

Carter Energy Plan Already Under Fire

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's new energy plan to couple higher domestic oil and gasoline prices with a "windfall profits tax" today appeared headed for rough going in Congress.
Although Carter's decision to lift price controls on domestic crude oil does not require congressional review, his tax proposal must be approved by the House and Senate.
Top administration allies on Capitol Hill predicted an uphill battle for the windfall tax proposal — especially his plan to use half the revenues for aid to the poor, mass transit and developing new energy sources.

Meanwhile, congressional Republican leaders told a news conference that Carter's plan, outlined Thursday night in a nationally broadcast address, was too little and too late.
"He is going back to the same old idea which hasn't worked — trying to conserve energy by raising prices," said House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona.
While applauding Carter for moving to lift price controls on oil starting June 1 — with total decontrol by mid-1981 — the GOP leaders criticized him for proposing to use tax funds for other purposes than encouraging further oil production.

Rhodes said Republicans would favor a windfall profits tax, but only if companies are allowed an exemption if they use their extra profits in the search for new energy sources. Carter's plan does little to require that companies use the 50 percent of the profits they could keep to increase production.
"The Republican position is that they could take the money and run," Rhodes said. "We don't want to tempt them."

Administration officials said the plan would add 4 to 5 cents a gallon to the price of gasoline and other petroleum products by mid-1981. But other unofficial estimates put the total increase at up to 15 cents a gallon.
Carter's address came two years after he sent his first energy plan to Congress as "the moral equivalent of war," a package of proposals that took Congress until last fall to pass.
Carter said the action would help conserve oil by making it more expensive and also would provide a financial incentive to U.S. oil companies to seek and develop new oil fields.
And he told Americans: "Each of you will have to use less oil and pay more for it." He said this would help move the nation away from its heavy reliance on imported oil.
To keep oil companies from getting too rich from decontrol, Carter proposed the "windfall profits tax" on half the extra revenues that oil companies would get from higher prices.
Proceeds would be used to aid poor families, for mass transit projects and to help develop new energy sources.
U.S.-produced oil is now held at about $9 for a 42-gallon barrel. Carter's plan would allow it to rise gradually to the world market price of about $15 a barrel.
Administration officials said the decontrol plan was designed in such a way as to dampen its inflationary impact this year.
The officials estimated that decontrol would add one-tenth of 1 percent to living costs that have been increasing at an annual rate of about 10 percent in 1979.
They added that the increase would be about two-tenths to three-tenths of 1 percent in 1980 and 1981.

Under existing law, Carter has the authority to lift oil price controls beginning June 1 without having to submit the plan to Congress. His proposed "windfall-profits tax," however, requires House and Senate approval.
And that's where the plan could be in for rough going.
Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House energy and power subcommittee, said "prospects are not good for passage" of the tax, noting that Congress last year rejected a previous attempt by the Carter administration to tax crude oil. "The situation may be better but I don't think so," Dingell said.

Seeking to head off the possibility that his tax might be rejected — thus allowing oil companies to reap the full benefits of his decontrol action — Carter warned: "Every vote against it (the tax) will be a vote for excessive oil company profits and for reliance on the whims of the foreign oil cartel."

Many liberal Democrats from the oil-dependent Northeast, criticized Carter's action to lift price controls.
Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., said the move would badly hurt Carter's chances in the early 1980 New England presidential primaries.
And Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., predicted "multibillion dollar new fuel and gasoline bills for millions of Americans already hard hit by soaring prices."

"It is sad to see the president deliver this unnecessary self-inflicted wound to his own anti-inflation program," Kennedy said.
But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, a previous supporter of oil price controls, said he could "live with" Carter's decontrol decision — but only with a windfall profits tax in place.

U.S. Unemployment Rate Continues Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate remained at a 4½-year low of 5.7 percent in March, while the number of persons who have abandoned the search for jobs fell to the lowest level since 1974, the Labor Department said today.
The department said there were 725,000 so-called "discouraged workers" in the first three months of the year — those who want jobs but have given up looking for them because they believe none is available.
The March employment report showed the economy is maintaining sufficient strength to provide jobs for newcomers to the labor force, although the economy did not make any further dent in the number of previously jobless persons.
The Labor Department said total employment increased by about 200,000 during March, to a total of 96.8 million, while unemployment remained at the February level of 5.9 million.

The unemployment rate of 5.7 percent, the same as in February, was the lowest since August 1974, when it was 5.4 percent. The number of discouraged workers was the lowest since the third quarter of 1974, when it was 617,000.
The increase in employment of 200,000 in March compared with substantially larger gains in the first two months of the year and appeared to reflect a slowdown in economic growth that the Carter administration says is necessary to help control inflation.
Most of the March job gains occurred among adult women, the department said. It reported a big increase in jobs in wholesale and retail trade. And it said there was a gain of 70,000 jobs in manufacturing industries, notably in electrical and transportation equipment and machinery.

The department said the number of persons in the labor force increased by 190,000 during March to a record 102.7 million. The labor force includes both persons with jobs and those who are seeking them.
The Carter administration has been trying to slow the economy's growth to help restrain inflation. That, according to the scenario most economists follow, should mean a rise in unemployment.
Although a decline in joblessness would seem to be good news, the administration has reacted with less than complete enthusiasm. It feels the jobless rate has been at a level that reflects inflationary conditions.
Inflation continues to be the major preoccupation of administration economists.

Guilty Plea To Drug Violations

Hugh Wesley Ledford and his wife, Rebecca Keith Ledford, pled guilty in Pitt County Superior Court yesterday to drug law violation charges, in connection with a November 9, 1978 incident in which officers found three pounds of cocaine and 12 pounds of marijuana in their Dickinson Avenue home.
Ledford entered a plea of guilty to possession of cocaine with intent to sell and deliver and was sentenced to 10 years in prison by Judge Richard B. Allsbrook.
Mrs. Ledford pled guilty to charges of possessing more than an ounce of marijuana. She was sentenced to five years jail, but Allsbrook suspended the sentence on payment of $1,000 and costs, five years probation and other conditions.
Greenville Police, assisted by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and Drug Enforcement Administration agents found the cocaine and marijuana in the Ledford's 2505B Dickinson Ave. home during a 1:15 a.m. search of the dwelling.
Officials estimated the value of the cocaine at between $500,000 and $750,000, and set the street value of the marijuana at $7,500.

A 'Measuring Time' For ECU Faculty Members

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
ECU News Bureau
A stimulating, sometimes surprising and definitely democratic process called "self-evaluation" is going on this spring among full-time faculty members of East Carolina University.
It is producing some immediate effects, but the goal is long range development and improvement of academic programs. This evaluation.
"It's a measuring time, more than anything else," says Dr. Henry C. Ferrell Jr., chairperson of the Faculty.
"It is an orderly and fully understood process of shared governance, in that it involves all full-time faculty members and gives them a voice in the way that unit will be administered internally," Ferrell says.
Ferrell and other faculty and administration officials see evidence that the faculties are participating freely and with more vigor and expect overall results to be both healthy and invigorating.
One immediately visible effect, directly or indirectly, involves changes in administrative personnel and when these occur, whatever the reasons, questions arise.
"This is no fruit basket turnover sort of thing," says Ferrell. The Code itself is a creation of the faculty, administration and trustees to establish a mutual understanding to produce an essential joint effort for governance. Its steps are spelled out clearly.
First, an evaluation committee elected by secret ballot within the respective academic unit conducts a study of such areas as undergraduate and graduate programs, research and publication activities of the faculty, faculty morale, student opinion concerning the unit's course offerings and other areas, and writes a report.

Approval of the evaluation committee's report requires a three-fifths vote of the voting faculty of the unit.
Then, the faculty votes also by secret ballot on the effectiveness of its administrative officers, and a negative vote of three-fifths is considered default recommendation for removal.
While none of the self-evaluation votes by faculty thus far have produced a negative note recommending removal, some have been close enough to become a factor in certain recent changes in faculty administrative posts.
In any change that is made there may be other factors that are considered, apart from the self-evaluation, although the changes may occur at about the same time.

These may involve personal reasons and personal choices. In some cases, a chairperson or dean who has held administrative responsibility

Prison System Keeping Pace

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite a gradual increase in the number of inmates in the North Carolina prison system during recent months, state prison officials say a new building program will keep the system from returning to greatly overcrowded conditions.
A total of 13,999 inmates were in the state's prisons this week, according to Department of Corrections figures.
Glen G. Williams, a statistical and research specialist in the Corrections Department, said the population had declined following changes in laws designed to reduce the number incarcerated in state prisons but that a gradual increase has been recorded in the past few months.
Stuart Shadbolt, public information officer for the Corrections Department, and its secretary, Amos Reed, said a "massive building program" is under way to head off a return to greatly overcrowded conditions in the prison facilities.
Shadbolt said $95 million has been authorized for building new facilities and improving existing facilities. He said the emphasis is on construction and modifications adding "single-cell units," as opposed to the dormitory-like structures in many existing prisons.
Williams said the record prison population in state occurred March 9, 1978, with 14,725 inmates in custody.

Brace For Gas Price Upswing

By The Associated Press
An economics expert warned North Carolinians to brace for an upward swing in gasoline costs following President Carter's energy speech Thursday night, but Robert Conrad said fuel should be available to those willing to pay the higher prices.
Conrad, an assistant professor of economics at Duke University, said Carter's oil decontrol proposal will inflate fuel prices. But he noted the price hike — estimated at between 4 to 5 cents per gallon — is "an incentive to conserve."
Members of the North Carolina congressional delegation withheld immediate comment on Carter's televised speech.
Meanwhile, Gov. Jim Hunt was in Washington to attend a briefing on the energy situation. Hunt said Carter is urging the states to try to persuade industry to build additional energy facilities.
Preliminary plans have been made in North Carolina for a multimillion dollar oil refinery in Brunswick County.
Hunt said the Carter administration plans to leave the question of gasoline station closings up to the individual states. Hunt reiterated that he would not threaten the state's tourism by ordering weekend closings.

Industrial Growth

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has already attracted more than $1 billion in planned industrial developments this year, as it has for the past three years, Gov. Jim Hunt announced Thursday.
The state went over the $1 billion mark in industrial investment in 1976. In 1977, North Carolina attracted $1.45 billion in new and expanded industry. The figure exceeded $2 billion in 1978.
Hunt noted in his speech to the Laurinburg-Scotland County Area Chamber of Commerce that the bulk of this year's investment rested in an oil refinery proposed for Brunswick County. The refinery is valued at around $600 million.
Hunt said in 1970, 41 percent of the state's industrial growth was in the textile industry. He said that industry accounted for only 11.9 percent of the 1978 investment.
Hunt said capital investment by foreign-owned companies increased to $190 million last year, up 143 percent over 1977.

Airliner Barrel-Rolls, Survives 5-Mile Dive

By PATRICIA MONTEMURRI
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The 80 passengers aboard the TWA flight from New York to Minneapolis had just eaten a mid-air snack when they felt the craft begin to vibrate.

Suddenly, the plane swerved to the right, completed a 360-degree barrel roll and nosedived from 39,000 to 12,000 feet — 5 miles — in a matter of seconds at a speed apparently exceeding that of sound.

"You could feel your face pressed back and the blood rush to your head," said 22-year-old Chell Roberts, a University of Utah student who was aboard. "Everyone was screaming. I thought it was over."

"We were just through eating when it happened ... People started to scream and a flight attendant started to cry," he said. "It's really a funny feeling to see what everybody does before they think they are going to die."

But nobody died Wednesday night. Only three people aboard suffered minor injuries.

Federal Aviation Administration inspectors said it was "miraculous" and "unprecedented" that the Boeing 727 jetliner survived such mid-air trauma before being brought under control in a desperation maneuver. Langhorne Bond, head of the FAA, commended the pilot, identified only as H.

Gibson of Chicago. Bond and other FAA officials flew in from Washington to survey the damaged craft at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The plane, with a seven-member crew, made an emergency landing at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Propped up by jacks, the plane sat on an airport side runway as mechanics, FAA officials and reporters examined the damage. Flaps on the right wing were ripped off during the descent. Pieces of metal hung from that wing and from the fuselage around the landing gear doors on both sides. Inside the airliner, newspapers and magazines were strewn on the floor. A large sack of used air-sickness bags stood in the aisle.

Preliminary evidence, Bond said, indicated that the flight was "very routine in clear weather" when the plane "began to vibrate, went out of cruise control, rolled to the right, did a complete turnover and dived to the ground."

"We don't know what caused it at this time," Bond said.

At that point, the pilot tried to slow the descent by deploying devices on the plane designed to increase drag. But the wing flaps, spoilers and leading-edge slats proved ineffective at the speed the plane was traveling and were torn off. The pilot then lowered the landing gear.

"It is clear that that is the event that allowed the crew to regain control of plane," Bond said. "There is nothing in the manual to tell you what to do," he said, commending the pilot.

Chuck Foster, associate administrator of the FAA for aviation standards, said the plane was flying about 500 mph before the trouble hit, but in the dive apparently exceeded 650 mph — above the speed of sound at that altitude and temperature.

"I've been told that the air-speed indicator was pegged all the way over to the edge," Foster said. "If that proves to be the case, it will be the first time in FAA history that an airplane (not designed for it) had exceeded those speeds and survived."

According to the airline, two of three passengers who reportedly suffered bruises and minor injuries did not require immediate treatment. The third was treated at an area hospital and released.

All the passengers but one continued to Minneapolis on a Northwest Airlines flight.

Bored By School; Parents Sue

By TIM FOUGHT
Associated Press Writer

McHENRY, Ill. (AP) — At age 10, Thomas Irwin is brilliant, but he is "bored to death in school," his mother says. Bored enough for his parents to file a $1 million suit against the school district over the quality of his education.

With an IQ tested, his parents say, at about 170, he is bright enough to read and understand the lawsuit filed in his behalf.

"The state law says each child should be educated to the maximum extent of his ability, and they (school officials) have failed to do this," Thomas, a fifth grader at Edgebrook Elementary School, said in describing the basis of the suit.

His parents said they decided it was time to file suit when the school board reversed a decision to let Thomas attend a high school class, the only one he found stimulating.

Their suit seeks $1 million in damages and a court order directing the schools to provide a program of "academically excellent" courses for Thomas, which his mother, Janet Irwin, said should meet his interest in advanced science instruction.

School district officials have declined to comment. District lawyers are to file a formal response by the end of April.

His father Ronald, a lawyer, said Thursday he hopes arguments in Circuit Court can begin in May.

Joyce Van Tassel of the Illinois Office of Education in Springfield said the suit could give the courts an opportunity to define, for the first time, how far public school systems are obligated to go in providing extra programs and classes for bright children.

She said similar suits filed in Pennsylvania and New Mexico reached inconclusive results, although they did prompt those states to adopt or improve aid programs.

Mrs. Irwin said her son started playing chess and absorbing scientific articles from an encyclopedia when he was 4.

Thomas said school is "pretty much the same old thing over and over again."

His boredom and intelligence have caused him problems, he said, recounting a fight with a peer "who said he hated me because I use big words." Mrs. Irwin says school officials took her son out of a program for gifted children because "he needed to be calmed down in class." The program, the Irwins claim, was heavy on instruction in photography and crafts and light on the science courses that interest Thomas.

In early March, school officials agreed to let Thomas into a high school Spanish class, which he says has been stimulating.

However, some school board members said they feared that putting a grade school pupil in a high school class would set a bad and expensive precedent. The board voted 4-3 on March 13 to remove Thomas from the Spanish class, prompting the suit.

Since then, the board has backed off and allowed Thomas to stay in the class. But Irwin says the suit will proceed because the Spanish class, although worthwhile, "is by no means adequate."

Speaker For Safety Unit

Ralph Dudley of the North Carolina Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration Division was the principal speaker at the Pitt County Safety Council meeting Thursday.

Swain said North Carolina has done well in reducing accidents and injuries to workers. The state, he explained, "has the second lowest industrial accident rate in the nation, although it is the eighth most industrialized state in the nation."

He said the most significant new change in OSHA enforcement policy has resulted from a Supreme Court decision which now requires a warrant to enter a plant unless the plant management waves the requirement. Swain emphasized that few plants are asking for warrants.

The speaker said the future influence of OSHA would bring about more employee safety training programs and the checking of employee aptitudes more closely before placement on jobs.

Weight Class

The South Greenville Recreation Center will hold a weight reduction and exercise class for women Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 7-8 p.m. in the South Greenville Center, Howell St. All interested persons are asked to come dressed for exercise. There will be no charge for this class. For more information, contact the Center by calling 752-4137, extension 253.

The canvass revealed that only 1,475 local citizens voted Tuesday out of a total voter registration here of 11,766. The turnout figure represented only 12.5 percent of the registration.

SPECIAL SERVICES

English Chapel F. W. B. Church, Greenville Blvd., will hold special services Sunday, April 8, 7:30 p.m., featuring the Rev. Willie Joyner, choir and ushers from Patrick F. W. B. Church. The public is invited to attend.

New Business Firm Is Formally Opened Here

The grand opening of Leonard Utility Buildings of Greenville, located at 107 W. Greenville Boulevard, took place today at 10 a.m. with ribbon cutting ceremonies.

Don Freeman, a partner in the new business with Frank Nelson, said that the grand opening activities will continue through Saturday.

According to Freeman, the firm will deal primarily in outside storage buildings of all sizes. Garages and greenhouses will also be offered.

The spokesman said that the buildings sold by the new business are manufactured by Leonard Aluminum and Utility Buildings out of Mt. Airy.

Freeman added that the firm will deliver and set up the building with no preparation required on the part of the purchaser. Most of the buildings offered are aluminum, he said, although the inventory does include wood structures.

Leonard Utility Buildings of Greenville will serve counties east of Raleigh, Freeman said, noting that the partnership plans to open facilities in the counties of Wilson, Beaufort, Lenoir, Craven, Martin, Edgecombe and Hertford in the near future.

The Greenville business, which has exits on Evans Street Extension as well as Greenville Boulevard, will be open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Both Freeman and Nelson are longtime residents of Greenville, it was noted.

Minor Changes In Vote Canvass

The canvass conducted by the Pitt Board of Elections of Tuesday's utility bond referendum results revealed only minor discrepancies from voting totals published by "The Daily Reflector."

Margaret Register, Elections Board supervisor, said that the only changes in the overall totals involved tabulations in the Greenville Three precinct.

According to the canvass, conducted Thursday at 11 a.m., voters in the Greenville Three precinct cast 14 ballots opposing the sewer system improvements rather than 17 as published. In addition, 68 votes were cast in the precinct in favor of the electric system improvements rather than 74 as reported, and 20 votes were cast opposing the electric bonds, rather than 22.

The changes resulted in a total of 372 votes opposing the sewer bonds rather than 375, 985 votes in favor of the electric bonds rather than 991, and 472 against the electric bonds rather than 474.

PTA Planning Spring Festival

The Elmhurst Elementary School PTA is planning a Spring Festival for Saturday, Apr. 28.

The fun, games, and special event will take place on the school grounds between 2 and 6 p.m. Music will be provided by the school band and there will be plenty of food, from cotton candy to hotdogs.

Members coordinating the festival are Mary Angela Lee and Patsy McPherson. Committee chairmen include Joanne Bath, music; Beverly Browder, tickets; Donna Hurt, publicity; Jane Moore and Margie Nobles, food; Sharon Ricks, decorations; Mary Ann Wardrep, clowns; Nancy Williams, prizes; and Margaret Wirth, games.

Proceeds will be used toward purchasing playground equipment for the school.

Kenyan Will Be Speaking

Uzele Mesa, national evangelist of the Africa Inland Church of Kenya, will speak at two local churches on Sunday and Tuesday evenings.

Mesa, whose visit here is sponsored by the Christian National Evangelistic Commission, will speak Sunday at 7 p.m. at Trinity F. W. Baptist Church and Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Sycamore Baptist Church.

The evangelist, born in the bush country of Zaire to non-Christian parents, currently makes his home in Nairobi, headquarters for the Africa Inland Church.

Mesa speaks some 15 languages, including French, German and Arabic, and is an accomplished musician on both the trumpet and trombone.

He became a Christian in 1942 and began his Christian service in 1949. He spent seven years as a missionary to Sudan and later studied at Scott Theological College in Kenya. Mesa was ordained in Kenya.

Over one million people have heard Mesa preach and over 200,000 have committed their lives to Christ under his ministry. The evangelist has spoken in 22 states.

The public is invited to attend the local services.

Bloodmobile In 2 Pitt Counties

The Bloodmobile conducted two area visits this week with total collections amounting to 172 pints of blood.

Ott Alford, Pitt blood chairman, reported that 68 pints of blood were collected at Wednesday's visit at Ayden-Grifton High School. Ten persons were deferred for various health reasons.

Alford, who noted that the collection total involved donations from 14 members of the school's faculty and staff, said that the visit was sponsored by the Ayden-Grifton Task Force, with Mrs. Sue Noble serving as advisor.

The chairman thanked the school officials for making the facilities available for the blood drive.

Thursday's visit at Eaton Corp. here resulted in the collection of 104 pints of blood, he said, with four persons deferred. Melvin McLawhorn, assistant personnel director at Eaton, spearheaded the plant drive.

Alford said that the Eaton visit was the first scheduled for the local plant and blood program officials are looking forward to another visit in the future at Eaton.

Both Ayden-Grifton and Eaton staffed the blood drives and Alford offered his appreciation to the volunteer nurses who helped at both locations.

The next Bloodmobile visit is scheduled for April 19 at D. H. Conley High School.

Rules HEW Chief Not In Contempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — asked U.S. District Court in Washington to bring both civil and criminal contempt citations against Califano. It said he had consistently ignored the court's deadlines for dealing with segregation case.

After negotiations between Califano and UNC broke down, the HEW secretary announced last week that steps are under way to cut portions of the university's $90 million annual federal aid.

The NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, Inc. had asked U.S. District Court in Washington to bring both civil and criminal contempt citations against Califano. It said he had consistently ignored the court's deadlines for dealing with segregation case.

Judge John Pratt denied the request Thursday. He said delays had resulted from Califano's "earnest attempts to settle complex problems through negotiations."

"Under the unusual circumstances present, the contempt of court sanction is not warranted," Pratt said in answer to the defense fund.

Califano has said that he will give North Carolina 30 days to come up with an acceptable desegregation plan before beginning a limited cutoff of funds. This would involve withholding $10 million to $20 million for new programs at predominantly white schools near predominantly black schools.

Psychiatrist On Radio Monday

"What's On Your Mind?," featuring Dr. Robert P. Neno, psychiatrist at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, will be aired Monday at 12:55 p.m. on WOOW radio.

This will become a weekly feature, according to Nancy M. Middleton, Mental Health Center Coordinator of Consultation and Education. Topics to be considered during April will be aging, stress, relaxation, and recreation. Questions individuals would like Dr. Neno to consider for future programs may be sent to "What's On Your Mind?," 306 Stantonsburg Road, Pitt Co. Mental Health Center, Greenville.

Mrs. Hutton Receives Show's Tricolor

By PATRICIA MOORE
The Tricolor Award for outstanding excellence went to Mrs. Ramona Hutton in Greenville's standard flower show, which concludes today at the Greenville Art Center.

Mrs. Louis A. Burney of Wilmington won the Award of Horticultural Excellence for her red gerbera daisy specimen in the horticultural division.

Six nationally accredited flower show judges selected the two winners from among blue ribbon recipients in the Lyndale Garden Club's second annual show, which this year attracted 141 exhibitors in the two-day event entitled "A Spring Bouquet."

Mrs. Hutton, a member of the Lyndale club, received her award of best in show in the "Spring Reflection" class of the Artistic Division. Her arrangement featured a reflective area of water with azaleas, iris foliage and sweet gum tree branch.

A special featured of the show was the invitational class for apprentice judges. Blue ribbon in this category were Mrs. Burney and Mrs. Stanley Hawse Jr. of Wilmington.

Red ribbons in the invitational class went to Mrs. T. D. Eure and Mrs. O. L. Graham, both of Morehead City.

Blue ribbon winners in the group classes of the Artistic Division included the Home Prde Garden Club's formal luncheon table and the Potpourri Garden Club's spring breakfast tray arrangement.

In the Artistic Division, judges awarded blue ribbons to first place winners, red ribbons to second place winners and yellow to third place winners. The white ribbon represented honorable mention. Judging in this division was based on competition and on the standard of perfection.

Winners according to category were: Narcissus Section: Class 13, trumpet, first, Mrs. Louis Burney of Wilmington; Class 14, small cupped, first, Mrs. Burney; Class 15, large cupped, first, Mrs. O. L. Graham, Morehead City; second, Mrs. Burney of Wilmington; Class 16, narcissus, first, Virginia Herrin.

"Floral Splendor": first, Shirley Morgan; second, Shirley Holec; third, Carolyn Daughtrey; Class 3, "Up, Up, and Away": first, Helen Taddiken; second, Peg Haigwood; third, Julie Surlis; Class 4, "Over the Rainbow": first, Mary Alice Jordan; second, Frances Tyson; third, Ramona Hutton.

Judges for the show included Mrs. Bruce Hinson of Wilmington, Mrs. N. E. Everson of Wilmington, Mrs. J. J. Burney Sr. of Wilmington, Mrs. Frank Farmer of New Bern and Kinston, Mrs. Neal Trueblood of Washington, and Mrs. Robert Chiles of New Bern. Mrs. Hawse and Mrs. Burney served as student judges.

Mrs. Farmer and Mrs. Chiles, who served as judges for last year's show, which included only an artistic division, noted that the skill of the exhibitors had improved. Mrs. Hinson said, "I think the show is outstanding and shows a great deal of talent, both in arrangements and in horticultural areas."

Co-chairmen of the flower show were Mrs. Hutton and Mrs. Greenville Banks.

The show will be open to public viewing until four o'clock this afternoon.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Eating Less Helps To Cope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families in four of America's major cities apparently find that cutting down on their food bills is the best way to cope with inflation.

According to a recent survey of families in New York City, Detroit, Atlanta and San Francisco, the food bill cutback was the most popular method being used.

The Center for the Study of Metropolitan Problems, which conducted the study, reported the second most used tactic was to try to raise their incomes by working more.

Over a third of the families did this by overtime work or, less frequently, by moonlighting or sending an additional family member to work, according to the survey.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Judy Elizabeth Dail, bride-elect, has been entertained at several pre-nuptial events this week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Worthington and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Smith entertained the bride-elect at a "pig-pickin' ho down" held at Worthington Farm. Featured entertainment was clogging and blue grass music.

Mrs. C. L. Patrick, Mrs. Sue Hamm and Mrs. Barbara Herring entertained the bride-elect at a recipe party and brunch at the home of Mrs. Patrick. Mr. and Mrs. William McLawhorn and Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLawhorn entertained the couple at a dinner party at the Captain's Table, Ayden.

A shower for the bride was given by staff members at Chicod Elementary School. An informal tea was given by Mrs. Ruggie Gooding and guests included Miss Dail's co-workers.

Four-Day Sales Week Pleases

Through the work of Rep. Walter Jones and others in Congress the U. S. Department of Agriculture has decided to make no changes in the sales days for flue-cured tobacco in 1979.

The USDA had been considering five day sales weeks in a move to reduce the number of government graders.

The move brought a storm of protest from tobacco interests who maintained that the four day sales week worked best for the industry with the fifth day reserved for clean-up of warehouse floors.

"The four day sale schedules suit both the warehouseman and the farmer better," J. N. Bryan, secretary, treasurer and sales supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, said.

Louis Williams supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade, said he could not "see any practical arrangement other than the four day sales schedule."

The four day sales week has worked well for the tobacco industry. It is obvious that the Fridays are needed for clearing the warehouse floors.

USDA officials say they will review sales this year, presumably with the idea of considering the five day sales week in 1980.

We hope, however, that Department of Agriculture officials will talk to warehousemen and farmers in the future to determine the effects of their actions on marketing conditions.

Waste System A Valuable Service

Pitt County continued to expand its solid waste system with the opening of its fifth container site at Bethel this week.

Residents of the area will be able to dispose of refuse there and it will be transported to the landfill in Greenville. It will also serve as a transfer site for Town of Bethel collection trucks.

The solid waste container site should provide a valuable service for citizens of the Bethel area.

Resist Upgrading Skills

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Is it possible that a number of Tar Heels are content with their lot in life to the degree that they aren't interested in jobs requiring high skills?

That is the novel explanation which some technical institutes and community college specialists offer, among others, in response to critics who say the schools are not turning out workers to meet modern-day technological demands.

metals, and electronics industries goes forward.

Freedom

Gov. Jim Hunt has also been pushing for more skills training to meet the needs of those firms which he hopes to attract to the state.

"Apparently, it has not occurred to the Governor and to Commissioner Brooks that people still live in a free society.

1. Many students and many individuals already holding jobs are frightened of the unknown (high technology) and choose to follow traditional job patterns familiar within the family and community.

Paap agrees with that proposition, and adds that to install high-technology training and employ the instructors will require additional money. The funding ratio of 22 students per instructor would need to be eight or 10-to-one in highly technical courses, "it is difficult to get the highly technical individuals who also have communicative skills that are essential in teaching to work for the salary that most of us can afford to pay."

2. Many employed individuals are reluctant to invest the time and effort to train for a higher skill because they are quite content in present circumstances. There are few pressures and challenges on the job which they now have; and the fishing, hunting and gardening are excellent. Increased pressure and time on the job simply would not be offset by higher pay.

Their Choice

Tart offers this thought: "It is a valid argument that you cannot teach any course unless students will enroll. Some may fail to realize that we cannot force adults to learn a skill — it is their prerogative. However, I DO BELIEVE WE SHOULD TRY HARDER TO SELL our product".

Paap agrees with that proposition, and adds that to install high-technology training and employ the instructors will require additional money. The funding ratio of 22 students per instructor would need to be eight or 10-to-one in highly technical courses, "it is difficult to get the highly technical individuals who also have communicative skills that are essential in teaching to work for the salary that most of us can afford to pay."

Paap believes the system can do the training job needed, "But (not) if we don't have the people who want the training or the money with which to provide the specialized training. The only people... who can change the current system are the members of the General Assembly...."

Hugging The President

WASHINGTON — When President Carter flew back last weekend from his political trip to Wisconsin he was very depressed. "It didn't go very well, did it?" he said to Jerry Rafshoon, his administrative aide in charge of Image-Making.

"I thought it went very well," Rafshoon said. "The crowds were warm, and the fund-raising was a big success."

"But nobody hugged me," Mr. Carter said.

"I didn't know you wanted to be hugged," Rafshoon said.

"Sadat always hugs me," Carter said. "So does Begin. Why can't my own people hug me?"

"Midwesterners don't hug people, Mr. President. Only Middle East leaders do that."

"How do I know the Democrats in Wisconsin are really behind me if they don't hug me?"

"They're behind you, but you're President of the United States. The people in Wisconsin would feel they were being too forward if they hugged you. It would be like a Welshman hugging the Queen of England."

"I'm sorry, Mr. President. I didn't know you felt that way about it. If I had known, I would have had one of our advance people in Wisconsin find someone to hug you."

Other Editors Say The Irony Of Kahn

(Greensboro Daily News)

You'd think, with inflation raging just below double-digit figures, that some members of Congress wouldn't be trying to put the government's chief inflation-fighting outfit out of business. But that is a danger as the Senate considers legislation to extend the life of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, headed by Alfred Kahn.

The council isn't very popular, to be sure. When Alfred Kahn points a finger at high business profits one week and at the Teamsters union the next, he makes powerful enemies on both sides of the economic spectrum.

His chief adversaries in Congress right now are Republicans and conservatives who say the council's very existence makes it likely that resident Carter will someday turn to mandatory wage and price controls — anathema to both business and labor, but a popular course among the people if recent polls are accurate. Mr. Carter has repeatedly said he wouldn't resort to controls. Indeed, he does not now have the authority from Congress to do so.

But the conservatives fret anyway. In an odd-couple coalition, they also join with the AFL-CIO in maintaining that Kahn's council is already trying to exceed its statutory authority. They refer specifically to the administration's plan to withhold lucrative government contracts from businesses violating the wage and price standards. The AFL-CIO has already gone to court to try to stop the withholding plan.

We, too, share in the doubts that the government has such power. But this ought to have absolutely nothing to do with the council's existence. We cannot understand how the public can expect government to control inflation voluntarily without the staff and the authority to take the economy's pulse, set wage and price goals and identify major violators.

The irony is that a successful campaign to kill the council would make the advent of mandatory controls that much more inevitable. Like him or not, Alfred Kahn is more likely to keep controls away than to invite them in. Congress ought to see that he and his council still have a job to do.

"It wouldn't have the same meaning if it was planned. When Sadat and Begin used to hug me they did it on impulse. They really wanted to hug me. If you had arranged it, it wouldn't have meant the same thing."

"Mr. President, there are thousands of people in Wisconsin who would give their eyeteeth to hug you. I saw it when I was walking with you. But they were afraid that if they tried it the Secret Service would clonk them over the head."

"I understand that. But the governor of Wisconsin could have hugged me when I got off the plane."

"He's a Republican, Mr. President. He could have gotten himself in a lot of trouble if he had been photographed hugging you."

"That didn't stop Sadat and Begin. They had a lot more to lose hugging me than the governor of one of the most important states in the upcoming elections doesn't want to hug me?"

"We can't make a Republican governor hug you, Mr. President. But rest assured that the next Democratic governor who greets you will give you a big bear hug, or he won't get a federal nickel for his state."

"I don't want Jerry Brown to hug me," Carter said.

"Don't worry about that, Mr. President. Brown won't even hug his own father."

"On the other hand," said Rafshoon, "if we could get

WASHINGTON TODAY

Rival Inquiries Shape Up

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that the nuclear crisis at Three Mile Island is cooling, congressional investigators are warming up for rival inquiries into what happened, who's to blame, and what should be done about it.

The nuclear power people, the electric company and the government's regulators can count on testifying at assorted, sometimes competing House and Senate hearings that are likely to go on for months.

On a subject as momentous and as dramatic as the future of nuclear power and the hazards of the accident near Harrisburg, Pa., almost any committee of Congress can find a reason to get into the act.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., got there first with a hearing Wednesday before his health subcommittee on the potential impact of the accident upon people who live in the Harrisburg area and those who work at the plant.

Kennedy took the occasion to say that there should be a new, independent federal agency to investigate any future nuclear accidents. He said the Nuclear Regulatory Commission won't do because it sets the safety standards that have to be assessed when things go wrong.

The Massachusetts senator not only got there first, he got there second, with a hearing

Thursday before the Joint Economic Committee on the question of who should pay for nuclear power plant shutdowns.

House and Senate panels with direct responsibility for nuclear power issues are planning to begin their public inquiries later.

There's no question that the whole area of nuclear power needs careful scrutiny in Congress. That was true before the accident and it is more urgent now.

There is legislation to be handled on the future of nuclear power and the way it is regulated.

It wasn't just the plant that broke down at Three Mile Island. There will be legislation seeking to have the Nuclear Regulatory Commission take charge in any future emergency and tell the neighbors what is going on.

There is a bill in the House to lift the 21-year-old ceiling on liability claims in nuclear power accidents. The limit now is $560 million, put there in the first place because without that protection against damage suits, power companies were wary of getting into nuclear operations at all. The bill would repeal that and limit liability only to the total assets of the company involved.

There have been calls for a congressional moratorium on the opening of new nuclear power plants. There are 90 under construction to go with the 72 that already have been opened.

The question is whether a profusion of congressional hearings will provide a reasoned appraisal, and deal with the concerns — and fears — raised by the accident. A succession of rival inquiries could do more to confuse the issue than to resolve it.

Strength For Today

WISDOM OF THE UNLEARNED

One of the most notable circumstances in the career of Jesus of Nazareth was that he selected not a single educated man as follower and helper. Instead, he chose fishermen and others who worked with their hands.

He undoubtedly knew that it was his destiny to change the course of history, yet he did not ask a single college-trained man (or the equivalent in those days) to assist him. Although the church has had a greater influence on human life than any other single factor, the man who made all this difference was himself only modestly educated. Jesus had what would correspond today to a grammar school education. The scribes and Pharisees, on the other hand, had received as much education as our PhD's of today.

All this illustrates again that education and wisdom are not one and the same thing. The revelation which God made through Jesus was so simple that anyone could understand it, and so significant that it could change the world.

'Roughing It' Isn't So Great

By GAIL MICHAELS

Recently, I was invited by a group of writers to attend a weekend retreat in a rustic building near the coast. At first, I was dubious. Of all of the possible kinds of outings I would like to take, "roughing it" ranks somewhere between a camel ride across the Sahara and a tour of India during the monsoon season.

But after I was assured that our building had hot and cold running water and a shower stall, I decided that such a trip might be a worthwhile adventure after all.

In keeping with the spirit of the trip, I planned to take only the bare essentials. When Phillip helped me pack the car, all I had was one suitcase, a cooler, a winter coat, a pocketbook and a sack full of books.

"It's a good thing you're not staying a week," he said. "You'd need a U-Haul. I thought you said you were roughing it."

"I am. I'm not taking my electric curlers, am I?"

"I'm not believing you! The last time I went on a trip like this, I took everything I needed in a back pack."

"And you didn't smell too good when you got back either. Besides, Helen and I have to take tonight's dinner."

"Well, all you need is a few cans."

"You don't expect me to feed that group the same thing I feed you, do you? I'm taking curried broccoli and wine."

He shook his head and sigh-

ed. "And just what is Helen going to feed this group that's forsaking civilization for the weekend?"

"Beef bourguignon."

"Are you sure you can stand such deprivation?"

"I'm going to try. Now all I've got to do is to get my bedding and I'm ready to go."

"You better take my sleeping bag, just in case there aren't enough cots."

I was horrified. I hadn't thought of that. "You mean I may have to sleep on the floor?"

"It's a possibility." His grin revealed more than a hint of malice.

It was too late to back out, so I followed him down to the basement. He unzipped his duffel bag and took out the rattiest sleeping bag I had

A GI's Ft. Dix Diary

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Although it seems a foregone conclusion, as immutable as the KP roster, the Defense Department is permitting public comment for 30 days before making a final decision to close Fort Dix.

By way of comment, which was never encouraged when I was an inmate there, I should like to propose that Fort Dix, and especially the road to the rifle range, be set aside as a national youth preserve, a sort of Monument Valley of missed late adolescence.

Like a couple of million other Americans who were inducted there and there later separated (how I still love the military's use of that verb), I left my youth at Fort Dix, N.J.

I never got to leave my heart at the Stage Door Canteen, although I once did misplace a jaunty garrison cap bought at nearby Model's there, but I definitely went from mean teen to instant GI Joe in the drafty old wooden barracks at Dix.

The years I should have spent hating my father, baiting my teachers, smoking pot, vandalizing my neighbor's property, puncturing my arm with needles and performing similar anti-social acts of my peer group were all swallowed up in four short days that linger in my memory under the chapter heading, "Turn the other cheek and cough."

That jut-jawed authority figure wore three stripes, carried a clipboard and rarely used an obscenity when a threat to outright violence would do.

He could hold an M-1 rifle by the trigger housing in one hairy paw and fire it like a pistol. We would have followed him through hell. And shortly thereafter died.

Sgt. Hublein was of Germanic extraction — by Ludwig The Mad out of Ilse Koch, it was widely believed. He had a thing, almost psychotic, about arranging the combs, brushes, handkerchiefs, rifle bore oil and other knick-knacks in a straight line of diminishing size in the top tray of your footlocker.

Some of us got religion at Fort Dix.

"All right, you KPs, there's a truck outside the mess hall if anybody wants to go to Catholic Mass." We dropped our scrubb-

Three high-ranking state officials are among the speakers that have been secured for Pitt County schools who will speak at Commencement exercises the latter part of this month. The three were secured through the cooperation of Senator Arthur B. Corey and local school officials.

State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson will speak at Grifton; Secretary of State Thad Eure at Chicory; and J.M. Broughton at Winterville.

Other schools in the county are lining up their speakers, and it has been announced that J.L. Memory, member of the Wake Forest College faculty, will deliver the commencement address at Grimesland; and Dr. L.R. Meadows, of East Carolina Teachers College, will speak at Stokes.

"All right, you KPs, there's a truck outside if anybody wants to go to Protestant services." We were all born-again Christians, except on the Sabbath when we embraced the faith of Abraham and the Prophets.

It was hell on the athletes, which is no doubt why none are found in foxholes.

At Fort Dix, we hiked out to the rifle range — without rifles. They hadn't been issued yet. So why did we hike to the range?

Because it was there. And we weren't.

Like I said, Fort Dix was our Monument Valley. The camp opened in 1917. The fossils of several generations are out here in those 55 square miles of dust and duty.

Nuclear Reactor Nearing Cold Shutdown

CHECKING MILK — Michael Cohen, chemist at the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources in Harrisburg, checks gallons of raw milk with a geliger counter upon arrival at the Radiological protection lab prior to testing the milk for possible radiation in the wake of the nuclear reactor problem at nearby Three Mile Island. (AP Laserphoto)

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Conditions at Three Mile Island's renegade reactor, now stabilized and slowly approaching cold shutdown, were deteriorating for 16 hours after the initial accident, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission official says.

"The cooling of the core was if anything going downhill," said Robert Bernero, the NRC's decontamination expert, in an interview Thursday. "The situation was deteriorating."

But on Wednesday, March 28, the day the plant began leaking radiation, Metropolitan Edison, the plant's operator, insisted things were under control and there was no danger to the public.

"We had a situation where the safety of the plant was going downhill in fits and spurts from 4 a.m. to 8 p.m. and then started to level off again," Bernero said.

At 4 a.m. March 28, a balky valve triggered a series of mechanical malfunctions and human errors that resulted in the worst accident in the nation's civilian nuclear industry.

Lack of vital cooling water exposed and damaged the core, the NRC said.

"It took 16 hours of arm wrestling to restore the reactor coolant flow," Bernero added. "Everybody knew there was danger Wednesday," he said. "Wednesday night, it was known that an awful bash had been given the plant."

Engineers were cooling the damaged nuclear reactor and removing gas from its sealed dome and its coolant system today. They were waiting the go-ahead on a 10-day plan to drop its temperature below the boiling point while pressure drops to normal.

After reaching cold shutdown — the point where the reactor poses no threat of escaping control — radiation spills can be mopped up and 250,000 gallons of contaminated water converted to sludge and buried.

President Carter directed on Thursday the establishment of an independent panel to investigate the causes of the accident.

Bernero said the final stages would be delicate in order to prevent the return of a potentially explosive hydrogen bubble.

"The critical thing is to get the temperature and the pressure down. If you abruptly release pressure, you can get great big burps of gas again. It might interrupt the coolant flow, and you'd be back to square one," he said.

While life limped back to normal in central Pennsylvania, Gov. Dick Thornburgh continued his advisory that pregnant women and children — particularly vulnerable to radiation — stay at least five miles from the plant.

"The news remains encouraging," Thornburgh said in a statement. "It appears we may be close to the time when the women and children who left their homes a week ago can return."

Meanwhile, in Washington, Metropolitan Edison attorney Joel Charnoff told a congressional panel that "it could impoverish or bankrupt" the firm if shareholders had to absorb the millions of dollars in damage from the catastrophe.

A New Look At School Prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is taking another look at prayer in public schools, a practice the Supreme Court has said violates the constitutional principle of church-state separation.

By a vote of 47 to 37, the Senate Thursday adopted an amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., aimed at removing from federal judicial review state laws on voluntary school prayer.

If his idea is sustained — Thursday's vote is tentative because of a parliamentary maneuver — it could have the effect of overturning the Supreme Court's decision.

Helms' amendment was offered as the Senate began debating a bill backed by the Carter administration to create a separate Education Department.

If the school prayer amendment stays on the bill, it probably reduces the likelihood of the measure clearing Congress. Senators who support a separate department immediately took steps they hoped would lead to the removal of the school prayer amendment.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., with the help of Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., arranged a parliamentary maneuver that will require another Senate school prayer vote Monday.

Byrd said he would ask senators to reconsider the vote because he feels the Education Department bill is the wrong vehicle for considering school prayer.

Instead, Byrd said he would suggest that Helms' amendment be taken up when a bill on Supreme Court operation and jurisdiction is considered.

Revival Series Bign Sunday

Revival services will begin at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Services will continue nightly at 7:30 through Wednesday.

The Rev. J. Floyd Williams, general superintendent of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, will be speaking. Bishop Williams is a native of Greenville and now resides in Oklahoma City, Okla.

The pastor, Rev. Frank Gentry, invites the public to attend.

Attend Session At Duke Univ.

Lou Gilbert, psychologist in Adult Services at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, recently attended the N. C. Biofeedback Society meeting at Duke University.

Members of the society are professionals who are interested in the experimental and clinical use of biofeedback techniques. According to Gilbert, the society was organized in June, 1978, and present members are charter members. At the recent meeting bylaws were discussed and adopted; officers were elected, and training and certification were discussed.

Special Service For Two Nights

AYDEN — Anniversary services for the pastor of Ayden Deliverance Center, Doreatha Bernard, are underway at the center.

Services will be held tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

JOY NIGHT
The J. R. Person young adult choir will have a Joy Night at the St. John Missionary Baptist Church in Falkland Saturday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. James Harris will give the message and various choirs will sing. The public is invited to attend.

Hospital Bill Is First Notice Thier Son Died

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill for hospital treatment was the first word Robert Thomas and his wife received that their son was dead.

And the Thomases are angry over the 1½ week delay in notifying them of their 21-year-old son's death on March 23.

"I just don't understand why it took so long," Thomas said in a telephone interview from his home in Harnett County. "We don't want to cause trouble for anyone, but we would like to find out what happened so other families won't have to go through what we did."

On March 16, their son, Johnny, boarded a bus with a friend, bound for Long Beach, Calif.

On Monday, 2½ weeks later, the Thomas family received in the mail a bill addressed to their son. It was from the El Centro, Calif., Community Hospital and listed charges of $2,353.72.

When they called the hospital to inquire about their son's health, the Thomas family was told simply, "He's dead."

The last word the family had received from their son was on March 21, when he called to say he would be hitchhiking back to North Carolina and it probably would take two weeks.

A.R. Crowder, a deputy sheriff and deputy coroner in Imperial County, Calif., said in a telephone interview Thursday that after Thomas was killed in a fall from a pickup truck, she had labored long and hard to contact the family during the nine days from March 23 to April 2. She said she made repeated telephone calls to sheriff's offices in Harnett County, Moore County and to the Spring Lake Police Department.

Harnett County Sheriff Lewis Rosser said he had no record of a call from California. He said he first learned of the death on March 24 by police teletype, but that the message contained an incomplete name and address for Thomas.

Harnett Deputy Jesse Gentry said he devoted his entire shift March 24 in a vain attempt to find the family. Finally, Crowder obtained a telephone number and got a call through to the family on April 2. The day the hospital bill arrived.

A 'Marvin Bill' Before Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A state House committee has approved a bill that would require written contracts between couples who live together without marriage.

The Judiciary Committee sent the bill to the full House by a 9-3 vote Thursday.

The bill would require a written contract before one of the partners could sue for a monetary settlement after the relationship ended, thus avoiding situations such as the California case involving actor Lee Marvin and his former lover, its sponsors say.

"Unless there is a written contract between couples who are cohabiting, no recovery is allowed," Republican Rep. John W. Hallock Jr., one of the bill's sponsors, told the committee.

The measure would apply to all such future relationships and also retroactively to couples already living together outside of marriage.

In the Marvin case, Michelle Triola Marvin has sued the actor for $1.8 million — half of his earnings during their six years together — contending she is owed that amount because she performed the duties of a wife and helped his career even though they were not married.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., with the help of Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., arranged a parliamentary maneuver that will require another Senate school prayer vote Monday.

Rhodesia Sets Election Dates

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesian government today set April 17-21 for the elections that will lead to limited black rule and probably a stepup in the guerrilla war for unrestricted black power.

The election will allow all Rhodesia's black adults to vote for the first time and choose a black prime minister to replace Ian D. Smith who once vowed Rhodesia would never see black rule "in a thousand years." A black president also will be chosen as nominal head of a black-dominated Parliament.

But under terms of a constitutional accord that Smith and three black moderates worked out 13 months ago, whites will continue to hold 28 of the 100 National Assembly seats and a quarter of the cabinet posts. The whites, who represent 3 percent of the 7 million population, also will control for at least five years the armed forces, the civil administration and the judiciary.

As a result, whites will wield considerable powers even after the first black prime minister is appointed a few weeks after the results of the elections are known.

Their 28 seats will give the whites an effective veto bloc against efforts by the 72 black members to tamper with the new constitution which features important safeguards for the future of whites in a black-ruled Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, as the country will be known.

But guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who reject the accord as a sell-out, have vowed to press on with their six-year-old war that has cost 15,000 lives, sabotage the elections and topple the government that emerges.

Nkomo, the burly former lay preacher whose headquarters are in Zambia, and Mugabe, the intellectual Marxist whose bases are in Mozambique, have more than 8,500 communist-armed fighters inside Rhodesia and thousands more in training to attack.

Annual Festival Set

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Secretary of State Thad Eure Thursday made his annual proclamation of the Waynesville Ramp Convention, a festival honoring the pungent plant.

A mountain vegetable with a taste and smell stronger than that of an onion, the ramp is regularly celebrated in Haywood County.

Those who eat the plant usually bear lingering effects hours later. And Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham showed little enthusiasm as he munched on a ramp for television cameras.

"I'm going to send a bunch of ramps to Joe Califano," Vrahman said, referring to the secretary of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. "He needs a good worming out."

Gathered with Eure and Graham at a news conference promoting the event were western North Carolina legislators, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, a group of Haywood County American Legion members who sponsor the event, and a big basket of ramps.

The event will be held at noon May 6 at the Waynesville Legion Memorial Park, and is coupled with a Saturday night Democratic Party rally.

Young Choirs Giving Program

The Children's Choirs of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church will present "The Singing Bishop" at the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

The program is a hymn interpretation for Palm Sunday of the hymn "All Glory, Laud and Honor," written by Bishop Theophilus in the ninth century.

The musical incorporates a Palm Sunday procession which will include palms, psalms and banners under the direction of Dan Holland, director of music ministry.

JOY NIGHT
A Joy Night Service will be held Friday, 8 p.m., at New Hope Fellowship Tabernacle Holiness Church, Falkland Highway, with guest speaker, Elder Lester Andrews. Elder B. R. Barnhill, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Outpouring Of Tribute Marked Archbishop Iakovas Anniversary

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A "champion of human dignity" ... a "moral anchor of our times" ... "a true man of God" ... an "ecumenical pioneer" ... "a mighty oak." These were among the tidal notes of tribute poured out by an extraordinary array of ranking clergy, politicians and other notables to Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovas on the 20th anniversary of his installation. It was an unusual celebration, lasting all day, combining prayers, oratory, song, flowers and food, and bringing together a remarkably inclusive spectrum of religious and civic leadership. "One of the world's greatest and most revered ecumenical figures," said New York Gov. Hugh Carey, a Catholic, who proclaimed the day, April 1, as "Archbishop Iakovas Day." Not to be outdone, New York City's Mayor Edward Koch, a Jew, issued a similar proclamation for the city. He told nearly 1,000 people packed into the Plaza Hotel ballroom for a luncheon: "The archbishop has brought a message of unity and hope for all faiths. Many of us consider ourselves his spiritual children."

Archbishop Iakovas, 67, a genial, unpretentious churchman, became primate of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America on April 1, 1959, and has been a key figure in national and international inter-religious affairs. A former president of the World Council of Churches, involving most of the earth's Protestant and Eastern Orthodox bodies, he has strengthened in global Christianity the voice of ancient eastern churches, once unfamiliar in the west. He initiated Orthodox dialogue with Judaism, marched with the late civil rights leader Martin Luther King in Selma, Ala., in 1965, met with the late Pope John XXIII, was present in Jerusalem for the historic embrace in 1964 between Standing Conference of Orthodox Bishops. A "good shepherd," New York's Catholic Cardinal Terence Cooke called him at a three-hour doxology of prayers, Scripture readings, hymns and discourses at Manhattan's Greek Orthodox Cathedral of the Holy Trinity, overflowing with 1,400 people. "We are one in the Spirit, one in the Lord."

ARCHBISHOP IAKOVAS

Will Lead In Bible Study

Dr. John Betlyon, campus minister and assistant professor of philosophy and religion of North Carolina Wesleyan College, will lead a week of Bible study at Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

Dr. Betlyon, a 1971 graduate of Bucknell University, received his masters' degree and doctorate from Harvard University. Dr. Betlyon has been on many archeological expeditions, and has taught at one of Harvard's extension schools. He has also served as a United Methodist pastor in Pennsylvania. The Bible study will focus on the passion narratives, the writings of the events leading up to Christ's crucifixion and resurrection. The study will begin Sunday, April 8, with a covered dish supper at 6:30 p.m. Monday's services will be held at 8 p.m., Tuesday's at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday's at 7:30 p.m., with a Maundy Thursday communion service at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

WEEKEND SESSION

The 172nd Session of the Eastern District Young People's Holy Association, Southern District United Holy Church, will convene Friday through Sunday, April 5-8, at St. Rest Holy Church, Winterville.

Public Invited • Free Admission

The message of Holy Week is not a sad one. Rather, it is the most joyous news we will ever hear! The glory of the resurrection could not have happened without the stark tragedy of God Friday... and because Christ overcame death, we are assured of eternal life. It is certain that we will live again and forever, in a new way that God has planned for us.

Jesus strove constantly to make this blessed truth plain. Time and time again we are told of God's great love, and of His constant concern for the world and people He created.

The highest point of Christ's ministry was the cross. Because of its tremendous power we, as Christians, have been given a ceaseless source of comfort. Come to the church of your choice.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — TRICK PURPLE SUNSHADE
FINANCED PASTEL PINK SHIRT.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: I equals D
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Colder air is on the way with freezing temperatures in prospect for most inland portions of North Carolina tonight. The leading edge of an arctic air mass has reached the western slopes of the Appalachians by early this morning. It is moving rapidly eastward and should reach the coast by mid afternoon and continue offshore tonight. Some scattered cloudi-

Windy, Cold In Some Areas

By The Associated Press
Wind gusts of up to 90 mph tore down power lines and trees, damaged buildings and darkened thousands of homes in northern and east-central Illinois, while frigid winds brought near-blizzard conditions to the Great Lakes region early today. At least four deaths were attributed to the weather. About 50,000 Commonwealth Edison customers in the Chicago metropolitan area, including 40,000 in the northern and western suburbs, lost electrical power for up to several hours because of downed lines. Winds slashing across Lake Michigan north of Chicago reached between 80 and 90 mph, whipping up some 15-foot waves, according to the Coast Guard at Wilmette, Ill. There were no reports of damage or injury.

Speaks For Limit Of 55

Carl Whitfield, field representative, eastern district, Governor's Highway Safety Program, addressed the Winterville Kiwanis Club Thursday on the topic of "Man and the Motor Car: Why We Need Speed Controlled 55 MPH Speed Limit." Whitfield pointed out that when North Carolina, along with other states, reduced the speed limits on highways to 55 mph five years ago, both gasoline consumption and car-related accidents declined. "This is why the U. S. Department of Transportation, in cooperation with the states, the Advertising Council, and interested citizens, is conducting a public information campaign to point up the benefits of 55 and the theme, '55 - It's not just a good idea. It's the law.'" said Whitfield. Whitfield noted that it would be hard to convince individuals that driving 55 is for their own self-interest.

Sabotage

LA SEYNE-SUR-MER, France (AP) — Saboteurs set off three plastic charges at an industrial plant today where components for two experimental nuclear reactors for Iraq were under construction, French police said. The 3 a.m. bombing reportedly caused several million dollars worth of damage and represented the first incidence of organized sabotage against France's nuclear energy development program. Police said the blasts, which they described as very powerful, blew out windows and much of the roof of the building in this Mediterranean town just outside the naval and industrial center of Toulon. There was no official indication of damage to the nuclear-related materials inside the plant or of any potential danger from radiation to area residents or to the environment as a result of the bombing.

New Criminals, Power Thieves, On U.S. Scene

By EDGAR MILLER
Associated Press Writer
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Rising energy costs are creating new criminals—power thieves.

They don't lurk in the dark and they don't wield weapons but in Chattanooga alone they stole an estimated $1.4 million last year in increasingly precious electrical power. These new criminals are normally law-abiding persons covering all economic classes and are not just in the lower income groups.

"They wouldn't steal your hubcaps but they think nothing about taking your power," Howard Collette, accountant and office manager of the Rockwood Electric Co. said. The problem is pretty general up and down the Tennessee Valley, a check of several Tennessee Valley Authority in large and small cities showed Tuesday.

Greg Stewart, who heads a task force formed by Chattanooga's Electric Power Board to combat the problem, said theft of electricity is nothing new but that over the past few years it has escalated as power rates have gone up.

"From all indications," Stewart said, "it's something that's pretty widespread throughout the country and it's not just one economic group that's involved."

Stewart pointed out that there's no real way to measure the exact amount of electricity being siphoned off illegally and that the $1.4 million figure was an educated guess.

The state's power companies are presently supporting legislation which would make it easier for them to prosecute persons who steal power. They say that present laws virtually make it necessary to catch the person in the act of tampering with the meter or tapping into an outside power line before they can get a conviction.

Stewart said that since the EPB's crackdown began a few months ago a number of persons have been caught diverting power. He said that in the past two weeks, for example, they have had 16 cases. He said the amounts paid back averaged about $145 per person.

The EPB makes every effort to get the person to pay for the power he has taken illegally and Stewart said prosecution is a last resort.

Power company officials are reluctant to give any details on how the thefts are done. Basically, however, the two main methods—with many variations—seem to be gimmicking the meter and tapping directly into power lines to circumvent meters.

Paul Hembree, general manager of Nashville Electric Service, said there are underground books telling how to beat the meter. He said plans were in the works for a crackdown on power thieves in the state capital.

Except for Chattanooga, companies checked did not have any figures on how much power was being stolen.

Hembree pointed out that a 10 percent loss on the system was considered normal and was usually due to resistance loss in wires or conductors radiated to the atmosphere as heat.

Ernest Edmondson of the Huntsville Utilities Board said losses in that Alabama city were not "anywhere near the magnitude" of Chattanooga's.

"It is increasing to some degree but it's not alarming," he said.

As EPB Chairman Donald Blevins said, "One slip of the pointed out that stealing power is not only illegal but dangerous."

Recreation Report Is Given Winterville Bd.

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board of Aldermen heard the annual report of the Winterville Recreation Commission Monday during the regular session.

According to Rodney Bullock, commission treasurer, approximately $19,000 was taken in receipts, with $18,615.88 in disbursements.

The largest item in the receipts included a $9,823.15 figure for team entry fees and sponsor donations. The Commission also collected $3,307.25 from barbecue dinners.

In the disbursements, around $11,000 was spent on equipment. Ronald Carroll, commission chairman, reported that 1,204 children and adults participated in the Commission programs during the past year.

The board accepted the report, along with 20 Commission-proposed names for membership in the Commission. Mayor Walter Dail commended the organization for its fine work.

Officers in the Commission include Ronald Carroll, chairman; Levi Smith, co-chairman; John Weathington, secretary; and Rodney Bullock, treasurer.

The board heard and approved the second and final reading of an ordinance granting a franchise to Greenville Cable TV, Inc.

The board denied a final request for approval of the Brookshire Subdivision. The Mayor appointed a committee to study the subdivision's drainage problems.

No action was taken on a request by John Worthington to extend Carmon St. from Hillcrest to Main Streets toward a proposed trailer court.

Roger Stancill, town advisor, was appointed alternate commissioner to represent the town in the North Carolina Power Agency No. 2. Mayor Dail is the regular commissioner.

Following public hearings on the matters, the board adopted ordinances toward a minimal housing code, urban renewal plan, small city single purpose program and citizen participation program for the expedition of the town's community block grant.

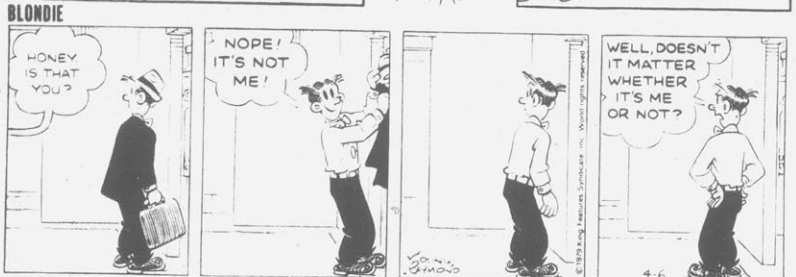

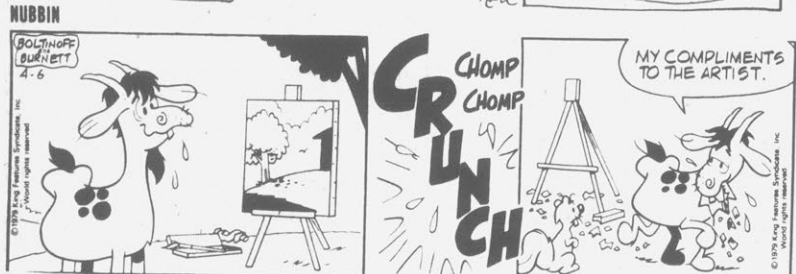

The board also adopted a uniform acquisition plan, affirmative action program, equal employment opportunity program and relocation program guidelines to aid the utilization of the grant.

A public hearing was set for May 7, 7 p.m., in the Municipal Bldg. to consider the amendment of Article 5, Section 2-B, of the Planning - Zoning Ordinance, to include antique stove dealers and other similar businesses to operate in an agricultural-residential district.

Paul Hembree, general manager of Nashville Electric Service, said there are underground books telling how to beat the meter. He said plans were in the works for a crackdown on power thieves in the state capital.

Except for Chattanooga, companies checked did not have any figures on how much power was being stolen.

Hembree pointed out that a 10 percent loss on the system

Killer Is Given Late Reprieve

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer
ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — Condemned murderer John Louis Evans III, who was down to his last meal, his last shower, and his last words of love to his family before being spared from electrocution, now must decide whether to fight his execution.

Evans, six hours from death today in Alabama's electric chair, burst into tears Thursday evening when he learned of his reprieve — a stay of execution he had not asked for.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist — acting on an appeal from Evans' mother, Betty Evans — ordered the execution delayed at least until April 13.

The decision brought an explosion of cheers from death row inmates at Holman Prison and words of grief from death penalty advocates who had assembled near the prison.

Foes of capital punishment held candles aloft in the night and sang "We Shall Overcome." Clergymen describing themselves as "biblical fundamentalists" said the court had turned its back on God's rule of "a life for a life."

There was no comment from Evans, who had been scheduled to die at 12:01 a.m. CST for the slaying of Mobile pawn shop owner Edward Nassar. There also was no comment from Nassar's widow.

Gov. Fob James had deliberated for about six hours Thursday over a request from Evans' mother for a clemency hearing for her son. James said after the stay was announced that he would have no further statements on the case until it completes the judicial process.

Evans, a 29-year-old Texas native who gunned down Nassar while the victim's two young daughters were nearby, had repeatedly asked for death to end what he called "a hell on earth in prison."

On the day before his scheduled execution — which would have been the first since Gary Gilmore faced a Utah firing squad Jan. 17, 1977 — Evans voiced repentance for "a wasted life" and seemed firm in his resolve to go ahead with the electrocution.

But, with the stay, there were signs Evans might change his mind. The Rev. Kevin Duignan, his closest friend in recent months and the man who told him of the stay, said Thursday night he still believes Evans will view the court's action as "a message from God" to try to live.

Duignan, a local Roman Catholic priest who finally broke down and cried at the end of the tense day of waiting, said Evans had bid him goodbye on death row Thursday night with the promise "I'll be all right."

GLAD IT'S OVER — Rev. Kevin Duignan falls into the arms of a bystander and cries after talking to members of the press about how killer John Louis Evans III reacted to being told he would not die in Alabama's electric chair. (AP Laserphoto)

Digging In For A 'Last Stand'

By JUDY YABLONKY
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin and his Libyan defenders dug in today at Jinja, 50 miles east of Kampala, for a last stand against the invasion force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles that drove him from his capital, reliable sources in the Tanzanian capital of Dar es Salaam reported.

Like most reports from the five-month-old Tanzanian-Ugandan war, this could not be confirmed. But residents of Kampala and diplomats in Nairobi reported earlier that the 2,000 Libyan troops defending Kampala after the Ugandan army garrisons there disintegrated were retreating eastward to Jinja, Uganda's second largest city.

Diplomatic and exile sources said some of the 2,600 troops Libyan government chief Moammar Khadafy reportedly sent to help Amin were withdrawing from Uganda. Exile sources claimed only about 1,000 remained and said they were assembling at Jinja. But these reports, too, could not be confirmed.

Radio Uganda claimed Thursday that the 6-foot-4, 240-pound Ugandan strongman slipped back into besieged Kampala to rally his troops, telling them his forces were besieging the besiegers and "are just watching what is going on." However, telephone calls from Nairobi to diplomats and other residents of Kampala produced no one who had seen him, and it appeared that the broadcast report might be another one of Amin's many headline-grabbing hoaxes.

Radio Uganda was broadcasting as usual today. Residents said the studios in the center of Kampala were heavily guarded by the only Ugandan soldiers still to be seen in the city.

Diplomats and others there said Kampala was calm through the night and there was no sign of Tanzanian troops or the Ugandan exiles with them. Some distant gunfire was reported.

NEW YORK (AP) — Midday stocks were mixed, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 7.63 Thursday to a 5½-month high, slipped .26 to 877.34 by noon Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 7.63 Thursday to a 5½-month high, slipped .26 to 877.34 by noon Thursday. Gainers held a very slight advantage over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

As expected, President Carter outlined plans Thursday night to gradually decontrol domestic oil prices, and called for Congressional action to tax any oil-company "windfall profits."

Anticipation of a decontrol plan has been cited as a primary factor in the stock market's recent strength.

As for the windfall-profits tax proposal, which is less to Wall Street's liking, there was considerable debate today over its chances of being passed by Congress.

Among NYSE oil issues, Exxon rose ¼ at 54½ and Gulf Oil rose ¼ to 27¼, but Texaco lost ¼ to 26¾.

Houston Oil & Minerals was down ¾ at 20½ and McCulloch Oil rose ½ to 6½ on the American Stock Exchange.

F.W. Woolworth, which posted a March sales gain on Thursday, rose 1 to 26 in active trading.

The NYSE's composite index eased .01 to 58.05, and the Amex market value index was down .19 at 182.19.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 16.95 million shares at noontime, up from 14.19 million at the same point Thursday.

Faculty...

 for some time may see the self-evaluation time as opportune to exercise his choice to devote his or her full time to teaching, research, writing or other pursuits, and let someone else do the administrative chores.

In some cases, university administration may see fit to replace a chairperson, whether the self-evaluation vote was negative or not. This decision as in all cases rests with the chancellors. The decision may be based in part or in full upon the evaluation report of the department, upon faculty morale, progress in developing programs or other factors.

Faculty and administration officials emphasize that faculty morale is "very important," as well as program development, research and publication.

The point of self-evaluation, Ferrell says, "is that the faculty have a voice, a method of self-critique and shared governance" which in the long run is expected to prove "very useful and very helpful."

Giving Program For Dive Club

KINSTON — The April 9 meeting of the East Carolina Dive Club here will feature a program by J. C. Jones, Director of the Office of Marine Affairs of the N.C. Department of Administration, including information on the sunken German submarine U-352.

Rocky Mount Nips Rampants By 2-1

Guidry Loses First Start As Caldwell Wins; Perry Tops LA

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Nobody's perfect — not even Ron Guidry.

The ace of the New York Yankee pitching staff seemed to be up to his Cy Young-winning form against the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday — until he made some uncharacteristic mistakes.

First, Gorman Thomas broke his no-hit spell with one out in the sixth inning, and then several others got into the act as the Brewers scored four runs en route to a 5-1 victory.

Guidry had thrown just 40 pitches while retiring the Brewers' first 16 batters. But then he went to a 3-2 pitch on Thomas, and the Milwaukee hitter smashed a line drive single to left.

Later in the inning, Don Money erased New York's 1-0 lead with a two-run single, Cecil Cooper grounded a run-scoring single and Sixto Lezcano chased Guidry with an RBI base hit.

Red Sox 7, Indians 1 Jim Rice hit a three-run homer and Dwight Evans and Fred Lynn belted solo shots to power Boston over Cleveland.

Dennis Eckersley allowed only two hits in seven innings before reliever Dick Drago took over in the eighth, allowing one hit the rest of the way.

Royals 11, Blue Jays 2

John Wathan drilled a bases-loaded triple and Darrell Porter added a two-run single in a nine-run second inning to propel Kansas City past Toronto.

The Royals pounded Tom Underwood for all nine second-inning runs on four walks, four hits and two Blue Jay errors.

Padres 4, Dodgers 3 Gene Richards singled home the tying run and Kurt Bevacqua raced home with the winner on a wild pitch as San Diego rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to beat Los Angeles.

The Dodgers had taken a 3-2 lead in the eighth on Bill Russell's RBI single before the Padres scored their winning runs in the ninth with the help of reliever Lance Rautzhan's wild pitch.

Mets 10, Cubs 6 Richie Hebner drove in four runs with a homer, a pair of doubles and a single to lead the Mets over Chicago.

Hebner, recently acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies, singled to set up the Mets' first run, homered in the fourth inning and capped a three-run rally in the fifth with a two-run double.

Hebner also doubled in a run and scored another when the Mets locked up the decision with five runs in the seventh inning.

When An Out Isn't An Out

Doug Flynn of the New York Mets is about to be tagged by Chicago Cubs shortstop Ivan DeJesus during a rundown between first and second in the seventh inning of Thursday's season opener in Chicago.

North Lenoir Trips Chargers

WHEAT SWAMP — North Lenoir put on a rally, then held off an Ayden-Grifton rally to claim a 10-8 victory over the Chargers yesterday.

Ayden-Grifton jumped into the initial lead with a run in the first, coming on a solo home run by Wayne Newton.

North Lenoir matched that with another solo blast in the second, hit by Kevin Battle.

In the third, the Chargers pushed over three to take a 4-1 lead. Jolly Dail walked and Wayne Newton reached on an error.

Teachey singled in Dail. David Smith then singled in Newton and Ricciarelli.

After scoring a single run in the bottom of the third, North Lenoir came up with five in the fourth to push ahead for good, 7-4. Graham walked and moved up on an error.

Davis also reached on an error and Butler was hit by a pitch. Sullivan singled in Graham and Davis scored on Dixon's ground out.

Radford then cracked a three-run homer for the Hawk lead.

Ayden-Grifton scored one in the fifth on a solo homer by Ricciarelli, but the Hawks came back with three in the bottom of the inning for a 10-5 lead.

Ayden-Grifton rallied once more, scoring three in the seventh, but fell short.

Ed Coley and Smith each had two hits for Ayden-Grifton, while no one had more than one for North Lenoir.

Ayden-Grifton is now 1-8 and will play host to Charles B. Aycock tonight.

Ayden-Grifton 103 101 3-8 7 9 North Lenoir 011 530 X-10 4 5 Dail, Smith (4) and Coley; Barnes, Graham (5) and Davis.

Rampants Top Eagles Rose High School's tennis team rolled to an 8-1 victory over Northeastern High School yesterday.

The only loss the Rampants suffered was in a split set defeat by Fred Matney to Tom Poston.

The Rampants are now 6-2 and play host to Rocky Mount on Monday.

Summary: Tom Poston (NE) defeated Fred Matney, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Jeff Quinn (R) defeated John Bell, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Scott Bailey (R) defeated John King, 6-1, 6-2.

Larry Talbert (R) defeated Ellis Smith, 6-2, 6-0.

Chuck Blake (R) defeated Keith Morhard, 7-5, 6-3.

Melney Kilcoyne (R) defeated Bell King, 8-3.

Quinn Talbert (R) defeated Poston Garrett, 8-4.

Danny Elmer Scott Taylor (R) defeated Morhard Smith, 8-0.

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor

Rocky Mount High School pulled off several fine defensive plays, and put together just enough offense to pull past Rose High School, 2-1, yesterday in Division I baseball.

The defeat ended Rose's unbeaten string and knocked them out of a share of first place in the league's young season.

Mike Williams went all the way in taking the loss, his first in four decisions. He scattered five hits, walked four and struck out nine.

Rodney Birth claimed his fifth straight win for the Gryphons, giving up just four hits, while he walked and struck out six each.

All of the scoring was confined to the third inning, although both teams had several other opportunities to score.

Rocky Mount loaded the bases with two outs in the second on a single and two walks, but Williams struck out the number nine batter in the order to end that threat.

But in the third, Dee Whitley led off with a walk and stole second. With two away, Jeff Newsome slapped a double into right field, scoring Whitley. Timmy Tucker then reached on an error, which allowed courtsey runner Donnie McCulloch to score from second.

Rocky Mount lost a chance in the fourth when, with runners on first and third, the Gryphons tried a suicide squeeze, and Williams pounced on the ball and relayed it to Skip Topping at the plate for the putout.

The Gryphons left runners on second in the sixth and seventh.

Rose put two on in the first, via walks, but could do nothing.

In the third, they tried to rally and came close to pulling back into the game. Will Barrett led off with a walk, and Mark Shank also received a free pass to first.

He was put out at second, however, on Ronnie Chapman's grounder.

Chapman then took off for second, and the throw to second by Birth sailed into center, allowing Barrett to score.

Chapman then stole third, but had to stay there when shortstop Bill Merrifield knocked down Topping's single to short.

Courtsey runner Charles Daise stole second, but a popup and a grounder ended the inning.

Both also left runners standing on second in the fourth and seventh, while double plays took the Gryphons out of trouble in the fifth and sixth.

The twin-killing in the sixth was a key one. Will Sanderson had singled and the infield was in for the bunt. Joey Mattheis hit a grounder, however, that third baseman Paul Bauer was able to make a fine play on, despite nearly overrunning the ball on his charge for the expected bunt.

He relayed to second to get Sanderson at the start of the double play.

"They played better than we did. They made the good defensive plays," Rose Coach Ronald Vincent said.

"That double play on Mattheis was a big one for them. Without it, we would have had runners at first and second with none out."

"Then, we had one inning in the field when we made some mistakes, and that cost us, too. They were more aggressive with the bats than we were."

Vincent warned that the Rampants might now have trouble rebounding for today's game against Northeastern, also at Guy Smith Stadium.

"It's going to be tough for us to get back up, but we had better be ready," he said.

The loss dropped the Rampant record to 5-1-1 overall and 2-1 in the conference. Rocky Mount climbed to 7-2 overall and 2-1 in the conference.

Linwood Silver led the Rocky Mount hitting with two, while Topping had two of the four Rose hits.

Scrimmage Scheduled

East Carolina University's football Pirates will hold their annual Purple-Gold scrimmage game Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

The game, while traditionally the windup to spring drills, will not be the finale this year, as has become the practice of Coach Pat Dye.

Instead, the Pirates will have a few days of drills in their 20 allotted days, and will finish up on Thursday.

The squad will be divided into two groups by "choosing up sides" for the contest, which will be played under game conditions.

No admission is being charged for spectators.

GOLF WORLD SERIES

AKRON, O. (AP) — There will be a minimum of 36 players in the World Series of Golf tournament at the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio, Sept. 27-30.

Among other things, more foreign competitors will be invited this year. The purse for the event will be $400,000.

Lady Rams Win Again

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's girls' softball team remained unbeaten yesterday as it downed North Pitt, 19-3.

After the Pant-HERS picked up two runs in the top of the first, Greene Central came back with six to put the game out to reach.

The Lady Rams added two in the third, two in the fourth, four in the fifth and five in the sixth on the way to the win. North Pitt's other run came in the sixth.

Lynn Shackelford got the win for the Lady Rams. Rene Speight led the Greene Central hitting with three, while Dupree had two for North Pitt.

Greene Central is now 9-0 overall and 7-0 in Eastern Carolina Conference play. The Lady Rams travel to Southwest Edgecombe today.

North Pitt falls to 0-6 overall and in conference play, and goes to Farmville Central today.

Boudry Changed

The Greenville Little Leagues have revised their boundaries for the 1979 season to include the Greenville city limits and the Greenville City School district.

The change was made to include those children from the ages of nine through 12 who reside in the Greenville city limits, but outside the city school district.

Any interested children who have not registered for Little League tryouts will be allowed to register this Monday and Tuesday at 4 p.m. at Elm Street Park.

Boys and girls must be accompanied by at least one parent and furnish a birth certificate. Hospital birth certificates are not acceptable.

The Little League program is also in need of adult coaches and umpires. Interested persons should call Dan Gordon, supervisor, at 756-2339 after 7 p.m.

Rampants Rush Past Gryphons

Rose High School's track team had an easy time of it yesterday as the Rampants rolled over Rocky Mount, 102-38.

The win boosted the Rampant track record to 5-3 on the season.

Rose won nine of the 14 individual events, and swept the three relays. None of the Rose victories produced double winners.

Rocky Mount's Brown won the long and triple jump.

The Rampants travel to Fike for a three-way meet with Beddingfield on Thursday.

Summary: Shot put: Little (R) 49-0; Butler (R) 45-8; Ward (R) 45-2. Discus: Butler (R) 147-8; Merritt (RM) 128-6.

Long jump: Brown (RM) 126-2; Green (R) 119-2; Jones (R) 118-11.

Triple jump: Brown (RM) 42-2; Kilpatrick (R) 41-4; Daniels (R) 37-0.

Five Are Tied For Lead At Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jack Renner said that at this early point he isn't even considering winning the golf tournament.

But Tom Kite is. "This is the first time in a long time I've come into a tournament thinking I was playing well enough to win," Kite said after firing a 4-under-par 68 to tie Renner and three others for the first-round lead in the $250,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

Also sharing the top spot were Jim Thorpe, a former running back at Morgan State who finished second in the Tucson Open; Bobby Walzel, who spiced his effort with a string of five consecutive birdies, and Keith Fergus, one of the last to finish Thursday's play. Fergus had a chance to take the lead alone but missed on a 10-15 foot birdie putt on the final hole.

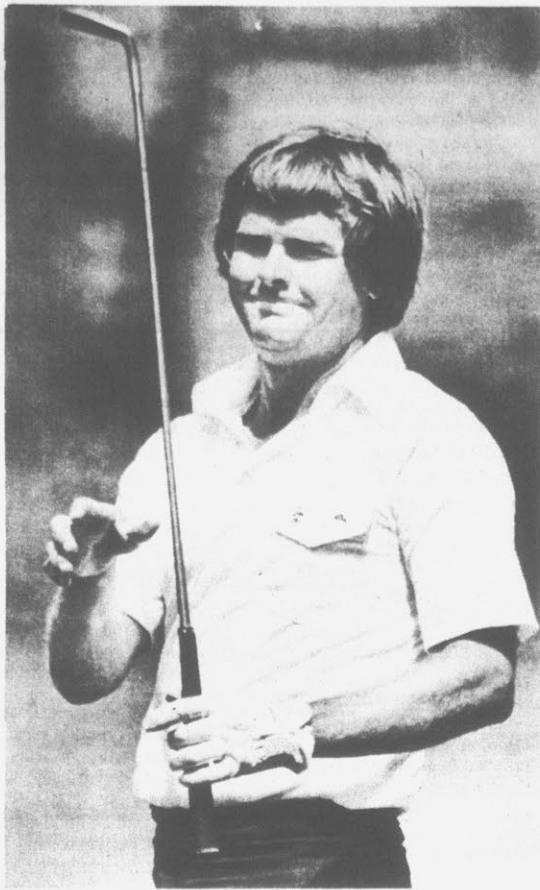

Bob Eastwood and Barney Thompson were a single shot back at 69. Masters champion Gary Player of South Africa, Hale Irwin and Fuzzy Zoeller topped a large group at 70.

Lanny Wadkins, the only two-time winner on the PGA tour this year, and defending champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain were 4 strokes off the pace after matching par 72 on the rain-soaked, 6,984-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course.

"The round was long and it was wet, and that's a tough combination," said Renner, a skinny 22-year-old who was runner-up in this tournament last year and third a couple of weeks ago in the Tournament Players Championship.

His strong showing here a year ago, Renner said, is a definite asset this time. "When you can't remember anything but good shots, it gives you a positive attitude."

"But there's an awful lot of golf holes left. You just try to play each one as well as you can. You don't start thinking about winning until the last nine holes on Sunday. In my own mind, I haven't even considered winning."

Mack Hits 16 As East Plymouth Rips Lady Tigers

HONOLULU (AP) — Sammy Drummer of Georgia Tech scored 22 points to lead the South to a 90-72 victory over the West in the first game of a basketball doubleheader in the 11th annual Aloha Classic here Thursday night.

Earl Evans' 22 points led the Midwest to a 109-94 victory over the outmanned East team in the second game.

Drummer was the high-point man in the opener of the classic, which features some of the top seniors in college basketball.

Calvin Natt, of Northeast Louisiana, followed with 19 points.

Redskins Take Loss

ROANOKE RAPIDS — League-leading Roanoke Rapids trounced Roanoke in a Northeastern Conference tennis match yesterday 8-1.

The Yellow Jackets won all but the final doubles match in sending the Redskins to their 10th straight loss.

Summary:
Ben Reicherl (RR) d. Gene Burns, 6-1, 6-0.
Dennis Rowland (RR) d. Ricky Fernandez, 6-3, 6-2.

North Pitt Tops Jags

BETHEL — Melvin Howard held Farmville Central to just three hits yesterday as North Pitt nipped the Jaguars 2-0 in a high school baseball game.

North Pitt scored both of its runs early, getting one in the first and one in the second. In the first, Jeff Hines reached on an error, moved up on Ronnie House's single and scored on a base hit by Tim Corey.

Greg Briley reached on an error in the second and stole. After a walk to Greg Holland, Carl Knight knocked Briley in with a single.

William Beechum was the only player with more than one hit in the game. He had two for North Pitt.

Farmville 000 000 0-0 3 2
North Pitt 110 000 x-2 5 1
Joyner, Johnson (2) and Gordon; Howard and Beechum.

Lady Jags In Loss

STANHOPE — Farmville Central's softball team fell to its sixth defeat in as many games yesterday in a 9-1 decision to Southern Nash.

The Lady Jaguars got 10 hits, but were able to push only one run across. Beth Massey and Debbie Gowen each had two hits for Farmville.

Massey had three and Doughty and Hardy two each to pace the Lady Firebird hitting. The Lady Jags play again today when they host North Pitt.

Farmville 000 010 0-1 10
Southern Nash 300 402 x-9 13 points — 13 of them in the first half — and Vinnie Johnson of Baylor added 18, while John Gerdy of Davidson netted 16 points for the South.

The South took command of the game in the second half, despite the West's combination of the nation's leading scorer, Lawrence Butler of Idaho State, and the Classic's tallest player, 7-foot-2 James Donaldson of Washington State.

Butler topped the West with 19 points, while Larry Demic of Arizona added 17. Donaldson finished with 12.

The Midwest took command from the outset in the nightcap and tied a Classic record with 68 first-half points. The East, paced by Maryland's Larry Gibson with 27 points, had only six men in uniform and was worn out by the frequent substituting of the Midwest team.

Cheese Johnson of Wichita State added 21 points for the winners. Chaminade's Will Pounds added 12 points and 14 rebounds to match Evans' 14 rebounds.

The East's Gibson hit 12 of 19 from the floor to top all scorers. Behind him were teammates Larry Knight from Loyola University with 18 and Oliver Mack of East Carolina university with 16.

Tigers In Net Win

PLYMOUTH — Williamston High School's tennis team gained a 6-3 victory over Plymouth yesterday.

The Tigers lost the first three singles matches, rallied to win the final three and swept the doubles in claiming their fifth win in seven matches.

Williamston travels to Tarboro on Tuesday.

Summary:
Curtis Arnold (P) defeated Duke Douglas, 6-0, 4-6, 6-1.
Ronnie Tart (P) defeated Tim Rogers, 6-0, 6-3.
Ricky Bonds (P) defeated Gary Bateman, 6-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Steve Burch-Jeff Hartman (W) defeated Randy Tetterton-Tim Alligood, 8-1.

Conley In 12-3 Win

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's girls' softball team romped to a 12-3 victory over North Lenoir yesterday.

The Valkyries put the game away in the first inning, pushing over eight big runs. They went on to add four more in the third.

North Lenoir got one in the second and two in the fourth.

Gail Cates hurled the win for Conley, while Zena Harrington led the hitting.

Artis and Pearce had two hits each for North Lenoir.

Conley is now 6-2 overall and 4-2 in the Eastern Carolina Conference. They travel to Southwest Edgecombe on Monday.

N. Lenoir 010 200 0-3 10
Conley 804 000 x-12 7

Aycock Tops A-G

PIKEVILLE — C. B. Aycock's softball team banged out 16 hits yesterday as it rolled past Ayden-Grifton 13-1.

Head and Proctor had three hits each, while Edmondson and Hales added two apiece to pace the Lady Falcons. Shanda Brock led Ayden-Grifton with three hits.

The loss was the fourth in sixth games for the Chargerettes, who host North Lenoir on Monday.

A. Grifton 000 000 1-1 6
Aycock 331 190 x-13 16

Chicod Suffers Baseball Loss

NEW BERN — H. J. McDonald scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh to slip past Chicod 3-2 in a junior high baseball game yesterday.

It was the first game of the season for Chicod, which scored both of its runs in the first inning.

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth's unbeaten girls' softball team romped to a 20-3 victory over Williamston yesterday.

Williamston scored once in the top of the first then watched as Plymouth raced over 13 runs in the bottom of the inning.

Plymouth added four in the second, and three in the third. Williamston got one each in the fourth and seventh.

J. Jackson hurled the win for Plymouth, while Alice Norman led the hitting with three. Debbie Gurganus and Lois Wood each had two. Ginger Edwards had two to lead Williamston.

There was one homer in the game, hit by Wendy Joyner in Plymouth's third with two on.

Plymouth is now 7-0, while Williamston dropped to 2-2 overall and 2-1 in the Northeastern Conference. The Tigerettes play Washington on Monday.

Williamston 100 100 1-1 5
Plymouth (13) 43 000 x-20 13

Roanoke In Victory

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke won its second softball game of the season yesterday as the Squaws defeated Roanoke Rapids 6-4.

Both teams had nine hits. The Yellow Jackets' Gregg was the only girl to have more than one hit. She had a pair.

The Squaws are now 2-1 on the season and will play at Washington on Tuesday.

Donnie Allison Grabs The Pole

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — It's almost too good to be true. Treacherous old Darlington Raceway is smiling on the competitors for the 23rd annual Rebel 500 stock car race Sunday.

"The track is so good right now, it scares me a little," said Donnie Allison who won the pole Thursday with a sizzling lap at 154.797 mph, just off the five-year-old track record. "The (asphalt) sealer is wearing off, and the track is getting tight. The car really sticks in the corners."

"I have mixed emotions about that. If it stays comfortable to drive on, fine. But it can change so fast here. You can go through a corner 100 times the same and the 101st time it'll be completely different."

"This isn't a track you can get careless on — it'll come up and bite you."

Allison knows all about the dangers of the infamous old 1.366-mile raceway. He's never won here, often met misfortune and can seldom remember bright moments in his experiences here.

"I've always liked this race track. I'm not like some of the drivers. I like driving it. Maybe it's the challenge. I've finished second a couple of times. More often than not, I've been knocked out of a win by a lot of freak things," he recalled. "But I always like the track."

"One day I'm gonna win." A win at Darlington carries a special peer prestige unmatched by any of the tracks on the Grand National circuit. The old saying goes: If you can win at Darlington, you can win anywhere.

"I feel really good about our chances here this time. I had a lotta good luck helping me to win the pole," Allison said. "And finally my crew has caught up from all the troubles at Daytona and Rockingham, and can work on improving the car instead of patching it up all the time."

Allison demolished two cars earlier this season in much-publicized smashups with Cale Yarborough. Both were put on probation for the run-in at Daytona. The probation was just lifted earlier this week.

"We're through playing catchup. We're ready," said Allison, who is still looking for his first win of the season. This is the eighth of 31 races on the calendar.

Allison beat out Darrell Waltrip for the pole position by less than eight-hundredths of a second in Thursday's first round of qualifying for the $180,000 race.

His brother Bobby, who holds a slim lead over Waltrip in the Winston Cup point standings, qualified third.

Yarborough, the local favorite since he lives in Sardis, S.C., qualified a disappointing ninth.

Only the first 12 positions were up for grabs Thursday. The remainder of the 36-car lineup is to be decided today and Saturday.

Sunday's race starts at 1:45 p.m. EST. Portions will be carried live by ABC-TV.

Pirates Defeated

East Carolina's Curtis Tedesco won the first singles match, but Atlantic Christian took the next eight to defeat the Pirates 8-1 in a college tennis match yesterday.

Tedesco's win over Tom Morris came by a 6-4, 6-1 score, but the other five Bulldog singles players rolled to straight set wins.

The Pirates will host UNC-Charlotte Sunday afternoon at 2.

Summary:
Curtis Tedesco (EC) d. Tom Morris, 6-4, 6-1.
Dan Allerdud (AC) d. Kenny Love, 6-1, 6-2.
Andres Alvarez (AC) d. Bobby Winchester, 6-3, 6-3.
Jay Aldridge (AC) d. Mark Byrd, 6-2, 6-1.
Brian Staub (AC) d. Keith Zengal, 6-2, 6-2.
Soren Blomgren (AC) d. Alex Cunningham, 6-2, 6-4.
Allerdud-Aldridge (AC) d. Tedesco-Zengal, 6-3, 7-5.
Staub-Alvarez (AC) d. Bob Edmondson Byrd, 7-6, 7-6.
Morris-Blomgren (AC) d. Winchester-Cunningham, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Rams In Net Win

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School's tennis team romped to an 8-1 victory over Farmville Central yesterday.

The lone Farmville win came in the number five singles, where Steve Morgan defeated Michael Sugg.

Greene Central is now 4-6 and Farmville is 2-2. Farmville plays host to C. B. Aycock today, while Greene Central travels to White Horse on Monday.

Summary:
Lenny Herring (GC) defeated Roy Richardson, 6-3, 6-4.
Steve Cook (GC) defeated David Dunn, 6-1, 6-3.
Robert Mewborn (GC) defeated Bobby Patterson, 6-2, 6-0.

Nuggets Climb Into Tie For First Place In NBA's Midwest

By ALEX SACHARE
 AP Sports Writer
 "Three weeks ago I didn't even have it in my mind that we might win the division title," says Denver Coach Donnie Walsh.

"Then, when George McGinnis got hurt (last Friday), I thought for sure we wouldn't do it. But that injury has turned out to be a motivating factor for us. We have a lot of veterans and they have responded to the challenge." The Nuggets, led by veterans Dan Issel and Charlie Scott, posted their ninth victory in 10 starts Thursday night by beating the New York Knicks 114-107 to climb into a tie for first place with Kansas City in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division. At stake is a bye through the dangerous best-of-three first round of the playoffs.

In the only other NBA game Thursday night, the Detroit Pistons rallied to defeat the New Orleans Jazz 120-104.

Denver has two road games left, at Boston Friday night and Philadelphia Sunday, while Kansas City plays at home against New Jersey Friday night before finishing its season at Indiana Sunday.

"We're not really concerned about the division title," claimed Issel, the 6-foot-9 center who had 20 of his 28 points in the second half and also grabbed 15 rebounds.

"What's most satisfying is that we're playing our best basketball of the year going into the playoffs," he added.

The Nuggets are 18-9 after a nerve-wracked Larry Brown resigned as coach on Feb. 1 and was replaced by Walsh, his top aide.

"Larry was very uptight," Issel said. "Donnie is more relaxed and easy-going, and he's transferred that to the club."

The Nuggets have now won two of their three starts since losing McGinnis because of torn ligaments in his left ankle.

The Knicks led throughout the first half and were ahead 96-94 midway through the final period, but were outscored 20-11 in the final 5:40. Charlie Scott scored eight of his 24 points in that stretch drive and Issel added six.

The Knicks, who were outscored 36-15 from the foul line, suffered their eighth straight loss and completed their worst season in 15 years. New York's 31-51 record was its worst since the 22-58 mark posted in 1963-64.

Ray Williams and Toby Knight led the Knicks with 18 points apiece and Earl Monroe, the veteran guard who says he's undecided about returning next season, scored 17.

Pistons 120, Jazz 104
 Detroit forced 12 turnovers in the final quarter and outscored New Orleans 42-16 in the last period to win. Leon Douglas and Terry Tyler got nine points apiece in that final period.

Umpires Surprised By Support Of Fans; Subs See Few Criticisms

By BERT ROSENTHAL
 AP Sports Writer
 Outside Yankee Stadium, about a dozen major league umpires were picketing and some fans were yelling, "We're in your corner," a twist of fate for the usually beleaguered arbiters.

Inside the stadium, where the New York Yankees were beginning their quest for a third straight world championship against the Milwaukee Brewers, four replacement umpires, including a sales representative for a distillery and a forklift salesman, were preparing to work the game.

Replacement umpires also worked Thursday's four other major league openers — Toronto at Kansas City and Cleveland at Boston in the American League and San Diego at Los Angeles and New York at Chicago in the National League.

But there was no other picketing by the 52-man crew of striking major league umpires, whose only working member is Paul Pryor.

"I expected them to be yelling, 'We hope you'll get a raise so you can buy glasses,'" Bill Kunkel, a former Yankees pitcher and an 11-year umpiring veteran, said about the surprisingly sympathetic crowd in front of Yankee Stadium. "You know, stuff like that. But they didn't. Nobody said a single negative thing. I loved it, as much as I love umpiring."

Inside the stadium and at the other parks, there also was surprisingly little umpire baiting ... despite the relatively inexperienced umpires working the games.

One of the few negative notes was expressed by San Diego Manager Roger Craig. "I think they cost us a run in the first inning," Craig said.

He was referring to a play in which the Padres' Gene Richards was called out for trying to stretch a single into a double. Craig said he thought Richards was safe.

But Craig added, "I thought overall they did a good job." He might not have been so easy on them if the Padres had not beaten the Dodgers 4-3.

The Dodgers-Padres umpiring crew included Fred Brocklander, who has worked in the Eastern League and the Pacific Coast League and signed a major league contract Thursday; Jim Scott, a property manager in Vernon, Calif., who has umpired college games; Charlie Lupo, a restaurant manager, and Boyd Mauer, a high school English Department chairman.

The Yankee Stadium crew included Al Forman, a National League umpire from 1961-65 and now a sales representative for a distillery; Fred Stenn, who worked in the American Association and American League; Jimmy Dunn, the man, and Richie L...

Some plays at the bridge table are intrinsically wrong. Giving declarer a ruff-and-slush is the most obvious example. Yet upon occasion even this play may be proper—if you are sure that declarer cannot gain by the discard, or if you have some other purpose in mind. Witness this hand.

North's decision to bid two hearts was the least of evils. He had too much to pass, and a raise of his partner's suit with a doubleton was not appealing. Now South had a problem. With 19 points in high cards, he couldn't rebid two spades, nor make a jump bid of any kind, so he improvised with a "high reverse" of three clubs. North raised, and when South confirmed a good five-card suit by rebidding spades, North was delighted to get out of the auction. West attacked with the king and queen of diamonds and, when East echoed, he continued with the ace. East discarded the two of hearts. West's next play would now make or break the contract. East's heart discard made it obvious that no defensive trick was available in that suit, and the club suit did not seem to offer any better prospects in the light of the bidding. It appeared, therefore, that the only hope of defeating the contract was to score a trick in trumps.

If East held the jack of spades, nature would provide the setting trick. However, a trump trick could also be established if East's top trump was the seven—that card would force declarer to ruff with an honor, thus establishing a trick for West.

So West continued with the three of diamonds. A club was discarded from dummy, and East cooperated fully by ruffing with the seven. Declarer naturally overruffed, but now he had to concede a trump trick to West for down one.

The trade has a graphic name for this type of defensive maneuver, derived from a sport of which we are both fond. It is called an "uppercut."

The Ewings Depart Saccharine Path

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — One thing about TV families — they're such decent people. Much better, in fact, than most real folks. Oh, they have their little conflicts for the sake of the show, but most TV families end each episode with a big hug and kiss.

Nothing wrong with that. It's just that I thought everyone was born with a little good and a little evil, and I wondered what happened to the evil in this saccharine bunch on the tube. I used to wonder. Now I know.

All of the nastiness absent from most TV families ended up in the blood of a family named Ewing from Dallas, Texas. These folks are mean. Rotten. One of them, in fact, has never done anything nice in his life without an ulterior motive.

Name something base, the Ewings have it. Adultery? Plenty. Deceit? They're overstocked. Alcoholism, drug addiction? No problem.

These Ewings have failings. They exhibit these failings weekly on CBS' "Dallas."

Maybe I shouldn't admit it, but I love this show. I tune in every week to see what new nasty twist has complicated their lives, and I'm never disappointed.

Here's the basic layout of the show: Jock Ewing is the patriarch of a wealthy oil family that lives on a huge spread called South Fork, just outside of Dallas. When Ewing was a young man, he finagled his way into power by messing over his friend, Digger Barnes. The Barneses and the Ewings were ever-after mortal enemies.

Jock married the daughter of the owner of South Fork, and built a huge empire. Digger became a drunk, something of a ne'er-do-well. Jock had three sons. Digger had a son and a daughter. One of Jock's sons left the family, and was disowned by Jock. Another son is a nice guy, and the third son, J.R. (Larry Hagman), is one of the rottenest men ever to cross the little screen.

All of the Ewings live in the big Ewing ranch house, and here's some of what they do: J.R. is an infidel, among other things. His wife (Linda Grey), is a former Miss Texas who has taken to drink because of J.R.'s bad habits. In fact, she was so weary of J.R.'s neglect, she had an affair. With Digger's son, Cliff Barnes. Now that's a simple twist, on the face of it. But there's more. Cliff Barnes is the brother of Victoria Principal, who married Ewing's nice-guy son. Anyway, J.R. finds out about his wife's infidelity, but doesn't kick her out because she tells him she is pregnant and producing a male heir is very important to this family, even if it's not legitimate. Also living with the Ewings is Lucy, the daughter of the black-sheep son. Lucy has a complex life of her own. She once had a fling with the ranch hand, Ray, who was once Miss Principal's boyfriend. Then she fell in love with a kid who canceled the wedding because he was a homosexual. Lucy started popping pills. It's a mess. A wonderful mess. My wife tells me this is a soap opera, and that I'm hooked. Naah. I can quit any time. I just want to see tonight's episode. Will Sue-El len lose the baby?

'Life On Earth' TV Series Is The Talk Of British Audience

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Even in these days of television blockbusters like "Roots" and "Holocaust," it seems sheer bravery to tackle for the small screen a gigantic subject like "Life On Earth." All life, everywhere on earth, through two billion years.

That is just what David Attenborough has done.

His "Life On Earth" is the talk of the country. Britons watch the BBC-TV series on Tuesday, gossip about it all week, then watch repeats on Sunday to make sure they miss nothing.

Some of its scenes "have never been seen before by man, let alone filmed," Attenborough says. Each of its 13 parts has sequences of breathtaking beauty, like shots of the scales on a butterfly's wing or a kaleidoscope of brilliantly colored South American gorillas.

Warner Bros. helped finance the multi-million-dollar series, so an American showing is certain. Reiner Moritz productions, the third backer, is selling the series in Europe and the rest of the world.

The subject it tackles could hardly be more sweeping — how life began and how it evolved.

On the shores of Lake Superior Attenborough filmed traces of primitive life two billion years old. In the Grand Canyon in Arizona he found fossil tracks left by worms 550 million years ago.

From those faint beginnings, the "Life On Earth" team found and photographed existing creatures which illustrate every step of the evolutionary process from single-cell creatures to man.

Attenborough, brother of actor-director Sir Richard, was once program director for BBC-TV but left to go back to his old job of roaming the globe as a television naturalist.

To relate this "history of nature" he used the BBC's Natural History unit, a unique team noted for using the most advanced film and television technology.

"The ideas for the series took four to five years to jell," said "Life On Earth" organizer Derek Anderson in an interview. "And then we all worked on it full time for three years."

Two million dollars and 1.25 million feet of film later, Anderson's team had photographed as many as possible of the four million species of animals, birds, plants and fish which share this crowded globe with man.

"Four million different solutions," Attenborough says, "to the problem of staying alive."

"The cameramen are the real heroes," Anderson said. "The main ones were BBC staff cameramen," but a world-wide network of freelancers was used. "There were amazing difficulties filming some of these things."

Producer John Sparks recalled one instance when cameraman Martin Saunders was photographing a dozen giant African gorillas in the wild.

"He felt a hand on his arm," Sparks said. "He thought it was me. Then a big black hairy hand appeared over his shoulder."

"It was one of the gorillas who'd caught sight of his own reflection and figured it was another gorilla. He was trying to get his hand around to the front of the camera to pluck out the intruder."

Once the Attenborough team got out of one country just before a revolution broke out. In the Comoro Islands they gave up on a rare coelacanth — the famous "fossil fish" which until the 1920s was thought to have become extinct millions of years ago — and pulled out, leaving only one cameraman to pack up the gear.

By accident he heard a coelacanth had just been caught alive. He filmed it swimming in the sea, something never seen before.

Chance and incredible patience also caught pictures of a rare frog, a male giving birth by spitting a fully-formed froglet out of its mouth.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 7, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't try to make some drastic or dramatic change today. Be still for a little while and allow yourself to tune in on conditions about you. Thus you can make contact with operating forces and accept conditions as they actually are.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study every aspect of your existence and plan how best to improve it in the future. Do not get into arguments with others of power over some existing condition that you do not like.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't make radical changes at home, but improve conditions there instead. Be more practical and all turns out well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Important that you drive with care. Be careful of what you say and avoid trouble. Support those who can further your ambitions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good time for you provided you avoid heavy expenditures. Analyze your position in life and know where you are headed.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid making any radical changes in your lifestyle and this becomes a good period for you. Contact those whom you like and have a good time. Avoid newcomers for now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You feel restricted in some way but can do nothing about it now. Talk over important affairs with others, but take no action as yet. Enjoy social activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with friends, but don't try to change them to your liking. Being social is fine but stick to whatever is conservative. Avoid taking any regrets back home with you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be tactful in stating your ideas to bigwigs. Back bigwigs and gain their favor. Take it easy and relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into a promising new outlet and forget a problem you can do little about as yet. Making new contacts is wise. They can be most helpful in your advancement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Carry through with a responsibility you have assumed without making any radical changes. Do nothing that could harm the tranquility you now enjoy at home. Show you are loyal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Leave partnership affairs as is instead of making radical changes you have in mind, and be safe. Take part in a civic matter so you and others can be helped.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have work to do so postpone any trip you want to take and keep out of trouble, get much done. Forget any new temptations that could lead you in the wrong direction.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will benefit very much if taught early to complete whatever has once been started without deviating, especially at the wrong moment when success is about to happen. Teach to be conservative.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Community Classes Set One Legislator Urges Repeal Of Minimum Competency Test Law

Pitt County Community Schools and Pitt Technical Institute are co-sponsoring arts and crafts classes for adults at G. R. Whitfield School. Cake decorating and other classes will be offered. Registration will be held Tuesday, April 10, 7 p.m., in the Occupations Bldg. A fee of $5 will be charged. Class nights will depend on the desires of the participants.

The community school program will also offer other classes, such as a ladies' exercise program and two girls' dance classes.

The ladies' exercise program will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 5:30-7 p.m. The class will last eight weeks, with a $5 registration fee. Registration will be held Tuesday, April 10.

A kindergarten through third grade girls' dance class will be offered Tuesdays from 3:30-4:30 p.m. and last eight weeks. Registration will be held Thursday, April 12, with a $5 fee.

A fourth through sixth grade girls' dance class will be held on Thursdays from 3:30-4:30 p.m. Registration will be held Thursday, April 12, with a $5 registration fee. The class will last eight weeks.

For more information, contact Pitt Community Schools Program, 752-6106, extension 58.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — One legislator changed hats Thursday as she appeared as an educator at a hearing on the state's minimum competency test and called for repeal of the law that started the whole testing program.

Rep. Mary Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, told the Senate Education Committee the law should be repealed and the minimum competency test, which is given to high school juniors, replaced by an annual testing program for school children of all ages.

She said she was speaking as an educator, not as a legislator. "It doesn't test anything," she said. "It has no relationship to the national norms. It is not a remedy. It only detects failures when it's too late."

Criticism against the test, which was given for the first time this fall to the state's 80,000 high school juniors, was also leveled by the state vice president for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Kelly Alexander of Charlotte said the lower scores by minority students and those from low-income families proved a dual education system exists in North Carolina.

"It's like having an old house and painting the outside and making a few patches on the inside," he said. "Nothing has really changed in the secondary school system."

The 1977 General Assembly enacted the law that requires high school students to pass a minimum skills test before receiving a high school diploma.

Results of the first round of testing last fall showed that one out of six students failed either the reading or math portions of the test or both.

Dr. James Gallagher, chairman of the state Competency Test Commission, defended the test, saying it was a measure of practical skills every citizen should have. But it was not, as many charged, easier than the trial test given in the spring, he said.

"We took out items that didn't fit but we replaced them with items of the same level," he said.

Students did better on the fall test, he said, because they took it more seriously with the knowledge that it counted.

Gallagher said the test was still being analyzed by several national organizations to determine if it was biased against minority and low-income students. "But we think we have done the best job we can to eliminate untoward bias," he said. "That doesn't mean everybody will do well on it.

"We have a test that holds a mirror up to nature. We don't always like what we see. But that doesn't mean we have to break the mirror."

Dr. Wilson To Be Speaking At Men's Day

Dr. Miles Ernest Wilson, Jr., will be the guest speaker at Men's Day at White Oak Missionary Baptist Church in Grimesland. Services will be held Sunday, April 8, at 11 a.m.

Dr. Wilson is a 1965 graduate of G. R. Whitfield High School where he was class valedictorian. He received his medical degree from Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn., in 1973 and is currently employed as assistant chief in the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the Womack Army Medical Center in Fayetteville.

Dr. Wilson has had his work published in several medical journals and is a member of various medical and social organizations.

MORE VIEWERS THAN 12 and 7 COMBINED

The February Nielsen Ratings show 9 Alive News has more 6 PM viewers than Channel 12 and 7 combined. In the past year, according to Nielsen, our 6 PM audience has increased 42% and news ratings increased 45%.

On Friday nights as indicated in the above chart* 9 Alive News has more viewers than 12 and 7 combined. That's no accident. It is part of our plan to provide Eastern Carolina with the best news coverage possible.

9 Alive News, is #1 in Eastern Carolina.

Any way you cut it... it's a snap with a SNAPPER!

They're designed to get work done faster and to perform more functions than their names suggest. SNAPPER extra "High Vacuum" riders can broadcast, bag and vacuum cuttings, leaves, litter, even pine cones, during high moisture conditions.

Before you buy, compare the quality features of a SNAPPER. It's worth more because it does more and its price is competitive with other quality mowers.

Domestic Violence Bill Nearing Action In Senate

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill aimed at clarifying some of the legal points raised by domestic violence was scheduled for final consideration today by the Senate.

The bill was amended Thursday to limit the situations in which it would apply before it was given tentative approval. The amendments were introduced by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe.

One of the amendments would allow attorneys' fees and court costs in domestic disputes to be awarded only to married persons. Another would permit plaintiffs in situations involving domestic violence to claim property only if they could prove it belonged to them.

The Senate voted down two other amendments proposed by Swain.

One would have changed the legal definition of domestic violence. The definition in the bill includes placing a person in fear of serious bodily harm by threat of force.

Swain's amendment would have changed the wording to "unqualified" force.

He explained that qualified force is the threat of harm under a specific condition. For example, a husband would use qualified force if he threatened to beat his wife if she left him and took their children.

Swain said such qualified threats of violence "should be permissible by a man talking to his wife or girlfriend." The amendment was defeated 35-10.

Swain's final proposal would have amended the section on emergency assistance. He suggested the clause requiring a local law enforcement agency to respond to a domestic violence call as soon as possible include the qualification: "If there is reasonable cause to believe that assistance is needed."

"There are women who will just make a career of calling a law enforcement officer just to keep them company," he said in explaining the amendment. The amendment failed 31-14.

The bill, which has been reworked through two committee substitutes since it was introduced, makes domestic violence a separate category in the law for the first time and outlines law enforcement officers' responsibilities and the relief they may offer a battered spouse in such situations.

In other legislative action Thursday:

ABC
The House Alcoholic Beverage Commission gave a favorable report to a bill that would permit mixed drinks to be served at certain airport restaurants.

The bill would allow airport restaurants in an area that has not voted approval of mixed drinks, but which serves a city that has, to apply for a mixed-drink permit. The airport would also have to handle 150,000 passengers a year.

Currently, the bill would affect only the Greensboro-Winston-Salem-High Point Airport.

Alimony Cutoff
A House judiciary committee suggested further study on a bill that would allow an individual who is paying alimony to a former spouse to stop the payments if the former spouse is living with someone of the opposite sex.

Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, the sponsor of the bill, said it would allow a husband to end alimony payments to his wife if she were living with another man. "She's probably doing so because she knows if she gets married she'll lose her alimony," Lancaster said.

But several committee members said the bill could "lead to collusion and conniving" as persons tried to avoid being caught living with others or conversely, tried to catch their former spouses in such a situation. They advised Lancaster to rework the bill to meet such objections.

Bus Safety
A House panel set up by special resolution after the substantial increase in school bus related deaths this school year began work on school bus safety.

Committee members were told that 10 persons, eight of them children, have died in school bus related accidents so far this school year.

Louis Alexander, director of the safety division for the State Board of Education, said officials are considering various safety measures in an effort to prevent accidents.

These include installing additional mirrors on all buses and safety arms on buses that carry elementary school children. The arms would force the children to walk six feet in front of the buses in clear view of the driver.

Alexander urged the legislators to reject a bill that would require school bus drivers to have at least one year's driving experience, thus eliminating 16-year-olds.

Banks
The House Banking Committee unanimously approved a bill that savings and loan association lobbyists say will open the door for deferred payment home mortgages.

The deferred payment loans allow persons buying a house to start out with lower monthly payments that increase after several years.

Workshop On April 20

The Eastern Area Health Education Center and the East Carolina University Department of Community Health Education is sponsoring a workshop on Friday, April 20 on "Creative Parenting."

The session will be held on the ECU campus at the Belk Building, School of Allied Health and Social Professions on Charles Boulevard. Activities will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and conclude at 3:30 p.m.

The workshop will focus on several aspects of creative parenting, it was announced, including building self esteem and values clarification in the adult-child relationship, highlighted by the need for consistent discipline. It will also include the identification of community resources of broken families.

According to the sponsors, the workshop is directed toward health educators, school health nurses, teachers, and all other persons interested in health education.

Deadline for pre-registration is April 10. Interested persons should contact Dora Pasour at Eastern AHEC, 757-4600.

Revival Series Set Next Week

Revival services are being held at St. John F.W.B. Church, 315 Williams Street, Farmville, for the week of Monday through Friday, April 9-12. Services scheduled, all at 7:30 p.m., are:

- Monday, April 9 — Deacons and trustees, with Elder James Lindsay of Dildy Chapel.
- Tuesday, April 10 — Mothers and Home Mission, and Bishop Malachi Johnson, St. Rose Disciple Church of Wilson.
- Wednesday, April 11 — Flower Club and YPCL.
- Thursday, April 12 — Elder Tyron Turnage and his congregation, Senior Choir, No. 3 Choir, and Male Chorus.
- Friday, April 13 — Ushers, Sunday School Dept., and Youth Dept. of Patrick Chapel Church with Elder Willie Joyner.

The public is invited to the services.

Rev. Bailey To Speak In Revival

BETHEL — The Rev. James H. Bailey will be the guest preacher for revival services at the Bethel United Methodist Church Sunday through Wednesday.

Rev. Bailey is pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Greenville.

The congregational singing will begin each evening at 7:15 and the service at 7:30. There will be special music and a children's time each evening. A nursery will be provided. The public is invited, according to the pastor, the Rev. Ellis J. Bedsworth.

ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM
The Senior Choir of Sycamore Missionary Church, Rt. 5, Greenville, is giving their musician, Mrs. Alice Clemmons, an anniversary program Sunday at 6 p.m. The public is invited.

Open Meetings
A bill revising the state's open meetings law was approved by a Senate panel after constitutional questions were settled on an amendment that would charge a $10 fee to citizens for notification of specially-called meetings.

The bill, which has already been approved by the House, was unanimously approved by the Senate Judiciary III Committee after several amendments were adopted.

One of the issues was the requirement that the public pay a $10 fee for notification of special meetings. The news media, however, would be exempted.

The committee was told the legislature may enact laws that draw distinctions between classes of people without violating equal protection laws as long as the distinctions are not arbitrary.

Action League Rally On April 9

The Christian Action League of Pitt County announced the sponsorship of a countywide rally on April 9 here for citizens opposed to the liquor-by-the-drink issue.

The rally is scheduled for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion Building on St. Andrews Drive.

Among the agenda items will be a 20-minute film entitled, "Just One," produced by the N.C. Division of Health Services.

Speakers for the rally will include Ernest Harris, the Rev. David Hammond, Percy Cox, and the Rev. Van Dale Hudson, who will discuss proper voter registration, fact and fiction concerning liquor-by-the-drink, and the "Danger of Christian Apathy."

Frank Steinbeck Sr., chairman of the local Christian Action League, and co-chairmen Harris, Hammond and the Rev. Richard Kennedy invited concerned citizens to attend.

Will Speak To PWP Tonight

The Greenville chapter of PWP will have Steve Tacker, ECU professor of psychology, as its speaker Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Jarvis United Methodist Church.

Saturday the group will travel to Goldsboro for an anniversary celebration with the Goldsboro chapter. Sunday at 3 p.m. they will have a family get-together at the ice cream shop in Rivergate Shopping Center.

For further information about PWP, one may call 752-4309.

Viking Club To Meet Monday

The April meeting of the D. H. Conley Viking Club will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Conley High School Library.

Parents, faculty and other supporters of the school athletic program are urged to attend. The Club Board of Directors will meet at 7 p.m. same date and place.
