Carter Plea Is Rejected By Khomaini

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The new Iranian government sent an envoy today to seek peace with Ayatollah Khomaini, its most dangerous enemy, but aides to the Moslem holy man said he would not negotiate with the emissary and he rejects President Carter's call to give the new government a chance.

Clashes between demonstrators and soldiers loyal to Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi continued for a second day today, and six to 20 persons were reported killed. Workers and farmers reportedly were trying to seize property of the royal family in the provinces.

Sources here said Jalal Tehrani, head of the Regency Council standing in for the shah during his forced vacation abroad, was dispatched to meet on Friday in Paris with Khomaini. The 78-year-old Shiite patriarch lives in exile outside Paris and heads the opposition to the shah and the government he left behind him.

In France the ayatollah's top aide, Ibrahim Yazdi, said Khomaini would not receive Tehrani "unless he has some other thing on his mind" than a discussion of a reconciliation with the new government of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar. Yazdi said such talks were "out of the question."

Military sources said troops opened fire on anti-shah demonstrators in Dezful, 60 miles north of the oil city of Ahwaz. They reported six persons killed and more than a dozen wounded, but other sources reported 20 killed.

Varied As To Where You Live

Uneven N.C. Inflation Impact

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — How much more North Carolina consumers paid for food, medical care and home ownership and other items last year varied depending on what part of the state they lived in, according to a survey released Wednesday.

The survey released by the state Division of Budget and Management showed fuel and utility costs rose more steeply in the eastern part of the state. But that section saw more moderate increases in food, medical care and home ownership, according to the survey.

The survey also found that since 1974, inflation accounted for cost increases ranging from 33 percent to 69 percent in the major categories.

The division compared prices for 132 items in October 1977 and October 1978. The survey showed:

—Home ownership costs averaged a 10.7 percent increase in the state. The costs jumped 9.5 percent in the East, 11.4 percent in the Piedmont and 9.8 percent in the West.

—Food costs rose 10.2 percent in the state. The average in the East was 9 percent, in the Piedmont 10.8 percent and in the West, 10 percent.

—The price of a restaurant meal jumped 10.3 percent in North Carolina. The increase was 8.3 percent in the East, 10.7 percent in the Piedmont and 13.2 percent in the West.

—The cost of medical care increased by 9.5 percent around the state. The rise in the East was 8.5 percent, in the Piedmont 9.3 percent and in the West 13.2 percent.

—A 6.6 percent increase in the cost of fuel and utilities was recorded around the state. In the East the figure was 9.4 percent, compared to 5.3 percent in the Piedmont and 5.8 percent in the mountains.

In addition, public transportation costs showed an average 2.4 percent increase, and motel and hotel rates rose 12.2 percent in the state. The division reported on inflation in the state since 1974, concluding that fuel and utilities costs rose 69 percent, medical care 57.5 percent, restaurant meals 51 percent, public transportation 39 percent, home ownership 34.4 percent, food 33 percent and motels and hotels 31.5 percent.

Mary Lou Stewart of the budget division said the regional price difference may be due to the more rural nature of the East. She said prices don't increase as fast in rural areas.

The areas surveyed included major cities across the state as well as rural areas and counties.

Tax Credit To Offset Federal Jobcuts

$29 Billion Deficit In Carter's Budget

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposed "austere" budget for 1980 would eliminate 158,000 public jobs and cut the government's giant CETA employment and training program by $700 million.

The budget also would eliminate 250,000 federally subsidized summer jobs for underprivileged young people.

The Associated Press has learned.

However, administration sources said proposed cuts in the federal jobs program would be offset by a new tax credit designed to encourage private business to hire poor, young and chronically unemployed adults.

The AP obtained details of the budget Wednesday as Carter declared that he has "more than met" his goal of holding the 1980 budget deficit below $30 billion, while still increasing spending for defense and providing an additional $4.5 billion for the poor.

It was learned that the budget Carter will send Congress Monday for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1 will total $532 billion with a deficit of $29 billion.

Spending in the 1979 budget year is estimated at $493 billion, with a projected deficit of $40 billion.

"The budget commitment will be to control inflation," Carter said Wednesday at a news conference. "It will be very austere, stringent, tough fiscal policy, but fair to the American people and oriented to help those who are most disadvantaged to have a better quality of life."

"We have not neglected the needs of disadvantaged Americans, poor Americans or those who are unemployed," said Carter. To prove his point, he said total allocation of funds for the poor will be increased by $4.5 billion, but he did not say how the money would be spent or whether the increase is sufficient to offset inflation.

On other subjects at his news conference, Carter:

—Said he is confident the people of Iran can restore stability to their nation and he supports the new administration of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar.

Carter said he does not know how long the Shah of Iran would be away from the country, and warned that an extended interruption in Iranian oil production "would create increasingly scarce supplies on the world market."

—Defended his firing of former Rep. Bella Abzug as coleader of his women's advisory committee, saying he acted because the panel was poorly run, not because of the committee's criticism of his policies.

—Said the Chinese government refused to pledge publicly to resolve its differences peacefully with Taiwan, but the Chinese stated they "expect" a resolution can be reached without violence.

—Defended as "a fair and proper thing" his inviting former President Richard M. Nixon to the White House Jan. 29 for a state dinner in honor of Teng Hsiao-ping, deputy vice premier of China.

—Denied that the strategic arms limitation treaty now under negotiation between the United States and the Soviet Union will give the Russians a military advantage.

—Said the government has warned the Soviet Union and Vietnam against letting the conflict in Cambodia spill over into neighboring Thailand.

—Criticized a proposal backed by California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. for a constitutional amendment to require a balanced federal budget.

Carter's 1980 budget would increase outlays for welfare and income security programs — including Social Security and unemployment compensation — by $20 billion to $179 billion, and increase spending for defense by $10 billion to $122.8 billion.

Took Steps To Block Blanton Clemency Acts

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Lamar Alexander is Tennessee's governor today, taking over in an unprecedented and abruptly arranged ceremony aimed at blocking the release of more convicts.

Ousted three days early was Ray Blanton, the 48-year-old Democrat who stepped into a political hornets nest when he granted clemency to 24 convicted murderers and 28 other convicts this week.

The surprise swearing-in Wednesday came amid reports that a grand jury would investigate the pardons and commutations granted by Blanton.

Blanton's action Monday came a month after the arrest of two of his aides and a state trooper on federal charges of selling pardons and paroles. A federal grand jury is investigating the alleged scheme.

Blanton, who was not told of the oath-taking ceremony in advance, said he was "saddened and hurt for the state of Tennessee that this clandestine action has taken place... There is such a thing as courtesy. I thought they would have the courtesy to tell me."

He said he had been told he had been barred from his Capitol office for security reasons.

Shortly before taking the oath of office from Chief Justice Joe Henry of the state Supreme Court, Alexander said, "I have been authorized by the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the House to make this statement:

"The U.S. attorney today advised each of us that he has substantial reason to believe that the governor of Tennessee was planning to release one or more persons from prison who are targets of an investigation of payoffs for release from prison."

Storm's Toll

CHICAGO (AP) — Transit workers used snow shovels to free the city's snow-bound commuter system as Midwest industry struggled to resume production — sometimes with limited success.

The toll of weather-related deaths rose to 72. Meanwhile, the National Weather Service said a storm brewing in the Southwest threatened winter-weary Midwest states. A winter storm watch was issued for parts of Nebraska today.

A 92-year-old woman wearing only a housecoat was found frozen to death on a pile of snow in Riley, Kan., after authorities used a tracking dog and a helicopter to locate her.

A teen-age Chicago girl apparently died of carbon monoxide poisoning when she tried to start the family car, and there were more reports of fatal heart attacks among middle-aged men who shoveled snow.

There have been 24 reported deaths in Illinois, 19 in Wisconsin, 10 in Kansas, seven in Missouri, five in Iowa, three in Michigan, two in Oklahoma and one each in Ohio and Nebraska.

Hunt Favors 1979 Rebate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt suggested today that the General Assembly consider giving taxpayers a one-time rebate this year instead of in 1980.

Hunt said economic indications that a recession may come later than first thought could mean the state will have more money than expected when the current fiscal year ends in July. If the recession fully hits in the next fiscal year, the state could have less money to use for a tax cut then, he said.

"If the slowdown comes next year instead of this year, we have more money available this year," Hunt said during a news conference. "Maybe the legislature ought to consider a tax rebate this year."

Hunt has proposed a small permanent tax reduction totaling $40 million and an additional one-time rebate if the state has a large enough surplus at the end of the 1979-80 fiscal year. The rebate proposed by Hunt would amount to between $10 and $25 per taxpayer.

One of Hunt's budget advisers, Marvin Dorman, said Wednesday that changing economic predictions make it more doubtful the state can afford a rebate in 1980.

Hunt defended the rebate idea today, saying it was intended to hold down unnecessary government spending. He called it a "middle-road kind of approach."

The governor said he has no doubt, however, that the state would be able to afford the permanent tax cut he has proposed through a $400 increase in the deduction for dependents.

First Federal Reports Record '78 Dividends

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Pitt County, at its 42nd annual meeting of members last night, reported that record dividends of $4,450,000 were paid to depositors in 1978.

Judge Dink James, chairman of First Federal's board, served as chairman for the annual session and C. B. Tugwell, president, presented the annual report.

Tugwell reported "another good year" for First Federal as "continued growth in savings deposits once again provided the base for our ongoing support of the local mortgage market."

Tugwell said that savings gains at First Federal totaled $4,297,704 during 1978, bringing total savings balances to $69,881,810 at year-end. Mortgage loans made by the association last year totaled $19,983,000.

Overall, according to the president, First Federal now has $73,011,737 invested in mortgages, an all-time

Virgil Jones, a 15-year old Aycock student, was named "Boy of the Year" and plans were announced for a campaign to raise $500,000 as the Boys' Club of Pitt County observed its tenth anniversary Wednesday night.

At the annual dinner and installation of new officers and directors meeting, last year's "Boy of the Year" winner, Monte Williams, presented the coveted award to Jones.

A ninth grader, Jones has been a member of the Greenville branch of the Boys' Club of Pitt County for seven years and is president of the Junior Leaders. He plays on the basketball team, is a member of the karate team, a member of the Career Club, and is active in church affairs at Allen Chapel F.W.B. Church.

Austin Britt, one of the charter members of the club and a past president, has been named by directors to head the forthcoming campaign to collect one-half million dollars to erect a new Boys' Club building.

"It's a tough job, but we're going to do it," Britt said. "We're going to kick off the campaign officially on March 1."

Britt outlined planned action to get the campaign underway, with the advance gift group moving into action on Feb. 1. "We have 40 to 50 workers who are set to call on about 300 businesses," Britt noted.

"I know that these businesses, as well as individuals will respond, and that we will be successful in building our kids the kind of building they need," Britt concluded.

A local businessman,

Howard L. Hodges, was recipient of a "Special Award." In presenting the award, Bill Freelove noted "Hodges is one of the original supporters and a founding member of the club. Over the years, he has consistently donated or provided at nominal cost much of the sports equipment used by the boys."

In a brief talk marking events of ten years that have passed since the Boys' Club was founded in early 1969, Julian Vainwright touched on some of the highlight events.

"I'm not a historian," Vainwright commented, "but I recall one of the first persons to mention the possibility of a Boys' Club was Ken Beatty. The Kiwanis, Civitans, Jaycees, and the women's club were all supportive and active in early efforts.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

You may have noticed I was one of the few newspaper columnists who did not publish her list of New Year's Resolutions. Frankly, I was waiting to see if I had the strength to keep it for at least two weeks. I say "it" because I only made one. It states, "I, Erma Bombeck, will not tamper/adjust/regulate/jiggle or hit with clenched fist, the thermostat without first consulting with my husband."

I don't want you to think I was coerced into making the commitment. I could have easily gone through an ugly divorce, gotten my own apartment, bought a pot of lip gloss, a pair of wedgies, and hit for a singles bar. But instead, I compromised.

When I think back, I don't know why my parents permitted me to enter into a mixed marriage with a man who was born with thermal skin. He used to come over to the house in the dead of winter wearing a little cotton jacket and I'd say, "Aren't you cold?" He'd say, "Nonsense! A little cold is healthy."

The first winter after we were married, I almost died of good health. It didn't seem fair that I slept in a room with an open window and the car was enclosed. No wonder it started in the mornings and I didn't.

I started to play the Thermostat Game.

Every evening when I crawled into bed, I would curl into a ball and uncoil my legs at the rate of one inch an hour. When I heard heavy breathing next to me, I would slip out and hike up the thermostat. One evening, I got caught. "Why don't you stop thinking about how cold you are and go to sleep?" he said.

"I'm afraid to go to sleep. I saw a man climbing Mt. Everest once who went to sleep and he never woke up."

"You are overreacting," he said. "Besides, it's our civic duty to keep a low thermostat."

"I can tell you now," I said,

"that if I had known you were a No. 3 on an electric blanket I would never have married you."

"And I can tell you that if I thought you would play with a thermostat like an electronic tennis on TV, I would have shopped longer. You are just going to wear heavier clothes and tough out the winter."

"I can't cook in a sleeping bag and a parka."

"I want you to make a resolution never to touch the thermostat again!"

You know, I've been thinking . . . what's so great about being married?

Avoid Pests On Firewood

If you're bringing firewood into your home, don't bring unwanted guests with it.

If you're not careful, you can bring insect pests into your home on firewood, say NCSU agricultural extension specialists.

For example, ants may be under the bark of wood and become active when the wood is placed in a warm area.

Cockroaches may also enter your home on damp or partially decayed wood.

Always inspect firewood carefully and remove any insects before moving the wood indoors, recommend the specialists.

Newspaper Man Replies To Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you printed a letter from a man who undertook to explain why older men prefer younger wives:

"When buying a car," he said, "who would opt for an old, used model when he could get a new, unused model for the same price? In an old model, the bumper sags, the frame is crooked, the paint job is poor and the pickup is gone. And if it's 60 years old, it usually comes with a crank."

I decided not to let that one pass without rebuttal, especially when my wife came to me with your column in hand and fire in eye.

"Something must be said for us old, used models!" she declared. I, of course, agreed.

For the record, my wife is nowhere near 60. In fact, there was a time when she could not conceive of the possibility that she might reach 60; now she is beginning to realize this is a possibility.

Abby, I have had new models (speaking of cars) which, despite expensive attention, stubbornly refused to go places I wanted to go and their finish faded prematurely when exposed to the sun.

There is much to be said for an agreeable, long-time association with an older model. You know its capabilities, its weaknesses, its eccentricities. You know how it will respond in a variety of circumstances. You know it will get you there. There are few surprises, and that's a comfort.

But enough of cars. Even if my wife were not the desirable creature she is, and even if she were not looking over my shoulder at this moment, I don't think I could stand playing the dating game again.

Those awkward preliminaries. Those pretenses. Those doubts. That loneliness when doubts prove well-founded. Those failures. That forced enthusiasm. Those silly conversations: "Oh! You're a Pisces, and you jog! Isn't that exciting?" Pardon me while I throw up. I guess maybe I've been away too long.

ROBERT McMORRIS; OMAHA, NEB.

DEAR ROBERT: Thanks for a delightful letter, which I lifted (with permission) out of your column in the Omaha World-Herald.

DEAR ABBY: My married daughter asked me to spend the Christmas holidays with her. I was glad to accept because they live quite a distance from me and I don't see them often.

Besides my daughter and son-in-law, there are four children, two dogs and a cat. My daughter is a rather careless housekeeper who allows the pets to sleep in the children's beds.

The first night I slept there I noticed that something was disturbing my sleep. After the second night I decided to look at the mattress. There I found a nest of fleas and their eggs!

I knew I couldn't spend another night there, so I told my daughter I didn't feel well, and wanted to go home to see my doctor. I cut my vacation short and left.

Abby, I couldn't bring myself to tell my daughter the truth. Now I'm wondering what so say if I'm invited again. Please advise me.

BITTEN IN THE BRONX

DEAR BITTEN: You should have told your daughter the truth! Reciprocate. Put a bug in her ear at once.

Butter is made by churning pasteurized cream and it must have at least 80 percent milkfat. Salt and coloring may be added. Some people prefer unsalted butter which may be labeled "sweet" or "unsalted."

DEAR ABBY: I see by your column that chastity belts are making a comeback.

Do you know of an orthopedic surgeon-blacksmith team who could design a combination neck brace and side-blinders for my husband?

When we walk down the street, he practically twists his neck off every time he sees a pretty girl.

SESAME EGGS

Scrambled eggs are varied in a delicious way.

- 5 large eggs
- 1/2 cup commercial sour cream
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons sesame seed, toasted

Beat together the eggs, sour cream, salt and pepper just until blended. In a 10-inch skillet heat the butter; add the egg mixture and cook over low heat, stirring as the egg mixture sets; while still creamy, stir in the sesame seed and cook until as set as you like. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Uncle Has A Hotline For Ripoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pssst! Know any federal workers ripping off Uncle Sam? He'd like to be tipped off by telephone.

Federal auditors have set up a new toll-free national hotline — 800-424-5454 — to take calls from the public on ripoffs or misspending by any federal department or agency.

Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, head of the General Accounting Office, said callers will be guaranteed anonymity.

Today's GAO announcement comes only two days after President Carter's budget director, James McIntyre, suggested the government establish a hotline for "whistleblowers" to help federal workers complain about waste and corruption.

But the timing of Staats' announcement was just coincidence, GAO and OMB spokesmen said Wednesday. A GAO news release on the hotline was already in the mail before McIntyre's announcement, and GAO spokesman Roland Sawyer insisted, "It was our own creation and idea."

The auditing agency, which scrutinizes government programs for Congress, also gave credit to Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., for the idea of a national hotline.

Staats told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Dec. 4 that the GAO had set up a local hotline in Washington (633-6887) for whistle-blowers. Sasser suggested making the idea work nationwide.

The senator has said the hotline could help stem federal fraud, waste and abuse estimated as high as $25 billion a year.

percent to 6.30 percent, while industry-wide net worth ratios had been on a decline.

He noted that the association "expects another good savings year in 1979, although savings flows probably will not be as strong as last year. Interest rates were continuing to rise at the close of last year as the federal government worked both to slow inflation and strengthen the dollar." Tugwell continued, "and these trends are expected to continue at least through the early months of 1979."

Tugwell asserted that, "Under these circumstances, the natural result will be some tightening of mortgage money and mortgage rates will continue to be high by past standards, particularly during the first half of 1979." Even so, he suggested, the residential real estate market again will be reasonably strong during 1979.

Directors elected during the annual session for 1979 included Alton R. Barrett, George Coffman, Dink James, Walter B. Jones, Roscoe L. King, John B. Lewis Sr., John F. Minges, Thomas S. Ryon, Clarence B. Tugwell, Donald Wilkerson, Dr. J. Edwin Clement, and Kelly Barnhill.

At the board meeting following the shareholders session, officers were elected to serve during the coming year. They are: James, chairman of the board; Tugwell, president; King, senior vice president; Robert S. Messner, secretary-treasurer; William Earl Stocks, assistant vice president; Durwood Little, assistant vice president; Inda W. Wingate, assistant vice president; Lester Brown, vice president; Sue Creech, assistant vice president; Martha Davis, assistant secretary-treasurer; Jonathan M. Pratt, controller; Kenneth Hite, general counsel; and John B. Lewis Sr., special counsel.

Rebate Is Hardly Significant

Gov. Hunt presented his budget proposals to the General Assembly Monday, including plans for a tax cut, tax rebate and a seven percent increase in pay and benefits to state teachers and employees.

The budget, which will be worked over by the Legislature, calls for a $10 billion spending program over the next two years.

Our initial reaction is that the tax cut idea is desirable, although singles and working couples without children are left entirely out. The plan proposed by the governor would cost the state $40 million in revenues.

The tax rebate, to be determined by the amount of surplus would cost between $26 million and $65 million. The refunds would range between $10 and $25 per taxpayer.

It appears that the tax rebate will hardly be significant to the individual taxpayer even if the maximum amount is available. It would seem far more logical to us to veer away from the rebate and use those funds to provide tax relief that would affect everyone.

The seven percent pay increase to state employees and teachers is not going to be satisfactory to the people involved, but it is in line with presidential guidelines and the Legislature should adhere to it.

The budget also contains an increase of 8.1 percent in funding for public schools and a six percent increase for higher education. There are funds for continuing development of the N. C. State veterinary school and also the ECU medical school.

A new program would be $10.7 million to subsidize child day care centers.

The governor called the budget an austere one and said, "We as a state must hold down the cost of government."

Austere or not, there don't appear to be any deep cuts in the growth of government, although there was a limited number of new programs. Certainly this is not the time for big new spending programs in government and we should be looking at many we now have to make certain they are absolutely essential. Budget making time is when this should be done.

THIS AFTERNOON

Hope In A Reading Effort

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — At the present rate, it would take 50 years just to find and sign up all of the adults in North Carolina who need help with reading, writing and arithmetic in order to get or keep a decent job.

That is why the State Board of Education is putting so much of its hopes in a demonstration project now underway in 11 counties: the communities served by Caldwell Community College, Forsyth Technical Institute, Martin Community College, Robeson Technical Institute, and Wilkes Community College.

Called the Comprehensive Project in Functional Literacy, the program is attempting to overcome the sheer weight of numbers of adults who need literacy training.

Currently about 86,000 adults are enrolled in basic education or high school programs at the state's 57 community colleges or technical institutes. But census figures indicate three quarters of a million adults can't read street signs, newspapers, write letters or fill out applications. Some can't even count money.

Large Number

Nearly a million more never went beyond eighth grade, and more than 200,000 young people have not completed high school. And the totals grow at the rate of 30,000 dropouts each year.

The Comprehensive Project in Functional Literacy is simply a fancy name for a simple approach — rally the community to help.

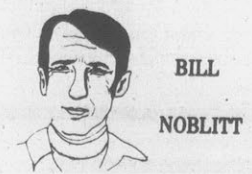

Emphasis in this special approach is on volunteers to work with the students; all forms of outreach to let the people know they can get help; and classes where the people live instead of at some remote college campus or governmental building.

The ultimate goal is to get the community cares approach rolling then turn it over to the people who live in the places to keep it under way.

After a year, the big question is whether this works. A lengthy study report has just been completed, and the conclusion is mixed: maybe it works, and maybe it doesn't.

Despite careful monitoring and research data written in educational jargon, it is far from clear whether the program is making significant progress.

BILL NOBLITT

In fact, the study cautions that it will take many years to demonstrate success, and it is candid in pointing to shortcomings such as less than enthusiastic community involvement and support in some cases, and not-so-thorough understanding and endorsement from the "traditional" educational community.

Yet there are signs that something is working. More students have been enrolled in the community-based setting (2,307) than have previously been served in the campus oriented programs.

Volunteers

Volunteers have been plentiful and active, with around 800 people involved, spending an average of three hours per week each.

Something does appear to be working right, because statistics show that students are making important gains in reading and math. In just six months, the gain in reading was well over half a year in grade equivalency; in math, the gain was nearly two-thirds of a year. Considering these are two or three-hour classes once a week and not fulltime study routines, the gains are strong.

After all the negative and positive factors are explored, however, one little-mentioned point becomes most important: the students who do best are those who are motivated to learn either from within or from outside influences.

Perhaps this is why some state officials are putting so much emphasis on neighbors helping neighbors, for this close contact can itself be a motivating factor.

THE CARTER AIDES

Continue To Be Outsiders

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two years in the White House, many of President Carter's aides have concluded that economically and socially, Washington is a tough town to break into.

The high prices, notoriety, gossip, snooty social life, public criticism — all are distasteful to many White House staffers who campaigned against the "Washington insiders" and feel they have never really been accepted by them.

White House aides tell a story about presidential aide Greg Schneiders, who not long ago was invited to a dinner party in Georgetown — where those insiders congregate — by a well-known national columnist.

After ascertaining that Schneiders, 33, was married, the columnist asked, "Is your wife, hmmm, presentable?"

When Schneiders appeared surprised that he would be asked such a question, the columnist explained that he was having some important people to his party — a few diplomats, some senators, a Supreme Court justice and "Henry," to which he did not add Kissinger. He would have his wife call Mrs. Schneiders to tell her what to expect.

Asked why, after being insulted, he went to the party, Schneiders said, "That sort of thing doesn't bother me anymore. I told my wife we wouldn't go if she found it offensive, but she was amused."

Like Schneiders — who asked that the columnist not be named — many of Carter's aides and their families are finding that life in official Washington requires more adjustments than expected.

"I'm very sensitive to criticism of all the Georgians," said Nan Powell, wife of Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell. "For me, that's the hardest part of being in Washington."

Mrs. Powell, a part-time elementary school teacher, said during the first eight months they lived in Washington, she hated to read what the newspapers said about them. "I'm past that point now," she said, "but I don't think I'll ever get used to it."

She said she does not think the fast-paced Washington lifestyle can be blamed for breaking up the marriages of Carter's son, Chip, and several White House staffers, such as top aide Hamilton Jordan and political adviser Tim Kraft.

"The marriages that came to Washington on sure footing remained that way," she said. "The ones that didn't fell apart. It doesn't make things easier to read about your problems in the gossip columns. But that's not what caused the breakups."

Most of those who have worked in the White House feel, however, that the long hours and constant pressure do little to enhance marriages.

"It's inevitable that there are parts of this job that cause strains on marriages," said James Fallows, who resigned as Carter's top speech writer to spend more time with his wife and small son.

"I almost never saw them," Fallows said. "I left the house before Tommy got up and got home after he went to sleep."

Fallows said that while many White House staffers are making more money than ever before, they were saddled with homes bought in one of the most expensive housing markets in the country.

"The major change for many people is that they have acquired houses with large mortgages," he said. "The mortgages are bigger than we have ever had before which makes it difficult to leave. I didn't want to become dependent on the high income that would be hard to sustain as a journalist."

Public records show Fallows paid $133,000 for his house; Powell paid $115,000; Kraft paid $92,500; and presidential imagemaker Gerald Rafter paid $190,000.

Propaganda Broadcasts

Some hard thinking needs to be done, in Congress, in corporate offices, and within the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) itself, on the whole business of editorial responsibility for the programs the corporation sponsors. An uneasy feeling will not go away that nobody is in charge of the store.

The issue is important. The CPB has a budget this year of $119.2 million in tax funds. It is a fair assumption that ever larger appropriations will be sought in coming years. The Carnegie Commission on the Future of Public Broadcasting is expected to make some expensive recommendations toward that end in a full-dress report next month.

From the time the corporation was established more than ten years ago, many observers — both liberal and conservative observers — have been troubled by fundamental questions. They are the same kind of questions that have been raised about federal involvement in the writing of social science textbooks and the making of grants to individual poets and playwrights. What business does our government have in the broadcasting business?

Unless the general welfare clause is to be invoked, the Constitution provides no authority whatever for spending public funds to promote particular cultural values or political points of view. Until quite recently, such appropriations were widely regarded as beyond the scope of the federal government. Now these outlays seem to be growing. It's time for some fresh concern about whether we are drifting.

These reflections are prompted in part by Reed Irvine's running feud with the CPB. Irvine is the editor and moving spirit of Accuracy in Media. A couple of months ago, he delivered a powerful broadside against the corporation for its part in financing a series of 13 documentaries produced by WGBH in Boston.

In Irvine's view, three of the 13 programs were "uncontestably Marxist propaganda." Three others, as he saw them, supported Marxist themes that capitalism is inherently bad. Four of the remaining seven, he contended, also were slanted journalism. Irvine protested bitterly at what he perceived as an abuse of the requirement that the CPB adhere to objectivity and balance.

Now Irvine is the prototype of the man who won a reputation as an even-tempered fellow by staying mad. His boiling point is phenomenally low. So I went around to the CPB offices to see for myself, and spent an afternoon looking at one of the 13, an hour-

Oldest Of The Apemen

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — An ape-like creature that strode the savannahs of Africa 4 million years ago has been identified as the oldest known direct ancestor of man, anthropologists said today.

The creature, dubbed the Afar ape man, walked upright with a human-like body but had the face and brain of an ape.

The discovery shows that humans and apes may be more closely related than was previously imagined, said Drs. Donald C. Johanson of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History and T.D. White of the University of California at Berkeley.

Afar ape man also proves that human ancestors were walking on two feet millions of years before they made stone tools, he said.

Some anthropologists thought it was the evolutionary pressure to free their hands for the use of tools that pushed men up from the stooped ape posture.

Robert Radcliffe of the National Geographic Society, which cosponsored the research, said Johanson's conclusions were important because they suggest that man did not develop in a straight line from the primates as anthropologists thought until recently.

The findings are expected to cause considerable controversy in the scientific community, Radcliffe said Wednesday.

He said that noted paleo anthropologist Mary Leakey already has disputed Johanson's contention that the Afar ape man's bones are from a truly new species, arguing that they are from early direct ancestors of modern man.

Johanson and White will report their findings in the journal Science next week.

The creature's scientific name is Australopithecus afarensis. He was identified and named by Johanson and White after detailed studies of fossil skulls, jaws and other bones found in Tanzania and the Afar region of Ethiopia during the last seven years.

The Afar ape man supplants a creature known as Australopithecus africanus as the earliest known member of the family hominids, or ancestors of man, they said.

The earliest Australopithecus africanus fossils are about 2.5 million years old.

The story of how three dogs saved their master's life was told here today.

Charles Foster of the Belvoir community was reported to have started out hunting yesterday morning. After he had gone a good distance he was stricken with paralysis and was unable to return to his home.

His family became alarmed when he did not return last night and a search party was sent out to look for him. He was found 16 hours later lying on the ground, with his three dogs hovered about him. A physician was reported to have expressed the opinion the man would have died of exposure if it had not been for the dogs keeping him warm during the night.

Strength For Today

NIGH UNTO ALL

Above the altar in a certain church the words were etched in lights: "The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon Him." One night during a service, all the lights went out except in the three of these words: "nigh unto all."

This incident made a deep impression on everyone who witnessed it. "Nigh unto all" is something that our faith teaches. We may feel discouraged and full of self-pity, convinced that everyone, including God, has deserted us. But that is not true. God is "nigh unto all". Everyone is part of the living universe, and God is just as much beside each one of us as He is beside the most outstanding saint on earth.

And this applies to the most wanton sinners as well. God stands beside the betrayer, the thief, the libertine also. The trouble is that most of these will not reach out toward Him and ask forgiveness, and then seize the power He gives to make a new life.

Housing Sales Defy All Odds

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It was an amazing economic story: In 1978, housing sales soared, defying rising prices, double-digit interest rates and, in some instances, shrinking take-home pay.

Construction was begun on close to 2 million new homes. Nearly 4 million existing homes changed owners. And selling prices rose 14 percent, the steepest one-year rise on record.

In their year-end statements, many forecasters said it couldn't continue. Eventually, they said, there comes a time when not even the well-heeled can chase prices and rates any higher.

The National Association of Realtors doesn't believe it. The year 1979, it says, will be another good year, in some respects a record-breaking one, prices and bank terms notwithstanding.

It concedes there will be an impact — that interest rates and tougher terms will discourage some buyers, that prices will make others think twice before committing themselves. But it expects a big year.

Here's the breakdown:
Sales — About 4 million existing homes will be sold, a record, surpassing by 100,000 units the 1978 total, which itself was a record. And construction will begin on 1.75 million new units.
Prices — A rise of 10 to 11 percent, bringing the median sale price to $55,000 for existing homes and $64,000 for new homes by the year's end.
Interest Rates — They may exceed 11.5 percent in "hot" markets, particularly in the Sun Belt states of the South and West, and reach as high as 11 percent elsewhere.

By traditional criteria, such high prices and borrowing rates would be expected to produce a sharp downturn. In fact, in a free economy, that is their function. But housing is defying tradition and criteria.

What, you might ask, is going on? How can an industry appear to defy the economics, to sell so much despite the existence of so many pressures that would be expected to undermine sales?

For one thing, demographics: A bulge in the home-buying age category: A tight rental market for another. Inflation, of course, homebuyers believe a house represents an investment.

A change in attitudes must be considered; thousands of single men and women now prefer home-ownership to renting; affluent families have returned to inner cities; landlords have converted rental units to condominiums and cooperative, making owners out of would-be renters.

Financing changes have helped. Lenders now consider the wife's income in determining the credit-worthiness of a family. And they allow for a greater percentage of take-home pay to be budgeted for housing costs.

The Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board have contributed strongly, using their access to capital markets to keep a flow of mortgage credit available.

Show Camp Film Here This Sunday

Area residents, especially boys and girls ages 8-16 and their parents, are invited to attend a showing of the movie on Camp Cheerio, owned and operated by the High Point North Carolina Y. M. C. A.

There will be no admission charge for the showing, scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 21, 2:30 p.m., First Federal Building, Greenville Blvd. Mrs. Michael House is in charge of arrangements and will serve as hostess for the meeting.

The camp offers three camping sessions for girls and four sessions for boys. There is a choice of one or two week sessions, with any normal child eligible to attend one or more sessions.

The camp, now in its 19th season, is directed by Ron Austin, camp executive of the High Point Y. M. C. A. He has been certified as a Senior Director by the National Y. M. C. A.

Activities at the Christian character camp include Western and English horseback riding, nature lore, canoe and kayak trips on the New River, hiking, and instruction in swimming, just to name a few. Dancing, baton twirling, cheerleading and drill teams are offered for girls with a basketball program for the boys.

A special one-month camping event in the United Kingdom will be offered for campers ages 14-16, with backpacking in Scotland, hiking and climbing in northern England and a home stay in Lincoln, England featured on the trip.

Camp Cheerio features a heated olympic pool and four tennis courts. It is fully accredited by the American Camping Association.

Persons who wish to obtain information at the movie showing are under no obligation.

Public Hearing In Farmville

Farmville — Land use problems, zoning ordinance changes, and drainage problems will be the subject of a public hearing to be held Wednesday, Jan. 24, at 7 p. m. in the municipal courtroom here.

Residents of Farmville and its extraterritorial planning area are invited to attend and advise town officials of problems and needs they feel exist in these subject areas. Information from the hearing will be used to help the town develop an updated land use plan, revise its zoning ordinance and map and develop a master plan for drainage improvements. Town Administrator Patrick Thomas said.

One Problem In The Igloo-Life

PONTIAC, Ill. (AP) — While the neighbors were struggling to dig out from the blizzard, Jeff Rodino was digging into the snow — in true Eskimo fashion. His wife, Kathie, thought he was crazy.

The 26-year-old Rodino built an igloo for his daughter Jodie, 9, and son Tony, 4, to play in during the day. Then, he suggested he and his son spend the night in it. No way, said Kathie.

So out he went about 11 p.m., alone, carrying a down sleeping bag and wearing blue jeans, a sweatshirt and some heavy socks. The temperature that Monday dipped to 20 below.

"It was pretty warm in there," he said. "The snow acts as an insulator. When I was in my sleeping bag, I felt like I was under an electric blanket."

But there was one problem. When Rodino awoke he was a little wet — the snow under his sleeping bag had melted.

quit his $42,000-a-year post to become Washington editor of the Atlantic Monthly for what he describes as a substantial cut in pay. "And you can underline substantial," he said.

Jane Wales, coordinator of the public liaison office and aide to senior staffer Anne Wexler, said she is making about $33,000, three times as much as in the campaign. But she is not saving any money.

"The job costs me a lot," she said. "I now dry clean all my clothes because I don't have time to do them myself. I had a cleaning service come into the house. I take cabs. I never take the train anywhere. I fly. And I usually end up paying my department store bills late and have to pay interest on them."

Ms. Wales said that since gossip columns love to focus on the White House, many aides must work hard to keep private lives private.

"One of the biggest problems is that people on the middle-level staff know they're not important in the general scheme of things, but the public thinks they are. We suddenly realize our life is public."

Such recognition has been particularly hard for Jordan, whose marriage problems and drinking escapades have made headlines. He has virtually gone into hiding since the White House issued a 33-page denial that he spit a drink at a young woman in a bar.

Several aides said that at first they were intimidated by Washington social life and declined party invitations. Thus they got reputations for snubbing the social scene and now aren't invited as much.

"A lot of social invitations to White House staffers have dropped off," said Betty Rainwater, an aide who works for Jordan.

"We made some serious mistakes in the beginning of the administration by not first finding out who would be at parties before we turned them down. They could have been mutually beneficial. Now we're not being invited."

Big Value Drugs Sold To A New Corporation

Les Garner, president of Garner-Wynne-Manning Inc. here, announced that the company has sold Big Value Discount Drugs to a new corporation formed by the shareholders of the Big Value facilities.

Garner said that the new corporation, Big Value Discount Drugs Inc., involves an eight-member board of directors with Ronnie Tripp serving as president and Dennis Warren as vice president.

The new corporate action took place as of Jan. 1, Garner reported.

Tripp announced that as of Jan. 1, Big Value purchased the Clow Drug Store facility, located at the West End Shopping Center, and will operate the store as Big Value Discount Drugs.

According to Tripp, the new West End store will serve as headquarters for the corporation and Big Value warehouse and storage facilities for all of the company's drug stores will be located at West End.

The 10,000 square foot facility will be managed by Warren, it was noted, with Mrs. Denise Luxton serving as chief pharmacist. Mrs. Luxton was formerly associated with Clow Drugs as pharmacist.

Tripp, who serves as general manager for the overall Big Value operation, said that in addition to the new store's prescription section, the facility will also feature a large cosmetics department, gift department, health and beauty aids section, camera department, and general sundry merchandise.

He said that Big Value Discount now operates five stores with the acquisition of the Clow Drugs facility. In addition to the Tenth Street and West End stores, other Big Value Discount sites are in Ayden, Edenton and Elizabeth City.

Mary Foley and Jim Maynor are serving as co-managers of the Tenth Street store here. Tripp mentioned, adding that both employees also serve as directors of the corporation. Maynor is the store's chief pharmacist.

Kent Allen is manager and pharmacist at the Ayden store. Warren, who is moving to West End from the Tenth Street store where he was manager, has been in the drug store business for 24 years, Tripp said. The president pointed out that the majority of the directors of the new Big Value corporation are employees of the company.

Pupils Failed Form 1040-A

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service may say its new short form for federal income tax is simple enough for any eighth grade student to manage, but local eighth-graders found it too taxing.

As an experiment, the Charlotte Observer asked an advanced math class of eighth-graders and a regular math class with both seventh- and eighth-graders at Quail Hollow Junior High to fill out the 1040A filing form.

Only two of 27 students in the advanced class, which is already doing algebra, and none in the regular class penetrated the 1040A instruction language well enough to work through the simple math correctly.

"If I do 'em wrong now, wonder what I'll do when I have to do 'em for sure?" pondered 13-year-old Leif Wells, a member of the advanced group.

He answered his own question: "They'll audit my tax."

Working with nothing but the form and instructions the IRS provides all taxpayers, only Helen Parker and Karen Devore, both 13, completed correct returns in a 45-minute class period.

"We knew it," said classmate Brigitte Bridges. "Because they were the only two who had the same answers."

Karen, who got a 99 on her last algebra test, said the close columns on tax tables could do anybody in.

"You could easily look at the wrong one," she said.

It was apparently the 1040A's wordy thicket of instructions and examples that got to students.

"Exemptions was the hardest part," said Austin Davis, 13, a member of the regular class. The students' math teachers said another problem may have been that students are not used to being set adrift with only IRS instructions and no details from the teacher.

"I don't know who made the statement that eighth-grade people could do it very easily, because I don't think that's true," said Glenn Jones, IRS public affairs officer for the North Carolina district.

Jones confessed to miscalculations on his own tax last year, but it won't happen again.

"I got me a calculator this year," he said.

Plan Gospel Music Event

"Ministers in Concert," the first of a series of gospel music programs, will be held at York Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church Friday, Jan. 26, at 8 p. m.

The Music Department of the church is sponsoring these programs the fourth Friday of each month to coincide with "Building Fund Night."

The Jan. 26 program will feature singing ministers from the city and county. Highlighting the program will be York Memorial's own Rev. Luther Brown. Sharing the program with him will be the Best brothers, W. J., Matthew and Andrew; the Hammond brothers, Ken and Dave; the Rev. J. H. Taylor III; the Rev. Jessie Williams; the Rev. James E. Vance; the Rev. Christopher Williams and Evangelist George Hawkins.

Accompanying the ministers will be Roger Ingram at the organ.

Andre Wooten, percussionist, and Shirley Williams, John Taylor and Johnny Wooten at the organ. The public is invited.

ENGINEERING & LAND SURVEYING COMPANIES MERGE

Triangle Engineering & Surveying Inc. and Stroud Engineering and Land Surveying Co. Pa., are pleased to announce the merging of their firms. The company will do business as Triangle Engineering & Surveying Inc. with the home office located in Raleigh, N.C. The local office will be temporarily located at 301 S. Evans Street, Suite 201.

Family Slain By Mental Patient

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — A man who authorities say killed his wife and two young daughters then committed suicide Wednesday was a psychiatric patient recently, according to a hospital spokesman.

David Walton Yount was a patient in the psychiatric unit at Glenn R. Frye Memorial Hospital in Hickory from Dec. 26 to Jan. 3, the spokesman said.

Dr. Charles Trado, a Hickory psychiatrist who treated Yount during his hospitalization, said Wednesday that Yount was suffering from a common form of depression.

"He just felt depressed, as many people do... and they are rarely able to attribute it to any one thing," Trado said of the 33-year old man.

"David attributed it to a virus he had two or three months ago," Trado said. "He felt tired and lethargic — he seemed to be depressed that he couldn't recover physically."

Authorities say sometime about dawn Wednesday, Yount took a .22-caliber rifle and killed his wife and their two daughters before turning the gun on himself.

The Catawba County Sheriff's Department said Yount's wife, Darlene Boston Yount, 29, was found dead in the couple's bed. The body of one daughter, Marisa Joy Yount, 3½ months, was found in a back-bedroom crib.

The other child, Anna Danielle Yount, almost 2, was found dead on a living-room couch with Yount's body beside her.

All had been shot through the head except Yount, who was shot through the mouth. The gun was on the floor beside him, detectives said.

The victims were found after Yount's mother-in-law, Edith Boston, tried to call the Yount house about 8 a.m. Wednesday. She called another daughter when she got no answer, and the two women went to the house.

Trado said Yount was in good, optimistic spirits when he left the hospital. Yount had an appointment with Trado Wednesday.

"The kind of depression David was experiencing is probably the most frequent thing psychiatrists see," Trado said. "No one could have predicted something like this could have happened."

Trado said Yount had no history of violence.

Yount's co-workers at Hix Photography, where he was a color printer, said he seemed fine Tuesday.

"Yesterday (Tuesday) afternoon about quitting time, he said he'd be late today because of a doctor's appointment," said Charles Hicks, Yount's boss.

"He's worked with us for about 9½ years and a better man, a better worker, you'll not find. He's had some problems lately... but to explain this, there's no way," Hicks said.

One Injured In Traffic Mishaps

Eula Mae Smith of 1004B Taylor St. was injured yesterday when struck by a car on Bismark Street, 93 feet South of the Dexter Street intersection, Greenville Police reported today.

Investigators said driver of the car involved in the 9:10 a.m. mishap was Sheila Jan Hardy of 306 Azalea St., and set damage to her car at $5.

An estimated $1,150 property damage resulted from the collision of two vehicles involved in a 10:15 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Club Pines Road and Greenwood Drive, officers said.

Drivers involved in the collision were identified as Albert Sidney Johnson Jr. of 1309 Cotton Rd., and Leroy Adams of 1701 West Third St.

Damage was estimated at $900 to the Johnson car and $250 to the truck driven by Adams.

Local Attorney To Be Speaker

Greenville attorney Milton C. Williamson is scheduled to be one of the featured speakers at a North Carolina Trial Academy seminar to be held in Raleigh January 25-27.

The seminar for attorneys is on settlement negotiations, and Williamson will speak on plea bargaining.

A noted attorney in Eastern North Carolina, Williamson will appear on a panel which will include criminal attorney Richard "Racehorse" Hanes of Houston, Texas, Supreme Court Justice Jim R. Carrigan of Denver, Colorado, and Dr. V. Hale Star of Des Moines, Iowa.

The seminar is designed to teach attorneys negotiating strategies and techniques which they can apply to their practice whether it is criminal or civil.

Declare Death Self-Inflicted

The death of Brenda Faye Howard, 23, of 311 Oakgrove Avenue, Greenville has been ruled self-inflicted by Medical Examiner Dr. Stan Harris.

Dr. Harris said Mrs. Howard, wife of Lester Howard Jr. and mother of two, died of an overdose of barbiturates. The death occurred Wednesday morning, he indicated.

Car Damaged During Swerve

An estimated $600 damage resulted to a car driven by Phillip Thomas Mowery of Fayetteville, in a 2:10 a.m. mishap today at the intersection of Fourth and Jarvis Streets.

Mowery told officers his vehicle struck the curb when he swerved to avoid striking a vehicle which failed to stop at a stop sign at the intersection.

Homecoming At Pace Academy

Baseball star Gaylord Perry will attend Pace Academy homecoming Friday to autograph baseballs.

Perry will also bring baseballs autographed by Pete Rose to be auctioned off during the evening. The evening will begin at 5 when the boys' and the girls' basketball teams play against Martin Academy.

After the games, Jeff French and his traveling disco will provide music for a disco dance until 10:30.

In grades K-6, each class has elected a representative to run for princess. Grades 7-10 will elect a Homecoming Queen and a Homecoming King. Also a Mr. and Miss School Spirit will be chosen from grades K-6 and from grades 7-10.

ECU Dept. Gets Grant

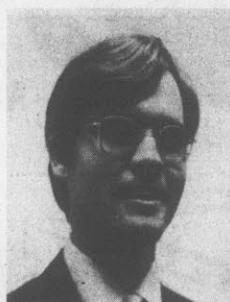

ECU News Bureau

Dr. Carolyn H. Hampton, professor at East Carolina University, has announced the awarding of a $7,250 grant to the Department of Science Education to assist in the development of a training program.

The funds were provided under the Sea Grant College Program by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the State of North Carolina to develop knowledge and teaching skills about the marine and coastal area of North Carolina and to work toward solutions to marine environmental problems.

Dr. Hampton will work with the state's Marine Resource Centers to develop a curriculum and internship program in marine education at ECU. The program is designed to train future and present teachers at elementary, junior and high school levels. The grant provides a graduate internship to accomplish this goal. The aim of the program is to provide a group of science teachers with skills to introduce marine education into the public schools and to provide on-site leadership at the Marine Resource Centers for field and laboratory studies.

We lend money to more people than any other bank in North Carolina.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The overall trend on the North Carolina hog market today was steady to 50 higher: Wilson, 53.25; Rocky Mount, 52.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadbourne, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson, 53.00; Tarboro, unreported; Salisbury, 51.00; Spivey's Corner, 51.00; and Kinston, 52.50.

Poultry

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was weaker for next week, supplies adequate, demand moderate, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 48.09 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today, 1,428,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market overcame some early weakness to post a modest gain at midday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off by about a point near the opening, was up 3.12 to 837.32 as of noon.

Trading volume was moderate at 11.02 million shares changed hands, up from 10.60 million shares in the first two hours Wednesday. Gaining issues outnumbered losers by a margin of nearly 2-to-1.

Analysts cited no particular news developments affecting the market. Its gains came despite general weakness of the dollar on international currency markets but against a background of encouraging reports on levels of industrial production, housing construction and personal income which the government issued Wednesday.

Gambling and casino stocks which scored strong gains earlier in the week were actively traded again. Bally, which gained more than 3 points as the most active NYSE issue Wednesday, slipped 1/2 to 59 1/2. Caesars World, also actively traded, rose 1/4 to 35.

In less active trading, Playboy Enterprises rose 1/2 to 18 1/2. Ramada Inn gained 1/4 to 11 1/4, and Del E. Webb climbed 3/4 to 20 3/4. On the American Stock Exchange, Resorts International Class A rose 1/4 to 35 1/2 in active trading.

Oil companies involved in offshore drilling off the coast of New Jersey showed mixed results after a late boost Wednesday. The government announced that a test well in the region showed signs of natural gas. Texaco slipped 1/4 to 24 1/4. Standard Oil of California fell 1/4 to 45 1/4 but Exxon rose 1/4 to 49 1/4. On the American Stock Exchange, Houston Oil & Minerals fell 1/2 to 18 as the most actively traded issue.

NVF Corp. up 1 1/4 to 9 1/4 topped the noon NYSE most active list. Dow Chemical up 1 1/4 to 28 1/4 was the second most active issue followed by Chromalloy, up 1 1/4 to 21 1/4.

The NYSE composite index rose .16 to 55.80. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .80 to 160.30.

Prison For FBI Agent

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Stabile, the first FBI agent indicted for a crime while on active duty, has been sentenced to one year and one day in prison for obstructing justice.

Stabile is to surrender Feb. 7 to begin serving his term.

He pleaded guilty last November to one of six counts of obstructing justice. The indictment consolidated two counts of perjury before a special grand jury that had been probing a charge Stabile received $15,000 from an organized crime figure to fix a gambling charge.

The rest of the counts were dismissed. No bribery charge was made.

Stabile pleaded guilty to trying to conceal what his attorney said was about $5,000 in winnings from legal off-track betting about seven years ago. FBI rules bar gambling by agents.

The indictment accused Stabile, an agent for 18 years before resigning, of laundering the money through a cousin.

"I made a mistake. I shouldn't have gotten involved," Stabile told Judge Thomas C. Platt Wednesday in the U.S. District Court in Brooklyn.

Platt said, "Because he was an FBI agent and he admitted obstructing justice, he must go to jail."

Building Site Vandalism

Pitt County deputies are investigating a vandalism incident reported this morning at a residential construction site in Brook Valley.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that a house under construction at 212 York Road sustained an estimated $1,200 in damages as a result of the incident, which was reported today at 9:10 a.m.

Sheriff Tyson said that kitchen cabinets were reported damaged and paint was splashed on several walls. Entrance to the house, being built by Phil Privette, was apparently gained by prying plywood off of a door, he said.

The sheriff said that the structure was approximately 75 percent complete.

ly stages to found and sustain the club, mentioned by Vainwright, included Wally Howard, Booger Scales, Johnnie May, Bill Glidewell, Austin Britt, Dr. Leo Jenkins, and Willis Talton.

Vainwright also noted the special contribution made by Bob Sykes of the Boys' Club Southeastern Regional Office in Atlanta, "who spent many patient hours in helping us organize."

"It was a time of no's," Vainwright remarked, "no money, no United Fund support, no director, no building."

In tracing the history of early and following years in the club's history, Vainwright praised the fine work carried out by the first director, Dick Ullam, and his successor, Dave Wilcox. (Wilcox was killed in a boating accident during his tenure.)

In the early years, achievements noted by Vainwright were the purchase of the former Presbyterian Church on Skinner Street that remains the club's home; the generosity of volunteer workers, particularly students from East Carolina University; and the death of famed stunt flier Bebo Howard while performing in a benefit show for the Boys' Club at the local airport.

Vainwright stressed the importance of the role that United Way (then United Fund) has played in helping to keep the Boys' Club solvent. "I want to say that Etsil Gordon was instrumental in convincing the United Fund board that the Boys' Club was a worthy project. Etsil had the beauty, the interest, and the know-how to represent us, and she did a fine job."

In a remark made later by the club's president, Buff Chalk, it was noted "for the first time, the United Way has allocated to the Boys' Club the largest amount given to any individual agency."

The annual report shows that for the year ended December 31, the budget of the Boys' Club was $94,561. The bulk of receipts of this budget were from United Way — $37,500, and through C.E.T.A. funds, $39,200.

The booth at the fair conducted by members of the Boys' Club and persons on the director's board accounted for $5,909.

Officers for 1979 are: Buff Chalk, president, Cecil Mizelle, vice president, Doug Hill, treasurer, and Etsil Gordon, secretary. (Chalk and Gordon were both reelected to positions they held last year.)

Outgoing officers are Ken Harrell, treasurer, and vice-presidents Bernard Haselrig and Doug Hill.

Board of Directors, with expiration dates are: (1979) John Dilday, Ken Harrell, Bernard Haselrig, Richard Johnson, Wilson McDowell, and Don Parrott; (1980) Bill Freelove, Jerry Fulford, Ted Gartman, Danny Jacobson, Bill Smith, Jack Wynne, III, Thurston Wynne, and Don Yeager; and (1981) David Barnhill, Dr. Raymond Busbee, Dr. Trenton Davis, Don Leggett, Bob Mallard, Walt Morehead, and Ronnie Tripp.

Current membership in the Boys' Club numbers 320, with a daily average attendance of 106 members. Fifty-three volunteers last years contributed 2,075 volunteer hours.

More To Come

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since its birth in 1947, the "baby boom" generation has successively crowded hospital nurseries, jammed the nation's public schools and deluged the job and housing markets.

And there's more in store as that generation — much larger than those before and after it — grows older, says a report released today by the House Select Committee on Population.

How, it asks, will the nation cope in 1990 when 544,000 children of working "boom baby" mothers need day-care facilities, or in 2010 when retirements come in record numbers?

"The major institutions in this country will face similar disruptions for the next 50 years as the 'baby boom' generation continues to move through its life cycle, leaving the problems of the 'baby bust' in its wake," the report says.

Rep. James H. Scheuer, D.N.Y., the committee chairman, said he hoped identifying the potential impact of the "population bulge" would help the government "better anticipate population change and develop more effective policy responses to it."

The more than 50 million "boom babies" born between 1947 and 1964 constitute close to one-quarter of the nation's 218 million population.

Single Clue To 1971 Skyjacker

KELSO, Wash. (AP) — The 1971 D.B. Cooper skyjacking remains unsolved, but authorities have announced the recovery of what might be a link in the case.

A Boeing 727 emergency exit placard found in a wooded area near here very likely came from the hijacked Northwest

Airlines jet from which Cooper parachuted with $200,000 in ransom money, authorities said Wednesday. Cooper has never been seen and none of the ransom money has surfaced in circulation. Authorities said the placard could not have come off a plane without the rear door having been opened.

First Step

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says cuts in "unnecessary" Social Security benefits must precede any rollback in the steep payroll tax increases enacted to save the retirement fund from bankruptcy.

In his upcoming budget, Carter proposes eliminating $800 million in Social Security benefits in 1980, it was learned Wednesday. He says his suggested changes would save $1.7 billion in 1981.

The president's proposal comes at a time of increasing congressional support for a rollback of the tax increases.

He proposed phasing out Social Security benefits for college students, eliminating minimum benefit levels and limiting disability payments to 80 percent of a worker's normal earnings, according to sources who asked not to be named.

Late Surge Lifts Heels Past Pirates

North Carolina broke open the battle of the state's second and third-ranked women's basketball teams Wednesday night by outscoring East Carolina 11-2 during a three-minute span late in the game to post a 78-73 win in Minges Coliseum.

The Tar Heel women, now 10-6, trailed much of the game but took the lead for good with 5:48 to play on a basket by Yvonne Burch which made the score 66-65. The visitors reeled off a 9-2 outburst in the next two minutes to clinch the win, its fourth in five North Carolina AIAW Division I games.

The Pirates, now 8-6 overall and 4-2 in league play, were sparked by Rosie Thompson's 27 points and 15 rebounds, but faded in the closing moments.

"We stayed under control during the first half and most of the second, but in the last couple of minutes the turnovers really killed us," said Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi.

"Rosie was super hot outside and that kept us alive. We didn't have any trouble getting the ball up the court, but they pulled us out of our offense. We really didn't get into our offense all night. They changed defense and moved well and we didn't get the ball inside at all.

"It was a tough loss, especially being a conference game at home. I'm sure they'll be on top of us for a while, because I don't see anybody upsetting them."

Five different players scored for the Tar Heels during their late spurt with Linda Matthews' basket at the 2:27 mark providing the largest lead for the winners at 75-67. The Pirates had led by as much as seven points during first half action and held at 38-37 halftime edge.

"I think this was typical of what you will see from East Carolina-North Carolina games from now on, close and welling the first half and most of the second, but in the last couple of minutes the turnovers really killed us," said Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi.

RALEIGH — For the first time since early in the game, N. C. State had the lead, 69-68, and the ball. All the Wolfpack had to do was run 20 seconds off the clock to collect its first Atlantic Coast Conference victory in four starts.

But UNC's Dudley Bradley had other ideas. The defensive stalwart met Clyde Austin at midcourt, made a lightning-quick move to slap the ball away, and drove in to slam the winning points home with five seconds left as the second-ranked Tar Heels defeated the 14th-ranked Wolfpack in Reynolds Coliseum, 70-69.

The crowd of 12,400, most of them screaming State fans, stood in shocked silence, most not moving until several moments after the buzzer, trying to comprehend all that happened in the game's final minutes.

The Wolfpack, trailing 40-19 after a frigid first half, came out red hot in the second period and began to chip away at the Tar Heel lead, despite the fact that Carolina went into its four corners offense with 14½ minutes left to play.

With Hawkeye Whitney hitting driving shots and Kenny Matthews burning the nets with 25-foot jumpers, the Pack fought back to within nine, 55-46, with seven minutes left.

The rally seemed to stall there for several minutes as the Tar Heels hit from the foul line to hold off the charging State team. Rich Yonakor's fourth straight charity shot with 1:55 left gave the Tar Heels a 68-61 lead.

Then the game took an N.C. State turn. Matthews fired in another long bomb from the right side with 1:47 left and Carolina traveled on the in-bounds play. Whitney hit a jumper from the line at the 1:24 mark to make it 68-65.

The Tar Heels got the ball back downtown and Al Wood drove the baseline with less than a minute left, but missed the layup and former North Pitt star Donnie Perkins grabbed the rebound for State.

The Wolfpack missed a jumper, but Whitney grabbed the rebound and was fouled on a follow attempt by UNC freshman Jimmy Black.

On Whitney's first free throw, Black and Matthews got into a shoving match fighting for the inside position on the left baseline and referee Lenny Wirtz slapped a technical on Black.

Whitney made the second of his two-shot foul shots and then dropped in the technical free throw to pull State to within one, 68-67 with 43 seconds left.

The Pack got the ball out of bounds and Matthews hit yet another long jumper with 34 seconds left to give State the lead for the first time since the opening minutes.

The Tar Heels took the ball back downtown and Bradley launched a shot from the left corner with about 20 seconds on the clock. The ball bounced off the rim and Tiny Pinder grabbed it for the Wolfpack. He passed to Austin, who was bringing it up court when Bradley made his facesaving steal.

"That was the biggest steal I ever made in my life," the 6-6 guard said after the game. "I saw Austin coming to me, and when he turned, I grabbed the ball." Bradley, known for his defensive abilities, had three steals in the game, but the last one is the one he'll remember.

Tar Heel coach Dean Smith was a bit surprised that the Wolfpack was able to come back so well. "I expected them to make a run at us, but I thought we could offset that and go back up. I thought we deserved to win it with the way we played, but I'm sure State feels like they deserved to win."

Smith complemented the show put on by Matthews in the second half. The Wolfpack guard finished with 14 points and was 6-8 in the second half, all from long range. Whitney led the balanced State attack with 19, while Pinder and Austin both had 13.

"Matthews put on some shooting exhibition. We played well, but we needed Bradley's steal. We were trying to foul, but Dudley got there first."

Wolfpack coach Norm Sloan said his team might have been trying too hard in the first half as the Pack hit only 30.8 per cent of its shots and was outbounded 22-12 as it fell way behind.

Sloan became defensive when asked why his team used a zone defense in the first half. "We played a great second half, as fine a basketball game as I have seen. I have no explanation other than that. The thinking was that the zone was a good thing to run against them and it was bad thinking."

Forward Mike O'Koren, who was the second-leading Tar Heel scorer with 15 points, injured his ankle with 6½ minutes left to play. His leaving hurt the Tar Heels' four corners offense. "It's a similar injury to what I did last year," he said. "I got by my man and started to go for the hoop, but got tangled up." O'Koren was scheduled for X-rays today. He said the team trainer said it was just a sprain.

Wood led the UNC attack with 21 points, while Bradley had 13 and Yonakor 10. Carolina shot an even 50 per cent, while State was 48.2 per cent from the field, 63.3 per cent in the second half.

The Tar Heels face the possibility playing at Maryland Saturday without the services of O'Koren or guard Dave Colascott, injured in last Saturday's game against Duke.

State, trying to rebound from an almost unbelievable 0-4 start after being picked to finish second in the ACC, will host Duke Sunday.

Gymnasts Host Meet

East Carolina University's women's gymnastics team resumes action Friday night in Minges Coliseum, playing host to Furman and William — Mary. The Lady Pirates will be in action for the first time since participating in a tournament at Georgia College prior to the Christmas Holidays, and coach Stevie Chepko is hopeful that the layoff has helped several injured Pirates recover.

The meet gets underway at 7 p.m.

Conley Rips Jags

FARMVILLE — D.H. Conley's wrestlers rolled to a 42-12 victory over Farmville Central last night to remain unbeaten in Eastern Carolina Conference competition.

The only two Farmville wins came on forfeits. Conley put together victories in the remaining 11 weight classes, including handing Jaguar David Newton his first loss of the year in the 128-pound class.

"It was the best team effort of the year for us," Conley Coach Mike Waller said. "We put it all together and really did the job."

Conley travels to North Pitt on Friday, while Farmville is host to Southern Nash.

Buc Swimmers Among Ranked

East Carolina's swimming team holds down five positions in the current national rankings as released by "Swimming World" magazine.

John Tudor holds two of the five, including ranking fourth in the country in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:39.24. The first place in this event is held by Andy Coan of Tennessee with a time of 1:36.80. Tudor is also ranked 12th in the 100 freestyle with a time of 45.81.

Coan won that event last winter, but teammate John Newton tops the field this season with his 45.06 clocking.

Ted Nieman also holds a spot in the 200 free, ranking seventh at 1:39.67.

Bill Fehling is ranked 14th in the 50 free with a time of 21.09. The best time in this event is 20.56, held by Arkansas' Jerry Spencer.

East Carolina holds the fifth position in the 400-yard freestyle relay with a time of 3:04.89. National team champion Tennessee holds the top position with a 2:56.44 effort.

East Carolina's opponents this winter hold thirteen positions in the national rankings. The top performance by a Pirate opponent is the second place held by N.C. State in the 400-yard medley relay. East Carolina swims the Wolfpack in Raleigh on January 30.

East Carolina's next meet will be at home Saturday against Richmond at 1 p.m. There is no admission charge for the meets.

A TWO-WAY RACE has developed in the Eastern Carolina Conference between Farmville Central and North Lenoir, two teams that have already played each other twice this season and split.

The Jaguars currently lead the league with an 8-1 conference record, while the Hawks follow at 7-2. Both teams have seven conference games left to play.

Farmville was the pre-season favorite this year, while North Lenoir is the defending champion. But both teams have had their ups and downs this season and it appears that neither is going to run away with the regular season crown.

Between them, the two teams have a total of eight losses overall. Farmville is 11-3 and North Lenoir 10-5. D. H. Conley, 6-4 in the ECC could pose a challenge before the season is over, as well as North Pitt, 5-4.

One surprise this season has been the struggling Chargers of Ayden-Grifton. A perennially powerful team, Ayden-Grifton has fallen on hard times this season, winning only two games. The Chargers are 2-7 in the conference and 2-12 overall.

FARMVILLE CENTRAL EDGED North Pitt 53-52 Tuesday night in a physical encounter that the referees very nearly let get out of hand on several occasions. The officiating was inconsistent at best with calls going against both teams.

Emotions were high in the exciting contest and the Jaguars were hit with three technical fouls for unsportsmanlike conduct that almost killed their comeback bid. Luckily, no tempers flared despite an abundance of body contact, as the Jaguars rallied to keep their hold on the conference lead.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE for North Carolina fans this season has been the play of Tar Heel forward Dudley Bradley. Long known for his defensive prowess, Bradley also provided some offensive spark as the Heels rebounded from a loss to Wake Forest last Wednesday and defeated two top 10 teams over the weekend.

The 6-6 senior was 9-12 from the field as Carolina defeated Duke 74-68 on Saturday and Arkansas 63-57 Sunday. He scored 12 points in both games and is averaging 10.0 per game this season.

But his specialty is defense and that's where he really paid off for coach Dean Smith. He had three steals in the last four minutes against Duke and three in the last 5½ minutes against the Razorbacks. Bradley totalled nine steals in the two games and has 47 thefts to his credit this season.

Two of the most celebrated players in the country, Blue Devil Gene Banks and Arkansas' Sidney Moncrief lauded Bradley's play against their teams. "In my mind" he's the best defensive player in the conference," Banks said. Moncrief noted, "Bradley played the best defense I've seen all year."

Bradley held Duke's Jim Spanarkel to 16 points and Moncrief to 19 in the two games.

THE BLUE DEVILS fell to 1-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference with their loss to UNC, putting them in fourth place behind Carolina (3-1), and Maryland and Virginia (both 2-1).

The Blue Devils host Wake Forest tonight and then travel to N.C. State Saturday in two key ballgames. Picked as the top team in the country in most of the pre-season polls, Duke has had its problems this season with consistent play.

Tonight's home game against the Demon Deacons is a must because with the balance the ACC has shown in recent years, teams just about have to win every home game to have a shot at the crown. A home loss almost counts as two losses.

State Of Texas Proves Rough For Arkansas Basketball Team

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The state of Texas has sure been a king-size problem for the Arkansas Razorbacks of late.

The Razorbacks were doing all right until they ran into the Texas Longhorns last week and lost their first basketball game of the season after 10 victories.

That started them on a three-game losing streak, which continued Wednesday night with a 74-69 overtime loss to another team from the Lone Star State, 15th-ranked Texas A&M.

"We got ourselves in a box in the first half by not hitting some easy shots," said Coach Eddie Sutton of his 11th-ranked Razorbacks. "Of course we had several turnovers in the first half, too, so I'm certain that the Aggie defense had something to do with our performance."

Normally a sharpshooting team, the Razorbacks were able to make only 32 percent of their shots. Sidney Moncrief, the team's star, symbolized the Razorbacks' failure with a sub-par 10 points.

"There was something definitely wrong with Sidney tonight," said Sutton. "I've never seen him play like that. He lost the ball a couple of times and missed some easy shots."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 2 North Carolina edged No. 14 North Carolina State 70-69; No. 12 Syracuse routed Siena 144-92; No. 19 Maryland defeated Clemson 77-63 and Missouri upset No. 20 Kansas 58-55.

Tyrone Ladson sank two key free throws in overtime and Rynn Wright made a basket in the final minute to lead the Texas A&M triumph.

Dudley Bradley stole the ball from Clyde Austin and slammed home a dunk shot with nine seconds left to pace North Carolina over North Carolina State in a wild Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Hal Cohen scored 25 points to lead Syracuse over Siena. The point total by Syracuse was the highest in Orange history.

"They are just an exceptional team," said Siena Coach Bill

Kirsch of Syracuse. "I don't think people in the East realize how good they are. We talked a lot about what we had to do before the game and just didn't do it. Our ball-handling killed us. We just weren't ready to play."

Ernest Graham scored 25 points to pace Maryland over Clemson.

Today's Cryptquip clue: Q equals G

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Tonight, Olivia Walton Bidding Goodbye To Family And Series

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's been a rough few years for those of us addicted — secretly or otherwise — to CBS' enduring family series, "The Waltons."

First, our hero, John-Boy, left Waltons' Mountain to chase a writing career in New York; this when actor Richard Thomas decided to leave the show to broaden his horizons.

Then Ellen Corby, who plays Grandma on the show, suffered a stroke, greatly reducing her role in the series. Between seasons, actor Will Geer died, leaving us sad for the man and the beloved Grandpa Walton he portrayed.

And tonight, Mama Walton says goodbye to the mountain.

Actress Michael Learned, who has been Olivia Walton for seven years, leaves the series as a regular performer after tonight's episode. She's leaving partly because she didn't expect "The Waltons" to return next season, which it may not, and partly because of an urge to return to the stage.

"The Waltons" was Miss Learned's first American TV venture. She joined the show in 1973 because she needed money, thinking it might last a few episodes, maybe even a couple of seasons.

"I had just divorced my husband of 15 years, and I needed a job ... I never dreamed the series would last that long."

But one of the strengths of "The Waltons" has been its ability to adapt to and often benefit from changes and adversities among the cast. I've always resented it when, after some real-life complication alters the complexion of a TV series, only casual, passing reference is made to the change and the show carries on as if nothing has happened.

This doesn't happen in real life, and it doesn't happen on "The Waltons," to the show's credit. Difficulties and disruptions are made to work for the show.

When Thomas left the show, John-Boy didn't just vanish into the woods; his character is still heard from in letters and telephone calls. When Miss Corby suffered her stroke, Grandma suffered a stroke; and when Miss Corby's doctor allowed her to return to work, Grandma came home from the hospital.

When Will Geer died, a special memorial show was written as tribute to his character.

Tonight in Miss Learned's tearful farewell, Olivia discovers she has tuberculosis, leaving John Walton (Ralph Waite) to manage the remaining six members of the Walton brood.

Creator Earl Hamner sees Miss Learned's departure as both a loss and an opportunity.

"In those remaining shows this year in which John Walton is left without his wife, he will struggle to be mother and father without her. It places an additional burden upon him, but I think this lends credibility to the show."

Still, we "Waltons" crazies will miss Olivia. Miss Learned, who only came for the money, understands.

"I feel the same way about the show," she says. "I mean, those are my kids ... and I get teary when I watch the show. I don't take it too lightly."

John Wayne Again Fighting 'Big C'

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wayne's latest film role was that of an Old West gunfighter dying of cancer. In real life, he's "licked the big C" before, and now he's battling it again.

Cancer cells were found in lymph nodes near Wayne's cancerous stomach, which was removed by surgeons last week, and doctors said Wednesday there is a "probability that it will spread."

The Oscar-winning actor has been undergoing unspecified treatment since surgery Friday. A spokesman for UCLA Medical Center refused to elaborate on Wayne's prospects for recovery.

Bernard Strohm, medical center administrator, said doctors are consulting on whether more surgery is needed.

Asked if he could offer reassurances about Wayne's future, Strohm said, "I wish I could. Cancer is the type of disease that just doesn't give that option."

"He's been down before and he's come back before," said Patrick Wayne of his 71-year-old father.

Wayne's general recovery from surgery continued to be good, Strohm said. The actor was told about the cancer Tuesday night, and took the news in stride, said his eldest son, Michael.

"He's been down this road before," he said. "We're hopeful."

The actor, who became Hollywood's biggest star through two-fisted roles in westerns and war movies, lost part of his lung to cancer in 1964. Later, doctors told him he had "licked the big C." Ten months ago, he underwent open heart surgery for a faulty valve.

Wayne's latest film was "The Shootist" in 1976. Since then, he has made a number of television appearances.

The latest cancer showed up in tests that were run after a routine gall bladder operation turned into a marathon surgery lasting 9½ hours.

Internship To Wm. T. Martin

ECU News Bureau

William T. Martin, graduate student in Science Education at East Carolina University, has been awarded a stipend from Sea Grant for a Marine Education Internship.

Dr. Carolyn Hampton, program director, will supervise Martin as he develops field materials during the first half of the semester. The second part of the semester will be spent at the North Carolina Marine Resource Center in Manteo under Dr. Lester Picker, teaching groups of school children on marine field trips.

Martin, who has completed student teaching at E. B. Aycock Junior High School, is the first student to serve in the internship under the ECU Leadership Training Program in Marine Education.

Winter Good Time To Check Cut-Over Land

According to Forester Edwin J. Young of the Soil Conservation Service, many North Carolina farmers with cut-over land would probably be surprised to find small pine seedlings trying to grow on land that was cut over several years ago.

"It is important to look at these lands within a few years after cutting," said Young. "Winter is an excellent time, since many of the pine seedlings are overtopped, stunted or lost if not released from competition to underbrush or cull hardwoods. They need full sunlight for best growth."

A forester can help the landowner make a stocking survey to determine if he has enough naturally seeded pine seedlings or saplings per acre to make a future stand of trees.

Often, 300-400 well spaced seedlings are enough, if they are released and given room to grow.

"You may also have too many small pines growing in thick clusters somewhere on your farm," added Young. "You should thin these and give them a chance to grow."

There is a big economic advantage in releasing and caring for natural pine seedlings. One does not have to pay the cost of tree planting or costly site preparation. Loblolly pine is the choice for both the Coastal Plains or Piedmont areas in North Carolina, with white pines suggested for the mountain area for greatest volume per acre and best cash return for the small woodlot owner.

Young pointed out that if one does not have sufficient seedlings, he should plant trees.

"More than three million acres in North Carolina is 'orphaned,' unmanaged, unimproved and neglected' and each year, 135,000 acres are added to this total," said Young. "The nation needs wood and most farmers can really use the money from woodlands."

Forests can be lucrative even for small North Carolina owners. North Carolina is the first in the nation in furniture and markets for sawtimber. Hardwoods are also increasingly in demand as heating fuel.

According to Young, professional assistance with woodland is available in every North Carolina county through the USDA Soil Conservation Service, Extension Service, and the North Carolina Forest Service, free of charge. Consulting or industrial foresters can also provide assistance.

Tax Office Offers Help

Larry Harrison, local Revenue Officer for the North Carolina Department of Revenue, has stated that personnel will be available for assistance in filing State Income and Intangibles Tax returns every Monday until April 15.

The office is located on the second floor, 300 W. First St., with assistance available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Harrison pointed out that taxpayers should bring the pre-addressed forms from Raleigh. Taxpayers filing their own returns should mail those which indicate a refund to the North Carolina Department of Revenue, Post Office Box "R", Raleigh, N.C. 27634.

Other completed returns should be mailed to: North Carolina Department of Revenue, P. O. Box 25000, Raleigh, N.C. 27640.

Keeping Eye On Goodyear Blimp

MIAMI (AP) — Miami police say a special anti-terrorist strike force will keep an eye on the Goodyear blimp and the Orange Bowl during the Super Bowl on Sunday. But there have been no threats yet, they say.

"The whole point of terrorism is publicity. A disruption of the Super Bowl would be a big plus for any of those terrorist groups," said Capt. Mike Gosgrove, who will coordinate the special force. The police say they are aware of CBS-TV's promotion for the movie "Black Sunday," about a terrorist group's suicide mission in the blimp during a National Football League championship game. The movie will air shortly after the game this weekend.

May Wind Up With 4 Stones

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The Garden State may end up with four official state stones to go with its state bug, state bird, state tree, and state animal.

The New Jersey Assembly voted 58-2 to designate the Paliades diabase, the Willemite, the Prehnite and the Belemnite americana as state stones. The bill now goes to the state Senate.

"It's not a frivolous matter," said Assemblyman Harold Martin, the legislation's sponsor. "We have to be proud in New Jersey of things that we have." He said there are state stones, fossils and gems in 36 other states.

Assemblyman Martin Herman said he voted against the bill "because of all the important things we have to do in this state, this ranks as one of the least important."

A Colloquium On Computer Math

The math department at East Carolina University presented a colloquium on computer math on Jan. 16.

Dr. J. M. Ortega, professor of mathematics at North Carolina State University, spoke on "Scientific Computing" which is the area of mathematical science concerned with the best way to enter mathematical models which deal with science and engineering into a computer.

Faculty and students were invited to meet Dr. Ortega at a coffee preceding the speech.

Sunday Service To Honor Deacon

Deacon appreciation services will be held Sunday, Jan. 21, at English Chapel F. W. B. Church, 101 Greenville Blvd.

Services will begin at 11 a.m., with Bishop W. L. Phillips, pastor, and the senior choir and ushers in charge.

At 3 p.m., the Rev. Elisha Crandall and the Rock Hill Choir of Robersonville will be in charge of services in honor of Deacon Thomas Best.

Bishop Phillips invites the public to attend.

Singer-actress Judy Garland was born in 1922.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Rain is expected in the period until Friday morning from the central and eastern Gulf into the lower Midwest where it will change to snow, reaching South

Dakota and Minnesota. Sunny skies are forecast for the West. Most of the country will continue cold. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
A weak cold front began moving through North Carolina today, after touching off some light showers in the mountains during the night. Little in the way of unsettled weather was expected elsewhere as the front moved southeastward and on into the Atlantic.

Behind the front, winds were turning to the northwest and cooler air was arriving. However, temperatures were not expected to drop very much until late this afternoon. By evening, temperatures should be in the 30s throughout most of the state.

Small craft advisories were in effect along the coast and sounds today for westerly winds becoming northwesterly 15 to 25 knots. Northerly winds of 10 to 20 knots are expected tonight and they will shift to northeast 10 to 20 knots Friday.

Also on Friday, a storm system developing in Texas is expected to drift northeastward. Southwesterly winds ahead of this system will draw moist air from the Gulf of Mexico up over the cooler air in North Carolina, increasing our cloudiness and the threat of precipitation.

In western sections, precipitation may begin during the morning hours, starting as snow or sleet in the mountains, and possibly as sleet or freeze-ing rain in the foothills and western Piedmont. Indications are that this should change to all rain by afternoon.

In the eastern half of the state, precipitation should hold off Friday until late in the day or at night. By then, temperatures will have warmed enough to keep the precipitation in the form of rain.

Southwest winds warmed temperatures up to the 60s over much of North Carolina Wednesday, and lows this morning generally were in the 40s. Temperatures were expected to reach the 50s today before beginning to drop with advance of the cold front. Tonight's lows will be mostly in the 20s.

Math Contest Set April 5

ECU News Bureau
The second annual high school mathematics contest has been set for April 5 at East Carolina University.

The ECU contest is one of nine regional contests in preparation for the statewide First Annual North Carolina High School Mathematics Contest scheduled for May 24.

The regional contest will have four divisions: Algebra I and II, Geometry and a comprehensive division. Students will enter the division corresponding with the math course in which they are presently enrolled. The comprehensive division is for students enrolled in a fourth year pre-college math course. Only the winner of the comprehensive division will go on to the statewide contest this year, but the contest will be expanded in the future to include all divisions, officials said.

The competition will be between individual students and also between the different high schools. Schools from 29 eastern North Carolina counties have been invited to participate in the contest. Last year more than 800 students were entered.

Students who wish to enter should make arrangements with their principals. If the school is not participating, individual students may enter by contacting Dr. John Daniels, Contest Chairman, Department of Mathematics, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Demonstrators Given Delay

EXETER, N.H. (AP)—Three Seabrook nuclear power plant demonstrators have been granted delays in their appeal trials until February to give them time to prepare their defenses.

Judge Wayne Mullavey of the Rockingham County Superior Court granted the postponements Wednesday, but refused to drop charges against a fourth demonstrator. The demonstrators were convicted on trespassing charges after an August 1976, protest at the site of New Hampshire's first nuclear power plant.

More Atkinson Family Ring Pleading Guilty

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Leslie "Ike" Atkinson and six members of his family pleaded guilty Wednesday in Wayne County Superior Court to heroin conspiracy charges in connection with plotting to distribute the drug in North Carolina and major Northeastern cities.

Sentencing for the men could begin today after District Attorney Donald Jacobs presents evidence on the Atkinsons' operations to Judge Forrest Ferrell.

The pleas came in the midst of jury selection for the trial of Atkinson and seven others and after three weeks of intensive bargaining sessions between defense attorneys and Jacobs.

Atkinson is already serving a federal prison term on a heroin-conspiracy conviction.

Others who entered guilty pleas Wednesday were Essell

"Red" Atkinson, 56; Dallas Atkinson and Edward Atkinson Sr., Atkinson's brothers; and Larry Drake Atkinson, 28, Jimmy Atkinson, 30, and Phillip Wade Atkinson, 32, Atkinson's nephews.

Michael Otis Arrington, Atkinson's son-in-law, was the only person among the eight who did not enter a guilty plea. His attorney, John Dees, asked that jury selection continue for Arrington alone. Arrington is also already serving a federal prison sentence.

The group was indicted last spring. Six persons had already pleaded guilty, including Atkinson's daughter, Leslie Sharon Atkinson Arrington.

The state recommended Ike Atkinson, 53, currently serving sentences totaling 44 years in federal prison, be sentenced to 12 to 20 years to begin at the expiration of his current sentence. Prosecutors also recommended that Essell, Dallas and Edward Atkinson be sentenced to seven to 10 years and the three nephews be given two-year sentences.

Earlier this month, a man accused of running the Thailand end of Atkinson's alleged heroin ring was expelled from Thailand and was returned to the United States.

The man, James Warren Smedley, a former American serviceman in his 50s, is being returned to North Carolina to face a 1976 conspiracy charge, according to U.S. Attorney George M. Anderson. Smedley was indicted in 1976 along with Atkinson and 12 others by a grand jury in Raleigh on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle heroin. He faces an extradition hearing in Seattle today.

Eatman Article Is Published

ECU News Bureau

Dr. John Eatman, associate professor in the economics department of East Carolina University, published an article on banking in the Winter 1979 issue of the "Journal of Bank Research."

Dr. Eatman collaborated with Dr. C. W. Sealey of the University of British Columbia to write "A Multiobjective Linear Programming Model for Commercial Bank Balance Sheet Management."

The article deals with the use of mathematical programming in the planning for use of funds in potentially conflicting objectives such as maximizing profits and solvency at the same time.
