UNC's Friday Reports No Acceptance By HEW

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — No agreement has been reached with the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in the long-standing dispute over desegregation of state university campuses, University of North Carolina President William C. Friday told the UNC Board of Governors today.

Friday said that conversations Thursday night with HEW secretary Joseph Califano led to no agreement despite the state's offer to spend $40 million to improve conditions and programs at UNC's five mostly black campuses.

"Those proposals have been generous and with the strong support Gov. (Jim) Hunt has given us they represent a realistic and sound address of the educational needs of our state and of our five historically black institutions," Friday said.

"Unfortunately, I must report to you today that we have not as yet received a positive and forthcoming response."

After hearing Friday's report, the board went into closed, executive session to hear a report from the university's attorney, Charles Morgan.

Friday said, "Last night we had numerous conversations with Mr. (Richard) Beattie and with Secretary Califano. At one point I felt we had come to the point where agreement could be reached because the issue of duplication, that is, of control over the university's educational programs, appeared to be resolved as we have insisted."

"Later in the night, the issue was brought back into the discussion with proposals we could not agree to," Friday said of his conversations with Califano and Beattie, Califano's executive assistant.

"So we have no agreement, no end to this ordeal, to bring to you today, despite all we have done to try to bring it to resolution," Friday said in prepared remarks.

Friday outlined to the board a $40 million package of improvements for the systems' five predominantly black campuses. He praised Hunt, saying the governor had promised to ask the General Assembly to forgo a $40 million taxcut proposal in order to make the money available to the campuses.

Friday said that combined with $30 million already appropriated to the campuses, the money formed a $70 million package of improvements for the historically black campuses.

In addition, Friday said the university was prepared to commit itself to studying the five predominantly black campuses after two years "so that we can more effectively plan for their continuing strengthening and improvement."

But Friday said David Tatel, head of HEW Civil Rights Office, said that offer was not acceptable and again voiced concerns about the issue of duplication of programs on black and white campuses.

"Mr. Tatel found it unacceptable, voicing some rather

Bradshaw Urges Joint Effort To Advance East

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

About 250 people attended the 11th annual meeting of the Mid-East Commission hear last night and heard Department of Transportation Secretary Thomas Bradshaw emphasize the need for working together for progress in the East.

Bradshaw said improved highways and other forms of transportation is the "key to progress in Eastern North Carolina." However, he emphasized the need for people to work together for a common goal.

Bradshaw cited the U.S. 264 project from Wilson to Greenville as an example of what can be done if people work together on a project. He said the project moved along much faster than would normally have been the case because people along the route got together and presented a united front.

By presenting a unified front, Bradshaw suggested, more can be accomplished in a shorter time. He said state and other agencies are more responsive when everyone involved with a project agrees on what should be done than when faced with opposing viewpoints.

The liveability of the East is one of the area's greatest selling points, according to Bradshaw, who urged planning for orderly and balanced growth to maintain the quality of life in the area.

The Mid-East Commission, with offices in Washington, serves as the clearinghouse agency for the five-county Region Q, one of 18 planning regions in the state. In addition to serving as a clearing house for projects receiving state and federal funds, the commission coordinates planning and development activities in region, which includes Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford Counties.

Mid-East member governments, in addition to the five counties, include 34 municipalities within the region.

Commission chairman Frank Bonner of Aurora, presided at the annual meeting.

Bonner said the commission, "has, without a doubt, proved its effectiveness in promoting planned development throughout the five counties we represent."

Nine programs ranging from technical assistance provided at the local level to planning for the needs of senior citizens in the region are coordinated by the Commission's 17-member staff, Bonner said.

"Last year alone," according to Bonner, some $5 million in federal funds were, "awarded to our region for economic development, housing, recreation, transportation, and public facility improvements."

According to Bonner, "People Working Together", our motto, is reinforced by the structure of our organization."

He explained that a representative board meets monthly to take action on programs which directly affect the region, while seven advisory committees, "composed of local citizens who are professionals in their fields, make important planning decisions."

Bonner noted, too, that the commission is committed to follow through and assist local governments in solving urgent regional problems and to plan and implement projects which encourage quality living conditions in the region.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to eight individuals for their service to the commission. The recipients included: J. J. Brown of Ayden, Regional Manpower Advisory Committee (1976-1978); Ray Eubanks of Grifton, chairman of the Region Q Emergency Medical Services Advisory Committee (1977-1979); William Cherry of Robersonville, Regional Manpower Advisory Committee (1976-1978); Marion Hobbs, Greenville, Regional Manpower Advisory Committee (1977-1978); Philip Mobley of Washington, Regional Manpower Advisory Committee (1976-1978); Mrs. Willie Mountain of Windsor, chairman of Region Q Services, Inc. (1978); Larry Standley of Greensboro, Department of Housing and Urban Development; and Bob Bassnight of Raleigh, Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Indicate Eisenhower Requested 'Confusion'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) —

Southern Utah residents were uncertain about what dangers were posed by nuclear tests in neighboring Nevada during the 1950s, and newly declassified documents show the confusion was what then-President Dwight D. Eisenhower wanted.

At a time when pressure was mounting to move open-air testing elsewhere, Eisenhower told the Atomic Energy Commission in 1953 to keep the public "confused" so research could go on, according to materials declassified for a joint congressional committee.

The committee held a one-day hearing Thursday to study a possible link between the tests and cancer.

The federal agency frequently told southern Utah residents they were in no danger from the reddish clouds that drifted over their homes after the nuclear tests, the documents show.

Gordon Dean, then-chairman of the commission, appeared reluctant to ask Eisenhower for permission to conduct a test because an outcry lingered over a previous blast, according to a diary written by Dean.

Eisenhower gave his permission on May 27, 1953, and "expressed some concern, not too serious, but made the suggestion that we leave 'thermonuclear' out of press releases and speeches. Also 'fusion' and 'hydrogen,'" according to the diary.

Dean, writing in his diary, continued, "The President says, 'keep them confused as to 'fission' and 'fusion.'"

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., read the document into the record of the hearing, which he co-chaired.

Bodies Recovered

CRESWELL — The bodies of two Greenville men, missing on Lake Phelps near here since a boating accident April 11, were recovered yesterday.

Officials said the body of Ransom Breedlove, 31, was found at the East end of the lake about 10:20 a.m. by the pilot of a search plane. The body of Wayne Wilson, 27, was spotted some four hours later by the pilot of the Dare County Sheriff's Department helicopter.

Breedlove and Wilson were reported missing after their 14-foot boat sunk in rough water on the 16,000 acre lake last week. A third man, Robert Best of Greenville, spent some 13 hours on the lake before safely reaching shore about 5:15 a.m. April 12.

An intensive search had been conducted for the two men since the accident, but efforts have been hampered by rough water.

Washington County Sheriff's Department spokesmen said the bodies of the two men, found floating, have been sent to the office of the State Medical Examiner in Chapel Hill for autopsies.

New Chancellor

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina Board of Governors today elected John E. Thomas to be chancellor of Appalachian State University at Boone.

Thomas, who has been vice chancellor for academic affairs at ASU for the past five years, will become chancellor following the retirement June 30 of Herbert W. Wey.

A native of Fort Worth, Texas, Thomas was dean of the college of sciences and technology at East Texas State University before going to ASU in 1974.

He was nominated for the chancellor's post, which Wey has held for the past 10 years, by UNC President William Friday.

Climb To Safety

HIGH LEVEL DRAMA — A worker climbs to safety Thursday in Richmond after the scaffolding he and two others were washing windows from snapped. All three men were able to climb to safety. The three workmen, all from Greensboro, N.C., received only scrapes and bruises during the half-hour they clung to the dangling scaffold hundreds of feet above Richmond's financial district. (AP Laserphoto)

City Officials Appeal For Bradshaw's Help

Several City of Greenville officials met here last night with Department of Transportation Secretary Thomas Bradshaw, asking his help in securing approval of a $736,200 project for the city's public transportation system.

Officials told Bradshaw that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration's regional office in Atlanta, was scheduled to approve the project about the time UMTA turned administration of the program over to the North Carolina Department of Transportation at the first of the year.

The application included a request for funds to construct a transportation garage in conjunction with the new Public Works Department facility for which bonds were approved by Greenville voters late last year.

It also included funds for bus replacement, a van to serve the elderly and handicapped, a service van, bus stop signs, benches and shelters, and other equipment.

If the project is approved, 80 per cent of the cost will be funded through a federal grant, while 10 per cent of the cost will be financed by the State. The city will supply the other 10 per cent of the cost.

Bradshaw told the officials that he would see if the item is included on the Board of Transportation's May meeting and do what he can to speed action on the application.

Attending the session with Bradshaw, held following the Mid-East Commission's annual meeting, were Mayor Percy Cox, council members Millie McGrath and Charles Vincent, city manager Ed Wyatt, city attorney Louis Singleton, public works director Mayo Allen, and Ben Shivar, Community Development program coordinator for the city.

Early Therapy Often Successful Against Cancer

HEALTHY SURVIVOR... Lewis W. Godwin of Farmville, is healthy and active at 95. Godwin underwent surgery for oral cancer 11 years ago. A daughter, Ms. Mildred Godwin, was also treated surgically for cancer several years ago. (ECU News Bureau Photograph)

By MARGARET E. BUNCH
Cancer is a mind stopping word. It raises visions of pain, economic deprivation, grief and almost certain death. This does not always have to be the case. With the knowledge that is now available and the methods that are in use for early detection, the survival rate for all types of cancer could be raised to 50 percent. The survival rate for some types of cancer could be raised to 90 percent. The secret is education and early detection. No one who is connected with the diagnosis and treatment of cancer, or any of its victims, talks about 'cures.' The word is survival.

There are so many types of cancer and so many causes of cancer: carcinogens that we eat and breathe, possibly viruses, sunlight and radiation and maybe others not yet discovered.

Whatever the cause, the treatment involves one of several methods now in use — surgery, radiation therapy, chemotherapy or surgery in combination with one of those two.

Miss Godwin verified that this was true and added that "he was known all his life as 'Mr. Republican' up town." Walking is not Godwin's only exercise, he also rides a stationary bicycle which has a speedometer that has registered over 11,000 miles in the last seven or eight years.

Until he was 80 years old, Godwin worked for the East Carolina Railroad in Farmville. A photograph of him at age 76 shows him to be a man who looked considerably younger.

Miss Godwin, a nurse until her retirement, said, she "believed the will to live determines the prognosis for almost any illness." She also had cancer and was treated by surgery in 1970. Neither she or her father had any form of treatment other than surgery.

housework or working for one of many community projects in which she takes part. She also devotes time to running errands or transporting elderly members of her neighborhood to doctors.

Many Survivors
There are many patients who have also survived after treatment with chemotherapy. This is a chemical treatment that is used alone or in conjunction with surgery for some types of cancer. The chemicals are injected in muscles or veins or taken by mouth. It may be one drug or a combination of several. Like other forms of cancer treatment, it is constantly changing as the medical community learns more about cancer and effective means of controlling it.

The Godwins and Mrs. Andrews have one thing in common — their illnesses were diagnosed early and treated promptly. They are living testimonials that the most effective treatment for cancer is still early diagnosis.

Boards Honor Dr. Trevathan

Dr. G. Earl Trevathan Jr. was honored last night during a meeting of the Pitt County Board of Health.

Certificates of appreciation were presented him by both the Board of Health and the Pitt County Commissioners. Mentioned in the resolution of appreciation to him adopted recently by the Board of Health was his "unselfish devotion and assistance" as acting health director since Nov. 1978 and as medical consultant to the Health Department since August, 1973. The resolution noted that "when there was a need for leadership between the resignation of the health director and the appointment of a new health director Dr. Trevathan gave of his time and professional ability unstintingly and Pitt Co. Community Health Department continued to provide excellent service."

Dr. Trevathan, who practices general pediatrics and pediatric neurology here, has always practiced in Greenville. A native of the Fountain community of Pitt County, he has practiced since 1954. He is a graduate of the University of Colorado. He and his wife, Ruth, a Colorado native, have three adult children. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Trevathan Sr. live in Fountain.

DR. EARL TREVATHAN JR.

Successful Case

One Pitt County man who has been treated successfully for oral cancer and survived for 11 years is Lewis W. Godwin of Farmville. Godwin and his daughter, Mildred Godwin, live in a large comfortable home on a peaceful street several blocks from downtown Farmville. Godwin is 95 years old and moves with the vigor of a much younger man.

When the weather is pleasant, Godwin walks downtown and visits his friends. In his own words, he "goes and tends to everybody's business since I have none of my own. I stir up trouble in town and then come on back home."

Another Patient

Another cancer patient who lives a full, busy life after treatment is Mrs. Oleta (J.L.) Andrews of Richlands. Mrs. Andrews discovered that she had uterine cancer in 1973 and was treated by surgery in Kinston, and later, had more surgery at Duke.

As a part of her treatment, she had radiation therapy in Kinston and is on a follow-up program at Duke. Mrs. Andrews, in her late thirties, takes care of her family — a husband and two teenage sons.

She shows no ill effects of the cancer or its treatment as she moves briskly about her

Govm't Admits Its Regulating Costly

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

Only recently has the government admitted that its regulations are adding to the cost of doing business. An Executive Order has been issued by the President requiring an analysis of the economic impact of regulation, and Congress is considering revisions of the regulatory process.

The cost of government regulations is graphically illustrated in a study recently completed by Arthur Andersen and Company. They measured incremental costs — those which would not exist in the absence of a particular regulation — of complying with rules issued by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), Department of Energy (DOE), Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

The subjects of the study were 48 large corporations representing more than 20 industries. Only domestic operations were included in the study.

The results of this study indicate that these 48 companies incurred costs of $2.6 billion of the total incremental costs. The study further concluded that smaller companies bore a disproportionate share of the burden, with administrative costs running substantially higher than in the larger companies.

Of the agencies involved, The EPA was responsible for 77 percent of the incremental costs. Of the money spent complying with equal employment opportunities, 96 percent was spent on administrative and operating costs.

Direct incremental costs are passed to consumers in the form of higher prices, or to the shareholder in the form of lower equity.

The indirect costs to a business of complying with government regulation can't be measured, but they are substantial. Productivity declines as employees spend time on paperwork which does not produce additional business. Money which would otherwise be spent on capital improvements or expansion is being spent on compliance. All types of resources are diverted from productive operations to non-productive ones.

No one denies the importance of job safety, clean air, and equal opportunity, but the costs are much greater than the $2.6 billion cited. Some deregulation of business could prove that the work spent on compliance doesn't guarantee a better job, it just makes it more expensive.

The Signals

National and local figures reveal the widespread reach of cancer in America today. A few of the more striking figures show:

- Cancer will strike one in four persons now living; two out of three families at its present rate.
- In 1979, a person will die of cancer every 80 seconds.
- In Pitt County, projections for cancer in 1979 are: 336 cancer cases under medical care; 116 projected to die of cancer; 218 new cases diagnosed; 73 cancer victims will be saved; an 38 more could be saved if diagnosed earlier.
- Breast cancer is the leading cause of death among women 40-44 years old.
- Death rate from uterine cancer has decreased by more than 70 percent during the last 40 years because of the Pap smear test.
- Lung cancer is the leading cause of death among men.

Seven Warning Signals To Watch For

- Unusual bleeding or discharge.
- A lump or thickening.
- A sore that does not heal.
- Change in bowel or bladder habits.
- Hoarseness or cough.
- Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
- Change in a wart or mole.

School Bus Use Costlier

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A one-cent increase in the price of a gallon of gas has hiked the cost of state school bus operations by $1,000 per day, according to statistics compiled by the state Department of Public Education.

Skyrocketing gasoline prices have boosted the cost of operating the buses by $700,000 since the beginning of the 1978-79 school year.

Officials say that because of fuel price increases this year, it costs $7,000 a day more to run the state's school buses than it did at the beginning of the school year.

Robert L. Andrews, assistant controller of support services in the Department of Public Education, said Thursday that rising gasoline prices have made it difficult to set a fixed amount of money needed to operate school buses.

"It's almost impossible to plan ahead when gasoline prices are going up so rapidly," Andrews said. "I understand that gas prices went up another two cents between this week and last week. But we will have sufficient money to operate the buses in the total transportation budget."

He said the department may be forced to seek additional funds toward the end of the school year if gasoline prices continue to increase.

Lewis Alexander, transportation director for public education, said education officials have asked the General Assembly for more money but that the legislature has not acted so far.

Andrews said his department is employing fuel conservation measures to cut back on consumption. He said the cutbacks include making fewer stops, making sure buses do not go out of their way and less warm-up time for the buses each morning.

Personhood A Note To Mother

There's a lot being said today about women's lib, personal rights, and individuality. But if you're like most mothers, most of your time is devoted to your children. That's good. Children need a lot of love and personal attention. But don't neglect yourself.

Many middle-aged women are experiencing a serious problem. From the time their first child was born they devoted themselves to their children full-time. They found that they just didn't have time for social activities, civic activities, and hobbies. Now, when their children have grown up and left home these mothers are realizing that they have no close friends their age, they have no hobbies or outside interests and they don't know what's happening in the world.

It may seem to you that it is much too early to even think about this, but it is so easy to become a child-centered parent and it can be terribly difficult to cut such ties later.

Many mothers sacrifice too much for their babies by cutting themselves off from people. Chances are, you will be a better parent if you devote some time to outside activities. Short separations from mother are good for the children too. You want your child to be social — to accept others and to like people. Spending a little time with other people, away from mother will help your child develop socially.

Devoting some time to yourself alone, through a hobby, sports, clubs, reading, or study will mean a great deal to you and your child both now and in the years to come.

Will Your Child Be Ready For First Grade?

Each child learns things in his own way at his own speed. You can help by encouraging your child to learn and by praising him for doing well. Don't push the child to do things for which he is not yet ready, and don't feel discouraged if he does not catch on to everything.

Call the Agricultural Extension office (758-1196) for a copy of the checklist "Will your child be ready for first grade?" The checklist covers four areas: some things your child knows, some health habits your child has learned, some social habits your child has learned, and some things your child can do.

If you work with groups of young children (nursery, day care, vacation Bible school, etc.)

you might also like to ask for a copy of "Games for Young Children".

Chuck Dant Speaks Tuesday

The Home Life Department of the Greenville Woman's Club met Tuesday afternoon. The guest speaker was Chuck Dant, manager of Sutton's Service Center.

Dant's discussion was on tires and he displayed a radial tire and passed out General Tire brochures. The three types of tires are conventional, belted and radial. He stressed the importance of selecting tires, saying they must provide for comfort, traction, safety, reliability and stability.

He noted tires on a car should be rotated to provide more even and uniform tire wear and that alignment was essential when tires have been replaced.

Mrs. Robert Murphy, department chairman, conducted a business session. Members were reminded to attend the party to be given Greenville Villa patients May 15.

Meeting hostesses were Mrs. C. M. Respass, chairman, Miss Evelyn Beasley, Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. Charles Whiteford, Mrs. Hinton Best and Mrs. J. T. Dodson.

Dear Abby

He's Hopping Mad At His Easter Bunny

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I met this good-looking girl who waits on tables in a place near where I work. She came on like a sweet country kid who worked hard for a living and wouldn't let a guy get to first base with her, which I liked.

Well, I took her home from work a couple of times, and all she'd give me was a goodnight kiss at her door.

I asked her what she wanted for Easter and she gave me a list of clothes to buy and where to buy them. I went around and bought all the things she wanted, which set me back $400.

After I gave her these gifts, I asked her how about driving to Palm Springs for the weekend. She said nothing doing — she wasn't "that kind" of a girl.

She already wore the clothes I gave her, so what do I do now? After all, 400 bucks ain't hay.

DENNY IN PASADENA

DEAR DENNY: If it were, you'd have enough to eat all winter. Call it a $400 lesson.

DEAR ABBY: Greg and I have been married for seven years and have two children. I noticed he was rather nervous and jumpy lately, but I thought maybe he'd been putting in too much overtime at work. He finally broke down and confessed that he had been carrying on with a friend of mine. (She's also married.) I was in shock!

He claims she threw herself at him and he was only human. So I should try to forgive and forget because it's all over now. I've honestly tried, but do you think I should be expected to socialize with this woman and her husband as though nothing had ever happened between her and my husband?

I told Greg I didn't care to socialize with this couple anymore and he became angry with me. In order to avoid arguments we've been going out as a foursome, but it bothers me to even look at her.

I know that Christians should forgive, and I have prayed to the Lord for my feelings to change, but I still feel the same toward her. What should I do?

UNFORGIVING CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Keep praying, but to thine own self be true. And unless you feel completely comfortable with this woman, tell Greg that you, too, are "only human," and you'd rather not be in her company. The Lord will understand.

Adverse Rulings Stand In Way

It will take time to determine how the U. S. Supreme Court's decision giving attorneys in libel cases the power to probe newsmen's inner thoughts will affect news coverage in this nation. One thing is certain, however. A whole series of Supreme Court decisions is rapidly decreasing the ability of every news organization to dig into secret governmental activities. It is well to remember, too, that the same rules apply to governmental watch groups and individual citizens who want to demand above board decisions from governmental officials. This direction of the Supreme Court couldn't come at a worse time, since reports indicate that misuse of public funds and properties is rampant. The series of adverse freedom of the press rulings can only result in greater difficulty in exposing governmental misdeeds.

Weather Will Be The Critical Factor

Spring is a pleasant time for most of us . . . when the flowers bloom and trees turn green. For the farmer, however, the coming of Spring means planting time. Here in this area the crucial job is transplanting tobacco, the farm product that means so much to our economy. Transplanting is underway now, as a front page photo Thursday showed. From now until the crop is harvested, cured and safely in the barns weather conditions will be critical in determining the prosperity of most of our farmers for the year. The tobacco growing cycle is underway, and we can all hope for a highly successful year.

22,000 Said In The Air

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
OVER ATLANTA (AP) — Sen. Jim Sasser, a Democrat from Tennessee who would like to cut half a billion dollars from the Carter administration's request for $7.9 billion in travel expenses, says at any given time an average 22,000 federal bureaucrats are in the air.

Well, I never would have guessed the figure, but I knew there were a lot of them up here. Why, right now this wide-bodied jumbo flying down to Atlanta from New York is more than half full of civil servants heading some place.

You can always tell the male of the species. They all wear the standard three-piece business suit with an American flag in the label, carry an imitation cowhide attache case with pop-out accordion file compartments and use their swizzle sticks to follow the fine print on whatever government publications they have spread out on the pull-down food tray.

The Ms. version comes in a slit-skirt two piece business suit, favors long yellow legal pads, drums her teeth with the swizzle stick while fingering a pocket calculator and wears her rhinestone rimmed trifocals on a slender black cord.

Flying feds from the surgeon general's office and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare tend to monopolize the non-smoking section. Those from the FBI are often handcuffed to another passenger and it is not always easy to tell which is which.

There was a hassle this morning at the check in counter when travellers from the Federal Railroad Administration, the Department of Transportation and Amtrak all insisted on having window seats. They said they wanted to get the overall view of roadbed conditions in the Northeast Corridor. But the window seats were all occupied by representatives from the National Park Service, the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service all doing a survey of development potential in the New Jersey pine barrens.

Sniping At The Spending

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Republican leaders of that small caucus in the North Carolina General Assembly may have hit a popular theme so far as the general public is concerned in their recent pitch for a sharp cut in state government spending.

The nut of their argument is that a lot of Democrats both in the Legislature and in various executive posts including the governor's office won election while vowing to cut spending, trim the bureaucracy, and return some of the savings to the taxpayers.

Now midway between any elections, the state budget is being produced in a business-as-usual way with spending up, more jobs on the state payroll, and the strong likelihood that any really worthwhile tax cut is out the window.

The Republican proposition is two-fold: an across-the-board reduction of the total state budget of five percent which would produce a $150 million savings next year; and elimination of what the GOP leaders call unnecessary items which would save another $23.5 million.

No Chance

What are the chances that fellow lawmakers who form the overwhelming Democratic majority will go along? Slim to none, the Republicans agree.

"But we can introduce the issues and bend some minds...and we might bend some elections", say the Republicans.

Hitting on a popular theme, State Rep. Harold Brubaker of Randolph County pointed out that the state budget is growing even faster than the federal budget — doubling every seven years. "Since 1970, the state budget has grown 148 percent whereas the federal budget has grown 129 percent . . . cost of living has risen 65 percent."

A flat five percent cut in the budget could be easily accommodated by various state agencies, Republicans contend, by simply not filling unneeded jobs which may be vacant.

State Rep. Roy Spoon of Mecklenburg zeroed in on education, opposing the Math-Science High School as a way to get started with state money on the promise of federal and private grants in future years; grants which may or not be forthcoming.

Spoon also charged that millions of state dollars are being wasted on "slick, overpriced printing jobs" which serve little purpose, and he proposed that state travel be restricted.

In each case, Spoon said, he has no figures to back up his complaint that dollars are wasted in each category, but that a 15 percent reduction would serve at this time. Reporters have tried for years to get figures in these two areas, but because the spending is scattered among so many different budget items in so many different agencies it has proven impossible.

BILL

Building
State Senator Donald R.

Kincaid of Caldwell County objected to the $8.5 million to be spent on a legislative office building, and more money to be spent on furnishing it. He said a new state helicopter costing $1.4 million could be scrapped in favor of a similar model costing nearly a million less.

Kincaid also suggested measures to cut back on what he termed "public school teachers harassed by bureaucrats and unnecessary paperwork." While school enrollment is declining and classroom teacher jobs are being cut, "the number of central administrators has increased . . . staff in Raleigh funded by appropriation has increased by 29 in 1978-79, and by 32 in 1979-80. The Republican proposal would eliminate these administrative positions, thereby saving $1.5 million," he said.

Total effect of the Republican idea would be to save about $320 million over the next two years, allowing tax cuts including a 50 percent increase in basic personal exemptions on the income tax.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Our Lessons From Yemen

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SAANA, North Yemen — The temporary checkmate of South Yemen, Moscow's client state and its only foothold on the crucially-important Arabian peninsula, has placed the Soviet Union in a tight bind for which President Carter can claim some credit.

Carter's dispatch to this country — the most primitive in the Middle East — of costly military equipment was a belated but powerful American response to the Soviet offensive in many regions surrounding Saudi Arabia and its oil treasures. But an equal, possibly superior reason for South Yemen's deceptive new spirit of accommodation with its neighbor to the north, temporarily checkmating its ambitions, is that it fits Soviet grand strategy within the Arab world.

The strange fact here is that the U.S. and militant Arab states have a precisely similar objective: prevent Marxist South Yemen from trying to take over pro-American North Yemen and its capital city here in Saana.

The truce between the two Yemens was strongly urged on South Yemen, the aggressor, by Syria and Iraq, working in tandem with pro-American Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf states. Moscow, which has employed Cubans, East Germans and Ethiopians in South Yemen's terror campaign against North Yemen, had an agonizing choice once the Iraqis, Syrians and Saudis joined forces to stop the border war.

That choice: Alienate Saudi Arabia (which has been making faint overtures to Moscow as a result of the changing balance of world power) and Soviet friends Syria and Iraq by continuing the war; or step on the toes of the pro-Soviet Marxists in its client state of South Yemen by ordering the border war ended.

The realists in the Kremlin did not take long over that one. The war stopped dead in its tracks, for the time being, and the American military supplies now piling up near the airport here have not yet been put to any use beyond training.

To avoid its embarrassing choice, Soviet military and political agents had been working overtime for months in this northern capital city with its unpaved roads, trying to persuade the weak government that its future lies with Moscow.

"You cannot understand the pressure we have been under," Yahya Jaghman, ace diplomatic trouble-shooter in the North Yemen government, told us in a cool, high-ceilinged room of his new house on the outskirts of the dilapidated capital. "They offered to us that we send our soldiers to Russia where they would be trained by Arabic-speaking Soviet military experts on how to use Russian weapons. Then our men would return here with their new equipment."

But Jaghman and the North Yemen government turned down all such Soviet overtures. They knew that what Moscow wanted was eventual unification of the two Yemens under Soviet dominance. A united Yemen, far larger in population than Saudi Arabia (and on whose labor force the Saudis depend for workers in their oil fields), would be a dagger pointed at the Saudi heart. With such a threat Saudi Arabia might become more amenable to sharing its oil with the Soviet Union in the '80s, when Moscow for the first time will be shopping the world over for crude oil.

The "unification" agreement reached on March 30 by the two Yemens is not worth much more than the paper it is written on. Western authorities here agree with government leaders that it will not last very long.

What happens if and when the agreement collapses is anybody's guess. The significance of the two Yemens is less the unpredictable future than the extraordinary effect that their border war, and the South's failure to quickly win it, has

Strength For Today

STILL, SMALL VOICE

There is a beautiful description in the 19th chapter of First Kings about God's revelation of Himself to Elijah: "And behold, the Lord passed by, and a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the Lord. But the Lord was not in the wind. And after the wind an earthquake, but the Lord was not in the earthquake. And after the earthquake, a fire, but the Lord was not in the fire. And after the fire, a still, small voice."

That still, small voice speaks today. Have you ever heard the voice of God? "Why, no," you say, "I have never heard such a thing, nor do I ever expect to." But you have heard. He spoke to you when you stood before temptation. He said a guiding word as you stood at the crossroads. There was a still, small voice of comfort and love when that dear one passed away.

The voice of God is real today — "a still, small voice." Elisha Douglass

The Word 'No' Strikes Out

By GAIL MICHAELS

There are some terms which preschoolers just don't seem to understand no matter how hard we try to explain. One of them is "no." Meg thinks this means, "Go right ahead." I can yell, "No!" at the top of my voice, and she still smiles and does exactly what I told her not to do.

Of course, it could be that she does understand what I mean. It's possible that she's just disobeying me in order to mold my character by showing me that I can't have everything I want.

But I know for sure that she doesn't understand the meaning of "secret" or "surprise." To her, a "secret" is something that can be whispered. It's something that Mommy and Daddy spill and that doesn't fool her a bit, like "I-e-e c-r-e-a-m" or "co-o-k-i-e-s." A secret is like syrup of ipecac; it no more enters the system than it has to be thrown up again.

Knowing a secret makes a preschooler feel terribly important. And the more people she tells, the more important she feels. And the more she tells it, the more garbled it's likely to become. For instance, take the secret, "My mommy hid some Pepsi from my daddy because he guzzles it like gin." By the time it reaches the nursery school teacher, it's likely to come out, "My mommy hid that bottle from Daddy because he guzzles gin."

A surprise is only a more exciting version of a secret. No preschooler should ever be told about a surprise because it causes them great pain. At her uncle's birthday party, Meg giggled and giggled as if she were possessed by demons. Finally, she could stand it no longer. "Open Aunt Gail's present," she blurted. "It's a hat!"

Her reaction to Phillip's birthday was similar. I did not want to include her in the plans until the very last minute, but my schedule forced me to take her shopping with me three days before the big event.

"Now, Meg, I don't want you to tell Daddy what his present is," I said. "It's a surprise for his birthday, and we don't want him to know what it is until he unwraps it."

"Okay," she said. Ten minutes later, we picked Phillip up from school. She immediately pointed to the shopping bag which contained his present. "Don't look in there, Daddy, it's a surprise."

I held my finger to my lips, and she lowered her voice. "It's a big surprise. It's your birthday present."

"Oh, it is, is it? Well, don't tell me what it is."

"Oh, I won't. Because it's a surprise."

I shook my head. "That's right, so we won't say any more about it."

"That's right," she echoed, then lowered her voice still further. "It's a surprise and do you know what a surprise is? It's a book!"

I was really provoked. "Meg Michaels! You ruined the surprise!"

Her lips trembled and the tears welled up in her eyes. "But Mommy," she said. "I whispered it."

How History Is Made

WASHINGTON — It's amazing how history can turn on so many little events. According to an excerpt in Gerald Ford's book, Henry Kissinger, his secretary of state, James Schlesinger, his secretary of defense, and the President were in a heated debate over how to react to the Cambodian seizure of the Mayaguez, and whether the United States should retaliate with massive air strikes.

White House photographer David Kennerly was taking photos of the debate when he interjected himself into the conversation and said, "Has anyone considered that this might be the act of a local Cambodian commander who has taken it into his own hands to stop any ship that comes by?"

Apparently the three great men hadn't, and Kennerly's view prevailed. Instead of

Other Editors Say Severe Judges

(The Raleigh Times)

Current public qualms at the breadth of judicial discretion are sure to be heightened by the news that federal judges in North Carolina's Eastern District hold the American record for giving the longest sentences. Their average sentence, at eight years two months, is over twice as long as the national average of three years nine months.

The Eastern District is not far out of line in the percentage of federal defendants it sends to prison — 55 percent compared with a 47 percent national average. The disparity is in how long they're sent to serve. And even allowing for the impact of Eastern North Carolina's high bank robbery rate, this disparity is not the kind of statistic that gives rise to regional pride.

The same disillusioned reaction to sentencing disparities is one reason for the current state bill to establish a presumptive sentence for each type of felony, and to require judges, when they deviate from this presumed sentence, to spell out their reasons.

North Carolina, though its reported crime rate is only 39th in the nation and 19th for violent offenses, has more state prison inmates as a proportion of its population than any state. The maximum sentences its laws permit are among the nation's most severe.

And the Knox commission, two years ago found that, perhaps partly because such tough maximum punishments are permitted, sentences actually given in this state vary widely for the same crime. Given so much discretion, judges are bound to show their human inconsistency.

The new sentencing bill, which Crime Secretary Herbert Hyde likes to call "Fair Sentencing", will not fully remedy these problems. The presumptive sentences it sets out are usually a simple two-fifths of the present maximum sentences. Where the maximums now are unduly high, the presumptive sentences will also be higher than fairness may dictate. So even if Fair Sentencing is adopted, the General Assembly must still be prepared to reexamine and revise the felony-sentence schedule on which it is based.

The sentencing bill has other implications not yet clear and not all desirable, among them a heightening of plea-bargaining's importance. But Fair Sentencing would at least narrow somewhat, at state level, the sort of wide-open judicial discretion that lets some defendants get one year for breaking and entering while others get 10 years. That fact alone, we believe, makes Fair Sentencing an improvement worth trying.

And in the light of the Eastern District federal sentencing record, Congress might consider whether the federal courts don't need presumptive sentences, too.

massive air strikes, Ford writes, he ordered only limited air strikes against a few Cambodian military targets.

I wasn't there, of course, but when I read the excerpt I began imagining the scene.

KENNERLY: "All right, Mr. President. You get in the middle. Henry will be arguing with you on your right, and, Mr. Schlesinger, you look as if you're disagreeing with both of them."

KISSINGER: "Mr. President, I say we bomb the hell out of them. We have to teach them the United States is still the major power in the world."

FORD: "Yes, that would be a good idea. Jim, can you tell the Pentagon I want a massive air strike?"

SCHLESINGER: "No problem. We have B-52s all loaded and ready."

KENNERLY: "Great. Let me just get a light reading. All right now, how about the President sitting down and both you gentlemen studying a map of Cambodia? In this one I'd like a smile from you, Mr. Schlesinger."

SCHLESINGER: "I NEVER smile."

PRESIDENT: "That's true, David. I've never seen Schlesinger smile."

KISSINGER: "I can smile."

KENNERLY: "Well, since

40 Years Ago Today

April 20, 1939

George Gardner, chief of the Greenville fire department, today urged persons who rush to a fire out of curiosity to park their cars at least two or three blocks from the scene of the blaze.

He said that many people have the habit of rushing to a fire and driving their car right up to where the truck is parked. Such a custom, he said, delays firemen from reaching the scene and also interferes with laying the hose.

Chief Gardner also asked that citizens obey the law to the extent that they not pull out behind the truck when it is on the way to a fire. Statutes provide that all motorists must pull to the curb and stop.

The chief said he was asking this cooperation on the part of the citizens for their own protection. Delay caused by interference of spectators can cause a fire to get beyond control, he explained.

you're thinking about massive air strikes against Cambodia maybe you better look serious."

PRESIDENT: "I agree. Since this is for history we want to make sure the American people know that I consider the taking of one of our ships a grave matter."

KENNERLY: "Mr. Schlesinger, would you mind taking your pipe out of your mouth? The smoke is covering up the President's face."

SCHLESINGER: "I always have a pipe in my mouth."

KISSINGER: "The way I see it, we just keep dropping bombs day and night until they give us back the Mayaguez."

KENNERLY: "Henry, maybe you could use your hands to simulate a bombing attack. Don't look at me. Look at the President. That's a beautiful scowl, Mr. Schlesinger."

SCHLESINGER: "I'm not scowling."

PRESIDENT: "That's the way Jim looks all the time, David. Gentlemen, you don't think I'll be accused of over-reacting, do you?"

SCHLESINGER: "Who cares?"

KISSINGER: "The American people are crying for some sort of action after our ignominious withdrawal from Vietnam. A good massive bombing will make everyone feel better."

KENNERLY: "That was terrific. Let's try one more. How about the President in a football crouch as if he's going to center the ball? Henry, you be the quarterback, and, Mr. Schlesinger, you look as if Henry's going to give the ball to you."

PRESIDENT: "I think before we go ahead we should ask someone else's opinion. David, what do you think about bombing Cambodia into the Stone Age?"

KENNERLY: "The way I see it, probably some hotshot local commander decided to grab the Mayaguez without checking with Phnom Penh."

KISSINGER: "Why didn't we think of that?"

SCHLESINGER: "I thought of it. I just didn't mention it."

PRESIDENT: "Good work, David."

KENNERLY: "It's nothing, Mr. President, that's what White House photographers are for!"

While you should never refuse to win a "heavy" trick "on general principles," it might be necessary to do so to sever communications between the enemy hands. Declarer failed to realize that precept and went down in a game he should have made.

South had a difficult decision to make at his second turn. While he had two honor cards in his partner's suit, he felt that his heart suit was so good that it should be stressed in preference to raising clubs. When North could take another bid, South ventured on to game on the strength of the double fit.

West led the four of spades and declarer captured East's king with the ace. Two rounds of trumps were drawn, and the club finesse lost to the king. East returned a spade to West's queen, and the marked diamond shift gave the defenders two tricks in that suit for down one.

South bemoaned his fate. "Any one of two key cards with West and the contract would roll home!" That was indeed unlucky—almost as unfortunate as was declarer's play.

Declarer could have assured his contract simply by making sure that West does not regain the lead to attack the diamond weakness. The only card with which West could possibly be put on lead was the queen of spades. The precautionary measure is simplicity itself. Just refuse the first trick!

East will probably continue with a spade to the ace. After drawing trumps, declarer can take the club finesse. Even though this loses, East cannot reach his partner for a diamond lead through the king. Declarer will thus be able to discard two diamonds on the long clubs, and he will lose no more than one trick in each side suit.

had on the Soviet master plan for the Middle East.

That plan now points to Moscow playing the lead in exploiting Arab anger at the new U.S.-inspired treaty between Egypt and Israel. Successfully shut out of the fast-moving Mideast political drama ever since Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem, the Russians are looking for ways to jump back in by widening the division between Egypt and other Arab states.

Promoting what amounts to civil war here between the two Yemens does not at all fit this long-range Soviet plan. Indeed, if the South continued the war — possible only with Soviet approval — Moscow would become dangerously exposed as operating against the interest of the Arab world.

In prospect, then, is a no-peace, no-war situation here. The Russians have once again proved how little value a client state has when it interferes with larger Soviet designs; and the Americans have proved for the first time under Carter that the dispatch of military equipment in a timely manner can have immediate impact on the strength of the American position. For a small border war, those are big lessons to be learned.

Committee Plans Promote Bond Issue

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer
Tentative plans were made Thursday by a committee comprised of concerned citizens, Greenville City and Pitt County Boards of Education members and Superintendents Glenn Cox and Ott Alford toward promotion of the June 8 vote on the proposed $9 million school bond issue. It was tentatively agreed by the committee that GCS and PCS board members Dr. Jon Tinglest and Jim Black would serve as co-chairmen of the committee. Representatives from the county included Anne McGaughey of Farmville, Dot Dail of Ayden and Eldon Col-train of Bethel. Superintendent Cox explained that because of the short notice of the meeting, he was unable to get in contact with his committee persons. Both superintendents were to attend the National School Board Association conference in Florida as of today. Committee members stressed the importance of having all school personnel registered to vote, with possible committees to be formed within each school to promote understanding of the issue.

Members agreed that local advisory councils in the county, as well as city and county PTAs, would be an important asset in working on the grass-roots level.

A treasurer, who will probably be from Greenville, will handle monies accrued by the committee in the form of donations, since tax dollars cannot be spent on the bond issue promotion.

Committee members also expressed an interest in forming a speaker bureau to allow speakers to go to local groups to give information on the bonds. Extensive coverage by television, newspaper, and radio will be needed to spread information on the issue, stated committee members. Plans were made toward scheduling informed persons on local television and radio talk shows to promote the issue. The committee also expressed interest in working with local chamber of commerces in informing the public.

The bond issue referendum will be held in conjunction with a referendum on liquor by the drink in the county June 8. The school bond issue will disburse the $9 million on a per pupil basis throughout the city and county if passed. The committee expressed a strong interest in keeping the two issues separate.

The committee will meet again Monday, April 30, 8 p.m., at the Greenville City Schools Administrative Bldg., with more input from communities on the matter.

Odds Against A Managerial Role Awaiting College Grads

RALEIGH — Tar Heel college students who expect to land a job in a professional or managerial occupation upon graduation may be in for a disappointment, according to a just-completed study by the state Employment Security Commission.

The study estimates that an annual average of 25,304 professional and managerial employees will be needed in the state during the six year period between 1976 and the end of 1982.

Since the number of college graduates reached 28,716 in 1975, the last year for which figures were available, "it appears that some degree recipients will not be able to find an occupation in which they expected to be employed" in the next few years.

According to the study, more students should investigate opportunities in other business fields, noting that many persons who work in the operative and craft occupations earn just as much or more than selected professional or managerial employees in many cases.

The study did not cover self-employment in professional occupations or other categories, but says that based on previous studies, "the number of self-employed will not completely offset the surplus of degree recipients."

The number of crafts workers will increase from 276,350 in 1976 to 323,970 in 1982, not including many who are self-employed.

Relatively large annual job needs will be felt in the crafts area for blue collar worker supervisors, inspectors, carpenters, heavy equipment operators and auto mechanics, according to the survey.

Operatives include truck drivers and operators of various types of machinery and equipment whose employment is concentrated in manufacturing plants. These persons already make up the largest segment of North Carolina's nonagricultural wage and salary employment, with the numbers increasing from 515,540 to 605,590 in 1982, the study estimates.

Job needs in the operative occupations are estimated at 28,607 a year during the study period and the need for crafts workers is placed at 14,345 a year.

Good Collection By Bloodmobile

The Bloodmobile had one of its best days Thursday in terms of the percentage of eligible donors as 174 units of blood were collected at D. H. Conley High School.

Pitt Blood chairman Ott Alford said that the Conley visit was very successful and he cited the efforts of school principal Bob Carraway and his staff for the well organized blood drive.

In addition to the 174 units collected, there were 14 deferrals, according to Alford.

The chairman offered his appreciation to the student donors and also the 37 faculty and staff members who gave blood.

Alford said that officials had originally planned for a four-hour mini-visit at Conley but the response resulted in an extension of the visit to five and a half hours.

Most of the volunteer help yesterday were school personnel, he said, adding his appreciation for the volunteer assistance.

The next Bloodmobile visit will be on May 17 at Burroughs Wellcome.

Could Not Evade The Moral Struggle

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest in the forefront of a revolutionary upheaval in Latin America says it is a "risk taken in order to be faithful to the mandate of Christ."

"It's a moral struggle from which we cannot absent ourselves," says the Rev. Miguel d'Escoto, one of "Los Doce" — "The 12" — a group in the forefront of efforts to overthrow the rule of Nicaragua's Gen. Anastasio Somoza.

D'Escoto sees his role as in harmony with Pope John Paul II's recent advice to Latin American clergy to concentrate on strengthening the basic integrity of people and societies, unfettered by any ideology but Christianity.

"We welcomed his emphasis, and share it," says d'Escoto, 46, a Maryknoll priest and long an official of his order in the United States before returning in 1977 to his troubled homeland. Two other priests are members of the group of 12.

"We've identified ourselves as Christ did with the op-meet with church leaders and others, appealing for the U.S. government to take a more open stand against Somoza.

"The church has been most responsive and encouraging in this struggle, committed to democratic process and understanding of what we face," d'Escoto said. "Unlike the past, the church has moved more and more into a prophetic role, condemning injustice, allying itself with the poor."

"This is very, very important. When the inevitable change comes about in Nicaragua, as it soon will, it will not be against the church as it would have been historically, but with the church."

Los Doce sparked formation of the National Patriotic Front, which includes Nicaragua's major political, civic, labor and student groups, a cross-section behind the armed element, the Sandinistas, fighting to oust Somoza. Somoza brands it pro-communist, which its leaders strongly deny.

"It's essential to unmask the big lie that the Patriotic Front is terrorist or puppets of some Marxist power," d'Escoto said. "Christian values play a very important role for most of the people involved in this struggle for freedom and democracy."

Emilio Baltodano, 63, a wealthy businessman and member of Los Doce, said: "Being a Christian, I decided to come into this revolution 100 percent. You suffer being rich when there's hardly anything for the workers under this corrupt, dishonest regime." "Lamentably," d'Escoto said, "we're in a situation of war. War always is lamentable, but armed struggle cannot be avoided altogether in a just cause. We must do all in our power to mitigate the effects of that struggle by concentrating on political and civil action."

He approvingly quoted President John Kennedy: "Those who make peaceful change impossible make violent change inevitable."

REV. MIGUEL d'ESCOTO

Spring Floods Move Into New Southwest Regions

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer
Spring floods splashed into new territory today, claiming more homes and businesses in a sweep through Mississippi and routing hundreds of other residents in Texas, Alabama, North Dakota and Minnesota. More than 6 inches of rain in east Texas built floods during the night that poured 5 feet deep through some city streets in Beaumont and the Houston area. The Red Cross evacuated several hundred Beaumont residents and set up seven shelters for flood refugees. Nearby Sour Lake was within a half a foot of the 1917 record flood stage. "We evacuated 111 persons from Bella Woods and about 100 persons from Banana Bend and Highland Shore Drive," said Harris County Civil Defense Director John Caswell. He predicted more than 1,000 residents will have to be evacuated in Harris County before the week is over. Meanwhile, floodwaters from the Pearl River churned deeper into the heart of south Mississippi today, advancing steadily on the sandbagged fortress of Columbia. "It's coming and it keeps coming," Mississippi Civil Defense spokesman Jim Thornhill said at Columbia where his staff worked over ringing telephones and blaring two-way radios. "I've seen what it has done in the Morgantown area to the north so I know what's heading our way," he said. Columbia lies directly in the path of the muddy Pearl River floodwater — the same water that covered hundreds of homes and businesses in Jackson, 80 miles to the north. The floodwater also covered small highways and farmland as it twisted south past Georgetown and Monticello, Miss. In Jackson, waters receded from previously closed downtown streets. Stained flood marks were visible at least 2 feet above the water line on fashionable homes in the northeast section of the city. More than 17,000 persons were forced to abandon their homes in the Jackson metropolitan area and hundreds of persons inundated two federal disaster centers that opened Thursday at city parks. "We need help," said Peggy Simoneaux, who said she had been waiting at one of the centers for five hours with her 4-year-old daughter. "We've got to find a place to stay." Officials estimated 3,000 persons at Columbia and in towns upriver — Georgetown, Morgantown and Monticello — already had fled their homes. Thornhill said the weather service was considering raising its forecasted crest at Columbia, now expected Monday, by at least a foot. "The river is forecast to crest at 27 1/2 feet on Monday, give or take a foot" and flood stage is 17 feet, he said. The current prediction would send water into dozens of homes and businesses and any revision upward "will put water everywhere down here and we'll be talking about 5,000 evacuations instead of 1,500 or more," he said. In Alabama, state officials expect the delta area around Mobile to act as a sponge and soak up floodwaters from the bulging Tombigbee and Alabama rivers when they reach the area early next week. Some 1,000 persons remain homeless in Marengo, Greene, Hale and Sumter counties. They were forced to evacuate when the Tombigbee River, swollen by torrential rains, crested at 72.4 feet Wednesday, 24 feet above flood stage — the highest water on record since the area was settled in 1818. Evacuations also were predicted for southeast Texas where some 1,000 Harris County residents near Houston prepared to flee from their homes along the San Jacinto River. John Caswell, Harris County civil defense director, said the current flooding would exceed that of 1973 when a record 49.8 feet of water crested at the Lake Houston spillway.

Friday Reports...

minor concerns, but basically insisting upon rigid adherence to his view of program transfer and termination," Friday said. "I think you will agree that Mr. Beattie and Mr. Tatel were presented with a far-reaching comprehensive proposal that can only be described as generous," he said. Friday said nothing about what the university's next step would be. He said Morgan's report will concern what the board's options are now. One of those options is filing suit in federal court against HEW. Friday gave a campus-by-campus breakdown of the money that would be used to enhance programs and facilities at the five mostly black institutions. The totals include the $30 million already appropriated for the schools and the $40 million UNC is proposing to spend: —Elizabeth City State University, $6.6 million. —Fayetteville State University, $11.6 million. —North Carolina A&T State University at Greensboro, $25.9 million. —North Carolina Central University in Durham, $14.3 million. —Winston-Salem State University, $11.3 million.

Sweet Revenge

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — An irate creditor is the suspected culprit of a prank that temporarily turned Leroy Callicutt's car into a beehive. "I owe him $10 more on some tires I bought from him," Callicutt, 21, said Thursday. "I told him I didn't have the money because I don't have a job now. I've been owing him the $10 about a month, but I told him I'd pay him when I get it. "He started threatening me. But I didn't really pay him any attention because he said if I didn't pay him, he'd put deadly bees in my car." And sure enough, it happened. Police called a beekeeper to get Callicutt out of the jam.

Billy Carter To Meet Reporters

LONG BEACH, Calif. Tandy Rice said Thursday the president's brother will give a brief statement and answer questions at the hospital. Carter, who has been in the hospital's alcohol and drug abuse unit since March 6, has been paying the civilian rate of $266 a day. When he was admitted, a hospital spokesman said Carter would stay six to eight weeks.

Sentencing was scheduled for today, and the defendants face maximum penalties of five years imprisonment and a $15,000 fine for each count of the multiple count indictments under which they were charged. The defendants attempted to smuggle 800 bales of marijuana by trying to unload the pot at a marina near Wilmington. Federal officers, acting on a tip, surprised the group.

Carson Wants Leave 'Tonight'

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Carson wants to quit "The Tonight Show," but his attorney denies reports the entertainer is determined to leave NBC's popular late-night program sometime this fall.

The New York Times said Friday that Carson — whose $2.5 million-a-year contract almost certainly makes him the highest-paid entertainer on television — would leave the talk show Sept. 30, his 17th anniversary as "Tonight" host.

But Carson's attorney, Henry

I. Bushkin, who reportedly returned here from Las Vegas, Nev., with the entertainer Thursday, told the Los Angeles Times his client had not set a firm departure date.

"After 17 years, Johnny feels he's given it his best shot," Bushkin said, acknowledging Carson had talked with NBC about leaving the program before his contract expires in the spring of 1981.

Carson's departure would be another serious blow for NBC, which has endured a disastrous season in the ratings. The network has been last in the weekly prime-time ratings all but five times since September, and though Carson's program is outside of prime-time, shock waves most certainly would be felt at the affiliate level.

Carson was unavailable for comment on the reports. A source connected with the "Tonight" show who asked not to be identified said, however, that Carson's request followed an ultimatum from NBC President Fred Silverman, who reportedly was upset by Carson's frequent absences from the show.

Bushkin denied that, and also took issue with reports from New York that Silverman had tried unsuccessfully to dissuade Carson from leaving. "That's not what happened," he told the Los Angeles Times.

Bushkin said Carson wants to leave to do more specials, the newspaper reported in today's editions.

The flare-up comes at an inopportune time for Silverman, who was here this week for corporate meetings. Stockholders in RCA, NBC's parent company, meet in New York May 1, and NBC's affiliates gather here May 13-16 to consider fall programming.

Silverman is expected to take considerable heat from both shareholders and affiliates for NBC's poor prime-time track record.

Under terms of his contract, Carson is required to act as host no more than three times a week 25 weeks a year and four times per week 12 weeks a year — with 15 weeks vacation.

Silverman, who joined NBC last June after leaving top-rated ABC, has noted that the show's ratings dropped when guest hosts sat in for Carson. He reportedly told the entertainer to do more shows or not do any at all, according to one source. Carson apparently asked to exercise the latter option.

Carson told The Associated Press last month that "I get a lot of flak about my time off. But if I had to work the same schedule I had when I started there's no way I could do the show. When I started, I did five shows a week, 47 weeks a year. That's a lot of TV."

NBC apparently is unwilling to let Carson out of his contract. The network's only comment on the problem Thursday night was:

"NBC's contract with Johnny Carson continues to the spring of 1981 and we expect him to honor it."

NBC officials would not say whether they expected Carson to try to get out of his contract in court.

From NBC's standpoint, it would make sense to try to keep Carson and "Tonight" together. The show grossed nearly $80 million last year. The profits from "Tonight" accounted for about 17 percent of the network's total pretax profit of $122 million, industry sources say.

For about 130 to 140 appearances a year, Carson is paid what is believed to be the highest salary for any television performer. Although the figure has not been disclosed, it's estimated Carson earns $4 million annually from "Tonight," and from his Las Vegas appearances and business enterprises.

Carson began on the "Tonight" show on Oct. 1, 1962, after five years as host of the small-name game show "Who Do You Trust." He succeeded the mercurial Jack Paar.

It took nearly two years for Carson to catch on in a big way, but once he did, he became the top banana of late night TV programming.

There was speculation that Carson and NBC may reach a compromise and that he will remain on the show for another year.

A Fine Vietnam Movie Offered

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They called it the living room war, the war that was brought to you daily in living color, compliments of the evening news. When it ended, it quickly became the war to forget.

It was a war that didn't make heroes, not the kind that Hollywood favored, anyway. If indeed "the media reflect the national consciousness," as screenwriter Fay Kanin suggests, then America is suddenly willing to remember Vietnam. A string of fine books about the war was followed last year by four major movies concerning Vietnam, two of which ("The Deer Hunter" and "Coming Home") dominated this year's Oscar giveaway.

Fittingly, a new Vietnam movie, perhaps the best so far, is a movie made for television, the medium that defined the war for millions of Americans. "Friendly Fire," Sunday night on ABC, is the true story of an American family that tried to understand the death of a son accidentally killed by American artillery. Miss Kanin adapted the movie from a book by C.D.B. Bryan.

It is the story of just one Iowa family, but their loss and bitter disaffection came to speak for a nation. They searched for meaning, but could find none. In that sense, "Friendly Fire" says why Vietnam became the forgotten war. Carol Burnett and Ned Beatty give extraordinary performances as Peg and Gene Mullen, fifth-generation, bread-belt Americans who became unlikely anti-war heroes — heartland folks, people of the soil who would have smiled bravely and proudly buried their dead son in any other war.

That they went a little haywire over this loss in this war said more about the Vietnam conflict than all the anti-war shouting at Columbia or UCLA. The radicalization of the Mullens meant something; America's sense of right and purpose had gone off-track.

The Mullens were shocked by the death of their son Mike, but from the beginning, something seemed wrong. Mike was killed by friendly fire, from a defensive missile that struck his chest, the Mullens were told. But the mortician that received Mike's body from the Army told Gene that his boy had only suffered a small wound — the size of a bullet — in the back.

This helped turn a normal sorrow into an obsession. Peg and Gene Mullen spent every waking moment turning over in their minds the scattered, sometimes conflicting information they had gathered about Mike's death. They braved resistance from the Army and from their Iowa neighbors, but in the end, the only purpose they found was their own pacifism.

Their son's death and their own hometown saga were microcosms of the nation's experience. Hurt, they were forced to look at the war. And the war could not bear up to their scrutiny.

The Mullens represented an America that had had enough, an America that finally asked, with Peg Mullens, "Oh Dear God, what did we do to our sons?"

Hope For Hit In 'Charlie Hustle'

CINCINNATI (AP) — RCA will release a disco record today called "Charlie Hustle," which it hopes will be as big a hit as the man the record is about.

"Charlie Hustle," is the nickname for Pete Rose, the Philadelphia Phils first baseman. And Rose, no shrinking violet to publicity, says, "It has the disco sound. I like it."

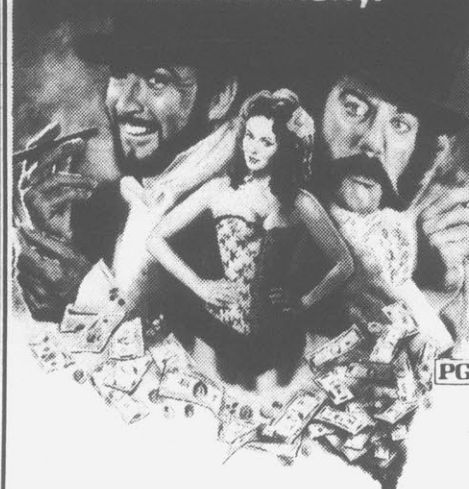

Pam Neal, who sings the song, said it was inspired by Rose's 44-game hitting streak last baseball season.

Lawman Known For Role Above The Call Of Duty

By Rick Smith
The Hickory Daily Record
HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — The next time your newspaper is full of sheriffs on the take, police shooting the wrong man, brutality charges against officers and sundry other juicy tidbits, don't leap to any sweeping conclusions.

In fairness to the law enforcement personnel in the counties of Catawba, Caldwell, Burke and Alexander, you might listen to James C. Giddens and family, who were driven from their home by a smoldering oil heater in frigid February.

They'll tell you about a Longview cop, officer Authur J. Shook.

"I've been around for 37 years and I've never met a police officer who'd go to an extreme to help you like Officer Shook did," said Giddens, a Hickory resident.

"Although most officers show concern, he's pretty unusual." He is at that. When it's quitting time, Shook doesn't shrug off the unfortunates he's encountered. As Giddens found, he's liable to take them home with him.

The four members of the Giddens family encountered Shook's hospitality early Feb. 12. Snow lay on the ground as the family slumbered in their frame home at Longview.

"I woke up around 1:30 a.m. when I heard my oldest son coughing and hacking," said Giddens. "I thought it was his cold, but as I got more awake I realized my eyes and throat were burning. When I turned on the light, smoke was so thick you couldn't see your hand in front of your face."

Giddens rushed his wife Catherine, 32, and sons James Jr., 9, and Christopher, 3, outside. He called for an ambulance, grabbed some blankets and left the home.

First on the scene were officers Shook and David Turner of the Longview Police Department. The Giddens were placed in the rear of a warm vehicle until an ambulance took them to Glenn R. Frye Memorial Hospital.

Shook and Turner remained at the scene until the Hickory Fire Department arrived and cleared the residence of smoke. The home's interior was covered with soot. Firemen said the family should not spend the remainder of the night there.

Shook and Turner drove to the hospital. "I figured they had no way back," Shook said. "When I go to a hospital to check on a wreck or ambulance run, I wait and see if they (the victims) have a way home."

"The officers came to the emergency room and showed their concern, they came into the room and talked with us," Giddens said.

Giddens and his family were treated for smoke inhalation and released.

"They were going to give us a ride to a relative's house to spend the night," Giddens said. "I told them we were from Georgia, we didn't have any relatives around here and didn't know that many people."

"Officer Shook took us to his house," Giddens said. "I had an empty apartment at the house and I just told them to make themselves at home," the genial host said.

The procedure may be unusual, but it came as no shock to Shook's wife, Eleanor.

"My wife knows I do things like that. I'm always trying to help somebody. I'd rather help 'em than hurt 'em," Shook explained.

Indeed, during his nocturnal third-shift duties Shook seems to collect unfortunates like a soft-hearted matron attracts bedraggled stray kitties.

One rainy night, he encountered a soaked 17-year-old from Asheville who was working at a local snack bar.

"He was living in the woods and kept his clothes in a plastic bag. He didn't have a tent or a place to stay," the officer said. Shook, true to his role as Longview's Officer Friendly, took the youth home for a free flop. "He stayed there a couple of months. I bought him some clothes and a bicycle," Shook said. "His mother finally came and got him."

Shook takes the lesser pleasant duties of his profession just as seriously. He just recently took part in a number of investigations which led to the arrests of several thieves. Nightly, he prowls Longview, looking for break-ins and other trouble.

"He's very conscientious," said Longview Police Chief T.W. Van Horn. "He wouldn't be happy anywhere besides third shift."

The Giddens family spent one night with the Shooks, then returned home the next day. The emergency host and his guests have struck up a friendship.

"Those officers are really extraordinary," says a grateful Giddens.

Church Plans To Begin Music, Media Center

A MUSIC CENTER... is planned in the new Jarvis Church Music and Media Center to be begun soon.

Work is scheduled to begin soon on Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church's new Music and Media Center, to be located at the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Washington Street.

According to Financial Campaign Chairman Ralph C. Tucker, pledges to finance the new center will be given over a five-year period.

The Media Center, to contain 1,155 square feet of floor space, will have a reading room, a media work room, and an audiovisual room. The Music Center, to be 1,591 square feet in size, will have a choir room, a handbell room, and a renovated office and robing room.

The additional expansion is "necessary emergency," according to the church pastor, the Rev. James H. Bailey. "We have a perpetual gift of at least $6,000 a year for new books and there's no place to put our present library," he said. "The children's choir room is a Sunday School class and Mother's Day Out, leaving no large room for the choir to practice in before the church service."

A kickoff breakfast meeting for the Jarvis Methodist Quarterly Conference was held Wednesday. Breakfast meeting chairman, Luther Moore, said there was enthusiastic support from more than 20 members of the pledge and contribution committee for the new Music and Media Center.

An active researcher whose special interest is black professional women, Mrs. Davis noted that the lifestyles, life options and expectations of the black woman, especially the professional black woman, is an area rarely studied and documented.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined moderately today, continuing its recent pullback after a broad early-spring rally.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.03 at 852.22.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted some caution among investors over the outlook for inflation and interest rates.

G. William Miller, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said the Fed will consider tightening credit if the economy grows at faster than 2.5 percent annual rate in the second quarter.

In the first quarter, economic growth slowed to an 0.7 percent annual clip.

Overseas Shipholding Group led the active list, up 1 1/4 at 25 1/4. A 353,800-share block traded at 24 1/4.

General Public Utilities dropped 3/4 to 11 1/2 in active trading. The company, which owns the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania, nia where an accident occurred last month, said a postponed meeting of its board to consider dividend action and other matters would be held next Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .18 to 56.91. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .03 at 180.40.

Volume on the Big Board came to 12.19 million shares at noontime, against 13.73 million at the same point Thursday.

Homer Parade Leads Bucs Past Rams

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's Pirates, after losing four straight games, snapped back last night and pounded out a 10-2 victory over Virginia Commonwealth.

The Pirates cracked out 14 hits, including three home runs and two doubles to easily surpass the Rams.

Billy Smith went all the way in the victory, scattering eight hits, allowing just one walk and striking out seven.

"Bill did a real good job for us," Coach Monte Little said afterwards.

"We got a chance to have some fun tonight and get back into the swing of things. It was a good game for us."

It was a good game for some of the Pirate batters, too, as five of them recorded two or more hits. Billy Best, Butch Davis, Jerry Carraway and Mike Sorrell each had two hits, while Max Raynor paced the way with four in five trips to the plate.

Carraway, Raymie Styons and Best all collected homers, while Carraway and Raynor added doubles to the collection.

East Carolina got the scoring going in the third inning when Carraway led off with a home run, his second of the season, over the fence in left. The Pirates, who had left a man at second in the first, then left another standing there in the remaining segment of the third.

The fourth saw three more runs come over as the Bucs took a 4-0 lead. Macon Moye led off, reaching on an error. Max Raynor then reached on a hit to deep second, and Styons followed that up with a three-run homer. It was his second homer of the year, also, and his first since the opening game against South Carolina.

Another run scored in the fifth. With one away, Butch Davis reached on a hit, but was thrown out at second on Moye's infield grounder. Moye then sped all the way from first on a double by Raynor, making it 5-0.

Virginia Commonwealth, which had threatened with the bases loaded in the third and left a man on third in the fifth, finally got a run in the seventh. Dave Brandt led off that inning with a double and moved up on an out. He scored on Mike Dolan's single to center.

The Pirates countered that in the bottom of the inning with the third homer of the evening, a leadoff blast by Billy Best, his first round-tripper of the season. That made it 6-1.

The Rams got their other run in the top of the eighth. With two outs, Bill Murray singled and Billy Godsey was hit by a pitch. Brandt singled, scoring Murray and it was 6-2.

But the Pirates put it on ice with four more in the bottom of the eighth. Mike Sage walked to open things up and with one away, Sorrell was hit by a pitch. Bob Neff singled to left, scoring Sage. Both runners moved up on a balk, and Best singled to right, scoring Sorrell. Neff, who tried to score when the relay got past the catcher, was thrown out by the VCU pitcher, backing up the play. Best, who had moved up on the play, scored when Butch Davis singled. Davis also moved up on the relay, and took third on a wild pitch. He scored when a third balk was called on Ram relief pitcher Greg Kerr.

The Pirates climbed to 18-14 with the win, while VCU fell off to 12-16-1.

East Carolina closes out its current home stand with a pair of games against Liberty Baptist, one tonight at 7:30 p.m., and the other Saturday night at the same time.

Before Troubles Started

Cy Young pitcher Gaylord Perry of the San Diego Padres has his shoulder and arm worked over by trainer Dick Dent before yesterday's

Perry Misses Game With Back Spasms

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

It was to have been a classic pitching duel. Two Cy Young award winners...the kind of matchup usually reserved for opening day or Game 1 of the World Series.

Gaylord Perry vs. Vida Blue. The situation began to deteriorate quickly, however. The 40-year-old Perry came up with a bad back minutes before game time, and the San Diego Padres' 1978 Cy Young winner checked out of the starting lineup.

Blue, who won the Cy Young in 1971 with Oakland, didn't come up with a bad back, but then he didn't come up with much of a performance, either. He yielded 11 hits, nine earned runs and left after the eighth for a pinch hitter. Still, he was credited with the win as San Francisco defeated the Padres 14-10 Thursday afternoon.

Cy Young's name also came up in a different context. Mickey Lolich, who replaced Perry on the mound, tied Young with 2,818 career strikeouts when he fanned Dave Winfield in the third. That mark is fifth on the all-time list.

There was little consolation in that strikeout, however. Lolich left in the third inning, when San Francisco scored five runs, capped by catcher Marc Hill's three-run homer. Hill had four RBI in the game, as did the Giants' Terry Whitfield, who extended his hitting streak to eight games.

Despite yielding a three-run homer to Fernando Gonzalez and Gene Richard's three-run double, Blue came within one inning of his fourth consecutive complete game. The left-hander is now 4-0.

In the only other National League games Thursday, the Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis 3-2, and Cincinnati blanked Atlanta 2-0.

Cubs 3, Cards 2

Chicago right-hander Dennis Lamp scattered six hits over seven innings in his first start of the season — yielding St. Louis' runs on Lou Brock's RBI single and a fielder's choice grounder. Relief ace Bruce Sutter worked the final two innings for his second save.

Ivan DeJesus homered for the Cubs, and Chicago scored two more runs on an error by Brock in left field in the second inning and third baseman Ken Reitz' throwing error in the fourth. The fourth-inning run became earned when Cards right-hander Bob Forsch, 0-2, followed with a wild pitch.

Reds 2, Braves 0
Tom Seaver tossed his 48th career shutout, allowing just two hits, and Ken Griffey and George Foster smacked solo homers to help Seaver even his season record at 2-2.

Rose, Farmville Gain Tourney Finals

By JIM KYLE
and WOODY PEELE

Farmville Central and Rose High worked their way into tonight's championship game of the Greenville-Pitt Baseball Tournament in contrasting fashion last night.

The Jaguars eased past Washington 3-0, while the Rampants blasted D. H. Conley 17-3. In yesterday afternoon's consolation bracket game, Wilson Fike defeated North Pitt 8-2.

The title game will be tonight at 8 p.m., while Fike will face New Bern for fifth place at 3 and Washington and Conley will battle for third place at 6.

Wilson Fike 8, North Pitt 2

Wilson Fike rolled up an 8-2 victory over North Pitt in the consolation bracket contest during the afternoon, sending the Panthers home.

Fike will now meet New Bern for fifth place in the tournament. That game is set for 3 p.m. today.

North Pitt broke the ice first, getting a run in the fourth inning. Vic Evans walked and Bob Hemingway bunted his way aboard, getting the first Panther hit of the day. With one out, William Beechum grounded to second, getting Hemingway's courtesy runner, with Evans moving to third. A balk allowed him to score.

After several threats, Fike broke it open with six runs in the fourth frame. Phil Batts opened up with a single to center and Randy Prince singled through the middle. Bobby Owens, attempting to sacrifice, reached on an error, loading the bases.

Jeff Williams singled to left center, scoring both Batts and Prince, but Owens' courtesy runner was thrown out trying to go to third on the play. Williams stole second and moved to third on an error on the throw-down, scoring on Billy Blackburn's single. Blackburn then stole second and third, and Tommy Langley walked. Both scored on a triple by Duke Lackey, who scored on a wild pitch.

Fike added two more in the sixth, Blackburn reached on a slow roller to third and Charles Flowers was safe on an fielding error, and moved up on a throwing error on the same play. A pickoff attempt at second was also misplayed, allowing him to move to third, and he scored on a double by Ricky Matthews.

The other Panther run came in the seventh. Jeff Hines walked and scored when Ron House reached on a three-base error.

The Panthers got only three hits off Fike hurler Larry Norman. Matthews, Williams and Blackburn had two hits each for Fike.

The Panthers are now 5-7, while Fike climbed to 6-6.

Farmville 3, Washington 0

Greg Hardison's two-run double in the fifth inning helped the Jaguars break open a scoreless tie and defeat the Pam-Pack.

Neither team was able to advance a runner past second base until the top of the fifth when Alan Corbett and Clark May both walked for Farmville and were knocked in by Hardison's double to center field. Hardison followed when Philip Gordon reached on an error to close out the game's scoring.

Once again, the Jaguars' attitude played a large part in their victory, coach Linwood Woodard said. Woodard had not been particularly pleased with the team's enthusiasm coming into the tournament, but said the Jags have been ready to play the last two games.

"I'm real pleased. Our guys' intensity is real good right now. That we've gotten this far is a credit to our kids. Their desire in this tournament has been great so far. I hope we can keep it up."

Pitcher Eugene Joyner's performance on the mound was a big factor in the Jaguars' win. He held the Pam-Pack to just two hits, both singles.

"Joyner threw as well as he's ever thrown," Woodard commented. "He was in control and kept them off-balance and stayed ahead of the pitchers. He was a good plus for us."

It was also an excellent defensive effort for Farmville, which did not commit an error in the game against Washington, which was 8-2 before the contest. Woodard singled out shortstop Billy McLawhorn for his defensive efforts.

Farmville is now 8-5 on the season.

Rose 17, D. H. Conley 3

The Rampants were trailing 3-2 last night when catcher Mark Shank stepped into the batter's box in the fourth inning with one out and two runners on base.

The junior right-hander pounded a three-run homer over the fence in left field to ignite the Rampants to a 17-3 demolition of the Vikings and put them in tonight's championship game.

Shank's homer seemed to put fire into the Rampant bats and his was the hottest of all. He went 4-5 on the night, including a homer and a double, and had seven RBI's.

In addition, he scored two runs, and players running for him scored two more. "Shank's really been on a tear," Rose coach Ronald Vincent said after the game. "He changed his batting stance a little bit and he's been hitting the ball hard the past two weeks."

Shank usually in right field, was behind the plate because regular catcher Skip Topping was making his first mound appearance of the year. Topping, who had a 5-1 pitching record last season, recorded his first victory of the season by five-hitting the Vikings.

"Topping was kind of tight at the first, but after he settled down, he pitched a good game," Vincent said. "I would really like to work him into the rotation more."

Rose banged out 14 hits in the game, three for extra bases. "I was very pleased with the hitting. The boys were really swinging the bats hard," Vincent noted. First baseman Will Sanderson had one RBI, the fourth consecutive game in which he's knocked in at least one run.

Both teams scored a pair of runs in the first inning. In the top of the frame, Shank hit a fly ball that dropped in just behind the second baseman and stole second. Sanderson singled him home and stole third after a Ronnie Chapman walk. He came in on Will Barrett's infield out.

Sammy Tucker walked to start off the Viking half of the inning and Micah Dixon doubled to right to score him. Dixon scored when Mike Edens reached on an error.

Conley took a 3-2 lead in the third when Carl Arnold walked, stole second and came in on an infield hit by Edens.

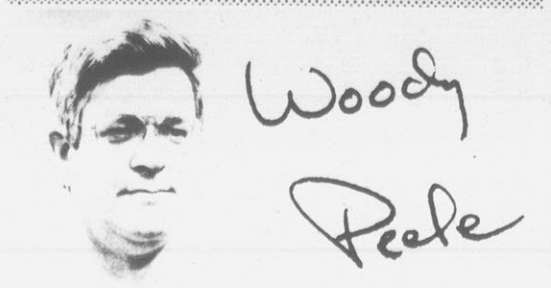

But the bottom fell out on the Vikes in the top of the fourth. Joey Mattheis singled up the middle and Junior Neal beat out a bunt. The two advanced on a passed ball and Shank homered to clear the base paths.

Sanderson was hit by a pitch and Chapman walked. A wild pitch advanced them and Topping hit a sacrifice fly to score Sanderson and send Chapman to third.

Chapman attempted to steal home and was called safe when the Conley catcher dropped the ball on the tag at the plate.

Rose scored four more runs in the fifth, but suffered a tough loss on the last play of the frame. With two out, Neal and Robert Morehead both singled. Shank

Angels Top Twins For Eighth Straight

By SCOTT PAPILLON
AP Sports Writer
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Brian Downing, a player the Chicago White Sox didn't want two years ago, and Carney Lansford, a player Minnesota wanted desperately this winter, doubled them home and scored himself when Sanderson reached on an error.

Chapman doubled to score the Rampant first baseman. He then stole third, but suffered an ankle injury as he slid into the bag and was tagged out as he rolled off the bag holding his right leg.

The senior shortstop is out for the season as he underwent surgery this morning for ligament damage and is not expected to recover fully for six months.

Rose wound up its scoring with six runs in the sixth. Again with two out, Mike Campbell and Mattheis got base hits up the middle, while Neal and Morehead walked to push Ca bell in.

Shank singled to right to score Mattheis and Neal and Sanderson walked to load things up again. Sophomore Mark Douglas, replacing Chapman at short, singled up the middle in his first varsity at-bat, scoring the final two runs of the game, Morehead and courtesy runner Mitch Brann.

The Rampants are now 10-1, while Conley is 8-4.

put the whammy on Mike Marshall and the Twins.

Downing stroked a two-run single off the former Cy Young winner in the eighth inning and Lansford added a solo home run in the ninth as the California Angels overcame the Twins 6-4 Thursday and extended their winning streak to eight games.

In other American League games, Boston clipped Milwaukee 5-3 and Baltimore defeated the New York Yankees 6-3.

"I hate to say this, but last year I only faced Marshall once and I hit a home run to center field here," said Downing, whose single erased a 4-3 deficit. "That was a fastball up high. I hadn't even seen his screwball until I hit it today."

The 28-year-old catcher was obtained by California in the Bobby Bonds deal with the White Sox before last season. He said he received criticism from the media in Chicago and felt rejuvenated once he got to the West Coast.

The man who had faith was Jim Fregosi, who made Downing his regular catcher when he became the Angel's manager in June.

The Twins tried to avert a three-game sweep by the Angels, but it was not to be. A two-run home run by Glenn Adams capped a three-run outburst by Minnesota in the first inning, and Adam's RBI single in the fifth snapped a 3-3 tie.

In between, the Angels blasted three solo homers against Paul Hartzell. Joe Rudi and Willie Aikens connected consecutively in the fourth, and Bobby Grich hit his fifth of the year in the next inning.

Marshall took over for Hartzell to start the eighth but walked Rod Carew and hit Don Baylor. Rudi's sacrifice advanced both runners for Downing.

Red Sox 5, Brewers 3
George Scott belted a pair of doubles to drive in two runs, and rookie right-hander Chuck Rainey spaced four hits in 72-3 innings for his major league victory to help Boston whip Milwaukee.

Rainey needed relief help from Dick Drago after the Brewers scored their third run in the eighth on a double by Paul Molitor and Cecil Cooper's two-out single. Cooper drove in two runs with a homer in the first.

All five Boston runs were unearned on errors by Milwaukee shortstop Robin Yount and first baseman Cooper.

Orioles 6, Yankees 3
Jim Palmer, 2-1, gave up all of New York's runs in the first two innings on five hits, then settled down to handcuff the Yankees on three hits the rest of the way.

Ken Singleton tied the game with a two-run single in the third, and he scored the go-ahead run in the fifth on Lee May's single as Baltimore snapped a six-game losing streak. The Yankees, meanwhile, saw a four-game winning skein broken.

Won't Worry About Gervin

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia 76ers, down 2-0 in their best-of-seven playoff series against the San Antonio Spurs, have decided to stop worrying about George Gervin and start concentrating on Larry Kenon.

The Sixers will assign Bobby Jones, their 6-foot-9 defensive ace, to stop Kenon when the teams meet at the Spectrum in Philadelphia tonight in the third game of their National Basketball Association playoff series.

"We have to put our best defensive player on Kenon," explained Jack McMahon, assistant coach of the Sixers. "He's playing the best basketball of his life."

"The next two games depend on the Jones-Kenon matchup." The three other NBA second-round playoff series also resume tonight with the Washington Bullets at Atlanta, Phoenix Suns at Kansas City and Seattle SuperSonics at Los Angeles.

The Sixers expect Gervin, the NBA scoring champion the last two years, to get his points — and he has, scoring 60 in the two games played thus far and making 25 of 37 shots. But Kenon has scored 57 points, and that is something the Sixers feel they can't allow.

So they're switching Jones, who played against Gervin for much of the second game, onto the 6-9 Kenon.

Philadelphia has also had its problems offensively. In the closing minutes of Tuesday night's 121-120 loss at San Antonio, the Sixers' star forward, Julius Erving, rarely saw the ball.

"Erving has to get at least 25 shots a game," said McMahon. "We can't win with Erving getting six or seven shots. We've got to get the ball to Julius and Darryl (Dawkins) in areas where they can work."

Washington and Atlanta split the first two games of their series at Landover, Md., and now the Hawks are back on their home court, where they have won their last 17 outings. Atlanta's 34-7 home record was the best in the NBA during the regular season, but Washington's 23-18 road mark was also the best in the league.

Bullets forward Bobby Danridge has scored 66 points in the two games while his counterpart on the Hawks, John Drew, has had just 22. That is the matchup that most worries Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown.

Kansas City's rookie star, Phil Ford, had a woeful 3-for-17 shooting night as the Kings lost the opener to Phoenix 102-99.

Watson Says Driving Key To TofC Victory

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — The deep, deep rough and small greens demand the most accurate drives, Tom Watson said after establishing the first-round lead in the $300,000 Tournament of Champions.

"The course demands good iron shots," Watson said after firing a 3-under-par 69 Thursday, "but driving is paramount. Because of the rough, you absolutely have to drive it in the fairway."

"If you don't, you can find some lies out there that only Tarzan and Jane can play out of."

The rough is up higher than usual on the tough, 6,889-yard La Costa Country Club course and, Watson said, the greens have been reduced in size and are extremely hard.

"They're the hardest greens in the world to chip to," said the man who has won Player of the Year honors the last two seasons.

"You've got a collar around the greens that the ball sits down into and is very hard to chip from," he said. "Beyond that, you've got the deepest rough on the golf course around the greens. That makes it really tough."

"But, in my opinion, you've got to drive it in the fairway to have any chance to win the golf tournament."

He missed 4 fairways "and it cost me 2 bogeys," said Watson, who came into this exclusive, winners-only event as the leading money-winner on the pro golf tour this year.

One shot off his lead with a 70 was surprising Ron Streck, 24, who got into the elite, 28-man field off his only pro victory in the San Antonio-Texas Open last fall.

Streck broke up with his girlfriend shortly after that triumph and has been in a deep slump ever since. He pulled out of it with birdies on his first 3 holes here.

Tied at 71, and the only others under par, were defending champion Gary Player of South Africa, Ray Floyd, Mexican Victor Regalado and Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist.

Jack Nicklaus, who has won a record five times in this event that brings together the winners of regular PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months, topped a strong group at par 72.

Also at that figure were Lee Trevino, Australian, Jack Newton, Canadian Open champ Bruce Lietzke, Lee Elder and Jerry Pate, who scored the only eagle of the cool, windy day.

U.S. Open champ Andy North shot 75 and Fuzzy Zoeller, who beat Watson in a playoff for the Masters crown last week, struggled to a 77 that left him far back. PGA titleholder John Mahaffey was unable to compete because of an injured hand.

HIGH FLYING CONTESTANT — Miss North Carolina's Diane Jamerson leaves the plane she piloted from her hometown of Asheville to the Mississippi Gulf Coast to participate in the 28th annual Miss USA Pageant. Miss North Carolina, a licensed pilot, and Bill Norwood arrived at the Gulfport-Biloxi Regional Airport and, urged on by the waving hands of a large group of greeters, she taxied her plane right up to the Seabee Welcome Center and climbed down to begin her round of pre-Pageant activities. (AP Laserphoto)

Deadline On New Voter Registration Is May 9

Margaret Register, supervisor of the Pitt County Board of Elections, reminded area citizens that the deadline to register for the June 8 special elections is drawing near.

Miss Register said that citizens who have not registered previously to vote on the special school bonds and on-premise sale of mixed beverages in the county have until Wednesday, May 9 at 5 p.m.

The elections official noted that under the Uniform Election Law of North Carolina, when a person registers once with the county, he or she is eligible to vote in all elections.

New residents of the county who have not registered, she said, as well as persons who have changed their names and addresses since the last election, should make sure they are properly registered.

People who have had name or address changes need to fill out a short form that insures that they are now registered in the precinct in which they live, Miss Register explained. Also, persons who did not vote in the last general election should check to find out if their names are still on the books.

Miss Register announced that special extended registration hours will be observed with the local Board of Elections office at 201 E. Second Street remaining open Monday, May 7 and Tuesday, May 8, until 7 p.m. She added that weekday regular hours are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Voter registration may also be made at several locations in the county, she pointed out, including: town halls at Ayden, Falkland, Fountain, Grimesland, Gritton and Winterville during office hours; the police station in Bethel; the building inspector's office in Farmville; in Belvoir at Steve Little's home, by appointment; in Carolina Township, Mrs. Sally Glisson of Stokes, by appointment; and in Greenville at Shepard Memorial Library, East End Library, Carver Library and the mobile unit of the library when the appointed registrar is on duty.

Absentee voting, according to Miss Register, is allowed only on the $9 million school bond issue in the June 8 election.

She explained that absentee voting may be accomplished by voters who will be out of the county on election day. Requests may be made by a voter or a near relative from April 9 to June 6 at 5 p.m. Anyone who will not be able to attend the polling place due to illness or disability may also vote by absentee ballot.

May Permit Shah Live In U.S. At Later Date

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has changed its stand on the Shah of Iran settling in the United States, and is now saying privately that he can live here when U.S. relations with Iran are more stable.

But it was learned that the administration is not putting any time estimate on when Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would be able to come to the United States.

The shah, his wife and children have been living in the Bahamas since March 30, but Bahamian officials said at the time of his arrival that they considered his stay a "brief visit."

Since being forced from Iran on Jan. 22, the shah and an entourage that includes 30 aides, have been living in exile — stopping briefly in Egypt and Morocco before going to the Bahamas.

While the shah was in Egypt, President Carter said at a Jan. 17 press conference that it was expected he would come to the United States.

But when the forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini took power in Iran a few weeks later, administration officials said they were worried about mob violence against Americans living in Iran if the shah was allowed to enter the United States. They also voiced concerns about providing security for the shah.

By the time the shah arrived in the Bahamas three weeks ago, administration officials were saying that while he had not been barred from the United States, he had been strongly urged not to come here for security reasons.

The New York Times reported in today's editions that the Carter administration dispatched an unidentified American — a private citizen — to Morocco in late March to tell the shah he was not welcome in the United States for the time being because of the delicacy of Iranian-American relations.

Before getting the private citizen to carry the message, the newspaper said, the administration asked both former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and banker David Rockefeller to carry the same message. Both men, who are friends of the shah, angrily refused, The Times said.

The newspaper said Kissinger, Rockefeller and attorney

John J. McCloy had been exerting strong behind-the-scenes pressure on the White House to reverse its decision barring the shah from this country.

The newspaper also reported today that the administration intends to nominate Walter L. Cutler to replace William H. Sullivan as ambassador to Iran. Cutler is currently U.S. ambassador in Zaire.

A State Department spokesman refused to confirm The Times' report on Kissinger and Rockefeller being sought as emissaries or that Cutler was being considered as ambassador to Iran.

The shah would like to go next to Acapulco, Mexico, where a sister owns a house, but the Mexican government has not yet approved a visa for him, The Times said. The shah's last ambassador to Washington, Ardeshir Zahedi, reportedly has been traveling to several Latin American countries discussing possible permission for the shah to enter, the paper said.

BUILDUP? — Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira said Thursday that Japan must increase its military strength to counter a Soviet arms buildup in Asia, and needs as much deterrent power as possible. (AP Laserphoto)

N.C. House OKs Duty-Free Period For Teachers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill requiring that public school teachers be given a daily 30-minute, duty-free period passed the House and was sent to the Senate Thursday.

The House overwhelmingly approved the bill after its sponsor, Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, said he did not believe it would cost local school districts more money.

As originally introduced, the bill would have given teachers a 30-minute, duty-free lunch. But Campbell said a number of teachers told the House Education Committee they would prefer to eat lunch with their students and take a 30-minute break at another time.

The bill was approved after the House first defeated an amendment that would have weakened the bill, requiring only that local school districts try to give all teachers the break.

That amendment was offered by Rep. Howard Chapin, D-Beaufort, a junior high school teacher, who said requiring the break would cost school districts money.

But Campbell said many school districts now provide the break, and the remaining districts could do so by adjusting teacher schedules.

The House adopted another amendment, however, that said no additional state or local spending was required by the measure.

In other legislative developments Thursday:

Private Clubs

A bill revising the state's regulations on the sale of mixed drinks was sent to the House Thursday, and if it becomes law some private clubs will be able to permit brown bagging and serve mixed drinks while others will have to choose between the two.

The bill, which was approved by the House Alcoholic Beverage Control Committee, divides private clubs into three categories. Those that operate on a non-profit basis would be able to apply for permits for both liquor uses, while for-profit clubs would have to choose.

The third category would allow for-profit clubs that also offer golf, tennis and dining services to do both. However, the two kinds of clubs that would be allowed to do both would have to maintain separate areas for brown bagging and the sale of mixed drinks so the two uses would not be mixed.

Marijuana

A bill relaxing the penalties for possession of four ounces or less of marijuana was approved by the House Judiciary II Committee Thursday.

Approval came after committee members reduced the amount from eight ounces to four ounces.

The bill would make possession of four ounces or less of marijuana a misdemeanor instead of a felony. Current law makes possession of anything over an ounce a felony.

Marriage Counselors

The House Judiciary II Committee also approved a bill that would create a board to certify marriage and family counselors.

The bill would not mean that all such counselors would have to be certified. It would set up a procedure whereby those who do wish to be certified can achieve that status.

Rep. Dave DeRamus, D-Forsyth, said the bill is needed to aid the public by setting a standard for these kind of counselors.

S&L's

A bill that would allow state-chartered mutual savings and loan associations to convert to stock ownership was approved by the Senate Banking Committee and sent to the full Senate. Federally-chartered associations are now permitted to convert.

Checks

The banking committee also gave its approval to a bill that would make it easier to obtain convictions on worthless check charges. A check returned for insufficient funds would be prima facie evidence of a crime, under the measure.

Tranquilizers

A bill that would require pharmacists to place warning labels on all tranquilizers was filed in the House. It would require tranquilizers and sedatives to carry a warning that "the consumption of alcoholic beverages while on this medication can be harmful to your health."

Sales Tax

Rep. Fletcher Harris, D-Lee, has proposed legislation amending the state's sales tax laws to provide for return of 1 percent of the 3 percent sales tax to counties.

An additional 1 percent local sales tax is now levied by 99 of the state's 100 counties to raise money for local use.

Tax Credit

Surplus state money would be used to provide a personal income tax credit under legislation introduced in the Senate Thursday.

Under the bill, an escalating scale of personal income tax credits based on the amount of the surplus would be set up. The bill would require 60 percent of any surplus at the end of a fiscal year to be put in a tax-credit reserve fund.

It would mean credits of from $5 to $40 per person, depending on the amount of the surplus.

New Bills

A bill that would repeal all laws requiring compulsory automobile liability insurance was filed in the House along with a second one that would prohibit people who have had their driver's license suspended or revoked from operating a motorized bicycle.

Whoever You Are

PRAIRIE VIEW, Ill. (AP) — A confession sent to high school principal Griff Powell included a vague but sober apology — a $51 money order and, of course, no signature.

The principal of Adlai Stevenson High School in this Chicago suburb said Thursday that he received this letter with the money order:

"Dear Sir: We are part of a group of youths who recently performed some vandalism at your school. Upon realization of the severity of our act we decided to collect the enclosed money and send it to you in the hope that it will cover the damage."

"We don't know exactly what they were referring to," said Powell. "There have been the usual broken windows, and recently someone knocked some letters off the new school sign. The money will be used to repair the sign."

"I want the youths to know I sincerely appreciate the money, and I hope this starts a new trend and others will do the same," he said.
