Rebels, Viets Big Oil Tanker Explodes Claim Control Of Cambodia

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam's Cambodian rebel proteges claim complete control of Cambodia after reportedly capturing the capital of Phnom Penh and driving Premier Pol Pot's government into the countryside, but analysts here said today the government was trying to organize a force to fight the insurgents.

The analysts said the Cambodian leaders were trying to set up a line of resistance near Siem Reap in northwestern Cambodia. The rebels claimed they were in control of the area, about 320 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

The rebels, led by Heng Samrin, a defector from the Pol Pot government, claimed the local population aided their offensive, but most analysts say Vietnamese troops did most if not all of the fighting.

A communique broadcast by the month-old rebel movement, the United Front for National Salvation, said the "revolutionary armed forces" by noon Sunday "completely liberated" Phnom Penh, and "the dictatorial and militarist regime of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique has completely collapsed."

A Chinese government official in Peking said the fall of Phnom Penh had been anticipated by China, the Cambodian government's chief ally, but "Cambodia is fighting on."

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the former Cambodian chief of state who fled from Phnom Penh to Peking Saturday, told a news conference in the Chinese capital that Pol Pot and his government were alive and fighting somewhere in Cambodia. He said the Chinese are in radio contact with them.

President Carter, on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe after a four-power Western summit, said he had heard Phnom Penh had fallen, but refused to discuss the situation. White House aides said privately that the invasion supported predictions by national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski that the Soviet Union and China would fight a "proxy war" using the armies of their Vietnamese and Cambodian allies.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Jack Cannon said there was no independent confirmation of the rebels' battlefield claims, but added: "We are prepared to believe that...Phnom Penh has fallen to Vietnam or Vietnam-backed insurgents...We're concerned that what is essentially a local conflict could escalate and involve third powers...and that must be avoided at all costs."

Vietnam claimed in an official statement Sunday that China had sent "a large military force" close to the Vietnamese border and indicated the move was linked to the Cambodian situation.

The reported fall of Cambodia would end one of the most radical social experiments this century. Reports from Cambodian refugees said it also was one of the bloodiest.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said the Cambodian government had pursued "a barbarous policy of genocide against the Kampuchean people," and the "liberation" of Phnom Penh would cause "profound satisfaction and joy by millions of people" in the world.

Report Lon Nol Failing

HONOLULU (AP) — Deposed Cambodian President Lon Nol plans to move to California shortly because of concern for "his people" who are living on the West Coast, his son says.

Nol, who celebrated his 65th birthday in November, is in failing health, suffering from the after-effects of a stroke.

His 16-year-old son, Rith, who acts as his interpreter, said Sunday night his father feels the reported fall of Phnom Penh was "too fast."

However, the former head-of-state says he cannot predict now how the new regime will affect his country.

A family friend, who asked to remain anonymous, said Nol "still wants to help his people. He still thinks of himself as the president of Cambodia and his wish is to return to the country, where he wants to die."

Nol visited Long Beach last year and apparently discovered about 7,000 Cambodian refugees scattered throughout California.

"He says he can't sleep at night and cries when he thinks of those people and others who are still in Cambodia and dying," the friend said.

Nol has lived a secluded life since coming to Hawaii following his overthrow in April 1975.

BANTRY, Ireland (AP) — The French tanker Betelgeuse exploded "like a giant bomb" while unloading oil at a storage terminal in scenic Bantry Bay early today and 49 persons were feared dead.

The charred bodies of three crewmen and seven workers at the terminal on Whiddy Island were recovered. Police said all of the 42 crewmen aboard the tanker apparently were killed.

"If you could see the blaze, you'd know there was no chance at all for anyone on board," said one firefighter. The ship sank in 130 feet of water, leaving only its stern visible.

The police at first reported 40 crew members aboard the ship but later increased the number.

First reports said the Betelgeuse was in the supertanker class. But its 121,430-ton deadweight capacity puts it well below the 200,000-ton size of the oil-carrying giants.

Firefighting tugs battled the flaming oil that spewed from the ship, and they prevented the fire from spreading to 18 storage tanks holding 250 million gallons of crude oil. They reported the flames under control six hours after the first explosion.

The ship was unloading at a Gulf Oil facility when a series of giant blasts split it in two, pouring blazing oil into the sea and rocking the area for 20 miles around.

"It was like a giant bomb. The whole ground shook from the explosion, and flames seemed to be everywhere," said an officer at the Bantry police headquarters.

Fire teams and rescue squads were rushed to the area from all over Ireland. All doctors and nurses within 100 miles were alerted. Britain's Royal Air Force sent helicopters from Wales to help with the search for the missing.

Whiddy Island is a supertanker terminal at which the huge ships that are too big to enter West European harbors unload oil from the Middle East. More than 250 million gallons of crude oil are stored there, waiting for reshipment to Britain and the Continent, but the firefighters kept the flames from reaching the storage tanks.

However, a dozen families were evacuated from the island.

"All we know is there was an explosion on board the ship followed by a flash fire on the water, presumably from oil that came from the holding in the explosion," said Donald Ah, the general manager of the Gulf terminal.

Ash said the Betelgeuse had pumped out some 21 million gallons of oil, or about two-thirds of its cargo, and was taking on sea water as ballast before discharging the rest when the explosion occurred.

Ash said it was too soon to determine the extent of oil leakage into the bay.

It was the second supertanker disaster in eight days. The 218,665-ton Greek tanker Andros Patras exploded and burned off the northwest coast of Spain on Dec. 31, and 29 persons were lost. The ship did not sink but was towed farther out to sea after spilling out an estimated 12 million gallons of oil.

Thousands of mourners gathered at Tehran's main cemetery, and the military kept out of sight there.

In the holy city of Qom, 98 miles south of the capital, 100,000 persons marched through the streets, but no violence was reported.

Commerce, disrupted by strikes and a nationwide fuel shortage, was at a standstill for the second straight day.

Hundreds of protesters demanding the shah's abdication set fires and smashed windows Sunday in Tehran. Military police scattered the mobs with tear gas and gunfire, and one person was killed. The capital had enjoyed comparative clam for the previous four days while Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's new government was installed.

Youths in Tehran shouted a new slogan today, "Bakhtiar strike," apparently a call for a strike to protest the new prime minister's three-day-old government.

The mourning period was called to commemorate the estimated 1,500 persons who have died in the past year of violent opposition to the shah's authoritarian rule and his Westernization program which religious leaders charge undermines the country's Islamic traditions.

The new prime minister and his cabinet of civilians was installed by the shah Saturday, replacing a two-month-old military government.

The state radio said today Bakhtiar's new Cabinet would be presented to Parliament on Thursday, two days behind schedule.

Will Report Results Of County Schools' Competency Tests

Highlights of the agenda for the Pitt County Board of Education meeting to be held Tuesday, Jan. 9, 2 p.m., in the Pitt County Courthouse include the following:

— John McKnight, county Testing and Research Director, will present results from county competency tests given in November. Statewide results will be released by Governor Jim Hunt Tuesday.

— John McKnight, chairman of the promotion-retention committee, will present committee work on possible changes on the promotion-retention policy for Pitt County schools.

— Associate Superintendent Tom Craft will give a capital outlay survey to be presented to the State Board of Education in anticipation of a statewide bond issue.

— Dr. Ken Rollins will discuss his work so far in studying Pitt County teachers' evaluation policy.

— Assistant Superintendent Leck Keeter will present for the board's approval a list of teachers to be hired and additions to the substitute teachers' list.

— W. W. Speight, county school board attorney, will be present, at which time the board will go into executive session to handle two personnel matters.

Bicyclists Hurt

A ten-year-old bicycle rider and his two eight-year-old companions were hospitalized with injuries received when a car struck their bicycle on Hopkins Drive, 220 feet South of the 16th Street intersection Sunday about 8 p.m.

Police investigators identified the injured youth as Shelton Antonio Fleming, 10, and Darryl Jerome Fleming, 8, of 1607 South Greene St., and Timothy Holley, 8, of 1711 Hopkins Dr.

Officers identified the driver of the car which struck the three boys as Thil Deaton Hurley of Route 2, Greenville.

Hurley was charged by police with exceeding a safe speed. Damage to the car was estimated at $300, while damage to the bicycle was set at $75.

WHERE'S MY BROTHER?

Some time last year, I was told, my brother who's 65 and lives in Brooklyn went to King's County Hospital after having had a stroke. He was in there eight days and his wife didn't go to see him, so someone finally went to their apartment and found her dead on the floor. I don't know where they took him when he got out of the hospital. Could you help me locate him? Mrs. L. W.

Hotline found a very helpful person in the Adult Inpatient Social Work Department of King's County Hospital. She located your brother's records by name and confirmed that it was the right person by giving us his previous home address, which was the same as the one you had provided us.

She gave us the name of the "foster home" to which he was released, the address and the phone number. We have provided you with these.

Winter Storms Linked To At Least Eleven Deaths

By The Associated Press
The winter elements — freezing rain, sleet, snow, ice and bitter cold — were linked to at least 11 deaths in three states and left thousands without electric power as storms ranged over the nation.

Freezing rain and snow were reported Sunday from Oregon to Arkansas, and the Midwest remained bitterly cold. Milwaukee recorded its highest reading since Jan. 1 — 12 degrees.
Air travel was interrupted in the East and portions of the South due to icy runways and ice-laden aircraft. Fog delayed airline traffic at Philadelphia International Airport for about 3½ hours.

Travelers were advised to use extra care — or simply stay off the roads except in emergencies — from Alabama to New England. A flash flood watch was issued for Connecticut.

In the West, the precipitation wasn't frozen, but still caused plenty of problems. Authorities in Laguna Beach, Calif., worried that heavy rain from a Pacific storm might prove too much for an erosion-control project in fashionable Bluebird alley, where property damage has totaled $15 million since October. The project was completed on Sunday.

Seven people — including six with known heart conditions — died in Ohio when they tried to shovel snow. Dayton was blanketed with 11 inches by Sunday night, and Cincinnati reported six.

A teen-ager was killed on an ice-slick Pennsylvania highway. And three cold-related deaths were reported in Wisconsin.
A 5-year-old boy in Iron Ridge, Wis., was killed when motor oil his father was warming on a kitchen stove burst into flame, starting a fire that destroyed the family home, said Fire Chief William Oestreich.
Deputy Coroner Peter Westra of Dodge County said the body of Peter Nennig was found in the ruins of a bathroom, where the boy evidently was overcome by smoke.
Two children were hospitalized with burns. The man, his wife and an infant escaped injury. Oestreich said the father, Frank Nennig, was trying to heat the oil to make his auto engine easier to start.

Police in Milton, Wis., said a man and a woman were found dead on Sunday in a parked van. They apparently were overcome by fumes when they left the engine running to stay warm, authorities said.
Although the sun shone in the West, it remained bitter cold as far south as northern Texas.
Rangers at Yellowstone Park reported that the temperature early Sunday dipped to 56 degrees below zero — 10 degrees short of the all-time low of 66 set in 1933.
Heavy thundershowers were reported from the Gulf Coast states to Virginia and the Carolinas.
More than 1,000 Arkansas Power and Light Co. crewmen were called out to restore power to 60,000 homes after what spokesman Charles Kelly described as the worst ice storm ever in southern Arkansas.
In all, about 80,000 Arkansas homes and businesses were blacked out, and about half remained without power overnight. Kelly estimated damage to AP&L equipment would exceed $2 million.
Emergency generators were used for electricity at hospitals in some towns, and the mayor of Dermott, Ark., ordered a dusk-to-dawn curfew after his community also lost its water supply.

Commercial flights were canceled at Little Rock. Acting Gov. Joe Purcell said he would ask state police and National Guard troops to assist legislators en route to a meeting of the state General Assembly if travel remained hazardous today.
About 15,000 homes were without power in southwestern Pennsylvania, and authorities said icy roads made it difficult for repair crews to reach downed lines.
A storm loated over the central Appalachian Mountains was forecast to intensify today as it moves into the New England.
More than 150 fire fighters, braving a wind chill factor of minus 25, finally controlled a stubborn forest fire in Washington state after a three-day battle. About 529 acres were lost.
The blaze was dubbed the "Windy Fire" on Friday because icy blasts of up to 60 mph whipped up flames in the tinder-dry forest about 15 miles south of Kalama. Winds were 10 to 20 mph on Sunday, but the chill caused water to freeze in hoses.
Some firefighters almost fell victim to hypothermia — a condition in which the body's temperature falls — but there were no other injuries reported, said Lori Taylor, of the state Department of Natural Resources.
Authorities said smaller fires were started elsewhere in the state by people lighting campfires to keep warm or burning trash.

FORECAST

Until Tuesday

Figures show low temperatures for area.

Data from NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE, NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and snow are expected through much of the West in the forecast period until Tuesday. Temperatures are expected to be cold over most areas. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A cold front moving across the state today will bring cold temperatures and an end to the rain of the past several days.
The front moved into the mountains this morning, pushing temperatures down into the 30s and bringing light snow. By this evening, temperatures across the state will range from the 20s in the mountains to the 40s along the coast.
During the weekend, a storm system developed along the Gulf Coast and moved northeast into the Appalachians. Warm moist air moved over the Tar Heel state, bringing moderate to heavy rainfall. A flash flood warning was issued Sunday for the central and southwest mountains where the heaviest rainfall was expected.

Rosman recorded three inches of rain, while Mount Pisgah received about two inches. East of the mountains amounts averaged around one half inch.
Temperatures on Sunday were generally in the 50s and 60s. Overnight lows remained in the 50s except in the mountains where the cold front passed.

Tonight's temperatures will drop into the teens and 20s over the state and even lower in the northwest mountains. Tuesday's highs will be in the 30s and low 40s.
EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.
Fair Wednesday, chance of rain in the west Thursday and over the state on Friday. Highs in the 40s during period except some 50s in the southeast Thursday and Friday. Lows Wednesday morning in the 30s, warming to the 30s in the mountains and 40s elsewhere by Friday.

Dollar Drops Another Day

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar declined again today against all other major currencies, but the price of gold also fell back.
The dollar came under selling pressure from the big banks in Tokyo. One dealer blamed the fall of Phnom Penh to Vietnamese forces, saying this reflected the failure of American policy in Southeast Asia.
The dollar closed at 195.30 yen in Tokyo, down from 196.85 late Friday.
In Europe, the dollar weakened at the start of trading.
Early rates were:
Frankfurt — 1.8385 West German marks, down from 1.8495 at the close of trading Friday.
Zurich — 1.6403 Swiss francs, down from 1.6465.
Paris — 4.21 French francs, down from 4.24.
Milan — 831.50 lire, down from 833.75.
In London, the British pound sold for $2.0205, up from $2.0187.
The five major London bullion dealers fixed the morning gold price at $224.10 an ounce, down more than a dollar from Friday's closing rate of $225.375. In Zurich, the rate at midmorning was $224.125, down from $225.625.

PLANTERS' ALL-AMERICAN SAVINGS. FINALLY, HIGH INTEREST FOR EVEN ONE DOLLAR.

Having to save up $500 or $1000 just to open a savings account is crazy. It's unfair. It's practically un-American. So at Planters we've developed a concept that revolutionizes the savings account. We call it All-American Savings. With the minimum deposit at a real, honest-to-goodness minimum $1, it makes high interest truly affordable to all Americans.

What's more, it lets you add any amount anytime. It's what you'd expect from Planters. After all, we're the bank that still knows the value of a dollar. We're not about to turn one away.

Annual Interest Rate	Maturity	Minimum Deposit	Additional Deposit
5 1/2%	3 months	$1	Anytime
6%	12 months	$1	Anytime
6 1/2%	30 months	$1	Anytime

WE STILL KNOW THE VALUE OF YOUR DOLLAR.

"Just because other places demand big deposits doesn't mean Planters does. They think All Americans deserve interest as high as 5 1/2%, 6, even 6 1/2% for as little as one dollar."

Substitute Is The Real Thing

The State Board of Education decided last week to request increased salaries for substitute teachers from $20 to $30 per day, effective Feb. 1. The move was made because educators complained that it is difficult to get qualified substitutes at the present pay rate. The increase is justified, but it will be up to school administrators to see that there is an improvement in substitute teaching. The days which students spend with a substitute teacher at times are wasted days, since the substitute is unfamiliar with what the class is taking up at any given time. With some advance planning the substitute teacher can be better prepared so that taking over a class for a day or so can be productive. Increasing the pay of substitute teachers is acceptable and probably necessary, but let's demand a little more for this increase.

Extra Safety Measures Are Laudable

New safety devices were authorized for public school buses by the State Board of Education last week. Included with be "crossover mirrors" and "walking control arms", which extend in front of the buses when the door is open. The mirrors will help the driver see directly in front of the bus. We have to trust the judgement of the Department of Public Instruction as to the effectiveness of these particular devices. There have, however, been accidents in which children were killed under the front wheels of buses. We look favorably on the efforts to reduce these tragedies.

Alternative Tax Sources

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — If the business community would benefit most from repeal of the North Carolina intangibles tax, then that sector should pick up the tab. That is the basic philosophy behind a repeal proposal which a study commission will present to the General Assembly this month. It is obvious there is no way to repeal the tax on wealth (bank deposits, stocks and bonds) unless the $35 million which the tax produces for local governments across the state can be gotten in some other way. State Treasurer Harlan E. Boyles, a member of the study commission chaired by Wake County Commissioner Waverly Akins, suggested the course eventually agreed upon: Move the intangibles tax off wealth and investments, and place it instead on the net worth of business corporations by hiking the franchise tax $1.50 per thousand.

Replaced
"In making this proposal, we will be acting in the belief that recommending repeal without a suggested replacement source would be futile. This solution is not advanced as one without problems; it merely seems to us that it is the best alternative", Boyles said. Since the main beneficiaries of the repeal of the intangibles tax will be, by and large, the business community," he pointed out, that group should help make up the loss to local governments. The franchise tax yields some $140 million per year and is highly responsive to economic upswings. It is collected from utilities, railroads, mutual burial associations, and against corporate real estate and wealth. A side benefit would be that the state tax collecting system would be able to handle the collections instead of having banks, savings and loans, and insurance companies serve as tax collectors as they do in assessing the intangibles tax. The intangibles tax has been studied and re-studied for decades, prompting Boyle to call it "inefficient; it tends to work to the disadvantage of many people; it is burdensome; and, it is costly to administer and to comply with." Repeal would be "an investment in the future development of the state. It will be the best means I know of, if we can secure it, of increasing the state's per capita income", Boyles believes. Critics have contended that the tax keeps corporations from establishing headquarters in this state, and discourages the wealthy — particularly retirees — from living in North Carolina. Over 65 A companion proposal from the study commission would exempt all persons over 65 from the intangibles tax, and also exempt all bank deposits. As in the other proposal, loss would be recovered from the franchise tax. Meanwhile, Boyles is convinced that local governments already hard pressed to increase revenues from the property tax and facing the loss of federal revenue sharing funds should start now considering a replacement. "Might we not in the future consider as a measure of tax reform adding a fifth penny to our sales tax ... and dedicate this revenue entirely to our counties and cities?" he suggested. The money would be collected as a local option and earmarked for capital construction of schools, water and sewer facilities, streets and such.

WASHINGTON TODAY

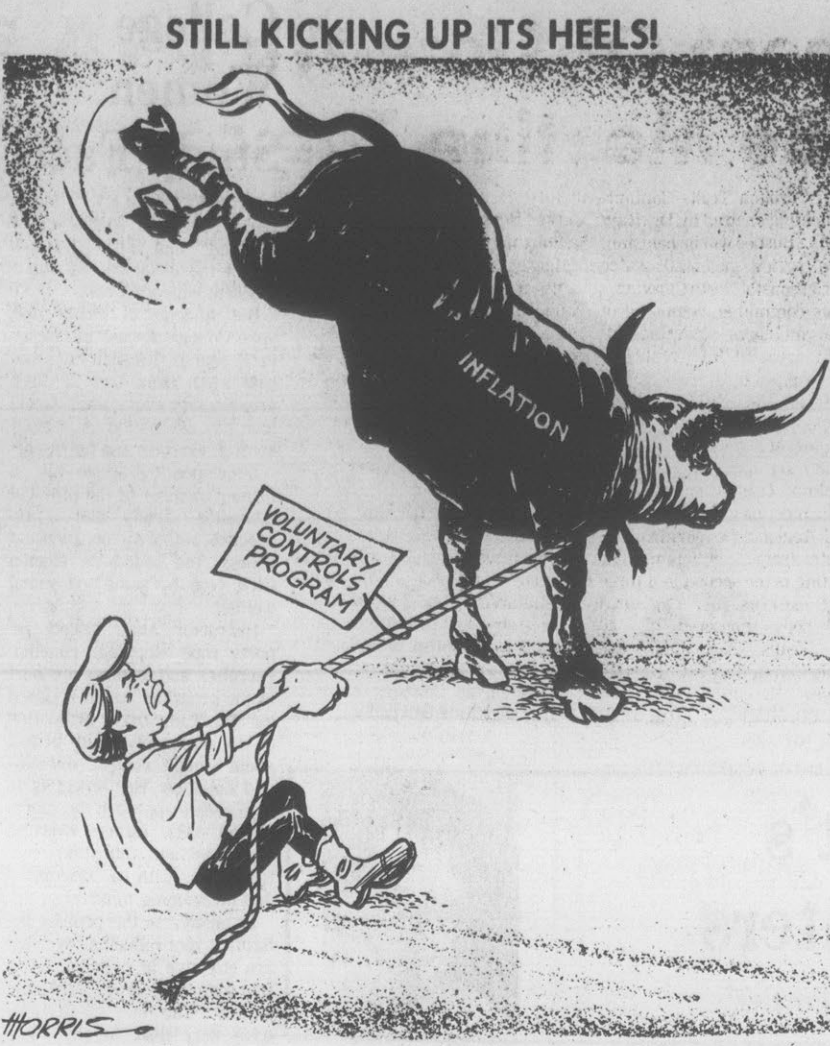

The Civil Defense Snafu

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The anger of White House aides on reading a front-page story in the Dec. 28 New York Times that President Carter had flipflopped on civil defense stemmed from a conviction that the president is losing the bureaucratic and propaganda war within his own administration. The Times story clearly came from within the administration and reflects sentiment in the State Department, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) and even the Pentagon. It reported "growing skepticism" within the administration over the efficacy of civil defense. What made it seem preposterous was Carter's personal approval last October of Presidential Directive 41, asserting for the first time that civil defense must be counted as a factor in the U.S.-Soviet strategic balance. This new doctrine set off alarm bells in the arms con-rol community, where civil defense is condemned as provocative — an acknowledgment that nuclear war is thinkable. Adherents of the anti-civil defense philosophy set about reversing the presidential decision. One result was the Dec. 28 account aimed at forcing the president's hand. Getting shot down by propaganda fire from their own bureaucrats is nothing new for presidents, but Jimmy Carter has made an art of being victimized. Front-page stories in influential newspapers have undercut Carter and his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, over U.S. policy toward the shah of Iran — asserting, for example, that the U.S. really opposes the shah. These reports, far from being manufactured, precisely represent important opinions within the high-level bureaucracy — but not the president's. The reports that Carter has suddenly done an about-face on civil defense (despite last year's exhaustive National Security Council study pointing to a vastly increased program) infuriated not only NSC aides but also White House political operatives. To the former, the leaks were a gambit to hem in Carter bordering on "disinformation"; to the latter, they made Carter look like the shifting tides — in one day, out the next. Carter himself, moreover, has played into the hands of critics of civil defense by his own public ambivalence. Many newspaper editorials attacked him last fall for approving PD 41 and its prospective seven-year costs of almost $2 billion. Instead of meeting his critics head-on, he flinched, telling his Nov. 30 press conference that "reports about a $2 billion civil defense program have been completely erroneous. Yet, only two weeks earlier, White House press secretary Jody Powell outlined to newsmen how civil defense spending, now $96.5 million a year, could just about double "over five years." The proposed spending implicit in PD 41 would reach an annual $375 million after five years — an accumulated $2 billion over seven years. The "$2 billion civil defense program" discussed in the press, followed by editorial attacks on Carter's new doctrine making civil defense part of the strategic balance, frightened the president. Internal opponents, at ACDA and at State, quickly moved in to ridicule the whole idea of civil defense. Shunted aside was the Central Intelligence Agency's estimate that Moscow spends nearly $2 billion every year on plans to evacuate population and other life-saving measures in case of nuclear war. The new budget, all but ready for wrapping, falls far short of the $140 million civil defense spending originally expected to be approved by Carter. Instead, it is around $110 million — only marginally higher than today's spending rate when inflation is factored in. Such sudden changes by the U.S. government help explain why foreign allies wonder how much they can count on presidential commitments and whether presidential policies are firmly rooted in the bureaucracies entrusted with carrying them out. The on-again, off-again civil defense non-program is also making problems for Carter on Capitol Hill. Sen. William Proxmire, chairman of a special civil defense subcommittee of his Senate Banking Committee, is planning new civil defense hearings to try and learn who is in charge: the high officials

Winning Is Everything

WASHINGTON — I believe it's time to do my Woody Hayes' think piece. For a week now, sports pundits, editorial writers and television commentators have been discussing one of the major issues of our time: that is, whether Woody Hayes, coach of the Ohio State football team, should have been fired for slugging a Clemson University player in the Gator Bowl last week. The incident, which is now considered comparable to Gen. Patton hitting a GI in the face during a tour of a hospital in World War II, has ramifications far greater than football. It makes us all ask ourselves, "Whither America's will to win?" First, the undisputed facts. Ohio State was playing Clemson in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. The Ohio team was losing with 15 points to Clemson's 17. There was one minute and 58 seconds to play. Ohio State had a chance to score. Its quarterback threw a pass, which was intercepted by the Clemson guard, Charley Bauman, who was knocked out of bounds a few feet from coach Hayes on the sidelines. Woody was so furious at the interception that he hit Bauman in the face. Woody wanted to continue the fight but was separated by his own players. The next morning Hayes was fired. All right, now let's face the tough question. Did Hayes have the right to slug the Clemson guard? I say the answer to the question is an unequivocal yes. Let's put ourselves in Woody Hayes' shoes for just a moment. His team is playing in the Gator Bowl, which is in itself a comedown for the Buckeyes who usually wind up in the Rose, Sugar or Cotton bowls. The opposition, Clemson, a school with one-tenth the student body of Ohio State, is kicking the hip pads out of the Hayes-coached team. With less than two minutes to go, Hayes' boys have a chance to get in field goal range and win the game.

ART BUCHWALD

Then Clemson guard Bauman spoils everything. The Ohio State quarterback throws a pass. Bauman gets in the way and grabs it, thus ending the Buckeyes' chance of winning the game. If you were the coach of Ohio State, and one of the opposition players snatched victory from your team, would you just stand on the sidelines and do NOTHING? Of course you wouldn't. Your first instinct would be to hit the player who stole your ball. This is what Woody Hayes did. He didn't do it for himself. He did it for everyone who loves the American game of football. He showed the country on nationwide television that law and order on the gridiron still prevail, and when a kid steals a pass, he's going to pay for it. It's a coach's job to do everything in his power to win. If this means hitting a player on the other team — so be it. Some say Bauman, the Clemson guard, was the victim of the Hayes' attack. I say he invited the slugging match. Bauman knew the

To the editor:
Article VI, Section 8 of the North Carolina State Constitution begins: "The following persons shall be disqualified for office: First, any person who shall deny the being of Almighty God." I believe that this provision is a cornerstone of our representative, republican form of government. No denominational preference is mandated by Article VI, Section 8. Therefore, this provision does not violate the principle of separation between church and state. Article VI, Section 8, is common sense. It agrees with Article I, Section 1: "We hold it to be self-evident that all persons are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights..." It would be inconsistent to declare in one place that citizens have God-given, inalienable rights and to declare in another that a public official (whose purpose it is to protect those rights) can deny the being of God (the source of those rights). The framers of our State Constitution believed that Christianity best incorporated the mores of the body politic; thus, they based our laws upon the Christian standard. The recognition of inalienable, God-given rights is the foundation for the representative form of government outlined in our State Constitution. Some government leaders draw close to God with their lips, but deny Him in their actions. These leaders try to play the role of God; they try to make our decisions for us. Let us be vigilant and elect men who will let God be God and who will let God — not government — supply our needs. Lyle Barlow

Assumptions Proved Not Real

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Well here we are, in the second week of the new year, and the big recession hasn't even shown up on the radar screen. One of the big-name forecasters, Data Resources, has just announced a postponement; its forecast now calls for the downturn to begin no sooner than summer, instead of a full quarter earlier. But it's out there in the future, we are told. A big national bank advises clients in its newsletter that "just because something has not yet occurred does not mean that it will not happen." Meanwhile, the seers are compelled to tell their followers that "housing (or cars, or department store sales, or incomes or industrial production) defies the forecasters." What really has happened, and it should be pointed out unmercifully, is that a good many of the forecasters simply miscalculated, pouring into their computers a bagful of assumptions that just weren't real. You can't bake a good cake unless you estimate the ingredients properly before mixing and putting it in the oven. Once you've gone that far you have to trust to the oven and your recipe. Events hardly conspire to challenge the baker or economic forecaster. When that claim is made, therefore, the seers are really saying they misread events, that they failed to pour the proper mix into their computers, and that they created mush instead. This isn't to suggest that there won't be a recession.

The popular explanation now is that since the recession has been delayed it may hit more suddenly and run more deeply when it finally does arrive. The factors that have postponed it — primarily consumer insistence on buying despite rising prices and interest rates — are viewed as adding to the imbalances that must eventually be resolved by a downturn. As consumers add debt, for example, they are seen as making themselves extremely vulnerable. Unemployment rises in a downturn, and that provokes the question: How do the jobless pay installment debts? As seen by many economists, therefore, their timing miscalculation is not theirs but an aberration

Green Facing Options

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Since he's been lieutenant governor Jimmy Green has often found himself opposing Gov. Jim Hunt on issues, and heading into the 1979 General Assembly session even more differences figure to emerge between them. Their differences, both political and personal, are likely to flare both because of the year and because of their conflicting ambitions. Both could be running for governor next year. Green, in a recent interview, said he is convinced that Hunt has already made up his mind to seek a second term. "I don't think there's any doubt about that," he said. "I think that's why he pushed so hard for succession." For Green, that leaves three options as the session opens: —He must find an issue on which to base a challenge to a sitting governor of his own Democratic Party next year. —Or, he must decide how to gracefully seek a second term himself after opposing in 1977 the constitutional amendment that allows him — and Hunt, — to do that. —Or, he must face the session recognizing that it is his final one, look for another political office or give it all up. "I haven't ruled anything out," Green said. "But I've made absolutely no decision, and I won't until my supporters across the state express their opinions to me." Green will make a decision this year, he said, by December at the latest. And Hunt aides are expecting Green to come up with a major legislative issue to oppose the governor on. "He's got to try to cut Hunt," one Hunt aide, asking not to be named, said. "He's got to have something he can hurt him with." One likely battle, Green hinted, could come over taxes — not about whether to reduce them, but over how to do it. Hunt will reveal his tax plan Jan. 15 in the "state of the state" speech, and while the proposal isn't known now, Green is against the rebate plan first suggested by Hunt last year. Green said he thinks there is overwhelming opposition among legislators that "seals the doom of any rebate idea." Green prefers a permanent cut, and said he will have his own recommendation later. "Will he be prepared to fight for it over whatever Hunt recommends? "Oh yes, yes," Green said. "Absolutely." There are other possible battlegrounds too. One is the state science and mathematics high school which was proposed by Hunt last year and won a planning appropriation. Hunt will ask the legislature for several hundred thousand dollars to get it off the ground this year. "Personally, I frown on it," Green said of the specialized school. "I think it's a step in the wrong direction. The money this state has to spend on education ought to be spent on all of the children of this state in a like fashion." They also differ on the Equal Rights Amendment, although Green didn't oppose it publicly in 1977 when it lost by two votes while he presided over the Senate. And Green says he will steer away from an issue that volatiles. "I'm not going to put myself

Strength For Today

NO MAN IS AN ISLAND
We have all seen what happens when an ambulance comes speeding down the street, its siren wailing. Motorists pull to the curb; pedestrians step back on the sidewalks. Meanwhile the ambulance speeds through stop signs and red lights. The respect for the ambulance is a good reflection of our Christian democracy and how it should work. The life of an individual in trouble, no matter how humble he may be, is of primary importance. We have our laws, our traffic lights, or stop signals; but we are willing to set them all aside to save one life, if that is necessary. We, as citizens, no matter how busy or important or wealthy we may be, are prepared to step aside and yield our right of way to someone in need of help. As John Donne, the British poet, said almost four centuries ago, "No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main. Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind." Elisha Douglass

Development Of State-Wide Trails To Be Meeting Topic

ECU News Bureau
A proposed Mountain-to-Sea Trail Corridor, a series of trails stretching from the Great Smoky Mountains National Park to Jockey's Ridge on the Outer Banks, may be closer to reality after meetings at East Carolina University on Jan. 13 and 14. A North Carolina Trails Committee meeting chaired by Dr. Raymond L. Busbee will be held Jan. 13 to review potential water trails in coastal North Carolina.

This committee, composed of seven members from the different areas of N.C. representing all types of trail users, will meet in the ECU Regional Development Institute, Willis Building, at 10 a.m.

Then on Jan. 14, a North Carolina Trails Coastal Area public meeting will be held at the ECU Regional Development Institute from 1:30-5 p.m. The meeting is the second in a three part series of regional workshops sponsored by the N.C. Trails Association, N.C. Trails Committee, N.C. Dept. of Natural Resources and Community Development and the Parks, Recreation and Conservation Curriculum at ECU.

Howard Lee, secretary of the Dept. of Natural Resources, announced plans for the Mountain-to-Sea Trail last Fall. Jim Stevens director of State Parks and Recreation, set up meetings and appointed task forces to involve the trail users and landowners who would be participating in the development of the trails.

The Greenville meeting will set the course of action to establish the new trails in eastern North Carolina. The coastal area will be divided into work groups and task forces appointed to establish a regional trail complex for the Wayne/Lenoir Counties area, the Jones/Carter Counties area, the Outer Banks, the Merchants Mill Pond/Dismal Swamp area and the Bladen Lakes area.

The Greenville workshop will coordinate with the other two groups in Greensboro and Asheville to link the series of trails continuously from the mountains to the Outer Banks. The workshop is designed to promote interest in hiking, bike, canoe, horse and off-the-road vehicle trails. The meeting will be open to the public.

The successful establishment of the state-wide trail would make North Carolina the only state with a project of this kind.

Busbee is on the faculty of the ECU Department of Parks, Recreation and Conservation.

Engineering Firms Announce Merger

Triangle Engineering & Surveying Inc. and Stroud Engineering and Land Surveying Co., P.A., have merged, it was announced by Triangle vice president, A. Glenn Barwick, R.L.S.

Barwick said the company will do business in Greenville under the name of Triangle Engineering & Surveying Inc. with the local office temporarily located at 301 S. Evans Street, Suite 201.

According to the spokesman, Triangle Engineering & Surveying works throughout the southeast from five offices in North Carolina and South Carolina. Home offices are located in Raleigh.

Barwick added that total employment of the firm is presently 104 with a staff of ten operating out of the Greenville office. Total revenues for Triangle for 1978 were in excess of $1.5 million. Linwood E. Stroud, P.E., R.L.S., will manage the Greenville office, Barwick reported. Stroud has run his own office in Greenville and Kinston for the past seven years and has done the civil engineering and surveying associated with various subdivisions, apartments and commercial sites during this time, he added.

Arrested For School Break-In

Greenville Police Friday, arrested Lavern Pope, 17 of Greenville, on charges of breaking, entering and larceny.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Pope was charged in connection with a January 1 break-in at South Greenville School.

responsible for Carter's signature on PD 41 or the anti-civil defense bureaucrats. "We are confused by all the conflicting signals," Proxmire, no friend of such spending, told us. "It looked like there was certainly going to be a new program. Now it seems that the skeptics have won their fight against it."

Such shifting of White House tides under bureaucratic pounding and presidential indecision made it impossible to prejudge Carter's surprising conclusions on the B-1 bomber, the neutron warhead, the MX missile and many other questions bearing heavily on the U.S. strategic position. Now it is the turn of civil defense. Yesterday, civil defense seemed to have been marked for an illustrious career under Jimmy Carter; today it looks like just another orphan.

pass wasn't for him. He knew it was thrown to an Ohio State receiver. He had no right to get in the way of it, and even less right to catch it and run in the opposite direction.

Unless we are willing to see college football go down the drain, all of us are going to have to speak up and reiterate what American coaches have been telling their players for years, WINNING IS EVERYTHING. If we don't allow coaches to slug players on the other team, then there is no sense suiting our kids up to play the game. Hayes' hit in the mouth might have been the best thing to happen to Bauman, who I am certain will think twice before he ever steals a pass again.

in the position the governor put himself in by campaigning hard for ERA, by urging and pressuring House members and senators to vote for ERA," Green said.

"I'm not going to get involved in one of these emotional issues, and say this is right and that's wrong, when one group is clamoring for this and one group is clamoring against it. I think it's most unbecoming for a person in a leadership role to get involved."

Some Hunt advisors think Green may try to capitalize on the competency test dispute, and back a bill to exempt private schools.

But what Green may also do is point out his conservative opposition, item by item, on most of Hunt's legislative proposals, and paint the governor as a liberal, spending more on government while preaching less.

"I take the position that I've been a dues paying, loyal Democrat a lot longer than some of these who today talk about their allegiance," he said. "Maybe I'm not as ultra-liberal as some are, but I don't think North Carolina is an ultra-liberal state."

EXCEPT FOR THE CHANGE IN YOUR POCKET, YOU CAN NOW PUT ALMOST EVERY PENNY YOU OWN TO WORK.

It's a well-known fact that you can't write a check on your savings account. And you can't earn interest on your checking account. So unless you're willing to switch funds constantly back and forth, how can you earn interest on all your money?

Well, now there's a way. BB&T's Customer's Choice® Transfer Service.

It's a new service that will let you put just about every penny you own to work.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS.

When you open a Customer's Choice Transfer Savings Account, we'll automatically tie it in to your BB&T checking account. Like all regular BB&T savings, you'll earn 5% interest from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal, compounded quarterly. But here's the interest-earning difference.

Now you can make all your deposits into your Transfer Savings Account. Then whenever it's needed to cover your checks, we'll automatically transfer the money in $100 multiples into your checking account. This means you'll keep earning interest on every cent in your savings right up to the day it's transferred.

And since no checking account service charge is required with your new Customer's Choice Transfer Account, the cost to you is just a $3 per month maintenance fee—plus $.25 for every day a transfer is made. If you keep a balance of $2,000 or more in your Transfer Savings Account at all times, no maintenance fee will be charged.

Naturally, the higher your savings balance, the more this service will mean to you. Not only will you be earning interest you could not have earned before, but with a high average balance, your earnings can easily exceed your service fee. And just imagine the additional convenience to you if all your savings and loan or credit union funds were placed within this one easy-to-manage account.

CUSTOMER'S CHOICE MEANS JUST WHAT IT SAYS.

For those who don't wish to maintain a high average balance, our new service lives up to its name by offering you another choice. This optional plan, designed as protection against accidental overdrafts, works just like the first plan. All you pay is $1 for every day a transfer is made, plus your regular checking service charge. So with money in your Transfer Savings, there's no more worry about "bouncing" checks—or paying an overdraft fee.

The only way to decide whether or not Customer's Choice Transfer Service is right for you is to come to your nearest BB&T office and discuss it with us. If it does make sense, we'll get you on the road to earning new interest right away.

We think it's time you got the most out of every penny you own. Don't you?

CUSTOMER'S CHOICE TRANSFER SERVICE. A NEW WAY TO POCKET MORE INTEREST.

Busier Year Faces Rural Mail Carrier

According to Greenville Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills, rural mail carriers will bring mail to more homes than ever before in 1979.

"It's quite likely that many of us received mail during the recent holidays bearing a special cancellation that read: 'Rural Letter Carriers. Serving America.'" Mills said. "And you may see the same imprint on some of your mail for a few days into the new year."

The cancellations were part of a tribute to the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, which has been in existence for 75 years.

"The number of Americans who receive their mail on rural routes today totals about 14.3 million families," said Mills. "Each day, more than 30,000 full-time rural carriers travel some 2.2 million miles, roughly equivalent to four round trips to the moon, delivering letters, packages, catalogs and other materials to the nation's rural residents."

Around 6,419 local families are served by 10 rural routes.

"The growth of rural service has been credited with both helping to develop the nation's highway system and adding new business opportunities for those with goods and services to sell by mail," noted Mills.

"While providing these services, rural carriers have developed a sense of responsibility for their customers that is almost legendary," Mills added. "Many times, it has gone far beyond what customers normally expect from their post office on wheels."

OIL PRODUCTION

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Oil production, on which this nation depends for almost all its export earnings, averaged 2.2 million barrels a day during the first week of 1979, the Energy and Mines Ministry reports.

Deadline On Award Entry

Tuesday, Jan. 9, is the deadline for acceptance of nominations for the Greenville Chamber of Commerce "Citizen of the Year" award, according to Jerry Powell, GACC Chairman of the Board.

According to Powell, the award is one of the most prestigious awards given by the Chamber annually.

Criteria for the award is based on four major areas: civic activities, business involvement, general reputation and contribution to the community.

The selection committee for the award consists of five chamber members appointed by the Chairman of the Board. Anyone interested in nominating a person should send information including a resume and reasons for the nomination to the Citizen of the Year Award Committee, Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 894, Greenville, N.C. 27834, postmarked no later than Jan. 9 or bring it to the Chamber office, 1209 W. 14th St. Persons may also call the office, 752-4101.

The award will be presented at the Chamber's annual meeting, Jan. 24, at the Greenville Country Club.

WASTE HEAT USED

TOKYO (AP) — Heat exhaust from facilities at northeast China's Taching oil field helps keep vegetables growing year-round in hot houses, China's official Hasinhua news agency says.

Farmers Market Meeting Slated

Prospective producers for the Pitt County Farmer's market will meet Tuesday, Jan. 9, 7:30 p.m., at the county Agricultural Extension Office, 203 W. Third St., Greenville.

Anyone who is interested in producing vegetables or fruit for sale at a local market this spring should plan to attend, according to Samuel Uzzell, assistant agricultural extension agent.

Deadline For Skill Training Moved Up

Application deadline for the Skill Training Improvement Program in farm equipment mechanics has been extended to Jan. 15.

The program is being co-sponsored by local employers and the North Carolina Department of Labor in cooperation with Beaufort County Technical Institute.

The program will include classroom training at Beaufort Tech and on-the-job training with local employers.

All trainees will receive wages, use of training materials and health care insurance.

The program also has allowances for classroom training at Beaufort Tech.

The course is designed to prepare participants to enter an apprenticeship program. Completion of the apprenticeship will mean an opportunity to work as a skilled mechanic with job security and excellent wages.

All employers are equal opportunity employers. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to consider this career option.

To be eligible, an applicant must be a member of a family whose total income during the 12 months prior to application does not exceed poverty levels. The applicant must have been unemployed for 15 or more of the last 20 weeks, or be a veteran who has not obtained permanent full-time unsubsidized employment. Members of families receiving AFDC as well as other CETA participants who have been enrolled 15 or more weeks are also eligible.

To apply for the program, persons should contact the Job Service, Employment Security Commission, 3101 Bismarck Ave., Greenville, 756-2686.

Church Women Name Officers

Bonnie Harrington was elected president of the St. James United Methodist Church United Methodist Women at a meeting Wednesday.

Other elected officers were: Martha Moye, vice president; Laurie Charlton, secretary; Glenda Flynn, treasurer; Becky Groome, historian.

Refreshments were served by Freda Steinbeck.

Arrested On Varied Charges

Chief Glenn Cannon said today that Audrey Lee Williams, 52, of Vincent's Trailer Pk., was arrested Friday on charges of fraud, two counts of failing to return hired property, and five worthless check counts, in connection with a series of incidents which occurred in May 1978.

The worthless check charges stemmed from incidents at Convent World, Harris' Super Market, Kroger's, Fast Fare and Sto-N-Go, between May 12 and May 18, while the other charges involved incidents at Tarheel Truck Rentals and the Rental Tool Co. on May 18 and 19.

Entrance Test Slated Tuesday

KINSTON — Lenoir Community College will hold a Allied Health Test Tuesday, Jan. 9, 1 p.m., for those who wish to enroll in allied health courses at LCC for spring quarter or later.

Pre-registration for spring quarter starting March 7 will begin sometime in the last week of January, according to Mrs. Peggy Rouse, of the LCC Admissions Office.

NOTICE TO OWNERS OF PROPERTY IN PITT COUNTY

This listing of property for tax purposes in Pitt County will begin January 2, 1979, and will continue through January 31, 1979.

Any person, firm, corporation, or organization owning property in this county as of January 1, 1979, whether real or personal, must list such property within the listing period or be subject to the penalties prescribed by North Carolina Law. Property must be listed in the township in which it is located.

Persons who requested to list by mail should receive their listing forms early in January. These must be completed and returned to the office of the Tax Supervisor before the deadline of January 31, 1979.

Bring your social security number and your motor vehicle registration cards with you when you come to list.

Owners and operators of parks or storage lots renting space for three or more house trailers or mobile homes are required by law to furnish the Tax Supervisor of the county in which the lot is located, the name of the owner and a description of each trailer or mobile home situated thereon. The list must be submitted by January 15 of each year. Owners and operators failing to comply with the law shall be liable to payment of tax in addition to a penalty of $250.

Persons having custody of taxable tangible personal property belonging to another firm or individual that is held for storage, sale, rent or any other business purpose shall furnish the Tax Supervisor a report of such property by January 15th or will be liable for the tax on the property plus a penalty of $250.

Those Jonestown Bodies Are Still Waiting Burial

By PATRICK BRESLIN
Associated Press Writer
DOVER, Del. (AP) — The bodies of 631 persons who died in the Peoples Temple mass murder-suicide are stacked in government-purchased coffins in an aging, freezing airplane hangar, their final resting places uncertain. The federal government apparently has no plans to move from Dover Air Force Base the victims of the Nov. 18 incident at the jungle colony in Jonestown, Guyana. "It looks like no one wants to do anything," said Charles Wyman, a State Department attorney assigned here. "I was told in no uncertain terms that the government has neither the authority nor the funds to release the bodies." Wyman said any relatives have told the State Department they cannot afford to transport and bury or cremate the bodies. Many apparently are waiting for the government or some charitable group to pay the costs, he said.

Next of kin have been notified of the deaths of 635 positively identified cultists, but 353 of those bodies remained unclaimed Sunday night. There also were 278 unidentified bodies. Wyman said Air Force pathologists in Washington are still trying to name the unidentified corpses, but the pace has slowed considerably. Only two have been identified since Dec. 19.

All 913 of the bodies were fingerprinted before being placed in sealed coffins, but Wyman said the Air Force has had trouble locating fingerprint records for many victims, particularly children.

The U.S. military flew the bodies here from Jonestown, to pacify local officials in Guyana, Wyman said.

But bringing the bodies here upset some Delaware officials. Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV asked President Carter last month to have the military fly the bodies to San Francisco, where the Rev. Jim Jones' cult began and where many of the relatives live. Carter has not responded, said du Pont news secretary Frederick Stern.

Both du Pont and Dover Mayor Charles A. Legates Jr. have insisted no mass burial be made near Dover, fearing the site would become a cult shrine.

Delaware has allowed local morticians to transport the bodies out of state but has prevented local burial or cremation by requiring death certificates, which had to be issued in Guyana.

Wyman said the first 599 death certificates arrived in Washington Thursday, but Battle R. Robinson, assistant counsel to du Pont, said other Delaware laws could prohibit a mass cremation here.

Mrs. Robinson said Delaware requires a cremation certificate signed by a physician or coroner stating there is no reason not to destroy a particular body, and she said the Jonestown bodies may be needed because of lingering questions about the cause of death.

Jones' body was cremated in New Jersey last month to avoid Delaware's legal problems, but Thomas Cannon of the New Jersey attorney general's office said it apparently was illegal because Delaware morticians cannot work in New Jersey.

Cannon said no other cremations of Jonestown bodies will be allowed in New Jersey until the state Board of Mortuary Science meets Tuesday in Newark to discuss the situation.

Indian Family Chose To Live In Randolph; It Looked Like Home

By AMY McRARY
Asheboro Courier-Tribune
ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Doctors Daljit S. Caberwal and Ranbir Singh say they moved to Randolph County because it reminds them of home.

Caberwal, a urologist who has lived in Randolph County for 2 1/2 years, and Singh, who opened the Asheboro Orthopedic Clinic in 1978, said the foothills and warm climate of Asheboro make them feel at home, even though they are halfway around the world from northern India where they were raised.

"I didn't like New York City particularly," said Dr. Singh, who received much of his medical training there. "I had looked in Ohio for relocation. But there was soot and smog and smell everywhere there. And I knew Dr. Caberwal and so my wife said, 'Why not come to Asheboro?'"

"When we got here, it looked so different, so clean and green. I just told the administrator (of Randolph Hospital) I was coming."

Dr. Caberwal, who also trained in New York, the climate — "a place where there is not too much snow" — combined with Asheboro's need for a urologist was the attraction.

Besides the weather, balmy after years of New York snow and smog, the people "from the country here are like the nice, honest people back home," Dr. Singh said. "They are warm and honest."

Their homes here are a mixture of Eastern and Western cultures, as well as a reminder of their travels around the world. The walls of the Caberwal den include pictures of an American Indian, as well as a Hindu portrayal of various gods. A tapestry of an Indian woman done by a relative hangs above the mantel in the Singhs' living room.

Their dress is a mixture of Western dress and their traditional garb. The men wear turbans with their suits while their wives wear saris.

Much of the dress is dictated by their religion, which is neither Moslem nor Hindu, but an outgrowth of wars between both faiths. Both doctors and their families belong to a religion named "Sikh" formed over 500 years ago.

Sikhs do not have the strict caste system or religious dictates of the Hindus, and believe there is only one god.

Their religion tells them they should not cut their hair and that they should wear traditional dress whenever possible. Another religious rule is that everyone should wear a small bracelet. Dr. Caberwal's wife, Satinder, said the bracelet symbolizes the courage one needs and should have throughout life.

"Adapting to life in Asheboro has not been difficult at all, the families say, since many of the stereotypes portrayed in old movies about their homeland are no longer true today.

"We don't have any snake charmers and tiger hunts," Dr. Caberwal said. "Those are news to us, they are just in the old movies. I haven't seen one in my lifetime."

India has a number of high-rise buildings and railroad systems and much of the country is self-supporting, the Caberwals said.

"You'd be surprised to know that India hasn't imported food for the last three years," Dr. Caberwal said.

Yet there are visible differences, they say. Many people are unable to afford cars, and motorcycles and scooters are predominant. "And cows still roam the street," Mrs. Caberwal said. "Although nobody really bothers about them today. They are still sacred to many of the older people."

The families say the hardest thing to adapt to was the food in this country. They are accustomed to the dishes of India, prepared with various spices which are not available much here outside of New York. So Mrs. Singh and Mrs. Caberwal stock up on the preparations through the mail and when they travel to New York.

There are other differences, too, they say, differences of family and social ties. The families say they would opt for the family systems of India, ones they feel are good basic rules of life.

The family is all-important in India, they say, as it should be. Many of the poorer families will make large sacrifices to give their children a high degree of education, because education is very important in India also. When the parents get old and in their declining years, it's the children's turn to repay their parents' help.

"Parents do not give up on their children," Dr. Caberwal said. "And in return, parents care for children in their homes. There are no nursing homes in India; they take care of each other, they take care of their neighbors in need."

Both Dr. Singh and Dr. Caberwal say they will instill these dictates in their children — the importance of religion, respect for elders and the need for a good education.

"This is good anywhere you go," Dr. Caberwal said. "My nurse was telling me recently that those were the strong things in this country 50 years ago."

Children, especially females, remain in their parents' home unless they are professional people, the Caberwals said. Premarital sex is nonexistent in India, although Dr. Singh said that is changing.

And marriages in India are still arranged. Both the Singhs and the Caberwals said their own marriages were arranged by their parents, although that custom is less strict than before.

Both couples met briefly before their marriages were arranged, and say the marriages have worked out quite well. "These days, the parents give the boy and girl a chance to meet and if they really don't like each other, they can say something," Dr. Caberwal said.

Report 12 Died In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
The Highway Patrol said 12 people have died on North Carolina's highways so far this weekend. The state's highway death toll for the year stands at 25, compared with 23 during the same period last year.

The patrol said Henry Lee Collins, 7, of Shannon, was killed Friday night when he ran into the path of an oncoming car.

Bruce Carlton Harrison III, 16, of Arapaho, will killed Friday night near Arapaho when the car he was driving ran off the road and struck a tree.

Rocky Wayne Collins, 27, of Charlotte died Friday when he walked into the path of a car in Charlotte, the patrol said.

A 19-year-old Marine from Camp Lejeune died Friday when the bus in which he was riding overturned on Interstate 95 near Rocky Mount. The patrol identified him as James Regan of Jersey City, N.J. Six other persons riding in the bus were injured.

Aurick Icard, 32, of Winston-Salem, was killed early Saturday morning near Lincolnton in a two-car accident. Icard was a passenger in a car that was struck in the side by another vehicle, according to the patrol.

A Wilson man, Clyde Lynn Griffin, 42, was killed Saturday morning about one mile north of Wilson when his car struck another vehicle in the rear.

A Wilkesboro man, 52-year-old James Herman Roberts, was killed Saturday evening. The Patrol says Roberts was lying on U.S. 421 north of Wilkesboro in Wilkes County and two vehicles ran over him.

Michael Ernest Shore, 22, of Jonesville died Saturday when the car in which he was riding collided head-on with another car on U.S. 421 west of Yadkinville in Yadkin County.

Harris Allen Freeman, 25, and Wayne Sherman Winkler,

21, both of Charlotte, were killed Saturday night on a Charlotte street. The patrol said Freeman was driving on the wrong side of the road and hit Winkler head-on.

Linda Karen Rhyne, 21, of Elkin died early Sunday when a car in which she was riding overturned on a rural paved road south of Boone in Watauga County.

The patrol said 20-year-old Connie Eugene Johnson of Louisburg died early Sunday when the car she was driving ran off a road and struck a parked car on a rural road east of Louisburg in Franklin County.

Honored For 4-Year Role

A Pitt County woman was honored recently for her service to the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program as a program aide.

Lillie Claxton was presented a certificate of recognition for her four years of service to the program.

The awards were made at a special meeting which celebrated the 10th anniversary of the EFNEP program in North Carolina.

Sponsored by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, the EFNEP program is in existence to teach low income families how to get the best nutritional value for their money.

The aides visit approximately 50 families each month, teaching lessons in food buying, food safety, canning, freezing, gardening, food preparation and family nutrition.

Dallas, Steelers Earn Super Bowl Spots

Cowboys 'Intercept' 28-0 Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Breunig, the 225-pound middle linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys, admits his defensive cohorts played great against the Los Angeles Rams, but he says they'll have to do better in the Super Bowl.

The defending National Football League champions qualified for Super Bowl XIII on Sunday by whipping the Rams 28-0 with four touchdowns in the second half, the first two after interceptions by safety Charlie Waters.

The Cowboys face American Football Conference champion Pittsburgh, a 34-5 winner over Houston Sunday, at Miami on Jan. 21.

"The defense did it," said quarterback Roger Staubach. "Their defense did an excellent job and so did ours."

"It was a good, alert, tough and aggressive game by our defense," said Breunig. "I think it was our best defensive effort of the season."

Rams' quarterback Pat Haden left the game late in the third quarter with a broken right thumb after being hit by defensive tackle Randy White, who put fullback John Cappelletti out in the first quarter with a shoulder injury.

The halftime score was 0-0, a tribute to the defenses.

Early in the third period, Charlie Waters picked off a Haden pass at the Rams' 30 and returned to the 9. Aided by a penalty, the Cowboys scored in five plays. Tony Dorsett circling right end from four yards out for the score.

Later, Waters intercepted at the Rams 49 and returned 29 yards to the 20. A Staubach-to-Preston Pearson pass gained 17 and the touchdown came on a 4-yard pass from Staubach to fullback Scott Laidlaw.

Then the Rams staged a 65-yard pass play from Vince Ferragamo to Willie Miller carrying to the Dallas 10. On the next play, however, Cullen Bryant fumbled and Harvey Martin recovered for the Cowboys.

Dorsett broke loose for 53 yards and six plays later Staubach found Billy Joe DuPree with an 11-yard touchdown pass.

The Cowboys' final touchdown came on a 68-yard return of an intercepted pass by Thomas Henderson.

The Rams had seven turnovers, five on pass interceptions and two on fumbles and the Cowboys scored following four of them.

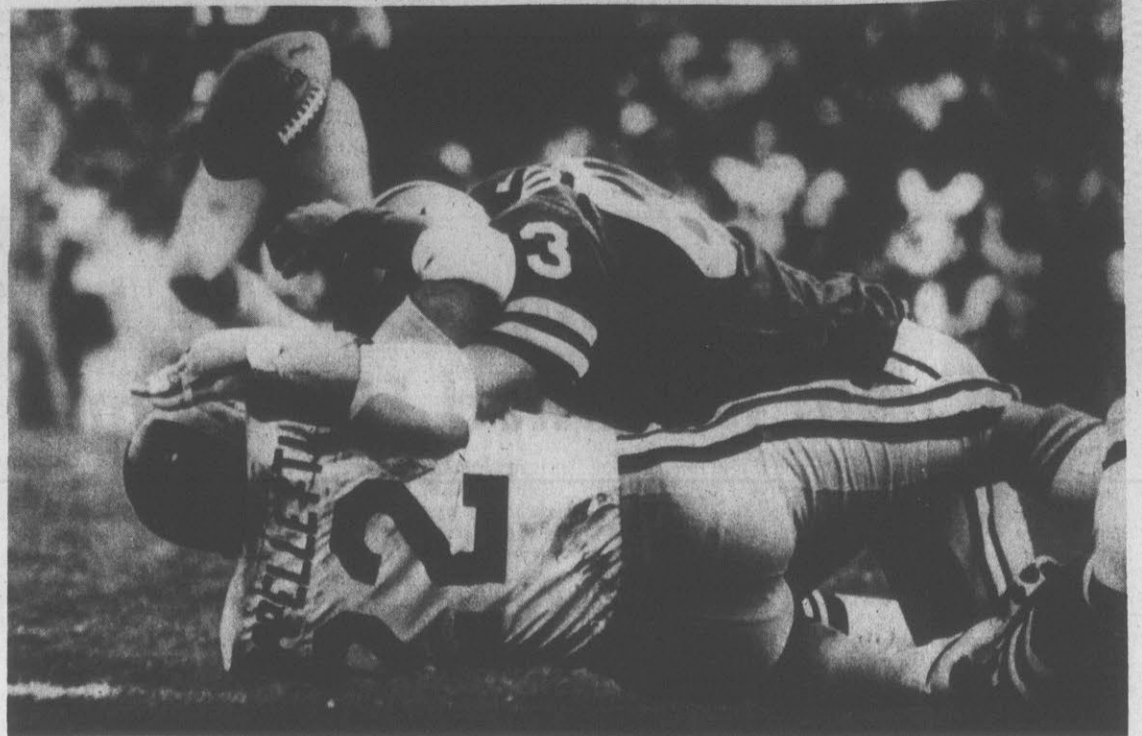

Coach Tom Landry, aiming for a second straight Super Bowl title, commented, "I was a little anxious after the first half. I thought turnovers would make the difference and that someone would take charge in the third quarter. It was a great defensive battle."

Rookie Frank Corral, leading scorer in the NFL this season, had missed three-point tries of 39 and 45 yards.

Rams Coach Ray Malavasi said, "When we lost John Cappelletti, that really slowed down our running game... At times we threw the ball well and had some good plays, but we just didn't play well in the second half."

Both the Cowboys and Rams finished the regular season with 12-4 records, and Dallas now has won its last eight games, having downed Atlanta in its playoff opener last week.

Coach Landry commented, "We're delighted to player whoever is in the Super Bowl. Pittsburgh has been the best in the NFL this year."

Pittsburgh Sloshes By Houston

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The field got wet, and it got wetter. The ball got slick, and it got slicker.

"We got behind — and we got behind," Coach Bum Phillips said Sunday after his Houston Oilers lost 34-5 to the Pittsburgh Steelers in an American Football Conference title game.

There were 12 fumbles, six by each side, more than any two teams have ever had in an AFC or an NFC championship game.

Yet the Steelers have a Jan. 21 Super Bowl rematch with the Dallas Cowboys because a continuous rain, the Oilers and an intestinal virus couldn't stop Terry Bradshaw.

"Once I went out to warm up I got so pumped up you never would have known I was sick," said Bradshaw. "The field was a mess, and the ball was totally saturated. I guess I just got real lucky."

Bradshaw hit 11 of 19 passes for 200 yards to raise his career postseason passing total to 2,432 yards, an NFL record.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini, who wore a flak jacket to protect his cracked ribs, might have worn a life jacket. He threw five interceptions and was sacked four times.

"Pittsburgh beat us, not the weather," he said.

Houston, a wild-card playoff entry after finishing runnerup to Pittsburgh in the AFC Central, ran rookie sledgehammer Earl Campbell off the right side to open the game, but linebacker Jack Ham slammed Campbell for a 3-yard loss.

On the first Steelers series, Bradshaw's 34-yard toss to Lynn Swann set up a 7-yard Franco Harris touchdown run for a record 13 in NFL playoff games.

Campbell later lost a fumble that set up a 15-yard touchdown run by Rocky Bleier and put Pittsburgh on top 14-0 with 1:09 left in the first quarter.

Toni Fritsch's 19-yard field goal cut the Pittsburgh lead to 14-3 in the second quarter, and Houston intercepted two Bradshaw passes in the end zone to keep it close most of the first half.

Then, Houston's Ron Coleman fumbled and Pittsburgh drove 69 yards to score on a 29-yard pass to Swann. That put the Steelers ahead 21-3.

Moments later, Houston's Johnnie Dirden fumbled away the kickoff and Bradshaw threw 17 yards to John Stallworth for another touchdown with 33 seconds remaining in the half.

On the next play Coleman fumbled again, setting up Roy Gerela's 37-yard field goal four seconds before halftime to make it 31-3.

Warm Oiler Welcome

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, after losing the American Conference championship football game in Pittsburgh Sunday, were stunned when they were met by 40,000 cheering fans when they arrived home Sunday night.

"I really can't believe it," said tackle Greg Sampson as he entered the Astrodome where the crowd had gathered, responding to a local radio station's call for a pep rally for the Oilers on their return, whether they won or not.

Teams Look Ahead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — They tried to batter each other senseless on the frozen field, then they shook each other's hands and wished each other luck as they ambled back and forth between their dressing rooms.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, typically subdued following their 34-5 rout of Houston in Sunday's American Conference championship game, were looking two weeks ahead to Super Bowl XIII. The Oilers had their sights set a bit further — to next season.

"I think the next time we'll be more prepared mentally," said wide receiver Ken Burrough, who failed to catch even one of Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini's passes. "We just have to forget about this. We can congratulate each other on a great season and get ready for '79."

Pastorini, whose sensational passing had gotten the Oilers this far in two previous playoff games, had a nightmare afternoon. He completed just 12 of 26 passes for 96 yards, while sacked four times, and had five passes intercepted, the last figure matching a National Football League playoff record achieved — if that's the word — twice by George Blanda.

"It was a good year but because of today you can't call it a great year. It's a long time coming, when you come so far and get so close," added Pastorini. Then, on the verge of tears, he put his head in his hands and shuddered.

Defensive end Elvin Bethea, who, like Pastorini, suffered through Houston's two successive 1-13 seasons in the early 1970s, added with obvious pride: "I don't think a lot of these guys realize what we've done. We've gone from the bottom of the pit to playing in a championship game."

Henderson: Rams Can't Win Big One

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "History repeated itself. Los Angeles can't win the big one," said Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson in his usual less-than-humble fashion.

The Dallas linebacker claimed heading into Sunday's National Football Conference Championship game that the Rams didn't have "enough class" to play in the Super Bowl, and that the Cowboys always win the big games. He and his teammates gave credence to that boast Sunday with a 28-0 victory over the long-suffering Rams.

Not only did Henderson make his statement stand, he rubbed it in with a 68-yard interception return for the Cowboys' final touchdown as Dallas' defense logged the NFC title game's first shutout since 1968.

Next stop for Dallas is Miami for the Jan. 21 Super Bowl date with AFC Champion Pittsburgh.

Although Henderson's fourth-quarter touchdown seemed a fitting capsule of the way the game went — the Cowboys' capitalizing on the frustrated Rams' errors — safety Charlie Waters and linebacker Randy White made the biggest plays for Dallas.

Waters intercepted a pair of passes that set up the Cowboys' first two scores, and driving tackles by White knocked both quarterback Pat Haden and fullback John Cappelletti out of the game with injuries.

Waters, who also recovered a fumble, wasn't particularly excited about the way he played.

White, a 250-pound defensive tackle, said he wasn't aware at the time that he'd sidelined two key Rams.

"I didn't know until after the game that Cappelletti was hurt," said White, who added that he wasn't aware Haden was injured until his Dallas teammates began talking about how to work against (Vince) Ferragamo.

Haden suffered a compound fracture of the thumb on his right hand late in the third quarter with the Rams behind 7-0, and seldom-used reserve Ferragamo had to finish up. Cappelletti went out in the first quarter with a shoulder separation.

Haden and Cappelletti, both in pain and downcast following the loss, seemed apt illustrations of the Rams' enduring playoff disappointments. Six consecutive years Los Angeles has won its division, but it has never survived the playoffs.

"We had the opportunities but we just blew them," said Haden, his bloody, bandaged hand in a sling. "The turnovers just killed us."

"Frustrating? Sure, it's frustrating. Dallas played well, but we just couldn't seem to get it together."

Loughery Keeps Comments To Minimum After Return

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Technically speaking, the "new" Kevin Loughery is doing fine.

Loughery, the 38-year-old coach of the New Jersey Nets, was on his best behavior Sunday night when he returned from a three-game suspension and guided the Nets, behind 41 points by Bernard King, to a 117-112 National Basketball Association victory over the Phoenix Suns.

Loughery never came close to adding to his league-leading total of 26 technical fouls as he kept his comments to the officials to a minimum. The normally demonstrative coach had been suspended three games and fined $1,000 for bumping referees Don Murphy and Mike Mathis on Dec. 29.

In other NBA games, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Golden State Warriors 112-108 and the Indiana Pacers defeated the Atlanta Hawks 112-97.

The Suns led 61-49 at halftime but New Jersey moved ahead with a 38-point third period. The game was tight until King got six points as the Nets outscored Phoenix 15-6 late in the fourth quarter to open a 110-102 lead.

John Williamson added 29 points for New Jersey while Alvan Adams had 32 and Walter Davis 30 for Phoenix.

Loughery confirmed reports that he had offered to resign during his suspension because he felt he was hurting the team. Principal owner Joseph Taub met with Loughery and gave him a full vote of confidence.

Cavaliers 112, Warriors 108
Cleveland took a 95-74 lead over Golden State into the final period, then saw the Warriors surge to within three points behind rookies Wayne Cooper and Ray Townsend before sealing its third straight victory and 10th in the last 14 games.

Campy Russell scored 23 points and Austin Carr added 21 for Cleveland, while rookie Purvis Short had 20 for the Warriors, who saw a four-game winning streak come to an end.

"If we'd have played 48 minutes the way we played the first 36, we'd have beaten anybody in the world," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch.

Pacers 112, Hawks 97
Guard Johnny Davis scored 25 points as Indiana breezed to its third victory in the last four games, moving out to a 56-39 halftime lead and then coasting home.

"Johnny Davis did a good job against our pressure defense," said Hawks Coach Hubie Brown, whose club dipped one game below the .500 mark at 20-21. "Davis made a lot of things happen for the Pacers, offensively and defensively."

Raleigh Frigid For Winter

Tex Winter had a bad weekend in Raleigh, N.C. First he was upset. Then he was embarrassed.

The coach of the 15th-ranked Long Beach State basketball team was simmering Friday night after an offensive foul called against his team in the closing seconds resulted in a 79-78 loss to No. 5 Duke.

Then Saturday night, he was just plain humble after a 100-73 pasting by No. 8 North Carolina State.

North Carolina State is the best basketball team we've played to date," Winter said. "They are especially tough on their home court. They do so many things well. They're maybe not as physical as Duke, but they're quicker."

The 49ers won nine straight games before losing their first two of the season in Raleigh.

Duke won the other half of Saturday night's double-header at the Wolfpack's arena, beating Tulane 74-64.

Three Top Twenty teams were upset in weekend action — No. 13 Michigan losing to Iowa 85-79; No. 18 Mississippi State suffering a 69-67 defeat at the hands of Georgia, and No. 20 Maryland dropping a 66-60 decision to Wake Forest.

Elsewhere, top-ranked Michigan State defeated Minnesota 69-62; No. 2 Notre Dame stopped Villanova 75-64; No. 3 North Carolina tripped Virginia 86-74 in two overtimes; No. 4 Illinois swept past Northwestern 74-56; No. 6 UCLA whipped Rutgers 78-57; No. 7 Louisiana State trimmed No. 9 Kentucky 93-89; No. 11 Indiana State beat West Texas State 98-77; No. 12 Georgetown hammered Samford 73-50; No. 14 Arkansas nipped Houston 62-61, and No. 16 Louisville turned back Southwestern Louisiana 73-60.

Kendal Pinder and Clyde Austin combined for 38 points to lead North Carolina State's attack against Long Beach State. The Wolfpack held a 54-39 halftime lead.

Mike Gminski and Gene Banks each scored 22 points to lead Duke past Tulane.

Ronnie Lester scored 29 points, including six straight free throws in the final 90 seconds, to lead Iowa's upset of Michigan. Mark Slonaker's controversial tip-in at the last second led Georgia over Mississippi State. Mississippi State claimed the shot came after time ran out.

Frank Johnson and Mark Dale combined for 41 points to help Wake Forest upset Maryland, ending an eight-game win streak for the Terps.

Ron Charles scored 19 points to lead Michigan State over Minnesota. The Spartans came back from a 13-point deficit behind their leading man, outscoring the Gophers 27-8 at one stretch in the second half.

Kelly Tripucka scored 26 points to lead Notre Dame past Villanova. Mike O'Koren's 22 points helped North Carolina beat Virginia. The regulation game was tied at 62-62 and the first overtime at 69-69 before the Tar Heels outscored their Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues 11-1 over the final 2:11 to record their 10th victory in 11 games.

Mark Smith's 16 points led undefeated Illinois over Northwestern for its 14th straight victory.

Brad Holland and Kiki Vandeweghe combined for 33 points, leading UCLA's conquest of Rutgers. The Scarlet Knights scored only 17 points in the first half.

DeWayne Scates scored 25 points as LSU beat Kentucky for the first time in history at Lexington. Larry Bird's 32 points and 20 rebounds led Indiana State over West Texas State. John Duren scored 23 points and Eric Floyd added 19 as Georgetown whipped Samford.

Sidney Moncreif completed a three-point play with 41 seconds left to climax a spectacular comeback for Arkansas, which trailed Houston by 21 points at one time. Bobby Turner's 16 points led Louisville over Southwestern Louisiana.

Woody Peeler

This week sees two of the better teams in the Middle Atlantic area invading Minges Coliseum to do battle with the Pirates, the University of South Carolina and Virginia Commonwealth.

A good deal more is known about the Gamecocks than about VCU, which only in the last couple of years has started to play ball on a major level.

South Carolina, of course, is coached by long-time master Frank McGuire. Back in the early days of East Carolina's Southern Conference membership, there were rumors floating around that McGuire might be asked by Leo Jenkins to try and put the program here on a major footing, but, if these stories were true, nothing ever came of it.

Instead, McGuire has seen the Gamecocks lose some of their old magic since leaving the Atlantic Coast Conference. As McGuire feared when the move took place, things are considerable tougher for South Carolina as an independent.

McGuire is known to have battled almost constantly since then for a return to the league, but it is questionable now whether the ACC would even accept South Carolina back, now that Georgia Tech (and the Atlanta market) are in the fold.

McGuire is to speak to the Greenville Sports Club on Wednesday, and he will probably be asked about reentrance to the ACC, and to the alternate of helping to form a new conference, which would hopefully include East Carolina.

Virginia Commonwealth could come into Minges with only two losses so far this year, having gotten away to an outstanding start.

At any rate, a sweep of these two by East Carolina would be a tremendous boost to Larry Gillman's program, and give him bona-fida wins over known teams.

The win over Iona last week was a big one, but the New York school, despite its abilities, isn't known that well across the country. Neither is VCU for that matter, but it is more known than Iona in the area. So wins against South Carolina and VCU would be of much more importance to the ECU ambitions that was the Iona win.

Perry May Change Uniforms

A usually reliable source...well, okay, it IS Booger Scales, and he should know, has Gaylord Perry changing uniforms again this spring.

Perry, who became the only man in baseball history to win the Cy Young Award in both leagues with his National League citation this past summer, isn't happy with San Diego.

Perry, who traveled out to San Diego to talk with Padres' officials after getting the award, found a deaf ear on the coast to his request for a new two-year contract. Perry said that he had always operated on a two-year basis, and in each of his years in the pros, he received a new two-year pact each year (actually an annual extension for the second year ahead). But with one year to go on his San Diego pact, he got little reaction from the Padres.

Now, according to Scales, Perry may find himself on the way back to the Texas Rangers. Perry left there when the Rangers wanted to put him in the bullpen. Now they want him back for regular rotation.

If the deal can be worked out, it won't come before mid-February, when rules permit the trade.

Preparation For Agriculture Census Is Underway

Farm Scene

By Samuel N. Uzzell
Asst. Agricultural Extension Agent

Plants require 16 elements for optimum growth. Carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, the most needed elements, are all supplied by water and air. All the rest of the necessary plant nutrients are drawn from the soil. Whether or not the crops are deficient in any element depends largely on the pH of the soil.

With proper fertilization, it is relatively easy to supply the major nutrients, nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. With proper liming program, the secondary nutrients, calcium and magnesium usually are present in adequate levels. Sulfur, another secondary nutrient, usually is a normal constituent of complete analysis fertilizer such as 8-8-8 or 3-9-18 as well as gypsum.

Micronutrients can be limiting factors in crop production. These elements are sometimes known as trace elements and include elements boron, manganese, zinc, copper, molybdenum and chlorine.

When dealing with suspected micronutrient deficiency in a certain field, the liming practices of the past must be known. Excessive amounts of lime applied in the Coastal Plain may drastically reduce the availability of boron, copper, manganese, iron and zinc. Molybdenum, on the other hand, increases its availability when a high soil pH exists.

Many Coastal Plain soils are naturally low in some micronutrients. Growth abnormalities and deficiency symptoms appear when growth conditions are otherwise optimum. When these soils are limed to a pH level that is excessively alkaline, often deficiency symptoms appear. In most cases, proper lime applications do not create micronutrient deficiencies. In Pitt County it is very uncommon for lime to be in excess except where spills have occurred or misapplication has taken place.

Crops exhibiting manganese deficiency include spinach, snap beans, peanuts and soybeans. The plants yellow, the upper leaves turn yellow between the veins which remain green. Deficiency symptoms occur mainly in poorly drained soil in the Coastal Plain area. Correcting a manganese deficiency requires the use of manganese sulfate or foliar applied manganese.

Boron deficiency appears usually in deep sand and under drought conditions. Depending upon the crop, boron deficiency takes many different forms. For instance, peanuts exhibit "hollow heart", a condition where the internal structure does not develop and the kernel is hollow inside. Boron deficiency is corrected with five to fifteen pounds of borax per acre on both crops. However, boron is easily toxic to many crops in even slightly excessive amounts. Snap beans, cucumbers, melons, and strawberries are easily injured by excess boron.

Zinc deficiency also occurs on light, sandy soil like boron. In corn, zinc deficiency symptoms appear most often with high soil phosphorus levels and high pH coupled with cool, cloudy weather. Young corn will have white bands and yellow streaks in the younger leaves, especially when soils are wet and cold. Zinc sulfate can be used to correct the deficiency.

Copper deficiency in many crops occurs in soil low in available copper, especially newly cleared peat and mulch soils. Soybeans will appear stunted and yellow and the lower leaves may be very yellow and/or drop from the plant. Copper sulfate is the usual corrective measure for soil lacking in available copper.

Iron deficiencies have not generally occurred in field crops in North Carolina. But deficiency in iron shows up in centipede grass and ornamentals such as azalea, gardenia, and camellia. The leaves of iron deficient plants are yellow with green veins. Eventually the leaves may turn brown and the entire plant can die. Also, winter injury may be more severe if iron is lacking in an azalea or gardenia plant. Fortunately, iron sulfate or other sources give quick response to deficiency symptoms.

Molybdenum can be deficient in very acid situations, especially on soil with a pH below 5.5.

Legumes show molybdenum deficiency first because of poor root nodulating bacterial growth and development. Since these bacteria do not develop properly, the plant will exhibit nitrogen deficiency symptoms. Sodium molybdate can be applied either on soil or on foliage to correct the deficiency.

Pork Producers Likely To Expand '79 Herds

by BILL HUMPHRIES
NCSU Agricultural Information

RALEIGH — To the surprise of most agricultural experts, the nation's pork producers failed to expand output substantially in 1978. Latest estimates, in fact, indicate the increase was less than one percent.

But the story is likely to be different in 1979. The number of sows farrowing in the United States from September through November increased ten percent as compared with farrowings during the same months a year earlier. Furthermore, intended spring farrowings (December through May) are up 15 percent from a year ago.

In North Carolina, sows farrowed during September-November increased 17 percent, and intentions for the December-May period are up 11 percent, according to the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

"More pork is on the way to the supermarket," said J. D. Hanson and C. R. Weathers, economists at North Carolina State University. "Supplies will increase only modestly during the first half of the year, but will gain substantially by next fall."

Hanson and Weathers said 1979 is expected to be a profitable year for hog producers, noting a favorable outlook for expansion.

Prices were also favorable in 1978, staying above 1977 levels throughout the year except for two weeks in July.

Barrows and gilts at seven

It is very easy to never encounter a micronutrient deficiency. A proper liming and fertilizing program based on accurate yearly soil tests will avoid deficiency symptoms for the most part. If problems do develop and deficiencies must be corrected, soil applications can be added to the regular fertilizer and may last for years. Some micronutrients are constituents of pesticides and some may be applied as specific sprays.

A good soil sample each year is the cornerstone of any fertilizer program, on the farm or around the house. Many people take advantage of the free soil sampling service offered by the N.C. Department of Agriculture. It is the best thing that you can do in the winter to help plants grow through the summer.

leading U. S. markets averaged $48-49 per 100 pounds, compared to $41.07 in 1977.

"Barrow and gilt prices may average near $50 per hundredweight through much of 1979," the NCSU economists said. "If production expands seasonally in the fourth quarter of 1979 as expected, prices may drop to the mid-$40's late in the year."

With market hogs at $50 per cwt. and corn prices relatively low, feeder pigs could be in the low $50 per head range, according to Hanson and Weathers.

With beef supplies down and corn in abundant supply, pork industry analysts had forecast substantial gains in hog production in 1978. Why did only modest gains occur?

"Several factors contributed to the slow rate of expansion in hog production during the year," stated Hanson and Weathers. Swine disease problems and death losses increased significantly as a result of severe winter weather in the United States during the past two years. These were important factors in determining the level of pork production.

Hanson and Weathers added that concerns about nitrites and environmental regulations, as well as the high cost of confinement facilities, may have contributed to a cautious attitude by producers toward expansion.

The economists said that previous years' outlook for hog prices in the low $30's per hundredweight may have curtailed some expansion plans.

Increased farrowings in the closing months of 1978 and early months of 1979 will mean increased hog slaughter during the second and third quarters of 1979.

The increase will be greater if the winter is milder, the number of pigs per litter is larger and death losses are smaller than the past year.

The U. S. average number of pigs saved per litter for the December-February period was only 6.76 two years ago and only 6.84 last year. During those two periods, the nation experienced some of the coldest and most severe weather on record.

Normally, more than seven pigs are saved per litter. The nation's inventory of all hogs and pigs as of Dec. 1 totaled 59.9 million head, up six percent from a year earlier. North Carolina's inventory was 2.35 million head, up two percent.

North Carolina ranks seventh among the states in total number of hogs and pigs.

INDEPENDENCE ACCORD
BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, Brunei (AP) — Brunei and Britain have signed a treaty granting the oil-rich British protectorate full independence at the end of 1983.

Flower and bedding plant growers in North Carolina will be asked to cooperate in a U. S. Department of Agriculture survey in January to determine final 1978 production levels and sales and potential output for 1979.

Summaries for the major producing states will be published by the USDA's Crop Reporting Board March 7 in its Floriculture report.

The North Carolina survey will include potted poinsettias, potted lilies, potted chrysanthemums, potted hydrangeas, potted geraniums, cut snapdragons, carnations, chrysanthemums, gladioli and vegetable and flowering bedding plants.

The 12 items surveyed in January 1978 in North Carolina carried an estimated wholesale value of $12 million.

Cut and potted flowers accounted for $9.8 million, over four-fifths of the total, while bedding plants added the remaining $2.2 million.

North Carolina ranked third in the nation in wholesale value for snapdragons, fourth in standard chrysanthemums, fourth in standard carnations and sixth in wholesale value for gladioli.

Final preparations are under way for the next Census of Agriculture, according to W. F. Tyson, chairman of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee (ASCS).

The Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce, will canvass farm and ranch activities across the nation for the calendar year 1978.

"Every household which conducts agricultural operations will receive a form in the mail at the turn of the year," said Tyson.

Despite careful screening of the mailing lists used, some persons not engaged in agricultural activities for 1978 will receive report forms. Tyson says that these persons should return the forms with that fact noted, so that additional mailings may be avoided.

Report forms for the new census consist of four or five pages, reduced from the 22 pages of the last census.

Each farmer or rancher will need to answer questions that apply only to his or her operation, with the form designed so that individuals can skip questions or sections that do not apply.

Respondents will be asked the amount of farm acreage by type of ownership; land use; acreage, production and sales of crops; inventory, number sold and sales value of livestock and poultry; selected characteristics of farm operators and farm management.

Approximately 20 percent of the farmers and ranchers will receive an additional page for information on the value of land and buildings; selected production expenses; selected farm equipment; hired farm labor; fertilizer and pesticide use; grain storage capacity; and petroleum usage and storage capacity.

"These data will be summarized and published for each of the more than 3,000 counties which have agricultural operations, for each state, region and entire nation," said Tyson.

According to Tyson, additional data for states will be obtained in follow-up sample surveys of farms early in 1980.

Subjects being considered for these surveys include horticultural specialties, farm finance, structural studies of corporations and partnerships, ownership and control of farms by financial institutions or foreign interests, on-farm irrigation, energy use, chemicals and fertilizers.

"The completed forms should be mailed back as soon as possible in January in the confidential, postage paid envelopes provided," Tyson stated.

Estimates are acceptable and should be reported in the absence of firm records.

Tyson emphasized that farmers and ranchers should not discard the report forms as costly follow-up mailings will be required until all forms are received.

Response to the census is required by law, and information furnished on the report forms are kept confidential. The law also provides that copies retained by the operator are immune for legal process.

The new farm census has been advanced one year to put it into phase with the five-year cycle of censuses of retail and wholesale business, industry, and manufacturers starting in 1982. After that, the farm censuses will be held for years ending in two and seven.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — BLINDING-BRIGHT ICICLES CAN CAUSE NEAR-SIGHTED BLUR.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals A
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 9, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Your reasoning processes are an opportunity now for much logical and helpful standpoints by which you can add to your present success and extend your influence into more worldly and public channels.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Have little talks with associates and improve mutual business dealings. Give compliments where deserved and gain goodwill.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put new ideas to work and you can soon command a far greater abundance. Some property matter that is puzzling to you should be discussed with an expert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get your personal living more compact and don't leave loose ends dangling. Be with a good friend during spare time and feel happier.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your most important goals and know how to better achieve them. Have conversations with partners for best results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Cultivate good friends you want to see a good deal of in the future. Accept invitations that are worthwhile and pleasurable. Be careful in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to please higher-ups more and you gain a good deal now. Get your career working more efficiently during the day and handle credit matters in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have a new interest now that could work very much to your benefit. Planning that trip for the near future is wise now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to handle responsibilities in the future more speedily and profitably. Don't become so busy that you neglect loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact associates early with whom you have had a difference of opinion and come to a better understanding. Do outside work that improves your image.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a more up-to-date system by which to handle your obligations more successfully. Get duties better organized with those of co-workers, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have good creative ideas and should do something about them. Much progress can be made today. Evening is fine for entertainment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you plan them early, you can make the conditions at home much better. Study a new interest and gather all the information you can about it.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to study conditions and projects and know how to improve them considerably. Provide as fine an education as you can, since the inventiveness here is remarkable and much success is possible during the lifetime.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Q.1 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KJ72 ♥KQ1083 ♦AQ ♠7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

Q.2 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q8652 ♥A106 ♦KJ5 ♠83
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A. — Your hand is worth 20 points at a major suit contract, and partner has shown at least 6 points. Therefore, you want to be in game. Since partner should have at least a three-card fit for one of your suits, we suggest you bid four hearts. Three hearts is acceptable, but it wastes time since you have no intention of playing three no trump if partner bids it.

Q.3 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦74 ♥AK1082 ♦K94 ♠J93
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦
1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A. — Partner must have a better than minimum opening, for he made a free bid when he could have passed the one spade overcall. Therefore, your 11 points should be enough for game, especially since you also hold a good five-card suit. The only bid that does justice to your hand is a jump to three no trump.

Q.4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K872 ♥AQ10 ♦J72 ♠AK4
Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?
A. — We are usually reluctant to conceal a four-card major suit, but here you have a perfectly balanced hand with a far from robust major suit. In view of your double stoppers in both of the other unbid suits and 17 high-card points, we feel a bid of three no trump is more descriptive of your holding. Even if partner holds four spades, no trump is likely to play as well as the suit contract — perhaps better.

Q.5 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KJ ♦AQJ762 ♦KQJ63
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A. — Although partner has taken two bids, he does not promise much of a hand — the raise to three clubs was not forcing. Nevertheless, we feel your hand should offer excellent play for game even though you are void in partner's suit. The surest way to get there is to bid five clubs now.

Q.6 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦83 ♥96 ♦AKQ7 ♠J8752
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?
A. — Partner has shown a red two-suiter. He did not double at his first opportunity because he was short in spades, and he did not overcall in hearts perhaps because his suit wasn't strong enough. However, you have a most useful hand on this auction, and should invite game. We feel that a jump to three diamonds is the prudent way to do this.

Q.7 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q87642 ♥A92 ♦A ♠AQ5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A. — This is by no means clear-cut. North might well have a sub-minimum two-over-one response with a good six- or seven-card diamond suit, so we would not fault you greatly if you elected to pass. However, North is likely to have cards outside the diamond suit since he can have no more than 6 points in his suit. Therefore, we would gamble on three no trump.

Q.8 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQJ7 ♥K83 ♦95 ♠AQ93
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 NT Pass Pass Dble.
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A. — Pass. Partner should have a weak hand and a long club suit — if he had a fair hand, he would have sat for one no trump doubled. Just be thankful that partner took out into clubs, rather than diamonds.

Arrest Man On Break-In Count

James Frank Battle, 29 of Raleigh, was arrested by Greenville Police, Saturday, on breaking, entering and larceny charges, after finding him at the scene of a break-in at 401 Nash St. Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

Police, called to the scene to investigate a report of a break-in in progress, said they saw Battle walking from behind the house when they arrived. Entrance to the home was gained by prying open a rear door, investigators said, noting that about $200 worth of merchandise was taken from the dwelling, including a portable television set, knife and 7.65 millimeter pistol.

Cannon said all items reported taken from the home were recovered.

'Babble Bowl' Could Fill Announcers' Gap

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This may be the time for the hope and promise of a fresh new year, but sometimes I worry about all we're leaving behind. TV football announcers, for instance. They're with us from August until January, their worn bromides dazing us through the long season. By season's end, with the holiday games and the Super Bowl, these sportscasters are more familiar to us than family.

Then suddenly, they're gone. It takes weeks for some of us to get over the separation anxiety; some fans don't recover until August, when it all begins anew. And what about the sportscasters themselves? Do the unspent cliches rot stillborn in those wonderful minds until

Aflatoxin Is Still Problem

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - Aflatoxin contamination of corn is not as severe as it was a year ago, but state agriculture officials say it is still causing problems.

W. E. Mainous, extension dairy agent for Forsyth and Yadkin counties, said several cases of aflatoxin contamination were found in late 1978. He said the mold-produced poisonous substance, which may not have appeared in corn at harvest, could have developed later while the corn was in storage during the unseasonably warm fall.

Mainous said livestock farmers should have their corn chemically tested for aflatoxin. He said state food and drug inspectors at the state Department of Agriculture are continuing to monitor milk supplies and corn products for residues of aflatoxin.

Dr. William Y. Cobb, state chemist and head of the department's Division of Food and Drug Protection, said by November inspectors had found 33 tanker loads of milk that contained detectable levels of aflatoxin. He said the milk was traced back to the farms, where feeding problems were corrected.

Cobb said one Davidson County farm was required to hold back its milk for three days to clear up the feed problem.

"Our big concern now is corn in human consumption, particularly corn meal," Cobb said. "We've had four recalls on corn meal since July."

The most recent recall was on Dec. 15 at a Laurinburg milling company. Cobb said much of the corn used in the affected meal came from South Carolina farms. Federal inspectors were called in to survey the area, he said.

Cobb said he believes the aflatoxin problem is growing because farmers think the danger is over.

"I think the word spread around that we didn't have an aflatoxin problem again," he said. Consequently, few farmers had their 1978 crop chemically tested for aflatoxin.

Cobb said the most effective way to solve the aflatoxin problem in corn is in the field by developing aflatoxin-resistant varieties or a pesticide that would kill the aflatoxin-producing mold spores.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

1. Notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, will conduct a public hearing in the City Council Chambers on Thursday, February 8, 1979, at 8:00 p.m. on the third floor of City Hall at Fifth and Washington Streets for the purpose of considering a project for which financial assistance is being sought from the North Carolina Department of Transportation, who will apply on Greenville's behalf to the Federal Highway Administration, pursuant to the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, at amended, generally described as follows:

A. Description of Project: (1) Funds are being sought for operating assistance for the Greenville Area Transit System (GATS), a City operated transit service. Requested funds will be used to assist with operating expenses, fuel, maintenance, salaries and other costs associated with the operation of the transit service.

(2) The project is located in the City of Greenville, North Carolina.

(3) Total cost of the project is estimated to be $85,666. The Federal Contribution to the project will provide up to half of the net cost of service, approximately $42,333.

11. At the hearing, the City of Greenville will afford an opportunity for interested persons or agencies to be heard with respect to the economic and environmental aspects of the project. Interested persons may submit written statements, exhibits, and oral statements with respect to said project.

111. Information regarding the application is available through the Community Development Coordinator and the Transportation Development Program for the City of Greenville, located at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets, City Hall.

Law Blocks Name-Choice

HONOLULU (AP) — The state of Hawaii hasn't recognized the birth of Adrian Jebef, son of Alena Jech and Adolf Befurt, who merged their own surnames to create a new monicker for the child.

The couple decided against using Jech-Befurt as the boy's surname when Adrian was born last year, but the State Health Department rejected Jebef and used Befurt on his birth certificate.

Officials told Befurt, 42, a car repair manager on the island of Kauai, and Jech, 38, that under Hawaii law, they could either use Befurt, Jech-Befurt or Befurt-Jech, but not Jebef.

So the couple took the matter to federal court, where they insisted they have a constitutional right to name their child as they see fit. Jech and Befurt could pay a $5 fee and place legal ads to formally change the child's name. But Befurt told U.S. District Judge Samuel King: "We didn't want a substitute action, a second choice."

King suggested the new name might be better than a hyphenated handle, and asked officials what would happen to offspring of a Jech-Befurt and Smith-Young marriage.

The judge took the matter under advisement.

New Year's rally of last week ran out of momentum.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.97 to 824.96 by noontime.

Losers opened up a 2-1 lead over gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some selling was to be expected after the 25.72-point runup in the Dow over the first four trading sessions of 1979 last week.

They also noted uneasiness over some analysts' forecasts of renewed rapid growth in the money supply before long.

In the last few months monetary growth has slowed markedly, giving rise to some tentative hopes that the Federal Reserve's effort to rein in inflation by raising interest rates was taking hold.

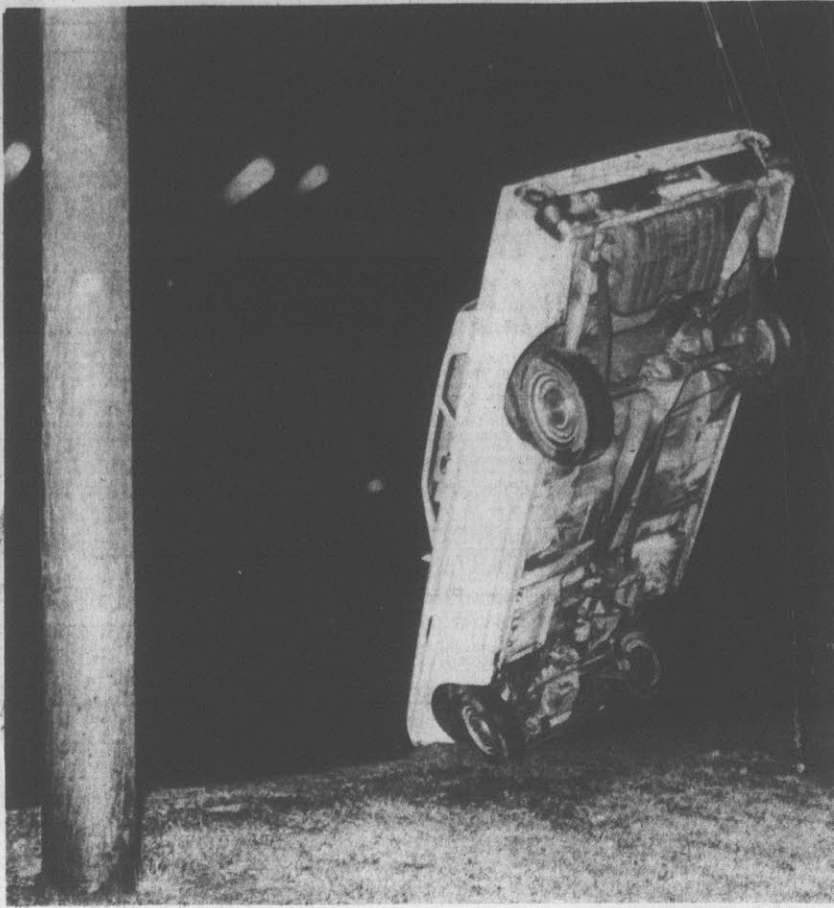

Among leading blue-chip and glamor issues, International Business Machines fell 2 1/2 to 303 1/2; Du Pont lost 1 1/4 to 126 1/2; and Texas Instruments gave up 1 1/4 to 83 1/4.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index fell 36 to 55.05. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 65 at 157.01.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 9.62 million shares at noontime, down from 10.97 million at the same point Friday.

OOPS — The driver of this car, reported by police investigators as Kay Elizabeth Stocks of Route 1, Winterville, escaped uninjured when the vehicle went out of control at about 12:20 a.m. today on Greenville Boulevard, 4 mile west of the Evans Street intersection. The automobile suffered an estimated $500 damage when it reportedly struck a puddle of water on the roadway, went out of control and backed up a utility pole guy wire. Transmitting Jupiter Photos
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 1 has begun transmitting pictures of Jupiter that a spokesman says makes the huge planet look "like a big Easter egg."

The craft's cameras clicked on Saturday, 37 million miles from the Jovian surface, said Frank Bristow of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where the pictures are being received. He said "the pictures are just fantastic. Jupiter is a beautiful planet." The craft is scheduled to zoom within 174,000 miles of the surface on March 5. A twin craft — Voyager 2 — will rendezvous with Jupiter sometime in July and conduct similar tests.

Furniture Industry Is Expecting Tough Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The furniture industry had its best year ever in 1978, but industry leaders don't think the boom times will last through 1979.

Despite shipments totalling $8.75 billion — a 21 percent increase over 1973, the last pre-recession year — most furniture executives echo the attitude of Leonard Guy, senior vice president and treasurer of Haverty Furniture Co., who says the company is "basically trying to stay slim and trim."

Guy, who is also chairman of the National Home Furnishings Association, said Haverty is keeping its inventory low and recently refinanced its long-term debt to make sure it has plenty of money for installment loans to Haverty customers.

"We're bracing for a tough year," said J. Wayne Burris, president of Burris Furniture Industries in Lincolnton. He said he is already seeing a slackening of incoming orders and shipments at his company, which makes recliners. Retailers are not ordering as far ahead as they usually would, Burris said.

One reason for the concern among furniture executives is an expected decline in new housing construction. They figure that if the housing industry is down, then consumers won't need furniture to fill the houses.

"What I'm worried about for the year is not the ability of consumers to take on added debt," said Wallace W. Epperson Jr., a furniture analyst for Wheat, First Securities in Richmond, Va. "My major worry is the availability of money to retailers to make installment loans."

But some furniture manufacturers see a brighter picture. J. Robert Philpott, president of Burlington House Furniture of Lexington, said orders have been greater than normal for this time of year. He said cancellations by dealers have been low.

Broyhill Industries of Lenoir, the state's largest furniture manufacturer, has noted a slowdown. But chairman Paul Broyhill said business is still very good. He projects a 10 to 12 percent increase in sales over last year, due in part to inflation.

"Even if we expect a modest decline or a flat year, business would still be at the second-highest peak in history," said Douglas L. Brackett, secretary of the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association in High Point. The association represents about half the country's furniture manufacturers.

Cite Evidence Arson Is Rising

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Law enforcement officials say all the evidence they have indicates that unlawful burnings and fire-related frauds are increasing in North Carolina.

Still, the problem doesn't seem to be as bad as in other parts of the country. Insurance industry spokesmen have estimated that the rate of illegal fires grew 20 to 25 percent nationally in 1977. In North Carolina, the rate remained approximately the same during 1977 and 1978, at about 5.6 percent of all fires.

Investigators say there are many reasons why illegal fires are set, including vandalism, vengeance, pyromania (a compulsion to set fires), destroying evidence of other crimes and fraud.

SBI Director Haywood G. Starling said he thought vandals set most of the fires in North Carolina. Fires set to defraud insurance companies make up the next highest percentage of intentional burnings, he said.

But W.G. O'Neal, a fire investigator in North Carolina for the Insurance Crime Prevention Institute of Westport, Conn., disagrees.

"The majority of real property fires — and I'm talking about offices, homes, businesses — are set for the purpose of defrauding insurance companies," he said.

Some fires tend to break out in resort areas during the off-season, as property owners sometimes burn their cottages, motels or businesses or have them burned so they can recoup losses through insurance.

When that happens, O'Neal said, the property owner rarely lights the match himself.

"We see numbers and numbers of cases where someone will hire a second or third party to set a fire for him," O'Neal said. "The owner doesn't want to taint his hands with the crime, and has an alibi when the fire occurs."

But state officials say "fire for hire" professionals are rare in North Carolina.

The illegal fires don't all go undetected. Statistics from the Police Information Network, a state agency that compiles crime data, show North Carolina police made 351 arrests for arson and illegal burning in 1976 and 360 in 1977. Figures weren't available for 1978.

Walkout By Police Seen

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — New Bern Mayor Leander Morgan says he believes the town's police force may walk off their jobs again if their salaries are not raised. Thirty-two officers and the chief of police turned in their badges June 30 after the Board of Aldermen rejected their request for a 10 percent pay increase. Six veteran officers have left the force recently in what Police Chief John W. Worsham called "above the normal rate of attrition."

City officials said salaries and working conditions are still a sensitive issue in the police department. The state personnel office is conducting a study of the city's pay policies.

"I would imagine it (a walkout) could very possibly happen again," Morgan said.

Morgan, who supports the police department's wage request, said he felt the cost to the city in money and morale would be a key factor when the aldermen consider paypolicies in the future.

Several officers said they did not believe another strike was likely but said they felt the department would be hurt if salary adjustments were not made. Police Capt. P.O. Rodgers said if salaries are not raised, officers will probably look for new jobs.

"Everyone is waiting to see what the (state) survey is going to produce," Rodgers said. Worsham, a former FBI agent who has been chief of the 34-member department for more than seven years, said it is difficult for the department to attract new officers. He said most of the men who left the force went to better-paying jobs.
