Spring Meets Deadline

Schools' Calendar Decisions Put Off

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Action on the school calendar for school year 1979-80 has been deferred until April. The calendar, scheduled for adoption at the March action meeting of the Greenville Board of Education, called for a first pupil full day on Wednesday, August 29, 1979 and a final/graduation date of Tuesday, June 10, 1980.

At the continuation meeting Tuesday night of the Monday night recessed school board meeting, school board members directed Superintendent Glenn Cox to prepare a second calendar, one that would give a final day/graduation date of Friday, June 6.

Among possible rearrangements available to shorten the calendar are: beginning school one or two days earlier, shortening the week-long Easter holiday, or reshuffling one of days designated as teacher work day/student holiday.

Also delayed until the April meeting was action on considering an off-campus lunch hour for students at Rose High. This was due to the fact that students could not attend last night's meeting to provide input due to activities they were already committed to.

A bid of $21,617 was awarded to Howard Williams Roofing Company of Greenville for phase 2 of roof repairs and resaturation at Rose High School. The overall project has a base bid of $19,450; a design fee of $1,167; and contingency fee of $1,000. Two other bids were received on the roofing project, one from Lan-Way Contractors, Inc. at $28,450; and Service Roofing & Sheet Metal Co., $22,500.

North Carolina National Bank (NCNB) was approved as the bank for the 1979-1981 Systemwide Funds Depository. One member, Miles Frost, abstained from voting, citing a conflict of interest. Cox said five local banks had submitted bids for the service. "It boiled down to two banks on which no substantial difference existed on services offered," Cox said. The bid policy calls for the board to make a judgement in case of two or more banks offering identical services.

The accounting firm of John C. Proctor & Co. was approved as the auditing firm for the accounts of the city schools. The contract for the 1978-79 funds is for a fee of $4,300.

The lingering question of the format for agendas of the two scheduled monthly school board meetings was resolved.

Profit Report Stirs Dismay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's report that business profits increased a whopping 26.4 percent last year is heating the already fiery debate over the effectiveness of the nation's efforts to stem inflation.

"We will take steps to deal with it," promised President Carter's principal assistant, Hamilton Jordan.

"Profits data cannot be used as a scapegoat for bad government policies that are causing inflation," countered Chamber of Commerce economist Jack Carlson.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, one of the harshest critics of the president's anti-inflation program, was expected to give his views today on the profits report.

The focus of the debate is the Commerce Department's Tuesday announcement that before-tax profits during the fourth quarter of 1978 were at an annual rate of $225.3 billion, a gain of $19.9 billion over the third quarter and $47 billion or 26.4 percent over the final three months of 1977.

After-tax profits rose $26.3 billion against the previous fourth quarter, an increase of 25.2 percent.

The increase in both before-tax and after-tax profits was the largest since 1950.

Indicative UNC Board 'Bypassed'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Department of Health, Education and Welfare official apparently bypassed University of North Carolina officials and went directly to a legislator in a push for a compromise over UNC's desegregation plan.

A legislative appropriations committee chairman raised the possibility Tuesday of spending $60 million to $80 million to help upgrade the five predominantly black colleges in the system, apparently at the suggestion of the official, who was not identified.

Sen. Jim Edwards, D-Caldwell, asked UNC President William C. Friday Tuesday what his reaction to such a plan would be and Friday said, "It would have to be written down somewhere and signed."

Friday said if the legislature approved $60 to $80 million in new expenditures for the black campuses, he doubted that it would be willing to spend any more money on the remaining 11 campuses in the UNC system.

He said that HEW secretary Joseph Califano wants North Carolina to spend $120 million over the next six years to upgrade the black campuses. The state proposed spending $21 million over four years, he said. Edwards' caller suggested spending $60 million to $80 million over eight years.

Edwards is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee on Education, before which Friday appeared Tuesday.

Edwards said the legislature might be able to appropriate the compromise amount if such an action would avoid a court suit.

Edwards said the contacts prompted him to question Friday when he appeared before the panel.

He said the HEW representative hadn't informed university system officials or Gov. Jim Hunt's office of the new strategy.

Friday said he did not know of the direct appeal to Edwards until the committee meeting. He declined comment on the calls to Edwards, saying he didn't know what the calls might mean.

Edwards said he thought HEW realized that the legislature, not the university administration, controls the purse strings.

"I just think HEW

Officers Are Elected At Memorial Hospital Meeting Of Trustees

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
New officers were chosen last night for the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees.

Elected by acclamation were G. Henry Leslie as chairman; James T. Cheatham III as vice chairman; Ephraim Smith as secretary; Norfleet Sugg as treasurer; and Mildred Indorf as assistant treasurer.

Named to the executive committee were the chairman, vice chairman and secretary, plus Glenn Strickland, Billy Phillips, Albert C. Martin and Dr. John L. Wooten.

Thomas J. White Jr. was welcomed as a new appointee. A Kinston attorney, he is a UNC appointee.

Reappointed were Albert C. Martin and Harvey E. Beech, both of Kinston. Based on a charter revision of some time ago, the board is gradually being shrunk in size to 20 members. The membership now stands at 24.

Recognized as retiring members were Mrs. Martha Walston, with three years service, and Otis Stokes, Roscoe Bell and Eugene James, each with 12 years service, the maximum any board member can serve.

The Board heard a presentation by John Larson of Howell, Larson and Associates Health Care Consultants, a Virginia firm that has spent some months compiling "a blueprint for fulfilling the future role of Pitt County Memorial Hospital as a regional medical center."

The study was accepted by the board, with one nay vote, that of Mildred Indorf, who expressed indignation, saying that she had believed, upon reading the report, that it was a rough draft, because it is, in her opinion, so poorly written.

Approval was given for Hospital Director Jack Richardson to accept a hospital administration resident from the Medical College of Virginia to begin work here in August. This residency program would cost the hospital about $12,000 a year, he indicated. $2,000 was approved for the cost to be incurred during this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

Finance Committee Chairman Norfleet Sugg said the hospital's net income is running $251,000 over budget so far this year. He praised Finance Officer Warren McRoy's money management, saying all excess funds are earning money. He asked for and received approval for the retention of Michael

Grady of Lowrimore Warwick and Company accounting firm here at a cost of $40 per hour, not to exceed 45 hours, to review hospital finance reporting procedures and forms "to see if the finance committee is receiving the best possible information on which to base management decisions."

Several board members expressed indignation at the

Education Officials Tour Local Schools, See Improvement Needs

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The chairman of the State Board of Education, Dr. David Bruton, and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Craig Phillips, visited schools in Greenville and Pitt County today as part of a three-day visit to Eastern North Carolina.

The officials attended a breakfast meeting with Greenville Board of Education members, city school principals and members of the city's central office staff, then toured the Greenville Middle School and Farmville Central High School where they talked with staff and students.

At the breakfast session, Bruton and Phillips responded to questions and asked questions. The topics ranged from energy costs, and capital needs to bond issues, and reading programs, and maintenance.

Phillips said, "We're out visiting...to look first hand at what needs to be done."

He added that by visiting local school systems, talking with administrators, teachers and students, and seeing facilities at the grass roots level, "we can do a better job."

Bruton said the tour started Sunday with a visit to Ocracoke, and has included

Exemptions To Open Meetings Law Pushed

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Pleas by local governments and the Council of State for more exemptions in open meetings legislation would only weaken the proposed new law, representatives of the state's newspapers and broadcast stations told a Senate panel Tuesday.

The House-passed measure that would revise the state's open meetings act is now before the Senate Judiciary III Committee, and was the subject of a public hearing Tuesday.

"If we ask everybody who's covered by this bill if they favor open meetings, they'd say 'yes, but we don't want our meetings to be covered by the law,'" Wade Hargrove, attorney for the N.C. Association of Broadcasters, said. "On the close calls, I hope you'll opt for openness."

The bill was generally praised during the sparsely-attended session, but lobbyists for the N.C. Hospital Association, the N.C. League of Municipalities and the N.C. Association of County Commissioners each asked for broader exemptions that would allow their groups to meet in secret.

"We all want to get with the times and have government in the open," said W.C. "Buck" Harris, representing the hospitals. "However, there are certain areas where in our opinion it is essential that we give protection to certain meetings."

Harris' group is asking for an exemption to allow hospital boards of trustees to vote in secret on disciplining other doctors. The bill presently allows the boards to discuss the action in private but vote in public.

The bill would strengthen the existing open meetings law, provide certain civil suit sanctions against violations and make more specific the reasons a public board can go into executive session.

Other changes requested by the local governments would allow complete exemptions for taking action to acquire land, and removal of the bill's main sanction. Under that provision, a judge who found that a public board held an illegal secret meeting could order the government to pay legal fees to the plaintiff.

William Lassiter, representing the N.C. Press Association, urged the committee not to comply with a request last week by Secretary of State Thad Eure that the Council of State be granted a full exemption from the law.

Eure said the elected officials of the council have historically met in secret because they discuss what he said were sensitive matters such as buying and selling of property and emergency appropriations.

"It appears to me the members of the Council of State have not read the bill," Lassiter said. "If the Council of State is made a part of this, there are already provisions to allow them to consider acquisition of property in executive session."

Lassiter asked for removal of a provision added in the House, which requires that a judge find an open meetings violation to be "willful" before he can access attorney fees.

HOUSE BURNED

The house occupied by Earlene Locke, her brother, Danny Ray Locke, and her son, Jumar, three, burned in late February.

Almost everything in the house was either burned or smoke- or water-damaged. The Lockes are repairing and repainting the house and continuing to live in it, but are in need of furnishings and other household goods for it. The house is located near Dell's Grocery and Grill in the Bell's Fork community off Highway 43 south of Greenville. Danny Locke is a construction worker for Pitt County.

Bell's Chapel Church pastor, Thomas Dixon, says Ms. Locke is a member of his church and he has asked Hotline to appeal for help for her and her brother and son. Contributions may be made in care of the church treasurer: Bell's Chapel Church, Mrs. Mabel Jenkins, treasurer, 306 Collins St., Greenville, N. C. 27834. Gifts also may be sent directly to the Lockes or taken to the house, Rt. 2, Box 195-A, Greenville. Inquiries may be made by calling a neighbor, 756-0133.

Sizes of the family members as follows: Earlene, women's 14; Danny Ray, 32 long pants and medium shirt; and Jumar, boys' size four.

The Little Girl Image Doesn't Work Any More

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International
 For some reason, it's always a surprise when a child star grows up. It's a natural enough thing to happen, of course; it happens to all of us. But for millions of movie-goers, Shirley Temple will always have golden curls and a bow in her hair — and Judy Garland will never grow out of those ruby slippers. Musicians don't get age-cast as readily as movie stars, but the pattern is similar. It took a lot of fans years to figure out that Little Stevie Wonder had grown up. He had acquired the image of a precocious kid and while that gave him a head start in the business it forced him to prove himself all over again for the audience as he matured.

 Now Tanya Tucker is going through that same difficult process.
 Most people will probably remember Tanya as a 13-year-old country singing sensation, a little cutie with a big, powerful voice and stage presence that never failed to startle the audience. Her first record, "Delta Dawn," was a smash and she followed that with a string of impressively sophisticated country hits.

But now she's 20 years old; that little girl image just doesn't work any more. And with her new album, "TNT" (MCA Records), she has declared her independence from her past in a fashion almost as startling as when she first appeared.
 Tanya Tucker is now a rock 'n' roller — and she's got the skin-tight black leather jeans to prove it.
 "When I first came to Nashville," she says, "I was real happy to be there. I was 13 and, of course, my roots were in country music. It was all I ever listened to, back home in Wilcox, Ariz. — Jimmy Rogers, Hank Williams. But I went to high school in Vegas and started listening to rock 'n' roll. I liked the way it felt, liked the way I could move to it."
 Anyone who has seen Tanya in concert can attest to the fact that she moves to it very well indeed. And the new record demonstrates once and for all that she can rock in the studio just as well as she does on stage.

Pitt Insurance Women Receive Regional Awards

The National Association of Insurance Women, International, Region II, held its 33rd annual conference in Richmond, Va., Friday through Sunday.
 States represented were North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia which comprise Region II. The conference was held at the Richmond Hyatt House.
 The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women was represented by Mrs. Joyce Mills, CPIW, and Mrs. Audrey Stillwell, CPIW, delegate. All Certified Professional Insurance Women were honored at a luncheon Friday and was attended by Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Stillwell. Workshops were held Friday afternoon, prepared by regional committee chairmen. Mrs. Stillwell, region chairman for ACORD prepared an information table and gave a report Saturday morning.
 Club presidents, past regional directors and national officers were honored at the Saturday luncheon which was also attended by Mrs. Stillwell. Regional awards were also presented. First place in legislation was awarded to the Pitt County women with Mrs. Stillwell accepting for Chairman Sophia Sumner, CPIW. First place in safety was received by the club.

Miss Murray Entertained

Miss Nancy Ruth Murray, whose marriage to Charles E. Mayo Jr. will take place April 7, was honored at a kitchen shower held last week at the home of Mrs. Wade Jordan.
 Upon arrival the honoree was presented a white mink corsage. Guests were welcomed and presented to the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. William M. Murray, and Mrs. Charles E. Mayo Sr., mother of the bridegroom-elect by Mrs. Jordan.
 A spring basket of jonquils and greenery flanked by two lighted tapers centered the refreshment table.
 Approximately 20 guests were present for the shower. Hostesses, Mrs. Curtis L. Hardee Sr. and Mrs. Jordan, remembered the bride-elect with a gift.

Produced by the decidedly non-country Jerry Goldstein of Far Out Productions, "TNT" mixes rock standards like Buddy Holly's "Not Fade Away" and Elvis' "Heartbreak Hotel" with some newer material, including a fine version of "Texas (When I Die)," a tune that proves she isn't about to forget her established country audience.

The band is tight and there are a variety of guests on the clean, well-produced album, including John Prine and Seals and Crofts.
 The whole thing may seem sudden to anyone who was still thinking of Tanya as a kid — but she doesn't see it that way.
 "It's just a growing experience — I'm growing up in my music. And people that are close to me don't think it's such a drastic change. My stage presence hasn't changed, it's just that now people who buy my records will have a better idea of what I'm like in concert."

There's one good word for Tanya, both on stage and on record: hot. And she still has all the time in the world.

Rescue Members Give Program

Two members of the Greenville Rescue Squad gave the program at the meeting of the Lake Ellsworth Garden Club held at the home of Mrs. Arlene Kraus. Mrs. Sonia Dickerson was assisting hostess.
 Capt. D. R. Daniels and D. B. Preast talked on choking, severe bleeding and heart attacks.
 Mrs. Hilda Weathers presided at the business meeting and reminded members of the silent plant auction to be held by the Greenville Garden Club.
 Members will hold their Lake Ellsworth annual spring yard and bake sale Saturday, May 5, which will be the club's major project for the spring.

Daughter Still Needs Mother's Approval

 © 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother lives in another town. She keeps asking me to visit her, but it's such a drag I seldom go, so she comes to visit me.
 I am 28, female and married. For years I avoided visiting mother because her sister lives in the same town and I always had to go to see her, too. The minute I walked through my aunt's door she would "weigh" me with her eyes, then start in on me about how I should lose some weight. Now my mother has started to do the same thing.
 Abby, I have tried every diet there is and none has worked. So I've decided to accept myself as I am, and as long as my husband is satisfied, to heck with everyone else!
 When mother left, she asked when I was coming to visit her, so I wrote her a letter (which I haven't mailed yet) and told her that I would visit her after I shed 50 pounds.
 Am I being overly sensitive and unable to accept criticism, or am I justified in my feelings of irritation?
HEAVY PROBLEM

DEAR HEAVY: Yours is a heavier problem than shedding 50 pounds. It's shedding the role of a little girl who desperately needs mama's approval.
 I'm sure your mother means well, but she must be told that you are now an adult in charge of your own life, and until she quits treating you as a child, you will not visit her.

DEAR ABBY: Karen is my best friend. We are both 15. Karen spends a lot of time at my house. When my father is home, he has a habit of kissing Karen on the lips whenever she arrives and goes home. Do you consider this proper behavior for a 38-year-old man?
 Also, my father is always trying to get Karen to sit on his lap. Sometimes she does and sometimes she doesn't. I don't know if this is embarrassing to Karen or not. As a daughter it doesn't bother me, but I sure wouldn't want Karen's father kissing me on the lips or asking me to come sit on his lap.
 What is your opinion?
DADDY'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I think Karen is a little too OLD to be kissed on the lips by your father. And your father is too YOUNG to have a 15-year-old girl on his lap.

DEAR ABBY: About artificial insemination: When a man's sperm count is low and he wants to father a child, why not ask the sperm bank to combine his sperm with the sperm of an anonymous donor? Then when pregnancy occurs from the mixed sperm insemination, there is always the possibility that one of his sperm made it after all!
CHUKMAH

DEAR CHUK: Why not, indeed? My insemination experts tell me that technique has been used often.

Homemaker's Haven By Addie Gore Pitt Home Agent

Don't Know Beans About Beans? Here's All The Information You Need
 As prices for red meats, fish and other main dish protein foods have risen, many people have become aware that dry beans are an excellent alternative source of protein. However, they may not know how to shop for them or prepare them.
 So, here are a few tips about dry beans which are now in especially heavy supply.
Buying Tips
 Try to buy your beans, peas or lentils in cellophane bags or other "see through" types of packages such as cardboard boxes with a cellophane window. Then, consider these factors:
BRIGHTNESS OF COLOR: Beans, peas, and lentils should have a bright, uniform color. Loss of color usually indicates long storage, lack of freshness, and a product that will take longer to cook. Eating quality, however, is not affected.
UNIFORMITY OF SIZE: Look for beans of uniform size. Mixed sizes will result in uneven cooking, since smaller beans cook faster.
VISIBLE DEFECTS: Cracked seed coats, foreign material and pinholes caused by insect damage are signs of a low quality product.
Storage Tips
 Dry beans, peas and lentils should be kept in tightly covered containers and stored in a dry, cool place (50 to 70 degrees F is ideal). Stored in this manner, they will keep their quality for several months.
 After opening a package, don't mix the contents with that of other packages bought at separate times, particularly several months apart. Mixing packages will result in uneven cooking since older beans take longer to cook than fresher ones. Keep the product in the original package until opened. Then store it in a glass or metal jar or container with a tight fitting lid.
Preparation Tips
 Wash beans, peas and lentils first.
 Dry beans should be soaked before cooking to reduce the time required for cooking.
 A quick and effective way to soak beans is to start by boiling them in water for two minutes. Remove from heat, soak for one hour, and then they are ready to cook.
 If soaked overnight, it is still advantageous to start with the two-minute boil because this will mean fewer hard skins. If the beans are to be soaked overnight in a warm room, the brief boil will keep them from souring.
 One teaspoon of salt for each cup of dry beans will suit most tastes. For special flavor, add onions, herbs or meat. Add salt and flavoring only after soaking since salt toughens the surface of the beans and increases cooking time.
 Boil gently and stir very little in order to prevent the breaking of skins.
 Always remember to allow for expansion of beans when cooking. For example, depending on the type used, one cup of dry beans yields 2 to 2-3/4 cups of cooked beans.

 Now that you have mastered the basics, get out your cookbooks and look for interesting ways in which to prepare dry beans. You'll find an astonishing variety, as almost every ethnic group has created dishes around them — from, the French cassoulet to Boston baked beans. And they're all delicious. So start including beans in your menus with tonight's dinner.

Knesset Debates Treaty

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Parliament moved ahead today toward final ratification of the peace treaty with Egypt, and Prime Minister Menachem Begin's latest rejection of a Palestinian state and the return of East Jerusalem to the Arabs was not expected to delay the signing of the pact next week.

A large majority of the Knesset, the Israeli Parliament, was expected to approve the treaty at the conclusion of its two-day debate tonight or early Thursday. In Washington, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said President Carter told him Begin, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Carter would sign the treaty at 2 p.m. Monday in the U.S. capital.

Begin opened the Knesset debate with the vow that Israel would never permit the division of Jerusalem again, would never allow a Palestinian state to be established west of the Jordan River and would never return to the borders it had before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, who provoked Begin's statement by saying last week that the peace agreement provided for the eventual return of East Jerusalem to the Arabs, said Begin's reply "spoils the atmosphere" of the peace process. But when asked if it might block the treaty signing, he said: "No, I don't think so."

Begin's declaration, reiterating a stand endorsed by most Israelis, was made to placate right-wing hawks demanding assurances that the autonomy promised by the treaty to the Palestinians in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip would not lead to Palestinian statehood or to the weakening of Israel's military presence in the territories it seized in the 1967 war.

Left-wing hecklers frequently interrupted Begin's two-hour speech,

A Commerce Department analyst said profit breakdowns for individual industries would not be ready before next month.

The announcement came as the Carter administration is working hard to get labor to continue to comply with its voluntary guidelines calling for a limit of 7 percent on wage increases despite this year's double-digit inflation rate.

Reaction was swift. Alfred Kahn, the president's chief inflation fighter, said in a statement: "At a time when we are asking all segments of society to exercise restraint, and have seen a real demonstration of restraint by labor, the large increase announced...puts business on trial in the eyes of the American people."

Presidential aide Jordan told a gathering at the National Press Club that "we think profits are inordinately high." He promised the administration would "deal with it" but did not explain how.

Lyle E. Gramley, a member of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said in an interview he would "use the word embarrassing to describe it: embarrassing for the administration and embarrassing for the business community."

The Chamber of Commerce argued in response that government, not business, is to blame for the economy's woes.

"The acceleration in inflation has been, and continues to be, federal budgets too high for economic conditions, tardy monetary policy which was adding to inflation last year instead of fighting it, and federal government cost-push inflationary policies, such as increases in the federal minimum wage, Social Security taxes and costly regulations," the chamber's Carlson said in a statement.

charging that the treaty ignores Palestinian rights. But ratification was assured when Shimon Peres, head of the opposition Labor Party, declared his 31 members would vote for the treaty.

Potholes On The Market

WELLSTON, Ohio (AP) — For the person who has everything — including a spare $10 — the city of Wellston has a unique offering: genuine potholes.

The southeast Ohio community has 6,000 residents, and with the disappearance of winter snow, some 10,000 king-sized potholes.

What the town doesn't have is the $60,000 to $70,000 needed to patch the potholes and make the 44 miles of city streets passable again.

"Our street repair fund is at a deficit," Wellston Mayor Harold Souders said Tuesday.

The pothole sale started as a joke, the mayor said. It was suggested, tongue in cheek, during an informal meeting Monday on the city's pothole problem.

The next day, however, the Athens Messenger ran a front-page story about the plan.

Shortly after the newspaper hit the streets, "a woman walked in with a check for two potholes. Then another woman came in, and then another came in," Souders said.

By late Tuesday afternoon, four potholes had been sold. What the investor gets for $10 is a certificate, issued and signed by the city clerk, stating that the bearer owns a pothole in a Wellston city street.

The certificate also guarantees that the owner's pothole will be repaired.

But it doesn't say when the pothole will be fixed.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

Country music singer Porter Wagoner today sued buxom blonde Dolly Parton for management fees and royalties he said should total at least $3 million.

In a suit filed in Chancery Court, Wagoner, known for his rhinestone-studded costumes, contends Miss Parton owes him millions of dollars under an agreement he says was signed by the two in 1970.

Wagoner wants 15 percent of Miss Parton's net income from June 1974 through June 1979.

Under the agreement, he said, he was to be Miss Parton's manager for five years after she left the "Porter Wagoner Show" and receive 15 percent of her net income.

Wagoner offered no estimate of what the 15 percent demand would bring, but he says that if that demand is denied she should pay him at least $3 million.

Miss Parton, selected in October as the Country Music Association's entertainer of the year, worked with Wagoner from 1968 until 1974, when she left the television show amid reports of quarreling and squabbling.

Since swapping her country-flavored warble for the more financially fruitful pop sound, Miss Parton's career has skyrocketed with such hits as "Here You Come Again."

Beverly Magid, director of the music department of Solters & Roskin Inc., Miss Parton's public relation's firm, said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles that the firm had no comment on the suit.

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) —

North Carolina currently is running 4 to 5 percent short of expected gasoline supplies, but Brian Flattery, director of the state's energy office, has told a legislative committee it's no big problem.

"We have no crisis now; we can handle 5 percent very easily," he told a joint appropriations committee. Even with a more serious shortfall, one not necessitating rationing, "we could probably get by," he said.

Flattery told the committee that the possibility of federally imposed Sunday closing of service stations, with negligible gas savings, could cost the state $15 million per week.

Still Fertile Area For Study

Electric utilities get plenty of criticism in this time of rising cost, and much of it should be heeded. T. Justin Moore, Jr., chairman of the board of Veeco, however paid tribute to Greenville Utilities as one "recognized across the nation as one of the most efficiently run municipal electric systems." Customers, disgruntled with high electric bills might not agree . . . but it should be recognized that GUC was a pioneer in development of energy conservation programs. Its Beat-the-Peak program has been highly successful in leveling out the electric load, which saves money. At the same time it has meant a return during the summer months to participating customers. There are other approaches to load management, of course, some of them quite radical as compared to previous formulas for distributing and pricing electricity. We hope GUC will continually study new methods of load management with an eye toward further savings. Efficient use of electricity can do more at this point toward easing our energy problems than any other one thing. It is still a fertile area for study.

Relief Revolt 'Alive'

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax revolt is alive, flourishing and apparently about to pay dividends to taxpayers in states across the nation. Tax relief and restraint were the common themes as governors from A for Alabama to W for Wyoming presented their agendas to legislatures and voters.

Those are politically popular items, a fact not lost on a Congress that still is trying to handle the increasing pressure for a balanced federal budget. There is talk of scaling down aid to the states on grounds that while they lecture Washington on austerity, they balance their own ledgers with federal assistance.

According to the Council of State Governments, tax relief is likely in most of the states if legislatures follow the recommendations of the governors.

In California, which produced Proposition 13 in the first place, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has proposed a $1 billion state income tax cut and the elimination of 5,000 state jobs.

Brown is trying to build a Democratic presidential campaign around his advocacy of a constitutional amendment to require a balanced federal budget. He also wants the state constitution amended to limit state and local spending.

In Illinois, says Gov. James R. Thompson, they are "practicing what the nation preaches," with a conservative, balanced budget and with proposals to limit the future size and cost of government.

Thompson does not have a tax cut to offer; in fact, he says there will have to be an increase in the state gasoline tax. But he is proposing amendments to the state constitution to limit future spending and to make it easier for the voters to block state tax increases.

Various tax and spending limits also have been proposed in Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Property tax relief, in one form or another, is on the agenda in at least 30 states.

Another tax relief proposal with widespread support: a change in state income tax laws to index taxes for inflation. (Continued on page 5)

As it is, most juvenile court officers and other concerned parties simply bemoan the absence of treatment alternatives and local government officials claim there isn't sufficient money to provide them.

As it is, no one is now provoking local officials to move," says Streit.

This situation is compounded by removal of status offenders from the juvenile criminal proceedings and the training schools. Status offenses are those (truancy, running away, undisciplined behavior) which, if done by an adult, would not result in criminal charges.

Upon conviction the disposition would take over, and the interdisciplinary team would attempt to study the individual case and devise a formula to seek correction.

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

Like a lingering sore, the remnants of racial segregation remain within the structure of higher education in North Carolina. Even our Governor concedes this reality.

The issue which faces UNC and the Dept. of HEW is the manner through which the deficiencies will be corrected and improved.

Historically, the predominantly Black institutions were created as "separate, but equal" schools in which Blacks could be educated, whereas the predominantly white institutions were created to educate the white race.

The major asset of UNC, State, ECU and other predominantly white institutions has been their financial resources. Federal grants, industrial endowments and gifts from illustrious alumni have tremendously assisted their growth and development. At issue, however, is the equitable use of state monies. When N. C. appropriates its taxpayers' monies unjustly and biasedly, then there must be pressure exerted to correct these ills.

The major asset of the predominantly Black institutions has been, and hopefully continues to be, the care, sacrifice and inspiration of faculty and staff. Even though UNC could hire the Harvard Ph. D., the A/T instructor could motivate his students to educational heights and professional levels with the "system of higher education" stacked against Blacks. It must be deduced, therefore, that "the real teaching" was done on the Black campus.

Until the federal government intervened in Little Rock, the pattern of racial segregation did not desist. HEW, the NAACP and the Black colleges and universities have been categorized as culprits in this battle for the proper and just use of state money.

Blacks in N. C. fear that the techniques implemented to destroy the Black high school are presently being used to close the Black colleges. It is incumbent upon Blacks and compelled whites to join in this intense political struggle to insure that the Black schools survive.

The political and educational resolution to the fight between HEW and UNC will be decided soon. Remember Frederick Douglass's words: "Power concedes nothing without a demand."

The Environmental Altar

In 1978, by Executive Order, President Carter bypassed the Congress and set aside 56 million acres of "Monuments" (wilderness, parks, etc.) in Alaska. Similarly, Interior Secretary Andrus withdrew another 55 million acres of land under the Federal Land and Management Act, and Secretary of Agriculture Berglund withdrew approximately 8 million acres. Caribou and a few hearty backpackers have now been handed a hunting and hiking land mass equal to five times the state of Ohio! Fortunately for the caribou, the energy shortage won't affect them. However, few Americans will be able to afford the trip.

"represents an opportunity to protect immense tracts of unspoiled, pristine wilderness of great beauty and variety" and that Alaska contains "untrammelled wilderness" in a "subcontinent blessed with natural values and splendors of surprising international significance on this planet". Phrases such as "ecological heritage", "a new consciousness", "obligation of stewardship" have filled Congressional hearings, bloated Congressional debate and been over-represented as the main issue in the media coverage of the Alaska land question. In the months ahead, we can anticipate more of the same.

lives of Americans. This issue is the mineral wealth of Alaska.

Alaska more than a visual feat, more than a vast wildlife habitat — it is a treasure chest of mineral wealth — both fuel and non-fuel. We cannot afford to have it barred from exploration. The time of our need for that wealth is now.

Alaska has tremendous potential for the development of oil and gas. Prudhoe Bay already supplies 1.2 million barrels of oil daily to the nation. Current estimates place that reserve at 10 billion barrels of oil and 26 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Yet the same geologic formation which created Prudhoe Bay extends across much of the northslope, with some 30 million acres of potential oil and gas fields.

sent drilling season. Initial plans in 1976 called for 26 wells to be drilled. Now the Interior Department plans to stop at 19 despite the fact that oil and gas have been found in nearly every hole drilled thus far. The Alaska lands bill proposed by Rep. Udall (D-Ariz.) would create an additional 7 million acres of wildlife refuge within the Petroleum Reserve. Also, Udall wants the Arctic Wildlife Range to be designated wilderness, thus preventing oil exploration. The Alaskan snowshoe rabbit should be grateful.

Elsewhere in Alaska, little oil exploration has taken place, leaving a huge information gap. Yet of the sedimentary basins in Alaska which may contain oil and gas, some 40 million acres would be in conservation units under the Udall bill. One-third of these would be classified as wilderness, thus prohibiting exploration.

Knowing the potential of this area, and knowing the present near-crisis in the international oil market, the Administration's position is one which strains belief. The Administration wants to end the exploratory drilling in the National Petroleum Reserve at the end of the pre-

Small Savers Feel Victimized

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As some small savers see it, they are victims of a caste system that limits them to a minimal return on investment, while big savers earn several percentage points more.

Not merely prejudicial treatment, they say, but a caste system, one that effectively limits their ability to ever get a shot at higher rates, the rates that go to those who already have a hunk of capital.

The passbook savings rate, for example, is 5.25 percent in savings institutions, 5 percent in commercial banks. But if an individual can commit $10,000 for six months, he or she can earn nearly 9.5 percent.

The difference is more than a few points of interest; for the small saver it can mean lending at a loss. At inflation of 9 percent, as prevailed from December 1977 to December 1978, the loss is significant.

Even discounting inflation, the effect is to widen the gap between small and big saver. At 5.25 percent interest, the face value of money doubles in 14 years; at 9.5 percent it doubles in less than eight.

While conceding the disparity, not everyone believes something should be done about it.

They explain that there's a reason, that funds of small savers support home mortgages, and that home mortgage rates must be kept low. Home-buying, it is said, is socially desirable and should be supported.

In theory, the money of larger savers generally goes into commercial banks and is then lent out on higher cost commercial loans, on which there are few limitations except those imposed by market conditions.

Such an explanation seems to offer small savers little solace, to say nothing of the affront to their sense of justice. And they aren't without support. Some savings industry people share their view.

Some of the latter, in fact, fear that their very existence could be endangered. They see would-be savers disillusioned by the low return available to them, and find them becoming spenders instead.

What this country needs today, say the latter, is less consuming and more savings. Savings feed capital investment, which helps restrain inflation. Spending, in contrast, supports inflation, our No. 1 enemy.

The U.S. League of Savings Associations, by far the largest trade group of mortgage lenders, feels small savers should get immediate attention.

It proposes that the lower limit of deposits accepted for higher-paying, longer term savings certificates — those in which funds must be left for at least a year — be lowered to $100 from $1,000.

That, at least, would permit small savers to obtain interest rates of up to 8 percent, even if they had to leave the funds on deposit for as much as 8 years.

An opportunity for an interest rate that high least offers the distant hope to small savers that some day, if inflation is brought under control, they might become big investors.

Strength For Today

AN INCONVENIENCE — BUT PROGRESS

Few things are more discouraging than to encounter on the highway a sign which reads, "Road Under Construction".

Recently a traveler came upon a sign which read somewhat differently — "Road Under Construction, Sign of Progress." This statement was obviously true. Roads under construction are certainly inconvenient for travelers, but they are nevertheless signs of progress.

Reconstruction in our lives and improvement of any kind involves very much the same process. We must break up a lot of highways over which we were quite content to pass in former days. It means going over huge mountains, and sometimes even tunneling under them. Old ideas, prejudices, jealousies, bitter memories, have to be shoved aside. It is not possible to lay the new road until the old one has been disposed of.

Roads under construction mean inconvenience, but they also mean progress.

"But those who want to ban the bomb for American citizens claim that if you have one locked in the closet, with the fuse in a drawer, you would never be able to assemble it in time to repulse an intruder."

"That's garbage put out by the antinuclear weapon people. We are only advocating ownership of hydrogen weapons by law-abiding citizens. If someone commits a crime with one, he should get a stiff jail sentence."
"Another argument against allowing people to own a bomb is that at the mo-

"That's pure propaganda put out by the bleeding hearts. In a year or two there will Saturday Night Hydrogen Bomb Specials

"Would your association be willing to permit the registration of bombs by their owners?"
"Absolutely not. If we ever go to war the Communists will have a list of everybody in this country who owns the bomb. They could disarm us overnight. The strength of this nation is still in a citizens' army, and our members are pledged to fight to the last man."

"Do you plan to use the bomb for hunting?"
"Only for big game. We're not going to use it on a rabbit or a duck because that would be overkill. But it's a perfect weapon for knocking down an elk or a bear."
"A recent Gallup survey has indicated that 78 percent of the people polled said they were in favor of banning the hydrogen bomb in private hands. What is your response to that?"

"Our recent survey indicates just the opposite," he replied. "People favor keeping the bomb out of the hands of criminal elements, and believe that if you carry one around in your pocket you should have a license. But it's nobody's damn business what you do with one at home."

Hopefully, the critical needs of our entire nation will not be sacrificed on the altar of environmental worship. — Rep. Steven D. Symms (R-Idaho), member of House Interior Committee.

Thirteen-Year-Old Prodigy Has A Good Start At Salem College

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Sheri Johnson is the type of student whose teachers used to give her workbooks on the condition that she not finish them in one night.

She is, in the words of her classmates, a child prodigy.

At 13-years-old, the Doylestown, Pa., resident is more than halfway through a successful freshman year at Salem College in Winston-Salem — successful at least to an observer. Miss Johnson is not completely satisfied with the A's and B's she got last semester.

"I sat down after I got my grades and thought awhile," said Miss Johnson, peering out from under the bottom bunk in her dorm room at the college. "And I decided that I worked and had done okay but I hadn't done as much as I could."

"Grades aren't as important as how much you get out and whether you were trying," she said. "This semester I'm putting more in. I'm more systematic."

Miss Johnson has been ahead of her age group for a long time. So, looking back over a year that's often traumatic for people five years her senior, she says the first semester at college "was pretty much what I expected. I put in a little more than in high school, but it's not as hard as their little sisters chalk it up to be."

She may have assimilated to college life fairly easily, but for some of her classmates it's hard to forget Miss Johnson is the same age as their little sisters back home.

"It blew my mind," said Laverne Hales, Miss Johnson's dorm adviser, "because I have a sister who's 14. At the time I kept thinking what kind of environment this was for a 13-year-old. Some of the 17- and 18-year-olds have to do a lot of thinking about the problems they have to deal with."

But Miss Hales said she thinks Miss Johnson has adjusted very well.

A music and psychology major, Miss Johnson not only spends lots of time studying, but also practicing voice and piano. She also has time to go to dances and out to dinner, but her social life is necessarily different because of her age. For example, she is excluded from campus parties where beer is served.

As for her roommates, they say it's not hard to relate to Miss Johnson or to imagine her

Opposition To Mixed Drink Sales Organizing

A group of some 45 local businessmen and clergy leaders met Monday night to organize their campaign against the issue of mixed drink sales in Pitt County, which is scheduled for a June 8 referendum.

The Rev. J. M. Bragg, pastor of People's Baptist Temple, said that the group, which met at his church, adopted the name Christian Action League of Pitt County for the organization.

Bragg, who was named publicity co-chairman, indicated that the Christian Action League will be waging an "active campaign" against the mixed beverage issue. He said that the group feels that the recent rejection by Wilson County of mixed drink sales will help the Pitt organization in its campaign.

The minister said the organization will be making an effort to encourage voter turnout for the referendum in Pitt County, contending that a heavy turnout will be to the group's benefit in its opposition stand.

He added that the group will be meeting again next Monday night, March 26 at 7:30 p.m. to continue its organizational efforts.

Frank Steinbeck Sr. of Steinbeck's Men's Shop was elected chairman of the organization, while three co-chairmen were named, including the Rev. David Hammond, pastor of Phillip Baptist Church; Ernest Harris, chairman of the school board of Greenville Christian Academy; and the Rev. Richard Kennedy, pastor of Temple Free Will Baptist Church.

Other officers named included:

publicity co-chairman, the Rev. Van Dale Hudson, pastor of Trinity Free Will Baptist Church; transportation chairman, James Glisson, retired businessman; registration chairman, the Rev. Roger Tripp, pastor of Grace Free Will Baptist Church; secretary, Lloyd Johnston, director of the Red Cross; and treasurer, Guy Mayo, area businessman.

Festival To Need Hands

GRIFTON — Workers are still needed for the drink and hot dog wagons, as well as the games and pancake supper events for the Grifton Shad Festival April 20-22, it was announced at a recent meeting of a Shad planning meeting.

Workers are also needed to work with co-chairmen Bobby and Jean McLawhorn for the annual parade line-up. According to the McLawhorns, there is still time for ordering professional floats for the parade.

According to Tommy Sugg, Festival chairman, Linwood Moore has been named as Games Chairman. Janet Oglesby will chair the "Shad-O" event, aided by the Grifton Service League.

Another planning session will be held Monday, March 26, 7:30 p.m., at the Grifton Library. All interested persons are welcome to attend and offer ideas for the upcoming festival.

ATTENDED LAYMEN'S SEMINAR

TULSA, OKLA. — Mr. and Mrs. Sutton Austin, 403 Greenfield Blvd., Greenville, recently attended a laymen's seminar on the campus of Oral Roberts University, featuring ORU founder and president Oral Roberts as speaker. Nearly 3,000 persons from across the nation and Canada were University guests for the four-day event. The Austins made a short visit to Chicago, Ill. after the seminar.

Jamestown OKs Mixed Drinks

JAMESTOWN, N.C. (AP) — Jamestown voters approved mixed-drink sales by a vote of 293-190 Tuesday, according to election officials.

The turnout among the town's 1,161 registered voters was about what had been predicted, the officials said.

The drive for mixed-drink sales in the Guilford County town was initiated last fall by Sadie May, who owns an Italian restaurant on Main Street. Mrs. May conducted a personal drive for mixed drinks, using her own money to place radio ads and distribute campaign material.

CHOIR SPONSORS PROGRAM GRIMESLAND — The Senior Choir of White Oak Baptist Church will sponsor Shirley Hansley and the Eight Specialists Sunday, March 25, 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend, according to Monroe Rountree, president.

Senate-House Panels Hold Insurance Hearing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Insurance purchasers spoke out at a public hearing Tuesday in favor of restoring the power of prior approval of insurance rates to the insurance commissioner's office.

On the other hand, representatives of the insurance industry called for retention of the current file-and-use system that allows insurance companies to file rates through the North Carolina Rate Bureau and implement them while the commissioner's rejection is being appealed.

The public hearing was called by the Senate and House Insurance committees, which are considering opposing bills on how insurance rates should be set in North Carolina.

"Since the commissioner's power was curtailed, we have received a slap in the face to the tune of $107 million," said Joseph Reinckens, legislative director of the Raleigh chapter of the American Association of Retired People.

Tom Lominac, a spokesman for Carolina Action, a statewide consumer group, spoke in favor of a bill filed by Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, that would restore the commissioner's prior-approval power, which was taken away by a controversial law enacted by the 1977 General Assembly.

"We have seen liability insurance rates go up in the years since the commissioner's role was diminished," he said.

Industry spokesmen spoke in favor of a second bill, filed by Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, that would retain the file-and-use system.

"House Bill 425 (Campbell's bill) will continue the progress made in establishing a balance between the needs of the citizens of North Carolina and a financially sound insurance industry," said Edward L. Jennings, an official of Nationwide Insurance Co.

Industry leaders and sponsors of the 1977 legislation said under the prior-approval system, too many rate cases ended up in court on appeal after being disapproved by Ingram. They contend the file-and-use system promotes competition and keeps rates down.

In other legislative business: UNC Appropriations

William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina, said UNC's highest priority on a list of supplemental budget requests is an additional $9.5 million for construction.

Friday said the additional money which UNC is requesting from the state General Fund would cover capital improvements that the university's Board of Governors wants finished, including improvements on some of the state's traditionally black campuses.

Friday asked members of the Joint Appropriations and Base Budget Committees to "go as far as you can" in meeting the request.

During the fiscal year beginning July 1, the university requested supplementary allocations totaling $30 million, including a $7.9 million supplement for expanding current operations. Any supplemental funds approved by the General Assembly would be money above the amount already earmarked for the university in the proposed state budget for the coming year.

The university has asked for an additional $22 million for expanding current operations for the second year of the budget biennium.

The other requests are for $11.1 million in capital improvements for North Carolina Memorial Hospital and $1.2 million for current operations in agricultural programs.

Blue Light Rapes

A Senate judiciary committee approved a bill that would make it a misdemeanor to have a blue light installed in a private car. The bill was initiated after several so-called blue light rapes and rape attempts, in which the attacker used a blue light to force the victim to the side of the road.

The bill was amended by the Senate Judiciary II Committee to set a mandatory 90-day jail sentence without parole or probation for persons installing the lights.

Hazards

The Senate Agriculture Committee approved a state hazardous substances act that would set up testing facilities in the state Agriculture Department. The facilities would allow department officials to deal with merchants over the removal of hazardous products from store shelves.

The measure must now go to the Appropriations Committee.

Employees Insurance

The House unanimously approved a committee substitute for a Senate bill that would set up a separate insurance commission to accept bids for coverage of public employees. Supporters of the bill said it would make insurance for the employees less expensive since companies would bid before the commission and offer insurance to the employees as a group.

An amendment which would have included school board employees in the bill was defeated, 34-75.

Handicapped

A bill that would enforce enforcement of parking spaces for the handicapped was approved by the Senate Transportation Committee and sent to the full chamber. The bill would allow a $10 fine for violations, and allow police officers to go onto private property, when requested, to ticket cars illegally parked in spaces set aside for the handicapped.

Schools

A Senate judiciary committee approved a bill that would exempt private schools not affiliated with churches from administering the state competency tests. The bill would also exempt the schools from other state regulations.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where it will be considered along with a bill that would exempt church-related schools from regulations.

Juries

The Senate gave tentative approval on a 47-0 vote to a bill that would allow Superior Court judges to empanel two grand juries within a county at the same time.

Alimony

A bill filed in the House would allow a judge to order the termination of alimony payments if the spouse receiving the alimony "openly cohabitates with a member of the opposite sex." Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, filed the bill.

FIRST LADY'S BIKE TOUR — Rosalynn Carter bicycled through a subdivision of solar-heated homes with developer Mike Corbett during a visit to Davis, California Tuesday where she later told the community they are setting

Two Collisions Here Tuesday

An estimated $3,900 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 11:45 a.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road involving cars driven by Pamela Dee Norman of Roper, and Ann Mills Sutton of Route 2, Greenville.

Police, who estimated damage at $2,000 to the Norman car and $1,000 to the Sutton auto, charged Mrs. Sutton with failing to stop for a stop light.

Cars driven by Socrates Richard Gliarmis of Wilson and Paul Frederick Lincke III of Kinston, collided about 6:53 p.m. at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets, resulting in an estimated $400 damage to the Gliarmis car and $500 damage to the Lincke vehicle.

School Fees A Usual Practice

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Only 10 of the state's 145 school systems did not collect instructional fees last year. But if a Superior Court ruling Monday in Greensboro is applied across the state, the other 135 schools may join the ranks of those who don't charge students for such things as pencils, gym shorts and elective courses.

On Monday, a Superior Court judge ruled unconstitutional a 1955 law permitting schools to levy fees. Although the ruling affects only the Greensboro city schools, chances are it will be appealed and the appeals court ruling would affect the entire state.

Some officials at schools currently collecting fees are worried about where funds will come from if that source of revenue is curtailed.

"If the money didn't come from the state or the county commissioners, we would just have to tighten our belts," said Wilson County Superintendent W.O. Fields. Fields' system charges a $4.50 instructional fee for all students and collects about $60,000 a year.

A Department of Public Instruction survey reports that 68 school systems charged instructional fees last year, ranging from 75 cents in the Beaufort city schools to $16 in western Ashe County.

Ninety-seven systems charged additional fees for elective courses in junior high and high school, ranging from 50 cents in Beaufort to $18 for business courses in several systems.

Rocky Mount, Chapel Hill, Columbus County, Durham city, Franklinton and Hoke County are among the schools that do not charge fees. Administrators at other schools said they would be happy to do away with the fees, if there was some way to compensate for the revenue the fees bring in.

"Without it, we can't operate," said Wake schools superintendent John A. Murphy about a $3.25 instructional fee in that county.

"I've always been opposed to charging fees of any kind," Murphy said. "This is supposed to be a free public school system."

Andrew A. Vanore, the state deputy attorney general, said Tuesday courts in other states generally had ruled against laws allowing schools to require fees.

Shad Parade

GRIFTON — Plans are underway for the Grifton Shad Festival Parade, to be held Saturday, April 21, beginning at 10 a.m.

Trophies will be given to the best motorized and non-motorized floats. Cash prizes will also be given for the best decorated bicycle.

Bands from across eastern North Carolina will also participate in the event. One hundred dollars will be awarded to the best band.

Parade chairman Jean McLawhorn urges anyone interested in entering horses, old cars, or any other item in the parade to call her at 524-4565, after 5:30 p.m.

Vice Crackdown Nets 25 Men

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Raleigh patrolwoman arrested 25 men on charges of aiding and abetting prostitution during a one-week undercover operation, according to Det. Lt. K.J. Johnson.

Johnson, who supervises the police department's vice and drug section, said a patrolwoman who posed as a prostitute on Hillsborough Street made the arrests. Johnson said the woman, whose name was not released, was approached by the accused and given money. After receiving the money, the patrolwoman told the suspect he was under arrest and used a radio to call her backup officer, Johnson said.

'Great Decisions'

Another in the "Great Decisions" lectures, a program sponsored nationally by the Foreign Policy Association, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 22 in Room 210 of the Belk Building (Allied Health Center), East Carolina University.

Professor Luis Acevez, of the Department of Foreign Languages, ECU, will be the speaker, and his topic will be "The U.S. and Latin America: Facing New Facts of Power."

The sponsoring association is a non-profit, non-partisan institution founded to promote a more informed public on foreign affairs issues, and East Carolina University is the regional coordinator for the program.

There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend. The program is due to end by 9 p.m.

TOWN OF WINTERVILLE NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING TO CONSIDER ADOPTION OF THE TOWN OF WINTERVILLE FY 1978 COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT URBAN RENEWAL PLAN

NOTICE IS HEREBY given that at 7:00 P.M. on April 2, 1979 in the Town of Winterville Municipal Building, the Town of Winterville Board of Commissioners will conduct a public hearing to consider the adoption of a FY 1978 Community Development Urban Renewal Plan. That plan sets forth the property acquisition, property disposition and relocation procedures of the FY 1978 Community Development Program. The Urban Renewal Plan establishes the FY 1978 Community Development Area as a "blighted area" in need of Urban renewal and redevelopment. A copy of the Winterville Urban Renewal Plan is on file in the Winterville Town Advisor's Office and is available for public review during all normal office hours. Comments may be submitted in writing to the Winterville Town Advisor's Office at any time prior to the April 2, 1979 public hearing. The public is encouraged to attend the public hearing and comment on the Urban Renewal Plan.

Meet Friday

The Board of County Commissioners will meet Friday at 10 a.m. in the Law Library in the Pitt County Court House to consider introduction of the bond order for a proposed $9 million school bond referendum, and to approve an application to the Local Government Commission for approval to issue the bonds.

Other business is also included on the agenda.

Thief Takes City Buses

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials of the Riverdale Transit Co. were not terribly surprised when one of their buses turned up missing from the Manhattan terminal.

Tuesday was the fifth time in five weeks it had happened, either at the Manhattan terminal or at the company's huge bus barn in Yonkers.

The 40-foot-long, $90,000 buses just vanish while the regular driver is grabbing a bite of lunch.

But they always turn up, and the one stolen Tuesday was no exception. Police found it several hours later at Eighth Avenue and 141st Street, minus the unscheduled driver.

It also was minus an undetermined amount of fare cash, as the bus thief, as usual, had smashed the fare box and emptied it before taking off.

George Bernacchia of Riverdale Transit is convinced the bus capers are carried out by one man, and that before abandoning the buses, he picks up passengers along the regular route to sweeten his take.

"He's one of our best bus drivers," said Bernacchia. "He's someone who knows the route, knows the procedures for checking out buses, knows all the schedules."

"We think we know who he is," he added.

CLUB SPONSORS LECTURE
The Christian Women's Fellowship Club of Philippi Church of Christ will sponsor the third in a series of four Lenten lectures Wednesday, March 21, 7:30 p.m., on "Living the Word." Eldress Shirley Daniels will give the lecture. The public is invited.

Former Raleigh Attorney Is Sentenced In Heroin Dealings

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — John D. McConnell Jr., a former Raleigh attorney and civic leader, was sentenced Tuesday to five years in prison for helping launder money from a large-scale heroin ring.

"I was an absolute fool," the 38-year-old McConnell told Superior Court Judge Forrest A. Ferrell as he choked back tears. "I'm gravely sorry for the things I have done."

McConnell, charged with being an accessory after the fact to possession of heroin with intent to sell, will be eligible for parole as soon as he begins serving the sentence. He was ordered to surrender June 1.

McConnell was the first person to plead guilty last year when proceedings began against those accused of being part of a heroin operation masterminded by Leslie "Ike" Atkinson and Frank Lucas.

In the four-hour sentencing hearing in Wayne Superior Court Tuesday, it was revealed that McConnell was approached in 1974 by a Northwestern Bank officer who coached him on how to slip money out of the country into a tax-free haven on Grand Cayman Island in the Caribbean.

A month later McConnell began transporting money for the Atkinson-Lucas ring, according to defense attorney Roger Smith.

Smith made a two-hour emotional plea that McConnell be placed on probation rather than be sent to prison. He said the former attorney is living on borrowed money and charity.

McConnell has already served a federal prison sentence on a perjury conviction in connection with testimony before a grand jury in New York. Smith said that five days after McConnell's release from prison, Raleigh police were advised that a $50,000 contract had been put on his life.

McConnell was the latest person to be sentenced among a group of people — most of them members of Ike Atkinson's family — who were indicted by a Wayne County grand jury last March. All of them have received prison sentences.

On Monday, Edward Atkinson, 60, brother of Ike Atkinson, was sentenced to five to eight years in prison on a charge of conspiracy to possess and deliver heroin.

Will Speak On Hang-Gliding

Ralph Buxton, a representative from Kitty Hawk Kites, Inc., Nags Head, will visit East Carolina University Thursday, March 22, to discuss hang gliding and show a film on the subject.

Buxton will also be interested in seeking out persons interested in employment with Kitty Hawk Kites.

The event is open to the public and sponsored by the Parks, Recreation and Conservation Society of ECU. All persons should plan to attend. The event will be held in Room 244, Mendenhall Student Center, at 7:30 p.m.

Retirees Plan Luncheon Meet

A Pitt County Retired Teachers and School Personnel Luncheon will be held Wednesday, March 28, 12 noon, at the Red Oak Christian Church, Highway 264 Bypass West.

Tickets will be $3.50, with reservations to be made by Friday, March 23. Interested persons should call Irene Fleming, 752-2972, by Thursday night for reservations.

SHARING GROUP

The Greenville Advisory Committee for Exceptional Children will sponsor a sharing group meeting Thursday, March 22, 7:30 p.m., at St. James United Methodist Church. Interested persons are welcome.

As In All Big Cities, Moscow Has Street Crimes

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Muggings, murders, looting, rape, burglaries, grand larceny and — of course — the age-old crime of prostitution.

Like every major city, Moscow has a crime problem. It is less visible than in big American cities, and the Soviet press tries to perpetuate the image that the capital is almost crime-free.

But many Western diplomats and tour groups that run trips here are now urging foreign tourists to start taking more precautions against Moscow street crime, especially since more than 300,000 foreigners, by Russian estimates, will visit here during the 1980 Olympics.

Several months ago, a woman on a U.S. university exchange program here was walking home from the subway stop near Moscow State University late one night. Because of Moscow's reputation as a "safe" city, she felt little fear about traveling without a friend.

Then a middle-aged man attacked her and tried to force her to the ground. She began screaming, and the man fled — but not before he bashed her in the mouth and stole her pocketbook.

"It was a mugging, just like you'd find in New York," she said.

Despite such incidents, crime in Moscow is nowhere as prevalent as in similar-sized cities in the United States, partly because of a strong police presence to look after juvenile delinquents, drunks and other anti-social elements in the population of 7.8 million.

U.S. Chief Justice Warren Burger was told during a trip here that there is one uniformed policeman for every 3,000-4,000 people. And some 8 million people around the country are so-called "public order volunteers" who aid police and have powers to arrest.

The traffic cop can be found on almost every Moscow street corner during the day. But, like most big cities, a policeman is hard to find late at night except for the occasional patrol car. There is an emergency police number that Muscovites can telephone for help — 02 — and get a swift response.

The government-controlled Moscow media rarely report crime stories except occasional cases aired to warn citizens away from anti-social behavior. Each article contains the stiff punishment meted out by the courts to the criminal.

But it is the philosophy here that violent crime is an example of the class struggle in capitalist societies only. Asked to compare crime statistics for New York and Moscow, city head Vladimir Promyslov told a Soviet interviewer not too long ago:

"Comparison is practically impossible ... There is a whole range of crimes, though widespread in capitalist society, including the United States — New York in particular — which is simply impossible in the U.S.S.R. The very nature of the socialist system has eliminated such crimes as bank robbery, kidnapping people for ransom and a few other crimes."

He noted, however, that "Moscow has not eliminated cases of hooliganism, misappropriation of socialist property, arson and other offenses against the law."

Many Western analysts here believe Moscow's rapid urbanization has led to a significant rise in crime in recent years.

But it is impossible to verify, since Soviet crime statistics are hard to come by — partly because none was kept from the 1930s to the 1950s under orders of Soviet leader Josef Stalin. It wasn't until the 1960s that records were kept of "negative behavior."

According to official statistics obtained from various sources: property crimes and hooliganism make up 60 percent of all crimes; some 63 percent of all crimes are committed by drunks; and crimes against persons — murder, rape and assault — accounted for 15 percent of the 835,000 convictions logged in 1970.

One Soviet sociologist pointed out that seven out of 10 murders here are committed in apartments, showing what she said was an "alarming" tendency towards more crimes in every-day places.

And when crimes come so close to home, Muscovites get nervous. Signs have begun appearing in some Moscow apartment buildings urging residents to take turns "guarding" the houses. This would have been an unheard-of request 10 years ago, residents say.

But a recent newspaper article reported that a burglary ring robbed more than 20 apartments around Moscow before the three thieves were caught and sentenced to seven years' hard labor.

An unprecedented instance of looting also took place recently. Residents of one Western Moscow district told The Associated Press that looters moved in after 3,000 people were evacuated from their apartments because of no heat or hot water during a severe cold wave.

Petty theft is common around Moscow. Many Western residents are initiated when they find that the windshield wipers, sideview mirrors and tape-decks from the cars have been swiped.

But grand larceny also is around. A recent tour story reported that two men were sentenced to death after one of them shot and killed a female cashier at the Moscow Institute of Chemical Machine-Building on payroll day. The killer was carrying a "homemade" gun.

Nor is Moscow without its sensational crimes — a 1969 assassination attempt on three cosmonauts, a 1976 terrorist subway explosion, last May's hostage-taking at the Finnish airline office.

The bloodiest attack on foreign visitors in recent years took place last June when a 24-year-old Soviet night watchman axed to death three Swedish tourists outside the Intourist Hotel here.

And a recent bizarre murder has come to the attention of Westerners here. Six weeks ago, police reportedly found a woman's torso stuffed in a suitcase abandoned on a Moscow tramcar. Another suitcase was found, containing the woman's other remains.

Jury Unable To Reach Plug-Pulling Verdict

By THERESA HUMPHREY
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — The jury in the mercy-killing trial of nurse Mary Rose Robaczynski stood 10-2 for acquittal during most of its deliberations before a mistrial was declared, says the jury forewoman.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated 19 hours over two days before Judge Robert Karwacki decided late Tuesday that a verdict could not be reached.

Mrs. Robaczynski, 24, a former nurse at Maryland General Hospital, was accused of unplugging the respirator of Harry Gessner, a 48-year-old Baltimore cab driver who was in a coma.

A city grand jury indicted her last year on murder charges in the deaths of Gessner and three other comatose patients. She acknowledged disconnecting the respirators of Gessner, Catherine Womack, and Louvenia Reed because she thought they were dead. However, she denied pulling the plug on Markene Smith.

Mrs. Robaczynski still faces trial in connection with the other deaths. Assistant State's Attorney Howard B. Gersh said after the mistrial that it was "too premature" to tell if he would seek a retrial in Gessner's death.

"The biggest issue was whether or not he was dead," said jury forewoman Beverly A. Stokarski. "There was so much speculation on the part of the doctors' testimonies."

One juror who held out for a guilty verdict said emotions played a big part in the deliberations.

"It was too much to ask a jury to decide," said Cleo E. Anderson Jr., who said he held out for a guilty verdict. "It was useless."

The judge called the jury back to the courtroom at 11:20 p.m. Tuesday and asked Ms. Stokarski, "Do you think continued deliberation would not be fruitful?"

"Yes," she replied.

The jury was told Monday it could acquit Mrs. Robaczynski, or convict her of first-degree murder, second-degree murder, or involuntary manslaughter.

During deliberations, prosecutor Gersh said he heard jurors screaming about whether or not Gessner was dead when his respirator was disconnected.

Gessner's time of death was an important factor in the case. Prosecutors argued that he was alive when Mrs. Robaczynski unplugged the respirator, but the defense said that by legal definition he was already dead.

Appeals Court Concurs Secrecy Was Violated

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Former CIA agent Frank W. Snapp broke his secrecy agreement with the agency when he published his controversial book about the 1975 U.S. evacuation of Vietnam, a federal appeals court says.

But the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that a lower court's punishment — forfeiting all his profits from the book — was too severe.

The court said that imposing thousands of dollars in damages would be proper only if Snapp had disclosed classified information, which the government did not charge. Snapp's earnings from his book, "Decent Interval," are approaching $100,000.

Snapp is a former Charlotte, N. C., resident who makes his home in Arlington, Va. His father is Superior Court Judge Frank W. Snapp Jr., of Charlotte, a former North Carolina legislator.

The decision came on Snapp's appeal of last summer's ruling by U.S. District Judge Oren Lewis of Alexandria, Va.

In his ruling, Lewis denied

Snapp any profits from the book and ordered him to clear all CIA-related material with the agency before any future publication.

In arguments last November before the appeals court here, Snapp's lawyer, Mark Lynch, argued that his client did not violate any secrecy agreement with the publication of the book.

He said an agreement signed by Snapp when he left the CIA in 1976 merely barred him from disclosing classified information.

Snapp argued he was singled out by the agency because his book cast the CIA in an unfavorable light.

The appeals court, in its decision, also reaffirmed an earlier opinion that the CIA's secrecy agreement does not violate First Amendment free speech rights.

The judges said they agreed with Lewis' ruling that Snapp violated the secrecy contract by not submitting his manuscript so the agency could determine if it contained secrets.

They also said that the government was entitled to punitive damages from Snapp but not as high as those imposed.

Spring Signals Clean-Up Drive

GRIFTON — Mayor Dave Bosley of Grifton signed a proclamation Wednesday designating the first day of spring as Grifton's Ninth Annual Grifton Clean-Up Campaign kick off day.

Grifton residents will meet Saturday, March 24, 9 a.m., at the Grifton Water Tower for the first of three Saturday-morning sessions to pick up trash and beautify the roadsides and public areas in the town.

Each Saturday for the next three weeks, March 24 and 31, as well as April 7, workers will meet to form work crews and receive instructions. At 12 noon, all workers will be treated to hot dogs and drinks, which will be donated.

The Keep Pitt County Clean and Beautiful Committee has designated Grifton's annual clean up campaign as a model for other small towns in the county. The Committee is also sponsoring a county-wide clean up in April.

Older teenagers and adults are especially needed to supervise groups of younger children and to work on the highway approaches to Grifton. Children will not be allowed to clean near the highways. Also, donations are also being asked for large plastic or strong paper bags for garbage.

A special effort is being made to beautify the town before the annual Shad Festival, April 20-22.

Funds Offered To Fire Depts.

WASHINGTON — Wayne Harris, local government coordinator for the Mid-East Commission, said today that $78,000 has been made available to North Carolina to provide assistance to rural fire departments.

The funds have been released by the Department of Agriculture through the U.S. Forest Service, according to Harris, to provide financial assistance to communities with no fire protection which wish to establish and organize fire departments.

Harris said grant funds may also be used to aid recently organized departments, and departments that have little or no equipment.

The local government coordinator said too, that in addition to the grant money, fire departments may receive federal excess vehicles on an indefinite loan basis, provided they be converted to a pumper within a specified time. The vehicles, he noted, are available through the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

Harris said in order to qualify for grant money, the population served by the rural fire department must be less than 10,000, and answer all fire calls without discrimination. The department, he added, must agree to furnish at least 50 per cent of the funds required to purchase equipment.

Further information on the grant program may be secured by calling Harris at 946-8043.

Resurfacing City Streets

The city reported that work is underway on resurfacing some 15,745 linear feet of local streets.

Streets scheduled for resurfacing include: Country Club Drive, from Memorial Drive westerly past the clubhouse; Woodstock Drive; Martinsborough Road, from Tar Road to Queen Anne Road; Hillside Drive, from Elm Street easterly to the end; Crestwood Drive, from S. Overlook Drive to Beaumont Drive; Beaumont Circle; E. Wright Road, from Ragsdale Road to Tenth Street; Tryon Drive, from Jefferson Drive to Cedar Lane; and Airport Road, from Memorial Drive westerly.

Work on the streets, contracted by Barrus Construction Co., should be completed in the next three to four weeks with the exception of Martinsborough Road, which will be delayed to allow time for completion of sewer line installations.

The work, according to the city, represents the first resurfacing program of local streets since 1976.

Demonstration In Crafts Work

Mrs. Lyles W. Russell of Winterville gave a basket demonstration to students in Aycock's Library recently. Her appearance was arranged by Mrs. Sue May, Home Economist for the Pitt County Extension Service.

In addition to basketweaving, other crafts she demonstrated and displayed were hand made yarn dolls, nut head dolls, felt animals, monkeys made from pairs of socks, and an antique egg/gizzard basket.

Freeze-Dry Process Has Saved Books

BY NADINE JOSEPH
Associated Press Writer
PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — More than half of 45,000 books Stanford University librarians feared were lost to a flood will be back on the shelves next month — saved by a freeze-dry process usually reserved for coffee.

"The results have been exciting, when you consider we had masses of pulpy paper and it looked hopeless," said Sally Buchanan, a Stanford librarian in charge of the book restoration project.

Ms. Buchanan said 65 percent of the books will be returned to the graduate library after dirt and mud have been removed and 25 percent of the books will need rebinding. The rest — 10 percent — need extensive repairs and a small number will be replaced.

"We may lose some covers, but the paper has come out beautifully," Ms. Buchanan said. The books were soaked when a water main broke and flooded the basement stacks of the Stanford library on Nov. 4. Most of the damaged books were classics, religion, art, music, philosophy and architecture books.

After the accident, the books were immediately frozen, among vegetables and fruit, at Modern Ice & Storage in San Jose, Calif., which is owned by a Stanford alumnus.

The books remained there until Lockheed Inc. volunteered to freeze-dry them in a vacuum chamber that had been used in training for space ventures.

It took three days to freeze-dry each load of 5,000 books. The process began Feb. 5 and was completed March 12, Ms. Buchanan said.

The books were first subjected to mild heat in the stainless steel vacuum chambers, which measured 18-by-18-by-35 feet.

Through a physical reaction called sublimation, the ice crystals turned to vapor without getting the books wet. The vapor collected on a special cold panel in the form of ice and the books came out "dry and brittle," Ms. Buchanan said.

Before they are returned to the shelves April 1, the books are being kept in a high humidity environment so that they absorb moisture.

A similar process was used to restore smaller numbers of books from the Corning Glass Museum and Library in Corning, N.Y., the Klein Law Library at Temple University, in Philadelphia, and the Federal Record Center in St. Louis.

"There was no way to get 45,000 books dry before they mildew and rot," said Ms. Buchanan. "The books were guinea pigs for this new freeze-dry process. But we're not complaining. It worked."

Sale ends Saturday, March 24th. We reserve the right to limit quantities.

Possibly Old Slave Refuge

COLLINSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Historians are trying to determine whether the old Bethel Baptist Church was part of the "Underground Railway" used by fleeing slaves in the Civil War.

The church contains a trap door that leads to an area where some believe runaway slaves were hidden.

The church founder, James Lemen, was a friend of Elijah P. Lovejoy, the abolitionist Alton newspaperman murdered by a pro-slavery mob while defending his printing press.

The church was founded in 1806 and is thought to be the oldest organized Protestant church in Illinois.

Jewelry Carries Medical Information

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ed Asner, better known as TV's "Lou Grant," has been going around the country dangling his right wrist in front of photographers, reporters, television cameras and almost anyone else who will listen.

He's showing off a gold bracelet he thinks could save his life some day, or at least make it easier for doctors to decide how to help him if he were found unconscious.

The bracelet is from Medic Alert. Another 1.3 million Americans wear similar jewelry. The bracelets alert doctors to serious medical conditions or allergies — to drugs, for example — and other problems they should be aware of before treating an unconscious patient.

In Asner's case, no such allergies or medical conditions exist.

That's the very reason why the actor thinks everyone should wear such a bracelet.

"... the doctor, should I be found unconscious, can go ahead and do anything he wants," Asner said in an interview. "(The bracelet) also carries my blood type. Mine is O-positive, so they could immediately start blood without having to refer."

Medic Alert was founded in Turlock, Calif., in 1956 as a non-profit organization by a doctor whose daughter was almost killed because he was out of town, and the physician who treated her for a wound did not know she had a severe allergy to tetanus injections.

The doctor-father subsequently made a bracelet for his daughter so others who treated her would know of her problem. He then decided to offer the service to anyone who needed it. For a one-time fee of $10, anyone can register his or her vital information with the foundation. The bracelet contains a toll-free number a doctor can call if necessary to obtain blood type, medical and other information.

Asner, who agreed to serve voluntarily as national chairman of the foundation, says the bracelet "works against that great horrible anonymity of the collapsed or unconscious person when the emergency personnel come in the door."

By calling the Medic Alert number, a doctor can also get information on the wearer's personal physician, medical records.

A similar system in Europe has a cooperative arrangement with the California organization to help American members of Medic Alert when they become ill abroad.

"One in every five persons has a medical problem that would warrant being placed on a band like this," Asner said. "The resistance occurs in wearing one, thereby being branded as someone with a problem."

"So our task is preaching the utility (of the bracelet) to the problem bearer as well as the non-problem bearer. To make it a habit, a widely used habit. To make it an occasion where the great majority of citizens don't pay attention to it or give it a second thought.

"Our basic effort is to make it just a casual piece of jewelry to the wearer that will save lives and certainly ease the burden of medical personnel."

Long distance runners, for instance, might need the bracelets to alert doctors that they have a low pulse rate common from that form of exercise. Joggers who run without other identification could rely on the bracelet for help if they should collapse. Asner says no other organization offers the same computer record keeping service to back up the bracelet information.

Free information and forms can be obtained by writing to Medic Alert, Box 1009, Turlock, Calif., 95380. In addition to the initial $10 fee, there is a $3 charge if you update your medical record during the year. The $10 fee gets you a stainless steel bracelet. Silver and gold models are available for slightly higher prices, and a necklace version is also available.

Sticking To Country Life

MAYS LICK, Ky. (AP) — Truman Ritchie and his commuter friends would rather commute 170 miles round-trip to work every day than live in the city.

At age 51, Truman Ritchie has spent the past 20 years commuting from his home here to the General Motors Assembly Division plant in Norwood, Ohio.

"It's like driving to the grocery store," he exaggerated, adding that he sleeps better because it's quieter in the country, although he doesn't get as much time to sleep.

When he first started with GM, Ritchie took an apartment in Norwood.

"I couldn't stand the noise," he said. "I like to lie down and have my quiet. We lived near some railroad tracks."

In a couple of weeks, Ritchie was back living in the country. Back then, there wasn't another job to be had in his area. Now, he can't afford to leave General Motors.

So he gets up at 3 a.m., in order to be at work by 5:36 a.m. He often works nine hours a day, six days a week. He leaves work at 3:30 p.m. and it's time to make the trip back home.

"I get three or four hours (of sleep) and take off," he said. "They say when you get older, you need more sleep, but it doesn't seem to bother me."

Ritchie alternates driving with four other men so each one has to drive only one day a week, unless there's overtime. Like Ritchie, the other men want to keep their homes in the country.

The car takes the river route along the Ohio River. Although it's usually too dark to see in the morning, the ride is nice on the way home.

Missionaries See Opportunities Opening In China

By LINDA MORRIS
Wilson Daily Times

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — The Carter administration began 1979 with a bold diplomatic move of both stunning and surprising importance to the United States. The formal recognition of Communist China opened up whole new vistas of opportunity for Americans, spiced with the excitement of discovering an unknown people and culture.

Few North Carolinians watched the progress of those negotiations more avidly than Lou Spencer, a Pentecostal wellness nurse and missionary who spent the past two years among the Chinese in resettlement camps located in the British colony of Hong Kong.

And if Ms. Spencer's observations are any guide, most Americans will be both pleased and perplexed by the Chinese people and their way of life.

Now working as a nurse in Wilson, Ms. Spencer traveled to Hong Kong, seated periously on the southern tip of China, in May 1976. She had been assigned by the missions board to serve as a nurse supervisor at a clinic run by the Pentecostal Holiness Church in the Tsz Wan Shan District, a ferry's ride across the bay from the main island of Hong Kong.

"Three days after I arrived there, they gave me a welcoming feast," she remembers well. "They served a dish called bird's nest soup that had boiled pigeon eggs and other things floating around in it. I had always been a finicky eater, but I was determined to jump right in there and become Chinese all in one day."

It wasn't until several days later that she learned those "other things" floating around in the soup were indeed pieces of an authentic bird's nest.

Despite that less than delectable beginning, Ms. Spencer did become fond of the Chinese cuisine and the impressive feasts they considered a necessity. "You'll have people living in these resettlement areas on salaries that are ridiculously low by American standards. But they won't think twice about going to a nice restaurant and paying good money to throw a feast," she said.

Chicken and fish are their favorites and are always served with both head and tail displayed on the platter. "If you're the guest of honor, they place the head so that it's facing you. You feel awfully jolly eating a chicken while it's still looking at you!"

The resettlement areas that these Chinese — refugees from the Communist regime on the mainland — call home can range from shabby squatters huts to more modern high-rise dormitories.

A family of six or eight would live, sleep and eat in a room not much larger than an average American den. "Some of the Chinese kids had seen pictures of an average American home. These were like 18-year-old kids, and one of them looked at me with the most serious expression one day and said,

"But don't you get lonely living in a house like that all by yourself?"

The Chinese cook on open air balconies, no matter what the weather, and hang their washed clothes on bamboo poles on their balconies, she said. Few Chinese have beds, but sleep instead on bamboo mats on the floor.

But what of the Chinese character itself? "They have the keenest minds I've ever seen," Ms. Spencer observed, coupled with memories that were phenomenal.

It was not uncommon for tourists who may have visited

Hong Kong 10 or 12 years ago to be greeted by a merchant who remembers their names, where they're from and how long since their last visit, she said.

The Chinese also rank as the world's most avid seekers of knowledge, Ms. Spencer observed. "They study everything! Even the little kids study constantly. The Chinese are always carrying around books and reading. The ones who worked in the clinic with me wanted me to teach them English, even though they could speak it fairly well already. They were willing to come to my apartment every night that I would let them just to learn."

Child abuse most often resulted from parents severely punishing their children because they weren't studying hard enough, she said.

Religiously, the Chinese have little concept of Christianity, she said, and consider Jesus Christ just another god to add to their long list of deities. They don't fear their children being exposed to Christianity, Ms. Spencer said, because they figure, what harm could another god do?

Most Chinese coming to the clinic had the same type ailments Americans seek treatment for, including common colds, abrasions and infections, she said. The Chinese are especially susceptible to nose and throat cancer because of the large amounts of dried fish they eat, many medical observers feel, Ms. Spencer said.

But probably the most difficult cultural difference for Americans to adjust to would be the Chinese penchant for fresh air, regardless of the season or temperature.

"We had to keep the front door at the clinic standing open all the time to let the Chinese know we were open," she said. In addition many times patients would open up the windows too.

"Seventy-degree buildings? Poppycock!" Ms. Spencer said. "The Chinese would rather have the fresh air!"

Bustard Is Endangered

By RAMESH C. PANDE
NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The great Indian bustard, a game bird once hunted to the verge of extinction by maharajahs and nabobs, is once more an endangered species.

Indian wildlife lovers and protective societies have protested against the Indian government's tacit permission to well-heeled Arab sportsmen to hunt the bustard.

A party of Arab nobles, including a Saudi Arabian prince, recently camped in the Great Thar desert of Western India, which still boasts a few coveys of bustards and so-called "imperial sandgrouse" — also a prized game bird. The Arabs hunt birds with trained falcons.

The bustard, which looks like a crane, is an ungainly bird and a poor flier. The challenge isn't shooting it but finding it.

The visiting Arab princes, accustomed to hunting the bustard and other rare desert birds on the Pakistan side of the Thar desert, have had no success there recently, according to news reports, so they asked permission to try their falcons in Indian territory.

In New Delhi, students recently marched around the city with placards reading, "Eat custard, not bustard."

Jaja Mangal Singh, a well-known sportsman from central India, said, "We are told the Indian government has exempted the Arabs because it might help us get more oil from Saudi Arabia. That is just like inviting Jimmy Carter to shoot our tigers in exchange for enriched uranium."

Trading Stamps Remain Popular

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumer attitudes toward trading stamps remain highly positive, according to a national public opinion poll.

More than 24 million households save trading stamps, and new stamp savers are increasing, says William F. Penwell, senior vice president of marketing for S&H Promotional Services.

Other findings:

- 59 percent of the new stamp savers are 35 or under.
- The higher the income, the more likely a household is to save stamps. Thirty-four percent of those with family incomes of $25,000 were strong savers, compared with only 30 percent of those with $20,000-$24,999 incomes, and 26 percent with $15,000-$19,999 incomes.
- The 1978 study was the 20th in a series by leading research firms for Penwell's company. It was made by Opinion Research Corp., Princeton, N.J.

Vocalist 'Crippled' By Stage Fright

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Many people who have heard Anita Ellis sing think her career could have been as big as Ella Fitzgerald's or Peggy Lee's if she had pursued it. She didn't, because for more than 25 years she's been fighting stage fright.

"It's not just stage fright," Miss Ellis says. "It's more than that. It's really crippling. It's kept me from my own gifts. It just stops me cold. I don't sing."

Miss Ellis, 58, has sung on the radio, in commercials, dubbed voices in movies, made a few records. The first, cut in 1953, sells today to collectors for $100.

She can sing with technical people around; it's just an audience — even thinking about an audience — that puts her, as she describes it, "in traction." She's never sung with a band. When she had to make a living, she auditioned for a Broadway show — to be an understudy.

Since 1960, when she married Dr. Mortimer Shapiro, a New York neurologist, she has taken refuge in not having to make a living. Since then, she has sung "live" just eight weeks.

She gave the first concert of her life on Feb. 4 to a sold-out house in Lincoln Center's 1,096-seat Alice Tully Hall. The only indication this tiny, curly-haired woman gave of nerves was starting five of 26 songs again, saying she thought she could do better.

She says that before the concert she was terrified. But, she adds: "When I walked on stage, I was holding myself together. I had to do my work and my work became dominant." After her one encore, she mouthed the words, "I made it."

Afterwards — again for the first time — she thought of ways to do better next time instead of ways to say no to offers. Now, she says, the next time, she won't start songs over. The next time, she'll get more in tune with the musicians, the audience and the songs. The next time, she'll pick more songs that reflect her love of nature.

She's working on an album with pianist Ellis Larkins and plans to make the talk show and disc jockey circuit — one-to-one communication is easy — "putting the album out there to speak for me."

"I'm not looking for fame and fortune now, at 58. Just to sing. Just homage to song. It is taking all my courage to try and do it."

In the 1950s, she saw a psychiatrist. "We hit on this clue," she says. "My mother was such a beautiful singer. My father thought it wasn't right for a woman to sing in public, so she wasn't allowed. The doctor and I thought I was telling myself, if I sing in public I'll lose a man's love and I'll lose my parents' love."

But even when with that insight, she couldn't cure stage fright.

So she left therapy to dub songs for Jeanne Crain in "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes." She had already done five Rita Hayworth films plus "Three Little Words" and "Belle of New York" for Vera-Ellen, which had duets with Fred Astaire.

Jazz critic Whitney Balliett described Miss Ellis' voice as "a muscular soprano, capable of endless colors and timbres; beautiful pianissimo phrases capped with silken vibratos; sudden sustained fortissimos that take on a reedy, breaking quality; brave jubilant middle notes; high clarion tones and low reverential asides. Her crystalline diction says, these words are important — listen. When she finishes, her songs don't end they subside."

She was born Anita Kert in Montreal, oldest of four children. Her younger brother Larry, an actor, is rehearsing now for the title role in a show about Al Jolson. The family moved to Hollywood when Anita was 10. She went to school there, then to the College of Music in Cincinnati, and in 1941 became a singer on radio station WLW.

In 1943, she married Frank Ellis, two weeks before he left for the Air Force. When Ellis returned, the marriage withered and they divorced in 1946, remaining friends until he died in 1957.

Miss Ellis returned to radio and movies in Los Angeles. Stage fright first showed up in 1951, when she auditioned in New York for "Your Show of Shows" with Sid Caesar, Imogene Coca and Mel Brooks.

"At the first rehearsal, I was terrific," she says. "Then I walked out there for the dress rehearsal and the theater was full of people. Nothing came out of my mouth. I didn't know that would happen to me. Mel Brooks walked me around the block. There was another dress rehearsal the next day. I couldn't sing."

Her psychiatrist suggested she try again, so she hooked up with pianist Luther Henderson and was booked into La Vie en

Rose, a tiny, red velvet place in New York.

"The day I opened, I started with 'Someone To Watch Over Me' — a Freudian slip choice. I started singing the verse but I couldn't go on stage. Larry — my brother is a rock of Gibraltar — jumped up from the audience, waited until the chorus and pushed me on. People thought that was a dramatic, brilliant way to open."

Club work got no easier. In 1958, Oscar Hammerstein persuaded Miss Ellis to audition for "Flower Drum Song," so she tried out for understudy to the two female leads. "I was very frightened but I accepted my fate. I was learning about theater. After awhile it wasn't as frightening. You sing the same way every night; you do the same thing; the other people are like a family. It's almost impossible to forget anything; you had to be there every night and there were rehearsals twice a week."

Then, in 1960, she married Shapiro and became a full-time wife.

In 1974, a friend died — a reporter who had urged her to return to singing. Later that year — for him — she sang in person for the first time since 1960, for eight weeks at Michael's Pub in New York.

She's making her current comeback primarily for that friend, for her mother, who died last March, and because she used being "very married" as an excuse for not singing for the last 19 years. Her husband hasn't pushed her, though he prefers classical music to jazz.

Miss Ellis says, "I think it would have been more honest if I'd been singing all the time. But I've liked my life. I liked the rules I had. I don't think every minute is supposed to be happy. I have a gift. I just feel very fortunate."

Sailing Ship's Voyage Is Adventure For Young

By GENE SCHROEDER
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Some 400 years after Sir Francis Drake sailed his galleon around the world, another British sailing ship has set forth on a voyage which also will circumnavigate the globe.

But this time the goal is scientific exploration rather than discovery.

The vessel, a 150-ton brigantine named "The Eye of the Wind," sailed out of Plymouth, England, last October on a two-year voyage linking a series of land-based expeditions in Panama, Papua New Guinea, the Galapagos Islands, Indonesia and the Red Sea.

At the tiller for a few hours as the ship left the same harbor from which Drake sailed in 1577 was Prince Charles, patron of "Operation Drake," as the modern-day voyage has been dubbed.

"The prince is very much interested in the project and is keeping close watch on its progress," said a spokesman for the British Information Service in New York.

Described as the most ambitious seafaring adventure of its kind ever launched, "Operation Drake" was conceived to provide young explorers from various walks of life with a chance to experience, as Prince Charles expressed it, "some of the challenges of war in a peacetime situation."

The adventure, estimated to cost about $1 million, is being underwritten by various sponsors, including the Explorers Club of New York, Walter H. Annenberg, former U.S. ambassador to England, contributed $100,000.

Commenting on the project, Prince Charles said: "Many young people, I believe, long to have the chance of lasting adventure, of achieving something through personal endeavor or simply giving service where it is needed."

"Operation Drake will help bring to fruition a number of scientific and community projects in several parts of the world, but it will also provide many young explorers with the adventure of a lifetime."

The voyage will link up with a series of land-based projects studying such diverse subjects as rare animals, birds and flowers, a sunken treasure ship, and the rapid spread of an infamous coral-eating starfish.

According to a spokesman, the young explorers will tackle "rushing rivers never before navigated and dense jungle seldom penetrated."

The steel-hulled brigantine serves as a floating laboratory base at each anchorage. It is fitted out for diving purposes and carries a number of inflatable craft for inshore work. A modern quartz navigation clock was supplied by Bulova Watch Co., official timekeeper of the expedition.

During each of nine three-month phases, an international crew of some two dozen youths will serve aboard.

Each crew will be made up of adventurers ranging in age from 17 to 24 under the command of an experienced master and watch leaders. The youths were selected from applicants in several countries, including about 70 from North America.

At each stop, the youths will be joined by others on a number of scientific projects, including archaeological digs. Ultimately, "Operation Drake" will involve several hundred persons.

The first major stop was Panama's Caledonia Bay, where the young adventurers are probing the site of an ill-fated, 17th-century Scottish colony named New Edinburgh.

The Panama phase also calls for a diving team to search for the wreck of the "Maurepas," a 42-gun French merchantman that sank on Christmas Eve, 1698, with a cargo of silver coins valued now at an estimated $16 million.

Later this spring, the vessel is scheduled to leave Panama for the Galapagos Islands, where the emphasis will be on marine biological research and community aid projects.

The "Eye of the Wind" will stop in turn at Fiji, New Guinea, Indonesia, Singapore and Port Sudan on the Red Sea, where the explorers will take part in a project attempting to discover the reasons behind the enormous increase in coral-eating starfish, which threaten to destroy many coral reefs of the world.

The voyage is scheduled to end back at Plymouth in October 1980.

The expedition's leader is a world-famous explorer, Lt. Col. John Blashford-Snell, whose experiences have included being bitten by a vampire bat in Central America and watching one of his boats on an African adventure being eaten by a hippopotamus.

Legendary Bird Became Bunny

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The egg and bunny illustrations on today's Easter cards have ancient origins, says creative director George L. Parker of Hallmark Cards.

Legend says the rabbit originally was a large and handsome bird, a pet of Eostre, Teutonic goddess of spring. One day Eostre changed the bird into a rabbit. That, supposedly, is why the Easter bunny builds nests and fills them with colored eggs.

The egg was seen by Egyptians, Greeks and Romans as a symbol of the universe and a token of spring and rebirth. Early Christians stained eggs red to represent Christ's blood, says Parker. Since then, coloring eggs at Easter has become traditional in many countries.

Walls Provided Graffiti Work

IMPERIA, Italy (AP) — Authorities in this Riviera city have installed blank panels on public walls in the hope that graffiti artists will concentrate their efforts "in an orderly way," and keep public places cleaner.

"Anyone, Italian or not, who wants to display publicly in writing his thoughts or feelings can now do it in an orderly way," a city spokesman said.

The panels were nailed to walls at a height within everybody's reach.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — New York broilerfryers: Buying interest for delivery this week is irregular and centers on shipments for end of the week. Spots loads are fully adequate to ample with sales ranging from 44-46 cents per plant grade, depending on processing areas. Current movement is light to fair with advanced inquiry noted as fairly active in some quarters.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices: continued to decline in early trading today extending the market's slide into a second session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 2.34 to 847.97 in the first half hour of trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Losing issues outnumbered gainers by a 3-2 margin.

Trading volume was moderate in the early going.

Analysts said a number of concerns seemed to be weighing on the market. Among them reports that profit or wellhead taxes on oil companies are being considered as part of a White House proposal to decontrol domestic oil prices. Also, there were indications that the White House may step up its anti-inflation program in light of the 26 percent surge in 1978 corporate profits which the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

Some oil issues continued to slip in early trading today. Standard Oil of California declined 1/4 to 48 3/4; Atlantic Richfield fell 1/2 to 61 3/4; Occidental Petroleum fell 3/4 to 20 3/4. But Texaco was unchanged at 26 3/4.

Eastman Kodak was among stocks which bucked the downward trend. Kodak rose 1/2 to 62 1/2 after unveiling a new high-speed instant color film and several new camera models on Tuesday. K Mart, which reported a 28 percent earnings gain in its latest quarter, rose 1/4 to 24.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 7.28 to 850.31. Declines outnumbered advances by a 9-5 spread on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 27.18 million shares against 34.62 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index sank .29 to 56.85.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .84 to 173.02.

School Board...

Unanimous approval was given to limiting the informational meetings on the second Monday nights of each month to presentation of information from the school's administration to the board. Items of non-agenda public expression and "old and new business" will be limited to the agenda of the action meeting of the board on the third Monday night of each month.

Cox said he felt this arrangement would be far more effective as "it will, for example, give time to discuss predetermined items at length." Cox also emphasized this decision does not shut out anyone who seeks to have an item put on the action meeting agenda as the channel of requesting such action is still the same — contacting the superintendent or the chairman of the board five days or more in advance of the action meeting.

Board member Theresa Shank, commenting on limiting the informational meeting, said "the time had come when we had to do something about these long meetings."

Cox presented to the board a final tabulation of construction costs of the Greenville Middle School. Grand total for the project amounted to $2,087,838.74.

Of this total, $1,797,654.20 was for contract — general, plumbing, heating, electrical, etc. work; $89,282 for site preparation work, $5,421.90 for fencing; $177,323.23 for the design fee; and $18,157.41 for contingency.

The original awarding base bid was for $2,117,000.

To date, a total of $948 has been spent on landscaping, and considerable work needs to be done to the area, according to Cox.

Mrs. Shank urged that early action be taken to firm up the grounds so that grass seeds can be sown and have a chance to take root.

Approval was given the Greenville Utilities commission for an easement covering the installation of guy wires and the right to trim trees on school property at Third Street School. This work will involve the removal of three pecan trees and trimming of several other trees in the area.

Changes in the wording of the proposed "Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Plan" centered primarily on wording that includes males as a minority group in the kindergarten/elementary field, along with other minority defined groups.

This policy paper will be considered for adoption at a later date.

In relation to the new state policy for retirement at age 70 instead of the former 65 age, the board voted to bring the retirement policy of the schools into line with the state law, and to seek legal counsel in the wording of the local policy. Concern was expressed that assurances be included that would make it possible to deal with older teachers on the same basis of performance as any other teacher, to include an evaluation process of performance.

The board unanimously voted to extend the current contract of attorney Phillip Dixon for the remainder of this school year and for the school year 1979-80. A request was also made that a letter be sent to Dixon expressing the board's appreciation for his outstanding service he has provided to date.

Action will be taken in the near future to survey student and staff to determine the need for measles immunization. Dr. Robert Ehinger, of the Director of the Pitt County Health Dept. will work with the schools in this project.

At the conclusion of last night's meeting, Cox revealed he would be in Raleigh today "as the sole opponent to the new state math-science high school. I was told I'd be the token opposition at the legislative committee meeting," Cox commented.

Airport Bill

RALEIGH — A bill has been introduced in the North Carolina House of Representatives to expand the membership of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority.

The bill changing the make-up of the authority was introduced by Rep. Horton Rountree at the request of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the Greenville City Council.

If approved, the legislation would expand the present five-member board to eight members. Three members would be appointed by the Board of County Commissioners while three would be appointed by the city council. In addition, each of the governing bodies would designate one of its members to serve on the authority.

At present, each of the governing boards appoints two members to the commission, which in turn, elect a fifth member. One member of the city council and one commissioner serve as non-voting ex-officio members of the authority.

Hospital Bd....

amount of "busy work" that must be done for each new endeavor at the hospital now. The case in point was the recent submission of "certificate of need" for the new bed tower for the hospital. Richardson said he could not estimate the number of worker hours spent on this project, but Board Chairman Leslie called the effort "colossal." ECU Medical School Dean William Laupus said one person from his organization, Dr. Walter Sheppard, spent "at least four full weeks" on the project.

The board members resolved to individually contact state legislators about general feeling of opposition against a state-level Rate Review Commission to monitor hospital charges. Its their opinion, they indicated, that the greater the degree of regulation, the greater the cost to the patient, as all costs must, of course, be reflected in patient day charges.

Chief of Staff Dr. Billy Bost observed that the staff now must employ three full-time secretaries to keep up with documentation of staff activities alone. He estimated that paperwork costs the patient $15 to $17 a day.

Dr. Bost presented some by-law changes of the medical staff. He offered for the board's approval promotion of the following to full staff membership: Diane Meelheim, RN, family nurse practitioner; Dr. Lawrence S. Harris, forensic pathology; Dr. James R. Markello, pediatrics; Dr. William E. Tripp Jr., consulting privileges in dentistry; Dr. Arthur Kopelman, pediatrics and neonatology; Dr. Jarlath Mackenna, obstetrics and gynecology and perinatology; Dr. Donald D. Weir, rehabilitation medicine; and Dr. Frank Fleming, internal medicine and neurology.

Board members were advised of a number of continuing education meetings and were invited to the groundbreaking for the ECU School of Medicine Medical Education Building to be held Friday.

Mrs. Martha Walston made a motion that the County Commissioners be prevailed upon the change the name of the complex which includes the hospital, EAHEC, Family Practice and other facilities adjacent to the hospital to Eastern North Carolina Medical Center. She got a second, but then an overwhelming no vote. Eugene James expressed the view that Pitt County taxpayers are entitled to have their hospital continue to be called Pitt Co. Memorial.

Mother Of Five Killed In Crash

ST. PAUL'S, N.C. (AP) — A 34-year-old mother of five and her 10-year-old daughter died in a single-car crash early Tuesday, according to the Highway Patrol. Virginia Lee Powell and her daughter, Kelley Ann Powell, died shortly after 1 a.m. when their compact station wagon crashed into a bridge abutment on Interstate 95 two miles north of St. Pauls, said Trooper E.B. Jackson.

The family was apparently moving from Macon, Ga., to Smithfield where Mrs. Powell's husband, Dr. Matthew J. Powell, was to begin practice Tuesday as an emergency room doctor at Johnson Memorial Hospital.

Powell and the couple's four other children were driving ahead of Mrs. Powell in the family's camper and were unaware of the accident until they were located at a rest stop near Fayetteville, Jackson said.

He said the cause of the accident is under investigation.

Seniors' Club Project Planned

Forty-six members attended the Thursday meeting of the Town and Country Senior Citizens, held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The Club will hold a baked goods and fancy work booth on the Evans St. Mall, March 31. All articles and baked goods should be delivered to the Mall by 9:30 a.m., according to Sarah Ashton, president.

It was announced that 46 members will attend the Easter Story program at the Morehead Planetarium, Chapel Hill, on April 11. Also, a luncheon will be held at the American Legion building in May.

Marguerite Cooke provided musical accompaniment for the group during a singing session. Refreshments were served by Eloise Smith, Lorraine House, Williamson George, Helen Snyder, Lena Laughinghouse, Katherine Lofquist and Henry Lofquist. The Rev. Henry Lofquist closed the meeting.

Thank You, Greenville.

In 1978 more people all over North Carolina did business with NCNB than any other year in our history. Naturally, we're pleased about that, and we know that we couldn't have done it without the support of the people who do business with us here. So we thank you.

And we can assure you that we'll keep doing all we can to make NCNB "the best bank in the neighborhood," in every neighborhood we're in. Because the closer NCNB comes to being just that, the better job we do for our community.

Mickey Britt seems to have a thing about giving up unearned runs in the first inning of the games he pitches.
Last night, against Eastern Connecticut State, he did it again. But this time, he got some solid support from his teammates as he recorded his second win in four decisions, 6-1.
Britt was tagged with the run, although it didn't affect his earned run average, after leadoff batter Jim Silva reached on a single and came around on to score on a two-out error that would have ended the inning.

The Pirates, who went down in order in the first, came back to blast starting hurler Briant Murphy for five second inning runs, including back-to-back home runs by Mike Sage and Jerry Carraway.
Britt, in going the distance, allowed just four hits, none after the fourth inning. He struck out three and walked two. Only one man reached base in the last four innings, and he was erased in a ninth-inning double play, one of two pulled off by the Pirates during the evening.

"They (Eastern Connecticut) have a good club," ECU Coach Monte Little said. "They made some good plays against us."
"But we had some outstanding defensive plays, too. (Mike) Sorrell played a fine game for us at shortstop."
Little felt the Pirates hit the ball better in the game than they have all season. "And we did it when we had to. If we continue to play good defense, we have the people who can swing the bats. Once we get our hitting going, I think we're going to be okay. If we can win this next one (tonight), I think we'll be on the right track. We're not taking them for granted, of course. They've got a good club, and I think their reliever (Russ Allen) did a fine job for them. He challenged us by throwing curve balls for strikes when he got behind."

Little added that Butch Davis, a usual starter, did not see action due to a slight ankle sprain suffered in an exhibition game Sunday. "He should be back late in the week," the coach said.
Eastern Connecticut got things started in the top of the first, scoring its only run. Silva's single came off the top of the glove of leaping second baseman Bob Neff. He then stole second and moved to third on an infield out. Bob Cressotti hit a routine grounder to third that Jerry Carraway errored, allowing Silva to score his unearned run.
After that, only one other ECU player reached second base. That came in the third when Phil Smythe reached on a bad-hop single at second and moved up on Mark Riemer's single with two outs.
After going down in order in the first, the Pirates drove in five second inning runs before Connecticut could chalk up an out. Macon Moye led off with a single to right and Rick Derechallo followed with a double to left. Tim Hardison singled Moye over, and a pickoff attempt that went astray scored Derechallo and moved Hardison to second.

Sage followed that with a home run over the left center fence, driving in Hardison. Carraway then lofted a ball over the wall in right for a second straight homer, making it 5-1.
Except for a walk, the Pirates didn't get another runner until the fifth. Billy Best led off the fifth with a bunt single down the third base line that he easily beat out. Raymie Styons followed with a double to left, moving Best to third. Moye hit a long sacrifice fly to center, scoring Best for the 6-1 lead.
It marked the final Pirate threat of the evening.
Styons and Carraway led the Pirate hitting with two each.

The two teams meet again tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field. Eastern Connecticut then travels to Wilmington for several games before returning here Saturday afternoon for the third game of the series.

Lady Pirates Split Openers

PEMBROKE — East Carolina split its first doubleheader of the softball season with Pembroke State yesterday afternoon. The Braves defeated the Pirates 4-3 in the first game, but ECU came back to win the second 3-2.

The hosts scored four unearned runs in the first inning of the opener, aided by four Pirate errors.

East Carolina got runs by Janis Parlon and Addie Carter in the first and a run from Teresa Whitley in the fourth, but could not overcome Pembroke's early lead.

In the second game, Donna LaVictoria singled to left in the third and scored on an infield out. Then, trailing 2-1 in the seventh, Pirate shortstop Mary Powell smashed a home run to deep center field and Jo Carol Barrow scored after a double when Cindy Meekins reached on an error to give ECU the win.

Powell, LaVictoria and Jan McVeigh were all 3-6 for the day for the Pirates.

No Word On Coach

There will be no announcement of the new basketball coach at East Carolina University today, it was learned.

An announcement, however, could be anticipated later in the week.

Reportedly, work on deciding on the new coach is coming to an end today, and university officials will make their decision by Thursday, with a possible announcement on Friday morning.

Four people are believed to be among those under consideration. They include assistant coach Terry Kunze, ex-UNC player Dick Grubar, Virginia aide Richard Schmidt, and Wake Forest assistant Dave Odom.

The club will hold its annual spring banquet on Saturday, April 7, at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Maryland basketball coach Charles "Lefty" Driessell will serve as the guest speaker for the occasion.

Tickets for the banquet are $10 each for members and their escorts, and $15 for non-members and guests. In addition, those who join the club for the coming year will be allowed to purchase at member prices.

"Anyone who is not involved in sports in some way, either as a participant or a spectator is missing something," Woods told the group. "You learn a lot in athletics: teamwork, how to lose and bounce back, things like that that will carry over into the business world."

He added that it also was a chance for people to let off steam from pent-up emotions.

Woods was asked what was the most excited events he had covered, and he mentioned two.

"One of them came this year, and both of them were in basketball. When East Carolina went up to Io this year and beat a very fine team, actually a superior team by one point right at the very end, after being down by 15 at the half, has to rank as one of the biggest I've seen. And the win in the Southern Conference tournament over Furman for the championship on a last-second shot in overtime is the other. They rank right together."

Woods was asked too about the prospects for conference membership for East Carolina.

"Well, there is no chance of getting into the ACC," he said. "I don't think they'd have even taken in Georgia Tech if not for the Atlanta advertising and television market."

He noted that there has been some talk about seeking membership in the Metro Seven. "Not being in a conference hurts all the sports except football. Football at this stage can stand on its own."
"East Carolina has gotten on the bowl list, by playing in the Independence Bowl, and they were impressive there. I would think that if they had a good year this season, they'd have a chance to move up to a bigger bowl, like the Liberty or the Peach."

Barrett's Homer Keys Rose Victory

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer Locked in a classic pitchers' duel, Rose High's baseball team was tied with Goldsboro 1-1 as the Rampants came to bat in the bottom of the seventh inning. As the leadoff batter, right fielder Will Barrett, strode to the plate, someone in the stands shouted, "Go ahead and hit a home run, Will." Rose coach Ronald Vincent recalled later.

Barrett, who had gotten the Rampants' only hit of the game, an infield hit in the second inning, watched the first two pitches go by, both balls. The third was a letter-high fastball and Barrett tagged it. Almost as soon as it was hit, it was evident the game was over. The Rampants cleared out of their dugout in jubilation as the ball cleared the left field fence for a 2-1 victory.

Barrett's heroics nearly overshadowed the brilliant efforts of both pitchers. Goldsboro's Ron Pennington gave up only two hits, while Rose's Mike Williams allowed only one. Only nine batters in the entire game reached base.

Williams, now 2-0 on the season, had a no-hitter going until the fifth when, with two outs, second baseman David Frederick got a clean single to center field. Pennington's no-hit bid ended early as Barrett hit a ground ball in the second that neither the pitcher nor the short-stop could get to in time.

Williams walked three and struck out 10, while Pennington walked just one and struck out five. Both teams came up with some great defensive plays to back up their pitchers. It was truly a game that neither team deserved to lose.

"I'm sort of disappointed with our hitting today," Vincent said after the game. "But I'm very pleased with our defense. Defense like that is what we're going to have to do to win games this year."

Vincent said it was the best his infield has looked this season. Third baseman Junior Neal was especially busy and left fielder Joey Mattheis had the catch of the day in the second as he made a great play moving to his right on a fly ball.

"Williams looks like he's getting in shape," Vincent grinned. "His control is much better and he stayed ahead of the hitters. He got a little bit tired at the end, though."

Vincent also praised the hitting of Barrett, saying he is "probably hitting the ball as well as anybody on the team right now." It was the second game in a row in which Barrett came up with a timely hit. His two-run double against Kinston last week broke open a tie game for Rose.

Barrett was the first man to reach base in the game with his infield hit in the second. He stole second and moved to third on a wild pitch, but was left stranded. Both pitchers walked batters in the third, but Goldsboro's Tim Huffman was caught stealing and Rose's Robert Morehead was left at second after stealing.

Williams gave up his only hit in the fifth. With two away, Frederick looped a hit over second base for a single, but the next batter struck out.

The Rampants put their first run on the scoreboard in the sixth. Leadoff batter Mike Campbell reached when his ground ball was fumbled by the third baseman. Pinch runner Charles Daise stole second and went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Morehead. Mark Shank hit a fly ball to left field and Daise tagged up. The throw was in time, but the catcher dropped the ball, allowing Daise to score.

With one away in the top of the seventh, David Searles walked for the Cougars. Pinch runner Tim Simpson stole second and made it to third on an infield out by Craig Brown. He scored when Williams threw an 0-2 pitch into the dirt and Rose catcher Mark Shank was unable to handle it.

Williams struck out the next batter to end the inning and Barrett was the leadoff man in the top of the seventh.

The Rampants are now 2-0, while Goldsboro dropped to 2-2. Rose travels to Kinston Friday.

Rampettes Take Win

KINSTON — Rose High School's girls' softball team gained its first victory of the season yesterday, downing Kinston, 14-7.

Rose pushed over two runs in the second, but saw Kinston come back with one in the bottom of the inning and two in the third. Rose added four in the fifth, then broke it open with seven in the sixth and one more in the seventh.

Kinston added one each in the fifth and seventh and two in the sixth.

Christia Dunn was the winning pitcher for Rose. Debra Wingate led Rose's hitting with three, while Sherri Helms had two, including a double.

Redding had a two-run homer for Kinston in the third. Now 1-2, the Rampettes travel to Washington on Friday.

Minnesota Bombs New York In 15-7 Victory

By The Associated Press

All right, so the Minnesota Twins have lost Rod Carew and Dan Ford, their two most productive hitters of 1978.

Does that mean they won't score many runs this year?

No...not if their 15-7 bombardment of the New York Yankees, winners of the last two World Series, is any indication.

"The sad fact is this was a lousy ballclub last year with Rod Carew (the seven-time American League batting champion)," Twins Manager Gene Mauch philosophized Tuesday after Minnesota's impressive exhibition triumph. "You've got to have a reason to come to the ballpark and we didn't have one."

The reason they lacked the incentive was the fact they had little chance at winning the American League West title. They wound up the season with a 73-89 record, in fourth place, 19 games behind division champion Kansas City.

After the season, Carew and Ford were traded to the California Angels in separate deals.

Despite the loss of Carew, of whom Mauch was very fond, the manager feels the Twins are a better team.

"There are only two things that could have happened if we still had Rod this year and both of them are bad," said Mauch. "One, all the attention on this team would have gone to him in regard to his imminent departure, and that would have hurt morale. And two, if he stayed for this season, he would have played out his option and we'd have gotten nothing in return for him."

One of the players the Twins received in the deals with the Angels was first baseman Ron Jackson, who hit .297 for California last year.

Jackson lashed two doubles and a single as the Twins tattooed four Yankees' pitchers for eight hits.

Starter Ken Clay was the easiest target for the Minnesota hitters. He was raked for 10 hits and 10 runs in 22-3 innings, including a grand slam home run by Roy Smalley and a three-run shot by Glenn Adams. Rookie Dan Graham added a two-run homer and Willie Norwood had a solo blast.

"If my first three hitters in the batting order have any kind of year at all, there's no way Jackson won't drive in 100 runs," Mauch said. "The guy can hit. You can hear it just by the sound of his bat."

The loss was the 11th in 13 games for the struggling Yankees.

In other exhibition games, Jamie Quirk rapped three hits in Kansas City's 13-hit attack and Dennis Leonard pitched five-hit ball for seven innings as the Royals whipped the Atlanta Braves 9-2.

Terry Kennedy, Roger Freed and Ken Reitz slammed consecutive home runs in the fifth inning and Mike Tyson drove in three runs with a double and a homer, powering the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Art Howe's run-scoring double highlighted a four-run Houston fifth inning against Montreal's Bill Lee and helped the Astros beat the Expos 6-4.

Doubles by Bobby Brown and Butch Benton keyed a seven-run eighth inning that carried the New York Mets to an 8-3 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates at Bayamon, Puerto Rico. Jack Clark and Tom Heinzelman each had two hits and two RBI as the San Francisco Giants downed the San Diego Padres 6-4.

Carl Yastrzemski's double and Dwight Evans' run-producing single in the 10th inning lifted the Boston Red Sox to a 4-3 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Lee May's second homer in two days triggered a three-run Baltimore second inning as the Orioles topped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-1.

Dave Rozema's six scoreless innings helped the Detroit Tigers blank the Chicago White Sox 2-0.

And three games were rained out — Chicago Cubs-California, Oakland-Cleveland and Seattle-Milwaukee.

Meanwhile, Baltimore pitching ace Jim Palmer, sidelined with a pulled groin muscle, said he would be out "...until they pay me what I'm worth. This could be a three-year injury."

Basketball More Than Sport In Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The stereotype of a lanky Indiana farm boy with a straw hat on his head, a carburetor tucked under one arm and a basketball in the other hand just isn't true.

They don't all tinker with automobiles. And the hat would fall off in a game of one-on-one.

But basketball? Well, it's more than a sport in Indiana. It's a way of life that begins in early childhood and ends when...well, it never really ends.

It's no coincidence that the Hoosier State has produced a nearly unbroken string of outstanding players and coaches at every level, from Johnny Wooden in the 1920s to Larry Bird a half-century later.

And it's no coincidence that the Hoosier faithful that Indiana and Purdue will play each other tonight for the championship of the National Invitation Tournament — already renamed by some newspapers as the "National Indiana Tournament."

Or that top-ranked and unbeaten Indiana State, led by the marvelous Bird, has reached the Final Four of the NCAA tournament. Or that Notre Dame, the fourth Indiana college in the national spotlight this spring, reached the finals of the NCAA Midwest regional tournament.

While not every player from these college teams was weaned on Hoosier high school ball, the prominence of Indiana teams and players is undeniable. Frenzied crowds fill not only college arenas but also the high school gyms — some of them, such as New Castle High School's 9,300-seat facility, larger than most colleges have.

namment and next year's NCAA finals and the home of the Indiana Pacers of the National Basketball Association, will be filled with a sellout crowd approaching 17,000 on Saturday for the finals of the state high school tournament. The month-long tournament will draw an estimated 1 million fans.

It's known as Hoosier Hysteria and it's especially strong in the smaller communities, where all civic activity is centered on the high school. It brought the townspeople together, and it promoted natural rivalries with the surrounding communities.

"In the early days of basketball, starting with when Naismith put it all together and established some common rules, schools of all sizes participated in basketball," says Ward Brown, commissioner of the Indiana High School Athletic Association.

But what makes Indiana different? Surely other states had — and still have — similar situations.

"No. 1, we have a system that's unique," Brown said. "There are only two other states that have no class basketball (separate programs for schools of different sizes). This goes back to the early days of basketball, where you had 10 or 12 high schools in each county. Now (because of consolidations) several counties have only one school."

"But our system of one-class basketball makes them (the players) equally sought after by colleges because they've had to demonstrate themselves in a one-class tournament with all the other athletes. You know you can't force recruiters to come out."

Wooden, remembered more for his coaching achievements at UCLA, played on an Indiana high school championship team at Martinsville and was an All-

America at Purdue. Perhaps best-known among the other Hoosier products are Oscar Robertson and George McGinnis, both of whom played on state championship teams in Indianapolis, then went on to national prominence in the college and professional ranks. But there are many others, including Bobby Leonard, Clyde Lovellette, Tom and Dick Van Arsdale, Jimmy Rayl, Rick Mount, Dave Schellhase and Terry Dischinger. And current pros Louie Dampier, Kent Benson, Jim Price, Steve Green, Tom Abernethy, Bob Wilkerson, Larry Steele and McGinnis. The focus for Hoosier Hoosiers each year, naturally, is the state tournament.

Rams Defeat Jaguars, 7-3

SNOW HILL — Greene Central came up with four runs in the third and then held off Farmville Central in the late innings for a 7-3 baseball victory over the Jaguars yesterday afternoon.

The Rams scored first in the game with a single run in the first, but Farmville got runs in the second and third for a 2-1 lead.

In the bottom of the third, Cohen Cox walked for the Rams, Greg Holmes reached on a fielder's choice on a sacrifice bunt and the two runners moved up on a sacrifice by Jimbo Fulghum. Al Murray walked to load the bases and Donald Shaw hit a three-run triple. Shaw scored on Walt Tyndall's infield out.

Farmville added a run in the fourth and threatened in nearly every inning after that, but was unable to score again. The Rams scored two more in the sixth.

No Farmville batter had more than one hit, while Shaw was 2-2 and Jeff Scott 2-3 for Greene Central. Murray had a home run in the first inning.

Aycock Tops Conley By 5-2

PIKEVILLE — D. H. Conley fell to its third loss of the young baseball season yesterday as C. B. Aycock took a 5-2 victory over the Vikings.

Aycock scored in the first on a home run by Dave Thomas, but Conley got two in the top of the second. Ben Wilson and Curtis Spencer singled, moved up on Micah Dixon's sacrifice and scored on base hits by Roy Lassiter and Mike Edens.

Aycock tied the game in the bottom of the inning as Jackson doubled and scored on Pittman's single. In the third, Best walked and moved up on a wild pitch for Aycock and scored on Satterfield's double. The Falcons scored two more runs in the fourth.

Conley, now 2-3, was held to four hits with now batter getting more than one. Aycock also didn't have a batter with more than one hit.

Sicksers Get Well, Get Win

By The Associated Press
Things had gotten so bad recently for the Philadelphia 76ers that they were being called the "Sicksers."
Tuesday night, the "Sicksers" got well...against the San Antonio Spurs, beating the National Basketball Association's Central Division leaders 124-120.
After San Antonio tied the score 112-112 with 2:06 remaining, Julius Erving hit a layup, giving Philadelphia the lead for good. Then Doug Collins, who returned to action last week after missing 25 games because of foot surgery, clinched the victory with six straight free throws in the final 14 seconds.

In other NBA games, the Washington Bullets blitzed the New Orleans Jazz 126-107, the Denver Nuggets whipped the Golden State Warriors 113-102, the Atlanta Hawks downed the Cleveland Cavaliers 115-109, the New York Knicks topped the Milwaukee Bucks 118-110, the New Jersey Nets defeated the Detroit Pistons 117-110, and the Portland Trail Blazers stopped the San Diego Clippers 115-109.
Bullets 126, Jazz 107
Washington, despite the absence of starters Bob Dan-dridge and Kevin Grevey plus reserve Mitch Kupchak — all sidelined with injuries — buried the Jazz by outscoring New Orleans 39-25 in the third quarter for a 101-84 advantage. Elvin Hayes paced the Bullets with 32 points, as Washington raised its record to 48-22, best in the league.

Jordan had 29. Bob Lanier topped the Pistons with 26.
Trail Blazers 115, Clippers 109
Mychal Thompson's 27 points, including a clutch field goal with 11 seconds remaining, and Maurice Lucas' 24 points, including four free throws in the final 42 seconds, enabled Portland to get past San Diego and move within one game of the Clippers and Denver in the battle for the final two Western Conference playoff berths.
San Diego's Randy Smith led all scorers with 28 points, but was blanked in the final quarter.

Nuggets 113, Warriors 102
David Thompson scored 19 of his game-high 27 points in the first half, helping Denver beat Golden State and move within 3½ games of first-place Kansas City in the Midwest Division.
George McGinnis collected 21 points for the Nuggets, while Dan Issel had 18 points and 11 rebounds. Purvis Short paced Golden State with 20 points.
Hawks 115, Cavaliers 109
John Drew's 33 points, 14 in the fourth period, and Dan Roundfield's 30 helped the Hawks win their 12th straight home game and their 30th of the season in the Omni, tying a club record.

The victory ended a four-game Atlanta losing streak, while the setback extended Cleveland's losing streak to six.
Campy Russell led Cleveland with 27 points and Austin Carr scored 23.
Knicks 118, Bucks 110
Earl Monroe and Marvin Webster equaled their season highs with 28 and 23 points, respectively, as the Knicks overcame a 15-point first-quarter deficit and handed the Bucks their 29th road loss in 35 games this season. Webster, suffering from tendonitis in his right knee, also had a game-high 12 rebounds and five assists.
Marques Johnson tallied 24 points for Milwaukee and Junior Bridgeman scored 21.
Nets 117, Pistons 110
Reserve Harvey Catchings scored all 15 of his points in the fourth quarter as the Nets rallied to beat Detroit and end a five-game losing streak.
John Williamson led New Jersey with 35 points and Eddie

Kinston Nips Ayden-Grifton

KINSTON — Kinston High School outlasted Ayden-Grifton yesterday, gaining a 8-7 baseball victory.
Ayden-Grifton scored first, getting a run in the top of the first. Ed Coley singled and moved up on a passed ball. He scored when the relay on a long fly was errored.
Kinston came back with three runs in the bottom of the first, taking a 3-1 lead. Pittman walked, as did Bailey. Both moved up on a passed ball and Gooding singled in Pittman. A balk scored Bailey, and Cole reached on an error, scoring Gooding.
The Chargers got another run in the second. Chris Phillips singled and came around on a pair of errors.
Kinston came back with two more in the bottom of the second. Goodwin singled and scored on a home run by Pittman.
Both teams scored twice in the third and Ayden-Grifton added a single run in the fifth and two in the sixth to tie it at 7-7.

But in the bottom of the sixth, Kinston pushed over the winning run. Hill singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Gooding doubled in Hill.

archival Kentucky and showed a high school tournament game instead. Last year, basketball games were played although many schools were closed because of the energy crisis induced by a nationwide coal strike.
Even the blind drawing for first-round pairings is televised live statewide. This time there is extra interest because of small-town favorite Argos, a tiny school from northern Indiana with an enrollment of just 271.

Since little Milan wrote itself into Indiana folklore by winning the state championship 25 years ago, only a handful of small schools have reached the finals. None have won it.
Now, everyone in Argos is caught up in the basketball madness. Gov. Otis R. Bowen, from nearby Bremen, was in the stands last Saturday when Argos advanced to the finals with a victory over big-school power Marion, which has more students than Argos has citizens.
For Saturday's final round, Argos gets about 1,700 tickets — enough for every man, woman and child in town.
"We eat it, drink it and sleep it," says Rosie O'Dell, mother of two starting players for the Argos Dragons. "It's been that way since we were young. We're basketball crazy."
One of her brothers is the athletic director and soccer coach at the high school. Another brother is basketball coach at nearby Plymouth High School; another is basketball coach at Bremen High School.
Her nephew plays on the Bethel College team at Mishawaka, Ind. She was a cheerleader in high school herself, and her husband, Darrell, played on the Argos team in the 1950s. Their 20-month-old daughter Stephanie is the unofficial mascot for the current team.
"We don't smoke or drink or go out that much," she says. "We go to ball games five nights a week. That's our fun."

Pant-HERS Are Beaten

STANHOPE — Southern Nash High School rolled to a 12-4 softball victory over North Pitt yesterday.
The Lady Firebirds pushed over four runs in the first inning, then saw North Pitt come back with three in the top of the third. But Southern then added six more in the bottom of the third for a 10-3 lead.
The Birds added single runs in the fifth and sixth, while the Pant-HERS picked up one more in the fifth.
Boone and Brenda Brown each had three hits for Southern Nash, while Sandra Brown had three for North Pitt.

Jamesville In 13-1 Victory

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's Bullets romped to a 13-1 victory over Belhaven Friday in Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference play.
Belhaven got its only run in the top of the first and it staked them to a short lead. C. Young singled and D. Gibbs walked. James Freeman then singled in Young.
Jamesville came back with three in the bottom of the first. Toby Holliday walked and Keith Modlin doubled him in. Tommy DiNardo also doubled, scoring Modlin. A single by Greg Sullivan brought in DiNardo for a 4-1 lead.

Another run came in the second. Alan Frazier walked and Victor Lilley singled. Danny Lilley walked, and Trent Ange reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Frazier.
Jamesville went on to add four in the third and five in the fourth. Ange hurled the victory, allowing just two hits. He struck out eight and walked three.

Indiana, Purdue Battle For NIT Title

NEW YORK (AP) — The name is NATIONAL Invitation Tournament and the last four games still are held at Madison Square Garden in the heart of New York, but tonight's title game for college basketball's oldest postseason championship really is just a regular mom and apple pie civil war.

The Big Ten Conference has this season's bragging rights as the No.1 college basketball area, with seven teams in the Top 20 at one time or another, Michigan State in the NCAA Final. Four and three teams reaching the semifinals of the 42nd NIT. So who outside the state of Indiana cares that Purdue and Indiana meet at 9 p.m. EST for the NIT title?

Nearly 15,000 showed up for Monday night's semifinal doubleheader that saw Purdue, 27-17, beat Alabama 87-68 and Indiana, 21-12, defeat Big Ten rival Ohio State 64-55. A similar turnout is expected tonight when the Boilermakers and Hoosiers meet for the third time this season, each team having won once.

It will be the first time two teams from the same conference have reached the NIT final and the second time teams from the same state have played for the championship. Xavier, Ohio beat Dayton 78-74 in overtime in 1958.

The Big Ten doesn't have a bigger booster than Hoosiers' Coach Bobby Knight.

"Since 1939, every team in the Big Ten except Northwestern and Minnesota have made the Final Four," he said Tuesday. "I did a survey three years ago and the Big Ten had 48 players in the pros, the Pac-8 (now Pac-10) had 25 and the Atlantic Coast Conference 15. I don't think there's any question that some of the 24 teams in the NIT are better than some of the 40 in the NCAA.

"We have to play Purdue in the finals, but if I had any control over it, we'd be playing Rose Poly."

The focus of the game should be on whether Knight's swarming defense can stop Joe Barry Carroll, Purdue's 7-foot-1 center.

"There'll be five guys on Joe Barry at times — like bees on a honeycomb," said Purdue Coach Lee Rose. "He might as well warm up on the Indiana side because they're going to be around him all night."

Carroll, who Rose says has not spoken to newsmen in three years at Purdue, scored 42 points on 16-of-19 shooting against Alabama.

"He's not necessarily shy," said Rose. "He wants his ball-playing to do his talking for him."

"I'd like to think they would use Carroll as a decoy, but I don't think they will," said Knight.

Rose said his biggest worry is not how Indiana would handle Carroll, but the status of 6-7 forward Arnette Hallman, his best defensive player, who suffered an injured ankle against Alabama.

"Arnette did a super job on Mike Woodson (Indiana's leading scorer who paced the Hoosiers with 20 points Monday night) this season," said Rose.

Jack Gives Warning: He's Ready Now

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — It was a grimly determined — and slightly annoyed — Jack Nicklaus who intoned:

"I can assure you, I'll play better this week than I have the last two. It's time, past time, to start putting some numbers on the board. It's time to do it instead of talking about it."

Nicklaus' failure to bring his game around, and the emergence of a new wave of winners and contenders have served as the outstanding trends on the Professional Golfers Association tour this year.

The slump could come to an abrupt end this week in the $440,000 Tournament Players Championship, an ambitious event that Nicklaus calls "the most significant tournament on the tour." It's the richest event in the game and, more importantly, offers the finest field of the season.

Tarboro Downs Roanoke Netters

TARBORO — Tarboro High School rolled up an 8-1 tennis victory over Roanoke High School yesterday.

The lone Roanoke victory came in the number two singles where Dean Burns took a win.

The loss dropped the Redskins to 0-5. They play host to Plymouth on Thursday.

Summary:
Eddie Hurst (T) defeated Ricky

The quality of the field, including all of golf's great performers, and the severity of the tough Sawgrass links — in the three years the TPC has been played here, par 72 has not yet been broken — strongly indicate that an established player is the most likely winner of the $72,000 first prize in the event that begins Thursday.

Nicklaus is the defending champion and has won three of the five titles since the TPC has come into being.

Generally acknowledged as the greatest player the game has ever known, the mighty Golden Bear has had his problems this year, however. It's probably the poorest start he's ever had. He hasn't broken par in 10 rounds. He hasn't had a top 10 finish this season. His scoring average is 72.12 and he ranks a distant 78th on the year's money-winning list.

He insists, however, his game is not that bad.

"Two weeks ago, at Bay Hill, I played about as poorly as I can remember," he said. "But last week wasn't bad at all. I was hitting the ball pretty well and my putting was coming around. I simply wasn't scoring."

Although he had announced a cutback in his playing schedule, his problems have prompted him to add to his schedule. This will mark his fourth consecutive tournament. It's the first time since his early days on the tour that he's played four in a row.

Should he fail to execute a turnaround in his performance, the strongest lineup in golf is poised for a stab at the title in the tournament that ranks as the annual championship of the game's touring pros.

Among them are Tom Watson, the Player of the Year the last two seasons; and South African Gary Player, the Masters champion who is opening his 1979 American campaign; and John Mahaffey, the current PGA and World Cup champ.

Portions of the final two rounds will be televised nationally by CBS.

Knight Bow In Opener

SHARPESBURG — Greenville Christian Academy opened the 1979 baseball season yesterday, bowing to NEW Academy, 6-3.

The hosts pushed over three runs in the bottom of the first to take the lead for good. Benny Hicks reached on an error and Jimmy Joyner singled. Tommy Dorce walked, loading the bases. A Triple by Paul Davis brought in all three runners.

The Knights came back with two in the top of the second. Patrick Langley walked and Troy Hudson singled. Both came in when Sammy Harris singled.

What proved to be the winning run crossed in the bottom of the third for NEW. Joyner singled and came in when Andy Webb reached on an error.

NEW added two in the fourth, while GCA picked up one in the same inning.

Joyner led the NEW hitting with two, while George Griner, Huston, Chuck Allen and Harris each had two for GCA.

The Knights play host to NEW on Friday in their first home game.

Italians Have Retained A Vast Artistic Hoard

By JULIUS B. HUMI
FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Napoleon and Hermann Goering had agents in their invading armies plunder the art works of Italy, and no wonder. Art is the nation's most valuable but often neglected patrimony.

Figures released by the Ministry of Culture and Art recently reveal that the nation owns some 4.6 million items of "historic and artistic value," ranging from old and contemporary paintings and sculptures to relics and archaeological finds, manuscripts and other collections.

Of this number, only about 358,000 are on display in the country's 142 museums, 71 art institutes and 1,985 exhibition sites.

The rest of the vast collection lies in museum vaults, storage rooms and other depositories.

Only 500,000 items of this stored treasure ever have been properly catalogued.

The ministry figures do not include the Vatican museum in Rome nor the few remaining collections still in private hands in Italy.

Most of the works carried away by the French at the start of the 19th century were returned to Italy after the fall of Napoleon and the formation of the Italian state after the Congress of Vienna.

Most, but not all, the art works stolen by the Nazis, mainly on behalf of Reichsmarschall Goering, were retrieved and returned after World War II. Some are still surfacing at auctions in England and the United States, watched by Italian arts ministry agents.

It is impossible to estimate the value of the works of art exhibited in famous museums like the Uffizi and Pitti in Florence, the Accademia in Venice and Brera in Milan.

Ministry figures show Italy spends $327.5 million to maintain the paintings, sculptures, manuscripts and antiquities shown in the museums, exhibitions and excavation sites, less than one percent of total national spending.

Italy's art treasures have for centuries been the fountainhead of art collections all over the world. Its primitive and Renaissance paintings, together with classical sculptures of the ancient Roman and Greek empires, formed the nucleus of practically every major museum from the National Galleries in London and Washington to the Museums of Leningrad and Leipzig.

Their treasures were acquired, often illegally, by wealthy foreign collectors during the 18th and 19th centuries and even the beginning of the 20th, when the families descendant from the rulers of Italy's wealthy 15th and 16th century city-states who were patrons of the great artists of the time were losing their fortunes.

Only at the start of the present century, and more particularly after World War II, has the Italian government made the export of art works illegal, thereby encouraging an increasing market in stolen and illegally exported art.

The ministry estimates that more than 500 paintings and sculptures have been spirited out of Italy in the last 10 years, not always following clamorous thefts. Most of the really famous art works stolen are recovered by the police.

The countless treasures now on show to the millions of tourists who crowd Italy's museums each year came into national ownership mostly by donation.

One of these was the biggest single donation ever recorded in history.

In 1742 Anna Maria Ludovica, the last of the Medici dynasty which had ruled Florence since the 15th century, bequeathed the entire Medici art collection to Tuscany, then an independent state, with the proviso "that none of it should ever be removed from Florence, and that it should be there for the benefit of all nations."

The duchess, then 72 and married to the German Elector Palatine of the Rhine, gave to the state a treasure which included the works of Michelangelo, Botticelli, Donatello, Angelico, Lippi and many others. Any one of these would today be the centerpiece of a museum.

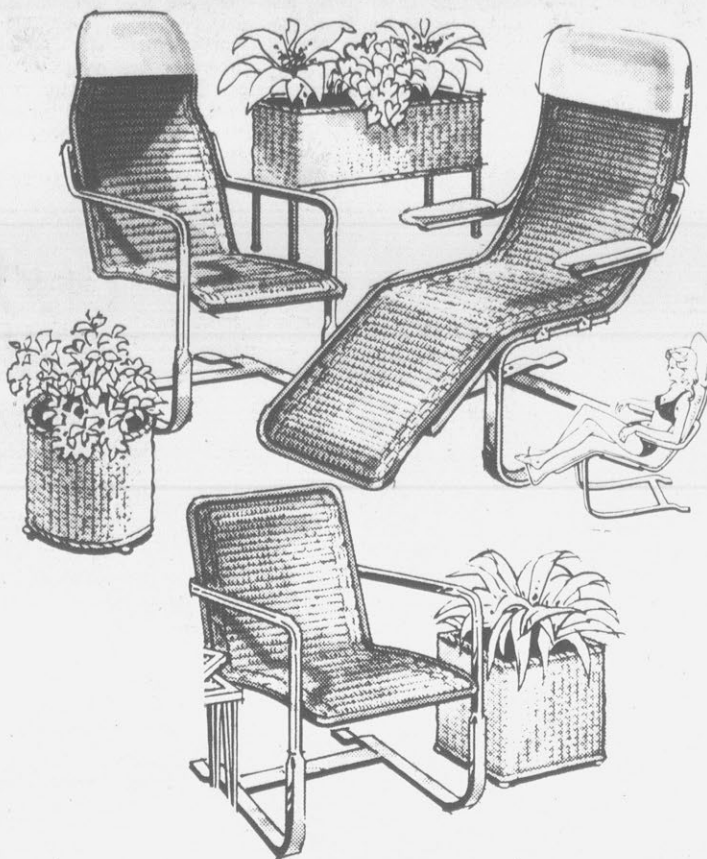

The donation also included the Laurentian Library, one of the most valuable collections of ancient manuscripts, gathered by agents of the immensely wealthy Medici rulers during the Renaissance.

Italy's two most famous museums, the Uffizi and Pitti galleries here, consist almost entirely of some Medici treasures presented by the last of their line.

Her bequest contributed towards making the Italian tourist industry one of the country's most profitable.

The just-published Culture and Art Ministry study is designed to remind Italians of their most important heritage, one more admired — and often coveted — by foreigners than by the natives of the land which saw the flowering of the Renaissance, the beginning of all art appreciation as it is now known.

Final Date For 'Friends'

Saturday, March 24 is the final date for the membership drive for Friends of the College, the largest concert series of its kind in the country.

Mrs. Mae Gates is the membership chairman for Greenville, and is accepting season memberships for $10. Membership includes admission to a number of entertainment events scheduled for the 1979-80 series at N. C. State University in Raleigh.

Attractions for the series are: The Black Watch, Scotland's senior Highland Regiment band; the Moscow State Symphony Orchestra; the Norman Luboff Choir; Ballet West; the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra; and a quartet of Metropolitan Opera stars in concert.

Interested persons can contact Mrs. Gates at 758-1420.

OLYMPIC STORY
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Wayne Rogers and Elke Sommer will costar in Paramount's "Top of the Hill", a 1980 Winter Olympics story to be filmed in Lake Placid, N.Y. The four-hour television series is novelist Irwin Shaw's first original story for television.

Persistent Fever: A Perplexing Problem

Our 14-year-old daughter has had fever for the past eight months. Usually, it's about 100 to 101 degrees. Rarely does it go above 102. The doctor has not been able to find the cause. We can't send her to school with fever. It's interfering with all her progress. — Mrs. J.D., Ky. Dear Mrs. D.:

Fever of unknown origin is one of the most baffling and frustrating problems that a physician has to deal with. Sometimes, the answer is elusive even after the most exhaustive tests have been made.

Normally, fever is a remarkable phenomenon. It is a great indicator of the body's reaction to invading bacteria, to inflammation and to infection. Fever indicates that the body forces are at work and, in fact, it represents the body's constant effort to overcome infections and other diseases.

Persistent fever demands the tireless coordinated efforts of the doctor and patient. When first confronted by such a perplexing problem, doctors tabulate all the possibilities and then proceed to rule them out, one at a time.

There are many possibilities that are always considered by doctors when they try to track down persistent fever of unknown origin. Rheumatic fever, typhoid fever, typhus, amebic dysentery, vascular diseases, liver disease, malaria, tuberculosis, tropical diseases, intestinal parasites and hepatitis are but some of the conditions that must be ruled out. It would be a monumental task to list every possible cause of persistent fever.

When the cause of fever completely eludes the physician, blood samples are often sent to the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta. There, the blood is studied for some of the more unusual types of infection. It takes great courage and perseverance to pursue all the studies necessary to finally find the cause of uninterrupted fever. Eventually, this will occur because the facilities for studying the blood are now extensive and effective in the pursuit of the cause of fever.

My aunt has a cancer and is seriously sick. My wife is so afraid of cancer that I can't get her to visit. She is sure cancer is contagious. I need your extra help to convince her that she is wrong. — Mr., E.E., Okla. Dear Mr. E.:

The fear of cancer is so great in so many people that it is difficult to reason with them or to separate them from their anxiety.

Cancers are not contagious. Cancers are not infectious. Cancers cannot be transmitted from one person to another, even when they are intimately in contact.

Thomasville NATIONALLY ADVERTISED Collector's Cherry

Thomasville designers have researched the formal motifs of Early American furniture for a collection of faithful reproductions. Many of the pieces reflect the hallmarks of New England Queen Anne designs which were so popular in the finer colonial homes. Exceptional bedroom reproductions include the Queen Anne high boy, the shaving mirror, the vertical mirror with its flowing broken pediment, a substantial cannonball bed and a graceful canopy bed in An unusual adaptation of Early American design for 20th century storage requirements is the master's chest with drawer and door storage. These designs have graced the interiors of fine homes for more than 200 years. Thomasville makes them available now, scaled for today's rooms, in the Early American beauty and with the Thomasville quality your home deserves.

Chinese Are Astute In Their Business Bargaining

BY WILLIAM J. HOLSTEIN
HONG KONG (UPI) — American and European businessmen going into China in a flush of good will are finding the Chinese can be tough customers.

Businessmen attempting to sell airplanes, hotels, television sets and other commodities often find themselves at a distinct disadvantage in dealing with their Chinese counterparts. Most foreign businessmen suffer from the "Marco Polo Complex" — a fascination with China and an eagerness to do business there. The Chinese, keenly aware of this, are not above taking advantage of it with gamesmanship tactics.

"The Chinese play a really neat cat and mouse game," said one American consultant specializing in helping small U.S. firms do business in China. "Most Americans don't understand it. That's one reason why the Japanese have done so well. They do understand it."

For the Chinese, bargaining is an art that requires great skill and patience. Westerners, particularly Americans, tend to view it as a somewhat distasteful task that should be completed as quickly as possible.

"What is extremely frustrating to an American is to go half-way around the world and sit down and the Chinese won't talk business," the consultant said. "I've gone in there and by the third meeting I still haven't talked business. I wanted to take my fist and punch these guys out."

In some cases, the Chinese appear to drag out negotiations because they recognize that time is on their side: the foreign businessman is staying in a strange hotel, eating strange food, seeing strange things. He misses his wife. He wants to conclude his business and go home.

Realizing this, the Chinese may act pessimistic about purchasing a salesman's goods and draw out the talks by asking about his house, his children and the like.

Several frustrated Americans have checked out of their hotels in despair and gone to the airport to leave China — only to get a phone call at the last minute saying, "Come back. We want to talk."

In addition, few Western businessmen understand the Chinese tradition of "using the barbarians against the barbarians." For hundreds of years the Chinese have been masters at getting foreigners to compete with each other — which drives down the price for the Chinese.

John Kamm, Hong Kong representative of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade, believes the bargaining atmosphere is improving for the Western businessman, but he acknowledges the Chinese can "throw you a few wrinkles."

"In a negotiation, they are able to get companies to compete against each other for a particular project on terms very favorable to themselves," he said. "They are sharp businessmen. They have a long, long history of commerce. They are very skilled at negotiating."

The scramble by Western banks to lend the Chinese huge sums of money is one example of the Chinese skill. The West Germans, Italians, Canadians, Americans and Japanese all are opening new bank branches in Hong Kong, establishing correspondent relations with the Bank of China and gearing up to make loans.

Although no major loans actually have been made, the interest rates that the Chinese are likely to pay are minimal — in the range of 7 to 8 percent, banking sources say. "We're actually going to lose money on these first few loans," one Chase Manhattan official acknowledged. "We all just want the status of being the first bank to get in there."

Another standard Chinese bargaining ploy is to assemble a large group of officials to bargain with only a small number of foreign businessmen. "You walk into the room and there are 27 of them and only four or five of you," said a representative of a major American tire company who has traveled to Peking. "They work in shifts and by the time it's over with, you've been worn down."

A final Chinese negotiating strategy might be called the "shell trick." "Say the Chinese are most interested in buying Product A," one China trade expert said. "They might talk to you for days about products B and C and only at the last minute do they even bring up what they're most interested in. It's a way of drawing you off balance."

Although the foreigner has few defenses against a crafty Chinese negotiator, he can take some steps that may help him: —Include an elderly man in your group. The Chinese respect age and may deal more graciously with you if they believe senior officials are present.

—Take your own translator, especially to assist you in technical discussions. —Never say anything in the bargaining room you don't want the Chinese to understand. Some of the Chinese negotiators are likely to speak excellent English. —Have a plentiful supply of patience and never show signs of frustration or anger, which is considered a loss of face.

Conference On Nutrition

ECU News Bureau
The East Carolina University School of Medicine will hold a conference on "Infant Nutrition: A Foundation for Lasting Health" Wednesday, March 28.

The conference is sponsored by the ECU Department of Pediatrics and Mead Johnson's Nutritional Division as a special program celebrating the International Year of the Child.

Featured speaker for the afternoon program will be Dr. Donough O'Brien, professor of pediatrics at the B.F. Stolsky Research Laboratories, University of Colorado. O'Brien will discuss the psychological and nutritional needs of infants during the first year of life and contrast these needs with current feeding practices.

He will also review the short and long-term consequences of infant feeding practices as they relate to obesity, hypertension and cardiovascular disease. Two 40-minute films will supplement his presentation.

Also participating in the program will be Dr. William E. Laupus, dean of the medical school, and Dr. Jon B. Tingelstad, professor and chairman of pediatrics.

The conference will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Teaching Addition Auditorium at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Precautions For Lightning

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1752, Benjamin Franklin invented the lightning rod to intercept a lightning bolt and lead it harmlessly into the ground, leaving the house untouched.

But more than 200 years later, American homes are still suffering damage from lightning, says Lee Meyer, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America.

More than 50,000 homes in the United States are hit, directly or indirectly, each year by some 90 million lightning bolts, he says. Of the total hit, he adds, about 15,000 to 20,000 homes suffer significant damage, some 30,000 have less serious losses to wiring, appliances and plumbing, and some 1,500 homes burn to the ground.

Lightning is one of nature's worst destroyers, causing 500 deaths, 1,500 injuries and some half-billion dollars-worth of property loss each year, say members of Meyer's group, local agents who counsel on homeowners' insurance.

They offer this advice in the area of lightning:

—Evaluate your home's need for lightning protection. If it is surrounded by other houses on level land, it won't be the primary target it would be if it were alone on a hilltop. Then, too, your chances of being struck by lightning vary from place to place. Some parts of Florida have 10 times as many electrical storms as California.

—Since lightning starts fires, you'll want to question how far your home is from fire protection. When you evaluate the location of your home, its closeness to fire protection, perhaps even your own fear of lightning, you may find that lightning rods that are properly grounded and installed by an approved electrician will be well worth the cost.

—To protect yourself during a storm:

—Do not use the telephone or television set.

—Keep away from open doors and windows. Lightning can strike an indirect, but powerful, blow.

—Don't run outside to close the windows of the car or to take the bikes in.

—Do not have any contact with plumbing, which means do not take a bath or wash the dishes during an electrical storm.

—If you are caught outside, avoid lone trees. Even if the tree you are under is not struck by lightning, a nearby strike may follow the tree's roots, thereby electrifying a wide ground area.

—If you are caught out on the golf course, sacrifice your equipment for the time being and get as far away as possible from metal golf clubs and the spikes in golf shoes. Stay low.

—If caught in the woods, seek out a small tree among several larger ones.

Crop Seeing 5 Changes

Five basic changes have been made in the tobacco program that will affect growers' 1979 decisions, according to Stacy Evans of the Pitt County ASCS office.

The five changes are as follows:

—The final date to lease and transfer tobacco for the spring will be May 1. No transfers can be accepted between May 1 and June 14. Fall leasing will begin after June 14.

—A change in the fall leasing and transfer (after June 14) is no farm that overplants the effective allotment will be eligible to lease.

—There will be no delivery of tobacco that is produced in excess of 110 percent of the effective farm quota to be processed for storage. This means that a farm operator will have to store and keep any tobacco that he is unable to market.

—All farm operators will be required to report their carryover tobacco at the end of the marketing season.

—The four-leaf program will mean that a producer who participates can plant 110 percent of the effective allotment if he signs an agreement not to harvest the four bottom leaves. This agreement must be filed at the county office by April 7.

Persons having any questions on these changes are asked to call the county office, 752-6112, for more information.

CANNIBAL SHARKS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sand tiger sharks are cannibals even before they are born, according to the National Geographic Society.

The eggs hatch within the female shark's uterus, where the young remain until sufficiently developed to enter the ocean.

The first baby hatched feeds on its weaker brothers and sisters as they emerge from other eggs, scientists have noted.

Brazilian Signs Railroad Deal

TELEPHONE SHOCK SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Shopkeeper Kester Yee was shocked when he received his monthly bill from the government telecommunications department. The bill was for $4,550 (Fijian). After lengthy hassles with the department, he was finally told the account was incorrect and was asked to pay $4.50.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian construction firm has signed a $1.5-billion contract with the government of Iraq to construct a railway network linking Baghdad to the southern part of the country. The firm, Mendes Junior, says the project is expected to be completed by 1983.

Life Of Crime Began Early For Doomed Prisoner

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer
ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — John Louis Evans III didn't pay much notice when newspapers headlined the firing squad execution of Gary Gilmore in Utah on Jan. 17, 1977.

Evans was too busy. He had shot a pawn shop owner to death in Alabama 12 days earlier. He and cohort Wayne Ritter were robbing food stores, pizza parlors, fried chicken take-outs, hardware outlets and small shops. When Gilmore was executed, says Evans, "I read it in the paper. I thought, 'Big deal. The guy got what he wanted.'"

Then Evans and Ritter headed for Disney World in Florida to celebrate Ritter's 27th birthday.

Now Evans sits in a small, dim cell awaiting an April 6 electrocution that might have been scripted by Gilmore. Like the Utah killer who wanted to die, Evans has forsworn any final appeals. He repeats almost wearily that he wants death and wants it soon.

His scheduled electrocution would make him the first person since Gilmore — and only the second in 12 years — to be executed in the United States.

"I'll be glad when it's over," says Evans, 29, of Beaumont, Texas. "Knowing the date you're going to die, it's kind of weird. But I don't dwell on it all the time...I've come to grips with death."

He also seems to have come to grips with his life. By his own account, it was "a wasted life," full of crime and with no one to blame but himself.

"I was a rotten kid," said

Evans. "It had nothing to do with my family. I would pull stuff just to see if I could get away with it. And then when I'd get away with it, I'd just feel so good for days."

"And then I'd just have to go out and do something a little bit bigger.... I knew where I was headed."

Evans, his chained hands lifting cigarettes, spoke easily during an interview in the death row witnesses' chamber next to Alabama's electric chair at Holman Prison.

It didn't seem to bother him that he was so near the chair, which is painted a gaudy yellow. At one point Evans stood up and looked at it and laughed. "I just wish it was painted a different color," he said.

Recounting the events that led him to death row, Evans said he was 16 when he pulled his first armed robbery.

"I was more scared than the guy was," he said. "But when it was all over, I was thinking, wow, all this money, you know, for 30 seconds work. And that's when I decided right then and there it was the easy way to go."

But it wasn't easy. He was repeatedly in trouble with the law and eventually ended up in an Indiana prison on a bad check charge. When he was ready to get out, he said, "I looked back on my life and it had been pretty wasted. I thought, 'I'm not getting anywhere. It's the same old treadmill, over and over again.'"

He and Ritter — whom he had met in the Indiana prison — then struck out on their two-month crime spree that included the murder of pawn shop owner Eddie Nassar in Mobile, Ala. Nassar's two young daughters were in the shop and saw their father left mortally wounded.

Captured in Little Rock, Ark., by FBI agents, the two admitted to 30 armed robberies and nine kidnappings during the crime rampage. Evans said in court that he had shot Nassar in the back, and Ritter said he would have done so if Evans hadn't.

Both said repeatedly they wanted a hurry-up death sentence, but Ritter later changed his mind. More court proceedings are scheduled to determine if his death sentence should be maintained.

Evans said he has known love and has a woman friend who now is "not discussable." But he said he rejected love because it would interfere with his criminal habits, which he rejected his white, Roman Catholic, middle-class home life.

"I knew me too good," he said. "You hurt the people you love. When it comes down to it, I'm a pretty selfish person. If I want to do something, I do it. No matter who gets hurt. So I figured, well, it's better not to get into anything" that might involve love.

"It's been a wasted life, sure," he said. "But I'm not down on myself, I'm just a realist. I was a rotten kid, I knew I was a rotten kid, I liked being a rotten kid...I was going down society's wrong road and I didn't care."

On death row, Evans said he finds little or no pleasure in his routine, which mostly involves sleeping, writing letters, watching a hall television, listening to the radio and playing chess.

Alabama's 42 death row inmates get 30 minutes of exercise outside each day, but Evans said he has skipped the exercise period all but one day in the past month. He said it hurts to see "all the freedom out there" beyond the prison fence.

Asked if he has considered suicide, Evans replied, "Not me, brother...What are you going to do? Cut your wrists and lay there for 20 minutes? Psychologically, that's got to be one of the most cruel ways to go."

"Or do you make a little rope out of your sheets and hang there 30 minutes kicking around? That's a hard way to go...I'm doing it the easy way."

— AND WAITING — The "Ready Stick" rests on the arm of Alabama's electric chair in Atmore where Johnny Louis Evans III is scheduled for electrocution on April 6. (AP Laserphoto)

Pepper-Picking Is By Machine

By JOANNA FIRESTONE
EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Peter Piper's paydays may be imperturbed by progress in the pepper picking business at Michigan State University.

Pepper growers, processors and equipment manufacturers from across the nation attending a vegetable convention recently inspected an automated pepper picking machine that could revolutionize the pepper business.

The mechanical pepper harvesting machine was the brainchild of Dale E. Marshall, an agricultural engineer at MSU.

"Traditionally, peppers for processing have been picked by hand, but recent labor shortages and increasing harvesting costs have almost made mechanization essential," Marshall said.

The cost of hand-picking peppers eats up as much as 65 percent of the price received by growers, he said.

Nationwide, more than 680,000 tons of peppers are produced annually, with a value of nearly $170 million.

Marshall's machine will be particularly welcome in Michigan, which ranks seventh among the states in pepper production. In 1977, Michigan growers produced 10.5 million pounds of peppers.

Marshall used the results of previous mechanical harvesting (AP) — The Netherlands, experiments from Canada, Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Israel and the U.S. to produce his harvester, which has been tested on more than 20 varieties and peppers of different sizes and shapes. The self-propelled, one-man-operated machine can gather tons of peppers each day, he said.

The harvesting portion of the machine consists of two inclined double helixes, rotating out-of-phase, that shake and strip the plants. The peppers are carried on a conveyor belt to a cleaning bed, then sorted and placed in storage boxes.

Now that pepper picking has been improved, agricultural scientists will be concentrating on another aspect of the industry: The quest for the perfect pepper to maximize the picker.

The mechanical harvester can recover about 80 percent of the peppers of many varieties, and the recovery level could be improved for other varieties by improving the basic product itself.

The ideal pepper plant, Marshall said, would stand erect — more than two-feet tall — and have no fruit close to the ground where an automatic picker misses.

Although the perfect pepper for mechanical picking doesn't yet exist, jalapeno and serrano chili peppers come the closest.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — CANDID CAMERA PUT COMMUNITY PARTY ON RECORD.
 Today's Cryptquip clue: G equals O

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Shows Lost To The 'Ad Hoc Network'

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — TV viewers in Sacramento, Calif., might be wondering about that extravagant NBC flop, "Supertrain." That is, they might be wondering why they've never seen it on their local NBC station.

Viewers in Boston might be wondering why "The Incredible Hulk" suddenly disappeared from their local CBS outlet and then, just as suddenly, reappeared. Similar mysteries might have stirred the curiosities of viewers in Milwaukee, Denver, Cleveland and other cities.

The mysteries are created by a fourth network, the so-called "ad hoc network" run by Mobil Oil. It's not really a network, just a cheaper way of television advertising that has had the curious side-effect of prompting some network-affiliated local stations to dump a network program in favor of the Mobil Oil show.

Mobil's current offering is "Edward the King," which runs on Wednesday nights in most towns in the United States. It's part of the "Mobil Showcase" series, started by the oil company three years ago when it struck someone that TV advertising would be cheaper if the advertiser just skipped past the network and went straight to the local stations with a program.

Independent local stations — usually stuck with reruns, sports and movies in prime time — find the Mobil plan a relatively cheap way to get fine original programming that can compete with network programming. But some network affiliates have begun to bite the Mobil bait, too, much to the vexation of the networks.

In Sacramento, for example, NBC affiliate KCRA has been doing quite well with "Edward the King" in place of NBC's "Supertrain."

When CBS moved "Incredible Hulk" to Wednesday night, CBS affiliate WNAC stuck with "Edward the King," and Boston viewers just had to do without the Hulk until CBS moved the show back to Friday nights.

Although the stations get to keep more of the advertising revenue from "Edward the King" than they would from a network show, more than economics is involved.

"Money is not the primary concern here," says KCRA station manager Don Saraceno.

It's a chance to get better programming on the air. We were not at all pleased with what NBC was doing at 8 o'clock on Wednesday. We did what we had to do, and I'd do it again."

Of the 49 stations that opted for Mobil's "Edward the King," 11 were ABC affiliates, eight were CBS affiliates, and 20 were NBC affiliates. That latter number represented about 10 percent of the CBS network.

The bitter irony for CBS is that it once owned "Edward the King." It bought the property for $2.5 million and shelved the project, before selling the rights to Mobil.

When critics gripe about mediocre, mindless pap, nothing much comes of it. When a station manager does, though, well, we'll see.

Overhauls Get Nowhere

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC-TV has overhauled its prime-time schedule several times since September, and nothing seems to work.

The troubled network listed only one program among the first 22 in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings for the week ending March 18, and that's no way to compete with ABC, which had seven of the top 10.

While ABC ran away with the ratings race for the 10th week in a row, NBC remained mired in last place for the fifth consecutive week. NBC's rating was 13.6, lowest of the season for any network and nearly 10 points behind ABC's 22.2. CBS was runnerup at 17.7.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, only 13.6 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to NBC.

As failure seems to follow failure at NBC, ABC continues to build on successful series. "Three's Company" was the week's most-watched program, followed immediately in the ratings by the premiere episode of a spinoff from the successful series, "The Ropers."

The rating for "Three's Company" was 38.5. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 38.5 percent saw at least part of the show.

NBC's best for the week was 14th-rated "Little House on the Prairie," followed by the most successful of its new programs, "Diff'rent Strokes," No. 23.

NBC has been least successful with new entries. In fact, several programs introduced since the start of the season were clustered near the bottom

West ventured into the auction for no good reason and steered declarer away from a natural line into an unusual one that succeeded as the cards lay.

South elected to open one diamond rather than two diamonds to make it easier to probe for a 4-4 major fit, and West gaily overcalled one spade — hardly a recommended action with such a weak suit and hand. His adventure was partly successful, for South, after hearing North cue-bid the king of diamonds, decided to gamble that his partner held the king of spades as well, which would allow West's queen to be finessed. South's bold leap to seven hearts was greeted by another strange bid from West — a penalty double without a defensive trick.

West led the ace of clubs, and declarer ruffed in his hand with the queen. There was obviously no point in trying the spade finesse — that was sure to lose. The only alternative was a dummy reversal.

Robert Preston Back On Screen

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Robert Preston, long away from movie screens and TV shows, will star with Rosemary Harris in "The Chisholms," a series about a close-knit pioneer family's trek from Virginia to Fort Laramie, Wyoming. Twice a Tony-winner on Broadway — in 1958 for "The Music Man" and 1967 for "I Do! I do!" — Preston will be seen in the role of patriarch Hadley Chisholm beginning March 29 on four consecutive Thursdays.

How Tar Heel Senators And Congressmen Voted

By Roll Call Report
Washington — Here's how the Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 8 through March 14.

HOUSE
BUDGET CUTS — The House approved, 336 for and 73 against, a one-year budget of $167,500 for a special six-person task force of the Education and Labor Committee. The unit deals with legislation affecting private and public pension plans. Although it is the equivalent of a subcommittee, the task force's budget is in addition to the Education and Labor Committee's $2.25 million annual budget.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-J., supporter, said the task force is "the only unit in existence" that can answer congressmen's questions about the complex pension laws.

Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., an opponent, noted that the $167,500 outlay is 53 per cent above last year's task force budget, and questioned "why we should vote to approve an increase...of a magnitude of better than 50 per cent in just one year for this one committee."

Members voting "nay" opposed the expenditure for the special task force.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Broyhill, R-10, and

Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."
Rep. James Martin, R-9, voted "nay."
Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-2, did not vote.

TAIWAN — The House rejected, 149 for and 221 against, an amendment to establish an unofficial defense treaty between the U.S. and Taiwan. The pact would have, in effect, continued the formal Mutual Defense Treaty with Taiwan that will expire as a result of the U.S. establishing diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China. This vote came during consideration of the bill (HR 2479) establishing a new basis for Taiwan-U.S. relations. The bill was later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

Rep. Ken Kramer, R-Colo., the sponsor, said his amendment states "that a threat to the security of Taiwan constitutes a threat to the peace and stability of the West Pacific area and hence to the interests of the U.S."

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., an opponent, said the amendment would "scuttle the entire policy of normalization" with Peking and that if adopted U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock "would be given his walking papers the day after news of it had arrived in Peking."

Members voting "yea" favored the strongest possible U.S. defense commitment to Taiwan.

Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."
Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner and Gudger voted "nay."
Jones and Rose did not vote.

QUEMOY AND MATSU — The House defeated, 146 for and 256 against, an amendment to define the islands of Quemoy and Matsu as part of Taiwan in the bill (HR 2479; see above vote) establishing a new basis for Taiwan-U.S. relations. The effect of this amendment would have been to commit the U.S. to support the two islands to the same extent it will support Taiwan.

Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Ola., the sponsor, said: "To exclude the two islands of Quemoy and Matsu from this act is an open invitation to Peking to attack these islands without so much as a suggestion from us that it might be of some concern to the U.S."

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wisc., an opponent, asked: "Does the U.S. want to regard the shelling of (Quemoy and Matsu) as 'grave security' to our country?"

Members voting "yea" wanted the U.S. to regard the future of Quemoy and Matsu as vital to the U.S. national interest.

government of China and retain a security commitment to another part of China."
Senators voting "yea" wanted the equivalent of an unofficial defense treaty with Taiwan.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."
Sen. Robert Morgan, D, did not vote.

BUDGET CUTS — The Senate killed, 42 for and 55 against, a move to spend $33.6 million in health money. The $33.6 million is to be cut out of the fiscal 1979 budget for various nursing, medical, veterinarian and dental school programs. This vote was an attempt to keep the already-appropriated money from being "rescinded" from the current budget.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., supporter of the move to spend the money, said what was at issue was the ability of the federal government to uphold its financial commitment to the various health school.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., an opponent, said: "We have to send a signal to the American people and to the entire world that we in the Senate are serious about spending restraint in these extremely inflation-ridden times."

Senators voting "yea" opposed the budget cut.
Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

Electricity Soaring In Mill Households

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — The 1,600 households that have depended on Cannon Mills for electricity since the 1920s are in for some changes now that Duke Power Company has taken over the company's power distribution system.

When electricity bills are mailed late next month, customers who have relied on the expensive Cannon system will probably see their bills triple. That's because Cannon deliberately kept its rates lower than average during the energy-crisis years of the 1970s, a company official said.

Cannon charged its customers — less than 10 percent of the households in Kannapolis — an average of 1.25 cents for every kilowatt hour of power. That compares with Duke's average of 3.6 cents a kilowatt hour that its 19,000 regular customers in Kannapolis have been paying.

"Both Cannon and Duke are quite concerned about the impact this is going to have on these people," Paul Briggs, Duke's Kannapolis plant manager said Tuesday. "It'll be a very significant increase..."

To make matters worse, Briggs said the new customers have relatively high consumption rates and will have to start thinking about conservation measures to hold down their power bills.

In the early 1920s, Cannon Mills began distributing electricity to residences and businesses within a one-mile radius of its main plant in Kannapolis. But over the last several years, the company has been negotiating with Duke to sell the private system.

Tuesday, the $400,000 sale was made official.

"It became quite apparent over the years that the system needed to be upgraded and expanded," said Ed Rankin, Cannon public relations vice president. "It is far more complicated than in years past and Cannon didn't believe it had the expertise or the equipment to keep the system modern for the future."

The Cannon system also serves about 200 businesses that will be switched over to Duke's system in the coming months.

Clash Over Milk Pricing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Proponents and opponents of state regulation of wholesale and retail milk prices clashed at a public hearing Tuesday sponsored by the N.C. Milk Commission.

Representatives of grocery store chains and a consumers group told the commission that regulation would hurt consumers, farmers, retailers and others involved in the dairy business.

But supporters of the milk pricing plan said they believed it would help the dairy industry and the consumer by ensuring a steady supply of high-quality milk.

"We call on the Milk Commission to establish fair and equitable prices at all levels, and to assure the supply of high-quality milk for the state's consumers," said Charles Colard, speaking for the plan on behalf of the Cooperative Council of North Carolina.

On the other hand, Lillian Boo, director of the Consumers Center of North Carolina, said price-setting would mean higher retail prices and decreased milk consumption.

B.W. Thomas, a representative of the Charlotte-based Harris Teeter food stores, added that the proposal "would completely eliminate competition at the producer level."

Currently, the commission sets only the price processors pay dairy farmers for milk, although it has the legal authority to set prices on the wholesale and retail levels as well.

Commission members called the hearing after retail milk prices rose sharply in some areas of the state in January after the commission gave dairy farmers a 6.5-cent-per-gallon increase.

Most of the sentiment expressed during Tuesday's hearing was against further regulation of the milk industry in North Carolina.

Revival Series Is Conducted

The Rev. Eustace A. Riggs is conducting a revival at Belvoir FWB Church through Thursday of this week.

The services start at 7:30 each night.

Rev. Riggs, a West Virginia native, is pastor of the First FWB Church of Russellville, Ala. He has previously been in full-time evangelistic work for 13 years and conducted revivals through the south and midwest. He has pastored churches in Alabama, Tennessee, Missouri, and Kansas, having been preaching since he was 16. He is a graduate of the Free Will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tenn.

The public is invited, says the pastor, the Rev. John C. Moran.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a certain amount of cleverness in now being able to arrange all of the usual routines of everyday living so that a larger amount of efficiency will be in effect.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Seek out a bigwig you know and get the advice you need in order to make your own life more substantial. Take more interest in community affairs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Seek information you need from new contacts who are progressive and improve your lot in life. A new adjunct to present philosophy could help to add to present stature you enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find a better way of handling both payments and collections so that you need not worry so much in the future. Improve romantic life.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Discuss with allies how to improve a project that is not working out well and be more successful with it. A situation arises that can prove beneficial for you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use more up-to-date methods in some work in which you are currently engaged and get better results. A fellow worker has a good idea that you should follow.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan early to have more time for amusements later in the day. Gain the goodwill of a bigwig you know. Don't overspend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to agree with kin regarding changes that should be made at home and have more harmony there. Entertain at home in the evening. Take no risks with credit and reputation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Discuss career affairs with those who can be of assistance to you. Changing perspective somewhat is wise. Make a better impression on others by taking a new stance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to add to present abundance via new ideas, systems that can be helpful to you. Study financial reports and get interesting information. Be more willing to cooperate at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go after a personal aim from a different angle and get good results. Be wiser in business matters. Be with congenials in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new information and come up with the right answers to problems. Do not confide in others. An expert can be of assistance to you if you contact early.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have personal aims that can be helped by advice from an older person. Be more willing than usual to go out socially in the evening and meet interesting personalities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to get started on a career and will study hard to make something of himself or herself. There is ability at inventions here. Teach early the proper tenets under which to live.

Small Town Folks Prove Compacent

WEBSTER, N.C. (AP) — It doesn't take much to run this tiny Jackson County town. In fact, the folks in Webster are so complacent, they're just as apt to leave the voting at election time up to those who are running for office.

"We can't hardly get anybody to come out and vote for us," said Alderman Claude Cowan. "If we didn't vote for each other we wouldn't have a board."

Running the town of Webster is an uncomplicated task for the mayor and five aldermen. The board meets "whenever the notion strikes us," one alderman said, which averages three or four times a year.

The town government is conducted in much the same way that Webster residents live their lives — quietly, peacefully and leisurely. According to the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill, Webster is probably the smallest active, incorporated town in western North Carolina with a population hovering around 180, not counting pets.

"If we counted all the dogs in the population, we'd have a good-sized town," Mayor Jim Simpson joked.

Because there are no city taxes, the aldermen only have to oversee the town's street lights and water. Residents pay a flat rate of $3 per month for water, which comes from one well.

Because there is no town hall, the board meets in Simpson's home or in former mayor Roy Baker's upholstery shop next door. It is the only retail business in town.

The town has only three streets within its two square-mile radius: Main Street (N.C. 116), Cemetery Road and a residential street no one ever got around to naming.

The crime rate in the quiet town is zero, which is fortunate, since there is no police department. There is no fire department either. In fact, there is no town payroll. The town's operating funds come from revenue-sharing money.

And despite the fact that the surrounding area, including neighboring Sylva and Western Carolina University, is growing, Webster residents aren't worried their tranquil town will be upset by development. They put an end to their worries in 1974 by approving an ordinance prohibiting the use of land for any purpose other than residential.

Life in Webster wasn't always so slow and peaceful.

From 1853 to 1913, Webster was the Jackson County seat with a population of 1,000 at the turn of the century. It was a bustling place with shops, a bank, the county courthouse and what is believed to be the first sidewalks in Jackson County.

But the activity ended one day in 1910 when a fire leveled most of the buildings in town. The killing blow fell in 1913 when a railroad track was laid to Sylva instead of Webster, and businesses left to follow the railroad ties.

No one seems to mourn for the Webster of the past. The aldermen said they remain in the community for the peace, satisfaction and close fellowship that a small town provides.

"I've lived here for 35 years and we've been like one big family," Cowan said.

Expert Will Be Featured

ECU News Bureau "The African Horn: Realities and Future Prospects" is the topic of this year's African-Asian Symposium at East Carolina University. The event is scheduled for March 22-23.

Featured speaker is Dr. Abraham Demoz, director of African studies at North western University, an internationally known expert on Ethiopia. His presentation will begin at 10 a.m. Friday in Brewster Building, C-103, and will be followed by a panel discussion by Dr. Ralph Birchard of the ECU geography faculty, Dr. Avatar Singh of the sociology faculty and Dr. Robert Bunker of the anthropology faculty.

Drs. Bunker and Singh will present a slide lecture, "Perspectives on Africa and Japan" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 22, at the Greenville Woman's Club Building.

Both events are free and open to the public.

The symposium is sponsored by the ECU African and Asian Studies Committee, with support from the South Atlantic States Association for Asian and African Studies.

Two Inventions Played Big Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two inventions patented in November helped create new industries that employed hundreds of men and women, according to a study by Intellectual Property Owners, Inc. (IPO), a non-profit group dedicated to preserving the patent system as an incentive to innovation and creativity.
 The first clock factory in the nation was founded in 1800 when Eli Terry switched from making hand-crafted clocks to mass production by using water power to drive his machines. This method helped him turn out 10 to 20 clocks at a time.
 Some 100 years later, on Nov. 11, 1930, Nobel physicist Albert Einstein and Leo Szilard obtained a patent for producing refrigeration. This led to the first gas refrigeration system produced in the United States.

Sees Touchy Period For Polish Role

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. ambassador to Poland, William E. Schaefe Jr., says the fact that Pope John Paul II is from Poland indicates a strengthening of the church's position in that Communist country.

But he adds the situation also makes for a time of touchy readjustments.

"The struggle of the Polish church will continue but the presence of a Polish pope is more strengthening than usual," he told a meeting of the Council on Religion and International Affairs.

"Church and state are going to have to find some kind of changed modus vivendi. Very possibly, there will be some concessions to the church, although they may be begrudging. But the church still will have to cope with the realities of Poland's policies and its geographic position (adjoining Russia)."

Schaefe offered the analysis in a two-hour discussion with theologians, foreign affairs experts and church leaders.

He noted that Polish Communist Party Secretary Edward Gierek has met with the pope, and that the pope has life-long, first-hand knowledge in dealing with Communist officials and in church resistance to atheism.

The church has several principal demands, he said, including:

—Some kind of legal status, which all churches in Poland now lack.

—Some church access to the media. Polish radio and television are state controlled and the first time any church service was allowed on the air was at the installation of the new pope.

—Availability to the church of paper and printing materials so it can put out its own literature.

—Agreement from the state not to draft seminary students, giving them exemptions — now denied — parallel to those given students in state universities.

In regard to the pope's coming visit to Poland, Schaefe observed that "certain brinkmanship" had gone on in the negotiations, eventuating in a compromise.

The pope had wanted to go in mid-May on the 900th anniversary of the martyrdom of the nation's patron saint, St. Stanislaus, whom legend says was beheaded for challenging the authority of the king.

"The symbolism of that is not lost on anybody in Poland today," Schaefe said. "Poles think of it as a challenge to secular authority, which accounts for the government's resistance to that particular visit."

He added, "I'm sure the pope will not remain silent about St. Stanislaus even if it comes late."

Noting that the Polish church involves 95 percent of the people, has always been at the forefront of Polish nationalism and has fought vigorously to retain its prerogatives, Schaefe added:

"The church is not about to disappear. It cuts across a complete cross-section of the people, old and young, workers and intellectuals. Communist party officials take their children to the back door to be baptized. They just don't go to church themselves."

Commuting On A 'Brain Train'

SWINDON, England (AP) — The train speeding toward London is teaching Spanish, French, German and economics to commuters every weekday morning.

The new "Brain Train" special, one of several operated by Britain's national railway, helps travelers pass the time usefully and pleasantly.

Rediscovered

'Extinct' Fish Is

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — A species of commercial fish previously believed to be extinct in Fijian waters has been rediscovered.

The bech-de-mer, also known as the plum flower fish, used to be sold at high prices in Southeast Asia.

Three Films Favored In Oscar Race

By VERNON SCOTT
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The 51st Annual Academy Awards April 9 may boil down to a contest between Warren Beatty and the Vietnam War, according to Hollywood insiders.
 Beatty and his "Heaven Can Wait" romantic comedy is up against two powerful dramas of the Vietnam conflict, "The Deer Hunter" and "Coming Home," for best picture of the year.

The three films are heavily favored in the race for the Oscar over the other two nominated pictures, "Midnight Express," a prison picture set in Turkey and "An Unmarried Woman," the drama of wife adjusting to life when her husband leaves home.

Beatty, like his picture, is in against heavyweights. He has been nominated for best actor, playing an athlete who dies and returns to earth in the person of a multimillionaire eccentric.

His prime opposition comes from Robert De Niro in "The Deer Hunter" as a heroic combat veteran who returns in triumph from Vietnam, and Jon Voight who plays a paraplegic victim of the Southeast Asia war.

Also in the running, but given less chance for the Oscar, are Laurence Olivier in "The Boys From Brazil" and Gary Busey in "The Buddy Holly Story."

Beatty, even if he does not win, distinguished himself as considerably more than just an actor in his film. He received a total of four nominations — acting, directing, writing and producing — an achievement equaled only by Orson Welles, who did the same thing in 1941 with "Citizen Kane."

In the race for best actress, it is Jill Clayburgh, who starred in the title role of "An Unmarried Woman," against a field of veterans, all of whom have been nominated at least four times in the past.

Ingrid Bergman, in the running for her role in Ingmar Bergman's "Autumn Sonata," has been nominated for best actress five times previously. She won Oscars in "Gaslight" (1944) and "Anastasia" (1956), and as best supporting actress, "Murder on the Orient Express" (1974).

Jane Fonda, in the running for her role as the unfaithful wife in "Coming Home," has been nominated three times in the past, winning in 1971 for her performance in "Kluge."

Ellen Burstyn was nominated for "Same Time, Next Year." A veteran of three Oscar nominations, she won the award in 1974 for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore."

Geraldine Page is enjoying her sixth nominations — for "Interiors" — having three times won nominations for supporting actress and twice for best actress. She has never won an award.

The winners will be announced April 9 at the Los Angeles Music Center when the awards presentations are made with Johnny Carson as master of ceremonies on the nationally telecast program.

Nominated for best supporting actor: Bruce Dern ("Coming Home"), Richard Farnsworth ("Comes A Horseman"), John Hurt ("Midnight Express"), Christopher Walken ("The Deer Hunter"), Jack Warden ("Heaven Can Wait").

Best supporting actress nominees: Dyan Cannon ("Heaven Can Wait"), Penelope Milford ("Coming Home"), Maggie Smith ("California Suite"), Maureen Stapleton ("Interiors"), Meryl Streep ("The Deer Hunter").

Holdup Didn't Unnerve Clerk

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A man described as in his early 20s entered a Grand Rapids grocery, keeping his right hand in his pocket as if holding a gun.

"This is a holdup," he announced to a clerk, according to the police. "Open the cash register."

The 52-year-old clerk studied the man and shook his head. "No way am I going to open it up," he said.

"Do you want to die?" the man asked.

The clerk thought about it briefly and shrugged. "We all got to die some time," he said.

The man stared back at the clerk in disbelief, then grabbed a bag of potato chips, slapped a quarter on the counter and left, police said.

For many years Parkwood has served the shoppers of Wilson. But Wilson has grown and so has the need for a more sophisticated, more complete, more all-encompassing center for shopping. Today, the exciting new Parkwood offers the "something else" you may have been missing. A spacious enclosed mall combines year-round, springtime comfort and nature's greenery. Specialty shops, big department stores, restaurants and businesses all coverage under one roof to bring you an endless variety of merchandise and services. Come for our Grand Opening 9:30 Thursday morning, enjoy the special entertainment and take time to look around our beautiful new mall. You'll discover that Parkwood is indeed, "something else"!

BASKIN-ROBBINS 31 flavor ice cream parlor located on the center court of Parkwood Mall, features ice cream, sundaes and a variety of party treats made to order. (Photo by Mickey Driver)

More Than Convenient Shopping ...

Community Events Planned At Parkwood

Parkwood Mall will offer the Wilson community a lot more than convenient shopping, says Roger Melton, Promotional Director for the mall. Numerous community activities have been planned for the months ahead, and Melton would like to schedule still more.

"We say that Parkwood Mall is something else, and I believe that something else is community involvement," said

Melton. The Promotional Director is planning an arts and crafts fair through the Wilson Arts Council, and an antique show for the fall, coordinated with the Wilson Sertoma Club.

Two charity bazaars for non-profit organizations have been scheduled, along with several Diabetes Association events. Parkwood will also be sponsoring another Christmas party for deaf children, complete with a "signing" Santa and free photographs.

For Senior Citizens Day, Parkwood Mall will have entertainment and refreshments, and various activities are planned for Boy Scout Week and Girl Scout Week.

"We want the people of Wilson to feel a part of the mall," Melton said. "Before, we were limited in our facilities, but now we feel that our facilities are exceptional. We want to make them available to the community any way we can."

Melton advised that Parkwood's calendar of community events is far from complete, and that mall officials welcome the opportunity to work with any non-profit civic organization in Wilson.

Landscaping Completed At Parkwood

The landscaping at Parkwood Mall has been designed as much for safety and practicality as for beauty.

As a safety measure, the use of shrubbery has been minimized so as not to block the site lines.

Geoffrey McLean & Company, landscape architects for the mall, have instead made more extensive use of trees. Rows of deciduous hardwoods line the entranceways much like the trees on an avenue. Upon installation, the trees are ten to twelve feet tall with a 2½ inch caliper, but they will grow much larger.

At least part of the periphery of the mall is irrigated for maintenance in case of drought.

The landscaping has been planned to create an effect of progression approaching the mall. Closer to the mall, the trees become smaller and the arrangement is more organized. The walkway areas have been designed with features for pedestrians such as benches and small shade trees. Most of the trees in this area are American Holly and Crepe Myrtle.

The interior of the mall contains Palms and other semi-tropical material which is native to Florida. All are types which can survive the consistency of climatic conditions within the mall. Most will be located in the center court.

Parkwood Is A New 'First' For Wilson

Fifty years ago, it seemed like science fiction—a small "city" of stores completely enclosed under one roof—where technology makes sure that it never rains, snows, gets too hot or too cold. Perhaps today such modern miracles are taken for granted much more than they were fifty years ago, but the first climate-controlled mall in Wilson County is still a long-anticipated, exciting event.

Parkwood Mall now has 65 very different tenants and services grouped together to provide convenience and variety. Because of the well designed, attractive environment, shopping at Parkwood will be an adventure. Shoppers can find everything from hardware and fur coats to Raggedy Ann dolls and diamond rings. The crisp smell of new clothes mingles with the smells of popcorn and perfume, as customers stroll in a climate carefully controlled at comfort level. In the summer, the temperature does not fall below 78 degrees F., and in the winter it does not exceed 68 degrees F. Parkwood has three units for air conditioning and heating to ensure maximum flexibility and reliability.

For safety, there are sophisticated smoke alarm devices and a 24 hour security patrol.

Parkwood has a natural, earth-toned interior, complete with a fountain and lots of greenery. All the stores, including the existing ones, have brand new fronts.

Outside the mall, benches are strategically located beneath crepe myrtle trees. Inside, seating and conversation areas provide pleasant places to relax. Parkwood's atmosphere is warm and inviting.

Americans have been said to spend more time in shopping centers than anywhere else except their homes and places of work. Maybe it's the convenience of one-stop shopping and the shelter from the weather. Maybe it's the free parking and the accessibility of dining and entertainment. Or maybe it's all the sights and smells, and the brightly colored merchandise beckoning from all the different stores—a fantasy world that even grownups are allowed.

Fashion Comes Alive At The New Lerner

Fashion comes alive at the new Lerner now open in Parkwood Mall. Gals will love the adventure of shopping at this bright, new fashion ce, which is the 569th link in a nationwide chain dedicated to bringing exciting, but very affordable styles to their customers.

The Parkwood Mall Lerner offers all the latest concepts in design, and is a modern showcase for the presentation of today's great young looks. All the fashion finds for career, school and campus are right there in a fresh array of young Spring-Easter looks. All styled with you in mind. Your figure, your lifestyle, your budget, because that's what today's Lerner shops are all about. See everything that's now and new for the every mood of you. Elegant, refined looks! Daring looks! School stuff and fun styles for every day of your life.

There's a sensational selection of "free-to-be-you" sports-separates that run the gamut from sassy to dress-up, and everything in-between. You can choose from a wide, wide world of tops and bottoms you'll delight in now, and for a long time to come, as well as a choice of breezy dresses styled to match your every mood and move.

Lerner takes great pride in providing services that make shopping easy, pleasant and comfortable. Accommodations include the Lerner Charge Plan, VISA, as well as a liberal layaway schedule. Also offered, is the unique facility which enables shoppers to exchange, or refund purchases made at the Parkwood Mall store in any other Lerner.

Corporate Headquarters are in New York City and seven Branch Offices, and Distribution Centers operate in Atlanta, Jacksonville, Denver, Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas and Pittsburgh. This regional alignment enables Lerner Shops to merchandise the stores in each area with the latest fashions based on local demand.

Parkwood's Camelot Music Store Shown

Camelot Complements Motif Of Mall With Tastefully Decorated Interior

From its modern exterior, to its tastefully decorated interior, each Camelot Music store utilizes the latest fixtures, color schemes and graphics to complement the motif of the mall.

The store is characterized by a well-conceived floor plan that provides ample aisle space, unobstructed customer flow and complete accessibility to stereo albums, tapes and accessories.

The philosophy of each Camelot store is to make it appealing to every member of the family, young and old. Dramatically lit and furnished interiors are accented by colorful displays and huge inventories that provide an inviting environment for people of all ages.

Camelot's family appeal carries the widest variety of inventories to please a diverse range of musical tastes. Classifications include Country, Rock, Classical, Quad, Religious, Ethnic, Childrens, Educational and import recording. In addition, a complete selection of stereo album and tape accessories, sheet music and music books and over 300 different titles in current 45 r.p.m.'s and oldies round out the inventory mix.

The broad selection is designed to appeal to consumers of all ages, all of musical preferences. It includes not only current history of the day, but the perennial standards not found in the typical record and tape store. An extra added feature that Camelot has initiated is a customer special order service, where the customer would like to order a particular album or tape that is not stocked in their vast inventory. Camelot will order this particular merchandise at no extra charge to the customer.

Camelot store locations span 22 states and will be over 80 stores strong at the end of 1978.

Expansion Has Economic Impact On Area

The expansion of Parkwood Mall will significantly affect Wilson's economy in many areas other than retail.

will create jobs, pay taxes, and provide its own essential maintenance services."

"The mall will have a definite impact," said Mark Pitney of North Hills, Inc. "Besides supplying retail needs, the mall

However, the most obvious impact will occur in the area of retail sales. The results of a 1977 Chamber of Commerce survey on Wilson's shopping habits indicated that available retail merchandise was not keeping pace with the city's buying power. Although 90.6 percent of those surveyed reported that they did look first in Wilson for their shopping needs, approximately a fourth of them went "out of town" for items in the clothing and dining-entertainment categories.

The population and income increases combined with the survey results convinced North Hills, Inc. that Parkwood must be expanded in order to meet the retail needs of the community.

Special Events Scheduled At Parkwood

In the next few weeks, Parkwood Mall will be the site for some exciting public events.

Probably the most exciting of all will be the Mall's grand opening celebration, which will last from March 22 until March 25. There will be clowns on hand for the celebration, and a huge "Parkwood" cake, made with a recipe which calls for 800 eggs.

Lots of surprises and fun for everyone are on schedule.

Spring Fashion Days will be the focus March 29-31. To get everyone's mind on spring, the mall will be beautifully decorated for Easter. This is the best opportunity to get a first look at the very latest fashions for spring; all the stores at Parkwood will be putting out their brand new spring merchandise.

Parkwood brings a little magic to Wilson April 7 and 8 in the form of Franklin and Company. Franklin and Company is comprised of the husband and wife magic act, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Franklin. They put on an extremely professional and exciting show.

For the first time, on April 8, Parkwood will have its Easter egg hunt within the mall. Officials plan to put down straw on the mall floor for the hunt. Parkwood's special guest for the event will be the Easter Bunny, who reportedly has quite a few candy eggs to distribute at the mall. Prizes for the hunt will be contributed by Parkwood merchants.

Area civic or non-profit organizations are invited to sell home-made or hand-crafted items inside the mall at the Spring Charity Bazaar. The bazaar will take place April 12-14.

The Parkwood Hobby Show is slated for April 26-28. This will be a combination exhibit and sale event, with the emphasis on the exhibit. Area coin, stamp and other hobby displays will create an interesting exhibit for the mall. Parkwood extends an invitation to all local hobbyists.

The first Sunday in May is traditionally the day of the Wilson Arts Council's Sunday in the Park. This year "Sidewalk Sam," the sidewalk art exhibit, is on May 6, and Parkwood will again sponsor a free bus to and from the park.

Mall No Longer Strictly Retailing Center

A meeting place, a cultural center, an opportunity for community involvement — all these phrases describe today's shopping malls. Already, Parkwood Mall officials are busy planning community events, with everything on schedule for a Senior Citizens Day to Arts and Crafts fairs and antique shows. The shopping mall created solely for retailing is a thing of the past.

Teen-ager Meeting Place

Teen-agers, especially, are finding malls the perfect place to meet and socialize — a practice that is not discouraged by mall officials. A recent survey conducted by the international Council of Shopping Centers revealed that shopping center managers rate teen behavior in shopping centers positively, finding the teens to be friendly, responsible, considerate and cheerful. Parents, too, appreciate the fact that enclosed malls are a safe and pleasant place for young people to congregate.

Modern Village Green

Shopping malls have become the modern equivalent of the village green. A trip to the mall can be a pleasant family outing that encompasses shopping, dinner and movie. Older citizens appreciate the controlled climate and can find companionship in the malls. Housewives enjoy the convenience and time-saving aspects of mall shopping, along with the added bonus of mall events and exhibits.

Mindful of the shopping mall's function as a community center, North Hills, Inc. has developed Parkwood with the intention of fulfilling as many community needs as possible.

Community Service

"Of course we want people to shop at Parkwood," said Bob Hughes, a spokesman for North Hills, Inc. "But we want Parkwood Mall to be much more than just a place to shop. We're interested in serving the community in many ways. The mall really belongs to the people of Wilson, and we want them to enjoy it and benefit from it."

Here's Summary Of Parkwood Expansion

Most of the construction activity at Parkwood has come to a close, leaving Wilson with a considerably expanded mall. The original Parkwood opened with nineteen tenants. The newly expanded Parkwood Mall has sixty-five.

The activity at Parkwood was not limited to expansion. Most of the existing stores have done extensive remodeling and redecorating, and nine of them have new locations in the mall. The stores which have moved are Flowers Shoes, Singer, Barshay's, Kerr Drugs, Burton's, The Color Center, Mitchell's, Lynn's Hallmark Shop and Winn Dixie.

The new Winn Dixie is almost twice the size of the old store. The original Winn Dixie was 15,602 square feet; the new store is 27,720. Now, the store is one of the largest in the state. Winn Dixie was the first to open under the recent expansion.

J. C. Penney's is still in the process of expanding and redecorating, but when construction is complete, the store will be 87,062 square feet, and will feature several new departments.

Roses has not undergone expansion (the original store is 42,750 square feet), but has instead concentrated efforts on extensive remodeling. Roses has also added new departments.

The new Belk-Tyler at Parkwood is designed to be a model store, and the most unique in the state. The total square footage of the new Belk's is 88,328.

When shoppers come to Parkwood Mall, they won't find any parking problems. The new mall has 2,944 spaces.

But just as important as the actual expansion is the number of new faces and ideas the mall will contribute to the community.

"Parkwood has attracted some very interesting and exciting new stores," said Paul DelaCourt. "They will each be bringing something new to Wilson.

'Wilson Has Needed This For A Long Time'

Mayor Benton Cites Need For Expansion

"Wilson has needed this for a long time," agreed Mayor H. P. ("Red") Benton Jr. He added that while his wife was looking forward to the expanded shopping facilities, he was eagerly anticipating trying out the new cafeteria.

As for the economic impact of new jobs, it is estimated that a shopping mall creates one full time job for every 500 square feet of its gross leasable area. Based on these figures, Parkwood Mall will employ approximately 1,100 employees.

Parkwood Mall will also be a major source of secondary employment, providing an impressive number of part-time jobs for students, housewives, and teens.

"The mall will provide increased employment for many more people in Wilson," said David Hacker, manager of J. C. Penney's and President of the Parkwood Merchants Association. "It will also make Wilson more attractive to new industry," he added.

Although construction is over and the mall is completed, the economic benefits of Parkwood will continue for years to come. Parkwood Mall — the only enclosed, air conditioned mall in the county — is officially a part of Wilson, ready to make its increased contribution to the city.

Weights About 884 Pounds

Cake-Cutting Ceremony Scheduled At Parkwood

It's not exactly your average, run of the mill cake. This cake weighs approximately 884 pounds, and its recipe calls for 145 pounds of flour, 406 pounds of sugar, 166 pounds of shortening and over 1,000 eggs. It's the Parkwood Grand Opening cake, baked especially for the event by John and Marie Shealey of Shealey's Bake Shoppe at Parkwood.

"It's going to be some cake!" said Marie Shealey. "This is the largest one I've ever worked on — 9½ feet long and 32 inches wide."

The logistics of making such a cake call for quite a bit of planning. The cake will be basically constructed at Shealey's, sheets of it will be placed on slabs of plywood, and the finished product with its final decorating touches will be assembled within the mall. The cake will be made in the shape of Parkwood, from J. C. Penney's to Belk Tyler. It will be beige with a dark beige trim, and will feature a ribbon made of icing which will be cut at the Grand Opening ceremony scheduled for 10:00 a.m., March 22.

Mr. Shealey will be doing the actual baking of the Grand Opening cake, while Mrs. Shealey will take care of the decorating and assembling.

Roger L. Melton, marketing promotions director and executive secretary for the Parkwood Merchants Association, is a Rocky Mount native and married to the former Teresa Herring, also of Rocky Mount. They have one son, Toby Sean, two years of age. Melton is a graduate of Rocky Mount Senior High School. He attended N.C. State University and completed courses in marketing at Michigan State University. He plans to sit for his A.S.P.D. degree this fall. Melton was most recently employed by the Wilson J.C. Penney Store where he held the post of advertising manager for nine years. During much of this time he also carried out the duties of marketing director for Parkwood on a part-time basis. The Meltons attend Peace Free Will Baptist Church. Melton is a Wilson Jaycee and a member of the local TPA. They reside at Route 3, Elm City.

PARKWOOD MALL MANAGER: Johnny Weaver is married to the former Dianna Carlton of Alton, Illinois. They have two sons, John Jr. and Scott. They reside at Route 2, Kenly. He graduated from high school at Glendale in Johnston County and attended Louisburg College in Louisburg and North Carolina State University in Raleigh. He worked with the Raleigh Police Department from 1965 through 1968. He started with North Hills, Inc. at North Hills Mall in Raleigh in January, 1968 as chief security officer. He was transferred to Parkwood in October, 1976. He is a member of Holly Springs Free Will Baptist Church and is the Sunday school superintendent.

Parkwood Has Grown From Center To Mall

In 1966 when Parkwood Shopping Center had its grand opening, Wilsonians obviously enjoyed the special atmosphere created by attractive landscaping and interesting architectural features. It was the only shopping center of its kind in Wilson, a strip center containing 170,000 square feet of store floor space.

Today parkwood is transformed even further — into the climate controlled, enclosed Parkwood Mall. The transformation was anticipated at the beginning, with enclosed mall conversion features incorporated into the initial construction.

"It was not normally done that way at the time," according to Paul DelaCourt, President of North Hills, Inc., "but we knew we were in a market that would be growing. Other centers have been later converted into malls, but the layout is superior when you plan at the onset for conversion."

Parkwood's plans for expansion and conversion were more than justified by Wilson's subsequent growth. In 1966 there were approximately 57,000 people in the Wilson area. By 1976 this figure had more than doubled, and per capita income also showed an increase of 87 percent. But at the same time, a Wilson Chamber of Commerce study showed that more and more of this increased population were making "out of town" purchases. This was an indication that retail needs were not being met. The results of the Chamber of Commerce study in conjunction with the demographic studies conducted by North Hills, Inc. convinced the ownership that the right time was right for Wilson.

"We're building because the need has developed," DelaCourt explained. "We're responding to a demand — we don't create the demand. This keeps the vitality of the town."

DelaCourt believes that the new mall will have definite impact on the economy of Wilson County.

"A shopping mall creates jobs in necessary employment areas. A mall is one of the biggest utilizers of part-time help, including teens and working women — persons who traditionally have a hard time finding jobs. It also attracts and keeps retail dollars in the community. People no longer have to go out of town to make purchases.
