

Consumer Prices Up Another 1 Percent

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices increased another 1 percent in March, led by sharply higher prices for food, housing, clothing and gasoline, the government said today. It said gasoline prices rose 3.8 percent, the largest monthly jump in nearly four years. Both housing and food costs were up by 1 percent. The March increase in the Consumer Price Index, which followed a 1.2 percent rise in February, means that the nation's 35 million Social Security recipients will receive a 9.9 percent increase in benefits to offset the impact of inflation in the past year, officials said.

The average benefit will be increased by about $25, to $283 a month. Checks reflecting increases will go out beginning in July. Although the increase in the Consumer Price Index was less than in February, it was still at a level that endangers the success of the Carter administration's anti-inflation program. Prices during the first three months of 1979 increased at an annual rate of 13 percent, the highest quarterly rise in 4½ years and far above the administration's target for this year of 7.4 percent. The increase for the 12-month period ending in March was 10.2 percent. One of President Carter's top inflation advisers, Barry Bosworth, told The Associated Press Wednesday that if inflation does not begin to cool soon, it is likely to get much worse as workers demand steadily higher wages to keep pace with steadily rising prices. At a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Bedford, N.H., Wednesday night, Carter also warned of further price increases. "Inflation is bad and it will be months at the very least before it gets substantially better," the president said. "Frankly, we will continue to see discouraging price figures coming out for some time to come."

In its report today, the Labor Department said workers' spendable earnings dropped another 0.1 percent in March because of rising inflation. That raised the total lost buying power of paychecks in the last year to an even 2 percent.

The department gave this breakdown on price increases for various categories in March, compared with the previous month, followed by the total increase over the 12 months from March 1978:

—Food and beverages 1 percent, down from 1.6 percent in February and up 12.5 percent for the 12-month period.

—Housing 1 percent, down from 1.3 in February and up 10.6 percent for the year.

—Apparel and upkeep 1.5 percent, up from 0.3 in February and up 5 percent for the year.

—Transportation 1.2 percent, up from 1.1 percent in February and an increase of 10.1 percent for the year.

—Medical care 0.6 percent, the same as in February and an increase of 9 percent for the year.

—Entertainment 0.9 percent, up from 0.4 percent in February and an increase of 6.1 percent for the year.

—Other goods and services 0.6 percent, down from 0.7 percent in February and an increase of 7.5 percent for the year.

The Labor Department said the Consumer Price Index in March stood at 209.1, meaning that goods and services priced at $100 in 1967 had increased to $209.10 last month.

The department said a 2.7 percent increase in meat prices accounted for most of the rise in overall food costs. Beef and poultry prices increased sharply for the sixth consecutive month.

There also were increases in the price of eggs, pork, fresh fruits and dairy products. However, prices for fresh vegetables declined sharply, reflecting an increase in supplies of lettuce and tomatoes because of improved weather conditions, the department said.

The department said the increase in housing costs resulted from a 1.6 percent increase in mortgage interest rates and an 0.9 percent rise in housing prices.

UNC Formally Asks For $40 Million From State

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina has formally asked the General Assembly to spend $40 million for renovations, equipment and new buildings on the state's five predominantly black campuses.

UNC Vice President Felix Joyner made the act official Wednesday afternoon, delivering a letter detailing the request to appropriations committee chairmen.

The spending package is essentially the same one that was part of UNC's offer to settle its decade-old desegregation dispute with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

That offer was rejected for another reason, a dispute over elimination of programs duplicated on largely white and black campuses, and UNC filed suit Tuesday against HEW in federal court.

UNC officials and Gov. Jim Hunt asked the General Assembly to spend the money, aimed at enhancing the traditionally black campuses and making them more attractive to white students, despite the failure to reach a settlement with HEW.

"A man would be a fool to say this is not connected with HEW, but we put this request forward on its merits," Joyner said.

The package would provide $20 million for renovation of existing buildings, $19 million for construction of new buildings, and $1 million for equipment. None would pay for new programs, but Joyner said it would take as long as five years for all the construction to be completed and programs begun.

The largest share of the money, $15 million, would go to N.C. A&T State University at Greensboro, the largest of the state's five historically black campuses. Seven million dollars would be for construction of an animal-sciences facility, to serve in conjunction with the veterinary school being built at predominantly white N.C. State University in Raleigh.

Besides A&T's share, the money would be distributed as follows: Elizabeth City State, $5.5 million; Fayetteville State, $4.65 million; N.C. Central in Durham, $7.05 million, and Winston-Salem State, $5.25 million. In addition there would be a reserve of $2.75 million for supplements to dormitory buildings.

UNC President William C. Friday, in a letter to legislative leaders, said the university Board of Governors authorized the money request during its long private session last Friday.

House Speaker Carl Stewart said earlier this week he would strongly support the appropriation, even without a settlement, and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green said Wednesday it was "quite likely" the appropriation would be included in the two-year state budget.

"I think it'll put us in much better position if the legislature does appropriate the money, so far as the litigation is concerned," Green said in an interview.

The spending will force legislators to scale down, but not necessarily eliminate, their plans for a state tax cut this year, he said.

Joyner said the $40 million could easily be split over the two years of the 1979-1981 state budget.

Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said providing the money would cause "significant revision" of the budget.

But he said he did not favor providing the money without an agreement to end the HEW-UNC dispute. "If it's just putting it up and pending it, no. But if it's going to bring about a solution to our problem, yes, I'm for it," Hardison said.

Here is a list of how the money would be spent:

—Elizabeth City State — $1.5 million for renovations; $3.9 million for construction of a continuing education center and addition to an early childhood education facility; and $150,000 in new equipment.

—Fayetteville State — $1.4 million in renovations; $3.1 million in construction of west campus development and property acquisition; and $150,000 in equipment.

—N.C. A & T State — $7.6 million for renovations; $7 million for construction of the animal science facility; and $300,000 for equipment.

—N.C. Central — $4.3 million for renovations; $2.5 million for construction of a criminal justice facility; and $250,000 for equipment.

—Winston-Salem State — $2.6 million for renovations; $2.5 million for construction and projects including a business education facility and property acquisition; and $150,000 for equipment.

No Shutdown Challenge

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said today it was unlikely North Carolina would challenge the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in court if the NRC orders a shutdown of Duke Power Co.'s three Oconee, S.C. nuclear power plants.

Hunt, at a news conference, said North Carolina would not challenge an NRC ruling unless the order appeared "arbitrary."

Hunt said he called NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie on Tuesday, but did not urge that the commission rule against closing the three Duke reactors.

Although they are located in South Carolina, Duke Power obtains much of the electricity it sells in North Carolina from the three Oconee reactors.

The NRC staff recommended to the full commission Wednesday that the three reactors be closed, along with others that have Babcock & Wilcox equipment similar to that used at the Three Mile Island nuclear station in Pennsylvania.

Hunt, a supporter of nuclear power's use in producing electricity, said he informed Hendrie of the effect closing Duke's reactors would have on North Carolina.

"I did not make any request about what I think they should do," he added however.

Closing those plants, Hunt said, would cause the price of electricity in North Carolina to rise 15 percent to 20 percent, and could force rotating brownouts if enough electricity could not be obtained elsewhere.

"I urged the commission to make an honest, professional appraisal of the subject, based on the facts," he said.

Hunt said he did not know whether consumers or stockholders of the power company should be forced to pay the added cost if there is a shutdown. He said the state Utilities Commission staff has confirmed Duke's estimates that the company would have to pay $1.2 million a day extra if there is a shutdown.

On another topic, Hunt said he recommended a $40 million appropriation for the five predominantly black campuses of the University of North Carolina because it is "the right thing to do."

"The question is what's right," he said. "If we haven't done what's right in the past, for goodness sake let's don't put it off any longer."

Hunt said he did not make the request earlier because UNC officials and the university Board of Governors did not request it until last week.

Lack Of Quorum For Joint Planning Body's Meeting Last Night

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Joint City-County Planning Commission failed to have a quorum present for Wednesday night's meeting and action on the scheduled agenda was postponed until a special meeting next week.

The city's planning director, Bobby Roberson, noted that the city members were present for the meeting but the lack of a quorum was due to the absence of part of the county membership.

While taking no action on the nine-item joint board agenda, commissioners present voted to schedule a special meeting for Wednesday, May 2 at 8 p.m. to consider the business items.

Roberson, saying that it was unfair for citizens with business before the board to have make a trip to the meeting and not have their items considered, suggested that the possibility of changing the rules of procedure concerning quorums be discussed.

The planning director noted that current rules of procedure require that at least four of the five county members be present in order for business on the joint board to be conducted. He proposed a change in procedure to require a simple majority of all members, regardless of whether they be city or county, in order to conduct business.

If the simple majority procedure is initiated, it was pointed out, business could be conducted on the joint agenda as long as six commissioners were present. Technically, if five city and only one county or extrajurisdictional member were present, the simple majority requirements would be met.

According to Roberson, the composition of the boards would not be involved in the change, only the requirements for a quorum. He said that the present situation is unfair to area citizens.

With no business on the joint agenda, the Greenville Planning Commissions considered three items involving subdivision plats.

City board members gave their approval to the revised final plat of Bryton Hill, located between River Bluff Drive and Rivergate Shopping Center.

Ron Sewell, city engineer, pointed out that the final plat of Bryton Hill was approved last month but the developers now wish to recombine two lots and move one other lot over. Last month, approval was given to a revision calling for the division of two lots in the subdivision into three small lots.

Sewell said that technically, the action does not involve a subdivision, but he added that he felt it should come before the board for consideration.

Paving Projects

Ronald R. Sewell, city engineer, announced that the city is in the process of sending out invitations to bid to paving contractors for improvements to nine city streets.

Sewell said that the streets which are scheduled for improvement are located in the Community Development impact area.

The streets include: Railroad from Howell to 14th; Evans from Fifth to Tenth; Ninth from Washington to Evans; Wyatt from Garland to Railroad; Henry from Howell to Wyatt; Garland from Howell to Wyatt; Davis from Third to Ward; Washington from Third to Fourth; and Fifth Street from Pitt to Green.

Bids are scheduled to be received by the Engineering Department on Tuesday, May 15, Sewell said. He noted that if three bids are received at the bid opening as required by the general statutes, the city could award the contract in June and the streets could possibly be paved by the end of September.

Industrial Sites Being Sought By Commission

The chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission reported that the board has "begun a very urgent search for potential industrial sites throughout the county."

Bruce Beasley Jr. said that the Development Commission currently has an inventory of over 30 sites but he added that, "Although we have several excellent sites, most of these are in the Greenville-Farmville area and are either very small or very large sites."

Beasley said that, "Right now we are in serious need of sites in the ten to 25 acre range in the Winterville-Ayden-Grifton area."

According to the chairman, the commission needs sites which are approximate to the major roads in the county, are close to existing utilities and are not too distant from rail service.

He said that the commission has been finalizing efforts to secure a $30,000 industrial park feasibility study for the Ayden-Grifton area and to undertake the study at least four prime sites in each community will be investigated.

The spokesman mentioned, "Our current catalogue of properties leaves us with no current existing sites close to Greenville with 100 to 150 acres. Neither do we have sites east of Greenville of any appropriate size."

Farmville, he said, "right now has the best range of sites in eastern North Carolina and the finest complement of supporting utilities, roads and rail."

Beasley said that, "Now that the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District is operational, the commission office needs sites close to the NC 11 Bypass. We are working with builders now on facilities which could be located to this area but a lack of sites at a firm price is hurting our opportunities."

The chairman added that the commission office has had over a dozen former industrial sites throughout the county withdrawn as candidates for use due to estate sales, agricultural usage, non-industry related use or for family reasons.

He said that Reese Hart, the commission's executive director, can be reached at 758-1909 if parties in the area would like additional information as to the needs of the commission for available lands.

Mother Is Raising Her Baby While A Prison Inmate

BRENDA GLASS, a federal prison inmate, poses with her baby son at a women's shelter in California. (AP Laserphoto)

BY NADINE JOSEPH
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Brenda Glass is a new mother, and her pride in her 2-week-old son Nathan is obvious as she hums to the tiny infant in her arms.

Brenda Glass also is a federal prisoner, serving an 18-to-20-year prison term for a 1975 armed robbery at a Washington, D.C., motel during which $11 was taken. Her companions in crime included her brother and several friends.

She is raising her baby while an inmate as part of an experimental program aimed at giving both the mother and child a chance to succeed on the outside.

"I may be overprotective, but he's so precious to me," said the 24-year-old Georgia-born inmate. "He's the only child I've had a chance to nurse and take care of." She gave up one daughter and left a second with the baby's grandmother because she was behind bars.

The program at the Federal Correctional Institution at Pleasanton, about 40 miles east of here, will allow Ms. Glass to spend four to six months with her baby at a women's shelter in nearby Hayward while learning child care skills.

Ms. Glass says motherhood will keep her "on a straight and narrow path" upon her release on parole this summer.

Psychologists say there is a new realization that both the jailed mother and her children need more contact with each other. The mother must work out fears and guilt at being responsible for the separation, and the children must learn to understand their mother's plight and develop a more positive attitude toward law enforcement.

At Pleasanton, women inmates and volunteers also run a privately funded children's center on the prison grounds, open Saturday and Sunday for mother-child visits.

Only low-risk prisoners are eligible for the Pregnant Inmate Program — one of a growing number of federal and state projects to allow inmate mothers to spend more time with their children and develop a stronger bond. Among the other programs:

—At Clinton Correctional Facility in New Jersey, a Camp Retreat Program gives low-security inmate mothers the opportunity to spend a few weekends camping with their children.

—A Florida correctional institution inmate, Terry Moore, was granted her request to raise her baby in the state women's prison by a circuit court judge last month. Miss Moore, 22, is serving a 7½-year term for robbery and arson. She will be allowed to raise her baby in prison for 18 months.

A few legislatures — Florida, Illinois, Montana, New York and Wyoming — have specifically provided that a mother's incarceration is a sufficient reason to take her child away.

But prison officials say there is a greater awareness of the mothering needs of 1,600 federal women inmates and thousands more in state prisons. According to statistics, more than 21,000 children in America have mothers in prison. Most of the women are young, uneducated single parents.

"There is more and more planning for the female inmate," said Karen Amy, administrative officer at the Federal Bureau of Prisons. "We believe the mother has an important role to play in interacting with her children."

Psychologists agree that the children, as much as their mothers, are victims of the woman's incarceration.

"The children feel that they've been abandoned and some become delinquents," said Ann Stanton, a lawyer-psychologist at the University of Minnesota, who has studied women inmates and their children.

"Many of the mothers develop unrealistic expectations while behind bars and don't anticipate negative reactions from their children," she added. "You cannot assume that because a woman has committed a crime, she does not have a strong need to care for her children," said Betty McKenzie, social work supervisor at Clinton Correctional Facility.

A children's center on prison grounds allows the inmate mother to express her love in more relaxed surroundings than the crowded visiting area, where visitors and inmates often aren't allowed to touch each other. The center at Pleasanton looks like a nursery school, with toys and bright decorations.

"The child who comes to visit has a lot of misconceptions about prison. Some of the fears are resolved here," said Harold Kahler, who heads the education program at Pleasanton.

At the Santa Clara County women's residential center in San Jose, about 25 women inmates and up to nine children are housed in an apartment complex where there are no locks, fences or guards. The women go to work, study or learn vocational skills. Their sentences range from 80 days to nine months, said Maria Black, a registered nurse who directs the program.

The mothers go to work or class, while the children are cared for in a child care center in the complex. Of 204 participants, 26 have been sent back to the Santa Clara county jail for infractions of the rules and eight women were rearrested. No one has tried to escape. "The woman inmate knows she wants to be a good mother, but needs support or specific skills," Ms. Black said.

Ass'n Honored Mrs. Spilman

Mrs. J. B. Spilman Sr. of Greenville was honored during the 40th anniversary celebration of the Mental Health Association in North Carolina Inc. last week. Cecil Merritt, state president, proclaimed the Greenville octogenarian, "North Carolina's Great Lady of Mental Health."

Mrs. Spilman told the group that 40 years ago she received a call asking that she put together an association for mental health. She replied, she said, that she could not leave Greenville at that time. Therefore, it was noted, the association began where Mrs. Spilman had to be — in Greenville.

Mrs. Spilman recalled that many clubs in that day asked that they not be contacted about mental illness concerns because it was too embarrassing a subject for polite society.

Mrs. Spilman announced during the celebration that her work with mental health is not just in the past with her job as first executive director of MHA in North Carolina, but is on-going. She is going to be, she said, honorary chairman of this year's Mental Health Association in Pitt County's membership drive.

Army Might Contract Out Civil Service Jobs

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — As many as three-fourths of the 3,800 civil-service jobs at Fort Bragg may be contracted to private firms if an Army review shows the move is feasible.

Base officials say the reviews, to be conducted over a five-year period, will study a wide range of services at the base. It is being done in response to a revised directive from the U.S. Office of Management and Budget.

An OMB spokesman said the primary purpose of the directive is to get government out of business competition with private firms.

Under the revised directive issued by OMB March 29, federal agencies must compare costs of CTF-type operations with the sealed bids from private businesses vying for the same services.

If a private firm bids 10 percent lower on a contract, the directive states they must be awarded the contracts. As a result, civil-service workers would lose their jobs. But the directive provides that they be given priority for employment by the private contractor and government.

Neil McNeill, director of Bragg's industrial operations, said at least 75 percent of the current work force will be involved in the review.

Fort Bragg officials said the directive from OMB is likely to create major disruptions and morale problems within the post's civil-service force.

"The feeling is that the government should not compete with business," said an officer of OMB's Office of Federal Procurement Policy. "It is a principal consistent with our democratic society and the economic principles of our system."

Ken Daley, president of Local 1770 of the American Federation of Government Employees at Fort Bragg, sharply criticized the move and a recent cutback of 648 civilian jobs at the base.

"I believe we are victims of an organized drive by contractors and big businessmen from across the country who have lobbied Congress successfully for the past two to three years to have the right laws passed," Daley said.

Two Injured In Collisions

Two persons were reported injured and an estimated $2,700 property damage caused in two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Police, who said Miss Paul and a passenger in her car received minor injuries in the mishap, estimated damage at $1,250 to the Paul car, $500 to the McGugan vehicle and $400 to the Bakerman vehicle.

A 1:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Reade Street and Dickinson Avenue involved vehicles driven by Ronald Clarence Mode of Route 6, Rocky Mount, and Judy Walston Greene of 208 Kent Dr.

Damage was estimated by investigators at $150 to the Mode truck, and $400 to the Greene car.

Working On Divorce Case Poses No Problem To This Lawyer-Nun

By ROY A. JONES II
Ablene Reporter-News
ABILENE, Texas (AP) — At first glance, she looks like any other female attorney handling a divorce case in 326th District Court, one of three district courts in this city of 100,000.

There's nothing rare about that any more.

But then you hear her inroduced to the prospective jurors: Sister Sean O'Reilly.

Sister? A Roman Catholic nun practicing law? And, on top of that, helping the petitioner obtain a divorce?

That's right, and the 31-year-old Dallas native — two generations removed from Ireland — says she has no problems at all handling the two roles. "I've had to feel my way through it, though," she said.

In 1966, when she asked church officials for permission to study law, there were no nuns practicing law in the United States. Now, there are still no more than a half dozen.

A member of the Sisters of St. Mary of Namur, Sister Sean lives in a "community of four sisters" in Fort Worth — not in a high-walled convent — and is employed by West Texas Legal Services, which provides free legal service for indigents. She draws a salary, but because of the vows of poverty she took as a nun, "everything goes back into a central fund and is redistributed according to the needs of the sisters," she explained.

There are no clues from her dress that Sister Sean is a nun. The traditional black and white habit has given way to modern dress this decade — a modest suit tailor-made by one of her sisters — and the wedding band Sister Sean wears further misleads the observer.

To most sisters, the ring symbolizes they are the bride of Christ, but Sister Sean said, "That's sorta' antiquated theology. I wear the ring to symbolize my commitment to Christ and His work." It has another special meaning to her, too. "It's more than 100 years old. It was my great-grandmother's wedding band in Ireland."

Sister Sean explained her interesting career while a jury was deliberating in a divorce case she came to Abilene to try.

Asked about the apparent conflict in a nun's obtaining a divorce for a client, Sister Sean said, "Canon law which governs the Church is opposed to remarriage rather than to divorce. I think it is a fine academic distinction which is a simplistic answer. The Vatican Council, under Pope John XXIII, in the early '60s brought in a lot of reforms.

"The Church has acknowledged the human sciences which raised the issue of a person's maturity and ability to make a personal commitment in marriage.

"Because of that, the Canon law governing marriage is in a period of transition and the Church is taking a more relaxed position than it has historically.

"I personally feel very strongly that I do not have the right to impose my religious beliefs or ethical standards on another person," she said. "I would never do anything in practicing law that went against my morality or ethics, but I think it is not my decision, in representing a person going through a divorce, to decide whether or not that's right or wrong. As attorney, my role is to be an advocate, and not judge or marriage counselor."

There are "no prohibitions in the Church that prevent Catholic attorneys from handling divorce cases," she said.

The second eldest of a "not very devout" family of 11 children, the former Mary O'Reilly "wanted to be a vet until I was 14." But, as a teen-ager she became "increasingly interested in government."

"I used to go to the courthouse and sit in the courtroom for hours," she said. In 1966, she joined the Sisters of St. Mary of Namur, an order of about 800 worldwide governed by a Mother Superior in Belgium.

She lived in a "mother house" of about 50 sisters while attending the University of Dallas, a Catholic liberal arts college. After graduation in 1972, she said she had no difficulty in convincing her superiors that she could be of greater service as an attorney than as a teacher.

She did parish work for a year and paralegal work for a year before entering the University of Houston Law School in 1974. She received her Doctor of Jurisprudence degree in May 1977 and hopes to obtain her certification as a "family law specialist" after she has practiced for the required five years.

"I see my work as a ministry in the sense that I choose to be with people who otherwise would not have the opportunity to have legal counsel," she said.

"In a way," she added, "it is easier for me to become involved in this work because I have the freedom from family responsibilities which most attorneys have."

Awards To Pilot Member

President Mrs. Irene Prewett presented awards to several Pilot Club members Monday evening during the group's meeting.

Including Mrs. Nancy Warren, Mrs. Gloria Butler, Mrs. Kay Whitehurst, Mrs. Trudy Blessing, Mrs. Sue Howell, Mrs. Frances Johnson, Mrs. Mattie Tucker, Mrs. Mary Cochran, Mrs. Elizabeth Dupree, Mrs. Elizabeth LeConte and Mrs. Margaret Nelson. They were recognized for outstanding services.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I hear a boy or girl say, "Wow! Would you get a load of that pleasing personality and check out that sense of humor." Worse, no one ever described a blind date as "really stacked and looks like a prom queen, but don't hang up — underneath it all she has a pleasing personality and a sense of humor."

I'm skeptical. I think surveys refer to what the participants want to believe is true. Face it. Guys don't go out with a pleasant personality and a sense of humor. They marry it though.

A magazine recently surveyed a group of teenage girls in which 80 percent of them said that a pleasing personality and a sense of humor were the prime consideration in accepting a first date.

Oh sure, and I'll bet the boys said the same thing. They always do.

Being touted for a blind date by reassuring the blindee "she has a wonderful personality" is like being named Miss Congeniality in the Pillsbury Bake-off. It's a kiss-off. Who cares?

I'm no dummy. When I was in school I saw boys date girls with waists bigger than their IQs. I sat next to a girl once who had the personality of a leftover, but she was definitely assembled at the factory. She took the History of Russia course only because the class was at 9:30 a.m. and she got the morning sun on the right of her body. (This worked out perfectly with The Wit and Humor of Ho Chi Minh, which she took because it had a window with a western exposure so that she could tan the left side of her body.)

She had a date when she had her teeth cleaned.

I pegged her as one of the few who would never diagram a sentence in her lifetime, but would somehow overcome this handicap.

Frankly, a pleasing personality and a good sense of humor bears too great a stigma to ever overcome. Mothers used to say that when they were trying to palm off a girl who breathed through her mouth and had a nice tooth.

Or when they were trying to set up a boy who raised earthworms and had a collection of Barbie dolls in his room.

In all the years I was in the dating marketplace, not once did

Food For Thought In This Recipe

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What a dumb, sexist answer you gave HATES SURPRISES, whose husband of 12 years still surprised her with one or more unexpected dinner guests. (He'd walk in and say, "Don't fuss, Honey. They'll eat whatever we eat." Meanwhile, poor wife was caught with only leftovers or barely enough to feed her own family.)

You said, "Stop being a GOOD scout and start being a GIRL Scout. Be prepared!"

Why should she be imposed upon with absolutely no notice? A thoughtful husband would never put his wife on the spot that way. And unless she's a total dummy or a doormat she wouldn't put up with it.

You should have told her to meet the inconsiderate boob at the door with, "I'm not prepared for company, so let's all eat out. It will take me only a few minutes to change my clothes."

After her husband picked up a few of those restaurant checks he would be cured of surprising his wife with unexpected company.

NO DOORMAT

DEAR NO: I got clobbered with my cutesy "Girl Scout" advice. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am steamed! Why should a wife have to feed extra guests without notice just because her husband decides to invite them at the last minute?

I can still remember my poor mother, scurrying around in the kitchen, frantically trying to get a company dinner together on a minute's notice because my father had picked up a couple of pals in the bar and brought them home for dinner.

You goofed, Abby. Instead of telling the wife to be prepared, you should have told her to tell her husband she wasn't running a fast-food restaurant, and to please take his friends somewhere else and feed them.

STEAMED IN MUNCIE, IND.

DEAR STEAMED: All the feedback on feeding unannounced guests agreed with you — except this one:

DEAR ABBY: You told HATES SURPRISES to be prepared, but you didn't tell her how to be prepared for unexpected dinner guests.

You should have suggested that she keep a supply of cheese and crackers on hand, as well as a few cans of gourmet goodies just in case. Also, a bottle of wine would turn an ordinary meal into a festive occasion. And a couple of candles always helps to give a table an elegant appearance.

With so many new, prepared foods available at the market today, there's no excuse for anyone to be caught unprepared for drop-in guests.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who has been criticized for signing my name "MRS. JOHN DOE." I was told that since there is no Mr. John Doe, there cannot be a Mrs. John Doe!

I am sure I read in your column that a widow could continue to use her deceased husband's name.

Friends insist that I am now Mrs. JANE Doe. Will you please come to my aid?

MRS. JOHN DOE

DEAR MRS. JOHN DOE: Even though John Doe is no longer living, he gave you his name to use as long as you live. So until (or unless) you remarry, you are Mrs. JOHN Doe.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Only Relief From The Courts

The long standing controversy between Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the University of North Carolina System has finally reached the stage where UNC can only seek relief in the courts.

The controversy has been marked by constantly shifting positions by HEW, which has precluded UNC negotiators from finding any firm ground for agreement with Sec. Califano's associates.

Specifically UNC has filed suit in U. S. Eastern District Court in Raleigh asking injunctions to prevent HEW from withholding federal grants from the University.

The suit alleges that HEW has acted unconstitutionally by attempting to enforce higher education efforts only in the south. It also alleges that first amendment rights are violated by HEW efforts to dictate the movement of programs between traditionally black and white campuses.

Even as the suit is filed, UNC and HEW officials say that negotiations will go on in an effort to settle the issue. The prospects are not bright at this point, and they won't be until HEW establishes some fair and firm grounds that can form the basis for a settlement.

It has been clear to us for some time that North Carolina has been treated unfairly by HEW in this matter. The ultimate victims are the people of our state regardless of race.

The legal importance of this case can't be overemphasized. The judiciary will be dealing with the question of a federal agency attempting to set unfair guidelines for a segment of our population. We think if the situation gets full judicial exposure the matter will be resolved in North Carolina's favor, and we will have a clearer legal concept of how federal agencies may handle the public's affairs.

An Envidable Record In Field Of Safety

The Procter & Gamble plant here observed its second attainment of one million safe hours worked, in ceremonies Tuesday.

The first million safe manhours was attained Jan. 9, 1977, a record time for a new P & G facility.

The safety record means that P & G now has over two million hours worked without a lost workday because of a disabling injury. It is an enviable record.

Aiming For Policy Status

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The sounds of battle have been muted of late across North Carolina as communities continue to resist the location of community treatment facilities for the handicapped or retarded in residential neighborhoods.

tually all were opposed". Those which were not, he adds, were located in rundown inner city areas, or out in the country.

Federal Loan

Now, the federal government has put up $5.2 million in loan money to build 42 new homes which would house five or six residents each, with a live-in couple providing additional services.

Previous homes were rented or leased. For the first time, homes could be bought — even designed and built to particular needs. So the approach now is to buy lots in residential areas and build. The facilities will be located in 26 counties, and 14 sites have already been picked while seven are in process.

But opposition continues. Sometimes, Fendley relates, lots disappear from the market overnight when it is learned that either the state or private groups dedicated to serving retarded citizens are interested.

Opposition typically centers around the contention that the residential facility will cause property values to plummet. The homes will cost about $80,000 and will be designed and operated so as to enhance, not damage, a community, Fendley argues.

BILL NOBLITT

Other arguments against the homes include fears that retarded citizens will mean vandalism, sexual perversions, rapes and such. "That is utterly ridiculous", Fendley snorts, and contends that when in place, the homes generally find a friendly reception when neighbors learn to live with the residents.

But to overcome the delays, redtape and bitter fights involving opposition, State Senators William Creech, D-

Wake, and Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, sponsored in the General Assembly a recommendation put forth by the legislative Mental Health Study Commission which is chaired by State Senator Kenneth Royall, D-Durham.

Policy

The policy act would declare it the state's conviction that handicapped persons should have the opportunity to live in a normal residential environment, and would allow community homes "in all residential and other districts of all political subdivisions..." and would banish requirements for conditional use permits or the need for exceptions to zoning laws. One restriction would be that no community living arrangement could be built nearer than a quarter of a mile from another.

Local governments are opposing the measure with both the N.C. League of Municipalities and the Association of County Commissioners arguing that it infringes on local zoning authority.

The Rhodesians And Us

WASHINGTON — Comparisons, they say, are odious. Very well. Let us contemplate the elections in Rhodesia, and let us be odious.

It now appears that somewhere between 60 and 65 percent of the eligible electorate made it to the polls. The voters were black men and women over the age of 18.

Though a number of Rhodesian blacks had voted in the old days of the "A" and "B" lists, this was the first time for virtually all of the 1.8 million who cast their ballots.

It may be useful to insert a word on literacy and education. A tiny percentage of the voters had experienced some college education. A much larger fraction had enjoyed elementary and some secondary schooling. The largest portion, embracing most of the older voters, had received only the limited instruction that missionaries could provide. Much of Rhodesia remains a primitive land not far removed from the stone age — no roads, no electric power, no modern plumbing or housing, no amenities of civilization. These are tribal people, speaking ancient tongues, still observing tribal customs.

Something should be said of the circumstances under which the voting took place. The terrorist forces of Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo in recent months have added new horrors to the meaning of "atrocities." The two Marxist leaders have done everything in their power to intimidate the native people through murder, arson, rape, and mutilation. It was Nkomo's glorious "patriots" who last year shot down an unarmed civilian plane and then massacred the few survivors.

Throughout last week's elections, terrorist raiders sought to keep voters from the polls. Villagers were threatened with bloody retaliation if they voted. In one incident, a truckload of voters barely survived a land mine explosion.

Despite all this, the natives organized themselves into five competing political parties. They campaigned vigorously for candidates seeking 72 seats in Parliament. They refused to be intimidated. And between 60 and 65 percent of them actually voted.

Let us compare. Oh, my brothers, let us compare! Last November Americans went to the polls to choose governors, Senators, state legislators, and members of the House of Representatives. The American electorate is well educated; our illiteracy rate is under one percent. Our people have excellent roads, fine transportation, splendid facilities for voting. We have generations of electoral experience. There were no guerrillas, no

Walter Latham of Bethel has been elected principal of the Stokes School, it was announced at the offices of the Pitt County Board of Education this morning.

Latham, who taught and directed athletics at Bethel for several years, succeeds G.P. Carr, who will go to Grimesland to succeed J.P. McBryde who resigned to do post-graduate work at the University of North Carolina.

With the selection of the Stokes post, all principalships in the county are filled. And, with the exception of Stokes and Grimesland, all county schools will have the same principals next year as they did this year.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, in an unprecedented statement in the House of Commons today, announced Britain will compel all men of ages 20 to 21 to bear arms in the British Army.

These men who were born during or immediately after the World War (W.W.I.), will be compelled Chamberlain said, to serve six months in regular army units and then will be given the choice of joining the territorial army or the army reserves.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Reagan To The Center

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Movement by front-running Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan toward the center has been confirmed by his effort — though unsuccessful — to hire the campaign management firm that defeated him for the 1976 nomination.

The spurned offer was made to the Washington-based firm of Bailey and Deardourff, which handled the finishing stages of Gerald Ford's victorious campaign against Reagan. John Deardourff (who broke into national politics as an aide to Nelson Rockefeller) and Doug Bailey are preeminent practitioners of moderate Republicanism.

Consequently, those conservatives who have heard about it were stunned by Reagan's move. They believe it confirms their worst fears that Reagan manager John Sears wants to run a non-ideological campaign not attuned to the issues.

Sears contacted the Bailey-Deardourff firm, and Reagan himself conferred with Bailey last month. But the firm informed Reagan, as it has other Republican presidential hopefuls, that it does not intend to take on a presidential campaign this time.

The reasons are twofold:

first, Bailey and Deardourff would rather concentrate on interesting state races — especially Illinois, Pennsylvania and California — in 1980; second, no current presidential prospect — Reagan included — particularly appeals to them.

A footnote: The 1984 campaign might be another matter. Bailey-Deardourff has close contacts with several Republican governors — James Thompson of Illinois, Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania, Lamar Alexander of Tennessee — who might be ready to go national that year.

Salt And Turkey

Turkey, the long-time U.S. ally that was denied U.S. military aid several years ago by Congress under the influence of the pro-Greek lobby, now holds a whiphand over the U.S. that is giving policy-makers the jitters and raising questions about the new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT II).

When aid was restored by President Carter, the Turks agreed to reopen highly important American bases, but only for a one-year test period. That year runs out in October.

The problem is that, as a result of the Iranian revolution, the loss of U.S. monitoring stations in Iran that could monitor Soviet missile tests has made the Turkish bases infinitely more important than they used to be. Although the Turkish stations could never fully take the place of the now-closed monitoring stations in Iran to verify Soviet performance on SALT, they are far more important today than ever before.

The problem is that the pro-Greek lobby is still furious at Turkey for that country's refusal to make concessions on Cyprus that Greece demands. That means Congress retains the threat to reduce the new U.S. aid program, a threat the Turks take

ARIVER VOYAGE

A traveler tells of a voyage in a river steamerboat on the Rhine from Cologne to Mainz. On both sides of the river, the shoreline unfolded varied beauty — ruins of old castles, sun-lit mountains, lush vineyards, rolling hills. It was an enchanting voyage. Yet some of the passengers sat reading newspapers or doing crossword puzzles without a glance at the loveliness sweeping by them.

All of us have seen many voyagers through life doing the same thing. Life is offering rich beauty on all sides, but they plod along the road like an old horse with blinders. Music, painting, sculpture, the theatre, literature — they have no interest in these things at all. The pleasure of sitting in the coolness of a great pine forest, walking on a wind-swept beach, tramping a winding country road — they consider these a waste of time.

The steamer of life is taking us all down a river up which we will never return. We should not miss the beautiful scenery on the trip.

Time-Use Lore Awaiting Us

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — John Robinson has done his work, having measured to tiny percentages how Americans spend the 1,440 minutes in their day.

But, having finished one phase of his project, he has scheduled the work day for others, such as certain market researchers, sociologists and economists who must determine the significance of his findings.

Chief of these findings is that women today spend much less time on family chores, and it cannot be explained by the fact that most women hold jobs outside the home or that they are single or childless.

In 1965, the professor found from interviews and an examination of diaries maintained by more than 1,500 people that employed women gave 26 hours a week to family care. In 1975, that fell to 21 hours.

Fulltime homemakers, it was found in 1965, spent more than 50 hours a week on family care, which includes among other chores, housework, child care and shopping. But in 1975, that had fallen to 44.

True, men have taken up some of the slack, but reluctantly. For married men the commitment edged up one hour, from nine in 1965 to 10 a decade later. But that still leaves a gap to be explained.

Nothing like it has happened in nearly half a century, said Robinson, who teaches at Cleveland State University. "Through the 1960s, there was no evidence of a decline. It was even on the increase," he said.

Robinson comments that "what people do with their time is of ultimate concern to every society." Whether time is used wisely or unwisely, he says, "bears heavily on the quality of societal life."

The statement is true, of course, whether one speaks of politics or religion or foreign travel. But Ben Franklin, of practical bent, pointed to an area of very great interest. Time is money, he said.

For those who seek to make money from what appears to be a fundamental change of attitude, the first question being asked is: How can I profitably fill up that time? What product, program, book will do it?

The challenge is ubiquitous. It involves all the media, the leisure products manufacturers, the fast food restaurateurs, travel promoters. It concerns greengrocers, dressmakers, husbands, children.

How can industry capitalize on it? What does it mean? How did it happen?

Robinson's main job was to record precisely how time was used: in meal cleanup, ironing, gardening, marketing, waiting in line, dressing the kids. Asked why it happened he offers only questions.

Better education? More efficiency? Relaxation of standards? Wash and wear clothing? Kitchen and other household appliances? Pre-cooked meals? Fast food restaurants? More help from the children?

What brought it about, however, may not be as important economically as what might be done about it.

In Robinson's findings, some included in "How Americans Use Time," published in 1977 by Praeger, is a mine of time lore waiting to be used. It will be used, you can bet on it. Time is money.

Salt Domes Off The N.C. Coast

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Eleven salt domes, similar to domes in the Gulf of Mexico that contain petroleum deposits, have been discovered off the North Carolina coast, the U.S. Geological Survey said Wednesday.

Dr. William Dillon, a USGS geologist, said further explorations this summer would be conducted to see if other salt domes exist. But Dillon said that because the domes are at great depths, drilling to determine whether they contain petroleum is not likely for a number of years.

The USGS said the domes are more than 6,000 feet below sea level. Those in the Gulf of Mexico generally are only several hundred feet deep, Dillon said. "There's a good chance the ones found off North Carolina will function in that capacity."

Dr. Orrin H. Pilkey, a marine geologist at Duke University, said the domes in the Gulf of Mexico were usually located less than 300 feet below sea level. He said the great depths of the North Carolina domes would make them expensive to drill.

Dillon said that even if drilling were to take place at the North Carolina domes, the technology needed to pipe the oil from the floor to the shore is not available.

He said that if the domes contain petroleum, it would be between 12 and 16 years before it could be brought to the surface.

The domes were discovered by USGS earlier this year in the subsurface of the ocean floor in an area between 70 and 140 miles offshore in a line from Cape Hatteras to Cape Fear.

The reason for the delay in discovery of the domes was the lack of money for in-depth seismic studies, Dillon said.

so seriously they will not promise that the American bases will stay open indefinitely. Without such assurance, the Carter administration is reluctant to spend the large sums needed to upgrade the bases.

Connally's Little Triumphs
While his foes insist he will soon self-destruct by peaking much too early in his run for the Republican presidential nomination, John B. Connally continues to pile up little triumphs. Two new examples:

He was given a highly unusual standing ovation after addressing the weekly breakfast meeting of an influential group of Republican House members.

A few days later, he dazzled an important group of American Jewish Committee (AJC) members in New York City, many of whom had been suspicious of his business ties with the Arab world.

On the negative side, Connally has shown the need for better preparation. His answers to some serious queries about the economy have struck the questioners as superficial.

Whither Haig?
Herman Kahn, the cerebral whiz who runs the Hudson Institute, has had "preliminary talks" with Gen. Alexander Haig over the possibility of Haig doing special long-range, foreign-military policy work for the institute after he retires as supreme commander of NATO — and from the Army — the end of June.

If Haig takes the job, it would be a sure signal that the four-star general who has run the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) for more than four years wants to move into elective politics.

Haig has offers from at least three major corporations for top-rated jobs, in addition to offers from some of the nation's think-tanks. These are government-financed research organizations that do long-range planning in strategic, technological and other specialized work for the government. The Hudson Institute, one of the foremost, wants Haig and has offered him a job. Haig's response: no decision on his future until after his June 30 retirement date.

With offices near New York City and in Paris, Tokyo and Montreal, Hudson would offer Haig an attractive place to hang his hat. But the general has not decided on his future course, despite the opening of a Haig-for-president office in Chicago, as we reported last week. If he decides to try for political office, particularly a spot on the 1980 Republican presidential ticket, he might well go with the Hudson Institute. If not, he is expected to accept one of the business jobs.

Cite Heavy Waste Spills

ATLANTA (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency disclosed Wednesday that more than 22 million gallons of oil and hazardous liquid wastes were spilled or illegally dumped into the waterways of the eight-state Southeastern region in the past five years.

EPA environmental engineer Jan Rogers said it is not known what quantities of any particular type of hazardous chemicals may have found their way into public drinking water. But he added, "I don't think the amount that may have gotten into public systems is very large."

"Usually, in a surface water spill there is enough warning to public officials so the city can treat the affected water and break down any toxic chemical compound," he said. "And in many cases the water system is shut down until the contaminated portion flows by."

According to the EPA's Environmental Emergencies Branch, the 22 million gallons came from 5,566 reported spills from 1974 through 1978. The spilled substances ranged from oil and bio-degradable compounds to toxic chemicals.

Rogers said the total amount is probably higher, because some accidents and incidents of illegal dumping go unreported.

The states involved in the EPA report were Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

terrorists, no threats, no warnings of reprisal or vengeance to keep our enlightened people from the polls.

And we voted 37.9 percent. That was all: 37.9 percent. It was the poorest turnout since 1942. More than 90 million eligible persons failed to cast ballots.

Some other comparisons also are odious. Our forefathers, North and South alike, trafficked in slavery. Our Constitution of 1787 treated the black man as only three-fifths of a human being. That same Constitution contained an unchangeable clause to guarantee the return of fugitive slaves. We kept the black man in political bondage not merely through the Civil War but for nearly 100 years thereafter. It was not until the Voting Rights Act of 1965 that American Negroes began to vote in significant numbers in Mr. Carter's old Confederacy.

Taken all in all, recent events in Rhodesia present an embarrassing, insistent, humiliating question: Who in the hell are we of America to complain about the Rhodesian elections? In the face of every conceivable handicap, the Rhodesians brought it off. You would think that Mr. Carter, Ambassador Andrew Young, and Assistant Secretary Richard Moose would be red-faced with shame.

If the President now persists in denying recognition to the new government of the new Zimbabwe, he will have forfeited every claim he has made in the name of justice, fair play, and straight dealing in the matter of Rhodesia. Leaders of the transitional government have met every condition imposed upon them: They have agreed to multi-party talks; they have conducted a full and free election. It would now be a matter of monstrous hypocrisy for Mr. Carter to insist that more is required.

What's the record in his own state of Georgia? Why, sir, Georgia voted only 28.8 percent of her people in 1974, 37.8 percent in 1976, and a miserable 18.7 percent — worst in the nation — in 1978. Tell us about democracy, Jimmy, and get off Rhodesia's back.

is the PQ's idea for making Quebec an independent nation while retaining free trade and other economic ties with the English-speaking provinces of Canada.

If the Liberal Party government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is re-elected in the national election May 22, the showdown hand may come sooner. For Trudeau, although himself a French Canadian and a native of Montreal, is staunchly anti-separatist.

This bustling, cosmopolitan city on the St. Lawrence is the focus of the French-English confrontation in Quebec. Although 80 percent of the province's 6 million people are French-speaking, well over a third of the 2.2 million Montrealers are English-speaking.

Much of the heat generated by their historic debate centers on the commonplace — Steinberg's supermarkets, for example.

If you're looking for dog food in a Steinberg's in Westmount, a mostly English-speaking Montreal district, you must look for the sign "Nourriture pour Animaux." The language law the PQ put on the books, Bill 101, specifies that display signs must be in the French language only.

"It's not fair," complained one English-speaking woman shopper. "I just had to help a poor man who couldn't find the coffee."

"They should learn French," said a French Canadian in the next aisle. "Quebec is French." "After independence," says one PQ leader, Paul Unterberg, "we won't need a Bill 101, any more than New York needs a law saying signs must be in English."

The PQ plans to ask in the referendum for a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association with the rest of Canada. A poll published last month indicated 50 percent of Quebecers would vote "yes," though only 19 percent favored secession at any cost.

Trudeau flatly rules out negotiation. And after some initial waffling, his opponent in the current national election campaign, Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark, also declared he would not negotiate the breakup of Canada.

The reasons many of the 6 million Quebecers want to get out of the 112-year-old Canadian confederation are deeply rooted and diverse. But they stem from the linguistic and cultural differences between the English and French Canadians and the longtime contention of French Canadians that the English-speakers who dominate Canadian business and industry and the federal government discriminate against them.

Order Damages For 'Search'

NEW YORK (AP) — A Queens high school girl has received $7,500 in damages because she was forced by school authorities to partially disrobe during a "degrading search" for marijuana.

No marijuana was found and U.S. District Judge John Dooling on Wednesday awarded the money for "mental and emotional pain" inflicted on the girl, identified only as "M.M."

He recommended she use the money for psychiatric counseling. Last year, a jury sided with two Bayside High School officials. However, Dooling set aside the verdict for lack of evidence. Both sides then agreed to let him fix damages.

Joining VEPCO RATE Protest

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Mayor John Bell says his city will fight what residents believe to be excessively high rates by Virginia Electric and Power Co.

Vepeco serves 22 counties in northeastern North Carolina. Its rates are higher than those of Carolina Power & Light Co. and Duke Power Co., the state's two largest power companies.

About 100 persons attended a public hearing in Elizabeth City on Wednesday. The public staff of the state Utilities Commission is looking into Vepeco's North Carolina operations.

Symphony Gets Japanese Grant

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Symphony Orchestra says a $125,000 gift from a Japanese firm is the first major international grant ever received by the orchestra.

An orchestra spokesman said Wednesday the grant from Technics, a division of the Japanese Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., will finance a summer tour in Europe.

Symphony manager Thomas Morris said, "Up until now, Japanese corporations have not been particularly well known for their performing arts philanthropy."

The grant covers half the cost of the tour, which begins Aug. 24. The rest will be raised through private benefits.

Lifesaver In The Assembly

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, the General Assembly's only practicing physician was pressed into medical service Wednesday and revived a heart-attack victim who was stricken in the Legislative Building. Fred M. "Fritz" Mills of Wadesboro, a lobbyist and former state senator, was listed in satisfactory condition late Wednesday after suffering what Gamble said was a heart attack in the snack bar of the Legislative Building.

Greensboro Expansion

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Lorillard, a New York-based tobacco-products manufacturer, announced a $25 million expansion of its Greensboro facility.

Dr. Alexander W. Spears, executive vice president of operations and research, said Wednesday the addition will add 156,000 square feet to the facility.

The construction will provide the cigarette manufacturer with a new 62,000-square-foot tobacco processing area, a 60,000-square-foot storage and reclamation processing area and a 34,000-square-foot unloading and storage facility, Spears said.

Spears said the expansion was necessitated by company growth over the past three years. He said the company accounts for 9.6 percent of all cigarettes sold in the United States. Lorillard has been the fastest growing U.S. cigarette manufacturer over the last two years, Spears said.

The new construction, to be completed by 1981, will add 30 percent to the production capacity of the plant.

Lorillard manufactures Kent, Kent III, Golden Lights, True, Newport, Old Gold and Max cigarettes. Lorillard is a division of Loews Theatres Inc.

Gamble, a surgeon, was summoned from his office when Mills became ill. He said efforts to revive him had already been started when he arrived. "I examined him and found no heart action," Gamble said. "I started more intensive resuscitation procedures, cardio pulmonary resuscitation. And I gave him an injection of lidocaine." Lidocaine is a drug often administered to heart attack victims, according to Gamble. He said he has kept a supply of it in the building since a similar incident occurred several years ago. At that time he didn't have a supply of the drug, and he decided afterwards it should be kept on hand.

Gamble said resuscitation efforts were continued to keep Mills alive until an ambulance arrived, and he could be put on oxygen. He said they continued to work with Mills to make sure he survived the ride to the hospital.

Gamble accompanied the former senator to Rex Hospital, and said Mills regained consciousness and his heart rate stabilized in the emergency room.

Late Wednesday, hospital officials said he was in satisfactory condition in a cardiac care unit.

Gamble declined Wednesday afternoon to take credit for saving Mills' life, saying it sounded too heroic.

"He was just lucky to be where there were people who knew what to do for him," he said.

Market Breadth A Measurement

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

Market breadth is a term used quite frequently by market commentators. Market breadth is simply a measurement of the number of stocks advancing versus the number declining. In most cases this refers to a single day's market activity. The advance-decline ratio is another phrase denoting the same thing.

The ratio of advances to declines has considerable predictive value. By setting up a continuous record of daily breadth, the cumulative differential between daily advances and declines gives a good indication of the strength and weakness of the overall market. Since the complete ratio of advances and declines encompasses a wider universe of stocks, what the advance-decline ratio indicates frequently is more important than what is reflected in the popular averages.

When the number of declines is greater than the number of issues advancing, then a market decline can be expected shortly. The longer this condition exists, the greater the chances for such a decline. Normally one or two days is long enough. When the number of issues advancing outnumbers those declining, the market averages may be close to an advance. The advance-decline ratio is thus a good tool for the short term.

When the advance-decline ratio is constructed to cover a longer period of time, this line is useful in predicting the intermediate term outlook. There are a number of rules used to analyze this. In essence, major tops and bottoms usually are preceded by action in the advance-decline line that forecasts those turning points. Sometimes the signals are very obvious. The advance-decline line frequently indicates the severity of a decline or the quality of an advance and thus answers the question of whether or not it will continue.

Participant In Testing Study

ECU News Bureau
The East Carolina University Testing Center is participating in a research project with the Psychological Corporation to develop norms on a new version of the Miller Analogies Test (MAT).

Candidates eligible to participate in this study include graduate students and seniors at ECU. Persons interested in participating in the study should visit or write John Childers, Director of Testing, in the Testing Center, 105 Speight Building, or telephone 757-6811. The dates of these special administrations are April 27 and May 2.

Participation in this project "might be an excellent opportunity" for seniors planning to attend graduate schools to have their graduate admissions test administered free, said Childers. The MAT scores are valid for five years.

His topic was "Ultrastructure of Rat Ovarian Interstitial Gland Cells during Pregnancy: Effects of Denervation."

Find Lead Level Is Sharply Up

BOSTON (AP) — Scientists analyzing the bones of Indians who died 1,600 years ago conclude that industrial pollution has increased the levels of lead in the bodies of modern Americans to 500 times normal.

Drs. Johnathon Ericson and Clair Patterson and Associate Prof. Hiroshi Shirahata reached their conclusion by comparing the ratio of lead to calcium in the bodies of ancient Peruvians with modern Americans. The work, conducted at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art and California Institute of Technology, was published in today's New England Journal of Medicine. The scientists conducted their study on ancient South Americans because they did not mine or smelt lead.

Proposals For UNCTV Team

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

More recreational opportunities for young people, increased resistance to tax on tobacco, a stronger stand against HEW's attack on the University of North Carolina system, more research and wider use of solar energy, encouragement for farmers, more emphasis on female activities and less attention to males, and freedom for churches — these are several of more than three dozen suggestions offered the UNC-TV team visiting Greenville Wednesday.

In a luncheon meeting at Ramada Inn, more than two dozen local people representing a cross section of the community met with personnel of the University of North Carolina Television network to discuss community needs, television programming to help meet these needs, and technical reception problems of the local UNC-TV station, WUNK, Channel 25.

Among the contingent appearing for various factions of the community at large were James Rees, communications specialist and member of the Drama Dept, ECU; Joe Laney, Executive Director of Greenville Housing Authority and Redevelopment Commission; D. D. Garrett, businessman and a leader in the Black community; Ms. Freddie Jacobson, civic leader; Glenn Cox, superintendent of Greenville City Schools; Francine Perry of the ECU News Bureau; Chet Emerson, executive director of the Boys' Club of Pitt County; Lt. Col Carl E. Tadlock, commanding officer of the ECU AFROTC; Nancy Harrington, coordinator of Volunteer Greenville; and Dr. John Richards, chairman of the Dept. of Special Education, School of Education.

Dr. George Bair, director of Educational Television, chaired the UNC-TV panel. Dr. Bair noted the purpose of the team's visit, that of getting first hand information and to increase viewer awareness in the area served by Channel 25.

Bob Royster, director of Programming and Operations, outlined general factors of categories of the network's programs. Royster explained that "1,000 hours of UNC-TV programming time is devoted to instructional TV to be used in the public school system. This is programmed in conjunction with the N.C. State Department of Public Instruction, and provides a statewide service to students ranging from kindergarten level through high school."

Other categories of public services delineated by Royster were the adult continuing education program which covers programming as varied as the science program "Nova" to a course in the German language and a study of Japan. Several of these programs entail the offering of credits under certain conditions. Also there's a number of how-to programs, without credit possibilities, which cover topics as diverse as gardening and guitar lessons. Royster mentioned one of the newer ventures, "Dancing Disco" seems to be getting popular response, especially from younger viewers.

When James Rees commented on the problems of "ghosts on Channel 25," UNC-TV director of engineering Alan MacIntyre pointed out that cable companies are obligated under FCC rules to provide quality transmission. MacIntyre further noted that the City of Greenville has franchising authority and can move to take action to see that quality transmission is provided viewers. Charlene Bassett, a research associate with UNC-TV, coordinated the input of suggestions from those attending. The listing of over three dozen items of needs was based on written suggestions submitted, and later Ms. Bassett asked that each local representative list a top priority of ten from this group. This list, Ms. Bassett said, would be tabulated and the result furnished to the Greenville representatives at an early date. Another session, a public hearing, was held at 2 p.m. by the UNC-TV team.

Union Talk Prohibited

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has issued an injunction prohibiting city employees who are affiliated with the Teamsters Union from discussing union activities during working hours.

Judge Hal Hammer Walker also said Teamsters Local 391 may not enter restricted city property, interfere with municipal operations, obstruct employees on their jobs or post union notices on restricted bulletin boards.

But Walker said employees may participate in or discuss union activities during approved work breaks and as they travel to and from work sites.

George Gardner, director of the state chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the decision restricts the right of freedom of speech and association of the union members.

Attorneys for the union said they will appeal Walker's preliminary injunction, which stems from the city's $150,000 damage suit against the union local. The injunction will remain in effect until the suit is heard at a date to be set later.

Meanwhile, Local 319 amended its federal lawsuit against the city, asking for an additional $450,000 in damages. The amendment brings the local's total request for damages to $750,000.

Local 391's suit accuses the city of threatening to fire city employees who would not withdraw from the union.

Idaho's Primary Is Heating Up

By STEPHEN C. SMITH
Associated Press Writer
BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Idaho's presidential primary is heating up early with people like General Magnifico of California, the Prophet Elijah of New York and Americas Liberator of Valentine, Neb. They're flocking into the race to oppose Jimmy Carter. The secretary of state's office has a file an inch thick with names and addresses of people wanting a shot at the White House by way of the primary, still more than a year away. "I kind of started this file as a joke," said Elections Administrative Secretary Penny Ysursa, paging through letters and photographs from potential candidates. "Since 1976, I would say we get at least 30 of these a year." She said many of those entering the primary, set for the third Tuesday of May 1980, also are listed in other primary states.

General Magnifico mailed a picture showing herself decked out in a black uniform with medals. She claims to be commanding general of the Marine Corps and deputy president of the United States, among other things.

Some list their campaign platforms. The National Statesman Party, for example, is promoted by John Sprague of Boise. He wants to put the country on the gold standard and mint $20 coins emblazoned with likenesses of Gens. Douglas MacArthur and George Patton.

He's promoting Anita Bryant and Evel Knievel as running mates and would ban liquor, tobacco farming, Sunday sports and almost all Sunday television, save for several hours of Christian programming. Sprague also wants to clean up the state of Nevada, which has been "aiding and abetting our Communist enemy by contributing to the delinquency of our nation."

The party's motto: "Return mom to the kitchen and the fireside, burn those credit cards now!"

Then there's the platform proposed by Ira R. Waggoner, an independent from Champaign, Ill. He would ban all university sports, lower gasoline prices to 25 cents per gallon, graze cattle on icebergs and occupy Mexico with an army.

Despite their efforts, there are only two ways candidates can get on the ballot. Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa may list them after consulting election officers of other states. Or a candidate may acquire signatures equaling 3 percent of the number of votes Idahoans cast in the last presidential election. That means candidates would need 10,322 signatures.

"We just send them the information about getting on the ballot and never hear from most of them again," Mrs. Ysursa said. That didn't work with Tom Alioto of San Francisco. He claimed Idaho's election laws unconstitutionally deny him his right to candidacy. But he's invited the state to settle out of court.

Three Oppose Windfall Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three Republican members of the 13-person North Carolina congressional delegation say they oppose President Carter's proposal for a windfall-profits tax on oil-company revenues that would come after deregulation of oil prices.

The Democratic members of the delegation generally favor the president's plan to remove controls and impose the windfall-profits tax. The Republicans say the oil companies should be allowed to pump extra profits into research and development.

Rep. Walter B. Jones of the 1st District said Carter should have pushed for gasoline rationing instead of opting for decontrol of prices.

"If he insists on going this route (decontrol), then I certainly feel compelled to support a windfall-profits tax," Jones said.

Rep. L.H. Fountain of the 2nd District said the revenues from a windfall-profits tax should be used to shore up the Social Security plan. Carter has proposed to use the proceeds of the tax to set up a fund for poor families, toward energy research and to pay for conservation measures.

Carter has executive power to remove federal controls on domestic crude-oil prices. Congress would have to approve any tax on oil-company profits. Rep. W.B. "Bill" Hefner pointed out that the tax proposal would have to make its way through the Senate Finance Committee, chaired by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

North Carolina's three Republicans — Reps. James G. Martin and James T. Broyhill and Sen. Jesse A. Helms — said they favor removing price controls but wanted the profits to go toward energy research.

All other members of the delegation are Democrats. All but Rep Lamar Gudger said they support the president's approach. Gudger said he is undecided.

Syrian Jets On Patrol In The Skies Over Beirut

By STEPHEN K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian air force jets patrolled the sky over Beirut today as a cease-fire arranged by the U.N. peacekeeping command silenced Israeli and Palestinian guns after four days of the heaviest fighting in southern Lebanon in more than a year.

U.N. and Palestinian spokesmen said.
Four Soviet-built MIG-21 fighters streaked over the city shortly after midday. Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization said the Syrians were flying "protective patrol missions, guarding against new enemy air strikes."
It was the second consecutive day Syrian jets appeared in the sky over the Lebanese capital. Israeli jets buzzed PLO headquarters in Beirut and refugee camps on the outskirts of the city on Wednesday, sparking the first fly-over of Syrian fighters.

Observers said the Syrian air patrols appeared to herald closer cooperation between Syria and the PLO, Israel's most militant foes.

A U.N. spokesman said the cease-fire went into effect Wednesday night and was holding today.
Israel agreed to stop air, naval and artillery attacks on guerrillas based in southern Lebanon in exchange for a cessation of cross-border Palestinian rocket attacks aimed at Jewish settlements in northern Israel, the U.N. spokesman said.
However, Palestinian sources said the Palestine Liberation Organization insisted it would continue operations by its members based inside Israel.
The Palestinian command said Israeli air, naval and artillery strikes killed 10 more Palestinians and Lebanese Wednesday, the fourth day of Israeli attacks against Palestinian positions.
The PLO said a total of 27 Palestinians were killed in the four days of Israeli attacks in retaliation for the deaths of four Israelis in a terrorist raid Sunday. Lebanese provincial authorities put the overall toll at about 60 Palestinians and Lebanese killed.

The PLO said most of Wednesday's casualties were in refugee camps around the southern Lebanese coastal city of Tyre, 50 miles south of Beirut, and in the guerrilla-controlled town of Nabatiyeh, 30 miles inland.
A PLO communique said Israeli jets pounded Tyre and refugee camps around it after Israeli gunboats shelled the city. Long-range artillery inside the Israeli frontier with Lebanon also hit Tyre and Nabatiyeh, the PLO said.
Local authorities said later Wednesday the Israeli gunboats returned and shelled the coastal city of Sidon, between Tyre and Beirut. No casualty figures were reported.
Thousands have fled north to escape the punishing four-day-old cycle of attacks and counterattacks, Israel's most intensive campaign in the area since it invaded southern Lebanon in March 1978 to avenge the killing of 35 Israelis in a guerrilla raid north of Tel Aviv.

An Associated Press correspondent and photographer caught in an artillery barrage at Tyre said Lebanese Christian militiamen, armed and trained by Israel, shelled the city from batteries in their newly proclaimed state of "Free Lebanon" on the Lebanese side of the border with Israel, some 15 miles away.
In Tel Aviv, the Israeli military command said Wednesday's attacks came after Palestinian border positions lobbed rockets into northern Israel, injuring three Israelis and damaging some crops and power lines.
The PLO said its forces fired the rockets in reprisal for earlier "naval, air and artillery attacks against our people."

July's Social Security Checks Will Be Larger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average elderly Social Security beneficiary will find $25 extra in his government check this July and some will get up to $50 more as a result of the automatic 9.9 percent benefit increase announced today.
The record increase, which will cost the Social Security trust funds $10.2 billion, came automatically as a result of the rise in the Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of this year over the same period in 1978.
An estimated 35 million retired or disabled workers and their families and survivors will get the increase in their July checks. Benefits also will go up 9.9 percent for about 5 million Supplemental Security Income recipients at a cost of $415 million.
Here is a list of the benefit increases:
The maximum monthly benefit for a worker retiring at age 65 in 1979 will jump from $503.40 to $553.30. The minimum benefit for a 65-year-old worker will go from $121.80 to $133.90.

For a retired worker alone, it will go from $258 to $283. For an elderly couple, both getting benefits, it will go from $439 to $482.
For a mother with two children on Social Security, benefits will jump from $614 to $674. For an aged widow, it will rise from $243 to $267. For a disabled worker with a wife and children, it will go from $581 to $639.

The average benefit for all disabled workers will jump from $291 to $320.
The SSI payments, which go to the elderly, blind and disabled who are needy, will climb from $189.40 to $208.20 for an individual, and from $284.10 to $312.30 for a couple. Most states supplement these payments.
Last year's cost of living increase was 6.5 percent. This is the fifth annual automatic cost-of-living increase and exceeds the previous high of 8 percent in 1975.

Family Is Terrorized

AHOSKIE, N.C. (AP) — The Hertford County sheriff says he suspects a grudge was the motive for three men who terrorized the family of a 32-year-old man and cut off the man's ear after beating him.
"There was no motive like robbery," Sheriff James E. Baker said Wednesday.
He said the onslaught by the hooded trio of men apparently was not racially motivated, since James Harris, like his attackers, is black.
Baker said Harris, 32, and his wife and two stepsons were tied up by the men.
Baker said members of the Harris family had been warned that a family member "was going to get it soon." He said the men bound Mrs. Harris and her sons in the kitchen of the home, then took Harris into the front room of the three-room house where he was beaten with a stick.
Baker said the attackers lopped off part of one of Harris's ears.
"We could hear him hollering but we didn't know what was going on," Mrs. Harris said. "I was too scared to scream. The one with the shotgun said nobody would get hurt unless we tried something," she said.
Harris was reported in satisfactory condition at Norfolk General Hospital after undergoing surgery to repair his ear.
Mrs. Harris said she and her sons were moving out of the house and would not return until her husband is released from the hospital.

C-of-C Group At Williamston

Members of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce attended the North Carolina Utilities Commission Public Hearing on VEPCO's Electric Rate Increase in Williamston today to protest the rate increases.
Spokesman for the chamber group, Jerry W. Powell, Chairman of the Board, said that the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce represents over 650 business firms in the Pitt County area and more than 10,000 employees of these businesses, all who are customers of VEPCO.
"Our Chamber of Commerce considers the economic growth and balanced growth or our area as top priority objectives. For this reason, I am presenting a statement today which opposes the exorbitant rates being charged by VEPCO and opposes any rate increases by this company," Powell said.
"For years, the people of Northeastern North Carolina have been forced to pay exorbitant electric rates to Virginia Electric Power Company," Powell said. "Regulatory agencies have continued to allow requested rate increases over the years despite the improper planning for the future by VEPCO," he added.
In other comments, Powell said that the GACC Board of Directors requests the North Carolina Utilities Commission to deny the rate increase proposed by VEPCO in hopes that this action will compel VEPCO to "get its operations in order to meet the energy demands of the future."

Prison Officer Cleared In Death

HALIFAX, N.C. (AP) — Superior Court Judge Elbert Peele has dismissed charges that a prison officer contributed to the death of a 24-year-old prisoner.
Peele negated charges of involuntary manslaughter against Frederick Rehner, who was the captain of the guard at Caledonia Prison Unit in 1977. Prisoner Glenn Earl Pitt was pronounced dead at a hospital on Christmas Eve 1977 after suffering an asthma attack at the prison.
Peele said the prosecution failed to prove negligence by Rehner contributed to Pitt's death.
Pitt, of Enfield, was jailed for parole violation. He previously had been convicted of attempting to bribe a policeman.

Political Fight Led To Notable Suit

By Dr. H. G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — On April 6, 1909, former U. S. Sen. Marion Butler was convicted of libeling a fellow North Carolinian, former Chief Justice Spencer B. Adams of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Citizenship Court.

He was fined $500 and half the court costs of several thousand dollars; his brother, Lester J. Butler, was fined $250 and the remainder of the costs. This rare conviction of a former senator resulted from the publication of charges in the Caucasian, a newspaper published by the Butler brothers in Raleigh.

The paper, repeating charges banded about in Oklahoma and Washington, accused Adams of accepting bribes as chief justice of the Indian court in Oklahoma.

Instead of protecting the rights of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, the article implied, Adams had joined a conspiracy in which real Indians were denied enrollment while others with doubtful claims were placed on the rolls to share in the income from sales of valuable native lands.

Specifically, Adams and his fellow judges were accused of taking kickbacks from the $750,000 they allowed three "adventurers" from Arkansas and Texas who promoted legislation establishing the court, then represented the court in dividing funds derived from land sales. One white man, "Alfalfa Bill," was said to have married an Indian and received $25,000 worth of land, while a full-blooded Indian daughter of Chief La Flene Green was denied enrollment "because she did swim the Mississippi in time."

The Butlers also charged that the $25,000 which Adams was said to have made from the sale of a coal mine was actually a payoff from those who had benefited from the distribution of $20 million in Indian lands.

The case, tried in Greensboro, attracted national interest because of the prominence of the litigants. Butler had been a founder of the Populist Party in North Carolina and in 1894 was elected to the U. S. Senate in a fusion of the Populists and Republicans.

Adams had been an ally of Butler's in the 1890s and was the Republican candidate for governor in 1900.

Now, less than 10 years later, the two men were locked in a bruising legal battle. Whoever lost would be branded a liar.

The Democrats, clearly in control of state government and dominating the jury, characteristically took the side of the underdog — Adams — and by their verdict gave a sharp slap at Butler, once a Democrat who had engineered the fusion rule of the late 1890s.

Spencer Bell Adams was born in Surry County on Oct. 15, 1860, the son of John A. and Sarah A. Adams. Orphaned at age 11, the boy struggled to get an education at a small school in Riceville, Va., at the Boonville Academy in Yadkin County, at Professor Near's School in Rockingham County, and at the Dick and Dillard Law School in Greensboro.

He settled in Yanceyville in 1882 and was soon elected clerk of Superior Court, serving for 14 years. In 1896, he was elected judge of Superior Court, resigning two years later to run unsuccessfully for Congress.

In 1900, he received 126,000 votes for governor, losing to Charles B. Aycock in a campaign featuring the race issue.

President Theodore Roosevelt appointed him to head the Choctaw and Chickasaw Citizenship Court in 1902, and three years later he returned to practice law in Greensboro.

Adams became chairman of the Republican Party in North Carolina, but in 1908 Butler sought unsuccessfully to displace him. It was this political struggle, according to Adams, that led Butler to turn the Caucasian upon him.

Adams' opinion of Butler was summed up this way: "I always tried to treat him courteously, but knowing his character, I always held him at arm's length."

Following his vindication by the jury in 1909, Adams continued to practice law for many years, then devoted himself to raising shorthorn cattle and Berkshire hogs on a large farm near Whitsett in Guilford County. He died in Charlotte on Jan. 12, 1943.

Carson Talks For A Rival

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Carson, host of the "Tonight" show, talks about NBC this Sunday on "60 Minutes," a rival network's news program, a spokeswoman for CBS says.

The interview, conducted by Mike Wallace, was filmed two weeks ago in Los Angeles. It was originally scheduled to be broadcast in September but was moved up after Carson announced his desire last week to leave the "Tonight" show before the end of the year.

The New York Daily News, in today's editions, quoted Wallace as saying Carson "talks about Fred Silverman (president of NBC), money, loyalty, TV and network affiliates."

Sunday's segment, approximately 10 minutes in length "is the timely part," Ellen Ehrlich, director of information services for CBS, said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Ted Turner, flamboyant owner of Atlanta's WTGC-TV as well as the city's pro baseball and basketball teams, says he'd like Carson to work for him.

"I've got a call into him right now," Turner said Wednesday. "I'd like to have him come over and do a few shows, whatever he'd like to do."

WTGC has been dubbed a "superstation" because of its huge cable television hookup across the country.

Halt Publishing Of Memoirs

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Newspaper serialization of Margaret Trudeau's memoirs has been halted while a federal judge decides whether their publication violates an Argentine law prohibiting public advocacy of drug abuse.

The newspaper La Razon started publishing excerpts of Mrs. Trudeau's life story, "Beyond Reason," on Monday. The paper complied with the order of Judge Jorge A Valera Araoz on Wednesday, but the paper called it "an affront to the right of citizens to be fully and truthfully informed."

The first excerpt told about Mrs. Trudeau's experimentation with a variety of drugs in Morocco during her "flower child" period before meeting and marrying Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower today on news that consumer prices rose by a sharp 1 percent in March, and on nervousness over the nuclear power outlook.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was off 4.15 at 863.31. Declines led advances by 4-3 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Big Board volume came to 14.22 million shares in the first two hours of trading, unchanged from Wednesday's non-tally.

Electric utilities were lower amidst worries over the future of nuclear power after the Three Mile Island accident in Pennsylvania.

General Public Utilities, which owns the damaged power plant, cut its quarterly dividend from 45 to 25 cents a share and announced lower quarterly earnings.

Duke Power dropped 3/4 to 17, while Southern fell 1/2 to 13 1/2. Con Edison, which suspended its dividend in 1974, fell 1/4 to 23 1/2.

The GPU dividend move had been widely anticipated, and "the stock market discounted" much of its effect, said Dean Witter Reynolds analyst Kenneth Hollister.

But Hollister noted that a possibility of a temporary shutdown of other nuclear power plants by government safety officials also had a depressing effect on utility issues.

Moonshiner Is Advocate Sentencing Law Clears Hurdle

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jerry Wilkerson used to fancy himself a pretty good moonshiner. Now a non-drinker, he's still touting the merits of home-brewed alcohol — to put in a car's gas tank.

He's starting out on a campaign to urge Americans to build solar stills, at about $22 each, which he says can fill their tanks with alcohol for as little as 10 cents a gallon.

"I got tired of cussing the government and cussing the oil companies and blaming other people for my problems," said Wilkerson, 43, of Levan, Utah.

He says he developed his do-it-yourself plan as "a way of getting the nation out of the control of the oil-producing nations."

He has been giving lectures on his ideas, and plans to begin a cross-country lecture tour later this month, traveling in a pickup truck that runs primarily on alcohol.

Minor engine conversions allow the truck to run on alcohol or gas. It has two gas tanks. Wilkerson switches to regular fuel to start the engine, because alcohol doesn't create enough vapor pressure.

Wilkerson doesn't sell the solar stills. He doesn't even own a patent on the model he carries around. He asks for voluntary contributions at his lectures, but says he doesn't get many.

Wilkerson, a retired Navy man and father of eight, said he developed his moonshining skills making corn liquor in the woods of North Carolina.

New Chairman For Fieldcrest

An announcement said Hunt, a member of the board since the company was founded in 1953, was elected chairman during a meeting this week in New York.

Hunt is also chairman of the board of Amoskaeg Co., the major stockholder of Fieldcrest. He succeeds Richard P. Chapman, who did not stand for re-election as chairman but will remain as a director.

Lawrence L. Mann of Eden was elected to succeed K.W. Fraser Jr. of Eden as treasurer. Fraser will continue to serve as a senior vice president.

Parades With Simulated Gold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. George V. Hansen is using a flatbed truck filled with 44,300 simulated gold bricks to express his opposition to the new Panama Canal treaties.

The truck arrived on Capitol Hill Wednesday to dramatize what the Idaho Republican says is the $4.1 billion cost to taxpayers of implementing the treaties.

Flaming Collison Is Fatal

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A city bus driver died and six passengers were injured today in the collision and explosion of the bus and a city truck, police said.

The High Point Transit Authority bus hit the truck broadside at a downtown intersection, witnesses said.

In the collision, the truck's side gas tank ruptured, and the bus burst into flames, police reported. The driver was apparently killed instantly. Her name was not immediately available.

Would Require Long Sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation has been introduced in Congress that would require a 10-year prison sentence for persons convicted of trafficking in over 100 pounds of marijuana.

Rep. Billy Lee Evans, D-Ga., introduced the bill Wednesday, saying marijuana trafficking has become a major problem and new research shows marijuana is more harmful than previously thought. Federal law now provides a maximum five-year penalty for persons convicted of trafficking in marijuana the first time and a maximum of 10 years for a second conviction.

His Dentist Is Downfall Planning...

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Police say Wayne L. Saunders kept one step ahead of the law — until he kept an appointment with his dentist.

That's when police arrested him on six burglary charges, to which he pleaded guilty in Superior Court on Tuesday, along with an accomplice.

New Castle County police investigator Tom Gordon gave this account:

Saunders recently used a stolen bank book to try to withdraw money from the account of Rhoda Bowlin at Wilmington Savings Fund Society, where Ms. Bowlin happens to work. Although Saunders' teller alerted security officers, Saunders fled and eluded capture.

Later, Saunders tried to withdraw money at another bank from the account of his dentist, Mark Oliver of the Veterans Administration Hospital in Elsmere. Another suspicious teller called guards but Saunders escaped. A teller got a license plate number, however.

Police tracked down Saunders' name and gave it to the dentist, who noticed he had an appointment with Saunders a few days later. When Saunders appeared for the appointment, he was arrested.

UMW Hunting Convention Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers union is looking for another place to hold a fall convention after pulling out of Florida for its failure to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

The union was scheduled to hold its convention in Miami during the week of Sept. 23. But, following the lead of the AFL-CIO, the UMW's international executive board voted to find another site.

Pirate Errors Help Campbell To 3-2 Victory Over East Carolina

BUIES CREEK — Campbell College used three unearned runs to snap East Carolina's four-game winning streak with a 3-2 victory in a rescheduled baseball game here yesterday. The Camels, who concluded the season at 17-20-1, could advance only one runner as far as second base, except in the second inning when two Pirate errors opened the doors. With one out, Phil Hunt walked, Dwaine Greene hit a ball that second baseman Bob Neff bobbed for an error and Dave Warrick stroked a double to left field to plate Hunt. Greene and Warrick scored on another error by Neff. The only other Camel to reach second was Doug Tanner, who was thrown out at third trying to advance two bases on a single by Hunt. Rick Ramey, now 4-5, went the distance on the mound for the Pirates, walking one and striking out three. For the Bucs, now 21-15, Rick Derechailo singled to lead off the third, moved to second on a ground out, to third on a single by Mike Sorrell, and scored on another ground out. In the Pirate fifth, Raymie Styons singled, Derechailo doubled and courtesy runner Jay Carraway scored on a ground out to pull the Pirates to within one, 3-2. East Carolina pushed seven other runners into scoring position, leaving the bases loaded in the sixth and ninth. With today off, the Pirates play host to Methodist Friday at 6 p.m. for a doubleheader and conclude the road season Saturday at Atlantic Christian at 7:30 p.m.

Odom Is Honored

Dave Odom, East Carolina's new basketball coach, was honored at a dinner given in his honor by WNCT-TV last night at the Holiday Inn. Supporters from Greenville, Odom's home town Goldsboro, and from Washington were on hand for the affair, which saw Odom presented with the key to the city by Goldsboro's mayor. The new coach spoke briefly on his goals for the Pirate basketball program, and cautioned fans not to expect overnight success.

ROSE HIGH WON

the Greenville-Pitt Baseball Tournament last week, but it was a costly championship as two of the Rampants' top seniors were lost for the season due to injuries incurred in the tournament.

In Thursday night's semifinal game against D. H. Conley, shortstop Ronnie Chapman was stealing third in the fifth inning when he slid too hard into the bag and broke his ankle. He underwent surgery the next morning for ligament damage and will be out of commission for about six months.

The next night, the Rampants faced Farmville Central in the championship game. They were ahead 4-2 in the bottom of the seventh when Jaguar Allen Moore came to bat with a runner on first.

He popped up to first baseman Will Sanderson, who came running down the first base line to field the ball. The runner and fielder collided about two-thirds of the way down the baseline and Moore was immediately called out for interference and ejected from the game.

A melee very nearly followed as both dugouts cleared, but order was restored and Sanderson, after spending a few minutes on the ground, returned to the game, which ended in a 4-3 Rose win, and was named to the all-tournament team.

It was later learned that Sanderson had ruptured his liver in the mishap and he underwent surgery Sunday.

Rose was tied for the Division I lead before the two injuries, but lost a league game to Northern Nash Tuesday, 9-5. Coach Ronald Vincent said the team was not mentally ready to play that game after the emotional peak it reached in the tournament.

Sanderson and Chapman, the number two and three batters all season, will be difficult to replace, not only for their skills, but for their experience and senior leadership.

That leadership can often mean the difference between victory and defeat and it will be up to the other team members to work that much harder to fill the gaps left by their departed teammates.

GOLFER TOM WATSON says that Jack Nicklaus is still the greatest player on the tour. The Golden Bear, he says, will break out of his current slump. "He's to great a player not to."

That may be true, but while Nicklaus struggles, Watson has taken his place at the top of the golfing heap. Since the start of the 1977 season, Watson has won 11 American tournaments, including the Masters, plus the 1977 British Open. He has brought in $943,048 in prize money, compared to $573,740 won by Nicklaus in the same period.

Already this season, Watson has garnered $229,966 on the tour, including Sunday's $54,000 top prize check in the Tournament of Champions. With more than half the season left, he is in good shape to break his record of $362,429 won in a single year.

If you don't think Watson is the man to beat on the tour right now, just look at his finish in the last four events he has entered: second, first, second and first.

CLEMSON QUARTERBACK STEVE Fuller, a Phi Beta Kappa who led his team to a Gator Bowl victory over Ohio State last season, is trying to decide between a professional football career and a law career.

Asked about it recently, Fuller said, "You either have to finesse 12 people who weren't smart enough to get out of jury duty, or 11 people who weren't smart enough to play offense."

Two Rose Winners As Rampettes Finish Third In Division Track

ELIZABETH CITY — Wilson Fike captured first place in the Division I girls track and field championships held yesterday at Northeastern High School.

Fike finished the meet with 169½ points, easily topping second place Northeastern with 114. Rose High School finished third with 83½, followed by Wilson Beddingfield with 63, Wilson Hunt with 39, Bertie with 19 and Rocky Mount with three.

Rose won two of the events, as Carol Lee won the triple jump and Laurie Smith took the 220 yard hurdles. Smith's time established a record for the event, being run for the first time this year. She finished in 32.5 seconds.

Hole-In-One Event Is Set

The Greenville Civitan Club's third annual Hole-In-One golf contest will be held Saturday through Tuesday at the J. H. Rose High School athletic field.

The contest, according to chairman Doug Caldwell, will give participants a chance to test their skill at driving a golf ball across a 90 to 125-yard range towards a regulation size cup. Prizes will be awarded to those who come closest to the hole, and a grand prize will be given to the first golfer who makes a hole-in-one.

Caldwell said that during the first two years of the contest, no holes-in-one were scored. He added that several players have come within inches, however.

"We're still looking for that perfect shot," he said. "Maybe this year, with the contest running for four days, someone will make it."

The competition will begin at noon on Saturday and Sunday and at 4 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday. It will continue each day until dark.

Entry fees are $1 for three balls and $2.50 for ten. Clubs and balls will be available at the site. Proceeds are used for club programs for retarded citizens.

Greene Central Downs Jaguars

Officials, Umps In Secret Meets

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball league officials are meeting with major league umpires at an undisclosed location to work out a settlement to the umpires' strike, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says.

Kuhn said that in addition to the meeting Wednesday, both sides met last Saturday and plan to continue doing so in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Speaking at an American Bar Association luncheon Wednesday, Kuhn said he never conceded the strike a "league matter" and denied that the commissioner's office has avoided an active role in the dispute.

"The commissioner is very much involved in the situation," he said. "You are sometimes much better off to work quietly in the back room."

The umpires refused to sign individual contracts before the opening of spring training with the National and American leagues in an effort to renegotiate salaries and expenses. Although the umpires signed a five-year collective bargaining agreement in 1976, each man must sign a contract annually.

Kuhn said baseball officials' refusal to meet the umpires' demands was a "question of principle," adding that if umpires tried to "work things out," some modification in the contracts might have been reached.

"I believe the umpires have proceeded in the wrong way," Kuhn said while not ruling out future modifications.

Kuhn conceded that substitute umpires drawn from amateur and minor leagues "are not as good as the regular umpires," but added that the men were "perfectly competent and they're honest."

"They're doing their best and that's the main thing," he said. Despite mounting criticism of the substitutes' performance in games, Kuhn said major league attendance through Sunday was up 7 percent from last season.

He added that only one of the 26 team owners has objected to the slow pace of the talks with striking umpires.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period until Friday morning, from Georgia to eastern New England. Rain is due from the Midwest and Great Lakes into western New England. Showers from the central Pacific coast to the central Rockies are indicated. Cold weather is forecast for the Plains with snow flurries in Minnesota and northern Iowa. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Low pressure moved across western North Carolina today, spreading occasional rain eastward across the state. Some thunderstorms were associated with the system and rain was heavy at times. Some flooding was reported around Wilmington and in some beach communities this morning and small craft advisories were in effect for coastal waters and the sounds. Scattered showers and thunderstorms will linger across the state tonight and Friday, but a cold front moving out of the Mississippi Valley should bring clearing skies Friday night and Saturday.

The forecast for today and Friday called for temperatures to range in the 70s, except for some 60s in the mountains.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 50s except for some 60s along the coast.

Shallow flooding and some beach erosion were expected at times of high tide in coastal areas today along with southeasterly winds of 10 to 20 miles per hour.

Fair and cooler weather will return over the weekend with temperatures ranging up in the 60s. Low readings will be mostly in the 40s.

Too Hard?

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — State Rep. Thomas Rhodes, R-New Hanover, has accused Gov. Jim Hunt's administration of pushing too hard for development of an oil refinery in Brunswick County.

Rhodes said the state is doing too much to help the 7.5 million-gallon-a-day refinery, which would be built across the Cape Fear River from Wilmington.

Rhodes said he plans to counter the state's actions by threatening to introduce a bill in the General Assembly that would require a local vote before the plant could be built. He said there is a similar law in Maryland.

Rhodes said in an interview that he believes the Hunt administration promised Crown Oil that it would have state help in obtaining permits for construction of the refinery.

Tape-Pirating Ring Is Broken

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A ring dealing in pirated tapes of such singing stars as Dolly Parton and Olivia Newton-John has been broken with the serving of search warrants in four states, says FBI agent John W. O'Rourke.

O'Rourke, who heads the Jacksonville FBI office, said pirated cassettes and eight-track tapes are estimated to be costing the recording industry and its stars $40 million a year.

Search warrants were executed Wednesday for businesses at Gastonia, N.C.; Easley, S.C.; and Bradenton and Lakeland, Fla.; and residences at Presque Isle, Maine; Mount Pleasant, S.C.; Lake Wiley, S.C.; Piedmont, S.C.; and Bradenton, Fla.

The FBI didn't reveal the street addresses or names of persons or firms at the locations. No arrests had been made, O'Rourke said, but ultimately the kingpin of the ring is expected to be caught.

He said agents working undercover for the past 18 months in "Operation Turntable" did uncover a number of other crimes for which 24 arrests were made.

These included a burglary ring at Daytona Beach and the theft at Savannah, Ga., of a truckload of motorcycles valued at $135,000 which was recovered in Jacksonville.

O'Rourke said pirated or bootlegged tapes marketed by the crime ring were copies of legitimate tapes.

He said the bootlegged tapes commonly are sold at flea markets and offbeat record shops at about half the regular price. "Often the quality isn't that noticeable to a young tape buff," O'Rourke said.

He said the pirated tapes featured numerous artists, among them Dolly Parton, Olivia Newton-John, The BeeGees, Tanya Tucker, Charlie McCoy, Kenny Rogers and Ray Price. Operation Turntable, financed by a $250,000 grant from the Justice Department and Assistant Attorney General Stalter Brothers, Crystal Gayle, an estimated $800,000 worth of merchandise, O'Rourke said.

Blind-Bidding On Movies Banned By Legislature

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Senate voted Wednesday to enact a House-passed measure prohibiting the practice of blind bidding on movies in North Carolina.

The bill as passed would prevent movie distributors from forcing exhibitors to bid on rights to show films without seeing them.

One of the bill's supporters, Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, said North Carolina joins at least 14 other states in prohibiting the practice.

Supporters of the bill, the state's movie exhibitors and theater owners, say the legislation is needed to prevent them from having to buy a product without seeing it.

However, representatives of the film industry said the legislation would drive up the price of movie making and movie tickets.

In other legislative action:

S&Ls
A bill that would allow North Carolina mutual savings and loan associations to convert to stock ownership won tentative approval in the Senate after a lengthy debate.

Supporters said that by allowing mutuals to issue stock, savings and loan associations would have more money to use in offering home mortgages.

But opponents argued that allowing the conversion will mean the depositors and borrowers of mutual savings and loans would give up their association and get nothing in return.

The bill was scheduled for final Senate action today, and opponents said there might be more parliamentary maneuvering aimed at defeating it.

Drinks
Final Senate action was also expected today on a bill that would allow mixed drinks to be sold at publicly owned convention centers, coliseums and auditoriums. The drinks could be sold only during conventions and banquets at facilities in areas where liquor by the drink has been approved.

Another mixed-drink bill was filed in the Senate. It would allow elections on liquor by the drink to be held in townships, which are now excluded from the local-option law passed last year.

Watchmakers
The efforts of the state sunset commission got a shot in the arm Wednesday when a Senate committee voted to let the state Board of Watchmaking and Repair die.

The board is one of more than 30 regulatory bodies designated to be automatically abolished this year under the 1977 sunset law unless the legislature moves to extend their lives.

Watch repairmen had lobbied heavily for a bill that would have extended the life of their board. The fate of that bill became the focal point in the debate over the entire sunset process.

The Senate State Government Committee voted Wednesday to kill the bill.

Bike Rodeo Here Friday

The Boys' Club of Pitt County, Inc., in conjunction with the Greenville Citizens Bikeway Committee, will host its annual Bicycle Safety Week Rodeo at 4 p.m. Friday, April 27 at the Boys' Club.

Seven skill tests will be used in the rodeo to provide youngsters an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to ride safely and to gain confidence.

These skill tests include — mounting and dismounting, circling and changing direction, straight line control, weaving and maneuvering to avoid obstacles, stopping ability, short radius turning, and slow speed riding.

The public is invited to attend and to participate. Boys and girls are urged to bring their bicycles in order to take part. The Boys' Club is located at 205 West Skinner Street, off Dickinson Avenue.

Church Appeal To Aid Victims

Bishop Robert M. Blackburn, Raleigh, is joining with other bishops of the church and the denomination's financial agency in issuing the call.

Singspiration Sunday Evening

WINTERVILLE — A community singspiration will be held at the Bethany Free Will Baptist Sunday evening beginning at 7:30.

The program will be presented by local singers and several groups from other churches have been invited.

The announcement was made by C. L. Patrick, pastor.

Counseling
A bill that would set up a certification board for marriage and family counselors won tentative approval in the House.

Rep. Dave DeRamus, D-Forsyth, sponsor of the bill, said the board would not be a licensing agency but would give counselors a means of being state certified if they wish to be, setting up a standard to aid consumers.

It would not prohibit uncertified counselors from continuing to practice in North Carolina.

New Generation
Gov. Jim Hunt's so-called new-generation bill drew fire from a Republican legislator, who labeled it socialistic.

The bill, approved by the House and now before the Senate, would establish a state commission to coordinate local health-care services for children.

At a news conference Wednesday, Sen. Anne Bagnal, R-Forsyth, denounced the bill, saying:

"I see this challenging parental rights, for me to raise my children the way I see fit," she said. "This is socialistic. Government that assumes the responsibility for our lives is socialistic."

Mrs. Bagnal also denounced a state study-commission's report she says is linked to the bill because it "calls for dealing with controversial things such as human sexuality."

And she filed a resolution that would "establish the family as the basic moral unit of our society," and set down a declaration of rights for children.

Appropriations
Efforts to trim $3 million from the $13 million in the proposed state budget for remedial education were turned back in the joint appropriations committees.

The money is earmarked to provide remedial instruction for high school students who have failed — or who are likely to fail — the state's new minimum competency test.

Products Liability
A bill calling for a study of laws dealing with products liability by a legislative research commission was filed in the House by two representatives who introduced separate, and somewhat opposing bills on products liability.

The study bill is not intended to stop action on those two bills, which are now being incorporated into one compromise bill. The bill would limit situations in which a consumer could sue for alleged injury or damage by defective products.

Nuclear Materials
A bill that would amend laws to allow the taxing of special nuclear materials at 50 percent of the rate applicable to other property was filed in the Senate.

Phone Calls
The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill prohibiting the use of automatic dialing and recorded message players for making unsolicited telephone calls.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — BLITHE CHILDHOOD CHUM MAY BECOME MOODY ADULT.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: Y equals A

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Pass Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♠.

Few will deny that it is poor business to deposit money in a bank which is about to fold. Apparently West is one of the exceptions, judging by his performance on this hand.

Because of his plethora of aces, South judged that his hand was a mite too strong for an opening bid of one no trump, so he opened one club and jumped to two no trump at his second turn. North's decision to raise to three no trump was eminently correct, though as the cards lie, a contract of four hearts would have been ironclad against any defense.

West made the textbook lead of the fourth highest of his longest and strongest suit. Declarer allowed East's king to win the first trick, and ducked again when East continued with the ten. On this trick West contributed the three.

The third round of the suit was taken by the ace, and declarer ran the hearts. With the spade suit established against him, declarer had to hope that the hand with the spades did not have the ace of clubs. He shifted his attention to clubs, and when East turned up with the ace, declarer came to ten tricks.

Had West not relied on the unreliable, the contract could have been defeated. When East returned the ten of spades at the second trick and declarer was able to duck, it became quite evident that while the spade suit could be established with another lead, it could never be cashed. So what earthly good would it do to store up useless spade tricks?

Since West would never be able to gain the lead to cash his spades, some other source of tricks had to be found if the contract was to be defeated. Obviously, the only suit that offered some hope was diamonds.

West should, therefore, overtake the ten of spades with the jack at trick two and shift to the ten of diamonds. That would have built two tricks for his partner in that suit, while East still had the ace of clubs as an entry.

'All In The Family' Now Likely To Be Renamed 'Archie's Place'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "All in the Family," the situation comedy that became a national institution, finally is no more. CBS intends to replace the series with a show likely to be called "Archie's Place," featuring the last remaining member of the original cast, Carroll O'Connor.

"All in the Family" was for nine years a breaker of new ground and, more important, CBS's most reliable hit. It survived imitation, the challenge of staying fresh and cast attrition with surprising ease. But the departure of co-star Jean Stapleton and the expiration of the right to use the "All in the Family" title have finally brought an end to the show, at least as viewers have known it since 1971.

At the end of the 1977-78 season, the face of the show changed drastically when Mike and Gloria — Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers — left the show to pursue other opportunities.

But "All in the Family" continued to rate strong with Jean Stapleton (Edith), O'Connor and newcomer Danielle Brisebois as a young niece left with the Bunkers by her down-and-out father.

Then Jean Stapleton, the venerable "dingbat" Edith, announced she planned to leave after this season, leaving only Archie. O'Connor is apparently willing to stay with Tandem Productions, which owns the show, and CBS, but the new series will not be "All in the Family."

One reason is the obvious one — there is no more family. But the title could not be used anyway, because it now belongs to Viacom International, the syndication outfit that owns rights to the show's reruns.

CBS, naturally, wants to keep the "All in the Family" allure in its schedule this fall. So, a deal between the network, O'Connor, O'Connor's production company and Tandem is in the works that would bring Archie back for another season. The business end of the deal is complete, leaving only some production details to be worked

Media Members Assailed By Wayne

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Actor John Wayne has lashed out at unnamed members of the media after being sent home from a hospital where he was treated for bronchitis.

Wayne, treated for one week at Hoag Memorial Hospital, left unnoticed Wednesday and later issued a statement through a spokeswoman, Marcy Mobley, accusing reporters of trying to bribe hospital workers to talk about the 71-year-old actor's condition.

"I haven't lied to the press about anything, but they will not take our reports as truthful," Wayne's statement said.

"They (reporters) sneak around trying to bribe people to say something that won't coincide with the official report. I don't know why it is necessary, but I guess that is modern-day 'news methods.'"

"It used to be considered yellow journalism. Anyway, have a happy day," the statement said. Wayne could not be reached to elaborate on the bribery claim.

Wayne was hospitalized a month at UCLA Medical Center this winter after undergoing surgery to remove his cancerous stomach. Wayne's only public appearance since then was at the Academy Awards ceremony April 9.

Demand Pay Hike Support

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Officials of two organizations of state employees have warned Gov. Jim Hunt and members of the General Assembly that they will be held accountable unless they back pay raises for the workers.

Leaders of the N.C. State

Employees Association and the State Government Employees Association issued strongly worded statements Wednesday to back their requests for pay raises of 7 percent.

"We would serve notice to the governor that the associations would become more politically active," said Emmett W. Burden, executive director of NCSSEA.

"If he's not responsive, state employees will remember him at the ballot box," J. Arch Laney, executive director of the NCSGEA, endorsed Burden's statement and said state employees are frustrated and angry over the pay issue.

The two groups are seeking raises of 7 percent plus improvements in fringe benefits for employees and school teachers. The administration is backing a package that includes an additional 7 percent in pay and fringe benefits combined.

Burden and Laney said they want to meet with Hunt to discuss a letter from Barry Bosworth, director of the U.S. Council on Wage and Price Stability, that appeared to support the claim that a pay raise of 7 percent plus additional fringe benefits would not violate the federal wage guideline.

They said Bosworth sent the letter to officials in Maryland and that parts of it were published in a national newsletter to government employees.

"We're going to talk to the governor," Burden said. "We believe this is the breakthrough we've been waiting for."

Burden said there is enough money available for a full 7 percent pay raise in addition to improved fringe benefits. He said merit pay raises should not be included in the 7 percent.
