

Greenville Population Survey Planned

The City Council has authorized the city staff to undertake a survey to estimate the total population for Greenville. City Manager Ed Wyatt reported that the survey, which will be conducted in conjunction with the state, will involve selecting a probability sample of households to estimate the number of persons per household. That figure, he said, is then applied to a total housing count to arrive at a total population figure.

According to Wyatt, actual household interviewing is scheduled to begin in late February or early March of 1979. The city's Community Development coordinator, Ben Shivar, will coordinate the survey project.

The survey is being undertaken as a result of two factors, he noted. Over the past three years the state has revised downward its estimate of population growth in Greenville over the 1970 base year. City officials believe the state is underestimating the city's population.

Wyatt said that population is very important in determining the amount of funds returned to the city in certain state-shared revenues such as the one cent local option sales tax and Powell Bill street funds.

In addition, he observed, the state has revised its procedure for accepting challenges. Previously, municipalities could challenge estimates they felt were inappropriate after they were released. Current policy requires municipalities to submit data to the state prior to release of the estimates.

Wyatt said that data submitted to the state must be developed from a reliable source such as a complete census or a sample survey.

Body Evacuation In Guyana Steps Up

BY LEW WHEATON

Associated Press Writer
GEORGETOWN, Guyana

(AP) — U.S. forces were flying home the last of 408 mass suicide victims from the Peoples Temple commune at Jonestown and were trying to figure out how many cultists may be missing in the dense jungles around the camp.

U.S. Air Force Capt. John Moscatelli said he expects to be ordered to conduct helicopter searches of the jungle after the body evacuation is complete.

Thirty-two survivors have been located so far. Most of them were believed to have fled the Jonestown commune during the bizarre suicide rite six days ago.

The Rev. Jim Jones led his Peoples Temple followers in the suicide after a squad from the commune allegedly gunned down a U.S. congressman, three newsmen and a defuncting cultist. Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., was in Guyana investigating the commune. Three of the surviving cultists have been arrested by authorities in Guyana in connection with the killings of Ryan and his party. One

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) — American military teams have found many more bodies at the Peoples Temple commune in Guyana than had been expected, and the number could reach 600 to 800, administration officials said today.

The previous total of those who either committed suicide or were slain at the commune was listed at 409, based on an official body count.

But U.S. Army Graves Registration specialists have reported to the State Department here that they have found many other bodies, in some cases lying under the remains of those previously found and counted.

was charged with murder. Officials and survivors have variously estimated that from 100 to 800 members of the Jonestown commune are not yet accounted for.

There has been some speculation that many cultists are hiding out in the jungle fearing reprisals for having escaped the suicide rite, but other sources say only a handful of Jonestown residents may have fled because estimates of the camp's population were put too high.

Gerald Parks, 45, a Springfield, Ohio, native who came to Jonestown with his mother, wife and three children last year, said he thought at least 100 survivors were wandering in the jungle. His son, Dale, 27, estimated there could be as many as 200. Both men were attempting to leave Jonestown with Ryan and survived the airport ambush in which the congressman was killed.

Odell Rhodes, 36, a teacher who survived the poisoning suicide rite, told reporters he had information that could lead to murder charges in connection with the Ryan slayings, but said he wanted to tell his story to Guyanese police.

Hyacinth Thrush, a 76-year-old San Francisco woman crippled by arthritis, told a reporter she slept through the mass suicide and later dragged herself to the scene. She said she found "everyone was still. Some were sitting up with their eyes closed. Others were lying down. I saw my sister.

I walked over and touched her to wake her up. She was very cold."

Military officials said today there still are 138 bodies lying on the ground around the open pavilion where the death rite was performed in Jonestown, about 150 miles northwest of Georgetown.

The bloated bodies are being placed in rubberized olive-drab bags, sealed in aluminum caskets and ferried by helicopter to Georgetown, where they are placed on C-141 transports and flown to Dover Air Force Base, Del.

A total of 280 bodies already have arrived at the Dover base where medical experts are attempting to confirm the identities of the dead and prepare the bodies for burial.

A sickly stench hung over a remote corner of Guyana's Temehri Airport on Thanksgiving Day. Young men and women in T-shirts and fatigue pants transferred the bodies from the helicopters to transport jets.

"This is just another day to us," said Master Sgt. Philip Flynn of Portsmouth, Ohio. "It's just a job we have to get done."

The U.S. Embassy in Georgetown released names of 170 victims early this week. Officials said further identifications would have to be made in the United States.

Jones' body was identified Thursday by the FBI as being among the 280 already received at the Delaware mortuary.

Israel Awaits Sadat Move

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) —

With Israeli-Egyptian peace talks stalled, and Israel insisting Egypt must make the next move, the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram today published what it said was the text of a U.S. draft peace treaty.

There was no immediate State Department comment on the draft, but some American officials were reported baffled at Egypt's motives in releasing the text at this time. It was believed the government was behind publication of the draft in the semi-official daily.

Israel and Egypt have agreed in general terms to the U.S. draft, but their negotiations in Washington have deadlocked over Egypt's insistence that the treaty be linked to a solution of the Palestinian problem and include a timetable for Palestinian self-rule on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip.

Israel has rejected any such linkage and fears a timetable will allow Egypt to back out of the peace treaty if negotiators cannot work out a Palestinian settlement within a given time.

The treaty published in Al-Ahram, believed to be a copy of the draft accepted Tuesday by the Israeli cabinet, made no direct mention of linkage between the two pacts. The newspaper quoted the preamble of the purported text saying the treaty is to be an "important step toward a comprehensive Mideast settlement and resolving all aspects of the Arab-Israeli conflict."

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, declaring there is nothing left to negotiate, said Thursday. "I don't see any point or any need to return to Washington to conduct or renew negotiations. ... (The agreement) can be signed or not signed, approved or not approved. It's up to President Sadat now."

Israel, waiting for the outcome of Sadat's meetings with his top negotiators, hopes Carter will persuade Egypt to accept the draft.

Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said a committee was studying Egypt's options and would report to Sadat this weekend.

BIG FEAST — Darlene Walsh (center, right) served up a larger than usual Thanksgiving dinner in Sterling, Kan., when anyone who wanted to eat was invited. (AP Laser-photo)

Community Dinner

STERLING, Kan. (AP) — The idea Darlene Walsh cooked up was to have a free Thanksgiving dinner for 900 persons, especially the elderly and those away from home. It was a recipe for success that grew.

The elderly "came in droves" Thursday, a truck driver from Grandview, Mo., made a detour to the community dinner table and college students who couldn't make it home for the holidays filled their plates in traditional Thanksgiving style.

"The old people came in droves," said Mrs. Walsh. "I mean people in their 90s, who don't normally get out much. They were so thrilled, there were tears coming down their faces."

When word of the efforts of this community of 2,000 got out, Mrs. Walsh got calls from around the country. Even a television crew from Minneapolis showed up.

"It seems to me that the whole country is looking for the same thing," she said. "God sure heard some prayers this morning."

The truck driver heard about the community dinner on the radio as he drove down the highway. "He ate, and ate, and ate," a pleased Mrs. Walsh said.

Somoza Expected Reject Proposal

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's opposition alliance is expected to accept a proposed national referendum for President Anastasio Somoza's continued rule, provided the dictator leave the country during the vote, a source close to the alliance said.

Somoza was sure to reject the proposal, said the source, who declined to be identified, but he added, "We cannot refuse the alternative presented by the mediators. We cannot afford to be the intransigent party in this situation."

A source close to the international mediating panel that developed the referendum plan said the Somoza government had no immediate reaction and he could not predict its response.

The plan, submitted by the United States, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic, reportedly calls for an international authority to observe the election that would determine whether Somoza remain in power.

The opposition informant said his alliance of political parties and labor unions will vote on the plan today.

Meanwhile, Nicaragua's relations with neighboring Costa Rica have been strained by a reported shootout Thursday between the Nicaraguan national guard and guerrillas of the leftist Sandinista National Liberation Front, who are fighting to overthrow Somoza.

A police spokesman in San Jose, Costa Rica said three guardsmen were killed, but the guard denied there was a clash.

President Rodrigo Carazo, of Costa Rica, had asked the Organization of American States Thursday to investigate the death of two Costa Rican border patrolmen in an alleged clash with guardsmen earlier this week.

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY

I am concerned about the safety of children on the Pitt County school buses. My son rides a school bus to the elementary school.

Release those doubts. Since school started in September, the Pitt County school bus driver record has been as good as any in the state, according to Rodney Bullock, school bus supervisor. "We've had some bad luck in the past several years, but since school started our record is as good as anyone's."

Pitt County drivers take a two-day class and written test before they are allowed to drive. Bullock said drivers are taught to stop one-half of a bus length from the pickup. The driver then counts the students outside the bus and again once they are inside. Once the students are in the driver is supposed to wait until they have taken seats before starting up again.

In the afternoons, the approach is the same, except in reverse. The students are counted as they leave the bus and again when they are on the ground, he said. The driver is to check both sides of the bus and make sure the highway is clear of traffic. "Some buses have monitors," he said, "to help the drivers control the bus. When the driver has to turn around, the monitor goes to the rear of the bus and helps him from there. The monitor also helps the driver prevent problems with students on the bus."

Bullock said his office has tried to find adults and high school students who could serve as monitors, but in many areas they are not available and younger students have to be substituted. Also, the buses are checked out mechanically and repaired every day, he said. The school bus garage has five route mechanics who keep a consistent watch for school bus failures.

A Promise?

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia says the United States has promised to take in all the Vietnamese refugees aboard the freighter Hai Hong who cannot find refuge in other foreign countries.

Reporters were told of the purported U.S. promise today by Osman Cassim, secretary-general of Malaysia's Home Affairs Ministry.

Malaysia and the United States appear to be at odds over whether Washington will take in refugees from the Hai Hong, anchored off Port Klang 20 miles west of here, or an equivalent number from the 40,000 Vietnamese already crammed into refugee camps on islands off the Malaysian coast.

Earlier this week Washington raised its quote for Indochinese refugees from 25,000 to 27,500 for the year ending next May 1.

Robert Havel, deputy director of information for the U.S. Department of Justice, said Thursday evening in Washington that the United States would take refugees from camps to free places for Hai Hong passengers.

But Cassim insisted the United States had agreed to take all the Hai Hong refugees who can't be placed in other countries, possibly as many as 1,400 people. He said they will not be allowed into the camps.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Many embarrassing moments are suffered by people who have trouble remembering things — especially people's names.

Dr. Ruth Day, one of the newest members of the Duke University Psychology Department, says there are many ways to remember people.

She is an expert on those ways. By the second day of class this fall, she knew the names and faces of all her students. She also can remember the name and in many cases the course work of almost all of the 2,000 students she has taught in the past nine years.

Ms. Day said no one single thing accounts for her remarkable memory. But much of her success is due to a natural interest and curiosity about her students.

By associating the student's face with his ideas and other distinguishing characteristics, she is able to remember the name.

Ms. Day's interest in memory began with her work in mathematical psychology at Indiana University. She received a doctorate in experimental psychology from Stanford, and she has conducted research in cognitive psychology, exploring such areas as memory, attention, problem solving and perception.

One of the most important things in developing a good memory, is knowing what not to do, Ms. Day said. Here is a list of her memory dos and don'ts:

— Don't overextend. At a party where no one is familiar, a person should try to remember just a few names and concentrate on what is memorable about those names.

— Don't try to remember a name until there is something about the person to link to the name. Try to remember a characteristic about the person himself.

— Do find out what things are remembered easily and what things are a problem to retain. Some people have better short-term memories while others are better at long-term retention.

Ms. Day said a built-in memory technique that all humans can use is based on the "tip of the tongue phenomenon.

"Sometimes a name is on the tip of your tongue and it is possible to recall it by rejecting other possibilities. If you remember that the name had several syllables, you can reject all one-syllable names. Or you may remember the sound and rhythm of the name. Eventually you can remember the name itself, although it may be at 2 a.m. when you are no longer trying to think of it."

An Expert In The Ways To Trigger Memory

Korean-Born, Now All-American

By HERB PROBASCO
Omaha World-Herald

CRETE, Neb. (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Susan Manley says she's never given a thought to what life might have been like growing up in her native Korea.

At 11 months, she came to Lincoln as the adopted daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Manley, and she is now in her senior year at Crete High School.

She works as a nurse's aide at a Crete nursing home and is planning a career as a teacher of the blind.

Susan is not reluctant to talk about her heritage, but it's obvious that she doesn't think of herself as anything but Nebraska-variety American.

Her mother confirms this and adds that Susan's married brother, Kelly, also born in Korea, feels the same way.

"This is home. This is where they belong. They don't think of themselves as anything different," says Phyllis Manley.

She quickly added that the children had known other Korean-born children and had had the opportunity to learn informally about Korean culture.

But the children have never taken a great interest in anything Korean, she said.

"Kelly once told me: 'You think about this (things Korean) more than I do.'"

Susan and Kelly are less than a year apart in age. Each was left in the city hall in Seoul by their Korean mothers, said Mrs. Manley. Twice a day, Harry Holt, of Holt International Children's Services, would go to city hall to pick up infants for adoption, she said, adding that Kelly and Susan were among those infants.

Kelly was brought to the United States in 1960 and Susan in 1961, Mrs. Manley said.

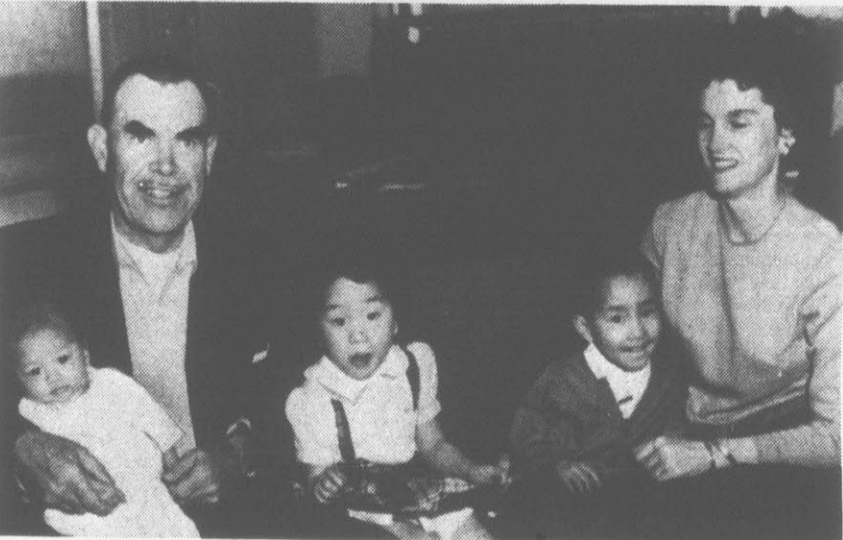

Holt, who with his wife Bertha began the international adoption program in 1955, visited the Manleys in 1964, only a few weeks before his death in Korea. He was on his way to place an infant girl with a family in South America when he stopped in Lincoln, where the Manleys at that time were active in a group of families with adopted Korean children.

Susan Manley says she has known prejudice, mainly when she moved back to Lincoln with her family from Scottsbluff.

and Becky. Below, holding baby slated for adoption, is Henry Holt of Holt International Children's Services in 1964 photo with Susan and her brother, Kelly, held by Mrs. Manley.

Her mother confirmed that there have been instances of name-calling, both with Susan and Kelly and with two younger adopted girls, Joy and Becky. But the children have always been encouraged to forgive, Mrs. Manley said.

Their lack of interest in things Korean may be due to the fact that Susan and Kelly's father is deeply into frontier American history.

Bob Manley is a former history professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and was later chairman of the social sciences division of Hiram Scott College in Scottsbluff.

For most of his career, he has combined teaching with music, accompanying his talks on American history with an ever-present guitar.

He now heads SRI Media Productions, a Lincoln firm that produces audio-visual materials on histories of Nebraska and neighboring states.

He and his wife have four other children, not adopted, who are grown.

Early this year, the Manleys moved to Crete and exchanged country life for a house in town "where things are that they (the three girls) enjoy doing."

For Susan Manley, that's where life is. And it is of little consequence that as a fragile Korean infant she was a part of a unique chapter in international human relations.

Of a possible trip to her native land, she said, "It would be nice to visit some day."

Her Attitude Not Altitude Needs Changing

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: For years I have suffered from an inferiority complex because of my height. It has ruined my whole life. I am a woman, 5 feet 9. I love to dance, but I'm taller than the average man and I feel like a fool when a man looks up at me.

I am uncomfortable unless I wear flats. I won't even walk to the coffee machine at work because I feel so conspicuous. I became so desperate I even asked my doctor if he knew of some kind of operation to shorten the bones in my legs, but he said no one has ever attempted such an operation. I told him I would be more than willing to be the first.

Abby, you can't imagine what a miserable feeling it is to walk into a room and pray to God that there is someone there taller than you are. Would you believe that I have even considered taking my life? I'm sure there are other girls who feel the same way.

Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. Don't tell me to see a psychiatrist because that is where my problem has already landed me.

TALL IN CANADA

DEAR TALL: Since you've already wisely consulted a psychiatrist, you must surely know that it's your attitude—not your altitude—that needs changing.

You are much too self-centered in assuming all eyes are constantly focused on you. Not true!

Instead of those negative feelings you have about your height, stand tall, throw your shoulders back, chin up, and come on proud, confident and alive! If you have two good arms, legs, eyes, a voice and a mind, thank God in your prayers!

Get rid of those flats (they make you shuffle); wear heels. It will improve your figure. Practice walking with grace and dignity. You get no sympathy from here, dear. Now get going, and remember those prayers of gratitude.

Workshop Held For Contestants

The Iota Kappa Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. held a workshop for fashionista contestants Saturday at Mendenhall Student Center, ECU campus.

The first session on physical fitness was conducted by Soror Charlotte Smith. Soror Sandra Jones of Tarboro conducted the second session on grooming and etiquette.

Mrs. Mary Wyatt assisted by Keith Wyatt distributed brochures, posters and articles on nutrition.

After the morning sessions, the contestants attended a luncheon given by Soror Liila Holsey.

Other Sorors assisting with the sessions and luncheon were Jean Carter, Willie Mae Gibbs, Helen Harrell, Helen Johnson and Chapter Basileus Isabelle Wicker.

Rose Class Plans Reunion

The Rose High School class of 1968 is planning a 10-year reunion Wednesday, Dec. 27, from 9-12 p.m. at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Booklets about members of the class are being prepared and will be available at the reunion. Dress will be casual and entertainment will be provided by the "Monitors." Heavy hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Class members who have not been notified or who have not responded are asked to contact Sue Leith Aldridge at 756-7871, as soon as possible in order that final arrangements can be made.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha J. Dildy were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday by their children, Mrs. Walter Sutton Jr. of Vanceboro and Edward Dildy of Sanford, at a reception.

The reception was held in the fellowship hall of the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Heath greeted guests and Mrs. Joyce Weathington presided at the guest register. Mrs. Grace Tripp assisted at the gift table.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of yellow daisies and white carnations. The three tiered cake was served by Miss Jean Craft and Mrs. Lib Lilley poured punch.

Approximately 150 friends and relatives called during the afternoon.

Interruptions Mar Thanksgiving Meal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thanksgiving dinner for about 40 members of the Peoples Temple here was interrupted by frequent telephone threats, a spokesman said.

About 40 people shared an abundant dinner Thursday evening, five days after their leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, and more than 400 of their friends and family died in mass murder and suicide in Guyana.

But the phone would not stop ringing. "I just answered one where the caller said, 'I assure you that everyone in that building is going to have their brains blown out,'" said a Temple member who asked not to be named.

"Other times they say, 'Killed any children lately?' Things like that. We end up trying to be polite, and hang up."

Temple member Sandy Bradshaw said many members who came to dinner were seeking "comfort in this time of sorrow."

She described the Temple's Thanksgiving dinner as turkey, dressing, sweet potato pie and "all the trimmings."

"Just being together is enough," she said. "We're all a large family here."

Before the dinner, attorney Charles Garry led reporters on a tour of the Temple headquarters and members repeated their denials that a "hit squad" exists to murder church enemies.

"Don't get the idea there was a hit squad. That's ridiculous," said June Crym, a Temple member for seven years.

Power Grab In Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian army announced at dawn today it has seized control of this Latin American nation in an apparently bloodless coup that ended the four-month-old government of Gen. Juan Pereda.

"We take over command of the country temporarily with the purpose of creating the Bolivia that was dreamt by generations of Bolivians," an army communique said. It was delivered to the offices of news organizations by armed men in civilian clothes.

The communique, signed by army commander Gen. David Padilla Arancibia, promised to hold national elections and transfer power to a civilian government by August of next year.

It was Pereda's refusal to hold elections before 1980, that apparently set the stage for the coup, the fifth in this central American nation in the last 14 years.

"It seems they (the army) have control of the situation," said Walter Rios Gamboa, an Interior Ministry undersecretary. He spoke to a reporter as he left his office after the army surrounded the ministry.

The streets around the presidential palace were quiet and except for troops ringing the Interior Ministry there were no outward signs of the military takeover.

A spokesman at the palace told the Associated Press that Pereda resigned before at 4 a.m. (EST). Unconfirmed reports said the former air force commander had flown in an air force plane to Santa Cruz, his personal power base in eastern Bolivia.

More Than Ho-Ho-Ho

BROOKLYN PARK, Minn. (AP) — Santa instructor Daniel Cook says the modern St. Nick needs more than a bright red suit and a steady stream of ho-ho-hos to convince increasingly skeptical youngsters.

Cook conducts classes for Santas who will work at six Minneapolis-St. Paul shopping malls.

"Santas have to be better trained, they've got to know what they are doing these days," said Cook.

The student Santas were put through their basic training in the name of being believable.

The "toy test" is the surest way to spot an imposter, Cook said.

"If there is a little girl telling you she wants a Baby Wet and Care, you better know that's the doll with diaper rash," he warned. "The real Santa would know, and the kids are going to expect that."

Another Cook maxim: "Never promise a kid anything, always say you will see what you can do."

"If you promise a kid a horse, his parents will not be too happy. And be real careful with those requests for a baby brother or sister."

Price Increases By U.S. Steel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steelmaker, today announced price increases on three-quarters of its products effective Jan. 1, 1979.

The company said the price hikes, which vary by product line and amounts, average 3.2 percent on its total steel product line.

In a statement, U.S. Steel said the increases are "within the guidelines applicable to steel mill products which the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability has set for the first six months of the program."

Move Is To Containerization

Pardon us, if we are less than enthusiastic about the State Ports Authority decision to move a container crane from the Morehead Port to Wilmington.

Granted a mistake was made in putting the crane at Morehead at the time it was done. The crane has been sitting idle since it was installed.

The mistake, however, was in making the investment in the expensive piece of equipment prematurely. There might not be any business for the big crane for some months in the future, but it is a sure thing that the shipping industry is moving toward containerization.

And what about our big export through the Morehead Port — tobacco? This product has been containerized since the industry began in Colonial days, with tobacco packed in hogsheads. Nothing lends itself to containerization better than tobacco.

All that is needed is to change the packaging to a shape and size that meets containerization specifications.

If tobacco exporting goes to containerization, as appears likely, where will that leave the port at Morehead? Quite obviously the port will be on the outside looking in.

Worse, it will mean that tobacco will have to be hauled further overland to more distant ports, adding transportation costs in a highly competitive world market.

Container traffic has been slow to come at Morehead, but with the removal of the proper handling equipment we can be certain that the traffic won't develop.

It could mean great harm to Eastern North Carolina's economy.

New Commitment For N.C. Prisoners

State officials this week let contracts totalling $25.6 million for construction of a new Central Prison in Raleigh.

The modern structure will house 636 prisoners and the 100-year-old building nearby will be demolished when the new facilities are complete.

Construction is also planned for facilities to house 1,400 prisoners in other locations around the state.

The Central Prison construction is symbolic of a new commitment by the state to provide adequate facilities for housing and possible rehabilitation of inmates.

THIS AFTERNOON

Rejecting Old Tax Laws

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Did you know?

—Gypsies have to pay a $500 tax in each county in which they trade horses, or mules, in North Carolina?

—People who operate a booth at a flea market are classed as itinerant merchants and subject to a $100 tax?

—Merchants selling sewing machines "kelvinators", or "frigidaires" are liable for a special tax?

—Tax rates for suburban movie theaters are cheaper than for those downtown even though suburban theaters are thriving while downtown movies are typically going out of business?

—If you give a prize in a contest involving signing up subscribers to a newspaper or magazine, there is a special tax up to $200?

—News dealers peddling reading matter on trains are supposed to pay a tax from $250 to $1,000 depending on the length of the line in North Carolina?

—A license to compress cotton costs $300; traveling drama groups are subject to special taxation; shoeshine parlors must buy a license of each chair or stool?

A Few Samples

These are just some samples of outdated North Carolina tax and licensing laws which are coming under study by a Revenue Laws committee of the General Assembly. That group is now preparing a report to the 1979 General Assembly which will recommend repeal or change of the outmoded revenue laws.

Revenue Secretary Mark G. Lynch thinks this is a good idea. Many of the laws have not been enforced for years, and some which have been monitored produced so little income they weren't worth having.

Many of the laws were written in the 1930s and 1940s, reflecting different times and standards. "They have not been regularly updated to reflect our changing economy and society," Lynch said.

Members of the study commission chaired by State Rep. Daniel T. Lilley, D-Lenoir, and State Senator

Cecil Hill, D-Transylvania, would like to keep the revenue law rewrite going as a regular function of the General Assembly.

BILL NOBLITT

The sampling of antiquated taxes so far located just scratches the surface. It is felt that regular revision to clean up the law rather than a one-time sweeping revision would be the most desirable approach.

The proposed solution to the flea market tax law is to have the flea market owner or operator pay the $100 tax which would then cover all the booth merchants who display and sell in the place. "To impose the $100 tax on each of the sellers would seriously hamper participation in flea markets," the draft report points out.

No Traders

As for the Gypsy horse traders, the committee feels that the law discriminates against a class of people, and besides, there haven't been many Gypsy bands selling horses and mules in the state for a long time.

Other horse dealers are subject to a license tax based on the number of carloads of horses or mules purchased for resale. The report calls for eliminating that tax as well, since the primary purpose was to regulate and record the activity rather than to raise revenue.

On sewing machines, "kelvinators" and "frigidaires", the group will suggest overall descriptions such as office machines, home appliances and such rather than specifics which include the old-timey names for equipment which are in reality registered trademarks for individual manufacturing firms.

And among the exotic taxes once levied was another which is scheduled for repeal: you will be able to read bumps on people's heads without having to pay $200 to whichever county in which you practice phrenology.

Thanksgiving Explained

Once again Art Buchwald's favorite turkey.

One of our most important holidays is Thanksgiving Day, known in France as le Jour de Merci or le Jour de Merci.

Le Jour de Merci was first started by a group of Pilgrims (Pelerins) who fled from l'Angleterre before the McCarran Act to found a colony in the New World (le Nouveau Monde) where they could shoot Indians (les Peaux-Rouges) and eat turkey (dinde) to their heart's content.

They landed at a place called Plymouth (now a famous voiture Americaine in a wooden sailing ship called the Mayflower or Fleur de Mai in 1620. But while the Pelerins were killing the dindes, the Peaux-Rouges were killing the Pelerins, and there were several hard winters ahead for both of them. The only way the Peaux-Rouges helped the Pelerins was when they taught them to grow corn (mais). The reason they did this was because they liked corn with their Pelerins.

In 1623, after another harsh year, the Pelerins' crops were so good that they decided to have a celebration and give thanks because more mais was raised by the Pelerins than Pelerins were killed by Peaux-Rouges.

Every year on le Jour de Merci, parents tell their children an amusing story about the first celebration.

ART BUCHWALD

It concerns a brave capitaine named Miles Standish (known in France as Kilometres Deboutish) and a young, shy lieutenant named Jean Alden. Both of them were in love with a flower of Plymouth called Priscilla Mullens (no translation). The vieux capitaine said to the jeune lieutenant:

"Go to the damsel Priscilla (allez tres vite chez Priscilla), the loveliest maiden of Plymouth (la plus jolie demoiselle de Plymouth). Say that a blunt old captain, a man not of words but of action (un vieux Fanfan la Tulipe), offers his hand and his heart, the hand and heart of a soldier. Not in these words, you know, but this, in short, is my meaning.

"I am a maker of war (Je suis un fabricant de la guerre) and not a maker of phrases. You, bred as a scholar (vous, qui etes pain comme un etudiant), can say it in elegant language, such as you read in your books of the pleadings and wooings of lovers, such as you think best adapted to win the heart of the maiden."

Although Jean was fit to be tied (convenable a etre emballe), friendship prevailed over love and he went to his duty. But instead of using elegant language, he blurted out his mission. Priscilla was muted with amazement and sorrow (rendue muette)

Fed's Policy Is Set

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, the money-managing Federal Reserve Board will soon have appointees of President Carter in the majority, but it is unlikely to bring any change in the board's high interest rate policy.

The seven-member Federal Reserve Board has been carrying most of the load lately in trying to control inflation — by pushing interest rates to record and near-record levels. The goal is to slow the economy and take pressure off prices.

It's a calculated risk, because if there is a serious recession next year, the board will get much of the blame, as will Carter.

But it's also a load the board can't easily rid itself of because there isn't anybody else who can carry it right now. There's little confidence either among the public or even within the administration that Carter's voluntary wage and price guidelines will succeed in slowing inflation.

Carter has also made clear he agrees the board has no other real option at this point except to keep interest rates high. His administration has encouraged some of the most recent increases.

Although Carter nominates members of the board, subject to Senate confirmation, the board is independent of the administration and is responsible to Congress. Members are named for 14-year terms although few actually serve that long.

Although policy probably will remain the same, there still will be comfort to Carter in having the board controlled by people he has appointed.

Carter has filled two vacancies so far this year and two more have occurred in recent weeks, one with the resignation for personal reasons of Philip C. Jackson and the second with the death Sunday by cancer of Stephen S. Gardner, 59, the board's vice chairman.

Not since 1936 has a president had an opportunity to name four members in a single year. At the beginning of this year, the board was made up entirely of members appointed by Republican presidents, including the chairman, Arthur Burns.

Carter's first appointment was G. William Miller, named to succeed Burns, who resigned. While Miller is independent of the administration, he has worked closely with Carter and his advisers in coordinating Fed policy with administration actions and objectives.

Carter's second appointment came in August when he named Nancy Teeters, the first woman ever on the board, to fill another resignation.

It is understood Carter has not made a decision on who to nominate to the vacant posts, although North Carolina banker Luther H. Hodge Jr., and Lyle C. Gramley, a member of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, have been mentioned as possible candidates for Jackson's seat.

Miller told reporters the other day he would like to see somebody other than an economist named to the board, since four of the five remaining members are economists.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Signal From The Saudis

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A "near panic" on Wall Street the week of Oct. 23, possibly instigated by Saudi Arabia as a move to force the U.S. to defend the dollar, was the real explanation for President Carter's belated dollar-saving actions on Nov. 1.

The panic conditions were created when up to several billion dollars worth of Arab investments in what are called certificates of deposit (CD's) came due and the cash was demanded by the Arabs — most of it from one bank, Morgan Guaranty of New York City and its European branches.

The effect of the Arab decision to liquidate this huge investment — instead of rolling it over by buying new CD's was electrifying and potentially devastating. It forced Morgan Guaranty to scour other New York banks for cash. Worse, it put the focus on the long-dreaded specter of the Arabs liquidating tens of billions of their holdings and converting the dollar receipts into stronger foreign currencies such as the German mark or the Swiss franc.

Analysts have differing interpretations of the true reason for this unexpected, crisis-making liquidation. Some believe that the Saudis, whose immense dollar resources from the sale of Mideast oil make them bankers of the world, were signalling President Carter: shore up the dollar fast! A falling dollar makes it far more difficult for the Saudis to resist pressure from other oil-producing states for a steep increase in oil prices later this year.

Other analysts say the Saudis were caught short of cash and converted the CD's because they had to.

Whatever the true explanation, the crisis created in the money markets, described by one insider as a "near panic," forced Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal into action. The result was President Carter's defense-of-the-dollar actions announced Nov. 1.

The Hatch-Heinz Hassle

Other Editors Say We Have Doubts

(Washington Daily News)

For anyone to come into Beaufort County and tell our commissioners that in this very county we have 13,500 persons eligible for food stamps while only 2,700 are receiving them, we just wonder where some outsider gets his information.

To have 13,500 human beings eligible for food stamps out of a population of 36,000 or to have 37.5 percent of our population eligible for food stamps is just a type of tactic about which we have grave doubts.

We saw a sign sometime ago which read something like this: "we fight poverty; we work"

Now when people from outside who have all the answers to every question come into Beaufort County with the "Big I — little You" attitude and seek to encourage people who do not need it to live off the fat of the land, then our patience is exhausted before they get through talking.

Our employment rate, we are advised, is relatively stable and rather low here in Beaufort County. It is said that everyone who needs a job and wants one can get work. And yet some "do-gooder" comes to us and says we have people, 13,500 of them here needing help. He might as well have said that we have 13,500 people hungry. The reaction is just about the same.

Who do you think has to bear the cost of these food stamps given to people who sometimes do not need them? The taxpayer must pay, and he does.

This very idea of going out and preaching to people to "get on the welfare list" is a sermon we do not heed here in our county or in any other county.

We are willing to make great sacrifice to feed any hungry people. We are willing to walk any distance, work any length of time, give whatever we are able, and in every conceivable manner give of ourselves and our means to see that we take care of our own here in this Pamlico area.

But we do not believe we have either 13,500 hungry people or 13,500 people who should be getting food stamps right here in Beaufort County. And let us be quick to add that those people who encourage others not to work but to enjoy the fruits of the labor of others by getting food stamps or jumping on the welfare bandwagon, we have no patience.

'Nemesis' Is A Birthday Cake

By GAIL MICHAELS

As far as my daughter is concerned, the major attraction at any birthday party is the cake. Not only does she like the taste, but she has a passion for the decorations and especially the candles.

At most birthday parties she goes to, the candles are lit twice—once for Meg and once for the birthday girl or boy for whom they were intended.

So when I was planning for her own birthday, the cake was my primary consideration.

"Which kind do you think I should make?" I asked Phillip as I flipped through my cookbooks. "Devil's food or pumpkin raisin?"

He didn't even hesitate. "Bakery," he said. "You are always such a big help. Bakery cakes have no imagination."

"Sorry, but I keep thinking about the last time you baked a cake. If I remember correctly, it was in 1972."

"So?"

"It was sad."

I remembered that cake, too. It was a pound cake, and he ate it anyway. I was still not about to short-change my little angel with a bakery cake, but I decided that pumpkin raisin might be my best bet.

And I decided to decorate it like a clown. One layer would be its face and the other would be its hat. I was so excited that I could hardly wait to get to work. The whole time I was mixing and baking the cake, I kept envisioning the look of ecstasy that would wash over my daughter's face when she first saw it.

But it was not ecstasy that washed over her face.

Perhaps it was because when I turned the first layer out of its pan, the middle fell out and I had to can the clown for a traditional layer cake with a dent.

Perhaps it was because my icing never reached spreading consistency, and when I tried to thicken it up with another cup of confectioner's sugar, all I got were indestructible lumps.

Or perhaps it was because my hand slipped when I was decorating the cake, and the balloons I was trying to make out of decorator's gel all slithered down the side.

Whatever the reason, Meg's first response when I showed it to her was, "But where is my birthday cake?"

"That's it, honey. Don't you see? It says 'Happy Birthday, Meg.'"

She looked at me as if I'd just told her that Santa was leaving broccoli in her Christmas stocking. "That is not a good birthday cake."

"But I made it just for you because I love you," I explained.

Her tears were now washing two clean stripes down her cheeks. "But I don't want it," she wailed. "It's ugly."

I reached for the phone and called Phillip. "You can't imagine how I hate to ask this, but can you do me a favor?"

"What is it?" "Go by the bakery on your way home."

Strength For Today

A PERSONAL GOD

When the great mystic, Pascal, died, his friends found sewed up in his doublet a crumpled piece of paper on which he had written, "God of Abraham, God of Isaac, God of Jacob — not of philosophers and scholars, but God of Jesus Christ, thy God and my God. Thy God shall be my God."

Pascal's most precious spiritual possession was the conviction he carried in his heart, as he carried this crumpled piece of paper, that God was a personal God — interested in all the affairs which made up His children's lives. Pascal found himself bound to his brethren by the tie of common faith in God.

Many people today hold that they are religious because they believe in a power above their own. But such a belief is not a proper basis for religious faith. We have to believe that this power is a person, before we can rejoice and trust. We have to be able to say, with Pascal, "My God and thy God. Thy God shall be my God."

Pilgrimage To Reunion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Steinbergs once flourished in a small Jewish village in Poland. That was before Hitler's death camps.

Now more than 200 farflung survivors and descendants are gathered here to share a special four-day celebration that began, appropriately, on Thanksgiving day.

Relatives came Thursday from Canada, France, England, Argentina, Colombia, Israel and at least 13 cities across the United States.

"It's fabulous," said Iris Krasnow of Chicago. "There are five generations here — from 3 months old to 85. People are crying and having a wonderful time. It's almost like a World War II refugee reunion."

Sam Klaparda of Tel Aviv was awestruck by an extensive family tree set up in the lounge of the Marriott Hotel at Los Angeles International Airport. "It's fantastic...how many relatives I have," he said.

The idea for the pilgrimage came from Joe and Gladys Steinberg of Los Angeles. They enlisted the help of several relatives, including an in-law, Elaine Steinberg, in their search for family members.

MADE RECORDING — Princess Grace of Monaco has cut a children's record entitled "The Bird of the North and the Bird of the Sun" which will be released soon in the U.S. and Europe. ty if Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah, one of the most outspoken conservatives in the Senate, gets control of the campaign committee. With some 6 to 10 million dollars likely to be raised for the campaign kitty leading up to the 1980 election, anti-Hatch forces say privately that a Hatch-run campaign committee would ruthlessly use that money in favor of conservative candidates.

One anti-Hatch Republican told us privately that Hatch is planning a "national conservative crusade" backed by the formidable assets of the campaign committee, including its large staff. Traditionally, the campaign committee chairman runs the staff and controls contributions with a high degree of independence.

The mirror image of that complaint was directed at Sen. Bob Packwood during his tenure as campaign committee chairman the past two years. Conservatives claim that Packwood short-changed what seemed at one point the hopeless cause of New Hampshire's Gordon Humphrey. In the end, victory went to Humphrey, one of the most conservative Republican nominees in the nation.

Only 10 Republican senators will be up for reelection in 1980, meaning that Heinz or Hatch as committee chairman will have larger resources to spend on capturing Democratic seats than this year.

With 17 Republicans in the new Senate clearly conservative and about 14 in the liberal-moderate range, the balance of power in the Heinz-Hatch battle will lie with about 10 middle-roads.

A footnote: Hatch operatives flatly deny that Hatch intends to use Arthur Finkelstein, a leading pollster for conservatives, as the committee's pollster in 1980 if he becomes chairman.

Carter's Anti-Baker Error
President Carter's decision to invade Tennessee against Sen. Howard Baker last month has boomeranged against the president in Congress, particularly among Republicans in the House.

"That one trip destroyed the president's bipartisan foreign policy efforts," Rep Barber Conable of New York, ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, told us. Baker stuck his neck out for Carter on the Panama Canal treaties early this year. With a reward like that, Conable said, Republicans in the House "just aren't interested" in pulling Carter's bacon out of the frying pan.

White House aides hint that Carter checked with Baker before deciding on the pre-election Tennessee trip, and that Baker felt his lead would easily withstand Carter's interference. Indeed Baker won handily — and so did Republican governor nominee Lamar Alexander.

But the post-election impact on the president's foreign policy endeavors par l'étonnement et la tristesse).

At length she exclaimed, interrupting the ominous silence: "If the great captain of Plymouth is so very eager to wed me, why does he not come himself and take the trouble to woo me?" (Où es-tu, le vieux Kilometres? Pourquoi ne vient-il pas auprès de moi pour tenter sa chance?)

Jean said that Kilometres Deboutish was very busy and didn't have time for those things. He staggered on, telling her a wonderful husband Kilometres would make. Finally Priscilla arched her eyebrows and said in a tremulous voice: "Why don't you speak for yourself, Jean?" (Chacun a son gout.)

Counter-Threat To Boycotters

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines chief Albert Casey, responding to rapidly expanding boycotts against the airline's plan to move its headquarters to Texas, has threatened to move more people and business from New York.

"We spend $400 million in New York," Casey said in a Daily News interview published today. "There are other jobs we can move out. We have a lot of flexibility." The airline executive voiced anger following calls by police, fire and state civil service unions to boycott American. The New York-based Warner Communications firm has said it will cancel about $1 million in travel business with the airline.

Nitpicking Rules Ending Today

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's watchdog of workplace safety is flushing away a lot of picky rules that drove employers crazy — like how to design the proper toilet seat or how to choose a tool belt.

linemen:
"Belts that have pocket tabs that extend at least 1½ inches down and 3 inches back of the inside of the circle of each Dring for riveting on plier or tool pockets... There may be no more than 4 tool loops on any body belt."
And was it really helpful for a company that uses wood ladders to know that:

"Black streaks in Western Hemlock shall not be considered an irregularity, except that chambers associated with black streaks when present in the part, shall be limited as specified for pitch and bark pockets."

The rules accumulated over nearly four decades. But it took just short of a year for OSHA to review its books and comply with President Carter's order that regulatory agencies drop "nuisance" standards.

Fear not, though, that OSHA may un-regulate itself out of business. The defunct regulations eliminate only some 30 pages of fine-print rules. Another 280 pages remain alive, well and intact.

OSHA Administrator Eula Bingham says the agency now can "concentrate on reducing or eliminating the more serious and significant workplace safety and health standards."

In all, 928 regulations of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration meet a timely death today.

But don't look for any mourners.

OSHA is glad to see the rules go. They never saved any lives or warded off any injuries or illnesses, as far as agency officials could tell.

And the 5 million businesses affected by agency rules will be tickled pink. After all, they used to get fined by OSHA inspectors for failing to comply with the rules.

Some of the former rules were just plain silly, like the one that said, "Piping located inside or outside of buildings may be placed above or below ground." That covered just about every possibility.

Others went a little too far in the area of product design. For instance:

"Every water closet (toilet) shall have a hinged seat made of substantial material, having a non-absorbent finish. Seats installed or replaced... shall be of the open front type."

Then there were rules that pioneered protective remedies for health threats that don't exist.

"A covered receptacle shall be kept in all toilet rooms used by women" for the disposal of sanitary napkins, said one.

But Jerry Purswell, OSHA's safety standard director and chief rule scratcher, says the agency was unable to find a single case "in which a woman became ill because of exposure to a sanitary napkin."

Another batch of ex-rules set records for providing incomprehensible and unnecessary gobbledegook.

The telephone company, for example, could only provide

Consulate Is Firebombed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two persons were arrested inside the Egyptian consulate early today after shots were fired and an incendiary device burned the front door, police said.

An armed man believed to be a security guard was inside the consulate, police said. There were no reports of injuries.

Police say those arrested claimed to be consulate employees. It was not immediately known if the fire at the door of the consulate had been extinguished.

It also was not known who fired the shots.

A man identifying himself as a spokesman for the Jewish Defense League told the Associated Press by telephone that the group was responsible for "a firebombing" at the consulate.

The call was received minutes before shots were reported inside the consulate and police were called to the scene. A three-block area was cordoned off by police.

The caller read a statement to the AP saying: "Since Egypt's aim is the total destruction of the state of Israel, any Israeli retreat from the vital Sinai buffer zone would be suicide."

Tobacco Growers Not Much Better Off This Year

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer
FUQUAY VARINA, N.C. (AP) — Although North Carolina's flue-cured tobacco crop brought a record $1 billion this year, industry officials say the tobacco grower is not much better off than a year ago, when end-of-the-season tallies were less than spectacular.

State Agriculture Commissioner leader Jim Graham and other industry leaders say inflation, which has elevated the cost of supplies, equipment and the money farmers borrow to finance them, has put a serious squeeze on profits in 1978.

lean years," Graham said. "They are fighting increases in labor costs, land costs, credit costs and energy costs. If you add it up, they don't come out that much ahead."

Even the growers who appear to be doing very well have just as sad a song to sing.

"People ain't getting rich," said Durward Cook, a tobacco grower in Wake County who "tends" 100 acres. He says people outside the industry and the state are likely to look at this year's record sales of $1 billion and think differently.

"It's just a living," he said. "Profit-wise, we're not making any more money than we did several years ago. Tobacco ain't no get-rich proposition."

The 39-year-old farmer, who has been growing tobacco since he was 17, lives with his wife and two children in a brick home just outside the small town of Fuquay Varina. His spread includes eight curing barns, two tobacco combines and a number of tractors, trucks and other pieces of production equipment.

Cook won't say exactly how much he made this year because he says he doesn't represent the average tobacco farmer in North Carolina. But for an estimate he put it this way:

One hundred acres of tobacco produces about 200,000 pounds, and it probably cost the average farmer $1.20 per acre to produce the leaf this year. Using the average per-pound price of $1.32 this season, that means a profit of 12 cents per pound. So for 200,000 pounds, the grower cleared $24,000.

That may sound like a good living for a farmer in North Carolina, Cook acknowledged, but he said it doesn't account for the amount of money growers tie up in production. A $24,000 income does not necessarily mean a $24,000 living, he said.

"There are very few industries that get as much money involved as farming for the amount of profit you get out of it," he said. "For the money you get and the chances you take, you're not getting much."

Cook said a whole year can be ruined in a few short minutes if a hail storm hits a ripening field of tobacco. Too much rain or too little rain can turn a year's toil in the field to nothing.

The slim profit margin and an anti-smoking campaign by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano has led many to suggest that growers switch to other crops. Califano's $23 million campaign has made him a target of the tobacco industry in North Carolina.

But a changeover from tobacco isn't as easy as putting one seed in the ground instead of another. Graham said there is no other crop that grows well in North Carolina that yields the amount of money per acre that tobacco does.

And Cook said the farmer who manages to live on an income from 12 to 15 acres of tobacco would be run out of business trying to raise another crop. "In beans or corn, it would take me 2,000 to 3,000 acres to make what I do on 100 acres of tobacco," he said.

Cook doesn't think any amount of work is going to finish tobacco. "The tobacco situation is in a mess," he said. "It's been in a mess for 22 years. But we're here and we're going to stay."

"You cut out tobacco and, Lord have mercy, would we have a mess. Where would people work?"

Cook said there aren't many growers in the tobacco business who aren't serious about what they are doing. Otherwise, they don't last.

For Cook there is no other way to make a living. Since he was a child, he says he has never wanted to do anything else but farm tobacco.

"It takes a lot of money," he said, walking past the row of now empty curing barns. "But I like tobacco. I enjoy watching it grow and I enjoy working with it. It's all I've ever wanted to do."

Body-Snatch Fear Raised

CHICAGO (AP) — The possibilities of body-snatching and an organized crime takeover were raised by physicians responding to a poll on the commercial sale of human organs for transplant.

Of the 244 physicians responding to the American Medical Association survey, 75.4 percent said the sale of transplantable human organs should not be legalized, 19.3 percent said they would favor commercial sales and 5.3 percent expressed no opinion.

The results are published in the Nov. 24 issue of American Medical News, the AMA's weekly newspaper.

Some doctors said legalization could bring about consequences like those fantasized in Robin Cook's novel and subsequent film, "Coma."

"Not only do these respondents view the commercial sale of human organs as unethical, but they see great potential for criminal abuse of such a system," the article said.

One doctor said the poor would be sold for spare parts, others said the wealthy would have the advantage in buying organs, and the possibility of self-mutilation for profit was raised.

Witness Again Gunman Target

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago man scheduled to testify against a reputed crime syndicate member has been wounded for the second time in a shotgun attack near his South Side home, police said.

J.B. Willis, 56, was hit in the shoulder and back as he emerged from his car Wednesday. Police said he was in satisfactory condition. Willis was wounded Feb. 7 when a gunman fired four slugs into his groin as he waited for a bus. Michael Antonelli, 30, a convicted auto thief and reputed crime syndicate assassin, was charged with aggravated battery. Willis was to be a witness against Antonelli in that case.

Keeping Eye On Religious Affiliation

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religious Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopalians, Lutherans, Baptists and Jews won a bigger share of the new Congress this time. Roman Catholics and Presbyterians held their own, while United Methodists and the United Church of Christ registered losses. Among governors, the number of Roman Catholics edged downward slightly, while Protestants gained more of the top statehouse posts. The post-election figures were compiled by the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, which every two years researches and reports religious affiliations of members of Congress and governors.

Among the denominations, the country's largest religious body, Roman Catholicism, continued to have the highest representation on Capitol Hill — a total of 129, of whom 116 are in the House and 13 in the Senate.

That is the same total that Catholics had in the previous Congress. The number of Protestants slipped slightly from 371 to 364, while the Jewish count increased to a record 30, up from 27 before, with 23 now in the House and seven in the Senate.

Jewish representation has grown rapidly since the 1972 election, when there were only 14 Jews in Congress.

Additionally, there are seven Eastern Orthodox in Congress, up three, and six unaffiliated with any religion, one less than previously.

Among governors, 12 are Roman Catholics, down three from previously; eight Episcopalians, up four or twice as many as before; seven Baptists, up two; eight Presbyterians, up one; four Lutherans, up one; four United Church of Christ members, up one; two Methodists, down three; two Mormons, up one; and one each of the Disciples of Christ and Unitarian-Universalist churches, both the same.

In the new Congress, including House and Senate, Episcopalians increased from 65 to 70, Baptists from 55 to 57, Lutherans from 16 to 19, Unitarian-Universalists from 11 to 12 and Disciples from five to six.

The biggest loss came for the United Church of Christ, whose numbers fell from 22 to 16, while Mormons dropped from 12 to 10 and the Churches of Christ fell from six to four.

Presbyterians, who lost 18 seats in the previous two elections, this time managed to hold their own at 60. Others keeping the same numbers were three Christian Scientists, two Quakers and five Greek-Orthodox members, but two other Eastern Orthodox branches elected one each.

Thirteen other smaller denominations sent one member each to Congress. Also, 19 members of Congress listed themselves as Protestants without specifying a denomination, two less than last time.

Justice Dept. Shuns Inquiries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department ruled out investigations into alleged brainwashing and physical abuse in religious cults because of fears such inquiries would violate constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion, a department spokesman said.

Spokesman Robert Havel said Thursday night that Rep. Leo Ryan, who was killed while leading a fact-finding mission to the Peoples Temple settlement in Guyana, had asked the department to investigate the religious group.

The California Democrat and Rep. Robert Ciampo, D-Conn., in May 1977 told the department that several religious cults controlled their members through brainwashing and physical abuse.

The two congressmen said they had also received allegations that some religious organizations were illegally converting members' veterans benefits, welfare payments and food stamps to their own use.

Benjamin Civiletti, then chief of the department's criminal division told the congressmen that brainwashing and other thought-control tactics "would not support a prosecution under the federal kidnapping statute" and that an investigation could infringe the freedom-of-religion guarantees in the Constitution.

Havel said Thursday, "Certainly there are constitutional problems involved. If the person is an adult and not being held against his will, there is not much we can do."

Offer Special Chorus Program

A special autumn program of chorus music is being presented Sunday by the Community Gospel Chorus of Greenville, at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church.

The program, featuring 100 voices from various church choirs — Cornerstone, Sycamore Hill, Sylvia Chapel, York Memorial and other churches — will begin at 6 p.m.

Rev. John Taylor, III, is organizer for the program, and president of the group is Mrs. Ann Early.

The public is invited to attend this special event.

Conduct Sunday Church Service

The Rev. James Harris and the R. J. Person and Charles Dudley Choir of St. John Baptist Church, Falkland, will be in charge of the service at Sycamore Baptist Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The announcement was made by the church pastor, Rev. Hue Walston. The public is invited to attend. The church is located on Rt. 5, Greenville.

Singing Group's Anniversary

The No. 2 Singers of Bethel Chapel F.W.B. Church will observe their third anniversary Sunday at 3 p.m.

Registration will start at 2:30. The special guest will be Evangelist Artist of Kinston and the Lee Singers. Various choirs are asked to participate. The public is invited to attend.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

Revival services will be held at the Maranatha Free Will Baptist Church Sunday through Wednesday, Nov. 29.

The Sunday evening service begins at seven o'clock and evening services will begin at 7:30. The Rev. John Moran, a former pastor, will be the speaker.

Special music will be provided each evening and a nursery will be held.

The public is invited to attend.

Questions... Answers!

Why giraffes, with their towering necks and peculiar patterns? Why zebras, striped in black and white? Why cardinals, scarlet against the winter snow?
For that matter, why man? Why can only man speak? Yet so often he fails to understand those around him. And only man can think, but the riddles of life elude him.
Questions. The world is full of questions, and none are so provocative as those that concern the "whys" of how it all began. Where can you find some of the answers? Try the Church.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals T

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Tangled Scarf Kills Cyclist

MONROE, N.J. (AP) - Police say 7-year-old James C. Kelley Jr. died when his scarf caught in a wheel of his motorbike, breaking his neck. Township policeman Leon Gennett said the youth was riding in a field near his home when a long neck scarf became entangled in the sprocket of the rear wheel of his dirt bike, a motorized bicycle to be ridden off roadways. The boy was pulled off the vehicle, apparently breaking his neck in the fall, the patrolman said. The Jamesburg First Aid Squad took Kelley to Princeton Hospital after he was found unconscious by his sister Christina, 10. Gennett said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Brokers and investors decided to take the day after Thanksgiving off today, leaving the stock market listless in quiet trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was up 1.39 to 808.39 at noon, reflecting the lack of interest among traders. Advancing issues ran 3-2 ahead of declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market appeared little affected by news that many major banks had raised their prime lending rates to 11 1/2 percent from 11 percent, and got good news from Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, who returned from a tour of the Midwest with a prediction that crude oil prices might not rise as substantially as had been predicted. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets to discuss a price hike next month.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks gained .06 to 53.30, while at the American Stock Exchange the market value index climbed .66 to 148.11.

Volume on the Big Board was a scanty 6.89 million shares at midday, compared to 8.39 million at noon Wednesday.

Touch Of Pink On Patrol Cars

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies in Wyandotte County may find themselves riding around in a shiny new "beige with a tinge of pink" patrol car.

It seems Sheriff Don Long fought to tell a car dealer what color squad cars he wanted. Long said one of the new cars is "fire-engine red."

Some of the deputies have been "fighting not to drive the things," the sheriff said. The cars have the full markings of the sheriff's office and are equipped with the standard police lights and sirens. Long says he has no plans to repaint them. Normally, the department's cars are the basic black and white.

New Route Is Given Airline

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Civil Aeronautics Board administrative law judge has awarded Allegheny Airlines a new route between St. Louis and the San Francisco Bay area, it was announced today.

In doing so, Judge Stephen J. Gross said American Airlines and Eastern Airlines would get the routes instead should Allegheny fail to provide low-fare service.

TWA is now only airline holding nonstop authority between St. Louis and San Francisco.

In another action, Gross awarded new service between Louisville and St. Louis to Allegheny, American, Frontier Airlines, Ozark Air Lines and Piedmont Aviation.

Eastern and TWA already provide nonstop service between the two cities.

Gross' decisions may be overruled by the board within 90 days.

Back To Work On The Budget

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — After a one-day holiday break, President Carter planned to get back to work today on the new budget he will submit to Congress next year.

The president, however, will remain at Camp David until Sunday when he returns to the White House.

He and Mrs. Carter hosted a traditional Thanksgiving dinner Thursday evening for about 30 relatives.

A cold rain on Thanksgiving day hampered plans for the president and his guests to get in some swimming in the mountain retreat's heated outdoor pool and bicycling and hiking on surrounding trails.

"They're all up there enjoying a happy family holiday," White House associate press secretary Claudia Townsend said Thursday.

George II became king of Greece in 1922.

House Insulation For The Poor Is Red-Taped

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Warehouses around North Carolina are holding more than $100,000 worth of insulation purchased under two federal programs to insulate homes of the poor because of a conflict in providing workers to do the installation.

The workers were to be hired under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act. But the U.S. Department of Labor has apparently stalled the hiring by giving it a low priority, according to Brian M. Flattery, director of the state Energy Division and John Edwards, director of the State Economic Opportunities Office.

Flattery said the insulation programs provided funds only for materials, while the CETA program provided funding only for labor. Congress, however, assumed the availability of CETA labor without directing the Labor Department to provide it, he said.

The two federal insulation programs are conducted by the U.S. Department of Energy and the U.S. Community Services Administration. The State Economic Opportunities Office actually hands the money for the programs to communities.

After an audit of the Energy Department's insulation program last month, the state Auditor's Department concluded that materials purchased under both federal programs have been mixed together and there is no way to determine which materials belong to which program. And the report said the program's accounting procedures make it difficult for the responsible state agencies to determine whether the local agencies carrying out the program have insulated the home or just bought and stored the materials.

Unless the worker impasse with CETA is broken, the two programs will not continue, according to Edwards. And if the programs are stopped, it will be the low-income families who suffer.

Flattery and Edwards said the deficiencies the report pointed out were being corrected to comply with federal regulations.

For the Department of Energy program, North Carolina received $475,000 in fiscal 1977 and will receive $1.1 million for fiscal 1978.

Under the Community Services program, the state has received $1.7 million for the two years.

Visitation Day Held At School

FALKLAND — Approximately 30 parents attended Parent Visitation Day held Tuesday at Falkland Elementary School, sponsored by the school Title One Advisory Committee.

Special guests included Superintendent of Pitt County Schools Ott Alford and Alice Keene, coordinator of the county Community Schools Program.

Mrs. Betsy Smith's first graders entertained the guests with a Thanksgiving program. Guests then were invited to visit the Media Center, reading labs and school rooms.

Space-Related Toys Hot Item

SEATTLE (AP) — If you're planning to get your child a space toy for Christmas this year, you'd better buy it quickly. Seattle shoppers are finding.

Jane Durham, manager of a toy store here, says, "I've never seen anything like it." And one parent, who didn't want her name used for fear that her child may see it, says she called 15 stores trying to find some space-related toys, but none had any. "I'm on every waiting list in town," she said.

Birthdays And Thanksgiving

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — It was a combination Thanksgiving-double birthday party celebration at the home of Michael and Susan Weirens.

The birthday parties were for the Weirens' son, Adam, and Adam's grand-uncle, Clifford Tidd of Little Falls.

Adam turned 1-year-old Thursday; his grand-uncle, 101.

Pirates Open 1978 Basketball Season

Oliver Mack

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Oliver Mack, East Carolina University's All-America candidate, will lead the Pirates on to the court Saturday night as the Pirates open the 1978-79 basketball season.

The Bucs will be playing host to UNC-Asheville, a team they feel they owe a little too.

Last year, UNC-A came into Minges Coliseum, and went away with a 101-91 victory over the Pirates. It was one of the most humiliating losses the Pirates suffered during the year.

"One of our goals is to do a little paying back this year," Coach Larry Gillman said. And that goal can begin to be accomplished in the 7:30 p.m. contest.

Besides Mack, the country's number four scorer last year at 28.0 points a game, the Pirates return four other starters. However, only three of those are slated for starting action in the contest.

For Mack, too, it will be the first start against Asheville. Last year, he arrived late for the pre-game meeting, and was benched.

Joining Mack in the starting lineup will be returning veterans Herb Gray (6-8 junior) and Greg Cornelius (6-9 senior). Gray, however, will be playing a new position, moving from the power forward to the "finesse" forward slot. Cornelius will again be at the center position.

With Mack at the big guard, the other two positions will be filled by newcomers. George Maynor (6-3 junior), a transfer, will occupy the point position, with Frank Hobson (6-8 junior) at the power forward slot.

"Of course, we're going to be playing a lot of other people, too," Gillman said.

Veteran Herb Krusen (6-5 junior) will see action both at the small forward and big guard positions. Krusen was a starter at the small forward slot last year.

Another vet, Walter Moseley (6-2 sophomore) will play a lot at the point, where he started last year.

"Krusen is one of the best shooters around, but he doesn't have the quickness or rebounding ability of Gray, but having him able to play both his old position and the big guard spot will help us a lot. He will either spell Mack, or Mack will move to the point when he's in at guard.

"Moseley has improved a lot since last year. He led the team in steals and assists last year, but also led the team in turnovers. But he's a better player now, especially since he has more competition for his job."

(Others expected to see a lot of action in the game include returning Kyle Powers (6-5 junior) at the small forward and big guard position; and newcomers Clarence Miles (6-5 freshman) at the same spots;

Al Tyson (6-11 freshman) at the center and big forward spots; and 6-6 Mark McLaurin (6-6 freshman) at the forward positions.

"We really can move people around up front, with Hobson moving into the post at times, and Cornelius, Tyson, or McLaurin outside."

Also to figure in later in the season will be transfer David Underwood (6-6 freshman), who was an All-City player in New York, enrolled at South Carolina, then transferred to ECU. He becomes eligible around mid-December when he completes his last examination of the fall semester.

"We have some talent this year. I don't know how well it will blend until we see them on the court against some other people than ourselves. Overall, I'd really have to say that our team is a question mark right now.

"But we are extremely fortunate not to have to play a team like Indiana to open up with, and in having our first two games at home," Gillman added.

Following the Saturday night game against Asheville, the Pirates will play host to St. Leo's on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Minges. They then travel to Williamsburg, Va., next Saturday to meet William & Mary. They have one other home game in December, on the 12th against Lynchburg.

Redskins Expect To See Some Improvement

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

After finishing with a 15-7 record in the 2-A ranks last season, Roanoke High School is moving up to the 3-A Northeastern Conference this year, but coach Henry Land isn't overly worried.

"Going into 3-A, we just don't know what to expect. It is probably just a thin line between 2-A and 3-A ball, and basically it's just height. I feel like we'll be competitive, no question about that, because we're not in a rebuilding stage."

In fact, the Redskins lost only one starter off of last year's squad, so experience will not be a problem this season. Land also said he is confident his two guards can keep up with 3-A opposition.

Both backcourt men were starters last season. They are seniors Jasper Martin and Sutton Edmondson. Martin is the second guard, while Edmondson quarterbacked the team. Land said Edmondson handles the ball well and plays good defense. "That's a plus for us — we have good guards," Land said.

In the center will be senior Chris Morning. He is 6-3, but is a good leaper. "He's going to produce this year," Land commented.

The forwards are senior Edward Ward and junior Donald Weatherby. Ward is 5-11 and Weatherby is 6-0. "We have a height problem," Land admitted.

Ward is the leading returning scorer. He averaged between 18 and 22 points per game last season. "He's one of the best shooters around. He also jumps good and is quick."

Weatherby, the only junior on the starting five, was the most valuable player on last year's junior varsity team. "He's very quick, is a good shooter and a good leaper. He's also got some good basketball smarts."

Two reserve players should see a good deal of playing time at forward, senior Calvin McNeil and junior Roy Moore. Both are six-footers and are expected to help the team in the frontcourt.

Senior Ronnie Highsmith will back up Morning at center. He is inexperienced, but "should give a great deal of help," Land said.

Land has been impressed with the team's work in practice so far. "These guys are winners. They work pretty hard trying to be winners."

Land knows little about the Northeastern Conference, except for Washington and Williamston. He said from what he has heard that Washington and Tarboro will be the top teams in the league this year.

"We'll be competitive," he said. "We may not be at the top, but by all means, we don't expect to be at the bottom. A plus for us is that the other teams don't know about us, either."

Land said the Redskins may have something to do with who wins the league championship. "We plan to be one of the teams to bring about some upsets. We have been good for that over the years."

Aces Set To Begin

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — After nearly a year without basketball, a year lived under the pall of the air crash that killed the entire University of Evansville basketball squad and coach, Dick Walters says it's time to bury the sorrow.

The new coach and a new team begin that mission with a dose of hard work Saturday when they visit Southern Illinois University, a powerhouse in the Missouri Valley Conference.

"We'll never forget what happened here," said Walters, the coach named to rebuild the program. "But, we can't allow ourselves to be buried with it. Life goes on and the greatest tribute we can give to last year's team is to build our program back up as quickly as possible."

The trip to Southern Illinois is the opener of a rugged schedule that is a part of Evansville's effort to build itself as an NCAA Division I team after many years as a Division II power which sent players like Don Buse and Jerry Sloan to the National Basketball Association.

The program began last year, but was halted when the team was destroyed in the crash of a DC-3 just four games into the season. Twenty-nine persons died in the crash.

Spurs Rally Past Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Larry Kenon and George "Ice" Gervin poured in baskets during the third quarter to power San Antonio from an 11-point deficit to a five-point lead, then helped on defense and from the free-throw line in the final period as the Spurs ended a three-game losing streak and gained some confidence.

"I was really struggling before this game. I thought after my last two games that I had lost my rhythm," said Gervin, the leading scorer in the National Basketball Association with a 29.4 point average, after the Spurs beat the Milwaukee Bucks 116-114 Thursday night.

"Now I think we've got our concentration back. I know I got my rhythm back. Maybe now we can start rolling," Gervin said.

The Spurs were behind 65-54 with 10:13 left in the third period but led 81-76 going into the final quarter as Kenon scored 13 of his 34 points and Gervin eight of his 28 in the spurt. The two added back-to-back steals and dunks after the Bucks pulled to within four points at 106-102 with 2:38 left.

In the only other NBA game of the night, the New Orleans Jazz beat the Golden State Warriors 106-98.

Jazz 106, Warriors 98
Pete Maravich scored 33 points and Gail Goodrich came off the bench to add 22 to lead New Orleans over Golden State. With the score tied at 62, Maravich hit a pair of long jumpers to put the Jazz ahead to stay.

Forward Truck Robinson, who scored a career-high 51 points against New Jersey Tuesday night, got into early foul trouble and played only 29 minutes for New Orleans. He had 17 points and 11 rebounds before fouling out with 2:07 remaining.

John Lucas led Golden State with 18 points.

Woody Peete

It appears that the championship is going right down to the wire, and defending champion Joe Jenkins in breathing down the necks of the leaders after another good week.

Jenkins missed only one game last week, and has pulled within one game of the top.

Tom Baines and this writer continued to be deadlocked for first place with 99-41-2 records, while Jenkins currently posts a 98-42-2 mark. Jim Kyle follows with a 96-44-2 record, with our guests next at 94-46-2. Vickie Spivey continues in last place at 93-47-2, but has a chance to get out of the cellar this week.

Our guest last week, East Carolina chancellor Dr. Thomas Brewer posted a 9-2-1 week, one of the better ones for the guests. Bill Cain, ECU athletic director, still has the best guest record with a 10-2 mark.

This week, because of the shortness of the schedule,

Peete	Kyle	Woods	Baines	Spivey	Jenkins
Clemson over S. Carolina	Clemson	Clemson	Clemson	Clemson	Clemson
State over Virginia	State	State	State	State	State
Penn State over Pitt	Penn St.	Penn St.	Penn St.	Penn St.	Penn St.
Michigan over Ohio State	Michigan	Michigan	Michigan	Michigan	Michigan
Southern Cal over N. Dame	N. Dame	USC	USC	USC	USC
Carolina over Duke	Carolina	Carolina	Carolina	Carolina	Carolina
Farmville over Burlington	Farmville	Farmville	Farmville	Farmville	Burlington
Miss. State over Ole Miss	Miss. St.	Miss. St.	Miss. St.	Miss. St.	Ole Miss
Kentucky over Tennessee	Kentucky	Kentucky	Tennessee	Tennessee	Tennessee
Memphis St. over Cincinnati	Memphis St.	Memphis St.	Memphis St.	Memphis St.	Memphis St.

there are only ten games on our list.

Our guest for those ten is WNCT-TV Sports Director Jim Woods, the voice of the Pirates. He is hopeful of beating out Cain's record and keeping the guests out of last place.

This is the final regular season listing for our panel. We will return once more, on December 15, to give our predictions for the bowl games...including the Pirates this year.

Two games warrant special attention this week, as Farmville Central goes for the state championship finals, and the Tar Heels of North Carolina face the Duke Blue Devils in the traditional season ender.

The Jaguars once again will be going up against an unbeaten team in Burlington Williams. And we find ourselves in a quandry since ole WHS is our alma mater. None the less, our panel has gone with Farmville Central, giving the Jaguars a 6-1 margin.

Both the Tar Heels and Blue Devils are suffering through losing seasons. Carolina had high hopes of being in the top twenty teams at the start of the year, and Duke got away to a big start with a victory over Georgia Tech, now Peach Bowl-bound.

But things went downhill from the start, and both need a victory to end the year. Our panel gives the nod to the Tar Heels, again by a 6-0 count.

Our other consensus picks include: Clemson over South Carolina; N.C. State over Virginia; Penn State over Pittsburgh; Michigan over Ohio State; Southern Cal over Notre Dame; Mississippi State over Mississippi; Kentucky and Tennessee, a toss-up; and Memphis State over Cincinnati.

Year Winds Down For ACC Teams With In-State Gridiron Battles

By The Associated Press

The Atlantic Coast Conference football season rolls to an end Saturday with five teams in action — three of them involved in fierce state rivalries. North Carolina and Duke will meet to settle another chapter in a long-standing rivalry as will ACC champion Clemson and in-state rival South Carolina. North Carolina State travels to Virginia for its last ACC contest of the season. North Carolina will host Duke as the teams meet for the 64th time Saturday. The only other time the two teams entered their annual football game with identical records was in 1959 when the Tar Heels crushed the Blue Devils 50-0. Duke and North Carolina will enter the game with 4-6 records overall and 2-3 marks in the ACC. They are tied for fourth place in the conference.

Duke was defeated last week by North Carolina State 24-10 in a game that saw the Blue Devils march to the goal line only to be held off the scoreboard. Coach Mike McGee said the season had been frustrating but would take on "real meaning if they could end the season with a victory over Carolina...at Carolina."

North Carolina coach Dick Crum will be ending his first year as the Tar Heels head coach with a losing season even with a victory Saturday. Tight end Bob Loomis said it will probably take two or three years before Crum has stocked the program with the players he needs to make his system run smoothly.

ACC champ Clemson takes on its state rival Saturday when it hosts independent South Carolina. The Tigers took the conference crown last week — their first since 1967 — with a 28-24 win over Maryland at College Park.

With that victory the Tigers, who are 9-1 overall and 6-0 in the conference, also won a berth in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., against the winner of the Ohio State-Michigan contest. It will be Clemson's second consecutive trip to the Gator Bowl. Last year, the Tigers lost to Pittsburgh 34-3 in that contest. Independent South Carolina defeated Wake Forest, 37-14, last week on the home field, jumping to a quick lead and keeping it for the entire game. The Gamecocks stand at 5-4-1 for the year.

North Carolina State finishes out the ACC season at Virginia. The Wolfpack's 24-10 defeat of Duke last week put the records at 7-3 overall and 3-2 in the conference.

Virginia stands 2-7 overall and 0-5 in the conference after last week's defeat at the hands of North Carolina, 38-20.

Cavalier coach Dick Bestwick said the game was his team's worst defensive performance of the season.

Saturday's game will mark the end of regular collegiate football for Wolfpack running back Ted Brown, the ACC's all-time leading rusher and NCAA fifth-leading rusher.

Although the ACC season ends Saturday, Brown will be playing for the Wolfpack in the Tangerine Bowl against Pittsburgh.

Tops Arch Rival, 26-0

CLINTON, S.C. (AP) — A tenacious Presbyterian defense led by Bill Berry, Joe Gant, Rick Porter and Erskine Reed paved the way for a 26-0 triumph over arch-rival Newberry College in an SAC football game.

Clayton Burke scored two touchdowns in the second half of Thursday's game, enabling the Blue Hose to end the season with an 8-2-1 overall record. The victory also gave Presbyterian a 6-0-1 South Atlantic Conference mark, tying them with Elon for the league championship.

Newberry's defeat gave the team a 7-3 overall season finish and a 4-3 conference record. Newberry had a twelfth place ranking among NAIA schools; Presbyterian followed with the fifteenth spot.

Berry's fumble recovery and interceptions by Porter and Reed in the second period set the stage for Walter Atkins' four-yard touchdown dive and Chuck Bishop's field goals of 29 and 33 yards to give Presbyterian a 13-0 halftime lead.

Lions Pull Off Upset Of Denver Broncos

By LARRY PALADINO AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — English settlers celebrated the first Thanksgiving 357 years ago. Thursday at the Pontiac Silverdome it was Doug English doing most of the celebrating.

He led the Plymouth Rockhard Detroit defensive line that sacked Denver quarterback Craig Morton six times as the Lions defeated the Broncos, 17-14, in their nationally televised National Football League game.

English, a fifth-year tackle from Texas, where he was an All-American, tackled Morton four times behind the line of scrimmage. He and his linemates — rookie Al "Bubba" Baker, John Woodcock and Dave Pureifory — harrassed Morton continually to key the upset over the defending American Conference champion.

The loss dropped Denver to 85 and out of a first-place tie with Oakland in the AFC west. The Broncos' next game is at Oakland.

Detroit, at least until Sunday, climbed out of a tie with Chicago for the cellar of the central division of the National Conference. The Lions, who have won four their last six, lifted their record to 5-8.

"Doug English got a game ball," said Detroit Coach Monte Clark. "He was captain today, indicating what I think of him."

The sacks lifted Detroit's league-leading total to 48.

Denver gained 128 yards rushing and 105 passing. It was the first time in seven games the Broncos didn't go over 300 yards.

Denver Coach Red Miller was upset.

"We knew we had to win this game," he said. "Now our title chances hinge on what we do against Oakland. The Lions didn't surprise us defensively. We knew what they could do up front and they did it."

Rick Kane and Horace King scored Detroit's touchdowns on plunges in the first and fourth quarters to conclude drives of 90 and 77 yards. Benny Ricardo booted a 19-yard field goal in the third period after a Morton fumble.

NCS, Wake Open Year

By The Associated Press

North Carolina State basketball coach Norm Sloan says he accepted an invitation to play in tonight's Sea Wolf Classic in Anchorage, Alaska, before he knew who the Wolfpack's opponents would be.

Now that he realizes his team will be facing Texas A&M, he says, "It's a tougher beginning than I would like to have."

N.C. State, the nation's 12th-ranked team, and Wake Forest will be starting the collegiate basketball season ahead of the other Big Four teams tonight. Both are on the road, the Wolfpack in Alaska and Wake Forest in Jacksonville, Fla., for a contests with Jacksonville University.

If N.C. State wins tonight, bouts with No. 4 Louisville and 10th-ranked Indiana could be ahead.

The top-ranked Duke Blue Devils opens their season Saturday night at Western Kentucky. Defending Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season champion North Carolina swings into action next Wednesday at Northwestern.

Sloan says the Wolfpack should be a much-improved team with the return of Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney minus 35 pounds, and improved play from No. 2 scorer Clyde Austin and 6-11 center Craig Watts. Watts is expected to start ahead of 7-2 Glenn Sudhop.

Wake Forest doesn't have as many veterans returning. A big gap was left by leading ACC scorer and rebounder Rod Griffin and Leroy McDonald. Senior center Larry Harrison's status is questionable since he has not fully recovered from knee surgery earlier in the year.

Cowboys, Gallop Past 'Skins, 37-10

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP)—Like a good jockey, waiting until the crucial moment on the backstretch, Dallas Coach Tom Landry has applied the whip to his National Football League champion Cowboys.

They flew past Washington like a thoroughbred Thanksgiving Day in a 37-10 rout that gave the Cowboys a game lead over the Redskins in the National Conference Eastern Division with three games to play.

"We were ready to play — this is the best we've played," said Landry whose teams characteristically flatten out in the middle of the season then breathe fire when it counts.

"We were just going so strong it would have been difficult for any team to stop us today regardless of who we played."

Washington quarterback Joe Theismann concluded, "All you can say is the Cowboys kicked the hell out of us. I know they kicked the hell out of me."

Dallas is 9-4 to Washington's 8-5. The Cowboys, should the teams again fall into a tie, have an insurmountable tiebreaker edge over the Redskins.

Dallas jumped on Washington with 13 first-quarter points — the most for the Cowboys in the opening 15 minutes this year — then pounded the scrambling Redskins in revenge for an earlier 9-5 loss to Washington.

"It was a big plus to move the ball early and get some points on the board," said Cowboy wide receiver Drew Pearson, who combined with quarterback Roger Staubach on a 57-yard pass-and-run touchdown. "We have been having trouble in the first quarter. We got it all together today. We were really sky high. We were at our emotional peak. We were hitting and sticking. When you get 488 yards against the 'Skins I'd say your offense is in good shape."

Rafael Septien kicked three field goals and reserve fullback

Scott Laidlaw rushed for 122 yards on 16 carries, scoring twice, as the Cowboy offense purred.

Mark Moseley's 44-yard field goal and Theismann's late 16-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jean Fugett was all

Washington could muster.

The Dallas defense, which sacked Theismann four times, didn't allow Washington a first down until Cliff Harris was flagged for interference late in the second quarter.

Dallas led 20-0 at halftime as Staubach, who scrambled seven times when he didn't find a receiver, came up with some big third-down plays.

But it was his bomb to Pearson that put the game away. Pearson sneaked behind Joe Lavender and caught the radarguided spiral at the Redskins 9 and just loafed into the end zone in the game's most spectacular play.

When it didn't count, third-string fullback Larry Brinson bolted 39 yards for Dallas' final touchdown.

"It was just a rotten day," said Theismann. "When you get 20 points down, there is no mystery what you have to do — you have to throw the football. And those guys just tee off and when those four guys up front want to play football, there is nobody like them in the NFL. There is no two ways about it. You kid yourself if you don't realize that."

Eagles Hope To Stop Cardinal Win Streak

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Eagles, having received the season's biggest gift last Sunday, are looking for a way to avoid offering the St. Louis Cardinals a present this time out.

A week ago the Eagles were less than half a minute away from their sixth loss. Then the New York Giants fumbled the ball away, defensive back Herman Edwards picked it up and ran for the touchdown for a 1917 victory to put the Eagles' record at 7-5 and keep alive their playoff hopes.

Now the Eagles face the Cardinals — birds of prey as far as Philadelphia is concerned. St. Louis has beaten Philly nine times in a row, most recently 16-10 for the first of what has become four straight triumphs by the previously winless Cards.

In Sunday's other National Football League game it's Los Angeles at Cleveland, New Orleans at Atlanta, the Giants at Buffalo, New England at Baltimore, the New York Jets at Miami, Cincinnati at Houston, Minnesota at Green Bay, San Diego at Kansas City, Tampa Bay at Chicago and Seattle at Oakland. Monday night's game is Pittsburgh at San Francisco.

On Thursday, Detroit defeated Denver 17-14 and Dallas beat Washington 37-10.

Los Angeles has a chance to become the first team to wrap up a divisional title. The Rams, the National Conference's winningest team at 10-2 (tied for the league's best record with Pittsburgh of the American Conference), lead Atlanta in the NFC West by three games. If the Rams beat Cleveland and the Falcons lose to New Orleans, LA will have a fourgame edge with three to go.

With the exception of the Steelers' two-game lead over Houston in the AFC Central Division, the rest of the races are very tight — New England leading Miami by a game in the AFC East, Denver and Oakland separated by one-half game in the AFC West, Dallas and Washington one game apart in the NFC East and Minnesota and Green Bay tied for first in the NFC Central race.

Paterno Hopes Lions Prepared

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Coach Joe Paterno hoped he had prepared his Nittany Lions mentally for what may have been their most important game since he took charge of the Penn State football program 13 years ago.

"Pitt could be the best team we've played this season," Paterno warned his squad before today's 78th football meeting with traditional rival Pittsburgh.

"Pitt had some early problems, maybe because they are a young team, but they have great personnel, and they seem to have put it together the last two weeks," was Paterno's line.

Penn State was in the unenviable position of having everything to lose. If the 14¹/₂-point underdog Panthers sprang an upset, State would see its No. 1 ranking, unbeaten record, and national title go down the drain.

The Lions (10-0) have accepted an invitation to the Sugar Bowl.

Finest Acting Is Largely Overlooked

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Isn't it high time the people who select the Emmy awards woke up to the fact that some of the finest acting on TV these days takes place during the

Sunday afternoon and Monday night pro football games? For sheer emotional impact, few performances can match the Lear-like rage of a 280-pound linebacker accused by a kerchief-tossing official of having mugged the kicker, or the look of utter despair, anguish and torment that transfixes the features of a wide receiver who has just dropped a pass in the end zone.

John Gielgud's "Hamlet," they say, was a theatrical landmark in portraying the paths of indecision. His "to be or not to be" was everyman coping with the moral dilemma of choice while suffering the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

But that was before tragedian John McVay emoted before an audience of millions his weekly weepy classic of trying to decide whether to go with Joe Pisarcik or Jerry Golsteyn at quarterback for the New York Giants.

McVay's "Hamlet," almost schizoid in its indecisiveness and constant plot turn-arounds, could also qualify for best story line in the soap opera category, although the Washington Redskins offer competition with a plot that calls on soap addicts to choose between the aging Billy Kilmer and the slumping superstar Joe Theismann as quarterback. Since the "Forsythe Saga" and the "Pallisers" at long last reached their final tear-stained episodes, no continuing drama series can match the theatrical effects on display week after week when the pigskin pros are dominating the tube.

If you thought Jolyon Forsythe could suffer, you should have seen Colt quarterback Bert Jones playing with a separated shoulder while throwing bullets into the end zone past the hypnotized Washington defense.

Love scenes, with parental guidance recommended, are torridly enacted in the end zones by consenting adults in an orgy of fondling, embracing and bussing everytime a touchdown is scored. In the case of a pass, these are usually preceded by the quintessentially macho gesture of downing the ball, slamming it into the turf with a cool look of soulful arrogance, or, if the receiver is as surprised as the fans, a toothless grin of unalloyed joy.

Emmy selectors, however, should be on the lookout for a gridiron Gielgud like the inimitable and still irreplaceable Broadway Joe Namath or the unforgettable Gene "Big Daddy" Lipscomb or, among current performers,

Ed "Too-Tall" Jones, all versatile entertainers who can fake an injury, feign innocence at a clipping penalty, weep for a squashed opponent, laugh at a fumble or other adversity, rage at an official, intimidate a linesman, sneer at an ungrateful crowd, project humility amid adulation, valor amidst violence, grace among grossness, and perform any histrionic feat within the gamut of a professional wrestler without surrendering credibility.

Re-Use Coffins For Shipments

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — The metal coffins which carried home the bodies of the first Peoples Temple suicide victims are being steamcleaned, disinfected and recycled back to Guyana.

Maj. Brigham Shuler, press officer here, said crews dressed in a "cross between a space suit and big, baggy clothing" on Thursday were setting to clean the aluminum containers which had already brought back the bodies of dozens of the more than 400 people who killed themselves earlier this week at the Jonestown religious camp.

The decontamination process takes between 15 and 20 minutes per coffin, he said. "We don't have that many transfer coffins and since the planes are going back they might as well bring them with them," Shuler said, adding that the recycling procedure was not uncommon. "We do it everytime bodies are shipped," he said.

Bodies taken from the coffins were lined up side by side in heavy rubber body bags in cold storage, said Shuler.

Before the bodies could be cleaned or embalmed, he said, identification would have to be made.

The 150-pound aluminum coffins carry numbers and letters written in chalk, as well as brief height and weight descriptions of the bodies inside.

"Once we are able to get a roster of the personnel at Jonestown," Shuler added, "the FBI will be able to search its files" for records which may help identify the victims.

Loretta Lynn Uses The Very Soft Sell

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When stars have a TV show afoot, they tend to discuss it at great, boring length. I now admit to great admiration for Loretta Lynn. She goes about these things quite uniquely.

She'll appear Dec. 7 in a CBS special, "A Country Christmas." But in a recent interview, the tiny, black-haired country music queen didn't discuss it at great, boring length. Or at all, in fact.

Nope. She just poured a cup of coffee, sat cross-legged on the bed at her hotel room here and, in an hour of amiable talk, none of it hard-sell as is the Hollywood custom, managed to:

—Proudly note that one of her six kids, a 22-year-old former Marine with the stage name Ernest Rey, has followed her into the singing trade and works the progressive-country side of Nashville.

—Speak briefly of a movie being made about her life, "Coal Miner's Daughter," the script of which is by Tom Rickman, author of Burt Reynolds' Nashville classic, "W.W. and the Dixie Dancekings."

—Say she sings such non-country digners as Barry Manilow, Lou Rawls and the late Billie Holiday (and credit Ray Charles for sparking country music's now-wild acceptance with his soul version of "I Can't Stop Loving You" in the early 1960s).

—Emphasize, despite the liberated themes of her 1975 hit, "The Pill," and her new "We've Come a Long Way, Baby," she's not a rural Gloria Steinem, except in wanting fair treatment for women.

"I'm not a women's liberator," said Miss Lynn, now rich but born of a poor, hard-working family in the coal town of Butcher Hollow, Ky. "But I am for the woman. And maybe that's what I sing about ..."

"I think the man should be the head of the house. But I think he should talk it over with the woman, whatever goes on."

Miss Lynn, wed at age 14 to a Butcher Hollow boy, Doolittle Lynn, and still with him, was asked if she's ever been asked to campaign for the Equal Rights Amendment. She said yes.

She was asked to cut some radio spots for ERA, but declined for the same reason she doesn't do as many Hollywood stars did this fall — campaign for political stars seeking work.

"Music and politics don't really mix well," she said.

And it's not because she dislikes politicians. She's a fan of President Jimmy Carter from way back, she noted.

"But when it comes to campaigning for different people — well, for example, I feel that with Jimmy there are just as many who hate him as like him," she said.

"And you cannot mix music with politics, because the ones that didn't like Jimmy, they'd dislike me because I was politicking."

Lester Flatt's Condition Fair

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Veteran bluegrass entertainer Lester Flatt spent Thanksgiving Day in a hospital as he recuperates from what has been diagnosed as a brain hemorrhage.

A hospital spokeswoman said his condition was fair Thursday, unchanged from his reported condition Wednesday.

Flatt, 64, was brought to Baptist Hospital from another Nashville hospital Tuesday night after suffering an attack, his manager, Lance LeRoy, said. Flatt first decided to enter a hospital after suffering headaches, LeRoy told a reporter.

Paul Moore, Baptist Hospital public relations director, said neurosurgeons Wednesday examined Flatt and determined he does not need surgery now or in the near future. Moore said the entertainer, recovering in the hospital's intensive care unit, had suffered a brain hemorrhage.

Flatt teamed with banjo player Earl Scruggs to form the group, "The Foggy Mountain Boys," playing together for more than 20 years until they broke up in 1969. They were best known for "Foggy Mountain Breakdown," theme song of the movie "Bonnie and Clyde." They also performed the theme song of the television series "The Beverly Hillbillies."

Flatt organized his present band, "The Nashville Grass," after parting company with Scruggs.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A time to make sure you are in a highly cooperative state of mind and show others you will join with them in activities that are feasible and beneficial to all concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to come to a better understanding with close ties. Certain situations are cleared up and permit greater opportunity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your surroundings and make improvements and repairs that are necessary. Handle a business matter wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal time to enjoy the recreations that most appeal to you, so contact congenials early. Make the evening a happy one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to improve conditions at home so there is more harmony there. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can communicate well with allies at this time and thereby accomplish a great deal. Express your finest talent.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to improve property so it becomes more attractive, comfortable and valuable. Put financial affairs in better order.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are magnetic now and can easily make inroads in social activities. Sidestep an opponent who is working against you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have an excellent day to come up with right answers to puzzling situations. Use tact when dealing with others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how best to entertain friends who have done favors for you in the past. Take no chances with your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show that you follow every rule and regulation that applies to you and advance in public esteem. Study career activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make plans to engage in a new project that can give you added income in the future. Come to a better accord with loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Carry through with promises you have made with close ties and maintain goodwill. Try to be less critical of others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will get along well with others and should be given the best possible education. Precision is important in this chart, so make the surrounding in such a way to inspire your gifted progeny. Ethical training is a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

On this hand from the book no auction is given, but it could have gone as above. South has just enough to issue a game invitation—his sixth spade is the key—and with all his points in prime cards plus a ruffing value, North should accept despite the fact that his original raise was made on only three-card support.

The point of the hand is to delay drawing trumps. As the author advises, do not draw trumps "when you need dummy's trumps for entries, after setting up dummy's side suit."

If diamonds break 3-3, you would need only one entry to dummy to make your contract. But the odds favor a 4-2 diamond split, so you will need two outside entries to set up and cash the diamonds. The only entries to the table are in trumps, so you cannot afford to use dummy's trumps too soon.

Even if you draw only two rounds of trumps before starting on the diamonds, you will go down. Try it. The correct line is to take the ace of hearts, cash the ace of diamonds and then draw only one round of trumps—with the queen. Now lead a diamond to the king and ruff a diamond with a high trump. Your prudence is rewarded when West discards on this trick.

Cross back to dummy with the king of trumps and ruff another diamond with your remaining high trump. That sets up the long diamond in dummy, and you can still get to it by leading a trump to the ace, which draws West's last trump in the process. Discard a loser on the fifth diamond, and you end up having to concede only three tricks to the defenders.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

HELP... HELP!!

PEANUTS
MAYBE WHEN YOU GET TO BE A FAMOUS BASEBALL PLAYER, CHARLIE BROWN, THEY'LL NAME A CANDY BAR AFTER YOU...
YEAH! WOULDN'T THAT BE GREAT?

I'M VERY FLATTERED THAT YOU SHOULD THINK OF SUCH A THING

IT'LL PROBABLY BE HARD TO UNWRAP THAT MELT CHOCOLATE AND HAVE IT ALL OVER YOUR FINGERS

B.C.
HAVE YOU EVER KISSED A GIRL?
LOTS OF TIMES.
DOES IT HURT?
NOT IF YOU DUCK.

NUBBIN
NOW TRY TO DO A GOOD JOB. MY GRANDMOTHER ALWAYS SAID, "IF YOU CAN'T DO SOMETHING RIGHT, DON'T DO IT AT ALL."

I LIKE HER GRANDMOTHER'S THEORY.

BLONDE
HERE'S A LETTER FOR YOU, MRS. BUMSTEAD
BUT IT'S ALL TORN UP AND CRUMPLED

SORRY, BUT IT GOT MESSED UP AT THE POST OFFICE

IT'S LIKE READING AN OLD SOCK!

BEETLE BAILEY
SARGE WAS BITTEN BY HIS OWN DOG?!

YEAH
HE HAD BEEN READING A JOKE BOOK

AND HE WALKED INTO HIS ROOM LAUGHING
NOPE WALKER
I GUESS OTTO DIDN'T RECOGNIZE HIM

PHANTOM
GOTTA MAKE IT LOOK REAL!
LOUDER... I CAN HARDLY HEAR YOU.
THAT'S SINGER... ACTING UP A STORM!

IF THE MASKED GUY SHOWS WE'LL HEAR HIS COCK'S WHISTLE...
HELP... HELP!!

HELP... HELP!!

FRANK AND ERNEST
BUMP!
OUCH!
Look out!

HOME for the ACCIDENT-PRONE

HELP... HELP!!

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool to cold temperatures are expected in the period until Saturday morning for most of the country. Warm weather is due for the Gulf and southern coastal states with rain in the Pacific Northwest and snow in the mountains. Rain and snow flurries are forecast in the Southwest, with rain in the central and eastern Gulf to the upper Mississippi and eastern Oklahoma. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

The cloud cover over North Carolina was beginning to break from the west this morning as a cold front moved through the mountains. Behind the front, partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures were expected to prevail after a rather dismal Thanksgiving Day.

The front was expected to move rapidly across the state during the day and should be offshore by sunset. A few areas of light rain lingered this morning over the central and northern coastal sections ahead of the front.

Today's high temperatures promised to be some warmer than Thursday's readings, reaching the 60s and even climbing to around 70 on the south coast. However, lows tonight will be some cooler than recent readings. Lows will drop to the upper 20s to mid 30s in the northwest mountains and range to the mid and upper 40s on the coast.

Thicker clouds will be moving over the state Saturday ahead of an area of low pressure developing over the southwestern part of the country. This will mean cooler temperatures, dropping back to the 50s in the mountains and ranging to the low and mid 60s on the coast.

Meanwhile, small craft advisories were in effect today for coastal waters and the sounds with a forecast of westerly winds 15 to 25 knots, becoming northerly 10 to 20 knots tonight.

The outlook is for more rain in the mountains Sunday and over the rest of the state Monday and Tuesday.

Holiday Observance Traditional

By The Associated Press

It wasn't a turkey of a day for most Americans. November's fourth Thursday was traditional: parades, football games and feasts of turkey and all the trimmings.

However, folks in Eads, Colo., almost went without, and the dishes are still stacking up there.

An ice storm Monday knocked out power lines and the town of 900 residents had no electricity until just before midnight Wednesday. However, the water supply was still out today.

In Plymouth, Mass., site of the first Thanksgiving, nearly 2,000 spectators watched 51 townfolk dressed as Pilgrims march from Plymouth Rock to a nearby church.

The marchers, ushered through the town by a drummer, represented the survivors of the Pilgrims' first winter in the New World.

About 700 people took part in an ecumenical worship service and about 1,000 more showed up for a traditional Thanksgiving dinner sponsored by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

American military families in West Germany, hit hard with the fall of the dollar, got Thanksgiving help from the U.S. government.

The military allowed dependents to eat in mess halls where a full course meal for civilians costs about $2. There are 180,000 American soldiers stationed in the country.

Other military families feasted on U.S. turkeys bought from government-subsidized commissaries.

Some German children got a taste of a traditional American Thanksgiving dinner at Weierhof, an Army base just west of Worms. American first graders, clad as Pilgrims, invited German first graders from nearby Bolanden elementary school to join them at their feast clad as Indians.

Kathy Vollbrecht of Hicksville, N.Y., a first-grade teacher and organizer of the dinner, was quoted as saying, "We, as Americans, are pilgrims in this land, and they (the Germans) are the Indians, so we invited them to their first Thanksgiving dinner."

President Carter and family gathered at Camp David, Md. More than two dozen relatives were invited, including Carter's mother, Lillian Carter, and Rosalynn Carter's mother, Allie Smith.

The weatherman gave the annual Macy's parade a cold reception as it snaked through the streets of New York City.

But the holiday treat, featuring floats and balloons of a world of fantasy, warmed the hearts of tens of thousands who turned out undaunted by the chilly autumn weather.

It ended with a float carrying Santa Claus, who sat in a giant sleigh fashioned after the traditional Christmas goose and pulled by a team of larger-than-life reindeer.

See Savings In Addicts' Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — A six-year-old treatment program for drug addicts and alcoholics has saved millions of dollars in court and prison costs and theft, according to a federal study.

The federal project, which has cost $30 million, has provided treatment as an alternative to jail for more than 60,000 persons in 52 localities since it was started in 1972, said a report released by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The report said one typical treatment program involving 400 persons a year saves at least $1 million in property that addicts would otherwise steal to support their habits, plus an estimated $450,000 in court and jail costs.

The study examined treatment programs in Cincinnati; Salt Lake City; New Orleans; St. Paul, Minn.; Des Moines, Iowa; Tucson, Ariz.; Austin, Texas; Miami; Chicago; San Juan, Puerto Rico; Milwaukee and the state of Rhode Island.

The LEAA said the other localities with such programs are:

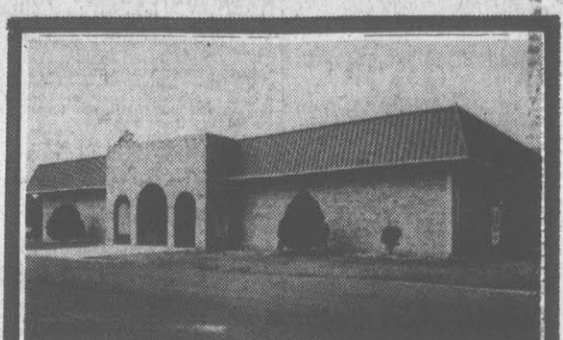

Anchorage, Alaska; Dallas; Baltimore and Montgomery counties, Md.; Birmingham, Ala.; Boston and Bristol County, Mass.; Nassau and Westchester counties and Buffalo, N.Y.; Camden County and Newark, N.J.; Charleston, S.C.; Charlotte, Raleigh and Greensboro, N.C.

Dayton, Ohio; Hartford, Conn.; Detroit and Saginaw County, Mich.; Everett, Tacoma and Vancouver, Wash.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Jackson, Miss.; Jacksonville, Orlando, Pensacola and Tampa, Fla.; Kansas City, Mo.; Little Rock, Ark.; Marin and Sonoma counties, Calif.; Nashville, Tenn.

Oklahoma City, Okla.; Philadelphia, Phoenix, Ariz.; Ponce, Puerto Rico; Portland, Ore.; and Richmond, Va.

Some Pessimism Over Desegregation Policy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some University of North Carolina officials say they are pessimistic about the chances for approval of North Carolina's university desegregation plan since plans in Virginia and Georgia have tentatively been disapproved by the federal government.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare seems to be taking a firmer stand in its efforts to speed up desegregation of university systems in Southern states, officials say.

Recently, HEW announced it intends to cut off federal aid to university systems in Virginia and Georgia if they do not submit revised plans within 45 days. According to the federal government, the two states either failed to merge black and white schools or shift programs to different campuses to promote racial integration.

Program and school merger have been opposed by UNC President William C. Friday and the Board of Governors because they say it would disrupt and damage both white and black institutions.

HEW provisionally approved UNC's desegregation plan last May. But the university must submit a study to HEW by Dec. 15 outlining its plans for eliminating unnecessary program duplication between nearby black and white campuses.

The study is examining programs in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area and the Greensboro-Winston-Salem area. Mosts university officials say they believe it will recommend few major shifts or realignments of academic programs.

Friday said Wednesday he will not comment on the study until it is presented to the Board of Governors Dec. 1.

If HEW rejects the study, it will begin proceedings to cut off federal aid to the UNC system, which last year amounted to $89 million. If that happens, North Carolina probably would file a court challenge in U.S. Middle District Court in North Carolina seeking to have the action declared unconstitutional, officials say.

HEW has signed an agreement saying it will approve or reject the desegregation plans of Georgia, Virginia and North Carolina within 90 days after the duplication plans are submitted.

Advices No 'Radicalism'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II today told monks, friars and other religious their duty is to lead a poor and obedient life rather than be engaged in "social and political radicalism."

"Witness -yes; protest -no," the pontiff said referring to the need to bear example of fidelity to the gospel.

The Polish-born pope made the statement in a speech to the top leaders of Roman Catholic male religious orders from the Benedictines to the Dominicans, from the Jesuits to the Franciscans. It confirmed the new pope's policy stressing the need for respect of the main values of Catholic tradition while pursuing updating and renewal as prescribed by the 1962-1965 Vatican Ecumenical Council.

"Without religious orders, without life made 'sacred' through the vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, the Church would not be fully herself," John Paul II said.
