

Federal Officials Brace For UNC Court Action

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for the University of North Carolina have retreated from last week's compromise position on desegregation, and federal officials now see little hope for an out-of-court settlement of their protracted civil rights dispute, government sources say.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said Monday the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was still seeking an avenue for continued discussion, but was braced for a federal court suit by the university trying to head off proceedings that could lead to termination of federal funds for the 16-campus UNC system.

UNC lawyer Charles Morgan Jr. and an associate, Joseph Levin, gave HEW officials a proposal at a Monday morning meeting. And there was some initial indication it might be the basis for future talks despite the UNC board of governors' refusal last Friday to go along with a compromise hammered out by HEW and Gov. Jim Hunt and UNC President William C. Friday.

But HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said in a late afternoon news conference the proposal was unacceptable, and one source familiar with the meeting termed that proposal "a non-offer."

Another source described the plan, which was written down but presented only orally at the 45-minute session, as a restatement of the university's offer to spend $41 million upgrading the state's five historically black colleges. The money would be used primarily to start 22 new programs to help the black institutions compete for white enrollment with the system's 11 historically white schools.

But Morgan's proposal pointedly ignored any language laying out what the university would do if the enhancement program failed to accomplish HEW's desegregation goals.

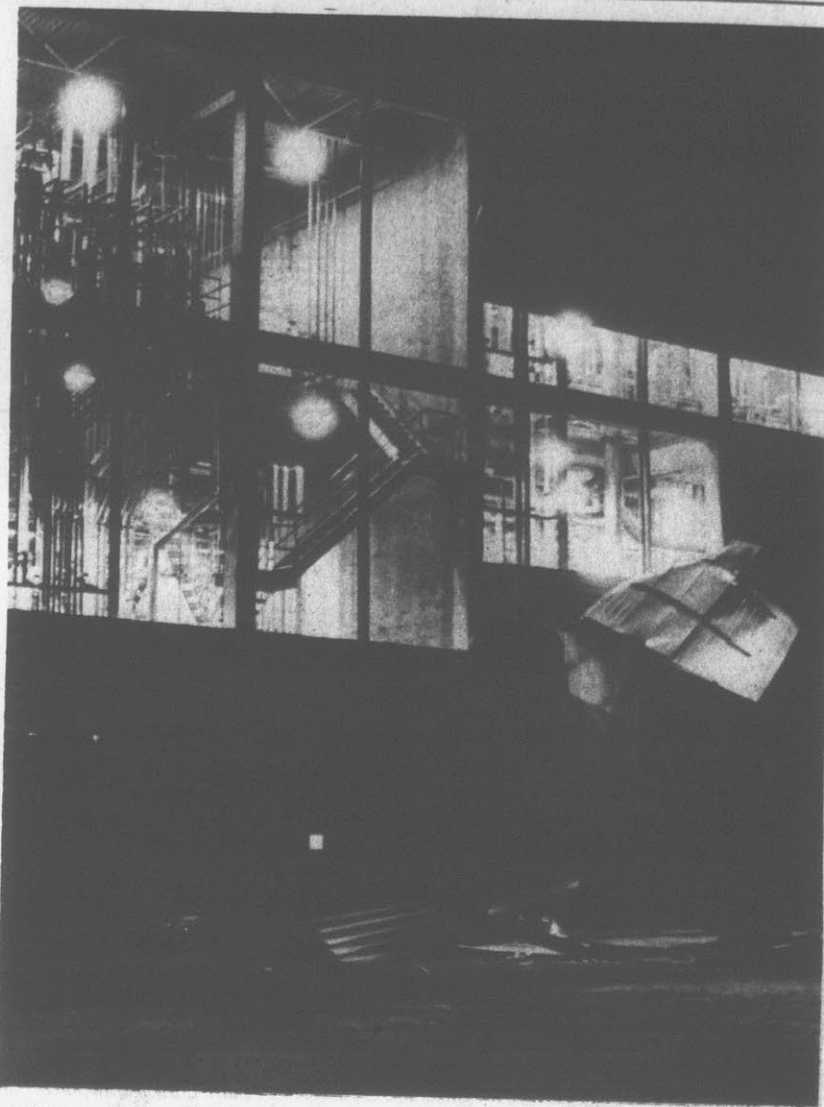

In fact, the sources said, Morgan demanded that the government accept the enhancement plan and agree not to involve itself any further in the university's affairs.

HEW rejected that, saying it was obligated by law and federal court order, to enforce civil rights legislation prohibiting federal funding of university programs that discriminate on the basis of race.

The university's lawyers, both Southerners with liberal credentials, don't admit racial discrimination exists at UNC despite a numerical imbalance at the once-segregated schools.

HEW has insisted all along — and Califano restated Monday — that the department considers the enhancement offer acceptable but is not convinced it would work.

HEW says the university must be prepared to eliminate at some time in the future at least some of the 58 programs the board of governors has agreed are offered by both the black and the white schools.

ECU Trustees Submit 3 For University Positions

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The East Carolina University Board of Trustees yesterday afternoon in an executive session, recommended candidates for appointment as Vice-chancellor for Institutional Development and Planning, Dean of the School of Art, and Director of Admissions.

Trustee chairman Troy Pate, who declined to identify the candidates for the post, said the names of the three will be forwarded to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors for approval at their May 11 meeting.

However, usually reliable sources said Don Lemish, assistant vice-president for Institutional Advancement at Chancellor Thomas Brewer last year. The two new vice-chancellor positions will replace the current vice-chancellor for Health Affairs and vice-chancellor for Administration and Planning. A recommendation on the student affairs position may come next month, sources said.

The new director of admissions will replace Dr. John Horne who is retiring.

In other action yesterday trustees extended for one year the retirement of Dr. Fred Irons and Dr. Dan Jordan, physicians at the university's infirmary, and Dr. Albert Conley, a business administration professor. Although the mandatory retirement age is 65, trustees the University of Alabama, Birmingham, was recommended for appointment to the new Institutional Development and Planning post at ECU, while Walter Borts, Dean of Admissions at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, was recommended for the admissions job.

Lemish, a journalism and public relations graduate of Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana, has been assistant vice-president at Alabama since 1977. Borts has headed TCU admissions for three years. He formerly was at Bethany College, Bethany, West Virginia.

The institutional advancement and planning post at ECU, along with a new vice-chancellor for Student Affairs position was announced by may extend the retirement on a year-to-year basis.

The board also named an ad hoc committee including trustees Louis Singleton of Greenville, William Powell of Goldsboro, and Ashley Futrell of Washington, to hear an appeal from Brett Melvin, president-elect of ECU's Student Government Association.

Melvin petitioned the board to, "reverse and over-ride" a decision by Chancellor Brewer upholding the disqualification of Melvin as president of the SGA.

According to Melvin's petition, charges were filed against him on March 30, alleging that he violated SGA General Election rules by failing to file a complete expense account, and failing to file a complete list of campaign workers. A review board disqualified Melvin and on appeal to the chancellor, according to the petition, the disqualification was upheld.

In his appeal to the Board of Trustees, Melvin claims the decision by the Review Board, "was directly contrary to the evidence presented," and alleges that he was denied, "due process," and that one Review Board member, "had a direct conflict of interest which should have led to that member's disqualification to hear," the case.

Melvin also charges in the petition to the board, that the procedures used by the chancellor in hearing the appeal, "... in particular the avoidance of confrontation between the accusing parties and Petitioner," and, "without reference to any record of Review Board proceedings," was, "a denial of due process."

Identify River Victim

WASHINGTON, N. C. — The man whose body was found floating on the Pamlico River has been identified as Carlyle Wood of Rt. 1, Smithfield, according to East Carolina University Medical School pathologist, Dr. Stan Harris.

Dr. Harris said identification was made this morning by a member of Wood's family.

The body was seen Sunday morning floating on the river near here about 100 yard off the Fort Hill shore. It was determined by Dr. Harris that he had died of drowning.

Beaufort Co. Sheriff O. E. Davis said Wood was recognized by a friend, Randy Edwards, a member of the Greenville Police Department. The family was then contacted.

Davis said family members told him that Wood, 56, had been in the Washington area fishing since Friday afternoon. His camper and boat trailer were located last night by the Sheriff Department. The boat has not been located, Sheriff Davis said.

Jenkins Named Bath Chairman

BATH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Leo Jenkins was named Monday as chairman of the Historic Bath Commission.

The Beaufort County town is the oldest town in the state.

Jenkins is former chancellor of East Carolina University and is now a special advisor to Gov. Jim Hunt.

The commission is involved in historic preservation work in the town.

Windfall Profits Tax Is Picking Up Support

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sentiment is building in Congress for a windfall profits tax on oil revenues, but President Carter fears the ultimate beneficiaries will be the oil companies.

Carter said Monday opponents of his proposal to divert additional oil profits to new energy-related programs are trying to pull off a "charade" that will create $4 billion to $5 billion in more oil company profits.

The president has announced he will use his administrative authority to decontrol oil prices beginning June 1 and is urging Congress to approve a windfall profits tax to help exploit new energy sources, fund mass transit and help the poor pay rising utility and fuel bills.

His plan would levy a 50 percent tax on new revenues that result from decontrols.

The proposed tax has met with a mixed reception in the House and Senate, but Carter said opponents have begun a campaign "to hoodwink the American people by passing a windfall profits tax that is in fact a charade."

Carefully avoiding any opponents' names, Carter said in a speech before the Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

MALT EXTRACT

I would like to know where I might get some hopsflavored malt extract for making homemade beer. T. A.

Hotline talked to Lee Beadle, owner of Specialty Products International, located at 209 E. Main Street, Carrboro 27510 (adjoining Chapel Hill). He said his firm does have the extract you need both alone or in a complete-ingredient beer-making kit. He said he'd be glad to send you a free catalog if you request it by writing or phone. The phone number is 929-4277.

ANOTHER BEE MAN

Hotline published Thursday the name of a man who would pick up any swarm of bees anyone would like to have off their property. Another enthusiastic "bee man" has called to say that he, too, will be glad to go and get any bees seen in a swarm. He is Winston Wooten of Rt. 2, Ayden. He may be reached at 758-1189 (work) or 746-3342 (home).

Missile Plans Are Weighed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-level Pentagon group assessing the best way to deploy a new long-range missile to survive a Soviet surprise attack has suggested two or three "acceptable" solutions, defense sources say.

The option eventually chosen by the Carter administration will play a critical role in the ratification debate on the proposed SALT II treaty to limit nuclear missiles and bombers.

The theoretical vulnerability of existing missiles to Soviet surprise attack was cited Monday by SALT critic Paul Nitze as "the main defect" in an arms agreement with the Soviets.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has said it is essential to build a system more immune to attack than the present land-based U.S. Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles, which are expected to become vulnerable to increasingly accurate Soviet missiles in the early 1980s.

But there has been considerable controversy over how the missiles should be based.

Defense Department officials, who asked not to be named, said the preferred options forwarded to Brown by a high-level Pentagon study council include a "shell game" deployment favored by the Air Force; a system in which airplanes would carry the missiles; or a combination of air and land basing.

Each option would make it difficult for Soviet targeters to plan an attack.

Brown will make his recommendation to President Carter after studying the report of the Defense Systems Acquisition Review Council, which studied the problem for nearly a month. Carter will make the final decision.

The sources said the proposed options range in estimated cost from about $20 billion to some $29 billion. They would be combat-ready by about 1986, if full-scale development begins this year.

Police Questioning Is Bolstered By Justices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled 5-3 today that police may question criminal suspects who do not "explicitly" relinquish their rights to remain silent and to obtain legal counsel during questioning.

The justices struck down a North Carolina Supreme Court ruling that criminal suspects do not waive those rights unless they say so verbally or in writing.

Although today's decision does not actually weaken the high court's Miranda ruling of 1966, it represents a refusal to strengthen the rights enjoyed by criminal suspects.

"By creating an inflexible rule that no implicit waiver can ever suffice, the North Carolina Supreme Court has gone beyond the requirements of federal organic law," Justice Potter Stewart wrote for the court's majority.

Stewart's opinion said that courts must determine the waiver of rights question on a case-by-case basis.

"The courts must presume that a defendant did not waive his rights; the prosecution's burden is great, but in at least some cases waiver can be clearly inferred from the actions and words of the person interrogated," Stewart said.

He was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White, Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. filed a dissent, joined by Justices Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., who was hospitalized when the case was argued, did not participate in deciding it.

A court considered more liberal in matters of individual rights under the late Chief Justice Earl Warren ruled 13 years ago that police must inform criminal suspects of their constitutional rights to have legal assistance and to refrain from incriminating statements.

If such warnings are not given, any evidence subsequently obtained by police may not be used at trial.

The Miranda decision, named for the suspect involved in the test case, changed police procedures nationwide. But it provided for suspects to waive their rights "voluntarily, knowingly and intelligently."

The North Carolina Supreme Court, in overturning an armed robbery, assault and kidnapping conviction, ruled that "waiver of the right to counsel during interrogation will not be recognized unless such a waiver is specifically made...."

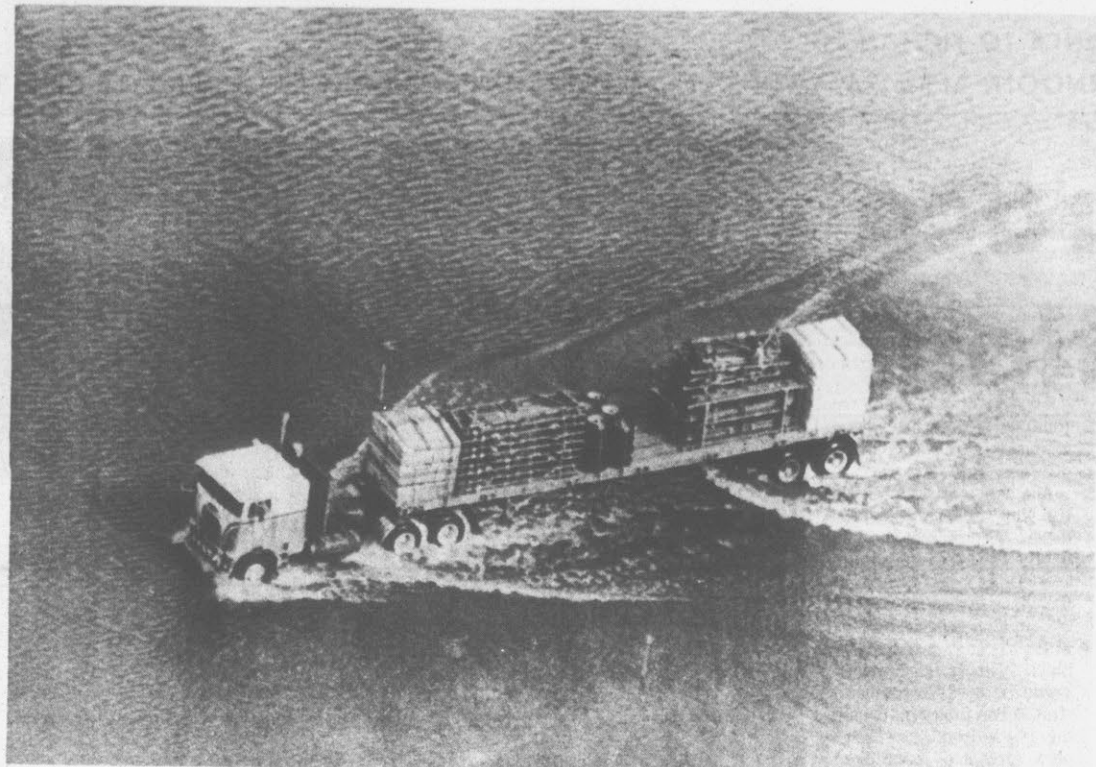

The case of Willie Thomas Butler, convicted and sentenced to life in prison for a 1976 Wayne County, N.C., gas station robbery before the state Supreme Court's ruling, now will return to the state courts.

Trial evidence indicated that Butler and another man confronted Ralph Burlingame at gunpoint just after he had closed the station for the night.

The two men forced Burlingame to drive away with them in his car, and informed him that they would kill him.

Burlingame tried to escape by jumping from the moving car. He was shot several times but survived by playing dead while his wallet was taken.

Steady Rains Strain Dikes In Red River Valley

River Valley between Minnesota and North Dakota into an inland sea. (AP Laserphoto)

Steady rains today cut new holes in an elaborate system of dikes protecting the Red River towns of Grand Forks, N.D., and East Grand Forks, Minn., sending water gushing 8 feet deep through some residential sections.

Hundreds of volunteers worked throughout a cold, rainy night trying to shore up weak spots in the soggy dikes and closely watching the river running at its strongest and highest flood crest of this century.

About 70 families were evacuated from the Riverside Park area of Grand Forks when a 10-foot hole burst open in a primary dike, flooding several homes with water up to 8 feet deep. "We're still battling," said Bill Owen, a Civil Defense spokesman. "We've sent sandbags and heavy equipment into the Riverside Park area."

About 200 other families remained homeless in the English Coulee area of Grand Forks where water trapped inside dikes has flooded an area of 5 square miles with water 3 to 6 feet deep.

Flood watches were also in effect in Louisiana, in Southeast Texas — where the Neches River was expected to crest later today — and in Alabama, where the rising Bayou Sara Creek drove some 300 families from their homes late Monday.

"We're still hanging on by an eyelash. We're very watchful, very tired, very hopeful," said Mayor Louis Murray of East Grand Forks. "We're very appreciative there have been no fatalities, no serious injuries, no mass evacuations."

Workers have battled for eight days trying to stop the floodwaters from reaching this northwestern Minnesota town of 8,400, and Grand Forks, N.D., — population 54,000 — just across the river.

The river was at its highest level since 1897 and its velocity was also at a peak, officials said.

The river was to crest in East Grand Forks at 49 feet. On Monday night, it fluctuated between 48.92 and 48.95 feet. Flood stage is 28 feet.

Thousands of volunteers — many who came from high schools in towns as far as 50 miles away — patrolled the dikes overnight, filled countless sandbags, built more levees and hauled more clay.

Grimy, weary and apprehensive, many workers were in their fourth straight day of "a real intensive fight" against the worst the Red has ever offered, said Orley Gunderson, a vocational school official who is directing the sandbagging operation.

"I don't know what's going to happen tomorrow. We can't relax," he said.

No one was relaxing in Southeast Texas either, where Jefferson County residents along the Neches River near Beaumont have piled more than 55,000 sandbags hoping to hold back the river's expected record crest of 12 feet — 8 feet above flood stage — later today.

The Trinity River, north of Houston, swelling from the overflow of Lake Livingston, also was expected to crest today.

In southern Mississippi, new rains brought the threat of more flooding. Sue King, a civil defense worker in Columbia, Miss., said 2.75 inches of rain fell in a 13-hour period Monday, pushing the still surging Pearl River back up a couple of inches from its low point of 27.2 feet measured earlier in the day.

The Pearl had crested at 27.8 feet Saturday, about 10 feet above flood stage, after forcing about half of the town's 7,500 residents from their homes.

"We had very few people return to their homes," said Mrs. King. "We're still working around the clock. People are very tired."

Mayor Robert Bourne and Lavern Pittman, president of the county board of supervisors, said they would accompany Gov. Cliff Finch to Washington today to testify at congressional hearings in support of lower interest rates for federal disaster loans.

Finch said he would call a special session of the Mississippi Legislature next Tuesday to deal with problems caused by the record flooding along the Pearl.

In Alabama, residents of Saraland, north of Mobile, watched the rising Bayou Sara Creek today, trying to decide if floodwaters that forced 1,000 or more West Alabama residents to flee their homes last week will deal them the same fate.

Policeman Bobby Leech said about 300 families had left their homes by Monday night and others in the area around the creek probably will be forced out before the expected crest is reached Saturday.

In Louisiana, some 500 residents between Baton Rouge and Denham Springs have left their homes because of rising, rain-swollen rivers.

Persons with homes and livestock in the Atchafalaya Basin were warned by the Army Corps of Engineers that more Mississippi River flood control structures may be opened "within very short notice" to relieve the high water threat on levees downstream.

ECU Alumni Day To Be Observed On May 5

ECU News Bureau

Campus tours, a luncheon meeting, class reunions and social gatherings are planned at East Carolina University for ECU's 1979 Alumni Day Saturday, May 5.

The event precedes the annual Commencement ceremony, scheduled for Friday, May 11.

According to Donald Leggett, director of the ECU Office of Alumni Affairs, Alumni Day will begin at 9:30 a.m. with registration of returning alumni in Mendenhall Student Center. At 10 a.m., guided bus tours of the campus will begin, leaving from the Student Center.

At 12:30 p.m., the annual Alumni Luncheon and Association Meeting will be held at Greenville Golf and Country Club, featuring an address by Dr. Thomas Brewer, ECU Chancellor.

Class reunions will take place between 2:30 p.m. and 4:15 p.m.

Scheduled for reunion are the classes of 1914, 1919, 1924, 1929 (Golden Anniversary Reunion), 1934, 1939, 1944, 1949, 1954 (Silver Anniversary Reunion) and 1959.

Reunion chairpersons are: 1929 (normal) — Ruth Blanchard Garner of Greenville and 1929 (AB) — Irene Kahn Miller of Greensboro, 1934 — George Wilkerson of Greenville, 1939 — William Whitehurst of Greenville, 1944 — Hiram Mayo of New Bern, 1949 — Enid Petteway White of Greenville, 1954 — Royce Jordan of Vanceboro, and 1959 — Coy Harris of McLean, Va.

Dr. and Mrs. Brewer will honor visiting alumni with a reception at the newly renovated and redecorated Chancellor's Residence on Fifth St. at 4:45 p.m.

SINGING CONVENTION

GOLDSBORO — Eastern Carolina's Original Fifth Sunday Singing Convention will be held at the Edgewood Evangelical Baptist Church here Sunday.

The program will be held from 2:30-4:30 p.m.

An evening cocktail party, to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Western Room of the Greenville Moose Lodge, will conclude schedules Alumni Day events.

Further information about Alumni Day plans is available from the ECU Alumni Office, 757-6072.

Youth Jobs In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Summer youth employment with the Town of Farmville is available for students from low-income families through the Pitt Co. Manpower Program.

The jobs are primarily outdoor maintenance work, plus a few office-related positions. They are for students 16 to 21 years of age.

To qualify for jobs under the Summer Manpower Program, a student must attend high school, college or technical school and must have a family income below federal low-income guidelines. A graduating senior must give evidence of plans to enter college or technical school in the fall. The low family-income guidelines for non-farm families are as follows: family of two — $4,160; family of three — $5,220; family of four — $6,440; and family of five — $7,600; etc.

Students interested in applying should contact the Pitt Co. Manpower Program, 1109 W. Fifth St., Greenville.

Shut Down Cost

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — If Duke Power Company is forced to shut down its Oconee nuclear plant, the cost of electricity to its customers in North Carolina and South Carolina could jump 15 percent to 20 percent immediately, a state official said.

Company representatives were to meet with Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials today to review the nuclear plant in South Carolina.

The NRC staff Monday recommended that nuclear plants built by Babcock & Wilcox, the firm that constructed the stricken plant at Three Mile Island, be shut down until their safety can be assured.

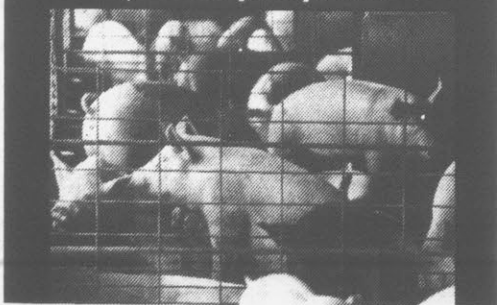

Babcock & Wilcox built the Oconee plant near Greenville, S.C.

"If they (Duke) have to lose the entire unit, they'll have a very difficult time meeting their load, and the price of electricity will go up tremendously," said Hugh Wells, director of the N.C. Utilities Commission Public Staff.

"I don't know what the NRC is up to, but it's bad news for North Carolina consumers, I tell you that," he said.

Bill Lee, president of the power company, has said shutting down the plant would mean rotating blackouts in the Carolinas.

Miss Watkins, Mr. Smith Marry Saturday Afternoon

RALEIGH — Miss Elizabeth Adams Watkins and Charles Randolph Smith were united in marriage Saturday afternoon in a double ring ceremony at two o'clock.

Their vows were spoken at Davidson Chapel, White Memorial Presbyterian Church before the Rev. J. Walter Mann, uncle of the bride, and the Rev. J. R. McAlpine III.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Sara Fonville Watkins of Charlotte, and the late Mr. Alexander Sprunt Watkins Jr. of Henderson. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Pauline Daughtry Smith of Selma and the late Mr. J. A. Smith.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Dr. Brock W. Downward, organist.

Escorted by her brother, Alexander Sprunt Watkins III, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk faille. The fitted empire bodice of English net was fashioned with a sculptured V-neckline and appliqued with re-embroidered chantilly lace accented with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Matching lace formed cuffs on the long net sleeves. Clusters of jewel trimmed re-embroidered chantilly enhanced the A-line skirt which extended into a chapel train. Her floor length veil of French illusion cascaded from a crown headpiece covered with appliques of re-embroidered chantilly lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath, ivy and springerli.

Mrs. Benjamin Wright Powell III of Fayetteville was honor attendant. She wore a priscilla gown designed in blue chintz print trimmed with beige lace at the neckline, natural waistline and hem. She carried a cascade of roses, azaleas, delphinium and baby's breath.

Miss Ellen Smith and Miss Nan Smith, nieces of the bridegroom, served as junior bridesmaids. They wore dresses of light blue cotton eyelet. Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Mann of Bedford, Va., Miss Annette Williamson of Richmond, Va., Miss Cassandra Idol of Durham, Miss Karen Harrison of Raleigh, and Miss Margaret Clements of Henderson. Each carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's brother, J. Harold Smith, of Raleigh was best man and groomsmen were Joe Mark of Eden, and Terry Whitford of Greenville.

MRS. CHARLES RANDOLPH SMITH

Following the ceremony, a reception was held by the pool at the Velvet Cloak Inn. Greeting guests were Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Currin, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Blanks and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fonville.

The bride's table was decorated with a bouquet of pink roses, baby's breath and ivy. After the bridal couple cut the first slice, cake was served by Mrs. J. B. Martin, Mrs. Ben F. Knott, Mrs. D. Boyd Kimball Jr. and Mrs. Robert A. Southerland. A footed crystal bowl holding an arrangement of mixed flowers centered the reception table. Mrs. L. H. Harvin Jr., Mrs. Charles P. Sellars and Miss Della Sorrell of Durham poured punch.

Miss Amy Fonville, Mrs. John Robert Rose and Miss Liz Wester presided at the guest book, which was placed on a table decorated with crystal candlesticks holding white lighted tapers and the bride's portrait.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Kiawah Island.

The bride is a graduate of Meredith College and was employed by Liggett Group, Inc. The bridegroom is a graduate of UNC-CH and is manager of Carolina Office Equipment Co., Greenville.

A breakfast was held Saturday morning honoring the bridal couple in the president's dining hall, Meredith College. The mother and brother of the bridegroom were host and hostess.

A rehearsal dinner was held Friday night at the Carolina Country Club, Raleigh, given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Williamson. Guests included members of the wedding party, family and out-of-town guests.

Dear Abby

Unthinking Cruelty Is Cruellest Of All

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for applauding the teacher who refuses to allow her students to pass out party invitations unless the entire class is invited. (You wisely said, "The pain of having been left out will remain with those few uninvited children long after the fun has been forgotten by those who attended.") How true!

That letter revived some painful memories for me. I once had a gym teacher who made a practice of appointing two "captains"—her pets, who in turn would choose up teams. Of course, the most popular kids and the best athletes were always chosen first. Being neither popular nor a good athlete, I was always the last to be chosen. I was so humiliated I wanted to die. No wonder I grew up with an inferiority complex, convinced that I was unwanted, hopelessly inept and a born loser.

Please print this, Abby, in case some gym teachers are still using this cruel system.

PAINFUL MEMORIES

DEAR PAINFUL: Consider it done. Your letter jarred some painful memories of my own school days. Gym teachers, are you listening?

DEAR ABBY: Re HAIRLESS IN HILO, who bemoans the lack of hair on his chest, arms and legs.

My husband also was hairless in those areas—and that's what attracted me to him in the first place. Men who deliberately expose their hairy chests by unbuttoning their shirts down to their navels turn me off.

Also, consider the statue of Michelangelo's David, the epitome of male magnificence. He didn't have a hair on his beautiful body!

OFF MY CHEST IN WICHITA

DEAR OFF: Maybe so. But in some cultures hairy males are thought to be extremely masculine and virile. And here's a hair-raising fact: At one time in Spain, moustached women were considered rare beauties!

DEAR ABBY: I have a lovely 17-year-old daughter who has been dating two boys—both 18 and from fine homes. These boys have slapped my daughter around when she does something they don't like. (Paying attention to other boys, for example.)

Is this considered normal adolescent behavior, or are these two boys potential wife abusers?

My daughter likes both boys very much. I say she is foolish to continue to put up with this kind of treatment.

Do you think these boys need help?

TULSA MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Slapping girls around is definitely not normal adolescent behavior. But hanging around to be repeatedly slapped around is not normal either. Not only do the boys need help—so does your daughter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CURIOUS IN CHARLESTON, W.VA.: A kleptomaniac is a person who helps himself because he can't help himself.

DEAR ABBY: My husband must think he is immortal. He is getting on, but has not updated his will in the last 20 years. Our financial picture has changed radically. He has considerably more property and assets and, to top it off, he inherited quite a large sum from his mother.

We have grown children and grandchildren, Abby, and I feel very uneasy knowing that unless my husband updates his will much of his estate will not be disposed of according to his wishes.

How can I get him to face this very important fact of life without giving him the impression that I am in a hurry to bury him?

You are not going to believe this, but he is an attorney!

MRS. G. IN BEL AIR

DEAR MRS. G.: Trying to get an attorney to update his will is like trying to get a doctor to quit smoking or lose weight. Don't give up. Keep reminding him until he does something about it. (P.S. I'm usually opposed to nagging, but in this case I recommend it.)

Couple Says Vows Recently

PACTOLUS — Rhonda Kay Whitehurst and John Barry Langley were united in marriage Saturday, April 14, in a ceremony performed at 3 p.m. by Tommy Payne.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Blake Lewis and Tom Secor, uncle of the bride, was vocalist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Bobby J. Whitehurst and Mrs. James W. Porter. Mr. and Mrs. John J. Langley of Rt. 5, Greenville, are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with cluny lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke embroidered in a beaded with pearls. Panels of lace were trimmed with ruffled crystal pleating. The full bishop sleeves featured cluny lace trim in the matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a cascade of pink carnations, blue tipped poms and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Sandra Sue Whitehurst, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Michelle Sutton of Rt. 5, Greenville, sister of the bride, and Miss Kathy Chauncey of Greenville, cousin of the bride.

Jerry Whitehurst of Washington, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. Bridegroom's father was best man and ushers included John David Sutton of Rt. 5, Greenville, and Harry Langley of Columbia, S.C.

Mrs. Ann Secor of Washington directed the wedding.

For traveling, the bride changed into a three-piece pantsuit.

The bride attends Washington High School and works with Shop-Eze Food Stores, Inc. The bridegroom graduated from North Pitt High School and attended ECU. He's employed by Shop-Eze Food Stores, Inc.

The couple will live at Rt. 5, Greenville.

The bride's mother and father entertained at a reception at Brentwood Lodge.

Parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party and guests at an after-rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the King and Queen, Greenville.

She wore a walking length mantilla edged in cluny lace attached to a Camelot cap overlaid

Mrs. Mitchell Gives Program

New trends in flower arrangements were demonstrated at the meeting of the Greenville Garden Club held Friday at the home of Mrs. J. B. Spilman. Mrs. J. R. Carrington was co-hostess.

Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, club member and Master National Accredited Flower Show Judge, made several arrangements using a variety of plant materials.

Mrs. H. C. Klingenschmitt announced plans for the garden therapy classes at Aycock Junior School April 24 and 26. Committee members will collect plants April 23. Volunteers to assist the classes were scheduled.

Mrs. J. C. Galloway, president, conducted the meeting.

Outstanding Member Named

WILSON — A Greenville native was named member of the year by the Wilson Junior Woman's Club Friday night at its annual spring banquet.

Mrs. Diane Hooks, who joined the club in 1969 and has served as its publicity chairman, vice president and a member of the executive board, received the honor.

Mrs. Joyce Fulghum, last year's recipient, made the presentation.

Mrs. Hooks, a graduate of ECU, Greenville, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Merritt of Greenville. Her husband Ashley, is from Winterville.

Beating butter or margarine or shortening with sugar in cakemaking is called "creaming." The creaming blends the ingredients and also introduces air. The air acts as a leavening; it helps make baked goods such as cake "light."

One Way Of Saying Thank You

This is Salute to Pitt County Industry Week, as officially proclaimed by the city and county governments and with events sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

It is the county's way of saying a thank you to the corporations and businesses which have established manufacturing concerns here.

They range from the traditional tobacco processing, through small home-grown industries and to some of the great corporate names of the nation and world which have established plants here.

There is no way to fully measure the economic impact of the industrialization process which has taken place in our county during recent years.

We can say that thousands of jobs have been created for our citizens and, through these jobs, millions of dollars are put into circulation every year.

The coming of industries couldn't have been better timed, since many farm workers were leaving the land during the era to seek a living elsewhere.

It is rare when Pitt County industries aren't in the forefront in supporting worthwhile community projects. Many plant executives are the leaders in various volunteer community efforts and in serving on governmental committees and boards.

It is safe to say that industrialization has created a new and progressive Pitt County and we think it has worked to the mutual advantage of all of us.

Fun Time, And Publicity For Grifton

The folks at Grifton have successfully staged the Ninth Annual Grifton Shad Festival.

The festival had attracted widespread publicity for the town of Grifton. Equally important putting it on creates a lot of enthusiasm among participating Grifton citizens.

It is a fun time for everyone who attends and participates, and we hope there will be many more shad festivals.

WELL, THERE'S SOME OF THE ANSWER!

Added Glamor Hype

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Newspaper publishers and editors converging on the Big Apple for their two big conventions should give some thought to creating a new award that would add more glamor to the business, or game as it usually called by people who don't play at it.

What is needed is something on the order of the Oscars and Emmys and Tony awards to bring out the glitter side of the "pencil Press."

I propose a series of "Gutey" awards, after old Johannes Gutenberg, the tinkerer who made the whole industry possible by inventing the mold for moveable metallic type in his backshop in Mainz, Germany, back in the mid-1400s or thereabouts.

Bronze replicas of old Gutey would be awarded at a celebrity-studded banquet, white tie and becoming cleavage, emceed by Bob Hope or Johnny Carson and beamed coast to coast over network TV.

The plot line calls for lots of awards in lots of categories, so an endless succession of celebrities can read the nominations and the winners can stretch the prime time exposure into the wee hours with agonizingly sincere acceptance speeches.

Media hype of this sort is needed to rescue the newspaper biz from the aura of sleeve garters and green eyeshade left over from the Bon Hecht school of Windy City Journalism. After all, who else besides Lou Grant is a household word in the profession these days?

But the musty newspaper image will vanish forever once a breathless public experiences its first and long awaited Gutey night.

A hush falls over the audience and a lush falls from the head table as Farrah Fawcett-Majors in a bias cut flak jacket and Mia Farrow in a low bodice disco dress approach the microphone.

"The nominees for best two column caption over a sports picture in papers with circulations over 100,000 are..." intones the ravishing-looking Ms. Majors in tones of breathless seduction.

Action On Toxic Wastes

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Tough new laws concerning the handling and disposition of poisonous chemicals in North Carolina are being prepared in the General Assembly.

Prompted by this winter's roadside dumping of PCB; by the Kepone incident on Virginia's James River; continuing pollution of fishing and shellfish waters on and near the coast; and the warnings of experts that a "toxic nightmare" of awesome proportions exists, a legislative study group has been quietly working for months to pull together the proposed new law.

The key ingredients are possible fines of $100,000 per day to be levied against willful offenders, and classification of unlawful dumping of toxic substances as a felony.

Additionally, a formal state response mechanism is defined in the proposal, hoping to establish who will be in charge and how the response will function in the future.

Cleanup
And a subtle but significant change in existing law is spelled out to fix responsibility for cleaning up any toxic substance. Federal oil cleanup law holds the firm moving the materials responsible if the spill is on water or on land near enough to affect water. The state has used the same guideline in the past, but experts now say cleanup responsibility should fall upon the owner of the substance whether the spill is on water or land, and the law would be amended to reflect that.

Herbert Hyde, secretary of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety; representatives from the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development; staff from the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill; and a handful of legislators have been quietly meeting for weeks to iron out details of the proposal.

There will be opposition, insiders say — from some of the firms which use and must transport and dispose of the numerous toxic materials; from those who object to the stiff fines and penalties; and from trucking or rail companies who as common carriers must transport materials for others but might be held liable for problems.

BILL NOBLITT

A Toxic Substances Task Force to handle response planning and procedures would be headed by the secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety. That individual would be the chief person in charge, and the panel made up of the heads of Agriculture, Human Resources, Natural Resources, and Administration would answer directly to the governor.

Task Force

The state task force would set up regional and local counterparts across the state, and would direct storage, transport, handling, disposal, and response to any spillages of toxic substances.

A study commission would also be set up to monitor task force activities, and handle future legislative changes on disposal and storage, transportation and definitions of toxic substances. It would consist of legislators, representatives of county and city governments, and four specialists from health, environmental, scientific or technological areas.

Already developing as the biggest problem is defining toxic substances. The law could be so broad as to affect the farmer who abandons a junk car in the woods; or so narrow as to allow to escape numerous exotic and little known substances which are truly dangerous.

WASHINGTON DATELINE

Won Against The Odds

By PHILIP C. CLARKE

One of the toughest tasks confronting election officials trying to teach Rhodesia's tribal blacks how to vote for the first time this April was to get them not to cast their ballots for Ian Smith, the white prime minister, as many wanted to do! Under the provisions of the one-man, one-vote elections, only blacks could be elected to the 72-majority seats in the new 100-member parliament. And only a black could serve as prime minister of the new Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, as the country is now called.

Other election problems included showing primitive Africans how to make pencil marks on their ballots and explaining that their votes would be completely secret. Authorities distributed tens of thousands of "how-to" comic books, and made hundreds of radio broadcasts in many dialects, all encouraging blacks to vote. They had to combat Communist propaganda warning that the special dye marks on voters' fingers, designed to prevent repeat voting, would induce impotence in males and sterility in women. The authorities had to dispel terrorist-spread rumors that the "spirits" would be watching to inform on those who dared to vote. Finally, Rhodesia had to provide security at more than 2,000 polling places throughout the five-day election in a country the size of California — a task that required the call-up of an additional 100,000 men.

For a nation wracked by seven years of guerrilla war and crippled by a U.N.-imposed economic and diplomatic embargo of more than a decade, the elections for the country's first black majority government represented an astounding feat.

That they were held at all was a tribute to the courage, determination and resourcefulness of both blacks and whites. And that so many of the 1.8 million eligible African voters turned out is nothing short of remarkable, especially considering the death threats of Soviet-armed guerrillas vowing to disrupt the elections, and the hostility of both the Carter Administration and the British Labor government.

Although the British Conservative Party sent observers to the elections and promised to consider recognizing the new black majority government if the Conservatives won Britain's own elections on May 3, the Administration in Washington stubbornly refused even to acknowledge the historic vote for Africa's first democratically-chosen, bi-racial government.

It now will be up to Congress to reverse the Jimmy Carter-Andrew Young policy of animosity toward Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, and to stop providing tacit U.S. support for the so-called "Patriotic Front" terrorists of Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

In this connection, some facts need telling.

Both Nkomo and Mugabe consistently refused the offers from Rhodesia's biracial transitional government to participate in the elections, obviously knowing they would lose to the country's moderate black leaders. Instead, the guerrilla chiefs have waged a savage war of atrocity against unarmed Rhodesian civilians, black and white, from bases in neighboring Zambia and Mozambique, aided by Soviet, Cuban and East German arms and advisors.

Despite all this — and against all logic — the Carter Administration has persisted in its efforts to give the Communist-led guerrillas a leading role in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia. In so doing, the Administration has gone along with guerrilla demands for elimination of nearly 100 years of white influence that has produced one of the continent's most highly developed

Time For ACTION

WASHINGTON — Just before it quit for the Easter recess, the House voted 276-116 to pull the Peace Corps out of the ACTION agency. The vote was the first step in a dismantling operation that ought to be energetically pursued.

If a contest were held to name the worst federal agency in town — the worst in terms of sheer maladministration — ACTION and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission would finish in something close to a dead heat. But at least the ineptitude of the EEOC appears to be largely a consequence of plain, ordinary incompetence. At Sam Brown's ACTION agency, the record suggests a deliberate, contemptuous disdain for Congress and for the taxpayer generally.

ACTION was created under former President Nixon as an umbrella to shelter various programs involving volunteer workers. The name is not an acronym; it doesn't stand for anything. The agency's budget is divided into two parts, one for busywork abroad, the other for boondoggling here at home.

The Peace Corps is scheduled for $100 million in the next fiscal year to cover training and supporting 6,000 volunteers in 65 countries. On the domestic side, Brown has asked an increase from $119 million in the current fiscal year to $169.6 million in 1980. Chiefly, this would be to finance Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA) plus some other programs to spread the green in tough urban neighborhoods.

The Peace Corps, VISTA and the parent ACTION have enjoyed a charmed life on Capitol Hill. The Peace Corps, of course, was John F. Kennedy's baby, and it has remained the darling of congressional liberals. Except when some volunteer gets in serious trouble, the press tends to ignore the Corps. Both House and Senate smile benignly upon it. There has been no hard-nosed, critical review by outside observers of the real cost-effectiveness of the Peace Corps' program.

The startling vote to take the Corps away from Sam Brown provided a clear indication of increasing dissatisfaction with ACTION's activist director. Brown came under fire a year ago for trying to foist a new urban program on Congress without adequate preparation. Last November, he touched off an explosive controversy by firing the Peace Corps' director. Late in December, staff investigators of the House Appropriations Committee put together a damning indictment of Brown's stewardship. The vote to transfer the Peace Corps to a new interna-

G.J. Woodard, L.S. Spence, A.A. Ellwanger of Greenville, and Arthur Oates of New York went drum fishing at Nags Head Saturday and Sunday and caught nine drum averaging about 30 pounds each. They also landed 15 chub averaging about one and one-half pounds.

The local party reported that a big crowd enjoyed the sport over the weekend and most of them had good catches. The Greenville men spent Saturday night with L.S. Parkinson, a former Greenville resident who now operates a hotel at Kitty Hawk.

H.P. Edwards, of Sanford, said today he hoped that everything would be worked out so that he could assume operation of the state controlled Atlantic and North Carolina railroad about June 1.

Edwards was in Raleigh for conferences with Attorney General Harry McMullan in regard to a final draft of the lease under which he will take over the railroad.

Strength For Today

PRESENT AND FUTURE

A philosopher once said that we are all travelers on the river of time. Behind us the past stretches upstream out of sight. At every moment the present flows by us. Ahead, further than we can see, stretches the future, emptying into the great sea of eternity.

About the past we can do nothing — except learn from it. And we cannot really do much about the future. We can speculate about it, and plan for it, but we cannot actually do anything in the future. Doing is always in the present.

The present is the time for full-scale enjoyment of life. Yet many people, with their eyes only on the future, work years at unrewarding jobs simply for the sake of enjoying retirement. Then, to their dismay, they find out that they cannot enjoy leisure because they have not prepared for it.

As we go through life we should remember — never sell out the present for the future.

Elisha Douglass

Bright Picture In Employment

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Besieged as they are by criticism about inflation, energy problems and other woes, economic policymakers can claim one success in the past few years.

Since the 1973-75 recession, some 10 million new jobs have been created in the United States. Last year alone, total employment rose by 3.6 million.

By early 1979, the percentage of working-age people drawing paychecks reached a record high of 59.4. And as of March, the unemployment rate was down to 5.7 percent, lowest in 4½ years.

"Over the past four years, employment has enjoyed the strongest cyclical recovery in the postwar period," economists Carol Brock Kenney and Leslie J. Moran at the Wall Street firm of Loeb Rhoades, Hornblower & Co. noted.

But economics is not called "the dismal science" for nothing. With all those impressive statistics, the present and future employment picture is still fraught with problems and uncertainties.

There is, of course, the stubborn issue that the experts refer to as structural unemployment — the scarcity of jobs for groups such as teen-age blacks even in the best of times.

In addition, some economywatchers are warning that the high current level of employment in many key areas of business might in itself hasten the onset of a slowdown later this year.

Chicago's Continental Bank is concerned about the shortage of people to fill many skilled labor and white-collar jobs, where unemployment rates are extremely low.

"The degree of tightness in the skilled labor market is far greater than the overall unemployment rate might indicate," the bank observed in a recent report.

"...The supply of skilled workers is likely to remain tight through most of 1979. This is likely to result in some further upward pressures on wages, particularly in the face of high inflation."

That, of course, would mean an added force working against the Carter administration's effort to make its wage guidelines stick. On top of that, any shortages of qualified workers would themselves be a drag on the economy — "labor itself acting as a constraint to growth," in the words of the Loeb Rhoades economists.

So you have a choice. You can worry about a recession leading to increased unemployment, or you can worry about increased employment leading to a recession.

John Cunliff is on vacation.

Planning Commissions To Convene Wednesday

The Joint City-County and Greenville Planning Commissions will consider a total of 11 items, nine of them on the joint agenda, at Wednesday's 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Business scheduled for consideration on the joint board's agenda includes: preliminary plat of Harry A. Hardee property, located northwest of the intersection of NC 43 and State Road 1725;

Request of H & H Development Co. for rezoning 9.1 acres on the south side of NC 33 across from Country Squire Estates from R-6 to Neighborhood Commercial; request of Donnie Dixon for rezoning some 18 acres located approximately 1,400 feet south of the intersection of NC 43 and State Road 1204 from RA-20 to R-6;

Request of David Evans Sr. for rezoning 31 acres on the west side of 14th Street Extension from RA-20 to R-6; final plat of Lot Two, Block J, Section 1 of Stonestrow Subdivision, located north of NC 43 across from the new hospital;

Preliminary plat of United Industrial Park on State Road 1579 between the Fieldcrest Mills property and the Sheltered Workshop; preliminary plat of Quail Ridge, located on 14th Street Extension across from Windy Ridge; discussion of the Thoroughfare Plan; and discussion of signs in the Downtown Commercial Fringe.

The Greenville board will consider a revised final plat of Bryton Hill, located between River Bluff Drive and Rivergate Shopping Center, and the preliminary plat of Woodridge Apartments, located between Orchard Hills Subdivision and Green Mill Run and west of Courtland Road.

Sentence 'Lenient' In Chief Justice's Eyes

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — N.C. Supreme Court Chief Justice Susie M. Sharp has termed a Superior Court judge's controversial sentence in a hit-and-run case "lenient" but "an honest mistake in judgment."

The judge, David E. Reid, sentenced Martha Hamm, 35, of Wilmington to 90 days in jail and the remainder of a two-year suspended term on probation. She had been convicted of hit-and-run and death by vehicle in the killing of Mark Ferguson, 13, also of Wilmington, on Sept. 13, 1978.

Mrs. Hamm has since served the time.

The sentence, said by some to be too little, prompted a petition by the boy's father and community resentment was stirred to the point where the defendant's family left Wilmington.

In a letter to the boy's father, C. Wayne Ferguson, Ms. Sharp wrote: "I suspect that few judges would have been as lenient with Mrs. Hamm as was Judge Reid." She added that "a judge cannot be disciplined for an honest mistake of judgment."

Reid said he thought it regrettable "that she chose to characterize the sentence as lenient." However, he said he had an amicable meeting last week with Ms. Sharp in which they discussed the case.

Ms. Sharp said she did not write the letter to Ferguson with the intention of having excerpts published.

"I couldn't help but have sympathy for the father, so in my letter I tried to explain what I could and couldn't do as chief justice. And I wanted to help him find peace of mind, to help him realize nobody could bring back his son and let him know the courts hadn't failed him."

Ferguson still maintains the punishment was not severe enough.

He said he didn't think "a 90-day sentence in exchange for my son's life is fair, but I feel better knowing they (Reid and Ms. Sharp) have talked. The letter wasn't much, it was nothing at all, because I had hoped the chief justice would call him up and give him something to think about."

Solicitation Requests OK'd

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Wyatt said the requests were submitted by: the Greenville Breakfast Lions for permission to conduct its annual broom sale door-to-door and at Nichols from April 28 to May 26; and by the American Legion Auxiliary, Unit No. 39, for permission to conduct the annual poppy sale to raise funds for the veterans program on May 18 and 19.

civilizations. And the Administration has ignored the wishes of moderate blacks who clearly favor the internal Rhodesian solution by which the white minority will remain responsible for law and order for the next five years and will retain 28 seats in the 100-seat parliament for ten years.

As George Nyandoro, foreign affairs advisor to moderate black leader Bishop Abel Muzorewa, told an American Security Council fact-finding team: "The blacks need the whites as much as they need us." Nyandoro, it should be noted, returned to Rhodesia only two years ago after 14 years of self-imposed exile in the Communist world. He broke with the Communists when he realized that their plans for Rhodesia called for economic and political chaos and Soviet domination.

The late Dean Acheson, the former Secretary of State, called the sanctions against Rhodesia an "immoral act of aggression" totally without justification. Now it will be up to Congress and the American people to see to it that the sanctions against ZimbabweRhodesia are promptly lifted. There is, above all, no earthly reason why ZimbabweRhodesia should not be given a decent chance to survive.

Phil C. Clarke, a journalist and foreign correspondent, recently participated in a four-member, 18-day fact-finding mission in Rhodesia, Namibia and South Africa.

Special Events To Mark Industry Salute By Pitt

By SUSAN NOBLES
Greenville Area C of C
Second in a Two Part Series
The industries of Pitt County are being honored this week April 23-27 during Salute to Pitt County Industry Week festivities.

The Pitt County commissioners, the City of Greenville, and the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring week long events such as plant tours and public awareness programs, to salute industry and to make the public aware of the importance of industry to the economy of Pitt County.

The following background information is presented to explain the origins of some of the industries participating in the week-long event.

GRADY-WHITE BOATS, INC.

Grady-White Boats, Inc. is a manufacturer of quality fiberglass boats ranging in size from 17 feet to 25 feet. The business was purchased in 1968 by Eddie Smith, Jr., president, and is managed by Wiley B. Corbett, executive vice president and general manager.

The company was originally formed in 1958 by Glenn Grady and Don White. The company gained an excellent reputation for building quality wooden lapstrake boats. As time progressed, it became evident that the interest in wooden boats was rapidly declining and that fiberglass was the new material to be used by boat manufacturers. The company began manufacturing fiberglass boats in 1967.

Grady-White Boats are sold through authorized Grady-White boat dealers throughout the United States. The primary markets are the entire East coast, Florida, the Gulf coast and the Great Lakes.

Manufacturing facilities are located in a 150,000 square foot building on Greenville Boulevard. Complete product design, sales and manufacturing are handled at the local plant, employing approximately 250 people.

Grady-White is considered one of the leading fiberglass boat builders in the United States and has the reputation in the industry for building quality small blue water fishing boats.

FIELDCREST MILLS INC.

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc. is a major producer of quality textile products. In terms of manufacturing facilities and know-how, top styling and merchandising, modern management techniques and personnel practices, the company holds a high place in the American textile industry.

The company operates 26 plants in North Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Alabama and manufactures blankets, sheets, bedspreads, automatic blankets, towels and woven tufted rugs and carpets. The products are sold in stores throughout the country and are nationally advertised in leading magazines, on television, and through other media.

Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., was organized in 1953 to acquire the textile manufacturing business and properties which had been owned by Marshall Field & Company for more than 40 years. The record under the new ownership has been marked by significant growth and improvement, including acquisitions, modernization, expansion and new constructions.

Since purchasing the mills, the company has constantly upgraded the styling and quality of its product lines, and has improved its manufacturing techniques and facilities.

Fieldcrest remained a closed corporation until October, 1962 when the company stock was first sold to the public. Fieldcrest was listed on the New York Stock Exchange since December, 1965.

The Fieldcrest Mills plants in Pitt County are located on Dickinson Avenue and in the Industrial Park.

EATON CORPORATION

Eaton Corporation began in 1911 with the development and marketing of a reliable truck axle and it has continued to grow by producing an ever widening range of automotive and truck components, material handling systems and industrial power transmission products. Eaton is headquartered in Cleveland, Ohio and had record sales of $2.8 billion in 1978.

An important part of Eaton's business is materials handling which is considered by many to represent the last frontier for achieving substantial savings in the movement of all types of materials.

Eaton is a leader in the manufacturing of industrial lift trucks which are workhorses of industry today. Marketed in 130 countries they lift, pick, stack, select, and store the goods of commerce. From raw materials to finished products, Eaton's materials handling systems keep things moving along.

Eaton's industrial lift trucks are among the world's sales and performance leaders in both electric and gas powered models. Fifty million dollars have been invested in manufacturing facilities and in the development and engineering of a full product line over the past few years.

The 353,000 square foot Eaton Electric Industrial Truck Assembly Facility is situated on a 70 acre site in Greenville. The site is strategically located close to supplier vendors for inbound shipments and close to air, railroad and highway transportation systems. The Eaton Corporation plant in Greenville has plenty of room for expansion and was built for manufacturing during the seventies and the future.

The Greenville plant has the latest in manufacturing and materials handling equipment and also boasts of a power monitoring and control application program to aid in the power demand for this building with specified limits. The power management system is a sensor based mini-computer designed to monitor and control the total power being used by this facility. It is another major step Eaton has taken to conserve and wisely use energy.

Deacon Leander Monk, Sr.

Deceased April 21, 1978

It was your joy in life to find
At every turning of the road
The strong arm of a comrade kind
To help you onward with your load.
You had no gold to give.
Love, kindly words, understanding, patiently you gave
And your prayers while you lived
God made worthy of many friends.

Research Is Presented

ECU News Bureau

Findings of three research projects directed by Dr. Edgar Heckel of the East Carolina University chemistry faculty were presented at recent scientific meetings in North Carolina and Hawaii.

Students Patricia McClellan and Miles Jones reported on the "Effects of Fluoride on the Calcium and Magnesium Metabolism of the Blue Crab" at the Greensboro meeting of the N.C. Academy of Sciences.

At the same time, Dr. Heckel attended the joint chemical congress of the American Chemical Society and the Chemical Society of Japan in Honolulu where he presented an interim report on a study of blue crabs, which has been carried out in cooperation with Frank Arey, Jones and Ms. McClellan.

The Publicity and Public Relations Committee of the American Chemical Society selected this work for its newsworthy content and released a nontechnical article for the press at the meeting.

A paper on current levels of pollutant fluoride in the ambient air over the Pamlico estuary in North Carolina was read at the Hawaii meeting before the Division of Environmental Chemistry. This study was co-authored by Wayne Chamblee, Frank Arey and Wayne Powell.

Writing Contest Winners Named

The Media Center of Wellcome Middle School has sponsored a writing contest to celebrate Library Week.

Veveca Pulliam was first place winner for her poem, "Tornado." Others who placed were Clyn Morris for his haiku, "Fog," second; Judy Godwin for her story, "The Dukes of Hazzard," third; Renee Briley for her story, "The Dome City," fourth; and Yvette Allyne for her haiku, "The Ball," fifth.

Honorable mentions went to Veveca Pulliam, Teresa Daniels, Lisa Spruill, Tommy Bolton, and James Baker.

Winners were awarded prizes, including books from the book fair.

Mental Health Bd. To Meet

The Pitt Co. Area Mental Health Board will meet Wednesday at 4 p. m. at the Center.

Board Chairman Rev. James H. Bailey said the Area Director Stephen K. Creech will give a report on the Governor's Conference on Mental Health. Committee reports will be made by Dr. Malene Irons, Ray Rogers, William McDonald, John Mewborn and Robert Martin. Dr. Creech also will report on biofeedback and the Area Board policy manual. Robert Martin will report on the Eastern Region Area Board Association meeting held recently, he indicated.

Kennedy Assails Lobbying Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says representative government "is in the worst shape I have seen it in my 17 years in Congress" because of a Senate and House of Representatives "awash in a sea of special interest campaign contributions and special interest lobbying."

The Massachusetts Democrat told an AFL-CIO conference Monday his calls for public financing of congressional races should be heeded to help remedy the situation.

Eighty Attend Seniors' Meet

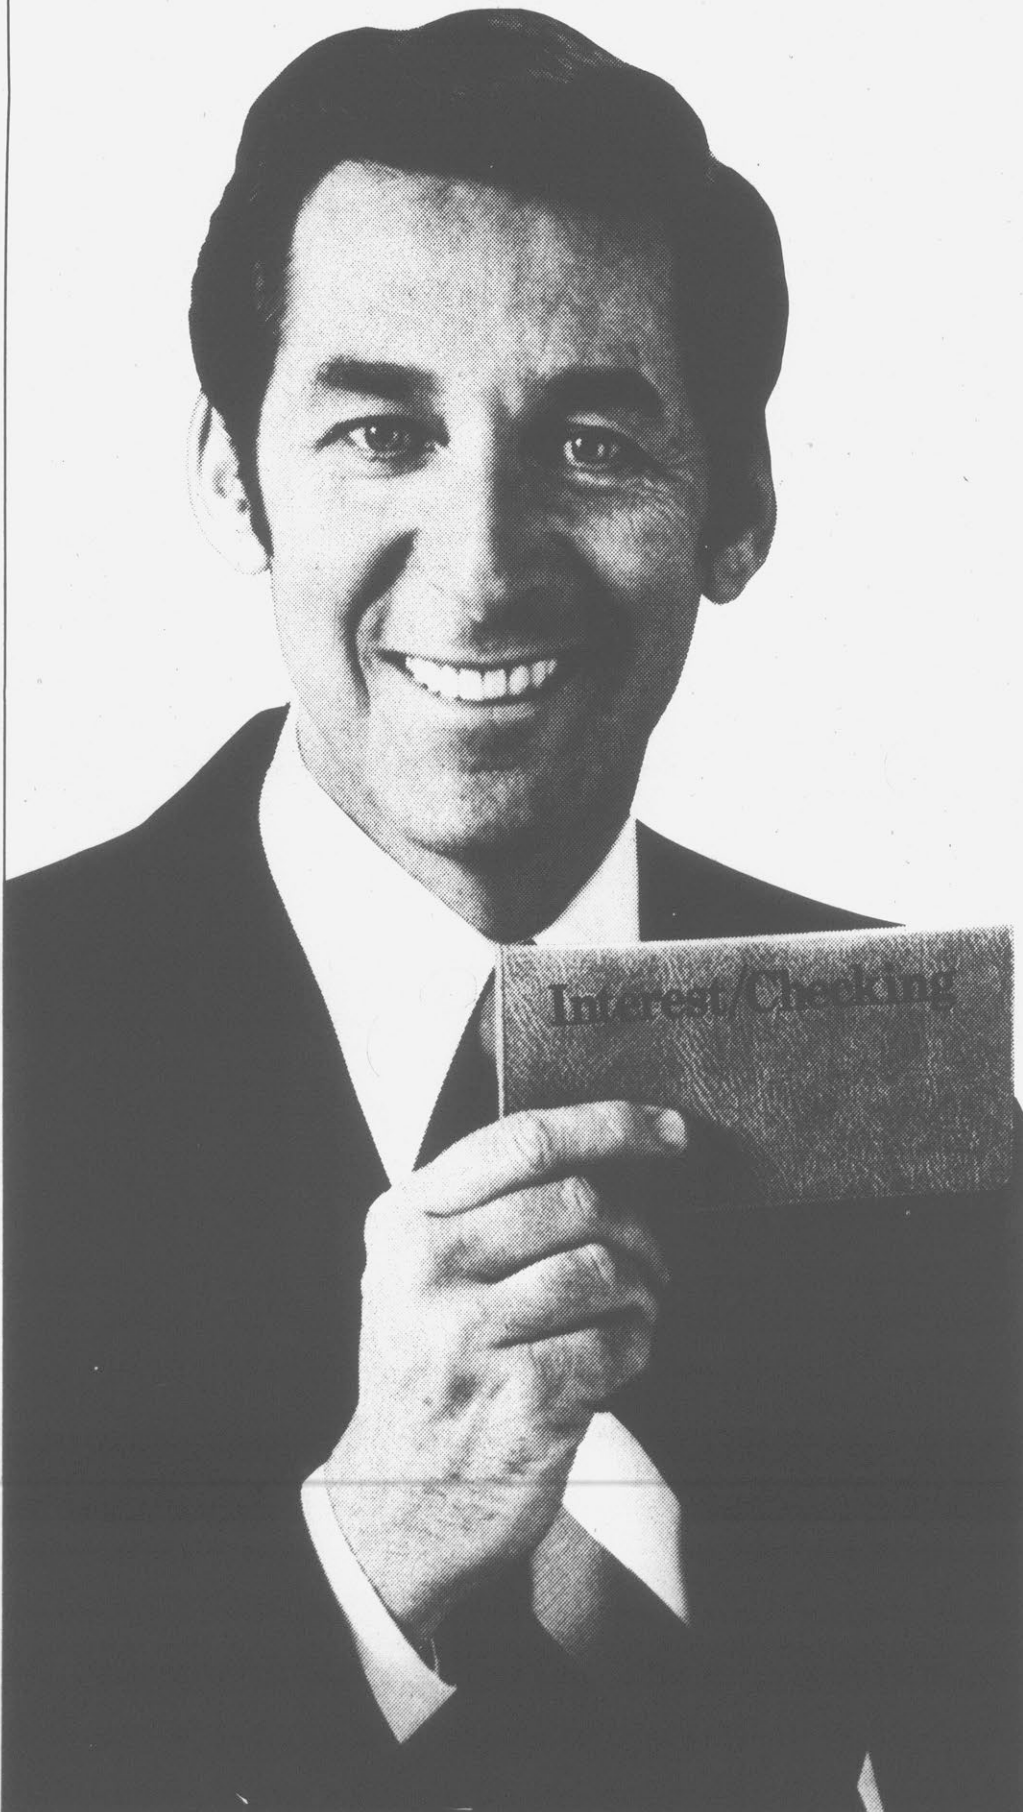

Eighty persons attended the Thursday meeting of the Town and Country Senior Citizens Club at St. Paul's Episcopal Church Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. Sarah Ashton, president, welcomed members and two guests, reminding members that reservations for the May 17 luncheon must be made at the May 3 meeting. Plans were made for a June trip to Manteo. Twenty-five members signed to go on the trip.

Mrs. Ruby Parkerson gave the Sunshine Report. Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Howard entertained the group with gospel selections. Refreshments were served by Lucy Hannaford, Estelle Tucker, Pattie Mizell, Mattie Hardee, Thelma Hardee, Ada Smith, Ann Ernest and Reba Cannon.

The Rev. Adrian Brown opened the meeting with a devotion and the Rev. Henry Lofquist closed the session with prayers.

Now you can earn interest on all the money you have in the bank.

Wachovia Interest/CheckingSM is here.

How much money do you deposit in your checking account each year? For many people, it's a substantial amount.

How's The Weather?

FORECAST

Until Wednesday

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning from the Dakotas across the Great Lakes to northern New York and in the east from Georgia to Maryland. Cold weather is due for the northern Plains, but most of the country will be mild. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
A warm, moist southerly flow of air has spread over North Carolina, bringing cloudy skies and a few showers over northern and western counties. The showers were expected to be scattered over the west portion of the state today and spread over all of the state tonight and Wednesday. The National Weather Service said it did not appear today that any part of the state would receive substantial rainfall, so dry conditions with the threat of forest fires will continue. Under mostly cloudy skies today temperatures were expected to range from the upper 60s in the mountains to the low 80s in the southeast portion of the state. Low temperatures during the night ranged in the upper 50s and low 60s and they are expected to be about the same tonight.

Recital Is Moved Up To Wednesday

The senior composition recital of Harvey Stokes, previously scheduled for Friday, April 27 has been changed and will instead be held at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 25 in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

Stokes will perform four of his compositions, "Values and Proposals No. 3 (for Woodwind Quintet);" "Music for Brass Sextet;" "Values and Proposals No. 1 (for Woodwind Quartet);" and "Chamber Concerto No. 1 (for Oboe and String Quartet)."

Musicians performing Stokes' compositions are faculty members David Hawkins, oboe; Daniel Mellado, violoncello; Paul Topper, violin; and students Holly Hicks, viola; Andy Gilbert, trombone; Gary Blizard, trombone; Steve Morgan, trumpet; Dave Hill, trumpet; John Jones, tuba; Robert Burford, horn; Ronnie Wooten, clarinet; Judy Fordyce, horn; Kevin Bagby, clarinet; Matt Morris, bassoon; Ardis Harrar, bassoon; James Gilliam, alto saxophone; and Myrick Gyant, flute.

Faculty member Robert Hause is the conductor, assisted by Glenn Davis, violinist. Also on Wednesday, at 9 p.m. Jerry Walters is giving his senior recital at Fletcher. He will play three compositions, "Sonatine Sportive" by Tcherenine; Lantier's "Sicilienne;" and Ibert's "Histories."

Both recitals are free and the public is invited to attend.

Muzorewa Wins Rhodesia Vote

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Bishop Abel Muzorewa was elected the first black prime minister of Rhodesia today as his party easily swept 51 out of 72 black seats in parliamentary elections.

The United African National Council, led by the 54-year-old Methodist bishop, captured more than four times as many parliamentary seats as any of his black opponents.

Muzorewa will form the first black-majority government in Rhodesia after nine decades of exclusive rule by the white minority.

With final results in, the 51 seats of Muzorewa's party were followed by 12 seats for the Rev. Ndabaingi Sithole's Zimbabwe African National Union and nine seats for Chief Kayisa Ndiweni's United National Federal Party, which champions the minority Ndebele tribe.

Chief Jeremiah Chirau, the fourth partner with Prime Minister Ian Smith, Muzorewa and Sithole in the year-old bi-racial transitional government, failed to win a single seat.

The uneasy alliance of the three moderate black leaders collapsed under the pressure of election reverses. Sithole charged "gross irregularities" and demanded an investigation.

The other 28 seats in parliament were won by Smith's Rhodesian Front Party in an election two weeks ago. The 28 seats and a quarter of Cabinet posts are reserved for the white minority under a constitution that also leaves the whites in control of the police, military, judiciary and civil service for at least five years.

Smith, who has been prime minister for the last 15 years, will take a parliamentary seat as leader of the white minority.

Sithole on Monday declared that the five-day election last week expressed the "will of 2 million people." But a few hours later, after first unofficial returns put his party in third place in both Salisbury and the second largest city of Bulawayo, Sithole accused the Internal Affairs Ministry of "stage-managing" the voting. He said his party will not consider the results "the verdict of the people" until his charges were investigated.

He said he had reports "from black and white farmers, black teachers and civil servants" that the department "instructed people what party to vote for at polling booths."

"It is high time Mr. Sithole accepted defeat gracefully," said Muzorewa's campaign director, Ayoub Kara.

"The elections are over and that's it," said Chirau.

The returns bore out predictions of observers before and during the election that Muzorewa's party would come in first and he would become prime minister. But Sithole predicted last week that his faction would get 50 of the 72 black seats in the new Parliament, they boycotted the election and contended that the new constitution is a sham that gives the blacks the trappings of powers but preserves white control.

Front in an election two weeks ago. Sithole's charge was certain to be seized on by guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe. Vowing to continue their seven-year-old war, they boycotted the election and contended that the new constitution is a sham that gives the blacks the trappings of powers but preserves white control.

The other 28 seats reserved for whites were won by Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian Front.

Face Pressure

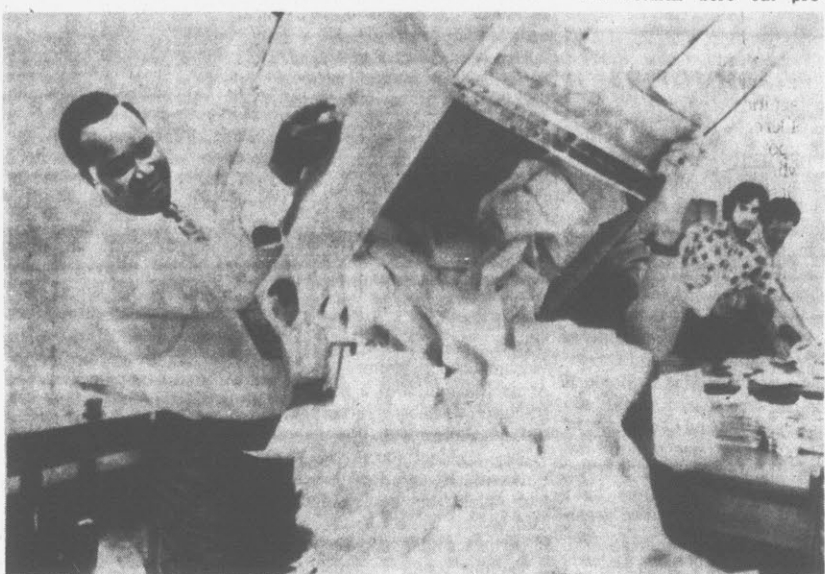

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of President Carter's most senior Africa policy advisers are recommending that the administration resist growing domestic pressures to lift U.S. economic and political sanctions against Rhodesia, informed sources say.

Officially the administration is reserving judgment on the recent five-day election in Rhodesia that will lead to the installation of the first black-majority government in that country's history.

But the sources, who asked not to be quoted by name, say Richard M. Moose, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, and Ambassador Donald McHenry, a top adviser to United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young, believe the election was a fraud and that the sanctions should remain.

The Carter administration has tried to steer a neutral course between Rhodesia's so-called internal forces led by Prime Minister Ian Smith and the externally-based Patriotic Front guerrilla group.

Officials acknowledge that the administration will come under heavy domestic pressure to endorse Smith's black-majority plan. U.S. newspapers and television broadcasts have been saturated in recent days with scenes of joyful Rhodesian blacks voting for the first time.

COUNTING — Black election official and white counterpart in town of Chipping in eastern Rhodesia empty ballot papers onto table for counting. The government claimed that 63.9 percent of those eligible to vote cast ballots in the election which ended Saturday.

The Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, one of three black members of Rhodesia's biracial transition government, whose party is trailing, said reports indicated the election had been "stage-managed" by the government's Internal Affairs Ministry. (AP Laserphoto)

Pickup Truck's Wreck Killed 8 Young People

CROFTON, Md. (AP) — A pickup truck carrying 12 young people to a party crashed into trees on a dark, isolated stretch of rural road and overturned, killing eight persons and injuring the others, police said.

All the victims were dependents of Army personnel at Fort Meade, Md., said Officer Jack Rayhart, of the Anne Arundel County police.

Only the driver, Alan Cole, 18, of Baltimore, escaped serious injury. He was listed in good condition with multiple lacerations and contusions at Kimbrough Army Hospital in Ft. Meade, officials said.

"It was quite a tragic thing," said Sgt. Richard Smith of the Anne Arundel County police.

Officials spent the night sorting through personal items in an effort to identify the youths. "It's a problem trying to find out who's who," Smith said.

The victims were identified as Paul Morenz, 16; Tammera Weaver, 16, and her 18-year-old brother, Robert; Barry DeAoun, 14, and his 15-year-old sister, Denise; Cindy Bray, no age given; Marilyn Harris, no age given; and Clark Kusha, 14, authorities said.

Seven of the dead victims resided at Fort Meade, authorities said.

There was no address available for Kusha, who died on the operating table at 3:25 a.m. at the University of Maryland's Shock Trauma Unit, according to hospital spokeswoman Marianna Herschel. She said his family left the hospital before authorities could find out where he lived.

Tina Neal, 15, of Fort Meade, suffering from internal injuries and injuries to her left arm, pelvis and back, and Eugene Renaud, 15, of Fort Meade, being treated for injuries to his head, chest, left arm and both legs, were listed in critical condition at the Shock Trauma Unit, Ms. Herschel said.

Kenneth Sasseraman, 16, of Fort Meade, taken to Kimbrough Army Hospital at Fort Meade, was transferred to Washington's Walter Reed Army Hospital with a possible fractured vertebrae, according to Capt. James Meli.

The accident occurred on Patuxent River Road about four miles from here, officers said.

Rayhart said it appeared as if "nothing" had ever happened at the accident scene.

"I know that's a weird thing to say, but nothing. It doesn't look like there was ever an accident," he said. "It's obvious a lot were in the back of the truck and thrown out. There wasn't any indication of speed. But something caused them to turn over and threw them out."

Cut State's Copter Sum

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The House and Senate Appropriations Committees voted today to trim the wings on a plan to enlarge the state's air force, reducing by $1 million a request for a Department of Commerce helicopter.

The committees voted to reduce the $1.4 million the department had requested for a new twin-engine, fully instrumented Bell helicopter.

The department said the chopper, with a $400 an hour operation cost, was needed to show corporate executives prospective industrial sites.

The department said two existing state helicopters are uncomfortable, too small, and not equipped for all-weather flying. Sen. Melvin Daniels, D-Pasquotank, head of a subcommittee that recommended the purchase, said some corporations will not let their executives fly in single-engine aircraft.

But the committees voted 42-24 to reduce the budgeted amount to $450,000, the amount opponents said an adequate, less sophisticated helicopter could be purchased for.

The type helicopter the department wanted, a Bell 222, is not yet in production, and Daniels acknowledged delivery time would be 18 to 24 months.

Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, said the state should not buy a helicopter that has just gone into production. "Anybody that knows anything about aircraft knows you don't want the first one anyway," he said. "It'll be in the shop most of the time."

National Academy of Sciences that he anticipates efforts to pass an amendment that would "kickback" to the companies $4 billion to $5 billion on top of the estimated $6 billion they would realize in extra profits under his plan.

Such a plowback proposal would require companies to turn added profits to discovering new oil fields or developing existing reserves.

Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and a key influence on tax matters, has said he would favor a windfall profits levy, but only after sufficient time elapses to see how oil producers use higher profits from decontrols.

An aide to the Louisiana Democrat said the senator would not comment on Carter's speech.

Assassin's Effort Fails

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and members of his Cabinet escaped an assassination attempt today as they walked in the funeral procession of a general assassinated 24 hours earlier.

A man in an air force uniform tried to throw a hand grenade at the 72-year-old premier and his colleagues, a witness said, but guards walking alongside the procession knocked it from his hand.

Then the man raised a submachine gun, but before he could fire the guards kicked him to the ground and rushed him away, the witness said. A second man was reported arrested also.

Bazargan appeared shaken by the attempted attack. Islamic revolutionary militiamen surrounded him, then pushed him into a car, and he was driven off along with other officials.

The two men arrested were not identified. Nor was there an immediate explanation of the attack on the prime minister, who in recent weeks has been soft-pedaling his criticism of the executions by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's drumhead revolutionary courts.

Later an aide to Deputy Premier Minister Abbas Amir-Entezam, the chief government spokesman, claimed that the assassination attempt "did not happen." But other sources confirmed the first eyewitness report and said possibly more than two men were arrested.

Bazargan, Amir-Entezam and other Cabinet ministers were walking in the funeral procession for Gen. Mohammad Vali Gharani, the first army chief of staff appointed after the revolution. Gharani was killed in his garden Monday and was the first major figure of the revolution to be assassinated. The two assassins escaped.

A secret organization named Forghan claimed responsibility today for the murder.

Attorney Claims Crime Evidence

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An attorney has filed a motion in which he claims to have evidence linking Lee Junior Brunson to the slaying of an unnamed woman three weeks prior to the rape and killing of 8-year-old Vanessa Dale Lewis. Brunson's brother, James Edward Brunson, has twice been convicted of the Lewis girl's murder. But police and others now say they have doubts about the case, and attorney James Little is seeking a new trial for James Brunson.

Little's motion was filed just minutes before a hearing began Monday before Superior Court Judge Coy Brewer Jr. in an effort to obtain a new trial for James Brunson.

He first filed a motion for a new trial in late 1978, contending that Lee Brunson was actually the girl's killer.

James Brunson was first convicted in 1973 and was convicted again in 1974 after the state Supreme Court ordered a new trial.

Lee Brunson, 26, joined the Marines a day after the second killing and is in a California prison serving time on a burglary conviction, police said.

The key witness in Little's case is Robert Carmichael, a former Fayetteville resident who lives in Florida. He testified at both trials that James Brunson killed the Lewis child.

He has now signed a statement, according to motions filed by Little, in which he said he lied.

His statement said Lee Brunson bludgeoned the Lewis child to death in an abandoned house on Feb. 22, 1972, Little said.

Carmichael returned to Fayetteville this week for the hearing. He told the Fayetteville Observer that he tried to change his story during James Brunson's 1974 trial, but was afraid to do so because District Attorney Ed Grannis Jr. had indicated he would be jailed as an accessory to the murder. Carmichael was granted immunity from prosecution in the case.

In the motion filed Monday, Little did not name the woman he contends was killed by Lee Brunson before the Lewis murder. Fayetteville police list as unsolved, however, the murder of an elderly woman found dead in her home in early 1972.

Will Not Force Iranians' Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iranians in the United States will not be forced to leave this country before Sept. 1 due to Iran's unstable political situation, the Immigration and Naturalization Service says.

A State Department official said Monday the Sept. 1 date was selected to allow time for U.S. officials to assess the political turbulence in Iran after the ouster of the shah. "Out of fairness we don't think people who don't want to go back should be forced to return," said the official who asked not to be identified. The INS said 44 Iranians were deported in 1977 but no total is available for last year.

Heiress Loses Eviction Fight

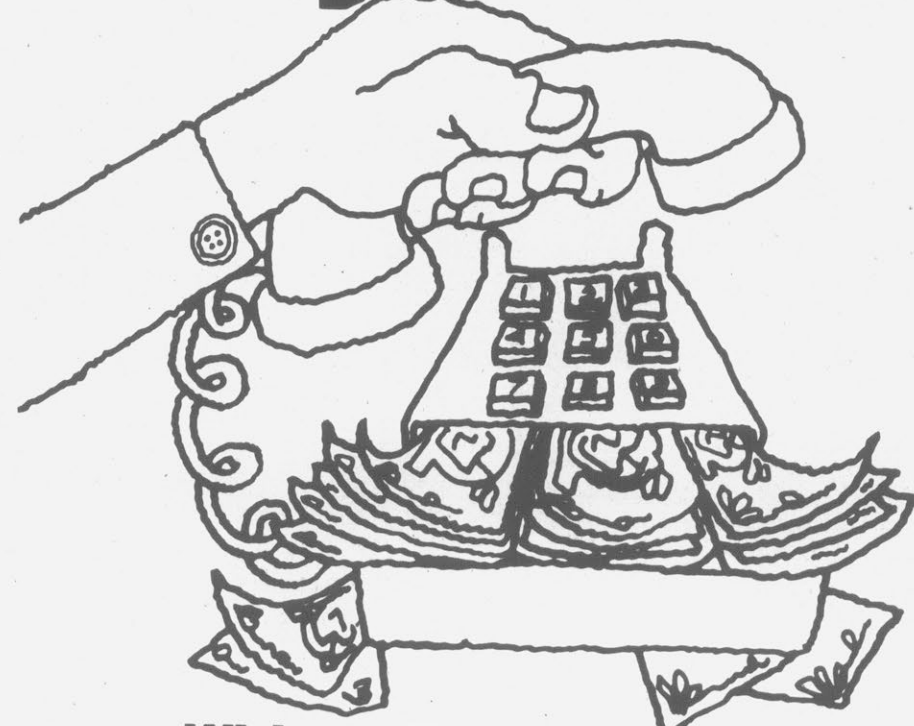

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Heiress Louise Vanderbilt says her eviction from an apartment she rented at a Newport mansion has hardened her resolve to fight for the rights of tenants everywhere.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's struggle to stay in one of the two apartments she rented in the Mallands ended Monday when sheriffs evicted her and moving men took many of her possessions to storage.

"It's been the worst day of my life," Mrs. Vanderbilt said. "I've never been evicted in my life and I've never known anyone who was evicted."

Luzinski Sparks Phillies Past Dodgers

Go Between

Los Angeles Dodger coach Jim Lefabvre quickly moves in between Phillies' first baseman Pete Rose and Dodger pitcher Andy Messersmith as the two exchanged words in the third inning of last night's game in Philadelphia. Messersmith was tagged out by Rose at first on an infield out. (AP Laserphoto)

When you need a spark, how about Greg Luzinski for starters?

"Greg is our key — no doubt about it," says Philadelphia Phillies teammate Mike Schmidt. "He gets us going."

Like Monday night, when the Philadelphia outfielder slugged a two-run homer in the sixth to trigger the Phillies' offense against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Schmidt later applied the finishing touches with an RBI single in the 10th inning that brought the Phillies a 4-3 victory over the Dodgers.

Luzinski also had a role in the Phillies' game-winning rally.

"Greg was the key there, too," Schmidt said. "His fly ball got (Larry) Bowa to third and it was a lot different going up to hit knowing you only need a fly ball to win a game, than needing a base hit. That's why Greg hits fourth for the Phillies and fourth in the All-Star game."

Cardinals 3, Braves 2

Jerry Mumphrey's two-out single drove in the winning run in the 10th inning as St. Louis edged Atlanta. Tony Scott beat out a two-out infield single, then stole second and went to third when catcher Dale Murphy's throw sailed into center field.

Mumphrey then lined his single just over the outstretched glove of shortstop Pepe Frias as the Cardinals defeated Phil Niekro, who had carried a six-hit shutout into the ninth before giving up two runs.

Rangers 5, Blue Jays 0

Doyle Alexander and Jim Kern, backed by a club record-tying five double plays, combined on a three-hitter to pitch Texas over Toronto.

Alexander, who had been hit hard in his three previous starts, gave up all three of the Blue Jays' hits in 71-3 innings. Jim Clancy gave up three of the Rangers' runs in the first inning.

Royals 4, White Sox 3

Frank White smacked a pair of doubles, drove in two runs and scored one to help Kansas City beat Chicago. Left-hander Paul Splittorff evened his record at 2-2 with relief help from Al Hrabosky. Chicago starter Rich Wortham lost his first game in four decisions.

"Hungo came in and did a heck of a job," Kansas City outfielder Willie Wilson said of Hrabosky, who put out the Chicago fire in the eighth. "I wanted to kiss him."

Pirates Postponed

ROCKY MOUNT — East Carolina University's baseball game with North Carolina Wesleyan, scheduled for last night in Rocky Mount, was postponed because of rain.

The game has been rescheduled as part of a double-header, to be played on Tuesday, May 1 at Greenville, starting at 6 p.m.

The Pirates are scheduled to play host to Virginia Wesleyan tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field on the ECU campus.

Lady Pirates Split Pair

FAYETTEVILLE — East Carolina's softball team split a doubleheader at Methodist College yesterday, dropping the first game 7-5, but bouncing back in the second for a 5-1 victory.

The first game started off badly for East Carolina when Methodist scored five runs on three hits in the first inning with the aid of four Pirate errors.

The score remained 5-0 until the third when Theresa Whitley singled to left field for ECU and scored when Mary Powell reached second on errors. Powell scored when Shirley Brown reached on an error.

In the fifth, the Pirates scored two more runs when Jan McVeigh got on via an error, moved to second on Whitley's single and scored on a hit to left by Robin Faggart. Cindy Williams knocked Whitley in.

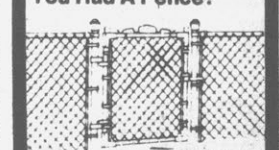

Pirate centerfielder Shirley Brown slammed a home run to left field in the seventh for the final Pirate run.

The Monarchs scored their only run of the second game in the second inning on an error and a fielder's choice.

The Pirates did the rest of the scoring, but didn't start until the fifth inning when Janis Parlon and Maureen Buck came in on a home run by Cindy Meekins.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mickey Mantle, 11 years after belting his last baseball out of Yankee Stadium, still goes back frequently — in his dreams.

"I still dream almost every night that I'm trying to make a comeback ... If I get a hit, I can't run to first base. They always just nick me," he said.

Or, "I'm riding in a cab dressed in my uniform, and as we pull up by the park, I can hear on the loud speaker, 'Now batting, No. 7, Mickey Mantle.' When I get out of the cab, every gate to the stadium is locked, and I've got to crawl under a fence to get in."

Mantle finds it impossible to get his New York Yankee superstar days out of his system. "I don't think I'll ever get over it," said Mantle, who retired with aching legs in 1968. "You get so used to being pampered and applauded all your life, and all of the sudden you're in your own living room watching somebody else get all that."

"Once you've had it, it's hard to forget. It's tough to realize you're through. I don't think anybody ever gets over it, and I can see how it can kill somebody," Mantle said.

"I can imagine a beautiful actress when she finally gets old, and nobody wants her." During his 18-year career Mantle won the American League's Most Valuable Player award three times and a Triple Crown, hit 536 homers and drove in 1,509 runs. He probably was the most idolized player of the 1950s and 60s.

"It's harder than hell," he reflected to a Times-Union and Journal of Jacksonville reporter. "I'm fairly recognizable, and it's not been totally taken away from me. You really get spoiled. I can see how a guy can commit suicide."

But he says he feels healthier now than he has in years, after surgery for a bleeding ulcer last summer. He has several business interests in Dallas and spends a lot of time relaxing by playing golf.

He and his old running mate, Whitey Ford, have a book out called "Whitey and Mickey," but Mantle said, "It was too timid."

"I oughta write a book, but nobody would believe it, some of the wild stuff we did."

Not unlike the current edition, the old Yankees had their feuds, Mantle said, adding, "but we'd close the door and didn't have a press conference for every one of them."

He said he doesn't think the team camaraderie is the same now.

"There was more of a brotherhood then. Players don't seem as close now," Mantle said.

He misses those days. "I played with people I enjoyed playing with and I wouldn't trade that for anything. Half the fun of the games was talking it over afterwards. Now the clubhouse is empty in 15 minutes. We'd ice two cases of beer and sit around and talk about all the funny things that happened until it was all gone."

In the 1954 World Series against Cleveland, Dusty Rhodes, a substitute outfielder for the New York Giants, drove in seven runs on only four hits.

Knights

Bow, 13-0

Calvary Academy romped to a 13-0 victory over the Greenville Christian Academy baseball team yesterday.

Calvary got all it was to need in the first inning, scoring six runs. Riggs and Waddell both reached on errors, and Adams did too, scoring Riggs. Cox and Ernsberger both walked, forcing in Waddell. Rice walked and that scored Adams. Gibson singled in Cox and Jarrett doubled, scoring Ernsberger and Rice.

Calvary then went on to add one in the second, two in the fourth and four in the fifth.

Troy Hudson and Ben Hadcock each had two hits for Greenville Christian, which dropped to 5-6 with the loss.

The Knights travel to Goldsboro for their next game today.

Bullets Seeks To Close Out Series

It's Gonna Be A Loser

Waltrip Holds Lead In NASCAR Standings

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, third to Richard Petty and Buddy Baker in the Virginia 500 last weekend, maintained his lead in the NASCAR standings released Monday.

Waltrip now has 1,487 points, giving him 86 points more than Bobby Allison, who finished fourth in the race on Martinsville Speedway. Petty, who Sunday collected his first win on a speedway less than a mile in length since 1975, is fourth with 1,299.

Cale Yarborough is third with 1,308 points through nine events of the 31-race schedule.

Benny Parsons has 1,244 for fifth place, rookie Joe Millikan has 1,242, Donnie Allison has 1,224, Dale Earnhardt has 1,216 points, D.K. Ulrich has 1,131 points and Richard Childress has 1,090.

While Waltrip continues to lead in the money-won column, Baker became the fifth driver to top the $100,000 mark on the year. Waltrip has earned $154,870, followed by Petty with $147,615, Bobby Allison with $124,605, Yarborough with $106,665, Baker $105,805, Donnie Allison with $86,515, Earnhardt $69,050, Millikan $63,210 and Parsons with $40,110.

The circuit drivers have a week off before heading to the Alabama International Motor Speedway for the Winston 500 on May 6.

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets seem to be getting their annual post-season tuneup from the Atlanta Hawks.

After sweeping two games from the Hawks in last year's preliminary playoff series, the Bullets said the competition sharpened their execution for the march to the National Basketball Association title.

The matchup is just as intense in the quarter-finals this year, and it seems to be reaching the same conclusion: the Bullets will try to close out the best-of-seven series with a victory at home tonight.

After splitting the first two games in Washington, the Bullets went to Atlanta — where the Hawks had won 17 in a row — and took two straight over the weekend to assume a commanding 3-1 lead in the series.

"In our last two games," said Washington Coach Dick Motta, "we played about as good as we can play."

The other Eastern Conference semifinal resumes Thursday with the San Antonio Spurs, leading 3-1, hoping to oust the Philadelphia 76ers.

The Western semifinals continue Wednesday when the Seattle SuperSonics carry a 3-1 lead into their contest against the Los Angeles Lakers while the Phoenix Suns carry a 2-1 lead into their game at Kansas City against the Kings.

Bullets forward Bob Dandridge, who scored 19 of his 31 points in the final 17 minutes of Washington's 120-118 overtime victory on Sunday, has been superb. He leads the Bullets with 112 points and 20 assists.

Forward Elvin Hayes, with 89 points and 54 rebounds, and center Wes Unseld, with 50 rebounds and 16 assists, completes a veteran Washington front line which has 31 years of NBA experience.

That experience, Motta said, can make a difference in the playoffs.

"We found out last season what it took to win on the road in the playoffs, and how to overcome crowd noise and the rest," Motta said.

Rampants Take Wins

WILSON — Rose High School's golfers continued to roll along yesterday, taking first place in a seven-team meet held at the Wilson Wedgewood Country Club.

The Rampants finished the afternoon with a team total of 309 strokes. Wilson Hunt and Roanoke Rapids tied for second with 316 strokes, followed by Tarboro with 311, Wilson Fike with 338, Northern Nash with 352 and Wilson Beddingfield with 396.

Jack Mann led Rose with 73, while Sterling Ashby had 77, Mike Moye had 79 and Tom Brewer carded an 80.

The wins boosted the Rose record to 31-0-1 on the year. The Rampants travel to Goldsboro on Thursday.

"Shots start getting harder in the fourth period," he said. "Things tighten up. Suddenly they mean a lot more. That's when it's nice to have veterans like Elvin, Bobby and Wes."

Down the stretch Sunday, Dandridge scored 13 of Washington's final 20 points and assisted on two other baskets.

By contrast, although both teams are shooting a below-par 44 percent, the Hawks dipped to 21 and 31 percent in the fourth quarters of two of their losses.

Forward John Drew, one of only two Atlanta players with five years' NBA experience, has been held to 55 points or an average of 13.7 per game — nine points below his 22.7-point average which led the Hawks in regular season play.

Atlanta also has health problems.

Center Wayne "Tree" Rollins and guard Eddie Johnson were suffering from knee injuries, and forward Dan Roundfield had a shoulder injury. Brown said. Rollins' knee problem is so serious that an operation may be needed, said the coach. The SuperSonics have the home city advantage but not the home court advantage.

The game was scheduled for the Seattle Center Coliseum because the Kingdome, the Sonics' regular home this season, is occupied by the Seattle Mariners for a baseball game with the Boston Red Sox.

Los Angeles Coach Jerry West said he plans no changes for the fifth game, though he recognizes two differences between the teams.

"Very obviously, the first one was their rebounding, and in the backcourt we just haven't contained those guys," West said.

Roanoke Girls Capture Meet

WILLIAMSTON — Roanoke High School's girls' track team nosed out Williamston for first place in a three-way meet held yesterday at Williamston.

Roanoke finished with 68 points, while Williamston was second with 60. Roanoke Rapids finished a distant third with 25.

Williamston won five individual events, while Roanoke took four and Roanoke Rapids won three. Roanoke won two of the three relays, and that helped make the difference.

FARMVILLE — Farmville Middle School and Chicod Junior High split a pair of games yesterday.

Farmville won the girls' softball game, 11-9. Theresa Corbett led the Farmville hitting with three, including a home run. Gail Lang also had a homer for the winners. M. Kittrell led Chicod with two hits.

In the boys' baseball game, Chicod gained a 10-2 win. Billy Roberson led Chicod with four, including two doubles, while Tyrone Johnson had two. Mike Anderson had two for Farmville.

Wellcome and A.G. Cox split a pair of games yesterday.

Wellcome took the boys' baseball game, 10-9. Greg Briley led the Wellcome hitting with two. Calvin Phillips, Leon Cox, Otis Payton and David Lawson each had two for Cox.

Cox won the girls' softball game, but details, including the score, were not available.

Dan Crittenden captured the men's singles division of the Greenville section of the North Carolina Heart Association Tennis Tournament this weekend.

Crittenden, top-seeded in the tournament, downed Don Ball, the second seed, 7-6, 6-4 to take the singles.

Crittenden recorded the only service break of the match in the fifth game of the second set after winning the first set, 5-2, in a tie-breaker.

In the women's singles, Anne Sayetta outlasted Mary Fonden, 6-0, 1-6, 6-0, in a see-saw battle. John Eatman defeated Richard Anderson, 6-3, 6-0 in the men's 35's, while the topspeeded team of Ron Hignite and Wes Hankins outlasted Crittenden and Jim Akers, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, in the men's doubles.

The local champions in each division will compete in the Sectionals of the Heart Association Tournament, to be held in Greenville on Saturday, May 26. Like this weekend's play, the sectionals will also be co-sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

Things Get Curiouser And Curiouser For NY

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Things around the New York Yankees' clubhouse are, as Alice in Wonderland would put it, "getting curiouser and curiouser."

Pitcher Rich Gossage and reserve catcher Cliff Johnson get into a locker room brawl, resulting in injury to Gossage's $2.75 million right thumb.

With the ace reliever on the sidelines for from six to eight weeks, there could go George Steinbrenner's hopes for a fourth straight pennant and third straight World Series title.

It was a stupid act — mature men acting like schoolboys. At today's wage levels, it was about as dignified as a Rockefeller squaring off against a Mellon on the corner of 51st St. and Park Ave.

Now a new chapter opens in the continuing drama: "Will Billy Martin Return as Yankee Manager in 1980 — or Won't He?"

Bobby Richardson, former Yankee infielder and a close friend of Martin's, ripped the waters when he told an audience last week that the Yankees had no intention of giving Billy his old job back — that the promise made him on the Yankee electric scoreboard was just a public relations gimmick to cool the heat of the fans.

Suddenly depositions surfaced concerning Martin's behavior at the opening of Bachelors 3 Restaurant in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on Feb. 28.

According to published reports at the time, Martin allegedly got involved in a fracas and suffered an injured hand. He showed up with a cast on his wrist.

Martin insisted the reports were unfounded. Other guests at the scene backed him up. A probe failed to uncover any untoward conduct.

Steinbrenner at the time said there would be an investigation. "We promised Billy and his agent that if he were found innocent in the Reno case (a previous altercation in which Billy was charged with punching a sportswriter) and got in no further trouble, the 1980 manager's job would be his. That still stands," the Yankee owner insisted.

Who asked for the depositions? Were the Yankees trying to build a case against Martin so they could be excused for not keeping their end of the 1980 bargain?

"That is ridiculous," said Steinbrenner. "It is not our style. We operate above board. If there are requests for depositions, they are not coming from the Yankees."

Meanwhile, those who attended the Bachelors 3 bash apparently have become concerned that Billy Martin's career has been jeopardized by the Fort Lauderdale report and are endeavoring to get Billy off the hook — if there is one.

CART Prexy Wants Answer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The six Championship Auto Racing Teams barred from the Indianapolis 500 want very much to enter the May 27 race, but CART President Pat Patrick says nothing will ever get him back into the U.S. Auto Club. "There's no way in hell I'd ever go back to USAC now, after the way they treated us," said Patrick, who has demanded an explanation for USAC's rejection of the six CART teams, totaling 19 entries.

Joe Cloutier, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway president, said was preparing a reply. "It's too late now" for CART to rejoin USAC, Patrick said in a telephone interview from his office in Jackson, Mich., Monday night. "We thought we had a deal last week. They made us a proposal which we thought was acceptable. When they left us, we thought everything was fine. Then I got a telegram from (USAC president Dick) King that our entry (for the 500) had been denied. It was hard to believe."

USAC, which claims it has sole authority to accept or reject entries for the 500, said in its telegram to the six CART owners that the entries were turned down because they were "not in good standing" with USAC.

Patrick sent his telegram to Cloutier Saturday night, and he set a 5 p.m. deadline Monday for Cloutier to reply or "...we will be compelled to resort to our available remedies."

He did not say what those remedies might be. Patrick said Monday he had not received the reply, but he said the strict deadline was "no big thing. I just wanted to put the time thing on it so it wouldn't drag on forever."

Cloutier said earlier on Monday he intended to reply. "I suppose I owe them the courtesy,"

Cloutier said, however, he would not release his reply to the news media before he knows that Patrick has received it. "It's a matter of courtesy. I think a person should receive it prior to the time the public receives it."

Patrick said the initial dispute with USAC and the Speedway was that the CART owners "just wanted more input into the management."

"Our CART teams have a budget of $20 million a year, and (with USAC) we have absolutely nothing to say about what happens...with purses, television contracts, the number of races, rule changes...USAC flatly refused to allow us to do that."

Smith Is Top Star

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State golfer Todd Smith, who won the individual title in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, has been named ACC spring athlete of the week.

Smith, a junior from Charlotte, fired a 72 in the opening round of the conference tournament last week. Then he strung together rounds of 70 in the final two days for a three-day total of 212.

That was four strokes better than second place. Smith's selection was by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

HELLO, BOSS.

Everybody here would like to say one thing to you today.
"We appreciate your business, Boss!"
You see, at Branch Banking and Trust we've known for some time how why the big ad now?

It's simple. At a time when personal

THE BOSS'S CAR.

We make you boss. You make it stick.
service has all but disappeared, we want you to know it's alive and well at BB&T.
That means when you want to look for ways to earn more on your savings — or get more out of your checking — we won't leave any stone unturned. When you want to talk about a loan, we'll listen. And we'll try to help you get it.
Because everybody works a little harder when they know they're working for the Boss.

In fact, to make sure we never forget who's important to us around here,

We're decorating our office so everyone knows who's boss. we're distributing Boss badges, bumper stickers and signs at all our offices.

Not because we expect signs and buttons to convince anyone of anything. When you've got the kind of people we have — people who are committed to their communities and their neighbors — that isn't necessary.

But because we want the whole world to know that personal service is a thriving business at BB&T — and you're at the heart of that business.

Because you're the Boss.

No Johnny Carson Imitators Should Be Called Up

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — I know this may be a little premature, but I can't help thinking about what will happen to NBC's "Tonight" show if Johnny Carson leaves, which he says he wants to do.

Now, the network says Carson probably won't leave as early as next October, as Johnny wants, but it seems pretty certain that he'll leave before his contract runs out in 1981. What will happen to "Tonight?"

NBC executives shrug and say they haven't thought that far ahead, but I think they're missing the gravity of this matter. Much is at stake here.

Think about the viewers who use "Tonight" instead of dangerous sleeping pills. No more "Tonight" might cause a worsening in our already frightening drug problem.

And sleepless nights make for grouchy, groggy mornings. Dangerous drivers, lowered productivity at work. Considering our feeble economic situation, lowered productivity could push us over the edge.

Then there's the matter of those good folks on "Tonight" that we've come to love as if members of our own families. Forget Carson. Anybody who's taking in four mill a year, you don't worry about. But what about poor Ed McMahon? What's he supposed to put on his resume?

"Professional sidekick for hire. Mid-50ish, 17 years experience. Has great intro bit, and doesn't mind being referred to as 'Camel Breath.'"

Doc may make it in Vegas or somewhere, but what about Tommy Newsome? I mean, Johnny's always telling us Tommy's about as exciting as a rotting kumquat. What will he do without "Tonight?"

And that army of guest hosts. What about them?

guest hosts permanent. But that probably wouldn't work either. Viewers would keep expecting Johnny to come back from vacation, like he does now — eventually.

I've got a suggestion I'm fairly sure NBC hasn't considered. There's a star, a relative unknown, right there at the network who would probably leap at the chance to host "Tonight."

His name is Sam. Sam the chimp. He plays Bear on NBC's "B.J. and the Bear" series. I just had lunch with Sam at the Universal Studios commissary, and I can tell you this guy's got personality.

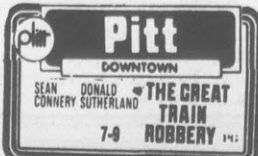

Sure, there might be a problem with the opening monologue, but think of the pluses. Sam's big weakness is banana splits. You think NBC doesn't wish Carson had asked for so little? And Sam doesn't have a contract in Vegas, so he's not likely to ask for Mondays and Tuesdays off.

As for the rest of the gig, Sam would breeze. He'd let singers sing, actors emote, comics joke. I'm sure he could be trained to hold up books and records for the obligatory plugs.

I know there's only one Carson, so why try to replace him with an imitator? With Sam, the show could go on, and nobody would compare him to Carson. And the show must go on. For the sake of us all.

Yul's Attorney Blames Ribs

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Yul Brynner, perennial star of "The King and I" was brought to his knees by a foul order of spareribs, says his lawyer.

"Worms. Parasitic worms and infected pork is what brings us here," attorney Harry Lipsig told a jury of three men and three women Monday in the actor's $3 million civil suit against Trador Vic's, a posh restaurant located in the Plaza Hotel in mid-Manhattan.

Brynner's gastronomic woe allegedly stemmed from trichinosis.

Lipsig, in his opening salvo, said Brynner, his wife, Jacqueline, and another show business couple — actress Joan Diener Marre and her director-husband Albert Marre — also partook of the dinner on Nov. 3, 1974.

Hundreds Of Teachers Call For Larger Pay Boost

TEACHERS LOBBY — From across North Carolina teachers came to Raleigh Monday to lobby their legislators for a pay increase. (AP Laserphoto)

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An estimated 700 public school teachers gathered Monday night to lobby for a larger pay increase this year and to confront Gov. Jim Hunt with their demands.

The teachers came from all over the state for the lobbying effort aimed at legislators, who held their regular nightly session Monday.

It is the legislators who will decide how much of a pay raise teachers will receive when they finish work on the state budget.

But the teachers told Hunt if he gets behind the 9 percent raise they want, they believe they'll get it.

Several members of the group met with legislators before heading for the governor's mansion at 8 p.m. The teachers, carrying candles and signs demanding a raise higher than the one the governor has proposed, marched around the mansion several times.

Hunt has recommended a pay raise of close to 5 percent, combined with fringe benefits that brings the total to 7 percent during the coming fiscal year.

The North Carolina Association of Educators, which represents about 47,000 school teachers, is seeking a salary increase of at least 7 percent and additional fringe benefits, bringing the total to 9 percent.

On the mansion grounds, trays of cookies, tubs of ice cream and pitchers of lemonade awaited the teachers under the trees. But hardly any ventured inside the gates, and eventually the refreshments were put away.

John Wilson, a member of the NCAE Board of Directors, said representatives of the organization would not enter the mansion grounds to talk to Hunt. When the governor returned from dinner with his children and their guest from the Friendship Force exchange program with England, he went outside the gates to talk with the teachers.

As they crowded around, Pete Toggerson, a Wake County teacher, told the governor that, "The teachers of this state are suffering. We've compromised from cost-of-living to 7 percent."

If we can have your support, 9 percent will become a reality." Hunt replied that President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines limit raises to 7 percent overall. He showed them a chart detailing how teacher raises are figured and said he would not go outside the guidelines.

"Teachers are not alone in side the guidelines," paying this price," Hunt said. He said 90 to 95 percent of the employees in North Carolina would be held to the 7 percent. Federal and local employees are limited by it, Hunt said, "and I don't know of a single private group, other than the Teamsters, that has gone out-people of this state are behind already." "This country must try to deal with inflation," Hunt said. "If we don't, we're doomed." Several teachers interrupted the governor with cries of "Down with Hunt" and "No second term" as he spoke. As the group broke up, some said they were dissatisfied with the governor's response. "I understand how they feel," Hunt told reporters after the teachers left. "I can make out that they're hurting and that teachers' salaries are not high enough. We have to do something about basic teachers' salaries."

Checkmate. The plastic check that tells everybody you're somebody.

When you want to buy something, it can seem like your check's not worth the paper it's printed on. You have to show a driver's license, credit cards, give phone numbers—sometimes even your thumbprint.

All this is not only inconvenient, it can be downright embarrassing. That's why NCNB is introducing Checkmate, the plastic check. It lets you use your NCNB Checking Account just as easily as you use a Visa Card.

The Checkmate card goes through an imprinter just like a credit card. You sign your name, get a receipt. And you're on your way. It's that simple.

You can use Checkmate wherever you see a Visa sign, at 2½ million places, all over town, all over the country and even all over the world. What's more, you can also "cash a check" at any NCNB Banking Machine across North Carolina.

So, if you have a Checking Account with us, ask us about adding Checkmate. If you don't have an NCNB Checking Account, come see us. Soon.

NCNB Checkmate. It's the kind of service that you'd expect from the bank that wants to be the best in the neighborhood.

NCNB CHECKMATE
It tells everybody you're somebody.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, APR. 25, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when you are able to easily gain the objectives which mean the most to you. Make sure you don't act too impulsively. Have all the facts and figures at your command.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You find that you are very busy with personal affairs, so schedule your time well in advance for best results. Think constructively.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take time to figure out how to handle private affairs intelligently and get good results. Be careful in handling money today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may find it difficult to know how to gain some important aims, so discuss them with good friends. Sidestep a troublemaker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't get into any arguments with associates now and be sure to follow through with promises made to others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Look into new outlets now that could prove most profitable for you. Steer clear of one who has an eye on your assets.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Safeguard your position with your mate by not taking any risks with others. Be sure to keep your side of an agreement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The ideas of associates are not the same as yours, so try to understand them better and improve relations. Cut down on extravagances.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Become more efficient at your job and be more cooperative with fellow workers. A new treatment can give your more vitality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be careful not to spend too much money for recreation. Show more devotion to your mate. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Showing particular devotion to family members is wise today. Try a new method in handling business and get better results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Talk to influential persons who can help you be more progressive and successful in your line of endeavor. Take health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may feel that by changing your methods you can solve a monetary matter, but use good judgment instead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be most anxious to gain knowledge, so be sure to send to the most modern schools and then success is possible in this promising chart. Give religious and ethical training so that your progeny will get along well with others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Advise Regulating Auto Insurance Compromise

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A divided House panel has recommended a compromise proposal for regulating automobile insurance rates, giving the insurance commissioner the power to block large rate increases.

The subcommittee of the House Insurance Committee, deadlocked for weeks over varying insurance bills, voted 5-4 to recommend a compromise proposal made by Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood.

"It's a compromise," Messer said. "It gives one side the opportunity to get a reasonable rate increase without a fight, and it gives the other side a way to stop an unreasonable rate increase."

The vote came after five weeks of hearings and debate by the subcommittee, which became the focus of disagreement between the insurance industry and allies of state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

The bill would change a 1977 law that allows insurance companies to implement higher insurance premiums over the objections of the commissioner. Until 1977 Ingram had blocked most rate hike requests, and the dispute between the commissioner and the industry touched off the most bitter and emotional debate of that General Assembly session.

In addition to auto liability and collision insurance, the compromise covers fire, theft and workman's compensation policies.

Under the 1977 law, rate hikes were limited to 6 percent, but that limitation expires this July.

Under the compromise bill, insurance companies could implement a higher rate — up to 6 percent — without first gaining the insurance commissioner's approval. But if they want to raise their rates higher than that, they must file the rate request with the commissioner and gain his approval.

The filings would continue to be made for all companies by the N.C. Rate Bureau, an industry organization. The bureau would be limited to one annual 6 percent increase without the prior approval.

In addition, the measure would allow companies to levy a surcharge only to policyholders with bad driving records. It would ban territorial rate setting, which now allows companies to charge higher rates to persons living in some cities, such as Charlotte.

It would keep the reinsurance facility, a pool of policies handled jointly by all companies through which many drivers' policies are handled. But Messer said under his compromise, drivers whose coverage is placed in the facility but who have a clean driving record could not be charged extra.

"What I proposed didn't make the commissioner happy or the industry happy, so I must be getting close to right," Messer said.

The vote came after House Insurance Committee chairman Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, added two new members to the panel last week. Messer said the panel had been deadlocked with three members siding with the industry, three with Ingram and the chairman, Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, not voting.

The two new members, Reps. Robert Falls, D-Cleveland, and James Clarke, D-Buncombe, voted with the Ingram allies to approve Messer's bill, and Miller voted against it.

In other legislative action:

Drinks
The House amended a bill changing mixed drink laws for social clubs Monday night to prevent the issuance of any liquor permit to a club that discriminates in its membership practices.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, then said the amendment had for all practical purposes killed his bill, and he voted to send it back to committee.

The original bill would allow most private clubs that are operated for a profit to offer either mixed drinks or brown bagging, but not both. It would allow country clubs and fraternal organizations to offer both, but in separate rooms.

The House voted 62-36 to add the amendment offered by Rep. Ted Kaplan, D-Forsyth, that would have prevented the state from extending any liquor permit to a club that discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion, creed or national origin. "Now he's killed the bill," said Campbell. "No country club is going to accept this."

UNC
Two bills dealing with the University of North Carolina's federal desegregation dispute were removed from legislative limbo and introduced Monday night.

Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, offered the bills as alternate plans for raising $20 million to be used for improvements on the university's five predominantly black campuses. The money would be raised through a combination of tuition increases, faculty reductions and other adjustments in the UNC operating budget.

Mrs. Mathis filed the bills two weeks ago, but had them blocked from formal introduction at the request of Senate leaders, who said the measures could hurt UNC in negotiating an end to its desegregation dispute with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green sent both bills to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

S&L's
After a heated debate the Senate postponed until Wednesday legislation that would allow state-chartered savings and loan associations to convert to stock ownership.

Telephone calls
The House approved a bill banning the use of automatic dialing machines that make telephone calls and deliver a recorded message. The bill is called the Junk Telephone Calls Act of 1979.

Resolutions
The House approved and sent the Senate a resolution calling on the federal government to reimburse the states for any programs ordered by Congress.

The House approved two of limitations for Nazi war criminals. The other would establish the first week in August as "family week."

The road hog on the highway is a much less sinister individual than his counterpart at the bridge table. The former brings about a temporary inconvenience that you can overcome with some skillful maneuvering, but the latter leaves us in a continuous bind which no amount of art can balance.

Partnership is an important attribute at the bridge table. To reach any degree of proficiency, you must develop the partnership instinct. There are some decisions you cannot make, and they should be left to partner, who might have more information at his disposal. As a rule of thumb: When you have already given a general picture of your hand and you come to a point in a competitive auction where you are not sure of the right course, pass it around to partner to decide.

Look at this hand. We do not fall over in admiration at South's decision to bid two clubs. Since there was a possible misfit, we prefer a one no trump response. West made a vulnerable overcall of two diamonds and North made the seemingly natural rebid in his other major. North-South reached three no trump and, against the correct opening lead of the queen of spades, declarer could make no more than eight tricks.

We question North's rebid. South contended that North should have passed. South would have doubled, and best defense might have netted 800 points for his side. North maintained that there was no way he could know that his partner wanted to double two diamonds, and he was afraid that if he passed, South would not be able to act over two diamonds. There is an obvious fallacy in North's argument. If South was so weak that he could not act over two diamonds, where were North-South going? We presented this hand to a number of experts. Some of them went so far as to double two diamonds with the North hand, on the theory that partner could take out if his hand was unsuitable. The others passed. We feel that a double is somewhat extreme, but it does highlight how the experts look for a penalty when it is not clear that their side has a game.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Honor Group Recognized

ECU News Bureau
Outstanding students majoring in history at East Carolina University are being recognized at a buffet being given by the Department of History today.

Certificates will be presented to several graduating seniors in recognition of their outstanding achievement, according to Dr. Betty Congleton, chairperson of the department's Senior Awards Committee.

Four students who completed the program in History Honors will be recognized. They are Pamela E. Humble of Greensboro; Joyce Elaine Dunn of Warsaw; Hal Courtney Sharpe of Lumberton, and Jesse Perry Hardison of Kinston.

Miss Dunn will also receive a certificate as the most outstanding woman student in the Department of History during the academic year 1978-79. She is a member of Gamma Beta Phi, Phi Alpha Theta and a recipient of the Richard Cecil Todd Scholarship.

Edward J. Tyer II, of Washington, N.C., will be awarded a certificate of merit as the most outstanding student in the department during 1978-79.

ROSES PLEDGE TO CUSTOMERS

Roses strives to have every advertised item in stock at the beginning of the sale period. If for some unavoidable reason the advertised item is not in stock, Roses will, at the customer's request, but at Roses option, either issue a Rain Check to purchase the item at the sale price when the merchandise is available or offer a comparable item at a reduced price. It is the honest intention of Roses to back up our policy of "Satisfaction Guaranteed" always.

Due to the nature of certain purchases of merchandise... we will be unable to issue RAINCHECKS since there will not be any merchandise available to reorder. These items will carry a No Raincheck notation.

SATISFACTION ALWAYS GUARANTEED
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES ON ANY ITEM. ALL SPECIALS WILL BE SOLD ON FIRST COME BASIS.
