County Asks For School Merger Plans

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners, meeting late yesterday afternoon, made plans to move the Department of Social Services to a new temporary location, and agreed to ask the chairmen of the County and City Boards of Education and the superintendents to meet with them to report on plans to merge the two school systems.

Commissioners also gave final approval for the issuing of $3 million in bonds to finance facilities for Ajax Magnethermic Corp. — an industry locating in Winterville — and received an application for a Cable television franchise from Greenville Cable TV to serve areas of the county outside municipal limits.

The board approved a lease agreement with former Greenville mayor S. Eugene West for about 10,000 square feet of office space on Plaza Drive, near the Social Security Administration office, to house the Department of Social Services until renovation of the old hospital building is completed. Cost of leasing the temporary site — $2,700 per month — will have State and Federal participation.

County Manager Reginald Gray said the move is in the best interest of employees working in the building and county residents visiting the facility for services.

Gray noted that architects, who recently inspected the Social Services' building on Johnston Street, urged the move as soon as possible because in their opinion, "the building is unsafe for occupancy."

Following recommendations that unsafe areas be shored up, Gray emphasized that, "precautions have been taken until the department can get out." He said the department will, "shut down after Christmas," until the move to the Plaza Drive location can be made.

Commissioners agreed to ask representatives from the two school systems to meet with the board and report on plans for a merger of the two units and plans for a bond issue, after it was pointed out that neither school system has reported any plans to Commissioners.

The Board of Commissioners in September 1977, adopted a resolution requesting the two boards of education to, "study, plan, and implement a plan of merger to merge the school districts...into a single school district and administrative unit for all Pitt County Schools."

Utilities Approve Information Drive On Bond Program

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night approved the development of a public information campaign concerning the proposed $24 million electric, sewer and water bond program which will be presented to the City Council Thursday night.

Approval of the information program, which would be handled by Smith-Wilson Associates of High Point for the sum of $3,250, was granted subject to the council's action Thursday.

Ron Smith, representing Smith-Wilson, said the thrust of the campaign is to provide public information and not an "attempt to sell" the bond proposal to the public.

Commissioner Ed Wyatt concurred that the "emphasis of the program should be on public information and not superficial public relations," or advertising.

If the City Council adopts the bond proposal, a public hearing is tentatively set for February 8, with the referendum vote scheduled for April 3.

In other action, GUC reviewed a letter from the local Chamber of Commerce with respect to the board's participation in the financing of Operation Overcharge in the amount of $1,000.

According to the letter, Operation Overcharge, which is based in Washington, delivered more than 25,000 signed petitions to Governor Hunt calling on him, the state utilities commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to "roll back wholesale and retail increases recently granted to VEPCO."

Other objectives of Operation Overcharge is to "get VEPCO in line" with other utilities companies or "get VEPCO out of northeastern North Carolina and let someone else supply us with our electric power."

Susan Nobles, representing the Chamber of Commerce, said she spoke with Governor Hunt recently and "he assured us he would be behind us in January all the way to do something about VEPCO."

Nevertheless, GUC tabled the request because, as Director Horne explained, the commission's efforts to reduce electric rates are being handled through ElectriCities, which is currently fighting a rate case before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and is intervening in the N.C. Utilities Commission hearing on VEPCO rates.

"We're fighting both cases now," Horne said. "And I question the need of going into any other opposition to fight VEPCO's high costs. I don't disagree with the principles but we're doing it through ElectriCitites."

Commissioner Wyatt said "There are so many positive things ElectriCities and the agency here are doing that need to be shared with Operation Overcharge." Thus, he suggested that Horne be authorized to meet with ElectriCitites officials from Washington, Elizabeth City and Tarboro to consider including representatives of Operation Overcharge in a discussion of "each point of view." Authorization was approved.

The commission also approved a personnel policy revision to allow for overtime compensation for supervisors under special conditions.

The old policy states that supervisory personnel will normally receive compensatory time off for hours worked in excess of 40 hours per week under special circumstances.

The new policy, which was adopted on a one year trial basis from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 1979, reads that compensatory time off will be taken within 30 days following the monthly overtime report.

However, "if compensory time off would adversely affect the Department's work schedule, the Department Head will recommend to the Director that the supervisor be paid for all or part of the overtime hours worked. All overtime hours approved by the Director to be paid to supervisory personnel will

Fire Chief Named

Jenness S. Allen, acting Fire Chief for the past six months, has been appointed Chief of the Greenville Fire Department, effective January 1, City Manager Ed Wyatt announced this morning.

JENNESS S. ALLEN

Allen was employed by the Fire Department in April 1952, and was named Assistant Fire Chief in August 1968. He served as Acting Fire Chief for four months in 1976, and has been acting chief of the Department since June.

The new chief has had extensive training in fire technology and has attended schools on fire administration and command, riot control, sprinklers, first aid, pumpers, flammable liquids, compressed gas, arson detection, disaster preparedness, smoke detectors, and firearms. He has taught courses on fire technology at the North Carolina Fire College and at Pitt Technical Institute.

Allen and his wife, the former Edna Hodges, reside on Pinewood Drive. He has two children, Cindy Carole Allen and Randy Shelton Allen.

Commenting on Allen's promotion, Wyatt said, "Chief Allen has performed his work in an exceptional manner, having served twice before as acting chief. He has demonstrated his leadership abilities and his professionalism by his continuous career development."

Allen will replace Chief Ray Smith, who will retire December 31, after serving as Chief of the department for the past 10 years.

Some Wage, Price Standards Lowered

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration today modified some of its wage and price standards, including easing limits on fringe benefits, after hearing complaints that parts of the anti-inflation plan are unfair.

The changes were the finishing touches on a major program announced seven weeks ago intended to bring inflation from the current 9½ percent a year down to 6 percent or lower. Administration officials say the program may last for several years.

In today's actions, the administration retained the 7 percent limit on increases in fringe benefits and wages that were announced by President Carter Oct. 24. However, it exempted most pension increases and some health costs from the 7 percent limit.

Limits on price increases were unchanged, but the administration took steps to close what it considered loopholes allowing many companies to exceed the standard.

The administration also asked doctors, dentists and other professionals to limit their price increases to 6.5 percent under the new program. Many professionals did not have the needed records to comply with the regular price standards.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability acted after hearing complaints from both business and labor that these sections should be changed.

—Fringe Benefits: The 7 percent limit now applies to fringe benefits as well as wages, and critics have complained that expected rate increases in health insurance plans would cut into the wage-increase potential.

Today, the administration decided to count only the first 7 percent of health care cost increases against the standards if there is no increase in benefits. There will be no cost increase in pension benefits counted against the standard if there are no added benefits to the employe.

—Profit Margins: The guidelines had said a business must hold price increases to 0.5 percentage points below its average increases in 1976 and 1977. However, a company can raise prices more if it proves hardship or shows it hasn't increased profits.

The administration tightened the profits rule, limiting price increases to about 6.5 percent above the average profits in the best two of the last three years.

Barry Bosworth, director of the council, told reporters Tuesday the administration expects to see results from the voluntary program by spring, and if the results are favorable the program will continue for some time.

Meanwhile today, Carter's chief inflation fighter, Alfred E. Kahn, told a group of state legislators that the government will do its part with proposed cuts in federal spending in 1980 "that is going to hurt very, very hard."

Amtrak Future Bleak

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's top rail passenger officials said today that Congress likely would nationalize Amtrak unless it can improve its operations.

Amtrak president Alan S. Boyd and Donald P. Jacobs, chairman of the Amtrak board of directors, said in a statement that if the rail passenger service's bleak economic situation persists without improvement, "there is no reason to believe that Amtrak will survive for much longer in its present form."

Boyd and Jacobs spoke at a news conference where they outlined the future mission of the nation's troubled semi-public rail passenger agency. They said that if rail service were nationalized, "there is no reason to believe that Amtrak will run better under the weight of another federal bureaucracy."

The two officials proposed that Amtrak establish a new relationship with Congress and the executive branch, with a general understanding that Amtrak is a public service rather than a for-profit enterprise.

Self-Help Book Said Worthless

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A self-help legal manual written by a Missouri Penitentiary inmate isn't worth much, says Warden Donald Wyrick.

The booklet, which is being sold outside the prison by a social service agency, is called "Defending Yourself: How to Assist Your Attorney in a Criminal Prosecution."

Wyrick calls it "worthless junk."

The warden says he can't understand why anyone would pay $1.25 for the booklet. Its author, he notes, "is in here and can't even get himself out."

POISON BOOTLEG

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Poison bootleg liquor killed at least 172 persons in the Dhanbad coal belt in eastern India, the United News of India said. Another 400 were being treated after drinking the alcohol four days ago, UNI said.

Bid-Opening

Construction bids for the East Carolina University medical school building will be opened at 3 p.m. today at the Willis Building at the intersection of First and Reade Streets.

The medical school facility will be constructed on a site just north of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

INDEPENDENCE BOWL TICKETS

I'd like to support ECU at the bowl game, but can't in person. Has an organization considered acting as a go-between to receive money and tickets to be carried by a team representative to the New Orleans Childrens Bureau so that children and house parents can attend the game and convey to our team special cheers?

Hotline contacted Brenda Edwards, the athletic ticket manager at East Carolina, who said that such a plan is in the works. She said her office has been in contact with Evergreen House, a Presbyterian home for children, and the Boys Home in Shreveport. She plans to take all such tickets to Shreveport Friday for distribution before Saturday's game.

The ticket office currently has around 50 tickets for children in Louisiana. Anyone wishing to participate in this program should contact Mrs. Edwards at the ticket office, 757-6589, by Thursday afternoon. Tickets for the game are $7 each.

Federal Grand Jury Charges Wilson Sheriff Took Bribes

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wilson County Sheriff W. Robin Pridgen was charged by a federal grand jury Tuesday with accepting monthly bribes ranging from $100 to $700 for more than 10 years from operators of gambling and prostitution houses near Wilson.

The jury in Raleigh indicted Pridgen; his chief deputy, Tony M. Owens, and two operators of a truck stop on various charges stemming from a 18-month investigation of gambling and prostitution operations.

The jury said Pridgen and Owens, 36, accepted sexual favors from prostitutes who worked at three brothels along U.S. 301 near Wilson. Pridgen was charged with obstruction of justice and violation of the federal anti-racketerring law, as well as with filing false income tax returns for the calendar years of 1972 through 1977.

If convicted, he could face 20 years in jail and a $25,000 fine on the racketeering charges, five years and a fine of $20,000 on the obstruction of justice allegations and three years and a $5,000 fine on the income tax charges.

Owens faces a $10,000 fine and five years in jail if convicted of a charge of lying to the grand jury. He has also been charged with obstruction of justice.

William Moore, 52, who operated The Clubhouse, an illegal gambling house, and Rudolph Baker, 44, who operated Bel Air Truck Stop, a house of prostitution, were also indicted.

Moore was charged with two counts of lying to the jury and Baker was charged with racketeering.

Pridgen was the 10th person to be indicted as a result of an investigation by agents of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and the FBI.

The sheriff could not be reached for comment, but following news reports in April of the FBI-IRS investigation, he denied taking payoffs or knowing about anyone in the department who had taken them.

In November, Pridgen was re-elected to a four-year term as sheriff.

Jewelry Is Santa's Bag, Says Spokesman

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

All the sparkle indoors at Christmas isn't decorations on the tree.

About two-thirds of the jewelry bought annually in the United States is purchased during the last two months of the year, says Sy Lipton.

Much if not most of it is for Christmas giving.

Lipton said in an interview the second most popular period for retail sale of jewelry is May and June, for graduation, wedding, wedding anniversary, Mother's Day and Father's Day gifts.

The interview took place in a New York City showroom whose location is a well-kept secret, except to store buyers. The retail value of its contents is estimated at several million dollars, said Lipton, its executive director.

The jewelry displays are from about 400 designers and manufacturers in the U.S. and abroad. They include expensive costume jewelry as well as the real thing, and antiques as well as new pieces.

The exhibit allows store buyers to do all their shopping under one roof instead of going from showroom to showroom in areas such as New York City's diamond district in Manhattan's West 40s.

He said disco jewelry is one hot new trend — rings, pendants and the like set with diamonds that move in their settings without falling out. Lipton said they are held in place with either magnets or invisible wires. They are called disco jewelry because the stones follow the wearer's body movement and reflect the flashing lights in disco clubs.

Lipton said the originator is Beverly Hills designer Angel Castelo, who has a patent pending on his work.

The ready-to-wear look is another strong trend, Lipton said. "Within the past two

NUTS

Nuts contribute rich flavor and crunchy texture to many kinds of foods. Nuts are not only tasty — but nutritious as well. Familiar dishes take on new interest when nuts are added.

Nuts are filling because of their fat content, and may prevent between-meal hunger pangs that encourage nibbling.

Most common nuts contain about 10 to 25 percent protein and can be an added source of protein in meals. Peanuts are highest in protein with about 25 percent. Coconuts and chestnuts contain very little protein.

Kinds Available

Many of the nuts on the market — such as almonds, pecans, filberts, chestnuts, English walnuts, and black walnuts — are grown in this country.

Peanuts are not nuts as widely believed; they belong to the pea and bean family — the legumes. They are included here because they are used as nuts in family meals and snacks. Peanuts grow in abundance in the United States.

Form To Buy

Buy the most convenient or economical form of nutmeats for your purpose.

Whole nut kernals make attractive snacks and garnishes. Broken pieces, which are often less expensive and take less preparation, may be used in any food where appearance of the nut is not important. Slivered or sliced nuts save time and work in preparing garnishes and other foods.

Shredded or thread-type coconut makes an attractive garnish for salads and desserts. Flaked coconut is usually preferred for pies and cakes because it is easier to cut and serve. Moist or very moist coconut may be desirable to use in foods that are somewhat dry.

Storing Nuts

To maintain best eating quality, most nuts need protection from oxygen in the air and from high temperatures that may cause the fat in the nuts to become rancid.

Nuts in the shell retain high quality longer than shelled nuts. Whole nuts become rancid less quickly than nuts in pieces. Unroasted nuts keep better than roasted ones.

Nuts in the shell keep well in a nut bowl at room temperature for a short period of time. For prolonged storage, keep them in a cool, dry place. Avoid storing nuts in a damp place.

Shelled nuts will keep fresh for several months stored in tightly closed containers in the refrigerator. Shelled nuts in unopened cans keep well in a cool, dry place but will maintain good quality longer in the refrigerator or freezer.

Shelled or unshelled nuts can be frozen in tightly closed freezer containers at 0°F. or lower.

Peanut butter will keep its quality longer in the refrigerator than at room temperature.

Shelling Nuts

Everyone has a favorite way of cracking nuts. Some prefer using a nutcracker, and others a hammer on a hard surface.

Hard shells are easier to crack and nutmeats break less often if nuts are first soaked in warm water several hours or overnight. Spread nutmeats and let them stand a few hours to dry before storing.

Removing Skins

Removing thick skins from some shelled nuts gives them a delicate flavor and imporves appearance. This may be done by placing nuts in boiling water (called blanching) or by roasting.

SETTING PRETTY—A single red rose—combined with sprigs of holly and accented with a simple Christmas ornament at each place setting will enhance the beauty of your holiday table and provide a take-home remembrance for guests.

Decorating Can Make Christmas A Rosy One

CHICAGO (AP) — Combining red roses and green plants offers a different way to decorate the house in traditional holiday colors, the Rose Information Bureau suggests.

The legend of the "Christmas Rose," which attributes its origin to the day Christ was born, makes this symbol of celebration and love especially appropriate to the season, the bureau points out.

For a lovely and romantic holiday flower arrangement, display the red roses in a favorite vase with an assortment of evergreen boughs. You might want to spray the boughs with a light touch of artificial snow before adding them to the roses.

Or make a creative coffeetable arrangement by floating red roses in brandy snifters or wine glasses of assorted sizes. Place sprigs of deep green holly and a few tree ornaments around the stems of the goblets and intersperse with floating oil and water candles.

To enhance the effect, reflect the warmth of your arrangement by placing it on glassmirrored squares from your local hardware store.

You can also "spruce" up a plain greenery wreath by placing tiny red rosebuds around the circle. To keep the roses fresh, put them in water-filled florist tubes before inserting them into the wreath. The inexpensive tubes, which can be bought at most florist shops, should be refilled daily with just barely warm water.

Hung over a mantle or on an entryway, this rosy wreath will provide days of season's greetings and enjoyment.

There's almost no limit to the beautiful Christmas decorations you can create with red roses, the bureau notes. Add them to your tree ornaments. Make a garland with holly and roses for the fireplace or a doorway. Or insert roses in the bows of pretty, gift-wrapped packages.

If you live in an apartment and space is too limited for a tree, you can create a minitree by tying a few red ribbon bows on a large potted plant. Then insert red roses in florist tubes around the base, pushing the tubes gently into the soft dirt.

Another apartment trick that is space-saving as well as pretty is placing red roses in bud vases or small vials in among your favorite year-round green plants. It's sure to lend a festive air of Yuletide cheer to your surroundings. Just remember to water the roses regularly.

Roses are a perfect touch for holiday entertaining, too. If you're serving buffet-style, use holly and red roses as a festive garnish for gelatin molds and other cold holiday dishes.

For an elegant dinner table, try a centerpiece of red roses and evergreen sprays in a silver bowl. Add white candles in silver candlesticks and tuck a single red rose within or atop the napkins at each place setting. Your guests will have a take-home present of holiday cheer.

Father's Day Is Every Day

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is to tell you about a letter you never received. Some time ago I received a call from my son's third grade teacher asking me to stop in at school to discuss a letter my son had written in letter-writing class. It was addressed to YOU. It read:

"Dear Abby,

My dad works all the time. He is never home. He gives me money and lots of toys, but I hardly ever see him.

I love him and wish he would not work all the time so I could see him more.

Jeff"

That was the entire letter. Abby, I was very poor when I was a boy. I always wanted my children to have it better than I did, so in addition to my regular job, I worked two part-time jobs—almost doubling my income. I managed to provide my wife and two sons with many luxuries, but I realized after reading Jeff's letter that I was depriving them of something far more important—myself. And my time.

For instance, I had never attended a report card conference, nor visited school. I took no part in Scouting, although both sons were Cub Scouts. I have never reprimanded my sons. This responsibility was entirely their mother's. Sometimes days would pass without my seeing the boys awake.

Because of the standard I had set for my family, I felt I couldn't lower those standards without first discussing it with them, so we held a family meeting. The result: I quit both part-time jobs and we adjusted our standard of living accordingly.

That was nearly two years ago, and now I realize what a wonderful family I have. I have earned the respect of my sons. But more important, I have learned that the greatest gift a man can give his children is himself and his time.

Today I am a happier man, and I want to thank you, Abby, because if it were not for the letter my son wrote to you, I might never have known what I was missing. Sign me . . .

DAD

DEAR ABBY: Would you like to know how an 83-year-old relic feels about Christmas?

I dislike exchanging gifts because most people give only in the hope that they'll get something. If I could get off everybody's Christmas list I would rejoice. I don't need anything, and everything I get is either the wrong size, not my style, or I have one already.

I can't go shopping myself, so I have to impose on others to shop for me, which is asking a lot. Also, a dollar doesn't buy nearly what it used to, and I resent spending all that money just so people won't think I'm a cheapskate.

I don't like those annual Christmas letters describing where they went last year. It's a lot of bragging and showing off.

Neither do I like Christmas cards with the sender's name printed on it. If a person can't even sign his own name in ink and add a personal "Hello," who needs it?

Also, somebody who notifies me that she has sent a contribution to HER favorite charity in MY name is somebody else I can do without. I like to pick my own charities.

Merry Christmas, Abby!

GRANDMA

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that mothers are so much stricter with their daughters than they are with their sons? My mother watches us girls like hawks, but she lets my brothers do just about anything they want. My friends tell me it's the same at their house. I think this is very unfair.

SUSIE IN ST. PAUL

DEAR SUSIE: It all averages out. The fathers are usually stricter with the boys.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Another Milestone For ECU

Another milestone, now little noticed, will soon be coming up for East Carolina University.

In conjunction with the medical school the university will soon begin PhD programs in anatomy, bio-chemistry, micro-biology, pharmacology and physiology.

Dr. John Howell, vice chancellor for academic affairs, reported on the progress of the programs at a recent board of trustees meeting. He said they had been reviewed by the necessary outside groups and endorsed by them. Approval for initiating the programs could come from the Board of Governors in early spring.

ECU has been able to offer graduate work through the master's degree. These programs, however will mark the first move into PhD area. It broadens the scope of the university greatly.

Don't Count On State Tax Rebate Yet

Tax rebate for state taxpayers or not? Gov. Hunt proposed a tax rebate last summer, and it would come from whatever surplus funds that the state might have at the conclusion of the present fiscal year.

House Speaker Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, doesn't see any large rebate coming. A $50 rebate to every taxpayer would require $117 million, and Stewart expects less than half that amount to be available.

A cash return on the taxes we pay would be nice — but don't count on purchasing a new coat with what you will get.

Budget-Cutting Process

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After deciding what the government needs most in next year's budget, administration economizers went back over the numbers to see what it needs least.

It's all part of President Carter's effort to curb federal spending so as to hold the budget deficit to no more than $30 billion, as part of the drive against inflation.

As one budget manager told it, the billion-dollar decisions were made first, off the top of fiscal 1980 spending proposals sent to the White House. Then came the effort to cut at the bottom, and save some additional dollars.

The exact numbers in the Carter budget will be disclosed when he sends his spending proposals to Congress next month.

The spending blueprint is expected to be in the $530 billion range. Less than one-tenth of 1 percent of that sum was cut when budget experts checked the bottom of the barrel.

To trim that amount, roughly $500 million, Carter's pennypinchers at the Office of Management and Budget conducted a first-ever attempt to rank proposed spending items with the lowest priority.

The goal was to determine the least worthy programs, with the aim of taking a rational approach to keeping the new budget within Carter-prescribed limits.

When the average taxpayer makes out a personal budget, he automatically ranks his spending priorities, trimming from the bottom if expenses threaten to exceed anticipated income.

Odd as it may seem, Uncle Sam never before tried this sensible approach, despite two centuries of budget-making experience.

The need for a new approach was expounded in an interview by Dale McOmber, OMB's assistant director for budget review.

"When we look at programs agency by agency," noting this had been the traditional approach, he said, "we always have to ask ourselves, 'Are we being even-handed?'"

As an example of fairness problems under the old method, he said that if the Pentagon sought funds for 30 F-14 fighters, "it's hard to match those F-14s against VA hospitals."

Under the new priority system, he suggested, the Air Force might wind up with 25 F14s and the Veterans Administration could get extra hospital money that otherwise would have been earmarked for aircraft.

When McOmber and his associates embarked on priority rankings, they found they were dealing with more than 3,000 separate federal programs or activities.

Although all were ranked, the items earmarked for special review were those with the lowest rankings.

A decision was made to review all major spending proposals comprising the bottom 6 percent of the tentative budget.

Then, to enhance prospects for equitable decisions, the top 2 percent of proposals omitted from the tentative spending blueprint were marked for reconsideration.

Altogether, the review involved $35 billion of proposals, ranging in size from $1 million to $600 million.

A Dastardly Criminal

WASHINGTON — One of the most dastardly criminals in America today is the "hit-and-run parker." Almost everyone has been a victim of a hit-and-run parker. You go into a shopping mall or an underground self-parking cellar and do your errands. When you return you discover the side of your car has been bashed in, or there is a large gash in the radiator grille, or the bumper in the rear has been pushed three feet into the trunk.

You look around desperately to see if the guilty car is still in the parking lot. Obviously it isn't. The mad hit-and-run parker has struck again!

I went to see Chief Inspector Renfrew at the police department who is in charge of the Hit-and-Run Parking Division.

He showed me a chart and said proudly, "Hit-and-run parking is the largest growth crime in the country. It's risen 400 percent in the past three years. There was a time when someone who had smashed into someone else's car in a parking lot or on the street would leave a note on the windshield with his or her name, address and telephone number. But I haven't seen that happen in ages. Now it's smash, bang and 'Let's get the hell out of here.'"

"Have you ever caught a hit-and-run parker?" I asked Inspector Renfrew.

"No, but we've been close a few times," he said. "Once we had a man staked out in the basement of the Kennedy Center who saw a Chrysler smash into a new Buick. The Chrysler took off and my man followed in hot pursuit. Unfortunately, he smashed into a Chevy as he was backing out, so he had to leave by another exit so no one would know he had done it."

ART BUCHWALD

"If you haven't made any progress in solving hit-and-run parking accidents," I asked, "why are you still in business?"

"Because we're getting closer all the time," he said. "For example, we now have a profile of the average hit-and-run parker. She's either a man or a woman, middleclass, respectable and usually votes for the law-and-order candidate. Her weakness is getting into a parking space without going over the yellow lines. She has trouble backing up, and panics easily when she sees anything moving in front or behind her. When she wants to go forward, she will put her car into reverse; when she wants to go backwards, she'll put it in drive. When the car is perfectly positioned, she'll put her foot on the gas pedal."

"You keep saying 'she.' Does this mean the hit-and-run parker is usually a woman?"

"I wouldn't say that, but a recent survey of automobile body shops around the country indicates that more women than men are sneaking in to have their cars repaired."

"But they have more time."

"That's true, but we find a majority of them tell the body shop owner they'll pay in cash on condition that their husbands never find out about it."

"That's good sleuthing," I

Dreams Of Jas. Cagney

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

EUR, Italy (AP) — Sergio Leone, the king of the spaghetti wefterns, would do anything, pay anything, give anything if only James Cagney would come out of hiding and stage a prison break.

The prisoner to be freed is Leone himself. His captor is "Once Upon a Time in America," a film idea that the Italian director admits, almost in tears, "has kept me a prisoner for eight years."

The script, now boiled down from five to three hours, uses the film techniques of the 1930s, to tell the story of an American generation from 1920 to 1968, the height of the Vietnam War. It is set in New York, and in Leone's mind only James Cagney can play the aged hero.

Luring Cagney from retirement in Martha's Vineyard or his cattle ranch in Pawling, N.Y., or wherever he hangs his dancing shoes and prop submachine gun these days has become an obsession with Leone.

"To me, Cagney is the films of the '30s," Leone puffs dreamily on his third cigar of the day in his cluttered villa on the outskirts of Rome. "I have turned the earth over to try and get him. He has told friends that if he would do it for anyone, he would do it for me, but not even his mother could coax him out of retirement ...He has become a recluse."

And so for that matter has Leone. Although he has produced a couple of movies to which he will not lend his name, he has not been behind a camera or shot any film as a director in more than seven years.

Rotund and bearded, he sits in his gilt throne chair like Orson Welles playing the Emperor Nero and talks compulsively about the film that holds him in thrall.

"The film traces the lives of four boys and three girls from age 14 to 60, but one of the stars is time itself. Time that changes

Prescribe False Remedy

By HENRY HAZLITT

"President Expects His Inflation Plan to Bar Depression." So read the leading frontpage headline on Nov. 17 in one of the country's leading newspapers.

The truth, of course, is the exact opposite. It is the President's inflation plan that will practically assure a depression. For the heart of the President's plan is his "voluntary" wage and price control "guidelines".

The first thing we have to bear in mind is that price and wage controls are irrelevant to inflation. Inflation is an excessive increase in money and credit. When this occurs, the dollar, our currency unit, loses part of its purchasing power. This is reflected in a rise in wages and prices.

Whether or not we are going to have a further sharp rise in prices depends not at all upon the existence of price controls, but upon the extent to which the government encourages or permits an increase in money and credit. If government policies were such as to discourage or prevent any further increase in the money supply there would be no need for the government to think of price controls. Prices would not continue to go up, because the added monetary purchasing power would not exist to push them up. If, for a while, they continued to go up because of inflationary expectations, the rise would soon come to a halt and merchants would find themselves with unsold goods.

If, on the other hand, the government pursues policies that would otherwise drive up prices by another 10 percent a year, and the government tries to prevent this by price controls, then to the extent that it succeeds in preventing some producers and sellers from raising prices, it will cut or wipe out their profit margins. This will cause them to lay off workers, or to stop making the particular product they are forced to sell at an inadequate profit or at an actual loss. Scarcities and bottlenecks will develop, relieved only by the emergence of a black market.

There are too many things that are overlooked by all price control schemes, and particularly by the one that Mr. Carter has announced. Continued inflation will mean the continued decline of the dollar in the foreign exchange market. This must mean an immediate corresponding rise in the price of all imported goods, or the producers who use them as raw materials, must be able to pass along these increases in their own prices, or suffer losses and go out of business.

In addition, there is no way to police prices of thousands of other articles and services produced or sold by thousands of farmers, small firms, or stores. So if the government concentrates on monitoring the prices merely of the 400 biggest corporations, it will only do special damage to the country's biggest employers.

Another great fact that the government's price formulas overlook is that inflation affects every price to a different degree and at a different time. Procrustean price controls always distort and disrupt production.

Finally, the attempt to impose price controls diverts attention from the real cause of inflation and from the only real remedy, which is to balance the budget and halt the excessive printing of paper dollars.

40 Years Ago Today

December 13, 1938

A. B. Combs, state inspector of high schools, was in Pitt County today making an inspection of the Arthur and Pactolus schools, the only units in the county not on the accredited list.

Combs reported that both schools had showed much progress during the current session and indicated that they probably would come up to the required standards and be placed on the accredited list at the end of this school year.

Prospects for another Senate battle over an anti-lynching bill developed today with an announcement by Senator a Van Nuys (D-Ind) that the controversial measure would be revived.

Senator Van Nuys said he would confer soon with Senator Wagner (D-NY), co-author of last session's bill which was shelved after a Southern filibuster.

There were indications that the Southern bloc would filibuster any motion to bring up the bill for consideration again.

To the editor:

This week Americans everywhere will celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Wright Brothers' first flight. The question occurred to this observer; what would have happened to Orville and Wilbur had they attempted to invent their fantastic flying machine in today's regulatory climate? Walter Cronkite might have reported the news thusly:

"Today, Occupational Safety and Health agents closed the Wright Brothers' bicycle shop and levied a stiff fine for failing to comply with safety regulations regarding placement of ladders and exactly whether Orville Wright's grease pit constituted a hole as defined by OSHA regulation 12-A, Section 3 (c) (1) (d), paragraph 4. Orville explained he was trying to build a flying machine heavier than air and was unfamiliar with the regulation. Whereupon the agent asked if they had applied for an Environmental Protection Agency establishment number. Wilbur answered, 'No, but if it will help us get our machine in the air, we'll make application.'"

"Application was denied by the Chief Administrator stating: 'This onerous contraption poses not only unreasonable adverse effects to the environment, but an imminent hazard to the public.' Besides, the Chief Administrator added, 'If the good Lord meant for us to fly, he would have put wings on our backs.'

"Consumer advocate Raider Ralph praised the actions of the administrator, chracterizing the EPA as the last line of defense against unscrupulous schemes to exploit the environment."

And that's the way it could have been...

WHICH WAY?

We are told in the Book of Acts that when St. Paul preached to the citizens of Antioch in Pisidia, "they were glad and glorified the Word of God: and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed."

This statement is sometimes considered to be a proof of predestination — the doctrine that some are foreordained to be saved and others not to be saved. The Bible, of course, teaches nothing of the sort. The Green word translated as "ordained" really means "set in array." So a literal translation of the statement would be, "as many as were set in array for eternal life believed."

God gives us what we are ready to receive. Everybody is saved who is ready to be saved, whose life is so set in array that divine gifts can be gratefully accepted. If we are living lives which we know to be below our best, we are not in a position to receive anything better from God.

So the question for us is, are we set in array to receive God's gifts, or not?

Time For: Remember When?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you remember when Wall Street brokers made more than Wall Street lawyers?

Rhetorically posed, the question sometimes is used to suggest the vast changes occurring in the securities industry, where regulators have been pressuring for change, and brokers' commissions have been cut.

Similar questions about other areas of human endeavor sometimes tell more about changes in personal, corporate or national lifestyles than volumes could do. These questions rely on numbers for documentation:

Do you remember when the prime lending rate was less than 2 percent? It was 31 years ago, in 1947, but that was before the big rise in personal, corporate and governmental debt. The prime now is 11.5

When the federal government last reported a budget surplus? It was in fiscal 1969, when Washington took in $3.24 billion more than it spent. Since then it has spilled more than $300 billion of red on the record.

When the purchasing power of the dollar was double what it is now? That was in 1967, only 11 years ago. In the past four decades the dollar has declined to about one-fifth its former power.

When unemployment, now around 5.8 percent of the civilian labor force, was under 4 percent? It fell that low in the 1960s, when for four straight years ending in 1969 it ranged from 3.5 to 3.8 percent.

Since then, it has never been below 4.9 percent, and has ranged as high as 8.5 percent, in 1975, despite federal budget deficits that were explained in part as being necessary to reduce joblessness.

When the median price of existing single-family homes, which rose beyond $50,000 this year, was less than half that amount? Just 10 years ago, says the National Association of Realtors, the figure was $20,100.

When automobile credit was only half what it is now? No further back than 1971. Car credit now is running more than $80 billion a year. Seven years ago it amounted to only $38.5 billion.

When the Northeast (New England and Middle Atlantic states), had greatr personal income than the South (South Central, East South Central, West South Central states)? It was 1970.

The South has surged since then. In 1970, the Commerce Department reports, the Northeast produced $217.9 billion of income to $215.7 for the South. In 1976: the South $400.1 billion, the Northeast just $339 billion.

The length of time involved in such contrasts provides a clue to the intensity of change. If, for example, you dropped back to the turn of the century you would find some amazing contrasts.

When did the federal government, which now spends more than $2,000 a year for each person, spend only $7? The Tax Foundation says it was in 1902, and that as recently as 1940 it was just $77.

What does it all mean? The question hardly needs to be asked. While some will see only what they want, others will see a story of change, stripped of political or academic cant.

Ask To Permit U-Boat Entry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. officials have asked Germany to allow Navy divers to survey the inside of a sunken German submarine off the North Carolina coast so that torpedoes and other amunition in the surrounding area could possibly be removed.

U.S. navy divers are worried that sport divers looking for souvenirs may detonate the weapons. The World War II U-352, in which 11 men are believed entombed, has become a popular site for scuba divers from all over the nation.

U.S. officials want to explore the wreck to see whether some action — such as destroying the boat — should be taken.

But Capt. Dieter Ehrhardt, naval liason for the German Embassy in Washington, said Tuesday the German government prefers to leave World War II wrecks at the bottom of the sea. He said Germany announced exclusive claim to the wreckage of any ship of the Third Reich, in a statement issued by the German government in 1971.

The statement said hulls with men entombed in them should not be raised unless the wreckage is dangerous or threatens navigation or fishing.

Souvenir divers have already brought up the bones of some of the crew and displayed them for a while in a Jacksonville dive shop.

The bones rested unknown in the waters 26 miles off Morehead City for 33 years until a charter captain discovered the wreck in July 1975.

If the Navy gets the go-ahead to go aboard the boat, it plans to remove a torpedo found on the ocean bottom near the wreck and six 88-mm shells, Lt. Cmdr. Dough McCurrach, a Navy spokesman, said.

He said no decision has been made on whether to remove a torpedo jammed in a stern firing tube, but said the weapons could be more dangerous now than they were when they were new because safety devices could have eroded.

Jewelry.....

years, there's been a trend toward fashion influencing jewelry design. The western look of Ralph Lauren designs led to lariat jewelry and special belt buckles, he said.

One designer is showing a gold bullet set with pave (pronounced pah'-vay) diamonds.It can be worn as a pendant or a pin or on a charmholder, a fanciful design worn like a pendant on a chain.

The stickpin trend that began last year is stronger than ever, Lipton said.

"So many women are wearing tailored jackets and they wear stickpins on the lapels."

If you think there's a lot of Egyptian and King Tut jewelry around, just wait. What's available now is, in Lipton's words, "only the tip of the iceberg." He expects the trend to become even stronger when the trveling King Tut exhibit opens at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City on Dec. 20.

It's not all reproductions. At least one firm is importing and restringing mummy necklaces from some tombs it bought in Egypt.

"Men are wearing jewelry more than ever," Lipton said. "The trend began on the West Coast, with open shirts and pendants. Now more classic jewelry such as pearl tie tacks are making a strong comeback."

Lipton said many businessmen are wearing ID bracelets, 14 or 18 karat gold wristwatches inlaid with diamonds and: "I even saw a pair of shoes with diamond buckles for formal wear." He recalls the shoes as either English or Italian and the price, about $6,000.

Children's jewelry is another new trend, Lipton said. Grandparents are buying it. "So many are living longer, being more affluent. Kids aren't wearing jeans as much anymore and they are dressing up more."

Other trends:

—Colored stones' popularity has increased considerably, especially because of higher prices for diamonds.

—American Indian geometric designs are being translated in non-ethnic jewelry such as a pave diamond pin also set with coral, lapis lazuli and turquoise.

—Sports motif jewelry is strong.

—So is the divorce ring and pendant trend, now about three years old. The designs incorporate a broken circle.

—In both precious and costume jewelry, naturalistic designs such as bees and butterflies are favorites.

—The return of classic evening clothes and black clothing has sparked a renaissance in pearls.

—Jewelry also changes to coordinate with hair styles: loop earrings to be worn with long hair, studs with short.

everything. It is a mixture of fable and realism, a pretext to go back into time like Proust in search of a lost America. But I must have Cagney."

Leone admits that he is "bored to death with being a producer." The only reason he keeps RAFRAN, his production company, going, "is so I can stay solvent and get behind a camera again to start shooting 'Once Upon a Time in America."

In Italy, he moans, "it is impossible to become the real producer that existed once upon a time in America: the one who starts with a good idea, has a script written by good writers, calls in a leading director, casts the best actors and actresses and in the end takes full responsibility for better or for worse. In Italy, at the smallest level, every director is really the author, he has to invent everything for himself. So as a producer, either I impose my will on the director and we have a catastrophe or I withdraw into myself and leave the director to his idiotic devices. That is why in the last two films I produced, I used the name RAFRAN and not Serge Leone."

In what may have been a moment of weakness, or perhaps sudden-found strength to conquer his obsession, the imprisoned director announced he would begin shooting "Once Upon a Time in America" by the end of January "with or without Cagney. I must get on with it."

Offer Musical Program Tonight

The annual program of Christmas Music at J. H. Rose High School will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight in the Rose High School Gym.

Varied musical fare will include medieval carols and dances for recorders and percussion, performed by the Advanced Ensemble directed by Patricia Hiss.

The Ensemble will be joined by Karen Hause, pianist, to perform "'Twas the Night Before Christmas;" and the school orchestra, directed by Claudia Shoaf, will play a medley of carols and then assist the combined choruses in a performance of Mozart's "Gloria."

Soloists with the Concert Choir will include Cliff Kilpatrick, Chris Bell, and Ron Madison. The Sophmore Chorus will join other singers for "Carol of the Bells" and Mendelssohn's "There Shall A Star Come Out Of Jacob," accompanied by Angela Morris.

James Rodgers will conduct the Concert Band and Choirs in a festive arrangement of "Oh Come All Ye Faithful," with Lindy Pollard as narrator.

There is no admission charge for the concert, and the public is invited to attend.

Two Events For Holiday Season

Two events of the holiday season scheduled for the end of this week are a performance of the "Nutcracker Ballet" and in Raleigh and a Christmas festival in Fayetteville.

The N. C. Symphony and the N. C. School of the Arts will give two performances of the "Nutcracker Ballet," one at 8 p.m. Sat. Dec. 16, the other at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17.

Both performances will be held in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium. Tickets for the Saturday gala performance are priced at $7 for best seats down to $3 for "partially-obstructed view" seats. Ticket prices Sunday are $4 for adults; $2 for students and senior citizens; and $1.50 for children under 12.

For reservations call 733-2750.

— On Saturday, Dec. 16, the Arts Council of Fayetteville is sponsoring the first Christmas-on-the-Square in downtown Fayetteville from noon to 6 p.m. The festival is in conjunction with the Christmas parade from 10 to noon that morning.

Arts and entertainment for all ages will be held during the afternoon, ending with a community carol sing in Cross Creek Park from 5 to 6 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the parade and festivities.

told Renfrew.

"The thing that really has us confused," the inspector said, "is that nobody wants to admit that they were in a moving accident any more. Therefore, when someone in the family comes home with a dented fender, that person always says it happened in the parking lot."

"What should a person do if he actually catches a hit-and-run parker in the act of smashing into his car?"

"Look around for a witness. Otherwise, it will be his word against hers."

"But aren't people reluctant to get involved in someone else's hit-and-run parking accidents?"

"Most are, unless you promise to give them your parking space in exchange for testifying in court on your behalf."

Beverly Sills In New Role

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City Opera director Julius Rudel is out, and soprano Beverly Sills is in, it was reported today.

Rudel, opera director for 21 years, was expected to resign today, The New York Times reported. Miss Sills, who had been tapped to become co-director of the opera after her retirement from singing, was to be named to replace him.

The Times reported the opera company has been dissatisfied with Rudel. The newspaper quoted John Samuels III, chairman of the opera board, as affirming that Rudel and the board had "not seen eye-to-eye" for some time.

"At the board meeting...(today) I expect to have Mr. Rudel's letter of resignation and I expect it to be accepted," Samuels said.

Neither Rudel nor Miss Sills was available for comment.

The New York Daily News reported that Miss Sills, who had said she would retire from singing in 1980, planned to move up her retirement date. The News did not indicate the source of its information.

Rudel will leave the opera's top job effective June 1979, The Times said, and Miss Sills would take over in July. Samuels told the Times Rudel would be named principal conductor of the opera company.

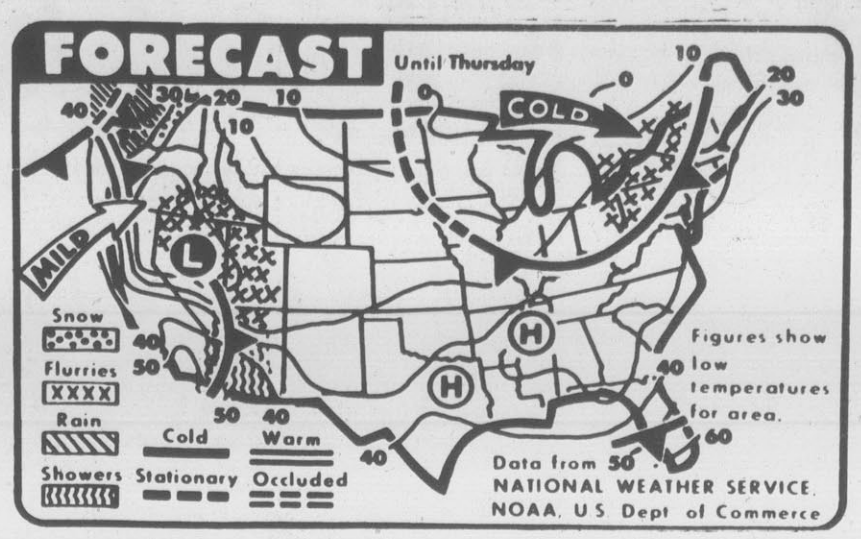
Saved Handbag

Would-be thieves were unsuccessful yesterday in their efforts to snatch a pocketbook from the hands of a 60-year-old Route 1, Seaboard woman in a parking lot at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Sixth Street about 5:55 p.m. yesterday, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said Mary Louise Pope told investigators three men attempted to pull her purse from her hand as she got out of her car. She was knocked down and dragged 15 to 20 feet across the parking lot by her assailants, Cannon said, but did not lose her handbag.

Cannon noted that Mrs. Pope suffered minor injuries from the incident.

How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Clear skies and cold weather are due for most of the country in the period until Thursday morning. Showers, snow flurries or rain are expected for the West. Snow flurries are forecast from the Great Lakes to New England. Milder weather is in store for the Pacific coast. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

Another surge of cold air is moving southeast from the mid section of the country and is expected to spread over North Carolina Thursday, after a little warmup today.

The forecast called for mostly sunny today, and again Thursday, but there will be some difference in temperatures. Highs today were expected to range from the 50s in the mountains to near 60 elsewhere, while Thursday's highs are expected to range from the 30s in the northern mountains to near 50 on the coast.

It will be cold again tonight with lows in the 20s inland, ranging to the 30s near the coast.

There is little or no threat of precipitation for the remainder of the week, and while it will be cold again Friday, it's expected to be a little warmer over weekend.

Temperatures dipped into the 20s early this morning over much of the state. Asheville was one of the coldest points with a low of 22 degrees followed by Elizabeth City and Rocky Mount with 24. Raleigh had a low of 27 and Charlotte and Wilmington shared a low of 28.

All representatives from local school councils are encouraged to attend. State monitoring of Title One programs will be discussed.

New Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — New rules going into effect next year should put an end to stories of food-stamp recipients driving away from supermarkets in fancy new cars.

However, a government survey indicates any such instances in the past have been the exception rather than the rule.

In fact, federal surveyors say nearly two-thirds of the nation's 4.78 million food-stamp households report they own no car at all.

And few have any other assets that could easily be sold or cashed-in to buy food, preliminary studies say.

A 1977 law overhauled the $5.5 billion food-stamp program in an effort to insure that benefits go only to the poorest families.

Largely in response to news accounts of persons buying steaks with food stamps and driving off in luxury cars, it requires the Agriculture Department to find out more about the assets of those getting food stamps.

Hold Two In Gun Deaths

RALEIGH, N.C. — Two Columbus County men were held without bond Tuesday night in Robeson County jail in connection with the shooting deaths of two Robeson County men.

John Wesley Oliver, 28, and George Moore, 25, both of Fair Bluff, were arrested Tuesday by Robeson County sheriff's deputies and each charged with two counts of first-degree murder and armed robbery. A first-appearance hearing was scheduled today in Robeson District Court.

Killed in the convenience store robbery were Allen Richard Watts, 49, owner of Watts' Convenience Store on N.C. 41, and Dayton Hodge, 54, of Route 2, Fairmont.

Sheriff Hubert Stone said Watts was shot inside his store about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. The sheriff said that after Watts was shot, the suspects allegedly emptied the cash register and left the store.

Hodge was filling his pickup truck with gasoline at the store's self-service pumps when he was shot, Stone said. He said Hodge's 6-year-old grandson was in the truck during the shootings, and flagged down a passing motorist who notified the sheriff's office.

Stone said all items stolen from the store have been recovered, but said he did not know the amount of money taken.

Truck, Tractor In Collision

A truck driven by William Earl Grant of Maury, and a tractor operated by Martin Vernon Chavis of Route 3, Laurinburg, collided about 4 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive.

Investigators estimated damage to the Grant vehicle at $700 and reported no damage resulted to the tractor operated by Chavis.

Liquor Gift Ad Is Illegal

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Alcoholic Control Board officials say a recent newspaper advertisement soliciting telephone-order liquor purchases violates North Carolina law.

ABC administrator Bill Hester said the advertisement in the Greensboro Daily News should not have been printed in North Carolina. The ad gives a toll-free number for placing orders for J&B Scotch for gift delivery anywhere in the continental United States.

Hester said officials at the Paddington Corp. a New York firm that bottles the liquor, told him they thought the advertisement had been stopped in North Carolina. "They said they would do something about it immediately," Hester said.

Mail-order liquor sales violate the law because North Carolina ABC taxes are not paid on such purchases, Hester said. Also, there is no guard against delivery of liquor to minors or of sale of more than one gallon, which is illegal, Hester added.

The cost of liquor through the ordering service is higher than the amount buyers would pay at ABC stores. The price of a fifth of J&B was quoted at $10.30, compared to $8.60 in stores. And the cost of a case was $133.60 — plus a $10 delivery charge for each purchase.

Six Nominated

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Six sites in North Carolina have been nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

Listing in the register can mean federal tax breaks and, in some cases, aid in maintenaance and restoration of the site.

The nominations include the Reid Farm near Jackson Hill, Dillard-Gamble Houses in Durham, Edmunds-Heptinstall House near Aurelian Springs, White Rock Plantation near Hollister, Shelton House in Waynesville, Lake O'Woods Edward & Rebecca Pitchford Davis House near Inez.

Sites in 13 other states were also nominated.

Workshop For Support Staff

In-service workshops for Pitt County Mental Health Center support staff were held yesterday.

Conducted by Dr. Frances Daniels and Mrs. Thadys Dewar of the East Carolina University Business Education and Office Administration Department, the sessions were concerned with communication skills, interoffice relationships and practical office procedures. Preceding the workshops, staff members were involved in needs assessment.

Participants were Pat Branch, Arlene Braxton, Essie Daughtry, Brenda Forbes, Ann Hemby, Vanessa Henderson, Audrey K. Honea, Sandra Jones, Lorraine Klingman, Rachel Noble, Sylvia Quinn, Barbara Roebuck, Lori Sarvey, Lois Stocks, Bobbie Wade and Nickie Watson.

Jury Declares Betty Lou Johnson Innocent

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

RALIEGH, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court jury today found Betty Lou Johnson innocent in the slaying of her husband after deliberating for only 35 minutes.

Mrs. Johnson was charged with first-degree murder in the shooting of Dr. Archie T. Johnson Jr. at the couple's home in Raleigh July 10.

The courtroom broke into applause and Mrs. Johnson placed her head in her hands and wept softly as the verdict was read. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Barefoot, and four sisters also began crying.

Two of Mrs. Johnson's children hugged her and a daughter, Celesze, said, "Mother, I'm so happy."

Judge Edwin Preston completed his instructions to the jury at 9:47 a.m., telling jurors they could acquit Mrs. Johnson if they found she acted in self defense. The jury returned with the verdict at 10:22 a.m.

Mrs. Johnson, 38, a member of the Republican National Committee, was charged with first-degree murder in the July 10 shooting of her husband, Dr. Archie T. Johnson Jr., at the estranged couple's home in Raleigh. Johnson was prominent in North Carolina political and medical circles and was a political ally of Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Defense attorneys Allen A. Bailey and Wade M. Smith told the jury in final arguments Tuesday that she killed Johnson in self defense after he beat and threatened her. However, Special prosecutor Russell W. DeMent Jr. countered that Mrs. Johnson shot her husband in the head, knocking him to the floor, then fired four more shots two of which struck him in the chest and abdomen.

In his instructions, Preston said the jury could find Mrs. Johnson innocent or it could find her guilty of first-degree murder, second-degree murder or voluntarily manslaughter.

He said she could be found to have been acting in self defense if testimony showed she was defending herself or a member of her family when she killed Johnson.

In an emotion-charged speech, DeMent told the jury that "Archie Johnson has been dug up and stomped on. It has even been suggested that we ought to erect a monument to his murderer. The defense is clear — that the s.o.b had it coming."

DeMent asked the jurors to consider Mrs. Johnson's testimony on the night of the shooting.

"Have you ever seen a more intelligent woman, a woman with more self control, a woman who has been more beautifully coached to testify?" DeMent asked the jury. "Have you ever seen anyone more evasive in your life?"

DeMent asked the jury to consider why Mrs. Johnson fired five shots at her husband and said he did not believe that she blacked out after she fired the first shot, as she has testified. She has said that all she remembered was "a dull, whirring sound" in her head.

DeMent said he believed Mrs. Johnson started getting "mentally prepared" to kill Johnson several months before the shooting. He cited the fact that she went to a hardware store two days before the shooting to buy a box of bullets. Mrs. Johnson has testified that she bought the bullets so she could practice using the gun to protect herself and her children.

DeMent also questioned Mrs. Johnson's motives for staying with Johnson, citing her testimony that her husband abused her for years.

"Was it for Archie Johnson and his great potential that she stayed?" he asked. "No, it wasn't for Archie. Do you think she was doing the children a favor? Did she honestly think she was being a good mother? I suggest it was for herself."

DeMent said defense attorneys' claim that Mrs. Johnson was defending herself and her three children when she shot her husband was untrue. Bailey and Smith have contended that the first shot did not kill Johnson and that he was still a threat to Mrs. Johnson.

Attorneys for the defense and prosecution have agreed that Johnson was still alive when the second two shots hit him.

"They (the defense lawyers) want you to buy self defense," DeMent said. "They want you to believe that she was protecting herself and her children. They expect you to believe that a man with a bullet in his brain is still vigorous and dangerous. Great day! Do you believe that?"

Assistant District Attorney L.W. Payne, the second prosecuting attorney, told the jury that the focus of the trial should be on the events of the night of July 10, not on the threats and assaults that Mrs. Johnson and other witnesses have testified about.

Payne said he saw several inconsistencies in the testimony and pointed out that Ashley Johnson, the couple's 13-year-old son, gave one version of the shooting to police shortly after the incident and another version on the witness stand. He also disputed testimony that Johnson was intoxicated, saying that a .13 blood content of alcohol was just "border line under the influence."

"Was Dr. Johnson intoxicated? The answer is a resounding no," Payne said.

In an earlier final argument Tuesday morning, Bailey said he saw the Johnsons' marriage as a book entitled "The Wonder of Her Love" and said Mrs. Johnson did not leave her husband because she loved him.

While Mrs. Johnson covered her eyes and cried quietly, Bailey recounted testimony of Mrs. Johnson and other witnesses on Johnson's drinking, his growing involvement with politics and his infidelity. He also described how Johnson physically abused his wife.

"He didn't think nothing about walking into the house and slapping her like she was a piece of side meat," he told the jury.

Bailey told of one incident in 1976 when Johnson walked into their bedroom after drinking heavily, grabbed his wife by the hair and dragged her across the room. Bailey said Mrs. Johnson should have "blown his brains out then."

"Self defense? Chicken defense! She should have taken a shotgun and blown his brains out," Bailey shouted.

Smith told the jurors to use common sense in reaching their decision.

"Good common sense says Mrs. Johnson did not murder her husband," Smith sad. "If you go into the jury room and don't consider any law, just common sense, you will come back and find Mrs. Johnson not guilty."

Inflated Cost

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina residents could pay as much as 20 percent more for medical care next year, a leglislative staff analyst said Tuesday.

Jim Johnson told the Medical Cost Containment Committee the cost of medical care in the state has jumped dramatically in recent months. If the trend over the past six months continues, Johnson said the annual rate of inflation for the period of April 1, 1978 through March 31, 1979 would climb to 19.75 percent.

Hospital rates increased 12.1 percent during the year ending in October. But Johnson said most of the increase — a 9.4 percent jump — came in the final six months of the period.

The committee is studying proposals for state regulation of rates charged patients by North Carolina hospitals, including privately owned and profitmaking hospitals.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, who chairs the panel, said a bill authorizing regulation in North Carolina may be introduced in next year's General Assembly. The only other Southern state with such regulation is Maryland, Lawing said.

Johnson said the inflation figures, gathered by the state Department of Administration, are "fairly consistent" with national trends. The figures cover general hospital services for rooms and related patient costs.

Troop Pullout

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A planeload of 213 American combat troops from the 2nd Battalion of the 2nd Division's 9th Regiment left South Korea for Fort Riley, Kan., today as part of President Carter's plan to withdraw all American ground troops from Korea over the next four or five years.

They were the first ground combat troops to be withdrawn.

On Saturday

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that "meter maids" will begin Saturday enforcing parking regulations in the downtown area just as they normally do on weekdays.

The chief said the parking-ticket-writers will work from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturdays — begining December 16 — and will, "strictly enforce" parking time limits just as they normally do during the week.

Cannon noted that the city code provides for a two-hour parking limit in the business district, except in lots on Cotanche Street at the Second Street intersection, and at Georgetown Shopping Center at the Reade Circle intersection which are equipped with meters; and at metered spaces on Third Street near the Evans Street intersection, on Fourth Street near the Washington Street intersection, and at City Hall.

Cannon noted that parking time limits for the metered spaces are marked on the meters.

He noted that drivers who park in un-metered spaces for the two-hour limit, then move their vehicle a few spaces, are in violation of the parking ordinance. He noted that vehicles should be moved, "completely out of the area," in order to abide by the city code.

Planned Lawn-Litter Is Newest Fad In Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Well-planned lawn litter is a rage in this city on beautiful San Francisco Bay. A few well-placed bottles keep dogs — and their droppings — away, some homeowners claim.

Glass or plastic, empty or full, anti-dog bottles dot the manicured lawns of as many as 300 homes here. No one knows how they work, but many are certain they do.

"They keep the dogs from going to the bathroom on the lawn," said Extell Donnelly, who placed four bleach bottles on his property.

"A lady across town phoned my wife about them three or four months ago and they've worked for me," he added.

Donnelly's secret: "It's best to put a little bleach in them and leave the top off so the dogs can smell it," he said.

The phenomenon has attracted academic scrutiny — not by scientists seeking to explain the bottle magic, but by a University of California graduate student of urban design.

"It's the ultimate low-budget approach to the problem (of dog waste) if you can't afford to put up a fence," said Anwyl M. McDonald, who counted 300 bottle-lawn homes in July.

He found uncapped bottles, capped bottles, bottles with holes punched in them, plastic bottles with the tops cut off, bottles hidden in bushes and bottles upside down on sticks.

And in two weeks roaming middle-income neighborhoods of Oakland and Berkeley, McDonald talked to hundreds of people.

He asked the homeowners, whose yards were generally among the neatest in the area, to explain how the bottles work.

"I was just incredulous," he said. "Nobody had any explanation ...If you asked them, they just said, 'They work pretty well.'"

People had theories. Some said dogs were scared by plastic bleach bottles. Others said ammonia bottles worked. And still others insisted that only glass gallon jugs would do the trick.

Some residents offered special tricks, McDonald said: some used only bottles filled with window-washing liquid; others said they added ammonia or bleach to offend canine noses.

"In this neighborhood, first one person had them on his lawn, then they appeared all over the place, like toadstools after a rain," said Ted Crum of Berkeley.

At last check, it appeared the bottle rage might be declining. Some people apparently found they didn't do any good.

"Dogs only come around once every two or three weeks anyway, so why bother with the bottles," said a middle-aged man who asked not to be identified. "They look terrible, and I don't think they do any good."

Deny 'Fraternization' In Ranks Is A Problem

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Several members of a sexually-mixed unit at Fort Bragg say problems with fraternization among the ranks and with the enlistment of single parents do not exist, or are less serious than the Pentagon believes.

Soldiers in the 1st Corps Support Command, a unit with one woman for every nine men, said there is fraternization among the ranks, but it has created no major problems.

The Defense Department recently ordered commanders to stop fraternizing among male and female personnel of different rank. The department also ordered commaders to get rid of male and female soldiers if the responsibilities of caring for their children interfere with their military duties.

"There's no need for the Army to take steps to prevent officers or others from going out with lower-ranking soldiers of the opposite sex," said Pfc. Felix Pormos, a single parent with a 5-year-old daughter.

But Pormos did say he wished the Army recruiter had counseled him on the problems he would have as a single parent. He said he has given his fiance the power of attorney to care for his daughter when he is called away unexpectedly.

Sgt. Mamie Batts said she felt it would be unfair for the Army to get rid of single parents who can handle their jobs.

"It would be heartbreaking to some girls if the Army told them they must leave because they are sole parents," she said. "The military is about the only place that's been willing to give them a chance."

Spec. 5 Bione Briscoe said the only problems with fraternizing arise when a lower ranking person tries to use a romantic involvement with a higher ranking person to gain favors.

Fear Legionaire Disease Struck

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Health officials, worried by the death of a Pittsburgh lawyer, are seeking traces of Legionnaires disease among 500 attorneys who attended a Virgin Islands conference last October.

Stephen Laffey died on Dec. 2 of the pneumonia-like disease. Another lawyer who attended the conference fell ill with pneumonia, which can be caused by Legionnaires disease, said Dr. William Parham of the state health department. Questionnaires have been sent to attorneys in Pennsylvania and New Jersey asking if they were ill during or shortly after the Judicial Conference of the U.S. 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals.

Detect Major Solar Flare

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Scientists at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration space environment services center have detected a second major solar flare this week.

Radiation from the flare blacked out short-wave radio communications of the side of the earth facing the sun, researchers said Tuesday. Another flare was reported Monday. "We are getting into the active part of the 11-year solar cycle, which means we will get more and more active regions on the sun," said forecaster George Wortham. "This will keep happening until it peaks in late 1979 or early 1980."

Carter Avers Relations With Kennedy 'Cordial'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he enjoys a good relationship with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and political differences between the two "are minor."

However, at his news conference Tuesday, Carter added: "I have a unique perspective in this country as president. I have to look at a much broader range of issues than does Senator Kennedy."

Carter said the Massachusetts Democrat "is extremely interested, for instance, in the comprehensive health program, having devoted several years of his legislative life to that position."

Kennedy has criticized the administration for moving too slowly on national health insurance.

But Carter said differences between the two "are minor. So I think this is a healthy situation to have within the Democratic Party. And I think that the Congress will be the ultimate judge of whether my budget, as proposed, is fair and balanced and adequate."

Speaking of the budget, Carter said, "I have not changed my goals. I am going to have an adequate defense and I am going to cut the budget deficit to below $30 billion."

On other subjects, Carter said:

—IRAN

He fully expects "the shah to maintain power" but that United States officials have "no intention of interfering in the internal difficulties of Iran and have no intention of allowing others to interfere."

—ENERGY

He hasn't reached a decision on whether to remove federal price controls on gasoline that have been in effect since the 1973-74 oil embargo.

—MIDEAST

It is important for Egypt and Israel to show their ability to honor a commitment but that he does not view the Dec. 17 deadline for agreement on a peace treaty as a "now or never proposition."

—RE-ELECTION

He has decided in his own mind whether to seek re-election, but won't reveal his decision until "later." Asked what he meant by "later," Carter said: "It means later."

—SALT

"There has been steady progress" toward a strategic arms limitation treaty over the past two years. "If the Soviets are adquately forthcoming, we will have an agreement without further delay," he added. "If they are not forthcoming, then we will continue to negotiate."

—ECONOMY

He does not favor any organized boycott of companies that fail to follow the government's voluntary price guidelines to combat inflation. But he added that consumers "should be conversant with the relative compliance of suppliers with our wage and price guidelines."

Two-Speed Europe In New Currency Decision

By BARRY JAMES

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — The decision of six European Common Market members to set up a joint monetary system can be interpreted as a partial success in economic terms but a possible failure as far as the political future of Europe is concerned.

The six wealthier countries forming the European Monetary System (EMS) overcame formidable technical details to devise the scheme, which is designed to protect their economies from the wild currency fluctuations of recent years and act as a counterweight to the unstable dollar.

But Britain — and also, probably, Italy and Ireland — said they could not afford the deflationary cost of joining the EMS. Britain is certain to remain outside when the system goes into effect Jan. 1. Italy and Ireland are considering their decision but their answer, too, is expected to be no.

This presents the danger that the 26-year-old European Ecomonic Community (EEC) will be turned into a two-speed organization, with the richer members clustered together within their monetary system and the poorer countries locked outside. This problem will become increasingly dramatic with the entry into the EEC during the 1980s of three new members — Greece, Portugal and Spain.

Enlargement under these circumstances would reinforce the trend toward a community in which a handful of nations make the key decisions.

The basic argument of Britain, Italy and Ireland was that this trend should be combatted now by "transferring resources" — shifting wealth — from richer countries to poorer.

These countries wanted the EEC's existing but modest regional development fund expanded as the vehicle for these wealth transfers. Britain wanted the EEC's entire budget and common agricultural policy reformed so that more aid can go to depressed industrial regions and less to farmers for contributing to already enormous food surpluses.

Under recent proposals, the EEC will spend $13 billion on farm price support next year.

Yet at the European summit in Brussels Dec. 4-5, heads of government came up only with $1.3 billion in loan rebates for Italy and Ireland — about a quarter of what those countries were asking in straight aid over a five-year period.

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany at one point said Italy's demand for $3 billion in aid was "exorbitant." French President Valery Giscard D'Estaing called the aid requests "out of proportion," and, accompanying his words with thumps on the table, said he was not about to unbalance his country's economy to buy Italy and Ireland into the monetary system.

He also reportedly said they should be more interested in the political future of Europe and less in the immediate economic problems.

The problem is that currency stability does not come free. It entails strict financial and economic discipline, possible deflation and increased unemployment.

Ireland estimated the direct cost of joining EMS would be $1.25 billion over five years.

But in intensive bilateral meetings preceding the summit, the two nations evidently had been led to expect more than they were eventually offered. And the French intransigence surprised even the West German delegation, which had expressed readiness to try and increase the amount of aid on offer. After all, Giscard was, with Schmidt, one of the architects of EMS.

As a result of the split at the Brussels summit, EMS probably will go into operation as little more than an expanded version of the existing European "snake" of currencies which are linked together internally while floating jointly against outside monies such as the dollar.

The French franc has twice joined and been forced to leave the snake because of speculative pressure, and money experts predict it again will be the natural target of speculators.

EMS is, however, backed by the equivalent of $33 billion in reserves — more than President Carter earmarked to shore up the dollar last month — and this could ensure the survival of the scheme, perhaps even of the Common Market.

Without EMS, Schmidt warned, "I think the Common Market will sink."

Funding For 3 Programs

ECU News Bureau

Three special programs at East Carolina University received outside funding from federal and state governmental sources during November.

The rehabilitation counseling program sponsored by the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions was awarded $44,293 in supplemental funds by the Office of Rehabilitation Services.

A research project on the prostaglandin metabolism of drinking mothers and their offspring, conducted by Dr. Sam Pennington of the ECU School of Medicine, received $17,110 from the N. C. Alcoholism Research Authority.

ECU's campus Peace Corps Volunteer Program received $8,500 from national Peace Corps headquarters. The program is administered through the Department of Science Education.

Announcement of the three grants was made by the ECU Office of Sponsored Programs.

Reelected To Office

ECU News Bureau

Dr. William Martin of the East Carolina University School of Education has been re-elected southeast regional vice president of the National Association for Retarded Citizens.

He was elected to serve another one-year term at the NARC's recent convention in Boston, Mass., which was attended by approximately 2,000 delegates and members.

The NARC has set as its major goals for the next five years coordination of funding of programs for the mentally retarded, reduction of the incidence of mental retardation, achievement of a continuum of developmental services within institutional and community-based residential systems, encouragement of research in the field of mental retardation studies, ensurance of legal rights for mentally retarded persons, establishment of advocacy programs, achievement of free public educational services, increase of training and employment opportunities for the mentally retarded and improvement of the general public's understanding and acceptance of mentally retarded citizens.

Charge Few Packers Set Meat Prices

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government report indicates that a handful of big meat packing companies can set the price of just about all the cattle and beef sold at wholesale on any given day and the Agriculture Department wants to know if there's a better way.

In conjunction with release of the report Tuesday, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced plans for public hearings on beef pricing and reporting by big meat packers and market reporting services, primarily one called the Yellow Sheet.

He also said he will name a task force to "study and recommend possible improvements" in the giant industry's method of pricing and reporting its transactions.

No dates were set for the hearings or naming the task force.

Tuesday's report did nothing to blunt criticism which has persisted for years among farmers, members of Congress and consumer groups that cattle and beef prices are mostly in the control of a few big operators, including packing companies and the market reporting services.

The report did not accuse anyone of illegal action and said it could not settle questions about "possible price manipulation" and the practice of quoting prices on a "thin market" in which only a small number of transactions is used as a basis to set prices.

The report characterized itself as containing information "which interested persons can use in arriving at conclusions" about pricing and market reporting.

Release of the report was delayed for weeks while Bergland ordered an original version redone. The Associated Press obtained a copy of the original earlier this fall, but most of the 3,000 copies were destroyed.

The new report included some additional information and changes in figures, but reached the same conclusions.

For example,the new report said 70 percent of the beef sales by the 35 packing plants during the one month studied last summer were based on a Yellow Sheet price formula, while the first report had said 66 percent.

The report said the 35 plants, which were not identified, accounted for 26 percent of the federally inspected cattle slaughtered in the United States in 1976.

A copy was sent to Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, chairman of the House Small Business Committee, which has been looking into beef pricing and has raised questions about the widespread use of the Yellow Sheet as a basis to set cattle and beef prices.

Smith said in a telephone interview from Des Moines that the report "confirms everything" his committee learned in its investigation.

Smith said he interpreted the report as saying investigators found "no proof that people who work for the Yellow Sheet are manipulating" beef prices.

Oppose PCB Burial Site

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Overwhelming opposition expressed at a public hearing over the proposed burial in Chatham County of toxic PCB came as no surprise to the state official responsible for the cleanup along North Carolina highways.

Commenting on the opposition at Monday night's hearing in Pittsboro, David E. Kelly, assistant state secretary of crime control and public safety, said, "We came prepared to answer questions that residents had, but after answering them, I don't think we did away with any of their fears."

Kelly said Tuesday the state earlier had considered, then rejected, several alternatives to burying the PCB-contaminated soil in the state.

He said the only course left was to convince residents of Chatham County, and other counties where the state is negotiating for dump sites, that a PCB dump will not endanger the health of residents.

The state has proposed to buy six acres of Chatham County land at the county landfill for burial of up to 50 percent of the contaminated material from 210 miles of roadside used as an illegal dumping ground last summer

Chatham residents expressed the fear that local water supplies could become contaminated with PCB, polychlorinated biphenyls, which have been linked to cancer in laboratory animals.

Kelly told the residents that rigid controls established by the Environmental Protection Agency would ensure that there would be no harm to residents near the dump site.

He said results of tests conducted by his own department also indicated there would be no harm to the environment. However, two of the five members of the Catham Board of County Commissioners have said they will vote against selling the land to the state when the matter comes to a vote at Monday's meeting.

Innocent Plea By 5th Man

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (AP) — A fifth Carter County man has pleaded innocent to charges of raping and robbing four Raleigh teenagers who were camping on Buck Mountain last June.

David Jones, 20, of Buck Mountain made the plea despite the fact he gave authorities a confession implicating himself and four co-defendants. Four other defendants pleaded innocent in October.

Those previously arraigned in the case were Billy Ray Johnson, 20; John Howard Oaks, 42, and his brothers, Gregory, 26, and Jerry, 24. The men have been indicted on 29 counts and are scheduled to be tried beginning Feb. 26.

Jerry Oaks escaped from the Carter County Jail on Nov. 24 and has not been found.

Cancels Parley In Bus Strike

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A federal mediator has canceled negotiations in the three-week-old strike against the city bus system.

Talks broke down Tuesday after management rejected the union's wage compromise. No date has been scheduled for reopening the negotiations.

The union offered to settle for a pay raise of 55 cents-an-hour plus a cost-of-living raise the first year, and an hourly hike of 40 cents plus a cost-of-living raise the second year.

But management refused the comprimse, sticking to its offer of a 25 cent hourly increase the first year and a cost-of-living raise, followed by another 25 cent increase and cost-of-living raise the next year.

Our Hispanics: A Silent, Growing U.S. Minority

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

Calle Veinticuatro, like many Latin American sidestreets, smells of frying bananas and throbs with music. Women in woven shawls pause to chat near gaudy murals and graffiti condeming "imperialismo."

The street — officially, 24th Street — is in San Francisco. But it is no less Latin than parts of New York's "Loisaida" — Lower East Side — or sections of many major U.S. cities.

The United States is the fourth largest Spanish-speaking nation in the Americas. And, because of rapid immigration and a high birth rate, "Hispanics" may outnumber blacks within a decade.

The country has perhass 20 million people of Hispanic descent. Eight million are Mexican-Americans, mainly in the Southwest, but there are several million Puerto Ricans, nearly a million Cubans and emigrants from a score of nations. Also, there may be 8 million illegal aliens.

And Hispanic community leaders, so far a small and disparate group, have begun in earnest to work toward building national political clout to match the numbers.

"It could take us a generation to get together," says Sal Baldenegro, a Mexican-American activist from Tucson, Ariz. "But we are trying, and we have made some real progress."

Many leaders, like Baldenegro, agitated loudly for change during the early 1970s, organizing national campaigns and regional parties.

"We found that we first had to organize our own communities locally, and most of us are now busy down at the grass roots," said Baldenegro. "We still have no real national leaders except someone like Cesar Chavez, and he is occupied with the farm-workers."

Voter registration drives and issue-oriented campaigns have made Hispanics a major force at local and state levels in the Southwest, New York and Florida. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. courts the Mexican vote. In 16 states, ballots are in Spanish as well as English.

In Washington, five Hispanic congressmen make up a "Brown Caucus," and President Carter has appointed a number of Hispanics to key jobs. There is also a national magazine for Hispanics, Nuestro, with articles printed in Spanish and English.

In many ways, however, the Hispanics have remained a silent minority at the national level for several reasons.

Though bound by language, Roman Catholicism and a common respect for tradition, Latins tend to keep within national and cultural groups.

When a Puerto Rican airman married a Mexican woman in Tucson, the bride's mother complained, "I just don't approve of these mixed marriages." Said a Cuban in Chicago, with its large MexicanAmerican enclave: "Yes, I feel good when I hear Spanish, but those aren't my people. I'm a Cuban, not a Latino."

Even within subgroups, backgrounds vary widely. Many families have roots here predating Independence and, having dissolved in the melting pot they helped to season, feel no attachment to newcomers.

Of the more than half the Hispanics here who came in their own lifetime, many are not inclined to make waves. A number have no documents and could be deported. Others choose to be conservative.

"A lot of these people are better off here than they were at home," said Luisa Ezquerro, a San Francisco teacher whose family came from Nicaragua. "They just aren't angry."

The bitterness that helped unify blacks is less acute for Hispanics. "Latinos were persecuted terribly, but you have to be a specialist in history to know about it" says Tucson educator Lupe Castillo.

Also, there are differences on basic issues. Many MexicanAmericans and Cubans want fully bilingual programs in the schools so their children won't forget their heritage. But others say that their children already know Spanish and should concentrate on English.

At the same time, there is much to bring them together. Statistics show Hispanics are the lowest paid, poorest housed and least educated ethnic group. The latest figures show their unemployment 3 per cent over the national average — even without counting illegal aliens.

Twenty-seven per cent of Hispanic families were earning less than $7,000. For non-Hispanic families, the figure was 16.6 per cent. Only 40 per cent of Hispanics have finished high school, compared with 46 per cent of blacks and 67 per cent of whites.

Such problems as police brutality and discrimination cut across the divisions. Cultural expressions — like music, theater and art — meld different Latin backgrounds. Sports heros and tycoons and artists inspire new pride and set goals overlapping national backgrounds.

The National Council of La Raza — the Race — a loose grouping of Hispanic organizations, met this year with the theme: "Several Styles: One Voice."

Unity is likely to be helped by America's mobility. The various communities are rapidly dissolving their traditional boundaries, permeating every part of the country.

Miami, more than half Cuban in population, has a Hispanic mayor: a Puerto Rican. Chicago has a huge Latino population, a microcosm of the national breakdown. Even in North Carolina where Hispanics are the fewest, a tortilla factory supplies two Mexican restaurants.

The lines are hardly clear. Yankee slugger Reggie Jackson, black with a distinctly nonHispanic name, is the son of a Philadelphia Puerto Rican.

The most diverse mixture is in San Francisco's Mission District where a neighborhood supermarket, Casa Lucas, stocks 36 kinds of pungent sauces, not counting ketchup. Owner Frank Preciado, Mexican-born but long a U.S. citizen, reflects:

"My customers? Everyone. From everywhere. In a morning I will hear accents from a dozen Spanish-speaking different countries."

Wallace Moving Out In Style

Country music singer Barbara Mandrell will headline a benefit for the three-term governor on Jan. 6 — nine days before his term ends.

Wallace's assistant press secretary, Elvin Stanton, said proceeds from the benefit will be used to buy Wallace a new luxury car.

Stanton said any money left over after the car is purchased will be used to pay for modifications to a new home Wallace is having built in Montgomery, and for rehabilitation and therapy equipment.

Wallace was shot in Laurel, Md., during the 1972 presidential campaign. Since then, he has been paralyzed below the waist.

Louisiana 'Oil Patch' Survives Off-Shore Trend

MORGAN CITY, La. (UPI) — Twenty years ago, Julian Fernandez made a living rebuilding the engines of boats that plied the quiet bayous and inlets of Louisiana's marshy coast.

Today, he parks his white Jaguar in the center of a 33-acre gravel-covered shipbuilding and fabrication yard where 367 employees piece together deep sea rigs taller than the Empire State Building and dispatch them to offshore oil fields from the North Sea to the Persian Gulf.

Fernandez's Service Machine and Shipbuilding Corp., like every other industrial enterprise along U.S. 90, sports a portable sign at its front gate seeking welders, electricians and pipefitters and offering salaries averaging $25,000 to $30,000 a year.

Fernandez is fairly typical of the bullish self-made businessmen of the area who watched their fortunes grow with the offshore oil industry that blossomed and thrived in the "Oil Patch" — a three-parish, bayou-laced swamp along the central Louisiana Gulf coast.

They have become wealthy supplying the offshore oil industry with everything from equipment to food, and now they are ready to expand to the East Coast, where the first Atlantic rigs are being installed in the Baltimore Canyon off New Jersey.

"Just tell them we're coming," Fernandez said with a smile as he strolled beside one of seven $300,000 cranes used to hoist a two-story-high trapezoid of welded metal pipe that will become part of a multi-million-dollar rig for the East Coast.

Just 75 miles east of New Orleans, the quiet, lush sugar cane fields that once held the key to Louisiana's economy now slowly give way to what has become the center of the world's offshore oil production industry. Since Nov. 14, 1947, when production started on the first offshore well 43 miles south of Morgan City, an economic boom has swept the Louisiana coast.

But Morgan City remains the hub of that boom. The city resembles a war zone with amphibious airplanes landing in bayous and canals and a constant shuttle of helicopters buzzing over a congested U.S. 90.

The boom has boosted income levels in St. Mary Parish at a rate twice that of the state as a whole. From 1940 to 1970, employment in the parish increased by 89.5 percent — 15 percent more than the national rate.

The fattest part of the Morgan City newspaper is the classified section, which advertises for workers from as far away as Ohio and Pennsylvania to staff the shipyards and work on the offshore rigs.

"There has been no cyclical depression here in 20 years," said Johnny Johnson, general manager of Oceaneering International, a firm that reaches as far away as California for experienced divers to handle underwater construction projects.

"I'm talking about the kind of depressions you see in Detroit and places like that where people are standing in line just to apply for jobs."

"Even when our business is bad, it's good," said Glen Savelle, president of Esgard Inc., manufacturers of rust preventative for the undersea rigs.

The offshore rigs also have bolstered the area's traditional economic base — fishing.

"I've been here 30 years and I'm still catching fish and they are still producing oil," said commercial fisherman Joe Carenas.

"The best place to fish is off the oil rigs. They are artificial reefs."

Unemployment in Morgan City is less than 3 percent — a level the U.S. Labor Department considers full employment — and the per capita income is estimated at $10,500.

The Internal Revenue Service estimates that 302 millionaires live in the oil patch, with most of the fortunes directly attributed to the offshore industry.

For all its economic benefit, the oil boom has made land in the St. Mary, St. Martin and Terrebonne parishes the most expensive in Louisiana outside of the New Orleans central business district.

And state officials fear schools, highways and hospitals in South Louisiana will be crushed by the burgeoning population that accompanies the economic good fortunes.

Cramped for expansion space, plant owners along U.S. 90 are building high-rise garages for their employees in order to free parking lots for new work areas.

"In Terrebonne Parish, 85 percent of the land is below sea level," said Robert Thompson, president of T.D.W. Industries, a Houma company that manufactures electonic steering systems, wenches, anchors and pneumatic tanks used in offshore drilling.

"With the influx of people, there is a two and three month wait for an apartment," he said. "The major crop (in Terrebonne Parish) is sugar cane, but a lot 120-by-180 goes for $25,000 to $30,000. A good economy runs up the cost of living."

Arthur Levy Jr., whose company supplies crew boats to shuttle workers and supplies to the offshore wells, blamed state mineral laws that discourage land holders from selling off old family cane plantations for industrial development.

"If you sell, in 10 years you lose the rights to the minerals," Levy said. "People are reluctant to sell property if they can't keep their mineral rights."

Oil patch businessmen sneer and curse at any federal regulations, which they blame for hindering oil development and the economic backlash they are cashing in on.

They boast that Morgan City's oil industry boomed without one cent of federal support money, unlike their newly born competition from Scandinavian countries where the governments are subsidizing the rig building business.

Regulations, most of them serving to stifle oil development, came into existance as an over-reaction to the 1972 Arab oil boycott, Thompson said.

"The government didn't start intensifying regulations until the embargo. Since then, it seems like everyone in Congress is waiting to take pot shots at the industry."

His advice — leave oilmen alone and they will bring in the energy at the cheapest price and in sufficient supply.

"Hurt the industry and you are going to pay more for gas," he said.

Jules Fernandez fumes at the mention of government regulations. Environmental Protection Agency bureaucrats recently mixed his planned expansion of his shipyard on land ajoining his present location.

They said a bald eagle had nested on Fernandez's land.

"The bald eagle moved here, the bald eagle can move somewhere's else," he said. "How many years have we lived without the dinosaurs. We haven't missed them."

Thompson, Fernandez and their business colleagues say environmental regulations delayed the start of energy exploration off the East Coast for two years.

"Just because you've found oil don't mean it's going to sit in New Jersey a week from now," Thompson said. "Every day you lose (stalling development) is a day we have to bring it in from overseas."

What they don't understand, they say, is why environmentalists pick on the oil industry, which has one of the best records for cleaning up its industrial messes.

"It's a matter of record the industry is spending a lot of money to solve its problems," Thompson said. "When something does go wrong its spectacular — it blows up or burns. Other industries are doing much worse, but its gradual — a slow poisoning of rivers, and you don't see those industries spending money to solve the problem."

The oil patch businessmen laugh at predictions that fossil fuels, on which their fortunes are based — will be gone by the end of the century. On the contrary, they believe the 31-year-old offshore oil boom is a growth industry — still untapped in most of the world.

Commissioners...

The resolution said, "time is of the essence and the plan of merger should be approved by both Boards of Education and submitted to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners in time for the next regular session of the Legislature to adopt enabling legislation if necessary."

As a result of the Commissioner's 1977 resolution, the Division of School Planning of the State Department of Public Instruction — at the request of the schools — compiled a comprehensive survey of both systems. That survey report was made public shortly after it was completed June 30. However, at the request of the Greenville Board of Education, the survey team made no recommendations concerning whether a merger should take place or not.

Commissioners have also asked that the two school boards plan for a bond election to finance needed school construction in the city and county because of the inability of the county to provide needed facilities on an annual capital improvement budget basis.

In the past, the two school boards have not been able to come to an agreement on the amount of bonds that would be needed.

The board, which approved an application for a cable television franchise by Greenville Cable TV last night, is expected to take final action on the application at its regular meeting in January.

Under the non-exclusive franchise agreement, Greenville Cable TV would pay three per cent of its gross income from areas served outside municipal limits, to the County of Pitt.

Commissioners gave final approval for the issuing of $3 million in bonds by the Pitt County Industrial Facilities and Pollution Control Financing Authority to fund facilities required by the Ajax Magnethermic Corp. which is locating in Winterville.

The money, to be repaid by Ajax, will help finance the purchase of the 44,000 square foot building formerly occupied by Sonoco Products Company, fund a 21,000 square foot addition now under construction, and provide funds for purchase of equipment needed by Ajax.

Ajax, which announced plans to locate in Winterville in September, is a world leader in the designing, engineering and fabricating of induction heating and melting furnaces for the metal working industry.

Completion of the Ajax facility is expected early next year. Initial employment is expected to be about 50 persons, with over 150 employed by the third year of production.

Sign Rules Under Study

FARMVILLE — Proposed sign regulations for the central business district of Farmville are under study by the local Downtown Architectural Advisory Committee.

The committee was asked by the Town Board in late spring to develop such regulations. Following an inventory of more than 300 downtown signs conducted in August and September, the committee began review of a draft outline of possible regulations in mid-November.

The draft guidelines incorporate standards and efforts previously urged by the Downtown Improvement Committee and the Town concerning CBD signs, such as elimination of projecting upper facade signs. Many downtown businesses have already made such adjustments voluntarily, but a number of projecting and over-sized signs remain, says the chairman of the committee, T. Eli Joyner. When complete, the proposed sign regulations will be forwarded to the Planning Board for review and to the Board of Commissioners for approval.

Questioned On Prescripition

ATLANTA (AP) — It was a single, simple drug prescription, but its troublesome implications continue for Dr. Peter Bourne, the former Carter administration drug abuse and mental health adviser.

In another motion, GUC "declared as surplus property" a small lot on W. Third St. at Seaboard Coastline Railroad formally used as a guy anchor location.

Director Horne said the property, which measures 35 feet by 57 feet, is no longer needed by GUC and should be declared as surplus property so a sale can be negotiated.

The commission also approved the transfer of its checking account from First State Bank to North Carolina National Bank beginning in January. GUC rotates its account each year between local banks that have the capacity to reconcile its checking statement.

Strippers Give A Benefit Show

MONTREAL (AP) — Renee de Bec, Moon Maid, Trixie Delight and 45 other strippers took it off for 12 hours at the Sex-Tuple Club to help the Christmas fund for the Montreal Children's Hospital.

Renee dispensed with her Mountie's outfit Tuesday after Woola finished her boa constrictor routine, and rare was the customer who didn't dig into his pocket for a $5 bill or better.

It was the third Strip-A-Thon for the hospital's Tiny Tim Fund since 1976, when the dancers raised $2,056. Last year they netted more than $3,000 and hoped to do better this year.

As they stripped, topless beauties circulated through the smoky club, wishing blue-suited businessmen and leather-jacketed toughs a Merry Christmas and asking them to remember the kids.

Volunteers, including off-duty Montreal policemen, ferried the strippers back and forth from their regular engagements at two dozen Montreal clubs.

Upstairs in her dressing room, Fonda Peters, the stripper who dreamed up the project, talked while several all-dressed, half-dressed and undressed women tripped over distracted reporters.

"As a child I had rheumatic fever," said Fonda, "and from the age of 4 to 12 I attended schools for crippled kids. I spent a year in a wheelchair. This is why this project is so close to my heart. I remember the pain."

Season Pleases La. Tech Coach

By O.K. Davis
Executive Sports Editor
The Ruston (La.) Daily Leader

(Editor's Note: The following is the last of a three-part exchange series between "The Ruston Daily Leader" and "The Daily Reflector" on the two teams that will meet in the Independence Bowl on Saturday.)

RUSTON, La. — Louisiana Tech University's football team was a prognosticator's delight this season.

In every pre-season poll conducted for the Southland Conference this year, the Bulldogs were an overwhelming choice to repeat as champions.

They didn't disappoint anyone.

The Bulldogs of head coach Maxie Lambright marched to a second consecutive title and berth in the third annual Independence Bowl (against East Carolina University on Saturday in Shreveport) by defeating four of five league opponents.

Overall, Tech finished at 6-4-0.

"We're very pleased with our season," said Lambright, in his 12th year as boss of the Bulldogs, "but we sure would've preferred to end our regular season on a winning note. The loss to Northeast Louisiana (18-0) in our last game took a little luster off our record."

Still, the Techsters produced another outstanding team and plenty of outstanding performers.

Two of the Bulldogs are All-Americans, seven earned first-unit All-SLC honors, and another two were recipients of individual honors in the conference.

Tech finished no lower than third place in seven of the eight statistical categories in the conference.

The Bulldogs broke even in their first four games, winning two and losing twice, but then reeled off four victories in the next five weekends to claim another post-season berth.

Tech, which had went 9-1-2 during the 1977 season, fell to highly-regarded University of Tennessee-Chattanooga, 12-7, in the season opener. The Moccasins, ranked No. 20 in one pre-season poll, limited the Bulldogs' powerful offense to only 133 yards.

A weekend later, the Techsters started their quest for the SLC crown by outlasting Texas-Arlington, 28-21. Junior quarterback Keith Thibodeaux hurled a 26-yard touchdown pass to senior wide receiver Scooter Spruiell for the game-tying score and junior safety Jean Dornier clinched the victory with a 34-yard pass interception TD return.

Then came a 34-20 rout over league foe McNeese State in which the Bulldogs rallied from a 17-3 deficit in the third quarter.

Thibodeaux once again generated the offensive spark with three touchdown passes, two of 'em to running backs George Yates and Bryan Leviston.

Tech suffered its only conference loss a weekend later, as Southwestern Louisiana pinned on a 24-6 defeat.

The Bulldogs failed to turn scoring opportunities into points and had their high-scoring offense stalled by an alert Ragin' Cajun defense.

USL, which was drummed by East Carolina, 38-9, totalled 291 yards.

Tech's hopes of another journey to an NCAA-sanctioned game (they've played in bowl games for the past 11 years) were rejuvenated a Saturday later when they stunned previously unbeaten Ball State University, 17-7.

A 68-yard touchdown pass from Thibodeaux to Spruiell and a 44-yard field goal by placekicker Keith Swilley were second half heroics against the Cardinals, who had entered the game with the nation's second longest winning streak at 13 games.

Tech routed arch-rival Northwestern Louisiana, 45-20, in the annual State Fair Classic, then dropped a heart-breaking 16-14 decision to rugged North Texas State a weekend later. In the latter game, the Bulldogs' hopes of a come-from-behind victory were stopped on a fumble deep in NTS territory in the final 30 seconds.

"We came together as a team a great deal after that loss," said Thibodeaux. "We knew what we had to do to win the conference. We were determined to win our next two games and clinch the title again."

Tech did it, too, with a 40-3 whalloping of Lamar University and a 24-10 conquest of Arkansas State in the league's "Game of the Year."

Thibodeaux completed 10 of 14 passes for 147 yards and Yates rushed for 51 yards and two touchdowns on 11 carries to lead the victory over Lamar.

Yates, a sensational sophomore tailback, totalled 138 yards and scored three times to lead that win over Arkansas State.

In a regular season finale against Northeast Louisiana, the Bulldogs failed to get their offense moving and were unable to score a point for the first time in 98 games. Not since the 1970 season had a Tech team been shut out.

Second teammers included offensive lineman Rodney Jones, defensive tackle Ronnie Padgett, and defensive back Lavon James.

Yates finished as the league's Number One scorer with six points per game (a total of 60 on 10 touchdowns), Spruiell was the receiving leader with 37 receptions for 642 yards and four touchdowns, and Thibodeaux was runner-up in passing with 81 completions in 198 attempts for 1,128 yards and five touchdowns.

McCann, who had 31 sacks for minus 203 yards and 105 total tackles, was named co"Most Valuable Player" on defense in the conference and a third team All-America pick by the Associated Press.

Jessie Clark, a 215-pound fullback who gained 223 yards on 68 carries, was designated as the "Freshman of the Year" for the conference.

ECU Tops Lynchburg

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"We needed a win and we won," Coach Larry Gillman said last night. "That's about the best I can say about it."

And that's about all there was to it, too.

East Carolina won, but they weren't very pretty in the way they did it.

In fact, by the time it was in the final stages, some of the ECU fans were cheering Lynchburg's Hornets, III team that nearly came back after trailing by as much as 16 points.

East Carolina did win, however, 75-68, their third win in seven games.

But Wayne Proffitt's Hornets, playing without one starter, and without a single scholarship player, may have come out as the big winners in the game.

In many ways, they outshone the Pirates. They outshot the Bucs, 46.7 per cent to 42.3 per cent. Despite a height disadvantage, they came within two of the Bucs on the boards, 41-39, and their tallest player, 6-8 E.D. Schechterly, was the leading rebounder with 16.

In the closing stages of the game, the Pirates went into a spread offense to control the ball, and that brought forth boos from the stands. After working the ball, the Pirates took bad shots, missed, and were beaten off the boards for the rebounds. At other times, they had turnovers. The Hornets used that time to cut the lead from nine back to five.

"I told the kids that if we could get three turnovers without letting them score, we could still win the game," Proffitt said. "Our scouting report said they couldn't hold the ball, I don't think they can."

Proffitt also said that he felt the Pirates would have trouble against a zone, and in a slower tempoed game, according to the scouting report. "If we had done a better job on defense in the first half, I really think we'd have had a better chance to win it."

Proffitt also expressed surprise that the Hornets had been able to stick with the Pirates on the boards.

Pirate coach Larry Gillman pointed out that Oliver Mack, who played 34 minutes, but was in-and-out throughout the evening, is still not up to par. "We've had him in for blood tests, but we don't have the results yet. He's not himself, that's for sure. And Al Tyson didn't play tonight because of an ankle problem."

Gillman added that while the game wasn't artistic, the Pirates got the win they needed in the game. "I'm not happy with the way we played. We've got our work cut out for us in getting ready to play Maryland on Saturday, but we're looking forward to it."

The coach pointed out that the Pirates were able to move out by 16, but then got sloppy. "I really don't think we've played well most of the season so far. We played well in the second half against William & Mary, and for about 40 minutes against Tennessee. And I guess, maybe five minutes against Indiana State, but that's all."

Talking about the delay game, Gillman said that the Pirates wanted to work the offense in the pattern to get it ready for tougher games. "We have two different schemes, and about half the people were running one pattern, and the others were running the other one. We just didn't get together with it. And then, we took some bad shots instead of good ones."

East Carolina got the initial lead in the first 15 seconds on a jumper in the lane by Greg Cornelius. Lynchburg twice tied it at 2-2 and 4-4 before the Pirates ran off nine unanswered points, including four by Cornelius, and a three-pointer by Frank Hobson.

From the 13-4 lead, the Pirates upped it to 19-9 and then to 24-13 with 12:12 left. But Lynchburg put together a pair of baskets a couple of times over the next four minutes to cut the lead to five. East Carolina finally pushed it back out to ten at 46-36 at the end of the half.

The Bucs got the first two points of the second half, and after a Hornet basket, added three more buckets, two by Hobson, for a 54-38 lead with 17:11 to go.

A baseline jumper by Mack with 15:42 remaining made it 16 once more, for the last time, 58-42.

After that, Lynchburg began a steady comeback as the Pirates had shooting troubles (hitting just 37.5 per cent in the half).

The Bucs were still ahead by 11 with just under eight minutes left, 69-58, but got only one more field goal the rest of the night, while the momentum swung to the Hornets, who didn't have enough time to pull it out against the slow-down.

Cornelius led the Pirates with 15 points and 13 rebounds, while Hobson had 14 and Mack had 12.

Schechterly had 20 points, and Dorsey Bumbrey had 19 to lead Lynchburg, while Darrell Mann added 12. Schechterly also blocked four shots.

The Pirates travel to Maryland on Saturday to close out the pre-holiday schedule. They return to action after that on January 29 in the Connecticut Mutual Classic facing Manhattan.

Things Returning To Normal In NBA

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Things are returning to normal around the National Basketball Association — the Houston Rockets are back on top of the Central Division and the Denver Nuggets are climbing in the Midwest.

After stumbling through the first two months of the season, the Rockets finally moved ahead of Atlanta with a 112-105 victory over the Boston Celtics Tuesday night. Moses Malone was the big man for the Rockets with 28 points and 20 rebounds.

Rockets 112, Celtics 105

The game was spiced by six technical fouls, all against the Celtics. Player-coach Dave Cowens was in foul trouble throughout the game and scored only three points in 14 minutes before picking up two technicals and being ejected. Rudy Tomjanovich added 25 points as Houston won its third in a row. The Rockets led 59-46 at the half and by as much as 19 poinzs after that.

Nuggets 107, Spurs 103

San Antonio led by seven with 2:12 left in the third period but couldn't hold on as McGinnis hit seven free throws in the final 3½ minutes, including two with 23 seconds to play to snap a 103-103 tie.

Charlie Scott then made two big defensive plays, stripping George Gervin of the ball as he drove to the basket and then picking off an errant pass by Larry Kenon. He was later fouled and clinched the victory with two free throws.

Clippers 105, Knicks 103

Lloyd Free sank two free throws with four seconds left to beat the Knicks, the second game in a row that he has won with late foul shots. Sunday night in Milwaukee he sank two with nine seconds left to give the Clippers a 107-106 decision over the Bucks.

Randy Smith, celebrating his 30th birthday, led San Diego with 28 points and Free scored 26 as the Clippers spoiled the 1,000th game of Knicks Coach Red Holzman. Holzman, who has a record of 556-444, joined Red Auerbach as the only coaches to reach the 1,000-game plateau.

Bucks 120, Suns 114

Marques Johnson scored a career-high 40 points to help Milwaukee snap a four-game losing streak. Phoenix got 36 points and 12 assists from Paul Westphal and 31 points from Walter Davis.

Cavs 127, Pistons 110

Rookie Mike Mitchell, who has spent most of his time on the bench, scored a pro-high 28 points to help Cleveland top Detroit. He later said it felt good to be contributing.

Bulls 99, Warriors 94

Artis Gilmore scored 26 points, including four free throws in the final 48 seconds, as Chicago posted its sixth consecutive victory despite 30 points by Golden State's Robert Parish.

Jazz 109, Pacers 103

New Orleans snapped a fourgame losing streak by beating Indiana, taking command with 10 straight points early in the fourth quarter. Pete Maravich had 32 points for the Jazz and Truck Robinson 31.

Blazers 117, Lakers 115

Tom Owens scored 27 points, including two key baskets in the final minutes, as the Blazers snapped a four-game losing streak. Rookie Ron Brewer contributed 24 points for Portland, while Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 31 points and 18 rebounds for the Lakers.

Knight's Pressure Shot Keys Panthers Over Rampants

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

The final buzzer had sounded when North Pitt's Henry Knight stepped up to the line to shoot a one-and-one against Rose High last night. The score was tied at 53-53 and Rampant coach Jim Brewington had already called time out to give Knight a chance to think about his upcoming attempt.

Knight took a couple of dribbles and launched a high, arching shot that zipped through the net to give the Panthers a 54-53 victory. The second shot wasn't necessary.

The win, which avenged an earlier North Pitt loss, was an uphill battle for the Panthers, who trailed by as many as 14 points midway through the third quarter.

But Knight, who got nine of his 13 points from that point on, led North Pitt in a rally that tied the game with 2:43 left, and then popped in the winning point.

"Henry's been working on that," smiled Panther coach Cobby Deans when asked about the pressure-packed charity shot. "Tonight was his best all-around effort for us, and I'm glad he had a chance to win it."

Deans was proud of the way his team hung in there and managed to come back when it seemed all was lost. "We kept our heads a little better than we've been doing and Mickey Hines, Terry Shelton and Henry Knight played well down the stretch.

Rose led by 10 points at the half and after the Rampants stretched that margin to 14, Deans called for some pressure defense. The Panthers started with a half-court zone and later switched to a full-court zone press.

"The press didn't cause them to turn it over that much," Deans noted, "but it got them running and moving out of their pattern."

The Rampants had six turnovers in the fourth quarter, including four in the final three minutes.

North Pitt was also able to sink foul shots when they counted. The final seven points for the Panthers came at the line.

The rally began with just over two minutes left in the third quarter when Hines scored from underneath to make it 42-31. North Pitt went on to score six more unanswered points before the end of the period to make it 42-37 going into the final frame.

Hines hit a pair of free throws with 6:31 left in the game to pull his team to within one point, 44-43. But Rose got four from the line by Denis Ross to move back out in front by five.

North Pitt finally tied it on pair of foul shots by Shelton that made it 52-52, and Hines connected on the first end of a one-and-one to make it 53-all with 1:30 left.

He missed the second shot and Rampant Donald House grabbed the rebound. Rose tried to hold the ball for the last shot, but was called for traveling with eight seconds on the clock.

The Panthers got the ball in to Shelton, who threw it to Knight near midcourt. Just before the buzzer sounded, Knight was fouled. The referee appeared to hesitate before signalling Knight would go to the line with time expired.

Ross led all scorers with 19 points for the Rampants, while Donald House had 12 and Tyrone Tucker 10. Hines and Langley each chipped in 14 for North Pitt.

Brewington seemed pleased with some phases of his club's play, despite the loss. "It was probably the best defensive game we've played," he said. "We're getting it together; we'll be a good ballclub before the season is over."

Brewington noted, "We made some turnovers there at the end, and North Pitt's a good ballclub. But you hate to lose the ones you ought to win; we led the whole game."

Deans had a different point of view. "This was the second one we've won like this. It's good to win the close ones."

North Pitt also chalked up a victory in the girls' game. The Pant-HERS rebounded from an 8-6 first-quarter deficit to go up 16-13 at halftime, and they led 30-22 going into the final quarter.

Margaret McGlohon keyed the Rampettes in a fourth-quarter rally, canning a pair of foul shots to pull them to within three, 39-36, with 47 seconds left.

But the Pant-HERS, with eight final-point points from Cynthia Barnes, held on to win 42-37.

Barnes led all scorers with 18 points, while teammate Carolyn Best had 13. Donna Cullipher had 17 points for Rose.

Steelers, Cowboys Meet In Super Bowl?

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

There is a sneaking suspicion in these quarters that when Super Bowl XIII kicks off in the Orange Bowl, the first National Football League championship game in Miami since MCMLXXVI, you may well see the same old uniforms — worn by the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys.

As the season winds down, these two-time winners of pro football's ultimate game are the dominant forces in their respective conferences in what they historically do best, namely just about everything.

With Pittsburgh, the winningest team in the league as well as the American Conference, the primary weapon is the Steel Curtain, the defense which turned a 40-year patsy into a team not only to be respected but to be feared.

With Dallas, the defending NFL champs, the dominant force is the shotgun and all the rest of Tom Landry's complexities which have formulated the the National Conference's No. 1 offense, one so potent even the Cowboys' own flex defense would have trouble handling it.

Consider this bit of trivia: Pittsburgh has not allowed a touchdown in the first period of any game this season. The last time they had a streak like that going was after the 1975 season, more specifically on Jan. 18, 1976 ... in Super Bowl X when Drew Pearson caught one of Roger Staubach's two touchdown passes. Terry Bradshaw threw two for the Steelers that day.

This year that Pittsburgh defense has allowed just 178 points. Only one team has done better — Denver with 177. But the Broncos haven't scored all that many, either, their 265 being fifth from the bottom of the conference while Pittsburgh's 335 is fourth from the top.

In the NFC, no one has come close to the Cowboys' scoring (354 points), nor has anyone allowed less than Dallas' 201.

The engineers of these two locomotives are Bradshaw and Staubach, who just happen to be the AFC and NFC passing leaders. Terry is No. 1 in NFL touchdown passes with 26. No. 2? Roger, of course, with 25.

And to complement the aerial game, each team has a running sensation — Tony Dorsett of Dallas with 1,204 yards and Franco Harris of Pittsburgh with 1,061.

In the girls' game, Bath edged ahead, 10-8 after one period. Both teams scored eight points in the second quarter, leaving Bath up by 18-16 at the half.

Bath enlarged its lead in the third quarter, pulling out to a 37-26 lead. Bear Grass outhit Bath, 19-18, in the final period, to no avail.

Molly Hopkins led Bath with 34 points, while Joette Rogers had 18 for the Lady Bears, now 2-5 overall.

Hoosiers Dismissed For Marijuana Use

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Use of marijuana whistled three players off the Indiana University basketeball team and has left five others on probation, according to published reports around the state today.

The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette said in a copyright story in this morning's edition, "Marijuana use by eight players apparently prompted Indiana Coach Bobby Knight's decision to dismiss three players and put five others on probation."

The Louisville Courier-Journal, Indianapolis Star and the Indiana Daily Student, campus newspaper here, carried similar reports. The Courier-Journal said in its copyright story one of the disciplined athletes, whom it did not identify, said marijuana was the reason behind some of the dismissals and probations.

The stories indicated the incident occurred while Indiana was in Anchorage, Alaska for Sea Wolf tournament Nov. 2425.

Baker had averaged 7.2 points a game; Roberson 3.5, and Cox 2.0.

The other five on probation, who Knight said would be allowed to practice and play with the rest of the team, were sophomore center Ray Tolbert, the leading scrrer at 14.2 and the only player to have started every game this year; junior forward Mike Woodson, No. 2 scorer at 12.2; and reserves Eric Kirchner and Phil Isenbarger, both sophomores, and freshman Landon Turner.

Edenton put on a rally in the third period, 18-8, but still trailed 50-37, as the final quarter opened. They again outhit the 'Skins, 15-14, but it wasn't enough.

Edward Ward led Roanoke with 22 points, while Jasper Martin had 21. Ward led Edenton with 20, with Simon adding 14.

The Roanoke girls also jumped out early, 13-6, and built their lead to 30-15 at the half. They continued to pull away, moving out to a 40-23 lead after three quarters. Edenton rallied, 16-12, in the final period to set the final margin.

Gminski: Duke Nucleus

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Without 6-11 freshman forward Mike Gminski's ability, Duke's Gene Banks and Jim Spanarkel might be little more than a couple of standout athletes playing on a respectable basketball team.

But add Gminski's rebounds, defense and skyhooks and you've got a No. 1 basketball team and folks arguing about whether Banks or Spanarkel is the lead man.

"He is the nucleus of our offense," admits Sparnarkel. "Everything rotates around him. He does so many things well that people don't realize it until the game is over."

Gminski is now regarded as the finest center in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"If anybody is going to make something of himself, he's the guy who will do it," said guard Bob Bender.

Gminski may be only 19years-old, but his ability is that of a seasoned veteran. As an offensive weapon, he accurately shoots jumpers from a distance. But his coaches prefer that he hang around the basket to rebound, dunk or shoot a recently acquired skyhook that he banks off the backboard with amazing regularity.

He proved himself on defense during the 1976 Big Four tournament. Unlike other big men who jumped high to block shots and sent the ball sailing into the stands, Gminski held his feet until the last moment, when he'd simply tap the ball back into action. More often than not, a teammate would pick it up.

He finished that year with a 15-point scoring average and a 10.7 rebounding average, and shared rookie of the year honors with North Carolina State's Hawkeye Whitney.

Last season, Gminski upped his scoring standard to 20 points per game and again averaged about 10 rebounds.

This year, he was named MVP in the Big Four tournament, and the Blue Devils captured the championship trophy for the first time in the tournament's history.

Pace Wins Pair

Pace Academy swept a pair of junior high basketball games from St. Peters yesterday, winning 22-10 in the girls' game and 64-34 in the boys' contest.

Mary Catherine Clark led all scorers in the girls' game with 12, while Crowell Pope scored 20, Fred Pollard 10 and David Davenport 12 for the Pace boys. Steve Holloman led St. Peters with 25.

St. Peters won the junior varsity game 22-17 in overtime.

Lady Bears Rebuilding

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

BEAR GRASS — Hampered by the loss of all five starters from last year's team, the Bear Grass High School girls' basketball squad has had things tough so far this year.

Going into last night's game with Bath, the Lady Bears had won just two of six starts.

"We don't have a lot of experience," Coach Henry Rogers said. "One of our starters this year wasn't even on the team last year, and only three of the girls who are starting had any experience last year."

Currently, the Bears are starting Joette Rogers and Stephanie Andrews at the guards, Paula Williams at center, and Zowie Williams and Angela Coltrain at the forwards. "Four of them lettered last year," Rogers said, "but all you had to do was to be on the team to letter. You didn't have a minimum playing time."

Rogers has the most experience of the starters. "She did start a couple of games last year when someone was out sick, but that was about it. She's our team leader on the floor and does just about all of our ballhanding. She also does most of the scoring, although Paula has been a high scorer for us from time to time, but not consistantly."

Coltrain, Zowie Williams and Andrews are all seniors, along with reserve Karen Godard. "And Zowie didn't play at all last year," Rogers added.

"We've had trouble handling the ball. The press has really hurt us. It's mainly just the lack of experience."

Rogers said the shooting has been weak overall, but good at times. "We've had a couple of games where we've shot 42 per cent or so, but a lot of times we've gotten off to real poor starts, and that's hurt us."

The rebounding has been adequate, with the two Williams girls. "But we still lack experience in knowing how to block out and when to go for the ball."

Top reserves are listed as Kay Taylor, Vickie Taylor, Linda Whitehurst and Paula Stokes. Other members of the team are Kathy Rawls, Cassandra Andrews, Sharon Rogerson and Godard.

"Our conference is strong. I look to Belhaven to be the best, but Chocowinity and Pantego both have good teams. I really can't see us challenging for the title.

"We have a lot of work to do," Rogers added. "I hope we can build for the future. One thing is for sure, I don't want to be in a position of having to replace all five starters in the same year again."

Ridgecroft Rolls Past Martin Acad.

EVERETTES — Ridgecroft Academy swept three games from Martin Academy last night. The visitors won the boys game, 75-58, the girls, 48-22, and the junior varsity, 53-32.

In the girls' game, Ridgecroft zoomed out to a 12-0 lead after one period and never had trouble. They upped the margin to 38-3 by halftime, and held a 46-13 lead going into the final period.

H. Dixon led Ridgecroft with 13, while E. Revelle added 12. Marcia Griffin led Martin with 10.

Ridgecroft's boys slipped out into a 20-16 lead in the first period, then outscored the Pioneers, 21-10, in the second quarter, taking a 41-26 lead at the half.

Ridgecroft outhit Martin, 19-10, in the third period to move out by 60-36, and allowed a 22-15 comeback in the last frame.

McKin led Ridgecroft with 15, while James had 11 and Worrell had 10. Clif Haislip led Martin with 22, while Grady Smith had 21 and Ricky Simpson had 13.

Martin is now 1-4 (girls) and 2-3 (boys) and travels to Albemarle Academy on Friday.

Reform Has Speeded The Travel Line

BY MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

There have been changes in customs in the United States — welcome changes for American travelers returning from overseas.

Clearing controls now is expected to be faster and less complicated as a result of recent actions by Congress and the customs and immigration services.

A customs reform law has tripled the duty-free allowances on foreign purchases, set a flat rate instead of a complicated sliding scale on overages and eased other restrictions.

But for the first time it does limit the number of cigarettes that can be brought in duty free.

A Citizens Bypass System has been introduced at major international gateway airports to expedite processing of returning U.S. citizens. Passport-carrying Americans may now claim their luggage and proceed directly to special U.S. customs lanes for a combined federal inspection. Previously, they had to wait on line with foreign passengers, who usually take longer to clear immigration, health and customs controls.

The reform law, effective Nov. 2, raised the duty-free allowance on goods bought in foreign countries from $100 to $300 and set a flat 10 percent duty rate on the next $600 worth. All articles must still accompany the purchaser.

For Americans returning from, or via, the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa or Guam, the duty-free exemption has been increased from $200 to $600, including no more than $300 worth bought elsewhere. In addition, these travelers now can apply the exemption and a new five percent flat duty rate on overages to purchases mailed home from the U.S. island possessions. Such articles still must be declared on return to the U.S.

Previously, goods acquired in excess of personal exemptions were liable to duty at rates established by the government. Inspectors had to check the tariff schedules to figure out charges, a sometimes lengthy process.

Americans in foreign countries now can mail gift parcels valued up to $25 to the United States duty-free, compared to $10 previously. The gift parcel exemption from the U.S. possessions has been upped from $20 to $40. But recipients may not get more than one parcel a day and mailing liquor, tobacco and perfume is prohibited.

While there was no change made in the amount of liquor that can be included in the duty-free exemption (one gallon per adult from the U.S. possessions and one quart elsewhere), the law now specifies that travelers may include only 200 cigarettes (one carton) in the exemption. The former law was rather vague, referring only to "a quantity suitable for personal use." Heavy smokers returning, for instance, from the U.S. Virgin Islands where prices were 50 percent and more lower than in the United States, often loaded up with 20 or more cartons.

Actually, the only limit on purchases made abroad is on banned or restricted items. All articles bought in duty-free or free-port shops are subject to duty when brought into the U.S. if the total exceeds the basic exemptions, unless they come within the U.S. Generalized System of Preferences.

Everybody who enters the U.S. must clear through customs. Everything acquired aboard by a returning American must be declared, including gifts and articles that might have been bought and used during the trip. The law also requires repairs and alterations to articles taken abroad from the U.S. be declared on return.

Keep all sales and other receipts handy. If possible, keep all purchases in one suitcase.

Penalties for lying or otherwise misrepresenting an article are stiff, usually a fine in addition to duty. Under some circumstances, an item can be seized and forfeited if the penalty is not paid.

The one-stop processing was tested at Dulles International Airport in Washington, D.C. with encouraging results — under ideal conditions, all international arrivals cleared federal inspections up to 20 percent faster.

The New Gymnastics Boom Is Attracting Adults

By POHLA SMITH

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Obviously, the trend-setters who speak so lyrically of the highs they get jogging have never soared between the uneven parallel bars, thrown a back handspring or somersaulted off a miniature trampoline.

If they had, there's a good possibility the nation would be going through a gymnastics craze instead of a running mania.

Even without some famous person proclaiming in a national magazine or on a network talk show that the secret behind his youthful appearance and vitality is gymnastics, there has been a miniature explosion of adults, including myself, upon the American gymnastics scene in the past three to four years.

Until then, gymnastics — athletic activity involving tumbling and apparatus such as the horse, even and uneven parallel bars and rings — had been almost exclusively the purview of young people participating at school or any of the estimated 2,500 private gyms belonging to the U.S. Association of Independent Gymnastics Clubs.

Association president Ed Knepper of Wilmington, Del., says participation by adults, was "almost nil." In fact, most people were under the wrong impression that adults were not physically capable of engaging in the sport.

Now, Knepper says, adult participation is "pretty widespread. I'd say of those 2,500 clubs, most likely about 40 percent of them offer some sort of gymnastics program for adults."

The programs include traditional gymnastics; aerobic dance, which stresses cardiovascular and respiratory development through alternating bursts of frenetic and relaxing dance movements, and modern rhythmical gymnastics, a combination of acrobatics, gymnastic tumbling and dance set to music.

Knepper and other experts cite several major factors for growing adult participation:

—Title IX, the federal ruling that forced American schools to offer sports competition for girls and women. Females who were introduced to gymnastics in high school or college graduated and began looking for a means to continue the activity, Knepper said.

—The widespread publicity gymnastics received during the 1972 and 1976 Olympics, which also sparked growth in the number of American children participating in the sport.

—And the physical fitness craze sweeping the United States.

The latter reason seems to be the one most responsible for drawing adults into the sport.

At the University of Pittsburgh, a non-credit course called "Fitness through Gymnastics" is offered three times a year. School officials said they have been forced to turn away prospective students each of the six terms since the course began.

At the private school I attend, virtually all the 60 adult students, including myself, cite a desire to get in shape and stay that way as their reason for involvement.

Most of us have participated in many other kinds of physical activities but found none of them so satisfying as gymnastics. Because a gymnast is constantly working on learning new skills or creating new routines, there is none of the boredom that people encounter in jogging, swimming, calisthenics or weight-lifting.

And, as Knepper points out, "gymnastics builds things that running doesn't build: it requires use of all of your muscles (including some you never knew existed) and it builds a special type of self-confidence in your body. When you learn to work upside down, you achieve a control of your body that you never had before."

Gymnastics requires great strength — you must lift your entire weight over your head even to perform a simple handstand — as well as flexibility and coordination. And participating in the sport encourages an overweight person to diet, since the less you weigh the easier it is to throw your weight onto your hands or over a horse.

The sport has gotten a bad rap because of the danger of back, neck or head injuries inherent in gymnastics at the elite level of competition — what you see in the Olympics. But with safe equipment and proper training and supervision, most serious injuries can be averted.

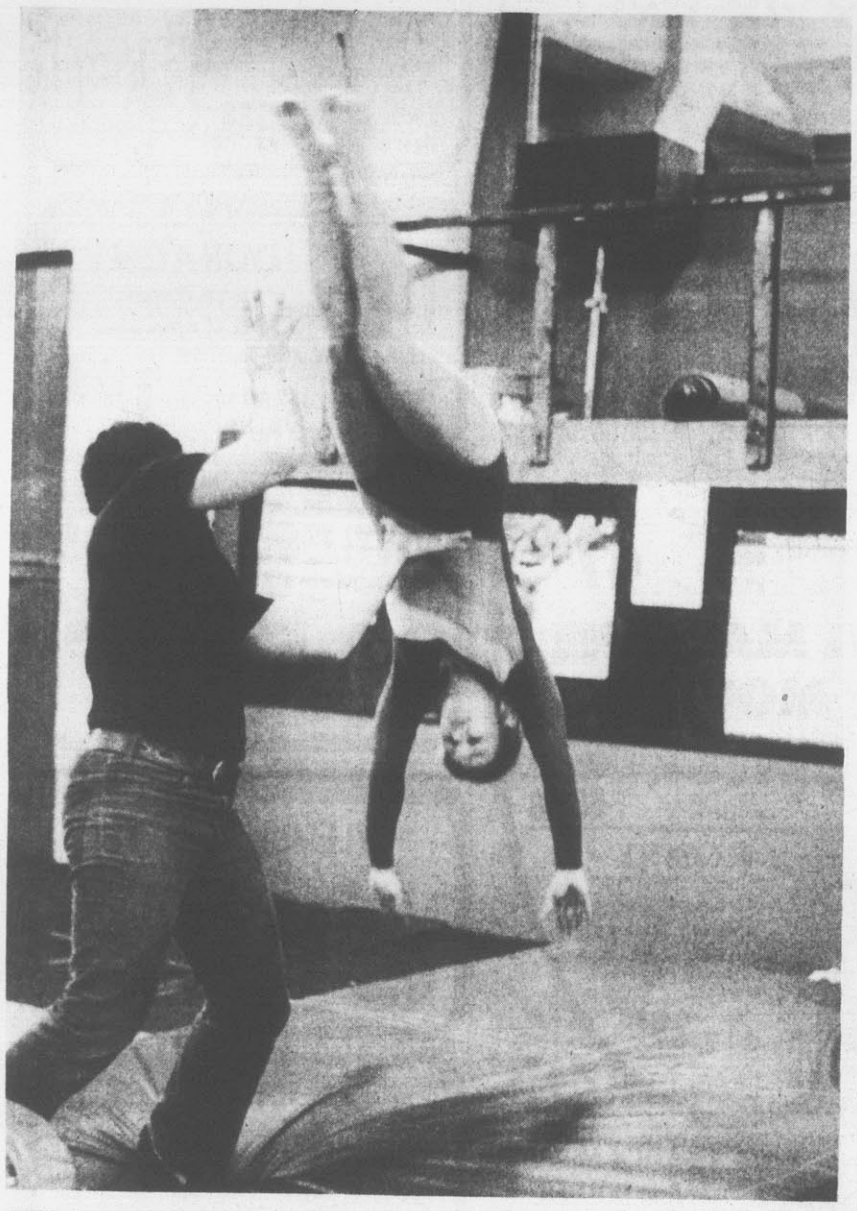
Knepper says common injuries are the ame as those encountered by runners and basketball and volleyball players: ankle and knee sprains, muscle soreness, tendonitis and wrist and finger injuries.

The cost of participation is no greater than belonging to a racquet club or an exercise spa. In many cases it is much cheaper.

The basic uniform for women is a leotard and socks. Men usually wear gym shorts and Tshirts. Schools and gyms provide the equipment. Fees for lessons or club memberships can be as low as $2.50 an hour.

If there is any drawback to adult gymnastics, it is the expectation some participants have of becoming as proficient as Romania's Nadia Comaneci. Unless a person has been active in the sport since childhood, that level is probably unattainable.n

Then again, most weekend athletes probably find their goals in any sport exceed their capabilities.



FOR ADULTS, TOO — Up until now, gymnastics involving tumbling and apparatus such as the horse, even and uneven parallel bars and rings, has been exclusive to young people. It's changed. Adults such as Pohla Smith participate. (UPI Photo)

Holiday Travel 'Not Pleasant'

By SUSAN S. STEVENS

CHICAGO (UPI) — The poignant description of holiday travel in "Jingle Bells" — "Oh, what fun it is to ride in anonehorse open sleigh ..." just does not apply in this day and age, a psychiatrist says.

Getting together with family on holidays is not as easy as people expect, and those who are caught unaware often become hostile, said Dr. David A. Rothstein of Michael Reese Hospital.

"Although jetting to the folks is not the same as sledding through the woods to grandma's house, remember,. even that was not really so pleasant," Rothstein said. "It was snowy-cold and the sled often got stuck."

Even travel by private car is not necessarily pleasant, because driving is stressful, he said, not mentioning the possibility of snow and ice on winter holidays.

Rothstein, a member of the Psychosomatic and Psychiatric Institute, urges holiday travelers to be realistic when they start their trips.

"Today's unpleasantness is caused by the crush of people. Expect it, as well as frustrations, delays and rudeness.

"From the moment you leave your house you are in strange surroundings. You are off familiar turf, in unfamiliar territory. You have to rely on strangers to get you safely where you are going. It is very frustrating for most people to lose such control and independence.

"Consequently, many people develop holiday travel hostility."

Rothstein does not suggest avoiding the trip.

"Just think of how lucky you are to have a family to be with at this time. And don't expect too much once you're all together."

He advises travelers to plan ahead.

Pack snacks and gum.

"This will help you avoid long lines at food counters and restaurants," he said, and "...the chewing will give your nerves an outlet.

"And, by all means, don't pick this time to diet: you've enough stresses in travel and reunion."

Rothstein also advises people to take along plenty of reading matter, games, needlepoint, knitting or their favorite time-occupier.

"In other words, prepare to wait longer than you expect. If things get so frustrating that you have to blow off some steam, go ahead. But keep in mind that if you get the ticket agent, conductor or flight attendant upset, he or she won't feel much like serving you.

"If you have realistic expectations, you won't be disappointed. You may even be pleasantly surprised."

Utah Judge Has Strong Views

By MICHAEL WHITNEY

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah Supreme Court Chief Justice Albert H. Ellett doesn't care for killers, pornographers, federal judges or the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"This country is going to fall apart if the federals don't get their noses out of the states' business," says Ellett, who is 80 and is retiring after a 48-year legal career that began with a $6 correspondence course.

In his five decades on the bench, Ellett firmly believed state courts should have the final say on such matters as capital punishment, pornography and civil rights.

He voted to let Gary Gilmore die before a Utah firing squad in 1977, the only execution in the United States in a dozen years. Ellett sentenced several men to die during his years as a district court judge and is bothered by anti-capital punishment crusaders who say execution is cruel and unusual punishment.

"Any damn fool ought to know it's not unusual," he said. "It's been common since before Christ."

Judges who free pornographers on constitutional grounds are "mind-warped queers," he said in a 1977 ruling upholding the conviction of an X-rated movie theater operator.

"Judges who seek to find technical excuses to permit such pictures to be shown under the pretense of finding some intrinsic value to it are reminiscent of a dog that returns to his vomit in search of some morsel in the filth which may have some redeeming value to his own taste," he wrote.

Ellett, who looks younger than his 80 years, stays healthy by walking down Utah's steep Capitol Hill every day on his lunch hour — a two-mile round trip. In order to give himself some reason to make the walk, Ellett runs errands in person that he could accomplish by mail, such as paying his utility bills.

He also likes to hike, backpack and camp in Utah's mountains. He is an avid photographer.

In 1968 he ruled that the 14th Amendment, which says constitutional rights apply equally to citizens of all states, was not legally passed by Congress following the Civil War. He argued that many of the states that ratified the amendment were occupied by federal troops and had no freedom to vote against it.

"Why, it would be like having Congress refuse to seat senators and congressmen from states who haven't ratified the Equal Rights Amendment and then sending federal troops into those states to take over their governments and run them until they do ratify," he said.

"That's what happened with the 14th Amendment. It wouldn't be legal with this women's lib amendment and it wasn't legal with the 14th Amendment either."

Ellett's views, particularly on the 14th Amendment, have resulted in severe criticism of the Utah court by legal scholars. University of Utah constitutional law Professor Edwin Firmage attacked the court in a 1975 Law Review article for ignoring history.

"The time has long since passed that such a theory can be seriously entertained for purposes of declaring invalid a cornerstone of a century's constitutional law, especially by a state court," Firmage wrote.

But many have applauded the court, including anti-pornography groups.

Of his critics, Ellett said, "I think they're just a bunch of cowards who won't stand up for the rights given to states by the Constitution. If the U.S. Supreme Court makes a mistake you ought not to cow down to it. You ought to stand up and say they made a mistake."

Ellett arrived in Utah in 1920 from Texas, where he had been a high school teacher at age 17. He taught business courses and got a job as an accountant in Salt Lake City on the strength of his business teaching background.

He intended to make accounting his career but was "insulted" into studying law in 1928 when a company lawyer refused to give him a legal opinion to settle an argument.

"He told me that if I really wanted to know the answer I should go to law school. I told him I couldn't do that because I had a family to support, and he said, 'Well then, why don't you take a correspondence course?' That made me so mad I told him I would, and I went right downstairs and looked up an ad I'd seen in a magazine."

He passed the Utah Bar exam in 1930, worked as a private attorney and became a Salt Lake City Court judge in 1934. Six years later, Ellett moved up to the state's Third District Court bench, a post he held for 26 years. In 1966 he was appointed to the state Supreme Court. He became chief justice in 1976.

In retirement, Ellett said, he "won't even open a law book" because of his distaste for the rulings of federal courts.

"The federals are trying to take all power unto themselves. There's going to have to be a confrontation to decide who has the final say in state matters."

Aspiring Conductors Provided An 'Apprenticeship

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Symphony orchestra conducting has its Catch-22 aspects. Aspiring conductors lack enough experience for posts with leading orchestras. Orchestras have trouble finding conductors who are experienced enough.

For this reason, only one of America's six top budgeted orchestras, the Cleveland Symphony, has a native American conductor, even though there are several score important orchestras and about 1,400 lesser orchestras in the country where conductors could obtain training. Unfortunately, assistant conductorships with most is on a semi-pro or even amateur basis.

This situation may gradually change because of an innovative program that underwrites appointments of 10 to 12 gifted young conductors to perform for up to three years with highly select orchestras and opera companies, working closely with ranking conductors. It appears to be the only sure way of building a career in conducting in America today.

Although in operation only five years the Exxon Arts Endowment Conductors Program has had notable success. Nine Conductors have completed the program. Six are still enrolled. Three appointments are to be made in the near future.

"Every conductor who has completed the program has moved upward without exception," said Ed Alley of Affiliate Artists, the New York-based career building organization that created the program for Exxon Corp. and the National Endowment for the Arts.

"Assistant and associate conductors of symphonies tend to move laterally in their orchestral careers. We call it the assistant conductor syndrome and we're trying to break it. Our Exxon conductors generally are the first to be considered for director's jobs. It's a seal of approval." As examples of upward mobility, Alley cited conductors Michael Palmer, who worked with the Atlanta Symphony and is now director of the Wichita Symphony; Thomas Michalak, who worked with the Pittsburgh Symphony and is now director of the New Jersey Symphony; and John DeMain, who worked with the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra and is now principal conductor of the Houston Opera.

He also mentioned Murry Sidlin, who worked with the National Symphony and is now director of the New Haven Symphony; John Covelli, who worked with the Milwaukee Symphony and is now director of the Flint Symphony; and Calvin Simmons, who worked with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and was recently appointed director of the Oakland Symphony.

Simmons, 28, is the only black in the Western states in charge of a community symphony. He will make his Metropolitan Opera debut in New York Dec. 20, conducting "Hansel and Gretel."

"Age doesn't matter," Simmons said, referring to his relative youth in the conducting field. "I've worked with every part of the orchestra. That's the beauty of the program."

"It's been a lifesaver for me," said Peter Perrett, currently conductor with the Buffalo Philharmonic. "I did guest conducting in Europe and wanted to come back to America, but I had no way to do it. Then I heard of this program and applied."

The conductors program is budgeted at about $250,000 a year. Most goes for the annual salaries of the conductors, which start at about $20,000. The program also picks up expenses for guest appearances by each conductor with all the participating orchestras and a meeting three times a year of all conductors with program adviser Max Rudolf, world famous conductor and teacher, in Philadelphia.

The conductors have no contract. Their progress is reviewed each year. Most conduct at least one subscription concert a week by the second year of their appointment, conduct on tour, and take charge of special aspects of the orchestra's schedule, such as family concert series. All help plan musical programming, fund raising, work with the orchestra board, and sit in on union negotiations.

"The conductors get good exposure to all aspects of being musical director of a symphony and about half of them serve as directors of community youth symphonies or other musical organizations," Alley said. "No wonder we have some 300 applicants at present for the three to five Exxon conductor appointments we will make in the 1979-1980 season."

The applicants' average age is the early 30s. They will be screened down to about 50 for musical auditions with participating orchestras. Final selection is made by a panel consisting of Rudolf, the director, associate director and business manager of the orchestra, and representatives of Affiliate Artists.

"We also screen the participating orchestras thoroughly and have a waiting list of them," said Alley. "The orchestra has to play at least 50 to 75 concerts a year. It has to clearly delineate the duties of the Exxon conductor to show strong commitment on the part of the chief conductor and the business manager to share their knowledge and experience with the young conductor."

There has been only one woman conductor in the program so far. She dropped out to become associate conductor of a major opera company. But Alley says he expects there will be more.

As a result of the Exxon experience, Affiliate Artists has set up a program for a music conductor and six singers at the San Francisco Opera and is considering a program for theater directors and actors and orchestral and opera business managers.

Middle East's Ancient History Is Only Being Repeated Today

By MICHAEL PRECKER

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt and Israel, powerful neighbors unable to vanquish each other, decided not to fight, and concluded a peace pact instead. But there were no television cameras and no Nobel Prizes.

The date was 970 B.C.

Before Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat came along, the only recorded instance of a formal peace agreement between Israel and Egypt occurred nearly 3,000 years ago, according to Avraham Malamat, professor of biblical history at Hebrew University.

Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin, discussing the ancient agreement at a recent conference of scholars, wryly assured them that "there is no secret provision in the Camp David accords which calls for parallel action by the prime minister."

The Old Testament Book of Kings mentions in five places Solomon's marriage to a daughter of the pharaoh, adding that the fabled Jewish king received the area of Gezer, 20 miles west of Jerusalem on the coastal plain, as a dowry.

But there are no details of Egyptian-Israeli relations during the period, so Malamat applied historical records and modern concepts to sketch an account of the story.

"We have to speculate," he said in an interview. "The biblical historians couldn't understand external factors or evaluate the events in global terms. But the human mind worked the same way and the geopolitical setting was the same as today."

King David, Solomon's father, extended the Israelite empire southward, presenting Egypt with a powerful adversary on its border for the first time. After David died, Egyptian forces moved north and defeated the Canaanites at Gezer, a fortress city on the road to Jerusalem.

"We can speculate pretty certainly that the pharaoh's target was Jerusalem, the capital of Israel," Malamat said. "It's inconceivable that the pharaoh would start a campaign hundreds of miles across Sinai, capture the major fortification on the way to Jerusalem, and then give it as a gift."

The historian reasoned that Siamun sought to exploit the weakness that usually occurred at the beginning of a reign to regain control of an area Egypt had ruled 200 years before.

"But he made a mistake. Solomon was so strong that he could compel the pharaoh to give up his dream of conquering Israel and force him to enter a political arrangement. The pharaoh was forced to give up Gezer in the guise of a dowry," Malamat said.

No other pharaoh ever gave his daughter to a foreign ruler, which indicated Solomon's strong position, Malamat said. But for the king, "diplomatic marriages were common, instead of military conquest.

"A political marriage was like ratification of a treaty," he said' "It's like a signature on a document, the last step in an agreement. If there was a marriage, then there was an agreement."

The story's end was not so rosy. No further records exist of the pharaoh's daughter, indicating she was not one of Solomon's important wives. Nor is there any record of contact or commerce between the countries, but Israel and Egypt co-existed peacefully until midway through Solomon's 40-year reign. Then the 21st dynasty collapsed in Egypt, and its successor fomented unrest in Solomon's empire, then invaded it after his death about 933 B.C.

the southern half of biblical Israel, entered alliances with Egypt against invaders from the north. But eventually Judah found itself allied on the wrong side and was conquered by Babylonia in 586 B.C.

Excluding the alliances, which involved action against a third party, Malamat counts the Solomon-Siamun peace as unique in the histories of Egypt and Israel for nearly 3,000 years. His capsule description of the episode sounds remarkably familiar in 1978: "Each could not swallow up the other, so the best thing to do was conclude a peace."

A Gift List That Saves

—A light dimmer to save electricity.

—A light timer so families can regulate when lights go on and off when they are away from home.

—Glass fronts for fireplace lovers.

—Appliances such as an electric frying pan or dutch oven for the single person or two-member family. These save energy when used instead of a regular oven.

Certification Class Dec. 21

Strife Over Somoza Dividing Nicaraguan Families

By PIETER VAN BENNEKOM

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Carmen Castillo decided that this would be the day she would finally get her papers in order to leave Nicaragua. Her mind was made up. She was getting out.

"She was sick of war, death, riots, curfews, police searches, bullets and bombs and nightmares about having her foot blown off by a hand grenade.

"There's nothing to stay for any more," she said as she headed for the row of government offices in Managua to find out how to get a birth certificate, an ID card, a police certificate of good conduct, pictures, a tax clearance, fingerprint cards and an endless series of other official forms.

Her mother died a few years ago. Her father, a semi-retired foreman in a firearms factory who was visiting relatives in El Salvador, had just sold the family home in the middle-class Las Brisas neighborhood of Managua because the family has completely fallen apart as a result of the Nicaraguan political crisis and civil war. They mistrust each other now.

Carmen, an attractive, slim dark-skinned girl of 21, is one of a family of 12 — six brothers and six sisters. She's a second-year architecture student and is one of the few children who have gone on to university.

An older brother, Manuel, has joined the Sandinista guerrillas, while her youngest brother, Julio Cesar, is a soldier in President Anastasio Somoza's air force. Carmen lives in constant fear that one or both of them will tun up dead and that they may even kill each other in combat.

A sister, who is an artist and painter and has been to Cuba, has already left the country in fear of reprisals. Another sister is suspected of squealing to on dissident family members to the national guard. Yet another sister works at the government's military shoe factory, occasionally stealing and smuggling a piece of leather out of the barbed-wire compound past the armed guards at the gate.

"We used to be together," Carmen said, "I don't know whether it was my mother dying or all these things happening, but some of us haven't seen each other in years. We're all scared."

The war came home to the Castillo family one day in September when the government newspaper Novedades published pictures of the bodies of six unidentified Sandinista guerrillas killed in a shootout with guardsmen in Managua. Carmen and other members of the family thought they recognized their brother Manuel.

Carmen got a friend to take her to the morgue, where because of the flood of cadavers pouring in, bodies were stacked two per drawer, one of them head first and the other feet first, waiting for relatives to claim them.

An attendant opened the drawers containing the unidentified bodies to see if Carmen could recognize one of them as her brother. One of them did look like her brother, but because of two bullet holes in the face and the contorted expression, she couldn't be sure and she went back home.

Later that day a message was received from the mother of another Sandinista comrade that both her own son and Manuel were still alive. More recently, he was reported in a foreign embassy waiting for a safe-conduct pass to leave the country under political asylum.

The guard also has visited the Castillo home. Three jeeploads of soldiers converged on the house one morning, kicking open the door against the cheek of a terrified 11-year-old neighbor girl, searching the house, kicking in all the inside doors as well and taking Castillo's ancient collector's rifle off the wall as "proof" of "subversive" activity in the home.

Apparently the searching guardsmen hadn't seen a plaque on the wall next to the rifle indicating that it had been a present from President Somoza himself for faithful service at the firearms factory.

When Tercero went to the police station with his plaque, he got his rifle back.

By that time, Carmen had already moved out of the family home and rented a little wooden house with a tin roof for $30 a month with money she gets from one of her older sisters to put her through school.

But following a shooting incident after curfew hours in that neighborhood, she decided that the corner house with the thin wooden walls didn't offer enough protection and she moved in with a married girlfriend and classmate in another part of the city.

Carmen says she is apolitical; the Nicaraguan saying is "ni chicha ni limonada" (neither chicha — a home-made drink — nor lemonade) and she's neither pro-Somoza nor anti-Somoza. She likes motorcycles, Travolta-style dancing at discotheques and blue jeans.

"I just want to live in peace, but you can't any more. I'm not interest in politics, but why doesn't Tacho (an abbreviation of Anastasio and the popular name for Somoza) just quit and get out? Can't he see that the whole country is going to hell? And why doesn't the front (the Sandinista National Liberation Front) give out rifles to everyone to shoot it out and get it over with? I might even take one myself."

Neither one of those alternatives being very likely in the near future, Carmen is getting out. She won't miss her divided family too much and she doesn't have a boyfriend, saying "macho" Nicaraguan men turn her off.

An unhappy teen-age marriage of her own ended effectively shortly after she lost twin boys in a sixth-month miscarriage. Even though she never officially got a divorce, she doesn't know where her husband is and she has reverted to using her maiden name.

But trying to leave the country, Carmen finds herself, like many Nicaraguans, without any kind of documents to prove her identity. Nicaragua is not an organized society and records aren't very well kept.

The search for documents starts with her birth certificate. She was born in a little town near the Honduran border, but she can't go back there, so first she weighs an offer from a shyster lawyer who says he can "arrange" something for 200 cordobas (about $30). She decides to try it by herself, flashing her pretty smile at the head of a records office. It works and she gets a copy from him.

She has to repeat the performance with a friendly National Guard officer to get a good-conduct police certificate despite the record of an arrest in her high school days for "insulting" a law enforcement officer.

The passport office with its long lines of people trying to leave the country has her baffled, though. After several days of standing fruitlessly in lines and being sent from one office to the next, she found out today that a girl friend "knows somebody" inside the office.

With the girl friend, she gets in the back door, gets to see the unnamed "friend" and after payment of another 400 cordobas (almost $60) to the corruption mills, she is promised her passport will be ready for pickup in a few days.

"I don't know yet. Maybe Caracas, maybe Panama or Mexico. I know some people in each of those places. I don't care. As long as it's out of here."

Says Neglect Spoils Child

In a magazine survey article, David Elkind, chairman of the Department of Child Study at Tufts University, says:

"Today, we really aren't seeing spoiled children in the old, traditional sense." This happens when parents subordinate their needs to the needs of the child.

"Now it's more a case of neglect," said Elkind in the December issue of Parents magazine.

"I'd like to see more spoiling. The prevailing psychology today is do your own thing; realize your own needs ... unfortunately, these attitudes have been extended to how parents respond to their children — and it really isn't appropriate.

"Too many children are developing into people who are selfish," Bettye Caldwell, director of the Center for Child Development and Education at the University of Arkansas, told the magazine. "It's becoming unfashionable to be polite and considerate of others.

"Many children are spoiled to the point of being neglected. Not to discipline is to neglect; not to teach behavior that enables children to later cope with the world is to neglect; not to teach them manners is to neglect."

CLAIM BORDER CLASHES

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Hundreds of Chinese soldiers crossed into Vietnam in recent days and clashed with Vietnamese border guards, Vietnam says. A Hanoi broadcast did not mention casualties.

Canine Hero's End Deduced

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Caesar 7's life on the St. Louis force began with a burglary case. And his life ended while apparently chasing a burglar from his retirement home.

Charles Rosene, the 9-year-old German shepherd's present owner, rushed outside one night recently when he received an anonymous phone call saying that Caesar 7 was injured on the street in front of his home. He had apparently been hit by a car.

Rosene took the dog to an animal hospital and called the dog's former partner, Officer Edward Meyer. The dog died in Meyer's arms.

Rosene, a local businessman, later found a screwdriver and marks on a door, indicating someone had tried to break in. He also found a piece of torn blue defim material, blood stains, motorcycle tire tracks and dents in a car that had been in the driveway.

He was in the basement at the time and didn't hear what was going on outside.

"Whether the suspect ran over Caesar or Caesar chased him into the street and was struck there (by another vehicle), I guess, will never be known," Meyer said tearfully.

Minority Engineers: A Problem And Opportunity

By JAMES THORNTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While unemployment for minority youth runs higher than for any other group in the nation, there is a demand for qualified engineers. An effort is being made to link the two problems and help solve both.

"Engineering is becoming increasingly important in a highly industrialized society and it is a shame for any segment of the population not to be involved," said Lucius Walker, dean of engineering at the majority black Howard University. "This is a field with great opportunities for minorities."

The National Research Council's Committee on Minorities in Engineering met in September to assess the midpoint progress of a 10-year program to increase the number of minority engineers.

The council and the committee both are functions of the National Academy of Science, whose marbled headquarters glistens between the shadows of the Washington Monument and the State Department.

"This is primarily big, high technology industry that is providing the financial support for the Committee on Minority Engineers, said Richard Neblett, an Exxon executive.

There are no minority financial contributors, but Neblett cautioned that "we don't expect the National Urban League (for example) to give money for this — we expect their personal, their intellectual commitment.

"We ought never to leave the impression that financial contributions are the only means or the only needs. They're part of what we need, but we need participation as much as anything else."

The goal originated from a similar 1973 conference in upstate New York when a General Electric executive, Reginald Jones, recognized that a vital factor was absent in his company's targeted employment goals for blacks. GE's statistics demonstrated numerical success, but Jones noted that few blacks held jobs that would eventually lead to managerial positions.

Business and law are inroads to management, but in technological and science-based corporations, executives are more often than not selected from a company's pool of engineers.

Jones projected from the statistics that unless the minority role in engineering was increased dramatically, America would continue to see scant involvement of minorties at executive levels in technologically oriented fields until approximately 2000.

Jones brought his observations to the Commission on Education of the National Academy of Engineering. The CME was established in 1974 and the drive for parity of black engineers was extended to include three other minority groups: Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans and Native Americans.

Minorities constitute less than 2 percent of America's 1.2 million engineers. In 1977, they accounted for only 8.7 percent of engineering schools' student population — still a significant gain from the 5.3 percent of 1977, CME's first year of operation.

The Committee on Minorities in Engineering is the information link for schools, engineering societies, government agencies and companies. It collects and distributes information on which companies have money available for grants It also will provide technological corporations with the most successful recruiting techniques to attract minority students.

Aside from the lack of knowledge about opportunities, one barrier to minorities has been the educational system itself.

The emphasis on mathematics and science generated by the space race in the 1960s has declined significantly. Technological corporations face the task of countering academic inertia and garnering support from an uninformed public.

The economics of upgrading a laboratory for an expanded science curriculum poses a problem to both public and private institutions. However, despite the acknowleged need for money to underpin scientific studies, there was a consensus among company representatives at the symposium that private funds should not be used for a general overhaul of the American educational system. Nor did the representatives favor lowering engineering standards.

Idealism, often the major reason presented for a technological firm's participation in the minority engineers' program, submerges the reality: qualified engineers are needed and minority communities have yet to be tapped for their potential.

Raoul Alverado, chairman of the Hispanic Engineering Society, scrutinized the dualistic nature of this commitment: idealism and demand.

Alverado works with the space and communications program of Hughes Aircraft Co., a member of the society's advisory council. He cited that program as an example of the long term commitment needed: they have "the best scholarship program I've ever seen... established probably the best sequential followup on a student," he said.

The Hughes scholarship carries a student through high school into a summer job and through college.

"After the professional development we give them they have almost a moral obligation to work for that company, and not only that, they are acutely aware of the engineering profession," Alverado said.

However, Alverado said many companies only give "token funds... We've had banquets in which companies will buy two tickets, mind you, and then insult us by sending us a letter and saying we are working with you so that the compliance officer can look at it."

Others, Alverado said, "make mirage commitments. On the surface they're there, but when you really start nailing them down, they have a double standard. All of a sudden the justification for the accountability has become so exact that there is no possible way we could do the things they ask of us."

"Most of the times there's always justification as to why you can't hire a person and I have yet to see a company who has reprimanded, fired or censured an individual for not following affirmative action goals," Alverado said.

Until that happens, he sees no effective way of controlling a company's reluctance to hire minorities.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology president Paul Grey was among the representatives of schools at the conference. In his speech, Grey identified retention of minority students as the factor most crucial after their recruitment. Alverado sustained this theme.

"Affirmative action, working with minorities, is something a person has to feel," Alverado said. "You cannot make a person do it if he does not want to do it or is insensitive to that type of thing. They will be forced to do it but they will fall short of promoting the whole program; this is no different — minorities in engineering.

"You hear these people talk about all the money that's going out here and there, but you wonder, how sincere is it? Money isn't always the answer. They can give a gentleman a $10,000 a year scholarship to go to a universtity or state school but he gets in there, he has no friends, he feels uncomfortable in a university — he drops out and he has the money. So there's more: time, understanding and patience... and you have to contribute to the student."

Store Returns Are Courtesy

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Contrary to popular belief, stores are under no legal obligation to take back returned merchandise.

The practice is strictly one of store courtesy, says Janet Wilson, a consumer education specialist at the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

She suggests learning a store's policy on exchanges and returns before shopping for Christmas gifts. This information usually is posted near cash registers or checkout counters, she said.

Most stores will at least allow exchanges on items for a different size or color. But with merchandise "picked clean" after Christmas, it may be difficult to find a substitute, she said.

It helps to examine items for defects or damages as soon as you get home, so they can be returned promptly instead of waiting until after Christmas, added the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension specialist.

Fast Check On Weights For Trucks

CHICAGO (UPI) — A new scale has been devised to weigh trucks moving at speeds up to 30 mph and even truckers — who generally loathe police checks of their cargo weight — concede it has its good points.

The "weigh-in-motion" electronic scale, manufactured by the Chicago-based Mangood Corp., has been installed at twin weigh-stations straddling both sides of a heavilytrafficked stretch of highway near Michigan City, Ind., along the Detroit-to-Gary steel trucking route.

"Faster checking of truck weights saves truckers time and prevents tie-ups," said a spokesman for the Indiana State Highway Commission. "It allows us to check more trucks without having to close stations because of tie-ups.

"And that could save taxpayers money because it could lead to better enforcement of truck weight limits. It's important because one overloaded truck does the same damage to a road as several thousand cars."

The Highway Commission spokesman said the scale can easily handle 300 trucks an hour and has a much higher ultimate capacity — about 600 an hour. That compares, the spokesman said, to a maximum capacity at optimum conditions of 120 trucks for the static scale upon which truckers have to stop their trucks.

The scale, only 27 inches long, electronically weighs trucks axle-by-axle as they roll over it at speeds up to 30 mph. A weigh-station employee gets the truck weight on a video-dispaly terminal in a matter of seconds and can obtain a computerprint-out.

The motion scale gives accurate measures within plus or minus 10 percent of a truck's weight.

Those definitely within the state's 73,000 pound requirement are flagged on without having to stop and can go right back on the highway. But those outside the limits or within the margin of uncertainty are stopped and weighed on a more precise standing electronic scale.

The spokesman said the scales also are capable of recording such things as number of axles, length and load distribution which can help authorities in planning road construction.

"With this it's a matter of minutes," said John Samson, 27, driver of an 18-wheel steelladen rig. "At the other stations it's stop, pull up — stop and go. This one here you just run right across."

Another driver who declined to be identified said there is a drawback because the scales can handle more trucks without closing down and allowing other drivers to pass by.

"There's no truck driver that likes any kind of weighstation," he said. "But in my opinion they're going to have scales anyway so they might as well have this one that's faster."

Indiana authorities said the new scales and such necessary extra equipment as road flashing signals cost about $120,000 of the $700,000 price tag for the two new stations.

"The scale can weigh a truck in .05 seconds — the time it takes a truck to roll over the scale," said Mangood President Marvin B. Levine.

Levine said the scales in Indiana were the first such devices used at U.S. highway weigh-stations, although an Australian material handling company is using similar scales to weigh truck cargoes. He said he expects a large market for the scales and Indiana authorities reported receiving inquiries from other states.

Sweden's Taxes Take A Huge Bite From Earnings

By HARALD MOLLERSTROM
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Swedish welfare state costs its citizens more than half of their earnings in taxes and is planning new levies within the year to come — including some on hobbies.

The Swedes, not known as revolutionaries, are not expected to take to arms over the new taxes — though they did kill a king some 200 years ago for about the same reason.

But Gunnar Myrdal, a renowned economist, said in a recent broadside against fellow-socialists that the Swedish tax system, constructed by the Social Democrats, "was turning Swedes into a gang of hustlers."

Myrdal, winner of the Nobel Prize in economics in 1975, wants the government to abolish the present income tax and replace it with a progressive expenditure tax in order to minimize injustices.

"The present tax system with deductions is making nine out of ten Swedes criminals," he said, referring to those who cheat on taxes.

Milton Friedman, a leading American economist, also noted in a recent TV interview that high taxes were to blame for tax cheating. "I am quite sure the Swedes are no less ingenious than other people to get around the tax laws," the 1976 Nobel laureate said.

The tax burden, which exceeds 50 percent in the latest survey made by the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development. That survey put Sweden on top, almost 6 percent above Norway, in the percentage of the gross national product that citizens pay in taxes.

At the latest OECD ranking in 1977, which is not yet complete, Sweden stood at 53.3 percent, followed by Norway at 47.4, the Netherlands at 46.7 and Denmark at 45.0. The United States is far down at the ranking at 30.4 percent, but still pays nearly 10 percent more than the Japanese at 20.5.

In Sweden, taxes account for at least 90 percent of government income. The government claims an estimated $22.8 billion annually in taxes from the roughly eight million Swedes and returns an estimated $8 billion in social security benefits.

The Swedes, unlike some taxpayers in other parts of the world, have pretty much accepted their fate since their last outburst 200 years ago when they murdered King Gustaf III who tried to squeeze their last cents for his wars.

But a growing number of people in the higher income brackets have fled the country for "tax paradises" such as Switzerland and Liechtenstein, and books advising how to reduce or avoid income tax through legal loopholes are bestsellers. It is mainly the progressive tax scale — and the high rates — which discourage many Swedes. Two years ago, Astrid Lindgren, a famous author of children's books, made headlines when she disclosed that she paid a tax rate of 102 percent as a result of getting book royalties on top of a regular wage.

Film director Ingmar Bergman exiled himself in early 1976 after two policemen interrupted a rehearsal and took him away for questioning on an alleged tax fraud case. Bergman vowed not to work in Sweden again but returned this year after the charges were withdrawn.

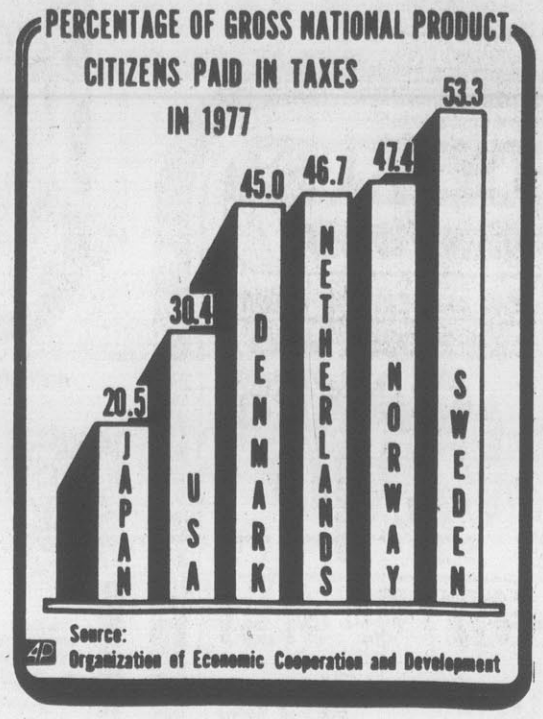
In the TV interview here, economist Friedman noted more ordinary Swedes also manage to escape taxes. "Why?" he asked. "Because the Swedes are no less ingenious than other people at getting around government controls.

"It is a terrible situation, in which it becomes socially beneficial for people to break the law. I would rather see governments cutting down government spending and government taxes than see it done indirectly by people who learn how to get around the law, how to evade and how to avoid it."

Now Sweden, with a record budget deficit of $7.3 billion last year, will increase taxes on car rentals and estate purchases; raise environment control charges and soccer pool duties; and put new taxes on such leisure activities as fishing, boating and horseback riding.

These proposals, still to be worked out in detail, have met scattered protests. But few here expect a tax revolt like the one in the United States.

Some note, however, that heavy taxes on outdoor activities could be one blow too many for athletic Swedes.



Movies Offer Inmates A Means Of Escapism

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — They are a captive audience in the truest sense.

When they go to the movies, they may walk out. But they can't go far. Admission is free, but there is no popcorn; often not even comfortable seats. And the ushers wear walkietalkies.

Sometimes there are fights, even occasional stabbings. But the culprits don't fear going to jail.

They sent questionnaires to 90 of the nation's 400 big and small, state, federal and territorial, male and female penal institutions.

The research team wanted to find out what films are shown in prisons, who makes the choices, what inmates want to see, their favorite stars, how much is spent on movies, what administrators want to portray and if the screenings kindle aggressive behavior.

"We started to research literature," says Professor David Agresti. "And we found out there really wasn't much written on the subject."

Before turning to academics, Agresti spent seven years in corrections as a counselor, administrator and social worker, working with juveniles and adults.

With Linda Getz and Pete Collins, he set up a 16-question form for their project, which cost them six weeks and a total of $15 — for postage. The results, the team says, indicate most of the films shown were popular, current ones with a relatively high level of violence and sex. But, on the whole, they found very little aggressive behavior, like rioting or fighting with guards, attributed to the films.

A study of the questionnaires reveals what seems to be a certain inconsistency in some cases between what prison officials believe they are permitting inmates to view and the films actually shown.

For example, in almost all the forms returned, prison recreation officers claimed that movies with excessive sexual, violent or racial themes were prohibited.

But a state correctional center in Alaska showed three films rated X. That, Agresti says, represented the norm, not the exception.

An inmate serving time for armed robbery, for instance, would hardly be in the mood to watch "The Cat from Outer Space" after a hard day pressing license plates.

But, on the other hand, prison administrators are not eager to show films like "Breakout" to cons serving lengthy sentences.

According to the USF study, about 310 films were shown at institutions for men during a three-month period this year. Of those 133 were rated R, 108 carried PG rating, 15 were G rated and eight were X. The rest had no ratings.

The study indicates greater care in the selection of films shown at female institutions. Of 137 films shown, 53 were PG rated, 38 carried R ratings, nine were rated G and only one carried an X rating.

In only nine of the prisons responding do staff members choose the films — a surprising factor to the researchers. In 12 institutions inmates pick the movies themselves and in the rest there is some sort of combination between staff and inmates.

Not surprisingly, mysteries ranked No. 1 all-around. But after that, men preferred movies with sexual themes, followed by crimes and Westerns. Women chose comedies and musicals.

Agresti says 98 percent of prisoners attend movies — typically on weekends when there is nothing to do and a film provides escapism.

FROM TROPICS TO SKIS — A young Vietnamese refugee gets his first experience with skis and snow in the Harz Mountain town of Hohegeiss, West Germany, as two even younger children take in the snow from their sled. The children will be making the town home for the next few months, having just arrived there from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. (AP Laserphoto)

Dark Side To Israel Prosperity

RAMAT HASHARON, Israel (UPI) — Yossi rapped a cigarette from a fresh pack, the American brand his only concession to luxury. The wooden match flared and he sucked in the smoke audibly.

"You know," he said, "I wouldn't change this way of life. I wouldn't change it for the world."

Around the four white walls of his small living room stood the bare necessities of furniture, including a sofa where Yossi Golan propped himself with his elbows on his knees. He flicked his cigarette toward an ashtray on the cocktail table that took him two months to build.

Behind him, from the kitchen, Yael offered Bennie, 6, and Karen, 2, their dinner. Water bubbled in a blue enamel pot on the four-burner gas stove. Yael plunked an egg gingerly into the pot.

Karen literally was well into her yogurt. It dripped from her chin and fingers onto her blue bib, onto the red highchair and even onto the stone tile floor.

The scene could have been one in thousands of middle class homes throughout Israel, a country whose people more generally are portrayed with guns in their hands. Beneath a thin crust of bravado is a soft core, for the biggest battle in Israel is not fought with a gun but with the pocketbook.

"We live with war and peace all of the time," Yael said after rolling the boiled egg onto Bennie's plate, decorated with strips of cucumber, carrot and green pepper.

"It's in the background. We grew up with it. It's not that it's in your mind — it's more in your blood."

"We are preoccupied mostly with money — how to finish the month," Yossi said. Sometimes the month finishes them.

They, like most Israelis, overspend. They live on overdrafts on their checking accounts. Deficit spending is common in a country where the 50 percent inflation rate stretches the imagination. Only the banks prosper.

Yossi, 33, is a technician at one of Israel's biggest firms. He earns $702 a month, slightly above average. But some of the world's highest taxes eat away nearly half. He comes home with $378. So wives must work, and not because of feminist liberation ideology.

Yael, 31, opened a boutique with a friend two years ago. It helps, but not much.

The darkening skin under her hollowing brown eyes and sandy hair casually pulled back just to keep it out of her way makes Yael seem older than she is.

"I don't want to work any more," Yael said — and smiled. The idea of not adding her monthly income to the Golan family coffers is a joke. The money is sorely needed.

"I worked ever since we got married," she said. "I never really was at home." Wistfulness suddenly replaced the smile. "I want a taste of what it means to stay at home, to enjoy the house, the kids. But we can't afford to live on Yossi's salary."

Nevertheless, more than a third of her salary goes to the woman who cares for the children while Yael is in the shop. Yael does the cleaning because they can't afford the $2.16 an hour cost of a once-weekly maid.

"Every time we think we can afford a cleaning woman the prices go up or taxes go up or something else happens that forces the money to go elsewhere," she said.

The Golans have the outward trappings of most middle class families in Israel. They own a car, vintage 1968. Their most important possession is their apartment — real estate is the single most valuable item when inflation has made a mockery of the currency.

More importantly, the apartment is fully paid. Mortgages are the rule, not the exception, where a three-room apartment in a relatively good area costs a minimum of $27,000.

The Golans live in such an apartment above a block of stores in a 6-year-old threestory white stone building in this suburb north of Tel Aviv. Toddler Karen sleeps in her crib at right angles to Bennie's bed. The time is not far off when they will have to move to separate the children.

The Golans still are young enough to want to rebel against a system that has pushed prices so high, that makes life harder instead of easier as time goes on. It will get worse. The government predicts 100 percent inflation once there is peace with Egypt.

"I must take loans from the bank, otherwise I can't buy things," Yossi said, waving away a cloud of smoke. Yael has joined him on the couch. The children chatter in the kitchen.

"It's typical of the Israelis that they don't protest anything," Yossi said. "This is why interest rates are so high — nothing is done to force them down. People are too tired to try to do anything, too tense."

Auto loans run to 60 percent a year. A mortgage is at least 30 percent.

But the Golans are not interested in leaving for a better life elsewhere. They are willing to live with naked light bulbs that glare harshly from the white walls. Yossi doesn't mind a month's army reserve duty a year.

"I love Israel," Yossi said. "It's not that I think people should live in a place just because they were born there. It's just that I won't find anything like Israel anywhere in the world. It's like a family here.

"For example, in the States people have to call to make an appointment to see each other. Here, all I have to do is knock on someone's door and we can sit and talk all night."

Both Yossi and Yael are native-born Sabras but Yossi has visited the United States.

"I can make good money in the States," he said. "My standard of living would be very high. Even so, this is not the compensation I'm looking for. Our friends feel the same way."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals I

Houseman Amused By TV Star Status

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Houseman, the distinguished actor, educator, writer and producer who now stars in "The Paper Chase" series, came late to acting. At age 70, he is amused to find himself a TV star.

Houseman won the Academy Award for best supporting actor in 1973 for his performance as the intimidating professor of Harvard Law School in the movie version of "The Paper Chase."

Houseman and his second wife, Joan Courtney, spend their time between two homes. One is a mansion in New City, N.Y., along the Hudson River about 10 miles from West Point. The other is a rented dwelling in the Malibu Colony, a bastion of movie stars and the big rich.

His New York digs were built to Houseman's specifications in 1946. He decribes it as one of the most beautiful houses he has ever seen, adding that it has thick walls, enormous rooms and — not unlike himself — a forbidding exterior.

The impressive house is filled with a collection of modern furniture, antiques and Charles Eames creations. It stands on 13 acres of wooded hillside looking down on the river about a mile away.

Until two months ago the Housemans owned a beach house at Malibu, but decided to rent another home in the colony, putting some of his West Coast furniture in storage.

Going back to the days when he was a producer at RKO, Paramount and MGM, Houseman always lived on the shores of the Pacific when in California.

Almost every morning he takes extended walks along the beach, except when he is working in the new CBS series. He's up at 5:45 on working days, breakfasts meagerly on a slice of toast and a cup of tea and drives to 20th Century-Fox where the show is filmed.

Houseman is picked up by a chauffeur. On days when the actor isn't as familiar with the script as he should be, he drives while the chauffeur read cues for his lines in the show.

Even when he's not called to the studio, Houseman is up by 6 o'clock to work on the second part of his autobiography. The first installment, "Run Through," was published five years ago.

Houseman doesn't believe in rest and recreation. When he's not acting in the series or writing by hand on legal sheets or in children's notebooks, he is off to USC where he is a professor. At present he is providing the school with a new curriculum for its theater department.

Houseman, a native of Romania, is no stranger to academic life. He was an associate professor of English drama at Vassar, founder and artistic director of the UCLA Theater Group and director of the drama division of New York's Juilliard School.

At the end of his full days, Joan prepares simple French dinners for the septuagenarian workaholic. Dinner is unfailingly accompanied by a vintage wine — French, Italian or Californian, depending on the menu.

The Housemans once owned a great number of dogs. But they adopted an orange cat, not too imaginatively named "Orange," who doesn't like dogs. Ergo, Orange is their only pet.

Houseman is delighted that "The Paper Chase" has been renewed for the balance of this year's television season.

Climbed To Nielsen Tie

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS began the season in last place and spent five weeks there. Since then, it's been a steady climb to parity with frontrunner ABC.

The two finished the week ending Dec. 10 in a tie for first place in the networks' ratings competition.

Figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed CBS with five of the week's 10 top-rated programs, and 10 of the first 20, including regulars "60 Minutes," "M-A-S-H" and "One Day at a Time."

ABC and CBS finished the week with 20 points each, with NBC third at 17.2. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to both ABC and CBS.

"60 Minutes" finished the week No. 4, behind three of ABC's hit comedies, "Three's Company," "Laverne and Shirley" and "Happy Days."

The CBS newsmagazine has been strong in the ratings most of the season, and finished No. 1 for the week ending Nov. 26. NBC's "Weekend" newsmagazine, on the other hand, had another tough week — 63rd in the ratings.

The rating for No. 1 "Three's Company" was 33.6, which Nielsen says means of all the homes in the country with television, 33.6 percent saw at least part of the show.

CBS was helped in the competition by a couple of specials, "Third Annual Circus of the Stars" in sixth place and "All Star Tribute to Jimmy Stewart" No. 7.

Switzerland should field a very strong team for next year's European Championship. As usual, its spearhead will be the Jean Besse-Pietro Bernasconi partnership. Besse, sitting West, came up with this defensive gem in the trials held to select the team.

South felt that his hand was too strong to open one no trump because of its wealth of prime and intermediate cards. He showed both his suits, and when North raised spades, South leapt straight to game.

Besse led a trump, and Bernasconi's ten lost to the queen. Declarer entered dummy with a club to the ten to lead a low heart to the king. Besse ducked! Declarer continued with a low heart, and Besse played low again!

Declarer naturally placed East with the ace of hearts, so he followed low from dummy and East won the ten. He returned the ace and jack of trumps.

Besse's diabolical plays in the heart suit now bore fruit. To declarer, it appeared that East had started with A-10-9 of hearts, and he had already shown up with the A-J of trumps. Since East had ample opportunity to enter the auction, but had not done so, it therefore seemed most unlikely that he also had the ace of diamonds. Thus, leading a diamond to the king would result in the loss of two diamond tricks, in addition to the two tricks already lost.

If, as declarer thought, the diamond ace was offside, the only other chance for the contract was to find the hearts 3-3. So declarer crossed to the king of clubs and led a heart from the table. To his amazement, East showed out, and the contract was doomed. Try it for yourself.

Observe that if Besse wins the ace of hearts, declarer should make the contract. Playing for the ace of diamonds onside is a much better chance than relying on a 3-3 heart break. Indeed, on some defenses declarer might even be able to test both possibilities.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Plan Filming Of 'Mormon Will'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Remember Melvin Dummar, the Utah service station attendant named in a famous — but phony — Howard Hughes will? Well, you may be seeing more about him.

Jason Robards will star as the legendary typcoon and Paul LeMat will portray Dummar in a movie about the so-called "Mormon Will" due to begin production in February.

Dummar was among beneficiaries named in the "Mormon Will," so-named because it was delivered to authorities by the Mormon Church. Dummar, who brought the document to church offices in Salt Lake City, claimed he once gave Hughes a ride from the Nevada desert to Las Vegas. A jury later ruled the will was phony.

Base Hopes On Common Stocks

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

A recent survey of investment professionals revealed that nearly 40 per cent would currently select common stocks for investing a personal windfall. With the economy at best expected to flatten out or grow very slowly next year, with tighter credit and higher interest rates expected to continue, why did these people still choose common stocks for investment?

Many of them believe that a successful fight against inflation and a peak in interest rates would result in an explosive rise in stock markets. No one expects anything dramatic next year, but they were very optimistic about prospects for the years following.

By historic standards, stocks are cheap, and the dividends are increasing at a rapid rate. For the first nine months of 1978, there were 2,267 dividend increases compared to 2,106 in the same period in 1977. More companies increased their dividends in the month of September than in any previous September since 1955, when Standard and Poor's began keeping records. From 1975 to the present, dividend growth for most companies has equalled or outpaced inflation.

With the prime rate at 11.5 percent, dividend yields are lower than yields on various money market instruments. But interest rates are approaching a peak, and money market rates are not likely to move substantially higher.

Common stock dividends, however, are likely to grow. The other side of the total return equation, capital appreciation potential, is likely to be major in the next five years. Assuming a dividend yield of 6 percent and maintenance of current price/earnings multiples, earnings growth of 5.5 percent would bring the total return to 11.5 percent, equal to the prime rate. But many companies have earnings growth potential of 10-12 percent, bringing total return to 16-18 percent, superior to money market rates available today.

How do you select common stocks in this environment? Benjamin Graham's guidelines are just as sound and applicable today as at any time.

Dividend yields should be two-thirds of that on high grade corporate bonds, or 6 percent. The earnings yield (earnings dividend by stock price) should be twice that of high grade corporate bonds, or 18 percent, equivalent to a price/earnings multiple of 5.6 percent.

The list can be narrowed down further by looking for stockholders' equity three times the amount of long term debt, stocks selling below book value, and earnings growth of 15 percent annually in the last five years.

The Town of Bethel
Board of Commissioners
Bethel Town Hall
P.O. Box 337

919/825 6191

To All Interested Agencies, Groups and Persons:

The above named Town proposes to request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal Funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93 383) to be used for the following project.

Town of Bethel Community Development Block Grant Program, Housing, Demolition and Rehabilitation, Relocation, Acquisition, Pitt County, Bethel, North Carolina, $429,510.

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly, the above named Town has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environment Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91 190).

The reasons for such decision not to prepare such statement are as follows:

The findings of the Environmental Review Record indicate that the alterations to both the human and natural environments are not negative. The beneficial implications of the program are such that the program should proceed on schedule.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the within project has been made by the above named Town which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request at the Bethel Town Hall during normal office hours.

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the Town to the office of the undersigned. Such written comments should be received at the address specified on or before December 27, 1978. All such comments so received will be considered and the Town will not request the release of Federal Funds or take any administrative action on the within project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence.

High Quality, Low Priced Heroin Flooding Europe

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — High quality, low priced heroin is flooding Western Europe, police say, resulting in a pattern of rising youth addiction and drug deaths reminiscent of the U.S. experience.

Investigators believe most of the heroin comes from the Middle East, which last year began replacing Southeast Asia as the major supplier for the European narcotics trade.

"We used to hear that the 'old world' attitude would keep drugs out of Europe," said Thomas V. Cash, special agent in charge the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration operation in Germany. "But this is very clearly not the case."

He said that the increasing prevalence of heroin, various pills and other drugs bears striking similarities to the growth of drug abuse in the United States from 1966 to 1976: "It's eerie to watch."

Heroin abuse has been on the decline in the United States in recent years — heroin-related deaths in New York City dropped from 900 in the early 1970s to about 400 this year.

In West Germany, where the drug problem is perhaps greatest, the federal criminal office reports 172 kilograms of heroin have been seized so far this year, compared with about a teaspoonful in 1968. A kilogram is 2.2 pounds.

Berndt-Georg Thamm, a Berlin drug expert, said the percentage of 12-to 16-year-olds among West Germany's 50,000 estimated heroin addicts has jumped from nearly zero to 20 percent in three years.

For the equivalent of $85, German addicts can buy a gram of heroin, enough for about 20 injections, drug experts say. The product is 30-40 percent pure, compared with under 5 percent pure for heroin sold in the United States. In New York City, the price for a gram of heroin — the less pure variety — is $55 to $65.

Inspector Hans Johansson of the Stockholm police reported heroin seizures in Sweden climbed from 82 last year to 127 during the first nine months of this year. He termed the increase in heroin abuse among Swedish youth as "disastrous."

French police say the number of drug-overdose deaths soared from 72 last year to about 100 so far this year. They said there was also a "dramatic" increase in thefts of amphetamines and barbiturates from pharmacies.

Overdose deaths are also up in Italy — from 26 in 1975 to 57 so far this year. The government's anti-drug squad said many of the victims were between 18 and 25. In Denmark the drug death rate climbed from 39 in 1976 to 85 in the first 10 months of this year.

"Clearly the drug problem worsened seriously after the introduction of heroin," said Dr. H.E. Knipschildt, Copenhagen's chief medical officer.

The bright spots have been Britain and the Netherlands, where the arrest and deportation of Chinese believed to run international drug smuggling have led to a decline in drug seizures.

"The amount of heroin in circulation was considerably reduced following the conviction of members of six cells of Chinese traffickers," Scotland Yard Commissioner Sir David Nees said in his annual report last June.

Dutch police believe recent arrests among Chinese dealers were responsible for an increase from about $125 to $150 per gram in the street price for heroin.

DEA agent Cash said most of the heroin reaching West Germany comes from Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran via Turkey.

Some of the 1.2 million Turkish workers who live in West Germany smuggle the heroin into this country in small —1-to 5-kilogram — shipments, making detection difficult among the thousands of travelers crossing the borders daily.

"It's estimated that about 80 million people transit West Germany each year," Cash said. "They can't search everybody and they can't close down the country."

German drug experts estimate 75 percent of the heroin seized here was bound for other European countries. The rest finds its way to customers at discos, subway stations and public places in Germany.

"It begins in the discos with a simple mechanism," Thamm and colleague Horst Broemer wrote in the West German weekly magazine Stern. "It is a good looking young man, who speaks to young girls. They like him because he's cool and then he shares the first heroin, gratis. A new heroin addict is created."

Patches in Mouth Rarely Cancerous

I have white patches on the inside of my mouth. Could this be cancerous? What causes it? — Mr. B.A., Mass.

Dear Mr. A.:

The condition you describe is known as "leukoplakia." Dentists and physicians see many cases of this condition, especially in men who are pipe smokers. The heat of the smoke is an important contributing factor. Since smoking has increased so materially among women, leukoplakia is also on the increase, resulting even from cigarette smoking.

Hot fluids can also injure the lining of the mouth and the inner lining of the cheek. Poor dental hygiene is another contributing factor. Poorly fitting dentures can cause constant abrasions that are followed by leukoplakia.

Some people have a tendency to nervously bite on the lining of their mouths, and after a period of time, develop these deposits. Nutritional and hormone deficiencies may also be responsible.

Most of these white patches are non-malignant. Nevertheless, doctors keep them under supervision at regular intervals in order to be sure that they continue to remain benign. In some instances, a small piece of tissue is taken out of the area and sent to the laboratory, to be certain that there are no cancer cells mixed in with the leukoplakia.

The greatest contribution that can be made by the doctor and the dentist is to help the patient to eradicate the basic cause for these leukoplakia deposits.

When I get into a crowded room, or when I'm sitting around with friends, I suddenly begin to yawn. Everyone thinks it's because I'm bored or sleepy, but it happens even when I'm having fun. It can be so embarrassing. Can anything be done about this? — Miss H.D., Del.

Dear Miss D.:

Yawning and boredom have wrongly been identified with each other. There are other factors that may be responsible for the desire on the part of the body to get more oxygen into the lungs. Fatigue, certain drugs, inadequate sleep or a smoke-filled room can produce a yawn.

Everyone has had the experience of seeing another person yawn and, uncontrollably, doing the same thing. One would think that yawning is actually contagious, which, in a strange way, it is. Let us say that yawning is highly "suggestible."

Sighing, like yawning, is a way of getting more air and oxygen into the lungs. Only rarely is yawning a symptom of a more complicated underlying problem. Some circulatory and respiratory problems, and even neurological disorders, may be responsible for an inordinate amount of yawning. You might feel better if you ruled out these possibilities.

Skateboards Rated Seventh

NEW YORK (UPI) — A thin board on four silver dollar-size wheels was responsible for 25 deaths in the United States last year and 106,000 accidents serious enough to require hospital emergency room treatment.

These figures are from the Insurance Information Institute, which says skateboard accidents now are seventh on the federal government's ranking of hazardous products in the home.

Sneedsborough, N.C., One Of Vanished Towns

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For The Associated Press

Long gone is the Anson County village that Archibald D. Murphey 160 years ago predicted would become "the great Town of the Pedee" with a trade rivaling that of Fayetteville.

Now it is a vanished town, silent and intriguing. North Carolina's Pompeii is covered by weeds, vines, trees — and mystery, for while legends abound, the records reveal precious little of its factual history.

The General Assembly in 1795 appointed Richard Edgeworth, William Peguis and William Johnson as commissioners to lay out on land owned by Edgeworth a town of 64 lots with convenient streets and alleys. The site was a mile west of the Pee Dee River a few hundred yards north of the South Carolina border.

Within five years of its original charter, the town was authorized to expand to 250 lots, and the legislature chartered a school. In 1802, the community was granted a separate election.

That same year a young Englishman, William Little, bought four lots along West, Market and Meeting streets, and established himself as a cabinetmaker whose wooden furniture, made to the latest English fashions, became the talk of the back country. For 16 years he lived in the village and made furniture which today is keenly sought by museums and collectors.

About the time Little moved to the Jones Creek area of Anson County, Sneedsborough became a focal point of a plan devised by Murphey to discourage the shipping of Piedmont produce down the rivers to South Carolina ports.

Murphey proposed that a canal be dug from Sneedsborough on the Pee Dee to the Lumber River, and then another from the Lumber to the Cape Fear. The canal system would permit farmers to send their produce down the Yadkin-Pee Dee to Sneedsborough, thence through the canals to the Cape Fear. All the profits of shipping would remain in North Carolina.

A company was formed to buy land at Sneedsborough and sell lots. To Thomas Ruffin, Murphey wrote in 1819: "You will be pleased with Sneedsboro': And if our trade could be prevented from going to Charleston, I should like to see it rival any other of our Towns."

The town became the site of a large mill and gin, a number of stores, 30 or so houses, a Methodist church and the 19-room Knox Hotel. But Murphey's plans never materialized, and by the 1830s people were beginning to move away.

Only a few houses remained at the time of the Civil War, and by 1910 the hotel was a private residence. Even it was abandoned by 1917. Fifteen years later only the milkhouse — with its shingled peaked roof slanting in four directions was standing. Now it is gone.

Legends have sprung up. It has been claimed that among the visitors or residents of Sneedsborough were Theodosia Burr Alston, daughter of Aaron Burr; Peggy Shippen Arnold, wife of Benedict Arnold; and Thomas Godfrey, author of the first native drama produced in the United States. But there is no proof to support these stories.

Among the town's famous sons was John J. McRae, successor to Jefferson Davis in the U.S. Senate in 1851 and later governor of Mississippi and member of both the U.S. and Confederate congresses.

Charles W. Harris, the first presiding professor at the University of North Carolina, died at the home of his brother in Sneedsborough. On his tombstone in the graveyard is this tribute to the young man: "His prospects were flattering for high respectability in life, but ah! he fell early victim to that great destroyer, death."

The town of Sneedsborough too fell early victim, but we don't know why. Tradition says that typhoid fever drove the people away, yet tradition also claims that people came to the Knox Hotel from far away to drink the medicinal waters of a nearby spring.

When it died, Sneedsborough took most of its secrets with it.

Small Size No Career Barrier

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As Greg and John Rice will tell you, size is mostly a matter of how you look at things.

"You sit down in a chair," says Greg. "We climb up. But when we get there we do the same thing."

The Rice brothers, 26 years old and 2-feet-10 inches tall, are identical twin dwarfs who quit thinking small a long time ago.

They sell for the Berg Agency here, and appear on a local television commercial for the agency. It opens with a line from Greg: "Are you tired of all that real estate small talk?"

John says the commercial has been a boon.

"When people call the office and ask for those two little short guys," he says, "we've got 'em."

The brothers laugh off their size, but they are completely serious about thinking their success can inspire people with other kinds of potential handicaps.

"Even normal people can look at Greg and me and say, 'If those guys can have the attitude they've got, then why should I feel sorry for myself?'" John said from their West Palm Beach Home.

The brothers were born here, youngest in a family of five children. Two older brothers and an older sister are normal size. John weighed 7 pounds at birth and Greg, 6 pounds.

"We just forgot to grow," says Greg.

The brothers make virtually no concessions to height. Furniture in their home is normal size and they almost never socialize with other dwarfs.

They appeared with Donnie and Marie Osmond last year, were on ABC's "Good Morning America" and taped with the Harlem Globetrotters. That presented cameramen with an unusual problem since some of the Globetrotters are nearly 7 feet tall.

Capitol Facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Did you know that 10,471 U.S. flags were flown from the roof of the Capitol on July 4, 1976 — the nation's 200th birthday?

Or that 129,036 cut flowers were grown in the congressional greenhouses that year, 5,000 orchids potted and 5,669 new plants developed from seeds or cuttings?

Or that 10,892 keys were made for doors and other locks in the House of Representatives and its office buildings, and House carpenters assembled 10,084 picture frames?

Most of the flags flown on that historic Fourth of July fluttered for a few seconds from one of 18 temporary flagpoles set up for the purpose. The process started at 12:01 a.m. and was finished eight hours and 59 minutes later. Afterwards, the flags were mailed to civic organizations, individuals, and schools throughout the land.

All of these facts and more — much more — are in a ...ued Monday by the ...itect of the Capitol.

Holocaust Passed By One Country

By MINDY YOCHELSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the Nazi murder of 6 million Jews, the Holocaust skipped one country in Hitlerdominated Europe: more Jews were alive in Bulgaria after World War II than before.

How this occurred in a nation that was an ally of Germany remains a matter of controversy.

"There is well established tradition of tolerance in Bulgaria," said Bulgaria's ambassador to the United States, Konstantin Grigorov.

"The democratic traditions in Bulgaria and Bulgarian intelligentsia ... and most importantly the Communist Party ... this played a very important role in saving the Jews," he said in an interview.

The only book in English on the topic is Frederick Chary's "The Bulgarian Jews and the Final Solution."

The action "came from all sorts of people in the Church, Parliament, the court and most importantly the changing course of the war," Chary said.

"Within the year after May 1943, Germany's position in the war was too weak to counteract allied pressure on Bulgaria not to carry out deportation (of Jews to death camps in Poland) even on a regime — the regency — which the Germans fashioned for their own control," Chary said in his book.

Germany, which was retreating from the Soviet Union, couldn't afford to spend its energies invading an ally which had refused to cooperate in deporting its Jews, Chary said.

He said a prime factor was the very fact that Bulgaria allied itself with Nazi Germany: "While the Nazis administered the occupied lands, and hence the Jews there were doomed, they could reach the Jews of their allies only through the foreign office and diplomacy.Therefore, it was in the allied countries where the Jews had the best chance of survival."

Bulgaria allied itself with Germany in 1941, partly in hopes the Third Reich could help it gain territory.

Grigorov said demonstrations, which he remembers, "petitions and various forms of resistence spoiled the (Nazi's) plan (to deport the Jews)."

"Even in (Bulgaria's) fascist Parliament were deputies who raised their voice against this plan. When the people in Bulgaria learned about this diabolical plan, the government got frightened and so they hesitated ...They (the Nazis) had to take into consideration this mood," the ambassador said.

One question which remains today is the role of Bulgaria's King Boris, whose sudden death in August 1943, prompted rumors he was assassinated by Hitler because of his refusal to deport the Jews.

"He (King Boris) was a puppet of fascist Germany but he was afraid to go along with their demands. He didn't dare to send the Bulgarian troops to fight the Soviet Union ... That's another unique fact," he said.

The Bulgarians allowed the Germans to deport Bulgarian Jews who were in Germany and other Reich-occupied lands, and allowed them to deport 11,400 Jews from the Yugoslavian and Greek territories it had gained since the war. About 70 survived.

But although the Jews within Bulgaria lost their property and were eventually driven out of the cities into villages and prison camps, the Bulgarians feared public opinion from home and abroad too much to deport their Jewish citizens to Poland, Chary said.

"After May 1943, Berlin's attempts to induce the Bulgarians to send their Jews to Poland were fruitless," he said.

Asked why few people in the West are aware of the unusual incident in history, Grigorov said, "Nobody wrote about this ... even though it's an historical fact. There are letters exchanged between the Germans and the Bulgarians in the Bulgarian archives."

Chary said unlike the wellknown incident when the Danes spirited their Jews to Sweden under the noses of the Nazis, the Bulgarian episode is less familiar because few Westerners are interested in Bulgaria, and the incident "doesn't fit into people's preconceived concept" of the Balkan nation.
