Budget OK'd, Redistricting Plan Dies

By STUART MORGAN
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville City Board of Education last night approved the budget proposals for the 1979-80 fiscal year and voted to rescind a controversial redistricting plan approved last month. In the four budget areas under current expenses, totaling $8,076,937, the following sums were approved: $2,458,635 for the local current expense fund; $4,789,708 for the state public school fund; and $828,594 for the federal grants fund. However, no figure has yet been obtained for the school food service fund. In the three areas under capital outlay, totaling $253,823, the following sums were approved: $133,500 for the acquisition of real estate property and the acquisition, construction, reconstruction, enlargement, renovation, or replacement of buildings and other structures for school purposes; $71,323 for the acquisition or replacement of furnishings or equipment; and $49,000 for the acquisition or replacement of school buses, activity buses, and other motor vehicles. On April 23, the total approved budget for the upcoming fiscal school year will be delivered to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners. During last night's meeting, the board also approved the proposed expenditures for the June 8 Bond funds, totaling $2,813,130.

Of that total, the following amounts will be allocated: $544,500 for the renovation and replacement of the heat and air conditioning system at E.B. Aycock Junior High School; $350,000 for the physical education and athletic fields; $838,300 for eight standard and six exploratory classrooms in the Greenville Middle School; $209,000 for an auto mechanics shop at J.H. Rose High School; and $871,330 for an auditorium at J.H. Rose

High School. The board also acknowledged the State Board of Education's approval of a federal grant awarded recently to the city of Greenville. That grant, to

Wichita Falls' Twister Toll Is Growing

COMPLEX DESTROYED — An apartment complex in Wichita Falls, Texas, shows the strength and force of a tornado that swept through the town Tuesday afternoon. Some reports of looting were received by city officials. (AP Laserphoto)

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Rescuers completed a search of about 80 percent of the tornado-devastated section of this North Texas community by early today as the death toll stood at 42 from the twister that left behind a pile of timber, steel and concrete.

Mayor Kenneth Hill had said Wednesday that "I wouldn't be surprised if we had 100 dead in the final count."

With increased reports of scattered looting despite patrols by National Guardsmen, the city council Wednesday night imposed a 7 p.m.-to-dawn curfew in the areas struck by the tornado and a 9 p.m.-to-dawn curfew in other areas of the city.

Two persons were arrested for looting Tuesday following the tornado but there were no arrests Wednesday, officials said.

The city council also imposed a price freeze on such items as medicines, food, candles, lanterns, bedding and hotel rooms. Hill said he had heard reports of some merchants selling gasoline for $1.50 a gallon.

Meanwhile, as tornado-whipped dust settled on both sides of the Texas-Oklahoma border, residents of three other devastated communities got a clear view of what happened when the tornadoes raked the area and left the two-state death toll at 57 dead.

Eleven persons were killed in nearby Vernon, one in Harrold and three in Lawton, Okla., across the Red River. As the stricken areas sought to recover, a new swarm of tornadoes struck Arkansas, Alabama, Missouri and Kentucky on Wednesday. There were no reports of deaths, but Missouri officials reported 16 persons injured while Arkansas officials said 44 were injured.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements toured the area by helicopter and estimated property damage at between $200 and $300 million. He said he expects federal disaster aid for the storm-raked area. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, returned to his hometown of Wichita Falls and said, "I've seen the damage of hurricanes, a tornado, of American bombers over Japan, but I never have seen one equal to this in terms of damage."

More than 800 persons were injured by the twisters that hit "Tornado Alley," most of them in Wichita Falls. Hospitals were filled to capacity as they treated about 500 persons. An additional 200 persons were treated for minor injuries at emergency aid stations.

An estimated 60 persons were hurt in each of the Vernon and Lawton, Okla., twisters. Power was restored Wednesday night to all of Wichita Falls, but there was a lack of drinking water and sewer plants were disabled.

Long caravans of pickup trucks, vans, and cars with rented trailers — stacked with anything salvageable — moved back and forth from the destroyed neighborhoods Wednesday.

The areas were almost empty of life Wednesday night. The only sounds were twisted signs and frames of homes swinging in a gritty wind and the whirling of two police helicopters using searchlights to probe for looters.

Two funeral homes had to use their garages as temporary morgues.

"We had no other place to put them. I never thought the garage would be used for this. I hope it won't be again," said Jerry Van Loh, the owner of Owens-Brumley Funeral Home, where the dozens of victims were taken.

On Wednesday, he watched numb families come to his garage throughout the day, visiting there as a last resort in their search for missing relatives. "I can't imagine what it would be like to search through a city for someone you love. That's something none of us should have to go through. They came here only as a last resort. They didn't want to, but they came," he said.

Nuke Plant Study Given Commission

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, noting that the world will be watching its work, has appointed an 11-member commission to study the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor.

Appointing members who include a resident of Middletown, Pa. — site of the stricken nuclear power plant — a college president, an environmentalist and several scientists, Carter said Wednesday:

"It is essential that we learn the causes of this accident and make sure that the safety of our citizens is never again endangered in this way.

"The eyes of the nation, and indeed of the entire world, will be on this commission."

The panel's work is expected to cost the government $1 million, according to Jack Watson, Carter's assistant who headed an administration task force on the accident, considered the worst in the history of commercial nuclear energy. Radiation — apparently in small amounts — was leaked over a period of several days, and officials feared more would be released before the reactor was cooled down.

Carter instructed the new commission to "find out what happened at Three Mile Island...assess how the accident could have been prevented...review how the government and others responded and...make recommendations to enable us to prevent any future nuclear accidents."

John G. Kemeny, president of Dartmouth College and a mathematician who worked on the nation's first atomic bomb, was named chairman.

Another member is Ann Trunk, a Middletown woman who stayed home with her six children during the problems at Three Mile Island.

Named to the panel, in addition to Kemeny and Mrs. Trunk, were: Gov. Bruce E. Babbitt of Arizona; Patrick E. Haggerty, retired president of Texas Instruments Inc.; Paul A. Marks, a Columbia University biochemist and physician; Cora B. Marrett, a University of Wisconsin sociology professor and Lloyd McBride, president of the United Steelworkers union.

Also, Harry C. McPherson Jr., who was an aide to President Lyndon B. Johnson; Russell Peterson, former chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality; Thomas Pigford, chairman of the University of California's nuclear engineering department, and Theodore B. Taylor, a Princeton University professor of aerospace and mechanical science who is a longtime advocate of nuclear safety.

INFANT SWIMMING LESSONS

I'm wondering if you could help me locate where swimming lessons for infants are taught. My child is seven months old. We do a lot of sailing and I am concerned for his safety. I feel that Hotline will be doing the community a service to inform local parents about the availability of swimming lessons for infants. D.K.

Hotline talked to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Martinez who operate the Raynez Swimming School and to Ray Scharf, operator of Ray Scharf Aquatics Inc.

Mrs. Inez Martinez, who said she has been teaching swimming to infants for the past 19 years, said registration for the lessons begins in late May, with lessons beginning June 1. She said that she or one of six other instructors will give individual instruction to each infant in a shallow heated pool. Ray Martinez explained that the course of instruction for each infant last a little more than two weeks and includes nine and one-half hours of lessons. Interested persons may call now, 756-2667, or during the summer, 756-4900. The Raynez School is located on County Road 1726 near the Cherry Oaks Subdivision.

Scharf said his infant classes will begin at the end of June or the beginning of July. He said the student should be at least three to four months old. A parent is required to be in the water with the baby during the lessons. "We usually have one instructor for every two or four parents and children. It's a very small student-teacher ratio," he said. Scharf said the courses consists of nine 30-minute lessons over a two-week period. He added that the lessons are taught at the Tar River Apartments swimming pool. Scharf said a brochure concerning the swimming school will be ready about the beginning of May. Interested persons may call 756-4893 after 6 p. m., he said.

Parks - Recreation Map Copy To Be Given Planning Board

The local Recreation and Parks Commission reviewed a map last night indicating existing and proposed recreation and parks areas here and voted to send a copy of the map to the Planning Commission for its reference.

The map, adopted over a year ago, shows six areas of Greenville where future recreation and parks sites have been discussed and approved.

Members of the Planning Commission, in attendance at the meeting, expressed concern regarding the placement of park areas to serve general vicinities and suggested that the city should buy more small areas throughout the city for neighborhood parks.

Commissioners explained to the Planning Board members that the consideration of numerous purchases for park sites involves a matter of budget limitations.

The six sites earmarked for future recreation and parks locations were chosen to provide facilities in each geographic area of the city and make the facilities available within a mile of each resident.

In other business, commissioners considered a request by John May Jr. on behalf of the 1969 graduating class of C. M. Eppes High School for permission to use the former school facility for a tenth anniversary gathering.

Maye requested use of the facility on a Saturday and Sunday and requested that the commission waive the 12 p.m. curfew restriction to allow use until 4 a.m. In addition, Maye asked that the class be able to use the facility at no charge.

Commissioners voted to waive the 12 p.m. curfew to 1 a.m. but denied the request to extend the curfew to 4 a.m. It was also decided that since the policy has been set to charge for the private use of the facility, it would not be possible to waive the total charge. Board members did agree to reduce the fee, which would have totaled $275 on a rate of $25 per hour for 11 hours, to $190 and require that a $85 deposit be made to cover damages. In the event no damages occur at the facility, the deposit will be refunded.

Recreation commissioners instructed Boyd Lee, executive director, to write a letter to the executive board of the Boys' Club expressing questions that have been asked of commission members regarding the new club site.

The annual Little League financial statement was accepted and approved by the commission.

Linkup Fails

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's Intercosmos program suffered its first failure today when equipment trouble prevented a Soviet-Bulgarian team of cosmonauts from docking their Soyuz spacecraft to the orbiting Salyut 6 space station, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The two unsuccessful spacemen aboard Soyuz 33, flight commander Nikolai Rukavishnikov, 46, of the Soviet Union, and engineer Georgi Ivanov, 38, Bulgaria's first cosmonaut, began preparations to return to Earth, Tass said.

The failure was particularly disappointing for the Soviet government because it occurred on Cosmonautics Day, the 18th anniversary of history's first manned space flight by the Russian Yuri Gagarin.

A Tass announcement said the linkup was cancelled because of "deviations from the regular mode of operation of the approach-correction power unit" aboard Soyuz 33 during the approach to the orbiting space station.

It was believed the rockets in the power unit did not function properly and the ship was unable to get close enough to Salyut 6 to perform the docking maneuver.

The flight was marred at the start by what Tass said was the shakiest blastoff in Soviet space history. Forty-mile winds buffeted the spacecraft during the liftoff Tuesday night from the Baikonur space center in Kazakhstan, and Soviet TV said the launch was nearly postponed.

Will Consider Gas In Metrics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Metric Board has announced it will hold public hearings May 23 on whether converting gasoline pumps to metric measurement would be a money-saving alternative to changes in pump calculating mechanisms. Such changes will be necessary when the price of gasoline reaches $1 a gallon.

The board, whose job is to coordinate the nation's voluntary changeover to metric measurements, cannot require a change, but it can encourage and assist such conversions.

Hubby Hides Money All Over House

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married 46 years. We live modestly and have never been big spenders. We have a comfortable income and bank account and my husband is an honest and decent man, but here is my problem:

He hides money all over the house. I find it when housecleaning.

Last month I found a surprising amount in the cellar. I asked him why. He never answered. I tried to get him to put that money in the bank because the bills were getting moldy, but he wouldn't do it. He just took it to hide somewhere else.

Today I found some more money under the sofa cushions, and I am feeling very depressed.

Please don't write me a personal letter as my husband gets the mail first since he is now retired. Thank you.

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: Get your husband to a doctor for a "routine" checkup as soon as possible. And be sure to tell the doctor (quietly in advance) what you have told me. Your husband needs help.

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter who will be 20 soon. Her boyfriend, with whom she has grown up, is in the Air Force and is stationed in Florida. He's asked her to marry him in June of 1980, but he wants her to come to Florida and share a two-bedroom apartment with him for two months.

Our daughter was taught that premarital sex was wrong. She says she honestly thinks she can live with this guy for two months without having sex with him. She insists she would never give in to him, and says she's made that clear to him.

I still maintain that when two people are in love, plan to marry and are thrown into a situation of that kind, they will find it impossible to resist the temptation of sex.

We've always been a church-going family and I can't understand her reasoning. She wants my blessing, but says if I don't give it to her, she'll go anyway and I can't stop her.

Am I old-fashioned? Or do you honestly believe they can live together for two months and not have sex?

DOUBTING MOTHER

DEAR DOUBTING: If they exercise the strictest kind of self-discipline, it's possible. However, a person who's opposed to premarital sex should not go in for premarital living together.

Reader Request: Seasoning Salt

By CECILY BROWNSTONE, Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: Several years ago I ran across a recipe for seasoning salt for soups and fish. I made it and used it with satisfaction. Now I want to make it again but cannot find my recipe. I hope you have one in your files that you can share with me. — SOUTHERN CHEF.

DEAR SOUTHERN CHEF: Here's a new recipe for seasoning salt. It is designed not only for soups and fish but also for meat, chicken, vegetables, salads, sauces, eggs. I'm frank to say it was modeled after one of the first and most popular commercial seasoning salts. The latter contains coarse salt — labeled "kosher" in some areas and "pickling" in others. So does our home-mixed seasoning salt. I make special reference to this because you may wonder why it is called for instead of regular salt. I've had a jar of the home seasoning mix in my kitchen for about a month and have enjoyed trying it in various dishes.

The celery seed in the home mix is used a great deal in making pickles and relishes, as I'm sure you know, and makes a real contribution to the seasoning salt. Onion powder and garlic powder are pungent additions but neither is used overpoweringly and both powders are additive-free. The oregano, thyme and bay leaves included are in their pure dried form. Pepper is there, too. You may be surprised at the inclusion of ground anise. Its licorice-like flavor is subtle rather than detectable; the seasoning salt benefits from it. — C.B.

THE EVERYTHING SEASONING SALT

- 1 cup coarse (kosher or pickling) salt
 - 2½ teaspoons celery seed
 - 1 teaspoon onion powder
 - ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
 - ½ teaspoon dried oregano, pulverized
 - ¼ teaspoon dried thyme, pulverized
 - ¼ teaspoon pulverized bay leaves
 - ¼ teaspoon ground pepper
 - ¼ teaspoon ground anise
- In a small bowl thoroughly stir together all the ingredients. Turn into a jar with a screw top and cover tightly. Use for soups, meats, chicken, fish, eggs, vegetables, salads. Makes

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Volunteers are like yachts. No matter where they are, they arouse your curiosity. Who are they? Where do they come from? Why are they here?

They could stay moored where it's safe and still justify their being, but they choose to cut through the rough waters, ride out storms and take chances. They have style. They're fiercely independent. If you have to ask how much they cost, you can't afford them.

Volunteers and yachts have a lot more in common these days. They're both a part of an aristocratic era that is disappearing from the American scene. They're both a luxury in a world that has become very practical.

Day by day, the number of volunteers decreases in this country as more and more of them equate their worth in terms of dollars and cents.

Three years ago I did a column on volunteers in an effort to point out that they don't contribute to our civilization. They ARE civilization — at least the only part worth talking about.

They are the only human beings on the face of this earth who reflect this nation's compassion, unselfishness, caring, patience, need and just plain loving one another. Their very presence transcends politics, religion, ethnic background, marital status, sexism, even smokers vs. non-smokers.

Maybe, like the yacht, the volunteer was a luxury. And luxuries are too often taken for granted.

One has to wonder. Did we, as a nation, remember to say to the volunteers, "Thank you for our symphony hall. Thank you for the six dialysis machines. Thank you for sitting up with a 16-year-old who overdosed and begged to wagon to transport a group of strangers to a ballgame. Thanks for knocking on doors in the rain. Thanks for hugging the winners of the Special Olympics. Thanks for pushing the wheelchair into the sun. Thanks for being." Did the media stand behind them when they needed a boost? Did the professionals make it a point to tell them they did a good job? Did the recipients of their time and talent ever express their gratitude? It frightens me, somehow, to imagine what the world will be like without them.

Effort To Help Slovik's Widow

DETROIT (AP) — A coalition of Polish-American leaders in the Detroit area is trying to raise at least $5,000 to help the widow of executed Army Pvt. Eddie Slovik with medical bills and living expenses until Congress approves benefits for her from her husband's insurance.

Slovik was the only American GI shot for desertion in World War II.

Antoinette Slovik, who was recently released from a hospital after undergoing treatment for a series of crippling ailments, is "at the end of her resources," said Roman Ulman, head of the coalition.

"A country that is great enough to be the arsenal of democracy... to come to the aid of countries that were our enemies during the war, should be a nation just enough to help one of the victims of that war," Ulman said.

Parking Space At A Premium

Parking spaces are greatly strained on the ECU campus and consequently the cost of parking on campus is going up.

Trustees approved increasing from $10 to $25 the parking fees for staff, faculty and students. Night stickers will go from $10 to $12, freshman stickers from $10 to $12 and second vehicle stickers from $2 to $12.

Rental space in a parking lot on Fifth Street will go from $90 to $108 per semester.

University officials see the increases bringing in $113,500 per year. The funds will be used for increased costs of providing parking facilities.

Parking continues to be a problem both on the campus and in adjoining areas. It is clear that there is no possibility of providing all the spaces which are needed on the campus proper. Parking decks have been considered, but these are expensive and still would not entirely alleviate the problem.

Residential streets around the campus fill up every morning as commuters look for places to leave their cars. Many students who live within several blocks of the campus simply leave their cars at home and walk.

The cost of owning and operating cars is soaring, given the increases in auto prices and gasoline. That fact may cut into the numbers of cars on and around the campus in the future, since economics may dictate that not every student can afford to operate a car.

In the meantime, it is doubtful that the increased parking fees will have much effect on the numbers of cars, although they will provide additional funds for operating and expanding the on-campus parking facilities.

Tornado Risk Greater To Unprepared

Tornados devastated areas of Texas and Oklahoma this week, leaving many dead and injured.

It is a time to remember that our area has seen its share of these treacherous storms. They come with little warning and quickly destroy property and injure people.

Planning ahead for the possibility of a tornado strike is always good policy. Determining the strongest part of a building, locating nearby ditches and developing escape routes from buildings could be helpful if a tornado strikes. Staying alert to tornado watches could help us be better prepared.

A Computer Crime Bill

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The ancient injunction "Thou Shalt Not Steal" is readily understood by most people.

You mustn't take away something which doesn't belong to you.

Modern technology is complicating that simple rule. Now it is possible to steal without going on the premises; without putting anybody into fear; without using a weapon; without carrying anything away.

Thus has been written a new legal proposal which is being sponsored in the General Assembly by State Senator Henson Barnes, D-Wayne. The title calls it, "An Act to Establish a New Article in Chapter 14, Criminal Law, To Control Computer-Related Crime."

In other words, it might remind people: Thou Shalt Not Access a Computer Without Authorization.

While computer technology is growing rapidly in North Carolina there have been no serious transgressions. Barnes wants to close that door before the theft, as it were.

Big Crime

Elsewhere, there have been some notable computer thefts. One widely reported netted a California computer expert $10 million in a transfer of bank funds to his account.

Another involved a bank official who skimmed just 50 cents from a number of accounts regularly. Not enough to cause client alarm when the bank statement arrived; but enough to build the thief a tidy nestegg of $750,000 before his activities were discovered.

"The old ideas of stealing as taking something of value and carrying it away just don't apply anymore when you talk about the computer age," Barnes said.

And that factor is complicated by a perverse side of human nature which can chuckle at the brilliance and audacity of a computer crime which dazzles the imagination to the degree that some forget — it is, after all, a crime that has been committed.

"Without going on the premises or putting anyone in fear or waving a weapon — with just the push of some buttons and the ringing of some bells — a crime has been committed," Barnes explains.

BILL NOBLITT

The proposed new criminal law establishes two basic classes of computer crime, just as they exist in present law: one a felony if the purpose is to defraud somebody, or to obtain property or services; the other, a misdemeanor, is simple accessing of a computer without authorization.

The second case might involve a student who secures test scores or alters his college grades by tampering with the computer.

Ransom

The new law would also take into consideration the possibility that in the future an individual or group might take advantage of the cost of computer systems and the value of those systems to the operating agencies. Some firms simply could not function without their computers. Could those computers be taken hostage for ransom? It is likely that an illegal access with a threat to wipe out the memory unless money were paid could occur. Such an extortion attempt would be a felony.

Barnes' proposal is complete with technical definitions of what makes up a computer system, embracing the programs, and related "software", and services such as time, data processing, and storage functions.

The most thorough definition is that offered for "access" since this will be the most critical part of the new law. Access means "to approach, instruct, communicate with, cause input, cause output, or otherwise make use of any resources of a computer, computer system, or computer network."

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Jes A L'il Demagoggin'

WASHINGTON — It was written of Alcibiades, a long time ago, that he "fell to demagoging" to promote the Sicilian War, but the art of demagoguery doubtless had been well refined before the Athenian general got his fleet together. Twenty-three hundred years later, the art goes on. We saw it as the White House Thursday night.

As an exercise in rabble-rousing, Mr. Carter's address merits a place in every textbook on forensics. Thus viewed, the speech was a thing of beauty. The president converted the wicked oil companies into a marvelously convenient punching bag and with great dexterity he

It was gorgeous. Sixteen times — 16 times! — he denounced the prospect of "windfall profits." These would not be merely "large" or "excessive" profits. These would be "huge and undeserved" profits — profits the companies would receive but not earn. Like Alcibiades, Mr. Carter was prepared to wage war. As surely as the sun will rise, the oil companies could be expected to fight to keep the profits which they have not earned. But fear not! Mr. Carter would fight back. He would protect us from the rapacious barons. "We must recover the unearned billions of dollars to ensure that you — the American people — are treated fairly."

"I will fight to get this tax passed," said Our Leader, "and tonight I appeal for your support. Please let your senators and representatives in Congress know that you support the windfall profits tax — and that you do not want the need to produce more energy to be turned into an excuse to cheat the public and to damage our nation. I am not going to put an undue burden on people who can hardly make ends meet as it is."

Other Editors Say An Asinine Tax

(Henderson Daily Dispatch)

There is no need for the extra penny State cigarette tax, as proposed by some health officials. The same report called for a program to educate young people, women and adults in general against the hazards of smoking.

Governor Hunt has said he would not favor the added one-cent excise, and that he thought the decision on smoking was for the individual himself to make.

There was no suggestion as to how and where the revenue from such a tax would be spent, other than for research. Money is already available for all practical studies and this added burden would only produce more cash for officials to toy with.

The federal government provides millions of dollars annually for cancer research. The American Cancer Society receives other millions each year from its fund campaigns. What would be produced from a one-cent cigarette tax here would not add greatly to the total. There are already adequate funds sufficient to be applied wisely.

The present two cents per pack levy yields about $20 million a year, but that goes into the State's general fund and is not earmarked for any specific purpose, as would be the case with the proposed extra tax on smokers, who in some instances are even now paying more in taxes than the base price of a pack of cigarettes.

Such an excise would have to be authorized by the Legislature, the same as all other taxes. At best, the governor could only recommend it, and that he says he will not do. Nor should he.

It would be paradoxical, in that the money would go for a purpose that would be aimed at destroying the State's greatest industry — including growers, manufacturers and handlers of tobacco. That's why the present cigarette tax is the smallest in the nation.

We can't see the lawmakers approving the proposed levy. They are familiar with the $1 billion income to growers alone.

Here the president's eyes glistened with tears of true compassion. How he loves the people! How fortunate we are to have so bold a leader in such a time of crisis!

Well, Alcibiades came to a bad end, and to judge from last weekend's reaction to the speech, so will the Hon. Jimmy. The people may not be fully informed on oil profits and production, but the people are not quite the dummies Mr. Carter takes them for. Nor is the United States Congress composed of spineless patsies unable to resist the blandishments of the petroleum lobby.

Let us put things in perspective. Yes, the oil companies collectively have been enjoying nice profits. Their return on investment came to 13.9 percent in 1977 and about 14.3 percent in 1978. This compares with a 16 percent return last year for all manufacturing industries put together; it compares with 1977 returns of 16.9 for tobacco products, 18.9 for soap and cosmetics, and 19.7 for drugs and medicines.

If Mr. Carter's program of phased decontrol should be accepted, the oil companies would take in an additional $17 billion in profits over the three years 1979-81. Under existing federal and state laws, 57 percent of those profits would be creamed off. The president's windfall profits

Friday Is Also 13th

By SAM HARTZ
WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans are superstitious about $2 bills. But some might even shun a $1 bill because it has 13 stars above the eagle's head, 13 arrows in one talon and an olive branch with 13 leaves in the other.

Such types are extreme triskaidekaphobes, people who fear the number 13. And they face a double whammy this year with Friday the 13th tomorrow and a second jar coming in July.

Friday furies? They're friggaphobics, after the Norse goddess Frigg. On Friday, Eve tempted Adam, the great Biblical flood started, the Temple of Solomon fell and Christ was crucified, to name origins.

On Friday the 13th, triskaidekaphobia and friggaphobia combine to create the worst problem. The economy slows as businessmen shun deals, restaurant dining declines and even shopping and marrying are affected.

Operators of ocean liners hold ships until at least 12:01 a.m. Saturday following a Friday the 13th. That's to calm the superstitious, not because the H.M.S. Friday, whose construction was started on Friday, set off on its maiden voyage on a Friday and was never heard of again.

For fear of plain 13, airlines omit Chair No. 13 and real estate men the 13th floor in hotels and skyscrapers. House numbers in France skip from 12 to 14.

Back in the 1950s, the town of French Lick Springs, Ind., tried to help the cause by ruling that all black cats had to wear bells on Friday the 13th.

The day has some historic credits, including: Friday, June 13, 1496 — Columbus first set foot on the North American continent; Friday, Oct. 13, 1792 — construction began on the White House; Friday, Sept. 13, 1814 — "The Star Spangled Banner" was written.

And on a timely note, on Friday, Aug. 13, 1943, gasoline rationing was cut from four to three gallons a coupon.

How to foil the whammy? Some methods used through the ages: Leave your hat on in elevators. Wink at white horses. Whistle while passing a

THE INSIDE REPORT

Iran And The Other Shoe

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NUVAK
TEHRAN — With the great unifying force behind the Iranian revolution having vanished with the toppled shah, architects of the new "Islamic Republic" face the gravest peril in the immediate future from Soviet intrigue, border wars and a disastrous economy, with the U.S. powerless on the sidelines.

Expulsion of the shah was the first shoe; the second has yet to drop.

"The Soviet Union pretends to be a friendly country," the minister of the interior told us, "but we are quite aware that they are trying to cause troubles with agents."

Amplifying that statement as he twisted prayer beads around his wrist, Ahmad Sadr said his government makes no charges but that "I personally think" Moscow is helping to exploit Iran's age-old security problems with the Turkoman, Baluchi, Kurdish and Arab minorities.

The present strongman of the revolution, Deputy Prime Minister Ibrahim Yazdi, told us he could not say "precisely" that the Soviets stirred up the trouble in the western Kurdish regions. But it is assumed by many here in a capital city rich in assumptions but poor in certitudes that when the Ayatollah Khomeini received ace Soviet diplomat Vladimir Vinogradov — the first ambassador admitted to his presence — Soviet fishing in Iran's troubled waters was one subject. But warnings will have no impact from a country without an effective armed force — the defense minister, air force chief and army chief of staff change with the regularity of Italian governments, and the revolutionary regime is hard put to field a healthy division or two.

A huge new edifice is nearing completion on the one-square-block Soviet embassy grounds here for housing even more Soviet "diplomats," commercial agents and the like (most of whom are undercover KGB operatives) with an obvious mission: weaken and further divide the forces of the revolution. With Iran's access to the Persian Gulf and its rich oil reserves, its switch out of the American orbit has made it a glittering target for Moscow.

There are no illusions in the interim government headed by mild-mannered, goateed Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan as to Soviet intentions. Extremist elements of the gun-toting fedayeen, whose numbers are now multiplying, may show few signs of pro-Soviet inclinations, but there is no doubt about their Marxist ideology. A second organized faction of irregulars, youthful "Mojahadeen" Islamic zealots, is anti-Soviet and anti-American with strong xenophobic tendencies.

The power-vacuum of Iran's turbulent transition from the shah's dictatorial rule to a constitutional "Islamic Republic" begs to be filled. The increasing number of trained Soviet agents, many of whom speak vernacular Farsi, is obviously intended by Moscow to fill in a way that will maximize Soviet and eliminate American influence.

Social Welfare Cut Avoided

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The typical taxpayer — $18,000 income, sole support of himself, his wife and two children — will have sent $4,814 to Washington in fiscal 1979 as his contribution to financing government.

Government will then disperse $1,494 to support income security, made up almost wholly of Social Security payments. National defense will take $1,076, interest on loans $496, and health $462.

In contrast, $49 will be spent on science, space and technology, by which the country hopes to improve productivity; $81 on energy, said to be an emergency problem; and $41 for administration of justice.

No matter what is claimed as the ethos of the country, or moral and philosophical rationale, these figures are the practical reality.

Compiled by the Tax Foundation, they show federal needs will consume 27 percent of the taxpayer's gross income. The numbers don't include the deficit; for that, add $408 to the typical taxpayer's debt.

The tab doesn't stop there, either. State income taxes, city income taxes, real estate taxes and sales taxes, all of which vary widely, push the total percentage to over 30 percent of gross income.

Growing especially fast is social welfare spending — Social Security, public employee retirement, unemployment compensation, health-medical plans, welfare, Medicaid, veterans benefits, education, housing.

Since 1960, the foundation estimates, expenditures on such programs by all levels of government has multiplied nearly seven times, from $52.3 billion to $362.3 billion in 1977.

The White House has pledged to restrain its spending. And a foundation survey found that as of mid-February, 37 legislatures will be considering tax reductions totaling $3.5 billion a year.

The great majority of state cuts would be in sales and personal income taxes. Almost $900 million is expected to be shaved from general sales taxes. Personal incomes tax reductions might total $2 billion.

Despite the turnabout, few confrontations are likely with the question that almost everyone avoids if possible: Should social services be reduced? Battle on the issue is avoided due to surpluses.

Unappreciated by many, most states are still projecting surpluses for fiscal 1979, the Tax Foundation found. What is occurring, therefore, is mainly the return to taxpayers of the surpluses they created.

Because of this, some social scholars maintain the battle has not yet been joined and the enemy has not yet been engaged in hand-to-hand combat.

Too often, they observe, the combatants are one and the same, complaining about the money spent but enjoying every last penny received.

40 Years Ago Today

April 12, 1939

The Board of Directors of the Greenville Merchants Association last night approved plans outlined in a proposal for a Federal Art Gallery for Greenville.

The members also discussed a proposal to close all local stores and other business houses for the opening baseball game to be held here by the Coastal Plain League on April 28. Although expressing a desire to cooperate with the baseball club and going on record as favoring employers giving a reasonable percentage of their employees the afternoon off so they can attend the game, it was decided that there would be a large number of persons who would not go to the game and would instead want to do some shopping.

For that reason, the board decided to keep the stores open, with a skeleton force, allowing a good number of their employees to attend the opening game.

Cannot Enjoy Her Hero Role

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Crystal Lusk says under the circumstances, she really can't enjoy her hero status.

The 11-year-old daughter of Jack Lusk, 44, was aboard her father's school bus Tuesday when he suffered a heart attack. The bus, with Lusk's foot pressing the accelerator, wandered across four lanes of traffic.

Crystal, one of two youngsters aboard the bus, managed to bring the vehicle to a halt by taking her father's foot off the pedal. She then steered the bus to a curb.

"It was parked pretty as you please," said Tom Redmond, another school bus driver who arrived at the scene moments after Crystal had accomplished the feat. "I know there's not a kid on my run that could have done it. It was pretty unbelievable."

Lusk was listed in serious condition.

Crystal said she was pretty frantic about her father, but wasn't that concerned with steering the bus.

"My friend was scared, though," she said.

"When the light turned green for him to cross the intersection, he started coughing and fell back in the seat," she said in describing the incident. "I saw his foot was on the gas pedal and pulled it off and sort of steered the bus over to the curb where it stopped."

Redmond and fellow bus driver er Teresa Byrd turned off the bus' ignition and began administering cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

Crystal, her straight brown hair pulled back from her face, said she was scared when her father started choking. But, she said, "I knew I had to do something."

"I don't know how I knew what to do. All I've ever driven is a tractor one time," she said.

"I just saw his foot on the pedal and knew I had to do something to stop the bus before it wrecked or we got hit."

Foes of superstition have organized to fight fear of 13. A group in London called the Thirteen Club made international news years ago with dinners at which thirteen were always present. Between courses, members smashed mirrors and spilled salt.

Serious Note

By Pearl Bailey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sounding more like a foreign diplomat than a singer, Pearl Bailey says not one American in 10 understands what is happening in the Middle East.

"They don't know that you can stand on the bank of the Jordan River and look up into the mouths of Israeli guns... The American people are in trouble if they don't know about the world and try to do something about it," the 61-year-old goodwill ambassador said at a Washington Press Club luncheon Wednesday.

tax would take half of the remaining 43 percent. What we are talking about, over a three-year period, is an additional $3.75 billion available for capital investment in new production.

To listen to Our Leader, you might believe the oil barons are expiring of apoplexy at the very idea of a windfall profits tax. Mr. Carter implies that the industry's sole interest lies in "ripping off" the consumer. But this is nonsense. So long as the Congress sits, the oil industry is absolutely subject to whatever tax and production policies the Congress wants to impose. At the American Petroleum Institute, the mood is a mood of philosophical acceptance. What incentives will work in the marketplace? The companies understandably take the view that every dollar that is taxed away is a dollar less for investment, but it is not up to them to draw the line.

Politicians will be politicians, and considering the political troubles he's having, maybe this mountebank performance was the best Mr. Carter could provide. Demagoguery it was; leadership it was not.

say there is no doubt that anti-American broadcasts from across the Soviet border, ignored by the State Department for months, were a major factor in linking anti-shahism to anti-Americanism. "Those broadcasts by themselves made the (Feb. 14) attack on the U.S. embassy inevitable," one Western ambassador told us.

The first test of whether the weak interim government can build a bridge to the mystical "Islamic Republic," greatly feared by the middle and upper classes, will come when Iran's 35 million people vote on the new constitution and its plan for some form of popular representation mixed with the discipline of the Koran. There is frightening impatience among Tehran's revolving bands of young revolutionaries for instant change to "popular" rule, and constant proselytizing in the villages by Tehran-based fedayeen.

"We are tired of these old men in the government," an American-educated youth told us. This reflects the demand for quick, massive change and explains the barely-controlled tension lying under artificial surface placidity. Law and order is in the hands of Khomeini's mushrooming "committees." With the shah's police force disintegrated, most drivers ignore red lights ("No police, no stop," a cab driver gleefully told us).

The tension seems certain to explode some time soon, creating more assets for Soviet trouble-making. One reason for that forecast is the danger of economic chaos, a subject for a future column.

Galifianakis Retains A Claim Kahn Sabotaging Deal

Lawyer To Defend Him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., has hired attorney Seymour Glazer, who once headed a team of Watergate investigators, to defend him against a perjury charge stemming from the Justice Department investigation of South Korean influence-buying in the United States.

Glazer, a former U.S. attorney, gained national attention when he directed one of the early investigations of the Watergate scandal.

Neither Galifianakis nor Glazer were available for comment.

A federal grand jury Tuesday indicted Galifianakis on a perjury charge resulting from his testimony before the House Ethics Committee last year. The grand jury also indicted Korean-born businessman Hanchoo C. Kim, accusing him of contempt of Congress.

Galifianakis was charged with denying under oath that he received $10,000 in cash from South Korean rice dealer Tong-sun Park. The indictment said he received the money through an aide to his unsuccessful 1972 senatorial campaign.

Galifianakis faces a maximum of five years in prison and a $2,000 fine if convicted.

A 50-year-old attorney from Durham, N.C., Galifianakis served in Congress from 1967 through 1972 when he was beaten by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in the Senate race.

An associate issued a statement for Galifianakis:

"I am deeply disturbed by the events which have transpired in Washington," the statement said. "I deeply regret any pain or embarrassment which this may cause my family, friends, supporters and colleagues.

"I hope all of you know that I treasure my years of public service to my state and to my country. Despite my personal inclinations, I have been advised by my attorney not to say anything further about this matter. This case is now before the courts. I hope you will respect my wishes and the instructions of my counsel and refrain from asking me anything further."

Park and Galifianakis aide Barbara Fletcher testified to the $10,000 contribution during the Ethics Committee hearings. Both said Park gave the donation to Miss Fletcher in $100 bills.

The indictment said Galifianakis asked Park for the contribution "on or about Nov. 1, 1972," and that Park gave the money to Miss Fletcher two days later.

AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angry Teamsters officials say President Carter's inflation adviser is encouraging a rank-and-file contract rejection by hailing the union's tentative agreement with the trucking industry as a victory for the president's elastic wage guidelines.

"This idiot out there is trying to shoot down our contract with his idiotic statements," union spokesman Bernard Henderson charged Wednesday after inflation adviser Alfred Kahn declared that the settlement meets Carter's 7 percent pay raise standard even though the union and industry estimated wage and benefit increases totaled more than 9 percent a year.

Kahn also said the increase in wages and fringe benefits in the new contract is "substantially less" on a percentage basis than in the last contract negotiated by the union.

That comment in particular threw Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons into a rage, said union spokesman Henderson.

It is understood that other administration officials also were alarmed by Kahn's statements, fearing a rank-and-file backlash that would send negotiators to the bargaining table once more in search of a settlement that, the next time around, would break the guidelines.

"It's as if he (Kahn) is deliberately trying to sabotage ratification," said Henderson, who called Kahn's comparisons between the new and old contracts "absolutely, totally incorrect."

A Kahn aide later acknowledged the new contract might provide more new money than the old pact.

Henderson said it will take about four to six weeks to complete a ratification vote.

Meanwhile, the union and major trucking firms prepared to resume normal operations today for the first time since April 1, when the two sides became locked in a nationwide work stoppage over the contract dispute.

Prosecutor Of Officials Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has picked John Nields, a former chief counsel to the House ethics committee, as head of the government's prosecution in the case of three former FBI officials accused of authorizing illegal break-ins.

Nields, 36, a Washington lawyer, was named special attorney in charge of the case Wednesday by Assistant Attorney General Philip B. Heymann. Nields replaces Barnett Skolnik, who has entered private practice. The defendants in the case are former Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III and two of his top aides, W. Mark Felt and Edward Miller. They are accused of authorizing the break-ins against the radical Weather Underground in the early 1970s.

Will Offer Resolution Of Comparable Quality

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Ken Spaulding, D-Durham, said he plans to file a resolution today calling on the legislature to provide comparable educational quality at all of the University of North Carolina institutions as a counter measure to a bill that could result in the closing of some of these campuses.

Spaulding said the legislature's plan to cut off the state's share of the cost of the University of North Carolina system needs all its resources.

Messer said Monday the UNC-Greensboro campus and North Carolina State University, which is also in Greensboro, would merge. The merger would create a new institution, but it would not be a new institution, he said. He said the merger would be a "realistic" way to save money in the system.

Spaulding said this morning the resolution also bears the names of the other two black House members, Reps. Henry Faye, D-Greenville, and Robert Davis, D-Henderson, and will be filed later in the session.

Spaulding said the resolution was a constructive attempt to trucking companies and 235,000 workers due to shortages of parts normally delivered by truck.

The 11-day shutdown, the longest in U.S. trucking history, had little impact on the economy except for the auto industry, forced to cut production and furlough nearly 100,000 workers due to shortages of parts normally delivered by truck.

Auto industry officials said they did not expect to be back to normal production until next week.

not mention any monetary figure for ensuring equal educational quality at all the UNC campuses.

"We purposely did not mention money," Spaulding said. "As an attorney I can well see that putting money values in the resolution for the General Assembly to act upon could negatively affect both HEW and UNC and a possible compromise and settlement of the issue."

The resolution calls on the General Assembly to commit itself to a long-range program of "institutional development, monitoring and funding to ensure the educational quality of the five historically black institutions" is comparable to the other 11 campuses in the system.

Car And Truck In Collision

A truck driven by Ronald Hubert Smith of Route 1, Bethel, and a car operated by Ruth Corbett Colman of 1506 Allen St. collided about 12:20 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Greene Street, causing an estimated $50 damage to the truck and $1,500 damage to the car.

Police said an estimated $350.50 damage resulted when 5,300 pounds of fertilizer contained in 100 pound bags fell from the truck as a result of the collisions.

Widespread Looting In Kampala After Its Fall

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Men, women and children ransacked house after house in Kampala today, and the invasion force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles occupying the Ugandan capital made no attempt to check the looting.

"There's nobody trying to stop them any more," said a European resident. "I can see them from my window carrying out everything — chairs, curtains, everything. I can't leave my home."

In the Tanzanian capital of Dar es Salaam, informants said officials of the new provisional government announced Wednesday might fly to Kampala today to try to restore order.

The Uganda National Liberation Front, a coalition of Ugandan exile groups in Tanzania, announced creation of the new government after Kampala fell to the invasion force that fought its way up through southwest Uganda. Yussufu K. Lule, the former head of Makerere University in Kampala and one of Africa's most respected educators, was named provisional president, defense minister and armed forces chief.

Meanwhile, President Idi Amin was broadcasting from a Radio Uganda transmitter in eastern Uganda, repeating in English and Swahili a long tirade against the invaders.

Alternately plaintive, bitter and defiant, he declared:

"I, Idi Amin Dada, would like to denounce the announcement that my government has been overthrown...."

"I am speaking as the president of the republic and the commander-in-chief of the armed forces. I am in full control of the Ugandan armed forces."

Province by province, he listed areas in the east, north and northeast he said he still controlled. He recited long lists of damage allegedly done by invaders and looters to farms, factories, homes, hospitals, utilities and "innocent people."

"Kampala is in flames because of enemy artillery given by Zionists and imperialists," he asserted. "They're taking property built up by people's sweat."

The invaders made no move to pursue the remnants of Amin's army. But it was generally assumed they would have to clear the vital supply routes from Kenya by taking Jinja, where Amin was reported to have established a headquarters 50 miles east of Kampala, and Tororo, 80 miles farther east near the border.

Checking Report Of 1974 Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department official says the government is looking into news accounts and State Department cables about a reported South African government effort in 1974 to funnel $11.5 million through a Swiss bank account to purchase The Washington Star.

The Justice Department official, who declined to be identified, said Wednesday there probably would be a decision shortly on whether to launch a formal investigation, which would be expected to focus on the activities of John McGoff, a conservative newspaper publisher from Michigan.

Once Eager To Die, Murderer Is Now Fighting The Electric Chair

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — One week after preparing for death as it neared by the hour, condemned murderer John Louis Evans III still lives in a cell near Alabama's electric chair. But it may be months or years before he has to face it again.

Evans has signed a federal court appeal that could postpone his electrocution indefinitely.

His lawyer, Reggie Stephens of Mobile, said Wednesday that Evans had signed a federal court appeal challenging the constitutionality of Alabama's death penalty law. The appeal was expected to be filed with the federal district court here today.

Stephens said Evans signed the court petition when he was visited on death row by Morris Dees, an attorney for the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery.

Center attorneys previously represented Evans, but recently took up an appeal filed by Evans' mother over her son's objections.

That appeal, which resulted in an eleventh-hour stay of the electrocution by U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist last Thursday night, presumably will be left moot by the appeal authorized by Evans himself.

The full Supreme Court was expected to rule Friday on whether Evans' mother, Betty Evans Dickson of Beaumont, Texas, had legal standing to intervene in her son's case.

An appeal by Evans challenging the legality of Alabama's death penalty law probably will take months and perhaps a year or more before reaching a final order.

If the challenge is successful, Evans would be removed from death row and avoid electrocution. If it is ultimately unsuccessful, he presumably would face another date with the electric chair sometime in the future.

Evans, sentenced to die for the murder of Mobile pawnbroker Edward Nassar, had taped farewell words to his family and downed beer from his "last supper" when he received word—six hours before he was to die last Thursday night—that the electrocution had been stayed.

The stay apparently changed Evans' view of his life and death.

He says he "didn't back down" as his scheduled electrocution neared. But after the execution was delayed by court order, he says, he decided to fight the death sentence "all the way."

Meanwhile, the Evans' case took a bizarre turn Wednesday when it was learned that a kidnapping threat had been made against the Rev. Kevin Duignan, a Roman Catholic priest who in recent weeks has become Evans' closest friend.

Duignan was provided with police protection last weekend, and sources said the security was ordered after a threat was made to abduct Duignan and hold him hostage to force the release of Evans. The apparent goal of the threat was to take Evans' life once he had been released into the hands of the abductors, the sources said.

The sources, who asked to remain unidentified, said law enforcement officers in "a northern state" received information about the threat and relayed word to Atmore police. The motive behind the reported plot wasn't clear, and it wasn't known how seriously law enforcement officers viewed the threat.

Killed 5 Children

FAIRMONT, N. C. (AP) — A fire apparently started by an exploding lawn mower killed five children and left the father with third degree burns Wednesday night, authorities said.

Detective H. C. Edwards of the Robeson County Sheriff's Department said the fire apparently erupted as the lawn mower on which Kary Jackson was working exploded, showering him and the living room of his five-room frame dwelling with burning gasoline.

The mother, Georgianna Jackson, 21, told investigators she ran out of the house, then tried to return to rescue the children but was blocked by flames and intense heat.

Jackson, 24, received emergency treatment at Southeastern General Hospital in Lumberton and Mrs. Jackson was treated for shock.

The fire, in the White Pond community south of Fairmont, was discovered by Highway Patrolman Hubert Covington. Firefighting units from Fairmont and Smyrna responded.

The victims were identified as Sandra McCrimmon, 5, Barbara Ann Jackson, 4, Betty Ann Jackson, also 4, Joyce Mary Jackson, 22 months, and Mary Ann Jackson, 3 months.

Postal Service Implementing New Size Standards July 15

Size standards for envelopes, cards and other pieces of mail will become effective July 15, the Postal Service announced recently following a Salt Lake City, Utah meeting of its Board of Governors.

The Postal Service's Governors also adopted a recommended seven cent surcharge for oversized and odd-shaped pieces of mail.

The new size standards were recommended by the Postal Rate Commission in April 1978, and adopted shortly after that by the Postal Service's Governors. It was stipulated that they would not become effective until after the spring of 1979, giving customers at least two years to prepare for the change and exhaust their supplies of non-conforming envelopes and cards.

The Governors directed that both the surcharge and new minimum size standards become effective on the same date.

This means that after July 15, pieces will be non-mailable if they are less than 3 1/2 inches high, five inches long, or seven thousandths of an inch thick.

Subject to the seven cent surcharge will be first-class mail weighing one ounce or less and single piece third class mail of two ounces or less that exceed any of these dimensions: 6 1/4 high; 11 1/2 long, or 1/4 inch thick.

Also subject to the surcharge are odd-shaped pieces within the weight units noted above. The acceptable size ratio for such pieces is: the length must be 1.3 times and 2.5 times the height.

There are two basic reasons for the new standards. The surcharge on oversized and odd-shaped pieces will reflect the extra cost of handling them, since they usually cannot be put through letter sorting machines.

The upcoming prohibition on smaller mailing pieces and flimsy cards is based on the fact that they can be trapped in other mail, tear and jam mail processing machinery, damaging other mail.

There are some exceptions to the minimum size prohibition. If a piece is more than one-fourth of an inch thick, it does not have to measure at least 3 1/2 inches high or five inches long.

Thicker pieces, such as film mailers, can be mechanically culled from the "river" of letter mail moving through a post office's facing and cancelling equipment. Also exempted from all but the minimum thickness standard are keys, identification cards and tags. Film cartridge envelopes, if lightweight, will be subject to the surcharge.

Spellers In Annual Bee

Students representing Grades four through eight of 11 schools participated in the 11th annual Pitt County Schools Spelling Bee.

The contest was held Tuesday at Ayden Middle School. The bee is conducted each year to give pupils the opportunity to demonstrate competitively their mastery of spelling skills, according to Mrs. Lillian D. Bradley, a co-chairman of the event.

Winners in the grade-level contests were as follows:

Grade four — Sandy Dixon, Ayden Elementary, first; Sharon Johnson, Sugg School, Farmville, second; Grade five — Lori McAllister, Whitfield School, Grimesland, first; Dana Tyndall, Ayden Middle, second; Grade six — Amy Tyer, Farmville Middle, first; Lori Elks, Grifton Elementary, second; Grade seven — Sonya Hyman, Farmville Middle, first; Clark Paramore, Chicod, second; Grade eight — Mike Boykin, Ayden Middle, first; Ray Taft, Whitfield School, second.

Part II was the contest among first-place winners of the grade contests. Ayden Middle School eighth grader, Mike Boykin, emerged countywide champion. Lori McAllister, Whitfield fifth grader was second; and Ayden Elementary fourth grader Sandy Dixon was third.

Other participants, all of whom were winners in their respective schools were Linsey Rouse, Nicole Beaman, Ed Daughtridge, Stephanie Tolar, Cheryl Wooten, Angel Longwell, Sheila Clark, Angela Oakley, and Missy Rose, Grade four.

Revonda Human, Crystal Harrell, Frank Mills, Tammy Williams, James McCollum, Herri Jones, Cherry Flake, Bridget Coburn and Karen James, Grade five.

Shonda Johnson, Sharon Jones, Monita Avery, Hope Clark, Karen Stencil and Monica Harris, Grade six.

Ragan Spain, Yvette Alleyne, Linwood Hall, Alisha McLawhorn, Jeffrey Gentry and Martha Rollins, Grade seven.

Diane Roach, Peggy Hayes, Lloyd Flanagan, Sheila Johnson, Gilda Harris and Gary Parisher.

Mrs. Lois Haddock of Ayden Middle welcomed the visiting schools. Remarks were made by Mrs. Kathryn C. Lewis, Pitt County School Asst. Superintendent.

Callers for the event were Mrs. Jane G. Huffman, math resource teacher for the Pitt Co. Schools and Mrs. Judy Williams, English teacher at Ayden-Grifton High School. Judges were Charles M. Dickens of Pitt Technical Institute and contest co-chairmen, Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Patsy S. James, County Schools Supervisors.

Teamsters Are Back At Work

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Most of North Carolina's Teamsters, idled since April 1 by the nationwide strike and a trucking industry lockout, returned to work today.

The Teamsters union and Trucking Management Inc., which bargains for more than 500 companies east of the Mississippi River, agreed late Tuesday on a new national contract.

Truck drivers said Wednesday they were ready to go back to work and were just awaiting word from Teamsters officials.

About 800 members of Teamsters Local 61 in Hickory returned to work today, a spokesman said.

Larry Miller, business agent for Charlotte Local 71, said two companies — CW Transport and Redball Motor Freight — resumed operations Wednesday.

A spokesman for Local 391 in Kernersville, the Carolinas' largest Teamsters local with more than 4,200 members, said most of that local's members were back at their jobs this morning.

Christopher Scott, director of research for Local 391, said Johnson Motor Lines is the only trucking company still on strike. But he said the picket lines at the company were ended today.

"They're (Johnson) holding out for the Carolinas Supplemental Agreement that is still being worked on in Washington," he said.

Scott said a meeting has been scheduled Saturday at the Benton Convention Center in Winston-Salem as part of the contract ratification process. He said the contract will be explained at the 10 a.m. meeting. He said more than 4,000 are expected to attend the meeting.

An additional meeting at the union hall in Kernersville has been set for 7 p.m. Saturday for those who can't attend the Saturday morning meeting.

The return to work today by striking Teamsters may be costly to the companies. Trucking officials said that if Teamsters work as little as one day a week, the companies must pay a full week's worth of health, welfare and pension benefits for each union member. Under terms of the new contract, that amounts to $90.50 a week per member, up $30 a week from the old contract.

Oil Field Is For Playing

CHESTERHILL, Ohio (AP) — If you can't drill on it, play on it.

That seems to be the thinking of an Islamic group, which is trying to turn a depleted oil field in southeast Ohio into a summer camp.

The Federation of Islamic Associations in The United States and Canada collected small oil royalties in the late 1960s from a few low-volume "stripper" wells on the 138-acre tract in southern Morgan County.

"There were some old oil wells there when we bought the property," in 1967, said Frank E. Rushten, federation treasurer, who lives in Logan, W.Va.

"And I understand there is some coal there. But we didn't buy it for that. We hope to develop the site for a camp for the children, and in fact (for) all young Moslems in this country."

Rushten said the federation envisions developing a summer camp on the site. "You know, a lake and trees and some buildings. But that takes a lot of money and so far we don't have it."

Until they get funds for the development, Rushten said the group likely will continue to rent camp sites as the need arises. He said the federation now rents a campsite between Detroit and Toledo.

Specializes In Aiding Phobias

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Agoraphobia — fear of being away from home or a familiar companion — is the most common phobia for which people seek help, says Dr. George C. Curtis, a psychiatry professor at the University of Michigan Medical Center. UM psychiatrists have launched new and expanded specialty clinic programs to treat people who suffer from all sorts of phobias, including fear of animals, high places, automobile or airplane travel, small enclosures, insects and crowds.

Youths Charged With Break-Ins

FARMVILLE — Two 16-year-olds have been charged by Farmville Police with breaking and entering and larceny and forging and uttering of three checks.

Charged are Ricky Lee Dixon, 16, and Edward Earl Lee, 16, both of Greenfield Heights subdivision near here.

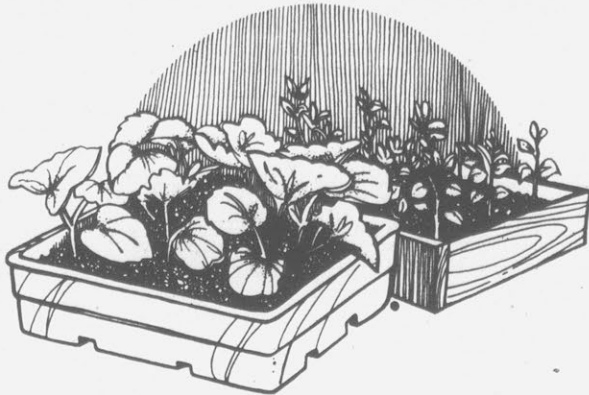

The two allegedly broke into the home of Bailey Speight in Greenfield Heights Mar. 27 and took his checkbook. Three checks charged to the two youths on them were later cashed at Marlboro Servicenter here.

The boys were released to the custody of their parents. Preliminary hearings are set for April 19 in Farmville District Court.

Committee Recommends State Buy A Helicopter

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Senate subcommittee known as the Chopper Committee because of its study of a $1.4 million helicopter requested by the Department of Commerce recommended Wednesday the department get the money for the aircraft.

Department of Commerce officials said they need the helicopter to show visiting corporate executives around potential industrial sites in North Carolina, and the insurance policies of many of these executives prohibit them from flying in single-engine aircraft.

Sen. William Redman, R-Iredell, a former military pilot, told the appropriations subcommittee many of the executives are prohibited from flying in single-engine fixed-wing craft, but the ban does not extend to helicopters.

Instead of buying a twin-engine model, Redman advised trading in the Department of Administration's two single-engine helicopters for more up-to-date craft. He said it would cost approximately $1 million for the two new single-engine helicopters if the old ones were traded in, and the new models would cost only $150 an hour to operate.

It will cost approximately $500 per hour to operate the twin-engine craft.

Sen. James Garrison, D-Stanly, urged the purchase of the twin-engine helicopter, saying it would best meet the Commerce Department's needs in its campaign to encourage industry to locate in the state.

In other legislative action Wednesday:

Gas Tax

Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, filed a bill in the House to change the method of levying tax on gasoline so that the state's share will increase with the climbing price of fuel.

It would make the tax a percentage of the wholesale price of gasoline. The tax on gasoline now is 9 1/4 cents per gallon. It would become 18 percent of the quarterly average wholesale price of motor fuel under the bill.

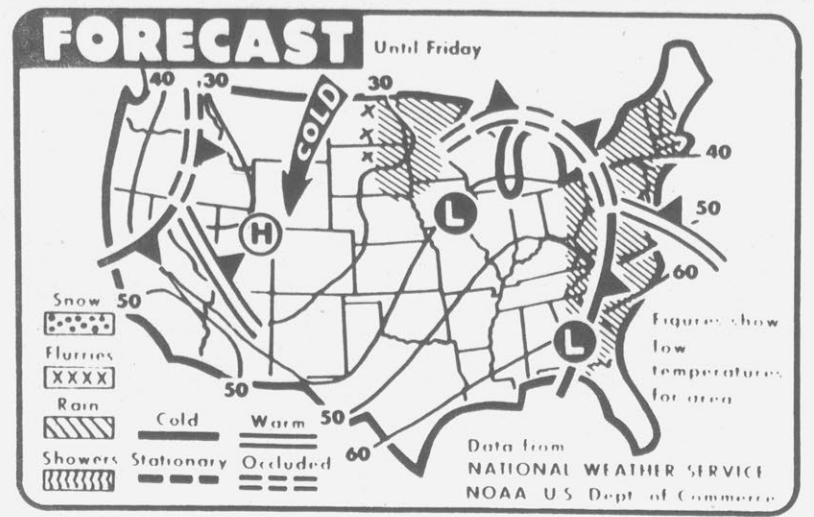

The wholesale price would be figured every three months by the Secretary of Revenue by averaging the gasoline prices of 10 different types of fuel, under the proposal.

The tax would be 18 percent of that average price and would be levied on gasoline sold at the pump for the next three months.

State revenues from the gasoline tax can increase under the current system only with increased gas consumption. Transportation officials fear that possible consumption decreases in the future will put the state's fund for highway repairs in jeopardy.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Friday morning for most of the East. Rain is also forecast for Minnesota and the eastern Dakotas. Cold weather is due for the northern Plains but most of the nation will be mild. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Rain spread into the North Carolina mountains during the night ahead of a slow moving but strong cold front. On the coast, high pressure was losing its grip.

As the cold front slowly moved eastward during the day, scattered showers and possibly a thundershower or two were expected to move with it.

Most of the showers were expected to be light and scattered, and they were more likely in the mountains than elsewhere.

High temperatures ranged from the mid 60s to low 70s across the state Wednesday and they were expected to range generally in the 70s today, with possibly a low 80 in the south-east.

The weather system that is now moving eastward may stall over North Carolina and bring showers for the Easter weekend. High temperatures will be mostly in the 60s and low 70s and lows should range from the 30s in the mountains to the 40s elsewhere.

Sunset

The House rejected the recommendation of the Governmental Evaluation Commission, or sunset commission, and approved a bill that would extend the life of the state Board of Watchmaking and Repair. The commission recommended letting the term of the board expire in July.

Opponents said approval of the bill would mean the end of the sunset commission. The watchmakers' board has become the focal point in the debate over the entire sunset process.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

School Boards

Helms filed a bill that would require city and county boards of education to pay defense fees and judgments against any school board member for acts performed in the course of their duties.

Helms said he filed the bill at the request of the attorney for his local board. The board has been involved in litigation involving the state's open meetings law. Helms said county commissioners and city coun-

EPA Vetoes Freeway Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has vetoed the state Transportation Board's plan for a 90-mile, $180-million freeway that would have stretched from Benson to Wilmington because of a potential threat of damage to wetlands.

However, federal officials stressed that a compromise could be reached and the freeway built.

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported in today's editions that state highway officials will meet in Atlanta Friday with EPA Regional Administrator John C. White to discuss the agency's ruling.

In a letter to state transportation officials, White said the proposed corridor was environmentally unsound. He said another route and design changes would have to be offered.

"We haven't stopped a road," White told the newspaper in a telephone interview. "We have changed the design in many areas."

He said North Carolina highway officials are "going to have to have a better way of bridging those wetlands. We simply don't have the kind of specificity we need to approve it. This doesn't mean the highway can't be built. We just feel very strongly now that the plan is not acceptable."

SINGSPIRATION

A singspiration will be held Saturday, April 14, 7:30 p.m., at Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church, featuring the "Believers" and "The Canaanland Express." The Rev. Lotis Joyner, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Merit Selection

A proposed constitutional amendment to establish a merit system of selecting judges was filed in the House by Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg. The bill is backed by Hunt, and would set up a nominating committee to select trial and appellate court judges, with the governor making the appointments.

At the end of their terms judges would face retention votes, in which they face no opposition and voters are simply asked if they want the incumbent judge to remain on the bench.

Aroma-Less Cigar Aired

CINCINNATI (AP) — To anyone who was ever trapped in an smoke-shrouded elevator with a cigar smoker, the nation's leading cigar manufacturer says — relax. The age of the sweet smel'ing stogie is upon us.

The Consolidated Cigar Co. unveiled the "aroma-less" cigar Wednesday and expects to market it nationwide within the year. It's available now only in Ohio.

Cigar sales have plummeted in recent years, from 8 billion in 1973 to 4 1/2 billion last year, a company official said. The industry conducted a survey to find out why.

"People said it's the aroma," said Consolidated President Alexander Brainard. "Women don't like it on the drapes, and men are becoming more responsive" to non-smokers' complaints.

Brainard said the non-smelly cigar, called "Flite," has a built-in filter that "captures chemicals that impart aroma." The cigar still produces a perfumed scent, but not the objectional "cigar smell."

"I don't expect a typical cigar smoker to find it (the new cigar) as enjoyable as his present cigar," he said, "because it's milder in taste."

Split Views Of Garwood

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — The fate of Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, a Vietnam prisoner of war who recently returned to the United States, has deeply divided Marines at Camp Lejeune.

Garwood will report to Camp Lejeune next month to await a decision on whether he will be tried on charges of desertion. Garwood, who said he was held against his will by North Vietnamese, spent 13 years in southeast Asia.

The disloyalty issue was particularly controversial among those questioned on the Marine base.

"Survival is always the first thing on your mind," said Sgt. Della Williamson of Dothan, Ala. "I don't know what I would have done in Garwood's place. When it comes down to patriotism, I'd deal with him harshly, but when it comes down to what the man went through, I just don't know."

Some weren't as sympathetic. "I think he should be burned" if he is found guilty, said Sgt. M.O. Bowman of Louisville, Ky.

One Marine thought Garwood should be tried before a jury of former POWs.

Every Marine questioned said he thought Garwood should be accorded full and fair treatment by the military legal system, and that justice should be served.

"He's still a Marine, and he should be treated as one," said Capt. William Talbot of Catonsville, Md. "I hope there are no incidents when he comes here next month."

Khomeini's Execution Total Goes Over 100

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's firing squads executed eight more of the shah's men in the provinces today, raising the confirmed total to 109 in two months of Islamic power.

Tehran's Kayhan newspaper reported that revolutionary gunmen rounded up 141 persons in Tehran and elsewhere over the past three days, including an ex-deputy prime minister, two senators, university professors and a Moslem clergyman.

More than 4,000 persons are believed held in a central Tehran prison on various charges leveled by Khomeini's revolutionary government, but the exact number here and in other jails around the country is not known.

The state radio said Mahmoud Moini, former chief of the SAVAK secret police in the holy city of Qom, was executed at 1 a.m. on charges of "corruption to the core, fighting against clergymen and warring with God and his emissaries."

The radio said a new revolutionary court in the northwestern city of Zanjan found army officer Abbas Kamali, 53, guilty at 4:28 a.m. of being "corrupt to the core" and had him executed immediately.

In the southwestern oil center of Ahwaz, four others were executed at 4:25 a.m. on the same charge, the radio said. They were the former mayor of the city of Boastan, Shaey Mazrae; Mazrae's brother, Hamid; Ali Reza Shojai, not further identified; and Hossein Rahimi, a military officer involved in energy work.

In the northwestern city of Ardebil, two police corporals were executed for killing antishah demonstrators, it was announced.

Eleven others were executed in Tehran Wednesday, the busiest day for the firing squads since Khomeini's forces swept to power Feb. 12 after a year-long revolution that drove Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi from Iran.

Three former policemen also went on trial Wednesday on charges of torture and murder. The trial began in Tehran's Qasr Prison but was shifted to a secret site because of too many spectators and witnesses, the state radio said.

The broadcast said 17 persons also were arrested and held for questioning at Qasr Prison for association with the shah's regime. They were said to include an army general, a former military school classmate of the shah and several army and police colonels.

More than 4,000 persons are believed held in Qasr Prison on various charges leveled by Khomeini's revolutionary government, but the exact number in Qasr and other jails around the country is not known.

The Iranian public generally appeared to approve the death sentences handed down so far.

The leftist Fedayeen guerrilla organization called the execution Saturday of former Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida a "service to humanity," the state radio said Wednesday.

And Khomeini, the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader of the revolution, said the Islamic regime is "respected by all those who have concern for humanity and human rights."

But U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, Amnesty International and a number of foreign governments have called for an end to the executions and secret trials in Iran.

The West German government added its voice Wednesday, appealing to Iran's revolutionary leaders to respect the rights of those on trial for supporting the shah.

It said that preservation of human rights was a declared goal of the Iranian revolution and "defendants must not be denied the international recognized right to a fair, public trial."

Player: Predictions Don't Count

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Defending champion Gary Player was pleased with his preparation entering today's opening round of the 43rd Masters Golf Championship, but he also is realistic.

"I've been playing well in practice rounds," the diminutive South African said Wednesday. "But shadow boxing is not the answer here."

Player, only foreigner ever to win this prestigious invitational event, is well down the list of favorites, with oddsmakers establishing 1977 Masters champion and this year's leading money-winner, Tom Watson, as the golfer to beat.

"Watson is playing well, and deserves to be the favorite," Player said. "But predictions are not the thing that matters. It's the score. There are too many good players to predict that I will win. All I can do is my best."

The 5-foot-7, 150-pounder has played in only three tournaments in the last five months, spending most of his time on his 4,000-acre thoroughbred horse farm in South Africa. He failed to make the cut at the Tournament of Champions and the Heritage Classic, but stormed to a second-place finish in the Greater Greensboro Open last week.

Player predicted low scores this week over the picturesque 7,040-yard, par 72 Augusta National Golf Club course, but only if the weather is ideal, and the early forecast called for a 60 percent chance of showers today.

The 29-year-old Watson used his Masters triumph two years ago as a springboard to the top of this game, claiming 10 of his 12 tour titles in the last two seasons, both times ranking No. 1 on the money list. He won the Heritage two weeks ago by 5 shots in a tuneup for the Masters, which has an international field of 72 players.

Jack Nicklaus, who holds a record five Masters titles among his 16 major championships, finds himself in a strange situation — that of not being favored.

The tournament was scheduled for a 9 a.m. EST start, with veteran Gene Littler and Leonard Thompson forming the first of 36 twosomes.

Most of the opening round attention was expected to center on Watson and his playing partner, the long-hitting Spaniard, Seve Ballesteros, who finished 18th here last year.

Pearson, Woods To End Pact

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Stock car racing great David Pearson and the famed Wood Brothers Racing Team announced late Wednesday that they have mutually agreed to end their long association.

According to a release made here, the Wood brothers, of Stuart, Va., said there were no hard feelings and that the decision to break up the team was not based on any one concern or problem.

Pearson, second only to Richard Petty in victories on the Grand National circuit, was the victim of an embarrassing incident which knocked him out of chance for victory in last Sunday's Rebel 500 at Darlington, S.C.

Pearson drove away from his pit area while his crew was still attempting to change left side tires. About 100 yards down the road both wheels flew off the car damaging it heavily. The crippled car had to be dragged off between two tow trucks.

The Wood brothers also announced that they had contacted Neil Bonnett about driving the car in the circuit's next two races, next week in the Virginia 500 at Martinsville, Va., and the May 6 Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala. Bonnett agreed, according to the Wood brothers.

Bonnett recently has been driving only part time since his team folded earlier this season. However he had announced earlier a commitment to run for someone else in the Winston 500.

The 44-year-old Pearson did not specify what his future plans would be. Friends, however, ruled out his long-rumored retirement.

Pearson has won 103 Grand National events in his 20-year career, exceeded only by Petty's 186 victories.

Sparky Lyle sure hates spring training — you could tell by his performance this year.

"I wasn't digging it too much," says the 1977 Cy Young Award winner, who had a typically poor exhibition season.

During the regular season, however, it's usually a different ball game for him — like Wednesday night, during the Rangers' 4-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Making his first appearance of 1979, the star reliever made it a good one with two spotless innings in back of Steve Comer's sparkling one-hit pitching. "I couldn't do a thing in the bullpen tonight," said Lyle, "but something happened between the bullpen and the mound."

Lyle, acquired from the New York Yankees in an off-season trade, helped support a Texas shutout string that has now reached 23 innings. "They had their best pitching working," said California's Bobby Bonds, hitless in four tries. "I look back and think about just how good the Rangers would have been last year if they made an effort to get genuine relief pitching like Lyle and Jim Kern."

Orlons 5, Yankees 5
Rick Dempsey's bases-loaded single in the 10th led Baltimore over New York. Baltimore, which had tied the game at 5-5 with a three-run ninth, loaded the bases in the 10th off Yankees reliever Rich Gossage on a single by Ken Singleton and two walks.

Angels 11, Twins 2
Nolan Ryan fired a three-hitter, striking out 10, and Don Baylor knocked in five runs to lead California over Minnesota. Loser Dave Goltz departed in the seventh inning when the Angels rallied for six runs, two on a double by Baylor, to put the game out of reach.

Royals 10, Tigers 3
Shortstop Alan Trammell's error on a potential double-play ball let two runs score and Fred Patek, George Brett and Hal McRae lashed consecutive doubles as Kansas City rallied for seven runs in the eighth inning to beat Detroit.

Patek's two-run double capped a 4-for-4 night for the Kansas City shortstop.

A's 14, Mariners 7
Dave Revering scored three runs and accounted for two more with his first homer of the season as Oakland beat Seattle.

The A's broke a 7-7 tie in a four-run seventh keyed by Jeff Newman's two-run single. Dwayne Murphy singled in the first run and Miguel Dilone drew a walk to force in the fourth.

Jim Todd, a former Mariner, got the victory in relief. The loser was Rick Honeycutt.

Schmidt Makes Pittsburgh Look Bad In Its Walking Strategy

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

National League pitchers are not likely to walk Greg Luzinski intentionally to get to Mike Schmidt much more this season.

The Pittsburgh Pirates tried it twice Wednesday night — and both times the strategy backfired.

The Philadelphia Phillies' captain singled home a run in the first inning. Then Schmidt delivered another run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

And to cap his big game, Schmidt — batting with the bases empty in the seventh — drove a Bert Blyleven fast ball over the 371-foot sign in left-centerfield for a tie-breaking homer that gave the Phillies a 5-4 victory.

Another player swinging well for the Phillies is Garry Madrox. He stroked three hits, giving him six in seven at-bats, drove in a run and scored one. In other NL games, the Houston Astros trounced the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-3, the Cincinnati Reds whipped the Atlanta Braves 9-5, the San Diego Padres downed the San Francisco Giants 4-1, the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 3-2 in 11 innings.

The Chicago at St. Louis game was rained out. Steve Carlton pitched a complete game for the Phils, scattering nine hits, including Phil Garner's two-run homer, for his eighth victory in nine decisions over Pittsburgh since 1977.

Astros 10, Dodgers 3
Houston's Ken Forsch, in his first start since his no-hitter against Atlanta last week, had his chance for a second straight no-hitter erased quickly, as Dave Lopes lined his third pitch of the game for a single. Forsch allowed nine more hits, but not many were damaging, and he was the beneficiary of the Astros' biggest offensive outburst of the young season as Houston won its fifth game in six starts.

Cesar Cedeno supplied the big blow for the Astros, a three-run homer in the fifth inning that broke a 3-3 tie.

Reds 9, Braves 5
Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion, weakened by chicken pox shortly before the end of spring training, apparently has regained his strength. Concepcion unleashed his power against Atlanta, connecting for a grand slam homer, a 380-foot drive over the centerfield fence in the fifth inning as the Reds handed the Braves their fifth loss in six games. Ray Knight, who had three hits, and George Foster each had two RBI for the Reds, while Barry Bonnell and Dale Murphy homered for the Braves.

Padres 4, Giants 1
Randy Jones, shelled in his 1979 debut last week, and Rolfe Fingers combined on a five-hitter, pitching the Padres past the Giants.

Dave Winfield stroked three hits for San Diego, and Fernando Gonzalez drove in two runs with a single and a double.

Expos 3, Mets 2
Tony Perez' 11th inning homer off Skip Locwood gave the Expos their third extra-inning victory in three games. Montreal has played five games, all of which have been decided by one run, and won four.

The game was enlivened by a bench-clearing brawl in the ninth inning. The fisticuffs started when Montreal's Gary Carter tried to score from first on pitcher Pete Falcone's wild throw to first on a grounder.

Rams Win 12th Game

LITTLEFIELD — Unbeaten Greene Central rolled along yesterday, taking a 10-6 softball victory over Ayden-Grifton.

The victory was the 12th straight for the Lady Rams, while Ayden-Grifton fell off to 3-5 on the year.

Greene Central pushed over one in the top of the first, but Ayden-Grifton went ahead with two in the bottom of the inning.

Greene Central then broke it open with seven in the top of the second. The Lady Rams added one each in the third and sixth while the Chargers got one in the second, two in the fifth and one more in the sixth.

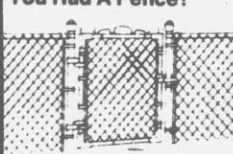

Lynn Shackelford got the victory for the Rams. Melody Ham, Cindy Creech, Sara Taylor and Gail Jones each had two hits for the Rams, while Ann Strong led Ayden-Grifton with two.

Joan Albritton had a solo homer for Ayden-Grifton in the sixth.

Greene Central returns to action Wednesday, facing Beddingfield, while Ayden-Grifton travels to Farmville Central next Thursday.

IT'S HARD NOT to like Lefty Driesell. You may watch him on TV and dislike his antics, the way he coaches and even his players. But on a one-to-one basis, or speaking to a group such as the Greenville Sports Club Saturday night, the drawling left-hander can really turn on the country-boy charm.

It's easy to see how he gets so close to his recruiting prospects because his easy-going manner makes you feel like you've been good friends for a long time. That, and his sense of humor, are usually not evident during Maryland basketball games.

Driesell spoke at the Sports Club's annual spring banquet at the Greenville Country Club on a wide array of topics and he managed to inject some of that humor into most of them. One of his favorite subjects was North Carolina coach Dean Smith and he poked fun at his Tar Heel counterpart at every opportunity.

"I don't know what Dean wants Ralph Sampson (a top-high school center) for. He's already got three centers in (Rich) Yonakor, (Jeff) Wolf and (Pete) Budko. But Dean's slick. He's already signed two of the top players in the country."

The Atlantic Coast Conference was another favorite topic. The Terrapin coach said he wouldn't mind getting out of the ACC and that the league's lack of success in post-season play this year was of no concern to him.

"There's only one school in the ACC that I'm worried about and that's Maryland. I don't care what the rest of them do. In fact, if the truth be known, I was pulling against them."

Somebody asked Driesell about something he was quoted as saying before the ACC tournament in Landover, Md. several years ago. He was supposed to have said the North Carolina fans will have to buy some new clothes before they come up North.

"Yeah, I probably did say that. I'm liable to say anything. I don't care what I say. If they fire me tomorrow, I could care less. I don't give a damn, I say what I want to say. I'm not like Dean. Dean weighs everything he says very carefully. He's a master politician."

Driesell was serious for a moment when he talked about the freshman rule and high school all-star games, however. "I'm opposed to them," he said of the games. "I think those young people should be in class studying. And somebody's making money on those things."

"It makes it difficult for coaches to coach those guys," Driesell said the young players' heads swell when they make the all-star circuit and it makes it hard for them to accept being benched as freshmen. Many end up transferring."

"I don't like the freshman rule. If you make freshmen ineligible and put a guy on the junior varsity, he may average 24 points and be happy. Then, if he only plays eight minutes a game as a sophomore, he still has next year. If he still doesn't play as a junior, it's too late to transfer."

Roberts Has Tough Day

North Carolina baseball coach Mike Roberts will probably be happy if he never sees Greenville again. He was not treated in a very hospitable fashion when his Tar Heels played East Carolina Monday night.

After his pitcher walked four Pirate batters in the third and gave up two runs, Roberts went out to talk with plate umpire Junior Creech about the strike zone. After a few moments, Creech gave the sign that he was out of the game.

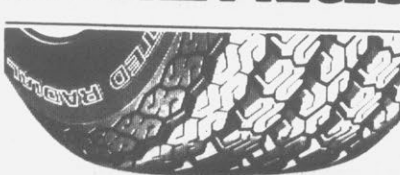

That brought the ECU crowd to life and Roberts milled around for awhile before leaving the park and taking a seat on top of the UNC team bus, which was parked outside the fence behind third base.

The Pirate fans let him know they did not appreciate that and the umpires talked to him a couple of times, apparently warning him about giving signals from his perch.

Not only did Roberts have to endure that, but he stayed on top of the bus for the remaining 12 innings of the 15-frame marathon wrapped in a blanket as a chilly wind blew. And to top it off, after his team went ahead in the top of the 15th on a Roy Clark home run, the Pirates scored two runs in the bottom of the frame for a 7-6 victory.

Mixed Feelings For Williamston Teams

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WILLIAMSTON — The spring sports season has found mixed emotions at Williamston High School, yet nearly all of the coaches feel that their teams could be doing better.

Baseball

Coach Dink Mills' baseball team has gotten off to a slow start, winning only three of its first ten games.

"We only have two starters back from last year's team, Chuck Rogerson and Randy Ellis, both outfielders," Mills pointed out. "We did have our number two pitcher back from last year, Keith Clark, but he's been bothered with arm troubles and hasn't been effective. We've been playing him at shortstop."

There is only one senior, Rogerson, on the team, and although Mills doesn't like to admit it, this is a rebuilding year.

"Normally, I never carry more than two sophomores on the varsity roster," he said. "This year, I'm having to start four sophomores."

Mills feels that all three phases of the game, hitting, pitching and defense, show a lot of room for improvement. "Our team batting is under .200, we've averaged four or five errors a ball game, and our pitching is just so young."

"I really think that we're going to get better, but it's not going to be good enough to be in the race for the title this year."

Mills lists Ellis as his most consistent player, while Alan Peaks, who played some last year and is the starting second baseman this year, along with Rogerson, sophomore McKinley Williams (first base) and pitcher Steve Wilhelm are the teams top performers.

"If Clark gets back to his form of a year ago when he was 6-2, we'd be helped a lot."

Mills sees Roanoke and Roanoke Rapids as the teams to beat in the conference.

Softball

For Coach Peggy Taylor, the softball season so far has been "so-so."

"We got beaten badly by Plymouth, and I feel bad about that. We kind of let things get out of hand in that game. We're still making fundamental errors and we have a long way to go."

While the team has a winning record at this point in the season, Taylor feels that the Tigerettes are a young team, hurt by graduation last year. "We have newcomers in six of the ten positions. Our whole outfield is inexperienced and this has hurt us a lot. I think once we get seasoned, we'll be all right."

The hitting has been "kind of weak" so far, and Taylor blames this on inexperience.

Top players include JoAnna Lilley, an all-conference first baseman; Sharon Speller, moved from the outfield to shortstop; third baseman Jan Rogerson; outfielder Betty Davis and catcher Ginger Edwards, called the most improved by Taylor.

Plymouth appears to be the team to beat, Taylor feels, as far as the conference race is concerned.

Tennis

Williamston's tennis team has been "pretty fair" according to Coach Andrew Mason, but he admits that there is probably not going to be a race for first place in the Northeastern.

"Roanoke Rapids has the best team by far," Mason said. "The race is for second place." Mason feels that the Tigers have a shot at finishing second, but will have to perform at their best to do it.

The Tigers are using an eight-man team most of the time, led by three seniors. He lists his top players are Tim Rogers, Ben Selby, Kent Perry, and Duke Douglas.

"I'm hoping that one or two of them might be able to score well in the sectionals this year," Mason added.

Track

William Matthews handles both the boys and the girls track teams, and admits that neither has come up to his expectations so far.

The boys are 4-3 so far and Matthews said that he was expecting to be better than that at this point in the season.

"I was really looking for a second place finish in the conference meet this year, but now I think it will be tough for us. We still have a chance, but it's going to be close."

Cubs Take 5th Victory

Rose High School's "B" baseball team won its fifth straight game yesterday, downing Greene Central, 11-2.

Scott Galloway got the win for the Rampant Cubs. Jeff Wilson led the Rose hitting with two, including a homer and a double. Mark Douglas, Kenny Barnes and Mitchell Brann also had two each. Emmett Walsh had a home run for Rose.

Vincent Peele is the top performer in the sprints, showing improved times as each week goes by. Victor Rodgers has done 6-3 in the high jump and gone over 40-feet in the triple jump, while Terry Gainer has performed well in the 880 and mile races.

Among the girls, Matthews lists Michelle Price as the top performer, going over 16-4 in the long jump and over 30 feet in the triple jump. She also runs the 100 and 220 and has done well there. Beverly Woolard has high jumped over 5 feet.

"On the whole, I've been disappointed in the girls," Matthews said. "I thought they would do better than they have. But a lot of that is probably due to the fact that we have only three other teams in the conference, and the layoff between meets hurts us."

Lady Jaguars Top Track Meet

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's girls track team picked up first place in a five-way meet held on the Lady Jaguars' track yesterday.

Farmville finished the day with 81 points, well ahead of second place Beddingfield, which had 65½. Conley finished third with 47½, followed by Southwest Edgecombe with 45 and Greene Central with 14.

Farmville won five individual events, and had two double winners. Brenda Reid won the 880 and the high jump, while Sandra Dupree took the 220 and 110 hurdles events.

Beddingfield won three individual events and a relay, while Southwest also took three. Conley won only two individual events, but added two of the relays.

Summary:

Long jump: J. Lang (FC) 16-5½; Harper

(B) 16-5½; Jenkins (SW) 15-7¼; Green (C) 15-4¼; Harris (FC) 15-1. Triple jump: Jenkins (SW) 32-9; Harper (B) 32-9; Harris (FC) 32-4¼; R. Lang (FC) 29-10½; Chapman (C) 27-7. High jump: B. That Quiet Black Republican In Carter Country

By PEGGY WALSH
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A black Republican in Jimmy Carter's home state is quietly attempting to persuade the nation's minorities that the Grand Old Party is not just for the wealthy and the white.

Bob Wright, a tall, soft-spoken city councilman in this west Georgia city, is part of Wright, McNeil and Associates, a consulting firm that emphasizes increased involvement of black and white politicians in the black community.

The firm is under contract with the Republican National Committee to "rejuvenate" the Republican party and its image with minorities across the nation.

"Republicans have a negative image," said Wright, 42, who until 1970 was a registered Democrat. "They are perceived as a party that is insensitive to blacks, poor and minorities."

Wright's firm, with a staff of 11 operating offices here and in Washington, encourages Republican lawmakers, black and white, to support legislation that will have an impact on black and poor communities.

However, the problem is not only legislation, Wright said in an interview. It also is the concept that Republicans represent the wealthy and Democrats the poor.

"Republicans have introduced some meaningful programs in the past, but either through lack of communication or lack of something, many are not perceived or believed to be Republican programs," he said, citing as an example the federal Office of Minority Business Enterprise, created during the Nixon administration.

Wright's firm also works with Republican candidates, defining minority issues and designing campaigns to address those issues.

This is the third time Wright and McNeil has contracted with the RNC. Although Wright declined to discuss monetary aspects, previous contracts were reported to be for $250,000 and $500,000.

This year, Wright and the Republicans are looking toward the 1980 presidential elections and a chance to unseat Georgian Jimmy Carter.

Wright said the GOP is working on the local, state and national levels to better its percentage of blacks votes in 1980.

In 1976, GOP presidential candidate Gerald Ford received only 7 percent of the black vote nationwide. Carter's percentage of black votes was said by some political observers to have insured his election.

But Wright said 1978 election results show the trend is reversible.

"What we've seen since 1976, particularly with Jimmy Carter promising everything to everybody and delivering nothing to the minorities, is that black Americans are taking a different look at the political spectrum," he said.

"In 1978, Republicans got 15 percent of the black vote nationally," he said. "If that trend continues to 1980 and if the Republican presidential nominee adopts issues that are important to blacks," then there's a chance Republicans can improve that percentage. Currently, there are only 15 blacks in Congress. All of them are Democrats and House members.

The percentage of black voters, as well as other polling and demographic information, are considered before an area is selected to be targeted for minority concentration, Wright said.

Although he declined to "give our trade secrets away," Wright said his firm tries to "see how well the incumbent addresses the needs of blacks and to take a look at the image of our guy. Then we work from there."

He also declined to name past or present clients, but published reports have said Rep. Robert Livingston, who is white, used the services of Wright and McNeil in 1977 to become only the second Republican to be elected to Congress from Louisiana in modern times.

Wright sees inflation and unemployment as the main issues currently faced by minorities.

But he emphasized that "some are not black-white issues. They can deal with the poor — black and white — and other races."

"Inflation is not a black-white issue per se. But if gas is going to $1 a gallon, obviously the poor — both black and white — are going to feel the pinch sooner than someone who makes $50,000 a year."

Increased involvement of blacks is not the only new direction in which Republicans are turning for support, he said. While his firm deals with the black issue, other consultants concentrate on involving more women, blue collar workers and other traditional Democratic voting blocks in the GOP.

"What we're all working for is to broaden the base of the Republican party," said Wright.

"But what we specifically are working toward is to provide, as someone said, a legacy in which one party doesn't take the blacks for granted and the other doesn't write us off."

BLACK REPUBLICAN — What makes Bob Wright unusual is he's a black Republican in a state which claims a Democrat president as its native son. And, he's trying to convince more blacks to enter politics under the GOP banner. (AP Laser-photo)

Stabilization Co-Op Services On Not A Govm't Agency

"The sale of tobacco is the real business of the Stabilization program," said Gaylor Ambrose, associate agricultural extension agent.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation, or more commonly known as the Stabilization program, was organized on June 1, 1946 under the Cooperative Marketing Act of North Carolina, with similar acts passed later in the major flue-cured tobacco states of Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

The co-op's purpose is to stabilize the tobacco prices on the auction warehouse floor by administering the mandatory federal price support program for flue-cured tobacco. The levels are set by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, based on a parity and price index.

"Stabilization is often erroneously referred to or identified as a federal or state government agency," said Ambrose. "Although it does have working agreements and contractual relationships with federal agencies within USDA, Stabilization is a cooperative marketing association of flue-cured tobacco growers."

The co-op's board of directors consists of ten growers elected by the membership and one appointed public director. Any flue-cured grower is eligible for membership, by purchasing a share of common stock for five dollars.

Through its administration of the price support program the co-op assures growers a minimum price for their leaf grown within quota.

Ambrose explained the Stabilization enters into two types of contractual agreements. One involves a loan agreement with the Commodity Credit Corporation, whereby tobacco is pledged as collateral; the other involves agreements with industry firms, such as auction warehouse operators, processors and storers for the receiving, processing and storing of tobacco delivered to stabilizaion.

"Any tobacco on the auction floor which was eligible for price support, but which failed to receive a bid in excess of the price support is turned over to Stabilization," Ambrose pointed out. "The co-op has the leaf processed, packed and stored until it can be sold for an acceptable price."

Ambrose explained that sale of inventory keeps the co-op in business for its grower members. Stabilization personnel maintain continual contact with tobacco company personnel to determine the buyers' needs and to find suitable grades in inventory to fill these needs.

"In establishing a price for its inventoried stocks, Stabilization figures not only the initial price of the tobacco, but also the costs of handling, processing and storage," said Ambrose. "This helps to assure that the tobacco price support program is the least expensive and most successful of the USDA farm commodity programs."

According to Ambrose, the program pays for itself, as well as pays returns to grower members. When Stabilization sells some of its reserves, the money is used to repay the CCC crop loans plus interest.

At the end of each fiscal year, any funds that remain in excess of the CCC repayment and other handling costs are passed on in the form of dividends to co-op members who placed tobacco under loan during that crop year.

Mistrial Due Jury Tampering

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A superior court judge, citing an alleged attempt to bribe a juror, Wednesday declared a mistrial in the drug trial of a Youngsville man.

Wake County Superior Court Judge E. Maurice Braswell said he took the action after learning of the alleged bribe on Tuesday night. He said there was "no reasonable ground to believe the state could get a fair and impartial trial."

Two persons were arrested. Braswell ordered the state to retry C.V. Cooley, 47, on charges of conspiracy to sell, possession to sell, and sale of cocaine and BMDA, a hallucinogen. Braswell said he was disqualifying himself from presiding at the state trial.

No date was set for the new trial.

In a lengthy order, he said

Dorothy T. Holden and her husband, Rufus Wade Holden, of Raleigh, were arrested Tuesday night after they had given money to an SBI agent pretending to be a juror in the Cooley trial.

The couple gave the agent $500 to vote "not guilty" on the drug charges against Cooley.

Neither the judge, SBI agents nor John T. Hall, an assistant Wake county prosecutor investigating the case, would say how the Holdens arranged to meet the SBI agent they thought was Billy M. Gay, a juror on the case.

Cooley has been free on $50,000 bond since his arrest last November. Braswell revoked that bond Wednesday and reset it at $100,000. The judge ordered the new bond to be revoked on the day the list of new prospective jurors was published.

Cairo Is A Smoker's Paradise

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Reeking of cigarette smoke, its streets a gaudy blaze of cigarette ads, Cairo is a puffer's paradise — or, depending on your habit — an anti-smoking lobbyist's nightmare come true.

Government offices fill with smoke within minutes of opening. In banks, theaters, buses, department stores and hospitals, "No Smoking" signs are there to be cheerfully ignored.

Only inside the pyramids — over whose entrances hang huge no-smoking placards — is the low obeyed.

The image of Egypt as a smoker's Nirvana begins at Cairo Airport, where there are outside ads for American and European brands. The road into town is lined with cigarette billboards that stretch up to a mile.

"You would almost believe that smoking is an admirable pastime, the publicity on its bad effects is so scarce," the daily Egyptian Gazette, a rare and quixotic anti-smoking campaigner, recently editorialized.

There are no health warnings on cigarette packs. "These messages disappear once the cigarettes are exported to Egypt," said the Gazette. "Is it then less harmful to smoke here than anywhere else?"

A couple of years ago, the Health Ministry launched a campaign, flashing health warnings on television after cigarette ads, and slapping fines on offenders in buses and cinemas of up to $7 — a hefty sum, considering that the average wage is about $300 a year.

But in Egypt, state-inspired campaigns have a way of quietly dying out, and the anti-smoking campaign hardly got off the ground.

TV cigarette ads are gone, but reportedly under pressure from newspapers that were losing advertising. And they have blossomed in cinemas.

The standard Egyptian ad carries the same tired message that U.S. anti-smoking lobbyists are trying to abolish — smoke our brand and you will be chic and goodlooking, meet the best people, etc.

Advertising has exploded across Cairo with the advent of President Anwar Sadat's open-door economic policy toward the West, launched four years ago. And, like many countries, Egypt is in no hurry to curb smoking because the cigarette duties it collects — in a hard-pressed economy — are about $800 million a year.

Egypt is much like other developing nations regarding smoking. And here may lie the hope of U.S. and European manufacturers as their markets at home shrink under pressure from anti-smoking groups.

Official statistics on cigarette consumption and lung disorders are hard to come by, but it takes a visitor no time to discover that virtually all Egyptians smoke. Rarely is the proffered pack refused.

Occasionally, and with much fanfare, studies are produced linking smoking to cancer. But these have little effect on a public whose problems lie more in contracting the diseases of the poor.

Perhaps the worst effect of smoking is that lower-class Egyptians — the majority of the population of 40 million — spend half their salary on cigarettes and tea, the national beverage.

On the credit side, it should be noted that alcoholism is almost unknown in this teetotaling Moslem society.

Among the poor, smoking begins at age 12, when a prominently displayed pack of Marlboros, Rothmans or Larks is a shortcut to status.

American brands at 77 cents a pack are most favored, but the state-manufactured Cleopatra, at 29 cents a pack, is popular enough that it doesn't bother advertising.

Because of chronic shortages, crowds gather outside newly-stocked tobacconists and a black market in Cleopatras thrives.

"I gave up smoking before I came here," says a British salesman in Egypt. "But cigarettes are so inescapable in Egypt, and it's such a bother to refuse a cigarette without offending Arab sensibilities...that I've started up again."

One importer estimates that 90 million cigarettes are sold daily. But that figure may be an underestimate since another dealer reckons 40 percent of Egypt's supply is smuggled in to avoid duties and is never recorded.

One American, assessing life in Cairo, said: "The phones don't work, the traffic is awful. But at least I can light up wherever I like and not have a militant anti-smoking activist rush up and knock the cigarette out of my mouth. It's heaven."

Producer Analyzes The Homogenized Feeling

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the popular complaints about commercial television is that so many TV shows look alike, as if produced on a videotape assembly line and stamped "ABC," "NBC" and "CBS" for billing purposes. Ever notice that a new show, even at first viewing, usually seems familiar?

Producer George Schlatter has, and has given the matter some thought.

"One of the reasons television programming comes out so similar, so homogenized," he says, "is because to get a show on the air, you have to be able to describe it in one sentence."

The folks at the networks spend much on programming, and they like to hear familiar, reassuring words when considering new risks. Words like, "It's a variety show," or "It's a family show," or "It's a sitcom about (fill-in-the-blank)."

Schlatter, though, is partial to television that requires two or three sentences by way of explanation. Sometimes a paragraph. He was the creator-producer of "Laugh In." Can you describe "Laugh In" in a sentence?

Now comes a new Schlatter production, one that defies simple description. It's called "Real People."

"It's a variety show, but it's not a variety show," Schlatter explains, further removing his new show from the realm of easy identification. "According to the one-sentence description of everything, a variety show has to have an opening production number, a medley, then a ballad, then a little sketch with some takeoffs on TV commercials."

Not so "Real People." The show will originate live, which is different enough. The stars will be real people captured in film clips by Schlatter's crews around the country.

We'll see real people like the lady in San Diego who tells us she's from outer space. And people like the man from Wisconsin who says the aforementioned lady can't be from outer space because he is, and he knows that spacemen land in Wisconsin, not San Diego.

Will Bid For Equal Funding

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A measure to equalize the amount of per-pupil money spent yearly by school districts may be introduced in the legislature next term, a legislative leader said Wednesday.

The equalization fund, if established, will appropriate extra state money to poor school districts so that all districts spend the same on its pupils.

Sen. Edward Renfrow, D-Johnson, said that studies on where the money is needed, based on county tax bases, will most likely start this year.

A county's tax base determines the amount of money in taxes a school district will receive. Thus, rich industrialized counties are able to spend more than the poorer, rural counties. The funds are used for purposes such as supplementing teachers' salaries and financing new programs.

The idea is one of several contained in a report released Wednesday by the Governor's Study Commission on Public School Finance. Renfrow is vice chairman of the commission.

Renfrow said he hopes the General Assembly will appropriate money this year to study county tax bases. He said he hopes a fund of $20 million can be set up in the next term.

North Carolina is one of two states that does not have an allocation formula, according to the report.

The commission also recommended allocating money by programs and by a weighted formula for computing how much extra school systems should get to provide for handicapped students.

Also recommended were classifying educators based on training and experience, strengthening basic financial support for the schools, continuing state school bond referendums and setting standards for school facilities.

Grand slams are not the soundest bridge investment. Should you fail to make your contract (perhaps through a bad break), you will have to labor long and hard to make up what you have lost. A doubtful grand slam in the hands of an expert represents an "error in judgment"; in the hands of a player of lesser talent, it qualifies as a bridge sin.

When this hand was played in a tournament, the usual contract was six spades. Here and there a grand slam was attempted, and we like the auction shown. North knew the hand was going to play in spades, so he had no hesitation in making a jump shift to show his overall strength. After cue-bidding the ace of hearts, North made his intentions clear with a jump to six spades, which persuaded South to contract for the grand slam.

Whether or not the grand slam was made depended entirely on declarer's ability. The first declarer we watched ruffed the opening club lead, drew three rounds of trumps, then took four rounds of diamonds, discarding a heart from dummy. Now he cashed the two high hearts and ruffed a heart. Unfortunately the hearts did not split, so declarer still had to lose a heart.

The second declarer improved on this slightly. After drawing trumps, he first cashed the ace and king of hearts. Had the queen fallen, he would have been able to claim his contract. But he, too, ended up down one.

The technician could almost claim his contract. After ruffing a club, he cashed the king of spades and entered dummy with a trump to the jack. He ruffed a club with the queen of trumps, crossed to dummy with the jack of diamonds and ruffed dummy's last club with his own last trump. A heart to the ace put declarer in dummy to draw the outstanding trump. Dummy's fourth trump, the king of hearts and declarer's four diamond tricks brought the total up to thirteen.

Declarer's play of ruffing three clubs in his hand and establishing dummy as the master hand is known in the trade as a "dummy reversal."

Bitter Over GOP Defection

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Republicans in the General Assembly have reacted with anger and bitterness to the switch by Rep. Ralph Ledford of Hendersonville to the Democratic Party, shrinking the GOP's already small number.

State Republican Party Chairman Jack Lee called on Ledford to resign following the move Wednesday, and other legislative Republicans said Ledford had committed political suicide.

Ledford, 32, a freshman from Hendersonville who held an appointed office during the Republican administration of Gov. Jim Holshouser, changed his registration from GOP to Democratic Wednesday.

"If he feels that way in the middle of the session, he should resign," Lee said. "He was elected as a Republican, by Republicans. If he were not a Republican, he would not have gotten elected."

Ledford's defection drops the GOP to 14 representatives in the 120-member House — there are five Republicans in the 50 member Senate. It was the second time in two sessions a GOP legislator has switched to the Democratic Party while the legislature was in session.

"The reason I changed, primarily, was I believed I could help my people back in my district much better by being a member of the majority rather than a member of the minority," Ledford said.

A long-time Republican, Ledford was a community planner with the old Department of Natural and Economic Resources in Asheville during the Holshouser administration, and after that was a paid staff member of the Buncombe County Commission.

He ran unsuccessfully in the GOP primary for the 11th District seat in Congress in 1976.

The move came as other GOP legislators held a news conference to propose a state income tax cut amounting to more than $100 million a year, accompanied by a 5 percent across-the-board cut in state spending.

The switch prompted the immediate resignation of Ledford's legislative secretary, Celia Winters, who said her first loyalty was with the party.

Rep. Tommy Rhodes, R-New Hanover, called Ledford "a very unstable person."

"It showed a lack of respect for other Republicans," he said.

Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell, said Ledford was "ultra-liberal," and better suited for the Democratic Party.

Both Rep. Harold Brubaker, R-Randolph, who shares an apartment with Ledford in Raleigh, and Rep. Howard Coble, R-Guilford, tried to talk Ledford out of the move.

"I told him I thought he owed the people who nominated him as Republican to serve out this session," Coble said. "It's not just his decision. The people have a vested interest. But that didn't seem to impress him. He just shrugged that aside."

Ledford represents the single county of Henderson, which has not elected a Democrat to that seat in 20 years, and said he would seek re-election as a Democrat.

In an interview, Ledford said he bolted from the GOP because he felt ineffective against the overwhelming Democratic majority, and because he felt the Republican Party was too negative on some issues.

"I'm a more positive person," he said. "I'd rather serve one term and do the job right than serve 20 terms and not be effective."

Ledford said the GOP tax cut proposal had nothing to do with his decision. But he acknowledged deep differences with most Republicans over Gov. Jim Hunt's proposed state science and math high school. He favors spending state money to develop it, while most Republicans oppose it, he said.

The last GOP legislator who switched parties was Sen. Carolyn Mathis of Charlotte, who became a Democrat and was re-elected last year.

She gave Ledford a small plastic elephant Wednesday, which had been given to her by a Senate Democrat when she switched parties. "You give it to the next Republican that joins us," she told him.

Study Detonating Sunken Explosives

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Explosives littering a sunken World War II-vintage German submarine off the North Carolina coast may be detonated to prevent injury to amateur divers.

Navy officials are studying the possible environmental effects of such a move.

Lt. Cmdr. Douglas McCurrah, a spokesman for the Department of the Navy in Washington, said Wednesday that a decision would be made in July and would be based on the environmental assessment, and after additional dives to the wreck.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., dived at the wreck last July. Naval divers inspected the wreck site last September at Weicker's request.

The Navy divers found six 88mm rounds near the conning tower, one torpedo warhead and a second torpedo jammed in a torpedo tube. Records indicate that at least seven torpedoes were aboard when the vessel was sunk by a depth charge in May 1942.

Work on the project was hampered because of objections from the West German government, which expressed concern about the remains of 11 German sailors who went down with the ship. The Navy was granted clearance after agreeing to properly handle any remains.

The U-352 lies in 110 feet of water, 26 miles south of Beaufort.

Monday To Be Holiday

Easter Monday, April 16, will be observed by the Sanitation Division of the Public Works Department as a regular holiday. All trash and garbage service will run one day late through Wednesday and will resume regular scheduled service on Thursday.

Citizens are also reminded that GREAT (Greenville Area Transit) will observe Easter Monday as a holiday. No bus services will be offered Monday, but regular service will resume on Tuesday.

For any emergency street or storm sewer damage or any other problems connected with streets, contact the Police Department and they in turn will notify the proper Public Works official.

The Cemetery Division will also be closed for this holiday. However, the gates will be opened early morning and locked at sundown. Anyone needing information or having questions about the cemeteries should call their morticians who will notify the proper Public Works official.
