Retiring District Conservationist Roy Beck

Recalls Progress Of Area Watershed Developments

By REBECCA BUFFALO

For 18 years, Roy Beck of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District has watched the changing textures of Pitt County, all 419,800 acres withstanding the elements of time and weather.

However, as of Friday, March 9, Beck retired as district conservationist, after serving the Soil Conservation Service for 38 years. Beck's work carried him from the mountains to the oceans of North Carolina during his career.

Pennsylvania native, Beck came to North Carolina after receiving his degree in forestry from Penn State University in 1941. Beck's first job with the SCS came after four years in the U. S. Naval Reserve in the southwest Pacific. He worked for a while in Ashe County, then was transferred to Carteret County, as the first efforts toward halting beach erosion were begun.

After another switch to Haywood County in the Great Smokies region of North Carolina, Beck finally settled in Pitt County in 1961, along with his wife, Rosalie, and their five children.

"When I came to Pitt County, work on Grindle Creek watershed had just begun," said Beck. "Farmers in Pitt County had installed around half a million feet of drainage tile. As of now, Pitt County has around eight million feet of tile, the most in the state."

Beck's duties called on him to both administer programs such as the various watershed projects throughout the county, as well as go in the fields to aid farmers in correct land management practices.

During his 18-year period in Pitt County, Beck saw the completion of Grindle Creek, Conetoe Creek and Johnson Milltail Creek watershed projects, all of which have aided the area in conservation land management and reduction of flood damages to cropland.

One thing that has pleased Beck is the planning and approval of Chicod, Swift Creek and Little Contentnea Creek Watershed Projects. The Chicod Creek Watershed Project was taken to court by environmentalists under the National Environmental Policy Act, with litigation continuing until a compromise was reached Sept. 14, 1977.

U.S. Could Save 500,000 Barrels Of Oil Daily

By GAIL GREGG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States could save as many as 500,000 barrels of oil a day — or half its new conservation goal — if it burns more coal in existing plants, a major coal producers' association said Saturday.

In a letter to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, National Coal Association President Robert Quenon said the energy savings of 250,000 to 500,000 barrels of oil could be realized "without installing any new coal-fired capacity."

He said the industry already has the capacity to mine the 50 million tons of coal needed for the oil savings — and could even mine another 50 million tons if needed.

He also said, "it appears that this can be achieved without major modification to the air quality requirements set by the various states."

In 1972-73, coal-fired electric plants ran at 59 percent of capacity. During the second half of 1978 they operated at 56 percent, the association said.

Quenon suggested that if states would relax their air quality standards so they don't exceed national standards, "a significant number of generating plants now burning oil could probably be converted back to coal."

If that happened, he said, "it appears that another 150,000 to 200,000 barrels per day could conceivably be realized."

The United States agreed at a recent International Energy Agency meeting to try to cut oil consumption by 5 percent, or 1 million barrels a day, by the end of 1979.

The IEA is a 20-member organization of Western oil-consuming nations.

A spokesman for the Energy Department said the coal producers' plan "is something I'm sure will interest" Schlesinger.

"He has been talking about alternatives like this to meet the goal," the spokesman said. "He's already been urging industries to switch when they can to coal and natural gas instead of crude oil."

A spokesman for the coal producers' group — which claims to represent "the majority of coal tonnage produced in the United States" — said an outline of the plan went to Schlesinger Friday.

Warns On Tobacco Restrictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., says he has warned Japanese officials to ease trade restrictions on American cigarettes or face retaliatory measures.

Neal said he met with Japanese trade and tobacco officials last December in Japan and told them of increasing frustration by cigarette manufacturers in the United States over Japanese restrictions.

Japanese trade barriers limit imports of American cigarettes to between one and one and a half percent of all cigarettes sold there, Neal said, but American cigarettes could expect to hold about 10 percent of the market under normal conditions.

He said the restrictions have contributed to the nation's $12 billion annual trade deficit with Japan.

Recommends Strict Limits

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A legislative budget subcommittee has recommended strict limits be placed on off-campus programs offered by the state's 57 community colleges and technical institutes.

The subcommittee voted Friday to ask the General Assembly to prohibit the use of state funds for the off-campus programs unless specifically approved by the state Board of Education.

The proposal grew out of charges community colleges were offering off-campus programs of marginal educational value to "captive" off-campus groups in order to pad their enrollment figures and thus obtain more state money.

On Arrival In Israel To Meet With Begin

Chilly Reception For Carter

By JIM ANDERSON

JERUSALEM (UPI) — President Carter briefed Prime Minister Menachem Begin for more than an hour Saturday night on the talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat that Carter said gave him good reason to hope that the goal of a Middle East peace can be reached.

Carter, cheered by millions in Egypt during his three days of talks with Sadat in Cairo and Alexandria, ran into jeering demonstrators in Jerusalem. There were "Carter go home" signs and an egg was splattered against the hood of his bullet-proof limousine.

Carter, following the path to Jerusalem blazed by Sadat 16 months ago in his quest for peace, arrived to a somewhat chilly welcome and a reminder by Israeli President Yitzhak Navon that Israel had already made all of the sacrifices that could be expected of it.

It was a day of contrast and ambiguity for Carter. Carter had sounded pessimistic in Cairo when he said with a grim face that "difficult issues" remain. On his arrival in Israel he said he has "good reason to hope that the goal (of peace) can be reached."

Phrases of optimism were tempered by American aides preaching caution.

A news blackout continued. Carter and Begin met the press after an hour and a half of talks and said little. Begin said the talks would continue at 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) today and Carter merely said goodbye before going to the Hotel King David for the night — the same hotel blown up by Begin's Irgun extremists during the British occupation of Palestine, killing 60 troops.

A White House spokesman said there would be no statement. Begin's spokesman, Dan Pattri, characterized the first round of talks as "very frank" — usual diplomatic talk for a disagreement. Pattri said he was not using diplomatic language but was giving "a straightforward answer."

Carter, who stayed up much later than his usual bedtime, met privately with Begin for an hour and 10 minutes following a dinner at the prime minister's residence with their wives.

"The president and I had our first discussion in the wake of his discussions in Cairo with President Sadat and his advisers," Begin told waiting reporters. Carter said only, "I'll see you tomorrow."

Carter, Begin and the full delegations of both sides — including the Israeli cabinet's defense council — is to meet later this morning.

Carter ran into his first protests of his trip when he arrived in Jerusalem at the head of a 37-car motorcade that drove from Ben-Gurion Airport along a four-lane highway guarded by hundreds of troops. Although security was reported heavier than that for Sadat when the Egyptian president arrived in Jerusalem on Nov. 19, 1977, an egg hurled by a demonstrator splattered against the hood of Carter's black bullet-proof limousine. Signs protesting his trip danced above the throng. "Go Home," one said. "Take Home Your F-15s," said another.

"Welcome Billy's Brother," said one hand-lettered sign, an obvious reference to allegedly anti-Semitic remarks made by the president's brother. "President Jimmy Carter: Don't Treat Us Wrong," another sign said.

About 300 demonstrators in a crowd of 5,000 chanted "Go home, Carter" as he received the traditional bread and wine welcome from Mayor Teddy Kollek at the city's Pillar of Remembrance. A band played "The Washington Post March."

Carter ignored the demonstrators and at the end of the brief ceremony stood on the running board of his limousine to wave to the crowd. Some in the crowd cheered him. Some stood impassively.

Another band of demonstrators, this one two dozen religious youths dedicated to building settlements in Israeli occupied zones, were awaiting Carter at Begin's residence but police kept them a block away. They danced the hora and chanted in Hebrew, "Begin, don't give in."

State Can Proceed With East-West Expressway Despite Durham Protest

By GAIL GREGG

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Top state transportation leaders say the state may proceed with plans to extend the East-West Expressway in Durham despite a resolution opposing the extension from the Durham City Council.

Tom Bradshaw, state Transportation secretary, and Highway Administrator Billy Rose said the Highway Division could choose to proceed with the hotly-debated project in the face of the resolution.

Bradshaw and Rose commented after a meeting of the state Transportation Board at which opponents of the expressway were rebuffed in their efforts to voice their objections to the board.

The group, organized as the Coalition for Expressway Alternatives, had planned to propose other means of easing traffic congestion in West Durham.

But Bradshaw refused a request by Geoff Wyckoff, a member of the group, that the matter be placed on the Friday meeting agenda. Bradshaw suggested that the group submit a written request to appear at a subsequent board meeting.

After the meeting, Bradshaw told a reporter that a more proper forum for discussion of alternatives would be a public hearing. Another hearing on the expressway proposal will be held May 30 at Rogers-Herr Junior High School in Durham.

By a vote of 7-5, the council last month adopted a resolution asking that the expressway not be extended to U.S. 15-501 as proposed by the transportation department.

In commenting on the council action, Bradshaw said, "What their action is is important to us, but let's be realistic: It was a 7-5 vote. There have been eight previous city councils that approved it."

After 14 Years, Returning Home

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, still officially classified as a prisoner of war 14 years after his capture and nearly four years after the United States ended its involvement in Vietnam, is finally coming home, his brother says.

Donald Garwood said in an interview with television station WTHR that he had been informed that his 33-year-old brother, who was captured by Communist forces in South Vietnam in 1965, will return to the United States next week.

However, Robert Garwood's future remains uncertain. The State Department says other prisoners of war alleged Garwood remained with the communists voluntarily after American POWs were released.

Three Die In Wreck

Three persons, two from Mount Airy and the third from Virginia, died early Saturday when their pickup truck slammed into the rear of a tractor-trailer truck and the pickup's roof sheared off.

Police identified the victims as Gordon Hodge, 22, and Timothy Creed, 15, both of Mount Airy, and Bobby Gale Cain, 21, of Ararat, Va.,

Flood Dangers

By The Associated Press

Flooding continued in the Midwest Saturday with the Mississippi River cresting at more than eight feet over flood stage at New Madrid, Mo.

The crest was expected to reach Caruthersville, Mo., today, at about nine feet over flood stage, and Memphis, Tenn., on Monday night at two feet over flood stage.

The Ohio River was almost 14 feet over flood stage Saturday at Cairo, Ill. In the same area, 14-foot overflows were possible on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River. In Arkansas, the Black River and the White River were over their banks.

A Dramatic News Event In The Early History Of Coastal North Carolina

260th Anniversary Of Blackbeard's Crew Trials

By NORMAN PENDERED

Tomorrow, March 12, marks the 160th anniversary of the beginning of the piracy trials of Blackbeard's crew. It was on this day in 1719 that the Court of Vice Admiralty convened at Williamsburg to hear the cases of the pirates in the crew of the late Captain Edward Teach, better known as Blackbeard — the fiercest pirate of all.

If it were not for early provincial records of North Carolina, Virginian historians and others would know nothing about these trials. The actual records of the Virginia court were destroyed by several fires which swept the capitol building and by the destruction caused by the War between the States.

Fortunately, a complete record of the trial is preserved in the archives of North Carolina. The reason for this is that certain evidence from the trials was forwarded to Governor Eden of North Carolina with the court's opinion that Tobias Knight, Secretary of the Province, was an accessory to the piracies of Blackbeard.

Tobias Knight, a masterful speaker and writer, conducted his own defense when called upon by the N. C. Provincial Council. One by one he refuted each charge brought against him by the evidence from Virginia and was exonerated of all charges by the Council.

It all began in the fall of 1718 when Governor Spotswood of Virginia sent two sloops loaded with the King's men into North Carolina waters to capture Blackbeard. The sea expedition was commanded by Lieutenant Maynard. At the same time Captain Ellis Brand traveled by horseback from Hampton, Va. and was met at Edenton and at Bath by North Carolinians who had agreed to help capture Blackbeard if he were ashore.

The joint land-sea expedition enjoyed great success. The fearsome Blackbeard was killed in bloody battle off Ocracoke Island. Although Captain Gordon, senior commander of the King's guardships in the battle later reported that the battle lasted only six minutes, every pirate was either killed or wounded. The King's men suffered 48 percent casualties.

Captain Brand immediately returned to Virginia after the battle. Lieutenant Maynard and his men sailed from Ocracoke to Bath where they spent about six weeks licking their wounds. Medical care was simple in those days: the patient either lived or died.

The Virginians also loaded on to their sloops merchandise awarded to Tobias Knight and Governor Eden for their participation in the Court of Vice Admiralty hearing at Bath when a French ship, loaded with plunder, was awarded to Blackbeard. This incident precipitated a long, bitter controversy between the two colonies. Even today writers are not in agreement on the final outcome. The three sloops sailed back to Virginia with the head of Blackbeard suspended from the bowsprit of his ship, the "Adventure."

Blackbeard's ship lay at Hampton Wharf for several days during which time the pirate's head, still dangling from the bowsprit, drew the curious from all over the countryside. Later the head was set on the end of a pike at a point of land on the west side of Hampton Creek. This site is still known as "Blackbeard's Point."

Although the pirates languished in the public gaol in Williamsburg for more than two months, the Court made quick work of their trials. They found 14 of the 15 prisoners guilty of piracy as charged and sentenced them to be hanged.

Samuel Odell was the only prisoner not found guilty. He convinced the court that he had been forced against his will to serve with the pirates. Apparently Odell served the pirates well because it is alleged that he received 70 wounds! Thirteen of the condemned pirates were escorted from the public gaol and hanged on 13 trees along the road leading to Capitol Landing in Williamsburg. For years afterwards this thoroughfare was known as Galloway's Road.

Israel Hands, sailing master of Blackbeard's infamous pirate ship, the "Queen Anne's Revenge," was found guilty and scheduled to be hanged. However, before sentence could be carried out, a ship arrived from England bearing word that the time limit of His Majesty's pardon had been extended. Hands pleaded for his pardon and it was granted.

Years later, in London, Hands served as the model for the gunner's mate in Robert Louis Stevenson's novel, "Treasure Island."

Marks Auxiliary Founder's Day

Woman's Auxiliary Founder's Day is being observed in area Pentecostal Holiness Churches today. Varied programs are planned for area churches. Mrs. Bobbie Austin, vice president and program chairman of the Woman's Auxiliary at First Pentecostal Holiness Church, will be in charge of the service tonight at 7:30. She will discuss the 1979 Woman's Auxiliary theme, "Make Known His Deeds Through Christian Unity". Mrs. Austin, who is associate registrar at East Carolina University, is also director of Lifeliners and teaches a Sunday School class.

Mrs. Betty LeRoux, president of the local Woman's Auxiliary, invites the public to attend. Others participating in tonight's service include Freda Pollard, Dorothy Radford, Paula England, Barbara Morris, Ruth Jones and Betty Gentry. Members of the Girl's Auxiliary will serve as ushers.

Mrs. Ruth Jones, vice president of the N.C. Conference Woman's Auxiliary, will be speaking at the 11 a.m. morning worship service at the Williamston Pentecostal Holiness Church. Her topic will also be the 1979 theme. Mrs. Jones, who is assistant professor of business at East Carolina University, serves as education director for the N.C. Conference Woman's Auxiliary.

Meeting in Roanoke, Va., in August 1973, the General Woman's Auxiliary of the Pentecostal Holiness Church established this date in honor of Lila Berry, the founder. Mrs. Berry's husband, the late J. W. Berry, was a former pastor of the local First Pentecostal Holiness Church. Since the founding in 1945, the Woman's Auxiliary has extended its ministries to benevolent homes, education and missions throughout the world.

Faces Early Reshuffle

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The death of Cardinal Jean Villot, the Catholic Church's secretary of state, confronted Pope John Paul II Saturday with the need to reshuffle the top Vatican leadership sooner than he wanted.

Villot, 73, a quiet Frenchman who served as the top aide to three popes, died Friday night in his Vatican apartment where he was hurriedly taken after doctors in a Rome hospital said he had only hours to live.

The Polish pope had confirmed Villot and all other appointees of Pope Paul VI in their posts after his election Oct. 16, and wanted to familiarize himself with the men and issues surrounding him before making any changes.

Duke Power Wants Rate Increase

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. wants to raise its rates to North Carolina retail customers, including homeowners, by 4 percent.

The Charlotte-based utility said Friday it had applied with the N.C. Utilities Commission for such an increase, to become effective in April.

"The rate increase we are seeking will increase revenues 4 percent over those produced by the current rates, which are based upon 1977 cost levels," Carl Horn Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Duke Power, said in a news release.

Scrub Piggyback Plans

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — NASA engineers Saturday scrubbed a plan to fly the space shuttle Columbia across country to Florida Monday and said they could not reschedule the piggyback flight until repairs are made.

More than 30 small gaps were torn in the tail section of the Columbia Friday when the 245,000-pound craft made a 17-minute test flight atop a 747 carrier. A NASA spokesman said the gaps were left when protective tape on the exterior of the spacecraft worked loose during the flight.

Suggests Use Of Commercial Firms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Accounting Office suggested Saturday the government use commercial firms to put the arm on those who owe money to Uncle Sam.

In a report to Congress, the GAO said debt collection by the government was "a slow and expensive" process that often costs more than the amount that might be collected.

The congressional auditors said about $118 billion was owed to the government in 1977 in the form of unpaid student loans, overpayments of benefits, royalties, and goods and services.

Government Case Brief

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The government presented an unexpectedly brief case in the murder trial of Huey Newton, and the Black Panther leader is expected to open his defense Friday.

Deputy District Attorney Tom Orloff surprised the courtroom Friday by resting his case without calling two witnesses who allegedly saw Newton shoot a 17-year-old prostitute on an Oakland street corner 4½ years ago.

Restaurant To Open $54 Million More Needed

The Italian Delight Restaurant in the Rivergate Shopping Center on E. Tenth Street Extension will open Tuesday.

The owner and operator, Tony Costanzo, said he has a complete line of Italian meals, including pizza. A native of Palermo, Italy, he has been in the United States for five years and operated two restaurants in Staunton, Va. prior to coming to Greenville.

Hours for the new restaurant are from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. weekdays; 11 a. m. to midnight Fridays and Saturdays; and 11 a. m. to 10 p. m. Sundays.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Forest Service says it needs another $54 million to meet Congress' goal of replanting national forest land by 1985.

Chief Forester John McGuire told a Senate committee Friday that about 1.4 million acres are included in the agency's backlog of timber land that needs replanting or related work. The administration is proposing $68 million for those programs, but McGuire said it would cost $122 million to do the work.

Iranian Women Demonstrate

By SAJID RIZVI
TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Male revolutionaries hurled stones and curses, brandished knives and fired rifles Saturday as tens of thousands of women took to the streets in western style dress, wearing makeup and smoking in a defiant protest against return to the Moslem law that hides women behind the veil.

Screaming "Freedom," the women staged mass sit-ins in the streets when confronted by the armed men who denounced them as "whores" and "Savakis" — agents of the shah's disbanded secret police.

It was the most serious outburst of opposition to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Moslem holy man who seized power in mid-February.

Three young women received superficial gunshot wounds when a gunman blocking the route of a procession opened fire on them, witnesses said. Another girl was stabbed by an unknown assailant a block away.

It was the second time there had been gunfire at women's protests. Guards at Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's office dispersed female marchers Thursday by shooting over their heads.

Khomeini, headquartered in the holy city of Qom, south of Tehran, disowned the revolutionaries who attacked them (women) and warned them of "harsh punishment" unless they stopped their assaults.

Tens of thousands of women converging on the campus were joined by girls from downtown commercial offices. They spilled into the streets wearing makeup and skirts and blouses, smoking cigarettes and screaming, "Death to all forms of repression!"

"We shall fight, We shall fight," shouted the women, some of them decked out in furs and imported dresses.

"We want Khomeini but we also want freedom!" screamed one group. It was answered by shouts from the other end, "We wanted Khomeini — now we don't!"

Several hundred men led by armed revolutionaries took over from him and hurled stones and curses at the demonstrators.

"You're whores, you're not Moslems," they chanted.

Some of the gunmen opened fire and others whipped out knives and threatened the women.

A woman called United Press International and said "several" women would burn themselves alive and "leave Islam to embrace Christianity" unless their demands were accepted.

The protests started on International Women's Day Thursday and have centered on Khomeini's recent criticism of women coming to work "naked" in government offices.

He said they should return to the traditional head-to-toe black veil, the chador. Khomeini aides insist his edict was misunderstood and accuse women of a left-wing plot to upset the government.

Political analysts said the protests had added pressure on Khomeini three weeks before a scheduled referendum on his Islamic republic, which the left opposes.

Vietnamese Hint At Soviet Intervention

By PAUL WEDEL
BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Hanoi predicted Saturday the Chinese people, angered by their army's invasion of Vietnam, will overthrow the Peking leadership, and hinted strongly at Soviet military intervention in the 22-day-old war.

The latest Vietnamese battle report spoke of hundreds of Chinese casualties in fighting Thursday and Friday — most in fresh attacks in the provincial capital of Cao Bang, which Chinese troops still hold.

Peking blamed the continued fighting on Vietnamese "harassment" of its troops withdrawing from Vietnam, a pullout Hanoi charged was being "deliberately delayed."

China also issued a stern warning to Laos not to meddle in the war, and said accusations by Laos of a Chinese military buildup along the Laotian border were attempts "to provoke a dispute between China and Laos."

In an obvious reference to possible Soviet intervention, the Nhan Dan commentator warned of the "real possibilities of direct action by Vietnam's friends" and noted that one "possesses one of the most powerful armed forces in the world."

Analyzing the weaknesses of the Chinese army, the commentator said it was "far inferior to the expeditionary army of the United States."

A Hanoi battle report issued Saturday night claimed fighting was continuing in all six of Vietnam's northern border provinces.

In Cao Bang province, 120 miles north of Hanoi, the report said the Chinese launched four attacks around the provincial capital they captured more than a week ago.

The Vietnamese report claimed the Chinese were intercepted and suffered heavy casualties.

Peking has given no timetable for the withdrawal and has reserved the right to retaliate if Vietnamese forces attack the withdrawing Chinese army.

TRAIN AND CAR COLLIDE — One person was injured early Saturday, about 12:35 a.m., when a car and train collided on 14th Street extension. According to Greenville Police investigators, the driver of the car was listed as Frederick Charles Keith, of 1202-A E. Tenth St. He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital. Officials said Keith was headed north on 14th Street and the Seaboard Coastline train was headed east. The engine of the train struck the Keith vehicle on the driver's side in the front portion of the auto. The engineer of the train was listed as Russell Floyd Daughtridge, of Rocky Mount. Damage to Keith's 1978 model car was listed as $5,000. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest) hindered the watershed project, but contracts were opened last fall for the lower end of the Chicod project. That first phase was completed in November, with bids to be opened on phase two sometime toward the end of March.

Phase one of Swift Creek is almost completed, with bid to be opened on phase two this summer. However, phase three of the Swift Creek project will take three years to complete.

An environmental study is being conducted on Little Contentnea Creek, with a report to be given on the matter this spring.

Another source of pride for Beck has been the progress of the Mid East Resource Conservation and Development project, which spans Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford Counties. Unfortunately, Beck notes that Congress has cut funding for the project from approximately $25 million to $12 million, with further reductions planned.

Some things that have disappointed Beck is Pitt's lack of developing cropland conservation, and problems with making minimum tillage a successful program for Pitt's corn and soybeans.

"We've lost a lot in the past two years," Beck noted. "Farmers are trying to meet rent bills on their land from year to year. Landowners are going to have to take the responsibility of practicing land conservation."

"We've gone through the fastest erosion damage known to man here in Pitt County, as well as all over the nation," continued Beck. He noted that America has gone from preservation of land to regulation of land since early 1900's.

"We've now got regulations on air pollution and sedimentation," Beck explained. "I see a period of conservation by regulation and I don't think it's going to work."

Beck noted that there just were not enough government employees in the country to back up all the regulations as set forth by various agencies.

Beck is not going to retire his lifetime interest in conservation as of Friday. He is presently teaching agricultural programs at Pitt Technical Institute.

Beck will also continue to oversee the Chicod, Swift Creek and Little Contentnea Creeks Watershed Projects, aiding the SCS toward their completion.

Retirement for some may mean completion of work, or a leavetaking of duties. For Beck, retirement will just be another facet of a life dedicated to conservation and concern for the earth's natural resources.

U.S. 264 Impact To Be Great

Friday the N. C. Board of Transportation approved plans for construction of a freeway type U. S. 264 from Wilson to Greenville.

We can't conceive of any one thing that could be more important to the people who live in the areas served by this east-west highway.

It was an historic day for us who have wished so long for adequate highways. The construction of the freeway will, of course, mean a far more comfortable and safe trip westward for all of us along U. S. 264.

More important, however, are the economic advantages of the interstate standard road serving our area. It will benefit every county and community along its way in the constant search for new industry. Adequate highways are the first concern of industries and businesses in seeking new locations. And with the coming of industry we will see now jobs opening up for our people, many of whom are being displaced in farming.

We are excited with the prospect. We live in an exciting time and an exciting area of the nation, and the development of an adequate highway to serve our needs heightens our anticipation of a better future for our people.

Too many have worked on this dream to cite them all. Certainly the 264 Highway Association and the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce gave great impetus to this successful effort.

Perhaps most important, we have to recognize the firm belief that Gov. Jim Hunt holds in Eastern North Carolina's potential to become an economic force equal to any area in our state, or the south. No doubt it is for that reason he has assigned so much importance to the development of this highway.

Animosities Require Time, Patience

Even Vietnam began to admit last week that the Chinese were withdrawing from the Vietnamese territory, although China was accused of burning homes along the way.

It appeared that tensions were easing once again in Southeast Asia and the Chinese-Vietnam war would soon be ended.

The world, of course, still has plenty of trouble spots, the Middle East being the foremost.

The animosities will have to be settled slowly, however, and with great patience on the part of the major powers.

And the theatrical tour of the state's black college campuses last month by representatives from the civil rights office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was just another in a series of carefully devised schemes to keep the issue alive and in public view.

In fact, say some sources off the record, there is some reason to believe that the HEW visit to North Carolina was deliberately contrived to lend impetus to a membership and fund-raising drive by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The entire scenario spelled out in this almost unbelievable attempt to explain the continuing feud between the university system and HEW sounds like a

Why? Not much national or international interest appeared to result from activities in other states. But North Carolina, the focus of attention by the Communist press; under indictment by Amnesty International; and the butt of nationwide comment on television and in newspaper columns because of the Wilmington Ten, Joan Little, the Charlotte Three, was ripe for exploitation.

So the Tar Heel state was cast as the unwilling — and unwitting — villain in the drama. An entire state can't be despised by the onlookers as they are encouraged to boo and hiss. So early attempts to

Two primary motivations undergird all of this collusive activity in which top-drawer officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and of the NAACP participated:

1. Use HEW and Califano to keep President Carter strong in urban black communities as a champion of the cause;
2. Use the continuing battle as the major selling point in trying to pump new life into the fading Civil Rights movement and the NAACP.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Fed Raiders In N.C.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 RALEIGH, N.C. — When federal bureaucrats staged a lightning raid in their endless vendetta with the University of North Carolina, they did not consult in advance with university president William Friday or Gov. Jim Hunt — or, for that matter, with Jimmy Carter.

The "inspection trip" by high-ranking Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department officials was a transparent effort to prove the dubious premise that predominantly black institutions are starved for funds. President Carter had no more to do with that exercise than with the intensified "desegregation" effort brought against the university by his administration. But by failing to stop it, he suffers the consequences.

Carter's fellow Southerners in electing him president took him at his word when he promised to restrain federal bureaucratic intervention. The fact that his own appointed officials turned out more arrogant and irreconcilable than their predecessors, as in the University of North Carolina case, contributes to Carter's political decline in the South.

Governor Hunt, a moderate liberal and perhaps the president's most steadfast supporter among governors, returned from the recent national governors' conference in Washington to declare that Carter would be in "good shape" for next year's election. But what about this year? "Fair-to-middling, if you know what I mean," he told us.

Since Hunt applauds Carter's foreign policy and is satisfied with the president's budget-balancing efforts, his somber appraisal derives from failure to curb federal harassment of a state that was in Carter's 1976 vanguard. Carter's pledge to maintain tobacco price supports has quieted North Carolina's furor over HEW Secretary Joseph Califano's anti-smoking crusade. But the assault on the university persists.

Just what Califano and HEW's Office of Civil Rights want is not clear; but it cannot be called "desegregation". There are no racial ad

OVERCOME EVIL WITH GOOD

A book on the maintenance of lawns makes the following statement: "If the lawn is kept in good growing state, there will be little bother with weeds." Let the grass have a chance, the writer tells us, and it will stifle the weeds. Fertilizing and watering the lawn is certainly a more efficient means of weed control than painfully digging the weeds out by hand.

This advice on lawn-making has a direct application to our lives. The way to keep life free of evil is not to let the evil get started, and the way to keep the evil from getting started is by cultivating the good. A capacity for kindness and self-sacrifice, for loyalty and love, constitute the seeds of a personal lawn. If one concentrates on making these grow, they can stifle the feelings of anger, selfishness, and lustfulness which are the weeds of life.

A popular book several years ago carries the title, "The Greening of America". It could be used to describe the greening of our own lives.

Sunday Morning Notes

Last weekend brought Spring-like weather to this area for a brief time.

It also brought winds, so typical of March . . . and that brought out the kites. A number of them could be seen flying around the city, particularly at the Town Common on First Street.

Then, too, there were the Spring floods, as heavy rains brought deluges down the streams and creeks of the area.

Finally the Tar River reached the flood stage and crested at over 18 feet.

As occasionally happens the water inched over River Drive in the Tar River Estates area.

Two young ladies took advantage of it all to launch a kayak from the curb of the street.

Taking turns they happily paddled around in the low area between the street and the swift currents of the river.

True curb service for kayak lovers.

After days of overcast skies and rain, a clear day finally dawned on Wednesday.

 WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel has solemnly declared old age to be "a direct outgrowth" of middle age. While this condition has existed for some time, the government is only now beginning to consider what to do about it.

Given the option, most middle-aged Americans would just as soon let nature take its course and make them older Americans.

House subcommittees on aging and retirement have set about studying the problems of middle-aged women, with the suggestion that there ought to be government programs to help them over midlife hurdles.

"They are now being 'discovered' much as the elderly and their problems were 'discovered' during the 1960s," said Dr. Robert N. Butler, director of the National Institute on Aging. "A general pattern may be found in this country when a particular group is perceived as a 'problem.'"

There's no question that middle age brings problems, personal, psychological, professional and sometimes economic, and that they can be particularly difficult for women.

But there is room for doubt that the government can do anything about it, or that it should try.

Actually, Congress got into the act five years ago when it created the National Institute on Aging in a bill that also declared "recent research efforts point the way toward alleviation of the problems of old age by extending the healthy middle years of life."

Butler said his institute has not had the money or the personnel to conduct major studies of the middle years, but "middle age will certainly become a priority area as resources become available within the next several years."

Just where that would lead is not clear, although the 333-page congressional study of women in midlife includes suggestions for career counseling, education programs and legislative policies designed to put more

Other Editors Say The Human Element

(Washington Daily News)

It is extremely difficult at this stage of the activity to evaluate the future picture that the proposed Math and Science High School will present. This school, to be located in Durham at the old Watts Hospital site, might cost a lot of money to get it into condition to be used as a high school.

Money is not the big local objection to such a high school. We agree first off that too little work has been done in explaining in detail on local levels all over our state just what such a school is, how students will be selected, what is expected of them, and how the school will be operated. How many students will such a school accept?

Suppose that we are told this Math and Science High School will have 600 students enrolled. (That number is purely our own and has no relation whatsoever to the number to be determined by the state. But for the sake of discussion, we shall use 600.)

If 600 students should be selected, we might expect six of these students to come from Beaufort County and one from Hyde County.

Taking away six Beaufort County students might not hurt too much, but surely it would be felt. The truth is that six of our very best students would be sent to Durham to study, thereby removing from our local classrooms six students who excel and who normally might be counted upon to show the way to other students, academically speaking.

To drain off the best students in Beaufort County or to drain off the 12 top students in Pitt County or the 15 best students in Wayne County very easily could draw opposition from local educational people.

They just will not like to see their best students taken away, and in a real practical sense that is understandable.

Then, in making selections, there will be some not taken who feel they should have been chosen. They and their parents will be very upset. We all must wonder just how much competition there will be for appointments to this school.

We are of the opinion that the human element will play a much larger role in the story of this Math and Science High School than will the physical element, including its financing. While many legislators might object to the cost, and while, politically speaking, there will be grave differences, the human side of the story outweighs the financial.

It's nature's way that things return to normal and by week's end the Tar had returned to its banks.

Over in Martin County the herring were reported running in the Roanoke.

In Grifton the first shad was reported caught.

It must be . . . or mighty close to . . . Spring!

Wouldn't you know it? By Thursday the skies were overcast and the sun was not to be seen.

The rainy day seemed fairly normal in view of all the bad weather we've had this year.

East Carolina University students were largely gone from the area because of the Spring break . . . and a good percentage of them headed to Florida.

One student, left behind by friends who travelled south, growled, "I hope it snows down there."

Now, now. We can't ruin the orange crop.

A New Day In Corporate Meets

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — Like the class reunion, the corporate annual meeting is a rite of spring, a gathering of those with mutual interests to review the past, assess the present, and probably peak into the future.

It once could be as casual as the class reunion, too, not really a spring picnic but still an outing, sometimes with box lunches and even entertainment. If only for a day, management and shareholders embraced.

But all that has been swallowed now by the more serious concerns of today, such as consumerism, morality, accountability, governance and the like. Shareholders are aggressive; management often is defensive.

This year, say the big accounting firms that now help management anticipate questions, shareholders will ask about questionable or illegal payments, political contributions, the use of foreign agents.

"What controls has the company instituted to protect against white collar crime? Does the board review the level of compensation of officers? Why aren't there any women on the board of directors?"

That sampler is from a 34-page booklet of probable questions that is being sent to clients by Deloitte Haskins & Sells, an accounting firm. The essential message is:

Mr. President, be prepared. Depending on the company involved, preparation this year must also include briefings on how to handle church groups, unions, universities and an increasing array of socially concerned individuals.

While the latter have been active for decades, especially in seeking to make corporations more responsive to their shareholders, they have grown more numerous and perhaps more effective of late.

Charlotte P. Hutchinson, concerned shareholder in Iowa Power & Light, intends to seek resolutions against nuclear power. So does Ronald Pomerance, shareholder in Pacific Gas & Electric.

Robert Hall, managing editor of Southern Exposure, a quarterly journal of social concern, is again likely to be active in questioning the J.P. Stevens Co. particularly regarding its anti-union policy.

Marvin Perry of Phoenix, Ariz., has indicated he plans to question the Arizona Bank about its employment data over the past four years, seeking to determine the percentage of Spanish-surnamed employees.

Management recognizes that times change and that it can no longer get up before its audience and just tell what it wants them to hear, but you may be sure that more than a few top executives long for those good old days.

See Need Of $223 Weekly

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Americans now believe it takes $223 per week for a family of four to make ends meet. In this latest Gallup Poll of estimated living costs, the median estimate among those interviewed is the highest recorded in surveys dating back to 1937 and represents a 22 percent increase over the median of $201 obtained at this time last year.

The extent to which inflation, cited by the American people as the top problem facing the nation, has affected living costs is apparent in a comparison of poll results obtained by the Gallup Poll during the last 40 years.

In 1937, when the Gallup Poll first asked this question, the median response given was $30. A decade later the figure was $43, and by 1957 the amount had risen to $72. In 1967 the figure hit three digits, $101, for the first time. And in 1978, the median estimate reached over $200 for the first time. In short, while it took three decades for the sum to reach $100, it took only about one decade (1967-78) to double that amount.

Regional Differences

In the current survey the median of the estimates of people living in the South is lower ($201) than the median of estimates given by Easterners ($224), Midwesterners ($226) or Westerners ($250).

As one might expect, wide differences are present when the estimates are analyzed by the size of the city in which a person lives. The median estimate of people living in the largest cities (500,000 or more) is $250 as compared with $200 in communities under 2,500 and rural areas.

Here is the question asked:

"What is the smallest amount of money a family of four (husband, wife and two children) needs each week to get along in this community?"

The following tables highlight the trend since the first survey and provide the latest results by region and city size:

Minimum Amount Needed By A Family Of Four (Non-farm families)
1979	$223
1978	201
1967	101
1957	72
1947	43

Current Family Of Four Needs
NATIONWIDE	$223
East	224
Midwest	226
South	201
West	250
One million and more	251
500,000-999,999	250
50,000-499,999	233
2,500-49,999	201
Less than 2,500, rural	200

The results reported today are based on personal interviews with 1,473 non-farm residents, 18 and older. Interviews were conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Feb. 2-5.

As I Recall It

Luther Hodges Struck Out At Henderson Mills

By NOEL YANCEY

(Noel Yancey retired recently after 39 years of covering North Carolina news for the Associated Press. In this column, he retells some of the big stories he recalls.)

Luther Hodges, the retired businessman turned politician, was one of the ablest of North Carolina governors. He strove successfully to attract industry to the state and he got the Research Triangle started and well on its way to becoming a successful enterprise. But he struck out completely in his efforts to settle the strike at the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills in Henderson.

The strike by more than 1,000 workers began in November 1958 after the company demanded that an arbitration clause be stricken from the union contract and that changes be made in the workload provisions.

The walkout became one of the most violent in the state's history as the mills began replacing the strikers with nonunion workers. It was marked in its early days by dynamiting, rock throwing and rifle firing. Hodges sent in several hundred state highway patrolmen and later ordered National Guard units to the scene in his efforts to maintain order.

I recall vividly one night as nonstrikers were leaving the mill at 11 p.m., they ran a gauntlet of rifle fire. I could hear rifles being cocked and fired around me and then I could hear the bullets going plop against the sides of the workers' cars. Miraculously, no one was hurt that night, one of many in which violence flared at the mills.

The strike was climaxed by the trial and conviction of Boyd Patton, Carolina's director of the Textile Workers Union of America and seven other unionists on charges of conspiring to dynamite mill facilities. Payton and the others were sent to prison.

Hodges made several unsuccessful efforts to mediate the dispute and end the strike. I recall one afternoon another reporter and I got word that Hodges was on his way to Henderson, and we took off after him. We waited impatiently outside the conference room for several hours until the governor came out to report triumphantly that both sides had agreed on a settlement. We called in our stories that the strike had been settled.

The next day, however, the settlement went sour when the union members learned that most of the jobs in the mills had been filled by nonunion men and that comparatively few were left for the strikers to fill.

The strike continued after Hodges left the governor's office. Union members continued to picket the two mills until July 1, 1961, but mill President John D. Cooper Jr. commented that for all practical purposes it had ended in the early fall of 1959 "when I got full employment, began using three shifts and resumed full production."

Childrearing Attitudes Are Subject To Change

Mears Col. . . .

It only takes one conversation with my daughter to make me realize that attitudes toward childrearing have changed drastically during my lifetime. My parents believed in that old saying, "Children should be seen and not heard." But Meg prefers another maxim, "Never take 'no' for an answer."

What's more, her growing vocabulary has made dealing with this "last word" syndrome increasingly difficult. For instance, one day last week when I refused to give her a marshmallow right before her lunch, she made this distinction.

"But a marshmallow is not a dessert. Mommy. A marshmallow is a treat."

"It doesn't make a bit of difference, honey. A marshmallow is a sweet, and you are not going to have one right now because it will spoil your lunch."

She stamped her foot. "That's not fair! If you don't give me one, I'm gonna run away from this place!"

"Where in the world did you get such an idea?" I gasped. "The only place you're going to run is to your room!"

put an end to the episode. But just as I turned back toward the kitchen, I heard her whisper at her bedroom door, "You don't love me, and I don't care!"

"Meg Michaels, I thought I told you that I didn't want to hear another word!"

"Well, I didn't say it out loud."

"That doesn't make any difference. Now you be quiet, and I do love you."

"Well, I don't care!"

And so it went for the rest of the day. The only time she wasn't smarting off and being punished for it was during her nap. By the time Phillip got home, I was a nervous wreck.

"Where in the world did she pick up such ideas?" Phillip said.

"I don't know," I sighed. "But if anyone runs away from here, it's going to be me."

Come on, be serious. I know this sass didn't just spring from thin air, but I can't imagine where she heard it."

"Well, don't look at me," I said. "I don't know where she got it, and frankly, I don't care."

In 1965, a white Boston minister, the Reverend James Reeb, died after being beaten by whites during civil rights disturbances in Selma, Ala.

Ten years ago: A three-week strike by West Virginia coal miners ended as Gov. Arch Moore signed a bill increasing compensation benefits for miners disabled by black lung disease.

Five years ago: A four-month state of emergency ended in Britain. It had been called because of growing economic problems.

One year ago: Terrorists seized an Israeli bus as it was on its way to Tel Aviv. Nearly 20 dozen people were killed when the bus exploded during a gun battle with Israeli troops.

Today's birthday: Newspaper and magazine publisher Rupert Murdoch is 48.

constructive it would not have done otherwise? "Nothing," responded Friday, considered one of the nation's foremost educators.

To Carter supporters here, it is inconceivable that the president approved of HEW's conduct. Asked who is calling the signals, Friday gave us a one-word answer: "Joe."

Politicians, therefore, wonder why the president does not pick up his telephone and order Joe Califano to call off the dogs. His supporters here have a two-part answer: first, that is not Jimmy Carter's way of doing business; second, he cannot further alienate the black vote that proved his 1976 margin of victory.

Hunt was elected in 1976 with liberal-labor-black support similar to Carter's, but is not afraid to oppose federal harassment of the university. Hunt has retained major white support while Carter has not. Having lost Southern whites through appointments such as Joe Califano and Mary Berry, the president needs black support even more today than in 1976. Therein lies the deepening political dilemma of this Southern president.

Tobacco Curing Season Of Past Fondly Recalled

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. — Tobacco curing in the old days was a great deal of hard work, but there was fun as well. When I was a boy, the thrill in anticipation of spending a night at the barn with my father was second only to that of the long, suspenseful wait for Santa Claus. I loved the red-hot furnace fires that shot their light across the barnyard, the dashes with Dad into the stifling heat of the barn to check the thermometer and flash the buckeyed lantern around to see if all was well. I reveled in the make-shift outdoor bed where we slept in our work clothes under musty quilts and let the dew fall in our faces. We awoke at dawn to see the first streaks of the new day shoot up the sky in the east, and heard the roosters calling the good news to each other from farm to farm.

To appease our voracious appetites, we ate apples, sweet potatoes, and young corn that we roasted by hanging them in the upright ends of the flues that stood on each side of the door and served as vents for the heating system. We ate watermelons and "mushmelons" (the name "cantaloupe" was late in coming to the hills) and threw the rinds into the dark where, in the sunshine of the next day, they attracted bees and yellow jackets, both hazardous to bare feet.

When curing fell on weekends, we sometimes invited neighbors to come and sit with us. Then we'd have a chicken-stew, if we could persuade Mother, who attended some of those gatherings herself, to cook a pone of lightbread for us. To those get-togethers some one invariably brought a banjo or a guitar. While he played, the bolder ones of us tried to clog on the hard dirt floor of the barnyard.

As I grew older and had to take on the curing chore alone, neighbor boys often gathered at the barn. Then we made a sport of "stealing" the chickens for our stews from our own families. We also, when we ran short of watermelons in our own fields, raided the patch of some nearby farmer who did not have a representative among us.

But whether there were family and friends with me at the barn, or whether I cured alone, the season held an undeniable fascination. I loved the sounds that were peculiar to the fall nights. Many of them were made by unidentifiable creatures and were altogether mysterious in purpose or intent. They seemed closer, more intimate and more scary than when I heard them from within the walls of our house. When they closed in threateningly, I took comfort in the warm circle of light before the barn's furnaces.

I loved the smell of wood smoke, of tobacco drying, of the night's dampness and fresh dew. Even the musty quilts, which we shook thoroughly before tying down lest we share our bed with a snake or black widow spider, were an exciting change from the routine of clean sheets and soft blankets. They spoke of a kind of cave-man relationship with nature that man no longer experienced.

And how I watched the heavens! I saw the stars — which I could not count for losing my place — climb up over our neighbor's wooded hill and march steadily across the sky, telling me that the night was passing away. Their patterns became familiar, although their names I never learned, except for a few. Sometimes the steady march was punctuated by a "star" that shot and streaked from nowhere, to flame and flare like a roman candle, then die. I wondered why I could not hear its rushing sound, its explosive end. I became familiar with various clusters of the Milky Way, and knew that midnight was approaching when the "Little Dipper" rose high in the east. I tried to see the "man-in-the-moon" but never succeeded.

My father used to talk to me about the ways of man and fill my still-empty head with the lore of the past. He told me stories about men and women, bears and wolves, wars and God.

It was a time for comradeship and education and philosophy. It was a unique time for a boy to grow.

The Other Side Of The J.P. Stevens Warfare

BY JAMES J. KILPATRICK
WASHINGTON — When the "labor reform" package was pending on Capitol Hill a year ago, union spokesmen cited one horrid example above all others to show why the bill was needed. This was the horrid example of J. P. Stevens & Company, manufacturers of blankets, towels, sheets and carpets.

Daily we were regaled by stories of the company's perfidy, its unfairness, its tyrannical conduct. In this melodrama, the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union was cast as the innocent Belinda, the company as the villainous Rudolph Rassendale.

Well, they teach us as cubs that every story has two sides, and this story is no exception. The Stevens outfit, beyond question, is a tough, bare-knuckled outfit that has fought the union every step of the way; its record of labor relations is awful. But the Textile Workers Union is no virtuous embodiment of sweetness and light. Attend, if you will, to the story of Vivian Joyce Belton.

Mrs. Belton is so much a bit player that if this affair were being staged, her name wouldn't even appear in a footnote. She is an attractive woman, barely 50, dark-haired; her speech has the soft Southern cadence of a mountain stream sliding over rapids. Her husband, Walter, works for a forest products company. They have a grown daughter and two grandsons. Mrs. Belton works as a training instructor and operator at the J. P. Stevens plant in Westfield, N. C. She is a freeborn woman who lives just over the line in Patrick County, Va. And she wants no part of the Textile Workers Union.

Vivian Belton never intended to be an anti-union activist. She is not a member of the J. P. Stevens Employees Educational Committee. "I'm not a member of any committee." But some months ago, when union organizers suddenly stepped up activity at Westfield, she donned a tee-shirt and went to work bearing a message loud and clear: "Stand By J. P. Stevens." She heard cheers, jeers and snickers.

One thing led to another. The first thing she knew, she was in fact an activist. She gave out tee-shirts and leaflets; she signed a statement supporting the company's position; she went to a meeting of fellow employees opposed to the union. In the union's view, she got to be a real pain. So in October the union slapped her with a subpoena duces tecum.

This is a subpoena "bring it with you." The union had filed a strange suit against Stevens in a federal District Court in New York City — strange in this regard, that the union's suit was not grounded in labor law but in antitrust law and securities law. Mrs. Belton awoke to find that she had been "commanded" by a federal judge to appear in Stuart, Va., at such-and-such an hour, bringing with her a fantastic array of documents.

The union demanded of Mrs. Belton every record, paper, letter, memorandum, diary, newspaper, notice, statement and check in her possession, relating in any way, in whole or in part, to the Stevens company. The union demanded every such document in her possession, covering a period of nearly four years, relating in any way to fellow employees who might also oppose the union. The union demanded to know the names of such persons.

The union demanded to know all about the tee-shirts. The list ran on for three long single-spaced pages.

It is absurd — it is inconceivable — to suppose that Vivian Belton, an hourly worker making elastic braid in Westfield, N. C., has any material evidence whatever on the matter of antitrust conspiracies or securities violations. The subpoena has but one purpose — to chill dissent, to shut her up. And Mrs. Belton is only one of many Stevens workers thus intimidated.

Resisting this effort, Mrs. Belton has filed an affidavit that carries the ring of a good bronze bell: "I believe I have just as much right not to join the union and try to convince other employees not to join the union as the union does to try to get employees to support it. I also believe I have just as much right to oppose and work against the union as the union has to seek support among the public for its activities... and I do not think the union has the right to ask me the identity of my fellow employees and others who hold the same beliefs that I do."

Hang tough, grandma! And don't let the big guys wear you down.

May Have Attempted To Buy Arms For PLO

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — To his family and friends Jawad Hawa is a man pursuing the American dream.

But to federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau investigators Hawa was "ringleader" of a local group they say tried secretly to buy 2,000 handguns from an undercover agent to smuggle to the Mideast.

Friends know Hawa as a proud, outspoken, well-dressed, hard-working man who arrived in the U.S. nine years ago from a village named Mount of Olives near Jerusalem, to build his future.

Hawa came to Charlotte to visit a brother. He remained to work as a truck driver, marry, operate a convenience store and, just two weeks ago, to open his own restaurant. He liked to make money and spend it.

Joseph Hawa, 29, a nephew who Jawad Hawa brought to this country, said his uncle loved this country so much he once placed a bumper sticker on his car that said "America — Love It or Leave It."

Five ATF agents Wednesday arrested Jawad Hawa, 35, on a warrant charging five felon violations of federal firearms laws. After his arrest in his Ali Baba Mideastern Restaurant, just across the street from Central Piedmont Community College, he was lodged in Mecklenburg County Jail under $100,000 bond.

ATF agents also arrested two other men, both students, after they allegedly bought three handguns with silencers for $500 in an East Hartford, Conn., parking lot.

The two, Jehod Shuja, 26, a Syrian, and Ra'ad Nasser, 23, an Iraqi, are in a Hartford jail, each under $100,000 bond. Shuja is a first semester engineering student at University of North Carolina at Charlotte, and Nasser is a first semester English language student at CPCC. Bond reduction hearings for the three men are scheduled Monday.

Investigators have little to say about their seven-month investigation, but sources close to the investigation speculate the guns were destined for the Palestine Liberation Organization but say they cannot prove it.

"If we could find out who the ultimate consumer was going to be, we'd be better off," said Charlie Stone, ATF assistant special agent in charge of the Hartford district. "But at this point we don't know."

Richard Blumenthal, U.S. attorney at Hartford, said Jawad Hawa began a series of meetings with an ATF undercover agent in Hartford last Aug. 2.

"He was trying to purchase a large amount of firearms for export," Stone said. "As far as we know, he's not part of an organized group that is doing this." He said the men were "only out to make money" and Jawad Hawa "is the ringleader."

SPRAYING THE SEAL PUPS — An environmentalist from the Fund For Animals of New York City sprays red dye on the fur of a white seal pup on ice floes 50 miles north of Magdalen Islands, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Canada. In the background is the "Sea Shepherd," used by environmentalists from the U.S. and Canada in an effort to stop slaughter of the seals. The almost indelible dye destroys the value of the pelts to seal hunters who slaughter them for their almost pure white pelts, skin them and leave the carcasses. The environmentalists were later arrested by the Canadian Government. (AP Wirephoto)

Protest Deportation

EL PASO, Texas (UPI) — Several hundred Mexicans demonstrating against the deportation of about 150 illegal Mexican aliens Saturday tore down two American flags flying over an international bridge.

Immigration and Naturalization Service district director Charlie Perez said the incident "was not a government-to-government confrontation, but merely a civil disturbance."

Other than the flag incident, Perez said no violence had been reported at either the Paseo del Norte bridge, where the flags were torn down, or at the Bridge of the Americas.

The demonstrations began Friday after about 150 illegal aliens were rounded up by INS officials as the workers reported to their domestic jobs. Many of the deported workers, angered because they missed receiving their weekly paychecks, lingered on the Mexican side and soon drew a crowd of about 400 sympathizers.

The angry crowd stopped traffic most of Friday afternoon, but was dispersed by Mexican army units after being addressed by officials of the U.S. and Mexican immigration services and Juarez police.

Perez said the protestors returned in force to the bridge Saturday, and again closed the bridges to traffic.

"They (the protestors) have stayed on their own side," Perez said. "They're making noise and yelling various things. They're just loud mouths."

He said El Paso police and U.S. officials had not been called to the immediate area but were standing by in case they were needed. Both the Mexican and U.S. governments were cooperating to quell the disturbance, he said.

KKK Drive

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The state organizer of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan said today his group is beginning an organizational drive in Charlotte.

Vernon Logan of Winston-Salem spoke to newsmen while he was in Charlotte to talk with local klansmen.

Logan, 29, would not say how many klan members there are in Charlotte or how many he hoped to recruit, but he said klan supporters would be trying to get both adults and youths to join the Louisiana-based Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

VEPCO Official To Speak March 14

T. Justin Moore Jr., chairman of the Board of Directors and chief executive officer of Virginia Electric and Power Co. will speak at a Coffee Talk here March 14 at the Holiday Inn.

The 7:30 a.m. coffee talk is being sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce and Stuart Shinn, Inc.

Moore will discuss the changing energy requirements as well as the operation and history of VEPCO.

Chamber officials said the coffee talk with Moore was prompted by the growing concern of Northeastern North Carolina citizens over increasing electric rates by VEPCO.

Many questions concerning the operation of VEPCO and the difference between VEPCO's rates and those charged by Carolina Power and Light Co. and by Duke Power Co. have been priority issues of "Operation Overcharge", a citizen's action group formed by the chambers of commerce of the 22 Northeastern North Carolina counties.

Moore received an AB degree from Princeton University in 1947 and an LL.B. degree from the University of Virginia in 1950. He was appointed assistant general counsel for VEPCO in 1956 and was named associate general counsel for the utility in April 1960. He was elected president in April 1970 and a member of the board in June 1970. Moore became vice-chairman of the board and chief executive officer in January 1978.

The Coffee Talk is open free of charge to all Chamber members and other interested citizens. Reservations may be made by calling the chamber office at 752-4101.

Offer Financial Short Course

A short course on financial planning will be offered by Pitt Technical Institute beginning Wednesday, March 14, 7 p.m. The course will last for five weeks' meeting each Tuesday from 7-9 p.m.

Dr. Alan Gibbons will serve as instructor, including information on budgeting, insurance, taxes, savings and investments. The course will meet on the Pitt Technical Institute campus.

AARP Chapter To Meet Monday

The Greenville Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, No. 2016, will meet Monday at 2:30 p.m. at the Memorial Baptist Church.

The program will be presented by Medicare consultants and should be of general interest to all members.

Writing Is Great Love Of Asimov

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — To Isaac Asimov, who has more than 200 books, 1,300 articles and 250 short stories to his credit, asking what makes him write is like asking what makes his heart beat.

"I do it," Asimov says eagerly, the words rushing out, "because I'm extremely bright, and I do it because I'm not interested in anything else. It's what I need to do."

"Writing fascinates me. I love it. And I'm a very lucky man. I spend all my time doing what I love."

"Some writers like to think about what they are going to write, others like best holding their finished book in their hands, but neither is too fond of the writing itself. But for me it's the in-between part — the writing itself — that I like best."

An amiable 59-year-old whose face is framed by long grey-black sideburns, Asimov published his first book, the science-fiction novel "Pebble in the Sky," in 1950. His 200th, actually two books that Asimov considers tied for 200th place, were published early this year. They are the first volume of his autobiography, "In Memory Yet Green," and "Opus 200," a collection.

On tap are eight more books "all ready to come out during the rest of the year. Right now I'm working on the books that will come out in 1980. At the moment, I don't know how many there will be."

Asimov says his writing career began when he was 11 and "started writing for my own amusement." He wrote science-fiction because magazines that carried it were available in his father's candy store, where he worked in his free hours, and he enjoyed reading them.

"But it wasn't until I was 18," he recalls with a smile, "that I tried to sell one of my stories. The first one I sent out was rejected. But the second one, 'Marooned Off Vesta,' was accepted on Oct. 21, 1938," he says as he displays his gift for instant recall. "It appeared in 1939, so this year also marks my 40th anniversary as a professional published writer, which is hard to believe since I'm only a little over 30."

Asimov entered college at 15 — "because I was bright and they kept pushing me ahead in grade school" — and took a bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees in chemistry. He taught biochemistry but decided to give it up in 1958 and devote all his time to writing.

"What I wanted out of life was to write," he recalls, "and teaching was getting in my way. I was riding two horses and they were separating and I had to make a decision."

The books began to pour out of his typewriter. The early ones were science fiction, but Asimov soon broadened his writing — he's now written books about general science, mathematics, astronomy, chemistry, physics, history, the Bible, and numerous other subjects. It has taken 29 publishers to handle his output.

"Look," he says, "I moved to New York City from Boston in 1970 and in the next 96 months I published 96 books, for eight years I wrote a book a month."

How does he account for this output?

"I write all the time," Asimov says. "I get up and start writing and I write until I go to bed — except when I'm interrupted."

"And there are interruptions. I have to talk to my wife — who, by the way, knew what I was and what life with me would be like when she married me. I have to eat, I have to wash, I have to socialize occasionally, and I give interviews."

"But on a good day — one with minimal interruptions — I can stay at the typewriter from 7:30 in the morning until 10:30 at night, typing at 90 words a minute which is as fast as I can type and maybe turning out 30 pages or 9,000 words."

Asimov says he is able to write about such a wide variety of subjects because of his talent for retention. "I read, and I have read a lot. I've heard a lot. And I remember it all and have it on tap. I can recall instantly from the files in my head so I never take notes. My memory is my staunch and un-failing support."

He grudgingly admits he takes an occasional vacation. Even then he writes, usually in longhand and usually fiction. "I don't have my reference library along so I can't check details. But I'm always glad when the vacation is over so I can get back to my real vacation."

Dr. James Promoted

Dr. David P. James of Columbia, Md., son of Mrs. Lula F. James of Greenville, has been promoted to the position of Associate Dean of Extension Centers at Prince George's Community College in Largo, Md. In this capacity he is responsible for the administration of the off-campus credit programs held throughout Prince George's County.

Dr. James received his bachelor's degree from Elizabeth City State University, his master's degree from Georgetown University and doctorate from Nova University.

Annual Meeting On March 17

TARBORO — The annual meeting of the Edgecombe-Martin County Electric Membership Corp. will be held at the Edgecombe County Technical Institute auditorium here March 17.

Some 500 members-owners of the cooperative are expected to attend the business session which is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m., according to Rudolph Sexton, manager of the co-op.

Exhibits and displays featuring energy conservation and health will be opened at 12 noon.

The business session will include the election of three directors to serve on the cooperative's board, reports on the co-op's operations during the past year, and a question-and-answer session.

Sponsor Course For Fishermen

Pitt Technical Institute is sponsoring a course in Fishing Rod Construction and Repair. The course is designed to teach a person how to construct a fishing rod by assembling the various components such as the rod blank, reel seat, grips, guides and tip.

The class will be held at Greenville Bait and Tackle beginning Wednesday, March 14, 7 p.m. The class will meet two hours per night for five weeks. Registration fee will be $5 for each person.

For more information, contact the Continuing Education Division of PTI, 756-3130, extension 238.

Two Charged

FARMVILLE — Farmville residents, Frank Moots, 19, and Joey Tripp, 16, have been charged with attempted breaking and entering.

The arrests of the two were made at 2 a. m. Thursday. Police Chief Ron Cooper said, when the owner of the Roadrunner Service Station on the 264 Bypass near here heard a noise in the rear of the station. He had just happened to go back to the station for something when the attempted illegal entry occurred, he told police.

The two were taken to the Pitt County Jail, Cooper indicated.

Nurses Ass'n To Hold Meet

District 30 of the North Carolina Nurses Association will meet Tuesday at the Town and Country restaurant in Williamston. Dinner will be served at 6:30.

The topic of discussion is current legislative strategies for achieving a National Comprehensive Health Policy in the U.S. and possible effects on nurses and nursing practice.

Preregistration is required with a $2.00 fee for non-member. No fee is required for members or student nurses.

PCMHC Report

The 1978 evaluation report for the Pitt County Mental Health Center is now available for public review.

According to Area Director Stephen Creech, the report provides analysis of center services offered to Pitt County residents during the past year.

The evaluation shows evidence of an increasing role for the center in the community and indicates that fewer persons from the county are now being treated in regional institutions such as Cherry Hospital, Creech noted.

The annual report was prepared by Jerry F. Lotterhos, evaluation consultant for the center. It is available for viewing by the public at the center or at the Pitt County Manager's Office in the County Court House.

Mystery Woman Dies

By RICK BAKER
Peoria Journal Star
MORTON, Ill. (AP) — She was the woman with no name — a mystery for 38 years in the custody of the state of Illinois. This week, they buried her.

Only pieces of her tragic life are known. Nobody ever knew her name, although they called her Mary Doefour. There already were at least three Mary Does in state mental institutions.

About 50 years ago, she was a young, attractive school teacher from the Midwest, perhaps Missouri or Iowa. Nobody knows for sure. One day during the Depression, she was found dazed beside a rural road near Chicago.

She had been raped and beaten. Authorities couldn't figure out what to do with a woman, who, at age 25, said she couldn't remember her name or anything else about herself.

So, she was placed in a state hospital for the criminally insane near Manteno. She had committed no crime. She wasn't insane. She just couldn't remember who she was.

She probably never saw the baby she had as a result of the rape. During her 10 years at Manteno, she was given so much medicine that she developed a nervous disorder, and was frequently given electroshock treatments to keep her calm.

When the electricity knocked her out, she would be thrown into a tub of cold water, a standard practice during the period.

Jon Steinmetz, now assistant superintendent at Manteno, said Mary Doefour's records did not explain precisely why she was sent there. However, he said, the Illinois mental health system was in its infancy at the time, and the state had no place else to put her.

After a decade, she was transferred. All of Mary Doefour's belongings — a sweater and a dress several sizes too big, some socks and a pair of shoes — were stuffed into an old orange crate and she was driven to a state hospital in Bartonville, where she stayed for 30 years until the facility closed.

When the state closed Bartonville, she was shuttled to other nursing homes, first in El Paso, Ill., and then the Queenwood Convalescent Home in Morton, where Mrs. Stroud worked.

"She was terrified of men," said Mrs. Stroud. "She wouldn't let them get near her."

She shook constantly from 50 years of medication, but appeared to enjoy her new freedom from mental institutions, wearing a ragged pink sweater as she walked around the nursing home even in rainstorms.

After a couple of years, however, she went blind.

Last March, Mary Doefour died of a heart attack while in bed. She was about 71. She was cremated and given a brief service.

On Thursday, under a fir tree in a cemetery space reserved for persons with no money and no relatives, they buried the urn containing the ashes of Mary Doefour.

Once an intelligent, articulate woman, she degenerated, according to Diana Stroud. Now she blew her nose on her dress, washed herself in the toilet and defecated on the floor.

Winners Listed

ORATORICAL COMPETITION WINNERS . . . in the annual Greenville Optimist Club competition are Angie Hamil (left) and Keith Coletrain. Standing behind them is John Day, chairman of the local competition.

Winners have been announced for the Annual Oratorical Contest sponsored by the Greenville Optimist Club and held this week at Tom's Restaurant.

Top place winners were, in the girls competition category, Angie Hamil; and in the boys competition, Keith Coletrain.

Other winners are — girls, Emily Smith, second place, and Christine Clift, third place; boys, Mark James, second place, and Clay Deanhardt, third place.

Theme of the contest this year was "In My Youth I See . . ." First place winners received gold medallions, second place winners silver medallions, and third place winners bronze medallions.

Hamil and Coletrain as first place winners are now eligible to compete in the upcoming zone competition, which covers several eastern North Carolina counties. Zone winners will then go to the regional competition, and from there to state level.

The contestants are competing for a $500 scholarship. This year marks the 51st year of annual oratorical competition for young people sponsored by Optimist International.

Where's All The Aardvark Lovers?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Are you ready for this? They held a Ms. American Aardvark contest at the Philadelphia Zoo and someone showed up.

Margaret Hoyert, the lone contestant, trotted off with the first prize — a crown of daisies.

Miss Hoyert, a 19-year-old University of Maryland architecture student, was crowned Friday.

It was not an aardvark look-alike contest. The animal is a squat, heavy, burrowing, African ant eater. It has donkey-like ears, short legs and a long head with a pig-like snout and a slender, sticky tongue, and likes to eat ants and termites.

Robert Bogart, president of the American Association of Aardvark Aficionados, based in Westfield, N.J., said the contest was held here because the zoo "has the only aardvark in captivity in the Northeast."

Disappointed at the shortage of entrants for his fledgling pageant, Bogart said, "I guess aardvark lovers aren't ready to come out of the closet yet."

Cancellations Were Due To Limited Fuel

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Piedmont Airlines was forced to cancel several flights into North Carolina airports because of reduced fuel allocations for March, a Piedmont spokeswoman said Friday.

Seven North Carolina airports were affected by the cutbacks. Wilmington airport experienced the largest cutback with seven flights canceled there.

Betsy Allen said reduced allocations from fuel suppliers forced the company to cut back some of their least-used weekend flights.

"We canceled the flights that would inconvenience the fewest number of people," Mrs. Allen said. She said the weekend flights were chosen because fewer people depend on them.

The North Carolina airports where service will be reduced include, Wilmington, Asheville, Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Raleigh-Durham and Fayetteville.

Peaches, Greenville's Adult Disco Is Proud To Announce

"The Best Is Getting Better"!

Peaches will be closed Sunday, March fourth through Monday, March twelfth.

But it'll be worth it. We will reopen Tuesday, March thirteenth with a face lift and an all new system to make convenience for you a key word in our operation. The all new management places the emphasis on service with the introduction to Eastern Carolina of the total tab system. The beauty of this setup is that each individual will have to pay only once prior to leaving Peaches at the end of the evening. More time to do other things you'd rather be doing at Peaches.

More changes! Peaches will be open a new night beginning in March. Introducing Backgammon night, Sundays with the emphasis on easy listening music, good conversation, (you supply), a relaxed atmosphere, and of course, backgammon. Peaches will have backgammon boards available, but we encourage you to bring your own. See you Sundays at seven P.M.

Peaches will also be continuing the tradition of Beach Nite on Tuesdays. Our oldies D.J., Collins Cooper, plays some of the best 50's & beach music around, so you won't want to miss the fun every Tuesday at 8:00 P.M.

Of course, Foxy Lady Night every Thursday Nite 8:00 P.M. and 10:00 P.M.

Hold Four On Murder Charge

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mecklenburg County police were holding two men and two teen-age girls today on charges of killing a Gwynn Island, Va., motel night manager. Police said the two girls, described as runaways from their homes in Anderson, S.C., were arrested about noon at a local motel, and the two men were arrested when they returned to the motel about 8 p.m. The men were identified by police as David H. McDonald, 21, of Anderson, S.C., and Lanny T. Lowrance, 24, of Belmont N.C.

No Baptist Funding For Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The Wake Forest University budget for 1979-80 contains no funding from the Baptist State Convention for the first time in recent years, the school's president announced Friday. Trustees approved a record $66 million budget, which will be supplemented by a $300 tuition increase to make up for the lack of convention funds. In January, the Baptist State Convention voted to hold almost $1 million in contributions in escrow until the convention and university agree on a method of trustee selection.

Prominent Men Charged

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A preliminary hearing will be held March 23 for three prominent Manteo men charged in the Feb. 19 hit-and-run death of a Roanoke Island man. Charles Silsby Fearing, 31, of Manteo is charged with felonious hit-and-run involving personal injury. He is a former Dare County Democratic chairman. Charged with being accessories after the fact to the hit and run were Manteo Town Commissioner M. Keith Fearing III, 24, and Dare County Deputy Claude C. Duvall, 43. The charges resulted from the alleged hit-and-run death of 87-year-old Cloise H. Creef. M. Keith Fearing and Duvall are accused of assisting Charles Fearing to avoid apprehension and arrest.

GUILTY, Faces More Charges

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The former town manager of Ona Beach was found guilty Friday of failure to discharge duties of her office but judged innocent on charges of felony embezzlement and misdemeanor fraud. It took four hours for a New Hanover Superior Court jury of seven men and five women to reach the verdict on charges against Sheila Davis.

---Friday's Action By N.C. Legislators---

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two mountain legislators filed a bill Friday that would limit the liability of ski resort operators in personal injury suits filed by skiers.

Other legislative action taken included:

Substitutes
Rep. Ben Tison, D-Mecklenburg, a member of the Advisory Budget Commission and House Base Budget Committee chairman, said he believed there was enough surplus money in the state education budget to immediately raise pay for substitute school teachers.

Insurance
Senate Insurance Committee Chairman Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, filed a bill that would require insurance policies to be "readable and understandable to a person of average intelligence, experience and education."

Banks
The House voted 91-2 to enact a bill that removes most of the state's interest rate limits on commercial loans by banks. It sets a maximum 12 percent limit on short-term business loans under $25,000, and removes the ceiling on loans above that amount.

Wine
The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill aimed at helping out several wineries operating in the state. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Jim Morgan, would allow wineries to sell their product to people who visit their operation.

Adopt-A-Pet

"The friendliest, most lovable pup you'll ever see," is the way Charles Shiver describes the pictured mixed-breed dog being sought a home this week by the Pitt County Humane Society.

Shiver has kept the dog for several weeks now, but cannot keep him indefinitely. Someone wanting a good pet is asked to call him at 752-4972.

Also being sought homes are the following:

— a three-year-old spayed female cat named Kitty Gray. She's in good health and is used to living indoors. Call 756-5558.

— a part-German shepherd female puppy in desperate need of a home, since the person who found her lives in an apartment and is having to board her till a home can be found. Call 758-4710.

— two part-German shepherd females, one two years old and one six months old, plus a mixed-breed brown and white male medium-sized dog. All three are up-to-date on their shots and any of the three will make an excellent pet for children. Call 756-8390 after 6 p. m.

— a German shepherd puppy, female eight to 10 weeks old. Call 752-5013.

— three part-Brittany spaniels, two months old; two males, one female. They've been dewormed already and are healthy and appealing. Call 825-9911.

Chamber Orchestra To Perform Here Sneed Recital Tuesday

FRENCH HORN SOLOIST . . . Frederick Bergstone will be featured with the Piedmont Chamber Orchestra in a concert to be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 15, in Hendrix Theater. Tickets are $5 and are available at the Central Ticket Office.

The Piedmont Chamber Orchestra of Winston-Salem, a 22-member orchestra affiliated with the North Carolina School of the Arts, will be in concert in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center at 8 p.m., Thursday, March 15.

The concert is sponsored by the Student Union Artists Series Committee. Tickets are priced at $5 and are available from the Central Ticket Office or by phone, 757-6611, extension 266. Tickets will also be available at the door.

The orchestra was established in 1968 with funds provided by the Rockefeller Foundation and the Foundation for the School of the Arts.

Nicholas Harsanyi directs the orchestra, which numbers several musicians with distinguished backgrounds — a former concertmaster from the Orchestra de la Suisse Romande, principal players from major symphonies, and the nationally known Clarion Wind Quintet.

The concert to be presented here will feature works covering a varied range of sounds and styles. Compositions listed on the program include Rossini's "La Scale di Seta Overture;" Mozart's "Symphony No. 33 in B flat, K-139;" Elgar's "Introduction and Allegro for String Orchestra;" Beethoven's "Concerto in E flat Major, for two Horns and Strings;" and Dvorak's "Czech Suite."

Frederick Bergstone, the orchestra's principal horn player, and his assistant, Dan Ashe, will be soloists in the Beethoven concert. Bergstone has been principal horn player with the Kansas City Philharmonic and has performed with the New York Philharmonic, Pittsburgh Symphony and other major orchestras.

Ashe, a graduate of the N.C. School of the Arts, has, since graduation, been principal horn player of the Birmingham (Ala.) and Santa Rosa Symphonies, and has performed with the San Francisco Symphony and Opera.

Conductor Harsanyi's significant contributions to music has encompassed positions as conductor of the Princeton Chamber Orchestra, the Bach Aria Group, director of the Interlochen Arts Academy Orchestra, and Dean of the School of Music of the N.C. School of the Arts. He has also made numerous recordings for Decca and Vox records.

Phillip Sneed, bass-baritone, will perform in a recital with pianist Henry Doskey at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, March 13 at the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall of the School of Music, East Carolina University.

Sneed began his musical career as a clarinetist at Indiana University, and while studying there, began vocal studies with Pablo Elvira and Rodney Godshall. After a time of private study with Louis Panzerl in New Orleans, he attended the Academie Maurice Ravel in St. Jean-de-Luz France, where he was a scholarship student of Pierre Bernac.

He has performed extensively in recitals in New Orleans, Chicago, and New York — with the Bach Aria Group, Camerata Singers, New York Motet Choir, Musica Reservata, New York Vocal Spectrum, and the New York Vocal Arts Ensemble.

He has also performed with Pomerium Musics, Clarions Music Society and the Connecticut Pro Arte.

A recording of Britten's "Ode to Saint Caecilia," in which he is bass soloist, is soon to be released on the Musical Heritage Society label. Currently, Sneed is baritone soloist at All-Saints Church in New York City.

For his recital with ECU faculty pianist Doskey here, he will present a program of fifteen Schubert songs to include "Serenade," "Night Violets," and "Shepherd's Lament."

There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

BASS-BARITONE PHILLIP SNEED . . . (standing) goes over a score with ECU faculty pianist Henry Doskey. Sneed will appear in a recital at the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, March 13. McKelvain Recital Set

A sister-brother recital is scheduled at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, March 15 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall when faculty member soprano Ann McKelvain appears in recital accompanied by her brother, pianist Nelms McKelvain.

For her recital, Ms. McKelvain will present a program of songs that include Mozart's "Chi'o mi scordi di te?," four

Schubert songs; Poulenc's song cycle "Tel Jour Telle Nuit;" and Aaron Copland's "Twelve Poems of Emily Dickinson."

A graduate of Oberlin Conservatory of Music, she is due to receive the MM degree this spring from the University of Texas at Austin.

Among major operatic roles she has sung are those of Dame Quickly in Verdi's "Falstaff;" as Elizabeth Proctor in Robert Ward's "The Crucible;" and Lucrece in Britten's "The Rape of Lucrece."

Nelms McKelvain came to ECU in the fall of 1977, and is also an alumnus of Oberlin. He is currently a candidate for the DMA degree at the University of Texas.

There is no admission charge for the recital and the public is invited to attend.

BROTHER-SISTER RECITAL . . . Nelms McKelvain (left) will be pianist accompanist for his sister, Ann McKelvain in her faculty voice recital at Fletcher at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, March 15. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Chicago Subject Of Travel Film

"Chicago — Believe It or Not" is the title of Art Wilson's travel film to be shown in the Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center, at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, March 27.

The film is part of the Travel-Adventure Film Series sponsored by Mendenhall Student Center. Tickets are priced at $1.50 and can be purchased through the Central Ticket Office or at the door.

Focusing on one of America's largest and most active cities, Wilson takes the viewer to a rodeo, and to a special school for training rodeo stars.

The wholesale market for fruits and vegetables, the famous Merchandise Mart, the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry are other attractions shown in the film.

Unknown to many Americans, Chicago is America's park city, with 551 parks covering 77,000 acres, including the 26-mile lakefront stretch that consists of nothing but parks and 30 beaches.

Pianists In Recital Today

Eighteen young pianists, students of teachers in the Greenville Piano Teachers Association, will play in concert at 3 p.m. today at Cha-Rich Music Store, Arlington Boulevard.

Students scheduled to perform are: Michelle Deal, Lara Moore, Ingrid Lalik, Marjorie Crane, Kim Baker, Lisa Allen, Rita Gregroy, Sara Beth Fulford, James Ross, Kenny Kirkland, Elizabeth Ellen, Gena Heath, Todd Hudson, Lisa Seamster, Ronald Blackwell, Tim Shank, Lewis Roberson, and Stacy Knight.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

Hospitality House

Scenes from "Fiddler on the Roof" will be the primary attraction on Kay Currie's Hospitality House today over WITN-TV, Channel 7, airing from noon until 1 p.m. today.

Ms. Currie will interview Oran K. Perry, director of the musical to be given March 16, 17 and 18 at the Old Kinston High School by cast members of the Kinston High School Drama Club.

The NBC-TV guest today is Susan Anton, of the "Cliff Hangers" series, who is in the segment, Stop Susan Williams."

Co-authors Mary Lou Smith and Pauline Fischer will talk about their new book, "Egyptian Design in Modern Stitchery," featuring designs inspired by the King Tut exhibit; and the butcher will make his regular kitchen appearance.

'Dear Liar' Performance March 26

Michael Learned, well known in her role of Olivia Walton of the television show, "The Waltons," will appear with Anthony Zerbe in a show, "Dear Liar," to be presented at 8 p.m. March 26 in Wright Auditorium, East Carolina University. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Tickets for the show are priced at $4 ($3 for groups of 20 or more) and are available from the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center, or by phone 757-6611, extension 266. Ms. Learned was a part of the "Waltons" cast from its premiere in September 1972 until her recent decision to depart the show. She has won three Emmy awards, and is presently starring with Marlon Brando in the film, "Apocalypse Now."

Anthony Zerbe, sharing the stage with Ms. Learned, is also an Emmy winner for his co-starring role in "Harry-O." He has also appeared in television in "Once An Eagle," "How the West Was Won," and "Glitter Palace." His most recent film was with Shirley MacLaine in "Turning Point."

"Dear Liar" is adapted from the correspondence of George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Patrick Campbell. Their love-hate relationship is considered one of the most fascinating literary love stories in history.

"DEAR LIAR" PRINCIPALS... Michael Learned and Anthony Zerbe will be on stage at Wright Auditorium for a performance of "Dear Liar," based on the correspondence of George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Patrick Campbell. The time is 8 p.m. Monday, March 26. Tickets, at $4 are available from the Central Ticket Office.

School Of Arts List 1979 Summer Programs

WINSTON-SALEM — The N. C. School of the Arts, which in other years has offered summer extension programs at Warren Wilson College and elsewhere, is concentrating all summer instruction in 1979 to its own campus.

Summer programs at the School of Arts are open to both day students and boarding students from all parts of the state.

Beginning June 25 and running through July 27, five-week programs will be offered in several areas, with admission based on letters of recommendation plus other criteria noted below. No audition is required.

— Dance (ballet and modern), junior high through college ages, photos required.

— Drama, junior high and older.

— Visual arts, high school and older — portfolio may be requested.

— Theater production and design, advanced high school or college age, resume and telephone interview required.

Summer programs in music will include the seven-week International Music Programs for orchestral and instrumental chamber musicians, beginning on the campus and ending with a European concert tour. An audition tape is required for this performance program, which is designed for advanced young musicians.

Other summer music offerings will include workshops of from one to three weeks by individual faculty musicians. In addition there will be a three-week summer piano study program June 24-July 13, and a one-week seminar in organ jointly at NCSA and Salem College. For details concerning the organ program, write to: Dr. John Mueller, School of Music, Salem College, Winston-Salem.

For full details on all other programs, write to: Dirk Dawson, Director of Admissions, NCSA, P. O. Box 12189, Winston-Salem, N. C., 27107 or call Dawson at 784-7170.

Hawkins Recital

David Hawkins

David Hawkins, professor of double reeds of the School of Music, East Carolina University, will be in recital at 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 12 in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

He will be accompanied by Dr. E. Robert Irwin, member of the keyboard faculty of the School of Music.

For his program, Hawkins has chosen two works by Handel — "Sonata in c minor" and "Concerto in g minor," and a composition by Egon Wellesz, Suite for Oboe Solo, Opus 76.

Hawkins, a featured soloist on the 1978 tour of the ECU Symphonic Wind Ensemble, was also guest artist with the Idaho Falls Symphony Orchestra in 1977.

Prior to joining the faculty here, he was instructor of oboe at Washington State University and played for two seasons with the Spokane Symphony Orchestra. He has in addition performed with a number of western U.S. based orchestras and with chamber ensembles in New York and Washington, D. C. There is no admission charged and the public is invited.

Esther Rolle Will Perform On March 19

Stage and television actress Esther Rolle, best known for her portrayal of "Florida" on the TV shows, "Maude" and "Good Times," will perform in a one-woman show at 8 p.m. Monday, March 19 in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center.

Tickets are priced at $4 and are available from the Central Ticket Office or at the door prior to performance.

In her appearance here, she will portray two history-making women — freed slave-orator Sojourner Truth and women's suffrage leader Susan B. Anthony.

Ms. Rolle was trained in New York and has performed on and off Broadway. Currently, she is dividing her time between television and tour performances — in which she plays two women of contrasting natures — one white, one black; one educated, one illiterate; one middle class and one a freed slave.

Outlaws Concert March 22

THE OUTLAWS — Recording stars for Arista records, The Outlaws, Tampa, Fla. natives, will be in concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 22 at East Carolina University under the sponsorship of the ECU Student Union Major Attractions Committee. Their first album, in 1974, was released to coincide with their concert before 100,000 people in Central Park. They have toured in Europe with "The Who" and were the opening act for "The Rolling Stones." "The Molly Hatchet Band" will be special guest performers. Tickets are priced at $6 and can be purchased from the Central Ticket Office, Apple Records, School Kids Records, and The Music Shop.

Three Student Recitals Slated

Three student recitals are scheduled for the coming week and on Sunday, March 18. Unless otherwise noted, all are scheduled to be given in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center on campus and are free.

— At 9 p.m. Monday, March 12, a joint recital will be presented by senior trumpet student Michael J. Wrobel and senior saxophone student Roderick A. Harkins.

Wrobel will be accompanied by Donna Roman and assisted by George Broussard and the ECU Jazz Ensemble.

Harkins will be accompanied by the ensemble and by George Stone.

For his part of the program, Wrobel has chosen Hindemith's "Sonata," the Fitzgerald arrangement of Bach's "Suite," Don Ellis's "Blues," and Gillespie's "Manteca," arranged by Harkins and Wrobel.

Harkins will play Glazounov's "Concerto," Milhaud's "Scaramouche," and join with Wrobel in the performance of — The senior recital of clarinet student Jay Williams will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, March 14. He will be accompanied by Barbara Plummer for two of the four works he will perform. His program includes "Sonata pour Clarinette avec accompt de piano," by Saint-Saens; "Sonatina for Clarinet and Piano" by M. Arnold; and for "Country Dance for four B-flat Clarinets" by E. Krenek, he will be assisted by Sara Neal Johnston, Teresa Mangieri, and Bill Robinson.

"The Blues" and "Manteca."

— Organ senior student Micheal Gibson Regan will present his recital at 3:15 p.m. Sunday, March 18 in Memorial Baptist Church.

For his recital, he has listed J. S. Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in E-flat Major," Mozart's "Fantasia in F Minor (K-608)," Leslie Bassett's "Four Statements for Organ," and Marcel Dupre's "Variations Sur un Noel." This program is free and the public is invited.

Two Meetings Set

For Genealogical Society

NEW BERN — The Eastern N. C. Genealogical Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 12 at 1909 Trent Blvd. in New Bern.

Lewis H. Howard, librarian of the Kinston Stake BGL of the Morman church will coordinate the program.

Also, at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, March 15, the Malcome Genealogy Service, Salt Lake City, Utah, will conduct a workshop on "reference work" in Room 17, Bldg. 2, Craven Community College, New Bern.

Interested persons are invited to attend both meetings.

Winners In ECU Music Competition To Give April Recital

Four young musicians of the School of Music, East Carolina University, recently named winners in the Young Artists Competition sponsored by the School, will be presented in a recital to be given in April.

Carol Wolfe of Orlando, Florida, a graduate student of Henry Doskey in piano, is the overall winner of this year's competition. For the competition, she performed two movements of Mozart's "Sonata in B flat Major" and Ravel's "Jeux d'Eau."

Winner in the instrumental division is Jim Poteat, native of Glen Alpine. Poteat studies oboe with David Hawkins, and in the competition performed Schumann's "Romance" and a movement from Haydn's "Concerto in C Major."

Sheila Brooks, Wilmington native, placed tops in the vocal category. A graduate student studying with Gladys White, Ms. Brooks competed with a Brahms song, "Immer leiser wird mein Schummer" and Massenet's "Va! laisse couler mes larmes."

Another North Carolinian, pianist Ben Leaprott of Statesville, a junior studying with Paul Tardif, won the keyboard competition with Brahms' "Intermezzo" and Dohnanyi's "Capricio."

Details on the recital will be announced at an early date.

Farmville Council Staging Two Plays

FARMVILLE — Two one-act plays are to be presented by the Farmville Arts Council at 8 p.m. on two days, March 15 and 16, in the auditorium of the Farmville Central High School.

The plays are "Sorry Wrong Number" by Lucille Fletcher, and "Eh?" by William Fisher. David Easton directs, and Steve Tyson is stage manager and lighting technician.

Tickets for performances are now available, with advanced tickets assured of reserved places. They are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for students, and are available at Charles Joyner's Clothiers, Que's Pharmacy, Town and Country Beauty Shop, Edgecombe Bank and Trust Company, or by phone from Mrs. Joyce Albritton, 753-3603.

Proceeds realized from the play will be used by the Farmville Arts Council for future projects.

WINSTON-SALEM — R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc. will open the first public exhibition of its photography collection, "Perspectives," on April 1 at the Winston Square Gallery of the city's Arts Council.

The 65-piece collection was acquired last fall through the R. J. Reynolds Industries' North Carolina Photography Competition, selected for purchase from over 1,700 entries.

Following a one-month show at the Art Council's gallery, the collection will be shown throughout the state, with showings planned for Charlotte and Asheville this year and in Greenville during 1980.

A special exhibit is also scheduled for the Spoleto Festival U.S.A. in Charleston, South Carolina, this spring.

presented in a recital to be given in April, with details to be announced at a later date. (ECU News Bureau Photos by Marianne Baines)

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Joe Stines

Among recent additions to the Children's Library, readers both young and old will find a number of interesting and useful nonfiction titles.

Doubleday is continually adding to its sports series — The Complete Beginner's Guide. Richard B. Lytle has contributed several books to the series. THE COMPLETE BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO SKIING gives a history and origin of the sport as well as technique and fact. This book should prove useful to beginners, as well as those who have been skiing for years. It covers such areas as getting into shape for the new season as well as how to go about getting equipment and knowing what is right for you. Lytle outlines the various moves in skiing, beginning with the easiest and progressing to the more advanced. There are pictures throughout the book to help you to see the proper positions. A vocabulary list is included, and clothing, where to go, cross-country skiing and even ski jumping are covered.

Richard Lytle also authored THE COMPLETE BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO PHYSICAL FITNESS. This book is full of easy-to-follow exercises that are fun, non-competitive, and free. Exercise is the key to physical fitness and anyone can benefit from the exercise program described in this book. It does not describe body care and exercise as a means to an end, but emphasizes the intrinsic fun and satisfaction in physical fitness programs and habits.

BASIC VOLLEYBALL STRATEGY also by Richard Lytle is an introduction to the sport for young players. The author describes volleyball as a game of recreational fun for everyone. On one hand, it can provide serious competition, making you strive to improve individual and team skills. Or it can be more of a social experience than a sport, giving you exercise and stimulation during lunch break.

Sierra Club Meets Monday

Dr. Orrin Pilkey, a Duke University geologist, will talk about the Outer Banks at the March meeting of the Sierra Club. The meeting will be held Monday, March 12, at 8 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and 14th Streets.

Among subjects to be discussed by Pilkey will be where to build a house on the islands that is safe from hurricanes, and what to do about Cape Lookout Lighthouse, which is collapsing.

He is the author of two books about North Carolina's barrier islands — "From Currituck to Calabash" and "How to Live with an Island."

Writers Meeting Is Rescheduled

The meeting of the Greenville Writers Club, originally scheduled for Tuesday, March 13, has been postponed and will instead be held on Tuesday, March 20.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Steele, 104 Avon Lane.

All persons interested in any type of creative writing are invited to attend.

Journalist To Lecture

Shana Alexander, one of America's foremost journalists, will lecture in Hendrix Theater at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 20. The event is under the auspices of the ECU Student Union Lecture Series Committee.

Tickets are $4 each ($2.50 for groups of 20 or more) and are on sale at the Central Ticket Office.

In 1972, Ms. Alexander was named a Contributing Editor of "Newsweek" and for three years wrote a bi-weekly column on personal opinion on national and international affairs. She is perhaps best known for her commentary with James Kilpatrick on CBS's 60 minutes "Point-Counterpoint" segments.

Her professional career began at 17, when she left Vassar to become a feature writer for New York's "PM" newspaper. In 1951 she joined the staff of "Life" as a show business reporter, first in New York City, then for seven years in Hollywood. She became the first woman ever to hold a staff writer position on "Life." She was also the first woman to be editor of the nation's largest women's magazine, "McCall's."

Among books she has authored are "The Feminine Eye," a collection of her observations on America in the sixties; and "Anyone's Daughter," a book about Patty Hearst and American Society.

Ms. Alexander will discuss the Patty Hearst case and women's legal rights in her lecture here.

Will Serve As Pages

Two area students have been appointed to serve as Pages in the N. C. House of Representatives.

Donna Jo Cullipher and Elizabeth Andrea Jones, both of Greenville, will serve the week of March 5-9.

Cullipher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cullipher, 313 Prince Rd., and is a student at Rose High. She was appointed by Representative Horton Rountree.

Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Jones of Rt. 1, Greenville. She is a student at Farmville Central and was appointed by Representative Sam Bundy.

Band Boosters To Meet

The Band Boosters Club will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 13 in the Rose High School Band Room. The Ninth Grade Band will play at the meeting.

Prior to the regular meeting, the Advisory Board will meet at 7 p.m. Also on the agenda is a report from the nominating committee, and a discussion by the Ways and Means Committee in planning a fruit sale to raise funds, an activity to be conducted by parents.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

New Show At EEI's

BELHAVEN — The current show at EEI's little KORNERs of the world Gallery, Belhaven, features the work of two artists — Elizabeth Storm Harris of Jacksonville, and Tina Faulkner White of Richlands.

Both artists are showing scenes depicting typical eastern North Carolina subjects, and both have exhibited throughout the eastern part of the state and have received awards for their work.

The exhibition will continue through the month of March and the public is invited to view the show.

Moore Show

The senior show of Troy Donaldson Moore, Jr., a student in the School of Art, East Carolina University, will be on display in Joyner Library March 30-April 5.

Illustrations, book cover and record album designs, commercial logos, watercolors, ortho-film and photography will be included in Moore's show.

The public is invited to see the show during regular library hours.

Listed In Publication

TUSCALOOSA, ALA. — The 1978-79 edition of "Who's Who In Music" will carry the names of two students from Ayden-Grifton High School as among outstanding high school music students.

The two students — Jolly Dail, of Winterville and Janipat Worthington of Ayden, were nominated for the publication by Katherine M. Burke, Choral Music Teacher at Ayden-Grifton.

Gordleys Show

FAYETTEVILLE — Tran and Marilyn Gordley, husband-wife artists and faculty members of the School of Art, East Carolina University, have an exhibit of paintings going on view today in the Fayetteville Museum of Art.

A reception honoring the artists is being held from 2 to 5 p.m. today and the public is invited. The show will be on view through April 15.

Annual Festival

ASHEBORO — Amateur and professional artists 18 and older are invited to submit entries to the Third Annual Central Carolina Art Festival to be held in Asheboro's Frazier Park on May 5 and 6.

The show, sponsored by the Asheboro Junior Woman's Club, will have over $3,500 in awards with a $500 Purchase Award for the work selected as Best-in-Show.

Jurors will be Joan Gregory, head of the Art Dept. at UNC-Greensboro; Moussa Domit, director of the N. C. Museum of Art; and Duane Raver, Jr. editor and artist for "Wildlife In North Carolina."

Applications and rules may be requested by writing to: Central Carolina Art Festival, 1831 McDermott St., Asheboro, N.C., 27203 — with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, or by calling 629-0584.

Will Fight Injunction

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A magazine editor, temporarily blocked from publishing a story allegedly detailing how a hydrogen bomb works, says the government's assertion that publication would endanger national security is "absurd."

Erwin Knoll of The Progressive, a 40,000-circulation, Madison-based magazine of political commentary, said a temporary restraining order issued Friday by U.S. District Judge Robert Warren was a "serious infringement on First Amendment rights," and vowed to continue the legal fight against a permanent injunction.

"We will resist prior censorship," Knoll said, adding that he would take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Carolina, Duke Face First NCAA Foes

By ED SHEARER

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Third-ranked North Carolina, the tournament favorite, tangles with Ivy League champion Pennsylvania and No. 6 Duke meets unheralded St. John's Sunday in a pair of NCAA East Regional basketball games.

Pennsylvania, 22-5, survived a late rally to trim Iona 73-69 in an opening round battle Friday night and St. John's, 19-10, upset 13th-ranked Temple 75-70.

Pennsylvania and Duke both have ailing players, but Coach Bob Weinbauer says he expects Quaker star Tony Price to be ready despite a nagging back injury.

However, Duke, last year's NCAA runner-up, does not anticipate any action from Bob Bender and Kenny Dennard.

Bender was sidelined by an emergency appendectomy a week ago, and Dennard suffered a severely sprained right ankle during practice this week.

The Penn-North Carolina clash will open the regionally televised doubleheader at 1:06 p.m. EST and the Duke-St. John's rematch is scheduled for a 3:30 start.

Weinbauer says he knows what to expect from the Tar Heels because, "You know you're playing one of the best programs in the country. I think their biggest selling point is they have tremendous team balance."

However, he discounted any home court advantage for North Carolina, playing in Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina State's arena.

"I think we have a most difficult assignment, but I think our team will be ready," said Dean Smith, who has molded the Tar Heels into one of the nation's strongest powers over the last 13 seasons.

Smith said he expects a close game — one that will be decided in the closing minutes.

Price is the key to the Quaker attack, averaging 19 points per game.

The Tar Heels have featured balance throughout the year, and have only two players averaging in double figures — Al Wood with 17.7 and Mike O'Koren at 14.8. St. John's upset Duke 69-66 in a holiday tournament in New York, but Coach Lou Carnesecca does not believe that game will have any bearing on Sunday's meeting.

"It was a different day, different time, different feeling," said Carnesecca, who added that Duke had the ability to go all the way in the national tournament.

However, Duke Coach Bill Foster was not that confident.

"We are probably not playing as well as we had hoped at this stage," Foster said.

The Blue Devils are led by a trio of outstanding performers — Mike Gminski, Jim Spanarkel and Gene Banks. Gminski, player of the year in the ACC, is averaging 18.9 points and 9.2 rebounds per game.

St. John's got 42 points against Temple from Wayne McKay and Reggie Carter, the team's scoring leaders with 14.9 averages.

LSU Bombs ASU; Toledo Tops Iowa

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Center Rick Mattick scored 14 points and Lionel Green added 13 as ninth-ranked Louisiana State beat Appalachian State 71-57. Earlier, Stan Joplin hit a fall-away 20-foot jumper at the buzzer as Toledo rallied from 14 points down to upset 14th-ranked Iowa 74-72 in the second round of the NCAA Midwest basketball tournament Saturday.

Louisiana State and Toledo will advance to next week's Midwest Regional semifinal at Indianapolis' Market Square Arena.

Louisiana State's Tigers, the Southeast Conference champions, survived a sluggish start in which Appalachian State took a quick 6-2 lead.

The 6-foot-9 Green, who scored all 9 of his first-half points in the first 10 minutes of the game, hit 5 in a row to give the Tigers a 13-10 advantage. The Mountaineers, the Southern Conference champs, came back and tied the game 17-17, but they were outscored 14-3 the rest of the half.

Louisiana State broke the tie with 8 straight points on 2 baskets apiece by Greg Cook and the 7-foot Mattick. Mel Hubbard's free throw and a basket by Darryl Robinson cut the lead to 5, but the Tigers scored 2 more baskets and went into a stall before Willie Sims hit 2 free throws to make it 31-20 at intermission.

The Tigers were playing without their leading scorer, sophomore DeWayne Scales, who was suspended after reportedly talking with a pro agent.

Louisiana State's Jordy Hultberg scored the first basket of the second half, and Appalachian State never came closer than 11 points the rest of the game. The Tigers built leads up to 20 points late in the game.

Al Green, Ethan Martin and Cook added 8 points apiece for the Tigers, now 23-5 with the most victories in a single season in the school's history. The Mountaineers, ending at 23-6, were led by senior forward Renaldo Lawrence with 21 points, 19 of them in the second half, and Walter Anderson with 10 points.

Ronnie Lester, the Hawkeyes' high-scoring guard, had 18 of his 23 points at halftime, as Iowa took a seemingly comfortable 41-29 lead. His field goal early in the second half put Iowa's lead at 45-31 before the Mid-American Conference champion Rockets began their rally.

Toledo outscored Iowa 17-4 in the next seven minutes, including a run of 11 straight points.

Two consecutive baskets by junior guard Tim Selgo cut the lead to six, 49-43, with 14 minutes remaining. Selgo then stole the ball and the Rockets pulled within four points when forward Harvey Knuckles scored from the baseline. Forward Jay

THE DAILY REFLECTOR Sports

SUNDAY, MARCH 11, 1979

Lehman scored on a three-point play and two free throws by Dick Miller gave Toledo its first lead since early in the game at 50-49.

The Hawkeyes finally broke a seven-minute drought with a basket by William Mayfield to go back ahead 51-50. The game was tied at 53, but the Rockets scored six straight — all on free throws — to go back ahead. Iowa then rallied behind Mayfield, who scored 16 of his 19 points in the second half. A basket by Mayfield brought Iowa within one point, 69-68, and a basket by Vincent Brooks put the Hawks ahead with 43 seconds to go.

Lehman then put Toledo back on top with a three-point play, but Brooks' final basket tied the game with 11 seconds to go and set up Joplin's winning goal.

Miller topped the Rockets, now 22-7, with 18 points. Joplin finished with 15 and Jim Swaney added 12. Tom Norman added eight points for Iowa, which closed the season at 20-8.

Iowa hit 68 percent of its shots in the first half, but was held to 40 percent by the Toledo zone defense in the final period.

"Toledo came out in the first five minutes of the second half and was ready to play," said Lester, who hit eight of nine from the field in the first half, but made just one of four attempts in the closing period.

"We didn't play good defense and couldn't hit our free throws," Lester added. "We weren't looking past them, because we knew they would be tough. It's just that we slacked off at the start of the second half."

Toledo, hitting only 42 percent in the first half, warmed up to 63 percent in the final period.

Iowa Coach Lute Olson said, "The point guard's job is to penetrate. Lester wasn't doing the things he should in the second half. Obviously, Ron was not involved in the game as much as we would have liked."

"We went to a man-to-man defense at halftime because we were behind," said Toledo Coach Robert Nichols. "We didn't really adjust to stop Lester, but it worked out that way."

About the winning shot, Nichols said, "We wanted to get the ball to Joplin or Lehman, have them take it down and get it off as soon as possible with Swaney getting in position for a rebound."

"I knew it was going in as soon as it left my hand," said Joplin. "I gave it a little more wrist action than normal, but I had no doubt that it was good."

Toledo advances to next Friday's regional contest against the winner of the second-round game between Tennessee and Notre Dame.

Lehman scored on a three-point play and two free throws by Dick Miller gave Toledo its first lead since early in the game at 50-49.

East semifinals next Friday in Greensboro, N.C. In the second game, 10th-ranked Syracuse piled up leads as high as 25 points in the first half and had a 17-point margin, 52-35, at halftime, before Connecticut staged a comeback that cut the Syracuse lead to four points with 24 seconds left.

A slam dunk by Bouie, a 6-foot-11 center, capped the victory for the Orangemen, who were outscored 46-37 in the second half.

The losing Huskies rattled after intermission as center Jeff Carr dominated the rebounding and added 12 points for his total of 17. Mike McCay led Connecticut with 21 points and freshman Cory Thompson added 18.

Dale Shackelford stemmed the tide for Syracuse with nine second-half points and Louis Orr had 17 for the game.

In the earlier contest, Rutgers' Strickland had 21 points, 17 of them in the first half, while Bailey, the 6-foot-9 senior center, dominated the game's second half with 11 points, for a total of 19.

Rutgers, 22-8, led 29-26 at halftime. Georgetown struggled back to take a 48-45 lead midway through the second half. However, the losers, 24-5, saw their offense completely shut down by the scrambling Rutgers man-to-man defense, which held its opponents scoreless for six minutes late in the half.

Rutgers scored nine unanswered points and piled up a late-game lead, aided by the foul-shooting of Kelvin Troy, who was the recipient of numerous free-throws as Georgetown switched to a gambling full-court press, trying to get back in the game.

Georgetown was led by guard John Duren, who had 13 points, while Craig Shelton added 12.

Georgetown tried a stall when the Hoyas were leading by only a single point midway through the second half. But the tactic didn't work and only aggravated winning Coach Tom Young of Rutgers.

"I'm not surprised because anytime they have the lead, they hold the ball," said Young. "That's why I favor a 30-second shooting clock. There's no reason why people should pay good money to see somebody hold the ball."

Georgetown Coach John Thompson said the losers gambled on stopping Bailey, but failed.

"We put everybody on the team on Bailey and he ended up getting 19 points and 14 rebounds," said Thompson.

Georgetown got nine points from freshmen center Ed Spriggs, but had to play without senior starter Tom Scates, the 6-11, 245-pounder who injured his left knee last Saturday in the victory over Syracuse.

Young said he was pleased with his team's defense in the first half but figures the Scarlet Knights won't be satisfied by advancing in the tournament.

"There's only one team that's going to end up happy," he said, "and that's the team that wins the national championship."

Rutgers, Syracuse Advance In Easterns Over Hoyas, Huskies

By DICK BRAUDE

PROVIDENCE (AP) — Roosevelt Bouie scored 19 points as Syracuse barely survived a furious comeback by Connecticut to move into the NCAA East Regional semifinals with a 89-81 victory after Rutgers upset 11th-ranked Georgetown 64-58 in the first game of a double-header at the Providence Civic Center Saturday.

Jammin' James Bailey and Daryl Strickland combined for 40 points in the opener as Rutgers advanced to the NCAA

East semifinals next Friday in Greensboro, N.C. In the second game, 10th-ranked Syracuse piled up leads as high as 25 points in the first half and had a 17-point margin, 52-35, at halftime, before Connecticut staged a comeback that cut the Syracuse lead to four points with 24 seconds left.

"There's only one team that's going to end up happy," he said, "and that's the team that wins the national championship."

Smith Named Again

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dean Smith of North Carolina, who guided the Tar Heels to the Atlantic Coast Conference championship despite the loss of sensation Phil Ford, has been named the league's basketball coach of the year for the sixth time in the last 13 seasons.

Smith, who earlier was named coach of the year by the United States Basketball Writers Association, was the recipient of the ACC honor in 1967, '68, '71, '76 and '77.

The conference championship for third-ranked North Carolina was the seventh in the last 13 years, during which time the Tar Heels finished in first place in the standings eight times, tied for first once and never placed lower than a tie for second.

The league title sent the Tar Heels to the NCAA East Regionals, which North Carolina won in 1967, '68, '69, '72 and '77.

Smith's frustrating four corners delay offense, dreaded by opposing coaches, was brilliantly directed by Ford. His loss to graduation was expected by many observers to cramp the Tar Heels' style, and North Carolina was picked to finish no higher than third in the ACC.

A native of Topeka, Kan., Smith played on the 1952 national championship team at the University of Kansas. He came to North Carolina in 1959 as an assistant to Frank McGuire and became head coach in 1962.

North Carolina has won at least 22 games per season on 11 occasions since Smith took over. His coaching record is 386-126 for .764 percent — tops in the nation for coaches who have at least 12 years of service.

Smith, who received 85 of the 105 votes cast by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association, coached the U.S. Olympic Team to a gold medal in 1976.

Nelson Rolls Up 4-Shot Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Larry Nelson, gunning for his first victory in six years of pro golf tour activity, birdied three holes in a row on the way to a 5-under-par 67 that lifted him into a 4-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Jackie Gleason Invitational Classic.

Nelson, 31, a consistent money-winner and a member of the PGA Tour's Policy Board, had a 54-hole total of 203, 13 shots under par on the 7,127 yard Invitational Country Club course.

While the slightly-built Nelson was taking apparent command in the chase for a $54,000 first prize, Jack Nicklaus shot an uninspired 73 and decided he needs more work.

Nicklaus, unbeaten on this course in the last three years but well out of contention at 219, made a late entry in next week's Doral-Eastern Open, a tournament he originally planned to skip.

"I'm a little behind schedule," Nicklaus said. "My game isn't as sharp as it should be. It just needs more work."

Grier Jones, who lost this tournament a year ago when Nicklaus birdied the last five holes, and Hale Irwin shared second at 207. Jones shot a 69 and Irwin, who set the course record with a brilliant 62 Friday, went 10 shots higher to par 72.

"I knew I should have just kept playing yesterday," Irwin said. "I knew it would be difficult after yesterday. After having that much adrenaline, that much momentum, I knew it would be hard shut down the engine and then get it started again."

"It's difficult to point to anything I did really well today. I certainly didn't putt like I did yesterday."

Ray Floyd came on with a 67 and moved into contention at 208. British Ryder Cup player Mark James and Tommy Aaron were next at 209. Aaron, who shared the second round lead with Irwin, was tied for second until he hit into the water and made triple bogey-7 on the 17th hole. He finished with a 74. James, who has played the par-5 holes 12 under par for the tournament, shot a 70.

It was another 2 shots back to the bulky group at 211. They were Mike McCullough, who shot a third round 67; Lee Elder, 68; DeWitt Weaver and Rod Curi, 69s; Curtis Strange and U.S. Open champ Andy North, 71s; Wayne Levi, 72; and Charles Coody, 74.

Losing Streak Keeps Going; Bucs Fall, 4-3

By WOODY PEELE

While it may be early in the baseball season to be in a rut, that's exactly where the East Carolina University Pirates seem to be.

Yesterday afternoon, the Pirates bowed to the University of Connecticut. It was their fourth straight defeat since their opening game, and their third straight one-run deficit, 4-3.

One of the key faults for the Pirates in the game was their lack of hitting. East Carolina got only five hits as compared to seven for the Huskies, but the UConn team made better use of its hits.

"We're just not hitting the ball," a disgusted coach Monte Little said afterwards. "And we're making young, no not really young mistakes, just mistakes. We're doing things that players by now should not be doing automatically. We just ought to know what to do in certain situations."

Little was referring to a ninth inning play that staked Connecticut to one of two runs they got in the frame. With one down, Joe Vincente had walked and Mike Panciera followed up with a single to right field, moving Vincente to third.

With Earle Mobley on the mound, Panciera broke for second. Mobley turned, glanced back at third, then fired wildly to second. The ball went past second baseman Bob Neff, and Vincente streaked home with the third run. Panciera moved all the way to third, scoring when Al Garray singled to short left.

"He should have looked the runner back on third before he made any move, but he didn't. It's a fundamental thing," Little said.

It was not the only mistake the Pirates made, but it turned out to be a costly one.

"I really thought that we'd be hitting the ball better. Their first pitcher (Colin McLaughlin) is one of the best we'll see this year. He really fires it in there. But I think we could have been given a ton of walks if we'd just not swung at so many bad pitches."

Little said he isn't worried, however, and feels that the Pirates will snap out of the string. "The kids are down on themselves right now, but they'll snap back."

East Carolina grabbed the initial lead in the game in the first inning. With one down, Billy Best walked and stole second. Then, after the second out, Macon Moye doubled to deep center, scoring Best for a 1-0 lead.

Connecticut got two runs in the fourth inning spoiling a good effort until that point by starting hurler Rick Ramey. The Huskies had tagged Ramey for two first inning singles, but he had retired the next nine batters in a row until the fourth.

With one down in the fourth, Rick Tasi walked and moved up on an infield out. Jim Considine then tagged a ball that carried in the wind over the fence in right, some 350 feet from home. It gave the Huskies a 2-1 lead.

UConn threatened twice more before scoring what proved to be the difference in the ninth. They put runners on first and second in the seventh with one out, and loaded the bases in the eighth on a walk, a hit batsman, and a short outfield single.

East Carolina lost out on a chance in the third when he had men on first and second on a walk, a stolen base and a single. They put men on first and second in the sixth with two away, but again came away empty-handed.

In the bottom of the ninth, they rallied to within one. With one down, Mike Sage walked and Tim Hardison cracked one into the wind, going out in left field at the 340 mark for a two-run homer.

But the next two batters went down, ending the threat. Panciera and Garray each collected a pair of hits for Connecticut, while Sage had a pair, one of them a blooper to the infield.

The two clubs meet again today at 2 p.m. The Pirates, now 1-4, will be trying to end their tailspin, and hand the 1-0 Huskies their first loss. They are also scheduled to play again on Monday.

Bucs Fail To Place

DETROIT, Mich. — East Carolina University's indoor track team failed to place in the finals of two events in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships which wound up in Detroit last night.

The Pirates had qualified one individual and one relay team into the finals on Friday.

Russell Parker, the high jumper, who qualified at 7-0, failed to place in the finals of the event Saturday.

The mile relay team of Calvin Alston, Terry Perry, Carlton Bell and Otis Melvin did not finish the event. Perry, running the second leg of the race, lost his balance and collided with an Indiana University runner, knocking both teams out of the running, and neither finished the race.

Villanova won the mile relay in 3:15.52, and went on to take the team championship.

Oklahoma Upsets Texas; Cards Nip South Alabama In Midwest

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - The clutch second-half shooting of junior guard Darrell Griffith propelled the 18th-ranked Louisville Cardinals past scrappy South Alabama 69-66 Saturday in a second-round NCAA Midwest Regional basketball game.

Oklahoma rode the 25-point scoring of Raymond Whitley to a 90-76 victory over the 15th-ranked Texas Longhorns in the first game of the doubleheader at Moody Coliseum.

Louisville will meet Sunday's winner of the Arkansas-Weber State game on March 15 in Cincinnati while Oklahoma will play the winner of the Indiana State-Virginia Tech matchup.

Louisville, now 24-7 for the season, swept to a 33-28 halftime lead, then had all kinds of trouble putting the Jaguars away in the second half.

South Alabama pulled to within 40-39 on a bucket by Scott Williams. Griffith then took charge, and later his three-point play with 1:40 left put the outcome out of reach.

Griffith scored 13 of his 17 points in the second half.

Freshman center Scooter McCray was high-point man for Louisville with 21, 15 of them coming in the first half.

The Jaguars, champions of the Sun Belt Conference who finished the year with a 20-7 record, were led by Dennis Still, who scored 18 points. Ed Rains added 15 points before fouling out with less than two minutes to play.

Rams Defeated In Opener, 2-0

SNOW HILL - Greene Central bowed to Wilson Beddingfield, 2-0, in its opening baseball game of the season Saturday afternoon.

The Rams had several chances during the afternoon, but were hampered by three double plays pulled off by the Bears.

All of the scoring came in the fifth inning, when Beddingfield finally broke the scoreless tie. J. Barnes led off the frame with a single and was sacrificed up. He scored when Ellis doubled.

pearance for South Alabama. In the first game, Oklahoma's Whitley singled the Texas zone from the outside in the first half, then personally took charge when the Longhorns caught fire in the second half.

The Longhorns, co-champions of the Southwest Conference, trailed by as much as 16 points before cutting the deficit to five with 6:03 left on a bucket by John Moore.

Whitley then triggered a seven-point Oklahoma surge, which he climaxed with a spectacular dunk shot with 3:50 to play and the Sooners leading 78-66.

Oklahoma, now 21-9 and the Big Eight Conference champions, will play the winner of Sunday's Virginia Tech-Indiana State game on March 15 in Cincinnati.

The Sooners connected on 16 of their first 22 shots in the first half against the Texas zone.

Saints Top Jags

FARMVILLE - Southern Wayne High School handed Farmville Central its first loss of the young season Saturday, gaining a 6-4 victory.

Southern Wayne took advantage of ten walks to help pile up all six runs in the first three innings.

Five walks in the first inning brought in two runs, and a bunt single plated the third. In the second inning, three more walks and an infield hit scored another for a 4-0 lead.

The final two runs for the Saints came in the third helped along by three walks, a run-scoring single and a sacrifice fly.

Farmville later came back to score one in the fourth, two in the fifth and one in the sixth, but fell short.

The Jaguars, now 1-1, play host to Tarboro on Tuesday.

Villanova Captures Mile Relay To Capture NCAA Indoor Crown

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) - Villanova's swift mile relay team won the final running event Saturday and captured its third title in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships, edging Texas-El Paso by one point despite victories in the mile and two-mile by the Miners' Sulamin Nyambui.

The Miners' chances of repeating as champions and winning their fifth title in the past six years were thwarted in the two-mile relay when they were disqualified after finishing second.

Charged with the infraction, which cost Texas-El Paso eight points, was Jan Boogman of the Netherlands. He was found guilty of knocking down Notre Dame's Chuck Aragon on the third leg.

Thus, Villanova, which began the final program of the two day competition with only two points compared to Texas-El Paso's 27, wound up with 52 points to the Miners' 51.

In addition to the mile relay, the Wildcats picked up points on victories by Don Paige in the 1,000, Anthony Tufariello in the 600, the 2-3 finish of Sydney Maree and Amos Korir in the mile, and a third in the distance medley.

However, they still needed a victory in the mile relay, run in two sections. Winning in the second section, the Wildcats were faced with beating the time of 3 minutes, 16.07 seconds turned in by first place Kansas in the opening section.

And they did it without much difficulty.

Led by Keith Brown, the fifth-place finisher in Friday's 440, the Wildcats reeled off a 3:15.52 clocking to wrest the team title from the disappointed Miners. Villanova's previous titles came in 1968 and 1971.

Following Brown on the relay were Derek Harbour, Tufariello and Tim Dale.

Despite his team's bitter loss, the 25-year-old Nyambui, a freshman, was the meet's individual standout. He won the 20-22 mile handily in 8:37.87,

Marquette, Dons In Western Victories

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Sam Worthen and Bernard Toone scored 18 apiece as No. 12 Marquette cruised to an easy 73-48 triumph Saturday over unranked Pacific in the final game of the NCAA West Regional college basketball tournament.

In the first game of the second-round double-header, all-America center Bill Cartwright scored 24 points and keyed a second half scoring explosion that carried No. 19 San Francisco to an 86-63 victory over unranked Brigham Young.

The 1977 national champion Warriors started off slowly, troubled by Pacific's physical defense, and trailed until midway through the first half when Toone connected from the corner for a 14-12 advantage. After that, Marquette never trailed.

The Warriors pushed out to a 28-22 halftime lead on the strength of Toone's 12 points and Worthen's eight.

The Tigers, led by Ron Cornelius' 12 points, were unable to put anything together in the second half.

Worthen's steady ball handling and sleight of hand with Pacific's passes helped the Warriors surge away to their 25-point edge at the finish, which was the largest of the game.

Independent Marquette, unranked at the beginning of the season and lightly regarded, improved its record to 22-6. Pacific, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association champs and holders of the worst record in the NCAA tournament, finished at 18-12.

Gymnasts Place

Three Greenville girls were among place winners in the North Carolina Class II Open Invitational Gymnastics Meet held in Minges Coliseum here today.

The three all represented Greenville Gymnastics club.

In the 12-14 year-old age group, Carmelia Webber, 12, finished second in the compulsory balance beam competition. She recorded a score of 8.5. A total of 40 competed in the event.

In the 15 and up group, Karie Logue and Tracy Fearrington both placed in the competition, which included 34 contestants.

Logue was fourth in the overall vaulting with a score of 16.15. She placed seventh in the compulsory floor exercises with an 8.5, and eighth in optional with a 7.7, finishing seventh overall with a 16.2 score. She finished tied for tenth place in the all-around competition with a 27.00 score.

Fearrington was fifth in the vault with a score of 16.05, and was tied for fifth in floor exercises with a 16.75 score. Her 8.8 score in the compulsory floor exercises placed her fifth in that category.

Asked if he felt it was a tainted triumph Elliott said, "you've got to say it was, but how many championships did we lose on disqualifications - five? I can think of three in the last four years - all in relays."

One example was last year's NCAA meet when the Wildcats were disqualified in a qualifying heat of the mile relay for an improper exchange. Villanova, heavily favored in the race, wound up the team race with 35 points, nine behind winning Texas-El Paso. A relay victory is worth 10 points.

Texas-El Paso Coach Ted Banks, who took the defeat hard, felt that his team got a raw deal with the relay disqualification. He said, "I know deep down we are the best team and that's what really counts."

Rampant Opener: Decision To Come

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
GOLDSBORO — Rose High School's baseballers opened the 1979 season Friday afternoon at Goldsboro.

But it could be some time before the results are in.

Darkness finally overtook the contest in the eighth inning, with Rose having pushed over six runs in the top of the frame to grab a 14-8 lead. But the game was not officially over when the umpires called the game because of darkness.

And the coaches of the two teams were not in agreement on when, or even if, the game would be concluded.

If it is not concluded, the score will revert back to what it was at the end of the seventh inning, an 8-8 tie. There remained four outs before Rose could claim a victory, and then, the Rampants would have to prevent the Cougars from making a rally of their own.

"I really would like to complete the game," Rose coach Ronald Vincent said. "It would be tough to have to wipe out that last inning. We did a lot of good things in that that might help some of our players later on (in their averages)."

But Goldsboro coach wasn't so sure he wanted to finish up. One thing he was adamant about, if Rose wanted to finish the game, it would have to be done in Goldsboro. Although the two teams have a meeting in Greenville on Tuesday, March 20, Glover refused to complete the game then, prior to the start of the other game.

"I really don't know what we'll do about it," Vincent said.

The Rampants got off to a good start in the game, pushing over three runs in the top of the first inning. But before the crowd had time to settle back for the game, Goldsboro had come up with seven first inning runs to take the lead. From there on, it was a struggle for Rose to get back into the contest.

Mark Shank reached for Rose on a fielder's choice and stole second, moving to third on a passed ball. Ronnie Chapman walked and also stole second, with Shank scoring when the throw-down bounced into center field. Skip Topping then reached on an error. Junior Neal singled to right, scoring Chapman, and a sacrifice fly by Will Sanderson brought in Neal.

Rampant ace Mike Williams just didn't have his stuff in the opener, however, walking six of the first seven batters, including the first five in a row. Joe Strouse scored on an error on a pickoff play after walking, taking second on a wild pitch and stealing third when John Martin walked. Walks to Tim Huffman and Ron Pennington loaded the bases, and walks to Michael Whisenhunt and Larry Searles brought in the next two runs. Craig Brown doubled in two more, and an error let another in. Strouse singled in the final run of the inning.

Rose came back with one in the top of the second on a single by Lindsay Winstead, who had replaced Williams after the sixth walk. Courtney runner Charles Daise stole second, took third ... on a wild pitch and scored when a pickoff play at first on Mike Campbell, who walked, was thrown away.

Goldsboro matched that in the bottom of the second. Pennington was hit by a pitch and David Searles singled to right. The ball got through there, allowing courtsey runner Tim Simpson to score for an 8-4 lead.

Rose closed to within one in the fourth, scoring three times. Campbell walked and Robert Morehead singled to right, where the ball again got by the fielder, allowing Campbell to circle the bases. Chapman walked and Topping tripled to deep center, driving in both runners.

The tying run came in the sixth, after Rose had put two on with none out in the fifth and failed to score. Shank walked and moved up on a balk. He scored

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollis Stacy, winner of the women's U.S. Open Championship the past two years, withstood a challenge by defending champion Nancy Lopez and extended her lead to 2 strokes after Saturday's third round of the $100,000 Sunstar Classic.

Hosting Greensboro Grimsley swept the boys championship, winning every event but one, that won by Richards. Grimsley finished the day with 222 points, well ahead of second place Greensboro Page, which had 113, followed by Shelby with 109, Durham Jordan, 104; Chapel Hill 74; Rose and Greensboro Smith, tied for seventh with 72 each; Cary, 70, and Hickory, 57.

Stacy, who turns 25 next Friday, carded a 1-under-par 71, giving her a 54-hole score of 209, 7 under par over the 6,268-yard, par 37-35 Rancho Park golf course.

In the girls' meet, Grimsley also was a big winner there, with 215 points. Page was second with 151, followed by Shelby with 116, Rose with 79, Hickory, 78, Chapel Hill, 71; Smith 68; Statesville, 62; Winston-Salem Reynolds 50; and Jordan 45.

The 22-year-old Lopez, who captured nine Ladies Professional Golf Association tournaments last year but has yet to win in 1979, moved into second place at 211 by firing a 70 on Saturday. She lost a chance to be even closer because she bogeyed the 18th hole.

"I don't know what it's going to take Sunday. I'm going to try to hit the greens and make a couple of putts. It's really tough to make putts here. The greens are slow and bumpy," Lopez said she was also happy with the way she played, but expressed disappointment about her finishing bogey on the par-4, 366-yard 18th. She went over the green, chipped to within six feet but missed the par putt.

In third place, 3 strokes off the pace, was Susie Berning, after a 71. Next at 213 were hometown favorite Amy Alcott, Pat Bradley and Laura Baugh.

"You don't like to bogey that last hole," said Lopez, who earned a record $189,814 last year. "It makes you want to come back, though, the next day."

Alcott, who grew up in nearby Santa Monica, fired a 5-under-par 67, which included birdies on 4 of the final 5 holes. Bradley had a 73 and Baugh a 69 in the third round, which was played in mostly clear weather with light winds.

Tucker took her championship with a school record time of 1:04.67. Chris Galya was fifth in the same event with a time of 1:11.8.

"I'm happy, it was a very solid round," said Stacy. "I feel good with the way I'm playing now; I've played really solid golf all week."

Richards won his event in 55.9 seconds, robbing Grimsley of a chance to sweep the meet. Kevin Richards finished sixth in 59.4.

IOC Nears China Accord

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer
LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee was close to a major breakthrough Saturday night and planned to bring sports officials from the Peoples Republic of China and Taiwan together for talks on Chinese participation in the Olympic Games.

"Overall, I think we performed very well," Coach Billy Thorne said. "For the most part, we swam our best times, but the overall times were just better than they were last year. But we did well, and I'm pleased."

Song Zhong, general secretary of the Olympic Committee of the Peoples Republic, spent one hour with the IOC executive board and said his committee was agreeable to such talks.

The Olympic Committee of Taiwan, which already is recognized by the IOC, also has agreed to the meeting, Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, told a news conference.

"The tieing run came in the sixth, after Rose had put two on with none out in the fifth and failed to score. Shank walked and moved up on a balk. He scored Killanin added, "The executive board welcomed this positive approach and has offered to act as mediator. A meeting could be held in Lausanne, at the IOC headquarters, under my chairmanship."

Killanin said he hopes the talks could take place before the end of this month so that the executive board can make a formal recommendation to the full IOC session at Montevideo in the first week in April.

The Olympic Committee of mainland China has applied for IOC recognition but until now always has maintained that recognition must be withdrawn from Taiwan.

Four months ago, Lance Cross, IOC member in New Zealand, led a three-man delegation to Peking.

Ayden-Grifton Trips Kinston, 7-6

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — Clayton McLawhorn and Ed Coley each drove in two runs with extra-base hits Friday afternoon as Ayden-Grifton got its first win of the young baseball season, downing a scrappy Kinston team 7-6. The Chargers, who evened their record at 1-1 with the win, trailed only once in the game, 1-0 off a half inning, but had to fight off several Viking rallies to finally put the game away.

The Chargers went up 3-1 in the third, but the Vikes came back to tie. Then they got four unanswered runs for a 7-3 margin only to see Kinston pull to within one in the top of the sixth and leave the tying run on base.

"We hit the ball a lot better than we did against Washington (the team that beat the Chargers earlier last week)," Wilson said. He also praised the defensive effort of the Charger infield. "We were able to field the ground ball that we erred so much last year."

After a scoreless first inning, Kinston's Phil Bailey broke the ice for his team in the top of the second. The clean-up hitter took only one pitch to put his team in the lead, smacking it straight up the middle and over the center field fence, a distance of about 350 feet.

The Chargers tied the game in the bottom of the inning when David Smith lead off with a double, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a sacrifice fly to center by Wayne Newton.

In the bottom of the third, Charger Chris Phillips reached second on a balk to tie it. Wade followed on a balk to tie it.

Newton walked and Bernard Riccarelli singled in the fourth for the Chargers. That brought up Coley, who lined a shot down the left field line that went to the corner for a triple. He scored on a wild pitch and the Chargers came up with two more singles, but a pair of strikeouts ended the inning.

NIGHT MOTORISTS SHOULD be on the alert for deer along the highway during this period of high water, cautioned wildlife officer John Waters. Flooding in the lower woodlands of Pitt and other eastern North Carolina counties has increased the chances of automobile collisions with deer.

Many deer have been forced out of their normal habitat onto roadsides where land is higher and spring grass abundant. A collision with a deer can be dangerous, with vehicle damage a certainty and passenger injury a definite possibility.

Waters recommends that drivers slow their vehicles when eyes are sighted on the roadside and expect deer to maneuver erratically. At night, with headlights in their eyes, deer are very unpredictable and often run toward a light. Even though a deer may be well off the road when sighted, it can be in front of the vehicle in seconds, Waters warned.

Although deer and vehicle collisions are prevalent in Pitt County all year, an increase in such accidents is occurring and will persist until water levels go down. Deer are particularly likely to be seen where woods flank the highway and where the road crosses creeks and streams.

The state game law provides that a deer accidentally killed by a motorist may be retained for personal use by the motorist with a special possession permit. Permits can be obtained on the scene from wildlife or highway patrol officers.

Game Lands Forestry Pays Off

Game lands owned by the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission not only furnish food and shelter for wildlife, they also produce a wide range of forest products, the sale of which brought the Commission over $370,000 last year.

The Commission owns 184,216 acres of land in the game lands system. Other game lands are run through cooperative agreements with various governmental agencies and private companies.

"The lion's share of the revenue from the forestry program came in through the sale of sawtimber; over three million board feet was sold last year for over $330,000," said George Smith, assistant chief of the Commission's forestry program.

"The game lands also produced 670 cords of pulpwood, 1,562 tons of pine straw, 131 cords of firewood and 1,365 tons of stumps. Pine straw is used as mulch by nurseries and homeowners, and is often used to protect newly cleared sites from erosion during construction projects. The resin from stumps is extracted and made into a wide variety of products, including turpentine, shoe polish and even some types of medicines."

The management of timber in the game lands is also beneficial to the wildlife there, Smith said. Timber cutting is done in small areas, called patch cuts. They create openings in the forest, increase browse production and provide a wider diversity of forest habitats.

Timber management can also be used to benefit certain species. The Commission has adjusted timber management plans on several game lands to meet the needs of the endangered red-cockaded woodpecker.

Fires can also be used to help improve wildlife habitat on game lands. "Burns accomplish several things," according to Smith. "They reduce the chances of a wildfire occurring by eliminating the little build-up. They also provide new browse on the forest floor and put it within reach of many small game and nongame animals."

"I was pleased with our effort," Charger coach Allan Wilson said after the game. "We played a lot better defense than we did last weekend." Ayden-Grifton made three errors, but had some good defensive plays like catcher Coley's grab of a high foul fly behind the plate right at the fence.

"I was glad to see our pitcher (Corky Teachey) go seven innings. He was getting tired, but he did well, considering he hasn't thrown off a mound." Wilson referred to weather problems which have plagued all the area teams in their training. "We've practiced on the football field more than the baseball field," he said. But he added he is pleased with the progress the team has made thus far.

Teachey gave up eight hits in his first start and was charged with five earned runs. He had five strikeouts and only three walks.

Michael Holder was the losing pitcher for Kinston. He came in in the fourth in relief of starter Tim Cole and pitched until Keith Ippock took over in the sixth. The Ayden-Grifton batters touched the Viking pitchers for 11 hits and seven earned runs.

After a scoreless first inning, Kinston's Phil Bailey broke the ice for his team in the top of the second. The clean-up hitter took only one pitch to put his team in the lead, smacking it straight up the middle and over the center field fence, a distance of about 350 feet.

The Chargers tied the game in the bottom of the inning when David Smith lead off with a double, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a sacrifice fly to center by Wayne Newton.

In the bottom of the third, Charger Chris Phillips reached second on a balk to tie it.

Bears Look For Improved Teams

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Status quo is the outlook for spring sports at Bear Grass High School this season. Both the baseball and softball teams are hoping to equal or better their achievements of a year ago.

Baseball
The Bears finished second in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference last season and made it to the finals of the district tournament before being knocked out by Jamesville.

The team lost several key players, including top pitcher Duane Baker, but coach Jerry Rogerson feels Bear Grass should be just as strong as last season.

"We return seven starters, so we're hoping for as good a season as last year. But we lost a real fine pitcher in Duane Baker and that's our big question mark right now: pitching."

The Bears will be pitching two sophomores this season, William Roberson and Clay Gardner. "It's really tough to say at this point how they'll do," Rogerson said.

Experience is a strong point for the Bears with seven returning starters, and the team hits the ball well. On the other side, "This team last year was weak defensively and I'm afraid its going to be weak again this year."

The Bears are not "smooth and refined" on defense, Rogerson said, but are usually able to knock the ball down in time to make the play. "We get the job done when we have to."

Roberson and Gardner are probably the top two players on the Bear Grass team this season. Roberson is the starting third baseman, while Gardner is the team's shortstop.

As freshmen last season, the pair batted over .350 and both are excellent defensive players, Rogerson said.

The outfield is led by senior center fielder David Bowen. "He was a real fine defensive player last year and he came through with the key hits in important games," according to Rogerson.

Another key to the Bear Grass hopes this season will be junior catcher Jesse Bullock, who has a strong arm throwing to second.

Softball
Softball coach Norman Cherry is also helping his team equal its accomplishments of last season. The Lady Bears, who also lost three starters, finished in a tie for second in the conference a year ago.

"We lost three starters, and of course, they were a lot of help. We're going to suffer a little bit right now, but we're hoping by midseason we'll be playing the kind of ball we played last year with them," Cherry said.

Cherry is hoping defense will be a strong point for Bear Grass this season, although two of the team's infielders are new to their positions.

"Our batting is average to a little better than average. We lost a lot of batting power. We'll be depending a great deal on defense."

Besides the inexperience in the infield, the Lady Bears will start a freshman in left field and utilize two freshman pitchers.

Junior Joette Rogers, the team's shortstop, is probably the top player on the squad, Cherry said. "I'm hoping she'll do the job for us. She is a good ballplayer, hustler and leader. I think moving her to shortstop has given her the incentive to do well."

Other top players include senior first baseman Angela Coltrain, sophomore third baseman Kay Taylor and junior center fielder Linda Whitehurst, who Cherry is counting on as the leader of the outfield.

Old Dominion Has Infraction

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Old Dominion University athletic officials admitted last summer that an ODU women's basketball coach committed a basketball recruiting infraction involving a Columbus, Ohio, prospect, the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot said in today's editions.

The school is believed to be awaiting word on an appeal of a pending two-year suspension from the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, the newspaper said.

Betsy Bjalobok, an ODU spokeswoman with the top-ranked Lady Monarchs at AIAW playoffs in Knoxville, Tenn., said today:

"Old Dominion is in the process of discussion with the AIAW regarding recruiting concerns and at this time we feel there is no further comment." The Virginian-Pilot said ODU informed the AIAW of the alleged violation involving a bid by Marianne Stanley, head coach of the Lady Monarchs, to recruit Lynn Callander, who later enrolled at the University of Maryland.

The violation apparently involved a visit by Stanley to Callander's home in Columbus during the recruiting period.

Earlier this week, Callander said she was visited by Stanley and that she participated in a workout with the team during a visit to the ODU campus here, both violations of recruiting rules.

Stanley has refused comment on the first allegation and denied the later one.

"Lynn Callander played some ball in the gym with some of our players, but it was not during a regular practice session and there was nothing wrong with it," Stanley has said.

If the Lady Monarchs are put on probation by the AIAW they would not be prohibited from post-season tournament play, but would be banned from recruiting during the probation period.

Williams Top Rookie In ACC

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Maryland's Charles "Buck" Williams, the leading rebounder in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has been named the league's rookie of the year.

The 6-8, 215-pound freshman from Rocky Mount started for the Terps and was one of their most consistent performers. Williams averaged 10.5 rebounds and 10 points per game.

The selection of Williams marked the first time since the award was initiated in 1976 that a Duke player did not win or share the honor. The Blue Devils' Gene Banks was last year's ACC rookie of the year.

"Leading the ACC in rebounding is amazing in itself," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell. "He's exceeded my expectations, which were high. Buck constantly works to improve himself and is very coachable. He is physically strong with excellent timing and is our best defensive player."

Williams scored more than 1,000 points and collected more than 1,000 rebounds during his high school career. He started in every game this season and was only one of two Maryland players to do so.

His best game statistically was against Nevada-Las Vegas when he scored 22 points and pulled down 22 rebounds.

The voting for Williams among the 105 ballots from members of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association was overwhelming. Williams received 81 votes while Alvis Rogers of Wake Forest garnered 12. Jeff Jones of Virginia and Guy Morgan of Wake Forest each had six.

Upsets Mark First Round

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Coach Billy Tubbs and his kids from Beaumont, Texas, planned to head down the road about 50 miles from Murfreesboro, Tenn., to Nashville today to check out a genuine American institution, compliments of Clarence Kea.

The 6-foot-6 junior for Lamar University scored 33 points to lead the unranked Cardinals to a 95-87 victory over 17th-ranked Detroit in a first-round game of the NCAA's Midwest Regional basketball tournament Friday night.

With a victory in its first appearance ever in the NCAA tourney, Lamar earned a shot at fourth-ranked powerhouse Michigan State — but Tubbs and his troops had something else on their mind when they got to Murfreesboro.

"The only thing was, if we lost, we wouldn't get to go to the Grand Ole Opry," he said of the famous country-western music house. "But now we get to go and we've got to get ready for Michigan State."

Two other teams in The Associated Press Top Twenty rankings were in action, too. In the other Midwest Regional, Tennessee No. 20, tore up Eastern Kentucky 97-81. And in another upset, St. John's tripped 13th-ranked Temple 75-70 in an East Regional.

In the other East Regional, Penn stopped Iona 73-69. In the Midwest, Weber State shaded

New Mexico State 81-78 in overtime and Virginia Tech trounced Jacksonville 70-53. And in the West, Pepperdine nosed out Utah 92-88, also in overtime, and Southern Cal shelled Utah State 86-67.

In the second round starting today, 11th-ranked Georgetown faced Rutgers and No. 10 Syracuse played Connecticut in the East Regionals at Providence, R.I.; No. 14 Iowa opposed Toledo and ninth-ranked Louisiana State went against Appalachian State in the Midwest Regionals at Bloomington, Ind.; No. 15 Texas faced Oklahoma and No. 18 Louisville played South Alabama in a Midwest twinbill at Dallas, and, in the West at Los Angeles, No. 19 San Francisco took on Brigham Young and 12th-ranked Marquette played Pacific.

In the remaining second-round games Sunday — Friday night's winners playing the top two seeds in each region — it's top-ranked Indiana State vs. Virginia Tech and Arkansas vs. Weber in the Midwest; No. 5 Notre Dame vs. Tennessee and No. 4 Michigan State vs. Lamar in the Midwest; No. 3 North Carolina vs. Pennsylvania and No. 6 Duke vs. St. John's in the East and No. 2 UCLA vs. Pepperdine and No. 8 DePaul vs. Southern Cal in the West.

Michigan State's Spartans will have to watch out for Kea, who scored 12 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in the first half when Lamar, the Southland Conference champion, took a 47-41 lead. He had 21 points in the second half, three of them when the Cardinals, 23-8, strung together nine straight points to take a 78-68 lead with 7:39 to go that all but finished off the favored Titans.

"Clarence Kea was the key — all the way," said Tubbs, who spent the final seconds of the game shouting to his players: "You got it now — no fouls!"

The fouls, it turned out, helped to do in Detroit. Eleven of Kea's points came from the foul line.

With Reggie Jackson (20 points) throwing his weight around under the boards and Terry Crosby (19) shooting the eyes out of the basket from the perimeter, Tennessee downed Eastern Kentucky and finally won an NCAA playoff after four failures.

Crosby's shooting helped the Volunteers, 21-11, turn a 10-point deficit into a 44-38 half-time lead. Then Jackson went to work.

"We went inside in the second half," said Tennessee Coach Don DeVoe. "We knew we had to get inside. We knew they didn't have the physical strength to keep us out forever. It was plain and simple — go inside, wheel to the basket, get them in foul trouble ... and I'd say that it paid off pretty well for us."

Wayne McKay scored 22 points for St. John's, six of them at a critical point when Temple had crept to within one point of the Redmen. From 57-56 with about 7½ minutes to play, McKay pumped in three of the next four baskets for the Redmen, 19-10, keeping the Owls at bay.

"Give me a chance to relish this one before I worry about Duke," said St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca.

Tony Price's 27 points led Penn, the Ivy League champion, past Iona. The Quakers, 22-5, saw a 14-point lead in the second half shrivel to one in the closing minutes, but the Gaels couldn't pull into a tie and, trying to get the ball back, fouled repeatedly. Penn got its final 12 points from the free throw line.

David Johnson scored 19 points in Weber State's overtime triumph over New Mexico State. His two jumpers sent the game into the extra period tied at 69.

The Wildcats now face Arkansas, which ripped them in the first round a year ago. "Last year we were in awe of Arkansas and we didn't show much poise," said Weber's Ben Howland. "But we are ready for them this year."

Dale Solomon scored 18 of his 24 points in the second half as Virginia Tech wiped out Jacksonville's first-half lead en route to its Midwest romp. "The first half was the poorest half we've played in a long time," said Charles Moir, coach of the Metro Conference tournament champs. "At half-time we said it would be an early trip home if we didn't play better."

Ricardo Brown combined for 45 points, 14 of them in overtime, to propel Pepperdine past Utah in the West. The thing that helped the Waves the most was the fouling out, just one second into overtime, of center Tom Chambers, Utah's leading scorer with 26 points.

when starter Don Carfino fouled out and scored 15 of his 19 points in the second half, helping Southern Cal turn a 32-halftime lead into a runaway over Utah State.

Allison Out To Snap Streak

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Pole sitter Bobby Allison will be trying to break a five-year winless streak on tracks of less than a mile in Sunday's Richmond 400 NASCAR Grand National stock car race.

Allison, coming off a victory in last week's Carolina 500, qualified for the No. 1 starting position Friday, gunning his Ford to a lap speed of 92.597 mph on the tight .542-mile track.

"I feel I have the most competitive short-track car in several years. All of the newest ideas and interpretations have been combined in a new car," Allison said.

He beat Benny Parsons' Chevrolet by almost two-tenths of a second in the qualifying. Parsons took the No. 2 spot with a clocking of 91.843 mph.

Cale Yarborough qualified ninth and Donnie Allison failed to win one of the 10 spots on the line Friday. They have been the principals in crashes in the last two NASCAR races.

The 11th through 30th positions were to be determined in time trials today.

Darrell Waltrip, driving a Chevrolet, qualified third fastest with a lap of 91.843 mph. Rookies Dale Earnhardt and Terry Labonte took the fourth and fifth spots, respectively, in Chevrolets.

Rounding out the top 10 were Buddy Baker, Richard Petty, J.D. McDuffie, Yarborough, and Dave Marcis. All qualified in Chevrolets, except Yarborough, who drove an Oldsmobile.

The $93,385 race will run 400 laps, or 216.8 miles.

Parsons said he was "hoping to win the pole and get the pressure off, but it didn't work out that way. Since Busch beer started this pole business, a lot of pressure is on the teams."

The winner of each pole gets $1,000 from Busch. The driver with the most poles at the end of the season will collect an additional $25,000.

Revils Is Defeated

AMES, Iowa — East Carolina University's last remaining wrestler in the NCAA Tournament, was knocked out of the consolation in first round action Friday night.

Butch Revils, a 177-pounder, bowed to Northern Iowa's Joe Gornall on a 5-4 decision.

The defeat was the second in as many matches for Revils, and knocked him out of the field.

East Carolina's heavyweight, Mendell Tyson, lost in first round competition on Thursday, but was not requalified as was Revils, through the wrestlebacks.

Comeback Trail For Wimpy Starts Here

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

"Wimpy" Lassiter was 13 years old when he first picked up a cue stick and began to play the game that would become his life.

At that age, he was too young to get into the pool halls in his home town of Elizabeth City, so he began his career on a homemade four-pocket pool table in the back yard of a local confectioner.

The table was later moved to a candy store and Lassiter moved from there to the local YMCA and then on to the pool halls at 15, although he had to get his parents' consent to get in because he was under 21.

It wasn't too long afterwards that Lassiter learned he could beat anyone in Elizabeth City. "I spotted the best player, who could really put English on the ball, and I beat him. I can still remember what I made, it was a tremendous sum, $7.40. Of course, he didn't pay off, but that's all right, I beat him."

Now 60, Lassiter has won a double handful of world and national billiards titles and seen a lot of changes in the game of pool since he played in an Elizabeth City back yard.

This Thursday, he will give an exhibition at Rose High for the benefit of the school's athletic department which will be the first stop of a year-long comeback tour. Hopefully, that tour will culminate in Las Vegas with a nationally-televised challenge match against a top player.

It's just a gift from the Lord, Lassiter said of his pool-playing abilities. "From the time I was 17, I could beat or keep up with any player in the world—I can now."

Luckily, Lassiter said, he could always play for money. That's how he's made his living for nearly all of his adult life. "I did some high gambling for six or seven years, and I was in the service for 4½ years," he added.

Pool is the "toughest game on earth," according to Lassiter. "There's only one game that comes close and that's marbles because you simply might not shoot.

"There was this woman who once came 200 miles to see me play in L.A. After the match she said she was might disappointed in the way I played. I didn't get out of the chair."

That's one of the things the public doesn't understand about the game, Lassiter said.

Nine ball is Lassiter's favorite game, although he also plays straight pool. "I don't like to play straight pool. It's a game of the past and it's too lengthy."

"You've got to have everything to play nine-ball. It's a very difficult game."

Three things go into making up a complete pool player, Lassiter said. "You've got to be able to play on tables with small pockets, you've got to be able to play somebody three weeks, six hours a day, and you've got to have some of your own money on every game. If you can't do it all, you're not a pool player."

Lassiter scoffs at two of the better-known players, "Minnesota Fats" and Willie Mosconi, saying they are not

"money" players, but exhibitionists.

"There are three types of players, exhibition players, tournament players and money players. Money players are by far the most valuable—or the most dangerous."

The highest stake Lassiter has played for in a single game was $5,000 in Norfolk, Va. "There's guys that have played for more, but they're not known players—and they sure didn't do it with their own money."

The thing he remembers most in all the tournaments he has played in was a 15-minute ovation he received in Tampa, Fla. before he began playing. "That was kind of embarrassing. I beat that guy on TV last week on '60 Minutes,' Uteley Puckett."

In town Friday to promote the upcoming exhibition, to begin at 8 p.m. in the Rose gymnasium, Lassiter looked around wistfully. "I've been to this town many times and there's always some mystery to this town. I always thought I was going to do something here, but I never made a nickel."

Rubella Cases Confirmed Among ECU Students

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
 Some cases of Rubella — German measles — have been confirmed in students of East Carolina and other UNC branches, according to Regional Immunizations Officer Bill Sharpe.

Rubella is an infectious viral disease, usually experienced with minimal effect during childhood. "Its greatest threat lies in the fact that 20 to 25 percent of all the babies born of mothers who have the illness during the first three months of pregnancy have one or several birth defects. This statistic was quoted by Sharpe, N. C. Division of Health Services Immunization Program Representative for the Eastern Regional Office located here. Any person who has not had an inoculation against the disease should have concern, not so much for himself or herself, unless she's a pregnant female or one likely to conceive within the next three months, but for those pregnant or potentially pregnant persons he or she may expose to the virus, Sharpe said. Anyone who does not know he or she has had the disease or has been inoculated against it should check with the family physician, with the Pitt County Health Department or with the Infirmary if he or she is an ECU student, he suggested. Males will probably be given the vaccine immediately; females will have a titer (small sample of blood) drawn for testing for antibodies. The danger in indiscriminately giving the vaccine to young women, he said, lies in the possibility of introducing the virus into the system of someone who is pregnant or soon-to-be pregnant.

"This is why," Sharpe said, "it's so important that the vaccine be given to children. Then there is no danger at all involved, plus they're immune to the effects of the disease itself, which sometimes does cause minor discomfort including rash, low-grade fever, watery eyes, nasal discharge and swelling of the lymph nodes behind the ears. He stressed that all or part of these symptoms may be absent, in which case the person having the disease may never even realize it enough to properly identify it.

The vaccine is required by law to be administered to every North Carolina child before he or she is two years old, along with several other vaccines to provide immunity against childhood diseases. Every school child, beginning next year, must have all these vaccines in order to stay enrolled in school, he said.

Congenital rubella syndrome is now an unnecessary affliction, Sharpe said. In the past it has caused mental retardation, heart defects, bone defects, cataracts, deafness and other ailments. And it still can if the newly pregnant women contracts the virus. Inoculation of her previously and of her associates is the answer.

Every woman applying for a marriage license is now required to have a titer taken to see if she has immunity. The problem is, an ECU infirmary spokesman pointed out, that, at the present time, there is no means written into the law to require her to follow up and take the inoculation.

Sharpe agreed that a followup mechanism needs to be worked out. Sharpe cited statewide statistics that show that congenital Rubella syndrome is being brought under control. In 1975 there were no cases in the state; in 1976, one and in 1977, two, he said.

"Any is too many, though," he said. "The cost in human suffering and in taxpayers' money spent on care of the damaged ones in the past makes us know how well spent the money spent on immunization is."

He also cited the number of cases documented in the state in the past few years to show that the disease itself is still occurring. In 1976 there were 18 cases reported; in 1977, 454; in 1978, 204, and since Jan. 1, 1979, there have been 65 — before the recent outbreak. Ninety percent of these, he said, are occurring in persons 15 to 24 years, the group for which there is the most potential danger, and the group least likely to have been routinely given vaccine during the early childhood years.

Arrests Made In Larceny Cases

FARMVILLE — Arrests have been made in two incidents of larceny from an employer here this past week, according to Police Chief Ron Cooper. Cooper said James Arthur Dixon, of Rt. 1, Farmville has been charged with larceny from his employer, the local FCX Store, of 30 bags of hog feed. He said Dixon is alleged to have loaded onto an FCX truck 30 more bags than he needed to take to the FCX store in Lumberton. He then is alleged to have taken the 30 extra bags to the home of a man identified as Lumberton FCX Store employee, James Lowry. Lowry is alleged to have paid $75 for the 30 bags. Dixon has been released from Pitt County Jail on bond. Lowry is charged with receiving stolen goods. Larry Pitt, 18, of Farmville, an employee of Ellis' Garage here, has been charged with larceny of 60 pounds of copper wire. Cooper said Matthew May, 18, also of Farmville was charged with receiving stolen goods when he allegedly attempted to sell the wire back to Ellis. The wire was valued at $40, the chief indicated. He said both men are out of jail on bond. The attempted sale occurred Wednesday night, he indicated.

Ranch Style Zones Sleeping Areas

L-SHAPED PLAN FURNISHES 4 BEDROOMS, 2 BATHS

By Jerry Bishop

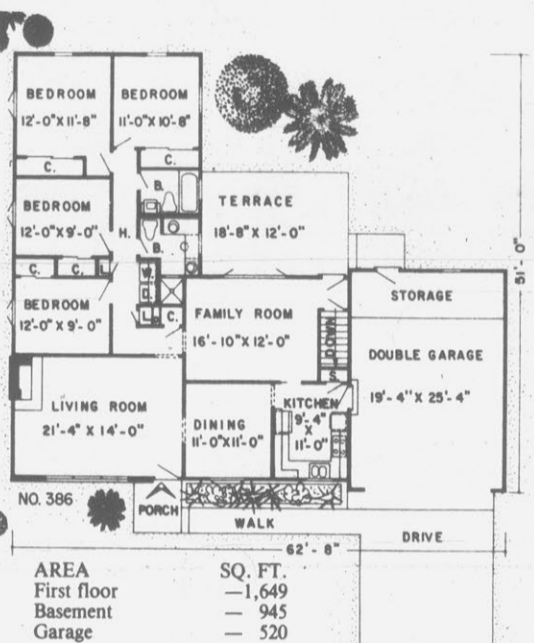

Tucked away behind the living room for quiet and privacy, the sleeping wing sets the tone for this comfortable ranch style home. The Fawnview provides four bedrooms and two full baths in this simple, restful L-shaped design.

Layered with brick and vertical siding, the facade is accented by a planter treatment that borders the small porch. Entry is into the 21-ft. living room, where guests are greeted by the cozy corner fireplace.

For formal parties, the living room and bordering dining room create an efficient and spacious complex. The U-shaped kitchen is situated to serve the dining room and family room, and, for easy transfer of packages, opens into the garage.

Offering a casual contrast to the living room, the family room extends nearly 17 feet and overlooks the terrace to provide an airy center for family fun, television viewing, and children's play. The room is made even more useful by the handy entrance onto the terrace and access to the basement.

The long sleeping wing houses four bedrooms, two baths, and a total of seven closets. Edging the larger bath is a washer and dryer niche, located to minimize laundry chores and save steps. A substantial storage area is defined in the double garage, where the entry to the rear yard saves time in moving garden equipment and patio furniture. Additional storage space is available in the large basement, which provides 945 sq. ft. of space.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to home owners:

A house in the suburbs of Indianapolis is being monitored to determine the cost of heating and air conditioning as compared with more traditionally designed homes. Dubbed "solaire," its heat pump is augmented by a solar furnace. The construction technique is called the plen-wood system and uses the entire underfloor area of a house as a plenum or chamber to distribute warm or cool air to floor registers in the various rooms. The Romans used such construction more than 2,000 years ago and called it hypocaust, meaning underfloor heater.

New residential communities and resorts are being built around facilities having special appeals. One of the most unusual is at Wellington in West Palm Beach, Fla., where polo is the big thing. The community includes five polo fields, a polo grandstand, an equestrian center and a polo house, as well as the usual golf course, tennis courts, swimming pools, etc. The $150,000 World Cup of Polo will be held there April 3-15.

In Davis, Calif., a 70-acre subdivision has every house facing the sun so as to take advantage of solar radiation. Sixty houses of a planned 196 already are up. Window overhangs are calculated so that they shade the windows during the warm weather and expose them during the cooler weather. The glass you see on the roofs may be for solar water heaters or just windows for additional passive solar heating.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — My hardware-store dealer doesn't know what anchor nails are. Neither do I. I read about them in a book which told about attaching furring strips to concrete walls. Can you tell me something about them so I will have a better idea of what I am looking for?

A. — An anchor nail consists of a nail in the center of a perforated metal plate about 2 inches square. A special adhesive is smeared on the back of the plate, which is pressed against the wall with a slight twisting movement. When this is done, some of the adhesive pushes through the perforations in the metal plate. The nail sticks out horizontally from the plate. When the adhesive is thoroughly dry — usually about 24 hours, but follow the manufacturer's instructions — the wood is impaled on the nails, which have been set in a row. The nails then are clinched in place.

A. — Yes, a mesh reinforcement should be imbedded in the concrete. Such slabs should be from 4 to 6 inches thick and set into well-drained earth. Spread a 4-inch layer of coarse gravel, crushed stone or broken clay on the compacted earth. Place waterproof insulation around the perimeter of the slab to prevent the floors along the walls from becoming cold and being subjected to condensation. When the soil appears loose and likely to settle later, the floor should be supported on piers or foundation walls, but if this procedure is necessary, it is a job for a professional.

Q. — I just finished reading your article on tax credits for insulation and other energy-saving home improvements. According to what you said, I qualify for such a credit because I had mineral-wool insulation installed in my house in December of last year. Presumably I will get the maximum tax credit of $300 that you mentioned. What I would like to know now is whether I also can get a tax credit if I have solar-energy equipment put in later this year? Or do you just get the one credit?

A. — You will qualify for a second tax credit. The law says that you get a credit of 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on components to conserve energy. Insulation falls into that category. The law also says you can get an extra credit for what is called a renewable energy source expenditure, which includes the installation of solar, geothermal or wind-powered equipment. This credit amounts to 30 percent of the first $2,000 spent plus 20 percent of the next $8,000 spent. That would make a credit of $2,200 if you spent $10,000 for solar energy equipment.

Q. — I expect to install gypsum board in our attic in the near future. I have been told that this should not be done unless the weather is warm. Is this true?

A. — No. Gypsum board can be installed indoors at any time. What your informant possibly meant is that the compound used to fill the joints, apply over corners and cover nailheads should not be used when there is a possibility that it might freeze. This is not likely to occur indoors except, perhaps, in the use of gypsum board in an unheated garage. Should the temperature there be below 55 degrees Fahrenheit, warm the compound inside the house for at least 24 hours before it is to be used.

Q. — In making an addition to our house this summer, I plan on placing the extra room over a concrete slab. Can you give me any tips about this, most especially whether a mesh reinforcement is necessary?

Oriental's Most Popular Design

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's no generation gap when Americans choose area rugs for their homes and apartments.

Robert V. Dale, a rug mill executive, says Orientals are the most popular designs nationwide, with both older, affluent consumers and young people — singles, married or live-togethers.

Dale defines the last category as largely two working adults with considerable disposable income and highly individual tastes. He said they have become an important buying group.

At a carpet industry conference in New York City, Dale said Oriental designs cover everything from expensive, hand-knotted rugs made in Iran to machine-made versions manufactured in the United States or imported from Europe.

Dale said demand for Oriental designs now cuts across all age groups and lifestyles in just about every section of the country and continues to grow.

While demand is growing, the supply of handmade Iranian rugs is shrinking, Dale said, adding:

"The cost of hand-knotted Orientals from Iran were skyrocketing well before the recent political troubles in that country.

"We understand there are ample supplies of imports with the big dealers," he said, adding that a top quality 8.8-by-12-foot domestic rug of oriental design would retail for about $1,400, compared with the same

Q. I plant my sweet corn thickly so I will have a stand after the birds have gotten their share. I suspect that my plants are sometimes too close together. (B.G., Spring Lake)

A. That could be true. Thin your plants to a uniform distance of about a foot apart. They should produce large, uniform ears of corn at that distance. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. When is the best time of year to buy or cut firewood? (S.W. Kannapolis)

A. Spring, because firewood needs at least six months to season or dry out. You get more heat out of dry firewood than you do out of wet or green firewood because heat is not needed to evaporate the moisture. Burning dry wood also prevents creosote buildup in pipes and chimneys. (Dick Allison, extension forestry specialist)

Q. Can you get earlier tomatoes by setting plants with small fruit already on them? (R.D., Kinston)

A. I would not transplant tomato plants that already have fruit set on them. If you do, most of the time you'll end up with a very stunted plant and only two or three small early tomatoes.

size import at $3,000-$4,000.

Dale said the rising prices for Iranian imports were due to growing industrialization, shrinkage of the skilled labor force there and inflation. He said prices for new Iranian Orientals range from $167-$8,300 a square yard, which means an 8.8-by-12-foot rug could cost as much as $100,000.

Dale, who is vice president of styling and design for Karastan Rug Mills, said the American market for Orientals has historically been dominated by foreign makers, with the exception of such companies as his.

He predicted a sharp increase in popularity of area rugs generally. They now account for about 15 percent of the dollars consumers spend on residential soft floor coverings in the U.S.

He also said it's hard to pinpoint one contemporary style as dominant among rugs with self-contained designs. He said Scandinavian-style multi-colored ryas have been replaced as best-sellers by styles that use texture and varied tones of Berber natural yarns to form high plush pile designs.

New Girl Scout Service Center

GOLDSBORO — Girl Scout representatives from 26 eastern North Carolina counties are dedicating a new Council Service Center here today. The 5,000-square-foot structure cost 435,571 boxes of Girl Scout cookies. That's how many boxes the girls sold to raise the $200,000 needed to build the new facility. More than 14,500 girls were involved in the effort.

The new Service Center, located at 108 Lockhaven Drive, Goldsboro, is the first permanent home of its own the Coastal Carolina Girl Scout Council has had since it was chartered in 1963.

Unlike many organizations, the Girl Scouts have not conducted fund drives for capital improvements.

In addition to the new Service Center, the girls have relied on proceeds from their cookie sales to acquire, develop and maintain campsites and provide for four Council vehicles. (Troops also share in the cookie proceeds.) Council-owned campsites include Camp Pretty Pond in Brunswick County, Camp Hardee in Beaufort County, Kinston Cabin in Lenoir County and the new Louisburg Site in Franklin County.

The new Service Center replaces a temporary office housed in what had been a residence converted into a doctor's office. Six field directors shared a single office and telephone and the hallway served as library and storage area.

Scout leaders from Greenville, Kinston, Wilson and Goldsboro made up a committee which searched for a new site.

Once the site was chosen, Mrs. Patsy Mallison of Washington, the Council president, named Mrs. Julia Rand of Wilson to head the Service Center committee which planned the building. Construction began in March of last year.

Girls from throughout the 16-county Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina will be special guests at the facility next Saturday from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Youth Rally Being Held In Farmville

Farmville United Methodist Church will host a youth rally today at 3 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the church. Special guest speakers for the event include ECU football coach Pat Dye and assistant football coach Wayne Hall.

In addition, Jack Andrews, football team manager and a leader in the campus Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and football player Zack Valentine will address the group. Music therapist Anne Wheeler and attorney Betty Blane Worthington are also among the featured guests. The Rev. Haywood Smith will lead the music with special selections performed by his youth from Hobgood United Methodist Church. The youth from Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church will lead the worship experience.

All United Methodist Churches in the Greenville district of the North Carolina Annual Conference are expected to be represented at the rally. The Farmville youth will serve refreshments.

Grant For Research

ECU News Bureau East Carolina University recently received a $28,000 grant from Texasgulf, Inc. to monitor the ecological effects of Texasgulf's phosphate mining operation on the Pamlico River.

The funds will enable ECU to continue to staff the Pamlico Estuarine Laboratory near Aurora in Beaufort County where water samples are analyzed for phosphorus and other nutrients.

The purpose of the study, according to Dr. William H. Queen, Director of the ECU Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources, is to detect and assess any changes in water quality that may occur in the vicinity of the Texasgulf site.

He said that previous tests conducted over the past 15 years have shown that the Texasgulf operation has not adversely affected water quality and aquatic life of the Pamlico River.

ECU took over the operation of the Pamlico lab in January of 1975. Prior to that the lab, which contains an assortment of scientific monitoring apparatus, had been used by North Carolina State University.

"It has provided our investigators with the opportunity to study the ecological processes of the river. This opportunity would not have existed if it were not for Texasgulf's support."

Redevelopment Comm. To Meet

Hybil Manager Of TRW Plant

Richard J. Hybil has been named manager of TRW Michigan Division's Greenville plant, according to R. A. Smith, director of plant operations for the company.

Smith said that Hybil is responsible for the overall operation of the Greenville facility, which was recently acquired by Michigan Division to manufacture parts for power rack and pinion steering systems.

The 85,000 square foot facility is located on N. Green Street and was previously occupied by Container Corp. of America.

A 15-year TRW employee, Hybil was previously manager of Michigan Division's Rogersville, Tenn. plant. He joined the plant in 1972 as manager of Quality Control, was named manager of Industrial Engineering in 1974, and was promoted to plant manager in 1976.

A graduate of Cleveland State University with a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering and

M.S. in industrial engineering, Hybil is a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers and American Institute of Industrial Engineers.

TWR Michigan Division, a leading supplier of steering and chassis components, is a unit of TRW Inc., a Cleveland-based highly diversified company.

Never Knew Jungle, But Baby Cheetah Is Wild

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Captured in human arms, a baby cheetah, even one who has never known a jungle, is unmistakably a wild creature.

He flails his skinny legs. He stiffens his neck hair. He bares his teeth. He hisses. He wants down. He wants the company of his own kind, other baby cheetahs also ignorant of jungle dangers.

"They're appealing little guys," Roger Birkel said. "It is tempting to pick them up and play with them. But we try to avoid handling them. We don't want to affect their natural behavior any more than necessary. It will be interesting to study them."

The cheetahs, four of them, are celebrated residents of the St. Louis Zoo and Roger Birkel is sort of their godfather.

Their mother is Kuzi. Kuzi and her mate, Sly, also were bred in captivity, a rare enough event, and their offspring are celebrities because the birth of cheetahs two generations removed from the wild is even rarer.

Roger Birkel knows of only two other such litters, one born in a London zoo in 1973 and one in a Cincinnati zoo last June, four months before the blessed event in St. Louis.

"It was some event," he said. "Cheetahs just don't breed well in captivity. We know little of their habits because they are so difficult to study in the wild and so few of them left to study."

"So, first there was the excitement of Kuzi's pregnancy. I had hoped for it, then suspected it, then knew it — was sure enough of it to tell somebody else, at least. We were halfway there."

"Then, on Oct. 24, the keeper called me and said, 'She didn't come out to eat.' I rushed right over."

"You see, we had trained her to come for her food in another yard, away from her den, so we could check the den while she ate. The den was built in two sections just for that purpose."

"When she didn't come out for dinner we knew something was up."

"The next day she came out."

While she ate, I went into the den through the back door and peeked into her section. There they were."

Roger Birkel is a big, gentle man of 33. His eyes are blue. His beard is about the color of a cheetah without the spots. He is associate curator of the zoo, in charge of carnivores. The zoo's Cheetah Survival Center is largely his doing.

"We had the space available and wanted to devote it to an endangered species, try to do more with it than just keep animals."

"We decided on cheetahs. At one time there were millions of cheetahs; now, probably no more than 5,000, mainly because of man's encroachment. Cheetahs are locked into a way of life that is changing faster than they can. Endangered is an understatement."

Cheetahs, he explained, are unlike other big cats. They generally keep to themselves. They hunt alone. When males and females are kept together, in captivity, they become as brothers and sisters and do not mate.

Traditional Herbal Medicine Gets New Research

By BRENDA MOONEY
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — A World Health Organization research team, noticing that women in Tibet have a relatively low fertility rate, set out to trace the cause. They found it in a green pea that is a staple of the Tibetan diet.

That kind of discovery has caused Julian Gold, a scientist at the federal Center for Disease Control here, and researchers in more than 15 other countries to study the legitimate roles that herbal preparations, midwives and even witch doctors can play in meeting the world's health needs.

Gold's research is part of a larger study of such "traditional medicine" underway now at the World Health Organization, based in Geneva, Switzerland. "Two-thirds of the world's population uses traditional medicine for primary health care," said Gold. "And if we can't provide health care by conventional medicine, we'll have to find another way."

Gold said a smorgasbord of purported herbal cures being tested by WHO include: —An herb called Chinese Motherwort, known for thousands of years, which is supposed to cause the uterus to contract, stopping the implantation of the egg or inducing abortion.

—Portulacca Oleracea, a Chinese plant, used to make a tea which is given to patients with diarrhea. —A combination of Vidanga Tankana and Pippali, two plants which are ingested by an Indian sect as birth control.

But Gold said there are some problems in using herbs for medical care, including the fact that cultural factors influence an herb's effectiveness in some societies.

This re-examination of primitive medical treatments is part of a revival of interest in holistic medicine. The term "holistic" is derived from the word "whole" and refers to a medical approach that attempts to treat whole persons rather than just bodies.

The Tibetan pea is an example, Gold said. "They tried it (the pea) on Indian women and it didn't work. That's what holistic medicine is all about," he said. The pea fit a lifestyle in Tibet but could not be forced on the Indian culture.

Holistic theories began to gain credence in modern times when WHO was begun as an arm of the United Nations. "In September 1947, the U.N. defined what they believed health was. They said good health is not merely absence of disease and infirmity but also is the physical and emotional well-being of a person," said Jack LaPatra of the Georgia Institute of Technology.

LaPatra is the author of "Healing: The Coming Revolution in Holistic Medicine" and a health systems analyst at Georgia Tech.

In a recent report, WHO reaffirmed that stand, stating, "No health service starts in a vacuum. The people, the healers and the diseases are already there, and the priority attached to health varies, depending on the communities' other problems."

"If health services are to be provided to the people of the world by the year 2000, it will be necessary to find alternative approaches to meet the basic health needs of developing countries."

Gold said those needs have intensified as the cost of health care has skyrocketed and Western drug companies have failed to find more efficient and less expensive new drugs.

For example, he said, if someone in the United States discovered a male contraceptive today, it would take 20 years and $20 million to get it on the market.

The use of midwives also is of special interest to the researchers.

"The traditional birth attendant is often an accomplished herbalist, and infusions of herbs are frequently given to improve general health during pregnancy as well as to relieve discomfort," the WHO report said.

Faith healing — which is believed to be the most potent ingredient of witch doctoring — also is being reviewed, said Gold.

At least one form of faith healing is widely accepted in American society, he said — the use of placebos, or sugar pills containing no medicine. "Almost 40 percent of migraine sufferers get a positive effect from placebos," Gold said.

"Traditional medicine" has a rich heritage in Africa, Southeast Asia, the Western Pacific, the Eastern Mediterranean, and the developing cultures of the Americas. Gold said the acceptance of such medicine could have a far-reaching effect on the United States, where herbs and holism are little known and sometimes feared.

But, said Gold, careful studies of herbs are necessary before herbs are approved for medical use.

One example Gold gave of a lack of knowledge about herbs was the death of a Colorado woman last year, blamed on the herb pennyroyal. Pennyroyal — taken in an herbal tea — has been thought to induce menstruation for thousands of years, said Gold.

"The big question is what is an overdose," he said. "One cup of tea obviously is not going to do any harm. But if one cup doesn't bring on abortion, maybe two, or three or four will."

College Freshman Furniture-Maker

SOUTH WINDSOR, Conn. building owned by Charbonneau's father. (AP) — Andre Charbonneau Jr. says his only regret about being in business is "I wish I'd done it a lot sooner."

Charbonneau, 18, founded Andre Furniture Industries a year ago while he was a senior at South Windsor High School. "I plan to be a millionaire before I die," the college freshman says.

Charbonneau, who has been making cabinets and furniture since he was 12 or 13, specializes in making plastic-laminated furniture.

Two or three area stores carry his products, and he also sells to private customers. "My goal is to have orders stacked up for six weeks at a time," he says. "Right now, we deliver in 10 days to two weeks."

He and his staff — all under 21, including his younger brother and sister, Kevin and Kim — make tables, bookcases, water-bed frames and desks in a

He plans his first major expansion with a move soon across the street to a larger building.

"I haven't made as much money on some jobs as I had anticipated," he said. "But I've never lost money on a job. I've never underestimated. I just have a feel for business and prices."

After little or no profit in the first few months, the company has started making money, he says.

His 48 working hours a week leave him little time to keep up with his business-administration courses at the University of Hartford.

"I'd rather do well at my business than in school," he said, but adds that the work in some ways helps his school work.

"When I study accounting, I go home right away and apply what I've learned, because I do my own bookkeeping," he said.

Endless Tale Of Woe For Cambodians

EDITORS NOTE — Behind the latest chapter of fighting in Indochina, Chinese against Vietnamese, lies the recent Vietnamese conquest of Cambodia. Politics, military action and world attention shift, but one constant is the plain human suffering in Cambodia. An AP correspondent who helped cover the wars from 1970 to 1975 and who has kept in touch with developments from his base in Thailand, reflects on the endless tale of woe.

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Revolutionary zealots topple rightist generals, rebels become the rulers, governments come and go. But one thing in Cambodia is as constant as its monsoon rains: the agony.

This reporter's notebooks are already years old and musty but the images cannot fade so easily:

A lovely young girl props herself up from the floor of a hospital corridor decked with flies and feces, smiling. Her right arm is sheared off and the collar bone juts out, naked and greenish with decay. Miles above her village an American pilot had pushed a button and let loose a cargo of bombs.

A peasant and his family squat under sugar palms in front of what was once their home. The house is a skeleton of splintered poles and you can see through to the rain-gray horizon beyond. The Communist rebels had been through, but the rice farmer doesn't seem to care which side in the war had thought his home worth destroying.

It's not easy to find a country that's suffered so much for so long. There have been dynastic feuds, repeated invasions by stronger neighbors, modern war technology unleashed on a backward nation, and an experiment in primitive revolution that's been called one of the bloodiest in modern time. Cambodian history is the story of a great civilization that reached its pinnacle seven centuries ago and has declined steadily and painfully ever since.

The Vietnamese takeover in a three-week offensive may have ended the downward spiral. But it didn't mean the end of the pain, and it may have signaled the end for Cambodia as a national entity.

It's an old cliché about the little man always getting the worst deal. But the Cambodian peasant who wants nothing more than to see his rice and children grow has always suffered most.

From King Jayavarman II to Premier Pol Pot, all have professed to love the man in the fields and all have trampled him underfoot.

He's the one who died hauling the huge stones of Angkor Wat for the greater glory of 12th-century god-kings and their mystic universe. And in the last four years he was herded into communes to build "a new glorious Cambodia" to the blueprint of a Marxist dream turned into a mass blood-letting.

Yes, there was a time, a very brief moment in a thousand year history when the newsmen called Cambodia "an oasis of peace in the Indochina war" and when visitors romanticized about Cambodians as the most gentle, smiling people anywhere.

That was the time between Cambodia's independence from France in 1953 and the outbreak of the war 17 years later. There were foreigners who vowed never to leave after being seduced by a sun-drenched, languid life or by Phnom Penh, a capital of Buddhist temples, elegant villas and broad boulevards, a Paris with palms.

"The population is excessively reduced by the incessant wars," French traveler Henri Mohout wrote about his 1860 journey through Cambodia. The man credited with rediscovering the temples of Angkor noted the stark contrast between these architectural masterpieces and the plagues, famine and barbarism he saw around them.

A few years after Mohout's trip, Cambodia was saved from dismemberment by French colonialists who set up a protectorate. The Cambodian empire, which had once stretched over Indochina and beyond, had been preyed on first by the Thais and then the Vietnamese, with even the Laotians taking a slice at one period.

The Thais had sacked Angkor in 1431, carrying away thousands of artists, writers and the entire royal ballet. The Vietnamese, pushing southward, seized what is now southern Vietnam from the Cambodians, captured Saigon in 1672 and were pushing westward into Cambodia when the French stepped in.

The dreams of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the country's post-independence leader, to bring back the days of ancient glory were shattered when war erupted in 1970 and the prince was exiled.

The U.S.-backed government leaders who toppled Sihanouk took on the communist Khmer Rouge and their North Vietnamese allies. The United States, fighting in neighboring Vietnam, staged one invasion into Cambodia and dropped nearly 400,000 tons of bombs on the country. In the most intense aerial blitz in history between Jan. 27 and Aug. 15, 1975, American fighters and bombers unloaded 240,000 tons, racing the clock to do as much damage as possible before a U.S.

court-ordered bombing halt went into effect.

Bombing errors occurred. The worst known one of the Indochina war killed 145 Cambodian civilians and wounded 280 others.

The civil war on the ground between the Khmer Rouge and the regime they overthrew was more savage than that in Vietnam. The war opened with corpses floating down the Mekong River. Prisoners were rarely taken by either side and the lucky ones were shot. Others were disemboweled, beheaded or had their livers cut out and eaten in a macabre battlefield ritual.

The war dead was estimated at from 600,000 to 800,000 — about one Cambodian in every 10. Hundreds of thousands were disabled.

The communist forces won, but the white flags in Phnom Penh on April 17, 1975, were waving from relief that peace had finally come.

That illusion lasted about six hours.

From the testimony of survivors and refugees, 45 months of terror followed. Cambodia had again become a killing ground, but this time it was the leadership turning on its own people.

From that testimony, it would appear that within hours of Phnom Penh's "liberation," its more than 2 million inhabitants were forced into the countryside at gunpoint. Wounded from hospitals were wheeled out and amputees carried by others or forced to slither along the roads as far as they could. The choked, mute lines of families trudged out of the capital to begin what French Cambodia expert Francois Ponchaud has called "the calvary of a people."

The regime put into motion its master plan to "purify" society of its past and transform Cambodia into "one work camp," to start, in Ponchaud's words, at "year zero." Many in the world — even former sympathizers — have charged that hundreds of thousands, if not many more, were killed or died of disease or hunger.

Recently, one of the new Phnom Penh leaders etched a picture that parallels that of the refugees. He said:

STRANDED — This Hereford calf, known as the Arctic Calf of Delhi, has been trapped since November in a narrow ravine along Rice Creek west of Redwood Falls in Minnesota. Until the hip-deep snow melts, he will remain in his wooded prison. (AP Laserphoto)

"No freedom of movement, no freedom of association, no freedom of speech, no freedom of religion, no freedom of study, no freedom of marriage, no currency, no business, no trade, no more pagodas, and no more tears to shed over the people's suffering. Only anger and bitterness remained."

To compound the miseries, the weak but xenophobic regime took on two of its neighbors at the same time — Vietnam, with its first-class army, and Thailand. Vietnam may in part have provoked Cambodian attacks but the Thais had no interest in an embattled border.

Another war, and new masters were in Phnom Penh, and probably a new sigh of relief, even if the victors are the traditional enemies and their allies. But the conflict has already sown the seeds for the next. The defeated regime has sworn to wage a guerrilla war to the end and would gain support if the Vietnamese are heavy handed in their treatment of Cambodia. It will not take much to arouse the Cambodians who have been victims of the Vietnamese for generations and refer to them in casual conversation as "two-headed snakes" and "stinging red ants."

Father Venet is a French Roman Catholic priest living in Thailand, but his heart is somewhere over the endless rice fields, ponds and palm groves of central Cambodia where he spent more than 30 years of his life. This reporter met him when he tended refugees in a besieged Phnom Penh and again when he was caring for those who had fled to Thailand from Pol Pot's revolutionary laboratory.

"I want to think of a good future for Cambodia, a favorable option, but I cannot," he says. "Cambodia has been bled dry, its population is greatly reduced and its intelligentsia has vanished."

"It is an empty vessel that Vietnam can fill. Cambodia is a country that in time will disappear as a national entity. It is the end of Cambodia."

Holy Communion Seminar Topic

Holy communion is the topic of a seminar to be held at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church Monday. This is one of four seminars sponsored by the Division of Worship of the N. C. United Methodist Conference.

According to Dr. Robert Pullman, Fayetteville, division chairperson, the seminar is designed for pastors, directors of Christian education, musicians and worship commission members.

Pullman says the seminar participants will talk about the traditional communion services and also review other approved liturgies.

Leader for the 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. session is the Rev. Hoyt L. Hickman of Nashville, Tenn. He is on the national church staff working in the area of worship.

Youth Revival Begins Monday

WINTERVILLE — Youth revival services will begin at Saint Rest Holiness Church Monday night and will continue through Friday night.

The Rev. Howard McNair of Raleigh will be the evangelist for the week. Services will start at 7:30.

The public is invited to attend.

Easter Seal Society Regional Meet Hears Reports, Lay Plans

The Easter Seal Society held its Regional Council Meeting here Tuesday night to "better inform volunteers of efforts to provide services to handicapped persons in the area."

Dave Cottengim, Director of Program Services, of Raleigh discussed the policy of volunteers. Staff members Jo Perkins, Faye Oakes and June Shough gave reports on particular aspects of the Easter Seal projects.

Perkins said that Easter Seal volunteers have raised a net of $12,629.10. The total is $14,300. The fiscal year ends in August.

Oakes reported on specific assistance, purchase orders and service requests of clients. She said that Easter Seal has spent more than $8,000 as of February.

Shough reported on the needs of particular programs. She asked for volunteers to get involved.

REACHED $11 BILLION
 The Life Insurance Co. of Virginia reached $11 billion of life insurance protection for policyholders, according to Harold Pittman, manager of the Tobacco and Office, Rocky Mount. Pittman said that of approximately 1,800 life insurance companies in the nation, Life of Virginia ranks among the 50 largest legal reserve companies in insurance in force.

FUND ADVANCED
 North Carolina National Bank's Consolidated Equity Fund, a "pooled," common-stock fund used by the bank's Trust Division in managing employee benefit accounts, advanced 15.1 percent for 1978, according to figures released by "Pensions & Investments."

The results placed the NCNB fund in the top ten percent of such bond-managed funds in the country for 1978, NCNB said.

PERSONNEL DIRECTOR
 Hardee's Food Systems Inc. announced that Thomas W. Sugg Jr. was promoted to personnel director for North Carolina and portions of Virginia.

Sugg, a graduate of Rose High School here, will be responsible for coordinating and directing employment of management personnel and other personnel programs for this area. Prior to joining Hardee's, he was associated with Ward Foods Inc. here as a route salesman.

PENNEY WORKSHOP
 David Harris of Greenville completed an automotive center management workshop at the JCPenney Regional Training Center in Atlanta, Ga.

The five-day course, which was attended by Penney associates from throughout the east and south, was designed to improve the management and leadership skills of automotive associates to increase productivity and customer service.

Harris has been with the Penney Co. since 1978 and currently serves as auto center manager at the Greenville store.

INCREASES REPORTED
 Stewart Sandwiches Inc. reported second quarter revenues of $11,449,259, a 26 percent increase over the same period last year. Net earnings increased to $244,465 in the second quarter, an increase of 50 percent over the corresponding period a year ago.

For the first six months, the company reported revenues of $24,356,554, a gain of 20 percent, and earnings of $678,668, up 31 percent over the comparable period in fiscal year 1978.

A dividend of 15 cents per share was declared during the second quarter and paid Jan. 12 to shareholders of record Dec. 22.

Greenville Complex Featured In Publication

"Multi-Housing News," a trade publication published in New York City, has featured an article in its February 1979 issue citing energy savings achieved at a Greenville housing development.

The article, "R-27 Walls, Heavily Wooded Site Saves 50 Percent on Tenant Energy Consumption," looks into methods used by Courtney Square, located in a wooded area behind Pitt Plaza has 208 apartments, a mixture of one-, two- and three-bedroom apartments, renting from $185 to $320 monthly for areas ranging from 700 to 1,540 square feet. 200 more units are planned.

One of the factors cited in helping to conserve energy is the cooling factor of a heavily wooded area, which made possible the reduction of air conditioning load by one ton. Dansey states it costs more to build on wooded sites, but that energy savings plus lower maintenance costs soon compensate for the initial cost.

Construction material factors that Dansey claims attributes to the possible 50 percent savings include use of beveled siding, stud space filled with a cellulose product, a polyurethane barrier, and sheetrock over that. Eight inches of cellulose are blown into attics.

Dansey also uses polysil between concrete and wood floor on the second floor and says it is a big factor in energy savings because it cuts air infiltration at the slab.

Thermal windows, glazed insulated metal entrance door, magnetic weatherstripping and heat pumps complete the conservation package.

Dansey, a former member of the Greenville City Council, will be a featured speaker on energy-saving construction at the Apartment Builder/Developer Conference and Exposition to be held in New Orleans May 7-9.

Barbers at one time combined shaving and haircutting with bloodletting and pulling teeth.

Rural Doctor Shortage Felt In The West

By BUD IWEN

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — Concern is growing over the disappearance of the country doctor from the many rural communities of the West.

Physicians say he is becoming an endangered species. State medical associations in places like Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Nevada find themselves diagnosing the problem, and admitting to no quick cure.

While doctors are attracted to larger cities or, for example, to Western Montana's scenic splendor, they tend to shun small, less-inviting communities.

"It's tough to practice in the boon-docks," says Dr. James Cope, past president of the Montana Medical Association.

The Forsyth, Mont., physician, who established his practice in the Eastern Montana town 30 years ago following graduation from Western Reserve Medical School in his native Ohio, concedes that "this is not an ideal place."

"We have no skiing here, no shining mountains, no trout streams ... very little recreation," Cope says. It's hot in the summer, cold in the winter.

Eastern Montana is sparsely populated over a 70,000 square-mile area. Even for the doctor who likes the countryside, he finds it hard to retain enough patients to support a practice in a region where the population is so scattered.

The "one-doctor towns can't keep a doctor," Cope says. He finds himself over-worked trying to be the single doctor for too many towns too far apart.

Cope and one other physician serve Forsyth, a town of fewer than 3,000 residents, not far from Colstrip, the hub of Montana's recent coal-boom area. There are no doctors and no hospital in Colstrip, which now is larger than Forsyth.

As Cope notes, the problem is not numbers of physicians, of which the United States has no shortage. It's what he calls "maldistribution."

Dr. Robert St. John, president of the Montana Medical Association, uses the same term, adding, "We're actually looking at a physician excess."

St. John is a gynecologist-obstetrician in his hometown of Butte, in Western Montana, where the mountains, trout streams, skiing, hunting and similar attractions apparently have helped to nearly double the number of physicians in that city in the past 10 years.

Robert G. Smith, executive director of the Wyoming State Medical Society, also points to what he calls the "distribution problem": "Physicians are going to congregate where they are needed and where they can practice their skills, specialists especially."

Nearly 40 percent of Wyoming's doctors are located in Cheyenne and Casper, that state's largest cities, Smith says.

Dr. Neil Swissman of Las Vegas, president of the Nevada State Medical Association, says his group "for years ... has been active in promoting practice opportunities for physicians in rural communities."

"Facts indicate that rural physicians earn less than their urban colleagues, must be available 24 hours a day, have fewer opportunities for continuing medical education, and have less frequent contact with their colleagues for consultation," said Swissman in a recent speech.

In Oregon, a report by Lee Lewis of the state Medical Association called attention to Oregon's "livability" as the primary reason for a growth in the statewide physician population.

Ms. Lewis said it was "difficult to support the proposition that we have a great manpower shortage," but she too mentioned "some problems with the distribution of medical manpower."

Director Donald Sower of the Idaho Medical Association says that while the association has been relatively successful in placing doctors in many of Idaho's small communities in recent years, that has not been the case in "remote areas."

"I don't know if we're ever going to get them there," says Sower.

Idaho has more than 1,000 physicians, but over 200 are in the Boise area and nearly 400 others in and around Twin Falls, Idaho Falls, Pocatello and Coeur d'Alene.

Of Montana's estimated 1,000 doctors, about 220 practice in Billings, and another 300 are in Great Falls and Missoula, the state's three largest cities.

Montana's Cope, Smith of Wyoming, and Sower of Idaho all express the need for family-practice physicians — general practitioners — the type of doctors best fitted to serve small communities.

Replacement of retiring physicians is a concern for the near future, according to Cope, Smith and Sower.

So what's the prescription for the medical "trouble spots" in the West?

The doctors and the state medical associations find room for optimism, as well as action. Better-equipped ambulances traveling on interstate highways to better-equipped hospitals, for example, means "the people aren't too bad off," says Cope. He also has hope that Montanans who are trained at medical schools outside the state — Montana has no such school — will return to practice in their native state.

St. John, of Butte, believes that the Emergency Medical Services Program and similar programs already are improving the outlook in rural areas. The emergency-services program channels government funds into communities for the purchase of life-support equipment and for the training of emergency-medical technicians.

ANN BELLIS...enjoys all kinds of plants, but ferns have become her specialty during the past three years.

Ann Bellis Says

Ferns Are Fascinating

Ann Bellis says starting her fern collection three years ago was a way of facing the reality that trying to collect some of all the types of plants she and her husband liked was going to run the family out of house and home.

"When you're into plants, the choice is so great, you just can't have one of everything you like," Mrs. Bellis said. "You find you have to specialize. I chose ferns because to me they're pretty and fascinating and also because they adapt well to our house. It's not very well lighted, and ferns can thrive with only a moderate amount of light provided them."

She and her husband, Dr. Vincent Bellis, closed in an area adjoined on two sides by the back of their house and made her a fern haven. They laid a brick floor to serve as a walkway, with pebbled areas to set plants. They made the roof of fiberglass, a material that admits yet diffuses light. High humidity is maintained by the exhausting of the family clothes dryer into the area (a happy coincidence) and the periodic hosing of the plants. "Ferns like lots of moisture in the air and the soil around them needs to be damp, but not soggy," Mrs. Bellis said. "Most are native to forest floors."

"Ideal temperature for them is between 50 and 90 degrees Fahrenheit, though some can survive if the temperature goes even a little below freezing. 'This is not to be desired,' she said, pointing to an electric heater kept in the fern area for cold nights, 'but it's no catastrophe for most of them if it happens.'"

There are more than 70 types of ferns in Mrs. Bellis's collection. Most are kept in the pretty area previously described, which is visible from the Bellis's great room, dining room and kitchen. A few are brought indoors during the winter months and a few native types are allowed to grow outdoors in the family's beautifully landscaped yard.

"Ferns are native to almost every part of the earth, from the Arctic to the tropics," Mrs. Bellis said. "They are non-flowering and reproduce by spores. Every one has two growth forms, though in most, the secondary form is too small to see with the naked eye. Leaf forms vary from the familiar fronds of the Boston fern to strap-like leaves to fine maidenhairs. Size can vary from a 60-foot tree fern to almost microscopic ones. Varying with what text you read, there are between 9,000 and 12,000 types now cataloged."

Mrs. Bellis is a mathematics teacher at Pitt Technical Institute and also works in the greenhouse of East Carolina University. She is the daughter of a Black Mountain, N. C. commercial flower grower and the wife of an East Carolina University botany professor. She has audited practically every botany course available at ECU and likes nothing better than a horticultural expedition with her husband and sons or with plant enthusiast friends.

"Most books will tell you," she said, "that ferns are 'not economically important.' There are a few uses, though. We've seen signs out in Grindie Pocosin of deer having fed on some. And up in Canada and New England, the fiddle head (curled new growth) of the ostrich fern is a delicacy that can be gathered only in the early spring. It's best, the natives say, when it's boiled like asparagus and slightly seasoned. A lady at a campground where we stayed once shared some she'd frozen with us. It was delicious."

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Thousands of people walk the streets of New York City daily and the going fashion symbols seem to be fake fur, belted or loose fitting "trench" style coats, boots, brief cases or shoulder bags.

A casual spotcheck of fashions in Macy's revealed rack after rack of the loose fitting coats in a variety of colors. Sport shirts for men were available in an abundance of brilliant colors and for women, especially noted in Sak's, were lots of straw hats in an assortment of shapes and sizes.

Traveling by bus Thursday night, we arrived in the city amid Friday morning's traffic rush. After checking into the New York Sheraton, 17 members of our group had a two and a half hour tour of Manhattan Island arranged by our bus driver, Frank Murray, while several others went shopping.

Entertainment Friday night was seeing the Broadway show "Annie," being performed at the Alvin Theatre. In the title role of Annie, young Shelley Bruce delighted the audience in each of her scenes.

She was elevated to the role of Annie from the part of Kate, which she originated and played for a year. She made her New York debut off Broadway in "The Children's Mass" at age seven.

Other appealing characters were Miss Hanigan, played by Alice Ghostley, Oliver Warbucks by Reid Shelton, and the youngest orphan, Molly, played by Jennie Babo.

After the show, a group of us had dinner at Concius Restaurant.

Saturday's activities included visits to the Statue of Liberty on Ellis Island, the Battery, Empire State Building, Radio City Music Hall, which was closed until Thursday, Rockefeller Plaza and having lunch at Sardi's. The after dinner entertainers at the Playboy Club included Stavis McCool, comedian, and vocalist, Julie Budd.

Our tour director Maycie Culbreth, again, planned a great weekend.

Sharon Connolly

On Thursday night, the Rose High Stage Band held its annual spring concert. James Rodgers is the director.

The 21-member band performed such numbers as "Bellaria," "Blue Prelude," "Light My Fire," "Send in the Clowns" and "Salute to Bands."

The French Club and Spanish Club have combined efforts to help raise money for the Community Ambassador program. They have divided a list of Chamber of Commerce members and will be collecting pledges until Tuesday.

Another club involved in a fund raising project is the Anchor Club, whose members are selling doughnuts in the mornings. Proceeds will be donated to the Heart Fund. The Anchors will be covering the Lynndale area next week collecting for the March of Dimes.

Several students participated in the Women's Club District 15 Arts Festival, held in Creswell, last Saturday. In the creative arts division, Catharine Barnhill won first place for her wood craft. Three second place awards were presented to Charles Davis, ceramics, Maryanna Ridenour, macrame, and Betty Lou Ward, needlepoint. Mark Ward won first place in the public speaking division and Neil Jones in painting. Dan Nelson was first in music.

Auditions will be held Monday through Wednesday for the spring musical "Rock-n-Roll." Approximately 25 people will be selected for the cast. Under the direction of Mrs. Betty Topper, the play is scheduled for May 10-11.

Microwave Demonstration Given Junior Women

The GFWC Junior Woman's Club of Greenville held its annual "tables of four" dinner Wednesday at First Federal. The program was a microwave oven demonstration given by Miss Frann Strout of Raleigh.

The Conservation Department sponsored the program. In honor of Arbor Day March 15, pine seedlings were distributed to members and they will also be involved in some landscaping at Greenville Middle School. Children of club members will be participating in a noise pollution contest.

President Katherine Gray received a check from Maggie Brown, second vice president, to be used toward expenses as a state convention page. Mrs. Brenda Whichard presented Mrs. Gray a silk rose for winning district "outstanding woman of the year." Mrs. Whichard also introduced Sharon Connolly, the club's 1978 Sallie Southall Scholarship winner.

Mrs. Earlene Lawrence, home life chairman, announced the Children's Home Society will show a film "I'm 17 - I'm Pregnant" at Rose High School. Membership Chairman Mrs. Joanne McPherson announced the club has 14 new members. Mrs. Vicky Waggoner, public affairs, distributed brochures "Crime Watch" in North Carolina. Mrs. Jo Schlick, arts stallation dinner meeting will be May 3 at the Three Steers. The state convention will be held in Raleigh April 23-26.

Paula Brown, chairman, Sandra Garner, Jane Moore and Mrs. Allen were Wednesday hostesses.

It's a good practice to flush all drains with lots of hot water after every use. This helps keep them free of grease and keeps clean water in the S-shaped pipe under the sink. To clear sluggish drains, try pouring a quart of hot, soapy water down the drain, followed by plenty of hot tap water. If everything else fails, use a "plumber's helper."

Miss McLawhorn Bride Of Clifton L. Brock Jr.

WINTERVILLE — Miss Pamela Marie McLawhorn and Clifton Lloyd Brock Jr. were united in marriage Saturday in the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Willis Wilson officiated in the double ring ceremony held at 2:30 p.m.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal length gown of ivory organza over ivory peau de soie designed with an open neckline with stand up Queen Anne collar overlaid in floral sculptured ivory Venise lace. The bodice was embellished with a yoke of Venise lace appliques enhanced by rows of bridal pearls and outlined in scalloped lace. The full bishop sleeves repeated the scalloped lace at the cuffs, with miniature motifs scattered over the fullness of the sleeves. The princess styled gown and attached chapel length train were trimmed at the hemline in matching lace. She wore an imported silk illusion veil edged in the scalloped lace and held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in the matching lace. The bride carried a cascade of white roses, baby's breath and springeri.

Debbie Avery of Winterville was matron of honor. Myra Brock of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Hudson of Grimesland, cousin of the bride, Jenny Buck of Winterville and Jane Tucker of Greenville. Junior bridesmaid was Tracy Hodges of Winterville, niece of the bride.

All the attendants wore formal length gowns of apricot chiffon over apricot taffeta designed with a portrait neckline enhanced by a berth collar trimmed in apricot satin ribbon and edged in white chantilly lace. The empire waistline featured an inset band in front from which extended the tie sash. The long bishop sleeves were trimmed in lace at the fitted cuffs. The gathered skirt was styled with a ruffled flounce, topped with lace at the hemline. They carried nosegays of talsman roses, white daisies and baby's breath tied with ribbon. They also wore sweetheart roses in their hair.

Kathy Allen of Winterville was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of apricot chiffon over apricot taffeta and trimmed in white lace. She carried a white straw basket filled with talisman roses and daisies.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were David Brock, brother of the bridegroom, Randy Avery, cousin of the bridegroom, Dallas Wade, and Joey Baggett, all of Winterville, and Stuart Elks, cousin of the bride from Greenville. Stacy Hodges of Winterville, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length dress of coral with a matching formal length coat. She wore a white georgina orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length dress of light blue with a matching waist length coat. She wore a white georgina orchid corsage. The grandmothers were remembered with corsages of white cymbidium orchids.

Nuptial music was provided by organist Tommy Manning and soloists Liz and Tony Smart. Vocal selections included "Always and Forever," "True Love" and "O Perfect Love."

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church fellowship hall. The hall was decorated with a theme of a spring garden. Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Averette of Winterville welcomed guests.

After the bridal couple cut the traditional slice of wedding cake, Mrs. Helen Lawrence, aunt of the bride, served guests. She was assisted by Mrs. Lila Harris, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Edna Elks, aunt of the bride, served the punch. Also assisting with the reception were Mrs. Ruby Wingate, Mrs. Eula Hardee and Mrs. Vernice Hudson, all aunts of the bride. Janet Garrett, Jo Williams and Cindy Moye also assisted and all were remembered with corsage of Summer camp guides are ready

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the annual guide to summer camps for children is published, can spring be far behind?
The American Camping Association says the 1979 magazine-form guides for the four regions of the United States are ready. Each lists all camps professionally accredited by the association in the Northeast, the South, the Midwest and the Far West.

Each also gives advice on selecting resident and day camps and preparing a child for the camping experience. State-by-state descriptions outline each camp's program activities, facilities, fees and other key information — including the camp directors' winter office addresses so interested parents can follow up on the guide's information.

Miss Pamela Turnage Weds John S. Finch

Hooker Memorial Christian Church was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Pamela Kaye Turnage and John Stewart Finch. The double ring ceremony was performed at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Ralph Messick. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Rosemary Fischer, organist, and Mrs. Susie Pair, soloist, who sang "In His Care," "Whither Thou Goest" and as the benediction "The Lord's

MRS. JOHN STEWART FINCH

Prayer." Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Turnage Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. James Eugene Finch, all of Greenville.

Mrs. James Hood of Lawrenceville, Ga., sister of the bride, was matron of honor and bridesmaid was Mrs. Kim Harbin, sister of the bridegroom. Audra Denise Hood, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Tracy Norwood Finch, brother of the bridegroom, Kim Edwin Harbin, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, David Earl and Edward Allen Turnage, brothers of the bride, all of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white polyester organza and silk Venise lace. The empire bodice featured a modified standup neckline encircled in white floral Venise lace and enhanced by a sheer yoke of imported English net. Her Camelot sleeves etched in Venise lace layered the bishop sleeves which had a ruffled cuff. A flounce ruffle bordered the full length A-line skirt which extended into a chapel train.

She wore a fingertip length veil of imported illusion edged in miniature scalloped Venise lace and featuring appliques of lace and pearls held in place by a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of white roses accented with baby's breath and English ivy.

The attendants wore matching formal length gowns of baby blue trilobal designed with a portrait neckline, blouson bodice with short split sleeves featuring rolled tie bow closures at the shoulders. The waistline was encircled with a rolled tie sash. They each carried a white long-stemmed rose with light blue streamers.

The flower girl wore a blue and white flowered floor length gown and carried a white parasol adorned with white carnations, baby's breath and blue silk cascading streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a navy polyester formal length gown with a chiffon overlay. The mother of the bridegroom selected a dusty rose formal length gown of chiffon. The grandmothers of the bride couple, Mrs. Lester E. Turnage Sr. of Farmville and Mrs. Marguerite Spencer of Louisville, and the mothers of the couple were remembered with white orchids.

The church was decorated with white mums, palms, two seventeen branch brass candelabra and silk bows with ivy.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, the couple will live in Washington. For traveling, the bride changed into a black and white suit and wore her mother's corsage.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of ECU. She teaches at Sam Bundy School, Farmville, and he is employed at Home Savings and Loan, Washington.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Holiday Inn Friday evening.

Ballroom Attracts Seniors

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Outside, the wind-chill might hit 40-below zero. But inside, it's a hot time for one group of hardy Minneapolis senior citizens dressed in decorous suits, daring silver slippers and scoop-backed dresses.

They come to the Coliseum Ballroom every Wednesday, Friday and Saturday night. Most are single. And all love to dance.

"This is a good place to go and have a good time if you're alone in the world," said Rose Wharton, 68, whose father taught her to dance when she was 5. She has danced in North and South Dakota as well as Minnesota.

"It's a good place for women to come to meet men," adds Florence Carstens, 58. "The women can come up here to dance and still be a lady, not feel like they're chasing." The Coliseum's wooden floor has been made springy and slippery by 60 years of dancing. Before the band starts playing at 8:30 p.m., people can chat in the dining room with its red and pink decorations as a background.

There are few wallflowers at the Coliseum. Men and women promise each other dances hours in advance.

"I think it gives men a lift, to see the women dressed so nicely," said Ed Nierowicz, a retired Internal Revenue Service agent and expert dancer. Ballroom dancing beats jogging for exercise, he adds.

"Everybody's seeking happiness and this is one of the places you get it: the ballroom life," said Mike Sass, 55. Sass, known to his friends as somewhat of a wolf, has been going to the Coliseum for 20 years.

"I dance with the old girls and with the new girls," he said. "I help the girls. If they've been married 20 or 30 years and they're a little rusty, as long as they have just a little ability, I'll teach them."

The number of faithful ballroom dancers had diminished. Clara Fedderly, ticket-taker at the Coliseum for 24 years, says she sold 144 tickets on a bitter cold Saturday night a few weeks ago.

"When I first started, we used to have 400 on Wednesday nights and 500 to 600 on Saturdays," she said. "We get more than 200 a night here sometimes now, but it used to be bumper to bumper."

But ballroom dancing isn't entirely ignored by younger people.

Stone-Soles Wedding Vows Solemnized

CLINTON, Miss. — Christ's Community Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Linda Kay Soles and James Robin Stone.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jack C. Soles of Natchez, Miss., and the late Mr. Soles. Dr. and Mrs. James L. Stone of Greenville, N. C., are parents of the bridegroom.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Bradley Pope at three o'clock. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Barbara Parks, pianist, and Mrs. Lida Stark, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and her honor attendant was her sister, Cynthia Goodin of Jackson, Miss.

Kevin Welch of Monroe, La., was best man and ushers included Jack C. Soles Jr. of Jackson, Miss., brother of the bride, and Lewis Stone of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride was dressed in a gown of white polyester knit with a standup neckline of cutout Venise lace which also bordered the point d'espre illusion bodice, high-rise waistline and full chapel train.

Her veil of imported silk illusion fell from a cap and featured seed pearls highlighted with alencon lace. She carried a nosegay of white roses, daisies, azaleas and baby's breath with accents in orange, blue and yellow.

The honor attendant was dressed in a floor length gown of apricot polyester knit styled with a gathered neckline. Apricot lace accented the long sleeves, natural waistline and hemline. She carried a nosegay of silk azaleas, daisies and wildflowers in apricot, blue and yellow.

After a wedding trip to Holmes State Park, Miss., the couple will live in Jackson, Miss.

The bride graduated from South Natchez-Adams High School and Mississippi College. She is director of the Clinton Community Christian Corp. The bridegroom graduated from Jena High School, Northeast Louisiana University and Mississippi College. He is an art teacher at Rankin County Public Schools and Clarke College.

A reception was held at the church.

The refreshment table was decorated with a three-tiered bridal cake and crystal globed candlesticks. The bridegroom's spice cake was decorated similar to the bridal cake.

Assisting were Miss Katy Stone of Greenville, N. C., sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Bonnie Anders of Clinton, Miss., Miss Mary Bean, Miss Tree Clemmons and Miss Donna Fairley, all of Jackson, Miss., Mrs. Barbara Baggett of Raymond, Miss., and Miss Debbie Gore of West Monroe, La.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the home of Mrs. Bonnie Anders of Clinton, Miss.

Cooking Is Fun

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
The approach of St. Patrick's Day seems a good time to salute the robust and varied diet that distinguishes the cuisine of Ireland.

It has been said the Irish know 400 ways of preparing the potato, but this does not mean the spud is Erin's main dish, even if the country folk once lived almost exclusively on that versatile vegetable.

Ireland is also known for its plump Dublin Bay prawns, its County Down lamb and its Antrim ham. The breads of Ireland, made in most farm kitchens from homegrown grain and buttermilk, are also legendary. They include white soda bread, griddle bread, brown bread, potato bread and buns and scones, to name a few. Served with heather-scented honey or accompanied by tangy Irish cheese, they can be a delight.

So well stocked are Ireland's rivers that the country has become famous for its salmon and trout, both brown and speckled.

The Irish dish perhaps best known to Americans is the classic corned beef and cabbage, which for many of us is an indispensable part of the St. Patrick's observance.

Actually, this spicy meat was originally served in the homes of Ireland on Dec. 25, just after midnight had ended the Christmas Eve fast.

Corned beef brisket, rich in spices, was simmered to fork-cutting tenderness and usually served cold to start off the gala feast enjoyed throughout the land.

In this country, corned beef is associated with March 17, when Irish-Americans and a lot of other people gather to honor the patron saint of the Emerald Isle.

Traditionally, the flavorful brisket is served with cabbage and boiled potatoes, but there are some other touches.

Corning is an ancient process by which meats, poultry and fish are preserved in a liquid solution of salt, sugar and saltpeter called brine.

Here's a version of corned beef and cabbage from New England, where many Irish-Americans dwell.

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh onion
- 2 cups pared carrots, sliced
- 2 potatoes boiled, peeled and cut in cubes
- 4 cups shredded cabbage
- 1 pound cooked corned beef cut into strips
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- 1/2 cup beef bouillon

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

I saw a neat idea in a magazine the other day where someone gave a shower for an expectant grandmother who was awaiting the birth of a grandchild.

A group of contemporaries got together and brought used cribs, rockers, and toys to provide a home-away-from-home for the new offspring.

What a wonderful idea. I know when my children were small, I did the best I could to furnish Mother with all sorts of wonderful diversions for the children when they visited.

I left the drum set at her house. The one she so thoughtfully got the children for Christmas . . . the one that sounded like the footsteps of a thousand camels on your eyelids.

I gave her the live rabbit to keep . . . the one that made such a hit when she gave it to the children at Easter tucked away in a little yellow basket, lined with green ribboned grass and little pebbles that clogged your sinuses.

From the moment she gave them the trampoline, I knew it was definitely a Grandma's house toy. Better to clear all the furniture out of a room in her house and pad the walls and ceilings . . . than mine.

The moment I saw the train with 630 miles of track that Granddad bought for their birthday I said, "Wouldn't that be just the thing to set up at Grandma's house?"

I don't think I'll ever forget the look on Mother's face the day I dropped off my daughter and her taffy machine. I left it there, of course. Since Grandma bought it, I knew she'd want to share the enjoyment of picking taffy off the ceilings and out of the carpet.

Somehow, I couldn't be selfish about the noisemaker that Grandma gave them from a New Year's eve party, or the tricycle with the siren on it that she got for their graduation from nursery school, or the saber that she brought to them from her vacation.

I occasionally got a twinge about all the toys at Grandma's, but when she bought them their first phonograph with a volume knob, I knew I was doing the right thing.

The children used to love going to Grandma's house — they still do. They say her home has happy memories and is so "lived in."

It's the taffy in the rug that does it.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Chili cooks have their secrets. Maybe because I wasn't born and brought up in chili country, I never cease to be fascinated when, on occasion, I hear about the seasonings they use. Each has some favorites to throw in with the chili powder — and swears by them.

Herbs and spices are big: basil, bay leaves, coriander, cumin (powdered or seeds), marjoram, sweet paprika, sage, savory, thyme. Other seasoning choices: garlic, bouillon cubes or powder, Worcestershire sauce, brown flavoring sauce, thick brown steak sauce, wine vinegar and — of all things — pickle relish.

Now I've discovered another chili seasoning. Or should I say chili secret? Anyway, I missed hearing about it until now. A cook gave me a recipe (from the 1920s) for chili made with whole-kernel corn and a cornbread topping. Her addition to the chili? Angostura bitters. Here's my adaptation of the recipe.

CHILI WITH CORNBREAD TOPPING
1½ pounds ground chuck beef
1 medium onion, chopped fine (½ cup)
1 clove garlic, minced
10¼-ounce can condensed tomato soup, undiluted
3 tablespoons chili powder
1 tablespoon Angostura bitters
1 teaspoon powdered cumin
1 teaspoon salt
12-ounce can whole-kernel golden corn, undrained
Topping, see below

In a 10-inch skillet cook the beef, crumbling with a fork, until it loses its red color; spoon off excess fat. Stir in the onion, garlic, soup, chili powder, bitters, cumin, salt and corn. Pour into an ungreased round 2-quart casserole (8¼ by 2¼ inches). Make up the Topping and spoon it around the edge of the casserole. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until meat mixture is bubbling hot and Topping is golden brown — 35 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Offshore Oil Hunt Faces Long Odds

By GREG MacARTHUR Associated Press Writer ATLANTA (AP) — There is only a slim chance that enough oil will be discovered off the southeastern coast of the United States to make drilling commercially feasible, but the rising price of oil and natural gas makes the long shot attractive, according to officials of Tenneco Oil Co.

In a few weeks, Tenneco will begin sinking test wells in the Atlantic about 50 miles from the Georgia coast in an area of the Outer Continental Shelf known as the Southeast Georgia Embayment.

According to Tenneco, which held a seminar on oil exploration this week, most oil companies would not have considered the area for exploration a few years ago.

Vernon T. Bolleter, manager of Tenneco's Frontier Production Projects Division, said "there is only about a 5 or 10 percent chance that we will find oil in commercial quantities" in the area. But he said higher prices make the gamble worthwhile.

"The obvious engine behind this (exploration) is price," explained Philip Oxley, Tenneco's senior vice president for exploration.

The U.S. Geological Survey estimates the area's reserves at about 600 million barrels of oil and about 4.3 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

The estimated reserves are small compared to some other oil fields. Even after 30 years of drilling, for example, Gulf Coast reserves are estimated at three billion to eight billion barrels of oil and 18 trillion to 19 trillion cubic feet of natural gas, according to the USGS.

The pessimistic predictions about the Georgia Embayment's potential was reflected when the federal government offered 224 tracts for development last March. All the tracts were beyond the three-mile limit of state jurisdiction and are federal property.

Oil companies submitted sealed bids for only 57 of the tracts in the 1.3 million acre lease area.

But Tenneco — along with Shell, Mobil, Getty Oil, Exxon and others — spent a total of about $110 million for the 57 leases and are committed to sinking test wells.

Despite the relatively small chance of success, the company that hits a profitable well — if one exists — can look forward to a rate of return on its investment ranging from 15 to 20 percent, Oxley said.

Even so, the region would not be up to full-scale production for six to eight years, according to Bolleter.

Tenneco, which will have invested a "minimum of $30 million" by the middle of the year, hopes to discover by this summer whether the area is worth developing, Oxley said.

Company officials carefully explained safety features on drilling rigs and insisted that the dangers of an oil spill are remote and the damage from such spills exaggerated.

Oxley added that the company has encountered little resistance among residents near the drilling areas.

Tenneco has chosen Savannah as its base; two other companies will stage their operations from Brunswick.

"There's a different attitude in the Southeast Atlantic compared to some other parts of the country," Oxley said. "People seem to have a very realistic attitude about some of the environmental trade offs required in this kind of operation."

Teens Look To Personality

NEW YORK (UPI) — A pleasing personality and a sense of humor are the prime considerations of teen-age girls in accepting a first date.

The new magazine survey from which this information is excerpted found 80 percent of the girls named personality and more than 61.4 percent, humor. More than 60 percent said looks count, but the older the girl, the less likely she was to consider appearance.

Nearly half the girls questioned in the Seventeen magazine study said super-jocks turn them off. Only a little more than five percent found that type of date a turn-on and just over 15 percent found macho men appealing. Athletic ability and money were also low on their lists.

Heavy drinking, swearing and drugs, in that order, are the chief turn-offs, the girls said.

Pound of Counsel Saves Ton of Woe

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You constantly urge people to get counseling or therapy to help solve their problems. This might seem to be a cop-out to some, but I know how helpful it is.

At 14 my daughter was having problems. She wasn't popular, her grades were poor and we were constantly at each other's throats.

She threatened several times to run away, and I was worried.

Her teacher called me in and recommended a psychologist. My daughter agreed to go "just once." It worked out splendidly. It took only six months. (Both of us went so we could learn to understand each other better.)

Today my daughter is the mother of two well-adjusted children. When they showed signs of emotional turmoil, she saw to it that they went to a professional therapist, just as she did, in order to understand themselves better. (Kids frequently need to talk to someone other than their parents because their parents usually are the problem.)

Don't let up, Abby. Mental health is the most important thing in the world. I dread to think of what might have happened had I been too proud, ashamed, or stingy or whatever it is that keeps so many people from seeking the help they need.

THANKFUL

DEAR THANKFUL: Thank you for the testimonial. I know of no one who, at some time in his or her life, couldn't have used counseling. Not everyone needs years of analysis. But in times of stress, sorrow or indecision, a few sessions with a trained therapist can work miracles. Help is as near as one's mental health clinic. And the price is always right.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please find a nice girl for my son? Burton is 33, nice looking, plays the piano, and is not dumb. He's had three years of college, but he lacks ambition and drive.

He's gone out with lots of girls, but he never calls them. If they call him, or if I arrange a date for him, he'll go. He has a few friends, but if they don't call him, he doesn't call them. I'm sure the right girl could motivate Burton to be a little more active socially.

His father and I would like to be grandparents, but Burton is our only child and he doesn't seem to be in any hurry to have a home of his own.

He lives with us, has an 8 to 4 job, and that's his life. Do you know of a nice girl for my Burton, Abby?
WORRIED IN PATTERSON

DEAR WORRIED: If Burton wants a girl he will have to find one himself. Perhaps one of his problems could be a mother who does too much for him. Burton sounds like a nice fellow. If he wants any help from me, I'll be glad to help him, but I can't intrude on a man's life because his mother asks me to.

DEAR ABBY: Can you give us a definition of "maturity" without going into a lot of detail?

You seem to have a gift for putting a lot into just a few sentences. Thank you for your time.
SIXTH GRADERS

DEAR SIXTH GRADERS: Maturity is the ability to do a job whether you're supervised or not; finish a job once it's started; carry money without spending it. And last but not least, the ability to bear an injustice without wanting to get even.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

DOCTOR-LAWYER CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Richard Lindsay is one of an estimated 250 persons in the nation who have both a medical and a legal degree and the only one in West Virginia to be actively practicing both professions simultaneously.

He received his medical degree in 1974 and law degree in 1978, both from West Virginia University.

He is now employed by a law firm. He also puts in 40 hours a week practicing medicine in emergency rooms at hospitals.

Lindsay, 29, is the father of three.

Best Scholars Are Recruited

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Like his colleagues in the athletic department, Dr. Peter Consacro is busy recruiting for the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

The difference is that Consacro looks for brains, not brawn. He's competing with such schools as Harvard and Yale for the cream of high-school intellectuals around the country.

Consacro, head of UTC's Interdisciplinary Studies Department, is in charge of the institution's University Scholars program, which brings to UTC each year about 20 students who are in the top 5 percent of the National Merit Scholarship tests and who are demonstrated leaders.

Because it's small and relatively unknown, UTC goes one step further in its recruiting program than most universities, Consacro said. UTC pays the expenses of up to 60 students to come and spend three days on the campus, meeting with teachers and previous university scholars and seeing the university's physical facilities.

The program, which replaced the old freshman honors program, is in its second year. Of the 20 freshmen and 20 sophomores, two have dropped out. They got married and had to go to work, Consacro said.

"We used to have freshman honors and we'd recruit for that too," Consacro said in an interview. "But there was nothing to keep those students together after the first year, and that's when I proposed a comprehensive program over four years."

The students may major in anything but they are required to take interdisciplinary seminars each year to give them a broad background in the humanities, fine arts, non-Western cultures, and the social, behavioral and natural sciences.

Why do universities need such programs?

"The university has a responsibility to provide education for very talented people who are going to be leaders in their communities," Consacro said. "If you don't look for this type of student, the level of learning, the atmosphere at the university will drop. These people provide a kind of leaven. They mix with other students and improve the intellectual climate on the campus."

Consacro doesn't like the comparison to athletic recruiting, but says it has some validity.

"They are recruiting people gifted in athletics," he says. "We are looking for students who are gifted intellectually and who have leadership potential."

And the scholars don't get the same all-expense-paid education many top athletes get. Out-of-state students get $4,000 for the four years and Tennesseans get $3,000, about half of what Consacro estimates they will need for their education. Consacro told the 56 scholars candidates who visited the university recently that the program was designed to give them "a taste of excellence — you need it only once and you will want more and then you won't ever be willing to accept mediocrity."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when it would be to your best interests to forget your desires to have a good time and to focus your energies on problems that come up in your line of endeavor.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have much work ahead of you, so be sure to get an early start for best results. The evening is best spent happily at home.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't expect favors from others today. Putting your business affairs on a sound basis is wise now. Think constructively.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you handle your work intelligently during the day. Forget a tendency to spend money unwisely and maintain present security.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure to order needed supplies early and save time for other activities later. Follow the advice of an expert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You may be tempted to spend more money than you can afford, so try to save money instead and be wise. Set up a workable budget.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study a new system that will make your work easier and bring you more benefits in the days ahead. Take needed health treatments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Not a good day for starting new projects but fine for getting caught up on work you have postponed. Be more understanding of your mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't rely on friends for help today since they need help themselves in their own affairs. Don't neglect important business matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you follow every rule and regulation that applies to you and don't go a higher-up in any way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not a good day for expansion, so postpone for awhile. Show more devotion to loved one. Be more optimistic about the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Pay that debt you've neglected without further delay and keep out of trouble. Take no chances with your reputation now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Avoid arguments with anyone or there could be serious results. Show others that you are a good citizen. Express happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will likely be one to get bogged down in details and should be taught first to understand the overall picture of any undertaking. Give a fine education and direct the education along lines of research for best results.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 11, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Problems that face you early in the day can be solved if you give them serious thought. Don't pass up an invitation to a social gathering where you get the chance to make new friends.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend a group meeting where lofty precepts are taught that help you handle problems more wisely. Evening can be a very happy one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your best judgment today since your hunches are not very accurate or helpful. Day hours could be tense, but evening is placid and happy for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Think out how to improve a close association and then put plan to work. Study the situation carefully. Evening then brings good results and you are happy. Think constructively.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to get those problems with others nicely ironed out during day.

Family Planning & Post Par-

A loved one poses a question that you have to answer quickly. Be prepared for such.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Organize personal affairs better and then later you can be with good friends. Work to get rid of a fault which deters your progress. Avoid one who is jealous of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day for meditation and knowing how to make your life richer and more rewarding in the future. Being objective helps you get rid of problems you may have. Being social in the evening is fine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You think it is impossible to gain your personal aims early, but if you are more objective, you find they are easily attainable. Daytime is not for partying. Be charming with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Figure out how to gain more prestige in the outside world, which you feel is lacking now. Meditate and then contact the right people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get in touch with wise persons you know and get the advice you need now. Plan how to become more prosperous by your own good ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to have better relations with others, especially in business in the future. Don't take anything for granted. Doublecheck all facts and figures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care not to annoy a close tie during the day and then all works out fine in the evening. Plan time for civic or volunteer work before you go out for social pleasure.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A fine day to do favors for others who have been good to you in the past. Plan how to have more rapport with close ties in the future. Avoid one who is jealous of you and could do you harm.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will do very well at whatever work he or she takes on, but must be taught early not to be so proud of own ability that others would resent the attitude here. There could be a fine scientist in this chart.

Find Treasures Overpainted

LONDON (AP) - Masterpieces at the National Gallery in London are being reappraised after restorers discovered that the works had been overpainted by former cleaners.

The painting, "Saints Fabian and Sebastian," by Giovanni di Paolo, has 20 arrows piercing one body and not seven as previously believed.

In another work by Bellini, "The Blood of the Redeemer," a group of clouds made a surprise appearance hovering above Christ's head.

Spoletto Festival Better Than Ever

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI) — The third annual Spoletto Festival USA will feature twice as many chamber music concerts as previously, tributes to Rachmaninoff and Gershwin, four dance companies, an 18th century operatic masterpiece, and the world premiere of a British play.

The 17-day festival scheduled for May 25 to June 10 is budgeted for $1 million, according to general manager James T. Kearney, but will probably cost more.

Spoletto USA is now the most comprehensive arts festival in the United States. It will feature a new production of "The Medium," an opera by Gian Carlo Menotti, the festival's founder and artistic director. The other opera production will be the American premiere of Cimarosa's "The Desperate Husband," first performed in Italy in the 1790s.

Due to the popularity of the festival's noon chamber music concerts at the historic Dock Street theater, these will be increased to 10 programs, each to be performed three times. Also to be presented at the theater is the world premiere of "Hayworth," a play by Britain's Beverley Cross about the Bronte sisters.

The festival will emphasize dance. The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and the Ballet Repertory Company, an affiliate of the American Ballet Theater, will make their debuts. Two additional companies — the Bill Evans Dance Company and Douglas Norwich and Dancers — will be in residence.

Spring's Arrival Celebrated In Art, Poetry

Pamlico Waters Are A Poet's Roots

EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA... native Ardis Kimzey, one of North Carolina's leading poets, pays tribute to the Pamlico in a collection of poems, "The Illusion Of Water," published by St. Andrews Press, Laurinburg. (Photo by Tam)

The Illusion Of Water. Poems by Ardis Kimzey. Laurinburg, N. C. St. Andrews Press, Paper, 43 pages, $4.00

This collection of poems calls to mind a trio of lines from Wallace Stevens' poem of homage to the singing voice of the sea, "The Idea of Order at Key West."
 "The song and water were not medleyed sound
 Even if what she sang was what she heard,
 Since what she sang was uttered word by word..." (1)
 Washington, N. C. native Kimzey, one of the finest North Carolina poets active today, sings songs of her own native water, the broad, slow-flowing Pamlico. This sea-mingled river and sound is lovingly celebrated in the coda poem of this collection, entitled "Pamlico."
 "I am back at my beginnings.
 Nobody's left who remembers me when I was small.
 The river rolls its dead man swells like snakes under silk,
 And the storm comes four times."
 Word by word within this poem, she fashions other memorable images of rural life bordering the wide water...
 "Teatime in town
 Coarse fabric of Sunday chairs..."

Talk swirled gently around the names
 And stories filling our county
 For two hundred years...
 We walked carefully to buy the penny candy
 We had come for Past a truckload of workers
 Handkerchiefs and scarves tied around heads
 Dripping with sweat
 The old woman crossed hands on her belly
 Under a floursack apron...
 One of Kimzey's talents is the ability to seize the fleeting and make it concrete. In simple, melodious cadences she conjures word pictures that sharpen our visions of half-forgotten waterscapes and landscapes of childhood, moving us to acknowledge that this is the way it was (and still is) if we but stop to look and listen — as in these lines from "Leaving"...

"Fields where furrows lay straight in June as black snakes in the sun are green now with vines and grass, waiting...
 The morning fog lifts slower and water swells high, rocking the pier all the way to where I sit, beginning to feel the chill."

Ardis Kimzey has too the gift of defining moods, that though illusionary as the spirit of water, are ultimately as real...

"There is a gaiety here, but the water laps lonely.
 This wind shifts and recouples with the tide, turning time...
 It is here you come to know — some places are born to sadness as some people are born to grief."

Now a mature artist (in her early 40's), Kimzey is a poet attuned to the past, the present, and the future — in the promise of continuation in her three young sons. Several of the sunniest, at the same time most poignant passages in this collection mirror her relationships with these sons, reflecting hopes and reassurances that are universal.

The composition of "The Illusion of Water" constitutes what can be termed, without extravagance, a contemporary luxury publication. Although a paperback, it is a rare instance in today's economy minded world where the craft of bookmaking takes precedence over economics. Printed on one side of heavy textured paper with ample margins, it is a volume to treasure both for its beauty and its content. As only 500 copies were printed, interested persons should not delay getting a copy.

Ms. Kimzey now lives in Raleigh. She is a critic and reviewer for "New York Times" and the Raleigh "News and Observer" newspapers. For two years she was coordinator of the Poetry-in-the-Schools Program in North Carolina, which has resulted in outstanding anthologies of poetry by Tar Heel children.

The Age-Old Impulse To Touch Life

Insights. Published by the Advanced Composition Class, Junius H. Rose High School, Greenville, under the guidance of M. Virginia Jones. Editors: Jamie Johnson, Til Jolly, Susan Tucker. Paper, large format, illustrated, 30 pages. $1.50.

It is reassuring, and somewhat touching to realize that young people in their teens are incurably awed by the mysteries, the challenges of life as they grapple with transitions from childhood to young adulthood.

The 117 poems and about a dozen brief essays and stories contained in this year's "Insights," the annual literary and art magazine by Rose High students, confirm this age-old tendency of young people to address themselves, in solemn measures to the fundamental issues of life and death.

Themes recurring time and again include birth, pain, life, heartache, hope, suffering and death. In most instances, the students approach these themes in abstractions.

There are exceptions to this tendency, and this is where the young writers break through the mist of lofty nebulousness to achieve originality...

"A sun-burned face full of amazement and mustard tilts upward toward the starlit sky as a cascade of sparks glitter earthward—" (From "4th of July," by Jane Welborn; or a graphic, untitled little poem by Larry Graham...
 Bikinis
 Geometric, symmetric
 Exciting, inviting Concrete, replete
 In good taste and no waste."

In a miniature essay of less than 25 words, Tony Parker effectively pleads for one of the things most difficult for a parent to give a child — "Solitude." — Solitude is being able to cope with my thoughts and feelings without the harassment of others giving me 'sound advice.'"

One young poet, Katy Stone, manages to convey ideas contemporary and eternal in her poem, "Quarters of Man," identifying four basic types of man — Song, Sexy, Poetry, Private.

"Sexy man,
 Flash your smile around the stage, make the young girls squeal look at them and slowly wink they'll wish you were for real..."

"Private man, take your thoughts home with you to the silence all around, become flesh and blood once more with your heartbeat the only sound."
 As usual in this annual effort, the art work is used to advantage in a layout that is visually appealing. There's 16 black and white drawings, and half a dozen photographs.
 Three of the photographs by Michael Crane are obviously ones taken on foreign soil and even standing alone without captions tell an interesting tale.
 To these young poets and artists we can once more say, "it's a job well done."

INSIDE COVER DESIGN... of "Insights," the annual literary-art publication by students at Rose High School is by Jamie Adams. Copies of "Insights" are available at $1.50 and can be purchased at the school.

Noted Mathematician Guest At ECU Research Conference

Dr. Jean Dieudonne, world renowned mathematician was one of a number of speakers who attended the research conference March 5-9 at ECU.
 The conference, "Special Functions and their Relations with the Theory of Representations of Lie Groups," was sponsored by the National Science Foundation.
 During the conference, held in Jenkins' Auditorium on campus, Dieudonne and numerous other mathematicians and physicists representing approximately 50 universities from 28 states in the U.S. and various other countries, including four Canadian provinces, shared their most recent research.
 When Dieudonne was asked what he thought about being considered as "the greatest mathematician of the 20th century," he quickly replied, "That's stupid, there isn't a 'greatest' mathematician. You can't compare a man of 70 to a man of 35."

Dieudonne, who was 72½-years-old Tuesday, retired in 1970 at the age of 64, as professor of mathematics and dean of faculty science at the University of Nice, France.
 "Andre Weil, of France, is of that (younger) age, and he is certainly one of the greatest mathematicians living today," claimed Dieudonne. "Carl Ludwig Siegel of Germany, who is 82 or 83, is another one."
 "Then there's Andre Kolmogorov of Russia," added Dieudonne. "Israel Gelfand, a Russian also, but younger at 66, is another one."
 Dieudonne, so far, has completed eight volumes of a nine-volume work entitled, "Treatise on Analysis."
 "My treatise deals with a kind of math that's called 'analysis,' or calculus in a very sophisticated way — which has developed since Newton," explained Dieudonne. "But, it's difficult for anyone with less than a master's degree (in math) to understand.

 "They increase in difficulty, volumes one to three are for those with a master's degree, and volumes eight and nine are for persons at least at the doctor's level," Dieudonne further explained.
 "I started the treatise in 1960, but I am not finished yet," He pointed out. "I am now writing the last volume, volume nine."
 According to Dr. Lokenath Debnath, professor of mathematics and adjunct professor of physics at ECU, Dieudonne's treatise is "unique in that nobody has written eight to nine volumes on mathematics in this century."
 Concerning Dieudonne, Debnath said "he is a genius, and he has a versatile, creative intellect."
 "He was an excellent speaker, and he was dynamic," added Debnath. "I haven't found a speaker like him in many years."
 Dr. Katy O. Sowell, professor of mathematics at ECU, said "it was certainly an exceptional opportunity for people of Eastern North Carolina to have a person of his (Dieudonne's) stature who has made extensive contributions to the field of mathematics."

 "I think it was marvelous too that we were able to bring so many people of many nations together to study that area (special functions) of math," added Sowell. "It enabled many of them to share their most recent research."
 "I was impressed with Dieudonne's enthusiasm," Sowell said added. "It was almost an excitement he was able to communicate in his lectures."
 Dieudonne, who graduated from the University of Paris in 1931, said during the year he lives eight months in Nice and the rest in Paris, except when traveling.
 "I have visited from 30 to 40 universities in this country at one time or another," said Dieudonne. "From here I will be going to Chapel Hill. On March 14, I will return to France."

In addition to teaching and conducting research in France, Dieudonne has held teaching and research positions at many campuses in the U.S., including Columbia, John Hopkins, Michigan, Maryland, Northwestern, Notre Dame, and Washington.
 He has also delivered lectures in many institutions of the U.S. and those of other countries, according to Debnath.
 In fact, Debnath said "Dieudonne has visited 49 states." He added "North Dakota is the only state Dieudonne hasn't visited."
 "He has visited all of the countries of Europe, including Russia," added Debnath.
 In addition to writing "Treatise on Analysis," Dieudonne mentioned he has also written several other books.
 "I've written a book called 'Infinitesimal Calculus,'" mentioned Dieudonne. "It has been translated into English. And is for people who are seniors at the undergraduate level."
 "I've also written a book on linear algebra and elementary geometry — that's a book for high school teachers," he added, "and written a book on the history of mathematics during the period from 1700 to 1900 however, it hasn't been translated into English yet."
 According to Debnath, Dieudonne is "a devoted researcher, dedicated writer and a great leader of mathematical sciences."
 Debnath said that Dieudonne's research, monographs, advanced books, and treatises in various fields of mathematics "have been the most widely recognized and quoted works in modern mathematical literature."
 Dieudonne's numerous distinctions and honors include membership in the French Academy of Sciences and the Chevalier de a Legion d' Honneur. He has also been an active member of the elite group of French mathematicians, the "Bourbaki."
 In addition, he has served as the president of France's Mathematical Society. And was also the chief organizer of the International Congress of Mathematics held in Nice in 1970.

Lawyer Frustrated By Condemned Killers's Stand

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer
ATMORE, Ala. (AP)—A poverty lawyer who has saved many defendants from the death sentence now faces a grim countdown of frustration with John Louis Evans III, the condemned killer who doesn't want to be saved.

"I feel personally bad because I like John. I've told him this is a tremendous waste of a life," says the lawyer, John Carroll. "I'm personally depressed about the whole affair."

Evans is scheduled for electrocution in Holman Prison near Atmore on April 6. He has told Carroll not to appeal his case further.

The likelihood grows stronger each day that Evans will be the first person executed in America since Jan. 17, 1977, when Gary Gilmore died before a Utah firing squad.

Carroll, the legal director of the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, says the approaching execution of Evans could make Alabama "the center of the circus. And I think it's going to be worse than Gilmore."

Already, he says, "there's a sense of glee about the electrocution that I find utterly depressing ... Too many people see the death penalty as the answer to too many problems that it's just not going to solve."

The electrocution of Evans, he says, "could make people rebel against executions. But the lesson of the Gilmore case doesn't show that," with death row populations steadily growing in the past two years.

"I would hope it would have some beneficial result," says Carroll. "But I can't see it."

The growing publicity about Evans's desire to die, he says, "detracts from any serious discussion of the death penalty."

Evans, who admitted shooting a Mobile pawn shop owner to death while the victim's two young daughters were nearby, has said repeatedly that he prefers to die rather than spend life behind bars.

That stand, says Carroll, "affects the lives of others under death sentences. People think there's something strange about them, that they want to die. People think execution is o.k. because they're hard core criminals."

Carroll says Evans understands the impact of his decision on others but "views electrocution as a viable alternative to continued incarceration on death row."

Also, says Carroll, Evans made his decision in part "to protest the unconstitutional conditions on death row in Alabama ... the lack of exercise, unsanitary conditions, the mental strain of being confined like that for two years now."

Carroll represented Evans in an appeal that the U.S. Supreme Court turned down earlier this year. In that ruling, however, the court did not pass judgment on the legality of Alabama's 1975 death penalty law, and Carroll says there are many avenues of appeal left for Evans if he wants them.

But, says Carroll, "he said he didn't want any more appeals filed. I guess he doesn't have anyone representing him now."

Carroll, whose law center represents seven other Alabama death row inmates and numerous others in various states, is considering legal action to try to block the April 6 electrocution date.

But without the consent of Evans, Carroll says his options aren't firm.

The law center's Death Penalty Project has employed a wide variety of tactics in fighting death penalty cases in the past five years. Carroll says the center "takes cases that, using traditional tactics, would be unwinnable and where the impact of the death penalty is most obvious, such as on the poor."

Some of the center's cases are well known—it played a role in the Joan Little defense in North Carolina—but many others are obscure.

Carroll says that, outside of Alabama in the past four years, the center has handled 18 death penalty cases and in only one was a death verdict returned.

Among other things, says Carroll, the center places considerable emphasis on the penalty phase of the trial. If the evidence is clear, for example, that a brutal murder was committed, the defense emphasizes all circumstances that would mitigate against giving the defendant death.

Also, he says, "we try to get the jury to talk about the death penalty. We try to get them to face up to their feelings about what capital punishment and what it means."

Those who bring high-pressure urban life styles to quiet rural communities suffer frustration as they struggle to adapt to the slower pace of country life," the writers add. "More serious is the frustration that can result from failure to be accepted by the local community ..."

The psychiatrist and psychologist suggest city folk yearning for rural life first ask a lot of questions, including: "Are you willing to accept a simpler lifestyle? ... overcome anxiety about time? Change your compulsive schedules to natural rhythms?"

If you are used to moving upward, acquiring and spending, are you willing to compromise? Can you handle relaxation? Will the sounds of silence be as irritating as city noises?"

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 2 million burglaries were committed in American homes last year, with a loss of about $1 billion, according to a spokesman for Honeywell's building services division.

In the Evans case, Carroll has a new dilemma—trying to convince the condemned man that he should fight against electrocution.

Carroll plans more death row talks with Evans as the electrocution date nears. But even though Evans relented to the earlier appeal, Carroll says Evans has been "consistent throughout" in his desire to die rather than spend his life in prison, and he doesn't anticipate a change of mind now.

Carroll says it depresses him because "I think he clearly has a lot of potential for good. He has helped inmates with legal problems and tried to be in the forefront of the attack on death row conditions."

The Montgomery lawyer, 35, says that while the situation is depressing for him "I've set up a kind of defense mechanism with the thought that something may be done to stop it. As it gets closer, though, it may get tougher."

If the electrocution moves forward as scheduled, Carroll says that on April 6 "I don't know if I'll be there or not. I it."

QUALITY

THE NEW HONDAS.
At Bob Barbour Honda, you'll find a lot of reasons to be impressed. First, there are the exciting automobiles from Honda. Quality automobiles, solid, well-built, and affordable. Pictured above is Honda's brand new entry: the Accord 4-door. It has all the advantages of the regular Accord, plus more room and easier access. And, like all the Honda models for 1979, it's simple to drive, simple to own, and simple to enjoy.

OUR FINE USED CARS.
Quality describes our used cars, too. Bob Barbour Honda offers you a better selection of dependable late model used cars than you'll find anywhere else.

SERVICE TO MATCH.
Our service department will impress you, too, because it shows our commitment to stand behind the quality products we sell. Frank Quinn, our parts and service director would like an opportunity to talk with you personally when you visit us.

IT ADDS UP TO THIS:
In every way... new cars, used cars, parts and service... we're committed to be a quality dealer.

Has Frightened Folks For 60 Years

In any other profession, Alfred Hitchcock would probably be considered a mean man; but as a film director, he has won international recognition for frightening people for almost 60 years.

Hitchcock will be honored for his many contributions to the film art, during "The American Film Institute Salute to Alfred Hitchcock," a 90-minute special to be broadcast Monday, March 12 (9:30 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Probably the world's living expert on suspense, Hitchcock has mastered the art of involving audiences with the problems of his screen characters. One of his favorite themes has been that of the puzzled hero, caught up in bewildering events.

In another trademark technique, Hitchcock injects humor in the midst of the most chilling scenes.

"When you employ suspense, you have to give the audience a chance to laugh," he explains. "If you don't, they will anyway, because the human body cannot stand the strain, and the whole affair becomes ludicrous."

Another famous Hitchcock technique is letting the audience in on a hidden danger. Indeed, audiences have been known to shout at the hero to save him before it's "too late."

Does Hitchcock, himself, have any fears? "Of course," he replies. "My fears are little children, policemen, high places, and that my next picture won't be as good as the last one."

The latter could be considered a ridiculous fear when one reviews Hitchcock's 57-year career in which he has made over 50 movies, most of them classics.

Alfred Hitchcock began his motion picture career in London by illustrating title cards for silent movies. He was quickly promoted to the head of the title department, where he worked closely with the producers, directors and writers on each phase of film making. Consequently, Hitchcock became an accomplished scenarist and editor.

Hitchcock made his directorial debut in 1922 on a film, "Number Thirteen," but it was never completed. In '25, "The Pleasure Garden" was released and he won wide critical acclaim. His work continued to be successful internationally, and subsequently he made his American debut by directing "Rebecca," which won the Academy Award for Best Picture in 1940.

Luminaries of the motion picture world will participate in the tribute to Alfred Hitchcock, which will also include film highlights from his long career.

Alfred Hitchcock, one of the most prolific film makers of the century, will receive a Life Achievement Award at "The American Film Institute Salute to Alfred Hitchcock," Monday, March 12 (9:30-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Kraft Salutes Pearl Bailey

Sarah Vaughan, Pearl Bailey and Ella Fitzgerald (l to r) join in song for the first time in "The 3rd Annual Kraft All-Star Salute: Pearl Bailey," Wednesday, March 14 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Pearl Bailey, the celebrated woman of song and international good will, has successfully played prominent roles as entertainer, humanitarian, diplomat and author throughout her 40-year career. Wednesday, March 14 (10 to 11 p.m.), she will be honored by a host of top stars performing with her in a musical variety entertainment special, "The Third Annual Kraft All-Star Salute: Pearl Bailey," on CBS-TV.

The special, taped before a black-tie audience as a benefit performance for WAIF, a charitable organization that aids homeless children, will have among its highlights a special performance by former First Lady Betty Ford. Among the other stars appearing on the tribute are Jack Albertson, Beau Bridges, Foster Brooks, LeVar Burton, Billy Daniels, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Rosey Grier, Rich Little, Ken Norton, Nipsey Russell and the Morningside High School Band.

Musical highlights include a song-and-dance number teaming

Mrs. Ford, a former dancer, and Miss Bailey with Louis Bellson and the Band.

Gary Coleman, young star of the "Diff'rent Strokes" television series, joins Miss Bailey and The Third Generation Steps in a gentle spoof of her current "school days" as a student at Georgetown University, and the Steps entertain with a dance number in their inimitable, spirited style.

Miss Bailey's reminiscences about her cooking talents lure Brooks onstage for a chat and a special toast. The Bellson family — Pearl, daughter Dee Dee, and husband, Louis — combines its considerable talents in a musical celebration as Dee Dee joins her mother in a duet of "Evergreen," and Pearl, Louis and the Band offer their distinctive version of "In The Good Old Summertime."

Russell is spotlighted in a nightclub sketch, and Daniels is joined by Pearl Bailey for "Memories of You." Little and Miss Bailey "re-create" a historic event in her recent past — a very special concert at the White House.

Miss Bailey's early ambition was to be a schoolteacher, but success in an amateur competition redirected her sights to show-business aspirations.

The Ropers Get Their Own Show And Move On

"The Ropers," a six-episode comedy limited series starring Norman Fell and Audra Lindley as Stanley and Helen Roper, will air on ABC-TV, beginning Tuesday, March 13 (9:30 to 10 p.m.).

In this spinoff from the hit series, "Three's Company," narrow-minded Stanley and his romantically frustrated wife, Helen, sell their apartment building, move away from their tenants, Jack, Chrissy and Janet, and begin a search for a condominium townhouse that will enable them to take up a new life as householders.

In "Moving On," the series' premiere episode, Stanley resists Helen's desire to purchase a townhouse in a "swinging" development next door to a snobbish realtor who thinks they don't belong.

Co-starring are Jeffrey Tambor as Jeffrey P. Brookes III, the realtor; Patricia McCormack as his wife, Anne Brookes, and Evan Cohen as David, their young son.

Jeffrey, uptight about getting "suitable" neighbors, is far from thrilled when the Ropers arrive in their noisy rattletrap car. It's instant dislike between Stanley and Jeffrey. While the realtor is showing Helen the upstairs bedrooms — in which Stanley is disinterested — young David comes into the townhouse. Roper learns that the Brookes live next door and will not sell unless it's to the "right" kind of neighbors. While Helen is thrilled with the place, Stanley perversely announces to Brookes that he plays drums at wild parties which he throws several nights a week for rowdies. He also deliberately makes a disparaging remark about the woman next door, knowing it is Mrs. Brookes.

Later, Helen phones Anne Brookes to arrange a second visit to the property. Unlike her husband, Anne is friendly and unaffected, but she makes the mistake of telling him the Ropers are returning. When Helen and Stanley arrive, they find a "sold" sign on the property.

Both "Three's Company" and its spinoff are derived from the highly successful British television series, "A Man About the House" and "George and Mildred."

Jumbo Jet Crash-Lands

A millionaire art collector's plans to fly friends to an exclusive museum opening aboard his private jumbo jet meet with tragedy when the plane crash-lands at sea, trapping its occupants underwater, in "Airport '77," an adventure drama on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Sunday, March 11 (7 to 10 p.m.).

Jack Lemmon, Lee Grant, Brenda Vaccaro, Joseph Cotten, Olivia DeHavilland and James Stewart head the all-star cast.

The television version includes additional footage not seen in the 1977 Universal release to enhance the presentation.

Darren McGavin, Christopher Lee, Robert Foxworth, Robert Hooks, Monte Markham, Kathleen Quinlan, Gil Gerard, Pamela Bellwood and George

Kennedy also star.

Criminals break into a business establishment and abscond with sleeping gas which they hope to use to pull off a major hijacking. Meanwhile, Philip Stevens (Stewart), a wealthy businessman and art collector, makes plans to fly an elite group of art collectors, sponsors, critics and friends from Washington, D.C., to Palm Beach, where he plans to donate his collection of priceless treasures to the public as a museum.

The trip marks the inaugural flight of Stevens' new private 747. Despite security arrangements, the plan to use sleeping gas and divert the flight is masterminded by a member of his crew and associates. Before the plan can be put fully into effect, a storm causes the plane to crash-land off the coast of Florida and sink below sea-level.

As the passengers become aware of their plight, they respond with shock and fear. With no radio communication, they realize it will not be long before the air-tight cabin breaks under the pressure of tons of water.

In the meantime, the waiting Stevens has been alerted that the craft has disappeared from the radar screens and he organizes a search headed by Patrone (Kennedy), an executive with the firm that built the aircraft. Once the plane is discovered, however, the rescue operation proves to be one of immense risks to those still on board.

'Georgia Peaches'

"Georgia Peaches," a two-hour movie for CBS-TV, will serve as a pilot for a series revolving around a trio of young women in the South.

Brenda Vaccaro and Jack Lemmon star in the adventure drama "Airport '77", on NBC-TV's "The Big Event," Sunday, March 11 (7-10 p.m.).

Upsets Ulcers

Corporation executives' ulcers begin to act up and top government officials get that 'up-tight' feeling each Sunday evening when CBS-TV's hard hitting magazine series, "60 Minutes," takes to the air. And they should.

The program's co-editors, Dan Rather, Harry Reasoner, Mike Wallace and Morley Safer, are fearless when it comes to the topics they focus on each week. Nothing stands in their way, and viewers know that what they see on the program is no watered-down version of a news event. Nor are the four sensation-seekers, selecting topics with the Nielsen ratings in mind. They simply tell the American viewing public what they think they should know. And that is not necessarily what viewers really want to know, either.

And the viewers love it. Even people who don't like television watch "60 Minutes" because of its credibility.

There seems to be a combination of elements that draw viewers to the program.

First, the content: features focusing on people and events in the news and behind the headlines, as well.

Then, there are the co-editors, each contributing their unique styles to the broadcast.

Wallace's no-holds-barred interviewing technique and enterprising reportage are well-known. His experience as a newsman dates back to the 1940's when he was a radio news writer and broadcaster for the Chicago Sun.

Rather, recognized as one of the most knowledgeable reporters and analysts, has been covering the political scene for CBS since 1964. This includes a 10-year tenure as White House Correspondent for the network.

Safer is another no-holds-barred correspondent who has reported on news events throughout the world for over 10 years. The Nigerian government even expelled him from the country in early 1970 for reporting on pilferage of Biafran refugee relief supplies.

Among Safer's reports on "60 Minutes" were two examinations of cocaine trafficking in the U.S.; an investigation into an oil-pricing scheme; and a report on "Guns," focusing on the National Rifle Association and the issue of gun control.

Reasoner's journalism career began back in 1942 and he is one of television's most respected correspondents.

Now in its 11th year on CBS, "60 Minutes" has been a consistent winner of the industry's top awards since it first began airing, and the program's co-editors have all received numerous honors.

Crosby Plaque

A plaque will be placed in London England's Palladium Theatre in honor of Bing Crosby. The Palladium has accorded the distinction of a plaque to only one other star, Judy Garland.

Based On Updike

Award-winning actor Michael Moriarty walked slowly along a grassy path near the town of Stony Brook, Long Island, oblivious to the cameras, crew and other cast members, his lips moving silently.

At that moment, he wasn't Michael Moriarty, he was Richard Maple, a suburbanite with deep marital problems which threatened to end his status as husband and father.

Moriarty was about to film a sequence for "Too Far to Go," which will be telecast Monday, March 12 (9-11 p.m.), on NBC-TV. Co-starring with him in the drama, based on 10 of the popular Maples short stories by John Updike, is Blythe Danner.

As Moriarty explained later, he works best when he is able to concentrate totally on the character he is portraying, to try and understand what makes that character tick, whether it is the Nazi Dorf in "Holocaust" or the dedicated Wilbur Wright in "The Winds of Kitty Hawk."

Moriarty explained his view of Richard Maple: "I play a very contemporary man with contemporary problems. Richard Maple is part cad, part human being... part baby... part mature, understanding parent... part gifted artist. His way with words is marvelous and captivating to those around him. But he has a great sin: pride."

In the story, Richard and his wife, Joan (played by Ms. Danner), realize their marriage is falling apart and they can't seem to find ways to halt the disintegration. They reach the point where they plan to break the news of their pending separation to their children.

Moriarty said of the couple's relationship: "They are hurting one another with affairs. They are terrified and don't seek help. It's their pride which is causing the breakdown and which prevents them from seeking the assistance they need so badly."

The actor spent 27 days before the cameras on location in New York City as well as on long Island. "I loved it," he said. "If you have a script as good as this one, you trust it. I felt very comfortable in the part. Most important, I think Updike has written as honestly and truly out of his insights and experiences as it is possible for a human being to do."

Michael Moriarty and Blythe Danner portray the seemingly serene young couple, Richard and Joan Maple, in "Too Far to Go," the NBC Theater special Monday, March 12 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Carson's Best Is Featured Nightly

Comedians Steve Martin, Rodney Dangerfield and Kelly Monteith, personalities Mike Wallace and Erma Bombeck and performers Anthony Newley, Kenny Rogers and Lola Falana will take aim at viewers' eyes, ears and funnybones as part of "The Best of Carson Week" on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," Monday-Friday, March 12-16 (11:30 p.m.-1 a.m.).

Monday, Carson is host to the popular Steve Martin — he of the zany antics — who brings screams of delight from the studio audience as he utters favorite lines, or goes through typical routines. Kenny Rogers sings his popular hit recording, "Daytime Friends, Nighttime Lovers," Fernando Lamas discusses his early acting days, and 90-year-old actress Merie Earle talks with Johnny about her early days in Hollywood.

Tuesday, host Carson and Suzanne Pleshette talk about the Hollywood social scene and she explains how difficult it is for her to get her husband to be part of it. Dangerfield does his classic monologue, explaining why he "gets no respect." Joe Williams sings the blues favorite, "I Never Felt This Way Before," actor Norman Fell talks about his success on the TV series "Three's Company," and the Mighty Carson Art Players offer a sketch about a fabled Maharishi who visits this country.

Now She's Melanie

Trish Stewart, a stunningly attractive 5-foot 7 and one-half inch blue-eyed blonde, is best-known to television viewers — particularly daytime viewers — as Chris Brooks Foster in "The Young and the Restless."

Today she stars as Melanie Slozar, a rocket fuel specialist who joins an oddball salvage team for excitement and a fast buck in "Salvage-1," ABC-TV's new hour-long adventure series airing Mondays (8 p.m.).

As the daughter of an Air Force oral surgeon, Trish had lived in 28 different places before she was 20 (she says she was born as her parents were "passing through" Hot Springs, Ark.).

After two years of study in literature and philosophy in Paris and psychology in Denver, Trish took to travel again, becoming an airline stewardess. When a diet drink company came to the airline looking for a stewardess for their TV commercial, Trish had no trouble landing the part. This led to many more commercials and the end of her stewardess job. She has since made more than 40 commercials.

While in Paris, she was a make-up model and also did some singing. Trish also was an interpreter between French and American Girl Scouts.

Trish's other acting credits include guest roles in such television series as "Barnaby Jones," "Streets of San Francisco," "Emergency," "The Rookies," "The FBI" and "Project UFO." Trish is single and resides in Los Angeles, Calif.

Thrills And Spills

Joe Don Baker and Susan Sarandon star as two people caught up in the excitement of a 1,000-mile off-the-road race across rugged, rain-swept terrain in the Philippines, in "Checkered Flag or Crash," an adventure drama on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Tuesday, March 13 (9 to 11 p.m.). Larry Hagman and Alan Vint also star.

Baker stars as Andy "Walk-away" Madden, a star competitor in the race, which will pay $100,000 cash to the winner. His toughest competitor is a former partner and mechanic, Doc Pyle (Vint). Madden is being sponsored by a magazine which sends C.C. Wainright (Ms. Sarandon) to cover the race as a first-hand observer, riding in Andy's car.

Gordon's 'Wierd' Role

In 1969, Ruth Gordon won an Oscar for her performance in "Rosemary's Baby" and discovered, as others have, that it often takes many years to become an overnight success. That role changed her entire career, and so it was with some satisfaction that she agreed to play it again in "Look What's Happened to Rosemary's Baby," airing on ABC as the "Tuesday Movie of the Week," March 13 (11:30 p.m.).

Portraying the role again was easy since she has lived with the character everywhere she has gone since the first film premiered.

"I had been on the stage for 50 years before I did 'Rosemary's Baby' and I was pretty well known in New York," she said. "Then one day people began stopping me on the street and asking if I was the weird lady in 'Rosemary's Baby.' It took me a while to get used to it. The toughest part of the problem is that it takes people a while to accept me as another character. Whenever I'm doing a play now I have to wait a few seconds before I begin my first lines. I have to let them see that I'm someone other than Minnie Castavet."

Three other Oscar winners,

Ray Milland, Patty Duke Astin and Broderick Crawford, also star in "Look What's Happened to Rosemary's Baby."

Even at the age of 82, Miss Gordon sees no reason to slow down and is still actively involved in film-making. "I figure I got my big break at the age of 73, so why should I slow down now? There's a lot of things still to do."

The chilling drama traces the growth to adulthood of the half-human half-demon child whose life is a macabre battleground between human and Satanic forces.

Alain Delon stars as Zorro, the legendary hero, and Ottavia Piccolo plays Hortensia, a member of the aristocracy who is committed to bringing justice to the community, in "Zorro," to be broadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," March 13 (9-11 p.m.).

Duo Depicts TV Main-Stay

Part II of "Targets Without a Badge," an episode of "Starsky & Hutch," will air as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" March 11 (9 to 11 p.m.). David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser star. Guest starring are Hilary Thompson, Bert Remsen, Alexander Courtney, Ken Kercheval and Robert Tessier.

In the drama, Starsky and Hutch, having quit the police force, find their lives in danger when they renew their intensive search for evidence to pin down a crooked judge. Revealing the judge's actions will also uncover an organized crime ring that is headed by people in high places. Starsky and Hutch are the youngest members of a fraternity that deals with detective lore, an intriguing vehicle for man's imagination since he first hung a badge of authority on one of his peers.

They epitomize those sleuthing partners that have been a programming main-stay since the advent of television. It started with such series as "Mr. and Mrs. North," "Dragnet" and "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," followed by many other detective teams. "Mr. and Mrs. North" used the theme of husband-and-wife teams, such as "The Thin Man" motion picture series with William Powell and Myrna Loy. Richard Denning and Pamela Britton starred as the Norths. "Dragnet" began Jack Webb's long alliance with television as Sgt. Joe Friday. His first sidekick was Officer Frank Smith, played by Ben Alexander, with Harry Morgan later taking over as Friday's partner, Bill Gannon. Basil Rathbone was the fascinating, deductive reasoning genius, Sherlock Holmes, in a series of motion pictures, with Nigel Bruce as the befuddled but loyal Dr. Watson. Ronald Howard (Leslie Howard's son) played Holmes in the first TV series. M. Marion Crawford played Watson.

Starsky and Hutch are unique in that they have played straight man to each other while taking turns at being flip. Usually partners fall into the Dick Tracy-type with the other a Sam Ketcham for a comedy foil. However, Ben Alexander wasn't much of a foil for Webb — those two were just straight, period.

David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser star in "Starsky & Hutch: Targets Without A Badge" on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie," March 11, (9-11 p.m.).

Production Begun

Production has begun on "Masada," the immortalized story of the 960 Judeans who staged a heroic but doomed four-year rebellion against 5,000 Roman soldiers, which ended in 73 A.D. The drama, being filmed on the site of the fortress mountain in Israel, will air as an eight-hour motion picture on ABC-TV.

Masada is a great anvil-shaped mountain rising 1,200 feet above the Dead Sea, to which the remaining free men, women and children fled when Judea fell to the Romans. There they occupied homes built by Herod nearly a century earlier, constructed a synagogue and cultivated crops and livestock. But after a three-year struggle for survival and gallantry in battle, they realized they were about to be taken into slavery by the massive Roman juggernaut, and clung to freedom by choosing death before the Romans scaled the walls and crushed their fortress sanctuary.

"Masada" is the story of that ancient stand that signifies to the contemporary world the victory of the few against the many, and the last fight of those who struggled for political, religious and spiritual freedom.

Series Returns

Steve Allen's "Meeting of the Minds" returns for its third season on PBS this spring. The show will run for 18 weeks with six new episodes and 12 repeats.

Gish Refused Role

Lillian Gish was offered the role of a whiskey-sodden, tough old woman in the two-hour television feature "Letters From Frank," starring Maureen Stapleton, but she turned it down because she was afraid it would spoil her image.

Lives In N.Y. And L.A.

Charles Durning had just finished a strenuous scene and was relaxing in a director's chair off the set. Someone had asked him what he thought were the major differences between Los Angeles and New York living. The veteran actor has apartments in both cities.

"For me the main thing is the traveling, the commuting, you know, on subways," he commented. "You know what I think about when I think of the subways?"

"Crowds, so tight no one could move. Tensions, people angry. Not the best way to go to work, is it?"

Durning is one of the stars in NBC-TV's six-hour miniseries "Studs Lonigan," airing on Wednesdays (9 to 11 p.m.), and also starring Harry Hamlin and Colleen Dewhurst. "I remember once I saw a woman yelling at an old man on the subway. I don't know if he did anything or not, but he was embarrassed and tried to work his way back and get off. On the way back, everyone who had yelled at his or her mate that morning took out their frustrations and as he walked by, they hit him."

Durning is one of the New York actors who has no problem getting around Los Angeles.

"When I was in New York," he pointed out, "I was okay in Manhattan and Brooklyn. The other boroughs were confusing to me — especially the Bronx. But I find L.A. all right to drive around. It's a lot of area, but I have no trouble."

In this week's segment of

"Studs Lonigan," Studs (Hamlin), a social failure, pays money for a woman's favors only to learn her little black book also contains the name of his father (Durning).

Studs, now 20, is still working as a painter for his father, and has turned to drowning his inherent discontent in booze. The unexpected death of his boyhood pal, Paulie, only adds to the grim outlook.

When Studs is not hell-raising with his buddies, he continues to fantasize about his childhood friend Lucy Scanlon (Lisa Pelikan), then sees his dream come true when his sister Fran (Devon Ericson) arranges for him to take Lucy to a sorority dance. The night is a disaster as Lucy rejects Studs for his lack of manners.

DURNING SPEAKS OUT! — Charles Durning, who portrays Studs Lonigan's father in the six-hour NBC-TV miniseries "Studs Lonigan," Wednesdays, (9-11 p.m.) speaks out about acting and living-working in New York City.

Tucker Signed

Tanya Tucker, recording star, has been signed for a guest-starring role in MCA-TV-Universal's four-hour two-part Operation Prime Time presentation of John Jake's "The Rebels," now filming at Lake Tahoe.

Linden Honored

Hal Linden, title star of "Barney Miller," has been named "Man of the Year" in broadcasting by the Hollywood Radio and Television Society.

Audition Not Needed

An exhausting, lengthy talent search which included the auditioning of more than 100 girls and the screen testing of 23 for the role of Jo in NBC-TV's "Little Women" series (Thursdays, 8 to 9 p.m.), culminated with the signing of Jessica Harper, who neither auditioned nor tested for the part.

"Everywhere I go people say, 'At last we have a Jo,'" says Jessica about reactions she encounters to her role as the second of the March sisters, in this sensitive weekly family drama, which continues beyond the final chapters of Louisa May Alcott's classic novel of life and love in 19th century America.

"I wasn't aware of this great search for someone to portray Jo. I was just sitting here when they called and asked if I was interested.

"It all happened so quickly. The next two days were spent in wardrobe, makeup and going over the script learning my lines and familiarizing myself with the character, whom I had some knowledge of since I had read the novel as a child.

"I even owned 'Little Women' dolls," she continues.

Keeping in mind that she did not audition or screen test for the role, the question still remains about how she got the part.

"It was an instinct as well as the right look, says Executive Producer David Victor, who saw Jessica in "Studs Lonigan," a miniseries now airing on NBC.

"She is a very good actress with appeal and style," says Victor. "There is something about her that comes across as a liberated woman of strong will. She appears to have the energy, personality and drive one would expect to find in Jo March, who is a spunky, determined young woman, willing to accept the consequences of her actions," he said.

Pike's Peek

 PFA Staff Writer
HOLLYWOOD — In this era of wide-screen home TV, video tape recorders and pay-TV, it's uncommon to discover someone who has just purchased their very first television especially if that person is seen on the tube every week. But that's exactly what LAURI WALTERS of "EIGHT IS ENOUGH" just recently did. An avid student of acting and the arts, Lauri has always arranged to visit her manager or a friend to watch the show or a special program. But when PBS aired a Shakespearean festival, Lauri wanted to make sure she wouldn't miss a single program. Thus, she bought a TV... and a video recorder!

Fans of PETER STRAUSS may have a hard time recognizing the actor when his new TV movie, "THE JERICHO MILE," airs on ABC. Peter portrays a convict in the film, which was produced during a five-week stay in California's Folsom Prison last fall. And apparently, Peter made a number of friends while working behind bars, for he says that this past Christmas he received more than 100 cards from the inmates and an additional handful on his recent 32nd birthday.

It's common knowledge that the "MRS. COLUMBO" series is having more than its share of production problems, one of which is the series star, KATE MULGREW. Kate is a perfectionist and simply won't accept second best, which is not winning her any popularity contests with the crew of the show but is making for a better series in many ways, even if production is severely behind schedule.

On the last day of production for this season's "CHARLIE'S ANGELS," the three feminine leads arrived for work only to find their assigned parking slots at 20th Century-Fox filled. Upon close inspection it was discovered that someone had taken each of their nameplates at the head of each parking space and replaced them with signs reading, "Guest Parking." Indications are that someone went to considerable trouble to garner some souvenirs.

There was a party on the set of "WELCOME BACK, KOTTER" to commemorate the taping of the 100th segment. However, everyone in attendance pretty well accepted the social gathering as a means of saying farewell to the show as well since it's highly unlikely that it will be back in ABC's fall lineup.

MARGARET MASON (Linda Anderson) on NBC's "DAYS OF OUR LIVES" really can't be accused of any disloyalty if she's an avid fan of ABC's "VEGAS" series. Her husband, Nick Alexander, is writing a great number of that show's scripts.

Gospel Film Next

Marjoe Gortner, whose "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder?" recently had its world premiere in New York City, will produce a gospel music picture next.

Gortner says the untitled feature will start filming this summer in Southern locations to catch the flavor of the film.

Keith in 'Power'

Brian Keith has been signed to join the all-star cast of "Power," a mini-series for NBC-TV now in production.

Searches For Self

Natalie Wood stars as a woman who has been daughter, wife, mother and lover, but never herself. And now, while her world is collapsing around her, she makes a frantic and sometimes hilarious search for love, wisdom and laughter in "The Cracker Factory," airing as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," March 16 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Cassie (Wood) discovers that a wonderful husband, three healthy children, a house in the suburbs and a mortgage can be enough to drive any woman crackers, and goes off on a rocky and often hilarious search for her real self.

Perry King stars as her psychiatrist, Dr. Edwin Alexander. Peter Haskell stars as her husband, Charlie Barrett. Shelley Long stars as Cara, a loving but troubled young woman who becomes her friend and ally.

Cassie's quest for herself takes her to the psychiatric section of a local hospital, where surrounded by characters who are sometimes wiser and funnier than those outside, she begins to put the pieces of her world back together.

Also starring are Vivian Blaine as Helen and Marian Mercer as Eleanor, two women who help Cassie on her very personal journey. Juliet Mills guest stars as Tinkerbell, a caring nurse at the hospital.

'Maxx' Gets Star

Tim Thomerson has been signed to star in "Maxx," a new half-hour comedy pilot for ABC-TV.

Wings World Tour Featured

"Wings Over the World," a special presentation featuring highlights of the rock group Wings' 1976 world tour, will be presented for the first time on television as "The CBS Late Movie," Friday, March 16 (11:30 p.m.).

Known for such hit songs as "Band on the Run" and "Live and Let Die," the group, including Paul and Linda McCartney, made a world tour, including Australia, the United Kingdom and the United States, in 1976. "Wings Over the World" is an inside look at a musical group on tour; a look at the work, practice, dedication, travel and fun that are all part of a concert tour. Fifteen of the group's songs, filmed in concert, are also featured on the program.

Included in this program are glimpses of more private moments, including McCartney's surprise birthday party, held after one concert, a look at Paul and Linda at home with their children on their farm in Scotland, and an interview with McCartney in which he explains how and why Wings was born.

After the group's performance in Los Angeles, Ringo Starr pays a backstage visit, commenting, "Well, that wasn't bad," and the camera also focuses on the enthusiastic crowds echoing that same sentiment.

The program is rich in music, including concert footage of some of the group's most popular songs, namely "Silly Love Songs," "Live and Let Die," "Go Now," "Hi, Hi, Hi," "With a Little Luck," "Band on the Run," and an old favorite, "Yesterday."

Revenge Sought

George Kennedy portrays a man determined to avenge the slaying of his wife and children in "The Human Factor," airing on CBS-TV immediately following "Wings Over the World," Friday, March 16.

John Kinsdale (Kennedy) is an electronics expert based with a large American company in Italy, whose world is torn apart by the senseless slaying of his wife and children.

Although the police have launched a search for the killers, Kinsdale decides to conduct his own search. At work, he secretly employs the complex and sophisticated computer systems at his disposal to collect information and track the killers, a youthful terrorist group. The band of terrorists had formulated plans to continue to massacre American families until their demands for money and the release of imprisoned fellow terrorists are met.

Fearful that judicial punishment would be lenient, Kinsdale shuns all involvement with the police, but is pursued by them when his plan becomes apparent.

Once Kinsdale finds himself face to face with the killers, brutality and blood-letting are unleashed with full force and culminate in a non-stop shooting spree in a supermarket filled with shoppers.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Please tell me all you can about Chris Lemmon on "Brothers and Sisters." Where can I write to him? 'CHEETAH,' RED SPRINGS, N.C.

A: Chris, the 24-year-old son of actor Jack Lemmon, had planned to be a concert pianist until a few years ago. A bachelor, Chris enjoys swimming, mountain climbing, water skiing and cooking ("I make a nasty spinach souffle," he says). Write to him c-o the show, NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91505

Q: Who are the Blues Brothers on "Saturday Night Live"? Are they really John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd? R. B., MARION, S.C.

A: Juliet Jake and Elwood Blues really are Belushi and Aykroyd, and their "Briefcase Full of Blues" made an astronomical climb to the top of the trade charts in just six weeks.

Q: My 7th grade reading class heard that Lou Ferrigno is dead. Please tell us if this is true. How do we write to him? MRS. T. HOOKS, CHADBOURN, N.C.

A: Rumors about Ferrigno's 'death' are continually being circulated, and they certainly are not true. Possibly the confusion comes from the fact that he is deaf. Write to him c-o "The Incredible Hulk," CBS-TV, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. 90036.

Q: How do I get Dirk Benedict's telephone number? J. MCGILLEM, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: You don't. Sorry!

Q: What happened to "Carter Country"? It started on Tuesday night, then moved to Saturdays. Now I can't find it. Has it been canned? S. DAVIS, ROCKY MOUNT, N.C.

A: Although ABC has made no formal announcement, it is obvious that "Carter Country" has been put aside — for now, anyway.

Q: Who is Betty Garrett's (Mrs. Babish on "Laverne & Shirley") husband in real life? F. HANEY, LEXINGTON, N.C.

A: Betty Garrett is a widow. Her late husband was Larry Parks, a well-known entertainer who was forced out of Hollywood by the McCarthy blacklisting. Betty lives near L.A. with her son, Garrett, who is studying to be a pianist-composer.

Q: Can you tell me the name of the character Rock Hudson played in "Wheels"? J. CAMPBELL, NEWTON, N.C.

A: Hudson played Adam Trenton, an ambitious automobile executive who encountered enough problems to do-away with the mightiest of men.

Crowds Soaring

Basketball attendance at all 1,253 senior colleges in the United States last season totaled 29,104,329.

The National Basketball Association reported that regular-season attendance at pro games totaled 9,874,155 for its 22 teams last season.

The Glow Girl

When Sharon Gless says she is glowing, it doesn't mean you can see her in the dark.

Sharon, who stars in NBC-TV's new series, "Turnabout," has always been athletic.

Once as a youngster, she came barreling into the house after running long and hard and yelled, "Mom, I'm really sweating."

Mrs. Gless, a well-mannered woman with great appreciation of the subtler nuances of the English language, softly corrected her rambunctious daughter.

"Remember, Sharon," she said, "horses sweat and men perspire, but women glow."

'Couple' Casting

Priscilla Barnes, Dick Libertini and Arlene Golonka have been signed for featured roles in "The Last Married Couples in America," a movie now in production in Los Angeles.

Lulu Fights For Equality

Little Lulu, no Janie-come clubhouse in cartoons and comic books for two generations now. Her battle for 'equality' comes to TV when "Little Lulu" airs on the "ABC Weekend Specials" presentation Saturday, March 17 (12-noon to 12:30 p.m.).

Little Lulu decides the girls must prove they're not the weaker sex when she discovers that Tubby and his gang are adamantly enforcing the "no girls allowed" rule at their clubhouse.

Incensed by the archaic rules that keep them separate and unequal, the girls, under Lulu's firm direction, are picketing for the right to play on the baseball team. The boys, secure in the knowledge that the girls will soon be going off to a girls' summer camp, aren't too worried. The boys, however, have not reckoned with Lulu's cunning.

Why not, says she, "sh the boys' camp and beat them at their own game?"

Starring are Laurie Hendler as Lulu, Kevin King Cooper as Tubby, Annrae Walterhouse as Gloria and Robbie Rist as Iggy. Guest starring are Tim Reid and Beverly Archer.

Also in the cast are Lulu Baxter as Annie, Billy Jacoby as Alvin, Toy Newkirk as Diane, Nickey Manfredi as Eddie, Nita DiGiampaolo as Maria, Eddie Singleton as Willie, Laura Fanning as Alvin's Mom, Evelyn Bell as Tubby's Mom, Michèle Brown as Henrietta Chamberlain and Norm Honarth as the bus driver.

Little Lulu and her friends (1 to r) Nita DiGiampaolo, Annrae Walterhouse, Lauri Hendler (Little Lulu), Lulu Baxter and Toy Newkirk parade in protest in "Little Lulu," on the "ABC Weekend Specials" series, Saturday, March 17 (12-12:30 p.m.).

The Teen Scene

Scuttlebutt has it that the real reason JOHN TRAVOLTA won't be starring in the film, "AMERICAN GIGOLO," is because the producer's wanted John to either agree he'd not pilot his own plane—during the filming of the movie, or that he'd pay the premiums on a very expensive insurance policy. He declined to do either.

LAURI WALTERS of "EIGHT IS ENOUGH" admits that she has no actual savings account. Actually, the way she puts it is, "My savings is on the floor of my house." What she means is that instead of putting money away where it'll gain monetary interest, she's invested in numerous Persian rugs, all of which are very expensive and are becoming more valuable every day.

STEVE GUTTENBERG, the star of CBS' new show, "BILLY," isn't putting all his eggs into his acting basket. Despite starring in a TV series, Steve is also a Pre-Dental student at UCLA. When he can't be in the classroom, he has a friend go to his classes with a tape recorder, and then Steve studies from the tapes. Oh, yes, his grades are all above average.

Despite rumors to the contrary, ERIK ESTRADA of "CHiPs" is not getting married this summer to longtime girl, KATHI LAUTNER. In fact, some of the actor's best friends will admit that the couple is on the brink of breaking up.

LARRY WILCOX of that same show, interestingly enough, is just a tad behind ERIK in the amount of fan mail received each week. At one point, Erik was the easy leader in that category, but Larry is catching up rapidly.

Can He Shake It?

Living in the shadow of a legend isn't the easiest thing to do in the super-competitive world of sports. It's even tougher when that shadow is in the shape of a Golden Bear.

Such is the plight of Tom Weiskopf, the 36-year-old golfer who may be running out of time in his quest to gain the same sort of recognition accorded his fellow graduate from Ohio State, Jack Nicklaus.

Weiskopf and a talented field of the best the PGA has to offer will tee off for the final round of the Doral-Eastern Open Saturday, March 17, and CBS-TV will be there for all the action (4 p.m.).

The battle between the Buckeye duo has long been one of the highlights on the tour. In last year's Doral, won by Weiskopf, the two went at it in a duel as searing as the Florida humidity.

A Thursday rain-out led to a 36-hole final round, with the two pros paired together. Weiskopf promptly took a two-stroke lead after 36 holes, shooting a brilliant 67 that also put him four strokes ahead of Nicklaus. Both played the front side of birdies for a six-under 30 that gave him a 65 for the round.

What are the essential ingredients for a winning college basketball coach? This is probably one of the most difficult questions for most university programs to answer. After all, what really separates one college team, composed of five young, impressionable men, from another? If you're looking for an easy answer. Forget it. But, if you want to study a model who produces winners about as consistently as prices go up, then take a little trip to Chapel Hill, N.C., and watch the University of North Carolina Tar Heels in action.

Dean Smith, one of college basketball's most successful coaches takes his team into the NCAA regional competition, televised by NBC, Sunday, March 11 (1 p.m.).

The medium-sized coach you see prancing on the sidelines is the man you want to talk to, and his name is synonymous with the word "win" — Dean Smith. Smith takes his Tar Heels into the NCAA regional competition, and you'll see all the action Sunday, March 11 on NBC (beginning at 1 p.m.).

"If anyone was ever born to be a college coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong-type of person." Those high words of praise came from no less than former Marquette coach Al McGuire, whose Warriors edged the Heels for the NCAA championship in 1977.

What has this magical mentor been able to do that so many pretenders fail to accomplish? For one, Carolina teams under Smith are known for unselfish play, great team-work and a tenacious man-to-man defense. Any coach worth his weight in scholarships will tell you those are the essential ingredients for success.

All you need is a casual glance at this coach's amazing stats to recognize his ability. In 17 seasons with the Tar Heels, Smith has an amazing record of 363 wins and 121 losses. That's a percentage of .750, the highest of any active coach who has been on the major-college level at least 12 seasons.

Under Smith, Carolina has also reached the NCAA semi-finals five times in the last 12 years. Only UCLA has been to the finals four more times in that period.

In the past 12 years, the Tar Heels have won the mega-competitive ACC regular-season championship eight times and have never finished lower than second in the league standings. They have won six tournament titles in that same stretch and have also captured five Eastern Regional crowns.

Drivers Compete

ABC Sports' "The World Series of Auto Racing" featuring the "International Race of Champions" presents Part One of the two-stage finals competition of this $300,000 series on Sunday, March 11 (3:15 to 4:15 p.m.). A dozen of the world's top drivers in three categories — NASCAR, USAC and International Road Racing — compete in identical Z-28 Camaros on the road course of the Riverside (Calif.) International Raceway for an "IROC" championship based almost purely on driver skill.

2.54 miles, nine-turn road course of Riverside. Part Two will be held on the high-banked oval of the Atlanta International Raceway. It is a 100-mile race and will be televised Sunday, March 18.

No points are awarded in the qualifying races, but victory and a $75,000 first prize in this series will go to the driver with the most points in the two finals. Points in these finals are awarded on the basis of 21 for first, 17 for second, 14 for third, down to 3 for 12th place.

Three qualifying races have been aired, including the road qualifier, from the same Riverside road course as the first stage of the finals.

The NASCAR drivers who have already made it into the finals are: Cale Yarborough, the only NASCAR driver in history to win three Winston Cup titles in as many years, and three well-known products of Alabama racing — Bobby and Donnie Allison and Neil Bonnett.

The four USAC finalists are A.J. Foyt, who already holds two "IROC" championships in the six-year history of the competition; Al Unser, current defending "IROC" champion; Gordon Johncock, who like Foyt and Al Unser is a former Indianapolis "500" winner, and Tom Sneva, the USAC driving champion of 1977 and '78.

Part One of the "IROC" finals is a 30-lap race of 76 miles on the

Deborah's New Skill Is Driving A 40-Foot Rig

For Deborah Raffin, acting can be a "learning experience" in more ways than one. The pretty young actress has starred in more than 10 films in a short period and, in most cases, picked up a new skill as well.

For her new television motion picture, "Willa," airing on "The CBS Saturday Night Movies," Saturday, March 17 (9-11 p.m.), Miss Raffin enrolled in the Truckmaster School of Trucking in Southern California and completed a 50-hour course in driving 40-foot-long big rigs. She felt it was necessary to be convincing in her role of a waitress in a truck-stop diner who decides she can do better for herself and her children as a trucker.

Miss Raffin was so convincing in her course that she earned herself a Class A license, which qualifies her to drive the giant vehicles on the nation's highways. All the truck scenes in the film's over-the-road sequences in "Willa" are handled by Miss Raffin.

"I find learning new things a challenge," she explained. "It makes a role much more interesting. Repeating yourself is boring. 'Willa' is a role in which I could do something more than just decorate the scenery."

Also starring in the film are Clu Gulager, Diane Ladd, Nancy Marchand, Mary Wickes, Bob Seagren — and John Amos as Virgil, with special guest star Cloris Leachman.

The mother of two small children, pregnant with a third, and abandoned by her husband, Willa Barnes refuses to accept as inevitable her seemingly hopeless situation. She is determined to make a better life for her family by driving one of those big shiny rigs that her late father used to drive.

Gulager portrays her friend, himself a trucker, until a crippling accident. He understands her frustrations, but still would prefer that she marry him and let him take care of her and her children.

Miss Ladd plays Willa's alcoholic mother whose own descent into helplessness after her husband's death leaves her little understanding for her daughter's "un-ladylike" ambition. Miss Marchand portrays the social worker whose jaundiced view of Willa's activities threatens her custody of her children. Miss Wickes is the cook at the truck-stop where Willa works, and John Amos is the man who is reluctantly persuaded to teach Willa how to drive the big rigs.

Miss Leachman portrays Darla Jean, a seasoned trucker who takes the novice Willa under her wing.

FOR SENATOR EDWARD M. KENNEDY, chairman, subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research

In your drive for National Health Insurance you cite statistics showing that 25 million Americans have no health insurance. What proportion of these have no need for insurance because their medical needs are taken care of under Federal or state welfare programs? — A. Carle, Anchorage, Alaska

● None of the 25 million Americans who have no health insurance are covered by Medicare or Medicaid — the two public insurance programs for senior citizens and the poor. The plain fact that so many Americans, many of whom are above the poverty line, do not have any health insurance is one of the compelling reasons why Congress needs to enact the program. Another principal reason we need it is to control soaring medical costs.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

I recently saw Henry Winkler on a TV show, and he used a couple of signs from the American Sign Language for the deaf. How come? — M. Johnson, Moline, Ill.

● We checked with Henry, who gave us this report: Several months ago, he was invited to Chicago to present the annual awards at an Arts Festival held at the Center for Deafness. It covers all fields of arts and crafts, from the theater to paintings. After presenting around 70 awards to children without hearing, he attended a performance of the Children's Theater for the Deaf. Backstage, after the show, Henry was given a crash course on the basics of sign language from some of the children who were in the show, and these are the signs you saw him use on television. Henry is passionately fond of youngsters — he'll never say "no" to anything involving causes for children.

A friendly hand for the children.

FOR KATE JACKSON, costar of Charlie's Angels

All show-business newlyweds say their marriage will last, and you have, too. How do you plan to make yours last, and work? — V.W. Waco, Texas

● Andrew and I have a simple formula. To make a relationship last you have to make the other person feel better than anyone else in the world. Any simple thing we can do to make each other feel great is one way of ensuring a terrific marriage. I know it sounds simple, and it is. We believe it is working for us.

FOR TREVOR HOWARD, star of Night Flight

How do you compare your old films, such as Bridge on the River Kwai, with the new stuff you're in, such as Superman? — H.M., Decatur, Ala.

● When I see the old ones, they seem terribly dated. Although a few oldies, such as Gone With the Wind, have stood the test of time, most of them haven't. Even so, they don't make movies like they used to. Modern techniques place more emphasis on special effects than acting. If you saw Superman you'd know what I mean.

FOR BETTY FORD, former First Lady and author of The Times of My Life

Would you have written your book if you were still in the White House, and what has been your biggest adjustment since? — B.G., Monterey, Calif.

● No. I would not have written a book if I were still living in the White House because, first of all, I wouldn't have had the time and, secondly, it would not have been appropriate. My biggest adjustment was settling into a completely new way of life in Rancho Mirage, after 28 years in Washington.

FOR BILL HAYWARD, author of Cat People

Is there any trick for photographing cats? — M.L., Colorado Springs, Colo.

● The only trick for taking pictures of cats is patience and optimism. Rare is the cat that will pose on demand. They're temperamental and fickle. Laughter scares them. It's as though they feel they're the cause of it. But they have an uncanny sense of knowing when they're needed, as most owners will attest. And cats do have personalities — of the 80 I photographed, there weren't two alike.

Just how important is jewelry for the "total" look? — Jean Langley, Flint, Mich.

● It's as important as you want it to be. There are many women who look more elegantly dressed without a single bauble (i.e., Jackie Onassis and Dinah Shore) than those who deck themselves out like Christmas trees. It's not what's on your ears and neck and hands that counts, but the way you carry your head and your posture. Each individual is quite different.

POD Charles Alan Wright, McCormick Professor of Law, University of Texas Law School

With four times as many cases as it had 40 years ago, the Supreme Court is badly overworked. Most cases it dismisses without hearing, and important issues are left unsettled. The Court cannot increase the number of cases to which it gives full hearing. Lower courts are crowded, too, but there, additional judges have been added to lighten caseloads. There is an urgent need to give the Supreme Court relief by creating a new court that can speak to the country and for the country in cases the Supreme Court simply cannot hear.

PRO AND CON

Is An Auxiliary Supreme Court Necessary To Counter Heavy Case Loads?

CON Eugene Gressman, Kenan Professor of Law, University of N.C. Law School.

Certainly not. An auxiliary Supreme Court is unconstitutional, unwise and unnecessary. The Constitution says there shall be "one" Supreme Court, no second or auxiliary one. Nor can the Court delegate any of its vested duties. The Court now has sufficient internal techniques for rapid caseload disposition to remain consistently current in its work. An auxiliary Court would do nothing to expedite the work of the nine justices. It would make litigation more expensive and prolonged and detract from the Constitutional role and dignity of our "one" Supreme Court.

SOPHIA'S STORY

La Loren speaks candidly about her remarkable life—and takes pains to set the record straight

By A. E. Hotchner

I was skiing in Austria, on my way to Paris to do a book about the Ritz, when I received a phone call from New York asking me how I felt about Sophia Loren — from a literary point of view. I said that I admired her as an actress but that, literarily, I had no feelings about her one way or another.

Would I shelve my skis to meet her?

No, because I was on my way to Paris to work on a new book.

Well, coincidence, that's where she lives — Paris.

The way we left it was that I would go to see her after I got set up in Paris.

I had two sharp images of Sophia — a hysterical woman in a dirty, ragged dress kneeling on a dusty road crying out her anguish over the mass rape of her beautiful young daughter.

And an exquisite Neapolitan hooker slowly peeling her clothes off a body dripping with sexuality.

I also had vague recollections of childhood slums, bigamy, miscarriages and one of the most publicized pregnancies in the history of reproduction. I phoned for an appointment, primarily out of curiosity about the woman. I was told that her husband, Carlo Ponti, would like to see me first. Screening process, I figured.

The Pontis live on the fashionable Avenue George V in a commodious, exquisitely furnished triplex that occupies the seventh, eighth and ninth floors of their building. Carlo received me in his office, which takes up all of the ninth floor. He was not at all what I had expected: the wheeler-dealer movie magnate, obsessed with blockbusters, grosses, spinoffs and recoupments. Instead, he was reserved, low-key, a good listener, good-humored, with a spontaneous smile and a noble laugh. He spoke of his wife with respect and, strange to say for a man married so long, with a touch of awe.

"Why does she want to do a book?" I automatically asked.

"That is for her to tell you," he answered. "But I can assure you that she would be a remarkable subject. She represents all the best that is Italian. Neapolitan gait and artistic expression, which was her birthright, and a Milanese sense of proportion and balance, which she learned from me. Rarely has there been such a combination in one woman."

"Just the other day I read an account of how you and she were getting a divorce, 'but you certainly don't sound like it.'"

"Yes, yes, every day for 20 years our marriage is on the rocks, we are finished, I have this and that girl friend and she has some big love affair. The world has been at us all our life together. The Italian government charged me with bigamy, so I was forced to become a French citizen to avoid getting put in jail. So were Sophia and my former wife — forced to give up their Italian birthrights — so that Sophia and I could be married. But I am Milanese, a fighter, and nothing could have kept me from marrying Sophia. But to put us through such hell. And why? Because of the collusion between the Italian church and the Italian government. It's bad when priests try to become politicians. The result is they're neither good priests nor good politicians."

"If we did do this book, would you speak to me frankly about your life with Sophia? Life as it was, not as you wish it had been."

"Ah, but life, difficult and chaotic though it was, turned out as I wished it to be. Yes, I will look at it with an honest eye — and remember, Italians have a good eye because it reflects their souls. That's why we make good movies."

I met Sophia for the first time in the salon on the eighth floor — damask-covered walls, a fresco of billow clouds on the ceiling floating above a luxurious blend of antique furniture and lamps, tufted sofas and modern art. Sophia was standing alone in the middle of the large room, and her presence dominated it. She was dressed in a simple silk dress that boldly combined a bright green blouse with a blue skirt, both fitted. She wore no jewelry, no nail polish and no makeup other than on her eyes, which were remarkable, and a touch of lipstick. Her hair was extraordinarily thick and fell in a luxurious cascade around her face to her shoulders. She was taller and thinner than I had anticipated but inexplicably robust, a ripe fullness of breasts and hips. Dark skin, dark eyes, dark hair, offset by dazzling white teeth.

She was nervous and, I thought, a little wary. We talked a bit, her English fluent and her speech direct and uncomplicated. She began to relax after a while, and then I understood that what I had mistaken for wariness was really shyness. Nothing of the self-important movie star about her. Not a touch. I could have been a big-shot producer interviewing her for her first part. We eventually got around to the matter of the book, and I asked her why she wanted one.

"So much has been written about me," she said. "A persistence of books and magazine articles, sometimes with a streak of truth in them, this episode or that, but also filled with distortions and inventions and occasionally malicious cruelties. Not one thing ever written has reflected my own true feelings and emotions and memory of the life I've lived. This very morning, a German paper says I am going blind — one eye is already kaput and the other is dimming fast. A big headline. An Italian magazine says that Carlo and I are living apart and that any day now I will divulge the identity of the new man in my life.

"When they write of my past, there are incredible insinuations of street-walking in Naples and God knows what. I never respond to any of it. What can you say? By protesting or filing suit you simply bring attention to this garbage. Strangely, despite the distortions and lies, I always seem to emerge all right — you wouldn't think it from the gossip they invent, but the press seems to like me. I guess it's what De Sica used to call my 'winning nature.' But about the book — when I finished A Special Day, I had a great sense of fulfillment, of contentment. In this picture I felt a communion in me of all that I ever experienced and learned in making films. What I've found out about some important aspects of life is also in that part. And when it was finished, when I saw it, I felt like I had come to a certain clearing in my life where I could look around and look back and sum things up. So I want to work with someone who is sensitive and can identify with my memories of the passions and tragedies and joys that have been my life."

"It's an enormous amount of work — a book," I said. "The surface, the conveniently recalled, is not enough. A book requires relentless digging into forgotten soil and sometimes exhuming the dead."

"I'm used to that. I have worked hard for everything in my life. Nothing has come easy for me. All the things I've really wanted in my life have required desperate struggle. To survive my beginnings in the slums, to survive starvation, the war (WWII), the destruction of what little home I had, and then to start a career against impossible odds. No one has ever been more rebuffed than I was. Scores of screen tests and each one a disaster. But when I want something I develop a singleness of mind and a physical strength that can carry me through pestilence and fire. As a child, I fought the ravages of war to survive; later, I fought the discouragement of movie people for a career; next, I battled the public prosecutor and the Vatican to get Carlo; and how I fought the brutality of nature and the stupidity of doctors to have children. I have a kind of kinship with adversity. I know how people suffer, as I have suffered, and how many of them give up, succumb to reverses, needlessly die of broken bodies and spirits and hearts. If only they would believe in what they want, and in themselves, and in the possibility of changing their fates.

"I'm not talking about success — about being a superstar and living the life I've led. I really don't care about that, although God knows I'm happy to have been successful. But why I want this book is that I am deeply concerned about the way people judge me as a woman, not what they think of my career. I've always been suspicious of success. You win an Oscar this year, you have a flop next year — but what has that to do with life itself? When I first became a star, whatever that word means, in my immaturity I played the star role to the hilt — flamboyant clothes, jewels, fancy apartment, expensive motor cars — the works. And then one day De Sica straightened me out with a simple observation. Looking me straight in my over-masquered eyes, he said, 'Sophia, you can't paint your way into a believable performance.'

"And now you've reached a point in life when you know who you are and what living is all about."

"No, no! That's the whole point. I am as insecure today as I ever was. Everything any of us have, we can lose. I love Carlo, but he could be unfaithful and have an affair and that would be the end of that. Can any woman be 100-percent sure of her man? My career could take a disastrous turn. For me, insecurity is a motivation to work at what I care about. Who really knows about success? You start with great faith, know your limits, and if you have temperament and drive, you will eventually get somewhere. At the start, I didn't know how far, but I knew somewhere. I've been lucky of course — meeting Carlo changed my life. But luck wasn't all of it. I worked hard; nobody can know how I struggled to change from an ignorant, unattractive peasant into a real actress, and into a valid human being.

"I started life with only one possession, the only valuable possession that a slum child can have — her dreams. Today my greatest pleasures are eating and buying shoes. I starved as a child and went barefoot, and I have never really stopped compensating."

How could a writer resist writing a book about a woman like that?

CAREER HUNTING?

HOW WOMEN OVER 35 SHOULD GO ABOUT IT

By Carrie Carmichael

Your kids are in school all day and don't need mama to care for them when they get home. You are 35-plus and want to go back to work. But you don't want just any job. You think you'd like a career, one that will hold your interest and give you a chance to get ahead. But after years at home, you are afraid — of going back to school, of going out to work, of changing anything at all. What do you do?

The first thing to do is to realize that you are not alone. Joan Larned, who went back to college after a "break" of 25 years, now runs a workshop for women over 35 who want to rejoin the "real" world. "The women in my group range from their late 30's to their early 50's, and they are intimidated. Though going out into the world was hard at 18, it's a darn sight harder over 35." The women share a sense of starting late, of being behind and now being in a terrible hurry. "The women say, 'If I don't find a job this year, it's too late.' They feel guilty about taking time to go to school."

Does this mean you should jump at the first job that comes along? No. Even if you are starting late, you'll have 30 years of work left before retirement. So pick a career you like. More than 80 percent of the people who work in this country don't like what they do. But the career people who really make it, love what they do. They have a "YIPPEE, I get to go to work today" feeling in the morning.

There are expensive aptitude tests you can take, but first interview yourself. Forget you are over 35. Pretend you are back in your school playground, dreaming about what you want to be when you grow up. Make a list of all the things you like to do or think you might like to do. Then list what you do not like to do, like cleaning the oven or selling anything over the phone. List what you are good at. Don't be afraid to brag here. You are talking to yourself. Then put down what you are bad at. Again, be honest. Nobody is making judgments.

Next, write down all the things you like so much you would pay someone to let you do them. Don't be afraid to go a little wild here. We are talking about hopes and dreams, not about reasoned reality. Would you pay to be among works of art all day? Would you pay to fly airplanes, or make exquisite desserts?

Once your preference data is collected, pick about five areas that interest you. Call anyone you know in your fields of interest. Call anyone who might know some one in those fields. Then talk with that person about the work. You want to find out what day-to-day work is really like. That's the advice of Catalyst, a nonprofit organization with nearly 200 affiliates nationwide, that helps women choose, launch and advance their careers. "A woman who hasn't had a job in years has fantasies about what work is like," says Catalyst's Jeannine Green. "Some are terrified of those big office buildings and think there is a mystique to having a job. It is ironic, so many returning women have no idea what goes on in an office all day, even though many of them are married to men who work in offices every day. Of course, they've visited offices, but spent little time there."

Research by turning into a tourist. Many companies run tours of their premises. Call the public-relations departments to find out if they do.

At home, go over your research material and pick your career. Get as much help from friends and relatives as you want, but make the decision yourself. It is your work life, no one else's.

Once you've decided what you want to do, you have to write a resumé. Your resumé should say to anyone who reads it, "I Can Do This Job." Draw on everything you have ever done.

Don't ignore all the skills you used before the children were born and you left the work force. If you were working as a secretary but arranged sales meetings for your boss, or drafted speeches or presentations, write down what you did. Don't label yourself just a secretary.

Include any volunteer work you have done. If you organized the fund-raising fair for the cooperative nursery school, examine what you did; you managed a workforce. If you kept track of the money, you worked as comptroller.

Once you have all the data of your work life down, pare it so it fits on one page. Keep it short. When the resumé is printed, send it to every place and everyone who might have a job for you. Send it out to every company in your chosen field. That's a long shot, but you've nothing to lose but the postage.

The purpose of your resumé is to get you a job interview. Just as you prepared the resumé, practice for your interview. Preparing for a job interview is like rehearsing for a play. It isn't putting on a false front. If you have been between car pool and community committees for years, you have to practice for your new role at work.

When you research where you want to work, notice what the women who look successful are wearing. Then shop for a few appropriate outfits and reserve them for interviews. Be conservative rather than kooky. Wear skirts or suits or dresses. Leave the pants until after you are hired.

You will look more like you are serious about working if you have a tailored, business look. Don't wear jangling or flashy jewelry unless you are interviewing for a job in a sound-and-light show. Wear sensible shoes. If your interviewer wants to take you on a tour of the industrial park and your shoes cripple you at the end of the first corridor, you will not accrue points as a competent woman on the move.

Make sure your hair and makeup are appropriate for your age and your community. Give up the black eye-liner that has circled your eyes for the last 15 years. If your makeup and hair look like yesterday, an employer will not trust you with today's business decisions.

When your props, costumes and makeup are set, move onto learning your lines for the interview.

Pretend you are the interviewer and write down the questions you would ask a person applying for this job. Write down the answers. Make your replies impressive, filled with specifics and using the business vocabulary your interviewer hears at work. Know what "bottom line" means, for example. If the interviewer has to translate from business vocabulary to words you, the returning woman, can understand, your position as outsider will only be reinforced.

A job interview is a time to perform, and either get a chance at a job or lose it. You want to impress upon the interviewer you can do the job that is open.

During the interview, don't apologize for anything, like staying home for as many years as you have or not already having a job. Don't spill out the details of your home life. You risk telling the interviewer more than he or she ever wanted to know. You are there to talk about your job skills. Divorced and separated women do not have to share information about their financial arrangements, such as alimony or child support or what the ex-spouse does for a living. If you are asked, don't get emotional or defensive. Just explain politely that your financial information is private.

If your interviewer asks what child care arrangements you have made for the time you work, say all the details are taken care of (even if they are not). The interviewer really wants to know if your commitments to home and children will get in the way of the job. Indicate they won't. Let the interviewer know you are serious about your career.

You probably will be nervous during the first few interviews. Keep in mind that interviewers want you to be right for the job. Chances are you will not get a job offer after your first interview. Don't let rejection throw you. When you get one "No," move on to the next application and interview. You only need one "Yes."

When you say "Yes" to an offer, you are on your way in your new career. But you may not want to take the first offer. Colleen didn't, and she's glad.

Colleen was offered a job as an office manager at a salary of $24,000 a year when she went back to work in her middle 30's to support herself and her child after her divorce. She had been an office manager before and knew it was well paid, but a dead end. She said, "No, thanks," and took a job matching lawyers with law firms and corporations. Her salary started at $125 a week. Her mother thought she was crazy. Five years later, Colleen admits to making "well over $50,000 a year." She has a mink coat, an expensive car and a house. Colleen is a woman who started late, didn't know exactly what she wanted to do, but took time deciding. She didn't jump at the first offer that came along. For Colleen, being choosy and taking a chance paid off very well. Now it is your turn. FW

Fire-fighting facilities on the French Polynesian island of Bora Bora consist of the Pacific Ocean and a primitive pump and hose or a bucket-passing line of natives — when they can be assembled. Consequently, when Chin Lee's General Store — the only one on the island of 2,500 residents — caught fire last July, the chances of the local fire fighters saving it were about on the order of Marlon Brando appearing to accept an Academy Award or Billy Martin winning the Nobel Peace Prize.

But if Chin Lee had to have a fire, it came at a propitious time. Down the road two miles, several hundred visitors from a distant planet called Hollywood were engaged in destroying a church with an out-of-control gunboat and creating a tidal wave for a new $20 million movie called The Hurricane. When a breathless native appeared, shouting for help, special-effects specialist Joe Day drafted a pump truck and three jeep-loads of his men and careened off down the road, leaving behind a scene that was costing about $10,000 a minute to film.

An hour later, Chin Lee's fire was out and Day and his crew were back in business on the film set. Nobody complained, not even Dino De Laurentiis, the producer of Hurricane, who was paying the freight. You can't buy the kind of goodwill generated by a visitor who saves the only general store on the island.

The Chin Lee episode, however, was a decided switch for the special-effects people who spend much more time destroying than they do saving. In Hurricane — which will finally sink or float on the quality of its special effects — they destroy a church, a governor's mansion, a store, an entire native village, a gunboat and a lot of people — among other things — in some rather imaginative ways.

Take, for example, the scene that was underway when Chin Lee's store caught fire. The script called for the hurricane to break a navy gunboat (standing off the island) loose from its moorings and send it plummeting through a coconut grove — knocking off actor Jason Robards en route — and coming to rest with its prow halfway through the back wall of a church. There the ship does in the priest (played by Trevor Howard) by pinning him to his altar while he is trying to calm a church full of frightened natives.

The ship was built full size on a downhill track that ended at the rear wall (made of breakaway Styrofoam) of the church. Outside, two dump tanks were poised to send almost 5,000 gallons of water — simulating a tidal wave — through the side of the church. This was to happen at the precise moment the gunboat smashed into the rear wall.

There were certain dangers. Since the scene couldn't very well be rehearsed (putting all the broken pieces back together would have taken days), no one could be certain that the cable designed to stop the ship at the altar — before it ploughed into several dozen people — would hold or how devastating the impact of the tidal wave would be on the assembled congregation. Numerous tests in a nearby tank had been run, but until it was actually done, nothing was sure.

WILL HURRICANE BE THE ULTIMATE DISASTER EPIC?

Jason Robards and Mia Farrow struggle to survive the movie's watery climax.

Predictably, however, Joe Day — a stocky, crewcut ex-Seabee — and his partner in this enterprise, a veteran special-effects genius named Glen Robinson, brought the stunt off perfectly. As four cameras recorded the action, the ship careened down the track, smashed through the church and stopped precisely on its mark, just as the tidal wave blew out a side wall and submerged the extras and stunt men working inside. The only casualty was an extra who was bruised by a piece of plaster inadvertently imbedded in the Styrofoam.

The De Laurentiis Hurricane bears only a slight resemblance to its predecessor of 40 years ago — the Jon Hall-Dorothy Lamour epic of the same name. Nobody knows this better than Glen, who worked on the original Hurricane. "It was all done — except for some brief location shooting at Catalina — on the back lot at Paramount," he recalls. "We certainly couldn't get what we got in Bora Bora in a Hollywood studio.

On Bora Bora, Glen found a huge, nearly completed, water tank designed to stage the close-ups for the special effects. He also found some deep concerns.

"Dino was worried about people getting hurt in the tank and the collapsed building," Robinson says. "He just sort of wanted me to look things over."

Robinson stayed for five months.

"The toughest thing on Hurricane," he feels, "was getting the waves the way Dino wanted them and still safe."

The means finally devised, after lengthy experimentation, required four massive dump tanks — each holding between 1,800 and 2,400 gallons — from which enormous, violent cascades of water could be dumped, creating an instant tidal wave. The effect was materially heightened by several fog machines, a half-dozen high-pressure water hoses and three engines once used in Spitfire fighter planes, capable of generating winds up to 120 m.p.h. that churned the water into fearsome walls of destruction.

To find out just how destructive, Robinson and Day conducted tests for many weeks on stunt men in the tanks. They were placed in various depths of water in different places and then hit with waves of varying intensity. By the time the principal actors (Robards, Howard, Mia Farrow, Timothy Bottoms, Max von Sydow) were hit with the deluge (none used doubles), the special-effects men knew exactly how much they could take and how the shock could be best minimized.

Mia Farrow — a tiny, frail-looking woman-child — spent a number of cold, wet nights in the tank. (All the tank shots had to be done at night under artificial light to prevent destructive natural-light reflection.) Dino said admiringly of Farrow, "It doesn't matter if it is dangerous, she does it. She spent night after night in that tank, shivering and shaking. I tell her, 'Mia, go, get out,' but she says, 'No,' and stay."

The only really uneasy moment came when a hanging light, suspended over the tank, broke loose and dangled after being hit by a blast from the wind machines. Although there were both manual and automatic cut-offs that functioned instantly, the people in the tank at the time were uneasily aware that they would have been instantly electrocuted if the light had hit the water live.

A few days after crashing the boat through the church, Joe Day was in charge of blowing over a two-story mansion with his portable hurricane. The afternoon before, while he was checking over his equipment, Day found De Laurentiis — a small, bespectacled, hyperman who took personal charge of virtually everything that happened on Hurricane — unexpectedly at his side. Dino pointed at three towering palm trees and said, "I want those to fall on the house during the storm." Then he departed.

"Falling trees can be damned dangerous, especially if you don't know exactly where they're going," recalls Joe Day, "so I spent most of that night finding the two best coconut choppers on the island. They told me how far to chop into the trees to topple them with cables and how and in what direction they would fall. I had them demonstrate on several trees to make sure I was getting it."

Next day, the dump tanks, wind and fog machines and high-pressure hoses created an instant hurricane that upended the mansion in an orchestration of violent wind and rain and blowing debris. And the palm trees fell precisely on schedule and in precisely the right place, assisted by cables to their tops, out of camera range.

To Joe Day, this was a piece of cake. When he thinks of the really tough special effects, he remembers such numbers as the six weeks he spent on The Exorcist doing the levitation scenes with Linda Blair in a room maintained at 18° below zero so her breath would show. Or keeping the hospital patients in Coma floating long enough for the cameras to roll.

"The biggest challenge in Hurricane," he told me, "was not having the hardware store across the street. We spent months in California planning and buying the stuff we needed because we knew that if we got to Bora Bora missing something, we were sunk."

That Hurricane came in ahead of schedule and on budget would indicate that Day and Robinson bought well. They even had enough left over to put out Chin Lee's fire.

When he mothballs the last wind machine and tears down the last water-dumping device on Bora Bora, Glen Robinson hopes to return to the retirement he was anticipating before the Hurricane call came.

His stature in the business is unchallenged, the kind of position that makes it possible for him to blow one. Joe Day remembers a film on which he was working with Robinson where the car to be destroyed had a dummy at the wheel and was being towed by a cable connected to another car cruising about 70 m.p.h. In the middle of the run, the dummy began to veer sharply off course, headed directly for a group of cameramen filming the scene. Robinson ordered the cable tripped so the car would roll free, far short of the people it was targeting.

The director of the film came running over, wringing his hands. "My God," he asked Robinson, "what'll we do?"

And Robinson told him calmly, "We'll come back here next week and do it all over again."

Remember, when you watch the spectacular special effects in Hurricane this spring that none of them had to be restaged. On Hurricane, Day and Robinson got it right the first time — which is the way they almost always do things. FW

IRISH RECIPES FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

... OR ANY DAY

By Marilyn Hansen

Begorra! Another year has flown by our very eyes, and the calendar and the air tell us that St. Patrick's Day is just around the corner. Never ones to be unprepared for a party or a feast, we have scoured our files for some beguiling Irish recipes designed to charm everyone in your family or round your table.

COCK-A-LEEKIE SOUP

- 1 stewing hen, (4 to 5 lbs.)
- 4 lbs. shin beef, sliced
- 2 bunches leeks, about 12
- 3 qts. cold water
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 cup pitted, ready-to-eat dried prunes

1. Rinse the hen in cold water. Place the hen and beef into a large kettle.
2. Cut off tough green ends of leeks and discard. Wash leeks under cold running water, using point of knife to cut through leaf layers. Carefully rinse away sand.
3. Cut leeks crosswise into 1/2-inch slices. Add to the kettle, along with water, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer 2 1/2 to 3 hours or until chicken and beef are very tender.
4. Remove chicken and beef from broth. Bone chicken, discarding bone, gristle and skin. Cut chicken meat into small pieces; return to broth. Remove bone and fat from beef, discard. Cut beef into small pieces; return to broth.
5. Add ready-to-eat prunes; heat soup to boiling. Taste. Add additional salt and pepper if desired. Serve in large soup bowls accompanied by a crusty loaf and a jar of prepared white horseradish. You'll find that the prunes add a delicious flavor to the broth. Makes about 4 quarts

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE

- 1 4-lb. corned beef brisket
- 1 onion stuck with 2 cloves
- 2 bay leaves
- 2 celery ribs with leaves
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon peppercorns
- 1 lb. carrots, cut in chunks
- 6 to 8 potatoes, peeled and halved
- 1 1/2 lbs. rutabaga, peeled and cut in large wedges
- 6 to 8 small onions
- 1 medium-size head cabbage, cored and cut into wedges
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley

1. Place corned beef, clove-studded onion, bay leaves, celery, salt and peppercorns into a large kettle or Dutch oven. Add water to cover; heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer for 3 hours. Remove celery and clove-studded onion.
2. Add carrots, potatoes, rutabaga and onions; return to boiling; cook for 15 minutes. Add cabbage wedges and cook for 15 to 20 minutes longer or until all vegetables are tender.

3. Arrange meat on a large serving platter; place vegetables around meat. Serve with a good mustard and a pitcher of melted parsley butter. Makes 6 to 8 servings

BRAISED BEEF

- 2 lbs. boneless stew beef, cubed
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil or shortening
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 cup stout, beer or ale
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1/2 lb. carrots, cut in 2-in. chunks
- 2 slices bacon

1. Trim off excess fat from beef cubes. Heat oil in flameproof oven-to-table baking dish.
2. Add bay leaves and beef cubes to hot oil. Brown cubes well on all sides.
3. When beef is almost all browned, add the onion and cook, stirring frequently until onion is golden. Add the flour and mix into the meat and onion combination.
4. Add stout, water, salt, pepper, parsley and carrots.
5. Arrange bacon strips over all. Cover baking dish and place in preheated 325°F. oven and bake for about 2-2 1/2 hours or until meat is tender. Makes 6 servings

YOU CAN WIN $100 FOR YOUR RECIPE!

We are so pleased with the overwhelming success of our Neighbors' Recipe Exchange that we are now introducing a contest for the best entries and will offer prizes of $100, $50 and $25. 2. Peel, core and chop apples. Stir in lemon juice and blackberry jam.
3. Fill lined tart pans with fruit mixture. Top each tart with 1/2 teaspoon butter. Place filled tart pans on cookie sheet.
4. Bake tarts about 30 to 40 minutes or until filling is bubbly, pastry light gold.
5. Cool tarts on wire rack; loosen from pans with tip of small knife; invert. Serve plain or with a small dollop of whipped cream in the center. Makes about 8 tarts

BARM BRACK

- 7 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cup sugar, divided
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1 pkg. (15 ozs.) raisins
- 1 1/4 cups currants
- 1/2 cup candied orange peel or citron
- 1 teaspoon grated orange or lemon rind
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/4 cup boiling water

1. Sift together flour, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt and 3/4 cup sugar into large bowl.
2. Heat milk and water together in saucepan until very warm. Pour half of this mixture into small bowl and dissolve yeast in it. Add 1/4 cup sugar; stir.
3. Add butter to remaining milk and water combination; heat until butter is almost completely melted.
4. Combine dissolved yeast mixture, butter mixture and eggs. Stir combined liquids into flour mixture. Beat well with large spoon for several minutes. The batter should be stiff but elastic.
5. Stir in the raisins, currants, orange peel and orange rind; mix well. Cover bowl with a clean dish towel and allow to rise in a warm place until the batter has doubled in bulk.
6. Heavily grease two 9 x 5 x 3-in. loaf pans. Divide batter between the two pans; press lightly with fingers to fill corners.
7. Cover pans with waxed paper and then the dish towel. Allow to rise again for about one hour or until the batter has risen to the top of the pans.
8. Place pans on a rack in the center of a preheated 375°F. oven and bake for about 50 minutes or until tops of loaves are a deep golden brown.
9. Remove loaves from oven and glaze quickly, using pastry brush, with mixture of 2 tablespoons sugar dissolved in 1/4 cup boiling water. Return loaves to oven for about 3-4 minutes, just to set glaze.
10. Loosen loaves from pans with sharp knife; turn out onto wire rack to cool completely.
11. Cut with serrated knife and serve with butter. Makes two large loaves

SOUSED MACKEREL

- 2 to 3 lbs. mackerel, split and cleaned, with heads removed but tails left on
- 2 onions, peeled and thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 1/2 teaspoon peppercorns
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme leaves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup white or cider vinegar
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

1. Rinse mackerel in cold running water. Arrange fish in shallow glass or ceramic baking dish.
2. Scatter onion, parsley, bay leaves, cinnamon stick, peppercorns, thyme and salt over fish.
3. Heat cider, water and lemon juice to boiling; pour over the fish. Place fish in oven and bake for 30 to 35 minutes in preheated 350°F. oven.
4. Cover with plastic film and refrigerate fish for several hours, preferably overnight. Serve with bread and tea at lunch or at dinner with boiled potatoes and beer. Makes 4 to 6 servings

BLACKBERRY APPLE TARTS

- Pastry for 2-crust, 9-inch pie, your own or a mix
- 1 jar (12 ozs.) blackberry or raspberry jam
- 2 greening or other tart apples
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Butter or margarine

1. Make up pastry and use to line about 8 medium-size tart pans.

THE POWER OF COLORFUL THINKING

By Isobel Silden

Crystal Gayle won a Grammy Award for singing Don't It Make My Brown Eyes Blue, but according to color psychologists, she and her songwriters

Blue is a happy color! It indicates calmness, loyalty, peace and harmony. Blaming blue Monday for depression or singing I Get the Blues When it Rains is really giving a good color a bum rap.

The psychology of color is not new. Dr.

Max Luscher, a Swiss scientist, first presented his Color Test in 1947 to an international medical conference in Lausanne. Since that time it has been used by physicians, psychologists and marriage counselors, among other professionals, to serve as an "early warning system" for such ailments as heart trouble, strokes, upset stomachs and emotional disturbance.

There is now a new approach to the use of color: breathing in color.

Linda Clarke and Yvonne Martine, authors of Health, Youth and Beauty Through Color Breathing, advocate visualizing specific colors to cope with certain situations. For example, if you think pink, you might get rid of some wrinkles by breathing evenly as you think of the color and the area from which you want them to disappear. It might be compared to film star Cary Grant's oft-repeated secret of staying fit: "I think thin."

According to Clark and Martine, these are the think-and-breathe colors to resolve your predicaments:

Orange removes pain, but doesn't cure it. Dark blue tinged with green will help mend bones. Grass-green is good for financial success, providing the breather qualifies it with this phrase, "According to the will of the Father," and if you don't want the money for illegal means.

Pale green improves vision. Medium green changes one's personality. Purple cleanses physical and emotional disturbances. Pale orchid helps achieve spiritual attunement. A deep pinkish rose helps create loving rapport with others.

On a more scientific level, experiments have proven color does have a profound effect on our lives. Toy manufacturers have learned that red and blue packaging sells faster than green. All shades of green formerly were banned from the interiors of airplanes because of their connotation with biliousness and upset stomachs. No more. You'll see plenty of green in aircraft now. "Fast food" restaurants use plenty of red, pink and orange because such "hot" colors speed up appetites. Sugar manufacturers will not sell their product if they're in green boxes: its connotation is astringent. But blue is associated with sweetness.

The Luscher color test is a "deep" psychological test, the results of which must be translated by trained professionals. One's selection of colors in this test is as eerie as fortune-telling, and infinitely more reliable.

Example: I was given the test in late 1973, following a sudden career change, cancer surgery and a collapsing marriage. Before starting to write this article, I checked with the psychologist who had administered the test. The findings in 1973 indicated: I had to prove my self-worth and improve my image. I was emotionally withdrawn, needed security, felt isolated, I was going nowhere and wanted to escape.

The test was given again in 1978 to verify its validity.

It showed that I am successful, enthusiastic, optimistic, willing to become involved with other people now and independently control my own destiny.

True, all true. I am now happily single, have a new and successful free-lance writing career, and, for whatever it's worth, my favorite colors now are yellow, orange and red. Skilled and trained interpretation of that information proved infinitely more accurate than my horoscope in this morning's paper!

ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTE ZOYSIA!

DON'T BE MISLED
There is Only One Amazoy
 Amazoy plugs are taken from genuine Meyer Z-52 Zoysia... guaranteed winter-hardened for 3 full years under the supervision of trained agronomists. Over a HALF-BILLION plugs sold (outsells the others 10 to 1)! So don't take chances with inferior plugs. Accept No Substitute for Amazoy Zoysia! If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

GRASS SEED WILL NEVER GROW A LAWN LIKE THIS—DROUGHT & WEAR RESISTANT! Amazoy lawns take cook-outs, parties. Children playing on it won't hurt it or themselves! Stays green right thru scorching heat and drought!

Lady Plugs in Genuine Amazoy Saves Time, Work and Money!

EARLY BIRD SPECIAL! ORDER NOW AND GET UP TO 600 PLUGS FREE!

by Jack T. Johnson, Agronomist

After 24 years of covering the lawns of America—coast to coast, border to border—Amazoy Zoysia could expect imitators to come into the market seeking to profit with a substitute grass.

Amazoy is the Trade Mark Registered U.S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass

We plant, cultivate, harvest and package Amazoy Zoysia according to a method so clever, so unique that we have applied for a patent to prevent anyone from copying it. Consumers' protective agencies constantly warn consumers. "Be sure you're getting the brand you're paying for; watch out for bait and switch people." So look for the name Amazoy (T.M. Reg. U.S. Patent Office) if you want the real thing—the world's best known Zoysia grass—Amazoy.

Our pre-cut plugs look different, are different. They are deep-rooted, winter-hardy plugs produced exclusively for transplanting from our fields into your lawn. They are guaranteed to grow there regardless of soil or climate. Why take chances with an untried grass? There really is no substitute.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn "... is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I never watered it, only when I put the plugs in. Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

Wonderful? Yes, Amazoy Zoysia grass IS wonderful! Plant it now and like Mrs. Mitter, you'll cut mowing by 2/3rds... never have another weed problem all summer long the rest of your life!

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn—nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

These represent but 2 of thousands of happy Zoysia owners. Their experiences show that you, too, can grow a lawn from part-shade to full sun, and it will stay green and beautiful thru blistering heat, water bans—even drought!

PERFECT FOR SLOPES

If slopes are a problem, plug in Amazoy and let it stop erosion. Or plug it into hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas, etc.

CUTS YOUR WORK—SAVES YOU MONEY

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement... ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3rds.

FREE! PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER EXCLUSIVE WITH AMAZOY

This growth-producing 2-way Plugger is free with orders of 500 plugs or more. Saves bending, time, work. Cuts away competing weeds and growth at the same time it digs holes for plugs. Invaluable for making your own plugs for transplanting. Rugged, yet so light a woman can use it.

WEAR RESISTANT

When America's largest University tested 13 leading grasses for wear resistance, such as foot scuffing, the Zoysia (matrella and japonica Meyer Z-52) led all others.

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cook-outs, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it—or themselves.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick, rich, luxurious, established Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long! It will NOT winter-kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring—a true perennial!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS

Now's the time to order your Zoysia plugs—to get started on a lawn that will choke out crabgrass and weeds all summer long and year after year.

Plug it into an entire lawn or limited "problem areas". Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil", clay or sandy soils—even salty beach areas, and I guarantee it to grow!

PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checker-board style.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER-KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT-KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely.

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builders soil", clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug, regardless. Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product!

YOUR OWN SUPPLY OF PLUG TRANSPLANTS

Your established Amazoy lawn provides you with Zoysia plugs for other areas as you may desire.

NO SEED, NO SOD

Do not mistake Amazoy pre-cut plugs for sod or seed of any type of grass. There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass carries with it the same problems as seed—such as weeds, diseases, frequent mowing, burning out, etc.

FREE UP TO 600 PLUGS

Just for Ordering Now!

More than a HALF-BILLION of our Zoysia plugs have been sold. Our Early Bird Bonus Plug Offer means clear savings to you. Don't take another chance with lawn disappointment. Order Amazoy today.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Gov't., released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day grass is taken from the soil, shipping/handling charge collect via most economical means.

Movie Actor Reveals Amazing New Weight Loss Breakthrough!

— Dateline Hollywood
(By John Berry
Special Feature Writer)

A fast (very fast!) new way to lose weight has been discovered by a man who is not a scientist or doctor. He's not even a college graduate. Strangely enough, he is an actor. His name is Frank Downing. You may have seen him in MGM's hit movie "Coma." He played Kelly the maintenance man who was brutally electrocuted.

Last October during the shooting of the film, he weighed 225 pounds. His waist measured 49 inches and he was a prime candidate for a heart attack. His blood vessels and arteries were clogged with fat. His cholesterol level was way too high and his blood pressure was a dangerous 160/120. The doctors said he was a walking time bomb ready to explode. He faced the very real possibility of dropping over dead at any moment.

All that is hard to believe when you see him now. Today he looks slim and healthy. His weight is down to 180 pounds and he is still losing. He moves with an easy grace. The doctors can hardly believe his improvement. His cholesterol level is normal and his blood pressure is a perfect 120/80. At the time "Coma" was made, he couldn't walk half a mile without getting out of breath. Now he can run six miles without stopping! His waist measures only 36 inches and he has the happy problem of needing a new wardrobe.

I went with Frank to the West Coast premiere of "Coma" and it was a strange experience. It was hard to believe that the man sitting beside me and the man on the screen were one and the same.

After the movie, we went to Chasen's, the famous Beverly Hills restaurant. It was there over coffee that I began this interview.

THE HOLLYWOOD EMERGENCY DIET

already spreading like wildfire here in Hollywood."

Question: "Let's go on. Tell me about some of the other features of your new diet."

Answer: "Well, John, this diet has one more surprise ingredient. I learned about this special food from reading a book written by the late Adele Davis. As you know, she was a highly respected world famous nutritionist. She said that all sick people, all people with high blood cholesterol and all overweight people need this special food."

Question: "Why? What is this special food anyway?"

Answer: "It is a natural source of organic iodine, calcium, potassium and various trace minerals. This is a food substance that increases the amount of calories your body burns each day, thereby allowing you to eat more without weight gain."

"... On this diet you can lose weight so fast your friends will think you have given up eating altogether. Of course, I am prejudiced but I think this is the fastest diet on earth. You can start measuring the difference in your waistline within 24 hours ..."

Question: "O.K., Frank, tell me about this 'secret' diet of yours and your new book. What's it all about, anyway?"

Answer: "Well, John, the diet is not secret anymore. I have described it completely in the book. As you know, the book is entitled "The Hollywood Emergency Diet" and it is all about the fastest way in the world to lose weight and keep it off."

Question: "That's an interesting title. Why do you call it "The Hollywood Emergency Diet?"

Answer: "Because in Hollywood, if you are an actor or an actress, being overweight can be a downright emergency. Out here it actually costs money to be fat! I'm not kidding! Many times the casting director will say — "Lose weight, or lose the part!"

Question: "I can see your point. But what about the diet itself? How is it different from any other diet?"

Answer: "First of all, this is a very, very fast diet. It literally burns off fat by the hour. On this diet, you can lose weight so fast your friends will think you have given up eating altogether. Of course, I am prejudiced but I think this is the fastest diet on earth. You can actually start measuring the difference in your waistline within 24 hours."

Question: "How much weight have you lost all together?"

Answer: "So far I have lost 55 pounds and I have only been on the diet seven and one-half weeks."

Question: "That's pretty fast. What else is different about your new diet?"

Answer: "There's no hunger. This diet brings hunger to a dead full stop. As a matter of fact, this diet has a surprise ingredient that makes it almost metabolically impossible for you to experience hunger."

Question: "What is this 'surprise ingredient'?"

Answer: "It's a natural food substance that looks and tastes exactly like table sugar except that it is a little sweeter. I use it in my coffee or mix it with a little fruit juice and it knocks out my appetite for hours."

Question: "Is it safe?"

Answer: "Yes, it is. Remember, this is a food, not a drug. As a matter of fact, it is much better for your system than ordinary table sugar because it does not induce an insulin response. It also has a soothing effect on jangled nerves and it promotes a sense of well-being."

Question: "That sounds almost too good to be true. How come I haven't ever heard about this before?"

Answer: "Actually, John, this food substance has been widely used in Europe for years. It's just starting to catch on over here. I predict that after my book comes out every fat person in the country will start to use it. It's Question: "Wow! That's pretty amazing! Forgive me for asking this question again, but is it safe?"

Answer: "You bet. My whole diet plan is safe. It's probably much safer than the way you eat right now. Never again will I take a chance with my health. Believe me I have learned from personal experience that it is just not worth it. Anyway, it is not necessary. You can lose weight fast with my diet, plus get healthier every day you stay on it."

Question: "You've really got me curious now. Are there any more 'surprises' in this new diet of yours?"

Answer: "Yes, there are, but I don't want to give them all away in this interview. Naturally, I want people to go out and buy the book."

Question: "Fair enough. But how about giving my readers some clues as to what to expect when they read the book?"

Answer: "O.K. As I've already said, this is a very fast working, no-hunger diet. But this is not only a weight loss diet. It is a health diet also. Not only that — this is a high energy diet. It turns body fat into body fuel. After about three or four days on this diet, your energy will begin to increase quite a bit. It will increase every day till about the 10th or 11th day when it starts to level off. At least that's the way it has worked for me and some of my close friends. I now have about twice as much energy as I did before I went on the diet."

Another nice thing is that on this diet, you actually lose weight automatically. You don't have to think about it all the time. Half the time I don't even remember that I'm on a diet until I step on the scales.

But what I like best of all is that it is so simple. It is easy to follow even if you eat out a lot. You don't count calories or grams or carbohydrates or anything else. The only thing I bother to keep track of is how much weight I lose every day."

Question: "It sounds like you've really come up with something good. Where can I get a copy of the book?"

Answer: "The book will be available in about seven days. It will be sold by mail by a New Jersey publishing company called The Millburn Book Corporation. Later on we're going to put it in all the bookstores and I'm planning a nationwide tour to promote the book and the diet. Maybe I'll get lucky and get on the Johnny Carson show or Merv Griffin. Who knows?"

In the meantime, John, since you are paying for dinner, I'm going to arrange to get you an advance copy."

Question: "Thank you. I can't wait to read it. I've enjoyed this interview and I wish you the best of luck."

This is a publicity photo of Frank Downing taken before he went on the Hollywood Emergency Diet. At the time this picture was taken Frank weighed 225 pounds and his waist measured as he says "a ghastly 49 inches."

Well, that was the end of my interview with Frank Downing which took place two weeks ago. Since then I have read the book and gone on the diet myself. Frankly, I am amazed. I never dreamed losing weight could be so fast and easy. So far I've been losing at the rate of one and one-half pounds per day and I'm never hungry. As a matter of fact, anytime I plan to go out for supper, I have to remember not to take any of Frank's no-hunger food secret or else I won't be able to eat. There are many surprises in the book which were not covered in the interview. Here are a few of them:

- A beauty secret used by many Hollywood stars that can make you look and feel up to 10-15 years younger in only four days. (This does not involve exercise or cosmetics. Frank has written an entire chapter about this technique. The title of the chapter is "The Greatest Beauty Secret in the World!")
- A simple exercise that does for your face what a good girdle does for your figure.
- A "wonder food" that works like powdered heat and makes your inner furnace break down body fat.
- Three reasons why you should never count calories.
- How to wake up a "sleepy" thyroid gland.
- A special food to eat at night that lets you lose weight while you sleep.
- How to look slim before you are slim.
- A 5-second exercise that gets rid of a double chin.
- How to let nature give you a natural face lift while you sleep.
- Six foods that give you an emotional lift.
- A certain law you must obey for every pound you take off if you want to keep it off.
- A new way to dissolve and melt away hard clumps of fat and wash them out of your body.
- How to make six different liquid-will power drinks that will stop hunger for hours.
- Why you can lose more weight on this diet than if you ran 70 miles per week!

- A simple secret that makes it possible for you to stay on this or any diet for life and never be uncomfortable with it.
- The seven best stay-young health secrets used by Hollywood stars.
- How Hollywood stars stop the aging process.
- How to command your hypothalamus gland to stop sending hunger signals.

There's a lot more. All in all, I think this is the most amazing diet book I have ever read. It contains many secrets I never even dreamed existed. Frank really did his homework when he wrote this book. He must have done an enormous amount of research to come up with so many breakthrough ideas. If you have a weight problem, I strongly urge you to get a copy of this book as soon as possible. Right now it is available only by mail. Here's how you can read the book and try out the diet without any risk at all:

Go ahead and order the book by mail. Keep it 30 days and check it out. Then if you are unhappy with it, send it back and the publisher will return your entire payment to you quietly and without question.

If you are extra skeptical, I suggest you post-date your check or money order by 30 days. If you do this, the publisher promises and guarantees not to deposit it for at least that amount of time. Then if you decide to return the book, he will send back your uncashed check or money order with no questions asked.

To order, write your name and address and the words "Hollywood Emergency Diet" on a piece of paper and send it with $10.00 to:

The Millburn Book Corporation
Dept. FW-3, P.O. Box 1013
343 Millburn Ave.
Millburn, New Jersey 07041

Your book will be sent promptly by return mail. If you have any questions, you can call (201) 744-3777. Checks and money orders should be made payable to The Millburn Book Corporation. (It is not a good idea to mail cash.)

TONSILLECTOMIES MAY BE DANGEROUS TO YOUR HEALTH

By Paula Dranov

For generations of children, having a tonsillectomy was a routine part of growing up — almost as predictable as the first visit from the tooth fairy. It's only recently that medical thinking about tonsils has changed. Taking them out is no longer viewed as a means of protecting children from colds and sore throats. In fact, except in serious cases of tonsillitis, it may do more harm than good.

Over the years, medical research has established that people whose tonsils have been removed are more susceptible to colds than those who still have them. In fact, it now appears that far from being the unnecessary clumps of tissues it once was thought they were, tonsils are very necessary, indeed. They enhance the body's ability to defend itself against diseases far more serious than the occasional cold, illnesses like Hodgkin's disease, polio and multiple sclerosis.

The tonsils are part of the lymphatic system that plays a major role in protecting us from invading organisms. Although doctors don't completely understand how the system works, they theorize that the build-up of lymphatic tissues in the tonsils during childhood indicates that it is at this stage of life that we face the major threats of infectious diseases — even those that don't make their presence felt until years later. Lymphatic tissue also appears in the appendix, the thymus and the spleen.

One of the first clues scientists got as to the importance of the tonsils came out of a study of the victims of Hodgkin's disease, a progressive and fatal enlargement of the lymph nodes, spleen and general lymphoid tissues. Before beginning their study, researchers already knew that having had an appendectomy increases the risk of developing Hodgkin's disease. They figured that if removal of one organ in which lymphoid tissues appear was associated with the onset of the disease, removal of the tonsils might be, too. They found that more than 60 percent of the patients with Hodgkin's disease in the study had had their tonsils removed, while less than 40 percent of healthy patients in a control group had had the operation.

Still another study focused on children's susceptibility to polio — now preventable with immunization — and found that having tonsils removed appears to cut down on the body's ability to secrete polio virus antibodies. What's more, the reduction of the antibodies in the nasopharynx when tonsils are gone may mean that viruses can pass directly to the brain. If this is true of polio viruses, researchers reason, it also may be true of other viruses that attack nerve tissues.

The idea that tonsillectomies may figure in the occurrence of multiple sclerosis — a disease of the nervous system — comes from a study showing that patients with the illness had a significantly higher rate of tonsillectomies than their healthy brothers, sisters or mates. The theory is that the disease may be triggered by an infective agent that originates outside the body and invades during childhood, years before the onset of the disease.

And, as far as the common cold is concerned, studies have shown that people who still have their tonsils are much more able to avoid colds than those who have them removed.

These findings have had an enormous impact on the rate of tonsillectomies in the United States. In 1967, for instance, more than one million operations were done, but, by 1977, the number had fallen to 617,000. And tonsillectomies, once the most common surgical procedure in the country, now rank third, a sure sign that doctors today are much more reluctant than they used to be to recommend removing children's tonsils at the first sign of a sore throat. FW

From The Fabled Great Wall of China Comes

ONE OF THE FASTEST GROWING SHADE TREES IN EXISTENCE—

The Beautiful Oriental Shady Lady

(Ulmus)

INCREDIBLE INTRODUCTORY OFFER!

AS LOW AS 99¢ each (in lots of six)

THE SHADY LADY... she's lovely, she's shapely... but she's no fragile flower... she's a tough cookie and knows her way around the world! The SHADY LADY's a direct descendant of the rugged superhardy trees that flourished around the northernmost reaches of the Great Wall of China, right by the Siberian border—amazingly weathering the killer blizzards and vicious ice storms of that brutal mountainous wilderness where only the strong survive! In fact, visiting foreigners were so struck by the great beauty and incredibly fast growth of this most remarkable tree amidst such frozen desolation that they brought the SHADY LADY across the Pacific to America!

ZOOMS UP A PHENOMENAL 10 FT. IN ONLY ONE SEASON!

YOU'RE IN FAST COMPANY WITH THE SHADY LADY! Before you know it, you'll be lazing in a hammock, reveling in the cooling, extravagant shade this magnificent tree will provide! You literally plant the SHADY LADY and ignore her! Yes, without making any demands on you, the SHADY LADY will spring up to 10 ft. in a single season, cloaking herself in a luxurious growth of large, rich dark green leaves... her spreading branches and curvaceous limbs forming the most alluring silhouette in your entire landscape! And due no doubt to her harsh upbringing, the SHADY LADY is virtually immune to deadly tree-diseases like phloem necrosis and Dutch Elm—thrives in any soil at any climate condition from harsh and wet to bone dry!

Act Now... Take Advantage of This Unprecedented FIRST TIME OFFER!

Because we feel this tree is so fantastic, we have made special arrangements for a large quantity purchase and are making this SPECIAL FIRST TIME OFFER TO YOU AT INCREDIBLY LOW PRICES! The call came in about 5:30 p.m. "We've got a bomb on the 20th floor of the Amtorg Building," the precinct sergeant said. "That's on Madison."

"I'll be there in 10 minutes," answered Wes Somerville, a detective in the New York City Police Department's bomb squad. As Somerville weaved through rush-hour traffic with a siren wailing, his mind raced. "Amtorg Building," he mumbled to himself, trying to visualize the site. Then he remembered. The Russian Trade Center was located there. Probably some terrorist group, he thought.

Somerville pushed his way through the crowd gathered outside the building entrance.

"Boy, that was some blast," an officer said on his arrival.

"You mean the bomb already has gone off?" Somerville asked.

"About five minutes ago," the officer replied. "It was inside an attaché case apparently. Blew a hole through the ceiling, shattered windows, tore a chunk out of the concrete stairwell and demolished some office furniture. But no one was hurt. We had cleared the area."

Somerville took an elevator to the 18th floor. There, amidst a veil of smoke and dust and ankle-deep in rubble, he began a meticulous search for bomb fragments, sections of wiring, parts of a timing device, scraps of an attaché case — anything. Even the most insignificant-looking bits and pieces, when examined and reconstructed by experts, can yield telltale clues, often leading to the person who built and placed the bomb.

Somerville's search was interrupted shortly after it began by another officer.

"We've found another one on the 20th floor," he said, breathlessly. "It's another attaché case, and it's placed in the same location, just outside a door in the firewall."

Somerville dashed up the stairs two at a time and ordered the corridor cleared of firemen and policemen. Alone, he moved quickly to the case. He felt he had little time because the other bomb apparently had been attached to a timing device set to go off at a certain prearranged time.

He knelt down by the case, carefully inspecting its exterior. There is a saying among bomb squads that when a member is bent over a bomb, the only boss he has is God. At this point, there is no set rule book to follow and no superior officer's orders to carry out. Somerville was relying solely on his own skill, instinct and judgment, based on years of training and experience.

Gingerly, he unlatched the case and lifted the lid. Inside, he found a yellow towel covering the contents. He removed it and sucked in his breath at what he saw underneath. There were four large sticks of dynamite and a small household timer, much like one used to time boiling eggs. There also was a metal box with wires connected to sticks of dynamite.

Somerville instinctively cut a wire running from the metal box to the dynamite. Next, he deactivated the still-ticking timing device and removed the blasting cap from the dynamite. As he lifted the lid of the metal box, a tiny light flicked on. He cut more wires and the light went out.

Hours later Somerville and his fellow officers studied the contents of the case. They learned it was an electric blast-timing device wired to the dynamite, scheduled to go off as the light in the metal box came on. Had Somerville not clipped wires before he opened the box, the device would have exploded. He estimates he cut the wires two seconds before the light went on!

For Wes Somerville, it was just another day's work. He is one of a thin line of explosives experts who ply one of the world's loneliest and most dangerous professions — that of a bomb squad member.

Across the nation these nerveless specialists, who admit that each time they answer a call they are "matching wits with madmen," daily risking their lives to protect others.

As explosive components become easier to obtain, bombing incidents increase.

The FBI reports, for example, that there were 613 bombings all over the United States during the first six months of 1978, causing $5.6 million in damages, up sharply from the same period the previous year. In 1977, the last full year such statistics are available, 112 people were killed, hundreds of others injured from bombings and explosions.

While terrorists have historically earmarked explosive and incendiary devices as a most effective means of publicizing their radical views, bombs are most often the weapons of disgruntled individual citizens seeking to demonstrate their vengeance against personal enemies," according to the FBI.

Bureau reports show that the highest number of bombings occur in private residences, closely followed by commercial operations (office buildings and stores), vehicles and schools.

To help combat this onslaught of explosive incidents, bomb squad members use a variety of sophisticated equipment, and, sometimes, trained animals. If a bomb is hidden in a building, for instance, searchers may use dogs because of their superior sense of smell. They can sniff out dynamite, TNT, composition plastic and black powder. And they can smell these explosives through packages, briefcases, doors, walls and other objects. A trained dog can cover a 50-yard corridor filled with lockers in less than two minutes, whereas a man would take 15 minutes or longer, even if all the lockers could be opened.

Bomb squad "tools" may include electric stethoscopes for detecting hidden clocks and other time-fuse devices; special tongs that can be manipulated by remote control from the end of long cables to tear apart suspected containers; and glass knives for slicing through the electrical wiring of bombs without sparking the circuitry and setting off an explosion.

Many city bomb squads have their own customized trucks or vans equipped with heavy steel-mesh bomb blankets for smothering blasts. Some also have tanks in which bombs can be immersed in thick lubricating oil to clog and jam whirring parts of clocks and other mechanisms.

"How do we select bomb squad personnel? He can't be a worry wart," says Sergeant Terence McTigue, a 20-year veteran of the New York City squad. "What we look for is a level-headed person who's cautious, mechanically inclined.

The trick, McTigue says, is to concentrate on the technical aspects of the work rather than on the danger. "You suppress the fear because if you're only thinking about getting your tail blown off, then you're not going to do the job right."

Al Gleason, an explosives expert with the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, who was a bomb squad member for 21 years, says it is a job of instant decisions. "You have to decide whether to move the bomb for detonation at an isolated location or dismantle it on the spot. Is it a time-device activated bomb or will it explode when moved or opened? Is the bomb pressure sensitive? Do you clip wires indiscriminately or deactivate in a planned sequence?"

All these decisions must be made on the spot, says Gleason, often when every second can mean the difference between life and death.

Under such intense pressure, what motivates these special men? Most of them find their work exciting and challenging. But the overriding reason bomb squad members have chosen such an unusual and dangerous profession, they say, is the fact that they are saving lives.

"This is more important than any other consideration," says Wes Somerville. "It's something we take a lot of pride in. It makes all the hazards and fears we deal with seem worthwhile."

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Never Too Late — For Exercise

Think you've been an armchair athlete for too long to start a program of active exercise? Not so says a recent Pennsylvania State University study, which reports that even when started relatively late in life, exercise can reduce heart rate, blood pressure and "fat weight."

The evidence developed from a study of the effects of physical conditioning on women aged 29 to 47 who had not exercised previously. The women, almost two-thirds of whom were overweight, walked or ran on a treadmill four times a week for 12 weeks as well as doing calisthenics and other activities.

When the program ended, the average heart rate while walking or jogging was six-to-eight-beats per minute lower among participants. At-rest blood pressure was lowered most dramatically among the overweight. And most of the participants lost "fat weight."

After the study, the director concluded, "It became clear that the physical condition of both lean and overweight women can be improved with even a moderate amount of organized physical activity."

So, what are you waiting for?

Troubled Bridges Over Waters

London Bridge may be falling down, but so are at least 7,000 bridges in the United States says a Brigham Young University professor.

"A recent survey funded by the federal government and conducted by highway departments in each of the 50 states has revealed that at least 7,000 bridges currently in use in the United States are deficient," laments D. Allan Firmage, a professor of civil engineering. And in addition to these, Firmage says, the highway departments' study also found 27,000 bridges to be inadequate because they are too narrow or have hazardous approaches.

Since the study was limited to bridges on a federal-aid system, Firmage points

Candidly Speaking

Have you ever turned red when your child told an overweight person he was fat or innocently repeated a remark that you didn't want someone else to hear? If so, you have lots of company; most children go through a stage in which out there may be thousands of additional unsafe bridges in the country.

How have so many bridges become dangerous?

In addition to natural disintegration, many of the bridges in use today are in trouble because they were designed in the 1920's and 30's for much lighter loads than they now carry. Also, the steel used at that time is less resistant to corrosion than the steel today. And salts used for de-icing do a lot of damage.

To prevent eventual collapse of many of the bridges, Firmage recommends thorough periodic inspections to detect cracks and corrosion before an emergency develops.

What Makes A Cop

Although many little boys — and now little girls — may say they want to be police officers when they grow up, few parents view themselves as raising future cops. "But many parents raising their children to be doctors and lawyers are doing the exact things they would be doing if raising a future policeman was their objective," says Dennis Gundersen of the University of Alabama, who has conducted research on what makes a policeman.

"In general, with the exception that police officers are usually physically bigger than the average person, they are just like everyone else," says Gundersen, they're likely to make or repeat tactless comments says Lois Bakawa-Evenson, an Iowa State University extension specialist in human development and family life. But it's important to handle these situations properly says Evenson, who has a 2½ year old son herself, so as not to confuse the child.

"When embarrassing moments happen, most people's initial response is to try to explain them away to save face," Evenson says. "Instead, you have to think of how this might look to the child and remember that your relationship with him or her comes first." For instance, Evenson observes it will be confusing to the child if you try to deny a remark he knows you've made. After all, you are teaching him to tell the truth, and now it appears you are lying.

If an embarrassing moment occurs, Evenson advises taking it in stride and not becoming too upset. And to prevent some future flareups, it helps to think carefully before you say something in front of the youngster. "Children tend to soak up a lot more than we sometimes realize," she says.

who is deputy director of the school's Law Enforcement Academy. "This is a healthy sign," he continues. "After all, police officers deal all the time with the general public. If they were different, I expect many more problems would arise."

Gundersen believes that uniforms are partly to blame for public stereotypes about the police. "Like most uniformed services, policemen are stereotyped," Gundersen says. "Many people see them as mobile blue furniture."

Police work is also a lot more routine than the public thinks, Gundersen points out. He notes that only 5-10 percent of the officers' time is spent enforcing the law: "Like the average worker, a police officer must learn personnel skills, office management, interviewing techniques and conflict management."

If that sounds like just another job — in many ways it is.

Lifestyles

Drinking. How does your alcohol consumption compare with the national average? According to statistics released by the Commerce Department, the average American drinks 22.4 gallons of beer, 1.85 gallons of wine and two gallons of hard liquor a year. All in all, it takes $12.4 billion a year to quench the nation's thirst for alcoholic beverages.

Jobs. If you think that working rotating shifts is driving you crazy, you might be right. A recent study of hospital workers by the Center for Research on Stress and Health in Menlo Park, Calif., found that those who worked rotating shifts — days one week, afternoons the next and nights on the third — were much more likely to develop physical and emotional problems.

Television. Sooner or later, everyone falls in love — sooner, in the case of the 13-year-old heroine of the NBC television movie, Sooner or Later, which will be shown on March 25 (8:00 p.m. Eastern and Western, 7:00 p.m. Central). Adult viewers will empathize with TV parents Barbara Feldon and Judd Hirsch, who feel their "baby" is growing up too fast; teens will enjoy the film's excellent soft rock score. And Rex Smith, the real-life rock musician who stars as the other half of the young couple, is likely to win more than a few hearts with his performance.

Old Brands Not Missed.

—National Smoker Study

Research shows 14 out of 15 MERIT smokers not looking back.

Low tar MERIT has proven that it delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but can it satisfy smokers long-term? A nationwide research effort confirms it.

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an “easy switch” from high tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

And in interviews conducted

Kings: 8 mg "tar," 0.6 mg nicotine—
100's: 11 mg "tar," 0.7 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report May '78

among current high tar smokers:

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT. This ability to satisfy former high tar smokers over a long period of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is the first real taste alternative for high tar smokers.

EXTRA HUGE STRAWBERRIES

Next Summer!

25 for $2²⁵ (50 for $ 3.75)
(100 for $ 5.95)
(200 for $10.95)

The last time you picked strawberries — or bought them — how many did it take to make a quart? Eighty? One hundred? More? Regular strawberries are so small — most people lose count! But with this hardy variety, you can expect quarts FROM JUST 30 STRAWBERRIES! And these extra-sweet berries are highly disease resistant, they ripen very fast, plus they produce lots of new runners to give you a bigger patch every year! Have wonderful big strawberries for jams, freezer, fresh desserts for months! And GET A HEAD START — by planting now. Not shipped to Arizona.

CAUTION!

The most frequently noted "complaint" on these marvelous berries is that most people just didn't think to order enough! Honestly, you will want at least 50 of these plants to start — even for smaller patches.

ACTUAL SIZE!

Biggest strawberries most folks have ever seen: dark red, very sweet — yet firm. All purpose — freeze, jam, eat 'em fresh!

(18 for $3.50)
(24 for $5.00)

Can you imagine a sight more lovely than dwarf masses of glowing color appearing in early spring? Creeping Phlox makes a sight this lovely. Perfectly rounded balls of color growing only 4 inches tall. And Creeping Phlox have three wonderful advantages. First, they stay green the year round. Secondly, they are masses of color in the early spring when few other things are in bloom. Third, they are wonderful for ground covers and borders. Grow in part shade or full sun. Rich color assortment of our choice: Rosy red, steel blue, pure white, pearl pink. You receive strong northern grown field divisions. Order today and take advantage of our 1/2 price sale.

GROWS DURING WINTER! THIS THICK BLUE-GREEN
SPREADING EVERGREEN

Spreads like mad to cover bare areas, steep banks and other tough spots!

SPREADING EVERGREEN

$2.00 each (3 for $ 4.00)
(6 for $ 7.00)
(12 for $13.00)

Now, with this Evergreen Carpet (Juniperus horizontalis procumbens), see one plant grow over ugly bare spots, even in poor soil, to cover 4' to 6' with a lovely, thick carpet of green that lasts 365 DAYS OF THE YEAR. NEVER GETS MORE THAN 5" TO 10" TALL! Instead, this hardy, drought-resistant plant uses its energy to grow horizontally. Does just fine in well-drained areas — even where sand and rocks prevail, in sun or partial shade! BEAUTIFUL WAY TO COVER "EYESORES." And it stays fresh and green year 'round, without getting that dull "winter look." Start it on trouble spots now. Plant about 4' apart — six plants will cover 24' to 36'. You get hardy plants already 6" to 10".

- STAYS GREEN ALL YEAR
- BLUE FLOWERS IN SPRING
- NEEDS NO SPECIAL CARE

PERIWINKLE

10 for $1.00 (25 for $1.98)
(50 for $2.98)
(100 for $4.98)

Now, for shady areas beneath shrubs and in other dim places, even where grass won't grow, you can have a 12-month carpet of thick abundant, evergreen Periwinkle (Vinca minor). And every spring in May, shade-happy Periwinkle gives you a wide profusion of beautiful lavender-blue flowers that make the duller part of the yard look like a showcase! And, it grows so vigorously. Does better in shade than grass — but likes sun, too. Spreads: one plant grows to fill two square feet, (for quicker, denser effect plant one foot apart); gets 4"-6" tall — all without special care. You get healthy, nicely rooted plants ready for easy transplanting.

6 GREAT ROSES AT AMAZING LOW PRICES

Reg. $2.00 $1.49 3 for $ 3.99
6 for $ 7.85
YOUR CHOICE ONLY ea. 12 for $15.49

No collection offers such assurance of magnificent blooms and vibrant color week after week throughout the late spring, summer and autumn. In this offer of 6 great roses you get fine, fat, two-year nursery grown rose bushes, ready to pop into full bloom this spring. Each is labeled with variety name and expertly packed for arrival in excellent condition. Just follow simple instructions and enjoy a summer of garden splendor that only fine roses can provide.

Queen Elizabeth

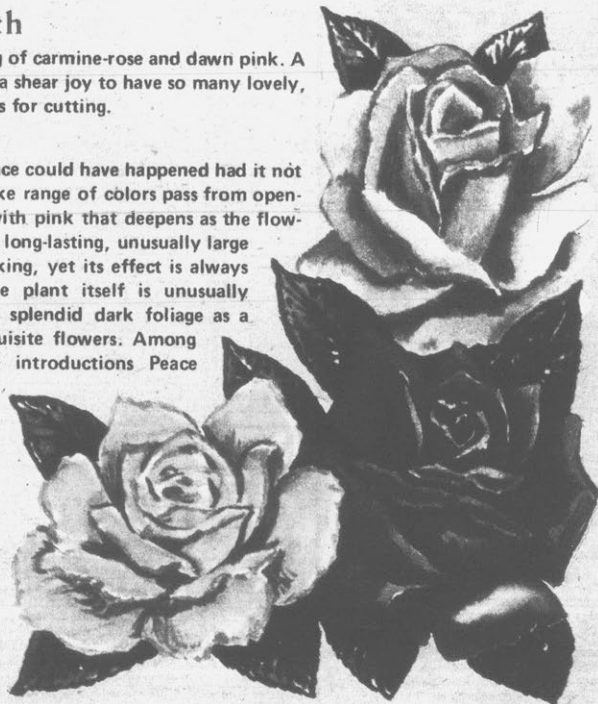

A beautiful, soft blending of carmine-rose and dawn pink. A wonderful fragrance and a sheer joy to have so many lovely, long lasting 4 inch blooms for cutting.

Peace

No one could believe Peace could have happened had it not been created. Its dawn-like range of colors pass from opening yellow buds, edged with pink that deepens as the flower unfolds. The bloom is long-lasting, unusually large and constantly fresh-looking, yet its effect is always delicate and lovely. The plant itself is unusually sturdy and robust, with splendid dark foliage as a background for the exquisite flowers. Among the hundreds of rose introductions Peace stands unrivaled.

Crimson Glory

No other red rose has equalled Crimson Glory in beauty and performance. Of all roses, it ranks second only to Peace. The well-formed flowers are an intense deep vivid crimson, shaded ox-blood red. A sturdy and prolific spring-to-fall bloomer.

Climbing Blaze

Blaze is the greatest climbing rose ever developed. Ever-blooming with large brilliant, double-red cupped flowers. BLAZE blooms with a great burst of scarlet in June and again in fall, with some in between. Clusters of flowers come in such profusion they turn the plant into a blaze of glory. Flowers have just a wisp of delicate fragrance. Very hardy and vigorous, demanding practically no care . . . No spraying or feeding. Only pruning is required to keep it in bounds.

Plant BLAZE on fences, posts, trellises and walls. Or achieve a fountain display by growing on a 5 ft. stake.

Climbing Peace

A lovely sight with the huge cream gold and pink flowers. Every bit as large and lovely as those on the bush form.

Cl. Wh. American Beauty

TIGER

by BUD BLAKE

Our Story: SIR MOTRIK FITZTHUMPET CALLS HIS TAILOR AND THE ARMORER AND TELLS THEM TO MAKE HIM READY FOR THE COMING TOURNAMENT AT CAMELOT.

ONCE HE IS ARRAYED IN HIS OLD ARMOR HE THROWS BACK HIS SHOULDERS, GLARES ABOUT FIERCELY, AND ANNOUNCES HE WILL ONCE MORE FIGHT IN THE LISTS.

EDWIN SEEMS TO BE BROKENHEARTED AT BEING LEFT BEHIND. "SADDLE YOUR HORSE AND ARM YOURSELF," ADVISES ARN. "NO ONE CAN HINDER YOU FROM ENTERING THE TOURNAMENT."

ONCE AGAIN SIR MOTRIK FEELS THE JOY OF BEING ARMED, MOUNTED AND READY FOR BRAVE DEEDS IN THE PRESENCE OF THE KING AND HIS LADIES.

BUT MANY YEARS HAVE PASSED SINCE LAST HE RODE IN FULL ARMOR. HE CALLS AN EARLY HALT. HE KNEW HE HAD PUT ON WEIGHT, BUT THOUGHT IT WAS ALL MUSCLE.

ARN HAD JUST GOTTEN TO SLEEP WHEN HE IS AWAKENED. "SH-SH, IT'S ME, EDWIN. I DO NOT INTEND TO BE LEFT OUT OF THE TOURNAMENT, SO I FOLLOWED. DON'T TELL MY FATHER."

SO ARN GIVES HIM DIRECTIONS TO A LITTLE-USED PATH THAT WILL TAKE HIM TO A SIDE ENTRANCE OF CAMELOT.

ARN SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF GETTING SIR MOTRIK BACK INTO THE SADDLE. HE HAS THEM FELL A TREE AND BY TRIMMING OFF SOME BRANCHES MAKES A CRUDE RAMP AND WHEN HE IS ABOARD, HANDS HIM HIS MAIL AND WEAPONS.
