked up three Senate seats and nine House seats and added six governors to their nationwide total.

But those GOP gains weren't nearly enough to reverse Democratic majorities on Capitol Hill and in statehouses around the nation.

The new Senate lineup apparently will be 58 Democrats, 41 Republicans and one Independent, Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. However, Democrat Andrew Miller has not conceded to Republican John Warner who led by a tiny margin in unofficial returns in their Virginia race.

With one House race undecided, the Democrats hold 277 seats to 157 for the Republicans. Still out was the result of a race in South Dakota between Democrat Tom Daschle and Republican Leo K. Thorsness for the seat vacated by GOP Rep. Larry Pressler, who was elected to the Senate.

The party lineup among the nation's governors stands at 32 Democrats and 18 Republicans.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell judged the voters "very much inclined to support the president's efforts next year to hold the deficit down."

But he added, "I think it is very difficult to assess what the combined attitude of the next Congress will be as opposed to the combined attitude of the last one."

The overall victory sought by both parties was claimed by chairmen of both their national committees.

"It's safe to say the Republican Party is back," said GOP chairman Bill Brock. "We have re-established our momentum."

Brock pointed to Republican victories in governors' races in Tennessee, Texas, Nebraska and Wisconsin as signs the party has strengthened its traditional Midwestern base and resumed its growth in the South. Republican Rep. Thad Cochran also gave the GOP its first popularly elected senator from Mississippi.

Brock also acknowledged "some very, very serious losses which hurt a great deal." High on that list would be the defeats of GOP Sens. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan and Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts.

Democratic Chairman John C. White said his party fared better than the majority usually does in mid-term elections and did it in the face of "unprecedented financial and organizational efforts" by the Republicans.

"The average loss for the president's party in mid-term elections has been 34 seats," said White.

Asked how he thought the new Congress would get along with Carter, White replied: "I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see this Congress more cooperative."

Brock said the key will be whether the president is willing to accept Republican solutions to the nation's economic problems.

"The president is almost compelled to move toward the Republican position if he's going to save this economy," said the GOP chairman.

Before all the votes had been counted Tuesday night, Powell conceded the new Senate would be less hospitable to a SALT II agreement than was the last.

A look at the turnovers seemed to support that view.

Democratic Sens. Dick Clark of Iowa, Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire and Floyd Haskell of Colorado, all of whom were likely supporters of a new U.S.-Soviet arms agreement, were beaten by Republicans certain to line up with opponents.

The victors were Roger Jepsen in Iowa, Gordon Humphrey in New Hampshire and Rep. William L. Armstrong in Colorado, all conservative Republicans.

In addition, Rep. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, who defeated Democratic Sen. William Hathaway, and Rudy Boschwitz, GOP winner over Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., would be considered uncertain on SALT while the men they defeated were regarded as sure supporters.

In governors' races, Edmund G. Brown Jr. easily won a second term in California and remained a potential Democratic challenger to Carter in 1980.

Republican Gov. James Thompson of Illinois also won easily enough to feed his White House hopes.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, another 1980 prospect, also was re-elected by a respectable margin, and Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., an announced candidate for the presidency, won re-election to his seat.
