Khomaini-Backers Parading In Tehran

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A vast outpouring of Ayatollah Khomaini's supporters marched through the streets of Tehran today in support of the religious leader's crusade to make Iran an Islamic republic with a government dominated by him.

Ahmad Pourjani, an organizer of the march, estimated the turnout at 4 million.

Khomaini, the exiled spiritual leader of Iran's Shiite Moslems, ordered the march on the traditional 40th day after the anniversary of the assassination of the founder of the sect in the 7th century. But "the people have been informed that this march is a referendum, and that is why there are so many," said Pourjani. "They want the shah's complete abdication and dissolution of Parliament and the Cabinet, including Bakhtiar."

Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, boycotted by Khomaini as an "illegal" appointee of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, authorized the march, and the army and police were keeping a low profile to avoid trouble.

The demonstrators carried banners reading "Hail Khomaini," "Khomaini Is Our Leader" and "God, Country, Khomaini." The words "Islamic Republic of Iran" were superimposed on a giant Iranian flag carried by a half a dozen brawny marchers.

"This struggle will continue until final victory and the establishment of an Islamic government," said one banner. When one group of youths began chanting "Marg-bar-Shah" (Down with the Shah), a parade marshal rushed up to silence them. But the same chant was heard from others.

Bakhtiar in a nationwide broadcast Thursday night appealed for cooperation to end the chaos paralyzing Iran and warned: "Because of the chaos, the nation is headed for a new type of dictatorship."

"The majority of the demands of...Khomaini have been fulfilled," he said, "and the rest are under consideration...Is it not better that various groups, instead of shouting slogans, take action for the improvement of the economy?"

But Bakhtiar was silent on the ayatollah's chief demands, for the abdication of the shah, establishment of an Islamic republic and installation of a revolutionary government controlled by him.

The prime minister sent a peace envoy to see Khomaini in France, but the ayatollah's aides said discussion of reconciliation was "out of the question." Khomaini also rejected President Carter's appeal to him to cooperate with the government, and an aide said: "Stability and calm will return to Iran when there is an end to interference...by foreigners, particularly the superpowers."

"The Bakhtiar government is declared illegal and must go. No ifs and or buts," said the aide, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh.

The U.S. Air Force evacuated 17 Americans, most of them military advisers, from an Iranian air base in the western oil belt Thursday as troops loyal to the shah battled anti-shah demonstrators in the nearby town of Dezful. It was the second day of such violence in the oil belt, and six to 20 persons were reported killed.

Sees Impact

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina State University economist told legislators today the state can expect to feel the effects of a national recession toward the end of this year.

John Lapp, professor of economics, said the recession may last through all of 1980, and he said some kind of business slowdown is necessary to stop rising inflation.

Lapp's economic predictions, made before the Senate Committee on the Economy, call for a recession as much as six months later than state analysts have calculated in the proposed state budget. Most have said timing of the anticipated recession will be crucial in figuring the state budget and legislators' plans for a tax cut in 1980.

Lapp said he expects North Carolina to suffer a recession at the same time the entire nation does. But he said unemployment is not likely to be as severe a problem in the state, with the North Carolina jobless rate probably remaining well below the national rate.

Lapp also warned legislators not to expect rapid benefits from following the president's anti-inflation guidelines.

"We cannot expect the economy, after a decade of inflation, to turn around overnight," Lapp said.

Growth in North Carolina tax collections can be expected to remain "certainly in excess of 10 percent," Lapp said. That is in line with the proposed state budgets and projections for a small tax cut in 1980.

Economists Cheered By Unexpected Good Data

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Buoyed by a report showing the nation's economy is moving at an unexpectedly strong pace, the Carter administration says the dark clouds of a recession aren't anywhere on the horizon.

"We still don't see a recession — even at the end of 1979," Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps said Thursday.

Backing up that statement, the administration is predicting unemployment will rise only slightly this year, to 6.2 percent, and stay at that figure in 1980, it was learned.

That is well below the prediction of many private economists, who say it will hit nearly 7 percent. The December unemployment figure was 5.9 percent.

Some economists, such as Arthur Okun and Alan Greenspan, say inflation will force the government to tighten credit further.

That would prevent businesses and home buyers from borrowing money and may lead to a recession and more unemployment, they say.

However, Mrs. Kreps told reporters President Carter's anti-inflation program will hold down inflation and make the credit tightening unnecessary.

The administration was encouraged by a report on the gross national product Thursday showing that the nation's economic output in the final three months of 1978 was far stronger than expected.

The GNP, the best measure of the nation's economic health, grew at an annual rate of 6.1 percent in the fourth quarter of last year, the department said.

That is stronger than the 2.6 percent rate in the third quarter and about double early predictions.

While the administration is trying to slow the economy in its fight against inflation, Mrs. Kreps said the fourth-quarter boom would not contribute to inflation.

One of the government's antiinflation moves is to reduce the budget deficit, but two Republicans said Thursday the administration is not doing enough.

Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois and Sen. James A. McClure of Idaho proposed a constitutional amendment to restrict federal spending to one-third of the nation's personal and corporate income.

The GNP report showed that the inflation rate in the fourth quarter was 8.1 percent and prices in 1978 were 7.4 percent higher than in 1977. That was the worst performance since a 9.6 percent inflation rate in 1975.

The report showed that consumers led the fourth-quarter increase by buying more cars and spending more on Christmas gifts.

They also spent more money than they earned, saving only 4.8 percent of their after-tax income. That was the lowest savings rate in nearly two years.

The fourth-quarter statistics brought the total GNP for the year to $2107 trillion, the first time the annual figure has been over $2 trillion.

For the entire year, the GNP rose by 3.9 percent, the rate most economists say is needed to keep unemployment from getting worse. That was slower than the 4.8 percent growth rate in 1977 and the 5.6 percent rate in 1976.

RESIDENTS' PARKING STICKERS

Is there any way Greenville can issue residential parking stickers to allow its residents to park in front of or near their homes? Parking near the East Carolina University campus continues to be a problem 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and has created a dangerous situation near Elmhurst Elementary School where some children are walking and riding bicycles without sidewalks. The university campus, Rose High School and the hospital solve their parking problems with stickers. Why not Greenville residents? E. P.

Hotline talked to City Engineer Ron Sewell and found that no present ordinance allows or calls for such stickers to be issued residents.

"The City Council would have to pass an ordinance to that effect," Sewell said. "My personal opinion is that we would run into enforcement problems with such stickers."

He added that, in Washington, D. C., such stickers are issued to residents each year at a cost of $5.

Concerned residents may call the Greenville Traffic Commission, 752-4137, and offer opinions. If it seems warranted, the commission would investigate the situation and send a report with recommendations to the City Council, he said.

FOOD CO-OP?

I have recently moved to Greenville from Knoxville, Tenn., where I was a member of a food cooperative that saved our family a good bit of money on groceries. I'd like to belong to one here if there is one. J. T.

There is one — the Community Buying Club, which meets each Wednesday from 4 to 6:30 p. m. at 710 Dickinson Avenue. It welcomes new members. Some prices are lower, some comparable to those of local grocery stores, says Jane Arnett, an active member. There is a good line of natural foods kept on hand, she added.

Cost of membership is $5 per family for those under 65, with a reduced fee for those over 65. It's asked that each member family place a $5 refundable deposit, also. For more information, one may call Sam or Jane Arnett, 758-4156.

Israeli Raid PLO Bases

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops swept 13 miles into southern Lebanon today and destroyed two Palestinian guerrilla bases north of the Litani River less than 24 hours after a guerrilla bomb injured 21 Israelis in a Jerusalem market, the military command said.

The raid, the second in three days against guerrilla targets into southern Lebanon, came as the Palestinian parliament-in-exile mapped strategy at a summit in Damascus, Syria, and a U.S. envoy sought a formula to revive the deadlocked Israeli-Egyptian peace talks.

It was the first major Israeli ground attack in southern Lebanon since the Israeli invasion last March and appeared to be the sharpest Israeli reply so far in the latest eye-for-an-eye duel with the Palestinians.

An army communique said parachute units and troops of the Golani infantry brigade, striking under an artillery umbrella, destroyed guerrilla bases near Arnoun and El Ayishiyah, in the stronghold of Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah guerrillas called Fatahland by the Israelis. The communique said the raiders returned to Israel.

Arnoun is about 10 miles northwest of Metulla, Israel's northernmost town in the northeast panhandle, and El Ayishiyah is three miles farther north.

The army said troops fought hand-to-hand with guerrillas at El Ayishiyah, blasting their way into a Fatah headquarters and blowing it up. Al Fatah had said it was responsible for the bomb in a pickle can that exploded Thursday morning in a Jerusalem market, sending shrapnel through a crowd of pre-Sabbath shoppers.

The Lebanese government radio in Beirut said the Israelis struck "civilian and residential targets" in two villages controlled by Arafat's guerrillas. It gave no details of the fighting.

Palestinian sources in the Lebanese capital had no immediate comment on the raid. The Israelis said one soldier was slightly wounded but gave no report of Palestinian casualties. The communique did not say how the raiders reached their targets.

The army also gave no indication of how many men made the raid, but it said 400 guerrillas operated in the area attacked.

Leaving Boat

HONG KONG (AP) — The 3,300 Vietnamese refugees packed aboard the rusty freighter Huey Fong off Hong Kong for nearly four weeks will be allowed to land, reliable sources reported today.

Cheers broke out on the boat as the refugees were informed of the government decision, the sources said.

The refugees will be processed over the next few days, the source said, but it was not known where the refugees would be taken.

The captain of the Huey Fong sailed the battered freighter into Hong Kong earlier in the day in defiance of a government order to set sail, risking a four-year prison term to find a haven for his passengers.

Back To Classroom By Vice Chancellor Howell

Dr. John Howell, vice chancellor for academic affairs at ECU since 1973, has announced that he will return to the classroom as soon as a successor is named.

A search committee will be named to conduct a nationwide search for the university's new academic officer, Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer said.

"Dr. John Howell has rendered dedicated and outstanding service to East Carolina University," Brewer said. "He is one of ECU's greatest assets, and we will count heavily on his assistance in the coming years. My appreciation of Dr. Howell's abilities and humanness knows no bounds. It has been a joy to come to know and work with such a fine man."

It was reported that Dr. Howell had made known for some time his desire to return to the classroom no later than the fall of 1981. He said the reason for the move at the present time is to create stability in the position as the university considers new programs and directions for the next decade. The vice chancellor for academic affairs plays a key role in the university community, and the person who will be charged with implementing those programs and directions has a major voice in determining ECU's path.

Dr. Howell plans to return to his professorship in the Department of Political Science where he has long had the reputation of being an outstanding teacher. He joined the ECU faculty as a professor of government and chairman of the Department of Political Science in 1957. He received the AB and MA degrees from the University of Alabama and the PhD from Duke University.

Howell is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and is the author of several articles in political science journals and co-author of a published monograph in international law.

He is married to the former Gladys David of Jacksonville, Fla., who is a member of the ECU sociology faculty. They have two sons.

Former Lumberton Official Tells Of Kickbacks

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A former member of the Lumberton City Council testified Thursday that he received $100,000 in kickbacks in the early 1970s from the executive director of the city housing authority.

John Bennett, city council member from 1967 to 1971, said he split the money with then housing director, Gerald Hill.

Hill, 42, currently housing director in Beaufort, S.C., is being tried on charges he schemed to bill the housing authority twice for shipments of asbestos tiles.

Bennett has pleaded guilty to 16 fraud-related charges in the case.

Bennett testified in Robeson County Superior Court that on another occasion, he gave Hill $500 to pay for a cruise for a "high-ranking HUD (federal Housing and Urban Development) official and his secretary." He did not identify the official. A HUD official is scheduled to testify today in Bennett's behalf.

In testimony Wednesday, former Lumberton contractor William Sammy Britt told the jury that in 1972 he received $2,100 in payments Hill authorized for freight charges on the shipments. The charges were later found to be prepaid by the shipper.

Hill is charged with three counts of corporate malfeasance and three charges of aiding and abetting false pretense. The charges stem from a 1977 State Bureau of Investigation probe of the Lumberton Housing Authority's activities from 1969 to 1975.

Hill faces a possible 75-year prison term if convicted.

Britt has pleaded guilty to three charges in connection with the SBI probe.

Former acting Housing Director James Lamb was convicted of forgery charges last month.

Oral Screening Being Offered

A new program of community oral cancer screening is being offered through the Pitt County Health Department. Ms. Kathy Pressly, dental hygienist, is coordinating the program.

Regular oral cancer screening is especially needed by people over 50. Oral cancer most frequently starts on the tongue and floor of the mouth and is often unnoticed in its early stages. If detected early, it is easily treated. If a person waits until the cancer has spread, however, successful treatment is less likely.

Some 17 Pitt County residents have died from oral cancer between 1970 and 1977.

The screening procedure is very simple and not at all painful. The mouth is visually observed and examination is made for abnormal conditions. This takes about five minutes. If anything unusual is observed, the patient is referred to his or her dentist.

Any church, social or other organization that would like to have all its members screened may call Ms. Pressly at the Health Department, 752-4141, and she will set up a time to meet with the group.

Smoke Alarms Recommended

According to authorities, most home fires start at night!

At that time, smoke and poisonous gases can overcome and kill members of a sleeping family before they become aware of fire, say specialists with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

A smoke detector is a small investment, but it can save your family's lives. For the best protection, specialists recommend installing a smoke detector of a type approved by the Underwriters Laboratories or some other recognized testing laboratory on each house level.

If you limit yourself to one detector, the best place to install it is on a hallway ceiling in the bedroom area.

Dresses In Spring Fashion Limelight

NEW YORK (AP) — The office dress, the glamour dress, the suit-dress topped by a jacket, the golden-olde movie star dress — the dress, in its infinite variety, is back in fashion for spring, fashion experts agree.

New silhouettes, brighter colors and luxurious-looking fabrics all make the new dresses very wearable and more exciting than ever, they point out.

But many American women, after years of "separates dressing," are unaccustomed to shopping for a dress at all, and selecting a dress that's fashionable and flattering may present a bit of a problem, say the fashion experts at the Fiber Information Center. It's really quite easy, they add.

A dress can be one of the most figure-flattering of garments in a woman's wardrobe. It's all a matter of knowing what to look for in terms of fit, style and fabric.

The Fiber Information Center offers these tips on shopping for a dress.

—A dress can hide a multitude of figure problems. Its one-piece, one-color look can minimize bulges and add a look of length to the body. Bulky, bunchy layers are a thing of the past; this spring's dresses will be pared down to a leaner, more wearable shape and line.

—Prepare yourself for your first dress-shopping expedition by checking a variety of fashion magazines for trend information. Read them for reference, but don't feel you must go to extremes unless you feel comfortable with a high-fashion look.

—Wider shoulders will be a fashion note this spring. Either with padding or by using tucks at the shoulder, most designers will emphasize the shoulders. The effect will surprise you — it can be a slimming look and will help to balance a heavy neckline.

—Check the fabric care labels when you shop. Many luxurious-looking fabrics are actually made from easy-care, manmade fibers like polyester, so don't be put off by a "pamperme" look; the dress may even be machine washable.

—Hemlines will go shorter for spring, especially in designer lines. Seamed stockings can be fun, especially for younger women who don't remember them from the first time around, and textured or colored pantyhose are another way to add to leg interest.

—Choose clearer, truer colors this season. The dusty neutrals of last spring and summer will be replaced by flattering pastels. Hot, tangy brights will make marvelous accent colors.

—Fabrics will be a little crisper than the floppy, rumpled looks of last year. Many of the "linen" looks are fabrics of rayon or polyester, so they'll stay neat after a full day's wear.

—Knife-pleated skirts will be very important in fashion dresses. Polyester or triacetate fabric makes for easy care, since these fibers can be heatset to hold hose pleats permanently.

—Shop at a reliable store, preferably one at which you're known, to be sure they'll back you up if you're not totally satisfied. It also helps to work with salespeople who'll honestly try to help you buy what's suited to you. If you're uneasy with sales clerks, take along a friend whose taste you trust.

In Fatherly Terms, Mother Knows Best

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: BURNING IN SAN DIEGO is upset because her only son is going to assume his wife's maiden name.

BURNING says, "If he doesn't carry on the family name, it will be the end of the family line."

Changing one's name doesn't constitute the end of the line. Genes alone determine a line. Thus a natural child (daughters included) can continue a line, regardless of the married name.

Why don't we emulate the Spanish and use the mother's maiden name as well as the father's?

That seems to be the ideal solution, don't you agree?
LATINO IN ENCINO

DEAR LATINO: Sil! But if only one name is used to carry on the family name, it would seem more logical to use the mother's. One can be absolutely certain who the child's mother is. But sometimes there's a question about who the father is.

DEAR ABBY: Why do you presume that "to be alone at Christmas is sad beyond measure"?

There are many of us out here who yearn to be alone at Christmas. I am one of them. I spent most of my life doing what everyone expected of me rather than doing what I wanted to do.

I've been alone for 25 years, and have used that time imaginatively and creatively. Being alone at Christmas certainly beats the greedy grab for presents and the gobbling of food like a bunch of pigs at a trough.

I think if more of us spent more time alone, we might have a more sane populace than we now have.

One could spend the day alone thanking the Creator for all the blessings received during the past year. Inviting someone to share Christmas with you in order to spare him or her the pain of being alone doesn't mean anything. It's how we treat those around us on all the other days that counts.

CREATIVE SOLITUDE

DEAR CREATIVE: I appreciate your view. Being alone by choice is one thing. But being alone because not a living soul has thought to include you (particularly on a holiday that's traditionally merry) is something else.

DEAR ABBY: Now that I am a parent myself I realize that parents aren't perfect. They may mean well, but they make mistakes.

For example, I am one of four daughters. We were all overprotected, and never allowed to make our own decisions or do our own talking.

I can still remember that, when I was 16, my mother took me to our family doctor for my first internal examination. She held my hand as we went into the examination room and told the doctor that she wanted to stay with me during the examination. Thank God he said no!

Abby, in that doctor's office was the first time in my life I actually had a chance to talk freely and answer questions myself.

I believe we should honor our fathers and mothers, but there should be some rules for parents, too. They shouldn't raise their children as though they are their precious property. They should allow them to grow up in preparation to face the world alone, because one day they will be put to the test.

STRUGGLING IN N.Y.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BLEW IT IN BUFFALO": Quit kicking yourself. It won't help. But commit these words to memory: "We have only one chance to make a first impression."

Says 1979 N.C. Budget Tax Break Is Possibility

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's suggestion that the General Assembly provide a tax break this year instead of waiting until 1980 has met a mixed legislative reception. But one top budgetmaker says it may be possible.

Hunt, in a news conference Thursday, said new economic forecasts for a delay in the anticipated recession may mean the legislature could provide a one-time tax rebate this year.

That came just three days after Hunt recommended a permanent tax cut, raising the income tax exemption for dependents by $400 next year, with an additional $10 to $25 rebate if the state could afford it.

"If the slowdown comes next year instead of this year, we have more money available this year," Hunt said. "Maybe the legislature ought to consider a tax rebate this year."

The rebate met a cool legislative reception, but Rep. Ed Holmes, D-Chatham, chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee, said he agreed with Hunt's suggestion of timing for the rebate.

Holmes said if the increase in state collections this year over the previous year continues at the present rate of 14 percent, "we might very well consider some form of tax relief" in 1979.

"The governor's proposed a $40 million tax cut. If we could add to it, I'd like to do it with permanent relief, and I believe we might be able to do it this year," he said.

Senate committee chairman Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Le-noir, was more skeptical. "All that right now is strictly speculating," he said.

But Hardison said he expected the state would have a surplus of close to $100 million this year.

Hunt, who could seek re-election in 1980, said he originally proposed the rebate for next year because it was believed a recession would severely cut into revenues in 1979.

In other legislative developments:

Upset
Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Orange, and several other members of the joint House and Senate Appropriations Committee on Education put up a protest Thursday when they were told to hurry through their budget deliberations.

Mrs. Hunt said she wanted to hear from some state government department heads and from University of North Carolina President William Friday to explain their budget requests. But leaders of the larger House and Senate Appropriations Committee had instructed the smaller panels — on education and other areas — to move quickly and not take the time to let each department head give a presentation on his budget.

"I was elected just like the appropriations committee chairmen," Mrs. Hunt said. "If you want us to rubber stamp this, we could do that today and not have to meet any more."

Mrs. Hunt was joined by other legislators disgruntled with instructions to rush toward adjournment, and the committee voted to invite Friday to speak anyway. "We were just saying we will not roll over," Mrs. Hunt said later.

Elaborating on Gov. Hunt's recent State of the State message, Betty McCain, chairperson of the North Carolina Democratic Party, expressed optimism for a bright North Carolina future here Thursday night.

McCain was speaking to the Pitt County Democratic Women at their annual dinner meeting held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Citing statistics on the state of Democrats both in the U. S. Congress and the state General Assembly, McCain said she is very proud of the seats won in recent elections and denied any speculation on the demise of the political party system in the United States.

McCain, who will give up her position February 10, revealed that Governor Hunt will make his nominations for a replacement very shortly.

"I just want to say that it has been a real pleasure serving the people of North Carolina," said McCain after her speech last night.

Citing in particular the plights of the younger and older citizens of the state, McCain mentioned programs aimed at improving the lot of both groups.

"One of the greatest assets in this state," said McCain, "is our investment in its people." Two acts mentioned to better this investment were the Children and Family Policy Act and the Policy Act for the Aged.

The first would aim to improve the raising of children in the state. The former would allow for increases in services to senior citizens, allowing them to remain in their own homes and at the same time receive necessary care.

Other business matters discussed at the meeting was the slate of officers for 1979-1980. They are as follows: president, Joyce Hastings; first vice-president, Ann Evans; second vice-president, Rebie Crandol; recording secretary, Aileen Higgins; corresponding secretary, Judy Donnalley; treasurer, Ruth Beddingfield; program chairperson, Myree Hayes; hospitality, Grace Carraway; historian, Artemis Kares; publicity, Freddie Jacobson; precinct chairperson, Willie Mae Carney; chaplain, Mrs. J. B. Spilman; and membership chairperson, Nancy Middleton.

Iran Faces A Vacuum Period

The Shah has left Iran, perhaps never to return. The departure will be hailed by some as a victory for the people. Maybe it is, but it is doubtful that the cause of human rights is going to be advanced by any future government in Iran. The strong likelihood is there will be a period of religious repression that defies anything we interpret as individual freedom.

It is doubtful also that any new regime will be friendly to the United States, and Iran has been a source of oil for our country, Israel and other western world nations.

In sum, Iran is entering a vacuum period and obviously some new governmental force will emerge. Given the strong religious feelings in the nation it wouldn't be very sensible to expect a government in tune with our concept of human rights.

We have never been one of the great admirers of the Shah Of Iran, but by now we should have all learned that toppling a despotic ruler doesn't mean that democratic government is going to follow.

Usually it is the reverse, and an even more repressive government takes over.

Should Aim At Agricultural Efforts

This week North Carolina State University has announced the hiring of a dean for its developing Veterinary School and Gov. Hunt recommended further funding.

It seems that the school will definitely be developed.

It can do a lot of good in North Carolina, but we hope that it will be the school's mission to emphasize agricultural efforts.

North Carolina has a large and growing livestock industry and that is where the emphasis of a new veterinary school should be.

Lessons In A Real World

RALEIGH — Don't leave it all up to educators when the public schools fail to teach the children what they need to know to get along in life.

questions on the test, the students had not made a connection between some classroom or textbook lesson, and getting along in the real world.

cautioned, but it will be largely up to local schools to move in that direction.

"The whole educational group is concerned. They are working hard and are good and committed people.

"We have to learn the weaknesses, and the process to use," Hunt noted.

It is all well and good for officials in Raleigh, members of the State Board of Education, and professional educators across North Carolina to be concerned and committed to figuring out a solution.

Percentages
One commented, for example, that she had never realized that learning to figure percentages was necessary in daily life—determining the amount of sales tax on a purchase, among others.

Spot Failures
But his message is the same regardless of what appears to be needed. Hunt has consistently said, while pushing legislation for the tests and since, that the purpose was not to single out and embarrass individuals who can't pass the test.

The purpose was then and continues to be to focus attention on where the educational system is failing, and what needs to be done about that.

Now, Hunt's message is equally clear: the educators are good and dedicated people, but sometimes in the schools as in any other endeavor it is healthy and productive to have pressure and fresh perspectives from outsiders; in this instance from the parents and taxpayers who pay for the products of the school system.

But after all, students have been graduating from the high schools all along without accomplishing those basic survival skills of reading plain English and ciphering simple math problems. The Competency Test only dramatizes that fact.

Wouldn't this situation seem to indicate that significant changes are essential in the school curriculum so that youngsters could see how their lessons will be important to them all through their lives, we later asked Gov. Hunt.

BILL NOBLITT

The customer, in short, just may be right; and who better than the local customer to let the supplier know that change needs to be made.

Without coming down too hard on the educators, Gov. Jim Hunt feels nonetheless that some outside pressure is required to produce the necessary change.

"I think that is exactly right," he responded. "We have been graduating youngsters without these skills all along.

"All of us who care ought to demand of the local schools that we make the needed changes...both in curriculum and elsewhere when indicated," Gov. Hunt said.

More than just a changed curriculum to point up relationships between classroom drudgery and real-life situations is involved, of course. Textbooks, teacher preparation, remedial training, adult education — a lengthy array of possibilities varying from one location to another.

During his televised conversation with a group of Raleigh high school juniors, the governor was intrigued by a couple of observations that until confronted with

"Yes, indeed. Curriculum changes are going to have to come," he said.

Certainly efforts will be generated from the top to produce those changes, he

THE INSIDE REPORT

Believe Brown Blundered

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s call for a balanced federal budget has evoked a wave of euphoria at the White House — one that could turn to remorse within the next year.

U.S. constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget is perceived by Democratic primary voters as "conservative" — even "right-wing" or "extremist." That view, in turn, is based on the dubious notion that public sentiment for spending cuts and tax cuts is superficial.

There is a dissenting opinion — clearly a minority opinion among practicing Democratic politicians — that may well be dominant among Democratic primary voters: a balanced budget has overriding popular appeal which cuts across party lines and ideological considerations. If so, Brown is preempting the high ground.

At the White House, it was correctly predicted that liberal newspapers would eviscerate Brown. One Democratic operative with no love for Carter who has looked upon Brown as an alternative mourned that "he's running in the wrong election" — in the general instead of the primary — and, therefore, was finished.

The euphoria stems from a conclusion that Jerry Brown has blundered in moving rightward for a possible challenge against President Carter, whose basic weakness within the Democratic party Cartermen perceive to be from the left. With that single stroke, Brown is seen as unwittingly moving Carter to the midpoint of the party, while imolating himself.

Such thinking is not limited to Brown's entourage: Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma, an influential moderate Democrat, is no great admirer of Brown and certainly not a supporter. Nevertheless, he calls Brown's move "a stroke of political genius."

Brown has indeed sliced off his own left wing, John Henning, head of the California AFL-CIO and a longtime Brown booster, was unpleasantly surprised as an invited inaugural guest; he promptly called Brown's speech "warmed-over Herbert Hoover." William Wimpinger, the anti-Carter leader of the machinists union who is an avowed socialist, will find it uncomfortable to keep up his presidential support for Brown.

For this to be valid, however, Carter operatives must be correct in thinking that Brown's support for a

Strength For Today

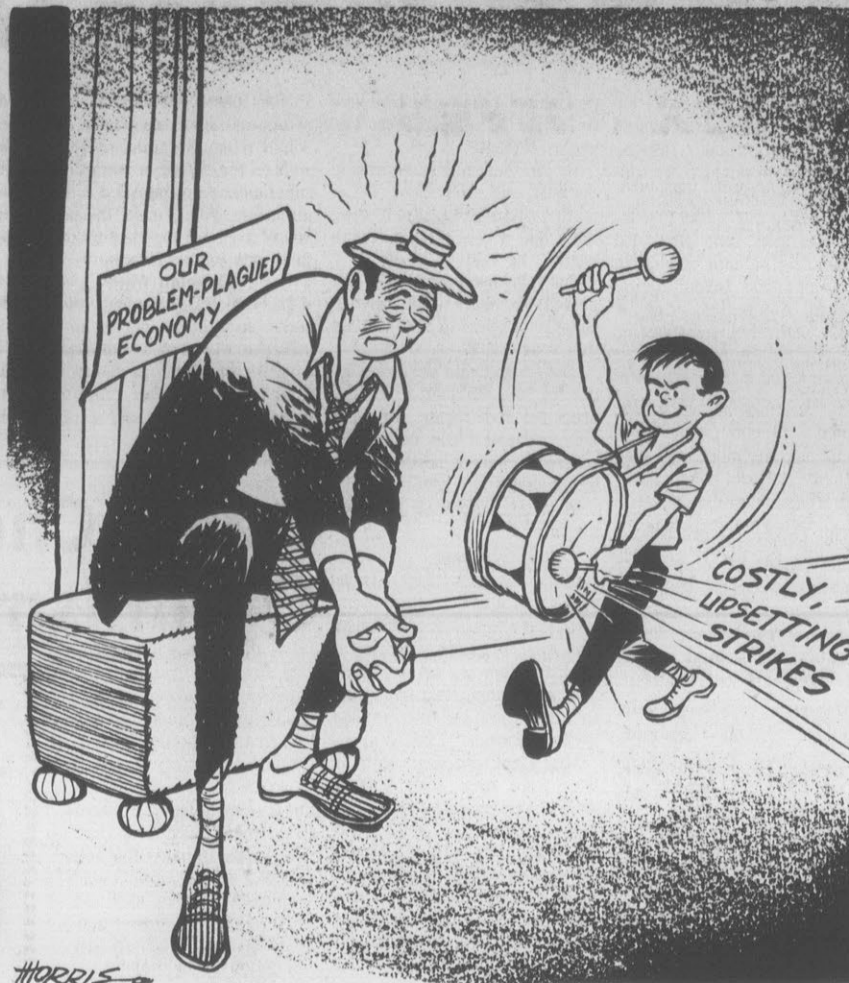

"SEE THOU TELL NO MAN"
Most people enjoy being praised. If they have accomplished something noteworthy, they like to have it known and acknowledged. Yet sometimes the desire for recognition exceeds this normal, healthy state. Some people become so hungry for praise, that they pay no attention to the moral quality of the things they do, but think only of the reputation that these can bring them.

Praise for good deeds is fine, but it is the deeds which are important, not the praise. In this connection it is helpful to recall what Jesus said to a leper he had healed: "See thou tell no man."

And again, we should think of Jesus's parable of the two men who prayed in the temple, one congratulating himself loudly on his virtues, and the other humbly asking God for mercy. Jesus finished the story by saying, "Every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

Can Do Anything, But--

WASHINGTON — "Poor Jimmy," a friend of mine from Georgia said.

"Why do you say 'Poor Jimmy'?"

"Here is a fellow who has arrived at the highest office in the land. As Commander-in-Chief he can call up the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps at a moment's notice. He can tell the Russians to stop messing around in Iran, and lift up the phone and send a flock of F-15s to Saudi Arabia. He can set wage and price guidelines for every man, woman and child in the United States, and by one stroke of the pen sell all the gold in Fort Knox.

"As President of the United States he can do anything he wants to except one thing — he can't control his own brother."

"If the President can't do that," I said, "he's in a lot of trouble."

"It won't come as any big surprise to people around Plains that Billy is out to do in Jimmy. He's been sore since Jimmy became President."

"But why? I should think Billy would be proud."

"No way. Billy is still mad that his mother let Jimmy run for President instead of him."

"I didn't think Billy wanted the job."

"Billy's always wanted anything Jimmy got. He was mad when Jimmy went to Annapolis. He was angry when Jimmy came back to Plains to save the family's peanut business.

"He can't stand the thought that Jimmy doesn't drink. For years his mother's been saying 'Billy, why can't you be more like your brother Jimmy?' The final blow came when Lillian called both boys into the house and said, 'I want one of you to be President of the United States, and it isn't going to be you, Billy.'

"That really ticked Billy off and he said, 'All my life I've been playing second fiddle to Jimmy. You liked him more than you liked me. Even as a kid when we went to school you put more jam on his peanut butter sandwiches than you did mine. How comes I never get to run for President?"

"And Lillian said, 'Because you wouldn't know how to act if you were President. You'd sit in the Oval Office drinking beer all day with your buddies, and then... let's just say you aren't house-trained well enough to live in the White House.'

"Well, you can imagine how this hurt Billy," my friend continued. "He made up his mind at that moment that if Jimmy got to be President he'd make his life miserable."

"He's certainly succeeded," I said.

"Billy couldn't prevent his brother from being elected President but he's determined to see that he doesn't get a second term."

"But Billy's made so much money out of being the President's brother you'd think he'd want him to stay."

"He has made money out of it. But now he's become the country's No. 1 bore."

"People won't even drink Billy's beer, much less pay $2 to see him judge a hog-calling contest in Arkansas. So he's got nothing left to do but offend every segment of the electorate to make sure that in 1980 Jimmy doesn't have a chance of being elected mayor of Plains, let alone

To the editor:
Guess what? The price of lawnmowers is going up. Thanks to the efforts of the latest kid on the bureaucratic block: The Consumer Products Safety Commission. Although overshadowed by the banality of sister organizations such as FDA, headed by Donald "Duck" (as in "Look Out") Kennedy and OSHA, (America's answer to the Third Reich), the CPSC is beginning to make a significant contribution to the bureaucratic dribble (and hence the cost of living) coming out of Washington.

I first became aware of CPSC this past summer when the local radio station blared a warning against snow skiing because many people had broken legs doing so. (Don't worry Aspen, there aren't many snow skiers in Snow Hill, especially in July.)

More recently, CPSC has gotten downright nasty in its edicts. After an extensive study they issued the following decree on the rotary lawn mowers: 1) Do not place hands and feet under mower while running. 2) Do not pour gas on hot engine block. 3) If you must put hands and feet under mower while running, run engine slowly to minimize mutilation. (By the way, for those interested, there are now three job openings at CPSC.)

That's not all. Last week CPSC determined through controlled studies by recognized experts, "the tricycle is unsafe at any speed." Moreover, the CPSC is presently undertaking a study to determine the lethal nature of the grocery cart.

Enough you say. A Naderistic Tool you say. Think again, dumb consumer, for next year Ted Kennedy will try to add yet another silly group: The National Health Insurance Agency. (Ted thinks Proposition 13 is a proposal of marriage) And you can bet you could get cheaper "insurance" from the Mafia.

Those Uncivilized Instincts becomes.

I thought that Meg's rudeness would peak out during the terrible twos. After all, what could be more uncivilized than throwing temper tantrums in the middle of a shopping mall or wetting all over my groceries in the supermarket? But I had no idea what I was in for. At two, rudeness is just a means to an end. The two-year-old doesn't think too much about whether or not his actions distress adults. But for the three-year-old, the effect is everything. If a parent doesn't get upset, then the rudeness is wasted.

Meg has spent the last two months learning to tread the fine line between getting a rise out of me and getting punished. She's at her best a bedtime. At this time she combines speaking and acting rudely so skillfully that she has me hating this nighttime ritual as much as she does.

She begins the ritual by picking up her toys. She picks them up one by one at five minute intervals. The blocks alone can easily take two hours.

"I'm getting tired of waiting," I told her the other night. "Hurry up."

She plunked one block in the can and sat down to rest. "Nope," she said.

Her response had no other purpose than to drive me to the wall. "You know I do not like that word. Nice girls say 'no ma'am,' not 'nope!' And pick up those blocks, or I'm not going to read you a bedtime story."

"Well, I don't want you to read a bedtime story."

I started toward her, and she quickly put five more blocks in the can.

"That's a good girl. Only six more blocks to go."

She glared at me and said loudly, "I need a night night kiss."

"I'll kiss you when you finish."

She just sniffed. "I wasn't talking to you. I was talking to my daddy."

I wanted to throttle her, but I, tried another approach. "Meg, why are you being so rude? People don't like rude little girls and boys. Don't you want people to like you?"

She stamped her foot and shouted, "No ma'am!"

She finally got the words right. So why do I feel as if I'm losing ground?

Some Doubts Expressed Over Pupil Sex Survey

Cambodian Holdouts Embattled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Hundreds of students at Daniels Junior High School were recently asked questions about sex, and the parents of some apparently thought the questions were so personal that they wouldn't allow their children to respond.

The questions were part of a study being conducted by the Carolina Population Center at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"We asked them about their own sexual behavior, their own sexual attitudes and their own background," said Dr. J. Richard Udry.

"The questions are certainly personal — I don't know how you can ask any more personal questions," he said.

The study, commissioned by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is designed to find out what motivates teenagers to become involved in sex at increasingly earlier ages, Udry said.

"We think that you might learn more about adolescent pregnancy if you learn more about adolescent sexuality," Udry said.

About 80 percent of Daniels' 750 students participated. Before any questions were asked, letters were sent to parents explaining the survey. If both the students and their parents agreed to participate, they were given consent forms to sign.

Parents were allowed to look at the questions but were not allowed to see the answers their children gave.

The students were asked questions about whether they had had sexual intercourse, whether they had used contraception, whether they had ever been pregnant and how "sexually attractive" they thought they were, among other questions.

Daniels principal Michael J. Jordan said more than 50 parents expressed objections. They thought the questions were too personal, he said.

"It's been a sticky situation for us," he said. "I've had some parents call just to check on the situation and they thought it was a good thing. But the vast majority have been negative."

Udry said, however, that the surveyors had few refusals from parents and students. He added that the center has applied for another grant to extend the study to schools in other areas and other states.

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported in Cambodia today between Vietnamese forces and holdout troops of the fallen regime at the coastal port of Kampot, around nearby Kompong Som and in half a dozen areas across the country.

Thai and Western military analysts said Vietnamese warplanes were flying repeated strikes against Kampot, 90 miles southwest of the capital of Phnom Penh on an estuary of the Gulf of Thailand.

The city had been reported taken by the Vietnamese who invaded Cambodia Dec. 25, but the analysts said the Vietnamese were now facing stiff resistance from units loyal to ex-Premier Pol Pot who were bypassed in the conventional-style, armor-led thrusts.

Another coastal area around Cambodia's only deepwater port of Kompong Som, 80 miles west of Kampot, was described as "highly contested" by the analysts, who also reported outbreaks of fighting in half a dozen areas across Cambodia.

The radio station of the toppled government, believed broadcasting from China, claimed that Pol Pot forces were still fighting "vigorously" on battlefields around Phnom Penh, but the new leaders have made no mention of this or any other reported resistance.

Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan cut short his official visit to Japan by two days and flew back to Bangkok today to deal with any emergencies arising from the conflict in neighboring Cambodia.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

A chance of rain, mainly in the east, Sunday, becoming partly cloudy Monday and Tuesday. Highs mostly in the 50s on Sunday and Monday, except low 60s in the southeast. Ten degrees cooler Tuesday. Overnight lows in 30s throughout except in the mountains.

So far the frontier fighting has not spilled over into Thailand and few expect that it will, although some predict a new wave of refugees may cross the frontier.

Border authorities said about 300 Cambodian soldiers, some of them armed, escaped into Thailand's Surin province Thursday. It was the largest group of Cambodians reported have fled since the Vietnamese attack began.

Little is known about the remaining strength of the Cambodian army, which once was estimated at up to 100,000 men equipped with tanks, long-range artillery and some aircraft by the Chinese.

The Kampuchean (Cambodian) United Front which the Vietnamese installed in Phnom Penh has been claiming complete control of the country. SPK, the new Phnom Penh news agency, reported today that the Front's vice president, Chea Sim, visited Kompong Cham province in eastern Cambodia, where local organizations are trying to restore production and order. SPK said he was warmly received at Chup, site of a rubber plantation fought over in the 1970-75 Cambodian war.

The Front set up a People's Revolutionary Council as a provisional government in Phnom Penh, but there has been no indication when it would organize a full-fledged government. It is headed by Heng Samrin, who like Chea Sim is described as a Communist official of the ousted regime who broke with it some months ago.

To Vote On Bus Strike

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Union bus drivers will vote today or Saturday on a proposed contract, according to a union official.

The United Transportation Union and bus company officials reached a tentative agreement Thursday in the 54-day old Charlotte bus strike.

If union members vote to accept the proposed contract, the buses could be rolling again by Monday.

Ken Moore, international vice president of the union, said his members will be voting today or Saturday.

One driver who refused to be identified said, "I've talked to 50 drivers and I'll bet we'll be rolling Monday morning."

The union went on strike Nov. 26, five days after the old contract expired.

Moore and Jerry Olsen, general manager of Transit Management of Charlotte, which runs the city-owned bus system, announced the agreement Thursday night after three days of bargaining.

Moore and Olsen wouldn't comment on the terms of the proposed agreement until union members vote on it. After the announcement, Moore said, "A union person is not always satisfied, but I think (the agreement) is fair and reasonable."

Olsen described the agreement as "fair and equitable," and promised to restore service as soon as possible, if the proposed contract is accepted.

To Probe Effect On Ozone Layer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency is to send a satellite into orbit next week in an effort to determine the effect of such things as gases from aerosol spray cans on the Earth's ozone layer. The satellite is designed to help find out if, as some fear, the ozone layer in the stratosphere is being depleted by those gases, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Thursday.

there generally regard Brown's position as likely to expand his support. James Clark, Maryland state senate president and an early Carter booster, is sponsoring the balanced-budget constitutional amendment and obviously does not consider it extreme.

While liberal activists believe Carter has mercilessly slashed federal spending, there is skepticism in the country about how draconian any budget can be with a $30 billion deficit. The Democratic Research Organization, composed of moderate-to-conservative Democratic congressmen, is among the skeptics; while many of its members regard Brown as an opportunist, they are inviting him to Washington in order to hold the president's feet to the fire.

The charge of opportunism is why those Democrats who feel Brown is on the right track believe he cannot succeed because he got there too late. They may be making the same mistake as California Republicans who believed Brown hopped on the Proposition 13 tax-cutting bandwagon too late to score last year's landslide reelection.

Actually, Brown came into his first term four years ago promising to outdo his Republican predecessor, Ronald Reagan, in parsimony. The real question is how serious voters really are about reducing government spending. The answer is enough in doubt to suggest that euphoria is not the proper emotion as Carter's men look westward.

BB&T Begins Building New Office Here Natural Gas Allocation

For N.C. To Be Raised

BB&T OFFICE...The design of Branch Banking & Trust Company's new office at the corner of Green and Third Streets is indicated in this artist's sketch.

The facility is expected to be completed in the late fall.

Branch Banking and Trust Co. has begun construction on its third office in Greenville, located at the northwest corner of Green and Third Streets.

William D. Mitchum Jr., vice president in charge of BB&T's Greenville offices, said that the building will be of contemporary design with a large portico providing cover for two cars at the drive-in facility.

The exterior, Mitchum reported, will be buff colored Indiana limestone with a vertical ribbed pattern. Windows of bronze glass with bronze color aluminum frames will complement the limestone color, he noted.

Landscaping surrounding the two-story building will feature flowering dogwood, weeping cherry, goldenrain, birch and magnolia trees.

Mitchum said it is anticipated that the building will be completed in the late fall.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A change made Thursday in the natural gas allocation formula will give North Carolina a 30 percent increase in natural gas supplies over last winter, according to the state Utilities Commission chairman.

Robert K. Koger said the state will receive a 13 percent increase in natural gas supplies as a direct result of the change. The state's supplies had already been increased by previous rulings.

"The settlement announced by the Federal Energy Commission means that the state will be getting a 13 percent hike in gas supplies, which adds up to a 30 percent increase over last year," Koger said.

Koger said the FEC order means gas prices will be slightly lower than they would have been without the change. He said the cost reduction will be about $4 a year for a typical residential customer.

The order also means that North Carolina gas companies will be able to extend residential service to new areas and to renew supplies to industries, many of which have been forced to switch to other fuels, the state commission said.

North Carolina will get a larger share of the gas supply than it would have under the old allocation system of any increase in supplies to Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., the state's only supplier.

The order is retroactive to Nov. 1.

The federal commission's order was the result of a ruling last summer by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington that the old allocation formula was unfair to North Carolina. The order creates a permanent, new allocation formula for Transco customers.

Because of the order, North Carolina distributing companies will not have to buy more expensive emergency gas supplies at unregulated prices. In addition, the increased supplies will mean that gas companies will be able to spread their fixed costs over more gas, further reducing the price.

"We think the settlement holds the promise, together with Transco's improved supply situation, of bringing stability and certainty to Transco's curtailment situation for some time into the future," the state Utilities Commission said John H. Maxheim, president of Piedmont Natural Gas Co., said the increase was enough to "take care of all of our growth requirements," including extending gas to new residential areas and supplying high-priority industries.

Computer Intern Program Begun

ECU News Bureau

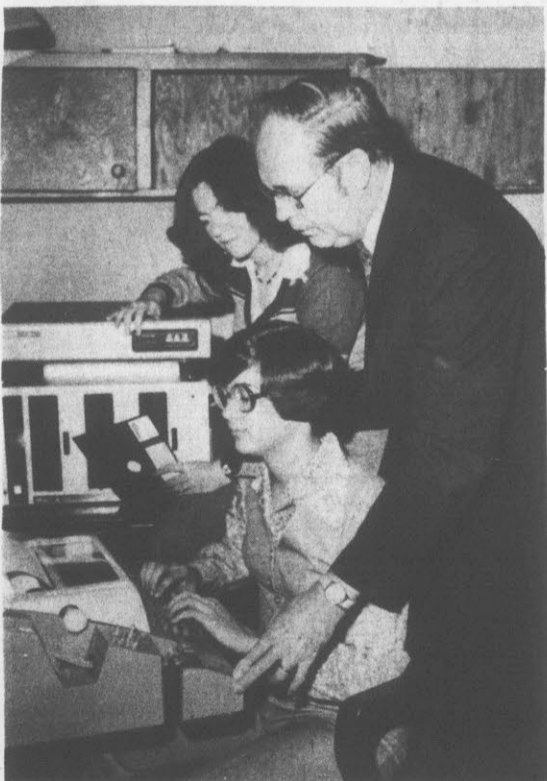

East Carolina University's Department of Mathematics and Burroughs-Wellcome Corporation of Greenville have jointly developed an internship program for ECU students with advanced courses in computer science. Participants in the program will work on designing specifications for data management systems being developed in the research laboratories at Burroughs-Wellcome.

According to Dr. Robert Shock, chairman of the ECU mathematics department, the program, supported by a Burroughs-Wellcome grant, a student who participates in the program works nine hours per week for one semester and upon completion of the project earns credit at ECU.

Joint developers of the program, Dr. F. Milam Johnson, professor of mathematics at ECU, and Burroughs-Wellcome, announced that computer science majors Debra Grafton and Kathy Suggs are participating in the program this semester.

Dr. Johnson selects program participants on the basis of their grades, abilities to be innovative in new situations, and inclination toward self motivation.

Charles Ibele, Section Head in the Automation and Minicomputer Department at Burroughs-Wellcome, and Dr. Johnson supervise the students and also select the projects from a list prepared by Burroughs-Wellcome. Projects included can be completed in one semester.

Squirrel Is Out Of Bind

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Somewhere in Duke Forest resides a squirrel who is finally out of a bind.

And he can thank his lucky stars for it — Martha Stars, that is.

It all began about a week ago when Mrs. Stars spotted a squirrel pilfering her bird feeders, a not unusual occurrence. But Mrs. Stars noticed that this squirrel had a small, plastic band encircling his body, just in front of his hind legs.

"I kept seeing the little fellow for the next three days and kept wondering if there was something I could do about that plastic band," Mrs. Stars said.

"He was so pitiful, I knew I had to catch him ..." she said. Mrs. Stars called the Durham Animal Protection Society, which responded by sending out a squirrel trap.

"I must have caught every squirrel in the forest before I got him. He would walk up to the trap, reach in, take the pecans I had left, but he never would go in," she said.

Finally, Mrs. Stars said, the banded squirrel stepped into the trap and was caught.

Mrs. Stars said that when she examined the squirrel, she found that the band had started to become embedded in his skin and that all the fur around his midsection was worn away.

"I just took a pair of scissors and cut it off," she said.

Mrs. Stars theorized that the band came from the plastic rings used to hold six-packs of beer or soda together. She thinks the squirrel put his head through the band, which got stuck.

After a few days of treatment by the folks at the Animal Protection Society, the squirrel was set free. Mrs. Stars said she saw the animal a couple of days ago, back pilfering bird feed — but unencumbered.

Two From Pitt In Special Olympics

Two Pitt County young men and one from Wilson are among the 150 Special Olympians chosen from seven southeastern states to take part in the second annual Southeast Regional Special Olympic Winter Games.

James Lancaster of Greenville, Steven Baker of Winterville and Ben Crawley of Wilson are the three from the 20-county area of Northeast North Carolina selected to represent over 2,500 of their peers from this area.

They will be competing in the Special Olympic Winter Games opening Sunday, Jan. 21 and continuing through Thursday, Jan. 24 at the French-Swiss Ski College in Boone, western North Carolina.

Competitors will receive three days of training in alpine skiing before taking part in alpine racing on courses designed for their particular abilities.

The French-Swiss Ski College was chosen as the Winter Games site because of its extensive programs for the handicapped and its experience in designing programs for persons who have never participated in winter sports.

Special Olympic Games were initiated in 1968 by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation with the purpose of giving handicapped a chance to learn skills that will make them more useful, contributing citizens. In ten years, Special Olympics has become the foremost program of recreation and sports training for the handicapped.

An Old Way Of Life Is Abandoned

BY DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — The old-timer squinted against the thin rays of the winter sun for a last look at his island home. Then, he boarded the boat for the three-quarter-mile trip into the 20th century.

"I shall return," he said, unconsciously echoing the words of a famous American general in the war-battered Philippine islands 37 years ago.

"I will be back with the swallows," the old-timer said.

For the 15 families — 60-odd persons — on the tiny island of Turbot off Ireland's western seaboard, the first days of winter meant an end to a centuries-old way of life.

After generations of struggle against the fury of the elements, battering by Atlantic waves and isolation by gale and storm, the island's inhabitants were moving to the mainland.

"We could stand it," one old-timer muttered as he left, "but the youngsters need something better."

Martin Ward, 84, the oldest resident was not enthusiastic.

"I don't like the change, and I won't like it," he said.

On the island they left behind them, there were no shops, no bars, no doctor, no veterinarian for their few cattle and sheep, no priest, no social amenities of any kind.

"We were too busy staying alive to bother about such things," one of them said. "It may be different now, but I will miss the old ways for all that."

The island homes are clustered around the slipway, the lifeline to the mainland. From it the islanders had to ferry across the treacherous seas all supplies, including peat, once the mainstay industry of the island, but now long exhausted.

A stone-piled graveyard at one end of the island testified to the toll of the storm-tossed crossing — one gravestone followed another with the words "...who died by drowning..."

At the other end was the tiny school which catered to just a dozen pupils.

"Island life is not for the young," said Festus Conneely, himself a bachelor. "They deserve their chance on the mainland."

Once Turbot was the most densely populated of the small islands lying off the western coast. Ironically, it was the black famine of the mid-19th century which swelled its population to a peak of 400 souls.

The famine, which wasted the countryside when the potato crop failed, hardly touched Turbot with its rich yield of fish around its shores.

Across on the mainland the Turbot families were among their own kind in the village of Cleggan where they were given houses and small plots of land.

Many of the Cleggan families are themselves refugees from other small islands handed back to the sea and the wind.

From the village, old men walk to the edge of the sea and gaze wistfully back at their islands.

"We'll go back some day," they pledge, each to the other.

But deep in their hearts they know the angry roar of the sea gives the lie to their words.

Published By Journal

ECU News Bureau

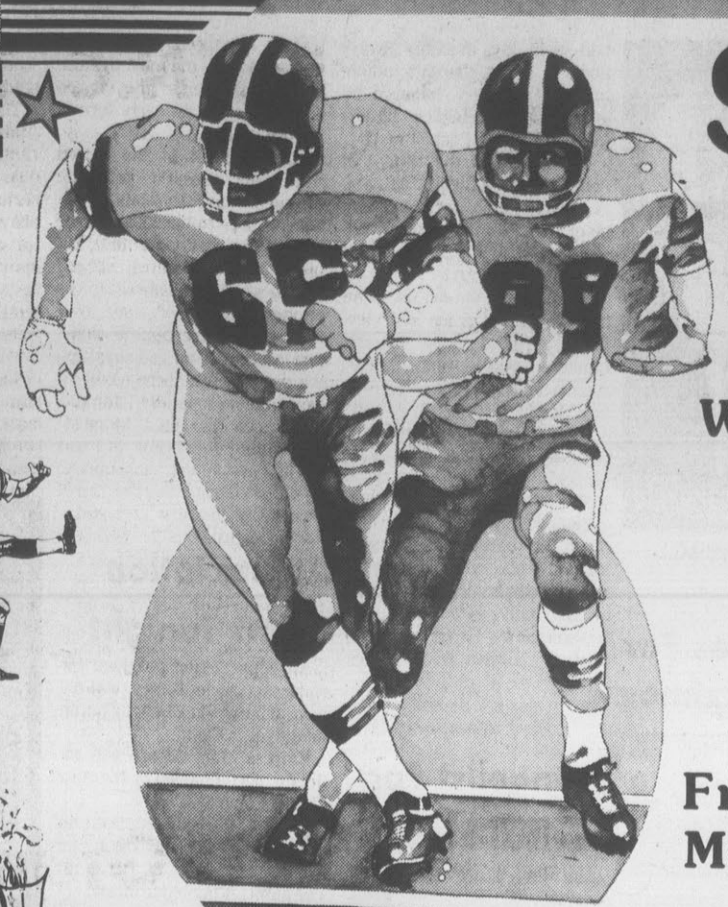

William Bloodworth, associate professor of English, East Carolina University, published an article in the Fall, 1978, issue of MELUS, which is the journal of the Society for the Study of the Multi-Ethnic Literature of the United States.

The article, "Varieties of American Indian Autobiography," discusses a neglected area of American literature. The autobiographies published by such authors as Charles Eastman, Black Elk, John Fire (Lame Deer) and Scott Momaday tell the story of the American Indian through their own lives.

Prayerful Decision By Mormon Leader

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

SPENCER W. KIMBALL

Long, inner struggle and an extraordinary round of prayer led to the decision to admit blacks to the Mormon priesthood, relates church president Spencer W. Kimball. He says the answer came so clear it couldn't be questioned.

The leader of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in its official weekly, Church News, last week gave the first detailed description of the soul-searching process which resulted last June 9 in the abrupt change in the church's racial policy.

It happened, he says, after he had spent days in lonely prayer about it in the church's temple in Salt Lake City, followed by an unusually extended gathering there of his Council of 12.

"I knew that the time had come," says Kimball, 83, who is considered prophet, seer and chief revelator of God's contemporary will for the 4-million-member church.

He disclosed the details in an hour-and-a-half group interview for a special issue of the church publication, commemorating his first five years in office.

His presidency, coming after he had undergone open-heart surgery and suffered a bout with throat cancer, had "seemed likely to be pretty much a caretaker administration," observes William B. Smart, editor of the church-owned daily newspaper, the Deseret News. Smart adds that instead, Kimball's "administration has been, simply and unequivocally, the most dynamic five-year period the church has seen since its early formative years."

The highlight of the period was the church's dramatic change in the rules of its priesthood, closed to blacks since the church was founded in 1830, but under the new decree, opened to "all worthy males regardless of race or color."

"I went to the temple alone, and especially on Sundays and Saturdays when there were no organizations in the temple, when I could have it alone. It went on for some time as I was searching for this, because I wanted to be sure," Kimball said in the interview.

Then, he added, came a "meeting of the Council of the 12 in the temple on the regular day. We considered this very seriously and thoughtfully and prayerfully. I asked the 12 not to go home when the time came. I said, 'Now would you be willing to remain in the temple with us?' And they were."

"We had this special prayer circle. Then I knew the time had come. I had a great deal to fight, of course, myself largely, because I had grown up with this thought that Negroes should not have the priesthood and I was prepared to go all the rest of my life till my death and fight for it and defend it as it was.

"But this revelation and assurance came to me so clearly that there was no question about it."

Retirement Not 'Mandatory'

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Bishops and other ordained clergy engaged primarily in "customary sacerdotal and pastoral functions" are not covered by federal legislation raising the mandatory retirement age from 65 to 70, a United Methodist official reports.

The Rev. Ewing T. Wayland, chief executive of his denomination's council on finance and administration, says that conclusion was set forth in a letter from the U.S. Labor Department in response to his request for an interpretation of the new law.

However, the department said that non-ordained persons employed by the church are covered by the new federal legislation.

Older Women Church-Goers

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A study by two sociologists at Texas A&M University finds that women, especially those aged 65 and older, attended church more often than any other group in the United States.

However, the churches tend virtually to ignore these older women, leaving a vast resource of members untapped, report husband-and-wife researchers Jon and Letitia Alston.

New Duties For Bishop Maximos

NEW YORK (AP) — Bishop Maximos this week took over his new duties in Pittsburgh as the spiritual leader for Greek Orthodox's sixth archdiocesan district.

To assist him in his new episcopal post, the Rev. Constantine Volaitis, a long-time pastor in Flushing, N.Y., was appointed by Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos to serve as Maximos' chancellor.

Geysers have been spouting for centuries, periodically relieving the pent-up pressures from hot subterranean springs. For some people letting off steam at regular intervals is now a way of life.

Only when man developed the steam engine did he begin to understand what geysers were all about. Are there other secrets of Life and the Universe which we'll comprehend only when we start seriously to work with them?

The Power of God is all around us... evident in every wonder of creation.

Yet only when we seek that Power as the motivating force in our life, do we begin to sense its nearness, its soul-stirring effect. Then that vast, mysterious Power becomes suddenly warm and very personal.

You'll begin to know that Power when you enter the door of your church.

Keeping The Mob Out Is A Major Casino Concern

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — It has been less than a year since legalized gambling started in Atlantic City, N.J., but already there are echoes of a fight waged in Nevada for three decades: the fight to rid Nevada's billion-dollar casino industry of mob influences.

And developments in the past year show the problem still exists.

Of course, it's different now from the 1940s, '50s and '60s, when mobster Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegal and others of similar ilk ran some major clubs, mainly in the Las Vegas area.

But it's clear the efforts to weed out unsavory types never really end.

This week, in Atlantic City, the one casino to open since gambling was legalized is fighting to remain in business.

New Jersey Attorney General John Degnan is urging denial of a request to change Resorts International's temporary license to a permanent one, based on allegations of mob ties, association with persons of questionable character, and mismanagement of casinos in the Bahamas and Atlantic City.

State Casino Control Commission hearings on the request are expected to last two more weeks.

In Nevada, the latest in a long series of steps to curb alleged mob influence was taken by the state Gaming Commission as recently as early December, when Anthony "Tony the Ant" Spilotro was listed in Nevada's "black book" of unsavory types barred from casinos.

Gambling itself has been a part of life in Nevada ever since the rich Comstock Lode (silver and gold) was discovered in 1859. For the next 70 years, a hodgepodge of confusing gambling laws was largely ignored — until Nevada solved that problem by legalizing gambling throughout the state in 1931.

More than a decade passed before Siegal built his Flamingo Hotel, the gaudy prototype of the modern Las Vegas hotel-casino. But when he did, he had borrowed $5 million from underworld colleagues — and in 1947 was shot to death in the Beverly Hills home of his girlfriend.

Writer Bob Laxalt, brother of U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nevada, has written in a book, "Nevada, a History," that Siegal was assassinated for the "in-discretion" of accusing Mafia figure Lucky Luciano of failing to get organized crime to help him further develop the casino interests.

The Flamingo, however, was a success, and that attracted other underworld figures — who in turn attracted the eye of the Kefauver committee on organized crime, whose hearings started in 1950.

The committee said it appeared clear that too many underworld types were running clubs. The state, faced with the prospect of federal intervention, set about to tighten its gaming control mechanism.

Major improvements were made in 1955 and again in 1959, resulting in a separate gaming commission and gaming control board to regulate the industry. Tough standards, improved gradually over the years, have survived several court tests, one reaching the U.S. Supreme Court.

During the 1960s, syndicate control over casinos began to be replaced by large corporate investments in casino properties, the largest made by Howard Hughes in the mid-60s.

But organized crime problems surfaced again in the late 1960s and early 1970s, with issuance of indictments against several casino operators for skimming, or taking part of casino revenues before they are officially recorded on the books. Millions of dollars were reported skimmed for such uses as narcotics and white slavery in other parts of the country.

So, once again, Nevada tightened its controls, this time with new bookkeeping procedures and stepped-up surveillance in casino cash-rooms. But still there are problems. In the last year alone there have been:

—The Spilotro case, recently, federal Strike Force attorneys claimed Spilotro had a hidden interest in Argent Corp., which owns the Stardust and Fremont hotel-casinos in Las Vegas. Spilotro is also reportedly tied to the Chicago "Outfit" viewed by some law enforcement officials as a dominant criminal power in this country.

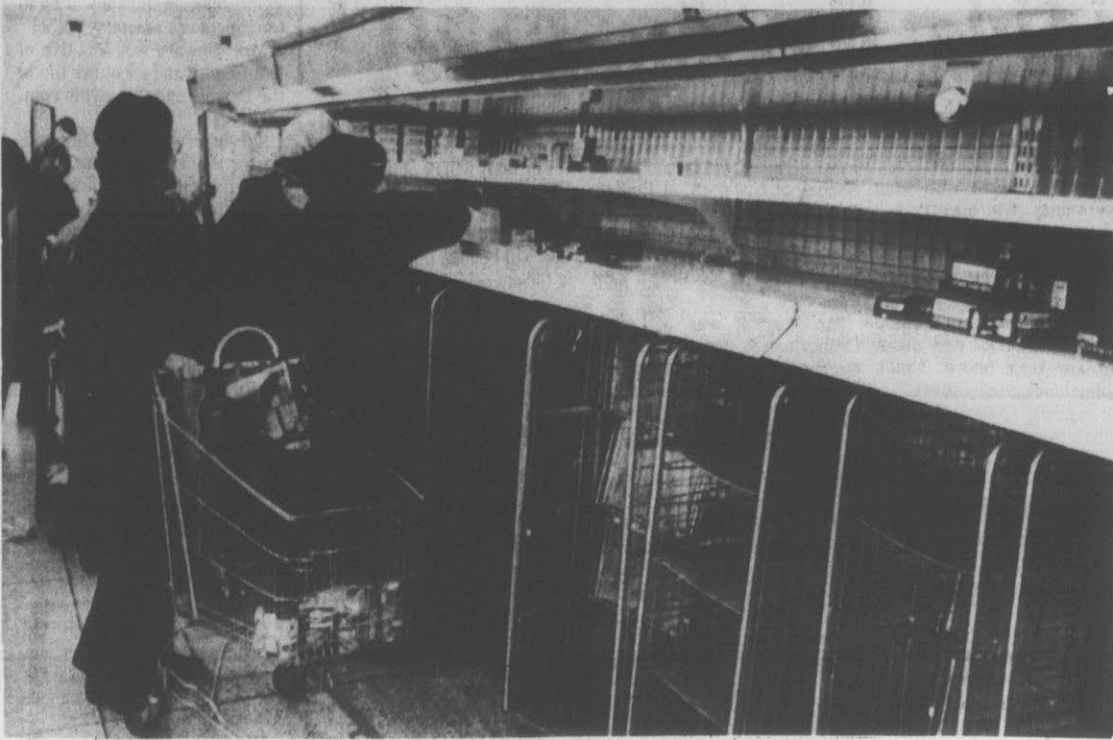

—The related case of Frank "Lefty" Rosenthal, who in December was ousted by the Nevada Gaming Commission from his job as a Stardust executive on grounds that include alleged links to organized crime. Special prosecutor Pete Echeverria said Nevada's image had been "damaged horribly" by stories concerning Rosenthal, including one account that police surmise Rosenthal could have had a hand in the gangland-style killing of Tamara Rand, a San Diego woman who had financial dealings with Rosenthal's boss, Argent chief Allen Glick.

Glick's own activities are under investigation — and have been for most of the six years of his involvement in Nevada's casino industry.

—The case of James Tamer. In August, the commission decided to block him from working as a casino executive at the Aladdin hotel-casino in Las Vegas because of allegations of ties to Detroit mob figures. Tamer went on trial this week in U.S. District Court in Detroit on charges of conspiring to secretly manage the Aladdin. An FBI affidavit filed in the investigation that led to the charges said an informant told an FBI agent that Tamer was running the Aladdin for Vito "Billy Jack" Giacalone, a reputed Detroit Mafia leader.

Despite the current activity, Harry Reid, chairman of the Gaming Commission, says that in general Nevada's gambling industry is clean — although the 1978 activity shows mob influence is still a worry.

BARE SHELVES — English housewives search almost bare shelves of a south London supermarket as the effects of Britain's truck drivers' strike began to be felt in the city. Drivers were on a

Irate Housewives Lead Backlash Against Union

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Angry housewives are leading a backlash against striking truckdrivers threatening Britain's food supply and its industry.

They have organized rallies and marches, counseled hanging yellow dustcloths from windows as a protest symbol, and even suggested suspending conjugal favors.

"It doesn't matter what party you belong to. The unions have become an absolute menace. I'd like to say 'go to hell' to the whole lot of them," declared Diana MacFadyen, a Greenwich mother of three.

Olive Avery of Manchester founded HAG, the Housewives Action Group, and scheduled a march today.

"We are not necessarily anti-trades unions, we just think that the time has come when everyone should stop thinking about themselves and start thinking about the country," she said.

In Liverpool, Beryl Phillips organized Housewives United and called a rally for Sunday. "It will be up to each woman how she makes her point. Some may want to stop feeding her man. Others may withdraw conjugal rights," she said.

Truckers aren't the only ones on strike, and three housewives in the Manchester suburb of Mossley found their own way of dealing with a water supply workers' walkout there.

A leaking water main threatened to flood their cellars, so in two 12-hour days they dug a trench 30 feet long and three feet deep, exposed the faulty pipe and then hired a non-striking plumber to fix it.

Despite scarcities of some items caused by the truckers' strike, the food shops and supermarkets of Britain showed little sign of serious food shortages.

One London shop even posted a tongue-in-cheek sign reading: "Panic Buying Welcome."

Haulers End Their Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The leader of dissident steel haulers says the group's nine-week strike brought "a victory" for the drivers he represents.

William J. Hill, chairman of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, said Thursday a back-to-work vote was approved 285 to 15.

"We felt that we came out of this with not a total victory, but a victory," Hill said, claiming progress was made on some FASH demands, which included streamlined highway rules, more money and bargaining rights.

Hill, who had twice been ordered by U.S. District Judge Louis Rosenberg to end the strike, could have been jailed if members had refused to end their work stoppage.

Hill said FASH would continue to work for "the right to represent our people and direct our own destiny." He said another strike was possible unless Teamsters make some concessions to FASH drivers.

The Teamsters represent some FASH members in contract negotiations.

Pardon-Selling Scandal Spreads In Tennessee

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

Gov. Lamar Alexander grappled today with the status of prisoners granted clemency by his predecessor as the state's pardon-selling scandal sprawled into federal and state courtrooms and the Legislature.

The federal presence in Tennessee broadened, with the disclosure that a federal grand jury in Memphis was reportedly investigating the awarding of liquor licenses and highway contracts.

In today's editions, The Tennessean quoted Justice Department officials as saying the federal investigation now includes "federal highway contracts and a whole range of federal programs."

A federal grand jury reconvened in Nashville Thursday to investigate the alleged pardon and parole selling. FBI agents were at the state Capitol late Wednesday through early Thursday to make sure no documents were removed that might be needed in the investigation.

Tom Ingram, administrative aide to Alexander, said the FBI agents had seized no records.

Alexander took office late Wednesday in a hastily arranged swearing in designed to block former Gov. Ray Blanton, a Democrat, from ordering the release of more convicted criminals. Early this week, Blanton granted clemency to 52 inmates, including 24 murderers.

In other developments: —Arguments were scheduled before three Criminal Court judges today on whether Blanton's right to free prisoners without parole board recommendation is subject to a court challenge.

—A lawyer for Eddie Sisk, the former legal counsel to Blanton who was one of the three state officials arrested Dec. 15 on pardon-selling charges, sought dismissal of a federal warrant against his client. The lawyer argues prosecutors have failed to meet guarantees of a speedy trial.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market showed some scattered gains today, aided by strength in the dollar.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up .17 at 839.31.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar was higher in foreign-exchange markets in Europe and Tokyo today.

"The key background factor giving support to the market and stimulating demand recently, in our opinion, is the strength in the dollar," said Robert J. Farrell at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith in his market bulletin for this week.

Analysts also noted a favorable reaction to the $2.8 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply reported by the Federal Reserve late Thursday - even though the figure for the preceding week was revised upward by $1.7 billion.

Esmark was actively traded, off 1/4 at 24 1/2. A 136,700-share block traded at 24.

The NYSE's composite index was up .07 at 55.88. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 47 to 161.17.

Volume on the Big Board came to 11.82 million shares at nontime, against 12.31 million at the same point Thursday.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale Officially Begins Today

Greenville Girl Scouts will begin taking orders for Girl Scout cookies today, with orders to be accepted until February 5.

Gaylord Perry, professional baseball pitcher and 1978 Cy Young Award winner, is serving as honorary chairman for the 1979 Cookie Sale.

Six varieties, including a Cheddar Cheese Cracker, will be delivered to homes from March 7-19. Proceeds from the sale are the only source of income for the Coastal Carolina Girl Scout Council's Property Fund.

Local troops receive a bonus for each box sold to use for their special projects and programs.

According to Mrs. Edith Davenport, Greenville Neighborhood Cookie Sale Chairman, cookies may be ordered by calling 756-4730 from Jan. 19-Feb. 5 if a Girl Scout does not stop by her home.

"The Council has never had a Capital Funds Drive," explained Perry. "The girls have been responsible for purchasing camps, developing them and for part of the maintenance. We all know how costly that is today. The girls really enjoy their four campsites and so will future generations of Girl Scouts."

In addition to providing camps for the outdoor program, the proceeds provide all equipment for the camps and the Council, including four vehicles used by the staff to serve 26 counties in eastern North Carolina.

A portion of the cookie sale proceeds will go toward a new Service Center in Goldsboro, which will house 14 staff members and be used for staff and board meetings, as well as training sessions.

Cookie sale receipts also make camperships available to girls who need financial assistance to attend Camp Freddy Pond near Wilmington.

Winter Storm Watch For Western N.C.

By The Associated Press

A winter storm watch is in effect for North Carolina tonight for the foothills and Piedmont and travelers advisories were issued this morning for snow and sleet expected in the mountains.

The National Weather Service said accumulations of 1 to 3 inches were possible in the mountains as a storm system spread eastward from the Texas-Oklahoma area.

By this morning, precipitation had spread into western Tennessee and northern Alabama. Meanwhile, a ridge of high pressure building along the east coast was pulling cold air into North Carolina.

After more moderate readings Thursday morning, temperatures dropped this morning to lows that included: Greensboro 18, Elizabeth City 21, Raleigh-Durham 22, Goldsboro 22.

A federal district court denied Kuang relief in his suit against ECU officials.

Kuang was told in February 1972 by the ECU chemistry department chairman that his tenure has been denied and his contract would not be renewed.

In September 1972, Kuang's contract was not renewed.

EEOC regulations require that a complaint be filed within 180 days of the alleged discrimination. The court said a lower court should resolve when Kuang should have filed his complaint.

Mitchell Leaves Prison

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - Former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell left prison today, the last of 25 men convicted of Watergate crimes to resume private life.

He told reporters: "Henceforth, don't call me. I'll call you."

With inmates waving goodbye and chanting, "Give 'em hell, Mitchell," he said he was "looking forward to coming back to Alabama to see all of my friends down here."

Mitchell, who was sent to prison 19 months ago, declined to answer any questions. But in a brief statement, he expressed thanks for the "thousands and thousands" of letters he said he had received from supporters while at the federal prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base.

Mitchell was met at the prison by former U.S. Attorney Ira DeMent of Montgomery, who accompanied the one-time Nixon cabinet member to the Montgomery airport for a commercial flight to Washington.

Earlier, prison officials said Mitchell's fellow inmates had planned a party to thank him for "free legal advice and good friendship."

Mitchell is barred from practicing law, and only close associates know of Mitchell's future plans.

Pioneers In Boys' Club

Members of the Optimist Club were pioneers in studying the possible need of a Boys' Club in Greenville, according to Chet Emerson, the club's current executive director.

"The Optimists first considered the idea during Youth Week Activities in 1966," Emerson noted. "In December of that year, they appointed a steering and development committee to look into organizing a local Boys' Club, and invited Southeast Regional Director Bob Sykes to work with them in planning and developing."

Emerson remarked that "from that early date until today, the Optimists have been strong supporters of the club and have been instrumental in its success since its inception."

"Their continuing interest," he added, "has been shown in many ways. For example, several of the original members of the board of directors are current Optimist members and are still actively supporting the club."

Traffic Signal Not Working

The City Engineer's office has urged caution at the intersection of Cotanche and Reade Street, which has a switch burned out, making its traffic light unusable.

There is a blinking red light on Reade and a blinking yellow light on Cotanche until the situation can be remedied, City Engineer Ron Sewell said. He said an effort to replace the switch is underway, but may take several days if replacement parts have to be specially ordered.

Efforts Earn $2 And Back-Pat

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Hard-working Kansas City snow removal crews have received $2 and a pat on the back in the mail.

The money won't go far. Kansas City has spent almost $1 million on street clearance and salting this year. But "we appreciate the gesture," said Joe Reichert, city superintendent of streets.

The money came from an anonymous couple in neighboring Independence, Mo., who wrote they had to get to a Kansas City hospital and "could never have made it" if the streets had not been plowed.

Hot Half Spurs Titans Past Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

After a poor shooting first half, the Detroit Titans came back out in the second half and sizzled the nets at their end of the court to pull off an 81-69 victory over East Carolina last night.

Detroit had hit on only 35 per cent of its first half shots, and took advantage of ECU turnovers to build up a 36-32 margin at intermission.

But in the second half, the Titans cashed in on 20 of 29 shots from the floor, both inside and outside, for a sizzling 69 per cent accuracy.

Rebounding was about all that kept the Pirates in the game as long as they stayed close, as the Bucs held a 47-34 margin in that department. However, cold shooting on the part of just about everyone killed the Buc chances of victory. East Carolina shot just 42.9 per cent for the game.

Herb Krusen, who started in place of Frank Hobson, still missing from the lineup due to the death of his father late last week, led the Pirate scoring with 22 points, hitting 11 of 17 shots from the floor, and also pulling down five rebounds. Greg Cornelius was the only other shooter on the team to hit 50 per cent or better, making five of eight and finishing with 13 points. Cornelius led the Buc rebounding with nine.

Al Tyson, who played 18 minutes in a reserve role, snared eight rebounds, while hitting both of his two shots from the floor.

Oliver Mack, who had his second straight night of poor shooting, ended up with 11 points. Mack hit just five of 19 shots, including two of ten in the second half.

"I knew we'd have to play about our best game to beat Detroit," ECU Coach Larry Gillman said. "They didn't play their best, and we were able to control the tempo of the game. But we didn't play our best, and we didn't win. Not having Hobson didn't help us, either."

Gillman praised Detroit as being a fine basketball team. "We played hard, but we didn't have the intensity we had earlier in the month. But our kids enjoy the challenge of going up against the top teams like Detroit, South Carolina, and Virginia Commonwealth."

About Krusen, Gillman said, "he played very, very well offensively, and played an intelligent game on defense. But it's tough for a 6-5 forward to play against the likes of Detroit. Tyson played well, and has earned his playing time with his work in practice. (David) Underwood is also playing better."

Detroit coach Dave Gaines said he felt his team played good defense, and that was the difference in the game. "If we have a weakness, it's our rebounding. We have a tendency to stand around under the boards."

"Krusen was a better player than we expected, but Mack wasn't the player we thought he'd be. I saw him in junior college, and he was super, but tonight he played more like an assist man than a shooter. I think (Wilbert) McCormick did a good defensive job on him. He's our best defensive player and usually asks to go against the best shooting guard."

Both teams started cold, and over a minute and a half passed before Detroit got the first points. Krusen got the first Pirate points 30 seconds later, and Mack scored off a fast break for a 4-2 Pirate lead.

Over the next few minutes, the lead changed hands seven times before Detroit finally moved ahead for good.

With 11:14 left, Cornelius scored off a baseline jumper and then added a free throw 30 seconds later. Krusen hit off a tap a minute later, giving the Pirates an 18-15 lead.

But Terry Duerod hit off a rebound, and Jerry Davis stuffed the ball after stealing it to put the Titans back up, 19-18. Keith Jackson scored two free throws, and then McCormick hit a jumper and was fouled after the shot by Mack, capping both ends of a one-and-one for a 25-18 lead.

East Carolina cut it back to one, 25-24, on two jumpers by Krusen and two free throws by George Maynor, but couldn't go ahead.

Maynor hit with one second left in the half to leave the Bucs down by four, 36-32.

In the second half, the Bucs pulled back and finally tied it at 40-40 with 16:18 left as Maynor tapped in a rebound. But Davis scored to return the Titans to the lead, and McCormick added a basket for a 44-40 margin, and the Pirates never recovered again.

Over a 30 second period in the 12 minute range, Duerod hit three straight long-range jumpers to run the lead out to ten, 56-46, and although the Pirates cut the lead back to five several times, they never came closer.

Even down by five, the Pirates had the chance to cut it back to three, but missed each time, and Jeff Whitlow came alive for Detroit to run it back to ten, 68-58, hitting two baskets and a free throw.

The final margin was set when Duerod hit a three point play with one second left.

Duerod finished with 23 points, while McCormick had 20 and Davis added 13.

The win boosted the Detroit record to 14-3 on the year, while the Pirates fell off to 6-9.

East Carolina is idle until next Tuesday when the Pirates travel to Raleigh to face N.C. State's Wolfpack.

Hayes Admits Regrets But Has No Apologies

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Woody Hayes says there were regrets during his 28-year tenure as Ohio State's football coach, but he will not offer apologies because there are two sides to every coin.

"If I start lining up the regrets, then I'm going to have to line up the other side as well," Hayes said during an interview with Steve Dougherty of The Atlanta Constitution. "I'm going to have to make some apologies for some considerable things."

The copyrighted account of the interview, first of a three-part series, appeared in today's edition of the Atlanta morning newspaper.

The controversial 65-year-old coach was fired after 28 years at the Ohio State helm for striking sophomore middle guard Charlie Bauman of Clemson during the Gator Bowl game on Dec. 29.

The incident occurred in the waning minutes of Clemson's 17-15 victory when Bauman intercepted a pass and ran out of bounds near the Ohio State bench. Hayes took a poke at Bauman as television cameras showed the incident nationally.

"I have a temper," Hayes said. "I've had it all my life. I have a lot of regrets. Who doesn't? We all do. Do you expect me to go on crying over spilled milk?"

If he apologized for his regrets, he said, he'd also have to apologize for bringing in $50 million to the university through football, for building parts of the athletic plant and for financing 29 intercollegiate sports through football.

It apparently was Bauman's interception — the 22nd of the season by Ohio State's opponents — that provoked Hayes into delivering the blow.

"You have 22 of them. They start getting on your nerves," he said.

Hayes said he felt no bitterness toward the university because of his dismissal.

"I worked too hard for that," he said. "I can't turn against them on that. I just couldn't do it. My sense of loyalty is too deep for that. I feel disappointed, but I'm not going to let that affect my life. I hope to Christ I'm too big for that."

The Constitution said the interview with Hayes lasted about two hours, one at the coach's Columbus, Ohio, home and the other at Dougherty's hotel room overlooking the OSU athletic complex.

The newspaper said the 30-year-old reporter had tried to telephone Hayes for several days, always getting a busy signal, and was on the verge of traveling to Columbus when he phoned again last Friday. This time Hayes answered, and instructed Dougherty to schedule the interview through his secretary.

Hayes said he had made no plans for his future, but doubted he would ever coach again. He also dismissed politics as a possibility, saying he was too old for that.

Since his dismissal, Hayes said he has been reading, working on a book he is writing, vis-

Surprise By Bruce Clark

HOUSTON (AP) — As a 6-foot-2, 240-pound high school pole vaulter, Penn State All-America defensive tackle Bruce Clark shocked his peers by pole vaulting 13 feet, two inches in a schoolboy track meet.

Clark pulled another surprise Thursday night when he was named the winner of the ninth annual Vince Lombardi Award as the nation's outstanding collegiate lineman of 1978.

All-America offensive guard Greg Roberts of Oklahoma had been the favorite based on his earlier selection as the Outland Trophy winner. Five of the previous eight Lombardi winners also had won the Outland.

Clark also was an underdog because no junior had ever won the award, named in honor of the former Green Bay and Washington coach who died of cancer.

Clark probably was the most stunned of all.

"Again I'd like to thank the Rotary Club (sponsors of the $100 a plate dinner) of Houston — Oh boy, I'm going to choke up — for this award," Clark stammered. "I have to thank a lot of people for my being here."

Clark, who blossomed from a freshman linebacker into a 6-2½, 268-pound defensive tackle, thanked head Coach Joe Paterno, his line coach J.T. White and his girlfriend, Jane Pasarella.

"Coach White taught me everything about defensive tackle. I didn't even know the stance," Clark said. "I want to thank Coach Paterno, who decided I should become a part of the Penn State organization and my girlfriend who helped me through."

"I'd sometimes get uptight before a ball game and she'd tell me to just relax and go out and hurt somebody. That sounded funny coming from a girl but it helped."

Clark said his schoolboy pole vaulting career ended as soon as he signed to play football for the Nittany Lions. His slimmer peers were surprised to see his 240-pound frame skimming over the cross bar and he was just as surprised to be named the Lombardi winner.

"I wasn't even thinking about winning," Clark said. "I just thought Matt (Millen) and I would be coming down to have a good time."

Millen, Penn State's other defensive tackle, and UCLA linebacker Jerry Robinson were the other finalists for the award.

Both Millen and Clark came to Penn State as highly touted schoolboy linebackers but following their freshman years they were moved to defensive tackle positions.

"We've helped each other," Millen said. "We'll talk during games and usually what's working for one will help the other."

Clark said it was tough getting accustomed to playing a down position. "Matt pulled me through," Clark said. "I'd see him over there working his butt off and I decided if he could do it, so could I."

Texas Gov. Bill Clements was the principal speaker at the dinner and broadcaster Tom Harmon was master of ceremonies.

ELDER'S NEW CLUBS

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Elder won the Westchester Golf Classic and the Greater Milwaukee Open in 1978, playing with clubs made of a space-age metal, titanium.

Nelson are recovering from sprains, but will also compete. Nelson will be limited to performing on the uneven bars, however.

"William & Mary has a lot of depth," said Pirate coach Stevie Chepko. "Furman will bring regional qualifier Vicky Jackson into the meet, along with several outstanding freshmen."

"Injuries have cut down on our depth at this point in the season. In the events where we have our greatest strength, like the uneven bars, we will have to score a lot of points."

The meet will be the first of three at home for the Pirates. Madison visits Minges Coliseum on Jan. 28 at 1 p.m. and South Carolina will be in Greenville on Feb. 24 at 1 p.m.

Women Cagers Hit The Road

After a disappointing Division I loss at home to North Carolina, East Carolina's women's basketball team faces another league foe Saturday as it meets Appalachian State on a western road trip.

The Pirates, 8-6 overall and 4-2 in league play, face the Lady Apps at 7 p.m. and then play at East Tennessee State Monday at 7 p.m.

The Pirates continue to be led in scoring by all-America candidate Rosie Thompson with a 25.2 point average. A junior from Blounts Creek, she also leads the team in rebounding with 12.0 per game and assists with 21 for the season.

"It's important to bounce back in our next divisional game after any loss," said Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi. "That is particularly true this weekend. Appalachian State has a good ball club. We beat them three times last year, but the games weren't away ones."

It will be the first meeting of the season for East Carolina and Appalachian State, but the Pirates hold a 6-3 edge in the series. The Lady Bucs won the only game they have ever played against East Tennessee State, 77-53 in 1975.

The next home game for East Carolina will be Saturday, Jan. 27, against Longwood at 7 p.m.

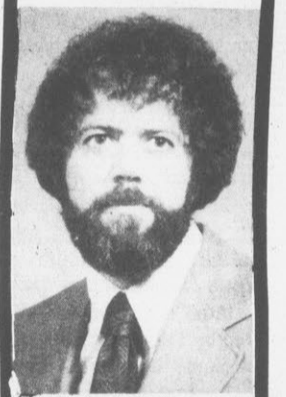

EBA Girls In First Win

E.B. Aycock's girls' basketball team picked up its first victory of the year yesterday, downing Bertie by a 36-30 score.

Aycock was led by Frances Barnhill and Monica Gatlin, each of whom scored ten points. Stephanie Bunch led Bertie, scoring 16 points.

Aycock is now 1-4 on the year.

East Carolina University was one of the big winners in increased attendance during football season, according to figures released recently by the NCAA. During the past season, the Bucs drew 125,644 fans into Ficklen Stadium for five games, an average increase of 4,189 per game.

Overall, East Carolina stood 67th in the country among major football teams in average attendance, and was 27th in average increase.

Southern Methodist, which put on one of the top promotional campaigns in the country this past year, topped the nation in increases, averaging 24,921 per game more in its stadium than during 1977. The Mustangs were 25th in the nation in average attendance at home games.

Michigan, which has the nation's top stadium, was the top draw, attracting 104,948 per game, a slight increase over last year.

Atlantic Coast Conference member Wake Forest showed up in the top 20 in the increases per game, ranking 15th with an increase of 7,650 per game. Clemson was 17th with 6,589 more a game.

Overall, the Tigers, who won the ACC championship and went on to top the Ohio State Buckeyes in the Gator Bowl, were 20th in attendance.

Elsewhere in the ACC, North Carolina ranked 34th in attendance, but had a net loss in attendance, despite the fact that the Tar Heels had a record crowd for their opening game—against East Carolina.

Maryland ranked 42nd in attendance, up only 3,558 per game, while N.C. State was 43, and lost 2,421 fans a game, despite an outstanding year.

Wake Forest was 61st in attendance, while Duke ranked right behind East Carolina at 68th, but lost 6,474 fans per game over the 1977 season (when the Blue Devils had a record opening game crowd—also against East Carolina).

Virginia was 72nd in attendance, registering over 2,000 in increases, while area Pirate foe Richmond was 99th overall with just over 3,000 more per game.

All-in-all a good report for the Pirates.

Tough Road Ahead

East Carolina's Pirates, now with a 6-9 record, face an uphill battle over the next few weeks if they are to have any chance at a winning season.

Just ahead is the Wolfpack of N.C. State, a team that has to be one of the most frustrated in the country after losing its first four games in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

They still have to face Duke before meeting the Pirates and that game may have a definite effect on the ECU contest. Whether the Wolfpack will be chomping at the bit or down in the dumps remains to be seen.

Following that game, the Pirates face UNC-Wilmington, which is having a banner year, and Georgia Tech, a strong independent that is headed into the ACC.

Following that, the Pirates have a return meeting with William & Mary, following by a visit by Old Dominion, another tough independent.

Following that up by a second meeting with Virginia Commonwealth, Wilmington, Chattanooga, Georgia Tech and Old Dominion, the Pirates also face South Carolina-Aiken, and then close out with top-ranked Notre Dame.

It's not exactly the schedule a team would like to have when facing an uphill road.

Duke Concentration Returning; Wake Falls

By The Associated Press

Duke's Kenny Dennard may have summed it all up for the Blue Devils Thursday night when he said after their 81-69 victory over Wake Forest, "I've just begun to concentrate. Our execution is starting to pick up. We just have to concentrate on playing 40 minutes."

A failure to concentrate or execute has plagued the Blue Devils so far this season. They seemed either to allow an insurmountable lead to build up in the first half or to lose their momentum in the second and allow the opposing team to overtake them.

But they had it all together against Wake Forest, gaining an early 13-4 margin in the first eight minutes as they used their running game to perfect. The Deacons pulled within four at one point, but Duke came back to carry a 39-26 margin into the locker room. In the second half, Wake Forest came within four, but Duke pulled away again in the final three minutes.

Commented Duke Coach Bill Foster, "I thought we did a great job bouncing back at the end when things got bad for us. We really tightened up defensively."

The Duke-Wake Forest game was the only one on the ACC calendar Thursday. League teams rest tonight, then return to the board Saturday with two conference games. Clemson will be at Virginia and injury-plagued North Carolina will be at Maryland.

Tar Heel guard Dave Coles-cott, who injured his eye in Saturday's game against Duke, will not play, and All-America Mike O'Koren, who sprained his ankle Wednesday in the N.C. State game, is not expected to play.

Al Wood, who cut two fingers on his left hand Thursday night, will play with the fingers taped. Wood is right-handed.

In a non-conference game Saturday, Wake Forest will play Rollins at Winston-Salem.

Suns Truck Way To Win Over Pistons

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — If the automotive industry wants to learn something about fuel economy, it might take a lesson from the Phoenix Suns.

The Suns, you see, have found a way to get 42 minutes worth of work in just 36 minutes of basketball playing time from a used Truck they acquired recently.

That would be forward Leonard "Truck" Robinson who hit 20 points, many in a key third-quarter come-from-behind surge, to help the Suns to a 97-87 victory over the Detroit Pistons in the only National Basketball Association game scheduled Thursday night.

Playing in the Silverdome, Robinson clicked for eight points late in the third period when the Suns rallied from a 48-40 deficit to take a lead.

After a brief see-saw, the Suns surged into the lead for keeps.

The game was only Robinson's third with Phoenix since being traded from the New Orleans Jazz. "It's fun playing with these guys," Robinson said after the game. "I get open and they get me the ball. I'm working harder here — getting shorter playing time but still getting the same performance."

Robinson said he was getting about 42 minutes of playing time a game with the Jazz. He played about 36 minutes against Detroit.

Suns Coach John MacLeod said he felt the addition of Robinson would help his club in its bid for a playoff berth.

"He (Robinson) gives us more inside punch," MacLeod said. "His defensive rebounding gets our fast break started. All we have needed was a big inside man and he gives us that strength inside."

Suns guard Walter Davis led all scorers with 26 points while Paul Westphal chipped in with 23 for Phoenix.

Center Bob Lanier and forward M.L. Carr each had 19 points for the Pistons, who are struggling under first-year Coach Dick Vitale.

"The Suns really took us to the cleaners in the last 15 minutes," Vitale said of the effort that saw Phoenix outscore Detroit 39-27 in the last 11 minutes of play. "They sure put on a clinic in dominating us."

Vitale also blamed the defeat on his club's thin talent supply. "We are just not a good basketball team," he said. "We don't have the depth and personnel you need. You have to be able to bring guys in off the bench who can do the job — and we don't have them."

The Suns played without center Alvin Adams, who suffered an eye injury in Wednesday's game at Milwaukee.

Joe Cronin, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, was a shortstop but also played all the other infield positions and even some outfield.

Smith's Lone Point Winner For Bruins

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The UCLA Bruins might forget John Smith's all-too-common name before too long, but it probably will be a long time before they forget the uncommon point he made Thursday night.

It was Smith's one and only point and came on the second of two free throws with six seconds left, giving the Arizona Wildcats a 70-69 upset victory over UCLA, the nation's third-ranked college basketball team.

Eight of the Top Ten teams in The Associated Press ratings were in action and the Bruins were the only one to stumble. Elsewhere:

—Sophomore Orlando Woolridge scored 18 points to lead No. 1 Notre Dame past San Francisco 88-69.

—Mark Smith's 15 points paced fourth-ranked Illinois to an 81-74 Big Ten triumph over Wisconsin.

—Larry Bird, the nation's leading scorer, matched his 31-point average as No. 5 Indiana State, the only unbeaten major college team, trimmed Wichita State 94-84 in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

—Michigan State's Earvin Johnson, who scored only two points while sitting out most of the first half with three personal fouls, scored 20 after the intermission and sparked the sixth-ranked Spartans to an 82-56 Big Ten rout of Indiana.

—Seventh-ranked Louisville outlasted Cincinnati 82-77 in a Metro Conference contest behind Darrell Griffith's 23 points and 22 by freshman Scooter McCray.

—Kenny Dennard led five Duke players in double figures with 21 points as the eighth-ranked Blue Devils defeated Wake Forest 81-69 in Atlantic Coast Conference action.

—And No. 10 Georgetown bolted to a 22-4 lead in the first eight minutes and whipped Fordham 75-65.

Smith's free throw that did UCLA in capped a see-saw Pacific-10 clash in which Arizona ran off 11 consecutive points to take a 36-31 lead and then saw a 67-60 lead turn into a 69-67 deficit.

"It was do-or-die," said Smith, a 6-foot-4 sophomore from San Francisco. "It's been my dream — my biggest dream ever. I always watched UCLA when I was in junior high and in high school. UCLA was THE team. I always dreamed about beating them, but I never thought I'd be the one to do it."

Following Smith's game-winning free throw, which hit the front rim and dropped through, UCLA's David Greenwood, who committed the costly personal foul, missed a jump shot with two seconds left.

"I swore the ball was going to go in," he said. "It felt good. I was in shock when it didn't go in."

Besides Woolridge, who was 9-for-13 from the floor, five other Notre Damers hit double figures against San Francisco as the top-rated Irish raised their record to 10-1. Notre Dame used a 12-point run — six by Woolridge — in roaring to an early 20-5 lead and never let the losers get closer than seven points thereafter.

"We came out with some defensive aggressiveness which got us the big lead in the first half," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. The Irish limited Bill Cartwright, the Dons' 7-1 center, to nine points.

"Notre Dame did a great job in keeping the ball away from Billy," conceded USF Coach Dan Belluomini. "After we got behind, we couldn't try to keep forcing the ball in to him. We had to try to make some outside shots, but we didn't hit with consistency until the second half."

At any rate, Belluomini's preseason prediction has come true.

"I said at the beginning of the year that Notre Dame would be No. 1," he said. "They are a great team with excellent balance. They probably have the best 10 players in the country."

Illinois withstood a career-high 25-point performance by Wisconsin's Larry Petty. The Illini built a 12-point lead in the second half and ran off five straight with 2:17 left to stifle a Wisconsin rally.

Indiana State's Bird matched his 31-point average despite sitting out seven minutes of the first half with foul trouble. The Sycamores, 15-0, even stretched their lead from 2 to 13 points without him.

Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote said his Spartans are "on the comeback" following their rout of Indiana. "We're going to play better," he promised. "We've been practicing better. Turning the corner is really not the correct expression. We had two tough losses on the road."

In the Second Ten, 16th-ranked Ohio State blew a 13-point first-half lead but rallied behind the scoring of Kelvin Ransey (20 points), Herb Williams (19) and Jim Smith (17) to edge Minnesota 83-80 and remain unbeaten in five Big Ten contests.

And Ray Thompson's two free throws with five seconds left gave No. 17 Temple a 70-69 decision over Bucknell.

Furman Falls To Catamounts

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Western Carolina's 67-61 upset of Furman casts a new light on Saturday night's basketball game between Furman and The Citadel in Charleston.

Instead of defending its number one spot in the Southern Conference, Furman will be seeking to regain the top spot from The Citadel. A preseason pick for the league cellar, The Citadel is 3-0 against conference teams.

Furman's defeat at the hands of the Western Carolina Catamounts on Thursday night was its second straight loss and first in five conference outings. The Paladins are 12-3 overall.

Western Carolina, meanwhile, evened its Southern Conference record at 2-2 and improved its overall record to 8-6.

Western Carolina had four men in double figures, led by Raymond Person's 15 points. Larry Caldwell had 12 points, Eric Taylor 11 and Kevin Young 10 for the Catamounts. Western Carolina's Terry Rutherford grabbed a game-high 14 rebounds, while Taylor added 10 caroms.

Furman also had four double-figure scorers. Ron White, a 6-2 guard, had 18 points and 10 rebounds. Jonathan Moore and Al Daniel had 13 points each, while Mel Daniel added 10 points.

The game was tied five times in the opening six minutes before the Paladins built a 23-18 lead. Western Carolina fought back to take a 28-27 lead, but then Furman outscored the Catamounts 12-4 to take a 39-32 halftime lead.

In the second half, Western Carolina outscored Furman 23-12 over a 10-minute period to tie the game at 55-55. The Catamounts took their first lead of the second half at 59-57. After a 61-61 tie, Western Carolina scored the last six points of the game.

While only a freshman in 1973, Tony Dorssett of Pitt gained 265 yards by rushing on a muddy field against Northwestern.

Rain Delays Phoenix Play

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Officials tried again today to get in the first round of play in the rain-delayed, $250,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

The tournament now is scheduled to run through Monday. Under the contract between the PGA Tour and the tournament sponsors, the event could run as late as Tuesday if further delays are experienced.

The three-day storm, which produced about two inches of rain and caused flooding in the Phoenix area, dropped occasional showers again Thursday. It was expected to clear today, however.

The 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club was inundated. "We had no choice but to postpone," said Clyde Mangum, the PGA deputy commissioner for four operations.

course unplayable for Thursday's scheduled first round and pushed back the tournament schedule one full day.

After inspecting the flat, desert course early Thursday morning, officials found seven holes completely unplayable and two others in marginal condition.

Pools and puddles covered fairways, greens and tees. Sand traps were filled with standing water.

Some of the veteran players — among them defending champion Miller Barber and Billy Casper — waited around the clubhouse and practiced putting between the showers before eventually drifting back to their hotels.

Bradshaw, Staubach Different People

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Only one-tenth of a point separated them in the final passing statistics during the season, but Dallas' Roger Staubach and Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw are two very different people.

Bradshaw, the National Football League's Most Valuable Player, led the league with his 28 touchdown passes, three more than Staubach, but also threw four more interceptions than Roger's 16. Each completed about 56 percent of his passes. In all, the NFL's complicated rating formula gave Staubach 84.9 points to Brad-shaw's 84.8.

But they are a study in contrast.

Staubach, long acknowledged as one of the game's finest quarterbacks, remains spoon-fed by Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who sends in every play from the sidelines and is almost never overruled.

Bradshaw, conversely, has come of age this season, having shed for good the rap that he was less than brilliant by proving he can lead as well as anyone — and better than most.

"The criticism he's gotten is totally unjust. Terry's a very smart young guy," says Staubach, six years older than the 30-year-old Bradshaw. "He was thrown in as a rookie in some very tough situations and made mistakes. I did the same thing as a rookie, but I didn't play nearly as much at the start, so it wasn't noticed as much."

Bring up the subject of Bradshaw's intelligence and Terry winsces, but he has come to terms with it. "I have nothing to prove to anyone," he says emphatically.

"I've always said that you never live down an image that's created about you. It haunts you throughout your playing career, and perhaps even when your playing days are over. It just stays there and will not leave... I don't like talking about it. It's a touchy subject I've lived with for nine or 10 years."

The question of brains aside, it is Bradshaw, not Staubach, who maintains almost total control of the Steelers' offense while Staubach merely carries out his boss' orders.

Chuck Noll, Pittsburgh's coach, doesn't say Dallas' way is the wrong way. "Teams that win as many games as they do and get to as many Super Bowls as they do don't do too many things wrong," he observed. But he feels more comfortable with Bradshaw in command.

"We feel that having him in command takes some of the pressure off of us on the sidelines. That's one less thing — and it's a big thing — that we have to worry about. We can be a lot more efficient."

"I wouldn't want the sidelines to send in the plays," says Bradshaw. "I like it the way it is now. I think when a quarterback calls the signals, his players react and respond better to his own plays.

"You get the blame if you lose and the credit if you win, so you might as well do it yourself."

Staubach, on the other hand, "is stronger working with our system," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "He adapts well. He works with everybody well. He fits in. Whether Bradshaw could do that, I don't know. Terry works his own way."

Is Staubach ready to call his own plays? "I've been ready for a long time, but I'm working in an organization where the head coach is a great coach and he doesn't believe in that philosophy. It has nothing to do with me — he keeps saying, 'It's not one guy,' he says. "Everyone wants to talk about the quarterbacks, but we're talking about a team sport."

"If he gets time to throw the ball, he can be effective. If his receivers run the proper routes, he can be effective. If his view isn't obstructed... if he's not forced to move around quite a bit... you've got a lot of things going on there." Staubach was willing to make a comparison. For the most part, he seemed to come out second best to Bradshaw. "He's stronger than I am. He's faster than I am. He's younger than I am..." Staubach intoned. Is there any area where Roger has more going for him? "I have more hair than he does," Staubach laughed.

Carew, Angels End Easy Part Of Deal

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — California Angels General Manager Buzze Bavasi has finished half the task with rather surprising ease — signing Rod Carew — but now faces what promises to be the difficult part of the job.

After Carew signed an Angels' agreement Thursday, believed to call for some $4 million over five years, Bavasi made plans to fly East to try to work out a trade with Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith for the rights to the seven-time American League batting champion.

A stumbling block in the negotiations between the Twins and Angels apparently centers on California third baseman Carney Lansford, who hit .294 as a rookie last year. Minnesota wants Lansford included in the trade for Carew, but the Angels have declared him untouchable.

Carew said after signing the contract — with a contingency clause dependent on the successful conclusion of a California-Minnesota deal — that he was optimistic he would be wearing an Angels' uniform this year.

"If the deal goes through with the Twins, I'm looking forward to coming out here and doing my part to help the Angels win a pennant," the 33-year-old first baseman said. "The contract part is over and done with, and I'm happy. Now it's all up to California to try to satisfy the Twins. I'm optimistic."

Although neither the Angels nor Carew would divulge the terms of his contract, it would make him one of baseball's highest paid players. "I wasn't really looking too much at being the highest paid player in baseball," Carew said. "I just wanted to be properly compensated, just wanted to be happy. The Angels have made me very happy."

Jerry Simon, Carew's agent, was asked if the contract with the Angels would put his client in the same financial neighborhood with Pete Rose, the former Cincinnati star who signed a reported four-year, $3.2 million free-agent contract with the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I think that's probably a fair statement; I don't know of a better contract," said Simon. "It's very substantial."

Carew, who has played for Minnesota since 1967, has a .334 career batting average, highest among active players. His best year was in 1977 when he won the AL Most Valuable Player award, hitting .388 — the majors' highest since Ted Williams had the same average in 1957.

Carew, who will become a free agent following the 1979 season if he remains with the Twins, asked to be traded to a West Coast team.

Hayes . . .

iting friends and spending a little time at a country cabin he built south of Columbus.

Hayes, a student of military history, drew an analogy between the United States' war record and that of a football team.

He said football teams should be judged by whether they are improving, not solely by the record.

He said the U.S. was 8-1-1 in wars, but had tied and lost its last two — the Korean and Vietnam conflicts. He said that Russia had a 1-4 war record. "In their last five wars, they've won one, but they won the last one."

Hayes expressed concern about out-of-state coaches invading Ohio "like leeches" to recruit football players and said the possibility of some of his assistants losing their job under new Coach Earle Bruce

"just makes me sick."

Among his heroes, Hayes listed Gen. George C. Patton and, in sports, Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis, the former commissioner of baseball.

He said Landis was "a mean old SOB and honest to the core... as honorable as honorable could be. He was a mean old guy, but you have to have people like him running the show."

Hayes, noted for his iron-fisted rule of his Ohio State football empire, said rules must be set and enforced. However, he said, a person's rules must have a purpose "other than just being boss."

Asked if he had failed to follow that dictum, Hayes replied: "We're all guilty of that sort of thing. Parents are guilty of it. Why, sure."

"There's a little dictator in all of us. And dictators are the dumbest people in the world."

This Sunday, The Only Show In Town

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC is getting stiffed in the ratings. It faces dismal prospects for the near future. But for one day, at least, the No. 3 network has the only show in town.

Super Bowl Sunday lands on NBC's calendar this year, and the other two networks might as well shut down operations until it's over.

This isn't a holiday. It's a national obligation.

Super Bowl parties are thrown by people who don't know what a football is. Football widows who considered divorce during the regular season suddenly start talking point spreads. Competing entertainment enterprises, such as race tracks, plan their events around it.

The game is always dull. And we always watch it.

So, you can't blame NBC for milking the thing. Ratings have revealed America's gluttonous appetite for things Super Bowl, and NBC is more than happy to cater the affair.

The feast starts Saturday with "Super Bowl Saturday Night," an inane variety-type show in which athletes and actors sing and dance and do other things people wouldn't ordinarily watch them do. This gives O. J. Simpson the opportunity to show that, as a TV star, he's still the greatest running back of all.

Then, when you're still clearing the sleep from your eyes Sunday morning, NBC is waiting in your living room, beckoning you to the tube. Dick Enberg, who should be calling the game, hosts 1½ hours of Sports World, followed by two hours of football junk. They think we'll sit and watch 3½ hours of prefootball football. We will.

"You know, I've looked at past Super Bowls and wondered if it's too much," says Chet Simmons, head of NBC Sports. "But I tell you, the public is insatiable when it comes to Super Bowl Sunday. You think, 'My God, another two-hour pregame show and a day of football,' but when the ratings come out, we find that people just watch it. It's a day that people devote to that particular event."

We never learn. For the game itself, NBC has hauled out all its finery. John Brodie and the restrained, articulate Merlin Olsen will offer analysis, while Curt Gowdy, who should be at home watching it with the rest of us, calls the game.

And Super Bowl XIII will have a new twist. The network has hired Cleveland Browns' Coach Sam Rutigliano to head a special isolated coverage team, which will try to anticipate plays and then set up camera coverage for them. Judging from Super Bowls past, anticipating plays should present no major difficulties.

And the crafty folks at NBC have even figured out a way to milk Super Bowl XIII after it's over. They're premiering one of their new series, the "Animal House" spinoff "Brothers and Sisters," right after the game. They figure we'll be catatonic by then, unable to switch channels.

All of this doesn't come cheap. Under a four-year agreement between the NFL and the two networks that alternately broadcast the game, CBS and NBC, the rights to air Super Bowl XIII cost NBC $6 million.

Of course, NBC can then charge advertisers the highest rate per commercial minute. Under its contract with the NFL, NBC is allowed to sell 22 commercial minutes during the game. That means 22 seconds of commercials for every minute of time-in, football action.

And the NFL says some commercial minutes are going for $370,000. Too bad NBC can't make a series of it.

could then draw trumps by playing the ace and queen, losing to the king, and when he regained the lead, remove the eight with his nine. Declarer would then lose only two trump tricks and a heart. Instead, East discarded a diamond.

That did not faze declarer in the slightest. He led a fourth diamond from dummy, East ruffed with the eight and declarer overruffed with the nine. Next came a club to the ace and another club, ruffed low.

The contract was now assured. Declarer had already collected nine tricks, and he still had the ace of spades in his hand. But declarer's technique was rewarded with an overtrick. He exited with his last heart, and when West won that trick, declarer's ace-queen of spades assured him of two of the last three tricks.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Taking a preference in the auction is a relative matter. Sometimes, a singleton is a better holding than a doubleton honor. Consider this hand.

When South chose to bid spades twice before showing his hearts, it was obvious that he held six spades and only four hearts. Therefore, North was eminently correct in preferring to three spades — he knew that the combined holding in spades would be seven cards as against six in hearts. South had ample in reserve to go on to game.

West led the queen of hearts, and South paused to review the situation. His trump suit was far from healthy, so the possibility of drawing trumps and attempting to set up dummy's long suit had to be rejected. It seemed far more promising to try to score as many trump tricks as possible via ruffs.

Declarer won the ace of hearts, cashed the ace of diamonds and crossed to the king of hearts in dummy. He discarded a club on the king of diamonds, then ruffed a diamond in his hand. Now he led a heart and ruffed with the ten of trumps.

East could see that it would not help to overruff with the jack, for declarer

DIVORCE FILED—Luci Johnson Nugent, 31-year-old daughter of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, has filed for divorce from Patrick Nugent, Texas court officials say. Mrs. Nugent cited no grounds, using standard terminology allowed by Texas' no-fault divorce law. The petition states merely that the marriage had "become insupportable" because of discord that destroys legitimate ends of marriage relationships. No answer was filed by Nugent. The couple has been married 12 years and are parents of four children. (AP Laserphoto)

Virginia Lawmaker Disturbed By Competency Test Scores

By ESTES THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Delegate William Robinson, D-Norfolk, says he is disturbed by the low competency test scores made by Virginia's black 10th graders.

"We can't afford to wait" to seek a remedy to the problem, Robinson said Thursday. Delegate Gary Myers, R-Alexandria, a white lawyer, and Robinson, a black political science professor at Norfolk State College, told the House Education Committee the reason for the low scores must be determined.

"Certainly these things can no longer exist as something proper people don't talk about," Myers said.

"Unlike some of the other inner cities, in the city of Norfolk the performance was catastrophic," Robinson added.

"This test reveals something is awry in the instructional program, and the way children, black children at least, are being reached," Robinson added.

Robinson and Myers planned to ask State Department of Education officials today if the department can develop or already has a method to survey failing students and determine why they flunked the test.

While 89.1 percent of the white students achieved a score of at least 70 on a combined reading and mathematics test, only 58.2 percent of the black students statewide reached or exceeded the passing score.

After the committee meeting, Robinson said he couldn't blame the failures on most teachers, nor could he tag them as problems caused by low socio-economic status.

"Christ, we were poor as hell," Robinson said of his family.

He said his father operated a shoe shop in Norfolk and his mother, who earned a master's degree the same day he did, taught school and worked in the administration at Norfolk State.

"The problem is where we don't have someone with a basic commitment to teach," he added.

Robinson said he taught at least one Norfolk State student basics of English and writing that the student failed to get in Norfolk public schools.

The sessions occurred several times a week after classes.

He said he succeeded in teaching English to the student, who went on to earn a law degree and now is teaching at Norfolk State.

"I always point to him" as an example of commitment to teach, Robinson said.

Judge Upholds Women JCs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women Jaycees can continue holding membership in the Washington chapter after a city judge issued an order restraining the national organization from pulling the chapter's charter.

Five women Jaycees requested the order from District of Columbia Superior Court Judge William Thompson, arguing Thursday that they would suffer "irreparable harm" if they could no longer participate in the organization. Last summer, the national convention voted against a proposal to allow women to remain as permanent members.

Anti-Sub Skills Might Upset A Balance Of Terror

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A quiet warning about America's growing capability to destroy enemy submarines came out of the Library of Congress last week.

The congressional research service warned the House International Relations Committee that the nuclear balance of terror could be destabilized if the Navy gets much better at anti-submarine warfare.

To understand why anti-submarine warfare (ASW in the argot of the Pentagon) is a problem, it is necessary to recall MAD, the theory of mutual assured destruction.

The theory holds that the danger of nuclear war is low as long as both sides are convinced that starting a nuclear exchange can only result in a devastating nuclear counter-attack.

Conversely, the danger of war increases if one side or the other begins to think it might be able to get away with a first strike by knocking out the enemy's missiles.

Through the 1960s and early 1970s, the balance seemed pretty stable. But then came the development of more accurate missiles with multiple warheads. The United States got them first. The Soviets now have just about caught up.

A missile with highly accurate, multiple warheads adds a dangerous factor of instability to the nuclear balance. It raises the possibility that one side could destroy three, four or perhaps 10 of the other side's missiles while they sit in their silos. It makes a first strike a more attractive option.

So far, that option has not been nearly attractive enough, primarily because of the submarine-based missiles possessed by each side.

Even if an attacker succeeded in wiping out the other side's land-based missiles, he would face devastating retaliation by the other side's submarine-launched missiles — unless he developed the capability to knock those out of the water at the same time.

The United States does not have that capability now, the congressional study said. But it has been steadily developing its ASW techniques.

The current ASW budget, the Pentagon says, is about $7.5 billion annually, with more than $700 million going into research and development.

The program has developed computers which help keep track of Soviet subs; advanced types of sonar buoys which can be dropped from airplanes; highly sensitive onshore listening posts; and homing torpedoes; also launched from airplanes.

The Navy says it must be able to protect the shipping lanes from Soviet subs in the event of a war. There is, however, no consensus at the Pentagon about whether a war in which Soviet subs sank American ships would not soon escalate to a nuclear exchange.

Peekskill Man Collects Bricks

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
PEEKSKILL, N.Y. (AP) — One Spring morning a decade ago Ray Chase, spading his garden, turned up an old brick. Tossing it aside, he noticed the lettering on it: "Peekskill No. 1."

"For several days the brick nagged at me," he recalled. "I couldn't get it out of my head. I brought it inside and washed it off. I kept going back to it, handling it. Finally I took it to a local historian and found out it was made here in town about the turn of the century."

That was the start. Now Ray Chase's collection of bricks numbers 827, his collection of new friends nearly as large and his store of historical footnotes and brickmaking lore rich and growing.

Brickmakers the nation over, the world over, it seems, found it fashionable to autograph their work in a conspicuous place, like right on top, long before that practice became a status gimmick among the makers of T-shirts, neckties and jeans.

One brick in the Chase collection (circa 1900) is proudly etched "O.S.P." which stands for Oklahoma State Prison. Another factory of the same era, in Oregon, so there would be no mistake, added the slogan "Convict Made."

Such information about the origins of bricks does a reading tour of Ray Chase's basement yield, data from A to Z. To wit: Adamole, Bickerstaff, Camargo, Diablo, Excelsior, Fiske, Griffen, Hosket, Ivermore, Jova, Kline, Laclede, Mexico, Navarro, Olympia, Paisley, Q.R. Glass, Resist, Sycamore, Timoney, United, Valentine, Waco, XXX, Young.

Well, from A to Y. "Aren't bricks fascinating," Chase said, gazing lovingly at the close-packed shelves lining his basement wall. "Look at this one. It was put out by a doctor in Kansas named S. J. Crumbine who was trying to stamp out tuberculosis. The bricks were used in Abilene around 1900. There aren't many left."

Etched in the brick: "Don't Spit On The Sidewalk." "When they tore down the house where I lived as a boy I found a brick dated 1914, the year I was born. That brick means something to me, even though it's not particularly rare."

"The Hudson Valley is a good source of bricks," Chase said. "I like to put on boots and walk the riverbank, searching."

"At one time there were 54 brick factories across the river in Haverstraw. They took out so much clay that one day half the town slid in the river. Killed 10 people."

"I swap bricks with other collectors and have made a great many friends."

"Each brick represents a friend, or an experience. When someone gives me a brick, that's the one that goes in my collection even if a similar brick in better shape turns up later. "People think I'm nuts," he said, scanning the shelves of bricks, reading the names. "I can't help it. I find them interesting."

Additive-Free Diet for Hyperactivity?

I have a hyperactive child. He doesn't seem to be doing very well with drugs. I recently heard that there are some kinds of diets that can cut down his constant activity. Do you know if these diets are helpful? — Mrs. M.N.M., Tenn.

Dear Mrs. M.: Readers must understand that a so-called hyperactive child is not simply a child who is unusually energetic. "Hyperactive" is the medical term given to children who are in a constant state of motion and who do not take a normal period of rest from their excessive activity. The problem is a very complicated one and demands the combined efforts of drugs and psychiatric help.

Frequently, the condition continues into mid-adolescence. In a strange way, the drug that is used to control the hyperactivity is the amphetamine which, paradoxically, is also used to increase up activity.

Doctors in various parts of the country have made the observation that hyperactive children can be controlled and their irritability reduced when they are put on special diets. These diets are free of artificial flavors and colorings, and natural salicylates.

At the University of Wisconsin and at the Memorial Hospital in Chicago, a sizable group of hyperactive children were treated with a diet free of additives. Although there was no definitive conclusion by the teachers and the psychologists, the parents believe that their children were less active on the experimental diet.

Even though there is no definitive conclusion from the pure scientific point of view, I do believe it is worth a try for those children who have not reacted satisfactorily to the orthodox treatment of drugs and psychotherapy. Certainly, there is no danger in such a diet. Even if there are but minimal advantages, your child deserves the test of such a dietary regime.

My daughter won't give up smoking because she says all her friends who tried to stop have gained weight. To these youngsters, the few extra pounds seem to be more important than their health. Can't they stop smoking and still maintain their weight? — Mrs. T.G., Conn.

Dear Mrs. G.: It is not unusual for people to gain weight when they stop smoking. The added nibbling, to compensate for their deprivation, will naturally add up in calories.

There are some doctors who believe that a temporary metabolic change occurs when one gives up tobacco. This, too, may be responsible for gain in weight. When the body adjusts to these metabolic changes, the weight can be more easily controlled.

With a sensible regime of eating, the temporary weight gain can be quickly lost, and your daughter will be freed of the albatross of tobacco.
