UNC Board Is Told Proposals Rejected By Califano, HEW

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina told the UNC Board of Governors today that the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has rejected the university's latest desegregation proposal.

Friday said negotiations culminating with a Thursday meeting between he and HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano resulted in the two sides remaining far apart in their plans for upgrading the UNC system's five predominantly black campuses.

"I do not know what will happen," Friday told the board. "I am confident something will happen Monday."

Friday said the latest offer made by Califano was for UNC to commit itself to spend at least $120 million to improve facilities at the historically black campuses. He said Califano's offer included an agreement by HEW to set aside for at least for five years the department's insistence on steps to

Avers Waste And Fraud Everywhere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's No. 2 law-enforcement officer says it's not hard to find waste and fraud in the handling of government money: Just look anywhere.

"Our experience generally is that wherever we look deeply with focused investigations, significant fraud and abuse will be detected," Deputy Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti told the Senate Budget Committee Thursday.

As an example, Civiletti cited a federal task force aimed at rooting out fraud and abuse in the Department of Housing and Urban Development in 23 cities. That effort resulted in indictments of 1,129 persons and brought 854 convictions.

Similar projects are focusing on food stamps, unemployment insurance and Medicare and Medicaid, Civiletti added.

Civiletti joined Elmer B. Staats, who heads the General Accounting Office, and Inspector General Thomas D. Morris of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in bringing the committee up to date on efforts to root out misuse of federal money.

They agreed that waste, abuse, fraud and mismanagement are extensive but impossible to put a dollar amount on.

Civiletti offered a previous guess — and he identified it as such — that between 1 percent and 10 percent of every federal dollar is stolen or wasted.

Two officials who have led efforts to stop abuse and theft involving government programs in their home states said federal carelessness in writing and supervising programs makes it easy for the dishonest and unscrupulous.

The federal government designs new programs "without any fraud or abuse controls" and then burdens them "with thousands of regulations, many of which are meaningless and confusing and create loopholes for the unscrupulous," said Samuel K. Skinner, chairman of the Illinois Fraud Prevention Commission.

"There persists a national climate of irresponsibility about government money," added Charles J. Hynes, head of the New York State Medicaid Fraud Control Union. "Those who receive it and those who administer it have shared a common perception that government money costs nothing — it may be used, however, and its users are entitled to all they can get."

The state and federal officials agreed Congress and the executive branch should keep closer control of federal programs.

For the immediate future, Staats said GAO already has identified more than $7 billion that could be saved in the 1980 budget by changing a handful of existing programs. This includes revisions in federal purchasing practices and phasing out some outmoded Social Security and job-training programs.

Morris, who created a stir last year when he estimated HEW annual losses to fraud and waste at around $6 billion, listed for the Budget Committee opportunities for saving of another $1.5 billion in addition to those outlined by Staats.

end program duplication at traditionally white and black campuses located in the same areas.

He said he told Califano that the amount of money involved was "just out of the question."

Friday said he and other UNC officials told HEW they would be willing to spend $21 million over a four-year period for building renovation, equipment purchases and other improvements.

"He said he believed our proposals...really were not enough to satisfy the court requirement," Friday said.

Friday said he told Califano that UNC was sticking by its position that it needed to retain control of where education programs are located in the UNC System.

"We have not done it in a spirit of arrogance or simply for a confrontation. We have done it because we believe in it," Friday said.

The Board of Governors took no action during an open meeting beyond approval of a motion thanking Friday and his staff for their work. It then went into executive session to discuss the dispute.

Board Chairman William Johnson of Lillington said the latest negotiations have been "agonizing and difficult. We have been doing our job as we ought to do it. And we intend to retain control of our university and the programs on these campuses."

Friday said HEW's Office of Civil Rights renewed its insistence on shifting programs among the campuses as recently as last week following a visit by federal officials to several black campuses.

Among the suggestions made by HEW officials, Friday said, were that planned masters' degree programs in engineering and criminal justice at UNC-Charlotte be scrapped and that the UNC-Greensboro nursing program be closed as well as the undergraduate accounting program at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

Israeli Cabinet Faction Strikes Discordant Note

By The Associated Press

A faction in the Israeli Cabinet is demanding that the government commit itself to stepped-up Jewish settlement in the West Bank of the Jordan River and continued Israeli security control of the area, it was learned today.

The discord apparently is one reason Prime Minister Menachem Begin has postponed for 24 hours the Cabinet's consideration of the full Egyptian-Israeli treaty, originally scheduled for Sunday.

A Begin spokesman said the delay resulted from the prime minister's illness — he has been ordered to bed because of a cold. But it will also give Begin time to try to head off a clash over the demands of three-man National Religious Party faction in the 17-member Cabinet.

In Egypt, meanwhile, President Anwar Sadat declared today that the "real test" of the peace process will come after the signing of an Egyptian-Israeli treaty, when the two countries open negotiations on establishing self-rule for the Palestinians in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, another Israeli-occupied territory.

"I know Begin will be raising hell as he always does, but, by God, I shall be raising hell for him also," Sadat said at an impromptu news conference in his home village.

The White House announced that a U.S. delegation, including President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, and Carter's son Chip, was heading for the Mideast today in an attempt to persuade Arab leaders to change their minds and support the proposed Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The delegation will meet with leaders of two moderate Arab states, Saudi Arabia and Jordan, whose support is considered crucial to future success of the U.S.-sponsored peace drive.

The Camp David accords call for Jordanian participation in the West Bank-Gaza negotiations, but Jordan has refused to accept the invitation, making it more likely that only Egypt, Israel and the United States will negotiate self-rule arrangements for the Palestinians.

David Glass, a National Religious Party member of the Israeli Parliament, told The Associated Press that the party's demands in the Cabinet are not being presented as an ultimatum as the Cabinet prepares to debate the treaty.

The National Religious Party, Begin's senior partner in his government coalition, is under pressure from Jewish settlers in the West Bank who fear Palestinian autonomy will weaken their control of the area, which they consider theirs by God-given right. But the party's support is not essential for Begin to succeed in having the treaty adopted.

Glass said his faction is demanding that the Cabinet accept five principles of autonomy: that it would not lead to a Palestinian state, and that Israel would control security in the zone, manage its water sources, increase Jewish settlement and apply autonomy to the population but not to the land itself.

European Unity Advocate Dies

By JEFFREY ULBRICH Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Jean Monnet, the foremost advocate of European unity and the inspiration and driving force behind the European Common Market, died today at his home near Montfort l'Amaury, sources at the headquarters of the European Community reported. He was 91.

Monnet, a self-described political economist, was the key figure in the drive to bind the free European nations economically and politically, but during his long career he constantly shunned the limelight.

His first major step toward European unity was a six-nation pool of coal and steel resources, formally presented in 1950. Seven years later it became known as the European Economic Community.

Monnet was never a member of a government, but was, as Theodore H. White called him, "a broker of ideas." He brought statesmen together by demonstrating how his ideas were in the interest of those concerned, persisting where leaders resisted or hesitated.

The dapper, dynamic Frenchman, described by the late President Kennedy as a "statesman of the world," never had a university education. Owner of a prosperous cognac business, he was independently wealthy and took on a job only as long as he felt he was doing something useful to mankind.

Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Kennedy, British prime ministers from Winston Churchill to Edward Heath, and French leaders from Charles de Gaulle to Valery Giscard d'Estaing liked and admired him and turned to him for advice.

In 1919 he became deputy secretary general of the League of Nations. He gradually expanded his experiences and contacts, reorganizing the Chinese railways, floating international loans and handling legal entanglements. As a broker on Wall Street, he made a fortune and then lost it in the 1929 crash.

Monnet was one of de Gaulle's early supporters in the war against Nazi Germany but became his bitter enemy when de Gaulle blocked Britain's entry into the Common Market and rekindled the flames of European nationalism which Monnet regarded as an outdated and self-defeating evil.

He played a major role in helping Britain and France survive two world wars and helped China resist Japanese aggression in the 1930s.

DIES — French statesman Jean Monnet, the man known as the "father of Europe", died Friday at his home in France. He was 91. Monnet was instrumental in forging the six-nation European coal and steel pool which later became the Common Market. (AP Laserphoto)

KITCHEN MUST BE UPGRADED

The Flynn Christian Fellowship Home must have its kitchen upgraded to meet Health Department standards or its doors must close. Flynn Home is now home to 23 rehabilitating alcoholics.

An inspection is scheduled for Apr. 1, at which time the Board must show proof that work has begun on converting most of the equipment in the kitchen to stainless steel. Now that it has more than 18 residents, the home is considered "an institution" and must have the stainless steel facilities, according to state and county health standards. Between $12,000 and $18,000 is needed for the project. Contributions are tax-deductible and may be mailed to the Flynn Home, 408 Pitt Street, Greenville, Curly Wilhelm, director.

"I hope everyone in Greenville realizes what a fine history of service this home has and how much it means to its residents, Flynn Home board member, Katherine Stubbs said. "We will appreciate any contributions. Every single dollar will help!" She said either she or Wilhelm or any other board member will be glad to answer questions about the project. The Flynn Home phone number is 758-2207; Mrs. Stubbs', 758-2207.

District Award To Pitt Staff

The Pitt County agricultural extension service staff received the performance award for the 15-county Northeast District at the Extension Service Conference in Raleigh this week.

"In order for the staff to receive the award," according to Pitt extension service chairman Leroy James, "it means they must exemplify cooperation and teamwork," in the four extension areas, which include agriculture, home economics, 4-H and community resource development.

James said his seven staff members, "each played a vital roll in helping develop this type of cooperation." The extension chairman noted, "I feel we have one of the top staffs in North Carolina...as far as working as a team."

Staff members, James said, "are always willing to help clientele whenever possible."

The award is presented annually by Epsilon Sigma Phi, an honorary agricultural fraternity at N.C. State University.

Winners are selected by the extension chairmen, agricultural leaders and the State Agricultural Extension Service staff in each of the seven districts in the state.

No Saints In The Ga. Senate

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia's teachers haven't been at all shy about letting state legislators know their feelings concerning proposed pay raises in the budget now under consideration.

One irate teacher vented her wrath Thursday on Sen. Beverly Langford, D-Calhoun, saying, "I wouldn't vote for you if you were St. Peter."

Langford replied: "Ma'am, if I were St. Peter, you wouldn't be in my district."

Richardson Explains Hospital Bed Tower Need

Pitt County Memorial Hospital Director Jack W. Richardson explained yesterday to the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors the reason Pitt Memorial needs another bed tower.

April 30, he said, will be the second anniversary of the day patients were moved into the present hospital facility. Since that time, activity of the hospital overall has increased 55 percent, with 45 percent of the patients now coming from outside the county.

The present line of thinking in national health-planning circles, he said, is that there should be a moratorium on new beds. Statistical information used to bring about the thinking that a slowdown is desirable was taken when the new Pitt Memorial was only five months into operation. Considerable development and greatly increasing population and services rendered has occurred since then here. This is a county hospital that has become a teaching facility for the state. If the state is to meet its commitment, new beds have to be provided and it takes two to three years to bring them into reality at best, with the likelihood of continued growth, of course.

Richardson said the hospital is trying to make it very clear why it is believed that an exception to this national policy should be made here, so approval can be given by federal and state agencies for the new bed tower.

The national policy now, he said, is four hospital beds per thousand population. "At this rate," he said, "all the 315 acute care beds Pitt Co. Memorial now has would be needed by Pitt Countians who number about 80,000. As we said earlier, almost half the beds are now used by people from throughout the region."

The Chamber Directors had lunch in the hospital cafeteria and toured the facility and saw film of the work going on in the hospital, which is now one of the largest employers in the county.

Standard Flower Show Opening Is April 5

A special invitational class for apprentice judges will be included in the Lyndale Garden Club's second annual flower show to be held April 5-6 at the Greenville Art Center.

This year's show, entitled "A Spring Bouquet," has also been expanded to include a horticultural division in addition to the artistic division, thus making it the first standard flower show to be held here in at least a decade.

Mrs. Ramona Hutton and Mrs. Martha Banks, co-chairmen for the event, announced six nationally accredited flower show judges have accepted invitations to serve as judges.

In the artistic division, where floral designs are placed in competition, the judges will award blue, red and yellow ribbons, if merited, in each class. The tricolor ribbon for outstanding excellence will be awarded from among blue ribbon winners, if merited.

The artistic division also includes two group classes in which garden clubs may enter a formal luncheon table and/or a spring breakfast tray.

Registration for the artistic division ends Monday, March 26, at 6 p.m. Registration may be made by telephoning Julie Surles, 756-6947, or Mrs. Banks, 756-5771.

In the horticulture division, cut flowers, potted plants or specimen of fresh material are placed in competition and are judged against perfection (not against each other). Blue, red and yellow ribbons will be awarded in each class, if merited, and award of horticultural excellence will be given for the finest entry if the judges feel one is merited.

All horticultural specimen must have been grown by the exhibitor and all potted plants must have been in the possession of the exhibitor at least three months. Sections in the horticultural division include narcissus, tulip, arboreal, iris, African violets, container-grown plants and general (bulbs, perennials, annuals, other).

Pre-registration is not required in the horticultural division.

Entries in the invitational class for apprentice judges are expected from Morehead City and Wilmington. This class, entitled "Sounds of Spring," will feature free standing arrangements interpreting a suitable quotation selected by the entrant.

An apprentice judge must earn a designated number of blue ribbons in standard flower shows in order to satisfy one of the requirements for becoming a nationally accredited flower show judge.

In this special division, each entry will be judged on its own merit and is not in competition with other divisions.

Any person who is a member of a garden club in Greenville is eligible to enter the flower show. No entry fees are required.

The Lyndale Garden Club, under the leadership of Mrs. Donald Tucker, is sponsoring the show for the second year as a public service. Its members furnish the staging, programs and hostesses.

The public is invited to attend free of charge on Thursday, April 5, between 2-5 p.m. and Friday, April 6, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Pitt Agents Announce Sessions

A lampshade workshop and lap quilting demonstration have been planned for this month by the Pitt County extension home economics extension agents.

The lampshade workshop will be held Wednesday, March 21, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and will be conducted by Mrs. Mary Jo Nason, a local home economist. She will be assisted by housing committee members of the CPDA.

Each participant will make a sculptured (punch-and-cut) lampshade.

Marking, cutting and transferring patterns will be shown at the lap quilting demonstration. A variety of quilt designs will be displayed at the March 28 class.

The special interest session will be conducted by Mrs. Kaye Clemens, who has a family quilt collection.

The lap quilting demonstration will be held from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Both events will require pre-registration, since the number of participants will be limited. To be included in the workshop or attend the demonstration, call the Home Economics Extension Office, 758-1196. Both meetings will be held in the auditorium of the Agricultural Extension Building, Greenville.

Husband Should See A Lawyer

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Please answer in the paper because I live in a very small town and if anyone ever found out my name I'd be a laughing stock.

What would you do if your husband, after 34 years of marriage, suddenly announced that he has a 37-year-old daughter? I raised hell. Was I in error?

My husband told me that a woman came to his place of work and identified herself as the girl he got pregnant 37 years ago. She reminded him that when she told him she was expecting, he said he'd do anything but marry her because he wasn't ready for marriage. She then disappeared. Now, after all this time, she suddenly finds him and says her daughter would like to know her father! My husband says he recalls the incident vaguely. Without consulting me, he agreed to meet this so-called daughter and also promised to tell our children about her!

I say this woman is out to make trouble and wreck our home. I forbade my husband to tell our children about it. (We have two.) I told him this woman may not even know who fathered her daughter, and he shouldn't get involved.

Our family life has been good up to now, but this is upsetting. What should I do.

FROM A SMALL TOWN

DEAR FROM: Advise your husband to see a lawyer and find out (a) how much (if any) legal responsibility he has to this woman and her daughter, and (b) how to handle it.

If your husband feels a moral obligation to the woman, he will have to deal with it as he sees fit. In the meantime, the word from here is—keep cool and keep quiet!

DEAR ABBY: I know this is a dumb question for an 18-year-old girl to ask, but when is a girl no longer considered a virgin?

I had a boyfriend and we were very, very close, but we never had sexual intercourse. (We did everything BUT.) Am I still considered a virgin?

Please answer in the paper, as I don't want this kind of information coming to my house in a letter. Also, I'm sure there are other girls who would like to know.

VIRGIN OR NOT

DEAR VIRGIN: Although you have done everything BUT—the "but" makes the difference. Technically, you are a virgin.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOTS OF PROBLEMS IN MILWAUKEE: You need a "parentectomy"—which means to become completely independent from your parents. You must support yourself, make your own decisions and assume total responsibility for your own actions. At 30, you are old enough. Get going.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Return Of Ex-POW Is Said Briefly Delayed

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The return of a U.S. Marine from Vietnam is being delayed by the Vietnamese government because of a misunderstanding over whether the United States regards him as a war prisoner, U.S. officials say.

But the officials, who asked not to be identified, said they expect the conflict to be resolved quickly and that Pfc. Richard Garwood, 33, will be allowed to leave Vietnam in a few days.

American authorities had expected Garwood, of Greensburg, Ind., to be on a flight Thursday from Vietnam to Bangkok, Thailand. But when the plane landed, he was not aboard.

Subsequently, Vietnamese officials informed the United States that they took exception to news reports identifying Garwood as a prisoner of war, State Department sources said.

For the past six years, Hanoi has been saying that all U.S. war prisoners have been sent home. Although Garwood is listed as a POW, based on his September 1965 capture by the Viet Cong, officials said this designation is not meant to prejudice his present status.

According to published reports, Garwood accepted a Viet Cong offer some time after his capture to join the communist side in exchange for his freedom.

He reportedly has lived in Vietnam voluntarily ever since, but recently notified an unidentified foreign traveler that he wishes to return home. Vietnam agreed to let him go following an inquiry by the State Department.

Garwood may face military charges of having gone over to the communist side. The Marines have said reports from other POW's that Garwood refused repatriation "raises substantial questions about the propriety of his actions."

More Pre-Release Men Graduated

The Pre-Release and After-care Program graduated 26 men Wednesday.

The graduation was hosted by Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, with the meal prepared by the women of the church.

Pre-Release Training is a four-week program designed to help inmates learn skills considered necessary for re-entering the community, according to Training Coordinator Ann Bennett.

Pat Dye, East Carolina University football coach, was the graduation speaker. He compared the courage, strength and determination needed by a good football player to that of anyone who wishes to succeed. He closed with the questions, "Am I willing to pay the price of success?"

Following the graduation, attended by community volunteers, field service counselors, and clients, the counselors met with the graduates and arranged for transportation for each man to return to his home community. Each will be worked with in his respective community.

Someday, Comparable Rates

T. Justin Moore, Jr., chairman of the board of Virginia Electric and Power Co., has indicated he anticipates it will be sometime in 1982 before Veeco rates are comparable with CP&L and Duke Power.

Moore spoke to a coffee talk session here this week, arranged by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Moore saw the possibility of comparable rates coming with the completion of three new nuclear units along with the largest pumped storage, hydroelectric facility in the world.

Veeco has been criticized in North Carolina recently because its rates are higher than Duke's or Veeco's.

This has a major impact in Pitt County where the Veeco and Carolina Power service areas meet. Veeco serves much of Martin County and some of northern Pitt on a retail basis. The firm wholesales to Greenville Utilities, which currently uses Veeco's retail rate schedule.

The expectation that Veeco rates will compare to other companies in North Carolina is based on the experience that nuclear plants cost less to operate than oil fired, once they are constructed.

Since the higher rates put northeastern North Carolina at a disadvantage in development, we sincerely hope expectations of comparable rates by 1982 come to pass. If that is to come about, we would expect to see a gradual closing of the gap in the meantime. That would be evidence to us that an improvement was being made.

Draft Registration A Necessary Step

Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, Army chief of staff, has created a stir in Washington by advocating a return to the draft.

While there are large numbers of military volunteers available right now, the time isn't far off when that pool of military age young people will begin dropping off.

We should be re-instituting the draft registration now in order to be prepared for any eventuality. . . and there is still much to be said for a civilian populated army, which calls for the draft to insure a cross section of citizens.

Military conscription isn't popular with those called upon to serve, but ultimately we must recognize that if our democracy is worth anything to us, it is worth protecting.

Push Drug Substitution

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Public interest in substitution of generic drugs for higher priced brand-names is pretty much an emotional rather than logical issue, a legislator who is a pharmacist believes.

Nonetheless, State Rep. Barney Paul Woodard, D-Johnston, is pushing a product substitution proposal in the General Assembly.

Those who think that the change would save a lot of people a lot of dollars are just mistaken, says Woodard, who operates a pharmacy in Princeton. The average family which spends between $40 and $50 yearly on prescription drugs would likely save about $1.62. The chronically ill or elderly who use more drugs would, naturally, save proportionately more.

But tremendous savings simply don't result. When Medicaid recipients were authorized to purchase generic rather than branded drugs, it was originally estimated the savings would amount to $4 or $5 million in North Carolina, Woodard recalls.

Small Saving

Actually, the savings is more in the neighborhood of $700,000 per year. Still that is substantial enough saving to make the effort worthwhile, Woodard feels.

The statewide Pharmaceutical Association polled its membership on the subject and found that about 65 percent of the pharmacists favor the substitution proposal.

Won't the change cost the pharmacist something? Not usually, says Woodard. Most pricing markups are done on percentage of wholesale cost. The biggest loss would be suffered by major drug makers whose products would decline in sales.

But in reality, the effects will be limited for some other reasons. First, many younger physicians with more information about generic versus brand drugs are already prescribing generics; and more will do so in the future, Woodard finds.

BILL NOBLITT

Next, the drug makers are already cutting their prices in order to meet competition and to satisfy federal ceilings applied under Medicaid and Medicare programs.

There has been opposition to generic drug laws by physicians both in this state and elsewhere. The complaint has been that if a doctor orders a specific drug by name he has good reason for doing so and doesn't want somebody tampering with his expertise.

The North Carolina proposal would overcome that objection, Woodard believes, by offering a double-line prescription form.

One line would allow the doctor to prescribe the drug by brand name, and require the pharmacist to honor that entry. The second line would allow the doctor to prescribe a drug which the pharmacist could determine as suitable.

Selection

This procedure, which Woodard chooses to call "product selection" rather than "generic substitution" allows the pharmacist to "use professional expertise in doing a job which provides a drug that is the therapeutical equivalent . . . yet might be cheaper."

Why, if drug prices are already coming down, if many physicians are already prescribing generics rather than brands, and if the savings won't be all that great, should legislation be pushed?

The Medicine Flackers

WASHINGTON — An Associated Press item says now that doctors have been given permission to advertise, they have gone one step further and are hiring press agents to get their names in newspapers and to arrange interviews on radio and television.

One plastic surgeon mentioned in the news story said he knew at least 25 physicians who had retained publicity agents and he insisted there were hundreds more who had hired someone to flack for them.

I don't see anything wrong with it.

My friend, Carl Bromberg, whom I consider one of the best press agents in the business, thinks that publicizing doctors will not only be financially rewarding for anyone in the public relations business but will also be challenging and exciting work. He told me:

"This is big stuff. We're going to have to think up items that the gossip columnists will take."

"Such as?"

"Something like, 'What well-known movie queen has stars in her eyes, thanks to Hollywood's new hot plastic surgeon, Dr. Cromley Barton, who, when last seen at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, was lifting everything belonging to the wife of a top studio producer?' or 'Everyone at the UCLA Medical Center is still talking about the standing ovation Dr. George Catheter got last week on his smash kidney stone operation in the main UCLA Hospital Theater.

"Everyone who is anyone in the urology world was at the sellout opening. At a post-operation party at the Beverly Wilshire, Dr. Catheter said he thought it was the best thing he'd ever done, but hoped he wouldn't be typed as just another kidney stone surgeon."

ART BUCHWALD

"I'm getting a lot of offers, but I really have my heart set on removing a prostate."

"That's good," I said, "even Rona Barrett would use that one."

"Wait," Bromberg said, taking notes out of his pocket. "I've got more. Listen, 'Dr. Clem Dumbarton, the multi-millionaire orthopedist, has just bought a 120-foot yacht which he says he hopes, for tax reasons, to turn into a hospital ship. 'I plan to do all my slipped disc and tennis elbow operations at sea, outside the three-mile limit, so no one can sue me for malpractice.'" Dr. Dumbarton told friends."

"And here's one you'll like," continued Bromberg, "it's in the form of a press release:

"Dr. Rudolf Koenig, the jet set's favorite psychiatrist, announced at a press conference at Studio 54 that he would no longer take patients who want to tell him their dreams. 'It takes too much time,' said Dr. Koenig, 'and if you've heard one dream, you've heard them all.'"

"Dr. Koenig, who gets $150 for a half-hour session, also said that because of the heavy demands on his time he would no longer take neurotic or psychotic patients."

"It's a question of priorities, and as a doctor I want to devote more time to

A Once Happy Ireland

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Special Correspondent NEW YORK (AP) — St. Patrick's Day reveries over an Irish coffee as once again the big parade forms in the side streets to head up Fifth Avenue:

Thirty years ago I was married on the high altar in the little chapel just beyond the crossroads in Mullaghbawn, County Armagh, Northern Ireland in the dark green shadow of Slieve Gullion Mountain.

Don't look for it on the map. No Irish map even in the government survey office is large enough to find space for the name of so small a town.

It was a peaceful place. Even the wedding of the former Brigadier Murphy to a Yank went peacefully. You could hear the Bawn River rushing under the stone bridge outside O'Hanlon's Pub.

I never dreamed I'd ever be going back there as a reporter to cover a war. This was a Catholic enclave in the Protes-

Draft Is A Political Issue

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — When and if the administration decides that a return to the military draft is necessary, the White House will propose a system of universal service for young men, without student deferments or other escape routes.

That is President Carter's attitude, shaped in part by personal experience. His son, Jack, gave up a student deferment to volunteer for military service.

"He did so because he didn't think it was right for him to avoid the draft simply because he had the money and the educational background to stay in college," Carter recalled. "So he went to Vietnam."

There is no such proposal in the works now. Civilian leaders of the military insist there is no need to revive the draft that lapsed five years ago.

Carter has said that any new registration system should include women as well as men. But he also said that he does not foresee the induction of women or a return to the draft.

Registration would at least give what is now a skeleton Selective Service System a list of names and addresses to be used for military callups in case of war.

Carter has asked Congress for a $5 million appropriation to improve the current standby Selective Service System.

The pressure for a revived draft was increased Tuesday when Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, the Army chief of staff, urged Congress to reinstate it this year. Rogers proposed that up to 100,000 men be drafted under a lottery system to spend six months in military training and six years in the Army's ready reserve.

Rogers said the volunteer Army is falling short of its recruiting goals, and the reserves are 500,000 soldiers short of their authorized strength.

Rogers' civilian boss, Secretary of the Army Clifford L. Alexander, disagreed, saying there is no need for any draft now. Alexander said it would be "unnecessary, unfair and counterproductive to the best interests of the Army."

There are bills in the House and Senate to go to a registration system, so as to identify prospects for induction in an emergency. There also is a House bill to set up a limited draft.

None of the proposals is likely to get very far unless the administration decides that the Pentagon needs a return to the draft.

Nevertheless, the draft is emerging as a political issue — one Carter hardly needs in the year before he seeks his second term.

Public opinion is closely divided on the question. An Associated Press-NBC News Poll showed 49 percent of the people questioned support reinstatement of the draft, 43 percent oppose it and the rest weren't sure.

Americans aged 18 to 28, those most likely affected directly, opposed the draft 62 percent to 33 percent.

Those young Americans are potential voters in 1980. If they are also potential draftees, they could be a troublesome bloc for Carter.

Strength For Today

MORE THAN A FIRE EXTINGUISHER

A naval officer tells of being in the hold of a ship injured in a collision which was listing badly and in danger of sinking. As he groped in the dark, up to his waist in water, desperately trying to close a bulkhead, the sailor beside him said "This would be a good time to pray — if I only remembered how."

A great many people treat their religion as if it were a fire extinguisher. They put it aside in a glass case marked "Do not use except in emergency." Of course, faith in God is good in an emergency, but we need it just as much in the routine of everyday life.

God did not send His only begotten son to mankind to be a last resort in times of trouble. Jesus came to be a first resort at all times. Christians who know what it means to live do not save their conversations with Him for emergencies, or even for Sundays. They talk with Him every day, and He is always there to hear and to help.

Short-Range Goals Provided

By GAIL MICHAELS

My husband, Phillip, was told at the first of the school year that every person in his class needed something to look forward to. And while long-range goals were important, it was emphasized that each of the students also needed something to look forward to in the near future in order to get through a difficult course of study.

Phillip has followed this advice to the letter. He is always looking forward to something in the near future. He looks forward to getting the mail, to reading the Sunday paper, and to watching "The Rockford Files" every Saturday night. But lately, the event which he has anticipated most is Spring vacation.

It was all he could think about during mid-term exams, when he was coming to bed at 2 a.m. "If I can just make it to spring break, I'll be okay. I can catch up on my sleep then," he'd say.

It was all he could think about when he had study meetings every night and Meg would hang on his leg and scream as he walked out the door. "Just wait until spring break, and I'll have plenty of time to play with you," he'd say.

And it was all he could think about when I told him I was going stir-crazy and that a quick trip to the shopping mall to fill a prescription and to get an ice cream cone was not my idea of a night on the town.

"Just wait till spring break. We'll hire a babysitter, and I'll take you to a movie," he'd say.

Finally, his prayers were answered. Spring vacation arrived, and he had a whole week to do just as he wished. Of course, he couldn't sleep late because Meg does not share the adult conception of vacation. Spring break just gave her incentive to come charging into our bedroom at 6:00 instead of 6:30. "Wake up, Daddy," she'd yell in his ear. "It's time to play."

And there were a few other minor obligations he had to fulfill. He had to spend a weekend at home due to an inquiry by his parents concerning rumors of his demise. And he spent all Monday at the dentist's office, and all Tuesday doing valiant but fruitless battle with a 1040 form.

On Wednesday, after we got Meg off to nursery school, he put his arm around me and said, "Ah, freedom! All I've got to do for the rest of the week is to study for my economics test. And what are you doing?"

"I'm making a list of all the things you promised to do while you were off this week. You need to fix Meg's record player and the leaky faucet in the bathroom, and I want you to replace the doorknob on the basement door."

"But . . ."

"Then when you finish that, we should get busy and clean out the basement. There are moving boxes down there that still haven't been unpacked."

"But . . ."

"And I want you to move the furniture in the living room so that I can wax the floor."

As he walked away, I heard him mutter, "If I can just make it till classes start again . . ."

Will Speak For Revival

The Black Jack FWB Church, Rt. 3, Greenville, will be the center for a religious revival from March 18 to 23. With the Rev. Cedric D. Pierce, Jr., serving as pastor, it is one of the oldest churches in this area.

Gospel Singer Giving Concert

Concert gospel singer, Barbara Rodgers, will perform in concert at 10 a.m. Monday at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.
 The Greenville singer is a 1971 graduate of Rose High School. She was at home for the summer after attending Massey Business College in Jacksonville, Fla., when extreme eye pain and some vision impairment were diagnosed as a "rare type of eye cancer".
 Miss Rodgers is scheduled to sing five songs Monday at Jarvis Church. Between numbers Miss Rodgers plans to give her life's testimony and talk about her strength, "because the Lord has let me live to sing".
 Miss Rodgers is currently undergoing chemotherapy at Duke University Medical Center.
 Other participants on Monday's program, sponsored by Jarvis United Methodist Women, include the Rev. Jasper Suggs, pastor of Mt. Calvary Church here in Greenville; Mrs. David J. Middleton, UMW president; Mrs. David J. Whichard II, vice president; and Mrs. John Casey, Christian Personhood chairman.

 A coffee hour chaired by Mrs. William G. Blount will follow the program in the church parlor. A nursery will be provided for pre school children by Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst, Jr.
 All interested persons in the community are invited to attend.

REV. JOSEPH H. INGRAM

Guest speaker at the revival will be the Rev. Joseph H. Ingram. Ingram is the director of the N.C. FWB Foreign Missions Programs, which currently has mission programs in India, Mexico, and the Philippines.

He is from Goldsboro and is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. Prior to his current position, he served as pastor for Stoney Creek Church in Goldsboro.

SUNDAY SPEAKERS

Eldresses Bettie Rhinehart, Bessie Dixon and Hattie M. Parker will speak Sunday, 7:30 p.m., at St. Paul F.W.B. Church in Greene County. Bishop W. L. Phillips, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Walk Away...

God must have known we'd have frustrations. That's why He gave us the capacity to walk away from them... even on crutches.

Often in walking away from our frustrations we find ourselves. We discover spiritual depths we never knew we had. Finding oneself is part of the deeper quest — finding God.

We are not alone. Life is the Creator's gift. To fulfill its potentials we need His help — especially when our own hopes dissolve in disappointment.

Bring your frustrations to church. Learn how to walk away from them with courage and faith.

That man stands mighty straight who has learned to believe in himself... and in God.

tant North. The border with the Republic was less than three miles away. But no one thought much about it then.

The only religious problem was the roof on the Protestant church of Ireland on the road to Forkhill. It was falling in, and there were less than a dozen Protestant families to repair it. So Canon O'Neill, the parish priest, held a tea and the Catholics footed the bill.

A decade later, in 1959, I came back to Mullaghawn.

There were a few changes in the little town. Someone had blown up Her Majesty's telephone kiosk in front of the post office. "The lads," as they were called, had moved the customs shed back a couple of yards with a few sticks of dynamite, and bits of pieces of the railway line were found missing from time to time.

Then 10 years later — 1969 — it had all changed. A terrible terror was born.

Two laborers from the parish were machine-gunned in a van on their way to work at the "Protestant" shipyards in Belfast. Timmy Kelly, 5 years old, went up the road for the cows and came back in McCann the Undertaker's hearse. He or the cows had stepped on a mine intended for a British scout car. Two school boys were blown apart when they opened the back of a bread van parked in front of the Catholic chapel at Drumantee. A Protestant farmer was found slumped in front of his telly with a large hole in the back of his head.

Nearly every day was "D-day" in the last decade: dynamite, destruction, death, deserted roads and farm houses.

Mullaghawn in 1979 is peaceful again. Dreadfully peaceful. No one travels the roads after dark. The British army doesn't travel by road at all. They stick pretty much to helicopters since 60 soldiers have been ambushed in the vicinity.

Even in the daytime, people quake if a stranger knocks at the door. The children go straight home after school. Many homes are without fathers, taken away to Long Mesh, the incarceration camp, without trial on "suspicion of suspicious activities."

You can still hear the river, rushing cold under the stone bridge by O'Hanlon's, making you wonder on this St. Patrick's Day where it will end. Three decades in an Irish town.

TURNED DOWN — Charles "Tex" Watson, a former Charles Manson "family" member, was turned down Thursday in his second bid to be reclassified as a minimum security prisoner at California Men's Colony near San Luis Obispo. Watson was convicted of murder and is presently listed as a medium security inmate. (AP Laser-photo)

Grand Jury Indicts Members Of Blanton Administration

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted four members of former Gov. Ray Blanton's administration, alleging thousands of dollars and expensive gifts changed hands in a four-year scheme that allowed Tennessee convicts to buy their freedom.

A Nashville lawyer and a former Democratic Party committeeman also were indicted Thursday by the panel, which has been investigating allegations of a clemency-for-cash operation since May 1978.

Blanton, who testified before the grand jury in December, was told he was one of those being investigated. However, he was not accused of any wrongdoing in the 49-page indictment.

"This is not the end of the investigation," FBI agent Dick Day said at a news conference. He declined to elaborate. U.S.

District Judge L. Clure Morton told the panel to return "for further deliberations" April 5.

The grand jury report said $382,400 in illegal payments was requested for clemencies and $114,000 was paid. The report also said payments included a grandfather clock, a 1½-carat diamond ring, a coin collection and $1,400 in carpeting and installation.

Among the largest solicitations noted in the indictment was a $45,000 request in 1975 for commutation of a death sentence. The deal, the grand jury said, fell through because the convict, William Scharff, was able to raise only $7,000.

The indictment said the largest single payment was $30,000.

The indictment said the transactions occurred from Jan. 20, 1975 — when Blanton took office — to about Jan. 17 of this year, when Blanton was ousted three days early amid reports he planned to free convicts in the final hours of his administration.

At a late night meeting Jan. 15, Blanton pardoned three persons and commuted the sentences of 49 convicts, including convicted double murderer Roger Humphreys, son of a political ally.

In all, the grand jury said it suspects the sentences of four convicts were commuted as a result of the conspiracy; four extraditions were delayed; six commutations were attempted; the releases of five others were proposed and commutations for nine others were discussed.

Those indicted were former Blanton legal counsel T. Edward Sisk, former extradition officer Charles Benson Jr., suspended Highway Patrolman Fred Taylor, Blanton adviser J.P. Murrell, Dale Marden Quillen, a Nashville lawyer, and William Aubrey Thompson, a former Democratic committeeman in Hamilton County.

Each is charged with one count of conspiracy to extort and accept bribes and one count each of racketeering.

Group Hears Reporter

Rebecca Buffalo, general assignment reporter for "The Daily Reflector," spoke to East Carolina University journalism students Thursday.

She told students that reporters must be aware of their responsibility to the public and need to thoroughly understand the newspaper's policies to effectively serve the public. "You need to care about your job, because it never stops," Buffalo said.

Being a reporter on a small newspaper has definite advantages, she told them. "You get to know people, make contacts for future use and hopefully get people to trust you when you're first starting out," she said. She stressed the need for a reporter to put people at ease so communication can be free.

Buffalo is a recent graduate of East Carolina University, where she studied journalism, and has been employed by "The Reflector" for almost a year.

Demonstrators Invited Inside

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A small group of students, some of them carrying signs, marched outside the University of North Carolina Administration Building today as the UNC Board of Governors met to discuss desegregation of the 16-campus university system.

About 20 students at UNC-Chapel Hill, most of them white, marched in a circle and carried signs reading "Comply UNC," "Go HEW. We Want Action" and "Stop Stalling."

William Friday, president of the university system, spoke with the group briefly and invited its leader inside the building, where the board was getting ready to meet and discuss its dispute with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare over desegregation.

"We'll be glad to sit down and show you all the records, all that we've done," Friday said.

Leo Warschauer, a UNC undergraduate student and leader of the group, said Friday arranged an appointment for him next Monday to discuss the issue.

"I'd like to see the university bargain in good faith," Warschauer said.

Evaluation Is Said 'Positive'

An annual site evaluation has been underway at the Pitt County Mental Health Center this week.

Dr. Stephen Creech, area director, said the evaluation was "highly positive." He said the visiting management, services, and community teams offered "commendable assessments" of center programs, services and personnel.

"That's a beautiful press release," I told Bromberg.

"Medicine is a whole new ball game," he said. "I know many doctors, good people in their fields, who don't think they need a press agent. But they're finding out that when people have an appendectomy they want a name."

"No one is going to be impressed if you say you had surgery by somebody who hasn't at least been on the Johnny Carson show."

"I had one doctor who came to me, and he was barely making $100,000 a year. I got him on the cover of Parade Magazine, and now he owns his own hospital and shopping center in New Jersey."

Defective Products Suit Limit Is Sent To House

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill that would limit a consumer's ability to sue manufacturers and retailers for injury by defective products was given final approval by the state Senate Thursday and sent to the House, despite opponents' warnings that it amounts to abandonment of consumer rights in North Carolina.

It would be "reckless abandonment of the people of North Carolina if we deprive the people of the recourse to the court because they do not know when a product was manufactured," Sen. William Creech, D-Wake, said.

Creech was objecting to the section of the bill that drew the most fire from opponents during the two days it was debated on the Senate floor. The section says no action may be brought for damage by defective products more than 10 years after the date of manufacture.

Opponents attempted to delete this section Wednesday but failed. They say the time in which a consumer could sue would be far less because products could sit in warehouses for much of that time before being purchased by the consumer.

"I find it difficult for any fair-minded person to put the onus on the people," Creech said.

Opponents have also said it would be difficult for consumers to determine the date a product was manufactured.

The bill, which supporters say will stop frivolous products-liability suits and therefore check the rising costs of products-liability insurance, is expected to face even tougher opposition in the House, although the immunity it provided manufacturers was reduced somewhat by Senate committee amendments.

Most of the opposition has come from trial lawyers, and the House committee that will consider the bill includes a number of lawyers.

In other legislative action Thursday:

Non-public schools
A second bill was filed in the Senate that would remove non-public schools from the regulations of the State Board of Education.

The bill was filed by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, and is similar in intent to the bill filed by Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland. Harris' bill is aimed at removing the state's fundamentalist Christian schools from state board regulations, including those requiring the hiring of certified teachers and the administering of the state minimum competency test.

Harris' bill was approved and sent to the full Senate by a Senate judiciary committee Thursday.

Both bills would still require the Christian schools and other non-public schools to comply with health, safety and attendance regulations and participate in an annual testing program. But the schools could choose their own tests rather than use the standard state tests, as they are required to do now.

Swain's bill was scheduled for introduction in the Senate today, and Harris' bill was expected to be on the calendar for consideration by the full body.

Credit Cards
The House Banking Committee delayed until next week a vote on a bill limiting interest-rate collections on credit-card accounts. But the measure got little support on the committee.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Eugene White, D-Caldwell, would change the rules under which banks may collect interest. Currently, if only part of a monthly bill is paid, the cardholder is charged 1½ percent monthly interest on the average daily balance during that month — including the amount that has been paid off.

White's bill would retain the average daily balance formula but would eliminate from it any amount the individual paid during the month. Under his bill, White said, most card-holders would be paying interest on a smaller amount than they do now.

The bill was strongly opposed by banking lobbyist John Jordan. "The law is already slanted overwhelmingly in favor of the consumer," he said.

Absentee Voting
Sponsors of a bill filed in the Senate say it will reduce absentee voting fraud. Five senators filed the bill, which would reduce the period during which voters may cast an absentee ballot at their county board of elections office from 60 days to 30 days.

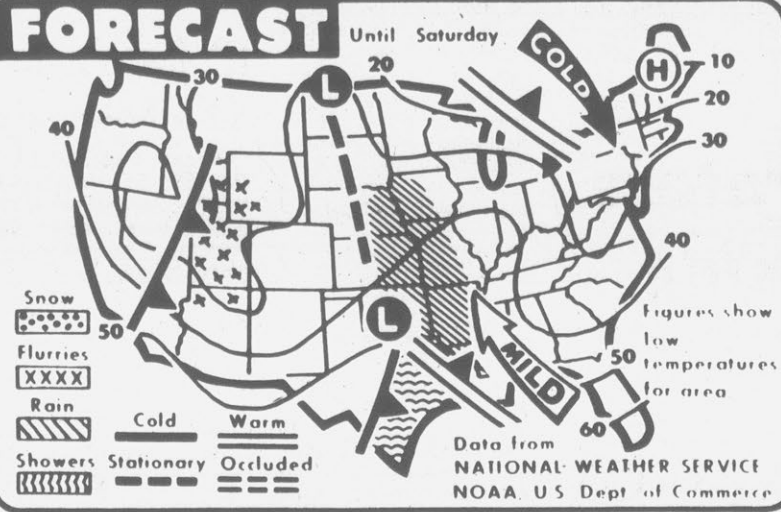

One sponsor, Sen. William Creech, D-Wake, said that by cutting down the time available for voting, the bill would reduce the chances of absentee-voter fraud. The bill would also require that absentee ballots cast at those offices be filled out in a voting booth.

Deferred Payments
The Senate Banking Committee approved a bill that would allow state-chartered savings and loan associations to offer home mortgages with small initial monthly payments that increase over the period of the loan. Federal regulations permit such loans, but state-chartered lenders may only offer loans with uniform monthly payments.

The bill is based on the idea that a person just getting started in a career may be earning a small income but can expect to make a larger salary in future years. The interest payments would be smaller while the buyer's income is low but would rise sharply a few years later — when the buyer's income had presumably risen as well.

The bill's critics say borrowers who do not fully understand how sharply their payments will rise after the first few years of the loan may not be prepared to meet them.

A warmer, sunny weekend is in store for North Carolina still shivering from a cold front that moved into the state early Thursday.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

FARMVILLE — Revival services will be held at Wesley Methodist Church beginning Sunday and continuing through Wednesday, March 21, at 7:30 p.m.

The guest speaker will be Gene Purcell of Pikeville. The services will include special singing and a social hour will follow the service. Terry Shackelford is the pastor.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

AYDEN — A gospel sing will be held at the Timothy Christian Church, Rt. 2, Ayden, Saturday beginning at 7:30 p.m. The featured singers will be the Gospel Gentlemen of Goldsboro. The public is invited to attend.

High temperatures today will climb into the 50s, except for some 40s along the north coast and the northwest mountains. The highs will continue to rise Saturday, when readings should reach the 60s, except for some 50s in the northwest mountains.

Again Sunday, the outlook is for fair and warm weather with highs well up into the 60s.

An extensive high pressure system over the Ohio Valley today will dominate the Tar Heel weather picture through Sunday as it moves slowly to the east coast. The leading edge of this high pressure area — a cold front — moved through North Carolina early Thursday, bringing with it much colder air and some strong and gusty winds.

High temperatures across North Carolina reflected the colder air, with readings ranging from the mid 40s to the mid 50s — some 10 to 15 degrees colder than Wednesday. There were even some 30s reported for highs in the northwest mountains.

New Bern with a high of 55 degrees was the warmest in the state. In the northwest mountains, Boone only managed a high of 31 degrees.

Fantasizing On Truck Drivers

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — I think somebody at CBS is harboring a fantasy about lady truck drivers. Nothing wrong with that, we're all entitled to our daydreams, except this fantasy shows up about once a month in the form of a TV movie.

Last month, it was "Flatbed Annie and Sweetie Pie: Lady Truckers," a fatuous little piece that established no high mark in television drama. Just a couple of cuties tooling in their big rig talkin' trucker talk.

This time, though, we get a storyline to go along with our lesson in the highway idiom. "Willa," the CBS Saturday Night Movie, is about an I-don't-need-no-man hashlinger who pines for the freedom of the blacktop. Seems her Daddy was a truck-drivin' man, see, and it's in her blood.

Willa's husband, natch, left Willa alone to take care of two babies and an alcoholic mother. So, she quits her job, goes on welfare and makes a deal with the local produce man, John Amos. She'll spend her evenings unloading weighty sacks of produce if he'll teach her to drive a truck. Here, you know Amos is going to say, "Truckin's serious business, it ain't for no skinny chick." He does.

But Willa's will prevails and, even though she is pregnant, she totes those sacks and learns to drive that big rig.

Here's where the story comes in. To drive a truck, of course, you have to leave town. And when Willa leaves, the welfare

SPACE SAGA SEQUEL — Mark Hamill, who you may remember as Luke Skywalker, the hero of "Star Wars", rides a "Tauntaun" across the frozen wastes of the ice planet Hoth, in scene from "The Empire Strikes Back". The movie, being filmed in Norway at present, is a sequel to "Star Wars". It is scheduled to be released in summer 1980. (AP Laserphoto)

The bidding:

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

The myth of the expert has grown over the years. It is a common fallacy to believe that as soon as he sees dummy, he knows the location of every card. All he does is correctly deduce from the bidding and play just what the distribution is, combine that with a knowledge of probabilities and card combinations, and come up with the winning solution.

South had a classic two no-trump opening bid—23 points and a balanced distribution. North had just enough to raise to game.

West led his fourth-best heart, East won the ace and continued with the jack. Declarer faced his first test. There were two chances—that East had started with specifically A-J-10 bare, in which case it would be right to cover with the queen and block the suit, or A-J bare, when it would be right for South to play low. Declarer realized that the latter possibility was more likely, and he was over the first hurdle when he played low Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. and East could not continue the suit.

East shifted to the queen of spades, won by the king. If either minor suit broke 3-2, the contract would be safe. Which suit should South go for first?

If you answered diamonds, you are right, for there is only one hope in diamonds should the suit divide 4-1. That is to find East with a singleton honor. Accordingly, declarer cashed the ace and king of diamonds, and learned the bad news when East discarded a spade.

To complete his count of the hand, declarer cashed the ace of spades. When West followed to this, he was marked with six hearts, four diamonds and at least two spades. Therefore, he could not hold more than one club.

The rest was simply a matter of technique. Declarer crossed to the queen of clubs and led the ten. He intended running it if East did not cover. However, East put in the jack, declarer won the king and West showed out, as expected. Now declarer simply crossed to dummy with the queen of diamonds, led another club and, when East played low, took the marked finesse of the eight for his ninth trick.

Trouble Begins With A TV 'Hit'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If a television series flops, the network and producers can remain friends, but if the show is a hit, "the adversarial relationship begins," says producer Norman Lear.

"If the show is a smash hit, the system makes us opposing forces in a war that will not end until the series is concluded," said Lear, who has produced such hits as "All in the Family," "One Day at a Time," and "Maude."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, unable to break the stalemate of the past several sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which has not shown a daily price change of more than 2 1/2 points all week, slipped .17 to 846.85 in the first two hours today.

Gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said there was nothing in the news to stir the market out of its recent neutral trend.

The Federal Reserve's weekly report late Thursday showed a $3.7 billion jump in the basic measure of the money supply.

But the longer-term course of the money supply, which analysts watch more closely than the week-to-week fluctuations, continued to reflect slowing growth rates. And brokers said the impact of the latest figures on the stock market seemed to be slight.

Oil stocks, which have been strong lately, were mostly higher again today. Occidental Petroleum rose 3/4 to 20 1/2. Getty Oil added 1 1/2 to 44 1/2, and Exxon was up 1/4 at 53 1/2.

Norton Simon dropped 1/2 to 15 1/4 in trading that included a 150,000-share block at that price.

The NYSE's composite index rose .14 to 56.22. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index picked up .49 to 172.14.

Charge Rape Bottle Deposit Bill Is Offered In N.C. House

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two Shaw University basketball players and two other students have been charged with rape after a Raleigh woman said she was assaulted in a Shaw dormitory room Friday night.

Willie Samuel Kitchen, 19, was arrested Monday by the Raleigh police. The three others, Carl Wilbert Lacy, 18, Emmanuel Julien Williams, 19, and Gregg Allen West, 19, turned themselves in Tuesday at the request of police, Detective G.L. Mack said.

Lacy is a 6-foot-2-inch freshman guard from Philadelphia, Pa. Williams is a 6-foot-1-inch freshman guard from North Miami Beach, Fla. Both are scholarship athletes at Shaw.

The four, all residents of the fifth floor of the New Men's Dorm on the Shaw campus, are charged with raping Eugena C. Cherry, 19.

The four, all residents of the fifth floor of the New Men's Dorm on the Shaw campus, are charged with raping Eugena C. Cherry, 19.

Police said Miss Cherry, a student at the Raleigh School of Data Processing, dated Kitchen on Friday night and returned with him to his dorm room about 11 p.m.

Miss Cherry, who reported the incident Monday morning, told police she was raped by four men. She said each of the men raped her while the others held her.

District Court Judge Stafford G. Bullock set bonds of $2,500 each at a bond review hearing Wednesday.

Kitchen and West were released from jail on bond and ordered to remain on the Shaw campus pending trial on March 22.

Williams and Lacy remained in the Wake County Jail Thursday.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. David Diamond, D-Surry, has proposed legislation that would require a 5-cent deposit on beverage containers as the first step in a campaign to clean up North Carolina and conserve the state's natural resources.

Diamond's bill, which will be introduced in the House Monday, would require consumers to pay an extra 5 cents for drinks in any type of container, including plastic bottles, aluminum cans and glass bottles. The deposit would be refunded when the containers are returned to the retailer.

The retailer in turn would get an extra 1 cent above the 5-cent refund when he returned the containers to the distributor for reuse or recycling.

The proposal, which has been co-signed by 21 House members, would apply to containers that hold 16 ounces or less of soft drinks and all other non-alcoholic carbonated drinks, beer, ale or other malt drinks and any nonalcoholic uncarbonated drinks except vegetable juices and dairy products.

It would not be fully effective until 1982.

"Everybody in North Carolina will be affected," Diamond said. "The people who will oppose would like to see more things included than beer and soft drinks. We're saying other types in hopes that the industry will help us pass it."

Soft-drink and beer distributors are expected to object to the bill on grounds it would discriminate against their industries because larger containers such as whiskey and wine bottles are not included.

"This is just a beginning," Diamond said. "If this is realized, we'll move on to other things. The bottom line is, how long can we continue to throw things away?"

If the bill becomes law, it would make North Carolina the seventh state with a law requiring soft-drink and beer containers to be returned for reuse.

Board Backing Bond Issuance

The board of directors of the Downtown Greenville Association Inc., meeting Thursday, voted unanimously to endorse the issuance of general purpose bonds to finance service improvements by the Greenville Utilities Commission.

The directors, it was pointed out, indicated they felt that not only was expansion necessary to insure a continuing orderly growth here, but that the bonds were the best way to finance the investment required.

DGA executive director David Mosier said the directors were also impressed by the facts that no increase in the city's tax rate would be anticipated and that there would be no increase in electrical rates in order to meet the payback schedule of the bonds.

Mosier said that one of the key items discussed by the directors regarded the sewerage treatment situation and the fact that if the Utilities Commission did not meet the new discharge guidelines of the Environmental Protection Agency, GUC would face fines of up to $10,000 per day.

Mosier added that the directors would work with all members of the association, urging them and their employees to learn the facts of the issue and vote on April 3.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today ordered the Islamic court trying former Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida to halt its proceedings until new rules can be drawn up for the revolutionary tribunals that have sent at least 62 men before firing squads in little more than a month.

There was no immediate explanation for the decision, but the move was seen to represent a victory for Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan who has threatened to resign if such "inhuman and irregular" proceedings continued.

Khomeini's decision was read over Tehran Radio, and shortly afterward a spokesman for the ayatollah said Bazargan and two Cabinet ministers had traveled to the holy city of Qom on Thursday night for consultations with the Moslem leader.

Although there was no immediate confirmation, it appeared certain that Bazargan's trip to Khomeini's residence 100 miles south of Tehran was made primarily to protest the Hoveida trial and the repercussions it might have on the country.

Khomeini's revolutionary committee opened Hoveida's trial Thursday on an invited audience after the executions of at least 62 men convicted in secret since Khomeini's forces took power Feb. 12.

Selected Iranian reporters were invited along with some 200 relatives of demonstrators killed by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's police. The reporters said the trial began about 2 a.m. in a makeshift courtroom in Tehran's Qasr Prison.

Chickens were served at the trial. The trial was held in a makeshift courtroom in Tehran's Qasr Prison.

Elon Halts Pirate Win Streak By 4-1

ELON — Elon snapped East Carolina's three-game shutout streak with a 4-1 victory over the Pirates here Thursday afternoon.

The Pirates, who had recorded three consecutive shutout victories going into the game, got their only run on a one-out homer by Macon Moye in the fourth inning. Righthander Hughes Crisp scattered seven hits and fought off Pirate threats throughout the second half of the game.

The Pirates, now 4-5, left 11 runners on base from the fourth through the eighth innings, but could not score following Moye's round tripper.

The Fighting Christians bunched nine of their 11 hits into the first four innings, but could only score again when the Pirates elected to complete a double play in the fourth.

Elon scored in the first when shortstop Paul Judy and second baseman Mike Rushton opened the frame with singles. Right fielder Phil Baskerville plated Judy with a long sacrifice fly to left before Pirate starter Rick Ramey could strike out the next two batters.

In that inning, singles by center fielder Gene Drumwright, catcher Dave Lenig and an infield hit by designated hitter Greg Lenig loaded the bases. Third baseman Billy Freeman grounded into the double play.

Ramey, still seeking his first win after three decisions, walked only one during the seven innings he pitched, while striking out seven. He departed after walking the first batter in the eighth.

East Carolina plays a doubleheader at N. C. State today.

Rampettes In Loss

Rose High School's girls' softball team suffered its second straight defeat yesterday, bowing to Kinston, 14-5.

Kinston pushed over three runs in the first inning, but Rose came back to score twice on a home run by Donna Cullipher in the bottom of the frame. The Rampettes tied it up with another in the second, but then fell back again as Kinston scored once in the third for a 4-3 lead.

Rose pushed over two in the fourth to go ahead, 5-4, but Kinston scored five times in the fifth, and then added five more in the seventh to win going away.

Cullipher, Deborah Wingate, Sherri Helmes, Diane Littlefield and Vita Anthony each had two hits for Rose. No one had more than one for Kinston.

Rose, now 0-2, travels to Kinston for a return game on Monday.

Alabama, Purdue Advance

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
What, we worry?
Not Alabama's basketball team.
The cold-shooting Crimson Tide fell behind Texas A&M 23-

6 in the first 12 minutes of their National Invitation Tournament quarter-final game Thursday night at the Houston Summit. And they trailed 36-30 at half-time.
But were they worried?

No way.
"We felt good at the half because we knew we could come back," said Alabama's Reggie King, the Southeastern Conference Player of the Year.

And come back they did. After their slow start, the Tide got rolling and beat the Aggies 72-68, earning a berth in Monday night's NIT semifinals at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Unranked Alabama, 21-10, the only representative not from the Big Ten Conference remaining in the tournament, will face 15th-ranked Purdue, 26-7, a 67-59 winner over Old Dominion Thursday night at West Lafayette, Ind.

The other semifinal will match Ohio State, 19-10, against Indiana, 20-12, in a battle of unranked teams.

"We've had to come from behind a lot this season," said Ken Johnson, Alabama's scoring leader with 20 points. "We just kept on executing what we had been doing and the shots started falling."

They started falling so well that Alabama went ahead by eight points in the second half. But Texas A&M battled back and tied the score 60-60 with less than four minutes to play.

Then King drilled in a baseline jump shot and freshman Eddie Phillips made a slam dunk and was deliberately fouled. Phillips converted two fouls shots, completing a four-point play, and Alabama was safely ahead.

King finished with 18 points and Phillips had 17 as Alabama put an unexpected end to Texas A&M's season.

"I'm sad," said Rudy Woods, the Aggies' freshman center who scored 22 points. "The season wasn't supposed to end tonight. It was supposed to continue in New York Monday night."

It will continue for Purdue. The Boiler-makers, behind the 30-point scoring of 7-foot-1 junior center Joe Barry Carroll, led virtually all the way in eliminating Old Dominion, 23-7.

China Says Last Troops Have Departed Vietnam

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Chairman Hua Guofeng says the last Chinese troops have withdrawn from Vietnam, but the Vietnamese government reported today that Chinese forces were still shelling and looting inside Vietnam and Laos reported Chinese troops crossed its border last week.

Hua, China's premier and Communist Party leader, announced the end of the invasion China began Feb. 17 in a meeting in Peking Thursday with the governor of Tokyo, Ryokichi Minobe, Japan's Kyodo news agency reported. But Hua did not say if Chinese troops had pulled out of areas in which Vietnam claimed the Chinese put up new boundary markers.

negotiations one week after the total pullout of Chinese troops. Laos, meanwhile, accused China of sending two battalions more than a mile into Laotian territory on March 7 and said three days later other Chinese troops "nibbled" along a six-mile front and penetrated some two miles inside Laos.

The official Voice of Vietnam charged that Chinese troops encroached on the village of Boa on March 7 and at the village of Muang on March 10. Both are in the rugged northern province of Nam Tha, which borders China's Yunnan province.

The broadcast also charged that Peking continued to send an increasing number of spies and agents into Laos to overthrow the Vientiane government.

show the Chinese rulers' intentions to violate the sovereignty of Laos and reveal China's antagonistic behavior toward the Lao people and its inhuman designs to overthrow the government," it said.

Laos already has ordered the expulsion of all Chinese aid technicians in Laos. Peking expressed "immense regret" Thursday over the decision and warned its southern neighbor not to move further "down the anti-China road."

Western analysts in Bangkok have been skeptical of recent charges by Laos, Vietnam and the Soviet Union that the Chinese were massing troops along the Laotian border. They reasoned that if the fighting spread to Laos, all of Indochina would have been engulfed by conflict within the past three months.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia Dec. 25 and installed a pro-Hanoi Cambodian Communist government in Phnom Penh which is still fighting the remnants of the ousted regime of Premier Pol Pot.

The Pol Pot guerrillas claimed today they had killed or wounded more than 250 Vietnamese and knocked out three tanks in fighting March 8-13 in widespread areas of the country.

Now-Disappeared N.C. Town Once Split State Legislature

By Dr. H. G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — The town of New Exeter has vanished without a physical trace, but two centuries ago it was the subject of a sarcastic verbal exchange between the two houses of the legislature.

It all started when the House of Burgesses passed a bill continuing an inspection station at the village on the northeast branch of the Cape Fear River in what was then New Hanover County — now Pender County.

If the Council had said nothing more, there might have been no trouble. But the members argued in their formal message that the town's continued designation as an inspection landing could not "answer any public Good, though it may the Opposite Interests of Individuals."

That accusation of pork-barreling incensed the representatives; they were outraged by the insinuation that only private interests were involved.

considerable size. Roads led to it from Wilmington, New Bern, and Duplin Courthouse. Apparently there was a ferry across the river.

The name continued to appear on some maps into the 19th Century, though eventually the name was eliminated. However, the symbol of a town remained.

Near the town three mills operated at one time or another: Rutherford's, Ashe's, and Banerman's. Apparently the nearby creek took the name of Ashe's Mill.

nity of Player (or Plear), and the Holly Shelter State Game Management Area is believed to occupy the approximate site.

It was one of many colonial towns that sprang up along the rivers, enjoyed a brief period of activity as a boat landing and inspection station, and eventually shrank into a country crossroads.

New Exeter was luckier than most, for at least its name was perpetuated by early maps and the legislative record of a battle of words. Some others, no less important for a short duration, vanished without mention in the printed records.

Despite the reported withdrawal, Hanoi Radio said fierce fighting was still going on in Cao Bang and that several hundred Chinese troops were killed in the Ta Hu Xin area of the province.

Both China and Vietnam have called for negotiations but analysts say problems may arise if Peking's troops don't pull out of areas claimed by Vietnam. Hanoi reiterated Thursday it was ready to hold

Puzzled By Fire Deaths

WAXHAW, N.C. (AP) — Two persons were killed in a fire Thursday morning that destroyed a five-room frame house and burned the bodies beyond recognition.

Fire officials and neighbors said the victims were believed to be Rice Dunning, in his late 20s, and Stephanie Faulkner, 22, who had shared the house about four miles north of Waxhaw for about four years.

The bodies were taken to the N.C. Medical Examiner's office in Chapel Hill for identification. Doubts about the identities were raised because the couple had told their families they would be vacationing in Wilmington.

A Union County sheriff's deputy said investigators did not suspect foul play. But officials were baffled as to why the back of Dunning's car was in a three-foot ditch, with skid marks on the road in front of it. The window on the driver's side was broken.

Neighbors said Dunning usually parked the blue-green Audi behind the house.

A neighbor reported the blaze about 4:15 a.m., and it took fire fighters 2½ hours to extinguish it.

Fire investigators speculated the blaze started in a wood-burning stove in the kitchen. The structure was destroyed except for a brick fireplace and a few charred beams.

Dunning was a student at N.C.-Charlotte and Miss Faulkner was employed by a Charlotte camera shop, according to her sister, Valerie Faulkner.

The day has been set aside to recognize the contributions made by farmers in Pitt County.

Re-Roofing

Contracts have recently been awarded for the reroofing of three buildings on the East Carolina University campus. The contracts, which total $106,500, were awarded to East Coast Roofing and Metals, Inc. of Greenville.

Included in the contracts are the east and west wings of Flanagan Building which houses the chemistry, science education and industrial technology departments, Whichard Building where the administrative offices are located, and the rear portion of Minges Coliseum over the swimming pool and diving tank areas.

Phil Flowers, president of East Coast Roofing, said that all three buildings will receive a Trolac roofing system. This PVC plastic membrane system, which has come into wide institutional use in this area in recent years, is a totally new concept in flat roofing, according to Flowers, who stated that work would probably begin on the buildings in early spring.

File Civil Suit Against Bagley

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has filed a civil suit against Reynolds Tobacco Co. heir Smith Bagley charging him with stock fraud. A federal grand jury in North Carolina indicted him earlier this week on similar allegations.

The SEC suit, filed in U.S. District Court here Thursday, seeks a permanent injunction to stop an alleged scheme by Bagley and three North Carolina men: James R. Gilley and William F. Thomas of Winston-Salem and David R. Johnston of Charlotte.

Bagley, Gilley and Thomas were among five persons indicted Wednesday in Winston-Salem in connection with the same alleged scheme.

The five have been ordered to appear in court April 9 in Greensboro on the grand jury charges.

Bagley, a prominent Washington socialite and grandson of the founder of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., entertained President Carter at Bagley's Georgia vacation home after Carter won the 1976 election. He also served as a campaign fundraiser for Carter.

The SEC alleged that Bagley

Toilets And Tax Crises

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The topics at Maine's annual town meetings this year are running the gamut from budgets to bathrooms.

Consider last week's meeting at tiny Limerick, where a heated debate was interrupted by a persistent banging above the meeting hall.

"Mr. Moderator, can't they choose some other time to do repairs to Town Hall?" an irate resident demanded of Moderator Lendall Knight.

Knight quickly determined no repairs were being made. A hasty inspection revealed a woman trapped in an upstairs toilet.

While laughter rocked the hall, Knight declared a five-minute "municipal emergency," and a town official dashed off the stage, keys in hand, to rescue the woman.

Limerick's attendance at town meetings may have been the envy of civic leaders in Milo, but that was before Town Manager Stephen Law figured a way to get their attention.

Well in advance of the meeting, Law publicly estimated taxes might jump by 23 percent. About 350 people showed up — about six times the usual turnout.

When the residents got through with the budget, they had actually cut property taxes by two mills.

Student Attends Chicago Event

Don Blanchard, an ECU student and resident of Greenville, spent spring break visiting Chicago, and staying with Mr. and Mrs. Alan Jones, former residents of Greenville. While in the city, he attended a three-day "Marketing Warfare" Conference of the International Foodservice Manufacturers Association. Directors included presidents of such corporations as General Foods, Kraft, Procter & Gamble, and Nabisco.

Blanchard is a junior at ECU and is a business administration major.

Denies Blame By Management

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Company's president denied Thursday that Vepco's rates are higher than other utilities serving North Carolina due to poor Vepco management.

Stanley Ragone, Vepco president, said in written testimony filed with the state Utilities Commission that its staff's findings were based on a "superficial review of statistics and incomplete review of the relevant data."

"The Public Staff has made very serious, but unfounded, statements about the management of Virginia Electric & Power Co.," the statement said.

Ragone's statement was filed late Thursday, and no immediate response was made by the staff.

The commission will hold hearings April 24 to decide whether to reduce Vepco's rates because of the staff's findings.

The staff report, issued in January, contended that poor management and abuse of the monthly fuel charge had unnecessarily increased Vepco's rates.

Vepco acknowledged that its rates were higher than those charged by Duke Power Co. and Carolina Power & Light Co. but denied the staff's charges.

The staff concluded that Vepco plants must shut down too frequently for repairs because of poor maintenance, that Vepco had delayed converting oil-fired plants to coal and that the utility had passed on higher fuel costs to its customers rather than making investments to reduce those costs.
