

State Of The Union Message Tonight

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, praised by an economy-minded Congress for showing restraint in his budget, is following through with a State of the Union message that emphasizes the urgency of fighting inflation.

Carter goes before Congress and a nationwide television audience to make his address tonight (at 9 p.m. EST), a day after unveiling a "lean and austere" budget that calls for spending $53.2 billion with a deficit of $29 billion.

One House member said after a briefing at the White House Monday that inflation was uppermost in the president's mind as he reviewed a succession of drafts prepared by his speechwriters.

Those at the session were told the president will ask Congress to approve his wage insurance program, hospital cost containment legislation, a scaled-down welfare revision bill and loosened government regulation of the trucking industry — all measures to cool inflation.

One source said Carter would explain a proposed $10.8 billion increase in defense spending as necessary to fulfill pledges made to NATO allies and to assure military strength during arms negotiations with the Soviet Union.

On foreign affairs, Carter is expected to discuss the SALT negotiations and touch on the need for legislation implementing the Panama Canal treaties approved by the Senate last year plus unspecified measures to reflect the new American relationship with Taiwan.

It was not clear how deeply Carter would go into any proposed legislation. A White House aide said the president is making a "serious thematic speech" and will send Congress his legislative priorities later this week.

But it was learned that the president at some point will request countercyclical relief for local governments in areas of particularly high unemployment, public financing of congressional campaigns, new education and natural resources departments, and a bill to settle the long-running lands dispute in Alaska.

Carter, dispatching his budget to Congress, predicted that his spending proposals will win broad public support. "It is a budget good enough that I will fight for it," he said. There is plenty of evidence he will need to.

Even though Carter won praise for his drive to cut the deficit from this year's $37.4 billion, there is disagreement in Congress over how to spend the money that is available.

"There are differences of opinion as to where these cuts, or whether these cuts are in the proper positions," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill after the White House briefing.

Many Republicans offered Carter grudging praise for his attempt to reduce the deficit.

"Considering that it came from a Democrat administration, the new budget is austere," said House Republican Whip Robert Michel of Illinois.

Israel Silent On Bombing Death Of Terrorist Agent

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization blamed Israel today for the bombing assassination of Abu Hassan, the guerrilla leader reputed to have masterminded the terrorist attack on the Israeli team at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

The Israelis had no comment on the assassination. An army spokesman in Tel Aviv said Palestinian bases in southeast Lebanon fired Katyusha rockets at Israeli settlements in northern Galilee for an hour today, and one house was badly damaged, but there were no casualties. It was the third such attack reported in five days.

A PLO spokesman charged that "Zionist agents" planted the remote-control bomb that killed 36-year-old Abu Hassan and seven others and injured 16 persons on a Beirut street Monday.

"They are the only ones to profit. Who else would profit from such an attack?" said the spokesman.

Abu Hassan was the alias of Ali Hassan Salameh, PLO chief Yasser Arafat's top security officer and the chief of the secret service of Al Fatah, the largest of the seven guerrilla groups in the PLO. Known as Arafat's "playboy cop," he was married to Lebanese beauty queen Georgina Rizk, Miss Universe of 1972.

Hassan had been high on the Israeli wanted list since word got around that he and another guerrilla leader known as Abu Daoud planned the attack six and a half years ago in which 11 members of the Israeli Olympic team were killed.

The bomb that killed Hassan was planted in a car parked near his home. It was exploded by remote control as he and four bodyguards drove past in a station wagon. Both vehicles were demolished, the five occupants of the station wagon were killed, and glass shards killed three Lebanese passersby and injured 16 others.

The car containing the explosive was reduced to a pile of melted metal, and the wreckage of the station wagon was scattered for 20 yards around.

A PLO statement said Hassan was a "martyr of the Palestinian revolution, the Palestine Liberation Organization and Fatah."

Development Money Is Awarded Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Winterville has received $311,000 from the Small Cities Program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), according to Ken Weeden, community management specialist with the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

Weeden, who has worked with Winterville through the Department's Division of Community Assistance, stated that the block grant funds would go toward specific target areas in Winterville which need housing assistance. "Three things will take place in these target areas," said Weeden. "There will be housing rehabilitation, demolition and clearance and relocation of families in those areas to standard housing."

Portions of Myrtle, Hammond, Boyd and Tyson Streets will be affected by the development procedures.

Roger Stancil, town advisor for Winterville, pointed out that a public meeting will be held Feb. 6, 7:30 p.m., in the Winterville Municipal Building for all residents in the target areas.

Iranian Military Vow To Defend Bakhtiar Regime

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Officers of the Iranian armed forces staged a show of force with the imperial guard today, vowing that the army will remain united and its soldiers will "shed their blood" to maintain the monarchy and the government of Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar.

A chief political aide to religious opposition leader Ayatullah Khomeini said, meanwhile, the strikes paralyzing the Iranian economy will continue until Bakhtiar's government resigns and makes way for an Islamic republican regime named by Khomeini.

The British Embassy announced that the Royal Air Force, on the advice of the Iranian military command, would evacuate on Wednesday more than 200 foreigners, about one half of them Americans, from the strife-torn oil center of Ahwaz to Bahrain on the Persian Gulf.

In an unusual military demonstration held mainly for foreign reporters, Major Gen. Ali Nashat paraded 1,000 of his elite soldiers in driving, wet snow. The troops shouted "Long live the shah!" as they raced across obstacle courses and marched in a goose-stepping review.

"Our job is to protect and guard his majesty and the government," said Nashat. "His majesty has left on another of his regular vacations and the troops see it that way. When his majesty comes back, the troops will be here, ready as always, to shed their blood for him."

The shah left Iran last Tuesday and is now in Morocco.

Gen. Abbas Gharbaghi, the chief of the armed forces, called on the 430,000-man army Monday night to defend Bakhtiar's government against Khomeini's attempts to replace it.

The 78-year-old Shiite Moslem patriarch, who has led the uprising against the shah, has appealed to the men of the armed forces to support his crusade to convert Iran to an Islamic republic with a government named by him.

In an unprecedented broadcast, Gharbaghi said the military would not heed the religious leaders seeking Bakhtiar's overthrow and would defend the "legal and constitutional" government.

Khomeini and his supporters contend the government is illegal because it was appointed by the shah.

Five-Year-Old Saved Infant

BETHEL — Eleven-month-old Donta Witherspoon owes his life to his five-year-old brother, Jimmy.

Jimmy Thursday night toted his 20-pound baby brother out of their burning home and 200 yards down the road to safety. The house on the farm of Roy M. James on the Big Oak Road (County Road 1500) near here burned to the ground within minutes. A seven-year-old brother, Garrick, in the meantime ran for help after the fire started, presumably from a wood heater. The children's mother, Modia Witherspoon, said she had gone next door to her husband's grandmother's home only a few minutes before the blaze began. She is an employee of Prepsmith in Greenville; her husband, James, works at Bethel Manufacturing Company.

The Bethel Fire Department responded to the 6:22 p. m. call, but reported that the house was completely engulfed by fire when firefighters arrived.

"Everything that was in the house is gone," Witherspoon said. "everything but my boys — I sho' am proud of my boys!"

Short Course Scholarships For Two Young Pitt County Farmers

Chris James of Bethel and Victor T. Corey of Winterville have been chosen as this year's Pitt County young farmers to participate in a "Modern Farming" short course at N. C. State University.

Two young farmers of Pitt County per year are supported by scholarships from local banks to take part in this annual program. The presentation of the two $200 scholarships was made yesterday by Bill Glidewell, county key banker, representing the 10 banks which do business in Pitt County. The Pitt County Extension Service, which coordinates the yearly contest that results in the picking of two for this honor, was represented by County Agent Leroy James.

The course is to be held in Raleigh Jan. 29-Feb. 9. Anyone participating must plan to engage in farming or agri-business closely related to farm production and must show leadership ability. James said. He commented that both of this year's recipients, though young, are well into their farming careers. James, who is a 1976 graduate of North Pitt High School, farms, with his father, C. X. James, 115 acres of peanuts, 300 acres of corn and 200 of soybeans.

Corey, a D. H. Conley High School graduate who attended East Carolina University, is in his fifth year of farming. He tends 350 acres of soy beans, 75 acres of corn, 30 acres of tobacco and eight acres of cucumbers. He was recently married to the former Anita Ann Garland of Greenville.

Two New Civil Suits Facing Peoples Temple; No Comment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Peoples Temple faces two new civil suits, one filed by the Justice Department seeking $4.3 million, and the other brought by the children of slain Rep. Leo J. Ryan.

The Temple's assets also were to be the subject of a Superior Court hearing today. Temple attorney Charles Garry was to argue in favor of dissolving the cult's state-chartered nonprofit corporation and appointing a receiver to parcel out assets.

The Justice Department suit, filed Monday in U.S. District Court here, seeks to recover $4.3 million in costs for flying from Guyana to the United States the bodies of more than 900 cult members who died in a mass suicide-murder ritual Nov. 18.

The suit, which also seeks the cost of flying survivors to the United States, charges the Peoples Temple failed to protect its members, most of whom died in the ritual led by the Rev. Jim Jones.

Justice Department spokesman Terry Adamson in Washington, D.C., said President Carter was informed 10 days ago of the probability of the suit and wrote that it should be pursued if legally feasible.

The five children of the late congressman also filed suit against the Temple, charging Jones and other unknown persons were responsible for their father's assassination on a jungle airstrip near the Jonestown, Guyana commune.

The suit alleges Jones and other defendants "conspired, planned and executed a plot to murder" Ryan. The California congressman was slain along with four other Americans as he was preparing to end a fact-finding mission spurred by reports of brutality at the commune.

Peoples Temple attorneys and officials were not available for comment on either suit.

Federal officials said the government is taking steps to freeze a reported $26 million in temple assets in the United States and abroad.

No Cosmetic Changes Eyed

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina, says North Carolina, unlike Virginia, will not resort to "cosmetic" program changes to settle its desegregation issue with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Friday said Monday that further negotiations would be futile if HEW officials press for the discontinuation of programs or the closing or merging of institutions simply to speed up integration in the system or bring about "pupil assignment" for colleges and universities.

Friday spoke along with UNC Vice Presidents Raymond Dawson and Felix Joyner to a meeting of the American Association of University Professors at UNC-Greensboro.

Negotiations with HEW can be tricky, Friday said, because "once you negotiate this point and think you have an agreement, then 10 more questions come up and on and on. Once you start, where do you stop? The critical point is who's making the decisions."

Friday said HEW has until March 11 to make a formal response to two UNC studies concluding that there is no "educationally unnecessary duplication" among programs on UNC campuses located in the same geographic areas.

When asked if the Virginia settlement provided any useful precedents for North Carolina schools, Friday said, "I don't think so. Even the people in the institutions there refer to the agreement as cosmetic."

Friday said he agrees with

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano that "the courts are the wrong place to settle this issue." But he said litigation would be preferable to backing down on the issue of who will set the state's educational policy.

Share Same SS Number

CAMARILLO, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Stephen Brewster, a dentist, found out recently that he shares more than an interest in healthy teeth with one of his patients.

He asked the woman for her Social Security number for an insurance form, and she replied, "That can't be your number," he said.

"Why not," asked Duane Wilkins.

"Because it's my number," Brewster said.

They compared cards and discovered the same numbers: 363-14-9879.

"The odds of this happening must be a billion to one," said Brewster, who said he obtained his card in Michigan in the early 1930s, "right after they first came out."

Ms. Wilkins, 18, has lived all her life in Camarillo, 40 miles northwest of Los Angeles. She obtained her first Social Security card six or seven years ago, but lost it three years ago. She received a new card from the Social Security Administration, but says she doesn't know if it is the same number as her old card.

Informed of the coincidence on Friday, Maria Marshall, branch manager of the Social Security office in Oxnard, said, "I would think that would be a virtual impossibility."

Ms. Marshall said numbers are screened at the Social Security data processing center in Baltimore, Md., to avoid duplication. "I would never say it would not happen, though," she said.

Tobacco Tax Collection Change May Be Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed change in regulations on collection of federal tobacco excise taxes could cost tobacco manufacturers between $6 million and $15 million next year, government and industry sources say.

The proposal, released with the 1980 budget request for the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, would require manufacturers to pay their excise taxes weekly instead of twice a month.

The Tobacco Institute, the cigarette industry's primary lobby, notified member companies over the weekend of the proposal and is awaiting their response before making a decision on whether to try to block the plan, according to institute President Horqage Kornegay.

Kornegay said the shortened time for reporting and collection of the excise taxes would "place an unfair burden" on manufacturers by forcing the companies to pay the government before they collect from wholesalers.

"They have an efficient operation now. Why do they want to change it?" Kornegay said.

Steve Higgins, acting deputy director of ATF, said the proposal originated in a Carter administration study to increase efficiency in cash management throughout the government.

The regulations, which will be advertised for public hearing, could cost manufacturers both by a loss of short-term interest and in processing forms and tax payments, according to government sources.

Under current regulations, the manufacturers pay at the end of the month the taxes collected between the first and 15th days of the month. The 15-day lag allows them to earn interest on the money.

The new proposal would set up weekly reporting periods and require companies to pay within three days after the end of each weekly period.

Estimates on how much the proposed change would cost the tobacco industry vary. A congressional source said if the government nets a savings of $5 million in collections and reinvestment of money, the industry stands to lose about $6.3 million. Industry sources said the losses may come closer to $15 million.

Larger companies that collect more than $5 million a year in excise taxes would have to wire their payments directly to the treasury instead of mailing a certified check.

"It would give the treasury instantaneous use of the money," Higgins said. Higgins said the regulations would require only approval within AFT after a public hearing. He said no congressional action would be necessary.

Pilgreen-Edwards Vows Solemnized

KINSTON — Allyson Gail Edwards and Johnny Mark Pilgreen Jr. were united in marriage Friday, Jan. 12, at 8:00 p.m. in the Bethel Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Willis Wilson of Winterville officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Edwards of Kinston, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Pilgreen of Winterville.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a white gown of giana and silk Venice lace styled with an oval neckline outlined with Venice lace encrusted with pearls. Matching lace details accented the bodice front and encircled the empire waistline. The long fitted sleeves were trimmed with matching lace appliques. The flowing A-line skirt, bordered with lace, flowed into an attached chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion, applied in lace, was attached to a Camelot of lace and pearls. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of yellow silk roses with baby's breath and ivy.

Bonnie Koonce, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor and Donna Pilgreen, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridal attendants were La Donna Sloan and Karen Dilda, both of Kinston.

The flower girl was Shannon Wade and Robbie Dail, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. Margo Paramore presided at the guest register and Mrs. David Paramore directed the wedding.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Hal Pilgreen, brother of the bridegroom, Glen Kornegay of Mount Olive, David Hooks of Winterville, Mike Outlaw and Charles Grant, both of Kinston.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Jane Picirilli, soloist, and Mrs. Myra Hogan, organist. Kent Bryant was the pianist.

The bride graduated from Bethel Academy and is now employed by Roy Jones Pontiac-AMC. The bridegroom graduated from Lenoir Community College in radio broadcasting and is a sales representative for WFTC.

A reception followed the wedding ceremony.

Sam Uzzell Gives Program

The Greenville Garden Club held its January meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. Preston Cannon. Mrs. Gilbert Peel, Mrs. Thelma Harris and Mrs. J. A. Rouse assisted the hostess.

Sam Uzzell, Pitt County assistant agricultural extension agent, spoke on gardening and the Pitt County Beautification Program. The discussion was concluded with a question and answer session.

Mrs. J. C. Galloway, president, presided over the business session. Mrs. R. R. Forrest reported on her committee's visit to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, where Mr. Hall showed committee members the area planted with the club's donation. A plaque will be installed at the site at a later date.

The Silent Plant Auction, scheduled for March, was discussed by Mrs. Howard Burns. She reminded all members to start selecting plants for the sale.

Mrs. Galloway announced that the birdhouse workshop will be held in February, at which time the members will be making homes for bluebirds.

ALLSPICE POPULAR ALL OVER WORLD

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Allspice, which grows on trees in Jamaica, was discovered here in the late 15th century by the Spanish, who had conquered the island. It is also found in other parts of the Caribbean and in central America.

Jamaica, however, remains the world's largest producer of allspice. In 1977, the last year for which figures are available, more than 5 million pounds were exported at a value of $3,829,716, according to government statistics.

After being picked, the berries are dried and used, whole or ground, in cooking and baking all over the world, imparting a distinctive flavor that suggests a mixture of cloves and nutmeg.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It's amazing to me how influential advertising is in this country.

Take disco... please. You can't pick up an ad these days without seeing a new product born out of disco fever. There are disco dresses, disco hair, disco suits, disco shoes, disco perfume, disco water beds, disco handbags, disco cars, and disco crackers.

I have asked 600 people of varying ages about disco and have yet to find one who actually dances a la disco.

Where are all these people who must be choreographed right down to the frenzied flex of an elbow, lest they inflict serious pain on one another? Where is that vast population who picks up a stranger to dance, goes out on the floor and proceeds to twirl and spin in complete harmony like they had four size C batteries in their backs?

Everyone talks disco, but who does it?

Most dances are like that. I have only my mother's word, but the minut was more PR than action. How many men do you know who could count, dip, sway, run in a circle, stand toe-to-toe and be devastatingly clever at the same time?

It was the same with the Virginia Reel. Of course, skipping was considerably easier because chewing gum hadn't been invented yet and you didn't have that distraction.

People never got into the "twist" either. Oh, there were a couple of women at parties who looked like they were a corkscrew trying to get a stubborn cork out of the bottle, but they never got the hang of it.

And the "Hustle" always reminded me of an encounter group with rhythm.

The only dancing that ever made sense to me was the do-your-own-thing craze of a few years back. You could groove to the restroom and return and your partner would never know you were gone. No stepping on feet, no apologizing for not bending, no head getting caught in an armpit... just keeping time in your own little world.

I suspect there are a lot of closet disco dancers who imagine themselves in a three-piece white suit with a cleft in their chin about three feet deep who dance frenetically in front of the mirror and never sweat.

It's time to come out of the closet and keep the momentum going. If you don't I'm going to get stuck with a pair of disco shoes that have never been anywhere but under a table.

SURPRISE KISSES

Good for people allergic to wheat as well as for everyday eaters.

1 1/4 cups Oat Flour, see Note below

1 teaspoon baking soda

1/2 cup butter or margarine

1/2 cup creamy peanut butter

1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar

1/2 cup granulated sugar

1/2 teaspoon vanilla

1 egg

1/2 cup finely chopped peanuts (roasted, skinned and unsalted)

9-ounce package chocolate kisses (about 5 dozen)

Stir together Oat Flour and baking soda. Cream butter, peanut butter, sugars and vanilla; beat in egg to blend. Gradually beat in Oat Flour mixture; stir in peanuts. Chill until firm enough to handle — several hours. Work with half the dough at one time, keeping remaining portion chilled. Using a level tablespoon for each, with your palms roll into a ball around a kiss to cover it completely. Bake, several inches apart, on ungreased cookie sheets, in a preheated 350-degree oven, until browned — 10 minutes. (Cookies will look like little hats.) Remove with a wide spatula to wire racks to cool. Makes about 5 dozen.

Note: In an electric blender or food processor, finely crush enough regular or quick-cooking oats (1 and 1-3rd to 1 and 2-3rds cups) to make 1 1/4 cups Oat Flour.

Reader Seeks Gifts Advice

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was born and raised here in this small town, so I know nearly everyone and they know me. My problem: I get an invitation to every graduation, wedding, baby shower, tea and luncheon in town. Just name the occasion that calls for a gift, and I get my notice.

Abby, I am not cheap, and I don't mind sending gifts to my friends. But how about all these acquaintances?

Right now I am swamped with "invitations." I have a good name in town and don't want to ruin it. But I refuse to be a sucker to people I hardly know. What is your advice?

NO MILLIONAIRE

DEAR NO: Every announcement and invitation is not necessarily a big broad hint for a gift. The best rule to follow is: If you would derive real pleasure out of sending a gift, send one. If you don't feel close enough to send a gift, send a card. If you feel like a "sucker," forget it.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married three years. Last year my husband had an accident and injured his back, and ever since then he has been very stingy with his lovemaking. He uses his bad back as an excuse for not making love to me. (I can't remember the last time, but it's been a long, long time.)

When I try to tell him about my feelings and my needs, he says, "You should have my back for just one day!" He's seen several doctors, and they all tell him he should learn to live with it.

I keep telling him if he tried to give of himself a little more, he wouldn't suffer so much, but he won't even try.

I love my husband, Abby, but I have feelings, too. What should I do?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Backache or no backache, if there's love in the heart, it somehow manages to break out and spread to other places. In other words, love will always find a way.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married only 10 months, and I am considering leaving him for what I hope you won't think is a silly reason. I just can't take his "teasing" anymore. He is always punching, pinching or squeezing the breath out of me.

I've told him I don't like such rough treatment, but he laughs and says they are only "love pats," and keeps right on hurting me. (If you saw some of the bruises I have from his "love pats" you would think we had been in a terrible fight!)

I have begged and pleaded and even cried, but nothing works. Have you any words of advice? It's getting so I hate to see him come home at night.

READY TO PACK UP

DEAR READY: Your husband's "love pats" are conscious—or possibly unconscious—acts of hostility and aggression which have nothing to do with "love."

Insist that he get professional help. If he refuses, pack up and leave. If you hang around for more abuse, you're asking for it.

DEAR ABBY: I borrowed $200 from a friend 14 years ago. Nothing was said about interest at the time.

I am able to pay the money back now. My friend says I owe her interest because if I had borrowed from the bank I would have had to pay interest. But, Abby, it wasn't a bank I borrowed that money from, it was from my friend.

What do you say?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Since no mention was made about the interest when you borrowed the money, pay her $200 and call it square. (P.S. I should think your friend would be glad to see any money at all after 14 years.)

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Local Airport Service Grows

There was a time when the Pitt-Greenville Airport seemed headed for oblivion; in fact there was talk of developing it for industrial sites.

The pendulum swings, however, and now the airport has become one of the busiest anywhere, considering it does not have regular major airline service.

The airport does have commuter service through Wheeler Airlines, and it is possible that this is the wave of the future for Eastern North Carolina.

The airport is owned by the county and the city and through the Airport Authority, improvements are being carried out to modernize it for its anticipated uses.

Authority Chairman James T. Little, Jr. told the county commissioners and the city council about a $1.17 million improvement program recently in asking for $50,000 each from the two governing bodies. Federal Aviation Administration and a state grant, along with Authority reserves would provide the remainder of the funds. Included in the work is the rebuilding of runways and taxiways at the facility.

Little said Wheeler Airlines is going out nearly full on every flight. He also pointed out that the facility is one of four in the southeast to be designated as a commuter airport. There has also been filed an application for a limited certificate to handle DC-9 and 727 jet charter flights and similar aircraft.

No one knows how commercial air service will go in Eastern North Carolina. Piedmont Airlines says it will eliminate all but jet service, and it is possible there will be no such service in the East. If this should happen, commuter flights would be the only air service to Eastern North Carolina.

While we still feel there would be adequate support for one central jetport in the East, it is also clear that there is going to be a good future for the Pitt-Greenville Airport. We hope the county and city will give the facility full support.

Part Of The Anti-Inflation Campaign

President Carter submitted a $532 billion budget to Congress with a $29 billion deficit.

It was Carter's goal to submit a budget with a deficit below $30 billion.

Maybe it is unrealistic to expect a balanced budget this year but, considering the awesome inflation rate, a balanced budget would certainly be in order. Deficit spending contributes to inflation and eliminating the federal deficit should be a part of the inflation fighting program.

Building Trades Control

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Building trade practitioners who commit violations would face fines, court orders, and license revocation under a proposal to the General Assembly from the Governmental Evaluation Commission.

In addition, a point system to keep track of violations and add them up to possible sanctions is included in the set of recommendations.

The various specific proposals are in addition to the major direction established by the so-called Sunset Commission. That suggestion calls for establishing one central licensing, investigative and reporting agency in the state Department of Commerce.

Present separate licensing boards for contractors, electrical contractors, plumbing and heating contractors, and refrigeration contractors, would be eliminated.

Not Protected
Those separate agencies — each with unique licensing and testing systems, little communication and ineffective record of enforcement procedures — has left the public ill protected in matters of health, safety and welfare of residential and commercial buildings, the Governmental Evaluation Commission determined.

The separate operations "seriously restrict the effectiveness and efficiency of the licensing programs for protection of the public.

"The Commission can find no argument for individual boards that enhances the public's protection. Just the reverse is true. This piecemeal approach has left major voids in the protection of the public," the commission reports. The commission was established by the General Assembly to investigate various state boards and commissions and recommend change or elimination of those which are not effectively serving the public.

A central agency would provide uniform enforcement, central policy and procedure, a central file for violators and public complaints, one place for the public to get assistance, a single investigative staff, and uniform testing and application procedures. Tests would be regularly updated to conform to recent legal and technical change, and the practice of allowing those who have been in the trades for years to be automatically licensed, and of letting those building on property which they can themselves do without licenses, would be ended.

Such steps, the commission stated, would eliminate confusion over jurisdictional responsibility, allow uniform enforcement and prevention of violations, eliminate separate investigations by several licensing bodies on one construction project, and encourage local building inspectors and state investigators to exchange information and crack down on offenders.

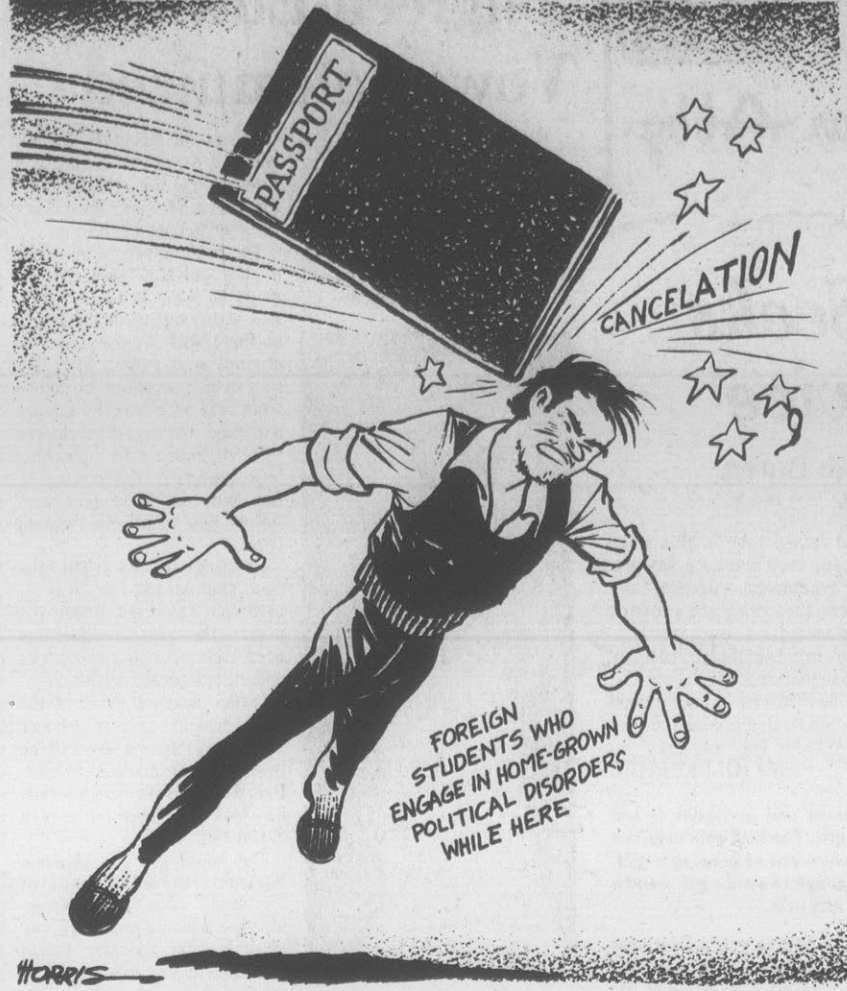

BILL NOBLITT

Cost Saving

The entire operation could be funded from fees with a savings to taxpayers of $500,000 per year, the commission suggests.

SHOULD BE ADDED TO THE CURRICULUM!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Alice In Wonderland

WASHINGTON — In the Alice in Wonderland world of Washington, few phenomena are more curious than the Mad Hatter business of the government's paying witnesses to help them represent themselves. We saw a marvelous example of this last week in San Francisco, where the Federal Trade Commission began hearings on children's TV commercials.

The FTC was acting upon a petition originally filed by two non-profit outfits, Action for Children's Television (ACT), and the Center for Science in the Public Interest. Another leading petitioner in the case is the Consumers Union, whose spokesman, Harry Snyder, led the attack in San Francisco. The petitioners want a regulation banning TV commercials for sweetened cereals and other foods. The manufacturers, naturally, are lined up in opposition.

What we have, in brief, is a kind of adversary proceeding in which both sides have abundant opportunity and resources to present their arguments to the commission. But here we fall down the rabbit hole: The commission is paying the petitioners fat sums of money — tax money — to help them make a more effective case.

This goes on all the time, and the practice grows steadily more pervasive. At least in the case of the FTC, it may be said that the commission has statutory authority to make certain payments to witnesses thought to need help in rule-making procedures. Other regulatory agencies are paying travel expenses, counsel fees, or "research" fees with only the most tenuous authority, or with no authority at all.

The practice first came to public view, if I am not mistaken, when a House committee two years ago began dipping into the FTC's proposed trade rule for funeral homes. To the committee's astonishment, it turned out that the FTC had paid out more than $81,000 to partisan intervenors.

The Consumers Union rode along on that gravy train, too, to the tune of $3,980 in public funds. In the current hearings on children's commercials, the Consumers Union has picked up a plump $58,286 in tax money to work up some studies supporting the proposed regulation. The two original petitioners, ACT and the Center for Science, together have harvested $65,000 to help them prosecute their own case.

It is like asking the neighbors over to play poker, and then giving them money to keep the game going. The regulatory agencies, not content with the enormous power that is already theirs — the staff, the money, the counsel — now seek to stack the deck with a few more hired jokers of their own. They will pay consumer activists to build up a more impressive sup-

Folk Tales' Magic

By DAN FESPERMAN
The Charlotte News

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — This here tale's about folks who used to swap stories 'round the fireplace late at night, long before TV settled down in their living rooms and went to gobblin' up attention.

Time was jest about one story was bein' told for every wisp o' smoke you'd see curling outta a chimney, no matter what part of the state you were in.

Then there was TV, and people stopped listenin' and started into watchin'. But in the mountains, TV didn't creep in so fast, so there's still old timers who can spin tales like their fathers and grandfathers.

And then there's people called revivalists, younguns for the most part, and they tell the old stories, too.

"Things were just slower in getting here," said Stanley Hicks, 67, who lives 18 miles west of Boone. "And one reason we told stories was that there really weren't any jobs. But now I guess the young people have so much to do that they don't have time to listen to stories."

"My great grandpa came over in 1780, and a lot of the stories are ones he told, except they're probably changed around a lot," Hicks said. "But some are just stories they made up and told around the fireplace to the kids."

Such tales are best represented by the Jack tales and the Grandfather tales. Jack, the fictional hero of his tales, is a good-natured but good-for-nothing fellow who weasles in and out of scrapes, with several outlandish twists along the way. The grandfather tales are simply stories attributed to a storytelling grandfather of the mountains.

Then there's another Hicks. Ray Hicks, 58, draws his stories with a "special whang to 'em," as Marshall Ward, another storyteller, put it, and also spices up stories with Elizabethan English, which he's spoken all his life.

Barbara Freeman, 34, and Connie Regan, 31, two revivalists, regard Hicks as the master.

"There's just something magical about him," Ms. Freeman said. "Once you hear Ray

W. M. Scales is convinced one of his neighbors has a high-powered pistol, following an experience one night last week while sitting in his living room on West Fourth Street.

Scales heard an unusual noise, something like a scraping in the walls of the house, and saw something fall directly in front of him. Reaching over he discovered it was the ball from a pistol cartridge.

An investigation showed that a gun had accidentally gone off a block away, passed over one house, the discharge making its course through several trees, had pierced the wall of his house and dropped in his living room.

The ball had passed two streets and traveled from the middle of one block to the middle of another before striking the Scales home.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Undercut By Iran Revolt

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The increasingly probable failure to conclude an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty has become the first, most damaging byproduct arising from the revolution in Iran, casting a foreboding shadow over President Carter's conduct of foreign policy.

The full measure of U.S. losses resulting from the overthrow of the shah and the end of Iran as a strong and faithful American ally can be only dimly perceived. Nevertheless, the hardening posture of Israel's right-wing government under Prime Minister Menahem Begin points up this conclusion in Jerusalem: today is no time for Israel to consider withdrawal from the West Bank, with its presumed threat to Israel's future security.

That ravages Carter's diplomacy looking toward an eventual overall Arab-Israeli settlement. Israel wants only a separate peace with Egypt which offers return of the Sinai; it rejects language looking toward a similar return of the West Bank.

Israel's hardening position is signalled by the Begin government and its closest supporters in Washington. To Carter and his Mideast experts, these signals mean tragedy: the probability that the brilliant diplomacy culminating in last summer's celebrated Camp David summit will prove no less ephemeral than other American efforts in the Middle East.

To the Israelis and their American friends, the signals are an inevitable reaction to Carter's lack of response to political turbulence in the larger Mideast. This includes Iran,

Afghanistan (taken over by a pro-Soviet coup last April), Turkey and Pakistan, along with Soviet penetration of the Horn of

Africa and South Yemen on the Arabian Peninsula.

Begin enthusiastically applauds a separate peace with Egypt, including a long-term agreement for Sinai oil from Egypt to compensate for the loss of Iranian oil caused by the fall of the shah. But Begin bars any concessions on the West Bank and Gaza, where his top men claim Moslem fundamentalism — rippling outward from Iran — would infect the Pale'sstinians.

One signal of this hardened Israeli posture is sharply diminished stature for Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, a relative moderate, and powerful new influence for Gen. Ariel Sharon, the agriculture minister and most expansionist cabinet member, who won Begin's consent for three new Jewish settlements in the occupied territories. The prime minister took that step despite knowing it would infuriate Carter and contradict Carter's public statements that Begin had agreed at

To the editor:

In Pitt County there have been numerous accidents, including fatalities, involving trains during recent months. If we recognize every railroad grade crossing as a life and death hazard, chances are we will cross it safely. Here are a few suggestions:

1. Slow down when you see the round yellow advance warning sign. When you come to the crossing, look both ways. Even if the lights are off and gates are up, they may be malfunctioning.
2. If you take the same route very often, it is easy to daydream and forget to watch for trains. But don't neglect to look!
3. At night do not drive so fast you cannot stop within the distance illuminated by your headlights. Overdriving your headlights is one way of running into the side of a train.
4. Be especially careful if weather conditions cut visibility. Do not drive with a fogged-up or iced-over windshield. Do not limit your ability to hear warning bells and whistles by turning your radio too loud, and do not let conversation with passengers distract you.
5. If your car stalls on the tracks, get out immediately and look down the tracks in both directions. If a train is approaching, abandon your car, get off the tracks, and run in the direction of the train so you will not be hit by flying debris if the train does hit your stalled car.
6. Be aware that the law requires some vehicles to stop at all railroad crossings — school buses, taxicabs, and trucks carrying flammables.

Glum Possibilities Do Exist

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Reviewing some of the government, economic and business announcements of late, you may conclude that the best efforts sometimes lead to the worst predicaments.

President Carter's announcement of a "lean and austere" budget for fiscal 1980, which begins Oct. 1, was instantly criticized as being like bacon: Open the package and you see the fat.

The President further erred in claiming his budget, which would spend $2,416.85 for every American, "is indeed fair to everyone in the nation." Millions, you may be sure, cannot be cajoled to that view.

He also left himself open to criticism from the budget-balance clique, who maintain that a $29 billion deficit at the crest of one of the longest expansion in the nation's history is inflationary.

But the budget is merely symbolic of intentions bending back to give the initiator a boomerang clout. The evidence is widespread.

Carter, for example, is said by some to be cornering himself into wage-price controls while seeking to avoid them. Fearing a clampdown, it is said, business is getting its price rises now rather than later.

The syndrome can be found everywhere.

Efforts to protect Americans through Social Security is, as many are discovering, liable to break them instead through payroll deductions.

to threaten it instead.

Attempts of consumers to avoid higher future prices by buying now may be pushing up current and future prices, frustrating their very legitimate goal.

Goals never seem to be reached, promises never seem to end, and jobs not only never seem to get done — sometimes they seem not to begin. Or if they do, they begin all over again each year.

Tax accountants are said to be in confusion about last year's tax clarifications. Why, they ask, can a businessman deduct his costs for a client's day at a hunting lodge, but not put him up overnight?

Don't puzzle over that too long, because the effort of all Americans are needed to resolve similar urgent questions and problems. Such as helping the Small Business Administration define "small business."

That agency has been around for years, and it has wrestled seriously with the definition. But it has had other problems too, and while it has made headway, "small business" in general remains a mystery.

What is said to be the most acceptable criteria presents questions of its own. It would be based on employment size — not gross receipts, sales or profits. "A bureaucrat's definition," say critics.

Meanwhile, we still try to define unemployment, and we busily correct the rest of last year's numbers. In spite of the commotion they created, those 1978 figures weren't accurate. They must be revised.

When do the efforts succeed? When do the contradictions cease? When are the promises fulfilled? When, finally, do the jobs get done?

Strength For Today

WANTING and NEEDING

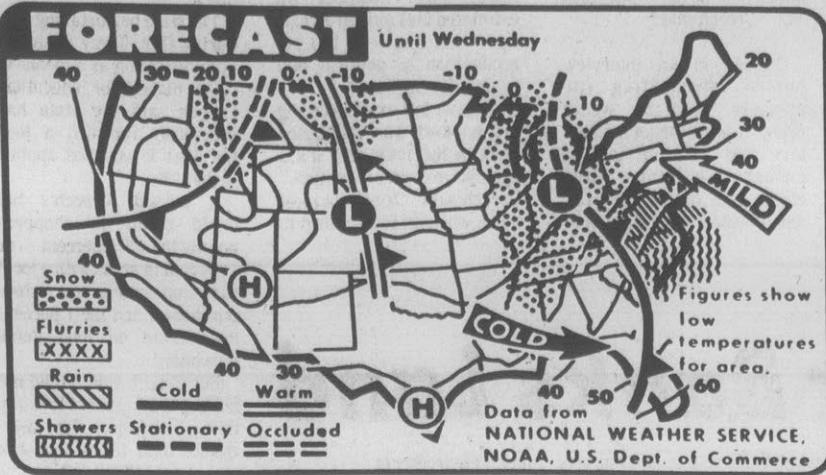

Experts in nutrition tell us that we hunger only for calories — not for vitamins or proteins. Of course, we all know what calories do to the waistline. If we could only be as hungry for vitamins and proteins as for calories, the problem of overweight would be easier to solve.

Yet calories have an important place in human diet.

Likewise in human life, ambition, financial security, and a gay and carefree spirit are important also. But the trouble is that we want these things too much. Just as our hunger is almost exclusively for calories, so our desires for these materialistic benefits of life can overcome our real need for the spiritual aspects.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is expected in the period until Wednesday morning from the Mississippi Valley and central Appalachians to the Great Lakes and for areas of the northern Plains. Rain and showers are forecast from South Carolina to Maryland. Milder weather is due along the Atlantic Coast but most areas will be cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
More windy, wet weather is headed for North Carolina today.

According to the National Weather Service, the storm system is developing in the lower Mississippi Valley. The front is expected to move north-eastward today, bringing rain to the western part of the Tar Heel state this afternoon. Rain will spread across the state tonight.

The rain is expected to cause some flooding in the mountains, where the soil is still very wet and the streams high from this past weekend's rains and melting snow.

The weather service says the rain will change to snow tonight in the mountains as temperatures drop. Some significant accumulations of snow are expected in the mountains tonight and Wednesday.

On Monday temperatures reached into the upper 40s and low 50s under sunny skies, except in the mountains, where temperatures went only into the high 30s. This morning's temperatures

Camp David not to allow new settlements at this time. A second signal is a polemical article in the current issue of Commentary by UCLA Prof. Steven L. Spiegel. He attacks Carter's emphasis on the West Bank and asserts that real U.S. interests would be served by "the promotion of Egyptian-Israeli normalization as a top priority." This article is important enough to be given wide national distribution by the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), a registered lobby. A note by Morris Amitay, AIPAC chairman, accompanying the unusual mailing says Spiegel's article "accurately explains the dangers of (Carter's) policy and offers a more realistic alternative." Iran's collapse leaves Carter with two choices: pressure Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to accept Israel's new line on the West Bank by giving up his insistence on "linking" the Sinai and West Bank deals into an overall settlement; or, pressure Begin to come back to where Carter thought — perhaps mistakenly — he had him at Camp David. That would mean a return to the non-settlements policy, the downgrading of Sharon and the return of "linkage." A third prospect is no choice for Carter: collapse of the Camp David frameworks and a disastrous return to confrontation. Israeli hardliners would then be in the saddle in Jerusalem, with Sadat's pan-Arab critics trying to take the saddle in Cairo.

Such failure will be unavoidable under the Iranian-induced stresses unless either Sadat or Begin retreats from hardening positions that seem to defy reconciliation. Carter will use congressional reluctance to keep spending nearly $2 billion a year on Israel as a prod on Begin. On Sadat, he will use the danger of failure and how it could transform Egyptian-U.S. intimacy to Moscow's advantage.

The odds are against success for Carter. The collapse of Iran has subtly undercut every aspect of his efforts to reestablish American influence abroad. The first, momentous proof is revealing itself far from Tehran in the cockpit of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

"Some people find it hard to believe that they can be entertained by someone telling stories," Ms. Freeman said. "But the audiences almost always react well. They're usually surprised."

In the end, she said, television usually ends up in second place. "A story lets you paint your own pictures, whereas TV does it all for you," she said.

porting record. This is the kind of justice Alice observed in the Court of the King and Queen of Hearts.

Look at what the FTC is doing in the cereal case. Here is an outfit called the Counsel on Children, Media and Merchandising. The council loathes the challenged TV commercials. Behold! The FTC has paid the council nearly $86,000 for a report on how children might resist them.

Here is another witness, the Media Access Project: it is down for $33,000. Next in line is the Center for Public Representation. Give the center twenty thousand bucks! How would the Community Nutrition Institute like to testify? Send the institute $32,768. Who's next?

The Safe Food Institute? Draw a check for $12,265. The FTC has paid out nearly $310,000 already to partisan outfits so they can play its Punch and Judy game. Let's you and me have a love-in.

The Department of Justice takes the view that it is up to each agency individually to determine if it has authority to hire witnesses and to pay their expenses from public funds. Both houses of Congress grappled inconclusively with the problem last year, and will grapple with it again in 1979. Maybe, just maybe, the idea makes sense if it produces significant evidence from a source that otherwise would be overlooked entirely, but when tax funds are used to pay the well-heeled Consumers Union to promote the viewpoint of the Consumers Union, something is grossly wrong.

Social Worker To Tanzania

Acolia Simon-Thomas, clinical social worker in children's services of the Pitt County Mental Health Center, has been invited to take part in a workshop in Arusha, Tanzania.

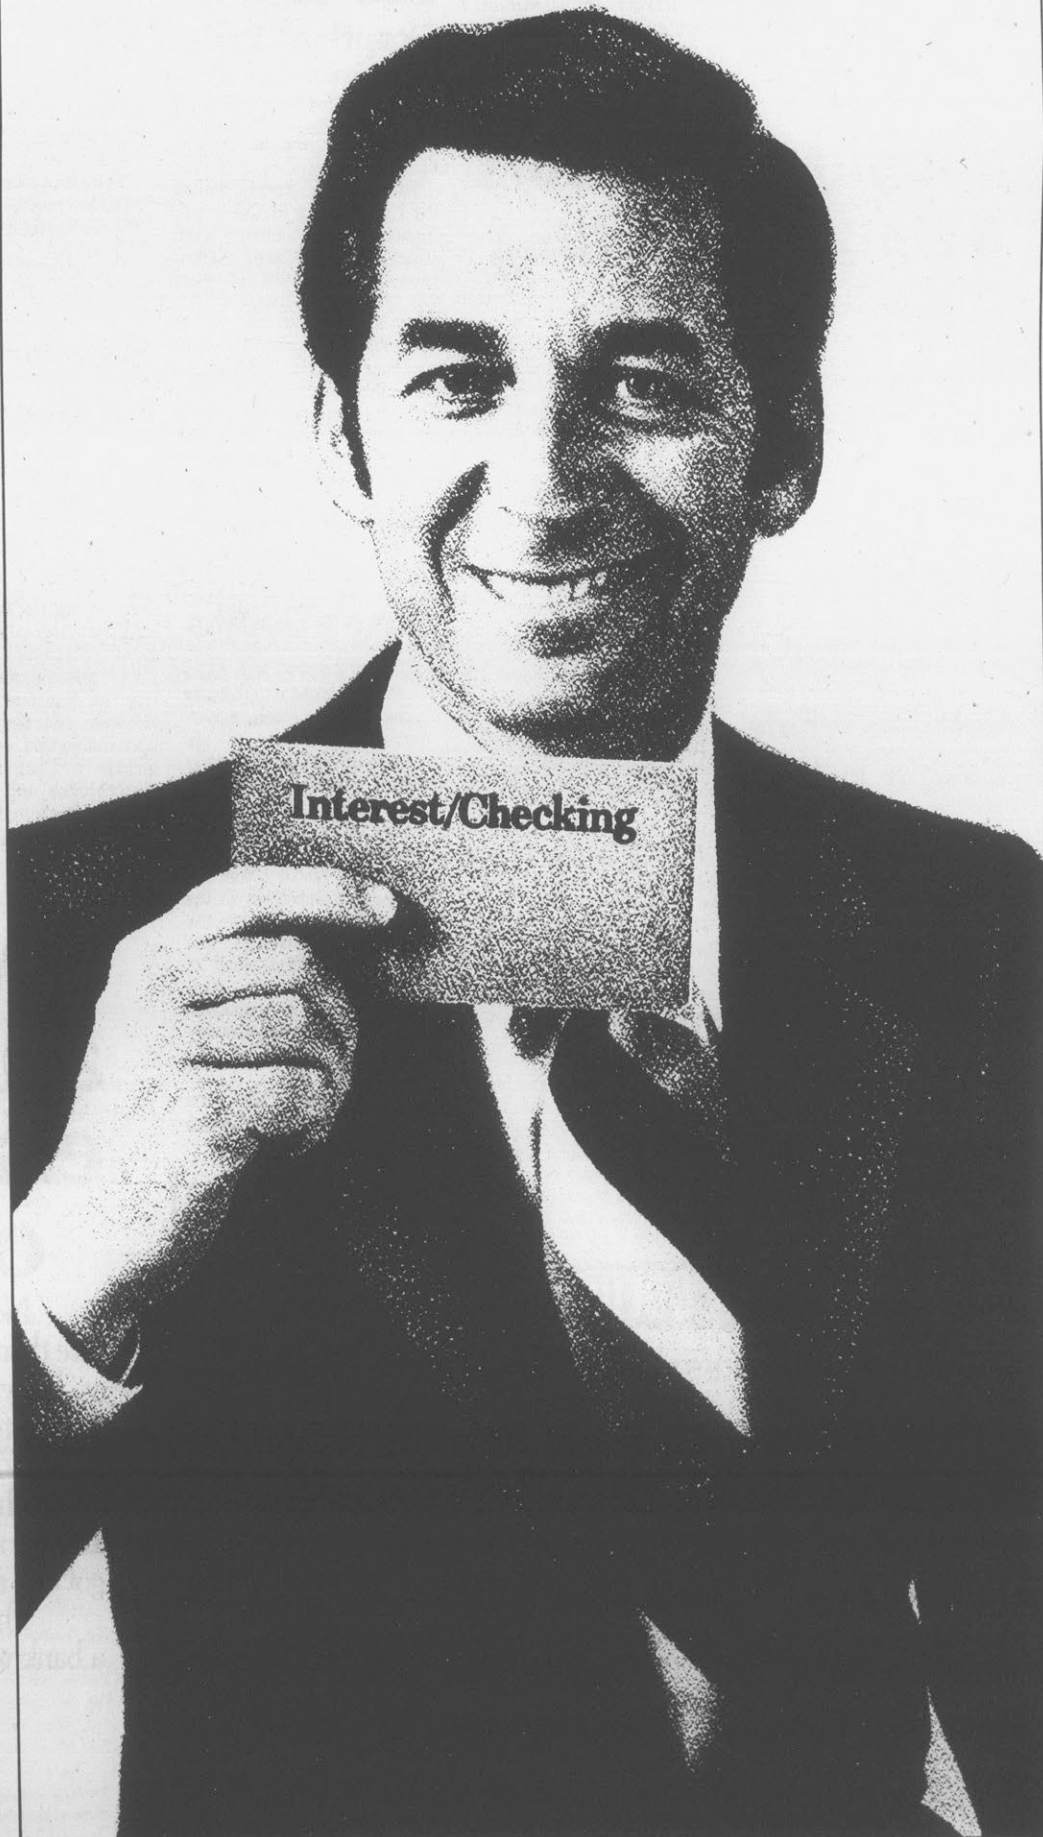

The workshop on social economic, institutional, administrative and financial problems of African refugees is being held this week. Ms. Simon-Thomas will serve as resource person for the specific subtopic, "Urban Refugees." She will present her paper, "Refugee Welfare in a Problem City: A Reflection on Problems Encountered by Urban Refugees." She will help, also, to prepare the final conference document.

Agencies Cite Area Services

The Pitt County Community Health Department and the Pitt County Mental Health Center offered material about services of both agencies at Rose High School recently.

The displays were set up in the school Media Center, where Ms. Jackie Gay did blood pressure checks for interested persons. Ms. Brenda Lewis, media specialist, said community services are being featured in the media center. Martin McDowell of the Health Department and Ty Curran of the Mental Health Center were available to answer questions.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices inched ahead today as Wall Streeters awaited President Carter's State of the Union message.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.25 at 840.78.

Gainers outpaced losers by better than a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The President is scheduled to make his traditional yearly report to both houses of Congress tonight.

Analysts said Carter's budget proposal for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1, released Monday, contained few surprises for investors.

But the budget, calling for a $29 billion deficit and billed as "lean and austere" by the White House, evidently drew some favorable reaction from foreign-exchange traders. The dollar posted gains against most leading European currencies in early activity today.

Trans World Corp. fell 1 to 16 1/2, after a 1 1/2-point drop Monday, when the company reported an unexpected $12.1 million loss for the fourth quarter. UAL, also active, dropped 2 to 32.

Stone Container, subject of a merger agreement with Boise Cascade, jumped 7 1/2 to 23 1/4.

Gardner-Denver, up 5 1/2 on Monday, climbed another 7 1/2 to 29. The company agreed to a takeover by Cooper Industries.

The NYSE's composite index rose .09 to 56.01. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .23 at 160.85.

Volume on the Big Board came to 12.19 million shares by noon, against 9.41 million at the same point Monday.

See Loss In Bus Drivers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Education officials say that low pay for school bus drivers is causing many to quit, leaving some school systems in a bind. And a committee recommended Monday that drivers should get a raise in order to increase bus safety.

In some areas of the state, drivers have threatened to strike for more pay, said Louis W. Alexander, transportation head for the Public Instruction Department.

And, he said, the threat of strikes "is more serious this year than it ever has been before. They're thinking about it everywhere."

The state pays the drivers a base wage of $2.62 an hour, and a few school systems supplement that. The state's minimum wage is $2.50 an hour; the federal minimum, $2.90. The federal wage scale doesn't cover the drivers.

Since the increase in the federal minimum wage Jan. 1, Alexander said he had received reports of strike threats from officials in Greensboro and Watauga, Lincoln, Burke and Guilford counties. Drivers in Wake and Caldwell counties earlier threatened to walk off their jobs.

In Caldwell, student drivers got a $1-an-hour increase to $3.62 after threatening to strike. Said school superintendent David G. Porter, the raise was harder because "drivers were harder and harder to come by."

"The last time I checked, we had one substitute," said Benjamin F. Currin, superintendent of the Rocky Mount schools. "I think salary is a big problem."

Sen. James Edwards, D-Caldwell, recently introduced legislation that would raise the base pay to $3.50 an hour. Alexander estimated that such a raise would cost the state $6 million a year.

Meanwhile, a special committee recommended Monday that the salaries be raised and will present its recommendation to the state Board of Education Jan. 31.

The committee's recommendation was one of six made in an effort to find ways to improve school bus safety.

Officials have been alarmed recently over the increase in school bus fatalities in the state. So far this school year, nine youths have been killed in school bus-related accidents.

Other recommendations were hiring monitors for some buses, improving driver training programs, adopting a bus driver "point system," improving bus safety education for riders and improving discipline on buses.

Wayne Senator Seeks Food Tax Cut

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Calling the state's 3 percent sales tax on food "regressive and unfair," a Wake County senator is promoting a bill to reduce the levy by 1 percent.

Sen. William Creech, D-Wake, filed the bill in introduction in the General Assembly today. He estimated the reduction, one penny per dollar of food sold at retail, would cost the state $36 million next year.

Creech's proposal is the latest in a growing list of tax cut suggestions put forward as alternates to Gov. Jim Hunt's tax plan. Creech's plan would be less costly than Hunt's $40 million proposal to raise to $1,000 the exemption for dependents.

"If the financial situation of the state is such that we can afford tax relief, then I think we should start with eliminating, to the extent possible, one of the most regressive and unfair taxes which we have — the food tax," Creech said.

Creech, in an interview before introducing the measure, said he would prefer to eliminate the food levy and also the tax on patent medicines. But elimination of the food tax alone would cost state and local governments an estimated $144 million a year, and the limited bill is recognition of political and economic realities.

"I have felt ever since the tax on food was reimposed back in the 1960s that it's a regressive form of taxation," Creech said. "It effects most those who can least afford to pay it."

The state began taxing food during Gov. Terry Sanford's administration as a means to raise money for education. Creech said the state had previously repealed a food tax after it was first applied in the 1930s.

If passed, Creech's bill could result in shoppers paying the full 3 percent — or 4 percent in areas with a local tax — on some grocery store purchases, and the 1 percent lower rate on food items purchased.

Study Buying Outer Banks Land

By The Associated Press
A feasibility study on the purchase of all or part of the land on the Outer Banks from the Virginia state line almost to the town of Duck in Dare County, N. C., is under way by the federal government.

An official of Currituck County, N. C., said Monday that a real estate appraiser from the federal government already is checking land values in the county, the closest in North Carolina to the Virginia line.

The purchase is being studied by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service "as a last resort" to preserve the delicate environmental system of the area, which includes about 23 miles of beachfront.

The agency is considering the purchase because development of the land endangers the area's wildlife, especially birds, said James Pulliam, a deputy associate director of the Fish and Wildlife Service.

"There's a lot of development going on down there. If you get a lot of houses on land such as that, you get all the problems that go with it, such as waste disposal and roads," said Pulliam, who added:

"That could certainly have an impact on the marshes and the general environmental character of the area."

Pulliam said the director of the Fish and Wildlife Service will decide whether the government should buy the land some time after the October release of a government study on the land's environment.

"There are a lot of options open to us," said Pulliam. "One is buying all the land, some of which is developed and has homes. That would be really expensive."

He said another option is to purchase only the undeveloped parcels of land, "and the last option is to buy nothing at all."

If the federal government is to buy any of the land, Congress must appropriate the money, Pulliam said.

He added that the government might not have to buy any land if state and local authorities enact strict zoning laws to curtail development and protect the environment's balance of the land.

Bought Burial Lots Before The Killing

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — A man who authorities say killed his family then committed suicide last week had taken advantage of a cemetery sales campaign by buying two cemetery lots and vaults nine days before the murder-suicide.

David Walton Yount got the lots and vaults from Catawba Memorial Park, which contacted him through a random telephone sales campaign, said Brent Heffron, vice president of the cemetery.

"We went after him. He didn't come after us," Heffron said.

Sometime after dawn last Wednesday, the 33-year-old Yount shot his wife, Darlene, 29, and daughters Anna Danielle, almost 2, and Marissa Joy, 2 1/2 months. Yount then shot himself.

Nine days earlier, cemetery officials called and offered Yount a free lot if he would allow a sales representative to visit. Yount agreed.

Gary Hall, a counselor specializing in that type of sale for the cemetery, spent Monday evening, Jan. 8, at the Yount home about five miles east of Hickory.

Hall left with a check for $1,080 for one $350 lot and two vaults. Yount was given a second $350 lot as part of the sales campaign.

The check was dated Jan. 29 to give the Younts time to raise the money, Heffron said.

Heffron said Hall got no indication from the Younts that anything was wrong. Both children were present while the salesman was at the house with the oldest one climbing in his lap, Heffron said.

The Yount family was buried in three $350 lots, the infant buried with her mother, Heffron said. He added the post-dated check was returned to relatives and burial fees will be collected from the family estate.

Rescued Whale Caught In Net

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lt. John Lorentzen says his team went "a bit above and beyond the call of duty" in donning scuba gear and plunging into the icy water.

But, concedes Lorentzen, "It makes a whale of a story."

Saved was a 12-foot whale tangled in a fishing net.

The crew of Lorentzen's Los Angeles County lifeguard emergency boat, "Baywatch Cabrillo," found the pilot whale struggling for air as it thrashed about in the tangled net. About two dozen of the mammal's herdmates circled nearby.

Shelly Butler used a diving knife to free the whale Sunday.

Esc Reports Increase In Area Job Placements

A significant increase of job placements for the last three month period of 1978 compared to the same period in 1977 has been attributed to the wider use of the Employment Security Commission office in placing listing of openings.

James E. Hannan, manager of the local Employment Security Commission (ESC), said "the increase in job openings placed with the Greenville office can be attributed to the fact that more industries in the Pitt County area are using Employment Security Commission to screen and refer applicants for their consideration."

"There are also," Hannan added, "new industries locating in the area which have chosen to hire through the ESC."

During October, November and December, 1978, a total of 808 applicants were placed in jobs through the services of ESC, out of a total of 3,219 individuals interviewed.

For the same three month period in 1977, the number placed in jobs through ESC was 577, from an intake of 2,928 applications.

In the field of hiring veterans, in the three month period for 1978, 156 were placed on jobs from 384 original or renewed applications — as compared to 117 placed on jobs from 347 applicants in the 1977 comparable period.

The commission was set up by the 1978 General Assembly to determine the feasibility of a prepaid state health plan. Under a prepaid health plan, participants would pay a set rate for health care to an agency, which would pay all medical bills for the members, regardless of cost.

Arson Deaths

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Fires blamed on arsonists have killed 40 persons in northern New Jersey in six weeks, and police are seeking a man seen fleeing from the latest blaze that killed seven residents of a Jersey City tenement.

The fire Monday was the third since December in the tenement, two miles from the site of a Hoboken tenement fire Saturday that killed 21 persons. Bodies of the final two victims of the Hoboken fire were recovered Monday from the rubble of the building.

A dozen persons also were killed in a fire that destroyed a Newark tenement Dec. 7.

Dalai Lama Is Skeptical Exile

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Dalai Lama is skeptical about rumors his exile might soon be over. But he's willing to talk it over.

The Tibetan leader, considered a god-king in Tibet, said Monday of recent Chinese overtures about his return: "They have been doing that for years, but we have no official word."

But in an interview, the 43-year-old Dalai Lama reportedly said he would be glad to discuss Tibet with Chinese First Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-Peng, whom he called a little more liberal and sincere than other Chinese leaders.

Year And A Half Of Frustration Ended

PHOENIX (AP) — A year and a half of pure frustration has ended for Ben Crenshaw.

"It's been tough," he said, "watching everybody else in the world win. I got close a lot of times and it hurt, really hurt, to miss in those tournaments. Well, I worked awfully hard on my game. I've really worked at it. And, doggone it, I deserved to win this week."

The victory, his first since May 1977, came by a single shot in the twice-delayed, then abbreviated, 54-hole Phoenix Open.

And it came in typical Crenshaw fashion — out of the woods.

He'd given himself a 4-shot lead with a spectacular, 10-under-par 61 in Sunday's second round. No one caught him in the third and final round Monday, but Jay Haas, playing in front of Ben, dropped a 12-foot birdie putt on the last hole to cut the margin to 1.

Then it was up to Ben. He needed only a par 5 on the water-guarded finishing hole at the Phoenix Country Club to win it. And he almost let it get away.

He hooked his tee shot into the trees, a position with which he has become familiar over the years. His second shot was still behind the tree line, but he did have a shot to the green. Haas was standing behind the putting surface watching.

"He hit about the only shot he had out of the trees," Haas said. "He kept it low. When it rolled on the green, well, I didn't think much of my chances. Ben 2-putted from a long distance, maybe 30-40 feet, to win it with a final round of par 71 and a 199 total, 14 shots under par."

He claimed $33,750 from the total purse of $187,500, which had been trimmed down from $250,000 when two days of rain delayed the start of the tournament and forced officials to cut the event to 54 holes.

Haas closed with a 68 and was second at 200. Tom Kite, Crenshaw's teammate at the University of Texas at Austin, fired a blazing, 8-under-par 63 in the sunny weather and moved to third at 202.

The group at 203 included Lon Hinkle, Andy Bean, former U.S. Open champ Jerry Pate and Pat McGowan. Pate and Bean had 71s, Hinkle 68 and McGowan a 66 that included a back nine of 29.

John Mahafey matched par 71 and was tied at 208 with his World Cup teammate, U.S. Open champ Andy North, who had a final-round 72.

Crenshaw also won his way into the Tournament of Champions and the Masters.

"My No. 1 goal for the year was to win a tournament before the Masters. It feels good. I've worked awfully hard at it. You have to keep working, keep trying to improve," said the softly drawing Crenshaw.

Bob Lanier Overlooked

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

Bob Lanier's scarred knees bear witness to the nine long, hard years of meritorious service he has given pro basketball in general and the Detroit Pistons in particular.

He's played on good teams and bad ones, exciting teams and boring ones, and he's always lent a measure of class to the game. When the team around him was in turmoil, Lanier was one man you could rely on — for points and rebounds, for leadership, for courteous answers during post-game interviews, for unpublicized appearances before youth groups and charity fundraisers.

Now, in a bizarre bungle, Lanier has been left off the East team for the 29th annual National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

Lanier finished third among East centers in the fan balloting for starting positions in the game, to be played Feb. 4 at the Pontiac Silverdome, the Pistons' home court. And when the six reserves — chosen by a vote of conference coaches — were announced Monday, Lanier was not among them.

It is an insult — unintended, perhaps, but an insult nonetheless — to a man who deserves much better.

Lanier has been an all-star each of the past six seasons and was the most valuable player in the 1974 game. On statistics alone, he deserved to make the team again this year.

Ironically, the East coaches didn't select a backup man to starting center Moses Malone. Instead they named forwards Russell, Dandridge, Elvin Hayes of Washington and Larry Kenon of San Antonio, and guards Doug Collins of Philadelphia and Calvin Murphy of Houston.

There is still a chance Lanier might make the team. One of the 11 players chosen could get hurt over the next two weeks, and hopefully Lanier would be considered as a replacement.

If that doesn't happen, it would be a fitting gesture on the league's part to name Lanier an honorary host for the game. This could be the start of a tradition in which the NBA honors a man who has meant something special to pro basketball in the city in which the All-Star Game is being played.

Lanier isn't the only noteworthy absentee from the All-Star rosters.

Guard Lloyd Free of San Diego, the league's second-leading scorer, was not chosen for the West team. Forward Bernard King of New Jersey, No. 5 on the scoring list, failed to make the East squad.

Truck Robinson, last year's rebounding champion who was recently traded from New Orleans in the East to Phoenix in the West, is another absentee. And none of the league's assists leaders — Kevin Porter of Detroit, John Lucas of Golden State and Norm Nixon of Los Angeles — was picked.

Other fixtures who'll be missing include Rick Barry of Houston, Bob McAdoo of New York and Dave Cowens of Boston. There also won't be any rookies, the West coaches passing up Kansas City playmaker Phil Ford and instead choosing his backcourtmate, Otis Birdsong.

On the other hand, it's good to see little Calvin Murphy finally make the game. He's a class player who deserves the recognition.

Players chosen for the 29th annual National Basketball Association All-Star Game, to be played Feb. 4 at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich. Starters were chosen by fan balloting and reserves in voting among conference coaches.

Rozelle To Have A Say

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — In what amounts to a victory for the New England Patriots, Chuck Fairbanks' contract dispute with the National Football League team will be submitted to league arbitration.

Boulder District Court Judge Richard W. Dana granted on Monday a motion by Patriots attorneys for a stay in the current proceedings here pending arbitration by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Dana said the Boulder court would retain jurisdiction in the case and the right to review any such arbitration ruling.

In granting the motion, Dana held in abeyance a request by Fairbanks and the University of Colorado for an injunction that would prohibit the Patriots from interfering with Fairbanks' right to seek employment outside the NFL.

Fairbanks, who has four years left on his contract with the Patriots, intends to become the head coach at Colorado. But the Patriots have obtained a preliminary injunction from a federal judge in Boston preventing the coach from signing a contract with Colorado. A hearing is scheduled Thursday in Boston on the university's appeal of that ruling.

Charles Sullivan, Patriots vice president, said Monday in Boston that the arbitration "could be as early as this week, because Coach Fairbanks and Commissioner Rozelle will both be in Los Angeles in connection with the Pro Bowl."

"It could be there or next week when Fairbanks returns to Foxboro and Rozelle returns to New York," Sullivan added. Sullivan said the Patriots were pleased with Dana's ruling because "Fairbanks had agreed to an arbitration provision in his contract, and we believe the judge's decision sustains the provision."

Phoenix Open Victor PGA golfer Ben Crenshaw wears a blazer and holds a silver medallion given to him by the sponsoring Thunderbirds of Phoenix Country Club Monday after he won the Phoenix Open. Crenshaw posted scores of 67-61-71 for a 14-under total of 199 in the rain-shortened 54-hole tournament. (AP Laserphoto)

Davidson Shocks Deacs With 75-72 Upset Win

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest has pulled a couple of upsets this year, beating North Carolina and Maryland, but Davidson College pulled an upset of its own Monday when it beat the Deacons 75-72.

Davidson broke an 11-game losing streak with the win, and left the Deacons at 9-8 in the season. Wake Forest stands at 2-3 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"Defeat is a hard lesson, and we learned ours," said Wake Forest coach Carol Tacy following the game.

Said Wildcats coach Eddie Beidenbach, "It was encouraging that the kids didn't quit during the (losing) streak."

High scorer for the game was Davidson's John Gerdy with 35 points, 27 of them in the second half. The Deacons were led by Guy Morgan with 17.

Wake Forest went into the second half carrying a four point lead, but it didn't last long. Bryan Rowan put the score at 37-36 for the Wildcats on a layup with 18:31 remaining. The Deacons managed to get within one point four times after that, but Gerdy kept them at bay with his scoring. Twenty-eight of Gerdy's total points came from the field.

"At the start of the year, I knew we would be bad at times and good at times," said Tacy. "Our defense needs to be more aggressive at times, and Gerdy put us in a difficult situation in the second half."

Davidson found itself in foul trouble late in the second half, but it wasn't enough to daunt the Wildcats. It also made 70 percent of its shots from the field in the half, compared to Wake Forest's 36 percent.

No other ACC games were on the schedule Monday.

On tap tonight, East Carolina travels to No. 20 North Carolina State, and Navy goes to Maryland.

NFL Franchise Price Is Steal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average National Football League franchise is worth at least $30 million and will make a minimum of $3.5 million after taxes, says FANS, a sports consumer organization.

Peter Gruenstein, executive director of Fight to Advance the Nation's Sports, says in a 34-page report on the NFL's profitability that the generally accepted market value for an NFL franchise is about $20 million, even if one hasn't been sold recently.

And, he said, the next one to be sold will probably go for about $30 million.

Anti-Abortion Marchers Looking To Lawmakers

ABORTION PROTESTORS — Thousands of anti-abortion demonstrators gather at foot of Capitol Hill after a march from the White House Monday to protest a six-year-old Supreme Court decision. (AP Laserphoto)

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of anti-abortion groups, whose members marched on Capitol Hill by the tens of thousands, and supporters of legal abortion are taking their arguments into the halls of Congress.

"We demand that all abortionists stop the killing of babies," said Nellie Gray, president of the March to Life, which helped organize Monday's demonstration on the sixth anniversary of the Supreme Court decision to legalize abortion.

"We demand that our elected lawmakers uphold the right of women to choose safe, legal abortion," countered Karen Mulhauser, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League. "They must protect our Constitution from the attacks of those with the compulsory pregnancy mentality."

Both Miss Gray and Ms. Mulhauser vowed that members of Congress will hear personally from lobbyists for their opposing sides.

During Monday's demonstration, abortion foes marched along Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House to the Capitol in what its leaders called "a new wave of pro-life action." Thousands of school children and adults chanted "Life, Life!" They distributed photographs of dead fetuses and carried roses, their symbol for life.

"Abort the Court," said some of their signs. Others declared: "You're Killing our Future" and "Abortion is Murder — It Should be Illegal."

Mrs. Gray said there were 100,000 marchers. The U.S. Park Service police estimated the number at 60,000.

Smaller demonstrations — both for and against abortion — were held Monday and over the weekend in many state capitals and other cities.

Three groups demonstrated at the same time in Olympia, Wash. About 1,500 anti-abortionists paraded on the front steps of the Legislative Building — chanting, singing and praying for an end to the use of tax dollars to pay for abortions. They got into a shouting match with about 150 pro-abortionists.

At the same time, hundreds of people were packed inside the building, demanding continued government aid for abortions.

In Pittsburgh, an estimated 3,000 people paraded solemnly in an icy rain Saturday to protest the 1973 Supreme Court decision. The marchers walked behind three drummers and three pall bearers carrying a small white coffin.

Other demonstrations, some supporting the court's decision and some opposing it, were reported in Florida, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Massachusetts and Texas.

In Washington, Miss Gray said anti-abortionists "have a full legislative package headed by a constitutional amendment. We want no compromise legislation. We want to cut out all abortions."

Meanwhile, the National Organization for Women invited 40 major organizations on both sides of the abortion issue to meet Feb. 15 "to seek ways to lessen the need for abortion, to reduce the incidence of unwanted pregnancy and to end the polarization and violence that surround the abortion issue."

Shah Postpones Visit To U.S.

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

MARRAKECH, Morocco (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran has decided to postpone indefinitely his planned visit to the United States because of President Carter's apparent support for Ayatullah Khomeini, sources close to the monarch said today.

The shah and Empress Farah arrived in Morocco's winter capital Monday to a low-key welcome from King Hassan II. Moroccan officials said at the time the shah intended to remain in Morocco for about three days and then fly directly to the United States.

Members of the shah's entourage said there has been a change of plan, but it was not yet clear whether the shah intended to remain in Morocco or would move on to another country.

In Cairo, a spokesman for President Anwar Sadat said the Egyptian leader had invited the shah, who spent the first six days of his "vacation" with Sadat in Aswan, to return. The spokesman said the shah accepted and told Sadat "he would be glad to spend most of his holidays in Egypt because he considers himself among his family."

Several other countries are under consideration, the sources said, including Saudi Arabia, Britain and France. Switzerland, where the shah usually spent a winter vacation, has been ruled out because Swiss authorities advised him they could not provide the necessary security.

Asked why the shah put off his trip to the United States, where several members of his family are living, the sources said the shah was "rather disappointed" by President Carter's apparent support for Khomeini.

Khomeini, firebrand leader of Iran's Shiite moslem majority, played a crucial role from his Paris exile in forcing the shah to leave Iran. Khomeini is due to return to Iran Friday after nearly 15 years in exile.

More Viet And Laos Refugees Arrive To Live In California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 30 Vietnamese "boat people" and Laotian "land people" — fleeing communist regimes in war-ravaged Southeast Asia — have arrived in California, refugees destined for homes in the United States. "I am happy, excited," 40-year-old Prateuang Phosai of Laos, who spent nearly two years at a crowded refugee camp in Thailand, said as he arrived with his wife and six children at Los Angeles International Airport Monday.

Prateuang said he fled with his family across the border to Thailand to escape Laos' Communist regime, and that life in the refugee camp was difficult. But he added, "No matter how bad it was, life in the camp still was better than in Laos. Our house was small, but we still had a lot of freedom."

Prateuang and other Laotians who cross the river Mae Nam Mun to Thailand call themselves "land people," as opposed to Vietnam's "boat people," who flee across the China Sea. The Laotian refugees cross the river, more than a half-mile wide at some points, by swimming or in small banana-shaped boats.

The 20 boat people who flew into Los Angeles Monday were the second group of survivors from the freighter Hai Hong to arrive in the United States. More than 2,500 Vietnamese refugees were crowded aboard the aged freighter as it went from country to country looking for a nation that would let them land.

The plight of the boat people brought outpourings of sympathy from around the world and offers of sponsorship.

The Vietnamese refugees, sponsored by the New York-based U.S. Catholic Conference, were to settle in Los Angeles, Santa Ana and San Diego. The Laotians, sponsored by a coalition of the Catholic Conference, the International Rescue Committee and other agencies, were destined for Kansas, Georgia and Santa Ana.

Thong Sy Chen of the International Rescue Committee claimed international attention focused on the boat people has delayed efforts by Laotian expatriates to find sponsors to help them leave overcrowded refugee camps in Thailand.

"Laotian refugees have had to suffer a lot," he said. "Everyone has concentrated on helping the Vietnamese boat people, even though there are now 100,000 Laotians crowded into Thai camps."

Officials in Hong Kong have said that the boat people are not being processed before other refugees.

School Board Workshop Set

A workshop with public input on a proposed policy relative to attendance areas for grades kindergarten through six in the Greenville City Schools was held Monday night.

Commenting on the tenor of the meeting, Supt. of City Schools Glenn Cox said "it looks like, based on recommendations that have been made, that any changes for the next school year in attendance areas will be kept to an absolute minimum. "Basically," Cox added, "I feel the policy will remain as it is, with a few changes of areas or assignments to meet guidelines applicable to maintaining the best possible racial ratio."

Cox said that following comments of parents at the meeting, especially parents with children in Eastern Elementary School, that the board asked him and his staff to take a close look at concerns expressed by these parents.

The policy on attendance areas for the city schools will be on the agenda for action at the Feb. 19 regular meeting.

Workshops, and also a second Monday night meeting, are being held regularly by the school board to provide input opportunities by interested persons on topics to be acted on by the board. sm1009p09sw08s100rbf1
