General Assembly Convenes At Noon

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The 1979 General Assembly was to convene at noon today, with state representatives and senators being sworn in for a session likely to be filled from the start with questions of money.

Both the Senate and House were scheduled to open with separate ceremonies at noon. House Speaker Carl Stewart and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green were to preside, and both planned to announce their committee assignments and choices for chairmen.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green planned no major surprises in his committee selections, said Senate majority leader Craig Lawing. D-Mecklenburg, an ally of Green. But both he and Stewart have several major committees — such as those on insurance, education and the judiciary — whose chairmen aren't back from last year. "He'll fill all the vacancies, but there won't be too many changes from last time," Lawing said.

Light Turnout, But Ayden Votes Three Bond Issues

by REBECCA BUFFALOE
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — A light turnout of Ayden voters Tuesday voted three separate bond issues, totaling $2,494, 893, through for the town. According to Ralph Ford, town clerk, approximately 500 of the town's registered voters, totaling 1,597, came to the Ayden Community Building to cast their ballots.

Town Manager Don Russell expressed his pleasure of the passage of the electric, water and sewer referendums.

I would like to know the address or phone number for the Peace Corps. J. Z.

For information about being an ACTION volunteer (Peace Corps is one of several components of ACTION.), one may write A. C. T. I. O. N., Washington, D. ### PARK AS MARKED

I would like to remind the public that, since the parking area at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center has been redone, the new lines should be adhered to. Three lanes for traffic have been left next to the buildings to allow for a fire lane. Yet people are still parking the old way, which blocks about one and a half lanes. If there is ever a fire out here, Pitt Plaza would be in trouble because of all the congestion. I would appreciate public cooperation to eliminate this problem. W. G.

Public Hearings By City Council

The City Council will conduct two public hearings Thursday night to hear citizen comments concerning the city's Community Development Program. City Manager Ed Wyatt said the first hearing concerns a new part of the CD program known as the Small Cities program, which allows the city to improve concentrated areas of deteriorated housing and public facilities.

The CD program, he said, Greenville has received funds under this program over the past four years and the current year is the fifth and final year of the program. For the final year, it was noted, the city is eligible to receive $620,000. Wyatt invited local citizens to learn more about the programs and offer comments concerning the applications for these funds.

Both hearings are open to all residents and will be held at 8 p.m. in the Council chambers, third floor of city hall.

Pitt's School Board Asks Bond Election

By REBECCA BUFFALOE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education voted to join with the Greenville City School Board in asking the Pitt County Commissioners to put a $9 million school bond referendum to a vote of the people Tuesday.

Greenville City Schools Chairperson Terry Shank came before the board with GCS board member Sue Zadeits to talk with the members about the matter.

Chairman Mark Owens noted that the issue needs to be put to a vote of the people, since extensive studies have been done on the needs of both systems.

According to Owens and Shank, the $9 million will be divided on a pro rata share to each school child in the county.

Board members Beverly Congleton and Tom Patterson agreed that the bond issue request was necessary in order to obtain needed school renovation funds.

According to Ms. Shank, the Greenville School Board voted on the matter in a special Monday night session.

Superintendent Ott Alford pointed out that Associate Superintendent Tom Craft had completed a study of facility needs for county schools, with renovations and new buildings amounting to $20 million.

Associate Superintendent Craft presented for the board's approval a survey study of recommendations for county buildings as suggested by a study made by the Division of School Planning, State Department of Public Instruction released in June, 1978.

Craft pointed out that the Fulcher and Stallings Commission, created by the 1977 General Assembly, had recommended a statewide school bond referendum as early as 1979.

The State Department of Public Instruction, Division of School Planning, has requested each school system to make a study of school facility needs so that legislators and government officials might consider the feasibility of such a bond issue.

The School Planning Division suggested eight categories in school studies: replacement of temporary facilities; replacement of obsolete facilities; renovations of buildings which are suitable for long term use.

Local Competency Test Results On Par With State

By JERRY RAYNOR and REBECCA BUFFALOE
Reflector Staff Writers

Eleventh graders in Greenville and Pitt County high schools are about on par with the statewide average in results achieved in the two-fold reading and math competency tests.

Statewide, the averages are ten percent failure in the reading test, and 15 percent failure in the math test.

For students in the Greenville City Schools, the percentage of failures is 11.9 percent in reading, and 15.3 percent in math.

The Pitt County School overall percentage of failure is 15 percent in reading, and 20 percent failure in math.

Statewide and local figures cited above include 11th graders enrolled in regular high school classes as well as students in extended day school and similar programs.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday morning a conference was held at the State Department of Public Instruction in Raleigh to publicly release the results; and at 7:30 last night Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. appeared on television to discuss the competency tests and scores achieved by Tar Heel juniors. The competency tests — one in reading, and one in math — were administered to

Merger Talk

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday with representatives of the city and county school boards to discuss the possible merger of the two systems, and a bond referendum for construction of school facilities.

The meeting with the school board chairmen and superintendents is set for 5:15 p.m.

Other items on the agenda for the session include consideration of personnel reclassifications, final approval of revenue bonds for McGraw-Edison, consideration of a report on the proposed county-wide water system, a proposed restructure of the board of Adjustments and Planning Board, as well as consideration of proposed legislative changes in the structure of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority, and on appointments to the ABC Board.

Commissioners have also scheduled preliminary discussions with members of the Pitt County Bar on renovation of the court house.

The board has also scheduled its regular quarterly meeting with the Greenville City Council for Tuesday night.

Gov. Hunt Looks For General Response In Remedial Education

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said today he expects students, teachers and the citizens of North Carolina to respond to results of the first state competency tests with concentrated effort to upgrade education and help those who failed.

Hunt announced average statewide scores on the test, given high school juniors in November, during a 30-minute program broadcast across the state Tuesday night. Ten percent of the students failed the reading portion of the test and 15 percent failed the math section.

The governor said during an interview on NBC's Today program this morning that he will not be satisfied until "every junior passes this kind of test."

He said education is not a job that can be left only to educators and added, "It is time we pitch in as citizens."

Hunt was interviewed from the WPTF studios in Raleigh by Jane Pauley of NBC in New York.

Asked if he blamed teachers for the fact that one in six public high school students who took the test failed at least one portion of it, Hunt said he expected teachers to do better, "but I expect us as citizens to do better, too. What is more important than our own schools?" Hunt said in the Tuesday night speech that it will take a "massive response" to help those who failed the test.

Hunt released the average statewide scores in a 30-minute television show carried on nearly every station in North Carolina, and said the scores were "not nearly good enough."

"Each of us should make up our minds to help one of these students who has failed — who is in danger tonight, yes, of not graduating, but worse, of not having the tools they need to be all they want to be and can be in life," Hunt said.

$200,000 Grant For Young Adult Employment

A $200,000 grant to allow start-up of a program to employ out-of-work young men and women in Greenville has been announced by Secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development Howard N. Lee.

The program is the Young Adult Conservation Corps (YACC) funded by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). It will be administered by the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department.

The grant to Greenville will run through the end of March.

Pending federal approval, the program will continue to be funded after March.

Persons between 16 and 23 who are unemployed and not in school are eligible for the program. They should contact the Employment Security Office in Greenville for more information. They will receive the minimum wage. There are 20 openings in the program.

Boyd Lee, Greenville Parks and Recreation Director, will be the project manager. He said activities will include continuing preparation of a 343-acre wilderness area on the north side of the Tar River for recreational use by clearing of certain areas and construction of picnic shelters, nature trails and interpretive walks. The young people also will work on the renovation of Guy Smith Stadium and Eppes High School Gym facilities, where they will live and eat.

Part of the funds will be used to buy equipment for the participants and facilities for the various projects and persons.

Sarah Weddington's Mission

By KATHLEEN BURNS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — In her job as White House adviser on women's issues, Sarah Weddington has been assigned the arduous role of peacemaker amidst the warring factions that have polarized viewpoints among women.

The path she has chosen is an economic emphasis on issues that involve all women — married or single, white or black, young or old, urban or rural.

Among the pocketbook issues she plans to tackle are Social Security and pension reform, tax law inequities, credit questions, divorce settlements and the veterans' preference which eliminates most women from equal competition with men for federal jobs.

While she still will deal with such emotional issues as ERA and abortion, the Texas-born lawyer who succeeded Midge Costanza on President Carter's staff prefers a behind-the-scenes approach on controversial topics which have alienated some women and outraged others.

"I personally will continue to be involved in ERA and we will continue to work on all the issues of the International Women Year," she said.

Ms. Weddington is the attorney who successfully argued before the Supreme Court in 1973 on the case that established women's abortion rights. But she echoes Carter's more conservative stance, saying "the Administration is really trying to push contraceptive availability and research. I will be involved in the president's commitment to provide alternatives."

As chairman of an intergovernmental task force involving 15 federal agencies, Ms. Weddington plans to work in tandem with the Women's Congressional Caucus, which also has targeted economic issues as a priority.

To illustrate the differences in Social Security benefits for men and women, she pointed to a family with a man earning $12,000 versus a married couple with each partner earning $6,000. Under current laws, "women will receive 61 percent greater benefits from the single worker family than from the dual worker family," she said.

Another area of inequity is equal pay, in spite of recent legislation: "It's still true that men earn, on the average, 60 percent more than women."

Pension reform is another thorny question she first became interested in during the eight years she spent as a divorce attorney in Texas.

"Those in the retirement group are generally men, whose wives have not worked long enough (or at all) to establish their own benefits," she said. "In almost every private pension plan it is optional at the time you retire to choose survivor's benefits, and if you do, the pension will be less. This has an economic impact on the wife."

In divorce settlements, Ms. Weddington thinks judges should view the husband's pension and Social Security benefits as a form of community property, especially in the case of nonworking wives.

Credit problems continue, in spite of legal changes, Ms.

Weddington noted. As a young attorney putting her husband through school, she was required to get his signature on her credit application. Through her efforts, the state of Texas finally changed its laws.

One of five women among the 250 students in her law class, she recalls that some professors refused to call on women in class. After graduation, some firms refused to hire women, asking such questions as who would make dinner.

"Society ought not to have preconceived models for people to fit into but rather that it gives individuals a choice to exercise for their own lives," she said.

After three months at the White House, she tries to remain a realist, unaffected by the aura of power. She misses trial work but loves her current job.

"I never planned to go to law school," she says. She earned a teaching degree but, realizing she didn't want to teach, went to graduate school instead.

"I didn't plan to run for office and decided three days before the filing deadline" to run for the Texas legislature. She won two terms.

"I never thought I would come to Washington and then Agriculture undersecretary John White (now chairman of the Democratic National Committee) called" and she became general counsel at USDA.

"I never planned to come to the White House and then Rosalyn Carter called," she said.

Her next step? That depends on the saying a Texas professor passed on to her: "Where you are tomorrow depends on who you meet today."

Either 'I Do' Or You Don't!

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, educated, self-supporting woman of 25. I want to marry and settle down, but my 27-year-old boyfriend, whom I've been dating for over two years, does not. He insists that the men in his family (his father included) do not marry. They take common-law wives. He said no one outside the family knows this, so there is no scandal. He claims that marriage kills love — that if two people really love each other, a few words mumbled by a minister won't make the union any more sacred. I can't see myself going in for this kind of relationship. He says he loves me and wants to live with me, but it must be on his terms. I don't want to lose him. What should I do?

LIKES IT LEGAL

DEAR LIKES: Tell him that if two people really love each other, a few words by a minister will not make the union any LESS sacred, and, if it's all the same to him, that's the only way YOU'LL have it. If he doesn't see it your way, lose him and find a fellow whose father was married.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever we have a big family gathering, which is about once a year, my father's wife (she's 40) always sits around crocheting or knitting by herself in another room.

She gives the impression that she finds us totally boring. I think this type of behavior is very impolite. What is your opinion?

NEEDED

DEAR NEEDED: I would have to know the lady's motivation. Perhaps she feels unwelcome, out of place, insecure, shy, or just plain afraid to be in the family group for fear she won't know what to say. Perhaps if you went out of your way to make her feel more comfortable and less like an outsider, she'd put her needles away. (Get the point?)

Farmville's Police Chief Reinstated

FARMVILLE — Ronald Cooper has been reinstated as chief of the Farmville Police Department, effective Thursday.

The reinstatement action was taken in a special meeting held Monday night by the Farmville Board of Commissioners. The Board voted unanimously to approve Town Administrator Patrick Thomas' recommendation that the former chief be rehired.

Cooper resigned, effective Dec. 22, to enter the restaurant business in Farmville. In a letter of request for reinstatement, he said he had "come to the realization that criminal justice is the profession where my true allegiance and satisfaction lie." He pledged "a renewed effort to increase the quality and professionalism of service between the police department and citizens of Farmville."

The Commissioners' action ends a recruitment search for a new police chief. Some 18 written applications had been received, but no interviews had been conducted.

Li. W. G. Barber was acting chief during Cooper's absence.

In other work at the Monday night meeting, the Board completed a review of proposed new Land Use and Housing Plans for the town. Following some revisions agreed on by the commissioners, the plans will be submitted for public examination and a public hearing will be held before their formal adoption, Thomas said.

A contract to supply the town with gasoline for a 12-month period was awarded to R. E. Deans Oil and L. P. Gas. Deans proposes to furnish the fuel at four cents per gallon below the bid of the only other bidder and agrees to furnish key-controlled registers with 24-hour access for town departments. The prices offered by Deans were .629 and .659 per gallon for leaded and unleaded gas, respectively. The prices bid by Speight Servicenter were .669 and .699 respectively.

A bid was awarded to King Electric of Fayetteville for lighting facilities for a second softball field at the Municipal Athletic Park on Horne Avenue. King's low bid was $24,780. Other bids received were $24,831 from E. & R. Inc. of Kinston and $30,395 from Watson Electrical of Greenville. Current improvements to the park are partially funded by a federal grant from the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service.

Herring-Rivenbark of Kinston submitted a successful low bid of $49,236 to install water and sewer extensions along Mandarin Drive to serve a new industry locating here, Electric Utilities Company. Other bidders were So-Par Utilities with $53,234.50; Thompson Plumbing, $53,431; Hendrix-Barnhill, $60,210; and T. A. Loving, $71,112.

Receiving competitive bids on major purchases and contracts is required of the town of G. S. 143-129, Thomas said.

Gov. Hunt...

Hunt also said he was ordering $3.4 million be spent helping teach those who failed the test, in addition to more than $5 million in state and federal money already allocated this year for remedial education.

In all, more than 81,000 public high school juniors took the test last November, and 13,312 failed to pass either the mathematics portion, the reading portion, or both.

The tests were ordered by the General Assembly, at Hunt's urging, in 1977. Passing the test is a requirement for receiving a high school diploma, and those who failed initially will get another chance to pass in May.

Students can keep taking the tests until they pass both sections.

The results showed a lower rate of failure than many state education officials had expected. In the public schools, 10 percent failed the reading section and 15 percent failed the math portion.

Among private schools administering the test the scores were even better, with only 2 percent failing the math section and 1 percent failing reading.

The average scores were generally lower for blacks than whites in public schools. Black males had the largest failure rate, with 71 percent passing in reading and 65 percent passing in math. Among black females, 79 percent passed reading and 68 percent passed math.

White females had the best passing rate, 97 percent in reading and 94 percent in math, while among white males, 95 percent passed reading and 92 percent passed math. Among American Indians, 79 percent passed reading and 72 percent passed math.

"These test results do tell us very clearly that the public schools of North Carolina are serving the majority of our youngsters very well," said Jerome Melton, deputy superintendent of public instruction.

"But there is a minority of students, mainly disadvantaged students...for whom our school system is just not as responsive as it needs to become."

A direct relationship was found between the test scores and the education levels of parents.

Assembly...

Stewart planned to announce his choices in a special afternoon House session, recognizing each chairman and giving him or her a gavel. Stewart said he expected to retain about 80 percent of the committee assignments and chairmen from the 1977-78 session, his first as speaker.

Supreme Court and Court of Appeals justices were to administer the oaths of office, and both chambers were to formally elect the officers they selected in the Democratic caucuses in November and December.

Although no real business was to be conducted on opening day, the committee appointments set the tone for the session.

Legislators began getting their office assignments, and will likely take on no serious business until next week, after Hunt presents his budget proposal Monday night.

Legislators already have a full social calendar for the first several weeks of the session. There was a $100 couple Democratic Party fundraiser here scheduled for tonight, and more dinners, breakfasts and parties are scheduled daily by lobbyists and state agencies.

Although final budget action will not come until June, Hunt is expected to recommend his plan for a tax cut or refund, sparking debate over alternate plans being prepared by Green and others.

The amount of surplus available for a tax change will not be certain until spring, but Hunt, Green and a number of legislative leaders have called for some type of tax reduction or rebate.

'Domino Theory' Remembered

The big turn-off of the sixties' was something called the "domino theory" . . . you know, if Vietnam fell to the communists Cambodia would fall and so on throughout Southeast Asia.

The United States, of course, was involved in the very unpopular Vietnam war and the prevailing feeling was that the United States ought to get out and let each of those nations take care of its own internal affairs.

Well, it was a long time in coming but the United States did eventually get out of South Vietnam which promptly fell to the North Vietnamese communists. Cambodia also fell to internal communism, as the United States pretty much washed its hands of developments in Southeast Asia.

But call it "domino theory" or something else, it wasn't realistic to think that things would stop there. Indeed, they didn't. Now Vietnam troops have driven into Cambodia and likely will soon have complete control of the country.

Fortunately for the United States, the alignments of Southeast Asia have changed since the days when we were trying to save that area for the non-communist world.

Now the Southeast Asian wars involve factions of the communist world, with the Soviet Union supporting Vietnam and China supporting whatever is left of the Cambodian regime.

Our concern is that the Soviets have further consolidated and expanded their power in still another section of the world, and, in that sense, the danger to the western world grows.

Should Be Viewed As An Area Facility

The Eastern Regional Jetport at Stallings Field will be dedicated Feb. 2.

It could be a day of hope for good air transportation for Eastern North Carolina. There is serious talk, however, that Piedmont Airlines might end jet service in the east, and without Piedmont there will be no jet service and no jetport.

Kinston and Lenoir County should do all they can to make area cities and counties feel the jetport belongs to them. It will be only through adequate use of the jetport that we will see jet service continued east of Raleigh-Durham.

THIS AFTERNOON

Hunt Takes Center Stage

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt dominates the headlines and airwaves this week. To keep up with what is happening, remember three points: money, children, and volunteerism.

First, there is the statewide television review of scores on the first competency test required for high school graduation.

Gov. Hunt asked for, and got, the TV time . . . and the first release of those test scores. He pushed the program through the General Assembly two years ago; he has taken a lot of heat from opponents who didn't like the idea of a test determining whether a diploma should be given; and he has promised remedial efforts to help those who fail to catch up and graduate.

Next, the budget for the coming two years will get much attention as it is delivered to the opening session of the General Assembly. And then, appearing before the Legislature, Gov. Hunt will deliver his "State of the State" message.

The Message

All of this happening at mid-week is likely to leave people wondering what the message is.

Actually, there is one central theme running through all the words and documents: Raising a New Generation of North Carolinians is the main message. And the counterpoint is this: all citizens can take a much greater part in doing that most important job.

An austere budget, for example, means fewer new governmental programs or expanded ones. There will be money to continue expanding the primary reading program; to carry the Community Schools Program into every school district; to start some new day care activities under state sponsorship.

But the governor has already signaled that austerity also means a challenge to meet the needs of the state without having to spend more. A tax cut has been all but promised despite the prospects of declining state revenue ahead.

BILL NOBLITT

How can this be done? Gov. Hunt is saying people don't expect new governmental programs to solve all problems, and that keeping some pocket money at home instead of sending it to Raleigh is helping people in an important way.

In his program outline for the coming two years, the emphasis on programs to locate and work to heal children of the multitude of physical, mental, or emotional ills which plague their lives and produce public wards later on will form the foundation of Raising a New Generation.

Volunteer

And in remarks concerning the competency testing, Gov. Hunt is saying that not enough money is available to wrap yards of bandages around the sore spots, but here again it is not essential that government spend and spend.

Local people can get into the schools where problems exist and spend the time and effort needed by the youngsters in danger of not graduating.

It isn't money — or the shortness of it — which matters at this time, Hunt is signalling. There are jobs to be done for the future of North Carolina which can be done by the people of the state who care; and probably done better that way than by new or bigger bureaucracies.

Nobody Saw It Coming

WASHINGTON — The question President Carter and everybody else in Washington keeps asking is, "How is it possible that no one knew the Shah of Iran was in trouble?"

It's hard to get an answer. Over at the Pentagon, I spoke to someone in sales.

"What can I tell you?" the sales manager said. "We checked out his credit and it was good. He ordered more airplanes, tanks, guns and rockets than any shah in the world. He never haggled about price, and he bought everything in our catalogue, whether he needed it or not. When it came to American military hardware he was the last of the big spenders."

"So you had no idea he was in over his head?"

"Look, a guy comes into the Pentagon showroom and there's oil spilling out of every one of his pockets. No one asks any questions. The guy's eyes light up when he sees a helicopter, so you sell him all the helicopters he wants. He picks up an F-16 fighter plane and doesn't even ask for it to be gift-wrapped. He takes all the tanks we have in stock. He orders boats and submarines by the dozen. If someone came in your shop and did that, would you suspect he was having trouble at home?"

"Probably not," I said. "Let me ask you this. What happens if Iran won't pay for the stuff that the shah ordered?"

"We're going to bill the CIA. They should have warned us there was something rotten in Tehran."

I went over to the CIA and spoke to one of the guards at the gate. "The military says the CIA is responsible for them having to hold a garage sale on all the stuff the Shah of Iran bought and can't pay for. What do you have to say to that?"

"It's not the CIA's job to butt into another country's business," he said indignantly. "The shah has been our friend for 20 years, and when he told us everything was hunky-dory, we took his word for it."

"So you didn't do any cloak and dagger work in Iran?"

"That would have been violating the shah's sovereignty. What kind of people do you think we have working here?"

"But I thought the CIA's main function was to keep the President informed on what was going on in every country of the world. Why weren't you watching Iran?"

"Because we had to cut back on personnel. Our director, Stansfield Turner, lopped off 800 heads when he took over so we can no longer keep track of every backwater place on the globe. We've only got one agent in all of Africa."

"Iran isn't in Africa," I said.

"It isn't? Well, then, that explains why we didn't know, doesn't it?"

My last stop was the State Department. I asked for the Iranian desk.

"He's out to lunch," the receptionist said.

"Perhaps you can help me," I said. "I was wondering if you could explain why the State Department had no idea that the Shah of Iran was on such thin ice with his people?"

"I don't think the State Department is the place to discuss personalities," she replied.

"I appreciate that. But wasn't State aware of the opposition in the streets?"

"Our people never went into the streets," she said.

"Why not?"

"Because it was a lot more fun going to the palace."

40 Years Ago Today

About five of the 36 acres in the tract purchased by Greenville to establish a playground and recreation center south of Tenth Street Extension will be developed soon and part of it used as a baseball diamond for children.

The remaining part of the cleared land will be farmed this year, but it is expected after next fall the entire tract will be developed for a playground.

The State Highway Commission has started extending Elm Street through the property and the road ultimately will be paved. Work on a bridge already has begun and it is expected that the street will be completed within three or four weeks, with the paving to be laid later.

First Opry Visit

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Special Correspondent

NASHVILLE, TENN. (AP) —

A British friend in the export business who loves music and each season takes a box at Covent Garden, the Royal Opera House, journeyed to Music City, U.S.A., recently and attended a session of the Grand Ole Opry. "Extraordinary," he told everyone who would listen, which is British for out of sight.

One evening in the lobby of the Fiddlers' Inn, or perhaps in a back booth at Tootsie's Orchid Lounge, he got away from all those banjo pluckers long enough to describe his Nashville experience in a letter to his wife.

LADY MILLICENT
Cassowary Cottage
Cumberland, England
My Dear Lady Millicent,

In the course of one of those cross country bus tours, which our travel agent suggested for my jollification after nailing down that trivets in exchange for davits deal, I found myself in the South Midlands of America at a place called Nashville in Tennessee. The large display signs on the dual carriage roadway into town referred to it as "Music City, U.S.A." and strongly commended the merits of Grand Ole Opry. Every belman and porter at the inn, which was full of friendly chaps in high heeled boots and bejeweled smoking jackets, urged us to be sure to sample this uniquely American musical experience. Well, having attended the opera in Vienna, Rome, Paris and even Moscow with that dreadful ice cream and weak champagne, how could I resist?

The Americans, you realize, are a boisterous outgoing people who don't stand on ceremony, even in the fine arts. Their variant opera, which comes closest to Prokofiev and Berlioz in its percussive bombastics, is unstructured and generally plotless, except when a folk heroine like Cousin Minnie Pearl is enunciating a long recitativo after the manner of Rossini and the early Verdi.

People move about the opera house at will, clap in cadence and often sing right along with the performers, and instead of discouraging claqueurs there is almost always a functionary up on stage waving his hands about to encourage further audience applause for the prima donna's aria.

On stage, the artists are even more uninhibited than their listeners. Roy Acuff, whom I believe is one of the giants in American folk opera, concluded an aria con fuoco to something called the Wabash Cannonball by balancing a violin bow on the end of his nose and then took out a child's toy called a yo-yo and kept time with the orchestra, as if it were a metronome's string.

I didn't have time while in Nashville to purchase any representative tapes or recordings, but I wish you would drop by Harrod's music department to see if you can find a few of my favorites: "Thanks to This Cathouse I'm in the Doghouse, With You," "You Can Chill Your Beer Next To My Ex-wife's Cold, Cold Heart" and "Drop-kick Me, Jesus, through the Goal Posts of Life."

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Rumsfeld Warning

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The administration of Richard Nixon's mandatory economic controls sounded this harsh warning to the nation's corporate executives on Dec. 14: Cooperate with President Carter's "voluntary" wage-price curbs out of fear, and you may well destroy yourselves.

The economic Paul Revere was Donald Rumsfeld, politician turned businessman. Speaking to his former government colleagues, Rumsfeld was blunt. He warned that the Carter program won't work and that major parts of it are illegal, based on "government by fear and intimidation."

Rumsfeld's warning came behind closed doors in the offices of the American Enterprise Institute here at one of Gerald Ford's periodic meetings with his old cabinet. But Rumsfeld is preaching that same message far and wide to his fellow businessmen and anybody else who will listen.

What bothers Rumsfeld is how little impact he is having. That's not because the business world disagrees with his diagnosis of the Carter program. On the contrary, businessmen are nearly unanimous in assessing the retributive use of federal power as illegal and the wage-price limits as ineffective. But they are not about to buck Uncle Sam and risk retribution from the federal leviathan that could follow non-compliance.

That makes Rumsfeld an exception. After uninterrupted federal service in both elective and appointive office for 19 years, ending as secretary of defense, Rumsfeld entered the private world in 1977 at age 45 as president of G.D. Searle & Co., an ailing, Chicago-based drug manufacturer. If any company needs good relations with Washington — in this case the Federal Drug Administration (FDA) — it is Searle.

At the Dec. 14 reunion of the Ford cabinet, Rumsfeld explained why he is risking those good relations. First, the "voluntary" controls — under threat of the federal blackjack — have "questionable legality." Second, based on "intimate personal experience," controls — legal or not — simply do not work. Mere mortals are "not smart enough" to fine-tune a vastly complicated economic system.

Moreover, Rumsfeld charged that the Carter program "implies that the (inflation) problem is out there in the country instead of in the White House" — that it is the fault of the people, not their government. This, he contended, detracts from the government's responsibility for deregulation of business, improved productivity and fiscal and monetary restraint — all aspects of the Carter anti-inflation program.

Rumsfeld then revealed that G.D. Searle has notified the government of its non-compliance in the "voluntary" program. But he mourned that "so few (businessmen) are willing" to do so for fear of "being singled out as uncooperative" and getting blackjacked. Thus, there are overtones of government by man, not law.

None of Rumsfeld's old colleagues disagreed. Former Atty. Gen. Edward Levi was uncharacteristically exercised, calling the Carter program "illegal and immoral," but there were chuckles over Rumsfeld's naivete in suddenly discovering a yellow streak running through the business community and its leaders.

Their conduct also is drenched with hypocrisy. Except for a few members of the Business Round Table, businessmen who honestly

Strength For Today

ROOTS

The ability of tall palm trees to withstand hurricanes is amazing. They can bend nearly double before the force of the wind, yet not be uprooted.

The reason why palms can withstand heavy storms better than oaks and elms is that palms have a very full system of small roots, and these never lose their hold on the earth when the winds are howling.

There is much to be said for the type of life which, like the elm, has great roots penetrating deep into the earth and supporting a towering superstructure. But most of us are like the palm tree. Our roots do not go very deep, and so if we are going to pass through life unscathed, we have to have a lot of them.

Therefore, the truly happy people are the millions of undistinguished men and women who have little roots going down into the soil of life — love of home and children, love of wholesome pleasures, interest in neighbors, and commitment to the standards of good citizenship.

Campaign To 'Buy American'

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Badly

hurt by subsidized steel imports, the American steel industry is planning to give strong support to "Buy American" legislation in the 96th Congress.

Plans are already solidified, the justification being that allegedly illegal imports not only deny sales to American corporations but result in lost jobs and tax revenues.

While the issue of imports has an importance all its own, it is bound to be caught up in the anti-inflation battle, with supporters of lower-cost imports arguing that restricted markets promote higher prices.

The thrust of recent Buy American sentiment has been to expand existing legislation, which compels the federal government to give preference to American companies in spending federal tax revenues.

The main effect of such legislation would be to order individual states to apply the law to their own purchases if federal government grants or other means of assistance are involved.

While other industries, including electronics, textiles, and shoes, have supported such legislation in the past, the massive steel industry has been lobbying relentlessly and to some extent effectively.

Imports last year made up close to 20 percent of all steel used in the United States, and the domestic industry maintains that much of it was sold below production costs because of foreign government subsidies.

"The important point is that a lot of steel was illegally dumped here by countries which wanted to maintain high employment in their steel mills," Bethlehem Steel comments in a quarterly review for employees.

The company didn't mince words. "Those steel imports stole American steelworker jobs," it said.

For every $1,000 of imports, Bethlehem suggested, $52 might have been lost in federal, state and local taxes.

Last February, it said, the Tennessee Highway Department opened bids on a highway bridge to be funded primarily by federal funds. The bridge required 4,000 tons of steel.

The lowest bid was $6 million, with the steel to be rolled and shaped in Japan. The second lowest bid was $6.1 million, but the steel would have been rolled in this country and fabricated in Tennessee.

"Tennessee thought it 'saved' $130,000 — about 2 percent of the total bid. But Tennesseans lost over 200,000 manhours of work and the wages that go with them, at least $100,000 in taxes, and significant dollars in purchasing power," Bethlehem said.

While many people oppose such limitations as damaging free markets, and claim they give steelmakers too much freedom to price high, industry lobbyists have been effective to some degree.

In the past year several states adopted regulations giving preference to domestic over foreign steel in public works projects. And bills planned for the 96th Congress would further spell out details.

support the wage-price restraints can scarcely be found. Behind their public protestations of acting in the public interest is naked fear of the government. "Of course, we think the program is ridiculous and everybody else does, too," an executive for one leading defense contractor told us. "but we have important interests to protect."

A Wall Street financier told us many of his business clients give lip service to the Carter program, privately curse it and silently cheer AFL-CIO attacks on it in court and in the political arena. "I think it is supremely ironic that the business community is relying on George Meany to save their hides," he said.

Even if the wage-price limits will not work, can they actually hurt? Apart from deflecting attention from inflation's real causes, they heighten the danger of government by White House edict — a foreboding prospect in a world where state power is more and more supreme.

Lenin forecast that capitalists would sell the rope for their own hanging. The American variety now collaborates in a system of severe limitations on freedom of decision imposed not by law but by threat of reprisal. It is in reaction to this possible self-immolation that the warning sounded by Don Rumsfeld nearly a month ago has survived by word of mouth and might yet kindle a spark.

Clown Class Scheduled

Who's the class clown? It's hard to tell in Pitt Tech's new continuing education course, Beginning Clown.

In response to community interest in a clown school, much of it from "Clown Alley" in Greenville, Pitt Tech has engaged a professional clown to instruct a 30-hour course.

The evening class will meet every Wednesday from 7-10, and will be tailored to meet the needs of fraternal, volunteer and church organization members who are interested in clowning for their groups, as well as interested individuals.

Students are encouraged to dress casually for the classes which will place emphasis on the development or refinement of the individual clown character.

Clown makeup and costume development will head the list of clown craft, which will also include juggling, balloon structure and magic.

The class will begin Wednesday, Jan. 10, on the PTI campus. For more information, call PTI, 756-3130, extensions 238 or 266.

Rideouts
Reconciled
After Suit

By LINDA KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
SALEM, Ore. (AP) — John and Greta Rideout, whose unhappy marriage was magnified in a courtroom, are reconciled — barely two weeks after he was found innocent of raping her.

The couple announced their reconciliation Tuesday to the attorney who successfully defended the 21-year-old Rideout, a reconciliation that followed a meeting Sunday concerning their 2½-year-old daughter.

Rideout was tried under a change in Oregon law eliminating marriage as a defense against rape. His six-day trial was believed to be the first criminal prosecution of a husband charged with raping his wife while they lived together.

The Rideouts were unavailable for comment, but a friend and counselor said Mrs. Rideout was "blown away by the new John. He's undergone a real conversion."

"Greta told me that if they do stay together now it will be harder than staying apart," said Helen Bebelheimer of the Salem Women's Crisis Center. Mrs. Bebelheimer said the couple are hiding out to work on their problems.

The divorce sought by Mrs. Rideout was to take effect Saturday. Her attorney, Jean Christensen, said she was aware of the reconciliation, but refused to say if the divorce petition had been withdrawn.

Rideout's attorney, Charles Burt, said the couple walked unannounced into his office Tuesday to announce they were back together. He said they seemed "very happy" and expressed a new sense of religion.

"They told me they're reconciled," said Burt. "It was one of those things you don't expect to happen...I always felt John loved her deeply."

"People do things, they fight, they say they're sorry, and they get back together again — that's their privilege. I don't think the criminal law belongs there in the first place," said Burt.

Rideout, a cook, said after his Dec. 27 acquittal that he felt both he and his wife had been deeply hurt by the trial. Asked at the time how he felt about his 23-year-old wife, he said: "I don't know."

When the Marion County Circuit Court jury's verdict was announced, Mrs. Rideout said she was angry, but not hostile toward her husband.

During the trial, Rideout said he hit his wife during a dispute at their Salem apartment Oct. 10. Mrs. Rideout testified he then forced her to have intercourse, but Rideout told the jury they made up before they made love.

Mrs. Bebelheimer said the Rideouts met Sunday at the Salem apartment to talk about Rideout's visits to their daughter, Jenny, who is in Mrs. Rideout's custody. It was their first encounter since the trial.

Mrs. Rideout stayed with Mrs. Bebelheimer during most of the trial, later moving back to the Salem apartment. Rideout lived at his mother's home.

No Substitute For Willpower In Overcoming Extra Weight

By SONDR A. HARRIS
The Daily Times-News
 BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The holiday jingles have faded away, but in their place have come the jiggles — that dreaded condition otherwise known as "fat," "plump" or "overweight."

The jiggles are a result of overeating turkey, stuffing, homemade pies and other dishes we eat in the name of celebration.

Now it's time for the jiggles to go away, too.

Although this excess flesh can be hidden beneath bulky sweaters and heavy outer gear in the winter, it reveals itself as conspicuous bulges in the summer. Doctors and dieticians have given some simple, practical advice on how to lose weight so well that it never finds it way back.

The power of dieting lies in the word "do," according to Annie Hines, regional manager for Weight Watchers of North Carolina Inc. "Just do it," she says.

There is no substitution for willpower, agree doctors.

Dr. Robert A. Watson suggests eliminating the word "diet" from our vocabulary, as it is "something we go on and eventually go off. For most of us, eating habits are ongoing," he said. "We have to continually watch what we eat."

Rather than sticking to a fad diet, which deprives the body of a proper balance of protein, carbohydrates and fat, he recommends eating smaller amounts of regular meals.

"If people will lose weight at a slower rate, this weight has a better chance of staying gone, rather than going up and down like a yo-yo," he says.

A body lacking proper amounts of fats and carbohydrates often plunges into ketoacidosis, a condition in which the dieter is angry and upset. The body needs sweets, but not concentrated sugars such as candy and jam. Natural sugars are available in fruits and vegetables.

"Goal-setting should be something reasonable," says Watson. "Say you need to lose 12 pounds. It should roughly take you about six weeks. It works much better than saying you are going to lose 10 pounds in a week."

Regular exercise is important but should not replace a diet. "You shouldn't think you can eat a good meal and then go out and jog it off. It doesn't work," he says.

Moderate exercise helps you tone up but doesn't help you lose weight that much, he says.

He suggests filling your plate at the stove and eating only what's on the plate. If the food isn't on the table, seconds won't be so handy.

Dr. H.A. Derby recommends use of a small plate. "Get only one helping of whatever you want on that plate, but just one. Don't go back for seconds. Sit down and eat. Don't rush, just take your time. If you eat all the food in 30 seconds, you are ready to eat again, because your mind is unsatisfied."

Desserts aren't off-limits, he says. "The problem is not what you eat, but how much you eat. People shouldn't go through agony when they diet." He also suggests group competition in diet clubs as an incentive to lose weight. He suggests walking, running and bicycle riding for exercise.

Dr. Clinton S. Crissman recommends eating three meals a day with a limit on bread and sugar. "Limit your bread to one slice or one biscuit per meal. Do not put sugar on anything you eat. Do not use the sugar bowl, in other words." Carbonated drinks are out, with water or skim milk good substitutes.

Bedtime snacks aren't forbidden, but the dieter shouldn't go overboard. "If you have to have a snack before going to bed at night, have a small bowl of cereal with skim milk and no sugar," Crissman says.

Dr. Robert H. McConville Jr. says, "Get rid of all junk food from your cabinets and refrigerator." He says it's important to burn up more calories that you take into your body.

Beth Wilkins, a registered nurse and coordinator of the Coronary Care Club in Burlington, suggests eating "just small amounts and not a whole lot of really rich foods."

Once deciding to diet, stick to your decision, say doctors. "More important than anything is making up your mind that you want to do it. If you don't work at it, you won't make it," says Crissman.

Needs Successor To Carry On Nazca Line Studies

By MARC LIFSHER
 NAZCA, Peru (UPI) — Gerrhan mathematician Maria Reiche has devoted the last 39 years of her life to the study of the mysterious Nazca Lines etched on the face of a bone-dry Southern Peruvian desert. But Mrs. Reiche, now 75, says she needs to find someone to carry on her research into the meaning of the mysterious ancient lines and drawings on the Nazca Plain, 248 miles south of Lima. "I work alone, but I'm too old now and need someone to take over," she told visitors over dinner at the Nazca Tourist Hotel where she lives. "My caretakers insist my successor must be a woman and a foreigner. "So, I'm looking for a woman between 40 and 50 years of age with no personal connections to follow up my work and spend the rest of her days here in Nazca. She does not have to be a trained mathematician, only someone who is good with mathematics." Mrs. Reiche first heard of the series of ruler-straight lines, mammoth trapezoids and gigantic animal figures scratched on the ochre-colored rock surface of the plains in 1939, from Dr. Paul Kosok of Long Island University, a specialist in ancient irrigation methods. "Kosok realized the lines could never have carried water, and after charting a curving line, he discovered it was an enormous drawing of a bird," she said. "One day as he walked back to his car, he looked up and saw the sun directly over one of the lines. It was June 21, the winter solstice in the southern hemisphere, so he knew it was a solstice line and possibly part of a huge calendar." Mrs. Reiche was only able to visit Nazca once before World War II broke out. "I dreamed about the lines for years and went back in 1946 as soon as the war ended," she said. "I followed the various solstice lines and then started discovering the figures. Apparently no one saw them before because they did not know to look for them. In fact, they built the Panamerican Highway right across a giant etching of a reptile, cutting off its tail." Mrs. Reiche soon found a large spiral and a monkey figure and carefully swept accumulated dust from the shallow white clay lines cut into a thin surface of oxidized rock fragments washed onto the plain from the Andes Mountains by flooding. "After I charted and cleaned the figures, I went to the Peruvian Air Force and we took photographs," she said. "We discovered a score of figures, hundreds of triangles and thousands of lines." With proof of the importance of the Nazca archaeological findings, Mrs. Reiche said, she "got some Peruvian people interested and with a little grant was able to continue my work by living very cheaply and simply." "Later I published a small pamphlet and wrote articles. With another grant from a Swedish foundation and the royalties from my book, published in 1968, I could live here permanently and pay for four caretakers and motorcycles to patrol the edge of the plain and keep people from damaging them." Mrs. Reiche's years of study convinced her the lines represent a massive two-dimensional calendar, built by the pre-Inca Nazca Indian civilization around 1000 B.C. to calculate the coming of the sparse rains needed for their crops in the semi-arable Ingenio River Valley. "They made the calendar to last forever and made it very big so an invading army could march across it and not damage the whole system," she said. Mrs. Reiche said the Indians developed a sophisticated method of working from models to transfer the drawings to the plain and, possibly, checked their work by ascending in primitive hot air balloons. "Everyone here knows about an Inca boy who could fly, and there are reports from a 17th century Jesuit priest ... of Indians using such balloons," she said. "Some years ago a travel agency re-created one of these balloons from ancient drawings, and it flew." Her latest work concluded that the builders of the lines used a basic measurement of 33 centimeters — the length from the tip of a person's thumb to the inside of the elbow — as the radius for the lines of the curving Nazca drawings. Further research showed this basic length as a common measurement used to construct the Egyptian pyramids and other great works of antiquity. Mrs. Reiche's other main task is a fight to save the fragile lines from hordes of tourists brought to Nazca by popular books speculating that the lines were a landing strip for ancient astronauts — a theory she derides as "space fantasies."

Avers Joint Custody Best For Children

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — A new study suggests joint custody arrangements after divorce are best for the children involved. Reporting on her study in a medical journal, social worker Judith Brown Greif wrote: "All children need loving relationships with two caring parents, regardless of whether the parents no longer care for each other. Parents may choose to get divorced but should not be allowed to divorce their children." Mrs. Greif's research was done for her doctoral dissertation at Adelphi University. She now is chief social worker for the Division of Child Adolescent Psychiatry, Bronx Municipal Center of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine. Studying 68 father-child relationships, Mrs. Greif concluded it is best for both to have a strong relationship rather than one that consists only of Sunday visits. In 80 percent of the families she studied, the mother had full custody, although the fathers wanted custodial rights. One father told her: "You can't be a father once a week. They (the children) are afraid to tell me things now, afraid I won't come back."

BOTTOMS UP

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — An indoor sunbath for babies' bottoms after their tub baths can help prevent diaper rash, says Mary Hilton, a diaper service owner and consumer advisor to the industry's trade organization.

Herbal Cure Research Is Again Tried

By UDOM SUKACHAROEN BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Thai pharmacists and chemists, reviving some ancient practices, are experimenting with local herbs to find possible cures for such diseases as leukemia and cancer.

The research parallels similar interest in the Third World, where much of traditional medicine was neglected or discarded with the influx of Western cures.

Traditional medicine in Thailand and elsewhere in Asia includes powdered animal horns, intestines of snakes and other animals and strange concoctions that are generally considered to have more psychological than curative value.

But qualified medical specialists here claim effectiveness for some of the traditional medicines—especially herbal ones—in curing such ailments as sinus congestions, stomach ulcers, hypertension, drug addiction and diarrhea.

Another reason for the revival is economic.

Thailand has long been a supplier of raw materials to industrialized countries which take the herbal extracts, combine them with chemical substances, and export the finished product back to Thailand at high prices. Dr. Vichara Jirawongse, a noted pharmacist and president of the Pharmacognosy Association of Thailand, said the country would save about $40 million annually "if we can industrialize the process of extracting medical substances from plants."

Vichara said some pharmacists of his group were conducting research on the white ginger plant in search of a cancer cure, concentrating on extracting and experimenting with a substance from the root. A recent report from the school of pharmacy at the University of Illinois, Vichara said, indicated that the substance may have potential for fighting cancer.

Dr. Em-orn Somppahn Somnaphan, a pharmacist with Bangkok's Mahidol Medical University, has been working on substances from periwinkle plants which many claim are capable of curing leukemia. No fruitful results have to date been achieved and her project continues.

The practice of herbal medicine has been going on in Thailand since at least the 13th century, but advancement of the science was slow with invading armies sometimes burning important medical recipes. In the 18th century, King Rama II ordered the inscription of herbal recipes on the walls of Wat Po temple in Bangkok which can still be seen today.

The Wat Po college of traditional medicine now has a growing enrollment of students, including some from West Germany and Japan.

Most of the graduates, about 200 a year, have opened up shops selling herbal medicines. Rather than the Western pills, salves and liquids, traditional medicine often comes in the form of dried leaves, roots and stalks or powders, which are boiled or mixed with hot water. A number of modern drugstores here have a space reserved for traditional medicines.

Serious research on Thailand's "useful herbs"—more than 500 varieties—began five years ago with United Nations financial backing, and has since expanded, although people like Vichara complain of a lack of coordination and dissemination of important advances.

Pharmacists and herbalists have visited Thailand to study from the United States, West Germany, Italy, Sweden, Japan, the Philippines, Indonesia, Pakistan and India. An Australian student under Vichara's supervision is working for a doctorate in herbal medicines and three Swedish herbalists are now in northern Thailand.

The Ministry of Public Health also has become involved, both to stimulate research and to stop false advertising by some for cures.

Sheltered Workshop Expenditures Of $1,173,499

The Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center had a $1,173,499.78 expenditure figure during 1978, according to the annual audit report presented by Jerry Powell, chairman of the finance committee.

Approximately $200,000 was paid to clients in the training programs, with $69,000 used to purchase materials for products made by the clients.

The Center purchased the Grifton recycling plant for approximately $150,000. Building maintenance and repair was $28,000 plus and utilities were $23,000. Equipment maintenance and repair was $21,000.

The Center is now using the new Department of Health, Education and Welfare charge of accounts system. Chairman Powell was assisted by Don Parrott and Mike Joyner in the audit presentation.

Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center hopes to have its new paper recycling machinery in operation by Jan. 15.

When the machinery is ready, the Center will be able to collect all types of paper and cardboard for recycling.

The Center has two paper recycling plants, one in Greenville and the other in Grifton. The recycling project provides job training for approximately 18 clients, as well as their supervisors and instructors.

The Workshop was fully accredited during 1978 by the Commission of Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities. The Center is the only local non-profit workshop that has been accredited in North Carolina.

Jim O'Pasic of NISH, an agency that administers the Javits-O'Day Program for the severely handicapped, cooperated with the Center to allow the Workshop to make mirrors for the U. S. Navy.

O'Pasic is presently working with the Workshop toward the award of a contract for the production of wooden picture frames.

The Center has approximately 90 percent occupancy in its vocational rehabilitation slots and 100 percent in housing. The Adult Developmental Activities Program for Mental Health is near capacity.

The Workshop Directors of the state are requesting Mental Health/Mental Retardation and the North Carolina Legislature to furnish adequate funds for the program.

Dr. Stephen Corbett of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Atlanta, Ga. has given approval for final plans for the Center's housing and recreation addition. George Shoe, a local architect, hopes to have the plans ready for bid by the latter part of January.

The Center estimates that approximately 28-29,000 miles are traveled per month in its senior citizen transportation program. Eleven routes are run per day in the handicapped and senior citizen transportation program.

The Center presently serves over 8,500 meals a month in the cafeteria program. The Center was approved in October by the National School Lunch Program.

The High School Program is not as large this year as last year because of limited funds. It is hoped by Center officials that the Federal Bill 94-142 and the Creech Bill will allow training funds for handicapped persons to be allocated to workshops across the state.

Also, through the cooperation of the Martin County Board of Education, the Center was able to purchase a new 50-passenger bus.

The Center began recycling of plastic, cloth remnants, and other materials during 1978. The Board of Directors is looking into the feasibility of aluminum recycling, which would give an additional eight clients in training positions.

Uphold Verdict For Back Pay

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. has upheld an August 1978 jury verdict awarding a former East Carolina University language professor more than $80,000 in back pay for his wrongful dismissal from the university's faculty.

Robert J. Mayberry, a former romance language professor at East Carolina University, claimed his contract to teach was not renewed in 1972 because he disagreed with policies in the university's language department.

Dupree's ruling is likely the first in North Carolina holding state officials liable for violating a person's constitutional rights while acting according to state procedures, say lawyers familiar with the case.

During the trial in federal court, Mayberry testified that he was critical of the manner in which Language Department Chairman Joseph A. Fernandez planned to evaluate the department.

Fernandez later decided not to recommend renewal of Mayberry's contract and ECU administrators accepted the recommendation even though Mayberry had charged arbitrary and unconstitutional treatment.

The jury awarded Mayberry $81,885 in back pay which ECU administrators were ordered to pay from state funds. The jury also awarded him $5,000 as punitive damages against Fernandez.

According to Assistant State Attorney General Marvin S. Schiller, the state will appeal Dupree's order.

Dupree refused to order Mayberry reinstated as a professor.

Girl, 17, Gets Life Sentence

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A 17-year-old girl was sentenced to life plus 10 to 40 years imprisonment Tuesday after she plead guilty to two counts of second degree murder in the stabbing deaths of a woman and her granddaughter.

Karen Lynn Batton will be eligible for parole in 30 years. Her attorneys said they would decide today what recourse they might take.

Miss Batton admitted that she took part in the slayings of Myrtis Everhart Miller, 66, and 3-year-old Crystal Dawn Miller at Mrs. Miller's home in Lexington in February 1977.

Albert Kenny Dickey, who has also pleaded guilty to second degree murder in the slayings, was to have been sentenced today. A third person, Kenneth Darnell Dampier, has also been charged with the killings.

"We are concerned about the severity of the sentence," said Robert A. Hassle, one of Miss Batton's attorneys.

The attorneys had asked that

Miss Batton be sentenced as youthful offender and that the length of her sentence be set after she underwent psychiatric evaluation.

District Attorney H.W. "Butch" Zimmerman said in his summation that Miss Batton "should be taken to Raleigh and executed by the inhalation of poisonous gas."

Both Mrs. Miller and the child were stabbed repeatedly and their throats slashed. The bodies were discovered on the morning of Feb. 10, 1977, by Mrs. Miller's son.

Houston Businessmen Spread Pedestrian Tunnel Network

By MICHAEL O'CONNOR
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — A downtown tunnel system where pedestrians can escape Houston's heat and humidity is growing by leaps and bounds — all without relying on government dollars.

With the completion last month of a $3 million, six-block extension, the tunnels provide more than 3 miles of air conditioned passageways to 23 downtown blocks — a cool store-to-store link for shoppers.

"It was all done, not by the insistence of government, not by the guidance of government, not even by the suggestion of government, but solely as a result of private enterprise wanting to produce something that would be of benefit to their business establishment," says Ronald Heiser, assistant director of the city Planning Department.

As early as 1947, when the first tunnel was built between Foley's Department Store and its parking garage across the street, businessmen saw shoppers needed a way to avoid Houston's semi-tropical heat and humidity.

Since they couldn't put a bubble over the downtown area, the businesses began building more passageways — most below ground, and a few at ground level.

The tunnels provide competition for the air-conditioned suburban malls that were drawing more and more customers from the central business district.

"That's the real reason the tunnels were built," Heiser said. "They allow downtown pedestrian movement in comfort. One way or another, people in Houston will be walking in air-conditioned comfort. And energy crisis or no, people here will sacrifice to have their air conditioning."

Although some tunnels are nothing more than passageways between buildings, many have small shops. All get extensive use, Heiser said.

"And they're open only during business hours, which adds another unique aspect," he said. "In many places, like New York or Chicago, you go underground and wonder if you're going to come out alive."

"But these tunnels have maintained a reputation of being safe," he said. "They're privately owned and watched by private patrol forces."

The Chamber of Commerce says Houston's tunnel system is now among the longest in the world. And they say the light at the end of the tunnel-building is not yet in sight.

Another 11-block system of tunnels is in the works.

Refusal Could Cost $40,000

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina taxpayers may have to foot a $40,000 bill because one state agency won't provide dump trucks for another.

The Department of Transportation has refused a request by the Department of Administration to haul away a big mound of dirt at a site in Raleigh where a six-level, $8.5-million legislative-executive office building is scheduled to be built by 1981 or early 1982.

If DOT trucks are not used, state officials said it will cost the state as much as $40,000 to hire a private hauler to clear the 8,000 to 10,000 cubic feet of dirt.

"Considering the (hauling) cost, it wasn't such a good deal for us," said Henry C. Clegg, assistant highway administrator. Clegg said the DOT has about 3,000 dump trucks around the state, but said it wouldn't be practical to bring one into Wake County from somewhere like Cherokee County.

And Clegg said the job would tie up about 15 of DOT's 30 trucks assigned to Wake County for two weeks.

Administration and transportation are both part of state government, but Clegg said there were jurisdictional problems in transferring services. He said the trucks are paid from the Highway Fund, but the Administration Department and most of state government is financed through the General Assembly. Traditionally, the state has not used General Fund revenues to pay for the operation of highway equipment.

Clegg estimated the cost of hauling the dirt at 5 to 10 cents per cubic yard mile.

"WORST DRESSED" — Dolly Parton speaks into mike in Nashville, wearing typical costume. On Tuesday, designer Mr. Blackwell of California announced she has replaced Farrah Fawcett-Majors on the top of his "worst dressed women" list. Suzane Somers of "Three's Company" placed second, followed by Christina Onassis Kavrov, model Cheryl Tiegs and then Farrah. Of Miss Somers, Blackwell said "she looks as if she was hit by a flash flood". (AP Laserphoto)

School Board...

 new or renovated facilities for exceptional children; accessibility for handicapped children; renovation for energy conservation; new or renovated facilities for administration, maintenance, transportation and warehousing; and other needs such as multipurpose rooms, increased athletic facilities and cultural arts areas.

The largest estimate came from replacement of obsolete buildings, totaling $7,036,000. Ayden Middle, H. B. Sugg and Stokes Elementary have been slated for replacement.

Another $2,173,000 has been estimated for replacement of temporary facilities such as those at A. G. Cox, Ayden Elementary and D. H. Conley.

Craft pointed out that renovation for energy conservation would total $1,752,000 for even such modern schools as the four high schools.

The board approved the study, with the intent of forwarding it to the Division of School Planning to meet a Jan. 18 deadline.

Chairman Owens presented a resolution adopted by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce asking both the city and county boards to form a joint committee to study the merger situation. The board decided to respond to the resolution at the February meeting.

The board voted to adopt an oral medication policy for Pitt County schools. The plan was presented to the members in October by Assistant Superintendent Kathryn Lewis.

The policy calls for school personnel to administer oral medication to students only under written documentation from parents. The policy extends itself to such non-prescription drugs such as aspirin or cough medicine.

If school children must take medication during school hours without the parent present to administer it, only the principal or his/her designated person will administer the medicine, with written instructions from the parents.

Assistant Superintendent Lewis also informed the board that a program for math remediation for students failing the math section of the competency test will be put into action at the beginning of the next semester.

The Board voted to consolidate with the Greenville City Schools extended school program at Agnes Fullilove School.

The county extended program is presently housed at Wellcome Middle School, with much of its money provided by CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) funds.

Assistant Lewis pointed out that utility funds would probably be one of the only problems, but noted that Fullilove offers such facilities for such areas as home economics and other vocational items which were unavailable to students at the Wellcome facility.

The Extended Day program allows those who have dropped out of high school a second chance to gain needed knowledge and skills.

John McKnight, Director of Testing and Research for Pitt County, gave the board an update on possible changes regarding promotion and retention in the schools.

McKnight pointed out that one idea was to form a committee to study possible failures in each grade, so that parents might be notified possibly in the middle of the school year so as to help their child.

ACT president Annette MacRae asked McKnight how teachers would be able to serve on such a committee during regular school hours and pointed out that often children who do poorly in the middle of the school term better their grades before the end of their school.

McKnight also discussed the possibility of a cyclic re-evaluation of potential failures in the K-3, 4-5, and 6-8 cycles, with a screening program to make sure eighth graders are ready to enter high school.

Dr. Ken Rollins, hired by the board in December to study staff evaluation, gave a presentation to the board on work done so far, noting that a committee comprised of John McKnight, Kathryn Lewis, Lillian Bradley, Alma Barnes, Beth Ward, Bill Wiggins, Janie Manning, Mory Frizzelle, Annette MacRae, Linda Baldree, Connie Woods, Nancy Evans, Larry Parker, Maxine Whitner, C. P. Shaw, and Dr. Clinton Downing would work on the matter, with hopes of delivering a rough draft of recommendations to the board by March.

The following personnel were approved by the board: Jinnette Jackson, Sussan Benton, Earl D. Bruton Jr., Elizabeth C. Gomes, Nan Grady, Bridget Harbin, Danny McPherson, Ronald Scharz, Louise Wainwright.

Test Results...

 11th graders statewide on Nov. 1 and 2. The Competency Testing Program was approved by the 1977 General Assembly.

Basically, the competency test legislation directs that students in public and non-public schools make a passing score on the two tests in order to meet the state requirements for graduation from high school.

Students who did not pass one or both of the tests will be given an opportunity to be retested on May 1 and 2.

Results achieved by students in the Greenville and Pitt County School systems are:

Greenville Schools
 — A total of 453 students in the 11th grade in Greenville took the competency reading test; and a total of 452 took the competency math test. Of this total, 422 students at Rose High took both the reading and math tests.

31 students enrolled in the Extended School Program at Agnes Fullilove School took the reading test; and 30 students there took the math test.

— At Rose High, 389 students passed the reading test, and 33 failed. In the math test given to Rose students, 378 passed, and 44 failed.

— The results at Agnes Fullilove show that 10 students passed the reading test, with 21 failures. For the math test, the result was five passing, and 25 failing.

— In percentages, 92.2 percent of students at Rose High passed the reading test, with 7.8 percent failing. For math, the percentage is 89.6 percent passing, and 10.4 percent failing.

— Percentages at Agnes Fullilove reflect 32.3 percent passing the reading test, and 67.7 percent failing. Figures for the math test are 16.7 percent passing, and 83.3 percent failing.

— For the city school system overall, the total percentages are 88.1 percent passing the reading test, with 11.9 percent failing. In math the rate is 84.7 percent passing, and 15.3 percent failing.

Superintendent of City Schools Glenn Cox and members of the school board expressed pleasure in the achievement of 11th graders in the city schools. "I feel certain that our students have scored quite high in comparison with other schools in the state," Cox said.

Pitt County Schools
 According to John McKnight, Director of Testing and Research in Pitt County, county schools experienced an overall failure rate of 15 percent in reading and a 20 percent rate in mathematics as of the November testing.

"We are very pleased with these results, since statistics indicate that the failure rate since the trial testing in March of last year has been reduced approximately 60 percent in reading," said McKnight.

McKnight presented the figures during the regular session of the Pitt County Board of Education.

According to McKnight, those who failed either or both of the sections will be placed in remediation classes, with opportunities to retake the tests in May. Additional opportunities will be allowed twice during the students' senior year to allow them to pass the test.

Out of the number of failing students, 46 percent of the reading and 35 percent of the math failures came from those who are officially classified as educable mentally retarded.

"While this in no way attempts to excuse the failures, it is an important factor to consider in examining overall results," McKnight stated.

Looking at the four high schools, Ayden-Grifton had 165 students taking the reading test, with 147 passing and 18 failing.

North Pitt had 205 students taking the test, with 171 passing and 34 failing.

D. H. Conley, with 238 participating, had 204 passing and 34 failing.

At Farmville Central, 195 students took the test, 165 passing and 30 failing.

Extended day students had eight participating, with five passing and three failing.

Excluding those educable mentally retarded who took the tests, 763 Pitt County students participated in the reading test, with 692 passing and 71 failing.

In the math section, Ayden-Grifton had 166 students taking the test, with 137 passing and 29 failing.

North Pitt students, numbering 205, took the test, with 161 passing and 44 failing.

D. H. Conley had 238 students taking the math section, with 197 passing and 41 failing.

Farmville Central had 152 out of 195 pass, with 43 failures.

Six out of the eight extended day students passed the math section, with two failures.

Less EMR students who participated in the math tests, 755 Pitt County students took the examination, with 653 passing and 108 failing, giving an 86 percent passing rate and a 14 percent failure rate.

According to Superintendent Ott Alford, "The positive attitude of all involved is a major reason for the climate of success which exists for students in Pitt County today."

"The continued effort and refinement of programs will result in further reduction of failures and an even more favorable response to the challenge of a quality education for Pitt County graduates," Alford concluded.

Utilities...

 proved by adding alum ahead of the primary clarifiers for a period of five or six days, to aid settling of sludge. However, alum treatment for longer periods caused a load-up of solids and no improvement in the effluent.

Utilities employees have been conducting tests with alum and other chemicals in an effort to determine what could be done to improve the quality of the discharge in the event that normal treatment of waste water fails to meet EPA requirements.

In other business last night, Commissioners tabled action on a request to add one employee to the Energy Conservation Department to give members an opportunity to give further study to the request, and approved a $150 differential cost for installation of concrete poles in lieu of standard wood poles.

Ayden Vote...

 regulatory commissions with authority."

The water bond issue, totaling $500,000, will give Ayden a 500,000 gallon elevated storage tank, a 250 gallon per minute deep well and approximately 23,000 feet of distribution line.

"The water bond was needed," said Russell. "It will give our citizens a feeling of security. If we lose a well or storage tank, we'll still be okay and it also gives the Board of Commissioners an increased potential in bringing new industry to the town."

The third bond issue, which will offer sewer services to "The Pines" at a cost of $225,000, was perhaps the most controversial of the three issues.

"The passage of the sewer bond will mean annexation for 'The Pines,'" commented Russell. "It'll mean an increased population for Ayden and increased revenues."

Russell said that work on the water and electric improvements should begin immediately, with the sewer work to begin after annexation.

A total of 432 Ayden citizens voted for the electric bonds, with 66 voting against it.

Three hundred and fifty eight citizens voted for the water bond issue; 130 voted against it.

The sewer bond passed with 328 voter for the issue and 154 against it.

Grifton Board In Brief Meet

GRIFTON — In a short regular meeting last night, the Grifton Town Board of Commissioners gave permission to Police Chief Linwood Outlaw to obtain estimates for renovations to the Grifton Police Department.

In other actions, Dr. Ed Bright was re-appointed to the board to serve as town representative to the Mid East Commission.

Hope Plantation Is Now Closed

Hope will reopen on Thursday, March 1, and tours will be started again at that time.

COMMANDER FIRED

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Adm. Michael Barkai, commander of the Israeli navy, has been fired because a military court said it believed he tried to rape a woman sergeant even though it could not convict him.

Robert S. Griffin, manager of Procter & Gamble's Greenville plant, announced that ground has been broken for the plant's second major expansion.

Griffin said that the manufacturing facility, located just north of the city, has continued to grow since its original construction began in 1973.

With its first expansion, he pointed out, the plant contains more than 16 acres of production and warehousing space.

"This second expansion, which is expected to be completed in about one year," Griffin related, "will provide additional jobs for area residents and will bring the plant size to approximately 26 acres."

The new construction work, located to the east of the last expansion, will help meet the expansion needs of the business, he added.

Griffin stated that the Procter & Gamble Greenville plant has had two basic objectives "with which all employees can identify: to be a profitable operation; and to be one of the best places to work in the area. He added that "as Procter & Gamble has grown, these two objectives have been a predominant factor in decision making."

he plant manager pointed out. "The company's strong belief in becoming a part of the community has become a reality for Procter & Gamble employees and their families through employee and company support, both of time and money, to the United Fund' hospital expansion, public schools and other area organizations."

Safe At Second
Well, not quite! But it looks as if Rocky Mount's Donald Mabry (right) might be trying to slide into second as Rose High School's Wallace Brown (40) tries to make the tag with the basketball. Actually, the two had collided as Brown drove toward the basket and both hit the floor. Mabry was called for a foul, but Rocky Mount went on to win the game, 66-60. (Reflector Photo)

Trojan Bordley Is Star Of Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Bordley and the California Angels wanted each other very badly. The Cincinnati Reds, however, have kept them apart for at least six months, and maybe forever.

Bordley is the 6-foot-4, lefthanded pitcher whom the scouts were calling the star of the draft. Bordley, a strikeout sensation who was 26-2 for the University of Southern California the past two seasons, was raised on the West Coast and dreams of playing major league baseball there. In fact, he loves the West Coast so much he wrote letters to the teams not in California, explaining that he preferred that those clubs not draft him in Tuesday's winter draft of freeagent amateur talent.

In the letter, Bordley said he wanted a certain amount of money and some incentive bonuses. Joe Bowen, vice president in charge of scouting for the Reds, said Tuesday that Bordley's asking price was "substantial" and that one of the incentives was a bonus provided he reached the major leagues within a certain time.

The Angels, who had the No. 4 pick in the secondary phase (for players picked before), never received a letter from Bordley. "He'd sign with us in five minutes," said California President Buzzie Bavasi.

Philadelphia, with the first pick in the secondary phase, listened to Bordley, selecting instead Mark Davis, a lefthanded pitcher who struck out 191 batters in 961-3 innings in his senior year at Granada High School in Livermore, Calif. The Phillies announced shortly after picking Davis that they had signed him to a contract.

Toronto, very concerned with Bordley's signability and not wanting to waste a first-round draft choice, picked Nattie George, an outfielder from San Jose, Calif.

Then California and Bordley had to sweat out one more pick, but the California Connection wasn't to be. Cincinnati claimed him.

"We've talked to him, and we knew he preferred to stay on the West Coast," said Bowen. "But in baseball, you don't get to pick the teams, the teams pick you."

"He was the best player available, so we took him. There just wasn't much else. We'll just have to take our chances."

Bordley told The Associated Press late Tuesday: "I'm really disappointed, so now I'm going back to USC...When I talked to the Cincinnati scouts, I explained to them that my dad had open-heart surgery and my brother had a serious accident, and my other brother is going into the Air Force. I had counted on one of them to relieve me of the burden at home."

Left-handed pitchers seemed to be the prize picks Tuesday, with Davis and Bordley going first and third in the secondary phase and Neal Heaton, a southpaw flamethrower from Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y., being picked by the New York Mets as the No. 1 selection in the regular phase of the draft. The regular phase is for players never drafted before.

In all, a record high of 307 players were chosen in the 14th annual winter draft.

Gryphons Dump Rose

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Rocky Mount High School scored six points in a five-second time span in the closing minute of play to seal away a 66-60 basketball win over the Rose High School Rampants last night.

It was the second straight defeat in Division I play after a league-season opening win for Rose. For Rocky Mount, it was the second league win in three starts.

All six of the fateful points came at the foul line, and a technical foul played a role in four of them.

Rose, which had trailed by as much as nine points in the game, and six in the quarter, had fought back to trail by only two points, 60-58, when the fateful call came.

Rocky Mount's Mitch Braswell drove in for a basket, but appeared to lose his footing and fall toward Rose's William Frizzell. Frizzell was called for blocking on the play, and that brought several Rose players off the bench, right beside the play. The official then called a technical on the bench, awarding two free throws to the Gryphons.

Braswell made his two with 41 seconds left, and Donald Mabry sank both of the technicals. Rocky Mount then got the ball out of bounds, and Mabry was fouled five seconds later, hitting both of the shots to run the lead to 66-58, and Rose never recovered.

While refraining from talking about the crucial call, Rose coach Jim Brewington said the Rampants suffered from a lack on an inside game. "Our little guys did all right, but we're just not getting the inside play we need."

"We shot poorly, too, and that doesn't help us at all," he added. Rose did shoot poorly, hitting 41.4 per cent, but they improved their shooting in the final period from 36.4 to do that. Rocky Mount shot an even 50 per cent from the floor.

The real difference in the game, however, was at the foul line, where the Gryphons cashed in on 16 of 23 while Rose hit just 12 of 15.

Turnovers were almost even, 18 for Rose and 19 for Rocky Mount. Rose held a 38-32 rebounding edge, with much of that coming in the final period, when the Rampants held an 11-5 edge.

"We came back well. In fact we played well enough to win it. I just keep waiting for us to play a good game, but we just haven't gotten it together. We're struggling now."

"We looked good at times, but then we'd make a mistake inside and it would cost us," Brewington added.

Rocky Mount hit the first three baskets of the game, while Rose was missing its first six shots. But the Rampants came back and took an 8-7 lead on a jumper by Dennis Ross with 1:05 left in the first period. Rose took a 10-7 lead into the second quarter.

The Rampants moved out by four on a three-point play by Donald House, 15-11, but Rocky Mount came back to tie it up on baskets by Mabry and Daryle Lewis. The Gryphons finally took the lead at 20-19, but Rose regained it at 21-20 and although tied twice more, held on for a 25-23 margin at the half.

Rose moved back out by four before two baskets in a row by Braswell tied it again, 31-31. Rose still managed to hold onto the lead until Jeff Arrington hit two free throws for a 37-35 lead with 2:19 left. After it was tied once more at 37-37, Rocky Mount ran off nine straight points to take a 46-37 lead, and they took a 48-39 margin into the final period.

Rose crept back, but never got closer than two, at 56-54 with 4:14 left, and then again at 58-56 with 3:43 left. Once more at 60-58, with 53 seconds to go, Rose closed it to within two, but then came the fateful six-point play that slammed the door on the Rampants.

Braswell led the Gryphons with 18 points, while Mabry had 13 and James Pittman had 12. Ross led Rose with 14, while Wallace Brown hit 12 and House had 11.

In the girls' game, Rocky Mount broke up an early Rose lead at 6-5, and went on to take a 69-52 victory over the Rampettes.

Rose fell behind by 11 in the first period, 18-7, and never really got back into it. They trailed by 35-23 at the end of the half, and by 51-42 going into the final period.

Rose cut the margin to as little as seven before Rocky Mount pulled away again, scoring 14 while Rose was getting two.

"We shot the ball very poorly tonight," Coach Robert Carraway said. "And I think defensively, this was our worst game. We looked disorganized on defense, as if we didn't know what was going on."

Jennifer Cherry led Rocky Mount with 28 points, while Bonnie Powell and Kerri Kolehma each had ten. Rose was led by Donna Cullipher with 16, while Kathy Streeter and Margaret McGlohon each had 11.

"Cherry killed us," Carraway said. "We knew she was going to do the scoring and we were looking for her and still didn't do anything."

"We got off to another slow start, too, and we've got to stop that. We're down too far before we get going."

The Rampants are now 3-8 overall and 1-2 in the league, while the Rampettes are 3-6 and 0-3. Rocky Mount climbs to 4-5 overall and 2-1 in the conference, while the girls are 8-3 and 2-1.

Rose plays host to Northeastern on Friday.

Tougher Standards, Title IX On Agenda

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The toughening of academic entrance standards and a resolution decrying Title IX headed a full agenda today as the NCAA entered the final business session of its 73rd national convention.

The academic plan, submitted by the NCAA Council and endorsed by the College Football Association — most of the major football powers — would do away with the current 2.0 high school grade point requirement.

It would be replaced with a "triple option" approach of a 2.25 high school grade point or certain scores on the standard SAT or ACT college entrance tests.

Compliance guidelines for Title IX, federal legislation barring discrimination against women in college athletics, was blasted by the more than 1,000 delegates in a general discussion Monday. A resolution urging that football and basketball be exempt from strict per capita expenditure compliance was expected to be adopted.

Before winding up today, delegates will also decide on 36 legislative proposals left from the day before.

Ninety-six proposals were voted on Tuesday, with delegates adopting seven procedural changes in the enforcement program and Division I-AA and Division II voting to cut their maximum number of football scholarships.

After prolonged debate, I-AA, by a 22-21 vote, cut its football scholarship limit from 95 to 75. In Division II, the limit was trimmed from 60 to 45.

By a wider margin than expected, delegates rejected a proposal by the Big 10 and MidAmerica conferences to base scholarships for all sports other than football and basketball on "need," or the financial condition of a young man's family.

Campbell Cops Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Running back Earl Campbell, whose league-leading 1,450 yards led the Houston Oilers into the National Football League playoffs, was named The Associated Press Offensive Rookie of the year today by an overwhelming margin.

The Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Texas received 82½ of the 84 ballots cast by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters, three from each NFL city. John Jefferson, a wide receiver with the San Diego Chargers, received one vote. The other one-half vote went to Tampa Bay Buccaneers quarterback Doug Williams.

Campbell's 1,450 yards surpassed the single-season rookie record of 1,162 set by San Diego's Don Woods in 1974 and broke the all-time Oiler rushing mark of 1,194 yards by Hoyle Granger in 1967. His 302 carries and 13 rushing touchdowns also established club records.

Campbell also became the first rookie to win the NFL rushing title since Jim Brown did it in 1957 and came within one of tying Gale Sayers' record of 14 rushing TDs by a rookie.

The third time he touched the ball as a pro, in Houston's season opener against Atlanta, he raced 73 yards for a touchdown and finished the game with 137 yards. The 5-foot-11, 225-pound native of Tyler, Texas, had six other games of more than 100 yards rushing and wound up the league leader despite sitting out one entire game.

Skating Tough For Bradshaw

He's No Skater

Ice skating star Jo Jo Starbuck guides Terry Bradshaw of the Pittsburgh Steelers around the rink at New York's Rockefeller Plaza Tuesday, during taping of an NBC-TV special. Bradshaw appeared to be more at home on the football field than on skates. Miss Starbuck is, in private life, Mrs. Terry Bradshaw. (AP Laserphoto)

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — "Man, look at my hands sweating — I'm more nervous than I've ever been in a football game."

Terry Bradshaw said as he donned a pair of ice skates at the Rockefeller Center rink.

"This is tougher than looking down the throats of Too Tall Jones and Harvey Martin any day."

It was an awkward, uncomfortable moment for the nine-year veteran quarterback of the Pittsburgh Steelers, named by The Associated Press as the Most Valuable Player in the National Football League. But, as is his nature, he took it all in high good humor.

With Super Bowl XIII only 11 days away, here he was — the man designated to beat Roger Staubach and the champion Dallas Cowboys — putting on a pair of razor-sharp blades and preparing to do a whirling dervish number with his wife, JoJo Starbuck, for a prebowl television special.

Did old Art Rooney (Steeler owner) and Coach Chuck Noll know the risk being taken by their million-dollar field general?

"Good gosh, no," he said. "If they knew I was here doing this they would skin my hide. Mr.

Rooney would swallow his cigar."

It wasn't all that treacherous, after all. Bradshaw, who as a kid skated on frozen lakes around Shreveport, La., only had to glide arm-in-arm with JoJo toward a camera and then JoJo, a national pairs champion and an Olympic finalist, completed the pirouetting, spinning and leaping routine to a lilting love song — about two minutes of it.

The tape will be part of "Supper Bowl Saturday Night," a two-hour special Jan. 20 over NBC (9-11 p.m. EST) on the eve of the Dallas-Pittsburgh battle for football's biggest prize. Terry and JoJo share the stage with such celebrities as Johnny Carson, Bob Hope, Angie Dickinson and Dean Martin.

"I wouldn't mind so much if they'd let me just go out there and skate around," Bradshaw said. "But I have to spin with JoJo, hold her down and things like that. It makes me a little jittery."

They wanted Terry also to sing a song — at least lip sync a record he taped for Mercury a few years ago — but he was given an 11th-hour reprieve.

"We couldn't find the record," the loose, wisecracking quarterback said. "Once I skated and sang 'Happy Birthday' to JoJo in a show at Hershey, Pa. There were 18,000 people in the stands. I was terrified. But take my word for it — I am the best off-key singer in all football."

They are a handsome, charming couple — the Bradshaws, now married 2½ years. Terry is 6-foot-3, 215 pounds with a strong Nordic face, pugnosed as a prize fighter and a cleft chin. JoJo looks like a fragile doll with her slender figure, blue eyes and close-cropped golden hair.

One would think it was a marriage made in heaven — or, at least Hollywood. The story-book football hero and the ice ballerina from the show world, two people who don't have to live the shadow of the other's fame.

The star righthander known as Joe "Iron Man" McGinnity pitched both halves of a doubleheader five times in 1903.

Bruce To OSU?

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Orlando Sentinel-Star reported in its Wednesday editions that Earle Bruce, head football coach at Iowa State, will succeed Woody Hayes at Ohio State.

The newspaper, in an article by Larry Guest, quoted sources as saying the 47-year-old Bruce would be named to the position after Buckeye officials conclude scheduled interviews at the National Collegiate Athletic Association Convention in San Francisco.

"He's got the inside track right now," the newspaper quoted Iowa State Athletic Director Lou McCullough as saying.

"I'm sure of that," he added. "I'm afraid I've lost him."

Bruce met with Ohio State Athletic Director Hugh Hindman for three hours Monday.

Jags Charge Past Vikings

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD—A. D. H. Conley rally came to an abrupt halt in the third quarter last night, and when it did, Farmville Central was ready to cash in.

The Jaguars, who had seen a nine-point lead dwindle away to nothing as the Vikings got hot, reeled off 18 straight points when they went cold and were able to hold the Vikes off in the final quarter for a 69-57 victory.

The win puts Farmville in sole command of the Eastern Carolina Conference race. Both teams entered the game tied for the league lead at 6-1, and now the Jaguars are in lone possession of the top spot.

Forward Donald Reid was the spark that ignited the Farmville rally early in the third quarter. The Jags, who held a 32-23 advantage with 1½ minutes left to play in the first half, watched as Conley scored 10 straight points to go up 33-32 with 6:48 left in the third quarter.

But Conley missed his next seven shots, while Farmville came to life on the backboards and began to work the ball into Reid. He had two straight three-point plays, plus another basket, and Donald Freeman got into the act with an alley-oop coming across the lane and a shot from the left corner. When the onslaught ended at the end of the third quarter, Farmville was ahead 52-35.

Guard Darryl Thompson hit three driving shots as Conley cut the Farmville margin to seven on Shawn Little's 20-foot jumper with 1:37 left, but Farmville broke the Conley press for some easy baskets in the final minute to put the game away.

"I thought we played very well in spots and poor in spots," Farmville coach Mike Terrell said after the game. "We got confused a couple of times on offense, especially at the end of the second quarter and the beginning of the third quarter."

"But we started going inside to Donald Reid in the second half, and I thought that was the key." The burly Reid, who led all scorers with 23 points, began to dominate the boards, along with teammate Earl Harris, and Farmville outrebounded the Vikes 12-5 in the critical third period.

"Reid killed us on the offensive boards," Conley coach Shelly Marsh noted. "We had trouble keeping him off the offensive boards."

"Farmville is a power basketball team," Marsh continued, "and we just can't play with their power. Our press didn't work well, so we didn't get any easy shots like we like to get off the press" in the fourth quarter.

"Reid got clutch baskets everytime we made a comeback," Marsh said another factor was Farmville's depth. The Jaguars have the best top ten players in the league, he said, and because of this, although Conley was able to get them into foul trouble, it didn't help the Vikes' cause all that much.

For example, Harris fouled out with 6:38 left in the game, but as Terrell commented, "when Harris went out, we did give up more points and lost some rebound power, but we have a quicker team with him out of there, and we do some things better."

have a poor shooting night." Farmville hit 51.7 per cent of its shots from the field, while Conley connected on only 38.6 per cent of its attempts.

The Vikings played with more intensity when they were coming back, Marsh said, but they lost that intensity near the end of the game. "We missed an easy shot, they put up a shot, Reid got the rebound and put it back in. If we had shot well, it might have been real interesting at the end, but our offense didn't show enough guts: we looked like we were afraid to get a shot blocked."

Freeman had 17 points and Jeff Tyson was the only other Jaguar in double figures with 10. Little had 15 and Thompson 12 for Conley. Farmville held a 40-29 rebounding advantage.

Terrell said it was a big win for his ballclub, and not just because it gives them the league lead. "Anytime you get a victory from a team in the county, it's a good win, especially on their home court. Conley has a good ballclub that can beat anybody in the conference."

In the girls' game that preceded last night's league showdown, it was a Conley foul-shooting spree that pulled the Valkyries away from the Lady Jaguars in the fourth quarter for a 54-43 victory.

Farmville Central held a 37-36 lead going into the fourth quarter, but Conley outscored the Lady Jags 14-3 in the final period, getting 12 of those points at the foul line.

Glenda Greene, who ruled the boards for Conley, was the game's leading scorer with 28 points. That total included 14 foul shots, six of which were made in the final frame.

Farmville Central committed 33 fouls in the game and the Valkyries were 24-44 at the line to offset a 16-15 Lady Jag-feld goal advantage.

Pam Moye was the only Farmville player in double figures with 18 points, while Annie Hardy added 13 for Conley.

The Valkyries are now 6-2 in the ECC, while the Lady Jaguars are 4-7.

Jamesville Takes Over 1st

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School took over sole possession of first place in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference last night with a 67-47 victory over Belhaven.

Linda Nelson led Belhaven with 21 points, while Martha Gibbs added 12. No one had more than ten for Jamesville.

In the boys' game, Jamesville roared away to an 18-7 lead in the first quarter, and the Belhaven team never recovered. Jamesville ran its lead out to 33-14 at the half, and allowed a third quarter rally, 18-12, that cut the margin to 45-32. Jamesville wound up with a 22-15 final period margin.

Tommy DiNardo led Jamesville with 19 points, while Trent Ange and Keith Modlin each had ten. James Freeman had 17 to lead Belhaven.

Hawks Edge Greene Central

WHEAT SWAMP — North Lenoir center Amos Pearcill scored the only basket in overtime last night as the Hawks nipped Greene Central 39-37 in a low-scoring Eastern Carolina Conference match-up.

North Lenoir held a 35-33 lead going into the game's final quarter, but Greene Central outscored the Hawks 4-2 in that period to send the game into overtime. The Rams put a semi-freeze on the ball, working for good shots in the final period as the Hawks laid back. They missed a shot that would have won it in regulation.

Greene Central had the first shot in overtime, but missed. North Lenoir got the rebound and Johnny Wiggins drove the middle, dishing the ball off to Pearcill underneath for the winning points. The Rams missed several shots in the final minutes.

Wiggins had 13 points and Randy Johnson 10 for North Lenoir. Jerome Artis paced Greene Central with 10.

In the girls' game, the Lady Rams held off a North Lenoir rally in the final quarter for a 41-39 victory.

Greene Central held a 41-35 lead late in the game, but the Lady Hawks scored the final six points to close to within one before time ran out.

Melody Ham paced the winners with 15 points, while Iris Pridgen added 11. Mary Rhodes led all scorers with 17 for North Lenoir.

Pacers Finally Tame Pacific Club On Road

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

It took awhile, but the Indiana Pacers have finally tamed the wild, wild West.

Indiana won on the road against a Pacific Division club for the first time in team history Tuesday night, journeying to Portland and coming away with a 112-104 victory over the Trail Blazers.

The Pacers had lost 25 consecutive road games to Pacific Division teams in their three years in the National Basketball Association.

"Usually when we come in here we're blown out by half-time," said Pacers guard Ricky Sobers, who scored 12 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter. "It's very gratifying to win out here, especially because Portland has one of the best home records (16-5) and because this is the first game on our fourgame swing."

Johnny Davis scored 25 points on 10-for-15 shooting and Mike Bantom added 21 on 9-for-12 shooting as the Pacers posted their fourth victory in the last five games.

Indiana scored six straight points to take lead for good at 89-85 with 8:18 remaining. Sobers' late scoring kept them on top.

The Blazers, who have lost four of their last five games, lost guard Lionel Hollins, who sprained his right ankle early in the game. Backcourtmate Dave Twardzik led Portland with 23 points.

Portland outscored Indiana 23-2 from the free throw line in the first half and 42-20 for the game, but the Pacers had a 4631 edge in field goals.

Lakers 106, Knicks 94

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, wearing No. 50 instead of his usual No. 33 because his mother forgot to return his jersey after doing the laundry, hit 12 of 15 shots and scored 28 points as the Lakers easily beat the Knicks and climbed within onehalf game of Seattle and Phoenix in the Pacific Division. Abdul-Jabbar scored 20 of his points in the second half, when the Lakers moved in front by as many as 20.

Nuggets 121, Bullets 90

Denver scored the first seven points and never trailed, leading Washington by as many as 40 points en route to its third straight victory. David Thompson scored 16 of his game-high 22 points in the first half, when the Nuggets connected on 57 percent of their shots.

Spurs 116, Pistons 114

George Gervin scored 32 points and Larry Kenon had 29 for San Antonio.

Detroit Coach Dick Vitale was called for a technical foul with one second to go when he rushed onto the court after one of his players, Leon Douglas, had fallen down. The free throw by Kenon gave San Antonio a two-point lead.

The Pistons tried an alley-oop play and scored what appeared to be the tying basket at the buzzer, but it was disallowed because of offensive goaltending by Terry Tyler.

Clippers 114, Jazz 107

San Diego led 105-93 with 4:16 remaining but New Orleans scored 10 in a row before a basket by Randy Smith and two free throws by Lloyd Free clinched it for the Clippers.

Warriors 103, Bulls 101

Phil Smith scored 32 points to lead Golden State, but fouled out with 5:44 remaining. Chicago reeled off eight points in a row to pull to within 101-99, but Warriors center Robert Parish responded with a 20-foot jumper for the eventual winning points.

Rockets 126, Kings 110

Rudy Tomjanovich, wearing a plastic mask to protect a broken nose suffered last month, scored a season-high 31 points in 31 minutes as Houston beat Kansas City. He scored 14 points in the first period as the Rockets opened a 12-point lead and never were caught.

Bird Has Poor Night

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When Larry Bird is good, he is very, very good. And when he is bad... well, even then he is far from horrid.

Despite a poor shooting game Tuesday night — 9 for 26 from the floor — the Bird Man of Indiana State still managed to look pretty good with 26 points, 16 rebounds and seven assists.

And those figures added up to an 83-64 college basketball victory for the ninth-ranked Sycamores over North Carolina A&T, their 12th straight of the season.

"Basically, Larry played a good game but he couldn't get the ball in the hole," said Indiana State Coach Bill Hodges. "But we're very happy to get a victory, and as poorly as we played, it's good to get this one out of our system."

Bird's shooting percentage might have been not up to his usual consistency, but his other qualities were apparent to North Carolina A&T Coach Gene Littles, a former pro player.

"Bird just does things that a 6-foot-9 player shouldn't be able to do," he said. "He doesn't have to score to help this team. He's such an excellent passer and strong rebounder. I told our kids we had to take the baseline away from Bird and make him pass the ball and that they should be concerned with Carl Nicks as well as Bird."

Nicks, a guard, averages over 20 points a game for the Sycamores and had 16 Tuesday night.

"Bill Hodges shuffled his lineup effectively," Littles added, "and kept fresh players in the lineup throughout the game. Indiana State is just as good as any team in the country."

In the only other game involving a ranked team Tuesday night, No. 13 Marquette whipped Southwestern Louisiana 84-78.

Indiana State led the entire game and put the contest out of reach with an 11-point burst midway through the first half. Leading 15-8 at the time, Indiana State's Leroy Staley scored a free throw and tip-in, and Nicks, Alex Gilbert, Brad Miley and Steve Reed each scored a basket as the Sycamores widened the gap to 26-8 in the next four minutes.

Bernard Toone scored a career-high 31 points to pace Marquette over over Southwestern Louisiana. Freshman center Dean Marquardt, making his first collegiate start, added 17 points for the Warriors, who won their 11th game in 12 starts.

"I really didn't expect that much out of him," Marquette Coach Hank Raymonds said of Marquardt. "I was just hoping he'd get some confidence, and he did."

Elsewhere, Connecticut beat Rutgers 69-67 on Clay Johnson's field goal with 1:15 left in overtime; Mark Aguirre scored 26 points to pace DePaul over Providence 84-75; St. John's stopped the University of Baltimore 75-52; Ron Perry's 25 points paced Holy Cross over Harvard 90-73; Randy Grietus and Kurt Herbst teamed for 41 points to lead Air Force over Valparaiso 76-55; Keith McDonald scored 17 points to lead Utah State past Fresno State 56-49 and Furman beat Tennessee-Chattanooga 82-70 behind Al Daniel's 26 points.

No Qualifier For Hope Tournament

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The new faces of 1979 — those hopeful youngsters who recently gained their playing rights — are among the missing in the Bob Hope Desert Classic, the event that kicked off the PGA Tour season today. They had no chance to play.

None. The only way they could have made it into the tournament field of 128 pros was through the qualifying round. And, for the first time in many years, there was no qualifying round.

The entire field was filled with exempt players, those who don't have to qualify. In fact, some players normally eligible for a spot in the field — those who made the cut in the last official event of 1978 — were shut out.

The problems were manifold: the relatively small field; the large number of older players who exercised their options to appear in the prestigious affair; the growing prize money, $275,000 compared with $160,000 three years ago, and the fact that this is the opening event of the season.

Probably the strongest field in the 20-year history of the Hope is on hand for the marathon five-day, 90-hole event that is played over four desert courses.

Heading the list is Jack Nicklaus, making one of his rare appearances in this affair that has each of the pros playing one round on each course, each day with a different set of amateur partners.

Nicklaus, still considered the world's premier performer, scored his 15th major professional tournament triumph last year in the British Open, also won the Australian Open for the sixth time and took three American events in an abbreviated schedule. He'll play even less this year, about 12 tournaments.

Chargerettes Drop First in OT

LITTLEFIELD — C.B. Aycock rallied in the final period to take a 67-60 victory over the Ayden-Grifton boys last night, and the Falconettes handed the A-G girls their first league loss, 50-48, in a double overtime game.

Aycock's junior varsity finished off the sweep, taking a 72-41 decision. Ayden-Grifton's girls managed to stay in the lead in the conference race, but fell to 7-1 in conference play and 11-2 overall with the loss. Aycock climbed to 4-3 in the Eastern Carolina Conference and 4-6 overall.

Ayden-Grifton started out with the lead, moving to a 14-10 margin in the first period, but Aycock came back to grab off a 23-22 margin at the half. Aycock increased its margin to 33-26 during the third period, but the Chargers rallied in the final period.

Marie Lewis hit with 20 seconds left to tie it at 46-46, and after Aycock missed, the Chargers had a final shot but it too missed.

In the first overtime, both teams hit two points, with Mary Rowe hitting two free throws with ten seconds left to knot it once more, 48-48.

Then, in the final overtime, the Chargers couldn't find the range. Deborah Proctor finally hit for Aycock with 20 seconds to go, and a last shot by A-G missed the mark.

Proctor and Renee Hales led Aycock with 17 each, while Marie Lewis led Ayden-Grifton with 14, with Shonda Brock and Mary Rowe each having ten.

In the boys' game, Ayden-Grifton slipped out into a 19-17 lead in the first period, and clung to that margin in the second quarter. The Chargers led at the half, 33-31.

A-G managed to increase its lead to four at 51-47 going into the final quarter, but Aycock put on a rally that moved ahead midway through the period, and the Chargers found a lid on the basket after that.

Aycock outlit the Chargers, 20-9, in the final quarter to pull off their winning rally.

Barry Uzzell led the Falcons with 19, while Jeff Best hit 18 and James Whitley had 14. Sheldon McCarter led Ayden-Grifton with 14, while Henry Ormond had 14, Mike Hardy had 12 and Donnie Jackson had 10.

The A-G boys are now 2-6 in the league and 2-11 overall, while Aycock is 3-4 and 8-4.

Ayden-Grifton travels to West

Craven on Saturday.

Wilmington eased out into a 12-10 lead in the first period of the varsity game, but Greenville came back to edge ahead at the half, 30-28.

It stayed close through the third period, with the Knights holding on for a 45-44 lead as the final quarter opened. In that, GCA outlived Wilmington, 23-19, to take the win.

Lost Her Bright Future To Election

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Catherine James wonders if she has a great future behind her.

The 22-year-old from Iowa City, Iowa, took her degree in government from Radcliffe last June and almost immediately landed a $15,000 job with Democratic Sen. Dick Clark, writing briefing papers and news releases.

Moreover, Clark promised her a raise and promotion to legislative assistant — caseworker — after he won the election.

Except he didn't win. And now Catherine James is but one of about 1,300 persons who left the congressional payroll last Tuesday for an elite unemployment line.

For them, the promise of politics has turned to quicksand. Their fortunes, by definition, are as fickle as those of the boss. And those who served liberal Democrats, especially, find themselves mired in the loss column while Republicans count their Capitol gains.

"I've contacted everyone I know who works on the Hill," says Ms. James. "Out of 50 possibilities, I've had about four-and-a-half bites, and only one in the Senate." And, as yet, nothing definite.

Congressional job hunting after an election is never easy, and this year's record turnover of 78 seats in the House and near-record 20 in the Senate have made it even more brutally competitive than usual. Some of the new senators have had thousands of applicants for the 25 or so positions they have to offer.

Typically, a new senator will hire one or two top hands with previous Hill experience, regardless of their party or ideological affiliation. "The very good professionals are always in great demand," said one key Senate administrator with access to the entire payroll record. "I've seen several cases of Republicans hiring Democrats, liberals hiring conservatives and vice versa because they realize they've got to have someone who knows the agencies and the other contacts necessary to run a congressional office."

But that phenomenon extends only so far. The new officeholder usually brings along most of the staff from his or her campaign team. And in any case, it doesn't look good to the folks at home if the payroll is full of names from out of state, regardless of expertise.

One new senator, Democrat David Boren of Oklahoma, has already completed the hiring of a staff of 27 while most others have filled at least three-fourths of their payroll. Boren probably leads the pack in drawing upon experienced Hill workers, having retained the receptionist of his Republican predecessor while drawing two key aides from other outgoing congressmen. In addition, Boren brought back Charles Ward, for years the top staffer for former House Speaker Carl Albert, from a job in private industry to run the office.

But some Senate newcomers offer no relief whatever to the plight of employees of defeated or retiring members. Republican Sen. William L. Armstrong of Colorado, while able to double his staff size since moving up from the House, hasn't taken a single person from another Hill office. The reason, simply, is that he knows most of the congressional ropes already.

Though the new Congress won't convene until Jan. 15, last Tuesday was moving day for all outgoing members and their staffs. Halls and offices were littered with packing crates as those leaving obliged their successors with walls finally made bare and, on the second day of the New Year, another chorus of Auld Lang Syne. More than one empty champagne bottle was left behind.

Clark, the liberal defeated by conservative Republican Roger Jepsen in Iowa, shares the numbness felt by his staff.

We built up a relationship and loyalty...and it's hard for them and me to turn it all loose," he said.

With Ms. James and six others from his office still looking for a new job somewhere on the Hill, Clark noted that "at least four of these Senate offices represent a total switch from liberal to conservative. It's going to be difficult for anyone with an ideological concern."

Staffers for outgoing Republican liberals may have it even tougher. David Blee, the press secretary to defeated Rep. Newton Steers, R-Md., says "The conservatives look at us as not one of them, and the Democrats look at us as dyed-in-the-wool Republicans."

It was another Steers aide, William Grigg, who placed a newspaper ad late last November, offering the entire staff as a package for $288,000. But there were no takers.

Not surprisingly, the District of Columbia unemployment office has established a special unit to handle unemployment claims from congressional workers, most of whom will qualify next week for benefits of up to $172 weekly. Virtually the entire staff of Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., planned to apply en masse.

Budapest Clubs Boom Despite Stripper Ban

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The feathers still fly in Budapest's nightclubs, where strippers are banned but showgirls, acrobats and gypsy singers are packing them in.

"Rubbish," says one young Budapestian of the offerings on the underground revolving stage at Maxim, in the Moulin Rouge's marble and gilt pleasure palace and at other night-spots.

But businessmen, tourists and government guests seem happy enough to fill the tables and while away two-hour floor shows, ogling the unfeathered charms of the Maxim Ballet or the Moulin Sextet.

Paprika Duo, goes back to the prewar nightlife years.

Missing from the nightclub street people still call "Broadway," however, is the fabled Arizona, whose proprietress, Miss Arizona, was rumored to have been involved in spying during World War II.

Some Budapestians contend that the war years, when German officers filled the tables and intrigue abounded, were the best the club ever had.

Some shows these days are little more than a musical group. Bigger clubs offer wide-ranging variety shows of varying quality.

Striptease survived for some two decades under postwar Communism, but was finally banned in the late 1960s as an unsuitable form of entertainment, residents say.

Neighboring Yugoslavia openly advertises striptease shows in Belgrade, and the profession is also practiced in Warsaw, Poland.

At Maxim, however, the Maxim Girls manage to make do with an absolute minimum of sequins and hardly enough feathers to upholster the smallest of chickens.

On one recent night, nearly all front-row tables were filled by Japanese businessmen, targets of most of the winks and more spectacular wriggles of Miss Albena, a statuesque, bikini-clad, East German dancercontortionist.

There are some hints that the Japanese, whose business is valued by the Hungarians, figure more than coincidentally in the thinking of Pannonia, the state enterprise that runs both Maxim and the Moulin Rouge.

A Dutch songstress takes the stage at Maxim with a patter in Hungarian, English and German. But her longest opening remarks are delivered in Japanese.

Her act includes a polished Barbra Streisand imitation and an Elvis Presley medley. The evening's entertainment includes impeccably skilled juggling and acrobatics with the Maxim Girls' can-cans, Russian dances and decorative professionals.

Though less expensive than their Western counterparts, Budapest's ranking night spots are not for the forint-pincher. At Maxim, the show can only be seen from tables. The bar is located around a strategic corner.

SIX-PERSON BED
 CHICAGO (UPI) — Modern king and queen size mattresses are puny compared with bedding from the Middle Ages. A Chicago mattress manufacturer says the biggest bed on record was the 12-foot square Great Bed of Ware, which could hold six persons at once. Queen-size beds measure only 60x80 inches, and king-size 76x80 inches.

Prize Wines Achieved In Single Year

By TOM MADDEN
 JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — In early 1977, Sam Rushing of Merigold had 300 acres of land and a dream of becoming Mississippi's first vintner. Today, his wines are award winners.

Rushing, 26, owns the only winery in Mississippi, and he is the first person in the state to legally produce wine since Prohibition. He recently came away with two awards in competition with eastern and midcontinent grape growers in Lancaster, Pa.

"We didn't have a vineyard, a winery — just an idea, a dream that we could do it," Rushing said in a telephone interview from his home. "All we had was a banker who believed in us."

Rushing's "Sweet Wine," made from imported grapes because his own plantings have not yet matured, was judged best of category in the "Wineries Unlimited" competition in November and his "Rushing Red" won a bronze medal in the American red division. Some 30 states and several Canadian wineries were represented in the meeting, where 379 wines were judged. It was the first time he had ever enter his wines in competition.

He said judges told him it was the first time a muscadine wine had won a medal in the competition.

The Mississippi State University graduate said he got into the wine-making business "sort of" by accident. He had returned to the Bolivar County town intent on becoming a soybean and cotton farmer.

"I got a virus and was laid up in bed for a few days and started doing some figuring," Rushing said. "I realized I couldn't make a decent living with 300 acres."

"I went to talk with a professor about growing fruit and in passing he mentioned the state's native wine law. I just took it from there."

"The law gives wineries in the state a tax break, and allows us to sell directly to restaurants and package stores without going through the state Alcohol Beverage Control division. This way we can compete with the large wineries."

After reading "hundreds" of pounds of literature on wine making and writing about 20 letters a night to anyone who could tell him about the art, Rushing went to his banker in early 1977 for financing on the project.

"People thought I was crazy, but the banker believed in us," Rushing said.

Rushing had to have his equipment for the winery shipped from Italy and Switzerland and he had to buy his first grapes from North Carolina.

"It takes about three to five years for a vineyard to mature. So, at first we'll have to import them until we can get our own vineyard going," Rushing said. "We've planted about 20 acres of grapes and I have room for about 10 acres more."

Rushing said he has completed work on his crushing room, a fermentation room, a bottling room in his winery, which sits on a sloping hill next to the Sunflower River.

"I feel good about it. For about a year the only checks I saw had my signature at the bottom, now I'm seeing my name at the top for a change," he laughed.

His business is still a small operation.

"My wife does the marketing and promotion and I mainly make the wine," he said. "This is the only way we can go."

Rushing said he employed about 10 parttime workers during the height of his first season and will probably do the same with this year's crush.

"We just hope to make a good wine that people won't be ashamed to set on their tables. Maybe next year we can take the gold," he said.

Divorce In Germany Has A Pension

By ALISON SMALE
 BONN, West Germany (UPI) — A 57-year-old Bonn bureaucrat decided to divorce his wife of 30 years.

Even before he had paid lawyers' fees, divided the household possessions or thought about alimony, the decision had cost him $40,000, an impossibly high sum even on a generous civil service salary.

The man had to pay. West German divorce law requires all possessions, pensions and investments acquired during marriage be shared equally upon divorce. The $40,000 was a lump sum premium to finance a pension for his wife.

The reformed divorce law took effect in July 1977. The financial rules are the most hotly disputed among its many provisions that have aroused controversy. The law aims to force the "stronger" partner to support the "weaker," usually the wife.

The new measures value woman's work in the home as high as man's work at the office or factory. When a marriage ends in divorce, the housewife gets a pension for the work she did in the home — and the husband must finance it.

Feminists say this gives more meaning to the equal rights clause in the West German constitution that states simply, "Men and women are equal."

Generally, the ruling is less than popular. Husbands pine for pre-reform days when wives who fled house and hearth because they were being mistreated lost the right to alimony because the divorce law made them the guilty party.

One magazine recently said Germans no longer had the "courage" to marry. "Gone are the dreams of wedding bells," it said. "Germans are running to the notary instead." There they sign contracts exempting them from the terms of the divorce law if the marriage doesn't work out.

Husbands see themselves as victimized and impoverished by a reform politicians intended to be liberalizing. Some have been forced to sell businesses to pay settlements. One divorce court judge says the average man now can barely afford to found a new family unless his second wife has a job.

"In short, the men are enraged," said Gisela Becker, a Bonn divorce court judge.

Some men are so angry they try to withhold details of their pension and other financial arrangements. Judges have no direct power to force husbands to reveal their assets. But under the new law, neither can they pronounce divorce final until all money matters are settled.

Judges and lawyers are angry, too. The Hamburg Lawyers' Association estimates the new law has doubled the workload of divorce judges. This delays divorce. In West Berlin, courts had granted only 2,000 divorces by late 1978, compared with 9,000 in the same period under the old law.

But not everybody is upset. Federal Justice Ministry divorce specialist Christof Boehmer calls the new law "very practical." There are some indications he is right.

Boehmer points to provisions often forgotten in the public furor over high costs and delays. He says around one-third of West German marriages end in divorce, after an average of seven years. Most divorced wives are in their 20s or 30s, still young enough to train for a job. The ex-husband, the "stronger" partner, must support her while she learns.

Once trained, the wife can support herself and maybe even the children in her care. She is no longer the "weaker" partner. The ex-husband is not ruined by alimony.

These provisions led one Bonn area lawyer to take a more optimistic view.

"The spirit of the new law is that each partner looks after him — or herself," says Olof Toennies.

Judge Becker, herself a working wife and mother, agrees. She sees the law as a chance for women to build careers.

That is not so easy. Thirty-nine percent of West German women are employed. Boehmer believes more could get jobs if the state built more kindergartens and created more part-time jobs, making it easier for single women with children to go out to work.

"But the new law is a beginning," says Boehmer. Judge Becker foresees other effects.

"The law will change things," she predicts. "Men won't want to marry a little housewife any more. They'll marry women who already work."

Views 800 Million Potential Customers In China

By KATHLEEN BURNS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — They won't be dancing in the dark or discothequeing to the strobe lights when Interconti-mental Hotel Corp. opens 5,000 new hotel rooms in China during the next few years.

But all the other amenities that appeal to travelers will be there, promises John McComber, vice president of marketing for IHC, which signed an agreement with the Chinese in November to help develop tourism in China.

He said officials there took a dim view of nightlife in their hotels, but they plan to provide other Western attractions such as swimming pools, bars, saunas, tennis courts and Turkish baths.

Since World War II, the Red Curtain has veiled one of the world's largest countries (3.7 million square miles), hiding almost one-fourth of mankind from public view.

But in 1977 the sleeping giant made a bid to withdraw from its isolation and to remove the international trade and tourism barriers. The Communists sought out the capitalists and their Western technology.

Leading this second wave of Yankee traders is McComber, a native New Yorker and globe trotter who has spent 28 years with IHC and its parent corporation, Pan American World Airways.

No stranger to socialist countries, McComber notes that his firm has six hotels behind the Iron Curtain, with another under construction in Belgrade. As the world's largest international hotel chain, it operates 81 hotels in 48 countries, with 10 under construction.

McComber isn't a politician but a pragmatic businessman who has been eagerly eyeing

China for the past decade.

"There are 800 million potential customers," he said modestly. "Now it's true all of them won't be able to afford this kind of hotel but even that is huge when we're talking about 5,000 rooms. It's just scratching the surface for a huge country like that."

The same pioneering spirit took McComber to Brazil five years ago to build a hotel near the jungle.

There was nothing there but a beautiful beach and lofty mountains in the distance, he said. IHC and another company built two hotels "standing there stark and alone."

Today there are 15 high rise buildings in the same area, mostly condominiums selling for $150,000 to $200,000 per unit, he said.

"When people get going with building, there is nothing you can do to stop them," the hotel executive said.

He foresees the same boom for China, predicting some "shocking changes" in the Chinese landscape within the next 25 years.

With a twinkle, he notes that some "experts" tend to minimize Chinese acumen for construction because of their supposedly dated technology.

But the Great Wall, built from 221 B.C. to 207 B.C., still snakes through 1,500 miles of rugged terrain. At some points, it is 25 feet high and wide. The Chinese also introduced gunpowder and printing to the world and built an extensive network of roads and canals more than 700 years ago.

To gain technical know-how, there were 18 trade missions last year between the U.S. and the People's Republic of China. The latest delegation, in December, included representatives of 28 American construction equipment firms who met with 200 Chinese officials.

McComber is quick to add that China is not a developing country, but an emerging one. It represents the oldest continuous civilization on earth, with a history dating back to 2000 B.C.

Such a culture will be incorporated into the planning of the five IHC hotels to be designed by Henry Liu, a Chinese-American architect who is a Harvard graduate and a professor at Virginia Polytechnical Institute.

"We like to portray the local atmosphere, the local ambience, the local character," McComber said. "When you've seen one Intercontinental Hotel, you haven't seen them all."

Pleading the cause of fellow businessmen, McComber chided the U.S. government for not following China's lead and boosting its own interest in tourism.

One immediate effect, he said, would be to reduce the $2.13 billion trade deficit.

In England, tourism is the No. 2 industry, with a $22 million government budget, compared to $9 million for the United States. British visitors to the U.S. were up 50 percent for the month of May alone.

"This country was founded by businessmen ... going after resources and selling their know-how to the world," McComber said. "We are competing with everybody. The French are tough. The Germans and Japanese are jockeying their products like crazy."

"The government of Japan is backing its businessmen 100 percent because they know they'll create jobs and pay taxes. I can't think of any government, including the socialist governments, that doesn't back men going out and selling products, rather than restricting them" as the U.S. does, McComber said.

"Our government has no idea how to market itself as a tourist destination. It doesn't understand that this is a competitive thing."

McComber said 40 percent of the customers surveyed recently in a fashionable Fifth Avenue department store in New York were from overseas.

Individual Industries Doing Well

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

The consensus of economists is that tight money and restricted government spending will produce a period of either no economic growth or even recession this year. Individual industries, however, show no signs of an impending slowdown as their sales and incoming orders continue to rise. A recent Business Week article surveyed the outlook for some of our basic industries.

The automobile industry faces high levels of consumer debt, resistance to higher prices, and higher gasoline prices in 1979. Economists are again predicting a 10 percent decline in unit volume. On the positive side, industry cites high employment, two-income families, and an attitude of buying before prices move any higher.

Chemical companies expect a somewhat slower year in 1979. Despite the fact that their products are sold to industries which would be hurt by a slowdown, they expect sales and profits to be higher for the year. Rising demand, accompanied by higher prices, is easing some recent overcapacity problems. Inventories are low and exports are strong. Major problems to be faced include the soaring cost of raw materials and the costs of environmental and health regulations.

The computer industry is often mentioned as a group which could outperform the market in the next year. Record backlogs are the result of greater performance at lower prices. Food processors should experience a good year, even with rising commodity prices, because of cost-cutting efforts and the defensive nature of the business. Competition is expected to increase as a result of mergers between some of the giants of the industry and smaller food related companies.

The machinery industry expects to have a very strong 1979. Backlogs stretch into mid-year, and the automobile industry's retooling will boost second half results. Capacity utilization is high, indicating the need for more capital spending.

Voluntarily Pay Back Millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Stockholders of American Home Products Corp., responding to urgent pleas from Manufacturers Hanover bank, have voluntarily returned 98 percent of the $7.8 million the bank computer erroneously paid in dividends.

The bank began sending out letters and Mailgrams last year after it discovered its computer had sent inaccurate checks to 78,000 stockholders. A bank spokesman, who did not want to be identified, said all but $117,000 has been returned. He said the major institutional holders of the stock quickly returned the overpayment, but smaller stockholders have been slower.

Fourth Sunday Service Planned

There will be a special 12-tribe service at St. Paul F. W. B. Church the fourth Sunday in January beginning at 7 p.m.

Ministers presiding on the program include the Rev. Robert Phillips, the Rev. Gorham, the Rev. Willie Joyner, the Rev. Hill from Wilson, the Rev. James Ward, the Rev. Tyrone Turnage, the Rev. F. C. Mitchell, Eldress JoAnna Garris, the Rev. Dennis Wooten, Eldress Phillips, Eldress Luther Mells and the Rev. W. J. Best. The public is invited to attend.

UPHOLSTERY TREND
MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Printed upholstery fabrics for spring remain a strong trend even in velvets, says Mary Lou Rooney, a consumer education specialist with 3M company.

Nancy Will Be The Only Lady In The U.S. Senate

EDITOR'S NOTE — The only woman senator wants to be rated on how she performs, not on her father. But she does use her maiden name, and Nancy Landon Kassebaum's feisty independence often seems a throwback to feisty old Alf Landon.

By PAUL STEVENS
Associated Press Writer
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — When Congress reconvenes Jan. 15, Nancy Landon Kassebaum will be the only woman in the Senate.

Hardly a feminist, however, she disavows that label and failed to win endorsement from the Kansas Women's Political Caucus.

She's the daughter of Alf Landon, 91-year old patriarch of the Republican Party and its presidential nominee in 1936. But she seldom took his freely offered advice during her campaign.

She has sudden political status, but insists that she still be home tending to domestic chores if she and her husband hadn't separated. The woman in history she admires most is Abigail Adams, wife of the second president, and a strong voice decorously behind the scenes.

Some Kansans still believe her qualifications as the state's junior senator run no deeper than the Landon name and the fact she's a woman. Others think there was much more to her victory over a seasoned politician.

Behind the attractive face, the ready smile and slender 5-foot-2 frame, is a candor unusual in political combat, a mellowness that lets her take things as they come, and a good deal of determination. One of Mrs. Kassebaum's closest friends, Ginger Buck, likens her to "velvet-covered steel."

Her father worried at first if Nancy had the toughness to withstand a long campaign. "It may be easier in some ways than when I was in the game, but it's still a terrible physical exertion," he says.

Landon gets angry when people say he called in political debts to help his daughter. "I never called a man or a woman in Kansas about Nancy's campaign who had not first publicly or privately announced their support for her," he says.

Nancy Jo Landon was born on July 29, 1932 — a few days before her father faced a primary for the Republican nomination for governor.

Alf won the GOP presidential nomination in 1936 and Nancy became something of a national celebrity. She, her brother Jack and sister Peggy often were featured in the Landon For President Committee's weekly bulletin called "Landon Marches On."

"I remember helping in the campaigns as a little girl, tacking up posters on telephone lines," Mrs. Kassebaum says, relaxing in an overstuffed chair at her home on a 50-acre tract west of Wichita. At her feet was an old wooden rocking horse she played with as a child.

"I can remember eavesdropping on a lot of political conversations. I really loved to listen to a discussion of strategy. It was listening from behind the curtain, or sitting around unobtrusively."

After her father was soundly defeated by Franklin D. Roosevelt, he kept active in party affairs and built his broadcast and oil interests. Eventually, Nancy headed for the University of Kansas.

She met Phil Kassebaum in college and they were married while he attended law school at the University of Michigan. Mrs. Kassebaum attained a master's degree there in diplomatic history.

Phil went into law practice in Wichita. They had four children in six years and Nancy's course seemed set as wife and mother. Mrs. Kassebaum held a school board office and worked in political campaigns. When she and Phil separated in 1975, she packed up her belongings and three of the children — John the oldest had started college — and went to Washington to work for Sen. James Pearson.

The reasons for the separation remain private and so are Mrs. Kassebaum's thoughts on whether she and Phil will get back together.

Mrs. Kassebaum says she had no thought of running for office when she went to work for Pearson. "But I think a seed was there and it was an opportunity to see the mechanics of the Senate. I came home after 10 months with a certain degree of frustration with the operation. It seems enormously slow and you wonder again if it can't be changed and if it can't work more efficiently."

In October 1977, Pearson announced his retirement. Mrs. Kassebaum's friends had urged her to run for the House. When the Senate vacancy opened up, she drew up a list of reasons why not to seek it. "It was a great idea one day and a terrible one the next," she says. "At times I felt like a cross between Winnie the Pooh and Don Quixote."

Her strongest backers were her mother and mother-in-law. Her father was against it.

Leigh Kimball got a call from Mrs. Kassebaum the night before she was to announce her candidacy. "She asked if I wanted to be her campaign manager, and I said I would go along with her but that I'd have to wait and see." The 25-year-old Kimball says. "She replied that, 'I know, you're waiting to see if I'll fall on my face!'"

In a primary field of nine, the Landon name was an advantage.

In the general election, the name was less important. To younger Kansans, Alf Landon is an obscure part of history and there were some who believed the name hurt her with Alf's old political enemies.

As a candidate, she wasn't afraid to approach issues head on. Her stand against parity may have hurt her with farmers, but their state leader, Jim Kramer, says, "I think I admired her more for taking that stand than if she had told us what we came to hear."

Mrs. Kassebaum told teachers she opposed creation of a separate federal department of education. Before the state Women's Political Caucus, she opposed extension of the ratification deadline for the Equal Rights Amendment. Her opponent, Dr. William Roy got the group's endorsement.

And she supported the Panama Canal treaties, unpopular in Kansas.

She says she'll serve no more than two terms because otherwise she might lose perspective and get out of touch with her constituents. Might she ever consider running for president, like her father? She knows the question will be asked. The answer is no.

Does she expect advice from Dad?

"He's not bashful about expressing what's on his mind. 'I'll never need to ask,'" Alf Landon says. "She'll never get any suggestions from me and no two human beings on the face of the earth agree on everything, especially one as well qualified as she is."

What sums up Nancy Kassebaum's equitable philosophy best, perhaps, is her comment on winning the Senate seat.

"I really wasn't prepared for winning. Neither did I have any particular thought of losing. Either way, life would have gone on. That's not anything profound, but that's how it is."

Month For Inventors

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — January is the month to remember such great inventors as Thomas Paine, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas A. Edison and William Sellers.

Few people think of Paine, the fiery writer, as an inventor, but he had an excellent mechanical mind. According to IPO, Inc., a non-profit group dedicated to preserving the patent system as an incentive to innovation and creativity, Paine invented the first iron bridge. He also patented a machine for planing boards, a crane and an improved carriage wheel.

Benjamin Franklin invented bifocal glasses, the lightning rod and the forerunner of what came to be known as the "Franklin Stove."

On January 27, 1880, Thomas A. Edison received a patent for the incandescent electric light.

William Sellers is responsible for the adoption of the standardized screw thread. He first proposed the idea in 1864 and it was adopted four years later by the government. Sellers later became president of the prestigious Franklin Institute and was awarded the French Legion of Honor.

Darker Breads Are Costlier

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whole wheat bread usually costs more than white because it is made in smaller quantities, is harder to make and often stales faster, says Elaine Rose of Cornell University's consumer education office.

Mrs. Rose says white bread often sells for half the price of darker breads because consumers switch to less expensive brands when the price is right. The white bread market is very competitive.

While whole wheat bread contains all parts of the wheat and various nutrients, enriched white bread is by no means a junk food, she says. It supplies several important nutrients and can help stretch food dollars.

At the blackjack table, insurance only offers even money at best. At the bridge table, insuring the contract at the cost of an overtrick is a much better proposition.

South's hand was just worth an opening bid, especially since his suit was spades. When North reversed at his second turn, South jumped straight to four spades—the fit in diamonds had improved the trick-taking ability of his hand and he wanted to alert partner that his spades were self-sufficient.

West led his fourth-best heart, and East rose with the ace, felling declarer's king. The heart return was ruffed, then declarer paused to take stock. He had nine tricks in top cards. If clubs broke 3-3, there would be eleven tricks. The problem was that the clubs did not rate to break evenly.

If the jack of clubs did not drop in three rounds, declarer would then have to rely on losing only two diamond tricks. That could be accomplished if West held the ace of diamonds, or if East held a doubleton ace, in which case declarer would have to guess the position—not an attractive proposition.

Suddenly declarer realized he could manipulate the club suit in such a way as to virtually guarantee the contract. He drew trumps in three rounds and then led the nine of clubs. West followed with a low club and declarer ducked in dummy!

When the nine of clubs held, the rest of the hand was simple. He led a club to the ace, repeating the finesse would have been dangerous, since East might have held off on the first club and emerged with eleven tricks when the jack of clubs fell on the fourth round of the suit.

Notice that the contract was insured even if the club finesse lost. There would now be four club winners in dummy to take care of three of declarer's diamonds, and the table's king of diamond would be impervious to attack.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Viewers tuning to NBC for the Wednesday Night Movie may be taken aback when they see Coneheads from space and a fat, ranting Samurai. Not to worry, though, it's just "Saturday Night Live" testing the lucrative waters of prime time.

NBC, not thrilled with third place in the ratings wars, is letting the Saturday Night crazies out to play on a Wednesday evening in the hope that the outrageous show's milder moments might win prime time audiences accustomed to tamer stuff.

"The Best of Saturday Night Live, Part I" is a collection of clips from the show that has made late Saturday night television viewing a cult ritual. For 3½ seasons, "Saturday Night Live's" Not Ready for Prime Time Players have proven themselves the most original and inspired comedians on network television, winning a faithful audience that grows each week.

They've done it with a mixture of irreverence and a keen sense of absurdity; John Belushi, Dan Aykroyd and the other players spare no one in their sometimes reckless pursuit of laughs, precariously straddling that fine line between good taste and bad taste, often landing on the wrong side.

The show is funny but it can also be offensive, and that's why it's tucked safely out of prime time on a Saturday night, away from the vigilant stare of the family-hour-conscious network censor. Bits about Jim Jones or Karen Quinlan are tasteless jokes late on a Saturday night, but in prime time they could cause outrage and send sponsors in search of other investments.

Naming tonight's collection "Part I" implies a "Part II" in the future, which suggests NBC has, understandably, been tantalized by the notion of somehow transferring the success of "Saturday Night Live" to prime time.

It's an interesting conflict. "I think NBC would love to have it in prime time," says Herb Sargent, "Saturday Night" creative consultant and architect of tonight's show. "But there's a standards problem. You can do more late at night, and that includes (Johnny) Carson, whoever."

There is the alternative of watering down the product, but "Saturday Night Live" might not work with the restraints of prime time.

"The 'Saturday Night' group wouldn't have it," says Sargent. "That's what makes us resist it (a move to prime time). We'd be backing up. Listen, there may be ways to do it that would be terrific, but that's just our first reaction to it: You can't do as much as you want to." NBC's dilemma is one of commercial television's little ironies — the Not Ready For Prime Time Players are ready, indeed; it's just that prime time may not be ready for them.

Sorority Held Chapter Meet

The Alpha Nu chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, professional sorority for women educators, met Thursday at the Ramada Inn, with Evelyn Finch, president, in charge.

A motion was made and passed for the Scholarship Committee to draft an application form to accompany the already established criteria for Alpha Nu scholarship applicants.

A March deadline was proposed for applicants to submit the scholarship requirements so that the committee can have time to process the applications and make its selections.

Two scholarships are awarded annually to interested, qualified Pitt County seniors.

The Alpha Delta Kappa Executive Board and Presidents' Council will meet in Greenville Feb. 9 and 10 at the Greenville Holiday Inn.

The Greenville Iota Chapter and the Alpha Nu Chapter will serve as co-hostesses for the meetings.

Members from the western part of the state will arrive Friday, with a social hour to be held Friday, 8 p.m. The Executive board meeting will follow at 9 p.m.

The Holiday of the Holiday Inn will house the Saturday morning coffee hour, 9-9:45 a.m., co-hosted by Alpha Iota and Alpha Nu Chapters. The General Session will begin at 10 a.m., preceded by group singing from 9:45-10 a.m.

All chapters should be represented at the meetings, and all interested sorority members are invited. The deadline for registration, costing $6.25, is Jan. 22. All registration forms should be mailed to Alpha Nu's Shirley Moore.

Committees were appointed by President Finch to help with the coffee hour and registration. All members were asked to prepare some food item for the coffee hour.

State President Ann Byrd is a resident of Greenville and a member of one of the hostess chapters, Alpha Nu.

It was noted that the December meeting, the annual Christmas Auction, was highly successful. The auction aids the club in raising funds by invitation of guests and the sale of handmade articles.

The next meeting for the Alpha Nu Chapter will be held Feb. 1.
