Indicators Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's index of economic indicators fell in December for the second month in a row, the first solid sign that an economic slowdown may be near.

The Commerce Department said today that the index fell 0.5 percent in December, the same as in November. The index had increased 0.4 percent in October.

The Composite Index of Leading Indicators is designed to point to future economic trends. A three-month decline is considered one indication of a possible recession.

While the index is far from fool-proof and is subject to frequent major revisions, the second monthly decline comes against a background of predictions by many economists that an economic recession will occur this year because of Carter administration efforts to slow the economy to help fight inflation.

In recent weeks, top administration officials have conceded there is some risk of a recession, but they say the risk would be greater if inflation continued to worsen.

The Commerce Department said six of the 10 individual indicators in its index declined in December, led by a drop in cash and other liquid assets. Also negative were the average work week, the job layoff rate, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, the money supply and building permits.

The four indicators that increased were sales delivery performance, sensitive prices, stock prices and new orders.

The index in December stood at 137.3 of the 1967 average of 100.

The administration is officially forecasting that the economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, will grow by 2.2 percent this year after discounting for an inflation, down from about 4 percent growth last year.

That would be enough to avoid a recession. However, administration officials say unemployment will increase this year even if a recession is avoided, rising to about 6.2 percent from the current 5.9 percent jobless level.

Fire Fatality

A THREE-YEAR-OLD GIRL... Courtney Rochelle Hardy died in a fire in the trailer in which her family lived in the back yard of her grandmother's home in Simpson yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 p. m. Her mother, Mrs. Regina Hardy, was across the yard at the home of her mother-in-law when the fire, of unknown origin, started, County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said. Fire Departments which fought the fire included Simpson, Grimesland and Eastern Pines. A Greenville Rescue Squad officer, wearing self-contained breathing apparatus, brought the dead child out. Taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital were the grandmother of the child, Mrs. Thelma Hardy, suffering from an emotional reaction to the fire, and Simpson Fire Chief Hyman Boyd who cut his face during a fall at the scene. Carter Unveils His Health Care Plans

By MICHAEL PUTZEL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has tentatively decided to propose a national health insurance program that over time would guarantee every American the same benefits with no individual being billed for any service covered.

It would be called Health-Care.

The benefit package, whether offered by Health-Care or a federally approved private insurance company, would pay for hospital bills, physician fees, prescription drugs, outpatient, laboratory and X-ray services, and help for alcoholics, drug addicts and the mentally ill.

It also would protect everyone from being bankrupted by a catastrophic illness or accident.

Portions of the plan, obtained by The Associated Press, emphasize that it would have to be phased in over some unspecified time period, as Carter has said before.

The plan also would clamp government controls on hospital and doctors' fees and thereby make the program less expensive.

No specific cost figure is given in the draft plan, but earlier official estimates for a similar program put the amount of new funds required at "a rough minimum" of $40 billion, with $30 billion of that to be paid by the federal government and $10 billion by the nation's employers.

The federal government now pays $57 billion a year for Medicare and a 55 percent share of Medicaid, both of which would be incorporated in the new HealthCare

Concord Blaze Costs Millions

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — An early-morning fire demolished the five-story Kerr of Concord textile manufacturing building and warehouse today and general manager Aaron Blank said the loss would run "in the millions."

He said 75 employees were in the building working on the third shift. All escaped safely, some down ladders from the fourth floor.

Fourteen employees and one fireman with an injured hand were taken to Cabarrus Memorial Hospital. Most suffered smoke inhalation but one employee, Doris Andrews, was reported to have suffered a broken ankle. Three persons were admitted.

Lt. Don Davis of the Concord Police Department said the fire broke out shortly before 2 a. m. The cause was not immediately determined but he said it apparently began in the dyeing room and spread throughout the manufacturing building and the adjoining warehouse.

The plant, located on the outskirts of the city, was a fabric dyeing and finishing operation. Blank said the inventory was the largest it had ever been. The plant employs about 450 workers, he said.

'Delighted' By Prison Unit Announcement

By CAROL TYLER Reflector Staff Writer

Maury and Greene County people are delighted about Gov. Jim Hunt's announcement yesterday of the planned building of a 480-unit prison here, Greene County Economic Development Commission Board member, Jack Edmondson, said this morning.

"I haven't heard a negative comment yet," and we've been working on this thing for many months," Edmondson, who runs a feed mill in Maury, said of the proposed prison project. "Our county has needed this shot in the arm for a long time, and we're used to having a prison here. We don't fear it like some communities would. We've had a prison here for the past 40 years. This one should have a lot better security than the one we've had all along."

The institution, predicted to cost about $17.5 million, will be a medium-security facility for up to 480 adult male felons, mainly from Eastern North Carolina, N. C. Department of Corrections Secretary Amos E. Reed said. It is reported that the facility will provide about 280 service jobs for persons from Greene and surrounding counties and probably about 100 construction jobs while it's going up.

It is planned as a single-cell facility, possibly five- or six-storyed, Edmondson said he understands.

Wick Exum, Executive Secretary of the County Economic Development Commission, said work has been underway since last February to secure "this plum" for Greene County. It is to be located on a 64.5-acre tract owned by the state and situated adjacent to a prison field unit now located just outside Maury. Maury is about six miles from Snow

ERA Referendum Bill Is Introduced In House

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill was filed in the state House Tuesday calling for a statewide referendum to gauge sentiment on the Equal Rights Amendment.

And supporters of the amendment said Tuesday that prospects for its passage by the General Assembly looked brighter with the swearing in of the new senator from Buncombe County.

Rep. John Jordan, D-Alamance, an ERA opponent, filed the bill that would authorize a non-binding referendum intended as a measurement of state sentiment on the Constitutional amendment.

The bill calls for the vote to be held during the November 1980 general election.

Meanwhile, ERA supporters said the seating of Sen. Larry Leake, D-Buncombe, who says he plans to vote for ERA, increased their chances for success.

Leake was appointed by the Democratic Party's 26th Senatorial District Executive Committee to replace Sen. I.C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, who died last week. Crawford had been an ERA opponent.

Controversy surrounded Leake's swearing in Monday night after it was learned he was charged in 1976 with making an obscene telephone call to a young girl. He pleaded no contest to a lesser charge.

His seating leaves 24 of the 50 senators opposed to ERA.

21 for the measure and five uncommitted, according to two supporters who declined to be identified.

Jordan said he expects opposition to his ERA-referendum bill from supporters of the measure. He said he opposes the amendment because it is not needed.

"Deep down inside, they know the people are against it," Jordan said. "The pro-ERA people really don't want

Show Of Force By Iran's Military As Reminder

By ROBERT H. REID Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Military vehicles loaded with troops in battle dress, some firing into the air, rumbled through the heart of Tehran today in a massive show of government force on the eve of the return of religious opposition leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

A spokesman for Khomeini in Paris announced that the leader of the revolution against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would leave the French capital aboard an Air France plane tonight. A local welcoming committee said he would arrive in Tehran at 9 a. m. Thursday (12:30 a. m. EST), ending 14 years of exile.

Soldiers said the military parade was held to remind the population of the strength of the armed forces, whose commanders have rejected

Khomeini's demands for the ouster of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's government and pledged to keep it in office.

Riding in 3-ton trucks, the troops raised clenched fists and shouted. Some fired into the air. Flatbed trucks carried Centurion and Chieftain tanks and a large number of anti-aircraft guns. One column of about 2,000 men of the shah's imperial guard and 30 tanks made a wide swing through the northern part of the city.

As millions of the Shiite Moslem patriarch's followers prepared to give him a delirious welcome home, a new exodus of Americans from Iran began. The U.S. Embassy ordered families of government personnel to leave after attacks on three Americans, and the State Department said 5,000 of the 10,000 Americans still in the country were expected to go. Bakhtiar's government announced Tuesday it had granted Air France permission to fly Khomeini home despite his refusal to moderate his campaign to overthrow the monarchy and oust the government.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

QUADRIPLAGIC NEEDS EQUIPMENT

Samuel Williams, a 26-year-old man from Plymouth, has been at the Rehabilitation Center at the Pitt Memorial Hospital for almost three months, since a car accident in the fall left him quadriplegic. Williams's five-member family is anxious to bring him home instead of placing him in a nursing home, but needs to acquire a great deal of equipment to do so, according to Mrs. Rhonda Stanley, a social worker at the hospital.

Although his insurance company can pay a portion of the bills, approximately $800 is needed to buy essentials such as a chin-controlled electric wheelchair for Williams to manage safely at home.

A "Samuel Williams" fund has been set up so that interested persons may contribute. Checks should be made to the Samuel Williams Fund and sent to Mrs. Rhonda Stanley, Social Work Department, Pitt County Memorial Hospital, 200 Stan-tonsburg Rd., Greenville, N. C. All contributions are tax deductible.

By MAUREEN JOHNSON SALISBURY, Rhodesia

(AP) — Sixty percent of Rhodesia's white voters approved the new constitution promising the black majority eventual control of the country.

About 66,300 of the 94,700 registered voters cast ballots in the referendum Tuesday, and results from 37 of the 50 districts showed 85 percent voted "yes." Results from the other districts were expected today.

"I believe we have strengthened our position. There was nothing half-hearted about this vote," said Prime Minister Ian Smith, who argued that the constitution guaranteeing the whites at least partial control for the next five years was the only alternative to a takeover by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, whose black guerrillas have been battling the Rhodesian armed forces from bases in Mozambique and Zambia for more than six years.

Smith also had said he hoped the referendum would induce the United States and Britain to recognize the new government to be elected three months from now and lift their trade embargo against Rhodesia.

Ultra-right-wing opponents of the constitution said the white voters "sold their souls to the devil." And a spokesman for the guerrillas' Patriotic Front declared in New York that the whites "sort of dug their own graves."

The Patriotic Front

spokesman, Callistus Dingiswayo Ndlovu, said the constitution offers only the illusion of black majority rule. "There's no doubt" the guerrillas will take power through force of arms.

The constitution takes effect April 20 when blacks and whites vote together for the first time for the first Rhodesian Parliament with a black majority.

However, the document reserves 28 of the 100 seats in the legislature for whites for 10 years, a big enough margin to block changes in the constitution. It also reserves a quarter of the Cabinet portfolios for whites for at least five years and gives whites control over the civil service, the judiciary and military for the same period of time.

The referendum was held under terms of Smith's 10-month-old agreement establishing an interim government with moderate black leaders the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Sen.

Jeremiah Chirau. Voting stations in guerrilla-infested rural areas were guarded heavily, and dirt roads near the Mozambique border were swept for mines before white settlers in the area went to town to vote.

Smith declared Rhodesia independent from Britain in 1965 rather than agree to a constitution providing for eventual black rule. Guerrilla warfare started seven years later, and so far more than 12,000 persons have been killed on both sides.

Dollar Day

Thursday, Feb. 1, is Dollar Day in Greenville. The semi-annual event, sponsored by the Merchants Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, will be the first of two city-wide promotions this year.

According to Roy Taylor, chairman of the Merchants Committee, approximately 300 merchants in the Greenville area are expected to participate in the one-day sale.

The five major shopping areas in which merchants will be participating in the Dollar Day sale are Pitt Plaza, Downtown Merchants, Arlington Street Merchants, Greenville Square Merchants, and the West End Shopping Center Merchants.

Chamber members will display official Dollar Day banners in their businesses.

This Poet Lives On Her Earnings

By ROBERTA G. WAX
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Booksellers may say poetry does not sell, but you can't convince Susan Polis Schutz — or her husband. The couple has created a million dollar business out of her poems and Stephen's illustrations.

Mrs. Schutz began writing poems as a release for her feelings while in college. Her poems were private pieces of herself that she never showed to anyone until her senior year when she began sharing her writing with friends and received favorable feedback.

Now, she said, she enjoys sharing her feelings.

"People identify with what I'm saying," she said. "We get thousands of fan letters."

"Poetry does sell, really. Only publishers and booksellers think it doesn't. If they carried it, poetry would sell."

As she can testify, her books, slim volumes published by Blue Mountain Press and selling for about $6.95 mostly in stationery stores, have sold more than 3 million copies.

Besides her work, Mrs. Schutz also edits and Stephen illustrates similar books by several entertainers, such as the poems of actor Leonard Nimoy and the song poetry of Gordon Lightfoot and Carole King. The couple also has sold more than 50 million 75-cent note cards with her words and his drawings.

The Schutzes, both 34 and from New York, met at a Princeton party. She wanted to be a writer; he was a physics major (now with a Ph.D.).

"Susan would write love poems to me," Schutz said. "She would find it easier to write it than say it."

After their marriage 10 years ago, they took a year off to travel the country in an old pickup truck. To support their travels, they sold silk screened posters with Susan's poems and Stephen's pictures.

"Eventually, we created a demand and began getting letters from people who wanted to buy a book of Susan's poems," Schutz said.

Looking back, she said, she is a little ashamed of her first book which was written after visiting some married friends and "kind of put down their middle class lifestyle, the nice apartment, furniture, having every appliance."

Now, she said, she likes to write about mostly happy and personal things. However, when she was pregnant with their son, now 3, she wrote about how she hated her pregnancy and was actually pleased to have Caesarian delivery rather than the planned natural childbirth.

Mrs. Schutz finds inspiration everywhere, particularly outdoors and especially in the mountains of Colorado, where the couple lives in a glass and wood ski lodge 45 minutes from Denver. Some of their old posters adorn the walls.

She likes working with her husband and "always having someone there who understands what you're doing. We disagree all the time, but that's very healthy."

When ideas clash, she said, "We don't compromise. We take either one extreme or the other."

Either Spend Or Bank His Gift

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I can remember, my husband has given me $100 in cash and told me to buy myself a Christmas present. It's been all right with me because Alex hates to shop. Besides, his taste is so lousy that whenever he'd buy me something I'd have to exchange it for something else.

Well, for the last three Christmases Alex has given me the usual cash gift, then a week later he'd ask to "borrow" it until after the first of the year—and that was the last I saw of my "present."

Some present, huh? Any suggestions?

GIFTLESS

DEAR GIFTLESS: Yes. As soon as you get the cash, either spend it or bank it.

DEAR ABBY: We work with an attractive woman who is in her early 50s. She was born in England and has lived in the U.S. for 30 years.

Three years ago she started working in this office, and because of her English accent we were all charmed by her. But lately she has begun to irritate us because she never loses an opportunity to put down this country. (According to her, everything is better in England!)

She has never bothered to become an American citizen. Do you think a person who is not a citizen of this country has the right to criticize it?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: Yes, freedom of speech gives her the right to criticize. But as a resident alien who has lived on the American economy for 30 years, she shows poor taste in exercising that right. Basically, she is a guest of Uncle Sam, and a good guest does not criticize her host.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the woman my husband used to see before he married me. She keeps sending Arthur "miss you" cards, birthday telegrams, Christmas cards, etc., to remind him that she's still around. These reminders are sent to our home and signed, "with love."

Arthur makes no effort to hide them. He just drops them in the wastebasket, and I find them when I empty the trash. I have begged him to ring up this woman and tell her to please leave him alone, but he won't do it. He says he has never done anything to encourage her. I believe him, but don't you think if Arthur really cared about my feelings he would do something to put a stop to all this?

I am 53 and Arthur is 62, and this is the second marriage for both of us.

JEALOUS IN JOPLIN

DEAR JEALOUS: If you're wise, you'll stop begging your husband to ring up his old flame for any reason. By ignoring her he is discouraging her in the best possible way. She probably never enters his mind until you bring her up.

DEAR ABBY: In your column the other day, you told us the difference between a jackass and a mule. But you didn't go far enough.

You should have added that a jackass is also a Democrat. We usually know them by their braying.

OLD MULE SKINNER

DEAR SKINNER: The symbol of the Democratic Party is the male donkey — also known as a jackass — which is a far bray from saying that all Democrats are jackasses.

Be advised that the symbol of the Republican Party is the elephant. But that is not to say that all Republicans are thick-skinned, harmless unless provoked, and can be taught to do tricks easily.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. IN HOLLYWOOD, FLA: A man who joins his wife IN getting mad at a whole family because his wife had an argument with one of its members, shows his stupidity — not his loyalty.

Wax or some other protective coating usually is put around cheese after it has been formed. It is then allowed to age for varying lengths of time, depending on the kind of cheese being made.

Homemaker's Haven By Evelyn L. Spangler Pitt Home Agent

KEEP LEATHER BOOTS LOOKING NICE

Those good looking leather boots that are both fashionable and practical these days won't be fit to tread into spring unless you give them a little attention this winter, according to Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, Home Economics Extension Agent.

For the good of your boots—and your own comfort as well—treat them with a water repellent.

Treat smooth leathers with mink oil. Or, use a silicon treatment sold at most shoe stores. On smooth leathers, the wax silicon treatments work better than liquids or sprays because you get more even results. Spray should be used on suede though.

And be careful not to apply the treatment too heavily. Keep in mind that putting a water repellent substance on the boots will darken the leather.

Don't apply any of these treatments on the boot heels because it might damage them.

Besides these do-it-yourself treatments, there's the possible chance that you might be able to get a commercial water repellent treatment done at many shoe stores.

If your boots get quite wet, wipe them off with a soft cloth. Then hang upside down for a few hours—and then set right side up until dry. Never put leather boots near an artificial heat source to hurry drying. Drying too fast makes the leather dry out.

So, the first rule is to apply a water repellent treatment. Then give those boots prompt attention if they get wet and you'll still have a fine pair of leather boots long after winter disappears.

CHANGE IN TAX LAWS

If you're a working parent and have grandparents care for your children, it will be worth your while to document the amount you pay for that child care.

It can mean a tax credit for child care expenses on 1979's federal income tax.

Up until now payment to relatives only qualified for that credit if the services constituted employment for social security purposes. So paying grandparents for child care didn't count in the eyes of the IRS.

But the 1978 tax bill changed that. Payment to relatives—including grandparents—will qualify.

There are two exceptions. You can't claim a child care tax credit if the relative is a dependent for whom you or your spouse is claiming a dependency exemption.

Nor can you if the babysitter is the taxpayer's child and is under 19 years old.

This won't help on those income tax forms you're filling out now. But to get the tax credit next year, working parents who have grandparents taking care of children need to document those payments all through this 1979 tax year.

Vows Resealed On 50th Anniversary

GRIFTON — Mr. and Mrs. George L. Williams, of Rt. 1, Grifton, resealed their marriage vows Saturday, Jan. 20, in the Piney Grove FWB Church in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Bishop Kleber Bryant, their pastor, officiated at the ceremony which included holy communion. A program of music was presented by Johnny Wooten, organist, and Mrs. Margaret White, daughter of the honorees, soloist.

An appreciation program followed the ceremony with music by the Voices of Zion of Greenville.

Mrs. Williams wore a floor length dress of gold velvet velour fashioned with a gold metallic drape at the neckline. She wore a matching pillbox hat. She was escorted by her brother, Jessie M. Hooker.

Attendants included her daughter and daughter-in-law, who wore dresses in shades of blue with matching baby's breath in their hair. The flower girl was the honoree's granddaughter, Tonyka White, who wore a midi length dress of blue with an ivory lace apron. She carried a basket of blue and gold carnations.

The ring bearer was their grandson, Bradley White. Ushers were sons, grandson, grandson-in-law and cousins of the couple.

A reception followed in the fellowship hall of the church.

The refreshment table was covered with a gold lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of rust and gold flowers in a blue crystal vase. The traditional first slice of the three-tiered cake was cut by the couple and served by Mrs. Allegra

Greene. Mrs. Doretha Heath poured punch assisted by Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Hollie Reid and Mrs. Mamie Williams.

Gifts were received by Miss Sandra Williams, Mrs. Lovie Williams and Mrs. Angela Dawson. Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Tyson registered guests and good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Dawson. Ms. Deborah Williams directed the wedding.

Hosts and hostesses for the occasion were children of the couple, George E. Williams of Chesapeake, Va., Louis L. Williams of Portsmouth, Va., Jean Dawson of Greenville, Margaret White of New Bern, and Juliet Williams of Grifton.

Treading On Shaky Grounds

Nobody is anymore in favor of a balanced federal budget than we. It makes sense in many ways and most immediately as a weapon in fighting inflation.

Nevertheless the North Carolina General Assembly and other state Legislatures are treading on dangerous grounds in calling for a constitutional convention for a balanced budget amendment.

First of all the constitutional convention is filled with pitfalls. The group possibly could revise the constitution in any way, even re-write it if it chose. It is an awesome power to put with a relatively small group meeting for a limited time.

There are dangers, too, in the amendment in that it could severely limit the federal government's ability to function in times of severe crisis.

Nor does the balanced budget amendment necessarily mean a true limit on government spending. The budget can be balanced on paper, but there are many spending programs — social and military — that simply are not going to be cut. Since the federal government can increase the money supply the answer could very well be to raise the extra money in this way, even though the budget may be legally balanced. This approach could prove even more inflationary than budgetary deficits.

The budget can and will be balanced once Congress gets the public's message that it wants it so — and we think the message is rapidly getting through.

Our constitution is a beautiful document and it leaves ample room for we, the people, to bring about any changes that we feel strongly enough about. Let's don't clutter it up, or set in motion machinery that could tear it apart.

Public Staff Underlines Complaints

The Public Staff of the N. C. Utilities Commission was critical of Virginia Electric and Power Co. and requested a decrease in the company's proposed fuel-charge adjustment.

Veeco, which serves northeastern North Carolina including parts of Martin and Pitt County, has faced complaints of having higher rates than those of CP&L and Duke Power.

The effort to bring Veeco rates in line with other companies serving North Carolina is needed and the Utilities Commission should consider the evidence gathered by its Public Staff.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Wants Of Business

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Unionism and taxes head the list of things which North Carolina's business leaders see affecting them in the current session of the General Assembly.

Defending the state's Right-to-Work law, and especially guarding against what the organization terms an "end run" effort to allow agency shop arrangements in unionized industries, heads the list of nine legislative goals being pushed by the North Carolina Citizens Association.

It is widely accepted that the General Assembly will not change the Right-to-Work law itself, a measure which forbids union membership as a requirement for holding a job.

But the past several Legislatures have debated proposals that would allow non-union members to contribute to the costs of union operations without actually joining. This procedure "might be voluntary according to the letter of the law, but in practice we suspect there would be a great deal of union coercion directed toward reluctant non-union workers," the Citizens Association feels.

Bargaining
As for permitting collective bargaining between public employees and agencies of government, the association says such would "encourage public employee militancy and strikes. The chaos perpetrated by public employee unions in so many large cities is reason enough to encourage public employee labor strife and damage to the public here in North Carolina.

"Collective bargaining power would be a dreadful step in that direction," reports an editorial comment in this month's issue of the association's magazine. Listing the issues in the magazine was designed to "explain briefly our stands... and to solicit public support for our positions."

Tax collections are another concern. The previous General Assembly contemplated collecting estimated income taxes on a quarterly basis in advance from firms paying less than $100,000 per year. A one-time windfall of $90 million would result. The association thinks the measure may come up again, and that passage "would mean inconvenience to some... cash flow problems for others, downright hardship for still others." It prefers annual filings.

BILL NOBLITT

On product liability, the group endorses public protection against defective products that cause death or injury or illness, but see a need for limits and protection against frivolous and groundless complaints, a statute of limitations on filing suit, and exclusion from liability for products misused or abused if so desired.

The idea that full sales tax should be paid on machinery instead of the present one percent with an $80 limit would "dim North Carolina's reputation for having a hospitable business climate", the association determined.

Power Rates
Lifeline electric rates designed to give low-income families a basic amount of power at lower rates are termed "illusory" in the report. Determining those who would benefit would prove awkward, and lost revenues would be recouped from high-volume industrial users which are least expensive to serve, the group feels.

A call for a Constitutional Convention as a means to force Congress to establish balanced budget law is endorsed. "If a sufficient number of state legislatures warn Congress that they will invoke the convention machinery if necessary, then perhaps the long-sought amendment will finally come out of Washington for ratification."

Finally, the association seeks some $800,000 in funds to implement a law passed in 1975 requiring public schools to teach elements of the free enterprise economic system in their programs.

Spirit Shared By Two

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey called his the politics of joy. Nelson A. Rockefeller didn't give it a name, but he campaigned with the same verve, for the same elusive goal.

They spanned the same political generation, and they died a year apart. They both wanted to be presidents. They both got to be vice presidents.

A rival once scorned Rockefeller's campaign style as that of a back-slapping, baby-kissing, blintz-eating politician. Rockefeller was all of that.

For nearly 20 years, Republican Rockefeller and Democrat Humphrey were fixtures of their party's presidential campaigns, either running or considering it.

But with a difference. Humphrey's problem was that, much as most Democrats liked him, they usually liked someone else better. He was everybody's second choice, except in 1968, when he gained nomination as the candidate of a sharply divided party.

But Rockefeller was, from his political beginning 20 years ago, the symbol of liberalism in a party dominated by conservatives at presidential nominating time.

Never mind his crackdown on welfare abuse, his law-and-order stance, his essentially conservative foreign policy. To the conservatives who often bestow, and always can deny a Republican presidential nomination, he was the liberal, big-government governor of New York.

That was obstacle enough. But Rockefeller added some political miscalculations of his own.

The early reckoning of the 1960 Republican presidential campaign ranked him a potential, and formidable challenger to then-Vice President Richard M. Nixon. He had just won the first of his four elections as governor of New York. He was a fresh face, a winner, and an option for Republicans who didn't care for Nixon.

Some of them set about organizing for Rockefeller, quietly because the GOP establishment

FOR THE RECORD

To the Editor:

The Evans and Novak article of January 14 entitled 'The Encryption Gamble' propounds a principle on verification of arms control agreements that is both so naive and dangerous to our national security that the record must be corrected. The authors argue that Soviet missile design information must not be kept secret from the U.S. either by encrypting telemetry from missile test firings or by other means even when the information has no bearing on the verification of the provisions of an Agreement.

An Article of the SALT I Agreements, and presumably SALT II as well, states "Each Party undertakes not to use deliberate concealment measures which impede verification by national technical means of compliance with the provisions of the Treaty (emphasis added). It naturally does not prohibit concealment of other national security information that is not a part of any Agreement. Thus both countries are allowed to keep secret technical information on weapon systems and characteristics not covered by the Agreement. The U.S., for example, would quite rightly wish to conceal from the U.S.S.R. information on the design of the nuclear warhead in a missile; this would be allowed by the Treaty provisions. The principle proposed by Evans and Novak that even such information, which has no bearing on verification, cannot be concealed is not only absurd but would also be a disaster to our national security were it to be equally applied to the U.S. with its more advanced technology.

Former Secretary of Defense Laird and Evans and Novak were in error when they accused the Russians of cheating on SALT I because they had encrypted data on the firing of the SS-20 missile. There are no provisions in the SALT I Agreement, which relate to medium range missiles or for that matter to the characteristics of their SS-18 ICBM. However, the latter would be pertinent to the SALT II Agreements, and Secretary of State Vance is to be commended, not castigated, if he did get specific Soviet concurrence to the principle that encryption of telemetry would be barred for data bearing on the verification of provisions of the Agreements. Contrary to Evans and Novak, the U.S. would be able to know if such data was being encrypted.

Finally, Evans and Novak cannot resist dragging out their whipping boy, Paul Warnke, to blame for qualifying verification by the word "adequate" when available means can discover Soviet cheating before it has "significantly affected" the US-Soviet strategic balance of power. For the record, however, it was Paul Nitze,

To the editor:

Your recent article and editorial regarding the unavailability of beds at the Pitt County Memorial Hospital suggested that a shortage of nurses is the major cause.

Actually, the recruitment and training of nurses is ahead of schedule; we have more than twice the nurses we had a year ago and many of these have special expertise.

The major reason for the bed shortage is the unusual demand for the excellent and sophisticated services of the new hospital. The facility is increasingly utilized by residents of our county who previously sought their care in the Piedmont and by the citizens of the counties around us.

Frankly, we are proud that the high quality of the hospital and its capability as a regional center have been recognized so quickly. Our bed distribution is being worked out and we are well along in developing a system so that none will be turned away. It is a small price for excellence.

To the editor:

I cannot help but get incensed at people who take up the cause of folks who run headlong into railroad trains around here.

Seems like every time there is an accident at a railroad crossing, somebody wants to spend my tax money to electrify all the crossings in the world! And your paper takes up the hue and cry!

How could anyone run into an object half as large as the average house — illuminated by a 10,000 candlewatt spotlight and blowing a whistle loud enough to wake the dead, then complain because there isn't any flashing light at the crossing?

If a driver can hit something as obvious, can I trust him to miss a group of children waiting for a school bus?

Come on, people, give the railroad companies a break. Concentrate on safe, sane driving habits!

Power Attracts Power-Prone

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As women rise in the corporate world they are accused of being autocratic — of being subjective, of making arbitrary decisions, of seeking to centralize power in themselves.

The "autocratic" label, meant as a putdown, is accepted as accurate by many women, who justify their behavior as being necessary in the pressure cooker of top management. It was forced on them, they say.

Men often disagree, claiming females are basically autocratic as a consequence of motherly or nesting instincts. Freed from constraints, the men say, women are merely showing their true nature.

Nonsense, says Prof. Eugene Jennings, analyst of corporate mobility. He doesn't accept either version, primarily because he's so used to hearing it applied to men or women who swiftly move up the ladder.

"The very nature of the corporate pyramid attracts men and women who have a strong drive for authority and power," he says. Whatever the explanation for their autocratic ways, they flock to executive jobs.

Moreover, says Jennings, there is nothing wrong with an autocratic style; it is even desirable. "It is questionable if you could reach the top without a flair for unilateral decisionmaking," he says.

Jennings, who besides teaching graduate students at Michigan State University is a confidential adviser to top corporate chairmen and presidents, wants women to know that the accusation is traditional.

The autocratic label, he says, has bedeviled everyone, especially minorities. It is a general putdown, but applied to the latter, it is meant to be especially pejorative — to suggest grossness.

The response is not to adopt a more permissive style, says Jennings, a psychologist as well as management authority, but to offset the autocratic behavior with logic, fairness, consideration, grace, tact.

To attempt being less autocratic is to waffle, he says. And to waffle, he continues, is to become less dependable, predictable, powerful. He observes that executives seldom rise by being other than themselves.

The solution, he proposes, is to become a "mature autocrat" through offsetting. An executive style, he says, need not be radically changed, but the grossness must be removed.

Jennings has found that many men at the top were harassed by this accusation along the way. Applied to women, he says, it means they are upwardly mobile, and that they are becoming formidable challengers.

But women are to some extent still part of the "out" group. That is, they are bringing change by upsetting the old, male-dominated order. And so there might be a stronger tendency to paste the label on them.

Strength For Today

THE WIDER CIRCLE

Jesus was born into a generation which believed that a man should love his friends and hate his enemies. Moses had taught how to draw a circle around one's self and one's neighbor. Within that circle alone love could operate.

But Jesus came to enlarge the circle. He said that the teaching of Moses was all right as far as it went, but that the circle must be enlarged until it took in everyone. His hearers doubtless scoffed at the idea that a man should love his enemies. But Jesus insisted that a heart really touched by the Spirit of God was one in which love reigned supreme. And when this happened, He said, no one was outside the radius of its influence.

To Jesus the most important rule for the living of a godly life was the rule of love. He was not willing that in a single instance, or in the case of a single individual, this rule should be disregarded.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today over much of California, according to the National Weather Service. Snow is due from Kentucky north through most of the Northeast, and over Montana and nearby areas. It will be cold in the north-central part of the nation and warm elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Travelers advisories were in effect today for North Carolina's mountains and foothills, and for an early morning period they also applied to sections of the Piedmont and coastal plain as conditions ripened for snow over a wide area of the state.

A developing low pressure system lay over southern Georgia this morning and was expected to move on a north-easterly course carrying it off the Georgia coast by afternoon.

Meanwhile, a cold blast of arctic air also was moving through the North Carolina mountains. A collision of the cold air with moisture from the low pressure system provided a stage setting for snow ranging from the mountains as far east as sections of the coastal plain.

The National Weather Service said early in the day it appeared the mountains would get one to three inches of fresh snow, while around an inch was expected in Piedmont and coastal plain sections.

Estimates were subject to change, depending on the meeting of the cold air and moisture from the low pressure system.

Early morning low temperatures hovered around the freezing mark. Asheville and New Bern were at 32 degrees, Charlotte 34, Greensboro 30, Raleigh 31, and Elizabeth City 27.

Asheville, Charlotte and the Raleigh-Durham Airport all recorded some snow in the early morning hours. The threat of snow was expected to increase during the day.

With temperatures turning colder, snow flurries are expected in the mountains tonight, with a chance of flurries in the Piedmont.

The forecast calls for temperatures tonight to drop to the teens in the mountains and range in the 20s elsewhere.

China Revisited

Chinese Rated High In Honesty; Not Manners

EDITOR'S NOTE — This third in a series of seven articles by Shanghai-born Timothy T.S. Tung, who recently returned to China for the first time in 31 years, deals with the manners of the Chinese people.

By TIMOTHY T.S. TUNG
For AP Newsfeatures

Has the "new man" been created in China? Some authorities think so. The "new man" is supposed to be taught from the day he is born to be honest, selfless, and helpful to fellow men.

It's 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and I'm standing on the corner of a crossroads in Peking, watching the rush-hour traffic flow.

The wide streets swarm with automobiles, trucks, buses, bicycles and pedestrians. A car breaks down and gets stuck in the middle of the crossroads. I decide to linger, curious as to the outcome of the driver's predicament.

First the lone passenger in the back seat gets out to push, but he can't move the car out of the way. Hordes of bicycles, bells ringing, move past. Other cars, trucks and buses, tooting impatiently, also pass it by.

The white-clad policeman, stationed in a glassed enclosure on a street corner, is livid with irritation. He uses the loud speaker to give the stuck car a stern scolding.

"Get out of the way," he admonishes, "and fast." But the stuck car is immobile. Its driver and its pushing passenger, their faces red, become increasingly embarrassed. I stay on and watch, wanting to see the "new men" make an appearance. "To serve the people, in the spirit of unity and friendly love." Am I to be disappointed?

The boy's father, C. Wayne Ferguson, is circulating a petition asking the N.C. Supreme Court to reprimand the judge for "leniency."

Ferguson said he was seeking justice, not vengeance, in the case. "It's an outrage. If you can hit someone and leave them to die in a ditch, that's not right. That's not justice," Ferguson said.

Mrs. Hamm, 35, entered the New Hanover County Jail Jan. 12 to begin serving her sentence.

drive on."
"Drive at moderate speed; yield courteously for safety."
"Rather wait for three minutes, than fight for one second."

But they are largely ignored. Is the spirit of the slogan "To serve the people" fading? But of course not everything in China is perfect. The habit of spitting is still rampant. The manners of the young are rude. They jostle and fight for seats on a bus with no regard for the old. (A sign at a bus stop: "Comrade passengers, board the bus in an orderly fashion. Do not push and jostle.") Were they taught consideration for others in their kindergartens?

It is a pleasure to be served in restaurants and hotels by friendly people without having to wonder whether it is the tip they are aiming for. Everywhere you go you see a "suggestion notebook" asking for comments on the service. Naturally, you praise a waiter by name or number if he is friendly and efficient.

In Shanghai, at an out-of-the-way taxi station, we are told we'll have to wait because drivers are out for lunch, although a number of cars are parked and several men and women are smoking and chatting in the office. I should look for the suggestion notebook.

It is difficult to believe that everything, from the hotel, the restaurant, the taxi, on down to the icicle (popsicle) stand on the street, is "public run." You give three fens (two cents) to the old woman, and she gives you an icicle after carefully stripping off the paper wrap and putting it away. She is a government employee on a regular salary.

Except for the icicle, you get a receipt for almost everything you pay for. If Lux Xing She (the travel service) charges you a 10-fens service charge for a 50-fens theater ticket, you get two receipts. After riding in a taxi you pay and get a receipt. They are forever writing small pieces of paper everywhere.

Honesty is real in China. But I am still looking for the "new man."

shipment was Nixon's. That put them on a limb, and Rockefeller cut it off by announcing late in 1959 that he wouldn't run. One of those groups was meeting in Woodstock, Vt., to plan a campaign for Rockefeller when word came that he had announced publicly he wouldn't be a candidate.

Two campaigns later, then-Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew set up a committee to draft the New York governor for presidential nomination.

Then Agnew watched in embarrassment as Rockefeller announced that he wasn't going to run.

In 1973, after 15 years as governor, Rockefeller resigned. The move was widely read as a step toward another presidential campaign in 1976.

It never happened, but Rockefeller did become vice president by appointment. He yielded his position on the 1976 ticket, a move Gerald R. Ford's strategists thought would help them gain conservative support.

He didn't complain publicly, but he told Ford's political advisers that his departure would not satisfy the conservatives, not with Ronald Reagan available to challenge the president.

who criticized Paul Warnke in his confirmation hearings to be ACDA Director, for Warnke having taken "an absolute position with respect to verification while he (Nitz) had "always taken the position that the significance of verification is to be related to the significance of the thing you are verifying. If it is not very important, it doesn't make much difference." Evans and Novak might whip Mr. Nitz instead of Warnke and Vance for a change. Incidentally this verification principle of "adequacy" has been U.S. policy agreed to by all involved agencies and the Congress for many years.

'Largest Reaction' To Sentence: Judge Reid

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge says the 90-day sentence he gave a woman convicted of hit-and-run driving while intoxicated has brought the largest public reaction of any case during his 13 months on the bench.

Judge David E. Reid gave the sentence to Martha Hamm, who was convicted in connection with the death of Mark Ferguson, 13, struck by a car while he walked home from church last fall.

Testimony at the trial indicated that the boy probably would have lived if he had been taken to a hospital immediately. New Hanover Memorial Hospital is less than three miles from the scene of the accident.

Psychiatric reports at the trial indicated that Mrs. Hamm did not remember striking the youth and driving away.

Mrs. Hamm pleaded guilty to charges of hit-and-run and death by vehicle.

Reid said in an interview that he is satisfied that he did the right thing by giving Mrs. Hamm the three-month sentence. She could have been sentenced to up to seven years.

The sentence was appropriate, he said, because the woman had no prior record and "was not the type of person likely to commit another crime."

"I don't know if the jury of the public would agree with what I did. I just don't know," he said, noting that he has received several letters about the

Puzzled Over Why Girl Opened Fire At School

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP)— Haunted by the sights, sounds and motives of death and bloodshed from sniper fire, students of Cleveland Elementary School returned to their classrooms to puzzle aloud: "Why did she do it?"

Some sat at their desks Tuesday in silence, bewildered and shocked by the horror they endured a day earlier when the school's principal and custodian were killed by bullets fired at their school. Nine other persons, including eight students, were injured.

"We called many parents last night, asking them to bring their children today," said Mike Simpson, a school board representative. "We've got to break down the shock."

Some children, dealing with death for the first time, slowly raised their hands with questions. "Why did she do it?" a puzzled 8-year-old boy asked his teacher.

"Do the police know why her father didn't lock up the guns? It's pretty stupid," added a girl.

Brenda Spencer, 16, was arrested by police after the deadly 15-minute barrage of bullets and a seven-hour siege at her house across the street from the school.

District attorney's office spokesman Logan McKechnie said it will be up to a judge to decide if Miss Spencer will be tried as an adult. He said proceedings will be "wrapped in secrecy" for a time because of her age. She is being held in the San Diego County Juvenile Hall.

The deaths of principal Burton Wragg, 53, and Michael Suchar, 56, the school's head custodian, troubled the children.

"I couldn't sleep last night," said 9-year-old Mike McDaniel. Another youngster told his teacher: "I thought Mr. Mike (Suchar) was one of the best custodians this school ever had."

"Will his family be taken care of?" asked Victoria Guerrero, 11.

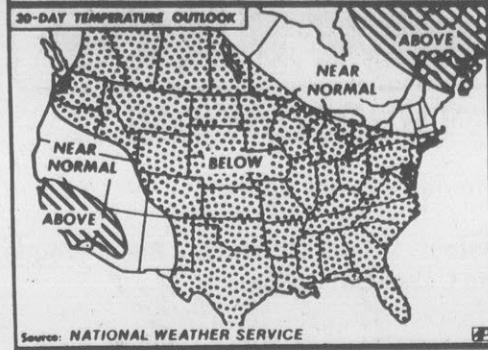

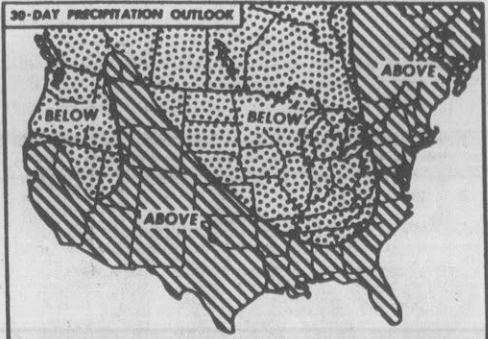

"I had bad dreams and thought the lady would still be here," said 9-year-old George Johnson. "But my dad said it's all right now."

The two school officials will be buried Thursday. Three of the injured, including police officer Robert Robb, were still hospitalized. Robb was in fair condition Tuesday, while two 9-year-old girls were in serious condition.

Some students wrote letters to recuperating classmates. Julie Jacobs, wearing a T-shirt with the inscription "Hug Me," scrawled a note to Monica Selvig, 9, hospitalized with an abdominal wound.

Daryl Barnes, the school's acting principal, said health personnel counseled several students during the day.

Later, Barnes, who helped rescue fallen children, told members of the Parents Teachers Association: "We experienced a tragedy that just never happens... but it did happen to us. Now we have memories of it but life must go on."

Teng Will Get U.S. Aid In Knowledge Catch-Up

WASHINGTON (AP)— China's vice premier says his country needs help from the United States to replace a lost generation of knowledge and President Carter says he is prepared to help.

In an agreement being signed today with Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, Carter promises that the United States will share at least part of the vast quantity of American technology and scientific knowledge with China. "We lost a whole generation as regards education, including science and technology," Teng said in an interview with Time Magazine published earlier this week. "Normalization of relations will enable us to obtain much scientific and technological know-how."

The agreement on science and technology is potentially the most significant of the three being signed in afternoon ceremonies as Carter and Teng meet to close out the Washington leg of the Chinese leader's visit to the United States.

Fang I, minister in charge of the State Scientific and Technological Commission, came with Teng to Washington and has been meeting with Carter science adviser Frank Press to work on the details of technological cooperation.

Two other agreements being signed today deal with cultural exchanges and the establishment of consular offices, administration sources say.

Together, the three agreements are small, formal steps aimed at broadening and firming the new relationship between China and the United States. These are general agreements, sources said, with the details left to be worked out through less formal avenues.

Other agreements also may be finalized before the end of the Teng visit, but there was little indication that formal pacts would be reached in the critical area of trade and business relationships.

Carter and Teng did discuss those topics during two hours of talks Tuesday.

Further discussions on trade will take place during visits to China later this year by Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps.

Phonothon Is Again Success

The Second Annual Pitt County Phonothon, sponsored by the East Carolina University Alumni Association from January 15 to 17, was a tremendous success, according to Don Leggett, director of Alumni Affairs.

The purpose of the three-day phonothon was to solicit pledges for the Alumni Loyalty Fund whose function it is to supplement state budgetary allocations for the academic programs at ECU.

During the phonothon, 492 alumni pledged a total of $10,436 to the fund. Of that number, 354 (72 percent) were new contributors. The average pledge was for approximately $21.

About 65 local ECU alumni volunteered their services during the phonothon in order to make personal phone calls to former ECU students living in Pitt County.

The volunteers were divided into three teams and each team was responsible for phonothon activities during one of the evenings.

A buffet and orientation for the volunteers was held at the Alumni Building on January 15 at 5:45 p.m.

Shoveled Snow Into Basement

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)— Bill and Sharon McAuliffe had trouble finding a place to store the nearly 2 feet of snow they shoveled off their roof last weekend.

When McAuliffe complained that there was no place to dump the snow without walking about 15 yards, his wife suggested they shovel it into the basement through a window by the driveway.

Objections To Goldfish-Eating

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP)— Students at Poudre High School will go ahead with their goldfish-eating contest despite the objections of the local humane society.

"This type of thing does not belong in our school system," said Linda Wildman, a representative of the Larimer County Humane Society. "Superficially it is great fun. Philosophically, it is repulsive to us."

The Humane Society canceled a scheduled debate with the high school debating team on the subject of goldfish eating.

"We felt it would do no good," Ms. Wildman said Tuesday. "There was no changing the minds of these children or the administration."

The goldfish-eating contest is scheduled for Friday during a school assembly.

Private Meet For Nixon, Teng

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon and Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping have both been at the zenith of political power — and at its depths.
If they choose, they can talk about the twists of events that put Teng into power as the leader of a quarter of mankind and that now makes him Nixon's host on American soil.

The former president, emerging from self-imposed exile, and the vice premier, survivor of two purges in China, were to confer privately today in Blair House, the government guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.
It is understood that Teng specifically asked to meet the former president during his eight-day visit to America, an event made possible by Nixon's China initiative when he was president.

Nixon put aside international affairs Tuesday for another trip full of poignancy.
He went to New York City to see his daughter and to pay respects to an old political enemy — Nelson A. Rockefeller, who twice challenged him unsuccessfully for the Republican presidential nomination.
He drove in an entourage of Secret Service cars to Pocantico Hills, 50 miles from the city, where he offered his sympathy to Margareta "Happy" Rockefeller.
He told reporters later they talked about her husband.
They had been rivals, Nixon said, "but we were friends."
He called Rockefeller a "tough guy."
"He understood the world and he understood power," Nixon said.
Next Nixon whipped into the city with his guards on family business — a chance to chat with his daughter, Tricia, and her husband, Edward Cox. They are expecting a child March 15.
Nixon said her doctors had told her to expect a son. He already has a granddaughter, Jennie, daughter of Julie Eisenhower.
Nixon and his former secretary of state, Henry A. Kissinger, reportedly have accepted invitations from the Chinese to visit the People's Republic of China in March or early April.
This would be Nixon's third trip to China, his second since he resigned the presidency in 1974 under threat of impeachment.

Nixon's visit to China as president in 1972 ended 22 years of estrangement between the two nations.
After meeting with Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chao En-lai, both of whom have since died, Nixon announced that the United States would gradually pull its military forces out of Taiwan with the ultimate goal of withdrawing them completely.
By agreeing to let the Chinese settle the Taiwan question themselves, Nixon set the groundwork for normalizing relations with mainland China.
On Jan. 1, President Carter, building on that groundwork, announced that the United States and China would formally recognize each other.
When Nixon visited China 18 months after leaving office, he was given a hero's welcome.

Three Accidents In Greenville Tuesday

An estimated $3,785 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.
Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 1:26 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and 14th Street involving a car driven by Timothy Allen Harris of 301 Nichols Dr. and a truck driven by Moses Lee Briley of Route 5, Greenville.
Investigators, who set damage at $450 to the truck and $1,200 to the car, charged Briley with failing to stop for a stop light.
Cars driven by Ruth Kelly Watson of 108 Christenburgh Dr., and Mary G. Cullop of 1753 Beaumont Dr. collided about 5:16 p.m. on Tenth Street just East of the Cotanche Street intersection, causing an estimated $1,075 damage to the Watson car and $150 damage to the Cullop auto.
Ms. Cullop was charged by officers with following too close.
A 3:46 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Evans Streets involved cars operated by Mary Davis Brantley of Route 1, Winterville and Edity Gaskins Hardee of Grimesland, according to investigators.
Damage was set at $285 to the Brantley car and $625 to the Hardee vehicle.

Ticket-Selling Is Approved

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of a request by Boy Scout Troop 340 for permission to sell tickets to a pancake supper to local merchants from Feb. 1-23.
The request was submitted by Mel Stanforth of Greenville.

PUTTING OUT THE FLAMES — Firemen from Greenville Fire Department's headquarters and the Memorial Drive stations, responded to a call at 12:48 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Janice Everette, 604 Millbrook St. According to Fire Chief Jenness Allen, Ms. Everette was alerted by a smoke detector and found a log had rolled out of the den fireplace, setting the floor and a chair on fire. Ms. Everette tried to put the fire out, and was locked out of the house. She was able to get back in to rescue a child in the back bedroom. Heavy fire damage was noted in the den, with smoke damage throughout the rest of the home. Chief Allen pointed out that the smoke detector had alerted Ms. Everette, and had probably saved her and the child from suffocating. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Adoption Dream Is Dimmed By 'Too Fat' Ruling

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Barbara and Gordon Ray want to adopt a child, but they can't. The state claims they're too fat to become parents, the couple says.

"We started this thing and we're not the type of people to give up on it," said Barbara, who stands 5-foot-9 and weighs 210 pounds.

Gordon, a 6-foot-2, 215-pound shipping clerk at the University of Wisconsin, said they began state adoption proceedings two years ago when doctors said it was unlikely they would ever have children.

When the state Department of Health and Social Services said they would have to wait five or six years for an infant, the Rays said they would rather have a child 5 to 10 years old right away.

Then the couple, both 28, ran into the department's informal guidelines barring adoptions for health reasons.

"They wrote and told us we were obese and could not adopt until we had a substantial weight loss," Gordon said. "Basically, the problem is with my wife, but they told me I should lose, too."

Social workers told Barbara she had to get down to 190 pounds and she did within three months. But then they lowered the weight to 170 pounds, she said.

Jane Thompson, a state social worker who the Rays said had been assigned to their case, refused comment on the case.

Gordon said there were no specific guidelines, and the social workers made the decision according to an insurance company's preferred height-weight chart.

"I think it's just discrimination," he said. "If you were to meet us, you wouldn't say we're obese."

The Rays enlisted state Sen. Peter Bear, who said he is awaiting more information from state officials to determine if the obesity rule is legal.

"It seems ridiculous to me," Bear said. "I don't know how a state agency can deny adoption eligibility on the basis of the prospective parents' weight, especially in the absence of definitions or proof that a health problem exists."

Gordon said he and his wife have been certified in good health by their doctors, and are active in many sports. He said he and his wife, married seven years, own a home and are saving to build a house in the country some day.

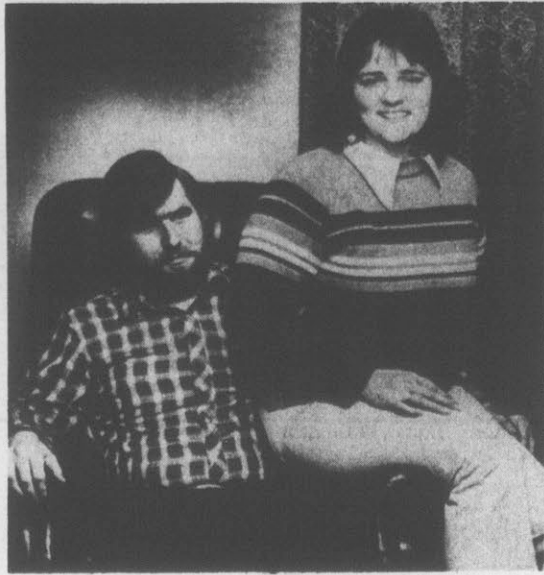

"The child is the most important thing in the world to us," said Barbara, a statistics clerk in the Dane County Mental Health agency.

She said her family has a history of being large-boned and overweight, but also of longevity.

"I could lose the weight if I really wanted to, but why do it just until the adoption goes through and then go back to my normal weight? It's the principle of the thing. I've been this weight for years, since high school, and I'm comfortable. This is me," Barbara said.

The Rays say they will go to a private adoption agency only as a last resort.

"This is a state agency," Gordon said. "I pay to run that agency with my taxes. Why should I go somewhere else?"

TOO HEAVY TO ADOPT — The Wisconsin Department of Health and Special Services says Gordon and Barbara Ray are too fat to adopt a child. The Rays, who amount to a combined total of more than 400 pounds, vow to continue their fight. (AP Laserphoto)

Capitol Police Tighten Rules For Tractorcade

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hundreds, perhaps thousands, of American Agriculture protesters and their tractors days away, Capitol police have quietly tightened the rules on them.

Effective Monday, it will be illegal to bring a farm, recreational, construction or animal-drawn vehicle on the central 50 acres of the Capitol grounds or to unleash any animal, "insect or reptile" anywhere on the 182-acre complex.

During three months of demonstrations last winter against low farm prices and what they saw as a lack of government sympathy, farmers frustrated police and enraged humane-society employees one day by letting dozens of sick goats, some fowl and other animals loose on the lawns.

On the first day of parading and lobbying, one faction tried to drive a huge tractor through police lines onto one of the broad winding sidewalks that lead to the Capitol steps.

The new rules allow farm vehicles no closer than the streets bordering the main grounds and running between the office buildings.

Also, "no person shall drive, lead, herd, ride, release or conduct any sheep, swine, cattle, horse, mule, goat, elephant, duck, goose or other fowl or other nondomesticated animal or any insect or reptile anywhere" on the central grounds.

Dogs and other pets can be taken on the grounds if "firmly secured by a substantial leash not exceeding four feet in length." Those situations weren't specifically covered by the old rules.

Tractorcade leaders have said they will block rush-hour traffic here next week by driving slowly on main highways to and from demonstrations at the Capitol and the Agriculture Department.

Shared In A Cold Picnic

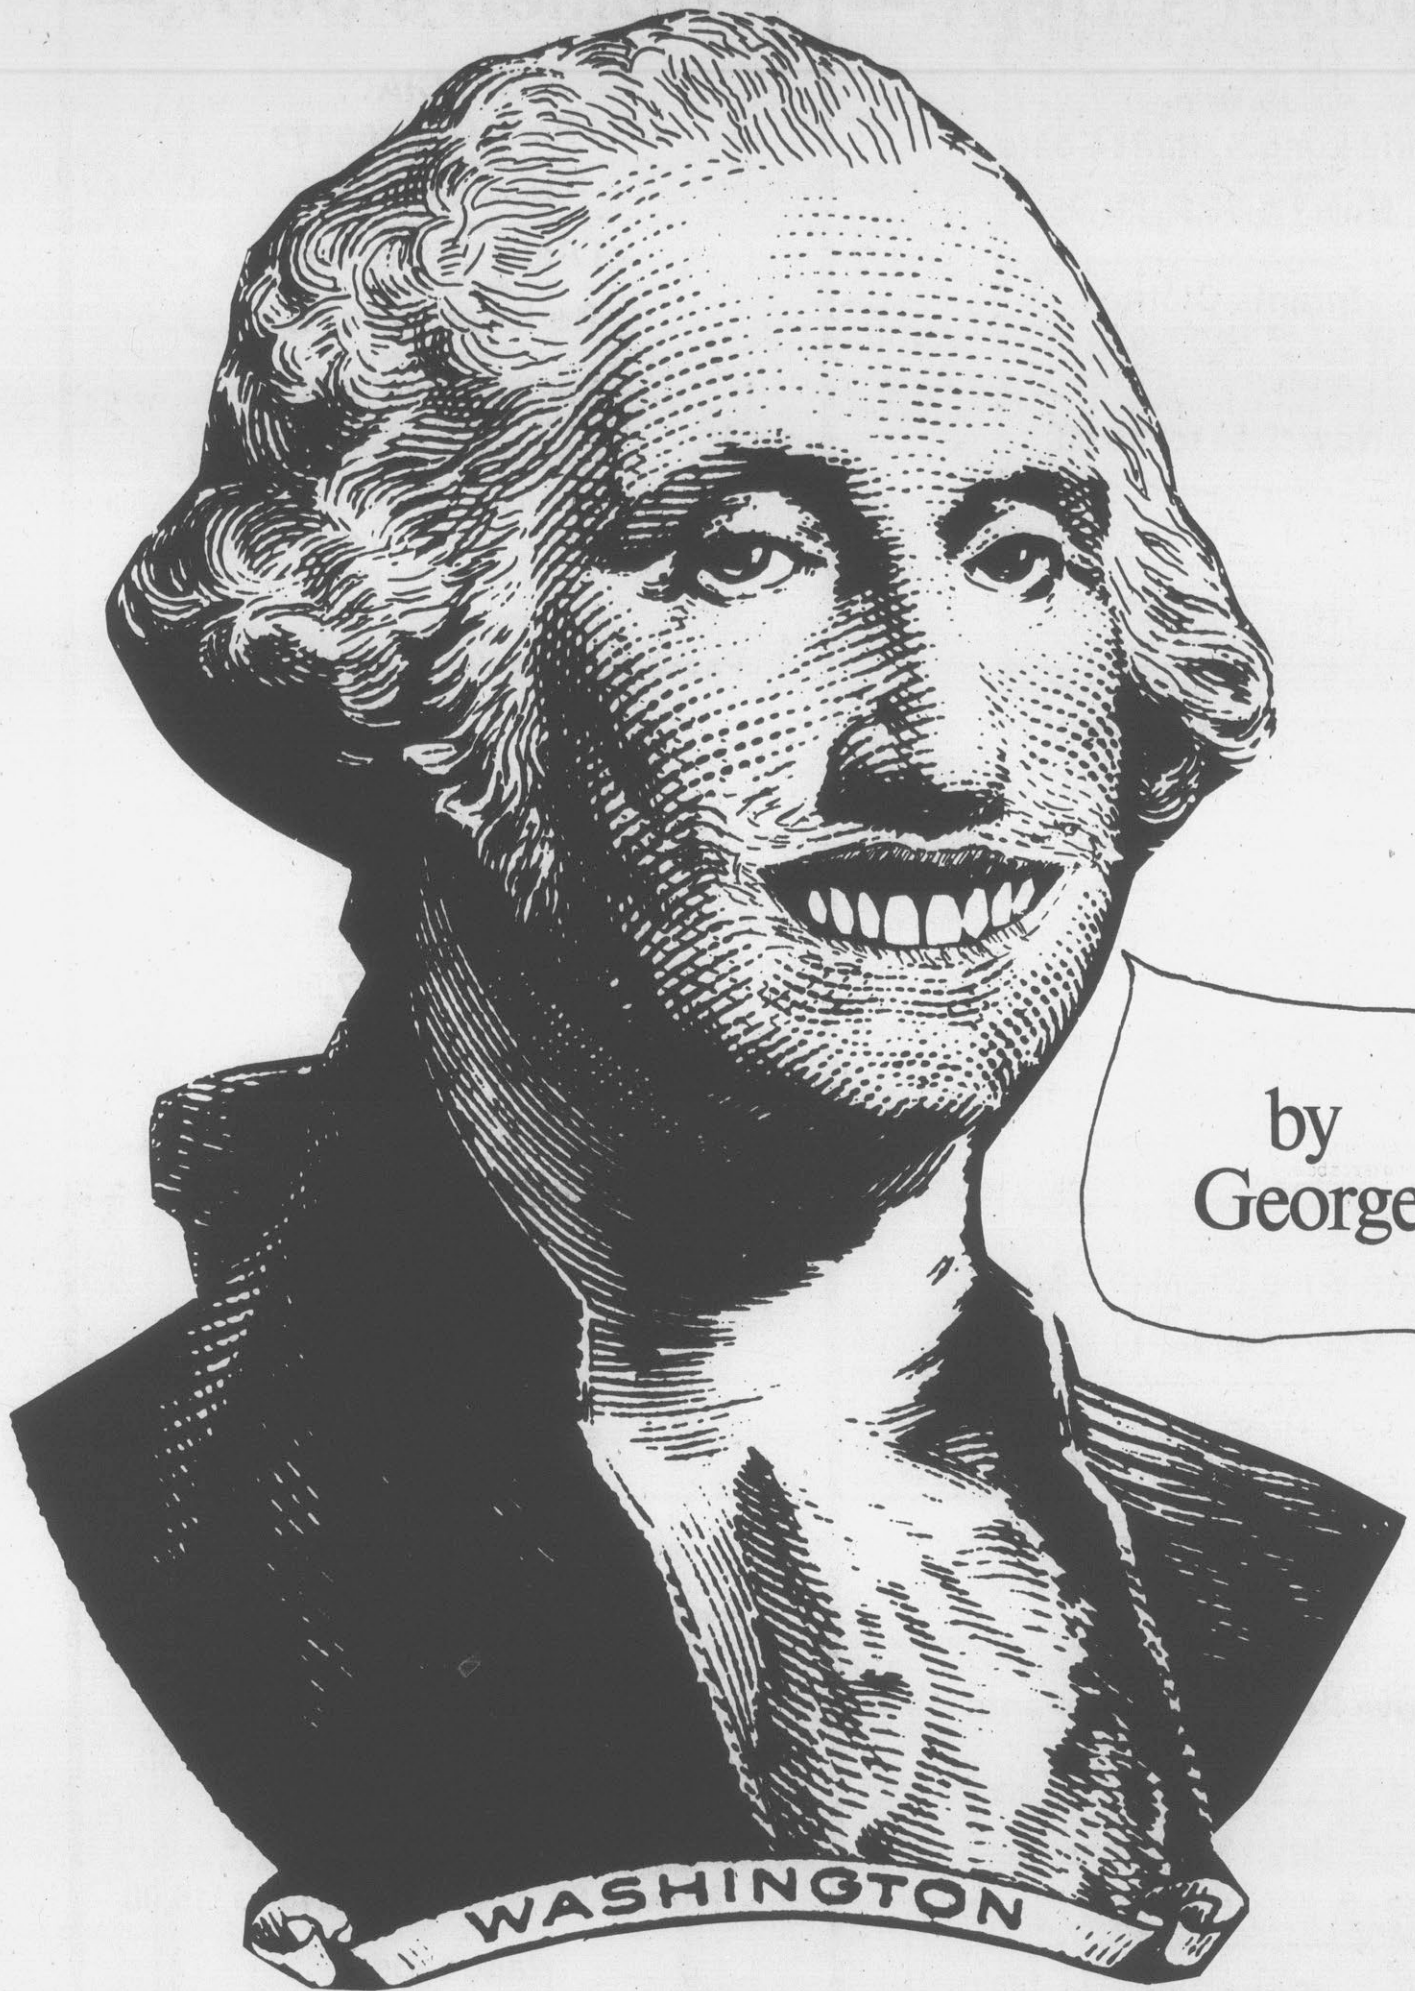

GURNEE, Ill. (AP) — There were snowflakes on the potato salad and lawn chairs were strewn with the sleds on either side of a shoveled driveway, but the celebrants were undaunted at Cliff and Phyllis Thornton's "First Annual Cabin Fever Cookout."

Eighteen people, mostly neighbors of the Thorntons, gathered last weekend around a grill with hot dogs roasting over the coals. The temperature was in the 20s and snowflakes sifted lazily down.

Mrs. Thornton said, "We're setting a record with the largest snowfall this year, so we decided to set a record for the earliest barbecue."

Grandparents, tots, and teenagers joined in hopping from foot to frosty foot trying to keep warm while eating baked beans, hot dogs, hamburgers, potato chips and corn on the cob from paper plates.

Said one participant, "Well, I'll tell you one thing. It sure makes you appreciate going back inside."

Burning Rangeland Can Help If Properly Done

By PAT TEAGUE
LUBBOCK, Texas (UPI) — There are occasions when setting America's rangeland on fire is perfectly acceptable, an authority on the subject has found.

Henry Wright, 43, a range and wildlife professor at Texas Tech University, has spent most of the last 12 years — when the Texas legislature funded a brush control program — attempting to learn how fire can benefit ranchers and land managers.

Wright's study focused on the nation's central and southern Great Plains, from south of the South Dakota-Nebraska line to south central Texas.

In a preliminary report, Wright says the proper use of fire can save money, assist nature in the production of forage and clear some pesky vegetation from the land. But, he says, indiscriminate use of fire can ravage nature.

The primary problem, Wright says, is that fires on the American Great Plains have nothing to stop them: few natural tree lines, rivers, canyons or valleys. He says one shortgrass prairie fire, during a dry year, traveled 175 miles.

But, Wright says, under carefully prescribed conditions, there can be good reason to apply the drip torch to grasslands.

Wright's study shows that fire is of little benefit on the shortgrass prairie, other than in clearing debris or killing prickly pear. However, it finds that prescribed burns on "mixed grass" prairie often increases forage for livestock and turns some usually unpalatable plants into tender food for livestock.

Based on experiments conducted on the rambling Rendonbrook-Spade ranch, south of Colorado City, Texas, Wright found that a coarse grass, like tobosagrass, subjected to fire, grows back in greater supply and that livestock actually prefer the tender shoots of new tobosagrass to nearby buffalo grass.

"We often have seen a two-to three-fold grass yield during the first year after a burn," Wright says. The increased yield will continue for two years.

Wright found that tobosagrass thrives in the burned fields. The fire exposes the earth to the sun, and solar radiation drives the soil temperature up by 10 degrees on the average. The extra heat results in a 10-fold increase in soil bacteria population. The plants reap the nitrate windfall.

Wright says fire has been successful in the control of honey mesquite trees located in dry fields and of various weeds that take nutrients from valuable forage plants, in the removal of dead ash juniper and by easing the handling of livestock through the removal of brush.

"Mesquite is a real obstacle in handling livestock," Wright said. "Ranchers are as concerned about (mesquite) as anything. The cattle are more apt to be wild (in mesquite). They get like deer. They'll see a human, for example, and lay flat on the ground or run real fast."

Removal of brush and mesquite provides cattle with an unobstructed view of approaching humans, he said, and therefore eliminates some of the fear.

Wright does not advocate the use of rangeland fire without restriction.

"In some cases, fire needs to be used on a frequent (every two years) basis and in others it may only be needed every 20 to 30 years."

Wright finds most ranchers and his own students are hardly fire-happy.

"They don't feel comfortable using fire till they've had a couple of years experience," he said. "The hardest thing to do is to get them to make a decision that this or that weather is suitable to burn in."

Wright provides ranchers and land managers with prescribed burning methods for the type of material being burned and proper temperature, humidity and wind levels. He said the prescriptions have been developed through trial and error during the burning of thousands of acres over the past 11 years.

"Most people need some experience with fire before they use it," he said. "They'll say, 'I'm going to burn on Thursday.' Then they go out and get scared to death and they'll never want to set another fire." Fields also must be burned in accordance with the law, Wright said. In Texas that means between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., when smoke is unlikely to be trapped near the earth. Winds must blow the smoke in a direction away from highways and the fire should burn at least a half mile from population centers.

Tips On An Injured Pet

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Charles D. Knecht of Purdue University has some advice for the owners of pets who meet with a catastrophe:

— Stop the bleeding. Use a pressure bandage over the wound — a handkerchief or a clean cloth or towel.

— Keep the wound clean, but do not attempt to clean it.

— Do not try to pick up a paralyzed animal. Use an "emergency stretcher," such as a board, window screen or a blanket pulled taut by at least three people.

— Call a veterinarian or emergency veterinary service for advice and to arrange for emergency care.

— Do not give any medication without the advice of a veterinarian.

— If a limb appears fractured or broken, wrap it firmly in a towel, newspaper or magazine as a temporary splint.

"Try to avoid muzzling the animal or use a muzzle for only a very short time and then remove it," Dr. Knecht said.

"Try to avoid carrying any large injured animal in your arms — it makes breathing difficult and it could compound the injuries, particularly if there are broken bones involved."

"Small dogs and cats may be cradled, with equal support of all limbs," Dr. Knecht said.

Pope John Paul Ends His Visit To Mexico Today

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II ends his Mexico visit today after winning the hearts of the Mexican people and charting a course of non-political social activism for the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America.

He planned an early morning meeting with university students and a late afternoon talk with factory workers in the northern industrial center of Monterrey. From Monterrey he flies to Nassau, the Bahamas, for a two-hour stop before returning to Rome Thursday.

Vote College President On Thursday

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education will vote Thursday on who will be named as president of the 57-campus community college system, as supporters of Gov. Bob Scott press their case in the General Assembly and a search committee pushes for a professional educator.

Board members met for three hours in executive session Tuesday night with Larry J. Blake, 48, a native of Montana who is now president of Fraser Valley College in British Columbia, Canada. Blake is the choice of a board search committee to fill the post.

The meeting with Blake came only hours after supporters of Scott stepped up their efforts in the General Assembly to have him appointed to the post.

In the Senate, a resolution urging state agencies to consider North Carolinians first when filling top level state government jobs was passed, 43-3.

And in the House, Rep. Allan Barbee, D-Nash, filed a bill that would require General Assembly confirmation of anyone appointed to head the community college system.

H. David Bruton, chairman of the state board, said the board "will express its feelings about the community college president at its regular meeting Thursday."

Bruton and other board members refused to comment on whether any decision was made at the executive session.

"Various board members expressed themselves fully and completely in a discussion about various issues and personalities," Bruton said. Asked if the board members differed on the choice of a candidate, Bruton said the public would have to "wait till Thursday to find out about such a division, if such a division exists."

Blake told reporters after the meeting that he would be in Raleigh for Thursday's meeting and he and his wife hoped to "see something of the city." Bruton said Blake would meet with various members of the General Assembly today.

Blake said he could understand the concerns which led to the resolutions supporting Scott.

He said he is "sympathetic to concerns that an outsider would not be as responsive to the state and its needs as a North Carolinian." Blake said wherever he has held a position in education, "I have tried to understand the unique nature of the area and its problems."

Blake served in administrative positions in colleges in Montana and Seattle before going to British Columbia.

Although the Senate resolution does not refer to the community college position in its call for North Carolinians to fill top-level state jobs, some of its 26 Senate sponsors have backed Scott for the post.

He later had his helicopter land before one of Mexico's most violent prisons and delivered a blessing to its 2,000 inmates, who had petitioned him to come. Then in the evening he reiterated his theme of aid to the poor and "the necessary transformation of society" in a homily during a High Mass at the Basilica of Zapopan near Guadalajara.

John Paul came to Mexico to open the third conference of Latin American bishops, the most important meeting of Latin American Catholics in a decade, and to tell his bishops what he thinks the church should do to help the poor and oppressed in Latin America.

His comments at the inauguration at a bishops' working meeting and before students, peasants, workers and priests in 11 different cities set that tone but also touched off controversy.

Some within the church felt his speeches were too conservative and that he might kill the only hope Latin America's poor have. Others cheered his speeches as true guides for keeping the church on a spiritual path and out of local or national politics.

Bishops at the meeting in Puebla, 80 miles south of Mexico City, were still poring over the texts of his speeches looking for guidance in their deliberations. The Puebla meeting is expected to lay the course for the church in Latin America — where 330 million Catholics live — well into the next century.

John Paul put the church squarely behind traditional methods of social change, ruled out violence by priests or faithful no matter what the provocation, and put down those who look upon Jesus as "a subversive from Nazareth."

Followers of the so-called theology of liberation were especially stunned by the pope's speech. Some tried to organize a counter-conference on the other side of Puebla but the Puebla archbishop ruled that none of his priests could attend.

Church officials estimated that 18 million of Mexico's 65 million people lined streets, jammed stadiums and blocked plazas for a glimpse of the pope they likened to a happy European peasant during his six-day visit.

All Is Not Well In San Antonio's Monkey Colony

By K. MACK SISK
 SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — The only free-foraging troop of monkeys in the United States — studied by anthropologists for better understanding of animal behavior and human evolution — is being disbanded and offered for sale to zoos and research centers throughout the country.

Though researchers are dismayed, they cannot afford to buy the unique 228-member troop as a whole, at $1,000 per monkey. The owner no longer can afford to keep the troop intact, and the troop is in disarray because of two changes in leadership and the sale of some monkeys.

Existence of the troop of 228 Japanese macaques in south Texas was not widely publicized, to avoid human visitors who could infect the animals with disease.

But dozens of university students and experts have traveled from as far away as Canada to observe the monkeys in a natural state on a 108-acre ranch near the Texas-Mexico border, about 30 miles from Laredo.

Some of the students are concerned that the troop will be totally disbanded, jeopardizing their past work and opportunities for further studies.

The monkeys were brought to Texas in February, 1972, from Arashiyama, on the western edge of the Japanese city of Kyoto, where researchers from the University of Kyoto began studying the original troop of 47 in 1954 at the Iwatayama Monkey Sanctuary. Since that time, detailed records of monkey families of the troop have been kept by students who earned their graduate degrees by studying the troop.

By 1966 the Japanese troop had grown to 125 monkeys and split along family lines into two distinct groups of about equal size with their own leaders. And by 1968 the two troops had outgrown the forests of the sanctuary and were encroaching on neighboring areas. The Japanese began looking for a home for the one troop.

Laredo businessman and philanthropist Edward Dryden, in conjunction with the Universities of Texas and Maryland, fenced his former La Moca Ranch 30 miles northwest of Laredo, built climbing towers for the monkeys, and provided a dietary supplement of monkey chow to ensure against malnutrition, hoping to sell the monkeys' offspring for research. He named the complex Arashiyama Primate Research Center.

Since their arrival, the monkeys have been studied by graduate students from the Universities of Texas, Wisconsin, Chicago, New Mexico, Oregon and Georgia, and by other scientists.

The monkeys adjusted quickly from the temperate-to-cold environment of Mount Arashiyama in Japan to the warm Texas border environment. They learned to eat mesquite, acacia, prickly pear cactus, fruits, flowers, grasses and bark, grasshoppers, snails and bird eggs. They have learned to work in concert to fight off coyotes, bobcats and other Texas predators.

But Dryden died not long after the monkeys arrived and his widow, real estate woman Clementina G. Dryden, says she no longer can afford the $18,000 to $20,000 a year needed to maintain the troop.

Electricity to a fence that kept the monkeys on the ranch has been shut off and the selling of 30 monkeys to zoos has disrupted the internal affairs of the troop, which the researchers say was highly structured with each monkey having his or her rank within the troop.

Mrs. Dryden said she would like to keep the troop intact if a buyer could be found, but she will sell them individually if she must.

"I don't have any scientific objective or goal," Mrs. Dryden said, in offering to sell the monkeys for $1,000 apiece to zoos or research centers. "To my husband, it was business and to me it is business. So I would like to recover the money I've invested and that would be about $1,000 each. That's what I've been getting, but of course, I would be willing to negotiate any price if someone wants the whole troop."

Mrs. Dryden said her husband used the monkeys as a tax shelter, but "I don't need a tax shelter any more. I ran out of money."

She said trouble began in the troop about 18 months ago when the No. 2 monkey, after several days of fighting, escaped from the compound. It traveled across the brushland to Carrizo Springs, Texas, where a deputy finally subdued, handcuffed and transported it to a San Antonio research center. It now has been exiled to a Minnesota zoo.

Then last May, Mrs. Dryden said, "The No. 1 monkey abdicated and took off with two of his nephews. One of the nephews was hit by a car and the other I ordered shot on sight. I don't carry any liability insurance and it was danger for me (to have the monkeys running free in Webb County)."

She said the king monkey decided to flee the compound after she sold off a group of 16 monkeys. "It seems he went in there and looked for them (missing monkeys) and then he could not face the crowd because he had lost some of his men. So he was either ashamed or he was tired of being a leader and abdicated."

He still has not been found, although his tracks occasionally are spotted at rural watering holes in the county.

Now the troop has been in disarray, she said, because the younger monkey who took over as the king does not have the control over the troop that the older abdicated monarch did.

"The young one is not a very good leader and not very popular with the ladies, either. He doesn't know what being a leader means. The other leader would break up the fights, but the young one doesn't seem to be interested whether there's a fight."

Sarah Manly Gouzoules, who spent nearly two years observing the monkeys on the Texas range while working on her doctoral research in anthropology at the University of Chicago, said researchers were concerned about the future of the troop. But a shortage of research money in the United States has made it difficult to find a home for all of the troop.

"Since our records on this troop go back so far and cover observations made on the same troop in two different environments, it provides a unique opportunity to study social behavior," she said. "Our understanding of the relationship between social organization and ecology in these non-human primates may eventually contribute to a better understanding of man's evolution."

Mrs. Gouzoules studied five generations of related females, while her husband, Harold studied mother-infant interaction and infant development as part of his Ph.D. work at the University of Wisconsin.

The students discovered a structured social arrangement in the troop, determined by the sex, age and interaction of its members.

Mrs. Dryden said she admired the social structure of the monkeys and that in some ways they behaved better than humans, "because they watch their laws very carefully."

But she said she has decided for financial reasons the monkeys must find another home.

"I'm in the real estate business," she said, "not the monkey business."

Warns Of Claims About Fertilizers

RALEIGH — Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham cautioned farmers against falling for exaggerated claims about certain fertilizer products.

"Don't be confused by comparisons of liquid formulations versus dry material," Graham said. "All fertilizer formulations are based on a percentage by weight."

"In other words, a gallon of liquid 5-10-10 fertilizer might weigh approximately 11 pounds," Graham continued. "It has the same plant nutrient value of about 11 pounds of dry 5-10-10 fertilizer product. They are both based on weight, not gallons."

Graham also suggested watching for two misleading words: "concentrated" and "pure."

"Compressing plant nutrients into a concentrated form in either liquid or dry fertilizer of the same grade is about the same as compressing sand, they don't compress too much," said Graham.

As for the word "pure," he explained that plants don't require pure nutrients in the same sense that humans require pure food. A fertilizer product, such as muriate of potash, has to meet satisfactory chemical analyses, not freedom from microorganisms or other substances as thought of for pure food for humans.

The final warning given by Graham was against products which claim miraculous benefits to plant growth.

"Research has steadily revealed improvements in plant nutrition but little in the way of miracles," noted the commissioner. "If you are offered a product that sounds too good to be true, you might better check it out before committing your money."

For fertilizer product information, call the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, (919) 733-3930.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a muted response to Chase Manhattan Bank's reduction of its prime lending rate.

The 10:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down .78 at 851 even.

Gainers held an 8-5 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Tuesday Chase Manhattan, the nation's third largest bank, lowered its prime rate from 11 1/2 to 11 1/4 percent.

But as it announced the reduction in the basic charge on loans to large corporations, the bank also issued a statement cautioning against jumping to the conclusion that interest rates had passed their peak.

Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve Board took a similarly cautious view in congressional testimony Tuesday.

Today's early volume leaders included Xerox, unchanged at 59; Westinghouse, off 1/4 at 18 3/4; and Standard Oil of Ohio, up 1 3/4 at 47.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 3.99 to 851.78.

Declines outnumbered advances by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 26.91 million shares against 24.17 million the day before.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost .25 to 56.60.

Health Care...

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., said Tuesday Carter has told him "to brief congressional leaders, the experts in the Congress, the key interest groups." After their views are assessed, the secretary said, the president will decide how to proceed.

Sources who asked not to be identified said Carter still could change a number of elements in the plan or alter the timetable for putting it into effect. But they say the draft is the essential document representing his choice of the many options that have been under study for nearly two years.

A key element of the plan would establish HealthCare as a federal insurance program but leave private companies free to compete with it if they agree to provide the basic benefits and pay the same rates. Private firms also would be permitted to bid against each other to serve as fiscal agents for HealthCare, a role similar to one they now play with Medicare.

"Individuals enrolled in either HealthCare or private plans would be covered for the same standard benefit package and treated equally by health service providers, because all insurance plans would reimburse providers at the same rates," the plan says. "Providers (such as doctors and hospitals) would have no reason to distinguish between persons enrolled in different insurance plans because all financial transsactions would occur between providers and insurance plans, rather than providers and patients; and all plans would pay the same amount for a given service."

This would eliminate two major complaints about the existing government health care systems: Some doctors refuse to treat Medicaid patients because many states refuse to pay as much as the doctors can get from other patients. And an increasing number of physicians refuse to agree not to bill their Medicare patients if Medicare doesn't pick up their entire bill.

To finance the Carter plan, employers would be required to pay a minimum amount of the premium for each employee, either to a private insurer or to the government. That minimum would begin at 50 percent in the first phase, with the employee picking up the other half. The employer contribution would rise to 75 percent when the plan is fully implemented.

Employees and their unions could bargain in the usual way for the company to pick up all or part of the employee's 25 percent share. The present 1 percent tax on earnings that goes to Medicare instead of Social Security would go instead to HealthCare.

The balance of the costs, those for insuring the elderly, the poor, the unemployed and uninsured and those for a federal reinsurance fund to underwrite catastrophic expenditures — would be paid for out of general tax funds.

N.C. Legislature...

to know the truth." A bill to ratify ERA has not yet been introduced in the legislature. The measure has been rejected by the General Assembly three times.

Supporters say it probably will be introduced in the House this week, however, where proponents are more confident of its passage.

Wildlife
The Joint Wildlife Committee received a series of proposed changes in North Carolina's wildlife laws, including the repeal of most of the hundreds of local wildlife laws now on the books.

The North Carolina Conservation Law Study Committee recommended that foxes be classified as game animals instead of as both game and fur-bearing animals. The proposal said foxes should be hunted as game animals and trapped for furs only under limited circumstances.

The committee's proposal would eliminate all local fox acts and permit a statewide open hunting season on taking foxes with dogs during the day or night. The proposal also recommends allowing the sale of the fox pelt and carcass and that trappers only be allowed to sell their pelts to certain fur dealers.

Abortions
Rep. Edith Lutz, D-Cleveland, introduced a bill that would cut off all state money for abortions. But Mrs. Lutz said the bill will be amended to allow state funding for abortions when the pregnancy results from rape or where the mother's life is in danger.

Approximately $1 million has been made available through the state's Medicaid program for abortions.

Breakfast
A measure that would require each county and city school system to establish a school breakfast program was filed in the state Senate.

Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston, sponsored the bill that would require meals in any school where at least 25 percent of the pupils are entitled to a free lunch or reduced price lunch under federal law and where at least one-half of the pupils request the breakfast program.

New Bills
Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, filed a bill that would boost the pay for jurors who serve more than five days in a 24-month period to $30 per day.

Barnes also filed a constitutional amendment to provide for six-member juries in civil suits.

Copters
Commerce Department Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth appeared before a joint appropriations committee Tuesday to defend his department's request for an additional $1 million helicopter.

Faircloth told the committee the helicopter was badly needed for industry hunting. But the committee held up the request for more study.

Salaries and operating expenses for the helicopter would cost another $150,000 per year.

Prisons
Gov. Jim Hunt Tuesday announced that a $17.5 million medium security prison will be built in Greene County in Maury. The new prison will hold 480 adult male felons, mainly from the eastern part of the state, in a single-cell facility. The unit will provide about 280 service jobs for the county and another 100 construction jobs while it is being built.

In 1890, Indian chief Sitting Bull was shot by police attempting to arrest him.

Obituaries

Dunn

Mrs. Adelaide Skeen Dunn, wife of Floyd L. (Bud) Dunn, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Tuesday. She resided at 1019 E. Wright Rd.

Funeral services will be held Thursday, 3 p.m., in the First Presbyterian Church by her pastor, the Rev. Richard R. Gammon. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the Church one hour prior to services.

Mrs. Dunn, a native of Biscoe, was a graduate of Biscoe High School and entered Highsmith Hospital School of Nursing in Fayetteville, graduating in 1944. She was employed by the Cumberland County Health Department and continued her education at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and received a certificate in Public Health Nursing.

For four years, Mrs. Dunn was a public health staff nurse in Guilford County and served one year as a public health staff nurse in Edgecombe County. She was employed by the Pitt County Health Department as a staff nurse for three years, and then as a supervising nurse for three years. In 1964, she received a bachelor's degree in Nursing from East Carolina University, and then served 12 years as a consultant nurse and the first public health nurse at the East Carolina University Developmental Evaluation Clinic until her retirement in 1977.

Lions Hear First Prexy

Henry Groome, charter president of the Greenville Breakfast Lions, spoke at the club's weekly meeting and discussed the relationship of the local Lions Club to Lions International.

Groome also reminded the members of the impact the Lions Club has in the community through its projects. He pointed out the Breakfast Lions distributed ten boxes of food to needy and visually handicapped persons at Christmas and purchased basketball jerseys for the "Steelwheels," a basketball team of paraplegics.

The speaker added that club members have contributed to the support of the community ambassadors and made contributions to other community projects. The Lions, he said, recently paid for eye exams and glasses for two youths and an adult. In addition, the Breakfast Lions, in conjunction with the two other Lions Clubs here, sponsor a Little League baseball team.

Current president Ellis Banks announced that the club will have a ladies night and installation meeting on Feb. 14.

The club meets each Tuesday morning at 7 a.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Finally, A Trace Of Snow

"Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow," seemed to be the theme Wednesday morning in the Greenville area as the first few flakes of snow hit Pitt County ground.

According to the National Weather Service in Raleigh, light snow mixed with sleet is likely for most of Eastern North Carolina during the day, with precipitation ending by late afternoon.

A travelers' advisory was in effect Wednesday morning for the Piedmont and most of the Coastal Plains area in North Carolina.

According to the Water Department of the Greenville Utilities Commission, no precipitation was measured as of 8 a.m. Wednesday, with a temperature reading of 35 degrees Fahrenheit.

Added Penalty If Taxes Late

FARMVILLE — Property owners who have not paid their 1978 ad valorem taxes to the Town of Farmville are reminded that an additional three-fourths percent penalty will apply beginning Feb. 1.

A two percent penalty had applied during January. The town will be publishing the names of delinquent taxpayers within the next two weeks, Town Administrator Patrick Thomas said.

Town residents also are reminded to purchase their town auto tags, he said.

Sugg pointed out that every dollar of income from agriculture generates three dollars in agribusiness and five dollars in retail business.

Bucs Nip Indians In Two Overtimes

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Three games into this basketball season, William & Mary gained a 60-54 victory over East Carolina. For that loss, the Pirates vowed their revenge.

Last night in Minges Coliseum, it looked at halftime like that revenge was going to be sweet. But the Pirates turned Jekyll-Hyde in the second half, and finally managed to escape with a 61-59 double overtime victory.

"Well, it was a win, and that's what counts," Coach Larry Gillman said after Oliver Mack had hit four seconds left in the second overtime period to give the Pirates their third straight victory.

"I'm glad we only have to play them twice a year," Gillman added. "Every game we play when there is murder. And from what I hear, it's always been that way."

The Pirates ran out to an 11-point lead in the late stages of the first half and held that margin at 35-24 at intermission. But it didn't last.

The Indians, who were able to get the ball inside the Pirate zone defense for easy shots, came back hot, and in less than six minutes had destroyed that lead.

"I think we played pretty good in the first half," Gillman said. "We challenged them like we wanted to. But in the second half, it must have seemed to easy for us. We started standing around, waiting for someone else to do the job."

"Part of it was due to the effort of William & Mary, but most of it was due to our own inept play. (George) Maynor was a little under the weather, and that's what caused him so many problems."

Maynor experienced one of his worst games in handling the ball, and was below par in his scoring.

Gillman added that the Pirates rushed things at times, taking poor shots when they should have waited to take better ones. "That's one reason we went to our delay game, trying to get the best percentage shots." But even then, the Pirates had problems handling the ball, and it gave the Indians the chance to pull it out.

For a while, however, it looked like a waltz for the Pirates, who rushed out to a 13-4 lead in the first six and a half minutes.

After the Indians got the initial basket for a 2-0 lead, the Pirates came back on two straight baskets by Oliver Mack to take the lead. Maynor added a basket on the fast break for a 6-2 margin.

That was gradually extended to 13-4, and the margin reached ten at 25-10 with 6:50 left on a jumper by Herb Krusen, who was six-for-six in the first half.

Krusen hit with 2:01 left for a 33-22 margin, and both teams scored once in the final 1:30 to leave it at 35-24 at intermission.

But in the first minutes of the second half the Indians started getting the ball inside, usually to Kenny Bowen, for easy shots, and the lead was chopped away.

"That was our plan," Indian coach Bruce Parkhill said. "We wanted to get the ball inside, but in the first half, we were intimidated. But in the second half, we got ourselves together, and settled down."

Over the first five and a half minutes, that play worked well as the Indians clipped the lead away, outscoring the Pirates, 14-3 to finally tie it up at 38-38 with 14:43 left.

Mack, however, tossed back a missed shot, and David Underwood added a three-point play to put the Pirates back into the lead, 43-38, and the two teams swapped points after that, until the Indians pulled it to one, 49-48 on a jumper by Billy Harrington with 9:06 left.

Finally, with the Pirates up, 53-52, the Bucs got the ball with 6:41 left and went to their delay offense. With 3:47 left, the Pirates still had control, and the Indians were hit with a technical for not forcing the action with Krusen hitting for a 54-52 lead.

With just over two minutes left, Krusen forced up a short jumper from the lane that missed and the Indians got the rebound. Bowen scored from underneath with 24 seconds to go tying it again, and in the final three seconds, shots by Mack and George Hobson both missed the mark, leaving it at 56-56 at the end of regulation ball.

In the first overtime, Al Tyson hit off a rebound with 3:39 left, and the Indians scored on a jumper by Scott Whitley with 1:33 to go. East Carolina again held the ball until eight seconds were left, then called time out. The inbound pass, however, slipped off the fingers of Tyson and went out of bounds, giving the Indians the chance, but Harrington missed a 25-footer.

Bowen put the Indians up, 57-56, hitting the first of two at the line, but Greg Cornelius retied it by hitting the second of a two-shot foul with 2:58 to go in the second overtime.

Krusen then hit a jumper with 2:12 left, and the Indians again tied it on two Bowen free throws with 1:58 left.

The Pirates held the ball until about seven seconds were left, then Mack drove to the basket, tossing up a layup that bounced around, then fell through with five seconds left. The Indians tried a desperation shot, but it missed and the Pirates were safe at last.

"We wanted Mack to have the ball there at the end," Gillman said. "The plan was for him to either get a basket or to create one. We thought if he got the opening, he could score, and if they collapsed on him, he could get the ball to someone else for the shot."

The Pirates shot 46.6 per cent for the game, but matched a 53.3 per cent first half against a 39.3 per cent second half. William & Mary, meanwhile was 32.4 in the first, 54.2 in the second and 41.4 overall.

The Pirates held a 36-32 margin in rebounding, with Cornelius pulling down 12.

Krusen finished with 19 points to lead the Pirates, while Mack had 13. Those 13 moved his career total to 1,038, moving him into tenth place on the all-time scoring list, passing Jim Fairley at 1,031. Next up is Tom Miller, who had 1,048.

Bowen led the Indians with 19, while Whitley had 16.

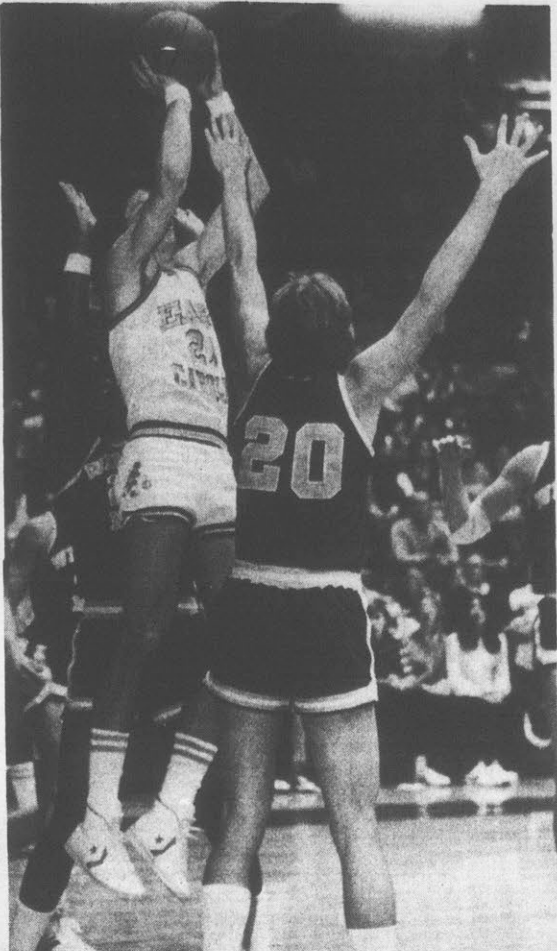

The Pirates are now 9-10, and play host to Old Dominion on Saturday in Minges.

State Swimmers Drown Pirates

RALEIGH — Atlantic Coast Conference champion N. C. State swam past East Carolina Tuesday night in the Wolfpack pool, topping the Pirate men 66-47 and beating the Pirate women 78-29.

The Pirates won four events, all freestyles, in the men's competition, but saw the hosts gain a 14-4 advantage in diving to secure the final result.

John Tudor of East Carolina was a triple winner, taking the 200-yard freestyle in 1:40.31, the 100 freestyle in 46.75 and helping the 400 freestyle relay to a win in 3:09.36.

"Tudor swam really well in the meet," said Pirate coach Ray Scharf. "When you swim at State, you have to be a good swimmer and also be a tough competitor and he really came through for us. We'll need a lot more efforts like that against Duke Saturday."

Julie Malcolm set a new Pirate record with her winning 1:12.90 timing in the 100 breaststroke, while Sharon Burns in the 200 freestyle and Cindy Sailer in the 50 butterfly were the only other winners for the visitors.

The Wolfpack women claimed a new national AIAW record in the 200 freestyle relay as Beth Harrell, Tracy Cooper, Heidi Jachthuber and Jane Holliday were timed in 1:35.18 to better the former mark of 1:35.62 held by UCLA.

The Pirate men stand 4-3 for the season, while the women are 2-3. Both will face Duke Saturday at 1 p.m. at Minges Natatorium.

Rose Holds Off Fike For 92-86 Win

Getting Up There

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Rose High's Rampants overcame a sizzling first-quarter performance by Wilson Fike and their own sloppy play in the final period to defeat the Golden Demons 92-86 last night.

Fike had the net at its end of the court smoking in the first quarter as forward Moe Ruffin and guard Ben Howell led the team to a 26-17 lead. The Demons hit 13 of their 19 shots in the period, 68.4 per cent.

But, Rose took advantage of eight Fike turnovers in the second quarter to turn the game around and gain the lead before halftime. The Rampants had trouble holding on to their margin in the final period as they turned the ball over 14 times. Only an 11-3 rebounding advantage and 8-10 shooting performance in the final quarter kept Rose ahead.

"When we got to the place where we had to make substitutions (due to foul trouble)," Rose coach Jim Brewington said, "it kind of made us get a little sloppy. But Fike has got a good, small, quick team, and they're going to make you make turnovers."

Although not entirely pleased with his team's play, Brewington was happy to get the victory, which left his team in sole possession of second place in Division I. "We needed this game. We've got to win them any way we can from here on out."

Ruffin scored 14 points for the Demons in the first quarter, most from close range as Fike's guards penetrated the Rampant zone defense with pinpoint passing. Rose switched to a man-to-man defense in the second quarter and had better luck.

"We tried to stay in the zone, but we couldn't do nothing with them in a zone," Brewington said. "So we switched to a man-to-man and shut them down a little bit."

The man defense put more pressure on the Fike ballhandlers and completely shut down the Demon inside attack. Only two of Fike's seven second-quarter field goals were short shots, and they came off of offensive rebounds.

Rose's guards pressured the Demons into eight turnovers in the second quarter and the Rampants fought their way back to a 36-35 lead on Cliff Kilpatrick's three-point play midway through the quarter.

Donald House, whose 12 second-quarter points paced the Rampant comeback, followed a missed foul shot with just eight seconds left in the half to give Rose a 47-44 halftime margin.

House and Wallace Brown moved Rose out in front by eight, 57-49, early in the third quarter and Calvin Whichard, who scored 11 of the Rampants final 13 points in the quarter, put Rose up 72-61 with 34 seconds left in the period.

Three straight Rampant turnovers in the final seconds allowed Fike to close to within 72-67 going into the final frame.

Rose continued its hot shooting performance in the fourth quarter, and with a decided rebound advantage, the Rampants held the Demons off for a six-point victory.

Rose hit 40 of 69 shots for the game, 58.0 per cent, while Fike was 30 of 54, 55.6 per cent. The Rampants were 20 for 28 in the second half, 71.4 per cent.

House led the Rampant attack with 22 points, while Whichard was close behind with 21. Wallace Brown scored 18. Everyone who played for Rose scored at least one basket.

Ruffin had 29 points for Fike and Ben Howell added 27, including a 15-15 performance at the foul line. Tracy Hill scored 12.

The Rose girls dropped a lopsided 62-38 decision to the Lady Demons in the preliminary game last night.

Wilson got off to a 14-4 lead in the first quarter and built on it steadily throughout the game.

"They're the best team we've played all year," Rampette coach Robert Carraway said. "We really wanted to stop their fast break, and we did a good job of that, but their big girl (Martha Lawrence) did a good job on offense getting rebounds and putting the ball back in. We didn't know she was that good. Other than that, we could have kept it pretty close."

Lawrence led the Lady Demons with 17 points. Angela Armstrong scored 15 and Ayel Gresham 12 for Fike. None of the Rampants were in double figures, although Carraway praised the play of Donna Cullipher. "She did a good job on defense and rebounding for us," he said.

Jaguars, Hawks Put It On Line Friday

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
All the marbles in the Eastern Carolina Conference regular season race will be at stake in Wheat Swamp Friday night when the top two teams in the league do battle in a game that will probably decide the champion.

Conference-leading Farmville Central, which had an 11-1 league mark going into last night's game with C. B. Aycock, will be visiting second-place North Lenoir, which sports a 9-2 record, including a victory over the Jaguars.

It should be quite a duel. Farmville coach Mike Terrell said he is satisfied with the Jags' record at this point, but added the team has played very few complete ballgames. "We've looked good at times," Terrell said, "but we still have room for improvement."

"We're going to have to have a complete, solid game against North Lenoir to beat them. We've got to be consistent the whole game."

Consistency was one thing the Jaguars did not have when the two teams met in Farmville earlier this month. The Jags led for much of the game, but allowed the Hawks to take the lead in the third period and then lost their chance to come back when they hit a cold spell in the fourth quarter.

"It was one of those games which we did play well for most of the first half and played very mediocre in the second half," Terrell said of the 73-63 loss. "Our rebounding and defense were very poor. This is what we're going to have to improve on."

The Hawks' front line of Amos Pearce, John Cratch and Johnny Wiggins controlled the boards in the game, outrebounding the Jaguars 54-41. An 18-5 rebounding advantage in the final six minutes of the game helped North Lenoir avert a Farmville rally.

The first meeting of the two teams "was probably the worst game we played on defense all year," Terrell said. "We played some man-to-man and some zone. This time, we'll probably play a basic man-to-man against them, but we have to have certain people do a much better job."

Terrell said Farmville is playing much better defense now than when the team met North Lenoir. The Jaguars are averaging giving up around 53 points per game, the third lowest average in the conference. The Hawks give up around 67 points per outing.

Another factor which hurt the Jaguars in their only league loss this year was foul shooting, or more specifically, fouling. "The first time we played them, we let them go to the foul line too often," Terrell said. The Hawks got 25 of their 73 points at the charity stripe, while Farmville cashed in at the line only once. The Jaguars had a 31-24 advantage in field goals.

Working out a defense to use against the Hawks presents two basic problems: Wiggins and Pearcill. Wiggins burned the Jaguars for 31 points in their previous meeting, while Pearce scored 15.

"They have both been starters since they were sophomores," according to Terrell, "and they are good, solid basketball players. We're going to have to stop those two. If we can do that, our chances of winning will be good."

Wiggins leads the team in scoring with a 17.3 point average. Pearce is close behind, scoring 16.1 points per game. Pearce is tied with Jaguar Donald Freeman for the ECC rebounding lead. Both players averaging pulling down 11.1 caroms per game. Wiggins rebounds at an 8.4 clip.

The Jaguars sport a balanced attack with no player listed in the top 10 in scoring in the ECC. "We've got a strange group," Terrell explained. "Sometimes Freeman will be the big scorer, or sometimes it will be Donald Reid or Calvin Horne or James Tyson."

Tarboro Tops Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's girls romped to a 57-24 victory over Tarboro last night, but the Tigers fell to the Vikings by a 74-49 margin.

The Tigerettes all but put the game away in the first quarter as they outscored the visitors 22-4. Jan Rogerson paced the balanced Williamston attack with 13 points, while no other girl in the game had more than nine.

In the boys' game, Williamston led 11-10 at the end of the first quarter, but Tarboro rallied in the second period for a 27-21 halftime lead. The Vikings extended that margin in the third and fourth periods.

Kelvin Bryant and Heath each had 20 points for the winners, while Hyman added 11. Jimmy Barnes led the Williamston scorers with 19.

Irish Polish Tarnish With 80-53 Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Digger Phelps says his Notre Dame basketball team should not be ranked No. 1 in the nation, or even in the State of Indiana, but don't tell that to the Brown Bruins.

"Obviously with the number of first-place votes they got, they should have been No. 1," Phelps said of undefeated but second-ranked Indiana State, which received 32 first-place ballots to 15 for Notre Dame. Nevertheless, the twice-beaten Irish, coming off a last-second one-point road loss to Maryland, did nothing to tarnish their holdover No. 1 rating Tuesday night, smashing Brown 80-53 thanks to 66 percent shooting in the first half that provided a 46-27 lead at the intermission which quickly ballooned to 56-27.

Rich Branning led the balanced Notre Dame attack with 16 points, Orlando Woolridge added 12 and Tracy Jackson 10. "I knew Notre Dame was big, strong, quick and aggressive, but I never knew they could hit the outside shot from everywhere," said Brown Coach Joe Mullaney. "There is no team around that has the depth Notre Dame has."

"Hey, obviously we're one of the powers," said Phelps. "Now is the time to get it going as a team, to get the momentum going into the tournament, to get the right chemistry going. It has nothing to do with wins or losses."

"We were really hopped up tonight. Some of the frustration from the Maryland loss was shown in our defense. We were hitting the perimeter shots, showing a lot of consistency and penetration." Twelfth-ranked Marquette was the only other member of The Associated Press Top Twenty in action Tuesday night and the Warriors held off Creighton 79-77 as Bernard Toone led a second-half comeback. Toone scored 18 of his 26 points after the intermission as Marquette erased a 42-38 deficit. John C. Johnson had 25 for the losers.

"The thing is not to let Creighton get ahead or you can have a lot of trouble," said Marquette Coach Hank Raymond, whose club had a lot of trouble. "It's always been that way."

In an Atlantic Coast Conference game, North Carolina State's Hawkeye Whitney set a record for Clemson's LittleJohn Coliseum by scoring 43 points but it wasn't enough as the Tigers toppled the Wolfpack 85-72. Whitney was the only N.C. State player in double figures while Clemson had four with 13 points or more, led by Larry Nance's 19.

"Boy, it was a good win for us," said Clemson Coach Bill Foster. "Whitney is sure a heck of a player. We didn't try to let him score all those points, but we were able to stop the others, and that's good."

So, apparently, is Clemson. "People are going to start to wonder about us now because we have already won more ballgames than people thought we would," said Foster, whose Tigers are 13-5 overall and 3-4 in ACC play after being picked to finish dead last.

Earl Evans scored 24 points and pulled down 12 rebounds to spark Nevada-Las Vegas past Iona 86-79. The Rebels, 16-5, took the lead for good with a minute left in the first half on a 12-foot jump shot by Tony Smith. They led by as much as 12 points early in the second half with Iona star Jeff Ruland sitting down with three personal fouls. Iona, 14-5, closed to 80-79 with 22 seconds left but UNLV scored the last six points.

Elsewhere: —North Carolina-Charlotte, led by Chad Kinch's 16 points, built a 14-point lead and withstood a late rally for a 59-54 Sun Belt Conference victory over Jacksonville.

—Jonathan Moore scored 20 of his 32 points in the first half as Furman trimmed Western Carolina 78-68 in a Southern Conference game.

—Andrew Toney poured in 36 points as Southwestern Louisiana shaded Portland State 84-81 and Dick Miller hit 11 of 15 shots for 22 points to lead Toledo to a 101-71 romp over Butler.

—Tom Kavanaugh scored 20 of his 27 points in the second half as Fordham, led by Tom Penders, Columbia's coach the last four seasons, ripped none other than Columbia 76-75, coached by Buddy Mahar, Penders' former No. 1 aide.

Roanoke Rips Yellow Jackets

ROANOKVILLE — Roanoke High School romped to an 88-61 victory over Roanoke Rapids in a Northeastern Conference basketball game last night.

Roanoke's girls also gained a 53-31 victory in the junior varsity finished the sweep, 62-54.

Roanoke's boys jumped off to a 22-4 lead in the first period and coasted after that. They ran their margin out to 45-20 by halftime, then allowed a small rally in the third quarter that cut it to 64-46. Roanoke outthit the Yellow Jackets, 24-15, in the last quarter, however.

Chris Morning and Edward Ward each had 16 points to lead Roanoke, while Jasper Martin had 10. Chuck Maness led Roanoke Rapids with 27.

In the girls' game, Roanoke Rapids slipped into a 14-9 lead in the first period, but Roanoke came back to move into a 26-18 halftime lead. They extended that to 40-25 at the end of the third quarter, and outthit the Lady Jackets, 13-6, in the last quarter.

Dee Stanley led Roanoke with 19, while Carolyn Jones added

10. Lib Keeter had 12 for Roanoke Rapids.

Struggle For Rebound

Tigers Do It Again, Drop State By 85-72

By The Associated Press
Clemson Coach Bill Foster says his team's third Atlantic Coast Conference victory "was a heck of a win for us. Boy, it was a good win."

The Tigers' 85-72 victory Tuesday night over North Carolina State left them in fifth place in the ACC standings with a record of 3-4, 13-5 overall.

It was the only game of the night in the ACC. Tonight's action sends Duke to Wake Forest and Virginia to Maryland.

The Wolfpack's Hawkeye Whitney led all scorers with 43 points in setting a new record for Littlejohn Coliseum on the Clemson campus.

"Whitney is sure a heck of a player," said Foster. "We didn't try to let him score a those points, but we were able to stop the others and that's good."

"People are going to start to wonder about us now, because we have already won more ball games than people thought that we would," said Foster. His team was picked to finish last in the ACC in pre-season polls.

State Coach Norman Sloan said, "First of all, Clemson is playing excellent basketball. Their first-half shooting was outstanding. They did a good job in all areas, on offense, the boards, the stall and shot their free throws well. They deserved to win."

The Clemson-State game was the only one involving ACC teams Tuesday.

Sloan also praised Whitney, saying, "Hawkeye was great. He's been like that all along. We've got to get him some help."

Sloan said it was "the first time we've been soundly trounced. We've been in the other games at the end, but not this one."

Whitney topped by five points the previous Littlejohn Coliseum scoring record, set jointly by four players. The last time 38 points were scored in the arena was in 1974, by Clemson's Skip Wise against Pennsylvania.

But Whitney was the only State player in double figures, while Clemson had four players with 13 points or better. State dropped deeper into the ACC cellar with a 1-6 record. The Wolfpack is 13-7 overall.

Center Larry Nance led with 19 points and Billy Williams added 14. Marvin Dickerson and Horace Wyatt each had 13 for the Tigers.

Only Jack Is Among Missing

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The celebrities are all on hand, Clint Eastwood rubbing elbows with Jack Lemmon.

The countless parties are set; some public, more in the mansions overlooking the spectacular beauty of Carmel Bay. Hotel rooms have long-since been booked solid. A cold rain, which seems to be traditional, sweeps Monterey Peninsula. The whales are making their migration and the seals are cavorting on the wave-splashed rocks.

Jack Nicklaus.

For the first time in his playing history, Nicklaus is skipping the Crosby. It didn't fit in with his reduced schedule. His long-time friend and Crosby partner, Bob Hoag, made a telephone call to Nicklaus' home early in the week to make one last plea. He wasn't there. Off hunting in Georgia, said wife Barbara.

So, for the first time since the early '60s, the Crosby — that annual bash of golf and parties and fun, long known unofficially as Bing's Clambake — will be held without Nicklaus.

That's one less, a big one less, that Tom Watson has to beat.

He's won the last two Crosby's, with Nicklaus in the field, and appears primed and ready for another successful defense in the unique event that gets underway Thursday, weather permitting, on three courses — Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point.

The 168 pros and their amateur partners, including former President Gerald Ford, play one round on each course before the finals at Pebble Beach Sunday.

With Nicklaus out, Watson — the man who is challenging him for world golf supremacy — is unopposed as the man to beat.

He's used the Crosby as the springboard to Player of the Year honors the last two seasons and gives every indication of repeating. He opened his 1979 campaign last week with a second-place finish in San Diego.

He and the rest of the field had to skip practice and take the day off Tuesday. A cold, steady rain closed all the courses.

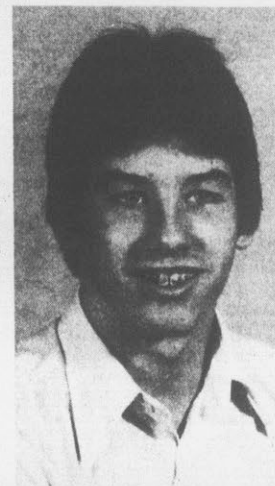

Schmidt On All-Star Team

Mark Schmidt, an E.B. Aycock eighth grader, has been named to a North Carolina AAU all-star swimming team, and will participate in a meet in Philadelphia, Pa., starting tomorrow.

The competition will be against a group of swimmers from the Mid-Atlantic AAU with the meet lasting through Saturday.

A total of 80 swimmers, 40 girls and 40 boys, were selected from the state. Schmidt will compete as one of ten 13-14 year olds selected.

A member of the Greenville Swim Club for eight years, Mark is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Rodney Schmidt.

Bullets Nip Bears

BEAR GRASS — Jamesville High School, leading the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference, escaped with a slim 47-46 win over Bear Grass High School last night, to cling to the lead.

Jamesville's girls also won, 46-42, while the junior varsity of Bear Grass gained a 64-47 win.

Jamesville and Bear Grass stayed close all the way, with the two tied at 11-11 at the end of the first period, and with the Bears up 23-22 at the half.

In the third period, the Bears managed to cling to the lead, 34-33, but in the final quarter, they were outthit by the Bullets, 14-12, and that was enough for Jamesville to pull it out.

Trent Ange led Jamesville with 16, while Tommy DiNardo had 14. Watson Rogers led the Bears with 16, while Jesse Bullock had 12.

In the girls' game, the two were even, 6-6, after one period, and the Lady Bullets managed to pull ahead, 18-17, at the half.

The Jamesville girls added to that in the third period for a 32-29 lead, then outscored the Bears, 14-13, in the last quarter.

Lori Modlin led Jamesville with 21, while Paula Williams led Bear Grass with 13, with Stephanie Andrews and Joette Rogers each adding 12.

Silas Sparks Son Antonio Victory

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

After two years of pain and frustration, James Silas is back.

Silas scored a season-high 30 points, including four in overtime, to help the Spurs beat the Chicago Bulls 112-108 Tuesday night. That victory, coupled with Houston's 112-106 loss to the Indiana Pacers, gave San Antonio a 2½-game lead over the Rockets in the National Basketball Association's Central Division.

Silas was the best backcourtman in the dying days of the American Basketball Association, but suffered a string of ankle, knee and thigh injuries the past two years. Most of his time was spent gathering splinters on the bench; when he was able to play, he found he couldn't do the things he used to take for granted.

"You have no idea what it was like to sit there and watch my team play without me," Silas recalled. "The feeling of helplessness, of not being able to do anything about it, was indescribable."

But Spurs Coach Doug Moe, knowing what Silas could do when healthy, stuck with him.

Silas started this season on the Spurs' bench, but the team got out of the gate slowly. San Antonio didn't start winning until Silas replaced Mike Gale in the starting backcourt alongside NBA scoring champion George Gervin.

"We complement each other," said Gervin, who also had 30 points against Chicago but fouled out with three minutes left in overtime and the Bulls leading 108-106. "If we are not the best guard tandem in basketball, I don't know who is."

In other NBA games Tuesday night, Portland defeated Denver 82-76, Washington beat Atlanta 109-105, San Diego trimmed Milwaukee 117-113 and Los Angeles topped New Jersey 127-108.

San Antonio erased a 100-88 deficit with 6:45 left, Gervin sending the game into overtime on a 30-foot jumper with 50 seconds to go that tied the score at 104.

After Gervin fouled out in overtime, Silas took command. He tied the game with a 20-footer and drew a charging foul from Reggie Theus. After Mike Green hit a driving layup with 1:15 remaining, Silas drew another charging foul from Theus, then sank two free throws with six seconds left to clinch the victory.

Chicago, which has lost eight of nine, got 27 points from Artis Gilmore and 19 points and 23 rebounds from Mark Landsberger.

Pacers 112, Rockets 106

Indiana won its fourth in a row behind 20 points and 16 assists by Ricky Sobers and 20 points by reserve Billy Knight. The Pacers led 49-28 midway through the second period, saw Houston come within four in the fourth quarter but held on.

Blazers 82, Nuggets 76

Rookie Mychal Thompson scored 24 points and Maurice Lucas got five in a role late in the fourth quarter as Portland beat Denver.

Denver center Dan Issel was knocked unconscious briefly when he went down in a tangle of bodies under the Portland basket with 8:35 remaining. He suffered a sprained back and neck.

Clippers 117, Bucks 113

San Diego snapped an 89-89 tie with 15 straight points to take control midway through the fourth quarter as Milwaukee lost for the 17th time in 21 road games. Randy Smith led the Clippers with 26 points while rookie Freeman Williams got 12 of his 19 points in the final period.

Marques Johnson topped the Bucks with 39 points and 12 rebounds.

Bullets 106, Hawks 105

Elvin Hayes sank three foul shots and Tom Henderson fouled in the final 79 seconds as Washington raised its Atlantic Division lead to 4½ games over Philadelphia. Hayes led the Bullets with 23 points.

Lakers 127, Nets 106

Lou Hudson hit seven of eight shots in the first half to help Los Angeles to a 63-47 lead and the Nets never threatened. Hudson finished with 22 points, and five other Lakers scored in double figures.

Farmville In Win Over CBA

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central started slow, but blasted C. B. Aycock in the second and third quarters en route to an 85-65 victory over the Falcons last night.

Aycock took the early lead, holding a 15-13 margin at the end of the first quarter, but Farmville scored 27 points each in the second and third periods to lead 67-38 going into the game's final period.

The ECC-leading Jaguars were paced by Donald Freeman's 23 points and 16 points from Calvin Horne. Aycock had a balanced attack with James Whitley scoring 18, Jeff Best with 14 and Barry Uzzell and Dave Thomas with 12 each.

Aycock won the girls' game by a 57-45 score.

The Lady Falcons led 13-6 at the end of the first quarter and 29-21 at the half. They outscored the Lady Jaguars 12-8 in the third quarter for their final victory margin.

Deborah Proctor led all scorers with 28 points for the winners, while Cherri Braswell added 13. Pam Moye had 14 and Diana Gordon 10 for Farmville.

Staubach Gets Wallet Lifted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A band of unruly youths blitzed Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach in the parking lot of the Los Angeles Coliseum after he had led his team to victory in the Pro Bowl Monday night.

Staubach said he lost "less than $50" when his attackers knocked him, his wife and son down, grabbed his wallet and ran.

They failed in their effort to take his wife's necklace.

"I chased the guy, but by the time I caught him, he'd handed it off to some other kid," Staubach said.

No one was hurt, and Staubach said someone found his wallet and returned it to him, with nothing missing but the money, before he and his family returned Tuesday to Dallas.

"I gave the kid who found my wallet on the street a reward. It was more than the amount I lost. It just goes to show there are good people too," he said.

He was holding his son, Jeff, and had just leaned into a car to put the child on the seat when he felt his wallet being taken, he said.

Farmville In Win Over CBA

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central started slow, but blasted C. B. Aycock in the second and third quarters en route to an 85-65 victory over the Falcons last night.

Aycock took the early lead, holding a 15-13 margin at the end of the first quarter, but Farmville scored 27 points each in the second and third periods to lead 67-38 going into the game's final period.

The ECC-leading Jaguars were paced by Donald Freeman's 23 points and 16 points from Calvin Horne. Aycock had a balanced attack with James Whitley scoring 18, Jeff Best with 14 and Barry Uzzell and Dave Thomas with 12 each.

Aycock won the girls' game by a 57-45 score.

The Lady Falcons led 13-6 at the end of the first quarter and 29-21 at the half. They outscored the Lady Jaguars 12-8 in the third quarter for their final victory margin.

Deborah Proctor led all scorers with 28 points for the winners, while Cherri Braswell added 13. Pam Moye had 14 and Diana Gordon 10 for Farmville.

"There's no one outstanding scorer, but we've got good people at every position." This is one reason the Jaguars have been successful this season, Terrell noted. Another is the squad's hustle and determination.

"These guys don't like to get beat," he said. "We have come from behind in several games to win."

Naturally, the Jags are hoping they won't have to come from behind Friday night. If they do fall back, it will take all the hustle and determination they can muster to rally against the Hawks on their home court.

At the start of a new year, many photo hobbyists resolve to become better photographers and some even toy with the idea of turning to freelance photography.

I asked one of this country's most successful freelance photographers, Walter Chandoha, for his views on the subject. Well-known animal and nature photographer, lecturer and author, here's Chandoha:

A freelance photographer hasn't a worry in the world — right? He sets his own hours. He has no boss. He works only when inspired and when the subject moves him. He travels all over the world making pictures in exotic places. And he makes big bucks!

All of the above is true — for some freelancers. But there are very few that have this idyllic set-up, and they reached that plateau only after many years of hard work. The vast majority of freelancers have a lot of worries — mostly about getting work and about paying bills.

As a freelance photographer for over 25 years, I'm often asked by photo hobbyists for the magic formula for successful freelancing. They hear it pays well and they can make lots of money.

"How can I do it?" they ask. Actually, there is a magic formula but before I give it to them, I have to do some probing. Do they really like to take pictures? Do they take pictures ALL the time? Do they THINK and SEE pictures everywhere they go? Would they rather take pictures than do anything else in the world?

Then I put it point blank: "Would you be willing, initially, to work 80 hours a week, seven days a week, get no paid holidays, no vacation pay, no sick leave or sick pay, no hospitalization, no retirement or pension plan?"

Then, if you were the aspiring freelancer, I would ask about your photographic experience.

With today's sophisticated cameras, equipment and films, and with excellent custom processing labs, it isn't difficult for an amateur to make outstanding photographs.

But if you make occasional superior photographs of subject of your own choice and at your own convenience, does that mean you're ready to compete in a field where many talented professionals are struggling to survive?

There's a big difference in making pictures you like when you like — and making pictures a client wants delivered when he wants them. The business of meeting deadlines with acceptable photographs under all circumstances should deter hobbyists. But it doesn't and it won't.

FREELANCE PHOTOGRAPHY can be an all-season, all weather job. Instead of the comfort of home on a wintry night, Walter Chandoha went out into the snow to make available this combination light-and-flash shot. It's part of his freelance stock file of pictures depicting all phases of weather.

The next point of discussion is about marketing of photographs. Being a competent photographer who can make good photographs consistently is only the tip of the iceberg.

What are you going to do with those superb photographs you've made? One or two sales to a greeting card or calendar company won't pay all the bills that keep recurring every month. What you don't see of the iceberg — the submerged three-fourths of it — is that part of photography that makes the big difference in successful freelancing: the marketing.

I taught a course last summer in New York entitled: "Marketing Freelance Photography" and was amazed at how little some very competent students knew about the subject.

The premise of the course was that at its conclusion in 10 weeks each student would have made a sale of at least one photograph or a photo story as a result of class assignments. It was gratifying at the session's end that some of the students had made sales and others were pending.

Throughout the course I repeated the magic formula for succeeding in freelance photography. The formula? It's very simple:

Keep learning and work hard. In order to work, the magic formula depends on the photographer. He must keep on learning. Even with today's easy-to-operate equipment, there's a lot to learn about photography and the creative process. A sharp, well-exposed picture or transparency is not necessarily saleable. That's why you have to think pictures — not only about making them but where to sell them. You have to be aware of potential markets.

You keep learning by reading anything and everything about photography — in newspapers, magazines and in books. Attend seminars, lectures and classes. Be aware of other creative art forms: movies, TV, the theater, dance and music. Learn composition by studying the classic art of the old masters.

Work hard. In any creative process, those who have succeeded have been prodigious producers. In photography, as with all creative arts, you can only learn and grow by actually doing. To succeed you must make pictures, lots and lots of pictures. It isn't a 9-to-5 job. Get up at dawn, shoot at night, get out in the rain, freeze a little in a blizzard. Give yourself assignments with tight deadlines. The more pictures you shoot, the more you'll learn; and the more you learn, the more you'll earn.

The magic formula isn't easy, convenient nor does it come with ready-made shortcuts. But it works. Keep learning and work hard.

Are you willing to tackle it? All I can add is that Walter Chandoha practices what he preaches.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Children on stamps are one of the most popular subjects in philately. Collectors who specialize in this topic will be glad to know about several new issues featuring youngsters at play. Children's games are featured on a new set of semi-postals from the Netherlands Antilles. These stamps are being issued to hail the silver jubilee of the Antilles Youth Care Federation. The surcharge on the semi-postals goes to support the affiliated institutions in the field of youth care.

The Netherlands Antilles in the Caribbean consist of the Leeward Islands, Aruba, Bo-

Would Allow A Vote For None

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — "None Of The Above" ought to be last choice on the South Dakota ballot in 1980, a state senator says.

Sen. Don Frankenfeld, R-Rapid City, says people should be able to vote for a blank space if they don't like any of the candidates. "Voters often feel they are given a choice between Tweedledum and Tweedledee," Frankenfeld said.

He has introduced a bill requiring the number of votes for "none of the above" to be tallied and published with the official election results.

"In fact, the winner of a race may find out he might be only slightly less distasteful than his opponent..." Frankenfeld said.

He couldn't get any other lawmakers to put their names on the bill. "I think they're afraid it might cause them some embarrassment," he said.

naire, Curacao and the Windward Islands. Another Dutch possession, Surinam, has issued semi-postals on behalf of its children's charitable organizations. According to the World Wide Philatelic Agency, this set of five stamps is the latest in the Annual Children's Charity series. Four of the adhesives depict silhouettes of a cat in a playful position. The lowest value bears a silhouette of a child's head superimposed on a cat.

Continuing on children's themes, Norway has issued a set of three stamps illustrating antique toys from the collections of the Norwegian Folk Museum. The 80-ore shows a wooden doll in a costume of the 1830s. The 100-ore depicts a toy town, made in 1896 as a gift to a 4-year-old child. The 125-ore stamp features a wooden horse. All the stamps are multi-colored on phosphorescent paper.

Austria's 1979 stamp schedule has many interesting commemoratives. Some on the agenda include the following: 1979 International Year of the Child, European Championship for Air Rifle and Air Pistol, Figure Skating World Championships, 200 years of education for the deaf, 50th Vienna International Ladies Fashion Week, and one special stamp on the prevention of water pollution. Also on the Austrian agenda is a special stamp "Vienna Invites You To The International Philatelic Exhibition — WIPA 1981."

Did you ever hear of a "Squareograph"? It's a luxury item for collectors who want to design their own album pages. The Squareograph looks like a draftsman's table, but somewhat smaller. A sliding T-square has markings in inches and centimeters. The price is $79.95.

However, one can obtain the same results with a precision stamp-mounting guide, the "Stamplacer" which can be purchased at your local stamp dealer for $1.

FROM THE MAIL BAG: To Mr. M.W. Wisenberg of Alpine, Texas: you can evaluate the present prices of those stamps by checking either the Scott or Minkus catalogues. If you do not have such a catalogue, you should be able to find one in your local library... To Mrs. Emily Godino of Staten Island, N.Y.: the U.S. issued a commemorative stamp May 20, 1977, to honor the 50th anniversary of the solo transatlantic flight by Charles Lindbergh. The design featured the plane flying over the ocean. Many other countries issued stamps hailing this memorable occasion and in tribute to Lindbergh.

Unanswered Questions On Future China Trade

By ROBERT CRABBE
PEKING (UPI) — President Carter's decision to normalize relations with China has given American business a potential role in helping — for a price — to modernize China's lagging economy.

But it won't be easy or automatic.

Now that the time has come for trading with China, a whole Pandora's box of unanswered questions has been opened.

One is how will China pay for the expensive industrial equipment and know-how she wants from the United States and Western Europe, along with advanced military equipment?

Another is whether China's new leaders can stay together and keep the country on course in their ambitious modernization program? China's past lunge toward economic progress often have been interrupted by political strife.

A third question is whether China can qualify for most favored nation status, in its trade with the United States, which would open the way to loans guaranteed by the U.S. export import bank.

Carter infuriated American conservatives by playing the China card. They resent his breaking diplomatic ties with the anticommunist Chinese government on Taiwan.

Led by Senator Barry Goldwater, the conservatives can marshal a formidable number of votes in the Senate to oppose the treaties and agreements needed to develop the U.S.-China commercial relationship fully.

A lot will depend on how skillful Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and other leaders prove in cultivating American public opinion. Carter switched recognition to Peking with the understanding that China would not use force to unite Taiwan with the mainland.

Even senators like Gary Hart, D-Colo., who favored Carter's decision, say that if Taiwan's safety is threatened, it would be difficult to get the needed legislation through the Senate.

China has already signed a $1 billion protocol contract with United States Steel to develop iron ore mines near the Anshan steel complex in Manchuria. A similar agreement has been reached with Bethlehem Steel to triple the output of the iron ore pits in Hopei province that feed the mills of Peking's Capital Steel Co.

Intercontinental Hotels, a subsidiary of Pan-American, has agreed to build 1,000 room hotels in five major Chinese cities including Peking and Shanghai. By the time they are ready, Pan-Am expects to be flying American tourists to them.

American reporters who questioned vice Premier Teng, mastermind of the modernization program, on how all this was to be paid for, found him vague. He said China is now prepared to discard its past policy of not borrowing money from foreign banks, and mentioned "compensatory trade" — presumably meaning payment in Chinese raw materials.

Barter makes sense in the relationship China is forging with Japan, the country certain to be its largest foreign trade partner for years to come.

A workshop country bereft of fuel and raw materials, Japan can readily swap its industrial know-how for Chinese coal, oil and ores.

America is different. It is self-sufficient in coal, and produces half of its own oil. Its petroleum refiners prefer the crude oil of the Middle East to Chinese oil which is heavy with wax and other impurities.

American economic diplomats guess China has no more than $2 billion or $3 billion in foreign currency reserves, compared to close to $30 billion for Japan.

Major American banks, like Chase Manhattan, which have been exploring the ground in Peking for years, may play a role in the financing, but the Chinese somewhere must make enough money to pay back such loans.

Despite rumors of rivalry between Teng and Premier Hua Kuo-feng, U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock, who heads the American Liaison office in Peking, doubts that China will have another power showdown at the top level in its Communist Party.

"Soon after I came here, I came to the conclusion that there was not going to be a power confrontation between Hua Kuo-feng and Teng Hsiao-ping," Woodcock says. "China has been to the verge of civil war and there are deep trends here that go beyond personalities."

"It is clear that this policy of modernization has strong support among the Chinese people," Woodcock said. "I don't look for any wild swings such as have taken place in the immediate past history of China."

Carter's policy is certain to be challenged as soon as it comes to any issue that needs Senate approval. One could be confirmation of an Ambassador when the Liaison Office turns into a fully fledged Embassy on

Record Volume In PCA Loans

F. L. Little Jr., president of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association, reported that the PCA reached a record high loan volume of $55,512,000 during 1978 to meet the needs of 1,464 farmers, growers, ranchers, and commercial fishermen for operating and capital investment credit on an intermediate term basis.

The Pitt-Greene PCA, he noted, is one of 58 PCA's providing credit service to nearly 62,000 farmers, growers, ranchers and commercial fishermen in North Carolina.

South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. On Dec. 31, he added, the 58 associations had over $1.7 billion outstanding.

Little said the Pitt-Greene PCA, with home offices in Greenville and a branch office in Snow Hill, is a farmer owned and operated credit cooperative serving the credit needs of farmers and their families in the two counties.

At year end, he added, assets of the association had increased to $59,175,758 from $52,217,692 at the end of 1977. Net worth totaled $9,099,480, an increase of 15 percent over 1977.

Since organization in 1934, Little said the association has extended $280,000,000 in credit and now has $38,552,400 in member loans and $9,127,476 in net worth.

Officers and directors include: David Harold Smith, chairman; James E. Manning, vice chairman; Wayne K. Stokes, T. Weldon Singleton, and Arthur Roscoe Barnhill, directors; Alton Gardner, director emeritus; Little, president; and Arnold B. Parris, vice president. Allen B. Hardy is branch office manager.

THE GAP REMAINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says a special U.S. peace mission to the Mideast was "useful in clarifying the thinking of the parties" but failed to narrow the gap between Israel and Egypt.

Sees Adopting Nat'l Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy still hopes a national health insurance plan will be passed by Congress in 1980, according to his projections on a television show for the aging.

"A two-year tuning up of the program would follow," the Massachusetts lawmaker told Hugh Downs, host of the PBS-TV series "Over Easy."

"There's always a reluctance to change or make adjustments," the senator said. "Look at Social Security and Medicare. Some factions fought those programs tooth and nail. As for Medicare, it's difficult to find a doctor who's opposed to it. Once we pass a national health plan, I expect the same attitude to prevail."

Salt Cod Goes Around World

MYSTIC SEAPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Many a rib-sticking winter meal began with salt cod in the 19th century. Salting and drying fish was the only way to preserve the catch for long periods of time.

Today the same philosophy prevails in the many parts of the world where refrigeration is beyond the reach of the average family. Salt cod, caught on the Grand Banks, dried stiff as a board and layered in wooden boxes, are shipped around the globe, to be purchased in native markets or small shops in places as varied as Nova Scotia, Portugal, the Cape Verde Islands, the West Indies, South Africa and Tonga.

Roller Disco Makes It Big Where Young Have Fun

By FRED T. FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — To do all this careening around risking life and limb on roller skates in a posh disco, a party of socialites wore cocktail dresses and tuxedos.

Among others were two men in matching lavender jumpsuits. And a man in a Superman cape.

More practical for disco dancing on wheels — they call it roller disco — were Erica Martell, 23, a Manhattan jewelry designer, in black leotard, velvet sweat pants and Bette Midler hairdo, and Holly Ferguson, 25, of Newport Beach, Calif., in brown checked overalls. She called her style "haphazard."

The self-conscious, like Neil Terk, Holly's date, settled for jeans just like many of the less trendy folk who seemed to have more fun a lot cheaper in a roller rink in Greenwich Village.

But to be in with the "in" crowd uptown, where dress seemed all important, Candee Rogow wore $25 black Lycra slacks with sequined tux stripe, $45 black blouse with flamboyant red sequin design, and $130 indoor-outdoor skates she bought that morning at a new roller disco boutique in Macy's. We don't know what she paid for her maribou and rhinestone trimmed socks.

"It's the first time I've skated since I was 10," she said.

The same goes for this reporter, experiencing his first venture into the exotic world of roller disco and outlandish in trusty blue blazer, grey flannels. The flannels got ripped on the fourth fall.

While it lasted at the disco, all this colorful garb was nothing compared with the lighting — or noise.

When an $80,000, 36-speaker system blares, people don't talk. This makes interviewing difficult.

Taking notes is worse in what is claimed to be "the most powerful laser lighting system in the entertainment industry."

Still, one remembers. Like trying to get up off the floor amid dervishlike dancers on wheels whirling at 20 mph. You get put down again a lot.

"Isn't this fun?" she shouted. "Get with it. Move with the beat."

I tried. A leg went one way, the other the other. The rest of me took off in different directions.

Gloria glided off with a precocious photographer. The reporter, staggeringly got to work and sought out another neophyte.

Melanie Shorin, 23, in blue blazer, beige skirt, was tottering along. Told my purpose, she shouted an apology, then grabbed my shoulders to remain upright.

"Can't help you... Reporter, too... Doing... same... story..."

Site of the calamitous disco event was Xenon, ordinarily just another Manhattan disco where exclusivity is ostentatious. From would-be customers clustered outside, burlap attendants choose those to be admitted through the red velvet entrance ropes.

The chosen are allowed to pay $12 to get in. An annual membership — $150 to $350, escalating according to age — assures being chosen and gets you in for $10. Drinks start at $3.

Owner Howard Stein, sipping champagne in his office, said he got into the roller disco gambit "to give a very fickle and bored elitist New York audience another diversion."

The "elitists" got bored quick.

Shortly after our visit, Xenon went back to just plain old disco, leaving the roller field to less expensive competitors, like Village Skating just off Washington Square in Greenwich Village.

By this time Gloria was enamored of the fad and at Village Skating we risked life and limb again. None of the laser lighting or super amplifiers in this basement emporium in a former warehouse where scores of less status-conscious young people filled the hall in a scene reminiscent of a Toulouse Lautrec painting. It's where the clerks, writers, artists, secretaries and construction workers go.

Here were teen-agers and young adults hustling like mad on skates — and doing it well. In addition to those in jeans, some were shirtless in overalls. Others wore athletic shorts and T-shirts. Dramatic costumes were few.

You could talk above the heavy beat disco music and the lights were such that you could still see where you were going and practice your skill — or try to develop some. We fell less and even tried to skate backwards.

The young people were delighted to give us some tips and the employees were pleasant and quick with advice and assistance.

"Aren't the personnel nice?" said Gloria. "Much less snooty."

Unlike the disco, the place was boozeless. It also was highly affordable — $4 admission; $1 for rather battered skates.

For that, you also got entertainment — a volunteered performance by three young couples who call their group The Villagers and dance on skates with more dynamic exuberance than some of the professionals Xenon had on hand to show how it all should be done.

Owner Dick Clammar, who opened the place a year ago to give his kids and others in the neighborhood a place to go, said it was tough sledding at first. "If we had 15 skaters on a weekend, it would be good." Now, he said, the crowd filling his small floor showed how roller disco has caught on.

Back at Xenon, however, Linda Fudge, 26, and her husband, Gary, 23, a professional skating team, were exceptional in grace and style. Linda said at the time that roller disco is coming in around the country but mostly at less costly roller rinks like Clammar's.

The Fudges have demonstrated roller disco from Chicago to Grandview, Mo., and Otumwa, Iowa. Mostly, Linda said, it is giving new life to the rinks.

"We demonstrated it at a rink owners' convention in Kansas City in October. They were all enthusiastic and are getting into it."

"Until a month ago, I hadn't skated in 30 years," admitted actress Polly Bergen, a bit breathless. "Then I started at a rink outside Los Angeles that a group of actors, writers and producers rent on Monday nights. I love it."

Judy Lynn, who with her partner, Bob White, operate a skate rental concession in Central Park, said roller disco had its origin on the sidewalks of Venice, Calif., and at Brooklyn's Empire Roller-drome.

"It's really very easy," said Linda. "Anyone can do it."

On hand to prove it were her father and mother, Frank and Madelyne, both in their '70s. They had been skating two months because, Frank said, "I gotta support my daughter, you know."

If the elder Lynns' disco was sedate, the "Disco Dip," slide and dip.

The reporter tried to emulate it. That was his third fall. The fourth was when he went up an incline to the bar and volunteered to carry his date's drink back down to the floor. On both occasions, there was a problem with stopping when once by the dance floor.

Former Steelworker Runs Company

By THOMAS J. RIZZO
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A hardhat and a T-shirt stained with perspiration would probably be as comfortable as John H. McConnell as the conservative dark gray suit he wears.

A former steelworker from the Weirton, W.Va. area, McConnell now sits at the controls of Worthington Industries Inc., as chairman and chief operating officer.

Worthington Industries is the McDonald's of the steel processing industry. For the last six years, Financial World Magazine has ranked Worthington Industries as one of the top 15 growth companies. (The only other company with as enviable a record is the McDonald's hamburger chain).

Based on the most recently released Fortune magazine list of the 1,000 largest industrial companies, Worthington Industries ranked 826th in sales, 54th in return on shareholders equity and 29th in earnings per share growth over the past 10-year period.

Every year since going public in 1968, the company's common stock has registered record highs. An investor who had the foresight to buy 1,000 shares of the company for $7.50 then would now hold common stock worth nearly $150,000.

The bread-and-butter business of Worthington Industries is the production of customized close-tolerance steel by The Worthington Steel Co. Nearly every major industry is represented in the company's 1,000-name client list.

"I started Worthington Steel in 1955 with a $600 loan on my car," McConnell said. He ran the company out of a file cabinet from the small apartment in which he lived.

In 1959, McConnell bought two acres of farmland just outside Columbus for a 16,000-square-foot building. Since then, The Worthington Steel Co. has bought or built plant facilities in Louisville, Ky.; Chicago, Ill.; Charlotte, N.C.; Detroit; Monroe, Ohio and Baltimore, Md.

"I suppose we could be considered a small conglomerate," McConnell said.

Worthington Steel accounts for more than 80 percent of the corporation's revenues.

"Our long-range goal is to lower that to 50 percent as we add new products," he said.

The corporation appears to be well on its way to fulfilling the goal.

Aggressive but shrewd diversification has created Worthington Cylinders, which manufactures steel and aluminum pressure cylinders for the liquid petroleum and refrigerant gas industries, and U-Brand Corp., which produces malleable iron, steel and plastic fittings for the plumbing, hardware and industrial markets from its Ashland, Ohio plant.

"We've also acquired a financial interest in Advanced Coating Technology Inc.," McConnell added, "which manufactures and markets reflective architectural glass." Advanced Coating recently completed construction of a 58,000-square-foot plant in Franklin, Tenn.

Last summer, Worthington Industries formed a company in Zanesville called Fluidcircuits, Inc., which will manufacture what it bills as revolutionary hydraulic control devices.

Industry executives have their own ideas about why Worthington Industries has achieved such success in a field not noted for spectacular growth.

Many point to the corporation's opportunity-minded management.

Others credit the corporation's success to its technical and marketing expertise.

The real key to its performance, however, seems to rest with the company's employee motivation program.

The motivation, simply, is money; everyone shares in the company's profits.

"No one here works on an hourly basis," McConnell explained. "Each employee receives a salary. And nobody is docked for a day off if they're sick. Since a large portion of an employee's salary is determined by profit sharing, anyone who happens to be off affects the paycheck of his or her fellow employees."

As a result, absenteeism is minimal. McConnell challenges any other company to match his company's rate of absenteeism.

Worthington Industries employs 1,700 persons. Nearly 70 percent of them — or 1,200 — are non-union. (The 500 who are unionized are located at the U-Brand subsidiary).

"We've had four elections to turn this into a union shop, but the employees have rejected the efforts all four times," said a company spokesman.

Under the unique compensation plan, all non-unionized workers are enrolled in the company's cash profit sharing plan as well as deferred profit sharing.

Every quarter, employees receive a percentage of Worthington's pre-tax profits.

"This isn't a token payment," McConnell emphasized. "Up to 50 percent of what production workers are compensated annually can come from the cash bonuses."

For members of management, the figure may be closer to 75 percent.

There are no set times for coffee breaks at Worthington Industries. The company provides free coffee, available at any time of the day.

Among the other unique benefits provided by the company is a fulltime barber so employees can get haircuts during the day.

"Since hair grows on the job," explained a balding McConnell, "an employee should be able to get it cut while on the job."

Job Interview Before Camera

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The senior marketing major had just completed his first job interview — on camera.

Blair Shwedo gave a short laugh and shook his head. The camera had caught all his gestures, and Shwedo was watching the playback on the videotape screen.

It wasn't for real, but counselors at the University of North Carolina's placement center were trying to get Shwedo ready for the real thing.

For the past year, the placement center has offered to videotape mock interviews, giving the student the opportunity to see himself as a recruiter might.

Pat Carpenter, one of the counselors, pressed a button, freezing the action on the screen.

"Try to get more specific about your skills here," she told Shwedo.

After carefully dissecting and discussing the 15-minute mock interview, Ms. Carpenter congratulated Shwedo, who is from Reidsville, on excellent eye contact and urged him to take job interviews with a sense of humor.

During the fall semester, a dozen or fewer students took advantage of the videotape program, Ms. Carpenter said. But three signed up the first day they were offered during the spring semester, she said.

Ms. Carpenter said she has found that most students tend to underrate themselves and their marketable skills. "Students sell themselves short. They gain a lot out of the college experience that they don't realize," she said.

Mock interviews help students learn what to expect when the real thing comes and perhaps cut down on the butterflies-in-the-stomach feeling, she said.

No 'Punitive' Act Intended

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The president of the Baptist State Convention's higher education council says that Tuesday's vote to place in escrow funds earmarked for Wake Forest University should not be interpreted as a punitive measure.

The executive committee of the convention voted unanimously to place the funds in escrow and to retain legal counsel to help resolve the issue of its control over the university.

The executive committee action was submitted to the General Board today for final action.

The Rev. Frank Campbell of Statesville, president of the higher-education council, said the council and Wake Forest's Board of Trustees would continue working toward a mutually acceptable settlement.

"Even in the best of families, you have to sit down and air your disagreements," Campbell said. "We must convey that we are not adversaries, we are not enemies..."

The controversy arose over a September 1978 charter revision by the Wake Forest University Board of Trustees and further action by the board in December that established more independence in the selection of the university's trustees.

The board eliminated requirements that trustees be elected by the convention, that trustees be North Carolina Baptists and that the university remain an agency of the convention.

The board acted on legal advice that said the university gave the Baptist convention the right to appoint trustees in 1927 and that they could withdraw that delegation of authority.

In introducing the recommendations, Campbell said, "Not to take any action at this time would be the worst thing the committee could do. We have some doubts about escrowing the money."

The money and interest will remain in a savings account to be released upon an agreement between the trustees and the convention.

"We believe Wake Forest wants to work within Baptist State Convention guidelines," Campbell said.

James Mason of Laurinburg, chairman of the board of trustees of Wake Forest, said he regretted the action of the Baptist agency but that he was not surprised by it.

"Money never has been the issue," Mason said in a telephone interview from his home.

"The heart of the decision made by the trustees in December was the quality of education at Wake Forest, freedom of the faculty to teach and do research, and the autonomy of the board of trustees."

"This may provide a stimulus for those trustees and others entrusted with a duty to run the university to make sure that the university is not harmed," he said.

RECOVERING — Sen. Herman Talmadge, hospitalized in Long Beach, California for treatment of exhaustion and alcohol abuse, could be out of the hospital in less than the four or five weeks originally planned by doctors. "His attitude is excellent and he's doing just great", a Talmadge press aid says. (AP Laserphoto)

Risks In Wood Home Heating

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Safety engineer Dale Baker says wood furniture or other combustible materials too close to a wood-burning stove are like a time bomb waiting for the next hot fire to go off.

It's true of fireplaces, too, Baker said in an interview. "If you install a stove in the fireplace, you need to protect the (wood) mantel from radiant heat."

Wood too close to heat dries out and can catch fire from spontaneous combustion.

Chimney fires are another old-fashioned hazard making a comeback, now that many people are trying to save money by heating with wood. Baker says the trend is not just a phenomenon of the northern states.

"An awful lot of people, even as far south as northern Georgia and the lower Midwest, are installing wood-burning stoves to supplement furnace heating," he said.

Baker is a Cornell University Cooperative Extension Service safety engineer who travels throughout New York State to conduct public workshops.

He said the questions he hears most often concern economy and choosing, installing and maintaining a wood-burning stove or furnace system.

Figuring out the economics may be the hardest part. He estimated heating with electricity costs two and a half to three times as much as heating with natural gas and about one and a half times as much as heating with wood.

Baker's figures are based on fuel rates and wood prices (about $65 a cord) in the Ithaca area. He said they're about the same in all colder parts of the 48 contiguous states.

"You can pay $200-$700 for a stove, $200-$500 to add a chimney to the house. If you have wood available, once you've made those investments, you're in good shape."

Baker said an airtight stove installed in a basement family room, for example, will do a great job of heating that room and can even help heat other rooms if you install a fan to circulate the hot air or cut floor registers to spread the heat to other rooms.

For whole-house heating, he said a wood-burning furnace or a hot water system with baseboard heaters will cost between $1,000-$2,000.

He said a wood-burning furnace is an excellent alternative for people with an adequate supply of wood, but an expensive luxury for others. Compared with stoves, fireplaces also are very inefficient, he said.

"If you leave the (fireplace) damper open as long as the fire dies down, you may lose all that heat, plus some generated by your natural gas, oil or electrical heating system."

But you "can raise the efficiency of a fireplace from zero to, say, 40 percent" by installing in it a stove designed just for that purpose.

Even stoves' efficiency varies. Baker said airtight models are 40-50 percent fuel efficient, compared with Franklin types, which may be only 25-30 percent fuel efficient.

Any wood-burning unit causes a creosote problem, he said. Creosote is a naturally occurring by-product of burning wood that leaves a deposit on the inside of chimneys that can eventually block the chimney. Even before that happens, Baker said, a very hot fire can ignite the build-up and set the house afire by migrating into the rafters and surrounding walls and studs.

For prevention, he recommends monthly cleaning. He said chimney sweeps are listed in some telephone company Yellow Pages, or you can do the job yourself, using a wire brush shaped to fit the chimney. Brushes are sold by stove dealers.

If your stove has a clean-up door, he said, you can check the condition of the chimney by placing a hand mirror inside. "You should be able to see the light of day clearly," Baker said. "If you see large, rough surfaces on the wall of the chimney, it's time to clean."

An estimated 1,000 different kinds of stoves are available in the United States, he said. Some radiate heat and others circulate it. He said the latter provide a gentle flow of warm air that moves through the room. Radiant heat stoves are like a campfire or a fireplace — your face will be warm when your back is cold.

Despite all the talk about economy, Baker says, "The most important factor is appearance, not efficiency, because you're going to see the stove 12 months a year."

"Anyway, the efficiency of most airtight stoves is about the same," he added, and most people will sacrifice efficiency with an airtight stove to keep a fire going all night or the temperature in a room even.

And sometimes insulation and caulking may be a better long-term investment than a wood stove and proper chimney installation, he said.

SHP Troop A Counts Reduction In Fatalities

Highway Patrol Troop A, which includes the 23 northeastern North Carolina counties, had a significant reduction in fatalities in 1978 as compared to 1977, according to troop commander Capt. Carl Gilchrist.

"There were 12 fewer fatalities listed last year," or a seven per cent decrease, Gilchrist said.

Troop A, with headquarters in Greenville, has 143 working troopers. The captain said the patrolmen spend 147,201 hours patrolling, not including time spent in court, on accident investigations, or special assignments.

Some 8,322 accidents were investigated in the troop, he said, while 7,087 drivers were arrested for driving under the influence during 1978, a 32 per cent increase over 1977 — an average of 53 per man.

Gilchrist said 49,824 drivers were charged with speeding violations during 1978, while 43,137 warning tickets were issued by the 143 patrolmen.

The troop commander pointed out that the increase in driving drunk charges, "does not necessarily mean that more people are committing this offense...only that more were detected."

Gilchrist explained, "This was partially due to a special overtime program," funded by a grant from the Governor's Highway Safety Program. "A trooper," he said, "could voluntarily work an extra eight-hour shift per week — 48 hours instead of 40 — and receive pay at a rate of time and a half his regular salary for the additional eight hours."

Gilchrist said patrolmen participating in this program, "directed their efforts toward speeders and drunken drivers. Their off-the-road time, such as court or office time, was kept to a minimum."

The efforts of the Patrol, Gilchrist said, "were augmented by the cooperation of the majority of the motoring public," and the public he emphasized, "is deserving a strong 'thank you' from the Patrol."

"The true problem driver," Gilchrist said, "makes up, 'a very small part of our motoring public," although they are not the only ones that are killed or maimed by their unsafe actions.

"We know that the cooperation of everyone who uses our streets and highways is needed if we are to continue to show an improvement in our accident picture," Gilchrist said, urging drivers to, "help make 1979 an even better year than 1978."

Tax Take Up

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County totaled $266,610 for December, according to figures reported by Mark G. Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

The December totals compared to $263,838 reported for November and $229,588 recorded in Pitt County during October.

Net collections for October, November and December in several neighboring counties included: Beaufort, $109,911, $96,199, $116,391; Edgecombe, $122,498, $130,173, $117,088; Greene, $13,119, $14,506, $17,593; Lenoir, $174,296, $174,762, $170,104; Martin, $51,277, $59,793, $54,013; and Wilson, $206,330, $207,928, and $192,515.

Total collections for December in the 97 participating counties amounted to $15,365,646, Lynch reported.

February Programming Is No Accident

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You may notice a sharp, sudden increase in the quality of programs coming out of your television in February. Do not adjust the dials on your TV. There is nothing wrong with your set.

It's just "sweeps month." This is a television ratings period that has the happy effect of causing better programming than TV offers when it's not in a sweeps period, which is most of the time.

This is what happens in a sweeps period: The two major ratings services, the A.C. Nielsen Co. and Arbitron, measure viewers of local stations in the nation's major markets. The local stations set their advertising rates on these ratings, and the rates stay there until the next sweeps period.

Network programs are rated

every day, but a network wants its affiliated local stations to do well because it owns some of them and because it wants the stations it doesn't own to remain affiliated.

So, to help the local stations, the networks pull out their best programs during this sweeps period, plus some new midseason series. The month of February offers some of the best commercial television in memory.

On Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 3-4, NBC offers the last five hours of "Centennial," the fine television rendering of James Michener's saga of the American West. Against Sunday's "Centennial," CBS checks in with the television premier of "Rocky," the popular, Oscar-winning story of a pug boxer's grab at the top.

Then comes Black Sunday, Feb. 11, when counter-programming and sweeps month collide. NBC airs "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," CBS plans the first half of "Gone with the Wind" and ABC offers its made-for-TV life of a rock king, "Elvis." Viewers choose and lose.

On Monday, Feb. 12, NBC puts the third episode of the fine, "Backstairs at the White House" against the conclusion of CBS' "Gone with the Wind." On Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, NBC lets loose the first two-hour episode of its "From Here to Eternity," a steamy made-for-TV version of the James Jones classic novel. This is the first story in the network's "Novels for Television" sequence.

Sunday the 18th, unfortunately, presents another night of choice-making. ABC delivers the first episode of its seven-night "Roots: The Next Generations," the follow-up miniseries to Alex Haley's epochal "Roots." Against "Roots," NBC is offering the television debut of the feature film, "American Graffiti" and CBS airs "Marathon Man" with Dustin Hoffman.

Through the week, NBC offers as sacrifice to "Roots II" episodes of "Backstairs at the White House" and "From Here to Eternity" as well as the movie "The Eagle Has Landed." CBS wisely sticks to regular programming here.

Then on Sunday, Feb. 25, the final major confrontation of sweeps month is set. ABC gives us the last night of "Roots II," and NBC counters with the full length version of "The Sound of Music," one of the most popular movies of all time.

In all, a swell month for staying home nights. Wonder if those ratings services could be talked into conducting a "sweeps year?"

Nielsen Ratings Race Again Paced By ABC

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC listed six of the week's 10 most-watched programs and ran away with the networks' ratings race for the third week in a row, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

It was another tough week for NBC — the network's top-rated program, "Little House on the Prairie," was No. 18 in the ratings. And the shows introduced by NBC at mid-season fell flat their first week out.

"Turnabout" was the best of NBC's replacements, No. 50 in the ratings, followed in order by "Brothers and Sisters" and "Hello, Larry." "Sweepstakes," another new show on NBC, was No. 59.

ABC scored with some old favorites, "Laverne and Shirley" in first place, followed by "Mork and Mindy" and "Happy Days."

CBS had the other four programs in Nielsen's Top 10, including "60 Minutes," in fourth place.

For the week, ABC posted a rating of 22.5, a full point lower than the previous week's 23.5. CBS was second at 19.2 and NBC third at 16.7. NBC has been last or tied for last 13 weeks in a row.

The networks say ABC's rating means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 22.5 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to the leader.

The rating for "Laverne and Shirley" was 32.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 32.3 percent saw at least part of the show.

President Carter's State of the Union address Tuesday, broadcast by all three commercial networks, was not rated, but analyses that followed it were. ABC's special report was ranked 44th of 63 programs checked, and CBS' was 61st. NBC resumed its movie, "Midway," that was interrupted for the address, and it finished No. 25 for the week.

With NBC's "Sweepstakes" No. 59, the bottom five included "Flying High" and the speech analysis on CBS, "Legends of the Superheroes" on NBC and "CBS Reports: Showdown in Iran."

Opening lead: Jack of ♦.

In a duplicate tournament, it might be right to jeopardize the contract for the sake of an overtrick. At rubber bridge or in team competition, this would be sheer lunacy. See what happened to South at his contract of four hearts on this deal when he made a seemingly "safe" play for an unimportant over-trick.

North had the values for a forcing jump in hearts, but since he had only three-card support for his partner's suit, he temporized with two diamonds and then gave a delayed game raise when South rebid his suit.

West led the jack of diamonds and declarer rightly spurned the finesse. He won the ace, led a heart to his queen and continued with a heart to the ace. On this trick he received the bad news that he had a trump loser as East discarded a club. Declarer cashed the king of hearts and, leaving West with the master trump, ran the eight of diamonds to East's king.

East shifted to the queen of spades. Declarer won the king and saw no harm in trying the club finesse. This lost to East's king and back came the jack of spades. Declarer took his ace and tried to get to dummy with the ace of clubs. Unfortunately, West ruffed and the defenders took a spade trick for down one.

This unhappy tale did not end here, however. East-West rallied to capture the rubber in the next two deals, so instead of winning the rubber, South's unnecessary finesse cost his side over 1,600 points.

Once the finesse for the ten of diamonds had succeeded, the contract was there for the taking. We admit that South ran into a most unkind distribution, but his decision to finesse clubs was a needless risk.

After winning the first spade, declarer should simply have entered dummy with the ace of clubs, spurning the finesse, and discarded a spade on the queen of diamonds. Then he can surrender a club trick, and the defenders can come to no more than three tricks.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Invest in Home Entertainment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home entertainment continues to be one of the top priorities in the American way of life, according to researchers for one of the nation's leading manufacturers of television appliances.

Some 96 percent of all American homes now have at least one TV, their study shows, and in the first six months of this year RCA, developer of the selectavision video tape recorders, estimates that over 100,000 Americans have purchased these latest electronic devices that sell for almost $1,000 apiece.

Italian Answer To 'Encounters'

ROME (UPI) — Producer Lucio Ardenzi is putting together what he says is Italy's answer to "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Ardenzi's "A Martian in Rome" will star Italian comic Alberto Sordi. The Martian has yet to be cast.

"We don't know yet whether to use a giant or a dwarf, a monster or somebody handsome or even what sex it will be," says Ardenzi.

"I guess you could call the film a comedy with a futuristic slant."

HESTON ROLE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Charlton Heston will star in "Wind River," an original screenplay by the actor's 23-year-old son, Fraser. Before starting the new Columbia film, Heston will head the cast of "A Man For All Seasons" at the Los Angeles Music Center.

Lieutenant Governors Become An Ambitious Lot

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It used to be that lieutenant governors were seldom seen and never heard — a species of American politician more obscure than the vice president.

But lieutenant governors seem to be getting interested in more than keeping lookout for the approach of glaciers. In the past year something has happened to revive a number of these normally somnolent office holders.

Democratic Govs. Hugh Carey of New York and Ella Grasso of Connecticut spent four years ignoring their lieutenant governors — following a time honored tradition in their states. In 1976 they woke up to find their lieutenant governors challenging them for re-election.

Democratic Lt. Gov. Martin Schreiber of Wisconsin was just about to challenge Gov. Patrick Lucey last year when the governor — wisely, said some political observers — accepted President Carter's nomination as ambassador to Mexico. Schreiber inherited the statehouse, but lost it to Republican Lee Dreyfus in the fall election.

Democratic Govs. Julian Carroll of Kentucky and Richard Lamm of Colorado were held virtual prisoners in their states. Carroll feared that if he left Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall would call another special session of the legislature and Lamm worried about Lt. Gov. George Brown pardoning another convicted murderer.

And Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown also is looking over his shoulder in California. The voters reversed a Democratic sweep in the state to elect conservative Republican Mike Curb, 33, as lieutenant governor. It was the first time since 1894 California has elected a governor and lieutenant governor of opposite parties.

By law, Curb has the power of governor when Brown leaves the state — a fact that might give Brown second thoughts about prolonged absences running for president in 1980.

Ah, for the good old days — last year — when Gov. Robert Bennett, R-Kan., said he stationed Lt. Gov. Shelby Smith at a lookout perch in the statehouse dome where he could warn of the approach of the next glacier.

Malcolm Wilson, who spent 15 years serving under Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, used to say his main job was to clean the ashtrays in the state Senate — where he was also the presiding officer. Wilson inherited the top job when Rockefeller became vice president, but could not win it on his own when the term ended in 1974.

The new militancy among lieutenant governors is not a nationwide trend.

One of the nation's best known lieutenant governors is Chuck Robb, Lyndon Johnson's son-in-law, who has made no waves in Virginia, even though he is the highest elected Democrat in the state.

Robb seems intent on working behind the scenes to prove he has ability, not just name recognition and to strengthen his position as the leading Democratic candidate for governor in 1981.

Maryland's new Democratic Gov. Harry Hughes and Lt. Gov. Samuel W. Bogley III are getting along now, but at one point during the campaign last year Bogley said he would refuse to serve as governor if Hughes became incapacitated.

Bogley is a fervent opponent of abortion and said if he became governor he would have to carry out Hughes' pledge to provide state funds for such operations. It took a long closed door meeting with Hughes before Bogley said he would serve as governor if required.

Lt. Gov. George Brown, 52, the first black elected to that position in Colorado, was dumped by state Democratic leaders for a second term last year after four years of feuding with Gov. Richard Lamm.

Maybe the trouble started when Brown gave Lamm a check for $60 for two Superbowl tickets, and the check bounced. But that was the least of the problem. For instance:

Last November when Lamm visited his family in Florida, Brown issued an unconditional pardon to convicted murderer Sylvester Lee Garrison, 45, who had served nearly 20 years in prison for the beating death of a 79-year-old man.

Lamm subsequently cancelled two out-of-state trips so that Brown would not be acting governor again.

Lamm issued a hold on Brown's $2,083 paycheck for the month of December, although the state attorney general said it may be unconstitutional to do so. Lamm said he took the action because Brown had not worked during the month and his office budget was overspent by approximately $10,000. Brown was not available for comment, in fact he was not seen around his office for his final few weeks on the job.

In 1974, Ella Grasso became the first woman ever to be elected governor of a state without following her husband into office. Her running mate was state attorney general Robert Killian, and it was not a political marriage made in heaven.

The breakup that ensued was one of the messiest in Connecticut history. After much squabbling, Killian, announced he would become the first lieutenant governor in the state ever to challenge a sitting governor.

Among other things, Killian said Mrs. Grasso hadn't bothered to talk to him in almost a year.

At a fundraiser during the campaign, Killian approached the governor, his hand extended. The governor reciprocated with a big smile and then softly said, "You son of a bitch." After a bitter campaign, Mrs. Grasso won the state's primary by a 2-1 margin. And she won re-election in the fall.

Everyone thought Lt. Gov. Mary Ann Krupsak would run for a second term with Gov. Hugh Carey in New York last year. But on the eve of Carey's announcement that he was running, Mrs. Krupsak said the governor was "aloof ... inaccessible ... and out of touch with the people." And she added that she was challenging him in the primary.

The next day Carey flew around the state to make the traditional announcement in all New York's big cities, and Miss Krupsak was close behind holding her own news conferences. Carey won the primary easily, and she decided against an independent candidacy in the fall election.

The controversy didn't end there. When Miss Krupsak left office Jan. 1, her successor Mario Cuomo found out she had spent all the money in the lieutenant governor's budget for the rest of the year — forcing him to ask for a $175,000 emergency appropriation to last him until the fiscal year ended March 31.

The first time Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall took matters into her own hands in Kentucky it may have been a question of some careful political planning with Gov. Julian Carroll.

The issue was revision of the Equal Rights Amendment and Carroll left the state so she could veto the bill. It gave her good grades with the women's movement and gave Carroll the chance to duck the issue.

But Mrs. Stovall, with an eye on the Democratic nomination for governor in next May's primary, began to get other ideas. In November, with Carroll again absent, she called the General Assembly into special session to examine various tax and utility rate relief matters.

The next time Carroll left, Mrs. Stovall ordered an audit of the state's capital construction fund to determine whether any fat existed to finance her relief proposals.

The audit has yet to be completed, and the special session has not yet taken place, but it seems certain that more will be heard from Thelma Stovall.

Murder Is Charged Boy

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A 15-year-old youth has been charged with murder in the death last week of a 3-year-old girl and with assault on two of the girl's sisters.

Durham police declined to reveal the youth's name, but said he will appear in juvenile court Friday on the charges.

The court must decide whether the youth should be tried as a juvenile or as an adult.

Shawntia Shevell McArthur was found dead at her house after complaining of stomach pains, according to the girl's mother, Patricia McArthur, 22.

Autopsy results showed the child died from a blow to the stomach, authorities said.

The girl's twin sister, Shalethia, was reported in satisfactory condition Tuesday at Duke Medical Center, where she was being treated for stomach pains.

Another sister, Tina, 5, was taken to the medical center last week suffering from abdominal pains, but has since been released.

Detective J.L. Robinson of the Durham Police Department said the suspect was a neighbor who knew the three girls.

Charges against the youth are murder, two counts of felonious assault and three counts of misdemeanor assault, police said.

At the juvenile court hearing, the judge must decide whether the youth should be bound over to Superior Court for trial as an adult. If the judge does so, District Attorney Dan Edwards said he will submit bills of indictment at the next session of the Durham County Grand Jury.

Tree Frog (See Vol. 20)

Swings from branch to branch like a trapeze artist. Suction-cup toes keep him from falling off. His voice is more clank than croak.

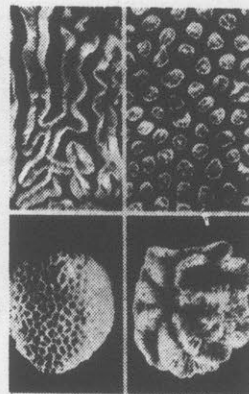

Horseshoe Bat (See Vol. 9)

Night flyer with weak eyes. Follows his horseshoe-shaped nose to food by using his ears. (Guided by the echoes of his squeaks.)

Wattlebird (See Vol. 21)

Has bell-like call and wings of a bird, but prefers to travel by foot. Hunts forest floors for meals, bounding left and right like a ping-pong ball.

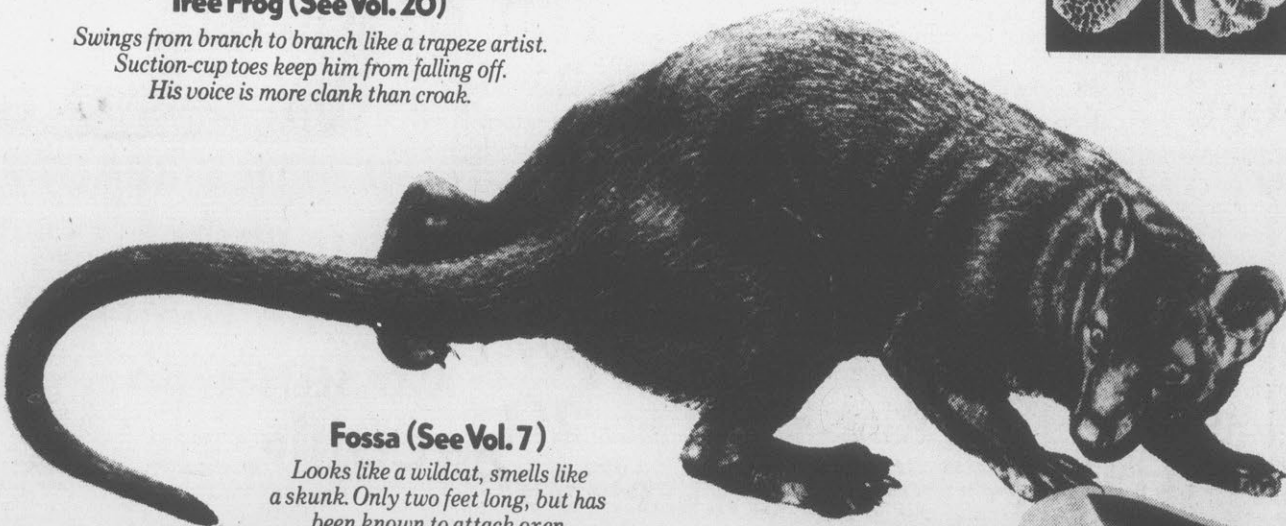

Coral (See Vol. 5)

Koala (See Vol. 10)

Loudest voice in Australia, healthiest odor. (He eats eucalyptus leaves, smells like cough drops.) Also known as bangaroo, koolewong and... Teddy Bear.

Fossa (See Vol. 7)

Universities See Enrollment Boon In Foreigners

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

Faced with sagging enrollments, more American universities are looking for new students — and their tuition — by swapping education for petrodollars from the Mideast, Africa and South America.

It is a trend that already has made a modest dent in this country's trade deficit — pumping back an estimated $900 million into the U.S. economy each year in tuition alone.

In the past five years, foreign enrollment at U.S. schools has nearly doubled, hitting over 235,000 in the 1977-78 school year. While representing only 1.8 percent of total U.S. college enrollment, the figure still makes the United States the world leader when it comes to educating foreign students.

The role of college campus to the world is expected to grow as oil-rich nations continue to send their people here for training in engineering, business and the life sciences.

"These countries have a new affluence and they need managers," says Sally Hyem of Northeastern University's International Student Center. "They don't have enough universities, but they do have oil."

The trend also has university officials looking closely at foreign developments, asking what effect Iran's troubles or the new turn in U.S.-China relations might have on enrollment of foreign students.

Other questions are asked about which colleges may be best — or not suited — for foreigners. Officials at Windham College in Vermont, for example, wound up with more complaints than tuition in its efforts to enroll foreign students — and the school folded.

At Northeastern, Ms. Hyem says, the reputation of its engineering school has pushed foreign enrollment past 10 percent. Overseas applications continued to roll in at Northeastern and other Boston-area schools, giving Massachusetts a foreign student population of 10,500, the country's fourth largest.

California is first with 35,367 students, followed by New York, 21,569, and Texas, 19,134. The figures, from the Institute of International Education, also show a third of foreign students are from nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Iran is now the largest user of U.S. education, with nearly 37,000 students here. Other oil nations in the top 10 are Nigeria, Venezuela and Saudi Arabia. The rest of the 10 are Canada, Japan, Taiwan, India, Hong Kong, and Vietnam, whose 6,000 refugee-students are included in the institute's count.

"Twenty years ago countries like Nigeria and Saudi Arabia were nowhere to be seen when it came to compiling lists of foreign students," Pam Wilson, an institute spokeswoman, pointed out.

Foreign students are looking to the United States for technical education at a time when the decline in the U.S. birth rate, coupled with the end of the draft, is expected to drop college enrollment by 25 percent in the next few years. Schools like Boston University have responded with foreign recruiting programs. BU has assigned an "international representative" to tour Europe and the Mideast.

The school's officials also met recently with representatives of the Peoples Republic of China and the Cuban government to try to develop student exchange programs.

"We're not having problems filling spots now, but we're looking to the '80s when the college age population is down," says Natalie McCracken of BU. "It's a problem all schools are worried about."

BU — which has 1,400 foreign students — offers refresher courses in English to 1,000 students and teaching programs for families of foreign students. Not all schools are as well-equipped, however.

According to Mary Ann Spreckelmeyer of the U.S. International Communication Agency, many smaller schools are not ready to deal with problems of cultural adjustment. "The problems come with some institutions unfamiliar with foreign students," she said. "There are cultural adjustments to be made on both sides: some of these differences are exacerbated by a lack of English."

It was an apparent lack of experience that led to the troubles at Windham College last fall. The private college hired a Pennsylvania firm to recruit students overseas. Some 150 Iranians and Jordanians signed up; 70 of them arrived at the school before it closed.

Some students complained that Windham did not fit the recruiters' pictures and withheld tuition. A federal investigation found Windham innocent of criminal intent and blamed overzealous translators.

Ms. Spreckelmeyer, whose office helps schools with foreign student programs, says other colleges have trouble with students unprepared for college in their own countries. "You hear of people who were flunking out of their own secondary schools coming here," she says.

Some schools have had difficulty with tuition payments. Kansas state universities recently reported 21 Nigerians owed $22,000 and 600 Iranians were having trouble getting money from their homeland.

"These are temporary problems due to different causes," says Ms. Spreckelmeyer. "There has been problems with the Nigerian government over bills, but they always pay. The problem involving the Iranians is the result of a strike which has closed their banks."

Even with delays, most officials see overseas tuition money as worth waiting for. And there are other benefits.

"In general, the average foreign student tends to be selective, do well academically and leave with a better understanding of this country," says Hugh Jenkins of the National Association of Foreign Student Affairs. "In some schools, these students are seen as a resource that will contribute to the education of Americans."

Various Ways to Treat Varicose Veins

I developed varicose veins after my third child was born. Some of my friends have the same thing. Each one of them seems to be treated in a different way. How does one decide which method is the best? — Mrs. B.W., Mich.

Dear Mrs. W.:
Varicose veins are caused by weaknesses of the veins and the valves that lie within them. There is now more and more evidence that there is some genetic basis for this condition which occurs in both men and women during middle age, although women are more prone to the problem.

Marked obesity, long periods of standing while at work, and pregnancies are the aggravating factors in people who have a family tendency towards varicosities.

There are many gradations of varicose veins. Some people develop "spider" veins that are barely perceptible. Others have large, disfiguring veins that bulge and are cosmetically unattractive. These are the veins that can cause the fatigue that is so common.

There are so many variations of varicose veins that no one single approach to the problem can be recommended or advised. There are now many exact techniques by which the superficial veins and the deep veins can be studied, both for the varicosity and for the complications that sometimes are present within the veins.

Some varicose veins respond well to the injection of certain sclerosing solutions.

Others may need surgical stripping, a technique for the removal of the affected veins. Marked progress has been made in this area. Not many years ago, patients were confined to bed and in hospitals for almost a week after such surgery. Today, the operation can be done in many instances on an ambulatory basis and patients can be discharged within 24 hours.

The enthusiasm of friends for a particular technique should not influence you in relation to your own problem. You should leave the choice of technique to your own doctor who can best evaluate your individual case.

When my appendix was removed the incision healed with an ugly scar. Does this mean that the same thing will happen if I ever need another operation? — Miss D.K., N.J.

Dear Miss K.:
You probably are referring to the "keloid" formation which sometimes follows injury, laceration or a surgical incision. For reasons that are not entirely known, some people develop this thickening at the site of the wound.

A number of types of treatment are now used to prevent severe keloid formation in those who have a history of it. Mild doses of X-ray radiation immediately following the operation can reduce the incidence and severity of keloid formation.

Bronze Sculpture Classes Scheduled

A series of eight weekly classes in bronze casting of sculpture will begin on Monday, Feb. 5 at the Greenville Art Center, 802 Evans Street.

The class, to be taught by Johnathan Quinn, will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. each Monday night in the annex building back of the main building at the Center.

Mushrooming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mushroom production is mushrooming in the United States.

An all-time record of 399 million pounds was produced during the 1977-78 crop year ending recently. That figure is 15 percent higher than the previous year's production.

The American Mushroom Institute, a trade group representing about 300 growers and processors nationwide, says 48 percent of the domestic mushroom crop is sold fresh.

Tuition for the course is $15 with bronze to be furnished. Each student is to provide a candle and a pen knife.

Also, a limited number of scholarships will be available for this program. Registration must be made in person at the Center. Operating hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The classes are being supported with local government challenge grants (Pitt County and the City of Greenville) with matching funds from the N.C. Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Warm Up Winter! And Save 35¢ on Delicious Folger's.

Here's a Folger's coffee recipe to warm up your winter. And, to warm your heart, here's a savings on great tasting Mountain Grown Folger's. Try Folger's, and see how delicious coffee can be.

Folger's Coffee comes in 3 grinds—regular, electric percolator and drip. Folger's is mountain grown—that's the richest, most aromatic kind of coffee. The cool mountain air and gentle sunshine let coffee ripen slowly, so it builds up richer flavor.

Folger's Flaked Coffee is specially designed for automatic drip coffee makers. It's the same delicious Mountain Grown Folger's, but it's flaked to release more rich flavor, so you use less and save money. If you normally use 5 measures per pot, you only need 4 of Folger's Flaked Coffee.

FOLGER'S CINNAMON SUPREME

3 cups brewed Folger's Coffee
3 tablespoons sugar
8 whole cloves
3 inches stick cinnamon

Whipped cream
Cinnamon stick stirrers
Shredded orange peel (optional)

Prepare Folger's according to directions on can. In saucepan, combine hot coffee, sugar, cloves, and stick cinnamon. Cover, bring to boiling. Remove from heat and let stand about 5 minutes covered. Strain, discard spices. Pour hot coffee into cups, top each with whipped cream. Serve with cinnamon stick stirrers and garnish with orange peel, if desired. Serves 4 to 6.

MHD Adds Efficiency In Coal Use

By WILLIAM HANSON BUTTE, Mont. (UPI) — There's a household word around Butte that sounds more in tune with a galaxy far, far away: magnetohydrodynamics.

Better known simply as MHD, its real-world elements include American politicians, Russian scientists and the energy crisis.

MHD is an exciting, exotic, experimental process slowly gaining practical application as a means of dramatically adding more clout to the coal that is burned in the production of electricity.

Such a futuristic development has a Montana connection welded by former U.S. Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., now ambassador to Japan.

At the federally-funded Montana Energy and MHD Research Institute in Butte, scientists are high on the promise of MHD to double the efficiency of electrical generation from fossil fuels, particularly coal, which lie in abundance beneath these northern mountains and plains.

Experts believe a successful MHD generator could turn as much as 60 percent of coal's energy into electricity. Traditional steam generators in the best power plants operating today use only about 40 percent of the fuel's energy.

MHD experts point to a further advantage in their pet process: it burns far cleaner than conventional coal-fired electric generating plants.

The simplest explanation for the MHD process is "a coal-fired rocket in a box surrounded by a magnet," says Jerry Plunkett, director of the institute.

Even that simplification probably is not meaningful, Plunkett recognizes, for a public mostly lacking a grasp of the basic principles of electricity.

MHD principles will be tested within a year or two in a $35 million Component Development and Integration Facility under construction south of Butte.

Plans also call for construction of a large demonstration MHD plant to generate commercial quantities of electricity at a still-undetermined site that has created a scramble for designation among chambers of commerce and city officials throughout the state.

MHD research nationwide this year exists on a total federal appropriation of $80 million.

The MHD principle relies on extremely hot, partially ionized gases flowing through a duct lined with electrodes and surrounded by coils producing a magnetic field. Expanding gas, passing through the magnetic field, generates the electric current.

One facet of environmental compatibility in an MHD generator is a finding that its stack gases will have only 5 percent of the sulfur oxide content currently allowed under standards of the Environmental Protection Agency. Scientists also project substantial reductions in the concentrations of nitrogen oxide and particulate emissions from MHD plants compared with existing coal-fired plants.

Further, there's no heavy demand for water in an MHD generator; nor is there a problem with thermal pollution despite its operation at incredibly high temperatures of around 5,000 degrees Celsius.

What about the Russians? They've been into MHD on a far larger scale and 15 years ahead of the Americans, say scientists, although an agreement exists whereby the Soviet program obtains parts and expertise from the United States in exchange for full sharing of test results.

Recently, the Russians installed an American-made superconducting magnet, the largest ever made, at an MHD power plant on the outskirts of Moscow.

Russian and American experts have conferred several times in Montana on U.S. developments in the field.

There's no U.S. intention to duplicate the size of the latest MHD facility in the Soviet Union, Plunkett says. That's a 300-megawatt thermal plant that may be larger than necessary.

McAlister Has Revise Her Tactics

By ANN LO LORDO
BALTIMORE (UPI) — Sis Elizabeth McAlister broke law in the 1960s to express hatred of the Vietnam War hoping the six months she spent in jail would stir public protest.

Today, the excommunicated wife of protester and ex-pr Phillip Berrigan is more concerned with her children's future. Her protest tactics have changed from violent to non-violent.

The former nun who spilled blood on the Pentagon and burned draft records Vietnam protests says attention now has turned to threat of nuclear war.

Although most of the radicals of the 1960s have "retired cynicism and hurt," Berrigan said in an interview people continue to probe for the right way to act and to find appropriate symbols — be home-made napalm, pints of blood or prayers — "to explore the urgency of today."

Mrs. Berrigan lives with her husband, two children, Frieda, 4, and Jerome, 3 — 10 anti-bomb activists in modest Baltimore rowhouse known as Jonah House.

Preparing a zucchini casserole for dinner or taking turn as a house painter trappings of a new lifestyle began about six years ago when she left the convent.

Despite the changes, she said "I feel that I have continued the same path that I started when I entered the convent. The only reason I left at the time I left was (the religious order) would not accept marriage as part of the community. At the time, if I had my druthers, I would have preferred to stay in the community."

Mrs. Berrigan, dressed in blue jeans, loafers and seersucker shirt, puffed out a cigarette and stared at colorful religious wall-hangings while reflecting on the char in her life.

"We began witnessing again in March 1975 and I sponsored an ongoing press at the Pentagon since Jan 1976," said Mrs. Berrigan.

Mrs. Berrigan, who excommunicated from Roman Catholic Church marrying Berrigan, views violent protest as a religious commitment — a commitment that included serving time in jail for throwing blood on Pentagon steps in an anti-b demonstration.

The 38-year-old native Montclair, N.J., said her father works in a spirit of "obedience to God's work and calling, of it — community living nonviolent demonstrations try to see as some type of fidelity."

"I live this way and act way, and by no means perfectly, as far as I can get from the New Testament: being the way to live and act."

Mrs. Berrigan said disillusionment of the 1960s does not upset her because people "who are witnesses know why they're there and find that to be a healthier act."

"If I get discouraged because I wonder if there's time enough to build up public concern about nuclear weapons before it is too late she said. "It discourages me to think that we as a people are so blind to the dangers we have all around us."

"Why are we being silent? That can get my Irish sometimes."

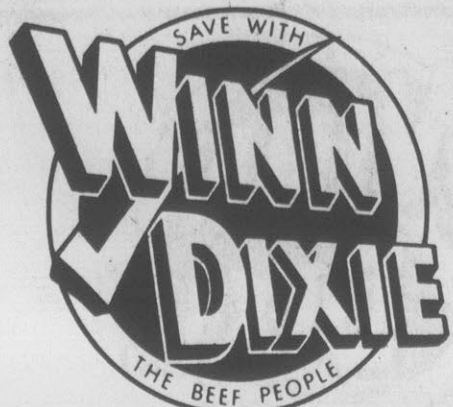

Mrs. Berrigan said her hope is that people will learn to live with less, to live with a spirit of love instead of suspicion and hatred.

She said the anti-war movement of the 1960s appeared to be more a counting of bodies than a regard for the religious and human growth of people involved.

"We have to make a very distinction between those who were really dedicated," Berrigan said. "In some of the radicalism wasn't there. Some of those self-styled radicals weren't radicals at all."

For her the 1960s anti-movement — from dissent to violent resistance — "was requirement in conscience she said."

CLAIM BOMBINGS
PARIS (AP) — A group calling itself the New International Brigades has claimed responsibility for three bomb explosions at British targets in France, saying the blasts were in support of the "Irish resistance."

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR
MADISON, Ga. (UPI) — The antebellum homes of Madison, the town that Sherman refused to burn, glisten in the morning sun like jewels waiting to be appreciated.

They stand back from the tree-lined streets, sentinels of the past just beginning to be discovered by tourists traveling along Interstate 20, two miles to the south.

These are the homes that Yankee soldiers were ordered not to burn in 1864 by Union Gen. William T. Sherman on his "scorched earth" march to the sea during the Civil War.

Because of that order, some of Madison's 3,200 residents have a kind word now and then for the Yankee general, whose name for more than a century has been anathema in the South.

The Yankee troops destroyed the railroad running through the town, along with a cotton gin and a cloth factory. "They were burned," says Mrs. Dan M. Hicky, "but none of the homes. They were all spared."

As a result of Sherman's generosity, Madison has one of the largest National Register blocks in the state, says Mrs. Hicky, who is president of the Morgan County-Madison Historical Society.

The town may have more surviving antebellum homes of any place its size in the South, not only because Sherman declined to burn them but also because they are being lived in and well maintained, she says.

Mrs. Hicky, whose mother-in-law's home is a stately antebellum, can quickly recite a brief history of practically every older home in Madison. She also knows the story of why Sherman spared Madison's residences.

Sen. Joshua Hill of Madison had known Gen. Sherman's brother in Washington before the Civil War, she said. Hill also was against Georgia seceding from the Union. So when Sherman approached Madison after burning Atlanta 65 miles to the west, Hill went down the road to meet him. His pleas that Madison's homes be spared were echoed by two other prominent Madison residents of that time, George Jesup, who had known Union Gen. Ulysses Grant, and Nathaniel Greene.

According to Mrs. Hicky, there are at least 35 homes in Madison that pre-date the Civil War and many more that were constructed in the 19th century.

Mrs. Hicky's husband, Dan, a retired Air Force colonel and a native of Madison, as is his wife, says many of the town's older homes are being saved by outsiders from the Atlanta metro area. "Young couples are coming down from Atlanta, fixing up these homes and living in them," he said.

Hicky describes Madison as "the town that Sherman refused to burn." As a result, he says, "it remains an outstanding example of the pre-Civil War South."

Only the Madison-Morgan Cultural Center and the Manley House, which serves as the historical society's headquarters, are open to the public. Tours of the antebellum homes are arranged by appointment.

Mrs. Hicky guides bus tour passengers when they disembark at Madison following a trip from Atlanta. One of the places they visit is a home whose interior decor has not changed in more than a century. Some of the women who live in the antebellum homes still use the original furniture.

"Each one of these homes has a 'Gone With the Wind' story," she says.

A few tourists come in from Interstate 20 and take a walking tour of the town. Mrs. Hicky said many of them are disappointed when they discover that tours of the homes must be arranged in advance.

Madison's visible ties with the past has attracted the attention of movie makers. Three movies have been filmed in the past two and a half years, with a fourth, "a comedy about a boys' camp," to be made soon. The last movie filmed here was one for television only, called "Summer of My German Soldier."

Industry also has discovered Madison, which for years has been a quiet farming community surrounded by dairy and cattle interests. A $20 million plant that will manufacture plywood is under construction.

1 pint (about 1/2 pound) fresh mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 teaspoons all-purpose flour
Salt and pepper
Slice mushrooms through cap and stem. Melt butter or margarine in skillet; add mushrooms; sprinkle with flour and mix.
