

Carter Calls For End To Peace Haggling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle East peace talks were interrupted today as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin recalled his two top negotiators for consultations. The talks have hit a snag over linking an Egyptian-Israeli treaty to future negotiations on a comprehensive Mideast settlement. No top-level sessions were scheduled here, and Begin told a news conference in Toronto that he had called Foreign Minister Moshe

Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman to the Canadian capital to discuss the latest Egyptian proposals. Begin, who is on an official visit to Canada, said he may hold special Cabinet discussions in Jerusalem next week.

President Carter, trying to avert an impasse in the talks, called on Egypt and Israel Thursday to put aside their differences over linking the treaty to the second round of negotiations.

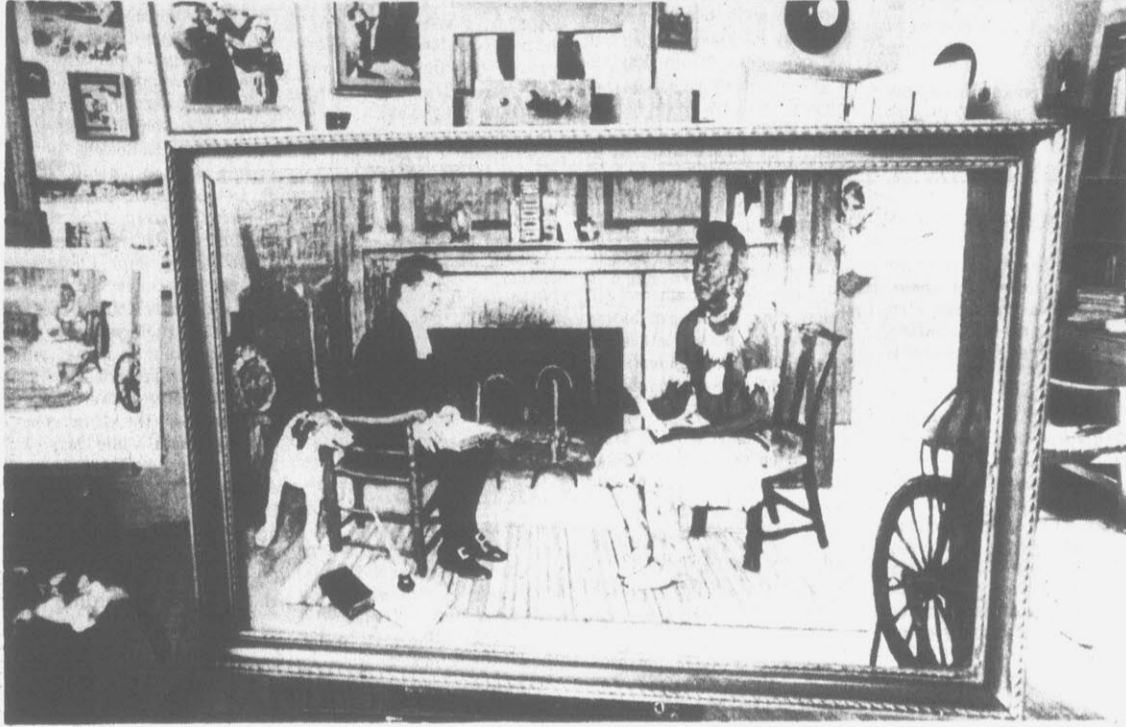

The issue is one of the few remaining obstacles to completion of a treaty.

At a news conference in Kansas City, Mo., Thursday, Carter said the two sides should accept the treaty preamble, which commits them to comprehensive negotiations following the treaty talks.

The president, who said the preamble language was "adequate," seemed to be coming down on the side of Egypt, although he said, "We're not trying to impose our will."

Conference sources said the negotiations were continuing but that no sessions were scheduled in advance for today. Meanwhile, speaking separately on opposite sides of the world, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said negotiations could take weeks longer, and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said "I shall not be astonished" if the talks break down completely.

The Unfinished Work

UNFINISHED ROCKWELL PAINTING—Unfinished painting of artist Norman Rockwell, who died late Wednesday night, sits on easel in his studio at Stockbridge, Mass. It shows the 18th century Christian missionary John Sargent trying to convert a Stockbridge Indian chief. The artist was remembered Thursday in Stockbridge by his models, friends and neighbors. "The town treasured him like a jewel," said Marty Salvatore, an insurance agent who twice posed for Rockwell. (AP Laserphoto)

Claim Steel Companies For Anti-Inflation Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is claiming support for its anti-inflation program from the steel industry, which often resists presidential efforts to hold down steel prices.

It would be a big victory for President Carter if the steel industry does agree to follow the voluntary wage-price standards since steel price increases usually are passed on to auto makers and other industries which in turn raise their prices for consumer goods.

Treasury Undersecretary Anthony M. Solomon said Thursday that virtually all of the steel companies he had talked with promised to go along with the anti-inflation plan.

He declined to list the companies he talked to, but said: "The key steel executives in the country have indicated to me they will comply with the president's program."

In other economic developments Thursday, Carter's anti-inflation plans received a blow when the leader of the nation's largest union said the president's 7 percent voluntary wage-benefit guideline is unacceptable. But Carter got good news in Agriculture Department figures showing American farmers winding up a record 6.89-billion-bushel corn harvest that could help hold down 1979 food price increases.

USDA economists have predicted food prices will rise six percent to 11 percent next year, but what could be the largest surplus of corn since 1964 would help fight price rises since corn is the main feed grain used to produce meat, poultry and milk.

Meanwhile, Frank E.

Fitzsimmons, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, complained that while Carter's price guidelines are flexible, wage and fringe-benefit guidelines are rigid.

More Demonstrations In Iran's Political Upheaval

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Renewed demonstrations were reported today as opposition leader Karim

Sanjaby declared that crippling strikes will continue against the shah and that no deal will be struck with the ruler or his military government to end Iran's political upheaval.

Sanjaby threw down the gauntlet after the first serious anti-shah demonstrations in days were staged Thursday in Ahwaz, in the heart of the oil fields, the holy city of Mashhad, near the Russian-Afghanistan border, and Zanjan, 250 miles northwest of Tehran, informed sources said. No injuries were reported.

In Tehran, many shops and the giant bazaar were shuttered as a sign of protest against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and his 37 years of absolute rule. In the Persian Gulf, 40 tankers were lying off the Kharg Island export terminal waiting for the oil strike to end.

"We're not prepared to form a provisional government and we're not going to participate in any coalition until our demands are met," Sanjaby told reporters at Tehran Airport after returning from two weeks of talks with exiled Moslem holy leader Ayatollah Khomeini in Paris.

Recently I experienced an accident. Before the rescue squad arrived, curious people had lined the road with cars, causing even more traffic problems. When the rescue squad came, they had to drive through the crowd. As soon as the injured persons were taken care of the spectators got into their cars and left. Is there some sort of law to prevent people from gawking at scenes like this? C.M.

Sorry, but, "there's no law, per se," Highway Patrol Troop A Commander Capt. Carl Gilcrest said. The onlookers, "don't realize the problems they cause," he noted. "It's normal to be curious, but spectators impair the effectiveness of emergency units — law enforcement officers, rescue squad personnel, firemen," at accident or disaster scenes. "We would urge all spectators to keep in mind the type situation. They don't realize they are adding to the problem at a time when officials need their support and cooperation the most."

Greenville City Ordinances don't prevent "gawkers" either, according to Police Chief Glenn Cannon, although the city code makes it illegal to interfere with police, fire and rescue personnel in the discharge of their duties; to park within one block of fire apparatus at the scene of a fire, or drive over fire hose.

The code also requires police to protect firemen at the scene of a fire from interference, and requires motorists and pedestrians to comply with the direction of police trying to regulate traffic at emergency scenes, Cannon said.

Five Honored

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Five persons received the 15th Annual North Carolina Awards Thursday night from Governor Jim Hunt for outstanding accomplishment.

Winners of the awards, considered to be the state's highest honor, were Harriet L. Tynes of Greensboro, former executive director of The Children's Home Society of N.C., Inc.; Henry L. Kamphoefner of Raleigh, dean emeritus of the N.C. State University School of Design; author Manley Wade Wellman of Chapel Hill; Dr. David C. Sabiston Jr. of Durham, chairman of the Duke University Department of Surgery; and Robert Robey Garvey Jr. of Washington, D.C., executive director of the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation.

The N.C. Awards Committee, headed by Mary D.B.T. Semans of Durham, made the final selection of winners, who were honored at a banquet at the Raleigh Civic Center.

Colcord Gets 5 Years, Must Pay Restitution

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Joashley Marshall Colcord was sentenced to five years in prison and ordered to pay restitution after entering a plea of guilty to maliciously injuring G. Vinson Howell in an explosion and fire at Tarheel Truck Rentals here May 17.

Colcord was charged with damaging property by use of an explosive or incendiary device, and causing malicious injury to Howell, after dropping two gasoline-filled glass jugs at Howell's feet last May. Howell received burns to his legs and Howell's business was extensively damaged by fire as a result of the incident.

Colcord's plea was entered yesterday afternoon.

Judge Robert Rouse accepted the plea and sentenced Colcord to five years in prison and ordered him to pay up to $15,000 restitution — $3,500 to Howell and the remainder to insurance companies for damages to the building.

After testimony in the three-day trial ended before noon yesterday, defense lawyers began negotiating with the state's prosecutors for the plea bargaining agreement under which Colcord pled guilty to the malicious injury charge and the charge of using an explosive or incendiary device was dismissed.

Colcord could have received up to 30 years on the malicious injury charge and from 10 years to life on the other count.

Colcord, an East Carolina University accounting professor, testified that he dropped the gasoline-filled jugs at Howell's feet only, "to warn him to stay away from my wife. I didn't intend to burn him or his building. I wanted to see that man and warn him to stay away. I hadn't given a thought that I might kill him."

The 54-year-old Colcord noted that discovering the involvement of his wife with Howell, a family friend, had caused him to be, "in a fog...like a dream...a nightmare," on May 17.

Dr. H. D. Lambeth, a counselor with the ECU counseling center, who said he had talked with Colcord about his marital problems six months before the incident occurred, testified that Colcord's knowledge of the involvement between Howell and his wife could have acted on his mind so Colcord might not have known the difference between right and wrong or the nature or consequences of his acts, on the day of the explosion and fire.

Belvedere Subdivision Rezoning Proposal Is Tabled By City Council

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Action on a rezoning request involving property near Belvedere Subdivision was tabled by the City Council last night after several residents voiced their concerns regarding traffic and safety.

The tabling action followed a public hearing on a request by Kenneth Whichard to have 42.7 acres located south of Greenville Boulevard between Seaboard Coast Line Railroad and Belvedere Subdivision rezoned.

Residents of Belvedere and nearby subdivisions, saying they had no particular objections to the rezoning of the Whichard property, were unanimous in their concern regarding the extension of Staffordshire Road from Belvedere to tie in with the new development.

The residents cited the potential for increased traffic through their neighborhoods and subsequent safety hazards, particularly for their children, if Staffordshire is extended from the present dead end situation.

Whichard and his attorney, Fred Mattox, said that they saw no particular reason to open up Staffordshire and would agree that the road would not be extended from the Whichard property.

The prohibition of contract zoning with the Council was mentioned and it was suggested that Whichard could enter into some type of covenant with the residents regarding the street. Such a covenant would not be binding on the Council.

It was recommended by several residents that the Council table action last night so that a legal agreement between Whichard and the nearby property owners could be drawn up. They expressed concern that a verbal agreement regarding Staffordshire would not be sufficient.

It was also pointed out that the city could close a portion of Staffordshire on the eastern end and thereby prohibit an extension from the adjoining property.

Following discussion regarding the proposal, the Council voted to adopt a resolution of intent to close the last 50 feet on the eastern end of Staffordshire Road. The matter will be discussed at the Dec. 14 Council session.

Bill Bloodworth of Woodstock Drive presented to the Council a petition containing the names of 271 residents of the area. Bloodworth said that the petition took up the matter of linking Belvedere to the new area of development by way of Staffordshire and the subsequent traffic problems.

He added that the residents of Belvedere and Club Pines Subdivision objected to the street being opened but he said that personally, he was not opposed to the rezoning request, which sought a change from RA-20 to R-6, R-9 (residential zones) and Highway Commercial.

Several other residents of Staffordshire, Crestline Boulevard, Lindenwood Drive and Woodstock Drive offered their expressions of concern. It was mentioned that the subdivision corridors would serve as a short-cut for motorists to the new mall on NC 11.

Mayor Percy Cox explained to the gathering that although the Council had to consider the rezoning request and not the streets in carrying out its duties, he felt it was necessary to allow the residents to express their concerns. Once the rezoning request is acted upon by the Council, it is out of the Council's hands as far as subdivision development, he noted.

Mattox said that the developers would be willing to leave the matter of opening Staffordshire up to the city and he said that he could not understand why the Council preferred to table the matter for another month when it could close a portion of the street whenever it saw fit.

Mattox, while saying that the developers would agree not to open the street, contended that Staffordshire represented no short-cut to the new mall.

After the matter was tabled and the Council adopted the resolution of intent to close a portion of Staffordshire, it was mentioned that access to the new development had to be provided. It was unclear whether the legality of closing a portion of the street would be in question.

Two other requests for rezoning property were approved by the Council following public hearings. The requests were submitted by A.

Tax Rebate Dimming

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Prospects of a state income tax rebate in North Carolina next year have dimmed in recent days with worsening economic forecasts, according to Gov. Jim Hunt's budget director.

Administration officials still are hoping there will be enough money left over next year to provide at least a one-time tax rebate, but economic forecasts are making firm plans impossible at this time.

"I wouldn't say that the chances are as good now for a tax cut in light of what the economy people are saying," John A. Williams Jr., Hunt's executive assistant and state budget officer, said Thursday.

Hunt also is more cautious, since raising the possibility of a tax rebate in August.

Another word of caution has come from Carl Stewart, speaker of the North Carolina House, who has said that the possibility of any kind of tax relief is growing dimmer because of the way the economy is going.

Hunt said Thursday, "We know what the economists are saying about a possible recession, that we may be in for a tough year next year. I don't think we necessarily know anything about a tax cut as such, but I do know overall that revenues may be down, and that may have some effect."

Hunt told a meeting of county commissioners last August that it might be possible to give taxpayers some of their money back next year, if there were something left over after providing "essential services."

The General Assembly approved a resolution offered by Sen. Marshall Rauch of Gastonia that called for a $100 million tax cut if revenues were sufficient. Hunt, however, has avoided reference to a tax cut, preferring to speak in terms of a one-time rebate.

Doctor's Personal Life Is Unstable

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: If a doctor is not stable in his personal life, would you lose confidence in him as a physician?
I think my doctor is the best for miles around, but now that he is in the process of getting his fourth divorce, I wonder if it's possible for his judgment to be so bad in one department but not in another.
His first wife was a fine, attractive woman. He simply tired of her and found a new love. It was the same story with the other three. He made generous settlements on all of them.
How would you feel, Abby? Would you still have confidence in him as a doctor?

WONDERING IN TEXAS

DEAR WONDERING: I know it's possible for some people to be brilliant in their own fields, but inept, inexperienced and hopelessly naive in other matters. Personally, as long as my physician provides me with competent professional care, how he handles his personal life is his own business.

DEAR ABBY: I am 42 and very much in love with a beautiful, 27-year-old model. Her divorce (for which I am paying) is now pending. She has three children.
I bought her a new car, and have spent more than $15,000 on clothes for her and her children in the last six months. She says she loves me, but I don't see much of her. I see her only on Monday nights because on Tuesdays she sees an old boyfriend she says she has to "let down easy." On Wednesday night she goes out with her boss. On Thursday night she goes out with the girls. On Friday night she stays home and does her laundry, and she lets her husband come over on weekends because he misses the kids.
My friends say I am being taken for a ride. Am I?

SAMMY IN MIAMI

DEAR SAMMY: Not only are you being taken for a ride, you'll be lucky if you aren't killed in the traffic.
DEAR ABBY: My conscience is bothering me and I have other problems, too. I'm a 15-year-old who everybody thinks is a "very nice girl." But I'm not as nice as they think.
My girlfriend and I went to a movie one Saturday and let ourselves be picked up by a couple of guys. They had a car so we went for a ride afterwards. We parked and made out (only light necking—nothing serious). We really aren't pickups and don't know what made us act like that.
Well, I've seen this guy a couple of times on the sneak since then, but he never wants to come in and meet my parents. All he ever wants is to park and make out. I really like him, Abby. How can I make this a respectable relationship? I feel ashamed and dirty.

AIRES

DEAR AIRES: Even nice girls sometimes act on an impulse, so don't be so quick to put yourself down. You can make your relationship respectable by telling the boy that you (a) are through sneaking around to meet him, (b) insisting that he meet your parents. If he doesn't agree, lose him. He's only interested in using you.

CHINESE ART
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Elvehjem Museum of Art has scheduled an exhibition of 39 Chinese paintings from the 14th century through the 20th century, featuring masterpieces from the Ming and Ching dynasties, for Feb. 17-March 25, 1979.

Lamb is an ancient symbol of spring, and the meat is featured at religious festivals, including the Christian Easter and the Jewish Passover.
Orthodox Greeks put on an Easter feast that is lavish to put it mildly, and lamb is still the centerpiece. It leads off with a soup made of the heart, lungs and liver of a spring lamb. Then comes the centerpiece, the roasted lamb which the Greeks used to cook over an open pit.
In olden days it was the custom in England to roast a whole sheep stuffed with currants, raisins and bread soaked with cream, egg yolks and sugar.
Lamb has been a standby in the Middle East for centuries. During the years I spent covering the United Nations, I soon found out that delegations from that area still lean heavily on lamb dishes. They serve a dazzling variety, from volcanic curries to couscous, when entertaining fellow diplomats during the round of parties that highlights the General Assembly each fall.
Lamb, like other meats, has been soaring in cost but the roast leg is still a pretty good investment, especially, if you watch your supermarket for sales. Here's a recipe from New Zealand, a sheep-raising country, for leg of lamb creole.

which gives the dish a fillip.
1/2 cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1/2 cup dry red wine
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 cup beef bouillon
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
2 onions, minced
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 pound leg of lamb
Mix all ingredients except lamb and pour over meat. Put in refrigerator 6 hours, basting meat occasionally with sauce.
Put lamb on rack in roasting pan. Add sauce and roast the meat uncovered in a 300-degree oven at least two hours basting occasionally. Add boiling water or beef stock if liquid evaporates. Remove lamb to hot platter. Thicken gravy. Strain and serve separately. Good with a Medoc wine.

Steam the carrots until tender; drain if necessary. Reheat the carrots with the remaining ingredients. Makes 3 servings.

Lamb Remains Popular Around The World

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
In 17th-century Europe they stuffed it with ox suet, larks and olives before roasting, and in ancient Rome they basted it with brine. Whatever the method of cooking, lamb has been a favorite in many lands since biblical times.
The ancient Israelites, many of whom were shepherds, developed a fondness for lamb, and the Old Testament gives one of the earliest recorded directions for eating it.
Before the flight of the Jews from Egypt, the Lord instructed each to take a lamb. Then, said the Lord, "And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it."
Lamb is an ancient symbol of spring, and the meat is featured at religious festivals, including the Christian Easter and the Jewish Passover.
Orthodox Greeks put on an Easter feast that is lavish to put it mildly, and lamb is still the centerpiece. It leads off with a soup made of the heart, lungs and liver of a spring lamb. Then comes the centerpiece, the roasted lamb which the Greeks used to cook over an open pit.
In olden days it was the custom in England to roast a whole sheep stuffed with currants, raisins and bread soaked with cream, egg yolks and sugar.
Lamb has been a standby in the Middle East for centuries. During the years I spent covering the United Nations, I soon found out that delegations from that area still lean heavily on lamb dishes. They serve a dazzling variety, from volcanic curries to couscous, when entertaining fellow diplomats during the round of parties that highlights the General Assembly each fall.
Lamb, like other meats, has been soaring in cost but the roast leg is still a pretty good investment, especially, if you watch your supermarket for sales. Here's a recipe from New Zealand, a sheep-raising country, for leg of lamb creole.

which gives the dish a fillip.
1/2 cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1/2 cup dry red wine
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 cup beef bouillon
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
2 onions, minced
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 pound leg of lamb
Mix all ingredients except lamb and pour over meat. Put in refrigerator 6 hours, basting meat occasionally with sauce.
Put lamb on rack in roasting pan. Add sauce and roast the meat uncovered in a 300-degree oven at least two hours basting occasionally. Add boiling water or beef stock if liquid evaporates. Remove lamb to hot platter. Thicken gravy. Strain and serve separately. Good with a Medoc wine.

DINNER FARE

DEAR ABBY: I am 42 and very much in love with a beautiful, 27-year-old model. Her divorce (for which I am paying) is now pending. She has three children.
I bought her a new car, and have spent more than $15,000 on clothes for her and her children in the last six months. She says she loves me, but I don't see much of her. I see her only on Monday nights because on Tuesdays she sees an old boyfriend she says she has to "let down easy." On Wednesday night she goes out with her boss. On Thursday night she goes out with the girls. On Friday night she stays home and does her laundry, and she lets her husband come over on weekends because he misses the kids.
My friends say I am being taken for a ride. Am I?

DEAR SAMMY: Not only are you being taken for a ride, you'll be lucky if you aren't killed in the traffic.
DEAR ABBY: My conscience is bothering me and I have other problems, too. I'm a 15-year-old who everybody thinks is a "very nice girl." But I'm not as nice as they think.
My girlfriend and I went to a movie one Saturday and let ourselves be picked up by a couple of guys. They had a car so we went for a ride afterwards. We parked and made out (only light necking—nothing serious). We really aren't pickups and don't know what made us act like that.
Well, I've seen this guy a couple of times on the sneak since then, but he never wants to come in and meet my parents. All he ever wants is to park and make out. I really like him, Abby. How can I make this a respectable relationship? I feel ashamed and dirty.

DEAR AIRES: Even nice girls sometimes act on an impulse, so don't be so quick to put yourself down. You can make your relationship respectable by telling the boy that you (a) are through sneaking around to meet him, (b) insisting that he meet your parents. If he doesn't agree, lose him. He's only interested in using you.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Do-It-Yourself Job For ECU

Tomorrow American Broadcasting Company television crews will move into Ficklen Stadium to telecast the East Carolina-William and Mary football game.

Nothing could be more pleasing to those who chart the course of growth for the football program at East Carolina University. In addition to the money the appearance brings in, the telecast carries Pirate football to a regional audience.

Equally important in collegiate football where network television is becoming a dominant factor, the prestige of being chosen for a network appearance is tremendous.

The ABC telecast is, of course, nothing new to the Pirates at this stage. East Carolina has been on for five of the last seven years. It has been a participant in regional telecasts for the last three consecutive years. That record is a fine indication of just how rapidly the Pirate football program is growing in stature.

And there could be unbelievable growth ahead. East Carolina is making important contacts with some of the top independent collegiate football powers along the entire east coast. The contacts could at some time turn into a super conference stretching from New York to Florida. Even if they don't, they could create some intersectional rivalries for East Carolina which would develop dream games, with regional appearances being televised up and down the Eastern Seaboard.

The East Carolina football program has earned respect that occasionally is not recognized or appreciated here in our state. There is no limit as to where it can go. All that is required is the determination of those of us in Eastern North Carolina that what we want will be accomplished. As with so many things, easterners will have to do it for themselves.

Helms Displayed A Personal Appeal

Sen. Jesse Helms' campaign for re-election to the U. S. Senate was well financed and well organized, but his victory on Tuesday is a mark of his personal appeal to North Carolina voters.

Helms was running as a Republican in a state with a heavily Democratic tradition, which meant that the majority of the voters had to cross over party lines to vote for him.

The senator brought the voters over to his side of the ballot, and from the time the first totals came in there was little doubt that he would be the victor.

THIS AFTERNOON

Attention On N.C. Unions

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — "Well," grunted one of Gov. Jim Hunt's closest confidantes. "I guess we'll just have to send Lauch out to make some more talks."

That was one of the more open and honest reactions to a major news article in the November 6 issue of Business Week which is headlined: "North Carolina Starts to Shed its Antiumion Bias."

"Lauch" is, of course, D. M. Faircloth, secretary of Commerce and chief industry hunter for the state whose constant refrain has been North Carolina's low incidence of organized labor which leaves industrialists free to run their own plants.

Availability of non-union labor, the state's right to work law — forbidding coerced union membership, and worker productivity are major pitches in the state's wooing of industrial prospects.

It is becoming increasingly clear, however, that as North Carolina grows in population toward Number 10 nationally, as wooing efforts succeed (well over $1.4 billion in new plants or additions, and 43,000 new jobs so far this year), that unions will increase their efforts.

Growth

And on the heels of economic growth and the increased interest of unions, national attention will focus on developments here.

As one industry hunter told an important union organizer recently: "We got to get 'em here before you can organize 'em."

Business Week magazine described the situation this way: "With its low-wage economy, agrarian culture, and nonunion textile mills and furniture factories, North Carolina — the least unionized state in the U.S. — for decades fiercely resisted organized labor."

"But the state has been shedding its old ways, and now an influx of new jobs — and people — in high-wage industries appears to be softening the rabid anti-union attitudes that once dominated the state..."

The article notes that the state remains, with 6.8 percent of eligible workers unionized against a national average of 26.2 percent, the strongest non-unionized state. Also, unions lost more elections than they won in the state. But the gains are labeled "significant". Unions won 35 elections in the past 12 months, with a success rate of 32 percent, adding over 5,000 new members.

The state's change from small, family-owned firms is another factor McNair sees. "The major reason that North Carolinians have been opposed to unions is that they've had no need for them."

Business Week reports many businessmen and governmental officials who see in the union victories the "beginnings of an important change of attitude... The old concept of loyalty to the company doesn't sell any more," says a labor lawyer. "People don't love dear old Colonel So-and-So any more. They're interested in bread and butter. They know that unions aren't always good, but it's a matter of picking the better of two 'baddies' when they vote the union in."

More Coming

John F. McNair III, vice chairman of Wachovia Bank in Winston-Salem and a member of the state economic development board, is quoted in the Business Week article as feeling that unionism will continue to increase as new industry comes in and unions become more aggressive.

The state's change from small, family-owned firms is another factor McNair sees. "The major reason that North Carolinians have been opposed to unions is that they've had no need for them."

To Have, Or Have Not

WASHINGTON — The meanest thing about inflation is that it is making so many HAVES and HAVE NOTS. How does one distinguish between a HAVE and a HAVE NOT? It's done by a federal bureau in Washington, which sends you a registered letter when your standard of living falls below that of everyone else around you. If you are officially designated a HAVE NOT you are eligible for all sorts of government benefits, though your credit rating in the private sector is marked "deadbeat."

I went to the Bureau of Haves and Have Nots to talk to an official who was keeping score.

He was at his desk, with a large stack of files, stamping

HAVE or HAVE NOT on the top of each folder.

"This must be tough work. It can't be much fun making a HAVE into a HAVE NOT."

"I don't make them into HAVE NOTS. Inflation does that. For example, look at this file. This family makes $18,000 a year; they have a small house and a car. A few years ago there was no question that they belonged to the HAVES in this country. But now they must be considered part of the HAVE NOTS. They're just not making it any more."

"But why?" I asked.

"They're living over their heads. To keep up with the Joneses. The ironic part of it is that the Joneses are living over their heads to keep ahead of these people, and therefore we had to put the Joneses in the HAVE NOT pile as well."

ART BUCHWALD

"The Joneses are also HAVE NOTS?" I said shocked.

"That is correct. When you get into double-digit inflation you'd be surprised how fast HAVES become HAVE NOTS."

"This fellow here had all his money invested in the stock market. In one month he became a HAVE NOT — and so, by the way, did his broker."

"How long has your bureau been in existence?"

"It started during the Roosevelt era when a majority of the people were HAVE NOTS, and the HAVES could be counted on your fingers. Then World War II came, and the HAVE NOTS were determined to come back from the armed forces and become HAVES. They did, by going to school and working their tails off. Many moved to the suburbs where they thought they had found The American Dream. But although they were HAVES in other people's eyes, in their hearts they were HAVE NOTS, because they were always afraid someone would take everything they had away from them."

"The post-World War II HAVES decided that because they were originally HAVE NOTS, their children would lack nothing. So the kids were raised as first generation HAVES, and didn't know what it was like

Other Editors Say Makes Us Think

(Washington Daily News)

When a high elected official is convicted of crime and sentenced to prison, if that fellow be a law enforcement officer, the cry goes up against law enforcement officers generally.

The very picture causes us to stop and think. The high sheriff of Caswell County, N.C., has been convicted by a federal court on perjury charges. It was alleged that he lied to a federal grand jury when he denied having received payoffs from operators of houses of prostitution in his county.

We are saddened by the very thought that this could happen to such a man. We are prone to wonder which crime is the worst — lying to the grand jury or taking the payoffs, if indeed he did accept them. And the jury said he is guilty.

The judge sentenced Sheriff Bobby Poteat to a term of two years in prison. The verdict will be appealed, and the fight is not over yet.

We hear all the time about that "one bad apple in the barrel." Well, no where in the world does that statement carry more real impact than it does when a law enforcement officer is brought to justice.

We should not judge officers by one bad officer. Good honest law enforcement officers are far more embarrassed by such an incident than are other people. They know what to expect when this happens. They know they must face ridicule and ugliness.

Let us never judge law enforcement by the worst of the lot. That is like judging a team by the worst player, or a school class by the poorest student academically.

Power To The Parents

By SEN. ORRIN G. HATCH

WASHINGTON — At least since the time of Aristotle, it has been an accepted historical truth that the fate of a nation depends on the education of its young. The quality and methods of our own American educational system have been called to question for several decades, but only recently has this criticism included the very subjects taught. These subjects, aimed at the elementary and secondary level, are more often than not designed by the Dept. of HEW and subsidized with taxpayers' money. The Kohlberg program in point.

Dr. Lawrence Kohlberg, director of the Center for Moral Education at Harvard, fathered a "theory of the stages of morality." This "theory" is predicated on the notion that in the final analysis, there is no right or wrong. Simply another version of the secular humanist creed, Kohlberg's law elevates to the highest level of the ethical pyramid what feels good or what seems right. The Ten Commandments and our own civil or "positive" laws which are not ambiguous on the subjects of murder, or theft, or wife-swapping are to take a back seat in Kohlberg's system, to his so-called "sixth stage of consciousness."

Professor Kohlberg says, "a person in the sixth stage can and should violate laws he feels are unjust. This is a principle of moral justice we consider preferable to the common morality as expressed in the laws of the land or the Ten Commandments."

In a nation abound with liberties, a citizen enjoys the corollary freedom to be neurotic, and Professor Kohlberg is not the first American to elevate his neurosis into a "system" which he calls a "theory of morality." But the Kohlberg system is being taught in our public schools. As a so-called "innovative programming" concept as defined in the Elementary and Secondary Act, (E.S.E.A.), it is polluting the minds of elementary and secondary school children in Pittsburgh, Pa., Tacoma, Wash., and Rochester, N.Y. So, children in these schools are being taught that it is O.K. to break the law.

This is one of many bizarre examples of the way in which school children are being indoctrinated with a philosophy totally in consonance with our culture and morality. It is a perversion of our educational system,

Strength For Today

TAKE OFF THE BRAKE

Most automobiles today are equipped with a dashboard light which blows red when the hand brake is on. Everyone knows how much energy is wasted and how poorly a car performs if it is driven without releasing the hand brake.

And yet many people go through life in this same condition with some careless or bad habit keeping them from full efficiency. The person who pays no attention to his health, the person who continually spends more money than he earns, the people who lean on alcohol, the people who just won't put themselves out to be nice to others — these are just some of those who are held back by some unnecessary handicap.

It would be helpful if the personalities of all of us were equipped with something corresponding to the flashing light on the dashboard — something which would say to us, "Brother, you are going through life with your brake on. Do something about it; do it now."

Shifts On Two Sides

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is going to have to get along with a more conservative Congress, but on a good many issues he may not find it all that difficult.

If the Senate is a bit more conservative than it used to be, so is Carter, by his own account.

He'll get no argument from conservatives on his call for government austerity, his promise to veto what he regards as excessive spending and his vows to cut the federal budget deficit.

There will inevitably be ample argument about where to cut spending, but Carter may be debating that with liberals in his own Democratic Party about as often as with the Republicans.

So Carter the economizer is likely to find the new Congress a compatible one. After all, it wasn't only conservative Republicans who told the voters they would put the brakes on government spending. Democrats did, too.

It's Carter the would-be reformer who is likely to have trouble. His plans for tax and welfare overhauls, and for labor legislation, founded in the last Congress, and will have less of a chance next time.

He may also have difficulties on foreign policy, notably on a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviet Union, since the election cost him some key Senate allies on that issue.

Still, it is worth noting that an Associated Press-NBC News poll showed 70 percent of the voters favor a new SALT treaty. That isn't likely to budge ardent conservatives who don't want to deal with the Russians, but if the public support holds, it will spare wavering senators the political agony that went with the Panama Canal treaties. Even now, the voters line up 50 percent to 37 percent against the canal deal.

"I think the Democrats did fairly well on a nationwide basis," Carter said Thursday in appraising the mid-term

Two more township Farm Bureaus have been established in Pitt County this week, the latest organizations having been set up at Pactolus and Bethel.

Bureaus previously had been established at Fountain, Farmville and Winterville.

At Pactolus, J. R. Chauncy was named president, A. R. Barnhill, vice-president and J. H. Wilson, secretary-treasurer; At Bethel, J. B. Bunting was selected president, J. C. Smith, vice-president and Carey Brown, secretary-treasurer.

L. W. Gaskins of near Shelmerdine returned today with more news about the six and one-half ounce egg one of his flock laid. He reported that he accidentally broke the egg and found that one normal size egg, shell and all, was inside the large egg.

Two yolks were in the outer egg and one yolk was in the inner egg.

The First 5 Months Are Easy

By GAIL MICHAELS

I have always tried hard to set a good example for my daughter, Meg. And I succeeded for the first five months. Since then, however, it's been a different story.

For instance, I tried to teach her that nice people don't yell in the house. Unfortunately, I didn't count on her emptying a whole bottle of shampoo into the toes of my best pair of shoes. Yelling has been my major means of discipline ever since.

And then there was the time I tried to teach her to put things up after she used them and to keep her room tidy. But with a father who leaves a trail of clothes from the front door to the bedroom via the kitchen every afternoon and a mother whose desk gets cleaned at least once every other year as examples, I didn't get very far.

The only thing I can think of that would be comparable to the orderliness of her room is an earthquake at Fisher-Price.

But the hardest example to set has not been in the area of what she should do. It has been what she should say. I knew we were headed for trouble the night she said to my mother-in-law, "Stick it in your ear."

After that, I watched my language much more closely, and I'm convinced I would have done all right... if only I had never had to drive. But for some reason, I seem to lose all verbal inhibition when I get behind the wheel of a car. Protected on all four sides by glass and metal, I address myself to the harebrains of this world in a manner I would never dream of in any other setting.

So when a man veered in front of me on the interstate one afternoon, the words, "Watch where you're going, you stupid fool!" were out of my mouth before I even knew it."

I bit my tongue and waited for the inevitable response from the back seat.

"Mommy, you called that man stupid."

"I know, Meg, and I'm sorry," I said. "I shouldn't have done it."

"Mommy, why did you call that man stupid?"

"I got angry, and I'm sorry, okay?"

"Nice people don't say

"stupid," she persisted. "I gritted my teeth and tried to remember that I had brought this on myself. 'I'll try not to do it again.'"

"I'm a nice girl so I don't say 'stupid.'"

"Good," I said.

"Stupid is an ugly word, and I don't like to say 'stupid,' so I won't ever say 'stupid,'" she said, repeatedly rolling the forbidden word over her tongue with obvious relish.

"That's enough, young lady!"

She waited a few seconds, then giggled. "Nice people don't say 'stupid,' but you said it."

That did it. I turned my head toward her and snapped, "Shut up!"

There was a short silence, then from the back a barely audible whisper.

"Nice people don't say 'Shut up.'"

Before the close of the 95th Congress, an amendment was accepted to the 1978 amendment to E.S.E.A. — it goes some distance in returning into the hands of the parents power over curriculum testing and the kind of psychological probing cited above. This "Parental Consent Amendment", introduced by me and co-sponsored by many of my colleagues, was accepted as part of the final bill and signed by President Carter.

In short, my amendment requires the written and informed consent of parents or legal guardians before students can be subjected to any form of psychiatric testing, behavior modification probing (i.e. as in the Kohlberg example), or any other form of examination which is not scholastic aptitude or achievement oriented. As a result, now no student will be required to undergo this kind of mind-bending testing or to reveal personal information about his or her family life without the prior, written and informed consent of the student's parents.

elections. He said there was general approval of Democrats and their policies. Carter noted that the Democrats emerged holding more than 60 percent of House seats and about 60 percent in the Senate.

The new lineups apparently will be 276 Democrats and 159 Republicans in the House, a gain of 13 seats for the GOP, and 59 to 41 in the Senate, a three-seat Republican gain.

That's a handy way of keeping score, but it really doesn't mean very much. Those party lines will be solid only on the question of organizing the new Congress. Once House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd have been re-elected and committee lineups have been set, party affiliation will have more to do with where the members sit than how they vote.

Although the enactment of the Parental Consent Amendment has been hailed across the country as a victory for a parent's rights, the victory is a tactical one in the context of a larger conflict between two groups about what is best for the education and development of our children. Within the Department of HEW, there are those who place the educational emphasis on the three R's — reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic. They are outnumbered, however, by those who support the popular trend among professional educators to turn our schools into psychiatric clinics, clinics concerned less with what children should know than how they should feel. In my opinion, it is a primary reason why we are faced with a generation of children in which too many suffer emotional problems, and all too few graduate from high school or college with adequate reading or writing ability. Regardless of one's particular preference for or against the so-called "New Education" which is purported by some to replace the traditional method of instruction, most reasonable people will agree that in the final analysis the decisions concerning the education of small children ought to rest first with the parents. Not a teacher, not a school administrator, not an HEW bureaucrat, not a Harvard education specialist, but a parent ought to have the final say on what a child is taught in our schools. The Parental Consent Statute returns to parents an important legal weapon for their arsenal. However, it is now the responsibility of parents and local school organizations to assure that this instrument is used. The fate of our children, as with our nation, requires our ever-increasing vigilance over those who for the "best" of reasons would exert the most harm. WASHINGTON DATELINE (Copyright)

Fighter For Oppressed Wins A Point

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A

veteran fighter for victims of religious oppression in communist Eastern Europe, the Rev. Blahoslav Hruby, has pushed through another punch, despite procedural efforts to deflect it. "Not in a form suitable for action," a committee of the National Council of Churches demurred in suggesting that Hruby's proposed appeal be shelved.

Unemployment Tax Is Fought By Churches

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Saying it is consistent with the stand they have taken in other situations, 83 of the state's fundamentalist Christian schools filed suit in Wake Superior Court Thursday challenging the state's right to collect unemployment tax.

Winston-Salem said similar lawsuits are pending in at least half a dozen states. Carr is president of the Organized Christian Schools.

Employment Security Commission exceeded its authority when it decided to follow the Department of Labor directive rather than a state statute exempting those "services performed in the employ of a church or convention or association of churches."

The suit contends that the tax, which is based on an employee's salary and is collected from both employer and employee, is unconstitutional because the schools are part of their churches and thus entitled to tax exemptions.

The Rev. Daniel Carr of Zion Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, 6th & Venter Streets, Athens, N.C., said the schools are also involved in court suit with the state over state regulation of the schools and over some of those schools who were operating day care centers without state licenses.

The Rev. Daniel Carr of Zion Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, 6th & Venter Streets, Athens, N.C., said the schools are also involved in court suit with the state over state regulation of the schools and over some of those schools who were operating day care centers without state licenses.

The suit asks that the state be temporarily blocked from trying to collect the unemployment tax until a trial on the issues can be held. A hearing has been scheduled for Nov. 27.

In both instances the schools say the state is overstepping its bounds in its regulation of the church-based schools.

STRONG HANDS OF PRAYER

A man's hands grow stronger when he clasps them reverently in prayer, seeking the power and love of God.

History documents the confusion and futility that have marked mankind's efforts to solve problems without God. When we have chosen to struggle alone—alone we have struggled.

It is not weakness then, but wisdom, which inspires prayer. Those disciples of Jesus who were destined to share their faith with men of all nations and times asked very simply: "Lord, teach us to pray."

In church next Sunday . . . and in the privacy of your own home today . . . make positive use of the precious gift of prayer. It will make your hands stronger for the tasks at hand.

Wife Sues To Prevent Medicaid Law Divorce

CLAYTON, N.C. (AP) — When Lila Carter of Clayton said "I do" 44 years ago, she wasn't kidding. And now she's taking the state to court in an effort to change a law that may force her to divorce her disabled husband or somehow manage to live on $160 a month.

Security benefits to help pay for his care by mandate of current laws governing the federal Medicaid program in North Carolina. The only way to keep all of her $241.10 monthly check is to legally separate from him. That she will not do without a fight.

"I've been married 44 years," the 61-year-old woman said recently. "I don't intend to divorce him just because he's disabled. I said 'for better or for worse.'"

Nab Boys In Fire Deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — Two 14-year-old boys were arrested early today and charged with murder, burglary and arson in connection with a South Bronx house fire that killed six people, including four children.

In an effort to get the state regulations changed, the Carters and a Charlotte couple, John and Alma Foad, filed suit in Charlotte contending the state's program encourages people to divorce or separate, thus violating the right to privacy.

Mrs. Carter said her husband receives $335.30 a month in Social Security disability benefits and $230.43 a month from his state retirement.

Police said the youths, whose names were not immediately released, were charged with second-degree murder, first-degree burglary and arson and will be treated as adults.

And they charge in the suit that the state's practice of allocating certain amounts of a spouse's monthly income for

All but $29 of the total goes to meet his nursing home expenses. Under state rules, all but $160 of Mrs. Carter's benefits must also go toward his care.

They were to be arraigned later in Bronx Criminal Court.

The fatal fire occurred Wednesday in a two-story frame house where 13 people were sleeping. Immediately after the fire, officials at the scene said they believed the cause to be accidental but would not rule out arson because of the number of deaths.

Field of Battle Today Is Muted

Guns Once Roared

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — More than 8,000 acres scattered in seven locations near the Georgia-Tennessee border make up the Chicamauga and Chattanooga National Military Park. But to Chattanooga residents, Chicamauga Battlefield is THE park.

The battlefield, site of one of the last Confederate victories before Gen. William Sherman's march through Georgia, is located along U.S. 27 south of Chattanooga. Visitors are enticed to drive along the seven-mile tour of the park.

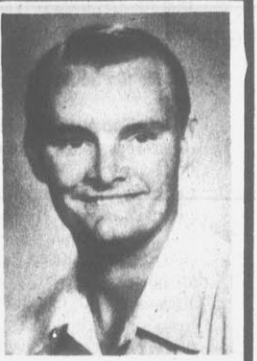

NOW THERE IS QUIET — It was at the Brotherton House in 1863, amid rifle shots and artillery fire on the Chicamauga Battlefield, that the Confederates broke through Union lines and decisively captured the victory. (AP Laserphoto)

But a better way to see it is on horseback. Horses can be rented from a nearby stable.

The former battlefield is filled with trails and back roads, where the Civil War buff can see stone monuments and metal markers in many unlikely places.

During the summer, volunteers give demonstrations of life at Chicamauga at the time of the 1863 battle, in which about 34,000 were killed.

Wearing uniforms of the time, they perform on Snodgrass Hill, near the end of the tour. They discuss and explain the battle . . . in detail and show how weapons of the times were used.

Three Big Generators Damaged By Vandals

GRAND COULEE, Wash. (AP)—Some $500,000 in damage to three giant electrical generators has indefinitely delayed completion of the Grand Coulee Dam hydroelectric project, planned as the largest power plant of its type in the world.

Robert Mueller, superintendent of the area housing the damaged generators, said the gouging of the coil bars in the generators could have been done with a small crowbar or chisel.

"He has access," said Mueller. "It has to be an inside job."

Okanogan County Sheriff Jerry Beck said police have no suspects.

An FBI spokesman said the crime involved would likely be destruction of government property because one of the 700,000-kilowatt turbine generators had been completed and turned over to the federal government. The generator had been shut down for maintenance when the damage was done, officials said.

The other two damaged generators were still under construction.

Construction workers and Bureau of Reclamation personnel were being interrogated and their records reviewed. The bureau operates the dam. About 250 people work in the third powerhouse.

Gene Tollefson of the Bonneville Power Administration, which sells power from the dam, said the temporary loss of one generator would not effect the availability of electricity.

The Grand Coulee project supplies 14 percent of the power to Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana and can send power as far east as Chicago and as far south as Mexico.

Damage was first discovered Oct. 30 at Unit 23, which was nearing completion. The damage involved 12 coil bars, and ranged from scratched paint to severely gouged insulation, said Bureau of Reclamation spokesman Ted Hoffman.

Workers Monday discovered damage to a coil bar in the generator of Unit 22, the only generator which had been in production. It was brought on line last May.

Six damaged coil bars were found Tuesday and Wednesday at Unit 24, said Mueller. The estimated cost to replace a coil bar is $30,000, Hoffman said.

Grand Coulee Dam is ranked fourth in the world for power production at 4.2 million kilowatts, following the Soviet Union's Krasnoyarsk plant at 6 million kilowatts, Batsk Dam at 4.5 million kilowatts, and Canada's Churchill Falls at 5.2 million kilowatts.

When Grand Coulee's third powerhouse is completed, it will be able to produce 7.3 million kilowatts.

Toll-Free Line On House Pests

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — although some run as long as four minutes. Stumped on how to rid of some unwelcome household pests? Searching for some energy conservation tactics as winter approaches? If so, maybe you should dial up Extension Teletip, a toll-free information line set up by the Department of Agricultural Information at North Carolina State University.

Since its institution in April, Teletip has received about 85,000 calls, according to Tom Byrd, head of the information department.

"It was conceived as a timesaver for extension agents to save them from having to answer routine, repetitious calls," Byrd said. In addition the service seems to have attracted a number of callers who weren't using extension services at all before Teletip was started.

People interested in using the service can obtain a directory of tapes by calling Teletip at 1800-662-7301 or through their local extension agents. A caller selects the tape, dials Teletip and requests the tape by number. The operator pulls the tape from a large revolving file and inserts it into the player attached to the telephone.

The taped messages average about two minutes each.

Recalls Easier Life On Farm

By BROOKS JACKSON Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Carter has found the old saying true: It is hard and lonely at the top.

Ridicule and scorn are the risk of failure, and continued criticism is the reward for progress. Hard work and tenacity are the keys.

Leadership would be easier if the nation were in crisis, or if he could satisfy himself with half-baked decisions.

Life used to be a lot simpler back on the farm.

For the first time since his political popularity was reborn in the Camp David summit, Carter spoke publicly at length Thursday about his thoughts on himself and the presidency.

For 27 minutes he delivered his soliloquy to a rapt audience of several thousand rural youths, delegates to the national convention of Future Farmers of America.

It was a sort of homecoming. As a boy, Carter was secretary of the FFA chapter in Plains, Ga., when the organization was but seven years old. Now he was congratulating the national group in its 50th year.

"The first thing I joined in my life was the Baptist Church," he recalled. "The second thing I joined in my life was the FFA." Carter is the first FFA member to become president, and the delegates gave him a loud ovation when he arrived at the 12,000-seat Municipal Auditorium, which was jammed with youths wearing the gold-lettered blue windbreakers which are the FFA uniform.

In the balconies, hundreds of flash cameras popped in a brilliant staccato as the president spoke, using no notes, and sometimes clutching both fists in his emotional intensity.

He spoke of his youth, of the problems of leadership and of his occasional loneliness and frustration.

Collecting Huge Postage Bill

ELM CITY, N.C. (AP) — The biggest postage bill ever run up in the United States is being collected in Elm City.

Elm City may not be a household word, but it's well known to the folks in the postage service. It is the site of Donnelly Marketing, a firm handling mass mailings for many of the big names in American business — Procter and Gamble, reader's Digest, Lever Brothers.

But the current project — a 35-million-envelope "Carol Wright" mailing of coupons and samples from more than 100 grocery and household products firms — was more than it could handle.

The envelopes were bundled and loaded onto 250 tractor-trailers hired by the Postal Service. Most of the rigs were then put aboard railroad cars and piggybacked around the country for distribution in individual cities. All the envelopes were scheduled for delivery this week.

NEW YORK (AP) — Hints of a slight improvement in the interest-rate outlook helped the stock market post a moderate gain today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.16 at 808.13.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 5-3 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Concern that New York's Citibank might raise its prime lending rate to 11 percent today was alleviated when the bank held its basic charge on big business loans at 10 1/2 percent.

The Federal Reserve's weekly report late Thursday listed a $2.1 billion increase in the basic measure of the money supply.

But many analysts had been looking for an even bigger increase, after a record $5.4 billion drop the week before. And with the latest data, hopes persisted that the Fed's efforts to curb monetary growth might at last be meeting with some success.

Chrysler shares led the active list, off 1/4 at 10 1/4 in trading that included a 125,000-share block at 10 1/4.

Farmville Leaf Mart Is Closed

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market closed its 74th sale year Thursday, according to Louis N. Williams, sales supervisor.

The market opened Aug. 1 and closed Nov. 9, with 57 sale days, compared to 51 sale days last year, Williams said.

Stabilization receipts were estimated to be less than last year, according to Williams with a 3.5 percent figure quoted for gross sales.

From general observation, Williams said that leaf grades were much better, but down stalk grades were not as good. Grade for grade, prices were higher this year.

Top practical price paid this season was $1.65 a pound. Top price paid by a company this season was $3.25 per pound on a special sale, according to Williams.

The Farmville market sold 35,294,257 pounds of tobacco this season, compared with 26,318,345 pounds a year ago. Value of the crop was $48,512,813 with an average of $137.45 for the season, compared with $115.48 per 100 pounds of last year. The value was the highest in Farmville history, according to Williams.

The Farmville market sold more than its designated allotment set at the first of the season. The amount designated was 34,643,621 pounds, Williams said.

Pirates Seek Revenge Over Indians

Fast Eddie Wants To Outrun W&M's Tribe

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 They call him "Fast Eddie," and sometimes some of the East Carolina opposition wonders if that name is appropriate. "Fastest Eddie" might be more to the point. For once Eddie Hicks turns the corner, he's a tough man to catch. Ask the Tar Heels of North Carolina, who saw him rambles 53 yards for a touchdown in the 38-17 ECU victory. Or the Virginia Cavaliers who saw him go 87 yards.

Coach Pat Dye, however, feels that running the ball may not be the best part of Hicks' game. It could be his blocking, and time after him, Dye has praised the senior running back for his ability to help his teammates get loose. And Hicks is hoping that that ability will help him catch the eye of the pro scouts.

This past Saturday, Fast Eddie galloped for 114 yards on six carries, his best outing of the year. But Eddie doesn't think it was his best overall performance.

"I really didn't have as good a game at blocking as I usually do," he said. "I did okay running the ball, but it wasn't my best game." That, he added, was the Carolina victory.

When Hicks did turn loose Saturday against Appalachian State, he seemed to have little trouble in getting through the line, or making the turn at the corner.

"The line and the other backs all blocked real well for me Saturday," he said. "AC (Anthony Collins) had one of his best games blocking and Theodore (Sutton) is improving a lot in his blocking too. That combination of line and backs made it easy for me."

Whether it will be that easy this Saturday in the regionally televised game with William & Mary is yet to be seen. But it's a game Hicks wants to see tucked under his belt for a victory.

"The last two years, they've beaten us physically. They let us win it two years ago. We just haven't played out best against them. Now, we'd like to go out there Saturday and beat them physically like they've beaten us. We just want to put a complete game together and not make any mistakes and go up and down the field."

Aside from winning these last two games, Hicks would like to close out his ECU career as the second-leading rusher of all time. Currently he stands fifth with 2,007 yards. Getting to that goal would take a superhuman effort, since Butch Colson (number two) had 2,512 yards. But third place, Ken Strayhorn, at 2,155, certainly is within reach.

Hicks feels that he has a good chance of being drafted by the pros. "And it doesn't really matter by who," he said. "I just want the chance."

Hicks would also like to think that he has more than two games left in the ECU purple.

"The last few years, we've been up for bowl games but we haven't gotten them. We let someone beat us, and it knocked us out. We're due. We feel like we're owed one and we can't let anyone take it from us this year."

"If we win these last two, maybe we'll get another chance to go somewhere."

It's the Homecoming. The game is on regional television. The opponent is one of the arch-rivals of the Pirates—William & Mary.

What more could you ask for? The Pirates of East Carolina are hoping for a little more. Maybe not Saturday afternoon, but in the future.

There are still bowl hopes around the Greenville campus, and East Carolina vividly remembers that last year William & Mary came away with a 21-17 Oyster Bowl victory that probably cost them a postseason trip.

Kickoff for the game, since it is on television, has been moved from 1:30 p.m., as printed on the tickets, to 4:10 p.m., with the network coverage over ABC starting at 4 p.m.

East Carolina comes into the game with a 6-3 record, while William & Mary is 5-3-1, playing to a 22-22 tie with Temple.

They have beaten VMI (10-3), the University of Connecticut (27-3), Villanova (21-17), James Madison (32-7), and The Citadel (12-8). They were beaten by Virginia Tech (22-19), Navy (9-0) and Louisville (33-21).

"I think our people are looking forward to the game," ECU Coach Pat Dye said. "And I'm sure that William & Mary is looking forward to it also. They've beaten us the past two years, although we won two years ago on the scoreboard. But they beat us physically both of those games."

Dye said that the Indians have an excellent and experienced offensive line for star quarterback Tom Rozantz to operate behind. "They run from multiple sets, and Rozantz does a great job in calling automatics at the line. He has a lot of ability, and his intelligence makes him very hard to defend. He'll give us a lot of problems."

Rozantz leads the Indian offense with 1,120 yards. He's rushed for 311 on 97 carries, a 3.2 yard average, and hit on 62 of 155 passes for 809 yards and seven touchdowns.

But he has had an interception problem, getting 12 picked off.

Joining him in the backfield is fullback Alvis Lang, the leading rusher with 576 yards, and Clarence Gaines, who has rushed for 327 yards.

will make it ever tougher on us."

The Indians start 14 seniors and eight juniors on the two units, and Dye said that this points out how great their experience is.

"They should have a lot of confidence in playing us, and I can't really blame them for feeling that way," Dye added.

Overall, William & Mary has averaged 192.9 yards a game rushing, while holding opponents to 175.3 per game. They are picking up 105.1 through the air, while allowing 100.3.

If there is any question mark, it could be in their punting game, where booter Chris Garrity was injured last week. He's averaging 36.1 yards a kick. Others who've been tried have averaged less than 30 yards a kick, and at least five kicks have been blocked or partially blocked out of a total of 46.

13.3 per game. Overall, the Bucs are allowing 221.7 yards a game, fifth in the nation.

East Carolina is fifth in punt returns with a 12.2 average and 27th in rushing offense with 238 a game.

William & Mary ranks 11th in pass defense.

Individually, Gerald Hall is seventh in punt returns with a 13.4 average, while Anthony Collins is 14th in kickoff returns with a 24.8 average.

The Pirates will conclude the regular season next Saturday, playing host to Marshall University.

McGinnis Paces Nuggets To Victory

Patience, Patience

Rick Wilson of the Atlanta Hawks waits with the basketball for a clear view past soaring Sidney Wicks of the San Diego Clippers who overshot him on a feint at the Atlanta Omni Thursday. His patience was rewarded and the Hawks beat the Clippers 125-101. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
"He's a great player." Denver Coach Larry Brown said of George McGinnis, who has been a key performer in the Nuggets' 8-4 start, good enough for a 1 1/2-game lead in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.

McGinnis, obtained in a controversial offseason trade that sent popular Bobby Jones to Philadelphia, scored 25 points, grabbed nine rebounds and had seven assists Thursday night to lead the Nuggets to a 116-109 victory over the sluggish New York Knicks.

"We're asking George to do things he's never done," said Brown. "He's even better than I thought he was and I've always respected his ability."

"He is so good and everything comes so easily to him that he has never had to work. We are asking him to do that now and so far he has responded."

In the only other NBA game played Thursday, the Atlanta Hawks beat the San Diego Clippers 125-101.

Brown said the Nuggets played as well as they have all season in the first half as they amassed a 64-38 lead. "But the second half we just looked at the clock and tried to get it over with," Brown said.

Knicks Coach Willis Reed was a bit puzzled after the defeat, which ended New York's longest road trip of the season.

The Knicks were 2-4 on the Western swing and are 6-8 overall.

"I'm not sure why we didn't seem to come to play, but there could be a couple of reasons," said Reed. "Sometimes it's hard for a young team like ours to come back after a good win like last night's in Seattle."

The Knicks beat the Super-Sonics 104-100 Wednesday night.

"Our players were really high after beating the team with the best record in the league and we didn't get into tonight's game for a long time," observed Reed.

Bobby Wilkerson backed up McGinnis scoring with 19 points as the Nuggets had seven players scoring in double figures. Ray Williams led the Knicks scoring with 24 points. Bob McAdoo, who got into foul trouble and was sidelined most of the third period, scored 23.

Hawks 125, Clippers 101

Forward John Drew topped the Hawks with a season-high 35 points and guard Eddie Johnson added 24. Center Steve Hawes handed out 10 assists, a career high.

The Hawks trailed 61-60 at halftime but took the lead for good on a jumper by Johnson with 9:23 to go in the third period. They led by as many as 11 points in the third quarter and pulled away in the final period.

"We've been breaking down defensively night after night," complained San Diego Coach Gene Shue. "What is disappointing is that you look for improvement, but quite frankly, we're still making the same mistakes we made in training camp."

Nick Weatherspoon led the Clippers with 25 points and Lloyd Free scored 23.

Four Dukes Suspended

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Coach Mike McGee has suspended four Duke football players, including the Blue Devils' leading rusher and top pass receiver, for "activity detrimental to the best interests of the rest of the team."

McGee said Thursday that tailback Greg Rhett and split end Derrick Lewis, both starters, and reserve quarterback Stanley Driskell and split end Marvin Brown would be off the squad indefinitely but will have a chance to be reinstated later in the season.

"That is between them and me, and we'll have a meeting Monday morning," McGee said, refusing to elaborate on the suspensions.

The four will not play in Saturday's Atlantic Coast Conference game against Wake Forest. The Blue Devils close out the season with games against North Carolina State and North Carolina the following two weeks.

The Durham Herald reported in today's editions that the four suspended players called a meeting of freshmen, sophomore and junior players on the team earlier this week and blamed McGee and his staff for Duke's 3-5 record and the Blue Devils' failure to post a winning record the past three seasons.

Lewis said he, Rhett, Driskell and Brown met with McGee Thursday morning but "I don't think it would be fair to my teammates to make any comments right now. I don't want them worrying about us when they're on the field. We've got enough strife right now."

"We've decided not to say anything until after the season," he added, "but there's gonna be a lot of comments made then."

Rhett, a junior from Charlotte, is the team's top rusher with 412 yards for the season. He suffered an ankle injury in the fourth game of the season against Virginia and has been slowed since then. McGee had said Rhett would not start against Wake Forest.

Lewis, a junior from Lancaster, S.C., is the leading receiver for the Blue Devils with 20 receptions for 365 yards. Driskell is also a junior from Atlanta and has seen considerable action because of a thumb injury that has plagued starting quarterback Mike Dunn.

A sophomore from Hampton, Va., Brown has seen little action and has not caught a pass.

Memories Mean A Lot To Sooners, Huskers

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska 1-back Richard Berns, who scored the only touchdown against Oklahoma during last year's meeting in Norman, will bring a bruised thigh and a haunted memory to this Saturday's annual Big Eight challenge.

Berns, who says "injuries don't mean anything in this game," says the eight-game winning streak No. 4 ranked Nebraska brings to the nationally televised contest has built up the Husker's confidence.

But he is haunted by the memory of the 1976 game that Oklahoma won 20-17 in the closing seconds with a flea-flicker pass.

"When a team like Oklahoma pulls something like that, it makes me madder than anything," Berns said. "I have all the respect in the world for Oklahoma, but you can't let them go on taunting you like that for four seasons."

This will be Bern's last chance to beat Oklahoma, and Husker mentor Tom Osborne will be looking for his first win in six outings against the No. 1 ranked Sooners.

The Colorado game is also a factor in the mind of Sooner Coach Bary Switzer.

"If we make the same mistakes against Nebraska that we made against Colorado, we'll find ourselves behind for the first time this season," he said. Last Saturday OU fumbled eight times, losing five and throwing one pass interception.

At stake Saturday is a share of the Big Eight title, a probable trip to the Orange Bowl and possibly the national championship. It will be the 99th consecutive sellout of a Nebraska home game and the sixth consecutive time the battle has been on national television.

Oklahoma leads the series that began in 1912 and has been an annual meeting since 1928. Nebraska's last victory was the 35-31 "Game of the Century" thriller in Norman in 1971.

It will be the third time this year that Nebraska has faced a Wishbone offense. The season opener against Alabama turned into a 20-3 loss to the Crimson Tide, while last week Nebraska took the Kansas Jayhawks for a 63-21 ride.

Which part of the Wishbone the Huskers break off Saturday will depend a lot on how the defense handles OU's classy quarterback, Thomas Lott, who will make his third outing against Nebraska.

Lott, who has more career yards rushing than Husker I-back I.M. Hipp, is viewed as more of the key to the Sooner offense than explosive back Billy Sims. The Sooner halfback already holds sixth place in the Big Eight all-time season rushing category with three games left.

In another top game Saturday, second-ranked Penn State plays host to North Carolina State, which uses an option attack built around the running of Ted Brown, who has helped the Wolfpack to a 6-2 record. Brown set a school record by gaining 251 yards against the Nittany Lions a year ago.

"North Carolina State sends a lot of players along the line on those options," said sophomore defensive end Larry Kubin of Penn State, who has been credited with 33 tackles including 11 quarterback sacks. "You have the tight end, guards pulling, backs making the low block. They look tough."

Penn State has also looked tough, however, beating previously unbeaten Maryland 27-3 last week to raise its record to 9-0.

Two other games feature top 10 teams going against each other. No. 3 Alabama plays host to No. 10 Louisiana State and No. 6 Texas is host to No. 8 Houston in the probable Southwestern title game.

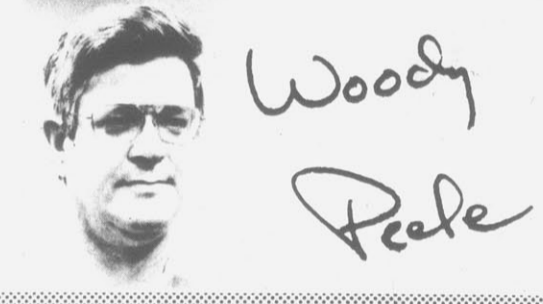

Fun Run Slated

The Coastal Carolina Track Club will hold its weekly "Fun Run" at the East Carolina University track Saturday starting at 7:30 a.m.

Sunday, the "Joggers Special" will be held, as usual, at the E.B. Aycock track, at 8:30 a.m.

The club will hold its monthly meeting Sunday at 7 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

All people interested in running are invited to attend both sessions, and the meeting.

This is "alumni week" for our panel, with our guest one of our former panel members who dropped off a couple of years ago.

George Holland, who is still a member of the "Daily Reflector" staff, concurred to try his hand again, although he admitted that he hated to show us up.

But getting showed up is nothing new for us. Last week's guest, ECU Pirate Club director Gus Andrews came in with an 8-4 record, leaving ECU athletic director Bill Cain's 10-2 mark still the best by a guest.

Tom Baines turned in the top record of the past week, with an 11-1 chart and moved back into a tie for first place with this writer. Both of us are now 83-34-1. And one of us will be back in the lead after this week. There is only one difference (again) on our cards.

The rest of the field is back a bit. Joe Jenkins has moved into third place with a 78-39-1 mark, five games off the pace. He's followed by Jim Kyle and our guests, tied for

Clemson, Maryland Expected To Warm Up For Crown Meeting

By The Associated Press
If all goes according to form, the Atlantic Coast Conference championship will be decided Nov. 18 when Clemson and Maryland meet at College Park. And this week's matches for the conference co-leaders are expected to be warm-ups for that contest since both are heavily favored in their outings.

Defending champion North Carolina, which has won only one of three ACC games so far, visits Clemson while Maryland plays at Virginia, winless in three tries in the conference.

In other games involving ACC teams, Wake Forest is at Duke and North Carolina State draws the challenge of playing unbeaten, 2nd-ranked Penn State on the road.

UNC at Clemson
Junior Matt Kupec, North Carolina's starting quarterback last season, will be back at the helm when the Tar Heels (1-2 in the ACC and 3-5 overall) try for an upset at Clemson (4-0, 71).

Kupec was bumped from the starting role earlier in the season by freshman Chuck Sharpe, but new Coach Dick Crum said he liked the way Kupec came off the bench to spark a late rally in last week's 27-18 loss to Richmond.

Clemson's attack, led by senior quarterback Steve Fuller, has been awesome at times this season, and the defense is tops in the conference against rushing, passing and scoring.

Maryland at Virginia
The Terps (4-0, 8-1) are expected to rebound from last week's 27-3 loss to Penn State in the 1:30 p.m. game at Scott Stadium at Charlottesville, Va.

Virginia (0-3, 2-6) is giving up an average of 383 yards a game, next to last in the ACC, and its defense is likely to get a severe test against tailback Steve Atkins and quarterback Tim O'Hare of Maryland. O'Hare is averaging 111 yards a game total offense and Atkins is reeling off 110 yards per contest.

Virginia hasn't won over Maryland since 1971, and the Terps would like to score an impressive win this week to remain in contention for a bid to a major bowl.

Wake at Duke
Each team has won one ACC game this season, and both will be out to snap losing streaks.

Wake Forest (1-4, 1-8) has dropped eight games in a row since beating Virginia in the season opener. The bright spot for the Deacons is quarterback David Webber, who is completing more than 54 percent of his passes and has thrown for 776 yards so far.

Duke (1-2, 3-5) had a rough time last week in a 34-0 loss to Tennessee, a team that had only one victory to its credit. The Blue Devils, who have lost five of their last six games, are last in the ACC in total offense and scoring.

N.C. State at Penn State
The Wolfpack (6-2) is still in the running for a fourth consecutive bowl appearance but needs to make an impressive showing against the Nittany Lions.

N.C. State halfback Ted Brown, billed as a strong candidate for the Heisman Trophy, also needs a strong performance. He ran for 251 yards in a 21-17 loss to Penn State last year.

Penn State (9-0) was awesome in its win last week over Maryland, a team that beat N.C. State 31-7 last month. Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m. at Penn State's Beaver Stadium.

Joe Louis, A Shadow Of His Past, Given Big Testimonial

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The people stood as one — clapping, whistling and cheering for Joe Louis, a man who heard the throaty roar of crowds through countless fights as boxing's legendary Brown Bomber.

It was a testimonial dinner for Louis, who appeared in a wheelchair, a physical shadow of the man many consider the greatest heavyweight champion of all time. But the appearance could not diminish the legend.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson called Louis "a messenger to the people... an authentic hero, not a surplus hero."

But the mood of a gala evening at Caesar's Palace was perhaps best expressed by Eddie Futch, a fight trainer who was lost amid the glitter of a crowd that included such figures as Muhammad Ali, Frank Sinatra, Cary Grant and Joe DiMaggio.

Futch, a lightweight on the amateur boxing team on which Louis was the light-heavyweight, said, "He was the champion, is the champion and will always be the champion."

The 64-year-old Louis did not address the crowd of 1,500 at the $500 a plate "A Night with the Champ." He didn't have to; his career spoke for him.

The star-studded affair opened with a film of Louis' one-round destruction of Max Schmeling, who was present in 1938 and his 13th-round knockout of Billy Conn, the light-heavyweight who tried to outslug Louis in their memorable bout in 1941.

The film touched off numerous conversations about Louis' career and life, many of them involving people too young to have seen him fight.

"He is my idol, he's many people's idol," said Ali, who for one of the few public occasions in his illustrious career had to — and was satisfied to — play second fiddle.

"He was the greatest heavyweight champion I have ever seen. He is a great guy," said Sugar Ray Robinson, the former welterweight and middleweight champion who as a kid in Detroit carried Louis' ring gear and who developed into, according to many boxing people, the greatest pound-for-pound fighter that ever lived.

Conn, still carrying a boyish Irish face over a figure that is now many pounds heavier than when he fought Louis, said, "If Joe was fighting today he'd be the heavyweight champion for the next 20 years. Who the hell would beat him?"

But Louis was honored Thursday night for more than just his ring ability.

Roosevelt Grier, a huge former professional football star, said, "I think Joe Louis has demonstrated over the years he's a great man. He's been through a lot of things and always come out on his feet."

"The dignity that existed when he was champion is something everyone wants to hold onto," said actor Jack Klugman.

Theismann Gets Second Chance In Starting Role For Redskins

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The Great Quarterback Derby resumes Sunday in Washington with two guys named Joe — Theismann of the Redskins and Pisarcik of the New York Giants — in the starring roles...for the moment.

In the wings, though, are Billy Kilmer of the 'Skins and Jerry Golsteyn of the Giants, waiting for yet another hurried call from a coach looking for a way to turn things around.

Sunday's other games are Dallas vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Chicago at Minnesota, Pittsburgh at Los Angeles, Houston at New England, Miami at Buffalo, Denver at Cleveland, the New York Jets at Philadelphia, Atlanta at New Orleans, Tampa Bay at Detroit, Baltimore at Seattle, Kansas City at San Diego and St. Louis at San Francisco. On Monday night it's Oakland at Cincinnati.

Both the Redskins and Giants changed quarterbacks last week — and in each case the change solved nothing. On Monday night, Kilmer, who had guided Washington to a shaky victory over San Francisco the game before, played himself out of the lineup halfway through a game in Baltimore. Theismann, the starter in the Skin's first eight games, fared no better and Washington fell 21-17 to the underdog Colts.

Golsteyn started for the Giants in St. Louis last Sunday and didn't make it through the first quarter, missing on five pass attempts. Pisarcik took over and completed 12 of 27 passes — but he also threw three interceptions and the Cards won 20-10.

The Redskins, 7-3, lead Dallas, 6-4, in the National Conference East. The Giants and Philadelphia are each 5-5. One of New York's victories came Oct. 22, a 17-6 surprise against the Redskins when Pisarcik combined with Jimmy Robinson on a 47-yard touchdown pass play and scored on a 3-yard run.

The loss to the Giants — when he completed only 15 of 38 passes for 169 yards and was intercepted three times — temporarily cost Theismann his starting job, one reason he's so anxious to do well this time.

"You bet the Giants' game is special to me and it's special to us as a team," he said. "Despite all that, I still can't press, but I sure will be ready... You just have to always be ready to play. That's the key. The easiest thing to do when things go bad is to throw in the towel. But you can't do that, and I didn't when I was replaced. You just have to take everything in stride and do the best you can."

Green Bay is in danger of losing sole possession of first place in the NFC's Central Division (they lead Minnesota by one game) while the Cowboys are trying to close the onetime gap with front-running Washington in the East.

The Steelers are the winningest team in the NFL at 9-1 and Los Angeles is right behind at 8-2 — but both Pittsburgh and the Rams are coming off shaky victories. Pittsburgh held on to beat New Orleans 20-14 while LA nosed out Tampa Bay 26-23.

The only other 8-2 team, New England, is trying to maintain its one-game edge over Miami in the American Conference East. A victory by Denver would give the Broncos, 6-4, at least a temporary AFC West lead over Oakland.

Holmes' Title Goes On Line

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes, who for much of the week has had to share attention with the great Joe Louis, gets the spotlight all to himself tonight when he fights Alfredo Evangelista.

The scheduled 15-rounder for the unbeaten Holmes, considered by many boxing people the most talented heavyweight in the world today, will be the first defense of the World Boxing Council title he won from Ken Norton on a decision last June 9.

Louis, the feared Brown Bomber of another era, was honored at a testimonial dinner Thursday night attended by stars of sports and show business.

Holmes is an overwhelming favorite to beat Evangelista, who went 15 rounds with Muhammad Ali in a losing title bid in 1977.

"I don't think it will go farther than eight or nine rounds," said the 29-year-old Holmes, who has a 28-0 record with 19 knockouts.

The smart money agrees with the champion. Evangelista is a 4-1 underdog if you like his chances. But there is no betting line on Holmes to win.

The show at Caesars Palace will be televised by ABC from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. EST.

Also featured on the card will be Norton, who meets Randy Stephens in a 10-rounder, and Alexis Arguello, who will defend the WBC junior light-weight title against Arturo Leon.

Norton will kick off the show in a fight he needs — and figures — to win if he wants a rematch with Holmes. A Holmes-Norton rematch shapes up as boxing's most competitive big-money fight since it doesn't appear that Ali, who is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association, will fight either of them. There is considerable doubt that the 36-year-old Ali will fight again.

"Well, I haven't a lot to say because I'm a supporting actor on this show," Norton said at a new conference. But he is a well-paid supporting actor, getting $250,000 which is $100,000 more than Evangelista is receiving. But Evangelista is where Norton wants to be.

Holmes, who calls his $300,000 purse for his fight with Norton "chump money" is getting $1.5 million.

Evangelista, the European champion, feels "that Larry Holmes will find I'm a different fighter than the one who fought Ali."

Four People Injured In Collisions

Four people were injured and an estimated $850 property damage reported in a series of traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers, who said the injuries resulted from two mishaps involving motorcycles, reported three persons were injured in a 10:55 p.m. mishap on 14th Street, 250 feet East of the Rock Springs Road intersection.

Investigators reported a motorcycle driven by Matthew Thomas Jones of Kinston struck a pedestrian, identified as Debbie Lee Andrews of 118 Slay Dorm, after passing a stopped vehicle in a no passing zone.

Jones, Miss Andrews and a passenger on the motorcycle were thrown to the pavement, officers reported, adding that Jones left the scene of the mishap, but returned a short time later.

Jones was charged with driving under the influence, careless and reckless driving, and leaving the scene of an accident.

Miss Andrews was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of her injuries.

No damage was reported to the motorcycle.

James Arthur Winstead of Route 2, Greenville was injured when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Robert Paul Fenstermacher of Raleigh, about 6 p.m. at the intersection of Reade and Evans Streets.

Damage was estimated at $250 to the motorcycle and $150 to the car.

Winstead was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for an injured ankle.

Cars driven by Shirley Romero Debnam of Shady Knoll Trailer Pk. and Tammy Junelle Cannon of Route 1, Grifton, collided about 12:45 p.m. at the intersection of Seventh and Cotanche Streets, resulting in an estimated $150 damage to the Debnam vehicle and $300 damage to the Cannon car.

Veterans To Be Honored

Veteran's Day will be observed Saturday. Local Veterans of Foreign Wars urge area residents to observe the day.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States have proclaimed Sunday through Saturday, Nov. 18, as Vietnam Veterans Week.

VFW Commander-in-Chief Eric Sandstrom of Tacoma, Wash., states many of the organization's 10,000 Posts throughout the 50 states will be holding special programs to honor Vietnam veterans during the week.

Pablo Cruise Concert A Treat For Capacity Crowd

A capacity crowd was treated to one of the 'prettiest' concerts ever staged in Minges Coliseum Thursday night during a well-received performance by Pablo Cruise, whose music was as invigorating as a cool tropical breeze, interspersed with a healthy dose of their better known Top 40 singles which brought the crowd to their feet dancing. Performing songs mostly from their two latest albums, "A Place In The Sun" and "World's Away", the band was provided with a setting that was a visual experience which only served to heighten the already polished musical experience. The stage's gauzy backdrop and excellent lighting, with emphasis on violets, reds and yellows, created an illusion of the most beautiful sunset ever viewed indoors. The rendition of "Atlanta June" was particularly tight, as well as another song from "A Place In The Sun", "Ocean Breeze". The title song of the album was another highlight of the evening. These songs are a few that haven't been subjected to the commercial over-play that so often leads to a 'ho-hum' acceptance after a few weeks on the charts. Yet, when the band began the set of their better-known songs, the crowd didn't stop 'dancin' in the aisles' until the last note was sounded, beginning with 'Don't Wanna Live Without It', and continuing through with 'Love Will Find A Way' and 'What You Gonna Do (When She Says Good-bye)'. The audience refused to remain behind the roped-off area in front of the stage any longer. For the encore, Pablo Cruise began with one of the most haunting instrumentals of the evening, and ended up inviting the crowd to "climb on board the good ship Pablo Cruise". But these weren't the only treats the audience received last night. The opening act, Livingston Taylor (younger brother of James Taylor), was a stimulus in himself. Refusing to be stereotyped in his music, Taylor gave a performance that was in contrast to his latest release on Epic Records, "3-Way Mirror". The music on the album is similar to his brother's in its approach and emotions portrayed, but the show last night left no comparisons between Livingston's performance, complete with a competent back-up band, and the one-man show James Taylor gave in Minges in 1975. Songs from "3-Way Mirror" included "L. A. Serenade", "Going Round One More Time", "I Will Be In Love With You" and "Gonna Have A Good Good Time". These, and other songs, were performed with enthusiasm and gusto. Taylor's listeners seemed to have a good time in the aisles as it appeared he and his band were having on stage. —Lynn Caverly

The bidding:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1♥ Pass
2NT Pass 3NT Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Five of ♦.

Sometimes deciding which suit to develop first is pure guesswork. More often than not, though, there will be a major consideration which dictates your choice.

South's jump to two no trump as a passed hand showed 11-12 points. Obviously, therefore, the bid was not forcing to game. However, with 14 high-card points and good fillers, North's decision to go on to three no trump was eminently sound.

West led a low diamond and declarer played the queen from dummy. This was technically correct—declarer wanted to discover who held the king of diamonds. If East held that card, he would surely cover, for his partner might be leading from a combination that included the jack. So when East followed low, declarer placed West with the king.

Declarer had only six fast tricks, and it was obvious that he had to develop the major suits if he was going to make his contract. He could take finesses in both majors. Which should he tackle first?

Since West was marked with the king of diamonds, it was obviously to declarer's advantage to have West on lead whenever possible to prevent declarer's diamond tenace from being attacked. Therefore, declarer led the jack of spades at trick two, and ran it when East did not cover.

West won the queen of spades and, since he could not continue diamonds, he shifted to a heart. Declarer was not tempted by the finesse—he won the king of hearts and led the ten of spades, running it when East again did not cover.

A spade to the ace brought declarer to his hand and set up the long spade in dummy. Now declarer finessed the jack of hearts. East won and reverted to diamonds, but declarer was home with three heart tricks, three spades, two diamonds and the ace of clubs.

Note that if declarer starts hearts before spades, he will be defeated when East wins the queen and returns a diamond. That sets up West's long suit before his entries have been driven out.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do you know something you don't? Last Call By Some Plan-Revisions Petitioners For ECU Homecoming

The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce is issuing a last call for signatures for the Operation Overcharge petition, according to President Charles Burnette.

The Greenville Area Chamber led the Pitt County drive to collect 25,000 signatures on the petition to protest increasing electric rates. The petitions have been placed in many retail businesses, banks and institutions during the past two weeks.

Anyone who is interested in signing a petition but has not already done so is encouraged to sign this weekend or call the Chamber office, 752-4101, by Monday. All of the petitions collected throughout the 22 northeastern North Carolina counties will be delivered to Washington, N.C. Nov. 15. The petitions will then be carried to Governor Jim Hunt, who will be asked to submit them to the State Utilities Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

ECU News Bureau
Saturday's Homecoming '78 parade will begin at 1 p.m. under a revised timetable of events for Homecoming Day, East Carolina University officials announced today.

The shift in the Homecoming schedule was made necessary by a change in time for the ECU-William and Mary football game at Ficken Stadium which will be televised by ABC (4 p.m. EST). Before the television arrangements, the game had been scheduled for a 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

The Homecoming parade will form on Elm Street and move down Fifth Street past the main campus and the Chancellor's home proceeding to the downtown area. The parade will include at least five bands and 17 decorated floats.

The theme of the week-long Homecoming observance is "New Horizons at ECU," and this is expected to be portrayed in design of the floats being readied for the parade.

Art exhibits, class reunions, socials and concerts are scheduled throughout the week. Tickets should be obtained in advance for the Alumni Dance and Musical Extravaganza which will begin at 8:30 p.m. at the Moose Lodge. This is a couples only affair and tickets are $20 per couple advance, the alumni office said.

Alumni registration for Homecoming will be held from 10 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. at Wright Circle, ECU alumni officials said.

Concert Plans Are Cancelled

GREENSBORO — The "Living Legend" Concert, originally scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 14 in the Greensboro Coliseum, has been cancelled. Cancellation was made Nov. 11.

Refunds on tickets sold will be made at the point of purchase and must be made no later than Friday, Nov. 24.

FTC Says Ford Co. Silent On Defect

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford Motor Company manufactured up to 1.8 million cars from 1974 to 1978 with a costly engine defect, then kept the problem from consumers even after learning of it, the Federal Trade Commission staff charges.

The allegation is in a document filed without public announcement this week in a case the FTC previously launched against Ford.

The staff charge that improper lubrication of the camshaft can cause premature wear to it and to the rocker arm assembly makes no allegation that the potential problem is a safety defect.

However, it said the estimated cost of repairs, if paid for by the car owner, would be $226.

The staff said the premature wear, which could lead to more serious engine problems, occurs in many of the 1.8 million Ford Motor Co. vehicles with four-cylinder 2.3-liter engines manufactured in the five model years. This is one of Ford's most popular engines, used in such cars as the Pinto, Mustang, Capri and Bobcat.

"Vehicles have been failing as early as the first 163 miles of service" because of the camshaft-rocker arm problem, said the document, filed by lawyers for the FTC's consumer protection bureau. "The defect substantially affects the durability, reliability or performance of affected vehicles," it said.

The document urges the five-member commission to authorize a federal suit to seek an immediate injunction forcing the company to notify owners of cars that may have the alleged defect.

George Trainor, spokesman for Ford's parts and service division, said in a telephone interview. "Our position is that the whole subject of what we refer to as the company's 'good will program' is now a matter of litigation with the FTC and it would be inappropriate for us to discuss any facet at the moment."

The FTC staff alleged that Ford knew of the problem at least by 1976. It does not say what, if anything, Ford did to correct the problem after it learned of it or how many engines were manufactured after the problem became known to the company.

After realizing the problem, the company did tell Ford dealers to repair affected cars at no charge, but many dealers still did not perform the work because they spent more in doing the repairs than they could recover from the manufacturer, the staff said.

Normally, a new-car warranty extends for 12,000 miles or 12 months, but the manufacturer told dealers to do repairs on cars with the problem up to 36,000 miles or 36 months, the staff said.

The staff said the dealers were not told to inform customers of the defect, only to repair the problem free of charge.

"The program is currently disclosed only to Ford dealers, who may have little incentive to pass such information to consumers," the staff said.

The staff said it plans to produce affidavits from customers showing they are unaware of the repair program even after going to Ford dealers for camshaft service.

Complete Study On Oil Spill's Impact

ECU News Bureau
A study of public knowledge and perceptions of the effects of the Argo Merchant oil spill which occurred in December, 1976, on Nantucket Shoals has been completed by two East Carolina University sociologists.

Drs. Peter Fricke and John Maiolo, in cooperation with the ECU Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources, undertook the study in October, 1977, under a commission by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The spill, 27,000 tons of Number 6 residual fuel oil, was one of several which occurred during the winter of 1976 and caused "considerable public debate," said researchers Fricke and Maiolo.

The study concluded that the gap between the realities of the spill (no apparent damage) and the perceptions of effects by Cape Cod residents "requires efforts to better inform the public in regard to preventing and responding to oil spills."

"The gap between the reality and perceptions of the spill allow for a public susceptible to inaccurate rumors which can translate into inappropriate public response," Fricke said.
