

Proposed Carter Budget Has $29 Billion Deficit

By GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today sent Congress a "lean and austere" budget for 1980 that he said will increase outlays for defense and the poor while helping to throttle the government's voracious appetite for spending. But there are controversial cuts in jobs programs and a freezing of other programs for states and cities that are certain to cause problems for Carter within his own Democratic Party. The administration also declined to make a commitment to continue a revenue-sharing beyond 1980. The budget totals $531.6 billion and includes a deficit of $29 billion. It sets aside $2.5

billion to be paid to American workers as inflation insurance in 1980, if Congress approves.

Spending would be equal to $2,416.85 for every American. The current 1979 budget provides for spending of $493.4 billion and a deficit of $37.4 billion.

Carter said his 1980 budget, for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1, emphasizes spending restraint and fighting inflation and makes "the federal dollar work harder and better." It also will ensure continued economic growth, although at a slower pace than last year, he said.

"We must reduce the growth of total federal spending while protecting the security of our nation and the well-being of the American people," Carter said in a message to Congress.

But the president did not repeat his past promises to balance the budget by 1981, saying only that he will "achieve a balanced budget as soon as economic conditions permit." The 1980 deficit will be the 19th in the last 20 years.

The budget is important politically for Carter since it will be in effect during most of the 1980 presidential election year and he may be held accountable by his party and voters on whether it does what he promises it will.

Battle lines already were being drawn between those who feel the budget will not slow federal spending enough and those who think it goes too far.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del.,

said, "To describe Carter's budget as lean is like looking at the package of bacon in the supermarket — you don't see the fat until you open the package."

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a possible challenger to Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, says the budget is "seriously defective," alleging that those who can least afford it are bearing the

N.C. Projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Congress today to approve $37.56 million for projects by the Corps of Engineers in North Carolina.

Included in the president's budget proposals for work by the corps in North Carolina was $27.7 million for construction of the Falls Lake flood control project on the Neuse River in Wake County.

Carter also sought $5.5 million for construction of the controversial B. Everett Jordan Dam and Lake south of Durham in the Piedmont.

Other corps projects included in the administration's budget request were $2.14 million for construction of the Masonboro Inlet jetty, $1.27 million for replacement of bridges along the Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway, $650,000 for planning of the Randleman Lake flood control project and $300,000 for planning of beach-erosion work in the Fort Fisher area.

At A Glance

By The Associated Press

At a glance, here are key figures in President Carter's proposed budget for fiscal 1980.

In this comparison, years are the federal government's fiscal years, running from October of one year through September of the next year. For example, fiscal 1980 starts Oct. 1, 1979, and ends Sept. 30, 1980.

"Act." means actual amounts. "Est." means estimated amounts.

Numbers are billions of dollars.

"Outlays" mean amounts spent by the government. "Receipts" mean revenue raised by the government, such as through taxes. The deficit results from the government spending more than it receives.

	1978	1979	1980
	Act.	Est.	Est.
Outlays	$450.8	$493.4	$531.6
Receipts	$402.0	$456.0	$502.6
Deficit	$48.8	$37.4	$29.0

Showdown: Bakhtier Not Resigning For Khomeini

By ROBERT H. REID

Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's top soldier gave full support today to Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar, who has defied Ayatollah Khomeini's demands that he resign. Street battles raged between pro-and anti-shah

Iranians in a western city, and at least three persons were reported killed.

"The entire armed forces stand fully behind the legal and constitutional government" of Bakhtiar, Gen. Abbas Gharabaghi, military chief of staff, told a group of Iranian journalists.

Khomeini, the exiled Moslem leader who has directed the anti-shah movement, plans to return to Tehran Friday and wants to set up an Islamic republic to replace the Bakhtiar government. A key politician said today it could be "dangerous" for Khomeini if he returns at this time. Leftists and the conservative religious-oriented protest groups had joined in the year-long agitation that drove Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi from the country, but tension between the factions has been building as political victory nears for the opposition.

In a speech at his quarters outside Paris Sunday, Khomeini charged that the shah was planning a military coup to restore his power. But Gen. Gharabaghi told reporters today the armed forces "have no plans to pull a coup."

Nevertheless, Assadullah Mobashari, a member of the executive committee of the National Front political opposition, told a Tehran newspaper he believes it would be "dangerous for Khomeini to come to Tehran at this time."

Mobashari has been in Paris for several days to negotiate with Khomeini on behalf of the National Front and he spoke with the newspaper Ettelaat by telephone. The National Front was the major non-religious force in the anti-shah opposition.

Bakhtiar in a radio-television speech Sunday night said he would remain in office after the religious leader returns to Iran.

"All the nonsense and rumors... about my resignation are untrue," he said in a broadcast Sunday. "I am going to remain in the stronghold of the constitution."

However, informed sources reported that two of the nine members of the Regency Council resigned in obedience to the ayatollah. The council was named by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to exercise the royal powers in his absence.

The prime minister in his broadcast called for "calm and order" and said the nationwide strikes ordered by Khomeini were doing more harm to the country than official corruption in the shah's regime.

Khomeini, scheduled to return Friday after 15 years of exile in Iraq and France, says he will proclaim an Islamic republic and name a new government which he will dominate. He charged Sunday that the shah was planning a military coup to restore his power.

Report Criticizes VEPCO Policies

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Public Staff of the state Utilities Commission sharply criticized Virginia Electric and Power Co. today and filed a motion with the commission requesting a decrease in Vepeco's proposed fuel-charge adjustment.

The Public Staff report said in a report on Vepeco operations that the utility's management "has pursued a policy of avoiding justified capital expenditures required for proper maintenance of its generating units" and that "Vepeco has failed to convert some of its high-cost oil plants to low-cost coal."

The Public Staff also found that Vepeco's large low-cost units had a record of poor availability, which contributed to Vepeco's higher rates, according to the report.

Vepeco, which serves the northeastern part of North Carolina, has 20 days to respond to the Public Staff report. The Utilities Commission will then hold hearings on the case.

Vepeco filed an application with commission on Dec. 28 seeking an increase in its fuel adjustment charges.

In its investigation of Vepeco's operations, the Public Staff compared costs and operational data of 23 utilities companies, including Carolina Power and Light Co., Duke Power Co. and Vepeco.

The Public Staff concluded that the comparisons showed that Vepeco's higher costs were a result of its higher overall level of production expenses.

The Public Staff's analysis included an evaluation of Vepeco's forecasting and planning, construction program and costs, decisions to delay or cancel projects, capacity reserves, conversion to coal and plant productivity.

The report said Vepeco's deteriorated efficiency, heavy dependence on oil-fired generation and failure to convert some of its units from oil to coal were major factors to its high production costs.

Pentagon Again Plans Military Base Closings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is considering its second round of military base closing and reduction proposals calculated to save "several hundred million dollars a year," Defense Secretary Harold Brown disclosed today.

This is surprising because the Pentagon has made slow progress toward completing the Carter administration's first round of cutbacks announced last April, and some bases tapped for elimination by the previous Ford administration are still in business.

Congressmen and local interest groups have been fighting effective delaying actions in a number of cases, such as Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., and Fort Dix, N.J.

Brown told a briefing on the fiscal 1980 defense budget that some new base realignment proposals will be advanced by the Pentagon "in the course of the next month or two."

He said decisions have not yet been made on what military bases should be included on a new cutback list, adding that "we're considering a large number."

He made it clear that he was talking about additional bases beyond those listed for closure, cutback or consolidation last April in a move billed at the time as projected to save an estimated $337 million a year.

"They are, as you know, very controversial in every case and quite difficult and time consuming," Brown said.

"But we have an intention with this budget to go ahead with a number of additional such actions."

Fireman Of The Year Is Named

Raymond Webb of Bell Arthur has been named Pitt County Fireman of the Year.

Webb, who resigned as chief of the Bell Arthur Fire Department in late 1978 after having served as chief since the department's incorporation in 1962, was honored by the Pitt County Firemen's Association Thursday during the Association's annual Ladies' Night.

Webb, 53, was cited for his long-time service to the Bell Arthur community as chief and now as a fireman. It was reported that he resigned as chief because of health with the explanation, "I can no longer ask my men to do things and take risks which I am no longer capable of myself." He continues as a board member and a member of the fund-raising committee of the department.

His special achievements as chief included leadership in the building of the Bell Arthur Fire Station by the men themselves. "We did not contract the building — we built it with our own hands," they said. The building cost $85,000 and the department, partially because of Webb's negotiation with the Bell Arthur Water Corporation, now has an indebtedness of only $10,000, $5,000 of which is owed on a new truck.

Tentative VEPCO Agreement To Trim Rates

ElectriCities of North Carolina announced in Raleigh that it had reached tentative agreement with Virginia Electric and Power Co. for a reduction in the wholesale electric rate Vepeco is now charging to the municipal systems represented by ElectriCities.

Ralph W. Shaw, ElectriCities executive director, said the agreement will result in a reduction in power costs to the cities involved of more than $1.5 million a year.

Shaw said the reduced rate cannot go into effect until the agreement is approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. That approval is expected by late spring, he said, adding that the agreement will also require Vepeco to refund about $1 million the cities have paid under the existing rate.

Member municipalities, under the agreement, will pay a reduced wholesale rate to Vepco that is approximately the same level of Vepeco's North Carolina retail industrial rate, it was explained.

"The direct effect of that is that our municipalities will be able to continue to compete with the private power company for customers," the official stated.

A delegation of ElectriCities members and staff met last week with the executive committee of "Operation Overcharge," a movement whose aim is to roll back Vepeco electric rates in the state. Shaw said the two organizations agreed to work together on all mutually beneficial goals.

Municipalities involved in the rate reduction agreement are: Greenville, Ayden, Winterville, Robersonville, Belhaven, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Enfield, Hamilton, Hobgood, Oak City, Scotland Neck, Tarboro, Washington, Hertford, and Windsor.

FURNISHINGS NEEDED

The home of Chuck and Sheree Swift burned Dec. 20 and they and their two sons and two daughters lost everything they owned.

The family is now living in a trailer, but needs another place to live before Feb. 1. Mrs. Swift says they have been given sufficient clothing for her husband and two daughters, ages seven and nine, but are in need of clothes for their boys, sizes five and six, and for her, size 24.

They would like a place to live where their children could finish the school year in the Belvoir School district. They have no heaters, beds, nothing to furnish a house at the present time and would appreciate whatever anyone can offer. Contributions may be made through People's Baptist Temple, 264 Bypass West, and household items or clothes may be taken to the church or to the Etna Oil Company, 210 W. Tenth Street, where Swift works. Inquiries may be made by calling a neighbor of the Swifts, 758-0152, and asking for Mrs. Swift, or by calling the oil company and asking for Chuck Swift, 752-5467.

Anything given the family that cannot be used by them will be given to the Salvation Army or other charitable cause, Mrs. Swift said.

HOUSE BURNED

The house in which Annie Ruth Grimes made a home for her two children and her three nephews and one niece burned to the ground Thursday.

The house was located on Rt. 1, Bethel.

Ms. Grimes and the children are living temporarily with her father, Levie Grimes, but need another house. They also need household goods and clothing. Contributions may be made through the St. Paul Disciples Church, Williamston, of which Ms. Grimes is a member or may be taken to the home of her father one mile south of Bethel, Rt. 1, Box 274, Bethel. Inquiries may be made by phoning 825-7921.

Ms. Grimes wears size 7-8 dress, 7 and a half shoe; her daughter, Susan, size 6-8 dress; 6-6 and a half shoe; her son, Chris, size 32 pants, 10 shoe; her nephew, Alvin Heath, size 16 shirt, 7 and a half-8 shoe; her nephew, Harvey, size 14 shirt, six shoe; her nephew, Charles Heath, 12 shirt; five shoe; and niece, Laquita, size 4-5 (children's) dress, size 10 child's shoe.

MEXICAN PONCHO... casualness is combined with the bulky look of an Irish sweater in this Aran Poncho design.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Knit your way into the best of two worlds with a Mexican inspired poncho worked in Irish Fisherman Knit stitches! The cables and bobbles of the Aran lacy stitches give a beautiful sculptured texture to this handsome knit fashion.

The poncho is made in two straight pieces with the ribbed neck worked on circular needles after the two pieces are joined. Best of all, the instructions are written in large type with no abbreviations used — easy to follow! The poncho can be made with single strands of bulky wool yarn or double strands of knitting worsted weight Wintuk yarn.

To obtain directions for making the Aran Poncho, send your request for Leaflet MH-14 with 60 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector" P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order a kit containing yarn and instructions from Pat Trexler at the same address. Send $12.50 for Kit KS-14 if you want Wintuk yarn or send $21.00 for Kit KW-14 if you prefer wool yarn. Both are available in Fisherman White only. Price includes shipping charges.

DEAR PAT: Quite some time ago, you had a knitting stitch in your column described as "lacy." Could you possibly repeat this? I recall that it was quite pretty. Now that I have time to try out some new stitches, I can't find the clipping. Thank you for all of your helpful hints. — Janet J., Cleveland, Ohio.

That's a big order, Janet, as I have printed so many pattern stitches over the years. Perhaps the most popular lacy stitch I have given, however, is the one that follows. Hope it is what you had in mind.

Cast on a multiple of four stitches plus two. In case you find multiples confusing, you can think of this in another way. You will cast on any number of stitches which are evenly divisible by four (12, 16, 20, 24, etc.). Then, at the end, cast on two additional stitches.

For purposes of practicing this stitch, I suggest that you cast on 14 stitches. To work the pattern, knit the first two stitches, then "purl one stitch, yarnover, purl the next two stitches together, knit one." Repeat the steps between the asterisks all across the row.

This one row is repeated over and over for the pattern until the desired length is reached. I might mention that, when you are making a yarnover between purl stitches, as in this pattern, you wrap the yarn completely around the needle by taking it over the top of the needle and bringing it back to the front of the work, to the normal purl position.

Experiment with this pattern stitch with any yarn and needles you have on hand. Using larger needles than normal heightens the lacy look and, of course, has the advantage of making your work go faster.

I found that I could make a lovely scarf from one skein of knitting worsted by casting on thirty-four stitches and working in pattern until I ran out of yarn, using size ten needles.

There are literally dozens of lacy patterns to be done in knitting but I seldom give complicated ones in this column — there's just too much room for typographical errors with lengthy directions.

Another short and simple one can be worked on any even number of stitches. You start and end each row with one knit stitch. In between, repeat the steps between asterisks all across the row. Yarnover, slip, slip, knit.

When you are making a yarnover between knit stitches, such as in this pattern, simply bring the yarn to the front of your work before working the steps of the next stitch. This yarnover is not wrapped around the needle as is done when making a yarnover before a purl stitch.

To decrease by the "slip, slip, knit" method, you slip two stitches, one at a time, from the left needle to the right needle, slipping them knitwise. To slip knitwise means that you insert the needle tip into the stitches as if you were going to knit them.

When the two stitches are on the right hand needle, insert the tip of the left hand needle into the fronts of these two stitches from the left. You will see that this puts your needles into position to knit these two stitches

Barnacle Brothers Should Be Scraped

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our 50s and have two unmarried sons, 25 and 30. They don't live at home. Each prefers to have his own apartment, but we are still providing them with money, food, clothes, etc.

The oldest is a college graduate and employed, but seems to be in debt all the time.

The youngest had only one year of college, and goes from job to job. He's always broke due to poor judgment and minor scrapes with the law. Right now we have a lawyer trying to get his driver's license back, so here we are, bailing him out again.

We love these boys, but I am tired of having to constantly rescue them from their mistakes. At our age, my husband and I should be looking out for our own welfare, but our sons are a constant drain on us financially as well as emotionally.

What do other parents do in such a situation, Abby? And what do you suggest?

TIRED PARENTS

DEAR TIRED: At 25 and 30 it's time your "boys" were men. Perhaps they have never become responsible and self-supporting because you have always rushed in to rescue them when the going got rough.

Though motivated by "love," you have done them a disservice. You will not always be around to bail them out. Tell them that from now on they are on their own. They will respect you for it, and it might make men of them yet. I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is in the third grade and recently had a birthday party. She took the invitations to school and passed them out to the classmates she wanted. There were 29 kids in her class and she wanted only 23 of them at her party.

After the party her teacher called me and told me that my daughter should not have passed out her invitations at school unless she invited all the kids in her class.

Since when does a schoolteacher have the right to tell a pupil whom to invite to her birthday party? I would like your opinion in print.

OUTRAGED

DEAR OUTRAGED: Three cheers for the teacher! She is obviously much more understanding than you. The pain of having been left out will remain with those six uninvited children long after the fun has been forgotten by those who attended.

DEAR ABBY: I know a couple who live within blocks of his widowed 80-year-old mother.

They never visit her during the year. They call her on the phone maybe a couple of times a year.

On Mother's Day they send her a card with some money in the envelope. On the card is written: "Buy yourself something."

If you were that mother would you accept the money?

CLOSE RELATIVE

DEAR CLOSE: That would depend on how I felt about the givers.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

London Restaurateur Out To Challenge French Restaurants

By ROBERT MUSEL LONDON (UPI) — Peter Langan plans to challenge the restaurants of France for gastronomic honors on their own ground — in Paris.

To prove how serious he is, London's most colorful restaurateur announced he is cutting his consumption of champagne to an abstemious four bottles a day.

Langan discussed his strategy for breaking the Gallic monopoly over dinner at Odin's, the most luxurious of his London restaurants. He was so enthusiastic about the project, difficult though he knows it will be, that he drank only two bottles of champagne — before proceeding to white and red wines.

The brasserie restaurants of France represent the present ultimate of hard core French cuisine. The idea of a foreign restaurateur even aiming for parity would convulse the chefs of Paris. Langan can give them a bigger laugh than most.

He is Irish and self-taught. When he was a chef he cooked by instinct. He admits cheerfully that sometimes the souffles sank — and sometimes they were pure genius. Once a kitchen boy dared giggle as a souffle deflated. When a knife whizzed by his ear and stuck, quivering, into the wall, the boy departed the premises at full sprint and was never seen again.

Odin's looks almost as much like an art gallery as it does a restaurant. Its menu cover was drawn by David Hockney, whose originals run into thousands of dollars. Francis Bacon is another famous artist who frequents the place. The walls are covered with paintings. Langan has another restaurant, Langan's Brasserie, whose major backers include film star Michael Caine.

"Here I am," said Langan, "hardly able to buy a pair of shirts and Langan's Brasserie is turning over a million quid ($2 million) a year."

Oddly enough, it was this paradox that convinced him he could make it in Paris.

"They also said you couldn't operate a successful brasserie in London," he said. "We had our tough times — there was a bailiff on the doorstep one morning — but I buckled down to business and we're so crowded now I'm opening an upstairs room."

"There are always people telling you things can't be done," said the man who has been known to throw objectionable celebrities into the street and who once kicked the doors of a theater that owed him a bill for a catered party.

But Mick Jagger, Henry Kissinger and others who may share little but a fondness for Peter's dishes — such as pork fillet stuffed with dates and walnuts and a mushroom pate baked in brioche dough — crowd the tables at his three restaurants: Odin's, Langan's Brasserie and Langan's Bistro, next door to Odin's.

People also are always telling Langan he should button his collar and maybe even shave and stop using language more common Irish than proper English among his diners. His wife, Susan, long ago gave up, and smiles when the Langan dog trots in.

"It's the same with opening in Paris. I've been told all the obstacles. I'm going to put together $600,000 for the venture. The only way to find out if you're any good is by competing with them on their own ground. When I get to Paris I don't intend losing. I'll ride into town and take it."

Will he be his own master chef?

"No," said Langan who is blonde, understandably hectic of countenance and a bit more mature-looking than his 37 years.

He thoughtfully sampled bits of the six desserts of that evening's menu before pointing out that the chef at Langan's Brasserie is English.

He isn't — it's unthinkable — going to make his Paris challenge with an English chef (gasp).

"I am keeping my options open," Langan said. "I get along well with the French. That being the case, I suppose the first thing I'd better do is learn."

$29 Billion Deficit Proposed...

brunt of the spending restraint.
Carter said his budget slows the growth in federal spending to 7.7 percent in 1980, down from an average annual increase of 12.1 percent during the period from 1973 through 1978. The 1980 increase is only 0.7 percent after discounting for a 7 percent inflation rate.

Spending would be $12.6 billion lower than if federal programs had continued to grow at the same levels as before, the administration said.

The budget includes a previously allocated $6.9 billion for the revenue-sharing program for state and local governments, but it said no decision has been made about continuing the program after 1980. Any attempt to dismantle certain sharing would be certain to invite new conflict with mayors and local government executives already unhappy with Carter.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said the administration "has not yet made a decision on whether and in what way it will be carried forward," although he added that revenue sharing probably will be continued "in some way."

The budget holds out the possibility of a new round of tax reductions in 1981 — possibly including a rollback in Social Security taxes. Blumenthal told reporters it would be "very risky" to enact a new tax cut any sooner because that could worsen inflation.

Revenues for 1980, including tax receipts, are estimated at $502.6 billion, up from $456 billion in 1979.

As expected, the biggest increase in the 1980 budget is for defense, with outlays rising $10.8 billion to $122.7 billion, an increase of more than 3 percent even after discounting the effects of inflation.

Among the sharpest cuts are 160,000 public service jobs for a savings of $535 million. Some trimming of Social Security programs is proposed to reduce outlays by $600 million initially and Congress might not approve.

Congress, which has its own budget-making procedures, could make substantial changes in the Carter budget. However, the new Congress is expected to be more conservative than the last, and it seems more likely it would cut spending further, rather than increase it.

Carter is returning to Congress with a proposal it spurned last year. He will ask Congress to approve hospital cost containment legislation. The savings, Carter said, would total some $2.1 billion.

The budget ends for one year the unabated growth in federal aid to state and local governments that has lasted two decades.

Such federal grants, for programs ranging from public works and highway construction to school lunch programs and revenue sharing, have been increasing at annual rates of about 14.6 percent. But Carter's budget proposes virtually no increase.

However, Carter maintained his budget does not ignore the needs of the poor, and in fact increases help for the truly poor and disadvantaged by $4.5 billion to a total of $68.5 billion.

Nonetheless, there is little increase after discounting for inflation. And the $4.5 billion does not count the cuts in public jobs at all.

Among programs for the poor that are being increased, the administration cited the following: food stamps, up $700 million to $6.3 billion; Medicaid, up $700 million to $12.5 billion, and supplemental security income, up $700 million to $6.3 billion. Some of the increases were required by existing law, officials said.

And some increases that Carter cited in this regard did not tell the whole story of his budget. For instance, urban grants are going up but are sharply below what he proposed just last March. Existing housing subsidies are up, but new subsidies decrease.

Carter proposed increasing Medicaid eligibility for an additional 2 million poor children and expectant mothers at a cost of $451 million.

However, Carter acknowledged there is an across-the-board slowdown in many programs. He said spending restraint is imperative because "if we are to overcome the threat of accelerating inflation... the government will simply not be able to do as much as it has in the past."

Budget Director James T. McIntyre told reporters the budget "has kept the Democratic Party's commitment to meet human needs... we've done that."

The administration contends many of the cuts will affect people who are no longer in need of federal help, if they ever were. It cites as one example a proposed decrease in the subsidized school lunch program of five cents per meal for children from families with incomes above $13,845.

It contends the 160,000 public service jobs slated for elimination are no longer needed because of the strong employment gains of the past two years. Public jobs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) would be reduced to 467,000 jobs.

About 250,000 summer youth jobs also would be cut from the CETA program.

Carter defended the budget against critics who say it will slow the economy to the point that a recession will be inevitable. It "will permit continued economic growth," Carter said, although he didn't flatly rule out a recession.

The budget projects overall growth of the economy at 2.2 percent in 1979 and 3.2 percent in 1980, below the level needed to keep pace with the nation's growing labor force. The economy grew by 4 percent last year.

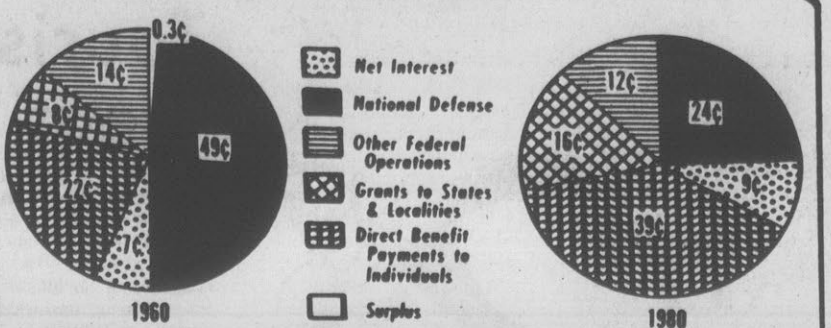

As a result of the slower economic growth, which the administration contends is necessary to help control inflation, unemployment is expected to increase from 5.9 percent currently to 6.2 percent by the end of 1979 and remain there through 1980.

A large number of private economists are predicting that the economy will slow even more sharply, however, and that unemployment will increase to 7 percent, or even higher this year. If this happens, Congress might insist on maintaining federal jobs programs at existing levels.

Inflation is projected in the budget at 7.4 percent this year, compared to 9.2 percent in 1978 and 6.4 percent in 1980. Those numbers also are considered optimistic by many private economists.

Eliminate Problem Of Plant Bed Overheating

Philbert and Charles Hardy of Clark's Neck have taken away most of the worry about excess heat under their tobacco plant bed covers, according to Gaylon Ambrose, Pitt County associate extension agent. As tobacco farmers know, high temperatures under plastic covers are often the culprit in destroying tobacco transplants. The average temperature under plastic covers is usually 10-20 degrees warmer than under cotton covers, according to Ambrose. Extended periods of excess heat will cause the plants to turn yellow and stop growing. If the excessive heat is not corrected, the plants will die, leaving the farmer with less tobacco transplants. The Hardys have eliminated the problem by designing a roller to perforate holes in the plastic to get rid of excessive heat. Before their invention, the Hardys used a log roller with nails to perforate the plastic covers. The nails on the roller pierced holes in the covers, with the holes often closing up after the cover was rolled. The new roller features evenly cut rods spaced on two inch centers, welded on a drum 24 inches wide and approximately 30 inches in diameter. The Hardys roll the holes in the plastic cover just before it is removed to sow the bed. They have found that rolling the beds early in the morning while the plastic cover is tight gives the best results. Until the temperature reaches 80-85 degrees for two consecutive days, the covers must be kept on the plant beds for protection. With the Hardys' invention, good, strong plants should await them when planting time rolls around this year.

JC Week Is Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed the period of Jan. 21-27 as Jaycee Week in Greenville and urged "all citizens of our community to give full regard to the past services" of the local chapter.

In his proclamation, Cox pointed out that the "civic bodies and service organizations of our community and the departments of the local government recognize the great service rendered... by the Greenville Jaycees."

The mayor said the week was designated by the U.S. Jaycees and affiliated state and local organizations to observe the founding of the Jaycee organization 59 years ago.

"The Greenville Jaycees are especially recognized on their 40th anniversary," Cox said. He added that "this organization of young men has contributed materially to the betterment of this community through their participation and involvement in such local programs as the Fourth of July celebration and Greenville Heart Fund Run for the past number of years."

Bikeway Meet Tuesday Night

The Citizens Bikeway Committee will have its regular meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Recreation-Library facility, Jaycee Park. Agenda items include: committee report on school bicycle registration; report on the Fifth Street bikeway; report on a priority list for storm drainage grate replacement; and discussion of Bicycle Safety Week. The public is invited to attend.

Unrealized Debt

By The Associated Press

You owe $4,087 that you probably don't know about. Just the interest on your unseen debt will add up to nearly $260 a year. That $4,087 represents the per-capita share of the $899 billion national debt — forecast in President Carter's budget — for each of the 219.9 million American men, women and children. The nearly $260 per-capita annual interest cost is everyone's share of the $57.1 billion to be paid out by the government in fiscal 1980 under Carter's spending plan.

A surprisingly large part of that national debt probably will be owed to foreigners. In 1978, $121 billion — equal to a per-capita share of $550 of the national debt — was held by foreigners, principally the governments of the Arab oil producing nations. That figure probably will grow since foreigners are continuing to buy government notes and securities.

Of course, a bill for your part of the national debt won't be arriving in the mail anytime soon. Part of the national debt is a bookkeeping device to settle accounts among various government agencies. And much of the rest is held by banks, life insurance companies and individual Americans who have savings bonds and Treasury bills, notes and bonds.

Subject To Public Judgement

Sec. of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph A. Califano, Jr. axe swinging at the tobacco industry and the University of North Carolina system comes amid reports that he may run for U. S. Senate from New York.

We recognize there is room for difference of opinion on these and other issues and we don't accuse Sec. Califano of running for office in New York through these exceptionally unreasonable attacks.

We think, though, that the secretary owes it to the public to let us in on his plans for political office. If he is going to be running for the Senate in New York, then he ought to let us know so that the public can make some judgement of his actions as HEW secretary.

If Sec. Califano isn't willing to do this, then certainly President Carter, to whom he is answerable, should call him in to find out.

A Lid On New State Jobs

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt wants to see as tight a lid as possible slammed on growth in governmental employment in North Carolina, but will fight legislative formulas which accomplish that.

Instead, he says, his budget for the coming two years will establish a new low in growth of employment.

"These increases are a substantial slowdown in State government growth 2.15 percent and .94 percent respectively) compared to an average annual growth of 4.8 percent between 1972-73 and 1976-77, and increases of 3.2 percent in 1977-78 and 3.1 percent in 1978-79," says the governor.

Already, several limiting measures have been introduced in the General Assembly, and others are being prepared. Several approaches are under consideration: pegging increased state jobs to increased jobs in the private sector; eliminating one-half the jobs as they become vacant by retirement or resignation setting a zero growth rate.

No Formula

At one point Hunt considered a formula for growth, but now rejects that notion. "Zero growth? That is an absurd recommendation. Other formulas? I wouldn't absolutely rule out a formula, but I am not aware of one sufficiently thought out to be workable," Hunt commented.

Actually, his proposed increases are smaller than those proposed in some of the formulas being talked about by legislators, Hunt added. His goal is to get employment growth down to two percent per year, "and we are close to that."

But expansion of state jobs is essential to match increasing population, to operate expanded programs and facilities, to meet potential demands in actual or potential lawsuits on staffing at prisons, mental hospitals, etc., and to respond to the statewide reading program and remediation for those who fail the competency tests, Hunt feels.

"Still, we are getting down to where except for the public schools there are almost no increases in governmental employment", the governor explains.

BILL NOBLITT

That is ironic in itself, for while public school employment increases, student enrollment is declining. Changed student-teacher ratios and added specialty educators continue the pressure to enlarge faculties.

Here is a review of the figures in the new budget now before the General Assembly. Total increases for 1979-80 is 3,747, with 2,394 of those jobs in public schools. The bulk of new school jobs are reading aides. Reduction of student contacts in junior highs will require 587 new teachers.

Major Cost

Another 71 school psychologists are being added, and each year will see 90 additional vocational education teachers.

While school jobs go up more than 3,800 in the two years, about 700 teacher jobs each year are being cut due to enrollment declines.

Why the legislative and administrative concern with jobs? For one thing, the bulk of the state budget already goes for salaries, fringes and other direct personnel supports. For another, personnel costs are a "recurring" expense ".... what you spend this year, must also be spent next year and added to."

New jobs next year will cost some $40 million. Continue that and add another $17 million the following year. Meanwhile, raises will cost about $20 million each percentage point next year (some $140 million). Continue that, and add another raise the following year.

Thus it is very easy to see why the budget office chose to introduce the new budget this way: "The total state budget from all sources is doubling every seven years." Total employment will stand at $180,000 next year.

NEVER-NEVER LAND BECOMES EVER-EVER LAND

By ART BUCHWALD

Gone With The Wind

WASHINGTON — I don't know anyone in this country who has taken a stronger position on rape than this columnist. I've been against it. Therefore, when Greta Rideout charged her husband with raping her and Mr. Rideout was tried for the crime last month in Salem, Ore., I, with so many women liberators in this country, was hoping he would be sent to the slammer for life and the authorities would throw away the key.

It so happens that a bleeding-heart jury found John Rideout innocent of the charge and set him free. My indignation ran high. By letting him walk out of the courtroom the jury was saying that, in so many words, John Rideout could rape any wife he was married to without fear of doing 10 to 20 years. But Greta Rideout would live with the scars for the rest of her life — a woman, if we were to believe her testimony, who had been violated by her own husband against her will. I was willing to march on the state capitol of Oregon to protest this flagrant disregard for justice.

Then a couple of weeks ago a funny thing happened. The newspapers reported that Greta and John Rideout had reconciled and were back together. After attempting to send her husband to the prison farm, Greta had decided it was all a big mistake and that she loved him in spite of what he had done to her, or maybe because he had — I wasn't quite sure from reading the story.

John, instead of being bitter about having to stand trial, said he loved Greta and he hoped they would live happily ever after.

The taxpayers of Oregon who footed the state's bill for prosecuting Mr. Rideout were of course happy that John and Greta were reconciled. But they were also a little peeved because they had to pay for such expensive marriage counseling. The only ones who came out looking good were the members of the jury, who said after they had reached their "not guilty" verdict that, despite all the evidence presented, they just could not buy Mrs. Rideout's story.

So the question arises: Should a husband be charged with raping his wife? Obviously, the Rideouts have made it more difficult for another test case. Those of us who took a strong stand in favor of hanging John Rideout will now have to rethink our position on this issue. Had Rideout been found guilty and sent away there would have been an entirely different conclusion to the drama, and one of Oregon's great love stories might never have reached the happy ending we were treated to last week.

I must admit that all during the well-publicized trial my

Roman Tourist Treat

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

ROME (AP) — "A man who has not been to Italy," said Doctor Johnson, "is always conscious of an inferiority for his not having seen what is expected a man to see."

Now far be it from me to disagree with the great lexicographer, but it seems to me in this case he is giving old Jamie Boswell the tour guide's outlook on travel. Johnson is advising his friend to see what ought to be seen, like ruins and cathedrals, but not what he might like to see, like maybe the bars and the night clubs.

The thing I like most about going to Italy, besides the fact that the office pays when a new Pope is elected or another government falls, is seeing what I never expected to see. Like for instance: the smallest bar in the world. Now this is one place where the tourists never go, because there isn't room for them, and in the second place it doesn't have a name.

A man is not expected to know about a bar that has no name, because none of the guide books even mentions it, but it does far more for his inferiority to name drop its lack of name than to have been part of the thousands every day who push their way around the Forum, hurry past the Pieta and drop coins in the Trevi fountain as fast as those urchins with the magnets on a string can fish them out.

The nameless world's smallest bar is right in the heart of downtown Rome tucked away among all those exclusive shops on the Via Condotti, which author Ludwig Bemelmans, who specializes in portraying the posh, called "the most elegant street in the world, more like a well-appointed drawing room." The bar is so tiny and out-glittered by Gucci, Pucci, Cucci and those other extravagantly expensive but non-rhyming Roman boutiques nearby, that it is regularly passed up by the tourists.

I had passed it up several times, too, until taken there by my friend, John Hart, the eminent art critic, who is a regular. He likes the toasted truffle sandwiches and the slow-stirred martinis. Being a regular at a bar that holds only a dozen people when packed to overflowing is certainly pushing exclusivity beyond the fire limits, as John is not ashamed to admit. In fact, he calls the bar with no name "La Snobberia," because of all the chi-chi shoppers who come here from the best families in Italy and the best houses in Europe, surrounded by their shopping bags with names like "Valentine," "Bulgaria" (Rome's most expensive jeweler) and Pino Labetti, the designer next door, prominently displayed.

Mario and Amadeo are accused of "keeping Vatican hours." They open at 8:30 a.m., to make the crabmeat, salmon and truffle canapes for which they are justly famous among the beautiful people. The early opening pleases Roman Senators who like to catch a couple of eye-opening Bloody Marys on the way to parliament. They close at 9:30 p.m., (which is unheard of in Rome) when the shops have closed and everyone else is just heading off to cocktail hour. The two barmen, who bought the place a few years ago when the owner lost interest, have been rattling the ice cubes since the bar-with-no-name opened in 1952. Or, as Mario dates history, "when dry martinis were only 5 to 1 instead of 7 to 1."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Key Defection On SALT

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Leaders of the American-Jewish community are showing unexpected resistance to the new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT II) based on Soviet failure to live up to previous agreements, particularly on human rights and the plight of Soviet Jews.

That fact, deeply disturbing to the Carter administration, is becoming apparent to high officials now lobbying American-Jewish leaders — along with other groups of citizens — to line up pro-SALT support for the bitter Senate battle ahead.

The depth of Jewish resistance to the new treaty, expected to be ready for signing in the spring, is another hurdle for the president's long-stalled SALT II hopes: few if any groups of Americans are better qualified to judge Soviet performance on past agreements than the American-Jewish community.

There is not likely to be public opposition to the new treaty, but private hostility. Such leading and influential organizations as the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, B'nai B'rith, the National Conference on Soviet Jewry and others have no intention of taking a hard-line, public posture against SALT. "We're not about to get out front," one influential Jewish leader told us. "SALT is not a peculiarly Jewish issue but an American issue. We just won't be doing anything to help."

That shades the hard truth that any agreement with Moscow is, in fact, of more intense interest and concern to Jews than to non-Jews. The reason: Soviet restrictions on the emigration of Russian Jews, plus what officials of Jewish organizations here describe as "growing anti-semitism" in the Soviet Union.

Soviet conduct toward the West and particularly Soviet performance on carrying out previous agreements with the U.S. have great importance on how the influential Jewish community reacts to any new agreement, SALT or other, with Moscow. As of today, the reaction is strictly negative. That argues for formal neutrality in the bitter Senate battle now looming, a neutrality that will cloak opposition.

One showcase that dramatizes this anti-SALT attitude was a paper prepared by the National Conference on Soviet Jewry at the specific request of Sen. Howard Baker, the Senate Republican leader, for his talk with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev early this month. Baker took the paper with him to Moscow, but decided at the last minute not to use it in the long session he and fellow senators had with Brezhnev.

Baker told us he felt his generalized warning to Brezhnev Jan. 10 that the Senate would definitely invoke "linkage" in studying the new SALT treaty was enough to make his point. "Linkage" — disavowed by the Carter administration — means that such Soviet actions as staging a coup in Afghanistan, subsidizing a Cuban mercenary army in Africa or exploiting turmoil in Iran will be fully considered by the Senate in deciding whether to approve the new SALT treaty. Approval requires a two-thirds vote.

In addition, Baker and other senators with him left on a Kremlin desk the almost ritualistic list of pressing cases of Russian Jews denied emigration visas to leave the country. With that demonstration of purpose, Baker kept the paper composed for him by the National Conference on Soviet Jewry in his pocket during the Brezhnev meeting, but he is prepared to use it in questioning administration witnesses when the treaty comes before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which he is a member.

The paper establishes this premise: that "evaluating Soviet credibility in adhering to a strategic arms limitation document" depends on "an examination of past Soviet performance on international accords."

The "examination," said the national conference paper, shows "total disregard" by the Soviet Union for "the aims and principles" of the 1975 Helsinki human rights document and "systematic deception" on the question of Jewish

Public Forum

To the editor:

In the past when the Greenville Rescue Squad needed manpower, equipment, etc., the citizens of Greenville have responded. This help is needed now more than ever. The very function of the Squad is in jeopardy.

One of the major defects of the present system is that there are two totally different departments of the city controlled under one department head. The Rescue Department and the Fire Department are controlled strictly by the Fire Chief. It is hard for me to conceive that one man can efficiently operate these two departments, especially if he is trained in fire control and not specifically in rescue work. It would seem to me that one or the other of these departments is suffering the consequences. This is the case with the Greenville Rescue Squad. The quality of the Greenville Rescue Squad service has always been outstanding; however, if the two departments are not separated, it will become increasingly difficult to provide even adequate emergency services.

Our city is one of the fastest growing in North Carolina, and I fail to see why one of its most important services is not being allowed to grow with it. People do not realize how very important emergency medical care is until someone close to them needs it.

City officials say city funds are low and, therefore, there are not enough funds to separate the two departments. However, I know for fact that the Volunteer Greenville Rescue Squad and many other civic organizations have pledged to raise the money needed for a separate facility. This cannot be done without the permission of the mayor and City Council. Likewise, a separate Chief of Rescue needs to be appointed. This, in itself, will not cost a penny.

Already a Committee of Concerned Citizens has formed. Everyone can benefit. This is a worthwhile cause, and, indeed, may be a life-saving one.

Message Of National C-of-C

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Chamber of Commerce has delivered its message to the 96th Congress: Fight inflation, cut spending and taxes, end needless regulation and promote real economic growth.

Nothing unexpected in that, but it doesn't mean there isn't a difference. It's one of outlook: The Chamber now feels Congress and most Americans share not just their goals but their enthusiasm.

Encouraged by trends, including membership that has jumped to 80,000 from 52,000 in 1975, Richard Leshner, president, has changed the Chamber from a somewhat benign moral presence into a real knucklerapper.

Not satisfied with obtaining agreement with its goals, the Chamber intends to keep a scorecard on every member of Congress, matching statements made in a pre-election survey with their votes on the floor.

The results could be embarrassingly revealing because, says Leshner, fully 100 percent of elected candidates have indicated they favor the Chamber's policies on tackling inflation, the "top problem."

No less than 98 percent, he continued, favor the Chamber's views on restraining spending growth, and on reducing the fiscal 1980 deficit below $25 billion, instead of the official budget's $29 billion.

Nearly as many support its goals of tax relief for all taxpayers, and "sunset," or automatic phasing out for all programs and regulations that, on review, cannot demonstrate their usefulness.

Seeking to buttress these expressions of confidence, Leshner's economic research staff, headed by Jack Carlson, an economist with years in high government positions, sent lawmakers some interesting statistics.

In the form of a letter from Shearon Harris, chairman, the chamber informed members of Congress that in the past they have been among the major causes of inflation.

Because of congressional actions in 1977 and 1978, the members were informed, they have already assured a 3 percent increase in prices by the end of 1979, a rate that would cost the average family nearly $800.

An asterisk must be applied to these figures, however, lest the notion be accepted that such spending is simply waste. There is no black and white in such matters. There may be good: There may be waste.

The raising of the minimum wage rate, for example, accounts for fully 2 percent of the 3 percent gross impact, or $554. The Chamber believes that those higher rates have needlessly raised costs — and cost jobs.

While this may or may not be so, many people believe the minimum wage should have been raised. It's their opinion. The Chamber's point is that right or wrong, Congress made the decision — and cut buying power.

Strength For Today

START CLIMBING

Abraham Lincoln once declared that people are about as happy in life as they make up their minds to be.

The same thing can be said in reference to success. We attain about as much success in life as we are willing to pay for. There are a few high positions and great fortunes in this country held by people unworthy of them. In every generation a few geniuses go unnoticed and a few worthy men are given the brushoff. But for the most part success depends upon industry, good habits, high ideals, and sound moral character.

Those people who are waiting for an elevator to whisk them to the top floors of success will find out, sooner or later, that this elevator is permanently out of order. If they want to get to those top floors, they must take to the stairs.

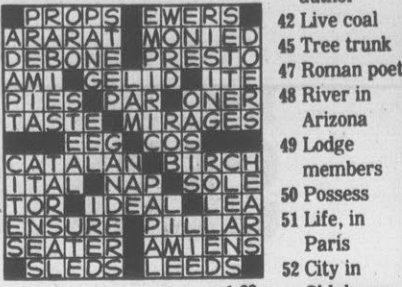

There is no achievement without expenditure of effort. So start climbing.

Tenement Fire Deliberately Set

LITTLE FIRE VICTIM — A Jersey City fireman carries the body of a small boy, one of several persons killed early Monday in a tenement fire authorities said was deliberately set. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARK CRANE
 Associated Press Writer
 JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Seven persons, including a mother and her five children, were killed early today in a tenement fire that was deliberately set, authorities said. Victims were seen rapping on a window shortly before firefighters arrived, but apparently were overcome when they tried to reach a fire escape, said Deputy Chief Dominick Cardillo. It was the second fatal apartment building fire in New Jersey in three days. At least 19 persons were killed early Saturday in a fire in Hoboken, which authorities also suspect was caused by arson. A Jersey City police spokesman said today's fire was located about four blocks from a three-alarm warehouse blaze that occurred just over 24 hours earlier, and about two miles from the Hoboken blaze. Police declined to speculate whether the fires were connected. They said there had been no arrests. There were reportedly seven families living in the four-story brick building that burned today. Six families escaped, apparently without injuries, officials said. Fire Director Raymond Maloney identified the dead as Maria Gonzales, 35, her five children Papo, 12, Edward, 11, Albert, 10, Susan, 3, and Anita, 1. An unidentified male adult was found with the family, Maloney said. The seven victims were trapped on the third floor, authorities said. Fire officials said a woman living in the building told them she heard a noise in the hallway, and saw a young man pouring something on the stairs when she went to investigate. "It was some type of accelerant (substance used to fuel fires)," said Maloney "We'll have to test it." The fire broke out a short time later, officials said. Cardillo said the victims died either of smoke inhalation or from gases. "Just before we arrived, people saw them (the victims) rapping on the window. Then they went to the rear, apparently trying to get to the fire escape," but were overcome and died, he said. "If they had stayed at the front window, we could have gotten them out. But when people are in a fire, they panic."

wife kept saying, "You're being too hard on John Rideout. There is more to this story than Greta is admitting." "How can you say that?" I would shout at her. "Do you remember 'Gone With the Wind'?" she asked. "What does 'Gone With the Wind' have to do with a husband raping his wife?" "The big scene in 'Gone With the Wind,' for most women, was when Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh had their famous fight and Clark grabbed her and carried her upstairs to the bedroom. The next scene showed Vivien the following morning in a rumpled bed with the happiest smile she'd had on her face during the entire picture." "Not necessarily," she said, "but Greta Rideout could be another Vivien Leigh." Well, at least in the case of Greta, I guess my wife was right. I'll never take sides again in a husband-wife rape case without first thinking of "Gone With the Wind." In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if the Rideouts sell their story to the movies and become the Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara of our time.

Charlotte's Buses Move

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — City buses rolled today for the first time in 58 days, ending Charlotte's longest bus strike. Drivers and mechanics ended their 56-day strike Saturday, approving a new two-year contract by a 122 to 30 vote. While there was some disagreement as to whether the new terms were worth the strike, an official of the United Transportation Union indicated there was no doubt in his mind. Ken Moore, international vice president of the union and chief negotiator, said of the contract, "It offers fantastic improvements over what we had and over what management originally offered." But Jerry Olson, general manager of Transit Management of Charlotte, which runs the city-owned bus system, said: "I believe if the offer of Nov. 22 were to be examined closely, one would find a lot of consistency between the company's original position and the final offer (accepted Saturday)."

4-H Leaders Plan For Year

Pitt County 4-H'ers and 4-H leaders met Thursday for the first county council and leaders meeting of 1979 to select workshop and make plans for the year ahead. Cynthia Lilley of the Grifton Pioneers 4-H chapter and county council vice president, presided at the meeting. Training for new club officers, a demonstration workshop and a valentine dance have all been scheduled for February. Workshops in photography, leathercraft, radio communications, and baby-sitting were some of those requested by 4-H'ers for 1979. Council officers will use the requests in making up the activity schedule. Addie Gore, Extension Home Economist, was introduced to the group by Olga Savage, County Council Secretary-Treasurer. Miss Gore gave a presentation on nutritious snacks. Workshops in crafts, gardening, and 4-H club training were selected by council officers for leader training sessions during the year. Sue May, Home Economist, introduced a new home furnishing kit to the leaders for local club program use during January and February. "We are pleased with the attendance for our first of the six county council and leader meetings of 1979, Dale Panaro, Pitt County 4-H Agent. "The topics for workshops and programs that the groups have proposed will help us plan activities for the year ahead."

Not all Jewish leaders in this country, and not all Jewish members of the Senate, will agree that this performance record should play so large a part in the SALT II Senate debate. But those who do will cost Jimmy Carter just the sort of highly-organized support from the American-Jewish community that he may need to win the ratification battle.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AKQ72 ♥K6 ♦82 ♣Q1065
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 1 ♦ 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣
 Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Since you have considerably more than the minimum for a simple overall at the one-level, game is a possibility. It is simply a matter of deciding on the best way to make your try. A raise to three spades conveys your intentions, but might not elicit the information you need. Partner's club holding is the key, so we feel you should make a trial bid of three clubs—and be content with a part score if partner can do no more than rebid three spades.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South with 60 on score you hold:
 ♠KJ963 ♥AK872 ♣954
 Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you bid now?
 A.—Experience shows that two-suited hands are not ideal for a takeout double. Therefore, we suggest that you start with an overall of one spade, intending to show your hearts at your next turn. In view of your diamond void, it is most unlikely that the bidding will die at one spade, especially at this score.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ842 ♥7 ♦AK8752 ♣9
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
 3 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—What started out as a possible slam hand has deteriorated because of an apparent misfit. Nevertheless, you should not be content with no trump—your distribution is too extreme. Complete the description of your hand by bidding four spades. Partner might have three-card support, and slam is still possible.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠8752 ♥Q92 ♦A10 ♣AQJ10
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 ♣ 1 ♦ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You have a full opening bid facing partner's opener. To show your strength, jump raise to three clubs. Now both you and partner will be well placed to probe for the proper contract.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠J4 ♥AK1094 ♦83 ♣AKJ7
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
 2 ♣ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
 What action do you take?
 A.—Despite partner's unenthusiastic bidding, you do have a fine suit and some extra values, which suggests a possible game. Your hand merits a forward-going move, and the only sensible action is to issue an invitation by bidding three hearts.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A9 ♥KQJ10762 ♦6 ♣AJ5
 Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you bid now?
 A.—We would not fault you greatly if you just bid four hearts, but slam possibilities should not be overlooked. We suggest that you first double and then jump to four hearts at your next turn. This shows a hand stronger in high cards than does an immediate jump to game.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠5 ♥KJ1072 ♦AQ109 ♣QJ10
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
 5 ♥ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Partner did not cue-bid or use Blackwood, so he cannot be interested in either how many or which aces you hold. Therefore, his jump can only be asking about your trump quality. Since it could hardly be better, bid six hearts confidently.

Q.8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠Q108 ♥972 ♦K9863 ♣Q10
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 Pass Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♣ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Pass. You do not have enough to respond freely, particularly since your trump support is a weak if your heart and spade holdings were reversed. Then the two honors in partner's suit might just make your hand worth a raise.

Our authentic English stoneware is made to last. Our free offer, unfortunately, isn't.

Alas. We can't continue to offer our beautiful, handcrafted English stoneware for free forever. In fact, we can't continue to offer it for free after January 31. But relax. Because we'll still continue to offer the best bargains to cross the Atlantic in a long time by making available the complete line of stoneware at bargain prices, even after our "free offer" deadline.

So if you come in anytime now through the end of January, and deposit $25 or more in a new or existing BB&T regular savings account, we'll give you a three-piece place setting—absolutely free. (This offer is good for one free place setting per account.)

If you come in after January 31, however, you can still take advantage of our bargain prices on the complete line. For example, everytime you deposit $25 or more in a BB&T savings account, you're still eligible to buy an additional place setting or completer piece.

Deposit $500 in a new or existing savings account and you can buy a twelve-piece snack set for four for only $31.75. Deposit $1,000 and a full 26-piece service for four—including dinner plates, cups, saucers, bread-and-butter plates, soup or cereal bowls, a large, covered casserole, and oval platter, a sugar bowl and a cream pitcher—can all be yours for just $65.

So come in today for all the details. But don't wait. After all, all good things must come to an end.

Our free offer ends January 31. But we'll continue to have additional pieces at bargain prices.

Indignant Artists Want Larger Share Of Profits

WANTS LARGER PIECE OF PROFITS — Artist Robert Indiana stands on the floor of the Milwaukee Arena in Milwaukee, Wis. after the court of the Bucks was painted in a design he created. Indiana is one of a growing group of artists hoping for a greater share of profits from art they create, and looking for legislation to guarantee them fair royalties. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARIA PALLAIS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When Robert Rauschenberg was a struggling painter in the late 1950s, a collector of "pop" art bought one of his works for $960 — and resold it later for $85,000.

The collector made a profit of 8,754 percent in the resale.

"I've worked my ass off for you to make all this profit," the painter heeded, and publicly, told him right after the auction.

That has long been a problem for artists, but now hundreds of them are supporting a proposal to change their finances by guaranteeing them royalties much like those which writers and composers get.

These artists, both struggling and successful, say it is only right that they get a share of the profits from the resale of their work.

California Rep. Henry A. Waxman is proposing that Congress pass a law to do just that, but there is a major problem. He says the "full support of dealers, collectors and others who would be paying royalties on visual art," is needed for congressional approval.

And many art dealers, collectors and museums have been critical. Art dealers, in particular, argue it would freeze the market for contemporary art.

Those active in the movement seeking the new law include such well-known names as Jasper Johns, James Rosenquist, and Robert Indiana, who painted "LOVE" with the now-familiar block letters in which the "O" teeters off balance. Indiana made 25 copies in sculpture and prints, but he never copyrighted the works, and thus missed out on most of the profits.

Waxman's bill would help artists by setting up a National Commission on the Visual Arts to "require payments by certain sellers of works of visual arts," and register art transactions just as the Library of Congress registers books printed.

Rubin Gorewitz, a New York City lawyer who heads the largest lobbying group, the 700-member Artists Rights Today, said royalties would keep intact "the umbilical cord between the artist and his work."

Waxman, who plans to present to Congress in February a third revised draft of his bill, says, "It's only just that visual artists share the benefits of profitable resales."

But most major dealers disagree. Spokesmen for Sotheby Parke Bernet, a New York art auction gallery with a salesroom in Los Angeles, say a similar bill already in effect in California had "an adverse effect on the business of auction houses and galleries."

If the concept is written into federal law, "it would dissuade most American collectors from buying contemporary art," asserted David Nash, a director at Sotheby Parke Bernet.

One dealer who asked to remain anonymous said that if the government decides to protect artists in the face of increasing speculation, the number of collectors who buy their work will diminish substantially.

"When most businessmen buy art, they like the idea of buying beauty without the burden of a 'real' financial transaction," he said.

Gilbert Edelson, a lawyer for the Art Dealers Association, argues that artists are different from writers and composers, who "get royalties when they license their work, not when they resell it."

The California law, which dates to 1976, entitles an artist to collect 5 percent of the price of "a registered work which was profitably resold at over $1,000."

The artists' argument is that their work is a commodity and should be treated as such. They want to sell art works as they would novels if they were writers — with a contract.

Even without a law, Judy Pendleton, an artist who heads a New York City-based group called the Artist Rights' Association, has begun selling her paintings with a contract entitling her to a share of resale profits. She claims that "it hasn't proven to be a hindrance in selling my work" — and that she has received 500 requests for a copy of the so-called agreement.

A couple of years ago, her 14-member group held two shows in which buyers had to sign the contract. Since then, 18 more artists have joined the group, and the members plan another exhibit next spring. Once more, they will sell only to those who agree to the contract.

But if economic justice is the aim, a Visual Arts federal law wouldn't fully solve the problem, says Ralph Colin, president of New York's Art Dealers Association. He claims that only a third of the 30,000 new artists emerging every year in America are successful enough to dictate the price of their work.

Waxman, on the other hand, asserts that "today's famed artists were yesterday's unknowns" — an argument that certainly applies in the case of Rauschenberg, whose work today frequently sells for $100,000, and Indiana, who recently sold one sculpture for $80,000.

Ms. Pendleton's work sells for an average $50 to $2,000. She and other artists have been lobbying in Washington.

Fifteen-Year-Old Boy Found To Be Their Computer Vandal

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 23, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good time to expand your activities far beyond their present boundaries. Think in terms of what your greatest development can be in policy directions and then study these so that you make the best possible use of them. Be outgoing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to plan in detail a trip you have in mind. Cultivate new acquaintances and turn them into good friends. Avoid a tendency to exaggerate and all goes better for you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study obligations and know how best to discharge them. Friends and kin are most cooperative now so make the most of this.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get in touch with persons with whom you have joint interests and see how to make them more operative. Any community work you do now can be very remunerative.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine time to study work conditions and know how best to improve them. Talk over with fellow workers how to have more cooperation and harmony.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Meet friends socially and have a fine time. Put new creative ideas to work that need a little more attention as to detail.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try a different attitude at home and establish more harmony there. Establish good credit and feel more secure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are now able to get your work done more efficiently, so don't procrastinate. Try to be of help to friends in their aims.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to add to your abundance now by some unusual methods. A good time to make repairs, or plan for them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do those things you really like to do and advancement comes easily for you. Be with as many friends as you can at entertainment places.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to be alone and think out a course that will help to make your life easier and more affluent. Confer with a clever adviser and gain his views.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to be your gregarious self and see as many friends and acquaintances as you can. State your aims and ambitions and gain their cooperation for gaining them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Look to those in power for expressing your finest talents with their assistance. Get into community work that will add to prestige.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will do well in any profession that deals with humanitarianism or social service which could entail much travel in foreign countries. Teach early to think before speaking and then this becomes a successful chart.

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — University of California researchers have been trying for months to learn why responses from an expensive campus computer were jumbling and private computer files were vanishing.

After a computer challenge, university electronic sleuths joined forces with police and finally caught the culprit: a bright 15-year-old boy.

Campus police, armed with a search warrant, arrested him last week and pulled the plug on the $60 teletype terminal with which he was "talking" through telephone lines to the computer.

The whiz kid admitted that for months he transmitted instructions to the computer at all hours from his home in nearby Concord. He was not identified.

"He is bright...but it took a while for him to grasp the gravity of the situation," said campus police detective David M. Huff.

University officials said it cost $10,000 to clear up the problems caused by the youth's electronic tinkering.

But the boy, who Huff said has had legitimate access to some campus computers in the past through extracurricular organizations, reportedly said he really didn't cause that much trouble.

"I think they are over-exaggerating," he was quoted as saying in Sunday's Oakland Tribune. "I never cost anyone any money."

The boy said he began the clandestine computer caper "because I was not allowed to get on (the system) legitimately."

Students and faculty members said information that wasn't supposed to be a part of their work had showed up unexpectedly on their printouts since fall, and the garbling forced them to rewrite programs and use hours of additional computer time.

At one point, frustrated campus officials ordered the computer to print a message at the beginning of each researcher's file saying: "Unauthorized Use of This Computer is Illegal."

The computer printout then produced this startling response:

"You've done relatively well keeping me out of (the system). Would you like some help?"

That did it, said Professor M. Stuart Lynn, director of computing affairs for the Berkeley campus. He called in university police.

After three weeks of detective work, including help from campus sources, they caught the boy.

"There's a kid here who has a lot of talent, and I hope he can be channeled in more positive directions," said Lynn.

Huff turned the boy over to Alameda County juvenile authorities. He said the youth could be charged with grand theft, felony vandalism and possession of stolen property.

Said Huff, "As I was explaining the problem, he was wiping his eyes a bit."

Flight Set Back Space Shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The maiden flight of the space shuttle has been set for Nov. 9 after the space agency found the cause of an engine failure in the manned space craft.

The shuttle — expected to be the workhorse of U.S. military and civilian space programs for most of the next 20 years — was to be launched next September. That date was pushed back because of an engine explosion last month.

HOW MUCH TAXABLE PROFIT?

When you sell your home at a profit, the difference between the cost and the selling price is taxable (unless you defer it by buying a more expensive home). The important cost basis is the sum of the original cost plus the dollar-value of improvements and selling expenses. Although the average homeowner can usually determine the amount originally paid for the home, he usually lacks information regarding improvements which have been made during ownership. Amounts spent for replacements, alterations or improvements which increased the value of the property can be added to the original cost basis to determine the gain or loss at sale. Not only should the homeowner know the dollar amounts of the improvements, he should be able to substantiate these facts in the event of an IRS examination. So keep those records and check stubs.

Revolt In Hertford On Price Of School Lunch

MURFREESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Another taxpayers revolt is in the works, but this time it's over the price of school lunches.

The Hertford County school board recently voted to increase by 5 cents the cost of full-price lunches and to reduce by 10 cents the cost of reduced price lunches.

County school officials said they were told by the State Board of Education that the maximum allowable charge for a reduced-price lunch was 10 cents.

"Baloney," replied some students and parents, and proceeded to prepare to pack some — or peanut butter or whatever — in lunch sacks.

More than 75 percent of the students in Hertford County schools have been getting free lunches or paying 20 cents for a reduced-price lunch. Eligibility was determined by income.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture increased its reimbursement to the local system by 10 cents a meal when the price of the reduced-cost lunch was lowered.

But the school board, noting that the system loses money on all full-price meals, chose that time to increase the price of the full-price lunches.

That prompted some students at Murfreesboro High School to announce that it will boycott the school lunch program when classes resume Tuesday after today's teacher workday.

And some parents, too, have supported the students.

Parents contended that by paying more for the full-price lunches, they were really subsidizing the free and reduced-price lunches.

"After all, the reimbursements from the Department of Agriculture for the free and reduced-price lunches are being paid from our tax money," said Paula Phillips of Murfreesboro.

A petition circulated last week opposed the large number of less-than-full-price meals.

The petition protested "the financial burden placed on the parent who pays taxes and his child's lunch fee, and the stigma placed upon the paying student who, as a minority, is discriminated upon."

The parents will be meeting with school superintendent C. David Greene today to discuss the situation. Greene said the schools get reimbursed for the reduced-price and free lunches but don't get anything for full-price lunches.

SMOOTHING OUT THE BUMPS — State Department of Transportation crews have been busy during recent days smoothing out pavement bumps on various sections of Greenville Boulevard. Workers here use the department's heater-planer machine, which directs intense heat to the pavement and planes out the ridge. Highway officials said the bumps, which resulted in numerous complaints from local motorists, were caused by heavy truck traffic soon after the asphalt was laid down last year. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Eight Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
The Highway Patrol said eight persons were killed in traffic accidents around North Carolina during the weekend, pushing to 71 the number of highway deaths this year. In the comparable period last year, 67 persons had been killed.

A car ran out of control and hit a bridge abutment early Sunday on a rural road three miles south of Elizabethtown, killing two passengers. The patrol identified them as David Hales, 20, and James Richard Inman, 18, both of Rt. 3, Bladenboro.

A collision on Highway 17 early Sunday killed a Camp Lejeune Marine, David L. Lamb, 27. The accident occurred about five miles north of Jacksonville.

James E. Carman, 30, of Rt. 1, Winterville, and Anne Shackelford Carman, 26, of Ayden, were killed Friday evening in a two-car collision on N. C. 903 two miles west of Ayden.

David Alvin Smith, 23, of Kings Mountain, was killed Friday evening when his car ran off a rural road north of Shelby and struck a tree.

Lawrence Junior Smith, 27, of Kinston, was killed when his car struck a bridge Friday night about five miles south of Kinston, the Highway Patrol said.

Seventeen-year-old Larry Christopher Westbrook was killed about 10 p.m. Saturday when the car he was driving struck a bridge and plunged into a creek off of U.S. 13, a little over seven miles south of Goldsboro.

Shah Departs Resort On Hile

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and Empress Farah left Egypt today on the second leg of their journey into probable exile after a week in a resort hotel on the Nile.

President Anwar Sadat saw the royal couple off, giving the shah a 16-gun salute and the traditional Arab kiss on both cheeks. The shah took the controls of his personal blue and white Boeing 707 jet for the takeoff, just as he did when he left Iran last Tuesday.

Reliable sources said the Iranian monarch would fly to Morocco to meet with King Hassan before going on to the United States.

The 59-year-old shah looked more confident and rested than when he arrived pale and tired at the Egyptian winter resort 500 miles up the river from Cairo. Vice President Hosny Mubarak told reporters he felt "much better" after strolling through the gardens in the sunshine at his hotel isolated on an island in the Nile.

The hotel was emptied for the shah's stay, and he ventured away from it only three times. He went to a botanical garden on a neighboring island, joined Sadat at a mosque for prayer services and took a boat trip to the Aswan Dam.

Sadat's security forces kept reporters away from the visiting monarch, constantly warning them not to question him, but he was photographed several times.

"The silence was his own idea," said an Egyptian diplomat. "When he arrived, he was depressed and he didn't want to say anything because it might sound vengeful."

The diplomat suggested the shah "still had his eye on the throne" and did not want to make provocative remarks. Other Egyptian officials who asked not to be identified said the shah was keeping in touch with the situation in Iran.

A leading Egyptian newspaper editor said Sadat was host to the shah, despite the possibility of criticism from Arabs opposed to his selling oil to Israel, because of the economic aid the shah gave Egypt.

This included a loan of several hundred million dollars when Egypt's cotton crop failed two years ago, buses for Cairo when the transportation crisis reached a peak last year, and 650,000 tons of oil when Egypt's army ran short just before the 1973 Middle East war.

Four of the shah's five children are in Lubbock, Texas, where his eldest son, Crown Prince Reza, is taking pilot training at a U.S. Air Force base. But it is believed the shah and his wife will accept an invitation from Walter Annenberg, the former U.S. ambassador to Britain, to stay first at his estate in Palm Springs, Calif. The shah's mother and one of his sisters took refuge with Annenberg when Iranian students attacked the sister's home in Beverly Hills.

Ford Endorses Warren Report

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford has come to the defense of the Warren Commission.

In an interview published in Sunday's Grand Rapids Press, Ford said it is "pure speculation" to say President John F. Kennedy was the target of a conspiracy and added that the evidence compiled by the Warren Commission "proves Lee Harvey Oswald was the assassin."

As a congressman, Ford was a member of the commission, which concluded that three shots were fired, all by Oswald. The House assassinations committee concluded recently, on the basis of acoustical evidence, that a fourth shot came from a second source.

"It's utter speculation," said Ford. "We have all the physical evidence. There is pure speculation."

Seniors Club Has Program On Dolls

Mrs. Janet Rogers gave a presentation on dolls from around the world at the Thursday meeting of the Town and Country Senior Citizens Club. Eighty members were present.

Mrs. Hilda Goldstein, Marguerite Cooke, Mrs. Lillian McDaniel and Mrs. Ethel Sumrell were welcomed as new members.

Mrs. Sarah J. Ashton, club president, told members that a Senior Citizens swimming class will be held on Fridays, 2 p.m., at the Memorial Gym on the East Carolina University campus.

The Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority has announced that anyone in Pitt County who has arthritis is welcome to join the pool exercise class on Thursdays from 4-5 p.m. The classes will cost 25 cents per person and will be held at Memorial Gym.

Several club members signed to give a party at the University Nursing Home in February. It was noted that club member Ray McLawhorn is a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The February 1 meeting will be a covered dish luncheon at 11 a.m.

Refreshments were served by Edith Holmes, Ester Buck, Rose Woods, Ethel Tuckers, Ruby Brown, Mollie Dowell, Helen Sermons, Mayo Rogers and Eleanor Hutchins.

Byrd Opposes Budget Limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd has come out against a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget, saying it would "straitjacket" government leaders if the economy ever is deeply in trouble.

Byrd said this weekend he would like to see the federal deficit eliminated, but he added a balanced-budget amendment would take away a "fiscal tool" that could prevent recessions from becoming depressions. Twenty-two state governments have asked Congress to call a constitutional convention to draft such an amendment.

Teng May Join TV Program

NEW YORK (AP) — Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping may get a part in a television special during his visit to the United States.

Teng and President Carter are expected to attend a special program on contemporary American culture at the Kennedy Center on Jan. 29.

"An American Entertainment" will be broadcast live by the Public Broadcasting Service, and will include scenes from the Joffrey Ballet's production of "Rodeo" and the Broadway musical "Eubie."

The program will be beamed by satellite to China, where as many as 200 million people may see it, PBS says.

Arrest Man For Purse-Snatching

Greenville Police Friday arrested Charles Ray Brown, 18 of 407 Roundtree Dr. on charges of common law robbery, following investigation of a purse snatching incident at the Physicians Quadrangle on West Sixth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Mrs. Nina Tripp of Route 8, Greenville told investigators that her purse was pulled from her left arm as she prepared to open the door to a doctor's office with her right hand, about 3:35 p.m.

The incident was reported to police and officers were told the robber fled into a wooded area across Memorial Drive from the medical office complex.

Investigators, according to Cannon, took Brown into custody at 1700 Lincoln Dr., and recovered Mrs. Tripp's purse and $24 in cash.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pulled back slightly today while investors assessed President Carter's fiscal-1980 budget.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.85 at 332.64.

Losers held a 74 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The President today sent to Congress a budget for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1 that calls for a deficit of $29 billion.

Analysts said most major features of the budget had been disclosed in advance or anticipated by investors.

In the absence of any surprises, brokers said the market simply remained in the drifting pattern that characterized trading late last week.

Wisconsin Electric Power led the active list, unchanged at 26 1/4. A 267,000-share block traded at 26.
 Levi Strauss climbed 1/4 to 42 1/4 in active trading after a 2 1/2-point rise on Friday. The company's board approved a proposal for it to repurchase as many as 2 million of its shares for $43.50 apiece.
 The NYSE's composite common-stock index dropped .15 to 55.70. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .49 at 160.55.
 Volume on the Big Board came to 9.41 million shares by noontime, down from 11.82 million at the same point Friday.

Wind, Rain

It was a good weekend to stay in and enjoy the home fire as the Greenville-Pitt County area was buffeted with heavy doses of wind and rain.

According to the Water Department of the Greenville Utilities Commission, .02 inches fell Friday with .40 inches Saturday, followed by an inch Sunday.

The river level measured on the national scale rose from 8.5 feet Friday to 9.7 feet Monday, according to the GUC.

Saturday's wind velocity was measured from 15-30 miles per hour. Strong, gusty winds boosted the wind readings to 25-45 miles an hour Sunday, according to Station Two Control Room of the GUC.

Winds had subsided by Monday morning to 12 miles an hour at 11 a.m.

Blanton Facing Another Probe

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A second federal grand jury investigating the dealings of former Gov. Ray Blanton's administration is looking into the awarding of state liquor licenses.

The panel called several past and present state Alcoholic Beverage Commission officials to testify today and Tuesday.

Tom Guthrie, ABC director, confirmed during the weekend that he and several aides were subpoenaed by the grand jury in Memphis and told to bring ABC records of all Memphis retail liquor stores and liquor-by-the-drink establishments.

Also called were William Frogge, agent in charge of the ABC's West Tennessee office; former ABC Commissioner Frank E. Phillips, a close friend of Blanton; ABC agents Edward O. Gammon of Memphis and Thomas Wright of Somerville; and Lee Hyden of Memphis.

Another federal grand jury in Nashville is investigating an alleged parole-selling scandal that may have reached into the governor's office.

Blanton pardoned several dozen convicts before his term expired last week, setting off a wave of protest. His successor, Lamar Alexander, was sworn in early to prevent more commutations and pardons.

The Nashville federal grand jury adjourned Friday without returning any indictments. That panel is not expected to meet this week.

Blanton's legal counsel Eddie Sisk; Charles Benson, Sisk's assistant and a former extradition officer; and Highway Patrol Lt. Charles F. Taylor were arrested Dec. 15 by FBI agents and charged with conspiring to sell pardons and commutations for cash.

Bradshaw Super In Steeler Victory

Terry Bradshaw back to pass...

Pittsburgh Wins Super Bowl XIII, 35-31

MIAMI (AP) — The noise Tom Henderson ultimately heard was not his own. It was the turbulence churned up by Terry Bradshaw's passes.

Hollywood Henderson had played his big scene too early in the drama. But Bradshaw saved his best for last — for the final curtain in a decade of Super Bowls. And, when the last cheers faded, the Pittsburgh Steelers were proclaimed unquestioned champions, 35-31, over the Dallas Cowboys.

No one had ever thrown more than two touchdowns in one of these National Football League extravaganzas.

Bradshaw threw four of them.

No one had ever thrown for more than 250 yards in one of these games.

Bradshaw threw for 253 in the first half alone and wound up completing 17 of 30 passes for 318 yards, more than he'd ever thrown for in any pro game.

And on one — not legendary Vince Lombardi's Green Bay Packers, not Don Shula's once-perfect Miami Dolphins, not Tom Landry's defending champion Cowboys, not even Chuck Noll's Steelers — had won this Hope Diamond of pro football more than twice.

Henderson, the loudmouth Cowboy linebacker, was distraught — but unbowed — by the defeat. "As you can see, I'm a little sad," he said, letting tears flow freely. But he vowed that his brashness would continue to flow just as freely.

And Noll, when asked in the postgame bedlam about Henderson's pregame bragging literally learned as he replied, "Thomas who?"

In a Super Bowl XIII that turned out to be Super Rematch I, Bradshaw and the Steelers re-enacted their drama of three years ago, once again using the Cowboys as foils. Once again they grabbed the seemingly insurmountable lead — and once again they held their collective breaths before hanging on for the narrow fourpoint victory.

And once again, Lynn Swann, the Nureyev of wide receivers, was on the receiving end of Bradshaw's game-winning touchdown pass. Last time, it had been a 64-yard bomb and a 21-17 victory. This time it was an 18-yard coffin nail for the final points.

That made it 35-17 with less than seven minutes to play.

Roger Staubach, who also completed 17 of 30 passes but unlike Bradshaw did most of his throwing in the second half, found Billy Joe DuPree on a 7-yard scoring pass with 2:23 to play. Then he connected with Butch Johnson on a 4-yarder two minutes later after Dallas had pulled off a successful inside kick.

Rocky Bleier's jumping catch of Bradshaw's third scoring pass of the day, a 7-yard looper 26 seconds from halftime, had put Pittsburgh in front for good. The task of keeping the Steelers there also fell to Bleier, who pounced on Dallas kicker Rafael Septien's soft roller with 22 seconds to play.

The first big play that was costly to Dallas came only moments before Septien's 27-yard field goal, the only points scored in the third period, and shaved Pittsburgh's lead to 21-17.

Jackie Smith had spent 15 years in a St. Louis uniform, waiting in vain for a trip to an NFL championship game, and he finally made it with Dallas following a brief retirement. And there he was, all alone in the end zone, poised to make a game-tying catch.

Staubach was shielded from Pittsburgh's thundering line, linebackers and defensive backs. They said they were expecting a run on the third-and-three situation. The quarterback flipped the ball almost — but not quite — perfectly.

And Smith dropped it.

The next play in the series of Cowboy back-breakers came with the score still 21-17 about four minutes into the final period. Swann, who caught seven passes for 124 yards, sprinted down the right side, almost stride for stride with cornerback Benny Barnes. There was contact and they went down in a tangle of legs and arms.

"There was a blitz and no pickup on it by our guys. And I knew it, so I just put the Hail Mary on it," Bradshaw said, alluding to the now-famous Hail Mary pass by Staubach that went for a touchdown in a playoff game against Minnesota.

This one didn't go for a TD — but it went a long way toward one.

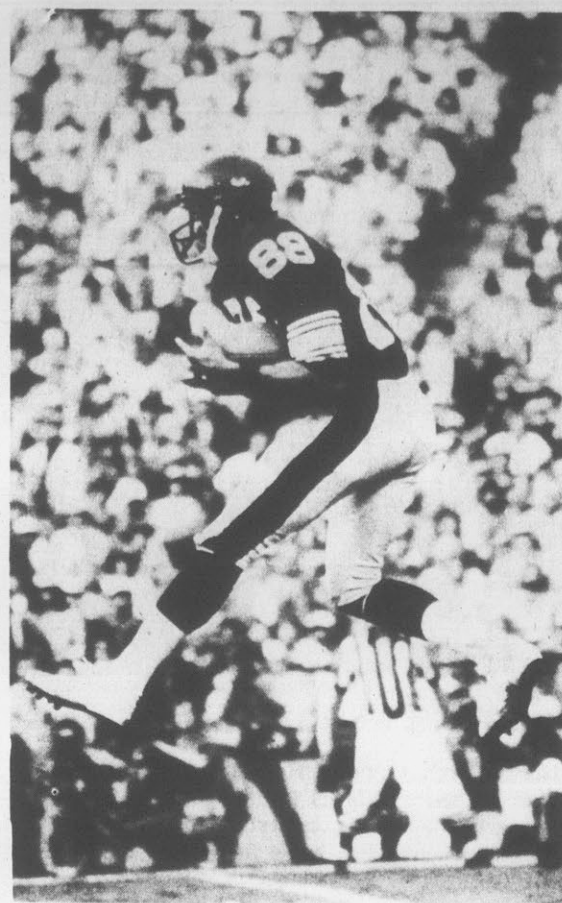

"I saw it and I figured, our ball down there." It was. Field judge Fred Swearingin flagged Barnes for pass interference — 33 yards and a first down at the Dallas 23.

A few plays later, Franco Harris roared through the line for 22 yards and the touchdown that made it 28-17.

Nineteen seconds after Harris' TD, came Swann. Randy White of the Cowboys, who shared last year's Super Bowl MVP award, was one of this year's goats when he fumbled a kickoff after the Harris score.

Bradshaw opened the scoring with a TD pass, covering 28 yards, to the guy known primarily as Pittsburgh's "other" receiver, John Stallworth. He made a leaping catch in the left corner of the end zone, just 5:13 into the game.

On the final play of the quarter, Staubach tied it with a swing pass to Tony Hill, who took the ball on the Steelers 26 and raced the rest of the 39 yards down the left side for the score.

Henderson 0-3 In Predictions

MIAMI (AP) — Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson flunked the final course Sunday in his self-taught Muhammad Ali School of Boasting. Hollywood couldn't back up his mouth.

The big-mouth of Super Bowl XIII, riding a heady tonic of correctly predicting a 28-0 demise of the Los Angeles Rams, was reduced to sobs, head bowed and even to moments of silence.

"I felt I gave all I could," Henderson said tearfully. "Right now, I'm on the verge of a heart attack."

Henderson was the next-to-last Dallas Cowboy to enter the dressing room after the Pittsburgh Steelers unseated the defending World Champions 35-31 in a classic.

Steeler fans crowded around a ramp near the Dallas dressing room, shouting insults. Some printable ones included, "Hollywood, what happened to your mouth?" and "Hollywood, any more predictions?"

Henderson slumped heavily over the bench and snipped away rolls of tape, two hands swollen from fending off Steelers' blockers. He tried to speak and then broke down and said, "I'm not ashamed I'm not ashamed."

What Henderson had said in one of many numerous interviews before kickoff was that Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw was dumb, that he, Henderson, would swarm all over tight end Randy Grossman, and that the Steelers would fold in the fourth period because of their lack of depth.

That made Henderson 0-for-3 since:

(A) Bradshaw threw four touchdowns passes.

(B) Grossman caught three passes for 29 yards.

(C) The Steelers at least tied 14-14 in the fourth quarter.

"I'm upset.... I'm a competitor," said Henderson in a barely audible voice. "They were even triple-teaming me on the specialty teams."

Henderson did contribute two sacks and one big play, pinning Bradshaw's arms so that Mike Hegman could steal the ball and run 37 yards for a touchdown.

Steelers Cite Support Of Fans

MIAMI (AP) — After winning their third Super Bowl title, the Pittsburgh Steelers saluted every twirl of those "Terrible Towels."

"Our fans made me feel like the whole stadium was for the Steelers," wide receiver John Stallworth said after Sunday's 35-31 Super Bowl XIII victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

"The Steeler fans were as ready for this game as the Steelers," added Stallworth, who caught two touchdown passes in the first half, then became a rooster himself in the second half after he was sidelined with leg cramps.

"It was more exciting this time. Maybe it was the fans," running back Rocky Bleier said of the Steelers thousands who waved yellow terrycloth towels in support of their team.

Towels aside, it was Terry

Bradshaw who made the difference for Pittsburgh, passing for four touchdowns and 318 yards.

"All I want you to say is, 'By God, this was an exciting game,'" Bradshaw told dozens of reporters who surrounded him in an interview room after the game.

Bradshaw, nobody's bumpkin anymore, savored the best game in his best season by inserting a large wad of chewing tobacco in his mouth.

Stallworth and Lynn Swann, Bradshaw's prime targets all season, did their celebrating by uncorking a gallon bottle of champagne before the television cameras.

"It's a big bottle of champagne for a big football team," said Swann, who grabbed seven passes for 124 yards and one touchdown.

"John Stallworth gets the first toast — in the face," Swann added, squirting his teammate with the bubbly.

"Talk is cheap. I think (Thomas Hollywood) Henderson found that out today," said Pittsburgh reserve linebacker Dennis Winston.

Sloan Puzzling Over 'Pack Record

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Hold it. Norm Sloan wants a timeout. "It's almost unbelievable," says the North Carolina State basketball coach. "Never before have I had a team that played as well which has lost like this. I'm going to have to give it lots of thought."

What Sloan is puzzling over is an 0-5 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference, his latest defeat administered by eighth-ranked Duke 75-69 on Sunday. That puts Sloan's enigmatic team at the bottom of the ACC pack, despite No. 14 ranking on the national scene.

"I thought before the season started that I had experienced everything in this business," said Sloan. "But I have now."

With one of Sloan's most versatile teams, the Wolfpack started out the season in style by winning the Alaska Shootout tournament in Anchorage, whipping a fine Louisville club in the process.

The Wolfpack has beaten everyone else, but ironically can't get started against ACC teams. North Carolina State's other loss in 17 games this season was to none other than Duke, in the Big Four Tourney last December.

The latest defeat was especially tough for Sloan to take, coming at home (for the third straight ACC game) and as a result of what the coach called "inconsistent" officiating.

Citing 49 free throws for Duke to merely seven for his own team, Sloan was quick to underscore the dramatic disparity.

"If you think I'm saying the story of this game is the officiating, you're right!" Sloan told reporters acidly. "I can't explain what happened, except the inconsistency of the officials. It was open warfare at one end of the floor, and touch-not at the other."

Meanwhile, fourth-ranked Illinois and No. 20 Kansas were upset victims over the weekend. Purdue beat the Illini 69-57 and Kansas State defeated the Jayhawks 96-69 in Saturday's action.

Elsewhere, results went according to form. Top-ranked Notre Dame turned back South Carolina 82-73; No. 2 North Carolina nipped Maryland 54-53; No. 3 UCLA beat Arizona State 95-79; No. 5 Indiana State took a 90-80 decision over Creighton; No. 6 Michigan State beat Iowa 83-72 in overtime; No. 7 Louisville edged Florida State 67-65; No. 9 Louisiana State nipped Mississippi 70-69 in overtime and 10th-ranked Georgetown stopped Penn 78-76.

Eleventh-ranked Arkansas routed TCU 90-51; No. 12 Syracuse trimmed Canisius 103-92; No. 3 Marquette hammered Xavier of Ohio 67-50; No. 15 Texas A&M turned back Texas Tech 68-63; No. 16 Ohio State tripped Michigan 78-69 and No. 18 Alabama defeated Auburn 83-76.

Mike Gminski made 17 of Duke's free throw attempts, scoring 31 points in all to lead the Blue Devils' offense. Eugene Banks added 14 points and Jim Spanark had 12.

"We had a tough time getting started," said Duke Coach Bill Foster, whose team trailed 35-32 at intermission. "(But) I thought we were pretty efficient in our offense in the second half."

Joe Barry Carroll scored 24 points and Arnette Hallman added 17 to spark Purdue's upset of Illinois. The Boilermakers led by 35-27 at intermission and then buried the Illini under a barrage of free throws, outscoring their opponents by an incredible 22-0 at the foul line in the second half.

Steve Soldner scored 28 points and Rolando Blackman had 27 as Kansas State used a 70 percent shooting attack to crush Kansas.

"We had everything come together," said Kansas State Coach Jack Hartman. "We shot the ball extremely well, we had excellent movement offensively and we handled KU's pressure very effectively."

Added the high-powered Soldner: "It was so sweet, it's hard to describe."

Kelly Tripucka scored 22 points and reserve Tracy Jackson came off the bench to add 21 as Notre Dame beat an intense South Carolina team.

"This is something that we're going to see from a lot of teams," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "They're going to come after us. There were some things we weren't satisfied with — rebounding, for one — yet, we still won. That's a good sign."

Al Wood's 15-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining lifted North Carolina over Maryland. David Greenwood scored 22 points to lead UCLA over Arizona State. Larry Bird's 29 points paced Indiana

State over Creighton, the 16th straight victory for the unbeaten Spartans.

Marquette defeated Xavier behind Bernard Toone's 18 points; a 21-point performance by Rudy Woods led Texas A&M over Texas Tech; Herb Williams and Calvin Ransley teamed for 44 points to pace Ohio State over Michigan and Alabama beat Auburn as Eddie Phillips scored 24.

Rush Rudolph hit two free throws after time ran out in overtime to lift LSU over Mississippi. The game went into the extra period when Ole Miss forward Tom Warda failed to break a 64-64 tie by missing the first shot of a one-and-one after time ran out in regulation play.

Craig Shelton's 21 points sparked Georgetown over Penn; Scott Hasting and U.S. Reed each scored 18 points to lead Arkansas over TCU and Louis Orr and Roosevelt Bouie each scored 27 to trigger Syracuse past Canisius.

State Falls To Duke In 4th Straight Loss

By GARY SEASE
Associated Press Writer

About the only pleasure that North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan has been getting at his home games lately is his wife's rendition of the national anthem before the tip-off.

That was the case Sunday afternoon as eighth-ranked Duke visited No. 14 N.C. State and stung the Wolfpack with their fourth loss in a row, 75-69, in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

The last three home games have been one-point heartbreakers for Sloan. The Wolfpack lost 82-81 in double overtime to Maryland and 70-69 to North Carolina.

Sloan fired a volley at the officiating of the Wolfpack's latest game, saying the battle under the backboard "was open warfare at one end of the floor and touch-me-not at the other."

He backed up his criticism by pointing to the trips each team took to the foul line. Duke, now 12-3 overall and 3-1 in the ACC, connected on 33 of 49 free-throw opportunities.

N.C. State, now 11-6 and 0-5, got only seven free-throw chances and made only three of them.

"I thought before the season that I'd experienced everything in this business, but I have not," Sloan said. "Never before have I had a team that has played as well who has lost the first five conference games and four in a row."

In other ACC action this weekend, second-ranked North Carolina edged No. 19 Maryland 54-53. Virginia turned back Clemson 61-54 and Wake Forest hammered Rollins College 100-79 in a non-conference contest.

Tonight's schedule has Wake Forest meeting Davidson at Charlotte in a non-conference game.

Center Mike Gminski, who Duke Coach Bill Foster said was feeling under the weather before the game, keyed the Blue Devils' attack. He scored 31 points — two under his career high — including 17-of-20 from the free throw line.

Clyde Austin knotted the score, 43-43, with 16:30 remaining, but Duke regained the upper hand five minutes later, 54-53, on a bucket by Gminski.

NORTH CAROLINA 54, MARYLAND 53

Al Wood hit a 15-foot jump shot with three seconds to play in North Carolina's thriller over the Terps Saturday, a game in which the Tar Heels were without the services of starters Mike O'Koren and Dave Colescott.

"We decided to wait for the last shot unless Maryland's zone gave us a high-percentage shot before the last 10 seconds," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, whose club improved to 14-2 and 5-1. "If we had been playing at home or against a lesser team, we wouldn't have done it that way."

Maryland Coach Lefty Drie-

sell said the Terps, who have rolled in and out of the rankings like a yo-yo, deserve better treatment by the pollsters.

"If they are No. 2, we're not far behind," Driesell said. "Tonight they were one point better, and I'm not sure they were that much."

Sophomore scoring machines Lee Raker and Jeff Lamp combined for 47 points to pace Virginia to its fifth straight victory. Raker pumped in a career-high 29 points and Lamp, the ACC's leading scorer with a 22.9 points per game average, added 18.

"We kept pushing it at them," said Coach Terry Holland, whose Cavaliers improved to 11-5 and 3-1. "We got the good shots and made them."

"Nobody's got a pair of shooters like they do," said Clemson Coach Bill Foster. The Tigers fell to 10-5 and 1-4.

WAKE FOREST 100, ROLLINS 79

Rollins College never led but struggled to within two points, 22-20, with 7:59 left in the first half in a visit to Winston-Salem and Wake Forest, the ACC's young upstart with wins over Maryland and North Carolina.

But the Deacons regrouped and Wake Forest held a comfortable 45-29 halftime lead.

"This type of game is perhaps hard to get up for," Tacy conceded. "But after the game was close early, we realized we had to work."

Wake Forest upped its mark to 9-7. Rollins fell to 8-5.

Pirates Face Tough Test At N.C. State

East Carolina's Pirates, after suffering three straight basketball defeats, have their work cut out for them Tuesday night when they invade Reynolds Coliseum to take on N.C. State.

The Wolfpack, smarting from four straight losses, all to Atlantic Coast Conference opponents, would like nothing better than to take out some of their frustrations against the Pirates.

East Carolina brings in a 6-9 record to the game while the Wolfpack is now 11-7-12-6.

"We know we are going to be in for a tough game," Coach Larry Gillman said. "But we've already had some tough games, and we've come up to every one of them and performed well. We haven't played a game against anyone since the Florida trip, except for Tennessee-Chattanooga, that we didn't have a chance to win it right down to the final minutes. And against Iowa and South Carolina, we did win."

"So we are capable, if we get the intensity we have to have against teams like State."

Gillman added.

The Pirates will have Frank Hobson back with the team, following his absence for two games due to the death of his father, and Gillman feels that will give the Pirates more flexibility.

In the latest stats available, Hawkeye Whitney leads the Wolfpack with an 18.2 scoring average, while Clyde Austin is close behind at 15.3. Tiny Pinder holds a 12.9 average, rounding out those in double figures.

However, the Wolfpack usually will use at least ten players in every game, and four of the others are hitting five or better. Tony Warren leads them with a 7.9 average, while former North Pitt High School star Donnie Perkins closes out the group with a 5.1 mark.

State is scoring 83.3 points a game and allowing 70.1 per outing. In the battle of the boards, the Pack is averaging 40.3 per game, while its opponents are getting 33.7. Whitney is the top rebounder with a 6.3 average, while Pinder is getting 6.1.

Oliver Mack is the top scorer for the Pirates with a 17.9 average. George Maynor is next at 11.7, while Greg Cornelius is at 10.7. David Underwood is averaging 9.4.

Cornelius is the top rebounder at 7.9.

Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum. Following that game, the Pirates return home to face UNC Wilmington on Friday.

SHRINER CURE

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Eric Byrom was one of the top ball carriers for Long Beach State in the 1978 football season and was lucky to be walking with the ball, much less running with it.

Byrom, who is only 5-5, had deformed legs as a child. His legs were bent inward at the knees and he couldn't walk two steps without falling. He was cured at the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

YOU GOT IT TOYOTA

Sometimes you have to take 'em anyway you can get 'em.
Saturday afternoon, East Carolina University swimming team romped to an 82-30 victory over the University of Richmond.
But somehow, when it filtered down to United Press International, it was changed.
There it was under "College Basketball Scores:" East Carolina 82, Richmond 30.
Quite a win for the Pirates, who didn't even have to take a shot or put on their sneakers to get that one.

Next One Not As Easy
The next basketball win won't come as easy.
And Coach Larry Gillman is hopeful that it won't be long in coming. The Pirates travel to N.C. State on Tuesday night, and the Wolfpack will probably be glad to see the Pirates come into town.
It will mark the first time since State played Tulane, several weeks ago, that they weren't facing an Atlantic Coast Conference and/or a nationally ranked team.
Hopefully for the Pirates, the outcome won't be the same as it was when Tulane visited Reynolds Coliseum.

It's the first of three games this week for the Pirates, who host UNC Wilmington on Thursday, then travel to Atlanta to face Georgia Tech on Saturday night.
This next string of games could also tell a lot about whether the Pirates are going to be able to pull off a winning season.
Currently, the Pirates have a 6-9 record. Fourteen is the key number either way. A disastrous week could leave them with a 6-12 mark, just two games away from another losing season, what would be the fourth straight.
But, a sweep would even them up at 9-9 and give plenty of hope for a winner.
The road isn't easy, no matter what happens this week. One thing is certain, however, the Pirates will have to play at their best or they will find themselves looking at another losing year in the face.

Kentucky Cager May Have Quit Team

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's struggling basketball team, already suffering under its worst conference start since 1967, has been dealt a further blow with the apparent defection of starting center Chuck Aleksinas.
Kentucky Coach Joe Hall said that he hasn't heard from the 6-foot-11 sophomore from Morris, Conn., since Saturday's 66-55 loss to Tennessee, Kentucky's fifth loss in six Southeastern Conference games this year.
"I don't have any statement to make because I haven't talked to him," Hall said late Sunday. "He just missed practice today, and I heard rumors he'd left the squad."

Crenshaw Leads By Four

PHOENIX (AP) — It sounded just a bit like whistling past the graveyard, but Jerry Pate and Andy Bean weren't conceding anything.
"You can't tell. I might go out and shoot 61," said Pate.
"I'll just try to birdie every hole," said Bean. "Ben didn't miss it far."
Indeed, he didn't.
Ben Crenshaw, adjusting his putting stroke in the middle of the round, fired a spectacular, 10-under-par 61 Sunday and established a 4-stroke lead going into today's third and final round of the weather-abbreviated Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.
The tournament, postponed both Thursday and Friday, was trimmed from a 72-hole to 54-hole format. The purse, originally announced at $250,000, also was trimmed, to $187,500.
"That's as low as I can shoot," said Crenshaw, who reeled off a string of nine birdies in one stretch of 11 holes on the rain-soaked, 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course.

It was the lowest round on the PGA Tour since Al Geiberger's all-time record 59 composed in Memphis in 1977.
"I couldn't believe it," said Jay Haas, who was tied for second with Bean and Pate. "I'm out there making pars and birdies and every time I look up I'm another stroke behind."
Crenshaw, a disappointed non-winner last year, put together a 36-hole total of 128, a distant 14 strokes below par. Pate, Bean and Haas were at 132. Bean and Pate, who finished birdie-birdie, had 66s in the cool, cloudy weather, and Haas holed an 18-foot eagle putt on the final hole for a 67.
Howard Twitty was next at 66-134, six shots back. John Mahaffey, winner of the season's first tournament, was 69-137 and U.S. Open champ Andy North 70-136.

NBA Teams Win Without Stars

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer
Sometimes it's better not to have a star in the game.
New Orleans, Philadelphia and Milwaukee all learned that lesson in National Basketball Association action Sunday.
Pistol Pete Maravich picked up two technical fouls and was ejected with 2:59 remaining in the third quarter of New Orleans' game against Atlanta. The Jazz, leading by just two points at that time, went on to outscore Atlanta 38-19 the rest of the way and beat the Hawks 108-87.
Philadelphia was having trouble keeping up with Boston until Julius Erving sat down in the second quarter. Then, using a lineup that featured two centers, the Sixers charged into the lead and went on to beat the Celtics 91-87.

Milwaukee guard Brian Winters didn't even get to play because of a sprained ankle. But Junior Bridgeman took his place and scored a season-high 30 points as the Bucks defeated the New York Knicks 138-114.
In the only other NBA games, the Cleveland Cavaliers edged the Chicago Bulls 94-93 and the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Golden State Warriors 113-107.
Jazz 108, Hawks 87
Pete Maravich had scored 25

Jaguars Roll Over Firebirds

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central played its entire roster Saturday night, and all of the players scored as the Jaguars gained a 61-41 victory over Southern Nash.
Farmville's girls also posted a win, 63-48, while Southern's junior varsity gained a 79-49 win.
In the girls' game, Farmville jumped off to a 14-8 lead in the first period. They extended that to 24-17 at the half. Both teams hit hot spots in the third period, but Farmville was able to extend its lead to 46-35. They finished off the Lady Birds with a 17-13 final period margin.
Courtney Lancaster led Farmville with 16, while Diana Gordon added 13 and Kathy Hart had 12. Dora Harrison led Southern with 28, with Betsy Alston hitting ten.
Farmville's boys edged out to a 10-7 lead in the first period and eased further ahead to take a 25-17 halftime lead. The Jaguars boosted that to 38-27 during the third period, then finished off the Firebirds with a 23-14 margin in the last quarter.

points before picking up two technical fouls just five seconds apart from rookie referee Bob McAllister after complaining about a charging call. He was ejected from the game and that sparked his teammates. New Orleans led 70-68, but Jim McElroy came off the bench to take Maravich's spot and scored two straight field goals that sent New Orleans on its way again. The Jazz led 80-72 after three quarters and stretched that to 23 points near the end of the game.
76ers 91, Celtics 87
Philadelphia trailed by seven points when Coach Billy Cunningham decided to sit Erving down. The Sixers, using a front line of centers Caldwell Jones and Darryl Dawkins and forward Bobby Jones, then rallied for a 49-44 halftime lead. Although Boston regained the lead briefly in the third period, both coaches pointed to the second quarter as the key to Philadelphia's victory.
Lakers 113, Warriors 107
Jamaal Wilkes scored a season-high 28 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 26 while Norm Nixon handed out 17 assists as Los Angeles dealt the Warriors their sixth consecutive loss. Golden State has not won at Los Angeles in 11 games going back to January 1976.
The Lakers clinched the victory with nine straight points late in the game, five by Wilkes and four by Lou Hudson.
Bucks 138, Knicks 114
Milwaukee, leading by just two points at halftime, took command by outscoring New York 12-2 at the start of the second half and then drew away. Marques Johnson scored 33 points and also moved from his forward spot to relieve Bridgeman at guard.
Center Kent Benson scored a career-high 24 points for the Bucks. Knicks center Marvin Webster did not play because of a sore knee.
Cavaliers 94, Bulls 93
Terry Furlow scored 17 points, including a 25-foot jump-

WILL HELP YOU SAVE UP TO $8,100 FOR COLLEGE.

In the Army, you can take advantage of the generous Veterans' Educational Assistance Program (VEAP, for short).
The program works like this:
You can enroll in VEAP when you join the Army. You contribute between $50 and $75 of your pay each month. The government then matches your savings two-for-one.
So, during your enlistment, you can accumulate up to $2,700 of your own savings plus as much as $5,400 in the government's matching funds.
Which gives you a total education fund of $8,100.
Of course, serving in the Army will give you more than just money to help you through school. You'll develop discipline. You'll learn responsibility. You'll mature. And have a better idea of what you want.
For more information, call your local Army Representative. The address and phone number are in the Yellow Pages under "Recruiting." Or call the number below toll-free.

Flush gutter swine buildings have been used in some areas of this county for ten years or longer. However, farmers recently in North Carolina have taken a look at this method of separating the waste from the hog and buildings of this type now in use in this state.

This method of handling waste utilizes sloped, shallow gutters that are flushed periodically to remove waste from the building to a lagoon. The system may be an open gutter for finishing buildings, open concrete lots, and sow confinement or an underslat flushing gutter for farrowing houses and nurseries.

Water discharged periodically through the gutter not only removes the waste from the buildings, but also attracts the hogs to the gutter for elimination of waste. Design and construction of the facility is quite important in attracting pigs to the gutter.

Water from the lagoon may be used to flush the gutter. Recycled water, pumped from a secondary lagoon or wet well is more suitable for flushing. The rate water is pumped into the flush tank determines the frequency of flushing.

Flushing frequency can be determined with experience, but the more gutters are flushed, the cleaner the pens will stay. Pen partitions should be solid except for the area over the shutter.

The automatic siphon tank is the most popular method of flushing in North Carolina. Two other methods that could be used are the tipping bucket tank and the trap door tank.

The automatic siphon tank has the advantage of no moving parts. As the tank slowly fills with water, an air bubble trapped under the bell is forced through a siphon trap until it triggers the siphoning action.

Gutter width, slope of the gutter, and frequency of flushing all determine how much water is needed. The calculation of slope, volume of water, etc. are available, but generally most farmers are sloping the building two percent and using 100 gallons of water per foot of width in the gutter. When flushing under slate, the trend is to use less slope and more water. In open gutter flushing, the water should be at least 1.5 inches deep when it enters the building.

Advantages of flush gutter housing includes the reduction of odor, lower initial cost in some cases, and possible conversion of other buildings. Disadvantages are disease transmission, mechanical problems, and possible sulfur residue problems.

Before building any type of swine housing, know your alternatives. Select the system which will work best for you and your situation. The time you spend in planning your buildings to meet a particular system of production will help make you a successful producer.

Granville Wilt Takes Cream Off Crop

By GAYLON AMBROSE
Assoc. Agricultural Extension Agent

Granville wilt took the cream off the 1978 tobacco crop of many Pitt County tobacco growers. Wilt, a bacterial tobacco disease which was the number one tobacco pest of 1978, however, was not confined to one section of the county.

As a result, tobacco growers will have to use all available disease control measures in order to reduce losses resulting from wilt, including crop rotation, use of resistant alternate crops and multipurpose chemicals.

The selection of the proper control measure depends to some extent on the level of infestation by the disease. For example: the infestation level is considered very low in fields planted with a resistant crop regardless of the level of resistance used.

Fields with occasional symptoms of the disease (with less than 1 percent of all plants affected) have a low level of infestation, and slightly damaged fields (with less than 6 percent of all plants affected) have a moderate level of infestation.

In addition, moderately damaged fields (with more than 6 percent of all plants affected) have a high level of infestation. Where the infestation is 6 percent or higher, the control measure should be to include crop rotation. Rotation is effective in reducing the wilt level when resistant alternate crops are used.

Soybeans and corn are considered resistant crops and their use usually results in a reduction of the infestation by the wilt bacteria, however, such crops as peanuts, certain weeds (especially ragweed), and most vegetable crops are susceptible and should not be included in fields where wilt is a problem.

In other words, many cultivated crops used in rotation with tobacco and certain weeds are susceptible and therefore tend to increase the disease rather than reduce it.

A short rotation of an alternate crop between crops of tobacco provides a significant reduction of the causal agent, however, a longer rotation of three or four years is preferred.

The use of resistant crops is effective in reducing losses to wilt, and such crops are available with low, moderate, and high resistances.

The high resistant crop usually provides adequate protection for most fields when combined with other control measures, however, it should be used in all fields where a continuous culture (tobacco behind tobacco) is grown. In addition, multipurpose chemicals are available that provide fair to good reductions of the bacteria that causes Granville wilt.

Telone C-17 (10 1/2 gallons per acre) and Terr-O-Cide 15D (12 gallons per acre) provide good reduction of wilt.

Also, Terr-O-Cide 30 (six gallons per acre) and Terr-O-Cide 54-45 (three gallons per acre) provide fair protection.

For best results, it is suggested by Ambrose not to eliminate any of the following steps:

— Seed 80-100 square yards of bed for each acre of tobacco to be transplanted and prepare a good seed bed.

— Apply 50-75 pounds of 12-6-6 fertilizer per 100 square yards of bed and disc into the top two to three inches of soil.

— Fumigate with methyl bromide when the soil moisture is right for cultivation and the air temperature is 55 degrees Fahrenheit or higher, preferably in the fall. Aerate the soil 48 hours after fumigation, but leave solid plastic on the bed until seeding time.

— Perforate the plastic with 1/4 holes, two inches apart, before removing it from the bed to seed.

— Seed bed 65 days prior to beginning of normal transplanting date using a sixth of an ounce of seed per 100 square yards of bed.

— Support the cover with a thin layer of clean straw.

— Irrigate enough to thoroughly wet the soil eight to ten inches deep immediately after seeding.

— Cover with perforated plastic immediately after irrigation.

— Observe beds frequently and treat for insects and damping off when needed.

— Remove the cover when the outside temperature exceeds 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

— Start blue mold treatment when the plastic cover is removed.

Four Practices Help Assure Tobacco Crop

Spring met many Pitt County tobacco growers with a shortage of tobacco transplants last year, according to L. Gaylon Ambrose, Pitt County associate agricultural extension agent.

The unreasonable cold and wet weather conditions were probably the overriding reasons for the shortage. However, there were some growers who again had an adequate supply of transplants, ones who have had transplants time and time again.

Those who did have strong, healthy transplants placed tobacco plant bed management according to Ambrose, there are some practices common to the successful farmer that will obtain good results.

Proper soil fumigation, a thorough wetting of plant beds by irrigation after seeding, proper ventilation of plants under plastic and proper fertilization all aid in obtaining healthy transplants for the 1979 crop.

However, these four practices do not promise a good tobacco crop just by themselves. Most Pitt County growers just didn't take advantage of them last year.

The North Carolina State University Extension Tobacco Specialists have developed a "Recipe for Growing Plants Under Perforated Plastic," a very good guide to eliminating problems associated with growing plants under such circumstances, according to Ambrose.

For best results, it is suggested by Ambrose not to eliminate any of the following steps:

— Seed 80-100 square yards of bed for each acre of tobacco to be transplanted and prepare a good seed bed.

— Apply 50-75 pounds of 12-6-6 fertilizer per 100 square yards of bed and disc into the top two to three inches of soil.

Crop Ass'n To Meet Friday

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Crop Improvement Association will hold its 50th anniversary meeting here Friday, Jan. 26. President Murray Corriher of China Grove will head the meeting.

Making golden anniversary presentations will be Foil McLaughlin, director of the association, and Dr. Kenneth R. Keller, director of the N. C. Agricultural Research Service.

Commissioner of Agriculture James A. Graham and a panel of specialists from the state Agricultural Extension Service will participate in the meeting.

The 34th annual meeting of the North Carolina Foundation Seed Producers will be held in conjunction with the crop improvement association meeting. Leon Ballance of Engelhard is president of the foundation. The meetings will be held in the McKimmon Center at North Carolina State University.

Swine Sales Jan. 24, 25

Two major sales of swine breeding stock are scheduled in eastern North Carolina Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 24 and 25.

A sale of boars that have been on the performance testing program conducted by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service will be held the 24th at the new livestock arena in Smithfield. The boars will be shown at 6:30 a.m., with the sale beginning at 7:30 a.m.

The North Carolina All Breeds Show and Sale will be held the following day at the Wayne County Fairgrounds in Goldsboro, featuring Yorkshire, Duroc, Spot, Landrace and Hampshire breeds. The show is scheduled at 8:30 a.m., with the sale at 1 p.m.

This sale will offer 164 head, including 20 bred gilts, 87 open gilts and 57 boars.

Corn Growers Gather Jan. 30

RALEIGH — The chief agricultural trade negotiator for the United States, James Starkey, will be here Tuesday, Jan. 30, to address the annual meeting of the Corn Growers Association of North Carolina.

Starkey, who is in the office of the President, will be the luncheon speaker. He will be followed in the afternoon by a panel discussion on new export market opportunities for U. S. corn. Another panel will update growers on tillage practices, aflatoxin, water rights and weed control.

Participants in the meeting will include William Griffin of New Bern, president of the Association; J. E. Legates, dean of the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences at North Carolina State University; James Graham, state commissioner of agriculture; T. C. Blalock, director of the state Agricultural Extension Service; and George Winslow, a Pasquotank County farmer.

NOMINEE — President Carter has nominated Phyllis Kravitch as his first woman nominee for a federal appeals court judgeship. If confirmed by the Senate, the 58-year-old Georgia Superior Court judge from Savannah will be only the third woman in history to sit on the U.S. Court of Appeals. (AP Laserphoto)

George Burns: Living Legend

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Burns turned 83 Saturday. So tonight on CBS he's throwing himself a 100th birthday party.

"I'm not 100 years old," he says. "The reason I'm giving the party now is because on January 20, 1996, I'm booked to play the Palladium Theatre in London. I'm giving my party tonight because when I turn 100 years old, I'll be out of town."

You can imagine what a TV comedy-variety special starring an 83-year-old man might be like. Lots of old man jokes, plenty of young pretties around to supply fodder for worn double entendres.

There figures to be some of this on tonight's show, but "George Burns 100th Birthday Party" has an uplifting edge — George Burns.

Burns is a legend, but he's not a museum piece. He doesn't have to be dragged on stage and camouflaged behind a lot of younger funny men.

His stage presence is sharper than most you'll see on TV, his wit as facile.

Part of this is because Burns is a natural, a nice-guy who is good at cracking jokes. "I don't try too hard ... I don't sweat," he says.

And Burns has been lucky. When he was 79, an age when most old show biz hands only leave the home for an occasional, often embarrassing talk show appearance, Burns was starting a new career as an actor. He won an Oscar for "The Sunshine Boys," a part he got when Jack Benny died, and it began a period of renewal that has kept Burns fresh and excited about his work.

"I was 79 when I started my new career," he says, sucking that cigar. "And that's a hell of a time to start a new career. And who knows? When I'm 91, I might take up toe-dancing."

The Burns philosophy: "Things happen in your lifetime as you go along, you get good breaks and you get bad breaks. And my average has been on the good side. Who'd have thought four years ago that I would ever do 'The Sunshine Boys'?"

"As it happened, Jack Benny died, which was a terrible thing, but we're all gonna die. Except me. I don't think I will. I'm gonna look for another exit. Anyway, Jack died and they had me read for the part and I got it. I started a whole new business for myself."

After "Sunshine Boys," Burns played about the biggest role an actor can get in "Oh, God!" ("Acting is easy," he says. "When I played God, nobody could judge my performance. How can you tell if I was good or bad?") He's just finished a picture with Brooke Shields and a sequel to "Oh, God" is planned.

So, he can take in stride the inevitable references to his age, including those herein.

"Besides," he says, "I can't get old. I already am old."

Eye Upgrading Of Public TV

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — If a budget proposal is approved by the General Assembly, things could soon be looking up for public television, which has been operating for years on skimpy funds from cramped studios in the University of North Carolina system.

Contained in Gov. Jim Hunt's budget proposals to the legislature is a provision for an increase of the UNC Television Network's budget by $1.4 million over the next two years.

This is roughly a 25 percent increase and would raise the network's production funds by $700,000 a year. Also envisioned is a modern, central production facility to be located in the Research Triangle area within five years.

Also, there is a move to elevate the public television network to a status that will rank with the university system's 16 campuses, and North Carolina Memorial Hospital, under the UNC Board of Governors.

"We want the network to reach the same level of excellence that we have achieved in other areas," says UNC President William C. Friday.

He is seeking $200,000 to begin the planning for a 68,000-square foot $4.7 million North Carolina Center for Public Television.

WUNC-TV in Chapel Hill currently operates out of antiquated Swain Hall, once the campus cafeteria. Other studios, located at UNC-Greensboro and N. C. State University in Raleigh are insufficient for major production work.

Friday has said the problem has not been university neglect of the network. "We've made requests before, year after year," he said. But it is stopped in the legislature, he said.

Sutherland Will Miss Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Opera superstar Joan Sutherland hasn't been fired, but she won't be singing arias with the Metropolitan Opera next season, a Met official says.

David Rubin, a company spokesman, said a report Sunday in the New York Daily News that Miss Sutherland "has been relieved...of all planned forthcoming engagements" was "very misleading."

"That's not true at all," he said. "We do not have long-term contracts with performers; our contracts run season to season."

Rubin said the Australian soprano will not perform at the Met next year because of a

Full House For Address

RAMBLINGS IN THE HOUSE
By State Rep. Sam D. Bundy

The big event of the week, of course, was the Governor's address to the joint session of the House and Senate on Monday evening, Jan. 15. As usual, the galleries of the House Chamber were filled to capacity. People from all over the state were present and I saw many from Eastern North Carolina. The Governor's address was received with much interest and attention, but, I must say, with not as much enthusiastic applause as two years ago. This is not altogether unprecedented. His message covered a variety of things — education, tax relief, industrial growth, the proposed budget and the like. By now you have read of these things in the news media. Most of his suggested recommendations were strengthening of our programs without any involvement in new and costly programs. The Governor's recommendation on tax relief through the raising of the exemption allowance for dependents in the income tax (at a cost of about 40 million dollars) was well received. However, his recommendation for a tax rebate fell on deaf ears. Incidentally, the Governor will appear before a joint session of the House and Senate again on the evening of Jan. 29 to make his recommendation on a comprehensive crime control package of proposed legislation.

Over the weekend the members of legislature, Council of State and Justices of the Supreme Court and Appellate Court attended a special religious service in the Duke Chapel and a luncheon thereafter. The service was a most uplifting event. See you next week.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is expected during the period until Tuesday morning from Oklahoma to the Great Lakes and for northern New England. Snow flurries are forecast for the northern Rockies. Temperatures will be mild in the Southeast and Pacific Northwest but cold weather is indicated for most areas. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Light snow that fell during the night over North Carolina's southern Piedmont area left hazardous driving conditions on some roads this morning and delayed some school openings. Gaston County schools were among the late openers, delaying the start of classes by an hour because some roads still were icy. Wilkes County schools were closed.

Western North Carolina with roads still hazardous. Scattered snow flurries were expected to continue in the area west and north of Asheville this morning. Some secondary roads in the northwest mountains were reported nearly impassable without chains. Meanwhile, on the coast gale warnings continued in effect for westerly winds of 25 to 35 knots. A small craft advisory was in effect for the sounds.

The forecast called for mostly sunny and windy across the state today with high temperatures reaching the 40s in the mountains and ranging up to the low to mid 50s elsewhere. Low readings this morning included: Asheville and Charlotte 28, Greensboro 29, and Raleigh and Wilmington 36. Lows tonight are expected to be in the upper 20s and low 30s.

Begin Nursery Registration

The Lutheran Church Nursery School registration for the 1979 fall nursery school program is now open.

The nursery school offers both a three-year-old and a four-year-old program. The three-year-old class meets Tuesdays and Thursdays from nine to noon and the four-year-old group meets Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from nine until 12 noon.

Classes are designed to provide an informal learning experience through group activities, reading, arts and crafts, music and field trips.

Actor Wayne Still Improving LWV Program Set Tuesday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor John Wayne continues to improve following surgery to remove an abdominal cancer, a spokesman for UCLA Medical Center reports.

"He continues to improve and his vital signs are stable," the spokesman said Sunday.

Speakers during the panel discussion will include Hugh Benson, juvenile officer with the Greenville Police Department, and Eve C. Rogers, Chief Court Counselor. Third Judicial District, which includes Pitt County. Local problems and possible remedies will be discussed.

we salute the Jaycees

NATIONAL JAYCEE WEEK • JANUARY 21-27

During National Jaycee Week we recognize our local Jaycees and Jay-C-Ettes and salute them for their untiring effort on behalf of the community. In Greenville and across the nation, Jaycees put community service before personal glory. These young men and women of energy and action are working today for a better tomorrow, aiming toward the leadership which is such an essential part of their dedication, as in so many ways, they work for all of us...making Greenville a better place to live.

Jaycee Officers...for 1978-1979 are (L-R) Jerry Creech, President; Warren Stroud, Internal Vice President; Calvin Shearin, External Vice President; Don Fleming, Ways & Means Vice President.
