$17.5 Million Prison Unit Set In Greene

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced today that a new 480-bed prison unit will be built in Greene County next to the present unit near Maury.

The institution, which carries a price tag of $17.5 million, will be a medium-security structure for 480 adult male felons, mainly from the eastern part of the state.

"This will be a step forward for the eastern part of the state," Hunt said at a news conference in the old House Chamber in the Capitol Building. "They haven't had this kind of facility."

The new prison will provide about 280 service jobs for the Greene County area and a maximum of 100 construction jobs while the building goes up.

"This is another major step toward easing the overcrowding of our prisons," Hunt said. State Corrections Secretary Amos Reed, who was with Hunt at the news conference, said the state is "trying to develop a plan to move people through the system."

The new prison will be a single-cell facility.

Hunt said the lack of single cells, which are often needed for security reasons, has been a problem in the state's prison system.

The unit will include a reception and diagnostic center, an intermediate-care nursing facility, an adult education unit and a vocational training section.

 WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping of China concluded their formal talks today, and Teng announced that the Chinese and American people have "broad prospects" for building a new relationship. Carter and Teng left the White House Oval Office in late morning after a two-hour meeting, and the president described their talks with a rush of adjectives.

FARMVILLE — Bruce Beasley Jr., chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission, said during the organization's recent annual meeting in Farmville that he does not "look for any recession-type conditions to exist" in the county during 1979.

Beasley, who began his second year as chairman at the meeting, noted that figures for 1978 released by the commission reflect three additional industries for Pitt during the year with major plant expansions announced at two existing industries.

According to Beasley, the results of the three new industries and two plant expansions will be over 640 new jobs and new investment in excess of $18 million.

He pointed out, "the average guy on the street has a difficult time comprehending the many things which are happening within our industrial community. For 1978, our industrial scoreboard represents the most growth of any county in eastern North Carolina."

The chairman said that 17,409 new jobs were added to the state in 1978 with 2,490 of those going to the eastern section. He asserted, "excluding our expansions, Pitt County attracted almost 20 percent of all the new manufacturing jobs" in the east.

Beasley added that Pitt County, with 6,404 industrial employees in the first quarter of 1978, ranks 32nd in the state in the number of employees in manufacturing.

"While most of the county worries about a possible recession," he said, "our concern is trying not to grow so fast that we get a

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) —

The U.S. Embassy today ordered the evacuation from Iran of all dependents of U.S. government employees and again urged all non-essential American citizens to get out of the country following attacks on three Americans.

The order came as supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini took to the streets as the exiled Shiite Moslem opposition leader continued delaying his return.

This is the first time the U.S. government has actually ordered anyone out of Iran. Previous announcements have encouraged people without important business to leave.

There are fewer than 10,000 Americans left in Iran, down from a peak of 45,000 when the unrest here started a year ago.

The order was issued after a shooting attack on an U.S. Air Force major Sunday night in Tehran and the beating of U.S. Consul David C. McGaffey and an American employee of Bell Helicopter International in the central Iranian city of Isfahan on Monday afternoon.

U.S. Consulate sources in Isfahan said the trouble there began about 4 p.m. Monday with an altercation between the Bell Helicopter employee and an Iranian taxi driver near the city's Khoroush Hotel. The sources said a shot was fired during the dispute and the taxi driver had been hospitalized with a facial wound.

Details on the attack on McGaffey were not immediately available.

Iran's airports were supposed to be open today, but only one commercial plane was reported to have landed, troops turned outgoing passengers away, and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini continued to delay his return from exile.

Mobs of Khomeini's supporters hit the streets of Tehran again, attacking a police officer, setting fire to a brewery and clashing with security forces at least twice. Peaceful demonstrations were reported in the towns of Sanjan and Rezayieh.

Military authorities announced that the airports would reopen today after being closed for six days to delay Khomeini's return. Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar told reporters Monday the Tehran airport would be open in a few hours.

Hopeful travelers hurried to the airport this morning, but troops and police turned them away. Japan Air Lines said it landed a chartered DC-8 to evacuate Japanese petrochemical workers, but other foreign airlines said they had no official word that they could resume flights in and out of the country.

In Paris, a spokesman for Khomeini said the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader would not leave for Iran Tuesday night because Air France, which will supply him a charter flight, wanted to check the security arrangements at the Tehran Airport for at least 24 hours after its reopening.

A large crowd massed at the airport for demonstrations in support of the ayatullah but broke up by midmorning.

"TARCOAL BEDS?"

I am interested in learning more about "tarcoal" (charcoal) beds, which were used on farms throughout eastern North Carolina in the late 1800's and early 1900's. Trees were stacked in piles and burned in order to extract tar and pitch which could be used in boatmaking, roofing and other activities. I'd like to talk with anyone who remembers these and could supply me information about locations of former beds and other related facts. Heavy Damage Results In Blaze At Apartment

Heavy damage resulted from a fire in an apartment building at 104 Ash St. late yesterday afternoon.

The blaze was reported at 5:28 p.m. and fire units remained at the scene until 8:15 p.m. Fire Department officers reported.

Officers said the blaze started in the kitchen of apartment number five, spreading to the second floor, attic and roof, and to apartment number six.

Firemen said heavy fire, water and smoke damage resulted to those two apartments, while moderate fire and heavy water and smoke damage resulted to the apartments adjoining five and six.

The other four apartments in the building — part of the Tar River Estates complex — suffered smoke damage, with some light fire, smoke and water damage to two of them.

Police investigators estimated damage to the structure at $35,000.

Investigators said the fire apparently started from a box of record albums placed on the burner of an electric stove in the kitchen.

Officers said tenants were moving into apartment five and had placed the box on the stove. They quoted the occupants who were away at the time the fire erupted, as saying the stove was not on at the time they placed the albums there.

Two firemen received minor injuries while combating the blaze, officers reported, one a cut wrist and the other a cut ear.

John Paul II Tells Peasants Reform Overdue

By KEVIN M. KELLEGHAN

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II told 250,000 impoverished peasants in southern Mexico that the Roman Catholic Church defends the right to private property, but it is not opposed to expropriation "if it is done in the proper manner."

Scolding "powerful classes who sometimes tend unproductive lands that hide the bread that so many families lack," the pope on Monday told an emotional throng of Indians at a village in mountainous Oaxaca state:

"It is not just, it is not human, it is not Christian that certain situations that are clearly unjust should continue. There must be action soon and profound . . . urgent reforms.

"...The measures to be taken should be adequate. The church defends the legitimate right to private property, but it teaches with no less clarity that hovering over private property is a social mortgage. God-given wealth must serve the general good, and if the common good demands it, there can be no fear of expropriation if it is done in the proper manner."

The Indians, who traveled as much as 24 hours from as far away as Guatemala to see the first pope to visit Mexico, cheered and applauded repeatedly as the brief speech was translated into the Zapotec dialect. The pope spoke in Spanish.

He listed seven rights of the peasant: to the same respect that any other class is entitled to, to full recognition of his dignity, not to be deprived by tactics that often take away the little he has, to the removal of barriers to participation in his own development, to freedom from exploitation, to effective assistance which is neither a handout nor the bread crumbs of justice, and to access to the development he is entitled to.

"Thank you, peasants, for your valuable contribution to social welfare," he said. "Humanity owes you a great deal. You can feel proud of your contribution to the common good."

But the pope told them they must organize to achieve their rights and better their condition.

"One evil that is considerably extensive is the tendency to individualism on the part of farm workers while action that is better coordinated and has solidarity could serve not a little good," he said. "Think about that, beloved children."

Today, the fourth day of the pope's visit to Mexico to open the third decennial conference of Roman Catholic bishops in Latin America, he flies to Guadalajara. He returns to Mexico City tonight and leaves for Rome Wednesday.

Arizona Priest Speaks Out On Marriage Policy

By MIKE McCLOY
Associated Press Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest says a new policy here of making engaged couples wait six months before getting married is needed because young people tend to "prepare for the wedding day, but not the marriage."

"They get the hall a year in advance ... but they don't prepare for the life afterward," said Father James Griffin of Sacred Heart Church in Prescott.

Griffin was among priests throughout northern Arizona who read a letter to parishioners last Sunday from Bishop James Rausch explaining the new policy. The policy takes effect July 1.

Any of the estimated 300,000 Catholics in the diocese who ask a priest to marry them will have to undergo six months of preparation, including a premarital inventory and several sessions of counseling and instruction. The inventory, already in use by many Catholic churches, provides a comprehensive review of the couple's attitudes on children, finances, personal interests, religion and sex.

The waiting period could be waived in cases where relatives must travel great distances and a couple are prepared for the spiritual and human demands of marriage.

It has been long-standing church policy for couples contemplating marriage to have a series of interviews and instructions with a priest. What is new is the specific waiting period.

"The purpose," Rausch said in his letter, "... is not to impose restrictions and obstacles ..."

"Rather, the policy is intended as a wedding gift ... to promote an attitude and atmosphere of growth for the engaged couple. In this way, they may grow in knowledge and experience of each other in a way which dating seldom provides."

The Tucson diocese, for southern Arizona, is instituting a three-month waiting period, and church officials said about a dozen other dioceses have similar policies, including one in New Jersey that requires a one-year wait.

Initial reaction to the policy has ranged from anger to congratulations, said James Jennings, director of commu-

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: Have you a recipe for mushroom "burgers?" My family tasted them at a health-food restaurant and I want to try making them at home. I'd like to learn how to cook some vegetarian dishes. — WILLING TO TRY.

DEAR WILLING TO TRY: I had never tasted mushroom "burgers," let alone cooked them, until your request came. Then I tried a friend's recipe and it worked fine. She serves the mushroom patties to her teen-age boys who stuff them into individual-size pita along with tomato and lettuce salad.

I shredded the mushrooms for the patties in a few minutes in my electric food processor, using the coarse shredding disc. Ever since I discovered even, tiny mushroom pieces are turned out this way, I use the disc (instead of the steel chopping blade) when finely chopped mushrooms are called for. If a processor isn't at hand, the chopping can be done by hand.

MUSHROOM "BURGERS"
1 pound mushrooms
8 slices whole wheat bread
1/2 cup walnuts
1/2 of a small onion
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup salad oil
Small-size pita, heated
Shredded lettuce and diced tomatoes dressed with French dressing

Rinse the mushrooms and pat dry. Using the coarse shredding disc of an electric food processor, push mushrooms through the feeder tube to "chop" fine. Turn mushrooms into a large bowl.

Put the steel chopping blade in place in the processor; tear the bread into the processor bowl. Process until bread is in fine crumbs — make about 2 1/2 cups. Add crumbs to the mushrooms.

With the steel chopping blade in place, process the walnuts coarsely; add to the mushrooms and bread.

Cut the onion half into 2 equal pieces and with the steel chopping blade in place, process the onion until fairly fine. Add onion to the mushrooms, bread and walnuts along with the eggs, salt and pepper; mix well. Shape into 8 patties, each about 3 inches across.

In a large skillet heat the oil. (Butter or margarine will brown the patties too much.) Fry the patties in the oil over moderately high heat until golden — about 5 minutes on each side. Stuff into the hot pita with the lettuce and tomato salad.

Makes 8 patties.

Woman Mayor Is Also Tough Lady

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dianne Feinstein has added to the wide-brimmed hat another symbol of feminine political clout — the fluffy blouse and big white bow.

And like New York's Bella Abzug, San Francisco's first woman mayor is a tough lady. Ms. Feinstein, slender and dark-haired, took office under tragic circumstances — after the City Hall assassinations of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk last Nov. 27.

Her skirt was still stained with blood, when, as acting mayor under the city charter, she made a televised declaration that San Francisco "must and will pull itself together."

The 45-year-old Stanford graduate quickly proved she was a determined, shrewd and ambitious politician. After a week of maneuvering, she was elected mayor by the Board of Supervisors to complete Moscone's term, which ends at the close of 1979. Insiders say she is considered a shoo-in to win her own term, although several strong candidates have already announced plans to oppose her.

Mayor Dianne Feinstein

In an interview, she said she wants to be known as a mayor who cares a lot for people and little for ideology.

"I'm one who shows concern by trying to do rather than talk," she said. "I have learned what it takes to move a bureaucracy."

The new mayor said her toughest task will be to solve post-Proposition 13 budget problems. "I'm taking a look at government with a view of retailoring it in smaller packages."

Pocahontas Tours Announced

Plans have been announced for two tours, sponsored by the Degree of Pocahontas, one to New York City March 1-4 and the second one to Hawaii April 18-26.

The New York tour group will leave here Thursday night, March 1, at nine o'clock and arrive in New York City Friday morning. The group will be staying at the New York Sheraton Hotel.

Tentative plans include viewing the Broadway play "Annie" and dinner and a show at a night club. The group will be returning home Sunday.

The Hawaiian tour group will leave Raleigh-Durham Airport and will be staying at the Imperial Hawaii Hotel. Activities will include a city tour of Honolulu plus optional tours to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii-Kauai and a one-day tour to Maui.

VFW Auxiliary Meeting Held

The VFW Ladies Auxiliary of Post 7032 held its meeting Thursday night. Mrs. Ruth Evans and Mrs. Sally Musselwhite were assisting hostesses.

It was announced a memorial gift was sent to the Winterville Christian Church in memory of Mrs. Susie Rollins. Mrs. Myrtle Meeks, rehabilitation chairman, reported gifts were sent to a veteran in a nursing home and Christmas plants were sent to two members.

Groceries were delivered to a disabled family at Christmas and cards were sent to Gold Star mothers. Clothing was sent to O'Berry Center for children there.

nication for the Phoenix diocese.

"We've had phone calls and letters," said Jennings. "They're very mixed."

He said the negative reactions "really reflect the culture ... This is a culture in which marriage partners say, 'If my nose goes out of joint, or if for any reason yours does, we split.'"

In the Phoenix metropolitan area, which has a population of 1.5 million, there were 14,965 marriages and 13,167 divorces last year.

Father Robert Skagen of Kingman said that after he and a fellow priest explained policy last Sunday, "A fairly young couple came up and said: 'It's the first good thing we've heard out of the church in ages.'"

Being Alone Is Enjoyed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: When I read your column on what to give and what not to give old folks for Christmas, I thought you should win the Woman of the Year award. Then I read the postscript and changed my mind.

You say, "To be alone at Christmas is sad beyond measure. Give the greatest gift of all to someone who faces the bleak prospect of being alone, an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family."

You are so wrong, Abby! People who are accustomed to living alone would be driven to distraction by the confusion, noise, clutter and general turmoil of the average family Christmas.

Old people find it much easier to accept holiday greetings by mail or phone, or a short visit from grandchildren — not accompanied by noise-making toys or indigestible food.

Some parents find family festivities tiring, and we older folks are even shorter on patience and endurance. Being alone away from the commotion of holiday hubbub is far from "sad."

ALONE BUT NOT LONELY

DEAR ABBY: My 6-year-old daughter received a doll for Christmas that is designed to develop diaper rash! The doll comes with a little kit of pills, when mixed with water and fed to the doll, cause the doll to break out with diaper rash. There is another solution to feed the doll that will "cure" the rash.

Never have I seen anything so ridiculous in all my life. I think this doll should get the Christmas toy booby prize of the year, don't you?

PASCO, WASH.

DEAR PASCO: Well, let's just say the diaper rash doll is somewhere near the bottom.

DEAR ABBY: Count me as another wife who undresses in the closet, but not because I'm hung up about nudity or sex. Far from it, I am very uninhibited when the lights are out.

My husband drools over women with great figures. My figure used to be beautiful, but after four children, too much eating, and not enough exercise, I sag in some places and have bulges and rolls of fat in others. In other words, I'm ashamed of the way I look unclothed.

I also feel guilty because I'm just too lazy to do something about the shape I've let myself get into.

My husband doesn't notice the shape I'm in when I'm horizontal, but he would notice it if he were to see me standing up, undressing.

So I undress in the dark to spare his feelings as well as my own.

SPEAKING FOR MANY

DEAR SPEAKING: I'm sure you speak for many. The last thing you need from me is a lecture on the importance of diet and exercise, but hear this: She who does not take care of the equipment may soon find herself out of business.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C.C. IN D.C.: Don't go looking for your roots unless you're prepared to dig up a lot of dirt.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

The expo was planned and coordinated by the Nash County Agricultural Extension staff.

MARRIAGE MAKING COMEBACK

NEW YORK (AP) — The divorce rate is leveling off, marriage is making a comeback and romance is in vogue, claims Kathy Lowry in an article in Family Weekly magazine.

"This resurgence of romantic love is partially a benign reaction to the more strident excesses of the feminist movement, the New Morality and the '60s' drug-rock-sex culture in general," she says.

Ms. Lowry cites figures from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare showing the number of marriages has climbed from 1.5 million to 2.1 million annually in just two decades.

She also cites a recent college survey of 14 campuses which indicated that 25 percent of the students, mostly in their 20s, had lived with someone of the opposite sex and 96 percent claimed they intend to marry in the near future.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

This winter, a lot of you people out there are going to be using your fireplace a lot. As some of you may or may not have already discovered, there is an art to starting a fire.

Here are some observations which might prove helpful.

Do not count on a careless smoker to start your fire. There is never a careless smoker around when you need one. I've seen them on television a million times and so have you. The smoker who simply flips a cigarette butt into a field and seconds later 300,000 acres of forest are ablaze. All it would take to start your fire is one careless cigarette, but it'll never happen.

Old newspapers never burn. You can feed your fire 50 to 60 pounds of newspapers that are taking up space in your garage, but they won't burn. The only paper that will catch on at all is the one just delivered which no one has read and which still has a rubber band on it.

Cereal boxes, milk cartons and cracker boxes are excellent fire starters, but you lose momentum when you have to stop and wait until the kids eat up their contents.

Everyone in the room watching you struggle to build the fire will know that your wood is unseasoned but you, the builder of the fire is always the last to know.

Half of the people in the room watching you struggle to build the fire will know that you are giving the fire too much oxygen, thus creating a draft and blowing it out. The other half of the people in the room watching you struggle to build the fire will know that you are not giving it enough oxygen, thus smothering it and blowing it out.

Do not be proud when members of the family offer old rulers, yardsticks, shoe supports, wooden hangers, birdhouses and Popsicle sticks. Every little bit of kindling helps.

Do not assault people who say they installed a gas conversion burner for under $14.00, use the prepared logs at the store for 98 cents, or who sit around all summer having the kids roll logs out of old newspaper that burn for 30 hours.

Never spurn the help of an eight-year-old scout who once built a fire out of wet wood by rubbing two Boy Scout leaders together.

Never go to bed on a fireplace of darkened ashes. The moment you turn your back and say, "It's too late for a fire anyway," flames will leap out toward the screen, wood will crackle and pop and you'll have smoking embers for three days.

Remember, being warm isn't everything.

Patricia Hearst's Prison Term Commuted; Wedding Planned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst will be free for her wedding, blessed by a presidential decree cutting short her 7-year prison term.

"I haven't made any plans right now. It came as such a surprise to adjust to it," the elated newspaper heiress said Monday after President Carter commuted her bank robbery conviction. She is scheduled to leave the Federal Correctional Institution at Pleasanton on Thursday, four days before the fifth anniversary of her kidnapping by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army. Among those expected to accompany Miss Hearst when she is released is her fiancé, Bernard Shaw, 30, a San Francisco police officer who once was her bodyguard.

The couple had planned a Valentine's Day wedding, but Shaw said Monday they were postponing the wedding until they could be married in a church.

The Rev. Ted Dumke, who led the campaign for her clemency, said Monday the couple were now considering marrying on St. Patrick's Day.

Meanwhile, prison officials said Miss Hearst was transferred Monday to an isolated room, away from the 300 other women at the prison.

Duty officer Darell Hainline said she was moved "to be on the safe side," because of threats against her by other prisoners.

In granting the commutation, Carter agreed with a Justice Department recommendation that she has "been punished substantially," as a kidnap victim and during 22 months in prison. It said she needed no more rehabilitation nor punishment.

"She will be a law-abiding citizen," the department predicted.

"I'm really grateful that he was so courageous," Miss Hearst said of Carter's decision. "It would have been so simple for him to just leave everything the way it was ... I thought I'd be spending another Feb. 4 in prison."

Miss Hearst, who will turn 25 in three weeks, said she was "grateful for all the support from so many people I'll never know and never meet," referring to the dozens of politicians, movie stars and newspaper editorial writers who called for her early release.

The commutation does not absolve her from guilt for participating with three SLA members in the April 15, 1974, armed robbery of a San Francisco bank. It simply cuts short her sentence, although she would have been eligible for parole in July.

Miss Hearst and her captors, William and Emily Harris, eluded authorities for more than 19 months before they were arrested on Sept. 18, 1975 in San Francisco.

She said at her bank robbery trial she was forced by threats of death to join the SLA and participate in the robbery. She was 19 when she was kidnapped.

Attorney George Martinez, who represents Miss Hearst, said Monday she would leave Pleasanton shortly after 7:30 a.m. PST Thursday. He said she would hold a news conference at the prison before leaving.

Fear Area Impact Of Duke's Nuclear Plant

MOCKSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A group of Yadkin River and High Rock Lake area residents opposed to a $4.3 billion Duke Power Co. nuclear plant said Monday that the plant would lower property values and may drain the region's water supply.

About a dozen people spoke out against the plant during a public hearing before representatives of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board.

A week of hearings on Duke Power's Perkins nuclear power plant began Monday. Board members said they would study reports for the remainder of their stay in Davie County.

The first day of hearings attracted about 250 people. Davidson and Davie county commissioners have taken opposing stands on the nuclear plant, which is scheduled to build on the Yadkin River.

Davidson County commissioners, who adopted a resolution opposing the plant earlier this month, were represented at the hearing by attorney Jim Monck.

Monck said the Davidson commissioners do not believe the county can expand and attract industry unless there is an adequate water supply in the Yadkin River. He said the commission fears the towers used to cool the nuclear reactors would lower the river's water level, causing the river to stagnate.

The board is considering alternative sites as well as safety issues relating to the construction of the plant.

Eight other sites are under consideration for construction of the plant, but only the Lake Norman area near Charlotte was mentioned by people appearing before the board Monday.

However, Davie County commissioners are backing construction of the Perkins plant. Attorney John Brock, representing the Davie commissioners, said the Davie commissioners have been in favor of the plant from the beginning.

"We believe it is needed and important for the welfare and economy of Davie County and the whole area," Brock said.

The board gave partial approval for a construction license for the plant in October, but final approval was withheld until the matter of alternative sites and safety issues common to all nuclear plants could be resolved.

If the board gives final approval to construction of the plant, work will get under way in 1980, Duke Power officials said. The Perkins plant would be the company's fifth nuclear plant.

Police List 2 Collisions

An estimated $3,400 property damage resulted yesterday from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from an 8:50 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Maple Streets involving vehicles driven by Gundule Liselotte Bunger of 207 North Warren St. and John Normal Davis II of Route 1, Greenville.

Davis was charged with driving without a license, while Mrs. Bunger was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Police estimated damage at $1,000 to the Bunger car and $800 to the Davis truck.

The second mishap involved a city Fire Prevention Bureau car driven by Cynthia Mooring Conrad of 3130 Ellsworth Dr. and a vehicle operated by George Benjamin Shelby Jr. of Williamston.

Police, who charged Shelby with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, said the mishap occurred about 1:12 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Maxwell Street.

Damage was estimated at $600 to the city-owned car and $1,000 to the Shelby auto.

Alexander Kerensky, ruler of Russia for several chaotic months in 1917, died at the age of 87 in 1970. Kerensky was an outspoken critic of czarist repression.

Cherished Goal Eluded Nelson

Nelson Rockefeller, who died suddenly during the weekend, almost made it to his most cherished dream—but becoming president of the United States was not to be.

He served in a number of governmental positions, was elected governor of the powerful state of New York and sought his party's nomination for president.

A bitter intra-party rival, Richard Nixon, beat him out for the nomination.

He finally became vice president under Gerald Ford after the Nixon downfall in the Watergate aftermath.

Tremendously wealthy Rockefeller was in a position to pursue a career in public life.

Following his retirement from active politics he told interviewers that controversial stands while he was governor contributed to his failure to become president.

He also suggested that he might have changed parties and the White House could have been his.

He may well have been right. Considered liberal by GOP standards, he was never able to get the control of party machinery which is so necessary to reaching the presidency.

Nelson Rockefeller was a major figure in American politics for decades. With his wealth he could have chosen a life of leisure, rather than one of public service. He chose politics, however, and he must have known considerable satisfaction in those final years of retirement from active campaigning.

Draft Registration Is A Likely Move

Sen. Robert Morgan, D N.C., has introduced a bill which would require 18-year-old men to begin registering for the draft again.

The senator doesn't see resuming the draft but he feels the nation needs to know how many potential draftees are available in the event of a national emergency.

The draft registration is very likely needed. If our nation were threatened militarily it would take months to re-activate the draft machinery. It is time we might not be able to afford to lose.

THIS AFTERNOON

New Schools Scrutiny?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — State Treasurer Harlan E. Boyles has punctured some myths regarding public schools in North Carolina today, and suggested that we ought to be trying to solve the "problems of today rather than continue to attack the problems which existed in the past."

In doing this, Boyles exposed to the light some conditions which professional educators would as soon keep hidden:

—Are people getting "more education than they want?"

—Are too many tax dollars being poured into administration and other non-classroom purposes?

—Do kindergartens, community colleges and 12th grades constitute duplications of effort?

—Would a "Sunset Commission" study of public school subjects and programs produce recommendations that some be terminated?

—Is a statewide bond issue being pushed because local governments can't get local support for building projects?

Joint Session

Boyles raised the issues at a recent meeting of school board and county commission members, doing so as treasurer, member of the State Board of Education, a taxpayer, and a parent.

He also renewed his suggestion that a local option fifth penny be added to the sales tax earmarked for education. That would not be inconsistent with holding down taxes, but rather allowing local citizens the option of more money for local schools while both state and federal taxes are being cut.

But the most important part of his observations had to do with the feeling that North Carolina continues to wrestle with the same old school problems in the same old way. It is no longer necessary to try to convince people that public education is a worthy governmental function...there is agreement on that. The question is whether it is being done properly, Boyles said.

"We cannot ignore... the fact that some 24 percent of the state's appropriations for public education is being expended for administration and non-classroom purposes.

We must be realistic and ask ourselves if we are not prone to look for more money for public education and for other governmental programs, rather than to seek solutions in the form of changes to our program concepts and delivery techniques," Boyles said.

BILL NOBLITT

The schools are perhaps "imposing more education than (people) want" and growing discipline problems may reflect that children are no longer challenged.

"We all feel that the arts, the humanities and the concept of educating the total child are wonderful and necessary, but what if the child is not receptive?" he wondered.

Sunset

There may be duplication of effort in the system, particularly with both public high schools and the Community College system offering parallel vocational courses and competition for students. "...it may be time to address ourselves to the matters of duplication of effort, and more co-ordination... the study that would bear fruit is the curriculum study," Boyles said. A Sunset Commission look at course material in the schools might cull less essential subjects and free tax dollars for other priorities.

The idea that "every pupil", regardless of where he lives or where he goes to school be given the same educational opportunities available to those pupils who live in our wealthiest counties" is simply impossible, Boyles said. "My friends, there is just not enough money to do this."

A proposed school construction bond issue between $500 and $750 million faces "major stumbling-blocks" of higher interest rates, competing needs, and declining school population", Boyles commented.

"Beard of the Prophet! Obey my every command or you will be plucked out... hair, by excruciated hair!"

A Non-Education Dept.

WASHINGTON — Bad ideas, like bad pennies, keep coming back. Mr. Carter has returned to Capitol Hill with the same bad idea he pushed unsuccessfully a year ago: He wants a new U.S. Department of Education.

The idea sank in the 95th Congress partly because of bureaucratic infighting over the school lunch and breakfast program, and partly because of some belated skepticism on the Hill. School lunches now are part of the turf of Carol Tucker Foreman on Agriculture; She fought like a she-tiger for them. Several influential members of the House and Senate, turned off by the horrid affair, spread the word that they had cooled to the whole proposition. Sen. Abe Ribicoff (D-Conn.) felt no compelling urge to battle for the bill. That was that.

The president's idea is to carve a new entity out of the ribs of Health, Education and Welfare. His department would have 16,000 employees and a budget of $14 billion; in new overhead and administrative costs it would cost a bundle. A bovine herd of assistant secretaries would be assembled. We would have limousines, official seals, Cabinet rank, the whole nine yards—and all this from a president who campaigned against bureaucratic bloat.

If bloat were the only objection, some of Mr. Carter's critics might be inclined to grumble a good grumble and then subside. The larger and more serious objection is that a new Department of Education, for all practical purposes, would be little more than an extension of the National Education Association. And the NEA in recent years has come to embody every single cause that has contributed to the crisis that threatens our public schools.

In some minds there may be a tendency to think of the NEA as it operated in the Thirties and Forties. Then it was largely a home office for the federated state education associations. The national office engaged in some modest research; it lobbied state legislatures in support of higher pay and better retirement benefits. Like a middle-aged Miss Dove, it projected a good school-marmish image.

That is long gone. These days, the NEA functions as a trade union, pure and simple, as bellicose and demanding as the miners, the teamsters and the longshoremen. In the whole field of public employee unionism, few out-

A Dull Show Indeed

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential reports on the state of the union are like super bowls — there's always a big buildup and it's usually a dull show.

Pittsburgh and Dallas broke the Super Bowl pattern when the Steelers won the professional football championship in a wide-open, high-scoring game.

But President Carter's State of the Union address last Tuesday ran to form. No fancy plays, more defense than offense.

As always, the government establishment crowded beneath the political superdome of the Capitol for the Big Event. As usual, it wasn't very eventful.

"They never vary," said Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., who has been around for 25 State of the Union addresses now. "They're all the same..."

"I've heard it so many times, I know it all by heart."

The Constitution instructs the president to give Congress "information of the state of the union" from time to time. It doesn't say when, and it doesn't tell him to do so in person. In practice, modern presidents have, and the address has become ritual at the opening of each congressional session.

Almost invariably, presidents report that the state of the union is just fine, and certainly is a lot better than it would be if they weren't in the White House.

A glance at the record validates O'Neill's appraisal.

Gerald R. Ford holds the record for reporting that the state of the union is not good. He did it once. And he'd only been in office five months at the time, succeeding the resigned Richard M. Nixon. In successive Januarys, he found things getting better and better.

State of the Union messages have certain interchangeable paragraphs.

"We are engaged in a long and hard fight against inflation...If this Congress Representatives Taylor of Caswell and Withrow of Rutherford) said today they plan to introduce a bill in the legislature tonight to levy a crown tax on all drinks sold in North Carolina.

The representatives said they believe the proposal would yield around $3,000,000 annually.

"North Carolina is second in the nation to Texas in the amount of bottled drinks sold," said Taylor, "while the industry is controlled from without the state by wealthy corporations."

Forced to interrupt its membership drive last year shortly after its organization because of other business efforts to bring several industrial plants to Greenville, the local Chamber of Commerce will renew the campaign at a meeting at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow of a number of public spirited citizens.

THE INSIDE REPORT

A Message To The GOP

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When the AFL-CIO's top brass hosted a fundraising dinner last Thursday for a non-liberal member of the Senate Republican leadership, it was giving notice to the political world: any Republican who backs us on the things we really care about will get our help, no matter how conservative he may be otherwise.

The $500-a-plate dinner was held for Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon Jan. 25 at the Washington home of AFL-CIO staffer Victor Kamber. The dinner chairman was Robert Georgine, head of the building trades unions. Sharing top billing at the dinner with Packwood was Lane Kirkland, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer and possible successor to George Meany as president.

Far from associating with such labor notables in the past, middle-roader Packwood never before has enjoyed AFL-CIO endorsement. Newly elected chairman of the Senate Republican conference, Packwood does not have the kind of record that ordinarily wins labor backing. His record on issues selected by the AFL-CIO is only 48 percent favorable.

But Packwood sides with labor on what it cares most about. He backed both the labor law revision and the bill to legalize common situs picketing — two measures stopped in the last Congress thanks to massive Republican opposition. Kirkland, a close friend of Packwood, is telling Republicans, in effect, that they need not back every liberal social welfare measure to get labor's blessing.

That philosophy is rejected by the United Auto Workers and other more liberal unions who demand broad liberal voting records on all issues, not just narrow union questions. It is also uncongenial to some AFL-CIO operatives who want to support Portland's liberal Democratic Mayor Neil Goldschmidt against Packwood's third-term bid next year. Nevertheless, the Republican is likely to get the AFL-CIO endorsement.

A footnote: Packwood may need all the labor help he gets. The "right to life" lobby has targeted him for defeat because of his pro-abortion stance. Thus, the Oregon race will measure the relative political clout of big labor and the anti-abortionists.

REAGAN: STAYING IN L.A.

Ronald Reagan, front-running Republican presidential prospect for 1980, has decided to keep his campaign as far as possible from the Washington establishment by making Los Angeles his campaign headquarters.

Reagan's surprising intention to avoid the capital is a tribute of sorts to Jimmy Carter's anti-Washington campaign for the Democratic nomination in 1976, whose

Strength For Today

CONQUERING ANXIETY
Be not anxious.
So said the Master Himself. But how is it possible to obey such a command?
Who can be otherwise in a world in which inflation is burgeoning, unemployment threatening, the environment deteriorating, and nuclear armaments proliferating? Certainly all of us can and should raise our voices and take what measures we can against evil tendencies everywhere, but we can be sure that our best efforts will be limited in their effects.

It will not help to worry about our relative ineffectiveness. We do ourselves no good either physically or mentally; we damage our faith, and we spoil happiness for ourselves and others. It is better to take with a smile whatever life brings us, day by day.
Someone has said, "Anxiety does not empty tomorrow of its sorrows; it empties today of its strength."

Uncle Sam Accused By Sears

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In recent years Uncle Sam has been portrayed as the wise but scolding parent who, having discovered right, dutifully admonished his charges for wrong, and sought to point out truth.

He was particularly concerned about the nature of the work force, insisting on equality for minorities, veterans and women. He never let up; his aides spent millions of hours studying the job statistics.

And they enforced their views: The Attorney General, the housing, education, health, labor, commerce secretaries, the Census Bureau, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and others, laid down the law.

And now comes Sears, Roebuck and Co., saying in effect that Uncle Sam's very own efforts created the workplace he now declares is unequal, and that Uncle Sam is fighting none other than himself.

The stunning accusation is contained in a class action suit against Uncle Sam by Sears, in which it claims the government created the white male-dominant workforce through its various regulations.

It named the G.I. Bill of Rights, veterans preference laws, selective service, and restrictions on the number of women and blacks in the armed services and in vocational and educational programs.

And then, says Sears, it blames us and other employers who attempted to live up to the law and, with growing frustration, to the sometimes conflicting opinions made by all those aides in all those offices.

Among other things, the suit seeks to have Uncle Sam himself live up to his laws, and to tell Sears and other retailers how to resolve sometimes conflicting obligations to veterans, women, the elderly and to minorities.

Because of conflicts, Sears feels it was unfairly charged with violating the law. It maintains it has led other companies, and even anticipated Uncle Sam, in employing veterans, women and minorities.

But, it continues, Uncle Sam scattered obstacles in its path. An employer of 400,000 workers, it suggests that statistical inequities were bound to appear.

In spite of a government legacy of discrimination, Sears says its own employment files show that employment of blacks, minorities and women rose sharply between 1965 and 1973, and even more sharply since then.

The government, it said, failed to enforce civil rights laws intended to provide industry with a well-qualified workforce, and that it then "blamed private employers for the government's failures."

It seeks court orders to "prohibit the use against employers of any statistical disparities from the civilian labor force traceable to compliance with veterans acts and the Age Discrimination Act."

Sears is angry, insofar as a corporation can become angry, and to the extent that the cold legalese of a complaint can convey it. Uncle Sam did it, Sears says, and now he pontifically blames us.

cooperates in our efforts to hold down the cost of government, we shall win our fight to hold down the cost of living for the American people."
That wasn't Carter talking. It was Nixon, in 1974.
"I now ask this 96th Congress to continue our partnership in holding the line on excess federal spending," Carter said this year. "It will not be easy. We must be strong and persistent. This budget is a clear message that, with the help of you and the American people, I am determined to bring inflation under control."

Ford was determined, too. "To hold down the cost of living, we must hold down the cost of government," he said three years ago.

headquarters was kept in Atlanta.
But Los Angeles entails more problems than Atlanta. The three-hour time change between West and East coasts means significant political news made on the West Coast in the evening often never gets published in the East's big morning newspapers and is stale for later editions.
Nevertheless, Reagan believes there is a net gain from running for president as an outsider. His theory: voters are even more disillusioned with Washington politics and politicians today than they were four years ago.

"Our relationship with the People's Republic of China is proving its importance and its durability. We are finding more and more common ground."
That's Ford, 1977.
"We are entering a hopeful era in our relations with one-fourth of the world's people who live in China," said Carter, who established diplomatic relations with Peking.

fits as militant — and the NEA's economic activism has been matched by an intellectual activism equally potent.

In league with the teachers' colleges and textbook publishers, the NEA has provided the forward troops in the war against sound education. The NEA's publications over the past 20 or 30 years provide a catalog of wretched innovations. Yes, the NEA has had help, from television and the federal judiciary among other forces, but the teachers whose image the NEA reflects must bear most of the responsibility for the miserable fix we are in.

How miserable? Look around you. The achievement scores of our high-school graduates keep sagging every year. Publishing houses are hard-put to translate their secondary textbooks from simple English to babytalk. Down in Dallas a few months ago, the school board administered an easy achievement test to beginning teachers and principals. Half of them flunked. The taxpayers are spending $87 billion a year on the public schools the NEA has fashioned, and the taxpayers are getting royally ripped off.

This is the outfit — the palpable ideological and cultural force — that would take over a new Department of Education. The experiences and attitudes that typify the NEA already dominate the Office of Education, but at least the very nature of the bureaucratic swamp at HEW tends to dampen the Office's lust for effective national control of public education.

In the end, that is what we are talking about, and that is where the NEA and Mr. Carter's new department would take us — to national policy-fixing. Senator Ribicoff's bill last year contained one poor, feeble provision giving lip service to state and local control of schools. The provision was a bad joke, not to be believed by those who learned one lesson long ago: Who pays the piper calls the tune.

Gov. Hunt To Europe Friday On Industry-Hunting Mission

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt flies to Europe Friday on an industry-hunting mission and to attend an international business symposium that will bring together about 450 of the world's top business and industrial leaders.

Tractor Caravan Spent The Night

BUTNER, N.C. (AP) — Bearing American flags and slogans, about 600 tractors and other vehicles pulled onto the town's main street Monday night as an American Agricultural Movement tractorcade made its way towards Washington.

The caravan stopped for the night in Butner after moving slowly along Interstate 85 from Charlotte during the day. Signs on some of the tractors read "Our Stake is Your Steak" and "We Haven't Gone Mad, Just Broke."

The tractorcade started in West Texas two weeks ago Monday. The farmers will continue to Washington to meet other, similar caravans from other parts of the country for a rally Feb. 5.

The tractorcade was prompted by the low prices the farmers say they get from wholesalers and the high costs they bear to produce crops. Many of them said they see the tractorcade as their last hope for saving family farms.

"We feel like if we don't get something done this trip, this could be the last trip around for a lot of us," said Danny Cox, a 23-year old farmer from Comanche, Okla.

Cox and his father, Jim, were among nearly 1,600 farmers who had spent Saturday and Sunday nights in Charlotte before moving on.

"I'm looking forward to discussing with these leaders the advantages of locating plants and doing business in the United States, particularly North Carolina," said Hunt.

The only state official traveling with the governor will be Jim Hinkle, director of international development in the state Department of Commerce.

The governor's office said total travel costs for the party will be $5,000.

Several leading North Carolina businessmen also will attend the symposium at their own expense. Their companies are paying North Carolina's share of the symposium's cost.

Hunt will hold a reception for delegates to the symposium Saturday, and he will appear before them on Tuesday. He will spend Sunday and Monday calling on industrial prospects.

As a result of Hunt's industrial-development trip to Europe last spring, manufacturers in six European countries have decided to locate plants in North Carolina. Two others have located sales and distribution centers in the state and still others are considering locating here.

Mayor Proclaims Month For Hearts

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed February as American Heart Month and urged "all of our citizens to support the 1979 Heart Fund campaign in Greenville through gifts and volunteer services which will continue to reduce the toll of death and disability."

According to Cox, "the latest national statistics show that although heart and blood vessel diseases still kill more Americans than all other causes combined, the total has dropped below one million for the first time in recent years."

The mayor added, "the director of the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute and other medical scientists have credited public awareness of risk factors and action to reduce them with saving lives."

The American Heart Association and its local organizations, he pointed out, "have conducted public education about risk factors for many years, as well as programs to train emergency medical personnel in reviving victims of heart attack; to stimulate community services for heart patients and their families; and to support research into better methods of diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of the cardiovascular diseases."

Cox mentioned that the annual Heart Fund campaign finances all of the program efforts.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Brenda Spencer bragged to high school classmates last week that she was going to "do something big to get on TV."
Today, the 16-year-old is in police custody, held in a 15-minute burst of gunfire that left two persons dead and nine others, including eight children, wounded.

Decision Is Unaffected

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — The arrival of a 515-foot freighter at the Morehead City port Monday to load and unload containers sparked new interest in the transfer of the port's $2.5 million container crane to the state's other port at Wilmington.

But State Ports Authority Director William M.A. Greene said the new business will not change the Ports Authority board's decision to move the crane to the busier Wilmington port.

The ship, the T.F.L. Democracy, arrived at Morehead City from Norfolk, Va. The cargo was handled by the container crane.

The authority last week approved a $562,000 contract to move the container crane to Wilmington. The port at Morehead City has operated at a deficit, but members of the Morehead City Port Committee and the Carteret County government appealed to the authority to delay moving the crane for 12 to 18 months. They said enough new business would be generated this year to make it feasible to leave the crane in its present location.

But Greene said the board's action is final and that the decision will not be reconsidered.

"The contract was voted on last week, and the change is already in progress," Greene said. "Besides, there will still be two Gantry (dock cranes) at the Morehead City facility. They can handle up to 30,000 containers a year, so Morehead City won't be left without equipment to handle their cargo."

He said the container crane must handle at least 15,000 container cranes per year to pay for itself.

Seek To Avoid Delay In Court

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A restraining order against picketing by striking teachers was dissolved when school officials said they would prefer public talks rather than court action to end the walkout.

Circuit Court Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr. also dismissed a school board suit seeking a temporary injunction against the strike, which began Jan. 16. School Superintendent Robert E. Wentz said the school board wants teachers back at work, "not bogged down in court." Teachers have been without a contract since September. Union president Evelyn Battle said the teachers remain willing to talk, but said Monday's court action probably would not induce teachers to return to work.

Police said Miss Spencer aimed a semi-automatic .22-caliber rifle she got for Christmas at the Cleveland Elementary School Monday morning, firing 30 rounds of ammunition.

School principal Burton Wragg, 53, was fatally wounded while trying to aid the injured children and custodian Michael Suchar, 56, died attempting to pull Wragg to safety.

Among the wounded was policeman Robert Robb, 28, shot through the neck. He was listed in stable condition.

Three of the children were released after being treated for minor wounds.

Authorities said the children still hospitalized included: Monica Selvig, 9, and Christy Buell, 9, in critical condition; Mary Clark, 8, serious condition; Cam Miller, 9, in fair condition, and Craig Verner, 8, good condition.

After firing the 30 rounds, police said the high school junior barricaded herself inside the family home across from the school for almost seven hours, warning police she was going to "come out shooting."

As members of the SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) force waited out the tense vigil, the girl finally agreed to surrender after hanging up her telephone on negotiators several times.

Earlier, she told the San Diego Tribune in a telephone conversation: "I don't like Mondays. This lives up the day." She added, "I have to go now. I shot a pig (policeman). I think, and I want to shoot more."

Wearing a black Navy watch cap, brown corduroy pants and a blue sweatshirt, the freckle-faced, red-haired girl was whisked to police headquarters for questioning after she surrendered.

She was being held at the San Diego City jail. Police said no charges have been filed in connection with the shootings.

Police said the girl had a history of petty theft and drug abuse.

SWAT Officer Mike Hendrickson said negotiators were told by family members that Miss Spencer "fantasized in the past about being a sniper."

"She knew a lot about our operation from watching 'SWAT' on TV," said Hendrickson, who helped pin the girl to the ground after she dropped her weapons on a driveway.

High school friends described the bespectacled Miss Spencer as an honor student, "really quiet...and unhappy that her mother wasn't around."

Miss Spencer lived with her father, Wally D. Spencer, and was an avid hunter, her classmates said. They described her as a shy tomboy who had few friends.

The girl had attended the elementary school, and was involved in a window breaking incident there a year ago, police said.

She excelled in photography and recently won an award for her work, a school official said.

The girl had about 500 rounds of ammunition along with an air pellet gun, officials said, adding that the .22 caliber rifle was fitted with a telescope.

"She used to tell us how she went rabbit hunting in the mountains with a bb gun," said a friend.

Baptist Board Advised Collect Legal Advice

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Baptist State Convention's General Board, meeting today and Wednesday in Raleigh, will be asked to get legal advice on all documents affecting relations of Baptist agencies and institutions with the convention.

The convention's Council on Christian Higher Education met at Meredith College here Monday and voted to ask the General Board, which acts for the convention between annual sessions, to seek the legal advice and withhold Baptist funds designated for Wake Forest University.

The Rev. Frank R. Campbell of Statesville, president of the higher education council, said Monday's action "is not to be interpreted as setting up any legal battles with Wake Forest. We are merely trying to determine what legal rights and responsibilities the convention has."

The council's proposal was expected to be presented to the convention's executive committee this afternoon, and to be followed by General Board action Wednesday.

The council's proposal would have the convention withhold funds until Wake Forest University trustees rescind earlier action that revised the university's charter.

The trustees deleted sections of the charter that required election of trustees by the convention and that all trustees be North Carolina Baptists. Also deleted was the requirement that the university remain a convention agency.

Trustees acted on legal advice which held that Wake Forest in 1927 gave the Baptist convention the right to elect its trustees, and therefore could withdraw it.

The trustees also were advised that they had the right to revise the university's charter, establishing "a new relationship with the convention."

The council proposal for withholding funds from the university involves putting the money into an escrow account, pending settlement of the controversy.

Charge Juvenile With Murder

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Police say a juvenile has been charged with murder in the slaying of a three-year-old Durham girl who was found dead last week.

The child was identified as Shawntia Shevell McArthur.

Misled By Estimates

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Estimates last year of how many students would fail the competency test were meaningless, the chairman of the Competency Test Commission said Monday.

James J. Gallagher, the chairman, referred to estimates given before the test was given to high school juniors in November. The estimates were based on a trial test given last spring and were provided by the state Department of Public Instruction.

The department predicted that as many as 41 percent would fail the mathematics section of the test and 20 percent might fail the reading section. In fact, 15 percent failed the math section, and 10 percent failed the reading test.

Gallagher said the estimates were misleading because: —The fall test was a revised and improved version of the spring trial test. More than half the questions were changed after the spring version was given.

—Students were motivated in the fall because they knew the scores would count. A passing mark is necessary in order to receive a high school diploma.

—Many students benefited from crash basic skills instruction programs that were aimed at helping them pass the test.

Gallagher also contended that the news media had misled the public by using the education department's figures in comparing the spring and fall results.

He further asserted that despite the extensive changes made in the test, it was not made easier. State officials have also maintained that position.

Bus Slams Into Gasoline Tanker Rep. Flood Awaits Turn

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A bus carrying Pratt & Whitney workers was minutes from its destination at an aircraft plant when it slammed into a disabled gasoline tanker truck, killing three persons and injuring nearly two dozen other passengers.

About 3,000 gallons of the tanker's 7,800-gallon cargo spilled onto Interstate 91 after the crash, state police said, but firefighters sprayed the vehicles with foam, preventing a fire or explosion. Police said the truck had been parked beside the highway for about an hour, and there was no one in the truck when it was hit.

Twenty-six persons were taken to hospitals after the crash Monday. Two passengers were dead on arrival and a third died later, a hospital spokesman said. Most of the injured were not seriously hurt, but some required surgery, authorities said.

The victims were identified by police as Donald Newport, 41, of Meriden; Anthony C. Waskiewicz, 61, of North Branford; and George Panagos, 63, of Hamden. The driver of the bus, Howard Rohner, 26, of New Haven, escaped injury, police said.

Police said the bus hit the left rear of the truck, tearing a 3-by-3-foot hole in the tank before veering into the median strip across the highway.

The impact wrecked the front of the bus, police said, tearing off a section and exposing five rows of seats.

The tanker is owned by F.E. Blatchley of Portland, Maine.

Hijacker Kept 'In Solitary'

NEW YORK (AP) — Irene McKinney, 49, charged with commandeering a jumbo jet en route to New York from Los Angeles, is being held in solitary confinement in lieu of $100,000 bail, officials say.

She was arraigned Monday by U.S. Magistrate John Caden in Brooklyn. Officials said she would be placed in "administrative segregation" because they believed her to be unstable. Mrs. McKinney did not enter a plea to charges that she pirated the United Air Lines 747 as it flew over Prescott, Ariz., Saturday night with 131 persons aboard.

Awaits Turn

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a three-day recess, the defense had eight more witnesses ready for the bribery-perjury trial of Rep. Daniel J. Flood before the Pennsylvania Democrat takes the stand in his own defense.

Testimony was resuming today.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch told the jury of eight men and four women last Friday he expected the trial that began Jan. 15 to be completed this week.

Monday's recess was requested by the defense so it could take three days to interview its remaining witnesses and prepare the 75-year-old congressman, now in his 16th term in the House, for the arduous questioning expected from opposing lawyers.

The one-time actor is expected to testify Wednesday.

Flood is charged with accepting at least $50,000 in bribes in a conspiracy scheme with his former administrative assistant that the government says began in 1970 and lasted for six years.

Not Everybody Enjoys Big Snow In Western N.C.

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
North Carolina ski resort operators are celebrating a record weekend, thanks to the snowfall of Saturday and Sunday. But not everyone is enjoying the northwest mountains' most recent snow storm.

Area school officials Monday faced the prospect of closing schools for the second week in a row.

The weekend storm dumped nine to 12 inches of snow and brought winds of up to 50 miles per hour. In hard-hit Avery and Watauga counties, the wind created drifts three to four feet high.

Ski resort operators, who recorded their first big weekend of the season, said record crowds lined up to buy lift tickets Saturday.

Tony Dickson of Hound Ears ski resort, said the slopes were "besieged" by skiers Saturday.

"The conditions were perfect on the slopes Saturday," Dickson said. "And we were besieged by skiers — we were really crowded. We can allow up to about 250 skiers on our slopes at a time, and we were filled to capacity Saturday. And we still had a good crowd Sunday, in spite of the high winds and bitter cold temperatures."

Grady Moretz, ski director at Appalachian ski resort, said

Appalachian had the largest crowd in its history Saturday.

"The conditions were super, and the skiers were ready for a good weekend," Moretz said. "We had to close ticket sales and turn away thousands about 11 a.m. There were even a lot of skiers Sunday when the wind was really blowing hard and the surface was a little crusty. We still have a good crowd here now (Monday)."

Col. Norman Smith of Ski Beech said thousands of skiers had to be turned away over the weekend.

"After about two hours on Saturday, we had to cut off lift ticket sales," Smith said. "Thousands still wanted to buy tickets, but we had to cut them off. All in all, we had about 5,000 skiers on the slopes Saturday and Saturday night."

"Skiing in this state is really beginning to have an important economic effect on the state, I believe," Smith added. "In an economic report just released, it shows that skiing is up 270 percent over two years in North Carolina. We had 508,000 skier visits last year, which has got to have a favorable impact on the state's economic picture."

Skiers who made the trip to the mountains without making reservations for lodging in advance found themselves with no place to sleep. Tom Corbett, public information officer for Appalachian State University, said there are about 4,000 motel rooms in the Blowing Rock-Boone area. But he said there were no rooms to be had Saturday night.

About 130 skiers trapped by an accident on the only road going into Beech Mountain spent Saturday night in a Ski Beech cafeteria. Smith said another 200 people with no lodging slept on the floor of two of the resort's restaurants.

School officials in the northwest region said Monday that they will keep schools closed as long as they feel conditions are not safe for buses to travel. Schools in Ashe, Watauga, Avery and Allegheny counties were closed last week because of snow and ice.

"The roads are just too bad for the school buses to run," said Dr. Lester Propst, superintendent of Watauga County schools. "We will try to go to the alternate plan as soon as possible — that is, having the parents take their children to a point to meet the school buses so the buses won't have to make the full trip to the various houses. But right now, the roads are just too bad for the buses to make even short trips."

Propst said the state Board of Education requires all schools to operate at least 175 days a year. He said the board allows schools to close up to 10 days a year without having to make up the time in the summer.

Propst said so far this year, Watauga schools have been closed six days.

A spokeswoman for the Ashe County school board said schools were closed last week, on Monday and will be closed today. She said no decision has been made on what steps to take if the weather forces schools to remain closed more days week.

Harry McGee, superintendent of Avery County schools, said he plans to keep county schools closed as long as conditions remain hazardous.

"As you know, our roads here are steep," McGee said. "We have no plans other than to keep the students out of school here as long as the roads are not safe. The primary roads have been covered with snow for several days, and the secondary roads are icy. We were closed last week, and it looks like we'll be closed this week. But I can't see having the buses run at all as long as there is a question of safety."

If the National Weather Service forecast is correct, the northwest mountains will get more snow within the next few days. Weather forecasters are calling for another six inches of snow tonight or Wednesday.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning for the southern Pacific coast, changing to show flurries over the Rockies. Rain is expected for the Carolinas with snow flurries extending to the Great Lakes. Very cold temperatures are due from the Rockies to the Mississippi with cold readings elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A winter storm watch has been issued for North Carolina's mountains, eastern slopes and foothills and northern and southern Piedmont sections.

Precipitation was expected to start in the mountains late today or tonight, and with cold air already over the state it is expected to come down as snow, possibly becoming heavy tonight and Wednesday over the northwestern mountains.

Snow also will spread across the Piedmont before becoming snow mixed with rain Wednesday and ending as rain over the east portion.

Cloudiness increased during the day in advance of the storm. Temperatures were expected to range in the 30s in the mountains, ranging up to the 50s over the southeast portion.

Low temperatures tonight will range from the teens in the northwest mountains to the 20s and 30s elsewhere.

Small craft advisories were in effect today along the coast for northwesterly winds of 15 to 25 knots, and for Albemarle and Pamlico sounds for northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 knots.

The snowfall is expected to taper off to flurries in the mountains Wednesday while the mixture of snow and rain ends over the central section of the state and winds up as all rain along the coast.

Much colder temperatures are predicted for Wednesday night and Thursday.

Protestant Theologians Critical Of Papal Talk

By JORGE COVARRUBIAS

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Two cardinals warning Pope John Paul II's praised against political activity by the Roman Catholic clergy in Latin America, but Protestant theologians criticized it.

"We are beginning with unity in Puebla," Cardinal Sebastiano Baggio, president of the Latin American Pontifical Commission and a co-president of the third decennial conference of Latin American bishops inaugurated by the pontiff Sunday, told a news conference. "Differences of opinion may crop up later, and they will, but this is a glorious, privileged moment of unity."

The conference was convened to chart the course of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America for the next decade, and Catholic progressives hoped it would foster a more active role for the church on the fight against oppressive authoritarian governments in the region.

However, Pope John Paul in opening the conference cautioned the bishops to keep the church out of politics and work for social justice through spiritual means. And Cardinal Aloisio Lorscheider, the archbishop of Fortaleza, Brazil and the other president of the conference, told the news conference: "The entire conference is centered on evangelization."

Meanwhile, Protestant theologians in Mexico City charged that the pope's rejection of priestly participation in violent social change in the hemisphere was a rejection of "the entire process of the church in Latin America."

The pope's position "ignores the blood and suffering being paid so that the Gospel of the Kingdom can remain on the side of the poor," said Jean-

Pierre Bastian, a member of the Swiss Reformed Church and a Baptist seminary professor in Mexico City.

"The pope failed to recognize the past errors and failures of the Catholic Church in Latin America in social matters," said Prof. Robert P. Hoerak, a Lutheran seminarian from Augsburg, West Germany. "I had hoped he would have been able to find some positive and acceptable teaching in the theology of liberation."

Another Lutheran professor from Augsburg, Robert Huebner, said: "To denounce all liberation theology without distinction seems like throwing out the baby with the bath. A reduced group of liberation theologians advocate participating in the complete change of the structure of society, but most advocate changes in relationships through the gospel of Jesus Christ."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, apparently unmoved by talk of possible reductions in the bank prime lending rate.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a token 17 at 855.94.

Losers held a slight advantage over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Several leading New York banks lowered their broker loan rates Monday from 11 1/2 to 11 percent, in a step that was seen as an omen of possible reductions in the prime rate as well.

But many investors still seemed skeptical that a lasting downturn in interest rates was in the offing.

Brokers also noted some feeling among traders that the market was due for a pause after the Dow's nearly 55-point rise in the first four weeks of 1979.

Stone Container rose 2 to 26 after a delayed opening. The company said late Monday it was suspending merger negotiations with Boise Cascade after receiving expressions of interest from other unspecified parties.

Mobil picked up 3/4 to 73 1/2 on top of a 2 1/2-point advance in the past two sessions. Late last week the company raised its dividend and proposed a 2-for-1 stock split.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .05 to 56.80. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .16 at 161.77.

Volume on the Big Board came to 10.68 million shares at noon, down from 11.08 million at the same point Monday.

Runaway Disillusioned By Real World

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Wendell E. Marthers was 5 feet tall and weighed 95 pounds when he left home in December 1973, an 11-year-old fifth grader with fantasies of life on the road.

He's back with his parents now — 45 pounds heavier, 7 inches taller — and many more than five years wiser.

"When you're out there you have to worry about where you're going to sleep, whether you're going to get beat up," Marthers says. "It's not fun at all."

He disappeared Dec. 11, 1973, without any money or extra clothing, leaving a note telling his parents not to look for him.

This Jan. 5, he rejoined his parents, Helen and Charles Marthers, after telephoning from California to ask permission to return to their mobile home.

"My mind went blank for a couple of seconds when he called," said Mrs. Marthers. "His voice was much deeper. I wouldn't believe it until I had my arms around him."

Marthers, now 17, said he headed for Niagara Falls, N.Y., after leaving home, hoping to get into Canada, but he was turned back at the border and decided to go to California.

His five-year journey took him across the northern United States to Seattle, Wash., and from there down through Oregon to California, where he lived with a family for two months before flying home with borrowed money.

On the road, Marthers said, he slept wherever there was shelter — parked cars or the homes of people who would take him in. He stayed a few nights at drug rehabilitation centers, although he said he was never on drugs.

"There were a lot of times I'd be hungry," he said, adding that he sometimes ate leaves or grass as a last resort.

Marthers says he took odd jobs to support himself, but was sometimes forced to steal food. He said he was beaten up about six times — once over the length of his hair.

"I was scared just about every day I was gone, worrying about being arrested, about being killed or beaten up," he said.

"There are a few perverts," he said. "But you learn about them quick."

Marthers described himself as a spoiled brat thinking of "movie stars, glamour and beach boys" when he ran away. Instead, the youth said he found a world that was "pretty close to hell."

And he said he decided to come home after seeing the warm relationship shared by members of the California family that took him in. He declined to name the family, fearing they might run into legal difficulties for harboring a runaway.

"It's kind of a shame when a person has to leave home for five years to learn he appreciates his own family," said Marthers, who celebrated his 17th birthday Jan. 14 with his parents.

Marthers said he plans to finish his education now that he's back home and might try his hand at songwriting. "I've written the verses to a few things," he said. "And I play the guitar a little."

Parent Outraged Over Hit-And-Run Sentence

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The father of a 13-year-old boy who was struck and killed by an intoxicated driver says he is seeking justice by asking the state Supreme Court to reprimand the judge who gave the driver 90 days in prison.

During the trial in which 35-year-old Martha Hamm was found guilty of hit-and-run and death by auto, a pathologist testified that the boy, Mark Ferguson, lived for 30 minutes after the accident.

"It's an outrage," said the father of the victim, Carson W. Ferguson. "If you can hit someone and leave them to die in a ditch, that's not right. That's not justice."

Ferguson is circulating a petition asking that the trial judge, David E. Reid Jr. of Greenville, be reprimanded for not exercising his power to hand out a stiffer sentence in the case.

The defense contended that Mrs. Hamm, the mother of Ferguson, lived for 30 minutes after the accident.

Trade Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States finished 1978 with a record $28.45 billion deficit in its foreign trade, the government said today. The red ink in the nation's foreign trade accounts was a major cause in the decline of the dollar during the year.

The Commerce Department said the trade deficit was worst with Japan, which sold the United States $11.6 billion more in goods than it bought.

If there was any good news in the trade picture during the year, it was that imports of foreign oil declined 6.8 percent to a total of $39.5 billion. Oil imports in 1977 had totaled $42.4 billion.

The Commerce Department said the over-all trade deficit in December was $2.04 billion, an increase from $1.95 billion a month earlier. While the increase was small, it showed the nation probably will continue to face substantial problems in its trade accounts in the months ahead.

However, Carter administration officials have predicted that the overall trade deficit for 1979 will be reduced substantially, in part because of the decline in the dollar that has made U.S. goods cheaper abroad but also because the U.S. economy is expected to slow down and reduce demand for imports.

The total 1978 deficit of $28.45 billion compared with a 1977 deficit of $26.5 billion, which was the previous worst trade deficit on record.

Tired Players Finally End Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It wasn't exactly son of Super Bowl XIII that brought the National Football League's longest season ever to a merciful end. Maybe a great, great grandchild would be more appropriate.

And although some rabid fans might disagree, many of the players seemed happy to call it a year.

"I'm feeling great...this capped off a very nice week with a lot of nice guys," said Minnesota's Ahmad Rashad after helping the National Conference to a 13-7 victory over the American Conference in the annual Pro Bowl extravaganza at the Coliseum Monday night. "One of the highlights of my career was just being here. The most valuable player award was just gravy."

Rashad caught five passes for 89 yards and was one of at least a handful of players who were MVP possibilities in the nationally televised game played before 38,333 fans. More than a third of those who purchased tickets — 13,310 — either stayed home or went elsewhere.

It was a requirement of Los Angeles Rams' season ticket-holders to purchase a ticket to the Pro Bowl.

The NFL kicked off its 1978 exhibition season last July 29. Following were four preseason games, 16 regular-season games, three weeks of playoffs and the Super Bowl.

The victory was the fourth for the NFL in the past five years and the fifth in nine games overall since the all-star contest changed formats to pit the two conferences against each other.

There were only 20 points — on three touchdowns and two extra points — scored in a game where the teams combined for 616 yards in total offense.

It was a far cry from the Pittsburgh Steelers' wild 35-31 triumph over the Dallas Cowboys in the Super Bowl eight days earlier.

"This was not the Super Bowl, it doesn't ease that loss, but it's nice to win an all-star game," said running back Tony Dorsett, who has helped the Cowboys to two Super Bowl berths in as many NFL seasons. "It's been a long year, but a good year. I've enjoyed it."

"But I can't wait to catch that big bird in the morning and fly the friendly skies back to Dallas," added Dorsett, who gained 27 yards on seven carries Monday night. "I'm going to relax for a long, long time."

Roger Staubach, a teammate of Dorsett's, rifled a 19-yard touchdown pass to yet another Cowboy, wide receiver Tony Hill, with 3:43 remaining in the third quarter to give the NFC its victory.

The only score of the second half followed a 16-yard punt by Oakland's Ray Guy and capped a 45-yard, five-play drive.

The winners took a 6-0 lead after 7:06 of the second quarter on a 2-yard run by Philadelphia's Wilbert Montgomery. The touchdown came on a fourth-and-1 play.

New Orleans quarterback Archie Manning engineered the 70-yard, 11-play march. Los Angeles' Frank Corral was wide on the conversion attempt.

The AFC retaliated with its only score of the night, moving 62 yards on nine plays after the ensuing kickoff. The touchdown came on an 8-yard pass from Miami's Bob Griese to Seattle's Steve Largent. Garo Yepremian of the Dolphins added the extra point.

Largent, the first member of the Seahawks to play in a Pro Bowl, finished with five catches, all in the second quarter.

Both he and Rashad tied the Pro Bowl record for number of receptions.

Staubach outplayed Terry Bradshaw, his counterpart in Super Bowl XIII, with nine completions in 15 attempts for 125 yards. Bradshaw hit on seven of 17 for 54 yards.

Second-stringers Griese and Manning made their presence felt. Griese completed 10 of 20 for 122 yards and Manning, the first member of the Saints to play in a Pro Bowl under the current format, was eight of 17 for 78 yards.

The AFC's Earl Campbell, who led the NFL in rushing as a rookie for Houston with 1,450 yards, topped all ground-gainers with 66 yards on 12 carries. New England's Sam Cunningham had 49 yards on eight attempts for the losers.

Montgomery led the NFC in rushing with 53 yards on nine tries.

"I never got up for it," said Bradshaw, the NFL's most valuable player. "I wanted to be alert, but I really didn't want to play another game."

"I don't think anybody wanted to play, but it's an honor to be in it," he added. "I'm glad nobody got hurt, that's the important thing. I'm tired, I'm emotionally drained, mentally fatigued."

"It's been a great year, but I'm glad it's over."

Rashad felt that players on both teams wanted to win the game, which meant $5,000 to the 40 NFC participants and $2,500 to members of the AFC team.

"Egos get involved, your pride kind of takes over," said the Vikings' wide receiver. "The best kind of comes out. There's no losers involved. Everybody's a winner. Once the game starts, you want to play your best football and win."

The NFC victory enabled Tom Mack to end a fine career on a winning note. It was the 11th Pro Bowl appearance for the Rams' offensive guard.

"I knew this was coming at least the past month," said Mack. "I set my mind to it before the playoffs."

Mack received a standing ovation with about a minute left to play.

"It was very flattering," he said. "It's a little overpowering. This whole week has been amazing. You don't think that many people know who you are."

Mack, who played in 184 consecutive games in a 13-year career with the Rams, announced his retirement last week.

Pirates Crush UNCG, 109-43

East Carolina raced past UNC-Greensboro 109-43 in women's basketball Monday night, setting two school records. The Pirates scored the most points ever in a game and also set a new record for margin of victory (66 points).

"We are very, very happy with this win. This game was extremely important to us," commented Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi. "This was a whole team effort. Everyone got a chance to play. We played excellent defense. ECU has come a long way and will go a long way."

The Pirate defenders forced 35 turnovers and ECU outrebounded UNC-G 57-36.

High scorer for the Pirates was all-America candidate Rosie Thompson. She scored 23 points, seven shy of reaching a career total of 1,500 points. Other players in double figures were guards Gale Kerbaugh, hitting a game high of 25 points, Lydia Roundtree with 15 and center Marcia Given with 16. Thompson was the top rebounder with 17, while Lynne Emerson grabbed 10.

Leading the way for the Spartans, now 0-13, were Anna Parker with 19 points and 10 rebounds and Sue Carlton with 12 points.

"East Carolina ran the ball real well. They were good with the fast break," said losing coach Ditty Speeler. "They are a very good team."

ECU's record is now 11-7 overall and 6-2 in the NCAIAW Division I. The Pirates' next game is Friday night against nationally-ranked N. C. State, currently 13-4.

UNC-Greensboro — Johnson 30.6, Carlton 6.0, Parker 6.7, Martin 12.4, Robertson 0.0, Minga 0.0, Rhodes 1.0, Rudy 0.0.

East Carolina — Thompson 10.3, Emerson 2.0, Given 7.1, Kerbaugh 12.1, Roundtree 7.1, Young 0.0, Barnes 3.0, Howell 2.0, Ross 4.1, Jinsley 0.2, Versprille 0.2.

Home-Court Advantage Aids Syracuse, Texas

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

You can't beat that home-court advantage in college basketball. And Syracuse and Texas are certainly taking advantage of it.

The eighth-ranked Orangemen extended their winning streak at home to 42 with a 90-74 rout of West Virginia and No. 11 Texas made it 25 straight by beating Houston 79-53 Monday night.

The essential power of the Orangemen — their front line — did most of the damage, teaming for 67 of their points at the noisy Manley Field House.

"We were just trying to stay out of their way and let them have a field day," Syracuse guard Hal Cohen said of his team's Big Three — Dale Shackelford, Louie Orr and Roosevelt Bouie.

Shackelford scored 27 points, Orr collected 22 and tied a school record with 13 assists and Bouie collected 18 points.

"West Virginia played a triangle-and-two defense," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim. "I told our guards not to move and just let Orr, Shackelford and Bouie play. No team in the country can play these three guys with that defense."

Jim Krivacs and Ron Baxter teamed for 45 points as Texas remained undefeated in its Super Drum arena, which opened last year.

"They'll say Houston had a bad game against us tonight," noted Texas Coach Abe Lemons, "but it seems like everybody has been having bad games against us this year."

In other action involving the nation's Top 20 teams, No. 10 Louisiana State beat Tennessee 84-78; No. 16 Texas A&M hammered Baylor 71-58; Virginia defeated No. 16 Temple 73-71 and Florida turned back No. 20 Vanderbilt 90-87 in overtime.

The Mountaineers trailed most of the way against Syracuse and made a serious run at the Orangemen with a 14-2 burst late in the second half that cut their deficit to seven points. However, the rally ended when West Virginia center Junius Lewis fouled out.

"We've been inconsistent on the road all year," noted West Virginia Coach Gale Catlett. "I thought if we could get close to them down the stretch and pressure the ball, then maybe they'd crack. The key was when Lewis went out."

Baxter led the scoring for Texas with 23 points while Krivacs had 22 and set a school scoring record, finishing with 1,533 at the end of the game. The old Texas record was 1,513 by Raymond Downs in the 1950s.

"He's deserving of the record," said Lemons. "He's a good shooter. He's better than good — he's excellent."

Al Green scored 17 points and Greg Cook added 16 to lead LSU over Tennessee. The Tigers wiped out a nine-point deficit to beat the Volunteers for the second time in six days.

Rudy Woods scored 20 points to lead Texas A&M past Baylor. Woods rallied the Aggies with two dazzling dunk shots that broke a 57 tie with less than three minutes remaining.

Jeff Lamp scored 32 points to lead Virginia past Temple. Jimmy Cotton hit two free throws to send the game into overtime and then scored four more points to lead Florida past Vanderbilt.

Elsewhere, Dwight Anderson scored 13 points and Truman Claytor added 12 as Kentucky beat Auburn 66-59; Richard Harris and Reggie Franklin scored 15 points apiece as SMU defeated Rice 80-67; Murray Brown drilled in 31 points to spark Florida State over Tulane 89-84; and Sammy Drummer's 21 points powered Georgia Tech past Cincinnati 82-73.

Also, Army whipped RPI 84-54 behind Matt Brown's 19 points; Texas Tech stopped TCU as David Little scored 14 points; Wayne Krecklow collected 26 points to become Drake's No. 3 all-time scorer in a 91-89 victory over West Texas State; John Moore hit the winning shot with 1:40 left as Duquesne beat Oral Roberts 68-67; John Stroud and Elston Turner teamed for 55 points to pace Mississippi over Georgia 82-63; Gary Wilson's 26 points paced Southern Illinois past Wichita State 82-81; Western Kentucky tripped Eastern Kentucky 70-65 behind Rick Wray's 15 points and Alcorn State improved its glittering record to 18-0 with an 81-63 decision over Texas Southern as James Horton scored 24 points.

ETSU Wins In Final Seconds

By The Associated Press

Seconds counted when East Tennessee State travelled to Samford Monday night, and Cat Watson lived up to his name.

With only six seconds remaining, he sprung for a 20-foot jump shot to key the 64-63 win for ETSU in a non-Southern Conference game.

In other games involving Southern Conference teams, The Citadel beat South Carolina 91-86 and Morehead State defeated visiting Marshall 101-95.

Watson scored a total of 16 points in ETSU's win. He was followed by Winfred Reid with 14 and Richard Bragg with 10.

For Samford, Marvin Stewart scored a game-high 19 points.

East Tennessee improved its record to 11-8 with the win.

The Citadel kept up its winning ways with the dynamic duo of Rick Swing and Randy Nesbit pumping in a total of 35 points.

The conference's leading team, now 13-3 for the season, hit 31 of 38 shots from the free throw line.

Swing began the second half Bulldog spurt with a jumper from the lane, and Nesbit followed with a diving layup to give the team an 80-70 margin with 4:35 to play.

S.C. State, 4-12, had led at the half, 44-40, but was unable to keep up the pace. Marty Lane put in 22 points for the team to lead all scorers.

Marshall suffered its 12th loss in 19 outings this season with the drubbing by Morehead

Cavs Edge By Temple, 73-71

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Virginia's Jeff Lamp outduelled Temple's Rick Reed Monday night as the Cavaliers edged the 16th-ranked Owls 73-71 in an intersectional college basketball game.

Lamp scored 32 points, including the go-ahead basket with 2:33 remaining, as Virginia raised its record to 12-6. Temple is now 15-3.

"It was one of those games where it went back and forth," said Virginia Coach Terry Holland. "The horn just happened to blow when we were ahead."

The game was the only one involving an Atlantic Coast Conference team Monday.

Lamp hit from the baseline to put the Cavaliers in front, then scored on a layup with 2:14 left to give his team a 70-67 lead.

Two free throws by Mike Owens increased Virginia's lead to 72-67, but Reed hit a jumper from the corner.

Bobby Stokes connected on one of two free throws for Virginia, but Reed responded with a 20-footer to cut the gap to two points with 39 seconds remaining.

The Owls got the ball with 20 seconds left and ran the clock down, but Reed missed a 25-foot shot that bounced away with one second remaining.

Washington Downs Aycock

Washington Junior High School gained a 52-35 victory over E.B. Aycock Junior High School yesterday.

Jeannie Spencer led Washington with 16 points, while Kim Guilford had 14 and McLean had 13.

Aycock was led by Frances Barnhill with 14.

Aycock is now 1-8.

Seven Qualify TE Academy

TARBORO — Tarboro-Edgecombe Academy gained a pair of wins over Pace Academy last night.

In the girls' game, Tarboro-Edgecombe took a 38-8 victory. Kim Edmondson led TEA with 18 points, while Sue Ellen Allen led Pace with four. Pace is now 6-8.

The boys' game saw TEA take a 33-28 win. Alan Hughes led TEA with 15, while Fred Pollard led Pace with 14, while Crowell Pope had eight.

Pace's boys are now 12-3.

Mat Event Scheduled

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central High School will play host to the Eastern Carolina Conference wrestling championships Thursday, starting at 1 p.m.

Knicks Play Well, But Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Clemons had played his best game in two years with the New York Knicks, but when it was over he once again found himself in a very quiet locker room, trying to explain his team's latest loss.

"We played hard, we were competitive, we hung tough and we didn't quit. But we didn't get the 'W' — we didn't win, and that's what matters," said Clemons.

Instead the Knicks were beaten by the Golden State Warriors 107-104 in the only game played in the National Basketball Association Monday night. It was the sixth straight loss for the stumbling Knicks, while Golden State ended a three-game slide.

The defeat dropped the Knicks eight games below .500 at 22-30, their worst mark of the season.

The Warriors got 13 points from center Robert Parish and 12 from playmaker John Lucas in the first period and were ahead 55-42 midway through the second quarter before they became lethargic and permitted New York to climb back into contention.

The Knicks, paced by Clemons and forward Toby Knight, pulled to within five points in the third period and to within one with 1:45 to play. But Lucas hit a driving layup for his first points of the second half and, after New York's Bob McAdoo went 0-for-3 from the foul line, Lucas sank two free throws for a 105-100 lead with 48 seconds left.

Clemons came back with a basket and two free throws to cut it back down to one point with 29 seconds to go. The Warriors killed half that time, then got the ball to their smooth backcourt star, Phil Smith.

Smith, being guarded tightly by Clemons, tried to maneuver behind a Clifford Ray screen at the foul line. But Clemons fought his way through, so Smith changed direction and drove down the left side of the lane.

Knicks center Joe C. Meriwether stepped out to pick him up, but Smith let go a soft bank shot from about six feet out. The ball eluded Meriwether's outstretched hand, careered gently off the glass and nestled into the net to seal the victory.

Indiana State Finally Loses, But It's In Poll, Not On Court

NEW YORK (AP) — It took 11 weeks, but Indiana State finally lost one — off the court that is.

Notre Dame, despite garnering only 15 first-place ballots to the Sycamores' 32 and losing a game in the final seconds to Maryland last week, retained the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll today.

The Irish received 1,124 points in balloting by a nationwide committee of sports writers and broadcasters, edging Indiana State, 18-0, by a mere 13 points in one of the closest votes in AP poll history.

Both teams were named on each of the 60 votes cast by committee members. Notre Dame was tabbed no lower than sixth by the members, while the Sycamores were listed as low as 10th by one member.

While Notre Dame and Indiana State were battling hard for the No. 1 spot, last week's rash of upsets created wholesale changes among the rest of the Top Ten.

Preseason favorite Duke, ranked seventh last week, moved into the No. 3 position with eight first-place votes and 1,025 points following victories over Virginia and Marquette.

North Carolina, No. 2 last week and seemingly the heir apparent to the No. 1 ranking after Notre Dame's loss on Saturday afternoon, took themselves out of contention later that night, dropping a 66-61 decision to Clemons. The Tar Heels settled for fourth this week with 970 points, including one first-place vote.

UCLA, ranked sixth before victories over Washington and Washington State last week, received two first-place votes and 957 points, edging Louisville for the No. 5 position by one point. The Cardinals, who were fifth last week and posted triumphs over St. Louis and Virginia Tech, received the remaining two first-place votes.

Ohio State, which knocked Duke from the unbeaten ranks earlier this year and was unranked three weeks ago, continued its rise, moving from 10th to seventh with 851 points.

Eastern powers Syracuse, 692 points, and Georgetown, 623, took the eighth and ninth positions, while Louisiana State rounded out the Top Ten with 497 points.

Texas, No. 17 last week, headed the Second Ten, followed by Marquette, Alabama, Illinois, Michigan State, Texas A&M, Maryland, Temple, Arkansas and Vanderbilt.

Michigan State and Illinois took the wildest rollercoaster rides. The Spartans fell from fourth to 15th after losing to Michigan and Northwestern, while the Illini tumbled from eighth to 14th after being upset by Michigan and Iowa.

North Carolina State, a member of the Top Twenty since the beginning of the season, was the only team to drop out of the poll. Maryland, which has been in and out of the Top Twenty all year, is this week's only new member.

Mix Is Happy With Reward

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ron Mix has no trouble remembering the many hours of "hard work and boring preparation" during an 11-year National Football League career. But now, he believes he has received the ultimate reward.

"All that running, lifting weights, it was very, very boring," said Mix, who spent most of his career with the San Diego Chargers. "It was an awful lot of hard work. This really makes it all worth it."

Mix is one of the four most recent ex-NFL greats to be voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame by the 29-member board of selectors, raising to 102 the number so honored.

"I'm extremely thrilled to be selected," said Mix, who became only the second former American Football League performer to be honored. "It was such a shock when I found out. "It's particularly thrilling in that Lance Alworth, my teammate for so many years, was the first AFL player inducted," said Mix. "And now, I'm the second."

Results of the 1979 Hall of Fame selections were announced Monday. Joining Mix at formal enshrinement ceremonies in Canton, Ohio next July 28 will be Johnny Unitas, Dick Butkus and Yale Lary. All but Unitas appeared at a news conference Monday.

Mix began his career with the Los Angeles Chargers in 1960. The franchise moved to San Diego the next year and Mix played there through 1969. He finished up with the Oakland Raiders in 1971.

Unitas and Butkus were honored at the earliest possible time, five years after retirement.

From his home in Baltimore, Unitas played down his selection.

"It's a nice tribute, I suppose," the former Colts' quarterback said. "Certainly, it's an honor to be named. But if you stay around long enough, you have to end up somewhere." Unitas stayed around, as he put it, long enough to complete 2,830 career passes for 40,239 yards during an 18-year career.

Olympic Pact Deadline Near

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — "It's all up to the lawyers now," says Howard Allen, a member of the Los Angeles Organizing Committee (LAOC) which is trying to tie up the 1984 Olympic Games for the California City.

The lawyers have to work fast. They have one month to agree on the fine wording of a contract to satisfy both the LAOC and the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC).

The contract has to be ready for signing by March 1. If not, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) will finally wind up the year-long Los Angeles saga and invite other cities to bid to stage the Games.

The IOC executive board, which was expected to sign the contract at a two-day meeting here, showed signs of irritation as the two American bodies were still not ready.

Juan Samaranch of Spain, chairman of the IOC press commission, presided over a news conference at which both the LAOC and the USOC were represented.

A reporter asked: "Do you not think that people interested in the Olympic movement around the world will feel that two irresponsible bodies coming here to sign a major contract and then failing to agree on the wording are wasting time and money?" "I agree," Samaranch said tersely. But USOC President Robert Kane jumped up and tried to restore confidence in the plan to stage the Olympic Games in the United States for the first time in 48 years.

"I've never thought for a moment that the Games would not come to Los Angeles in 1984," Kane declared. "There's no substantial disagreement between the parties. We're in the stage of finalizing our agreement. We're not wasting time or being irresponsible."

The two 'American bodies share financial responsibility for the Games in Los Angeles. They have agreed on a share of the profits — if there are any.

But recently the USOC also demanded a share in the permanent assets — stadiums and other buildings — as a guarantee of possible loss. This is the issue holding up the contract once more.

Monique Berlioux, Director of the IOC, tried to quash talk of an ultimatum.

"This is not an ultimatum," she said. "A decline for signing the contract has already been set, and we were simply extending it."

Nevertheless, if the contract is not signed by March 1, the IOC will look elsewhere for a host city. The situation is almost back to that of last summer, when the IOC gave Los Angeles two months to agree on a basis for running the games.

Pugh Retires From Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — When Jethro Pugh was tabbed out of tiny Elizabeth City State University by the Dallas Cowboys in the 11th round of the 1965 draft, it gave Dallas writers and fans a new joke.

"What is a Jethro Pugh?" they asked. The 6-foot-6, 255-pound defensive tackle ended his career Monday, his name a household word among Cowboy fans.

The lone survivor of the old Dallas Doomsday Defense, Pugh called it quits after 14 seasons, seven operations and more playoff appearances (23) than any other player in National Football League history.

"I like to think I've had a good, clean, honest career, but now it's time to do something else. I simply feel I've reached a point where I should discontinue football and pursue another career," Pugh said.

Pugh said he has no definite plans now, but is looking at several business opportunities. He said he plans to make Dallas his permanent home. Pugh, 34, never made a Pro Bowl or All Pro in his 14 years with the Cowboys, yet was one of the primary reasons they made it to five Super Bowls.

Plagued by knee problems through the second half of the 1978 season, he missed Super Bowl XIII because of injuries. Pugh said the grind of training camp and daily practice became tedious and that he gave serious consideration to retiring during last summer's training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

"I went to 14 training camps, and there wasn't a one I didn't consider leaving at one time or the other. Then the practices became a lot like a regular 9- to-5 job. I found myself driving in rush-hour traffic to get to work and then rush-hour traffic to go home," he said. "Game days were different. I still got excited when I got to the stadium. That part of it never quit being fun," Pugh said.

It was Pugh whom Green Bay's Jerry Kramer blocked in the infamous 1967 "Ice Bowl" NFL title game, setting up a quarterback sneak by Bart Starr for the winning touchdown with seconds to play.

Pugh said the memory of that game, played in temperatures of minus 13, still bothers him.

"That still disturbs me. It's been a bother because it has been an almost constant reminder," Pugh said. "The ground was frozen and our line just couldn't dig in. I'm still bothered by frostbite from that game to this day."

Pugh said his biggest thrill was the Cowboys' winning Super Bowl VI.

Swimmers Take On State

The East Carolina men's and women's swimming teams travel to Raleigh tonight for a 7 p.m. meet with Atlantic Coast Conference power N. C. State.

The Wolfpack men were ranked 12th nationally last year and the State women's team holds a place in top five nationally. team; and Jim Umbdenstock, an all-American in the sprints and butterfly. Pirate coach Ray Scharf thinks this will be his team's toughest competition since meeting Alabama in November. "We are looking forward to the challenge and we're going after them."

Scharf has only six women going into this meet, against a team with several all-Americans. "We will need good times from our girls to compete with State," he commented. Saturday, East Carolina will return home for a 1 p.m. meet with Duke.

N. C. State has several world-class swimmers, including backstroke and distance freestyler Dan Harrigan, who won a bronze medal at the Montreal Olympics; Duncan Goodhew, a European breaststroke champion who swam on the British Olympic

Hopeful News in Medicine

The Michigan State Medical Society has persuaded voters to restore the legal age for drinking to 21. For the society has shown definitively that lowering the drinking age resulted in a dramatic rise in the number of fatal accidents to young drivers. It is hoped that all other states will follow the aggressive educational campaign in Michigan and help preserve the lives that are now being sacrificed to drunken driving.

The Lasker Awards are among the most prestigious in American science. Recently, they were given to a group of scientists for their accomplishment in various fields of endeavor. The press, radio and television paid rightful homage to these men. Their accomplishments deserve special emphasis so that the American people can gain a better insight into the hopes that lie in modern medicine.

These scientific endeavors indicate, too, the imaginative concepts that are being constantly pursued by dedicated researchers.

Dr. Solomon H. Snyder, a professor at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, clearly showed how the body itself produces its own pain-killing chemicals.

Dr. Snyder was able to isolate the substance that, hopefully, will eventually lead to the relief of pain, the reduction of depression and, probably, to the control of insomnia.

Dr. Michael Heidelberger has been a major force in developing a vaccine that is already highly effective in preventing some forms of pneumococcal pneumonia. This is of great significance because, even with the antibiotics, many thousands of deaths from this type of pneumonia occur each year in the United States.

Dr. Emil C. Gotschlich, working at the New York Rockefeller University, has developed another vaccine. This vaccine is against some forms of meningitis, a life-threatening disease.

These are only a few of the achievements rewarded by the Lasker Foundation. Thousands of scientists are constantly at work, seeking the answers to the myriad questions that still remain before us.

A clever device will soon be on the market for the control of motion sickness and, perhaps, for alleviating nausea during pregnancy. This device is a small silver disk that is attached to the skin. The disk contains the drug, scopolamine, and releases about one milligram through the skin over a three day period. It is hoped that this device will be marketed within another year. When all safety factors have been investigated and when the Food and Drug Administration approves it, there may be many more uses for this silver disk in the releasing of other drugs for a variety of purposes.

Cautious Optimism To Hunt's Crime Control Talk

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislative leaders reacted with cautious optimism to Gov. Jim Hunt's proposals for crime control Monday night, but said they saw several areas, particularly merit selection of judges and uniform sentencing, where his proposals might run into opposition.

House Speaker Carl Stewart said he thought Hunt "felt obligated to endorse merit selection" even though it has not fared well in the past with either the state Crime Control Commission or the General Assembly.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green said he thought the proposal "would have tough sledding. But again, the governor's office is very, very powerful."

Green said he thought Hunt's suggestion for uniform sentencing "would cause a lot of concern in this body." But Stewart was more hopeful, saying that while he thought Hunt would give the idea "a lot more attention" he believed the House "will move on that."

Under merit selection, a nominating committee would select a list of names that would be given to the governor for each judge's post, and the governor would choose one name on the list and make the appointment. The voters would decide at intervals whether the judge should be kept in office by voting on the question of whether each judge should be retained. Judges would not run in contested elections.

Hunt's plan followed a potential criminal from the cradle to juvenile court. He urged laws which would give more protection to abused children and battered spouses.

He asked for a single state government agency to deal with juvenile justice and said serious juvenile offenders should be treated more severely, fingerprinted and photographed, tried in criminal court and given stiffer sentences.

Hunt said he based his recommendations on the Crime Control Agenda compiled by former Crime Control and Public Safety Secretary J. Phil Carlton, who is now a Court of Appeals Judge.

He said he disagreed with a few recommendations in the agenda, among them the re-enactment of the outlaw statute. The statute, declared unconstitutional in 1976, would allow citizens to shoot fugitives declared dangerous by a court.

"There is too much chance of innocent people being killed," Hunt said, "and we can usually amass enough law officers to bring in fugitives."

China Revisited

Peking Subways Found Crowded, But Elegant

EDITOR'S NOTE — This second in a series of seven articles by Shanghai-born Timothy T.S. Tung, who recently returned to China for the first time in 31 years, deals with getting around among Peking's masses.

By TIMOTHY T.S. TUNG
AP Newsfeatures

The way to see Peking's "new" subway, built since 1970, is to just go and purchase a ticket and enter. We didn't bother to ask proper authorities for permission, which might be denied for whatever reason.

The evening we visited the subway was long after the rush hour. The station was quiet. A very pretty and friendly girl attendant came to volunteer information and readily posed for picture-taking. I promised to send her a picture through my brother, who is a regular rider.

Peking's subway is 24 kilometers (about 15 miles) long, a ride of 45 minutes from one end to the other. It starts service at 5:30 a.m. and stops at 11 p.m. and it costs 10 fens (six cents) a ride. Stations are well lit, clean and attended by men and women wearing sky-blue uniforms. With marble pillars decorated with classic Chinese paintings and calligraphy, the stations look more like elegant hotel lobbies, each different from the other in color and in design.

The crowds are unruly getting on and off the train for fear that the doors will close on them, but the attendants are courteous.

At each stop, the loud speaker would announce: "Next stop, X X station, will be reached soon. Those who wish to get off please prepare to do so. Comrades, please do not push and jostle. Get off the train in an orderly fashion; abide by the spirit of unity and friendly love. Take care of the old, the feeble, the sick and the crippled. Comrades, do not smoke. Do not spit on the floor..." Riders seem largely oblivious of such instructions.

Peking certainly needs to expand its rapid-transit system. The city is so huge that transportation is a problem for any visitors. Taxis are hard to get, and public buses and trolleys are always crowded.

Women conductors on Peking's buses and trolleys are a delightful lot. They seem to love their jobs on a jammed vehicle, constantly moving about, selling tickets and giving instructions. They are robust, firm, courteous in an authoritative way. And they have an embarrassing habit of insisting that a foreign guest should always get a seat.

Once we encountered a young woman speaking in a beautiful nasal-toned Peking dialect. As soon as we got on, we were being cared for. First, she got someone to yield his seat to a woman holding a baby. Next, she started working for the comfort of foreign guests. When she did succeed in prying some citizens off their seats, she insisted that we take them, and wouldn't take "no thanks" for an answer. Reluctantly, my wife and daughter took the offered seats. But I won the contest of wills and, greatly relieved, gave my seat to an elderly woman.

The conductor, full of energy, was endlessly voicing instructions.

MASS TRANSIT—Peking's subway stations are well lit, clean and attended by men and women wearing sky-blue uniforms.

"X X Street. Please take care getting off the bus. Comrades, buy your tickets if you haven't done so...Do not crowd the foreign guests...Have you bought your tickets, comrades? Don't push, don't push, there is plenty of room in the rear...Ah, the baby is crying, is he not well? Shield his face. Fight not, comrades; you'll get down soon. It's not worth it."

The last aimed at a woman and a man who were having words because of jostling.

Buses and trolleys, though crowded, are plentiful and run frequently at two-or three-minute intervals. But the main means of transportation for many is bicycles. Residents of Peking, with a population of about 9 million, own about 4 million bicycles.

Bike riding is so convenient and so popular that Lu Xing

She (China Travel Service) is considering a rent-a-bike program for future foreign visitors. To park a bike you pay two fens (a hundred fens to a yuan, which is about 60 cents) to the attendant. Despite the reputation of honesty in China, signs such as "Lock Your Bike" are not uncommon in front of stores.

Automobile drivers require great skill and most drive recklessly. They have an irritating habit of making full use of the horn. After a while I begin to understand why.

Many bike riders will not yield until you toot to shoo them out of the way; citizens cross wide boulevards in leisurely fashion with no regard for the oncoming traffic, many unaware of the speed of a motor vehicle. Drivers honk incessantly and impatiently.

Land Improvement Contractor Is Key

According to Jesse L. Hicks of Raleigh, head of the state Soil Conservation Service, the land improvement contractor is a key man in keeping streams clean and clear and also aids in many other conservation programs.

"No matter whether he's digging a pond or installing drain tile, excavating mosquito control ditches or simply clearing land, the man on the tractor is an important part of the conservation process," said Hicks.

Equipment operators in North Carolina are ready to work with landowners in maintaining land and water resources, according to Hicks. Many of the operators are members of the Land Improvement Contractors of America, a group noted for its mixture of technology, talent and interest in doing a good job.

The organization has more than 3,400 members, with a growing number coming from North Carolina.

"I'm glad that these folks are organized and active," said Hicks. "They held a statewide meeting in Raleigh recently with professionalism as a key theme."

According to Hicks, a major area of responsibility will come under the new Rural Clean Water Act, when landowners enter into long-term, cost-shared RCWP contracts that will usually require assistance from equipment operators.

LICA members work with landowners to maintain environmental quality as they do their work and also call on professional employees of the USDA-Soil Conservation Service to provide technical guidance and advice.

"We in the SCS are delighted to help with this work, since our main goal in North Carolina and the nation is to keep erosion and sediment under control," Hicks noted. "This is the only way we're going to keep our land and water resources in fine shape."

"Of course, SCS people have been working with landowners, rural and urban, for more than four decades, and it's good that the conservation team, including the community leaders we call district supervisors, can get additional help from land improvement contractors," Hicks added. "We're going to need all the help we can get to do the job."

Liggett Says Earnings Up

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The Liggett Group Inc. Monday announced record net earnings of $56.8 million in 1978, including a gain $30.4 million after taxes from the sale of its foreign cigarette operations.

The earnings, which amounted to $6.26 per common share, were up from $2.6 million, or 12 cents a share, in 1977.

Raymond J. Mulligan, president of Liggett Group, said the company recorded revenues of a record $971 million in 1978, up from $878 million the previous year.

Liggett Group announced last Friday an agreement in principle to sell its domestic cigarette division to a firm owned by Dolph Overton of Smithfield, N.C. Officials said the sale would bring in net proceeds, after liquidation of all liabilities, of about $122 million.

The earnings for 1978 included the $30.4 million after-tax gain, equal to $3.43 cents per share, from sale of the foreign tobacco unit. Earnings from the foreign cigarette business amounted to $30 million and included a $17.3 million after-tax charge for a write-off of good will related to the "other products" group.

The earnings for 1977 included an after-tax charge of $30 million, or $3.33 per share, for the revaluation of assets of the Perk Pet Food subsidiary and earnings of $3.1 million from the foreign cigarette business.

The company said its revenues for the final quarter 1978 were $241 million, up from $217 million the corresponding period in 1977.

Community School Programs To Begin

The Pitt County Community Schools Program will be offering several interest courses beginning this week.

An Industrial Arts and Crafts class will begin at Wellcome Middle School Wednesday, Jan. 31, with classes every Wednesday from 3:30-5 p.m. for eight weeks. A registration fee of $5 should be paid the first day of class.

An Arts and Crafts class will be offered at Chicod School, with registration Thursday, Feb. 1, in the Media Center during recess.

Classes will begin the following week on Tuesday or Thursday, with the date depending on the number registered. The class will be held from 3:30-5 p.m. for eight weeks. Registration is $5.

The Community Schools Program will be offering a Super Champ Basketball Tournament. There will be individual competition for ages 8-13, with separate divisions for boys and girls. Registration and practice sessions will be held Monday, Feb. 5 and Feb. 12 from 3:30-5 p.m. at Chicod and Wellcome Middle Schools. There will be no charge for participation and local tournament winners will be able to compete in the county-wide tournament.

For more information, call the Community Schools Program, 752-6106, extension 58.

Explains Cost Of Shoplifting

BETHEL — George Martin, a member of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Merchants Committee, spoke to eighth grade students at Bethel Elementary School recently about the local Shoplifting Takes Everybody's Money (STEM) Program.

Martin explained the many problems that retailers face to combat shoplifting, and the consequences of shoplifting "Shoplifting really does take everybody's money," Martin explained. "That is why when you buy a candy bar, it costs 17 cents or 20 cents instead of 15 cents."

Posters which explain information about shoplifting were presented to the school for display. Martin answered students' questions after his talk.

QUALIFIES FOR FUNDS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Republican National Chairman George Bush says he has qualified for federal campaign funds in his bid for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination.

BEAT THE PEAK.

IT WORKED!

The temperature soared.

It was August 29, 1978, and the thermometer pushed past 95 degrees. Air conditioners strained and the total amount of electricity being used throughout the Greenville area climbed toward a record-breaking peak. Our load management system, "BEAT THE PEAK," went to work.

We "Beat the Peak" that day. Six megawatts of power that otherwise would have been consumed—perhaps needlessly—wasn't used during the "peak" period. Those six megawatts of power saved will yield a net savings to our community's electrical system of over $225,000. BEAT THE PEAK customer volunteers received nearly $70,000 in the form of monthly credits of up to $7.50 on their June through September utility bills. The rest of the savings will help pay for the $450,000 first-year investment in the load management equipment.

Electrical Contractors are now installing special switches in the homes of customers who volunteer to help BEAT THE PEAK. There is no charge for the installation, and no inconvenience. Just savings.

Approximately 1500 applications will be accepted for 1979 installations. Nearly 1000 applications are already on file, with additional ones being received every day. If you live in a house, apartment, duplex, or condominium and have either an electric water heater and/or a central air conditioning unit, you are eligible to participate in the program. You may apply by mailing in the attached application form, or by contacting the Energy Conservation Office at 752-7166, Extension 234. Act Now to be sure you get in on this Summers Savings.

There is one rather important, practically indisputable statement we can make about our load management program, BEAT THE PEAK:
It Works.
