Khomeini Returns Home Vowing 'U.S. Must Go'

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini returned home to a wildly enthusiastic welcome today and declared his revolution to overthrow Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and install an Islamic republic will not be complete until U.S. influence is expelled from Iran.

Railing against "despotism and colonialism" that he said has perverted Iranian culture, the bearded, Shiite Moslem patriarch said the shah "has made the army follow the orders of another country," and his movement will be successful only "when the roots of colonialism are pulled out."

He did not mention the United States by name, but there was no doubt what country he was talking about.

Khomeini's chartered Air France jumbo jet from Paris

circled three times and landed at 9 a.m. as a million jubilant followers lined the 11-mile route he took from the airport to the capital's largest cemetery. Some 50,000 "Islamic police" maintained order all along the route, and more than 100,000 supporters jammed the cemetery.

Shouts of "God is great" and "Welcome Khomeini" greeted the ayatollah, an exile for more than 14 years, as he rode through the throng in the back of a blue Mercedes. Occasionally, the chauffeur accelerated to force the car through the swarming crowd.

Near Tehran, University.

where more than 40 persons have been killed in the past week in clashes between Khomeini's supporters and the army, a banner read: "When evil goes out, the angel comes in."

A selected crowd of 1,000 was admitted to the airport terminal to greet the 78-year-old religious leader. A crush of shoving, shouting mullahs, or Moslem priests, reporters and others mobbed him at the entrance to the reception lounge; one mullah tried to climb over the backs of reporters, and other mullahs shouted for quiet and chanted from the Koran, the Moslem holy book, to restore order.

Blake Chosen President Of Community Colleges

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education today selected Larry J. Blake as president of North Carolina's community college system, ignoring prompting from the state Senate to pick former Gov. Bob Scott for the job.

Blake was elected by a vote of 10 to 2 in secret balloting by the 13-member board. One member abstained.

Blake, president of Fraser Valley College in British Columbia, Canada, was present during the vote and said during brief remarks afterward that he appreciated the board's vote of confidence.

A search committee appointed by the board to screen a field of 132 applicants for the position unanimously recommended Blake.

Scott was not present for today's board meeting, and his name was not mentioned during the session. The vote for Blake came on a motion to accept the search committee's recommendation.

Several board members appeared to be startled when board secretary Jean Brown announced there were 10 "no" votes. However, she quickly corrected herself and drew laughter from board members and observers crowded into the meeting room.

Scott, who had been actively seeking the post, Tuesday picked up support in the state Senate, which overwhelmingly approved a resolution urging state agencies to consider North Carolinians first when filling top-level jobs in state government.

The former governor said during an appearance at Pfeiffer College in Misenheimer Wednesday that he felt the head of the junior college system needed to be a strong administrator and not necessarily an educator.

Patty Walked Into Sun

PLEASANTON, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst walked out of prison into bright sunshine this morning on the arm of her attorney, a free woman after a five-year odyssey of kidnap, crime and punishment.

Miss Hearst was met at the prison by attorney George Martinez and her fiancé, police officer Bernard Shaw, while a strengthened security force patrolled the area and a California Highway Patrol helicopter hovered overhead.

Miss Hearst was smiling broadly as she halted briefly to talk to reporters. She held her commutation papers high over her head and thanked her parents, her sisters, the people on the committee which worked for her freedom, her attorney and her boyfriend.

She told reporters she was going on a trip, but would not say where or when. Then she climbed into the back seat of a station wagon between Martinez and Shaw and drove away. In front were two bodyguards and Ingrid Martinez, wife of Miss Hearst's attorney.

Everyone Prepared For Snow Emergency, Fun

By REBECCA BUFFALOEE
Reflector Staff Writer
Everyone was ready

Wednesday for the first snow of 1979 to cover Greenville and Pitt County.

The Maintenance Department of the state Department of Transportation, the Greenville Public Works Department, the Greenville Utilities Commission, the whole area was prepared for a little inconvenience and a lot of fun.

Everyone, except Ol' Man Winter, who sent the sun out just as fast as the first flakes fell Wednesday morning.

"We were prepared, but the conditions never demanded it," said Mayo Allen of the Public Works Department.

HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

NO TREES, NO REFUND

We ordered some fruit trees in October, 1977 from the McMinnville Tree Farm in McMinnville, Tenn. The order was for 30 apple trees at a cost of $87.84. We never got the trees and have written and called about getting our money back, since we went on and started our orchard with locally bought trees, with no results. Mr. and Mrs. J. P.

Is Hotline ever unsuccessful in solving consumer dilemmas it takes on? You betcha. Here's an example. We have records of several calls, several letters written, several requests made by the company for copies of canceled checks, several promises that the matter would be taken care of as soon as the proper information was received. No satisfaction has ever been obtained in more than 10 months. We have, therefore, sent Mr. and Mrs. P. a copy of a consumer complaint form from the Consumer Protection Division of the North Carolina Attorney General's Office and have been assured by someone in this division that they'll take up where we left off.

SOUND OFF

OVERFLOWING ONTO ROAD

Along Road 1409, close to Belvoir, the trash is almost overflowing onto the pavement. It seems obvious it's the same person or persons continuing to dump here, even though there are container sites and a landfill available, as was pointed out in a recent Hotline item. A solution, I think, might be a crackdown on those who obviously don't want to help protect our environment. C. T.

Campus Visit Nets 520 Pints For Blood Bank

A two-day Bloodmobile visit at East Carolina University this week resulted in the collection of 520 pints of blood.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor of the Pitt Red Cross said that Tuesday's visit at ECU's Wright Auditorium netted 268 pints of blood with ten deferrals, while Wednesday's drive saw 252 pints collected and eight deferrals.

Mrs. Taylor noted that the successful campus visit was sponsored by the AFOTC with Charlotte Franck serving as overall blood chairman.

The Red Cross official said that Bloodmobile personnel were "very pleased" with the results of the campus blood drive and she offered "first thanks to the students who donated and then to the sororities and groups that furnished food."

Mrs. Taylor also thanked the student nurses who helped as well as the other volunteer nurses and women of the Greenville Service League.

The next campus visit will be in March at Wright Auditorium, she said, adding that the upcoming Bloodmobile visit at the Moose Lodge on Feb. 6 will be the last one at that facility. In the future, blood collections will be made at the Tar River Blood Center, located on Highway 43 west.

Mrs. Taylor said that with collection activities shifting to the Blood Center, area donors will be contacted or they can call the facility and make an appointment for a donation.

"I'd like to see my daughter," Fenner Roland Jones told Chicod School Principal Charles Johnson Monday morning, Jan. 22.

Minutes later Johnson was witnessing the reunion of Mrs. Lucille Jones Haddock, a lunchroom employee at his school, and her father she had longed to see for 30 years.

Later that morning Jones, a native of the Moss Swamp community near Vanceboro, presented himself at the door of another daughter, Mrs. Rochelle Jones Taylor, in the Hollywood Crossroads community nearby. "You don't know who I am, do you?" he asked Mrs. Taylor, who had answered the door holding her two-year-old granddaughter, Jackie Lynn Taylor.

"No, I don't," she answered.

"I'm your father," he said.

"My head reeled," Mrs. Taylor said. "I'd prayed so long to know of my father, if he was dead or alive, how he was if he were alive. Could I dare believe this stranger? Then he smiled and, in that instant, I knew. He really was my father! Smiling, he looked just like the picture I've kept hanging over the mantel all these years."

Mrs. Taylor tearfully invited her father and the taxi driver from New Bern, where Jones had stayed for several days conducting his search for his three daughters, into her living room. As soon as she'd composed herself to some degree, she telephoned her sister, Mrs. Edna Jones Haddock, at the Too Tuff Togs garment manufacturing plant in Grimesland.

Edna Haddock took up the recollection of the day marked in Mrs. Taylor's family Bible as "the day Daddy came back."

Mrs. Haddock said, "It took me a minute or two to grasp what Rochelle was saying and to know that if my sister was telling me what we'd all wanted so long to hear, it must be true. I dropped the phone receiver and dashed out the door. When I got to my car, I came to my senses

New Tax-Cut Proposal Is Filed In N.C. House

Referendums

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee voted to send to a subcommittee a measure that would allow citizens to initiate laws and constitutional amendments by referendum.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, an opponent of the measure.

Under the measure, sponsored by Rep. Mary Pegg, R-Forsyth, a proposed law could be placed on the general election ballot if 5 percent of the voters in the last gubernatorial race signed petitions asking for it.

If the propositions were approved by voters, they would become law.

The measure would give citizens 90 days to petition for a referendum on any law enacted by the General Assembly. If placed on the ballot, the law could be vetoed by a majority vote.

Silver Anniversary Observed

Mr. and Mrs. Linwood E. Coward were honored Sunday afternoon, Jan. 21, in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary given by their children, Danny, Vickie, Linwood Jr. and Alan.

Relatives and friends called at their residence near Grimesland where the entrance walkway was marked with white satin ribbon accented by white wedding bells.

Mr. and Mrs. Linwood E. Coward

Mrs. Coward wore a mint green knit dress and was presented a white orchid corsage.

The living room mantel featured two antique candleholders with candles and a wedding bell, banked with greenery. The honorees received in the living room and Mrs. Danny Hardy and Miss Virginia Harrington received in the gift room and assisted in opening gifts. The gift table was covered with a white cloth highlighted with wedding bells.

The party table was covered with a white cloth overlaid with off-white lace and centered with an arrangement of a madonna centered in a crystal basket bowl accented with green Scotch broom and white flowers. The decorated cake was served by Mrs. Charles Woolard and Mrs. Corrine Murphy poured punch. Mrs. James Cannon and Mrs. Willis Bowen assisted in serving. Alan Coward presided at the register and good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. George Coward.

To Night Bikers: Stop And Reflect

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: MISERABLE IN OHIO was miserable with good reason. He had struck a 12-year-old boy on a bicycle and wrote to express his anguish as he waited six hours for the lad to come out of surgery.

He said: "I wasn't going very fast, but it was night and the poor kid was wearing dark clothes and there wasn't a light anywhere on his bike. I didn't even see him until I hit him. I was told that his chances for survival were slim. You can't help me—or the boy—but if you print this, maybe parents will see it and make sure their kids have the proper lights on their bikes so accidents like this can be avoided."

Abby, you are to be commended for printing that letter, but I submit this as a follow up:

"Dear Miserable:

Since your letter appeared in my column last October, hundreds more pedestrians and bicyclists have been struck and killed or injured by motorists—mostly at night because the drivers couldn't see them in time to stop.

This is senseless and needless because there are many reflective materials on the market today to make people more visible at night.

Sew-on trim for clothing, or entire garments made of fabric that glows in the dark are available at many retail stores. If you can't find them where you shop, ask for them. Insistent consumer demand can help make this life-saving feature easily available to all who need it.

J.K.G. IN ST. PAUL

DEAR J.K.G.: Thanks for an illuminating letter.

DEAR ABBY: I went shopping for a dress but couldn't find anything I wanted to buy.

I told my friend about it, and she said, "Oh, when you get our age, nobody looks at you or cares how you look anyway."

Abby, is that the way most people feel about us old folks? We are both in our 70s, but I always notice how people are dressed regardless of how old they are.

Maybe I'm just an old fool to feel as I do, and should quit caring how I look. I'd like your opinion.

GRACE

DEAR GRACE: Your friend can speak only for herself. She certainly doesn't speak for any of the older folks I know. Don't ever stop caring how you look, dear. Pride in one's appearance is the hallmark of self-respect.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a guy who seldom brushes his teeth and hates to shower?

VAL

DEAR VAL: Nothing.

DEAR ABBY: OFF MY CHEST IN DENVER wrote that her daughter in college sent all her bills home regularly, but never enclosed a personal note. ("It would mean so much if she just wrote 'love' and signed her name.")

May I respond to that letter?

First of all, a girl old enough to go away to college should be trusted with her own checking account and learn how to be responsible for her own bills. Perhaps the daughter is expressing (or not expressing) her resentment at so much parental control.

Second, children learn from us—their parents. If we don't tell them how we feel, then they won't tell us how they feel. If we want love and openness, we must communicate our needs to the others.

I would suggest, OFF MY CHEST, that you tell your daughter you need a point of contact with her, since you love her, and her absence after 18 years leaves a hole in your life. Children who grow up and leave home need both roots and freedom.

I.M.: LA JOLLA, CALIF.

DEAR I.M.: U.R. an excellent psychologist. Thank you for a fine letter.

Are you the lonely face in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (23 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Removing garments from the dryer and hanging them up as soon as the cycle is finished will eliminate much ironing.

Anniversary Reception Held

GRIMESLAND — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Guy Carrow of Grimesland celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday at their home.

A reception was given by their children, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Evans Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elks and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Dixon.

The refreshment table was decorated in gold and white and the centerpiece was the three-tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Irene Williams poured punch.

Miss Charlene Elks presided at the guest register.

Gifts were displayed by Miss Judy Elks, Mrs. Joan Evans and Brent Dixon. Miss Shelia Dixon assisted in serving.

Mrs. Carrow was remembered with a yellow rose corsage.

Approximately 150 relatives and friends attended the reception.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A lot of mothers I know are downright meddling when it comes to their children's selection of a boyfriend or a girlfriend.

They want to know how old, how tall, what their father does, where they live, the scope of their education, what their plans are for the future, and how they feel about children.

I don't care about any of those things. All I want to know is, "Is he or she a local call or a toll?"

I don't remember names or faces of old flames. All I remember is their area code. One of my sons once dated an area code 513 for six months. It was marriage by Ma Bell. I figured we were spending $35 a month to share such insights as:

"What are you doing?"

"Nothing, what are you doing?"

"I don't want to interrupt you if you're doing something."

"I told you I wasn't doing anything."

"You sure?"

"I'm sure."

"So, what's new?"

Another one of my kids showed an interest in a lovely girl who lived just a few miles from us. It was great. I didn't have to worry about a deep involvement because they were never off the phone. He set his alarm to call her in the morning. At night I used to go in and remove the phone from his ear as he slept. It was like hanging up an umbilical cord. As soon as they left one another at school in the afternoon they would shout, "I'll call you when I get home." I offered too feed him intravenously.

The suggestion by my husband to put a timer by the phone with sand running through was ridiculous. However, I did slip a calendar under his door and circle the month.

Panic didn't set in until one day when I was standing near and saw him dial "1."

"Who are you calling?" I asked.

"You know," he said, "The same person I've been talking with for the last month."

"But I thought she was a local call."

"Don't worry," he said. "It only costs about eight cents a minute. Besides, this isn't just some silly kid infatuation. This is a person I genuinely care for and want to spend the rest of my life with. She's important to me. She's special and there isn't anything I wouldn't do for her."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," I said, "because according to the phone bill you owed us $36.86 in long distance charges."

I learned something that day. When toll charges enter the room... love goes right out the window.

Father And Family Reunited After Thirty Years

2 Arrested By Deputies

FALKLAND — Two persons were arrested Wednesday by Pitt County deputies and charged in connection with two breaking, entering and larceny incidents at a local business.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies arrested Dale Russell Langley, 16, of Rt. 1, Box 8, Pinetops, and Walter Ray Dunn, 18, Rt. 2, Box 21, Falkland, on two counts each of breaking, entering and larceny at Oscar's Snack Bar here.

The sheriff said that the incidents took place on Jan. 26, when some $55 in food and cash was reported missing, and on Jan. 30 when thieves took $101 in merchandise and $15 in cash.

Entrance to the business on Jan. 26 was gained through a window, Sheriff Tyson said, while a door lock was broken in enough to go back and get my pocketbook and coat, explain to my boss, and clock out. A few minutes later I was in Rochelle's living room. There sat two old men. I looked at the taxi driver. Then I looked at the other man. "You're my daddy," I said as I went into his arms.

Chicod School Principal Johnson insisted on working in the lunchroom line in Lucille Haddock's place and told her to go and join her family at Mrs. Taylor's house.

The three Pitt County women spent the rest of Monday and much of Tuesday becoming reacquainted with the father none of them had seen since the late 1940's.

Jones, now 66, told how he had found them, finally, by going to the Moss Swamp community where he was reared and finding a neighbor who recognized him and told him of Lucille's whereabouts. He said he'd re-enlisted in the Armed Forces after he and their mother had separated not long after World War II ended and had been a prisoner of war during the Korean War. He related the little he remembers about the days since his release, explaining that shock treatment he received as part of psychiatric care have blocked out much of his memory of the middle years of his life. He now lives in Jacksonville, Fla., he said, has never remarried nor had other children besides the three of them. He is an outpatient at the Veterans' Hospital in Tampa, he said.

The times he recalls with no trouble, he said, are the years since 1974 and the years prior to and while his daughters were youngsters sometimes living on an Army-Air Force base, sometimes staying behind, along with their mother, in the New Bern area while he was away on military stints.

"During his younger years," Mrs. Taylor said, "Daddy was a wanderer. He was not a dependable husband and father. He was gone too much, leaving Mama with the full responsibility of raising us. He was gone so much I guess they just grew apart, plus she came to believe it was best for us girls not to live around military bases. He came by to visit a couple of times after they separated, the last time in 1949, but he says he doesn't remember any of those times."

"I guess Daddy must've always had in the back of his head that maybe his girls wouldn't keep on loving him, since he was absent so long,"

Lucille Haddock said. "We all did, tough. Our mother never talked against him. We told him that when he was here last week and he said, 'Your mother was a good woman and she did a good job raising you. I knew she would.'"

The sisters took their mother, now living in the New Bern area, for a short visit with their father. They said she seemed glad to see him, but would not give him a hug nor consent to take part in the reunion, including eight of his 10 grandchildren and one of his seven great grandchildren which was held Monday evening at Mrs. Taylor's home. "Mother's been remarried 22 years," Edna

Haddock said. "She's happy for us because she knows of the letters we've written and phone calls we've made and wild goose chases we've been on all these years searching for a father with a name as common as Jones. But this is our celebration, not hers."

"We've told Daddy," Lucille Haddock said, "that we'd be mighty happy if he'd come back to this area to live. He hasn't said he will, though. 'I burdened you enough when I was young,' he said. 'I wouldn't want to be a burden now.'"

The women contend he would be no burden.

Jones has returned to Florida now, having promised to visit a week or so this summer.

The sisters say they're planning a trip to see him in the meantime, though, since he's invited them to come whenever they can and bring as much of his new-found family as they can.

They've already started corresponding with him, too.

"I wrote Daddy the first of this week," Mrs. Taylor said, "and told him that I hoped the three of us and all our husbands and children and grandchildren didn't completely overwhelm him, that we'd just bottled up the love we feel for him in our hearts for so long, it just tumbled out all over the place. I think he understands, though. He seemed to love every minute he was here."

HAPPY CHINESE NEW YEAR

FRIDAY AT 2 P.M. 8 P.M.

Friday Dedication

KINSTON — The new terminal building at the Eastern Regional Jetport will be dedicated here at 3 p.m. Friday.

Gov. Jim Hunt and Department of Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw are scheduled to participate in the program.

The dedication ceremony for the Jetport will follow the 11 a.m. dedication of Kinston Towers, a high-rise residence facility for the elderly, and the 1 p.m. dedication of the new Kinston High School.

The U.S. Marine Corps Band from Camp Lejeune will stage a concert from 10:15 to 11 a.m. at Kinston Towers and from 2:15 p.m. until 3 o'clock at the Eastern Regional Jetport.

Students occupied the new $5 million high school for the first time this week, while the $3 million Kinston Towers began accepting occupants in early December.

The Jetport terminal building, constructed at a cost of $2.1 million, began operations in July 1978.

Major Step In Greene Prison

Gov. Jim Hunt announced a major state capital improvements investment in Greene County Tuesday.

The governor said a 480-bed prison unit is to be constructed near Maury. It will cost $17.5 million.

The new unit will be built next to the present prison facility at Maury and it will provide single cells for medium security prisoners who will come mostly from the eastern section of North Carolina.

The planned facility is a part of an overall construction program now being carried out throughout the prison system to provide better facilities.

The facility will provide about 100 construction jobs for Greene County and about 280 service jobs. It should also provide better security than the present facilities now have.

Efforts to rehabilitate inmates should be improved by the better facilities. The unit will include a reception and diagnostic center, intermediate-care nursing facility, an adult education unit and a vocational training section.

Gov. Hunt saw the facility as a "step forward for the eastern part of the state" and "another major step toward easing the overcrowding of our prisons."

We agree on both counts.

Illustrates Our Fast-Changing World

It's a fast changing world and nothing indicates it more than the visit of Vice Premier Teng Hsiaoping to the United States this week.

Teng was welcomed at the White House by President Carter who only recently announced the United States recognition of China and the end of relations with Taiwan.

Teng saw the event as marking a new world turning point.

Full honors were according to the Chinese vice premier, which is ironic since only a few years ago we officially didn't recognize Red China's existence.

THIS AFTERNOON

Tracking 'Lost' Property

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Untold thousands of acres of good North Carolina land is laying unclaimed, and some of it actually belongs to the State of North Carolina.

"We estimate right now there is in the neighborhood of 10,000 acres which is owned by the state and belongs to the state, but is listed on the tax books as owner unknown," says State Property Officer J.K. Sherron.

Already the state is in various stages of court action attempting to reclaim title to some 3,500 of those acres, most of that in far eastern counties.

How much total unclaimed land is there? Nobody knows for sure, but if the state figures it has title to 10,000 acres it doesn't know about, then obviously many thousands more belong to somebody else.

Sherron is asking the General Assembly to pass a law requiring that county tax supervisors draw up a listing of property on which the owner is unknown to help property officers track down state ownership.

Information

That process would yield information on additional land which the state owns but doesn't know about, and also help establish ownership in some of the present and future court suits.

The court suits are a natural result of many years of human nature at work. To put it bluntly, a lot of state-owned property has been stolen. Sometimes, state officials only learn of the situation because a citizen reports a "squatter".

If an individual discovers a piece of land on which ownership is unknown, there are legal procedures for claiming it. One way is to file a title and wait 21 years; another is to make certain improvements and claim it after 30 years.

And human nature being what it is, a lot of good land has been so claimed down through the years. Some people who regularly frequent the county tax offices have access to information and are familiar with the proceeding. Some specialists even claim that some Tar Heel lawyers have made their fortunes that way.

Sherron doesn't make that claim, but he does acknowledge that some of the state's property "has been stolen."

How did the state lose track of so many thousands of acres? Well, when you own nearly half-a-million acres to start with, as North Carolina does, that's a lot of property to oversee.

Thousands of acres of land it doesn't know about, and that the value at current prices runs into millions, it was decided to make a project of the search. Sherron says most of the land in question is in swampy or marshy eastern areas or mountain lands in the west.

Most of the Piedmont land has long since been nailed down on ownership because of its value.

It has been suggested that the state ought to pay the local tax supervisors for the work of listing the "unknown" parcels. Sherron says no to that. First, if the state does own the land but doesn't need it, it will be sold and will begin yielding taxes. Secondly, proceeds go to the literary fund in the State Department of Public Instruction, so local schools benefit.

Finally, but left unsaid, the work by tax supervisors just might lead local citizens to wonder why the tax supervisor has left property on the books for so many years without establishing ownership and collecting taxes, and who has been filing papers to claim the property over the years.

Back in 1957, the dusty records of two centuries lay scattered in various places in state government. The State Board of Education held numerous titles; others were in the Secretary of State's office; still others buried under tons of other assorted files in Archives and History.

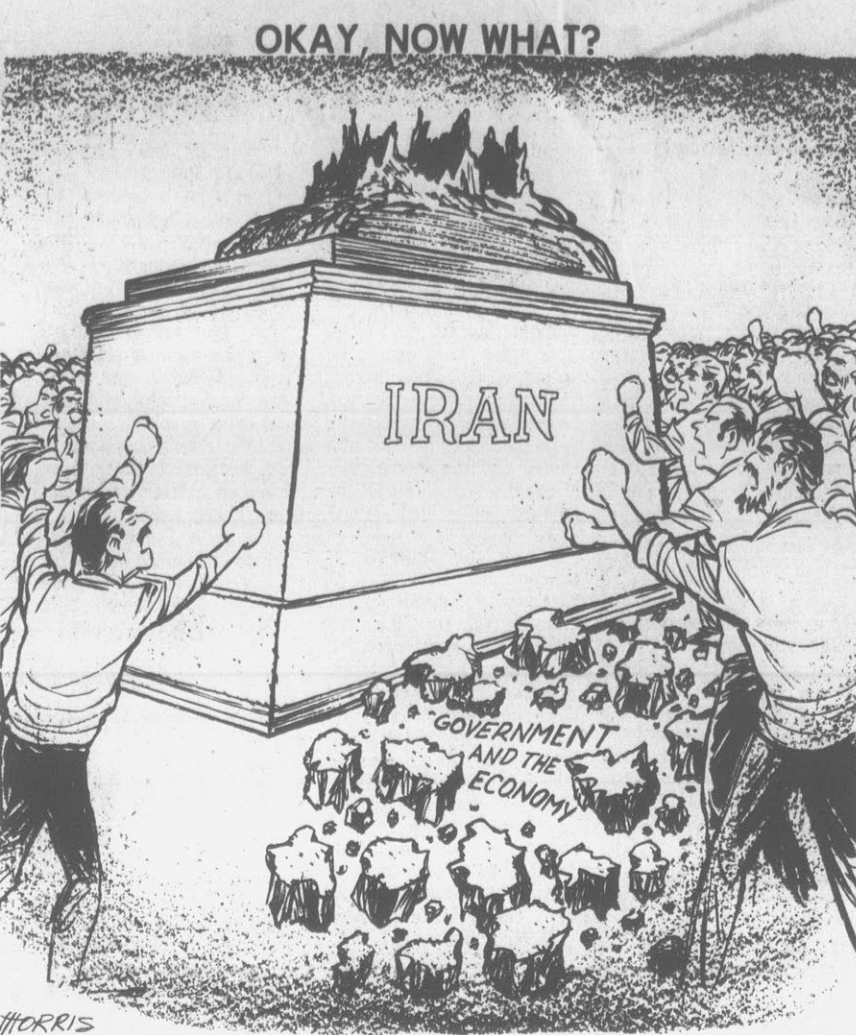

A year ago, property officers came across some of those records, and that put them on the trail of still others.

Goliath Facing Goliath

WASHINGTON — The formal complaint filed last week by Sears, Roebuck may be one part law and ten parts public relations, but it adds up to a lovely lawsuit all the same. After years of watching the federal bureaucracy hurl its crushing weight upon little guys, we now can watch a fairly even match. Goliath, meet Goliath.

Sears is suing the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the secretary of labor, the attorney general, and half a dozen other agencies and executives. The company's purpose is to get a court order directing the defendants, in effect, to get their act together or to get off the company's back. Thousands of small employers, watching from ringside, will be urging the company on.

In aiming primarily at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Sears has taken on the fattest target in town. Of all the federal agencies concerned with employment practices, the EEOC is plainly the worst — the most maddening, the most arrogant, the most inefficient and the least effective.

But the EEOC is not alone in its bumbling approach to problems of discrimination in employment. Other agencies are forever rushing into the act, scattering rules and regulations as they go. The result, Sears complains, is that it has become impossible for an employer consistently to comply with all the demands pressed upon him. In one situation after another, the employer finds himself damned if he does, and damned if he doesn't.

Two examples may suffice, one resulting from the law on age of retirement, the other from the law on veterans' benefits.

Back in 1967, Congress passed the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. The law required employers to give "special consideration" to employees between ages 40 and 65. By a 1978 amendment, the coverage was extended to individuals up to age 70. The purpose was laudable, to prevent private programs of compulsory retirement from turning older employees onto the street, the better to hire younger people for lower pay.

Sears formerly retired salaried personnel at 63 and all others at 65. Each retirement triggered four hourly and six salaried promotional opportunities. These provided more than a thousand openings a year for blacks, women and others. But since the 1978 amendment became effective, 77 percent of the salaried employees and 61 percent of the hourly employees have stayed on the job beyond the former retirement ages. The openings have dried up.

The beneficent aims of the Selective Service Acts have had a similar effect. Under the law, Sears and other employers were required to preserve the jobs of employees who went to war. The government financed all kinds of education and vocational training opportunities

Safire Hoards Words

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — "With words we govern men," wrote Benjamin Disraeli, British novelist, prime minister and governor of men by words.

It is the favorite quote of William Safire, pundit, columnist, lancer of Bert Lance, former television producer, reformed press agent, ex-speech writer for Richard Nixon and the only working lexicographer in the Washington press corps.

Words, particularly the words that govern men, are a passion and a pastime with this Pulitzer Prize winner, who pounces on a neologism — the introduction of a new word of usage into the language — the way Vladimir Nabokov used to flit after rare butterflies in Alpine meadows.

Safire has been known to whip out a 3-by-5 file card in a crowded cocktail party upon hearing a U.S. senator complain that he is being "Raf-shooned."

"Rafshooned," explained the eminent lexicographer of mots politiqués at lunch the other day, "means being pressured by a publicity blitz, a high p.r. gloss, after the manner of Gerald Rafshoon, the presidential image maker. It is one of the new expressions of the Carter administration, like born again, lust in my heart, zero-base budgeting and the three-martini lunch."

Safire can and does chronicle the history of the Republic in the ringing rhetoric of her politicians. Catalogued in "Safire's Political Dictionary," now in its third, enlarged and updated edition, are some 450,000 words that have governed people and the words that politicians have had to eat down through the decades.

For 12 years now, Safire confesses, he has been a closet scholar studying where our political expressions came from and how they got into the language.

R. C. Rankin arrived in Greenville today to assume his new duties as supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade. The new supervisor comes to Greenville from Lumberton, where he served in a similar capacity for three years. He will succeed K. W. Cobb who has been connected with the local market here for 15 years.

Rankin made an enviable record in Lumberton where he also served as executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture. That organization went on record as "reluctantly and regretfully" accepting his resignation.

In accepting the local board's offer, Rankin pointed out that Greenville was one of the world's largest markets and expressed himself as feeling honored with having the opportunity to serve as supervisor.

He will be joined here later by his family.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Behind Brown's Budgets

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., far from flinching at the ridicule of Jimmy Carter's Washington over his demand for a constitutionally-imposed balanced federal budget, is convinced the U.S. is on the verge of fundamental, inflation-connected political changes that he intends to shape and lead.

In the few days of his second term, Brown has already wrought political change here that has split him from conventional party leaders and delivered stunning help from both elected Republicans and influential businessmen.

But it is the national Democratic party and the 1980 presidential nomination, which Brown clearly wants, that will feel the full force of Brown's political conversion. Brown is hurling his challenge directly at President Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy and the party's traditional constituencies. As he told us in his office here: "America is running on panic today" — and voters want basic fiscal changes to end the horror of inflation and make America competitive again.

Both Brown's principal legislative leader, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, and the state's top Democrat in Washington, Sen. Alan Cranston, have publicly broken with Brown on his Jan. — or a constitutional ban of federal red ink. Indeed, Brown is probably the first jostled governor to be booed by his own state party, as he was at the Democratic convention here Jan. 20 when he first appeared at the podium.

Instead of backing down with apologies, Brown carefully built his case in a tightly reasoned explanation of fiscal "reality," then attacked "experts," "the Ph.D.s" and the "timid souls" who defend red-ink spending even at the peak of today's recovery cycle. At the end, delegates in the nation's

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

As a Christian and an elder in the United Methodist Church, I am deeply concerned about one fact of the E. R. A. that is almost completely ignored and rejected by the supporters of this Amendment.

I sanction all the energy that is being spent for equal pay and equal rights for women. There are many inequalities which should be corrected, that are long overdue. My concern is over something that is happening under the present wording of the E. R. A., which is: "That NO discrimination can be made on the basis of sex." This does open the door for same-sex marriages.

I have in my possession an article written by Gary J. Flom, Box 474, Loveland, Colorado 80537 which states: "One county in Colorado (a state which has already ratified the E. R. A.) had issued six marriage licenses to homosexuals and lesbians and that a local judge ruled that they were legal under the E. R. A. . . . The article further stated that "The Ft. Collins chapter of N. O. W. (the largest and most influential of all feminist organizations supporting the passage of the E. R. A.) has its Apr. 2 meeting at the Methodist Church and the program was presented by the Sexuality and Lesbian Task Force. The article contains the N. O. W. RESOLUTION 128-Passed, 5th Annual Conference, September, 1971, in which they pledge "that we recognize the lesbians as sisters and their oppression becomes an integral part of the woman's liberation movement."

I have consulted an outstanding Christian attorney and his answer is "That the present wording of the E. R. A. does open the door for same-sex marriages."

The supporters of the E. R. A. have sought for and obtained an extension of time to try through any and every means to force non-supporters to bow to their pressure. I ask, is this human rights? Does this speak to the dignity of all people?

Inventing Jobs Now Complex

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The most effective way to produce jobs is to invent them, said the gentleman. He wasn't being superficial. Jobs can be invented, he said. Productive jobs, not federal make-work projects.

Such as the electric light bulb which, he noted, developed into an industry that since 1879 has provided work for scores of millions of people in dozens of industries relying upon electric power.

Or the airplane, which gave rise to millions of jobs in engineering, construction, piloting, traffic control, maintenance and the like, or the analytical engine, which developed into today's digital computer.

With nagging unemployment and nagging productivity growth two of the country's biggest problems, invention will be acclaimed, celebrated and honored this year in dozens of pageants, fairs, exhibits and the like.

President Carter proclaimed Edison's birthday, Feb. 11 (1847), as National Inventors' Day. Fort Myers, Fla., his winter home, began a two-week pageant today. Centennial of Light events, recalling the light bulb's invention on Oct. 21, 1879, are scheduled throughout the year.

It's as if to invoke the spirit of the Edisons, "Brights, Bells, Fords, Marconis (radio-telegraph), Goddards (rocketry) and other productive tinkers who launched the industrial world of the 20th century."

The question on many a mind, however, is whether ceremony is enough. Sociologists claim the spirit is gone, conquered by big business and big government. Critics of education say it too stifles curiosity.

You'll get an argument on such claims. In the past three decades or so, you are reminded, we've split the atom, broke the sound barrier, conquered polio, explored space, developed instant photography, perfected the computer, made TV a household fixture.

What's the difference, say scientists, is that invention is often so complex and costly it may require the efforts of many individuals, disciplines, and laboratories — as well as business and government.

Jim Cook, president of the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation, Southfield, Mich., isn't so sure. He feels that our attitudes toward education, formal and in the home, do indeed tend to discourage investigation.

THE GOSPEL OF LITTLE THINGS

The little kindnesses of life are often the most significant ones. Occasionally we hear about wealthy men who make munificent gifts for philanthropic purposes. They endow colleges, they establish foundations, they build new wings on hospitals.

These things are certainly important, but even more so are the multitude of little things which all of us can do. As our Lord put it, "I was hungry, and ye gave me to eat; I was thirsty and ye gave me to drink; I was a stranger for veterans. Few acts have had more popular support. But veterans of World War II were 92 percent white and 97 percent male. Veterans of Korea were 85 percent white and 98 percent male. As a direct result of adhering to the government's own policies, Sears and other large employers now find that their senior work force is, not surprisingly, largely male and largely white.

At the bottom of Sears' complaint is the charge that federal enforcement agencies operate through the simplistic use of statistics that have little to do with the real world. For example, it is a fact of life that more women than men are interested in part-time work. This is the way the real world is. But the bureaucracy is not much interested in the real world. If the figures show a disproportionate number of women in part-time jobs, the employer must be engaged in invidious discrimination.

It is hard to predict the outcome of Sears' suit, for no litigation quite like it ever has been filed before. If it ever gets to actual trial, the case will provide a forum for exposing the many inconsistent, conflicting regulations that employers are expected to live with. The publicity may prompt action from the Congress or the bureaucracy, or both. At the very least, Sears will have the satisfaction of putting the government on the defensive. That's a splendid place for government to be.

for Brown. Four days earlier he insisted on addressing the top brass of the Big Four auto companies (guests of the California Chamber of Commerce) at the Century Plaza Hotel. Out-of-state invitations for Brown are piling up in record numbers.

In his interview with us at the state capitol, Brown ridiculed opposition to his call for a constitutional convention to force an end of deficit spending and halt what he calls "this perverse government money machine." The decline of the U.S., he told us, is directly tied to the decline of its currency which in turn is directly influenced by the immense red-ink spending of the past dozen years. Politicians in Washington may have trouble understanding that, he says, but voters have no trouble at all.

Brown is acutely sensitive to charges that he is a political opportunist who has undergone frequent conversions — now from a liberal Democrat (who managed Eugene McCarthy's 1968 presidential campaign here) to a conservative Republican. What has changed, he insists, are objective circumstances and the voters. "Before Franklin Roosevelt, no one could imagine the New Deal," he told us. "Now what is coming in the '80s no one can begin to appreciate. We are moving into a new cycle" — a cycle that will change the map of today's politics in unpredictable ways.

To Republicans and conservative Democrats, this is like catnip. Fred L. Hartley, chairman of Union Oil refused to give Brown a nickel for his reelection campaign; he recently sent $20,000 to help liquidate Brown's $800,000 campaign debt.

Republican Assembly leader Paul Priolo, the No. 1 opposition legislator, has informed his party he will do nothing to blunt Brown's balanced budget campaign. One of Speaker McCarthy's trusted Assembly leaders, a Democratic powerhouse on the Ways and Means Committee, warned McCarthy to expect no anti-Brown help from him, saying: "I'm sticking with Brown and the balanced budget right into the White House."

Brown himself is a man possessed of an idea and entirely convinced of his rectitude. If he can convince his party and his country, the world will be hearing more from Jerry Brown.

Republican slogan used against him, denied ever promising "a chicken in every pot," but King Henry IV of France did back in the 16th century. For this he was known as "Le Roi de la poule au pot": king of the chicken in the pot. Lyndon Johnson may have staked out the New Frontier but he didn't originate the expression: Alf Landon borrowed it from Henry Wallace. The "lunatic fringe" goes back to Teddy Roosevelt, who warned against "parlor pinks." "You can't beat somebody with nobody" goes all the way back to Abe Lincoln. Al Smith saw "red herrings" long before Harry Truman. Harold Ickes is credited with "government by crony," but the phrase was a gift from columnist Arthur Krock.

Safire, who won a Pulitzer Prize for his relentless skewering of Bert Lance, now finds as much satisfaction in chasing words as coining them. "Maybe 100 years from now somebody will pick my dictionary off a dusty shelf hunting for an expression and that will be as close as I can get to immortality. It's a comforting thought."

Circle K Week Is Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox has declared Feb. 4-10 as Circle K Week in Greenville.

In his proclamation, Cox mentioned, "in the past quarter century outstanding advances have been made in science, technology, communications, agriculture, commerce, and industry in the United States, Canada, Jamaica, and the Bahamas."

The mayor added, "these advancements have created challenging problems for mankind." These challenges, according to Cox, "have been accepted by individuals and organizations such as Circle K International."

He said, "the concerned members of Circle K International, an organization of involved college students, sponsored by Kiwanis International, want to embrace humanity through association with the lonely, sustaining human life through the protection of natural resources, and recognizing community leaders."

CETA Overhaul Is Announced Today

By OWEN ULLMANN

AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The

Labor Department today announced an overhaul of its CETA public jobs and training program in an attempt to eliminate shoddy management, fraud and other abuses that have plagued the $10 billion program.

Key changes in CETA — which stands for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act — include a shakeup of top management in Washington, improved monitoring of local operations to spot fraud, and new rules that specifically ban nepotism, political patronage and other abuses.

Other changes set tighter eligibility requirements geared more to poor, long-term unemployed people; reduce wage rates; limit employment in a public job to 18 months, and encourage private industry to participate more with the government in creating new jobs.

"CETA's record over the last two years has not been unblemished," Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said in presenting what he dubbed, "The New CETA."

"Any program as large, diverse and decentralized as CETA will encounter problems," he said. "But I strongly believe that government can — and should — learn from its mistakes. Particularly in a time of tight budget dollars, we cannot afford to continue wasteful and ineffective programs." Most of the changes were ordered by Congress last fall when it approved a three-year extension for CETA.

CETA, the largest public jobs program since the Great Depression of the 1930s, has a budget of $10.3 billion this year to create 625,000 jobs and provide other assistance to the unemployed.

The Carter administration has hailed CETA for helping reduce the nation's jobless rate.

But the program also has come under attack because of widespread abuses that have included theft, embezzlement, kickbacks, the hiring of ineligible people, distribution of CETA jobs for political and other improper purposes and bad management.

Although no accurate estimates are available, it is believed that millions of federal dollars have been skimmed from local CETA programs because of fraud.

Jones Seeks A Way To Bar Leaf-Graders' Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — A North Carolina congressman and aides to the state's two senators are looking for ways to defeat the Carter administration's plan to cut the number of federal tobacco graders and to extend flue-cured sales to five days a week.

But John P. Duncan, the Agriculture Department official who made the cutback decision, said, "I don't foresee this one being reversed."

The grader cutback has brought complaints from warehouse operators who say that their operations will be disrupted and their labor costs will rise.

Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the House tobacco subcommittee, said Wednesday that he plans to set hearings on the matter after he is reconfirmed as the panel's chairman.

"I have definite plans to hold hearings within the next few weeks in an attempt to convince OMB (the Office of Management and Budget) and the (agriculture) department that it's false economy to disrupt the system," Jones said.

USDA said the drop in the number of graders will save $215,000 — the difference in what it would spend to work 66 sets of graders four days a week and it would spend to work 56 sets five days a week.

An aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Wednesday that he had scheduled a meeting with P.R. "Bobby" Smith the assistant USDA secretary who ordered the grader cutback, to attempt to persuade Smith that the department's reasoning was incorrect.

"The economics of the USDA claim would evaporate under the scrutiny of a sharp pencil," said George S. Dunlop, the aide.

An aide to Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., is also said to be working on the issue.

Warehousemen argue that they Fridays free of sales to clear tobacco from their warehouses and to line up sales for the following week.

Big Readers

WINTERVILLE — Althea Weathington, a W. H. Robinson reading lab teacher, and her assistant, Betty Lou Brock, announce the following students have read the most books for the third marking period:

"Bears," Wadie Tucker; "Cougars," Ronnie Cox; "Giants," Gary Kastle; "Lions," Andy Stocks; "Pirates," Edwin Whitehurst; and "Tigers," Ollie Mayo.

Emergency Steps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials, faced with continuing shortages of Iranian crude oil, are considering a ban on Sunday gasoline sales and a variety of other measures reminiscent of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Wednesday the Carter administration will decide by April 1 whether to impose mandatory conservation measures. But he said such actions would not be needed if the public voluntarily saves fuel.

Among the mandatory measures that might be taken are allocating gasoline from refineries to distributors and suspending evening and Sunday sales; government officials said.

Also under consideration is limiting motorists' purchases to alternate days.

Direct rationing has been ruled out, officials said. So far, Schlesinger said, "the position of the U.S. has not been dramatically affected" by the upheaval in Iran that forced the shah to leave that country. The virtual shutoff of oil exports from Iran "is just beginning to bind now," he said.

The United States normally gets about 5 percent of its crude oil from Iran.

Other oil producing countries, most notably Saudi Arabia, have made up for much of the Iranian loss. But there have been reports the Saudis would produce an average of only 9.5 million barrels a day in the first four months of 1979. The normal daily average is nearly 10.5 million barrels.

Schlesinger said he had seen nothing from Iran that would indicate a return to normalcy is imminent.

EMERGENCY LANDING — A twin-engine Beechcraft owned by a Reading, Pa. firm was forced to make a belly-landing Wednesday in Reading when it encountered landing gear difficulties. Ronald L. Ferrell, of Aberdeen, N.J. was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with back injuries. The pilot, E.R. Witke, also of New Jersey, was not injured. They were the only persons in the plane. (AP Laserphoto)

Withhold Wake Forest Funds

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Board of the Baptist State Convention Wednesday approved recommendations to withhold funds from Wake Forest University, despite opposition to the action by several board members.

The board also voted to retain legal counsel to help resolve a dispute over control of the school in Winston-Salem. The proposals had been recommended Tuesday by the convention's executive committee and Council on Christian Higher Education.

The Baptist Convention earmarks about $1 million a year for Wake Forest. The funds will be placed in a special escrow savings account until the controversy is settled.

About 75 of the general board's 110 members attended Wednesday's session. About 12 members voted against the recommendations.

The dispute stems from a September 1978 charter revision by the university board of trustees and further action in December that established more independence in the nomination of trustees.

The trustees eliminated requirements that trustees be chosen by the convention, that trustees be North Carolina Baptists and that the university remain an agency of the convention.

The Rev. Frank Campbell, president of the higher education council, told members of the board that the action should not be interpreted as punitive.

"I would like for you to think of this as a debate in a family," Campbell said. "Some member of the family has to sit down and make some reconciliations. That's what this committee is doing."

Campbell said the decision to seek legal counsel does not mean that the convention will take the issue to courts.

Several members of the General Board said in speeches before the vote was taken that they were opposed to withholding funds from Wake Forest.

"What really happened is that we found out that the trustees at Wake Forest had more authority than we thought they had, and so for this, we are going to punish them," said William Aa. Hough of Huntersville.

The Rev. Charles D. Hinson said he could not "morally accept the convention's decision."

Grady R. Funderburke of Wilmington said, "I am uncomfortable that we voted in the convention to fund one of our institutions, and now we are turning about and saying we are going un-fund."

"We are a Christian group," Funderburke added. "If we can't solve this little issue...then I'll tell you that we're going to have a terrible time evangelizing the world in the year 2000."

But the Rev. Fred Barnes of Lenoir said he thought the action was a "positive step."

The Rev. Mark Cortis, president of the Baptist Convention, said he believed the action was necessary because Wake Forest trustees changed the university's relationship with the convention.

Dr. Ralph Scales, president of Wake Forest, said after the vote that university officials will work closely with the convention to resolve the issue.

"We have a common problem. When this problem is worked out, and we're going to find a through, it will be a proud day common solution," Scales said. for North Carolina Baptists."

How's The Weather?

FORECAST

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and snow flurries are expected in the forecast period until Friday morning, from the Southwest through the Plains into the Midwest and reaching to the western Carolinas. Rain is forecast for the central Gulf with cold weather across the country. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
More snow fell in the northwestern mountain area of North Carolina today while strong northwesterly winds and cold dry air made it feel a lot colder than it actually was.

The weather service had predicted that four additional inches of snow would fall in the area around Boone. It put out a traveler's warning for the remainder of the North Carolina mountain area because of slippery roads. Elsewhere across the state skies were sunny.

A low pressure area along with cold temperatures brought a dusting of snow all across North Carolina Wednesday morning. Upwards of an inch fell in the central portion of the state while four more inches were recorded in the mountains. During the afternoon Wednesday, skies cleared and a bright sun melted much of the snow.

Highs Wednesday were mostly in the 40s and ranged from 37 at Rocky Mount to 45 at Wilmington. Small craft advisories were posted over coastal waters because of the strong northwesterly winds.

The forecast called for clear and cold tonight with lows ranging from around zero to 15 above in the mountains. Lows in the teens were expected elsewhere except along the coast where the 20s were expected. The weather service forecast not quite so cold for Friday with increasing cloudiness.

More precipitation was expected in the state Saturday and Sunday with snow a possibility late Friday night or Saturday morning.

NEWSPAPER PURCHASED
GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Multimedia, Inc., has closed the purchase of the Daily News-Chief of Winter Haven, Fla. The acquisition brings to 11 the number of daily newspapers owned by the company.

New Promotion Rules Outlined

Sgt. Rusty Gee Jr., local Air Force recruiter, announced that the Air Force will now offer immediate or accelerated promotion to many of its enlistees.

Gee said that as of Jan. 1, graduates of Junior ROTC and Billy Mitchell Award winners in the Civil Air Patrol who qualify for enlistment will enter active duty as airman first class, three steps up the promotion ladder.

According to the recruiter, all six-year enlistees will be promoted to airman first class after basic training.

He invited interested persons to contact him at 323 Evans Street.

Will Honor '78 Citizen

GRIFTON — Grifton's Outstanding Citizen for 1978 will be honored during the annual Grifton Chamber of Commerce Newcomers' Dinner Tuesday, Feb. 6, 7 p.m.

Reservations for the dinner may be made by calling Yvonne Smith, First Federal Savings and Loan, 524-4128, or Joyce McLawhorn, George Saleeby Insurance and Realty, 524-4191.

The meeting, to be held in the Grifton School cafeteria and catered by the American Restaurant of Grifton, will allow both newcomers and established citizens to honor the outstanding citizen.

Newcomers who have not been contacted to attend should call either Ms. Smith or Ms. McLawhorn as soon as possible. Those who have received reservation cards but have not returned them are also asked to call so that plans may be made by Friday.

A short Shad Festival planning meeting will be held immediately after the dinner.

NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of stability in Iran settled the stock market today after three days of heavy losses.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down about 20 points so far this week, was off .08 to 839.14 at noon.

Gainers trailed losers 2-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said investors seemed to be taking a wait-and-see attitude on the return to Iran of opposition religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Although Khomeini's return touched off enthusiastic rallies in Iran, opening the possibility that the strife in that nation may soon end, his anti-American attitude worries many experts.

McGraw-Hill topped the active list, rising 1 to 28 1/2. On Wednesday, the firm turned down a $40 per share offer from American Express Co. That decision knocked the price of McGraw-Hill's stock down 3 1/2 in a late trade on the Pacific Stock Exchange Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index of all listed common stocks dipped .10 to 55.89. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .54 to 158.70.

Volume on the Big Board at noon was 12.85 million shares.

White Consolidated Industries, second on the active list, rose 1 1/2 to 21 1/2. White agreed Wednesday to buy General Motors' Frigidaire division, making White the nation's third largest appliance manufacturer, GM rose 1/4 to 56 1/2.

New Director Of NCNB Bd.

North Carolina National Bank announced that Mrs. Janet Maury Stoughton has been elected to the bank's Greenville board of directors.

MRS. JANET STOUGHTON

The action was taken at a meeting of the bank's general board of directors in Charlotte following Mrs. Stoughton's nomination by the Greenville board.

The new director is president of Quixote Travelers Inc. here, which operates as a full service travel agency. She is a member of Travel Agents of the Carolinas, American Society of Travel Agents and International Air Transport Association.

Mrs. Stoughton, who is a member of the board of the Lenoir County Kinston Airport Advisory Committee, serves on the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce's Tourism Committee and the Project Advisory Committee of the Central Business District. She is a member of Greenville Golf and Country Club and St. Paul's Episcopal Church where she has served on the finance committee.

A native of Nassau, Bahamas, she is a graduate of Marjorie Webster College in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Stoughton has three children and resides at 209 York Road in Brook Valley.

ment. "We were, however, a little disappointed. We all need a little snow."

According to Allen, the Public Works Department has a special alert plan, so that certain hills in the Greenville area can be blocked off for sledding when snow falls.

A spokesman for the state Maintenance Department of the Department of Transportation said that other than wet roads, there were not any particularly hazardous conditions caused by the snow.

Malcolm Green of the Greenville Utilities Commission noted that a special mobile transformer had been returned to the Commission yesterday. The transformer could have been put to use if ice had caused any transformer problems.

However, no problems were reported as of this morning, Allen said. He did note that the Commission had spotted a "pretty heavy load" Wednesday morning, indicating the high energy usage in the Greenville area.

"It's supposed to get down to 12 degrees tonight," said Green in a Wednesday morning interview. "I'm speculating that we may have possibly the highest energy load ever in the winter Friday morning if that is the case."

Almost an inch of precipitation fell Wednesday, according to the Water Department of the GUC, consisting of a little rain and snow. The temperature reached 49 degrees Fahrenheit Wednesday, with a recorded low of 27 degrees.

The river level was measured 14.1 feet on the national scale Wednesday, with a reading Thursday morning of 13 feet, according to the GUC.

Returned To Face Charge

A 30-year-old Wrightsville Beach man, arrested here November 12 on charges of possession and sale of cocaine, was returned to Greenville by police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation earlier this week, Chief Glenn Cannon reported.

Cannon said Larry Bruce Moss was taken into custody by officers in Dallas, Texas, and turned over to local authorities for failing to appear in court on the drug violation charges.

Bond on the failing to appear charge, according to Cannon was set at $50,000.

Moss was placed under a $100,000 bond after he was arrested in November with a pound of cocaine in his possession. The November arrest, according to Cannon, took place in the parking lot of Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

SBI agents and Drug Enforcement Administration agents assisted local officers local police in the earlier case.

Storekeeper Is Slain In Holdup

EDENTON, N.C. (AP) — A 61-year-old storekeeper was slain Wednesday in what authorities said was a holdup at his grocery in the Five Points Community near Edenton.

The victim was identified as Lester Augustus Jones. Authorities said he appeared to have been shot but the exact cause of death would have to await an autopsy. They said there were no witnesses.

Virginia Upsets Maryland; Duke Overcomes Wake, 75-60

By The Associated Press

career Wednesday night as he watched unheralded Virginia hold 17th-ranked Maryland without a field goal and rally for a 69-63 upset of the Terps in Atlantic Coast Conference action.

"It doesn't look like we can stand prosperity," said Driesell, whose squad beat No. 1 Notre Dame last Saturday. "We played like a bunch of prima donnas in the first half. It looked like Virginia wanted it worse than we did."

Virginia, which snapped a two-game conference losing streak with the victory at College Park, improved to 13-6 overall and 4-3 in the ACC, while Maryland fell to 14-6 and 3-3.

In the only other conference game on tap, third-ranked Duke used its steadily improving inside game and center Mike Gminski for a 75-60 victory over Wake Forest.

Clemson, which hosts College, is the only ACC team in action tonight.

The Terps were down by nine points at intermission but came back for a 62-59 lead on an eight-point string that ended with a Greg Manning field goal at 8:01. That was the last Maryland basket and the Cavaliers, playing their third consecutive game without the injured Lee Raker, rebounded with their own six-point streak.

Jeff Lamp, the ACC's leading scorer with a 24 point per game average, drilled in the go-ahead basket and finished with 25 points.

Mike Owens, who scored 13 points, followed Lamp with another field goal and after Buck Williams sank one of two free throws for Maryland, Owens converted a one-and-one foul situation for a 67-63 lead with 24 seconds left. Bobby Stokes scored the final basket just before time expired.

Ernie Graham scored 16 points to lead Maryland, Albert King had 14 and Williams 13. Gminski scored a game-high 26 points as Duke improved to 15-3 and 4-1, e ACC.

"Gminski played an impressive game," agreed Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy. "He was the key."

Tacy said Wake Forest, which reduced a 14-point Duke lead to two points, 33-31 at intermission, determined its fate in the first five minutes of the second half.

Cougars Take Two From Vikes

PINETOPS — Southwest Edgecombe High School celebrated the official opening of its new school building last night by taking a pair of games from D.H. Conley High School.

The Cougar boys won their game, 67-58, while the girls took a 48-41 decision. Conley managed a 55-50 win in the junior varsity game.

Conley's girls fell behind in the opening period, 11-6, but pulled back to trail by 18-17 at halftime. In the third period, however, Southwest pulled away again, building up a 38-29 lead. Conley tried to rally, but could cut only two off the lead.

Alpha Jenkins led Southwest with 18 points, while Glenda Green had 17 for Conley.

In the boys' game, the Cougars eased ahead, 17-15, after one period, then stretched that out to 31-24 by the end of the half.

Southwest continued to pull away, building its margin to 49-38 going into the final period, when it allowed Conley a 20-18 rally.

Jeremiah Sumner led Southwest with 19 points, while Kennedy Forbes had 15 and Dennis Batts had 11. Shawn Little paced Conley with 23.

Rampants, Test Rocky Mount In Quest For Division I's Lead

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's basketball Rampants again face two tough tests in the week ahead, as the team tries to hang onto second and make a play for first place in the Division I standings.

With just five games left in the season, the Rampants are tied for second place just one game behind league-leading Northern Nash with a 6-3 conference record. During the past week, the Rampants had to battle to down winless Hunt High School, and then had to hold off a Wilson Fike rally for a second win.

"Hunt played us real tough," Coach Jim Brewington said. "They shot real well right up until the end, but it was a good win for us. Fike was just too good for us to play a zone defense against, and after we switched from it to man-to-man, we were able to come back on them."

Brewington pointed out that the Rampants had a hot-shooting second half, and that was one of the keys to their victory.

"It seems like we have a new hero every night, too," he added. "William Frizzell came off the bench to get some key rebounds and baskets for us. Calvin Whichard, who was slowed by an injury on Friday, was also one of the big differences in the game Tuesday, scoring 21 points. And (Donald) House played his usual fine game."

Turning to the upcoming week, Brewington said that winning these two games are "musts" if the Rampants hope to finish first in the league standings.

"Rocky Mount has a very good club. They beat us earlier at home, so that won't make it any easier. Mike Lewis, who dropped off the team earlier, is back now, and that makes them better too.

"But I think if we can keep shooting well, and cut down on our turnovers, we can beat anyone in the conference. That's what's hurting us—turnovers."

Brewington added that Rocky Mount will have a height advantage over the Rampants, but he hopes that the Rose quickness will help to offset that.

Then, on Tuesday, when the Rampants travel to Elizabeth City to face Northeastern, Rose faces another tough challenge. "Northeastern is capable of playing good ball. They've just been up and down. The long trip isn't going to help us any either."

"I would like to see us put a game together, with our good shooting and a low turnover rate. I think we could beat about anyone then," Brewington added.

The basketball action is the only Rose activity, which also includes the junior varsity and girls' teams, in the seven-day period starting tomorrow.

Rose's wrestlers took part in the conference tournament today, and will host the sectionals on next Friday and Saturday.

Dates have been set for the Division I playoffs, which will follow the usual format of playing at the site of the higher-ranked team. Boys' playoffs are scheduled for February 19, 21 and 23, with the girls' set for February 20, 22 and 24. Where possible girls' games will be scheduled as doubleheaders a day earlier when girls' and boys' teams from the same schools are at home.

Since there are now eight teams in the conference, there will be no byes.

The conference will send two representatives to the state playoffs. The tournament champion will automatically qualify, with the regular season champ receiving the second berth. If the same team wins both, the tournament runner-up will be the number two team.

The champion will travel to face the winner of the Division III crown (Fayetteville area), while the loser will also be on the road to face the Division IV winner (Sanford-Rockingham area). Winners advance to the state finals in Greensboro.

Dillon Resigns As Cage Aide

Herb Dillon, assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University for the past two seasons, has resigned his post to complete his doctoral degree in higher education administration.

Dillon, 31, resigned effective today to make final preparations to return to school in the summer.

"I've enjoyed my tenure here at East Carolina and have been happy to contribute to the program," Dillon said. "I am looking forward to completing my degree."

No timetable for naming a successor has been announced.

Dillon came to East Carolina as the first appointment to the staff of present coach Larry Gillman following an extensive background in the junior college ranks and at four-year schools in Indiana and Texas.

He was the originator of the National Junior College All-Star game played in San Antonio, Tex., and the Basketball Talent Service, a national junior college scouting report.

A graduate of Vincennes Junior College and Indiana State, Dillon came to East Carolina from North Texas State, where he was an assistant coach. Dillon began his doctoral work at North Texas, following completion of his master's there.

Other duties included serving as volunteer assistant coach at Marion, Indiana, High School; graduate assistant at Texas Tech, and part-time assistant at North Texas. He also served a tour of duty in the Marine Corps.

Dillon is married to the former Alita Brown of Waco, Texas. She serves as volleyball and softball coach for the East Carolina women's sports program.

Pirate Women Host Highly-Ranked State

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor
Friday night, the top women's basketball team in the state visits East Carolina University, and the Lady Pirates will be out for revenge for one of their worst losses of the year.

Game time has been changed from 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. for the contest to be played in Minges Coliseum.

N.C. State's Wolfpack, ranked all year long as one of the best in the country, brings its 15-4 record into Minges, while the Pirates come in with an 11-7 record.

"This is a very important game for us," ECU Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "Their win over us was early, only the second game of the year, and we were young and new to my style of basketball," she added. Andruzzi is in her first year of coaching at East Carolina.

That first meeting resulted in a 106-74 win for the Wolfpack. "While we lost by 32, it really didn't seem like that much," Andruzzi said. "But I think people will see an entirely different type of game this time. We've improved a lot. State has improved too and has a strong team."

"We've come a long way, and had our ups and downs. But we've won our last two convincingly, and I think we're ready. We're playing team ball much better, and if we can keep it up, I think we can give State a good fight."

State coach Kay Yow, in a telephone press conference earlier in the week, said that the Wolfpack is playing more consistently now. "We're getting good efforts individually, and that has contributed to an all-around improvement in team effort over the last two weeks."

Yow praised ECU's Rosie Thompson as being one of the top ones around, and added that Gale Kerbaugh and Lydia Rountree were playing well now, and that Marcia Girven is much improved.

N.C. STATE INSPECTION STATION

THERE MAY NEVER have been more equity in college basketball than there is this season. Several teams have been ranked number one in the polls already and any number seem capable of capturing the NCAA tournament in March.

Last Saturday, that equity reared its head in formidable fashion. Of the eight teams ranked in the top 10 by the Associated Press that played Saturday, five lost, including the top two and three of the top four. All lost to teams not ranked in the top 20.

Saturday afternoon, Maryland nipped top-rated Notre Dame on national television 67-66. Northwestern clobbered fourth-rated Michigan State 83-65 and Michigan downed number eight Illinois 56-54. Saturday night, Clemson defeated second-ranked North Carolina 66-61 and Georgia topped ninth-place LSU 93-80. It's being called the "Saturday Night Massacre."

The most surprising of the wins was that by Northwestern. S. L. Larsen of Basketball Weekly rates the top 150 teams in the nation, but Northwestern didn't even make the list in the most recent edition of the magazine. Maryland was rated 30th, Michigan was 58th, Clemson was 73rd and Georgia was 131st.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL has been approaching this point ever since UCLA's 12-year dynasty of the sport finally ended in 1976. From 1964 until 1975, the Bruins won 10 NCAA tournaments.

The supply of quality basketball talent coming out of high school today seems almost limitless. There's so much to go around that even obscure schools like Indiana State, now ranked second in the nation, can recruit well enough against giants like Kentucky and in-state Indiana to build a national power.

The NCAA has helped achieve this equity through such rules as those limiting scholarships and benefits that schools can provide basketball players. These rules make it possible for those programs on limited budgets to compete with those with limitless funds.

Of course, the established programs are still enjoying great success, and it's a good bet that one of them will come out on top in the tournament. But it certainly makes for an interesting season when a team like Northwestern, 5-12, can beat the number four team in the nation by 18 points.

ONE THING THAT all of Saturday's upsets had in common was where they were played. In each game, the home team came out on top. The home court is a decided advantage in basketball. Witness Clemson's back-to-back ACC victories over Carolina and State in Littlejohn Coliseum.

One reason the home floor is more of an advantage

JoJo White Likes His New Team; Helps Set Up Winning Basket

By The Associated Press

It didn't take long for Jo Jo White to notice something about his new club. And it didn't take the Golden State Warriors long to notice Jo Jo White.

After Golden State scored a last-second 108-106 triumph over the Philadelphia 76ers Wednesday night, White observed: "This Warriors team, it has cohesiveness. The guys are more together and working toward a goal."

The goal, of course, is to move upward from the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division cellar. And the triumph kept the Warriors within a game of the fourth-place San Diego Clippers.

"I'm willing to do what I can for the club. It's not easy to step into a new dressing room," said White, who until Monday had dressed in the Boston Celtics' locker room...somewhere in the basement of the Atlantic Division.

Knicks 108, Pistons 86

The Knicks, with the league minimum eight players dressed for the contest because of injuries, got 34 points from Bob McAdoo to snap a six-game losing streak and an eight-game road winless streak. Toby Knight added 26 points for New York while Bob Lanier led the Pistons with 22 points.

Celtics 119, Rockets 102

Boston played without the oft-punished Marvin Barnes, but got 28 points from Cornbread Maxwell to beat Houston. Player-coach Dave Cowens and Chris Ford added 22 points each for the Celtics, while Rudy Tomjanovich collected 16 for the Rockets.

Hawks 130, Kings 118

John Drew collected 31 points and Eddie Johnson contributed 28 as Atlanta capitalized on loose Kansas City defense to upend the Kings, frontrunners in the Midwest Division.

Suns 123, Bucks 118

Paul Westphal scored 28 points and had a career-high 14 assists to carry Phoenix past Milwaukee. Walter Davis added 26 points and Alvan Adams — working the backdoor play with Westphal all night — added 24. The Bucks were led by Marques Johnson's 25 points.

Clippers 112, Nets 104

San Diego got 25 points from Lloyd Free in beating the Nets and giving the Clippers their sixth straight home triumph. The Clippers won the game at the free-throw line, making 30 of their 35 attempts; the Nets, meanwhile, got only 11 chances from the line and made six.

Super-Sonics 115, Trail Blazers 112

Gus Williams scored 23 points, including a layup with 23 seconds left, to cement Seattle's triumph over Portland. Tom Owens got 23 points for the Trail Blazers.

On Academy

Awards

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Las Vegas gambling czars have laid down the betting odds for this year's Academy Award prospects, making "The Deer Hunter" the 6-5 favorite to win the Oscar for best picture. Other favorites were "Heaven Can Wait" at 7-5; "The Boys From Brazil" and "Interiors" at 8-5; "Midnight Express" at 2-1; and "The Children of Sanchez" and "California Suite" at 12-5. The gamblers pegged Gregory Peck and Robert DeNiro as 6-5 favorites for best actor and Ingrid Bergman at 6-5 for best actress for her performance in "Autumn Sonata."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 2, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening for you to enjoy yourself at recreations that you have recently become acquainted with. Personal worries can be removed by clear thinking and positive action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The planets are favorable for some new beginning that will bring much better conditions around you. Keep active for best results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your intuition if unexpected problems come up today. Maintain a cheerful manner in your dealings with others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact good allies and plan to have more accord and success in the future. Work and play at a measured pace for best results.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to handle a monetary matter early in the day so you will have time for recreation later.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are eager to advance in your line of endeavor, and can do so, if you put on your thinking cap. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you carry through with promises you have made and gain the goodwill of others. Be more frugal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Others could be quite demanding now and so could you, but this leads to more activity, which is good. Strive for happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have to get an early start if you want to complete all those tasks ahead of you. Take treatments to build up your vitality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Delve into work that must be done early in the day so you will have time for recreation later. Show others you have wisdom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make better arrangements at home with family members and have greater harmony there. Make plans for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Personal worries can be removed now by clear thinking and positive action. Follow your hunches which are accurate now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to help less fortunate persons in their needs and show that you are a humanitarian. Use extreme care in motion.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a quick mind and many talents, and should be given specialized training in order to do the best kind of work during lifetime. There could be a very fine musician here. Don't neglect ethical training early in life.

There is no substitute at the bridge table for what Hercule Poirot calls "the little gray cells." East put them to work on this hand and, with his partner's cooperation, came up with a stunning defense to defeat a seemingly secure no trump game.

South had a difficult problem after East opened the bidding with one club. He couldn't double with such scant support for the majors, and an overcall of one diamond wouldn't nearly do his hand justice. Since jumps to two or three diamonds would have been preemptive, South decided to make a somewhat offbeat overcall of one no trump. That was not ideal with such an odd-shaped hand and two suits virtually unstopped, but at least it showed his strength. West raised clubs preemptively and North made a competitive effort with two no trump. South decided to go to game on the strength of his running six-card suit.

West led his fourth-best heart, and East took time out to review the situation. Obviously, the defenders were not going to get many tricks in hearts, and the fact that West did not lead a club suggested that he was not strong in that suit. Dummy's length in diamonds also convinced East that that suit could not be profitably attacked. If the contract were to be defeated, then the tricks would have to come from spades.

So East won the ace of hearts and shifted to a low spade. Had West carelessly played the queen, declarer would have had clear sailing. But West, too, had worked out the position. He inserted the eight and dummy won the ten.

One Of Those It-Couldn't-Miss
Projects Didn't Quite Make ItBy PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mr. Horn," tonight on CBS, is one of those projects you'd figure just couldn't miss. It's a story about one of the most interesting Americans who ever lived, frontiersman Tom Horn.

Here's a subject whose real life begs no Hollywood endorsement; he was a cowboy, Indian fighter, detective and bounty hunter. Best, his life hasn't been mined out by television or the movies, which gives this story the promise of freshness.

The script was written by William Goldman, who owns the Oscars for his "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and "All the President's Men" screenplays. Good. Playing the enigmatic Tom Horn is the enigmatic David Carradine, with Richard Widmark as the tough old Indian scout Al Seiber, Horn's mentor.

It just couldn't miss, you think, but it doesn't quite make it, either.

Set against a beautiful Baja California scene, "Mr. Horn" effectively presents a Butch Cassidy-Sundance Kid analogy in Widmark and Carradine. In tonight's two-hour episode (the two-hour conclusion airs Saturday), Widmark enlists Carradine in the tracking of the great Apache chief, Geronimo, and the two spend much time trading anecdotes and generally carrying on like a couple of Old West characters.

There's attraction in that, and Western fans will like all the shoot-'em-up action. But there are huge gaps in the story line (which takes a quarter-hour to develop) that might make the impatient switch channels.

For example, with Horn and Seiber in the lead, a group of cavalymen enter Mexico looking for Geronimo. They run into a group of Mexican soldiers who want to know what these bluecoats are doing in their country. Horn, who speaks every language known to man, explains that they're just looking for Geronimo. The Mexicans say, "That's O.K. with us," or something like that, and agree to let the Americans pass. Next thing you know, both sides are blasting away at each other.

Another time, Horn tries to save the life of a captain who was killed in one of the early skirmishes. He fails, and a few weeks later, the captain's sister, Karen Black, comes to collect her brother's body.

It's all very cool, very businesslike when Miss Black meets Carradine on her way to Fort Bowie. She: "Did you know my brother?" He: "Oh, a little."

In the very next scene they're in her cabin making whoopee, without even the benefit of a commercial break to get acquainted.

There are lots of such unexplained developments in this story, which might have something to do with the fact that it was planned as a theatrical movie for Robert Redford. Maybe it lost something in the move from theater to TV, or in the switch from Redford to Carradine.

China Revisited

Theater And Culture In China Flourishing

EDITOR'S NOTE — This fourth in a series of seven articles by Shanghai-born Timothy T.S. Tung, who recently returned to China for the first time in 31 years, deals with the theater and other entertainment in China.

By TIMOTHY T.S. TUNG
For AP Newfeatures

Ever tried taking 22 people to theater in New York, all in the best seats, and getting the tickets the same morning?

Well, I did just that in Shanghai. The reasons for such a feat are simple: theater tickets are cheap, the best seats being .50 yuan (30 cents); I bought the tickets through Lu Xing She (the travel service), where blocks of seats are reserved daily for foreign guests.

The Chinese are enthusiastic theater goers, especially now, after the fall of the "Gang of Four." In three weeks in China we saw four performances, none of which was of "Red Regiment of Women" variety, or in any way with revolutionary flavor. In Shanghai we saw the famous Shanghai Acrobatic Group, but it was the dance drama Pao Lien Tun (The Treasure Lotus Lamp), performed by the graduates of Shanghai Musical Drama Institute, that astonished me.

Based on an ancient fairy tale of love and revenge, of good conquering evil, the dance drama with lavish costumes proved to be pure entertainment, with not a trace of political overtone. It was a mixture of modern and Chinese dance techniques, aided by the acrobatic skills of Peking Opera, expertly performed with tasteful lighting and stage settings.

In the theater lobby, a huge sign of Mao's quotations is displayed: "Let hundred flowers bloom; From the old create the new," as though to reassure the audience as well as the performers that such experiments are sanctioned by Mao Tse-tung thoughts.

Then, in Peking, the Ballet Corps of the Central Song-Drama-Dance Theater, for the first time in many years and without fanfare, was presenting classics, in Western costumes and makeup. The evening's program included excerpts from such standard fare as Swan Lake and Don Quixote.

For such an event they even brought out Pai Shu-hua, the 41-year-old prima ballerina, the first Chinese ballerina to be trained in Russia (it was reported that even under persecution during the Cultural Revolution she never let a day go by without practicing).

The performance of classical ballets was uneven, and the largely Chinese audience was listless. There were snickers, laughs, coughs, sneezes.

One could well understand the boredom suffered by a rural delegate, in the capital for official business, who happened to obtain a ticket to the ballet.

Above the stage is a huge sign in red: "Long live the victory of Chairman Mao's line on literature and art," another reassurance.

A fourth theater I visited was the local opera of Kirin Province of the Northeast, a recently developed opera-form under the initial encouragement of the late Premier Chou En-lai. The performances were thoroughly professional, with colorful costumes, again without any political propaganda in content.

Theater tickets, formerly distributed through work units (thus creating favoritism), are now sold to the public with a limit of four each. In front of all theaters and movie houses are long lines, day and night. To accommodate the demanding public, some movie houses schedule their first showing at 7:30 a.m.

Costume dramas such as, "The Red Chamber Dream," filmed in the '50s, are back. Japanese, Mexican and Romanian films are attracting crowds. In fact, any foreign films are popular. But the most popular now playing is an old English film, "The Millionaire." It is incongruous to see the poster of a young Gregory Peck staring at you in the streets of Shanghai and Peking.

Not only are theater and movies popular, but TV viewing is also gaining popularity. The weekly program of the Central Broadcasting Station in Peking, as listed in the people's Daily, reveals that emphasis is no longer on political indoctrination, but on education and entertainment.

Chinese TV starts at 6 p.m. and ends at 10 p.m. A typical day's program includes one hour of lectures on technology, half an hour of news, half an hour of English lessons, one hour of documentary films, and one hour of entertainment (Peking Opera, ballet, foreign films). On certain days, children's programs are emphasized.

TV-set owners are on the increase, but sets are not cheap. A Chinese-made small model is 420 yuan (about $250), more than a half-year's salary for an average Chinese. But most families have more than one wage earner. Since they don't have to worry about medical expenses and old age, most are eager to spend their savings on a TV set — if they can obtain one in the market.

Recreation Tournney Set

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Dept. will hold its one-on-one basketball tournament the week of Feb. 6 through 10. Preliminary tournaments will be held at three separate locations during the week.

The tournament at West Greenville Gym will begin at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 6. The South Greenville and Elm Street Gyms will have tournaments beginning at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9.

Interested persons nine years old or older wanting to play must pre-register at the gym where they plan to compete in preliminaries.

Registration will be held through Feb. 5, with no registering after 5 p.m.

Two finalists from each age group representing each of the three gyms will compete at Elm Street Gym Saturday, Feb. 10 at 9 a.m. Trophies will be awarded to winners of the city finals only.

low and that the fully equipped jet helicopter would cost an additional $350,000.

The panel had held up the proposal Tuesday along with requests for continued operation of two smaller choppers the Department of Administration already owns.

Bingo

The Senate Judiciary I Committee scheduled a public hearing for Feb. 8 on a statewide bingo bill. The proposal would eliminate local regulation of bingo and raffles and restrict the games to charitable organizations.

The hearing will be held at 10 a.m. in the Legislative Building auditorium.

Trails

The Senate Natural and Economic Resources Committee okayes a report to a bill allowing the state to designate hiking trails on federal land. Currently, the state can only designate trails on local and private property.

James S. Stephens, director of the Division of Parks and Recreation of the Department of Natural Resources, said the bill would allow the state to connect trails with those on federal land for a mountain-to-the-sea trail.

Fishing

The Senate Natural and Economic Resources Committee also decided to wait for further information before acting on proposals for revamping the state's fishing laws. One is a confidentiality clause covering records obtained from commercial fishermen.

Senator Sam R. Noble, D-Robeson, said fishermen requested the clause so their fishing grounds and catch could not be identified individually.

William Lassiter, attorney for the N.C. Press Association, said the association is afraid the clause might be interpreted to keep certain records about the state's fishing industry from the public.

Another proposed change in the fishing laws would levy fines of $100 to $500 on any commercial fishing vessel from Virginia fishing in North Carolina waters. Noble said Virginia has such penalties, and he wants North Carolina to be able to slap equal fines on Virginia vessels.

Insurance Bonds

The House tentatively approved a bill which would allow industries to qualify for tax-exempt bonds if they pledge to pay a wage which is more than 10 percent over the current state average manufacturing wage. Under present law, industries must pay a wage that is more than 20 percent above the average.

The bonds are capital improvement bonds, exempt from federal and state taxes. Opponents of the bill said it would water down the state's attempt to bring high-wage industry into North Carolina.

The bill will come up for final House action Thursday.

Laetrile

A resolution asking Congress and the National Cancer Society to begin testing Laetrile on known cancer patients was given tentative approval by the House. The bill was put off for final approval because Rep. Ruth Cooke, D-Wake, asked to add an amendment requiring the patient's informed consent.

Laetrile is a controversial cancer treatment which uses the extract of apricot pits.

Prayer for Judgement

A bill was filed in the House that would require a district or superior court judge to give written reasons for entering any prayer for judgement continuations in a court case.

Crane

A bill to prevent the state from moving the container crane at Morehead City to Wilmington was filed in the Senate.

The bill would require the state Ports Authority to provide both state ports with adequate equipment and facilities, including present container cranes at each port.

The crane at Morehead City has been a source of controversy because there is no containerized shipping there.

Dunes

A bill which would repeal protection of sand dunes along the Outer Banks was filed in the House by Rep. Vernon James, D-Pasquotank.

Private Colleges

A bill which would establish an independent study commission to make recommendations for developing an operating principle for state financial assistance to private colleges was filed in the House.

The state's private colleges have asked for aid proportionate to that given students at public colleges.

Bank Holiday

A bill which would prohibit banks from remaining closed for more than three consecutive days was filed in the Senate by Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba.

Sponsoring High School Day

Thursday, Feb. 8 is the application deadline for the "High School Day" at East Carolina University being hosted by the School of Music.

The Keyboard Dept. of the School of Music is hosting the third annual "High School Day" on Friday, Feb. 16. Those attending will have lessons with ECU Keyboard Faculty members. In addition there will be a recital presented by ECU Keyboard majors as well as discussion sessions on various degree programs in music along with career opportunities in music.

Interested persons are to contact Dr. Charles Bath either by mail or by phone 757-6851.

TWO-DAY MEETING

The 55th session of the Eastern District Usher's Union of the United Holy Church of America will convene at Holy Trinity Holy Church, Greenville, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 2 and 3, according to the Rev. Charles Dingle, pastor. The public is invited to attend.

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In an effort that it says will improve the quality of education in North Carolina, a State Board of Education committee has recommended the passing score on the National Teacher Examination be raised, starting in July.

That recommendation was expected to be adopted by the full board today at its meeting here. However, public hearings are required before the new score requirement goes into effect.

The recommendation calls for raising the passing score in four steps between now and 1982. All prospective teachers must pass the exam in order to get a teaching certificate in North Carolina.

Instead of the 950 passing score now in effect, the recommendation calls for prospective teachers to score passing marks on two tests — one in general knowledge and one in their area of specialization. The minimum scores for both parts of the test would total more than 950 and increase each year.

The general knowledge passing score would be the same for all teachers.

The first increase would go into effect this July, and it would require all teachers to score 475 on the general knowledge portion and 480 in the test on their specialization or a total of 955.

However, beginning in 1980, the totals would vary because specialization scores would be set separately.

For example, in 1980 a math teacher would have to score 1,013 — 493 in general knowledge and 520 in math — to pass the exam. An art education teacher would have to score 983 — 493 in general knowledge and 490 in art — to pass the exam in 1980.

By 1982 a math teacher would have to score 1,139 — 529 in general knowledge and 610 in math — to pass the exam. An art teacher would have to score 1,029 — 529 in general knowledge and 500 in art — to pass the exam.

Before the increased scores are official, the board must draw up rules and regulations on the recommendations and hold at least one public hearing. The hearings will probably be in mid-March.

J. Arthur Taylor, director of the Division of Standards and Certification, said the higher passing scores could result in a shortage in some teaching areas. "Math has always been a problem area," Taylor said referring to the number of available math teachers. "That will be an issue to be considered in public hearing."

Based on the NTE scores in math for the past four years, the top 50 percent of those tested would meet the 1982 passing score, Taylor said.

The report calling for the increased score, known as the Dolce Report, is part of the board's Quality Assurance Program, which was adopted by the board and the University of North Carolina Board of Governors last year.

WILL ASK RATE HIKE

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. says it has told the state Utilities Commission it plans to file for a rate increase in about 30 days. The exact amount has not been determined.

Kmart AUTO SERVICE POLICY
Kmart's policy is to perform only needed services. For your benefit, Kmart auto services are necessarily conditioned on Kmart's right to decline any service, whether advertised or not, where a car has related deteriorated or worn parts which create or continue an unsatisfactory or unsafe driving condition, unless the customer gives Kmart a written waiver of replacement of such needed parts. Needed brake system parts may not be waived by customer; Kmart may in its judgment refuse to perform any partial brake job where your safety is at stake.
