LAI TO REST — Soldiers slowly lower the flag-draped coffin of former Prime Minister Golda Meir into its final resting place on Mount Herzl today. (AP Laserphoto)

Golda Meir Laid To Rest In A Plain Pine Coffin

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) —

Golda Meir, the iron-willed grandmother who led Israel in peace and war, was buried in a plain pine coffin on a Jerusalem hilltop today among other pioneer leaders of the Jewish state. An army chaplain prayed for peace as the grave was filled.

Pouring rain deepened the gloom Israelis felt as they watched the televised state funeral.

The former prime minister, who died Friday at the age of 80, was interred on Mount Herzl, before a pine tree, in a section of the national cemetery called The Plot of the Nation's Great. The grave was next to that of the prime minister she succeeded in 1969, Levi Eshkol.

President Yitzhak Navon and Prime Minister Menachem Begin headed 1,000 Israeli officials, foreign representatives, relatives and friends invited to the graveside service.

Ten army chaplains chanted prayers as the coffin was carried into the burial ground by six army generals and two police inspectors. An honor guard of 60 cadets stood at attention, soaked by the rain, and the mourners huddled under umbrellas.

Mrs. Meir's son, Menachem, chanted Kaddish, the Jewish prayer for the dead, as the Israeli flag was removed from the coffin and it was lowered into the ground.

"Remember her, oh Lord, with mercy," the army's chief rabbi, Maj. Gen. Gad Navon, prayed.

Members of the family dropped lumps of earth into the grave, and army chaplains filled it with earth from straw baskets. Women soldiers placed wreaths on the mound, and an army chaplain called out:

"Mrs. Golda Meir ... in the name of the citizens who respected you ... in the name of your grieving family ... we ask that you go to your rest in peace. May your destiny and our destiny be that of peace."

A military escort brought the flag-draped coffin to Mount Herzl after a memorial service in the Chagall Hall of the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

The memorial service was to have been held in the plaza in front of the Knesset, where the body lay in state Monday and Monday night.

Annual Report

The city plans to distribute to each household in Greenville on Wednesday an annual report to the citizens. "A Year In Review," for the July 1, 1977 through June 30 fiscal year.

City Manager Ed Wyatt noted that the brochure represents the city's first attempt since the early 1960's at preparing an annual report.

He explained that the report includes information on the city's activities and accomplishments during the year in areas such as code recodification, Community Development, Police, Fire, Public Works, Inspections, Planning, and Recreation and Parks. It also includes the activities of the city agencies such as Airport, Library, Redevelopment, Housing and Utilities.

The report was prepared by Gail Meeks, assistant to the city manager, with the assistance of the city department heads and Susan Nobles of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce. The Public Works Department will handle the distribution.

Sewell Acting City Engineer

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the appointment of Ronald R. Sewell, assistant city engineer, as acting city engineer, effective Jan. 1.

Sewell, a native of Roanoke Rapids, joined the city's Engineering Department in June of 1974 following graduation from North Carolina State University where he received a B.S.

degree in civil engineering. During his four years at North Carolina State, Sewell was a member of the Wolfpack football team and served as the team's field goal and extra point kicker for two years.

He is a registered land surveyor and has qualified as an engineer in training which is a prerequisite for a professional engineer's license. He is presently pursuing his professional engineer's license.

Wyatt said that Sewell has extensive background in traffic engineering and presently serves as executive secretary of the city's Traffic Commission.

Charlie Holliday, the city's veteran director of engineering, earlier announced his retirement, effective Dec. 31.

Soldiers Fire Into Anti-Shah Crowds

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) —

Soldiers fired on massing crowds of anti-shah protesters in Isfahan today, killing at least 10 persons in the second straight day of bloody violence, informed sources in that city reported.

The sources, close to security authorities, said at least 20 persons have been slain in Isfahan, 250 miles south of Tehran, since rioting erupted Monday. Opposition sources claimed hundreds of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's foes were massacred by army gunfire, including machine gun barrages from helicopter gunships.

But the city's governor, Manuchehr Haqdan, denied those reports and said today fighting lasted two hours without casualty.

The government thus far has confirmed only five deaths and many wounded Monday.

A Western diplomat in Isfahan, who declined to be identified, reported by telephone: "the army has regained control of the streets. There's still some firing in the air to get people off the streets. But the situation is not very good and it's very tense."

Diplomatic sources reported the city hall, secret police headquarters, two telecommunications buildings, five banks, eight liquor stores, four movie theaters and a hotel were destroyed or badly damaged in fires.

The sources said several thousand Americans living in Isfahan covered in their guarded compounds as the fighting swirled through the streets. There were no reports of American injuries.

The fighting "was confined to the northeastern sector of the city this morning for two hours, but it was brought under control by troops with no deaths or serious injuries," the governor said.

Diplomatic sources said troops roamed the battered streets, smashing the windows of stores displaying portraits of exiled Moslem leader Ayatullah Khomeini, leader of the yearlong campaign to topple the 59-year-old monarch.

Isfahan's governor attributed the report of heavy casualties to "certain residents of the city who telephone friends to pass on wild rumors of death and destruction."

Tanks and columns of troops rolled back through Tehran Monday evening, restoring the 9 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew and the ban on public demonstrations after hundred of thousands of fist-waving Iranians streamed through the streets chanting "Down With The Shah!"

Troops and police were withdrawn to side streets to avoid bloodshed during Ashura, the 48-hour peak of the Shiite Moslem holy month of Moharram in which the faithful usually scourge themselves to mourn the 7th century assassination of their founder, Imam Hossein, grandson of the prophet Mohammed. But this year instead of whips the marchers carried banners and placards attacking the shah and portraits of Khomeini.

The Tehran demonstrations were peaceful Monday and again today, but troops were standing by.

Fire Chief Plans Retire On Dec. 31

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Ray Smith, associated with the fire service for 50 years, will retire as chief of the Greenville Fire Department December 31.

"It's hard to be associated with something all my life ... then leave," the 57-year-old veteran noted.

Smith's association with the fire department began long before he was hired as the city's fourth paid firefighter in 1942. His, "biggest thrill," came when he, "started living at the fire department," Smith noted. That was when he was seven years old.

The chief explained that his parents lived a block and a half from the fire station...then located on Fifth Street, where the Ole Towne Inn is located now.

It was during the Christmas season, as Smith remembers it, "The firemen were repairing toys for needy children...and I was interested in toys. That's the reason I guess I took to the Fire Department."

The firemen, "gave me a bed," and the future chief began sleeping at the station. He noted that his parents would come to the station and, "run me home."

CHIEF RAY SMITH

adding that he would hide, then sneak back to the fire station and go to bed.

The late Chief George Gardner who retired in 1963, and former Chief J. L. Jones, who retired in 1968, were the only two paid firefighters at that time. The city's third paid man, the late Assistant Chief A. B. Sumrell, who retired in 1970, was hired in 1929.

Smith officially became a Greenville fireman — rather than a mascot — when he was voted into the volunteer department when he was 15 years old.

Smith remembers his first fire, "Evans Street School... I was in school there at the time." It stood where Shepard Memorial Library is now located. It was destroyed.

The veteran firefighter worked for the Greenville Utilities Commission as a lineman from 1936 until he became the city's fourth paid fireman, in 1942, and returned to the Department September 1, 1945 after a little over a year with the

Fears Airport Bandits Can Easily Spend Loot

NEW YORK (AP) — Armed bandits who stole up to $5 million cash from Kennedy Airport in what may be the nation's biggest currency theft ever should have no difficulty spending the money, since it consists of old, unmarked bills, authorities said.

"It went off like clockwork," said one official. "It was wellplanned, well-organized and well-executed."

The bandits — said to number five by police but put at seven by some witnesses — breached security at a Lufthansa Airline cargo hold early Monday and made off in a black van with jewels and sacks of foreign and U.S. currency that had been flown from Frankfurt, Germany, for transfer to the Chase Manhattan Bank and the Federal Reserve here.

Bankers call the cash "old money" — not easily traced and readily negotiable.

Karl Koepcke, a Lufthansa spokesman, put the value of the jewels at $300,000.

"They were so well prepared that they even had enough handcuffs for all the employees," said John Connolly, a spokesman for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which runs Kennedy Airport.

If the $5 million figure is confirmed, it would be the largest cash theft in U.S. history — topping the $4.3 million loss at Puroator Security in Chicago in October of 1974. The famous 1950 Brink's robbery in Boston netted $2.4 million — $1.2 million of that in cash — and a 1971 theft at the Hotel Pierre in New York totaled about $5 million in jewels and cash.

The thieves overpowered and handcuffed 10 workers in making their way into the vault of the German airlines without tripping an alarm, authorities said.

The precision, early morning heist left many questions unanswered.

How did the thieves pick a bonanza night for the theft; how did they know to bring handcuffs for every guard; how did they reconnoiter the hangar and its security system and — the biggest one of all — where did they go?

And two other questions: Why did a Brink's truck sent to haul away $3 million in cash fail to make its pickup; and why did authorities drop pursuit of a black van near the airport about an hour after the thieves — in a black van — made their getaway?

One Chase Manhattan Bank official said the theft appears to be an "inside job."

Cuban Prisoners Denounce Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred thirty-eight Cuban political prisoners have signed a petition denouncing the recent dialogue between President Fidel Castro and the Cuban exile community as a "farce" designed to "deceive the Cuban people and the world at large."

"We do not negotiate our liberty because our principles are not negotiable," said the petition, smuggled out of a Cuban prison in October.

Redevelopers Hold Meet In New Quarters

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Redevelopment Commission met in its new office quarters on Broad Street for the first time Monday night following a relocation from the former central office site at 316 E. Roundtree Drive.

The Commission, as well as the Housing Authority staff, has moved the central offices to 1103 Broad Street in the Newtown community building.

Joe Laney, executive director, said that the accounting staff is still located at the Roundtree Drive site but will be moving to Newtown soon.

The relocation will enable the Commission to sell the Roundtree Drive house to a residential prospect. Laney said that a buyer is being sought for the structure.

Commissioners approved a change in the by-laws stipulating the new meeting place on Broad Street.

Southside project manager Faye Brewington reported during the meeting that six parcels were acquired since the November meeting. She said that two of the parcels were located in Southside, one in the Central Business District, and three in the West Meadowbrook section.

Mrs. Brewington pointed out that three parcels were disposed of in the CBD and two options were secured on property in Southside and in the South Evans Street area. No relocation activity or demolition took place since the last meeting, she added.

Staff rehabilitation officer, Ed Cobb, reported that no rehabilitation projects were completed in the period since the November meeting but contractors are working on six. He noted that the rehabilitation jobs are located in Meadowbrook, Southside and West Greenville.

Grant-loan combinations are involved in three of the projects while the remaining three are being accomplished with Section 312 loans, Cobb said.

Laney, in reviewing the status of developers regarding property sold by the Redevelopment Commission, said that work is progressing on the new structure in Southside that will be utilized for dental offices by Dr. Hazel Brown. Dr. Brown, a black dentist, plans to relocate her practice to Greenville from Chapel Hill around the first of the year.

The director noted also that Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Association has begun work on its new building on Evans Street south of the Art Center.

In addition, Carolina Office Equipment Co. has moved into its new facility on Green Street at the Pitt-Green connector intersection. Laney reported.

Evidence Of Murder In Jonestown Discovered

NEW YORK (AP) — At least 70 of the Peoples Temple cult members who died in the mass murder-suicide at Jonestown, Guyana, were given cyanide by injection, the New York Times said today in a story that quoted Guyanese officials.
The Times said the disclosure came from well placed Guyanese government sources who said the placement of the injections, high on the upper arm, made it unlikely that they were self-administered.

Most of the 70 persons injected were adults and among them was Christine Miller, the one woman identified by survivors as having been openly against the mass suicide plan of cult leader the Rev. Jim Jones, the report said.
The Times also reported the discovery that several small bottles labeled as liquid Valium, a tranquilizer, the contents of which evidently were swallowed by cult members, actually contained cyanide.

It also said that authorities have not positively established that Jones, one of two persons found dead from gunshots, actually took his own life. The other gunshot death was that of Annie Moore, the commune's senior nurse, who was found in Jones' house, near a safe in a file cabinet. Authorities said her position indicated she was shot from behind as she turned, the Times said.

Peanut Vote Is On December 14

Thursday, Dec. 14, has been slated as peanut referendum day in North Carolina.
All peanut producers should plan to vote on whether or not to continue to assess themselves the funds for operation of the North Carolina Peanut Grower's Association.
Money collected from the assessment is used by the Grower's Association to promote interest in all phases of peanut production.
Polling places in Pitt County are as follows: Farmer's Warehouse, Greenville; Davenport and Sons store in Pactolus; Roebuck and Parker Service Station, Stokes; Bethel Town Hall; Belvoir General Merchandise in Belvoir; and W. W. Wooten Farm Supply, Falkland.
Peanut farmers will vote on whether to continue the one dollar per ton on farmer stock peanuts marketed in 1979-1984. Funds collected in the past have financed the N. C. Peanut Grower's Association, instrumental in promoting the use and consumption of the Virginia-type peanut grown in North Carolina and Virginia.

Cable TV Franchise In Ayden Approved On First Reading

by REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board of Commissioners approved the first reading of an ordinance granting a non-exclusive franchise to Greenville Cable TV, Inc. Monday.
A second reading has been set for the January meeting, which if approved, means possible adoption of the ordinance by the Town of Ayden.
Board members discussed a possible public hearing on the subject to be held on the matter during the January meeting, with advertisement to be held twice if the hearing is needed.
The board also voted to allow Mayor Ross Persinger to appoint a parking committee to study possible plans on parking in downtown Ayden. The committee will probably include Police Chief Tommy Burney, Ayden downtown merchants, members of the Ayden Chamber of Commerce and other Ayden citizens.
The board also voted to authorize the mayor and town clerk Ralph Ford to execute a lease agreement with T. G. Worthington for town parking on Worthington's property, located between the Ayden Community Building, board member Dr. Elliott Dixon's office, and the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church.
The lease agreement will span five year-terms, with both renewal and escalator clauses. Rent for the lot will be $50 a month, with the Town of Ayden agreeing to pay $25 and $25 paid by Dr. Dixon's medical corporation. Dr. Dixon went on the record as abstaining from voting on the matter.
The board approved the following appointments to the Ayden Recreation Commission: Ralph Riggs and Paul Selliff, one year terms; Ray Avery and Billy Odham, two year terms; Gay Blocker, Fred Fuller and Lena Darden, three year terms.
Town Manager Don Russell told board members that he would be sending them copies of the proposed recreation ordinance for study and discussion at the next workshop session.
The board authorized letters of appreciation to be sent to Johnnie Williams and Mrs. J. L. Lowry for their service on the Recreation Commission.
Town Manager Russell also received approval from the board concerning use of services from the Mid-East Commission in working toward pre-application for Housing and Urban Development funding for Ayden.
According to Russell, target areas in Ayden for community development monies are almost finalized. The town will be seeking a possible single or dual purpose grant, rather than a comprehensive one.
The board approved the addition of $2,265.99 to the 1978 tax levy and released $56.61.
The board was reminded that town offices will be closed both Christmas Day, Monday, Dec. 25, and Tuesday, Dec. 26 in compliance with the town ordinance.
Since the board workshop falls on New Year's Day, the board voted to switch the meeting to Thursday, Jan. 4. A bond referendum information session will be held during the workshop meeting. This will be the final information meeting on the referendum.
In other business, the board discussed problems in collecting leaves from Ayden households. Ayden citizens were reminded not to sweep leaves in storm drains or into the streets.
Board members Harry Mumford and J. J. Brown also discussed lighting requests in Ayden, with Utilities Director Mike Finney explaining that the town budgets for a certain amount of lights per year.
"We get many requests for individual lighting," said Finney. "We try to get a block benefit, not just putting a light here and there."
Ayden Housing Authority Director Jerry Cox also gave a report on the housing authority's progress. He presented a list of delinquent accounts to the commissioners for study.

A STUDY IN MOTION... the excitability, overactivity and impulsiveness of the hyperactive child can be a difficult problem to handle. (UNC-G News Photo by Bob Cavin)

Guidelines Offered In Treating Hyperactivity

By SELBY BATEMAN
UNC-G News Bureau
(Second of Two Articles)

GREENSBORO — What are the long-range effects of extended use of amphetamines by children who are diagnosed as hyperactive?

The fact that there are no definitive answers to that question is a major reason that child development researchers such as Dr. Lynne Koester are concerned over such widespread drug therapy.

For the hyperactive child who exhibits excitable, impulsive, distractible behavior, a daily dose of stimulants has become commonplace. It increases attention span, controls impulsiveness and excitability and even helps children maintain friendships otherwise shattered by their overactive behavioral patterns.

"But I think that drugs should be the last solution that parents or teachers should turn to," said Dr. Koester, an assistant professor of child development at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

In a recent interview, Dr. Koester, who has carried out research on and taught children at a variety of grade levels, offered general guidelines for parents and teachers who work with children diagnosed as hyperactive:

— Be cautious about over-labeling children as hyperactive. Don't treat the term as a waste basket solution for every child who causes a problem at home or in class.

— Try increasingly smaller dosages of the amphetamines to wean the children from this artificial support. Help the children try to internalize their own controls.

— If stimulant drugs are being used, watch out for sudden, erratic behavior changes in the child and changes in physiological factors—poor appetite, weight loss, insomnia.

— Let school officials know that you are ready to help the child in their efforts to create a good learning atmosphere for all the children.

— Reward the child in a positive manner for exhibiting appropriate behavior for even short periods of time.

— Talk over various consistent discipline strategies in the home with which the child may be aided in efforts to control behavior.

— Decide if a particular type of school environment +s8 whether open or more traditional — would be best for the child.

— Be more aware of what type of records are being kept on children pertaining to hyperactivity or other behavioral patterns.

— Work closely with the child's physician, letting the doctor know of any concerns over the extended use of stimulant drugs.

— Explore other avenues of aid for hyperactive children such as environmental changes and discipline procedures.

Although it has been shown that amphetamines used to excess by adults can cause serious, sometimes almost psychotic, side effects, few studies have undertaken assessments of the cumulative effects on children, Dr. Koester noted.

"And I don't think there is any reason to believe that these drugs are operating any differently with children than with adults," she said. "They have basically the same effect physiologically with adults as they do with these children."

Part of the problem, Dr. Koester believes, is the improper labeling of some children as hyperactive when they exhibit only one or two of the characteristics.

"I think parents are as guilty as teachers of using the term hyperactivity very loosely," she said. "Parents need to be very careful about using that term or giving anyone else that idea about their children."

"Those children are labeled for life," she continued. "Those school records follow them from one year to the next. And it's very difficult for a child who has gotten into a classroom with a teacher who is perhaps more restrictive and less tolerant of that type of behavior. Then the next teacher is automatically going to expect on the basis of that child's records that he or she is going to be a problem."

"I think that parents have a right to know. And if they feel that their child has been mislabeled then they need to work with the school counselors and teachers and the principal to try to seek other alternatives."

In studying how different children reacted various types of classroom environments — whether open or more traditional — Dr. Koester discovered a number of differences.

"These hyperactive children are not intellectually inferior by any means," she said. "In fact, often these children will test as having average or above average IQs."

"And so it may be that they are in classroom situations that are not challenging or stimulating enough," she continued. "In a class where there's more movement and more choice, more novel experiences, they might be able to at least follow their own patterns of behavior without being stigmatized."

"Such children in a more traditional kind of classroom environment very easily get called down repeatedly by their teachers," Dr. Koester said. "They are faced with failure from day one and because their personalities seem to be so explosive, it's difficult for them to maintain friendships."

"They get started in a cycle of defeat from the first grade," she concluded.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I was browsing through a bookstore this week where I noted there were at least 187 titles on "How to be a Winner."

There wasn't one book on "How To Lose." Yet, most of us do that 50 times as much as we win.

Losing is the only art form where the more you do it, the less proficient you become at it.

As a child, no one talked to me about losing. It was so offensive that they didn't even talk about it in the gutter where they discussed sex. If it happened (God forbid!) you dealt with it in your own way.

I didn't want my kids to hear about "losing" from strangers, so I set up the following guidelines:

1. Don't believe that old line that in ten years you won't remember losing. When I was in the eighth grade, I lost the citizenship award (a paper certificate) to Marjorie Stewart. I wore a white and brown polka dot dress and when her name was announced I thought my throat would burst open from hurting. Right after the assembly, I poked a hole in my dress so I would have to go home and change. You'll remember.

2. There is no such thing as a "dumb old ballgame," an "overrated Nobel Prize," a "Minnie Mouse Senate race" or a "silly ole Pillsbury bake-off." (I lost a spelling bee in the ninth grade because I failed to spell "MINUTE" meaning infinitesimal.) At the time, it's important.

3. Don't be too sure that in the years to come you'll "laugh yourself to death" when you think of this moment. We practically had to write a check to a guy to take me to the junior prom and the dress was ugly and my hair curled weird. Anyone who laughs at that should be put in a home.

Someone once asked me what was one of my proudest moments as a mother and I have to go back to a tennis match involving my 17-year-old daughter who, in a draw to eliminate the "hamburgers," got matched with the No. 1 seeded girl in the tournament.

The night before, she made up her mind to "default" by not showing up. The next day she figured out if she didn't play she'd never know how bad her opponent was or how good she was. She gave her a run for her money.

Losing is not your No. 1 fatality. Being hit by a car is. Some say there is little difference.

Losing a tennis match or a marriage... it all depends on how much of your integrity is still intact. It takes practice.

Recognized As A Big Business

New guidelines, laid down by HEW Sec. Joseph A. Califano, Jr., free colleges and universities from including football in plans for eliminating sex discrimination.

Califano said the guidelines recognize that football is unique among sports in some cases.

The guidelines are sound and perhaps for the first time our society is recognizing that intercollegiate football is big business, far removed from the true amateurism of other college sports. The same applies at some institutions to basketball.

Not only must the Title IX guidelines recognize this, but the institutions themselves must eventually come to recognize that big time football is a business more than an extra-curricular activity secondary to academics.

The aims of the young men who participate in intercollegiate football are widely varied. Many pursue their degrees in anticipation of future careers as coaches or in other professions. Others are preparing strictly for futures in the professional football ranks, and some of these attain great financial success without college degrees.

At any rate, participating in intercollegiate football is hardly a sideline for the participants. It is a time consuming activity which produces major revenues at many institutions.

Golda A Leader In The Trying Years

Golda Meir, former prime minister of Israel, who died last Friday, led her nation through some difficult times.

She also built the nation as a military power which could withstand the massive animosity that surrounded it in the Middle East.

Mrs. Meir was one of the few women heads of state in the world at the time. Israel, as a young nation, had to seek out its best leadership, regardless of gender. Mrs. Meir served her nation well. She was a leader first, and only incidentally a female prime minister.

CAPITOL LETTER

Early Adjournment Plan

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State legislators perennially talk about keeping General Assembly sessions brief, cutting the rhetoric and saving taxpayers' money. And inevitably, the sessions get longer each time.

But legislators arriving in early January for the 1979 term may have a chance to do something about the length of sessions, reducing it to something less than the six months spent meeting last year and taking a step to counter the trend toward a full-time legislature.

That is, they might decide to adjourn after the first week and not come back for a couple months, giving legislative ideas a chance to simmer and more importantly, giving the economy a chance to show what is in store for the next budget year.

The idea has been mentioned in past sessions, but this time appears to have the backing of some influential legislative leaders.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, is a proponent who will be in a position to push the plan this year.

Lawing, a fifth-term legislator who guided liquor-by-the-drink legislation through the Senate in 1977, is virtually certain to win election as Senate president pro tem tonight when Democratic senators hold their pre-session caucus.

Technically he'll just be nominated, but with 45 of the 50 senators in the Democratic Party, election is assured.

"I think we ought to come down on the 10th (of January), take about a week to assign offices and committees, and recess on the 19th," Lawing says. "We can go home and wait until the first of March to come back. We can't do anything before then on the budget anyway."

The plan would still give legislators two to three months to work on other legislation. Revenue projections, culled from income tax reports filed early in the year, usually are not ready until mid-May.

The major roadblocks for the split session, Lawing notes, are some of the lawmakers themselves who would rather be in Raleigh — where they are regularly treated to parties and dinners — than home.

Lawing will be chairman of the Senate Rules Committee next year, and thus in a position to push the proposal. He is close to Lt.

Gov. Jimmy Green, who presides over the Senate and always presses for speedy sessions.

"We're dead serious about doing it on the Senate side," Lawing said.

But the House would have to go along with a recess, too. House Speaker Carl Stewart was unavailable for comment and Green is out of the country.

But Stewart aide Russell Clay said last week that Stewart and the House would likely favor a mid-term recess. Stewart set such a tone at the House Democratic caucus when he called for a four-month session.

A good indicator for how long the session will take may be in the committee appointments made by Green and Stewart next month. Stewart, as the first speaker to serve a second term, has the chance to stick with the committee chairmen he named in 1977, thus cutting out the usual delays committees have in getting cranked up.

"I think a good reading is, since he says he wants to adjourn in four months, the speaker wants to move fast and stay with the team he's got," said Rep. Horton Rountree, D-Pitt, speaker pro tem in the last session.

Rountree is one who is awaiting Stewart's decision. The speaker selects his speaker pro tem, and Rountree said he has no commitment from Stewart for a second term.

Even if both legislative leaders stick with their old teams, there will be at least five new major committee chairmen in each chamber as a result of retirements, advancement, death and political defeat.

In the Senate, committees on the base budget, judiciary, wildlife, criminal justice and elections have vacant chairmanships.

In the House, committees on alcohol control, finance, judiciary, and natural resources are among those open.

And in both chambers, the insurance committee chairmen were defeated at the polls after supporting the controversial House Bill 658, which reduced the insurance commissioner's power to block rate increases. That bill will be up for review again this session.

"Instead of a gavel, they ought to give a silver dagger with those two chairmanships," one legislative wag noted last week.

Rhodes Proves Point

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The class of new House Republicans was getting a few pointers from Minority Leader John Rhodes of Arizona on such essentials as where to sit in the House chamber.

"This is the Republican side and that over there is the Democratic side," Professor Rhodes instructed the freshmen at an orientation in the chamber.

Suddenly, several red-faced GOP members jumped from their seats on the Democratic side and scurried across the aisle to join their snickering colleagues.

With his flock in place, Rhodes went on to explain how the electronic voting machine worked.

Each member gets a plastic voting card to be inserted in a slot in devices positioned around the chamber, Rhodes said. Then, with the card in place, the member pushes one of three buttons to cast a "yes," "no" or "present" vote.

Tiny perforations on the card identify the member to the machine. The way he or she votes is instantly flashed to a large tote board on the front wall. Smaller display boards over side entrances give running tallies.

So why are there identical holes on the top and bottom of each card?

"The average intelligence of the average member of Congress is such that it's best to have perforations in both places. That way, it can be inserted upside down," Rhodes observed.

The staff of defeated Rep. Newton I. Steers Jr., R-Md., has gotten a few nibbles but no bites yet on its offer to hire itself out as a unit for $228,000 a year.

High Cost Of Veterans

WASHINGTON — It is a risky business, as every editor knows, to write anything that might be construed as critical of programs intended to benefit "the veteran." But when it comes to two matters now in the news, some cool observations are in order.

This should be said first of all: Of course the nation has a high obligation to look after the veteran who is wounded in combat or disabled by some other cause that is clearly related to his military service. Of course the nation must provide benefits, such as college tuition and temporary support, for those whose education is disrupted while they are in uniform. It would be plainly wrong to cancel inducements held out at the time of enlistment.

But at some point a line has to be drawn. The veterans' preference now provided in federal employment is one such point. The new veterans' pension act, effective January 1, suggests another.

Last week the Justice Department filed a memorandum supporting the constitutionality of the system by which veterans automatically get an advantage in obtaining jobs in the federal civil service. The memorandum is beside the point. By rational extension of the power "to raise and support armies" and "to provide and maintain a navy," the Congress doubtless has authority to provide this significant bonus. The question is not the constitutionality of the system but the equity of the policy.

The effect of the preference setup is to benefit white males especially. As time goes on, black males also will benefit in large numbers, but the system plainly disadvantages women seeking federal employment. It is patently unfair, or so it seems to me, to continue to award these preference points to a man who may have served only a few months in the army in peacetime years ago. The system may be lawful; it isn't right, and Mr. Carter is on sound ground in attempting to phase it out.

The new pension program is intended to raise the annual payments to veterans who are "permanently and totally disabled." That sounds great — until it is understood that (1) we are talking about injuries or illnesses that have nothing whatever to do with military service, and (2) for purposes of the pension act, veterans automatically are classed as

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

A recent article in "The Daily Reflector" (AMA Code Ruled Unfair, Nov. 29, 1978) indicates that Federal Trade Commission Judge Ernest Barnes has stated that AMA policy has served to stifle "the rise of almost every type of health care delivery that could potentially pose a threat to the income of fee-for-service physicians in private practice."

I suspect Judge Barnes' along with numerous bureaucrats, politicians and business executives, would like to see fee-for-service medical care eliminated.

What is so bad about a fee-for-service (and goods) system? It is a cornerstone of the private enterprise system. Almost all of the goods and services purchased in this country are provided on this basis.

A considerable segment of business community, plus many bureaucrats and politicians want health providers to become insurers through the health maintenance organization (HMO) concept. Under this system, a provider supposedly supplies all of the health care needed for a set fee covering a period of time. The trouble starts when it is time to decide who will determine what is needed.

If offered voluntarily, I would gladly accept a contract with an auto maker to provide me with all the cars I need for a single set fee: provided that I could decide how many and what kind. After all, something for nothing is pretty nice for the receiver.

Common sense tells us that the HMO concept will never become widespread unless providers and their employees are unfairly coerced or enslaved. These methods are both immoral and unconstitutional. Unfortunately, most of those who are determined to radically alter our medical system have no qualms about using any degree of force necessary to obtain their objectives.

No health care system will ever be perfect. Ours is one of the best, if not the best, in existence. Efforts to improve it should continue, but only within the framework of individual liberty.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Jordan Cancellation

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The sudden cancellation of Hamilton Jordan's speaking date before the Foreign Policy Association here last week has raised questions whether the State Department interceded against his appearance.

Officials at the department deny any such intercession, but skeptical outsiders, particularly hard-liners on Capitol Hill, are not so sure. The background is brief: invited to talk on the evening of Dec. 5 about the foreign policy role of American citizens before 200 members of the nationally-known FPA, Jordan promptly accepted just before Thanksgiving. But four days after invitations were mailed — including some to the State Department — he cancelled.

The cancellation apparently was not based on any sudden conflict involving a presidential summons for Jimmy Carter's top White House aide. Although insiders at both the FPA and the White House were circumspect, it appears that Jordan's cancellation was based on concern that this was the wrong time for any free-wheeling discourse about U.S. foreign policy — a subject that has come to fascinate Jordan and on which he takes a harder line than many officials at State. That harder line is evident in Jordan's strong support for increased defense spending.

Congressional critics of the State Department have been quietly urging national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski for months to speak out more loudly when he thinks Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and his aides act too soft on Moscow. Now these same critics say that Jordan may be moving closer to the relatively hardline views of Brzezinski, causing State to assert its own primary role as Carter's foreign policy spokesman.

MI-6 Shakeout?

A new resolution adopted by the British Labor party is causing rising apprehension in the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) that the top-rated British foreign intelligence service, known as MI-6, may be headed down a disastrous course.

The resolution calls for a Freedom of Information Act patterned precisely on the U.S. law that now applies to the CIA. That move to open up the CIA to public inspection was the result of intelligence abuses and the demand for "reform" following the Watergate and other scandals. Hostile foreign intelligence services make frequent, anonymous use of the act to study the CIA's inner workings.

Imports Haunt Steel Industry

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It was nearing the end of a pretty fair year and prospects were good for the next six months at least. So, U.S. Steel's pre-Christmas get-together with news reporters began pleasantly.

Domestic steel consumption would be about 113 million tons for the year, only 4 million tons short of the record, said David Roderick, president. Industry profits would be close to $1 billion.

While he foresaw a possible decline in demand from the automotive and appliance industries, said the head of "Big Steel," capital goods spending was expected to be strong.

But there were problems for the industry that no holiday spirit could dispel. Roderick had a message to deliver.

"Imports," he began, and as it always does at steel meetings, the word spread like smog through the holiday mood of the audience, gathered in a suite of the Rainbow Room atop the RCA Building.

Not even the prospect of a billion-dollar-plus contract to develop an iron ore facility in China could dispel the cloud. The atmosphere was now gray. In steel, "imports" is a foul word.

The steel industry, said Roderick, has taken "abuse for years." European and Japanese exporters, he said, were dumping into the U.S. market at below their production costs. It was "unfair, illegal."

It was an old refrain too, one that Washington had sought to quiet earlier this year by means of a trigger price mechanism, based on Japanese production costs, below which imports couldn't be priced.

"Why do we (the United States) condone it?" he asked. Tolerance of the situation, he said, reflects neither "good judgment or common sense." The country loses production, jobs, taxes, he indicated.

He was asked what U.S. Steel planned to do about it. The fourth quarter, he replied, determines if the company continues to rely on triggers or instead files dumping charges against foreign goods.

The industry expects that the latter part of 1979 could present some problems, especially if the country slips into recession. Long before, however, steel is likely to act.

The country must decide, Roderick concluded, "if it is going to have a viable steel industry or become hostage to foreign sources of supplies." That was his holiday message.

To paraphrase, those imports aren't dumped by Santa Claus.

Strength For Today

WEARING THE CROSS

The wearing of crosses appears to be becoming popular today. Sometimes this practice is criticized on the ground that a sacred symbol is demeaned by making it a mere element of personal decoration.

But the cross is not necessarily demeaned as long as we understand fully what it means. In a general sense the cross assures us that sacrifice is the radiant pathway to peace and eternal life.

The greatest teaching of the cross is something we can only partly understand.

God not only commands men to live lives of sacrifice — He sets the example Himself. Through His son, who is more a part of Him than any earthly son can be part of a parent, God Himself suffered for the sins of mankind.

And just as suffering love always has a redeeming effect, so in a way beyond our comprehension, the shed blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from sin and restores us to that righteousness for which God originally created us.

Elisha Douglass

But British intelligence has suffered no loss of confidence such as the CIA endured. Indeed, CIA operatives look to MI-6 with long eyes and consider it perhaps the best single intelligence service in Europe. There is similar confidence in MI-5, the British counterpart to the FBI which handles counter-espionage and domestic security. Although the principal backing for applying a U.S. Style Freedom of Information Act to British intelligence comes from the powerful left wing of the ruling Labor party, it also has supporters inside the Conservative party. Prime Minister James Callaghan, a hard-headed political pragmatist, is cool to the idea. Intelligence insiders here hope Callaghan will stop it.

Reagan Expands

Ronald Reagan is about to tap a top aide of conservative Republican Sen.

Jesse Helms for a high-level post in Reagan's unannounced 1980 presidential campaign.

At a quiet breakfast meeting between Reagan aide Michael Deaver and Helms aide John Carbaugh at the Madison Hotel here Nov. 30, no final decision was reached about Carbaugh joining Reagan's presidential campaign staff. But the strong possibility was left open that he would be hired as an across-the-board, top-level troubleshooter.

What particularly raised eyebrows of politicians was the implicit message of the Deaver-Carbaugh meeting that Helms definitely would not become a presidential candidate himself, as some conservative Republicans have pressed him to do. Otherwise, Carbaugh, a cerebral Helms adviser on every aspect of his Senate career, would not consider a job offer from Reagan.

Softening The Senate

Although the dissident movement has gone partially underground as a result of hard-line Soviet treatment of Anatoly Shcharansky and other dissidents, Moscow's new open-door policy for Soviet Jews could set a new emigration record next month.

The apparent contradiction is based on Soviet efforts to soften Senate opposition to a new strategic arms limitation (SALT) treaty. Stamping out the dissident movement served notice that the American human rights campaign is unacceptable interference in Soviet internal affairs; letting Soviet Jews emigrate is serving notice that Moscow wants a new SALT treaty.

The highest exodus on record came in 1973—before passage of the 1974 Jackson-Vanik amendment linking U.S. trade concessions to Jewish emigration rates far higher than ever permitted. Nearly 35,000 Jews emigrated in 1973, and the monthly rate hit 4,200. This year, after four years of decline, about 30,000 Jews will get their costly exit permits—but if a new SALT treaty fails to materialize, or the Senate fails to approve it, analysts say the rate will plummet overnight.

permanently and totally disabled when they reach the age of 65.

Such veterans may have served only one day in wartime and only 90 days in service totally. So long as they meet eligibility standards based upon "countable" income, they need only to stand in line for their checks.

The bill that finally was approved in the closing days of the 95th Congress was a compromise between a very costly House version and a somewhat less costly Senate version. In either version, the bill is a budget buster—and its true costs will not become apparent until next year.

The Congressional Budget Office estimated the net costs of the House bill over the next five years at about $8.7 billion. The final version may cost 10 or 15 percent less. But whatever they turn out to be, the higher costs resulting from this pension bill are only part of the story.

The effect of the new act will be to provide higher benefits to veterans who suffered no combat or service-connected disability than now are paid to veterans who truly were permanently disabled in the service of their country. Traditionally the service-connected disability has carried a higher pension, as of course it should.

It will be politically impossible for Congress not to restore the differential next year. When this has been done, by one authoritative estimate, the effect will be to raise total pension costs over the next five years by $30 billion. And once the new rates are entrenched in the budget, indexed to increase with the rate of inflation, the costs will be calculated among the "uncontrollable costs" of the government.

To repeat: Of course the nation must fairly compensate those whose lives are disrupted by military service, and of course promises must be kept. But at some point the millions of veterans must be told that enough is enough.

Agriculture Dept. Denies Access To Export Data

ON THE FARM FRONT
(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By SONJA HILLGREN
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former aide to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is involved in a skirmish with the Agriculture Department over access to documents grain firms use to report export sales.

Richard Gilmore, who is writing a book about international grain trade, asked to see the confidential documents last May under a Freedom of Information Act request.

Gilmore also wants to see internal Agriculture Department documents so that he can see how the in-

Tells Of Cannibalism

PESCADORE ISLAND, Taiwan (AP) — Some of the boat people fleeing Communist Vietnam ate dead bodies to stay alive, one of the survivors says.

"Some of us, because of overstarvation and survival, ate the dead bodies of our friends," Vuong Vinh Cuong, also known by his ethnic Chinese name Wang Yung-ken, said Monday.

"However, most of us didn't dare to eat them, despite extreme hunger and thirst. It was inhumane. But some of us had to do it, or else they would die as well."

The survivor said the friends had offered their bodies for food before they died.

Cuong, a 31-year-old former South Vietnamese army private, said he fled Vietnam with 10 relatives but only four survived — his wife, sister-in-law, cousin and himself.

He said his four children — three girls and a boy — were among the dead.

Cuong and 118 other refugees fled Vietnam Oct. 10 on an 18-ton fishing boat. The boat sank in the South China Sea. 59 refugees drowned and 60 made it to a nearby deserted coral island.

The survivors remained on the island more than 40 days with little food or water then were picked up by a Taiwanese fishing boat, but 26 died of starvation and disease enroute to Taiwan.

The 34 who survived the voyage arrived at the southern port of Kaohsiung a week ago and were temporarily settled on this island more than 160 miles southwest of Taipei.

Eastern Airlines Bids For Acquiring National

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines, a carrier that flirted with bankruptcy two years ago, is the latest suitor for the hand of National Airlines. Its price for the bride: $425 million.

"We have the process in motion and we're confident we can come up with the money," Eastern Chairman Frank Borman said Monday in a dramatic move that pits Eastern against two other carriers that want to buy National.

Pan American World Airways owns about 22 percent of National's outstanding stock and has agreed with National's management to pay $41 a share for the rest.

Eastern, National's prime competitor on the profitable routes between the Northeast and Florida, offered $50 a share. Borman said much of the money would be borrowed.

Texas International Airlines also wants to acquire National. The Houston-based regional airline owns about 24 percent of National's stock but hasn't made a firm offer for the balance.

National Chairman L.B. Maytag acknowledged receipt of Eastern's offer, but said no comment would be made until the proposal is "fully studied and considered."

But in New Orleans, National director Alton Ochsner said the board would be receptive to Eastern's offer. "I think the whole thing is great," he said.

If Eastern buys National, Borman said the airline would become the second-largest U.S. carrier, with United Airlines remaining No. 1.

Pan Am Chairman William Seawell said the Eastern proposal "is obviously anti-competitive."

There was no immediate comment from Texas International.

Looking to expand Eastern's service, Borman said his proposal "will promote competition, especially across the Atlantic."

Any merger is subject to approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Carter. Pan Am and Texas International already have begun the process of winning federal approval.

'No Longer' A Baptist School

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest University is no longer a Baptist institution, according to the president of the Baptist State Convention. Now that the university trustees have voted to loosen ties with the convention, the university is a private institution that wants to work closely with the Baptists, the Rev. C. Mark Corts said.

And Corts said he will recommend that the convention withhold its money from the university because of last week's actions by the board of trustees who separated themselves from the convention.

That would mean a loss of almost $2 million from the university's $58 million budget for 1979 — $936,000 of convention money and a matching amount from the R.J. Reynolds Foundation available only if the university remains an agency of the convention.

"Our obligation to them has been terminated by their action," Corts said. He will make the recommendation for the fund cutback when a convention study committee meets to consider the university's action.

Currently the 36 trustees for the university must all be North Carolina Baptists who are selected by the convention. The university had asked to select its own trustees, and the convention ordered a study of the matter to be given to the convention by late next year.

But the trustees moved to change the university's status before the committee's findings in order to encourage the convention to act, according to James W. Mason, trustees' chairman.

However, Mason said that since the trustees did not establish criterion for selecting the trustees, there was still room for compromise.

"We want to continue to be a Baptist university," he said. "But we felt that the university could be strengthened by having trustees that will be elected or eligible for election and not necessarily be Baptists."

Relations between the two institutions became strained after a controversy over whether the school should accept $85,000 from a National Science Foundation grant to build a greenhouse.

formation submitted by the grain firms is processed for public distribution.

He did not seek to copy the materials. He also said he would agree to view the documents if the names of the grain firms were removed.

Both his original request and a July appeal were denied by the Agriculture Department. On Friday, a law firm decided to give him free legal help for a court appeal of the denial.

Officials within the department said the decision to deny the request was not unanimous.

Gilmore's request came at a time when officials face political pressure to tighten the existing agricultural export sales reporting system, which was put into effect after the Russian grain purchases of 1972 and 1974.

Reps. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, and Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, have led efforts in Congress to revamp the law. They held back until next year after the administration promised to review the current system.

A committee appointed by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is reviewing the current law, which provides that grain sales in excess of 100,000 metric tons be made public within 24 hours after the Agriculture Department is informed of them. Grain prices and identities of firms are not reported.

On one side of the issue is the baking industry, which seeks more complete information on sales so that bakers can determine demand for and price of wheat, their major raw material.

On the other side, grain producers and export firms say Americans would lose sales to foreign competition if more information were reported to the public.

Some committee members said the panel was not likely to recommend any major changes and that any changes would emerge from Congress.

Robert Wager of the American Bakers Association said it is possible that portions of a Grassley amendment defeated in the House Agriculture Committee might win support of the committee.

He said the committee might demand reports to the government of sales by foreign subsidiaries or affiliates of American export firms and reports of oral transactions prior to written confirmations.

Wager said the committee has been provided all the documents members have sought, but he did not seek the raw data Gilmore wants.

The major issue surrounding Gilmore's request is confidentiality of the export reports made by private firms. The Agriculture Department said law explicitly provides that only compilations of figures can be made public.

Gilmore's lawyer, Lester Hyman, replied that confidentiality no longer applies after an export shipment has taken place. Gilmore said he did not want to see recent reports from the last three months.

Hyman said that during congressional consideration of the current law, a high Agriculture Department official said information would be public after shipments took place. The official said the secrecy was necessary because of competition among export firms.

The department's reply was that there is no time limit on the confidentiality and deletion of the exporter's identity would not prevent Gilmore from figuring out which grain companies sold which shipments.

Gilmore said the names of the firms are not the issue. What is the issue, he said, is that a handful of companies could have enough of a stranglehold on the market to justify holding back information.

Gilmore said he is interested in how closely the companies adhere to the reporting law and which nations are traditional markets of certain companies.

He also said competition no longer becomes an issue after grain is sold.

"Then the trade knows. Everybody knows, except U.S. citizens, who has sold what to China," he said.

Gilmore worked for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee from 1973 through 1976. During that time the committee investigated the Russian grain deals.

His interest in the grain trade led him to begin writing a book, which he hopes will be completed by spring and published in the fall. He now serves as a visiting fellow of the Washington-based Overseas Development Council.

In preparation for his book, he also sought information from grain companies on their export business and received little cooperation.

Museum Funding

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — State Rep. Kenneth Spaulding, D-Durham, says he will ask the General Assembly for supplemental funds for the North Carolina Museum of Life and Science.

Spaulding, in a statement released Monday, also urged Durham city and county governments to "continue to give the museum the support it so desperately needs."

"With this in mind, I plan to actively seek from the N.C. General Assembly appropriate and needed supplemental funds for the continuation in Durham of the N.C. Museum of Life and Science."

Dick Wescott, director of the museum, announced several months ago that the museum was in financial trouble. Since that time, he has submitted his resignation, effective Feb. 28, 1979, citing a lack of support from local governments.

In his statement, Spaulding called the museum "one of Durham's strong points" and said the museum was part of the city's presentation to the site committee for the Governor's School of Science and Math.

"Most cities and counties would welcome the location and building of a museum such as ours. I would hate to see the citizens of Durham lose what we already have," Spaulding said.

High Drama In Future Rulings

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anticipation, speculation and legal posturing that preceded the Supreme Court's dramatic "Bakke" ruling last June stand in the wings once more.

Exit Allan Bakke. Enter Brian Weber.

Weber will play a central role as the nation's highest court considers whether employers with no proven history of racial bias illegally discriminate against whites when giving preferences to minority workers.

That consideration, granted by the court Monday, could affect hundreds of voluntary affirmative action programs touching millions of American workers.

Weber, who is white, works for Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Co. at its Gramercy, La., plant.

In 1974, he sued Kaiser after being denied participation in an on-the-job training program established to increase the number of blacks holding higher-paying craft jobs at the plant.

Weber charged in his suit that he was a victim of "reverse discrimination," and two lower federal courts ruled that Kaiser's program was illegal. The court also took action on these issues:

CRIMINAL LAW

—Said it will decide whether police may question suspects, and then use their statements as evidence, when the suspects do not specifically relinquish their rights to remain silent or obtain a lawyer's help.

—Upheld by a 4-4 tie vote a North Carolina court's ruling that suspects' statements ruled inadmissible as trial evidence may not be used to justify a police search warrant.

—Agreed to judge the constitutionality of a New York law which permits police to enter a private home without a warrant to make an arrest.

—Upheld a New Jersey law that threatens stiffer sentences for murder suspects who choose to plead innocent and stand trial rather than plead guilty.

WELFARE

—Agreed to decide whether the government harbors impermissible sex bias by giving aid to families in which breadwinner fathers, but not breadwinner mothers, are out of work.

—Ruled that the government may suspend Supplemental Security Income payments to people who travel outside the United States for more than 30 consecutive days.

OFFICIAL MISCONDUCT

—Agreed to hear a government appeal and thus raised the possibility that former Newark, N.J., mayor Hugh Addonizio may have to return to prison to finish serving a 10-year sentence for extortion.

—Agreed to decide whether prosecutors may bring former congressman Henry Helstoski of New Jersey to trial for alleged bribery — and if so, what evidence they may introduce.

Johnson Trial Nearing Close

RALEIGH, N.C. (A) — Final arguments were scheduled to be presented today in the murder trial of Betty Lou Barefoot Johnson, who is accused of shooting her husband, prominent pediatrician Dr. Archie Johnson, to death in July.

Judge Edwin S. Preston Jr. recessed the trial after less than two hours of testimony Monday. He said after the recess that he probably would instruct the jury on the law late today. The jury may begin deliberations immediately afterward, if time permits, he said.

Mrs. Johnson's son, 13-year-old Ashley, was called to the stand by the prosecution and testified Monday that he was confused and angry when he told police that his mother stopped his father from leaving their home and then shot him to death.

The prosecution pointed out Ashley's apparent contradiction in statements made to police only hours after the shooting and to the jury. He told the jury his father was attacking his mother when the slaying occurred.

Mrs. Johnson, a Republican National Committee member, has pleaded innocent to the first-degree murder charges. Her attorneys have built a case on the argument that she acted in self defense. She has testified she was the victim of physical and mental abuse from her husband.

Johnson was shot to death in the estranged couple's home July 10.

Dye, Lambright Trade Compliments

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Put two football coaches together who are set to oppose one another, and you might end up with an upset stomach. Too much sweetness at one time is bad for your indigestion.

Yesterday noon, over a telephone hookup, Pat Dye of the East Carolina Pirates and Maxie Lambright of the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs, got together to swap compliments, and one would assume that the two were ready to go at each other's throats—on the football field.

And one would be right. The two coaches send their teams against each other Saturday in the third annual Independence Bowl in Shreveport, La., at 2:30 p.m. (eastern time).

Dye, relaying questions to Lambright over the phone, got nothing but praises for the Pirates.

"If we're going to have a chance," Lambright said,

"we're going to keep our mistakes to a minimum, be consistent both on offense and defense, and I also think the kicking game is going to be very important to who wins."

"We haven't played a team that is as strong on defense as East Carolina," he lauded. "And East Carolina's passing scheme is better than any wishbone team we've played against."

Lambright added later that the Bulldogs have only played one other wishbone team this year. Texas-Arlington, a common opponent with the Pirates.

"But their wishbone is an entirely different wishbone from East Carolina's," he said. Dye asked Lambright about his team's tough defense, which has thrown opponents for over 700 yards in losses, a feat Dye called "unheard of."

Lambright said that the blitz, which his team uses quite well, is a gamble. "It can make a big play for you, but if they bust one, you're in trouble. It can help or hurt you."

The Bulldog coach then added that he hadn't seen a team as disciplined as East Carolina's. "You've done a terrific job," he praised Dye, "with the people you've got."

The coach said that he looked for an exciting football game, and that he hoped the people of the northern Louisiana area realized that. He added that enthusiasm for the game seemed high, since the 40-per cent allotment for Shreveport had been sold.

Asked about his own team, Lambright revealed in a surprise that he would probably start reserve quarterback Eric Barkley in place of usual starter Keith Thibodeaux. "Barkley has earned the right to start. It's not that Thibodeaux has done anything wrong, but Barkley just seems to make good things happen when he goes in."

Barkley's passing, Dye noted was a little better than Thibodeaux's. "He hit 46 per cent of his passes, as compared to 40 per cent for Thibodeaux," Dye said.

"Maxie is one of those wise old foxes," Dye chuckled after the telephone conversation ended. "They'll be ready to play and play good."

Dye anticipates that Louisiana Tech will put the ball in the air, "from 40 to 50 times."

Pirates Try To Get Back On Track Tonight

East Carolina's Pirates, after a disastrous road trip, return home tonight for their final game in Minges Coliseum before the turn of the year.

After opening with two victories, the Pirates took to the road and were slapped down on four straight occasions, by William & Mary, Tennessee, Indiana State and Stetson, the latter two games in the Hatter Classic.

The Bucs will be hosting Lynchburg tonight at 7:30 in their final game in Minges prior to a January meeting with South Carolina.

"Lynchburg had a 19-7 season last year, and are 4-2 so far this year," Coach Larry Gillman said. "Probably their most impressive win so far was a 96-92 win over Western Georgia on the road.

"They are averaging close to 90 points a game, and are a fine perimeter shooting team, although they are not as strong on the boards."

Gillman said the Pirates have to get back some of their earlier aggressiveness. "We had a couple of very bad performances in Florida. I wasn't at all happy with the way we played, but I have to stay patient. We're young and we have a chance to prove ourselves again in upcoming games. But it doesn't get any easier."

One problem also worrying Gillman is the health and status of all-America guard Oliver

Mack.

"He just doesn't seem to have any endurance," Gillman said. "We don't know if he's got mononucleosis or what. We are having him checked (Monday)."

This morning, however, there was no official report on Mack's condition.

"If he can't play, we'll probably start (Walter) Moseley at point and move (George) Maynor over to the other guard position." Other starters are expected to be center Greg Cornelius, and forwards Clarence Miles and Al Tyson.

Following tonight's game, the Pirates travel to Maryland on Saturday for their final pre-Christmas game.

Wild Year Ends For Nancy Lopez

NEW YORK (AP) — The monumental success Nancy Lopez enjoyed as a rookie on the women's golf tour last year was counterbalanced by the uncompromising demands of publicity and fame.

Though a string of five consecutive tournament titles helped win her Player of the Year honors from the Ladies Professional Golf Association, it also made her a prisoner of the spotlight.

"I lived out of a suitcase," she said Monday after accepting the award. "I took all my meals in my hotel room. I would have to go to the course two hours in advance every day to practice."

"I was so busy I didn't have a chance to think," she said of a season in which she won nine of 25 tournaments, $189,813 in purses and compiled an average of 71.76 per round — best in LPGA history.

"I couldn't get used to people making such a big deal out of me," she recalled. "I felt like two persons."

"I tried to close everything out of my mind and play as well as I could. I just let it happen."

and I think that's the secret — don't push to win; just let it happen. And it will."

She'd like it to happen 10 times this year and repeat her five-tournament winning streak. But she won't allow herself to compete in as many events.

"I don't intend to play a tournament unless I am rested and feel I can win it," said the 21-year-old Lopez. "I will refuse to put in an appearance just for appearance's sake — especially if I am very tired."

Lopez has another kind of an engagement. She plans to marry Tim Melton, a television broadcaster from Harrisburg, Pa., on Jan. 6.

"It won't be easy, but we are both determined to make it," said Lopez, who met Melton during the Hershey, Pa., tournament last year.

The Roswell, N.M. native expects the upcoming season to be "much more relaxed."

"Everything last year felt like a dream to me. I was so busy and on such an emotional high. I felt I didn't even know myself."

Western Ends Losing Skid

By The Associated Press

Top scorer Greg Dennis led the Catamounts of Western Carolina to a 65-58 victory over Presbyterian College Monday night, snapping a three-game losing streak.

Dennis scored 21 points, 15 coming in the first half when the Catamounts took a 31-21 lead to the dressing room at intermission.

But with just over seven minutes left to play and a 15-point lead, Western Carolina hit a 6½ minute scoreless snag and missed 13 attempts.

The Blue Hose took advantage of the empty Catamount stretch and pulled to within three with 40 seconds left.

Forward Raymond Person added 12 points and pulled down seven rebounds for the Catamounts.

Guard Jim Patson led the Presbyterian attack with 13 points.

The victory boosted the Catamounts to 4-3 for the season and dropped Presbyterian to 4-6.

In the only other action involving a Southern Conference team, Marshall outlasted Ohio Wesleyan in a shootout that ended with a 114-108 score and a total of 33 points for Marshall's Bunny Gibson, 19 of which came in the second half.

The Bishops' 5-9 Kirk Williamson turned in a 31-point performance and handed out 10 assists.

Wesleyan Coach Frank Shannon, who doesn't have any players over 6-5, said he was proud of the performance turned by his "little team." But he said Marshall had the edge with its offensive rebounds.

The Thundering Herd built up a 14-point lead midway through the first half, but Williamson sparked a Wesleyan rally and the Bishops pulled to within three, 56-53, when the halftime buzzer sounded.

Gibson's second half scoring drive put Marshall ahead for good.

Southern Conference teams are idle tonight. On Wednesday, VMI travels to Appalachian.

South Carolina Downs Pirates

South Carolina broke open a close game in the first minutes of the second half, outscoring East Carolina 10-2, and cruised to an 86-64 women's basketball win over the Lady Pirates in Minges Coliseum last night.

The Gamecocks, now 7-1, broke a three-game East Carolina winning streak and leveled the Lady Bucs' record at 3-3.

South Carolina center Katrina Anderson led all scorers with 22 points, followed closely by Sheila Foster with 19. Rose Thompson had 19 for ECU.

"I was pleased with the way we played in the first half," said Pirate mentor Cathy Andruzzi. "But not in the second."

They couldn't fast break on us tonight. We cut off their point and wing girls well and that shows our girls have good fundamentals."

"We went with a zone the first half because they outmanned us with their height and strength, then put on the man-to-man in the second half." The Gamecocks held a 41-33 halftime edge, but came out with the early burst after intermission.

"I didn't expect to beat East Carolina this badly," said USC and it doesn't matter which quarterback they go with."

Thibodeaux hit on 81 of 198 passes for 1,128 yards, while Barkley made good on 46 of 101 for 709 yards. Between the two, they had 18 passes picked off.

"We have to stop their quarterback; we have to stop (Scooter) Spruill, their top receiver; we have to stop (George) Yates, their tailback (and leading rusher); we can't give up the big play," Dye said.

"They have a simple running game and a sophisticated passing attack. They throw a lot of screens, drop back, roll out and play action passes."

Dye said team speed between the two was about the same. "It's be our execution against theirs."

The Pirates, who closed out their heavy work yesterday, begin tapering off for Saturday's game in drills today. Thursday, they will practice early, then fly to Shreveport that afternoon, working out on the Independence Bowl "field" Friday before the game.

The bowl appearance is the first since 1965 for the Pirates, while Tech is making its second straight Independence Bowl appearance.

Gryphons Top Rose

Rocky Mount won five of the last six weight classes to gain a 33-30 victory over Rose High School in a Division I wrestling match last night.

The defeat snapped a two-match winning streak in the league and was the first conference defeat for the Ram-pants.

The decisive match came at 167, when Alfred O'Neal took Rocky Mount's Curtis McKnight to the mat. Officials called O'Neal for "slamming" McKnight, who was unable to continue. McKnight was then awarded the match by default.

Now 2-3 overall and 2-1 in Division I competition, Rose hosts Northeastern on Thursday.

Hard To Imagine Wilt In Comeback

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Will Wilt Chamberlain make a comeback with the Chicago Bulls? That such a prospect can even be seriously considered is mind-boggling.

Consider the impact such a move might have:

Would the Baltimore Colts, searching for a backup quarterback to Bert Jones, crank up Johnny Unitas' passing arm?

Would the New York Yankees, anxious to unload some of George M. Steinbrenner's dollars on a designated hitter, pull Joe DiMaggio away from his coffee-maker?

Would the Montreal Canadiens, eager to lock up their umpteenth Stanley Cup, refuel the Rocket, Maurice Richard?

And if Chamberlain did make a comeback, would the Boston Celtics bring back Bill Russell? He'd be perfect as a backup player-coach for Dave Cowens.

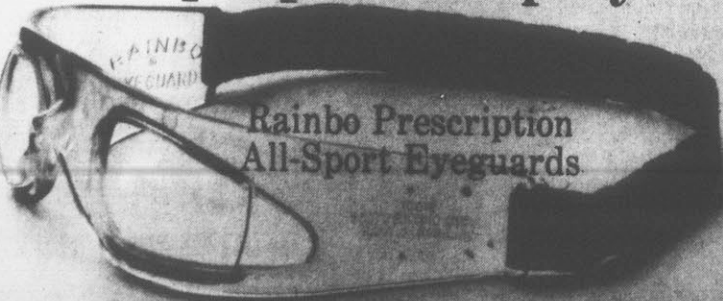

Actually, it's hard to imagine that the 42-year-old Chamberlain, who once scored 100 points in a game and averaged 50.4 points per game for the 1962

National Basketball Association season, would want to risk tarnishing his reputation with a comeback. But stranger things have happened, and if the money is right and Chamberlain needs a few extra bucks, who knows?

"If anybody in the world can do it, Wilt's the one," said Chicago Coach Larry Costello. "He's a great athlete and he's apparently in good condition. We've been looking since training camp for a backup center who could give us 10 or 12 minutes a game; maybe Wilt is the man."

Martin Girls Seek Improved Offense

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
First-year coach Myra Moore said her Martin Academy girls' basketball team has started slowly, but should begin showing improvement before too long.

"We're coming along slowly," Moore said. "We've got a right good defense, and we're working on our offense. That's been the major problem so far. But I have a feeling that we'll get it all together before too long."

Defense is the strength of the Lady Pioneer team right now, according to Moore. In addition, the team members play well together. Gloria Wynn (5-6) and Jamie Ayers (5-1) start at the two guard spots for Martin Academy. Wynn is not a big scorer at this point, her coach said, but she is a key on defense. Ayers, the team's playmaker, is real quick and an excellent dribbler.

A number of girls share time at the team's three frontcourt positions. Karen Bailey (5-8) is a strong rebounder and works well at high post. Marsha Griffin (5-7) is a good scorer, although she hasn't been scoring well lately. Two others, 5-7 Beth Perry and 5-7 Amy Perry also work at the forward and center spots, while Karen Perry (5-6) also plays in the frontcourt, but is out right now with a broken finger. She is expected back in about three weeks.

The Lady Pioneers participate in the Tar Heel Independent Conference. Moore said the league should be strong this season for both boys' and girls' teams.

"I don't know where we'll come in. It will depend on how fast we can get our offense together." The team will be working hard on offense in the weeks to come.

Duke, 5-0, collected 56 of a possible 60 first-place votes and amassed 1,196 points in nationwide voting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters. That gave the Blue Devils a 112-point lead over second-ranked Notre Dame.

The 4-0 Fighting Irish upended UCLA 81-78 at Pauley Pavilion last week, beating the Bruins for the third time in 10 years. UCLA has lost just four other games at its home arena over the past decade.

The triumph earned Notre Dame three first-place votes and 1,084 points.

Champs Look Like Chumps As Cincinnati Rolls Up 20-19 Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The road to the Super Bowl gets bumpier for the Los Angeles Rams, who hardly resembled champions in losing 20-19 Monday night to a Cincinnati club already looking forward to the 1979 season.

"We sure did not play like a championship team," commented defensive end Jack Youngblood. "We are tired, beat up and everybody is hurting. We just made too many mistakes."

At one point, thanks to a penalty, the Rams had six plays inside the Bengals' 4-yard line and had to settle for a field goal. That, said Bengals Coach Homer Rice, was one of two factors that brought the upset in the nationally televised contest.

The other was a pass play from Ken Anderson to Isaac Curtis on third down with 17 yards to go. Curtis caught the throw for a 19-yard gain and four plays later Chris Bahr kicked the winning 42-yard field goal.

"We really have worked on this second half of the season and we have become a good team, as good as any team going into the playoffs," commented Rice, who termed himself "a happy man."

The Rams failed to clinch the home field advantage for both rounds of the National Football League playoffs. They are sure to host the first but the second remains in doubt.

"What we did against Cincinnati makes it difficult," said Rams' Coach Ray Malavasi. "But it gives added incentive for us against Green Bay on Sunday."

If the Rams beat Green Bay and survive the first round of the playoffs, they would host the National Football Conference championship game, with the winner going to the Super Bowl. "Now we have to win against Green Bay," said quarterback Pat Haden. "We just could not get untracked."

Los Angeles takes an 11-4 record against the Packers while the Bengals won their third game of the season and second in succession.

Anderson said, "Our defense has been outstanding all season long. The offense hasn't been scoring for them. Although we're not playing for anything at this stage of the season, we have to show we have a good team to set us up for next year."

The Rams jumped off to a 130 first-quarter lead on field goals of 37 and 23 yards by Frank Corral and a 14-yard end-around for a touchdown by Terry Nelson. Then Cincinnati perked up. Anderson and Curtis hooked up on a 46-yard touchdown pass play and Pete

Johnson boomed over from two yards out to cap a 55-yard drive that took 10 plays.

With the Bengals leading 14-13, it was Corral again who put the Rams ahead with a 29-yard field goal. After the Rams were stopped at the Cincinnati 1 in the third period, the kicker collected his fourth three-pointer, this time a 17-yarder.

Then it was Bahr's turn and he hit one of 24 and the finale of 42 to bring the victory.

The Rams operated without regular halfback Lawrence McCutcheon, who is out for the year, and regular fullback John Cappelletti, who will be back on Sunday.

Evansville In First Victory

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Evansville Purple Aces took another step on the comeback trail, and when it was over, Coach Dick Walters was choked with emotion.

"I've had clubs in the junior college state finals and we won it in 1974, but when I looked at that clock with no time on it, I felt a greater sense of accomplishment," said the man entrusted with rebuilding Evansville's basketball program, which was wiped out in a plane crash nearly a year ago.

The new Evansville team defeated Murray State 59-58 Monday night for its first victory since the crash that took 29 lives, including 14 squad members and coach Bob Watson. The victory came just two days short of a year since the disaster.

"I didn't score a point or get a rebound — all the credit goes to those kids," said Walters, who rebuilt the squad with freshmen and transfer students. "They showed more character tonight than any club I ever had."

Murray State led 58-56 before Evansville's Darnell McGhee, a 6-foot-5 transfer from Wabash Valley Junior College, stole the ball and drove in for a layup with 1:12 remaining. He was fouled on the play and made the free throw for the winning margin.

What went through McGhee's mind as he stepped to the line?

"It was either overtime or we could win," he said. "I figured it was time to win."

Evansville had lost its first five starts of the year. Junior center Barry Weston scored 13 points and freshman guard Eric Harris added 12 against Murray State, which fell to 0-6.

None of the Top Twenty teams were in action Monday night.

Purdue raised its record to 62 with a 73-63 victory over Arizona State as guard Jerry Sichting scored a season-high 25 points, 22 of them in the second half. Purdue led 56-50 before breaking the game open with seven straight points, the last two on a technical foul against Arizona State Coach Ned Wulk.

Elsewhere, Brad Branson scored 16 points and freshman Billy Allen, the coach's son, added 14 points and 14 assists as Southern Methodist handed previously unbeaten Vanderbilt a 68-64 defeat. Curtis Berry scored 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead Missouri to a 67-53 victory over Cal State-Sacramento, and freshman David Little beat the buzzer with a short jumper to give Texas Tech a 69-67 overtime victory over Northeast Louisiana.

Also, Sidney Moncreif's 22 points and 13 rebounds carried Arkansas to a 90-51 romp over Southeast Missouri. Mark Young's 19 points and 21 rebounds led Fairfield past Montclair State 74-59. Richard Smith's 23 points helped Weber State beat Utah 86-61. Keith McDonald's 22 points led Utah State over Colorado 91-70, and freshman Craig Hodges' 14 points helped Long Beach State raise its record to 5-0 with a 94-91 decision over Oklahoma State.

Railroads Cite Inflation Cost

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The financially depressed railroad industry says inflation will eat up much of its newest freight rate increase and it will seek another price hike in the future.

A 7 percent increase approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday "will improve our situation in the coming four-to-five months," said Richard Briggs, chief economist for the nation's rail industry.

"By that time inflation will have eaten up most of it," Briggs, refusing to forecast more specifically when a new increase might be necessary, said railroads have suffered an 11 percent inflation rate in recent years.

"We can't survive for an extended period without a future rate increase," he said.

The ICC told the railroads they could raise the rail shipping price for thousands of products by 7 percent effective Friday.

Briggs said the impact on most consumer items would be negligible. The electric power industry has said a higher price for coal shipments could increase electric bills, with the amount varying across the country.

A spokesman for President Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability called the 7 percent increase a victory for Carter's anti-inflation program because it falls within the voluntary price guidelines.

But those same guidelines could be violated if the railroads received another increase from the ICC within the next 12 months.

The council has said the rail industry would be allowed a 6.6 percent increase under the guidelines.

The actual yield from the 7 percent allowed by the ICC would be 6.5 percent or less "because not all the railroads fully implement allowed rate increases on all traffic," the council has said.

The difference does not leave much room for an additional increase.

In awarding the 7 percent increase, the ICC ordered ceilings on the amounts that rates for some products can be increased.

In western states, the increase on wheat and barley can be no greater than 7 percent, down from a requested 9 percent. Shipment of some western coal is limited to a 5.5 percent increase, down from a requested increase of at least 7 percent.

Increases on plastics and heavy machinery were limited to 5.5 percent, down from a requested 7 percent. No increase was authorized for products that can be recycled.

The commission said the overall increase, with these limitations, would bring the railroads $1.4 billion in new annual revenue. But it said the carriers can seek additional increases on other items to bring revenue to $1.5 billion.

Negotiable Securities Strewn On Interstate

WOODBINE, Ga. (AP) — Motorists on Interstate 95 in southeast Georgia wondered why a state trooper would be in the highway's median strip gathering trash.

But what trooper Joe Gregory discovered on the highway Monday wasn't trash — it was $377,000 in negotiable securities.

"There were lot of strange comments on the CB radio about the trooper out there picking up trash on the interstate," Gregory said later. "I never had thought about it being that big a deal."

Gregory spent a couple of hours Monday morning picking up the securities after he discovered them along the interstate near the Florida border.

"I had stopped to help a disabled motorist...there were a lot of papers and things there in the median," the trooper said. "It just didn't look like trash. So I stepped across the northbound lane and picked one up."

"It happened to be 45 shares of Johnson & Johnson, and the cover plainly stated it was 4,090-something dollars," he said in a telephone interview. "I guess there were 100 or 150 of the things, spread over about 75 yards."

After picking up those papers, Gregory headed south again.

"I had gone about three-quarters of a mile and here's another stretch with similar-looking papers strewn out. So I pulled over, and here we go again," he said.

Gregory made five separate pickups in a five-mile stretch. The 2,175 shares of Johnson & Johnson were worth $227,000. Other stocks and securities he found totaled $100,000, and municipal bonds added $50,000.

Using addresses on the stocks, authorities determined that they had been stolen Friday night in Walterboro, S.C., from the car of a New Jersey couple on their way to live in Florida.

"The people who are investigating this now believe that whoever took the securities were unable to convert them into cash even though they were negotiable," state patrol spokesman Bill Wilson said. "They did not have the needed expertise, so they made a deposit along the median."

"The owners were rather happy," Wilson added.

Gregory said he didn't get excited about finding all the securities.

"I was just thinking, somebody is going to see me picking this stuff up, and the next thing you know, I'm going to have every Yankee coming down 95 stopping and picking it up and driving off with it."

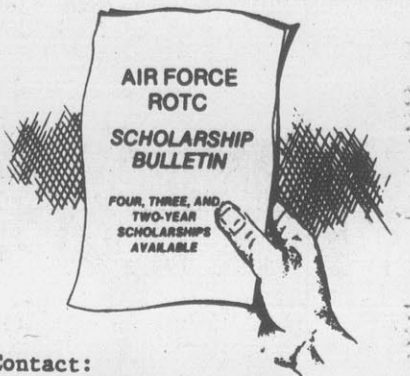

"None of them stopped, but I got a lot of stares, and when I would get back in the car, they'd still be talking about the Smokey out there in the median," he said.

"I heard some talk about Georgia being so serious about being beautiful that they were having a trooper out on the highway picking up trash."

Urges Quality Leaf Exports

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If North Carolina flue-cured tobacco growers want to be assured of selling exports, they should concentrate on quality, according to the findings of a delegation of tobacco farmers who just returned from a visit with top European cigarette companies.

The growers said they found the manufacturers are more concerned with quality than price.

The delegation was the first all-farmer group from the state to visit top European cigarette companies. John W. Sledge, president of the N.C. Farm Bureau, served as chairman of the delegation. Gov. Jim Hunt proposed the trip after he visited Europe on a trade mission last spring.

Group spokesman Walter L. Williamson, a grower from Kenly, said the companies consider U.S. flue-cured tobacco to be top quality.

North Carolina produces two-thirds of the nation's fluecured crop which had a European export value of $432 million for the fiscal year that just ended.

"The price of our tobacco was a very low-key issue with the European manufacturers that we visited," Sledge said in a meeting with Hunt.

The manufacturers had no serious objections to the U.S. tobacco quota and price support program, he said. But they were critical of some aspects of the marketing system.

"They do object to foreign material, especially suckers and sand, in the tobacco they buy from us," Sledge said.

William D. Lewis, Hunt's agriculture advisor, said marketing received the most complaints.

"Buyers object to lack of uniformity in a sheet of tobacco. Removing the black, green or red when loading the sheets at the farm would promote uniformity," Lewis said.

December 7, 1978
The Town of Bethel Board of Commissioners, Bethel Town Hall, P.O. Box 337, Bethel, N.C. 27812 919/825-6191

To All Interested Agencies, Groups and Persons:
The above named Town proposes to request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to Release Federal Funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) to be used for the following project:
Town of Bethel Community Development Block Grant Program, Housing, Demolition and Rehabilitation, Relocation, Acquisition, Pitt County, Bethel, North Carolina, $429,510.

Sellars is charged with armed robbery, aggravated kidnapping, first degree rape and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious bodily injury.

Authorities said the clerk was robbed Sunday by two men, then forced into a car. The woman was found a few hours later on N.C. 62 near Caswell County. She had been shot several times and told police she had been raped.

More Revelations In Venus Probe Awaited

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Scientists, their theories about the origin of the universe already unsettled by information from the Venus probes, expect more revelations from the mass of newly obtained data on Earth's nearest planetary neighbor.

Fire Chief...

Wilmington, Del., Fire Department.

"The salaries were higher in Wilmington," Smith said. But he returned to Greenville, because the cost of living was higher making it as financially rewarding to work in his hometown.

Smith was named Assistant Chief, serving with Assistant Chief Sumrell, when Gardner retired in 1963 and Jones became Chief.

When Jones retired in 1968, Smith took command of the Department.

Under Chief Gardner, Smith helped organize the rescue squad, and, "ran the first rescue call Greenville ever had," even before the first rescue truck was purchased by donations in 1948.

A child was trapped in a well near Black Jack, the Chief recalls, and he responded — by himself — on a station wagon.

He remembers the city's biggest fires as, "Winslow's Stables and Mercantile store on Clark Street...years ago," and "Perkins Lumber mill and North Side Lumber Co...both at the same time...all involved in fire, both of them," on opposite sides of town.

Smith remembers, too, getting people out of burning houses... "some children," who survived. In those days, he noted, firemen had no breathing equipment and no protective clothing such as fireproof boots and rain coats...that was the only thing.

He also remembers attending the first North Carolina Fire College — in 1929 in Asheville, with Chief Gardner, who was a member of the first Fire College graduating class in 1932. Smith, himself, became a Fire College graduate after he became a full-fledged member of the department.

"The Fire Department has been my life," Smith said. "I've enjoyed it...meeting so many people throughout the state. I've enjoyed my life in the fire service, but there comes a time when a man has to retire."

Smith suffered a heart attack six months ago and has been on medical leave since that time.

Through the years, Smith has seen the department grow from its first paid men — Gardner, Jones, and Sumrell — to an organization of, "70-some personnel now; from a department with a 1918 hose wagon, a 1922 model Stutz, a 1928 Mack, and a 1933 model Reo (paid for by volunteer firemen themselves), to an organization with five cars, a pick-up truck, a salvage truck, eight

"There is a rich spectrum of material still there waiting to be analyzed," said Harvard University physicist Michael McElroy, one of scores of scientists gathered at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center here.

But it may be weeks before the mass of information is examined.

First reports from the project came in Saturday when the five probes — variously shaped metal packages of data-gathering instruments — hit the surface of Venus. All the probes consist of a forward heat shield and a pressure vessel, both made of titanium, and an after-body made of aluminum.

The information, showing 100 times more of the inert gas argon-36 in Venus' atmosphere than Earth's and as much as 1,000 times more than in the atmosphere of Mars, caused scientists to speculate the planets were not created in same way, as had been previously believed.

Argon-36 cannot be created after a planet's formation, and if Venus was formed the way Earth and Mars were, it probably would have about the same amount.

That means, the scientists said, that either Venus was formed from different substances than other planets in the solar system or that the formation process itself is not what they had thought.

Current theories hold that fire trucks, and four vehicles assigned to the Department's rescue unit.

City Manager Ed Wyatt, commenting on the chief's retirement, said, "Chief Smith's record — 50 years professional and volunteer service — is truly remarkable. This sort of service will more than likely go unmatched in future generations."

Wyatt said the "city greatly appreciates his great dedication, interest and above all, devotion to the public safety of all its citizens."

Wyatt indicated that a replacement will be named, "in the very near future". Assistant Chief Jenness Allen has been serving as acting chief while Smith has been on medical leave.

The retiring chief noted that his time in the future will be devoted to working in his yard, fishing and hunting, and other hobbies. He added, however, that, "I'm interested in volunteer work...community service work."

Mayor Percy Cox noted, "Ray has done an outstanding job as our fire chief. His retirement will be a great loss to our Fire and Rescue Department."

"I wish him the best in his retirement."

Gaps In Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's proposed foreign aid budget for next year, now in the final stages of preparation, contains no money for new air bases promised to Israel or a $3.3 billion loan requested by Prime Minister Menachem Begin, administration sources say.

The sources said either or both items might eventually become part of the fiscal 1980 budget, either through a supplemental request by President Carter or congressional insertion.

But as of now, they said Monday, the administration is planning to ask Congress for about $1.8 billion in military and economic assistance, the same amount Israel received in the budget for the 1979 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1.

The same goes for Egypt, which received $750 million in aid in the 1979 budget. There is no new money for any of the ambitious development programs the Egyptians have been talking about, the sources said.

One reason for the absence of the new funds for Israel is that the Begin government has not submitted detailed requests, they said.

Revival Series Begins Tonight

AYDEN — Revival will begin tonight at the Ayden Pentecostal Center and will be conducted by the Rev. William Gullford.

Services will start at 7:30 and the public is invited to attend. The Rev. D. Bernard, pastor, will conduct the Saturday night service at 7:30.

In commenting on Allen's election as president, City Manager Ed Wyatt said, "Mayo's work performance with the city has been outstanding, and he has approached his work with great enthusiasm and an ability for good public relations."

Wyatt added, "His recognition as president of this important statewide organization is truly unusual since he has only been in public works management for the last six years."
