Bakhtiar Says Carter Welcomes Teng No Resigning To 'Common Journey'

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar rejected Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's latest demand that he resign and called off a peacemaking trip to Paris after 30 persons were reported killed and more than 300 were wounded in Tehran's worst violence in months. Bakhtiar told a news conference Khomeini's assertion that he must resign before the 78-year-old religious leader would receive him was unacceptable. But "doors will stay open," he said, indicating that contacts would continue between his representatives and the ayatollah's. The prime minister said Saturday he would fly to Paris to try to make peace with the holy man who from exile led the year-long civil rebellion that forced Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to leave the country two weeks ago.

In Paris, one Khomeini aide said the ayatollah would receive Bakhtiar, while another said he would have to resign first. Later, Khomeini told reporters: "If Bakhtiar is on the side of the angels, let him resign and come and see me as a free man, like everybody else." The 78-year-old priest, whose title of ayatollah is equivalent to that of bishop or archbishop, again attacked Bakhtiar as a "puppet and agent of the shah," and repeated his claim that Bakhtiar's government is "illegal" because it was appointed by the "illegal" shah.

The government has closed all Iran's airports indefinitely to block the return from exile of the spiritual leader of the nation's 32 million Shiite Moslems.

Thousands of protesters, angered by Bakhtiar's refusal to let Khomeini come home to convert the nation into an Islamic republic run by himself, flooded the streets of Tehran Sunday chanting "Death to Bakhtiar!"

One large group, hurling gasoline-filled firebombs, tried to storm a police headquarters. Troops rushed to the scene and opened fire with .30-caliber machine guns mounted on the backs of trucks.

Military officials claimed the rioters were armed with machine guns and grenades, but reporters who witnessed the three-hour battle said they saw none.

Rioters dived for cover as bullets slammed into walls over their heads. Some were hit by ricochets. Ambulances raced back and forth from the riot scene at Esfand Square ferrying the dead and wounded to hospitals.

Press reports today said at least 30 persons were killed in Tehran and more than 300 wounded.

Military authorities said one soldier was killed and five other security men wounded. Doctors told reporters that one soldier killed himself after slaying his commanding officer, a colonel. The report could not be confirmed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter welcomed Vice Premier Teng Hsiang-ping to the White House today with the promise of "a common journey" as they began talks on bolstering the new relationship between the United States and China.

"On behalf of the people of my country, I welcome you, Mr. Vice Premier," Carter said under windy, overcast skies during the ceremony on the White House South Lawn, which was twice disrupted by anti-Teng demonstrators.

"Today we take another step in the historic normalization of relations. We share in the hope which springs from reconciliation and the anticipation of a common journey," the president said.

Teng, reading his speech in Chinese, responded that "We share the sense of being on an historic mission. Sino-U.S. relations are at a new beginning and the world is at a new turning point."

Teng warned that "the factors making for war are visibly growing" in the world. He and Carter both expressed hope that normal relations between their two countries would help preserve world peace.

Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, met Teng and his wife, Cho Lin, at the White House South Portico at 10 a.m. to a fanfare of Army trumpets.

Teng responded to the crowd's applause by applauding back. Then he followed Carter down a short receiving line that included Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Vice President Walter Mondale and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The president and the vice premier and their wives mounted a platform and stood at attention as the U.S. Army band played the two countries' national anthems and cannons in the distance fired a 19-gun salute, the tribute accorded to a head of government.

The ceremony was witnessed by about 1,000 reporters and guests inside the White House grounds and untold millions on television around the world.

In front of Teng were arrayed honor guards representing the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. To the sides were the invited spectators, waving small Chinese and American flags.

Several hundred yards to the south, outside the wrought iron fence, some demonstrators were standing, their banners barely readable to anyone without field glasses. Most were in Chinese. One, in English, said "Taiwan for the Taiwanese."

The two leaders had two private meetings on their schedule today, their first personal encounter.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

LEFT TURN?

I have been informed that the Greenville Rescue Squad must (on orders from City Hall) turn left on exiting the station after a call, even though the shorter way may be to turn right. However, if the call is within two blocks, they may turn right. The reason for this rule seems to be to avoid disturbing persons in City Hall. H.T.

Hotline talked to Fire Chief Jenness Allen who said that the rule was made for safety reasons and not to keep from disturbing persons in City Hall.

The rescue squad is able to avoid the large pedestrian crossing at the intersection of W. Fifth St. and Evans St. downtown by turning left instead of right after exiting the station, according to Allen.

As a result, by turning left, the rescue squad is able to take Reade Circle and avoid that section.

"It had nothing to do with noise," Allen said. "It was made due to a safety factor of the rescue squad going through Five Points where we had a lot of old people and small children walking."

As a result, Allen said the rescue squad was told to answer all calls on E. Fifth St. by turning left and taking Reade Circle instead.

In addition, he added that fire engines and all other emergency vehicles, take that same route during emergencies.

FOUND A PAINT SPRAYER

The employees at Shell Pantry, located at 101 W. Greenville Blvd. in front of Union Carbide, are anxious to locate the owner of an electric paint sprayer left in the parking lot around two weeks ago. The owner may call 756-3348 or come by the store to reclaim the lost article.

Storm Strands Skiers

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — A blizzard-like storm that brought heavy snows and gusty winds to the northwest mountains over the weekend left at least 130 skiers stranded Saturday at Beech Mountain.

Avery and Watauga counties were hardest hit by the storm, which dumped nine to 12 inches of snow and created drifts of up to three feet.

"The wind is swirling the snow and causing zero visibility," a Watauga County sheriff's deputy said Sunday. "Our department is behind the courthouse and I can't see the courthouse. Everything is white."

Counties to the south and east of Watauga and Avery had only one or two inches of snow, but winds gusted up to 50 miles per hour. Seven northwest counties reported poor visibility and hazardous roads during the weekend.

The Highway Patrol advised motorists Sunday to use snow tires or chains for safe driving on main roads throughout the northwestern area. Watauga and Avery county authorities recommended that motorists drive on secondary roads in the two counties only in cases of emergencies.

Demonstrators Protest Teng Visit To U.S.

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A man and woman were arrested today after they shouted protests at Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiang-ping during welcoming ceremonies on the South Lawn of the White House.

Outside the White House grounds, an estimated 500 demonstrators waved signs and chanted slogans in noisy, peaceful protest of the visit of the Chinese leader.

The two who were arrested, a woman identified as Sonia J. Ransom, 26, of Seattle, Wash., and a man identified as Keith Kozimoto, 28, of New York City, were led away by Secret Service agents and turned over to District of Columbia police. A White House spokesman said they were charged with disorderly conduct.

The Secret Service said both were carrying press credentials. Officials were trying to determine how they got the credentials.

Walter Carter, a spokesman for the Revolutionary Communist Party, said his organization claimed responsibility for disrupting the ceremonies.

Meanwhile, a crowd estimated at 300 people and seeking independence for the island of Taiwan, demonstrated on the Ellipse behind the White House. They chanted slogans and waved banners in opposition to both the Peking and Taiwan governments.

Container Cargo

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A 515-foot freighter on its maiden voyage arrived in Morehead City this morning to begin loading and unloading containers.

The T.F.L. Democracy, owned by Trans Freight Lines, arrived from Norfolk, Va. The 75 containers being unloaded were picked up in Hamburg, Germany. The ship will take on 71 containers in Morehead City.

The cargo was handled by a seldom-used container crane that has been the subject of a controversy over its location. The state Ports Authority voted last week to move the crane from Morehead City to the busier state port at Wilmington.

The port at Morehead City has operated at a deficit but area residents have asked the Ports Authority to leave the crane in Morehead City. Spokesmen for an area group said enough new business would be generated this year to make it feasible to leave the crane at its present location.

Pope Rebuffs Militancy In Social Justice Effort

By ISAACA LEVI
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II speaks to Mexico's Indians today after cautioning his priests in Latin America to keep the Roman Catholic Church out of politics and seek social justice by spiritual means.

Opening a bishops' conference in Puebla that will chart the course of the church in Latin America for the next decade, the 58-year-old pontiff on Sunday rebuffed militant progressives advocating a "theology of liberation" and criticized those who see Jesus "as a revolutionary, as the subversive of Nazareth."

Reading in Spanish, he told the third decennial conference of Latin American bishops their meeting was "not a symposium of experts, not a parliament of politicians, not a congress of scientists or technologists."

The pope said the bishops' mission is to tend to the spiritual aspirations of man. He said they must continue to fight for more equal distribution of wealth and for human rights. But he said the church must shun violence and could not be wedded to any political system.

"Whatever the miseries or suffering that afflict man," he said, "it is not through violence, the interplay of power and political systems, but through the truth concerning man that he journeys toward a better future."

The pope also reaffirmed his predecessors' opposition to divorce, abortion and artificial contraception.

The bishops responded with polite applause.

The pope had spoken similarly in another speech Saturday, telling a gathering of priests and members of religious orders: "You are spiritual guides who try to orient and improve the hearts of the faithful. You are not social leaders, political leaders or employees of temporal power."

As the bishops began their conference, a group of militant progressive priests and laymen opened a "dissenters' conference" at a parish church in Puebla to air demands that the church take an active part in the fight against oppressive governments in Latin America.

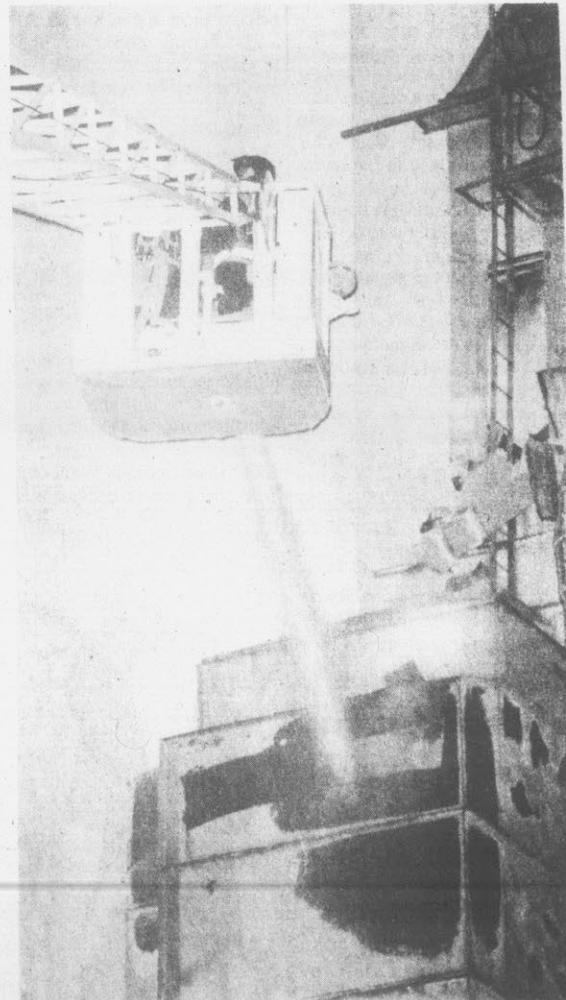

The rebels rejected the pope's directive to abstain from political action, saying he "didn't consult with priests who know the poor." They also condemned the working paper drawn up as the basis for discussion at the bishops' conference, saying it was produced by conservative members of the church hierarchy.

Police estimated that more than 10 million Mexicans turned out to cheer and wave as the pope traveled in an open car from Mexico City to Puebla, 75 miles south of the capital. The crowd filled three of the highway's four lanes, and the papal car moved down the fourth lane at a snail's pace, delaying the pope's schedule.

Today, after a visit to a children's hospital in Mexico city, the pope was to fly to an Indian village outside Oaxaca to address 500,000 Indians from about 30 tribes in the mountains of southern Mexico and northern Guatemala.

Elevator Fire

PUMPING WATER — Greenville firemen use the department's smuckle to apply water to a fire at Fred Webb Grain Co. on North Greene Street early Sunday morning. The fire in the elevator complex resulted in heavy fire and water damage and moderate smoke damage, according to fire officials. Firefighters were called to the scene at 2:27 a.m. and remained at the grain storage facility for 11 hours. Police investigators said the blaze resulted when a dryer overheated. # Storm Over Ethics Of A White House Secretary

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld can't understand what the flap over the book is all about. Betty Ford called it a "betrayal."

Ron Nessen, former White House press secretary, called it "tasteless and trashy." First lady Rosalynn Carter called it "unacceptable" for White House staffers to write about the private lives of first families.

Mrs. Weidenfeld did just that. And she finds herself the center of a storm over ethics. As press secretary to former first lady Betty Ford, Mrs. Weidenfeld kept a diary about her experiences in the White House. Her subsequent, recently published book, "The First Lady's Lady," offers a glimpse of power struggles within the White House. It also reveals details of the Ford family's private life. And these tidbits have kept tongues wagging for months. "This accusation that I've written a kiss-and-tell book bewilders me," she said as she curled up on the chocolate-colored corduroy sofa in her Georgetown living room. "Anecdotes taken in context show how life works. Taken out of context, it's gossip because they show no insight. "I didn't understand it. I still don't understand it. Why has there been such commotion?" The commotion — in columns, editorials, television news shows and cocktail party conversations — focuses on whether she betrayed confidences of the Ford family when she wrote that:

—Daughter Susan was dating a married man while she was living in the White House and that her mother knew it.

—Mrs. Weidenfeld learned that the Ford's son Jack planned to smoke marijuana and advised him to "get stoned" before he went to a rock concert rather than during the concert itself where he might be seen.

—Son Steve sneaked a date out of the Queen's Bedroom one morning as an ABC crew waited in the hall to begin a televised tour of the White House.

Q. Did you betray any confidences?
A. "No, not at all. It's a very complimentary book because it's a warm and loving look at the family."

As Mrs. Weidenfeld tells it, she has written a book about what happens to ordinary folks when they get in positions of power. "It helps you understand all administrations," she said. "And administrations aren't that different. There's a White House mentality. It's about how people grow and change...how they have to grow up on stage which is a very tough thing to do."

Asked why she chose to describe a tipsy Steve Ford taking a girl he met that night "on a weaving tour of the White House" before he and the young woman spent the rest of the night together in the Queen's Bedroom, Mrs. Weidenfeld said, "Now that's a telling story."

"We had lost the election. People in the White House were throwing caution to the wind. It was his home. Most people don't have a camera crew outside their bedroom door. What man at 21 wouldn't do the same thing?"

Mrs. Weidenfeld says the public has conflicting feelings about children who grow up in the White House. "They want them to be regular kids, but they don't want them to be. I portrayed them as real."

By all reports, Mrs. Ford hasn't exactly warmed to the portrayal. "She called after the stories came out," Mrs. Weidenfeld said. "She hadn't read the White House." Mrs. Weidenfeld said. "I just provided the atmosphere to bring out her real personality. You want the way they really are to come across to the public."

"The White House puts people in an unnatural situation. Who else is followed by several hundred reporters wherever they go? I was trying to make her more relaxed. It wasn't like some Madison Avenue people selling cereal."

The bitter feuds and turf battles Mrs. Weidenfeld described between those who work in the White House West Wing which houses the president's staff, and those in the East Wing who work for the first lady, exist in all administrations, she said.

"There's a boy's side and a girl's side. It's the way the West Wing perceives the East Wing — that women should be seen and not heard. They provided no support. And it's hard to get the job done without that support. It's hard to be supportive of what's going on in the West Wing if you don't know."

Mrs. Weidenfeld says she has no regrets about her book. "I'm not sorry," she said. "It doesn't hurt them at all. The book isn't unfair. The stories about it are. I think it's the most flattering picture that will ever be done of the Ford family because that's the way they are."

No Regrets After First Year

57 YEARS APART — Mark Goodman, 21, holds onto his bride of one year, who is also his stepgrandmother, Ray Goodman, 78, in their suburban Los Angeles home. (AP Laserphoto)

By BILL GARDNER
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a year of marriage, 21-year-old Mark Goodman says his parents are "learning to accept the situation" and getting used to his new bride — his 78-year-old stepgrandmother, Ray.

A year ago today, Goodman married Ray Goodman — a former chorus girl and his father's widowed stepmother.

"It's been one exciting year," Goodman said Sunday. "No regrets, that's for sure."

Many people — especially Goodman's parents — looked on the romance with disfavor a year ago when the couple, then living in England, announced wedding plans. British law forbade a marriage between a man and his grandfather's widow, so the couple came to Southern California and married secretly.

His parents, who live in this area, did not attend the wedding but Goodman says they are getting used to the idea now and visit frequently.

"I think they are learning to accept the situation," he said.

"Time did a lot of things and we get along fine now. Mother and father are friendly." Goodman likes to play down the importance of age in their relationship. "We love each other. We're happy. That's what counts, isn't it?"

Goodman works for a securities firm selling stocks and bonds. He says he and Ray — he calls her G.R. for Gramma Ray — do some of the things young couples do, like disco dancing, and in some ways their life is more like that of older couples.

"I'd say we're somewhere in between," he said. "A combination of young couple and old couple."

G.R. gets a kick out of going to the disco — "she's unbelievable" — but Goodman admits they do "raise a few eyebrows."

The couple lives in a large apartment complex in the northwestern suburbs of Los Angeles about 10 miles from Goodman's parents.

In the evenings, they frequently watch television and play cards or visit with a few friends. They are jealous of their privacy and he said he plans to change their phone number "to make it inaccessible" even though their current number is unlisted.

"It's been a heck of a year, and this next year's going to be even better," Goodman said.

Mrs. Goodman was born in south London. She was the second wife of Mark's grandfather.

When asked about a future love life, the Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, quoted Goodman last year as saying, "This is love, but it's a very, very special type of love...I think sex is a weakness."

Mrs. Goodman said to a question about sex, "I don't think that's so very necessary."

She and Goodman lived together in London before they were married.

"I know people might think he is marrying for money," Mrs. Goodman said then. "How wrong they are. Neither of us has any."

Messages To Jonestown Said To Order Murder Of Relatives

Mansion Reception Week's Big Event

By Rep. Sam D. Bundy
N. C. House of Representatives
The big social event of the week was the Governor's Reception at the Mansion, at which time all members of the General Assembly and their spouses were invited for an evening of fun and fellowship. Some 300 persons attended the social affair.

Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet. It was a fine affair. The highlight of the week of Jan. 29-Feb. 2 will be the Governor's Address on Crime Control at a joint session Monday evening, Jan. 29. See you next week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has transcripts of radio messages from Jonestown apparently telling Peoples Temple followers in Georgetown, Guyana, to kill a group of 10 concerned relatives who had accompanied Rep. Leo Ryan there. The Washington Post reported today.

The messages were sent last Nov. 18, just hours before Ryan, D-Calif., and four others were killed at the Port Kaituma airstrip and the Rev. Jim Jones and more than 900 of his followers died in a mass suicide-murder at the Jonestown commune. Post correspondent Charles A. Krause said in a dispatch from Georgetown.

None of the 10 relatives, who stayed behind when Ryan went to the commune, was killed. The Post quoted unnamed sources as saying the FBI has evidence the messages were sent by Jones or one of his top aides.

It said an American short-wave radio operator in Georgetown copied down the coded messages, although he didn't understand them, and the FBI later decoded them using a Peoples Temple codebook.

The Post said the messages were received at Peoples Temple headquarters in Georgetown, probably by Sharon Amos, one of the cult's leaders. She and her three children were later found dead at the headquarters, their throats slashed.

Jones' son, Stephen Jones, and Charles Beikman, a commune member, have been charged with murder in the Amos killings.

Ryan, a group of reporters and relatives of some of the cult members had gone to Guyana to check reports that some Jonestown residents were being mistreated and kept from leaving.

The Post said the unidentified radio operator had inadvertently learned the frequency used by the Peoples Temple and decided to listen in on the conversations because he knew Rep. Ryan was in Jonestown.

When the operator sensed apparent trouble, largely because of the urgency with which the messages were being sent, he wrote down some of the conversations, even though he could not decipher what they meant, the newspaper said.

Pat's Pointers

Knit a tri-color afghan in bold, bright contrasts or in softly blending shades with knitting worsted yarn. It is worked throughout with only knit and slip stitches in a fascinating but surprisingly simple pattern stitch. Directions are written with the beginner in mind, without the usual abbreviations.

your request for Leaflet No. PK-524 with 60 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order a kit containing Red Heart Wintuk Yarn and the instruction leaflet by sending check or money order for $23.00 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Price includes shipping charges. Please specify your choice of the following coloring combinations: Coffee, rust and ecru; dark and light green with pale yellow; dark and light blue with white.

DEAR READERS: Why not make 1979 the year you widen your knitting horizons by learning a number of new pattern stitches? Use your odds and ends of leftover yarns to make sample swatches and then keep the swatches along with instructions in a notebook or file folder for future reference.

You can later use the notebook or file as a design source for creating your own originals. Make notes as you go as to the needle size, gauge and type of yarn used.

When you find pattern stitches you particularly enjoy, you might want to later use them as an all-over design or as panels of pattern in an afghan, sweater or coat.

For starters, here is a very simple pattern stitch with many uses. Worked in a solid color with fine yarns, it would make a lovely carriage cover or beautiful lacy sweater. In heavier yarns, you could make scarves, caps, sweaters or afghans. It makes an interesting "zig-zag" stripe pattern if you alternate four or more rows of different colors—a good way to use leftovers or odd dye lot yarns!

The pattern is worked on a multiple of 7 stitches—that is, cast on any number of stitches evenly divisible by seven. For your practice piece, cast on 21 or 28 stitches. Purl the first row. For row two, work as follows: knit 2 stitches together, knit 1, yarnover, knit 1, yarnover, knit 1, slip 1 stitch, pass the slipped stitch over the knitted stitch. Repeat the steps between asterisks all across the row.

These two rows are repeated over and over for the desired length. Although usually slipped stitches are slipped purwise, the effect is better in this pattern if you slip the stitch knitwise.

For the beginners, I might explain that to slip a stitch knitwise, you insert the tip of the right hand needle into the first stitch on the left needle as if you were going to knit it, but just pass it from the left to the right needle. To slip purwise means that you insert the right needle into the stitch as if you were going to purl it.

Some of these instructions are sometimes phrased in a different way. You might be instructed to "slip as if to knit" or "slip as if to purl." Either way, it means the same thing.

If you are going to use this as a striped pattern, I find it best to introduce the new color at the beginning of a purl row. In changing color at the beginning of a row, I do not attempt to tie on the new yarn before starting that row.

I simply drop the color in use, pick up a strand of the next color and purl the first and succeeding stitches with it. I do not tie the two ends together until I have worked two or more rows. Working in this way, I can tie the two ends so that the first and last stitches of the two rows have the same tension as the other edge stitches.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints, and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

Sarah Jenkins told of activities of the Safety Committee and gave a report on the "Vial of Life" Project. Bosses night will be held Feb. 23. Boss of the Year and Women of the Year will be named by the group.

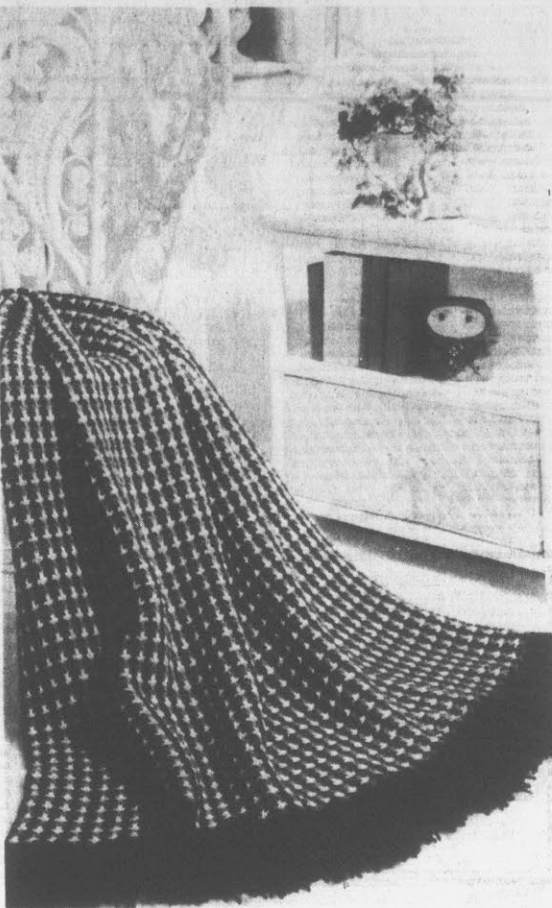

The meeting was conducted by President Audrey Stillwell.

Calls Can Put His Career On Hold

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years you have advised wives not to phone their husbands at work unless it's absolutely necessary. I disagree.

Nothing brightens a father's day like hearing, "Hi, Dada," from his 2-year-old son whom he hasn't seen for two days because he's had to work overtime.

As for management complaining because it wastes company time, management would be wise to encourage 10-minute "sunshine" calls. It does wonders for their employees' morale.

However, there should be a few rules: Emphasize that your call is not an emergency so your husband isn't interrupted in the middle of something important; if he doesn't work near a phone, put a quarter in his lunchbox so he can call you.

Also, never tell him what the kids did wrong or anything that might upset him. Keep it light and cheery. He'll love it. My husband does.

BETTE M.

DEAR BETTE: Your husband may love your "sunshine calls," but I'll bet his boss doesn't. In business, time is money. Say your husband makes $6 an hour and you babble away with him for 10 minutes a day, that's $1 out of the boss's pocket. If he has 1,000 employees, each making $6 an hour, and each taking 10 minutes a day to discuss domestic trivia, it costs the boss $1,000 a day!

If you MUST chat daily, let hubby call you on his lunch hour. A guy who's on the phone is not on the job—unless he's a bookie.

Speculation Two Years Early

The presidential election won't be held until 1980, but already the speculation is underway. In fact the Republican Party has its first serious, announced candidate in John B. Conally. The former Democratic governor of Texas, now a Republican, announced his candidacy Wednesday. Despite his stature in the party and his political resiliency, Conally is not a shoo-in for the GOP nomination. There are luminaries like Ronald Reagan, Gerald Ford, Sen. Howard Baker and Sen. Robert Dole who are all considered possibilities for seeking the nomination. Then of course, there is the matter of the White House currently being held by Democrat Jimmy Carter, who is eligible for another term, and also the possibility of a Democratic challenge by Sen. Ted Kennedy, or others. It's a long, long road to the position of president of the United States. John Conally has taken the first step, however, in officially announcing his candidacy. Some political strategists would say he has moved too soon, that he is leaving too much time for opponents to throw at him. Conally evidently believes otherwise. He has survived some tumultuous political times and the months ahead will reveal how astute he is with this move.

Five-Day Selling Week Is Unwelcome

Tobacco markets could return to a five-day selling week this year if a proposed cut in numbers of government tobacco graders is approved. For a number of years sales have been on a four-day basis with Friday used as a clean-up day by warehouses. Needless to say, the proposed cut was greeted negatively by warehousemen in that they will face additional expense since workers would have to be in the warehouses on Saturday.

The four-day sales week has worked well for the tobacco industry and it seems a shame to change it to make minuscule budgetary cuts.

Teen Emancipation Bill

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There are times when a teenager in North Carolina would be better off free from parental control and supervision, and the law ought to allow a way to achieve that freedom, members of the Juvenile Code Revision Committee feel.

An Emancipation Act is included among the numerous recommendations put forth by that group in a recent report to Gov. Jim Hunt and members of the General Assembly.

North Carolina presently has no law allowing a youngster to declare freedom from his or her parents, but some district court judges have been permitting such action by court order anyway.

The idea that a child can get legal backing to escape parental supervision is foreign to many citizens, and it is expected that the proposed legislation will run into considerable debate and opposition. "I think this provision would be used very rarely if it were in the law," says George F. Bason, Wake County judge who chaired the study committee.

At 16
Actually, only a two-year period in the life of an individual are involved. The proposal would apply only to youngsters at least 16 years old. Adulthood is now achieved at 18 years of age, when a person automatically is legally free from parental control.

Bason said he can imagine several instances in which a child should be legally free from the parents. "Suppose a young girl has become pregnant. The father wishes to marry her, and he is an adult. The girl must have parental consent, which is not forthcoming.

"Now it seems to me better to allow court consideration of emancipation which would allow this marriage than to force the bastardization of a child," Bason said.

Other potential instances would include a child living with parents who are abusive; who are mentally or emotionally unstable and causing the child grief; who are restraining the child from major life decisions and actions which appear beneficial to the youngster.

BILL NOBLITT

The key provisions of the proposed law demand that the young person seeking emancipation must be both willing and capable of caring for himself.

The petition for emancipation would require a court hearing, and the teenager could be subject to examination by experts to evaluate his mental or physical condition.

The judge would have to determine whether freedom would be best for the juvenile.

his ability to function as an adult, employment and educational status and living arrangements.

Judgment
Bason explained that the entire process "presupposes good judgment on the part of the court in granting such petitions."

If a final decree of emancipation is awarded, the youngster assumes all the same legal rights of an adult: to sue and to be sued, enter into contracts including marriage contracts, and to "transact business as if he were an adult."

The parents are relieved of all duties and obligations to the child as well, and the decree would be "irrevocable."

The proposed law would also provide that even though emancipated, the juvenile would continue his rights to inherit from the parents, and that parental obligation to support the youngster would resume should he become handicapped.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Jack Kemp And 1980

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — On Super Bowl weekend in Miami, when thousands of other football fans there were intent on the pursuit of pleasure, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and his closest supporters engaged in sober discussions that could well transform Republican presidential politics.

As a result of the Miami meetings, Kemp was advised to run for president in 1980 and forgo the more modest, more realistic goal of the U.S. Senate. Kemp promptly left for a Western states speaking tour, followed by some skiing and intense contemplation. Within another week, he will likely decide whether to name an "exploratory" committee for president — or throw himself fully into the Senate race.

forgetting about the presidency.

All this is unpleasant news for Republican presidential front-runner Ronald Reagan. His smoothly organized, highly effective visit to Washington was attempting to create an aura of inevitability for the Republican nomination. Reagan's goal is no less than withdrawal of all other hopefuls. What's more, Reagan has been counting on Kemp as a supporter, not a competitor.

But what was said in Miami behind closed doors Super Bowl weekend reflects lingering Republican unease about the inevitability of Reagan. Far less concerned about Reagan's ideology than his electability, some Republican politicians have been quietly seeking an alternative. Their doubts about all other possibilities led to widespread talk last summer and early fall that only young Jack Kemp possessed the needed acceptability to Republicans and appeal to all voters.

Such talk was squelched after last November's election by Kemp himself. He sounded full speed ahead for a Senate campaign in New York, whether or not liberal Republican Sen. Jacob Javits seeks a fifth term. After a pleasant lunch between Kemp and Reagan in Los Angeles early in January, Reagan insiders were convinced Kemp would run for the Senate as a Reagan-for-president booster.

But this was in part a smokescreen to temporarily shield Kemp from presidential politics. Key advisers had not given up. An example: Jeffrey Bell, 1976 Reagan presidential campaign staffer and 1978 Republican Senate nominee in New Jersey, has kept preaching Kemp over Reagan as the Republican savior.

That set the scene for the annual Super Bowl gathering of Kemp's friends and political backers (including some California congressmen supposedly pledged to Reagan). A former star quarterback, Kemp provides his guests scarce game tickets (on a Dutch treat basis). The weekend has become a reunion, attended by about 140 persons, including wives, this year.

They did not just accidentally join political bull sessions at the bar or around the swimming pool. Rather, a series of meetings was carefully planned with a single-item agenda: Jack Kemp's 1980 plans. At a private home and two Miami hotels, meetings with and without Kemp present were held all weekend. It ended with a session between the congressman and about 15 insiders.

The advice to Kemp was virtually unanimous: it is possible to start now and catch Reagan, with substantial support inside the Republican party. We want you to run, but you should not unless you determine that a 44-year-old ex-professional athlete would feel confident in the Oval Office.

The advisers also stressed there is no more time for delay. Political operatives who want to work for Kemp are advising they will have to go elsewhere unless at least a

Dick And Teng Meet

WASHINGTON — Before anyone gets too excited about ex-President Richard Nixon being invited to dinner at the White House, I would like to point out that Vice-Premier Teng required to see him, and therefore the decision was not President Carter's alone. No one knows what Nixon and Teng will talk about but I'm going to guess. NIXON: Mr. Vice-Premier, is it true that you were one of the leading political figures of the People's Republic and then you were downgraded and sent into exile? TENG: That is true. The Gang of Four ganged up on me and told Mao I was a counter-revolutionary-running-capitalist dog. I was in utter disgrace. NIXON: I know the feeling. How much did you get for your memoirs?

ART BUCHWALD

TENG: Nothing. My name was not permitted to be mentioned in the press. The only place you could read about me was on wall posters which vilified me morning, noon and night.

NIXON: What about television? Did David Frost do a series of interviews with you? TENG: I tell you I was a non-person. Mao hated me as did the students and the peasants and the factory workers. The Eastern establishment Peking media would not write one word of truth about me.

NIXON: You mean you went through all that hell and didn't make a dime on it? For heaven's sake. Why didn't you get a literary agent? TENG: You don't seem to understand, Mr. President. In China when you are forced to leave office you give up all literary and theatrical rights to your alleged crimes. Even your forced confession is considered in the public domain. You can't get 10 yuan for it.

NIXON: I never heard of anything like that. All of us in public life make mistakes, but we should be compensated or we'll never learn from them.

TENG: Mao never saw it that way. Once you were on his enemies list you couldn't do anything right as far as he was concerned. He had 2 million people in Peking screaming for my head because I opposed the Cultural Revolution. I managed to hide out until the heat blew over, but it was close.

NIXON: Didn't they give you a secretary, an office and Secret Service men when they forced you to resign?

TENG: You have to be joking. I was lucky they didn't (Continued on page 5)

Think, Drink U.S.A.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — There's an important rule of thumb — or rather of stomach — when dining out in French restaurants or aboard French cruise ships: never order anything "a la Americaine."

French chefs tend to blame their mistakes on the Americans, figuring that a nation bred on popcorn and potato chips can stomach anything.

Thus chicken breasts sauted in butter with finely chopped truffles and garnished with asparagus tips, if they turn out right, are glorified on the menu as "Supreme de Volaille Marechal." If the butter burns or the truffles get ruffled, the maitre de cuisine in the toque blanche, the big white hat, writes them off as "Breast of Chicken a la Americaine."

But when it comes to drinking in strange climes beyond the continental shelf, quite the opposite is true. The words "American Bar," repeated endlessly across the Continent, into the Steppes of Asia and beyond, are a lighthouse signaling rescue at long last from the follies of barmen untutored in the fine art of the truly dry martini.

The Americans brought the cocktail to Europe, our "Lafayette, we are here" gesture of gratitude for the English rib roast, French filet mignon, Italian pasta and other blessings heaped on our shores from abroad.

Unfortunately, the skills involved in stirring a decent dram a la Americaine have not been widely copied in foreign parts, despite three generations of expatriates shouting themselves sacre bleu in the face to proclaim the sacred formula of six or seven to one. In France, even in the best places, when you order a martini, you are still apt to get a goblet of dry white Vermont. In Italy, they bring you a sweetish red concoction that would bring an oath to the parched lips of W.C. Fields.

In England, they know enough to put in the gin, rarely in the right proportion, and they have been wary of ice (Continued on page 5)

To the editor:
In regards to the Public Forum published Jan. 24, 1979, I feel that the readers were misled to the point of obscurity. The gentleman who was prompted to write the article failed to mention that he has not been associated with the Greenville Rescue Squad for over 14 years and his retirement from the Fire Department has put him out of touch with the real problems between the GRS and the GFD. He also stated that "we citizens of Greenville should leave all decisions of IMPORTANCE to the professionals in the Fire Department." This is just another example of how the Rescue Squad has been left out in making decisions which concern their future. Another point he brought out was that only friends, relatives, etc. were writing articles in support of making the GRS a separate department. Similarly, although unstated, he also knows that, if any members of the GRS were to publish their views that it would put their jobs in jeopardy, or saying it another way, they'd be fired on the spot! I also feel that, if the "professionals" of the Fire Department were capable of making decisions for the Rescue Squad, they would agree that the two departments should have their own chief in charge. It is very easy for me to understand why the retired Captain was never one to publish his opinion on governmental controversies; he does not stay up on the current issues and changes that have taken place in our city.

To the editor:
Whoever said small towns roll up their sidewalks at 8 p.m. wasn't talking about Farmville, N.C. No siree. Things don't get started here until midnight, if you're of the canine species that is. Moonlight gossip sessions of the collie and schnauzer sort strike up (and wake up) on a regular basis. Sometimes the pups just get overexcited about a topic and converse for hours and hours reciting phrases into the dawn's early light. It's a good thing the kids are asleep — some of the subjects discussed are x-rated.
Anyway, having just moved to this lovely town from Greenville, I'm not quite used to this local nocturnal dog custom and don't intend to pattern my sleeping sessions around their barking sessions. It doesn't work that way, and shouldn't.
Don't get me wrong. I love dogs just as much as Lorne Green and the Alpo people, if not more, and believe that dogs are an integral part of a community, as long as they don't attempt to interrupt the somnolence of their two-legged counterparts.
So, pooch-owners, the next time your dog wants to talk at 1 a.m., please, for your neighbors' sake, talk back to it, before someone else with less patience won't talk at all.

Lifestyle Bows To Economics

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Where have they gone, those unmarried swingers who sought to maintain their freedom and mobility by renting apartments rather than buying houses? Some of them seem to have disappeared, and apartment house operators are concerned. They thought the swinging lifestyle of this under-35 group assured landlords of tenants. Now they aren't sure.
"If you were under 35 and unmarried, you were twice as likely to be a renter as a family the same age, and four times as likely as an older family," said Philip Kozloff, president of Citicorp Real Estate.
That's the way it used to be. By a margin of nearly 64, the historic pattern of these young unmarried households was to rent rather than buy, he said.

As recently as 1973, the rental market could expect the formation of about 540,000 new swinger households — that is, households of one. But in the past four years, said Kozloff, the annual rate fell to 240,000.
And so, unlike some analysts who simply assume the rental market is still growing, Kozloff maintains "it is clear that there has been a sharp decline in rental demand since 1973."
The change, says the Citicorp official, is partly due to economics, or so it seems. That is, the swinger's non-committal lifestyle seems to have succumbed to some pressing financial realities. Unable to afford high rents, and seeing soaring real estate prices make some of their friends relatively well-off, some swingers apparently have been trading mobility and freedom for an inflation hedge.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1975 also had a lot to do with it, making purchase easier for single individuals who had sometimes been considered poor mortgage risks.
Another factor, say company analysts, is the revival of condominium markets, with the strong conversion trend of the past two years providing owner units that meet the needs of single persons.
Even after offering these explanations, Citicorp still isn't certain it has found all the reasons. It believes also that there has been a moderate decline in the growth of age groups predisposed to buying.

But even more changes might have impinged on the swinger-age category. "Even all the factors we have listed, added together, do not seem adequate to explain so large a shift," the analyses states.
There does seem to be no mistaking the observation that as rents rose swingers became concerned about the economic logic of their lifestyles. Ownership, even though it cramped one's style, became an alternative.
Surveys and observations by real estate dealers in many parts of the country confirm the change. Single men, single women, and groups too, are said to be buying homes in urban centers and smaller towns too.

Strength For Today

FLIGHT TO YESTERDAY
The co-pilot of a plane flying across the Pacific walked back through the cabin and asked a passenger, who was a friend of his, "Would you rather fly into yesterday, or tomorrow?" He was referring to the various options encountered in crossing the international date line.
Many of us fall into lazy habits of flying back into yesterday. Some people carry grudges for half a century. Others remain continually jealous of acquaintances better endowed with wealth, position, or personal attractiveness.
In many ways it is much better to fly into tomorrow. However, this course can become fantasy if we allow it to become so. But it can also be a thing of hope, of anticipation, of renewed faith.
If we are growing as we should tomorrow should be better than today. Like St. Paul, let us forget the things that are behind and press forward into the things which are before.

They Laughed When He Began Building Racing Hydroplane

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Staff Sergeant Phillip Robbins' project became the brunt of many good-natured jokes from his friends when he started it three years ago.

But Robbins enjoys the last laugh now, as his homemade racing hydroplane nears completion.

The aerospace ground equipment specialist with the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base constructed the components for the 450-pound plywood hull at the base wood shop. He assembled the parts at home.

"I had no experience in woodworking when I started with a set of plans from Mechanics Illustrated," Robbins said. "But with lots of help and encouragement from Claude Bass (the director of the wood shop), I was able to do what seemed impossible at first."

"I built the boat three times in my mind and once on paper before cutting the wood," he continued. "The entire boat is wood and the curves were very difficult to do just right."

Robbins, who is from Cumberland, Ky., said the cost of the boat, except the engine, was $850. He estimated that a fiberglass racing hull would have cost $6,000.

Besides cost, Robbins said wood has the advantage of being lighter. An average fiberglass hull weighs near 800 pounds.

"I've never raced, but I've been a racing enthusiast for quite a while," he said. "I got the original idea while I was in Thailand, and I've been at it ever since."

The 10-year Air Force veteran estimated that he spent about 600 hours building the hydroplane.

Demonstrates Anew Pet Projects Get Grease

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, got a speedy answer last week when he asked why $3 million for the planned state science and mathematics high school is in the Department of Administration's budget request, not in the Department of Public Education's.

"I believe the governor's from your district," was the brief, gravelly reply from Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, the powerful Ways and Means Committee chairman.

Campbell, standing in an appropriations committee meeting, sat back down. He and many others wondering the same thing had gotten their answer.

Although concerns, questions and hostile charges about the new science and math high school are heard daily among legislators and lobbyists in the General Assembly, Gov. Jim Hunt's firm hand has already been felt pushing the school.

It is one of Hunt's pet projects, and his budget has conveniently placed the appropriations proposal apart from the rest of the state's education programs.

On paper, that may not seem significant, but in the legislature, it is important. The initial appropriation, which will commit the state to unknown expenses later, may now be able to pass through the legislature without being considered by one of the education committees.

Instead, it lies in the joint House and Senate budget panels on general government and transportation.

And although there are concerns about the appropriation on that panel too, few legislative opponents of the school doubt it will be approved. In legislative parlance, "the wheels have been greased," legislators on both sides of the issue say.

"It is very, very well greased, and whatever opposition there is will be vocal only," said Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Orange, who'd like to see it killed.

"I believe there'll be a lot of noise, but when the time comes, the hands will have been laid on it," said Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, in whose home district the school will be located.

Questions about the school have been on two fronts: the price and the policy.

The school is intended to take the most talented students in those two subjects from around the state and provide them special schooling, producing the scientists of tomorrow. There will initially be 300 students in the fall of 1980, growing to 900 as the school becomes a full, three-year high school by 1982.

Planners of the school are not willing to give it a price tag. Quentin Lindsey, Hunt's science advisory who is directing the project, refused to even make an estimate. A committee is still working one up and will be ready by early February, he said.

The school has been given the old Watts Hospital building by the city of Durham, a site Lindsey values at $6 million. But renovation of the building is estimated at another $6 million.

Sen. Jim Edwards, D-Caldwell, chairman of the appropriations panel on education, says he fears the school may cost as much as $10 million to $20 million a year to run. Lindsey, however, says the state may also find money from private foundations and the federal government.

Lloyd Isaacs, executive director of the N.C. Association of Educators, the organization of more than 50,000 public school teachers and principals, questions its educational merit.

The school, he said, will take the brightest students away from their peers in public schools, at a time when the emphasis is on "mainstreaming" children with handicaps or special gifts.

"We're putting so much emphasis on the exceptional child at either end of the spectrum, and I'm thinking the most disadvantaged child may now be the child that's in the middle," Isaacs says.

The school's board of trustees includes Board of Education chairman David Bruton and Public Instruction Superintendent Craig Phillips. But Isaacs says he is still bothered that it will be another state government department, not the education department, that will control it.

And even if $3 million is the total initial cost, he said, that's an "inordinate amount of money for the children involved."

The government appropriations committee plans full debate on the issue next month, but Isaacs says it should go to an education committee. "It ought to be considered on its educational merits," he said.

Some other opponents go further than Isaacs, charging it is "elitist."

Hunt has already laid the groundwork for the school's approval, however.

Evans-Novak ... Some Resigned To Just Leaving PCB

Kemp exploratory committee is formed immediately. Kemp responded he wants to consult some political wise men outside his own entourage, but a decision is expected before long.

Indeed, there were signs in Miami of Kemp shifting gears. Addressing the Economic Society of South Florida, he asserted, "I'm not ruling it out," when asked about the presidency in 1980. That is a major surprise to most politicians who thought he had indeed ruled it out.

While Jimmy Carter starting from total obscurity in 1976 is cited by Kemp's friends, that same year also saw Birch Bayh, Sargent Shriver and Fred Harris starting low and ending lower. Should Kemp follow Bayh's instead of Carter's route, it would not only doom his Senate chances but likely abort his entire political career.

Rationally, therefore, Kemp would be better off pursuing a difficult but achievable Senate race than risking everything in what the conventional wisdom deems a quixotic adventure. "He will do it only if he has a fire in his belly for the presidency," one close supporter told us, "and I frankly don't know whether he has." On that self-determination may well hinge not merely one man's fate but the nature of presidential politics in 1980.

SILER CITY, N.C. (AP) — Some residents of Chatham County feel that PCB-laced material dumped on roadsides does all the harm it can do, and they feel that treating the contaminated soil chemically and just leaving it there is as good a solution as any.

Since discovery of the contamination along some 200 miles of North Carolina roadside, the state has been studying the matter of disposing of the soil.

Secretary Herbert Hyde of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, says he is seriously considering treating the contaminated roadside soil and leaving it where it is.

Consideration of certain areas as likely dumping sites has brought vigorous objection from residents of the areas.

However, in Chatham County, a number of persons say they believe treating the roadside soil and leaving it as is would be the safest method of handling the situation.

With 42 miles, Chatham has the highest mileage of contaminated road shoulders in the state. In all, 210 miles figured in the illegal dumping which brought charges against three persons from New York and two in Raleigh.

In the community of Gulf,

Sunny Murchison said of the contaminated soil, "It's been laying there so long already, it's already done all the damage it's going to do."

A couple of miles north on 421 near Goldston, Mrs. Rita

Gaines agreed. "Personally, I feel like it's already done its damage as far as we're concerned. There's really no use in digging it up now."

However, the owner of a Goldston rest home says he plans to file suit if the contaminated soil is not removed from near his property. "If I can find a lawyer to do it, I'm going to sue somebody for a million dollars," said Butch Lucas.

since the Titanic disaster. Only the Russians, doling up straight vodka and the hell with it, manage to come close to what the American palate craves when the sun comes over the yardarm and the attaché cases are stowed in the bar car.

The American identification with the cocktail is so strong abroad that even now the most sought after barman's guide in Europe is the Savoy Cocktail Book, written in 1930 by Harry Craddock, the American bartender imported by the Savoy Hotel in the Roaring Twenties to preside over their "American Bar," the first in Europe.

Craddock's compendium of booze went through a half dozen editions over the years and is being reprinted again, albeit in an updated version that shows the progression of the dry martini from a 2-1 to a 7-1 scalding.

"Americans remain loyal to the martini and the Manhattan," confides Harry Viccars, the head barman at Savoy's American Bar who has been baptizing olives and onions since 1932. "But amaretto is suddenly popular, after that Jordan chap who chucked one down that girl's blouse front in the Washington bar."

NIXON: It wasn't a large staff. I still had to pay for my own golf caddy.

TENG: Well, it's all water under the bridge. Here we are — both of us at the White House, not only rehabilitated and back in power but once again loved by our respective peoples.

NIXON: I'm not exactly back in power yet, though they did name a recreation center after me in Kentucky not long ago.

TENG: Ah, yes. Then it should be only a matter of time before you get back at the people who did you in.

NIXON: Frankly, I haven't given it a thought. They can say what they want to about Nixon but he never holds a grudge. It's all in my book.

Our authentic English stoneware is made to last. Our free offer, unfortunately, isn't.

Alas, we can't continue to offer our beautiful, handcrafted English stoneware for free forever. In fact, we can't continue to offer it for free after January 31.

But relax. Because we'll still continue to offer the best bargains to cross the Atlantic in a long time by making available the complete line of stoneware at bargain prices, even after our "free offer" deadline.

So if you come in anytime now through the end of January, and deposit $25 or more in a new or existing BB&T regular savings account, we'll give you a three-piece place setting — absolutely free. (This offer is good for one free place setting per account.)

If you come in after January 31, however, you can still take advantage of our bargain prices on the complete line. For example, everytime you deposit $25 or more in a BB&T savings account, you're still eligible to buy an additional place setting or complete piece.

Deposit $500 in a new or existing savings account and you can buy a twelve-piece snack set for only $31.75.

Deposit $1,000 and a full 26-piece service for four — including dinner plates, cups, saucers, bread-and-butter plates, soup or cereal bowls, a large, covered casserole, and oval platter, a sugar bowl and a cream pitcher — can all be yours for just $65.

So come in today for all the details. But don't wait. After all, all good things must come to an end.

Our free offer ends January 31. But we'll continue to have additional pieces at bargain prices.

N.C. Leads Southeast In The Export Field

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina leads the Southeast in exports of agricultural and manufactured goods, according to the International Trade Center.

"We can point with some degree of pride to being number one in the Southeast and number 13 (in manufactured exports) in the country," said David Thomas, director of the center at Research Triangle Park. "We are really the star of the Sunbelt when it comes to that kind of business."

Nationally, North Carolina ranks eighth in export of agricultural products and 13th in manufactured goods. The state shipped overseas goods worth $2.2 billion and agricultural products worth $812 million in 1976, the most recent year for which figures were available.

But being the regional star isn't good enough, Thomas said. The state exports 6.1 percent of its total manufactured products, compared to a 7 percent national average. Whole industries — particularly the furniture business — all but ignore the overseas market, Thomas said.

"If we just raised our percentage from 6.1 to 7 — up to the national average — that would add over 10,000 new jobs in industry, and a lot of that would be in high-wage industries," he said.

Thomas sees his agency, an arm of the University of North Carolina, as a think tank for the North Carolina export community. It backs up the work of the state Commerce Department — "the boys on the front line," Thomas says — seeking new markets for North Carolina goods.

"We have the time and resources to think something through over a period of two or three years, which the people downtown aren't able to do," he said.

The center, which celebrates its first birthday this month, made several studies on foreign demand for North Carolina goods and the ability of manufacturers to meet the demand.

Among other findings, the center learned that the European market needs processed food products that include eels, catfish, Jerusalem artichokes and broccoli, all of which are suited for eastern North Carolina farming.

Since then, Thomas has been spreading the gospel of processed foods in the East.

"The idea behind this is to add value to products before they leave the state (by processing), to add jobs (through processing plants) and to increase the volume of our exports," he said.

Labor Mediators Specialists

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Federal mediators, those obscure government agents who jump into the middle of labor disputes, tend to describe their work in analogies.

"A labor contract is like a marriage — you don't hear much about it until the divorce comes up," said Leonard Duggins, a 47-year-old veteran of three years with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

W.C. Johnson, 63, who has 20 years with the mediation service, said mediators need to have the confidence of both sides in a dispute. Otherwise, "It's a little like an illegitimate child at a family reunion — no one wants to talk to you."

When management and union representatives disagree, or begin outright arguing and threatening over contractual matters, a federal mediator is called in. Duggins, Johnson and 43-year-old Andre Joyce are the three federal mediators based in Charlotte, responsible for handling labor disputes in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Because the Carolinas are not looked upon as a hotbed of labor activity and headline-grabbing strikes, the role of the mediator goes unnoticed by the public.

Mediators are known mostly to management and labor representatives and to reporters who wait out settlements in disputes such as the recent 56-day bus strike in Charlotte.

But in a recent interview, the three Charlotte-based mediators said most of their work goes on long before picket signs are painted.

Duggins logged 20,000 miles last year and spent 109 nights away from home while trying to settle disputes. And Johnson was away from home 110 nights.

"At any given time, the average mediator has about 25 cases that he is monitoring, maybe a third of those he's in-involved in," said Duggins.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is an independent federal agency, empowered by law to help management and labor reach lasting settlements.

A mediator is akin to a referee in a basketball game as a neutral force. Although he may be frustrated by the actions of one side or another, as in cases where negotiations break down and one side will not speak to the other, he keeps that frustration mostly to himself.

What that frustration and pressure leads to, according to Johnson, is "the highest mortality rate, the highest rate of ulcers and heart attacks, of any government agency. You may want to tell them how you feel, but you can't."

But unlike a referee, the mediator is also a catalyst, trying to get both sides to reach an agreement through persuasion and just plain skill.

"We're the unknown party behind the scenes," said Johnson. "We're not looking for glory. We'd rather have the parties say they settled the dispute rather than the mediator settled it."

Mediators generally have broad experience with labor disputes before they sign on with the federal government. They are specialists in an intricate world of ritual, word games and compromise.

"The art of collective bargaining is, in my opinion, the least understood process by the public of any institutional ac-

Child Fell In Acid Pit

WACO, Texas (AP) — A 4-year-old boy playing near an aircraft hangar just outside the city limits fell into a pit filled with paint-removing acid and drowned, police said.

Allen Dale Wrenn Jr. and a 3-year-old playmate wandered away from Wrenn's home about a quarter mile from the pit shortly before 3 p.m. Sunday. The younger boy returned home and told his mother that Allen had fallen into some water, police said.

Authorities launched a search and found the boy's body in the pit about four hours later. Police said the pit was four feet deep.

Justice of the Peace Clarence Weikel ruled the death an accidental drowning. Police said the body did not have any visible burns from the chemical.

The pit, located on the Texas State Technical Institute campus and surrounded by a fence, contained an acid used to remove paint from aircraft parts.

Find No Hazard From Defoliant

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — No long-term health problems have arisen among more than 60 Vietnam veterans who came into contact with the defoliant Agent Orange, says a government doctor. A class-action lawsuit alleging that the herbicide, used to clear jungle areas in Vietnam during the war, is a possible cause of cancer.

Tests are being conducted by the Veterans Administration throughout the country because of the lawsuit, and Dr. James Bethel said Saturday that in Arkansas, "We haven't really found anything. So far as the VA knows, there is no long-term health hazard."

In trying to settle negotiations, they spend much of their time relaying what one side has to say to the other when the parties meet separately.

"The public's conception of a smoke-filled room with people pounding on the table is erroneous," said Johnson. "Most of the pros are pretty smooth operators and they don't need that."

Both sides frequently take the mediators into their confidence and ask for suggestions.

"But I don't want either side to tell me their final position at the outset," said Duggins. "If either side takes a final position at first, then it's just that — final. And that's forever. There's no room for compromise."

BEAT THE PEAK.

IT WORKED!

Special Bulletin:
Only 500 Applications

The temperature soared.

It was August 29, 1978, and the thermometer pushed past 95 degrees. Air conditioners strained and the total amount of electricity being used throughout the Greenville area climbed toward a record-breaking peak. Until our load management system, "BEAT THE PEAK," went to work.

Radio signals were sent out from Greenville Utilities' central control tower. Special switches installed on electric water heaters and central air conditioners in 2,700 Greenville area homes received the signals and briefly stopped the flow of electricity to these two appliances. But not long enough to tell the difference. Water stayed hot and air-conditioned homes stayed cool. Meanwhile, the amount of electric energy flowing through our lines and substations stayed at a lower, less costly level.

We "Beat the Peak" that day. Six megawatts of power that otherwise would have been consumed—perhaps needlessly—wasn't used during the "peak" period. Those six megawatts of power saved will yield a net savings to our community's electrical system of over $225,000. BEAT THE PEAK customer volunteers received nearly $70,000 in the form of monthly credits of up to $7.50 on their June through September utility bills. The rest of the savings will help pay for the $450,000 first-year investment in the load management equipment.

Electrical Contractors are now installing special switches in the homes of customers who volunteer to help BEAT THE PEAK. There is no charge for the installation, and no inconvenience. Just savings.

Approximately 1500 applications will be accepted for 1979 installations. Nearly 1000 applications are already on file, with additional ones being received every day. If you live in a house, apartment, duplex, or condominium and have either an electric water heater and/or a central air conditioning unit, you are eligible to participate in the program. You may apply by mailing in the attached application form, or by contacting the Energy Conservation Office at 752-7166, Extension 234. Act Now to be sure you get in on this Summers Savings.

There is one rather important, practically indisputable statement we can make about our load management program, BEAT THE PEAK:
It Works.

How's The Weather?

Claim Vietnamese In Trouble

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Tuesday morning from the central and eastern Gulf to the upper Mississippi Valley, changing to snow as far as the central Plains. Cold weather is forecast for most areas with very cold weather expected for the central portions of the country. (AP Laser-photo Map)

By The Associated Press
The last several days have brought from four to 12 inches of snow to North Carolina's northwest mountains, and today a travelers advisory continued in effect for blowing and drifting snow.

With the latest storm out of the way, another is expected to start affecting the state's weather late Tuesday and on into Wednesday. Its arrival from the southwest will give the mountains another chance of snow.

Small craft advisories were in effect today for the coast and sound waters for northwest winds of 20 to 30 knots. The high winds continued to cause flooding on the sound side of the Outer Banks.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Chance of snow in the mountains and rain elsewhere Wednesday. Clearing and colder Thursday and Friday with lows in the teens and low 20s. Highs in the 30s and low 40s.

Cambodian troops who remained loyal to Pol Pot and his Khmer Rouge government blew up the bridges on the major highways on the major Phnom Penh as they retreated, the sources explain, and the Vietnamese are having trouble moving their artillery and other heavy equipment. Ambushes also are a problem.

Pol Pot's fugitive radio station, which broadcasts from southern China, claimed today that his forces "liberated" nearly all of southeastern Cambodia and advanced to within 11 miles of Phnom Penh from the south.

"The Vietnamese invaders in Phnom Penh are losing morale and their fighting spirit," said the broadcast. "They are in a panic because they cannot communicate with the outside. All the roads leading from Phnom Penh to the provinces are under our control."

The broadcast also claimed that Kompong Chhnang, a major town with a military airfield on the highway to north-central Cambodia, was under attack and the Vietnamese there were under siege.

Pol Pot's station claimed on Sunday that the guerrilla army had encircled six major capitals and recaptured some of the temples at Angkor, the ancient capital in northwest Cambodia. Analysts in Bangkok considered these claims to be exaggerated.

Radio Phnom Penh, now in the hands of Hanoi's proteges, the National United Front for National Salvation, continues to report that life is gradually returning to normal after the four-year blood bath and national disruption resulting from the Pol Pot government's radical communist revolution.

A broadcast said representatives from the 19 provinces met in the capital over the weekend, but no details were given.

Tear-Gassed

An estimated two to three hundred people were sent into the streets crying, coughing and gasping for fresh air early Sunday morning after someone threw a tear gas grenade into the Attic club at 103 East Fourth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said police, fire and rescue units were sent to the scene between 1:15 and 1:20 a.m. after the grenade was tossed into the front door of the night spot from a small blue car.

Cannon noted that witnesses said the two occupants of the vehicle wore gas masks.

Investigators reported Greenville firemen used fans to clear the tear gas from the building, and rescue officers treated a number of persons at the scene by washing their eyes and faces with water, but no injuries were reported.

Cannon said Michael Joseph Muth Jr., 24 of Cherry Point, was charged with indecent exposure in connection with an incident that occurred outside the building as officers were investigating the gassing incident.

Charge Driver In Auto Mishap

Robert Corliss Wetherington of Route 3, Morehead City was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:05 a.m. collision Sunday at the intersection of Cotanche Street and Reade Circle.

Police reported the Wetherington car collided with an auto driven by Dwight Mitchell Perkins of 308 South Library St., causing an estimated $400 damage to each of the two vehicles.

Apparently Died In A Robbery

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A teen-ager working at a filling station was shot and killed early today during an apparent robbery, according to police.

A passing sheriff's deputy discovered the body lying in front of the filling station shortly after 2 a.m. The victim was identified as Aubrey Dean Lee, 19, of Rt. 3, Fayetteville.

Marijuana Ingredient In Cancer Treatment

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Doctors at Duke Medical Center are using an active ingredient in marijuana to help cancer patients who experience side effects from chemotherapy.

The ingredient, tetrahydrocannabinol or THC, is a "useful drug" for controlling the nausea and vomiting often experienced by those taking strong chemicals to treat their cancers, said Dr. John Laszlo, director of the Clinical Comprehensive Cancer Center at Duke.

According to pharmacist Sol Lucas, "some of the patients would not take further chemotherapy if they could not receive THC."

The results have been encouraging, the men said. Of the 42 patients who have participated in the project, about two-thirds of them found that episodes of vomiting and nausea decreased by at least half.

The Duke center is the only licensed distributor of THC in the Southeast, Laszlo and Lucas said. Since it is against the law to use marijuana, Laszlo and Lucas say they spent more than 18 months filling out forms and negotiating with federal agencies for permission to use THC.

The idea to use THC came largely from patients, the men said.

Many of the younger patients admitted to smoking marijuana before they received chemotherapy. As a consequence, Lucas said, "We noticed that they were experiencing much less vomiting than our other patients."

When the decision to use THC is made, the possibility of suffering adverse long-term side effects is not a factor, Laszlo said.

"You must understand, we are not dealing with well babies here; we are dealing with people who have advanced cancer," he said. "If there were to be some consequence of THC, that's not a primary concern in treating patients whose life expectancy is six months to two years."

Laszlo and Lucas said they get calls from doctors throughout the Southeast, asking that their patients be given THC at Duke.

However, both men said they are looking forward to the introduction sometime this year of a new drug, Nabilone, which is another marijuana derivative. While there is no difference in effect, any doctor who is licensed to prescribe narcotics will be permitted to prescribe Nabilone, Laszlo said.

"We will really welcome Nabilone," Laszlo said. "When it comes, we are going to get out of this business fast."

Slow-Learners Posing Problem For Schools

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Social promotions are no more in the school district, but that doesn't mean the problem of what to do about students who are not ready to move up the educational ladder has gone away.

The Whiteville school board said a year ago that social promotions — moving the child up a grade to keep him or her from falling behind their peers — would be no more. As a result, 25 percent failed.

But Whiteville is faced with a problem: what to do with the children who are slow learners.

"We've tried to teach one program to all students," said Samuel C. Stell, the school superintendent. "It can't be done."

The board has asked Stell and his administrators to come up with a solution to the problem before the end of the school year. One solution, Stell said, might be to group students by ability instead of by grades and to provide different kinds of curriculums and diplomas.

The Whiteville school board made its decision because it felt that diplomas were "being passed out like meal tickets." It decided that as of last June, students would have to perform within six months of their grade level to pass.

By this June, students would have to be performing at the grade level, a high school student would need to pass 20 courses to graduate, four more than the state requires.

Billy A. Hooks, a cattle farmer and chairman of the board for the past 12 years and a proponent of the board's plan, now admits there is another problem — what to do with those who simply cannot do the work, excluding the mentally retarded.

"Now we have to face up to what to do with the kid who is doing the best he can with what he has, but is still failing," Hooks said. "They're the kids with an I.Q. of about 75 to 90, and they happen to be a large group."

"Obviously, you can't keep an 18-year-old in the first grade. I think it was the intention of the board to put the brakes down and say, 'this is it,' and then start backing off until we identify where we should be," he said.

A Two-Headed Goat May Live Arrest Man On Break-In Count At Local Firm

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Whether two heads are better than one is problematic, but in the case of Hedy Lamarr they may be good enough.

Hedy, a two-headed goat who was rejected by her mother, apparently will defy the odds and survive, says her caretaker, Patricia Costa.

"She's doing fantastic," Ms. Costa, a local goat breeder, said Saturday. "She has passed the critical stage and it looks like she's going to live."

The goat's skulls merge. She has two mouths, four eyes and two noses, but just two ears. In other respects, she appears to be normal. Scientists had expected her to die within minutes of her birth Wednesday.

"She still can't stand up, but she's putting weight on her front legs and holding her heads up for longer periods," Ms. Costa said Saturday, adding that Hedy is being bottle-fed — one mouth at a time.

Greenville Police early Saturday arrested Clarence Howell Jr., 46 of 207 Columbia Ave. on breaking, entering and larceny charges after officers allegedly found him coming out of the RediSupply Inc. building at 1902 Chestnut St. with two power saws.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers were called to the scene by residence of the area who reported someone was breaking into the building.

Investigators, who said entry to the building was gained by breaking a window, reported a quantity of other items, including drills, impact wrenches, a grinder, disc sander, metal shears and portable heater, were found in a truck parked in front of the Redi-Supply building.

Value of the merchandise taken from the building was estimated at $2,738. Cannon noted.

Record-Breaking Folk Art Sale

NEW YORK (AP) — An auction of the Stewart Gregory collection of American folk art, expected to bring from $600,000 to $800,000, has realized a record-breaking $1.3 million.

The sale at Sotheby Parke Bernet Saturday of the late collector's primitive paintings and other folk art broke not only the previous folk art record of $350,000 set in 1973 with the sale of the Edith Gregor Halpert collection, but also topped all previous records for single-owner collections.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined slightly today, backing off from their highest level since last fall.

The Dow Jones average of 30 big-name industrials dropped 4.33 to 855.42 by noon.

Losers held a slight edge on gainers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market had risen steadily in recent days amid hopes that interest rates had reached or passed their high point. But a number of analysts have questioned whether that speculation might not be premature.

Today several New York banks cut their broker loan rates from 11 1/2 to 11 percent. Investors still seemed skeptical, however, that that indicated the start of a lasting downturn.

The dollar, meanwhile, continued its recent rally in foreign exchange, posting gains against leading European currencies and the Japanese yen.

American Express and McGraw-Hill were both delayed in opening. American Express proposed to raise its offer for McGraw-Hill's stock from $34 to $40 a share.

Resorts International class A stock dropped 1 1/2 to 32 1/2 on the American Stock Exchange. The company said the Securities and Exchange Commission was investigating the adequacy of its disclosures over the past nine years.

The NYSE's composite index shipped .15 to 56.84. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .38 at 161.97.

Volume on the Big Board came to 11.08 million shares in the first two hours, down from 16.03 million in the comparable period Friday.

Arrest Ends Police Alert

A Hartsville, S.C. man who was being sought for the murder of his mother in Darlington, S.C. and, according to authorities, was on his way here to murder his father, was arrested Saturday in Petersburg, Va., Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported today.

Sheriff Tyson said that Alphonso Austin, 20, was charged Saturday with the Friday morning murder. The sheriff said that he did not have the murder victim's name.

According to Sheriff Tyson, Pitt authorities, Greenville Police and area Highway Patrol units were notified by South Carolina authorities Friday to be on the lookout for Austin who was reportedly on his way to Greenville.

The sheriff said that the fugitive's father, Harry Austin, resides at 103 Contentnea Street and authorities believed he might be the target for a murder attempt by his son.

Local authorities were notified Saturday of Austin's arrest, he added.

Chosen Attend Science Event

RICHMOND, VA. — Russell E. Clift of Bethel, a student at North Pitt High School, has been selected to attend the 23rd International Edison Birthday Celebration, Feb. 9-12, in Orlando, Fla.

RUSSELLE E. CLIFT

Clift is among six outstanding science students being sponsored by Virginia Electric and Power Company to attend the event as part of the company's "Centennial of Light" celebration.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Clift, Russell is a member of the National Honor Society, a 1978 participant in the North Carolina's Governor's School, the Top Science Student in Pitt County for Procter and Gamble and is a National Merit Semi Finalist.

Chosen as an alternate from VEPCO's North Carolina service area was Jen Kim, a student at J. H. Rose High School. Kim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kim.

The Thomas Alva Edison Foundation and the Edison Electric Institute will cosponsor the annual birthday celebration.

All school divisions in VEPCO's service area were invited to nominate an outstanding science student to attend the event. Winning students were selected by six judges from educational communities in Virginia and North Carolina.

Richard Nixon Quietly Flies Into Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — No ruffles. No flourishes. Not even a diehard supporter greeted Richard M. Nixon as he returned to Washington for a visit evoking memories of his greatest triumph and greatest defeat.

The former president returns to the White House tonight for the first time since he resigned the presidency four years ago in the Watergate scandal.

At the invitation of President

Carter, Nixon will attend the elaborate state dinner honoring Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, leader of the country Nixon courted, helping forge ties that Carter confirmed by extending diplomatic recognition.

When Nixon arrived Sunday night by commercial airline, he got off the first class section of the plane before the other passengers on a lonely corner of the Dulles Airport runway, in view of only a handful of reporters.

Almost as if by habit, Nixon stood for a moment at the top of the plane ramp, surveying the scene below. But with no one except a few Secret Service agents to welcome him, he quickly straightened his dark overcoat and walked down the stairs alone.

His wife, Pat, who suffered a stroke in 1976 and remains partially paralyzed, remained in California.

Not even a chauffeur held the door for him as he climbed into a tan, White House-supplied limousine that whisked him in a police motorcade to the Middleburg, Va., estate where he is staying.

Before leaving the airport grounds, Nixon passed dozens of American flags flying at half staff in memory of former Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, the man Nixon defeated in 1968 for the Republican presidential nomination.

Nixon's schedule was not made public, but sources close to the former president said he may meet privately with members of the Chinese delegation.

Offer Reward

FARMVILLE — A $100 reward has been put up by the Farmville Police Department for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who've committed a number of incidents of vandalism here recently.

Car windows and store windows have been broken, most often with shots from a pellet gun, since Jan. 14. Many of the incidents took place last Thursday before midnight, most in the west end of town. Two took place during this past weekend in the same area.

"Property damage is running high," Police Chief Ron Cooper said. "We really want to catch whoever it is. Hard-working people shouldn't have to suffer because of such senseless destruction."

Irate Response From California

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — A county treasurer from Iowa who said license plates with the letters GAY on them might be popular in California is not popular in California himself. "You have an irresponsible mouth," said one of many letters he received from the Golden State.

Earlier this month, about 1,000 of Iowa's new license plates were issued with the three-letter prefix GAY. More than 130 vehicle owners refused them, apparently because the word "gay" is sometimes used to mean "homosexual." Scott County Treasurer William Cusack said then, "Out in California, I'm sure there is a waiting line for GAY plates. But not in Iowa."

Shot, Killed In Own Home

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — A Surry County man was shot and killed Sunday night, apparently by someone hiding outside his home.

Billy Gray Johnson, 35, of the Beulah community was hit by a single blast as he stood in the living room of his home about 6:30 p. m., according to Surry County Sheriff Bill Hall.

Johnson was pronounced dead on arrival at a Mount Airy Hospital.

His wife and 12-year-old son were in another part of the house when the shooting occurred.

The telephone lines to the house were cut, so authorities had to be summoned from a neighbor's home, Hall said.

No arrests had been made, he said.

Airplane Search In Granville

STEM, N.C. (AP) — A search was under way in the southern part of Granville County Sunday evening for a small airplane reported down in the area.

But rescuers said a search turned up no evidence of a crash, and there were no reports of planes overdue or missing.

REACT rescue teams used cars and small planes to search the area between Stem and Butner in the lower part of the county.

The Granville County Sheriff's Department and the state Highway Patrol had received the reports of a low-flying plane in the area. There was also an unconfirmed report that an Eastern Airlines pilot had spotted a plane that appeared to be having trouble.

Looking To Teammate

Duke Edges Marquette

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

For a while there, Jim Spanarkel wasn't "Spanarkeling" as he usually does — making eight turnovers, getting caught for three traveling violations and missing a basketful of shots.

But even though the Duke diamond was flawed, he wasn't finished.

The sturdy Blue Devil captain redeemed himself for poor play throughout much of Sunday's basketball game with Marquette, hitting a classy jump shot and two clutch free throws at the end for a 69-64 victory.

"We just played flawless in the last five minutes," Duke Coach Bill Foster said of his seventh-ranked team. "There were so many key baskets right there at the end, especially Spanarkel with those free throws."

Until Duke took command over the 13th-ranked Warriors at the end, it was a typically close struggle between two of college basketball's superpowers.

"Marquette is one heck of a fine team," noted Foster. "Despite our good foot position, they just shot right over us."

Fifth-ranked Louisville also won Sunday, taking an 82-72 decision over Virginia Tech. Several other Top Ten teams weren't as lucky on an upset-studded Saturday, however.

Stupor-struck Notre Dame was beaten by Maryland 67-66; No. 2 North Carolina lost a 66-61 decision to Clemson; No. 4 Michigan State lost to Northwestern 83-65; No. 8 Illinois was stopped by Michigan 56-54, and No. 9 Louisiana State dropped a 93-80 decision to Georgia.

Elsewhere, No. 3 Indiana State beat Creighton 77-69; No. 6 UCLA routed Washington 86-61; No. 10 Ohio State downed Indiana 66-63 in overtime; No. 11 Georgetown trimmed American University 88-80; No. 12 Syracuse whipped Manhattan 113-68; No. 14 Texas A&M defeated Rice 81-62; No. 15 Texas turned back Texas Tech 63-57; No. 16 Temple beat St. Francis, N.Y., 65-63; No. 17 Texas crushed SMU 98-62; No. 18 Alabama nipped Mississippi State 68-67; No. 19 Vanderbilt took a 66-59 decision over Auburn; and No. 20 North Carolina State walloped Virginia 87-67.

Gene Banks and Mike Gminski provided Duke with a ferocious inside game. Banks scored 23 points and Gminski added 22 and collected a game-high nine rebounds.

The game was up for grabs at noisy Cameron Stadium in Durham, N.C., until Spanarkel's jumper from the corner put the Blue Devils ahead and a frustrating Duke stall at the end locked it up.

Asked to compare Duke with powerful Notre Dame, Marquette Coach Hank Raymonds — whose team has played both diplomatically gave credit to each camp: "Notre Dame has a deeper bench than Duke, so in a foul situation Notre Dame would have the edge. But, otherwise, Duke is better."

Darrell Griffith scored 21 points and Bobby Turner had 20 to lead Louisville over Virginia Tech. The Cardinals trailed by a point at the half, but then exploded past the Gobblers behind their two high scorers.

"We came out the second half and our defense was able to shut off their guards from penetrating, which we had allowed them to do in the first half," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "By stopping their penetration, we put a stop to their passing off the ball. We made them force up outside shots and from there, we were able to outdistance them."

Noted Virginia Tech Coach Charles Moir after the Metro Conference game: "Louisville has a very good team — the best we've played this year. They certainly deserve every bit of their national ranking. I was very proud of my team's performance today, but what can you say?"

Larry Gibson's three-point play with just one second remaining led Maryland over Notre Dame. The Terps blew a 12-point lead in the second half before coming back to win.

A nonchalant Gibson said of his game-winning free throw: "It was just a regular free throw. I tried to think of it like that and shoot it that way."

Larry Nance scored 21 points and Billy Williams gave Clemson the lead for good with a basket with 4:35 left in the game as the Tigers defeated North Carolina. Rod Roberson scored 20 points to pace Northwestern's upset of Michigan State.

Marty Bodnar's layup at the buzzer after a steal by Tom Staton gave Michigan its victory over skidding Illinois, which lost its fourth game in the last five. Walter Daniels and Eric Marbury scored 24 points apiece to lead Georgia's upset of LSU.

Larry Bird scored 17 points and collected 15 rebounds to pace Indiana State's spotless Sycamores over Creighton. The victory was the 18th straight this year for Bill Hodges' unbeaten team.

David Greenwood's 24 points and 16 rebounds led UCLA over Washington. Carter Scott scored seven points in overtime to pace Ohio State over Indiana. In scoring their eighth straight Big Ten victory, the Buckeyes came back from a nine-point deficit in the last two minutes of regulation.

Eric Floyd and John Duren scored 23 points apiece to lead Georgetown's conquest of American U. Danny Schayes, son of former pro great Dolph Schayes, scored 23 points to power Syracuse over Manhattan. Tyrone Ladson's 18 points led Texas A&M over Rice.

Steve Schall and U.S. Reed each collected 14 points to power Arkansas past Texas Tech. Temple beat St. Francis behind Ricky Reed's 15 points and eight assists. Led by Jim Krivacs' 24 points, all five Texas starters scored in double figures in the Longhorns' triumph over SMU.

Clemson Shakes Up ACC Picture

By GARY SEASE
Associated Press Writer

That pervasive disease called conference play that has so totally shaken up the Big 10 over the past few days struck the Atlantic Coast Conference over the weekend, and second-ranked North Carolina was the victim.

With the knowledge that Maryland had knocked off top-ranked Notre Dame, 67-66, earlier in the day, the Tar Heels were only a victory away Saturday from a legitimate claim to the No. 1 spot. They promptly celebrated by losing 66-61 to Clemson.

Seventh-ranked Duke emerged as the ACC leader and brought back visions of the Cinderella team that finished second to Kentucky last year for the national championship with a 69-64 victory over Marquette Sunday on national television.

In other ACC action, 20th-ranked North Carolina State recorded its first conference victory with an 87-67 triumph over Virginia. Wake Forest pulled out a 69-67 victory over Rhode Island in a non-conference game.

Virginia is host to 16th-ranked Temple tonight in the only game involving an ACC team.

Maryland's triumph over the Fighting Irish, now 12-2, was all but certain to push the Terps, now 14-5, back into the rankings from which they were nudged by a narrow loss to North Carolina last week.

With five seconds left in the nationally televised contest, Maryland brought the ball inbounds to Greg Manning, who passed off to Larry Gibson in the lane. Gibson tied the score with a field goal and was fouled by Bruce Flowers for a three-point play and the victory.

"It could not have worked better, but I didn't think we would get a three-point play," Maryland Coach Letty Driesell said of the last-second strategy.

Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps was just as surprised because he said he "knew Manning would get the ball. It was the same play they ran against North Carolina. We went over and over it and diagrammed it, but we just had a breakdown."

At Wood scored a game-high 28 points for North Carolina, now 14-3 overall and 6-2 in the ACC, but Clemson refused to allow any other Tar Heel to score in double figures.

Larry Nance paced Clemson, now 12-5 and 2-4, with 21 points and three other Tigers scored 10 points each including Billy Williams, whose baseline shot with 4:33 to play gave Clemson the lead for good.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith squelched speculation that Notre Dame's loss had put undue pressure on the Tar Heels.

"I don't think Notre Dame's loss had anything to do with our play tonight," Smith said. "The football polls mean a lot, but the basketball polls don't mean anything. I hope our guys know that."

Clemson Coach Bill Foster said the Tigers "have been playing well for short spurts but nothing like tonight. There's no way we should beat a superteam like Carolina, but I'm happy we did."

Despite eight turnovers, Duke guard Jim Spanarkel keyed the Blue Devils to their victory.

East Carolina Seeks Revenge

East Carolina University's Pirates will seek to do a little "paying back" tomorrow night, when the Bucs entertain the College of William & Mary.

East Carolina bowed to the Indians, 60-54, in the third game of the year in Williamsburg. It was the first loss of the year for the Pirates, who are now 8-10. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

"We've been waiting for quite a while for this one," Coach Larry Gillman said. "We are really anxious to play them again and to do a little getting even. We don't feel that the best team won in that first game."

Gillman added that the Pirates have come a long way since that game, and have, in actuality, changed their approach to the game. "Our tough schedule has done a lot for us, and we've learned from it. I think our game Saturday night against Georgia Tech showed that. We have learned to retain our composure and to stay with our game."

The Pirates, facing the Yellow Jackets in Atlanta, rolled out to a 13-0 lead, later increased their margin to 17 points then withstood a furious Tech rally to win, 66-64, in overtime.

The victory was the second straight for the Pirates, and it marked the first time in eight games this year that Tech had lost on its home court.

George Maynor, who scored 11 points in the game, hit the game-winning jumper to give the Pirates the victory. It marked the third time this year he had hit a game-winning basket or points. Earlier, his game closers against Iowa and South Carolina provided the margin of victory.

Oliver Mack also returned to form, hitting 11 of 18 shots from the floor. He finished with 24 points, and moved into 11th place on the all-time scoring list for ECU with 1,025.

William & Mary is now 5-9 on the year, after a loss to South Carolina on Saturday. They also have yet to win on the road.

Ken Bowen currently leads the Indian scoring with 10.6 points a game, while Billy Harrington has the same average. Scott Whitley is the only other Indian in double figures, scoring 10.5 per contest.

The Indians have also been hampered by the lack of a true center, and were hurt further when junior reserves George Melton, 6-10, did not return to the team after the semester break. Ted O'Gorman, who was slated to be the regular starter at that position, has missed the entire year due to knee surgery.

Doug Myers, who played back during the 1974 through '76 seasons, has rejoined the team, due to an NCAA ruling which allows a player in graduate school to complete his five-year span of eligibility.

The Pirates remain home to play host to strong Old Dominion on Saturday.

Zoeller May Have To Miss Due Date

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller, one of the game's longest hitters and more noted free spirits, nailed down his first tour title in something approaching ease. He started the day two shots in front of the pack, was three ahead most of the stormy day and eventually won by five after scoring a meaningless birdie on the final hole of the South course at Torrey Pines.

He finished with a round of par 72 — one of only five scores at par or better in brutal weather — and claimed $45,000 from the total purse of $250,000 with his 282 total, six under par.

"This is going to help me," he said. "It's going to be great for my confidence. There are two questions everyone has to answer when they come out on the tour: 'Can I make it? Then, if I make it, can I win?' You have to prove it. Now I've proved it. That will help. That will make the second one come easier."

Tom Watson, the Player of the Year for the past two seasons, made his first start of 1979 a good one. Prepping for the defense of his title in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am this week, Watson played his last nine in 33. That gave him 71 and a tie for second at 287.

He shared second with Bill Kratzert, Artie McNickle and Wayne Levi. Levi had the day's best round, 68. McNickle shot 72 and Kratzert 74.

Jerry McGee, the second-round leader, took himself out of it with a double bogey on the 14th hole. He had to birdie No. 18 to salvage 76 and a tie at 288 with Lee Trevino, Victor Regalado and Jerry Pate, all with 74s.

Zoeller, 27 and carrying a sturdy 190 pounds on a 5-foot-10 frame, ranks among the game's longest hitters. He has shown improvement in his four previous years on the tour, winning more than $100,000 last year.

The improvement, he said, was due to his wife.

"I used to do my share of drinking — imbibing, getting drunk — whatever you want to call it. About four nights a week. When we got engaged, I figured I had to straighten up my act a little."

Women Host UNC-G

East Carolina's women's basketball team hosts UNC-Greensboro tonight at 7 p.m. in a return meeting in Minges Coliseum. ECU won the previous game 100-55 and now boasts a 10-7 record.

The Pirates are led by junior forward Rosie Thompson. She holds the top scoring honors with a 25.8 average. Three other players continue to score in double figures. Guards Gale Kerbaugh and Lydia Roundtree are averaging 13.7 and 13.0 points, respectively. Center Marcia Girven is close behind with an 11.1 average.

ECU's next home game will be Friday night against N. C. State.

Woody Peale

East Carolina University's Pirates showed that they had a lot of courage Saturday night in their game against Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

The Pirates, who zoomed out to a 13-0 lead and led minutes later by 17 points, could easily have folded when they had problems with the Tech defenses later on and lost their lead.

Tech actually pushed ahead by as much as four points in the final five minutes of play, but the Pirates hung on, forced some bad shots, and got back into the game to force the overtime.

Then, in the extra period, they kept their poise even when they fell back by a couple and managed to tie it up then have the chance to win it at the end of the overtime—which they did, 66-64.

But even with a difficult time in getting the ball in bounds, the Pirates got off the shot to win. Oddly enough it was George Maynor who got the basket, making the third time this year that Maynor had hit to provide a victory for the Bucs. Earlier, his closing second basket against Iona provided a 76-75 win, and a couple of free throws late in the game against South Carolina gave the Bucs the cushion they needed to survive a half-court shot that ended it at 56-55.

For Oliver Mack, the game was one that saw him break out of a shooting slump. The Pirate scoring leader hit 11 of 18 shots from the field.

But Mack was embarrassed a couple of times. Late in regulation, he missed on both ends of a two-shot foul, and that nearly became crucial. He did come back to score the tying basket that forced overtime.

Another time, we went up to slam in a dunk...and missed, a very untypical Mack move.

It all shows that even the best are human. Otherwise, it was a fine night for the senior in the big city.

Mack's 24 points increased his career total to 1,026, moving him past Larry Hunt into 11th place on the all-time list. Hunt is now 12th with 1,012.

Mack should move into tenth place Tuesday night against William & Mary, as he needs just six points to pass Jim Fairley, who collected 1,031. Next up will be number nine Tom Miller, who scored 1,048. Mack could pass both of them in the game. Then, there is a gap before number eight Billy Brogden, who scored 1,098.

Who's Number One?

Saturday afternoon, after Lefty Driessell did everything he could to lose to Notre Dame and still won, it would have seemed that the Tar Heels of North Carolina had first place in the polls wrapped up.

But instead, the Heels went right out and celebrated by losing to lowly Clemson in an ACC contest.

Which left things up in the air. Michigan State, the number four team, also lost during the week, so that would seem to indicate that Indiana State will take over the top spot.

The Sycamores, who earlier beat East Carolina, 102-79, in the Hatter Classic, were ranked third in last week's AP poll, and are the nation's lone unbeaten team.

But the question remains as to whether the voters would go that far as to name the Sycamores the top team, since they don't really have the "name" that the others on the poll do.

We'll see tomorrow.

It's A Bird

Four Gridders Voted Into Hall Of Fame

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Johnny Unitas, Dick Butkus, Ron Mix and Yale Lary form the 1979 class joining the Pro Football Hall of Fame, it was announced today.

Unitas, the rags-to-riches quarterback of the Baltimore Colts, and Butkus, the Chicago Bears' linebacking great, enter the hall in the first year after their five seasons of retirement.

Mix, a perennial All-American Football League offensive tackle of the San Diego Chargers, retired in 1971 after one year with the Oakland Raiders. Lary was a league-leading punter, star defensive back and punt return specialist for the Detroit Lions before retiring in 1963.

The four were chosen by the 29-member board of selectors. They will be formally enshrined Saturday, July 28, in Canton in ceremonies before an exhibition between the Dallas Cowboys and Oakland Raiders.

Their selection brings to 102 the number enshrined in the Hall of Fame.

Unitas, cut by the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1955, jumped from a $6 a game semi-pro quarterback to regular status with the Colts the next season. He would go on to lead Baltimore to National Football League titles in 1956 and 1959.

The 6-foot-1, 195-pound University of Louisville graduate showcased his talents in the 1958 championship game. He completed 26 of 40 passes for 361 yards, guided the Colts to a game-tying touchdown at the end of regulation and took them on an 80-yard march to beat the New York Giants 23-17 in overtime.

His 18-year career accomplishments are staggering: 2,830 completions in 5,186 passes for 40,239 yards — almost 24 miles — and 290 touchdowns. When he retired, no other passer had even remotely approached those massive totals.

One of his NFL records probably never will be broken. Unitas threw at least one touchdown pass in 47 straight games, a streak that started in 1956 and ended in 1960. He played his last year with the Chargers before quitting.

Butkus, who played at 6-3 and 245 pounds, was notorious for his vicious hitting as a middle linebacker in nine injury-shortened seasons. He becomes the 17th Bears' player to join the shrine.

The University of Illinois All-American won all-NFL acclaim eight times and played in eight Pro Bowls. A severe knee injury in his final season in 1973 shortened Butkus' career.

Unlike most defensive stars, the Chicago native shows up in several statistical categories. He had 22 interceptions and 25 fumble recoveries, the latter still ranking as the league's second best all-time total. He had more than 1,000 tackles and 500 assists.

Madison Beats ECU

James Madison took the lead after only two events and held off East Carolina for a 129.25-122.75 victory in gymnastics Sunday afternoon in Minges Coliseum.

Madison's Maureen Ranney was the only double winner of the day, taking first in vaulting with 8.4 points and the floor exercise with 8.85 points to push the visitors to a 64.45-58.45 lead at the midpoint of the meet. Ranney also won the all-around scoring at 33.00.

Laura Mills won the floor exercise competition with an 8.5 score for the Duchesses, now 4-3, while Elizabeth Jackson of the Pirates was tops on the balance beam at 8.3.

"Madison is the best team we have met so far," said Pirate coach Stevie Chepko. "We forced them to do good routines and they hit for some high points."

"Elizabeth had her best meet all year. She took first place on the beam and that's where we showed drastic improvement as a team." Carol Layton of East Carolina and Madison's Marilyn Blanke tied for second on the beam at 8.05.

Other individual leaders for the Pirates, now 2-3, were Phyllis Nelson, third at 7.95 on the uneven bars, and Susan McKnight, second in the floor exercise at 8.8 and fourth in vaulting at 7.8.

Jackson, McKnight and Nelson all qualified for regional competition in all-around, and the team eclipsed the 112 score required to enter regional competition.

East Carolina will next compete at Duke Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m.

Porter Sparks Hot Pistons In Remarkable 69.1% Effort

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Kevin Porter is the spark that ignites the Detroit Pistons, and he had their motors running at full speed Sunday.

The Pistons sank their first seven shots from the field and went on to set a National Basketball Association record by hitting 69.1 percent from the field, 56 of 81, in defeating the San Diego Clippers 128-111.

M.L. Carr led Detroit with 26 points. Porter, the NBA leader in assists, handed out 19 to go with his 24 points.

"We're playing our best basketball of the season," crowed Detroit Coach Dick Vitale, enjoying a four-game winning streak. "We got a great all-around performance today."

Nets 117, Suns 114

New Jersey trailed by 23 points early in the third period but came back to win behind 37 points by reserve guard John Williamson, who got 16 of his points in the last 4½ minutes.

Williamson scored on a drive with 34 seconds left to tie the score at 113, put the Nets ahead to stay with another driving basket with five seconds left and sank two free throws with one second on the clock to wrap it up.

Nuggets 98, Bulls 87

David Thompson scored 27 points as Denver built a 23-point lead early in the third period and held on to win easily despite a 21-point, 29-rebound effort by Bulls reserve forward Mark Landsberger. His rebounds were the most by any NBA player in one game this season.

Kings 137, Cavaliers 109

Kansas City led 62-37 at halftime and coasted past Cleveland as Otis Birdsong had 30 points and 10 assists and Billy McKinney, playing in place of injured Phil Ford, got 25 points.

Ford scored eight points before leaving the game in the first half with a jammed left wrist.

Celtics 103, Warriors 102

Chris Ford scored a career-high 34 points as Boston snapped a four-game losing streak by beating Golden State, which had fought back from an early 17-point deficit to lead 98-96. But Ford scored on a drive, Curtis Rowe made a three-point play and player-coach Dave Cowens added two free throws to put the Celtics ahead to stay.

Pacers 123, Spurs 110

Indiana won its third in a row as Johnny Davis scored 27 points to lead four Pacers who got 20 or more. "I don't know who was more pitiful — us or the referees," said Spurs Coach Doug Moe.

Blazers 116, 76ers 94

Lionel Hollins sank 14 of 16 shots from the field, scored 33 points and had 12 assists for Portland, which took command with 15 straight points in the opening period and never was caught.

Bullets 122, Knicks 105

Bobby Dandridge scored all 24 of his points in the first three periods for Washington, which jumped ahead 32-22 and never trailed as the Knicks finished an 0-5 road trip.

Lakers 111, Bucks 109

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored a season-high 40 points, including six free throws in the final minute that clinched the victory for Los Angeles.

Defensive Stars May Shine In Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With people like Earl Campbell, Terry Bradshaw, Lynn Swann, Walter Payton, Roger Staubach and Harold Carmichael in the game, tonight's Pro Bowl would figure to be a wild and crazy offensive show.

But that "figuring" doesn't take into account the defensive stars in the annual clash between the National Football League All-Stars.

When the AFC's Campbell carries the ball, or Bradshaw looks for favorite receiver Swann, they'll have to contend with NFC defenders like Bill Bergey, Jack Youngblood, Al Baker and Cliff Harris.

And when Payton, Staubach and Carmichael are trying to move the NFC offense, they'll be looking at an AFC defense that includes Lyle Alzado, Joe Greene, Randy Gradishar and Louis Wright.

Since the teams have just one week of practice together, the NFL has given some edge to the offenses by writing in special Pro Bowl rules that restrict the defenses.

The rules dictate that the defense must always be in a 4-3 set, play a man-for-man with a free safety, and cannot blitz unless the situation is third down and less than three yards to go.

That, of course, means the respective offenses won't have to worry about making a lot of adjustments, and that the quarterbacks can essentially forget about being blitzed.

"That doesn't exactly mean the quarterback's in a rocking chair," said Staubach, "but it does give you one less thing to worry about."

Although a week is not enough time to install many fancy plays, both AFC Coach Chuck Fairbanks and the NFC's Bud Grant said they expect the game to be wide-open.

"With the restrictions on the defense and all the high-powered backs and receivers, it may well be a high-scoring game," said Grant.

The first Pro Bowl game, which matched the NFL East and West All-Stars, was held in 1951 at the site of this renewal, the Coliseum.

Who'll Be Diamond's First $1 Million Man?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Who's going to be baseball's first $1 million-a-year player?

"It has to come, they're inching closer," former Giants' star Monte Irvin was saying just the other day at ceremonies announcing teammate Willie Mays' election into baseball's Hall of Fame.

Somebody asked "Say Hey Willie" how much he thought he would be worth in today's inflated market.

"If Jim Rice is worth $5.4 million, I figure I would be worth $8 million," replied Mays, not one to succumb to false modesty.

"Ten million at least," whispered Irvin standing in the wings.

"In Willie's day, the magic salary figure for the baseball superstar was $100,000 so you can see how far we've come, 10 times greater now," Monte added. "There were some other guys I think you'd have to classify as $10 million guys measured by the present price tags. Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio, Stan Musial, Sandy Koufax, Hank Aaron, also Mickey Mantle. I am not going back to the Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson eras."

Big Dave Parker came close to the new plateau last Friday when he signed a five-year contract with Pittsburgh for a reported $4.5 million. Broken down, that puts his yearly wage at $900,000, highest in the game.

Earlier, Pete Rose signed a four-year contract with the Phillies for $3.4 million followed by Jim Rice's agreement to keep playing with the Boston Red Sox for $5.4 million covering seven years.

It will be interesting to see how much the New York Yankees have to shell out to Rod Carew if they land the perennial American League batting champion.

Although pro basketball has the highest average pay scale — around $147,000 — baseball has moved ahead of both basketball and football in rewarding its most glamorous performers.

Here is the rundown of the aristocrats of sports:

- Dave Parker, baseball, $900,000.
- Pete Rose, baseball, $850,000.
- O.J. Simpson, football, $800,000.
- David Thompson, basketball, $800,000.
- Julius Erving, basketball, $700,000.
- Vida Blue, baseball, $700,000.
- Bjorn Borg, tennis, $690,000.
- Pete Maravich, basketball, $650,000.
- Artis Gilmore, basketball, $650,000.
- Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, basketball, $625,000.
- Darrel McHargue, jockey, $600,000.
- Reggie Jackson and Catfish Hunter are also in the $600,000 range along with hockey's Ulf Nilsson.

With Rose, Rice and Parker having signed long-term contracts, the question is who will be the first to reach the $1 million-a-year figure? One man's guess: Ron Guidry, the Yankees slingshot.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF © 1979 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK762 ♦952 ♠AJ7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—If your nostrils are attuned, you will smell the fragrance of a slam. Besides a good five-card suit and an outside ace, you have the queen in partner's suit—a card that could be very important. A cue-bid of four clubs will express your intentions without by-passing the "safe" game contract.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ852 ♥J7 ♦AQ72 ♠94
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Since partner is a passed hand, abandon all thoughts of game. Your object now is to play in the best part score possible, and you have just found that spot. Partner's response guarantees a five-card suit which, opposite your holding, makes two hearts a playable contract. Any attempt you might make to improve the contract could lead to disaster.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ1087 ♥A6 ♦973 ♠842
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♣ ?
What action do you take?

A.—If you had one more heart, you could afford to respond two hearts, but as it is, there is nothing you can do with any safety. A bid of two spades is forcing and is likely to propel your side to an uncomfortable level. You must pass and hope that partner can reopen the bidding.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK954 ♥AKQJ7 ♦8 ♠73
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♣ Db. Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Partner's double is for penalties, but it is not an absolute command. At this vulnerability, the 300 or so points we might receive will not be adequate compensation for a missed vulnerable game, or even slam. We would overrule partner and jump to three hearts to show our strong, distributional hand.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ104 ♥93 ♦AJ8742
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ ?
What action do you take?

A.—This is a very difficult problem. Partner's double is for penalties, but it is not an absolute command. At this vulnerability, the 300 or so points we might receive will not be adequate compensation for a missed vulnerable game, or even slam. We would overrule partner and jump to three hearts to show our strong, distributional hand.

lem. Without East's interference, we would have completed the description of our distribution by rebidding three spades. Now that action is fraught with danger because of the potential misfit. The more prudent course is to pass the decision around to partner, and hope that he comes up with the winning solution.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK532 ♥K10 ♦J83 ♠AQ7
Partner opens the bidding with five diamonds. What action do you take?

A.—For his preemptive opening bid at the five-level, partner should have at least a solid eight-card suit. Thus, you have excellent prospects for a small slam, providing the opponents are unable to collect two fast heart tricks. To guard against this, bid six no trump—if the opponents elect to lead hearts, it will be up to your king, not through it.

Q.7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ1085 ♥A982 ♦K983
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one club. What action do you take?

A.—Offensively, your hand is quite powerful—it could easily produce a game in any one of three suits opposite a very minimal holding in partner's hand. To advise partner that you have support for any suit he can introduce, make a takeout double. If you bid one spade, you risk losing a fit in one of the red suits.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ852 ♥AJ1076 ♦A ♠A8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Since you hold three aces and a king, your hand is actually worth more than its 17 high-card points. In addition, you have exceptional distributional values. Once partner has shown enough values to respond—6 points at least—we would insist on game, and would make our intentions known to partner by jumping to three hearts.

Nashville Is Acquiring Hollywood 'Trademark'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Nashville has gone Hollywood. Scripts and sets may someday rival guitars and country music as Nashville trademarks.

This country music capital of the world is brightening up the silver screen by turning out an average of one motion picture a year. And more are planned for 1979, including the movie based on Loretta Lynn's autobiography, "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Eleven motion pictures or made-for-TV movies have been filmed in the Nashville area since 1971. The best known, of course, was Robert Altman's acclaimed "Nashville," in 1974.

Others were "Nashville Coyote," a Disney movie, in 1971; "W.W. and the Dixie Dancekings" starring Burt Reynolds, in 1974; "Framed" starring Joe Don Baker, in 1974; "All the Kind Strangers," a television movie in 1974; "Riding the Rails" starring Johnny Cash, a television movie in 1975; "J.D. and the Salt Flat Kid," starring Jesse Turner, in 1976; "Nashville Girl" in 1976; "Wilma" starring Cicely Tyson, a television movie in 1977; "Murder in Music City," a television movie in 1978, starring Sonny Bono, and "The Disc Jockey" starring Jim Stafford, in 1978.

"Coal Miner's Daughter" will star Sissy Spacek as Miss Lynn. Additionally, three others may be shot here this year, including "A Place to Come To," starring Robert Redford. "The Sisters," about a black family that moves from the North to the South, and "Money Ball," about a plot to steal money at a shopping mall.

Also on the horizon, Dolly Parton has signed a three-movie package with 20th Century-Fox, although there's been no confirmation that the movies will be filmed here.

"The movies are coming here for a lot of reasons," said Mike DuBois, who has been active in working with movie companies.

In his job with the Tennessee Economic Development Department, "Mostly it's the country music background here. But they've also found it easier to work with the locals (unions) here than the West Coast unions."

"Also, it's a matter of basic cooperation here. They know how easy it is to get crews in and out of here on time."

Patsy Bruce, a songwriter who's been heavily involved in casting local talent, said Nashville has potential as a film center.

"We have a wealth of talent here," she said. "A talent director came here recently and was astounded at the talent here."

Discouraging Aspect In Counterprogramming

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight, TV viewers can witness what producer Ed Friendly calls "one of the most ludicrous aspects of our business" — counterprogramming. This is the network practice of airing a big, attractive show to steal audience from another network's big, attractive show. It illuminates the most discouraging fact about TV's ratings-for-dollars system: The public usually loses.

There isn't a lot of excellence in commercial television, and it's a shame to see quality programs wasted as fodder in the ratings wars. That's what happens tonight when Friendly's fine "Backstairs at the White House" on NBC is pitted against CBS' equally fine "The Corn is Green."

"Backstairs" is the story of life in the White House; not presidential life, mind you, with heated debates and Great Weighty Decisions, but another life, the only continuing one at the White House — that of the domestic staff. Presidents come and go, but the staff is always there, sizing up the parade of occupants.

Part of the entertainment value of "Backstairs" is that it turns the standard storytelling formula on its head; it doesn't focus on great deeds or great men, but on the tiny doings of ordinary people, with the great men serving as background characters.

The nine-hour miniseries tells the story of servants' life through eight administrations, from President Taft to President Eisenhower, as viewed by Lillian Rogers Parks, whose mother, Maggie Rogers, became the first black woman to serve on the president's personal staff. Mrs. Parks later worked at the White House and wrote a best-selling 1961 book on her experiences, on which the series is based.

The performances are exceptional. Olivia Cole as Maggie Rogers, Leslie Uggams as Lillian convey that balance of respect and resentment likely felt by poor people who leave the ghetto in the morning to spend the day maintaining the good life for the president and his family. Louis Gossett Jr. and Robert Hooks are engaging as their fellow servants.

"The Corn is Green" on CBS is testimony to Katharine Hepburn's enduring command of her craft. She is artful in this second film version of Emlyn Williams' play, directed by George Cukor. It is the ninth Cukor-Hepburn film since they first teamed for "A Bill of Divorcement" in 1932.

Four Approved Mixed Drinks

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — Voters in four Brunswick County communities approved mixed drinks sales Saturday in local referendums after low-key campaigns.

Southport, the largest of the communities, approved the sale of mixed beverages 350 to 321. Other communities and the votes were Long Beach, 247-134; Sunset Beach 43-22 and Calabash, 32-14.

After the voting, Calabash Mayor Ivey High said he expected that three of the town's 20 restaurants will apply for permits to serve mixed drinks. High said most restaurants are family-type businesses and may not be interested in serving liquor.

Brunswick County has seven ABC systems.

State ABC administrator William Hester said it will take three to four weeks to accept, process and issue mixed-drink licenses in the four communities.

The sale of mixed beverages has now been approved in 14 of the 16 places where referendums have been held. Other places where it has been approved are Asheville, Louisville, Southern Pines and Sanford, and Mecklenburg, New Hanover, Orange, Durham, Wake, Onslow counties. Dare County and Black Mountain voters failed to give their approval.

Meanwhile, petitions are circulating in Reidsville asking that a liquor referendum be held there.

Mike Raeford, president of the Garden Inn Inc., said nine copies are being circulated. Raeford asked the Reidsville City Council about two weeks ago to set a referendum but was turned down.

Under the local option law passed last year by the General Assembly, an alternate route to getting a referendum is securing the signatures of at least 20 percent of the registered voters in the municipality where the ABC system is located.

Raeford will need about 1,210 signatures to fulfill the requirement, and the signatures must be gathered within 90 days.

"I think Greensboro has a good chance of passing it, and Reidsville is always competing with Greensboro to keep our customers here," Raeford said. "I think it's important to be able to offer the same services as Greensboro if we want the people to stay here in Reidsville."

Claim 'Hostage' Aided Escapes

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — A woman who was used as a hostage by two state prison escapees has been arrested and will be charged with aiding their escape, police said. The two men kept officers at bay through Saturday afternoon and evening before surrendering. They said the two women with them were hostages.

But Patricia Ann Butler, 18, of Denver, was arrested Sunday and police said she would be arraigned on charges of aiding and abetting an escape. Police said the other woman was believed to be a true hostage.

N.C. Hospitals 'Under The Gun' In Cost Push

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina hospital administrators are under the gun about lowering costs, and they say they aren't happy with the prospect of more government regulation.

Members of a state Senate subcommittee are preparing legislation that would regulate hospital costs. And federal officials have threatened to push for similar legislation.

Medical costs nationally increased by more than 13 percent a year, according to Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. His department asked in December that hospitals increase their budgets by no more than 9.7 percent over their expenditures in 1978.

But, said one hospital administrator, "We have too much damn government regulating hospitals now."

"And that, I think, is part of the problem," said David B. Briggs, director of Raleigh Community Hospital.

Hospital officials said that one way to keep within the 9.7 percent limit would be to cut back on patient services. But they don't anticipate doing that any time soon.

"We don't feel we ought to cut back on services. Services are what we are here for," said John Lynch, director of North Carolina Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem. The average cost per day went up from $230 to $250 a day at Baptist from last fiscal year to this one, a rise of 9 percent, officials said.

Baptist is affiliated with Bowman Gray Medical School, and like other school-affiliated hospitals, is more expensive than the average community hospital.

"If we want to continue services and keep within the limits, it's going to be difficult," Lynch said.

Between October 1977 and October 1978, the total cost of hospital services in North Carolina rose 12.1 percent, according to a state budget office report. The year before, costs rose by 13.5 percent.

"I think (the slower rise) shows the voluntary approach to curbing costs is working," said Dennis R. Berry, chairman of the N.C. General Hospital Association board of directors.

But Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., D-Wake, said the voluntary effort wasn't enough.

"I don't like any regulatory process. I would much prefer the free enterprise system. But some kind of regulation is necessary to keep those medical costs down," said Lake, who is chairman of the Senate Medical Cost Containment Commission, the group working on proposals to cut hospital costs.

Shanghai-Born Man Finds Homeland Now Relaxed

Timothy T.S. Tung, born and raised in Shanghai, recently returned to China with his wife and daughter for the first time since he left 31 years ago. In a series of seven articles written for AP Newsfeatures, he reports his impressions.

Before leaving Shanghai in 1947 to attend the University of Missouri Journalism School, he worked as a reporter for Sheng Pao (Shanghai Daily) and as an assistant news editor for Tung Nan Jih Pao (The South-east Daily) while a student of literature at Shanghai's St. John's University.

Since he got his first byline at age 14, his work, which includes stories and essays contributed to numerous magazines, has been published in both Chinese and English. In 1952 he became editor and chief translator for Lien Ho Jih Pao (The United Journal), a Chinese Daily in New York.

He left the paper in 1963 to attend Columbia University's Graduate School of Library Science, where he received a master's degree in 1964. Since then he has been a librarian at the City College of New York, where he is now a specialist in Asian and Chinese materials.

EDITOR'S NOTE — This first in a series of seven articles by Shanghai-born Timothy T.S. Tung, who recently returned to China for the first time in 31 years, deals with the easing of restrictions in China.

By TIMOTHY T.S. TUNG
For AP Newsfeatures

The day I arrived at a Peking hotel after an absence of 31 years from China, a woman relative came to say hello — and goodbye.

Barely reacquainted with me, she had to leave the very next day for Europe on an official mission. Such an assignment is not an everyday affair.

There wasn't even time to stay for lunch. Her last day's schedule in preparation for the trip was crowded with appointments, of which one was with her hairdresser. She was "ordered" to have her hair washed and bobbed in order to go West.

Puritanical China is concerned about looks among its citizens now. An enlightening sign. Going to the hairdresser is no longer novel. I was told. I looked around. Sure enough, almost all my women relatives of the younger generation had had some form of a "permanent."

Color and style are beginning to come back. Blue-or gray-clad young women use scarves or kerchiefs smartly to add color.

Such is the relaxed air in China that one does not feel strange to hear almost everyone say that but for the dozen years wasted under the reign of the "Gang of Four" China would have made greater progress in every corner.

An astonishing sight in Peking is rows upon rows of modern apartment buildings, hundreds of them, being erected along a big boulevard from the east end to the west.

The housing shortage is acute because population in Peking has increased rapidly. But patient citizens can begin to hope to move into new, modern living-units now. These buildings, equipped with balconies and toilet facilities, have been erected since the death of Mao Tse-tung.

A family of two or three, living in a small room of 15 square meters, can now hope for larger quarters including a toilet and a shared kitchen. Their present rent may be low, about six yuans ($3.60) a month, including gas, electricity and water, but they are willing to pay more for larger rooms.

A couple making 120 yuans a month together certainly can afford a larger apartment. But during the shortage, whether they can afford or not is irrelevant.

The fall of the "Gang of Four" has brought a lot of changes. Elderly, retired people whose life savings were taken away during the Cultural Revolution are now given back the money. Salaries are being revised. Those who pass college entrance examinations can look forward to a brighter future.

Arts, theater and literature are booming. Peking Opera and classical ballets, banned by the order of Chiang Ching, are returning. New literary magazines specializing in translations of foreign literature are announcing their publications in the People's Daily. Foreign films begin to reappear. And skills of restaurant chefs are again respected.

Newspapers are becoming more and more lively. The People's Daily now publishes 10 pages instead of eight. New features include summaries of international news, color-photos, literary supplements, reports on travels in foreign countries, including America, TV program listings and even advertising for theater presentations.

But the liveliest feature of all is the "Letters to the Editor" column. Here an ordinary citizen can send in complaints against the bureaucracy and hope for a sympathetic ear. And he even gets paid if his letter gets published.

In Shanghai, I bought a Chinese-made watch for my brother for 120 yuans, not a small sum. A few days later in Peking, the watch stopped. My brother had so much faith in the letters department of the RESTRICTIONS RELAXED—Arts, theater and literature are thriving in the new China, newspapers are becoming livelier and foreign films are beginning to reappear. Here a poster of a young Gregory Peck advertises the first English language film to be shown in many years in a Shanghai movie theater.

People's Daily that he persuaded me to write to the paper to complain. He is hoping to get his watch replaced.

The government is apparently attempting in some way to cut red tape for ordinary citizens. In the former Legation Quarter, a group of simple country-folks camped out in front of a Public Security Bureau office waiting for its doors to open. These were people from nearby rural areas who had an ax to grind and who had chosen to appeal directly to a higher authority.

Except for my relatives' having to register at the front desk of the hotel each time they came to visit, we felt our movement not restricted in any way. We freely took buses and visited my relatives' apartments just like local citizens.

My first day in Peking was interrupted by a visit from a representative from Lu Xing She (China Travel Service), asking if she could render me any help. I asked her to arrange for four of my old friends to come to the hotel for a reunion.

"But you already know their addresses. Why can't you contact them yourself?" she said as she looked at the list of names I handed her.

"I thought I had to arrange such visits through Lu Xing She," I replied.

"That's a thing of the past. It was the 'Gang of Four'..."

Happily I ushered her out of my room.

Associate Agricultural Extension Agent

Soil acidity continues to reduce soybean yields in Pitt County.

Tommye Harrison of Grimesland cooperated with the Agricultural Extension Service in a soybean lime test in 1978. The test clearly demonstrated the benefits of applying lime where it's needed.

The soybeans yielded 8.6 bushels per acre where no lime was applied, compared to the 20 bushels per acre yielded from soybeans that received the recommended amount of lime.

An 11.4 bushel increase in yield as a result of liming is more than enough to pay for the cost of the lime.

The cost of lime, $20 per ton, and two tons of lime per acre results in a cost of $40 per acre. An 11.4 bushel increase in yield at $6.50 per bushel results in an increase of $74.10 per increase in gross sales. Minus the cost of the lime, the net return would be $34.10 per acre by liming. The cost of the lime should be spread over a two to three year period.

The initial soil pH at Harrison's site was 4.8, with lime applied in accordance with soil test recommendations by the state Department of Agriculture. The lime was not applied until late March, with a droughty weather condition in the late summer reducing the yield potential.

It is of interest not to change the soil pH during the growing season. The lime was applied in late March with an initial soil pH of 4.8, with the pH rising to 5.5 by late May and 6.2 in early October.

The summary of soil tests in Pitt County for 1977-78 indicate that, 63 percent of the fields sampled needed lime.

One of the most important reasons why plants respond to lime is the precipitation of exchangeable aluminum. When aluminum is precipitated out, or percent aluminum saturation is reduced, there is less chance of aluminum toxicity. Toxicity inhibits cell division and elongation in root growth.

A reduction in water soluble manganese is found when acid soils are limed. Manganese toxicity can occur with soils with a low pH, and overliming can result in a manganese deficiency.

Liming increases the available phosphorus fertilizer if aluminum is present. Acid soils take up aluminum and phosphate.

Liming increases Rhizobium bacteria activity, which is needed for legume crops such as soybeans. The amount of soybean nodulation is significantly increased when soil acidity is decreased.

Offer Program To Beekeepers

Dinner will be served at the meeting. Interested persons are requested to call the Extension Office, 758-1196, to make arrangements for the meeting.

Cite Major Savings In Weather Satellite-Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Weather satellites save farmers, seamen, fishermen and others an estimated $172 million a year, according to a study released Saturday by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Two NOAA researchers said the savings are in addition to the untold number of lives that may be saved by storm warnings from weather watching spacecraft.

"The advent of satellites is perhaps the greatest significant advance on routine environmental monitoring that has been developed in history," W. John Hussey and E. Larry Heacock said in the report.

NOAA's National Environmental Satellite Service has five satellites in operation in orbit and two older craft on standby in orbit. Two of the operational weather eyes are circling Earth in north-south orbits and three are in 22,300-mile-high orbits where they remain over one point on Earth.

In addition, the space agency is preparing to launch another satellite, now designated NOAA-A, in April from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Hussey and Heacock said the agricultural industry, especially Florida citrus growers, probably benefits most financially from the weather satellites.

Observations of Florida, for example, provide ground temperature charts every 30 minutes that can show the southerly progress of frost during winter nights. This information can tell citrus growers when to start the heating their groves to prevent frost damage to oranges and other fruit.

Hussey and Heacock estimated the satellite advisories save 1 1/2 hours of heat protection every cold night. It costs $833,000 an hour for grove heater fuel in Florida and there are 35 to 40 cold nights

Summary Of Farm Production In '78

According to information released by the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Tar Heel farmers brought in an estimated 827 million pounds of flue-cured tobacco during 1978, 15 percent more than 1977's crop.

Tobacco yields averaged 2,120 pounds per acre, compared with 1,883 the previous year.

North Carolina's corn crop totaled 121.6 million bushels, up 37 percent from the drought-reduced crops of 1977.

Production of corn for grain in the United States is estimated at a record 7.08 billion bushels, up 10 percent over 1977's totals.

According to officials, this is the fourth consecutive year that a corn production record has been set, due to sharply increased yields.

Soybean production in the Tar Heel State brought in 37.2 million bushels, up 28 percent over 1977's yields.

This record production beat the previous mark of 34.8 million bushels established in 1973. National production of soybeans for 1978 was a record high 1.84 billion bushels, five percent higher than the 1.76 billion bushels produced in 1977.

North Carolina continued in 1978 as the leading producer of sweet potatoes in the United States, with a harvested acreage of 37,000, up 12 percent from the prior year.

Peanut production in North Carolina was estimated at 464.8 million pounds, up five percent from the 1977 crop.

Crops of oats, apples, peaches, barley, grapes and pecans were up in North Carolina in 1978, with cotton, burley tobacco, wheat, Irish potatoes and commercial vegetables showing declines from the previous year.
