More Violence In Iran

By SAJID RIZVI

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Heavy shooting erupted across Tehran for the second consecutive night Saturday as troops battled thousands of demonstrators who tried to storm the U.S. Embassy and swarmed the streets in defiance of a curfew, chanting the Koran and shouting, "Down with the shah!"

Sporadic shooting continued until after 2 a.m. today (5 p.m. EST) but later the downtown area of the capital appeared calmer.

There was no clear count of casualties at the end of one of the worst days of violence since the campaign to topple the shah began a year ago. Earlier Saturday, official reports said seven people were killed and 35 injured. But the opposition National Front spokesman said there were at least 67 fatalities and demonstrators claimed the toll was much higher.

Angry mobs beat a policeman to death on a Tehran street and troops beat up three reporters — two of them representatives of Newsweek and one a newsman for the London Daily Telegraph — when they left their hotel after curfew to see what was happening in the streets. They were released after a few hours.

The anti-shah protests, the second day of the worst rioting in weeks, broke out in the morning and swelled into a mass confrontation with troops after nightfall, when thousands of persons including women and children turned out to defy a martial law curfew.

Heavy machine-gun and small arms fire erupted across the capital.

Cries of "Allah Akhbar!" (God is Great) echoed through the streets, heard even over the heavy gunfire, as the protesters confronted the troops.

Witnesses said many women and children were among the throngs that marched in downtown Tehran and several of its suburbs.

Airline pilots went out on strike again to protest the military's ban on street demonstrations, which re-erupted Friday night only hours after the shah's archenemy exhorted his followers to "sacrifice your blood to protect Islam and overthrow the tyrant."

Prime Minister Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari appealed for calm after at least seven persons were killed in Friday's rioting, the worst in weeks.

Azhari said demonstrators defying a curfew attacked troops with stones and firearms and that the soldiers were forced to shoot into the crowds after teargas and warning shots failed to disperse them.

The official government death toll from Friday night's rioting was put at seven but demonstrators who marched through the streets Saturday morning chanted that "three thousand were killed last night and sixty-eight died this morning."

Clashes were also reported in other downtown areas, near Tehran University and in Dezashib near the Niavaran palace, the official residence of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Clashes between troops and demonstrators were also reported to have broken out Saturday in eight other Iranian towns and cities, including the major rug-weaving centers of Tabriz, Kerman and Shiraz. But no details or casualty figures were available.

Refugees Drown

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A boat packed with refugees from Vietnam capsized in rough seas Saturday after Malaysian police barred it from docking, leaving 142 drowned or missing, police said.

Another 148 refugees were rescued, authorities said.

The boat was about 200 yards from shore when it capsized in the South China Sea at Pantai Ru, some 195 miles northeast of Kuala Lumpur.

The boat left Vietnam on Nov. 26 and arrived at Pantai Ru on Friday evening. But police assisted by troops went to the beach and prevented the Vietnamese from landing.

So far 43 bodies have been recovered, and the search is continuing for 99 others missing.

It was the fourth refugee boat to capsize in rough seas in the past 10 days.

On Nov. 22, a refugee boat hit a sand bank and capsized in an estuary 180 miles northeast of Kuala Lumpur when police turned it away from the beach, leaving 105 dead and 84 missing.

Malaysia accepted the boat people liberally since the war ended in Vietnam in April 1975. But in November the influx increased to 500 daily, pushing the refugee population in Malaysian camps to over 45,000.

School Bd. Meets Monday

A special call meeting of the Board of Education of the Greenville City Schools will be held at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 4 in the auditorium of the Middle School.

One is consideration of a substitute teacher list.

The major agenda item is discussion on the racial balance in the elementary schools. The public is invited to attend.

Man Is Denied Bond

BENSON, N.C. (AP) — The man charged with assault in the shooting of a Benson policeman Thursday night was denied bond at an initial court appearance Friday.

N.C. Swain remained in Johnston County Jail Friday night after being charged with assault on a police officer and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Survivors Questioned

By JOSEPH GAMBARDELLO

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six more survivors of the mass suicide-murder in Guyana — including an eyewitness to the slaying of Rep. Leo Ryan — arrived in New York Saturday night and were questioned extensively by FBI and Secret Service agents.

The group included Edith Parks 64, who was at the Jonestown landing strip Nov. 18 when the California Democrat and four other people — including Mrs. Parks' daughter — were gunned down by members of the Peoples Temple cult.

The killings were followed by a mass suicide and murder at the jungle commune that took the lives of 911 men, women and children.

The other survivors, who arrived at Kennedy Airport at 6:15 p.m. EST, were Julius Evans and his wife, Sandra, both 30, and their children, Shirelle, 5, Sharla, 7, and Sonya, 11. They escaped the death rite because they were in Georgetown, Guyana's capital, at the time.

A team of 15 FBI and Secret Service agents interviewed the six survivors and an FBI spokesman said the questioning was productive. "We didn't think the interviews were going to last this long," he said.

The group was also examined by airport doctor Louis Abelson, who said members were "generally in good health."

"I didn't see any apprehension at all," he said, adding that the children "were quite happy about everything."

The FBI spokesman said the group did not want to talk to reporters. He said the six would spend the night in New York City and then return to their homes, courtesy of the federal government.

He said that so far, none of the returning survivors has been given special protection, but "if any of these people turned out to be key government witnesses, they would be subject to protection by U.S. marshals."

Most of the Peoples Temple members who returned Saturday were Californians, and the first group of seven survivors flown to the United States from Guyana Wednesday were from the Los Angeles and San Francisco areas.

Saturday's flight left 64 other cult members in Guyana. Two have been arrested in connection with Ryan's death. Between 26 and 37 of the remaining survivors were scheduled to fly to New York today.

Rhodesian Meeting Fruitless

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Rhodesian guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo Saturday held a fruitless meeting with American and British diplomats and said the future of Rhodesia could only be decided on the battlefield.

"The war has reached such a situation that there can only be a settlement by military means," Nkomo said after a two-hour meeting with British envoy Cledwyn Hughes and American Ambassador Stephen Low.

Hopkins Park Project Formally Dedicated

Mayor Percy Cox was on hand to cut the ribbon and open the new units, located on a 17.8 acre tract, for occupancy.

The Greenville Housing Authority, which built the new development, was represented by its chairman, James E. Sutton, who presided, and by commissioners Dr. Andrew A. Best and Woody Crumpler.

The new housing development, designated by the Housing Authority as Project N.C. 22-5, was referred to as the Southside project during construction but recently designated as Hopkins Park in honor of the late Nelson Hopkins of Greenville. Hopkins' sons, James, Arzrow and Charles were also on hand for the ceremonies.

Best commented that the dedication Friday marked a "significant milestone in the history of this great city of ours." He cited the "great contributions and the long list of efforts" made to provide housing for the people of Greenville.

The veteran commissioner, who recalled that he was involved in the struggle to secure the Kearney Park housing project, the Authority's first public housing venture, commended the Authority for choosing to honor Hopkins "who has done so much for the people."

Joe Laney, the Authority's executive director, conducted a tour of one of the new units and pointed out that Hopkins Park occupancy is already underway.

He said that project costs amounted to some $2,489,000, including building construction, landscaping, streets, sewer-water provisions, curb and gutter, and the utilities distribution system.

Laney added that 60 structures are involved in the Hopkins Park development, with 30 one-bedroom apartments, 30 two-bedroom units, 38 three-bedroom apartments, ten four-bedroom quarters and three five-bedroom units available for rent.

Contracts for the proposed housing development were signed last July and work on the tract began shortly thereafter. Participants in Friday's dedication activities noted the improvements in the site today as compared with the original swampy, poorly drained characteristics that the developers encountered.

The new project area has been landscaped, with some 260 trees, including sycamore, oak, maple, pear, myrtle, cherry and crabapple, and 1,907 shrubs.

Dr. Pott Was War Prisoner Of Japanese In China

DR. WALTER POTT . . . a retired Greenville physician, tells about his experiences as a Japanese prisoner-of-war in China in the early 1940's. (Photo by Patricia Moore).

By PATRICIA MOORE

The sound was unmistakable. Shanghai harbor was being bombed by the Japanese, just as they had bombed Pearl Harbor a few hours earlier. It was Dec. 7, 1941.

"We are caught like rats in a sinking ship," Walter Pott's apartment mate said desperately.

The man was right. Pott, like every other "foreign national" in Shanghai, was rounded up, his vital statistics recorded, and then ordered to wear a scarlet armband denoting his nationality. Thereafter, he wore a red band with the letter "A".

For the next 15 months, his movements were closely monitored by the Japanese, who suspected all Americans of being spies. He was allowed to continue working in a hospital as a surgeon, but under scrutiny.

Ironically, if it had not been for a chance remark from an acquaintance, Walter Pott would not have been in China that December. He would never have known fear when he heard the bombs nor later have endured the hardships of a concentration camp.

After he graduated from medical school at the University of Virginia and completed his military service in World War I, he began to look for a place to settle down and practice surgical medicine. He did not plan to return to China, where he was born and where his father was an Episcopal missionary.

Then he learned to his surprise that his father had obtained funds for his education from the church on the assumption that Pott would return to China as a medical missionary.

"There was only one thing for me to do," Pott says. He took his bride, Elizabeth Fisher, and returned to China in 1919, honoring his father's promise, even though he says his father would have found a way to repay the loan if he had chosen not to go.

So Pott was in China when World War II broke out. Later, when the Japanese finally completed building their concentration camps in Shanghai in 1943, Pott was sent to one.

From that time on, Pott's battlefield was a mental one. His attitude became his weapon, but both mind and body underwent changes. The most noticeable was the loss of 30 pounds in seven months.

Looking back on his experience, Dr. Pott calls it "the divine trial of how we would react to their forms of discipline. Were we the type to withstand what we went through, or would we give up at the start and show what weak characters we could be?"

Those who made the effort to overcome obstacles survived, he says.

War within the confines of the concentration camp came in many ways. The Japanese tried to make the prisoners feel inferior. "The white man had been in the superior role and now yellow man was taking over," Pott says.

Before he went into the camp, Pott was warned by friends to display courtesy to the Japanese no matter what the circumstances. He found it was good advice.

When informed that he was to become medical director of the concentration camp, he asked the commanding officer, "Does that include the Japanese staff?

"How would you feel about that?" the officer asked in reply.

"As a medical man, I cannot draw the line. I do not call them enemies professionally. My job is to look after the sick," he answered.

Pott used this principle to obtain needed medicine for diabetics and others in his care. When asking for special supplies, he reminded the commander that if the request were for a Japanese, it would be automatically be granted. And Pott affirmed to the commander that "I'm doing my duty as a doctor to save or prolong this person's life. If he does not get this medicine, he will die. That goes on your record, too."

Pott was not afraid in the camp, which eventually swelled to a population of 4,000. He held to his principle to serve the needs of his patients.

Personally, he found the enemy objectionable.

He didn't like having to sign an oath of allegiance to the Japanese and their emperor, as all prisoners were forced to do. Many found ways to compromise this requirement by signing wrong initials and realizing that being forced to sign under duress negated any show of loyalty.

In the meantime, the Chinese on the outside "tried to take all they could prior and during my confinement," he recalls. What his family didn't carry with them when they left before the bombing was gone forever.

Sitting in his modest home 37 years later with a Peking rug under his feet, the soft spoken physician recalled other indignities, such as the food.

"It was the most horrible food I've ever tried to eat. The rice was filthy; the fish was spoiled much of the time," he says. The vegetables were picked up from the floors of warehouses.

But the prisoners met this battle head-on, organizing into groups, one of which was rice cleaners. These people washed the food, laid it out on a table and removed the impurities from it. Another group was in charge of sorting out fish and throwing away the ones that were spoiled. Others trimmed contamination from green vegetables.

May Need Special Help

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Fort Bragg army chaplains, psychologists and counselors have been alerted that some of the troops who helped remove the bodies of mass suicide victims in Jonestown, Guyana last week may need special help.

Maj. Wehland G. Steenken of the 44th Medical Brigade said he expects some of the troops will suffer emotional scars. A 100-man team sent from Fort Bragg to help remove more than 900 bodies of People's Temple members returned to the base Sunday.

Steenken himself said he has problems forgetting the Jonestown experience. "I can't get my hands clean," he said.

Death Penalty Decreed For Tar Heel Woman

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (UPI) — A Bladen Superior Court judge has sentenced Velma Margie Barfield to die Feb. 9, 1979, for the arsenic poisoning of her fiance.

Judge Henry McKinnon's announcement followed the jury's verdict against Mrs. Barfield for first-degree murder in the death of Stewart Taylor, 56, and its subsequent recommendation that she get the death penalty rather than life imprisonment.

Mrs. Barfield's attorney said the conviction would be appealed.

Mrs. Barfield, 45, showed no emotion when the verit was read after an hour and 10 minutes of deliberation.

Taylor, a St. Pauls farmer, died in February in a Lumberton hospital. Mrs. Barfield was charged a few weeks later with poisoning him with arsenic.

During the trial, a confession signed by Mrs. Barfield was admitted as evidence although she said she did not remember signing it. Investigators in the case said Mrs. Barfield also had signed confessions regarding the poisonings of three other persons.

Two Accidents Listed

The brakes on Herman Frank's car failed Friday afternoon and his car jumped the curbing and broke two storefront windows out of Creative Carpets.

Franks, of 1106 Fairfax Ave., was trying to park at the time. No injuries. No damages to the car, as reported by Greenville police, but an estimated $1,200 in damages to the storefront.

City police officers investigated another accident Friday at 8:10 p.m. on Memorial Drive.

A car operated by Carolyn Jean Hardee of Grimesland crossed lanes and struck a vehicle being driven by Dennis Warren Tripp of 709 Hooker Road.

Damages were estimated at $250 to the Tripp car and $200 to the Hardee vehicle.

Status Of Students

Superintendent of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox has provided information on the status of elementary students currently moving from former addresses to the newly opened Hopkins Development, or Southside.

According to Cox, students moving into the project will for the present remain assigned to the schools which they currently are attending. Bus transportation to and from the subdivision will be provided.

Cox noted that at a later date in December a final decision will be made and necessary reassignments set up.

S. Greenville PAC

South Greenville School will hold its second Parent Advisory Council meeting on Tuesday, December 5, at 3:30 in the primary and intermediate resource rooms. The program will consist of children demonstrating programs they use.

Charges Violation by UNC-TV

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Durham citizen's group has charged that the University of North Carolina's public radio and television stations discriminate against minorities and should not have their licenses renewed.

The Coalition for Responsive Media claims that WUNC-FM radio and eight stations in the UNC television newtwork have violated federal requirements for providing equal employment opportunities. The group has filed a petition with the Federal Communications Commission to that effect.

Record Contributions Revealed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — N.C. State University officals reported Friday that contributions to the school reached a record $4.3 million this year, bringing total gifts to the school to $6.2 million.

Thirteen foundations, which raise money from businesses and individuals across the country, gathered funds exceeding last year's total by almost $1 million, according to Roy H. Park, chairman of the university's Development Council.

Hearing Set On Liquor Licenses

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Private club owners will have a chance next week to argue that requirements for mixed-drink licenses are unfair.

Eight club owners had hoped to get an injunction to stop all liquor-by-the-drink sales in Mecklenburg County until they could get a hearing on their liquor applications. But Superior Court Judge William Grist refused to grant the injunction, saying he would not consider it until he had heard from both the club owners and ABC officials.

Officials of state and local ABC boards will be subpoenaed to defend the restrictions in the hearing next Friday.

No Cause For Alarm

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Eastern North Carolina gasoline station dealers say there is no reason for customers to be alarmed by Shell Oil Co.'s announcement that it is cutting back its allocation to stations by 25 percent.

Shell dealers in that area said they were afraid customers would panic at the announcement and form long lines at stations like they did during the Arab oil embargo in 1973.

Some Shell dealers said they had begun cutting back operating hours and raising gasoline prices as a result of the allocation cutback.

Helms Needs More Money

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Republican Sen. Jesse Helms may have his Senate seat intact, but the war chest that helped him get it is in the red.

The Helms' campaign committee currently owes between $125,000 to $200,000 for the re-election campaign that helped the incumbent gather 54.5 percent of the vote in the Nov. 7 general election.

Campaign manager Tom Ellis said Friday the committee has sent out a post-election round of mass mailings in hopes of paying off the debts. "We're in debt and we need help," Ellis, a Raleigh lawyer, said in an interview.

Policeman Suspended, Mayor Resigned

SARATOGA, N.C. (AP) — The town's sole policeman was suspended Friday and the mayor resigned following the officer's confrontation with the town clerk.

The incident is the latest in a series involving Officer Greg Umbaugh and town officials. Two town council members have also resigned.

Umbaugh contends he was told not to write speeding tickets on a stretch of U.S. 264 that runs through Saratoga, a town of 300 in Wilson County.

To Lay Off 60 Tobacco Buyers

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. will lay off 60 tobacco buyers early next year and begin buying its leaf though an independent company.

Company officials deny that the move is another indication L&M is cutting back its tobacco operations and say it's part of a move to renew the growth of the cigarette company.

Only two of the 60 buyers live in Durham but the rest reside in tobacco-producing areas, he said.

395 Receive Over $40,000 Annually

By IRA ALLEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some of America's highest paid government officials — with scores of them making hefty salaries of $50,000 a year or more — aren't elected by the people, appointed by the president or selected by tests.

The well-heeled officials work for the U.S. Senate, which paid hundreds of staff members such as administrative aides, press officers and secretaries salaries of more than $40,000 annually in 1978.

The figures are in the 1,110-page, green-covered Report of the Secretary of the Senate, which came out last week with salary listings for the lowliest summer intern to the mightiest committee staff chief.

Only the other Green Book — Washington's version of the social register — affords as much interest, though it has only a fraction of the useful information in the secretary's report.

Senators earn $57,500 a year, but just below them are 64 aides pulling in $50,000 or more and another 331 who make more than $40,000. In comparison, cabinet officers get $66,000 and top civil servants $47,500.

The secretary's report said the Senate paid some 7,000 employees $51.3 million in the last six months of fiscal 1978. In addition, the the Senate spent $13.1 million on office expenses and travel, compiling a total bill of $82.9 million.

The House employs about 11,000 people and would spend more due to its larger membership. But in general, individual Senate salaries are higher.

The top paid staff people at $52,500 are Secretary of the Senate J. Stanley Kimmitt, Sergeant at Arms F. Nordy Hoffman and Legislative Counsel Harry Littell.

Right behind them is Secretary to the Minority William F. Hildenbrandt at $52,000. Nine other offiicals — including Kimmitt's assistant, the parlimentarian and the clerk who compiled the figures — earn $51,500.

Folowing them at $50,478 is George F. Murphey, head of the office of Classified National Security Information.

Although the law limits top pay for a senator's office aides to $49,941, the report lists 21 committee or subcommittee staff chiefs and two Republican and one Democratic policy staffers who earn between $50,000 and $52,000.

There are 26 top personal aides — most of them called administrative assistants — making the maximum, $49,491.

Others earning above $40,000 include four persons in the legislative councils, 41 who work for Kimmett or Hoffman, 161 on committee staff and 125 on senators' personal staffs.

The size of a senator's staff and the salary levels are up to the the lawmaker himself, within limits based on the state's population.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.S.C., had 156 persons on his sixmonth payroll at a cost of $282,701 while retiring Sen. William Scott, R-Va. — always a low spender — got by with 19 persons for $140,347, less than half his alotment.

California's two senators were entitled to spend $510,583 for the six months — plus up to $149,000 extra for certain committee specialists.

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Cal., paid 111 persons $555,148 in the period, while Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Cal., paid 71 persons $516,159, plus $59,607 to five others given to him because he is assistant Democratic leader.

Pay Raise Investigation Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's chief inflation fighter has ordered an investigation of the 28 to 60 percent raises Ohio and Illinois legislators and local Chicago officials just voted for themselves.

But a Council for Wage and Price Stability official said there is virtually no way for the federal government to enforce its 7 percent wage increase guideline when a public body defies it.

"Mr. (Alfred) Kahn told the council on Thursday to look into the Illinois legislative increase," the official said Saturday.

"Yesterday he broadened that to include Ohio and the Chicago boards," he said.

Changes Mind

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina Central University Law School Dean Harry E. Groves has changed his mind about resigning at the end of the school year, saying the problems that led him to announce his resignation have been "satisfactorily resolved."

Groves announced Friday he had changed his mind about leaving and withdrew his resignation.

To Take Refugees

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A United Nations official says the United States, Germany and Britain have agreed to take in 158 Vietnamese refugees living in a crowded camp in a Manila suburb.

Warner Blatter, Philippines representative for the U.N. refugee commission, said the refugee population at the camp will drop below 2,000 hen the 158 Vietnamese leave.

PLO Rejects Peace Talks

Palestinian leaders on the West Bank of Jordan again have rejected a bid to join the Washington peace talks and told President Carter's special envoy they cannot join any negotiations without permission of the PLO, Arab sources said Saturday.

The speaker of Egypt's parliament, Soufy Abu Taleb, said Egypt will not sign a peace treaty with Israel unless a timetable for resolving the Palestinian problem is attached to it.

Taleb said Egypt was confident the Palestinians would back the Camp David peace framework if Israel agreed to the timetable idea.

Touchmatic II™
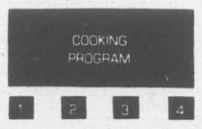
MICROWAVE OVEN

Not only cooks by time, it also cooks to temperature!

TEMP CONTROL
Amana's Automatic Temperature Control System cooks meats and many other foods to the serving temperature you select with extreme accuracy. So a medium rare setting will always turn out a medium rare roast!

HOLD
You can even program the oven to "hold" your serving temperature without shutting off. This remarkable feature gently cycles power on and off — cooking meats more moist and tender than ever before possible in a microwave oven. Also great for holding meats, casseroles, soups and many other foods at perfect serving temperature — for even the latest of late arrivals.

Remembers up to 4 cooking programs.



Allows you to do things like 1. defrost 2. hold while the food temperature equalizes 3. cook slowly to tenderize food 4. then finish cooking at a higher speed. All with one set of instructions. You can even program the Touchmatic II to defrost or cook by time, then automatically switch to temperature controlled cooking.

10 Cookmatic™ Power Levels for slow cooking, fast cooking and everything in between.

Change cooking speeds instantly without stopping the oven. Or program the oven at the start to change speeds as it cooks — automatically!

Proven Safety. Amana is the only microwave oven manufacturer to earn a U.S. Government exemption from displaying a safety warning label on the door!

A Regional Effort Indicated

Regularly scheduled air service for Eastern North Carolina may be near, or even in, a real crisis situation.

Recently Piedmont Airlines announced that it would be going to all-jet service. Piedmont is the prime passenger airline serving Eastern North Carolina. It had served a number of smaller airports with prop planes, prop jets and eventually jets for a number of years.

It was obvious though that will all jet service stops would eventually be limited to perhaps one airport in Eastern North Carolina.

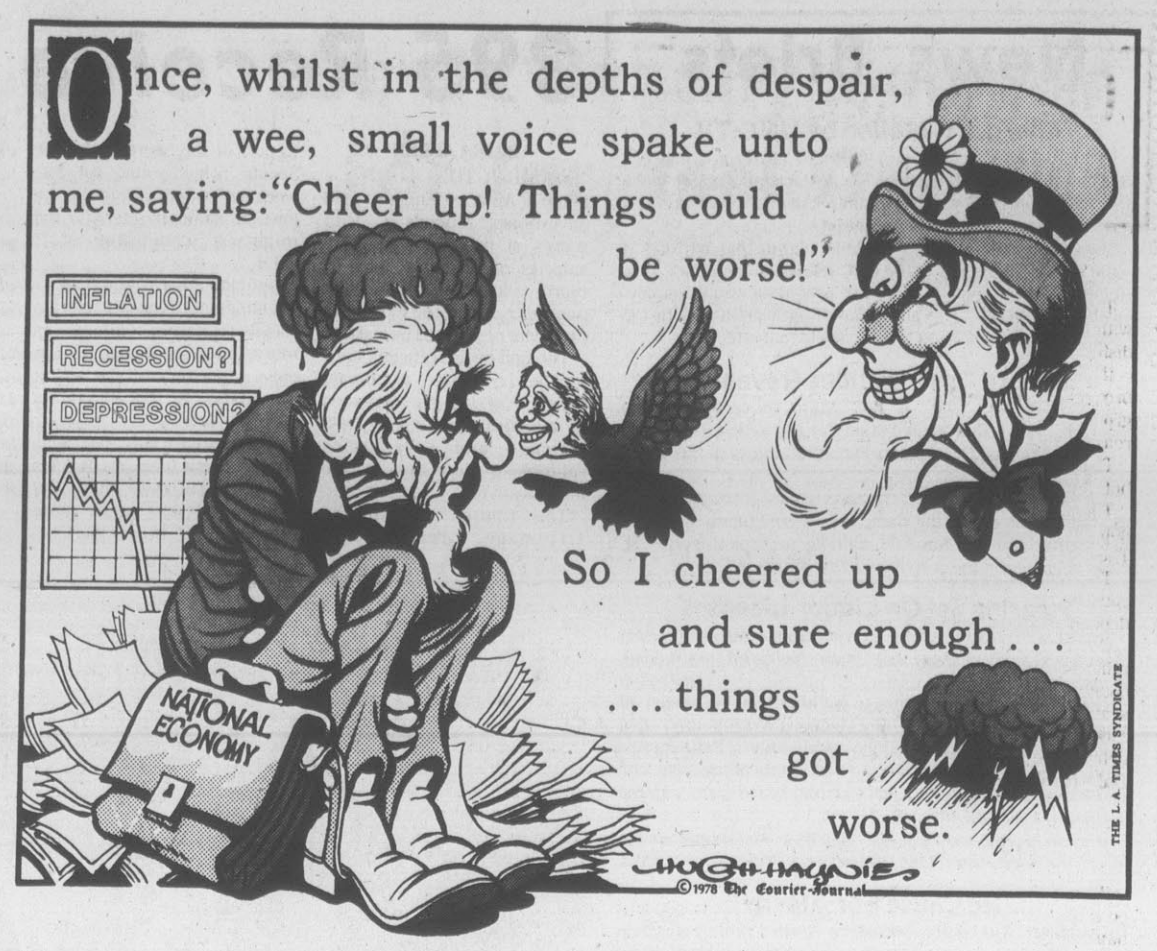
Recently Piedmont officials have been saying that the logical service to Eastern North Carolina might be with small commuter planes. There had been talk that Rocky Mount-Wilson Airport was not generating enough traffic to retain service. However, the Piedmont officials did not exclude the more heavily used Stallings Field at Kinston from being served by commuter planes. Piedmont says that no withdrawal of jet service is planned in the "immediate future'." The trial balloon is up, nevertheless.

Over a decade ago, Pitt County Attorney W. W. Speight was leading the fight for a regional airport to serve all the east. The fight went all the way to the Civil Aeronautics Board which decided against the concept in a split vote. What a shame that was for Eastern North Carolina.

Even now, however, it is possible for our Eastern counties to begin working together in an effort to retain regularly scheduled jet service.

The counties in the area could right now name a commission to study the situation and plan a course of action if it appears that jet service will be withdrawn from Eastern North Carolina.

We can all sit around and do nothing until one day we find it is too late. There could be no jet service closer than Raleigh-Durham. Or we can work as a region on a common problem to which there is a clear solution.



Alternating Pessimism And Optimism

Government indicators cause alternating pessimism and optimism among Washington officials. At times there are conflicting emotions.

After much bad news, the administration took heart last week from an index of leading economic indicators which showed economic growth in the months ahead.

The indicators are helpful, no doubt, but perhaps we need as much as anything a return to sheer faith in the economic power of this nation. Perhaps we need to reassure ourselves that we are an energetic and productive people, with ample natural resources to maintain a decent standard of living for everyone.

That, after all, is what built our nation long before anybody ever conceived of an economic index . . . and all any index can do is reflect our own efforts.

High In Travel Inquiries

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — In just one month, North Carolina tourism promoters using a new campaign, got more response than during the entire year in fiscal 1975-76.

Right now is when North Carolina advertising goes into high gear as the campaign hits the major New York market and the principal travel publications around the nation.

All advertising money is being pumped into the print campaign, with no radio or television promotion. Broadcast promotion, say the state experts, simply fails to produce inquiries which mean sufficient interest on the part of the individual who writes to justify sending an expensive package of materials.

January, 1978, brought in more inquiries than the entire 12 months of 1975-76.

As a result, North Carolina has become the leading tourism state in the Southeast, surpassed only by Florida. Summertime business is near capacity, leading travel experts to ponder ways to put the boost to winter tourism; and the promoters have high hopes for the 1979 campaign theme centered around North Carolina: Down Home in High Style.

An Uproar

A recent item in this space on the high cost of dying in North Carolina — details on the inheritance tax — hit some sensitive nerves.

Several members of the General Assembly reported a flood of telephone calls and comments resulting from the report that this state hits hard with inheritance taxes despite inflationary factors which have caused real estate, savings accounts and insurance policies to soar in dollar value.

"We are forced to come to grips with this .... it's a real problem for a lot of our people," said Rep. Jack Hunt, DCleveland.

BILL NOBLITT

A reader in Rocky Mount sums up the public attitude: " Now, it seems, something may be done about the archaic law that wipes out older people, those with farms or other holdings, to help pay off the excessive tax that the 50-year-old inheritance law allows....there is going to be an uproar if they don't."

In Brief

Unemployment in North Carolina has dropped "dramatically" to well below four percent, say sources with the Employment Security Commission, resulting in one of the nation's lowest unemployment insurance tax rates.....A committee of the General Assembly has determined that the intangibles tax ought not be repealed at this time. It produces $38 million for local governments, which would have to be replaced. Consumer groups counter argument that it it is double taxation and oppressive, with the conclusion that it is, instead, "fair and progressive because it is the only property tax paid by persons who have put their wealth into stocks and bonds rather than real estate.."

If nothing else, 1979 will find Gov. Jim Hunt and his cabinet having a good time. Commerce Secretary Lauch Faircloth, one of eastern North Carolina's most gifted story-tellers, will be joined by Herb Hyde, the new chief of crime control, who is the best mountain teller of tales.

Sunday Morning Notes

A controversy has been underway for some time over what to do with a huge bulk container crane which stood little used at Morehead.

The final decision was made at a meeting of the State Ports Authority here in Greenville some days back. The crane is to be moved to the state port at Wilmington.

County Commissioner Charles Gaskins had a suggestion at a luncheon held for the governor and the commission members that day.

Gaskins reminded them that Pitt County has a port "at the conflux of Hardee's Creek and the Tar River, and a port commission and they are solvent."

Gaskins said he had hoped the NCSPA, rather than move the Morehead City equipment to Wilmington, would "move the crane to Greenville, N. C." and possibly "use it as a memorial to the last Republican governor."

The final comment was spurred by the fact that good Democrats never fail to remind the citizens the crane was placed at Morehead during Republican governor Jim Holshouser's administration.

A pretty girl walked out the front door of a local business establishment last Wednesday.

She halted and said, "Yuk." With good reason. It was pouring down outside.

"Crummy weather," someone commented.

"Yes," she laughed. "When I came to work this morning it was clear."

So it was.

Was it only a few weeks back that we were complaining about lack of rain?

There was concern about the harvesting of peanuts because of the extremely dry fields.

Now the approach of weekend seems to assure rain, although as this is written, we don't have any advance knowledge about the present weekend.

It led one ski enthusiast to comment, "Boy, if only all this was snow."

Mike McGee is out at Duke and Sonny Randle is in at Marshall.

It prompted a "Raleigh Times" sports writer to speculate on changes which might see coaches moving at N.C. State, LSU, Arkansas, Florida, Clemson and East Carolina among others.

One of the end results could be McGee back at ECU, and the writer cautioned, "Don't laugh." We won't. In the world of big-time football anything can happen.

Basics Include Euclid

By JOHN W. FRECE

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Modern educators are fond of talking about getting back to the basics. Students at historic St. John's College are already there.

The 350 students who attend classes at St. John's have, since 1937, received basic education with a capital "B".

They do not read what has been written about the great thinkers of civilization — they tackle what the great thinkers have written. They read Euclid to understand math, Newton to grasp physics, Aquinas to comprehend religion.

A St. John's student is taught not to look at a poll to see how President Carter is doing, but to analyze what Carter himself has said or done, said Richard D. Weigle, the school's president for the last 30 years.

St. Johnnies, as the students are called, follow the same demanding curriculum based on more than 100 required "Great Books." Authors include Homer, Plato and Copernicus; Chaucer, Beethoven and Adam Smith; Twain, Shakespeare and Freud.

Even transfer students enter as freshmen at St. John's, where everyone follows the chronologically structured schedule focusing on ancient Greeks the first year, the Roman, medieval and Renaissance periods the second year, the 17th and 18th centuries the third year, and the 19th and 20th century the last year.

"It's the books that function as the teachers," says tutor Thomas J. Slakey. "That scheme works if you have good books."

St. John's tutors — they are called tutors to avoid the competitive titles distinguishing professors at most colleges — are learners as well as teachers, often sitting in on courses outside their primary discipline that they must teach in a coming semester.

"There is nothing forbidden here about a teacher saying, 'I

Re-Evaluation Due

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

Just when we were beginning to think that about half of all high school graduates were incompetent and that college and university enrollments were on a downward swing, along come some figures released by the National Center for Education Statistics that call for another re-evaluation. During the year 1966-67 there were approximately 2,679,000 high school graduates in this country. Twelve years later (1978-79) the number has increased to 3,144,000. There's no sign of a population decline there, and even in 1986-87 there will still be more high school graduates than there were in 1966-67. A little more research and the figures become more realistic. In 1966-67 the population of the United States was around 190 million, and by 1986-87 it will be around 230 million. High school student population will show only a slight increase because folks are getting married later in life, and both husband and wife are breadwinners. There is not as much concern about having a family.

At the college-university level, over the same 20 years, enrollments will almost double from 6,390,000 in 1966-67 to 12,903,000 in 1986-87. One of the most startling figures in the report is that of the 11,782,000 now enrolled in institutions of higher learning, only about 1,446,500 will graduate. Bachelor's degrees will be awarded to 996,000 against an enrollment of 7,315,000. Percentage wise, graduates at the professional, master's and doctor's level are about the same.

Various high school population projections in recent years have led us to believe that there would be a much smaller percentage of high school graduates starting about 1980. It now seems safe to assume that s the country continues to grow at a slower pace there will still be no great decrease in high school and college study. Competency tests or not, there are plenty of high school graduates around who want a college education. To slow down the process at this time would be a very serious mistake.

THE INSIDE REPORT

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

PEKING — Teng Hsiao-ping, Communist China's dominant figure today, heartily endorses free speech in wall posters now covering Peking even while disagreeing with some of their comments and considers it a return to the brief "let a hundred flowers bloom" campaign two decades ago.

Vice Premier Teng confirmed to us in an exclusive interview that the Communist Central Committee had been meeting here but denied a reported purge of radical members. While also denying a de-Maoization campaign, he admitted the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung made a few mistakes. And Teng brushed off reports of a power struggle by him against his nominal superior, party chairman and Premier Hua Kuo-feng; he could have had the premiership last year if he wanted, Teng said.

On U.S. relations, Teng declared Taiwan could maintain its own non-communist economic and social system under unification with the mainland — the furthest he has gone to ease a U.S. switch in diplomatic relations from Taiwan to Peking. This normalization of relations, said Teng, would do more for U.S. security than any number of SALT treaties with Moscow.

These were highlights of an interview lasting nearly two hours at a cavernous sitting room in the Great Hall of the People. The 73-year-old Teng, less than 5-foot-4, has been a phoenix rising from three purgings as a "capitalist roader." He answered questions with enthusiasm and wit, asking not to be quoted directly but putting nothing off the record.

Apart from his slightly more liberal construction of a special arrangement for Taiwan, Teng's foreign policy comments stressed the familiar admonition for Washington to beware of the polar bear. It was his public discussion of internal Chinese affairs, unimaginable for his predecessors, that broke new ground.

In his first press interview since Peking's current wall poster campaign exploded Nov. 22, he volunteered his approval without being asked. There is nothing to fear from this, he said: if the masses have comments, let them speak out. Answering a question, he said this was a return to Mao's let-a-hundred-flowers-bloom

Strength For Today

A PERSONAL GOD

In all generations people ask the question, "Does God exist?" The Bible never raises this question, from the first page to the last. It assumes that God exists, and then goes on to examine vastly more important matters.

Among these are the characteristics of a personal God. Does God care? Does God have power, and if so, how much? Religion is not based merely on a belief in a higher power. Religion springs from the conviction that this higher power has a heart and furthermore, that there is no power in the universe which can successfully oppose the power of the Most High.

We are not necessarily religious merely because we believe in the existence of this higher power. We have no religion until we believe that this higher power cares for us as a father cares for his children, and that it is ready, willing, and able to enter into our lives and transform them.

Success In World Of Business

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Women who want to make it fast in the business world are being fed false notions about how the modern corporation works, says the man who pioneered managerial mobility studies.

The rules, routes, and skills involved in success are the very same for women as they are for men, according to Professor Eugene Jennings, who has studied mobility and the corporation for more than 30 years.

More recently he has been studying the careers of a dozen fast-rising women. "Their formula for success is the very same," said Jennings, a graduate professor of management at Michigan State University.

According to the Jennings formula, corporate success comes fastest to the person who becomes a crucial subordinate to an already mobile superior, complementing or supplementing the superior's skills.

Now he's concerned by what he sees developing: a corps of mentors, some self-appointed, who claim to be able to teach women how to do it. Their notions of corporate life, says Jennings, are often unrealistic.

By becoming a crucial subordinate to a mobile superior, he explains, a man or woman is carried along by mobility itself. Pity the subordinate, however, if the superior is a shelfsitter; the subordinate will be too.

Through the mobile superior the subordinate will be provided with visibility and exposure — visibility to see the all-important "sponsor," and exposure of his or her talents to that sponsor.

Sponsor? This person can really boost your career, a career that already has benefited from being a crucial subordinate to a talented, promotable superior who provided the visibility and exposure.

Anyone who's going anywhere in a big corporation is likely to have someone sponsoring him. Sponsorship, according to Jennings' analysis of corporate life, comes in four degrees:

There's the evaluator, a person who stands strongly with the higher ups so that his or her opinion regarding the subordinate is weighed heavily. Still, the evaluator is the weakest degree of sponsorship.

More potent is the nominator, possessor of power to actually suggest a name for promotion. Even more powerful is the next degree of sponsorship, to whom Jennings assigns the actual title of sponsor.

The sponsor, he relates, is so highly regarded upstairs that they dare not antagonize him or her by rejecting a nomination. The sponsor has a strong record, is a prized executive, a person with clout.

The fourth level of sponsorship is the promoter, the one with official corporate authority — the title or office — to promote.

That's the way it is, says Jennings, no matter what the mentors in their lectures, books or personal interviews are telling the women.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Maybe The Step Is Justified

The idea emerging in High Point to form another county, with High Point as its seat of government, is not at all outlandish.

If the benefits and burdens of local government would be brought closer to the people encompassed by it (and an interim group can be formed to handle the logistics) there is good reason to ask the legislature to do it.

The proposed county would be only 100 square miles in size, but would become the state's 13th largest in population.

There is certainly no great legal hurdle. Counties are nothing more or less than political subdivision of the state. They are created by majority vote of the legislature.

This brings up another point. North Carolina also has some counties that may well have outlived their usefulness as independent subdivisions.

Currituck, on the coast next to Virginia, is one that comes to mind because its sparse population is so scattered that the county doesn't even have one incorporated town. The county seat is literally Currituck Courthouse.

Of course, the wishes of a majority of the people should determine this, too. But it is not a radical idea. — The Hickory Daily Record

No Safety In Numbers

When rural roads had names, instead of numbers, as decided a few years back by state highway officials, people didn't have much trouble finding their way around. But it's no longer that easy. For most people, designations such as State Road No. 1328 mean absolutely nothing at all.

That's why we are glad to see people in Orange County— up around Hillsborough — trying to do something about it. Sponsored by the sheriff's department and the emergency medical council, petitions are being circulated in support of naming and erecting signs on all county roads.

Proponents say such a move could help fire departments, law enforcement agencies, doctors and rescue squads in emergency situations; and that schools also could benefit because bus routes could be planned better.

They are hoping to enlist the aid of civic groups and others in promoting the plan, which would have to be approved by the county commissioners, but would benefit everybody.

They say the plan would take about three or four years to complete; but they think it would be well worth this effort.

We — and we suspect other frequently harassed, perplexed and lost automobile drivers — agree with them heartily.
— The Durham Sun

Bringing Up The Rear

Soul City, a "new town" in Warren County backed by the federal government, lags far behind other towns in the same program, according to federal statistics.

Soul City had a population of 145, had 22 occupied houses and 243 jobs as of July 31, the lowest of the six towns still getting Department of Housing and Urban Development help.

Floyd McKissick, a former Durham attorney and Soul City's founder, and other town officials still hope to attract at least one major industry or a combination of smaller ones to make the town work.

But despite its small size, HUD officials still consider Soul City a bright spot in the new towns program, which has lost $149 million in an assortment of unsuccessful ventures.

Soul City and five otherss are the only new towns that will continue to get federal help.

The fastest growing of the six is The Woodlands near Houston, Tex., which had a population of 4,692. Other communities range in population from 192 to 3,998.

Soul City started about four and a half years ago. It will be the site of the 500-acre Warren Industrial Park, which officials hope will draw new development. — The Concord Tribune campaign of 1957, which ended with repression of dissent.

Teng noted to us Mao's restrictions (described by an interpreter as separating noxious weeds from fragrant flowers). But significantly, Teng did not call for suppression of those posters which he said were not so good. He disagreed with a huge poster near Mao's mausoleum calling Mao 70 percent right, 30 percent wrong. While contending 70 percent is too low, Teng did not prohibit anti-Mao sentiments on posters.

He did specifically deny any de-Maoization campaign, praising the late chairman and quoting widely from his "Thoughts." He stressed he never would mimic Khrushchev's role in downgrading Stalin. Nevertheless, Teng conceded Mao had made some mistakes — an unthinkable statement in China a year ago and a little shocking even today. In short, if Mao is more than 70 percent, he is less than 100 percent.

While comments by the masses on wall posters are basically correct, Teng said they may not know the whole story and therefore are not necessarily accurate. This, he implied, was the case of posters calling for purging several Central Committee members, including former Peking Mayor Wu Te.

Teng confirmed the Central Committee was in session and had criticized some members, but was mainly concerned with the national modernization program. He said nobody was being purged. Wu Te had made mistakes, said Teng, but now agreed to policy. Wall posters have denounced Wu Te's role in suppressing the April 5, 1976, demonstrations in Peking's Tien An Men Square, which led to the third and final purging of Teng. So, apparently incorrectly, the posters were attributed to Teng's influence.

Reacting with amusement, Teng called absolutely groundless reports of a struggle between him and Chairman Hua. This, on the long interview's final question, was the first time the chairman's name was mentioned. Teng disclosed he could have had the premiership when the radical Gang of Four was toppled in China's latest political convulsion last year but preferred a younger man, the 57-year-old Hua. Anyway, Teng added, even Marx and Engels had their differences.

Teng acted like a man who needs nobody's approval to express opinions. But he also emphasized he wanted no more of the political turmoil that has plagued China's 29-year-old communist regime. His stress was stability, not further purges or power grabs.

This tiny, feisty man, who became a communist with Chou Enlai in France half a century ago, is at his advanced age clearly in a hurry. His drive for a rational economic and political system and quest for an American alliance against Moscow represent the pulse of China today. These efforts, plus Teng's comments to us about them, will be explored in future columns from here.

Echoes Of Old Fluoridation Fight Heard Again

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON—Judge John Flaherty handed down a stunning opinion the other day in the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, Pa. A friend in Pittsburgh was kind enough to send a text along, and the text left Old Dad, meaning me, practically in tears for the good old days.

For the opinion dealt with fluoridation of a public water supply. Judge Flaherty ordered it stopped. He issued a temporary injunction against the Borough of West View, prohibiting the addition of fluoride to its water supply on the grounds that fluoride may eventually cause cancer.

Hallelujah! Sis-boom-bah! Fifteen years ago, when the battle over fluoridation was at its peak, Old Dad was in the first wave of troops. Those were the days when the juice was flowing. "When dentists, doctors and practitioners of public health undertake by law to impose their notions of good dental care upon the whole of a community, these men are scoundrels." That is what Old Dad was writing then. "They ought all to be hanged as enemies of a free society, the P-TA mommas first of all."

Yahooooo! The battle went on for three or four years at fever pitch, but in the end those of us who believe in individual freedom and personal responsibility went down in defeat. The do-gooder forces of socialized medicine prevailed. Willy-nilly, like it or not, fluoridation became an accepted form of dental treatment just about everywhere. Libertarians turned to other bugles, other drums, other fields of battle.

With Judge Flaherty's opinion, we may be tempted to dig out the faded gonfalons and sharpen our lances again. The judge called this one exactly right. Fluoride, he said, does not purify a public water supply. It is an additive that is thought to be "good" for the public: It significantly reduces dental caries. Thus the public benefits, and the people "receive a benefit whether they want it or not."

That proposition left Judge Flaherty cool. "If government has the power to force that which is 'good' upon us, and fluoride is added for this reason, where does it stop?" It is the same question Old Dad was asking in 1963.

Judge Flaherty turned to evidence suggesting that fluoride may not be so good after all. The plaintiffs had produced expert testimony, prepared by two qualified research scientists, comparing deaths from cancer in 20 American cities between 1950 and 1968. Ten of the cities had fluoridated water, ten did not. "The study concluded that there was a significant increase in cancer mortality in the fluoridated cities."

The defendant Borough of West View challenged this evidence with experts of their own, but Judge Flaherty was "compellingly convinced" that the plaintiffs had raised at least a reasonable doubt. In recent years, he noted, many lawsuits had been brought against textile and chemical manufacturers by cancer victims alleging they had been afflicted 20 or 30 years earlier. The residual effects of smoking can cause lung cancer long after a smoker quits.

"But this case does not involve a government decision on labeling cigarettes. No one has to smoke a cigarette. It is a matter of individual choice. Likewise, it is a matter of choice when a person eats bacon treated with possibly carcinogenic nitrites, or consumes products containing saccharin or cyclamates. But there is no choice when the water that comes out of one's faucet, which he uses to drink, cook with, brush his teeth with and bathe in, contains a possible carcinogen."

And this, too, was what Old Dad was saying at the top of his lungs. The fluoridation of a public water supply violates every principle of a free society. The practice is an abuse of power by the state.

Judge Flaherty's order was a temporary injunction, and, alas, the probabilities are that it will get more temporary all the time. The borough appealed last Monday to the Commonwealth Court in Harrisburg, and by this time the order may have been stayed or reversed. But if the Flaherty opinion vanishes like the first snow of winter, it may be remembered as something lovely while it lasted. The judge struck a blow for liberty. Not enough judges do.

The Onliest One Who Would Hear Him Out

BEAUFORT COUNTY, N.C. — The sun was getting low, but I wanted to do one more interview before going home. I was in an isolated section of Beaufort County, doing a labor survey. My instructions were that I must not overlook any house, and that I must investigate every path that might lead to a house, so I turned right and drove down a narrow road through the woods. It became impassable, but in the clearing ahead, I saw a one-room, delapidated shack. I left my car and walked to it.

A man sat in front of the house. I asked permission to interview him, and he agreed, although reluctantly. He answered my questions rather oddly, I thought, and I glanced around uneasily. The sun was almost down, and the shadows were deepening in the woods around us. The unpainted house, gray against the green of the trees, was a wretched affair with only one room. Big nails driven into the walls held an assortment of items — a washtub, a bush axe, a lantern, a can of kerosene, a battered straw hat. The exterior siding was rotting, falling away. The yard was littered with bicycles in various stages of disrepair.

I hurried through the rest of the questions in my survey:

"What is your occupation?"

"I fix bicycles."

"How long have you lived here?"

"Three weeks."

"And where did you live before that?"

The old man peered up at me in the gathering dusk, and his eyes hardened:

"State Prison in Raleigh," he said softly. "Thirty-nine year, 'leven months, and 29 days." I stared at him, and he took my horrified silence for compassion, for suddenly the words came pouring out. He was telling me about the long months of misery and frustration, the danger, the boredom, and most of all the loneliness — about the months that wore into four decades.

"Nobody come to see me," he said. "Nobody come to see me that whole 40 year. Nobody writ me neither, but I reckon that don't matter. I cain't read none nohow." He paused, thoughtfully. "Sure woulda been nice to git a letter, though."

He stood up and I was suddenly paralyzed, powerless to run. But he only took the lantern from a nail in the wall of the shack and lit it. Then he grinned at me, and in the dim light of the lantern, the black stumps of his teeth showed. He hung the lantern back on the nail and sat down again. "Now, don't you go thinking I wasn't guilty." He chuckled. "I was guiltier'n hell." And he told me the grisly details.

"It wuz my wife," he said, "and I done it in that house right there. Caught her... well, doing somp'n she hadn't oughta done." His eyes narrowed to slits and he clenched his fists as the old anger stirred. "She needed killing and I'm glad I done it." I shivered at the savagery in his face and in his voice. "I done it in that house." My scalp tingled at the words, but suddenly I could understand how 40 years in prison had not broken this man in spirit or in body, and how he had been able to survive.

Like the ancient mariner, I was held in the grip of his powerful words, afraid to run and afraid to stay. He looked away finally, and I turned and fled, but I forced myself to slow to a walk and actually started whistling, but it was a thin, quavering sound. "If I can just make it to the car — please, God, let me make it to the car." Then I heard his step behind me, and my terror was complete.

It was dark now, and branches whipped my face. Ahead I saw the dim outline of the car, and he was a silent shadow behind me. I quickened my pace, but when I reached the car he was there beside me and he opened the door. "Ma'am," he said, "I know I've skeered you half to death. Fact is, you're the onliest one all these years would listen and let me talk it all out, and I thanks you."

I could not say a word, and my headlights caught and held his forlorn figure as I backed down the path and headed for home.

don't know,'" said Weigle. "That doesn't call into question a tutor's competence."

Said Slakey: "The tutor often does not understand something and the student will, and he'll explain it to the other students and the tutor." They (students) are responsible for what's going on."

Junior Paul Thomson said he transferred to St. John's from a Canadian college "where professors hid behind their lectures" and found that at St. John's, "you know you are much more responsible for your own education."

What everyone does most at St. John's is read and talk, but faculty and students alike are sensitive to criticism that courses are simply "bull sessions."

Grades are kept (mostly for graduate school purposes), but it is considered bad form for students to ask about them. Students aren't allowed to cut classes and rarely do. Loud stereos are about the extent of campus disorder and it is simply assumed everyone does their homework.

It is a school that boasts of its National Merit Award winners and above average scholastic test scores, but nevertheless remains a place that is selected rather than selective.

"If you're not happy here, you'll leave on your own," said Dean Edward G. Sparrow.

Pop quizzes are not unheard of, but final exams are. Students find out how they are doing in "don rags" — face-toface meetings with five tutors who discuss aloud the student's progress.

Students write a major essay each year and graduate only after passing an oral exam on their senior essay, a formal ritual complete with black academic cap and gown.

Pangs Of Withdrawal And Price Of Relaxing

Like most American families, the television used to be the major appliance in our home. Naturally, we were discriminating. We only watched from six to eleven p.m. I refused to watch sports and "The Incredible Hulk". Phillip refused to watch reruns of "The Gong Show".

Still, we worried about the effect our TV viewing was having on our lives, and when Phillip started back to school and needed the evenings to study, we turned it off for good.

Or so we thought. The first few weeks were easy. Although I had an occasional withdrawal pang when I thought about "Barney Miller" I actually didn't miss the tube too much.

But then I experienced a potentially debilitating psychological phenomenon & TV deprivation. I began to crave the pure excitement of watching TV, no matter what was on. I first noticed it when we visited friends who had unwittingly left their set on. The minute Phillip and I sat down in front of it, we lapsed into a catatonic state that was dispelled only by the jingling of carkeys and the passing of coats in front of our eyes.

Soon after, I began to suffer from a strange itching sensation in my fingertips whenever I dusted the "on-off" switch, a ritual I was performing more and more frequently. Finally I could stand it no longer. I sat through four murders, 15 infidelities, and a kidnapping night I got engrossed in "Dr. Terror's House of Horrors" and sat through 15 minutes of test pattern before I managed to tear myself away.

Several days passed before I succumbed again.

"Come on and watch with me," I entreated Phillip. "It's almost suppertime, and you really don't have time to do anything else."

"No way. I'm going into the next room to read. If I sit down, I won't get up again till midnight."

So I put supper on the stove and sat down to watch by myself. It wasn't two minutes before I was wiping tears of laughter from my eyes. "These guys are so witty," I called to Phillip. "You really ought to come in and listen."

"No thanks," he said.

I got up to turn the rice to "low", then hurried back to my seat. "Such feeling. Such intensity," I gushed. "And they're so sexy. These guys really know how to capture their audience."

Five minutes later an acrid odor began to permeate the room. "I don't know what that is," Phillip called, "but I'm not eating it."

I rushed to the stove and discovered that in my haste to get back to my program I had pushed the wrong button. I wasn't cooking rice, I was cooking hamburger. Unfortunately, it was still in the styrofoam package.

"Oh, no," I wailed. "Here I've got to clean this up, and they're just getting to the exciting part. Please, honey, will you go in and take notes?"

"Oh, all right. What are you watching?"

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — In the first nationwide survey of rankand-file Republicans following the off-year elections, Gerald Ford emerges with a 48-42 percent lead over Ronald Reagan in a "showdown" test of strength between the two.

Traditionally, attention turns to the race for the presidential nomination after the mid-term elections when strategists in both parties have had a chance to examine the returns and see which way the political winds are blowing.

Leaders of the Republican party were encouraged by the gains made in the November elections in which the GOP added to their list of governors and state legislators. And at a meeting of GOP governors this last week, sentiment in favor of moderates was reported to prevail over those who wish to follow more conservative policies.

This matches the sentiment expressed by Republicans across the nation in the latest survey. Ford's 48-42 percent lead closely parallels results recorded in a pre-election survey and makes possible an examination of each man's strengths and weaknesses within the rank and file.

When the results of the last two surveys are combined and then analyzed by important groups within the Republican party, the results reveal these significant differences:

* Regionally, Ford leads Reagan in the Midwest, the area where many Republican gains were made in the election. Ford also leads in the East while Southern and Western Republicans split their vote:

* Ford commands greater strength among college-educated Republicans than does Reagan. Among those whose education ended at the high school or grade school level the results are a standoff;

* Young Republicans — those less than 30 years of age -prefer the former president, while among those 30 years and older, the vote is evenly divided;

* Ford holds a clear lead over Reagan among men, whereas the vote of women is more closely divided.

Here is the question asked and the results:

"Suppose the choice for president in the Republican convention in 1980 narrows down to Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. Which one would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

Ford vs. Reagan
(Based on Republicans)

	Ford	Reagan	Undecided
NATIONWIDE	48%	42%	10%
Men	51	42	7
Women	46	43	11
College	59	36	5
High school	44	48	8
Grade school	38	38	24
Less than 30 years	53	37	10
30-49 years	50	46	4
50 and older	44	43	13
East	48	41	11
Midwest	51	39	10
South	46	46	8
West	45	47	8

The results reported today are based on personal interviews with 669 Republicans, 18 years of age and older. Interviews were conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the periods June 16-19 and Nov. 10-13.

Quality Gem Stones Are Scarce, Expensive

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Rubies, intense and bold. Emeralds, gleamingly verdant. Sapphires, icy and remote. Color them costly.

Because of their short supplies and a surge in demand by wealthy purchasers — who want them as investments or simply for their beauty — the highest quality color gems are becoming ever more expensive.

"I'm recommending to my clients to invest in good quality color stones because they are difficult to find and will increase in value," says Nathalie Hocq, director of design for Cartier in Paris.

"We're selling more color stones than at any time in the history of the company," adds Henry B. Platt, president of Tiffany. "The price of color stones has been increasing quite substanstially along with the price of diamonds and gold for the past few years."

Unlike diamonds, whose supplies are primarily controlled by the massive DeBeers Consolidated Mines, color stones are extracted and mined by individuals with little backing except their own.

"Most people making major gem strikes are not the DeBeers but individuals who have invested their life savings for a long shot," said John White, associate curator in the department of mineral sciences at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

"Mining is on a small scale and mechanization doesn't really work," he said. "One must look at every piece of rock that comes out. You can't have large crews because you have to shake down miners at the end of the day to make sure they're not smuggling. One small emerald can be the profits for an entire month."

White said most quality emeralds are still being found in Colombia. Sapphires and rubies are still extracted in Sri Lanka, India and Burma. But Zambia and Tanzania in Africa recently have been good sources. There are thought to be undiscovered reserves elsewhere.

Sufficient quantities are not being mined so some retail jewelers are buying back jewelry from old customers.

"We have files in the archives of everything we've ever sold," said Ms. Hocq. "So we find people from the family that originally owned the pieces."

Most color stones are being repurchased in India, where once maharajahs dazzled their subjects from thrones of rubies wearing vests excrusted with emeralds and shoes studded with sapphires.

According to the monthly color stone price index in "Keystone," a jewelry industry publication, the increases for rubies, emeralds and sapphires over the past year have been sharp.

The "Keystone" prices quoted here are the ones gem dealers charge jewelers and others in the business. What retail buyer would pay is much higher, but these prices are for stones likely to be bought by the wealthy, not the average man buying his wife a birthday gift.

The price per carat of medium to better grade rubies currently ranges from $900 to $6,000 and from $550 to $2,100 for commercial grade. In October, 1977, the median price for better grade red stones was $1,700 and $700 for commercial grade.

Sapphire prices also reflect the upward spiral. The latest price for the medium to better grade of the blue gems is $400 to $3,600 and $150 to $900 for commercial grade. The median prices in October, 1977 were $800 and $375, respectively.

In October of last year, emerald prices averaged $5,000 per carat for medium to better grade and $1,300 for commercial grade. Now, the green stone ranges from $3,200 to $9,500 for the better grade and from $500 to $3,000 for the commercial grade.

But color stones still do not approach the value of the best diamonds. A D-flawless diamond — the highest grade — now ranges in price per carat from $42,000 to $44,360, according to "Keystone." In October, 1977, a D-flawless averaged $16,000 per carat.

"The market of precious stones is very volatile," says David Rosental, president of Kohinoor International, Ltd., a diamond broker. "The prices can jump from 20 to 25 percent in one month. There's no stability in the market and no specificity of quality. Diamonds get grading from the Gemological Institute of America. All you get for color stones is whether they're real or not."

Rosental said that unless the institute begins giving a rating he will not advise his clients to invest in color gems.

No Clear Proof

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a two-year investigation, the House assassinations committee found strong suggestions of a conspiracy in the death of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., but no clear proof anyone other than James Earl Ray was involved.

The panel completed a month of public hearings on the assassination Friday and Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, committee chairman, said he believes the inquiry found "the outline of a conspiracy."

But he said, "I'm not sure we proved conclusively that there was a conspiracy."

Self Defense

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Barry Sadler, whose 1966 record "Ballad of the Green Berets" sold more than a million copies, apparently acted in self defense when he shot a songwriter who died early Saturday, police said.

Authorities said Sadler, 31, who described himself as a "damn good shot," fatally wounded Lee Emerson Emery Friday night after the man came to the apartment complex of Darlene Sharp. Emery, who Sadler said had been "hounding" Ms. Sharp for more than a year, died early Saturday from a bullet wound to the head.

Columnist Dies

ATLANTA (AP) — Leo Aikman, 28-year veteran columnist for the The Atlanta Constitution, former editor of the Cobb County Times and a former chairman of the Georgia Press Institute, died Friday. He was 70.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — ALL SENSITIVE LOVERS WILL VALUE THEIR OWN TRUTH.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals D

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Doctor Describes Experiences As Prisoner...

"Most of us lost weight an average of 30 to 50 pounds in six months," as the result of the food, Pott recalls.

But one of his toughest times came when he was on a ship bound for home in an exchange of prisoners in the fall of 1943. Three thousand were aboard his liner. When they reached Goa, India, the Japanese issued orders that all Americans would take themselves and their baggage and move to the Swedish liner Gripsholm and all the Japanese prisoners would take their baggage and move likewise to a French liner.

The temperature was 110 degrees. The air was steaming.

"When nobody did anything, they turned on us," Pott recalls. The Americans were forced to move all the baggage from their ship. It took them a day and a half. "That was really a horrible experience," Dr. Pott remembers. "I thought that several times I would not make it. There was no water."

Those who made it found more food than their shrunken stomachs could take.

To Pott, it was "the most glorious feeling to know we were through with Japanese and were free and were heading home."

The crossing home took 10 weeks. It was still wartime, and there was the danger of enemy torpedoes. The fact that they were on a hospital ship did not guarantee their safe passage.

But the Gripsholm made it home.

And Walter Pott, the surgeon, ended up practicing medicine at the age of 49 in a little town he had never heard of — Greenville, North Carolina, population 15,628. There was a teachers college with 1,200 students. The medical community consisted of 13 physicians and a hospital with 40 beds.

He took the opportunity to settle in the "friendliest town I had ever seen" rather than go to the Mayo Clinic. He began to specialize in obstetrics and gynecology, because that was what the townspeople most needed. Towards the last 15 years of his career, he limited his practice to that field.

When the time came for him to turn over his practice to younger doctors, he decided to find successors who would care for his patients as he had

Then the man who honored his father's promise to the church and the man who had treated his enemy as well as his countryman under the duress of war, made one more decision. Again, he put the welfare of his patients first.

He refused to sell his business. "I believed in the practice of turning it over for the benefit of the patients rather than for the sale value among doctors," he says. And so he simply retired.

Greenville now has a population of 37,500. The college became a university with a medical school and 12,000 students. The town boasts a new 339-bed hospital served by a staff of 140 physicians and an additional 20 consultants.

Walter Hawks Pott, who served as chief of staff at the old hospital and who first introduced radium as a treatment of malignancy there, was honored with a memorial plaque in the obstetrics section.

He has never been back to China. He has no use for war.

What about the experiences in wartime. Isn't there any bitterness?

"If it hadn't happened to me, it would have been somebody else. It had to happen to somebody. I don't make excuses for myself," he says.

Aycock Activities

The Youth Council for Christ sponsored a Bible Quiz at Aycock Junior High during National Bible Week. Quiz winners were Delia Dixon, 8th grade, and Michelle Crandol, 9th grade. Miss Sandra Moore and Mrs. Shelia Kornegay were sponsors.

Members of the Photography Club are selling two-year calendars to raise funds to promote their activities; and the SGA's fund-raising project, a jelly bean guess, is designed to raise money to contribute to Operation Santa Claus.

In other recent Aycock activities, plans are underway for students to take an art-science field trip to the N. C. Museum of Art and the Morehead Planetarium on Dec. 15.

Local Ham Operators Talked To Jonestown

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Three Greenville ham radio operators talked with People's Temple Jonestown communers in Guyana during the year before the murders and mass suicides there.

Murray Adams, WA4DAN, and Mickey Averette, K4HHM, have QSL (confirmation) cards from their contacts, but Noel Harris, N4ATW, said his conversation with a Jonestowner named Wes was so recent that the follow-up QSL exchange was never made.

Harris said he logged a phone patch request from Wes at 1733 Greenwich time (12:35 p. m. EST) Sept. 21. Wes wanted to be patched into the San Francisco area and Harris told him he could not help. "He told me Jonestown was an agricultural self-contained community, with hospital, doctors, nurses and everything needed by those who lived there," Harris said. "He said there were about 2,000 cleared acres, if I remember correctly. He didn't mention Jim Jones or anything about the church or religion."

The call letters given by Wes were those of a person with a Redwood Valley, Calif. address, he said.

Harris, a Greenville City Schools parent educator, said he's been a ham operator for only about a year and has had the capability of talking with someone as far away as Guyana only since April. He considers himself fortunate to have had this contact, he said.

Averette, contacted by "The Daily Reflector", at West Craven High School where he is chairman of the Social Studies Department, did not have the QSL card or his log book with him to give details about date and time. He recalled, though, that his conversation with Jonestown occurrrd last February. He later received a "beautifully done" QSL card from Paula Adams, which gave details about the "agricultural mission." "If I remember correctly"' he said, "the information on the card implied that at least part of the purpose of being there was to be missionaries to the Guyanese."

Paula, too, wanted a phone patch into California.

Adams said he talked with Jonestown on Dec. 30, 1977 at 0525 Greenwich time (12:25 a. m.). He said he remembers little about the conversation, which seemed routine at the time because he'd never heard of Jonestown or People's Temple. He, like Averette, does have a QSL card to show for the experience.

GHA To Meet

The regular meeting of the Greenville Housing Authority will be held Monday, Dec. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Authority's 3J6 E. Roundtree Drive central offices.

Commissioners will consider routine reports concerning finance, occupancy and status reports on the various projects in development.

Christian Pageant Held

Miss Nancy Hines of Bethel was named "Miss Young People's Christian League" at a recent convention of the Northeast Original FWB Conference at Holly Hill FWB Church, Belvoir.

Miss Anna Horton was named first runner up, with Misses Vicky Barnes and Teresa Wilson capturing second and third place honors. According to YPCL president, Mrs. Alice Stancil, the pageant was successful, raising almost $1,500.

50th Anniversary For Carolina Sales Corp.

Highlight of the anniversary observance, held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, was the unveiling of a portrait of J. T. Little Sr. by his grandchildren, Tommy and Barbara Little.

The portrait was presented to Carolina Sales Corp. by Little's widow and his son, James T. Little Jr.

Carolina Kelvinator Co. was formed on Dec. 8, 1928 by E. G. (Col. Ed) Flanagan and J. T. Little Sr. The company name was changed to Carolina Sales Corp. on Jan. 1, 1935.

Today, Carolina Sales Corp. is recognized as the oldest franchised Kelvinator distributor in the world.

The firm, which also has a location in Charlotte, recorded annual sales of $152,671 in 1932 and has grown to the present annual sales figure that exceeds $16 million.

J. T. Little Jr. currently serves as president of the firm.

Seeks Fines

ROME (AP) — A prosecutor today demanded fines of almost $20 million against actress Sophia Loren and $35 million against her film-producer husband, Carlo Ponti, for alleged illegal transfer of money abroad.

The proscutor also asked the court to impose fines of $150,000 on actress Ava Gardner, $50,000 on British actor Kenneth Ross and $30,000 on Irish actor Richard Harris.

Anniversary Banquet

WILLIAMSTON — Dr. William Sonny Walker, regional director of CSA, told a 13th anniversary meeting of the Martin County Community Action groupFriday night that the county needs to work for full employment and get people off welfare.

Dr. Walker spoke to some 600 people assembled in the E.J. Hayes Gymtorium following a banquet-style dinner. Among the mostly Martin County audience were county commissioners and public officials from other areas of the state, including Pitt County.

The speaker's theme centered around his travels across the country and his experiences with local governing bodies and the methods they use to inspire "total community involvement".

Although the agency works for the poor, it serves all levels of the community, he said, and emphasis should be placed on people working together

British Case Said Stranger Than Fiction

By JANET CAWLEY

LONDON (UPI) — If it were a paperback mystery thriller, it would likely be dismissed as too unbelievable.

Yet, inside a tiny red brick courthouse in the sleepy seaside town of Minehead a mystery drama is nearing the last act that can rival any thriller fiction for charges of sex, hired killers, murder attempts and involves the man once voted Britain's most admired politician.

British newspapers already have dubbed it the "case of the century."

Jeremy Thorpe, a dapper, witty member of Parliament who headed the Liberal Party for nine years, has been charged with conspiracy to murder. The alleged target was Norman Scott, a former model and stablehand who claims he had a homosexual affair with Thorpe for five years from 1961-65.

Thorpe has denied all the charges, incuded Scott's allegation of a homosexual love affair.

In the two weeks of hearings thus far, the prosecution has attempted to show there is enough evidence to bring the case to trial. And while much of the testimony has focused on the alleged murder plot, Scott's two-day appearance on the stand probably has received the most attention.

Standing in the witness box, dressed both days in the same gray suit and blue shirt, Scott spared no detail in describing an intimate relationship he says began in Thorpe's mother's house.

At one point in testimony Thursday, Scott said he could prove his claims of an affair by describing the location of warts on the politican's body and also soberly informed the court that Thorpe had a curved spine — something "I could not know if I had not slept with him."

Thorpe, 49, sat impassively during most of the testimony, taking notes with a gold ballpoint pen and peering over the top of his gold-rimmed, half-circle glasses. But when Scott mentioned the warts, he broke into a grin and winked at reporters.

Thorpe has not smiled often during the testimony. It has been a long, downward road for Thorpe from what once was a bright political future to the cramped courthouse near his home constituency of North Devon.

Thorpe has gone from being named the country's most admired politican in 1974 to facing a possible life sentence if the case is brought to trial and he is convicted.

Although still a member of Parliament, he resigned the leadership of the country's third largest party in 1976 at the height of the scandal.

The twice-married Thorpe has vigorously denied the murder conspiracy charge and also denied that he had a homosexual relationship with Scott — referring to Scott's claim as "wild allegations."

According to tne prosecution, Thorpe became obsessed with fear that Scott would disclose their alleged relationship and ruin his career.

One witness, a former member of parliament, said Thorpe told him killing Scott would be "no worse than shooting a sick dog."

A self-proclaimed "hit man" testified he was paid $20,000 by friends of Thorpe in 1975 to kill Scott, who by then had married and fathered a child.

But the gunman, an airline pilot named Andrew Newton, said after first planning to kill Scott with a chisel hidden in a bunch of flowers, he changed his mind and decided to deliberately botch the job.

In the end, he shot only Scott's Great Dane, Rinka, as the two men parked their car along a lonely moor.

The story came out when Scott turned up months later in an obscure court charged with social security fraud. During the hearing he blurted out, "I am being hounded the whole time ...just because of my sexual relationship with Jeremy Thorpe."

From that unexpected remark emerged the tangle of revelations, charges and counter-charges that eventually led to the Minehead courthouse.

HUNTING THE HUNTERS — Sheep such as this desert bighorn are the target of a 16-day hunt which began Saturday in the Santa Catalina Mountains north of Tucson, Ariz. Four hunters will be in the mountains with a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to bag one of the older rams each, but they won't be alone. From 15 to 20 enviromentalists, some members of the Animal Defense Council, will also be in the mountains trying to scare the sheep away with blank cartridges and whistles. They say they'll stand between the sheep and the hunters if necessary. (AP Laserphoto)

Rules Against Roberts Hospital

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A district judge Friday ruled against the City of Faith hospital proposed by evangelist Oral Roberts, saying approval of a certificate of need was "erroneous."

District Judge Ronald Rickets sent the case back to the state Health Planning Commission, which had granted the certificate earlier this year.

The commission will now have to reconsider the controversial hospital plan where construction has already begun.

Contributions For Town Services

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Officials in this posh suburb south of San Francisco, where an average home sells for close to $300,000, think they have licked a cash crunch spurred by Proposition 13 — they're asking for contributions to run town services.

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Twenty-two Princeton University students were free on their own recognizance today after being arrested and charged with possession and sale of narcotics on campus.

John Prine To Perform At Roxy

Singer John Prine and his band will be in two concert performances in Greenville on Thursday, Dec. 7. The first performance will be at 7 p.m., and the second at 10 p.m., both at the Roxy Music Arts and Crafts Center, 629 Albemarle Ave.

Tickets are priced at $6.50 in advance, and $7 at the door. Roxy is a non-profit center for performing and visual arts, registered with the State of North Carolina.

Prine, a 32-year old performer who has recently made his debut with Elektra Records with an album, "Bruised Orange," is a native of Maywood, Illinois, which he calls a working class Chicago surburb.

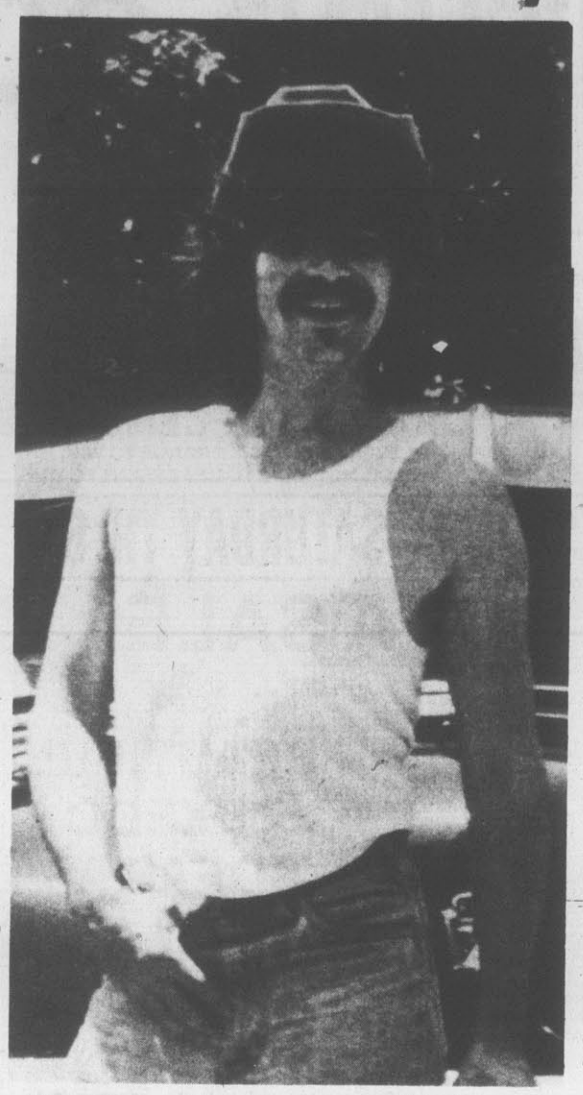
The title of the album comes from memories about his boyhood, when his father would take him to a bar and "buy me an orange pop. All these people would pat me on the head and give me money for the pinball machine. It was fun."

Early interested in music, particularly country and rock 'n roll, Prine learned from his older brother Dave how to play the guitar. While doing a two-year tour in the Army, he married his childhood sweetheart and, out of service, returned to his post office job in Chicago.

In 1970 he made his debut at the Fifth Peg, singing songs that launched his career — "Sam Stone," "Paradise," and "Hello In There."

He then began playing at the Earl of Old Town on a regular basis. It was here that Kris Kristofferson heard him and invited him to perform in New York in the Village. From there it was to Los Angeles.

In the three years that have elapsed since his last album, "The Best of John Prine," the singer has been making personal appearances all over the country. Many of his original songs have been recorded by pop, country, folk and rock performers. Among songs contained in "Bruised Orange" are "Sabu Visits the Twin Cities Alone;" "If You Don't Want My Love;" "Chain of Sorrow;" "Fish and Whistle;" and "Crooked Piece of Time."



JOHN PRINE . . . songwriter and singer, will be in two performances with his band at Roxy in Greenville on Thursday, Dec. 7. Tickets are priced at $6.50 in advance, $7 at the door.

Spring Cinema Series Set

Films for showing in the 1979 Spring Series of the Cinema Society of Greenville represent preferences expressed by members of the society. In this selection, as in the past series, films of several nations and types are included in the line-up for the January through April program of films showing every two weeks on Sunday evenings.

Deadline for subscribing to the Spring Series is December 15. Bill Stephenson, coordinator of the society, says "we must have 175 subscriptions by Dec. 15 in order to go ahead with plans for the series."

Ticket prices still remain $6 for the six films, and can be ordered by making checks payable to "The Cinema Society of Greenville." Send to: Dr. William Stephenson, Cinema Society, English Department, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C., 27834.

Dates (all on Sunday) of showings and the films to be shown are:

— Jan. 28 — "Hearts of the West," (American). Jeff Bridges, as a Nebraska farm boy of the 1930's, enrolls in a writing school and stumbles into Hollywood and adventure. Andy Griffith, Alan Arking, Blythe Danner, and Donald Pleasance are the Hollywoodites. Directed by Howard Zieff. A film "about fate and a buoyant faith in the happy ending." (Jay Cocks, "Time" Magazine).

— Feb. 11 — "Lies My Father Told Me." (Canadian). Famed Czech filmmaker Jan Kadar directs this film, the story of a small Jewish boy growing up in depression-poor Montreal who learns the way of the world as reflected by his grandfather. "Reveals people as authentic as the setting in which they are captured." (A. H. Weller, "New York Times.")

— Feb. 25 — An evening of short films. — An international collection of the best short films from around the world — dramatic, lyric, animated, comic, scenic — a wide selection for an evening's varied delight.

— Mar. 18 — "The Thief of Paris." (French). Jean-Paul Belmondo and Genevieve Bujold star in this story of a young Frenchman at the turn of the century who becomes a theif to gain the wealth required to court his young beloved. "(Director Louis Malle) evokes. . . a stunningly beautiful and trenchant canvas of Europe during the 'belle epoque'. . . (Howard Thompson, "New York Times.")

— Apr. 8 — "Dersu Uzala ," (Japanese-Russian). Japanese director Akira Kurosawa's Academy Award winning film as Best Foreign Film, 1975, investigates the complexity and indomitability of the human spirit. Filmed in Siberia, a party of Russian soldiers meet hunter Dersu Uzala, who becomes their guide and save the men from destruction. "An awesome portrait of man and nature. . ." ("Newsweek").

— Apr. 22 — "La Strada." (Italy). Giulietta Massina stars as the tragic Gelsomina, with fine supporting performances by Anthony Quinn and Richard Basehart. The classic film by Federico Fellini is universally considered one of the landmark films of all time.

Marshall Swing Composes Music For 'Marathon'

Marshall Swing, a graduate student in music at East Carolina University, has had an unusual opportunity to compose and arrange original jazz music in the style of the 1930's.

"Marathon '33," the play which opens at McGinnis Auditorium on Dec. 5 and runs through Dec. 9, has given Swing a chance to try his hand in providing music with the flavor of the depresssion years.

For the Playhouse production, he has arranged dozens of authentic jazz numbers and has also composed four original tunes especially for the show.

"It's been a golden opportunity for me to realize in practical terms a great deal of the theory that I've been working on for four years," he noted.

To perform the music he has arranged and composed, Swing has put together a ten-piece combo with Henry Wooten at the piano; Eddie Asten, drums; Jerry Deaton, bass; Chuck Ferguson, banjo; Mike Bellinger, trumpet, Dale Hair and Kevin Connally, trombone; Susan Harbage, doubling on alto sax and clarinet; and Robert Keller, saxophone.

Swing doubles by playing the piano on several numbers, in singing one of his own original tunes, and he also dances in the marathon.

Edgar R. Loessin noted that while the combo plays for much of the production, some of the intervals are filled with recorded music of familiar artists — Bing Crosby, Duke Ellington and Louis Armstrong.

Swing, of High Point, is working his way through school as a musician and composer. He is leader of a four-piece combo which plays engagements in the Greenville area.

Christmas Music By Wind Ensemble

Contemporary and traditional Christmas music will be performed by the East Carolina University Symphonic Wind Ensemble at its annual Christmas Concert.

The concert is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Monday, Dec. 4 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

Works to be performed include Harold Walters' "Christmas Greetings March;" a Leidzen arrangement of J. S. Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring;" Percy Grainger's arrangement of "The Sussex Mummers' Christmas Carol;" and Morton Gould's "Jingle Bells."

Mezzo-soprano soloist Sheila Brooks will sing "Gesu, Bambino," and Dr. Robert Irwin of the ECU organ faculty will narrate Newell Long's "'Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Other selections are: "What Child is This" by Alfred Reed; Gould's "Serenade of Carols;" "The Christmas Song," by Torme-Cacavas; and two Leroy Anderson songs, "A Christmas Festival" and "Sleigh Ride."

For the children in the audience, there will be a visit from Santa Claus.

There is no admission and the public is invited.

Farmville School To Give Sleeping Beauty

FARMVILLE — Students of the Farmville Middle School are presenting the musical, "Sleeping Beauty," on two evenings, Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 6 and 7.

Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. each evening, with performances being staged at the auditorium of the school. Tickets are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for students and children, and can be purchased in advance or at the door.

Wade Corbett plays the part of the dragon, Kim Rouse is the witch, Robby Killibrew portrays the frog. Kings, queens, princes and princesses are also in the cast. The play has been double cast, so that different students will be performing each of the two nights.

The play is directed by Mrs. Beverly Peaden; art director is Mrs. Becky Thomas; Mrs. Debby Gray is costume designer; Mrs. Kathryn Sauls, musical director; Lewis Lawrence, stage director; and Valerie Wood, accompanist.

Proceeds realized from the play will be used to purchase choir robes for the Middle School Chorus and for a student trip to Washington.

Rare Cabinet For Museum

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The acquisition of a rare pearwood cabinet mounted with molded glass plaques by Rene Lalique has been announced by the Toledo Museum of Art.

Lalique (1860-1945) was a French designer of jewelry and glass.

The cabinet was made by Lalique to appear in the 1929 Salon d'Automne in Paris.

Tickets can be purchased in advance at the Ayden Town Hall or at the door just prior to performance time.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Linda M. Stancill

The human side of American Presidents is revealed by Irma Hunt in DEAREST MADAME: THE PRESIDENTS' MISSTRESSES. She portrays the women who touched the lives of seven presidents, who were loved by but not married to them. Some lives show that a man's love for one woman need not diminish his love for the other women in his life, while some show that what goes on in that noble White House is sometimes as tawdry as what takes place at the Happy Hour Motel out near the airport. Even in the days when women's public influence was limited, their private influence was equal to men's. These women left their mark on various Presidents, if only in the secret lines on his face, in the blink of his eyes, in his walk, and in his attitude toward himself and toward the rest of America. With sharp wit and irreverence, but also with compassion for all people involved, Hunt opens a new, humanizing dimension of history with the account of these women whose public images mirror the sexual mores of our country and whose private lives afford intimate portraits of some of the men who led it from George Washington to John Kennedy.

In THE BUCHWALD STOPS HERE, Art Buchwald reveals his hilarious observations of the nation's capital in the Jimmy Carter age. He investigates the Sans Souci, famed watering hole for Washington's big game, exposes Santa Claus, three-martini luncheons, the CIA; defuses the energy crisis and examines such social and economic phenomena as x-rated films, the Anita Bryant mystic, the coffee shortage, and the inflation follies. With his finger on the pulse of the nation and his elbow in its ribs, Buchwald clarifies some complex issues of our time.

John F. Parker, State Senator of Massachusetts, presents a choice selection of the witty and wise sayings of politicians from the days of Augustus Ceasar to Jimmy Carter in THE FUN AND LAUGHTER OF POLITICS. A storehouse of jokes, stories, anecdotes, witticisms, retorts and just plain political fun, it contains the deadly repartee of legislative debate, and the humor of the White House and the campaign trail. Parker captures the humorous side of the great, the near-great and the also-rans, as well as the man-in-the-crowd and the innocent bystander. He finds laughter to be nature's defense against the world's burdens and the best medicine for public men and women in the great game of politics.

Playhouse Auditions For 'Emily' Set

The East Carolina Playhouse announces auditions for its third major production of the season. The play, "Emily," by Thomas Patterson of the UNC-Chapel Hill faculty, is based upon the private life of Emily Dickinson, the great American poetess. It will open Feb. 7 and run through Feb. 17 at the Playhouse on the ECU campus.

Director Edgar R. Loessin indicated there are parts for three men and six women. "We encourage everyone who is interested to come to auditions, which are open to residents of Greenville and eastern North Carolina as well as ECU students, faculty, and staff," Loessin said.

Auditions will be held in room 206 of the Drama Building on Thursday, Dec. 7 from 3 to 6 and from 8 to 10 p.m., as well as on Sat. Dec. 9, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Art, Music Notes

Pianist Sass Recital Dec. 8

Pianist Lisa Marie Sass of Knoxville, Tenn., a senior in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will be in recital at 8:15 p.m., Friday, Dec. 8 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

For her program, she will play three dances from Handel's "Suite V in E minor;" Debussy's "First Arabesque;" two preludes from Skriabin's Opus 11; and two of the Brahms "Fantasies for Piano."

There is no admission charged and the public is invited.

Larry White Recital In Texas

WACO, TEXAS — Larry White, graduate of Rose High School and of the School of Music, East Carolina University, will be giving his graduate recital on Monday, Dec. 4 in the Baylor School of Music, Waco.

White graduated from ECU in May 1977 with a major in music education. He is scheduled to receive his masters degree in percussion performance from Baylor in May, 1979.

For his graduate recital program, he will play marimba preludes by Raymond Helble and Gordon Stout; Hovhaness' "Fantasy on Japanese Woodprints;" David Burge's "Sources III;" and "Toccato" by Carlos Chavez.

'Small Things' Exhibition

Artists exhibiting their work are: (Painting), Janet Abbott, Henry Link, Phil Link, Lucy Spencer and Carol Thompson; (printmaking), Richard Fennell and Leroy Holmes; (fibers), Helen Ashby, Ann Huff, Nancy Morton, Elaine Rivenbark; (jewelry), Carol Mitchell; (stained glass), Cathryn and Charles Walton; and (ceramics), Jim Fineman.

A public reception is being held from 2 to 5 this afternoon, and the public is invited to attend.

"Small Things" will be on view through Dec. 22. Gallery hours are 9-5 Monday-Friday, 10-4 on Saturday, and 2-5 on Sunday.

Kinston Concert

RALEIGH — Mezzo-soprano Martha Snoddy, winner of the North Carolina Symphony's 1978 Kathleen and Joseph M. Bryan Young Artists Competition, will perform with the Symphony in Kinston on Friday, Dec. 8.

The concert, at 8 p.m. at Northwest Elementary Auditorium, will be conducted by John Gosling, Artistic Director and Conductor of the Symphony.

Admission tickets will be on sale at the door, priced at $6 for adults and $3 for students.

Tour Of Nativity Art Today At N.C. Museum Of Art

Hospitality House

"Hospitality House" today is a 30 minute program, airing from noon until 12:30 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Guests of hostess Kay Currie are featured in two topics. The first, Teresa Rivera, representative of Carolina Sales in Greenville, explains and demonstrates micro-oven drying of flowers, a new twist to an old art.

Julienne Rapp, home economist for Atlanta Foods of Atlanta, Ga., who studied under Julia Fields and other noted cooks, shows a holiday recipe preparation, peanut butter clustered fudge.

CRAMER SHOW

ECU Fraternity To Sing In 3 Events

Singing members of Phi Mu Alpha Fraternity will be making three public appearances during the coming week, and the public is invited.

Bill Robinson, musical director for the fraternity, notes that two of the events will be an all male affair. For one occasion, the young men will be joined by sorority members of Sigma Alpha Iota Sorority, under the direction of Jenni Harrison.

At 3:10 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 7, the Phi Mu Alpha singers will be at Pitt Plaza, and then at Greenville Square at 3:45 p.m. Their downtown appearance on the mall is scheduled for 4:35 p.m.

Among selections they will sing are "Angels We Have Heard On High," "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," and "The First Noel."

They will be accompanied by four instrumentalists — two trumpet players, baritone, and tuba.

On Sunday, Dec. 10 at 7 p.m. members of the fraternity and the sorority will be in concert at Immanuel Baptist Church, S. Elm St. Each group will perform individually, then sing four carols featuring combined voices of the two choirs.

The final of three events will be the fraternity's traditional caroling on the East Carolina University campus. The carol route will include the chancellor's residence and the girls' dormitories.

'Taken' By The One He Took In

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A Tulsa insurance agent who says he thought he was "a pretty good judge of character" took in a down-and-out transient on a city street last month but found out too late it was he who had been taken in.

"He was walking down the street ...all loaded down," Ken Ford, a former Baptist missionary, said recently. "I just felt I needed to stop and help him."

The old man told Ford he had been kicked out of the YMCA where he owed rent money.

"He didn't have a cent. We had a spare room, so I brought him home," Ford said.

There the old man told of a life of woe and hardship, of moving from place to place.

"I thought we could help him get back on his feet. I think I'm a pretty good judge of character. I saw hope in him," Ford said.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Ford went to Kansas on business, leaving their home in the hands of their cleaned-up, on-the-wagon boarder.

"I didn't think he'd have a garage sale while we were gone," Ford said.

But when the Fords returned they found the indigent gone. Also missing were family heirlooms, furniture, antique china, silverware, mementoes all worth about $5,000 not counting sentiment.

A tally sheet left behind indicated buyers had paid the houseguest about $120 for several truckloads.

"According to his scratch pad, he let my wife's prized $1,000 china closet go for $40. Everything that meant anything was gone. He didn't sell the grandfather clock or the piano, apparently because both were too big to get on a pickup," Ford said.

That was two weeks ago, and there's been no sign of the man who called himself "James Trice" or of the Ford's possessions.

Mrs. Ford has gone to stay with relatives. Her husband has put the house up for sale.

Insurance won't cover thefts by persons given a key to the house, Ford was told.

"We're really sick over it," Ford said. "Our only hope is that the things really were sold to an honest antique dealer or dealers — somebody who didn't know what was going on. I'd gladly pay $200 or $300 to get our things back. It's more than money involved. It's a lifetime."

56 Million Acres In New Parks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is doubling the size of the national park system in a single stroke and protecting from development 56 million acres of Alaska wilderness — an area about twice the size of Virginia.

By executive order Friday, Carter established 17 national monuments on federal land in Alaska. Without that protection, he said, the land "could be irrevocably lost" to development, such as mining and logging.

The president's order was promptly criticized by Alaska's two senators and representatives of major development interests and praised by conservation groups.

Favors Patty Hearst Release

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Actor John Wayne, citing the tragic mass suicide of Peoples Temple members, has told ABC-TV newscaster Barbara Walters that he favors Patty Hearst's release from prison.

In a telegram sent to Ms. Walters on Thanksgiving Day, Wayne said:

"It seems quite odd to me that no editors or television opinion-makers have pointed out the fact that the American people have immediately accepted the idea that one man can brainwash 400 human beings into mass suicide but will not accept the fact that a ruthless group, the Symbionese Liberation Army, could brainwash one little girl by torture and degradation and confinement.

Indians Hand Pirates First Loss Of Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — East Carolina University, down by as much as 14 points, fought back to within two, but was never able to pull even with William & Mary last night and the Indians handed the Pirates their first loss of the year, 60-54.

The Pirates never led in the game as they played woodenly in the first half, and then tried to come from behind against the solidly patient Indians.

After being down by 10 at halftime, the Pirates thrice rallied to within two points, but never were able to put the ball through for the tying score.

Four minutes into the second half, a six-point spurt brought the Pirates to within a pair, 40-38, but after calling time out the Indians were able to pull away again, getting a pair of baskets.

The Bucs again rallied, to close it to 50-48 with 10:09 showing, and had the chance this time to tie it. But a try by Oliver Mack bounded off the rim, and a try that followed on one of the few offensive rebounds the Pirates got all night was also off-target.

The Indians got the ball and moved out to the lead again. With 7:17 left, Mack hit off a drive to close the gap to two once more, but the Bucs didn't get a chance to tie it again.

The Indians used the foul line to give them the win. Only five fouls were called on the Indians, who switched from man-to-man and zone several times early, then stuck with a zone defense much of the time.

The Pirates, in a man-to-man most of the first half, had a number of breakdowns that allowed the Indians to score easy baskets, then moved to a pressure zone in the second and still had foul trouble.

A total of 24 fouls were called on ECU, which shot only one free throw during the night itself. The Indians made good on 18 of 27 free throws, while hitting just 21 field goals.

Pirate coach Larry Gillman was unhappy about the foul situation. "Twenty-four to five, what can I say," he said afterwards.

"I think we did a heck of a job coming back, and it's a shame that the officials can take the game away like that. We get the ball inside and get hacked, and nothing would be called, we go after the ball late, and they call it a two-shot foul, then a minute later, we really commit an intentional foul and they call it one-and-one.' Who knows? Maybe it's just too early in the season, and they're not really ready."

Gillman admitted that the Pirates hurt themselves early in the game by giving up too many easy baskets. "We stood around too much, we played their game, and we can't to that and win. The few baskets we got, we just beat them on transition."

The coach praised the Indians' board work, saying it hurt the Pirates when they tried to come back. "We still had the chance to come back, but it's tough to play against their motion offense. We got tougher on defense in the second half, but it wasn't enough."

East Carolina ended up shooting 48 per cent to the Indians' 50 per cent. William & Mary held a 30-26 rebounding margin.

East Carolina fell behind early, missing its first shot, while the Indians got a jumper from Billy Harrington after 40 seconds.

After two free throws by the Indians, the Pirates got on the board, but they continued to slip back, trailing 13-6 after a three-point play by Guy Courage and a jumper by Scott Whitley with 13:05 showing.

After Mack knocked through three baskets to cut it to one, the Indians ran off nine unanswered points, as ECU went nearly eight minutes with only two points, a jumper by Herb Krusen.

ECU did fight back, cutting it to 34-24 at the half.

The Pirates seemed to come alive in the second half, putting on the pressure with their zone at midcourt, forcing a number of turnovers. The Pirates also got tough on the boards, and denied the Indians extra shots.

Finally, Greg Cornelius, Mack and George Maynor hit to trim it to 40-38 with 15:26 left.

But the Pirates fell back by four again, only to trim it to two once more, 50-48.

But after Mack hit with 7:17 remaining, the Pirates made only four points, while the Indians got eight. The Indians put the ball on ice most of the time, shooting only under the basket, and usually getting to the line. They made eight trips to the line during the final 6:30, but made only four points there.

Mack was the only Pirate to hit double figures, getting 24. The Indians meanwhile had five in double figures, led by Harrington's 15. Whitley added 13, while Courage had 12 and Kenny Bowen had 10.

The Pirates, now 2-1, travel to Knoxville, Tenn. on Tuesday to face the University of Tennessee. William & Mary, 3-1, travels to Virginia Tech on Saturday.

Duke Takes Big 4

GREENBORO, N.C. (AP) — Junior Mike Gminski fired in 24 points and top-ranked Duke sank eight free throws in the final three minutes Saturday night as the Blue Devils pulled away for a 78-68 win over No. 14 North Carolina for the championship of the Big Four Basketball Tournament.

The Blue Devils took the lead for good at 64-62 on a jump shot by Jim Spanarkel from the top of the key with 5:30 left in the game and Gene Banks added another bucket to stretch the margin to four points, 66-62.

Duke then got eight of its last 12 points from the free-throw line.

In the consolation game, Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney scored 20 points and Clyde Austin added 19 to lead 6th-ranked North Carolina State to a 77-70 victory over Wake Forest.

Gminski, Duke's powerful 6-11 junior, hit eight of 10 shots from the floor, sank eight of 10 free throws, and pulled down 11 rebounds to become the tournament's most valuable player.

Spanarkel added 16 points, Banks had 15 and Bob Bender 14 for Duke, 4-0 on the season.

Al Wood led the Tar Heel attack with 16 points, 12 in the second half and David Colescott and John Virgil had 14 each as North Carolina suffered its first loss in four games.

The Tar Heels led by as many as nine points in the first half but Duke rallied before the intermission and went to the dressing room with the score tied at 32-32.

North Carolina State took the lead for good at 57-55 on a hook shot by Craig Watts with about 12½ minutes left in the game and increased the margin to 6155 when Austin hit back o-back 25-foot jumpers.

N.C. State, 4-1, hit only 37 percent from the floor, making 25 of 67 shots.

'Bama Wins, Looks To Sugar Bowl

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The Alabama dressing room remained closed for a few minutes following Saturday's 34-16 victory over Auburn, but the shouting players could be heard clearly outside.

"Sugar Bowl, Sugar Bowl," they chanted. Then the cry changed to, "Penn State, We Can't Wait; Penn State, We Can't Wait."

The second-ranked Crimson Tide of Alabama will have to wait until Jan. 1, though, for their long-awaited SUGAR Bowl showdown with No. 1 Penn State for college football's national championship.

Saturday's triumph marked the regular-season end of a long recovery after Alabama lost its third game to Southern California 24-14 and eventually dropped from No. 1 as low as No. 8 in the Associated Press poll.

"I doubt the day we played Southern Cal that many thought we'd be back where we are," Bear Bryant said in the coaches' cubicle just off the raucous locker room.

"I'll let you and Penn State decide how good we are," he continued. "I certainly think we have a chance for the national title if we beat Penn State."

Alabama's main man was quarterback Jeff Rutledge, who broke Joe Namath's school record for career touchdown passes. He threw two to Bruce Bolton and one to Rick Neal and tied the single-game touchdown pass mark as well as the one-season record of 13 shared by Namath and Harry Gilmer.

"If we beat Penn State, the No. 1 team, we ought to get it (the national championship), according to the way it happened last year," Rutledge said. Notre Dame beat No. 1ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl last year and took the national crown athough five teams, including Alabama, finished with identical records.

"I knew I had a chance at Joe Namath's record," he said. "I feel good about it, but you'vegot to give everybody credit. The main thing is I want to win."

Rutledge's scoring passes enabled Alabama to gain its seventh Southeastern Conference title in eight years.

The 6-foot-2 senior, playing before a record Legion Field crowd of 79,218 in his home town, connected with Bolton on scoring passes of 33 yards in the opening period and 17 yards with 32 seconds left in the first half. That toss erased a 13-10 Auburn lead and put Alabama on top for good 17-13.

Rutledge added the 30th of his four-year career — Namath threw 28 in three seasons — with an 11-yarder to Neal early in the third quarter.

Back-up quarterback Steadman Shealy scored Alabama's final touchdown on a 20-yard, fourth-down run in the final period while Alan McElroy booted field goals of 34 and 39 yards.

Alabama wound up the regular season with a 10-1 record and an eight-game winning streak. The Tide's 6-0 SEC record earned them a trip to the Sugar Bowl as the host team against Penn State.

Georgia, which was held to a 22-22 tie by Auburn two weeks ago, finished second in the conference at 5-0-1 and will meet Stanford in the Bluebonnet Bowl. Auburn concluded with a 6-4-1 overall mark.

Auburn, a 16-point underdog, gave Alabama all it could handle in the first half. Joe Cribbs, who rushed for 118 yards on 32 carries, scored the Tigers' touchdowns on runs of 5 yards in the first period and 9 yards in the second quarter. Jorge Portela kicked a 37-yard field goal in the third period for Auburn's final points.

Rose Says He Hopes To Make Choice Monday

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Free agent Pete Rose met for a second time with the owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates on Saturday and said he hoped to decide on a new team by Monday or Tuesday.

Rose, who became a free agent after this season following an illustrious career with the Cincinnati Reds, visited Pittsburgh Pirates' owner John Galbreath at Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm, a horse thoroughbred breeding stable.

He was the first team owner to have a second meeting with the infielder-outfielder, but Reuven Katz, Rose's lawyer, said he also planned follow-up meetings with other teams.

Rose has narrowed the field to four teams. In addition to Pittsburgh, Atlanta, St. Louis and Kansas City also were in th running. Rose already has turned down an offer from the Philadelphia Phillies for a reported $1.8 million.

The Pirates' contract package included an undetermined number of Darby Dan Farm's thoroughbred broodmares.

"I knew Pete loved racing. There's nothing particularly strange about that," Galbreath said. "We thought that we could find something that would give Pete something for the future."

Galbreath said he once gave a yearling to Roberto Clemente, the Pirates' Hall of Fame outfielder who died in a 1972 air crash.

Katz said no contract demands have been made thus far.

"We've just listened," Katz said. "We haven't asked for anything. There are other managements which think much more highly of Pete (than do the Reds)," he said. "We've received proposals far in excess of what the Reds offered."

Rose was openly disenchanted with the Reds' contrac offer, although Katz said the Reds, not Rose, terminated negotiations.

Despite Changes, Tech Is Powerful

By O.K. Davis
Executive Sports Editor
The Ruston (La.) Daily Leader

(Editor's three part series on the Louisiana Tech football team that will face East Carolina University in the Independence Bowl on Saturday, December 16.)

RUSTON, La. — The cast is somewhat different, but Louisiana Tech University's offense packed another wallop during this 1978 football season.

Graduation took away all-time leading rusher John Henry White (now with British Columbia of the Canadian Football League) and national reception leader Rod Foppe from the 1977 unit which led the Southland Conference in three of four offensive categories.

Add, too, the departure of tight end Larry McCartney—he was an all-league choice who ranked among SLC's top ten receivers—and there was plenty of reason for Bulldog boosters to question if the team could win another league championship and bowl berth this season.

But on December 16, the Techsters will make a return appearance in the third annual Independence Bowl by taking on NCAA independent powerhouse East Carolina University.

The offense, once again, has been a key factor in Tech's march to an overall record of 6-4-0 and impressive 4-1 title mark in the SLC.

The Bulldogs are ranked no less than number three in three of the four league statistical departments: number one in passing offense with 185 yards per game, number three in scoring, 21.5, and total offense, 297.4, and number five in rushing, 112.4.

Two of the SLC's individual statistical pacesetters wear the Red and Blue colors and at least one Techster ranks in the top four of the five-out-of-the-six categories.

"I think it's been a successful year for us on offense," said head coach Maxie Lambright. "Our statistics probably don't show as much yardage as last year, but one has to realize that we lost some great athletes. When you lose outstanding athletes such as White over 1,000 of them last year) or a Foppe, you've got to feel such an effect.

"But overall, our offense has been able to move the ball in key situations and the athletes have given 110 per cent effort. You can't ask for much more."

Tech's offense has once again been geared around the quarterbacking of junior Keith Thibodeaux, who was a first-team All-SLC choice in 1977 while leading the league in passing and total offense...despite the loss of top receiver Foppe, who was the nation's yardage leader with 1,274. Thibodeaux has passed for 1,128 yards and five touchdowns with 81 completions in 198 attempts.

Called "Thib" by teammates, the 6-foot, 185- pounder is adept as both as passer and scrambler in the Bulldogs' pro-set formation.

"I realized, myself, that our offense this year would have a lot of pressure on it after dominating things last season," said Thibodeaux, "but I believe we've done okay. Our line play has been outstanding. The blocking has been surperb overall and that's probably the main reason for the success we've enjoyed."

Scooter Spruiell, a mini-receiver (5-10, 170) in the traditional Tech mold, has been the league's number one receiver with 37 catches for 642 yards and four touchdowns.

A part-timer in past years, senior Spruiell has also been listed among the conference leaders for all-purpose running (89.5) and punt returns (10.3).

The Bulldogs may have the best all-around running back in the SLC in sophomore tailback George Yates.

A 6-1 205-pounder, he is ranked high in four of the league's statistics departments. He's number one in scoring with 60 points, number four in all-purpose running with an average of 89.5 yards a game, and number five in both rushing (637 yards on 155 carries) and receiving (20 for 217 yards, one touchdown).

Yates, recruited by such schools as Oklahoma and LSU out of Robert E. Lee High of Baton Rouge, La., rushed for 138 yards on 25 carries and scored three times in the Bulldogs' recent 24-10 league clinching victory over Arkansas State University.

"We've come to expect such performances from George," said Lambright matter-of- factly. "He's just a determined runner every time he touches the football."

Yates' running partners include senior running back Bryan Leviston, who is the SLC's 11th leading receiver with 148 yards and a touchdown on 11 catches, and senior fullback Joe Mack Johnson.

The Bulldogs' starting flanker is George Pree, only 5-6, 160, but ninth in the conference for receiving with 13 catches for 231 yards and a touchdown. He's a big-play gainer, having averaged nearly 18 yards per reception.

Tech has what is generally regarded as the best "1-2 quarterback punch" in the Southland Conference, what with the superb performance of freshman red-head Eric Barkley.

A former all-district and all-state player for Shreveport's Fair Park High, he has completed 46 of 101 passes for 709 yards and six touchdowns.

"We've put Eric in when we felt like we needed a change," said Lambright. "We've been very pleased with the play of both quarterbacks. It gives us a good combination."

As Tech's opponents will surely agree.

Kentucky Opens With Win

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Fred Cowan scored 17 points and Kyle Macy added 16 as 10th-ranked Kentucky opened defense of its NCAA title by routing La Salle 109-77 in a college basketball game Saturday night.

Kentucky built a 50-31 halftime lead and decided the contest with a 12-0 run early in the second half.

Freshman reserves Chuck Verderber and Clarence Tillman scored 14 and 12, respectively, and Tim Stephens, another reserve, added 13 for Kentucky.

La Salle's Michael Brooks led all scorers with 23 points before fouling out with 4:57 to go.

LaSalle, 1-1, appeared ready to challenge Kentucky when Darryl Gladden and Kurt Kanaskie hit consecutive field goals to open the second half.

Cowan scored on a rebound and La Salle's Reggie Miller answered with two free throws before Kentucky reeled off its game-clinching scoring streak.

Stephens had three baskets in the drive, freshman Dwight Anderson scored two baskets and Verderber added the sixth basket as Kentucky led 64-37 with 14:13 remaining.

No. 8 Michigan Stops Tide

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Mike McGee and Phil Hubbard combined for 51 points Saturday to lead eighth-ranked Michigan over Alabama 99-84 in nonconference college basketball.

After playing close the entire first half, Michigan outscored Alabama 14-6 at the beginning of the second half to put the Wolverines ahead by 14 points after six minutes of the period.

The closest Alabama could get after that was four points.

McGee, a sophomore who shot 11 of 19 from the floor, hit for a game-high 27 points.

While Hubbard was collecting 24 points and 15 rebounds, Alabama center Reggie King, last year's Southeast Conference player of the year, was held to 11 points.

The Wolverines shot 57 percent while Alabama hit 49 percent.

Alabama forwards Eddie Phillips and Ken Johnson each scored 18 points, but the Crimson Tide starting backcourt of Joe Hancock and Robert Scott managed only 20 points between them.

Terps Gun Down Air Force

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Larry Gibson's 19-point scoring paced Maryland to an 81-68 college basketball victory over a cold-shooting Air Force squad here Saturday night.

The Terrapins stepped out to a 6-0 lead after three minutes and never looked back, going ahead as much as 12 points before taking a 36-27 advantage into the half. With just over three minutes left in the game, the Terps were out front by 19 points, 73-54.

The closest the Falcons got was 36-27, 90 seconds before the half, and again, 45-41, with 14:12 remaining.

The Terps outrebounded the Falcons 53-42, shot 76 percent from the line and 48 percent from the field. Air Force shot 53 percent from the line and 36 from the floor.

ECU Women Win First

The East Carolina Lady Pirates, led by the combined 43 points of forward Rosie Thompson and guard Gale Kerbaugh, defeated the Duke Blue Devils 81-66 in a college basketball game here last night.

Thompson scored 22 points and grabbed 17 rebounds, while Kerbaugh tallied 21 as the Pirates captured their first victory against two defeats. Lydia Rountree added 12 points and Lynne Emerson and Marcia Girven snared eight rebounds apiece.

The Blue Devils got 16 points and nine rebounds from Barb Krause and 14 points from Kim Mathews. Leslie Earnhardt added 10 points and nine rebounds for Duke.

The Pirates outscored the Blue Devils 17-4 in the final 4:27 of the first half to take a commanding 40-19 lead to the dressing room at halftime. They ran the lead to 27 early in the second half, but Duke battled back to within 14 at 66-52 before succombing to the final 15-point margin.

"We had a total team effort in this win," commented Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi. "It was our first win and it feels good to have the first one."

Roanoke Edges Conley

ROBERSONVILLE — Chris Manning pumped in 26 points to lead Roanoke to a 68-61 basketball victory over D. H. Conley last night.

Edward Ward added 16 points and Jasper Martin 10 as the Redskins held off the Vikings in the fourth quarter. Shawn Little led Conley with 13, Larry White had 11 and David Brock 10.

Roanoke's girls' team gained a narrow 33-32 win over the Valkyries as a Conley rally late in the game came up short.

Roanoke trailed 18-13 at the half, but took the lead in the third quarter and got some key baskets from Senfield Jones late in the game to go up by five. But some untimely turnovers allowed the Valkyries to come close before Roanoke put it away.

Hinkle, Bradley Hold Lead

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Lon Hinkle and Pat Bradley, playing their best golf ever, fired an eagle and five birdies to maintain their lead for the second straight day, 2 strokes ahead of the nearest challenger after the third round Saturday in the $300,000 Mixed Teams Championships.

They shot a 65 for a 20-underpar 196.

Hinkle and Bradley turned back a threat from runners-up Mike Hill and Vivian Brownlee, who pulled within 1 stroke on the front nine, but couldn't overtake them despite a 63 which was the tournament's lowest round.

The four were playing in the same group. Hinkle-Bradley parred the first six holes as Hill-Brownlee added three birdies to move to within one stroke of the lead. But Hinkle, using a 9-iron, eagled the seventh hole with an 117-yard drive. He then birdied the ninth with an eightfoot putt to step up the pace.

"We sure had our hands full today watching Mike and Vivian shoot a 63. They made it look so easy," said Hinkle afterward. "They absolutely had a fantastic day putting. It kept us on our toes more than anything."

Hinkle is ranked 16th on the men's tour and Bradley is the number two money winner on the LPGA.

Brownlee sunk seven birdies of 15, 15, 3, 5, 12, 7, and 9 feet and Hill made three for 18, 4 and 18 feet. They wound up 9under par for the round despite bogeying the 13th hole.

"We've really got a chance now," said Hill. "The next team is 4 shots back."

Jim Colbert and Silvia Bertolaccini picked up 8 strokes for a surprising 14-under par 202 to move up two notches into third place. They shot a 64.

"I promised her if she played good I'd take her to Bern's Steak House. So tonight I'm taking her to Bern's," said Colbert, after she scored five of their eight birdies — for 10, 7, 6, 12 feet and one in close. Colbert, ranked 70th on the PGA, made birdies of 8, 30 and 3 feet.

"I've said before whoever she plays with is going to be in the game," he added.

In fourth place, 1 stroke behind Colbert-Bertolaccini were Tom Purtzer and Jane Blalock, who picked up 5 to card 71-6666—203.

Defending champions Jerry Pate and Hollis Stacy were 7 strokes back going into Sunday's final round at Bardmoor Country Club where 35 twosomes are competing for a top prize of $60,000 over the 7,015yard course.

Pate-Stacy posted a 69 for 12under par which dropped them from second place to fifth. They had been in a four-way tie behind the leaders after twoday scores of 69-66 and Stacy called it a "perfect position."

There is a four-way tie for sixth place with Dave Hill-Roberta Spear, Miller Barber-Sandra Palmer, Dave Eichelberger Alexandra Reinhardt and Rex Caldwell-Kathy Martin. All are 11-under-par 205s.

In the format used both golfers tee off and switch balls. After ther second shot they alternate to the hole.

Sparky Anderson Never Planned To Leave Reds' Organization

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson, stating he "definitely" plans to be managing again by 1980, says he never planned to leave the Cincinnati Reds' organization.

"I thought I could beat Walter Alston's record. It may sound goofy, but I thought I would be an institution in Cincinnati," said Anderson, who was fired by the Reds this week.

"Cincinnati, to me, was my home. I'm only sad about one thing — I feel like I left a part of my family that will never return again."

"I'm not down. I'm not unhappy. I'm not sorry for anything I did.

"Sure I made some mistakes — boxcars full of them — but show me a guy who doesn't make any mistakes and I'll show you a guy who doesn't make any decisions. I'm not sorry, I'm a little sad."

Anderson's nine years as manager of the Reds tied him for longest tenure in the club's history with Bill McKechnie, but falls short of Alston's 23 years as manager of the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers.

Interviewed at his home in Thousand Oaks, Calif., by The Cincinnati Enquirer, Anderson defended his managing methods.

He said he doesn't necessarily agree with the assessment by club President Dick Wagner that Anderson had grown soft and couldn't inspire the team.

"He said that he didn't feel our ballclub was aggressive enough and that he didn't feel I was aggressive enough. He thought our ballclub had too much material to finish second," said Anderson.

Anderson feels several factors forced him to change the Reds' game this past season. Catcher Johnny Bench missed a third of the year with a back ailment, Joe Morgan was hampered with injuries and pitcher Bill Bonham missed 14 starts.

"I'd like to see anybody take three people off any club of their capabilities and win 92 games," said Anderson, who averaged 96 victories over his nine years.

He said the 1978 club will hold a special place in his heart.

"I was proud of the club for its character. They had to battle so many obstacles to keep their head above water. These are men. You can kick 'em in the rear and they're not going to whimper and cry."

He leaves glad that he won't have to see the Reds in bad times.

"The old pendulum will always swing back the other way, though. At least I won't have to watch it (the team) decline. I will never have to see those lean years. I don't want to see that."

He defended his star system, which brought criticism from several players.

"I always told the team in the spring that there are people who will someday go into the Hall of Fame.

"There are players on this club who will get certain favors when they ask. There are others who will not."

Until he gets another managing job, Anderson said he will attend as many games in the Los Angeles and San francisco areas as possible to stay in contract with the game.

Reds' Machine May Be In For Overhaul

CINCINNATI (AP) (AP) — If Dick Wagner follows the teachings of his tutor, the Cincinnati Reds' president may have a major overhaul in mind for the sputtering Big Red Machine.

Many believe Wagner's firing of Manager Sparky Anderson last week, along with most of his coaching staff, was just the beginning in the reconstruction of the Reds.

More changes are expected this week when Wagner attends the major league baseball winter meetings in Orlando, Fla.

After dismissing Anderson for two straight runner-up finishes, Wagner explained the move by saying: "You just can't sit back and let the ballclub go downhill.

"I feel if we stood still with te club and its leadership, we would have continued to go down."

Since the Reds have nine players over 30 — eight of them regulars or starting pitchers — age may be one of Wagner' chief considerations in rebuilding the team that dominated the National League throughout the 1970s.

"I don't think we can sit back on our laurels," said Wagner, who is in his first year as president of the Reds.

Georgia Edges Georgia Tech

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Sophomore Anthony Arnold caught a 42-yard touchdown pass and then ran for a two-point conversion with only 2:24 remaining as 11th ranked Georgia edged Georgia Tech 29-28 Saturday in a nationally televised college football game.

Arnold caught the pass on a fourth-down gamble from freshman quarterback Buck Belue at the Tech 20 and raced to the end zone without a defender in sight.

Belue, who kept the 84-yard drive alive, ran for six yards on the fourth and two at his own 24, was under heavy pressure when he lofted the gamewinning pass to Arnold.

It enabled Georgia to stage a remarkable comeback from a 20-0 deficit that Tech built by cashing in on two fumble recoveries, the recovery of an onside kick and a pass interference call in the end zone.

Arnold's run for the 2-point conversion came from the oneyard line after Tech was assessed an interference call on a first 2-point conversion try that failed.

Scott Woerner gave Georgia it's first lead in the third quarter when he raced 72 yards on a punt return.

However, Tech quickly regained the lead when Drew Hill returned the ensuing kickoff for a school record 100 yards.

Eddie Lee Ivery, who gained 160 yards before sitting out the final quarter with a foot injury, scored Tech's first touchdown. Rodney Lee tallied the other and Johnny Smith kicked two field goals.

The Georgia victory snapped Tech's winning streak of five games over Southeastern Conference opponents, dating back to a Bulldog victory here two years ago.

Ivery's 160 yards lifted his season total to 1,562 yards, an all-time Tech record, breaking the old mark of 1,459 yards set by Red Baron in 1921.

Both teams are headed for bowl games, Georgia Tech against Purdue in the Peach Bowl and Georgia against either Stanford in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, or Penn State in the Sugar Bowl.

It appeared that Tech would turn the annual in-state war into a runaway when the Jackets struck for 17 points within a 5:37 span of the first quarter.

Henry Johnson recovered McClendon's fumble at the Georgia 46 and a 15-yard penalty set up a five-play, 31-yard drive drive that ended on Ivery's 4-yard run.

Tech then caught Georgia by surprise with an onside kick. Jeff Shank recovered at the 47 and it took Tech only nine plays to go the distance, with Lee getting the final yard.

Navy Blanks Army

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Senior quarterback Bob Leszczynski rushed for two firsthalf touchdowns and set a Navy record with a third-quarter scoring pass to Steve Callahan Saturday, powering Navy to a 28-0 rout of Army in the 79th meeting of the armed forces academies.

The triumph gave th bowlbound Midshipmen their fifth victory in the last six renewals of one of college football's greatest rivalries, and cut Army's lead in the series to 37-36. The other six games ended in ties.

With a chilled crowd of 79,026 looking on at John F. Kennedy Stadium, Navy converted three of its first five possessions into touchdowns with Leszczynski sandwiching scoring runs of 3 and 1 yards around a 1-yard touchdown charge by Callahan.

That gave Navy a 21-0 halftime lead. Then, in the third quarter, the Midshipmen attempted a 34-yard field goal. The bad snap eluded Leszczynski's grasp, but he picked it up and found Callahan for the 18-yard score.

The scoring pass was the 26th of Leszczynski's career, snapping the record John Cartwright had set from 1965-67.

Vols Stomp Vandy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Quarterback Jimmy Streater ran for 2 touchdowns and teammate Alan Duncan kicked 2 field goals Saturday as Tennessee defeated Vanderbilt 41-15 in one of the Southeastern Conference's oldest football rivalries.

Tennessee's victory, coming in the season finale for both teams, was the Volunteer'S first three-game winning streak since Coach Johnny Majors took over for the 1977 season. The Vols, finishing 5-5-1 for the season and 3-3 in conference play, beat Mississippi and Kentucky the past two weeks.

Streater's 12-yard run in the second period opened the game's scoring. Vanderbilt tied it less than 2 minutes later when Quarterback Scotti Madison combined with Martin Cox on a 47-yard touchdown pass play.

Hogs Crush Tech

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas running back Ben Cowins scored two touchdowns and topped 1,000 yards rushing for the third straight year as the Razorbacks crushed Texas Tech 49-7 Saturday.

The eighth-ranked Razorbacks scored on six of their first seven possessions and led 42-0 at the half, while winning their fifth straight and stopping the Raiders' winning streak at six.

After two quarters, Arkansas had 379 yards total offense, 19 first downs and had put together scoring drives of 80, 15, 76, 76, 80 and 56 yards. Tech, on the other hand, had four first downs — including two by penalty — and a total offense of 76 yards.

Arkansas, bound for a Dec. 25 Fiesta Bowl meeting with UCLA, finished the regular season at 9-2 and is 6-2 in the Southwest Conference.

Arkansas would tie Texas and Houston for the league title should Rice upset Houston Saturday night. If Houston wins, Arkansas and Texas would tie for second.

Tech wound up 7-4 for the season and 5-3 in the Southwest Conference.

Cowins, a senior, entered the game needing 142 yards to get 1,000. He wound up Saturday with 148 yards on 19 carries.

Contested Rebound

Wilkins-Led Washington Destroys Rampant Cagers

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

WASHINGTON — They call Dominique Wilkins "The Dunk" in Washington, but they might change that to "The Dominator." The 6-7 center got only one slam against Rose High Friday night, but he dominated the backboards and nearly every phase of play in leading the Pam-Pack to a 99-58 rout of the Rampants.

Wilkins scored 28 points for the defending state 3-A champions, nearly all of them on follow shots. He had well over 20 rebounds in the game as the Pam-Pack outrebounded the Rampants 59-44.

The outcome of the contest was settled early as Washington rolled to a 13-point lead in the first quarter and stretched it to 19 in the second period. The only questions remaining to be answered in the second half were whether Dominique would dunk and whether Washington could reach 100.

Wilkins, considered one of the top two college prospects in the state this year, finally jammed one early in the fourth quarter. All alone down court, he pulled the ball behind his head and then slammed it home with both hands.

That gave the Pam-Pack an 84-45 lead with 7:45 left to play, and it appeared they would surely score 100. But Washington coach Dave Smith removed all his starters shortly afterward and the reserves scored only 15 more points.

"I thought the game would be closer than it was," Smith said. "Normally in a ballgame like this, I don't like to play my starters that much. We're not trying to run up the score. We have a tough game with Bertie tomorrow night, and we might need some of those points."

Smith said Wilkins had one of his better games, especially on the boards. "He really skied tonight; he really got up there," he commented.

"I didn't expect us to win by the margin that we won by. I know they (Rose) were hard-hit by guys graduating, just like we were last year."

Rose coach Jim Brewington said his team's inexperience in the frontcourt was the cause of the lopsided score. "Our little people played good basketball, but we just didn't get any help from our big people. When we get some experience at forward and center, we're going to be a good ballclub. Maybe we can give them a better ballgame when they come to Greenville."

The Rampants had no one who could come close to handling Wilkins on the boards, even in a zone defense. He scored 12 points off of offensive rebounds in the first quarter alone.

Wilkins got help from forward Shawn Williams, who pumped in 20 points for the Pam-Pack. Williams,too, scored many on tap-ins, but also gunned some from outside.

Rose was paced by Dennis Ross with 10.

The Pam-Pack was never really threatened in the game, reeling off six straight points, four from Wilkins, after Rose had tied the game at 2-2. Wilkins and Williams scored all but two of Washington's first-quarter points as the Pam-Pack rolled to a 24-11 lead at the end of the period.

Ralph Holley and George Stokes, who each finished with 10 points, got into the act in the second period as the Pam-Pack built their lead to 19 points. They led 41-24 at halftime.

Wilkins and Williams combined for nine straight points early in the third period that put their team in front 55-27 and they piled up a 74-35 advantage with 1:34 left in the third. That 39-point margin was upped to 41 by the end of the game. Washington scored and whopping 41 points in the third quarter.

Brewington said the Pam-Pack looks like a better team overall than last season's championship addition. Washington suffered some key losses from last season, most notably Alvis Rogers, a freshman starter at Wake Forest now.

Washington also won the girls' game, by a 48-28 margin. The Lady Pam-Pack led 12-3 at the end of the first quarter and 19-12 at the half. They really poured it on in the second half for the lopsided victory.

Margaret McGlohon was the only Rampette in double figures with 10 points, while Brenda Minns had 13, Teri Andrews 12,Marsha Boyd 11 and Lynn Hodges 10 for Washington.

Rose will host Kinston on Tuesday night.

Devils Must Learn To Handle Pressure

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Coach Bill Foster of top-ranked Duke says the Blue Devils had better get used to the pressure they experienced Friday night in pulling out a 65-63 win over No. 6 North Carolina State in the first round of the Big Four Basketball Tournament.

He said as long as Duke remains atop collegiate basketball, everyone is going to be gunning for them.

"This is just about what you could expect," Foster said "It was anybody's game. We got the break we needed at the end."

In an earlier game, North Carolina cruised to a 73-55 win over Wake Forest for the right to meet Duke in tonight's championship game. N.C. State meets Wake Forest in the colsolation match.

Duke, which improved to 2-0, has not had an easy time of it in either of its outings, including a 86-80 win over Southern Methodist earlier this week.

Foster blamed the close games on a sporadic Duke defense. "Our man-to-man wasn't that effective," Foster said. "We could have exerted a little more pressure without fouling. It's part of the learning process."

With six seconds left, Jim Spanarkel managed to get inside and feed the ball to Gene Banks who fired in the winning bucket.

"We were trying to let the defense dictate the situation," Foster said. "They went to a man-to-man and Spanarkel got inside and got it to Banks. It worked."

Duke was led by Mike Gminski and Banks, each with 15 points and Spanarkel with 14. The Wolfpack boasted the game's leading scorer in Clyde Austin with 21 points.

"Austin's first-half statistics were outstanding," Foster said of the 6-3 guard.

The Duke coach said he plans to substitute more freely tonight in the game against 14th-ranked North Carolina. He said he doubts his starters can play a second game with the emotional ferver they played in the opening round.

"The emotions can ear you down as much as the physical pressure," Foster said.

N.C. State Coach Norm Sloan said the loss was due to poor coaching. "That is one situation of going for the last shot that we did not work on. We were a little disorganized as to what to do with the ball. It wasn't a matter of one of the players making a mistake. It was Norm Sloan's fault."

Sloan said the consolation game packs more pressure than the title contest.

Duke, Carolina Win First Round Contests

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State coach Norm Sloan figured the Wolfpack couldn't lose to top-ranked Duke if the Blue Devils couldn't get the ball.

So, with the score tied at 6363, Sloan sent the Wolfpack, the nation's No. 6 team, into a stall in the final minutes of Friday night's opening round game in the Big Four Tournament.

"I thought as long as we had the basketball we were not going to lose," Sloan said after Duke got the ball on a turnover with about a minute and a half left, ran the clock down, and won the game 65-63 on a basket by Gene Banks with six seconds left.

"There was nothing wrong with the decision (to stall)," Sloan said. "We did not have them ready to take advantage of it."

Duke's thrilling victory set up a confrontation tonight between the Blue Devils and 14th-ranked North Carolina, a 73-55 winner over Wake Forest in the other opening round game.

In the only other game involving an Atlantic Coast Conference team Friday night, Clemson, 4-0, defeated Brown 73-57 in the first game of the IPTAY college basketball tournament. The Tigers will meet Kent State in the championship Saturday night.

Duke, 2-0, spurted out to a nine point lead, 21-12, with 12:48 left in the first half, but the Wolfpack rallied for nine consecutive points, and pulled within one on a 20-foot jumper by Clyde Austin with 11:13 remaining.

Duke held a 46-45 lead at the half, but was never able to go up by more than four points during the second half.

North Carolina State, 3-1, tied the game at 63-63 on a long jumper by Kenny Matthews and a bucket from the base line by Art Jones with 6:04 left in the game. The Wolfpack went into a stall with just over four minutes left in the game and after a series of turnovers held the ball for more than a minute before the Blue Devils took over with a minute and a half left and played for Banks' winning fied goal.

"This is just about what you could expect," Duke coach Bill Foster said. "It was anybody's game. We got the break we needed at the end."

Banks and center Mike Gminski led the Duke scoring attack with 15 points each, and Banks, Gminski and forward Kenny Dennard pulled down eight rebounds apiece as the Blue Devils held a commanding 35-18 advantage on the boards. Austin was the game's leading scorer with 21 points, 19 of them in the first half.

North Carolina, 2-0, spurted to a 26 point lead late in the first half in its rout of Wake Forest, 1-1, and was in front by as many as 30 points in the final half.

"We played good defense in the first half," Tar Heel coach Dean Smith said. "(Dudley) Bradley's defense turned it around in the first half. I have to hand it to Wake the way they came around in the second half."

The Deacons staged a brief rally midway of the second half and closed the gap to 19 points, 66-47, on a 15-foot jump shot by Frank Johnson with 4:15 left. But North Carolina slowly pulled away again in the final four minutes.

Al Wood was the Tar Heel's leading scorer with 21 points, hitting 10 of 14 field goal attempts. Bradley added 13 points and Rich Yonaker and Mike O'Koren had 10 each. O'Koren also had 14 rebounds. Johnson was the game's leading scorer, hitting 11 of 16 shots from the field and two free throws for 24 points.

Bo Rein Rehired

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State football coach Bo Rein has renewed a multi-year contract with the Wolfpack.

N.C. State Athletic Director Willis Casey announced the decision Friday and praised the job Rein has done in the past. In his three years as head coach, Rein has directed the Wolfpack to an overall 19-14-1 record and two post-season bowl appearances.

"I am pleased with the vote of confidence from the administration," Rein said, "and we're hoping to have another great recruiting year."

Bradshaw's Best Year

He has taken the Pittsburgh Steelers to two Super Bowl championships, and along the way Terry Bradshaw has established himself as one of the National Football League's premier quarterbacks. But if you ask him, he's never had as good a season as the one he's enjoying right now.

Bradshaw leads the NFL with 22 touchdown passes and has three games left including Sunday's American Conference Central showdown against Houston, in which to reach the single season record of 27 set in 1976 by Oakland's Ken Stabler.

"I am playing better than ever before," said Bradshaw, who hurled three TD passes, all of them to Lynn Swann, as the Steelers clinched a playoff berth by beating San Francisco last Monday night. "I don't know why and I don't want to find out."

In other Sunday games, Oakland and Denver, tied for first in the AFC West, collide in a night game while New England, leading the AFC East by two games, travels to Dallas to meet the Cowboys, leaders of the NFC East by one game. NFC West leader Los Angeles plays the Giants at New York. Green Bay, tied for first in the NFC Central with Minnesota, plays at Tampa Bay while the Vikings will be at home against Philadelphia.

Chicago plays at San Diego Monday night.

Conley Slips By N. Lenoir

HOLLYWOOD — D. H. Conley came out on top of a see-saw battle with North Lenoir Friday night, defeating the Hawks 57-56 in a high school basketball game.

The game was close the entire way with Conley leading by one at the end of the first quarter and North Lenoir leading by one at the half. The Hawks held their one-point advantage in the third quarter, but Conley won on a David Brock basket with 13 seconds left. A last-second Hawk shot missed.

Shawn Little led all scorers with 20 points for Conley, while Darryl Thompson had 12 and Sammy Tucker 11. Amos Pearcill scored 16 for North Lenoir and Johnny Wiggins added 14.

In the girls' game, Conley broke away from the Lady Hawks in the second quarter and went on to take a 67-47 victory.

The Valkyries led by only 14-12 at the end of the first period, but outscored the Lady Hawks 21-12 in the second period.

Annie Hardy scored 21 points and Glenda Green 16 for Conley, while Gwen Norville hit 11 and Tammy Parham 10 for North Lenoir.

Bullets Defeat New Orleans, Despite Maravich's 37 Points

Not even a smoking Pistol could stop the red-hot Washington Bullets.

Pete Maravich fired in 19 of his 37 points in the fourth quarter for New Orleans Friday night, but in the end it was old reliable Wes Unseld who came up with the basket that gave the Bullets a 117-115 National Basketball Association victory over the Jazz.

Unseld converted a pass from Bobby Dandridge for a layup with five seconds left for the winning points as the Bullets won their ninth in a row to equal the longest winning streak in the franchise's history.

The Bullets are now 2-0 under interim coach Bernie Bickerstaff, the assistant who took over the club this week after Head Coach Dick Motta underwent knee surgery on Monday.

Truck Robinson had tied the score at 115 with a basket for New Orleans with 21 seconds to play. But instead of calling a timeout, which is the customary strategy in order to set up a play, the Bullets brought the ball upcourt immediately. Unseld — not known for his offense — rolled to the basket, took the pass from Dandridge and laid it in for the winning basket.

"We run plays automatically at the end of every quarter," explained Bickerstaff, when asked why no timeout was called. "We decided to run the play whenever we got the ball back."

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Boston Celtics beat the Seattle SuperSonics 87-80, the Denver Nuggets defeated the Detroit Pistons 125-120, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Indiana Pacers 111-107, the New Jersey Nets topped the Golden State Warriors 120-110 and the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Phoenix Suns 130-122.

Dandridge scored 20 of his 27 points in the first half as Washington built a 69-52 lead before Maravich brought the Jazz back, finally tying the game at 113 with a long jumper with 46 seconds left. Dandridge put Washington back in front before Robinson tied it once again to set the stage for Unseld.

"Washington is playing great, but we didn't give up when we got 17 down," said Jazz Coach Elgin Baylor. "We showed a lot of character and poise, coming back against the hottest team in the NBA."

Erxleben Boots, Despite Injury

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It was the final Southwest Conference game of Russell Erxleben's career. It was on national television. It was against bitter rival Texas A&M.

And Erxleben's big toe throbbed like a bad toothache.

Earlier in the week, the right toe of the Longhorns' punter and placekicker was black and green and it hurt Friday morning.

But Friday night, Erxleben went out and drilled two field goals, including a 59-yarder, and punted eight times for an average of 48 yards, including a 74-yarder.

Coupled with a key safety and a swarming defense that held 1,000-yard rusher Curtis Dickey to a career row 11 yards, the 14th-ranked Texas Longhorns throttled the Texas Aggies 22-7 in a nationally televised SWC game.

Erxleben injured the toe a week ago against Baylor and didn't practice all week.

Bullets May Be Better

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Jamesville basketball coach Ron Davenport said the Bullets have the potential to be a better team than last year's 17-10 squad.

"We've got more experience, so potential-wise, we can be a better ballclub. It's a little early in the season to really tell.

"We look real good in practice, but we didn't play that well against Williamston (the first game). We had a lot of bright spots though; the defense looked real good."

Davenport said defense will be one of the strengths of his club this year. "We've got hustle and determination on defense. We've got more size this year, but we're not quite as quick. W'ell mix our defense up more this year than last."

The Bullets' top weakness is probably depth, according to the coach. He said he has only seven players he feels he can really depend on at this point.

Three of the Bullets are returning starters with center Tommy DiNardo leading the way. DiNardo (6-4, 190) is the only senior on the starting five and the team's offense is built around him, according to Davenport.

"He's excellent for running a patterned offense around. He's fundamentally sound and also a great student. He's a good shot blocker and he averaged around 16 rebounds a game last year."

The team's two guards also have experience. Point guard Trent Ange (6-1, 175) is an excellent ballhandler and shooter. "No one in the conference will give better hustle on defense," Davenport said of the junior.

Ange was a starter last year, while the other guard, Alan Frazier, started for about half the year. Frazier (5-11, 175) is a junior also and a good shooter, as well as a good defensive player.

In the frontcourt with DiNardo are two more juniors, Keith Modlin (6-1, 175) and Frankie Hardison (6-2, 180). Modlin worked hard on his game over the summer, incresing his vertical jump six inches, Davenport said. He is a little slow, but a good shooter.

A pair of guards are the team's top reserves. They are sophomore Danny DiNardo (5-10, 165) and junior James Armond (5-8, 115). Danny, Tommy's brother, is a hard worker who moved up from the junior varsity. Armond is a good ballhandler with good moves to the basket.

The other guards are senior Toby Holliday (5-7, 150) and sophomore Clarence Thomas (5-7, 130). The reserve forwards are junior Dano Cross (5-7, 125) and Ricky Bell (6-0, 160), while Ross Simmons (6-2, 175), a junior, serves as a back-up center.

Davenport picks defending state champion Belhaven and Chocowinity as the teams to beat in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference this season. "We would like to be in the top with them," he added.

THE NORTH CAROLINA Wildlife Resources Commission has contributed $8,573 to Duck Unlimited to help preserve valuable waterfowl breeding areas in the Canadian prairie and arctic regions. The funds come from an allotment of $1 taken from the sale of each nonresident hunting license sold in the state.

The donation is required by a state statute directing the Commission to contribute the allotment to an agency or organization based in the United States that is active in waterfowl conservation and preservation in Canada. Since the program was originated in 1970, North Carolina has contributed over $78,000 to DU.

"The breeding areas in the Canadian prairie provinces and in the arctic produce 70 to 75 per cent of all the migratory waterfowl in North America," said Jim Shepard, director of operations for Ducks Unlimited. "Alaska is responsible for another 10 per cent of the waterfowl crop, and the rest are raised in the United States and in the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

"When you consider the value of the breeding grounds in the Canadian prairies and arctic, it's vitally important that sportsmen and conservationists everywhere in North America help preserve these areas. If we don't, it will signal the end of waterfowl hunting as we know it today," Shepard said.

Excursion Boats Must Display Stickers

A Coast Guard sticker stating the date on which a vessel's Certificate of Inspection expires now must be prominently displayed on certain excursion and party fishing boats, according to a new Coast Guard regulation.

The regulation, which became effective on Oct. 15, applies to all vessels that carry seven or more passengers for hire. If the sticker that shows the vessel's Certificate of Inspection has expired, or the sticker is missing, the Coast Guard advises that it is a good idea to look elsewhere for your boat ride.

The sticker must be posted on the vessel where it is readily visible to each boarding passenger and to patrolling Coast Guard law enforcement personnel. This new regulation is an attempt to help people recognize those vessels that have been inspected by the Coast Guard and are in full compliance with the laws and regulations written to protect passengers.

The regulation is an outgrowth of an incident in which 14 of 25 passengers and two crewmembers drowned when a charter fishing vessel sank. One of the drowned crew members was the owner. Unknown to the passengers, the vessel's Certificate of Inspection had been surrendered by the previous owner who was not willing to pay for repairs to correct serious hull deterioration. The new owner knew that the boat had problems, but took passengers for hire anyway.

Fishing Certificates Awarded

Three Greenville men have won citations in the North Carolina Saltwater Fishing Tournament for early September catches.

Michael H. Barnum was awarded two certificates from the N. C. Department of Commerce, one for a released white marlin and the other for a 36 lb., 6 oz. wahoo, both caught on Sept. 4.

Hank Byrne caught a 48 lb. wahoo on Sept. 4, while John Friday landed an 8 lb., 8 oz. gray trout on Sept. 8.

Panthers Edge Roanoke In OT

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School rallied to tie North Pitt in regulation, but dropped a 64-61 decision to the Panthers in an overtime basketball game Friday night.

North Pitt led 53-42 going into the game's final period, but the Redskins tied the game at 58-58 on Anthony Latham's jumper with about a minute to go. Roanoke got the ball back for the last shot, but missed.

North Pitt got two points each from Mickey Hines, Neil Carr and Reginald Knight in overtime, while holding Roanoke to just three points for the win.

Carr paced the Panthers with 20 points, while Knight had 15 and Terry Shelton 11. Chris Morning scored 17 points for Roanoke. Jasper Martin added 12 and Ronnie Highsmith 10.

In the girls' game, Roanoke led all the way for a 39-31 victory. Dee Stanley paced the Squaws with 14, while North Pitt's Carolyn Best led all scorers with 15 points and teammate Jeanette Brown added 10.

Former Harvard Cager Making Comeback At BC

NEWTON, Mass. (AP)—It's a short ride from Harvard University across the Charles River to Boston College, but it was Joe Beaulieu's longest journey.

The celebrated 6-foot-9 former high school basketball star — who bears a physical resemblance to National Basketball Association giant Bill Walton — is making a comeback.

Once a giant fox pursued by more than 450 college recruiting hounds, Beaulieu is starting over, athletically and academically.

"I regret leaving Harvard, the prestige, the mystique," says the transfer student. "But it's a better environment here."

"We thought we'd prepared him for Harvard," says his high school coach, Kevin Mackey, now an assitant at Boston College. "But being told something and experiencing it turned out to be a different story for Joe."

As a high school hero at Don Bosco Tech in Boston, Beaulieu was sensational. The school had a 75-3 record during his career, won a state championship and three New England Catholic titles.

He played with two other highly recruited stars — Dwan Chandler, now playing for Boston College, and Felton Sealey, a starter at Oregon this season. Beaulieu, however, was the main attraction.

"I had guys calling me from schools day and night," he recalls. "They'd come over to my home at all hours. It makes you a little cynical. A guy from Georgia tried to sell me on the school by telling me what beautiful girls they have down there."

But for Beaulieu, the decision was almost pre-ordained.

He had grown up literally on the Cambridge, Mass., campus of Harvard — in an "ecumenical housing project." His schoolboy coach and father figure — Beaulieu's father died in 1969 — has two brothers who attended the prestigious university.

Beaulieu's mother, seriously ill when her son was mulling college offers, told him from a hospital bed that Harvard was her choice.

Sanders' sales pitch was the clincher. But it didn't work once Beaulieu enrolled.

"In high school, Joe had tremendous publicity," says Mackey. "He played before packed houses. There was fanfare."

At Harvard, Beaulieu had to play freshman basketball in front of empty seats. He tried a pre-med course that was too tough. And, even close to home, he was lonely.

"I never felt comfortable socially," he says. "There were so many cliques. In the dorms, everyone was part of one."

Tigers Edge Chargers

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton was able to overcome Williamston's delay offense to tie their game at the end of regulation play, but the Tigers took the advantage in overtime and held off the Chargers for a 51-50 victory.

Williamston had a big third quarter to come from behind and go up 40-36. The Tigers went into a stall, but the Chargers were able to tie the game at 55-55 late in the fourth quarter on a shot by Henry Ormond.

Williamston jumped out to a quick lead in the extra period and the Chargers were unable to catch up.

Walter Harris led all scorers with 19 points, while Jim Barnes added 15 for Williamston. Ormond was the only Charger in double figures with 17.

In the girls' game, Ayden-Grifton defeated Williamston 58-53 behind Aretha Cannon's 17 points.

Mary Rowe scored 14 points and Shonda Brock 13 for the Chargerettes, who held off a furious Williamston rally in the final quarter. Jan Rogerson had 22 and JoAnna Lilley 16 for Williamston.

Pitt Board Adopts Resolution

The Board of Trustees of Pitt Technical Institute adopted a resolution Friday to endorse and support legislation in 1979 North Carolina General Assembly for appropriation of funds to add the college parallel program at PTI.

The addition of the college program would enable the Institute to attain community college status.

In the same resolution, the trustees requested the Pitt County Board of Commissioners to adopt a resolution endorsing the addition of the college parallel program and supporting legislation of the state General Assembly toward funds for the program.

The board also adopted another resolution to express appreciation to the many friends of Pitt Technical Institute, specifically the students, faculty and administrative staff of the Institute for their help in the passage of the community college referendum.

Robert Lorentz, a second-year student in architectural drafting and newly elected president of Pitt Tech's Student Government Association, was sworn in as a trustee by Nancy Mewborn, board secretary and a notary public. Lorentz will serve as an ex officio member of the Board as prescribed under state law.

George Shoe, local architect, told the trustees that work on the shop/classroom building is approximately 82 percent complete.

The new completition date is March 23, 1979. Shoe also reported that the site improvement documents for the paved parking lot expansion have been corrected to comply with review comments and are ready to be re-submitted for a set bid date.

The Program Committee of the Board, chaired by Corey Stokes, recommended the approval of a Medical Transcription curriculum to be added to the present curricula. The Board approved the item.

Winter quarter enrollment at PTI, according to President William Fulford, will be above last winter's enrollment.

President Fulford also informed the Board that the new maintenance building has been completed.

The 3,200 square foot facility was built by students in the carpentry, masonry, electrical installation and maintenance, and heating, refrigeration and air conditioning programs at Pitt Tech.

December 7 Dedication Set For Two New U.S. 264 Lanes

WILSON — Gov. Jim Hunt is scheduled to participate in dedication ceremonies officially opening the two additional lanes of relocated U.S. 264 between Zebulon and Wilson, Thursday.

The December 7 ceremony is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. eight miles West of Wilson, just off U.S. 264 on secondary road 1301, near the Sims interchange.

The eastbound lanes of the U.S. 264 freeway between Zebulon and Bailey were opened to traffic last year, while the eastbound segment between Bailey and Wilson was completed in June.

The westbound lanes to be dedicated Thursday were completed nearly a year ahead of schedule, Tom Bradshaw, Secretary of the Department of Transportation said.

Bradshaw, who will preside at the ceremony, pointed out, "the early completion of this 16.4 mile four-lane highway reflects the Governor's commitment to open as soon as possible our major east/west highways connecting eastern North Carolina to the Piedmont and the mountains."

The cost of the relocated U.S. 264 freeway, including right-of-way acquisition, engineering, and construction, totaled $26.6 million. Construction began when the first of 11 contracts was awarded for the project in 1974.

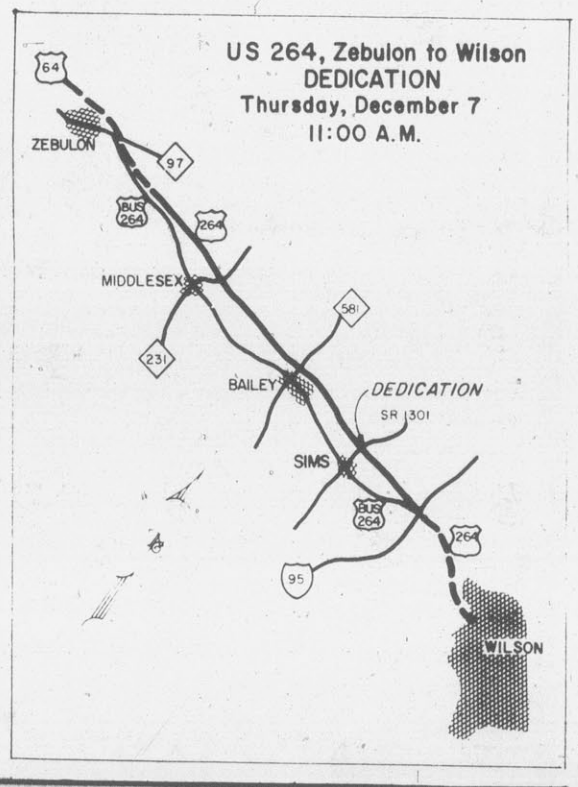
The rain site for the dedication will be on U.S. 264 under the bridge at the Sims interchange. Signs directing traffic to the dedication site will be posted.

Bradshaw noted that at the request of Middlesex and Bailey town officials, the old U.S. 264 is being designated U.S. 264 Business.

Hearings were held last week in Saratoga and Greenville on proposed improvements along U.S. 264 from Wilson to Greenville.

Alternates under consideration by the Department of Transportation include widening the present route between the two cities, creating a partially controlled access route which would maintain all present driveway connections and at-grade intersections, or constructing a fully-controlled access freeway — similar to the Zebulon-Wilson freeway to be dedicated Thursday — along a new corridor.

Right-of-way acquisition on any improvements to the Wilson-Greenville road is scheduled to begin in July 1980, with bid-letting for construction set for November 1981.



Tennis Association Held Banquet-Dance

The Greenville Tennis Association recently held its first annual tennis awards banquet and dance at the Bachelor Benedict Club.

Trophies were presented to first and second place winners of the first annual Tennis Classic and the first annual Novice Tournament. Certificates were presented to all participants.

Guest speaker for the banquet was Mayor Lee Morgan of New Bern. Morgan was presented a plaque and made an honorary member of the Association. Also in attendance were members of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission and other community leaders.

Pupils Elect Student Council

The students of Saulter Elementary School have elected the Student Council officers for the 1978-79 school year, under the direction of Mrs. Beth McDonald, faculty advisor.

Officers are as follows: Chris Hilliard, president, sixth grade; Julia Frost, vice president, fifth grade; , secretary, Karen Krewatch, fifth grade; treasurer, Scott Bond, fourth grade; roll caller, Gwen Barnes, fourth grade.

Symposium On Spouse Abuse

The League of Women Voters will offer a symposium on spouse abuse Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and 14th Streets.

The objectives of the symposium are to offer information for identifying spouse abuse, whether it is physical, verbal, emotional or psychological, and to extend suggestions for dealing with the problem. Speakers will be Dr. James Mathis, chairman of the East Carolina University

Dr. James Mathis, chairman of the ECU School of Medicine Department of Psychiatry, will discuss the psychiatric origins of spouse abuse. Mary Susan Parnell, Director of the Battered Woman Project of the State Council on the Status of Women, will present information on legislative directions. Mary Larew Smith, Crisis Director and Program Coordinator of the local REAL Crisis Intervention Center, will address local needs.

The symposium is being arranged by the Human Resources Committee of the local league, chaired by Ann Evans.

There are at the present time 23 programs in North Carolina to help battered women, ranging from support groups to hotlines to emergency centers. There are three battered women centers — at Lenoir, Winston Salem and Greensboro, with a shelter to open soon in High Point.

Ms. Evans said that the local symposium will deal, not only with the abused wife, but also the abused husband.

The public is invited. Opportunity for questions and discussion will be given.

GI In Germany Must Scrimp

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Americans back home may think their dollar has recovered in international money markets since President Carter started his rescue action Nov. 1, but GIs serving in West Germany know otherwise.

Daily for several weeks "Stars and Stripes", an unofficial newspaper for U.S. servicemen overseas, has carried a front-page notice:

When the dollar buys less than 1.80 marks, the newspaper prints the notice in red ink. It used a lot of red ink on its front page before Carter launched his rescue effort. One day the rate fell to 1.72 marks.

Just a year ago, the dollar still bought 2.29 marks.

But even with the "recovery" following Carter's action, the GI's dollar in Germany now is worth about 18 percent less than one year earlier.

Brigitte Sadler, wife of Staff Sgt. Robert J. Sadler, a member of the law and order division of the 3rd Support Command in Frankfurt, explains how they and their 8year old daughter, Monika, cope with the declining dollar.

"We don't go downtown," she says. "We buy everything at the commissary and PX. We are making it, but we have no luxuries. We don't have to scratch, but at the end of the month, we have no dollars left over.

"It is a shame that a career soldier cannot do better than this."

A lot of American soldiers, once the best paid in the world, now believe they are worse off than soldiers in some of the allied armed forces.

Mrs. Sadler's brother is a corporal in the West German army.

"We compared my brother's salary to my husband's salary and, believe it or not, my brother does better," Mrs. Sadler adds with a touch of bitterness.

Maj. C.B. Kennell complained in a letter to Stars and Stripes that the Germans "certainly must be doing all right since they can afford to pay their troops more than we do in overseas assignments."

Kennell suggested Washington pull all of the Americans back home, a proposal headquarters officers say never has been considered.

The GIs' difficulty is not German inflation. German prices creep up at a rate of less than 2.5 percent per year — a quarter of the domestic U.S. rate. The GIs' problem is the decline of the U.S. dollar.

Most adjust to the dwindling value of their dollar incomes as Mrs. Sadler suggests. They stay on their posts, buy all they can at U.S. commissaries and PX's, and rarely go out "on the economy," as they describe it.

Well-paid senior sergeants, who once took their wives into town for dinner twice a month, say they now go downtown perhaps only every six weeks. Beyond that they limit their nights out to the on-base Noncoms Clubs.

Pvt. James Scott, 18, of San Diego, Calif., in an engineering battalion near the Rhine river, reports of a venture into town.

"I ordered a glass of orange drink. But when I realized it cost a dollar, I told the waiter to take it back."

German department stores in the Frankfurt area once frequented by American families report fewer American customers and say that those who do come buy less.

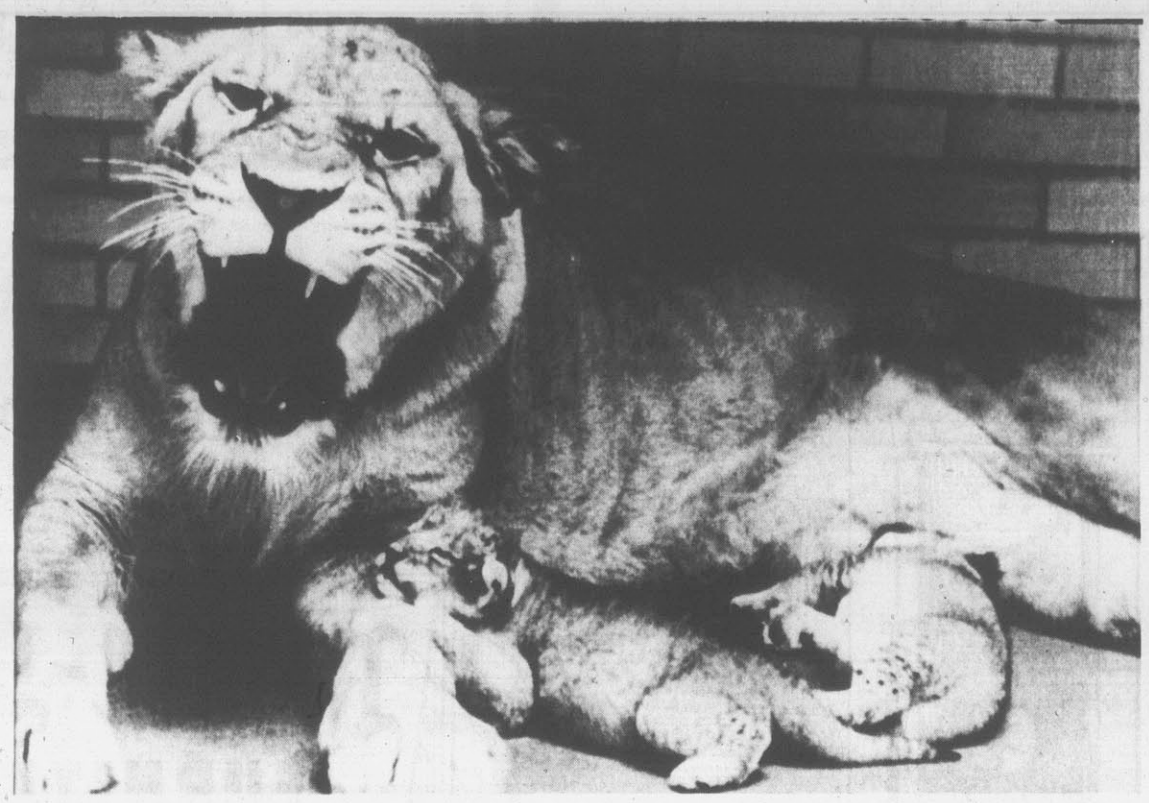
The U.S. Army provides official housing for about 40,000 of the approximately 56,000 army families in Germany. The other 16,000 families rent on the German market, where apartments are expensive. Furthermore, the soldier needs to spend more dollars each month on rent even though the rent in terms of the marks paid to the landlord remains constant.

The Sadler family typically pays about 650 marks per month in Frankfurt for apartment rent and utilities.

A year ago, $284 would buy the 650 marks. Today, the same number of marks cost at least $345.

Many young married soldiers confess they scrape along by letting their debts in the United States slide until their return home.

"We barely make it on Russel's salary of $839 per month after taxes, plus we still have bills in the States," says Phyllis, wife of Spec. 4 Russel Crooke, a missileman stationed in the mountainous area of the Hunsrueck.



'GET THAT PHOTOGRAPHER OUT OF HERE' — This mother lion seems to be saying "It's too early for pictures" as she guards her new cubs at the Como Zoo in St. Maul, Minnesota. Two are shown with her. Four cubs were born a little over a week ago, and two which were rejected have been placed in foster homes. (AP Laserphoto)

Drought Zone Farmers Try A Watering Device

By BRUCE HANDLER

PETROLINA, Brazil (AP) — A little clay thingamajig that's shaped like an astronaut's space capsule and costs about 20 cents could mean better and more prosperous lives for millions of dirt-poor peasant farmers in the misery-ridden drought zone of northeastern Brazil.

Government researchers here are working on a system for keeping farm crops well watered year round, by means of a series of such capsules, which are stuck into the ground near the seeds and then connected by plastic tubes to a water storage tank.

The beauty of this system is that it appears to fit perfectly the needs and capabilities of the people who can most benefit from it: subsistence farmers who have no formal education, who still till the soil with toes and jackass-pulled plows, and who are almost always broke.

The capsule arrangement is still in early research stages, but it appears to be far cheaper and more efficient than traditional canal irrigation. It requires no special knowhow or complicated equipment. It has no moving parts and doesn't need electricity or even wind or muscle power. The water comes out because of air pressure and gravity.

Brazil's drought zone, where malnutrition, disease and early death are part of the everyday scene, is one of the most miserable, depressed areas in the Western Hemisphere. More than 12 million people struggle to exist here, in a region that is bigger than Texas and California combined.

Many places here get less than 10 inches of rain a year. Some years they don't get any at all. When that happens — as it has with notorious regularity throughout Brazilian history — the government has to put hundreds of thousands of farm families on emergency "make work" relief programs to prevent them from starving to death.

Ambitious-sounding drought-control programs that Brazil has engaged in over the years have done little to change the basic situation.

At an Embrapa experimental farm outside the hot, dry northeastern town of Petrolina, watermelons and honeydew melons are now sprouting over the once-arid landscape, thanks to the easily manufactured 5-inchhigh watering capsules. There are plans to see if the capsules can also be used to grow onions, tomatoes, table grapes and sugar cane.

Experts working on the project say it's much too early to start making pie-in-the-sky predictions about "saving the Northeast." But they say the initial results are highly promising.

"This system uses eight and a half times less water than traditional irrigation and at a fraction of the cost," said Aderaldo de Souza Silva, a young agronomist. "And this thing is so simple, any farmer can be taught how to install it. Also, all the components are made right here in Brazil."

Silva and his colleagues caution, however, that a lot more testing needs to be done. And they are aware that northeastern farmers have traditionally been very reluctant to change their ways or try new ideas.

Rag-Pickers Share Hard Life

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The old woman's gnarled hands clutched impatiently at a large bone and, after some fumbling, she managed to drop it into her burlap bag. It was another day for 230 unionized ragpickers at Bogota's biggest garbage dump.

The sun has not yet burned off the early morning fog at the mile-square dump each day when the several dozen men, women and children — along with flocks of aggressive buzzards — descend with equal vigor on the first garbage trucks to arrive.

Being first to sift the refuse is important. The slow ones, like the aged woman with the arthritic hands, earn as little as $7.50 a week. The young men make as much as $12 in the same period.

The daily scrambling at the dump is a testimony both to man's wastefulness and to the indignity and submission that is necessary sometimes to survive in a country where per capita income is only $650 a year.

The ragpickers formed their own union in 1961. Each of the 230 members pays the union the peso equivalent of 50 cents a week for the right to poke around in garbage to make a living. The union also charges undisclosed sums to private trash collectors who buy bones, bottles, cans and cardboard retrieved from the dump.

The ragpickers get about three cents a pound for bones, which are used for making glue. Recyclable cardboard brings about a penny a pound, aluminum cans about two cents a pound. Some bottles, such as cooking oil bottles which can be used again at factories, bring a little more than half a cent each.

The dump belongs to the Bogota Public Services Department, whose garbage collectors, through a written agreement with the department, have the right to operate the dump as a business enterprise. The city garbage collectors' union charges the ragpickers' union $1,000 a month for the right to work the dumps.

A 28-year-old man said he had been a unionized scavenger at the dump for three years, that he had looked for work for months before following the suggestion of a friend to work at the dump.

The dump has become a dumping spot for some of out people. The place appears to breed contempt for the government as easily as it breeds rats and flies.

"Do you think anyone out there with government cares if we starve or not?" asked the young man as he waved a hand nonchalantly toward Bogota's skyline of 50-story high steeland-glass buildings and then toward the international airport of El Dorado about a mile away.

"They say there's no unemployment problem here," he said, and spat for emphasis. "Where do they do the counting? Chico Reservado?"

Chico Reservado is where many of the city's rich, incuding drug-traffickers, live.

The government says the unemployment rate is 7.6 percent. Private economists, asking that they remain anonymous, say it is 10 percent or 20 percent, depending upon whether you include the underemployed such as the ragpickers or the men who draw crowds in Bogota's small squares by walking on and rolling around in broken glass, stunts which leave their bodies bloodied and scarred.

Three women cooking a stew over an open fire amid the tons of fly-covered garbage were asked if they had children and what kind of lives they could afford for them?

"Mister, my neighborhood doesn't look much better than this dump," said one of the women, who said she was 30 but looked older. "I've got four children. Listen, Mister, they don't eat meat. They don't eat eggs. There isn't any milk for them. You go out and try to buy those kind of things when you've got only $8 a week.

"We eat bread, beans and a little rice," the woman said. "And it isn't easy watching your children cry for more food sometimes when there just isn't anymore to give. People in town say we poor people are lazy. Do you think I wouldn't work in a nice factory if I could? Do you think it wouldn't be easier than being out there in this filth with these flies and buzzards and these stinking pigs?

"You try coming out here and working for a day and see how your back feels the next day. Then you tell me if we're lazy."

The speech resulted in grave nods of approval from the other two women and grumbling agreement from a small knot of men that had gathered for coffee that was brewing over the fire by then.

None of the ragpickers would give his name. They all said they were afraid someone with the government would prevent them from entering the garbage dump if their names appeared in newspapers.

"We don't want any trouble," said one. "We could be worse off."

SLIM PICKINGS — Rag-pickers who make a living by plucking bones, cans, bottles and cardboard from Bogata's central garbage dump don't wait for the truck to finish dumping its load before they start grabbing for recyclable items. (AP Laserphoto)

Get Started On Discards

MIAMI (AP) — The 25 little hands raise their bows and place them gently on the strings. The Liberty City Elementary String Ensemble, a group of ghetto students making beautiful music from a collection of discarded instruments, is at it again.

Charles Mobley, a music teacher described by principal Henry Goa as "one of the most dedicated teachers I know," says he was determined to create an ensemble three years ago as part of his plan "to see that the whole child is educated."

"We want to prepare these kids to make choices," he said. "I feel they need this little extra in their lives. And they need it now."

There wasn't much of a budget at the ghetto school for violins, violas and cellos, but Mobley didn't let that stop him.

"We started out on pretty shaky ground," he said. "And we have been able to continue to exist with the help of other principals who let us dig into their closets to have the discarded instruments."

And there was some parental suspicion to overcome.

"Oh, I got the questions all right," Mobley said. "One parent wanted to know, 'Why do they have to play those old things?' But after the children learned how to play 'those old things,' those same parents became our biggest supporters."

Now, Mobley works with the ensemble every day after school, often staying until 6 p.m. He often uses his own money to repair the instruments.

"He gives hours of his pay to help these kids," said Goa. "You don't find that kind of dedication every day."

Why does Mobley do it?

"I see myself in many of these kids," he said. "Somehow, I managed to get some music lessons. And although I didn't have a piano, I managed to get in the practice I needed. And two years after I got out of high school, someone helped me to get into college.

"So, you see, whenever anyone asks me why, I simply say it's a repayment."

Wood-Burning Stoves Reduce Heating Costs

By MARTHA deWITT

How does a $500 reduction in home fuel oil heating costs sound? Or a savings of better than 60% in a mid-winter utility bill for a home using electric heat? Sound good? That type of savings on winter heating costs is precisely what three families report they are enjoying as a result of switching from conventional methods of heat to a much older but recently improved method—wood-burning stoves.

Greenville residents Ann and Hubert Burden and their daughters, Sarah, a fifth grader at Elmhurst School, and Kim, who is a junior at Rose High, are very enthusiastic about their special stove. They purchased the stove in August of 1977 after poring over volumes of literature on different types. "For our application," said Hubert, "we chose this one because it was so simple to install. It just hooks into the lintel of the chimney and is easily removable. No masonry alterations are required."

Their stove is modest in size and sits unobtrusively upon the hearth of the fireplace. "Hubert and I put it in one Sunday afternoon in about two hours. It isn't heavy," said Ann.

"It's a very efficient method of heating," she continued. "It's a very soothing type of heat. It helps to leave a kettle of water on the stove to return moisture to the air and offset the dry heat."

"Ours is strictly a wood burner," added Hubert. "It produces radiant heat. This is a key point as it is an air-tight baffled stove. There is a very slow and controlled type of combustion with thorough burning of wood and gases."

The severity of past winters coupled with the rising costs of fuel oil provided sufficient impetus in the Burdens' decision to buy a wood-burning stove. "Our long-range plan was to insulate our house and purchase the stove," said Hubert. Ann pointed out that " . . . a big part of the efficiency of the stove is that we added insulation. We didn't burn much oil last year. We heated our house almost totally with the stove, and it was a severe winter. There were some real cold spells. The temperature in the den (where the stove is) was in the 70's. The farthest place in the house was in the mid-60's, or six to eight degrees cooler. We were warmer last winter than we were in the previous three winters when we were pushing back the thermostat in order to conserve energy."

Hubert, who is an anatomy professor in the medical school at ECU, enjoys cutting wood with which to feed his stove. "It's sort of a fun thing to do," he admits. "I'm not much of a hunter, so this is an excuse for me to tromp around in the woods." Ann continued by saying, "Hubert uses a larger chain saw. I use a small one. The girls load the wood into the car. It's a good family outing and has been quite an experience."

The stove is equipped with a collapsible oven that sits on top. Said Ann, who is a biology teacher at North Pitt High School, "The heat from the stove lets you bake whatever you want. There's no bottom, so it gets the heat. It simmers at a very even temperature. Anything that cooks slowly is best. The oven is so economical, it's a great savings. Keeps you from using so much electrical current in the kitchen. It takes a little more planning for meals. If I were not working, I would use it much more. I do bake muffins in it in the morning, however."

When asked if the family misses viewing an open fire, Ann smiled and said, "We have a screen for that purpose. It reduces the efficiency of the stove, though."

Hubert recommends using hardwood for burning. "Any kind of oak or hickory—the best of the hardwoods—burns longer," he said.

As for consumption of fuel in the stove, Ann pointed out that, "At most, you have to feed the fire about four times every 24 hours: morning, early afternoon, around 8 p.m., and at bedtime."

In order to determine the amount of heat desired from the stove, Hubert sets the draft and damper controls accordingly for the rate of burning. "I leave the damper less than one-third open for all-day burning and the draft one-fifth open," he said.

Both Hubert and Ann were pleased when their total oil bill last winter amounted to eight dollars as opposed to the more than $500 spent the previous year for oil.

AROUND WOOD STOVE . . . Tara, Gary and D. K., children of Mr. and Mrs. Dan K. Wooten will stay warm by the wood-burning stove this winter, in the family home near Falkland.

THE WOOTENS

Phyllis and Dan Wooten and their three small children live about six miles west of Greenville in a heavily wooded area. Their spacious custom-built home with its 2,900 square feet of floor space has not yet fully tested the heating capacity of their new wood stove, but neither doubts that it will perform its intended job well even in the coldest weather.

Dan is director of housing at ECU and Phyllis worked as a home economist with the Extension Service before the couple's first child was born. D. K. is now six; Gary is three; and daughter, Tara, is 22 months.

Their basic reason for investing in a woodburning stove was the soaring cost of electric heat. The house has electric coils in the ceiling for radiant heat. After utility bills started going up, most of the house was closed off, including the upstairs, where D. K. and Gary will have private bedrooms when they are older. The thermostat in the master bedroom was kept at 60 degrees and the children's rooms were 68 degrees.

Phyllis recalled that although the stove was not purchased and installed until last March, there were still some rather chilly days. She and Dan opened the rooms that had been closed off and discovered that with outside temperatures of 33 degrees, the stove kept the den at a cozy 76 degrees and the other end of the downstairs at 70 degrees. Their utility bill for that month was $30 less even with the whole house opened up. They are confident that within less than a year the stove will pay for itself.

The Wootens have an abundance of trees on their property so they do not have to buy wood. "Dan cuts it and splits it, and the boys haul it," Phyllis said. "Most of it out here that we're using is oak and pine. Mostly oak because pine causes a creosote build-up which creates a problem."

"Maximum efficiency is one complete turn per knob," she continued. "More than that and you get back to the principle of using a fireplace. You lose efficiency in heating."

Their brand of stove has two knobs for determining draft and damper settings. With any wood-burning heater, the trick is to regulate the amount of air consumed, not the amount of wood.

"The only complaint I have," said Phyllis, "is the smoking. We get a lot of backdraft down the chimney because our chimney is not as tall as our second story. Other than that, I have been thrilled to death with the stove."

THE ELMORES

Chris and Ray Elmore have lived in various sections of the northern United States and are thus accustomed to bitterly cold temperatures. They and their two children, eight-year-old Jenny and Mark, who is 10, moved to Greenville in 1973 when Ray accepted a position as drawing instructor in the School of Art at ECU.

Prior to their move to Greenville, the family resided in New Hampshire where they had purchased a farmhouse. The structure was a rambling 1840 Cape Cod style with attached ells. In the barn the Elmores found a nineteenth century "Round Oak", a potbellied stove originally made in Michigan.

The "Round Oak" came with them when they moved to North Carolina and was put to full use in their new home as a major heating source when electric heat became so costly in the latter part of 1977. By heating totally with the old pot belly, Chris and Ray achieved a tremendous savings in their utility bills last winter. For example, during a span of one billing month, from Dec. 14, 1977, to Jan. 16, 1978, their total utility bill was $116.23 less than the same period the previous year.

The "Round Oak" is not nearly as efficient as a modern stove, however, and the Elmores decided to buy a new one in October, 1978. With the new model, the family expects to save the same amount of money but live more comfortably inside their home.

"Last year," said Chris, who is a first grade teacher's aide at Elmhurst School, "considering we kept the house cool, everyone was healthier and had fewer colds. We all slept in sleeping bags."

The old stove has been set up in a room that Ray is constructing next to his studio which was converted from the garage. When the pot belly was in use in the main living area, it had to be stoked every three or four hours. "When it was very cold last year," Ray said, "I used to get up around 3 or 4 a.m. and stoke it and read a book on solar heating. I finished the book in three weeks," he laughed.

As for the new stove, he continued, "we stoke it up and let it go and let it die down. But I'm curious to see how well it heats up the whole house on a round-the-clock basis."

Ray has found that the fastest way to start the fire is with a combination of kindling wood and strips of paper. "I just load it up and when the air surrounds it, it produces a great deal of heat."

All three families extol the merits of modern woodburning stoves as an efficient method of heating as well as a surefire means of saving on home heating fuel costs. In addition, they share an enjoyment of the down-to-earth feeling they get from the use of their stoves. Ray summed up this attitude by admitting, "I enjoy chopping logs and building the fire. For me it's an aesthetic, outdoorsy kind of thing."

MRS. ROBERT HUE WALLACE JR.

Wallace-Owens Vows Exchanged

FOUNTAIN — The Fountain Presbyterian Church was the scene of the holy union of Miss Mary Kathryn Owens and Robert Hue Wallace Jr. Saturday evening at 7:30 in a double ring candlelight ceremony performed by the Rev. W. Marshall Tredway.

The church was decorated with two brass, seventeen-branched candelabras and one fifteen branch tree adorned with ivy and white ribbons. To signify their union, the unity candles were lighted by the couple. A prie-dieu was provided for the couple to kneel for the benediction. Reserved pews were designated with white satin bows and pew cards were used.

Mrs. Susan Byers of Greenville presented traditional organ music. The bride's brother, Charles Owens from Raleigh, and sister, Mrs. Patricia Williams sang a duet "Devoted to You." Her brother provided the music on guitar. The bride's brother also composed a wedding song for the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. James Owens of Fountain and Mrs. Ora Louise Mabrey of Rocky Mount. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hue Wallace of Jackson, Miss.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown of silkened organza over peau de soie. The bodice double rows of Italian lace trimming the V-neckline, empire waist and forming a V in the back. The lace also encircled the full bishop sleeves and cuffletts. The circular skirt fell into an attached chapel train bordered with matching lace. Her headpiece was a Camelot cap of lace and pearls, to match her dress, attached to the flowing chiffon. She carried a bouquet of roses and gysophilia.

Mrs. Patricia Williams, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Vivan Powell of Raleigh, Cheryl Aldridge, Sue Cannon, Barbara Tipton, all of Greenville, and Debbie Patterson of Raleigh. The attendants wore formal gowns of deep wine, accented with a short waist jacket with matching lace at the neckline. They carried bouquets of pink poinsettias surrounded by greenery and white lace, accented with pink ribbon.

The flower girl, Leslie Powell, wore a white formal organza gown with lace trim. She is the bride's god-child. She carried a basket of pink and red rose petals.

The ring bearer was Chuck Owens, nephew of the bride. He carried a white pillow and the Bible.

Mr. Wallace was best man for his son. Ushers included brothers of the bride, Charles Owens of Raleigh and James Ownes of Farmville. Other ushers were Wayne Hall, Mark Tipton and Ray Cannon, all of Greenville.

The mother of the bride chose a formal two-piece gown of mauve complemented with a chiffon accordion pleated top. The bridegroom's mother selected a formal teal blue qiana gown. Both outfits were complemted with corsages of pink orchids.

For her bridal trip, the bride wore a pale blue dress and a light gray dress coat. She wore her mother's corsage.

The couple will reside in Greenville after a wedding trip to Colonial Williamsburg.

The bride attended East Carolina University. She is a teacher at H. B. Sugg School in Farmville. The bridegroom attended Mississippi State University and is employed at ECU as assistant football coach.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the King and Queen in Greenville, for the wedding party and guests Friday. Following the dinner ,a cocktail party was given in honor of the bridal couple. The party was given by the bride's brother Charles, her sister Patricia and Andy Little of Chapel Hill.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Our economy is in the news a lot these days.

Every time I read of a move by the president to remedy the situation, I say a silent prayer: "Please, God, don't let him borrow from Amy. We're not that desperate."

People who have never borrowed from children could possibly see it as a way out. After all, it is a fact that children control the wealth of this country. But, for those parents who have ever tapped them for a loan, it's an experience one never forgets..

It was children who first initiated some of the loan expressions we have come to know and fear. Expressions like: "I'll break both of your legs," "How would you like a cement overcoat?" and "I understand you have a mother in Jersey."

I had a neighbor once who fell upon hard times and had to withdraw $700 from her son's savings account. The kid had a wire service for a mouth. No group was too small to enlighten with all the intimate details and confidences surrounding the loan and the repayment. One night he came into a cocktail party in his pajamas, went over to his mother, kissed her lightly on both cheeks and announced loudly, "Noon tomorrow."

Somehow, it seemed cruel when you stopped to consider that the $700 was the first payment to the orthodontist on the kid's overbite.

You never really realize how much wealth a child can accrue until you stop to consider these facts:

(a) A child does not pay for room, board, medical expenses, entertainment, charitable contributions, education, clothing, travel or herbal shampoo;

(b) He gets an allowance for breathing;

(c) Grandparents conspire to make him or her independently wealthy before the age of six;

(d) As soon as he is able to unclench his fist, he places a pocket-size computer in it and becomes a major lending institution.

Frankly, I'm worried about the president's wage insurance policy where people with wage increases that are held below 7 percent in a given year would get a tax rebate if inflation rose more than 7 percent in the same year.

The kids in the treehouses aren't going to like that. And if they're not happy, every adult in this country with an outstanding debt could be in big trouble.

Miss Susan Beth Bishop Weds

STATESVILLE — Susan Beth Bishop and Mark Douglas Ulbrich were married Saturday at 4 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here. Dr. Frank Ross Campbell officiated at the ceremony.

MRS. MARK DOUGLAS ULBRICH

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lee Bishop of Statesville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Julius Ulbrich of Meadville, Pa.

The bride wore a formal gown of taffeta overlaid with silk organza, fashioned with an empire waist. The neckline and long cascade sleeves were accented with Venise lace and organza ruching with Venise lace motifs scattered on the bodice and chapel train. Mrs. Danny Johnson, sister of the bride, designed the bride's fingertip veil of English illusion attached to a Camelot cap of Venise lace. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, miniature carnations and baby's breath, centered with white silk rosebuds and wore an antique crystal and diamond lavalier, a gift from her paternal grandmother. She also carried a handmade lace handkerchief, a gift from her maternal grandmother. The bride was escorted by her father.

Mrs. Roy Jackson Grant Jr. of Statesville, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Mrs. Edgar Danny Johnson of Statesville, sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid. They wore dresses of Dior blue qiana styled with tucked, long sleeved bodices and draped floor length skirts. The dresses were accented with covered buttons and obi belts. The attendants carried bouquets of natural wheat, yellow and orange straw flowers and baby's breath, tied with brandywine ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length peach shirtwaist gown accented with pearl trim, complemented with a beige cymbidium orchid. The mother of the bridegroom chose a light pink floor length gown with pleated skirt and sheer pleated capelet. She also wore a cymbidium corsage. Mrs. Howard C. Bishop of Statesville, paternal grandmother of the bride, was remembered with a yellow orchid corsage.

Bryan Patrick McDonald of New Rochelle, N. Y., served as best man. Ushers included Roy Jackson Grant Jr. of Statesville, brother-in-law of the bride, Edgar Danny Johnson of Statesville, brother-in-law of the bride, and Steve Powers of Memphis, Tenn.

C. A. Kirby III of Staesville, organist, Mrs. C. A. Kirby III of Statesville, pianist and Charles Raymond Bolden of Salisbury, soloist and cousin of the bride, presented the nuptial music.

Wedding director was Mrs. C. F. Williams Jr. of Statesville. The guest register was presided over by Mrs. Dewey W. Taylor of Statesville.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents in the Adams Hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth with corner accents of yellow and green. Bronze, gold and yellow daisy mums flanked by silver candelabra with blue tapers served as the centerpiece. Mrs. Herbert Lee Bower of Columbia, S.C., and Mrs. Norman Joseph Warner of Statesville, cousins of the bride, served punch and Mrs. James Orlando Williams and Mrs. Lynn Evans Reighard, aunt and cousin of the bride of Asheville served cake. Mr. and Mrs. George Truett Rhyne greeted guests and Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Cook said the good-byes, both couples of Statesville.

After a wedding trip to Pennsylvania, the couple will reside in Ayden.

The bride is a graduate of Statesville High School and East Carolina University. She is employed in the New-Born Intensive Care Unit at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Meadville Senior High School and served in the U. S. Marine Corp. He is employed by Dupont, Kinston.

ARMENIAN ART

NEW YORK (AP) — The first exhibit of modern Soviet Armenian art ever held in the Western Hemisphere opens Oct. 5 at the Armenian General Benevolent Union of America Gallery and will continue until Oct. 15.

The approaching of graduation was noted by the seniors at Rose High last week as orders were taken for caps and gowns. In order to determine the color to be worn, a vote was taken and this year's senior class decided to follow tradition — the girls will wear white and the boys will be in dark blue during the graduation exercises in June.

On Wednesday night several members of the Wildlife Club met to enjoy a covered-dish supper followed by a slide presentation by John Farley and a talk on waterfowl. Marvin Blount will speak on marlin fishing at the next meeting.

Congratulations are extended to Stacy Mills and Lee Hardee, club members, who scored first and second place respectively in a skeet shooring contest held last Sunday.

Another club had the pleasure of listening to a guest speaker last week, the Spanish Club. On Thursday afternoon, Marina Santos, a Rose student, conducted a slide presentation on Brazil, her home country. In addition to showing slides, she showed several posters and explained various aspects of Brazilian life such as customs, agrieulture and terrain.

On Dec. 12, the Spanish Club members plan to meet for a Christmas party. Refreshments will consist of various Spansih dishes prepared by club members.

In order to raise money to support its Christmas program, the Drama Club held a bake sale after school Thursday.

For the second week, students continued to participate in this year's fund raising project, selling candy. High salesmen include Tori Dickens, Gwen Gay, Leslie Graham, Beverly Harris, Gloria Oakley, John Richards, Karen Wheeler and Teresa Williams.

The Juniorettes, a newly formed service club sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville, sponsored a dance at the school last night. Music was provided by a local disc jockey and several dance contests were held.

Couple Weds Saturday In Afternoon Ceremony

BELVOIR — Ms. Gail Barnhill Clark and Alfred Quinn Bostic Jr. were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Frank Brinson performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barnhill of Belvoir and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Quinn Bostic Sr. of Winterville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Edith Barnhill, pianist, and Mrs. Nell Clark, daughter-in-law of the bride, vocalist. Selections included "Whither Thou Goest," "Twelfth of Never" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with a wedding basket of white carnations, holly and berries complemented by arched candelabra entwined with ivy and a red velvet bow. Poinsettias, ferns and candelabra completed the scene. Each window featured a single candleholder with holly and berries. Family pews were marked with red velvet bows.

The register table was accented with holly, berries and a red velvet bow. Mrs. Christine Ownes of Tarboro presided at the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, chose a pink gown with a lace bodice extending into a full skirt of polyester. The long sleeves of pink sheer ended in lace cuffs. The gown was worn with a sleeveless formal length coat of matching lace. Her chapel length veil of pink illusion was attached to a crown with a bow and streamers. Her bouquet was a corsage of red satin roses with ivy and streamers centered on a white satin and lace covered Bible.

Mrs. Carol Pennell of Fountain was honor attendant and wore a gown of red polyester crepe fashioned with an empire waist with a white bodice and lace overlay extending to long sleeves ending in lace cuffs. She carried long-stemmed satin roses with matching streamers.

Both mothers were given corsages of red satin roses. Mrs. Berry Bostic, grandmother of the bridegroom, was given a corsage of white satin roses.

The parents of the bride entertained the wedding party and family at a rehearsal party Friday evening at their home. Decorations included Christmas flowers and candles.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Belvoir.

Engagement Announced

MISS CINDY SUE BUCK. . .Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Ball announce the engagement of her daughter to Andrew Leon Moore Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Leon Moore of Monroe. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. Ronald C. Buck of Ayden. The wedding will take place Feb. 3.

CPS Courses To Continue

The series of courses designed to help prepare students to take the Certified Professional Secretaries' exam in May will continue with the section on business law and public policy.

Classes will begin Tuesday, Dec. 5, and will continue for six sessions. Instructor for the course will be Donna King. Time for the classes will be 7-10 p.m. at Pitt Technical Institute.

Membership in the National Secretaries Association is not required to attend these courses, although the local chapter is sponsoring the course. All interested secretaries and employers are invited to attend. The registration fee is $5 for the six sessions.

E-SU Members To Hear Speaker

Dr. Albert G. Edwards, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, will address members of the Greenville Brach of the English-Speaking Union at a dinner meeting Wednesday.

The meeting will be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club and will begin at 7 p.m. with an informal social hour.

A native of Scotland, Dr. Edwards' address will be on the life of Saint Andrew, the Patron Saint of Scotland.

Reservations for the meeting must be made by noon Tuesday with the secretary, Miss Annie Turner.

Miss Whitehurst Weds Mr. Padgett Saturday

Miss Kathryn King Whitehurst and Robert Brantley Padgett were united in marriage Saturday in St. James United Methodist Church here in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Dewey Tyson. The ceremony was held at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Warren Whitehurst of Kinston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Becton Padgett of Greenville.

The church was decorated with a vase of mixed white flowers, spiral candelabra and a fern arrangement on each side of the altar table. The pews were marked with white velvet bows and greenery.

Nuptial music was provided by organist Mrs. Francis Cain and soloist Bobby Carnes of Richmond, Va. Vocal selections included "More" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a white gown of polyester organza and chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a high sheer neckline and an empire bodice accenuated with chantilly lace, tiny seed pearls and bordered with satin ribbon which formed a bow and streamed down the streamers. The long bishop sleeves were enhanced with motifs of lace and the full circular skirt featured a flounce attached to the chapel train. Her headpiece was a bandeau of chantilly lace attached to fingertip tiers of silk illusion bordered with matching lace. She carried a natural cascade of miniature red carnations, gypsophilia and Christmas greens.

Honor attendants included Rita Ross and Faye Williamson, both of Greenville. Junior bridesmaid was Elizabeth Whitehurst, sister of the bride. They wore formal gowns of red knit designed with a cowl neckline and empire bodice. The waistline featured a trapunta overlay at center front from which the self-fabric tie sash extended to the back. The sleeveless gowns were accentuated by a full circular knife pleated skirt. Each girl carried three white carnations with Christmas greeneray and gypsophilia tied with white and red velvet ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were William Covington of Winterville, Rudy Daughtry of Kenly and Jay Whitehurst of Kinston, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of nile green. The mother of the bridegroom wore a floor length gown of mint green. They were remembered with corsages of white roses. The grandmothers were presented with corsages of white carnations.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Katherine Vinson.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall given by the parents of the bride. The bride's table was decorated with an epergne arrangement of red carnations, Christmas greens and red candles. The four-tier cake was cut by the bride and bridegroom, and served by Mrs. Orman Whichard, aunt of the bride. The punch was poured by Mrs. Dallas Linton, aunt of the bridegroom and Mrs. Pauline Ross, great-aunt of the bride. Katherine Holt presided at the guest register.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bridegroom is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and Wayne Community College. He is currently employed with New River Wood Corporation in New Bern. The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and is currently attending Pitt Technical Institute.

A rehearsal party was held in the fellowhip hall on Friday, given by the parents of the bridegroom.

Vows Said In Raleigh Saturday

RALEIGH — The White Memorial Presbyterian Church was the scene of the Saturday wedding ceremony of Frances Lee Haigler of Raleigh and Roy Victor Taylor Jr. of New Smyrna Beach, Fla. Dr. Edwin Pickard and the Rev. Polk Moffett officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Esterbrook Haigler Jr. of Raleigh. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Victor Taylor of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of peau de soie, featuring an empire bodice and full length bishop sleeves, overlaid with re-embroidered lace. The deep, scalloped neckline was edged with seed pearls and the skirt flowed into a chapel length train. A lace embroidered fingertip veil was attached to a Juliet cap decorated with seed pearls. The bride carried a cascade of pink rosebuds, miniature white carnations, and baby's breath, accented with stephanotsis.

Maid of honor was Miss Melinda Clement of Jackson, Miss. Bridesmaids were Katherine Moore and Carole Locke, both of Raleigh, and Mrs. Beth Thomson Haigler of Elizabeth City, sister-in-law of the bride. Miss Tavener Haigler of Elizabeth City, niece of the bride, served as flower girl.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of dusty rose qiana featuring long sleeves, peasant necks and accordian pleated skirts. They carried nosegays of pink sweetheart roses, miniature carnations, orchid pom pons and baby's breath. The flower girl chose a formal length burgundy velveteen jumper with a white long-sleeve blouse with laced ruffle collar. She carried a basket of pink sweetheart roses, miniature carnations, orchid pom pons and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of ice blue qiana and a white miniature orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal length gown of mint chiffon with long sleeves and fluted collar. She wore a white miniature orchid corsage. The grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Theodore Haigler of Columbia, S. C., wore a corsage of white miniature orchids.

Best man was Ronald Ausherman of Deland, Fla. Ushers included John Edwards and John Alpiser, both of Raleigh, Mark Johnson of Signal Mountain, Tenn., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Harvey Haigler of Raleigh and Ted Haigler of Elizabeth City, brothers of the bride.

The bride attended East Carolina University and Peace College. The bridegroom attended North Carolina State University and graduated from Asheville-Buncombe Technical Institute.

A dinner was given following the rehearsal at the Velvet Cloak Inn, Raleigh, by the parents of the bridegroom for the wedding party. A wedding breakfast was held Saturday, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Garth Quinn of Raleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coe of Raleigh at the Coe's home for the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests.

Cotillion Club Party Planned

Grice, 1850s colonial mansion, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Coward, contemporary, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Paylor Jr., cottage, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Oxford Jr., Williamsburg. The Gordon Street Christian Church will also be open.

The homes will be open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and all will include handmade and heirloom items, antique furnishings and special holiday decorations. The church santuary will be decorated for the traditional Advent season and will feature native greenery, hand-dipped candles and custom bows.

"Christmas in Colonial Edenton: Then and Now" will include three houses and two public buildings decorated with traditional greenery and berries from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Dec. 6-7 and from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10. The Cupola House Association will initiate the holiday season with the annual wassail bowl party Dec. 5 from 5-7 p.m. An old English custom, guests at the wassail will be entertained by carols and Christmas music. Special decorations will be provided by the Garden of Eden Club.

The Iredell House and the Barker House will also be open on these two days and the following Sunday afternoon. The Barker House Visitor Center, home of Penelope Barker of Edenton Tea Party fame, will be made especially attractive by the hostesses who guide the Historic Edenton Tour.

Christmas decorations, done by the Altar Guild under the direction of Mrs. John Graham, will be featured at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Chowan County Courthouse will show suitable holiday decorations for public buildings, due to the efforts of the Chowan County Home Economics Extension Service.

Visitors are welcome to visit the historic buildings.

Mrs. Dewar Is NSA Speaker

Mrs. Thadys Dewar, associate professor at ECU and proctor for the Certified Professional Secretaries' exam, was guest speaker at the November meeting of the local chapter of the National Secretaries Association.

Speaking on the subject of the CPS exam, Mrs. Dewar outlined the general topics covered by the exam, suggested sources of reference and review and gave tips on preparation for the test.

Claudette Fonseca was named a member during the business session. Ellen Webb, ways and means chairman, reported on the photography project and Civic and Social Chairman Roberta Herring thanked members for the 100 percent participation in the Thanksgiving project and gave details for the Christmas project. She also told of the holiday social for members and prospective members.

CPW and Education Committee Chairman Betty Thompson reported the business law section of the CPS Review Courses will begin Dec. 5 at Pitt Tech.

Halley's Comet was first discovered at Heidelberg in 1909.

DEAR ABBY: I am not a mixed-up teenager. I am a 22-year-old woman who has seen a lot of life.

When I was 15 I got involved with a married man and ended up with a baby and no husband. This is a small town and the word got around fast. After that I had the reputation of being easy, and 10 minutes after I was with a guy, I had a fight on my hands. (Why is it that men think just because a girl has made one mistake she has nothing to lose?)

When I try to explain that I've turned over a new leaf they think I'm putting on an act. How is a girl who has learned her lesson and changed her ways supposed to act?

NEW LEAF

DEAR LEAF: She is supposed to act like a lady and, after she's acted that way consistently, she will have convinced one and all that she has changed.

If she loses the man, she's lucky because she'll know he wasn't looking for a respectable girl. And, by the way, it's easier to live down a past if you change pastures.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a married man for nearly five years. I love him and he is like a father to my son whose father is dead.

He says he loves me, can't live without me, but he's trapped in an unhappy marriage (three children) and doesn't have the courage to leave his wife.

I've tried several times to give him up, but he always talks me out of it.

His wife knows about me and has told him she doesn't care what he does as long as he stays married to her.

I'm at an age where it seems impossible to meet single men, and I desperately want a man of your own. Can you help me?

TIRED OF CHEATING

DEAR TIRED: If you want a man of your own, say goodbye to him. And the sooner the better.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is a freshman who's away at college. We send her an allowance to cover smaller items, but she sends us all her larger bills and her father pays them.

She telephones us quite often, but she never writes. However, she is very prompt about sending us her bills which she sends off in an envelope without one personal word. It would mean so much if she just wrote, "love" and signed her name.

I suppose if I were to tell her how hurt her father and I are because of her thoughtlessness, she'd scribble a little duty note, but if we have to ask her for it we'd rather not have it.

I suppose this seems petty, but when I saw that postscript at the bottom of your column saying, "you'll feel better if you get it off your chest," I had to write.

There! I wrote, and got it off my chest. Believe it or not, I feel better. Thanks, Abby.

OFF MY CHEST IN DENVER

CONFIDENTIAL TO VIRGO IN S.F.: The healing of a relationship that has been strained (or broken) can be compared with the healing of a broken arm.

Merely saying that everything is all right and never referring to the matter again won't help. It's like ignoring a broken arm, favoring it, and expecting it to heal miraculously. It won't. It has to be straightened out and carefully reset. This is understandably painful, but it's necessary because a break which hasn't mended properly will never be able to stand much pressure.

Share Holiday Card Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — The resurgence of interest in religious themes, which set a trend in last year's Christmas greeting cards, continues unabated this season, according to a spot survey of the nation's greeting card publishers.

Early Americana, the culinary arts and a veritable who's who in the animal kingdom rank as the most popular subjects for this year's greetings, closely followed by Santa as a marathon runner instead of the jogger he was last year.

"Christmas greeting cards generally reflect the tenor of the times," said Harry J. Cooper, executive director of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishsrs.

"The months of negotiation prior to the summit meehing at Camp David focused public attention on an international quest for peace. In part this may account for many cards that combine the themes of peace with the traditional scenes of ths Nativity."

Commenting on Santa as a marathon man, Cooper said, "A vast number of Americans are literally running away with themselves. Our national mania for marathons has Santa in this role, although many publishers continue to depict him as an all-around sports buff.

Siamese cats and kittens, raccoons and koala bears abound on greeting cards. On one, Santa drops in on a peaceable animal kingdom where, allegorically, the beasts of the forest live in harmony.

The traditional staple mf scenic, snow-clad landscapes continues in the lines of many publishers. Thsse cards sell extremely well in urban areas, according to Cooper, who believes that city dwellers like them because the subjechs evoke a remembrance, for many, of childhood in the country.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 3, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A series of minor annoyances can be in effect now that keep you from achieving wanted results. So long as you operate in an ethical manner, you accomplish a great deal now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you do nothing that can jeopardize your reputation today. Not the ideal time for expansion. Drive with utmost care, especially in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your hunches are not good today and you could make some bad decisions, so sleep on them first. Showing courtesy for loved one can cause that person to come to your way of thinking.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have to be more subtle if you want to gain your points now. Handle correspondence intelligently after you have sorted it out as to importance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your associations and know where it is best to make changes, and have more harmony. Little irritations crop up but they can be remedied easily.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan time to show gratitude to those who have done you favors in the past. No better day to attend to a minor health matter. Try to get more rest.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is better to forego pleasure for today and wait for a more auspicious time. Be more willing to please loved ones by showing courtesy, attention. Make this a home day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make those needed changes at home and come to a better understanding with kin. You need new interests, but this is not a good day to get involved in them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) This is a good time to improve relations with those close to you, whether by blood or distance. Take time to listen to the finest philosophical tenets. Raise your level of consciousness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study monetary problems well and know how best to handle them. If repairs to property are needed, count the cost and find right helpers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your regular activities well and know what changes need to be made, if any. Go after personal aims since the social could prove boring or unsatisfactory.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Look for the best means of advancing which have eluded you in the past. Not a good day to confer with an adviser, so wait for a day or so. Dine with close friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Analyze your position with the public in general and try to improve it in some way. You need more outlets to make life more interesting.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have much ability at organizing and handling practical matters well, and should be given a chance to do so early in life. Teach early not to argue wth others and waste valuable energy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It is best to wait until later in the day before going ahead with a project you have in mind. Take no risks with your credit.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You find it difficult to get much done early in the day, but by adding new methods you speed up later. Avoid the social tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Risks should not be taken at this time. Some special thought for loved one will bring fine benefits to you at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Await the afternoon for any improvements you want to make at home. The evening is fine for entertaining friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show more cooperation with with associates and get much acomplished. Take no chances with your reputation tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find better ways to add to present abundance. Sidestep one who could be detrimental to your progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There may be annoying delays in the morning, but later you make up for lost time. Show others that you are clever.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to study others and learn much from them. The evening is ideal for making long-range plans for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have many progressive ideas and should be sent to modern schools for best results. There could be fame in this chart. A highly inventive mind here. One who will excel in sports as well as spiritual matters.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The day starts out with little progress being made, but many opportunities present themselves later in the day. Be sure not to make any promises that are likely to be broken.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid friends early in the day since they could prove detrimental to your business affairs, but later they are helpful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you don't irk a higher-up in the morning, you can make big strides in your career work. Obey all regulations that apply to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you study new projects, you can make this an interesting and profitable day. Obtain the data you need for progress.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You must use good judgment in handling money or you could end up in trouble. Be careful of strangers.

Completes His Doctorate Work

ECU News Bureau

Daryl George, lecturer in the East Carolina University Department of Mathematics, has completed the requirements for the PhD degree at the University of Kansas.

His doctoral dissertation, "Homology with Models," deals with a branch of algebraic topology, having applications in electronic circuit theory, brain architecture and artificial (machine) intelligence.

George reported on this research at last year's national meeting of the American Mathematical Society in Atlanta. His doctoral research was partly supported by the National Science Foundation and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Scientists Say Mice Will Be First To Be Cloned

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — In a year or two, scientists will crouch over microscopes and delicately rearrange the insides of single living cells. If they do it exactly right, a mouse will give birth to the world's first litter of mammal clones.

The nondescript little squeakers — identical in every possible way — will be living, squirming proof of scientists' ability to tinker with creation. For the mice will be the highest beings ever produced by cloning, a sexless engineering that replaces the genetic freefor-all that has always been nature's way.

At Worcester Polytechnic Institute and Yale, scientists are unraveling the last secrets of this test tube form of reproduction. Their first goal is to build a better mouse. And someday their work may lead to a better pig or cow or even, in one novel vision of the future, a human being with spare parts.

Cloning is the creation of an animal's perfect twin. Scientists take a single cell from anywhere in the animal's body and use it to make a baby copy exactly the same down to the last gene. Until now, the highest animal ever cloned has been a frog. But a frog is primitive compared with a mouse, which like dogs, cats and people, is a mammal.

But though scientists are almost ready to try to clone a mouse, they disagree over where it will lead or even whether it will work.

"I have no doubt that it will occur, whether we do it or someone else," says Audrey Muggleton-Harris of Worcester Polytech, who has a federal grant to clone a mouse. But Clement Markert of Yale, another potential clonist, says the procedure may be biologically impossible.

Cloning got considerable notice last spring, when science writer David Rorvik published a book called "In His Image." It purported to be an account of the cloning of an aging millionaire. But Rorvik presented no solid evidence, and many scientists believe it a hoax.

Cloning is fraught with possibilities. Normally, a baby animal has two sets of genes, one from its mother and one from its father. The offspring's body is a mixture of the characteristics of his ancestors. It is impossible to predict exactly how it will turn out.

With clones, there's no guesswork. Each has the genes of only one parent, and it models the parent in every way. If mammal cloning works, scientists say the process will probably be automated, and technicians can turn out millions of reproductions of any animal they think the world needs.

Ms. Muggleton-Harris doubts this kind of mass production will go beyond the mouse anytime soon. "Most embroyologists are purely interested in getting cloned mice," she said. "This will produce a fantastic tool with which they can pursue a lot of their studies."

The mouse is a favorite research tool. It's small, prolific and has been subjected to so many studies that its workings are well understood. But it's not perfect. If one mouse gets sicker when given an experimental drug while another gets better, the scientists must ask why. Because of treatment or a genetic difference in the mice?

If all research mice are the same, one researcher will be able to duplicate another's experiment with identical cloned rodents.

Markert says he'd like to clone farm animals so farmers could produce entire herds of their best milk cow or most tender Hereford.

"Many bulls are worth a million dollars," says Markert. "The economic value in cloning them is clear. The same is true to a lesser degree with all domestic animals, such as pigs, sheep and goats. But cows would be by far the most important."

A farfetched application comes from Paul Segal, a microbiologist at the University of California at Berkeley. He says everyone could have his own clone stored away in case a lung or liver must be replaced.

"If one could intervene in the very early development of the clone's brain and prevent the cortex from developing, one could then produce a genetic duplicate that would not be a person but really a parts bank," Segal says. "Ultimately, the heart, kidneys, all the vital organs, could be transplanted back to the original person."

It would be far superior because the recipient's body would not reject the new organ. "It may be 10 or 20 years away," Segal says. "But provided there's no real technical reason why we can't clone people. Crippled people could get limbs; people who have eye defects could see again. The potential benefits are just amazing."

Ms. Muggleton-Harris hopes to clone her first mouse within two years. She has a $207,000 grant from the National Eye Institute. Here's how she'll do it:

First, remove an egg cell from a female mouse. Put it in a chemical called cytochalasinB. This pulls the nucleus from the egg. Next, remove a cell from anywhere in a mouse — in this case, the eye. Take the nucleus from that cell and transplant it in the egg.

Now the egg has a full set of genes. With luck, it will begin to divide and grow. After two or three days, plant it in a female mouse tricked into thinking it's pregnant. The mouse carries the tiny embroyo for three weeks, the normal gestation period, and gives birth to an exact copy of the mouse that gave the eye cell.

The Worcester scientists will perform the delicate nucleus swap under microscopes inside a germ-free plastic tent. They plan to plant 14 manipulated eggs into one mouse, but keeping the eggs alive through this mini-operation is a problem.

"That's the stage we're at right now —trying to see how much abuse the mouse egg can stand and then develop normally," says Ms. Muggleton-Harris. "If you don't put it back into the recipient, it will stop dividing. You have to get it back before this happens."

Markert says cloning may turn out to be a pipe dream.

"No one has ever cloned adult mammals," he said. "It may be that the nuclei from adult cells just simply can't replace an egg nucleus. If that's true, then no technology is going to bring about cloning."

Markert says he has no money set aside to clone a mouse, but he has learned most of the techniques from other experiments, and plans to try it within the next year.

"Once I get all of the mechanics worked out to actually clone a mouse, it wouldn't cost anything," he said. "We've already spent the money to do the important things. I could go into the laboratory and clone a mouse in one afternoon for free."

Children Of Rhodesia Air Feelings On Homeland

EDITOR'S NOTE — They didn't start it and they don't want it, but they're caught in it. Rhodesia's children, black and white, have spent half their lives in the path of a brutal guerrilla conflict. In some touching essays, they express their feelings about war and their country.

By SERGE SCHMEMANN
Associated Press Writer

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) —Rhodesia's children see their country as carefree romps in the untouched bush and nights of terror; legends told around tribal campfires and daytime visits by gunmen.

Those themes weave through stories by black and white children in a nationwide competition titled "Rhodesia Through a Child's Eyes."

They tell of bush fires, sunsets, game parks, awed visits to cities, tribal customs and legends, racial and tribal differences. And they write — with fear, pride, horror and wisdom — of the war they have known for more than half their lives.

The terror is worst for black children in isolated villages. "I do not sleep in the night ..."writes Timothy Sikwiye, 10. "There are many soldiers moving in the night. There are many magandagas (guerrillas) in the area.

"Many peoples were killed in the night in Siabuwa ... I am afraid of the soldiers and the magandagas.

"Help me please. I am afraid. where can I go?"

The stories reflect a war in which black nationalist guerrillas demand food and loyalty one day, Rhodesian soldiers demand information the next. In many essays, soldiers and guerrillas are fused into a single, indiscriminate terror.

"We ordinary people go in the bush for cutting poles," writes 10-year-old Lifasi Ncube. "You meet them. They say it is you whom they are looking for. After that you will be given hard punishment or your village is burnt for no reason. Sometimes I go looking after the cattle in the bush, then I meet them. I try to run away, because I am afraid to see such people carrying weapons which are fierce."

The competition, sponsored by the Salisbury Jaycees, drew mostly black entrants from rural schools. The war is less frequently mentioned by white children. When it is, stories often reflect the bravado of their parents, as in this poem by 13year-old Adam Jaffe:

"The soldiers all brave and bold
"Head towards this kraal
"These are the men whom we all admire
"The greatest and bravest Rhodesian soldiers."

But Philip Rushbrooke, 11, writes: "I sometimes feel quite sad when I see young men going to fight the terrible war. Some of them may come back to their families. Some of them may spend the rest of their life in a wheelchair, crippled ... So all you little children with your toy machine guns and rifles ...just read this story and you will see that it is not just running around firing guns."

The entries, many illustrated and some in verse, reflect Rhodesia's high education level — both in rural mission schools and mostly white city schools — before the escalating guerrilla war.

About a quarter of the rural schools have been closed, some after bloody massacres of teachers. Moses Mubayiwa, 11, writes of St. Albert's Mission near the Mozambique border: "Our school is very beautiful, more than the word beautiful. There are water systems, toilets, iron door frames and large windows as well as iron roofs. It is one of the best schools around here. Oh, our mission is as pretty as a new dress."

Hunike Mgulube, 10, opens with praise for Rhodesia he seems to have borrowed from prescribed texts. But as an afterthought he adds:

"Today many people are dying, and many schools are closed and some have burned. ... There is no peace in Rhodesia ... I think our school will be closed. I will be sad and I will say bad things about Rhodesia."

But there's another Rhodesia to its children — a vast, varied playground. The majority of stories, in fact, are about ordered life on the kraal or in tribal villages; on ranches and farms; of visits to game parks or to Lake Kariba.

S. Landy, a 12-year-old white: "From the rolling low veld to the Chimanimani Mountains, from the Gumba to Lake Kariba, there is still much wild beauty which has not yet been destroyed by man."

Sibanda Bakezela, 12, writes lovingly of harmony on the kraal, particularly of the evening campfire among thatched, mud-walled huts:

"Before we go to sleep my grandfather and some boys sit at a bonfire. Then all my family sit around it, listening to stories told by my grandparents. Sometimes early in the morning grandfather wakes all the little boys and tell them his life history as a little boy, and teaches them how to do woodwork."

Race differences are infrequently referred to, perhaps because most children attend separate schools, and blacks and whites rarely mix.

But Sama Chiyani, 12, discussing different customs between "Africans" and "Europeans," notes that black men always eat separately from their families, while whites eat all together.

"But the wrong part of them is that they do not want to eat with an African," she writess.

Ethel Sibanda, 11, applies a racial interpretation to the guerrilla war: "The soldiers are fighting against the African people for the country Rhodesia. The African people want the country Rhodesia but the whites are saying 'no' is our country."

In one entry, race is surmounted Michael Culey, 13, lives on a farm where his close friend is "a small African boy called Liquorice."

Culey relates their hunting and exploring in the bush, and concludes with a story about how Liquorice found the way back when they got lost. That night he thinks: "Sometimes I wonder what I would do without Liquorice for he really led me out of a jam today and many other occasions too. You can never compare the knowledge an African has of the bush to any white man and I think it's a great honor to be a friend of one."

Family Deep In Scouting

CINCINNATI (AP) — Scouting is a family affair at the home of Albert and Matilde Hidalgo.

When Mrs. Hidalgo was chosen recently as one of only 12 Scout leaders to represent America at the 1978 World of People International Conference in Mexico, it wasn't the first time that a Hidalgo had represented the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Hidalgo's 17-year-old daughter, Maria, went in the summer of 1977 as one of the American representatives to the international Girl Scout summer program in Sweden and Denmark for six weeks.

This past summer, Ana, 16, represented the Girl Scouts at a conference in Hawaii.

"I teach my children always to give service, to do for others," Mrs. Hidalgo said. "That's why Girl Scouts is so good for them. Many others, they don't like to be Scouts when they get older. I told my girls to stay with it."

"Some of the girls I know would say, 'Are you still a Girl Scout?' I'd come back with 'Yes, and look where it got me — halfway around the world already,'" Maria Hidalgo said.

Both Ana and Maria now act as leaders with younger Girl Scouts.

"It also gives us unity," Mrs. Hidalgo said. "I tell my children your strength is in sticking together. You can easily break one branch. But bind eight together and it is much harder to do."

The Hidalgo family has managed to stay together, although it has not always been easy. They began leaving their native Cuba in shifts after Castro came to power. The last to leave was Mrs. Hidalgo's father.

"He wouldn't leave until he was sure his whole family was safe in America," Mrs. Hidalgo said.

Mrs. Hidalgo's mother, also named Matilde, is into Scouting, too, and has led a Brownie Troop for the past two years.

There Are No Old, Bold Pilots In Alaskan Skies

By MARY LENZ
Associated Press Writer

ELMENDORF AIR FORCE BASE, Alaska (AP) — To Alaskans, getting into the cockpit of a light plane doesn't differ much from getting behind the wheel of a pickup truck. But the difference can be deadly.

During the late summer and fall, Alaska averaged almost a death a day in aviation accidents, and more than a dozen persons were missing in the wilderness.

A map of Alaska at the Elmendorf Air Force Base Rescue Center is littered with red pins marking the location of wreckage of 1,370 planes yet to be salvaged.

Rescue officials and oficials of the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board say they are unable to explain the state's high crash rate. Flying here, they say, is not much more hazardous than flying in other mountainous or snowy states.

What is different is that flying is a major means of transportation. "You either go in a dogsled or a little airplane or you just don't go," says Eugene C. Morris, FAA accident coordinator.

One in 40 Alaskans has a pilot's license compared with one in 300 in the rest of the United States. According to the FAA, 104 people died in Alaska plane crashes in the period from Oct. 30, 1977 to Oct. 30, 1978, a 19 percent increase over the previous year. And while investigators say they can make no immediate comparison betwen Alaska and the lower 48 states, they say the rate here is higher.

On sunny days, light planes fill the skies over Anchorage like a mosquito swarm. There are 15 airports in a ten-mile radius. Three military bases, Anchorage International Airport, and a small airport at Lake Hood together conduct a million flight operations a year.

"You develop a lazy attitude because flying is so commonplace," says Paul Davis, a weekend pilot who broke his back in a plane crash two years ago. "It gets to be like getting into your airplane is like getting into the family car and you start treating it that way."

Five men from Wisconsin were killed in mid-September. Bob Mills of Mio, Mich. disappeared after leaving Anchorage Sept. 10 in a Cessna 185. The body of his hunting partner, Edwin Gascho of Fairview Mich. was found in the frigid waters of Cook Inlet.

"Time and time again we see the same mistakes being made," says Maj. Rod Duschene of the rescue center here. "Weather isn't taken into consideration. The pilot doesn't file a flight plan or he deviates from it and you don't even know where to start looking."

Searches are dicey even when searchers know where to look. House Majority Leader Hale Boggs and Rep. Nick Begich of Alaska disappeared on a routine flight from Anchorage to Juneau in 1972. A 39-day search over 325,000 miles failed to turn up a trace.

Duschene says Alaskans have an independent streak and would rebel at extra courses some suggest for Alaskan pilots. The FAA has a voluntary program.

The Alaska Travel Air Carriers Association, which represents more than 70 carriers including charter and air taxi services, says the FAA has failed its air safety responsibilities. Executive Director Jim Dodson says the FAA, not the Alaska Transportation Commission, ought to suspend licenses of local carriers for violations.

The commission briefly suspended the license of a company called Alaska Travel Air after survivors of a crash testified the flight was unsafe. The pilot died a month later with the Wisconsin hunters.

'Dining Out' By AFROTC

ECU News Bureau

Staff officers, cadets and guests of East Carolina University's Air Force ROTC detachment participated in the traditional formal "Dining-Out" Friday, Dec. 1.

Guest speaker at the event was Col. Denis R. O'Brien, vice commander of the 68th bomb wing at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

An old tradition in England, "dining-out" began as a custom in the monasteries, was adopted by the early universities and later spread to military units when the officers' mess was established.

The association of U. S. Army Air Corps personnel with the British and their dining-out custom during World War II was probably the chief cause of the tradition's growth in the U. S. Air Force.

Notes On The Father Of Novelist Wolfe

THOMAS WOLFE'S PENNSYLVANIA. By Richard Walser. Athens, Ohio, Route 1, Box 51, 45701. Croissant & Company. Paper, 20 pp. $4.

The five sons of Jacob Wolf of Adams County, Pennsylvania were stonecutters — three intermittently, and two, William Oliver (W. O.) and Gilbert, for a lifetime.

W.O. was the adventurous son, the one who came South to seek his fortune in the lean years following the close of the Civil War. Financially, it was a good choice. As author Richard Walser notes, W. O. discovered "that stonecutting was a profitable way to make a living," both in South and North Carolina.

Father of novelist Thomas Wolfe, and the model for W. O. Gant in "Look Homeward, Angel" and "Of Time and the River," W. O. emerges as a forceful, restless, aspiring man, determined to win his place in the sun. "To symbolize his new status, he changed the spelling of his last name to Wolfe, discarding what he considered the less elegant Wolf. In Raleigh he became a man of substance, quite able to finance a marriage and divorce, a second marriage, and a move early in 1880 . . . to Asheville."

Though removed in time and space from his childhood family in Pennsylvania, W. O. Wolfe did not forget his mother, Eleanor Jane, who lived to the grand old age of 96. "W. O.'s blood ties with his family back in Pennsyvania were so deep-rooted that they held fast in spite of long separations," Walser tells us.

It is amazing, the amount of information the author provides in a scant ten pages of text (the other ten pages are devoted to notes). We discover that W. O. could be narrow-minded, as when his handsome 18-year old nephew, George Lentz from Latimore visited the Wolfes in Asheville, "The infatuation of all the ladies with (George) made the older man jealous, and soon the fellow was sent back to his grandmother."

He liked women (he had three wives, the third, Julia Westall, was the mother of Thomas). Another of his loves was liquor, and on his visit to Pennsylvania to show off his new wife, "as soon as the liquor he had brought was gone, he would head straightway for one of the two hotel bars in the town (York Springs)". Advance notice had been sent by the Wolf relatives to sell him no drinks, and when he was turned away, he would go into the street and shout condemnation upon York Springs and its bartenders."

W. O. WOLFE, AGE 19

Perhaps not altogether a loveable man, yet Walser helps us to see that an impressionable, sensitive mind like Thomas' would be attracted to and find such a father a rich model for his novels.

Brief, revealing vignettes of the brothers, sisters, in-laws of W. O. Wolfe are compacted in this small book, and the novelist is also present, in his trips from New York in the early and mid-1930's to seek out and get to know his relatives in Pennsylvania. For the Tar Heel novelist, a "strong attraction to Pennsylvania and his relatives there pulsed in his veins."

Two pages of illustrations, including four portraits of W. O. Wolfe, add to the enjoyment of this fine small book which clearly substantiates Thomas Wolfe's statement, "My experiences were to me what stones were to him. They are the materials from which I carve my stories."

Walser's book is printed in a very limited edition of 500 copies. Anyone wanting a copy should not delay ordering.

Tribute To Tobacco Farmers

On the American agricultural scene, tobacco today is the fifth largest cash crop. Of all major crops, it is the one that remains closest to bygone techniques and traditions of American farming — the least mechanized of farm operations.

This dynamic and stunningly beautiful book, "Dedicated to the American tobacco farmer," should do much to open the eyes of non-farmers (and non-tobacco farmers) to a way of life that has few parallels in our nation's history.

Growing tobacco, as one wit once commented, "is a 13-month a year proposition." From the sowing of plant beds to the final sale of harvested and cured leaf, it's a yearly gamble, a routine of long, hard work. But it is also, as this book makes clear, rich in compensations.

Johnston County natives Ms. Barefoot and her first cousin, Kornegay, both heirs of tobacco raising forebearers, have knowledgeably and affectionately fashioned an intelligent tribute in the compilation of this documentary — Ms. Barefoot in photographs and text; and Koregay in his lucid framework of chapter introductions.

Barefoot's photographs gain from being taken in several tobacco growing states, affording coastal, piedmont and mountain diversity in rural landscapes.

Like all fine photographs, they exceed the primary function of presenting visual images. They tell their own stories in the happy faces of children, in the sturdy bodies of young people, and in time-weathered faces of older people.

Several photographs of faces are memorable portraits — a striking young Negro woman wearing a red bandana that the sun and obvious washings have muted to a velvety rose color; a toothless, elderly white woman whose face is framed in a big quilted bonnet; and an elderly man, unshaven, dressed all in blue except for an old-fashioned white straw hat.

Interior shots in numerous instances are bathed in strong contrasts of light and shadow that bear a photographic kinship to Vermeer's paintings.

Basically, Barefoot has evoked a rural world of vivid greens and golds, capturing on film sunlight dappled tobacco leaves and summer trees, the gold of cured tobacco and diffused autumn lights in vast warehouses.

A photograph of blunt, strong hands holding tiny tobacco seed, another of faded green spokes of a wagon wheel surrounded by white and pink petunias, and that of a tobacco flower at close range confirm that Barefoot is a photographer gifted both as a storyteller and an artist.

One of the virtues of MULES & MEMORIES is the manner in which the two young authors employ the veracular of Southerners as an integral part of the text. They quote extensively, and the soft, singing cadances of language ring true, not once marred by overtones of a "Tobacco Road" put down.

An intriguing sidelight revealed in the collection of photographs is the near total absence of broad brimmed straw hats. Even more than the disappearing mule, this once dominant headgear, long the trademark of a farmer, has given way to the small visored cap, in every imaginable bright color.

The role of the mule, that dependable (and beloved by many) laborer is depicted, not as a nostalgic relic of the past, but realistically, in the light of something of value that had to give way to the coming of the tractor.

That the mule (and horse too) still holds an honored place in the hearts of tobacco farmers is manifested in the comment of one farmer who declares, "On a farm it just don't seem right not to have a mule. I like to look at for what it has been."

The history of tobacco — bright leaf, burley, Virginia flue cured and other varieties — is sketched in briefly, as is the importance played by tobacco in early Colonial days of America. The rather scant treatment of these facets of tobacco history is, in fact, the single shortcoming. I can name for this otherwise informative and visually comprehensive document.

Publication of MEMORIES & MULES comes at a propitious time, when substantial remnants of old methods remain and new methods of tobacco farming are firmly established as part of the mainstream of a continuing tradition.

In a congratulatory letter to Ms. Barefoot, Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. writes: "I have never seen or heard a more sensitive and accurate portrayal of what the tobacco farmer's life is like than yours."

As one who was fortunate to have spent his early years as a tobacco farmer's son, I agree wholeheartedly with the governor's judgement.

TOBACCO AS MEDICINE . . . "You know, if a wasp or anything stings you, you rub it good with wet snuff and it will ease the pain off." (Both photographs by Pamela Barefoot from "Mules & Memories")

An Old Reliable At $1

THE OLD FARMER'S 1979 ALMANAC. By Robert B. Thomas. Dublin, N. H., Yankee, Inc. 192 pps, paper, $1.

Very few publications (other than comic books that become skinnier each issue) are still available for a single dollar bill.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC is a steadfast exception, still a hefty spread of fascinating tidbits, unusual advertisements, and copious weather forecasts for 16 regions of the U.S.

Behind the traditional, ornately designed yellow front cover are provocative stories — "The Toughest, Oldest (And Driest) Cowboy Of Them All;" a look back to dark days half a century ago in "Crash!," that black October day of 1929; and recipes that all housewives may not be clamoring for but are good for chuckles— "A Useful Triolgy" telling readers how to make fly dope, cook an ostrich, and crack nuts.

Classified ad buffs will have a field day with offerings on bee supplies, government surplus items, biorhythm charts, how to become an ordained minister, catalogs on witchcraft, stamps and bottles, and government land are but a sampling of what can be "written off" for.

An excellent stocking-filler, perfect for many rainy hours of idle reading, THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC is available at most bookstands or can be ordered direct from the publishers.

A Book Page of suggestions for reading pleasure during the holiday season and for long winter nights.

Of the publications reviewed or mentioned on this page, CORRESPONDENCE is the only one not a recent publication, having been published in Oct. 1976. It is also an exceptional bargain in this inflation year of rising printing costs. For those fond of statistics, it weighs in at three and one-quarter pounds.

Development of CORRESPONDENCE, as Museum director Moussa M. Domit notes, is the result of several enthusiastic persons who are (or were) members of his staff. Richard Craven originally proposed a show of Johnson's correspondence; William Wilson wrote the informative introduction; Gay Hertzman designed the catalogue; and credit is also accorded to Huston Blume for assistance.

So, for all practical purposes, this is a Tar Heel inspired document. As an exhibition catalogue, its basic purpose was to document the exhibition. It is also a spendid souvenir of what still must be one of the most entertaining exhibits ever shown in North Carolina's official museum.

According to Domit, Ray Johnson is the foremost proponent of the mail art activity which flourished in the late 1960's and early 1970's, and is generally acknowledged as the founder of the New York School of Correspondence. Johnson's involvement in this literary-art form, however, goes back to the 1940's.

Admittedly, there are purists, both in literary and art circles, who look askance on this activity, considering it a hybrid form outside the purview of either field.

But Johnson is an innovative creator. His correspondences at their best are intensely provocative, and are always immensely enjoyable. Everything he sees, encounters, hears about is gist for his voracious talent.

Suggestions, ideas, the play of word sounds, events minor or major, fellow artists, celebrities, ordinary citizens, — all are given new dimensions, insights, possibilities through the medium of his fertile imagination.

Sometimes this is achieved in a single correspondence. At other times an initial note, post card or letter snowballs into a series of exhanges revolving around a central motif — the snake, the necktie, the rabbit, or Lucky Strike cigarettes and movie stars.

At the center of this movement — art primarily carried out through postal channels — stands Johnson, who conducts the "dance" of correspondence (correspon-DANCE). Wilson clarifies Johnson's role as ". . . a moderator, a mediator, a man in the middle. He decides on an image that refers concretely and idiosyncratically to someone he meets, and he sends references to the image to the person, and sometimes to a third person with the instructions 'Please send to . . .' the other person. This action draws two people into a relation. . ."

The word "relation" is central to the enjoyment of this publication. A kaleidoscopic network of relations and rel tionships between the sound c words and the visual impressions of pictures, drawings or objects are established, and these in turn take on new shades of subtleties of meaning in the relationships of people participating.

Thus, a correspondence becomes a vehicle for conveying challenges to the individual imagination in an attempt to decipher clues that are tantalizing, often mysterious. It is an intriguing game, touched with fantasy, and is much like being confronted with the more obscure writings of Gertrude Stein set to art.

To better understand the intense interest (and in many instances puzzlement) manifested by viewers of the exhibition in Raleigh of Johnson's CORRESPONDENCE, it will perhaps help to randomly quote a sampling from some of the letters:

— ". . . Some guy from Texas sent me a big envelope filled with hundreds of dead bumblebees. He must have the hives . . ."

— "My friend Nick Gernovitch was in a downtown hospital and a Chinese fire-eater was in a bed next to him and visitors came and brought the Chinese man a jar of yellow sour balls . . . and went away and that evening Nick heard funny noises and the Chinaman was dead. . ."

— (Note from a Dick Tracy type cartoon of a Doughnut Festival) — "We have one ton of orange peel a day. Who can use it? Call Sunrise Home Juices, 1040 Beach 22 St. . ."

— "The enclosed page about the meeting does not mean, Naomi, that you have to point, go to the moon, impersonate Hedda Stern, construct a barb wire fence, fall off a horse, put tennis balls in a jar, be unsually heavy, send any mystery letters, swallow any tennis balls, . . whistle 'Dixie', marry, send a penny, . . . be curious, be amazed, . . . smoke a cigarette or fly to Kansas. All you might do is be there June 3rd if possible."

The cited quotes, isolated from the collection, perhaps do not give an accurate indication of the total fascination of Ray Johnson's CORRESPONDENCE.

Nevertheless, any reader who is looking for something that is truly intriguing, that is ideal fare for bedside, browsing, sharing with friends, or sustained reading, will find the Museum of Art's superlative catalogue a work that is rewarding both as art and literature.

It's the kind of book you can't wait to share with your best friends.

The supply of CORRESPONDENCE on hand in Raleigh is limited, so if you're interested, quick action is advised.

Note: The Museum Store at the N. C. Museum of Art will send a list of art books and catalogs currently available to any interested person. The store has in stock a variety of these, priced from a few dollars to lavishly printed, illustrated book that carry a hefty price tag.

GENERATIONS OF TOBACCO GROWERS . . . "I set my Burley with a tin handsetter. I got some grandsons to help me set it out. One grandson drops in the plant and the other'n gets the water."

The Massacre In Book Form

"The Washington Post" newspaper and Berkley Books of New York announce the publication of GUYANA MASSACRE: The Eyewitness Account, to be released Monday, Dec. 4.

"We're going to produce the definitive, eyewitness account of this incredible incident," says Ben Bradlee, executive editor of "The Washington Post."

GUYANA MASSACRE recounts the tragedy and the horror of the massacre at Jonestown as experienced by on-the-spot "Washington Post" correspondent Charles A. Krause.

It details the sequence of events from Congressman Ryan's initial decision to investigate the Peoples Temple, to his subsequent murder, the ritual mass suicide of over 900 members of the Peoples Temple, and the aftermath of the killings.

Krause was shot in the hip by the guerrilla fighters from the Temple, but despite his wound, he returned to investigate and flush out the real story.

Other parts of the book will feature profiles of Congressman Leo Ryan, and of award-winning investigative reporter Don Harris, killed while covering the story for NBC-TV.

Also included will be an in-depth personality profile of Reverend Jim Jones; reports from "Washington Post" reporters on the West Coast about the origins and history of the San Francisco-based Peoples Temple; and a 16-page photo insert with photographs taken by "Post" staff photographer Frank Johnston. Larry Stern, a 24-year career newspaperman, formerly Saigon Bureau Chief, is co-author with Krause of the book.

GUYANA MASSACRE: The Eyewitness Account, will have 256 pages and will be priced at $2.50. It is due on the newstands shortly after the Dec. 4 release date.

PLAN YOUR HOME

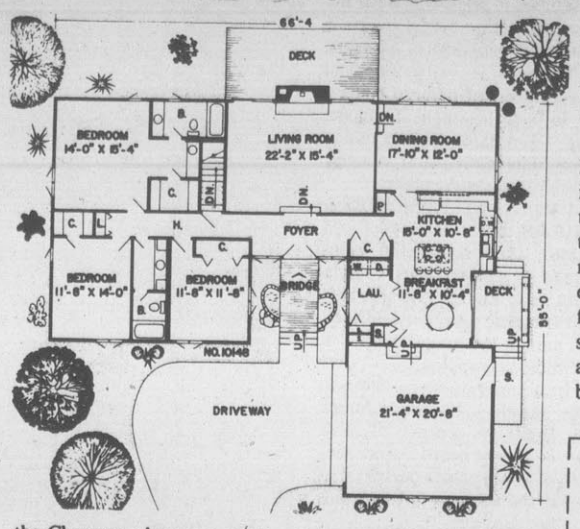
DRAMATIC CONTEMPORARY INVOLVES NATURE

DECKS, REDWOOD BRIDGE EXPRESS BOND WITH OUTDOORS.

By Jerry Bishop

Sliding glass doors, decks, and a unique redwood bridge contribute to the rugged beauty of the Cheyenne, a three bedroom contemporary design. In slightly over 2,000 square feet of living space, the plan blends three bedrooms, including a lavish master bedroom, with formal and informal living areas and gears itself for enjoyment of the outdoors.

A novel redwood bridge introduces the design and leads, through double doors, to the foyer. Ahead, the sunken living room displays the wood-burning fireplace skirted by two pairs of sliding glass doors that reach outward to the 22-ft. deck. Instead of a formal, enclosed living room, the Cheyenne chooses a more relaxed area for entertaining and devotes a generous amount of space to it. The dining room at right, spanning nearly 18 ft., will satisfy any formal entertaining needs.



Bordering the living room is the open kitchen and breakfast room. This sprawling area takes in a sizable country kitchen and family dining area and annexes a laundry room, storage closet, and pantry. Sliding glass doors open the area to a wooden deck, a natural setting for family barbeques. A carefully planned garage entrance to the kitchen complex promises efficiency in unloading groceries and transporting packages.

Bedrooms occupy the entire left wing of the home and take in three substantial rooms and two full baths. Placed at rear to border the living room, the master bedroom merits an extra large walk-in closet, a full bath, and a central dressing area with built-in vanity, all separated from the main bedroom for easy, uncluttered furniture arranging. A walk-in closet is also featured in another bedroom, and the second bath is long and compartmented for efficiency.

Sporting a side entry, the double garage blends well with the rustic facade, and the full basement provides additional storage or living space.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The would-be home owner of the year 2000 will have to see life in somewhat simplified terms. If he doesn't analyze his needs and values and effectively convey them to the architectural profession, he may be left out in the cold, literally and figuratively.

Those sentiments belong to architect Charles Koty, a specialist in residential designs. Since he has created a number of solar energy houses, I asked him what those phrases indicated in the way of such structures.

"They mean," he said, "that while active solar energy houses are here to stay and will be built in increasing numbers, the so-called passive solar energy systems will become almost mandatory in the years ahead.

"Unlike active solar energy, the passive type does not rely on collectors and other such hardware. It utilizes architecture itself and natural laws to catpure, store and distribute the sun's heat.

"The basic elements in the design are a south-facing glass wall that invites the winter sun and an overhang to block off unwanted heat in the summer. A greenhouse may be provided to aid in heating and humidity control.

"The energy-efficient future home will have to be tightly detailed, properly insulated and carefully sited to take advantage of solar offerings."

What about house and room sizes?

"That's where the part about simplification of viewpoint comes in," Koty said.

"The affordable future home will have to do away with all waste. Every inch of space must be utilized to the fullest. For instance, the living and family rooms may have to give way to a single 'great' room. Basements in many houses will disappear. So will long hallways and oversized bedrooms. Many other changes must be made to make the dream house attainable from an economic standpoint. Construction techniques, already beginning to change, must go even farther towards getting pre-completed components transplanted for on-site erection.

"House finishes will have to require little or no maintenance, since periodic painting, whether exterior or interior, is costly, time-consuming and disruptive," he said.

Other changes will be dictated by such things as the emergence of women as co-breadwinners, leaving less time for what is loosely called housework, and the increasing strength of ecology movements, Koty said.

A long time ago, he added, "Frank Lloyd Wright said that the most necessary thing in architecture was the same thing most needed in life — integrity.

"That's still true. But the house of tomorrow will have to cope with a new set of rules if it is to maintain its viability as well as its integrity."

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Options Open On Insulation

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — "Blankets" and "loose-fill" are two options the homeowner has when considering fiber glass insulation.

"Both kinds are good," says Kevin Gallagher, Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation, "but fiber glass blankets offer one special advantage: assured performance."

Blankets are unrolled into place between joists in attic floors. Loose-fill refers to insulation in a chopped-up form which must be hand-poured or pneumatically blown into place.

Wash, Oil Bike For Storage

NEW YORK (UPI) — When storing a bicycle for the winter, first wash it with detergent or sap suds, rinse and dry, then, wipe all metal parts with a cloth saturated in machine oil to prevent rust and dirt accumulation.

To avoid wear on tires, suspend the bike from the seat and handlebar stem with a rope or a bicycle hook.

When you are ready to use the bicycle again, sponge it with sudsy water to remove oil, rinse and dry, then check and reinflate tires to recommended pressure.

REMODELING RECORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Kitchen remodeling this year is expected to break last year's record of nine million units, says the California Redwood Association. It attributes the growth to tax rebates and the do-it-yourself trend.

Do Your Own Ceramic Styling

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures

Distinctive, personal, original — ceramic accessories styled by you can enliven a home decor into a setting that is uniquely yours.

Consider lamp bases, vases, figurines, tableware, hanging plant holders, door knobs and other objects. Each can be an original rendering in ceramic.

Not all creativity must be left to the professionals. With a few shortcuts — such as tracing paper and readymade molds — you, too, can create.

The living room, for example, can be the showcase of the home. How about incorporating the wall-covering pattern into the lamp bases? In a smaller dimension of contrasting colors, the lamp bases can provide an accent note to the room's "tone." The pattern of upholstery fabric also can serve for a ceramic "repeat."

For the bathroom, cosmetic jars and door knobs can be of individualized ceramic design. The scheme can be carried into the bedrooms with drawer knobs and table lamps.

The kitchen offers a variety of possibilities, in the way of drawer knobs, spice jars, flour and sugar canisters, even soup tureens and the serving bowls which you bring to the table steaming with French onion soup.

Making original ceramic objects takes only a few steps beyond the figures you made in modeling clay as a child.

Only now there is a choice of several hundred molds that can be bought, according to the National Ceramic Manufacturers Association. Supplies and kilns as well as help are available at some 20,000 studios and workshops across the country.

You can start from scratch and select a mold in which to form your objects, or you can buy an existing ceramic tile to paint. You can have the final work fired by a professional, or you can buy your own kiln. There are home kilns requiring no special wiring, starting at approximately $60.

After you have picked the mold, pouring into it the liquefied clay, called "slip," is like pouring gelatin dessert into a kitchen mold.

After the clay dries, it comes out of the mold bearing the contours desired. This form is called "greenware," because it is in the green stage awaiting finishing. It first requires scouring with a pad or sponge to smooth its surface.

Next come the colors and other decorations. These can be applied "free hand," or you may choose stencils and decals for special surfaces, ranging from fur and wood textures to metallic and marbelizing effects.

In repeating the pattern of wall coverings and upholstery fabrics, tracing material is used to transfer the details.

Firing is the stage that hardens the ceramic into its usable state, and can be done in a studio kiln unless you decide to buy one.

Many options are open to the non-professional ceramic former. If you would prefer to begin the object at the decorating stage, skipping the molding steps, most ceramic studios offer a selection of "greenware" ready for painting. In fact, you can get a ceramic object already fired — a fired "greenware," so to speak, called a "bisque."

It comes out of the kiln with a white matte finish which you can decorate with pigments and trim that do not require firing. The product is ready for use as soon as your paint dries.

So, ceramics, instead of being a complicated exercise of talent, are actually within the touch of every homemaker. If you have ever longed to find accessories that identify your home as exclusively yours, this is an opportunity to furnish it with true originals. Your own.

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. When is the best time of year to prune a fig bush?

A. A fig bush should be pruned late in the winter or just at or just prior to when the buds swell. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist) —

Q. I have a willow oak which is rapidly growing into some power lines. It must be cut back, but I hate to have a lopsided tree. Wouldn't it be better to cut all the branches back to within a few feet of the main trunk and start over? (Mrs. S.G., Conover)

A. You are talking about "dehorning" your tree, which to me is just as unnatural and unsightly as a lopsided tree. Why not start over with a tree more in keeping with the space available? A crabapple, crepe myrtle, dogweed or even a maple may be more satisfactory in the long run than your willow oak. (Leon Harkins, extension forestry specialist) —

Q. How would you rate the pecan varieties that are available in North Carolina in their resistance to scab disease? (H.S., Salemburg)

A. Stuart, Desirable, Cape Fear and Elliott all have considerable resistance to scab. Candy and Chickasaw have some resistance to the disease. Cherokee and Wichita are both susceptible to scab. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulture specialist) —

Q. I bought 10 pounds of Irish potatoes at the grocery store and all of them have green skins. Are they safe to eat? (Mrs. J.E., Clinton)

A. No after extended periods of exposure to light, chorophyll and solanine are produced in the flesh. The green tubers acquire a bitter, pungent taste. If eaten in quantity they may be poisonous. Solanine is the bitter and poisonous component; chorophyll is tasteless and harmless. Not everyone would be affected in the same way but typical reactions would include nausea and vomiting. Therefore, to be safe it is advisable to discard green potatoes. (George Wilson, extension horticulture specialist)

Hugh Hefner's Brainchild Marking 25th Birthday

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The scene is the early '50s, the uptight '50s, as they'd be known later, years of the baby boom, organization men, early TV, President Eisenhower, and a researcher named Kinsey startling the country by letting American sex habits out of the closet.

Enter Hugh Hefner, 27, a graduate of Esquire Magazine. His brainchild: a glossy, brash publication reveling in revealing pictures, celebrating sex and a kind of voluptuous hedonism for young men, prophesying a sexual revolution.

Next Tuesday, Hefner's Playboy Magazine celebrates its 25th birthday, having seen much of that sexual revolution come to pass in the '60s and moderate in the '70s, when few are shocked at the Playboy lifestyle any more.

But even as the magazine glories in its success, it wonders about the changing relationship between men and women. It still celebrates the female nude, but things are changing.

Hefner's first issue sported a doctored photograph of Marilyn Monroe waving from the cover. It had been a photo of Marilyn riding in a motorcade. Inside, as Sweetheart of the Month, Marilyn stretched in the nude over a single page, the picture borrowed from a calendar.

By contrast, the anniversary issue has an article on "Romance," written by a woman staffer, and the magazine regularly runs a column called "Men And Women."

Just as it is not easy to be a man today in a world of rising female aspirations, so it is not easy to be a men's magazine, especially when four million of 18 million readers are women.

The magazine's editor is Arthur Kretchmer, who was only 13 when the first Playboy came out. He grew up with the magazine, and now wonders what changes it will have to make to cope with the 1980s.

"The basic stuff of a male-female relationship has changed. The courting period is shorter. Seduction and romance have taken new forms," he says.

"Romance is something else. I think a lot of people are trying to get some romance back in their lives."

While the first issue broke new ground with an article on divorce and alimony entitled "Miss Gold-Digger of 1953," it was heavy with fiction, cartoons and sophomoric jokes.

In a lead editorial in that issue, Hefner wrote:

"We want to make clear from the very start, we aren't a 'family magazine.' If you're somebody's sister, wife or mother-in-law and picked us up by mistake, please pass us along to the man in your life ..."

The statement separated Playboy from other men's magazines which, Hefner says, spent most of the time outdoors, trashing through thorny thickets or splashing through streams.

"We don't mind telling you in advance, we plan on spending most of our time inside," he says.

Yet when Playboy was challenged by dozens of more explicit sex magazines in the '60s, Hefner and his staff decided not to go along.

Today there's also an accent on a more journalistic approach — something Hefner, in the first issue, said would never happen. Along with its Playmates, the magazine has run articles and fiction by leading writers and has carried long interviews — one of the more famous ones with Jimmy Carter during his presidential campaign.

Hefner had to scrape up money for that first 1953 issue, which carried no date because it wasn't known if there would be another. It sold 51,000 of 70,000 copies printed at a newstand price of 50 cents and earned enough to pay for a second issue. By mid-1955, circulation was over 300,000 and Playboy had more than a dozen employes.

Today, Playboy Enterprises in a multinational company worth $200 million. It publishes books, runs Playboy Clubs in nine American cities, London, Tokyo, Osaka and Manila. It has hotels, franchised magazines in many foreign countries, and lucrative casinos in England, the Bahamas, and soon in Atlantic City.

Hefner's daughter, Christie, is also 25, and a vice president of Playboy Enterprises with responsibilities in communications and in the Playboy Foundation which supports an end to the death penalty, drug law reform, abortion, women's rights. It backs the National Organization for Women, and other controversial issues and groups.

Christie Hefner finds the magazine in a more fertile period now than the boom days of the sixties.

"Playboy has always placed a high premium on self-fullfillment and control of your own life," she says, "a life that Hefner was living in the '50s and '60."

"I think the women's movement has affected the magazine more subtly.... I think one thing that it has brought about is the recognition that there is more relationship between men and women than the sexual.... The women's movement hasn't only changed women. If anything it's changed men more because they feel they've less control over the changes."

"The '70s for us have been very interesting," says Kretchmer.

"People became much more self-oriented and it took Playboy a while to realize that. Now we're standing on the threshhold of the '80s trying to figure out where they are going, what they will be."

Dracula Items Proliferating

NEW YORK (UPI) — Broadway's smash hit production of "Dracula" has inspired an array of products from wallpaper to jigsaw puzzles from New York City manufacturers.

Sheets and towels designed by Gorey are available from Spring Mills.

For younger fans, there are T-shirts and tote bags from Doomed Enterprises, each with a Dracula logo designed by Gorey.

Star With 2 Dressing Rooms

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only one Broadway star has two dressing rooms. And she's only 13.

She's Shelley Bruce, the effervescent youngster who was picked from the kids' chorus to take over the title role in "Annie" when Andrea McArdle completed her contract.

She has one formal dressing room, all very ladylike, with a star on the door, comic-strip draperies, expensive toys, and an assortment of candy on the dresser which she offers politely to visitors before sampling herself.

It's a sort of private Green Room, where Shelley holds court while giving interviews — which have to be approved in advance by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, to make sure she's not over-exploited.

Next door is a bigger room, which she actually uses for dressing, and where her mother, Mrs. Bruce Merklinghaus, keeps tabs on the candyeating and makes sure her costumes are in shape. It's a chaotic, homely scene.

Shelley Bruce is a selfassured, blue-eyed 72-pounder, four-foot-five, who will prattle away on any subject. She conducts interviews alone, smartly dressed and entirely at ease. When I visited her at the Alvin Theater she was wearing a three-piece denim suit and yellow poloneck sweater.

Her first unprompted words — possibly designed to put the interviewer at ease — were on a subject dear to her heart:

"I love candy. I love nuts. I'm an icecrean freaks—we make our own. And chocolate-covered cherries and..."

(She offered me a chocolate-covered pretzel. Interesting. Later, when she escorted me to the elevator she was puffing on a chocolate cigarette.)

The first (dumb) question started the words flowing:

"I got into show business through my dancing school. I started at Dotty Locker's School of Dancing when I was about 4 — the school's in Wallington (N.J.) now — well, their professional name is Morgan, her son is Gary Morgan — and she kept telling my Mom I'd do well in commercials.

"But Mom wouldn't let me try till I was 7. I've done lots of commercials since then. They're fun. Now while we're in the show we're not allowed to do commercials while we're working, because of the SPCC. I can't do any publicity — interviews, special appearances — without written permission from them." (She has done TV commercials for "Annie" with co-star Sandy the dog.)

"I'm mainly an actress now. I think I consider myself an actress, then a dancer, then a singer. I really haven't done much dancing for a couple of years. I took singing lessons with Russ Faith in Philadelphia."

The words of a veteran from a 12-year-old with blue eyes — "they usually change from blue to green to hazel or greyish; they change with what I'm wearing" — but from her it sounds perfectly natural.

She got her first stage role at 7, in an off-Broadway show, "The Children's Mass." Movie and TV bits followed — "The Godfather," "The Marathon Man" — culminating in a Broadway role with Claire Bloom in a revival of "The Innocents." She lives with her family in East Rutherford, N.J.

"My real name is Michel Merklinghaus. That was too long for show business. My nickname is Shelly and my father's name is Bruce, so: Shelley Bruce.

"Andrea and I were good friends when we were 7 and 8. She got the role of 'Annie' in Connecticut (the show started at the Goodspeed Opera House at New Haddam, Conn.) and she invited a bunch of us out to see her. I broke my arm before we went and showed up with my arm in a cast...

"When they were casting for the Broadway production I auditioned. It was really tough. We had to read a script, sing F sharp — 'Happy Birthday' — talk in numbers, and we had to act tough." She demonstrated with a Bronx cheer. "It was hard, but it was fun. And I got the part of Kate."

Kate is one of the young orphans who comprise the chorus in "Annie." It is they as much as anything who have kept the show playing to capacity since it opened April 21, 1977.

When Andrea's contract ended last March, Shelley had been understudying her since the previous August and was ready and more than willing to take over.

Though she sounds amazingly like Andrea in the showstopping "Tomorrow," she does play the role differently.

"I don't think two people ever play a part the same," she said after a bit of thought. "There's just places where I play it differently..."

"I got my hair dyed red the Friday before I started as Annie. It was either that or wear a wig. I used to wear my hair — it was light brown — down to my behind. I like it better short.

"I like it better red, too. I have freckles and a light complexion, so it suits me better. When I get out in the sun I get freckles all across here." Her nose and cheekbones.

"I took a vacation in January — after a year with the show — and I went for a week to Puerto Rico. It was wonderful and I got a little brown rash of freckles. And I learned to swim. I did it in one lesson — about two and a half hours. He kept saying 'Had enough?' and I just kept on going because he was really nice."

Since taking over the star role she's had to quit school and take a tutor.

"I can't get up every morning for school after the show. As Kate, I used to have time in intermission to get my homework done, but as Annie I don't have the time. At intermission I have to change.

"I liked English this year. We're learning the origin of words and it's more interesting. I don't really have a chance to do much reading."

She picked up an enormous blue-and-white toy rabbit nearly as big as herself and hugged it, explaining, "I got him for Easter, instead of a chocolate bunny." With all the candy around, that seemed fair.

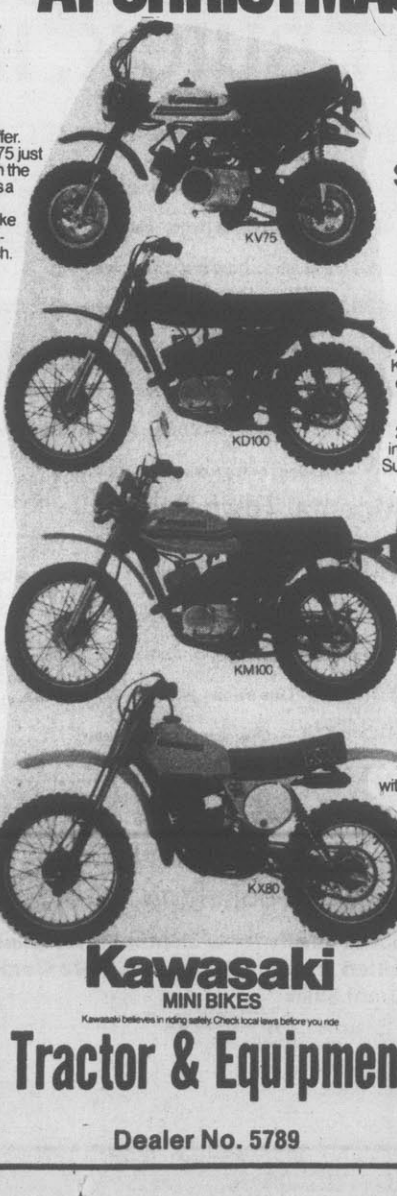
REMEMBER THE LITTLE ONES AT CHRISTMAS.

Here's a great stocking stuffer. Fact is, you could stuff a KV75 just about anywhere. Fold down the handlebars, and it becomes a compact package, 53" long by 27" high. The ideal trail bike for kids, with 3-speed transmission and automatic clutch.

Prices start at $499*



For the dirt-ridin' youngster on your list, there's the Kawasaki KD100. Small enough for a kid to handle, tough enough to take the bumps. Economical 99cc 2-stroke engine, kick starting, 5-speed transmission, Superlube oil-injection.

It's a kid's motorcycle, street legal with mid-sized frame for smaller riders. Rugged and economical, the KM100 will carry its rider through a lot of Christmases. 5-speed transmission, 99cc rotary-valve, oil-injected engine.

Get in the spirit of things, with a merry KX80. Built in the spirit of our full-sized works bikes (the KX250 and KX125), our new 82cc motocrosser is the hottest bike in its class. 2-stroke engine, electro-fusion cylinder, 5-speed gearbox, CDI ignition, 17" front wheel.

*Manufacturers suggested retail price for the KV75, excluding freight, dealer prep, title and taxes. Offer valid only while supplies last. Available in U.S. and Canada. Prices slightly higher in Canada.

BEAT INFLATION BUY A NEW HOME NOW YOUR NEW HOME WILL COST LESS TODAY

If you buy your new home now, you'll pay less than you would a year from now.

Some people are delaying a buying decision, in hopes that interest rates will come down. And it's true that interest rates are higher now than before. But those who wait will probably pay for their hesitation. In dollars and cents.

Interest rates may come down, but the cost of building materials will not. They're rising by an average of fifteen percent a year.

So, even with a lower interest rate, the cost of the materials in your home will be fifteen percent higher next year. This means that, by buying now, you won't have to pay that extra fifteen percent it will cost to build the same home next year.

Business In Exotic Birds

By JIM PATRICO
For AP Newsfeatures

GAYLORD, Minn. (AP) — When most people think of pheasants, geese and other game birds, visions of a holiday table come to mind.

But such exotic birds suggest business rather than pleasure to Allen Fredin and his mother, Bernette Muchow, who are partners in the largest game bird breeding operation in the state.

Fredin and Mrs. Muchow raise fowl and pheasants native to places such as Siberia, Japan and Australia. There are Bewick swans, Baikal teals and Ne Ne geese from Hawaii. There are Siamese Fireback pheasants and red-breasted "Ruddies," geese worth $1,500 to $1,600 a pair.

Zoos stock their cages with birds raised at the rural Gaylord farm, and private collectors from many parts of the world regularly contact Fredin about birds.

The bird farm, which is not open to the public, was started more than 20 years ago by Fredin's mother and father. Fredin, 27, became a full partner with his mother when his father died several years ago.

Fredin spends about 40 hours a week at the bird farm, where there are normally about 500 birds, in addition to being a full-time dairy farmer.

Natural habitats are created for the birds. For those which nest in reeds, he has tall water plants growing in ponds. For those which nest in trees, he has built boxes from tree trunks. High weeds provide places to scurry for privacy and places to mate and lay eggs.

In addition, warm-climate birds must be kept warm in the winter and cold-climate birds must be kept cool in the summer.

All the pens are enclosed by fine-mesh fences to keep the birds in and the predators out.

"I would say predators are our major problem," Fredin said, naming mink, fox, owl, skunk and weasel as uninvited visitors which sometimes intrude.

"A weasel can wiggle in through a hole so small you wouldn't believe it.

HOW SAFE IS THE SCARSDALE DIET?

COUNTRY GAL CARLENE CARTER CASHES IN ON POP

GREAT LAST-MINUTE CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEAS

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Better education, better soldiers.

FOR CLIFFORD L. ALEXANDER JR., Secretary of the Army

How come the U.S. Army does not recognize the high-school General Equivalency Diploma (GED) for female enlistments but does so for males? —Kathy Williams, Hershey, Neb.

● There are two interrelated reasons. First, because we do not assign women combat-type jobs, we must recruit about six times as many men as women from almost equal portions of the population. Second, our studies show that the longer a person stays in school and the higher the mental test score, the greater the likelihood the person will successfully complete the first term of service. According to our statistics, women without a high-school diploma are the least likely to do so. The Army is successfully attracting young women with high-school diplomas and does not find it necessary to recruit women with GEDs.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

About a year ago, Mackenzie Phillips was hauled in on drug charges. How is she now? —R.T., Bangor, Maine

● Mackenzie was booked by police last November for investigation of possessing cocaine and public drunkenness after being found sprawled on a West Hollywood street. Right after that, Mackenzie (who's in CBS-TV's One Day at a Time) joined Voluntary Diversion, a rehabilitation program that deals with the effects of drug abuse and supplies therapy, for six months, and the charges were dropped. "It started out of curiosity, the way most trouble starts," says Mackenzie. "It's now part of my past. Doing anything because other people are doing it is insane." She gets furious at the insinuation that her background led her astray. (Her father is singer-composer John Phillips, a member of the once-popular group, The Mamas and The Papas.) "My parents were wonderful and supportive," she says.

"It's now part of my past."

CBS

FOR RAQUEL WELCH, actress

Which role gave you the most trouble to play, and which one made you decide you'd arrived as an actress? —P.I., Wilmington, Del.

● I had a lot of trouble with Kansas City Bomber. It was the first time I was given a part that was removed from the stereotyped sex symbol. I had a whole new look and had to revise not only my acting but also my thinking. What made me decide that I'd "arrived"? In 1966 I treated myself to a Rolls-Royce and paid for it — in cash.

Do you really go out with more than one woman at the same time? —P.H., Provo, Utah

● Sure. I'm very complex and complicated when it comes to women; I need more than one gal around to keep me happy. They're good for me emotionally as well as physically. And whether I'm going out with one girl or four, I give each one the same amount of affection and attention. I'm a good cat for them to know, and they all love it. That's why they always come back. We never break up in a hostile way.

FOR CRAIG COLQUITT, punter, Pittsburgh Steelers

What is the advantage of a two-step kicker over three or more steps? Does this give you an advantage in getting your men down field to cover the punts? —J.M., Johnstown, Pa.

● The advantage of a two-step punter is that by taking one less step I get the ball away quicker, and I can stand closer to the line of scrimmage, which means the center snap is not as long and, as a result, the accuracy should be better. As far as covering my kicks, there is no advantage.

FOR NATALIE WOOD, star of NBC-TV's From Here to Eternity

The recent story on you in Family Weekly painted a glowing picture of your life but failed to mention any of life's disappointments. Have you had any? —D.M., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● Of course. Who hasn't? My biggest was missing out on the great movie, Bonnie and Clyde. I was in the midst of my long analysis in L.A. around 1967 while the film was being made in Texas. It broke my heart to turn it down.

FOR ADELE NUDEL, author of For the Woman Over 50

My husband is due to retire in a few months. Since he has no hobbies, he'll go nuts from boredom. Any suggestions? —H.W., Pougkeepsie, N.Y.

● First thing you must plan to do is spend more time with him after he retires and less time with your friends and shopping. Make a list of all the things he has said over the years that he would like to do if only he had the time — and I bet you'll find one hobby among them. Seek out your nearest senior center. It will provide many activities.

FOR LESTER LANIN, orchestra leader

Since you've played for many Presidents at the White House, whose holiday parties will you never forget? —S.R., Newton, N.J.

● JFK's. He wasn't one for huge bashes. Socialites formed the bulk of his guest list, and the dancing went on until the early hours. Although he loved to be on the floor, he didn't dance in the real sense of the word because of his bad back. The party I remember most was the one when he introduced me to John-John and said one day he'd be in my band.

PRO AND CON

Is Our System Of Volunteer Armed Forces Working?

PRO Sen. John C. Culver, (D-Iowa)

I am generally encouraged by the progress of the all-volunteer force so far in attracting qualified men and women for military service. The worst fears expressed by critics of this change have not come to pass. Many of the problems cited in the volunteer force today also existed when the draft was in effect. Our active forces have remained within one to two percent of their authorized strength since the end of the draft. At the same time, there have been recent improvements in the quality of recruits — higher test scores and fewer disciplinary problems. It must be recognized that changing to the volunteer force was a massive undertaking that is still in its early stages. Thus far, the overall record is favorable.

CON Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr., (Ind.-Va.)

I have become convinced that the all-volunteer force has serious, if not insurmountable, problems. One of the most serious of these problems is attrition — the failure of individuals to fulfill their commitment of service. More than 40 percent of those individuals joining our armed services now fail to complete their first term of duty. In 1977 the cost to the taxpayer was somewhere between $560 million and $1.5 billion. It is disturbing that the majority of those individuals who leave the service for failure to meet minimum performance or behavior standards can and do qualify for veterans' benefits. And it is essential that corrective steps be taken to screen out substandard performers and practices.

By Suzy Kalter

Carlene Carter would like it just if you talked about her as a singer, musician and songwriter and formed your opinions straight away, based solely on what you hear. She'd just as soon you never found out that she's country-western music's number-one child: the granddaughter of the late Maybelle Carter, the daughter of June Carter and the stepdaughter of Johnny Cash.

The 23-year-old musical whiz kid has been on her own for seven years, and with her first album released this past summer has made it clear that she will not follow in her family's famous bootsteps. "People expect me to be just like them, some kind of clone or somethin'," she smiles, "but I ain't."

Born in Madison, Tenn., some 10 miles outside of Nashville, Rebecca Carlene Smith was always called Carlene. Her father was Carl Smith, a popular country singer in the 50s, and her mother, June, part of the famous Carter family, but Carlene just wanted to grow up to be a concert pianist. She began studying classical music at six, but still went to bed at night listening to Elvis Presley and Johnny Cash. Her parents split before she was born, and she lived with her mother and younger sister Rosey until she was 12, when they moved to Nashville as part of the Cash family. Mama June spent part of the year on the road and part of it at home with the kids, a system which Carlene thought worked so well that she is now emulating it.

When she was 15 she met her first husband, Joe Simpkins, who was a clerk in the local grocery store and a freshman in college. After an eight-month courtship, they were married in one of Nashville's most spectacular weddings, with 700 people in attendance.

"My momma brought me up to believe that you saved yourself for the man you married," explains Carlene of her decision to marry at such an early age. A daughter, Tiffany Anastasia, was born just about nine months later.

Although Carlene says she was more in love then than she could ever be now, her marriage was short-lived. Within two years she was divorced and working in a music store demonstrating pianos while a neighbor from Madison took care of the baby. Things were so tight that she decided to go on the road with her family, joining Rosey and Johnny's daughter, Roseanne, in a trio singing back-up for Johnny and June and ending the show with a family rendition of "Silver Threads and Golden Needles."

"The best thing I learned from that tour is not to be in your parents' show," she says ruefully. "People don't take stars' kids seriously, so I got married and quit."

This time Carlene married Jack Routh, a songwriter at the House of Cash (as in Johnny Cash), who was "quite handsome and thought he was a cowboy." They put together an act and sang at blue-grass festivals, but "he was real paranoid about me outshining him," Carlene recalls.

Despite the birth of a son, John Jackson Routh (called Jackson), the marriage was a disaster and ended with Carlene running away and hiding out with friends in Los Angeles.

During one of her hideouts in L.A., Carlene met girlfriend and country singer Emmylou Harris' manager, who took her phone number and said he'd call. That was in August. In October, he called, saying he was in Nashville — where Carlene had retreated to do "writer's nights" to sell her own songs — and invited her to a party that Warner Bros. was hosting.

"In the elevator, as we were leaving the party, he asked, 'You want to sign now?' Then I realized it was some kind of test I'd been through."

Before she signed her contract, Carlene dropped her estranged husband's name and took on the family name of Carter.

But Carlene felt she was signed partly because of her family background and that people expected her to mirror her relatives. "But I'm just Carlene, and my family has absolutely nothing to do with my career."

To make that point absolutely clear, Carlene decided to do her first album in London. She packed up the kids, took them with her, hired a well-known British rock band (The Rumor), and hit the studio to produce rock and roll.

While making her album she met musician and record producer Nick Lowe. Nick has proved to be the supportive partner that neither husband was, though Carlene and Tiffany are still waiting for him to propose. (Tiffany approves of the match.) "He's not jealous of sharing me with the public; he's grooving on it," she smiles. "The best part of it is that in London I'm Nick Lowe's girlfriend, like I don't even have a name, and here he's Carlene Carter's boyfriend. It's like having two different lives."

More like three. In London, Carlene shares Nick's townhouse in Shepherd's Bush and hangs around with his friends. In Nashville, she is still the granddaughter of, the daughter of, the stepdaughter of and the mother of. And in Los Angeles she is Carlene Carter, rising star, living in her brand-new two-bedroom apartment on the outskirts of Beverly Hills. She comes to L.A. to work for a few months of each year, allowing her children to visit from Nashville (she thinks the schools are better there) on weekends and school holidays. She hangs out with musician friends, staying up all night and sleeping til noon, writing songs and being in the star business. "Right now, I'm just having a good ole time."

The good ole time is compliments of Warner Bros., her record producers. She has very little money of her own — "I'm downright poor " — but the company advances her cash and pays all her bills out of future royalties. "And if the royalties don't cover it, then I don't have to give anything back," she grins, pleased with her new life. Warner's is pretty confident she'll pay it all back and then some: so confident that they just bought her a black Mercedes-Benz sports coupe — out of her own probable money, of course.

Although her parents are multimillionaires, Carlene was never aware of their money. "I never had anything of my own, and I always had to work," she says. 'My mom's very money conscious because she's had those lean years behind her." Carlene has also had lean years but has been too proud to ask her family for help. "I'd eat crackers for weeks before I'd ask them for a dollar."

It seems unlikely that Carlene will be eating crackers, unless they're topped with caviar, but her favorite part about making it comes when her parents tell her not to be a stranger, to call home anytime, collect. "I don't have to call collect no more. I can afford it myself," she beams. And by the time her next album comes out in February, she hopes she can afford to not tell you who her parents are. FW

HOW SAFE IS THE SCARSDALE DIET?

By Alvin N. Eden, M.D.

The Scarsdale Diet is the newest "in" diet to sweep the country. In just 14 days most people lose 15 to 20 pounds. This diet was developed by Dr. Herman Tarnower, head of the Scarsdale Medical Group in Westchester, New York. So, just exactly what is this new "miracle" cure for obesity.

The Scarsdale Diet is a low-carbohydrate, low-to-moderate fat and high-protein diet. Although there is no quantity or protein control, it is said to be low in calories — somewhere between 1000-1600 calories per day. It is yet another high protein, "fat-burning" diet as were Stillman's and Atkins'.

This burning of fat produces the bodily state called ketosis, the production of ketone bodies. These waste products must then be flushed out in the urine, forcing the kidneys to work overtime.

As a quick weight-loss diet the Scarsdale Diet can be quite effective. Although it is nutritionally unbalanced and incomplete and does cause ketosis, it is relatively safe for a healthy adult since it is used only for two weeks.

There are other points to be made about the ketosis. Besides its leading to water loss and the fact that it can be dangerous, it also causes weakness, irritability and dizziness, along with loss of appetite.

The unlimited quantity of steak allowed on Tuesday and Sunday seems rather strange. A one-pound steak contains 1600 calories. You can readily see that a steak lover would have a difficult time losing any fat at all on those two days — all his weight loss would be water loss, a total waste of time and effort.

It is just about impossible, even by completely starving, to lose much more than one-half pound of fat per day. And so the 15 pounds one might lose after 14 days on this diet are made up mostly of water loss. It is sad but true that as soon as one goes off the diet this water-weight loss is rapidly regained.

I am disturbed by those proponents of the Scarsdale Diet who believe that it is based on chemical reactions between foods with resultant loss of fat. The only chemical reaction it produces is ketosis. There is no such thing as some special reaction between certain foods that somehow melts off pounds of fat. The only way to lose fat is to take in fewer calories than you burn up. The sensible approach to losing weight and keeping it off is to do it slowly, no more than one to two pounds per week. A person must eat less and exercise more.

Yes, the Scarsdale Diet works and, undoubtedly, Dr. Tarnower's forthcoming book, The Scarsdale Diet, will become an instant best seller. Its appeal is understandable, for who wouldn't want to lose 15 to 20 pounds in just 14 days. But since diet-conscious Americans are forever on the lookout for new and painless ways to shed pounds, there is bound to be a new regimen on the horizon in the foreseeable future. So, how long will the Scarsdale Diet be around? Only time will tell. FW

TRY MY PIPE "FREE" FOR 30 DAYS! IF YOU LIKE IT KEEP IT. IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT SMASH IT WITH A HAMMER AND THE TRIAL WILL COST YOU NOTHING.

CAREY "MAGIC INCH" SMOKING PIPES
So different they are patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT Patent Number 3267941

PERHAPS YOU CAN FIND THE ANSWER IN THE FOLLOWING LETTERS FROM CAREY PIPE SMOKERS WHO HAVE DISCOVERED A NEW PIPE SMOKING EXPERIENCE.

E. A. Carey

"I've only had my Carey for about a month now. It is a new and delightful experience to draw a cool, clean smoke without the mess, bother, trials and tribulations which I've encountered with a variety of other pipes. Many thanks. If you want your pipe back, you'll have to come down here and take it away from me."

J.R.U.
Tulsa, OK

"I am upset! I possess 4 Carey pipes. I also own 32 conventional briars, meerschaums, clays, etc. These latter represent an investment of approximately $350.00. The problem is — what do I do with my earlier extensive collection? Look at them? I occasionally smoke one or two just to remind me how they pale by comparison with my Carey's."

C.F.B.
Winnetka, IL

"May I take this opportunity to thank you for introducing me to the Carey Pipe. The most superb pipe I have ever smoked and I think I have just about tried them all. Its quality is unsurpassed, almost unbelievable. However, the proof is in the smoking. Best wishes for your continued success."

J.R.
Pittsburgh, PA

"Being a heavy and 'wet smoker' I've at last in the Carey Pipe found a pipe that can give me the continued pleasures in smoking that I've been searching for. Needless to say, I'm going to keep my Carey Pipe. My compliments to you for taking the bitterness out of pipe smoking — I didn't believe it could be done."

J.D.McC.
Indianapolis, IN

"Terrific: one word cannot say it all. I have been trying to give up cigarettes for two years to no avail. My Carey Pipe has done it. My Carey Pipe is everything you said it would be, and more."

T.W.
Fremont, OH

"Over the years I must of bought dozens of pipes and got no enjoyment from them and wound up with a drawer full of pipes. I took to, and became a heavy cigar smoker. I came across your ad but I was a little reluctant to try another pipe after being stung so many times, but with your guarantee there was no way I could lose, so I sent for your pipe and I don't mind telling you, it was the best decision I ever made, now I enjoy pipe smoking and I very seldom smoke a cigar anymore."

A.S.
North Bergen, NJ

NO MONEY — JUST SEND YOUR NAME

All I want is your name so I can write and tell you why I'm willing to send you a Carey® pipe for 30 days smoking without a cent of risk on your part. This is not a new model, not a new style, not a new gadget, not an improvement on old style pipes. It's based on an entirely new principle that harnesses four of Nature's immutable laws — contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking and delivers a smoking pleasure that you've never before experienced. My new kind of pipe smokes cool and mild hour after hour, day after day without rest, without bite, without bitterness. It doesn't have to be "broken in." It never has to be "rested" and it never accumulates sludge! To prove all this, I want to send you a Carey® Pipe to smoke 30 days at my risk. Clip out the coupon and send it to me TODAY. I'll write to you and include a full color brochure absolutely free so you can select your favorite style and shape for your 30 day trial.

E. A. Carey, Dept. 285W, 3932 N. Kilpatrick Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60641
Okay Mr. Carey. Send me your full color brochure so I can select a pipe to smoke for 30 days on a free trial basis.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Do some men shy away from dating beautiful women? If so, why? Can you be good-looking without being attractive?

DO BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE REALLY HAVE MORE FUN?

IF YOU NEED TO BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD DON'T COUNT ON VITAMINS

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. And taking vitamins can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take Geritol, every day. Geritol is so rich in iron, each tablet contains more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins important to your health.

Geritol's iron will actually build your blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Even when a person is unknown and unseen — except for a thumbnail size photograph — appearance makes all the difference in the world in how people react in terms of helpfulness and consideration.

2. Regardless of whether a girl is plain, moderately attractive or outstandingly good-looking, how she fares in life so far as treatment by others (particularly males) is concerned — is directly affected by how well-turned out she is in terms of grooming.

3. You can be good-looking without being attractive, and you can be attractive without being good-looking.

4. While there are obvious advantages accruing to the exceptionally handsome man or the beautiful woman, there are also very definite drawbacks and hazards which would make the person of plain or average looks hesitate a long time before trading his 'look' for theirs.

5. A great many men have mixed feelings about cultivating a relationship with a woman of outstanding attractiveness.

6. When a pretty girl is the victim of a crime, she elicits much more sympathy than a girl of lesser attractiveness.

ANSWERS

1. True. An interesting study of the effects of physical attractiveness by a team of behavioral scientists from Penn State U., Eastern Michigan U. and Earlham College (Indiana) reported this experiment: it was arranged that 600 male and female adult callers in public phone booths found a completed graduate-school application form, a photograph of the applicant and an addressed, stamped envelope. Findings: the more attractive the person in the photo, the more likely it was to be sealed, dropped in a mailbox and sped on its way.

2. True. Studies at Texas A. & M. University showed the important role that looking one's best plays in determining the help, consideration and cooperation received from others. For example, in one experiment a girl, appearing first attractively groomed and then indifferently so, asked 40 passers-by to mail a letter for her. Results: 95 percent of the subjects mailed the letter for the girl when she was attractively turned out, and only 45 percent obliged when she was not looking her attractive best. It is interesting also to note that "half the letters were left unstamped, but this manipulation had no effect on helping."

3. True. Findings of studies at the University of Chicago on the dynamics of interpersonal attraction show that with the emotionally mature adult, "attractiveness becomes increasingly a dimension of the personality rather than the body" but is a projection of what we really are, the essence of our thoughts, feelings and emotions. On the other hand, it is pointed out that some people who are well endowed with beauty that is superficial often engage in behavior which makes them less attractive to others than people of just average looks.

4. True. It is concluded in a Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University study on this subject that "the individual who feels that in order to belong he must be beautiful or physically excellent leads a hazardous existence. Such a person, even if well endowed, wishes that he were more so. Even while he is enjoying what he has, ever present are the anxiety and fear of knowing that as the days and years pass he will no longer be so attractive or physically well equipped. Yet he may neglect family, friends and job at the opportunity to display or further enhance beauty or physical development." Dr. Martin Grotjahn, professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, concludes from a study of the attitudes, feelings and life-styles of strikingly handsome men and exceptionally beautiful women (many of whom reside in Beverly Hills and are in the public eye) that there is a great deal of loneliness, depression and feelings of being unloved lying beneath the glamorous surface of these Beautiful People who are invariably envied and admired by so many.

5. True. The woman whose looks causes men's heads to swivel as she passes often looks better than she fares when it comes to relationships with the opposite sex. A Georgia State University study shows that, in making a choice for a dating partner, men tend to select less-attractive partners unless they are assured acceptance by more attractive females, that attractive persons are asked for help less frequently than less-attractive persons — causing the investigators to conclude that what is beautiful tends to be unapproachable and that while beauty is power, one approaches a beautiful person cautiously.

6. False. If the crime is related to her attractiveness, according to a University of Minnesota study, a jealousy factor obtains in a great many cases. This results in a prejudice against a pretty girl victim, but women who were less-well endowed were found to be more likely than their more attractive sisters to blame an attractive victim for her fate. ("It was her own fault," "She was probably asking for it," and so forth). And a similar finding was reported regarding the attitude of males whose looks were less than prepossessing. FW

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

DIPPY

At cocktail parties there is served
A substance called a dip.
You dip in it a cracker, say,
And watch it doesn't drip.

You then try dipping celery
And carrots. If you linger
And really like the dip so much,
You may dip in a finger.

"I think I'll take a dip" may mean
You'll jump into the pool,
But maybe you mean grab the bowl
And risk the ridicule.

—Richard Armour

Little Mavis was putting on the problem-eater act one night, stalling by asking about the things in the salad. Exasperated, her mother explained, "The green things prevent scurvy, the yellow things help eyesight and the white things prevent weakness. The rest prevents spankings." —Lucille J. Goodyear

JOBMANSHIP

Knowledge Is $$$ Power

Is lack of a high-school diploma or lack of college credits fencing you out of the job you want or the promotion you know you deserve? On the average, with 1-3 years of high school you'll earn $380,000 in your lifetime. With a high-school diploma it rises to $478,000. Some college credit — 1-3 years — and your average earnings are $650,000. And a college degree helps you to approximately $760,000.*

You may be able to obtain the high-school diploma or college credits, then move into the better job and earn the extra income without taking any courses and without going to classes. Adults who feel they've learned through living and have neither time nor patience for becoming students again may obtain a high-school equivalency certificate by taking GED (General Education Development) tests. The high-school equivalency certificate equals a diploma and is awarded by all state departments of education. Your local town board of education can give you information about where and when the exams are given. You can telephone or write: GED Testing Service, American Council on Education, Dept. FW, #1 Dupont Circle, Washington D.C., N.W. 20036.

If it's college credit you want, there are the CLEP (College Level Examination Program) exams. Many men and women have absorbed through their jobs and through self-education the equivalent of freshman and sophomore college introductory courses. "Why should I have to sit through a basic class in business purchasing or the English novel or Spanish when I've been involved with them all these years?" they ask. CLEP examinations are for them. CLEP does not itself grant college credit, but more than 1,300 colleges and universities throughout the United States will give you credit toward a college degree based on your CLEP scores. Ask at your local community or four-year college or write: CLEP, Box 1821, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Isn't it about time you personally took steps to cope with inflation and used it to create wealth for you instead of standing by helplessly while it drains your paycheck?

We've never met and probably never will, but I think we share a common interest. That interest is in achieving complete and total financial freedom.

Because of this common interest, I think we can be of great help to each other. You see, a little over twelve months ago my net worth reached the magic million dollar mark, and it only took me 48 months to achieve that.

That might not impress you, but if you had seen me just a few years ago, you might wonder how I did it. I lived in Denver then, in a cramped, tumbled down house at 2545 South High Street. My wife was expecting our second child and we were so broke we had to borrow $150.00 from a relative just to buy food and pay the rent.

By the way, I know I didn't make a million dollars because of my superior intellect — I barely got through Ames High School (Ames, Iowa) with a C average. I did a little better later on but I soon realized that a salaried job was not the way to become financially free. If you'll stop and think, you'll realize that millionaires do not work 10, 20, or 50 times harder or longer than you.

Now, how can we help each other? I am willing to share everything I have learned and know that would help and guide you to achieve your own financial freedom and independence. But the only way I would ever give you my secrets, methods and formulas is if I benefit also.

You will find when you reach your ultimate financial goals, you really don't want to stop there but you are motivated to go on and make more.

It seems that most people who are charging for financial advice have studied how to "do it" but have never actually "done it" themselves.

You will find as you read my formulas, that since I have actually achieved total financial freedom myself, that you will receive from me more than just the motivation to achieve your own financial independence, but a workable step by step plan to actually do it.

You may have seen part of my formulas described in various publications, such as Nations Business, and the Wall Street Journal. This work is entitled How To Wake Up The Financial Genuis Inside You. The various formulas contained in the volume will show you exactly how you can do each of the following:

- buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- begin without any cash.
- put $10,000 cash and more in your pocket each time you buy (without selling property)
- compound your assets at 100% yearly.
- legally avoid paying federal or state income taxes.
- buy bargains at one-half the market value.

If you apply these formulas and methods you will find in a very short time, you will be able to spend three weeks out of every month doing anything you care to do.

I think, at that time, you will find as I have, that spending several weeks on the beaches of Hawaii, or on the ski slopes of Colorado, or just sightseeing in Europe, or any other place in the world, you begin to understand what real freedom is all about.

Most people think that it would be impossible to do some of the things listed above. For example, to buy a property, and at the same time put $10,000 (or more) cash in your pocket without selling the property, or to buy a property with little or no cash down.

Believe me, it is possible and fairly simple. This is exactly how most wealthy people actually do make 10, 20, or 50 times more money than you do.

These formulas of mine do not have to be used with income properties only. They actually can be applied to virtually any asset.

While I was struggling on making my first million, I often thought how nice it would be to have the personal advice from someone like Howard Hughes or J. Paul Getty.

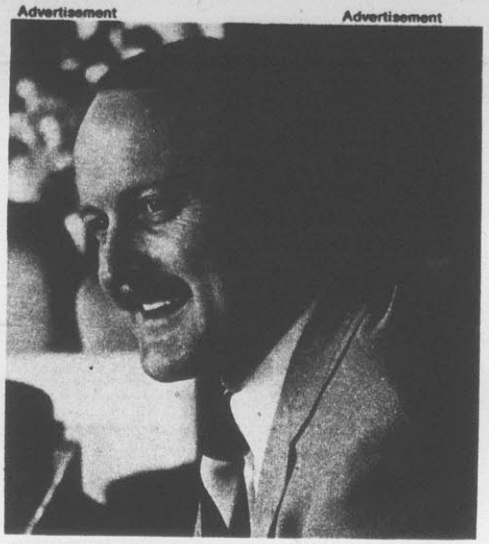
What would I have been willing to pay for this service? I can tell you one thing for sure, it would have been a lot more than the $10.00 that I'm going to ask you to invest in your financial future.

What will this $10.00 actually do for you? It will give you a complete step-by-step plan that you can follow to become totally and completely financially independent.

Please try to understand my dilemma. I'm not a New York advertising agency, with all their professional skill and manpower to write a powerful and persuasive ad to convince you that I can make you financially independent. I am just somebody who has actually "done it", and can really show you how to "do it".

What would you do, if you were in my shoes, You have in excess of $1,000,000 net worth, you have a desire to share your formula with others, because you not only have a simple, honest and workable method whereby others too can enjoy the riches of this land, but you also want to benefit and make money from sharing this information, so you can continue to grow financially.

I think you might do what I'm doing — that is to write a simple open letter to the type of people who share similiar goals as mine asking them to try the formulas for themselves, to see if they work as well as the claims described. Because, I know, as you would know if you were in my shoes, that if I can just convince you to test my formulas and methods, you will see for yourself that they will work as easily for you as they did for me.



Mark O. Haroldsen spent four years perfecting a "wealth formula" that harnesses runaway inflation and became a millionaire in the process. More than 300,000 people have discovered how his method can lead them to total Financial Freedom.

It's really quite frustrating to have something so valuable as I know I have, but lack the skill to convince people to try it for themselves. I hope by my simple, direct approach, I can convince you to try my formulas.

It seems the majority of the people in our rich country lose, not because they lack intelligence, or even willpower, but because of procrastination, or lack of action — please don't be like the masses. Make a decision while you have this paper in your hands. Make a decision now to either act now and send for my material or immediately round file this paper. If your decision is to subscribe, do it now, not later. Otherwise, you may lose, just by default.

To order, simply take any size paper, write the words "Financial Freedom," and send it along with a check for $10.00 to Mark O. Haroldsen, Inc., 2612 So. 1030 West, Dept. G-454, Salt Lake City, Utah 84119.

If you send for my materials now, I will also send you documents that will show you precisely how you can easily borrow from $20,000 to $200,000 at 2% above the prime rate using just your signature as collateral.

Mark O. Haroldsen

P.S. If you are still somewhat skeptical, and believe me, what I started out I certainly was, because of the many people in the world trying to deceive others. I would encourage you to postdate your check by 30 days, and I promise and guarantee that it will not be deposited for at least those 30 days, and if for any reason you do not think that what I have sent you lives up, in every aspect to what I told you in this letter, send the material back, and I will quickly, without question, refund your money and send back your own uncashed check or money order. Also, if you would like to check a few of my references, I have listed one below.

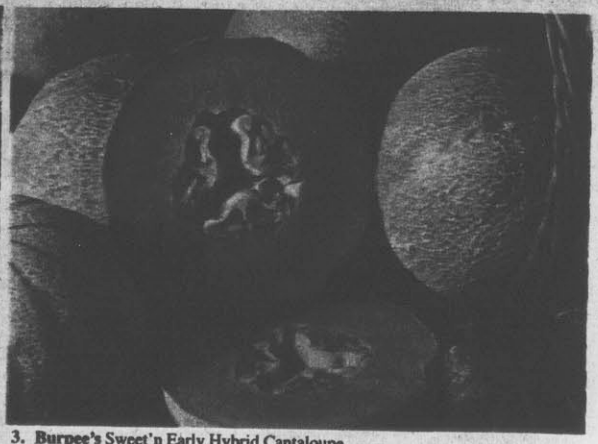
FREE–BURPEE'S® New 1979 Seed Catalog

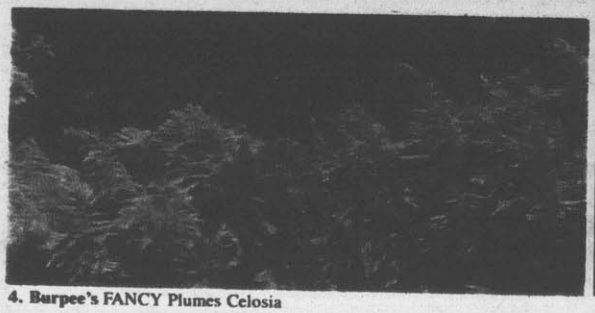
Featuring New, Exciting Varieties and Famous Favorites

1. Sugar Snap Pea

2. Burpee's Happy Days French Marigold



3. Burpee's Sweet'n Early Hybrid Cantaloupe



4. Burpee's FANCY Plumes Celosia

5. Burpee's Big Girl® Hybrid VF Tomato

6. Burpee's Sparkling Bubbles Iceland Poppy

BURPEE'S 1979 Catalog is a big beautiful 184-page gardener's bonanza. Above are four new Burpee introductions, an All-America Gold Medal winner that's an entirely new vegetable, and the Big Girl Hybrid VF Tomato that appeared three years ago and is already a worldwide favorite.

The 1979 Burpee Seed Catalog is a comprehensive planting and growing guide with over 1800 vegetables, flowers, shrubs, trees and garden aids. Plus dozens of helpful hints for a better, more productive garden from Burpee's horticulturists — based on our more than 100 years of gardening experience.

© Burpee Seed Co. 1978

Since 1876 Burpee has been developing new vegetable varieties that are easier to grow and produce more, as well as new and better flowers. Today, Burpee is America's leading breeder of vegetables and flowers for the home gardener.

Send for your free 1979 Burpee Seed Catalog today.

1. Sugar Snap Pea — An entirely new vegetable, the 1979 All-America Gold Medal Winner. Incredibly sweet and delicious whole or snapped, in salads, with dips, as snacks. Retains fine flavor when boiled quickly or stir-fried. The hardest part of growing and harvesting Sugar Snap Peas is getting them from your garden to the kitchen without eating them along the way.

2. Happy Days French Marigold — A new Semi-Dwarf mixture especially rich in bright yellow, gold and mahogany-red shades. Well-doubled flowers on heat-resistant plants bloom from midsummer to fall. Only from Burpee.

3. Sweet'n Early Hybrid Cantaloupe — This outstanding new cantaloupe ripens early, in just 75 days, and keeps on bearing fruit long after other varieties. 4¾ by 4½ in. melons are round to slightly oval. A real taste treat, sweet, juicy, delicious. Only from Burpee.

4. FANCY Plumes Celosia — Tall, graceful, feathery plumes that grow about 32 in. tall for stunning floral effects from midsummer to frost. Primrose, gold, rose, scarlet and crimson shades. Only from Burpee.

5. Burpee's Big Girl® Hybrid VF Tomato — The beautiful big sister to Burpee's Big Boy® Giant Hybrid Tomato. Introduced three years ago and a favorite with gardeners everywhere. Extra resistant to Fusarium and Verticillium wilt, ensures giant tomatoes from midsummmer to frost.

6. Sparkling Bubbles Iceland Poppy — A lovely perennial that blooms from the first season in brilliant yellow, rose, orange, scarlet and a sprinkling of pastel shades. Very strong flowers on 16 in. stems. Only from Burpee.

Burpee's best Catalog ever – with seeds, shrubs, trees, gardening information and everything for your garden.

CRAFTS/By Rosalyn Abrevaya

EASY-TO-MAKE GIFT WRAPS

Half the fun of gift-giving is in the wrappings. By starting out with a simple idea, then seasoning it with imagination, you can create beguiling gift wraps that will add charm, sparkle and under-the-tree excitement to the holidays.

The personal touch makes a gift more meaningful, especially when the wrappings are suited to the person receiving it.

A box can be disguised as a dress shirt with vest and tie for the man in your life, and for the ladies on your gift list you can make a ruffled blouse — all with instructions you can send for.

Newspapers and magazine pages make handsome wrappings. They also can be used as "ribbon" for fluffy bows. Sports pages for sports fans, recipe pages for the gourmet cook, comics for children's gifts, all make fun wrappings.

Most materials needed for interesting gift wraps can be found around the home. Seasonal gift wraps can be created with paper appliqués or holiday arrangements which surround the gift box.

For the person who enjoys sewing, a fabric measuring tape is the perfect "ribbon" for tying. Colorful spools of thread can be used for ornamental trim.

There's more in FAMILY WEEKLY'S gift-wrapping leaflet, which will get you off to a good start with plenty of tips and suggestions, plus patterns and step-by-step instructions for unusual gift wraps. Write today so that you can have your leaflet well before Christmas. All leaflets will be sent first-class!

FAMILY WEEKLY PHOTO CONTEST WINNERS

A mountain of mailbags (more than 7,000 entries) brought your pictures from every state plus Washington, D.C. and Mexico, even though no newspapers in those two areas carry Family Weekly. The family in its many moods of cheer and play and contemplation was represented. Above all, the entries prove that Americans have become adept takers of imaginative pictures. Our What in the World feature (page 30) this week has interviews with top winners in each category — black/white and color.

HERBAL DIURETIC TABLETS

HELPS REDUCE EXCESS BODY FLUID AND THE WEIGHT THAT GOES WITH IT.

If your clothes are too tight from time to time even though you haven't changed your eating habits, you may be retaining excess body fluid. This condition affects your whole body right down to your ankles.

Feeling bloated and puffy can be the result of water retention. Also, extra weight is another factor. It is a fact that a quart of water weighs over two pounds.

Safe, mild HERBAL DIURETIC TABLETS help eliminate excess water in your body so you can feel slimmer and more comfortable.

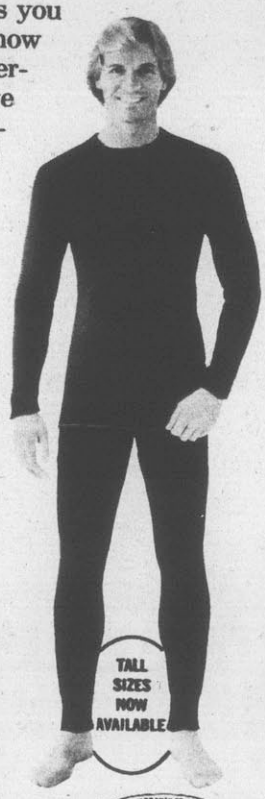
It's 10° outside . . . Even getting colder. So you bundle up in layers and layers of heavy clothes. First with long underwear . . . then bulky, restrictive thermalwear on top.

Oh, you were warm, all right. Like in a Turkish bath. Because you began to perspire from all your activity. And perspiring in that mountain of clothes is like perspiring in a plastic bag! The perspiration is locked in. So there you are. Wet and miserable.

But now, at last, Damart has solved the problem. Because Damart invented underwear that keeps you warm, dry and comfortable no matter how cold it is or how long you stay out. Underwear that's soft and light so you can move easily. Underwear that lets the perspiration evaporate through so you always stay warm and dry next to your skin.



Damart does this with a new miracle fabric—Thermolactyl. It not only retains and reflects your natural body warmth, it's knitted to let perspiration out! No other underwear does this! Damart Thermolactyl is so comfortable that the Mount Everest climbing expedition wears it. So does the Mt. McKinley Bicentennial Expedition and the U.S. Bobsled Team. Damart is also worn by the Chicago Bears Football Club, New England Patriots and Philadelphia Eagles.

Our free color catalog tells the full Damart Thermolactyl story and displays the whole Damart line for men and women. Send for your FREE copy now!

EARLY WARNING SYSTEM FOR MARITAL TROUBLES

By Edward Wakin

Michelle Horwitz

At the Center for Family Learning in New Rochelle, N.Y., a nationally recognized family therapist is monitoring the traditional signs of these infectious "divorce anxieties":

- Children asking parents whether they, too, are going to get divorced as have parents of their classmates.
- Husbands and wives concerned about their marriages as divorce spreads through neighborhoods like an epidemic.
- Groups urging divorce "as the way to go" while partners caught in a conflict wonder who will make the first move.

Dr. Philip Guerin and his staff have pioneered in offering an antidote to this anxiety-breeding atmosphere. They present courses on family life so that couples, as well as their children, can monitor themselves and their relationships. In the process, couples learn the ins and outs of what amounts to an early warning system for their marital trouble.

As part of an early warning system, Dr. Guerin advises couples to watch these five areas in particular:

Communications. This involves a close look at how well a couple communicate their thoughts and feelings to each other.

Dr. Guerin suggests an experiment to test how much a couple share what goes on inside them: "Go out to dinner alone with no one else along. Notice what you talk about. Is it what color to paint the dining room? Which model car to buy? Ways to cut the phone bill, electric bill, grocery bill? It shouldn't be only one thing after another and none of it concerned with feelings or attitudes towards life and love, attention to what is happening inside each partner — the very stuff of which personal relationships are made."

Toxic Issues. By identifying troublesome issues which are being shunned, a couple can pinpoint issues that can poison their relationship.

"For instance," Dr. Guerin notes, "a lot of people claim they have no trouble talking about sex. But do they talk about their own personal programming in sex as kids, the way their parents dealt with sex, their feelings about themselves as sexual beings, their sexual preferences with their spouses, the times they're satisfied and not satisfied, the times they feel sexual, the times they don't?"

When couples try talking about issues, they soon discover which ones are being avoided and need to be dealt with. They will also find that they are repeating their parents' "toxic issues." Dr. Guerin reassures couples that the reason they have trouble with certain issues is "only in part — and not necessarily very much — tied in with their all encompassing relationship with each other."

Life Cycle. Couples are traveling together on a road covered with "nodal events." These events in the life cycle — births, deaths, sickness, accidents, changes in jobs, an endless list of stresses — take their toll. Dr. Guerin finds that couples need to be reminded about the ups and downs of the life cycle, particularly when stress strikes.

Emotional Network. Both husband and wife need an emotional and social framework so that a mate is not providing all the feeling of "connectedness." This involves being open and available to their children, parents, brothers and sisters, other family members and friends. Dr. Guerin emphasizes two aspects of this network: "First, there should not be just a social network but also extended family. Second, neither should move into that network in order to complain about a spouse, but to have a relationship in and of itself."

Myth of Freedom: In a marital relationship, a couple pile up what Dr. Guerin labels "relationship debris" — anger, hurt, resentment, etc., in the course of living together. An extramarital affair glitters with the promise of freedom from such "debris." While people make such comparisons all the time, he emphasizes that they are not comparable.

Dr. Guerin adds that marriages can be destroyed unnecessarily because partners don't want to risk being vulnerable again to being hurt. Yet, ironically, no new marriage is going to be risk-free, either.

"It is impossible to have a marriage without conflict," Dr. Guerin explains. "If there is a marriage that seems to have no conflict, you are not taking a good look.

"In order for two individuals to remain really individuals — and that is the only way people can have real intimacy and closeness — they have to expect differences and conflict because they are two different people. Each must take responsibility for the way he or she is — both the nice self and the toxic self. Each has a responsibility to develop a way of dealing constructively with the spouse's toxic self instead of expecting him or her to change for the other's sake and become all nice. If a partner wants change, then the place to begin is with himself or herself. Then changes will take place in the family." FW

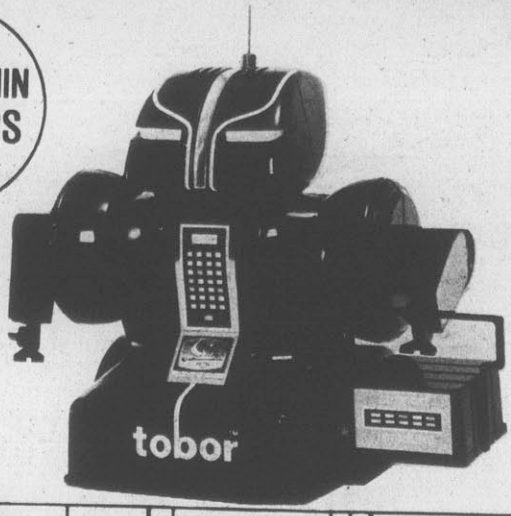
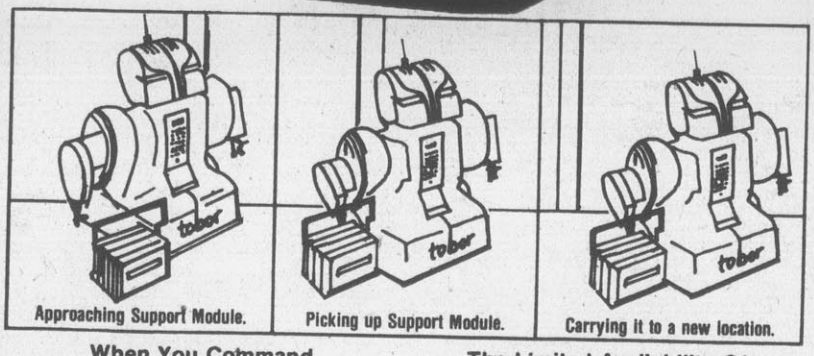
TOBOR® THE SOUND CONTROLLED ROBOT

WE'LL SHIP WITHIN 72 HOURS
See coupon for details.





Approaching Support Module. Picking up Support Module. Carrying it to a new location.

When You Command, Tobor Listens

Tobor, the robot, obeys only your commands, without radio or wires. His sensor is responsibe to sounds transmitted through the hand-held ultrasonic control module. Just press the button on the module. Tobor ignores other sounds and responds only to your commands. He goes forward, stops, turns, or comes back at your bidding. He also picks up his support module or similar objects and takes them to new locations.

The inventor of Tobor has patented an amazing sensor and servo-mechanism that responds only to the commands of Tobor's owner, and filter out other sounds. The diaphragm and sensor work like the mechanism of the human ear, to transmit changes in course to the robot's servo-mechanism. The simplicity of this translation means trouble-free performance.

The Limited Availability Of Tobor, The TV Star

Tobor has recently performed at the command of his boss on nationwide TV. Tobor has also been described in articles in leading publications around the country. The interest in Tobor generated by this publicity has been strong, but he hasn't been widely available until recently. Production hasn't been as high as possible, because the manufacturer maintains high quality control to assure reliability. This attention to detail has produced a reliable and durable product.

Order Now With A Guarantee You Can't Beat

Tobor measures a little over one foot from ground to antenna, and he weighs about one pound.

Fill out the coupon now, and we'll ship Tobor fast with our guarantee that you can send him back anytime, for any reason, for a full refund.

LET'S GET READY FOR CHRISTMAS WITH YUMMY FOOD GIFTS

By Marilyn Hansen

With December here it's time to plan and make a variety of gifts in your kitchen. We have several recipes for you.

ORIENTAL PLUM SAUCE

1 jar (12 ozs.) plum or apricot preserves
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
½ teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon ground allspice

1. Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Heat in small saucepan, just to boiling, stirring constantly.

2. Spoon sauce into clean jar or crock; cover. Store in refrigerator.

3. Use sauce as a glaze for poultry, ribs or as a dipping sauce for egg rolls.

Makes 1¼ cups

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

4 medium cucumbers, unpared
3 medium onions
1 green pepper
1 clove garlic
¼ cup pickling or uniodized salt
Crushed ice
2½ cups sugar
1½ cups cider vinegar
1 tablespoon mustard seed
¾ teaspoon celery seed
¾ teaspoon ground turmeric
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves

1. Slice cucumbers, medium onions and green pepper by hand or with slicing blade of food processor.

2. Combine sliced vegetables with garlic and salt; cover with crushed ice. Mix thoroughly. Allow to stand at room temperature 3 hours; rinse and drain well. Discard garlic.

3. Heat remaining ingredients in large saucepan to boiling. Add vegetables; heat to boiling. Remove.

4. Fill hot sterilized pint jars with hot vegetables and liquid, leaving ½-inch head space. Seal and process in boiling-water bath 15 minutes. Makes about 4 pints

FRESH HORSERADISH SAUCE

8 ozs. raw horseradish root, peeled
⅓ cup white vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar

1. Chop horseradish in blender or with cutting blade of processor. Combine and process until pureed.

2. Spoon horseradish into sterilized jars and cover tightly. Store in refrigerator up to 6 months. Makes about ¾ cup

CARROT MARMALADE

3 cups raw, peeled carrot chunks
Peel of two oranges
Juice of two oranges
3½ cups water
¼ cup lemon juice
4 cups sugar

1. Shred carrots coarsely in processor or blender. Chop orange peel by hand or with chopping blade of processor.

2. Combine carrots, peel, orange juice and water in saucepan. Heat to boiling; cover; reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes.

3. Stir in lemon juice and sugar. Heat to boiling, stirring until sugar dissolves. Boil, uncovered, over medium heat, stirring constantly, about 20 minutes, until thick.

4. Ladle hot mixture into hot, sterilized jars, leaving ¼-inch head space; seal. Process in boiling-water bath 10 minutes. Makes 2 pints

NUTTY CHEESE BALL

8 ozs. sharp Cheddar cheese
2 green onions with tops, cut into 1-inch pieces
¼ green pepper
1 rib celery
2 packages (8 ozs. each) cream cheese, at room temperature
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Dash red pepper
Dash salt
¼ cup shelled pecans
Whole shelled pecans
Assorted crackers

1. Shred cheese by hand or in food processor. Chop onions, green pepper, celery and pecans separately.

2. Mix all ingredients except pecans and crackers. Beat smooth; shape into ball.

3. Store, covered, in refrigerator no longer than 2 weeks. Serve at room temperature. Decorate with chopped and whole nuts. Serve with crackers. Makes 24 servings

SPICED SUGAR

1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cardamom
¼ teaspoon ground coriander
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves

1. Combine ingredients in blender and process till sugar is very fine in texture.

2. Store in a covered jar in a cool, dry place. Use to sweeten fruit, coffee, tea, pancakes and French toast. Makes 1 cup

NOTE: This recipe can only be made in a blender or blender-type unit.

DOCTOR'S PROGRAM FEATURING CRASH-BURN DIET AND AMAZING NEW CAPSULE FORCES YOUR BODY TO BURN AWAY FAT AS IT...

Neutralizes All The Calories In The Food You Eat!

Meaning: After Each Time You Eat, Your Body Breaks Down Bulging Fat and Burns It Away — So You Grow Slimmer and Slimmer From Meal to Meal. (up to a full size smaller in just 5 days) . . . as you melt away both fluid and fat at the incredible rate of as much as

2 POUNDS GONE THE FIRST 24 HOURS
6 POUNDS GONE THE FIRST 48 HOURS
10 POUNDS GONE THE FIRST 7 DAYS

BURNS AWAY UP TO ANOTHER 30 — 40 — 50 POUNDS, OR EVEN MORE thanks to this Doctor's fantastic calorie neutralizer wonder-weapon!

TURNS EVERY LAST BIT OF FOOD YOU EAT INTO BURNED-AWAY ENERGY INSTEAD OF STORED-UP FAT! Medical science has proven conclusively that in your body there exists a fat-burning system of natural chemical fat-destroyers so powerful they are capable of NEUTRALIZING THE EFFECT OF ALL THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU EAT. That once you discover how to unleash these fat-destroyer chemicals against clinging pockets of fat . . . you can actually compel your body to GROW SLIMMER, INSTEAD OF FATTER, AFTER EACH MEAL YOU EAT!

WORKS SO FAST — THE VERY FIRST WEEK ALONE YOU LOSE AN AVERAGE OF UP TO 1½ POUNDS OF BODY FLUID AND FAT EVERY 24 HOURS! Now from one of America's leading obesity specialists comes a thrilling crash-burn way to slimness . . . that does away with all the torture of rigorous diet ONCE AND FOR ALL — ends brutal exercise FOREVER!

What this doctor has done is simply this: Found a surefire way for you to gently raise the level of your fat-burning metabolism . . . step up the flow of your body's own natural fat-burners . . . so that every time you eat . . . your system automatically NEUTRALIZES THE EFFECT OF ALL THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU TAKE IN — AND YOUR BODY MELTS AWAY FAT LIKE HOT WATER MELTS DOWN ICE!

Yes, with this doctor's thrilling ANTI-CALORIE PROGRAM and capsule, you "rev up" your inner furnace — you neutralize all the calories coming in — so not one ounce of the food you eat can possibly turn to fat.

ACTUALLY SHRINKS YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS STARTING IN JUST HOURS! Yes, based on published reports from professors at leading medical schools . . . PLUS experimental fat-burning studies on U.S. Army officers, West Point Cadets and independent research tests. . . with the food you eat on this doctor's CAPSULE PROGRAM . . . your body automatically neutralizes the effect of all the calories you take in — automatically forces pounds and inches to vanish so FAST, that before you hardly know it, you:

LOSE UP TO 4 TO 6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE
LOSE UP TO 2 TO 5 INCHES OFF YOUR HIPS
LOSE UP TO 3 INCHES OFF YOUR THIGHS
LOSE UP TO 4 INCHES OFF YOUR BUTTOCKS
LOSE UP TO 4 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH

. . . as you start to win the physique of a naturally skinny person . . . those types who never seem to gain an ounce!

YOUR TUMMY FEELS LIKE YOU FEASTED, BUT YOUR WAISTLINE LOOKS LIKE YOU FASTED! Just to give you an idea of how fast this thrilling anti-fat wonder-weapon burns away excess fat and inches . . . according to California University Medical School research on energy burn-off you can actually melt away more fat each 24 hours than if you ran 10 to 14 miles a day! — Lose more pounds each week than if you did 300 sit-ups each morning and 300 push-ups each night! LOSE as much as a FULL SIZE THE FIRST 5 DAYS ALONE . . .

BEST OF ALL — YOU STAY SLIM FOR GOOD! BECAUSE AT LONG LAST, YOU HAVE IN YOUR HANDS A LIFETIME WEAPON TO DEFEND YOURSELF AGAINST FAT BUILD-UP! Yes, when you arm yourself with this thrilling ANTI-CALORIE CRASH-BURN PROGRAM and doctor's capsule . . . you actually fortify yourself with the only thing you'll ever need for LIFETIME PROTECTION against excessive fat build-up. That's because medical science now offers you a proven way to neutralize all the calories in the food you eat — gently step up your metabolism . . . stimulate and "target" your body's "fat-burner" chemicals to attack clinging pockets of fat, so you burn away excess flab meal to meal these 3 medically proven ways:

ONE — BECAUSE YOU CONSTANTLY NEUTRALIZE THE EFFECT OF THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU EAT. YOU BURN AWAY STORED-UP FAT AND CONTINUE TO GROW SLIMMER AND SLIMMER FROM MEAL TO MEAL! Yes, when you launch yourself on this doctor's calorie-deficit crash-burn program you gently step up your inner furnace! So when food enters your body, instead of being stored as fat, it is AUTOMATICALLY converted to burned-away energy.

TWO — YOU GRADUALLY ACCELERATE YOUR FAT-BURNING METABOLISM by greater caloric burn-off than intake. Meaning: your body, without you even feeling it, unleashes a steady surge of fat-burner chemicals directly into your system to attack stored-up fat . . . automatically breaks down . . . converts it into fluid . . . that drains right out of your body!

Just like a furnace grows hotter and hotter the more you stoke it . . . so your own body burns away fat faster and faster the more you step up your fat-burning metabolism.

THREE — YOU COMPLETELY DEFEAT THE GREATEST SINGLE CAUSE OF FAT BUILD-UP, runaway appetite and overeating. Because the moment you take this doctor's CAPSULE, ravenous hunger disappears. Gnawing appetite is switched off . . . you lose your craving for food for hours at a time.

More significant . . . when you do eat on this Doctor's CRASH-LOSS diet and Lifetime Slim maintenance program, since your body completely NEUTRALIZES THE FAT-BUILDING EFFECT OF ALL THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU EAT, excess fat simply cannot form . . . stored-up body fat burned off and melted away by the hour — and you continue to grow slimmer instead of fatter after each meal you eat!

DOCTOR ADVISES: USE THIS CRASH-BURN PROGRAM ONLY WHILE YOU'RE OVERWEIGHT . . . OTHERWISE YOU MIGHT GROW TOO THIN! Of course, there is one thing you must keep in mind. You cannot use this CAPSULE CRASH-BURN PROGRAM indefinitely . . . otherwise, you might become overly thin.

Also, as long as you are on this ANTI-CALORIE Program you cannot stuff and gorge yourself silly on over-rich, high-fat foods. There is a reasonable limit on just how fast medical science can help you safely burn away fat. BUT — and here's the very heart of this wondrous development: Because this thrilling ANTI-CALORIE concept not only helps you neutralize the effect of the calories in all the food you eat . . . but ALSO puts gnawing appetite to sleep . . . you simply lose that driving urge, that maddening craze to make fattening food the very center of your existence . . . thanks to this medically proven formula that contains the most powerful reducing aid ever approved for release to the public by the United States Government!

Now just think what this great ANTI-FAT weapon means to you, if all your life you've had to fight off excess pounds, battle away inches?

WHY "KILL" YOURSELF WITH BRUTAL DIET OR TORTUROUS EXERCISE? NOW — YOU CAN ENJOY A LIFETIME OF SLIMNESS WITHOUT RAVENOUS HUNGER! It means that from this day on . . . you simply start the ALL-OUT ASSAULT ON FAT by taking these medically proven CAPSULES . . . called "Thera-Thin", before eating . . . as part of this incredible "CRASH-BURN" PROGRAM . . . to help you NEUTRALIZE ALL THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU EAT! You gently raise the level of your fat-burning metabolism . . . "rev up" that inner furnace . . . unlock and activate the natural chemical fat-burners nature has placed in your body . . . and BURN AWAY FAT, MELT AWAY INCHES as you start to grow slimmer and slimmer from meal to meal!

REMEMBER: You must see dramatic results in just 24 hours — results you can see on your scale with your very own eyes, the very first morning . . . yes, you must:

LOSE up to 6 lbs. the first 48 hours
LOSE up to 10 lbs. the first 7 days
LOSE up to 7 lbs. more the next 7 days or "Thera-Thin" costs you nothing! Simply return within 10 days for full refund (except postage and handling, of course). Act now! Send NO-RISK TRIAL SUPPLY today!

VITAL NOTICE: Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is excess weight. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this Lifetime Road to Slimness including the few minutes of nightly toneup the doctor highly recommends is by far one of the most medically sound, fully sensible approaches to the problem of excess weight.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Behind The Lens

The first place winner in the black-and-white division, Michele M. Whitt, was flabbergasted to learn that she won — she's only been taking photographs for 6 months! Actually, Michele, a 27-year-old registered nurse who lives in Thousand Oaks, Calif., says her husband, John, is the real photographer in the family — he does it for a living. But when her second child, 7 month old J.T., arrived and Michele still had no photos, necessity prompted this mother to invention.

If Michele was surprised by her victory, there will be someone else even more amazed — her husband. He made a $5 bet with buddies at a local camera store that his wife wouldn't win anything.

Third place winner in the black-and-white division, Lucy H. Kirshner, has been taking pictures longer than Michele but started for the same reason — to take photos of her two children. Lucy, a 30-year-old homemaker who lives in Ann Arbor, Mich., says that her husband Bob, an astronomer who works at the Univ. of Mich., used to be the family photographer. But not anymore.

Lucy's photos have taken first prize in a Detroit Free Press contest and an honorable mention in a Kodak competition. Her winning Family Weekly photograph shows her husband, 4-year-old Becky and 1½-year-old Matthew reading the Sunday paper.

Second-place winner Bill Harrison of Fort Worth, Texas says he just started working in black-and-white a year ago after "25 years of taking snapshots and slides." Harrison says of his winning photo: "I just wanted to capture an intimate moment."

Johnson says he wanted a photo for a birth announcement for his daughter Paige, now 9 months old. So while his wife Laura held the new baby and sons Lee, 9, and Nels, 4½, looked on, Johnson shot the third place winner. But he says the photo would still be just hanging in the living room if his wife hadn't urged him to enter it in the contest.

"Try not to prolong taking pictures," Johnson advises, "especially with kids. Be ready before you even ask someone if you can take his picture."

Dale, the first-place color winner, usually enjoys taking nature photographs. But when his sister Elsie was married in Gainsville in May, Dale was on hand with his camera. "The sky was overcast and I didn't even have time to focus," Pennell recalls, "but I just saw my sister and Dad hugging each other and got lucky." Not included in the family portrait were Dale's wife, Julia Diane, and 3 young sons.

James Campbell, the second-place color winner, also had good luck with a spontaneous family shot. Campbell, a 26-year-old policeman and father of 2, says he was hiking with his family in a state park about 60 miles from his Roosevelt Park, Mich., home. "My wife's father and my son Jamie were straggling behind. I just caught them walking," Campbell says. "I don't think they even knew the picture had been taken."

Campbell also takes photographs in the line of duty for the police department. But he wouldn't have entered the contest, he says, except for a chance event. "My wife was in the hospital for an operation and took a copy of the picture with her. When people started asking which professional photgrapher had taken it, I started getting a swelled head," Campbell says.

"This is only the third thing I've ever won," Campbell continues. "The others were earmuffs for shooting and a pair of ski mittens."

Schaper Toys

Toy-Buying Tips

Even Santa can use a few helpers at this time of the year. So if you're wondering what kind of toys to give the youngsters on your shopping list, here are a few suggestions from a major toy manufacturer to keep in mind.

Before you buy any toy, ask yourself:

- Are you just buying the child what he wants, or do you think the child will enjoy the toy long after it's given?
- Does the manufacturer recommend the toy for children of that age?
- Are there any sharp or potentially dangerous edges?
- Is the toy nonflammable?
- Is any part of a game small enough to be swallowed? Is that part sharp or toxic?
- Has any lead-based paint been used on the toy?
- Will the manufacturer replace any lost, missing or broken parts?
- Is the toy package sturdy enough to use as a storage container?
- Will the toy make excessive noise?
- Can the child play with the toy without constant adult supervision?

Avoid giving toys powered by household electrical current to children under age 7, and when buying electrical toys follow the same rules of thumb as when purchasing home appliances. Make sure there are no frayed wires or exposed connections, that the product carries the Underwriters' Laboratories — UL — seal.

It pays to stay single if you're a woman executive says a new study. The nationwide survey by the management consulting firm of Heidrick and Struggles found that married women executives worked longer hours for less pay than their single counterparts. The married women execs worked 48.7 hours a week for an average salary of $28,000 while the singles earned an average of $31,000 for spending an average of 46.3 hours on the job. What's behind the discrepancy? "Married women may have more at stake and, therefore, be less aggressive in trying to get their salaries increased," speculates one of the researchers.

Health And Medicine. Most Americans actually spend very little time with their physicians when they visit the doctor's office, reports the National Center for Health Statistics. In fact, 16.4% of the patients saw the doctor for 5 minutes or less, while 31.8% saw him for 6-10 minutes. Twenty percent saw the doctor for 16-30 minutes, and only 5.4% spent more than a half hour with him.

Finance. The number of Americans living in debt has risen dramatically in the last 7 years says pollster Lou Harris. Harris found that 77% of the nation's households currently owe money compared with 54% in 1971. A majority of those interviewed said inflation made it increasingly difficult to make ends meet.

Announcing The House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series...

William and Mary Clock Kit for only $1

when you enroll in The House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series

Actual size

This William and Mary Tall Case Clock is an authentic reproduction of a clock described and illustrated in the antique collector's Bible, Furniture Treasury. The original clock was built in the early 1700's in New England.

Your completed Clock will measure 7¼" tall, on a scale of 1" to 1', with a door that opens and closes to reveal the solid brass clock weights and pendulum! Your Kit provides everything you'll need, from furniture-quality wood to solid brass clock face and hardware. It's so easy to make . . . at a fraction of the cost of the antique originals!

Nothing is more rewarding and challenging than collecting miniature reproductions . . . except perhaps making them YOURSELF —with our museum quality Collectors Kits! Now you can start enjoying this fascinating creative hobby with our William and Mary Tall Clock Kit—yours at the introductory price of $1.00 when you enroll in the Collectors Series.

As a member, you will receive an elegant House of Miniatures™ Kit each month. One month you'll receive the Chippendale Desk . . . the next perhaps, the Hepplewhite Table or the Queen Anne Candle Stand. All Kits range in price from $2.95 each to $7.95, plus a modest fee for postage and handling. And each piece is an authentic reproduction, historically correct down to the tiniest detail.

The Kits are easy and fun to make, too. No special tools or skills are needed. Our Kits are precision-scaled, and cut to exact specifications from furniture-quality hardwood. Fittings and hardware of solid brass, finished to fit perfectly. Most pieces have movable parts —just like the full-size originals. The full-size layout sheet and detailed, step-by-step instructions are included; all you add is loving care to create elegant, authentic miniatures.

Start your collection now with a scaled replica of an original William and Mary Clock—yours for just $1.00. Send no money now. We'll bill you only $1 plus shipping and handling. Just fill out and mail the attached order form today to THE HOUSE OF MINIATURES™ Collectors Series, 1400 North Fruitridge Ave., Box 1156, Terre Haute, Indiana 47811.

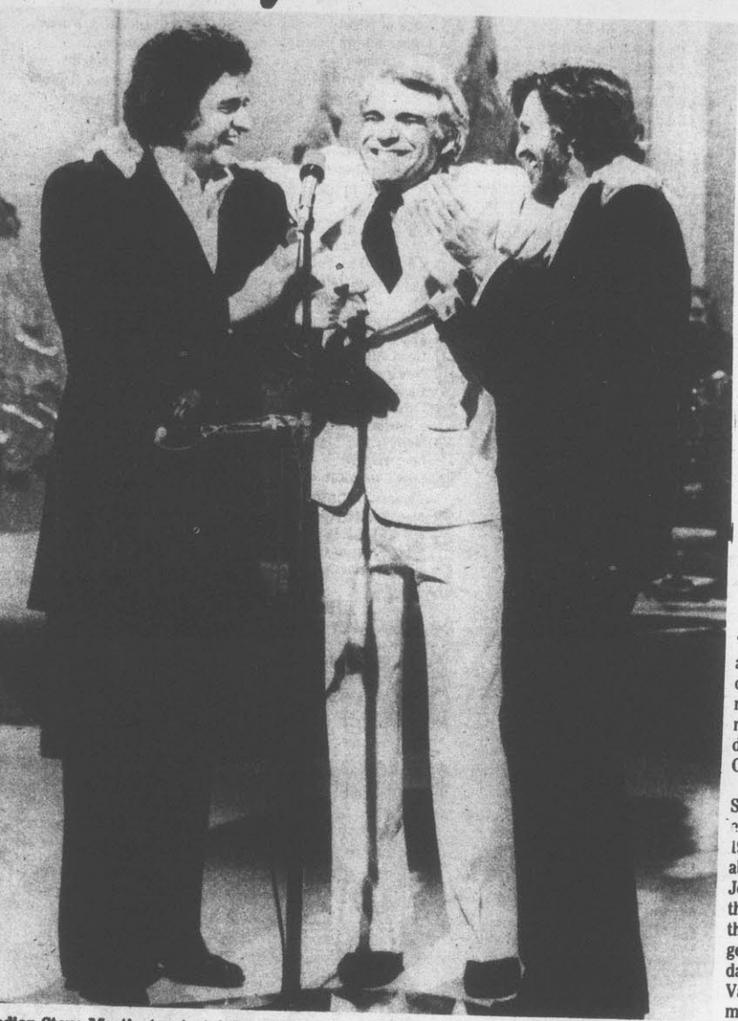
TV SHOWTIME

For Week Of December 3 - December 9

Johnny Cash Hosts Holiday Special



edian Steve Martin (center) joins Johnny (l) and Kris Kristofferson in the musical ay celebration, "The Johnny Cash Christmas Show," to be presented on Wednesday, Dec. 6 (10-11 p.m.) On CBS-TV.

Johnny Cash, one of country music's true superstars, hosts his third annual Christmas special, "The Johnny Cash Christmas Show," with his close personal friends, Rita Coolidge, Kris Kristofferson and Steve Martin, and June Carter Cash with the Carter Family and the Tennessee Three, to be presented Wednesday, Dec. 6 (10 to 11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Comedian Steve Martin makes an appearance as France's greatest country singer, the self-proclaimed "Johnny Cash of France." Martin also joins Cash and Kristofferson in an unusual display of his unique musical talents.

Cash sings one of his earliest hits, "Ballad of a Teenage Queen," plus a new composition, "Baby, I Will Rock and Roll With You." He then welcomes his old friend Kristofferson and the two team up with the hit song written by Kristofferson and recorded by both musicians, "Sunday Morning Coming Down."

Cash, Kristofferson, June Carter Cash and Rita Coolidge sing the holiday song, "Christmas Time's A Comin'," and Johnny and June sing a duet entitled "You're a Part of Me."

Miss Coolidge sings "Love Me Again," and then joins her husband, Kristofferson, to perform "Please Don't Tell Me How the Story Ends."

Christmas is a time to spend with friends and family, but as Cash notes, there are some people who will have to spend the holiday in confinement. Whether these people are in a hospital or in a prison, Cash dedicates a song to them, "The Fourth Man."

The special is highlighted throughout with various photographs that Cash took himself — photos of his friends, the Kristoffersons, that were taken when they were all on vacation together in Jamaica, and also pictures that Cash took during his recent trip to Israel.

In a family finale, six of Johnny and June Cash's daughters join Johnny for a rendition of "Silent Night," dedicated to the memory of the woman some people called the First Lady of Country Music, Maybelle Carter, who recently passed away.

Jimmy Stewart Honored

Variety Clubs International's "All Star Tribute to Jimmy Stewart," an evening devoted to honoring the famed and beloved member of the Hollywood communtiy, will be broadcast Thursday, Dec. 7 (10 to 11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

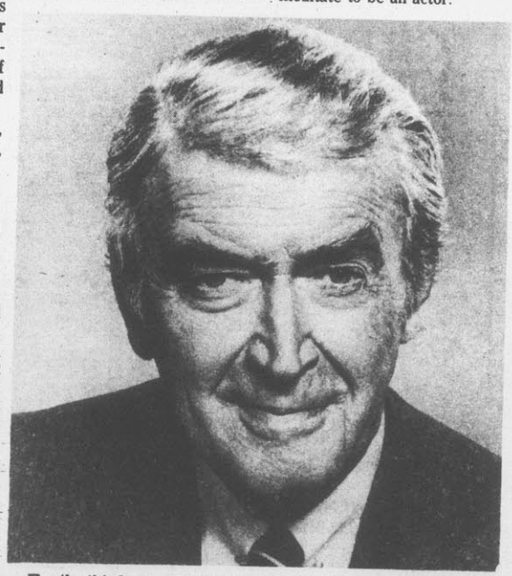
Helping to bestow honors on Stewart during the evening of entertainment — taped at a Nov. 19 black-tie gala — were Elizabeth Taylor; television star Johnny Carson; Omar Bradley, the World War II leader who is the nation's only living five-star general; screen great Henry Fonda; Monty Hall, president of Variety Clubs International, and many other celebrities.

The first VCI salute of its kind, in 1976, honored John Wayne, and last year's honoree was Ms. Taylor.

In the name of each of its annual honorees, VCI is contributing a building addition to a children's hospital. The John Wayne Pavilion is now part of the Miami, Fla., Children's Hospital, and an Elizabeth Taylor Wing will soon be constructed at the Mental Retardation Institute of the New York Medical College in New York City.

Jimmy Stewart is now 70 years old, and even though he is no longer that shy, laconic fella who always seemed to be scratching a mild itch behind the ear — he is in fact, quite hard of hearing these days — he still retains that special grace which appears to be lacking in most of today's movie stars.

"The most important thing about acting," he explains, "is to approach it as a craft, not as art and not as some mysterious type of religion. You don't have to meditate to be an actor.



For the third year, Variety Clubs International will present an "All Star Tribute to Jimmy Stewart," one-hour special to air Thursday, Dec. 7 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

elterweight Bout To Air—ABC

e coverage of the 10-round weight fight between un- Sugar Ray Leonard and ranked contender Armanuniz, and the World High Championship from Ft. rdale, Fla., will be presson "ABC's Wide World of " Saturday, Dec. 9 (5 to m.).

r Ray Leonard will be a major step up in his ional career when he faces allenge of Muniz, ranked the world's leading welghts. Muniz is the most experience (58 fights), toughest (29 wins by knockouts), and heaviest (152 pounds) fighter Leonard has ever met in the ring. Leonard's manager, Angelo Dundee, who also trains Muhammad Ali, believes now is the time for his fighter to be tested against one of the world's best.

Leonard, just 22 years old, has made remarkable progress in his two-year professional career that began soon after he won a gold medal in the 1976 Olympics at Montreal. As a pro, Sugar Ray has scored 16 straight victories without a loss, including nine by knockouts. One of his KO victims was Javier Muniz, younger brother of Armando, blasted out by Leonard in one round last March. Armando will be seeking to even the score in this fight against Olympian from Palmer Park, Md.

Muniz, 31 years old, has amassed a 44-13-1 record. He has fought four times for world championships, just narrowly missing taking the weltherweight crown from Jose Napoles and current champ Carlos Palomino.

Muniz is returning to the ring against Leonard after a hiatus of several months while he made an unsuccessful bid for election to the California State Assembly. Muniz makes his home in Los Angeles.

Divers plunge from the dizzying heights of 90 and 100 feet into the Swimming Hall of Fame Pool in Ft. Lauderdale as they compete for the World High Diving Championship.

Hope Salutes Theatre

"Bob Hope Salutes the Ohio Jubilee," a tribute by Hope to Columbus, Ohio's prestigious Ohio Theatre on the occasion of its 50th anniversary — with guest stars Lucille Ball, Donny and Marie Osmond, Ginger Rogers and Vic Damone — will be a special presentation Sunday, Dec. 3 (8 to 9 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

Much of the special was taped at the Ohio Theatre during a glittering celebration commemorating the golden jubilee. Former President Gerald R. Ford and Mrs. Ford headed the list of luminaries at the gala.

The Ohio Theatre, built in 1928 as part of the Loew's chain, is regarded by many in the business as one of the most elegantly designed facilities of its kind. The theatre's golden jubilee celebration almost did not happen. Slated for demolition in 1969, the ornate structure was scheduled to be replaced by a parking lot. The Columbus Association for the Performing Arts mounted an intense campaign ot save the facility, culminating in the theatre being designated a national historic landmark. It was also recognized, by resolution of the Ohio legislature, as the state's official theatre.

Among Hope's guest stars on the show, Lucille Ball, the Osmonds and Ginger Rogers have appeared with him on earlier TV specials.

A veteran of many Hope shows over the years, Ball's last appearance with Hope was earlier this year in the three-hour 75th birthday tribute to Hope sponsored by the USO. She was for many years a familiar figure on television as the star of her own weekly series, which are still in syndicated re-runs all over the country.

Donny and Marie Osmond, who headline their own variety series, also appeared on the birthday tribute.

Ginger Rogers, renowned star of motion pictures and the fabled dance partner of Fred Astaire, was a guest on Hope's specials from 1975 through 1977.

Crooner Vic Damone, a headliner of his own summer television series, remains a top attraction on the night club circuit.

BOB HOPE SPECIAL-Bob hosts his second special of the season with a special salute to the Ohio Theater celebrating its fiftieth anniversary, Sunday, Dec. 3 (8-9 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Dennis Weaver Back In The Saddle

Dennis Weaver, who made his major thrust into stardom as Chester in the long-running "Gunsmoke" series, is back in the saddle again — this time as ramrod of a huge drive of Texas Longhorn cattle to Colorado.

Weaver stars as R.J. Poteet when "Centennial" returns to the air with Chapter Six, "The Longhorns," on "The Big Event," Sunday, Dec. 3 (9 to 11 p.m), on NBC-TV.

"I truly believe 'Centennial' is going to resurrect the Western. This is a western people haven't been exposed to because it's authentic . . . lifted out of pages of history," Weaver explained.

The storyline depicts a cattle drive between Texas and Colorado in 1867, just after "the war between the states" as Texans term the Civil War.

Weaver is joined in the cattle drive by an array of stars including Cliff De Young, Scott Hylands, Gregg Mullavey, Timothy Dalton, Rafael Campos, Glynn Turman, Michael LeClair, and Weaver's son Robby, and about 600 pure-bred Texas longhorns.

"There is an old adage in show business about the dangers of sharing center stage with children or animals — they are natural scene stealers, you know," says Weaver, adding: "But what can you do when about 600 of the most beautiful cattle you've ever seen are your co-stars?"

The cattle were rounded up — if you'll pardon the expression, but it is literally true — by J.T. "Happy" Shahan, president of the Texas Longhorn Breeders Association of America, and the group's secretary, Maudeen Marks.

Line producer Alex Beaton explained the West Texas site was chosen "because the trail drive in Michener's book started here and this is the kind of territory that was crossed."

The Longhorn segment took three weeks shooting time, with temperatures daily exceeding the 100 degrees mark.

"The hardships cowboys went through, and the dirt and dust took on reality," Weaver assured, "and the trail ride back then was a hot, dusty sort of thing. We'er getting some good authentic drama."

Panther Christmas

There seems to be a blue Christmas in store for the Pink Panther, who is alone and hungry on a Central Park bench in New York City of the 1890s in "The Pink Panther's Christmas," airing Thursday, Dec. 7 (8:30 to 9 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

The popular Pink Panther tries literally everything to get himself Christmas dinner. But he can't even seem to get arrested so that he can dine in jail.

The Pink Panther character was originally created 14 years ago by DePatie-Freleng Enterprises to illustrate the titles for the motion pictures of the same name, and went on to win an Oscar of his own as star of "The Pink Phink" (Best Animated Short Subject — 1964).

Chargers Rejuvenated

Suddenly, there's more to do in beautiful, warm San Diego, Ca., than water ski and barbeque on the patio. The San Diego Chargers, long a doormat in the rugged AFC Western Division of the NFL, have begun to win ball games, and a lot of these victories have come against teams other than the Tampa Bay Bucs and the New Orleans Saints.

Thus far this year, the Chargers have whipped the likes of Oakland, Denver and Minnesota, and one of the reasons for a renewed interest in the San Diego-based club has been the performance of quarterback Dan Fouts. Now in his sixth year as a pro, Fouts has reached the point where he is no longer just 'promising' — he is fulfilling that promise.

The Chargers meet the Chicago Bears on ABC's "Monday Night Football" (9 p.m.), from San Diego Stadium.

The season hasn't been easy for the outspoken, articulate graduate from the University of Oregon. In the summer of 1977, he testified in court in behalf of the NFL Players Association, stating in the hearings he would rather retire than play again for the San Diego team.

But some deep retrospection prompted him to return to the squad in November. Armed with a freshly inked contract that called for $170,000 annually, Fouts immediately showed he was worth every penny. In just four games, he completed 63 percent of his passes.

Dan enjoyed his brief absence from the Chargers, saying the rest gave him "a chance to enjoy a fall in my adult life."

He also detected a noticeable change in the attitude of his once-lethargic teammates: "What impressed me is that the players seemed so much more confident and mature," he said upon returning. "They felt they could play with anyone, and they proved it by beating the likes of Oakland, Miami and Cincinnati, barely losing to teams like New England and Denver. That's why we couldn't wait until this season so we could show people just how competitive the San Diego Chargers can be."

Fouts has always had a penchant for tossing touchdown passes. In two memorable games in his career — one against Cleveland and the other versus St. Louis — the Oregon graduate threw four TD aerials.

With the addition of Lydell Mitchell in the backfield, Dan has become just more and more effective. The final proof of a Charger rejuvenation will come if the team can finally reach the playoffs.

Likes Rough Play

"When I play football, I play it rough because, to me, that's the way it should be done," says Jack Lambert, linebacker for the Pittsburgh Steelers who will be in action against the Houston Oilers Sunday, Dec. 3 (4 p.m. on NBC-TV).

Fellow Steeler Joe Greene, who's on the 'rough side' himself, has this to say about Lambert: "As soon as I met him and saw him play, I knew he was the kind of guy I wanted behind me if I ever got involved in an alley fight. The dude is mean, and he's strong. He's the kind of man who deals by action, not words."

With a shock of blond wispy hair, pale skin and lean jaw, Lambert resembles a young Scandinavian farm boy. His neck, unlike most pro linebackers' is long and lean. His fingers are slender. His eyes are so pale that at times they, like the rest of his face, seem to hold no color at all.

But it is his physique that truly sets him apart. Although listed in the program at 6 foot 4 inches, Lambert admits to being taller. "If I weren't so darn bowlegged, I'd problably be 6 foot 7 inches," he adds with a thin grin, the closest he comes in normal conversation to openly smiling.

Often enough it is Jack Lambert's image, rather than his actions, that causes trouble. "Some guys see me," he says, "and want to prove their manhood. If they can show they aren't afraid of a middle linebacker, they feel great."

For his overall image, Lambert says, "It's a falsehood. You don't have to be an animal to play middle linebacker."

Cindy Williams Stars In Central Role

Cindy Williams and Paul Shenar star as young lovers who defy every obstacle to their romance, in "Suddenly, Love," a highly dramatic love story set in the 1950s and early 1960s. The World Premiere drama will be colorcast on "Monday Night at the Movies" Dec. 4 (9 to 11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Starring with Williams and Shenar are Oscar winner Eileen Heckart (Best Supporting Actress, "Butterflies are Free"), Joan Bennett, Lew Ayres, Scott Brady and Kurt Kasznar.

Williams stars as ghetto girl Regina Malloy, an unattractive but intelligent girl determined to escape her alcoholic, bickering parents by building a career for herself as an architect, a dream in which she receives encouragement from a neighborhood tailor, Mr. Luria.

With her dream within her grasp, Regina is persuaded by socially prominent lawyer Paul Graham to marry him, though his parents are shocked at his choice. Despite their disapproval and Paul's longstanding ill health, Regina weds him, only to learn extraordinary courage can be required, whatever the social level a person attains.

Playing an upwardly mobile girl with great dreams is typecasting for fragile, brown-haired Cindy Williams who worked her way through college — as a waitress in a pancake house — and ended up as one of the nation's most-watched television actresses.

Cindy Williams stars as a girl from the ghetto who becomes a successful architect in "Suddenly, Love," airing as the "Monday Night Movie," Dec. 4 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

'Walking Tall, 2'

"Walking Tall, Part 2," which continues the incredicble but true story of Buford Pusser, the ferociously honest Tennessee sheriff whose exploits have become legendary, will be "The Tuesday, Movie of the Week," Dec. 5 (11:30 p.m.).

Prior to his death in a mysterious car crash near his home on Aug. 29, 1974, Pusser provided the details of his life following the sensational events that made "Walking Tall" an enormous box office success. Pusser had signed to play himself in the film, but after his death, Producer Charles A. Pratt selected actor Bo Sevensen for the role.

"Walking Tall, Part 2" begins exactly where the previous film ended, with the sheriff recovering from the wounds he had suffered in the ambush that killed his wife, and focuses on his relentless hunt for the gunmen involved.

After Pusser is re-elected sheriff of McNairy County, he continues his efforts to clean up the vice operations that have corrupted the county for years, while three relentless hired killers continue their pursuit of him. After Pusser survives three attempts on his life, efforts to kill the seemingly indestructible lawman accelerate, but Pusser is always one step ahead of his would-be assassins.

Artists To Be Honored

"The Kennedy Center Honors: A Celebration of the Performing Arts," a major two-hour entertainment gala that will pay tribute to five of the world's most distinguished artists — Marian Anderson, Fred Astaire, George Ballanchine, Richard Rodgers and Artur Rubinstein — will be broadcast Tuesday, Dec. 5 (9 to 11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

The honorees, whose artistic excellence is world renowned, have been chosen by the Kennedy Center Trustees as "individuals who throughout their lifetimes have made significant contributions to American culture through the performing arts."

Marian Anderson, who has often been referred to as the world's greatest contralto, has proven to be equally at home with the works of Brahms, Handel, Saint-Saens, Schubert and Negro spirituals throughout her long career on concert stages around the world.

Fred Astaire has danced his way from Broadway, through more than 30 musicals and highly praised television specials, and has been credited with revolutionizing the art of the movie musical and of dance itself. He has also proved his ability as a dramatic actor through such roles as the ones that earned him Oscar nominations in the films "The Towering Inferno" and "On the Beach."

George Ballachine, considered by many to be "the finest choreographer of all time," is the creative genius of the New York City Ballet Company of which he is artistic director. He has composed more than 100 ballets and choreographed ballets for opera, musical comedy and film.

Richard Rodgers, with such collaborators as Oscar Hammerstein and Lorenz Hart, has helped bring to the American stage an integration of music and drama which is considered by critics to be an indigenous art form, a combination of drama, music and ballet drawn from native sources.

Artur Rubinstein, the Polish-American piano virtuoso who first appeared in the United States on a tour that included a performance at New York's Carnegie Hall in 1906, received the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest award, in 1976.

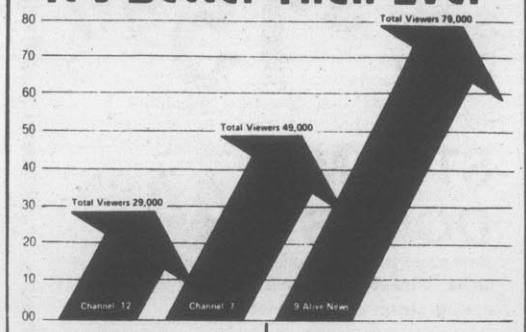
It's Better Than Ever



MORE VIEWERS THAN 12 OR 7

The July Nielsen Ratings show that 9 Alive News has more 6 PM viewers than Channel 12 or 7. In the past year, according to Nielsen, our 6 PM audience has increased 42%, and news ratings increased 45%.

On Monday nights as indicated in the above chart* 9 Alive News has more viewers than 12 and 7 combined. That's no accident. It is part of our plan to provide Eastern Carolina with the best news coverage possible.

Enlightening

"It was a challenge and an education."

That's what Sally Struthers, Archie Bunker's TV daughter, had to say about her role in "My Husband Is Missing," a World Premiere drama to be telecast on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Tuesday, Dec. (9 to 11 p.m.).

"It was a big challenge because the script is marvelous and the character is on every page. The moment I read it, I knew I would have to give an excellent performance," Struthers recalled.

In the opening drama, filled with adventure and romance, she plays Kathy Eaton, an M.I.A. wife who journeys to North Vietnam to search for her husband, an American flyer missing in action for more than six years.

About her role, she continued: "It educated me because I didn't really understand how people are considered neither dead or alive — just floating in U.S. papers.

"During production of the film, I had an opportunity to speak at an M.I.A. convention in San Diego. It was such an emotional meeting. The mothers, fathers, wives and children of these men — all very special people with a particular problem — thanked us for making a movie that would keep the issue alive and aid them in their efforts to get the government to find their loved ones.

"I never followed the war. I never understood who we were fighting for. I didn't want to think about it. But it hit me after the first week of production. This role enlightened me and awakened all my interest.

AGONIZING SEARCH — Sally Struthers stars as the wife of a missing American serviceman who goes to Vietnam to search for her husband, and Tony Musante portrays a journalist she meets there, in "My Husband is Missing" a World Premiere movie on "The Big Event," Tuesday, Dec. 5 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Catherine Gilmour Named Queen

Catherine Mary Gilmour, who resides in La Canada Flintridge (Calif.) home once owned by the 1930 Rose Queen, will reign over the 90th Pasadena Tournament of Roses, which will be telecast on NBC Monday, Jan. 1.

The 60th Rose Queen (30 Tournaments were queenless), a 17-year-old La Canada High School senior, will be joined by a Royal Court of six princesses, all from Pasadena suburbs.

The Gilmour family home is the former residence of Holly Halstad Balthis, the Tournament's queen 48 years ago who is still active in Tournament functions.

'Dallas,' 'Kaz' Still Alive

Two CBS-TV series, "Dallas" and "Kaz," have been given midseason renewals by the network.

"Kaz" debuted last September while "Dallas" is a returnee from last season. Each series had a contract for 13 episodes for this period, and both were handed renewals for nine more shows.

Last Try

James Brolin, Rip Torn, Jennifer Warren and Strother Martin star in "Steel Cowboy," a World Premiere film about an independent trucker who hauls rustled cattle in a last-ditch effort to save his business, marriage and sanity, on "Wednesdy Night at the Movies," Dec. 6 (9 to 11 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

Clayton and his wife, Jesse (Brolin and Warren), are about to separate because of constant harassment from bill collectors, and her desire to return to college.

Crosby's Christmas

"Bing Crosby — The Christmas Years," a new special hour woven around highlights from the Christmas shows of the late entertainer, whose legendary voice continues to be a part of Christmas, will be presented Wednesday, Dec. 6 (9 to 10 p.m), on CBS-TV. Members of the Crosby family will be sharing their memories of Christmases past when they gather for the holidays reunion.

Among the highlights of past Crosby Christmas show, which viewers will watch along with the special's stars, Kathryn (Mrs. Bing) Crosby and the Crosby children, Harry, Mary Francis and Nathaniel, are memorable moments with Fred Astaire, David Bowie, John Byner, Jackie Gleason, Robert Goulet, Michael Landon, The Mitchell Singing Boys, and Connie Stevens.

This past year, since the sudden death of the singer, has found the Crosby family scattered geographically but closely linked in their mutual determination to grow in their respective career and to merit the pride Crosby always felt and expressed for his wife and children.

Kathryn is an active member of the American Conservatory Theatre (ACT) in San Francisco, and she has just returned from a season's tour as star of the stage play "Same Time, Next Year."

Harry Crosby Jr., 20, returned to England after taping the Christmas show to continue his studies in music and composing at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts.

Mary Francis, 19, has made a number of appearances in television dramas, including roles in "Starsky and Hutch" and "Pearl." along with local theater productions. She recently announced her engagement to songwriter Edmund Preston Lottimer.

Nathaniel Crosby, 17, a senior at Burlingame High School near San Francisco, has taken over the reins as sponsor of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament at Pebble Beach, Calif., which was founded by his late father in 1937.

The first appearance of Kathryn and the children on a "Hollywood Palace" Christmas show with Bing in 1966, when the children were 8, 7, and 5, will be seen on the special, as is the medley of "Little Drummer Boy"and "Peace on Earth' sung by Crosby and Bowie in an old English manor house music-room setting on last year's Christmas special, which Crosby taped in London five weeks before his death on Oct. 14, 1977.

Correspondents Named Recipients

John Chancellor, Walter Cronkite and Barbara Walters have been selected as recipients of the Hubert H. Humphrey Freedom Prize of B'nai B'rith, presented for the first time last year to the late senator.

Benji's Holiday Tale

Benji, the lovable canine superstar, makes an adventuresome holiday journey to Zermatt, Switzerland, where he meets an injured Kris Kringle, who wants to duck his annual duty, as the popular pooch stars in his second television special, "Benji's Very Own Christmas Story," a family program by Joe Camp, airing Thursday, Dec. 7 (8 to 8:30 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

Benji and his owner, Cindy, and their housekeeper, Patsy, are invited to lead the beautiful village's Christmas parade. When they arrive, they are picked up by Kringle (Ron Moody), who gives them a tour of his facilities where plans for joyful Christmases are made for the entire world. They meet the many elves responsible for plotting the great Christmas excursion, CEPAC (Christmas Eve Planning and Communications).

Cindy Smith is cast as Cindy, Patsy Garrett as Patsy. Also appearing are Marcus Powell as Needles, Sadie Corre as Pins, and Deep Roy (cq) as the Key Elf.

"Benji's Very Own Christmas Story" was filmed on location in Zermatt, Switzerland, and Nice, France.

Benji, whose very existence is a gift to the children of the world, assures the deliver of all the other gifts when he sends a reluctant Santa Claus on his round-the-world trip in "Benji's Very Own Christmas Story," a holiday special airing Thursday, Dec. 7 (8-8:30 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Embarrassing Situation

It was one of life's most embarrassing moments for Julia Child, the well-known TV chef, during a taping of a recent "Tomorrow" show starring Tom Snyder.

She and French chef Jacques Pepin were starting to prepare a lavish gourmet dinner when she cut a finger on her left hand while slicing a tomato. The finger was bandaged, but Pepin had to finish the dinner as Child offered suggestions.

"This is the first time in 15 years of cooking on television that this has ever happened to me," she said.

'Y'All Come!'

"A Country Christmas" a holiday celebration of music and family get-togethers, starring Lynn Anderson, Roy Clark, Loretta Lynn, The Oak Ridge Boys, Minnie Pearl, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Jim Stafford and Dennis Weaver, will be broadcast Thursday, Dec. 7 (9 to 10 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

The many stars and members of their families are invited by the irrepressible Minnie Pearl to attend her down-home, rip-roaring, old-fashioned, snow-on-the-ground, country Christmas, to take place in a typical small town, replete with Yuletide songs and warm-hearted fellowship.

Seasame St. Memories

For Leslie Uggams, a trip to Sesame Street was at first a nostalgic trip backwards to her childhood.

Miss Uggams, who stars in the holiday special, "A Special Sesame Street Christmas," to be presented Friday, Dec. 8 (8 to 9 p.m.), on CBS-TV, grew up in the upper Manhattan neighborhood called Washington Heights, and the stoops, shops and buildings she remembers are "visually similar" to ones she found on Sesame Street.

But as similar as Washington Heights may look to Sesame Street, there are some important differences — two of them are Big Bird and Oscar — characters she never would have met if she had stayed in Washington Heights.

"I adore Oscar," Miss Uggams said. "He says exactly what's on his mind, things a lot of people keep bottled up. I find him very 'city.'" She further explained, "When you live in New York, you have a tendency to speak out about everything."

Miss Uggams regularly takes her act to such resorts as Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe and she received critical acclaim for her dramatic performance in "Roots." She has also worked with Julie Andrews and Milton Berle. Her children, Danielle, 8, and Jason, 2, are used to seeing their mother perform. But Miss Uggams feels that no previous performance, however glamorous or dramatic, will ever quite measure up in her childrens' eyes to her small duet with Oscar.

"When they found out I was going to work on Sesame Street, they were very impressed," she said. "All my young fans are going to be impressed.

"Danielle's watched 'Sesame Street' since she was one and a half, and Jason's into it now, especially Oscar. He has a toy trash truck with Oscar." Miss Uggams is pleased that not only she had the chance to work with the Sesame Street characters, but that also the show has an important message — namely that the holiday season is a time for sharing and to re-establish the bonds between friends and family.

"Christmas has always been a big holiday in my family," Miss Uggams said. "All the relatives you don't see during the year get together."

But as much as "A Special Sesame Street Christmas" may by an educational vehicle to some, it's also fun. Miss Uggams concluded, "I think it comes down to this: Christmas is the time of year that the people you weren't speaking to — you speak to."

The Pink Panther makes like "Santa Paws" for a moment when ABC-TV presents the world premiere of "The Pink Panther's Christmas," a holiday special airing Thursday, Dec. 7 (8:30-9 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Please tell me something about Mark Shera (J.R. on "Barnaby Jones"). S. HARTBERGER, MADISON HEIGHTS, VA.

A: The personable young man is from Bayonne, N.J., and a 1971 graduate of Boston University. Mark's career has been a success story since his first audition for "Godpsell," when he won the role of a disciple. He debuted on TV in a pilot, "Nickey's World," then went on to guest parts in "Kojak," and "Gunsmoke" and, ultimately, his regular role of the wisecracking Dominic Luca on the "S.W.A.T." series. Since moving to Hollywood, Shera has become a tennis enthusiast. He's single and loves to sing and play the piano.

Q: Is Anne Lockhart the daughter of June Lockhart? How old is she? J.M., LAURINBURG, N.C.

A: Anne is the oldest of June's two daughters. She is in her mid-20s and has been before the cameras for the past six years. If you're old enough, you may remember Anne's grandfather, Gene Lockhart, a beloved character actor, who died in 1965.

Q: Did Glynnis O'Connor, who starred in "Ode to Billy Joe," also have a part in "The Boy in the Plastic Bubble?" D. WOOD, PRINCE GEORGE, VA

A: She did. Glynnis played Gina, the girl next door, with whom Tod (John Travolta) fell in love. Glynnis made her motion picture debut in "Jeremy" (1973, and co-starred in the short-lived TV series "Sons and Daughters" the following year.

Q: Is there really something going between Dirk Benedict and Marie Osmond? If so, what is it? E. DUGGER, HARLAN, K.Y.

A: Both Dirk and Marie call it "friendship," but people around Hollywood say it looks more like 'love' to them.

A: Send your letter to the show's co-anchor, Sharron Lovejoy, CBS-TV, 51 West 52 St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

Q: What shows did Robert Blake star in when he was a child? J.TALTON, ROCKY MOUNT, N.C.

A: Blake, then Bobby Blake, played Mickey in 40 "Our Gang" comedies over a 5-year period. He was also Little Beaver in the popular "Red Ryder" films of the 1940s.

Q: What has happened to David Canary, who played Candy, the ranch foreman on "Bonanza"? M.F. HARRISONBURG, VA.

A: Canary has been concentrating on feature films since the series ceased filming, and among his film credits are "Hombre," "The St. Valentine's Day Massacre" and "Posse."

'Old Hand' Featured On Series

Popeye the Sailor continues his 44-year voyage with the same captain of his voice, Jack Mercer, in the remake of the cartoon classic now airing Saturdays (8:30 to 9 a.m.), on ABC-TV.

Mercer has served "Popeye" through the years in all capacities, from writing scripts to drawing and coloring in scenes for shows, which is how he started in the cartooning business.

Mercer bounce from stage to stage, city to city, as a child growing up in the midwest with his family's traveling repertory company. Although he often shared the stage with his parents in vaudeville shows, they decided show business was too tough for him and encourage him to pursue an art career.

They helped him land a position at a Hollywood studio and he would often entertain his coworkers with imitations of the characters they were working on.

"When Popeye became one of the studio's new characters, I took great delight imitating his voice," said Mercer.

But an odd-ball singer called 'Red Pepper Sam' Costello provided the raspy voice for the first Popeye cartoons made in 1931. A few years later Sam was unavailable during the production schedule. A producer who had heard Mercer hamming it up with his impersonation of Popeye rushed him to the studio, gave him a script to read and Mercer has been reading them now since 1934.

He said he remembers happily the days he worked with the first cast which included Mae Questal who voiced the characters of Olive Oyl and Betty Boop. However, he says the new cast is also fun to work with and he believes their voices are quite good.

Mercer said he admires Popeye because he doesn't really hurt anyone unless he's forced to. "Popeye is sort of like everyone's uncle. He's the champion of the down-trodden," he said.

Although he appears somewhat frail, Mercer can really belt out that deep, knobby voice in the recording studio. And he delights in making the sailor's low, playful chuckle.

While Popeye has gone with his girl for nearly 40 years, Mercer has been married to his for nearly 25. He met Virginia through her brother, a fellow animator. Although they never had children, he said they look at all the fans who watch Popeye as their own children. "Like him, I'm an uncle to a lot of kids," he said.

Veteran voice actor Jack Mercer stars as Popeye in Hanna-Barbera Productions' new animated series, "The All-New Popeye Hour," telecast Saturdays (8-9 a.m.) on CBS-TV.

Dramatic Acting Debut

Marie Osmond makes her dramatic acting debut as a rich girl who falls in love with an almost penniless young man in "The Gift of Love," a poignant story set at Christmas time in New York City in the 1890s. Timothy Bottoms is also starred in the special holiday film — inspired by O. Henry's "The Gift of the Magic" — which airs as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Dec. 8 (9 to 11 p.m.).

In the film, Marie stars as Beth Atherton, a young orphan who lives with her wealthy uncle and aunt, William and Constance Schuyler, in their Fifth Avenue mansion.

Beth, who reluctantly has agreed to an arranged marriage with a rich but boring young man, goes skating in Central Park and falls in love with an almost penniless immigrant, Rudi Miller (Bottoms). Her uncle and aunt are, of course, opposed, and if she marries Rudi the young couple will be cut off without a cent.

But Beth and Rudi aren't worried. After all, they have their love. And he has his priceless watch, and she her long and beautiful hair.

The Teen Scene

Look for Scott Baio to return as a semi-regular on "HAPPY DAYS" after the New Year. With "WHO'S WATCHING THE KIDS" holding up the bottom of the Nielsen ratings, is seems destined to be cancelled by NBC, thus freeing Scott for his 'Days' role.

JEFF CONAWAY, the actor who wants to be an actor on "TAXI," is going into a recording studio to cut a single and an album for release sometime next Spring. Jeff had a successful singing career several years ago but this marks the first time he'll be recording as a single artist.

No one's sure what it means, but within one week SHAUN CASSIDY was seen socially without ANN PENNINGTON on his arm while PARKER STEVENSON attended a Hollywood social function with SARH MORRIS at his side. Shaun said that Ann was busy with a modeling assignment in explaining her absence while Parker just grinned and said that he and Sarah are still best friends.

Scuttlebutt has it that NBC would like to team SHAUN and LEIF GARRETT in some sort of series situation. With the cancellation of "HARDY BOYS," Shaun is obligated to the network for a show and NBC is again interested in developing a project for Leif. Of course, they were going to be in the "Hardy Boys" together originally until it was decided to make the Hardys a bit older. That's when Shaun became the younger brother and Paker was cast in the series.

Not surprisingly, plans are already on the drawing board for a spin-off series starring KRISTY McNICHOL. It figures that "FAMILY" is good for one more season, and then Kristy will probably get an opportunity to go out on her own.

NBC-TV has ordered the pilot of a half-hour celebrity-contestant game show, "Decisions, Decisions," to be hosted by Bill Cullen.

A Reunion With Cyd

It was nostalgia time when Ricardo Montalban greeted a very special guest star at the filming of a recent episode for "Fantasy Island." The beautiful actress who appeared as Queen Delphia in the "The Island of Lost Women" was Cyd Charisse, who appeared with Montalban in his first American film, 'Fiesta.'

Sanders Gives Needed Lift

Every NFL team, even one as young as the Detroit Lions, needs a veteran to steer the ship down the season on an even keel. The Lions are fortunate to have such a veteran in a crucial spot on the team; the tight end. Charlie Sanders, a cagey vet of 11 battle-hardened campaigns in the NFL trenches, provides just the kind of leadership and guidance the exuberant Lions need.

Saturday, Dec. 9, the Lions challenge their long-time rivals, the Minnesota Vikings, in a head-to-head battle of NFC-Central powers on a special broadcast on "NFL Football" on CBS (4 p.m.).

Detroit has experienced the problems typical of a young team, but the addition of quarterback Gary Danielson has provided the spark to charge the long-dormant Lion attack.

Because of his stature as a leader among such inexperience, Sanders has taken the brunt of responsiblity for Detroit's growing pains. "It's not the coaches' fault when we lose," he commented. "The coaches take a lot of blame about something they have no control over. This is a professional ball game and professional ball players should be able to get up for a game themselves."

The former University of Minnesota star also sees the heavy turnover of Lion coaches as a problem in the growth of the team's ability to win: "When you change coaches, it sets the team back," he says. "Sometimes it may be for the better, but it's (success) not something that can be achieved simply by making a coaching change."

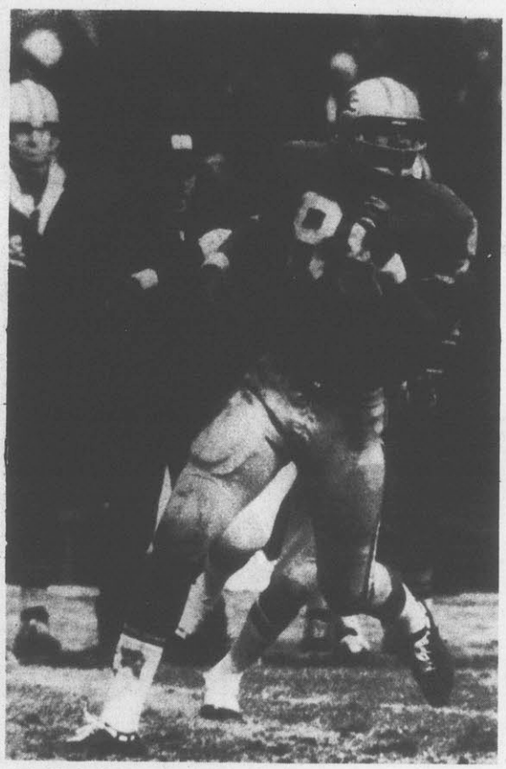
Charlie has also done his part on the playing field, setting a Detroit pass-catching record last season. He broke Gail Cogdill's old record of 325 catches when he nabbed a touchdown pass against New Orleans.

A durable performer, Sanders has also closed in on career touchdown receptions for the squad, as well as Cogdill's record-pacing mark for yardage.

A seven-time Pro Bowl performer and two-time All Pro, the Minnesota grad was both a football and basketball star with the Golden Gophers.

Although his teammates will tell you otherwise, Charlie doesn't consider himself a team leader. "Basically, I'm quiet and reserved. I get into my own bag because I feel my number one job is getting myself ready, leading by example rather than by verbal comment."

Whenever he's on the field, his teammates have to feel a lift. Not just because Charlie Sanders is such an outstanding tight end. Also, because he is such an inspirational leader.



The Detroit Lions are one of the youngest teams in the NFL. They're lucky they have a leader the caliber of veteran tight end Charlie Sanders. The Lions face a team that always gives them fits, the Minnesota Vikings, on Saturday, Dec. 9 at 4 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Colts

The media and their fiercely loyal fans call them the "Sack Pack," but they prefer to think of themselves as the "Looney Tunes." However, the way they've played this season, Baltimore Colt followers may be muttering under their breath, thinking of them as the "Fickle Foursome."

Whatever you called them, the front four of the NFL Colt defensive line has one performer who seems to play with the abandon of a reckless buffalo when he 'smells' the opponent's quarterback.

That lineman is Baltimore's own version of an All-Pro, man-mountain John Dutton.

Dutton and the rest of his cohorts had better have their rushing shoes on when they face the youthful New York Jets Sunday, Dec. 3, on the "NFL Game of the Week," on NBC-TV (1 p.m.).

Role Presents Problems

Buford Pusser was a man who was raised, lived and worked in Tennessee. There was nothing special about him that would raise him to the ranks of American heroes until he became Sheriff of McNairy County. When he took that job, his strong sense of right and wrong earned him as many enemies as it did friends, and word about him began to spread. The man Buford Pusser has become the legend of Buford Pusser.

Brian Dennehy stars as Pusser in the new motion picture-for-television, "A Real American Hero," to be presented on "The CBS Saturday Night Movies," Dec. 9 (9 to 11 p.m.). Dennehy is well aware of the fact that Pusser is a legend now, but he wanted to avoid the cliches involved in portraying a hero and probe into the character a little deeper.

Dennehy explained, "There's always a tendency to make a character completely idealized and unrealistic. I'm willing to make Buford Pusser shy, sensitive and romantic, but I think he has to have a fault."

He continued, "My Burford Pusser is going to be a real person with flaws. I'm not playing a hero. I want to make this guy interesting and real."

And explaining what Pusser's problem was, Dennehy said, "one big weakness was his very bad temper. He tended to take the law into his own hands."

Dennehy, a native of New York who attended Columbia University, did a little bit of research before he attempted to play the part of a Southern sheriff. "I came down a week early and spent time in McNairy Country and met some people. You do a certain amount of research and use what you can use."

He enjoyed the time he spent in Tennessee and said, "I understood the script a lot better from going down there. It was really wild and wooly in those days (about 15 years ago), but that's all changed now. I found it to be a delightful place, the people there are very nice, there's courtesy and gentility."

In retrospect, after studying the area where Pusser worked and talking to some of the people he knew, Dennehy said, "Nobody knows what's really true anymore. The man was a lightning rod — he was willing to take chances." He concludes, "Right or wrong, he had tremendous strength, tremendous guts. If something was wrong, he fixed it. That's a very attractive attribute."

Special Encores

With the happiness of the world at stake, the character of Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer takes on heroic proportions in "Rudolph's Shiny New Year," an encore presentation of the animated-animagic Christmas special. The special, featuring the voices of Red Skelton, Frank Gorshin and Morey Amsterdam, airs Saturday, Dec. 9 (8 to 9 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

In this adventure, Happy, the Baby New Year, is missing, and that has Father Time (Red Skelton) worried. So, with Santa Claus' permission, Rudolph finds Happy hiding out because he thinks his ears are too big. Of course, Rudolph, having once undergone similar feelings in insecurity because of his big shiny red nose, tells Happy the story of how he transformed his nose from a liability to an asset.

The Country Camel Cardigan

The most luxurious combination of wools you'll find in a casual sweater—imported Lambswool and Camels Hair spun into a superbly rich and soft yarn.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: THE BETROTHAL PARTY BECAME A NOISY BRAWL THAT LASTED TILL DAWN. ARN, DISGUSTED BY THE NEGLECT OF THE BRIDE-TO-BE, KEPT HER COMPANY THROUGH THE LONG NIGHT.

AT DAWN ALL THE MEAD HAS BEEN CONSUMED, SO HROTHGAR LEADS HIS RUFFIANS TO THE CASTLE OF EARL CNUTE. FOR IT SUITS HIS HUMOR TO BANKRUPT HIS FATHER-IN-LAW-TO-BE BY FEEDING HIS DRUNKEN GUESTS.

PRINCE ARN HAS JUST BEEN THROUGH A TRAGIC ROMANCE SO HE IS ALL TOO ANXIOUS TO AID THIS TROUBLED GIRL. SO HE FOLLOWS HER TO HER FATHER'S CASTLE AND MIXES WITH THE KITCHEN SERVANTS, FOR THEY KNOW ALL THAT GOES ON... AND SOMETHING IS GOING ON RIGHT NOW!

GRACE IS LEADING A DONKEY INTO THE KITCHENS. "GET THAT BEAST OUT OF HERE!" THE HOUSEKEEPER SCREAMS, "MUST YOU ALWAYS MAKE A MESS? THREE WAITING MAIDS COULD NOT CLEAN UP AFTER YOU!" GRACE LAUGHS: "WHEN I MARRY OLD KING HROTHGAR I'LL BE A QUEEN WITH LOADS OF SERVANTS TO CLEAN UP MY DEBRIS!"

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1978. World rights reserved.

"HEY, YOU, WHOEVER YOU ARE, GIVE A HAND HERE!" IT IS A COMMAND, AS IF SHE WERE ALREADY A QUEEN, BUT THE BRIGHT SMILE THAT GOES WITH IT CAPTIVATES ARN AND HE BEGINS TO WORK.
