Turn To CP&L?

Power Source Switch Raised

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer Greenville Utilities and other northeastern cities served by Virginia Electric and Power Co. are studying the possibility of alternative power sources, including a shift from Vepco to another power supplier.

Charles Horne, director of GUCO, said that representatives of most of the 16 Vepco-served cities in the northeastern section, which comprise N.C. Municipal Power Agency No. Two of ElectriCities, met here Tuesday to hear a report on the alternative power possibilities.

Horne explained that the Power Agency is talking with Carolina Power and Light Co.

about possible full or partial service to Greenville and the other cities in the Agency.

The local spokesman pointed out that it is apparent that "for at least the short term," the alternative for lower power costs for Greenville would be service from CP&L.

Horne asserted that the "short term costs are obvious" with CP&L offering the better alternative and the "long term costs are probable," with CP&L possibly offering the lower costs. He said that Vepco has indicated that it expects its electric rates to be comparable to other state suppliers by early in the 1980's.

Vepco board chairman T.
Justin Moore Jr. speaking in Greenville in March, said that he expected it would be around 1982 before the utility would be able to offer comparable rates.

"There are a lot of questions to be resolved," Horne noted, with the key issue involving whether CP&L will serve Greenville and the other cities. Horne said that "we are simply talking with

A possible arrangement would be to pay transmission costs to Vepco for the use of its transmission lines to deliver power to the Agency's own delivery points, Horne related.

Another power alternative, the GUCO official said, would be to build a coal-fired plant to serve the northeastern cities. The feasibility of having other cities join the venture is also being studied, he added.

David R. Taylor, chairman of the Power Agency No. Two, made the report here at the quarterly meeting of the agency's board of commissioners.

Taylor, citing widespread and continuing dissatisfaction with the higher rates charged by Vepco, said that agency representatives were "very pleased" with the initial meetings held recently with CP&L on acquiring service from, or entering into a joint ownership arrangement with, CP&L.

Taylor said that CP&L agreed to take the agency's suggestions for acquiring a supply of power from the company under consideration, but gave no indication of a response.

N.C. Municipal Power Agency No. Two is one of three such agencies formed in 1976 to acquire generating facilities for their members.
Each agency is composed of a group of "electric-cities," municipalities that own and operate their own electric distribution systems.

Member municipalities of Agency No. Two, in addition to Greenville, are Ayden, Belhaven, Edenton,
Elizabeth City, Enfield, Hamilton, Hertford, Hobgood, Oak City, Rob-ersonville, Scotland Neck, Tarboro, Washington, Windsor and Winterville.

Probe Minds?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, voting 6 to 3, ruled today that public figures suing for libel may inquire into a journalist's "state of mind" and the editorial process behind the allegedly libelous statement.

Handing the news media a major legal defeat, the justices ruled that reporters and editors enjoy no constitutional protection from having to answer such questions in libel cases.

"We have concluded that the (2nd U.S. Circuit) Court of Appeals misconstrued the First and 14th amendments and accordingly reverse its judgment," Justice Byron R. White wrote for the court.

The decision is a big victory for former Army Lt. Col.
Anthony Herbert, who is suing CBS and others in a $44.7 million libel action.

The decision means lawyers for Herbert will be able to ask at least some of the questions they previously were barred from asking in pre-trial proceedings.

"According to an absolute privilege to the editorial process of a media defendant in a libel case is not required, authorized or presaged by our prior cases," White wrote.

He said that to give journalists such an absolute privilege "would substantially enhance the burden of proving actual malice, contrary to the expectations of (past libel rulings)."

Under a landmark 1964 Supreme Court decision, public officials and public figures who sue for libel must prove "actual malice" — knowledge that a statement was false or reckless disregard for whether it was false.

If questions probing into the editorial process are allowed — such as "Why did you use this quote instead of another?" or "Didn't you and your editors suspect that your source was lying?" — actual malice might be easier to prove in future libel suits.

Large Turnout Reported For Rhodesia's Election

SALISBURY, Rhodesia
(AP) — Officials predicted another big turnout of voters today on the second day of the Rhodesian election. More than 20 percent of the nation's black and white adults went to the polls on the first day and only a few guerrilla attacks were reported.

In the first eight hours of the five-day polling to elect Rhodesia's first Parliament with a black majority, more than 568,000 of the 2.8 million black voters and 100,000 whites cast ballots Tuesday.

Even optimists among white election officials were surprised by the black voters' response. "It's startling," said one.

The turnout in northeast Rhodesia far exceeded the national average, although the region is heavily infiltrated by Robert Mugabe's guerrillas based in neighboring Mozambique.

Nearly 50 percent of those eligible voted in Mukumbura, a fortified town close to the border.

Dressed in their Sunday best, hundreds of villagers lined up for hours on a dusty road under a broiling sun to take part in their first universal-suffrage election.

In the tobacco farm district of Centenary, site of the first guerrilla attack on a white farm in December 1972, truckloads of workers marked their ballots despite a rash of guerrilla attacks in the district two nights before in which four black workers were killed and five were wounded.

Bob Schonken, a local police spokesman, said he expected the violence to escalate as the election continues. But he said the vow of guerrilla leaders Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo to disrupt the elections "so far was obviously unsuccessful."

"Our people still came to vote today," one young white farmer told reporters who toured three centers in the northeast. "They, like us, are tired of war. They, like us, hope a new government will bring peace and international recognition."

One young man from the Shona tribe said he was voting "to end the war."

"It will have to end because we will have chosen our own government," he said.

Airline May Move Its HQ

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Warren Wheeler, president of Wheeler Airlines, says he may be forced to relocate his commuter airline headquarters because he cannot get adequate facilities at his current base, the Raleigh-Durham Airport.

Wheeler said Tuesday he is considering the possibility of moving operations to some other North Carolina city, saying the airport authority was unable to provide hangar space for the airline's new 40-passenger F-27 turbo-jet plane.

The airline serves the Triangle area and Charlotte, Asheville and Greenville.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michelle Triola Marvin was awarded $104,000 today in her lawsuit against actor Lee Marvin.

Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall said the award was intended "for rehabilitation purposes so that she may have the economic means to re-educate herself and to learn new, employable skills."

The judge said he was concerned that Miss Marvin be able to "return from her status as companion of a motion picture star to a separate, independent but perhaps more prosaic existence."

The award was considerably less than the $1.8 million that Miss Marvin sought as compensation for the six years she lived as homemaker, companion and cook to the tough-guy actor.

In his 33-page decision, the judge found that the actor and the former showgirl had neither an express nor implied contract to share property. However, the judge cited a California Supreme Court decision that allows a judge to find "additional equitable remedies" to protect the rights of unmarried people living together.

Set Mixed-Drink Vote In Wilkes

WILKESBORO, N. C. (AP) —
The Wilkes County Board of Elections has scheduled a mixed-drink referendum for North Wilkesboro on June 13.

North Wilkesboro, with about 2,000 registered voters, currently has ABC liquor stores and permits beer and wine sales.

If mixed drinks are approved, three establishments would be eligible for a license to serve them.

Accreditation Visit Pleases Hospital Board

By CAROL TYER

Congratulations and commendations were exchanged all around during the Pitt County Hospital Board of Trustees meeting last night.
The expressions of pleasure concerning the recent Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation visit.

The visit which took place
Apr. 11 was "wellorchestrated," according to ECU Medical School Dean
Dr. William Laupus. He and Dr. Carl Wille, vice chairman of the medical staff who was present on behalf of the medical staff, expressed appreciation to the medical and support staffs and the administration for all the work done during and in preparation for the visit. Laupus called the exit review "benign," and commented on its contrast with the 1975 visit in which many facility noncompliances were found and had to be corrected. He noted that especially favorable comments were made about the excellent housekeeping and food service in the hospital.

Board Chairman Harry Leslie reported that the executive committee had appointed an ad hoc committee to work, along with the administrative staff, on a new contract with Pitt Pathologists for the hospital.

On the committee are James Cheatham, chairman, Tom White and Tom Bennett.

The Board voted, not unanimously, to rescind its motion of a month ago which would have authorized the spending of up to $1,800 on an auditor's study of the hospital financial report formats and related management matters. The rescission was recommended by the finance committee, according to a report given by the finance committee chairman, Norfleet Sugg.

Sugg reminded that the summer should bring low activity months at the hospital and that the net income pro-

One Wreck Victim Is 'Critical', Other 'Guarded'

One of two English-born brothers remained in critical condition and the other was listed in guarded but improved condition at mid-morning today following a Monday afternoon crash near Williamston that took the lives of both their wives.

Alan Keith-Lucas, hospitalized at N. C.
Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, remained in serious condition in an intensive care unit following surgery last night. David Keith-Lucas, a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital, is reported to be in guarded but improved condition.

David Keith-Lucas, visiting his brother in Chapel Hill, is one of 12 members of the Civil Aviation Authority of England, which is equivalent to the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board.
He is also a fellow of both the Royal Aeronautical Society and the Institute of Mechanical Engineers. The 68-year-old scientist is basically responsible for monitoring the airworthy requirements of British civil aircraft. He and his wife lived at Manor Close, Buckinghamshire, England.

Alan Keith-Lucas, 69, who retired in 1975 from the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Social Work, went to work there in 1950. Noted internationally for his work in group child care, Alan Keith-Lucas established the Group Child Care Services at the school and was named alumni distinguished professor before his retirement.

The brothers, with their wives, were traveling from Chapel Hill to Kitty Hawk to see historic Wright Brothers Memorial when the tragic collision one mile west of Williamston on U.S. 64 resulted in the death of Dorothy D.
Keith-Lucas, wife of David Keith-Lucas, and Georgia Keith-Lucas, wife of Alan Keith-Lucas. Also dead in the grinding collision on the heavily trafficked road was 43-year-old Thomas Bunting of Greensboro, driver of the second car involved.

TURN DELAY NEEDED?

I would like to know what can be done about the 264 Bypass and Highway 11 Intersection. Traffic coming from Greenville and turning left toward Winterville is constantly running that light, and traffic coming from Farmville has to wait until the traffic stops before proceeding. There needs to be a turn delay at that intersection before a terrible accident occurs. If the Greenville Police would monitor that intersection, it would be a full-time job for two or more men just to write tickets for violators. I think this needs to be looked into. R.E.

Hotline directed your suggestion to Gerald England, traffic engineer of division two, with headquarters in Pitt County.

"The Division of Highways and the Greenville Police Department have reviewed the situation and have observed that cars are clearing under the amber phase (caution light)," said England.
"And due to the length of travel through the intersection, vehicles may be still clearing the intersection during the beginning of the green phase for east bound traffic, proceeding down Highway 264."

According to England, the present signal design does not have a second all-red clearance which would eliminate the possible conflict now existing at that intersection.

However, he added that due to the need to improve the signal at that location, a design has been submitted to Raleigh for approval which includes a second all-red clearance phase.

"The new improvements at this location will be installed when the design is approved and funding is available," said England.

'Making Marriage Work' Training Is Available

By RICHARD McFARLAND
GRAND RAPIDS, Minn. (UPI) — Almost anywhere someone can teach you how to drive a car, a counselor says, but little training is available on how to make a marriage work.

So Itasca County, alarmed by the rising divorce rate, operates an Education for Marriage program. It is supported by a paper company foundation and most area churches. The five-year project is headed by Ken Rudkin, a former Roman Catholic priest.

EFM was founded in 1976 with Rudkin and five professional counselors. It's not mandatory, but courts recommend all couples planning to be married go to EFM or clergy for counseling.

Rudkin estimates more than 90 percent who marry in the northern Minnesota county go through all or part of the three-month program.

"It appears to be paying off," Rudkin said. "Of 69 couples who went through the entire program with our EFM staff last year, we know of only one divorce. That's quite a significant difference from the average."

County figures show aid-for-dependent-children costs reached $8 million a year, mostly because of family breakdowns. So leaders of groups most involved in the problem decided to work together.

"Most clergy agreed not to marry anyone who didn't first go through three months of preparation," Rudkin said, "and this is generally the case today."

"We counsel couples on what true love means, communication skills, how to resolve conflicts, realistic sex education, finances, in-law problems, religion — the basic skills that make a marriage work," the ex-priest said. EFM and clergy use a new couple's self-help inventory, "PREPARE." It was developed by Dr. David Olson of the Family Studies Department of University of Minnesota.

Both bride and groom fill out a questionnaire about personal finances, child-rearing, hobbies, sex and religion. The copies are compared by computer.

With results in hand, the engaged pair discuss differences and strengths with a clergyman or counselor. They put cards on the table on everything from who handles the checkbook to latent fears about homosexuality.

At least half a dozen couples have postponed marriage as a result. Some married later. Some didn't.

Rudkin said schools and to some extent churches have been reluctant to get into marriage skills and sex education "because it is like running up a red flag to some parents."

"But we keep relaxing divorce laws in the country without requiring marriage training. We make marriage a big thruway with people racing through as fast as they can and we need a red light at one end or the other to slow people down."

Blandin Paper Co. Foundation made a grant of $51,000 a year for five years. The county has donated $80,000 a year, Lutheran Social Services $30,000 a year, and Presbyterian Church $15,000 a year. The Roman Catholic Church also gives support.

"Pastors tell us some couples come in six months early to get started in the program," Rudkin said. "Some others are a little reluctant to start. But once people get into the program they are our greatest supporters."

"We also find a lot of older people saying they wish they could have had this kind of premarital preparation."

"We teach that marriage is a lot more than a ceremony. It's something like a car with a warranty. The manufacturer will honor it only if people come back periodically for service."

Program leaders try to keep up with changing times.

"We find there is a traditional notion there is only one kind of family deal everybody should shoot for — the family with one breadwinner and a wife who stays home and raises two or more kids," Rudkin said. "But statistics show that represented only seven percent of the couples in this country last year."

Two-breadwinner families make up 16 percent, widowed, separated and divorced couples 21 percent, child-free or post-child bearing marriages 23 percent, and experimental or co-habiting couples four percent and rising.

Rudkin said an old story tells pretty well what EFM is trying to do:

"A man walked down a river bank and saw someone drowning. He jumped in and saved him. He walked farther and

Let Daughter Call Signals

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Amy, is engaged to a fellow who is a sports nut. Jerry follows baseball, basketball, football, hockey — any sport. He's an authority. He knows the names and numbers of all the players, how much they earn, who was traded for whom, etc. Jerry would sit and watch TV replays and live games all day if he could. And when he's not watching sports, he's reading about it or talking about it. I worry that after they're married he'll make a poor husband and worse father because all he seems to live for is sports. I've tried to warn Amy, but she doesn't listen.

Amy doesn't enjoy sports as much as Jerry, but goes along with it just to please him.

Jerry is a nice enough fellow otherwise, but being sports crazy, what would you say their chances are for a successful marriage?

AMY'S POP

DEAR POP: Who knows? In spite of Jerry's preoccupation with sports and Amy's lack of enthusiasm for it, they could have a great marriage. You sound like a well-intentioned father who's running interference for his little girl who might well be able to call her own signals. Back off, Dad.

DEAR ABBY: My father's English is so poor it's embarrassing. He says, "He don't," "They was," "There ain't no," etc.

Although I'm only 14, I think it is never too late for a person to learn, and my father could learn if he wanted to. He's 35 and was born in this country, but sometimes he talks like a foreigner.

Sometimes I correct him in front of people because if I waited and corrected him later, he'd claim he never said what I said he said, and then we'd have a fight.

Don't you think adults should take criticism with a smile and appreciate it even though it's from a 14-year-old?

LENNY IN THE BRONX

DEAR LENNY: It's humiliating to be corrected in the presence of others. Your intentions may be good, but your timing is bad.

DEAR ABBY: I wish to say a few words in defense of newspaper carriers who distribute Christmas cards. Some people seem to think the cards are a hint for a tip.

I have three children who have had paper routes for several years. At first, they put the paper on the porch of every subscriber, but found that fewer than 10 percent tipped for the extra service, so now they porch only the elderly and the tippers.

GREELEY, COLO.

DEAR GREELEY: Most newspapers ask their carrier boys to "porch" delivered papers as a matter of course, not as "extra service." To expect tips for such routine service is out of line.

Fight N.C. Compromise On Public Schools

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State education officials say they had no part in drafting the compromise on legislation concerning regulation of the state's private schools.

ate that would set up a separate, less stringent set of regulations for the state's church-affiliated schools and other private schools.

The bills are identical in language. One deals with the Christian schools while the other speaks to the rest of the private schools in the state.

State officials mounted a campaign to stop the legislation

after it easily won approval in the Senate.

A subcommittee of the House Education Committee thought it approved a compromise between the state and the private schools, but it was not enough to satisfy state officials.

The compromise bill strengthened a few provisions in the two original bills.

still not addressed in the subcommittee's proposed compromise," said state Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips.

"I continue to urge the rejection by the General Assembly of the legislation in that the entire issue is still before the courts of North Carolina and can only be properly resolved there."

"I was not involved in any way in the proposed compromise," Phillips said.

The main area of compromise concerned the state's minimum competency testing program, which the Christian schools have opposed.

The compromise bill requires the schools to administer a competency test of their choosing, passage of which would be a requirement for graduation.

The original bills would require the schools to administer a minimum skills test of their own choosing. But they would not require passage of the test for graduation.

School attendance regulations were also changed in the compromise bill to require the schools to operate on a regular schedule, nine months of the year.

The original bills simply said the private schools would maintain attendance records for each pupil enrolled and regularly attending classes and that would satisfy compulsory attendance requirements.

The compromise was apparently worked out after several of the Christian school administrators met with Gov. Jim Hunt and Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., D-Wake, Tuesday morning.

Lake is the sponsor of the private-school bill, and Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, is the sponsor of the identical Christian-school bill.

Although Hunt met with the group, he disclaimed any authorship of the compromise and stopped short of saying he endorsed it.

"He does not oppose the bill," said Stephanie Bass, Hunt's deputy press secretary. Hunt issued a short statement after the compromise was announced.

"I would prefer that every student take the same competency test. But I believe the test they will have will be as tough or tougher," the governor said.

Phillips said he would plead his case before the full House Education Committee when it receives the subcommittee's recommendation to approve the compromise bill.

The private schools and state education officials have been at odds since early last year over state regulation. The schools say the regulation — governing operation, curriculum and testing procedures, among other things — infringe on their freedom of religion.

The state maintains the regulations are necessary to ensure that all school children in North Carolina receive an equal educational opportunity.

The state sued some of the schools last year after they refused to submit annual operational reports. The court ruled the state had the authority to require the reports but that it had overstepped its bounds in some of the information it was seeking.

Both sides have appealed that decision.

which would raise taxes on such household staples as soap, processed food, cooking gas and kerosene. Many of the women carried signs. Others flourished their rolling pins. (AP Laserphoto)

BPW Held Dinner Meet

The April dinner meeting of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club was held last week. Ms. Jodie Thompson was recognized as the District X Young Careerist winner in Nashville April 1.

She will represent the district at the state convention in Asheville in June, competing with other winners in the state.

Clara Carr, chairman of the Finance Committee, introduced Dr. Miriam Moore, dean of the School of Home Economics, ECU, as guest speaker. Dr. Moore spoke on financial planning for the single woman or family.

She discussed budget planning and said one should first take an inventory of resources, assets and liabilities. "We should review our attitudes about money and its place in our lives. Thinking of our future we have to consider our responsibilities in the coming years and what sort of direction we want to give our lives," she said.

Officers elected for 1979-80 are President, Estella Dunbar, First Vice President, Lucille Moore, Second Vice President, May Pittman, Recording Secretary, Deana Harrell, Corresponding Secretary, Sara Lassiter, and Treasurer, Runelle Forbes. They will be installed at the June meeting.

Military Suffer Loss Due AWOL Servicemen

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Absences without leave, the most prevalent crime in the nation's armed forces, cost the government an estimated $1.1 billion between 1973 and 1977, a new report says.

The nation's sailors, soldiers, airmen and marines went "over the hill" 608,000 times in those four years, according to the General Accounting Office study.

The study said the Marine Corps had the highest AWOL rate, the Air Force the lowest.

And the report by the congressional investigating agency said punishments given service men and women who went AWOL varied widely and were not likely to be more severe for repeat offenders than in first-time cases.

But the GAO said the cost impact of unauthorized absences is dwarfed by their potential impact on the nation's military effectiveness.

"Individual excellence and the overall quality of the service is determined by training, discipline, morale, and motivation," the report said.

"Collectively they establish combat capability — the ultimate measure of military effectiveness. AWOL seriously damages this capability by adversely affecting unit effectiveness and mission readiness."

Most of the estimated $1.1 billion cost to the government was "for recruitment and training lost," the report said.

The GAO said more than 70 percent of the 4,100 people who went AWOL during one 12-month period were eventually discharged as unfit for service.

Only one-fifth of those who went AWOL in their first two years of service were high school graduates, the study found.

That led the GAO to recommend greater efforts toward signing up high school graduates.

It also said, however, that without a draft the military is competing with civilian employers and noted that the Pentagon, in meeting its desired strength, may be forced to sign up more people not measuring up to its "definition of a quality recruit."

But the GAO said, "Combat capability could actually be hurt by bringing in too many marginal performers in contrast to accepting some shortfall in troop population."

The Defense Department, in its response, called the AWOL cost figures misleading. It said a comparison should have been made between the draft and all-volunteer eras. The GAO said it did indeed omit draftees. The draft ended in 1973.

The Pentagon said disciplinary rates have improved in the all-volunteer force and that costs associated with AWOL cases have gone down.

The Problem Won't Go Away

Last month the city school board approved a controversial redistricting plan, by a close vote. The plan obviously was not pleasing to everyone and the approval of it came after a long session of public discussion.

This month the board members had second thoughts. The redistricting plan was rescinded with the board ordering that a "study be undertaken utilizing all resources available to develop and maintain a stable and balanced student population attendance area for each of our elementary schools." The board called for a recommendation not later than Dec. 17.

We hope more study will resolve the problem, but it is well to remember that several months went into the development of the now rejected plan.

Now the city schools are still some months away from developing a redistricting plan which will satisfy the requirements of racial balancing.

Developing a satisfactory redistricting plan is not easy and we don't envy the school officials their task. The problem is not going to go away, however, and sooner or later it will have to be faced. If the city schools can come up with a more satisfactory plan than the one just rejected we are all for taking the additional time. We have to wonder, though, if finding the solution is going to come any easier with still another study.

Selling Job Is Needed

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — A year-in-advance public opinion poll ranks Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as the favorite presidential prospect among Democrats in New Hampshire, lead-off state on the long list of 1980 primary elections.

New Hampshire voters have been known to confound pollsters a week before primary day, and a 1979 survey about a 1980 election is no guide to what may happen in the first of at least 33 primaries.

Still, the survey that shows Kennedy a 2-1 choice over President Carter offers some clues as to what is happening now, as the president readies his campaign for re-election.

Political scientists David W. Moore and Robert E. Craig, who conducted the survey for Public Opinion, a journal published by the American Enterprise Institute, report that their New Hampshire soundings show Carter must convince more Democrats that he is doing a first-rate job in the White House.

They say that only 4 percent of New Hampshire Democrats rate Carter's performance as excellent, and only that group preferred him to Kennedy. Thirty-five percent said Carter is doing a pretty good job, but they split about evenly between Kennedy and the president in their 1980 preferences.

Moore and Craig, both teachers at the University of New Hampshire, said they interviewed 531 Democrats between Feb. 18 and March 4. They said the poll had a margin of error of 6 percentage points.

In a three-way matchup, they said, 48 percent preferred Kennedy for president in 1980, 23 percent Carter and 12 percent Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California. The other 17 percent were not sure.

The survey was conducted before Carter's Middle East peace mission, which cannot have hurt his standing with the voters, although national opinion surveys indicate it did not boost his rating much. It also preceded Brown's abortive journey to New Hampshire in

The Washington Tapes

WASHINGTON — The most pressing question Washington faces today is whether we will get the Gilbert Stuart portraits of George and Martha Washington. For those who have not been following the controversy, the Smithsonian Institution bought the paintings for $5 million from Boston's impoverished Athenaeum Library to hang in the National Portrait Gallery in Washington.

Suddenly Bostonians are up in arms. The idea of losing the paintings caused all the politicians in Massachusetts to scream that Washington was stealing their state's heritage. Mayor White said that everyone knows Washington has no culture and the sale could only be compared to the Mona Lisa being sold to the Arabs.

My answer to White is, "Baked beans." If any city is lacking in culture it's Boston. It doesn't have a first-class university, a decent symphony orchestra or an accredited museum. Bostonians can't tell the difference between a Rembrandt and a hockey puck.

I go to Boston a lot and I have many friends there. But not once has anyone ever said to me, "Would you like to see the Gilbert Stuart portraits of George and Martha Washington?"

Depending on the season, my host will say, "Would you care to see a Red Sox game?" or "How about going over to watch the Celtics play basketball?"

Once I said to a pal on the Boston Globe, "I'd love to see Picasso." And he replied, "He isn't here any more. He was traded by the Patriots for a place kicker and two draft choices."

I believe it's silly for Americans to argue which city has more culture. I think the decision as to where the portraits should hang must be left to the wishes of the people involved.

I am fortunate to have in my possession a tape made during the sitting for the portraits.

It isn't generally known, but Stuart painted President and Mrs. Washington at the same time because George wanted to save money.

The tape was given to me by the Smithsonian, and they have authenticated that the voices are those of George, Martha and Gilbert Stuart.

Here is a partial transcript:

WASHINGTON: Gil, what do you intend to do with these portraits?

STUART: It is my dream, Mr. President, that some day they will hang in the National Portrait Gallery in the nation's capital.

WASHINGTON: I'd like that, wouldn't you, Martha?

MARTHA: What other choices do we have?

STUART: Well, I heard from an art dealer that Boston would like them.

MARTHA: You mean the home of that dreadful Yankee, John Adams?

STUART: That's the way I felt about it, Ma'am. They have no appreciation of art. Just the other day I heard Paul Revere say, "If you've

Talk of closing gas stations during weekends naturally worries people in the tourist industry. Their feelings came out at the recent Pinehurst meeting of the annual Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism.

However, the resolution passed opposing the tentative gasless weekend plan on grounds that it would cripple the third largest industry in the state (and the country) and thereby significantly injure the economy, was self-serving exaggeration in the extreme.

A national fuel shortage, if one develops, unquestionably will call for curtailing nonessential travel. And weekend travel for pleasure — tourism — is at the top of the list.

Economic hurt to operators of tourist attractions and services would be severe, regrettable and maybe cause for government help of some sort.

But the notion that the hurt would occur to the third largest industry in the state and nation is fraudulent — and no less so because the head of the state tourist promotion agency claimed it again at the Pinehurst meeting.

What the industry and the state agency habitually call "the third largest industry" includes every dollar spent on all motor vehicle operations and all food and lodgings away from home. It includes the cost of gas for everybody driving to work, the cost of all prepared food sold outside the home, and the business expense of all company travel — literally everything associated with the maintenance of people, cars, buses, trains and planes in motion.

Tourism is important; but it's less than this by far. And it is unbecoming of a state agency to promote the fiction, whether trying to get more tourist advertising dollars from the legislators or attempting to influence national policy on a possible gasoline shortage.

Directors Inclined To Work

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There was a time not long ago when outside directors attended corporate board meetings for the good fellowship and prestige, and probably the money, too, but certainly not to work.

They work now. Though not company officers, which would make them insiders, they are handling more roles, more responsibilities. They audit expenses and income. They run checks on the chief executive.

"They are tightening their grip on corporate governance," says Gardner Heidrick, whose company has studied the trend. "They assert their independence from the board company's management."

Quite a change. Many shareholders recall that just days before its descent into bankruptcy, some board members were nearly ignorant of the old Penn Central railroad's condition. That helped change things.

Courts since then have ruled that directors are liable to shareholders for their performance in office. And the Securities and Exchange Commission has encouraged the appointment of non-officer board members.

Studying the changes, Heidrick and Struggles, an old-line executive search and consulting firm, found the majority of boards are now dominated by outside members and that these members are activists. The firm found in a survey just released that new outside board members take on more committee responsibilities sooner than their predecessors and that increasingly they are named to key committees.

Not only do they dominate boards by a 60-40 ratio, and on utilities by 75-25, the survey found, but they chair nearly all board committees, including audit, compensation, finance and pension-retirement.

Directors are keeping a sharp eye on the chief executive, too. The surveyors estimate a third of major boards now measure the top officer's performance quantitatively, up from one-fourth in 1977.

While these changes might suggest investor-owned companies are relinquishing power to the public, they might not be as dramatic as imagined. Power is shifting, but it remains in the business community.

The majority of outside directors, it was found, are or were officers of other companies.

Inevitably, this finding will give rise to claims that the "old boy" arrangement, under which chairmen appointed as board members their friends from other companies, is still intact. But it may not be so.

The analysis accompanying the study, in which 1,352 outside directors were contacted, concludes that the predominance of business executives on boards results from the increased complexity of business matters.

Land-Use Law Withers

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — With hardly a mourner and scant public notice, the idea of statewide land use management in North Carolina has been pushed out of sight by the administration of Governor Jim Hunt.

The consensus of staff experts, Hunt aides, and key legislative leaders is blunt: it is dead — at least as long as Jim Hunt is governor.

Once embraced by progressive political leaders as one of the most critical items on North Carolina's agenda, land use management early this decade was one of the most volatile subjects around and dominated the 1973 and 1974 sessions of the General Assembly.

Bitter and extended political in-fighting and compromise finally produced the Coastal Area Management Act of 1974 applying to the 20 coastal counties.

Now, it is obvious, a lot of political promises have been broken and even some careers dashed or at least set back during intervening years.

Renewed
The chief promise broken: Coastal counties were promised that they would be fed from the same spoon as all other residents of North Carolina. There would be a Mountain Area Management Law, and a Piedmont Area Management Law to follow.

Former Gov. Jim Holshouser who pushed hard for the Coastal law backed away from further application. Gov. Hunt, who was lieutenant governor and presiding officer of the State Senate at the time, continued to espouse land use management and was active on the Land Policy Council. As governor, he continued to pledge action in land use management.

His close advisor, Administration Secretary Joe Grimsley and his chief planner, Arnold Zogry, have long been recognized as strong advocates of land use legislation.

At least one widely regarded "comer" in statewide politics has been hurt — possibly irreparably — by the sequence of events. State Senator Willis P. Whichard, D-Durham, was the key sponsor and active fighter for land use legislation. He recently took his name from consideration as a possible candidate for lieutenant governor, and insiders concede that solid opposition from eastern counties would likely defeat Whichard in any statewide bid ... at this time.

BILL NOBLITT

Sequence
The abbreviated chain of events went like this: after the 1973 and 1974 legislative fights for the Coastal law, the Mountain proposal was withdrawn in favor of a study commission which developed numerous proposals, none of which were ever introduced for debate in the General Assembly.

The sticking place was state mandated land use planning versus local option and control. Planning is mandated in Coastal counties. The debate has raged within Hunt's administration as it previously did in Holshouser's. At one point Gov. Hunt was still publicly saying there would be state-imposed land use planning while Howard Lee, secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development, was telling local officials there would be state "incentives" to encourage land use planning, but no mandate.

The final blow, it seems, came when Hunt proposed that local soil conservation officials and committees be given a key role in planning and enforcement. That was to woo the farmers into accepting land management as the salvation of the family farm threatened by urban and industrial growth.

But when it became clear that among many groups and individuals still opposed, farmers remained the most vocal and unbending, the governor's farm heritage and political connections spelled the end of land use legislation.

THE GALLOP POLL

Carter Popularity Firms

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Jimmy Carter's popularity rating has levelled off at 41 percent approval after having declined steadily since mid-March.

In the mid-March survey, 47 percent expressed approval of his performance in office. This proportion then declined to 43 percent and to 39 percent in late March.

Approval Rating 27 Months Into Presidency
Jimmy Carter	41%
Gerald Ford	53
Richard Nixon	49
Lyndon Johnson	56
John Kennedy	56
Dwight Eisenhower	68
Harry Truman	55

Victim Of National Mood?
A recent Gallup survey in which a national cross-section of the public was asked to assess the Carter presidency in terms of Carter, the man, his record and his handling of the presidency, suggests that in some measure Carter is a victim of the national mood.

At a time when the president's overall approval rating (in December 1977) was 57 percent, 82 percent said they had either a "great deal" or "some" trust in Carter, the man. The comparable percentage recorded in a recent survey, 78 percent, represents little change.

Similarly, the proportion of Americans who give the president high marks on his record to date has changed relatively little, particularly in view of growing public concern over the economy. In the earlier survey 37 percent gave Carter a high rating on his record; 31 percent do so at this time.

Disgruntled Far Less Inclined To Approve
Further evidence supporting the theory that the president may be the victim of the national mood is suggested in another recent Gallup survey.

In a survey conducted earlier this year, six in 10 (58 percent) persons who expressed satisfaction with the way things are going in the nation as a whole said they approved of the way Carter is handling his job as president. However, among those who were dissatisfied with the state of the nation, far fewer — 36 percent — said they approved of Carter's performance.

Following is the question asked to measure the president's popularity and the latest results:

Carter Handling Of Presidency
Approve	41%
Disapprove	47
No opinion	12

The following questions were asked in a March 16-19 survey, repeating those asked in December 1977:

"How much trust and confidence do you have in President Carter, the man — a great deal, some, hardly any, or none?"

Strength For Today

CIVILIZATION AND UNSELFISHNESS

A recent writer has defined civilization as the necessary adjustment of rights and duties, the harmonizing of interests of the individual and the group.

What this writer is saying is that the more civilized we become, the more we learn how to compromise what we consider to be our individual rights and desires in order that others may have a fair chance to have their rights and desires fulfilled.

Almost 75 years ago New York City newspapers flamed with indignation because a traffic officer had been stationed at the intersection of Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street. "What are we coming to," cried the editor of one paper; "This is an incredible invasion of personal liberty!"

An invasion of personal liberty, yes, but necessary to vindicate the liberty of others. And who would be free in driving his car today if all traffic lights were turned off?

Ex-Attorney Is Indicted

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Former attorney Art Vann III has been indicted on charges of forging a client's check for $21,360, embezzling the money and practicing law without a license.

The Durham County Grand Jury, meeting in special session Tuesday, returned five indictments against Vann, who surrendered to police and was released under $10,000 bond for appearance in Superior Court April 23.

Vann, who turned in his law license last October during an SBI probe, was charged with illegally representing Robert Tilley a month later in a property settlement case.

Another bill charges Vann with signing Tilley's name to the check and cashing it Dec. 1. He also was charged with using $1,487 of the money to make two payments on his 1978 Jaguar automobile; embezzling $9,200 of Tilley's money; fraudulently converting $1,200 in property settlement funds to another man's use; embezzling an additional $6,232 from the check; and using $3,240 of Tilley's money to pay off a judgment on a former legal client.

The State Bar Council voted last Friday to disbar Vann, who had pleaded guilty on Feb. 8 to 11 charges of filling in judgments and signing a judge's name to traffic citations in Durham County District Court.

A Superior Court judge gave Vann a suspended three-year prison sentence and ordered him not to practice law during the probationary period.

When New Hampshire Democrats were asked to choose between Carter and Brown, the president was heavily preferred. He was favored by 43 percent, Brown by 27 percent, with the other 30 percent uncertain.

While Brown has been preparing to challenge Carter in 1980, Kennedy has said he is not a candidate and does not intend to become one.

Moore and Craig say Kennedy's popularity is not tied to issues or to ideology. Democrats who consider themselves conservatives were as likely to favor him as those who describe themselves as liberals.

In a choice between Carter and Brown, moderate and liberal Democrats tend to favor the president while conservatives prefer the California governor, they say.

All of that is only fuel for speculation. There are 10 months of politicking and polling ahead before New Hampshire votes Feb. 26.

But if Kennedy's support next winter approaches the levels reported by Moore and Craig, he could be a powerful non-candidate. There already is talk of an effort to promote write-in votes for Kennedy, which would not require his consent.

That was the end of the tape, but I believe it speaks for itself. The three people involved have been turning over in their graves knowing the pictures were in Boston. But they'll be jumping for joy once the portraits are safely ensconced in the city of Washington, where they belong.

Primary Health Workshop Held At Center Today

Roger Schmidt, a specialist with the American Lung Association of New York state, led a Primary Health Workshop held at the Belk Building, Allied Health Center today.
Developed by the American Lung Association with a federal grant, the primary health curriculum program is designed to cover curriculum for children in kindergarten through grade three. The curriculum deals with complete body systems, including the respiratory system.
Area specialists from various health agencies dealing in health curriculum programs attended the meeting. The program has been planned to cover a four year period, with materials developed to cover all phases of body systems for young children.

Pre-Easter School Events

Events at Aycock Junior High before the Easter holidays included a visit on April 12 by Dr. Uzelle Messa, member of the African Inland Church. Dr. Messa, who speaks 15 languages and has traveled extensively, spoke to members of the Bible Club and the Library/Media Clubs.
On April 13, Mrs. Ruth Roberson of Durham displayed examples of her patchwork quilts. Also on that date, George Allison, assistant professor at California State University and a space specialist with NASA, demonstrated the ways in which space craft and satellites work.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The bloated Pearl River was slowly receding today in crippled Jackson, but more evacuations were ordered downstream as the floodwaters surged southward.
The river, which crested at 43.3 feet in the Mississippi capital Tuesday — more than 25 feet above flood stage — had dropped back to 42.5 feet early today but thousands remained isolated from their homes.
And in Alabama, Civil Defense officials worried whether people will leave their homes in time to escape anticipated record flood crests expected to threaten the west-central section of the state.
Buddy Stuckey, assistant civil defense director for south Mississippi's Marion County, said 2,000 persons fled their homes Tuesday.
"They learned their lesson from the '74 flood," Stuckey said. "People are being real good about it. They've been real cooperative."

Jackson officials said 17,000 persons remained homeless in the metropolitan area.
Officials say at least five deaths in Mississippi have been attributed directly to the flooding that began last week.
Stuckey said 20,000 sandbags were distributed Tuesday, mostly to persons wanting to protect their homes from the waters that are expected to reach flood levels Thursday.
"It looks like we'll be evacuating our entire town before the crest gets here," said Georgetown Mayor Beal Albritton as mobile homes and loaded cars headed toward the only road leading out of the community of 420 about 40 miles south of Jackson.
The Pearl's rise at Jackson climbed Tuesday to almost 43.3 feet, more than 25 feet above flood stage, the National Weather Service said. By nightfall, the river had fallen to 43 feet.

"Mississippi is going to beat this thing just like it has everything in the past," said presidential aide Bill Simpson. Gov. Cliff Finch and federal officials met Tuesday to brief reporters on plans for providing disaster relief for flood victims. President Carter declared the state a disaster area Monday.
Officials warned that the level of the Pearl River in Jackson still might fluctuate, even as it begins to recede. But they said the water would not clear out of the Jackson area for a week or more, and some areas behind the levees, such as the flooded state fairgrounds, would have to be pumped dry.

In Alabama, Civil Defense Director Warren Rhoades said some 500 families in Selma have been evacuated by late Tuesday from the path of the Alabama River's floodwaters.
Officials in Demopolis, on the rampaging Tombigbee River, said about 600 families have left their homes.
Most of the flooding has affected low-income neighborhoods, businesses and manufacturing plants at the river edges or low-lying areas. Business along the riverfronts were closed and barge traffic was halted.

Officials expected the latest evacuations to bring to some 5,000 the number forced from their homes across west and central Alabama since more than 12 inches of rain fell last Thursday and Friday.
In western Illinois, flood waters of the Mississippi and Illinois rivers continued to recede although 126 families remained homeless in Grafton and more than 30 families were kept from their homes in Kampsville in Calhoun County.

Seven More In Iran Executed

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's forces executed seven more of the shah's men today and staged military parades throughout Iran to boost army morale and demonstrate the new Islamic republic's strength.

Meanwhile, Tehran's local religious leader, Ayatollah Mahmoud Taleghani, did an about-face after warning against "another dictator" and appealed to his supporters to cease public protests against Khomeini's revolutionary committees.

It was an apparent effort to defuse rising tensions among

Painter To Be Speaker

ECU News Bureau
Distinguished American painter Keith Crown will lecture at East Carolina University Thursday, at 8 p.m. in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center Auditorium.

His presentation will illustrate by several of his original paintings as well as by color slides of paintings shown simultaneously with slides of the subject matter which inspired each painting. A question-answer period will follow.

The public is invited to attend free of charge.

Crown has mounted more than 75 solo shows in museums and galleries throughout the nation and has won numerous awards in major exhibitions. His work is included in various public and private collections and has been reproduced in books, periodicals and catalogues.

A professor of painting at the University of Southern California, Crown is now on leave from USC while serving as visiting artist at UNC-Chapel Hill.

No Charge For Boat Inspection

Another in the series of Courtesy Marine Examinations provided by examiners from the Greenville Flotilla of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary has been announced.

The qualified examiners will inspect all trailered boats brought to the Nichols parking lot between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturday, April 28.

There is no charge for this service and no reports relative to defects are submitted to any government agency.

All boaters are reminded that to qualify for the CME decal, distress flares are required in addition to all other equipment required by federal or state law.

This is a good time for boaters to see that their boats are properly equipped and ready for a safe boating season.

demonstrators, Radio Tehran announced.

This brought the total number of confirmed executions by Khomeini's committees to 143 since the last royal government fell in early February.

Taleghani, who went into hiding last weekend after Islamic militiamen arrested his two sons and a daughter-in-law, roughed them up and held them for 24 hours, urged the revolutionary committees on Tuesday to exercise restraint and warned against restrictions on freedom.

"This is not a personal matter but rather one that could harm the nation's freedom," he said in a statement distributed by a representative. "We don't want to hand over the country to another dictator."

Today, however, Tehran Radio broadcast an appeal from him to his followers asking them to stop their demonstrations in protest against the attack on his family.

"I shall be with you in the near future. After reviewing the current incidents with Ayatollah Khomeini, I shall inform you of the relevant facts," said his new statement.

Tehran's central revolutionary council denied that any of its committees or militiamen were responsible for the attack on Taleghani's relative. But there was speculation that the militiamen were ultra-conservative, pro-Khomeini zealots opposed to Taleghani's moderation and jealous of his popularity.

Both Taleghani and Khomeini hold the highest Shiite title of ayatollah, which means "mark of God" and is equivalent to archbishop in a Christian hierarchy. But Khomeini is the "ayatollah uzma," or grand ayatollah, the pope of the world's 60 million Shiite Moslems.

Cooling Of Reactor Is Accelerated

By PAUL CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) —

The painfully slow process of cooling down the damaged reactor at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant is being accelerated through changes in the plant's plumbing.

Harold Denton, chief of Nuclear Regulator Commission operations at the plant, said Tuesday that technicians hope to lower the temperature of the reactor's cooling water by another 10 degrees.

He had announced plans last week to reduce the water temperature by 10 degrees per hour from about 280 degrees down to 230 degrees, but it was only down to 245 degrees by Tuesday.

"The preferred cooling plan ... is taking a lot longer than I had imagined it would," Denton said at a final news briefing here. He arrived at Three Mile Island 19 days ago, when the reactor's core was in danger of melting, and was returning to Washington.

He also said releases of radioactive iodine have been halted and a flap over disposal of radioactive waste will be solved by taking the material to Washington state instead of South Carolina, where authorities refused to admit it.

Meanwhile, the Metropolitan Edison Co., operator of the plant, said Tuesday it could go bankrupt unless the state gives final approval to at least part of a proposed $49 million consumer rate increase that was approved only six days before the nuclear accident.

At the plant's troubled reactor, the NRC wants core temperatures at 230 degrees before steps are taken to bring it into what is called a cold shutdown. That's the point at which there is no longer any risk of a chain reaction in the core going out of control.

The reactor normally heats pressurized water, which in turn heats other water into steam to power turbines. The steam is now being used to carry off reactor core heat.

"Plans are being made to lower the temperature about another 10 degrees by opening up new flow paths for steam," Denton said.

Victor Stello, a Denton aide who is taking over as the NRC chief of operations at the site, said a cold shutdown is being delayed so that precautionary backup systems can be completed.

Will Discuss Draft Renewal

Bill Sholar, a counselor for military servicepersons at Quaker House, Fayetteville, will discuss the implications of the possible reinstatement of the military draft Thursday, April 19, 7:30 p.m., at the East Carolina University Mendenhall Center. His talk will be sponsored by the Greenville Peace Committee.

Sholar, who spent eight and half years in the U. S. Army before being discharged as a conscientious objector, will speak on the seven pending draft bills in the present Congress, and what the reinstatement of the Selective Service System would mean to draft-age young men, and possibly women. He will also discuss his experiences as a military counselor. The public is invited to attend.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Take care of important matters early and then you will find that you are able to see things in a very different and more enlightened way the rest of the day. Evening is fine for studies, recreation, relaxing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be charming with a bigwig and gain favors you desire. You may have problems later in the day, so handle them wisely. Keep busy and make this a worthwhile day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning is fine for gaining new ideas and different points of view from others. Later steer clear of trouble with the law. A more objective attitude is fine in dealing with others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Gain the favor of a loved one. Study well any new ideas you get before you commit yourself to anything. Be careful with credit matters.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Morning is best time to settle that matter of association and then you can work out some ticklish problem well. Wait until evening for socializing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle work more efficiently and get more done. Help a friend who has a serious problem. Improve health by proper treatments.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan future recreation ahead of time. Do whatever will please a loved one. Take a more philosophical attitude toward life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Home affairs should be handled early since later you have other important duties to take care of. Plan pleasure early which you can enjoy later with family. Be gentle with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go after information you need so that you better home conditions. Get errands done early and without delay. Exercise more.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care of important affairs before you consider social visits. Be sure of any new investments you want to make. Consult with an expert if in doubt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Carry through with whatever most activates you and then you can find a better way to build security. Take no risks with reputation in the course of doing business with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan early how best to gain a cherished wish. Improve your appearance where possible. Try to be of assistance to one who has met with a difficult situation. Show you are a true humanitarian.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you think more of assisting good friends, you gain their esteem now. Get into details of any aims you may have and make big inroads into them. Remember that it's the little things that count the most.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be born with good common sense and will soon understand the importance of being secure and safe, financially sound. Teach early to consider the feelings of others and your progeny will get along well with everyone.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Lee Extends A Deadline

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Howard N. Lee, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, has announced that he is extending the deadline for adopting oil refinery regulations indefinitely.

State environmental officials had announced earlier that they wanted to get the regulations enacted by the end of this month.

"I am concerned that the timetable is a little tight and therefore I am removing the April 30 deadline to give citizens adequate time to review the proposed regulations and to give us the benefit of their comment," Lee said Tuesday.

In a prepared statement, Lee said he made the decision to extend the deadline following public hearings in Raleigh and Wilmington last week in which the public asked for more time to examine the regulations.

The proposed regulations would bolster a five-year-old state law that requires approval from the secretary of natural resources before a refinery could be built.

Lee said he plans to receive additional views on the regulations from several groups before the end of May.

Chavez Seeks New Boycott

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cesar Chavez, his United Farm Workers union locked in another struggle he fears it may not survive, is resorting once again to his ultimate weapon — a call for a consumer boycott.

The target is not grapes or lettuce or wine. It is Chiquita bananas.

Chavez hopes the boycott will bring victory in the union's three-month strike against 11 major lettuce growers in California and Arizona.

The connection between bananas and lettuce?

Sun Harvest Inc., one of the largest struck growers, is owned by United Brands Co., which sells bananas under the Chiquita label. A successful banana boycott, the UFW hopes, would pressure Sun Harvest into settling with the union and set a pattern for the other growers.

"Our best hope is the boycott," Chavez said in an interview Tuesday. "The best hope is what we call 'The Court of Last Resort' — the American public."

In its 13 years, the 12,000-member UFW has won the backing of up to 17 million adults for boycotts launched to gain bargaining recognition, according to a national poll cited by the union.

"The American public," Chavez says, "has been very good to us."

Chavez, 52 and still the dominant force in the union he founded 13 years ago, is touring the country on behalf of the six-week-old boycott.

This week he is in Washington, seeking publicity for the boycott, along with money from other unions and government support for his lettuce strike.

The boycott, he says, is causing alarm at United Brands.

But company spokesmen following behind Chavez contend the UFW provoked the lettuce strike and is exploiting the good intentions of sympathetic consumers who are being asked to back a strike that will result in sharply higher food prices.

Chavez contends the growers are trying to break the strike — and ultimately the UFW — by importing illegal aliens to replace the striking farm workers.

Arrested For Sign Theft Try

Joseph Quentin Coffman, 19 of 188 Aycock Dorm was arrested by Greenville police just after midnight last night after allegedly attempting to take a city bus stop sign from the Evans Street mail.

Capt. A. G. Whitaker said Coffman was charged with larceny after officers saw Coffman walking along the mail with the bus stop sign across his shoulder, about 12:45 a.m.

Coffman was jailed under a $500 bond, Whitaker noted.

Tremors Felt In New England

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The strongest earthquake in northern New England in six years rattled residents of Maine, New Hampshire and eastern Massachusetts, but caused no injuries or major damage.

The quake, registering 3.96 on the Richter scale, struck at 9:34 p.m. Tuesday and was followed by "six aftershocks," the last of which ended just before 11 p.m., said Dr. Edward Chiburis, assistant director of the Western, Mass., Observatory.

Maine state police said they had no reports of damage "except a couple broken windows, and we're not sure about those."

Chiburis said the quake was centered in the Bath-Brunswick area, a few miles west of Wiscasset, site of the Maine Yankee nuclear plant. The plant was one of five East Coast nuclear plants shut down last month because of questions about their ability to withstand an earthquake.

But authorities reported no damage at Maine Yankee, and Chiburis said the quake was "not energetic enough to do any damage to structures," except perhaps cause plaster to fall in "very old houses."

The tremor was "not of the intensity that would cause any damage" to the plant, said Donald C. Laubenstein, a spokesman for Central Maine Power Co., major owner of Maine Yankee.

Chiburis said the second tremor — at 9:42 p.m. — measured 2.4, and the five other aftershocks registered less than 2.0. The quake was felt as far south as Plymouth, Mass., as far north as Bangor, Rockland and Waterville, Maine, and into central and southern New Hampshire, he said.

It was the most severe quake in northern New England since June 1973 when a tremor measuring 4.8 was felt on the borders of New Hampshire, Maine and Quebec, he said.

Driver Charged In Car Mishap

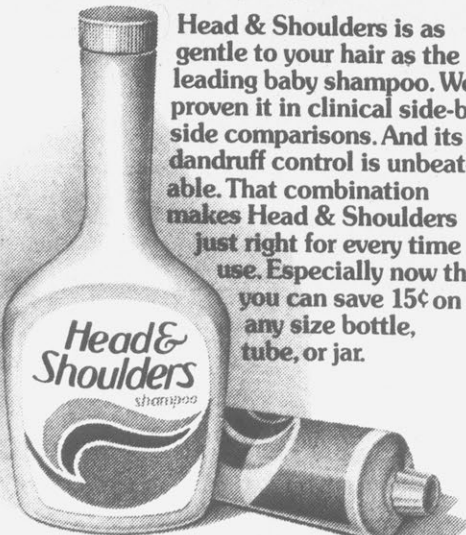

Doctor Glenn Bowen of Route 1, Ayden, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:40 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive yesterday.

Police reported the Bowen car collided with a vehicle driven by Oliver Wats Hamill of Bath, causing an estimated $300 damage to each of the two cars.

Assembly Seeks Set Intermediate Pot Penalty

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislators are still trying to agree on intermediate penalties for the possession of marijuana, but they stopped short Tuesday of approving a bill that would make possession of eight ounces or less a misdemeanor.

The House Judiciary II Committee delayed action on a bill introduced by Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, that would have reduced possession penalties by making eight ounces or less a misdemeanor rather than a felony.

Under current law, possession of any amount over an ounce is a felony.

Adams' original bill called for the possession of a pound of marijuana and 20 plants to be reduced from felonies to misdemeanors.

But his bill was amended, cutting the amount and the number of plants in half. Tuesday, the judiciary committee deleted the section on possession of plants altogether.

After that change, committee members halted action on the bill because of the amount. Rep. Dave DeRamus, D-Forsyth, said he expected a bill making possession of eight ounces a misdemeanor would have trouble on the floor.

The bill has already been sent back from the floor once because opponents said it was too lenient.

Adams said he expects the amount to be halved again to four ounces. But he said that didn't matter as long as some sort of intermediate penalty range was established.

"It could go to one-and-a-half ounces and still be better than not doing anything," Adams said.

The committee will probably take up the bill again at its meeting Thursday.

In other legislative action Tuesday:

Food Tax
The move to repeal the state's 3 percent sales tax on food isn't dead yet, though its chances for passage are still slim, the bill's sponsor says.

Rep. Charles Holt, D-Cumberland, made his pitch for the food-tax repeal before the House Finance Committee, and said he was pleased with the response he got. The bill now goes to a subcommittee sorting through various tax-cut proposals.

The House and Senate finance committees voted Holt's measure a low priority a week ago in a non-binding vote on tax-cut proposals, while giving top priority to several income-tax plans.

Stolen Twice, His Car Is Now Up For Sale

BLOOMINGDALE, N.J. (AP) — A car that was stolen twice on Easter Sunday is up for sale now because the owner says it's too attractive to thieves.

"It's too fast for me," said Alan Patten, 41, whose 1975 Plymouth was built as a police pursuit car that can do 140 mph. It's also too fast for the local police.

The police gave chase to the car when it was spotted after the second theft. "It was traveling faster than our police cars could go," said police Sgt. Donald Fagan.

The first time Patten's car disappeared was about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, when it was parked at his home. The car was found in a school yard about five blocks away. Patten drove the car home and parked it.

"We were having Easter dinner," Patten recalled. "And my son's girlfriend said, 'Someone is taking the car.'"

Police were alerted, gave chase and lost. The car was found abandoned under a bridge.

New Building Is Up For March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spring is bringing more than just an abundance in nature's growth. The government says Americans are building a lot more, too.

The Census Bureau reported Tuesday that new housing construction in March was 30 percent higher than the previous month. It said March construction starts were at an annual rate of nearly 1.8 million single family homes and apartments. However, that was still 11 percent below the number of new starts in March 1978.

But Holt said he believes his bill, or perhaps reduction of the tax by 1 percent, may still have a chance in the subcommittee of which he is a member.

Insurance
Members of the House Insurance Committee may vote again on a compromise they reached Tuesday between the insurance industry and Insurance Commissioner John Ingram over regulations governing the sale of life insurance.

The committee voted 8-8 to amend a bill requiring life insurance sellers to provide consumers with information comparing their policies with others on the market. The bill is favored by the industry, but Ingram said it isn't strict enough. The amendment incorporated some of his rules.

Committee Chairman J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, broke the tie by voting for the amendment.

But he said Tuesday afternoon the vote tally had been questioned and would be taken over if the committee agreed today to reconsider.

Divorce
A bill that would cut in half the one-year separation period required for obtaining a divorce won final approval in the Senate.

The measure, introduced by Sen. James Edwards, D-Caldwell, won approval with little discussion on a 36-12 vote. It now goes to the House.

Opponents had argued in committee that cutting the waiting period to six months might hamper chances for reconciliation in a troubled marriage.

But Edwards told senators that six months was long enough for reconciliation efforts.

Banks
The Senate delayed action on a bill that would require a majority of public members on the three state commissions regulating the banking industry and sent it back to committee for further study.

Action was stalled when senators could not agree on the wording of an amendment that was added in the Senate Banking Committee. It would allow stockholders who own less than one half of one percent of a financial institution's stock to be eligible to serve as public members of the commissions.

The bill is aimed at preventing industry domination of the state Banking Commission, Credit Union Commission and Savings and Loan Commission.

Drugs
Final House approval was withheld on a generic drug bill. It was sent back to committee for more work after gaining tentative approval on a unanimous vote Monday night.

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, said one of the provisions appeared to be in conflict with federal regulations.

The bill would allow pharmacists to substitute another drug for the brand denoted by a physician if the other drug was of equal medical value and cost less than the brand name.

Larceny
A House-passed bill that would increase the value of stolen property subject to prosecution as felony larceny won final approval in the Senate. Now, theft amounting to less than $200 is a misdemeanor. The bill would raise that amount to $400, making theft of amounts greater than $400 subject to felony prosecution and amounts less than $400 subject to misdemeanor prosecution.

Others
The House approved and sent the Senate a bill changing state regulation of employee political action committees to allow companies whose employees run a PAC to contribute administrative costs to the operation of the political fund.

A bill that would allow the state's technical institutes to be renamed technical colleges won approval in the House Higher Education Committee and was sent to the full House.

How N.C. Representatives And Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the days before the current Easter recess.

HOUSE
PEACE CORPS — The House voted, 276 for and 116 against, to remove the Peace Corps from the agency called Action. The Peace Corps probably would be linked to the State Department's foreign aid agency, although this amendment did not rule out the remote possibility it could become an independent agency. The vote came during debate on HR 3324, a foreign aid bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill., a supporter, called the amendment a "compromise" favored by those who feel the Peace Corps has become politicized in the Action agency and those who want it to operate more in concert with U.S. foreign aid programs.

Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., an opponent, said the amendment would "transform the soul of the Peace Corps from a person-to-person nonpolitical agency into an agency that is wrapped in development programs."

Members voting "nay" wanted to keep the Peace Corps where it is now.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-6, voted "nay."

RHODESIA — By a vote of 180 for and 190 against, the House rejected a plan to send a team of official U.S. observers to the mid-April elections in Rhodesia. The elections are to determine whether the country adopts the "internal settlement" proposed by Prime Minister Ian Smith to end white domination of Rhodesia. The vote came during consideration of HR 3324 (see vote above).

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., said a vote in favor of sending the delegation "simply puts us on the side of a new freely elected black majority government in Africa and against...the terrorists, the bombers, those who shoot down planes, those who make our airline policy in the State Department and whose who gather on the floor of the House and support that policy."

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., an opponent, said that if the House votes to send observers, "by tomorrow morning every key figure in Africa is going to (conclude) that the U.S. House of Representatives has decided to throw its weight behind the internal settlement." He said the U.S. should be neutral at this time.

Members voting "yea"

generally were sympathetic to the "internal settlement" proposed by Ian Smith.

Jones, Fountain, Andrews, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Whitley, Neal and Hefner voted "nay."

Preyer and Rose did not vote.

STATE DEPT. — The House refused, 136 for and 236 against, to kill a new agency proposed for the State Department. The vote came during debate on HR 3324 (see above votes). It paved the way for establishing the Institute for Scientific and Technological Cooperation at a first-year cost of $25 million. A chief mission of the institute would be to increase the role of U.S. science and technology in helping under-developed countries.

Rep. Don J. Pease, D-Ohio, a supporter, said the institute "is an awfully good investment of our time and effort to build an indigenous capacity within those nations to use science and technology for their own development."

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., an opponent, questioned the need to create "a brand new bureaucracy" at a time he suspects most of its proposed functions are "already being carried out by other agencies of the government...."

Members voting "nay" favored establishing the State Department research and development agency.

Broyhill voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE
SCHOOL PRAYER — The Senate voted 53 for and 40 against to shelve an amendment allowing prayers to be said in public schools. The prayer amendment would counter the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that school prayers breach the constitutional separation of church and state. This vote stripped the amendment from the bill (S 210) establishing a Department of Education. Final action on the bill is pending.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., a supporter of shelving the amendment, and thus an opponent of public school prayer, said "our relationship with the Almighty is an individual one, not to be prescribed by some governmental body...."

Sen. Roger Jespen, R-Iowa, said the amendment "only gives our children the freedom to pray in school if they wish; it does not tell them or anyone they must pray. I believe this is their basic constitutionally guaranteed right."

Senators voting "nay" favor allowing prayers to be said in public schools.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

STUMP FARMER — You Woo, 72, lives alone on a stump farm near Redmond, Washington, accompanied only by goats, ducks, chickens, geese and an occasional coyote that sneaks in to attack the others. But he is content; and worries only that some kind-hearted woman will try to move in and improve his lot. (AP Laserphoto)

Airline Traffic Steadily Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Domestic and international traffic for scheduled airlines increased by 21.2 percent in February compared with the same month of 1978, according to the Air Transport Association.

For the first two months, scheduled airline traffic was up 17.7 percent from the same period a year ago.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — N.C. broilers: Market steady. Supply moderate. Demand good. N.C. dock weighted average price is 47.25 cents per pound this week for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today totaled 1,540,000 head and average live weight 3.96 pounds per bird on April 13.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — N.C. hens: market lower for heavy type hens. Supply moderate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm 27½ to 28 cents.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — State Farmers Market: (wholesale prices) apples - bushels 5.00-7.00; Traypack cartons 10.00-12.50; Snap beans - bushel 8.00; Cabbage - 50 pound bags 6.50-9.00; Collards - bushels 5.00; Corn - crates 6.25-6.50; Cucumbers - bushels 12.00-15.00; Oranges - cartons 6.00-6.50; Grapefruits - cartons 4.50-6.00; Lettuce - cartons 6.00-6.75; Peppers - bushels 11.00-13.00; Irish potatoes - 50 pound bags 3.25-5.00.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — New York broilerfryers: market activity is very irregular. Buying interest or current needs is light and spot loads are ample and easily available at levels 2 cents under Monday's majorities. However, advanced interest is fair and most processors are unwilling at this time to commit product at the lower levels for end of the week shipment. Retail and distributive movement is sluggish as store traffic is light in most instances. Undertone unsettled and confused.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — N.C. Eggs: Market lower. Supplies adequate. N.C. weighted average price for small sales of consumer grade A eggs in cartons delivered to retail stores: 71.35 cents per dozen for large white; medium 63.29; small 48.03.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — New York Eggs: Prices declined on all sides. Trade sentiment is uneasy. Cartoned egg demand is irregular. Prices to retailers - sales to volume buyers, consumer grade A white eggs in cartons delivered: store door: A extra large 69-72; A large 68-70; A medium 59-61.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — Graded feeder pig sales: Smithfield: 1,962 head sold - 40-50 No. 1s and 2s 99.00, No. 3s 92.25; 50-60 lbs. No. 1s and 2s 91.50, No. 3s 76.89...Wallace - Chadbourne: 3,403 head sold - 40-50 lbs. No. 1s and 2s 98.76, No. 3s 94.00; 50-60 lbs. No. 1s and 2s 91.08, No. 3s 80.25 per cwt...Statesville - 575 head sold - 40-50 lbs. No. 1s and 2s 98.85, No. 3s 91.50; 50-60 lbs. No. 1s and 2s 92.38, No. 3s 86.00.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today as investors watched for signs of the future course of interest rates.

Gainers took a 7-6 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.00 to 859.93 in the first half hour.

The week began amid some speculation that the Federal Reserve's policy-setting Open Market Committee, which held its monthly meeting Tuesday, might seek to tighten credit further.

But G. William Miller, the Fed's chairman, told several interviewers he was against imposing any additional restraint on credit.

In the money markets late Tuesday, analysts said there was no evidence that the Fed was taking a tighter monetary policy, and bond prices rallied.

Chase Manhattan rose ¾ to 34¼ in active early trading. The bank holding company posted a 78 percent increase in its operating earnings for the first quarter.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 2.52 to 857.93, bringing its loss since the start of the week to 12.57 points.

Declines outnumbered advances by a 5-4 spread on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 29.26 million shares against 28.05 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index was unchanged at 57.05. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .38 to 178.65.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Thai armed forces have launched a campaign against a large Communist stronghold in southern Thailand, a military spokesman says.

Hospital...

bably will not be as high as it has been.

He said approval was given for a $34,933 contract with L. A. Reynolds Company for parking lot improving.

Charles Gaskins, County Commission representative to the hospital board, who serves on the Building Committee, said Freeman and White Associates, planners of the new bed tower, have presented plans for the tower, with some changes suggested by committee members. Another meeting for discussion of the bed tower with the architects is set for Apr. 20, he said. He alluded to "difficulty with getting a certificate of need for the tower."

He and Dean Laupus both expressed the opinion that the need finally will be proved. The difficulty, they said, seems to be with the federal HEW Department.

Hospital Director Jack Richardson reported that the hospital can only accommodate another 10 percent increase in activity "till we get more beds."

He said the County Commissioners have been asked for "more time, people and space on the county computer" for the hospital. He said the Commissioners are "making significant efforts" to allow for this.

Personnel Manager Craig Quick reported that the hospital's nurse recruiting program is continuing very well, with 37 nurses, 15 of them ECU graduates, confirmed to "come on board" during May and June. Some 14 more interviews are set up, he said. He added that 13 Canadian nurses have said they'll come here, the result of a recruiting program carried out by the local Personnel Dept. in Canada a few weeks ago. He said the Student Nurse Internship Program will be carried out this year, with 33 taking part. Of the 15 who took part last year, he said seven later applied for jobs at PCMH.

Plant Manager Ralph Hall said that four of the seven courtyards in the hospital are now landscaped, thanks to the voluntary contributions of local groups and individuals and labor supplied by the hospital.

It was announced that "a big budget workshop" to which trustees and county commissioners are invited, is set for June 19. The trustees are invited, also, to the First Annual Health Law Forum to be held by the ECU Medical School Friday in the Teaching Auditorium of the hospital.

Aver Child Bore Scars

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The chief Wake County medical examiner testified Tuesday in the first day of a murder trial that the body of a five-year-old Raleigh girl was covered with scars, cuts and bruises before she died in November 1977.

Margaret Catherine Mapp and her husband, Charles T. Mapp, are being tried on second-degree murder charges in connection with the Nov. 21, 1977, death of Margaret Catherine Spence. The youngster was Mrs. Mapp's daughter from a previous marriage.

Dr. Laurin J. Kaasa testified that along with external injuries, the child also had internal wounds that had not been treated.

Kaasa was scheduled to continue his testimony in the trial today.

Mrs. Mapp had been charged with first-degree murder, but Mike Payne, an assistant Wake district attorney, dropped the first-degree murder charge Tuesday.

At a pretrial hearing last January, Kaasa testified that Margaret Spence died of a blood clot in her throat that obstructed her breathing, causing her to suffocate. Kaasa's medical report said the clot apparently was caused by a jagged cut inside the child's lower jaw.

Witnesses Tuesday included eight-year-old Charles Robert Spence, Mrs. Spence's son from her previous marriage, and Emma Sills of Raleigh, Mrs. Mapp's sister.

Mrs. Sills testified that the girl was born prematurely, was a sickly child and had been subject to seizures throughout her life. She said the child was "clumsy" and often hurt herself when she fell down.

INTERESTED IN TRADE

HONG KONG (AP) — Despite the Nationalist Chinese government's ban on dealing with the Chinese Communists, several trade delegations from Taiwan are in Canton for the Communists' major export showcase, the 45th Canton Trade Fair, a Hong Kong Communist newspaper reports.

Re-Elected

Mrs. Lois Worthington, City Clerk here, was re-elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the North Carolina City Clerks Association recently.

Mrs. Worthington's election took place at the association's annual meeting in Wrightsville Beach.

The board member, who has served as city clerk here since July of 1974, recently completed a two-year term on the board of directors.

At the annual conference, she was also a participant in a panel discussion and gave a presentation on records management for the city of Greenville.

Mrs. Worthington joined the city staff in 1955.

Remain Lowest Merriman Trio Will Perform

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Wages in North Carolina remained the lowest in the nation in February, according to the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The average factory worker in North Carolina earned $4.73 an hour in February, up 4 cents over the level of the previous month. The average factory worker in February of 1978 was $4.33 an hour.

For the nation as a whole, the average hourly factory wage in February of this year was $6.50.

Mississippi had the second lowest factory wage in February, $4.87 an hour, and Rhode Island was next at $4.96.

Ambassador Is Said Selected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sources say a new U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua has already been selected to replace Maurice Solana, who is resigning for personal reasons.

State Department officials who asked not to be named said Solana's decision to retire has nothing to do with the strain in relations between the two countries. They said announcement of his successor is expected shortly.

Obituaries

Faison

FARMVILLE — Mrs. Mary L. Faison died at her home, 204 W. Perry St., Farmville, Tuesday. She was the mother of Miss Hilda M. Faison of the home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flanagan Funeral Home.

Kozora

Mrs. Lorriene Kozora, 64, died Tuesday at her home, 304 Bubba Ave., here. Funeral arrangements are incomplete and will be announced later by the Wilkerson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Kozora, an Illinois native, had been a Greenville area resident for the past two years. She was a member of Parker's Chapel F.W.B. Church.

Smith

FARMVILLE — Funeral services for Mr. William Guy Smith of 907 S. George St. here will be conducted Friday at 3 p.m. in the Little Rock Missionary Baptist Church in New Bern. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery in New Bern.

Mr. Smith, who died Saturday, was a New Bern native who had made his home in Farmville for a number of years. He was a former employee of A. C. Monk Tobacco Company and the 3-D Ranch, both near here.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Dupree Smith of the home, and two sisters, Miss Annie Mae Smith and Mrs. Bertha Marrow, both of New Bern.

The body will be on view at Joyner's Mortuary here after 5 o'clock today. The family visitation hour will be held tonight from 7 to 8 o'clock, after which the body will be taken to New Bern.

Wilson

Mrs. Josephine Wilson died this morning in the University Nursing Home here. She was the mother of Mrs. Helen Adams of Greenville and Mrs. Louise Rollins of Baltimore, Md. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Phillips Brothers Mortuary.

NEXT COMMANDANT
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced today he will nominate Gen. Robert H. Barrow, a three-war veteran who cracked down on training abuses, to become the 27th commandant of the Marine Corps.

The Atlanta Hawks and Philadelphia 76ers are heading home, one team having accomplished its short-range goal and the other hoping that home cooking will get it on the right track.

The surprising Hawks evened their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series Tuesday with a 107-99 victory over the defending National Basketball Association champion

Washington Bullets. The series resumes Friday in Atlanta, where the Hawks have won 17 straight games.

The Sixers, reeling under a two-game deficit in their series with San Antonio after a 121-120 loss in Texas Tuesday, return to Philadelphia wondering if they can stop George Gervin.

The Western Conference semifinals got underway with Seattle besting Los Angeles 112-101 and Phoenix defeating Kansas City 102-99. The Sonics entering the Lakers again tonight while the Suns host the Kings again Friday.

"This victory gives us control of the series," said Hawks center Tree Rollins, who was scoreless in Atlanta's opening loss to the Bullets but had 13 points in Game 2. "If we win in Atlanta, we take the series."

The Hawks have been doing nothing but winning at home lately but their task is a difficult one against Washington.

"Remember, we have the best winning record in the league on the road," said Bullets forward Bobby Dandridge, a 36-point scorer Tuesday. "I wouldn't be surprised if we went down there and won two games."

"We still haven't played the way we did in the regular season when we were at our peak. That should come in Atlanta. Then they'll see the real Washington Bullets."

The Washington fans saw the real Hawks as Atlanta made some defensive adjustments and hustled all over the court, typical of Coach Hubie Brown's unheralded troops.

"We got maximum offense down the stretch and we moved Dan Roundfield on Dandridge when (Elvin) Hayes got in foul trouble," explained Brown. "That move aided us and neutralized their strength. They no longer got second shots and there were no more long passes."

Atlanta's balanced scoring was led by Roundfield and Eddie Johnson with 17 points. Drew and Terry Furlow had 14. Hayes, who had 31 in the opener, scored only 10 points but had eight rebounds, four assists and seven blocked shots.

Spurs 121, 76ers 120
Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham will have to find someone to stop Gervin, the NBA scoring leader the past two seasons, if the Sixers hope to get past the Spurs, a team that hasn't won a playoff round since it was the Dallas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association in 1968.

With 6-foot-6 All-Star guard

Doug Collins injured, Cunningham has tried forwards Bobby Jones and Joe Bryant and guards Henry Bibby and Al Skinner on Gervin, the "Ice-man." But the 6-7 Gervin has scored 31 and 29 points in the two Spur victories.

"For me to guard 'Ice,' we'll have to get more action on defense," said Jones. "You have to recover so quickly on defense because he can beat you."

"Jones was tougher but I've got to be ready to work no matter who they put on me," noted Gervin.

Larry Kenon scored 27 and James Silas had 25 for San Antonio. Philadelphia was led by Julius Erving with 25 points.

The Spurs needed free throws from Mike Gale and Allan Bristow in the final 12 seconds to nail down the victory.

"This was the biggest win in the history of the franchise," said Silas, one of two former Chaparrals remaining.

Sonics 112, Lakers 101
Seattle overcame a 17-point first-half deficit, took the lead for good with 5:46 left in the third period and held off Los Angeles. Gus Williams was high for the Sonics with 27 points and Dennis Johnson had 26. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar paced the Lakers with 25.

"I still think the key is how well we play Gus Williams," said Lakers Coach Jerry West. "We didn't do good tonight. I thought we played well but our inability to stop Williams and Dennis Johnson hurt us."

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens said, "The most pleasing thing was that we won after the lay-off (of one week after a first-round bye). At the start we were not in our natural rhythm. We felt that as long as we kept playing defense it would come around."

ECU To Present Case To NCAA

East Carolina University will present its case to the NCAA Friday in a meeting in Denver, Colorado.

The school's basketball program has been under investigation for the past year over alleged recruiting violations of Al Tyson, who was a freshman member of the team this past season.

An NCAA investigator was in Greenville yesterday, and reportedly talked with Tyson and others in relation with the case. East Carolina officials said they were not sure who, if anyone, was questioned.

The NCAA has made several trips into Greenville to talk with Tyson, his high school coach Shelly Marsh, and with former ECU coach Larry Gillman and assistant coach Herb Dillon about the investigation.

Reportedly, there are five charges against East Carolina, all involved in the Tyson recruiting. It is believed that the most serious involves charges that Tyson attended the East Carolina Basketball Camp, run by Gillman, free of charge.

Attending the meeting with the NCAA Friday will be Clinton Prewitt, representing the chancellor; athletic director Bill Cain, and ECU attorney Dave Stevens.

"We will present our brief to the alleged violations," Prewitt said today. "They all center around the Tyson case, but we don't think that they (the NCAA) have established anything."

Prewitt said he did not expect Tyson to accompany the ECU party to Denver for the meeting. Regardless of how the meeting turns out, Prewitt said he did not expect the NCAA to have any answer to East Carolina this weekend.

Should the NCAA decide to impose any penalties on the school or on any specific person, it would be announced by that organization at its own convenience. If the school is found not guilty, the NCAA would make no announcement, and any word then would be up to East Carolina to release.

Jamesville Nips Roanoke, 5-0

JAMESVILLE — Hosting Jamesville outlasted Roanoke in the finals of the Jamesville Invitational Baseball Tournament last night, gaining a 5-0 11-inning victory.

Tommy DiNardo started the game for the Bullets on the mound and locked up in a pitching duel with Roanoke's Anthony Latham. DiNardo came out in the fifth in favor of Trent Ange, who stayed the rest of the way and got the victory.

Latham continued until the 11th when he ran out of gas, and Jamesville took advantage of it.

Toby Holliday led off the 11th with a walk, and Danny Lilley and Ange all reached the same way. Keith Modlin singled in Holliday and DiNardo walked, scoring Lilley. Alan Frazier's sacrifice fly scored Ange, and Carl Ange singled in Modlin and DiNardo with the final runs.

Both teams had several other opportunities along the way.

Holliday, DiNardo and Latham were selected as co-Most Valuable Players in the tournament.

Holliday led the Jamesville hitting with three, while Glen Cargile had two for Roanoke. Jamesville is now 12-1 and plays host to Chocowinity on Friday, while Roanoke falls to 7-2 and travels to Plymouth on Tuesday.

In the third place game, Tarboro took a 7-2 win over Southwest Edgecombe.

Jamesville 000 000 000 05-5 9 3
Roanoke 000 000 000 00-0 6 3
DiNardo, Ange (5) and Holliday; Latham, Griffin (11), Matthews (11) and Lee.

Rampants Top Pack Netters

Rose High School's tennis team captured a 7-2 victory over Washington High School yesterday.

The Rampants lost twice during the singles, bowing in the number three and number six positions, then swept the doubles to clinch the match.

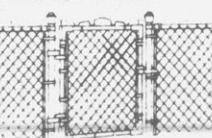

The victory improved the Rampant record to 8-2 on the year. They return to action on Tuesday, playing host to North Nash.

Summary:
Fred Matney (R) defeated Bill Manning, 6-2, 6-0.

Ryan Silences Twins With Shutout

By BRUCE LOWITT

AP Sports Writer

The Minnesota Twins fans gave Rod Carew a standing ovation. Thanks to Nolan Ryan, it was the only time they cheered all day.

Carew, the seven-time American League batting champion who was traded by the Twins to California last winter, returned Tuesday to Minnesota for the first time.

He was welcomed with open arms by the 37,270 paying customers attending the Twins' home opener.

Then Ryan took the mound and silenced the Twins on four hits, striking out 10 batters en route to his 38th career shutout, a 6-0 victory by the Angels.

In Tuesday's other American League games, Oakland nosed out Seattle 6-5, Boston edged Milwaukee 6-5, New York beat Baltimore 5-1, Texas trimmed Cleveland 6-2, Detroit defeated

Kansas City 6-3 and Chicago whipped Toronto 6-1.

Carew, who made about $150,000 last year — far below the going rate for superstars — is now in the $750,000-a-year range with California.

He batted four times and got one single, in the eighth inning. But his bat — he's hitting at a .357 clip — wasn't needed. By the end of the seventh inning California had all its runs.

Ryan outpitched the Twins'

Dave Goltz with a three-hit, 10-strikeout performance last week for his other victory this season. He got the only run he needed Tuesday in the first inning when Rick Miller opened the game with a triple off Goltz and scored on Don Baylor's single.

A's 6, Mariners 5

Oakland attracted a crowd — crowd? — of 653 paying customers, barely half their previous mark for dismal attendance of 1,252 fans.

And the way the A's and Mariners played, perhaps they'd have preferred to keep the game a total secret. The teams committed an even dozen errors, nine by Seattle. The A's squeezed out the victory on Jim Essian's two-out, bases-loaded single in the ninth inning.

Red Sox 6, Brewers 5

Fred Lynn is supposed to hit more for average than for distance — but right now he's miles ahead of where he expected to be.

"I can't keep this up. Nobody can," he said after hitting his sixth home run of the young season, tops in the majors. The ninth-inning shot came after Jerry Remy coaxed a leadoff walk from former Boston teammate Reggie Cleveland. It vaulted the Red Sox to their victory and cut the Brewers' East Division lead to one-half game over the Red Sox and Yankees.

Yanks 5, Orioles 1

The Yanks' Ron Guidry found the smoke that had deserted him in his first two starts, checked the Orioles on three hits and fanned 10 Baltimore batters en route to his first victory.

"I was throwing hard," he acknowledged. "I wasn't trying to, but I was ... Mentally this game is going to help me. I've got to where I don't have to worry about pacing myself to go nine."

Reggie Jackson's leadoff

homer in the seventh broke a 1-1 tie and New York added three runs in the eighth, two on Roy White's double.

Rangers 6, Indians 2

Buddy Bell, never a big RBI man with Cleveland, burned his former teammates with three RBI for Texas, leading the Rangers to their seventh victory in eight games. It was also their 13th in a row over the Indians, a streak that started 366 days ago.

Tigers 6, Royals 3

Steve Kemp's seventh-inning single off Al Hrabosky broke a 3-3 tie, then Milt May made the Mad Hungarian madder with a two-run double to lead the Tigers past Kansas City. The Royals played the game under protest over an interference call that temporarily took a run away from them in the top of the seventh.

White Sox 6, Blue Jays 1

Wayne Nordhagen drove in a pair of runs while Francisco Barrios and Mike Proly teamed on a three-hitter in Chicago's victory over Toronto.

Barrios retired 14 batters in a row before John Mayberry led off the seventh with a double.

Proly then took over, retired the side and held Toronto hitless the rest of the way.

Chris Evert Is Wed To British Player; Honeymooning In Europe

By ANNE S. CROWLEY

Associated Press Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert and John Lloyd, pelted with rice bought by police at the last minute and toasted at a well-guarded but lavish wedding banquet, begin their honeymoon today at an undisclosed spot in Europe.

The tennis stars were married Tuesday evening by the Rev. Vincent Kelly, the bride's high school principal, at St. Anthony's Catholic Church here before 100 close friends and relatives.

The vows were traditional, but Miss Evert, who will continue to use her maiden name, chose popular organ and guitar music to accompany them. A rendition of "Sunrise, Sunset" from "Fiddler on the Roof" evoked sobs from Ana Leaird, one of the bridesmaids.

Everything went smoothly until the guests, waiting outside as the wedding party posed for pictures, asked for rice. A squad car was dispatched, and minutes later a police officer passed out handfuls from the five bags he'd just bought.

The appearance of the newlyweds brought cheers from about 500 persons straining police guardrails. One couple held up a sign calling the newlyweds "a perfect set."

American and British flags — symbolizing the bride's and groom's nationalities — flanked the door to a banquet room at the locked and guarded Largo Mar Beach Club.

Tennis luminaries such as Billie Jean King, Ilie Nastase, Vitas Gerulaitis and Brian Gottfried were on the guest list, but the only major touring pros who showed up were Martina Navratilova and Rosie Casals.

The 25-minute ceremony capped a nine-month romance that began when a friend introduced Miss Evert, the No. 1 female player, and Lloyd, a lesser-ranked British Davis Cup player, at Wimbledon, the scene of some of the bride's greatest triumphs.

They were engaged on Miss Evert's 24th birthday, Dec. 21. Her soft-spoken, reserved groom, also 24, is a far cry from tempestuous tennis star Jimmy Connors, to whom Miss Evert was once engaged.

Rams, Tigers Post Victories

ROCKY MOUNT — Greene Central captured third place, while Williamston took seventh in the Rocky Mount Breakfast Optimists Invitational Baseball Tournament yesterday.

The Rams downed Wilson Hunt, 11-4, to capture third place in the eight-team field, while Williamston gained a 3-2 triumph over Raleigh Sanderson for seventh.

Hosting Rocky Mount took first place with a 9-4 victory over Northern Nash, while Southern Nash nipped Oxford Webb, 7-5, in a nine-inning game for fifth place.

Greene Central got all it needed in the first inning, pushing over five runs. Greg Holmes and Jimbo Fulghum led off with walks and Al Murray singled to load the bases. Donald Shaw reached on an error, scoring Holmes and Fulghum. Jeff Scott then tripled in Murray and Shaw. Cohen Cox grounded out, scoring Scott with the fifth run.

Greene Central then added two more in the second and four in the seventh. Hunt scored once in the first, twice in the second and one more in the fourth.

Murray led the Rams hitting with two, while Robert Wells had two for Greene Central.

Scott and Kevin Korpi were selected to the All-Tournament team from Greene Central.

Sanderson took the early lead in the game with Williamston, scoring two runs in the third inning.

Williamston then rallied in the fifth, scoring all three of its runs. Leslie Beacham and Jeff Odum both walked, scoring with Chuck Rogerson tripled. Alan Peaks then singled in Rogerson with the winning run.

The win boosted the Williamston record to 4-9, and the Tigers return to action on Tuesday, traveling to Ahoskie.

Pitch, Hit, Run Scheduled

The annual Pitch, Hit and Run Contest will be held at Elm Street Park on May 12 at 9:30 a.m.

The contest, locally sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and Burger King restaurant, is open to boys and girls ages 9-12. Age as of July 17, 1979, will determine division.

The first place winner in each of the four age groups will advance into district competition, to be held later in the spring. The top eight district scorers from the division, not necessarily from the same district, will move up, with winners there moving into the national finals at the All-Star Game, July 17, in the Kingdome, Seattle, Washington.

Registration may be done at Elm Street Gym, South Greenville Gym, West Greenville Gym, or at the Burger King. An April 30 deadline for registration has been set.

Contestants will be given three pitches to a target; three swings for hitting distance, and timed in a 90-foot distance, with points awarded in each category.

Only 28 In Field For Champs Tourney

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

day's start of the $300,000 Tournament of Champions. Mahaffey, who underwent surgery on his left hand that was damaged in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, has been out of action for almost three months. He arrived in La Costa over the weekend to practice for this exclusive event that brings together only the winners of regular pro golf tour tournaments from the preceding 12 months. "He tried to play, but the hand became badly swollen and he had to quit," one tournament official said. "He could have teed off and played a couple of holes and then pulled out and gotten last-place money ($3,400)," another official said, "but he said that wouldn't be right, wouldn't be fair to the people or the sponsors so he withdrew and went home." Mahaffey, whose career has been plagued by injuries, last year won the Ben Hogan award for a comeback from another hand injury as well as elbow problems. That comeback was capped by his victory in the PGA National Championship.

He also won another American tour title in 1978, took the individual championship in the prestigious World Cup and then touched off the 1979 season by winning the first event, the Bob Hope Desert Classic. With him out, nine multiple winners are left in the field that will be chasing a first prize of $54,000 over the 6,889-yard, par-72 La Costa Country Club course. The most recent, of course, is newly crowned Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, who also won in nearby San Diego earlier this season. Zoeller said he's "still on Cloud 9" from his playoff victory in Augusta, Ga. One of the men he beat in that sudden death affair, Tom Watson, comes in with perhaps the strongest credentials, however.

Hard To Find Good Sign In 13-2 Loss

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Pittsburgh Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner looked like a man grabbing at straws when he singled out 31-year-old right-handed relief pitcher Enrique Romo as the bright spot in a 13-2 loss to Philadelphia.

It was Romo who yielded Garry Maddox's grand slam homer in the Phils' six-run fifth inning Tuesday night.

However, pointed out Tanner, in the next 22-3 innings, Romo gave up one hit, struck out five and didn't walk a man.

"Romo is a good sign. After he gave up the grand slam, he came back, he didn't fall on his face," Tanner said.

Outside of Romo, there wasn't much to cheer about on the Pittsburgh bench. The Phils pasted starter Bert Blyleven, 0-2, for 10 hits and seven runs in the first 22-3 innings, and they went on to collect 17 hits in the ball game.

Bake McBride homered twice to drive in five runs and Mike Schmidt added a solo shot, his fourth, for the Phils. Steve Carlton, 2-1, went six innings, gave up both of Pittsburgh's runs on Bill Robinson's first-inning homer, and rested the last three innings.

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal edged the New York Mets 5-4 in 12 innings, the Chicago Cubs downed St. Louis 5-3, Cincinnati whipped Atlanta 7-4, San Diego got by San Francisco 4-3 and Los Angeles topped Houston 10-6.

The Phils now have won all three meetings of the two teams this season, and it was Carlton's second victory of the season over Blyleven.

Expos 5, Mets 4

Rodney Scott drilled a single to right field, scoring Dave Cash, and gave Montreal a 12-inning victory over New York. Cash, a pinch hitter, drew a walk off Mets reliever Skip Lockwood and advanced to second on a sacrifice by Andre Dawson, whose seventh-inning homer had tied it 4-4. Willie Montanez picked up his first homer of the season for the Mets, a two-run shot in the fourth.

Cubs 5, Cards 3

Rookie Scott Thompson singled twice and doubled, driving in two runs, and Dave Kingman clouted a two-run homer that carried the Cubs and left-hand-er Ken Holtzman to victory. The win was Holtzman's first in the National League since 1971.

Ted Simmons drove in two of St. Louis' runs with his second homer of the season in the fifth. Kingman's homer was his third.

Reds 7, Braves 4

Cincinnati scored all its runs in the first inning, getting two-run hits each from winning pitcher Tom Hume and Dan Driessen. The Reds sent 11 men to the plate in the first inning, eight of them after two were out. Hume went 7-2-3 innings, surviving a pair of homers by Braves catcher Dale Murphy and a solo shot that Gary Matthews nearly put into the third-level seats in left field at Riverfront Stadium.

Padres 4, Giants 3

Gene Tenace hit a two-run homer, his first of the season, and Dave Winfield drove in the winning run for the Padres in the eighth with a single. Rolie Fingers got the victory — his first decision — in relief of Eric Rasmussen. Rasmussen checked the Giants on four hits

"I blew a national championship before 42 million people five years ago," he said. "When the game was over, (Marquette center) Maurice Lucas told me, 'Coach, you blew that one.' I said, 'Maurice, you've come a long way, and you wouldn't be here without me. I'll come back.'"

Dodgers 10, Astros 6

Steve Yeager, who was hitless coming into the game, smacked a two-run homer in the eighth inning to break a 6-6 tie and boost the Dodgers over the Astros. Yeager was one of three Dodgers who homered. Steve Garvey had two home runs and Dusty Baker added a solo shot. Jerry Reuss, 1-0, got the victory in relief of Andy Messersmith, who yielded a three-run homer to Cesar Cedeno in the sixth.

McGuire Not Rushing To Take New Position

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — It's seashells and balloons on the lecture and speakers' circuit these days for Al McGuire, who sees no urgency in seeking more permanent employment.

The colorful former Marquette University basketball coach need not apply for food stamps. A Milwaukee sports equipment manufacturer has retained him as a $100,000 a year consultant, and he earns an estimated $80,000 to $125,000 a year as a sportscaster for NBC.

McGuire, who has said he will never coach again, disclosed Tuesday he has had preliminary talks with three National Basketball Association teams about positions not yet clearly defined.

"New York, New Orleans and Chicago all made some kind of entrees, but I really haven't sat down with anyone in the pros for any serious discussion," he said.

"I really have no idea what I want to do," he said. "I have no secret passions to do anything. I might want to get into some kind of promotions. I like special promotions, but what kind might open up I have no idea."

In the meantime, McGuire commands a hefty retainer as a speaker, and is in heavy demand. He addressed a marketing seminar in Dayton, Ohio,

Monday night, then flew here to speak Tuesday on sports' role in American pop culture. He regaled some 200 persons, mostly students, for an hour and 15 minutes with unprepared remarks at University of Wisconsin-Waukesha.

Firms Propose Oil Pipeline Routes To Midwest

By LARRY ROBERTS

SEATTLE (UPI) — A century ago, when the government decided to encourage the construction of transcontinental railroads to open up the West, financiers and promoters schemed and squabbled among themselves for the right to build them.

The survivors received loans and land grants and generally made a fortune.

Now the nation is facing a transportation problem that involves not passengers or freight, but crude oil, and there is a battle over who will win the right to solve it.

Ever since tankers began loading up with oil two years ago at Valdez, the southern terminus of the Alaska oil pipeline, the West Coast has been swollen with hundreds of thousands of barrels a day it cannot absorb.

At the same time, states along the northern U.S. border are facing a cutoff in the 1980s of their traditional supplies of Canadian crude.

There is presently no way to move the surplus east except to take it by tanker 10,000 miles out of the way through the Panama Canal. That is an expensive operation and does nothing to solve impending shortages in the northern states.

More than a dozen private companies are hawking their own solutions to this puzzle, ranging from shipping the oil in giant arctic icebreakers to loading it on railroad tank cars.

But the four plans being studied most carefully by federal officials all involve the building of oil superports and extensive pipelines.

"We all agree a new pipeline is needed," said Ken Hall, president of Trans Mountain Pipeline Co., one of the four. "The only thing that separates us is where we put the oil port. It's been the big question for the last five years. It's been the big question since they built the Alaska pipeline."

Trans Mountain, a Canadian firm, has proposed building a superport at Low Point, west of Puget Sound on Washington's mountainous Olympic Peninsula. A 700-mile pipeline would run under Puget Sound to the mainland, where it would enter the company's current right-of-way north through British Columbia to Edmonton, Alberta.

In Edmonton it would join with existing lines to pump oil to northern U.S. refineries. The $500 million project could carry 400,000 to 650,000 barrels of crude a day.

Probably the strongest competitor is the Northern Tier Pipeline Co., an American consortium of firms including Burlington Northern, Westinghouse and U.S. Steel.

Northern Tier's $1.7 billion project involves an oil port at Port Angeles on the Olympic Peninsula, about 17 miles east of Low Point. A 1,550-mile pipeline would extend under the sound and across the northern United States to Clearbrook, Minn., with a peak capacity of 933,000 barrels a day.

Also on the drawing board is a $1 billion plan by Foothills Pipe Line, Ltd., and Northwest Energy Co., Salt Lake City, for a port at Skagway, Alaska, and a 710-mile pipe to send 500,000 barrels a day through existing lines to Edmonton.

Foothills has proposed four variations, one of which would eliminate the oil port and construct a new 1,500-mile pipeline from the middle of the current Alaska pipeline to Edmonton. The pipe would run alongside the Alaska natural gas pipeline scheduled to be constructed by Foothills.

Under the fourth plan, Kitimat Pipe Line Ltd., of Canada, would build a port at Kitimat, British Columbia, and a 750-mile pipeline to Edmonton to pump a peak 650,000 barrels a day. The estimated cost is $750 million.

The fate of the proposals is complicated by the on-again, off-again plans of Sohio to pump its own surplus Alaska oil to Gulf Coast refineries through a pipeline from Long Beach, Calif.

Another suggestion would send the surplus to Japan in exchange for Japanese-bound oil that could be routed to the eastern United States. That is a plan strongly promoted by Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond, because the high cost of sending the oil through the Panama Canal is subtracted from the state's oil royalties. However, Congress prohibited such a trade when it authorized construction of the Alaska pipeline.

In the meantime, the four oilport-pipeline firms have applied for special consideration under an energy bill passed by Congress last year through the efforts of Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

It provides for the "expediting" of federal permits and the waiver of certain federal laws for an oil transportation system if such a move is judged by President Carter and Congress to be "in the national interest."

The Bureau of Land Management has completed a draft environmental impact statement on the Northern Tier proposal and expects to add studies of the other three plans to that report by the fall. Then the secretaries of the Interior, Energy and Transportation will make recommendations to the president, who could decide by the end of the year which, if any, is in the national interest.

The firms already have spent millions of dollars developing their proposals and taking their first steps into a jungle of permit requirements. But there are many observers who believe the fate of the plans will turn not on legal or environmental concerns, but on old-fashioned laws of supply and demand.

The pipelines would operate much like railroads, with oil producers paying tariffs to ship their crude to refineries down the pipe. None of the four firms has signed any oil companies or refiners. And potential financiers are holding off until the pipeline companies show they can get the contracts they need.

"Before they can get any financing they have to have throughput agreements," said Dan Betts, an Energy Department economist in Seattle. "That's why it's the refiners who are going to choose which, if any, of the pipelines are built."

As its contribution to the decision process, the Energy Department has completed an exhaustive study of supply and demand in the northern states through the year 2000 and an analysis of the economics of each pipeline proposal.

It calculated oil needs from Washington state to Ohio and found that in the "most likely" case the average daily shortage in 20 years will amount to 273,500 barrels of crude. In the worst scenario it would be about 384,000 barrels a day, according to the study.

A national oil shortage caused by troubles in Iran would affect the findings only marginally because "this is a transportation problem, not a supply problem," an energy official said.

About half of the shortfall would be centered in Minnesota, Montana and Eastern Washington, the areas most affected by the Canadian cutoff.

The report was a blow to supporters of the Northern Tier project, which would have a peak capacity of 933,000 barrels a day — the largest of the plans — and depends on selling well over 700,000 to be economical.

The Energy Department's report contrasted with a private study commissioned last year by Northern Tier, in which the Pace Co. of Houston said the shortfall in the pipeline's market area would exceed 900,000 barrels a day.

"The conclusions which the financial community will use are most assuredly the ones provided by the Pace Co.," Northern Tier spokesman Jim Hodge said.

Montana's Sen. Melcher, a vocal supporter of the Northern Tier plan, called the Energy Department's report "pathetic," and "the most laughable, ridiculous report" he had seen in 10 years in Congress.

Energy Department spokesmen said the discrepancy in the two reports was mostly due to Northern Tier's insistence that it could market its oil in a dozen states the government suggests would not need it.

Trans Mountain President Hall, whose company's pipeline would be cheaper and have a much smaller capacity than Northern Tier's, said the Energy Department report was "right on the nose."

The Energy Department's economic analysis of the Northern Tier Pipeline found that it could deliver the oil to northern refineries at a competitive price, but only if it operated at near capacity.

Trans Mountain's current proposal has not yet been evaluated. But, Hall said, "We can deliver what we think is the lowest per-barrel cost because our capitalization is the lowest."

The Kitimat project could deliver oil at a price competitive with Northern Tier, the report said, but it faces opposition from the Canadian government.

The report said the Foothills proposal would deliver oil at the highest price and called it "not competitive." But the company said it had revised its plan and greatly reduced the costs.

The Energy Department also noted that northern refineries will be able to handle a maximum of 350,000 barrels of "sour," high-sulfur Alaska crude, a dry. Thus the pipelines would have to be filled out with "sweet" crude from foreign sources such as Indonesia. The rest of the Alaska oil surplus would have to go elsewhere.

See Shirnkage Of Arable Crop Lands

ROME (AP) — The loss of thousands of square kilometers of arable land each year due to natural and human causes is a matter of growing concern to conservationists and agricultural experts.

More than 100 countries around the world are affected.

The problem is particularly acute in the Asian subcontinent which suffered severe flooding last year when millions of tons of top soil were washed away.

In India, Pakistan and Bangladesh there is almost no new land which can be brought under cultivation. Hence, it is crucial that the existing arable land be preserved.

But experts of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization point out that much land damage and loss is man-made or due to human negligence.

They cite as some of the causes animal over-grazing, forest clearing in flood-prone areas, poor planning and maintenance of irrigation systems, and lack of greenbelt planting to block wind and water erosion.

At the U.N. Conference on Deserts in 1977 it was estimated that global land loss from man-made causes already covers an area larger than the whole of India. At the same meeting it was pointed out that more than 680 million people live on land which can no longer support permanent cultivation or is in immediate danger of deterioration.

The loss of arable land will be one of the major topics to be discussed at the World Conference on Agrarian Reform and Rural Development which will be held in Rome in July under the auspices of FAO.

Experts at the conference are expected to recommend measures to reduce man-made land loss, including better river-basin and watershed management, greenbelt planting and control of grazing.

Sanford Fleming, the Canadian who originated standard time, was born in 1827.

The goal at bridge is usually to win as many tricks as possible. Every now and then, however, a player will have to go to great lengths to avoid winning a trick, so that he is not saddled with the lead at a critical time. West staged a virtuoso performance on this hand.

The bidding followed conventional lines. Note North's decision to raise to two spades. In the modern style, you make the same response you would have made had there been no interference. North's bidding was impeccable, but South's decision to go on to game is open to question, especially since North did not have the values for a redouble and since the queen of diamonds was of doubtful value.

West led the king and ace of clubs and continued with a third round of the suit, which declarer ruffed. (Life would have been easier had East dropped the jack of clubs under the king; now West could underlead his club honors at trick two, enabling East to win the ten and shift to a diamond.)

Declarer drew trumps, then led a low heart. West took time out to think. Since declarer held nothing in clubs and hearts, it was a moral certainty that he had both the ace and queen of diamonds to justify his bidding. Therefore, West had to avoid being thrown in and forced to lead a diamond into declarer's tenace.

The only hope of escaping the impending end play was if East held the ten of hearts—if he did not, all was lost save honor. So West followed with the jack of hearts, and declarer finessed the queen. When this held, he continued with the ace of hearts, but West unblocked the king. West's thoughtfulness was rewarded when East won the third heart with the ten and shifted to a diamond. Down one.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — One of the most important factors executives look at when a company offers a transfer to a new location is a community's lifestyle, according to a recent survey conducted for the state of Missouri.

The study found the quality of life of a community plays a critical role in the company's ability to transfer key management personnel and in recruiting good management talent.

'Miss Winslow' Badly Treated

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sitcom being TV's favorite form, and the liberation of women being one of everybody's favorite subjects, it figured that one of the networks would come up with something like "Miss Winslow & Son."

CBS' newest sitcom is about an independent young woman who got pregnant but didn't love the child's father enough to marry him. She had a couple of options open at this point, but chose the only one that would support a sitcom — she has the baby and raises it alone.

No problem there, unless you're of the belief that such things as unwed motherhood don't belong on TV.

The problem with "Miss Winslow" is that it's an adult sitcom idea rendered adolescent by its handling. We're asked to cheer for and laugh with a heroine who's bold enough to stand up for herself and assert her independence. What we're given, though, is a cutesy simperer (Darleen Carr) who seems a little embarrassed about what she did, and a whole lot of material that has been around the sitcom block a few times.

In tonight's episode, for example, Susan Winslow (who works in ambiguous but suitably with-it profession) goes on a date with one of her clients. She returns home and tells her mother she likes the guy but is afraid to get close to him because of ... well, you know, her special little problem. Her mother, who would have preferred Susan getting into the family business through the more conventional route, scolds:

"Susan! You put a charming, successful bachelor on hold? What if he hangs up?" To which Susan responds, "Mother, I'm just not ready to get involved."

About this time the doorbell rings and there stands none other than the charming, successful bachelor himself, who insists upon a dinner date. Susan is worried about little you-know-who back in the bedroom, and when the little bugger starts crying, she tells her prospective boyfriend that she's baby sitting for a friend.

Well, they make a date and Susan decides to tell the guy about her baby, despite her mother's warning that men don't make passes at girls with young lasses (or lads). Turns out, Mom is right. The guy's a jerk.

"What do I know about babies?" he asks. "Except that one end drools and the other end drips. My head is not into kids."

I guess it's admirable when TV tries to be timely, but tries like this make you wish for the days when it didn't.

Nielsens Disappointed Two New Offerings

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC lifted the curtain on another batch of new programs, and the result was consistent with the network's earlier attempts at ratings success — disappointing.

Two shows introduced by NBC during the week ending April 15, "Whodunnit" and "Highcliff Manor," were among the week's least-watched, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

NBC, in fact, had four of the five programs at the bottom of the ratings — the second chapter in its "Wheels" repeat in 63rd place, followed by No. 64 "Cliffhangers," No. 65 "Whodunnit" and No. 66 "Highcliff Manor," all from NBC, and ABC's "Friends," No. 67.

"Supertrain," NBC's ultra-expensive mystery-adventure series, rolling again after several weeks in the station for repairs, was a likewise disappointing entry, 61st in the ratings.

ABC swept the networks' competition for the 14th week in a row, scoring with the Academy Awards show and a variety special featuring Cheryl Ladd. Nearly two-thirds of the prime-time audience the night of April 9 saw the Oscars program, the week's most-watched show.

The "Cheryl Ladd Special" finished a distant second, and CBS' rerun of "It's the Easter Beagle, Charlie Brown" was third.

The Academy Awards show had 63 percent of the audience and a rating of 34.6. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 34.6 percent saw at least part of the program.

ABC, with seven of Nielsen's Top 10 for the week, compiled a rating of 19.5, with CBS second at 18.2 and NBC third at 14.5.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.5 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to ABC.

Three of ABC's top programs for the week, No. 4 "Three's Company," No. 5 "Charlie's Angels," and No. 8 "Laverne and Shirley," were reruns of previous episodes. "60 Minutes," meanwhile, continued to score for CBS, finishing sixth.

New shows on CBS enjoyed almost the opposite fate of NBC's recent entries. "Dukes of Hazzard" was 22nd, "White Shadow" No. 25, "Dear Detective" No. 27 and "Stockard Channing in Just Friends," No. 30.

In addition, "Kaz" on CBS, starring Ron Leibman, surged a bit to 17th after several weeks in the depths of the ratings.

Here are the week's Top 10 programs:

Trudeau Hasn't Read The Book

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau says he has not read his estranged wife Margaret's controversial book "Beyond Reason," and beyond that comment he refuses to discuss it.

Parts of the book deal with the couple's married life. Mrs. Trudeau's lovers and her first experiences with marijuana. At a news conference Tuesday, Trudeau said those who buy the book will have to judge its content for themselves.

"Do you want to know the nature of my thoughts (on the book)? Well, you won't get them," he told reporters.

Bill Is Sent To Doctors

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — A patient leaving a hospital after treatment might think he is on the road to recovery — until he sees the bill.

To help stem rising medical costs, Maine's largest general hospital will be sending doctors a copy of patients' bills to give them some insight into what a patient faces after a hospital visit.

The move is a recommendation of the Maine Medical Center's study committee on medical costs, whose main goal is to enhance cost-consciousness in doctors.

"It is hoped physicians reviewing the bill will become more aware of how heavy some of the costs are and in retrospect will recognize that there might have been some things that could have been omitted," said Dr. E. Charles Kunkle, a neurologist at MMC and chairman of the committee.

In a recent experiment, a copy of the hospital bill of one of their patients was sent to 50 physicians. One-third of the 42 physicians responding found the total cost far above their estimate, and a dozen found one or more tests or procedures which could have been omitted.

As a result, Dr. Kunkle said the committee had agreed to send all doctors who admitted patients a copy of one of their patient's bills this spring and again later this year.

"If the 90 to 100 resident physicians at Maine Medical could save $10 a day for every patient they serve, it would represent a savings of $2.6 million a year," said Dr. Robert E. McAfee of Portland, who added, "I'm sure it can be done."

Dr. George W. Hallett, chief of pediatrics at MMC, said "The project will probably only save a fragment of the total cost of many hospital bills."

"The world is full of doctors and patients who pay little attention to bills," Hallett said. "In many cases when the patient has insurance, he doesn't care, and when the patient doesn't care, the doctor doesn't care."

New Handle On Carving Knives

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — One new line of kitchen and carving knives has contoured handles with a recessed thumb rest on top. The manufacturer says this feature allows left- and right-handed persons to control the direction of the cut and the desired amount of pressure. The bottom area of the handle at the rear of the blade acts as a safety guard. The West German cutlery includes eight knives, a fork, a sharpening stone and poultry shears at a retail price range of $3.95-$11.95. The line is also available in three gift sets. NOTICE OF RESALE IN THE GENERAL COURT OF JUSTICE SUPERIOR COURT DIVISION BEFORE THE CLERK FILE NO. 78 SP 382

NORTH CAROLINA
JOSEPHINE HARRIS WYATT

MARY LOUISE HARRIS OLIVER AND HUSBAND, THOMAS E. OLIVER

Under and by virtue of an order of the Court, the following described land lying and being in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, and more particularly described as follows:

That certain piece, parcel or lot of land lying, situate and being on the west side of Pitt Street, between Bonner's Lane and Dickinson Avenue, beginning on Pitt Street, the southeast corner of Charlie Jackson's lot and running thence westwardly with the Charlie Jackson lot 80 feet to the Jennie Daniel lot; thence in a southerly course and parallel with Pitt Street 37-1/2 feet to the Louise Wilkins line; thence eastwardly with the Wilkins line 80 feet to Pitt Street; thence south 89 degrees 15 minutes 12 seconds with the Wilkins line 174 feet to the beginning, and being the same lot known as the Austin Harris lot, conveyed to J. L. Jackson in January, 1894, and the same conveyed by the Home Building and Loan Association to S. G. Worthington; and being the identical lot conveyed to John Henry Harris and wife, Lawrence B. Harris, by deed appearing of record in the Pitt County Registry in Book T-23, page 308, and devised by Laurence Burton Harris (deceased) to Josephine Harris Wyatt and Mary Louise Harris Oliver by her Will on record in File No. 77 E 459. In the office of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County.

Said land will be offered for sale upon an opening bid of FOUR THOUSAND THREE HUNDRED FIFTY-FIVE ($4,355.00) DOLLARS. Sale will be for cash, subject to the confirmation of the Court. The highest bidder will be required to deposit with the Commissioner ten (10%) per cent of his bid as surety for performance.

This 2nd day of April, 1979.
William H. Stanley, Jr., Commissioner

Smithy Has Students Of An Art Form

By LANCE J. HERDEGEN
MENOMONIE, Wis. (UPI) — Ron Verdon is the village smithy but don't expect to see him hammering a glowing bar of iron under a spreading chestnut tree.

His forge is in a University of Wisconsin-Stout classroom. He teaches century-old forging techniques to 18 students in a three-year-old class on arts metal blacksmithing.

He says the technique is a nearly lost art form.

"If you look back at some of these early pieces, you find that some of them were very beautiful," said Verdon. "These items had an inherent beauty or elegance about the way they were done."

Blacksmithing has only recently gained popularity as an art form, said Verdon, 29, but methods used to hammer and weld pieces of heated metal into different shapes are thousands of years old even though they have been mostly abandoned in favor of arc welding and machine work.

He also makes a distinction between blacksmiths and farriers, who shoe horses.

"The farrier knew something about forging, but dealt primarily with shoeing horses. The blacksmith probably had a broader knowledge."

While his students make such items as plant hangers, jewelry, sculptures and decorative hinges, he said, the old-time blacksmith might make scissors, screws, knives, chisels and wagon parts.

Verdon became interested in forging about eight years ago while making gold and silver jewelry. When he was given permission to set up a blacksmithing course, he found much had been forgotten.

"At one point in time, the knowledge that was available was so limited it was unbelievable."

Some items were bought to equip the shop, some were handmade and others gleaned from visits to old blacksmith shops in northern Wisconsin. Much of the material was discovered on the Stout campus — remainders from a blacksmith program there around the turn of the century.

Verdon's classes attract a good cross section of the campus, including some coeds. Physical strength has little to do with blacksmithing. Many projects can be forged on a small scale, such as the precision work done on jewelry, he said.

"Most of the techniques we teach in the course are very old," he said, "but that's why the visual result is what it is. There are certain situations you might be able to simulate, but there are others that would be impossible to deal with by any means other than old techniques that are being taught."

Courses On Log Cabins

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Minnesota Trailbound offers a schedule of log cabin building courses for spring and summer 1979.

Five separate sessions on basic round-log construction and one course in squared-log dovetailing will be held. Dates for nine-day sessions are April 20-29, June 1-9, and Aug. 3-12; for two-week courses, May 4-19, July 13-28, and Aug. 17-31.

All programs are held at the Minnesota Trailbound base camps near Hinckley and in the Superior National Forest near Ely, Minn.

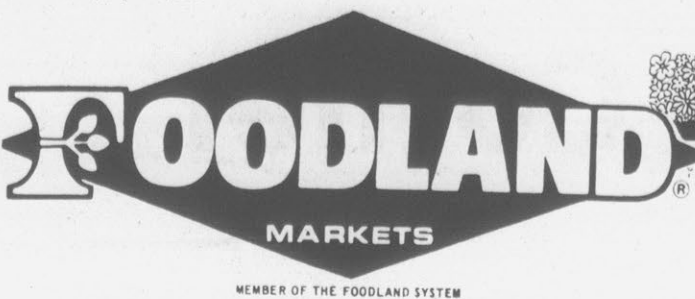

The courses are open to men and women of all ages. Topics covered include tree felling, log handling, wood characteristics and selection, tool skills and care, among others.

Besides the practical work of constructing an entire log building from sill logs to roof, sessions will feature slide lectures on heating, furniture building, tool-making, and log-building history as well as related field trips in the local area.

Advance registration is necessary. For more information, write Minnesota Trailbound, 3544 1/2 Grand Ave., Minneapolis, Minn. 55408; phone 612-822-5955.

JOURNALIST EXPELLED

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Nicaraguan government has expelled a Spanish journalist who was in Esteli all last week while the town in northern Nicaragua was occupied by left-wing guerrillas.

Rediscover 'Comic Art' Of Japan

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Centuries before Spiderman and the Incredible Hulk, anonymous artists in medieval Japan were turning out colorfully illustrated scrolls about other larger-than-life characters — some with magical powers.

The ancient art of Nara Ehon is being rediscovered largely through the efforts of a University of Pennsylvania professor of oriental studies, Dr. Barbara Ruch.

"I was an English Lit major in undergraduate school when I discovered this," she recalled in a recent interview. "I just couldn't believe there could be such a magnificent wealth of literature that we are not aware of."

So she began a 10-year search for examples of Nara Ehon that was "like a detective story."

The ancient "comics" were distributed between the 13th and 17th centuries, she said. They were hand-drawn, decorated with bright colors and gold leaf, rolled into scrolls and collected into books.

Ms. Ruch said the works had long been ignored by both Western and Japanese scholars.

Their value was nominal in Japan because they were anonymous, she said. Owners ignored them, stored them or gave them away. The scrolls are written in medieval Japanese — as foreign to modern Japanese as the old English used in Beowulf is to modern English-speaking peoples.

Ms. Ruch began her quest with letters to major museums, some of which turned up examples in their storerooms. She also followed up leads from fellow scholars, turning up the vegetable-fiber scrolls in unlikely places.

An American she met at a restaurant in Japan tipped her to a Dublin cache of 50 or 60 scrolls gathered by an Irish collector years ago. Another 25 turned up in England, a dozen in Germany and France and 150 in the United States — two at the Free Library of Philadelphia.

"It's been difficult because there's not a lot of interest in the field," she said of her search. "I've had to beg people (mostly Japanese businessmen) for money to continue, but it's been worth it."

Ms. Ruch is composing a four-volume work about Nara Ehon, which means "picture book from the city of Nara." She plans to include many stories which have not been read in centuries.

Among them will be her favorite, "The Tale of the Chrysanthemum," about a young woman who meets a man among the chrysanthemums in her garden and falls in love. When her lover goes away, he leaves a packet containing a lock of his hair.

The next day, her father tells her the emperor wants their chrysanthemums cut for his palace. After the flowers are cut, she opens the packet from her lover, finds that it contains chrysanthemum petals and realizes that her lover was a flower. Months later she has a baby girl, as beautiful as a chrysanthemum.

"Western literature is mostly about conflict, and then there's a denouement," she said. "Japanese literature is not like that — it's mostly interested in evoking some kind of emotion in people's lives."

The point of the chrysanthemum story is not conflict over the cutting of the flowers, she said, but the emotional moments that the young woman shares with the chrysanthemum.

New Wrinkle In Charm Designs

DALLAS (UPI) — Charms are a spring and summer jewelry trend this year, but they bear little resemblance to bangle designs of the 1950s and 1960s. Examples shown at the Spring Gift, Jewelry and Housewares Show at the Dallas Market Center included miniaturized scissors, bottle openers, hammers, shovels and other tools in bright and florentine 14 karat gold to be worn on chains, individually or in multiples. Other designs included tiny color stones set in tiny gold drops. Instead of bracelets, the new designs are worn on charmholders — long chains with a wire circle or design to hold one or more drops.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures
When I left New York City on New Year's Day 1979 after 71 years, I brought a lot of memories and pictures with me to my new home in Delray Beach, Fla.

I also brought a new book of magnificent Manhattan views that is an amazing record of one area of the city photographed from one vantage point over a period of almost a quarter of a century. I highly recommend it to anyone who has lived in, vacationed in, or ever dreamed of visiting, America's most exciting metropolis.

The book is "A World Through My Window" by Ruth Orkin, published by Harper & Row ($19.95). Her window was on the 15th floor of an apartment house overlooking Central Park. From it she documented in Kodachrome's complete painter's palette the remarkable range of subtle colors and moods that Mother Nature assembled in the park for 23 years in all of its seasonal and weather changes. Many of the colorful scenes are unique one-of-a-kind happenings that were never seen before or since — such as the 3 p.m. brown rainstorm that briefly lashed the city in crazy gusts in 1969, or the early morning lavender haze which bathed Fifth Avenue buildings across the park in the early 1970s.

Ms. Orkin stresses the fact that she used no filters and no tricks to get the unusual color images and the pictures that are pink, yellow, blue, brown or lavender actually looked that way in the original setting. Of the 55 color photographs in the book, almost half were taken with the normal 50mm lens; about one-third were shot with a 135mm telephoto; three pictures are wide-angle views with a 28mm lens; and three others are the result of experimenting with borrowed lenses — an 8mm fisheye, a 500mm telephoto and a 270mm lens with an extender.

Her basic equipment, there-

"MIST OVER SHEEP MEADOW" by Ruth Orkin is one of the views of New York's Central Park photographed from one window in her apartment building over a period of 23 years. It appears in "The World From My Window," a collection remarkable for its color and variety despite its single subject: the park area.

fore, is that used by many serious camera fans but what she added was a consistent point of view; an artistic eye for subtle changes in lighting; persistence, patience and enthusiasm; and a careful or practical method of keeping track of all the results with dates and notes so that they could be retrieved and used any time later.

Ruth Orkin had no idea when she moved into her apartment in 1955 that the views from the window would make a book. Back in California, she had been a filmmaker who, with her husband, Morris Engel, had produced award-winning films, "The Fugitive" and "Lovers and Lollipops."

She was also a freelance photojournalist whose work appeared in Life, Look and other publications; was represented in Edward Steichen's memorable "Family of Man" exhibition; and has been acquired by collectors and several museums.

In her new apartment in New York City, Ms. Orkin became a homemaker, raising two children, with a gorgeous view of Central Park. Her photographic energy was divided between focusing on the children and the view. At a 6 a.m. feeding, she also got a record of the mist hovering over the Central Park Sheep Meadow. At 2 p.m. playpen time, she'd check the scene and it might be kite-flying day in the park, or a pruner lopping off tree branches, or a circus press conference complete with a herd of elephants and other carnival trappings. At 5 p.m. bath time, dusk was setting in and the reflected glow of sunset sometimes swathed the park's surrounding buildings in pink hues as room lights twinkled. At 10 p.m., a picture of a child asleep in bed could be followed by a night shot with the park and building lights sparkling in a snowy winter setting.

A camera was always kept ready and loaded with the fastest daylight-type Kodachrome film near the living room window, the only window used because it was the only one without an air-conditioner. Shooting was always done with the window open — never through the glass, even during rain or snow storms. Because of a low sill, the window had iron bars with an 11-inch shooting space between them. For long, nighttime exposures, the camera was clamped to the top window bar and while she sometimes used a cable release, most often Ms. Orkin held the shutter release for seconds, and even up to four minutes during the New York City blackout in 1965.

"Sounds take me to the window, too," she says, "voices on loudspeakers announcing events in the park, symphony rehearsals, bongo drums, the oompah of a parade band, helicopter motors, thunder and lightning, the agonized screech of tires on the street below, and the full, utter silence that follows a big snow."

The changing kaleidoscope of events, the seasons, the weather, the colors and the illumination which she captured bring her immense personal satisfaction.

"It's fun, too," she adds, "knowing that I've had the power, through my camera, to stop something long enough in order to see it properly at all. Cloud movements, erratic storms, lightning, all occur so fleetingly that only the photograph holds them still long enough to be savored."

I see "A World Through My Window" by Ruth Orkin as a fine lesson for other camera enthusiasts. Its message is: Follow your instincts, shoot what appeals to you and build a collection of images with a unifying theme. Remember, in unity there is strength. In photography, such unity is called a photo essay or pictorial story. With enough substance, a photo essay could wind up as a book or an exhibition.

Basic Diet Prescribed By Doctor

By SUZY PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — In this city obsessed with slim, trim fashion, Robert Chung is the rage "fat" doctor. He readies the beautiful and the bloated for the beaches of St. Tropez with a back-to-basics, call-of-the-wild diet and exotic little pills.

For this Chinese doctor, rice is definitely out.
"All starch is bad for weight-watchers," says Chung, chatting in his posh office near the Arc de Triomphe. "Eat food you would consume raw or uncooked, and you'll have fewer figure problems. You wouldn't eat rice or pie crust without cooking it, so they're out."

Dr. Chung's rule is to recall the days before fire and the food our primitive ancestors and wild animals thrived on: Leafy green vegetables, most fruits, fish and shellfish, game, chicken and beef. Chung doesn't say you have to eat them raw, just that you can eat them that way.

With the diet, Chung dispenses his own formula pills that reek of the wild.

"They're made of elements from goat brain, animal ovary and dust from 'nux vomica,' which is used to make strychnine," Chung says.

"The pills are harmless, and homeopathic," he adds. "They help the thyroid gland to react and eliminate fat faster. Homeopathically, you can take most substances, even poisonous drugs, in minute quantities."

Chung's lethal-sounding concoction has produced no ill effects to date. On the contrary, Arab sheiks fly him to the Middle East to slim their harems, and Pat Kennedy Lawford writes him glowing notes. The wraith-like figure of Marisa Berenson, the jetsetting actress, is testimony to Chung's success.

A paragon of fitness, the fortyish bachelor exercises with the jet set by jogging every day, skiing in Avoriaz, France, water skiing in Biarritz or Thailand. And he dances at chic discos nearly every night. "You lose 900 calories in an hour," he says.

He disapproves of the eggs-bacon-pancake American breakfast. "It fatigues the liver. Stay with fruit, coffee and thin toast."

His lunch is light, mainly fresh salads. He calls dinner "la fete," though it is hardly hearty. "Smoked salmon, oysters, caviar with lemon and a bit of good toast. But God forbid cream and blinis!"

Before sending clients into the diet wilds, Chung issues a princely bill, usually about $200 for an initial three-month treatment.

A gastro-enterologist who trained in his native Hong Kong and Paris, Chung explains obesity in socio-economic terms, though he admits it sounds oversimplified.

"In the really poor countries you don't have obesity. But when countries get over the hunger problems, people stuff themselves as compensation, and they get very fat."

Counseling the budget-minded is a bit baffling for Dr. Chung, accustomed to treating the super-rich. But he does have some tips.

Exercise is essential for losing cellulite, but Chung warns against running a mile if you've been a layabout. "Work up to it gradually."

"And eat salad, fruit, chicken, veal or fish. That is a fine rule for a diet. Make everything with care."

Sliced pork loins with natural portions of center cuts. What some stores call "sliced quarter pork loin" is all skimpy first cuts at "a hot price" because the choice center cuts will go at a premium price. Never at Kroger! When you buy a pork loin (sliced) the package will contain a natural proportion of center cuts and first or end cuts. That seems fair and right to us. We're sure it does to you!

Serving You Comes First.. in the Kroger Sav-on garden

In the Kroger Sav-On garden most of our fresh fruits and vegetables are in bulk displays as opposed to pre-packaged, as many stores have. You can choose one green pepper or 5, one lemon or a dozen, and YOU pick and choose the one you want. Then take your choice to the "Gardener" for weighing and pricing. Your Kroger Sav-On "Gardener" will be pleased to answer your questions about any of the hundreds of fresh fruits and vegetables we have here for you.
