

Poor Head South Gardner, Tucker, Warren Begin New Terms Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poor people were moving to the South faster than they were leaving the region between 1975 and 1977, reversing a trend that has existed since the beginning of the century, a new Census Bureau report says.

The report on the migration of the nation's poor, released Sunday, says the steady growth of job opportunities in the South is responsible for the shift.

It notes that each year between 1967 and 1971, about 187,000 poor people moved to the South and about 231,000 left.

But between March 1975 and March 1976, about 178,000 poor persons moved to the South and about 100,000 left, the figures show.

"What's happening is that the South is cashing in on the light manufacturing business moving from other regions as well as the general shift of the economy towards service industry and away from heavy manufacturing," said Larry Long, chief of the bureau's population analysis staff.

"The steel mills haven't moved to the South, but many other businesses have," said Long, author of the report. "This reflects the general expansion of employment opportunities in the South."

Not only are more poor people moving to the South, but the poor who traditionally left to find new jobs are staying, he said.

While the population of the South started growing in the 1960s, the growth consisted mostly of whites who were not poor, the report said.

Not until the 1970s did the South have an increase in the number of blacks and others below the poverty level, the report said.

In 1977, a nonfarm family of four with an income of $5,815 or less was considered poor by the government.

Alton Gardner, Ed Warren and Burney Tucker, re-elected to their seats on the Board of County Commissioners, took the oath of office and began their new terms today as the board held its regular monthly meeting this morning.

ALTON GARDNER

BURNEY TUCKER

ED WARREN

Chairman

R. L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel, who served as vice-chairman the past year, was named chairman for 1979, while Ed Warren was elected vice-chairman, during the board's annual reorganization.

Following the swearing-in and election of officers, the board re-appointed W. W. Speight as County Attorney, Reginald Gray as County Manager, and Mrs. Margaret Roberts as county finance officer and clerk to the board.

In other business this morning, commissioners adopted an ordinance providing for franchising cable television service for areas outside the corporate limits of municipalities in the county.

The board was told by representatives of Greenville Cable TV that that firm would begin work today on an application for a franchise to serve residents of the county.

In granting a franchise for cable television service, the county would receive three per cent of the franchisee's gross revenue.

The board also instructed the county attorney to draft a resolution endorsing the conversion of Pitt Technical Institute to a community college for its consideration.

Howard Wilson, who sought a seat on the Board of Commissioners in the past election, questioned several aspects of conversion.

He told commissioners, it is "this board's duty to find out if any of the county's money or time was used in promoting community college status," by any of PTT's faculty, staff or students, and how much the conversion would cost the tax payers of the county.

He also said PTT officials have not appeared before either the Pitt County or Greenville City Boards of Education to assure them that the conversion will not take any funds away from them.

Commissioners adopted a resolution closing a half-mile long segment of SR 1535 in Pactolus Township at the request of Worthington Farms following a public hearing at which no opposition was voiced, gave approval to final plans for East Acres Subdivision, Section I, on N.C. 102 East of Ayden, okayed the expenditure of $450 for a monitor and timer for an additional siren at a second fire station for the Carolina Township Volunteer Fire Department, and approved the purchase of a car for the Sheriff's Department to replace a vehicle demolished in a traffic mishap recently.

The board also appointed O. T. Alexander to fill the unexpired term of Daniel Melvin Owens on the Greenville Board of Adjustments for extra-territorial jurisdiction, and re-appointed Bruce Beasley Jr., Robert Griffin, J. I. Morgan III, and W. J. Thompson as members of the Pitt County Development Commission.

Commissioner agreed to postpone action on amending the county Sediment and Erosion Control Ordinance and on approving final plans for Windermere Estates subdivision, pending further study.

Swine Flu Damage Limits Retained

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to disturb a law limiting the way persons may seek damages for injuries allegedly suffered in the ill-fated swine flu vaccination campaign of 1976.

The justices, without comment, turned down a Lafayette, La., couple's appeal challenging the constitutionality of the liability law passed by Congress two years ago.

The appeal by Marie and Donald Ducharme was the first swine flu controversy to reach the nation's highest court. More than 1,000 lawsuits seeking damages totaling more than $1.5 billion have been filed in the past two years.

The Ducharmes' lawsuit, filed against Merrill-National Laboratories, charged that Mrs. Ducharme suffered partial paralysis after she became one of some 40 million Americans who took swine flu shots.

The suit sought $2.5 million from the vaccine manufacturer for Mrs. Ducharme and $104,000 for her husband.

A federal trial judge and the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that, under the law, the Ducharmes could not sue the manufacturer but must sue the government.

By passing the law on Aug. 10, 1976, Congress removed all swine flu claims from the traditional legal procedures and required that they be channeled through Federal Tort Claims Act procedures.

Manufacturers and distributors of the vaccine therefore are shielded from legal action.

Under the law, persons seeking damages as a result of the vaccination program must seek administrative remedies and, if unsatisfied, sue the government in federal court.

Such lawsuits are to be tried by a federal judge — not a jury.

After the Ducharmes sued Merrill-National, U.S. District Judge W. Eugene Davis approved a government request that it be substituted as the defendant and that the case proceed under provisions of the 1976 law.

"I conclude that the Swine Flu Act represents a valid exercise of Congressional power," Davis said in a ruling upheld by the appeals court.

Crippling Slowdowns By Iran Oil Workers Said Being Resumed

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Oil workers launched a new wave of crippling slowdowns in Iran's vital oil fields today demanding the ouster of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, reliable sources reported.

The world's second-largest oil exporter, more than $1 billion in lost revenue. The staterun National Iranian Oil Co. was just beginning to restore production to normal when today's slowdowns struck.

As it did last month, the military government may order the army into the oil fields again to force workers to restore normal output, risking a possible confrontation.

Security Risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee that called the Selective Service System "an unacceptable risk to national security" in 1976, now says the system is even worse.

A House Armed Services Committee report released Sunday said the system is not capable of mobilizing enough recruits to meet Pentagon needs in time of a crisis.

"Considering the present shortfalls in our reserve forces, the present Selective Service situation cannot continue," said Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

He said the 96th Congress will investigate Selective Service after it convenes in January.

"In 1976, the committee found that the shortcomings in Selective Service were an unacceptable risk to national security, and if anything, matters are worse today," Price said.

The exiled leader of the orthodox Moslem opposition to the shah, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, had called from his base in Paris for a nationwide general strike and street demonstrations beginning over the weekend. Troops and protesters battled bloodily for the past three nights in Tehran, but the strike move appeared to be faltering in the capital.

Besides the police station attack, authorities also said "terrorists" fired on police guards at the Egyptian Embassy residence in north Tehran Sunday night, but no one was reported hit. The attacks were the first serious assaults on security forces in months.

The gunmen attacked the police station from an overpass 20 minutes after the nightly curfew ended at 5 a.m., authorities said. They fled in a car and disappeared into the heart of the city.

CONFIDENTIALITY?

I am seeking help concerning whether the Pitt County Mental Health Center has the right to withhold from me information contained in my child's records and, at the same time, to disclose to the schools this information which I feel labels my child before he begins.

Hotline contacted the Mental Health Center and received a written statement from Robert R. Ratcliffe, M. D., which said, in part: The Pitt County Mental Health Center must adhere to the "Standards for Mental Health Centers" established by the Commission for Mental Health. These Standards state that "the confidentiality of client activities of the area mental health authority shall be protected and no staff member of the area mental health authority shall disclose any information, record, report, case history or memoranda regarding the consumer without the written consent of the client." You say you did not sign such a consent form, as your child's guardian, but have reason to believe that such information has been released to the schools.

Dr. Ratcliffe's statement went on to say: "In a case where the patient is a minor, the law is also not clear, but the recent trend of judicial decisions seems to favor protecting the rights of minors in similar cases, especially when the therapist feels it is in the best interest of the minor." You say you have talked with the Area Mental Health Director Dr. Steven Creech and have been told you cannot be shown your child's records. The matter will become a court case, you say, if the problem cannot be solved, because, based on research you've done, you feel that the law is ambiguous enough that you have a good case to contest the decision not to let you see your child's records and the decision to release such records to the schools.

Refugee Toll Is Rising

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Almost 250 Vietnamese refugees drowned or were missing after three escape boats sank during the weekend while hundreds of others made it to shore in the growing exodus from Communist Vietnam.

Two refugee boats went down in the Gulf of Thailand and off Malaysia's northeast coast Sunday. Authorities said 108 persons were dead or missing, and there were more than 265 survivors. The third boat sank off Malaysia Saturday, and marine police said 139 persons drowned or were missing and feared dead.

The weekend sinkings raised the known toll from such tragedies to close to 400.

Hundreds of other refugees dodged stepped-up Malaysian coastal patrols as the currents carried them south from Vietnam in search of new homes.

Cult Leader Fled Arrest Threat

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
JONESTOWN, Guyana (AP) — Fearful he might lose custody of 6-year-old John Victor Stoen, suicide cult leader Jim Jones ignored persistent court summonses, took the boy to Guyana and had his top aides urge senior Guyanese officials to influence the case.

According to some of his personal papers obtained by

The Associated Press, not only did Jones avoid arrest, but the senior law enforcement official in Guyana also agreed in March this year to take the matter up with the judge presiding over the custody hearing.

After months of delay the Guyanese judge refused to rule on the case even though the boy's mother, Grace Stoen, had won her custody battle in U.S.

courts. The case was sent back to Guyana's chief justice for reassignment.

It was the delay in resolving the Stoen case that helped persuade U.S. Rep. Leo Ryan to make an investigative journey to Jonestown, according to his aides. Ryan died in a blaze of gunfire along with three American newsmen and a female cult member fleeing Jonestown.

The boy, whom Jones claimed to have fathered, is believed to have had cyanide squirted down his throat and to have died along with more than 900 others at the Jonestown mass murder-suicide.

Jones' personal papers discovered at the jungle settlement indicate that his aides in the Guyanese capital of Georgetown approached two cabinet ministers and a former minister with close ties to the ruling party to intervene in the case.

Jones' lobbying had already stopped a developing investigation of the cult by the Guyanese police, a favor which he returned by deeply involving his Peoples Temple followers in the ruling party politics of Guyana, the personal papers show.

So close was Jones to one official, Home Minister Claude Mingo, that he had his aides check with him on the advisability of dropping the legendary lawyer of the Peoples Temple, Sir Lionel Luckhoo.

Mingo, according to a memo dated March 22 this year, advised that Luckhoo should be kept "because the PM (Prime Minister Forbes Burnham) takes his matters to Sir Lionel." The bitter custody battle began when Grace Stoen left the Peoples Temple in 1976 and Jones sent the child to Guyana. Mrs. Stoen and her husband, Timothy, who resigned in 1977, had been respected members of the church.

They heatedly denied Jones' allegation that he fathered John Victor and it was never made an issue in the custody proceedings. But Jones followers frequently made that claim to Guyanese officials.

On August 26, 1977, Mrs. Stoen obtained a preliminary ruling from Superior Court Judge Donald King in San Francisco granting her custody of the child and ordering Jones to appear in court. Two local court orders to bring the child and Jones to the Guyana capital of Georgetown to face trial were ignored.

Jones was desperate to avoid handing the child back. Luckhoo suggested former foreign minister Frederick Wills might help because "he still has areas of influence even though not in a position officially."

Reject 'Phase 2' Bids On Watershed Project

Bids for construction on Phase Two of the Chicod Creek Watershed Project have been rejected, according to Robert D. Stokes, Chairman of the Pitt County Drainage District No. 9.

The bids were received from four contractors at the Nov. 15 opening in Greenville, with bids ranging from $1,694,233 to $1,928,985.

All four bids exceeded the estimated price range for performance, according to Stokes.

The Chicod project covers 35,100 acres in Pitt and Beaufort Counties. The construction was delayed eight years when the project was halted by a group of environmental organizations.

Suit was brought in Federal Court to stop the project under provisions of the 1969 National Environmental Policy Act.

Judge John D. Larkins Jr. signed the compromise consent judgement decree in 1978, settling the disagreement. The settlement eliminated approximately eight miles of stream channelization from the project.

Clearing and snagging of the unchannelized streams is permitted, with no construction work to be done between Feb. 1 and June 30.

According to Stokes, construction of phase one of the project has been completed. Phase One included clearing and snagging of Chicod Creek Main, beginning at Highway NC-33 and extending upstream to the junction with Juniper Branch to secondary road No. 1766. The first permanent sediment trap was also constructed, according to Stokes.

Veteran Cultist Faces Murder Hearing Today

By LEW WHEATON
Associated Press Writer
GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Charles E. Beikman, a 20-year veteran of the Peoples Temple, faces a preliminary hearing today on charges of murdering four other cultists on the night more than 900 died in an orgy of suicide and murder at the sect's Jonestown colony.

Beikman, 43, of Indianapolis, Ind., is charged with slaying the throats of Sharon Amos, the cult's public relations officer, and her three children in the sect's Georgetown headquarters Nov. 18.

Beikman has not yet entered a plea to the charges.

Beikman is one of two American cultists facing murder charges in this South American nation. The second is 32-year-old Larry Layton of San Francisco, who is charged with murdering Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., three newsmen and a temple defector in an ambush near Jonestown.

In New York, the FBI said it had prepared arrest warrants for a number of persons wanted for the murder of Ryan and his four companions. However, a spokesman gave no details.

Ryan had gone to Jonestown, 150 miles northwest of Georgetown, to investigate reports that Californians were being held against their will and abused in the cult's jungle commune. After the attack on his party, the Peoples Temple members in Jonestown joined in the mass suicide-murder ritual at the orders of their leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, who died with them.

Both Beikman and Layton have been held without bail since their arrest, shortly after the camp deaths were discovered.

The Guyanese police have said they will hold some survivors here as material witnesses. The police have authorized 46 of the 86 known survivors to leave the country.

'Hugs Wanted'; Well, Not Really

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Two young women who lamented "the lack of cowboys in Butte" found out that they were the butts of a practical joke.

The Livestock section of the Butte newspaper's classified section contained this notice Sunday: "Two cowgirls, age 22, need hugs."

A telephone check to the listed number found two young women at an apartment and one of them commented, "Oh yes, we could use some hugs."

The roommates, both Montana residents employed by the regional Bureau of Land Management office here, said they didn't know who placed the ad but thought it was a joke prompted by their complaint.

Marijuana Cuts Unemployment

ATLANTA (AP) — Marijuana distribution provides "employment" for 3 million persons and accounted for $48 billion in business last year, says former White House adviser Dr. Peter Bourne.

He told the Southeastern Conference on Alcohol and Drug Abuse here Saturday that a "new criminal aristocracy" channels profits from marijuana sales into such legitimate business ventures as real estate. "In Florida, marijuana is the biggest business, even bigger than the state's tourism industry," he said.

Bourne was President Carter's chief adviser on health until he resigned in July after it was reported he prescribed the drug Quaalude to a White House employee using a fictitious patient's name.

Couple Speaks Vows Sunday

Miss Pamela Kay Smith and Barney Hayes Barrett III were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Smith of Ayden and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hayes Barrett of Greenville.

The Rev. David C. Hansley, former pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony. A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Frances Sugg, organist, and Miss Jackie Sugg, soloist, both of Hudson. Miss Sugg sang "The Wedding Song," "Always" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with arrangements of traditional greenery, red carnations, holly and red velvet ribbons flanked by cathedral candelabra. Spiral candelabra were placed on either side of the altar and a background of palms completed the setting. A twin kneeling bench and unity candles centered the altar front and family pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a formal length gown of polyester organza and silk Venise lace. The gown was designed with an empire waist and high sheer neckline accentuated with silk floral Venise lace. Long sheer organza sleeves were bordered with a double ruffle at the shoulder. A full A-line skirt with a scalloped ruffle extended into a chapel length train.

The bridal veil was a Juliet capulet covered with matching lace and seed pearls attached to a double fingertip veil of nylon illusion. She carried a full cascade of red roses, white snowflakes with a spray of greenery tied with white satin.

Mrs. Penny Baldrée of Greenville was honor attendant and wore a formal gown of cranberry red qiana with a blouson top featuring bows at the shoulder. The accordion pleated skirt was accented by a roped waistline. She carried a bouquet of peppermint miniature carnations and greenery tied with a matching bow.

Bridesmaids were Miss Cathy Barrett of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Debie Avery of Winterville, Miss Sharon Stocks of Hookerton, cousins of the bride, Miss Susan Johnson of Walstonburg, and Mrs. Lynn Needham of South Mills. Their dresses and bouquets were identical to that of the honor attendant.

Honorary bridesmaids included Mrs. Janet Byrd of Grifton, cousin of the bride, and Miss JoAnn Sutton of Ayden. They wore dresses of light pink styled like the honor attendant and each carried a pink carnation tied with pink lace satin.

The bridegroom's father served as best man and ushers included Bill Barrett of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, Jeff Smith of Ayden, brother of the bride, Wes Stocks of Hookerton, cousin of the bride, Steve Thompson of Winterville, and Ed Holland of Greenville.

The bride's mother wore a formal gown of dusty rose pleated chiffon over knit and the mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of champagne pleated crepe with long sleeves. Both wore white orchid corsages.

Mrs. Robert Mooring, grandmother of the bride, Mrs. William H. Ryan and Mrs. Barney Hayes Barrett, grandmothers of the bridegroom, were given corsages of white carnations.

Miss Vickie Wood presided at the guest register and Mrs. Hight Collins directed the wedding.

The bride graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School and attended Lenoir Community College. She is employed by Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and attended Lenoir Community College. He is employed by Electronic Office Systems.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Ayden.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

The bridal table was covered with a white satin cloth and centered with an arrangement of carnations, holly and greenery flanked by burning tapers. The three tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. William E. Stocks, aunt of the bride, after the bride couple cut the traditional first slice and Mrs. Percy Pair poured punch. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Sumrell.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained the bridal party and invited guests at a rehearsal dinner Saturday evening at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

drobe which make you feel simply great when you wear them. If so, the chances are good that the color is the main reason.

With smaller items such as pillows, caps, scarves and vests, this personal reaction to color is less important. For many of us, this is when we can happily work with bright and bold colors.

When you are knitting or crocheting gift items, you should, of course, consider the likes of the person who will be receiving the gift. Almost everyone has more than one favorite color, so it shouldn't be too hard to select one that is pleasing to you and to the recipient.

Most knitters and crocheters have drawers or boxes full of leftover odds and ends of yarn. If you are planning to make something in a fancy pattern stitch, dig into that box of leftovers and try the pattern stitch in a variety of colors and notice which one shows off the pattern stitch to the best advantage.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints, and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

KNITTED AFGHAN... features wishbone cables and blackberry stitch panels.

Giant wishbone cables alternate with blackberry stitch panels to create a knitted afghan so elegant that it is sure to become a treasured heirloom. Designed to be made from four-ply knitting worsted weight yarn, the afghan is knitted in one piece with finished measurements of 47 by 58 inches.

To obtain directions for knitting the Cable and Blackberry afghan, send your request for Leaflet No. PK-5550 with 60 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Yarn Pak No. K-5550 by sending check or money order for $19.75 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Price includes Wintuk yarn, the instruction leaflet and shipping charges. Please specify your choice of off white, light yellow, light blue, light gold or sea green.

Many, many people have difficulty in selecting colors for their knit and crochet projects. If you are one of these, I hope that you will find some helpful suggestions in today's column.

In making home accessories, such as afghans and pillows, your first consideration is, of course, the room in which it is to be used. Usually, however, you have a choice of three or more colors which will complement any decorating scheme.

The type of pattern stitch to be used should have a bearing on the tone of your colors. In stockinette stitch, many open-work stitches or an all-over textured stitch such as seed or double seed stitch, dark or light colors can be equally satisfactory. Cables, used alone or in combination with another stitch, are usually much more effective in light colors.

Think Now And Buy Gifts Later

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourselves a favor and do your Christmas or Hanukkah shopping early.

If you're wondering what to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa, who don't get out much. Let me tell you what NOT to give them:

No dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.)

Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Grandma doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets.

With the price of groceries so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income probably would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mix.

Another thoughtful gift is lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. (Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.)

Shut-ins would appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so they too can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport! Stamp some envelopes.)

Don't give anyone a gift of clothing unless you're absolutely sure the size is right. That goes for the color and style, too.

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, YOU might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a check for any amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting his pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know he'll enjoy.

Don't give a pet to anyone unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted and will be properly cared for. If you want to delight a friend whose dog or cat is considered a member of the family, include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give gifts of wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting their calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than they are. Parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "take it back and exchange it if it's not what you want," why not save yourself (and them) much time and effort by giving them a gift certificate in the first place.

ABBY

P.S.: To be alone at Christmas is sad beyond measure. If you know someone who faces that bleak prospect, give him or her the greatest gift of all: an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Shoplifting Expensive To All

Merchants, law enforcement agents and members of the judiciary attended a meeting to discuss the Shoplifting Takes Everybody's Money (STEM) program last week.

December was duly declared "Anti-Shoplifting Month" by Mayor Percy Cox, and, at the same time, the group heard some dismal figures.

FBI statistics show that shoplifting has increased by 221 percent since 1960, and is an epidemic crime in our nation.

Shoplifting costs were set at $5.6 billion annually, and reportedly cost everyone in Greenville $150 annually. That is $150 that could be lopped off our shopping costs if shoplifting were eliminated.

The first way to approach shoplifting is in an educational way. Young people, and older ones too, should have it made clear that shoplifting is stealing, and nothing else. No one should be unaware that, like any crime, shoplifting carries a penalty.

After that, shoplifting should be dealt with sternly by merchants, law enforcement and the courts.

Shoplifting, after all, doesn't totally cost the merchant; it costs all of us.

Nixon Working On His Rehabilitation

Former President Nixon continued his re-emergence into public life with a talk at Oxford in England last week.

There were jeers and eggs, but the speech went on. While he had praise for President Carter's peace initiative in the Middle East, he questioned the president's widely publicized human rights campaign as a way of dealing with the Russians.

It is obvious that Nixon has a long way to go in rehabilitating himself as an elder statesman to the nation and the world. It is clear, though, that he is working on it.

THIS AFTERNOON Opposition To Inevitable

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — In the face of almost certain legislative approval and funding for a North Carolina high school of science and mathematics, the statewide School Boards Association has overwhelmingly come out against that proposal.

It was, says Raleigh Dingman, executive director of the group, a matter of principle.

"It was an almost unanimous vote ... it was overwhelming. But we would be less than candid to say that we think it shall make any difference to the outcome," Dingman said of the resolution approved at the association gathering last month in Winston-Salem.

Essentially, the resolution opposing the special residency high school to be located in Durham, says local school board members across North Carolina feel that students would be better off attending school in their local communities, and that the money would be better spent on improved education at the local level.

Can't Win

But the same school officials who voted opposition — and agreed to so notify their local delegates to the General Assembly — are resigned to the specialty school which they believe will eventually cost up to $6 million per year to operate.

The school of science and mathematics is a pet project of Gov. Jim Hunt who sees it as a means of providing outstanding educational opportunities to students gifted in those fields, and as a way of developing and testing programs which could be used to improve teaching in public schools all across the state.

From the beginning, the proposal — in legislative parlance — has been "greased". A special study committee was named to report back on whether such a school should be pursued. With that recommendation in hand, the General Assembly was asked to endorse a proposal funding the initial steps toward establishing the school. After approving that, it developed that the resolution was so worded that the school was, in fact, established.

BILL NOBLITT

Then a site selection committee was designated and went through the motions of looking at proposed locations despite the widespread knowledge that legislative groundwork had already largely preordained that Durham would be the site.

From the outset, there has been high level opposition to the specialty high school, generally centered around objections that it would be elitist, would take from local schools some of the top students, would drain funds from local schools, and would prove expensive to continue in operation. Top officials in the State Department of Public Instruction were at first outspoken in opposition, but tempered their remarks in the face of political realities.

Opposition

Organizations of school administrators and teachers have come down against the school, as have several college-level educators who were consulted.

Still the ball rolls on, and Dingman says local school board members are learning that "schools and those who run them are subject to political pressures."

Gov. Hunt was a speaker at the association convention, and stated that he is aware of the association's concern while defending the new school.

Despite some argument by school board members that the school is inevitable and the association should be team players, the resolution opposing creation and funding of the High School of Science and Mathematics was endorsed, with a key reason being the future impact of a specialty school on public schools as "the appropriate setting in which to provide for growth and development of a spiritual and emotional nature as well as technical growth."

A Pecking Order First

WASHINGTON — As reported in this column last week, the Carter Administration is giving more and more thought to civil defense. One of the things the U.S. government is doing quietly is assigning priority numbers to those people who will have to keep the wheels of government spinning during an emergency. They are to be evacuated out of the capital to mountain hideaways in Maryland.

Therefore the latest and most important status symbol in Washington is where you're assigned in the evacuation pecking order.

I probably would never have heard about the plan if Mulligan of the Postal Service hadn't broken a luncheon date with me. "I have to go before the Civil Defense Evacuation Appeals Board," he explained on the phone. "They've given me an H-14 number, and I was assured I'd be given an H-10. An H-14 means I'll be evacuated on the same helicopter as HEW Secretary Joe Califano."

"I assume then," I said, "that if you have an H-14 that means the helicopter has to make 13 trips before it will pick you up." "That's right," he said, "and it's not fair. Winship, who is in charge of Muzak for all government buildings, was given an H-9 on the grounds that he was important to employee morale. Yet my job is essential to keeping the United States going in time of disaster."

"Can you tell me what you'll be doing?" I asked. "I'll be in charge of rationing wartime junk mail. Once the balloon goes up people will only be allowed four pieces of junk mail a day."

"But nobody can live on four pieces of junk mail a day," I protested. "They'll have to," Mulligan said, "at least until the fallout clears away. But I can't get the system going unless I have a higher evacuation number. Do you know Simpson in vouchers has an H-3?"

I asked. "Just vouchers," Mulligan said. "The government figures no matter what happens after the first missile strike everyone is going to need a voucher, so Simpson's been given the same evacuation number as Jerry Rafshoon."

ART BUCHWALD

"Rafshoon has an H-3?" I said in surprise. "Yup. If we get into a nuclear war, the President's going to have some image problems with the Americans who are still left. It will be Rafshoon's job to make sure they understand it wasn't the White House but Congress that got us in all the mess."

"If Rafshoon has an H-3 priority, what does Billy Carter have?" "He has a B-1 card."

"What does that mean?" "He's to be evacuated by the first available beer truck."

"Are they giving out any priority numbers to the press?" I asked hopefully. "You're all PB-9s, which means you'll be evacuated on press buses as soon as Jody Powell and his staff are safe."

"Where do we rendezvous for the buses?" "At Amy's public school."

"Does everyone in Washington have an evacuation number to get safely out of town?" "Of course not. There's only room in the underground mountain tunnels for a limited number of people such as the Supreme Court, members of congressional committees, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the President and Vice President of the United States, and anyone who buys a table for the next

How many other commuters on Conrail's 6:50 out of Danbury realize that Dr. Karl Koppman, the eminent mammalogist, attended the International Bat Conference in Albuquerque, N.M., this past summer, and then went on to Carlsbad Caverns, where for all we know he may have hung around upside down with his fellow batsmen to get the right vibes on their speciality?

If my co-commuters read "Grapevine," the bulletin of the American Museum of Natural History, as I always do when I can get my hands on it, they'd know there's more to bats these days than eight performances of "Dracula" a week at the Martin Beck theater.

They would also know that Dr. Sydney Anderson spent a week in August on St. Catherine's Island, Ga. The professor wasn't trying to get away from anything. THE INSIDE REPORT

Notable Reagan Presence

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. —

Without lifting a finger, Ronald Reagan was a weighty presence with surprising credibility as the party's presumptive 1980 presidential nominee at the soporific meeting here of the Republican governors.

Reagan's credibility was starkly evident from the meekness — a derivative of self-defense — of non-Reaganite governors, here in profusion from the politically-centrist band of industrial states running from Pennsylvania across the Great Lakes to Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa.

That self-defense, rooted in political reality, was comprised of two elements in roughly equal parts: Reagan's in-place organizational strength, which now reaches deep into Republican soil with a few conspicuous exceptions like Pennsylvania; and the lack of any practical, even visible anti-Reagan strategy by moderate governors. Lacking an alternative, many of these governors as of today look on the nomination as Reagan's to win — or to lose.

"Reagan got a handful of delegates in my state in 1976," one Midwest Republican moderate told us here. "Today he'd get 75 percent of them."

An Eastern moderate agreed. "Reagan's got the non-primary states wired," he told us. "Show me a horse we can back and we might make a race of it, but you can't name the horse."

During a confidential chat at breakfast Monday, four governors analyzed the party's 1980 nomination. Gvs. Pete DuPont of Delaware, and two newly-elected governors, Reps. Al Quie of Minnesota and Charles Thone of Nebraska, agreed that if the 67-year-old Reagan can maneuver through the 1979 minefields undamaged and enter the 1980 primary season with something like his present strength, his momentum may be irresistible. The holdout was the respected Gov.-elect Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania — but not even Thornburgh suggested the outline of any strategic plan for stopping Reagan.

To exploit his credibility as 1980 nominee from the always vulnerable front-runner position, Reagan operatives have been assiduously courting both the old and the new among the current crop of Republican governors, expanded from 12 to 18 in the November election, as well as the titular party leader, former President Gerald Ford. At lunch in Palm Springs Oct. 4, Reagan informed Ford that he definitely will be a candidate.

That followed Reagan's courtship of Ford — in an effort to end their 1976 feud — during two joint appearances in Texas on Sept. 12, when both campaigned for William Clements, now the Texas governor-elect. Party insiders say that Ford accepted the unsurprising news about Reagan's candidacy quietly, making no effort to change his mind.

But Reagan's private word to Ford that he will definitely run ended all pretense by the former president that he and Reagan would both renounce 1980 ambitions and pool their resources to find a "fresh, new face" (to quote a Ford intimate) to lead a unified Republican party. Ford had hinted at just such a joint effort in a handwritten note to Reagan on Sept. 14, two days after Reagan's peace

To the editor:

Bravo! A standing ovation for N. C. N. B. for promoting the performing arts in North Carolina. The "artist in residence" program for 1978-79, sponsored by North Carolina National Bank, seeks to develop greater appreciation and a closer understanding of fine classical performers by the people of this State.

This concept of financial support by a corporation for a touring concert artist deserves a tremendous round of applause. Having a guest artist perform children's concerts in our schools and free public recitals throughout the state, can only cultivate an added awareness of the arts by more and more North Carolinians.

On behalf of the students and faculty of A. G. Cox School, I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the performance by Gay Towlen, concert pianist. I would also like to add my personal endorsement to this worthwhile program and to encourage N. C. N. B. to continue to sponsor this series in the coming years.

No Recanting By Dark Seers

By John Cunniff

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a winter storm coming, the economic seers are saying, but a lot of Americans don't believe them. They look to the sky and find it bright; and so, they ask, why come indoors?

Housing starts will tumble, the forecasters say. But starts in October continued to run above 2 million for the eighth month in a row.

The consumer will get worried and cut spending. But the amount of new credit extended hasn't slowed to any great extent. In September, consumers borrowed $22.51 billion, almost the same as a month earlier.

Personal incomes will soon fall, they say. Income, meanwhile, reached $1.76 trillion, a record-high. Industrial production will decline, says the gloomy forecast. But in October it rose to an all-time high.

The slow weakening of the economy is bound to appear in surveys of purchasing agents. Or so the forecasts indicate. But one recent survey found the economy "pumping iron," and "putting on more muscle."

Another released this week by the National Association of Purchasing Management, suggested that recession fears were exaggerated.

"If there is a recession in 1979 it will be light, short and over by 1980," said E.F. Andrews, chairman of the survey committee and a vice president of Allegheny Ludlum Industries.

As the economy deteriorates, it is said, the jobless rate will rise. But in October the rate fell, to 5.8 percent of the civilian labor force, and total employment rose to a record high of 95.2 million.

The help-wanted advertising index, maintained by the Conference Board, also has showed strength lately, indicating that employers are still laying plans for expansion.

"What's up?" you might ask. And the answer is that the economy is up, and it appears strong enough to remain in plus territory for many weeks to come, forecasts notwithstanding.

Already it has forced some analysts to push back the timing of recession's onset. And others too are likely to do so, or find themselves holding an umbrella while the sun continues to shine. But none are recanting. Like other doomsday prophets, they declare that the nation's time of reckoning is coming, even if not on schedule. There will be a recession, they say. And their number is growing.

Ominously, many say that the longer the recession is delayed the worse it will be. Don't be dazzled by the current bright weather, they say.

Henry Kaufman, of Salomon Brothers, an authority on interest rates — who incidentally expects them to continue rising into the middle of the year — probably expresses the current mood of forecasters.

The timing of the oncoming downturn, he suggested in a recent address, has probably been poor. It will come, he says, but probably later in 1979 than indicated by many forecasts now in print.

KEEP THAT FIRE EXTINGUISHER HANDY

In this town a certain manufacturer is compelled to use a large number of inflammable chemicals. Under the circumstances he keeps a highly trained fire-fighting squad which is constantly on the alert and periodically stops potentially disastrous fires before they get out of control.

Some people have hot tempers which in their way are just as dangerous as the manufacturing processes in this factory. If they want to avoid disaster they must recognize the danger they are in, and take proper steps to keep their tempers under control.

There are many ways of doing this, but the important thing is to do something. The firefighting technique under these circumstances might be to avoid certain people who somehow get the fires started. More important and more basic is to try to analyze the cause of these fires. It is quite possible that the cause is a spontaneous combustion started by defects in the character of those who burst into flame.

Holiday Season Sees Rise In Shoplifting; Security Steps

Evans-Novak

bid, in which he praised Reagan's 1978 campaign effort and spoke of a "common cause" between Ford and Reagan to fortify and unite the party together. The next move in the unequal Ford-Reagan rivalry, with Reagan having the whip hand, is now up to Ford. But Ford's problem in stopping Reagan is cursed with the same riddle that the moderate Republican governors cannot solve: stop Reagan with whom? Not even the staunchest, most loyal of Ford's own partisans feel that Ford himself could stop Reagan.

As for placating the governors, Reagan strategists are plotting a Reagan "communicating role" calculated to assuage and soothe. "The governors are going to find out that we look on them as our friends," one Reagan operative told us. "They will be surprised at how solicitous Reagan is about their problems, as long as they play it straight with us."

Preliminary "soothing" moves began election night. One new governor received no less than three telephone calls from Reagan: one for himself, the others for his two top campaign aides. Others, including Minnesota's Quie, heard from John Sears, Reagan's top strategist, whose quiet, shadowy presence was sharply felt here.

As now planned, these lines of "communicating" between Reagan and non-Reaganite governors will tighten, toward a point that Reagan hopes will make it increasingly difficult for an anti-Reagan cabal to form around George Bush or any other moderate. Some Republicans, in both non-Reagan and anti-Reagan camps, despair that such tactics may work all too well. If so, Reagan's 1979 problem resolves into avoidance of error and the hope that the polls—often a front-runner's booby-trap—don't do him in.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Shoplifters operate year round but merchants say one of their best times is Christmas when large shopping crowds make stealing easier. "Shoplifters get braver and more brazen every year," said Gary W. Ramsey of Sears, Roebuck and Co.

Police departments in North Carolina reported 11,637 shoplifting cases to the Police Information Network in 1976. In 1977, the number of cases had risen 10 percent.

Merchants say the cost of the security devices stores are using to cut down on shoplifting this year are:

Beasts, But Not Booze

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — The idea of living on Bourbon Street or Singapore Sling or Rum Row didn't appeal to the residents of Carolina Trace.

Streets with names of alcoholic beverages were to abound in the new golf and residential development in southern Lee County.

"Many of us have made our retirement homes in this enchanted place, only to have reality strike us when we realize we live on Rum Row or Daiquiri Turn," said one woman who asked not to be named.

"I realize there was a (moonshine) still here at one time and that it's all part of our heritage. But we prefer nicer names," she said.

So some residents started a move to change the offending names before the street signs were installed.

As a result, streets will boast the names of beasts instead of booze.

Alice Bauer, who lives on a road now named Deer Track Trail, said the change was welcome.

"I just don't care to live on Scotch Row," she said. "It's not that I've got anything against drinking, it's just that we live on Scotch Row and have Cold Duck running on the side!"

But the new names will not affect the legal maps of the development filed in the county courthouse. Those maps will always bear street names such as Wine Tree, Still Turn, Sherry Hill and Kirsch Circle.

stealing is staggering. Large department stores lose anywhere from $30,000 to $100,000 each year to shoplifting, employee pilferage and bookkeeping errors, or shrinkage.

Small stores that cannot afford elaborate security lost as much as 10 percent of gross sales to such shrinkage last year, according to the Raleigh Merchants Bureau.

The National Retail Merchants Associations said stores reported losing $1.6 billion to shrinkage last year.

Many merchants are fighting back with extra security.

During the holiday season, off-duty policemen are often employed by stores as well as plain-clothed security forces. Stores are also alerting each other when known groups of shoplifters appear.

Including in some of the security devices stores are using to cut down on shoplifting this year are:

— large displays decorated with one-way mirrors, allowing officers to view shoppers without being seen.

— closed circuit television cameras. Raleigh stores have installed more closed-circuit systems in the past nine months than ever before, according to Charles D. Olson, president of Photo-Scan Associates of Raleigh.

Pondering Port Move

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The state-owned port at Wilmington may get a shot in the arm financially if officials of Sea Land, the world's largest container ship firm, decide to bring their service there.

The move to Wilmington could dramatically increase the port's business. Officials have not made a decision on the move but they have visited the port.

"To my knowledge, it's still pretty much in the earlier stages," said Grant L. Godwin, state Ports Authority deputy executive director for planning. "But if it happens, it would be one of the biggest things to happen to the port in years."

"Usually, when Sea Land enters a port," said Jean Jackman, Sea Land public relations officer. "It means good news in the form of more commerce. We tend to attract still other lines."

Ms. Jackman said she did not know when a decision on service to Wilmington will be made. Such decisions usually go to R.J. Reynolds Ind. headquarters in Winston-Salem for approval since Sea Land is an R.J. Reynolds subsidiary, she said. Sea Land operates 58 container ships at 138 different ports in 51 countries, reaching Northern Europe, the Mediterranean, United Kingdom, the Far East, Middle East, the Caribbean, Puerto Rico, Central America, and beginning last month, India.

The fact that the Wilmington port has only one container crane has hindered discussions with Sea Land. But Godwin said the state Ports Authority's recent decision to move the crane at Morehead City to Wilmington, and plans to pave 27 acres of storage space, could tip the scales for Sea Land extending its service to Wilmington.

Mulligan Col. ... Arrest Woman In Knifing Case

Ruby Lee Price of Greenville, was arrested Sunday on charges of assault with a deadly weapon after she allegedly stabbed George King Jr., 25 of 1006 West Fourth St. in the left side with a knife. Chief Glenn Cannon reported today.

Cannon said the stabbing incident occurred at a lounge on West Fifth Street about 12:30 a.m. Sunday. 4 1/2 hours after Miss Price was charged with assaulting King during an argument between the two at the Police Department, Saturday night.

King was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of the wound and released.

Miss Price, according to the chief, was taken into custody about 5:30 a.m. at King's Fourth Street home.

shoppers think they are being watched.

— electronic systems with sensors at store entrances that can detect magnetized tabs attached to easy-to-steal items. However, merchants say their best defense against shoplifting is their store employees.

"If I could do one thing to fight shoplifting in my store, it would be to hire more people," said a store manager who did not wish to be identified. "Better customer service is the key."

Arrested On Drug Charges

Bobby Lee Thomas, 24 of Route 6, Greenville, was arrested Friday, on charges of attempting to manufacture MDA — an amphetamine-based hallucinogenic — following a search of Thomas' trailer home and a barn in the Belvoir area, Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

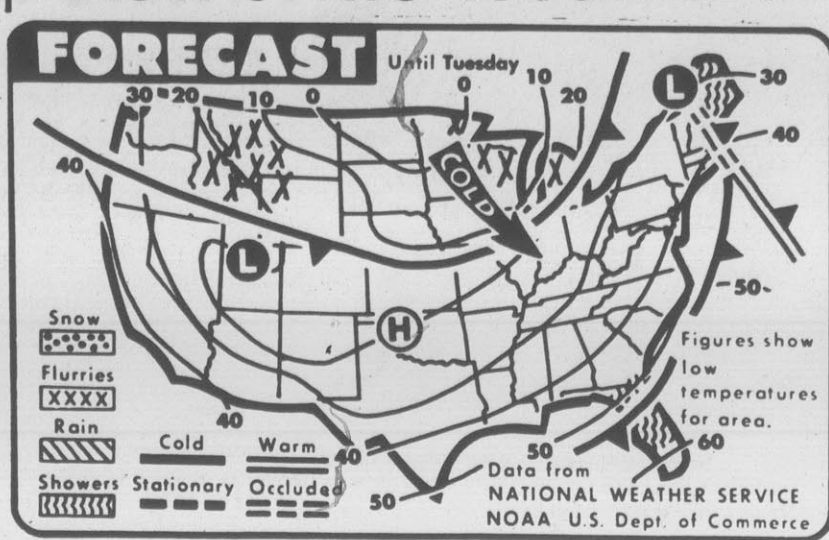

Cannon said the search and arrest resulted from a three-month long investigation by Greenville officers; agents of the State Bureau of Investigation, and federal Drug Enforcement Agency agents.

The chief said chemical supply books, order blanks, and the formula for MDA were found in Thomas' trailer, while a quantity of chemicals and equipment, valued at $1,000, were found in barn.

Cannon noted that the chemicals, found by searching Greenville officers, SBI and DEA agents, Pitt ABC officers and Sheriff's Department deputies, could have produced one kilogram of MDA — an estimated $17,000 worth of the illegal drug.

Bond for Thomas was set at $5,000 pending a hearing of the case in court.

Pinned 11 Hours In Train Wreck

By ESTES THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
SHIPMAN, Va. (AP) — "He was in tremendous pain, but never cried out," a rescue coordinator says of a cook pinned 11 hours under a stove in the crumpled dining car of the Southern Crescent passenger train that derailed near here, killing six persons.

Bound from Atlanta to Washington, the Southern Railway train jumped its tracks at Elma, an abandoned Nelson County rail stop in mountainous central Virginia, about 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

Seven cars and three locomotives lay scattered like kindling in and around a shallow ravine beside the track. Only the lead locomotive, which broke away, and the last car remained untouched.

The 37-year-old cook, Ned Haynes of Atlanta, became the focus of attention for as many as 125 volunteer rescue workers after some 60 other passengers and crew were taken to hospitals in Lynchburg and Charlottesville.

"Haynes is very brave," said Capt. Kimball Glass of the Lynchburg Rescue Squad.

"We fed him morphine with glucose to try to keep the pain down," Glass said. "He understood what we were doing. He asked us to pray for him and we all prayed for him. We talked to him and joked some with him."

National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Bob Buckhorn said an investigating team was sent to the scene to look for the probable cause of the derailment.

Haynes and five other survivors were listed in critical condition at the University of Virginia hospital in Charlottesville. Twelve others were in satisfactory condition.

Haynes suffered multiple trauma, burns and multiple fractures and was taken to the operating room and then admitted to the burn center, said William L. Lamm, night hospital administrator.

Cleanup operations continued through the night. Southern Railway crews and a private contractor worked with cranes and bulldozers under portable lights to clear the single-track section of the railroad's main line.

The railroad said the train carried 75 passengers and 15 crewmen.

The dead were identified as Howard Lewis Jackson, 59, of Alexandria, Va., a flagman; Lewis Price of Atlanta, a cook; Jackson Homer Hume and Edith Carrol Hume, an elderly couple from Madison Heights, Va.; and Edward Franklin Shaw, 14, of Wilmington, Del., said hospital spokesman Bill Fishback.

The sixth body, wedged under the wheel of a railroad car and the last to be removed from the scene about 10:40 p.m., was not identified late Sunday night pending notification of relatives.

Rescuers arrived on the scene about 6:10 a.m. and help poured in throughout the day down the one-lane, unused rail bed that served as a road to the isolated wreck scene. Some passengers helped others out of cars, breaking laminated windows and prising open doors.

Dr. J. Desmond Coughlin of Asheville, N.C., who was riding with his wife to Washington to visit their son, stayed at the train to help. He suffered a facial laceration.

"He refused to be taken away from the train until everybody was taken care of," said Dr. Ken Wallenborn of Charlottesville.

Coughlin is a Southern surgeon in Asheville.

He and his wife were riding with two railroad employees in the last car, a private coach often used by the railroad executives.

As medical technicians and a doctor huddled in the dining car kitchen with Haynes, workers used bulldozers, cables and cutters to strip the stainless steel siding off the car so they could pull out the stove that pinned him.

"We used up 15 razor-type discs cutting the car," Glass said.

"As far as damage is concerned and the problems of getting a man out, this is the worst I've seen," the veteran rescuer added.

Another cook lay dead in the compartment with Haynes, Glass said, and was removed several hours before Haynes was brought out about 4:30 p.m.

"We had to get the dead man out," he said. "Him seeing this man there with massive head injuries would have had some effect on him."

About six survivors, including Haynes, were trapped in various cars when rescuers arrived and all but Haynes were gotten out quickly.

Glass said a fire burning in the dining car was extinguished. Haynes' burns came from the stove.

After Haynes was removed, workers brought out the 14-year-old boy whose body was trapped in the kitchen compartment.

"We cut the back of his shoe off and pulled him out by his foot," Glass said. "He was mashed up against a big refrigerator."

Conductor Leo Bailey, a stream of blood on his face from a cut, said the train was traveling about 50 miles per hour when it derailed.

Three Men Sentenced For Drug Store Theft

The three men charged with breaking and entering and larceny from Family Center Pharmacy, Farmville, Oct. 19 were sentenced to drug programs last week by Judge David Reid.

James Willard West, 26, of Lillington was directed to participate four months in the Rubicon Inc. drug rehabilitation program in Richmond, Va. and to come back before Judge Reid after this program is completed for sentencing.

Gary Dixon Honeycutt, 22, of Dunn was directed to participate four months in the Pitt County Mental Health drug rehabilitation program and to reappear before Judge Reid for sentencing at the completion of the program.

Richard Wayne Pope, 20, was sentenced to a five years' active jail sentence. He is already in Central Prison, Raleigh, serving a 10-year sentence for a drug store breaking and entering and larceny in Lenoir County for which he was awaiting trial when the Farmville incident occurred.

Each of the three men pled guilty to felonious breaking and entering and larceny charges and to misdemeanor possession of demarol charges in connection with the Oct. 19 break-in. They were apprehended the same evening by Farmville Police Department Narcotics Officer Kenneth W. Godwin in Wilson County.

Sunday Saw 3 Accidents

An estimated $2,800 property damage resulted from three Sunday mishaps investigated by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 4:25 a.m. collision on Greene Street, 108 Feet South of the Third Street intersection in which, according to officers, a car driven by Samuel Levon Bradley of Route 4, Greenville, collided with a utility pole.

Police, who charged Bradley with driving under the influence and driving while his license was revoked, estimated damage at $1,500 to the car and $800 damage to the pole.

A 1:28 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Arlington Boulevard involved cars driven by James Robert Harris of 1221 Davenport St., and Dennis James Tripp of 709 Hooker Rd., which resulted in an estimated $100 damage to the Harris car and $800 damage to the Tripp vehicle.

Officers reported a car driven by Jack Harold Webb Sr. of Washington and a truck operated by S. T. Morning of Route 6, Greenville collided about 6 p.m. on Dickinson Avenue, 20 feet West of the Manhattan Avenue intersection, resulting in an estimated $100 damage to the Webb car and $300 damage to the Morning truck.

BENJI REBUFFED

LONDON (AP) — Benji, the dog with a fan club in the United States, won't be coming to Britain to make a planned $5-million movie or $750,000 television show.

British authorities, fighting to keep rabies out of the country, say the celebrated dog would have to spend six months in quarantine as any other dog would.

Army Crackdown For Rising 'Fraternization'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has ordered a crackdown on sexual fraternization between male and female soldiers of different rank because of "an increasing number of incidents of inappropriate relationships."

The move follows a study that reported a "creeping advance of sex fraternization throughout the Army" and said man-woman relationships — particularly dating between officers or noncommissioned officers and enlisted women — are causing serious discipline and morale problems as the role of women in the Army grows.

The report, issued in May, includes "socialization, courting and marriage" as examples of fraternization.

It has been learned that Army headquarters last month sent out a message instructing all commanders to "counsel those involved or take other action as appropriate" in cases of relationships which can "reasonably be expected to undermine discipline, authority or morale."

The directive said commanders should act "if relationships between service members of different rank cause actual or perceived partiality or unfairness, involve the improper use of rank or position for personal gain" or are otherwise detrimental "to good order and discipline."

There was no indication in the message of what would constitute "appropriate" action. One Army source, who asked not to be identified, said that "it's been dropped in the lap of the commanders."

Army officials said they have no statistics available that would bear out the message's reference to an increasing number of "inappropriate relationships."

There was no public announcement of the new Army order. The other services have issued nothing similar.

The message on "relationships among superiors and subordinates" makes no specific reference to sex, but Army officials confirmed the new order grows out of the many-faceted study that evaluated the impact of women in the Army.

There are now 56,000 women officers and enlisted soldiers in the Army, which totals nearly 769,000. Plans are to increase the number of women in uniform over the next five years.

Add Speaker To Symposium List

Ann Evans, League of Women Voters chairperson for Human Resources, announced today that an additional speaker has been added to the roster for the Symposium on Spouse Abuse.

Ms. Henri Johnson, assistant district attorney for Pitt County, will speak on the legal aspects of spouse abuse and will discuss the types of cases which occur within the county.

The program is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Presbyterian Church building, corner of Elm and 14th Streets. The public is invited.

More Time For Rollover

GREENSBORO — Certain persons receiving distributions from a qualified pension plan in 1978 may still be able to make a rollover to an Individual Retirement Account, the Internal Revenue Service has announced.

The Revenue Act of 1978, recently signed into law, set the rollover deadline as of December 31, 1978, to allow some previous distributions to qualify.

The new Act provides that a lump sum distribution from a qualified plan does not have to meet the five-year participation requirement in order to be transferred tax-free to an individual retirement account.

Even though the usual 60-day period for the rollover has passed, individuals may still take advantage of a transitional rule which extends the time for making such rollovers to December 31, 1978.

TO FIGHT RULING — Dr. Tom E. Nesbitt, president of the American Medical Assn., vowed Sunday that the A.M.A. will go to the Supreme Court if necessary to overturn a Federal Trade Commission ruling that the A.M.A. has conspired to fix prices. (AP Laserphoto)

Long-Distance

Good Samaritan

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Robert Gajewski figured he'd get a chance to help people in distress when he joined the Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Team, a Buffalo-area citizens band radio club. But he never imagined he'd play longdistance Good Samaritan.

Last week, Gajewski, 20, of nearby Wales, picked up a distress call from a stranded motorist and his family on Route 93 — in the state of Nevada, 2,000 miles away.

He took the information and relayed it to the Buffalo police, who passed it on to the Nevada Highway Patrol in Elko.

"It was routine, except the call from Buffalo," a highway patrol dispatcher here said with a laugh.

CB radios operate on low wattage and usually have a range of no more than 20 miles. However, unusual atmospheric conditions can increase the range greatly.

Three Thefts

Greenville police are investigating the theft of an estimated $2,500 in cash and goods taken in three separate incidents here Saturday and Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said $1,400 was taken by thieves who entered the Greenville Moose Lodge on Dickinson Avenue early Sunday morning and carried away the club's safe.

He said entrance to the building was gained through a side door.

The chief noted that about $500 worth of merchandise was taken from Western Pleasure on Dickinson Avenue early Sunday morning by thieves who broke out a window on the Ficklen Street side of the store to gain entrance.

Cannon also noted that $600 in cash was taken from the office of the American Independent Market on North Greene Street, Saturday.

According to the chief, the cash was removed by thieves from a bank bag in the office of the store while employees had their attention diverted by an accomplice.

Speaking of Your Health...

Drowning Out Head Noises

The noise in my head sometimes gets so bad that I think I'll go out of my mind. I've tried all kinds of drugs, but nothing helps. I'd go anywhere to get rid of it. — Mr. T.E.W., Calif.

Dear Mr. W.: Head noises, or "tinnitus," is a baffling problem. Certainly, it is one of the most distressing and annoying "non-malignant" conditions that man is heir to.

Doctors, aware of the psychological and physical discomfort of tinnitus, can only commiserate with their patients and assure them that there is not impending disaster.

A new organization, the American Tinnitus Association, has its headquarters at the Kresge Hearing Laboratory at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center. There, a group of ear specialists have devised a small electronic device which produces a sound that tends to override the tinnitus noises in the head. This tiny instrument is worn in the ear, much like a hearing aid. The masking effect of the sound it produces seems to be effective in blocking out the distressing sounds.

I have no idea what the cost of the instrument is, but I do hope that, like hearing aids, it will not be so expensive that it will deprive many thousands of people who are burdened by tinnitus.

Tinnitus is often associated with loss of hearing. Many readers with these problems write to ask where they can obtain special tests that will definitely establish the kind of deafness they have and whether or not it will be progressive. Almost all hospitals and universities have a hearing and speech center. Here, complex audiometric testing equipment is available. By writing to the American Hearing

Society in Washington, D.C., specific information can be obtained about the facilities that are available in any community.

I am taking a blood-thinning drug. Every two weeks I must be stuck and have my blood tested. This is almost as annoying as the condition for which I am taking the drug. Do I have to go on like this for the rest of my life? — Mrs. G. McC., Penn.

Dear Mrs. McC.: You do not mention the underlying medical problem that makes it necessary for you to take blood-thinners, or "anti-coagulants." Whatever that condition is, you, unfortunately, do not have any alternatives but to be checked constantly and regularly during the entire time that you continue to take this drug. Only by checking and rechecking can the amount of the anti-coagulant be regulated.

The value of anti-coagulants has been enormous to patients with vascular problems. This value carries with it a moderate amount of risk, unless there is constant supervision by the doctor.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Former Cigarette Giant Has Uncertain Future

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Competitors and tobacco industry analysts say the Liggett Group Inc., formerly Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., probably won't be able to remain in the cigarette business much longer.

At one time, Liggett was a giant in the cigarette industry — thanks to the Chesterfield cigarette — with 22 percent of the national market in 1946.

Observe Pupil Participation

The Parent's Advisory Council of Wahl-Coates Elementary School met Wednesday in the Resource Room to observe student participation in the reading program.

Mrs. Effieata Deveaux welcomed the group on behalf of the other teachers, Mrs. Kay Crawford, Mrs. Ruth Maiolo and Mrs. Marilyn Love.

Students participating included the following: Dawn Slaton, first grade; Caressa Brooks, Tammy Nelson, Ronald Smith, Michelle Murray, Frederick Fleming, Tonga Strong, Clarence Gray, and Pam Cox, second grade; Cheryl Bailey and Angela Jones, fourth grade; Tony Trotman and Kirk Smiley, fifth grade; Katicia Cherry, Elizabeth Dixon, Robert Close, Tony Taylor, Steve Jones and Victor Barnes, sixth grade.

A social period was held after the presentation so that teachers and parents would have the opportunity to discuss individual pupil progress.

Today, however, the company's share of the domestic market is less than 3 1/2 percent.

Although it has sold its international tobacco operations, company officials say Liggett is not planning to do away with its domestic cigarette business.

"We're committed to moving forward in the cigarette business," said Kiskey van R. Dey Jr., president of the company's cigarette subsidiary.

Liggett is conducting a major study of the tobacco unit, ordered by Dey. The unit now produces L.M. Decade, Eve and Lark cigarettes in addition to Chesterfields. Based on the study's results, Liggett will begin a comeback effort next year, he said.

Competing companies say Liggett's problem is that it hasn't led the industry with a new product since 1911.

"It lagged when filters were introduced, among other things. It also missed industry moves to both king size and extralong," an official of a competing company said. The same slowness in new trends was evident in the introduction of Decade, Liggett's low-tar cigarette, which the company brought out last year, long after competitors had established similar brands.

Some analysts say the answer to the problem is for Liggett to get out of the cigarette business altogether. One such analyst is Jane Gilday, of First Boston Corp.

"Liggett's cigarette business is more dead than alive," she said. Liggett's substantial investment in the cigarette business has earned only a 1.7 percent return, compared with a 14 percent return on chewing tobacco and a 9.7 percent return in spirits and wine operations, she said.

If the proceeds were invested in more profitable lines, Miss Gilday says selling the business — valued at more than $240 million — would be beneficial to Liggett.

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue chip issues turned downward today as the stock market's rally of late last week ran out of force.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had risen more than 21 points last Thursday and Friday, dropped back 5.54 to 805.96 by noontime today.

But gainers clung to a modest lead over losers in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Stock prices rallied toward the end of last week with the help of a continued recovery by the dollar against leading foreign currencies, as well as word of a $1.9 billion decline in the money supply.

But the dollar showed less strength in foreign exchange today.

And some analysts were expressing skepticism that the recent slowing in the growth of the money supply would last. The Federal Reserve has been seeking to curb monetary growth in order to reduce inflationary pressures in the economy.

Ralston-Purina led the active list, off 1/4 at 11 1/2. A 240,600 share block traded at 11 1/2.

'Unconcerned'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — City councilmen are considering giving themselves a 19.1 percent pay raise and many say they are not concerned about violating President Carter's voluntary anti-inflation guidelines that call for no more than a 7 percent increase.

In accordance with the Town's Citizen's Participation Plan, The Village of Simpson will hold a Public Meeting, Monday, December 11, 1978 at 7:00 P.M. at the Fire Department in Simpson. The purpose of this meeting is to explain proposed changes in the Town's Community Development Program. The public is invited to attend and all comments, suggestions and criticisms are welcome.

The loss suffered by the East Carolina Pirates Saturday night at William & Mary was a bitter one to take for the Bucs.

Without a doubt, the Pirates had the better talent. There is no question about that. But the Bucs came to the floor with a feeling more of cockiness about them than confidence, and it cost them.

Coach Larry Gillman admitted too, that the coaching staff probably made a mistake in trying to play the Indians straight up in a man-to-man rather than a pressure zone defense. "We went to it at the half, and it made a great difference in the game."

Down by as much as 14 points against the very deliberate Indians, however, the struggle back was a long one and never quite caught up. Twice the Pirates had shots at making the tying basket, but both times they were slightly impatient and ended up missing. Oliver Mack missed on a jumper from the left side, and George Maynor bounced one off the rim from the lane.

While the Pirates themselves were their biggest enemy in the first half, Gillman rightly felt that the officials did nothing to help them in the second.

The Pirates had 24 fouls called against them, while William & Mary heard the whistle against them only five times, three in the first half and twice in the second.

That didn't break the school record, however, which is three, but in both games, one of the officials was the same, Tom Fraim.

Both teams played a pressure type defense, and in that type of game, a ratio of 27 to one in free throws seems quite off balance.

We must compliment Gillman in his decorum, however. While he had every right to gripe about the officiating in the game, he kept his cool. Last year at this time, the fiery coach had picked up two technical fouls, and was on the way to several more in the First Union Tournament in Charlotte.

But this year, we have observed Gillman off the bench only on occasion, and each time, we felt he had a valid reason for his action. Norman Sloan and Dean Smith would have protested just as much, and Lefty Driessell would have done a lot more under similar situations.

Gillman has cleaned up his act this year, and he has a great deal more talent than last year. The Pirates should have beaten the Indians, we believe, and they will get another chance later in the year when the two teams meet in Greenville.

In the meantime, the Pirates deserve the support of the area fans. While there were probably a few more than we noted at the game in Williamsburg, there were no more than a dozen or so fans who made the short trip to Virginia.

Success in basketball doesn't come overnight, and without fan support, it may never come.

Members of the Jamesville girls' basketball team for this season are, first row, left to right: Kellie Hardison, Patricia Beacham; second row, Terry Bell, Donna Hardison, Angela Hagen, Lorey Modlin, Penny Mobley, Tammy Williams, Joyce Manning, Jeanette Barber, and Coach Deborah Wilson. Jamesville Girls Expected Fare Well, But Belhaven Looms Large

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Jamesville may have a good girls' basketball team this season, but it is extremely doubtful that anyone in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference is going to challenge defending state champion Belhaven, according to Lady Bullet coach Deborah Wilson.

Jamesville finished second to Belhaven in the district playoffs last year. Belhaven went on to win the state title and has all five starters returning off of that team.

"If Belhaven doesn't win it again, it will surprise me," Wilson said. "They've got a new coach, but I don't think it will matter much."

The Lady Bullets have only two starters returning and suffer from a lack of height as well as experience.

"We're pretty quick," according to Wilson. "And we've got some pretty good outside shooting. We'll do all right this year."

The top returnee is three-time all-conference guard Joyce Manning (5-2). Manning, a senior, averaged 18 points, six steals and six rebounds a game last year. She is also the fastest girl on the team.

At the other guard will be senior Jeannette Barber (5-3). She was a top reserve last year and has a good outside shot. In one game last year, she was 5-5 from the field and 4-4 from the foul line.

At one forward is the team's other returning starter, senior Lori Modlin (5-8). She is a good rebounder and her board work will be depended on this season.

Her running mate is sophomore Terry Bell (5-6), who has improved greatly. She is a good outside shooter and a good defensive player.

At the post position will be sophomore Donna Hardison (5-8). She played some last year, but needs some more work, Wilson said.

Guard Tammy Williams (5-4), a sophomore, should see a lot of action this season. "She's real quick, is good cutting through the middle, and plays good defense," Wilson said. "She'll be running in and out right much."

The Lady Bullets have four other girls who are all first-year players. "They have shown potential, but it's just a matter of getting them used to high school ball," Wilson said.

They are freshmen guard Kellie Hardison (5-3), sophomore center Angela Hagen (5-8) and freshman forwards Penny Mobley (5-3) and Patricia Beacham (5-2). Of the four, Hardison probably has the best chance of contributing this year.

In the conference, Belhaven is the definitive favorite, Wilson said, with Bath and Chocowinity the probable challengers for second place.

"I think we can finish somewhere in the top four," Wilson said of Jamesville's chances. "If we can get going, we'll be all right. We're going to try for no lower than fourth."

Bucs On The Road; Face Hard Tests

The Pirates of East Carolina, after suffering their first loss of the year on Saturday night, 60-54, at the hands of William & Mary, stay on the road this week, playing three games.

The Bucs open the week Tuesday night in Knoxville, Tenn., facing the University of Tennessee at 8 p.m.

The game will be carried locally over WNCN-TV, Channel 9, and can be heard over the Pirate Sports Network, locally aired by WOOW.

The Pirates, in addition to facing Tennessee Tuesday night, will take on Indiana State, with All-American Larry Byrd, on Friday in the first round of the Hatter Classic in Deland, Fla. Hosting Stetson will meet Cleveland State in the other first round game, with the consolation and finals set for Saturday night.

Tennessee comes into the game with a 1-1 record, having beaten Biscayne at Knoxville, 72-68, and falling to nationally ranked No. 5 Louisville on Saturday, 82-61, in Louisville.

In their first game, the Volunteers were led by 6-6 junior forward Reggie Johnson, who canned 24 points. Six-four freshman forward Steve Ray added 11 points, while guard Johnny Darden, a 5-10 senior chipped in 10 points.

Other starters include 6-10 center Kevin Nash and 6-3 junior guard Bert Bertelkamp.

Johnson, an All-Southeastern Conference selection last year, averaged 21.2 points a game, while Nash, expected to be one of the stars of the team this year, scored 4.4 as a freshman.

Ray, one of the top recruits for the Vols of Don DeVoe was a highly recruited player in Illinois, where he led his team to third place in the state last year, averaging 22.9 points a game.

The Pirates, of course, will be led by Oliver Mack, averaging over 20 points a game, while the starting lineup is expected to be unchanged. Mack and George Maynor will start at the guards, with Greg Cornelius at center, along with Frank Hobson and Herb Gray at forwards.

Following this week's road trip, the Pirates return home for their final home game of the month, facing Lynchburg on December 12.

Japanese Win Marathon Run

FUKUOKA, Japan (AP) — Smooth-striding Toshihiko Seko, a 21-year-old Japanese college student, won the 1978 Fukuoka International Marathon Sunday.

Seko's time was 2 hours, 10 minutes, 21 seconds for the 26-mile, 385-yard race. He was followed by Hideaki Kita, Japan's middle distance running champion, in 2:11:05, while Shigeru Soh placed third in 2:11:41.

The 1-2-3 Japanese sweep ended seven years of foreign domination of the competition and gave Japanese the top three places for the first time in the 13-year history of the event.

Defending champion Bill Rodgers of the United States finished sixth in 2:12:51. A field of 92 runners from eight countries started the race.

Tarkenton's Passes Paid Off

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

For the Los Angeles Rams, the Dallas Cowboys and the Pittsburgh Steelers, winning a division title was nothing new. For Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton, Minnesota's still limber quarterback, even at the age of 38, winning his battle was something different.

Tarkenton fired a team-record 56 passes and completed a club record of 30, for 289 yards and four touchdowns as the Vikings outlasted the Philadelphia Eagles 28-27 Sunday.

Tarkenton's awesome figures increased his totals for the year to 304 completions, a National Football League record, in 500 attempts — only eight short of the NFL mark — for 2,921 yards and 21 TDs.

The Vikings were one touchdown behind when Tarkenton began pitching from his 10-yard line with 7:12 remaining in the game. When he had completed his chores with 1:49 left, on a 20-yard touchdown strike to Ahmad Rashad, the score was tied 27-27. Rick Danmeier's extra point won the game.

The victory gave the Vikings an 8-5-1 record and left them in a first-place tie with the Green Bay Packers in the National Football Conference Central Division. Green Bay kept pace with a 17-7 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles clinched its sixth straight NFC West championship — their first for Coach Ray Malavasi after five under Chuck Knox — edging the New York Giants 20-17. Dallas won its third consecutive NFC East title and earned a playoff berth for the 12th time in 13 games, with a 17-0 victory over the New England Patriots, the American Football Conference East leaders. And Pittsburgh wrapped up the AFC Central crown for the fifth year in a row with a 13-3 triumph over the Houston Oilers.

The Denver Broncos took over sole possession of first place in the AFC West, beating the Oakland Raiders 21-6 in a night game.

In other NFL games Sunday, the Miami Dolphins blanked the Washington Redskins 16-0, the Cincinnati Bengals stunned the Atlanta Falcons 37-7, the New York Jets dented the Baltimore Colts 24-16, the Seattle Seahawks humiliated the Cleveland Browns 47-24, the St. Louis Cardinals topped the Detroit Lions 21-14, the New Orleans Saints defeated the San Francisco 49ers 24-13 and the Kansas City Chiefs edged the Buffalo Bills 14-10.

In tonight's nationally televised game, the San Diego Chargers entertain the Chicago Bears.

Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski was almost a match for Tarkenton, connecting on TD pass plays of 56 and 21 yards to Harold Carmichael and 27 yards to Charlie Smith.

Packers 17, Buccaneers 7
David Whitehurst completed 13 of 19 passes, including a 10-yard touchdown to his favorite receiver, rookie James Lofton, as surprising Green Bay held onto a share of first place in the NFC Central. Whitehurst has tossed nine TD passes this year — six to Lofton.

Rams 20, Giants 17
The Rams, who have yet to reach the Super Bowl despite their many division titles, broke a 10-10 tie with 5:21 remaining on Pat Thomas' 33-yard scoring run with an intercepted pass.

They then got the winning points nearly 2½ minutes later on Frank Corral's 35-yard field goal following a Dave Elmendorf fumble recovery.

Cowboys 17, Patriots 10
With Dallas trailing 10-3 in the third period and the ball at the New England 40, Coach Tom Landry called for a play Dallas had not used since 1961, and it worked to perfection. Roger Staubach first handed the ball to Scott Laidlaw. Laidlaw ran within 1 yard of the line of scrimmage, then flipped the ball back to Staubach.

Steelers 13, Oilers 3
Roy Gerela's two field goals, a 5-yard scoring pass from Terry Bradshaw to John Stallworth and a rock-hard defense carried Pittsburgh to its 12th victory in 14 games — best in the NFL.

Broncos 21, Raiders 6

Ken Stabler was intercepted twice and sacked five times by the tough Denver defense. Randy Gradishar picked up a Mark van Egghen fumble and ran 29 yards for the clinching TD in the final quarter. Craig Morton threw a 14-yard scoring pass to Haven Moses in the third period.

Dolphins 16, Redskins 0
Miami's stingy defense saddled Washington with its first shutout in seven years, while the offense got three field goals from Garo Yepremian — giving him 12 in a row over seven games — and a 40-yard scoring pass play from Bob Griese to Jimmy Cefalo. Washington quarterback Joe Theisman was the victim of four interceptions as the puncheon Redskins suffered their sixth loss in eight games.

Bengals 37, Falcons 7
Cincinnati, loser of 12 of its previous 13 games, blitzed Atlanta with the help of Pete Johnson's two scoring runs, including a 50-yarder, and two interception returns for touchdowns, by Scott Perry and Dick Jauron.

Jets 24, Colts 16
The Jets celebrated the 10th anniversary of their Super Bowl III triumph over Baltimore by beating the Colts as quarterback Matt

Robinson and wide receiver Wesley Walker collaborated on scoring pass plays of 48 and 38 yards.

Seahawks 47, Browns 24
David Sims scored on runs of 1, 9 and 19 yards and Bill Gregory recovered two fumbles setting up Seattle scores as the Seahawks demolished Cleveland. The Browns' Brian Sipe tossed three TD passes and Greg Pruitt had his third consecutive 100-yard rushing game.

Cardinals 21, Lions 14
Rookie Dave Stief, subbing for injured Mel Gray, scored on a 53-yard pass play from Jim Hart in the fourth quarter, breaking a 14-14 tie and lifting St. Louis over Detroit.

Saints 24, 49ers 13
New Orleans' victory, its sixth of the season — most in the club's history — was keyed by wide receiver Wes Chandler's two touchdowns — one on a 58-yard flare pass play, the other on a controversial 12-yard catch in the end zone. On the second TD, Chandler took a pass from Archie Manning, but dropped it on his way down. Officials, however, ruled that Chandler held the ball long enough.

Chiefs 14, Bills 10
A balanced attack worked against the Bills, as the Chiefs scored on Ted McKnight's 17-yard run and Mike Livingston's 3-yard pass to Walter White.

'Bad News' To 3 Teams

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball's next instant millionaire, Pete Rose, object of a four-way bidding war, was to deliver bad news today to three of the teams.

The 37-year-old long-time Cincinnati Reds captain is on the verge of announcing his decision.

It could come before his scheduled appearance to accept an award at the baseball winter meetings in Orlando, Fla., Tuesday night. He planned to make his decision Sunday and announce it by Tuesday.

Rose, a free agent after 16 years with the Reds, has narrowed his list to the Kansas City Royals, the Pittsburgh Pirates, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Atlanta Braves.

Neither he nor his attorney, Reuven Katz, could be reached late Sunday.

Rose said none of the National League teams he is dealing with are offering him less than a three-year contract. "The third year would be the year I could break Stan Musial's record (the National League mark of 3,630 career hits). They don't want me to be without a contract and only 50 hits or something from Musial's record."

The Pirates are also negotiating a new contract with outfielder Dave Parker, the National League's Most Valuable Player this year.

The Kansas City Royals are the only team left among the original eight which Rose said he preferred.

Vikings' Prexy Under Guard

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Vikings President Max Winter was guarded by police at the Vikings game with Philadelphia Sunday after he reported receiving threatening phone calls.

Winter said the calls came Thursday night and Friday, when Minnesota's stadium commission narrowly approved the building of a domed sports stadium in downtown Minneapolis.

N.C. Traffic Toll Surpasses 1977; 24 Killed On Weekend

By The Associated Press

A total of 24 traffic deaths this weekend has pushed North Carolina's yearly traffic fatality toll beyond last year's total for the first time in several months and maybe for the first time this year, according to the state Highway Patrol. The deaths boosted the state's yearly toll to 1,343, three more than at this time last year.

Crime Control and Public Safety Secretary J. Phil Carlton said Sunday he will meet with highway patrol commanders to discuss the recent sharp rise in traffic deaths. Forty-four deaths have occurred over the past two weekends.

"It's perfectly horrible," Carlton said. "It is an obvious concern when we have two weekends in a row where we have this many deaths."

The patrol said the last weekend death occurred Sunday afternoon in Granville County when Joseph Leaman Oakely, 43, of Creedmoor was killed when his car ran off the road and overturned.

Nineteen-year-old Jeffrey S. Allen of Canton died in a head-on collision Sunday near Asheville.

The patrol said a Garysburg woman and her two children were killed Saturday when the car in which they were riding pulled in front of a moving train. The dead were identified as Irine Boone Bennett, 37; Darral Robert Bennett, 12 and Christopher Bennett, 4.

Four young men were killed in a one-car crash in Rockingham County Saturday. The patrol reported that their car left the road and struck three trees.

Dead are Randall Truman Boyte, 20, of Reidsville; Kenneth Walter Miller, 18, of Ashe County and James T. Wilkins, 17, and Foster Allan Poole, 18, both of Stoneville, the patrol said.

An accident about 6:30 a.m. Saturday west of Creedmoor in Granville County killed two men. The patrol said Horace Nathan Humphries, 34, and Jesse David Haddock Jr., 22, both of Creedmoor, died when they were riding turned in front of a Greyhound bus.

Two men were killed in a two-car accident Friday. The patrol said John F. McCormack, 18, of Lowell, Mass., and Edward Kalletsch, 20, of Fort Bragg, were killed when the car in which they were riding struck another auto about five miles south of Red Spring.

Two men were killed in a two-car crash Saturday in Charlotte when one car hit another head-on. The dead were identified as Robert Eugene Hunter, 17, of Charlotte and Michael Bryant St. Sing, 17, of Matthews.

Roy Russell, 31, of Kanapolis was killed Saturday when he walked into the path of a car on a rural road three miles north of Concord in Cabarrus County.

Barbara Bass McKennon, 20, of Wilson was killed Sunday when a vehicle struck the car she was driving head-on near Rocky Mount.

Jeffrey Bryan Taylor, 20, of Lexington, was killed Sunday near Lexington when the car he was driving ran off the road, struck a tree and overturned.

Wadell Barton, 64, of Maxton, was killed Sunday when the car he was driving ran off a rural paved road two miles east of Wagram in Scotland County and struck a tree.

Ralph Martin Mendiola, 39, of Gastonia was killed Sunday when the car he was driving along U.S. 29 1/2 mile west of Gastonia hit another car which was blocking the roadway from a previous accident.

Roy Benton Brintle Jr., 28, of Mount Airy was killed Sunday when his car ran off N.C. 89 1/2 miles west of Mount Airy in Surry County and hit a tree.

Also killed this weekend were Jimmy Holt Johnson, 31, of Four Oaks, a passenger in a car that struck another car head on late Friday night in Johnston County; Gregory Ray Sawyers, 18, of Mount Airy, who the patrol said crashed and burned on a road near Mount Airy Friday and Michael K. Owen, 20, of Sherwood Forest, who the patrol said ran off a road in Transylvania County near Cedar Mountain and died after his car hit an embankment.

Blanket Saves On Fuel Costs

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Sleeping under an electric blanket can save up to 25 percent on home heating bills this winter, says extension specialist Magdalene Pfister of the University of Nebraska Lincoln. She says its use permits lowering the room temperature to 45 degrees F at night.

She suggests that people who find 45 degrees too drastic a reduction can still reduce nighttime heating costs by 10 percent by lowering the thermostat to 60 degrees. Her figures are based on one blanket per home. Where more or used the operating costs are higher and the annual net savings less.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Partly cloudy Wednesday through Friday. Cold Wednesday with gradual warming through the period.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — In secret camps in Central America, the Sandinista National Liberation Front is training an army dedicated to the overthrow of President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua, says Mexican photographer Pedro Meyer, who took these pictures.

Meyer, who was given access to the camps, says they are filled not only with Nicaraguans but also with Costa Ricans, Panamanians, Colombians, Mexicans, Americans, Italians and Germans.

He says the supreme military commander is Edén

Pastora, known as Commander Zero, who led a commando raid on Nicaragua's National Palace in Managua last August, opening hostilities that spread across the country.

Meyer says the uniforms of the trainees vary from jungle fatigues of guerrilla veterans to the simple clothing worn by peasants recruited in the countryside. Some peasant recruits are illiterate; other trainees are highly educated men and women — among them lawyers, doctors and even some ex-government men in Nicaragua, Meyer says.

Their weaponry includes vintage U.S.-made rifles and machine guns, as well as sophisticated rocket launchers and heavy machine guns.

The day in the camps begins with reveille at 5 a.m. Most of the day is given over to field exercises and military tactics, Meyer says.

CONSTRUCTION STEADY WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department says building construction is continuing at a steady pace, with $165.5 billion in new construction already in place this year.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5-4 in 1967 that an American's citizenship cannot be taken away without his consent.

If you go by the record . . . If you only plant tobacco varieties that have a long, proven history of performance, then you should be planting at least part of your crop in

COKER 347

You may already be planting your main crop regularly with Coker 347. You like it, you know how to handle and cure it, and the variety has always done well for you. So you plan to stay with it again in 1979. And so you should.

But — if you're not familiar with Coker 347 — if you've been waiting to see how it's done for others and in official experiment station variety tests — then now's the time to plant it. Because this tobacco has accumulated an impressive record of performance and yield on farms, in official tests and in our own testing program since we introduced it in 1972. It has been consistently dependable.

Good Disease Resistance

Coker 347 has continued to exhibit good resistance to black shank, Granville wilt and fusarium wilt in all but the most severely infected soils. It has high resistance to the common root knot nematode, and is also recommended for areas where black root rot is normally a problem.

Handles like Coker 319

You will find that Coker 347 handles easily with very little breakage in the field or during barn preparation. The leaves are large but not brittle. Growers often tell us it doesn't bruise as much as other tobaccos. It blooms slightly later than Coker 319, but ripens readily and holds well. Well suited to machine harvest!

John D. Brewer, Greenville, N.C. says: "I've been growing Coker 347 for several years, it's well adapted to my farm and the way I handle & grow tobacco. I have made over 110% of my allotment each year and it has sold for a little above the top of the market."

Easy to cure

This tobacco is as well suited to bulk curing as it is to curing in conventional stick barns. It cures easily to a good lemon or orange color and medium body.

It'll make your pounds, and quality too. The man who knows it, grows it!

Coker 347* is at your Dealers now — along with Coker 48* ... Coker 319* ... Coker 411* ... Coker 86* ... Coker's N.C. 2326.

Arrest 'Shocked' Synanon Members

Business Notes

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles E. Dederich once described himself as "Mr. Synanon: its designer, chief executive and single greatest asset." Most Synanon members believe him.

But ex-members claim he was "always drunk and obsessed with violence, with creating his own army." Dederich today lies hospitalized with "acute depression" — and charged with conspiracy to commit murder.

Authorities arrested Dederich in connection with the rattlesnake bite Los Angeles attorney Paul Morantz received when he reached into his mail box Oct. 10.

A reformed alcoholic when he founded Synanon 20 years ago to help others, Dederich was too drunk and sedated to be formally arraigned after his arrest Saturday in Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

Synanon members who have looked to Dederich for direction for two decades say they are shocked, but not discouraged.

"This is not a Jim Jones type of thing. Nobody's gonna line up for Kool-Aid. We're going to persist," said an official wishing anonymity.

But those who have left Synanon say the parallels between Dederich's Synanon and Jones' Peoples Temple are remarkable. Members would kill for Dederich, if he asked them to, ex-members say.

"Synanon is a new American religion, and I am its founder," Dederich liked to say. "We began in a storefront on a $33 unemployment check and have grown in 20 years' time to a corporation with assets of $30 million."

In 1958, Dederich was an ex-Catholic, ex-employee of Gulf Oil Co., ex-beach bum and ex-alcoholic. He had participated in early LSD experiments at UCLA.

Enthusiasm by his own recovery, and convinced he could help others, he began the movement in a rundown Santa Monica storefront.

Synanon grew, headquartering its legal department in San Francisco and opening ranches in Marin County to the north and Tulare County in the foothills of the Sierra. Its membership topped 1,000 in the late 1960s, but now has dropped to about 900. Thousands of corporations donated money, including General Motors, Ford, Xerox, Pan Am and SperryRand.

About eight years ago, it began attracting non-addicts and non-alcoholics, who joined it as an alternative lifestyle.

Ex-members cannot pinpoint when Synanon's taboo against violence began crumbling, but it grew more regimented, more secretive.

The "National Guard" was formed as a security force, and "The Imperial Marines" were trained in martial arts. Later Synanon bought $62,300 in guns, ex-members say.

Vasectomies were ordered for all males 18 or over.

Attorney Morantz' name became familiar after he won a $300,000 settlement against Synanon.

After the rattlesnake incident, two Synanon members — including Lance Kenton, son of band leader Stan Kenton — were charged with attempted murder and Dederich was eyed after ex-members told police of his tirades.

Farm Show Set At Lumberton

LUMBERTON — The annual Southeastern Farm and Home Trade Show will be held here Feb. 21-22 at the Cooperative Warehouse, according to W. C. Williford, county extension chairman and show director.

Individuals or businesses who are interested in showing in the exhibit should contact the county extension agents in Lumberton by writing to P. O. Box 392 or calling (919) 738-8111.

TO WITHDRAW OFFERING

Integon Corp. announced it has made a request to withdraw a previously announced offering of $25 million in convertible, subordinated debentures.

J. E. Collette, president, said that Integon made the decision to withdraw the offering in light of a continuing unfavorable market for stocks and bonds.

The planned offering, he noted, was designed to provide a source of capital that would allow the company greater freedom to take advantage of additional future growth opportunities.

NAMED CONTROLLER

James A. Hackney III, president of Hackney & Sons Inc. of Washington, announced that Claiborne C. Young II, cost accounting manager with the company, has been promoted to controller.

Young, who has served as cost accounting manager at Hackney & Sons since he joined the firm in 1975, holds a B.S. degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He earned a master's degree from East Carolina University.

Young and his wife, the former Miriam Martin of Greenville, are the parents of two sons.

PROMOTED TO CONSULTANT

J. Michael Edwards, communications representative with Carolina Telephone in Rocky Mount, has been promoted to communications consultant.

An Atlanta, Ga. native, Edwards joined the company at New Bern in 1968 and served in Fayetteville from 1973 to 1976 and at Greenville from 1976 to 1977 before moving to Rocky Mount.

Several Offer Remedial Study

By The Associated Press
Several North Carolina universities have started remedial math and writing programs to help the sizeable number of entering freshmen who need basic instruction in the two subjects.

N.C. State University, the University of North Carolina and East Carolina University have developed remedial programs to deal with the problem.

ECU began its program five years ago. N.C. State and UNC started theirs last year.

Duke University has a freshman "study skills" program in reading, writing and study techniques. But officials say the program isn't specifically remedial although it is aimed at correcting academic weaknesses.

schools place students in the remedial classes on the basis of low high school grades or low SAT scores.

One university official said students in the remedial classes have the potential to do college-level work, but they first need a chance to acquire knowledge that they did not get in high school.

Another official said universities are facing reality by requiring some students to seek help.

"Regardless of whose fault it is, the schools' or the students', it (weakness in writing and math) is a fact of life," said Donald C. Jicha, associate dean of the general college at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Plan Services During Week

Services at New Hope House of Prayer, Greenville, for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are as follows: Tuesday, Elder Brown; Wednesday, Elder Smith; Thursday, Elder Lanier.

The public is invited to attend. The services will begin at 8 p.m. each night.

Father Of The 'Pink Panther'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For some reason, I thought recently of a wild bit in a Pink Panther cartoon wherein a piano falls on — but doesn't harm — an old lady the Panther tries to help across the street.

"Yeah," laughed Dave DePatie, "that was in the days before the network restrictions" on such cartoon mayhem.

DePatie, co-creator of the panther with Friz Freleng, just finished the first-ever P.P. special made for prime-time TV. But he doubts there'll be any gripes after ABC airs the show this Thursday.

Called "Pink Panther's Christmas" and based on an O. Henry tale, it only concerns efforts by the Panther, broke, frozen and friendless in New York, to get tossed in a warm jail cell Christmas Eve.

It isn't knockabout comedy in, say the manner of Tom & Jerry or Roadrunner cartoons, he says, but then "we've never had the real raucous, violent gags. It's more of a sophisticated comedy."

His observation came when a veteran Panther observer asked if those who gripe about cartoon mayhem on Saturday kid shows on TV don't seem bent on outlawing the classic kid-show form known as Punch 'n' Judy.

DePatie, 47, a tall, thoughtful man, father of two grown sons and a teen-ager, said that was a fair characterization: "I think so. That's a pretty good way of putting it, as a matter of fact."

His "Panther," which leaped to fame 14 years ago during opening titles for a film comedy about an Inspector Clouseau, aired Saturday mornings for eight years on NBC. It now is on year No. 9 at ABC.

There's been no specific gripes about his series, he says, but pressure has been put on the networks over the past five or six years to generally reduce the slam-bang comedy of Saturday cartoons.

The pressure mainly was generated by the Boston-based parents' group called Action for Children's Television, he said, and it has led to certain network no-no's in kiddie cartoon matters.

"I think possibly the most important one is physical contact of one character with another," he said. "No more slapping in the face, hitting on the head. 'No one-to-one contact' is the way their broadcast standards people put it."

But DePatie, who has two other Saturday kid series on the air, says the restrictions don't crimp his firm's cartoon comedy style.

But he does regard as exaggerated the fears of various groups about cartoon mayhem and possible effects of same on young viewers.

"I think they go back to that Surgeon General's report (about TV violence)," DePatie said. "But I think there's a big difference between realistic violence and comedic violence."

A.—Partner's bid is forcing, so you have to choose between raising to four hearts or rebidding three no trump. Since you do not have a true spade stopper, a raise to four hearts should be the unanimous choice—on this auction, Q-x is more than adequate support.

♠Q952 ♥A8 ♦A76 ♣Q1076
The bidding has proceeded:

Pass Pass Pass 1 ♦
What do you bid now?
A.—As a passed hand, you could hardly hold more. However, your hand is unsuited for a jump response, and you should suppress the urge to leap to three no trump—it might be better to have the heart lead come up to partner's hand rather than through it. A cue-bid of three hearts will describe your strength and distribution quite nicely.

A.—It is certainly not too much to presume that the diamond suit is solid. If that is the case, the final contract depends only on how many ace partner holds. Bid four no trump, intending to bid five diamonds if partner shows no ace, six diamonds if he shows one, and a grand slam if he shows two.

Saturday's Cryptiquip — OUR REFINED TUTOR CANNOT CONDONE A PETTY PERFDIDY.
Today's Cryptiquip clue: O equals N

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK872 ♥KJ ♦95 ♣10943
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner surely has a six-card suit, and you have the equivalent of a light opening bid. Therefore, you are in game territory. Since your hand does contain a lot of losers, we would accept a conservative raise to three hearts. However, with two honors in partner's suit, that really doesn't do your hand justice. Bid four hearts.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ92 ♥K985 ♦K ♣AKJ7
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—With first- or second-round control of every suit and an excellent fit, you should be in slam territory. Experience has shown us that the best way to handle this type of hand is to flash the slam signal to partner at once. Therefore, we recommend a jump shift to three clubs.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠98 ♥AKQ92 ♦K86 ♣A94
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—You have considerably better than a minimum opening bid, but finding a good rebid is not easy. If you had a sixth heart, but we are not keen on that action with only a five-card suit. A jump to four diamonds could bypass your best contract—three no

DEFINITELY NOT! — Actress Mariette Hartley is a familiar face to millions of TV viewers thanks to her appearances on a series of Polaroid commercials in which she appears opposite actor James Garner. The commercials have caused many people to refer to the actress as Mrs. James Garner. To combat the case of mistaken identity Mariette had T-shirts made for her and her daughter, Justine, answering the problem. (AP Laserphoto)

New High Speed Train Tested

PARIS (UPI) — The French National Railroad Company says its tests with its new high speed train are so successful the eight-coach train, bombing along at 160 mph, will go into service as scheduled between Paris and Lyon in October 1983.

While hailed by commuters between France's two largest industrial centers, the project is definitely displeasing another state-controlled transporter, the Air Inter domestic airline.

Air Inter officials said they anticipate a loss of 25 percent of their 7.2 million passengers. Switching to the train will get them to Lyon in two hours.

Czechs Choose Weekend Homes

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
SLAPY, Czechoslovakia (AP) — "We call these the forest cottages," says Vera Jelinkova, walking through a tiny community of vacation houses in tall trees beside a Vitava River reservoir.

"We're from the meadow cottages," she says, referring to a neighboring group of about 40 more cottages. Director of a children's daycare center, she and her carpenter husband were pioneers in the riverside

"chata" community, hauling bricks and wood over primitive forest roads to an open meadow 18 years ago. In the years since then, their simple weekend refuge has become one of almost 200,000 such hideaways erected in a movement that has resisted government control and evaded material shortages and other Czechoslovak economic problems.

Before World War II, Czechoslovakia evidently had just 23,000 chatas, a word equivalent to the Russian "dachas" and which in Czechoslovakia today covers everything from country villas to rural refuges that are little more than shacks. The government, which has had its problems with the movement, says Czechoslovaks now have more weekend retreats than anyone else in Europe except the French. Officials have tried to impose some sort of order on the movement, which has strewn even resurrected newsstands over the countryside, sometimes with little regard for the niceties of sanitation, water supplies and scenery. This past summer, Friday traffic began flooding out of Prague so early that police eventually resorted to making spot checks for weekenders playing hooky from their jobs, and televising the results to discourage others.

The community near Slapy is a legal and law-abiding one these days, although some rules were gotten around a few years back, residents say, to put the forest cabins into the forest. Most of the cabins are simple affairs, but some are often made of prefabricated kits of pre-cut timbers. Drinking water is carried by hand from a 75-foot well the community dug for itself. A community council organized installation of running water for other purposes. The chatas are clustered on small lots of about 2,000 square feet to a house. Narrow, grassy streets crisscross the little community.

Although the houses are close to each other, many are screened from their neighbors by fruit trees and shrubs that have grown up since the community was started.

NOTICE OF SIGNIFICANT ENVIRONMENT
City of Greenville
Greenville, NC 27834
The City of Greenville, North Carolina, proposes to request the Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) to be used for the following project:

Project One
a) Public Works Facilities—14th Street, Cruise Car, Seaboard Coastline Railroad.
b) This project proposes to widen 14th Street to 4 lanes with the provision for a 14th lane at the intersection of E. 11th and 14th Street from Charles Boulevard to the Seaboard Coastline Railroad.
c) The project is located in Enumeration Districts 31 and 32.
d) Projected cost is $1,000,000. It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action of any kind affecting the quality of the human environment, and accordingly, the City of Greenville has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

Project Two
During construction, residents in the immediate vicinity will notice increased noise levels as the old surface is removed and replaced. Dust levels will increase somewhat during construction, however, traffic flows will be significantly disrupted. The negative effects of this construction activity will be short term. Residents of the area may have to look at alternative means of access to their property. The noise and dust and other unpleasant construction effects will be most noticeable during the initial or demolition stage of the project. During later stages, residents may experience unpleasant odors.

Claim Corporate Fitness Program Is Paying Off

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Kimberly-Clark Corp. invested $2.5 million last year in its employees' health. Sentry Life Insurance Co. also made a substantial outlay in the belief the best medicine for its employees is a dose of wellness.

The two Wisconsin-based firms are examples of a growing trend toward corporate fitness for the nation's workers.

It's too early to assess the long-term benefits the paper products manufacturer expects to receive — greater productivity, reduced absenteeism and slower increases in medical insurance costs. But there have been short-term results.

"We have had a number of positive tests in the medical screening for the program," said Robert Ealing, a specialist at Kimberly-Clark's health services center in Neenah.

One employee was found to have coronary artery disease, which might have killed him if it had gone undetected. He underwent surgery and had three bypasses.

"We have found three or four colon cancers that have been taken care of," Ealing said. "There have been breast cancers that have been taken care of."

At nearby Stevens Point, where Sentry recently moved into new world headquarters, concern over rising medical care cost prompted a physical fitness facility for use by the company's 2,000 employees.

"We feel the way we can cut down the cost of health care is by cutting down the need for health care," said Dr. Donald D. Johnson, Sentry's associate medical director. "That's what wellness is all about."

Johnson said the medical profession traditionally has been trained to diagnose and cure illness. He said wellness stresses the individual's ability to live a healthy lifestyle and avoid becoming ill.

"We don't know that people are actually going to live longer, but they will feel better," Johnson said. "Even more important than living longer, the quality of their lives will be better."

In 1977, Kimberly-Clark spent $14.3 million for medical inurance — up 75 percent from 1973. It hopes better employee health will hold down those soaring rates.

The rates are in part determined by how much is paid out by the insurers for employee medical expenses. If employees are in better health, the rates should be lower.

Medical screening is the first step in employee participation in K-C's health management program, stressing staying well. Employees are given a complete physical examination, including a treadmill stress test, before they receive an individualized exercise program to stay fit.

Kimberly-Clark has a 7,000-square foot facility in which health testing is conducted, plus an adjoining 32,000-square foot physical fitness facility. The fitness center contains a 25-meter pool, 100-meter track, exercise equipment, sauna and whirlpool and showers and locker rooms.

The fitness facility is open to employees from 5 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday. Most employees use it early in the morning before work or after the 4 p.m. quitting time, said Ron Goudreau, KC's director of community relations.

The most popular individual exercise programs are jogging or running and stationary cycling. Participating employees logged nearly 4,000 miles on the track in one month alone.

Aerobic dance, group exercise and swimming classes have been popular group programs.

"The only reason they are not participating," Goudreau said, "is that it has to be negotiated with the union."

Because health screening takes time and most employees want into the program when they are asked to join, the firm has not yet been able to offer it to all eligible employees.

Ealing said about 1,800 workers have been contacted so far and 90 to 95 percent are participating — an extremely high rate for a fitness program. He said a rate of only 30 to 50 percent would have been considered a success.

"One of the most important parts of our program," Ealing said, "is educating participants about their life styles and what they can do to change them."

K-C offers formal classes and cassette tapes on subjects ranging from nutrition to self-examination for breast cancer. Counseling is available for special alcohol health problems, such as alcoholism or marital difficulties, and participants either volunteer or are referred by their superintendents or families.

A special exercise program that includes walking, jogging and cycling has been set up for employees with heart problems, heart surgery or emphysema. Doctors are able to monitor joggers' hearts by radio transmitters that produce a continual electrocardiogram during exercise.

Kimberly-Clark also has a two-mile bark trail running course that circles the center, which opened only a year ago.

K-C officials said the center's success is being measured by computerized medical histories of changes in employees' health status. The firm also is working with its insurance carrier to compare costs of hospitalization and incidence of major illness for participants in the program, compared to similar costs for a control group.

Sentry's physical fitness center includes a 25-meter swimming pool with a diving tank and three-meter board; a full-size gymnasium with eight basketball backboards, volleyball court and jogging track; racquetball and handball courts; indoor golf driving range, and a full array of exercise equipment, treadmills, bicycle ergometers, rowing machines and other devices.

Outside, the 500-acre site has trails for jogging in the summer and cross country skiing during cold Wisconsin winters. Development of a vita course — a jogging trail with periodic varied exercise stations — also is planned.

Although Sentry's new building has been opened only a few months, Johnson said about 500 people are already using the facilities and company officials are pleased by the response.

Employees who want to begin exercise programs are screened for risk factors and examined by the medical staff. Exams include treadmill stress tests of male employees over 35 and females over 45 or anyone with possible heart trouble.

When they begin the programs, employees are able to use the facilities throughout the day. They work a flexible time workday and can leave their jobs at any time to exercise, but are expected to put in a full day's work.

"If they get in an honest day's work, they can exercise whenever they want," Johnson said. "We've found that, in the short time we've been open, mere convenience is leading people to exercise."

Sentry also allows families and friends to use the facilities along with employees.

"We believe we are more likely to have our employees exercise if they can exercise with their families," Johnson said. "It also sets a good example for their children."

Johnson said the program encourages physical activity that exercises cardiovascular systems.

Besides competitive activities like basketball and racquetball, there are non-competitive jogging and swimming clubs offering incentives like certificates and T-shirts for achievements.

Regular exercise, although a major part of the program, is not the only ingredient in Sentry's wellness efforts.

"We don't want to give the impression that physical fitness is an answer to everything," Johnson said. "It's only one component in achieving wellness. We stress nutrition, rest, relaxation, stress reduction and mental health, as well as physical health."

"Physical activity is an important thing, but its not the only thing."

Sentry offers courses in subjects like weight reduction and diet and counseling programs to deal with employee problems. There also is a "quiet room" in which employees can go to be alone to think or relax.

Besides holding the line on soaring health care costs,

Sentry officials expect other benefits. Johnson noted a study in Sweden showed 25 percent less absenteeism among employees involved in a similar program.

"Absenteeism is reduced," Johnson said. "It increases morale. Employees are more mentally alert. And if our people are physically fit, we don't have to pay for disabilities as soon."

Racketeering Links Claimed

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Several individuals in states from Ohio to Florida are managing an informal racketeering network and now federal investigators say they have linked allegations of official corruption in Rockingham County to this network, according to sources quoted in The Greensboro Daily News.

Sources told the newspaper that the network led to the downfall and imprisonment of Virginia Commonwealth Attorney Joseph Motley Whitehead, the conviction of Caswell County Sheriff Bobby Poteat and the arrest of a Wilson County deputy sheriff.

Federal and state authorities say the network of prostitution and racketeering is loose-knit but far-reaching. Sources said the houses of prostitution appear to be controlled by the key individuals in each state and the chief link in the network is the prostitutes.

Those prostitutes kept detailed notebooks listing houses and operators extending across state lines, according to records confiscated in federal investigations in the Kentucky-Ohio area and Virginia as well as North Carolina.

Testimony from investigations in the U.S. Middle District will be given to a federal grand jury in Winston-Salem beginning Tuesday, and a federal grand jury in the eastern district is scheduled to reconvene Dec. 18 to consider additional indictments in connection with prostitution in that area. In addition to allegations of prostitution and racketeering, federal agents are looking into:

— an alleged conspiracy to kill a State Bureau of Investigation agent who was looking into prostitution in Rockingham.

— possible misuse of state funds by the Rockingham County Sheriff's Department.

— alleged payoffs made to county law officers by operators of illegal gambling houses in Rockingham. An Internal Revenue Service investigation is also underway.

Nuns Take Over Former College

ARCADIA, Mo. (UPI) — About 25 nuns are the remaining inhabitants of a former Methodist college, which served as a soldiers' hospital during the Civil War and finally as a boarding school for girls.

The Sisters of St. Ursula, who took over the Arcadia College campus in 1877, sealed off the three-building school in 1971, with antique furniture and school materials still inside.

The nuns, whose ages range from 43 to 96, operate a daycare center for about 30 youngsters.
