Bloody Fighting With More Than 80 Reported Killed

Armed Civilians Attack Police Stations In Tehran

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Armed civilians launched attacks on police stations in Tehran Saturday night in bloody fighting that left more than 80 persons killed, including six policemen burned alive. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's Moslem leader, threatened anew to call a holy war.

Army troops with orders to shoot curfew breakers on sight opened fire on mobs of rioting demonstrators after Khomeini ordered his supporters to defy an extended curfew.

Among those killed in two nights and a day of fighting was veteran American journalist Joe Alex Morris Jr., who was covering the battles for the Los Angeles Times. As many as 500 persons were reported wounded.

Civilians attacked and burned at least six police posts around the capital. In Khorassan Square, six policemen were burned alive in the attack.

Tanks again rolled through sections of the city after nightfall and residents in various sections reported occasional heavy gunfire which could have been tank and mortar shells. Sporadic gunfire wracked the city during the night.

Witnesses said the attackers raided several other police stations, disarmed the policemen and then handed their weapons to comrades as the civilian population began to arm itself for the possible civil war looming in Iran.

Hundreds of thousands of Khomeini supporters, ordered by their leader to defy the curfew imposed on the capital, openly roamed the streets, digging trenches along the boulevards and building sandbag barricades at intersections in anticipation of civil war.

The mobs built hundreds of bonfires in the capital, piling on tires which sent huge clouds of acrid, black smoke swirling over the city. Roving patrols of army troops ranged the city firing at groups of rioting demonstrators.

The fighting left the streets littered with charred bodies and pools of blood. Burned out tanks, trucks, ambulances and cars stood smoking in alleyways and major streets.

From his headquarters in the center of Tehran, Khomeini again raised the specter of a holy war.

"Although I have not yet ordered a jihad (holy war), I cannot stand these atrocities and warn that if they (army troops) do not stop the killing of brethren, I will then make my final decision, God willing."

"I want the brave people of Tehran to be ready and alert," Khomeini said.

The government of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar attempted to halt the violence by clamping a 4:30 p.m. curfew on the battered city.

But Khomeini told thousands of cheering followers, "the extended curfew is deceitful and against religious principles, and on no account should the people pay any attention to it."

"It's got to be a massacre tonight," one Western diplomat said.

The night of fighting began at midnight Friday when army units belonging to the Immortal Guards brigade, the elite imperial guard fiercely loyal to Shah Moahmmed Reza Pahlavi, attacked the Farahabad base in East Tehran.

The attack was to put down a growing revolt at the air base by hundreds of young airmen who had switched sides in the struggle for control of Iran and saluted a portrait of Khomeini.

As civilian Khomeini supporters seized arms and fought beside the airmen, Khomeini said the imperial guard was guilty of "inhuman behavior" and wanted to let U.S. and foreign influence remain and "return the thieves to their strongholds."

Mehid Bazargan, the 73-year-old "prime minister" appointed by Khomeini as a rival to Bakhtiar, issued a curt statement that the curfew, brought forward seven and a half hours from the normal midnight, was a "conspiracy against the Islamic revolution and is thus unacceptable."

In an apparent further preparation for a possible holy war, Khomeini's supporters promised to supply guns to any former air force personnel who joined them.

An estimated 2,000 urban guerrillas reportedly had already gathered near the Farahabad Air Base for a showdown battle and thousands of students marched through the capital to the major battle area. Thousands of other residents watched the battles from rooftops.

Troops poured out of Lavizan army barracks with extra ammunition supplies as the curfew went into effect and the crackle of gunfire was immediately heard throughout the city.

The protesters lit thousands of bonfires with tires, trees and rubbish and the city was quickly engulfed in a huge cloud of black smoke. The Khomeini supporters ripped up turf, flowerbeds and trees lining highways and dug assault trenches.

One of the largest bonfires in the city was lit near the luxurious downtown headuarters of the army supreme command.

Improvements In Human Rights

By JIM ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Saturday U.S. allies and clients improved their human rights records in 1978 despite abuses in such democracies as Israel and Mexico and "credible reports of torture" from the Philippines, Nicaragua and elsewhere.

The 700-page annual report to Congress covers only those 115 nations that receive U.S. economic or military aid. It does not review the situations under such regimes as those of the Soviet Union, China, Cambodia, Uganda or Chile.

Overall, the report said, there was "an increased awareness of human rights conditions around the world."

While the U.S. government does not claim credit for gains in any particular country, it said, "we believe we have helped create an atmosphere in which improvements are more likely to occur."

Nonetheless, the report concludes: "There are countries ... where the human rights situation has not improved or has worsened in the past year. The distance covered is still small in comparison to the distance that remains to be traveled."

Congress requires the rights assessment for its annual deliberations on foreign aid requests.

Highlights of the new report:

—The Middle East: Egypt is credited with curbing some of its secret police activities and increasing freedom of expression last year. But Israel is accused of allowing some mistreatment of Palestinian Arabs in occupied areas.

The Israeli report, leaked to the press last week, does not endorse claims the abuses are widespread and condoned by the government. But it concludes, "the accumulation of reports, some from credible sources, makes it appear that instances of mistreatment have occurred."

Israel denies the allegation.

Lebanon, torn by civil war and occupied by Syrian peacekeeping forces, is described as a jungle in which civilians are routinely murdered and robbed by the armed factions.

"Credible accusations have been made that some elements of the Syrian army were involved" in one instance where 30 Lebanese Christian villagers were abducted and murdered, the report said. It also accuses Syria of holding political prisoners at home, many without trial.

—Latin America: Nicaragua and El Salvador, where there have been "credible reports of torture," ranked as the most serious human rights violators among the 20 Western Hemisphere nations reviewed.

The report said Mexico, which President Carter visits this week, has a generally good

Can Exceed 20,000

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A decision is expected this week on whether the University of North Carolina will appeal a court ruling that it's Chapel Hill campus is guilty of reverse discrimination in its student government.

Meanwhile trustees of UNC Chapel Hill voted to allow enrollment to exceed a trustee-imposed ceiling of 20,000 students by 1980.

On the recommendation of an admissions study committee, the trustees voted to accept the enrollment goals set for the Chapel Hill campus by the Board of Governors in a five-year plan adopted in December.

The governors' figures project by that the 1980-81 academic year the actual count of students at the Chapel Hill campus will be about 20,839 or the equivalent of 20,149 full-time students. The present enrollment is just under 19,000.

In connection with the reverse discrimination suit, Richard Robinson, assistant to UNC President William C. Friday, said the state attorney general's office is expected to announce within a week a decision on whether to appeal the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Robinson told the UNC Board of Governors Friday that a federal appeals court decision will require the Chapel Hill campus to discontinue its practice of mandatory minority representation in student government.

The Chapel Hill campus now requires at least two minority students on its 18-member Campus Governing Council, which is elected annually. It also requires that any student tried by the student Honor Court is entitled to have four of seven judges of his race or sex.

Dr. Hatem Receives Award

CHAPEL HILL — Dr. S. George Hatem, who spent his young life in Greenville, is one of seven persons to receive the Distinguished Service Award from the School of Medicine, UNC-Chapel Hill. The award was announced Friday as part of a two-day celebration marking the school's 100th birthday.

Dr. Hatem, a resident of mainland China since the mid 1930's, is the former personal physician to Mao Tse-Tung and Chief of Staff of China's Institute of Dermatology and Venerology. He was in Greenville on a visit last September.

Betty Speir N.C. Demo Party Vice-Chairman

Betty Speir of Bethel has been elected vice-chairman of the Democratic Party of North Carolina.

Mrs. Speir's election was Saturday afternoon during a meeting of the State Democratic Party Executive Committee held in Raleigh. The new party chairman is Russell Walker of Asheboro. Being state vice-chairman means she is automatically a member of the Democratic National Committee.

During the meeting today, Gov. Jim Hunt addressed the group and a presentation was made by Mrs. Betty McCain, outgoing chairman. Revisions in the party procedures was made by Charles R. Winberry Jr., of Rocky Mount.

A Bethel native, Mrs. Speir is guidance counselor at North Pitt High School here. She is a member of the Governor's Crime Commission and a former secretary of the Commission on the Education and Employment of Women. She serves on the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Gifts Fund committee.

The wife of David O. Speir of Bethel and mother of Candy Speir Townsend of Virginia Beach, Va. and Christie Speir Price of Chapel Hill, she has served the Democratic Party in several capacities. Party offices held by her include her vice chairmanship and two terms as chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Party and her vice chairmanship of the Democratic Women of North Carolina. She also has headed the Democratic Women of Pitt County in the past.

Less Than Full Controlled Access To U.S. 264 Expected

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Daily Reflector has learned that the Department of Transportation will likely recommend that the Board of Transportation approve something less than a fully controlled access route for U.S. 264 between Greenville and Wilson.

The recommendations — from DOT's professional staff and consultants — are expected to be that a fully controlled access freeway-type highway be constructed on a new location between Wilson and Farmville; that the new roadway connect to the present five-lane Farmville by-pass; and U.S. 264 between Farmville and Greenville be widened to four lanes, along its present route.

The expected recommendations are said to be based on the assumption that funds are not available to construct an interstate-type highway on a new location for the entire distance.

Informed sources said a by-pass to the North of Farmville will eventually be constructed, along with a new roadway between Farmville and Greenville, and a by-pass to the North of Greenville.

When asked about the expected recommendation, George Harper of Kinston, a member of the Board of Transportation, said, "I have heard nothing what-so-ever. I have not had anything on it...nothing at all."

Harper explained that when highway improvements are proposed, DOT's professional staff make recommendations to the Board of Transportation, which in turn either gives approval to the plan or rejects it.

Harper noted that although he has no information on what the DOT staff will present to the board, recommendations on the U.S. 264 project are expected to be presented for consideration in the Spring. There is, "a great possibility," Harper said, that the recommendations may come before the the board, "as early as March."

Gary Pearce, the Governor's press secretary said it, "is not correct" that Gov. Jim Hunt favors such a proposal for improving the heavily traveled Wilson-to-Greenville route.

Hunt is not for any particular plan. "That's for the Board of Transportation to decide," Pearce quoted the Governor as saying.

Hunt, speaking at the dedication of U.S. 264 West of Wilson in December, said, "one of the dreams I've always had," was to, "have this road four-laned to Raleigh. Now that the Zebulon to Wilson freeway has been implemented, Hunt continued, "it is to have 264 four-laned to Greenville," and on to the coast.

The East-bound lanes of the $29.6 million Zebulon-Wilson freeway were authorized under Republican Gov. James Holshouser's administration and construction started in 1974.

During the dedication speech, Hunt said shortly after he took office and named Tom Bradshaw Secretary of Transportation, he called Bradshaw to the Governor's mansion and said, "I'm going to come as close to giving an order," he ever would. "Those other two lanes are going to be paved just as soon as we can get the asphalt down," Hunt told Bradshaw.

Attempts to contact Bradshaw last week for comments on DOT's recommendations for the Wilson-Greenville project were unsuccessful.

The Wilson-to-Greenville project was added to the State's Transportation Improvement Plan in 1978, and public hearings on improvements to the highway were held in Saratoga and in Greenvile in December.

At those hearings, Bradshaw termed the improvement of U.S. 264, "the number one priority project in North Carolina...the number one priority project of the Governor's administration."

Possible alternatives presented at the hearings included: a "no-action" alternative — making no improvements to the present roadway; adding two additional lanes to the present route, thereby creating a four-lane divided highway maintaining at-grade intersections and driveway connections; or building a freeway-type road on a new corridor, bypassing Saratoga and Farmville.

DOT officials estimated that widening the present route would cost $22.3 million, while building a fully controlled access freeway on a new location would cost from $51.7 million to $57.7 million.

Speakers at the hearings — from Greenville, Wilson, Washington and the Highway 264 Association — expressed support for a freeway-type roadway build along a new corridor, rather than widening the present route to four lanes.

However, Farmville area residents urged the use of the present five-lane bypass at the southern edge of the town in any Wilson-to-Greenville improvement plan, and expressed opposition to a possible relocation of U.S. 264 to the North of the community.

"We are concerned about the location," Ed Davenport, for 10 years president of the Farmville Economic Council, said "We don't want to lose our identity," and become another Bailey, Sims or Middlesex.

"Farmville doesn't want to be a ghost town on a Wilson-Greenville freeway. We want to be Farmville on a Wilson-Farmville-Greenville freeway," he emphasized.

$3 Million For 90-Mile Freeway

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Transportation Board allocated $3 million on Friday for a beginning of design and survey work on the proposed 90-mile freeway between Benson and Wilmington.

The project is expected to get under construction in 1981.

To Launch Boy's Club Fund Drive Soon

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

March 1 is the date announced by the Board of Directors of the Boy's Club of Pitt County as the scheduled kick-off date for a concerted campaign to raise half a million dollars for the construction of a new Boys' Club facility.

Now beginning its 11th year of operation, the Boys' Club has been housed at a former church building on Skinner Street since early after the founding of the club in Greenville.

The planned new facility will be built on the seven and one-half acre site located on Highway 264 by-pass (Greenville Boulevard) near Eastern Elementary School. The property was purchased a couple of years ago.

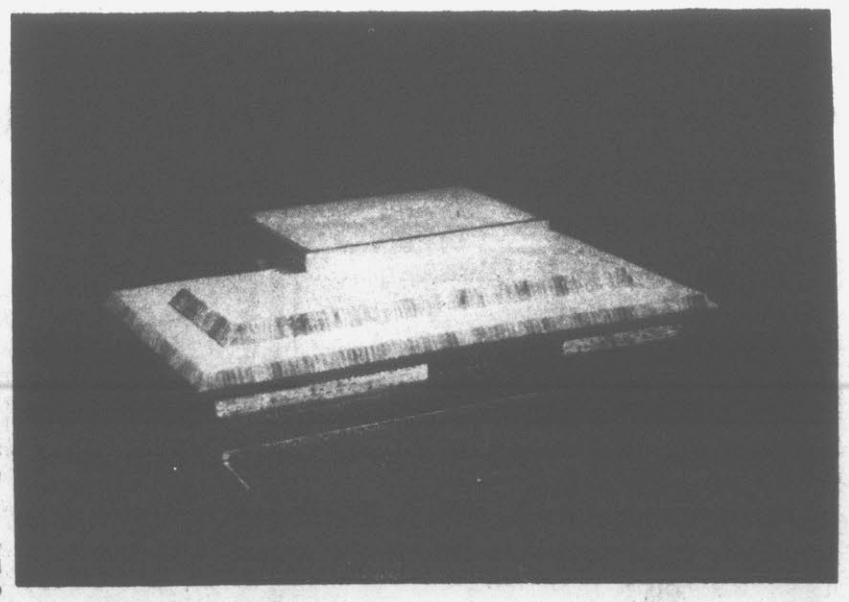

As envisioned in the architect's plan, the new building will include areas for a variety of activities— a learning center, an arts and crafts shop, a woodshop, club meeting rooms, a kitchen, game rooms, gymnasium, shower and locker rooms, and office space for the club's permanent staff.

The building is designed to accommodate more than 1,500 youngsters in all spheres of activities.

At an early date, the board will announce persons chosen to head the community campaign to raise funds, and outline programs that will be conducted as part of the campaign drive.

One of the methods planned in the fund raising drive will be to permit the naming of various rooms and areas as memorials through gifts to the fund. All gifts, small and large, to the building fund, will be tax deductible. Major contributions can be programmed to cover a period of six years (between March 1, 1979 and March 1, 1984), with a tax spread covering the six years.

Anyone interested in information about the building plans and the campaign for funds are to contact the campaign headquarters now in operation at 218 Arlington Blvd., telephone 756-7505.

SCALE MODEL... This is a scale model of the proposed new building for the Boys' Club of Pitt County. The design is by Greenville architect Bryon W. Franklin. A fund drive to collect $500,000 for the building is being inaugurated March 1.

Snow Triggers Many Mishaps

HELP ARRIVES — Wayne Township, Ohio, firemen maneuver their boat next to the car holding Nancy Paulus and Andrea Tinch with Wrighte Patterson AFB fire Capt. Paul Gehringer. Yes And No To LBD

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Going to the polls in weather amounting to ice and snow on the rocks, voters in Greensboro and neighboring High Point overwhelmingly welcomed in liquor by the drink on Friday.

The cities represented the 15th and 16th victories for pro-liquor forces in North Carolina, which saw its first legalized local-option vote on liquor only late last year when Charlotte opted for mixed beverages.

But the pro-wet forces suffered a thumping turndown in nearby Alamance County, even as High Point and Greensboro voters were approving mixed drinks.

Repair, Police Bill Over $2 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials estimate it will cost more than $2.6 million to repair the damage and pay police overtime for the first week of a protest by 3,500 farmers seeking higher government support prices.

Three quarters of that estimate covers damage — accidental and deliberate — to the 146-acre Mall between the Capitol and the Washington Monument, where police have hundreds of heavy farm vehicles and campers penned to prevent traffic disruptions.

Millions May Have Tuberculosis

ATLANTA (AP) — As many as 15 million people in the United States may have tuberculosis and are not aware of it, the national Center for Disease Control says.

Public health officials reported more than 29,000 cases last year, down from 30,000 in 1977.

But this is deceiving, the CDC said Friday. Some cities have closed TB evaluation programs and no longer can say how many patients are being cured.

"We are extremely concerned," said John J. Seggerson, chief of program services for the CDC's tuberculosis division. "... The figures can be just the tip of the iceberg. There probably are about 15 million people infected who don't know they have the disease."

Investigating NBC Employees

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty employees of the NBC television network are under investigation for possible embezzlement and kickback schemes that may have gone on for the past 10 years, NBC News reports.

The Nightly News reported Friday that the investigation is centered on the network's unit managers department, which handles financial affairs for network programs.

The network said two employees had tentatively agreed to plead guilty to federal fraud charges. Meanwhile, the network said, six NBC employees have been fired or have resigned in connection with the alleged schemes.

To Raise Stakes To $2.8 Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The lawyer for Michelle Triola Marvin says he plans to raise the stakes to $2.8 million in her love-and-money suit against Lee Marvin, claiming the actor defrauded his client with lies about love.

Attorney Marvin Mitchelson, who plans to rest his case next week, said the amendment to the original complaint will seek punitive damages of $1 million.

"He defrauded her emotionally and with the promises he made," Mitchelson said. "... Mr. Marvin misrepresented to Miss Marvin that he loved her and cared for her. He misrepresented what he was going to do for her."

Billy Predicts No Indictment

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Carter says if Bert Lance is indicted for his banking practices, "I'll get indicted" as well. But he also predicts Lance won't be indicted.

"I don't think he will, because he's done nothing wrong," the president's brother said in an interview with the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. "But if he is indicted for what he has done, then I'm sure they can indict me for what I have done."

Federal investigators probing Lance's practices as president of the National Bank of Georgia have been scrutinizing Carter's business loan transactions with NBG and Lance.

Tax Exempt Status Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says it is revising plans for determining whether private schools are elgible for tax-exempt status.

The revision was prompted by extensive complaints — the most in IRS history — about the regulations, which were aimed at attacking discrimination in private schools.

The IRS said Friday its revised plans give "greater weight to each school's particular circumstances than did the earlier proposal."

Jury Tampering Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is trying to determine whether jury tampering occurred in the case of Rep. Daniel J. Flood, whose trial on bribery and perjury charges ended in deadlock a week ago.

Assistant Attorney General Philip B. Heymann, who heads the criminal division of the Justice Department, ordered the inquiry Friday.

The investigation was prompted by reports that William Cash, the only juror who steadfastly held out for acquittal, claimed he received con fidential information in the case.

Wants Torture Report Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing reports of Israeli torture of Palestinian prisoners, an American group is asking President Carter to appoint "respected and impartial investigators" to look into the matter.

Spokesmen for the Palestine Human Rights Campaign said Friday that such groups as Amnesty International and the U.N. Human Rights Commission have said Israel practices systematic torture. The Israeli government denies the allegations.

UNC-CH Has Raised $13.7 Million

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, seeking to raise its endowment resources to $100 million, has raised $13.7 million toward the goal during the past two years.

Chancellor Ferebee Taylor told the UNC-CH Board of Trustees Friday of the new and prospective additions to the endowment as part of what is known as "The Carolina Theme" drive.

The effort, begun two years ago, had a goal of $67.5 million.

Terms Of Nelson Rockefeller's Will Revealed

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Nelson Rockefeller's will enriches his wife and their two children, expands the fabulous collections of two art museums and adds to the speculation about the circumstances of his death.

Tucked in among the art and real estate bequests, estimated by the family at $66.5 million, is a $45,000 legacy to Megan Marshack, the woman who was coordinating his series of art books and who was with Rockefeller the night he died.

In the will, filed here Friday, the former vice president and governor forgave a $45,000 interest-free loan he made two years ago to help Miss Marshack buy a Manhattan cooperative apartment.

He also forgave loans to two other employees, but half the estate — plus whatever else is not disposed of — was left to his wife, Margaretta. Her share is to go to their two children, Nelson Jr., 15, and Mark, 12, upon her death. Trusts for the boys, estimated in 1974 at $116 million, were not covered by the will and went to them upon his death.

Mrs. Rockefeller gets three houses on the family's Pocantico Hills estate north of New York City, two houses in the nearby Village of Pocantico Hills, two apartments on Fifth Avenue in Manhattan, 700 acres of ranch land in Texas, a one-quarter interest in 2,100 acres in New York and a collection of 30 antique automobiles.

The two young Rockefellers received a much larger part of the estate than did Rockefeller's four children by his first wife. He said the older children had benefited by the will of their grandfather, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Nelson Rockefeller's will, dated Dec. 6, 1978, gives four sculptures and 23 paintings, including the Picasso masterpiece "Girl With a Mandolin," to the Museum of Modern Art. More than 1,600 pieces of primitive art go to the Metropolitan Museum of Art's Michael C. Rockefeller Wing, named for Rockefeller's son, who vanished on a 1961 expedition to New Guinea.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation gets a one-quarter interest in 250 acres of the family estate in Pocantico Hills.

Newsman Killed In Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Joe Alex Morris Jr., a veteran Los Angeles Times correspondent whose career spanned three decades of distinguished reporting from the Middle East, Europe and Africa, was killed Saturday while covering a clash between army troops and dissident air force cadets in Tehran.

Morris, based in Athens, was the first correspondent killed in 15 months of street riots and violence in Iran.

Morris, 51, the son of former United Press foreign editor Joe Alex Morris, was covering a skirmish between army troops and dissident air force cadets at Farahabad Air Force base in East Tehran when he was killed.

He was looking through a second story window at the shooting below when a stray bullet pierced his heart. He was pronounced dead at 9 a.m. (12:30 a.m. EST) by officials at the air base where he had been taken by air force cadets.

UPI correspondent Arthur Higbee was with Morris when he was shot.

"Three other journalists had immediately fallen to the floor when the bullet smashed through the window. We heard heard Joe groan," Higbee said.

He also left many friends — the reporters who knew and admired him during a long and distinguished career of covering the world for United Press, the old New York Herald Tribune, Newsweek Magazine and, since 1965, the Los Angeles Times.

Robert Gibson, foreign editor of the Los Angeles Times, said Morris was a reporter who "never settled for less than the best information regardless of personal risk or hardship."

Gibson said it was "ultimately this determination for quality which cost him his life."

Morris "was proud of his profession," Gibson said. "The profession is even more proud of Joe Alex Morris Jr. He set standards for us all."

In Washington, State Department spokesman Ken Brown praised Morris' professionalism in covering Middle East events.

Salvation Army Held Annual Meet Friday

Dr. Thomas B. Brewer was guest speaker at The Salvation Army annual report and civic dinner held here Friday night at the Masonic Lodge at 7 p.m.

Lyman Ormond, Jr., presented Service Awards and Les Garner presented plagues to those clubs and organizations who worked with the Christmas Kettle Drive. Special recognition was given Garner for his ten years of service as director of the Christmas Committee.

The annual financial report showing the accomplishments during 1978 was given by Major Arnold Williford. Comments on the Women's Auxiliary was given by Mrs. Jesse Laughinghouse.

The annual report showed total expenditures to be $92,261.11, at which $37,002.00 was allocated by to the United Fund of Pitt County. Persons assisted during the year totalled 4,175 under the Family Assistance program.

Governor Hunt and President Carter were spoken of as "two leaders sensitive to the needs of the poor, the minorities and the females" in the keynote speech given by New Bern Mayor Lee Morgan at the Emancipation Proclamation Celebration meeting Saturday.

"Our agenda for action is one for positive change," Morgan told his listeners, "a continuing change to utilize the best resources, meaning people, in the community, the state and the nation. Failure to utilize all our people would mean we would virtually miss the best use of our resources."

HEW Hopes For Agreement With UNC By March 14

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says he hopes North Carolina and HEW can reach agreement on an acceptable desegregation plan by March 14 — when HEW might be forced to cut off $89 million iun funding for the Univiersity of North Carolina.

Califano spent much of the time during a news conference on Friday on the subject of Georgia's acceptable desegregation plan in talking about what he calls North Carolina's unacceptable desegregation plan.

Califano said the latest proposal from North Carolina fails to eliminate duplication of academic programs among predominantly black and primarily white universities located near each other.

Califano did not specifically threaten to move to cut off the multimillion-dollar federal funding for the North Carolina system. He did note, however, that a court has set a March 14 deadline for HEW to accept or reject the state's latest desegregation plan.

A special committee of the UNC Board of Governors convened a closed session Friday afternoon in Chapel Hill to discuss the status of the dispute. No action was taken. UNC President William C. Friday said.

Obligations In Their Decision

City officials are facing a problem concerning the relationship of the Greenville Rescue Squad and the Greenville Fire Department.

Currently the rescue squad is a unit of the fire department.

There has been considerable sentiment expressed recently, however, for separating the rescue squad and making it an independent department with its chief answerable directly to the city manager.

Letters to the public forum column of this newspaper have urged separation and a citizens group appeared before the council Thursday night.

It is a knotty problem and one on which the council and city manager should not move hastily.

First the city officials have to do everything possible to maintain morale in the rescue squad and the fire department — both of which have records of outstanding service."

The city officials also have the strongest of obligations to the taxpayers to provide fire and rescue service at the least cost for expected efficiency.

Mayor Percy Cox says he foresees that changes will have to be made , but he contended that fully separating the departments would "cost the taxpayers dearly."

It will take some careful study to determine what changes can be made in the administation of the fire and rescue services. Both are now essential to the city and the area. They are services, however, which will have to be delivered in the most cost effective way.

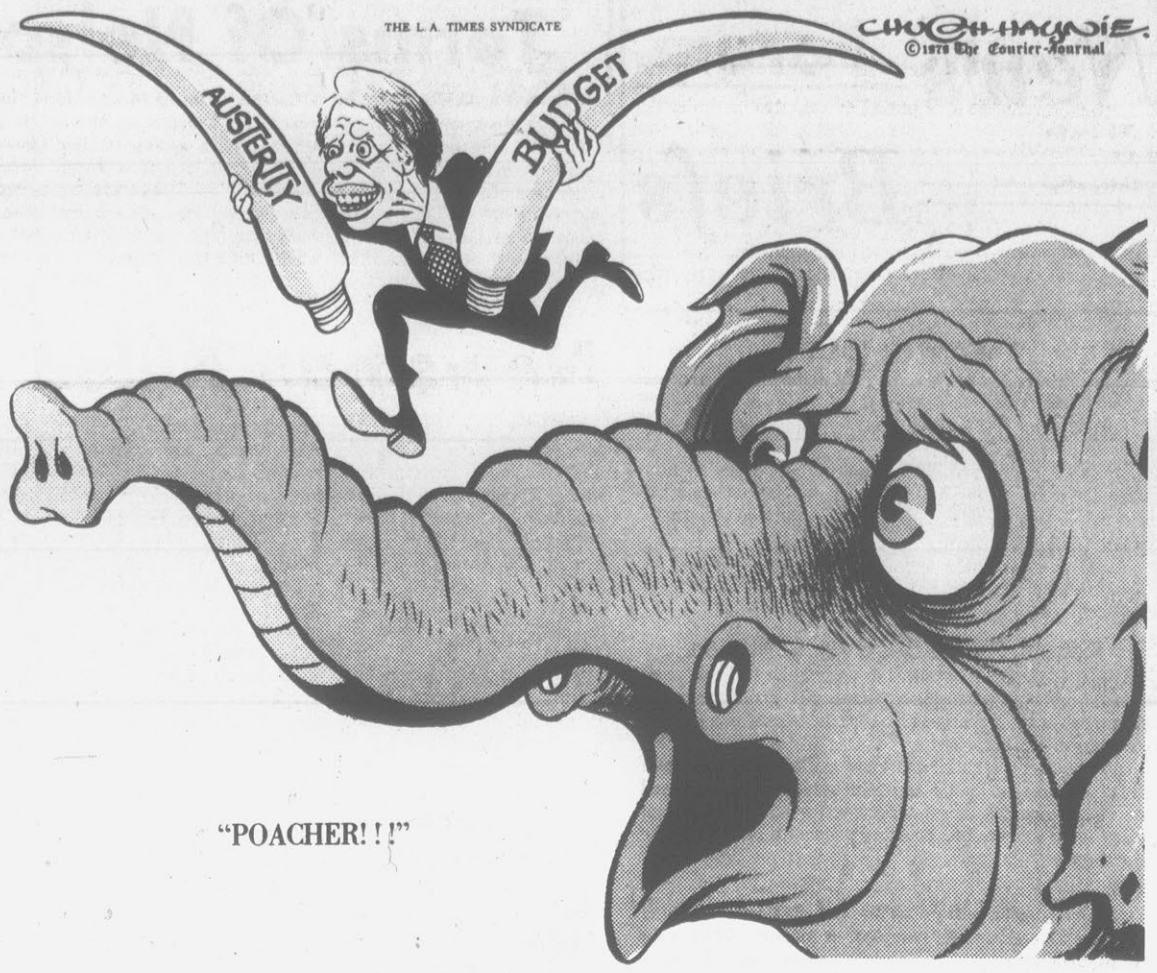

History Studies Taking To The Water

The study of history will soon be taking to the water at East Carolina University.

The university, cooperating with the N. C. Department of Archives and History, will conduct a field school in maritime history and underwater research at Bath, the state's oldest town.

It is expected that participants will explore sunken ships and other material which will provide better understand of life in the colonial community.

Since Bath is at the very beginning of North Carolina's heritage the planned program could provide interesting insight into the lives of the early settlers.

Merit Judge Idea Fading

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Merit selection of judges, once high on practically everybody's agenda around the Legislative Building and the Governor's Office, has all but disappeared from view.

"You may consider it dead", said a source close to Gov. Jim Hunt.

Highly touted as the way to take judges out of politics so they needn't run for office, merit selection would have a nominating committee to submit names to the governor for his appointment.

The state Bar Association has pushed long and hard, as have many judges up to and including justices in the Supreme Court and Appeals Court.

But suddenly the Governor's Crime Commission came down against the idea, and high-level judges were heard condemning it.

What happened between the time merit selection represented salvation and the time it just wouldn't serve the state well at all?

Many reasons are being offered.

But insiders say the tide shifted when it became apparent to the judges (who, after all, lead the state's lawyers in such matters) that the nominating committee would be dominated by laymen.

The judges wanted a majority of lawyers on that committee, but there is a popular mood in the General Assembly to end domination of boards or commissions by vested interest groups.

Time

All of which caused one observer to quip: "Merit Selection of Judges is quite obviously an idea whose time is past."

ERA Hassle

There is a quiet falling out between leaders of the fight to win North Carolina's endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment and Gov. Jim Hunt. Some of those rabid supporters say the governor simply isn't trying hard enough to push the measure through.

If he pulled out all stops, it could be done, goes the complaint.

Perhaps, say Hunt advisors. But it would take every Green Stamp the governor has in the book, leaving nothing for anumber of other administration proposals which are considered critical.

The governor's people are upset because the "one-issue" ERA leaders don't seem to appreciate that there are other issues at stake.

More Space

Juvenile Training Schools now have a population of about 650, less than half the total population when status offenders were jailed. Removing youngsters who had committed no crime, but were sentenced for truancy, running away, or generally behaving badly was expected to reduce the need for the training schools.

Still, the program increases, with staff now numbering about 730, and a budget climbing past $15 million.

Will more of the institutions be closed and the money trasferred to community treatment programs? Dr. Sarah Morrow, chief of Human Resources, says no.

The courts are still pushing for some change in the law to allow training school sentences as a "final resort" for status offenders, and other specialists are predicting that those not now being sent to training school will progressively get in worse and worse trouble until the cells will be once more needed sometime in the future.

Sunday Morning Notes

Those of us in the news business have a tendancy to watch for picture possibilities when we drive about the area.

Alas, all too often when a good picture prospect is spotted that is the time when we don't have a camera.

Your columnist was headed for Raleigh one day last week.

Observing the country-side along the Falkland Highway a frame rural home caught our attention.

It wasn't the house that was interesting; rather it was the clothes line alongside the house.

On the line were hung 25 or 30 items of freshly laundered clothing. All of it was of a size that would fit roughly three to six year olds.

Obviously there were a number of children in the household and just as obviously they go off to school in clean clothes every day.

Those who had been wishing for snow got it in Pitt County last Tuesday night.

The snow started in — or more accurately a mixture of snow and sleet — around 10 p.m. and rapidly covered the ground, sidewalks and streets.

Those who went to bed with visions of a foot of snow by morning were disappointed.

The mixture gradually turned to rain and by 9 a.m. the black asphalt of the streets was showing through again.

For awhile there Pitt County was a Winterland — and there was still time for more snow this winter, we thought at the time.

Sure enough, on Friday more snow came.

We spotted Carl Whitfield, the governor's safety representative, driving a car with the personalized license plate which read: "MY NOVA."

We'll let you guess what make car it was.

Anyway, Whitfield later explained that "MY NOVA" belongs to his wife and she has had the special license tag since the state first started issuing them.

Whitfield has a personalized plate on his own personal car. It reads: "CEW" — his initials.

We've often thought of getting a personalized plate. For a newspaperman, the most logical one might be "HELP!."

But then some politician probably already has that one.

Run Nearly Normal

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The libraries aren't open as much, the streets are getting dirtier, public buildings aren't being repaired and there aren't as many teachers. But things are still running close to normal in Berkeley seven months after Proposition 13.

"I think we still have a good educational program," says Dr. Laval S. Wilson, superintendent of the Berkeley Unified School District, which operates 22 schools for 11,000 students in kindergarten through grade 12.

"We've tightened it up. We've put aside some things that we thought were good for the kids. But we can't continue to run the same quality program in the future without more help."

Berkeley public schools slashed about $5.4 million from a $35-million budget on short notice after the tax-cut initiative was approved overwhelmingly by California voters last June. School taxes, the highest in the state, dropped from $4.95 per $100 of assessed property value to $1.48. Total property taxes, once 3 percent to 4 percent of the market value of a home, are now limited to 1 percent.

To the editor:

This is the month of the annual observance of Negro History. This weekend recognizes the founding of the NAACP.

Carter G. Woodson and W. E. B. DuBois created these legacies in order that Black significance may be remembered and Black pride promoted. We must realize the Black man has abundantly blessed mankind with his countless contributions. It was Charles Drew who gave us blood plasma. It was George Washington Carver who provided us with the wonders from the peanut. It was Benjamin Banneker who created the clock to which we all "tick."

With the unique barriers over which the Black has come, it has been through his consciousness that society has been and is continually being uplifted. From the tiny country pulpit of Richard Allen to the gigantic world podium of Martin Luther King Jr., the Black minister has awakened us to the injustices of this life. Black musicians — Mahalia Jackson and Louis Armstrong — have sung and played melodies which touch the souls of us all. Black minds from Hariam Revels to Patricia R. Harris have provided legal insights though which all of us have received benefits. And the Black athlete, from Marion Motley and Maurice Stocks to Rod Carew and Renaldo Nehemiah, have thrilled all of us.

When mankind finally accepts the Black character and heritage, we will no longer need to highlight his contributions each February; rather, those contributions will be appreciated each day and week. Until that respect is demanded and given, homage will be granted for all the world has been improved by the life and contributions of the Black race.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Dollars And Cents Issues

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SEATTLE — On the eighth and last night of Teng Hsiaoping's U.S. visit, one more symbolic piece of evidence was provided about how quickly respectable conservative opposition to the new Washington-Peking link has vanished.

Instead of standing outside in the Seattle rain protesting abandonment of anti-communist Taiwan, leaders of the business establishment were inside at Canlis' expensive restaurant hosting a dinner for the veteran of the communist long march of 1934. The guest list, selected by Boeing Co. chairman T. A. Wilson, included industrial giants of the Pacific Northwest.

That was the tone of Teng's five days on tour after leaving Washington. While his stay in the capital was marked by reassurances of non-combativeness toward Taiwan and warnings about the Russian polar bear, Teng on the road was talking business.

Business leaders in the three prosperous, high-development cities visited — Atlanta, Houston and Atlanta — were more than willing to respond. The only visible opposition came from extremists (Birchers and Klansmen on the right, Maoists on the left), members of the Chinese-American community loyal to Taiwan and a few nervous politicians.

Such nervous politicians were most obvious in Texas. Republican Gov. William Clements greeted Teng at Houston with warmth that matched the winter chill. Clements was positively bubbling, however, compared to Houston's Mayor Jim McConn, who declined to give him the key to the city on grounds that Houston and Taipei are "sister cities."

But businessmen and other leaders of the Houston establishment — including Lt. Gov. William Hobby — felt McConn had overreacted and were embarrassed by him. Hobby, the state's senior Democratic official, introduced Teng to a steak-and-egg breakfast of newspaper editors. At that breakfast, his mother — Oveta Culp Hobby, chairman of the Houston Post — declared "we live in a changing time" that includes U.S.-Chinese "rapprochement."

Carter administration officials had feared that editors from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana would verbally assault Teng over Taiwan and communism. Not one such query was asked. Instead, they were concerned mainly with dollars-and-cents issues: U.S.-Chinese agreement on oil exploration, Chinese farm production, farm imports from the U.S., Chinese oil exports. "You see," a triumphant China expert from the Carter administration proclaimed to reporters, "that's what people really care about."

Although news reports stressed his attack on Soviet "warmongers," Teng's masterful speech to an Atlanta Chamber of Commerce luncheon emphasized how much China could learn from the people "in what you call the Sunbelt." Such stroking of civic pride and the profit motive surpassed even anti-Soviet haranguing on Teng's road trip.

So, the final-night Seattle dinner was a natural culmination. As a piano played show tunes of the 1930s, Teng rubbed elbows with the likes of George Weyerhaeuser of the Weyerhaeuser Co. Towering multimillionaire David Packard, Richard Nixon's deputy secretary of defense, leaned down to exchange

Strength For Today

A GUIDE IS THERE

During the nineteenth century the Crystal Palace of London was a favorite place for holding expositions and conventions. It also contained a mirrored maze in which people could wander for hours without being able to find their way out.

But above these labyrinths a man was stationed on a high platform visible from every passageway. If a wanderer became hopelessly confused, he could always call to the man on the platform and ask to be guided out.

This situation is illustrative of the way we can all look up to God in an hour of bewilderment and be led through a confusing maze of circumstances. Of one thing we can be sure. God, like the man on top of the maze, sees our future deliverance in a way we never can.

Unfortunately, some people never look up, but grow more bitter and confused as they wander from place to place, trying to find that entry into the sunlight. They need only to raise their eyes.

40 Years Ago Today

February 11, 1939

Prince and peasant today joined in homage to Pope Pius, XI, before his bier in the Sistine Chapel where he lay in state.

Crown Prince Umberto was escorted into the chapel by the Italian ambassador to the Holy See and thousands of rank and file Italians and foreigners climbed a long stair off St. Peter's plaza and passed reverently around the bier.

The Greenville Kiwanis Club last night observed its annual 'Ladies Night', and wives and valentines of club members were honored guests.

Mrs. A. Dittmer presented a reading "China Blue Eyes" and Mr. Dittmer gave a group of violin serenades. He was accompanied by Miss Opal Claire Harris.

A Free Man And Bureaucracies

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — When he was 19, Maxie Anderson prospected for uranium near the Arctic Circle. Two years later he founded a uranium company that is now part of Kerr-McKee Corp. Now he heads another company.

He took over the top job in the latter, Ranchers Exploration and Development Corp., in 1963, when he was 29. At the time, the company had sales of about $1 million. Now it grosses $35 million a year.

Late last summer, you might recall, Maxie Anderson and friends Ben Abruzzo and Larry Newman, all of Albuquerque, sailed the air currents aross the Atlantic in a emall gondola hung from a big balloon.

Says Anderson the achiever: "The assumption that you can attain without great effort is not consistent. If you want to do something right you have to work at it." Seventy hours a week, maybe even 90.

But sometimes, he said, he wonders if effort alone is sufficient. You need freedom too, he said. When he opened his first mine he took out no license; when he sailed the balloon to France he had none either.

But increasingly, he said just before accepting the Copper Club's man-of-the-year award, freedoms are restricted. To open a mine today, he said, you have to wade your way through two years of government paper.

"Government interference in business is getting to affect even companies our size," he said softly. "We cannot tolerate it."

Everything government does, he continued, is with a broad brush, of necessity. Applied, he said, those regulations can tyrannize. "What's good for Phelps Dodge (a mining giant) is not for us, and vice versa," he said.

"In the last six, seven years," he said, "I've tried to look at the country and how I fit into it, and try to understand what makes it operate. And what caused it to not operate correctly."

"They begin with good intentions," he conceded, "but the power to regulate is the power to destroy. It's the very question of being a free man. We cannot relinquish freedom."

People have to be free, he said; they have to be individuals. "We all talk collectively about doing things," he said. "But the hard part is for individuals to do it."

As you might expect, Anderson doesn't believe, as some secretly do, that the nation's, the world's, difficulties are insurmountable. The problems, he said, "are definable." The real problem, he suggested, is that "people don't want to make the (hard) choices."

No ascetic, he still suspects the alleged benefits of some luxuries. "There are things we once didn't have and I'm not sure we're better off having them," he said. Luxuries, he mused, "can steal a person's freedom."

Of more immediate concern to him is the encumbering bureaucracy.

"I've had to think it through," he said. "I love my country, but I tolerate my government," said Maxie L. Anderson, free man.

To the editor:

In reference to a Hotline article on Jan. 29, I totally agree with Mr. or Mrs. H. T. The article concerned the rescue squad and other emergency vehicles not being allowed to make a right turn out of the station when answering an emergency call.

When making a right turn out of the station, the units have to travel through the downtown area of the city. I agree that this route is not the safest one in the city, but the route now run by emergency units is, in my opinion, much more dangerous than going through downtown. As a volunteer member of the Greenville Rescue Squad, I ride and drive the trucks on emergency calls over this new route. Some of the intersections we must now go through almost petrify me, and the pedestrian traffic is much higher along this new route.

I would like to give the readers an example of the new route. Let's suppose the rescue squad receives a call to Hastings Ford on E. Tenth Street. When we leave the station, we would turn left on W. Fifth Street and left onto Greene Street, which changes over to Reade Circle. We would take Reade Circle to Cotanche Street and Cotanche to E. Tenth and run E. Tenth to the call. Just think of the major intersections that this route has to go through.

And as for pedestrians, think of the eight to 10 thousand East Carolina University students that cross Tenth Street every day, not to mention the other pedestrians. It seems to me that the reason for this change of route has to be because of the disturbance we cause and most certainly not a safety reason.

Brent Stocks

To the editor:

I had a mother and three sisters. In fact, at least half of my ancestors were women. I have been married for 50 years. Women control most of the wealth in this country. Their subtle influence governs nearly all of our lives. Never trust a man who says he is the boss in his house; he will lie to you about something else, too. Women now have full protection under the law guaranteeing equal pay for equal work, etc.

In defiance of the law, women are discriminated against. They do not really have equal opportunity, nor advancement, nor pay. BUT more laws, such as ERA cannot better their condition. Only the willingness of everybody to actually treat them as equal to men in all situations can accomplish this.

What should be clearly understood by those in a position to ratify the proposed ERA, as well as the rest of us, is the horrible confusion in changing all of our laws, rules and regulations, and the uncountable cost to carry out the provisions of the proposed constitutional amendment.

America's Farmers Deserve Something Better

BY JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — A ragtag band of 2,000 angry farmers, members of the American Agriculture Movement, has spent the week making life miserable for residents of the Washington area. In the process, the militants have done their cause no good; by their arrogance they have infuriated the very people on Capitol Hill who might have been sympathetic to them. The American farmer, whoever he is, deserves something better.

It is as misleading to speak of "the American farmer" as it is to speak grandly of the Arab world, or the businessman, or the press. Farms and farmers come in all sizes, successes and income brackets. As recently as 1930, the Census counted 30.5 million persons living on 6.5 million farms; today the estimate is 7.8 million persons on 2.7 million farms.

Not much in the way of understanding is gained by the calculation of averages. In 1930, the average farm was 151 acres; today the average is 400 acres. We get closer to the picture by noting that of the 2.7 million farms, 162,000 may be classed as the biggies; their gross sales range upwards from $100,000, and together they take in more than half of all cash farm receipts.

What we have in American farming is a trend by which the big get bigger and the small get smaller. At the bottom of the scale are several million farm residents who are not full-time farmers at all; their primary income derives from workaday jobs in town. At the top of the scale are the big operators, highly capitalized, highly computerized, whose savvy and efficiency produce a fair return on their immense investments.

The pinch comes at the top of the little fellows and the bottom of the big fellows. To the extent that the American Agriculture Movement represents anyone, the AAM represents this narrow band of Mr. In-Betweens. These farmers are indeed hurting; they are important in the whole agricultural picture; and there simply is no satisfactory answer to their problems.

For such a middle-sized farmer, trying to make a go of it on 300 to 500 acres, life is an unending regimen of backbreaking work, financial risks and worrisome frustrations. It makes no difference if his spread is a dairy farm, a cattle ranch, a hay or corn operation, or a fruit and vegetable farm. The vexations differ only in degree.

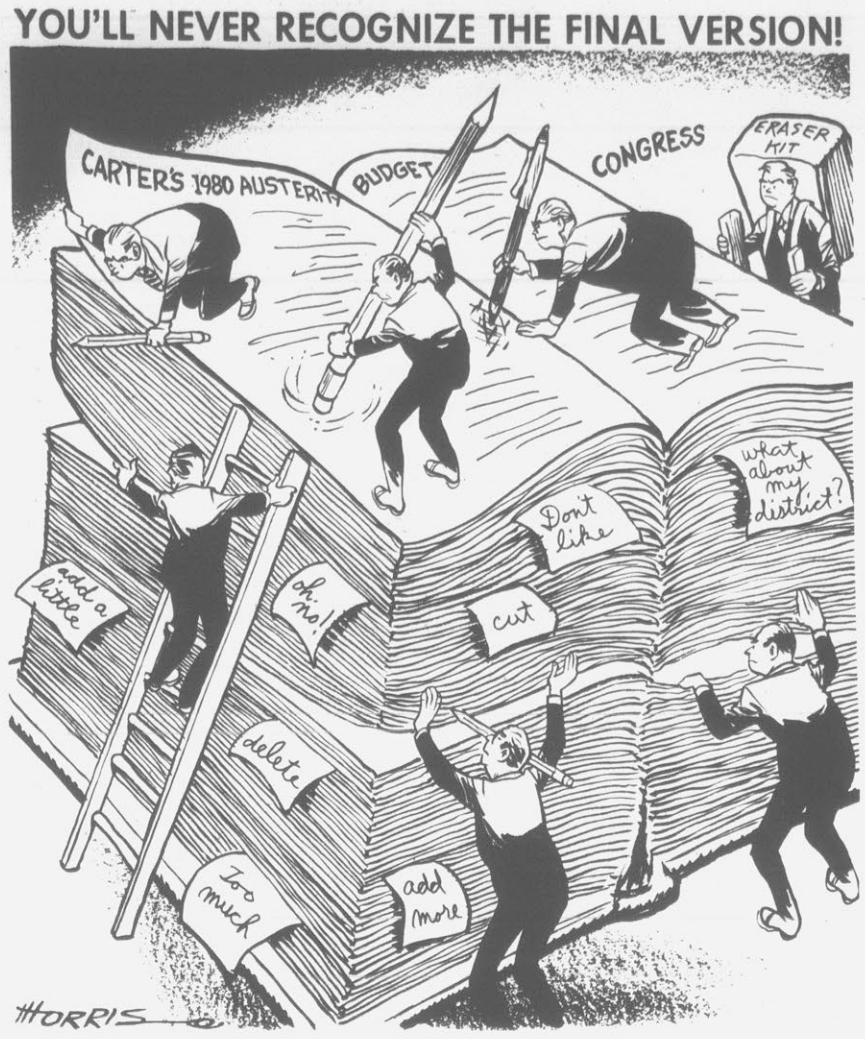

The cost of everything in his world keeps going up: land itself' taxes on the land, fencing, fertilizer, seed, fuel, labor, interest, machinery. The price of an indispensable tractor has nearly quadrupled in the past four years. But in the whole of our economy, the farmer is unique in this regrad: He is absolutely at the mercy of the marketplace. The truism that the farmer buys at retail and sells at wholesale has never changed. While storage opportunities have greatly improved in recent years, the farmer we are talking about has few options. When his pigs or chickens or steers have reached market weight, or his crop of corn or lettuce has been harvested, he has to sell.

Statistically, our` mythical "American farmer" did well in 1978. Net farm income was estimated at $28 billion, up 40 percent from 1977. But again, the statistics tell a deceptive story. This typical farmer's purchasing power gained little if it gained at all. Most of the increase in food prices at the supermarket went to the processors, packagers, distributors and retailers.

The tough, beefy malcontents who have been snarling Washington's traffic with their tractorcades have made few friends and many enemies. By equating themselves with the hippies, yippies, long-hairs and loonies of the '60s, they have done a disservice to farming generally. Their demand is for 90 percent of parity as the price of going home. This is plain extortion, and the Congress would be mad to surrender to it.

If the big-littles and the little-bigs are to survive as full-time farmers, their hope lies in the suppression of inflation generally. They will have to learn to be better business executives, better managers, better planners. Higher price supports, as such, will never cure their own inadequacies of skill and capital. They have given themselves a hard life; it does them no credit to make life hard for innocent citizens who have done them no wrong.

Today In History
By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Feb. 11, the 42nd day of 1979. There are 323 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the World War II Yalta agreement was signed by President Franklin Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin.

On this date:

In 1531, King Henry VIII was recognized as supreme head of the church in England.

In 1744, French and Spanish ships defeated an English fleet off the Mediterranean port of Toulon.

In 1808, hard coal was first used as fuel — at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

In 1920, the first business session of the League of Nations was held in London.

In 1971, a treaty banning nuclear weapons from the ocean floor was signed by 63 nations in ceremonies in Washington, London and Moscow.

In 1967, military rule was imposed in Peking during civil strife in China.

Ten years ago: U.S. Attorney General Arthur Mitchell authorized federal agents to resume wiretaps in investigations of organized crime.

Five years ago: A 13-nation energy conference opened in Washington, and the U.S. proposed a seven-point program of cooperation to overcome the world energy crisis and preserve the international economic order.

Thought for today: Without kindness there can be no true joy — Thomas Carlyle, Scottish writer, 1795-1881.

pleasantries with the 5-foot-2 Chinese leader sipping a Coca-Cola ("I ordered a Coke because I've got to get used to it," Teng quipped).

No blacks, union chiefs or noted liberal leaders were present at the Seattle dinner, fitting the pattern of the entire trip. When a black editor at the Houston breakfast asked about Chinese ties with U.S. minority businesses, Teng brushed it off with the stock Chinese "welcome" for such contacts. In Atlanta, he showed no interest in visiting Martin Luther King's grave and did so only after President Carter's intervention.

Business enthusiasm for Teng clearly surpassed that of what Chinese Communists call the working masses. Before his tour of the Ford plant in Marietta, Ga., there had been assembly line talk about "atheistic communism." When Teng arrived, some workers held back from waving and looked sideways to see what their mates were doing.

Neither in foreign policy nor in attention to U.S. domestic problems did Teng share the agenda of American liberals who long advocated the Washington-Peking link. Far from echoing Nikita Khrushchev's role of selling communism during his 1959 American tour, Teng uttered no word about U.S. social problems. The rest of the Chinese touring party scrupulously followed that lead.

In response, Americans encountering Teng on the road asked few embarrassing questions about Taiwan, human rights or internal Chinese politics. Barring inexplicable mainland pressure against Taiwan, there seems nothing in the China issue to benefit Carter's foes. Teng has returned home with business approval of both his anti-Soviet and pro-development lines (contrasting with shaking knees at the State Department over his Russian-baiting). The tough little survivor of China's bloody political wars, therefore, achieved the principal aims of his historic journey.

drastically. Leaky roofs go unrepaired and ancient heating boilers aren't being replaced. Broken plumbing and shattered windows take longer to get fixed.

The district laid off 49 teachers, and 64 other teaching vacancies weren't filled; about 40 other employees such as custodians and teacher aides were laid off, and 63 other vacancies weren't filled. Affirmative action took it on the chin: 38 of the laid-off teachers were minorities, because state law decrees that last-hired be first-fired.

City government cut back the equivalent of 105 full-time jobs, about 10 percent of the 1,100 full-time equivalent positions. The city held off replacing aging vehicles. It reduced library hours, trimmed recreation and health spending.

But due mainly to about $3 million in federal CETA job-training grants, the city budget of $71.1 million is actually higher this year, by about $3.4 million.

The city lost about $9.5 million of the $14.5 million it would have received in property taxes without Proposition 13. It got about $3.3 million in state "bailout" money and boosted various fees and charges — for building permits, parking, business licenses and garbage pick-up — by about $3 million to help ease the squeeze.

Homer Samuels Alone With His Questions

OXFORD, Miss. — Like many people who've lived as long as he has, Homer Samuels lives alone.

He lives alone because age has been kind to him; he's still physically and mentally alert. Samuels can afford to maintain his white frame home next door to the Oxford Church of Christ, where he is an elder.

He lives alone because his wife, Stella, cannot live with him. She's not dead. She's a resident of a retirement home on the other side of town. Mrs. Samuels' faculties failed her nearly two years ago, though she's several years younger than Homer.

He visits Stella nearly every day, but Homer is a lonely man. Lonely in the sense of losing someone very dear to him. Homer sits at a dining table laden not with food, but with various insurance policies, church literature, newspapers, letters and bills. In the midst of this is an old black manual typewriter.

"She should be with me; we both worked so hard all those years, and it seems we should have had this time together, unfettered, now that we have enough money to relax and enjoy our old age," says Samuels. A strongly religious man, he tries to accept the fact that often, Stella doesn't even seem to know who he is. He tries to accept the fact she will never be with him again.

The Samuels couple both taught school in rural Mississippi for many years. Homer became an administrator, then sold real estate and educational books. His work required him to be on the road often in the decade he retired at age 70. Stella worked as a librarian for years.

Homer is seen after by his two sons and by a woman who cooks his meals three days a week. "She does good, country style cooking," Homer says, eating cornbread with his lunch at the dinette table in the high-ceilinged kitchen.

He drives in his old blue car to see Stella, stops by the county library and visits some friends. He likes to spend time with his minister, David Chadwell. "Lots of folks, more than you could imagine, go to him for counseling," Homer says. "He's a wise man, who can help you with your problems." Often Homer walks. A grocery store is about a block away and the town square is not much farther.

Homer likes to walk to the square and occasionally take his place on one of the benches, watching the people and cars go by. He doesn't do that too often, however. He reads his Bible a lot and studies literature to help him teach his church class. He is the heart of a Thursday morning breakfast-devotional, too.

Homer sometimes allows himself to be depressed by his loneliness. He wonders if Stella's loss — and his — is a form of persecution the Bible warns Christians about. Somehow this interpretation of the situation comforts him while it brings him pain.

He holds the Church and his Bible to his breast, not as a drowning man clutches at seaweed, but as a believer who knows what his Christ has said to him about many things, including not placing burdens the bearer cannot carry.

Samuels was always a hard schoolmaster. His kind of man saw black as black and white as white. Since there was no gray area for him, there was none for anyone else. Such was the way of God's word.

It has been Homer's code that discipline was important to make the person better — to build character. "It often didn't work, sadly enough," Samuels admits. "It saddened me that with some people, no matter what I did, they seemed hell-bent. What could I have done differently?"

With these words, Samuels accepts the responsibility for the hundreds of young people whose lives he's tried to influence since he first began teaching school nearly 70 years ago. At this late age Samuels begins questioning himself.

"Sometimes I think now, was it my fault that these boys were lost?"

Samuels is 89 years old. He remembers the years of caring and hard work, with the ideal that at the end of the road was a period of respite to enjoy the fruits of labor, just as a Christian believes in Heaven's reward. He has many friends, but nothing can replace Stella by his side.

Survival Note: Watch Out For The 'Doctor'

By GAIL MICHAELS

I am firmly convinced that even if our society were entirely free of sex-bias, small children would find some difference between girls and boys. Meg has been eager to differentiate between girls and boys socially ever since she began to differentiate between them physically. She first informed me that little girls didn't play with trucks, but since I've never been particularly wild for her to be a truck driver when she grows up, I didn't pay too much attention.

But when she told me that girls couldn't be doctors, I almost hit the ceiling. I worried and worried about who could have planted such ideas in her impressionable mind, when suddenly I realized that she had never seen a female doctor. So I explained to her that just because her doctors were men didn't mean that all doctors were men and that her own daddy had had a lady pediatrician when he was a little boy.

She listened, but she didn't look too convinced. That's when I hit upon the brilliant idea of buying her a doctor's kit.

It was the dumbest thing I've ever done. For a preschooler "Doctor" is a game in which the mother is always the patient and the doctor is receiving kickbacks from the funeral home.

The kit alone looked lethal. Besides the usual stethoscope and shot needle, it contained a bedpan, a reflex hammer, scissors, pliers, tweezers, tongue depressors, and about 20 other instruments that looked like leftovers from the Spanish Inquisition. And in the hands of Meg, even the Band-Aids looked dangerous.

The minute she opened the kit, she led me to her bed and said, "This is the zanomation table. Now we need to take off your clothes."

"Why don't you just examine me through my sweater?"

She stamped her foot. "Take off your clothes, or I won't give you a smiley face."

I thought I could bear this tragedy, but I wasn't sure she could. "Big people don't take off their clothes in the doctor's office," I lied.

"Then pretend you're two years old."

"I'd rather not."

She was beginning to get teary. "But if you don't take off your clothes, how will I be able to hit you in the knee with this hammer?"

I wasn't used to thinking this fast. "Well, uh, won't it be better if I pretend I'm big? Then I can go to the hospital and have a baby."

That satisfied her, and she bustled importantly around the room readying my baby, who appeared to have a terminal scalp condition, for her delivery. She stuck the baby under the sheets and came at me with the shot needle.

"But first you have to have a shot," she said. "It won't hurt for very long."

She jabbed me in three places, one of which was my nose. Then she grabbed the pliers and delivered the baby from under the sheets by its fingers.

I started to get up.

"Wait," she said. "I need to take your temperature. Can I do that?"

I figured that was about as innocuous as anything in that kit. "Sure," I said. "Why not?"

But there's one thing besides a female doctor that Meg has never seen. An oral thermometer.

Sheriff In Rural South Still A Political Force

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Despite changing times and occasional image problems, the sheriff in the rural South is still a powerful figure with down-home clout in local politics, a research team reports.

Two University of Central Florida researchers who studied sheriffs in 15 southern states said the law enforcement functions of sheriffs offices in some areas of the country — particularly big cities — have been curtailed to the point of insignificance.

But this "general pattern of decline" has not been the case in more rural sections, especially in the South, according to Drs. Roger Handberg and Charles M. Unkovic.

The southern sheriff increasingly has had to share his functions with other state and county authorities but "The office has continued as a significant political position," the researchers report.

The study by Handberg and Unkovic is the completion of a preliminary survey on the southern sheriff issued last year. The completed report covers 642 sheriffs who responded to 1,347 questionnaires sent out by the professors.

Handberg, who is a political scientist, contends that the media stereotype of the Southern sheriff as an "unprofessional redneck" has obscured his importance as a political force.

Unkovic, chairman of the Sociology Department at the Orlando school, says the most important aspect of the study is that "for the first time there is a body of research information. We now have a set of facts upon which to draw conclusions."

The professors say the sheriff is virtually unique as a law enforcement officer because as an elected official he has greater influence and closer ties to the community than a police chief, state official or FBI agent.

Educationally, the sheriffs span the spectrum from less than an eighth grade education to law school graduates. The average is a high school education.

Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina and Alabama sheriffs rank highest in educational levels. Georgia has the highest percentage of non-high school graduates among its sheriffs.

A "significant minority," almost 22 percent percent of the 15 state area's sheriffs, lack professional police training and experience. The elective process does not make such requirements mandatory, the authors say.

But the study found that the officials had an overall average of nine years experience and prior training, often as deputies within the departments they now head.

Their average tenure is eight years, but 8 percent have been in office 20 years or more.

As individuals, most southern sheriffs studied have extensive political influence which they can and have used against reform elements, the study says. But the sheriffs have proved adaptable "in geographic areas where the forces for change are overwhelming."

Some counties have established county police departments in addition to the sheriff's office. In some cases, such as Dade County, Fla., "A sheriff agency has been eliminated without threatening the existence of the other sheriffs" the authors said. Dade County, with Miami at its core, operates a Public Safety Department under a countywide metropolitan government.

The authors note that areas where the role of sheriff has been diluted or altered are generally the large, heavily populated urban counties where the personalized link with the residents did not exist anyway.

The study repeats its preliminary findings that the southern sheriff is overwhelmingly "a local boy made good," but that he generally possesses higher professionalism and more education than the usual stereotype indicates.

"What emerges here is a portrait of an officeholder who is a product of the particular constituency he represents," Handberg and Unkovic say.

"The personal linkage between the sheriff and his constituency appears closest in those counties characterized as relatively small population-wise, less urban and with a fairly high percentage of low-income individuals," they write.

Yet times are changing.

"The civil rights movement and the 1965 Voting Rights Act have significantly enlarged the constituency the sheriffs represent," the professors say. "These changes have led to the election of a few black sheriffs in those counties where there is either a black voting majority or else an unacceptable white candidate."

New Orleans Police Back On Job

By PETER FINNEY Jr.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police who walked out and threatened to leave the city without protection during the hectic Mardi Gras season Saturday forced an interim agreement from city officials and went back to work, ending the two-day strike.

"You know what they say, speak softly and carry a big stick," said Vincent Bruno, head of the 725-member Police Association of New Orleans. "We've got the big stick."

Police said more than 1000 of the city's 1,480 officers joined the strike before a haggard Mayor Ernest Morial, who previously had refused to recognize the Police Association, emerged from a meeting early Saturday morning and announced a tentative pact.

"A wise man changes often, a fool never," Morial said. "My position has not changed, but the conditions have changed. We avoided this city becoming another Memphis."

By mid-afternoon, all officers scheduled to work were back on the job, relieving state police and armed National Guardsmen.

The walkout caused concern among city and tourist officials that the racuous, pre-Lenten Mardi Gras celebrations that each year draw about 1 million people onto downtown streets, would be curtailed or canceled.

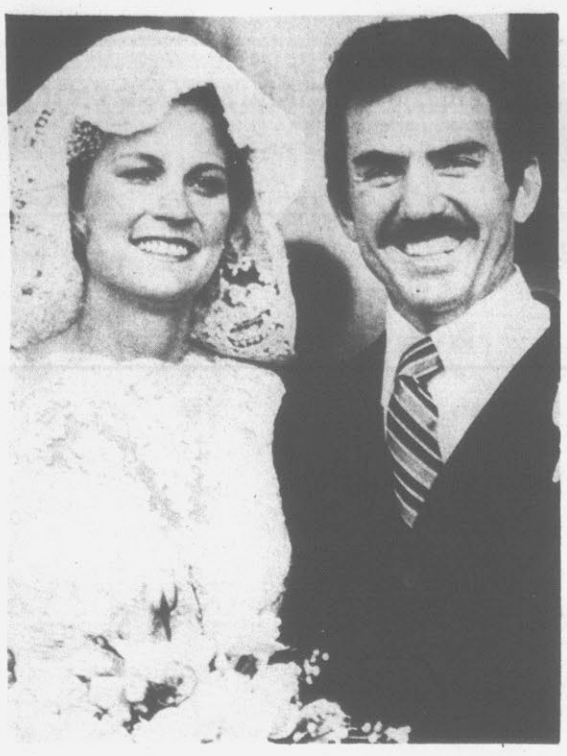

Leaders of 26 parade organizations told Morial last week they would be willing to shorten or change their routes for increased safety.

The tentative agreement, approved virtually unanimously by 600 members of the Police Association during a heated morning session, recognizes the Teamsters-affiliated union as the sole bargaining agent for officers and sets up a week of negotiations beginning Monday for a new police contract.

The rank and file will vote on a new pact Friday, a day before the first carnival parade hits the streets.

"We've got our act together, baby, and they know it," Bruno told the wildly cheering officers. "Right now we're a good, strong, well-disciplined union. The new contract's going to be on our own terms."

Morial, who looked tired from marathon 30-hour sessions with department officials and leaders of two rival police unions, said he decided to accede to the union's demand for recognition because of the growing strike momentum that left the city with just 18 patrolmen early Saturday.

record, but adds, "the number of accusations of individual human rights abuses, connected with anti-terrorism or political opposition, is substantial."

— Asia: The Philippines, South Korea and Indonesia are accused of large scale abuses.

Of The Philippines, it says, "There have continued to be credible reports of torture in 1978 as well as of the involvment of military units in abductions and murders of dissidents."

—Africa: The report said wars and internal upheavals have worsened the human rights climate in such nations as Zaire, Ethiopia and Somalia.

The situation was rated generally acceptable in Nigeria, Mozambique, Zambia and especially Kenya.

But socialist Tanzania, under a leader generally rated one of Africa's most enlightened statesmen — President Julius Nyerere — is accused of ignoring "most domestic violations of human rights."

News Briefs

Value In Conference

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) —University of North Carolina Vice President Cleon Thompson said Friday he found value in a conference earlier in the week between black chancellors of the UNC system and federal civil-rights officials.

Thompson told the UNC Board of Governors he hoped the chancellors' support of the UNC desegregation plan would help get the plan accepted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

HEW has threatened to cut off $89 million in federal funds to UNC because of allegations of duplication of programs and assertions that UNC's system retains remnants of racial segregation.

'Jet' Ad Too Costly

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A federal judge says a U.S. magistrate may not advertise in Jet magazine to locate heirs of 600 black men who took part in a syphilis experiment — some without getting treatment.

U.S. Magistrate Lewis Gwantley has been given until March 18 to find heirs of the men and distribute $9 million awarded in a 1975 court settlement.

To help find the relatives, he authorized publication of a notice in the Tuskegee News, Montgomery Times, the Cleveland Call and Post, and in Jet magazine, if the cost did not exceed a specified amount.

Court-appointed guardian David Byrne Jr. objected to the Jet ad, saying it was too expensive at $3,826 minus a 15 percent discount. U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. ruled Friday in Byrne's favor.

Several Named To Local Boards And Commissions

The City Council, meeting Thursday night, took action on a variety of items, including the naming of several persons to local boards and commissions.

Dr. Howard Gradis was recognized for serving two five-year terms on the Greenville Utilities Commission and former city manager Harry Hagerty was named to succeed Gradis on the board.

Councilman Clarence Gray, saying that he did not oppose Hagerty, expressed concern, however, that a minority representative was not named to the commission.

The Council voted to reappoint W. W. Speight to a second five-year term on the Greenville Foundation.

Named to serve on the ad hoc Land Development Committee were Lacy Harrell, Dick Farris, Gene Prescott, Mildred McGrath, Charles Vincent (attorney), Terry Shank, Dorothy Wooles, Charles Snell, Mrs. John East, Wes Hankins, Roy Beck and Ernest Brown Sr.

Following a public hearing, the Council voted to close a portion of a 30-foot alley in the Higgs Subdivision, from Wilson Avenue to the Branch property.

The alley is bounded on the north by Myrtle Avenue, on the east by Wilson Avenue, on the south by Chestnut Street, and by Line Avenue on the west. Mrs. Louise Branch said that the Branch heirs opposed the original proposal to close the alley from Wilson to Line Avenue and it was asked if the alley could remain open to the Branch property.

The corridor has never been opened, it was pointed out by acting city engineer, Ron Sewell. It is a dedicated alley, he added.

J. B. Surles of Home Builders Supply said that the firm never realized the alley was there until the property was surveyed. He said that Home Builders supported closing the alley but he agreed that the compromise of closing the corridor from the Branch property to Wilson Avenue would be acceptable.

Other business on the agenda included:

— Awarding of a certificate of convenience and necessity to Daniel R. Early Jr.;

— Approval of the submission of an application for a transit operating assistance grant;

— Acceptance of an offer in the amount of $675 from R & R Apartments of Greenville for the purchase of a tract of surplus city-owned property on the west side of the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad tracks and south of Third Street;

— Acceptance of the Community Development Grantee Performance report;

— Approval for the submission of an application to the N.C. Department of Transportation for an energy conservation plan grant proposal for a transit marketer for 1979;

— Adoption of a resolution requesting the General Assembly to amend a chapter of the Session Laws changing the composition of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority; — Scheduling of a public hearing for March 8 on the closing of a dirt street located south of and adjacent to Farmers Warehouse on N. Green Street;

— Approval of a recommendation by the Traffic Commission that six parking spaces be removed on Pitt Street adjacent to Carolina Telephone in order to allow curb and gutter installation on the Pitt-Green Connector;

— Approval of off-premise beer and wine privilege licenses for Barwick Trading Post, 100 Pollard Street, and for 264 Shell Pantry, 101 W. Greenville Boulevard;

— Scheduling of public hearings for March 8 on a petition for annexation and on three requests for rezoning;

— Acceptance of a bid in the amount of $34,000 from Public Works Equipment & Supply for a street sweeper;

— Acceptance of a bid of $47,500 from ARMCO for pipe for the public works facility; and — Acceptance of bids of $6,358.61 from Phelps Chevrolet Inc. for a four-door sedan, $10,121 from Hastings Ford Inc. for two pickup trucks, and $10,100 from Hastings Ford for a truck with flat dump body and sides. All of the vehicles are for the Young Adult Conservation Corps program.

Legal Problems Face Attorneys For Cults

BY NADINE JOSEPH
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Peoples Temple tragedy in Guyana and the growing controversy surrounding other so-called cults has placed attorneys representing such groups at the center of a swelling storm.

How much do lawyers who represent cults know about their clients? Should they report illegal activities? Is it ethical to withhold knowledge of illegalities when a client-cult commits them?

"It's hard to say what the Peoples Temple lawyers knew or didn't know" about the death ritual that took the lives of more than 900 cult members, said law professor John Noonan, who teaches ethics at the University of California at Berkeley.

But, adds Noonan, many of these lawyers "don't know anything because they close their eyes."

The lawyers must operate under the same ethical standards that affect many lawyers when their client's needs conflict with society's — a problem inherent in a basic principle of American law: that everyone is entitled to legal representation.

But attorneys for cults seem to be embroiled in controversy more than most lawyers. Former Temple members have leveled several accusations at the Temple's three lawyers — Tim Stoen, Charles Garry and Mark Lane — and all three have been subpoenaed by various grand juries in San Francisco.

The former Temple members say:

—Stoen acted in alleged conflict of interest, while serving as both Temple attorney and San Francisco deputy district attorney in 1976. Ex-members say he used his position to harass them. Stoen has been unavailable to comment on the charges.

—Garry, who strongly denies any wrongdoing, allegedly advised the cult to obtain firearms, and allowed cult members to hide some of the guns in a trunk in the basement of his law offices. Garry maintains he was misled by cult members.

—Lane knew about the murder-suicide drill and the imminent murder-suicide ritual, but never warned anyone.

According to news reports, a New York legal grievance committee has been asked to investigate reports Lane withheld knowledge that he believed might prevent harm to Rep. Leo Ryan — who was killed on a visit to Guyana just before the mass suicide — and others.

Lane said he warned Ryan that the visit to Guyana would be viewed by cult leader Jim Jones as "an act of provocation," but did not know the full danger.

"If I had seen them do anything illegal, I would have stopped it. I didn't know about the guns or any poison," he

Chances For ERA Ratification Appear Weakened

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Chances the Equal Rights Amendment will be ratified by North Carolina were lessened when one undecided senator made up his mind on Friday to vote "no", and supporters went home for the weekend to ponder their next move.

Sen. Billy Mills, D-Onslow, one of a handful of uncommitted senators, said Friday sentiment in his district dictated a vote against the amendment.

Another undecided senator crucial to ERA's chances, Sen. Joseph Thomas, D-Craven, said he would announce his intentions when he returned for Monday night's session. And key ERA supporter Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, acknowledged he did not expect to get Thomas' vote.

The events left Lawing assured of only 22 votes in the 50-member Senate, where supporters had planned to push ERA first. The controversial amendment to the U.S. Constitution has failed in North Carolina three times, including the last session when it passed the House but died by two votes in the Senate.

By most counts, Mills' decision left opponents with 25 votes against ERA, and three senators still undecided: Thomas, Joe Palmer, D-Transylvania, and Walter Cockerham, R-Guilford.

But there was more bad news for supporters. Sen. Robert Davis, D-Rowan, said he was having second thoughts about his vote, despite having signed the ERA bill, and despite a what he called a "personal conviction" for ERA.

"It looks bad," Lawing said. "Unless we can do something over the weekend to change some minds or bring around these undecided senators, our efforts will be futile in this session."

It was a sign of how fluid ERA has become in the legislature. Only a week ago Lawing had picked up four votes and said ERA was closer to passage in North Carolina than it has been in the past seven years.

ERA has been ratified by 35 states and needs approval in three more to be added to the constitution.

Legal Problems...

said in one interview.

Dennis Donovan, a Los Angeles lawyer who helped found a group that give free legal advice to parents of cult members, says one danger confronting lawyers who represent cults is becoming too involved.

"The lawyers get very emotional, very involved. Some of them sound like members," he said. "If they had a more objective view, they might help the group more."

He adds: "Cult lawyers certainly do act differently."

Others compare cult lawyers to some corporate in-house attorneys, who identify with their client and are aware of illegal activities.

"The question is what kind of an obligation do you have not to represent a crazy cult?" said a San Francisco lawyer, who won a lawsuit for a cult. He declined to be identified.

A lawyer has the right, but not the duty to report future crimes to authorities under American Bar Association rules. A lawyer cannot be forced to reveal confidential information from his client.

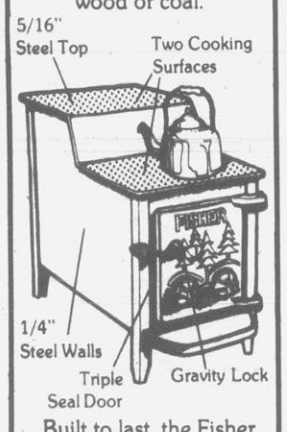

Steward Forsyth, director of the California Bar's divison of courts, said the bar's code of ethics "sets out rock bottom minimum standards." But he adds: "It's often difficult for attorneys to sort out conflicting duties — to the client, on one hand, and to the court and society, on the other."

A lawyer does have a duty to avoid lawsuits that serve only to harass or injure someone. Attorney Paul Morantz, a Synanon critic, survived a rattlesnake attack in which two Synanon members face charges.

Perry was cited with a safe movement violation and damages are estimated by police at $1,000 to the Castellow vehicle and $100 to the Perry vehicle.

Trial Set For Dan White

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former Supervisor Dan White has been ordered to stand trial March 26 for the City Hall shooting deaths of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

Superior Court Judge Claude Perasso revoked White's $1 million bail Friday after setting the trial date. White, who has not made bail since his arrest Nov. 27, whispered a plea of innocent.

Expected To Enter Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., is expected to enter the 1980 presidential picture next week by announcing formation of a committee to look into his chances.

As a forerunner of that action, his wife, Elizabeth Hanford Dole, resigned Friday as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Postponed

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — A Georgetown court has postponed to Feb. 19 the trial of Larry Layton, accused of plotting the slaying of Rep. Leo J. Ryan and four others near the Peoples Temple settlement at Jonestown. The trial had been set to open Monday.

Coal Mine To Close

MT. VERNON, Ill. (AP) — The miners' union at the Eads strip mine has been told the mine will close this year because environmental standards have driven away the coal mine's only customer — the Tennessee Valley Authority, published reports say.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported in Friday editions that the mine's parent company, Robertson & Associates Inc. of Chattanooga, Tenn., told the Progressive Mine Workers that the mine will cease production within 45 days.

U.S. Facing New Energy Crisis

By EDWARD K. DELONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, its fuel stocks bleeding away because of Iran's oil cutoff, is sliding toward a new energy crisis that may bring weekend service station closings and other measures reminiscent of the 1973-74 oil embargo.

But a wartime-type of gasoline rationing is still not in sight.

Energy Department officials said Saturday it is the potential long duration of the Iranian oil field shutdown, rather than the size of America's daily oil import shortfall, that makes the situation appear serious.

Government and private energy experts foresee little chance at this time that the loss of oil from Iran will force the imposition of coupon-type gasoline rationing. That, they say, is a last resort.

However, deprived of Iranian oil, which normally supplies 5 percent of its consumption, the United States has been forced to dip into its stockpiles for an extra 500,000 barrels a day to keep cars on the road, homes warm and factories humming.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger describes such use of the stockpiles as "borrowing against the future," and says there are limits to how long it can go on.

If Iran's oil fields remain shut down past April — now considered a distinct possibility — energy officials say they may have to call for some type of "non-coupon rationing" such as restricting service station hours of operation.

The restrictions could be imposed this summer. Their purpose would be to assure the United States an adequate supply of fuel for next winter.

The Energy Department is in the final stages of drafting four emergency measures, which soon will be submitted for congressional review. They include:

—Forcing service stations to close on weekends, a step designed to cut down on use of gasoline for pleasure driving.

—Ordering employers to restrict the number of parking spaces provided for workers and requiring commercial parking lots to reduce the number of downtown parking spaces. Both measures are designed to encourage car-pooling and the use of mass transit.

—Setting mandatory temperature limits for heating, cooling and hot water in large commercial buildings, thus reducing boiler fuel consumption.

—Requiring owners and operators of large commercial buildings to turn off all advertising lights except those absolutely needed during business hours, reducing demand for electricity.

The imposition of such measures could recall the closed service stations, the gas pump lines, the ride-sharing and the darkened nighttime streets of the 1973-74 embargo.

In addition to those four steps, Schlesinger also expects to send Congress on Feb. 26 a standby plan for coupon-type gasoline rationing, even though such a drastic step is now considered unnecessary.

Energy officials said supply problems might be solved without any mandatory conservation measures through a combination of voluntary conservation, substitution of natural gas for oil, diversion of oil from the nation's strategic petroleum reserve and relays of electricity from areas that generate power with coal and nuclear reactors to those that generate it with oil.

Iran was supplying the United States with about 900,000 barrels of oil a day before production was slowed by strikes in November and cut off Dec. 27. Increased production from Saudi Arabia and other producing nations has made up about 400,000 barrels of that loss.

Warns About Euphoria Over Trade With China

By JAMES HILDRETH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American business firms should avoid "unjustified euphoria" when assessing their chances of participating in China's multi-billion dollar modernization boom, the government cautioned Saturday.

"Recent news articles project that China will import over $200 billion from the West in 1978-85 or that Chinese imports will soar from $8.5 billion in 1978 to $50 billion in 1985," a special Commerce Department analysis said.

"It is unlikely that such scenarios will develop."

The report projected that the Chinese may purchase between $120 billion and $150 billion worth of goods from western nations by 1985, the amount depending on several factors including how much debt they want to incur and how fast they increase exports.

Under the best of conditions, it projected, U.S. firms will be able to sell China between $12 billion and $15 billion worth of products — only 10 percent of the potential Chinese import market.

President Carter's dramatic announcement that the United States and China were establishing official relations touched off a wild scramble among American businessmen anxious for a piece of the Chinese economic action.

China's leaders are pushing to transform their nation, with its more than 900 million people, into a modern industrial state by the year 2000. That goal requires a major infusion of foreign plants, equipment and technology.

The analysis noted there are many problems to be solved before a free flow of trade can be achieved between China and the West.

First and foremost, the Chinese must find ways to finance their purchases while simultaneously increasing exports. However, the report said, any effort to increase exports faces numerous problems.

Farmers Problems

By GAIL GREGG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "My wife had to go to work to keep me in cigars and whiskey," growled the Georgia peanut farmer, grinding his red tractor into gear as a procession of the huge machines crept past the Capitol.

One of the nearly 3,000 farmers in Washington to ask Congress for higher produce prices, the Georgian grumbled during the tractorcade demonstration along Constitution Avenue that "all the land is being bought up by foreigners."

He complained that "wheat brought higher prices in 1948 than it does today."

And he said he might not be able to hang on to his farm long enough to turn it over to his 12-year-old son.

"And even if I did," he added, "I'm not sure I'd want him to have this kind of life. I have to work too hard."

Camped out on the mile-long Mall in front of the Capitol are producers of most of the nation's food staples: beef, wheat, corn, sugar beets, milo, soybeans, peanuts.

Each has a different tale of hardship. But all face enough common problems to to have abandoned the farmer's traditionally independent status for membership in the American Agriculture Movement.

The price of land has skyrocketed since they started farming. They have seen the price of equipment soar. And they say the prices they are getting for their produce simply have not kept pace.

The AAM farmers, militants compared to the more established Farm Bureau, hustled financial backing at ice cream suppers and church rallies in their hometowns and then boarded tractors for Washington to press their case for higher prices.

Mistakenly Jailed For A Month

By BILL DENSMORE
Associated Press Writer

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — His eyes aren't black, his birthday isn't July 3 and his middle name isn't Lee. But Richard Nance spent a month in jail until his lawyer convinced police they had the wrong man.

"I was beginning to wonder if they were going to pull this thing off," Nance said Friday. "When you're behind bars, you don't know anybody and you have no money. You get the feeling they can do anything they want to you."

Nance, a machinist, moved from South Bend, Ind., to Los Angeles last year. On Dec. 1, he was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace. He was convicted, and on Dec. 5, in the midst of his 10-day sentence, a nationwide computer crime network spat out the information that a Richard Lee Nance was wanted in Sonoma County, in northern California, on a burglary charge.

The Sonoma County sheriff's department told officials in Los Angeles that its warrant for Richard Lee Nance said he was born July 3, 1946, was 5-foot-10 and 180 pounds and had brown hair and black eyes.

The prisoner's middle name was Marion, not Lee; he was born July 6, 1946, not July 3; and his eyes were blue. But on Dec. 10, when his sentence was served, Richard Marion Nance was flown north to Santa Rosa; bail was set at $5,000 — which he couldn't afford — on the burglary charge; and he was put back in jail.

"If the system allows something like this to happen, then something is wrong with the system," says Nance, now working as a bricklayer and planning to sue.

During a pre-trial hearing, the burglary victim pointed to him and identified him as the man who had stolen a valuable ring and $100 from his farmhouse.

"I can laugh about it now," Nance says, "but can you believe me sitting here in that bright orange (prison) jumpsuit? Who else is the guy going to point to? The judge?"

He got out of jail on Jan. 11 because Shirley A. Waldron, an investigator for the Sonoma County public defender's office, unraveled the case and the red tape.

Ms. Waldron, a former police officer, said she told District Attorney Gene Tunney about the discrepancies between Nance and the man sought in the warrant. In addition, she found fingerprints for Richard Lee Nance from a California driver's license, and they didn't match Richard Marion Nance's prints.

Tunney's office was reluctant to ask for charges to be dismissed because, Ms. Waldron says, "it came down to politics between offices. They said they were not going to admit this and they had to finally."

Performed In New York Show

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y. — Jeannette Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Alton Gardner of Route 2, Ayden, recently appeared in Equity Library Theater's Informals Series at Lincoln Center Library for the Performing Arts.

In a special guest appearance in "Musical America," Ms. Gardner performed a song and dance routine to "Give My Regards to Broadway," choreographed by Randy Hugill.

Later this year Ms. Gardner is scheduled to tour extensively with the "Musical America" production throughout the U.S. and Canada, in addition to engagements scheduled for the Far East and Italy.

Disco Hazard

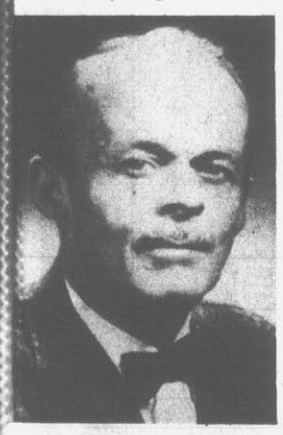

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazilian discotheques are being asked to post signs warning of potential eye, ear and psychological damage due to rocking rhythms and excessive glare.

They also will be told to stop using monochromatic light and to create "areas of silence" with noise levels below 90 decibels, authorities said Friday.

China Tour

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Symphony Orchestra says it will accept an invitation to visit China next month. Spokesman Peter Gelb said trustees agreed to the nine-day, two-city tour although the symphony is $150,000 short of the $650,000 needed for the journey.

Gelb said Friday the tour would include a concert in Shanghai, three in Peking, a show with the Central Philharmonic Orchestra of Peking, and workshops with Chinese musicians.

To Perform In Kinston

RALEIGH — Michael and Margaret Ma, N. C. Symphony violinists, will perform with the Symphony in a concert to be held in Northwest Elementary School Auditorium in Kinston at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 16.

This is the final of three concerts this season in Kinston. For ticket information, contact Mrs. Charles H. Classen, Jr. at 527-7026 or Mrs. William F. Hutchinson at 523-0189. Tickets are priced at $6 for adults and $3 for students.

On Dean's List

Margaret I. Yelverton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Yelverton of Farmville; Ann Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Williams of Greenville, and Sheri L. Mozingo, daughter of Mrs. Joyce J. Killingsworth of Winterville.

GENEOLOGY MEET

NEW BERN — The Eastern N. C. Genealogical Society will meet here Monday at 7:30 p.m. at 1909 Trent Blvd.

Persons interested in genealogy are invited.

LISTED IN WHO'S WHO

Kenneth David Hines, a sophomore at Mount Olive College, has been named to the 1978-79 edition of 'Who's Who Among Junior Colleges". Hines is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin K. Hines of Winterville.

The 20-year-old religion major is a 1977 graduate of D. H. Conley High School. At Mount Olive College he is a Dean's List student, a participant in the Academic Honors Program and vice-president of the Free Will Baptist Fellowship. He also serves on the staff as a Resident Assistant.

SERVED AS PAGES

Two Greenville students served as Pages in Governor Hunt's offices in Raleigh the week of February 5.

Jonathon McGee, son of Mr and Mrs. James A. McGee of 208 Prince Rd., and Susan Wynne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wynne, III, of 1410 N. Overlook Dr., are both freshmen at E. B. Aycock Junior High School.

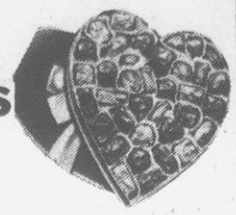

CRIME DOESN'T PAY

STIRLING, Scotland (AP) — Some 90,000 cigarettes stolen from a warehouse here were ruined after being hidden in a farm shed which let in rain.

But the thieves had to pay anyway. They were fined $7,700 for the theft of the cigarettes, which were valued at $5,000.

Superman Play Being Staged At Wahl-Coates

SUPERMAN AND THE MAYOR . . . ECU Drama Dept. student Denny Wright pays a visit to the Mayor of Greenville, Percy Cox in the Mayor's office. A Broadway musical based on the character of Superman, sponsored by Boy Scout Troop 769, is being presented at Wahl-Coates on Feb. 15, 16 and 17.

For a three day run on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 15, 16 and 17, the Scouting Players will present the Broadway musical "It's a Bird, It's a Plane, It's SUPERMAN" at Wahl-Coates Laboratory School, West Fifth Street.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. on each of the three evenings with the play taking place in the auditorium of the school. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children, with tickets available by calling 758-1843 or 752-3444.

Fred McLean is director, and Ted McEnally technical director of the David Newman story that stars East Carolina University Drama Dept. senior Denny Wright in the lead role.

Karen Wheeler, a student at Rose High School, portrays Superman's sidekick Lois Lane, and Tim Shank, a student at Aycock, is Max.

Others in the cast are Aycock student Terence McEnally as Dr. Sedgwick, Barbara Wheeler and Michael Brohawn, both of Rose High, as Sydney and Jim, respectively.

Musical numbers are choreographed by Sherryl Mercer; Emmy Whitehead has designed the comic book style set; and the cast is supported by an orchestra drawn from faculty and students at East Carolina University. The chorus is composed of local high school, junior high, and elementary students.

Selected as one of the best plays of the 1965-1966 Broadway season, the musical has a score by Charles Strouse.

Wind Ensemble To Be On Tour

The 54-member Symphonic Wind Ensemble of the School of Music, East Carolina University, will tour several eastern Virginia locations during the second half of February.

The Ensemble, conducted by Herbert Carter and Harold A. Jones of the ECU Music faculty, is a select group of student instrumentalists.

Places scheduled for performances and dates are: Eaton Junior High School, Hampton, Feb. 13 — Kellam High School, Virginia Beach, Feb. 14; Kempsville High School, Virginia Beach, Feb. 14— Indian River High School, Chesapeake, Feb. 15 — and Western Branch High School, Chesapeake, Feb. 15.

Compositions to be played in the programs include "The Klaxon" by Henry Fillmore; Alfred Reed's "Armenian Dances;" Gordon Jacob's "Tribute to Canterbury;" Vic Firth's "Encore In Jazz;" Dmitri Kablevsky's "Comedians' Gallop;" "Spoon River" by Percy Grainger;" and Ron Nelson's "Savannah River Holiday Overture."

Several of the student musicians in the 54-member group are from the area in which the programs are being presented—Kevin Bagby, Chesapeake; Robert Burford, Roland Colsen, and Mark Wheeler, all Virginia Beach; Bill Robinson and Donna Southall, both Hampton; and Dave Hill, Williamsburg.

Glenn Miller Band In Martin Concert

WILLIAMSTON — Jimmy Henderson and his Glenn Miller Orchestra will be in concert at 8 p.m. on Friday, March 2 at the Martin County Auditorium, Williamston High School.

The concert, sponsored by the Williamston High School Key Club and Keywannettes, is priced at $6 with tickets available from club members or at the door prior to performance time.

A proponent of nostalgic music, the band includes in its program well-known favorites such as "At Last," "Serenade in Blue," "String of Pearls," "Moonlight Serenade," and "Chattanooga Choo Choo."

In the 34 years since Glenn Miller disappeared while on a military flight from England to France during World War II, the Miller Estate authorized the formation of the present Glenn Miller Orchestra, first under the direction of Ray McKinley.

In 1966, McKinley was succeeded by Buddy DeFranco, who remained the conductor until Jan. 1974, when trombonist Buddy Morrow took over as leader.

Henderson has been the band's leader since April 1975. It is the only orchestra legally authorized to use the name "Glenn Miller."

Tokyo's Pink Lady Has Boppers Shrieking

By MARIANNA OHE

TOKYO (UPI) — They bounce on stage in sequinned mini-dresses with sparkling baubles in their hair — and the teeny-boppers of Japan let out a collective shriek.

"You may be a UFO man," the two slender young women sing, dancing in unison and moving their arms in an arc over their heads. "But I don't care. I'm getting tired of earth men."

They are "Pink Lady," the singing duo that has topped Japan's pop music charts and blanketed its television airwaves for the past two years — the ultimate product of Japan's "star factory" system.

Twenty-year-old Mitsuyo Nemoto (Mii-Chan) and 21-year-old Keiko Masuda (Kei-Chan) are cute — but not beautiful. Their singing is good — but not exceptional. And their dancing, although charming, is no match for a Las Vegas chorus line.

But Japanese children are entranced by the girls' energetic "body action," a departure from the rather inert performing style of most Japanese pop singers. Mii-Chan and Kei-Chan throw themselves into their doll-like dance routines with their whole bodies, mirroring each other's kicks, wiggles and whirls.

Little children no older than three can be seen on the streets, mimicking Pink Lady motions for the benefit of their amused parents.

"We try to give a kind of festival feeling when we perform," says Mii-Chan, trying to explain Pink Lady's appeal. "We don't just sing; we try to really make the audience feel good."

Another attraction is the fanciful, childlike lyrics of the girls' songs about baseball players, UFO men and monsters (Monster, my cute Monster, if you're thirsty, I'll buy you a tomato juice. If your horn is itchy, I'll buy you a sharpener.").

"Our music has a sense of the comic, with really unthinkable lyrics," says Kei-Chan.

Whatever the reason, Pink Lady has found a magic formula which has propelled seven of their singles and six of their LPs to the number one spot on the pop music charts since they were "discovered" in February, 1976.

The two young women, who went to the same high school in Shizuoka City about 80 miles southwest of Tokyo, now make $1,052 per month each. Their first appearance in the United States, last April in Las Vegas, was a smash success. And they profess to want nothing more than to save up their money so that they can get married at the age of 25 and quit singing.

"The basic idea behind doing all this singing is to save up before getting married. I don't want to lose the chance of getting married to become a haggard 30-year-old woman with wrinkles," says Mii-Chan.

"In Japan there is a tendency for young women to get married at a certain age," Kei-Chan adds. "For performers and models, the best time is the early years, and 25 is a sort of turning-point age."

Pink Lady got its first break in the typical way, making an appearance on "A Star is Born," a kind of television audition show where entertainment production companies, or talent scouts, pick up promising young stars.

Whereas record companies used to be the chief idol-makers in Japan, in recent years the job has been taken over by television companies hoping to raise their viewing rates and obtain recording rights of their young discoveries.

The television companies launch a massive publicity campaign for their new talents, booking them on a steady stream of TV shows night after night until the young performers become so hopelessly overexposed that their popularity usually dies out after two or three years.

The stars are worked so hard, touring the country on concert tours, giving interviews and sometimes appearing on two or three television shows in one night, that they have no free time.

Punk Rock, A Dead Issue

By ALISON SMALE

LONDON (UPI) — Sid Vicious made headlines for the last time Friday, February 3 when he died from a drug overdose. But punk rock, the violence-tinged brand of rock he and his Sex Pistols personified, was already dead.

Never big in the United States, punk burst into British life in November 1976, when the then-unknown Sex Pistols appeared on a TV news show and outraged viewers with a stream of four-letter words.

From then on, the media devoured news of the four shock-haired teen-agers who pierced their noses and ears with safety pins and made a business of spitting and vomiting on fans.

Other groups — The Jam, The Damned, The Stranglers — followed and gave the world a new rock movement — punk.

Some rock observers said punk was an obvious outgrowth of rock itself, and that the trend was prophesied by Stanley Kubrick in his movie, "Clockwork Orange," which dealt with sadistic violence by teen-agers who dressed and carried themselves in the manner of punkers today.

But punk as a commercially successful music form was the brainchild of one man, Sex Pistols manager Malcolm Maclaren.

As owner of a London shop that sold skintight leather suits, and former manager of the transvestite rock group The New York Dolls, Maclaren thought a crude mix of sex and rock 'n' roll might sell.

He picked four jobless teen-agers who hung around his shop, and the Sex Pistols were born.

EMI head talent scout Nick Mobbs heard the group's three-chord rock and signed them for $90,000. "Technically they couldn't play, but emotionally it was really exciting," Mobbs said at the time.

EMI broke the contract after the Pistols' shock TV appearance. But the group made news — and topped the charts in the Silver Jubilee Year of 1977 with "God Save the Queen," which nihilistically screamed, "There ain't no future in England's dream."

The nihilism struck a chord among disillusioned teen-agers. Punk spawned a new line in crew-cut orange hair, pins through the nose, and razor blade necklaces that even found its way into the jetset. Devotees jumped mindlessly up and down in a new dance called the "pogo."

In 1977, punk was the sound in British pop music. But the Sex Pistols, its symbol, broke up.

Maclaren took his Sex Pistols to Atlanta, Ga., where he knew they would give maximum shock value. Shock, maybe. A hit, no. Lead singer Johnny Rotten dropped out.

Vicious, who played bass guitar, tried going solo, an attempt that ended in cat calls at New York's Max's Kansas City. The group reformed, tried again, but failed. Vicious and his girlfriend Nancy Spungen became increasingly hooked on heroin and their own violent lifestyle.

Brett Postcard Show

The postcards consist of a series of first-day cachets, commemorating contemporary events and people within the network of the "OR POST" — "OR" is derived from the or in "George," the artist's first name. (The cards also bear a U.S. postage stamp in the ten cents denomination, the current rate for mailing postcards).

Brett holds the MFA degree from the University of Georgia and has exhibited in numerous regional, national, and inter- national shows.

The show will be on view in the Porch Gallery through March 11, and is open to the public without charge.

Filming In Asheville

RALEIGH — A major film by MGM Studios will be filmed in Asheville beginning this month. The film will star Peter Sellers and Shirley MacLaine.

The film, to be entitled "Being There," is described as a political satire and will be filmed largely at the 12,000-acre Biltmore Estate, home of George Vanderbilt and one of North Carolina's top tourist attractions.

The filming process is scheduled to run four to five weeks, involving an estimated 100 actors, technicians and crew from the studio, and is expected to contribute more than $1 million to the economy of the mountain resort city.

Manteo Show

MANTEO — An opening reception from 3 to 5 p.m. today is being held in the Griffin Room of Dare County Library, Manteo, to inaugurate the Frank Stick Memorial Art Exhibit.

The exhibit features work of Outer Banks artist Frank Stick and 12 other invited artists, and will be on view through Feb. 24.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Nobel laureate Heinrich Boell and six other authors say they'll help prepare a German-made television series about the Holocaust.

The Frankfurter Allgemeine newspaper Friday quoted the authors as saying in a statement that "A German series that would do justice to the 'Holocaust' theme in an appropriate way" is urgently needed.

A Review

A Timely Marketplace Guide

Consumer's Marketplace Encyclopedia. Compiled by American Consumer Publications, Inc. Distributed by Dell Distributing Co., New York. Paper, large format, 399 pages, $8.95

The complexity of the art of living in all its manifestations of buying, using, trading, accounting for, insuring, and selling is brought home to the average American householder in this comprehensive publication.

Sub-titled "America's National Shopping, Trade-In, and Resale Manual," the 1979 edition of "Consumer's Marketplace" is truly a collection of many documents of value to America's householders.

Among the catalog aspects of this book are a listing of "Best Buys by Brand Names;" 'America's Greatest Discount and Bargain Stores;" and of particluar help to anyone with something old, the "Fair Market Index" and "National Selling Index." As inflation prompts more people to hold onto older items, the value of things not new becomes more important, and these indexes provide a much needed valuation guide.

Another aspect is the "how to do it" approach to actions that most of us are reluctant to become involved in — what action to take in the event a major purchase turns out to be a real "lemon" — and the need for insurance purposes of simplified, but inclusive and up to date household inventories and where to keep them for record purposes.

Another section of more than passing interest is the one covering the purchase of secondhand items, including used cars. Pungent words of advice of what to buy include terse warnings such as "shun" and "take flight from 1972 to 1975 models" noted for a certain experimental car — to reassuring ratings such as "comfortable and reliable" and "still choice years with excellent durability."

Some readers will likely be put off by rather colorful (at times flippant) toss off of comments given in rating products — but this likelyrepresents no more than an escape valve from the necessary tedium that must have been involved for those annotating and compiling this vast body of information.

For anyone inclined to look behind the scenes at what they buy, "Consumer's Marketplace Encyclopedia" should more than compensate in savings the modest price of this combined directory-guideline-catalog publication.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MARGARET CLARK

Norma Jean and Carol Darden traveled across the country interviewing and visiting scores of relatives who shared with them their family lore and treasured recipes. As a result, the two sisters have written a delightful new cookbook entitled SPOONBREAD AND STRAWBERRY WINE. Beginning with their Grandfather Darden, who was born a slave and settled at sixteen with his wife in Wilson, North Carolina, they describe in detail his wine making secrets for the strawberry wine he sold for five cents a glass in his general store. Another member of their family is an aunt who couldn't remember cooking recipes but remembered her beauty cream "recipes." There are herbal cures, priceless photographs and memories. However, the central focus of SPOONBREAD AND STRAWBERRY WINE is on food simply because dining and celebrating special events are an important element of the black family tradition.

Much of the advance planning has been done for buffet entertaining in THE ART OF BUFFET ENTERTAINING by Diana and Paul von Welantz. Precise guidelines and enticing recipes are invaluable for the beginning as well as the the experienced party giver. Each distinctive buffet includes an illustration of the table setting, directions for making centerpieces, complete recipes for every dish, and even suggestions for what to do with the leftovers. Tips on how to prepare a guest list, rent equipment, hire help, set up a bar, and arrange seating all make planning and serving a buffet much easier than you thought possible.

FARM JOURNAL'S COOK IT YOUR WAY is a cookbook for these times when energy saving is so important. It's purpose is to help increase the usefulness of such kitchen appliances as the slow cooker, toaster oven, electric frypan, microwave oven, pressure cooker, and electric wok. Over 200 recipes show you how to cook each the conventional way, in the oven or on the range top. Then it adjusts each recipe to one or more appliances.

After preparing and enjoying some of the delicious recipes in the new cookery, you will probably be ready for THE COMPLETE TARNOWER SCARSDALE MEDICAL DIET by Dr. Herman Tarnower and Simon Sinclair Baker. This eminent cardiologist's diet plan is designed to take off up to 20 pounds in 14 days without hunger or pills.

Additional Speakers

Additional speakers have been announced for the 1979 Visual Arts Forum being held on campus at East Carolina University.

Andrew Stasik, Director of Pratt Graphics Institute in New York, will participate in the forum on two days, Feb. 20 and 21. He will lecture at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 20 in the auditorium of Jenkins Fine Arts Center.

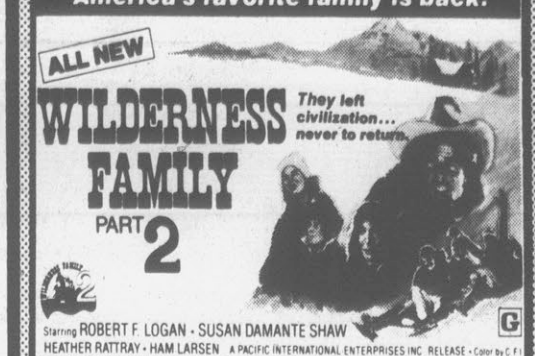

Kenneth Kerslake, from the University of Florida at Gainesville, will conduct a two day workshop in photo intaglio on Feb. 26 and 27. The workshop will be held in Room 1103 of Jenkins building, and his slide lecture will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 27 in the auditorium.

Two local speakers will be on the scene at 11 a.m. Friday, Feb. 16. Dr. Y. J. Lao and Dr. Trenton Davis, both of the Allied Health and Social Professions, will discuss health hazards in the arts, particularly safety measures artists need to practice. This will also be in the auditorium at Jenkins.

All the above lectures are open to the public without charge.

Scholarship Winners Listed

WINSTON-SALEM — Three 17-year olds and a 16-year old student have been named as the quartet of winners in the fifth annual Sanford Scholarship Competition held in late January at the North Carolina School of the Arts (NCSA).

The four won out in competition among 116 applicants, of whom 101 were auditioned in the finals. Of the 101, a total of 39 qualified for immediate admission to the regular arts program next fall, and 22 others were invited to enroll in special summer programs this year.

The four winners and the field in which they were competing in are:

— Dance — Allen Fields of Southern Pines, a 17-year 11th grade student at Pinecrest High School, son of Mrs. Daisy Mae Linn.

— Drama — Robert H. Sheridan, 17, a senior in R. J. Reynolds High School, Winston-Salem, and son of Mrs. Barbara Sheridan.

— Music — Katreese D. Barnes, 16, a junior at Weldon High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Barnes of Route 3, Enfield.

— Visual arts (design and production) — Alexander Isley, a 17-year junior at Jordan Senior High School, Durham. Isley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Isley.

Alternates chosen for the four top winners are: Dance — Alesia Fowler, 12, of Ft. Bragg; drama — Vickie Lynn McGill, 17, Charlotte; music — Timothy Dufore, 17, Beaufort; and visual arts — Jane M. McManus, 14, Red Springs.

The Sanford Scholarships Competition is open only to legal residents of North Carolina, who, at the time they apply, are enrolled in grades 7 through 12.

The full one-year scholarships are applicable to tuition and fees for the coming academic year at NCSA, which begins in September, and can be used either for high school or college programs.

ON CHANCELLOR'S LIST

CHARLOTTE — Ms. Cedita Letrell Graves, 1108 E. 14th St., Greenville, has been named to the Chancellor's List for the fall semester at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Student Recitals

Owen And Parks

A joint recital by voice student Susan H. Owen and pianist Val Parks will be presented on Tuesday, Feb. 13 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

Ms. Owens will be accompanied by pianist Ben Leaptrott and will sing works by Purcell, Mahler, Berlioz, Copland and Silver. Her program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

For his 8:15 p.m. program, Parks will play two sonatas by Scarlatti; Beethoven's "Sonata;" "Prelude" and "Sonatine" by Ravel; and three etudes by Chopin.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

Bearinger

Katherine Bearinger, a senior in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will present her senior piano recital in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall at 8:15 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 16.

For her program she will perform Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in A Flat Major;" "Three Intermezzi" by Brahms; Debussy's "Danseuses de Delphes;" and Mozart's "Sechs deutsche Tanze."

The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

Farm And Home Show

LUMBERTON — A variety of events will be offered the public in the Tenth Annual Southeastern Farm and Home Trade Show to be held Feb. 21 and 22 at the Cooperative Warehouse in Lumberton.

Among events scheduled are a concert by Uncle Ugly and Slim Mims and his country band at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 21; a beauty queens event at 7 p.m. Feb. 22; and a square dance each night at 8 p.m. An antique booth will also be featured.

Sierra Club Meeting

Cecil Frost, State Parks Ranger in charge of Merchant's Millpond State Park, will be the speaker at the Monday, Feb. 12 meeting of the local Sierra Club.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of 14th and Elm Streets. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Frost will discuss the sweeping package of conservation legislation to be presented to the N. C. General Assembly, with proposals that include protection of habitats of rare and endangered species of plants and animals, the establishment of a State Trail System, acquisition of the remaining 20,000 acres needed to complete new state parks, and funding for the State Natural and Scenic River System.

The program will include a color slide presentation.

The show opens each day at 11 a.m. and closes at 9 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited.

ECU Waltzes To Easy Victory Over USC-Aiken

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Pirates, after two straight overtime losses, were achin' for a victory, and South Carolina-Aiken kindly provided the senario for it last night as the Bucs raced to a 103-72 win.

The victory came easily for the Pirates, who took the same team only 87-80 last season.

It also insured the Pirates of a better season than last year. The victory was their tenth of the year, as compared to nine last season.

"It was nice to be able to have some fun for a change," a smiling Larry Gillman said afterwards. "We didn't have to hang on every basket."

The win represented the largest score by a Pirate team in victory since January 1975, when the Pirates took a 110-78 win over Davidson. It was also their largest victory margin since that same game.

It was the first time in 43 games that the Pirates cracked the century mark during regulation time, and the first time in 33 games, including overtimes.

By the time the first half was over, the Pacers were out of it. East Carolina held a 16-point spread there, 51-35, and later increased it several times to as much as 33 points. The biggest question in the second half appeared to be whether the Pirates would, indeed, hit 100 points.

Six different Bucs scored in double figures and only freshman Clarence Miles failed to score.

George Maynor, with 16 second half points, led the way with 18, while Greg Cornelius had 17, Oliver Mack had 16, Herb Krusen and Al Tyson had 14 each, and Walter Moseley had 10.

The Pirates were hot, hitting 57.5 per cent for the game. Aiken, meanwhile, hit just 38.6 per cent.

The Bucs also dominated the backboards with a 51-44 margin. Cornelius pulled off 13 to lead the Pirates and Keefe Walker had a like number for the Pacers.

Probably the most pleasing statistic for the Pirate coaches was the number of assists, 24, with Mack leading the way with six, four of them in the first half.

Mack played the most of any of the Pirates, 27 minutes, his shortest effort of the year. The reserves played most of the final ten minutes of the game.

Gillman said that he felt the Pirate defense had one of its better nights. "After the first two minutes of the second half, our matchup worked real well. We came back out with the attitude that we wanted to work on our defense to sharpen it up for the next few games."

Gillman added that he felt the Pirates shot the ball well. "We broke away after the first few minutes, and we had some really great open court play with some nice assists. It was a game we can all benefit from."

The coach added that he felt the game was a good indicator that the Pirates were an improved team over last year. "Last year, they lost only one player, and they've replaced him well. Last year, we only won by seven. But tonight we dominated the game and did what we had to to have some fun."

Gillman's Pirates still have a chance for a winning season. Now 10-12, they have five games left, including three on the road. "I hope this game will get us off on the right foot toward going to Wilmington on Tuesday. We still have a good opportunity to end up on the plus side, but we're going to have to work for it."

Aiken never led in the game, as the Pirates got the first two baskets and rolled on from there. A jumper by Krusen after nearly five minutes ran the lead

Pitt Stuns Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Sam Clancy says he knew what was happening in the final seconds and took advantage of it in Pittsburgh's 71-69 upset win over third-ranked Duke Saturday night.

With less than 20 seconds left and the score tied at 69-69, Clancy forced a steal on a pass by Duke's Bob Bender to Kenny Dennard. "I saw Dennard going back door, and I was waiting for it," said the 6-6, 245-pound sophomore forward.

Clancy got the steal and put up the ball which missed the basket. But he got his own rebound and dunked the ball with three seconds left to cinch the Panthers' win.

A 25-foot desparation jump shot at the buzzer by Duke's Mike Gminski failed.Both coaches credited Pitt's quickness in the win.

"We thought our big advantage coming into the game was quickness. We used our fast break and transition game well," said Pitt coach Tim Grgurich. "We spread out our offense to try to take advantage of our quickness; we thought we could beat them one-onone."

Said Duke coach Bill Foster: "They were a lot quicker than we were. They out-quicked us. Clancy did a heck of a job there in the end."

Clancy scored 23 points, pulled down 11 rebounds and made nine out of 10 charity shots.

Pitt, now 14-8, led by five points, 37-32, at intermission but Duke broke on top early in the second half with a threepoint lead.

The Panthers were up by four points, 66-62, on a basket by Wayne Williams with 5:50 remaining and maintained that lead until Duke knotted the score at the 4:28 mark, 67-67.

But Clancy immediately went down the court and drove in for a basket to give the Panthers a 69-67 lead with 4:08 to go.

Sammie Ellis fired in 17 points for the Panthers, Terry Knight chipped in 13 and Williams added 10.

Gminski's 21 points paced the Blue Devils, who fell to 17-4. Banks contributed 17 points for Duke and Jim Spanarkel had 11.

Duke outscored Pitt from the field, hitting 30 of 57 shots compared to 25 of 50 for the Panthers. But the decisive factor was at the foul line where Pitt hit 21 of 29 shots.

Heels Roll To Easy Win After 44-18 Lead At Half

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mike O'Koren scored 15 points and helped North Carolina rack up a 40-point second half advantage as the sixth-ranked Tar Heels rolled over Providence 89-55 in college basketball action Saturday night.

The game was tied only once, at 2-2, with 10 seconds off the clock. The Tar Heels made Swiss cheese of the Friars' zone defense throughout the game, piled up a 44-18 halftime margin and were never less than 30 points ahead in the final five minutes.

Jeff Wolf hit a layup with 9:15 on the clock to give the Tar Heels a 68-28 lead for their largest maragin of the game.

The Friars, who fell to 8-14 with the loss, were stymied by North Carolina's man-to-man and zone defenses, and they were unable to hit many shots when they had the opportunity.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith called the game "one of the best of our entire season." The Tar Heels improved to 18-4 for the season with the victory.

Also in double figures for the Tar Heels was Al Wood who had 12 points, all but two scored in the first half, and Rich Yonakor who hit for 10.

Rudy Williams was high scorer for Providence with 18 points, and Bill Fields added 16.

"Obviously, coming in we knew we were in over our heads a little bit," said Providence coach Dave Gavitt. "I came in impressed with what I've seen of North Carolina, I'm leaving more impressed."

ECU Wins Event

ROCK HILL, S.C. — East Carolina claimed the championship in the ninth Winthrop College Invitational women's basketball tournament here Saturday afternoon, beating host Winthrop 76-63.

The Pirates, now 15-8 having won six of their last seven games, used 25 points by Rosie Thompson, a patient offense and a steady, non-fouling defense to pull away from the Eagles. ECU led 43-30 at halftime.

"We had good shot selection and were really conscious of the foul situation on defense," said Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi. "Lydia Rountree ran the offense well and Rosie took her shots when they came.

"We didn't want to commit fouls and concentrated on that. Having only 10 was quite an achievement.

"Even though we were ahead 13 points at halftime, we weren't comfortable. We had played three close games in our last three and just blown a big lead last night, so there was a lot of pressure on us.

"Winthrop put a lot more pressure on us defensively late in the game, but we broke their press with good, quick passing. When they really got aggressive, it would have been easy to lose our patience, but the girls stayed with the plan."

The 10 fouls committed by the Pirates permitted only six free throws by the losers, a necessary factor against East Carolina's 4-17 production at the free throw line.

The Pirates held a 44-36 edge in rebounding and committed only eight turnovers.

"The shooting averages don't prove that we played a good team game, but some of the other factors are impressive, like 19 assists and only eight turnovers," said Andruzzi.

Thompson extended her career-record point total to 1,607 during the ballgame, while teammate Gale Kerbaugh, with nine points, moved to a career total of 991. She figures to become the fourth woman in East Carolina history to pass the 1,000-point plateau.

The Pirates play three times next week, including a home game Monday night against undefeated and nationally top-rated Old Dominion.

Winthrop—Dixon 4-0 8, Williams 4-0 8, Fields 7-0 14, Burch 1-0 2, Bland 9-0 18, Rampey 0-0 0, Carwford 0-0 0, Knell 1-0 2, Dukes 5-1 11.
East Carolina—Thompson 12-1 25, Emerson 5-0 10, Girven 6-1 13, Kerbaugh 4-1 9, Rountree 8-1 17, Ross 1-0 2, Versprille 0-0 0.

Borg, Connors To Vie

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Bjorn Borg, playing his typical patient game, scored his typical victory over Guillermo Vilas 6-3, 6-3 Saturday in the $300,000 Grand Slam of Tennis Tournament.

The victory moved Borg into the finals for the third straight year against Jimmy Connors, who defeated John McEnroe in straight sets on Friday. Borg has beaten Connors in the finals the last two years.

Borg extended his winning streak over Vilas to eight matches dating to 1975. Borg has won the last five in straight sets.

The match was played as usual when the two meet. They exchanged long rallies that usually ended with Vilas returning one of Borg's accurate ground strokes either too long or into the net.

"When I play Vilas, we always have matches like this. It's very normal for us to have long rallies from the baseline," Borg said.

Vilas said, "We both play the same kind of game. He's just a little faster than I am.

"I need a better second serve against him. I need a better approach," Vilas said.

"I usually hit harder, but today I just tried to hit the ball back into the court," Borg said.

Borg, who trails his career series with Connors 10-6, said he expected to have to play differently Sunday.

"Connors is more aggressive. He takes more chances. I look forward to playing Jimmy," Borg said.

At stake in Sunday's match will be a $150,000 first prize.

Borg scored four service breaks to two for Vilas. The Swede fell behind 3-2 in the first set, but tied it with a service break, didn't allow a point in opening a 4-3 lead and yielded only one point in breaking Vilas' serve again.

Vilas ended a long rally with a backhand return into the net to give Borg ther set.

The match, played in a chilly breeze, was the first time either man had played on clay in several months.

In the second set the first game went to deuce three times before Borg scored the service break. He didn't allow a point in the fifth game to break Vila's serve again and take a 4-1 lead.

Trailing 5-1 and behind love30, Vilas overcame a double fault to win the seventh game and then scored a service break to cut the lead to 5-3.

But Borg cooly captured the next game to end the match.

Bradshaw Booed

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, the Shreveport athlete who made it big as quarterback for the Pittsburgh Steelers, was booed by his hometown folks Friday night when he appeared as a surprise singer at a country music concert.

"I was shocked," he said after the show, which was his first public appearance in Shreveport since Pittsburgh beat the Dallas Cowboys 35-31 in the Super Bowl.

"I realize this is a Dallas Cowboys town — but gosh, only football."

U.S. Olympic Committee Approves L.A. Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten months after Los Angeles was provisionally awarded the 1984 Summer Olympics, a band of determined business and political leaders won the U.S. Olympic Committee's approval Saturday of a financial and organizational plan for the Games.

Los Angeles thus becomes an Olympic city a second time. It is the only American city ever to host the Summer Games. Almost since they presented the Games in 1932, city leaders have been trying to bring the Olympics back to Los Angeles.

The negotiations that led to Saturday's agreement were frequently in trouble — caused mostly by the city's refusal to foot the bill and subsequent efforts to establish responsibility.

"We're entering a new phase, a more fun phase," said John Argue, the leader of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, the private group that will raise and manage the funds for operations of the 1984 Games. "We've finally gotten to a point where we can put the contracts behind us and start moving ahead with Olympic principles."

He said the LAOOC, with a new membership of 62 citizens, would meet for the first time Thursday in Los Angeles to begin actual plans for the Games.

Saturday's action was largely procedural, as officials of the two groups put the finishing touches on their two-party contract for the Games that are still five years away. But there was an element of urgency. The International Olympic Committee, which awarded the Games in the first place, had given the two parties until March 1 to sign the contract regarding liability and organization.

It was the third deadline extension the IOC had granted.

Further, the IOC had decreed, the USOC and LAOOC had only until next Wednesday to pay a routine deposit of about $3,000 or lose the rights to the Games.

The LAOOC extracted agreement from the national committee on provisions involving a $50 million fund guaranteeing expenses, budget authority, the makeup of the organizing group and a plan for dispersal of assets after the Games.

Both the USOC and LAOOC are financially liable for the operation of the Games, but it is the LAOOC that is responsible for creating and maintaining the $50 million indemnification fund. The USOC also insisted on being represented in certain numbers on the LAOOC's board of directors and executive committee.

It sometimes appeared as though Los Angeles would not get the Games. In mid-July 1978, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley recommended to his City Council that it withdraw its bid.

City officials had balked at an IOC regulation, Rule 4, which stipulates that the host city, in conjuction with its nation's Olympic Committee, must assume financial responsibility for operations of the Olympic Games.

Faced with a July 31, 1978 deadline for signing a contract with the IOC, the city offered a plan, in which the private group would underwrite the bill, absolving the city of liability. The IOC, in line with Rule 4, rejected the suggestion.

On July 30, Bradley announced a compromise had been reached between the LAOOC and IOC, and that a new underwriting plan was in the works. But in the next month, IOC President Lord Killanin said his group was making no concessions.

Meanwhile, Montreal, Munich and Mexico City, who had all hosted the Games previously, indicated they wanted to bid on the Games if Los Angeles lost out.

In October, though, in a ceremony at the White House, the IOC bypassed Rule 4 and accepted the LAOOC as the official authority for the Games.

The LAOOC, USOC and IOC have been dickering ever since. The agreement signed by the USOC and LAOOC will be submitted to the USOC's 350 delegates for ratification, and officials said they expect the contract to pass without difficulty in the next few days.

Next the ratified agreement must be provided to the IOC, which is then expected to sign a triparty agreement, sealing the future of the 1984 Games.

Wake Downs Wolfpack

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Freshman Guy Morgan drilled in four free throws in the last 27 seconds to lift Wake Forest to a 60-56 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over North Carolina State Saturday night.

The Deacons' triumph kept N.C. State in the cellar of the ACC. N.C. State had battled back from a 13-point deficit with 10:34 left in the game to trail by only two points before the first of Morgan's free throws that snapped a six-game conference losing streak for Wake Forest.

Wake Forest improved to 11-12 overall and 3-7 in the ACC, while N.C. State fell to 15-9 and 1-7.

Freshman Mike Helms scored a career-high 16 points for the Deacons, including 10 in the first half, as Wake Forest jumped out to a 6-2 lead and never trailed after 18:18 of the first half.

Terps Dump Tigs

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Albert King and Buck Williams scored three-point plays to spark a 12-2 Maryland streak midway through the second half, leading the Terps to a 77-69 basketball victory over Clemson Saturday.

The loss snapped a six-game winning streak for Clemson, which is now 16-6. Maryland, which had lost four of six since winning at Clemson, is now 15-8, and both teams are 4-5 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

With the score 53-53, the seventh tie of the second half, King assisted on a basket by Greg Manning before converting his own three-pointer. After a similar play by Williams, King assisted on a basket by Larry Gibson and then sank his own field goal to make it 65-55.

White Is 1st

BETHEL — John White of Greenville won the seventh annual Bethel Rotary Road Race yesterday with a time of 54:46 over the 10-mile course.

The race, which normally attracts over 200 runners, had less than 100 participants due to the snow and cold weather.

Pairings Still In Air For Prep Tournaments

Tournament action opens Monday and Tuesday in three area basketball conferences, but because of weather conditions Friday night, it may be sometime Sunday before the final pairings for the tournaments are set.

In many instances, ties or changes in the standings can still be affected by games which were scheduled to be played Friday night, but were postponed until Saturday. Assuming these games were played last night, the final standings would then be set, and any draws, if needed would be done today.

If games set for Saturday night were forced to be cancelled again, it is assumed that standings through the next-to-last night of the season would be used to set up the pairings.

In the Eastern Carolina Conference, it has already become necessary to do away with the playoff games between the eighth and ninth place teams for a tournament berth and the ninth place teams will simply be dropped.

However, in both the boys' and girls' standings, the outcome of Saturday night games was needed to find out which teams would be eliminated.

Only one team in the boys and one team in the girls pairings for the ECC tourney have been set, and oddly enough, both of them are the Farmville Central teams. The Jaguars boys have won the regular season title and will be the top-seeded team. Farmville's girls will finish in sixth place.

The schedule for the ECC Tournament, which will be played in its entirity at Southern Nash High School, has three games on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with two on Friday.

The boys' pairings go like this: Farmville Central, the regular season champ, will meet the eighth place team, either Ayden-Grifton or Southern Nash, at 7:15 p.m. Monday. Tuesday at 5:30 p.m., number four meets number five. Conley, Southwest Edgecombe and North Pitt could be involved here. At 9 p.m. Tuesday, number two, North Lenoir, takes on number seven, Greene Central, C.B. Aycock or Conley; while number three, Southwest Edgecombe, North Pitt or Conley, meets number six, Greene Central, Conley or Aycock.

The two semifinal games will be on Thursday, at 7:15 and 9 p.m. The finals are Friday at 8:45 p.m.

In the girls' event, number one, either Southwest or Ayden-Grifton, takes on eight, either Southern Nash, North Pitt or Greene Central, at 5:30 p.m. Monday, with number four meeting five at 9 p.m. That could be Conley, Aycock or North Lenoir.

Tuesday at 7:15 p.m., number two, A-G or Southwest, meets number seven, Greene, North Pitt or Southern Nash.

Wednesday, at 9 p.m. number three, Conley or Aycock takes on Farmville Central. Earlier in the night, at 7:15 p.m., the first semifinal game will be played. The other semifinal for the girls will be at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, with the finals at 7 p.m. Friday.

In the Class A Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Tournament, play will begin Tuesday, with the first round of the girls' event being played on the home court of the higher seeded teams at 7:30 p.m. Three slots there are confirmed, with champion Belhaven playing host to Mattamuskeet, number eight. Number seven, Bear Grass, will visit the second place team, Bath, Pantego or Chocowinity. Jamesville will be seeded either fifth or sixth.

The boys open on Wedneday, with the same procedure, also at 7:30 p.m. Number eight Bath will meet either Jamesville or Pantego, while Bear Grass has taken the number five spot and will face either Belhaven or Chocowinity.

The second round games will be played at two sites. The upper bracket of the tournament, 1-8, 4-5, will play on Thursday at Bath at 7 and 8:30 girls and boys, respectively. The lower bracket, 2-7, 3-6, will play Friday at Washington, also at 7 and 8:30 p.m.

The finals will be Saturday at 7 and 8:30 p.m. at Washington.

The 3-A Northeastern Conference gets its tournament going on Monday. All boys' first round games will be played that night on the home court of the upper seeded team. Washington has clinched number one and will host Ahoskie. Roanoke has taken second place and will meet either Edenton or Roanoke Rapids. Williamston could finish either third or fourth, and would be a host team, regardless.

Second round boys' games will be Wednesday, again at the home court of the higher seeded teams.

The girls open on Tuesday, under the same format. None of the eight seedings were clinched going into Saturday night. Williamston could finish from first to third, while Roanoke could also finish from first to third. Both will be host teams, however, in the first rounds.

Second round play, also at the higher seeded team's court, will be Thursday.

The finals are Friday at Ahoskie for both boys and girls.

In the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Tournament, the top five regular season finishers qualify for district competition, while the top four in the Northeastern and Eastern Carolina move on. In each case, a lower seeded team could gain the district only by winning the conference tournament.

The 4-A Division I tournament will not be played until the week of the 19th.

Conley Grabs Sectionals Win

D.H. Conley's Vikings returned to the top of the Northeastern Sectional last night, grabbing off the title from defending champion Rose.

The Vikings qualified five wrestlers for next week's regionals at Cary, while Rose placed four in the qualifying group. The only other area team to have anyone qualify was Farmville Central with three.

Conley finished the meet with 121½ points, while Rose was second with 101½. Plymouth finished third with 100½, and Sanderson was fourth at 96½. Farmville finished fifth with 82½.

Rose High School's Ron Butler, who won the heavyweight title, was selected as the meet's Most Outstanding Wrestler.

Other Rose qualifiers included 98-pound Ricky Warren, and 138-pound Mark Johnson, who joined Butler in winning their weights, along with Alfred O'Neal, the third place finisher at 155.

Farmville qualifiers were Roger Joyner, winner at 132, and David Newton, 119 pound, and Dennis Brown, 145-pound third place finishers.

The top three finishers in each weight class qualified for the regionals, along with the fourth place finishers at 98, 132 and 185.

Pirates Roll Over Aiken

to five, 12-7, and Mack added two free throws a minute later for a 16-9 margin. Tyson scored off a fast break for a 20-11 margin and Krusen added a jumper after seven minutes for a 22-11 margin.

Cornelius hit a three-point play to open it to 12, 25-13, and a string of six by Tyson, Krusen and David Underwood upped it to 16, 37-21 with 8:25 left.

It finally reached 18 just before the half at 51-33.

Maynor scored ten of the first 16 points in the second half as the Pirates streaked out to a 29-point lead in just over eight minutes. That came at 75-46.

In the next few minutes, Cornelius was called for two technicals for hanging on the rim after dunking the ball, but Aiken missed both free throws, getting nothing out of it.

The second stuff, followed by a jumper by Moseley with 8:37 left, ran the lead to 85-52, the 33-point margin that marked the high point of the lead.

That margin fell back to 24 at 94-70 before Moseley hit three straight baskets, including the one that made it 100, and Frank Hobson followed with a three-point play for another 33-point lead, 103-70.

For Aiken, Walker finished tops with 14 points, while Rob Matwick and Dennis Seiple each had ten.

East Carolina travels to Wilmington on Tuesday to take on the UNC-W Seahawks, then returns home on Thursday to face Tennessee-Chattanooga. The Bucs close out their home slate on Saturday, hosting Georgia Tech. Following that, they have road games with Old Dominion and Notre Dame.

Champions Repeat In Swimming

Calvert Hall High School of Baltimore won three events and walked away with an easy team victory in the boys' division of the 24th annual Eastern Seaboard Interscholastic Swimming and Diving Championships at Minges Natatorium yesterday.

Pine Crest School of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. claimed the girls' crown, despite winning only one event. Both champions won the team titles a year ago.

Mark Michael of Calvert Hall was the only double winner in the boys' events, taking the 100-yard butterfly in 51.06 seconds and the 100 backstroke in 53.28 seconds. His team's only other win came in the 400 freestyle relay.

Carolina Barbour of Wilde Lake High in Maryland won the 200 freestyle in 1:55.32 and the 500 freestyle in 4:59.65. Wilde Lake won three events, but could not overcome the team depth of Pine Crest.

Bash Into The Boards

Soviets Nip Americans In Challenge Cup Match

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Time after time at their practice Friday, the Soviet National team worked on keeping the puck in the offensive zone. Forechecking had been one of the weakest aspects in the Soviets' game, and they wanted to be sure the technical shortcoming would not be repeated.

The hard work paid off Saturday. Soviet checkers pressed the forwards of the National Hockey League All-Star team and still found time to score five goals for a 5-4 triumph that evened the Challenge Cup series at one victory apiece.

The Russians rallied from a 4-2 deficit, a margin called "deceptive" by Bob Gainey of Montreal.

"The score was misleading because we weren't in control of the game," he said. "And when they finally got the lead back, they saw their plan was working."

They regained the lead on Vladimir Golokov's rebound goal from five feet out at 1:31 of the third period.

"Our whole team played today as opposed to the first game," said Coach Victor Tikhonov of the Soviets. "I said our team would do better."

And it did. Everybody noticed.

"They took the hits we gave them and handed out a few of their own," said Clark Gillies of the New York Islanders, who set up two goals to help the NHL build its 4-2 lead.

"They were looking for our patterns and they changed to prevent them," added Gainey.

That left Sunday night's final game to determine a champion. If the teams are tied at the end of the third period, sudden-death overtime will be played.

"With this team, we should have had a lot more scoring chances," said Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia, the NHL team captain. "You know they didn't come over here to lose. But if they're gonna be beat, we're going to have to put more pressure on them in their zone."

"We just seemed to sit back and wait for things to happen instead of going out and making them happen," added defenseman Barry Beck of Colorado. "We'll have to force things more Sunday night."

The NHL Stars had scored on four of their first seven shots against goalie Vladislav Tretiak, taking a 4-2 lead when Montreal defenseman Larry Robinson potted a five-foot backhander at 5:06 of the second period.

But Boris Mikhailov netted a 10-foot power-play shot at 17:02 of the period and Sergei Kapustin scored with a 25-foot shot just 45 seconds later, bringing the Soviets even.

The NHL stars, playing with precision and speed Thursday night in a 4-2 opening-game victory, seemed sluggish Saturday. The Soviets, meanwhile, recovered from the sloppiness and lack of aggressiveness which hurt them in Game One.

They took a 1-0 lead after 8:10 had been played when Kapustin beat goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal with a 15-foot shot. Dryden had kicked a 45-foot shot by Sergei Starikov directly back to the Soviet defenseman, who found Kapustin to Dryden's left.

The New York Islanders' line of Mike Bossy, Bryan Trottier and Clark Gillies put the NHL in front. Trottier found Bossy for a 15-foot power-play shot at 13:35, then Trottier sneaked behind Vasili Pervukhin to deflect a 25-foot Gillies shot past Tretiak at 18:21.

Buffalo's Gil Perreault made it 3-1 in favor of the NHL with a 25-foot slap shot that breezed past Tretiak's left arm at 27 seconds of the second period.

But the Soviets, playing with confidence and regaining the precision form they lacked in the opener, pulled within 3-2 when Mikhail Varnakov broke down the right wing and lifted a 15-foot backhand over Dryden's left shoulder at 2:05.

The Soviet victory tied the three-game series at 1-1, leaving Sunday's final contest to decide the championship.

The NHL squad, which used just four defensemen in the opener, added Guy Lapointe of Montreal and Denis Potvin of the Islanders to the blue line complement Saturday. That left them with 12 forwards, who appeared to tire as the game wore on and were unable to capitalize when their few opportunities arose in the later stages.

The Soviets also made changes, adding Victor Tiumenev to the line with Vladimir Petrov and Mikhailov.

The game was refereed by Victor Dombrovski of the Soviet Union, who called four penalties in the contest — three of them against the NHL. His first penalty, called against the Soviets' Vladimir Kovin, was converted into Bossy's power-play goal.

His last one, against Colorado's Barry Beck for throttling Alexander Skvortsov into the end boards, was turned into the tally by Mikhailov, which brought the Soviets within 4-3.

Williamston Girls Claim Title; Roanoke Boys Take Second Place

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke's boys downed Williamston, 58-55, and took second place in the Northeastern Conference, while Williamston's girls, with a 53-50 win, clinched another first place title for themselves.

In the girls' game, Williamston eased into a 12-10 lead in the first period, but the two were tied at the half, 22-22. Roanoke managed to slip ahead, 38-37, in the third period but Williamston came back with a 16-12 final period to pull it out.

JoAnna Lilley and Kathy Everett led Williamston with 14 each, while Jan Rogerson and Sharon Speller each had ten. Dee Stanley led Roanoke with 15, while Sylvia Parker had 14.

In the boys' game, Roanoke ran off a 16-8 lead in the first period, but Williamston cut that back to 30-24 at the half. The Redskins inched it back out to 50-42 in the third, but then had to withstand a 13-8 rally by the Tigers to win it.

Chris Morning led Roanoke with 27, while Walter Harris led Williamston with 15 and Jimmy Barnes and Joe Peele each had 13.

North Pitt In Pair Of Wins

SPRING HOPE — North Pitt captured third place in the Eastern Carolina Conference last night by defeating Southern Nash 63-56 in the final game of the regular season.

The Panthers led the whole way, but had to hold off the Firebirds in the second half.

Mickey Hines and Henry Knight each had 16 points for North Pitt, while Reginald Knight added 10. Dexter High scored 11 points to pace the Firebirds, who finished on the bottom of the league and will not be eligible for this week's conference tournament.

The Lady Firebirds were also eliminated from the tournament by North Pitt, which took a 54-33 win in last night's first game.

Cynthia Barnes had 23 for the Pant-HERS and Jennette Brown added 11. Dora Harrison scored 14 for Southern Nash.

Ironically, the ECC tourney will be hosted by Southern Nash, beginning Monday.

Hawks Take Two From Greene

SNOW HILL — North Lenoir claimed a pair of victories over Greene Central last night as the two teams closed out the regular season.

The boys gained a 55-46 win, while the girls recorded a 38-33 victory.

In the girls' game, North Lenoir took an 8-6 lead in the first period, but lost it by halftime, trailing to the Lady Rams, 16-14. Both scored ten in the third period to leave the Rams up, 26-24, but in the final period, North Lenoir outhit Greene Central, 14-7, to regain the lead and win.

Cynthia Sherrod and Cynthia Cannon led North Lenoir with 13 each. Iris Pridgen led Greene Central with 12.

In the boys' game, Greene Central jumped out to a 12-6 lead in the first period, but could score but one free throw in the second period. The Hawks used that to charge into a 19-13 halftime lead. Greene Central cut that back to 34-31 in the third frame, but was outhit in the final period, 21-15.

Randy Johnson led the Hawks with 15, while Jimmy Wiggins and Amos Pearcell had 12. Jeffrey Applewhite had 14 and Al Murray had 12 for Greene Central.

Both teams enter the ECC tournament this week.

Buc Women Win, 99-97, Despite 52-Point Performance By Foe

ROCK HILL, S.C. — East Carolina survived a 52-point outburst by Pearl Moore, which lifted her to a new national scoring record, and defeated Francis Marion, 99-97, in the semifinals of the Winthrop College Invitational women's basketball tournament here Friday night.

Moore finished the game with 3,689 career points, eclipsing the former alltime college record of 3,667 set by Pete Maravich of LSU. She was already the top female collegian in scoring. By comparison, Carol Blazejowski of Montclair State posted a career total of 3,199 points.

Rosie Thompson of the Pirates posted a new school record for career points, adding 38 to her total, and finishing with 1,582. The former career mark was 1,570 by Debbie Freeman set from 1975-78.

Hitting on 14 of her 17 field goal attempts and 10 of 12 free throws, the Blounts Creek junior passed Freeman's former record with ten minutes to play on a free throw.

The Pirates, now 14-8, were to play host Winthrop for the championship Saturday afternoon. Francis Marion and Anderson Junior College met for third place, while the College of Charleston was to play either Appalachian State or Longwood for fifth place. Winthrop won the initial tournament in 1970, its only title in the event.

Moore had just 14 points at the half, but led a charge for the losers that almost reversed the outcome. The Pirates had led, 49-34, at the half.

"Our girls just played tremendous basketball," said Pirate coach Cathy Andruzzi. "We had a fat lead but it was tight at the end as to whether we could win the game.

"Moore got a lot of her 52 points in the last five minutes when four of our players had fouled out of the game. We played man-to-man the whole game except for the last two minutes when we switched to a zone.

"I thought that April Ross defensed Moore well before she fouled out. Lydia Rountree ran the offense well and helped us in rebounding, too. We are playing well and I'm looking forward to the finals."

Moore was 22-of-49 from the floor and eight-of-11 from the line while collecting her 52 points. Only three players on each team reached double figures including Thompson, Gale Kerbaugh with 14 and Rountree with 30 for the Pirates, along with Moore, Martha Williamson with 16 and Lynette Mickel with 18 for the Patriots.

Williamson was the game's leading rebounder with 16, while Thompson had 12 and Rountree, 10.

Francis Marion—Wilson 2-1-5; Moore 22-8-52; Williamson 6-4-16; Mickel 5-8-18; Scovel 0-0-0; Montgomery 0-0-0; Nelson 1-2-4; Robinson 0-2-2; Harville 0-0-0. Totals 36-25-97.

East Carolina—Thompson 14-10-38; Emerson 2-1-5; Girven 2-0-4; Kerbaugh 7-0-14; Rountree 10-10-30; Barnes 0-1-1; Howell 0-0-0; Ross 3-1-7; Versprille 0-0-0. Totals 38-23-99.

Connors Avenges Loss To McEnroe In Slam

By DAN SEWELL
AP Sports Writer

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Jimmy Connors' angry boast that John McEnroe will never be No.1 while he's around seems secure for the near future.

In another rematch of the brash American stars, Connors avenged last month's loss to the 19-year-old McEnroe with a dominating straight-set victory Friday in the first match of the $300,000 Grand Slam of Tennis tournament.

Connors, his smashing winners hitting the corners, won nearly all of the key points in a 6-3, 6-4 triumph. He will play the winner of Saturday's Bjorn Borg-Guillermo Vilas match in Sunday's final.

A rivalry between the two began brewing after McEnroe's first victory in five tries against Connors in the Grand Prix Masters last month. The victory was tainted when Connors retired with a blistered foot. McEnroe took the 7-5, 3-0 victory, then declared that a true competitor wouldn't have retired as Connors did.

Connors responded angrily and when asked if McEnroe was good enough to be No.1, replied, "Not as long as I'm playing."

Friday's match, played on a wind-blown clay court, showed that at age 26, Connors' experience gives him a decided advantage against McEnroe.

"For me on big points, I try to play them like any other points. I try not to panic I stay calm at all costs. I've learned to just try to play my own kind of game," Connors said.

McEnroe said, "I don't think I played badly, I just didn't win the big points. That was the difference between him and me."

Although he has fallen short in his three tournaments since the Masters, McEnroe didn't seem discouraged.

"I enjoy playing Jimmy. I don't have anything to lose. It's good for me just to be in the same boat with these three," he said.

Connors said, "I haven't reached my peak yet, and probably won't until I'm 27 or 28. At that point, I could be around another three, four or five years, if I want to.

"But I've always said I want to go out on top," he said.

Chance Meeting Led To Invite To Crosby Tourney For Barwick

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Brooks Barwick got to know Nathaniel Crosby last summer during an amateur golf tournament in Niagra Falls, N. Y. Barwick had just finished his sophomore season on the N. C. State golf team and was touring the country with his friend Vance Heafner, the former Wolfpack star golfer.

Crosby, the son of Bing Crosby and an excellent golfer besides, took over the management of the annual Bing Crosby Pro-Am in California after his father's death. He and Barwick were paired for the final round of the Niagra Falls tourney.

"During the round, he invited me out to the (Bing Crosby) tournament," according to Barwick. "He said he would send me an invitation. I didn't really think he would, but in November he sent the invitation."

That invitation was an aspiring young golfer's dream. It meant the chance for Barwick, who has his sights set on the professional tour one day, to mingle with the game's greats and find out how he stacks up against them in head-to-head competition.

"I went out there to see just how well I liked it and to see how good the tour pros were. I was happy to see that they're not that far ahead. But they play every day and that makes a big difference."

Barwick was teamed with Heafner, now a touring pro, in the Crosby and the pair was in second place after the first round of play at Pebble Beach, one of the three golf courses on which the event is held. Their best ball score for the first round was 64.

The second day was the worst for the pair. Playing Cypress Point on a cold, blustery day, their score shot up to 72, about five shots off the pace. "It was a tough day. We had the wind and the cold." Besides that, although Barwick went to California on Monday, bad weather prevented him from being able to practice on Cypress Point.

Normally, Cypress Point is not that tough a course, Barwick said, but by the luck of the draw, he and Heafner had to tackle it under bad conditions. With eight to 10 holes on the Pacific Ocean, Cypress Point is not the place to be when the wind is blowing. "If we had caught that course on another day, we could have made up some ground," Barwick said.

Brooks Barwick

With their high second-round score, the team's main concern on the third day at Spyglass Hill was just trying to make the cut for the final day's play. Only the top 25 teams after the third round get to play on Sunday.

Spyglass Hill is probably the toughest of the trio of courses, Barwick said, he and Heafner toured it in 67 strokes to put them in about 10th place, easily qualifying them for Sunday's final round.

Back at Pebble Beach, the two combined for another 64, the lowest round for that day, and finished seventh in the field of 168 teams with a total of 267.

Barwick, now a junior at State and looking forward to the coming golf season, has been playing since he was eight. He started at Ayden Country Club and won four club championships there before he was 18.

"I went to D. H. Conley High School. Of course, they didn't have a golf team. To qualify for the state high school tournament, I had to go to Camp Lejeune." Barwick qualified for the state meet twice and finished third his senior year.

That year, Richard Sykes, the golf coach at State, who was in Chapel Hill for the state tournament and offered Barwick a scholarship. Although he had had contacts with other schools, he readily accepted the State offer.

This season may be the Wolfpack's best since Barwick has been there, he said. The team had several good showings in fall tournaments, including finishing first among 30 schools in the Fall Duke Invitational.

The team was fourth in the Florida Invitational, ahead of Wake Forest and the other five Atlantic Coast Conference schools. "Right then, I knew we were a top 10 contender in the NCAA," according to Barwick.

Come June, Barwick hopes, the Wolfpack will be in the NCAA national tournament, although making it out of the district event is a tough job. A team must be in the top eight of the district, which stretches from Maryland to Florida.

Barwick's young career has been helped a great deal by his friendship with Heafner. The two became close friends during Barwick's freshman season at State. Heafner was a senior that year.

Heafner, who shares living quarters with Barwick in Raleigh, has helped his younger roomate get a start on the amateur circuit. 'The pair travel to many of the amateur tournaments during the summer. "He showed me the ropes," Barwick said, "because he's won almost all of them."

Heafner has also been able to introduce Barwick to many influential people in the golfing world. Contacts that could be invaluable should Barwick realize his dreams of life on the professional tour.

Before that comes about, however, Barwick, the son of Boyce Barwick of Ayden and Ruth Haddock of Greenville, has his sights set on finishing college. "First, I'm going to finish school. I want to get a degree. I'm majoring in business management.

"When I get out, I'll probably try the mini-tour in Florida to work on my game for about six months. Then, I'll probably try the big one—try to get my card."

Barwick's experience in the Bing Crosby tournament has already given him a big jump on many other golfers with the same plans.

Lopez Bothered By Arm Trouble

SADDLE BROOK, N.J. (AP) — Nancy Lopez is a little worried these days.

It has nothing to do with the challenge of duplicating her marvelous accomplishments as a rookie on the LPGA tour last summer.

Lopez is suffering from a severe pain in her right arm, a constant source of discomfort not only as a golfer but in her everyday life.

"One of the doctors said it was just a strained muscle, I don't believe that anymore," she said Friday at a luncheon honoring her as the defending champion of a $100,000 event to be played May 18-20 at the Upper Montclair Country Club.

"I don't believe it because my left arm hurts now, too," she added. "In the morning it's very stiff and hurts all day long. It hurts when I swing the club."

Lopez's victory in the tournament in New Jersey last year was the second in her incredible five-tournament winning streak.

Despite her concern over her painful arm, Lopez looks forward to competing on the tour again this season.

Nancy said she loves the camaraderie of the women's golf tour, adding that some of her best friends are her competitors. But her competitors never are her friends.

"Donna Young and I are pretty good friends away from the golf course," she said. "But on the course, we're after each other."

• Fire Brick Lined
• Lifetime Guarantee
• Automatic Thermostatic Control
• Blower Forces Warm Air Through Your Home
• Glass Doors Optional
• Cast Iron Air Tight Doors Enable a Craft Stove to Burn A Piece of Wood for 12-14 Hours

EFFICIENT HEATING—The Craft Stove is a designed heating system to use the oldest, least expensive and most available fuels in the world, which are wood and coal. The slow efficient burning will utilize up to 80 percent of the energy available in a piece of wood, where conventional fireplaces use only about 10 percent. The Craft Stove requires only two or three wood fills a day. With a Craft Stove in your home you can save up to 80 percent of your energy bill.

CONSTRUCTION—The Craft Stove is constructed of the highest quality fire box steel made to specifications of National Steelcrafters, Inc. with fire brick for protection. ¼ inch cast doors of the highest quality. The Craft Stove is factory built with one man on one stove for greater controlled quality.

Freestanding unit

CONTROLLED HEAT EXTRACTION—Located in the rear of the stove is an electric blower which pushes 148 to 470 cubic feet of air per minute through hot air chambers. The blower is controlled by a built-in automatic thermostat, which will turn the blower on when the temperature reaches 120 degrees. The blower pulls cool air in and routes it through a baffle system, against the inside wall, obtaining the heat off the firebox wall releasing hot air into the room. This creates a push-pull air movement completely through the house. There should never be over an 8 to 10 degrees difference in temperature in the various rooms in the house with the inside doors open.

BIOLOGISTS REPORT THE N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission's deer restoration program is going well. During 1978, the restoration of the upper French Broad section of the Pisgah Game Lands was completed with a total of 52 deer stocked. The Brush Creek-Yellow Mountain area in Macon and Jackson counties was also finished, with 59 deer stocked.

Work is still underway on the Elk Knob Restoration area in Watauga and Ashe counties. Some 40 deer were stocked there in 1978 and plans call for 20 more deer to be stocked there in 1979. The Little River area in Johnston County was also stocked with about 25 deer in November.

"Our deer restoration program has been a tremendous success," said George Smith, assistant chief of the Commission's Division of Game. "When deer were at their low point in the state during the 1930's, there were probably only a few thousand animals left. Now, we estimate that there are about 400,000 to 500,000 deer statewide."

The first serious attempts at restoring deer populations in North Carolina were made on the Biltmore Estate near Asheville in the 1890's. Deer populations in the mountains and in the rest of the state had almost been eliminated, due to habitat destruction, overharvest and commercial hunting.

The deer stocked on the Biltmore Estate formed the nucleus of the deer herd in the mountains today. Many of the deer used by the Commission in its restoration efforts are still captured on the Biltmore Estate. Deer used for stocking are captured by a cannon net baited with apples. Then the animals are loaded in trailers and hauled to their new homes.

"Without our stocking program, we wouldn't have the deer populations we see today," said Smith. "The deer population in the early 1950's, when we started stocking the animals, was low, especially in the Piedmont and Mountains. Since 1968, we have trapped and stocked about 720 deer in all of our restoration areas."

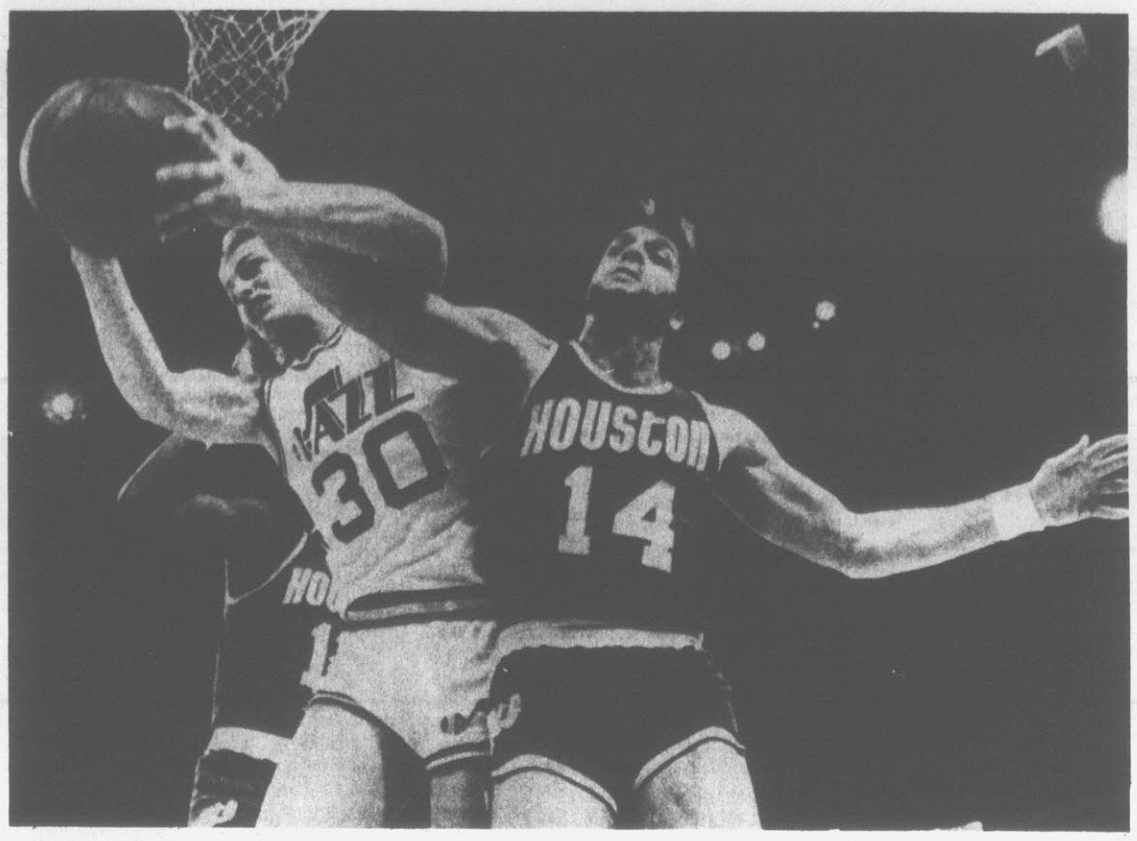

Although trapping and stocking deer is very expensive, it is also very effective. If the habitat in an area offers what the animal needs in terms of food and cover, the animal will rapidly increase its population. Protection of the restocked deer is essential; predation by free roaming dogs and illegal hunting are the biggest problems in the restoration areas.

According to Charles Woodhouse, Commission wildlife biologist, the Hackney Restoration area in Johnston County on the Neuse River is a good example of a stocking effort taking hold. Between 1969 and 1974, 109 deer were stocked in the area. Biologists now estimate that the population of deer there has grown to over 2,000 animals.

Hearing Dates Set

The Wildlife Resources Commission set dates for the public hearings on the upcoming hunting regulations at its regular meeting Jan. 22.

In this area, a meeting will be at the house in New Bern on April 3 and another meeting will be at the courthouse in Nashville on April 4. All meetings will start at 7:30 p.m.

Malone Puts On Dazzling Display

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

If Moses Malone had gone to college from Petersburg, Va., High School instead of turning pro, he would now be a rookie in the National Basketball Association.

And that is mind-boggling.

Malone, the 6-foot-11 center of the Houston Rockets, scored 33 points and pulled down a career-high 37 rebounds in a 106-99 victory over the New Orleans Jazz Friday night. Malone grabbed an incredible 19 of his rebounds off the offensive boards.

In other NBA games Friday night, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the San Diego Clippers 117-106, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Seattle SuperSonics 118-116 in overtime, the Boston Celtics defeated the Indiana Pacers 112-101, the Kansas City Kings topped the Chicago Bulls 124-114, the Atlanta Hawks nipped the Phoenix Suns 105-102, the Los Angeles Lakers trimmed the Cleveland Cavaliers 106-103, the Denver Nuggets edged the Golden State Warriors 106-104 and the Portland Trail Blazers beat the San Antonio Spurs 125-106.

76ers 117, Clippers 106

Henry Bibby, starting in place of injured guard Doug Collins, scored 21 points as Philadelphia beat San Diego. Collins, who has missed the last nine games, will probably need surgery for his injured left foot and may be lost for the season.

Bucks 118, Sonics 116, OT

Milwaukee snapped a six-game losing streak as John Gianelli sank the decisive basket with 59 seconds left in overtime and added a key rebound and blocked shot down the stretch.

Celtics 112, Pacers 101

Kings 124, Bulls 114

Guard Otis Birdsong scored 26 points as Kansas City's backcourtmen outscored the Chicago guards 70-40.

Hawks 105, Suns 102

Armond Hill sank two free throws with 42 seconds left to snap a 100-100 tie for Atlanta. After a Phoenix turnover, Charley Criss added two free throws with 22 seconds to play to clinch the victory for the Hawks, who outrebounded the Suns 53-33.

Lakers 106, Cavaliers 103

Cleveland outscored Los Angeles 39-18 in the second period to take a 12-point halftime advantage, but the Lakers came back to regain the lead early in the fourth period.

Nuggets 106, Warriors 104

Forward George McGinnis scored Denver's last 12 points and finished with 31 for Denver. He had 15 points in the fourth quarter, including a pair of free throws with 51 seconds remaining that snapped a 104-102 and two more foul shots with 32 seconds left.

Blazers 125, Spurs 106

Portland pulled away from San Antonio with a 17-6 spurt in the third period en route to its sixth victory in the last seven games.

Stevenson Continues To Dominate Boxing As U.S., Cubans Clash

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — "Regardless who represents the United States, attention will be focused on the Cuban heavyweight from Las Tunas," says Gramma, a weekly review printed here in English, Spanish and French.

The U.S. boxing team Sunday will be a combination of youth and experience, the hope being to gain important international exposure for several fighters.

But, as Gramma pointed out, even if the United States sent its best amateur fighters for Sunday's meeting against Cuba, the attention still would be focused on the heavyweight from Las Tunas — Teofilo Stevenson.

Stevenson has dominated amateur boxing since winning his first of two Olympic gold medals in 1972 and is truly a charismatic sports figure.

His opponent Sunday on the 12-bout card, to be televised live in the United States by ABC (3:15-4:45 p.m. EST.) will be Phil Brown of New Orleans, who has been fighting only a little more than two years.

"These duels are exciting boxing fans more and more," said Gramma. One of the boxing fans expected to be lured to the Sports Palace is Cuban President Fidel Castro. The 10,000-seat arena is expected to be filled.

Leading the U.S. team in a bid for its first victory over Cuba in four dual meets are 119-pounder Jackie Beard of Jackson, Tenn., 132-pounder Johnny Bumphus of Nashville, Tenn., and 156-pounder Jeff Stoudemire of Cleveland.

Beard is the 1978 Golden Gloves champion and recently scored a victory over a Russian opponent in Las Vegas when the United States posted its first dual meet triumph over the Soviet Union. He is also the 1978 National AAU champion.

Bumphus is a veteran of international meets and was a National AAU champion in 1977 at 125 pounds.

Stoudemire scored a decision over Luis Martinez of Cuba in a dual meet in New York last year. He also won a National Golden Gloves title.

In previous meetings between the two countries, Cuba won 7-4 at the Astrodome in Houston in November 1977, 8-3 in Havana in February 1978 and 8-3 in New York's Madison Square Garden last fall.

But the spotlight will be on Brown, whose credentials are less impressive than some of his teammates but who will be in the ring against Stevenson.

Sports Briefs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Simplicity in organization was Warren Giles' code when he operated the Cincinnati Reds and later the National League.

His funeral Friday also was simple, as he had requested before his death last week at the age of 82.

The Rev. Andrew N. Jergens Jr. conducted a brief service with no eulogy. Baseball Commissoner Bowie Kuhn and his wife, representatives of most major league teams and Giles' friends attended the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer service.

"I was 18. He gave me my first job in baseball," said Gabe Paul, 69, president of the Cleveland Indians. "He bought me my first razor and my first drink."

Giles had given 50 years of his life to baseball before retiring as head of the National League in 1969.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hot-handed veteran Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., entered today's $100,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament finals as the top seed in a field of five.

Holman, 24, held off a late surge by Mark Roth in the final game of the sixth round of qualifying Friday night after Holman began the evening with 192 and 206 games. He recovered, however, and put together games of 216, 279, 247, 279, 247 and 256 for an overall total of 10,413 and a 115-pin lead over Roth of North Arlington, N.J.

Holman needed one victory in the championship game today to capture the $15,000 first prize. The three other qualifiers for the championship round were Guppy Troup of Columbia, S.C.; Mal Acosta of Freemont, Calif., and Dan Roche of Downey, Calif.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics Friday re-acquired their 1974 No. 2 draft pick, guard Kevin Stacom, for an undisclosed amount of cash from the Indiana Pacers, only hours before the National Basketball Association teams squared off against each other.

Stacom, a former Providence College star who played four years with the Celtics before signing with Indiana as a free agent last July, was signed to fill Boston's 11-man roster, left short by the release of forward Marvin Barnes.

Snipes Joins Kinston Eagles

KINSTON — David Snipes of Snow Hill has been named Director of Sales and Promotions for the Kinston Eagles Baseball Club, owner Ray Kuhlman has announced.

Snipes, 31, will assume his duties on Monday. He formerly was news and sports editor for "The Standard Laconic" newspaper in Snow Hill.

Snipes served as the club's official scorer for home games last year.

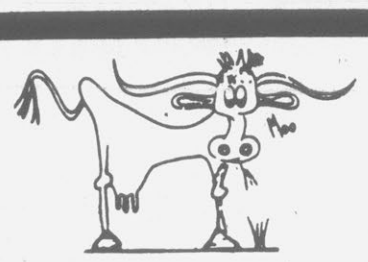

"I'm overjoyed at this opportunity," Snipes said. "My long range goal has been to get into professional sports and baseball has always been my first love."

Snipes will be involved in many areas of the minor league club's operation, with his main duties during the season in the areas of promotion and publicity, and in advertising sales during the off-season.

Kinston is a member of the six-team Carolina League. Other members of the league include Winston-Salem, Lynchburg, Peninsula (Hampton), Sames and Alexandria.

Kinston, after operating as an independent last year, has a working agreement with the Toronto Blue Jays for 1979. They open the season on Friday, April 13 at home against Winston-Salem.

UCLA Gains Overtime Win Over USC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thanks mainly to Cliff Robinson, Roy Hamilton had a chance to redeem himself. Thanks mainly to Hamilton, Southern California missed an opportunity to beat rival UCLA for the first time since 1970.

Robinson's tip-in with one second to play climaxed a furious comeback by the Trojans and sent into overtime Friday night's Pacific-10 Conference basketball game against the fourth-ranked Bruins. But Southern Cal's celebration ended shortly later.

Hamilton scored the game's final 5 points as UCLA extended its lead in the Pac-10 to two full games with a 102-94 victory over the Trojans. It was the Bruins' 19th consecutive win over a Southern Cal team.

It was also the final regular-season game for the Trojans against UCLA under head coach Bob Boyd, who announced last month he was stepping down as Southern Cal's head coach at the end of the season.

The outcome meant that while coaching at Southern Cal, Boyd's teams won just two of 28 regular-season games against the Bruins.

UCLA scored the first 5 points and stayed on top until Robinson rebounded Don Carfino's missed shot just before the final buzzer. It was 87-74 with just over four minutes to play when the Trojans began their comeback.

In the final two minutes of regulation, the usually reliable Hamilton missed the first half of 1-and-1 free throw situations four times, the last with eight seconds to go.

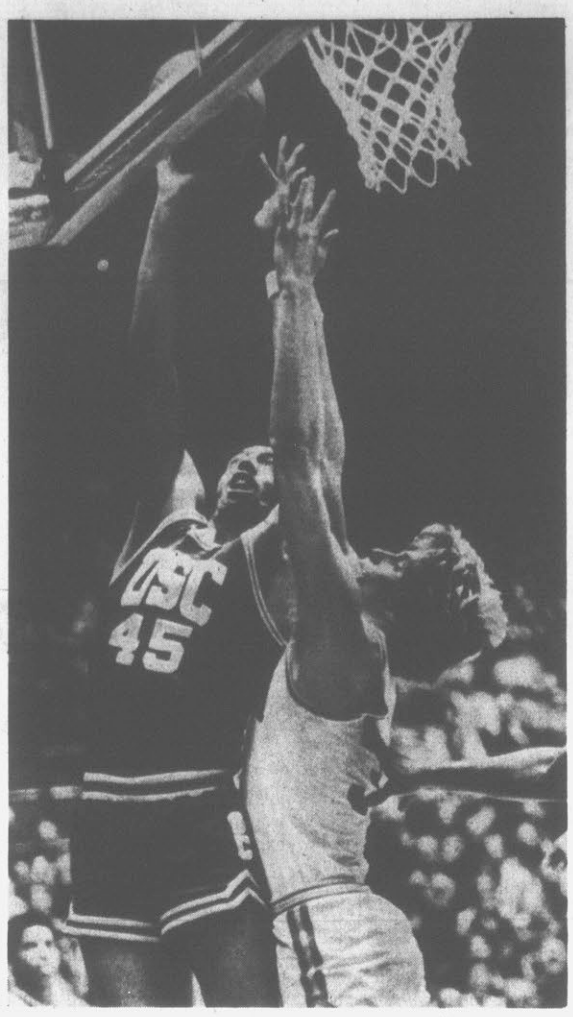

The Trojans scored the first point of the overtime period to take a 94-93 lead, their only advantage of the night. But a jump shot by Brad Holland with 2:02 left to play put the Bruins ahead to stay. Holland made two free throws before Hamilton took over, making a layup and three foul shots.

UCLA was the only member of The Associated Press Top Twenty in action Friday night.

Elsewhere, Tony Price scored 16 points and grabbed 11 rebounds as Penn remained unbeaten in Ivy League play with a 64-54 decision over Columbia. The Quakers outscored the Lions 12-4 to pull away from a 32-32 halftime standoff.

In the second game of the doubleheader at the Palestra in Philadelphia, Luke Griffin's 20-foot jumper with two seconds left gave St. Joseph's a 54-50 overtime victory over Villanova. The losers led 45-35 with 13:22 left but went scoreless for the remainder of regulation time, while St. Joseph's scored 10 points and tied the score on Norman Black's two free throws with 6:52 to go.

Utah took over sole possession of first place in the Western Athletic Conference by downing Texas-El Paso 78-69 while Brigham Young, which had been tied with the Utes, was edged by New Mexico 66-65.

Pressuring

UCLA's Gig Sims pressures Southern Cal's Purvis Miller (45) as he goes up for a shot during the first half of their ballgame Friday night in Los Angeles. The Bruins won the Pac-10 contest 102-94 in overtime. (AP Laserphoto)

Winston-Salem Boxer Has Eyes On Olympics

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — William Kennedy liked the movie "Rocky," chose boxing over a football career and wants to keep developing at least until he gets to represent the United States on its boxing team at the 1980 Olympic Games.

Kennedy, 17, is a middleweight. He has won 25 fights while losing only three. Kennedy says "16 or 17" of his victories were by knockouts.

"Boxing is the hardest thing I've ever done," Kennedy said. "You've got to live clean, and it takes a lot of dedication. That is if you want to become the best."

Kennedy said his favorite portion of the movie "Rocky" involved the condition of the hero. "That was the really true part of the movie. He really wanted it," Kennedy said. He said he is sacrificing his fun now.

Kennedy said he once was "on the mean side," and says he turned to boxing partly because he wanted to stay out of trouble.

"I wanted to stay off the streets and not get into trouble," he said, adding: "A lot of my friends got into trouble; it's easy to find."

Some veteran boxing figures at the Pattersonm Avenue YMCA figure Kennedy has what it takes. Among Kennedy's fans are former Armed Services featherweight champion Bobby Giles and Giles' brother, William.

"The 1980 Olympics is what we're shooting for," says Bobby Giles. He says Kennedy has great promise and is a superb athlete.

Coghlan Nears Record Mile

NEW YORK (AP) — Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan was thinking about the 1976 Olympic Games while making himself an early favorite in the 1980 Games.

Coghlan won the Millrose Games' Wanamaker Mile Saturday in 3 minutes, 55 seconds, the second-fastest indoor mile in history — just off the world mark of 3:54.9 set by Dick Buerkle last year.

"I was elated when I saw 3:54.8 on the scoreboard," Coghlan said of the unofficial time. "When I heard the (official) time, I was disappointed — more disappointed, I think, then finishing fourth in the Olympic Games" in Montreal in 1976.

Kenya's Wilson Waigwa, previously unbeaten this year, finished a distant second in 3:56.3, followed by Sydney Maree, a Villanova sophomore from South Africa, 3:57.1; New Zealand's John Walker, the Olympic 1,500-meter champion, 3:57.3; collegiate champion Steve Scott of California-Irvine, 3:59.6, and Buerkle, 4:03.2.

Paul Cummings of the Pacific Coast Club, who set the old Millrose Games record of 3:57.6 three years ago, led through a blistering first three quarters, but faded to last place in the elite seven-man field. His time was not announced.

With the Madison Square Garden sellout crowd of 18,301 roaring its approval, Don Paige bested former Villanova teammate Mark Belger in a record-setting 1,000-yard race, Renaldo Nehemiah of the University of Maryland stretched his winning string to 14 in the 60-yard high hurdles, June Griffith of Adelphi set a women's world indoor record for 440 yards and Todd Scully set a world indoor record in the mile walk.

Griffith, a native of Guyana, won the 440 in 54.04 seconds, smashing the indoor best of 54.21 set by Laura Forde two years ago. Forde finished second Friday night in 54.9.

Houston McTear, the indoor world record-holder at 60 yards, set a meet record with a 6.09 clocking. Deby LaPlante also set a Millrose record, taking the women's 60-yard hurdles in 7.59.

Tennessee State University teammates Brenda Morehead and Chandra Cheeseborough finished one-two, respectively, in the women's 60-yard dash; Jan Merrill of Conneticut College rallied from 15 yards back in the final half-lap to edge Charlotte Bradley in the women's half-mile in 2:08.2 and Francie Larrieu captured the women's 1,500 meters in 4:15.0.

Debbie Brill won the women's high jump in 6 feet, 1 inch; Mike Solomon captured the 500-yard run in 56.9; Fred Sowerby took the Mel Sheppard 600 in 1:10.4 and Tanzania's Sulemain Nyambui, a student at Texas-El Paso, captured the two-mile in 8:30.3.

Dan Ripley won the pole vault with a record 18-1½ while Franklin Jacobs of Fairleigh Dickinson, the defending champion, easily captured the high jump with a leap of 7-6.

A Benevolent Fifth Column In Briton

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — Englishmen are hardly aware of it, but a benevolent Fifth Column has entrenched itself in their land. It's made up of Americans.

It isn't that the Yanks are taking over completely. But without anyone quite noticing, Americans who live in Britain have moved into surprising positions of importance and influence, even in fields which seem traditionally British.

The man responsible for making those famous British Jaguar cars in the state-owned British Leyland automobile company is William P. Thompson, new boss of the Jaguar-Rover-Triumph division. He's American.

The new head of Debrett's Peerage, that blue-blooded institution which compiles the basic Who's Who of British lords and knights, is Harold Brooks-Baker. Despite his double-barreled name he's American, too.

Among English high society the venerable magazine called The Tatler, first published in 1709, ranks as required reading. Its new editor is a pert young American named Leslie Field.

Britons are no longer surprised by Americans in their midst. But few locals have any notion how broadly and firmly the Yanks have moved in.

Michael Rudman is a new associate director of Britain's National Theater, responsible for the acting company which will fill its second-largest auditorium. He's from Texas.

A recent award for the year's greatest contribution to British dance went to American Robert Cohan, who runs the exciting London Contemporary Dance Theater.

The City of London is building Europe's most grandiose arts complex. When it opens next year the $170 million monster will house the far-famed Royal Shakespeare Company, the London Symphony orchestra and much more. For nine years its chief administrator overseeing design and construction and filling its convention hall has been a man named Henry Wrong. He's an American.

Britain's second biggest literary prize went recently to Paul Theroux, novelist, "Great Railway Bazaar" traveler and an American who lives here.

The country's only black orchestra conductor is Charles Darden, who was appointed musical director of the Ballet Rambert, a top British dance company, not long ago. He's a San Franciscan who beat 60 applicants for the job.

Britain's American community has grown so much that not even the U.S. embassy knows how big it is.

"We used to keep a register years ago when there were only 3,000 to 5,000," an embassy spokesman said. "But now there are thousands and thousands of them, all over the United Kingdom."

The embassy's guess is that 100,000 Americans live here now, not counting servicemen and their dependents. Six thousand American oilmen and their families live in Aberdeen, Scotland, alone.

Settling here is not always easy. Living costs are higher than in the United States and salaries generally lower. Americans often pay income tax and social security taxes in both countries. Housing is expensive and hard to find. British work permit requirements snarl some fields in red tape.

Yet, there are American antique dealers, lawyers, public relations people, dancers, nurses — you name it. Each has his own reason for being here, and there are as many reasons as Americans.

"My love for Britain is fervent," says Miss Field, who took over the Tatler after seven years in British newspapers.

"I came after college to work for a year, and then I didn't want to leave after a year," said Ruth Kaplan, press officer for Stratford-upon-Avon's Royal Shakespeare Company. "The theater was a big part of it."

Some feel "opportunities are greater here," according to conductor Darden. Others like Britain's gentle pace or its human scale.

Many American residents are in expected niches. American businessmen in American companies, for instance. Television and newspaper people. Movie tycoons, now mostly driven out by taxes, although actresses like Mia Farrow and Elaine Stritch still live here.

Even before Jennie Jerome became Winston Churchill's mother, American girls were marrying highly placed Britons — and they still are. Cabinet ministers, members of parliament, British lords, the vice-chairman of state-owned British Steel, all have American wives. Perhaps the most notable today is literary agent Debbie Owen, wife of British Foreign Secretary David Owen, but the company she keeps is large.

Less expected is the new American penetration into British arts. Every branch of the arts seems to have resident Americans in high places, quite apart from Cohan, Theroux, Darden and Rudman.

Charles Marowitz, whose Open Space theater is one of the nation's leading fringe playhouses, is renowned for reassembling bits of Shakespeare's plays in surprising "collages." Andre Previn is principal conductor of the London Symphony orchestra, a job he has held since 1968.

Marina Vaizey is art critic of the London Sunday Times. Martin Ackerman owns the magazine Arts Review. Rufus Collins is artistic director of London's Keskidee Arts center. Barbara and David Stone own the Gate Cinema, one of London's leading "art film" movie houses. Carl Davis composed theme music for several popular British television series.

Hundreds more thrive in thoroughly British jobs outside the arts. Jay Oliver runs Beacon Radio, one of Britain's 19 commercial radio stations. Phillip Bangsberg is managing editor of the Birmingham Post, one of the country's major outside-London newspapers. Robert Carrier, among the nation's top cooking writers, also runs two of its most renowned restaurants.

One who no longer counts is Ed Berman, who runs the country's most successful community action program. Berman surrendered his American passport and took British citizenship. To honor his conversion playwright Tom Stoppard wrote the long-running London and New York stage hit, "Dirty Linen and Newfound Land."

Killer Convicts Crime-Fighters

RAHWAY, N.J. (UPI) — Seventeen sneering juvenile delinquents walk with studied jauntiness into the maximum security state prison here. Minutes later, they huddle together on a bench as they are bombarded with obscenities and threatened with violence by men who have killed.

But these killers, convicts at the prison, have but one goal: to keep these street-tough children from a life of crime.

In an hour-long television documentary to be shown nationally the week of March 5, the prisoners depict what has become one of the most successful crime prevention programs in the country.

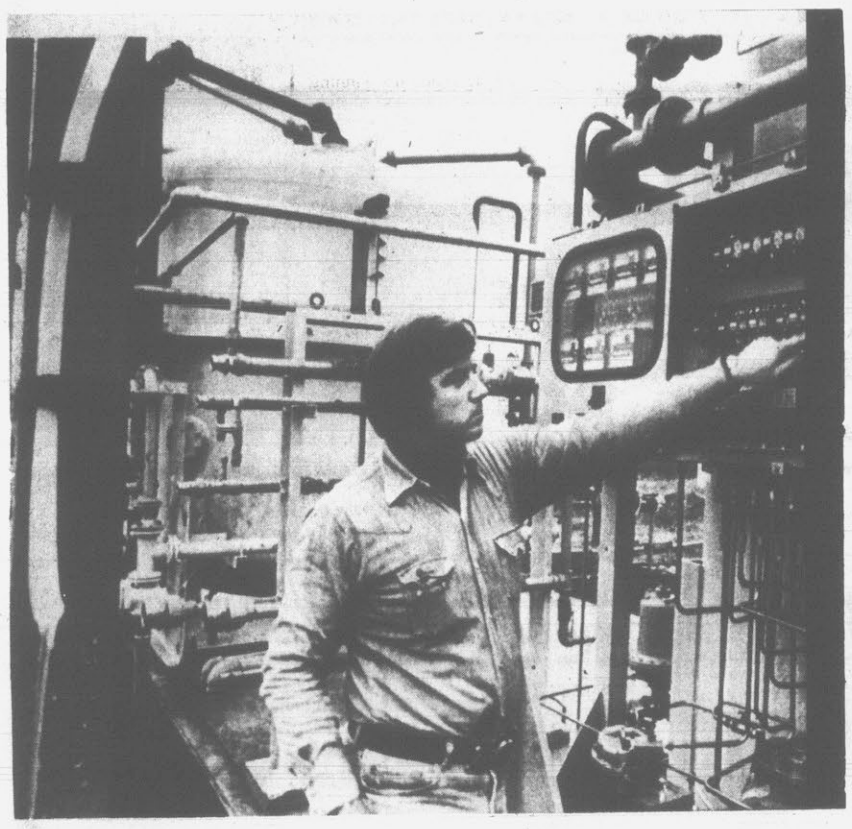

The film, "Scared Straight!," will be presented as a public service without commercial interruptions by The Signal Companies on over 100 independent stations.

Bogue Banks Tax Workshop

ATLANTIC BEACH — A tax workshop for charter boat operators will be held at the Marine Resources Center on Bogue Banks Tuesday.

Free information will be provided on depreciation, recording keeping and tax laws.

The workshop will be held from 7:30-9:30 p.m.

FINAL TOUCHES — Bill Preston, a pipefitter for the Cox Corp., checks the final control panel that controls a large filter designed to filter out the chemical DDT that is leaking from the Redstone Arsenal into the Tennessee River near the town of Triana. Large doses of the pesticide have been found in the fish around Triana and the Environmental Protection Agency has ordered the Army to clean up the spill. It was the first time that the EPA has ordered another federal government agency to comply with a ruling. (AP Laserphoto)

Inventors Day Honors Host Of Geniuses And Near-Geniuses

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Superman's x-ray vision, flying ability and other powers may eliminate his need for most modern inventions, but he at least owes a debt to the work of Thomas Watson.

You remember Watson. He was made famous by Alexander Graham Bell's remark: "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you."

Bell, of course, invented the telephone, landing him in the National Inventors Hall of Fame, where Inventors Day is being marked Sunday.

Watson may seem less famous, but his work involved more than just taking calls from Bell. He invented the phone booth.

Not everyone uses a phone booth to change into a caped crusader outfit, but most are still benefitted by the work of inventors.

The Inventors Day exhibits include a robot lawn mower, stop smoking ashtrays, heat convection devices, luminescent writing paper, solar energy devices and a host of other items.

More than 100,000 applications are made to the U.S. Patent Office yearly, and in 1977 — the last year for which a tally is completed — 72,832 patents were granted for new inventions. The number of patents varies each year, said the patent office's Oscar Masden, ranging from 86,000 in 1972 to 70,000 in 1970.

Patents are granted only for applied technology, not scientific principles. For example, Albert Einstein did his most famous work in theoretical physics. His patents, however, are on a self-adjusting camera and a refrigeration system.

The intent of a patent is to give the inventor some protection for his work. It allows the patent holder exclusive use of the invention for 17 years. He can license others to use it during that time.

This provides inventors with income and incentive to do research, while getting their work on the public record.

A patent must include enough information to allow a skilled person to duplicate the invention, and this allows others a wider base of information for future inventions.

From 1790 until World War II this seems to have worked just fine, with most inventors working privately or for business, and receiving patent protection. But recently more research money has from government, leading to conflict over the resulting patents.

Howard W. Bremer of the University of Wisconsin reports that various government agencies and departments have some 22 different patent policies ranging from the "title" to the "license" policy.

The title policy gives the government title to all patent rights, even to inventions only incidental to the research. These patents are then made available without charge to anyone who wants to use them. The argument is that the inventions were paid for by the government.

By contrast, the "license" policy allows the inventor to keep title to his patent, while giving the government use of it. The argument here is that inventions are incidental to research and that the government only needs the right to use the patent. The inventor can still receive royalties from others he licenses to use the idea.

Bremer doesn't anticipate a quick solution to the problem — there are conflicting proposals before Congress — and he fears the problem may begin to stifle inventiveness.

Meanwhile, only last year the struggle to obtain patent protection in other countries was eased slightly. A new law allows an inventor to make one application listing the countries in which he wants protection, instead of applying to each individually.

Separate examinations of the application are done by each country, but an international search is provided to see if a similar idea has been patented somewhere.

President Carter's proclamation of Inventors Day noted this is the 100th anniversary of Thomas Edison's invention of the electric light.

Edison, the all-time inventing champ with more than 1,000 patents, was the first person honored in the National Inventor's Hall of Fame when it was established at the patent office in 1973.

Bell followed a year later, along with Eli Whitney of cotton gin fame and and three men credited with inventing the transistor, John Bardeen, Walter H. Brattain and William Shockley.

The government issued more than 4,000,000 patents beginning on July 31, 1790, with a patent for an improved system of making potash, a fertilizer. The patent went to Samuel Hopkins of Pittsford, Vt.

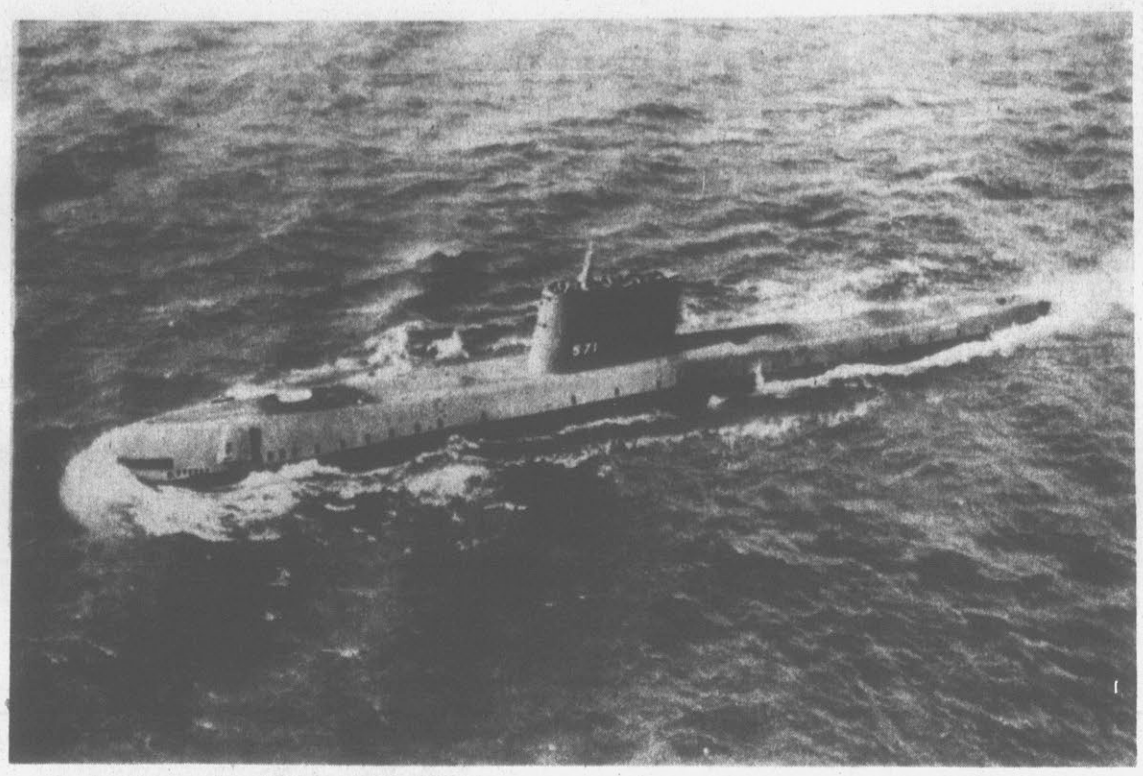

While that was the first U.S. patent, individual states and colonies issued earlier patents, dating back to 1641 when Samuel Winslow was granted a Massachusetts patent for a novel method of making salt.

Being added to the hall of fame this year are rocket pioneer Robert H. Goddard, computer expert Jay W. Forrester, and Charles J. Plank and Edward J. Rosinski, who developed a system for making gasoline.

In addition Barbara S. Askins of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is being honored as the 1978 Inventor of the Year. She developed a system for improving the image on severely underexposed photographic film.

UNDERGOING RESTORATION — The Italian government said in Milan it is spending $550,000 to restore the fading colors of Leonardo Da Vinci's fresco "The Last Supper", and the church in which it is displayed. The fresco, completed in 1498, has faded in recent years as a result of bacteria. (AP Laserphoto)

Initiated By Honor Soc.

ECU News Bureau

Eight East Carolina University students have been initiated into ECU's Tau chapter of Phi Sigma Pi honor society. They are Mike Bell and Sandy Sampson of Morehead City, Jim Kittrell and Roy Carlton of Greenville, Kenny Gunn of Richmond, Va., Chuck Ball of Kinston, Randy Sessoms of Southern Pines and Ellen Ballance of Fremont.

ECU's Tau chapter won the Outstanding Chapter award for the 13th consecutive year at the 1978 Phi Sigma Pi national convention in Atlantic City, N.J. last fall. Faculty advisor for the chapter, Dr. Jack Thornton of the ECU School of Business, was elected national vice president.

Dr. Richard Todd, professor emeritus of history at ECU and former chapter faculty advisor, was re-elected national alumni chairman.

Parents' names of the eight new Phi Sigma Pi members include:

Appointed To Task Force

ECU News Bureau

Constantine Kledaras, professor of social work in the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions, has been appointed by Gov. James Hunt to serve on the Governor's Task Force Committee on Mental Health.

Kledaras has also been selected to represent Alpha Delta Mu national social work honor society at the annual council meeting of the Association of College Honor Societies in Atlanta Feb. 22-25.

Kledaras is southern regional vice president of Alpha Delta Mu and serves as faculty advisor to ECU's Theta Chapter of the society.

Bearden Named To College Bd.

BUIES CREEK — Dr. James H. Bearden, Dean of the School of Business, East Carolina University, has been elected to the Campbell College Board of Trustees for a term expiring Dec. 31, 1982.

A native of Alabama, Dr. Bearden received a bachelor of science degree from Centenary College of Louisiana, and a master's degree from East Carolina University. He earned his doctorate from the University of Alabama.

DR. JAMES H. BEARDEN

Prior to his appointment as professor at East Carolina, Bearden served as business manager for the Marion Institute in Alabama. After serving as professor and assistant dean at East Carolina, Dr. Bearden was appointed Dean in 1968.

Dr. Bearden is a member of several committees of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, as well as the Development Capital Ad Hoc Committee of the Coastal Plains Regional Commission. He is also active in several professional organizations and is the author of various professional articles and books.

Dr. Bearden and his wife, the former Pauline Larkins, have two children and attend Oakmont Baptist Church.

Fighting The Bark Beetle

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway will start a war this year — against the Ips typografus, better known as the bark beetle or bark engraver.

During 1978, millions of bark beetles destroyed 1.1 million cubic meters of valuable forest in southern and eastern parts of Norway. Forest owners suffered losses of at least $22 million, the Ministry of Agriculture said.

Forests in these parts of Norway are now so infested with bark beetles that the ministry decided something had to be done about it — and quickly. A fast-working expert group was appointed last October to suggest an action program for 1979 and the next couple of years.

The experts feared that damage to forests in 1979 might be even worse than in 1978 and concluded that a full-scale war against the bark beetles must start immediately.

They suggested that the government and forest owners share costs of the anti-beetle program, which it is estimated will cost at least $16 million this year.

"There is no fast and easy way to win this war and eliminate the bark beetles completely. The aim must be to get the stock of bark beetles down to what can be termed normal. As of now there is an abnormally high number of beetles in affected forests," said Agriculture Ministry information chief Per Erik Bjoerklund.

Set Speech And Hearing Symposium February 23

ECU News Bureau

East Carolina University's Ninth Annual Speech and Hearing Symposium will be highlighted by guest speakers Dr. Donald Hammill, Dr. Mary Stone and Ms. Mary Elsie Henegar.

The symposium, sponsored by the ECU Chapter of the National Student Speech and Hearing Association, the School of Allied Health and Social Professions and EAHEC, will be held Feb. 23, in the auditorium of the Belk Building.

Each year, a program is planned to provide continuing education for professionals in speech, language and auditory pathology and to disseminate current information for professionals and other interested individuals.

This year's symposium will be devoted to the field of Special Education and in particular, Learning Disabilities. Dr. Hammill, who specializes in Learning Disabilities, will give a presentation on the "Diagnosis and Management of the Learning Disabled in a Speech, Language and Hearing Program." Hammill, a professor at the University of Texas in Educational Psychology in Special Education, has done post doctoral work at Wichita State University researching language problems of brain damaged children.

Dr. Mary Stone, an assistant professor in the Deparment of Speech, Language and Auditory Pathology at ECU, will present information concerning the "Management of the Hearing Impaired in a Speech, Language and Hearing Program." Dr. Stone received her degree from the University of Tennessee in Speech and Hearing Science.

Ms. Mary Elsie Henegar, director of the CUED Speech Center in Raleigh, will present information about her program and the use of cued speech.

Registration will be held in the lobby of the Allied Health Building (Belk Building) from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. and the registration fee will be $5 or $6.

NEWS CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says President Carter will hold a news conference Monday at 11:30 a.m. EST. As usual, the conference will be available for live broadcast coverage.

Applications Are Received

ECU News Bureau

East Carolina University Testing Center has received the new Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) applications for 1979.

April 28 and September 15 are the test dates and the deadline date for application is April 2 for the April 28 test and August 20 for the Spetember 15 test.

John S. Childers, director of the testing center, urged all candidates to meet the deadlines for application, there are no exceptions to the deadlines, he said.

The registration packet may be obtained by writing MCAT Registration, The American College Testing Program, P.O. Box 414, Iowa City, Iowa 52240. Applications are also available in the ECU Testing Center, Speight Building, Rm 105, Greenville, N.C.

EDUCATOR RECOGNIZED

Dr. Mabel Laughter, reading specialist in the East Carolina University's Department of Elementary Education, will be listed in the 1979 Winter issue of "Men and Women of Distinction" published by the International Biographical Centre in Cambridge, England.

Adopt-A-Pet

This affectionate female calico cat has taken up with someone who cannot keep her because she lives in an apartment where pets are not allowed. A good home is being sought for the cat by the Pitt Co. Humane Society.

Anyone who can adopt this cat is asked to call Humane Society Pres. Jeanette Fiore, 756-8413. Also needing a home is a five-week-old female puppy, — a little ball of fur as wide as she is high — that will grow up into a medium-sized dog. She's black and has tan markings and is being paper-trained. Anyone who can adopt her is asked to call Judy Pearson, 752-5220

Anyone wishing to place an animal for adoption may call Mrs. Fiore at 756-8413.

Evangelical's Field Global

By EDGAR MILLER
Associated Press Writer

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — From an office on the outskirts of town, Spiros Zodhiates runs a multinational enterprise which reaches into 73 countries on five continents.

But while most multinational companies do business with the affluent, Zodhiates looks for the poor, the outcast and the unwanted.

For, unlike the heads of most multinationals, Zodhiates expects no monetary return from his far-flung enterprises. On the contrary, it's all outgo — about $4 million a year.

Zodhiates runs AMG International. AMG stands for Advancing the Ministeries of the Gospel, an evangelical, non-denominational organization. It was changed in 1974 from American Mission to Greece since the organization had long since outgrown its Greek operation.

AMG, started in 1942 by George Georgakis, a Greek in New York, to help the people of Greece and "bring the gospel to Greeks in New York," today runs orphanages, hospitals, day-care centers and schools. Zodhiates left Greece to join AMG as general secretary in 1946 and became president in 1965. The group moved its headquarters to Chattanooga this year from New Jersey.

As a missionary organization, AMG International is a bit unusual. Most churches send their own missionaries to spread the gospel in foreign lands. Zodhiates' group prefers to train residents of the countries to do the work.

"We believe there should be no Americans or foreigners where natives can do the job." Zodhiate said in an interview.

He says that using Americans, AMG's worldwide charity and evangelization work would cost $40 million a year. But it only takes about $50 a month to support an AMG missionary in most places, Zodhiates said.

AMG exists mainly on voluntary contributions from private citizens. "We do not seek the sponsorship of any church," Zodhiates, a Baptist, says.

The missionary activities include scripture distribution in local languages, newspaper evangelism, radio evangelism, gospel films, Bible conferences and student training.

In 1977, AMG spent $579,000 on radio evangelism and another $370,135 on radio and television ministries. It spent about $600,000 for evangelistic newspaper ads in the Uiited States and abroad.

The group owns three radio stations of its own — in Columbus, Ga., South Charleston, W.Va., and Jacksonville, Fla. — and sponsors religious broadcasts over 600 other stations.

The biggest item on AMG's budget is its orphan and relief program which accounted for $769,000 last year.

Just back from a visit to India, Zodhiates was excited about his group's work there among the lepers, orphans and scavengers.

"We do what Christ did; we touch the lepers," he said.

Business Notes

NEW BROKER

Darrell Hignite, president of Hignite & Co. Inc., announced the association of Renate Heckel as a new broker.

Mrs. Heckel, who was born in Berlin, Germany, attended the School of Business and the Free University Berlin, where she received her Master's degree in library science.

Her husband, Edgar, is a professor in the Chemistry Department at East Carolina University.

NEARS COMPLETION

Construction on the new main office of First-Citizens Bank & Trust Co. in Williamston is nearing completion, according to Fred Oglesby, assistant vice president and city executive.

Oglesby, who said an open house will be held for the new office on Feb. 19, pointed out that the new facility will have a large lobby, private office space, six teller windows and a drive-up window. He added that the structure is of traditional design.

ATTENDED SCHOOL

Bob Wicks, division manager in Greenville for Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., attended the company's School for Division Managers at the home office in Greensboro.

Wicks was one of 38 division managers from throughout the company's coast-to-coast territory who were invited to attend the school because of their performance records with the company.

The school placed emphasis on methods of recruiting, selecting, training and supervising life insurance agents.

REDUCTIONS NOTED

Savings and loan associations in North Carolina experienced reductions in net savings inflows and lending volume during December, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta.

Net savings inflows amounted to $96.5 million compared with a gain of $113.4 million reported for the same month in 1977. Gross inflows, which include new deposits and interest payments, totaled $396.4 million and were partially offset by withdrawals of $295.9 million.

Lending activity in December fell below the year-earlier pace, which set a record for the month. Mortgage lending amounted to $147.7 million, compared with $185.7 million last December.

Iran Problem Affecting Stock Market

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The political upheaval taking place in Iran has become a problem that won't go away for the stock market.

Some six weeks after the last shipment of oil left that unsettled country — which ordinarily accounts for about 10 percent of the world's oil supplies — the financial markets still seem to be struggling to adjust to the situation.

When Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned this past week that the shutoff of Iranian oil was "prospectively more serious" than the Arab oil embargo of five years ago, stock and bond prices fell, the dollar came under pressure, and the price of gold hit a record high.

By the end of the week, some brokers were arguing that investors had overreacted to the Iran situation.

But as the markets closed Friday, stock prices showed a loss for the second straight week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 12.30 to 822.33 after a 25.12-point decline the week before.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index lost .91 to 54.88. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index managed a .83 gain to 160.08.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 25.24 million shares a day, against 26.94 million the week before.

Analysts have noted several important areas of concern for investors in the Iranian situation.

The most basic is its potential effect on oil supplies for the industrialized countries. But beyond that, questions have been raised about Iran's future role as a consumer of Western goods and services, such as military equipment, and about loans made in the country by Western banks.

Naturally, analysts say, such issues have taken their toll on stock prices generally. By late last week, however, it was evident that investors had begun to look at the other side of the coin — buying stocks of companies that might stand to benefit from the Iranian crisis.

The coal stocks, for one, were strong on both Thursday and Friday. And many issues of companies with energy interests concentrated in North America also moved up.

With all these cross-currents, it seemed likely that much of the drama — dubbed "The Iranian Disconnection" by Barry Sahgal of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. in a recent report — was still to be played out on Wall Street as well as in Tehran.

"It is widely assumed that once the dust settles in Iran, exports of crude oil will be facilitated by whoever is in power," Sahgal said. "Although that would be most desirable, it does not necessarily follow that Western interests (the achievement of high production levels) will be served."

The potential impact of the situation on the dollar is another open question. Wrote J. Paul Horne of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co.:

"The dollar might initially be negatively affected, but we suspect that a subsequent result, possibly already in process, will be a flow of funds toward the U.S., which is currently seen as a better refuge for Middle Eastern funds than Western Europe or Japan.

"Many European and Middle Eastern fund managers seem to think the Mid-east crisis is likely to affect West European countries more than the U.S. Furthermore, these managers seem agreed that economic fundamentals in the U.S. point to growing dollar stability.

"They also seem persuaded that there is more upside potential in U.S. equity and real estate markets than there is in Europe or Japan.

Compromise Proposal

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A Tulsa hospital administrator has proposed a four-point compromise in an effort to settle the continuing conflict over construction of evangelist Oral Roberts' City of Faith Hospital.

The proposals include limiting Tulsa County admissions to Roberts' hospital, forming an agreement over hiring of hospital staff at the new hospital, ceasing legal actions, and lifting of a moratorium on other Tulsa hospital projects.

Jon Pirtle, administrator of Oklahoma Osteopathic Hospital, who has in the past attempted to act as a peacemaker in the legal battles erupting over the City of Faith, proposed the compromise.

Good Chances To Restrain Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a stinging setback, the administration's point man in the inflation fight says there's still a good chance of restraining price increases this year. He says the program "simply hasn't begun to bite yet."

Alfred Kahn, presidential adviser and chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, describes January's 1.3 percent increase in wholesale prices, disclosed Friday, as "terribly widespread and troublesome."

But he nevertheless said he sees a "strong probability" the program's goal of holding price increases to 7.4 percent this year can be acheived. Prices rose at a rate of 9.1 percent in 1978.

$20 Million Expansion

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Republic Foil Co. announced plans on Friday for a $20-million expansion program that will double the size of its Salisbury plant.

The company, which manufactures aluminum foil, will add new melting and casting facilities, two rolling mills, millery equipment and more capacity for producing foil for packaging.

Construction of the 118,000-square-foot addition is expected to begin later this year, a spokesman said.

Republic Foil, a subsidiary of national Steel Corp., opened its Salisbury plant in 1959 with 15 employees. It now employs 175 people.

They mean business.

Carolina Telephone has four devices that can help you keep complete control of your business telephone communications:

Teledialer 32 memorizes up to 32 of your most important phone numbers and automatically dials them with the touch of a button.

Code-A-Phone takes messages automatically when no one's in the office. You can play them back any time, even from another phone.

Speakerphone allows you to talk and listen from anywhere in your office, while leaving your hands free. This makes an excellent conference phone as well.

PBX System is designed to provide total communications for the small business, as well as the largest industries or institutions. This system provides flexibility, convenience and expansion capabilities.

Gulf Emirates Fear The Day They Run Out Of Oil

By BARRY JAMES

ABU DHABI (UPI) — Despite the billions of petrodollars pouring into the United Arab Emirates (UAE) every year, there are fears that this El Dorado on the Persian Gulf could one day shrivel up like the ghost towns of the Wild West.

Abu Dhabi, the biggest and by far the wealthiest of the seven emirates in the UAE federation, gets 93 percent of its income from oil.

Even though there are 250,000 barrels of oil in proven reserves for every man, woman and child in Abu Dhabi, there is much concern about the not-too-distant future when the black gold starts running out.

The question is whether the UAE can develop an adequate industrial base in the meantime to survive as a nation in the post-oil era.

Already it has throttled back its oil output to 1.4 million barrels a day, from 1.8 million, to make supplies last longer.

"I feel very strongly that the proper use of oil is not the way we are using it now," the federation's young oil minister, Mana Said al Otaiba, said.

"We should not be squandering it as cheap fuel. There are many noble uses for oil, and hundreds of thousands of industries of use to humankind in which oil can be used as a raw material."

Otaiba warned that "in the near future, after 1985, the world will face a great shortage of oil supplies, and there will no longer be enough to use as a cheap source of energy."

Paradoxically, the UAE is one of two nations in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to argue consistently in favor of price moderation. The other is neighboring Saudi Arabia.

They fear too-high oil prices will spur a recession in the West, affecting their extensive investments in industrialized countries. There is concern also that a trade slump in the West could rebound against the UAE's efforts to build up its own industrial base before the oil starts running out.

UAE leaders from President Sheikh Zayed Bin Sultan Al Nahyan down are determined that the emirates should one day be able to stand on their own feet as an industrial power in the Middle East.

Yet traditional rivalry among the emirates — united for only seven years — has meant much of the development so far has been uncoordinated and wasteful.

Ras El Khaimah, one of the smaller emirates with little oil, owns a $10 million earth satellite — to serve only 700 telephones.

Dubai, the second largest emirate, is constructing a dry dock to take oil tankers twice the size of the largest now afloat, even though such ships are never likely to be built. (There are rumors that the dock will be used as a U.S. Navy base in the Persian Gulf if Americans are driven out of Iran.)

Dubai also is constructing a harbor at Jebel Ali that will have more berths than New York.

The UAE has four international airports, but is planning to build four more even though those already in operation are under-utilized.

The airport of Sharjah, another emirate, with a capacity of 2.5 million passengers a year, is only 5 miles from Dubai and competes with Dubai's own airport.

The airport at Ras El Khaimah is big and modern enough to serve many American or European cities, yet it handles only five international flights a week.

"You have to remember that decisions to build these facilities were taken a few years ago when our ports and airports were badly clogged," one official said. "We perhaps went too far too fast — and to tell the truth, we also were taken in by some get-rich-quick operators."

Since the UAE's own population is small, industrial development depends to a great extent upon imported immigrant labor.

With 350,000 immigrant workers out of a total population of 820,000, the question of allowing in further large numbers of foreigners is one of the government's most delicate problems.

Two studies on the nation's future manpower needs reportedly have been suppressed. The government is now rethinking its plan to build a new industrial city at Ruwais in Abu Dhabi that would require up to 100,000 foreign workers.

The foreigners range from educated and skilled Europeans, Palestinians and Egyptians to laborers from Pakistan, India and Afghanistan. They are not encouraged to put down roots and most cannot bring their families. They have no political or social security rights and are not allowed to buy property, however long they live here. If they set up business they must give at least 51 percent of the shares to a native partner.

Many foreigners predict these conditions mean social and racial problems for the future. Government officials, however, say most foreign workers have come to make money and will go home once their work here is finished.

UAE authorities favor deals with foreign contractors who bring in their own labor forces — typically South Koreans, Malays, Thais or Filipinos — and take them out again when the project ends. This is the "work camp" approach.

The ideal industrial plant, so far as Abu Dhabi is concerned, needs few workers and relies on local suplies of oil and gas. This is why the sheikhdom, in common with other oil-rich countries, is planning to move heavily into refining and other downstream petrochemical operations.

But there already is a glut of such products on world markets, and the success of the proposed ventures is by no means assured.

The smaller emirates with little or no oil have fewer pretensions about heavy industry, but rely on handouts from Abu Dhabi for part of their income.

Sharajah is developing as a tax-free entrepot. Ras Al Khaimah, endowed with fresh water, is the federation's leading food producer. Fujaireh, with its vast sandy beaches, has potential as a vacation center. Um al Quwain relies on fishing and Ajman has a shipyard.

While the UAE rushes to build a nation before the oil runs out, the exhaustion of water supplies may prove a more immediate problem.

Urban development has brought a serious depletion of the water table in some places, and experts say the problem could become a serious crisis within about five years.

Mental Health Center To Expand Bethel Role

The Pitt County Mental Health Center will expand services in the Bethel community beginning tomorrow.

According to Dr. Robert P. Nenno, Center Associate Medical Director, the Bethel Resource Center will offer mental health clinical services, including both treatment and counseling for adults, children, alcoholics, drug abusers, and mentally retarded. Mental health consultation and education services also will be provided to schools, law enforcement, churches and other groups.

A Mental Health Advisory Committee has been named to evaluate mental health needs and priorities in the community. This group will take part in planning, developing and implementing services, Dr. Nenno said. On the committee are Ms. Carolyn Smith, Ms. Rebie Crandal, the Rev. Ellis Bedsworth, the Rev. Norman Joyner, Mayor James Dupree, Ms. Mabel Blount, Ms. Betty Speir, and Robert L. Martin.

The first meeting of the Advisory Committee will be held Monday at 4 p. m. at the Bethel Resource Center, located in the Bethel Clinic.

Personnel for the Center will include Dr. Nenno; Robert C. Moore, adult social workers; Camille C. Harris, mental health nurse; Tyrone Curran, substance abuse counselor; Acolia Simon-Thomas, child mental health specialist; Nancy Middleton, community mental health organizer and educator; and Barbara W. Roebuck receptionist.

Hours for the Bethel Resource Center will be 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. each Monday. Services will begin tomorrow.

Auditions On Feb. 24

Auditions for the annual Pitt County 4-H Talent Show will be held Saturday, Feb. 24, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the Wellcome Middle School, Greenville.

The talent show will be directed by Stuart Aronson, assistant professor of Speech and Drama, Continuing Education Division, East Carolina University.

Aronson also serves as director of the annual "Sunday in the Park" in Greenville and author and director of "Black Beard, Knight of the Black Flag," an outdoor drama in Bath.

Four-H members, ages nine to 19, are urged to particiapte in the show. Three acts per club are allotted, with winners to receive $25, trophies and a trip to the District Talent Show in Pasquotank County in June.

For more information, contact Dale Panaro, associate extension agent, at 758-1196.

Miss Terri Averette Weds Saturday Afternoon

Miss Terri Lynn Averette and Matthew Kyle Edwards were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. at the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Willis Wilson officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Averette Jr. of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edwards Jr. of Simpson.

A program of wedding music was presented by Tommy Manning of Ayden. Tony and Elizabeth Smart rendered "If," "The Wedding Song'," "Let It Be Me," "You Light Up My Life" and "Savior Like a Shepherd Leads Us."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. The bride wore a victorian gown of chiffon over silk taffeta. The bodice was designed with a high neckline and rounded yoke with ruffle of schiffli lace and centered with silk embroidered motifs, highlighted with seed pearls. The long sleeves ended with ruffles of schiffli lace and silk embroidered motifs. The skirt, of pleated chiffon, was attached to a bodice with a band of lace and the hemline was bordered by bands of schiffli lace extending into a cathedral train.

She wore a cathedral length veil edged in lace attached to a victorian bonnet of lace embroidered with pearls. The bride carried an antique lace fan enhanced with pink and wine silk garden roses with a cascade of mauve satin ribbons.

Miss Jenny Buck of Winterville was maid of honor and Mrs. Glenda Averette of Winterville, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. They wore wine floor length qiana gowns with ivory lace. The fitted bodice featured a cummerbund at the waist and a yoke neckline edged with lace and bracelet length sleeves. They wore flowered headpieces and carried wicker baskets of mixed pink and burgundy carnations, white daisies and gypsophilia.

Miss Elizabeth Branch and Miss Carol Gooding of Winterville, Miss Lisa Moye and Miss Patty Joyner of Greenville, Miss Angela Forrest of Vanceboro and Mrs. Deborah McGuirt of Raleigh, both cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore mauve qiana floor length gowns designed like the honor attendants" and wore baby's breath in their hair. They carried identical wicker baskets.

Cheryl Lynn Buck of Winterville, flower girl, wore a floor length mauve qiana gown with a lace yoke and long sleeves with lace trim. She wore a band of flowers in her hair.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Clevie Averette, brother of the bride, Vic Corey and Robert Garrett of Winterville, Todd Edwards and Chris Sumrell of Simpson, cousins of the bridegroom, Glenn Forrest of Vanceboro, cousin of the bride, and Chap Tucker of Greenville. Tracey Mayo of Simpson was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of blue qiana and the mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length gown of mint green qiana. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages. Grandmothers of the bridal couple, Mrs. Ernest Averette, Mrs. Rance Forrest and Mrs. Fred Edwards Sr., were remembered with corsages of white carnations.

After the ceremony, the bridal couple remembered their mothers with long-stemmed red roses.

Mrs. Linwood Hooks, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding. Angela Hardee and Allison Dail distributed rice bags. Libby Roberson of Greenville presided at the register.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship building.

The reception table was covered with a white lace cloth. The six-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Archie Nobles and punch was poured by Mrs. Earl Deal. Mr. and Mrs. Blanie Moye greeted guests and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Edwards said good-byes. Others assisting included Mrs. Eddie Keel, Cindy Moye, Dawn Mills, Janet Garrett, Tracey Hodges and Jo Williams.

The bride is a sophomore at East Carolina University, majoring in early childhood education. The bridegroom is engaged in farming.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will live in Simpson. For traveling, the bride wore a three-piece white pantsuit and her mother's corsage.

The bridegroom's parents entertained the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests at an after-rehearsal party in the church parlor.

Churchwomen Hold Meeting

St. Peter's Women's Club held its meeting Wednesday in the church hall. Forthcoming activities were discussed

The group voted to sponsor a Brownie Troop and will provide cupcakes for the Special Olympics sponsored by the Recreation Department in April.

Plans were finalized for the club's card party to be held Friday, Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the church hall. Tickets are $6.00 for a table of four and can be obtained by contacting Bobbie Parsons, 756-1268, or Kathy Frelke, 756-4441.

A nominating committee was named including Mary Daniels, Dina Dorney, Sandy Helms and Gert Cunningham. A slate of officers will be voted on in April and the installation will be held in May.

Father Paul Byron, pastor of St. Peter's, was presented a check from the club to be used to help with the expenses of the fireplace in the new church hall.

The meeting was conducted by Ms. Parsons, president.

Engagement Announced

MISS STELLA DIANE STOX. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stox Jr. of Roxboro, who announce her engagement to Richard Young White, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Hunt White of Henderson. The wedding will take place April 14.

If you have a sunny kitchen window, you can successfully grow a pot of parsley on it. You can start the parsley from seed. Keep the soil moist, but don't be an over-achiever when it comes to watering! After the sprigs are tall enough to cut, new ones spring up fairly rapidly.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Telephone books are like dictionaries — if you know the answer before you look it up, you can eventually reaffirm what you thought you knew but weren't sure.

But if you're searching for something you don't already know, your fingers could walk themselves to death.

The trouble with me is I never learned how to speak Yellow Pages. It's a language of the 20th century, born of frustration, nurtured by obscurity, and dedicated to the theory that by the time you find it, you no longer need it.

In the language of Yellow Pages, a rug is a "carpet," curtains are "draperies," milk is "a dairy product" and cars are "industrial automotives."

A plumber is a "plumbing contractor," an electrician is an "electrical contractor" and hi-fi's are listed under Sound Systems and equipment.

Roaches are listed under Pest Control, exterminating and fumigating, a taco is under Mexican Food Products, a tailpipe under Mufflers and Exhaust Systems, and a pencil is under Advertising Specialists.

One of the most frustrating encounters in the Yellow Pages is trying to find a doctor, who is listed under Physicians, who are subdivided into M.D.s and D.O.s, who are also listed under Physicians and Surgeons, group; associate and corporate practice, and who aren't in anyway and whose phone is being answered by a doctor's answering service . . . See Physicians and Surgeons Exchange.

You should begin to worry about yourself when you begin to think like the Yellow Pages. Recently, I wanted to call a flea market and caught myself just in time. Flea market would definitely not be under F, but probably under something like Swap Meets. I turned to the W's and read, "See Flea Market."

I don't know what the answer is with the growth of private enterprise and the need to consolidate them under a general heading. But just for kicks I turned to "Survival Kits" and was hit with, "See First Aid Supplies, Sporting Goods heading."

I know this. No one will ever convince me that when Alexander Graham Bell was sitting in his Boston boardinghouse March 10, 1876, with battery acid burning his leg and shouted his first frantic message into the transmitter, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you!" it was the despair of looking under HELP in the Yellow Pages and finding, "See batteries: Dry cell, wholesale, retail, charging and maintenance," that did it.

DAR Meeting Is Announced

The monthly meeting of the Susanna Coutanch Evans Chapter DAR will be held at the home of Dr. Mildred Southwick Thursday at 7:45 p.m.

Mrs. Norwood Sutton of Mount Olive, state organizing secretary, will be present to answer questions an filling out DAR application papers.

Mrs. Doris Ballengee, organizing regent, appointed Mrs. Dorothy Johnson to serve as chapter vice regent.

Mrs. Jo Betts Barrett Barringer has transferred to the group from Durham. Dr. Diane Fogelman, Mrs. Sally Thompson and Mrs. Phyllis McLane have been notified by the national board their application papers have been verified.

Now that papayas are widely available, you may want to serve them at a company brunch. You can offer them as a first-course fruit, pared and cut in wedges, with accompanying wedges of lemon or lime.

Miss Williford Is Bride Of David P. Robinson

Cynthia Lynn Williford and David Paul Robinson were married Saturday in the Salvation Army Citadel here at 7 p.m. Major William Williford, uncle of the bride, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Major and Mrs. Arnold Williford of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of David W. Robinson of Greenville and Mrs. Eddie Davenport of Dover.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white organza over taffeta designed with a high neckline encircled with a ruffle of scalloped chantilly lace. The sheer yoke of the fitted bodice featured a lace motif in a bib effect outlined in ruffled lace appliques. The sheer, fitted sleeves were fashioned of chantilly lace with ruffled cuffs. The full organza skirt and attached chapel length train were bordered at the hemline in a deep ruffle flounce of organza and chantilly lace jeweled with sequins. She wore a formal length illusion mantilla held in place by a Camelot cap trimmed in chantilly lace beaded with pearls. She carried a colonial nosegay of white daisies and yellow gypsophilia.

Mrs. Kenneth Clewis of Greenville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a long dress of pale aqua chiffon over taffeta with an empire waistline encircled with ribbon. The gown had an overlay of white lace at the neckline and long chiffon sleeves with white lace at the cuffs. She carried a silk nosegay of yellow roses, baby's breath and lily-of-the-valley tied with white ribbon and streamers.

Bridesmaids were Joy Williford of New Bern, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Carolyn Mallard of Greenville. They wore pale yellow dresses similar to the honor attendant. They carried identical nosegays with yellow streamers and ribbon.

Mandy Clewis of Greenville, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a long gown of white crepe with a bib effect and trimmed in wide lace. The long sleeves and hem were trimmed in lace. She carried a white wicker basket of carnations, pom pons and daisies.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Tim Williford, brother of the bride, and Dean Wells, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Greenville. Kevin Loftin of Ayden was ring bearer.

Nuptial music was provided by pianist Eddie Hobgood and soloists Mrs. Eddie Hobgood and Mrs. Rick Langley.

Mrs. Paul Wells of Tarboro, aunt of the bridegroom, was in charge of the reception. The table was decorated with silver candelabras and a flower arrangement of yellow carnations, white and yellow pom pons and purple statice. Mrs. Eli Williford, aunt of the bride from Rock Hill, S. C., and Mrs. Jack Brazzell, aunt of the bride from Ft. Mill, S. C., assisted with the serving. Mrs. Sandra Loftin presided at the guest register.

Mrs. William Williford, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip to Wilmington, the couple will reside at Rt. 4, Greenville. The couple are both employed with Garner-Wynnne-Manning. The bride is a graduate of Rose High School. The bridegroom attended school in Pender County.

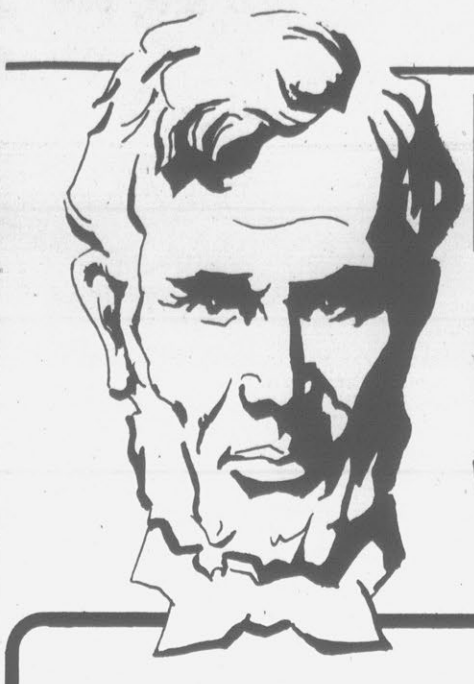

Major and Mrs. Arnold Williford, parents of the bride, entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests with a buffet luncheon on the day of the wedding at the Salvation Army Citadel. The bride and bridegroom presented gifts to their attendants.

Engagement Announced

MISS DEBRA SUE VANDIFORD. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Earl Vandiford of Rt. 1, Ayden, who announce her engagement to the Rev. Gary V. Page, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Garvin Page of Baxley, Ga. The wedding will take place March 11.

Eyeliner Brown Used For Valentine Message

By JO HARING
For The Associated Press

To My Valentine:

Sir: Roses may be red and violets may be blue, but this Valentine is done in eyeliner brown because the kids made off with all the pencils, the only functioning ballpoint pen went through the laundry and the dog ate all the crayons.

I had in mind to run out and buy you a silly, extravagant Valentine present, but I've mislaid the car keys.

Besides, the only cash in the house is locked up tight in a fail-safe piggy bank, under layers of dirty clothes in No. 1 son's closet.

Then I felt inspired, my love, to write you a romantic verse in celebration of all these Valentine Days together, all trimmed in hearts and flowers and lacy doo-dads.

But the only decorative items I could lay my hands on were the collection of tab tops in No. 2 son's room and an assortment of toothpaste caps in the bathroom medicine cabinet.

I might have gone ahead with the verse, but I couldn't figure out a rhyme for Valentine, breadwinner, dead battery or Super Bowl. And I think somebody took my rhyming dictionary off to school to use as a prop for a play.

If I weren't all out of cake mix, I'd bake you a cake. I mean I would if No. 3 boy had not used our heart-shaped pan to house the turtle he won at the fair last week.

Anyway, there's no red food coloring for the icing because No. 1 boy used it all up to decorate the title page of his social studies report.

Anyway, my love, I did want you to know that I was thinking of you this Valentine's Day and to assure you that my feelings for you are deeper now than ever before, even though I long ago discovered that your feet of clay come equipped with sharp toenails that rip through the toes of socks and thin sheets.

And I felt like I should figure out some way to show my love.

So this is to inform you that in commemoration of this day of love I have done the following in your honor:

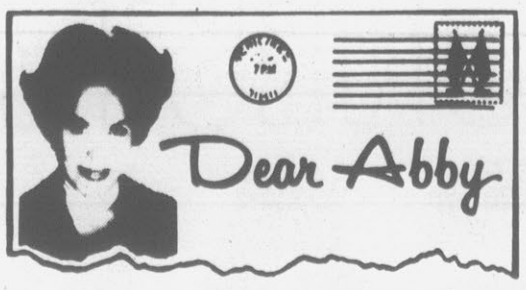

I replaced the buttons on two shirts.

I mended your tennis shorts.

I cleaned out your sock drawer.

And I fixed the pockets in three pairs of trousers.

What more can I do
To show my love for you?

No Wedding Bells, No Wedding Bills

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Karla, is 20, and Bill, her boyfriend, is 22. They've gone together for nearly two years and have just announced that they plan to live together for about a year. Then, if they are compatible, they'll get married.

Bill's parents seem to approve of this, but I do not. I think it's immoral and that they would be living in sin. My husband doesn't really approve of the idea, but says if it doesn't work out it will be easier on Karla than a divorce.

Abby, I say if Karla and Bill love each other and want to live together they should get married now! Karla is the youngest of three daughters. Her sisters both had beautiful church weddings without any "compatibility tests" beforehand, and they are happily married. I promised Karla a lovely church wedding, too, but told her if she lives with Bill for a year, a wedding would be a mockery, and not to expect us to give her one. Am I wrong to feel this way?

SYRACUSE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You are entitled to feel any way you wish, but children who are of age (and self-supporting) have a right to determine their own lifestyles. If you believe a church wedding would be a mockery, it's your right to refuse to foot the bill for one.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you whose name should be listed first, the man's or woman's, when couples sign something. You said "Ladies first," but I think the reverse is true.

I've made a list of some famous couples, and found many more in which the man's name comes first. Examples:

Adam and Eve
Romeo and Juliet
Sonny and Cher
Napoleon and Josephine
Donny and Marie
Anthony and Cleopatra
William and Mary (the college)
Punch and Judy
Burns and Allen
Jack and Jill

On the other hand, I could come up with very few famous couples in which the woman's name is mentioned first. Namely:

Bonnie and Clyde
Frankie and Johnny
Maggie and Jiggs
How come?

ED IN VAN NUYS

DEAR ED: When you're right, you're right. Beats me. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: This is not a prank. I have heard there is a place in Texas where I could send cremated ashes to be made into pottery. If there is such a place, one's ashes would not have to be kept in a container and possibly lost.

My husband and I plan to be cremated, and this would be an ideal solution for our remains.

Can you help us, please?

MAKING PLANS

DEAR MAKING: I am not aware of such a place. But if one exists, I'll surely be advised.

Leafy parts of collard greens, turnip greens and kale have much more vitamin A content than their stems or midribs.

What's Cooking For Valentine's Day?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When Valentine Day comes around, decorative cookery abounds.

The avid cake decorators — their number is large — go to town. Chances are they've taken cake-decorating lessons, have a book or two on the subject and are skillful with decorating tubes.

The rest of us can enjoy simpler devices: inexpensive cutters and molds. Heart-shaped cutters are fun to use to garnish dishes for Valentine parties as well as those for bridal showers and wedding anniversaries. Heart-shaped molds turn out pretty salads and desserts for similar occasions.

First the cutters. Sets of canape cutters always include a heart shape along with other designs. The cutters in a set vary in size and number. One of my sets, from Italy, has a dozen tiny cutters, each about ½ inch across and ¾ inch tall. My other set, labeled "aspic and hors d'oeuvre cutters," comes from England; it also has a dozen shapes, but each is about 1 inch across and 1 inch tall.

Another set is shown in "The Cook's Catalogue" (Random House). It comes from Scandinavia and has half a dozen shapes — heart, circle, diamond, square, crescent and paisley-like teardrop. Each shape is 1 inch tall and described as "tiny." Like mine, these cutters are tinned steel and have sharp cutting edges and rolled rims.

I use the heart-shaped canape cutters to make bright, decorative garnishes from canned pimientos and roasted sweet red peppers. These have many uses for lunch and supper dishes for Valentine parties. For example, they can garnish a molded fish salad, a sliced chicken or turkey platter, and such vegetable offerings as stuffed potatoes and creamed cauliflower. You can also use them for garnishing open sandwiches made with cheese spreads.

Now to cookie cutters. The heart shapes come giant-sized (about 4½ inches) or regular-sized (2 to 3 inches); the latter may have straight or scalloped edges. They may come singly or in sets with other designs. For a Valentine party you can use them for cutting out butter cookies. I like to sandwich the regular-sized baked cookies with a filling of pure fruit preserves, choosing those made from red currants, cherries, strawberries or raspberries for a pretty Valentine effect.

The heart-shaped cookie cutters also make choice chocolate hearts with which to decorate strawberry or cherry ice cream or raspberry sherbet. For these, semi-sweet chocolate is melted with a little shortening or butter and then spread on wax paper and allowed to set. Before the chocolate gets really firm, the hearts are cut out.

Now to the molds. Mine are individual size, each holding a generous 1-3rd cup. For Valentine parties I have filled them with rhubarb mousse or coconut Spanish cream and served them with defrosted frozen strawberries or raspberries. The molds are also fine to use for cranberry gelatin salads.

All these suggestions make for attractive Valentine decorating, but none of them calls for the red coloring or maraschino cherries that are now nutritionally taboo.

Heat rises, so if your radiators and hot air registers are dirty, that dirt will rise too and then rain down on your furniture. Your vacuum cleaner's crevice tool will reach into the narrow spaces of a radiator and the dusting brush will make short work of dirty registers and gratings.

A Cupid Has Sweet Tooth

NEW YORK (AP) — When he popped the question recently, Jesse Slome took into consideration the fact that both he and his bride-to-be, Dotty Grant, were crazy about Chinese food and soft ice cream.

The proposal took place in a Chinese restaurant where 14 guests watched as a beaming waiter brought out a heart-shaped, ice-cream cake inscribed in red with "Dotty, I love you! Will you marry me?"

Slome, 26-year-old public relations account executive, said he had considered other ways to propose to his 25-year-old fiance, including "skywriting, dozens of roses dropped from a plane and a filmed proposal." Miss Grant, an art director for a publishing company, shouted out a loud "Yes" before slicing into the chocolate and vanilla cake.

WORKSHOPS EXPLORE FLEECE AND FLAX

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — Participants in a recent workshop conducted by The Museums at Stony Brook learned firsthand how raw fleece was turned into clothing and bedding during America's colonial days.

Those taking part washed the fleece, carded, spun and wove it, becoming acquainted with such early implements as wool cards, wool winders, drop spindles and spinning wheels.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Lib Layne and Janey Ferguson are serving as co-chairmen of this year's Charity Ball, sponsored by the Greenville Service League to benefit the Laughinghouse Hospital Fund.

The fund helps patients in need and provides funds to improve physical facilities at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The theme of the ball is "Over the Rainbow" and will provide ball patrons and guests a trip down the yellow brick road. The ball will be staged Friday, Feb. 23, at the Greenville Golf and Country Club with music for dancing to be provided by Burt Massengale's Orchestra.

Lib and Frank Layne, (a retired officer of Wachovia Bank), are the parents of a son and daughter. Lib is a reading specialist and a part-time teacher. Her hobbies are related with community services.

She is a past president of the Greenville Jaycettes and of the N. C. Symphony Membership Drive. She was speaker-information director of the local Heart Fund for four years.

A native of Knoxville, Tenn., Janey is a graduate of the University of Tennessee. She is married to Dr. A. L. Ferguson and they have two sons.

She has served on the Administrative Board of St. James United Methodist Church, the United Methodist Women and on the Advisory Board to the N. C. Council of Theatre Arts. Her hobbies include arts and crafts and dancing. She is presently serving as a Cub Scout den mother.

Lib and Janey are being assisted by the following chairmen: bandstand, Mrs. Jack Whichard and Mrs. Eddie Smith; buffet table, Mrs. Norwood Whitehurst; cleanup, Mrs. Sam Price; driveway, . C. L. Lupton and Mrs. Thomas Mallison; fiance, Mrs. Jack Bryant; food, Mrs. Ercell Webb, Mrs. Ray Minges and Mrs. Leon Moore;

Tips On Combining Family, Job

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Working women whose other roles include those of mother, wife and housekeeper need all the help they can get, believes Barbara Kaye Greenleaf, a working mother herself who has set out to give other women that help.

The number of U.S. working mothers with children under age 18 is approaching 16 million, and 40 percent of women with children under the age of 6 are working, says Ms. Greenleaf, who with pediatrician Dr. Lewis Schaffer has just written a book, "HELP: A Handbook for Working Mothers."

"Unfortunately, when a woman sets off to work she doesn't exchange the office for the home; she adds the office to the home and is chronically fatigued," she said in an interview.

"That leaves her cranky and impatient with her kids at night. But it's the mother who suffers most, since studies show the child is not shortchanged when the mother works."

There are advantages as well as disadvantages for the family in which the mother works, she points out. One major gain is that the salary the mother brings into the house can lift the family above the poverty level, reducing tension caused by lack of money.

"The children get a sense of independence and kids who have working mothers have a less stereotyped view of what a mother is." Ms. Greenleaf adds. "There is a correlation between a mother's mental health and her children's mental health, and their chances of being on an even emotional keel are improved when the mother has self-esteem and feelings of satisfaction stemming from her job."

To lessen the impact of a mother's going back to work, Ms. Greenleaf advises that children be carefully briefed in advance, "being as complete and definite as you can within the limits of the child's understanding. The younger the child, the closer to the event you tell him or her.

"I would include the kids in the celebration of getting a job," she says. "Take them on a tour of the new premises if possible; show them where you'll be sitting so they visualize where you are; tell them the arrangements made for their welfare. Be as positive and upbeat as possible — children take their cues from their mother."

She suggests preparing for possible illness of the child: get the medicine cabinet stocked; have a good rapport with your doctor; leave a notarized letter authorizing any necessary treatment; have a list of specially qualified sitters, such as unemployed teachers, or know schedules of relatives who can be relied on in an emergency. Sometimes, she notes, women save up their vacation days so they can stay home.

In the area of housework, a woman has to make a tradeoff, buying precious leisure for the price of her home's not meeting previous standards, says Ms. Greenleaf, who conducts seminars for women employees in business and government on how to cope with a family and a job.

"Despite all the publicity about how fathers are pitching in, the mother is still the psychological parent and psychological housekeeper," she says. "It's assumed the house and kids are her responsibility, though younger fathers seem to be taking more of a hand with the kids.

"I consider us the interim generation," she says. "Our mothers did not expect to work; our daughters expect to work and not to suffer for it; we work but expect to pay a high price."

She believes in a "fair but firm" stand on help from the husband. To achieve this, she suggests making a list of the wife's chores — "for which she'll probably need a scroll from a California redwood" — and a list of the husband's chores — "for which she'll probably need only a gum wrapper."

"Ask him to compare the lists and maybe he'll take some over," she says.

In any case, her rules for organizing the household include: throw out 20 percent of everything; put items near where they are used; leave as much out in view as you can stand; make a permanent place for things and return them there so you'll know where they are; experiment with schedules and systems.

Ms. Greenleaf carries a little black looseleaf notebook, with sections labeled for appointments, a daily to-do list, notes concerning husband and children, work and food. "This is my bible, my liaison between office and home," she says.

Ms. Greenleaf, who is in her early 30s, lives in Armonk, N.Y., with daughters aged 6 and 10 and her husband, an advertising executive, who "is a terrific baby sitter, does the marketing, sews on buttons, bakes cakes and pitches in wherever needed."

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEB. 11, 1979

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Daytime is fine for using good judgment and energies in contructive and worthwhile directions. You can get into considerable difficulties if you make any dramatic changes or upset plans made with others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good time to come to better terms with those who are most important in your life. Activity during the day should be balanced with rest and relaxation in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Anything you want to do at home needs a new approach during day and you get good results. A new interest you have should be studied also.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy at regular chores and get everything in fine order. Listen to suggestions of good friends and follow them. Take no risks where money or driving is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get into the good graces of those who are experts where finances are concerned. Then use this knowledge to better your own station in life.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go after personal aims in a more positive way and gain them easily. Get together with persons you are fond of. Think how to make the future brighter, more interesting.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make that plan confidentally that concerns the one you love most, and increase happiness. Don't tackle any important deals now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A generous pal will cooperate with you on an important plan if you contact early. Attending a social gathering could be profitable for you. Drive carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study into your most fundamental aims and know how best to gain them. Later be social and have fun. Avoid arguments or confrontations of any kind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get out and see those who can best aid you in your finest aims. Gain the favor of those upon whom you have come to depend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Seek out the company of clever persons and learn much from them. Make as many new and worthwhile contacts as you can.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listen to the aims of partners and assist them as much as you can and they will do likewise with you. A good day for reconciling with those who have had differences of opinion.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Tap your subconscious for answers to puzzles and get good results. Show more devotion for loved ones and increase mutual happiness.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, FEB. 12, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today brings a temptation to change conditions that have not completely served their purposes, so make a point to think over what you can do to be more effective in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Your mate and your friends have differing views today, so keep silent for best results. Handle business matters wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to handle any civic duties wisely and well today and gain the respect of others. Don't jeopardize your good name in any way.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have good ideas and novel methods for handling routines now, so don't fail to use them. Your intuition is accurate now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your assets and liabilities well so you know just where you stand financially. Be logical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You could lose your temper with one whose views are different from yours, but listen and come to a fine meeting of the minds.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't try to run away from a moral obligation that should not be avoided. Steer clear of unwanted temptations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Permit an associate to state own views if you want to gain this person's favor. Take no chances with your reputation at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study conditions in business so you will know what course of action to take. Act in a positive, but not hastily manner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show others that you are more concerned with the ethical side of life than the practical. Sidestep an opponent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It is important to build a greater financial reverse before going ahead with a new project. Show others you are a thinker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you don't renege on any agreements you have made. Avoid one who is suspicious of you without due cause.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't waste any time attending to important duties today. Make plans to have greater prosperity in the days ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have the ability to whittle down a difficult problem to a practical level. There is a fine balance of mind and physical activity in this chart. Teach to be objective and stress humanitarianism for best results.

War Waged On Tiny Bird

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The old saw that when you eat like a bird you eat very little doesn't hold much water in this East African country these days.

The tiny quelea bird, the size of a small sparrow and weighing only an ounce or two, is found by the millions in Africa and has become a serious threat to food production in Tanzania. Despite the government's efforts to grow more food crops, such as millet and sorghum, an estimated 20-30 percent of each year's crop is lost to the predators.

Various methods have been tried in the past to control the queleas. They have ranged from the laying of protective nets over crop fields, to attacking the birds in their nests by chopping off the branches or burning down the trees, or setting off explosives to shock and kill the birds.

One common method is to gather adults and children in the fields to scare the birds away by shouting and making noises.

The most effective method of control, however, has proved to be chemical spraying from the air. The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, at the request of the Tanzanian government, is assisting the project by training pilots, engineers and other personnel in aerial chemical-spraying techniques and in the repair and maintenance of aircraft and equipment.

Conservationists point out that the Tanzanian extermination operation does not pose any threat to the species itself, which is one of the world's most numerous.

Island's Owner Plans To Develop His Own Nation

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — You may snicker now, but Herbert Williams, a man who has grown immune to skepticism, says they'll be flocking to his Rio Grande Island when the casinos open.

The 68-year-old retired Air Force colonel says he'll soon establish Cherokee Nation — an independent country on an island in the muddy waters that separate the United States and Mexico.

And where on the 180-acre oval island will the casinos be?

Probably not far from the international banks, which will be close to the television station, over by the university, near the office of ship registry, down the block from the high-rise condominiums.

Those plush condos, of course, will be set apart from the hustle and bustle of the nation's first industry — a flying-machine factory.

"It's certainly going to happen," Williamson, who claims to be part Cherokee, said at his Brownsville apartment.

The island, south of Los Indios in Cameron County, was "created by an act of God" — just like Williams' official letterhead says. When Hurricane Beulah blew through in 1967, it sent the river flowing over a strip of land that once connected the island to the United States leaving a new island in the Rio Grande.

"Both countries only claim to the middle of the river," the Kenedy, Texas, native said. "This is a big tract. Not something a turtle would get up on."

Williams and a few friends bought the island. Now, with several legal battles behind him and maybe more ahead, Williams says his dream nation is drawing near to reality.

"It'll be just like Texas was 100 years ago," Williams said.

Except, of course, for the tax-shelter banks, the gambling and the flying-machine factory.

Williams says the nation's initial revenue may come from a Seattle firm that makes Flash Gordon-like one-man flying contraptions. He says it plans to move part of its operation to Cherokee Nation.

The planned bank would allow U.S. citizens to sidestep the taxman.

"I had a couple of doctors who hate lawyers with a passion. They came down from the west and they're interested in putting in a bank of their own," Williams said.

The multi-story condos would help rich Americans avoid inheritance taxes, Williams added.

The ship-registry idea is aimed at drawing business from Liberia — where ships have been registering for years to avoid high registration costs elsewhere.

But in the long run it might be the gambling that makes Cherokee Nation. Nick Malant, a Brownsville attorney representing Williams, said it would not be hard to get "Las Vegas money" interested in the island.

Williams says the gambling would be watched over by the island's government — a democracy based on "Americanism."

"We'll set up our own cabinet and have ambassadors. We'll print our own money," he said. "But the big purpose is that we'll put in an international television station and hook it up to Telstar and broadcast all over the United States and Mexico."

While Williams and friends are spending much time setting up Cherokee Nation, U.S. officials seem unconcerned.

A State Department lawyer in Washington said starting a nation might not be as simple as Williams thought. The lawyer said Cherokee Nation leaders would probably find themselves in court if and when the casinos opened and if the country issued passports.

Even Malant agrees that starting a country is somewhat of an unknown procedure.

"The only way I've seen it done is by force of arms against another government," he said.

Hugh Calvert, an engineer with the International Boundary and Water Commission, said the land was not a true island. Calvert said it was connected to Mexico by a small strip of land. But Williams said that strip had been built by a man who claimed he owned the land. He also said he had already won that battle in the Mexican courts.

VICA Contest Set March 2

KINSTON — About 1,000 high school students from 35 school systems in 13 southeastern North Carolina counties will attend the District 2 contest eliminations for VICA (Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America) to be held at Lenoir Community College Friday, March 2.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. in the College Union. Morning sessions will include impromptu speaking, conducting meetings, and other administrative and parliamentary processes.

Ten different skills contests will be judged from 1 to 4 p.m. to involve carpentry, masonry, auto mechanics, small engine repairs, architectural drafting, mechanical drafting, graphics, construction wiring, electronics and welding.

Supper will be in the College Union with the final general session to be held from 6 to 7:15 p.m.

Singer-actor Dean Martin was born in 1917.

Meeting Marks Bicycle Week

RALEIGH — Plans for "North Carolina Bicycle Week" and local bicycle safety programs are among the topics to be discussed at the N. C. Bicycle Committee meeting in Winston-Salem at 9 a.m. Feb. 16 in the aldermen's council chambers at city hall.

Among items up for discussion is the structure of a new bicycle facility design manual which will detail and incorporate new bicycle policies.

Onetime Dropouts Welcome As New Pioneers

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

MYRA, W.Va. (AP) — When John Williamson came back to this part of southern West Virginia for a visit last summer, he just couldn't believe his eyes.

"Where is everybody?" he asked.

Then, in response to his own question, he replied in a voice filled with wonder: "They're all out looking for work. I don't understand it. Nobody wants food stamps anymore. They all want jobs."

A native of Indiana, Williamson came to Lincoln County during the early '70s. Like many of the "new pioneers," he bought a small parcel of land back in the hills and built a log home. Like many of his fellow travelers, he stayed a few years, then moved on.

Hundreds of young people have wandered through this rural Appalachian county in this decade, fugitives from the '60s and the cities. They were drawn by tales of low-priced land and a desire to live simply in a freer environment.

When they first arrived, they were viewed with some suspicion and much alarm by many of the farm folk.

Much of the suspicion melted as time went by, however. And before long, the older, indigenous Appalachian residents began to share ideas with the young pilgrims from the cities.

In some ways, these newcomers became the surrogate children of the old folks, whose own children had long ago gone off to seek their fortunes amid the bright urban lights.

A large percentage of the newcomers moved on, sooner or later. But those who stayed have dug in. Many have reached their 30s and have begun to raise families. And they've also begun to come down out of the hills. As a result, many of these men and women, once derisively dubbed "dropouts," are beginning to make real contributions to the quality of life here.

Arnie Burdick is a typical example. After several years of homesteading and working sporadically, the young New York City native recently opened a dental office in Hamlin, thus doubling the county's number of practicing dentists.

"I took the plunge," he said, referring to the bank loan he used to finance his equipment and furnish the office. "I felt it was time to do something and I'd practiced dentistry before but I'd never had my own office."

Burdick got his degree at Howard University in Washington, D.C. He came to West Virginia several years ago via the National Health Service Corps and quickly bought an old farm.

After working for a while at a clinic about 40 miles away, he was laid off and drew unemployment insurance for nearly a year. A few months ago, he and his wife, Linda, had a child.

Why are so many of the new pioneers starting to look for regular jobs?

"I don't know," says Burdick. "Maybe everybody's partied out. And then, lots of people have kids now and that's an important factor."

While Arnie Burdick spends his days taking care of his patients' teeth, Jeannie Schneider spends hers taking care of several children at her day care home in one side of an old, converted store building near Griffithsville. A friendly woman who grew up in Ohio, she came here in the early '70s as a homesteader. But after building a cabin and growing her own food for a couple of years, she and some friends began what they called "a food conspiracy."

Since those days, when they surreptitiously sold grains and cereals from the back of a truck, the so-called conspiracy has become a bona fide, licensed food co-op. Located in the other half of the store, the co-op now boasts dozens of members and provides a variety of healthy foods at wholesale prices.

Not all the newcomers have gotten into community service or dentistry, however. Some, Like Pete Shew and Margie Sayles, have been content to stay at home and become self-sufficient.

"At first it was a fight just to survive," recalled Margie, who, like her husband, hails from upstate New York. "But we have made a lot of changes around here since then."

When she and Pete first moved onto their remote, hillside farm they lived in a ramshackle lean-to. Today, they have a snug log cabin complete with such modern niceties as electricity and a television set, which they put in the room above their root cellar.

"Margie won't let Pete bring the thing into the house," jokes Henry Baker, a lifelong Lincoln Countian, who was instrumental in helping many of the newcomers find land and horses and farm equipment.

These days, many of the Lincoln Countians are also interested in politics.

This was apparent last summer when West Virginia Natural Resources Director David Callaghan conducted a hearing on whether to permit strip mining in the county.

More than 300 of the newcomers showed up to testify against the proposal. And, to the surprise of the strip miners, the young people were joined by a like number of older, indigenous residents. After hearing five hours of testimony from this indignant coalition, Callaghan ruled against the strip miners.

"We couldn't have done it without those young people," said a beaming Henry Baker. "They're the best thing that's happened around here in years."

Reflecting On Einstein Genius

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

He looked at his teachers resentfully as sergeants and lieutenants. True, he was brilliant. But he could not bend to the discipline of the lecture room and leaned on a close friend for class notes.

Years later he compared himself with that dutiful friend.

"He was the irreproachable student, I myself disorderly and a dreamer. He on good terms with the teachers and understanding everything, I a pariah, discontented and little loved ... Then the end of our studies — I was suddenly abandoned by everyone, standing at a loss on the threshold of life."

It hardly sounds like the man who would open the eyes of the world to a new notion of space and time, to the idea that energy and mass cannot be created or destroyed, but only transmuted from one form to another. Nor does it sound like the man whose thoughts would reach deep into the subatomic world and the universe at the same time.

This is the 100th anniversary of Albert Einstein's birth. More than 50 celebrations are planned from Ulm, Germany, his birthplace and were he was once excoriated, to India, from New York to Switzerland. He died at 76 and was cremated.

Einstein resented authority. He reached beyond the conclusions of others to the experimental work that led to those conclusions. Then he leaped far ahead to new theory. His genius may have been as simple as rejecting past prejudice. Or it may have been as complicated as seeing beyond common reality to abstractions hardly anyone else could see.

Einstein's school record reflected his attitude toward the pedants who did the teaching. One teacher told the 15-year-old Einstein, "Your very presence spoils the respect of the class for me." He preserved that respect by dropping out.

He applied — without a high-school diploma — to the Federal Institute of Technology in Zurich, Switzerland, and failed the entrance examination. But he acknowledged there was a price to be paid for pursuing his curiosity in physics and mathematics, and enrolled in a high school to catch up. At length he graduated from high school and the Federal Institute.

After a few odd jobs, he became an examiner of applications in the Swiss patent office in Bern. It was not exactly what he wanted, but it provided him with a lot of free time to examine his ideas about wave theories, light and the relationship of energy to mass.

He would later remember the patent office as "that secular cloister where I hatched my most beautiful ideas."

Those beautiful ideas did not find instant acceptance when published in 1905. As late as 1916, he wrote a colleague:

"Although for the moment the theory has many opponents the following fact consoles me: the general thinking capacity of its supporters entirely eclipses that of its opponents."

In a letter to a student, he wrote, "There is a very peculiar thing about scientific effort: Often it is merely a matter of seeing where it is not necessary to waste time and effort. On the other hand one must not go after goals which are easy to reach. One must try to get an instinct for what is still attainable by the utmost effort."

The celebrity that followed his pronouncements of special and general relativity and his famous E Equals MC Squared, even his 1921 Nobel prize, were burdens to Einstein.

He also wrote, "The only way to escape the personal corruption of praise is to go on working. One is tempted to stop and listen to it, The only thing is to turn away and go on working. Work. There is nothing else."

The emergences of the special relativity theory in 1905 and of general relativity theory in 1916 were revolutionary. But physicists today point out that special relativity rescued classical physics by making it consistent with the known properties of light.

In his book, "Physics For Poets," Professor Robert March wrote: "Though Einstein's genius was quickly recognized and rewarded, relativity took a long time to gain truly general acceptance. This was particularly true in English-speaking nations, which have had a pragmatic style in physics that sometimes leads to a distrust of theoretical physics in general."

In general relativity, Einstein sought to analyze light as seen by moving and accelerating observers. He also sought to bring gravitation into play.

"The end result," wrote March, "was a complete reformulation of mechanics in which the concept of force, for all intents and purposes, disappears altogether. Instead, the action of fields is to destroy the very fabric of space itself, until a straight line is no longer the shortest path between two points."

For all of his reticence, Einstein spoke up on social and political issues of his times. With the rise of the Nazi party, he defended other academics in German courts. In 1933, with Hitler in power, Einstein fled Germany.

In the United States, he lent his prestige and his signature to a letter to President Franklin D. Roosevelt urging a program to develop an atomic bomb before the Germans could.

Yet his last public act before his death was to join with Bertrand Russell and others in an effort to ban nuclear weapons.

His religion was the mystery of the unknown. One can almost sense him rummaging through the pockets of his baggy sweater or through his desk drawer, searching for answers. He wrote:

"I cannot conceive of a God who rewards and punishes his creatures, or has a will of the kind that we experience in ourselves.

"I am satisfied with the mystery of the eternity of life and with the awareness and a glimpse of the marvelous structure of the existing world, together with the devoted striving to comprehend a portion, be it ever so tiny, of the Reason that manifests itself in nature."

Polynesian Culture Preserved At Hawaiian Center

LAIE, Hawaii (AP) — More than a million tourists visited the Polynesian Cultural Center last year and, though they went to be entertained, most came away with a new understanding of the island people.

Set on 42 acres in Laie on Oahu, about 40 miles from Honolulu, the center's seven villages re-create the cultures that once dominated the lives of islanders on Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand, Samoa, Tahiti, the Marquesas Islands and Tonga.

Coconut palms and flamboyant shrubs, the beating of drums, musical chants and the sound of conch shells add to the ambience. To simulate the isolation of an island, waterways fed by natural artesian wells cut around the villages, which are connected by bridges.

Tourists have a choice of three ways of touring the villages: a land trip in an open-sided tram, which stops at each "island," where a guide tells the story of the village; a guided half-hour canoe ride via canal; a land trip on foot, with or without a guide, which offers the closest involvement with the cultures the islands portray.

As visitors enter each village, they are greeted by islanders with traditional salutations from their respective homelands — "aloha," "bula vinaka," "talofa" and "male-e-lelei."

Tourists are encouraged to take part in demonstrations of food preparation, arts, crafts, games, music and dances given in the village homes. Many don grass skirts to learn the Tahitian otea; some get involved in stickball and others with the native Hawaiian checker game, konane.

Craftsmen from the islands represented, while teaching students who work at the center, show tourists how to weave mats, baskets, fans and toy birds from the leaves of the coconut palm; the Hawaiian way to make quilts; how the Fijians make pottery, and how to split a coconut for milk.

Cooking demonstrations show how islanders use native foods such as taro, breadfruit, bananas and coconuts, fresh-caught fish, chickens and pigs, and how to make poi. For serious sampling of Polynesian dishes, visitors go to one of the two restaurants at the center.

In addition to the music and dancing at various villages, the center presents three shows daily. A noon event combines rhythm and humor as it traces the evolution of island music and dancing, and describes the influence of the British and Americans on island history.

The Polynesian Cultural Center, one of Hawaii's most popular tourist attractions, is a non-profit educational and cultural facility. Started 12 years ago by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the center was developed with two goals in mind, according to its general manager, William H. Cravens.

One was to portray, preserve an perpetuate the arts and crafts of Polynesia; the second was the creation of jobs and scholarship funds for Polynesian students attending the nearby Hawaiian campus of Brigham Young University.

"On many of the islands in Polynesia, advanced technology is destroying old traditions and culture," Cravens explains. "Ways of doing things that used to be passed from the older to the younger generations are being lost."

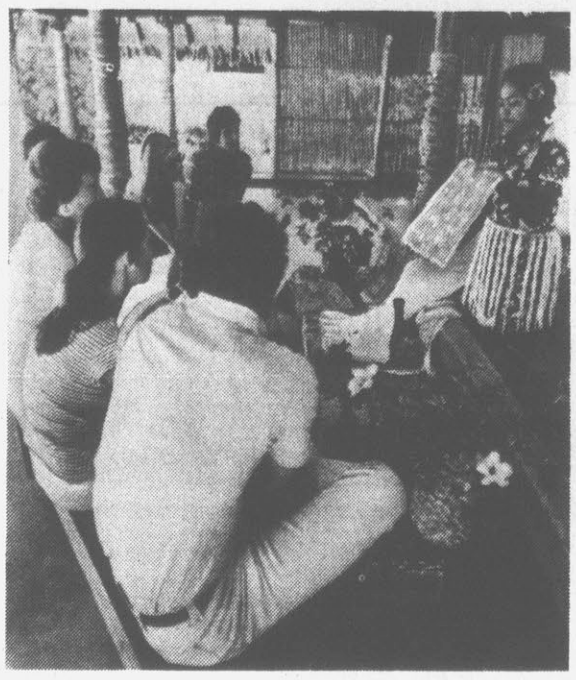

Before the center opened, the BYU students in need of funds had to travel to outlying islands to work in cane and pineapple fields. Now they work 20 hours a week at the center, demonstrating crafts, games and dances from their homelands. After graduation, they return to their home islands to share newly developed skills and knowledge with others.

For many, learning their own cultural heritage is a new experience.

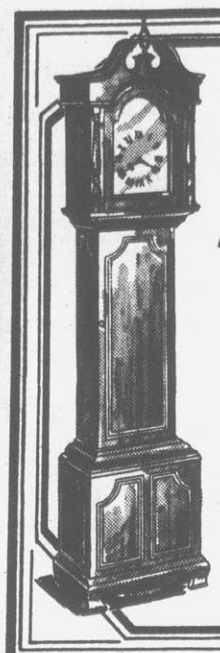

"Some of the traditional songs and crafts have almost disappeared from the islands," Cravens says. "We have located remaining craftsmen and brought them to the center to teach."

Student-guide Steve Lalulu sees the shows and demonstrations as "a real challenge to make visitors look at the Polynesian people not as an oddity but as an interesting group with a rich heritage.

"One of the things other countries could learn from the people of Polynesia is our feeling for family," he adds. "Although children grow up, marry and go away, they never lose their respect for their families and most major decisions are made on the family basis. I plan to pass this tradition on to my own family."

A fantasy of roots demonstrates nature's recuperative powers as a young tree envelops a decaying stump.

Photographs By Jerry Raynor

Our Forests In Winter

A touch of green when trees are winter gray is provided by holly, as well as pine, cedar and myrtles.

Romantic, brooding, mysterious — Spanish moss is common to swampy areas of the South.

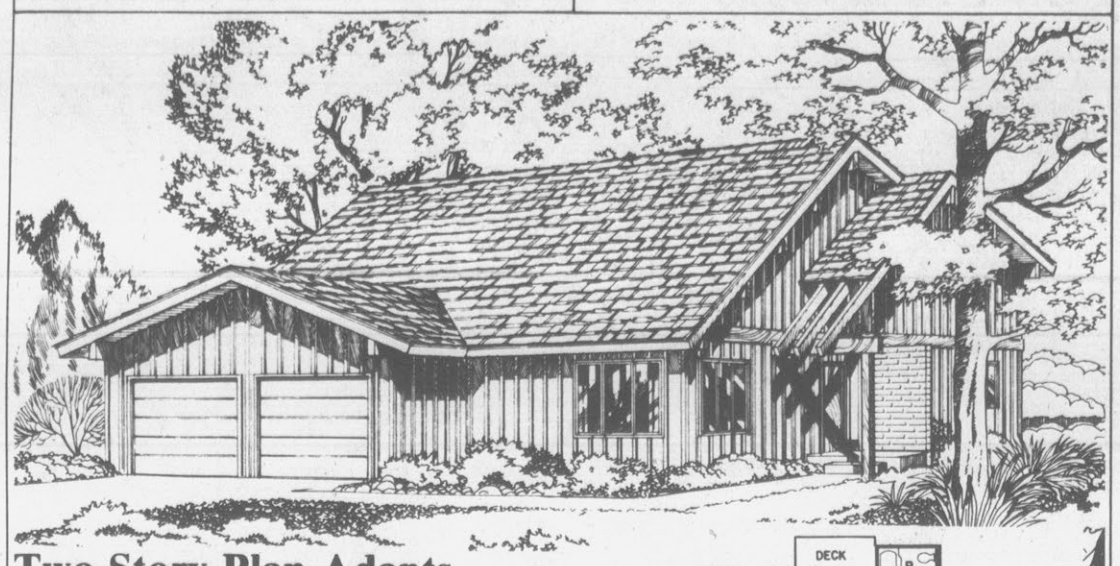

Fragility and sturdiness are exemplified in the frost-like growth appearing on a decaying log and a cluster of roots snuggling together as if hibernating for the cold season.

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Hayden

Two Story Plan Adapts

By Jerry Bishop

Totally contemporary, the Hayden, a two story home, offers formal areas for entertaining, informal areas for family living, and the space and privacy that a growing family demands.

In all, three bedrooms and two full baths, plus a combination bath and laundry, are shown. A great room and dining room are suited to entertaining, and the family room and eat-in kitchen are geared to everyday use.

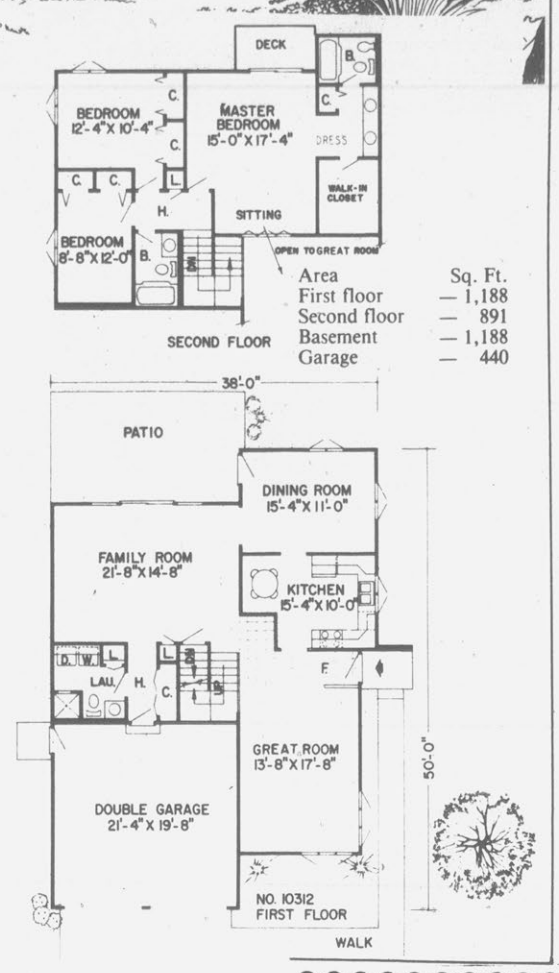

The facade of the Hayden is a contemporary blend of vertical siding and glass with a touch of brick. Prominently set at one side, a double garage is placed for convenience and allows entry into the family room.

The main entry of the design is into a tiled foyer, with the great room emerging at left. Airy and attractive, the great room can accommodate intimate groups or large parties with equal ease.

To the right of the foyer, a U-shaped kitchen joins a cozy family dining niche, while at rear, a 15-ft. dining room stands ready for dinner parties.

Extending over 21-ft. in length, the expansive family room merits sliding glass doors to the patio at rear and borders a combined bath and laundry. The coat closet near the garage entry is a convenience.

Bedrooms occupy the upper level of the home and are dominated by the 17-ft. master bedroom with its sitting area overlooking the great room. The master bedroom also boasts a private bath, dressing area, and walk-in closet plus sliding glass doors to its own deck.

Tradition Rules Trend In Chinaware Exposition

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures

The China and Glass Show selected casino-famous Atlantic City for its recent exposition and confidently placed its chips on the traditional look, in soft colors and refined patterns.

Next to weather forecasting, trying to predict how the nation's homemakers will respond to the new fashions in tableware can be as chancy as playing roulette. But exhibitors were hoping to put their money on the right number.

"Brides are returning to the traditional gold border," says Jack McDermott at a preview for Richard-Ginori. "They're turning back to their mother's times. It's not like the uproarious '60s and the early '70s when they were turning their backs on material things.

"We know from sales reports and reports from retail stores that there is a turn in this direction."

Nostalgia and romance were cited by a Lenox representative who takes the same view. She expects a new design featuring stylized florals in a Victorian mood to be very popular. Its pattern is composed of dusty shades of rose, mulberry, yellow, blue and green with touches of white. On a fluted-border temple shape, the design is accented by a circle of 24-karat gold on the verge.

Also unveiled at Atlantic City was the first edition of Bing and Grondahl's Explorer series mugs. Executed in porcelain with underglaze graduations of blue, the 5-inch mug is embossed with an authentically detailed reproduction of Christopher Columbus' flagship, the Santa Maria.

The 244-year-old Ginori firm introduced an earthenware line of four styles. One style presents a modified coupe-shaped body in beige, encircled by a rich chocolate band and a band of cafe au lait.

For a younger consumer, a set is styled in a provincial rim shape, hand-painted with country flowers. A third features red and blue dots on the plate and cup, with the same colors repeated in stripes on the saucer. The fourth, in a white, textured, rim shape, is decorated with a traditional floral design.

New designs were introduced also in modern china and fine china collections, in addition to a dramatic re-issue. After generations of repose in its archives, the firm brought out the Capodimonte porcelain figurine, "Lady with Bird Cage."

Capodimonte is a small community outside Naples where King Carlo III established a porcelain works in 1743. When the factory closed its doors ii 1821, Ginori, founded in 1735, bought its molds.

How household budgets will accommodate the show's innovations remains to be seen. Prices will generally average 10 percent higher, says Dr. Franz Aliquo, general manager of Ginori, because of "currency fluctuation and the rising costs of materials, production and transportation."

Then, turning to a happier subject, Aliquo discussed the function of tableware. He is a connoisseur of Sicily's regional cuisine and, while on this side of the Atlantic, he confides that he cooks his favorite dishes, himself.

He said he hadn't found any authentic Sicilian restaurants in New York City — "Most are Northern Italian or Neapolitan."

"There is not one simple typical recipe in Sicilian food," he says. "Some have Arabian and Spanish influence, reflecting the dominations Sicily has felt during the centuries.

"The most interesting thing about true Sicilian cooking is the different ways of mixing pasta with many kinds of vegetables and with fish. For example, pasta with sardines and fennel. It's mountain fennel, not regular fennel, and it's a little difficult to find here. It sounds very strange, but it tastes very good."

The food inspiration caught on at Lenox, too. Catered viands were being served there and, between mouthfuls, talk centered on China patterns.

The company is introducing three new fine-china patterns, two new temper-ware designs and 10 additions to its hand-blown crystal gallery line.

Among the new china are a classic formal, banded design, and a pastel-hued, contemporary motif of breezy floral sprays.

The silver houses were strong on picture frames. One manufacturer presented three new sizes of silverplate picture frames and a pair of holders for tiny taper candles. Another firm brought out 24 picture frames in 10 distinct styles. Also shown were a new line of trays, bowls and coasters of cornucopia design.

Among gift items were two paperweights, in a Numero Uno design and an anchor shape. Candy dishes in the shape of a pear, a grape cluster and an apple offered additional gift possibilities in silver.

On the novelty side was a 4-inch money bag, silver plated, to hold change and personal items. There was also a heart-shaped box with a raised embossed design for jewelry or for use as a decorative accent.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — Please help us settle an argument. Our dictionary doesn't make an answer clear. What is the difference between a tang chisel and a socket chisel? And how is each used?

A. — With a tang chisel, the hollow is in the handle, whether it be a wooden or plastic handle. Thus, the end of the chisel fits into the handle. With a socket chisel, the hollow is in the chisel. The handle fits into the chisel itself. A tang chisel is for work in which the hands of the operator are used exclusively. A socket chisel is for work where the chisel handle must be struck with a wooden mallet.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home."

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

It's either too wet or too dry. The air in your house, that is.

When it's too dry, you are more susceptible to respiratory infections because low-humidity air dries the mucus membranes lining the nasal passages. Glue joints in furniture become loose, house plants droop, fabrics dry out and there is static electricity all over the place, most evident when you walk on a rug and touch an object or another human being.

Also, most persons feel colder when the air doesn't contain enough relative humidity.

Air with a temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit and a humidity of 45 percent is more comfortable than air with a temperature of 72 degrees and a humidity of 20 percent.

That's because the human body has its own way of cooling off. When perspiration evaporates from the skin, the cooler the body feels. When the air is too dry, it absorbs perspiration from your body very quickly and you feel cool. When the air is sufficiently moist, it doesn't "steal" the perspiration from your body and you feel warmer.

The solution to low relative humidity is to put more moisture into the air. Our grandparents knew this well when they put pans of water on radiators so as to add water vapor to the air. It was of some help, but it had some disadvantages, one of which is that it was difficult to control. And when you can't control the amount of moisture you are adding to a house, you sometimes permit the humidity to get too high.

When this occurs, the warm, too-moist air condenses on cooler surfaces, causing the condition generally known as "sweating windows and walls."

All of this is the reason why the best way to add moisture to the air inside a house is with a humidifier which has an automatic control. It starts up when the relative humidity is too low and stops when a certain level has been attained. Although such humidifiers come with detailed instructions on how to handle the controls, you can adjust them to your own needs simply by observation. If windows steam up, for example, in the area where the humidifier is located, you know that too much moisture is being emitted and that the control must be reset at a different level.

The variety of humidifiers is almost endless. Don't go out and buy one until you have shopped around and asked a lot of questions. Talk to people in your neighborhood who own them. Different types of humidifiers are better suited to areas which have different temperatures and average relative humidities.

Biggest Gold Stockpile In New York

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Five stories beneath the streets of the world's financial center lies the largest storehouse of gold on Earth.

Traders in London, Zurich, Tokyo and a few blocks away at New York's World Trade Center bid the price of bullion to a record of more than $250 an ounce Wednesday. But down among the riches of Midas there was scarcely a shrug.

Eighty feet below the street in the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York lies about 13,000 tons of gold, worth some $101 billion at the going rate. That's more than twice as much as is stored at Fort Knox.

"The first week I was here I was impressed. I don't think about it anymore," said a dark-haired woman guard, robed in a yellow smock.

She was on duty as keeper of one of three keys in the inner vault.

Not that people take gold casually at the Federal Reserve Bank. But one gets used to most things after a while.

These days, as the subway rumbles above the vaults, there is even some mild grumbling about large trunks of cash temporarily stashed in one of the two gold rooms. Painting and other maintenance work in another vault area has crowded things a bit.

But gold has its lure and the work that goes on here has its own aura of unreality.

To get to the gold storehouse, half the size of a football field, one must walk through a 90-ton steel cylinder door set in a 140-ton frame. Inside, past two more gates, are 122 compartments of various sizes, many with gold bricks stacked floor to ceiling. The largest — bank officials won't say whose it is — has 107,000 bricks forming what workers call "the wall of gold."

All the gold here belongs to foreign governments, their agencies and international organizations — about 80 in all. While shipments sometimes leave the bank, often the work that goldkeepers do amounts to moving stacks of gold from one compartment to another. In that way, one country can pay another in gold without shipping the bullion across any border.

But it is slow and laborious work. And it can take days to complete a transaction involving several hundred bricks of gold, even if the new owner has a compartment next door to that of the old owner.

The construction-sized bricks weigh 400 troy ounces each, about 27 pounds. Workers wear metal covers on their shoes to protect toes against an accident. Each brick must also be checked by serial number. Not just any gold brick — but the precise numbered brick involved in the order — must be delivered.

A metal balance scale, about 8 feet tall, is used to weigh the bars. It is so sensitive that the weight of a single dollar bill is triple what it takes to register one notch.

The bank first began accepting deposits in 1916, when the dollar was backed by gold. But the fearful years before World War II brought the largest permanent gold deposits to the bank from foreign governments.

Foreign deposits jumped from around $10 million in 1936 to about $4 billion by 1945 from war-torn countries. These days, bank spokesmen estimate the value at $15.5 billion, based on the government's "official" gold price of $42.22 an ounce.

But a change in the use of gold in the world monetary system has made major changes in the system. In 1971, the United States stopped converting dollars into gold for foreign governments, and recently its deposits for international currency transactions have dwindled to nothing.

The bulk of the United States' 267 million ounces of gold is stored at Fort Knox in Kentucky and at the U.S. Assay Office in New York. In line with its decision to no longer base the dollar on gold, close to 5 million ounces of gold have been sold at auctions since last May.

The International Monetary Fund, an international organization representing 138 nations, is one of the largest depositors in the Federal Reserve vault. The IMF has been phasing out its gold supplies, through auctions and by sales to its member countries at a former government-set rate of about $45 an ounce.

The Federal Reserve is secretive about who has gold in the 122 compartments of its vault. And, for security reasons, workers cannot be photographed or identified in news stories about the gold.

No one is sure now of the value of gold traded between countries because monetary agreements are shifting away from the gold standard. At the Federal Reserve, the official government price is $42.22 an ounce, based on a 1973 international agreement that was dropped last spring. But when the United States sold gold on the open market last month, the bullion brought $219.71 an ounce, the going rate at the time.

CRYPTOQUIP 2-10

A B C D E F G H C B F I E J K A I B E H H L J H G M J K F G D L D G E M A L B

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — INTERIOR DECORATOR PLANS SPLENDID DECOR.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals S

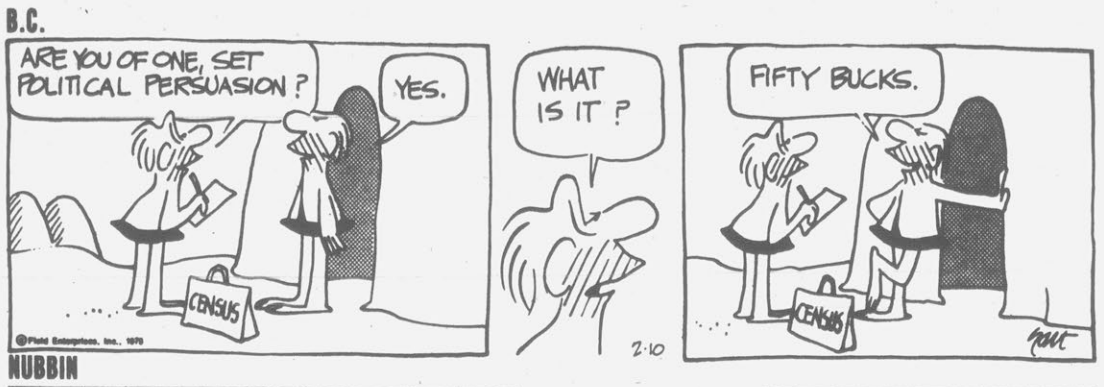

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Good Times Improved Life

By MARK CRANE
Associated Press Writer

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — After 55 years of being a "straight arrow," Charlie Walsh says he just didn't know how to be crooked. But when an unusual temptation beckoned, he yielded.

Walsh was down on his luck on Jan. 5, 1978. No family. No job. Few friends. More debt than he could handle. "Everything was going down the tubes for me."

He was a bachelor who had never earned more than $200 a week, and he owed $5,000 in back taxes on his house.

How bad was it? He had smoked cigarettes for 35 years, but quit cold turkey. "I was down to my last $12. It was either food or cigarettes."

But all that changed when a Commercial Trust Co. computer deposited $100,000 in his meager savings.

"I knew it was the bank's money, but you can't help but start to daydream," he says. "I was out of work for a couple of years, so I figured, 'What the hell. I'll take a chance.' What did I have to lose?"

So Walsh withdrew his $101,081.13 balance, bought a new car and took off. "I had a helluva ball," he says.

Walsh says he left New Jersey after he saw a newspaper article about the bank's mistake. He took a leisurely drive across the country, enjoying the scenery and doing "the whole tourist bit."

"I wanted the money to last. I didn't want to blow the whole wad. I ate out in fancy restaurants a few times. But I still had many meals at McDonald's," he says. "You don't change your ways and become a playboy overnight."

He stopped in Las Vegas, where he cashed several dozen traveler's checks for $250 each. But he didn't do much gambling.

"I'm no fool. I didn't want to risk going to jail for one wild weekend," he says. "I put seven nickels into a slot machine and won $7, but I got bored with pulling that stupid handle."

Walsh wanted to settle in the Pacific Northwest, open a small hobby shop and have security for the rest of his life. But his luck ran out.

He was caught in Portland, Ore., on June 23, when police with "a new-fangled computer system" ran a spot check on the license plates of his car and learned he was a fugitive.

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. What are some recommended varieties of crepe myrtle for North Carolina? (R.J., Winston-Salem)

A. The most popular varieties are Watermelon Red, which has a dark pink bloom; White Cloud, which has a white bloom; and Dallas Red, which has a deep red bloom. Crepe myrtle grows well in most areas of North Carolina. However, winter kill is a problem in several western counties. With timely pruning, one can expect blooms for three months; hence the name — the plant of 101 days. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. How much difference is there in the heat that can be obtained from a cord of hardwood and a cord of softwood? (L.G., Charlotte)

A. Lots. A cord of seasoned oak, for example, can give off about 22 million BTU's of heat. A cord of seasoned white pine produces only about 13 million BTU's. (Larry Jahn, extension forestry specialist)

Q. What kind of groundcover could I use under oaks and hickories to prevent the soil from washing? The soil is sloping and the area has heavy leaffall. (H.H., Raleigh)

A. English ivy, liriope, periwinkle and mondograss will hold the soil once established. Before you plant a groundcover, however, think about the job that you will have keeping leaves raked off of it. Would a good, deep mulch be just as satisfactory for you? (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. When is the best time of year to fertilize grape vines, and what kind and how much fertilizer is recommened? (S.R., Asheboro)

A. The first year after planting apply one-fourth pound of 10-10-10 per vine in April and again in late May. Keep one foot away from trunk. The second year double the amount of fertilizer applied the first year. Use the same schedule. For bearing vines apply 2 to 3 pounds of 10-10-10 when growth begins. Where vines are growing in light soil, repeat the application after fruit sets. (Al Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

ELECTRIC AUTOS

BOSTON (AP) — Eventually one third of all the cars used in major U.S. cities will be electric, according to experts cited in Plastics World magazine. By 1984 an estimated 10,000 electric vehicles will be on the road, they predict.

ROBERSONVILLE

On a tree covered lot in a quiet section of town is where you'll find this 1800 square foot rambling brick ranch with 3 bedrooms and 2 full baths, den, wood deck and more and it's only $44,900. 100% VA Loan or FHA or Conventional financing available.

CHILLY EVENINGS

Will disappear when the family gathers around the fireplace in this cozy home. Sunken family room complete with unique fireplace and bookshelves provides a setting for family pleasure. Special attention to details, trim, and molding are appealing eye catchers! Three bedrooms, two baths, and roomy kitchen plus a wood deck. Location is important and you'll find this address ideal in CLUB PINES. Economical heat pump enhances the charm and livability found here. $57,900.

EYE APPEAL

And unique floor plan create a "home for living." Situated in lovely CHERRY OAKS this interesting design offers all the things you've been looking for in a home. The warm, cozy family room adds a special touch for entertaining or for family enjoyment. Attractively decorated, this 1½ story home is only 2 years old and in excellent condition. The formal living room with its large bay window enhances the adjoining sunken dining room. Four bedrooms, two baths, separate laundry room and double garage are offered. The kitchen is spacious and private for the "cook" who dislikes interruptions. $73,900.

SUPERIOR

In quality and design, this majestic home boasts every luxury imaginable! Truly in a class all by itself and one of Greenville's most beautiful homes, the livability even surpassses the beauty. Perfect for the executive who needs and wants to entertain including formal and informal areas. Featuring quality craftsmanship, high ceilings, private library/study, Florida room, separate breakfast room and over 2000 square feet of recreation space in the game room on the lower level. A world of elegance is evident in the superior taste throughout. The huge master suite upstairs provides its own private dressing area and bath with marble vanities. In addition, there are enough bedrooms and baths for the larges family. Appealing exterior and unique interior are impressive, but the superbly landscaped lot is breathtaking. Manicured flower garden in the rear will charm you. A rare find in this prestigious area, this elegant listing is truly distinctive.

CLUB PINES

Under construction, 4 bedrooms, all formal areas, den plus game room. Could even choose your colors at this point. Builder is using a lot of new and different ideas. Low 80's.

LYNNDALE

Construction is beginning and if you're thinking new home and want a chance to choose your own decor on this 4 bedroom home now is the time to talk with us or let us introduce you to the Builder...one of Greenville's finest. $90's.

CLUB PINES

New 4 bedroom and under construction, unique and different best describes this home. 2 fireplaces, ceramic tile baths. Let us show you all the extra touches this one will have. $80's.

LYNNDALE

The plans have been selected for this choice lot; however, if you're thinking of building, why not check our plan or our builder will build your plan.

CLUB PINES

Four large bedrooms are just one of the many assets to be found in this 2 story home on a beautiful lot in Club Pines. Formal areas offer the ultimate for entertaining. Traffic patterns throught is designed for the busy family to enjoy to the utmost the livability of this home. $76,300.

We Build Value You Can Afford

ATTENTION!

PLEASE READ THIS AD

ATTENTION BUYERS!

Do interest rates, "points", taxes, market trends in various locations, construction, mortgages, market values, etc., frighten you? Let us help, it's our job. You can DEPEND on us to answer all your questions and to help you make the right decision about buying. After all, buying a home is probably the biggest financial decision the average family will EVER make. Let our qualifications in every phase of home buying work for you. Don't make the mistake of over buying—paying too much for your dream home. We have the "know how" and the experience to better serve you.

Feel better? YOU SHOULD? You can depend on us. Our reputation and 25 years of experience in developing, building and professional appraising proves it.

ATTENTION SELLERS!

If you have a home to sell, whatever the reason, you have a problem and we are the problem-solvers!! Do you know the current market value for YOUR home in YOUR particular location? Do you have the ability to negotiate a sale? How about arranging financing, pro-rating taxes and escrow accounts, loan assumptions, etc.? We have the "know how" to solve these and other questions. We can determine a price that will realize you the maximum and fairest value in a reasonable length of time. Don't take the chance of underselling! Your home is probably your most valuable asset. You should rely on a professional to do this job. We ARE professionals, and selling is our job. So why not let US help YOU.

Now relax, and give us a call. THERE'S NO OBLIGATION.

THESE HOMES WILL WIN YOUR ♥

It's nice to feel so good about you, Valentine and that fantastic home on the river you are going to give me. I'm so excited about our own little retirement home near Hub's Wreck. It will be so wonderful to enjoy the beautiful yard, garden spot and relax or fish on our own pier. Being a brick home with a full year ERA warranty really makes it extra special. 51,900.

Valentine, look what your ERA broker has for you! A beautiful extra spacious home in that location you've always wanted. 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, 2 fireplaces, all large rooms; and so much more. To top it off everything in the house that works is guaranteed for one full year. 56,900.

Will you buy this home for me, dear, for Valentine's? Why sure, dear! You deserve a home of this size (2000 sq. ft.) with 3 bedrooms, 2½ baths, den with fireplace, formal living room, dining room, double garage, large yard with tall, stately pines, privacy, country atmosphere. What's so good, dear, we can move right in today since there's no one at home. Won't have to worry about repairs with ERA'S one full year warranty. 55,900.

My heart sighs for you, Valentine and that beautiful, completely remodeled older home like so much. It has four bedrooms upstairs for all of the kids and guests with our master bedroom and bath downstairs. 2520 sq. ft., formal living room, family room with fireplace, large corner lot with delicious pecan trees and would you believe the park is right across the street for the kids to enjoy. Oh, I forgot, it also has storm windows, storm doors, roof (only 5 yrs. old), and a fantastic home equipment warranty ERA. Hurry, Valentine, it's a steal. 42,900.

Love me tender, love me true, let us sell this house to you. You'll be a happy Valentine owning this home and making it yours. It needs someone who wants to make a sad, lonely place into a heart's delight, Make us an offer. 37,500.

Love is where the heart is, Valentine, and mine is in that mobile home in Shady Knoll. 2 bedrooms, 1½ baths, living room kit-dining combination will make a cozy homeymoon's nest for us. All we have to do is make the down payment and assume payments. Isn't that great! I'm ready. 6,995.

LOTS of love

Trees, trees, trees, is all I needs, needs, needs, Valentine. Let's build a beautiful new home on this lot, only a few miles from Greenville. Already has water. Near Sunshine Garden Center. 8,500.

Life would be a dream, dear Heart, in a new Williamsburg home on this lot near the university. There's nothing like being able to walk to school or downtown quickly. 16,500.

Valentine, we could turn our rags into riches if we started our own shop in this large two-story building in the heart of things and it's only 46,500.

Novel Airs Unabridged Wednesday

"From Here To Eternity," James Jones' masterful pre-World War II novel of men and women caught in an emotional triangle with the U.S. Army, is brought unabridged to television by NBC as a six-hour mini-series airing in three parts Feb. 14, 21 and 28 (9 to 11 p.m.). This is not a remake of the 1953 movie, in which less than a third of Jones' manuscript was used.

Natalie Wood and William Devane star as Karen Holmes and Sgt. Milt Warden, lovers who start an affair out of anger which turns to love. Karen, the unhappy, unloved wife of a colonel, finds the man she needs in Warden but wants to turn him into an officer. Warden is a master sergeant married to the Army who hates everything officers represent.

Steve Railsback stars as Pvt. Robert E. Lee Prewitt, a kid from Kentucky who has found a home, family and career in the Army. He is a hardhead who loves the Army even when the system tries to break him.

Roy Thinnes, Joe Pantoliano, Kim Basinger, Peter Boyle, David Spielberg, Will Sampson and Andy Griffith also star in the production which examines the award-winning book in its entirety. The script reveals the loyalties, passions, cruelty and fears of depression-raised men and women in the tensions of pre-World War II Hawaii.

The action centers around "G" Company at Schofield Barracks in Honolulu in 1941. Pvt. Prewitt is transferred to the company under the command of Col. Dana Holmes (Thinnes) and Sgt. Warden. Prewitt is expected to join the company's boxing team and, when he refuses, Holmes orders that he get "the treatment" to break him.

Warden admires the young soldier's guts but won't interfere with the orders as he pursues his affair with the colonel's wife. Only Angelo Maggio (Pantoliano), a young draftee who hates the service, trys to help Prewitt.

Lorene (Basinger), a small town girl who has turned to prostitution as a means toward respectability, also befriends the hardheaded young soldier and falls in love with him. But not enough to change her plans for the future to marry him.

Prewitt's efforts to resist the pressures put on him and protect his friend Maggio lead to tragedy when both young privates are thrown into the stockade under the command of sadistic Sgt. Fatso Judson (Boyle).

'From Here To Eternity'-William Devane and Natalie Wood star as lovers in this powerful TV drama adapted from James Jones's novel. The six-hour miniseries premieres on "Wednesday Night at the Movie," Feb. 14 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Casting Was A Real Headache

Every actress in Hollywood, it seemed, wanted the role of Scarlett O'Hara when it was first announced that the novel, Gone With the Wind, was going to become a film.

Meanwhile, in England, a young actress, virtually unknown in the U.S., Vivien Leigh, had her heart set on the same project, although everyone told her she hadn't a ghost of a chance.

Miss Leigh got her way, and the fortuitous result, the epic classic, "Gone With the Wind," will be broadcast as a special, Sunday, Feb. 11 (7 to 10 p.m.), and Monday, Feb. 12 (8 to 10 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Choosing Clark Gable as Rhett Butler was an easy task. A newspaper survey of the novel's readers overwhelmingly nominated the popular actor for the role and producer David O. Selznick agreed that Gable was right.

Scarlett O'Hara was another matter. That same poll had come up with two favorites — Bette Davis and Margaret Sullavan. Not satisfied with either, Selznick began a nationwide search for Scarlett, interviewing hundreds of professional and amateur hopefuls. It was mainly for publicity, but the search back in Hollywood was just as grueling.

Paulette Goddard was the leading contender, although there was some worry about the possibility of scandal because of her relationship with Charlie Chaplin.

Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh star as Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara, one of Hollywood's most memorable screen couples, in "Gone With the Wind," the classic romantic tale of the Old South, to be rebroadcast as a two-part special, Sunday, Feb. 11 (7-10 p.m.) and Monday, Feb. 12 (8-10 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Superstars Have Super Chemistry

Their backgrounds are as different as the Smoky Mountain foothills of Tennessee are from San Antonio, Texas, as the stage of the Grand Ole Opry is to the footlights of Broadway. Yet, there is something intangibly complimentary about the show business chemistry of Dolly Parton, the singer and composer, and San Antonio-born and Hollywood-raised Carol Burnett.

The two gifted women become attuned to the same musical wavelength during their one-hour entertainment special, "Dolly and Carol in Nashville," to be presented Wednesday, Feb. 14 (10 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Carol describes Dolly as "wow" and Dolly says Carol is filled with "love." While it's obvious the two women are very fond of each other, how would one explain their artistic compatibility?

Carol says, "Outside of our physical attributes (which are almost exactly the same), I think both of us seem to have a real enthusiasm for working and for making it as much fun as possible — and it certainly was."

This rapport was first discovered when the two stars began their rehearsals in Nashville's famed Grand Ole Opry House, but the idea for the match had been in the back of Carol's mind for some time. She had already starred in three previous musical specials — two with Julie Andrews and one with opera star Beverly Sills.

Dolly Parton (l), Country Music Association Entertainer of the Year, teams up with Emmy Award-winning Carol Burnett for an evening of comedy and music in "Dolly and Carol in Nashville," Wednesday, Feb. 14 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Carol explains, "I always like to work with the best. I've admired Dolly and her career for some time, and I thought she would be fun to work with — and she was!"

Dolly makes no bones about her admiration for her co-star. "Carol is my idol and has been ever since I first saw her on television," she says. "She's the most professional person I've ever worked with, and I have never seen anyone with so much stamina and energy. She has a wild sense of humor that I just loved. It made our week together seem like a big party."

Carol and Dolly open the special with a duet, "What Am I Doing Up Here?," in which each entertainer conveys her admiration for her co-star.

Russell Portrays Elvis

In 1962, when Kurt Russell was 11 years old, he was trundled off to Seattle, to make his screen debut in the quickly forgotten "It Happened at the World's Fair." It wasn't much of a film and it wasn't much of a part, but it gave Kurt a chance to meet and work with one of the biggest idols of that or any other year — Elvis Presley.

Seventeen years later, Russell was to remember vividly his day with Elvis, because it was Kurt who was chosen out of hundreds of aspirants to portray Presley in "Elvis!," a three-hour motion picture airing as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Feb. 11 (8 p.m.).

"I wasn't really a fan of Elvis' when I met him," Kurt says. "In fact, I wasn't really a fan of anyone at that time. But Elvis was very kind and helpful to me. He went out of his way, really, to make me feel at ease. I was only 11, and I found it surprising that someone that important would be so respectful. I've always remembered that about him."

When the search began for an actor to portray Elvis in the film, no one gave a thought to Kurt, best known for a long string of Disney films. But casting director Joyce Selznick remembered his performance in a TV film, and she convinced all involved to give him a chance. After an exhaustive film test, he won the part.

"Before I took the role, though, I made one thing crystal clear," Kurt stated. "I was not going to do an Elvis impersonation. If they wanted that, there are dozens of Elvis clones around who could do a good job. I was assured that the film would not try to imitate Elvis. It was simply a biography about a well-known figure."

As production began, Kurt's blond locks were dyed brown and later jet black. He studied tapes and films of Presley and talked to many of Elvis' closest friends and advisors.

"The one part of him that I studied the most was his stage movements. I couldn't fake those, because they were his trademark for years. I watched those films over and over again.

Elvis and Priscilla Presley, played by Kurt Russell and Season Hubley, are married and begin their life at Graceland in "Elvis!," a world premiere movie airing as the "Sunday Night Movie," Feb. 11 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Atlanta Burns

Expediency and careful planning were combined to create the spectacular sequence in "Gone With the Wind" depicting the burning of Atlanta.

It is just one of the memorable scenes in the classic motion picture, starring Vivien Leigh, Clark Gable, Leslie Howard and Olivia de Havilland, airing this week on CBS-TV.

Start of the multi-million-dollar epic had been delayed because of the care that producer David O. Selznick devoted to the film's casting, and financial backers were getting nervous because of the cost of each delay.

The production designer, William Cameron Menzies, himself a brilliant director, came up with a brainstorm to save the day, and solve another cost problem simultaneously. Work was well underway on the construction of interiors for the production, but still to be built were the streets of Atlanta. The Selznick back lot was crammed with sets from previous productions like "King Kong" and "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Clearing them to make way for Atlanta was going to be a major expense in itself.

Menzies suggested that the sets be burned and that the fire be filmed as the burning of Atlanta. Selznick also realized that close-ups of the cast members involved in the scene could be done later.

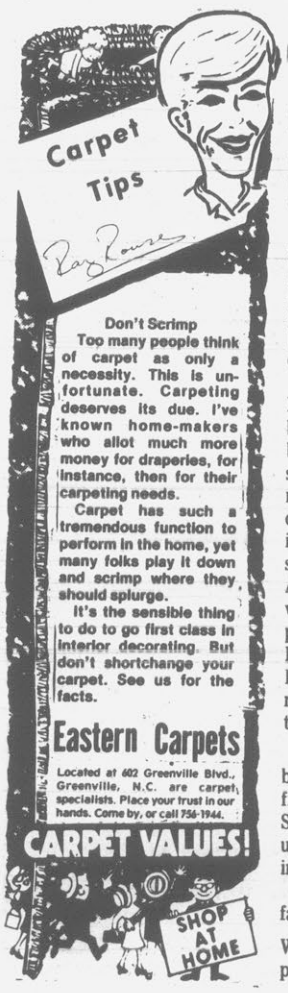

The existing sets were given false fronts to approximate Civil War Atlanta. The scene had to be perfect — there was no second chance, once the fire began. Selznick outfitted three buckboards, each bearing doubles for the uncast Scarlett, Rhett Butler, Melanie Hamilton, Prissy, and Melanie's new born child. He hired 1200 extras to portray the terrified, fleeing citizens of Atlanta. He borrowed a ship-building crane from Seattle to serve as the camera platform, to capture a panoramic view of the conflageration.

Flames roared 200 feet in the air as thousands of residents of Culver City, Calif., watched the spectacle.

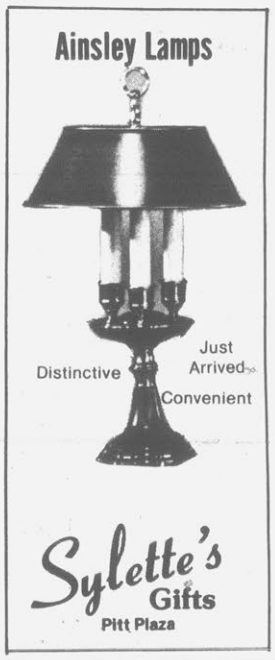

Menzies' brainstorm was not in vain. Nor could anybody consider Selznick's meticulous search for the cast a waste of time. The movie set box-office records with its initial release and was awarded eight regular and three special Oscars. It has drawn large throngs on each of its subsequent re-releases and set ratings records when first broadcast on television.

Uncanny Likeness

No attempt was made to alter facial features of the eight stars who portray U.S. Presidents in "Backstairs at the White House," says Director Michael O'Herlihy. "For the most part, we just copied hair styles, then let the actors do their own impersonations." But when they added the parted-down-the-middle hair piece and mustache to massive Victor Buono, he became a ringer for President William Howard Taft. "It was uncanny!" O'Herlihy exclaimed.

Hughes film

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Howard Hughes will be depicted in yet another movie, this one titled "Melvin and Howard," a film account of Utah gas station attendant Melvin Dummar and the bogus Hughes will.

Leslie Uggams Finds Using Crutch Hard To Adaopt To

The beautiful young performer who made her debut at the age of six has starred in plays, nightclubs, movies, television, musical comedies and commercials.

She is equally at ease in front of a camera, a noisy nightclub crowd, or a starchy Broadway opening night audience.

Asked if she has found anything difficult to adapt to in her career, however, she quickly replies:

"The crutch I used in 'Backstairs at the White House.'"

In the mini-series, Leslie stars as Lillian Rogers Parks, onetime maid in the White House who wrote a 1961 best-seller on her experiences ministering to eight First Families. The program is currently airing Mondays (9 to 11 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

Mrs. Parks, who worked for nearly 31 years in the historic mansion at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, has used a crutch since she was stricken with polio as a child.

"I had to use a crutch with great facility — as Lillian does to this day — to do a convincing representation of her," says Leslie.

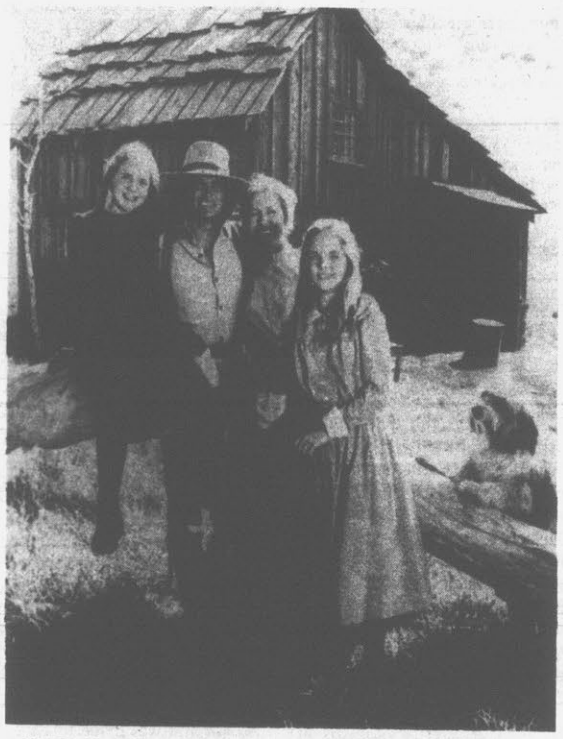

And she had such a relatively short time to prepare for this that she took the prop home with her at night until she could move nimbly. She readily accepted any tips that Mrs. Parks, now 81 yet amazingly spry, could give her.

"She just told me to relax and keep at it," recalls Miss Uggams. "It's something like learning to think in another language.

"'Backstairs' was a labor of love for everyone concerned with it," she continues. "It should interest a wide TV audience because they are privvy to White House happenings that are not in the history books. And there was no sting in playing a domestic, for, in reality, the White House staff members are representatives of the American public — keeping a candid eye on the nation's leaders."

So, as Mrs. Parks, whose service combined with that of her mother, Maggie Rogers, covered almost 52 years (1909-1961), had suggested, Leslie kept at it.

And eventually she mastered that lamentable necessity, never joking about it and ever thankful that in real life she has never needed a crutch.

BUT DO THEY LIKE EACH OTHER?-Michael Landon, shown here with his TV family on the popular "Little House on the Prairie" series, claims that Americans can tell if actors on a television show really like each other, or if they are just masking a strong dislike. "If the love is fake," says Landon, "the show will be a fake too."

Philosophy Makes Series Successful

Want to try an interesting experiment? Tune in on a few of your favorite television shows and see if you can tell how the actors really feel about each other.

Does that husband really like the woman playing his wife? Does that father have a genuine fondness for the youngsters portraying his children? Do two actors playing the parts of brothers really want to punch each other's nose?

Michael Landon, star and executive producer of NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie," swears he can watch a series for a week or two and tell how the actors on the show really treat each other when they're not in front of the camera.

"You can fake love on television," says Landon. "You can get away with it in a movie, but not on a weekly television series. I can pretend to like someone for a month or two, while we work together on a motion picture, but I can't fake attention week after week for years on end."

The subject came up when Landon was asked what ingredients made both "Bonanza" and 'Little House' so popular with the American public.

"I think a lot of it came from the fact that the people watching the shows could tell that we had genuine love and concern for each other — in real life as well as on the screen.

"I loved Dan Blocker and Lorne Greene. I looked forward to going to work every day for 14 years on 'Bonanza.' The same thing goes for 'Little House.' I wake up each morning eager to go to work with my friends, and I think the other members of the cast feel the same way.

Leif Garrett Signs

Leif Garrett, one of the nation's most popular teen-age stars, has been signed by CBS Entertainment for his first television special, a contemporary music, comedy and variety hour, to be broadcast later this year.

The 17-year-old star, who recently emerged as a major recording and concert artist, has been acting since he was 5. Garrett, whose first LP was released in 1977, now has albums approaching the platinum mark. His hit singles include "Surfin' USA," "Run-around Sue" and his latest release, "I Was Made for Dancing." His most recent album is "Feel the Need."

As a child actor, Garrett's first film role was in "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice." His motion picture credits include "Macon County Line" and "Walking Tall." In television, he starred in "Three for the Road" and the movie "Skateboard." He has guest starred in numerous series, including "Gunsmoke," "Apple's Way," "Cannon," "Family Affair," and early this season as a teen-age rock idol in "The New Adventures of Wonder Woman." In addition, he has had a recurring role on "Family."

Tension and Drama Rampants In Movie

The excitement, tension and drama rampant in the Air Traffic Control Center of a busy airport, where life-or-death decisions are made instantaneously by overworked members of the Control team, is the background of "Crisis in Mid-Air." The new motion picture will be broadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Feb. 13 (8 to 10 p.m.).

Starring in the film are George Peppard, Karen Grassle, Desi Arnaz, Jr., Michael Constantine, Greg Morris, Fabian Forte, Dana Elcar, Alan Fudge, Denise DuBarry, and Martin Milner as Dr. Denvers. Don Murray is special guest star.

Peppard portrays air controller Nick Culver, considered too old for the high-tension, fast-paced world in which he labors. He is also haunted by a recent mid-air collision for which the investigator (Morris) is trying to hold him responsible.

Culver's wife (Miss Grassle), unable to compete with the job her husband loves and its accompanying problems, leaves him. At the same time, Donovan (Arnaz), a new hot-headed controller, arrives on the job and immediately antagonizes Culver with his attitude.

As nerves are stretched to the breaking point in the control room, a crazed gunman (Forte) disables an aircraft with his wild shots as it is taking off with Culver's wife and Donovan's stewardess-girlfriend (Miss DuBarry) aboard.

The efforts of the two controllers to clear a safe path through the peak-hour air traffic to allow the plane to return to the field is thwarted as the runway is blocked by a busload of passengers held hostage by the gunman.

Prior to filming 'Crisis,' Peppard spent several weeks working with, and observing, real-life controllers in Los Angeles' air traffic control center. "That's where it all hangs out, the truth about our crowded skies," he says. "I learned first-hand of the perils of flying in and out of a busy airport."

Peppard's last movie was "From Hell to Victory," filmed in Paris, Madrid and Rome." Naturally, he flew to each place on the Continent.

"That was nerve-racking," he states. "Then I made 'Crisis' and learned I am in good hands in the air.

"When you see how conscientious and capable those guys in air traffic control are, you have a lot of faith," he noted.

James Cagney Interviewed

James Cagney will be seen in his first television interview in nearly 30 years on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" (7 to 9 a.m.) in a four-part series, Tuesday through Friday, Feb. 13-16. The show's host, David Hartman, is, according to Cagney, the first person to interview him for television since back in 1949, when he talked with Jack Paar.

Whether he is playing a gangster or a cop or a song-and-dance man, audiences love Cagney, and he has reigned as one of the kings of the American screen since the early 1930s. He had his turn at virtually every genre of film that exists, from Shakespeare revisited, to horror films, to poignant musicals. Each role he made uniquely his own.

Cagney diligently played out his role as Bottom in Max Reinhardt's film production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and the eminent director, citing Cagney's "mysterious, dangerous, terrifying uncertainty that never allows the audience to relax," called him "the best actor in Hollywood."

In a couple of films, Cagney rode the range with a 10-gallon hat over his Irish red hair and chaps on his legs. He also moved dramatically through the armed forces, generally with Pat O'Brien at the front of the platoon.

Circus Acts Complete

Top American professional circus acts are matched against five of the world's greatest circus units in breathtaking competition in "Circus: America vs. The World," a special program to be presented on NBC-TV Tuesday, Feb. 13 (10 to 11 p.m).

Ed McMahon and Georgia Engel are the hosts.

This is the first United States telecast of the annual Circus World Championships, held in London, England, and organized by Circus World Championships, Ltd. The finalists, selected by CWC from dozens of the world's leading acts, include:

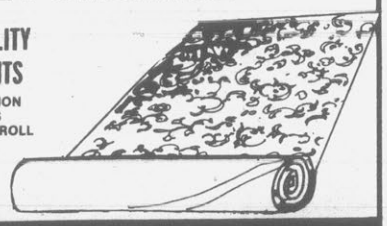

The Flying Cavarettas (representing the U.S.) — Jim Cavaretta and his sisters — Kandy, Maureen and Terry — are challenged in the flying trapeze triple somersault by The Flying Oslers of South Africa.

Widely Acclaimed Film Airs Sunday

CONFRONTATION BREWING- Jack Nicholson in his Oscar-winning performance as a patient in a mental hospital, stars in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," the comedy-drama to have its network TV premiere on "The Big Event," Sunday, Feb. 11 (8-10:40 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," the first motion picture in 42 years to win all five of the major Academy Awards, will be presented on NBC-TV's "The Big Event," Sunday, Feb. 11 (8 to 10:40 p.m.).

The film, starring Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher, is based on Ken Kesey's novel of the same name, which was on the best seller lists for 258 consecutive weeks and sold more than three million copies.

The picture garnered Oscars for: Best Picture, Best Actor (Nicholson), Best Actress (Louise Fetcher), Best Director (Milos Forman) and Best Screenplay (Lawrence Hauben and Bo Goldman).

In a highly charged yet naturalistic performance, Nicholson plays Randle P. McMurphy, a cheerfully brawling petty convict who feigns insanity so that he can spend most of his six-month prison term under observation at the state asylum instead of straining his back on a work farm.

Hitting the ward like a shot of adrenalin, it isn't long before McMurphy becomes the rallying point and unofficial spokesman for his fellow patients. He does everything in his power to shake them out of their apathy while trying to convince them not to swallow every bit of malarkey that is slung down their throats — literally and otherwise.

The result of his actions is an immediate clash with the indomitable Nurse Ratched (Louise Fletcher), the complacently powerful head nurse whose dogmatic and moralistic approach to her patients and their problems is diametrically opposed to McMurphy's solutions to what ails his buddies. As their antagonism burgeons — and the inmates begin to flex their wings a bit under his tutelage — the threat he presents becomes too great to be tolerated by the established order.

Old Role Tame Compared To New

As "Mannix," the good Joe of the TV private eyes, Mike Connors had his share of action-filled scenes during the eight-year run of the series. But it all seemed a little tame to Mike in comparison to a recent movie role.

In "Revenge for a Rape," airing as ABC's "Tuesday Movie of the Week," Feb. 13 (11:30 p.m.), Mike stars as a man who becomes a lone vigilante, tracking down the three men who attacked his wife. In the course of the film, he is struck by a car, cut up by wilderness brush, spends long periods of time chest-deep in freezing water and is constantly on the run.

"This was the toughest show I've ever done," the rugged actor said. "We did a lot of action on 'Mannix,' but it didn't take much out of me. In this film, I learned the importance of keeping in good shape. Actors tend to forget that.

"Dick Ziker and Glenn Wilder, who were the stunt coordinators on 'Mannix,' staged all of the stunts on this film," Connors said. "I knew that I would have to do most of my own stunt work. Even with precautions, stunts are very dangerous and if they don't go perfectly, an actor can be killed or seriously hurt. Dick and Glenn worked everything down to the most minute detail and tested everything themselves more than once before they let me try it."

There was one scene, though, that even the best of stunt men could not control.

They Have Come Long Way In 45 Years Of Adventures

Romeo and Juliet they're not.

But Popeye and Olive Oyl make up in longevity what they lack in ardor.

The spinach-guzzling cartoon sailor and his sometimes-devoted, but often-fickle girlfriend have been going steady for more than 45 years!

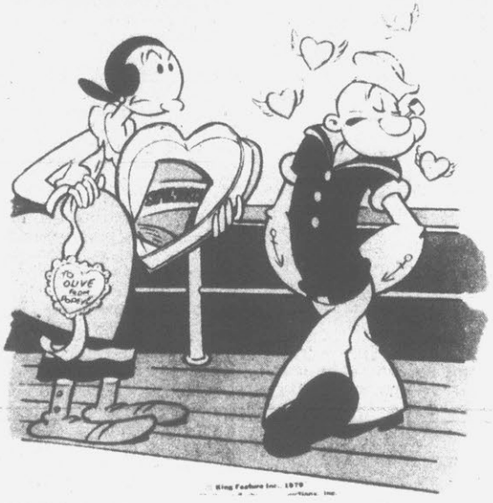

Their romantic misadventures have been chronicled in comic strips, on radio, in motion pictures and on television. They've come a long way together, but somehow they've never been able to take that giant step to the marriage license bureau. And thereby hang hundreds of tales that have beguiled several generations of Popeye fans since E.C. Segar created the character in 1929.

Yet another episode in their marathon romance becomes an animated holiday special when Popeye, Olive, Bluto, Wimpy and the Thimble Theater company star in "The Popeye Valentine Special: Sweethearts at Sea," Wednesday, Feb. 14 (8:30 to 9 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Popeye is inclined to take Olive for granted — which is not to be wondered at after nearly a half-century of togetherness — and Olive somehow takes this attitude of his most of the time. Not an unusual man-woman relationship.

But when Olive gets into a real bind, as she does, once again, in this new special, Popeye seems to turn up in time to pour water on the troubled Oyl.

Popeye is not your classic rescuer of damsels in distress. A dragon has to tweak him by the nose before Popeye gets the word. But then he can galvanize into action, putting the fabled cavalry to shame. In the early days of his adventures, Popeye was actually portrayed as something of a coward, until he had taken just enough from a current bully. He still does not fight just for the sake of fighting: he reacts only when that final straw is laid across his back.

It's Valentine's Day and even those marathon sweeties Popeye and Olive Oyl celebrate the occasion, in the animated special, "The Popeye Valentine Special: Sweethearts at Sea," Wednesday, Feb. 14 (8:30-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Marriage Course Makes Points

Crash Course In Marriage (1) 2-11

Ten high school seniors "get married," get jobs, have babies and deal with divorce — all in a 12-week modern marriage course — in "Make Believe Marriage," a new comedy-drama premiering on the "ABC Afterschool Specials" series, Wednesday, Feb. 14 (4:30 to 5:30 p.m.).

Inspired by the classroom projects that are being featured in high schools all across the nation, "Make Believe Marriage" puts the 17-year-olds through a crash course in the realities of married life — after the couples are paired off by the teacher.

New Trends Emerge In Recordings

Every year seems to mark the emergence of a new trend in popular recorded music. For instance, in recent years we have seen country music "cross over" into pop music, the birth and growth of disco, and the spread of rhythm and blues to a general audience.

This year, the strong popularity of motion picture record album tie-ins is one major development. Several of the recordings nominated for Grammy Awards by the members of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences come from motion picture scores. The awards will be presented on a live special, "The 21st Annual Grammy Awards Show," Thursday, Feb. 15 (9 to 11 p.m.), on CBS-TV. John Denver, popular recording and concert artist, will host the event.

The Grammy Awards categories include one specifically for motion picture and television scores. This year's nominees are "Battlestar Galactica," "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," "Holocaust," "Midnight Express" and "Revenge of the Pink Panther." More significantly, a number of motion picture soundtracks and individual songs from movies are scattered throughout the categories.

For instance, two of the nominees for Best Album of the Year are movie soundtracks — "Grease" and "Saturday Night Fever." "Stayin' Alive," the hit Bee Gees recording from the latter film, is up for both Best Record and Best Song. The Bee Gees performance on the soundtrack album was nominated as Best Pop Vocal Performance by a Duo, Group or Chorus, where it is in competition with Steely Dan's recording of the title song from the movie "FM."

'Lonigan' series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Studs Lonigan," James T. Farrell's classic trilogy of an Irish-American prototype in Chicago, once banned in some areas of the country, will become an NBC series beginning March 7.

Pike's Peek

BY CHARLIE PIKE
PFA Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Scuttlebutt around 20th Century-Fox has it that ALAN ALDA may have worn his "M*A*S*H" fatigues for the last time. The conversations being overheard suggest that Alan is simply tired because of his commitments away from the long-running CBS series, and because of his weariness in being away from his wife and three daughters for such prolonged periods of time. Alan's family remains at their New Jersey home when he's in Hollywood, causing Alan to commute regularly to be with them.

HERB ALPERT has sold 1100 acres of prime Los Angeles County land he purchased some ten years ago, and if he sold it at a price competitive to the sales tags on adjacent land it's guessed he received about $10,000 an acre, compared to the estimated $2,500 an acre he paid for it!

Production has come to an end on what is reportedly the final 13 segments of the syndicated "CANDID CAMERA." Originating as "CANDID RADIO," the show has been in existance for almost 30 years.

Daytime's "GENERAL HOSPITAL" breaks still more new ground when DENISE ALEXANDER, in her role as Leslie, undergoes group therapy with a true-life counselor in segments that were taped with just a script outline, not specific dialogue. To enhance the improvisation, Denise was not introduced to the therapist before the segments were filmed and while she and a group of specially hired actors and actresses play their roles, the counselor responds as if the situation is true-life. It's a venture that has never been tried on any TV show in history!

ROBERT CONRAD is working feverishly to lose a bit of flab that's found its way around his normally slim waistline. Bob is determined to get back to his "fighting weight" before production begins on a movie special called "THE WILD, WILD, WEST." And for fans of that one-time series, ROSS MARTIN will join Bob in the film.

JOHN SCHNEIDER, who just moved from Sandy Springs, Ga., to Hollywood for production of the new CBS series, "THE DUKES OF HAZZARD," didn't know that coats were required when he went to the posh Scandia's restaurant for lunch. And it wasn't easy for the restaurant to find him one in their closet, because the young actor stands six-foot-three and weighs 190 pounds.

Remember RANDOLPH SCOTT? Up until ten years ago he was one of Hollywood's most famous western stars. He's not worked for the past decade by choice, since he's become a millionaire selling and dealing in land he bought from his western earnings.

'Time Train'

Vincent Price and Coral Browne will star in CBS-TV's new hour-long adventure series, "Time Train."

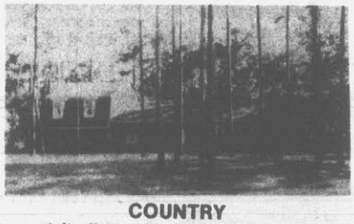

The series will take selected 'travelers' to a time when their lives were altered by circumstances or decisions and will allow them to relive their lives with the change of circumstances.

Warren Beatty Stars In The Hit Comedy 'Shampoo'

Warren Beatty finds trouble behind the laughter when every girl he likes complicates his life by falling in love with him in "Shampoo," the hit comedy which also stars Goldie Hawn and Julie Christie. "Shampoo" makes its television premiere as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Feb. 16 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Film critics were exceptionally enthusiastic in their praise for this modern day Don Juan romance, with Gene Shalit speaking for many when he accurately predicted that "It will be one of the biggest pictures in a long, long time." Pauline Kael of The New Yorker recognized the extraordinary contributions of the cast when she wrote: "Julie Christie is one of those screen actresses whose every half-buried thought smashes through. She's not only an actress, she is . . . the sexiest woman in movies right now. Goldie Hawn is everything her admirers have hoped for . . . The central performance that makes it all work is Beatty's."

George (Beatty) is a Beverly Hills hairdresser who understands — and appreciates — his lovely lady customers like no one else, and the ladies appreciate that. Handsome, charming, gentle and romantic, George is also a first-rate hairdresser, with one great advantage over his competitors — he makes house calls.

Among the ladies on whom he calls are Jill (Hawn), who wants to marry him, Jackie (Christie), who doesn't know what she wants, and Felicia (Grant), who wants everything. The leader of those who don't approve of his house calls in Lester (Jack Warden), who is married to Felicia, in love with Jackie, and angry enough at George to suggest rearranging the young man's features into a less attractive pattern.

George's Good Life begins to lose a little of its glitter as his lady friends discover his deceptions and desert him, driving the Most Eligible Bachelor to propose marriage — with surprising results.

(DUE TO MATURE SUBJECT MATTER, PARENTAL GUIDANCE IS ADVISED.)

Resort In Panic

A ski resort is terrorized by a huge half-human, half-animal killer beast on a rampage in "Snowbeast," rebroadcast as "The CBS Late Night Movie" Friday, Feb. 16 (12:30 a.m.).

Bo Svenson and Yvette Mimieux star as a former ski champion and his wife, Gar and Ellen Seberg, who are visiting a ski lodge run by an old friend, Tony Rill (Robert Logan).

When Tony finds grim evidence that some sort of inhuman creature is on the loose, his grandmother, Carrie Rill (Sylvia Sidney), who owns the lodge, tries to convince him that such stories are sheer folklore. Tony suspects his grandmother wants to suppress the news for fear of losing business during the winter carnival.

"Snowbeast" was filmed entirely on location in Gunnison County, Colo.

Wallace Receives Honor

Mike Wallace, CBS News Correspondent and co-editor of "60 Minutes," has been chosen to receive the Thomas Hart Benton Award by the Thomas Hart Benton Associates and the Kansas City Art Institute.

Wallace was named to receive the honor because of "excellence in investigative reporting" and "willingness to go against sometimes popular attitudes in seeking the truth." Previous recipients of the award, granted each year, are John Gardner, former chairman of Common Cause; Elliot Richardson, former Secretary of Commerce; and Dr. Franklin Murphy, Chairman of the Board of the Times Mirror Company, Los Angeles.

MacLaine comedy

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Shirley MacLaine, whose last movie was "The Turning Point," will next star for Lorimar Productions in "Being There," adapted from Jerzy Kosinski's 1971 novel. Peter Sellers will costar in the comedy, to be directed by Hal Ashby.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Where is Andy Griffith from? I say Goldsboro, N.C., and my sister says Raleigh. Who is right? J. TER, SALEMBURG, N.C.

A: Neither. Andy Griffith was born in Mt. Airy, N.C.

Q: Since "The Hardy Boys" was cancelled, will we be seeing Parker Stevenson again on TV anytime soon? L. LOCKWOOD, SPARTANBURG, S.C.

A: Absolutely! Parker is one of television's most talented young actors, and it's just a matter of his finding the right property.

Q: Is Christina Raines ("Centennial" and "The Sentinel") the daughter of the late Claude Rains? MRS. M. GRIFFIN, SPARTANBURG, S.C.

A: No. Christina, of Columbian and English ancestry, was born in the Phillipine Islands. Her parents later settled in Coral Gables, Fla., where she grew up.

Q: Tell me something about Max Gail ('Wojo' on "Barney Miller"). Where do I write to get a picture of him? A. WALKER, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Max could definitely be considered an intellect: he has a B.A. in economics and a Masters in international finance. Before establishing himself as an actor, the Detroit-born genetleman taught school, played the piano in bars, was a construction worker and a waiter. He makes his home in the San Fernando Valley, drives a pickup truck and a motorcycle and pals around with his dog named 'Restless.' For photos, write to ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Q: I would like to know more about the Robert Nye Corporation listed in the credits at the end of "All Star Secrets." R. NYE, SHALLOTTE, N.C.

A: Write to the show's host, Bob Eubanks, for information about the company. His address is: 17327 Ventura Blvd., Suite 3111, Encino, Calif. 91316.

Q: Would you give me the address of a Lonely Hearts Club? G.F. LEXINGTON, N.C.

A: Here's a better idea . . . Go to your library and check out a stack of books on personality development, good grooming, etc. Then, put on your best smile and join several organizations sponsored by your church, school and community. Keep me posted.

Looks At Unique Friendship

Patrick Peterson (l) is the surprised, and confused, winner of a personal valet, John Williams, when he enters a contest without knowing what the prize will be in "The Contest Kid," airing on the "ABC Weekend Specials" series, Saturday, Feb. 17 (12-12:30 p.m.)

When a shrewd boy with a proclivity for seeking giveaways wins the services of a high-toned valet in a magazine promotion, he finds his life turned upside down in "The Contest Kid," to be rebroadcast as an "ABC Weekend Specials" presentation Saturday, Feb. 17 (12 noon to 12:30 p.m.).

"This is a fun-filled story of a unique friendship between an adult and a child," explains ABC-TV's Marilyn Olin. "The respect and the consideration which grows between these two people, despite the differences in their ages and cultural backgrounds, make for a delightful story that is truly 'special.'"

Harvey Small (Patrick Petersen) has a fondness for "freebies," a tendency he indulges with considerable success. At the same time, he has a nemesis, Charlotte, who delights in catching Harvey on film in embarrassing situations.

When Harvey becomes the winner of a contest sponsored by Suburban Gentleman Magazine, he finds himself the recipient of one month's attendance by a "gentleman's gentleman" named Hawkins (John Williams), and, with the unwelcome connivance of Charlotte, nearly manages to wreck the man's career. Harvey makes hilarious efforts to land Hawkins a new position, which includes the staging of an absurd version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." Despite the problems, the man and boy achieve a warm friendship and mutual respect.

Other actors featured include Ronnie Scribner as Woody, William Bogart as Mr. Small, Pat Stevens as Mrs. Small and Mona Burns as Mrs. Mosley.

The story is based on the book, The Contest Kid and the Big Prize, by Barbara Brooks Wallace.

Walt Disney, producer of animated cartoops and children's films, died in 1966.

NASCAR Championships Air

Three NASCAR Grand National champions who have won a total of seven titles are expected to be among the field of nine drivers when CBS Sports presents highlights of the NASCAR Sprint Championship, Saturday, Feb. 17 (4 to 4:30 p.m.), from Daytona (Fla.) International Speedway.

Following the special on the 50-mile race (for those who won pole positions in any of the 30 NASCAR Grand National events in 1978), the Network will broadcast highlights of the week-long qualifying attempts for the prestigious Daytona 500.

Cale Yarborough, who has won an unprecedented three consecutive NASCAR championships (1976, '77, '78), should be one of the favorites in this, the first sprint championship ever sanctioned by NASCAR for pole position winners. Yarborough, from Timmonsville, S.C., won eight poles in 1978 on his way to the national title and more than $530,000 in prize money. In last year's Daytona 500, he finished second, behind Bobby Allison.

Allison, from Hueytown, Ala., finished second last year in the championship standings, behind Yarborough, and could also be a favorite. He won just one pole in '78, but took home more than $335,000 in winnings when he added the Dixie 500 and Los Angeles Times 500 to his victory at Daytona.

Also entered in the field is David Pearson, who won the national title in 1966, '68 and '69. Pearson, who now races much less frequently, still took seven pole positions last year, and more than $151,000 in earnings.

Another former NASCAR Grand National champion scheduled to be in the field of nine is Benny Parsons, who won his title in 1973. Parsons, from Ellerbe, N.C., came from 32nd place to win the 1975 Daytona 500. Last year, he won two poles and four races, which placed him fourth in the finals standings.

Buddy Baker, Darrell Waltrip, Lenny Pond, Neil Bonnett and J.D. McDuffie round out the field of the nine eligible for the race. No other NASCAR driver was able to win a pole position last year in any of the 30 events.

Baker has had hard luck at Daytona in his 16 years of trying to win the Daytona 500. The veteran from Charlotte, N.C., had the 1973 Daytona 500 nearly wrapped up when his car stopped running with only 11 laps to go.

The Teen Scene

PARKER STEVENSON may not be on the tube every week anymore, but that doesn't mean that he is out of circulation. Parker is as busy as always, working to find a TV movie script which he could produce and star in, and the handsome actor says that an announcement about such a project should be forthcoming anytime now.

Unpredictable and fun-loving GENE SIMMONS of KISS took advantage of the invitation and spent a day playing window dresser at a boutique in Hollywood called FIORUCCI. For the occasion, Gene dressed the mannequins in sequin pants, red satin body-suits with fish-net stockings and thigh-high suede boots. Gene said his selection of attire was to illlustrate that people should wear whatever they feel like wearing. He didn't say if that meant in public.

SUSAN RICHARDSON of "EIGHT IS ENOUGH" certainly has enough to keep her busy, but something she doesn't often mention is her work with junior high schoolers. Susan has a regular schedule of meetings with seventh, eighth and ninth graders in which she visits with them and discusses any topic they wish to explore. And a lot of those topics involve subjects that aren't easily discussed with parents.

'Grand Slam Of Tennis' Sunday

Guillermo Vilas, the strong lefthander tennis pro, will compete with three other top pros in the Grand Slam of Tennis, airing Sunday, Feb. 11 at 4 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Argentina's Guillermo Vilas is quite a versatile man, both on and off the tennis court. He is recognized as one of the world's finest players, after winning five WCT events and finishing runnerup in another match with a very limited schedule in 1978.

Vilas, who won the French and U.S. Opens in 1977, will compete with three other top-name players on the pro circuit: Jimmy Connors, Bjorn Borg and Vitas Gerulitas, in the "Grand Slam of Tennis," Sunday, Feb. 11 (4 p.m. on CBS-TV).

Vilas is an especially fine player on clay, having captured 51 straight matches on the surface in 1977 before losing to Ilie Nastase, the "bad boy" on the circuit, in the Aix-en-Provence final.

But the intense Argentinian competitor has so many varied interests that he decided to limit his schedule in 1978. He is a soft-spoken poet, a philosopher of sorts, and a millionaire.

His second book of poetry was published in the fall of '77, and he recently wrote a screenplay on the subject of death, entitled The Deciding Years.

He also lectures when he has the opportunity and has composed a number of songs. Yet, he still has one specific goal he wants to reach: Vilas wants very much to be the number-one ranked tennis player in the world.

In order to perfect his craft, the sensitive Argentinian decided to enlist the services of a volatile Rumanian, Ion Tiriac. The rugged coach sports a thick, wiry mustache and a bushy head of hair that makes him look downright terrifying.

And Tiriac IS a hard-driving mentor, the perfect counterpart to Vilas' quiet, easy-going style. The coach has disciplined his student's schedule and pushed him to the point of reaching the number-three berth in pro circles behind Borg and Connors.

Boxer Fight For Country, Not Fame and Fortune

In the world of sports, when there's so much talk about huge salaries, no-cut contracts, free agents and disgruntled millionaires, it's refreshing to see an athlete who has decided to shun the monetary fame and fortune of the professional sporting scene and fight for his country.

Teofilo Stevenson, two-time Olympic champion from Cuba, continues to box under the auspices of the communist nation, despite the fact that he could earn tremendous money as a pro.

Stevenson and the rest of the Cubian National boxing team will take on their counterparts from the U.S. in a special International Boxing Championship exhibition from Havana, Cuba on ABC Sunday, Feb. 11 (3:15 p.m.).

Many experts think Stevenson is the best heavyweight in the world, however, people living in Louisville, Kentucky will surely protest that statement loudly. But the fact remains that Teofilo has beaten the best the world has to offer in the amateur ranks for the past ten years.

Maybe it's because of the vast differences between the professional and amateur ranks. A pro usually fights in a 10-to-15 round bout, so his training must be geared to develop stamina. He must further pace himself in the early rounds to learn his opponent's strength and weaknesses.

An amateur boxer, on the other hand, is motivated by love of the sport only. The emphasis in their training is on developing the ability to sustain action for only three rounds. As a result, there is much greater emphasis on action.

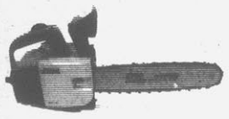

There are two avenues of winning in both types of fighting: the knockout and winning on points. Little need be said about the knockout — it is quite decisive.

Winning on points is much harder to analyze. Only the front part of the body and the head to the waist line are considered legitimate targets. No part of the arm is included in the target area.

Judges must evaluate the impact behind a blow so as to distinguish between the flicks that are not scored, and a jab or punch that has weight behind it.

There are many precautions that are taken in the sport, including a doctor always being present, the standing eight-count and penalties for such things as low blows and flagrant butting and bumping.

Mystery Is Fiendish

Hal Holbrook, Katharine Ross, Richard Anthony and Barry Bostwick star in "Murder by Natural Causes," a fiendishly entertaining mystery in which nothing is what it appears to be, on "The CBS Saturday Night Movies," Feb. 17 (9 to 11 p.m.).

The puzzling plot mixes one internationally famous mentalist (Holbrook), one avaricious and unfaithful wife (Miss Ross), one best friend of the family (Anderson), and one wife's lover (Bostwick) in a potpourri of bizarre events — that may or may not be happening.

Arthur Sinclair is a renowned theatrical performer with an apparently devoted wife, Allison, who actually is planning his death. Because of an ailing heart, Sinclair wears a pacemaker, and Allison has devised a complicated scheme intended to include cardiac arrest.

To make her plan work, she needs the cooperation of a struggling ambitious actor, Gil Weston, with whom she is having an affair. Although Weston is attracted to Sinclair's wealth and wife, he balks at participating in what amounts to murder.

Allison works to break down Gil's resistance, while taking equal care to make certain that Sinclair suspects nothing as he continues to bask in his professional success and "blissful" marriage. A special role in Allison's scenario is reserved for George Brubaker (Anderson), Sinclair's attorney, business advisor and old friend.

The casting of Barry Bostwick as the struggling young actor in the film is definitely not typecasting. A young actor he is. But struggling he's not.

And, Barry says, he never was. "To me, struggling denotes sleeping in a flophouse, going hungry, patching the soles of your shoes with cardboard — things like that. There have been times when I've had to scramble and sweat, but by my standard I have never really had to struggle."

Bostwick is currently enjoying acclaim for his performance in the film comedy, "Movie Movie." He won a Tony Award as the star of "The Robber Bridegroom" on Broadway and received a pair of additional Tony nominations for "Grease" and "They Knew What They Wanted." He was host of a children's series on television, "Razzmatazz," and was one of the stars of the popular cult-film "The Rocky Horror Show."

"I guess the closest I've ever come to a low spot in my career was when I was a dancer with 'The Mickey Finn Show' in Reno, Nevada," Bostwick says. "We followed an elephant act."

Sci-fi awards

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Superman," "Heaven Can Wait" and "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" led other nominees in the sixth annual Science Fiction Film Awards to be presented Feb. 24.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Out of the blue: mail via satellite.

FOR WILLIAM F. BOLGER, Postmaster General

Do you think the day will come when mail communications will be a thing of the past? If so, what will be the most popular and efficient method of communication? – H.C., Gary, Ind.

● I believe that there will always be a need and a place for mail, since it is such a unique, personal and lasting means of communicating. However, there is no denying that other communications will continue to cut into the Postal Service's share of the "message market." They already have. Whereas in 1945, one out of every three messages sent in America was a letter, that proportion is now one out of five. One can only guess at what the most popular method of communication will be in the distant future. One possibility is a "letter" transmitted electronically, probably by satellite, and reproduced in facsimile copy on a machine in the home.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Am I right in that Valentine's Day cards outnumber those sent on Mother's Day? – R.T. Tupelo, Miss.

● Yes. The card industry says it is the second most popular. The first, of course, is Christmas greetings. And it all started in 1847, when Esther Howland, daughter of a stationer in Worcester, Mass., hit on the idea of making her own cards after getting one from England. She took her output to stationery stores and, before she knew it, had orders worth $5,000. By the way, former FBI chief, J. Edgar Hoover, a bachelor, was inundated by cards. As the years went by, he received less and less. Why? The senders discovered that Hoover figured out their identities with the help of his fingerprint and handwriting experts. And did you know that the holiday, originally the Roman Feast of Lupercalia, was Christianized in memory of the martyrdom in A.D. 270 of St. Valentine?

The late FBI chief: the sleuth will out.

FOR TONI TENNILLE, recording star

Why did you pick Valentine's Day to get married? – P.M., Asbury Park, N.J.

● It was the only day that fitted into our schedule. We went to Virginia City, and what followed could make a comedy skit: A blizzard raged; City Hall was closed; no place could we locate a J.P. We finally found him, in a saloon. We persuaded him to take us to the wedding chapel, where the next problem was lack of witnesses. We finally managed to find two old dears — in another saloon.

FOR BILLY PAULTZ, San Antonio Spurs

Why do basketball players retire so much younger than those in such other sports as baseball and football? – G.S., Albany, N.Y.

● The main reason is because of the wear and tear on the body; in particular, the legs. Only a certain choice few basketball players can maintain the level of efficiency necessary after the age of 30. Injuries are a major concern for the older athlete, and, with such a long season, the constant pounding rapidly takes its toll on the legs and the leg joints.

FOR LAWRENCE WELK, TV host

Please explain why you give parties a wide berth – H.I., Santa Fe, N.M.

● Not all parties — just the cocktail kind. Seems to me that when the liquor flows and tongues loosen up, everyone talks and no one listens. And there's always one drinker who takes a fiendish delight in voicing her low opinion of my music. At the last one I went to, one lady was telling me off in no uncertain manner. And, while she did, her drink dripped all over my new tie and jacket.

FOR KAREN BLACK, star of The Number

I hear your Valentine's day parties are fabulous. Can you give me any tips? – J.C., Little Rock, Ark.

● Have a heart as a central motif — both in decorations and in food. You can get heart centerpieces and floral arrangements quite inexpensively. If you want to be daring, paint a heart beautyspot on your forehead. Some bakeries have heart-shaped doughnuts. Once I got chicken hearts and made different dishes with them — chicken heart sub gum, chicken Hunan and sweet-and-sour chicken.

FOR JANE APPLETON, co-author of How Not to Split Up

I know you're an authority on couples staying together, but how about getting together on blind dates – do they ever work? –L.U., Florence, S.C.

● That's how my husband, Bill, and I met, so I guess I'm in favor. Until then, I wasn't. We were fixed up by a mutual friend of my mother's. Until then, I'd sworn never to accept another blind date from this woman because her recommendations came in every size and shape — except attractive.

FOR KENNETH B. HOYT, Director of Career Education, Dept. of H.E.W.

How will our grandchildren be educated? – T.A. Council Bluffs, Iowa

● Education will become a lifelong process. It will take place in many settings besides the public system; it will develop a dual emphasis on preparing people for the "here and now," coupled with equal attention on preparing people to change with change; it will include an emphasis on values as well as learning.

PRO AND CON

Should Medical Malpractice Premiums Be Based On A Doctor's Past Performance?

PRO Andrew S. Markovits, Ophthalmologist, Fellow of the American College of Surgeons

Malpractice premiums are the only types of insurance premiums not related to relative degree of risk. Obviously, it is inequitable to the physician who is never sued to "carry" an oft-sued colleague, despite those physicians handling tough cases, with a greater risk of poor results and subsequent suits. Ideal would be a board of medical consultants to the carrier to review each case of malpractice. If the board absolves the doctor of any professional negligence (even though he lost the case legally) he should not have his premiums raised. Conversely, if he wins the case, but is judged to be negligent, he should have his premiums raised.

CON F. James Mohl, Senior Actuarial Officer, St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co.

This approach isn't practical or fair. No evidence shows that a doctor with one malpractice "claim" is more likely to have a future claim than a doctor with no claims. Few doctors encounter two or more claims. It may take years to determine whether a medical malpractice claim has merit. Since two-thirds of these claims are eventually closed without indemnity payment, it would be unfair to load an extra charge into a doctor's premium simply because a claim has been filed. Such a pricing approach might discourage some doctors in high-risk specialties from treating cases where the chance of patient recovery is slim.

CAN CONTEMPORARY MEN AND WOMEN BE FRIENDS?

By Rona Jaffe

When I started doing interviews on this subject I didn't know what I would find. It had always seemed as though a true friendship between a man and a woman was the last frontier. You were supposed to be "best friends" with someone of your own sex, and "sex" is the operative word here. Sex always seemed to get in the way. The old wives' (and husbands') tale would have it that an honest, unobstructed friendship between a man and a woman was impossible unless one of them looked like Quasimodo or one of them, preferably the woman, was forbiddingly ancient.

The above theories make the ridiculous assumption that everyone is physically attracted to every member of the opposite sex. Of course that's not true. These theories make the equally faulty assumption that "they are only after one thing," which is something we used to speculate about in my all-girls school when I was about 13 years old. I suppose at a certain age it is true for a while, but not for very long.

Many women work, because they want to or they have to, and they work with men. Colleagues tend to be interested in things which might bore their respective spouses. That is the Work Friend. Then there are the people you meet socially who fill one function but not the more complete function of someone you might fall in love with. That is the Movie Friend or the Jogging Friend or the Gossip Friend. And then there is the Special Friend, someone you care about a great deal, but in a way which has nothing to do with sex or romance; and that kind of friendship between men and women has been blossoming all over the place.

Some are old friends, from school or even from childhood. Some are new friends. But all share a special place in one's life.

Abby. "My best friend is a man. He is also my husband's best friend. When my friend and I are together we talk about different things than he talks about with my husband. My husband is the strong, silent type — he says something only when it's important. I like to jabber for hours with my friends. My husband is my stability, the sanity in my life. I would never be interested in a sexual relationship with another man. But I can't expect my husband to be interested in all my interests, nor am I interested in all of his. No one person can be all things to another person. Your friends fill those other needs."

"And what about when the three of you are together?"

"Then it's really as if our mutual best friend is a guest, and my husband and I each take turns entertaining him. It's strange."

Ann. "I have a lot of men friends, all of whom are ex-boyfriends from school. My husband is doing graduate work and he has to spend of lot of time studying, so I go out with my friends. He isn't jealous of my men friends because he knows he has no cause to be. But he is jealous of my women friends! He says: 'I can't understand why you'd rather spend an evening out with those women than be with me.' He seems to think that whatever my women friends and I talk about is trivial. He doesn't understand yet that I still need my women friends and that you don't just give up old friends when you get married."

And what about when you and your husband and your men friends are all together?

"Then it's almost as if my husband and I are competing as to which of us can be more entertaining to the outsider. There's no personal warmth the way you have when you're along with a friend — it's party manners."

The function of the male-female friendship is also changing. A few years ago a man was needed as social protection, but now he isn't, and this has led to more honesty in friendships.

Helen. "When I was in my early 20s, I had more men friends than women friends. I used to take trips with a man friend. It was completely platonic, and we never took a longer trip than a week so that if there was any little secret problem of him being more interested in me than I was in him, it didn't have time to surface. At the time, I preferred having men friends to women friends because I thought they could take care of me. When you went out to dinner in a restaurant with a man you were a couple like two normal people, but if two women went out, they were treated badly: the waiters assumed we weren't going to spend much money. If the man or I met someone we wanted to go out with during the trip, okay. I didn't mind spending an evening alone and neither did he. But they were such short trips we usually didn't bother to meet anyone. We were too busy sight-seeing. Now two women aren't treated badly if they go out to dinner together — I won't let anyone treat me badly! Now if I go on a trip, I'd rather go with another woman, or with a man I'm in love with."

So the role of man friend as escort has changed to friend, confidant and adviser.

Susan. "My ex-boyfriends — some are good friends, some I can't understand what I ever saw in them! The ones who are friends can advise me about problems I'm having with the one I'm currently in love with. A man friend seems to have a more accurate view of what the problems are. He'll be more tolerant and understanding of the man's side of it. My women friends tend to take my side."

Every woman I spoke to had a man friend, or several men friends, and it was obvious that we are not only ready for friendship between men and women but that it exists, and we enjoy it. The surprise was that every woman I spoke to, no matter how young and liberated, still put as the one prerequisite for a friendship between a man and a woman that there be no sex involved.

Sandy. "A woman and a man can be friends as long as there's no sex. In a love relationship you have jealousy, insecurity, hostility; you expect too much and you want to change him. When you're friends, you don't feel it reflects on you if they do something you don't like. You can accept their faults."

Karen. "Both friendship and love are time-consuming, but you always know you are there for your friends, and they

National Smoker Study:

Merit Rocks Tar/Taste Theory.

Flavor rated as good as or better than high tar leaders in fresh research study.

Can low tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco disprove the old "low tar, low taste" theory?

Read the results of detailed, nationwide research conducted among high tar smokers who taste-tested MERIT against high tar brands—and among current MERIT smokers.

Research Confirms Taste Satisfaction

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first real alternative for high tar smokers.

MEN AND WOMEN

are there for you. With a man you're in love with, if he breaks a date or a promise, you feel threatened: 'I'm not important to him.' If a friend does the same thing you're angry and hurt, too, but on a different level. Sure a friend can hurt you a lot, but there's not that pain crushing your chest that makes you feel like you just smoked three packs of cigarettes."

Claire: "When there's sex, the two people spend a lot of time testing each other, hoping not to be hurt. In a friendship you know you won't be hurt — friendship is trust, sharing, closeness, respect for the other person's freedom and having fun together. A friend will listen to your troubles, not create them."

What about people who say, "My best friend is my wife," or "My best friend is my husband"?

Linda. "They must have been married for a long time. It takes a long time to feel that kind of trust, so comfortable with someone that you can tell him everything and know he'll never use it to betray you. I would like to be at that point some day with the man I'm going with now."

Cynical? Or old-fashioned? How long has it been since we have heard words like "betray" used in a romance? Tough-minded? Or soft-heartedly romantic? Perhaps this is a reflection of what is happening in our society today. There is beginning to be a backlash against the sexual revolution, against the freedom to become instantly involved with a stranger and as quickly uninvolved. There is certainly guilt, fear, hostility, lack of trust, asking for too much reassurance or angrily accepting too little of it.

The people we love have tremendous power over us because they can break our hearts. And the "instant love" that seems to hover around casual sex has the power to hurt our egos. Surprisingly, people are demanding just as much from a romance today as they did in our parents' day, except they have different words for it today. Then, he had to be "serious." Today we speak of "trust." In the old days it had to "lead to something." The something, of course, was marriage. Today most people who wouldn't be caught dead mentioning marriage still look upon their lovers with so much suspicion they might as well be investigating a lifetime partner.

What they are saying is, quite simply, they are capable of pain and they don't want to be hurt.

Rachel. "I have a man friend whom I've known for about 12 years. We liked each other immediately. When we met he wanted to have an affair with me, but I said, 'No, let's be friends. It'll last longer.' It was just an instinct I had, but it turned out to be right. The affair would have been an ego trip for him. He's too insecure to trust anyone he's in love with. He's had a few stormy romances and always when they were over he got along much better with her than when they were involved. He no longer felt threatened and jealous, so he could really like her. He knows how neurotic he is but that doesn't help. He's been the sweetest and most protective of friends to me, always on my side. He disappears sometimes — when he's in love, or when he's out of love and depressed — but it doesn't bother me. If a man I was involved with disappeared, of course it would be horrendous for me. But this is my friend, and I understand. I disappear sometimes, too. You don't always have to be reinforcing each other. A postcard from Bermuda is fine, too."

Do men have the same problems with sex versus friendship that women do?

The men I spoke to tended to be less open than the women about their feelings on the subject and often tried to appear too high-minded to worry about such problems as insecurity in a romance. Of course they had women friends, they said. And of course these were platonic relationships. They were as capable of platonic relationships as anybody. When I asked them about friendships with exloves, they often said: "I think she hates me," or, "Well, she has a lot of problems," implying that it was he who terminated the relationship, or at least that it certainly didn't end with the two of them being friends.

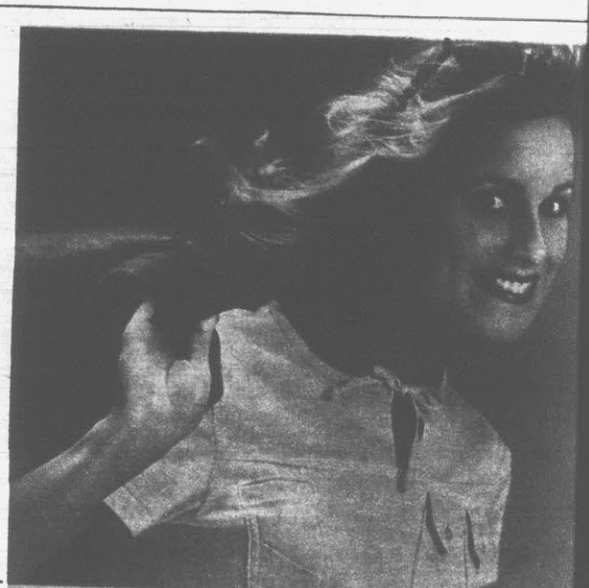

It seemed to me that men have more problems being friends with women with whom they've had a sexual relationship than women do with men, although platonic relationships seem to work out as enduring friendships.

It may be that men don't need the friendship of women as much as women need and enjoy the friendship of men, but I doubt it. All the women I spoke to had men friends. So obviously men have women friends. And some men admitted that they "couldn't stand it" if they didn't have women friends, for without them life would be a very dreary place.

So happy Valentine's Day, 1979. Platonic, anyone? FW

You can't be turned down for this Insurance if you're 50 to 80!

Here is a life insurance policy that can be yours for the asking if you inquire before March 7th. Not only is no physical examination required, but the policy is actually issued to you without a single health question!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS™ is an individual life insurance policy that guarantees to accept every man and woman between 50 and 80 who applies during the Guaranteed-Acceptance Period—regardless of any other insurance carried.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is underwritten by Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, specialists in serving the specific needs of America's older population. This protection is recommended to their members by two of America's highly respected national nonprofit organizations of the mature: the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA) and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

An Important Opportunity for Every Older Person!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is a remarkable concept of life insurance, achieved as a result of the efforts Colonial Penn has devoted to meeting the insurance needs of mature people.

It is a life insurance policy we can make available to all mature people—a policy whose cost is reasonable and whose benefits are worthwhile.

Here's How PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS Can Do This For You:

During the first two years that your policy is in effect, your coverage is reduced. If you should die during the first policy year, the benefit paid to your beneficiary is $100. If death occurs during the second policy year, your beneficiary receives $250. Once two years have passed, you are covered for the full face amount of the policy.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS enables the older person to obtain worthwhile benefits for his insurance dollar—and, at the same time, guarantees acceptance for all applicants.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS also provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year.

The cost? JUST $6.95 A MONTH!

No matter what your age, your sex, or the condition of your health, you pay just $6.95 a month. The amount of coverage you receive is based on your sex and age. However, once you are insured the amount of your insurance will never go down, and your payments will never go up!

Act Now—You Have Nothing To Lose!

To obtain full information on PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS in time to take advantage of this opportunity to become insured, please mail the coupon before March 7th.

With PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS insurance...

- Everyone between 50 and 80 can get this life insurance—no one will be refused!
- You receive a policy created for the needs of mature persons!
- There are no health questions!
- There is no physical examination!
- This policy provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year!
- Your insurance cannot be cancelled for any reason as long as you maintain your premium payments.

REMEMBER—To take advantage of this guaranteed opportunity to obtain PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS without answering any questions about your health, please mail the coupon before Wednesday, March 7, 1979. Full information and your guaranteed-issue application will be on their way to you by mail.

No broker or agent will visit you and you will be under no obligation to purchase the policy.

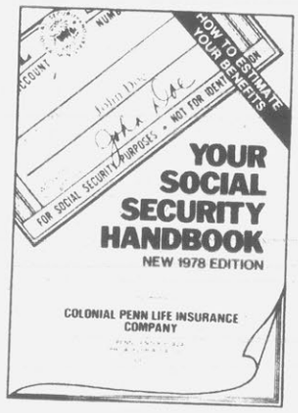

Even if you are not old enough for this insurance, you may want the information for another member of your family or for a friend.

The World's First Miniature $20 Gold Piece

SOLID 14 KARAT GOLD - ONLY $19.95

The Historic Providence Mint proudly announces the minting of the world's first miniature $20 Gold Piece - in solid 14 karat gold

You have a rare opportunity to possess the world's first miniature $20.00 Gold Piece in solid 14 karat gold. This coin is an exquisite duplicate - minted in exactly the same manner as the first Saint-Gauden's $20.00 Gold Piece struck at the U.S. Mint in 1907. Every detail - even the delicate sculpture of the tiny wing feathers is boldly defined. Carefully die struck in deep dimension, this truly magnificent coin highlights the unique Roman Numeral dates and the lustrous gold, mirror-like finish of Saint-Gauden's original. Each of these magnificent $20.00 gold pieces is protectively housed in a plush collector's case. And every one is accompanied by an individually numbered Certificate of Authenticity and a 30 day money-back guarantee.

AVAILABLE FOR A LIMITED TIME!

This fabulous $20.00 Gold Piece in solid 14 karat gold is available exclusively from the Historic Providence Mint. The price - for a limited time only - is $19.95. This price is guaranteed until March 29,1979. However, due to the rising gold market, we urge you to act promptly. Send for your coin TODAY!

Due to fluctuations of gold and silver prices on the world market, we reserve the right to withdraw this offer at any time. Current price is guaranteed only until March 29, 1979.

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK
SWEET TREATS FOR VALENTINE'S DAY

By Marilyn Hansen

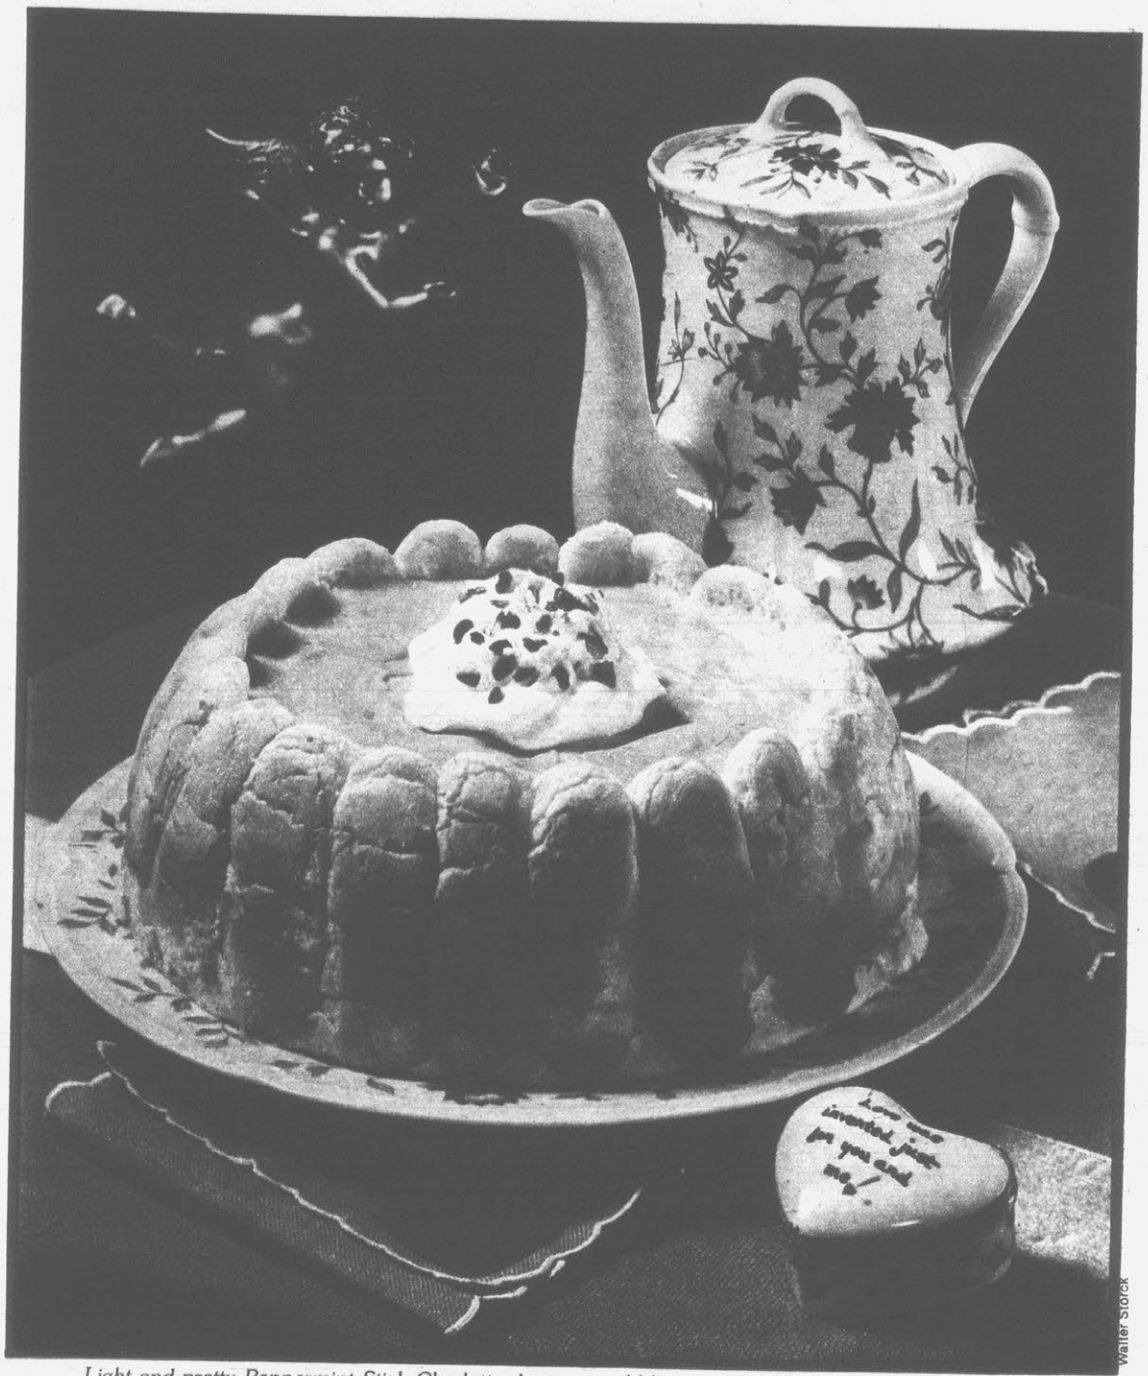

Whether you are planning a party or serving a special dinner for two, one of our Valentine desserts will be just what you're looking for.

PEPPERMINT STICK CHARLOTTE

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup sugar, divided
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
2½ cups milk
Red food coloring
⅔ cup finely crushed peppermint stick candy
12 ladyfingers
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

1. In medium saucepan, mix gelatin, ¼ cup sugar and salt. Beat together egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatin mixture.
2. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes.
3. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Stir in a few drops of red food coloring and crushed peppermint candy.
4. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.
5. While mixture is chilling, separate ladyfingers and stand around side of 9-inch springform pan, rounded side against the pan.
6. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat remaining ¼ cup sugar and beat until stiff peaks form.
7. Fold beaten egg whites into chilled gelatin mixture. Fold in whipped cream and turn into prepared pan. Chill several hours or until set. To serve, remove sides of pan and garnish with additional whipped cream and crushed peppermint candy.

Makes 8 to 10 servings

Walter Storck

Light and pretty Peppermint Stick Charlotte dessert would be good for a Valentine Bridge Luncheon.

STRAWBERRY CREPES FLAMBE

8 crepes
¼ cup cream cheese, softened
½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 pkg. (10 oz. size) frozen sweetened strawberries, thawed
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons strawberry or raspberry liqueur
2 tablespoons brandy or kirsch

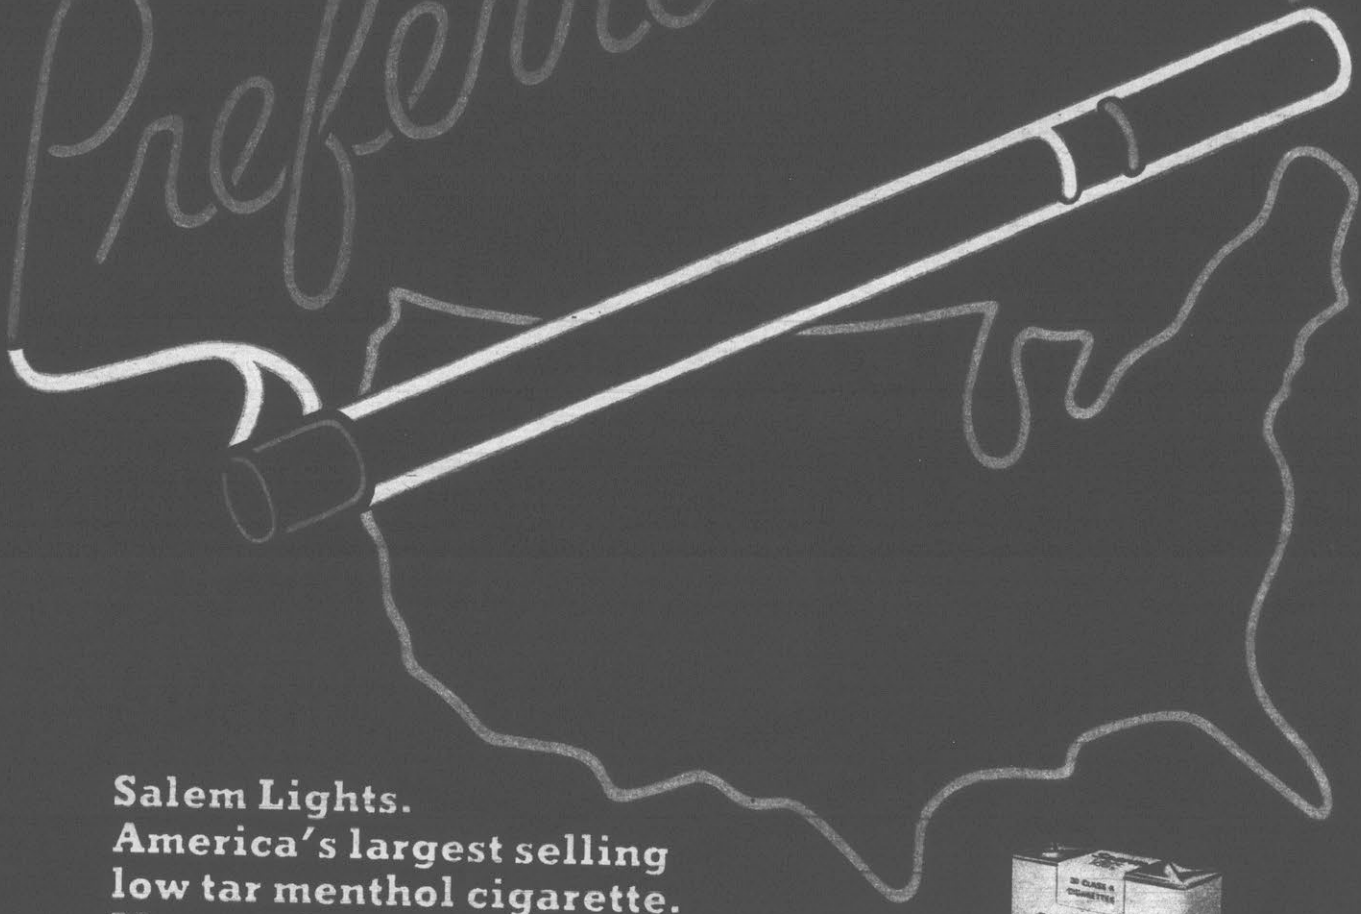

1. Make crepes, set aside and keep warm.
2. Make filling: In medium bowl work cream cheese until very creamy. Stir in sour cream and confectioners' sugar.
3. Fill crepes with filling and roll. Place filled crepes on dessert plates, offer two to a serving.
4. In skillet, melt butter, add strawberries and sugar. Cook, stirring until sugar dissolves. Stir in strawberry liqueur.
5. In small pan, heat brandy slightly. Remove from heat, ignite with match. Pour flaming brandy into sauce. Ladle sauce over crepes and serve.

Makes 4 servings

4. Lightly oil 7-inch skillet and heat until a drop of water sizzles on it.
5. Spoon 2 tablespoons batter into skillet, and quickly tilt pan so that batter covers bottom evenly.
6. Cook crepe until golden brown on underside, turn with spatula and quickly brown second side. Remove from pan and stack between waxed paper. Makes 8 crepes

CRISP WAFFLES WITH STRAWBERRIES AND CREAM

1 cup sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, beaten
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
¼ cup cold water
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups sliced sweetened fresh strawberries or
2 pkgs. (10-oz. size) sweetened strawberries
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
Sweetened whipped cream

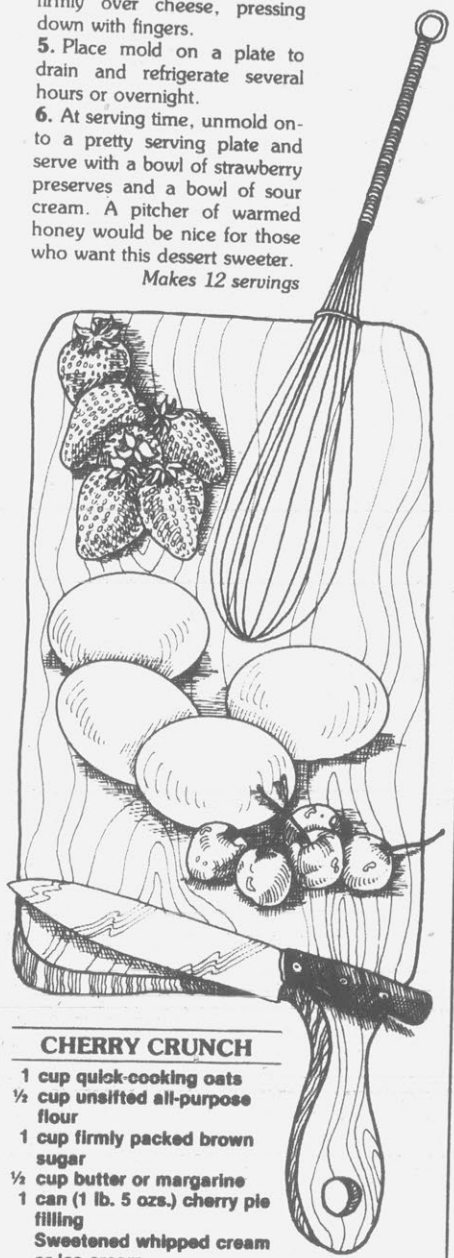

1. Onto sheet of waxed paper, sift flour, baking powder and salt.
2. In medium bowl, beat eggs, add sugar and beat again. Stir in butter, water and vanilla.
3. Add sifted flour mixture and mix, beating until just blended.
4. Heat waffle iron according to manufacturer's directions.
5. Bake waffles in hot waffle iron, about 2 minutes or until golden brown.
6. Serve waffles topped with strawberries, a scoop of ice cream and a spoonful of whipped cream. Makes 6 servings

COEUR A LA CREME

1 lb. fine curd creamed cottage cheese
2 pkgs. (8 oz. size) cream cheese, room temperature
1 cup heavy cream
¼ cup honey
Dash salt
2 jars (12-oz. size) strawberry preserves or 1 qt. fresh strawberries, rinsed
1 pint sour cream
1 cup honey, warmed

1. Press cottage cheese through a fine strainer.
2. Mix strained cottage cheese with softened cream cheese, cream, honey and salt. Use an electric mixer or food processor for this.
3. Line a heart-shaped mold, with holes for drainage, with cheesecloth.
4. Spoon cheese mixture into lined mold. Fold cheesecloth firmly over cheese, pressing down with fingers.
5. Place mold on a plate to drain and refrigerate several hours or overnight.
6. At serving time, unmold onto a pretty serving plate and serve with a bowl of strawberry preserves and a bowl of sour cream. A pitcher of warmed honey would be nice for those who want this dessert sweeter.

Makes 12 servings

CHERRY CRUNCH

1 cup quick-cooking oats
½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
1 can (1 lb. 5 ozs.) cherry pie filling
Sweetened whipped cream or ice cream

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease 8-inch square baking pan.
2. Mix oats, flour and sugar. Cut in butter with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Spoon half of mixture into prepared pan.
3. Top with pie filling; sprinkle with remaining crumbs.
4. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes. Spoon into dessert dishes. Serve warm with sweetened whipped cream or ice cream.

SHOCK ABSORBER FOR ACHING FEET!

ONLY $4.49 PER PAIR

Now get relief from the torture of tired, aching feet — WITHOUT the expense of personally-molded shoes or custom arch supports. Our remarkable 2-ounce FOOT PLEASERS fit any shoe, any shoe style in your closet, and actually mold themselves to your feet like a custom last. And then, like small shock absorbers, they cushion every step you take, all day long.

The secret is their special 3-layer design. Each special-purpose layer plays its part to:

- Support and raise your arch, help reduce bone and muscle strain in your lower leg and foot.
- Take the "heat" off by reducing friction between your stocking or sock and the shoe, for that "powdered-feet" feel.
- Take the pressure off bunions, corns, hammertoes and other foot problems, once and for all!

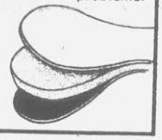

TRY FOOT PLEASERS ONCE and you'll never want to take a step without them! You'll stand all day behind a counter or on a cold concrete floor in undreamed of comfort! You'll shop or sightsee for hours and still feel like dancing at night! You'll walk cool, with the happiest feet in town, or return them for a full refund of your purchase price. Order a pair for every family member and save more! If not delighted, return within 14 days for refund (except postage & handling). Mail coupon now!

THE FOOT PLEASERS' SECRET BRINGS CUSTOM-SHOE COMFORT TO ANY PAIR YOU OWN!

Smooth, firm top layer reduces friction between sock and shoe that causes corns, bunions and other foot problems.

Secret synthetic middle layer molds itself to your foot like a custom last the very first time you wear it — gives you the natural arch support you need!

HEARTY VEGETABLES THAT BRIGHTEN WINTER MEALS

Whether you'd like a steaming bowl of fragrant soup or a new way to serve everyday vegetables, these recipes will add an extra touch to February meal-planning.

Tempt the family tonight with Dutch Oven Cabbage, Broccoli with Mushrooms or Winter Squash Soufflé.

DUTCH OVEN CABBAGE

- ½ cup thinly sliced onion
- ½ teaspoon freeze-dried onion
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can (11 ozs.) condensed tomato bisque soup
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 teaspoons vinegar
- 1 large head cabbage (about 3 lbs.), cut in 6 wedges

1. In Dutch oven or large, heavy pan, cook onion with chives and garlic in butter until tender.

2. Blend in soup, sour cream and vinegar. Add cabbage. Cover; cook over low heat 30 minutes or until tender. Stir occasionally. Makes 6 servings

BROCCOLI WITH MUSHROOMS

- 1 bunch fresh broccoli (about 2 lbs.)
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can (10¾ ozs.) condensed mushroom soup
- ¾ cup water
- ¼ cup Madeira wine
- ½ cup cooked mushrooms

1. Peel broccoli stalk; separate broccoli into spears.

2. In skillet, cook onion with celery in butter until tender. Blend in soup water, and wine.

3. Add broccoli and mushrooms. Cover; cook over low heat 20 minutes or until tender. Stir occasionally.

Makes 8 servings

CRISP BATTER FRIED CAULIFLOWER

- Salad oil
- 1 medium head cauliflower (about 2 lbs.)
- 1 can (10¾ ozs.) condensed cream of onion soup
- 1 cup cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon celery salt
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 2 egg whites

1. Half-fill wok or large saucepan with oil; heat to 400°F.

2. Separate cauliflower into flowerets; cook in boiling water 3 minutes. Drain well.

3. Make batter: in bowl, combine remaining ingredients except egg whites.

4. Beat egg whites until stiff but shiny; fold in batter.

5. Coat cauliflowerets with batter. Fry, a few at time, in hot oil until lightly browned; drain.

Makes about 6½ cups

SAUSAGE SQUASH DINNER

- 3 medium acorn squash (about 4 lbs.)
- ½ lb. pork sausage
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1 can (10¾ ozs.) condensed cream of celery soup
- 2 cups diced cooked rutabaga (1 lb.)
- 1 cup cube stuffing mix
- ½ cup chopped pecans

1. Cut squash in half; scoop out seeds and fiber. Cook squash in boiling water 15 minutes; remove and drain.

2. Place squash upright in 3-quart shallow baking dish (13″×9″×2″).

3. Meanwhile, in saucepan, brown sausage; stir to separate meat. Pour off fat, reserving 1 tablespoon drippings.

4. Cook onion with sausage in drippings until tender. Blend in remaining ingredients; spoon into squash. Bake at 350°F. for 1 hour or until done.

BAKED RICE AND ZUCCHINI ITALIANO

- 1½ cups raw converted rice
- 1½ cups dry white wine
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, cut up
- 1 can (13¾ ozs.) chicken broth
- 3 medium zucchini, sliced ½ inch thick
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1 cup water
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons minced garlic
- 1 teaspoon oregano leaves
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 cup shredded Mozzarella, Muenster or sharp Cheddar cheese
- 1 cup shredded Romano cheese
- 1 cup heavy cream or evaporated milk

1. Preheat oven to 400°F. Combine all ingredients except cheese and cream in a 13½″ × 8½″ baking dish; mix.

2. Cover with aluminum foil, crimping it tightly to edges of dish. Bake 1 hour, stirring at the end of 30 minutes.

3. Uncover baking dish. Stir in cheese and cream. Return to oven. Continue baking, uncovered, 10 minutes longer.

Makes 8 to 10 servings

PARSNIPS AND STEAK

- 1 can (10¾ ozs.) condensed beefy mushroom soup
- ¼ cup salad oil
- ¼ cup tarragon vinegar
- ½ teaspoon garlic salt
- ½ teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed
- 1 lb. parsnips, cut in 1½ pieces
- 2 lbs. top round steak (about 1½ inches thick), scored
- 8 medium mushroom caps, cut in half
- 18 cherry tomatoes

1. To make marinade, in 3-quart shallow baking dish (13″×9″×2″), combine soup, salad oil, vinegar, garlic salt, and Italian seasoning.

2. Cook parsnips in boiling water 5 minutes; drain.

3. Arrange steak, parsnips, and mushrooms in marinade. Marinate 3 hours, turning occasionally.

4. On 6 skewers, arrange alternately parsnips, mushrooms and tomatoes. Place steak on broiler pan; broil 4 inches from heat 5 minutes. Brush with marinade; turn.

5. Add kabobs; brush steak and kabobs with marinade. Broil 5 minutes more, turning and brushing kabobs with marinade. Heat remaining marinade. Serve with steak and kabobs.

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

IN MARILYN'S KITCHEN

This month we find an easy old-fashioned recipe that would be good to serve the family for dinner. The recipe is "Chicken Brunswick Stew," a recipe from the old South. Virginians claim to have invented the concoction, naming it after Caroline of Brunswick, wife of King George III. However, Georgians disagree and boldly claim that their state originated the dish, naming it after the town of Brunswick, Georgia.

Regardless of its origin it is a tasty dish and one that you will want to try yourself. Beyond serving to the family. Brunswick stew could make a good winter brunch entree or you could serve it at a buffet supper.

In the many versions of this old recipe, you might also find rabbit as an ingredient and beef or veal also, in other words — whatever was on hand.

Once you make it and get the feeling of the dish, you might want to try your own variations. You could use all chicken wings or chicken legs or thighs. You could also use ½ chicken and ½ smoked ham cubes or even a chunk from a leftover ham.

BRUNSWICK STEW

2 (2½ to 3 lbs.) chickens, cut into 8 pieces
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
4 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 cups coarsely chopped onion
2 cups coarsely chopped celery
½ cup chopped celery tops
2 to 3 lbs. fully cooked ham shank or smoked boneless butt
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon rosemary leaves, crushed
4 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon Tabasco sauce
2½ lbs. tomatoes, peeled and chopped
Water or chicken broth
1 lb. green beans, rinsed and trimmed
1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen lima beans, defrosted
4 cups fresh corn, cut from cob or frozen cut corn, defrosted
1½ lbs. potatoes, peeled and cubed

1. Sprinkle the chicken with salt and pepper. In 8-qt. kettle or Dutch oven, heat vegetable oil until hot, but not smoking.

2. Add chicken pieces and brown a few pieces at a time. Do not crowd and turn frequently for even browning. Remove pieces from Dutch oven as they are browned.

3. Add onion, celery and celery tops to pan and cook, stirring, until tender, about 8 minutes. Drain off excess fat.

4. Return chicken to Dutch oven; add ham shank, bay leaf, rosemary, parsley, Tabasco and tomatoes. Add chicken broth or water to cover by one inch and bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 35 to 45 minutes or until chicken is tender.

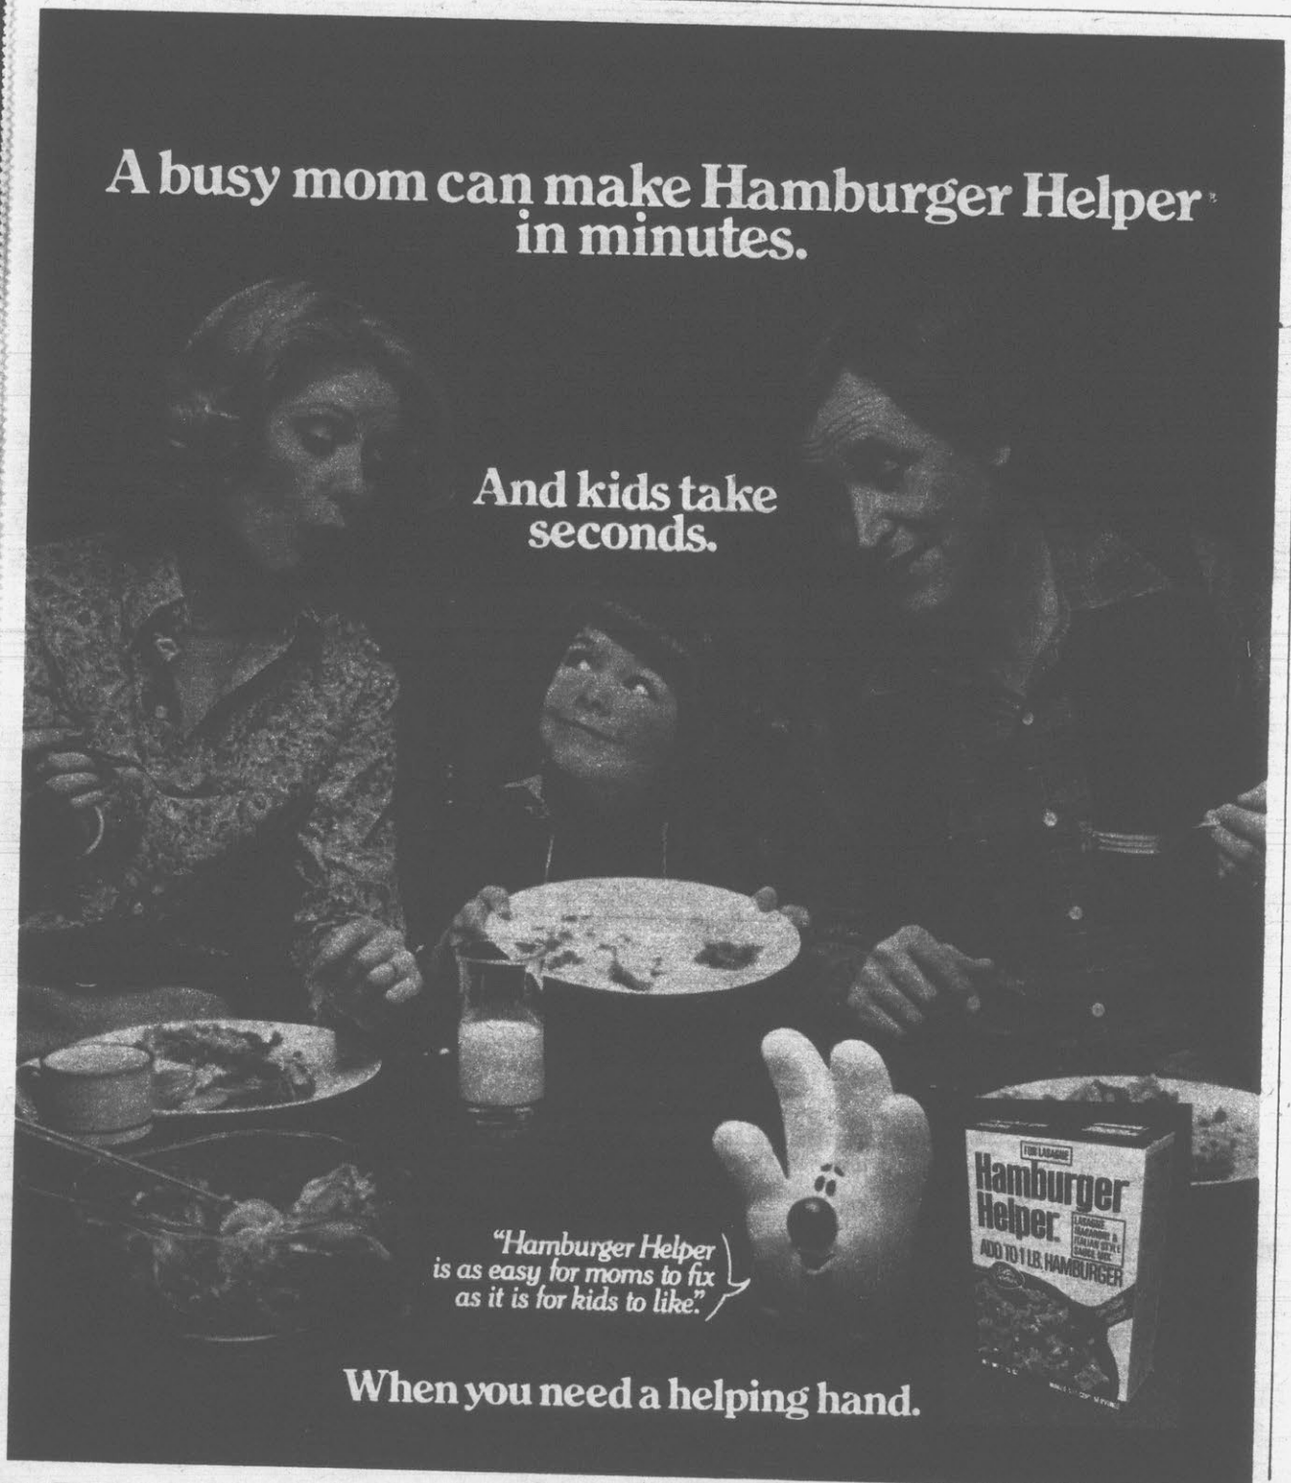

5. Add green beans, lima beans, corn and potatoes. Stir vegetables into liquid and return to boiling. Reduce heat, cover and boil gently for 15 to 20 minutes longer or until vegetables are tender.

6. Remove ham shank from Dutch oven; remove skin and fat, discard. Cut ham into large chunks and return to Dutch oven. Taste stew, add more salt, pepper and Tabasco if needed, to your taste.

7. Liquid should be fairly thick at this point. If you wish to thicken it a bit, blend 2 tablespoons flour into ¼ cup cold water smoothly and stir into hot stew. Heat, stirring until liquid comes to boiling and is thickened.

8. To serve, ladle over hot cooked white rice. Buttermilk biscuits and a simple tossed green salad would go along nicely.

ADD ZEST TO EVERYDAY COOKING WITH BEER

Beer, one of America's favorite beverages, lends its own personality to many different foods — sometimes creating spectacular results. I spoke recently to Karin Harms Elliot, the personable young woman who is the chef at Das Festhaus in Williamsburg, Va., and she gave me several interesting recipes for you to cook at home.

CHEESE SOUP

¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup all-purpose flour
2½ cups milk
⅔ cup beer
2 cups (8 ozs.) shredded sharp natural Cheddar cheese
⅛ teaspoon salt
Dash ground black pepper

1. Cook carrots and onion in butter or margarine until tender.
2. Add flour and blend in smoothly. Stir in milk and beer. Cook, stirring over medium heat until liquid comes to boiling and is thickened.
3. Add cheese and seasonings, stirring until melted.

Makes 4 to 6 servings

FONDUE AU BEER

2 cups (8 ozs.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
2 cups (8 ozs.) shredded natural brick or mild Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Dash powdered mustard
⅛ teaspoon garlic salt
1 can (12 ozs.) beer
1 loaf crusty French or Italian bread, cut in 1-inch cubes

1. Toss cheeses, cornstarch and seasonings together until well mixed. Set aside.
2. Heat beer in fondue pot over medium heat until steaming (do not boil). Add cheese mixture a handful at a time, stirring constantly until cheese melts.
3. Continue to cook and stir until all cheese is melted and fondue is the consistency of a medium white sauce. Remove to fondue burner over low heat. Dip bread cubes into fondue with forks.

Makes 5 or 6 servings

KARIN'S FLOUNDER IN BEER

4 flounder or brook trout, whole with skin on ½ cup mayonnaise
Paprika
1 teaspoon seasoning salt
1 cup beer
Lemon butter
Fresh parsley

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Coat a 9 × 13 × 2-in. pan with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.
2. Coat flounder with mayonnaise and place in pan with dark skin side down.
3. Sprinkle fish with paprika and seasoning salt. Using a sharp knife, make two diagonal cuts on each flounder and pour beer over all. There should be ¼-inch of beer in bottom of pan.
4. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes or just until fish flakes easily with fork. Serve with lemon butter and parsley.

Makes 4 servings

LIEDERKRANZ DIP

1 pkg. (4 ozs.) Liederkranz soft-ripened cheese, softened
1 pkg. (8 ozs.) cream cheese, softened
2 to 4 tablespoons beer
¼ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon garlic salt

1. Beat cheeses together in food processor. Add remaining ingredients, blending well.
2. Spoon into serving bowl. Refrigerate to blend flavors.
3. Serve at room temperature with potato chips, carrot sticks or cauliflowerets.

Makes about 1½ cups

BUCKWHEAT BLINI

1 envelope active dry yeast
½ cup warm beer
½ cup milk
1 cup buckwheat pancake mix
1 egg, well beaten
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 tablespoon sugar
Sour cream
1 jar (3 or 4 ozs.) red caviar

1. Dissolve yeast in warm beer. Stir in milk, pancake mix, egg, butter and sugar. Beat with wire whisk just until smooth.
2. Lightly oil a griddle or skillet until a drop of water bounces on it.
3. Drop batter by tablespoon on hot griddle, forming 3-inch diameter pancakes. Turn with spatula when edges appear cooked and brown other side. Keep blini warm until all batter is cooked.
4. To serve, top with a spoonful of sour cream and caviar.

HOW BEER IS MADE

How is that amber-gold liquid with the white-capped head brewed? To begin with, a blend of top-quality barley is cleaned, malted and then sent to the brewhouse. There, it is crushed and measured. Specially selected rice is also used.

The crushed malted barley and the rice are precisely proportioned and mixed with water in the mashing tanks. After this mixing, the mixture is strained, producing a clear amber liquid called wort. This liquid wort passes into the huge copper brew kettles. Here hops are added, cone-shaped plants whose clusters of blossoms give flavor and aroma.

After the wort passes through the hops strainer, it is pumped to the cooling towers and cooled to approximately 50°F. The wort is then sent to the starting cellars, where yeast is added to start the fermentation.

It is primarily during this process of fermentation that the liquid wort becomes beer.

When the beer is fully fermented it is moved to the lager cellars, where it is aged in huge glass-lined tanks. Beechwood chips cover the lower quarter of the tanks, creating a natural clarification process for the beer. It is at this point that a small amount of freshly yeasted wort is added to the beer, causing a secondary fermentation that produces natural carbonation and delightful flavor.

To assure clarity and purity, the beer is passed through a series of finishing filters. Brewmasters personally check taste, color, carbonation, alcoholic content, stability and other characteristics to make sure that each brew is of uniform high quality.

The resulting beer is now ready for canning or bottling. After you buy beer it should be stored in a cool, dark place.

HAIRCOLOR CLINIC

"Dear Barbara Britton..."

Coloring Gray Hair! Did you know there's a hard way and an easy way?

Everyone remembers Barbara Britton, the lovely star of TV's Mr. and Mrs. North. Recently she discovered a simple new way to color gray hair that many women have asked about.

• Dear Barbara: My gray hair has been getting me down. But I'm afraid of the dull dyed look if I color it. I read you were really pleased with Lady Grecian Formula so I looked for it, but there was no color chart. How do I pick my shade?

Mrs. V.M., Fredrickstown, Ohio

There's no confusing color chart with Lady Grecian. The one clean clear liquid works whatever your original color was. Just comb it through daily until the gray disappears. Then once a week or so keeps your beautiful natural looking color. And no dyed look because Lady Grecian works with the natural chemistry of your hair to retain a natural blend of shades.

• Dear Barbara: I've used haircoloring, about 10 years—all kinds. They look fake, dry my hair and split the ends. And I hate those messy touch-ups. Can I switch without waiting til the old color grows out?

Mrs. L.D., Hallstead, Pa.

Yes indeed. Lady Grecian Formula is compatible with any haircolor you may have been using. It's gentle because it has no damaging peroxide so your hair will be softer, healthier. Dry split ends begin to disappear and switching's really easy. Just use Lady Grecian on the gray root area til it blends in. And no more tiresome touch-ups.

• Dear Barbara: I'm just beginning to get gray, but I don't want to get into complicated haircoloring. Will Lady Grecian work on just a little gray?

Mrs. B.D., Bowie, Md.

Oh, it's especially good for early gray, because it colors only the gray...And it's so simple, no messy dye. Just comb a few clear drops through the gray til it blends with your natural color. Or, you can even make highlights.

• • •

The uniquely easy way to color gray hair—Lady Grecian Formula, a practically clear liquid that's totally different from ordinary haircolor. Just comb a few drops through daily until you have the color you want. No mixing, no mess and no peroxide, so you know it's gentle. No tiresome touch-ups either.

Once you have the color you want, (usually about 10 days), a quick comb-through once a week or so will keep it naturally lovely with no gray roots ever. Available at toiletry counters everywhere.

BREAK THE STRANGLEHOLD OF BRONCHIAL ASTHMA.

Relax bronchial muscles and get rid of thick, clogging mucus.

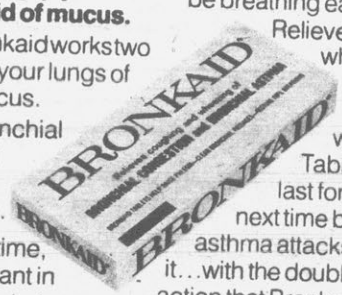

Of all leading tablets, only Bronkaid® can give you this double-barreled action. No other leading tablet has an expectorant to help you raise and get rid of mucus.

2 At the same time, the expectorant in Bronkaid Tablets helps soften and break up the plugs of mucus so you can expel them easily.

Within minutes, you can be breathing easy and free. Relieved of hacking, wheezing, gasping for air. And with Bronkaid Tablets, relief will last for hours. The next time bronchial asthma attacks you, attack it . . . with the double-barreled action that Bronkaid gives you.

HEARTY LOAVES FOR HAPPY BAKERS

When icy winds blow down from the north and there's a crackling fire on the hearth, a winter weekend stretches out lazily before us. One knows that now is the time to go out into one's own kitchen and stir up several crusty loaves. The earthy breads I present for you today have a rough-hewn honesty in every homespun slice. The choice is up to you.

THREE-FLOUR HERB BREAD

- 1 to 1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 cup unsifted rye flour
- 2 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 3 cloves garlic, crushed
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- ½ teaspoon rosemary leaves, crushed
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ cups very hot tap water (120°F.-130°F.)
- 3 tablespoons margarine, melted

1. Combine flours on large sheet of waxed paper. In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 1½ cups flour mixture, sugar, salt, undissolved active dry yeast, garlic, parsley, rosemary and pepper.
2. Gradually add very hot tap water and melted margarine to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally.
3. Add 1 cup flour mixture. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.
4. Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes.
5. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
6. Punch dough down; let rest 15 minutes. On a lightly floured board, roll dough into a 14 × 9-inch rectangle. Shape into loaf.
7. Place in greased 9 × 5 × 3-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
8. Bake at 400°F. for 40 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

Makes 1 loaf

BROWN RICE BREAD

- 6½ to 7½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 cup white cornmeal
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- ¼ cup (½ stick) margarine, softened
- 2 cups hot tap water (120°F.-130°F.)
- ½ cup honey
- 2 cups cooked brown rice (at room temperature)
- 1 egg, beaten

1. In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, cornmeal, salt, baking soda and undissolved active dry yeast. Add margarine.

2. Gradually add hot tap water and honey to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally.
3. Add ½ cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in rice and enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.
4. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes.
5. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
6. Punch dough down; turn out onto floured board. Divide in half. Cover; let rest 15 minutes.
7. Roll each piece into a round, 9 inches in diameter. Place each on a greased baking sheet. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour and 15 minutes.
8. Using handle of a long wooden spoon, make deep indentations in rounds at 1-inch intervals. Brush rounds with beaten egg.
9. Bake in preheated 375°F. oven 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

Makes 2 loaves

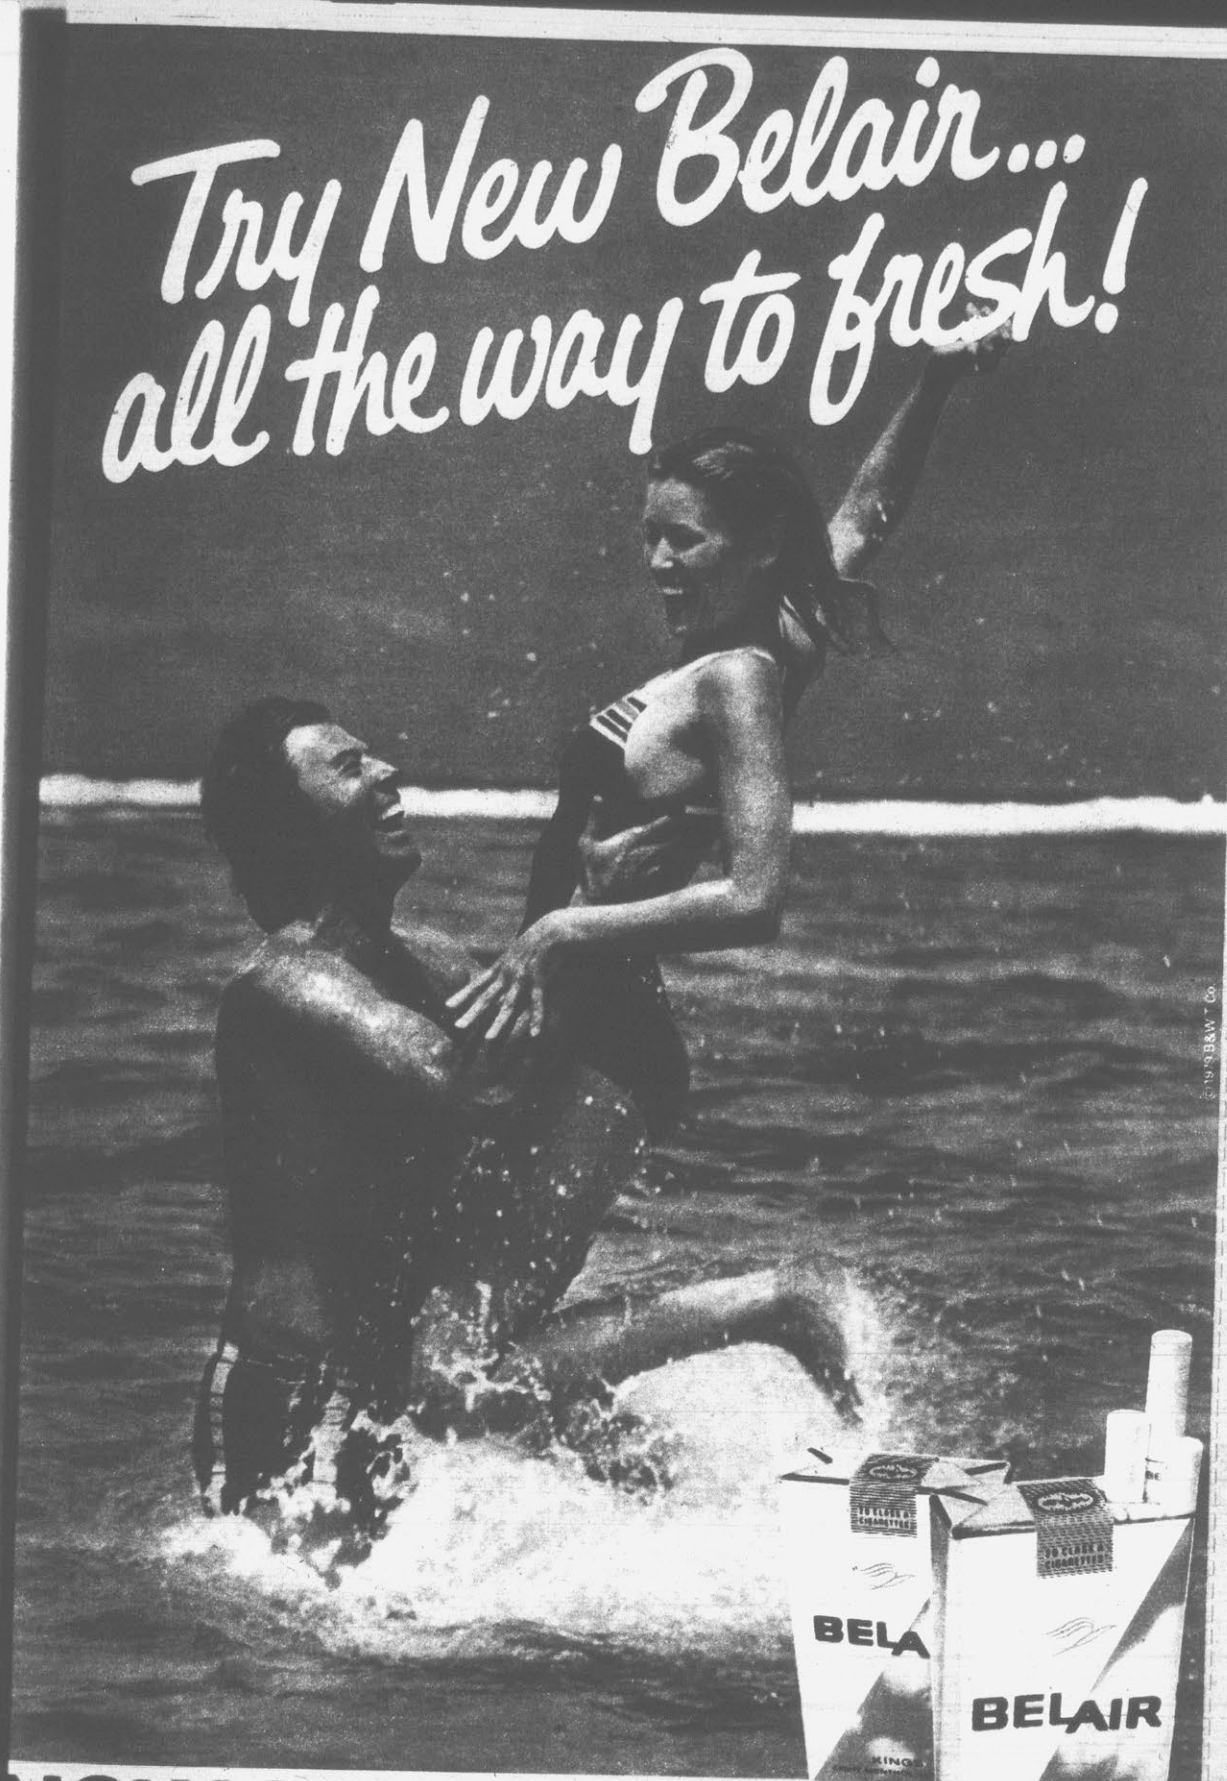

SESAME CORN BUBBLE LOAF

- 4½ to 5½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1½ cups yellow cornmeal
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 1¾ cups milk
- ½ cup water
- 3 tablespoons margarine
- ¼ cup toasted sesame seeds
- 1 egg white, slightly beaten

1. In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 1¾ cups flour, cornmeal, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast.
2. Combine milk, water and 3 tablespoons margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120°F.-130°F.). Margarine does not need to melt.
3. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally.
4. Add ½ cup flour. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.
5. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap; let rest 20 minutes.
6. Punch dough down; divide into 32 equal pieces; shape each piece into a smooth ball.
7. Arrange 16 balls in well-greased 10-inch tube pan. Brush with egg white and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons sesame seeds. Arrange remaining balls on top. Brush with egg white and sprinkle with remaining sesame seeds. Cover pan loosely with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.
8. When ready to bake, remove from refrigerator. Uncover loaf carefully. Let stand, uncovered, for 10 minutes at room temperature.
9. Bake at 375°F. for 55 to 60 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

Mrs. Fern Gilliam sends us a pancake recipe this month. Fern says, "Everyone I have given this recipe to says that it is the best!

THE BEST PANCAKES

Sift together 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon salt.

Mrs. Ethel M. Barney of Eau Claire, Wis. sends a cranberry quick bread recipe.

TWO FRUIT NUT LOAF

Coarsely grind 1 lb. fresh cranberries and 2 medium oranges. Use meat grinder or food processor. Add 2 cups sugar and let stand for 2 hours.

Grease and line with waxed paper 2 (9 × 5 × 3-inch) loaf pans. Grease waxed paper.

Sift together into large mixing bowl 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt.

Combine 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, 2 eggs, beaten, and 1 cup chopped walnuts. Add butter-egg mixture to dry ingredients, along with cranberry-orange combination. Mix just until flour is moistened.

Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 20 minutes, remove foil and bake 40 to 50 minutes longer or until bread tests done.

Casey Foster of Moore, Okla., sends a recipe for Green Enchilada Casserole.

GREEN ENCHILADA CASSEROLE

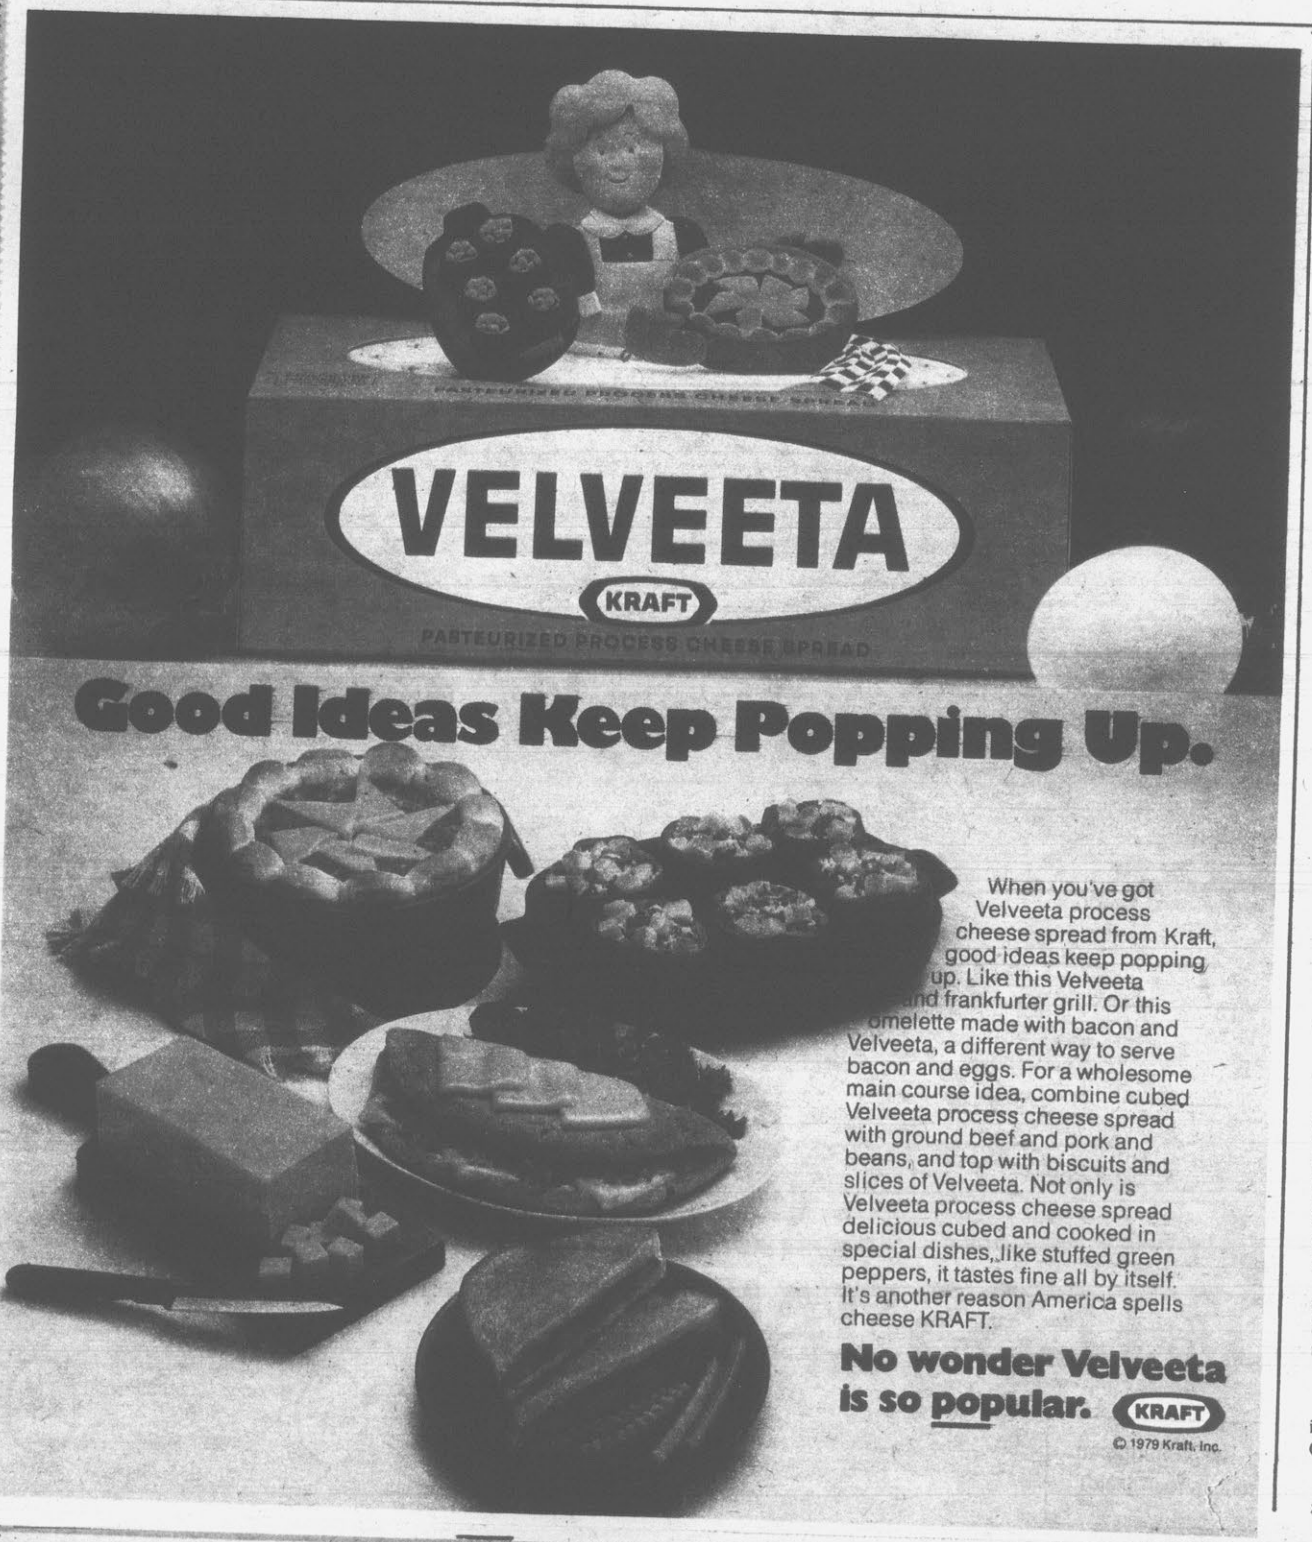

In large skillet, cook 1 lb. ground beef until brown, breaking up with large spoon as it cooks. Add 1 cup chopped onion and ½ lb. sharp cheddar cheese, shredded. Heat 1 pkg. (12 ozs.) corn tortillas just until soft in hot oil; then fill with meat-cheese mixture, roll and place in baking pan.

In medium saucepan, melt ¼ cup butter or margarine, stir in ¼ cup all-purpose flour smoothly. Add 2 cups milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Stir in 1 can (6 ozs.) chopped green chiles and ½ lb. processed cheese, cubed. Cook, sauce over low heat until cheese melts.

Pour cheese-chile sauce over enchiladas and bake in a preheated 350°F. oven for 20-30 minutes until bubbly.

Makes 6 servings

LIBERACE

Deluxe Big Note SONG BOOK

All the Words and Music for Piano, Organ, Guitar and Chord Organ.
Easy to Read, Easy to Play, Easy to Learn!

Includes 3 PAGES of SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS and CHARTS to insure that even the rank novice will play every song with ease and enjoyment.

Here's How It Works!

The "LIBERACE Deluxe Big Note Song Book" features oversized, easy-to-see notes. In addition, the name of the musical note is boldly printed over the note. For example, an E note is not only larger than on ordinary sheet music, but the letter 'E' appears on the note itself. There's no guesswork. No memorization.

The system works for the Piano, Organ, Guitar, Chord Organ and any instrument tuned to the key of C. The arrangements are full and lush, letting the music lover enjoy the ample richness of sound.

"THIS IS ONE OF THE GREATEST MUSICAL INNOVATIONS OF ALL TIME". Liberace

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Tastes Change

The American diet isn't what it used to be according to a new report published by the Center for Science in the Public Interest. Among the more interesting changes in American food preferences discovered by authors Letitia Brewster and Michael F. Jacobson:

- Americans ate the fewest eggs in 1976 — an average of 276 per person annually, including the eggs in mayonnaise, cake mixes, etc.
- Fast-food eateries have contributed to a rise in frozen and fresh fish consumption from 5.7 pounds per person in 1960 to 8.1 pounds in 1976.
- We each eat an average of 88.8 pounds of frozen foods a year, including 25 pounds of vegetables.
- Fruit consumption is up to 210 pounds per person annually, but Americans have cut back on fresh fruit while tripling consumption of processed fruits. When it comes to fresh fruit, we prefer bananas.
- Ice-cream consumption is holding steady at around 18 pounds per year, but we now prefer higher fat, denser ice cream. On the other hand, consumption of ice milk has increased from 1.2 pounds per person in 1950 to 7.8 pounds.
- Lettuce and carrots are becoming more popular, while cabbage's popularity is wilting.

The Write Hairstyle

Hairstylist David Alan has added another instrument to the curlers and hot combs of his trade — the handwriting analysis. Because Mr. Alan, who operates two salons in New Jersey, believes there's more to a successful hairstyle than meets the eye, he won't even let a new client make an appointment before she's had a sample of her handwriting analyzed. Mr. Alan, who was a psychology major in college, insists on this, he says, so that he can match the client with a hairdresser who has a similar personality.

Alan has the handwriting analysis results, as well as the client's responses to a color test, fed along with other personal information into a computer. The client is then assigned to one of four major personality groups, then matched with a similarly minded hairdresser.

Alan says that he himself is such a believer in the value of the personality tests that he won't hire hairdressers who place in the most difficult-to-get-along-with category. And he reports that the customers appear delighted. 'It's not like going to a dentist," Alan says. "Going to a hairdresser should be fun."

Pigeons Consult Astronomical Chart Before Heading Home

So you think that astronomy is for the birds? Right you are, say Cornell University scientists who are attempting to explain the navigational wizardry of the homing pigeon by a celestial "radar" or clock that, even in the broadest daylight, pinpoints the position of the then-invisible moon. And the homing pigeons make daily shifts in their initial bearings on "home" in response to the changing positions of the moon, say biologists William T. Keeton and Timothy Larkin.

If this theory sounds a little hard to swallow, consider the homing pigeon's other superpowers of which you may not be aware. In recent years, Cornell researchers have demonstrated that homing pigeons can see light waves that are invisible to man, detect low-frequency sounds hundreds of miles away and minute changes in barometric pressure or in the earth's magnetic field.

Plants For Lovers

Plants and lovers date back as far as Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. For a change, why not try giving your sweetheart a plant with heart-shaped leaves for a personal valentine?

Here are a few tips from the Florida Foliage Producers association to help insure that you select the right plant for the right location.

Office. Cordatum "Heartleaf" Philodendron or Split Leaf Philodendron may both be grown under low office-light conditions.

Kitchen. "Emerald Ripple" Peperomia and "Green Gold" Nephthytis even sound as if they belong in a bright, cheery kitchen. Both thrive in medium to high light.

Bedroom. The satiny finish of "Marble Queen" and "Devil's Ivy" Pothos will add a touch of elegance to any boudoir. These plants will do well provided the temperature is between 65° and 80°.

Lifestyles

Psychology. Fear of success really does exist it is reported in the Brain/Mind Bulletin. According to researchers, while working hard for success some individuals become anxious and sabotage their own performance when it appears that their goal is actually at hand. To test their hypothesis, the researchers identified certain traits in the success-fearers, then set up two groups of subjects — those who feared success and those who didn't. Each group was given tasks to perform, then told at random that they had performed very well, just average or poorly. Those who did not fear success did better when given positive feedback and worse when told they'd done poorly. But when the success-fearers were told they'd done well, they subsequently did worse! Researchers are still baffled by the reasons behind this behavior.

Sexes. Sentimentality is on the upswing among valentine givers says a researcher for Hallmark cards. Hallmark says that more than 80 percent of the cards sent this Valentine's Day will have rhymed verse rather than prose, and most will have the traditional symbols of hearts and flowers. Men tend to select valentines with a romantic message, while women are more likely to choose a greeting with a witty verse. And, suprisingly, most valentines are not sent by sweethearts but by children, who outsend lovebirds nearly 3 to 1.

WHY I LIKE MY FAMILY

Family Weekly offers more excerpts from essay contestants who have written so movingly about their love and involvement within their family group.

SORTING THE PRIORITIES

After a year of college in 1956, I had dropped out and gotten married. In the fall of 1974, I added "full-time student" to my roles of wife and mother. As a family, we've always supported each other — in school work, jobs, sports and organizations. Our schedule was overthrown by university requirements, but everybody pitched in as my degree became a priority. My only regret is that only one name will be on the diploma. There should be more. My education has been our education. Our family has earned it together.

Doris Littrell
Columbia, Mo.
Columbia Tribune

THE STRENGTH OF UNSPOKEN LOVE

I can't paint a literary Norman Rockwell portrait of my family. We are not like that. We've had our family feuds. My father likes his beer. My parents have been known to have shouting matches, and there was plenty of sibling rivalry among my brother, sister and myself. We have never been a "kissee, huggee" family, but love is there, a base, a rock, a constant that never changes. With age has come understanding and appreciation of them as people.

Monica Smeal
Niagara Falls, N.Y.
Niagara Gazette

FAMILY FREEDOMS

They let me —
Dry their tears, mop their brow,
Laugh at their cares, show them how;
Feed their dog, train their cat,
Meet their friends, where it's at;
Hem their skirts, mend their socks,
Hear their songs, roll and rocks,
Wash their clothes, their dishes, too,
Iron and clean, their rooms will do;
Surprise them with gifts, large and small,
Bake Christmas cookies, happy birthday and all
Love them and lose them, as life will require,
Cuddle up in my robe in front of our fire.

Helen D. Stacy
Pismo Beach, Calif.
San Luis Obispo Telegram-Tribune

A NOTE OF GRATITUDE

One wonderful gift my family gave me was the freedom to grow up at my own good time. So many young people I know express anger at having been forced to grow when they were "too old for toys" and then "too young" for more mature forms of entertainment. My personal growth hasn't been at all harmed by being allowed to be me, and keeping a part of the child in me alive. To my family I say, thank you. You taught me to love and respect humanity by liking me.

QUIET LOYALTY – QUIET JOY

My family means many things to me, some things being very different from others: the joy I feel when my baby daughter reaches out her chubby little arms to me to be held; the pride I have in my family's quiet loyalty; seeing the bursting pride my father has in his grandchildren; feeling my heart jump a little with joy everyday when my husband comes home from work.

SACRIFICE AND SHARING

As soon as a need arises, some member of our family is there to help. It may be sisters helping each other after childbirth. Or perhaps my parents selling their home and moving to an apartment nearby in order to save us hundreds of miles of travel every few weeks after my husband developed a heart condition. Or a father uncomplainingly working at two jobs and going to a college at night for many years so his children might have the necessities and education he wanted for them.

A FAMILY OF ONE'S CHOOSING

Why do I like my family? My life is too short to tell it all. Except for one of our eight children, we chose each other. Only one came to us as an infant. Despite the insecurities and scars any one child brought, the others made room and helped. Arrival of a new sister or brother was cause for a welcome party. This tremendous and unusual family is now scattered from the East to the West, but the bond of togetherness is alive and thriving.

THE VALUES OF FAMILY

During their early years, my children acquired an interest in good literature from a grandmother. From their grandfather, who owned an apple orchard, they learned of the closeness to the soil that nurtured the growth of our great country. They gained compassion for the less fortunate from their great-aunt . . . From their mother, they acquired an appreciation of music and from me, an interest in history . . . special influence: it has nothing to do with money.

YOUNGEST OR ELDEST — HOW IT AFFECTS PERSONALITY

By Gloria Hochman

Marvin seemed precocious, even as a baby. By the time he entered school, he was reading second-grade books. Today Marvin attends Harvard Law School and seems destined to become a brilliant attorney.

Marvin's younger brother, Eddie, was an average student who excelled in athletics and was always popular. Eddie seemed more outgoing than his brother. No one was surprised when he chose a career in public relations.

The differences between the brothers may result, simply, from their birth order and family size, which many experts believe have significant bearing on personality, academic achievement and career choices.

The link between birth order and success is well documented, with many studies agreeing that:

- The oldest child is more likely to be graduated from college and graduate school, and it is probable that he will achieve eminence.
- Younger children tend to venture into fields that demand interpersonal relationship skills, such as public relations, psychotherapy, social work and journalism.
- Only children, like firstborn, are overrepresented in the upper I.Q. group and among students in universities with high entrance requirements. They seem more resourceful in solving problems, and their intense need to achieve makes them willing to do exacting work.
- Children from smaller families tend to do better on intelligence scores.

Researchers suggest that firstborn and only children have the advantage of time alone with parents who are more involved with them than they will ever be with later-born children.

While the relationship between birth order and achievement is generally accepted, there is less agreement about the effect of family position on personality.

Nevertheless, much research agrees that oldest children will take themselves more seriously, are more reserved, sensitive, fearful and competitive than their younger siblings. They also are more likely, in the face of powerful adults, to conceal aggressive feelings.

Youngest children, no matter the size of the family, often feel the tug between wanting to grow up quickly to catch up to their siblings, yet wanting to perpetuate the extra attention that the "baby" of the family often receives. Sometimes this produces an "unsettled" adult, careening from maturity to childlike behavior. Accepting responsibility may be troublesome in adulthood since youngest children grow up counting on older brothers and sisters.

The personaltiy of a middle child may depend on the sex of his/her siblings. Dr. M.H. Kraut, a genetic psychologist, predicts that the middle sister of three females may get the least attention and try to develop an identity by rebelling and being "different." Middle children develop diplomacy because they have to deal with siblings on either side of them.

Other research suggests that:

- Children from large families often daydream more, feel more inferior and have greater social adjustment problems than do children with fewer siblings.
- Boys with older brothers tend to act more masculine, and those with older sisters tend to act more feminine.
- Only children have higher self-esteem than any other group.
- A boy born into a family of girls is likely to be self-assured.
- The highest proportion of delinquency is found among second children in three- or four-child families.

Most experts say there is no "preferred" family position that can insure happiness, competence or mental health. "But those are phenomena that we cannot change," says University of North Carolina's Dr. Jane H. Pfouts, "and there has been enough reliable research to show that it does make a difference." FW

Cool the fever.

This winter, many people will take Bufferin® instead of Bayer.®

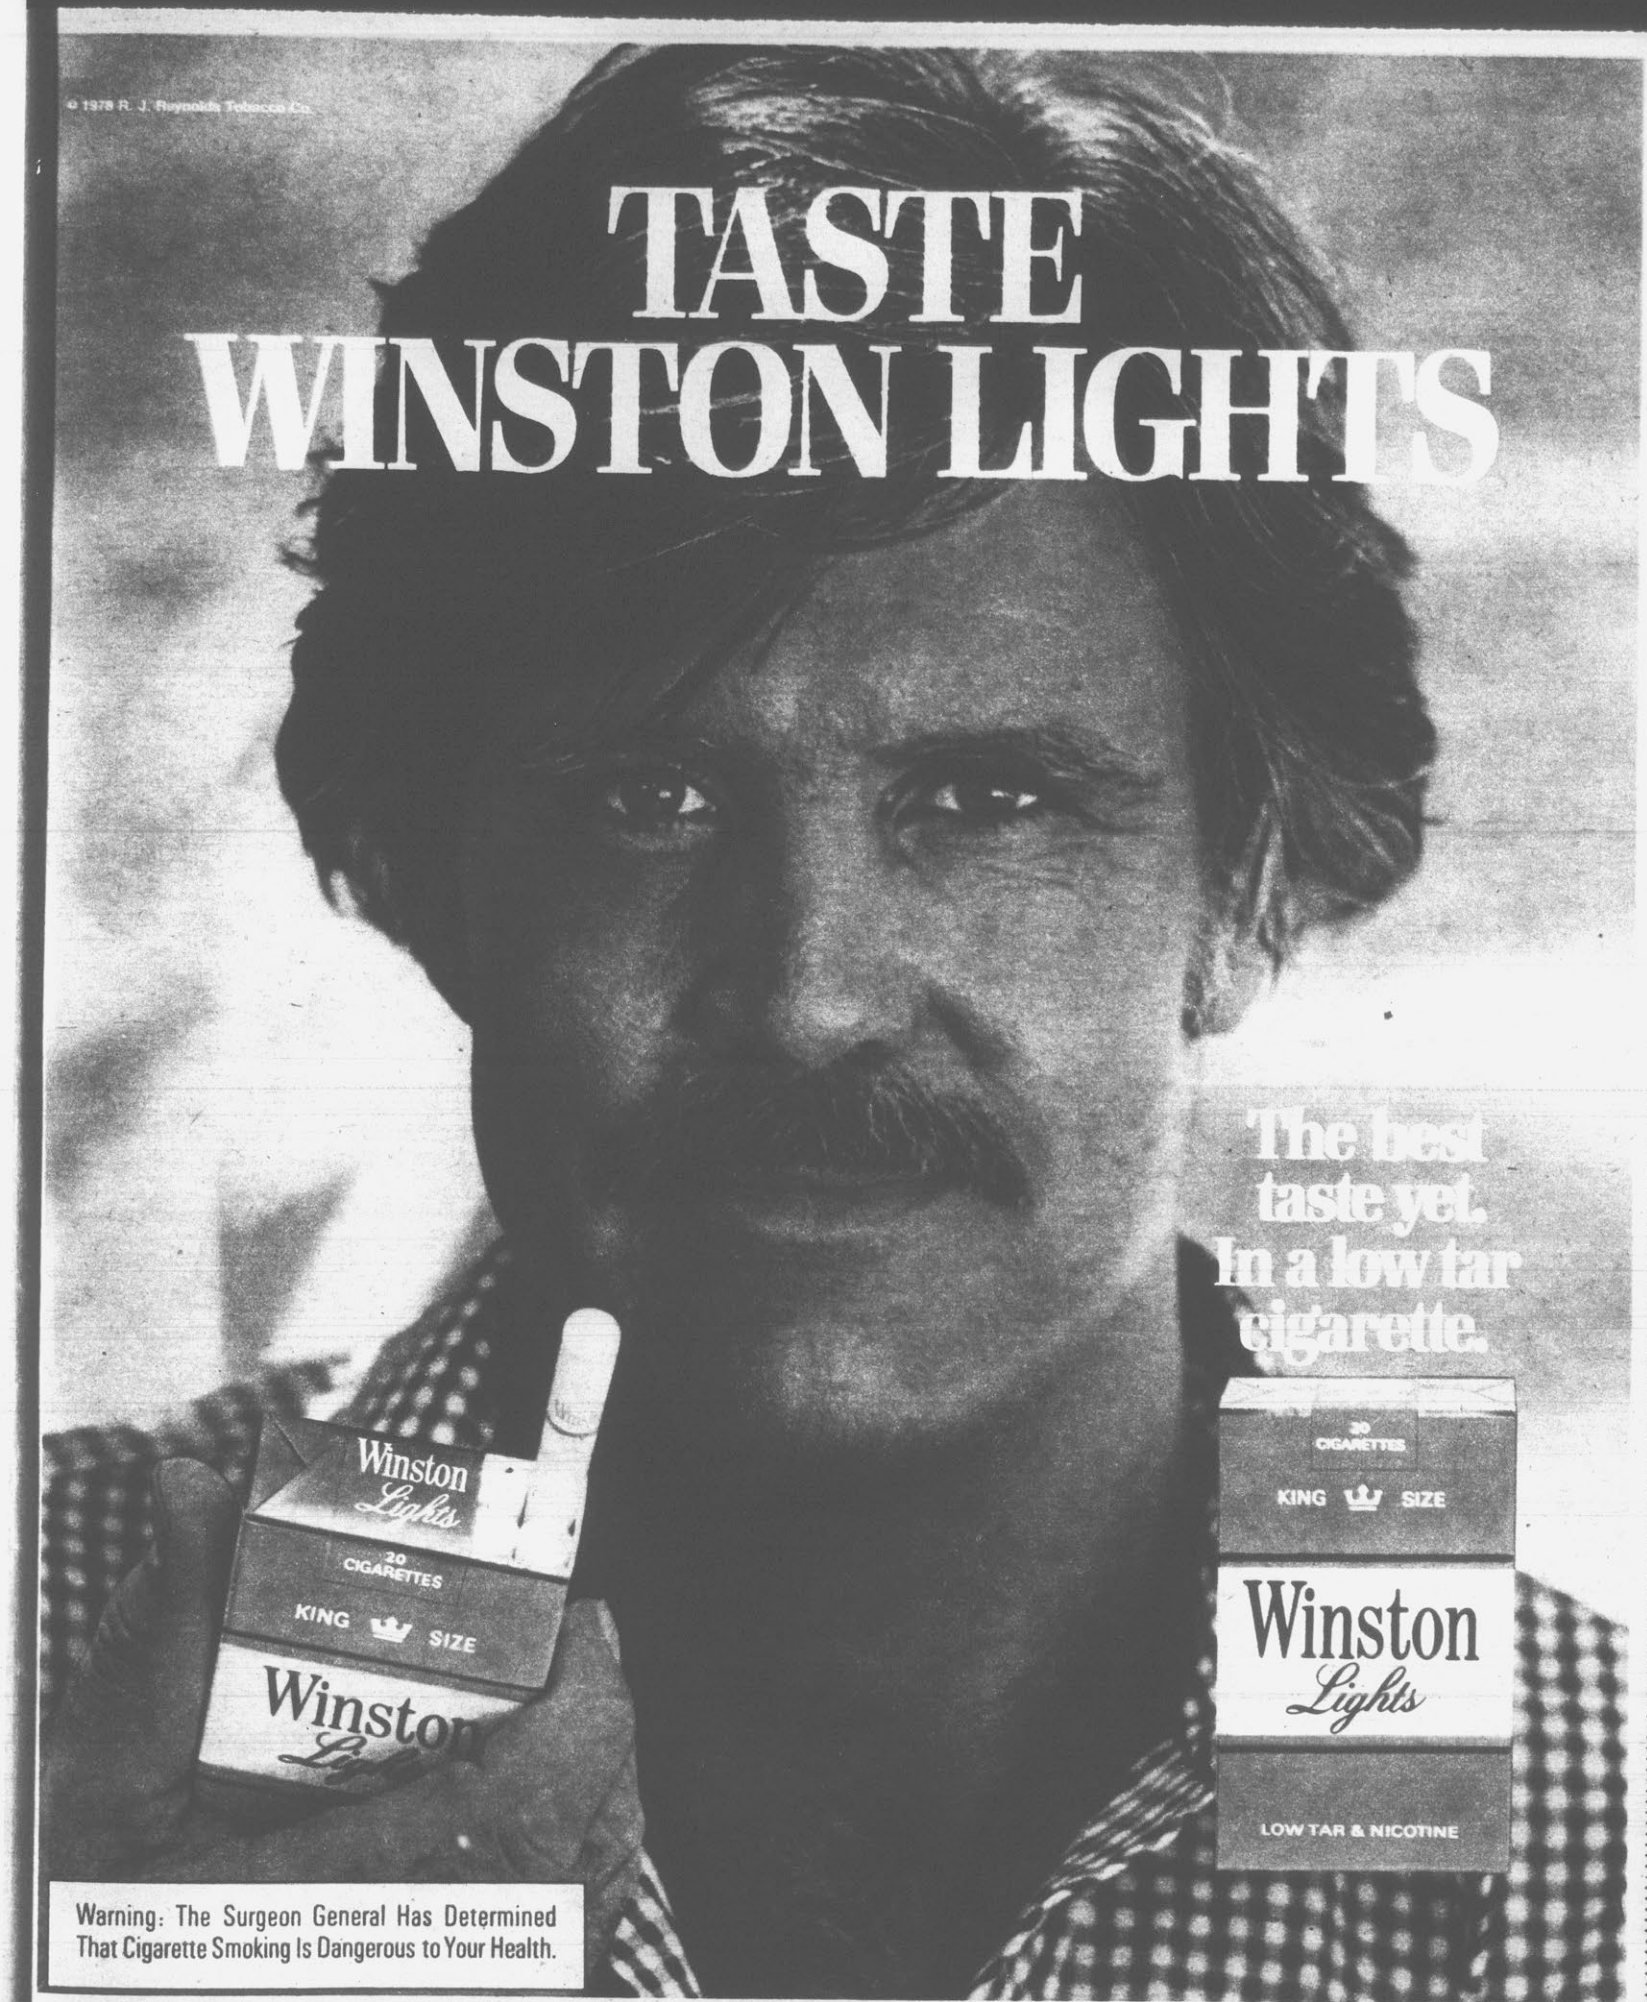

Considering all this, perhaps you should, too.

- Bayer is plain aspirin. And plain aspirin can't reduce fever of colds or flu faster than Bufferin.
- Bufferin has special ingredients to help prevent the stomach upset plain aspirin can cause. This could be especially important when colds and flu call for frequent doses.
- The special Bufferin formula starts pain reliever going to the aches and pains faster than plain aspirin like Bayer.

IMPORTANT

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN TELL YOUR GEMFIRE COUNTERFEIT DIAMONDS ARE NOT CHEAP COSTUME JEWELRY.

A. Count the facets. Gemfire stones all have 58 facets — just like expensive diamonds prepared by diamond cutters.

B. Examine your stone in a dimly lighted room. It should sparkle like in daylight. Gemfire stones sparkle even in the moonlight.

C. Study your ring under a powerful magnifying glass to look for flaws. Gemfire stones have clarity — are flawlessly perfect. No specks! No blemishes! No cracks!

D. Gemfire stones are so hard you can actually scratch your initial in glass with them! Prove it to yourself.

Words And Pictures

Words and pictures don't begin to show the beauty, brilliance, and fire of these magnificent rings. That's why we want you to wear them and judge them on their own merits — not on what we tell you. See if your friends and family can tell them from an expensive "natural" diamond worth 100 times as much. In all probability you can fool them if you want to. Not many people can tell these brilliant counterfeits from the expensive real ones. Yet now you can own these beautiful rings at amazingly low prices.

Low Price Doesn't

Mean Low Quality. These counterfeit diamonds are not cheap fakes. In fact, they are carefully cut and polished by skilled craftsmen in the same manner as natural diamonds. They have 58 facets — just like natural diamonds. They are hand set in heavy 18Kt-HGE (heavy gold electroplate), or solid sterling silver by master jewelry craftsmen. They shine like a $1,000 diamond — but cost you less than $25.00.

An Exciting Gift For Someone Special

These exquisite rings make a much appreciated gift for a special someone in your life. They will last a lifetime. Give for birthdays, anniversaries or just as a wonderful surprise. And even if you choose to tell your loved one will be amazed and proud that you were clever enough to find such an expensive-looking ring at these remarkably low prices. The difference between it and a natural diamond could make a down payment on a new car, or home, or even a wonderful vacation for just you two!

Even Millionaires

Wear Counterfeit Diamonds. Today many wealthy people, TV and movie stars feel unsafe making public appearances wearing expensive jewelry. Oftentimes they keep their diamonds in a safe deposit box and wear counterfeits. Now you too can wear these master-crafted counterfeit diamonds and impress your friends!

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

CARAT (CT)—a measure of weight for a diamond—however, Gemfires and Diamonites are given approximate carat values based on size (not weight). A 1-carat Gemfire or Diamonite is approximately the same size as a 1-carat diamond.

HEAVY GOLD ELECTROPLATE (HGE)—this mounting uses karat gold (either white or yellow) that is electrically bonded to the mounting after it is formed and the gold, by government standard, is 14 times thicker than the designated "gold electroplate."

STERLING SILVER (SS)—the mounting is 92.5% pure silver, 7.5% other metals for strength, and to eliminate tarnishing is lightly plated with precious rhodium.

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.

2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot, on the strip where it meets the end.

3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

With Our Guarantee You Take No Risks.

If at the end of 30 days you are not completely satisfied, return by INSURED MAIL for purchase price refund. At any time, or for any reason, and in any condition you may return your Jewelry by INSURED MAIL for FREE replacement.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "FREE, FREE!" CRIES GRACE, "FREE AT LAST FROM HROTHGAR'S CLUTCHES..... LET US SING, LET US DANCE!"

BANISHED! HIS FIRST THOUGHT IS OF REVENGE, BUT REMEMBERING HIS DEFEAT IN A DUEL WITH KING AGUAR, HE DECIDES TO AWAIT A BETTER TIME.

ARN HAD MADE A VOW... "I WILL NOT SHAVE MY BEARD, GRACE, UNTIL YOU ARE FREE!" HAD HE KNOWN HIS FIRST SHAVE WAS TO BE SUCH AN ORDEAL, HE WOULD HAVE MADE A DIFFERENT VOW!

NOW HE HAS A VERY IMPORTANT QUESTION TO ASK GRACE. IN PREPARATION, HE PURCHASES EXTRAVAGANT FINERY.

HE FINDS HER IN THE GARDEN. "GRACE, I ADORE YOU. WILL YOU MARRY ME?" FOR A LONG MOMENT SHE GAZES INTO HIS EYES, "NO," SHE ANSWERS IN A SMALL VOICE.

SLOWLY SHE WALKS AWAY, A SORROWFUL FIGURE. BUT AT THE OTHER END OF THE GALLERY A HANDSOME YOUNG OFFICER AWAITS. TO LOSE TWO SWEETHEARTS IN ONE YEAR IS TOO MUCH FOR ARN.

WITH BOW AND KNAPSACK HE FADES QUIETLY INTO THE HEALING FREEDOM OF THE WOODS AND HILLS. TWO SWEETHEARTS HAS HE LOST DURING HIS STAY IN THE NORTHLANDS. IT IS TIME HE RETURNED TO CAMELOT.
