Britain's Conservatives See A Sweeping Victory

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Conservative Party leader Margaret Thatcher, champion of free enterprise and curbs on union power, swept to power today in Britain's general election, making her Europe's first woman prime minister.

Prime Minister James Callaghan's office announced he was going to Buckingham Palace at 2:30 p.m. (9:30 a.m. EDT) today to tender his resignation to Q Palace at 2:30 p.m. (9:30 a.m. EDT) today to tender his resignation to Queen Elizabeth II. The queen would then ask the 53-year-old Mrs. Thatcher to form a new government.

By early afternoon, Mrs. Thatcher's Tories held a commanding lead over Callaghan's Labor Party as the vote count continued from Thursday's election.

Mrs. Thatcher refrained from making an immediate claim of victory, saying on arrival at her jubilant headquarters, "We're coming up for the finishing straight, but we're not home yet."

But then, relaxing her traditional caution, she added, "I am aware of the very great responsibility ... it is very exciting, but somehow one has to be very calm about it. I feel it will be all right."

With 534 of the 635 seats in the House of Commons declared, the Conservatives, the traditional party of big business, had won 271 seats, needing only 47 more — which appeared certain — for an overall majority.

Computer projections said the Tories could expect an overall majority of 25 to 39.

Though Mrs. Thatcher was withholding a victory statement until the 318 seats for majority were declared, the pro-Tory London evening papers pushed her into the premiership. "The First Lady," shouted an Evening Standard headline. "I've done it," blared the Evening News.

The standing of the parties at 12:20 p.m. (7:20 a.m. EDT) was Conservatives 271, Labor 250, the small Liberal Party 8, the Scottish Nationalists 2, Plaid Cymru (Welsh nationalists) 2, and one for the nonvoting speaker of the House.

The results showed the country deeply divided, with the prosperous south of England solid for Mrs. Thatcher's Tories, while Scotland and the north of England, where the shipbuilding, steel, engineering and coal industries rely on state support, consolidated behind Labor.

Union reaction to Mrs. Thatcher's triumph came swiftly. David Basnett, head of the General and Municipal Workers Union, called it "a sad day for Britain," while railwaymen's union leader Sidney Weighell warned: "We are going to have a confrontation situation generated if they do what they say they are going to do."

Joe Gormley, leader of the National Union of Mineworkers whose strike brought down the previous Tory government in 1974, said: "Just when we have got things going right for Britain, we are changing horses in midstream."

Mrs. Thatcher got little or no sleep overnight but appeared cool and crisp on her London doorstep at 9 a.m. to wave triumphantly to supporters. They offered her three "hip-hip-hooray" cheers. She wore a blue two-piece suit and pale blue blouse.

Dubbed the Iron Maiden by the Soviets for her tough stance on defense, Mrs. Thatcher has promised to curb the power of Britain's labor unions, cut income taxes and unshackle private enterprise.

And after five years of Labor's moderate socialist rule, the voters turned to the Conservatives for the answers to strike-plagued Britain's many problems.

The turnout was a heavy 75.9 percent of the 41 million voters on a wintry, snowy day.

Nation's Unemployment In April Saw Increase

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate rose slightly in April to 5.8 percent, despite the largest drop in total employment in more than a decade, the government said today.

The jobless rate had been 5.7 percent in March, according to the Labor Department report. In fact, it has ranged from 5.7 percent to 5.9 percent for the past nine months.

The number of persons without jobs rose only slightly in April — from 5.87 million to 5.93 million.

But Labor Department statisticians were at a loss to explain apparently conflicting data on total employment.

As measured by a survey of households, the number of persons employed declined by 670,000 to 96.2 million persons. It was the largest drop since January 1968, when the number of persons with jobs declined by 700,000, said John Bregger, a department economist.

But according to figures collected from industrial payroll records, "non-farm payroll employment was about unchanged over the month at 88.3 million," the report said.

"It's unusual that there is this much discrepancy," Bregger said. "We are inclined not to fully trust the household survey this month. We'll know for the sure when May figures are available."

The report by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said employment had been rising by an average of about 300,000 jobs per month for the last eight months.

"The reasons for this (April) slowdown in employment growth are not entirely clear, but may relate in part to adverse weather conditions, school and religious holiday effects and the trucking strike-lockout," the report said.

The Teamsters struck the trucking industry on April 1 when negotiations for a new, three-year contract broke down. Most truckers returned to work after tentative agreement was reached April 10.

PARALYZED

Lester Dodds, son of Mrs. Thelma Dodds of the Pitt Co. Sheriff Department, was paralyzed from neck down in a car-motorcycle accident Apr. 23 in San Angelo, Tex.

He is in the hospital in San Antonio, Tex., 250 miles from his home. His doctors tell the family they cannot advise as to whether his condition will improve, but that he will be in the hospital for at least a month more and in a rehabilitation center for probably as long as two years. At present he must be administered oxygen to live.

Dodds grew up in Greenville and has two sisters here, Lynn Dodds White and Linda Dodds. He is in financial straits because the driver of the car which hit him is said to have no insurance and he and his wife have not recovered financially from surgery she had to have last year. She has had to leave her job to be with him in San Antonio at the present time, his mother said.

A trust account has been set up for Lester and any and all contributions will be appreciated, his family said. These should be mailed or brought to Mrs. Dodds, Box 385, Greenville. Checks may be made out to "The Lester Dodds Special Account."

Federal Court Refuses To Block Vet School Site

By GEORGE W. WILBUR
Associated Press Writer
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court today refused 2-to-1 to block establishment of a veterinary school on a predominantly white North Carolina college campus.

But the dissenting judge vigorously argued that this would do nothing to help redress the racial imbalance in the state's system of higher education which is currently under strong attack by federal authorities.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals also dismissed an appeal that sought to declare unconstitutional the North Carolina legislative act that authorized planning and development funds for the veterinary school.

Chiefly at issue in the case was a motion by a group of black plaintiffs in December 1974 to block establishment of the veterinary school at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

U. S. District Court Judge Eugene A. Gordon of Winston-Salem denied the motion in June 1977, some 2½ years later.

He said ample studies had been made to indicate there would be little racial impact whether the veterinary school was built at NCSU or on the campus of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University, a predominantly black school.

On the other hand, Gordon said, it had been demonstrated that NCSU had better resources to support a new school and that any further delay in its establishment would both add to its cost and penalize all North Carolinians, black and white. The appeals court majority said it agreed with Gordon's logic and found no fault with his conclusion.

But Judge Harrison L. Winter said the harm in going ahead with the school at NCSU would be much greater to the black plaintiffs than a delay would be to the defendants.

"If in fact North Carolina has not achieved a unitary system of higher education, it is manifest that the establishment of a new school may be an effective tool to assist in accomplishing that objective," he said.

Establishing the school at NC A&T, he added, "would help to redress the racial imbalance in the student body at that institution and, more importantly, would be of substantial help in overcoming the reputation of NCA&T as an allblack institution."

Meet Monday

Pitt County Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. in the Law Library at the Pitt County Court House.

Included on the agenda is a request from the Greenville Utilities Commission for a 100-foot right of way across the airport property for construction of a power transmission line, consideration of Cherry Oaks Subdivision Section V, a report on Development Commission activities, and a report on the building program at Pitt Technical Institute.

Economist Says State April Tax Collections Apparently Rebounded

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A staff economist told legislators today that North Carolina's tax collections apparently rebounded in April after a dramatic decline in growth during March.

David Crofts, legislative fiscal analyst, told the joint economy committees that preliminary projections of tax data show stronger April growth in income tax collections. But Crofts said sales tax revenues were depressed even further, and could indicate a trend toward reduced consumer spending.

"In April, personal income tax collections bounced back from their March performance," he said. "However, sales tax grew only 4 to 4½ percent, much below the inflation level."

Crofts said economists still expect a recession later this year, and believe it will be short and mild.

Crofts said state budget-makers can expect extra tax revenue amounting to as much as $21.6 million in fiscal year 1979-1980, and as much as $45.3 million in 1980-1981, above the amount included in the Hunt administration's proposed budget.

House and Senate appropriations leaders have already planned to add about that much to the budget package now before a subcommittee.

Crofts said his April analysis is based on raw daily tax collection figures. The Department of Revenue will release a more complete report on April collections later this month.

"The thing that worries me is two months of poor sales tax," Crofts said in an interview. "What does that tell us? What is the consumer doing? I can't say. I am concerned."

The tax collection growth is in comparison to growth during the same period of last year.

In March of this year, general state tax collections recorded almost no growth after recording a 15 percent growth during the first eight months of the fiscal year. Sales tax increases in March amounted to 5½ percent.

That one-month decline wiped out the state's $30 million surplus accumulated in the first eight months of the fiscal year, Crofts said.

This Rat Race Has A Winner

WINOOSKI, Vt. (AP) — Unlike most rat races, the one at St. Michael's College had winners.

"Charles Ratlas" and "Ratiation" shattered world records in the third annual Rat Olympics on Wednesday. The competition, designed to interest students in the principles of psychological conditioning, featured events including the "two-inch hurdles," an obstacle course, and rope climbing competition.

Williamston Again Suffers Fire Loss

WILLIAMSTON — White's Heating and Sheet Metal Company, housed in a three story frame building one block off Main Street in Williamston, was heavily damaged by a fire discovered about 12:30 a.m. this morning.

At 11 a.m., firemen were still on the scene hosing down the storage area behind ground floor display rooms in an effort to make possible salvaging of materials such as metal pipes and sheet metal.

Although no estimates of the loss are available, the main structure itself appeared to be a total loss.

An investigation into the cause of the fire is continuing. One fireman was reportedly treated for minor injuries.

Fire fighting units from Bear Grass and Griffin townships were called in to assist in fighting the flames. This is the third major fire in Williamston in recent weeks. Earlier, Holiday Inn and the Williamston Packing Company were damaged by fires.

HELMS AWARD . . . Dr. Marshall Helms, emeritus professor at ECU, presents the Helms Award to biology students Deborah Landy and Susan Corda.

Biology Dept. Honors Outstanding Students

ECU News Bureau
Eight outstanding students in the East Carolina University Department of Biology were recognized at the department's recent annual Honors Luncheon. They were Susan Corda of Greenville and Deborah Landy of Charlotte, winners of the Helms Award; Harvey Bradshaw Jr. of Greenville, winner of the Outstanding Senior Award; and the following scholarship recipients: James Harvell Jr. of Morehead City, Milbrey Cate of Houston, Texas, Linda Hemingway of Charlotte, Ray Jones of Raeford and Mark Steven Nelson of New Bern. The luncheon is held each spring to honor biology students who have demonstrated unusual ability in independent research as well as academic achievement. The Helms Award was presented by ECU Emeritus Professor Marshall Helms in memory of his late wife, Dr. Mary Caughey Helms of the ECU biology faculty.

Other awards were presented by Dr. Edward Ryan, acting chairperson of the ECU biology department.

Further information about the honorees includes:

PITT COUNTY, Greenville — Susan Corda has done research on nitrogen requirements of cypress seedlings and vegetational analysis. She reported on her research at the 1979 meeting of the N.C. Collegiate Academy of Sciences. A member of the Biology Club, the ECU League of Scholars, Phi Eta Sigma and Gamma Beta Phi, Ms. Corda plans to continue her studies in biology toward the PhD degree in botany.

Harvey Bradshaw has carried out research on the biochemistry of bacteria. He plans to work toward the PhD degree in biochemistry and pursue a career in teaching and research.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Diagnosing Childhood Appendicitis

We had a strange and distressing experience which I would like to relate to you. Our 10-year-old daughter complained of severe bellyache. The doctor thought she might have appendicitis and that an operation might be necessary. We took her to the hospital and, after a highly emotional outburst on the part of my daughter (and us, too!), she was sent home without surgery. We were told that all she had was tonsillitis. We can hardly believe this was true. — Mr. and Mrs. K.B., Conn. Dear Mr. and Mrs. B.:

Your daughter (and you, too) are the beneficiaries of the excellent judgment of your doctor and surgeon. There are few more difficult diagnoses to make than that of an acute appendicitis, in people of all ages. In children, it is even more difficult.

Many children who have sore throats, tonsillitis, ear infections, or swollen glands in the neck may complain of severe abdominal pain. The explanation is that the infection in the throat may be responsible for enlargement of tiny glands around the intestines. This is known as "mesenteric adenitis," which mimics all the signs and symptoms of appendicitis.

Indeed, you were fortunate that your doctors recognized the problem and spared your child an operation.

The very reverse is true, too. Sometimes, children with minimal evidence of abdominal pain may, at surgery, be found to have a "red hot" appendix bordering on ab-cess formation and peritonitis. I have enormous admiration for the American family physician who is the first line of defense in such delicate medical problems. I want to introduce an additional thought. Sometimes, when there is great confusion in the difficult diagnosis of appendicitis in children, exploratory surgery can often be the safest, the wisest and, yes, most conservative, approach to a life-threatening situation.

I have the most intolerable itching in the ears. You name it and I've tried it. Pencils, paper clips are only a part of my "surgical approach." Any suggestions? — Mr. J.V., Neb. Dear Mr. V.:

My first suggestion is to get rid of your "surgical" instruments and sensibly take care of your problem. There is only one way of treating this annoying condition and that is to first find out the cause. Let me name a few possibilities. Fungus infection of the ear canal, eczema of the ear canal, middle ear discharge, allergy, hair spray, dirt, hair dyes, nail polish, cosmetics, after-shave lotions and soaps. These can cause itching in both men and women.

Once the cause is found it can be actively treated. Antifungal medication, antibiotics, cortisone ointments and irrigations are effective. First, find out the cause.

New Chamber Councils Named

Declares Inflation Due Heavy Govm't Spending

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The root cause of America's inflation troubles is excessive government spending, and Congress needs to chop the federal budget even more than it appears to be doing, says Jerry Powell, chairman of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, and executive vice president of the First State Bank, Greenville.

Powell was in the nation's capital Tuesday to attend the 67th annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"This month Congress votes on the first concurrent budget resolution, which sets a spending limit for the fiscal 1980 federal budget from which lawmakers will operate," noted Powell. "It is not binding; a later resolution is. But this resolution sets the tone of what Congress will authorize to be spent next fiscal year. It will be too much."

"Economists will tell you that the federal deficit should be diminishing when business enters a growth cycle," he continued. "American businesses entered such a cycle in 1975, but the federal deficit didn't start shrinking, it grew. This pumped a lot of excess money into the economy, hence the fuel for inflation. Congress must cut back federal spending even more if we're ever going to control inflation."

Firms Advised Check Invoices

Local business firms were cautioned today to closely inspect any invoices received for "Checkwriter Insurance," before they are paid.

According to Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon, at least three local firms have received mailings from the firm which has addresses in New York and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The chief said the first mailing appears to offer protection of up to $15,000 for forged company checks for a 12 month period for $89.50. Cannon pointed out that if the $89.50 is paid, the firm will receive another "invoice" indicating, "coverage extended to a full 36 months," showing the "previous payment," and "balance due," of $134.25.

Cannon, who said "Checkwriter Insurance" is not licensed in North Carolina, noted that at least one firm has confused the "invoice" received with that of The Paymaster Corp. which offers an indemnity bond against check alterations when a Paymaster check writer is used.

The chief noted that the State Bureau of Investigation has been asked to investigate the local incidents.

Eight program councils are being established to carry out the program of work for the New Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce, according to R. W. (Woody) Harrison Jr., president of the organization.

In making the announcement, Harrison said the appointment of 16 members of the organization's Board of Directors who will serve as chairmen and vice-chairmen of the eight program councils.

Each council already has a nucleus of men and women appointed to serve and each has been through its first meeting in the establishment of program goals," Harrison reported. He said that more people will be added to the councils during the next few months as the organization becomes fully established. Named Chairmen and Vice Chairmen of the eight program councils were: Membership Development, Thomas H. Campbell, Elizabeth City and William N. Cooley, Jackson; Governmental Affairs, M. W. Stancil of Smithfield and Gus H. Tulloss; Rocky Mount; Industrial Relations, James A. Hackney III, Washington and Randy V. Britton, Ahoskie; Community Development, Paul Brewer of Warsaw, and Mrs. Marion W. Thorn of Moyock.

Economic Development, Charles A. Hayes, Warrenton and Harold Wells, Whiteville; Transportation Development, Robert E. Lee, Gatesville and Douglas Fleming, Atlantic Beach; Tourism, William T. Jones, Tarboro and Carter T. Lambeth of Southport; Agriculture, Joseph Rhea, Windsor and L. D. Ricks Jr., Elizabethtown.

Winterville Bd. Meets Monday

Life-Termer Bids For Commutation

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey could have given Eldon Bobby Lewis 10 years for safe cracking.

Instead, he gave him life in prison.

That, says his lawyer, may make Lewis the only prisoner ever to receive a life sentence for safe cracking. And Lewis thinks he's been treated unfairly.

Lewis was sentenced to life in October 1971 by Bailey for breaking into Builders Wholesale Supply of Fayetteville and cracking a safe. Bailey could have sentenced him to as little as 10 years.

Two years later, the General Assembly enacted legislation making 30 years, instead of life, the maximum sentence for safe cracking. But the law applied only to offenses committed after its effective date in 1973.

If Lewis' sentence isn't commuted, he will have to wait until 1982 to be considered for parole.

His lawyer, Carter Mackie, petitioned Gov. Jim Hunt in September 1977 to commute Lewis' sentence. The paroles board investigated and made a recommendation to Hunt a year ago.

Jack Cozort, Hunt's legal counsel, who reviews all requests for commutation, said Wednesday that he had not had time to study the case thoroughly and "it's waiting its turn."

Lewis would be eligible for parole almost immediately if the governor decides in his favor.

It is the second time Lewis has asked that his sentence be commuted. The first was while Jim Holshouser was governor.

Despite a favorable recommendation by the paroles board then, the request was denied. Holshouser refused throughout his term to commute any life sentences and was unwilling to commute in any case in which the sentencing judge objected. Bailey objected strongly.

'Cannonball' Explosive

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A live, Civil War cannonball rolled around in the trunk of a Charleston man's car a day before he became worried and called police.

Officers blew up the eight-inch cannonball.

John Ritter Jr. said, "A lot of things have happened in my life but nothing like this." He apparently had had the cannonball placed in the car with a load of old brick he bought on John's Island. How it got mixed with the brick or into the car could not be determined, although Ritter said it was dark Wednesday when he went to the island from his Charleston home.

The next morning Ben Chestnut began to unload the brick at Ritter's home to start repairing some steps.

"I thought it was an old steel ball, that's all. I threw it up and down. Oh man, I didn't know," Chestnut exclaimed.

Ritter asked, "It's a bomb and you left it in my trunk?" Chestnut said since he thought it belonged to Ritter he left it in the car Thursday morning. Ritter drove to work, hearing the ball roll around all the time, but didn't look in the trunk until he got to his office.

The device was detonated by an explosives expert in the afternoon.

Plant Thefts

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that plant owners should take precautions to prevent the theft of plants from their homes.

According to the chief, six incidents have been reported in the past two days involving the theft of plants — mostly hanging baskets — from the porches of local dwellings.

Cannon suggested that owners should mark their plant pots to make them easily identifiable. He also suggested that plants might be hung in locations — such as at the rear of homes — where they might not be as visible, or taken inside at night if they are hung on front porches during the day.

Women Dared Open New York Restaurant

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI National Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — New Yorkers made faces at chicken fried steak. They shunned Texas chili.

The six women who dared open a New York restaurant also found their husbands inspecting the cash register drawer. Alcohol could not be served.

"The men who sold us the refrigerators, sinks and other kitchen furniture thought we were a joke. They tagged our job order 'the girls,'" said Susan McAllister.

The "girls" triumphed. Their restaurant has been making money since it opened Oct. 11, 1976. That day the six had $150 left from $40,000 they started with.

"The first day we took in about $1,100. We've been in the black ever since," said June Jenkins.

Their restaurant, The Summerhouse, at the Manhattan corner of Madison Avenue and East 91st Street, has helped trigger a renaissance in the neighborhood, previously an area of middle class apartments and also-ran locksmiths and television repair shops. Since the women went to work, gourmet shops, book and toy dealers to the wealthy have opened.

The women's restaurant has grabbed a choice chunk of the Big Apple. Along with Elaine's and P. J. Clarke's, it has become an "in" bistro even without alcohol. The Summerhouse is within 200 feet of two schools and demon rum therefore cannot be sold by the women. Dishes range in cost from $1.75 to $11.50.

Customers include Gloria Swanson, Robert Redford, Diana Ross, George Balanchine, Bess Myerson, President Carter's son Jack and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Caroline Kennedy, Richard Chamberlain, Diane Keaton, one of the Smothers Brothers, Phyllis George, Bob Schieffer, Michael Douglas, Peter Boyle and Elaine of Elaine's and Danny Lavezzo of P. J. Clarke's.

The restaurant has expanded, nudging the liquor store that supplies the wine some customers carry in. Success hasn't spoiled the six women.

"I wish it had," said Angelique McLean Graziano. The six each work some 30 hours a week.

The six women have five husbands and 20 children. The children mostly are in high school and college. The husbands, such as June's novelist and sports writer Dan Jenkins, Angelique's sports equipment executive Jack Graziano and Susan's tugboat magnate Bruce McAllister, endure.

"At first, every one of the husbands was skeptical," June said. "They used to walk in, go straight to the cash register and count."

Now the husbands ask for tables ahead of the line. Sometimes, given no privilege, they huddle across the street in a hamburger shop. Has success affected the women's love life?

Susan: "I'll never tell."

Angelique: "It's made it a lot more meaningful."

June: "Well, we come home smelling..."

"Of garlic and onion," said Eloise O'Connell.

Angelique: "People sniff us in the elevators."

The women, seated at one of their marble topped tables, laughed. They said they all had thought for years of opening a restaurant.

Dina Schmidt, one of the three raised in the New York area, has a Park Avenue life and agreed to take part "just so I wouldn't have to work."

She, June, Angelique and Cynthia now labor in the kitchen.

Susan had spotted the location, once an antique store. Eloise and June discussed it during a tennis game. The three plus Dina snared Cynthia because they found she just happened to have in the refrigerator for an impromptu lunch a poached striped bass and bottles of Le Foret wine.

Eloise said, "I went in because everybody told us we were out of our minds."

June and Angelique, from Fort Worth, Texas, and Eloise, from Houston, tried to put chicken fried steak and Texas chili on the menu.

"The Yankees, well, better say, Northerners, did not understand chicken fried steak," said Angelique. "And people weren't crazy about our Texas chili—they wanted tomatoes and beans in it. That was sacrilegious."

Their success has been based on food that is not exactly European, Asiatic or even American. June: "It's very fresh, carefully prepared food, the kind we serve at home."

The most popular dishes have been filet steaks, a curried chicken salad, a dessert called Fantastic Fudge and the biscuits and strawberry butter laid on every table in the 67-seat restaurant. Naming the restaurant was a problem. June's husband's suggestions included Hello, Young Muggers and The Mousse That Roared, Aspic and Old Space, Buckingham Palates and Betty Crocker's Backup.

Cynthia suggested Summerhouse. "And it worked," said Angelique. "We are restaurateurs of New York," said June.

Susan grinned. "The only thing better is being a rich widow," she said.

Awards Given At Luncheon

The April meetings of the Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi were held at the homes of Cindy Lewis and Jackie Brown.

Guest speaker was Dr. E.G. Crawford, who gave a slide presentation on oral surgery and a program on making yeast breads was given by Shirley Stoupe and Fran Rostar.

A founder's day luncheon was held at Pipeline with awards presented to outgoing officers and committee chairpersons.

Kathy Shepherd told of yearly chapter highlights and Jackie Gehrlin was voted Sister of the Year. Barbara Goodson was named Pledge of the Year.

The best program of the year was "Seek New Horizons" by Ms. Gehrlin.

He's Depleting Her 'Trust' Fund

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with Tony for two years. I'm 35 and divorced, and Tony is 34 and never been married. He's a typical macho Italian type.

Tony has his pad and I have mine. He suggested giving up his place and moving in with me, but I told him nothing doing unless I get that ring on my finger. Now he's after me to marry him. I love him, Abby, but I can't trust him. When I'm at his place he always unplugs the telephone. I've also seen evidence of other women there. (Ladies clothes, cosmetics, etc.)

So what does a gal do when she loves a guy she can't trust? He says things could be different if we were married. What do you think?

HUNG UP ON TONY

DEAR HUNG UP: A gal who loves a guy she can't trust doesn't know what misery is until she marries him. Things could be different all right. They could be WORSE. Hang on to your single blessedness.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have each called our own natural parents "Mom and Dad" since childhood. We live near his parents and, after several years I finally feel comfortable calling his parents "Mom and Dad," too.

When my mother heard me call my in-laws "Mom and Dad," she became very upset and said, "WE are the only Mom and Dad you will ever have, so please find some other names for your in-laws."

What is your advice, Abby?

DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Tell your mother that calling your in-laws "Mom and Dad" in no way diminishes the very special love you have for your own parents. And furthermore, since YOU feel comfortable calling your in-laws "Mom and Dad," there is no reason to find other names for them.

DEAR ABBY: I have known this guy for two years, but we didn't get really serious about each other until seven months ago. I'm 18 and he's 19. He kept trying to get me to go to bed with him, and I kept saying no. Finally I gave in.

I really was in love with him, Abby. I'm no tramp. I thought it would bring us closer together. Maybe even get him to figure out some way we could get married.

Well, I was wrong. After that evening I didn't hear one word from him. Finally I ran into him by accident three weeks later, and his attitude toward me was completely different. He acted like a stranger.

I feel so cheap. If I had known then what I know now, I never would have given in. But there's nothing I can do about it now.

I wasted something very precious on someone who wasn't worth it and didn't appreciate it.

Please keep telling girls that the way to keep a guy is by NOT giving in to him. I wish I hadn't.

SORRY IN W. VA.

DEAR SORRY: I will. And maybe your experience will help some other girl when she has that decision to make.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Head To Toe Fashions

TODAY'S VARIETY of fashions coordinate with a variety of hairstyles. Linear lines of casual pantsuit, left, with strong horizontal shoulders offset by open-shirt collar and unconstructed jacket, are complemented but softened by free-styled curly hairdo with side part. Two-piece floral-pattern dress, center, is in the mode of slimmer, trimmer and ever-so-feminine fashions and, to play up this romantic look, hair is swept away from face in soft "roll" on top, left to cascade freely to shoulders. Polished professional look of sophisticated city suit, right, is emphasized with sleek hair roll at back, wispy tendrils around face.

Bus System Use Inching Up

Municipal bus systems have fallen on hard times in recent decades with the rise of the automobile, but the buses are still with us, as a Department of Transportation report shows. Municipal buses carried 1,825,055 passengers in March, for an eight percent increase over the same month of last year. Largest carrier in the state was the Charlotte system which saw 665,159 riders in March. The Winston-Salem system carried 278,671 passengers during the month, while the Raleigh system carried 217,678. Greenville's GREAT system carried 19,627 for a 30.3 percent increase over March of 1978. In fact, all the publicly owned systems showed increases in March over the March of the previous year. DOT officials see use of public transportation increasing because of the rising cost and declining availability of gas. The officials say public transit is in a better position to respond to the gasoline problem now that it was during the crunch of 1973-74. Municipal transit systems, for the most part, still don't pay their way from revenues taken in, but we may find the systems filling our local transportation needs more and more as gasoline prices steadily increase.

A Pot Belly Is Back

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) — "How To Fatten Your Stomach," the waddle away by seller that everyone will be talking about as soon as it is around to writing it, is all out of the planning stages. Lengthy lunches are held regularly to plan the promotional kickoff, which will feature a belly bumping contest between two Suni wrestlers in front of Elizabeth Arden's New York and Hollywood salons. A man-in-the-street interview with some of the more sedentary types in our society who help make the Boston Marathon the great special sport that it has become. Ten million non-achievers watching 8,000 strivers puff Heartbreak Hill in their minds suits have got to know on the side of the screen energy is a Now that the snappy chef has brought back the pot-bellied stove, real pot bellies in front of them are in demand to round out the picture. Lean and hungry look so hoisted on our emaciated society by the high priestess of fashion is definitely on the way out. It's a mathematically measurable fact that plump people are more outgoing. There more of them out there to begin with. Socrates, Buddha, Confucius, Shakespeare, Samuel Johnson, William Howard Taft and Babe Ruth, among a host of historical nice guys, all come across in classic statuary as early dropouts from Weight Watchers, to say nothing of Santa Claus, Kate Smith, G.K. Chesterton, etc. You seldom see a fat mugger in a police lineup, and it's a well-known tailoring statistic that stylish stout sizes are rarely available in convict suits, straitjackets or assassination team jungle fatigues.

Signs Indicate Carter Is A Candidate

There are those who speculate that President Carter won't seek re-election, but the president seems to be gearing up to obtain the nomination and run. His "baloney" comment to Sen. Kennedy's criticism indicates he doesn't now plan to have the Democratic nomination go to someone else. Now, also there are fund-raising efforts for the Carter campaign underway in North Carolina — a state where Carter may have trouble because of Department of Health, Education and Welfare bungling. Probably even now, the final decision on running has not been made in the White House. Nevertheless the campaign is practically speaking, underway.

The Pluses & Minuses

WASHINGTON — The FBI is considering renting out shops on the ground floor of the J. Edgar Hoover Building, its main headquarters. The idea was suggested by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corp., which is trying to spruce up the street. The corporation director considers the building as it now stands cold, inhospitable and a waste of space. They say stores would bring life and warmth to the building, and the public wouldn't be afraid to go near it. It all depends. There are pluses and minuses to the idea. The big plus is that the people who opened stores there wouldn't have to worry about shoplifting. A big minus is that the information in the computers upstairs might be made available to managers of the stores downstairs. This is what could happen if, for example, a man goes in to buy a suit at the Hoover Haberdashery, which advertises that it sells the "10 Most Wanted Clothes in America." "May I help you, sir?" "I'd like a summer suit." "Yes, sir. With or without a bulletproof vest?" "Without. They're too hot in the summertime." "I understand. May I have your name and Social Security number?" "Thompson, Fred A. 093-16-1890." The salesman puts the information into his computer and waits for a reply. Then he says, "I see you're a size 42 with a 38 waist, that you always wear two-button suits, hate cuffs on your trousers and you're partial to green." "I am not partial to green. Where did you get that information?"

"One of your neighbors told our people. He also told us you were a very sloppy dresser and that you never wear a belt when you're working on your car." "Well, it so happens I don't want a green suit. I want a tan one."

The salesman hits the keys of the computer and waits. "It says here that your wife doesn't like you in tan. She claims you always get soup stains over the jacket." "Did she tell you that?" "No, one of your relatives did." "I want a tan suit. Do you want to sell me one or not?" "Of course, sir. You're the customer. Before you try one on I must advise you of your rights. If for any reason the suit does not fit or the pants are too long, you may remain silent until you have consulted with our fitter." "I understand." "Now this is an especially good buy. It was ordered by Jimmy Hoffa but he never picked it up. We've decided he doesn't need it any more so we're putting it on sale." "It's a nice suit. How much is it?" "$110." "Okay, I'll take it." "Will that be a charge or cash, sir?" "I'll put it on my American Express card. Here it is." The salesman starts spraying dust on the card. "What are you doing?" Thompson asks. (Continued on page 5)

40 Years Ago Today

May 4, 1939
Doris Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.J. Edwards of Galloways Crossroads, and Elmer Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker of Grimesland, today received first-place honors in the annual Pitt County 4-H health contests. Miss Edwards, student of Chicod School, has been a 4-H girl for five years, attended the state short course in Raleigh last year, winning first place in that contest. Her club projects are room improvement and clothing. Margaret Stokes was runner-up to Miss Edwards, ranking only three points below the winner.

When the N.C. Press Convention meets in Greensboro this weekend for its annual session, a number of E.C.T.C. students will be there to represent the student publications of the college. Miss Dorothy Hollar, Helen Flanagan, and Harvey Deal, Greenville students, will go as editor of the Techo Echo, business manager of the Techo Echo and editor of the Techoan respectively. — Stuart Morgan

THIS AFTERNOON

Nuclear Waste Pondered

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — While South Carolina is fast becoming the nation's dumping ground for volatile nuclear waste, a growing number of Tar Heels are upset that North Carolina is on the path for much of that material enroute to the Barnswell, S.C. storage location. By truck and by train — occasionally even aboard airplanes — the spent fuels from industrial power generating, and defense operations in the Midwest and Northeast pour across North Carolina. Interstate 95 is the primary route, but others are also used, and state radiation officials are seeking to expand monitoring activities to keep a closer watch on just how much of what radioactive materials are being moved across the state. So intent is the concern that many of the speakers at a public hearing in the General Assembly repeatedly urged that transportation be added to provisions of a waste disposal control resolution now under consideration. No Imports
State Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-

Iredell, chief sponsor of the measure, told the Natural and Economic Resources Committee of the House of Representatives, that "while we are willing to be considered as a depository for our own waste, we do not wish to be a depository for waste from outside this state." Huskins' proposal recognizes "potential danger associated with the permanent storage and disposal of nuclear waste within the boundaries of North Carolina", and makes the point that no policy or plan for permanent storage of such waste now exists. It would not be in the best interest of the people of North Carolina for large amounts of nuclear waste to be permanently stored here, Huskins' resolution states, then calls on the federal government to move promptly on developing such a plan. The key ingredients of the resolution are that this state "should be expected to accept for permanent storage or disposal only nuclear waste produced in the generation of electric power for use in North Carolina," and that the state not accept for storage or disposal any waste from elsewhere.

In his remarks to the committee, Huskins also called attention to the still-neglected matter of what to do with the toxic generating plants themselves when they become obsolete. But for now, he noted, the number one problem centers around fuel rods for electric generating plants which are "accumulating at a rapid rate." The federal government has put the brakes on attempts to reclaim the nuclear fuels in the rods because the process can lead to production of materials used in nuclear explosives. But the rods are being kept pending some other developments.

Support
A number of expert witnesses supported Huskins' proposal, and urged that it be enlarged to cover transportation and possibly used as the beginning point for a public reaction which would force power companies and government officials to take a second, hard look at the entire question of nuclear power generation. Davidson College Biologist Don Kimball urged amending the resolution to ban all transportation of nuclear waste in the state, and to require disposal on the site where the material was used or produced. LeVonne Page of N.C. State University produced testimony that government scientists admit they don't know what will happen if the materials are stored in the ground, and don't know of any way to safely handle the waste. But he predicted that eventually the dilemma will be resolved by a desperation decision to "just bury the stuff and hope for the best.... I certainly don't want that place to be North Carolina."

To the editor:
From its earliest beginnings, The League of Women Voters, which was organized in 1920, has: 1) encouraged citizens to register and vote and 2) promoted informed and active participation in government. The right to vote should be a cherished privilege. Each person eligible to vote has a responsibility to honor this right by registering and voting. On Friday, June 8, citizens of Pitt County and Greenville will be given the opportunity to vote on issues that will have direct effect and impact upon this community. Those who go to the polls and vote, regardless of how many or how few, will decide these issues. The League urges everyone eligible to vote to do so on June 8. Those who are not registered may register at the Board of Elections office located at 210 E. Second Street. In order to vote June 8 persons must be registered by Wednesday, May 9, at 5:00 p. m. In order to allow people more opportunity to register, the Board of Elections office will remain open until 7:00 p. m. on Monday, May 7, and Tuesday, May 8. The office normally closes at 5:00 p. m. WASHINGTON TODAY

Run First, Then Announce

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two presidential campaigns ago, when Sen. Edmund S. Muskie was enjoying his brief ride as top prospect for the Democratic presidential nomination, he set out to search the countryside for contacts and supporters. It was 1971 and the Maine senator was far ahead in the polls. He hadn't said he would run in 1972, but there he was on the rubber chicken circuit, glad-handing county chairmen and looking for early commitments.

At every stop, Muskie held a news conference, and at every news conference the first question was the same: Are you going to run for president next year? One night, showing a touch of the temper that later contributed to the undoing of his campaign, Muskie had had enough. "What in hell do they think I'm doing?" he demanded. He was running, of course. He just hadn't made The Announcement. All of which is by way of saying that The Announcement of presidential candidacy is a charade. Serious candidates run first and announce later. They put their lines out, make their contacts, organize their committees and then say what they're doing. Announcements are a campaign ritual. Some came early for 1980, from candidates who figured that since President Carter announced early and won, maybe they could, too. Since Carter is president now, he's in no hurry to announce that he wants to be president again. There are certain clues. He has a campaign committee at work. He's been to New Hampshire. His fundraisers say they've met the requirements to qualify him for federal campaign funds next year. Perhaps the most articulate practitioner of the announcement game this season is Sen. Howard H.

Baker Jr. of Tennessee, who wants the Republican nomination and has said so. But he's also said that his remarks up to now don't really count as an announcement of candidacy. The Announcement comes when the candidate hires a hall, as George Bush did the other day, or goes to the steps of the state Capitol, as Sen. Lowell Weicker did in Hartford, Conn., or goes home, as Sen. Bob Dole will in Russell, Kan., later this month, to confide that, yes, he really is running. Republican Bush has been campaigning for months. On Tuesday he said why. There was not a great deal of suspense in the ballroom of the National Press Club as he declared: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am a candidate for president of the United States." (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

THE REAL SELF
The great preacher, Dwight Moody, reminded his congregation one Sunday that when they sat for a formal photograph they wore their best clothes and tried to make themselves as presentable as possible; and they were always flattered if the picture turned out well. Then Moody asked what their reaction would be if they were asked to have a photograph taken of their heart together with everything in it. He suggested by way of answer that they would be by no means as enthusiastic about the project. Moody was here suggesting that people face up to their real selves, not the carefully combed, brushed, and dressed-up selves they presented to others. Only when we face ourselves as we really are, he said, can we make any progress toward improvement. Those who might find this a frightening prospect should heed the words of Jesus: "Those who are well have no need of a physician. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners." Elisha Douglass

Pressure Of Spring Accepted

By GAIL MICHAELS
A mother anticipates Spring with the same eagerness with which a child anticipates Christmas. There is nothing like the sense of exhilaration she feels when for the first time in months she emerges from her cocoon of Kleenex and sees her child with a clean nose. But Spring has its problems, too. And one of the worst is flowers. Children think it's a sin to pass a flower without picking it. Every conceivable kind of flower that grows in April has made its way into our house, from the neighbor's tulips to clover, buttercups with no stems, and ragweed. It does no good to explain that some of them don't thrive in water. No cup in our kitchen has escaped its share of dandelions, and no day during the last three weeks has gone by without at least two dead bouquets floating in water and Meg's anguished accusation, "What did you do to my flowers?" But the problems associated with flowers are nothing compared with the problems associated with clothes. Bringing the summer clothes out of hibernation is like giving a bear its first taste of honey. Once a child puts on his first pair of shorts, he refuses to wear anything else. If the temperature dips down to the 30s the next day, he's ready to go to school in a tank top and jogging shorts. And to make matters worse, there's always the other kid who starts wearing shorts on March 21 even if there's snow on the ground. Every mother for miles around hears about it. "Johnny's mother sure is neat. She lets him wear shorts to school." The pressure is enormous, and one by one, as the weather warms up, all the other mothers give in. As one of Meg's little classmates chirped after modelling his outfit for me, "Today is a good day for shorts!" His mother thought it was also a good day for knee socks, a pullover sweater, and a coat. I succumbed to the pressure, too, and I've been sorry ever since. One day when it reached the high 70's, I let Meg wear a sunsuit. Now she spurns even shorts as if they were chains and handcuffs. Getting her into a sweater is like putting diapers on a bull. It's a matter of principle for her. Her knees can turn blue, and her teeth can be clattering like castanets, but the mere suggestion that she might be cold brings the response, "People don't get cold in Spring." She makes no exception for nightclothes either. The day she wore the sunsuit was the day she brought out the summer nightgowns. "Meg," I said, "You cannot wear that to bed. You'll freeze." But when I pulled out some footie pajamas, she stiffened into a solid mass of unyielding flesh. It was like trying to dress a board. We finally compromised. When she ran to kiss her father goodnight, she was wearing her summer nightgown. Her footie pajamas were under it. I shook my head at Phillip. "Just don't even ask."

Seek Allow Mirex-Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee has approved an amendment allowing the use of the controversial pesticide Mirex for fighting fire ants in the Southeast.

The amendment to the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act, which now goes to the full House, was introduced by Rep. Dawson Mathis, D-Ga.

"I have held repeated meetings with EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) officials in order to reach a reasonable compromise which would allow effective treatment of fire ant-infested areas of the Southeast, but the EPA exhibited an unfeeling and unbending attitude," Mathis said during committee hearings Thursday.

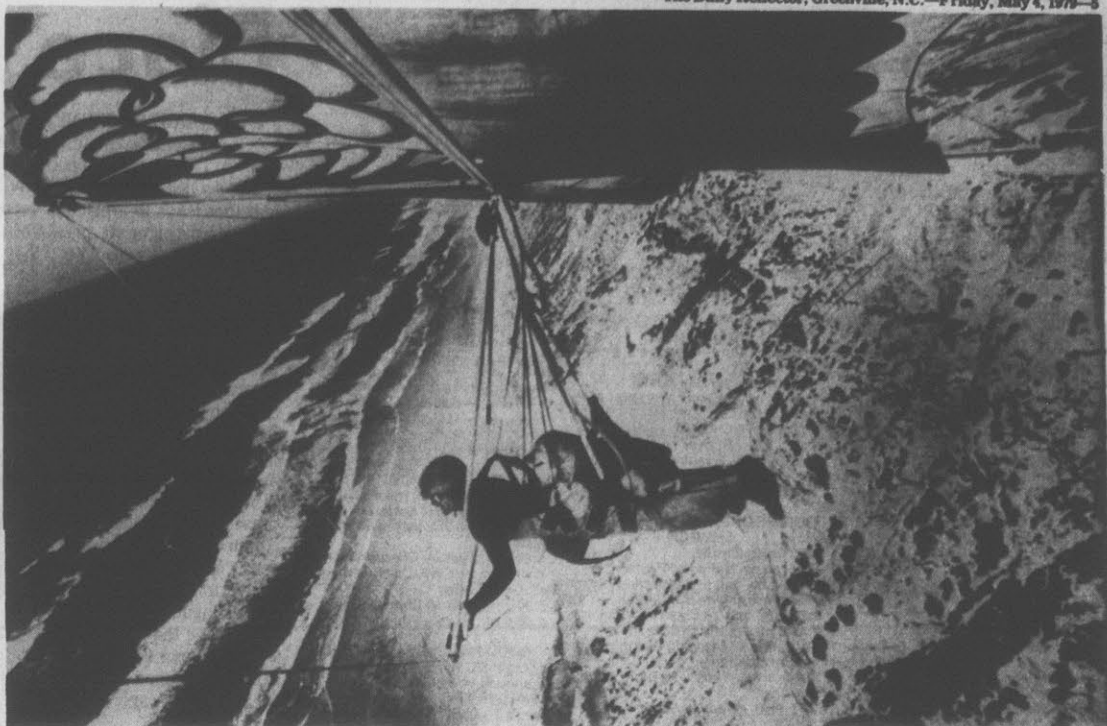

Earlier this week, EPA officials announced they would allow use of another insecticide, Dizinon, on ant mounds and three other insecticides for experimental purposes.

The EPA banned Mirex in June 1978 after it was shown to cause birth defects in laboratory animals.

Fire ants have a painful sting that is toxic and sometimes fatal to humans. The insects also have been known to destroy livestock and crops.

Mathis' legislation to allow the use of Mirex through 1980 passed the committee Thursday by a 22-11 margin.

The committee also passed a Mathis amendment that would allow congressional veto of proposed EPA regulations.

50TH ANNIVERSARY FOR WINSTON-SALEM BUILDING — The Reynolds Building (left) in Winston-Salem is celebrating its 50th anniversary. The 22-story structure, opened for

Carolina Telephone To Be Reducing Its Rates

Carolina Telephone announced that most of its subscribers will notice a monthly rate reduction beginning in the next few weeks and will also receive a refund retroactive to April 3.

T. P. Williamson, vice president-administration for the company, said that the refund will be in the form of a one-time bill credit.

According to Williamson, the rate reductions and refunds were ordered on April 20 by the North Carolina Utilities Commission, concluding its consideration of a January 1978 increase request by the company that was offset by an April 1978 statewide increase in long distance rates.

He explained, "After we filed for the $5.5 million increase in local service rates, the Utilities Commission authorized an increase in intrastate long distance rates. That produced more additional revenue than we had originally requested. Therefore, in fairness to our customers, we will give part of the money back to them by reducing their basic local service rates."

The Commission order calls for a rate reduction of some $6.7 million annually, he said, while the refund, plus interest, to April 3, 1978, to the date when the reduction can be made effective, is expected to be about $7 million, the spokesman added.

He said that in most telephone exchanges, several rate changes will occur, including: elimination of color charges for basic dial "color set" telephones; reduction of extension rates by 20 cents per month for residences and by 75 cents for businesses; reduction by 50 percent of business toll terminal rates; reduction by 75 percent of zone charges; and reduction in basic local service rates averaging 40 to 45 cents per month for each customer line.

Williamson explained that as soon as practicable, a credit for each telephone line will be applied to customers' bills as a refund for their portions of the higher toll rates collected by the company since last April 3, plus interest.

Asleep While Burglarized

Greenville Police are continuing their investigation into a burglary at 305 East 14th Street reported at 3:30 a.m. today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said some cash was taken from one of the bedrooms in the house, while stereo equipment valued at $350 was taken from another bedroom.

The chief noted that persons were apparently asleep in a third bedroom when the theft occurred.

Ronald Reagan came up with the multiple announcement wrinkle four years ago. Reagan is running again this time. His campaign committee is duly registered and hard at work.

Bush, incidentally, began his announcement by announcing John B. Connally, in the same ballroom, did it the other way on Jan. 24. He gave an 11-page speech and concluded: "I am happy and humble to say to you that I am today announcing my candidacy for president of the United States."

JC Installation Banquet Tonight Offer Musical Program

WINTERVILLE — The annual installation banquet of the Winterville Jaycees will be held at 7:30 tonight at the Winterville Community Building.

Guest speaker will be Warren McDonald of Jacksonville, a Jaycee Regional Director.

All Jaycees, their wives, dates and friends are invited to attend. A program of entertainment will follow the installation ceremony.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

The Holy Trinity Church will celebrate its first anniversary Sunday, May 6, at 6 p.m. The Rev. Walter Cherry, Jr., and his congregation from Mayo Chapter will be the guests. A choir union will highlight the services.

Refreshments will be served and the pastor, Rev. Charles Dingle, invites the public to attend.

AYDEN — Little Willie and the No. 2 Choir of Antioch Holy Church, Bell Arthur, will present a musical service at Morning Star Holy Church, Ayden, Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The program is being sponsored by the Youth Department. The public is invited, according to Pastor James A. Collins.

CORRECT DINNER TIME

The Gethesemane Pentecostal Holiness Church will hold a barbeque and barbeque chicken dinner Saturday, May 5, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., not from 1-2 p.m. as stated in the Wednesday edition.

Registration

The League of Women Voters will have a registration table at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center tomorrow from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Anyone who wishes may register to vote there or make a change of address or whatever is needed to bring one's registration to vote up to date, said Anne Frost, first vice president of the LWV.

District Nurses Meet May 8

District 30 of the North Carolina Nurses Association will meet Tuesday, May 8, at 6:30 p.m. at the Western Steer Family Steakhouse on Tenth Street.

The business meeting will include the election of District 30 officers for 1980. Members must bring a current ANA membership card in order to vote.

Dinner will begin at 7:30. "Fun Night" will include singing by the Fortune Hunters and entertainment by Arabella, the belle of Carrot Corners. Husbands or partners may be invited.

Mail pre-registration to Mallie Penry, School of Nursing, ECU, Greenville.

GOPEL JUBILEE TO PERFORM

The Gospel Jubilee will open the program for Bill Moss, "The Boss of Gospel Singers," Saturday, May 5, 7:30 p.m., at Fleming Chapel Church, Belvoir Hwy. The Rev. Cradit, pastor, invites the public to attend.

WOMEN'S DAY

Women's Day will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. at Saint Mary Missionary Baptist Church with the Rev. Laura Frazier from Havelock as the guest speaker.

Employers Guests Of Students At Breakfast

D. H. Conley High School students enrolled in the Diversified Occupations program and the Home Economics Cooperative Education Program held a breakfast Wednesday for their employers.

These students have paid jobs as part of their educational programs.

The breakfast was held at the Winterville Christian Church in honor of the 64 businesspersons who employ them. State Sen. James H. Edwards was the keynote speaker.

Nancy Andrews presided. Charles Strickland presented the thought for the occasion. Music was provided by Sylvia Barrett, Linda May, Gail Rountree, Cheryl Wilson, Tammy Smith, Angela Wilkins, and Sharon Wojcik; by Miriam C. Harris, Pitt Co. Arts Coordinator; and a solo by Sylvia Barrett.

Gail Rountree welcomed the group and Barbara Parker of Parker's Barbecue gave the response. Greetings were brought by Pitt Co. Schools Supt. Ott Alford, with recognition of guests by Linda May. Paula Pressley introduced Sen. Edwards, an area native. The response to Edwards' talk was given by Nancy Andrews, who presented him a gift supplied by the Conley Arts Department.

Carl Toot, Director of Occupational Education for Pitt County, presented certificates to the 64 businesses involved in the program and Conley Principal J. R. Carraway made remarks about the effectiveness of the program. Milton May, teacher of the Diversified Occupations Program, told of the impact made by the money paid these students on the economy of the area. Beulah Mebane is teacher of the Home Economics Coop program. Some 80 students take part in the two programs. The theme of this year's celebration was "We Earn While We Learn."

"Looking for fingerprints. You can't be too careful when you take a credit card. I'll be right back, sir."

A few minutes later the salesman returns looking very grim.

"Did you ever know a Roderick Abernathy?" he asks.

"Yeh, I went to high school with him."

"Did you know he was a member of the Socialist Workers Party?"

"No, I didn't."

"Your file says you did. This is very embarrassing."

"Look, if it's a big deal I'll pay cash for the suit."

"Yes, that might solve the problem," the clerk says. He scratches his head with a pencil and two men come up to Thompson and show their FBI identification. One of them says, "Would you mind telling us where you got the cash to pay for that suit?"

Mulligan Col. . . .

As "How to Flatten Your Stomach" will easily explain in a slender volume outrageously padded out with puffed up prose and oversized pictures, swapping a waspish waist for a pouter pigeon's pouch requires little more of the reader than sitting down to the task as soon as possible. Begin now: even in advance of publication.

First, measure your girth at the level of the navel with the stomach stuck out as far as you can and record that statistic. Follow the prescribed regimen of avoiding certain exercises that can be habit forming (like climbing stairs or washing the car) but making sure to eat whatever you want, as much as you like, as often as you care to, for 30 consecutive days.

Now return to the tape measure. You'll be amazed at the results.

Stay loose, set yourself realistic goals, such as adding one rubber tire a month to the horse latitudes, and in no time at all you'll be able to move on to my more advanced and as yet unwritten "Blubber's Guide to Bliss in Bulk" and its much awaited sequel, "How to Avoid Fatigue, Joggers and Fitness Freaks on An Ordinary Junk Food Diet in the Depression-free Atmosphere of the Smoking Lounge."

It's nappy-nap time now, but all of these helpful health guides should be coming your way soon. Or perhaps later.

Place Of Remembered Horror

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

Rows of umbrella-shaped carob trees line a path in Jerusalem that leads to a place of remembered horror. It speaks of overwhelming evil. Yet the trees also whisper of rare, simultaneous good.

What is the meaning for humanity? The question has lingered long. How decipher the enormous iniquity, and amid it, only the wisps of honor?

Many Americans pondered the haunting ramifications of it in connection with observing "Days of Remembrance of Victims of the Holocaust" proclaimed last weekend by President Carter.

"We must never forget these crimes against humanity," he said, citing the Nazi murder of 6 million Jews in an attempt to exterminate them. It has "left deep moral scars on all humankind." Its ugly shadow and the implications of it threaded many commemorative services which

Evangelists For Revival

A revival will be held at the Shelmerdine Pentecostal Holiness Church beginning Sunday, May 6, 11 a.m. Services will be held each evening through Friday at 7:30 p.m. The church is located 15 miles south of Greenville on Highway 43.

The Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Williams of Greenville will serve as evangelists. The Rev. Williams has been a pastor, evangelist, and for several years, a personal representative of the Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, Okla.

Williams, who has ministered and traveled extensively, set up the Development and Stewardship Department for the International Headquarters of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, Oklahoma City, Okla., and directed the department for the last three years.

Mrs. Williams is a teacher, counselor and evangelist. She was a professor at Oral Roberts University before moving into other areas of ministry.

The Rev. Roy O. Williams, Shelmerdine pastor, invites the public to attend the services. For more information, call 758-1225.

Leads Afternoon Service Sunday

The Rev. Amos Edwards of Brown's Chapel, Wilson, will hold services at Phillippi Church of Christ for the Christian Women's Fellowship Club, May 6 at 3 p.m.

Also on the program will be Onession Brooks and Brown's Chapel's Ladies Chorus.

DEACONS' ANNIVERSARY

The Deacons of English Chapel Church will celebrate their fifth anniversary Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

All deacons are asked to be present, said Deacon Lorenzo Evans.

continued this week across the country in churches and synagogues, often jointly.

Through all the deliberations about it, however, through all the soul-searching analyses and probing conferences about it that have gone on for 30 years, the event has remained an unanswerable infamy.

It showed a dark, demonic side of the most modern, scientifically advanced society, the scholars say. It contradicted prior assumptions that science, education, efficiency and culture, as achieved in pre-war Germany, would in themselves elevate humanity.

It "testifies that Western civilization is substantially an ethical fraud," writes Rabbi Eugene B. Borowitz of New York's Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in the Catholic weekly, America.

Yet, despite the monstrous atrocity of it, the sparks of irrepressible good persisted, as signified by the carob trees along the approach to Jerusalem's monument memorializing the 6 million.

Those trees flanking the "Avenue of the Just" commemorate "those who risked their lives for the rescue of Jews" in the Nazi period. Nearly 1,000 Christians have been listed officially on that honor roll of "righteous Gentiles." "Hiding a Jew was not an easy matter," writes historian Philip Friedman, who says the miracle of a million Jews surviving in the crucible of Nazi-occupied Europe "could not have been accomplished without the active assistance of the Christian population."

Friedman says Christians who were caught by the Nazis hiding Jews usually were executed on the spot or in a public place as an object lesson to other "Aryans" who might consider hiding a Jew.

Various instances were cited in which Christians were hanged for it.

Yet, also, many Christians in mainly Protestant and Roman Catholic Germany did nothing to interfere, a situation over which church scholars have agonized at many Christian-Jewish conferences about it.

That deep stain, however, often is seen as spurring the post-war rise of closer Christian-Jewish ties, a development marked by many joint services this week, and by such occasions as Pope John Paul II's recent meeting with Jewish leaders at the Vatican.

The Revolutionaries

"He who shall introduce into public affairs the principles of primitive Christianity, will revolutionize the world."
 —Benj. Franklin

Some Americans have called themselves "revolutionaries" and proclaimed their enmity toward "the establishment," including the Church.

They overlook the fact that Christianity stands out as the most revolutionary idea in history. Its method of reform is to make fundamental changes in the character and thinking of individuals.

This takes longer and is less exciting than bombs and manifestoes. But it has far more lasting results. Every church service is actually a lesson in improving the world, starting with one's self!

Math Awards
To 5 Students

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Five students in the Department of Mathematics at East Carolina University have received departmental awards in recognition of their academic achievement.

Kathy Colen Suggs of Farmville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Suggs, received the department's Outstanding Senior Award. The award is bestowed by members of the senior class and is based upon the recipient's scholarship, leadership and extracurricular activities.

Suggs is a member of Gamma Beta Phi and Phi Mu Epsilon. She is also a member of the Association for Computing Machinery. She has been selected for the computer science internship at Burroughs-Wellcome and played four years of varsity basketball at ECU.

The William Lowell Putnam Award, a $250 scholarship, was presented to Kevin Eugene Flannery of New Bern who scored the highest on the national Putnam Examination. The exam was taken by students participating in the ECU Mathematics Honors Program.

Robert Dale Pitt of Pinetops received the Pignani-Archer Award of $100 for achieving the highest overall grade point ratio.

Two ECU math students shared the Kodak Award given by the Eastman Kodak Company. They were Cynthia Kay Ferrell, a junior from Wilson, and Barney Glenn Jernigan, a junior from Windsor.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make it a point not to force issues today and especially tonight since some very adverse events could follow. Gather whatever information you need for future projects.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to decide just what to do where new plans are concerned so that they are successful. Find further information that could help you in your work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Hit on the right ideas for improving your home, but count the cost well. Try to please those at home. Don't neglect household chores.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Fine time for handling correspondence and travel affairs. If you pay compliments to an expert, you gain the cooperation you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to handle money matters well that are vital to your welfare, but don't be extravagant. Improve property and make it more valuable.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Improve your appearance where you can; consider a new hairdo. The tension you have been under for some time now lifts.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can finish chores if you apply yourself seriously. Later be with congenials you like and have a delightful time. Don't be stingy and all is fine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take the time to show thoughtfulness for relatives and friends. Join with small groups that are most enjoyable. Take no risks with reputation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Delve into worldly matters and become a power within your community. Improve credit so that you need not worry so much in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find a better channel through which to express yourself and become more successful. Listen to the voice of your intuition, which is accurate now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a better method for handling your affairs and get better results in the future. Go along with what your mate desires you to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Situations develop that need your immediate attention, so don't delay, and show your ability. Do some favor for a partner and gain cooperation. Think along more constructive lines.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show that you can make improvements with little effort and noise. A fellow worker needs encouragement, so do just that.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have to be taught to show appreciation for kindnesses of others and to return favors in some way. Teach to be fair with others instead of merely prideful. A fine mind here that can take to difficult studies.

COUNTRY WESTERN FANS — Actor Herve Villechaze, left, from television's "Fantasy Island" and country singer-actress Barbi Benton, get together during the Academy of Country Music Awards Wednesday in Los Angeles. They were to present the award for song of the year to Anne Murray for her rendition of "You Needed Me", but she was not present at the ceremonies. (AP Laserphoto)

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's been only a few days since NBC announced its schedule for the 1979-80 season, but network minds are already wandering to next year. That, many think, will be the season that NBC redeems itself.

In the summer of 1980 NBC will broadcast the Moscow Olympics. In October of that year, NBC will broadcast the World Series. Between those two events — ratings giants both — sits the project that is central to NBC's hoped-for comeback.

It is "Shogun," the mammoth James Clavell novel of feudal Japan, the 12-hour, $20 million miniseries, the entertainment program that could make things right at NBC.

NBC believes, reasonably so, that the Moscow Olympics will be the most watched in history. "Shogun," the network's prize show of the 1980-81 season, will be heavily promoted during Olympic coverage, a programming plan utilized so effectively by ABC in 1976.

If "Shogun" is a blockbuster, NBC could own the ratings for the first part of 1980-81. The World Series would be icing. So, it was understandable that, while network minds in New York were whirring over the new season's problems and potential problems, there was an air of celebration at a luncheon held this week in the quiet garden restaurant of a Japanese-style hotel here.

"Shogun" was being launched. Clavell was there, acting the part of the famous British author and proclaiming his admiration for Eric Bercovici's adaptation. Bercovici was there, praising Clavell's talents and his work. Richard Chamberlain was there, praising the Lord that he was chosen to play the central part in "Shogun" Blackthorne, the swashbuckling Englishman who became a samurai hero.

And NBC was there, making sure all the praising went smoothly.

It was all very nice, very promising. The hugeness and grandeur of Clavell's wonderful story seemed to occupy the air. Forget that NBC is getting thumped in the ratings, forget that Johnny Carson wants to leave the network. NBC had "Shogun" and "Shogun" would make things right.

But I couldn't help thinking about another masterpiece that landed in the hands of NBC. "Centennial," James Michener's imposing saga, was crushed in the hands of NBC executives who, realizing they had a winner, tried to use it as a torpedo against the other network's programs, moving it from night to night so many times even the show's director couldn't find it. The reminder wasn't welcomed by Bercovici. "What happened to 'Centennial' was a disgrace," he said. "They ensured its failure by programming it the way they did. It became a mystery show."

Domestic Violence Bill Faces Consideration

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's domestic violence bill was scheduled to be up for final consideration in the House today.

The bill, gained tentative approval Thursday, after a lengthy debate and the addition of an amendment that would relieve law enforcement officers from having to respond to repeated calls from the same residence within a 48-hour period.

An amendment that would have narrowed the provisions of the bill to apply only to domestic violence between married partners was defeated.

The version that was approved applies to married couples and to persons living together as man and wife.

The bill outlines law-enforcement officers' responsibilities in domestic disputes, and it would require them to respond to domestic calls if help is requested.

The bill would give courts and law-enforcement officers more authority to protect battered spouses from further abuse.

A number of House members objected to the amendment concerning repeat calls, which won approval on a 88-25 vote.

Rep. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, the bill's floor leader, said it was a compromise effort between the administration and the North Carolina Sheriff's Association in order to get sheriffs' support.

Under the amendment, law-enforcement officers would use their own judgment about the necessity of responding to additional calls from the same residence in a 48-hour period after they have responded to the first call.

An officer would decide if return trips were necessary, based on his judgment of the gravity of the situation during his response to the first call.

"I think the amendment makes it a little too permissive for the officer to decide if there is a possibility of recurrence," said Rep. John Brown, R-Wilkes.

Rep. Ted Kaplan, D-Forsyth, said the amendment could mean that dispatchers, employed by many large law enforcement centers to receive and route calls, would be making that judgment. In some large counties, dispatchers are not sworn officers.

The measure has already been approved by the Senate. If it gains final House approval, it will have to go back to the Senate for concurrence on amendments.

In other legislative developments Thursday:

Bingo
A revised bingo bill was sent to the House floor by a judiciary committee. The panel replaced a Senate-passed bill, which would eliminate all bingo games run by profit-making businesses, with a milder bill.

The bill would limit the playing of bingo and raffles to operations sponsored by charitable or fraternal non-profit organizations, or to commercial games with prizes of no more than $10. The bill would also limit the number of games that could be played in a week.

But the committee amended the bill to reduce the prizes for bingo and raffles, cutting the maximum from $500 to $250.

And the bill would permit charities to hire professionals to run bingo games for them. The contractors would be limited to receiving 25 percent of the gross, would be required to give the charity 25 percent of the gross and could return no more than 50 percent of the take in prizes.

Campbell
The House and Senate public-utilities committees gave Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, a unanimous recommendation for confirmation to a seat on the state Utilities Commission.

Campbell was nominated for the seat by Gov. Jim Hunt. The appointment will be voted on by the full House and Senate next week.

Open Meetings
The often-delayed open meetings bill was postponed again in the Senate. Supporters of the measure asked that debate be delayed until next Tuesday while they try to work out a compromise on an amendment broadcasters contend is discriminatory.

The amendment, added in the Senate Ways and Means Committee, would allow public boards to limit the use of television cameras and other broadcasting equipment if meetings became crowded. The open meetings revision has passed the House.

Auto Tags
Four legislators have filed a bill that would place a new slogan on North Carolina automobile license tags. The bill would place the slogan "First in Flight" at the top of license tags after 1980.

North Carolina put the slogan "First in Freedom" on tags beginning in 1975 but later dropped the words when a controversy developed.

The "First in Flight" slogan refers to the Wright brothers first airplane flight at Kitty Hawk in Dare County on the Outer Banks in 1903.

A coastal legislator made public a letter he wrote to Gov. Jim Hunt asking that an independent consultant be hired by the state to assist in planning for an oil refinery that is to be located in Brunswick County.

Rep. Eugene Merritt, D-New Hanover, made his letter public and said the state needs the assurance of a qualified advisor "to guard against water and oil pollution, oil spills and related problems."

New Bills
Among new legislation filed was a measure sponsored by Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, that would repeal the state law requiring that motorists have auto-liability insurance. Mrs. Mathis is chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee.

She filed another bill that would create a legislative commission to study the budget practices of the University of North Carolina. Her resolution says current budget practices give the General Assembly little detail about the university's spending.

Park Buys Newspaper

NEWTON, N. C. (AP) — The daily Newton Observer-News Enterprise has been purchased by Park Newspapers, it was announced by the newspaper's owners Thursday.

The acquisition of the newspaper from C. L. Mebane and his mother, Mrs. Charles H. Mebane, raised to 39 the number of publications of the Ithaca, N. Y.-based Park communications group.

The group, which operates in 16 states, also owns 21 broadcast stations, plus real estate and outdoor advertising companies.

The Observer-News Enterprise, with 4,450 paid circulation, is published Monday through Friday. The Wednesday edition is an extended-circulation publication with 32,000 copies.

Roy H. Park, owner of the communications group, is a native of North Carolina and a graduate of North Carolina State University. He is a member of the university's board of trustees, and a director of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Raleigh.

"No state in the union offers better climate for economic growth" than North Carolina, and within that fast-growing state, "Catawba County and Newton, its county seat, rank very high," Park said.

He noted that the Observer-News Enterprise is a 100-year-old community newspaper which, he said, "offers fine growth potential." Park recently purchased another North Carolina newspaper, the Morganton News-Herald, and has part interest in the Karpolis Daily Independent.

Names Officers Safety Council

The Pitt Co. Safety Council met Thursday and elected and stalled officers.

H. P. Morgan is president; Al King, vice president; and Polly Hall, secretary and treasurer.

The program was presented by Bernice Lee and Merylene Lofton of Burroughs Wellcome.

Lee and Lofton told that safety and safety communication to all levels of employment are a major part of good business planning. Commitment to a total safety program can cause change for the better in the lives of individuals, they said.

Valentine, Hicks Selected In Draft

Two members of the East Carolina University football team were among those drafted yesterday in the first six rounds of the National Football League's annual selections.

Zack Valentine, a 6-3, 212-pound defensive end from Edenton, was the second round choice of the NFL champion Pittsburgh Steelers, while Eddie Hicks, a 6-2, 210-pound running back from Henderson was a sixth-round choice of the New York Giants.

Valentine's second-round selection made him the highest drafted Pirate ever. The previous high was when Carl Summerell and Carlester Crumpler were both selected in the fourth round during the 1974 draft. Summerell was also picked by the Giants, while Crumpler went to Buffalo.

Pittsburgh, according to Valentine, has plans to switch him to linebacker.

"I've heard that Pittsburgh has some very good linebackers, but they told me that's where they wanted to use me the first year. They want me to learn the system and I'll probably play some of the specialty teams, too.

Zack Valentine

Eddie Hicks

"I'm glad to be selected by a contending team, a good team like Pittsburgh," Valentine said.

Hicks, who is an outstanding blocker as well as a runner, said, "I'm very happy. It's something I've been working for since I started playing football. I'm pleased to go with the Giants and play in the 'Big Apple.' I think I'll be very happy with the team, the organization and players. It's a great feeling to be drafted. I'm just looking forward to seeing how far I can take my career in the next couple of years."

East Carolina currently has no active players in the NFL, but has several playing in the Canadian Football League, including former linebacker Danny Kopley, who has been a star in that league for several seasons.

South Carolina Visits On Old Timers Day As Pirates Close Baseball Year

East Carolina University closes out the 1979 baseball season Saturday and Sunday against the University of South Carolina. The two teams meet Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. and again Sunday at 2 p.m.

In addition, the annual Old Timers' game will be played Saturday morning at 10 a.m., with appropriate ceremonies throughout the day, culminating in a Saturday evening banquet.

A number of former Pirate players are expected for the game, including Skip Taylor, Bobby Joyce, Addison Bass, Fred Rodriguez, Lynn Smith, Joel Long, Larry Walters, Pete Barnes, Floyd Wicker, Dave Winchester, Pete Hunter, Roger Hedgecock, Gary Domanski, Wayne Vick, Paul Gay, Dave LaRussa, John Narron, Jim Martin, Ron Hastings, Howard McCullough, Neal Hughes, Richard "Rooster" Narron and Mike Bradshaw.

The matchup with South Carolina will pit the two teams that faced each other in the season openers for the Pirates. East Carolina gained a split in that game, winning the opener, 4-3, but losing the second, 5-0.

Since then, the Pirates have rolled up a 24-18 record, while the Gamecocks are currently 30-11, having won 30 now for six straight years. South Carolina is seeking a berth in the NCAA Regionals again this season.

The Gamecocks are paced on the mound by starters Bret Baynham, a lefty with a 6-1 record and a 3.48 ERA; freshman lefty Dennis Lubert, 4-1, 2.39; and senior righty Aaron Scott, 5-4, 2.86. Overall, the Gamecocks have a 2.75 team ERA. Their top relief man is Jeff Twitty, a lefthander who has a 5-1 record and nine saves. He has a sparkling 0.44 ERA.

Outfielder Mark Boatwright leads the hitting with a .333 mark, while second baseman Etienne Farquharson is next with .331 and has stolen 36 bases. Third baseman John Marquardt has a .304 average, along with ten doubles, eight homers and 36 rbi's. Others include designated hitter Ronnie Crapps, .288; first baseman Jim Curl, .280; outfielder Paul Hollins, .278; shortstop Greg Johnson, .259; outfielder Wes Westbrook, .248, and catcher Keith Taylor, .244 with seven homers.

Overall, the team is batting .271.

East Carolina's pitching staff is led by Parker Davis with a 5-3 record and a 1.53 ERA, while Bobby Patterson is 5-2 with a 2.33 mark. Overall, the Bucs have a 2.43 ERA.

Right fielder Macon Moye leads the hitting with a .336 average and paces the team in rbi's with 33. He also is the top producer of doubles with nine.

Two other Pirates are above .300. They are designated hitter-first baseman Max Raynor at .326 and center fielder Billy Best at .305. Best is also the top basestealer with 15. Amazingly, he has struck out only twice in 164 official at bats.

Rounding out the Pirates in hitting are second baseman Bob Neff at .273; left fielder Butch Davis at .270 with nine homers; catcher Raymie Styons at .222; catcher-designated hitter-first baseman Rick Derechallo at .213, with ten homers; third baseman Jerry Carraway at .208; first baseman Mike Sage at .183, and shortstop Mike Sorrell at .173.

The Pirates bat .253 as a team.

Butler, Little Pace Rose To Second Place

ELIZABETH CITY — Dee Hoggard paced Bertie High School to the Division I Conference track and field championships yesterday at Northeastern High School.

Hoggard won four events for the Falcons, the long and triple jumps and the 100-yard dash and the low hurdles.

Rose High School finished second, sparked by a record discus toss by Ron Butler, the only real new record of the day.

Bertie finished with 147 points, while Rose was second with 84. Northeastern was third with 78, followed by Fike with 67, Beddingfield with 43, Rocky Mount with 41, Northern Nash with 36 and Hunt with 31.

Butler was one of two Rose winners. Butler's toss in the discus of 155 feet, 5 inches, eclipsed Mike Meads' toss of 148-8/4 last year for Northeastern. Curtis Little was the other Rose winner, taking the shot put.

One other record was established in a new event, the 440-yard relay, won by Northeastern in :45.0. Hoggard, in winning the low hurdles, tied teammate Marvin Rankins' 1975 mark of 19.2 seconds.

Odom Names Aides To Basketball Program

East Carolina basketball coach Dave Odom announced the hiring of George Felton and Eddie Payne as assistant coaches for the Pirates yesterday.

Felton, a 1975 graduate of South Carolina where he played under Frank McGuire, joins East Carolina from North Carolina A&T State. An assistant with the Aggies the past two seasons, he previously served as a graduate assistant at Appalachian State.

A native of the Bronx, N.Y., he attended All Hallows High School where he gained all-city honors. At South Carolina he lettered two seasons and was an honor roll student.

Following graduation with a degree in elementary education and psychology, he began a master's degree at the South Carolina school. He plans to complete a master's in special education with concentration in mental retardation and emotional disturbance this summer from Appalachian State.

Payne, a former Wake Forest basketball most valuable player, joins the staff after serving last year as the head coach at Truett-

McConnell Junior College in Cleveland, Ga.

A native of Charlotte, he was initially a walk-on with the Deacons, but earned a starting spot on the freshman team and a scholarship as a sophomore. He was the assist leader as a senior when he averaged 15.5 points, second on the team.

He was chosen to the all-Big Four and ACC tournament teams as a player and was accorded the Arnold Palmer Award, recognizing Wake Forest's athlete-of-the-year covering all sports.

He played professionally in France during the 1974 season and earned his degree in speech communications and theater arts at Wake Forest in 1975. He worked the 1976 through 1978 seasons at Clemson as a graduate assistant.

He is 27 and single.

"I am really pleased that George and Eddie are joining East Carolina," Odom said in making the announcements. "I feel they represent what I have been looking for in staff members. They offer a healthy blend of experience."

Roanoke Rapids Tops Tennis

TARBORO — Both Williamston and Roanoke were eliminated from the field in the Northeastern Conference Tennis Tournament yesterday.

The tournament will wind up today with the completion of the semifinals and finals in the singles. All doubles play was ended yesterday.

For Roanoke, besides Riggs, Billy Stevenson lost to Dennis Rowland of Roanoke Rapids; Earl Riggs lost to Craig Stepany of Edenton; Ronnie Everett lost to David Hibbard of Edenton; and the doubles team of Gene Burns and Ricky Fernandez lost to Curt Arnold and Ricky Bonds of Plymouth.

Roanoke Rapids, with 29 points, has already clinched the title and has sent three of the four players into the semifinals. The other finalist is from Tarboro. Washington holds second place with 11, but Tarboro, with eight, can take that spot with a win in the semifinal round. Edenton is fourth with six, followed by Williamston, Plymouth and Ahsokie with one each. Roanoke failed to score.

Ben Selby of Williamston was the only Tiger to win a first round match, defeating John Riggs of Roanoke. He then lost to Mark Tayloe of Washington, 6-0, 6-2.

Other Williamston players included Kent Perry, who lost to Eddie Hurst of Tarboro; Joey Godard, who lost to Greg Short of Roanoke Rapids; Gary Bateman, who lost to Steve Hoard of Tarboro; and the doubles unit of Duke Douglas and Tim Rogers, who lost to Bobby Ashby and Bill Whichard of Edenton.

Roanoke Runs Past Ahsokie

AHSOKIE — Roanoke scored nine runs in the first two innings yesterday and went on to take an easy 17-5 victory over Ahsokie in a Northeastern Conference baseball game.

The Redskins scored four runs in the first and five in the second, adding two in the third, one in the fourth and five more in the sixth.

Jesse Matthews led off the first with a single and Glenn Cargile reached on an error. They both came in on Wylie Keel's base hit. Tony Whitfield singled to score Keel and he followed when Clay Roberson reached on an error.

Anthony Latham singled and stole second in the second. Matthews and Cargile walked to load the bases and Keel singled in Latham. Whitfield got a base hit to score Matthews and Roberson walked in Cargile. Wesley Johnson got a hit to plate Keel and Whitfield.

Whitfield and Steve Wallace were 2-2, Johnson was 2-3, Keel 2-4 and Latham 2-6 for Roanoke. Mike Roundtree was 2-3 for Ahsokie.

The Redskins are now 12-3 overall and 7-2 in the conference. They host Roanoke Rapids Tuesday.

Squaws In 4-1 Win

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke's softball team defeated Ahsokie 4-1 yesterday in a Northeastern Conference high school game.

Brenda Costen was the winning pitcher, while Rosalyn Dawson had a pair of hits for the Squaws.

Roanoke is now 6-4 and will play at Roanoke Rapids on Tuesday.

Bonnett Hoping Tradition Holds For Wood Brothers Car Sunday

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Neil Bonnett leaped through a NASCAR record book the other day, and found a few tidbits that caught his eye:

—Cale Yarborough won the 1968 Firecracker 400 stock car race.

—David Pearson won the 1974 Winston 500 stock car race.

—Also, Speedy Thompson won the 1960 National 500; Tiny Lund won the 1963 Daytona 500; Dan Gurney won the 1964 Motor Trend 500; Parnelli Jones won the 1967 Motor Trend 500, and Pearson won the 1972 Rebel 400.

Now, the interesting thing about all these seemingly boring statistics is that all those drivers were driving for the famous Wood brothers.

Yarborough's victory and Pearson's 1974 triumph in the Woods' car came in the 100th and 200th Grand National superspeedway races sanctioned by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

Bonnett noted that Sunday's Winston 500 will be the 300th NASCAR superspeedway race, dating back to the 1950 Southern 500.

The other victories listed were posted by drivers making their first superspeedway starts for the Wood brothers.

Bonnett also is making his first superspeedway start.

"I'm starting to believe I've got a pretty good chance Sunday," said Bonnett, who qualified a strong third Thursday in the first round of time trials for the $280,000 event. Darrell Waltrip and Buddy Baker earned the two front row starting positions.

"I've certainly got history on my side," Bonnett said. "Knowing all that stuff gives a guy an eerie feeling."

In addition to those statistics, there is another that Bonnett is well aware of: the Wood brothers Mercury, with Pearson driving, won three straight Winston 500s in the early 1970s.

"Glen and Leonard (Wood) and them know how to set the car up right for this track," Bonnett said. "Right now the car is handling real good, and we've got the horsepower. But we're fighting it with aerodynamics."

The blunt-nosed Ford-Mercury cars aren't expected to qualify well at the big tracks like Alabama International Motor Speedway's 2.66-mile oval. They pick up quickly when the race starts and they can suck along in the draft with the streamlined Oldsmobiles and others.

There is nothing wrong, though, with Bonnett's qualifying effort. In fact, the next fastest Ford product qualified 12th.

Pearson quit the ride after exactly seven years to the day with the Stuart, Va.-based team. Pearson is here this weekend, but he is just a spectator with no plans to race Grand National events again soon.

Lady Rams Unbeaten

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's softball team remained undefeated in Eastern Carolina Conference play yesterday as the Lady Rams rolled past D. H. Conley 13-6.

The win put the Greene Central record at 16-1 overall and 13-0 in the league. Lynn Shackelford hurled the win, while Melody Ham was 3-4, Lisa Speight 2-4 and Cindy Creech hit a home run for the winners.

Tammy Rouse and Harrington were 2-3 for Conley and Lisa Hardy was 2-4.

The Valkyries, now 10-5, play at North Lenoir next Thursday, while the Lady Rams will host Southwest Edgecombe Tuesday.

Conley 001 500 0-4 10
Greene Central 430 340 4-13 22

Jamesville Wins Another Contest

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's baseball team upped its Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference record to 11-0 yesterday with a 7-1 victory over Matamuskeet.

The Lakers scored first in the game with a run in the top of the third, but the Bullets scored one in the bottom of the third and then added three in the fourth and three more in the fifth.

In the fourth, Greg Sullivan doubled and scored when Clarence Thomas reached on an error. Jeff Rogers singled and Keith Waters knocked in Thomas. Danny Lilley walked and Trent Ange played Rogers with a sacrifice fly.

The Bullets are now 17-1 overall. They were led by Clarence Thomas, who went 2-3. Harris was 2-3 for Matamuskeet.

Jamesville's next game will be Tuesday at Chocowinity.

Chargers Top Pitt

BETHEL — Ayden-Grifton High School rolled to a 14-2 softball victory over North Pitt yesterday.

Ayden-Grifton scored single runs in the first two innings and added two more in the third and another two in the fourth. The Lady Chargers got in the sixth and three in the seventh. Both North Pitt runs came in the sixth.

A. Strong and E. Braxton each had three hits to lead the Ayden-Grifton hitting. No one had more than one for North Pitt.

Evelyn Artis was the winning pitcher.

Ayden-Grifton is now 7-7 and travels to North Lenoir on Tuesday. North Pitt, 0-13, plays host to Farmville Central on Tuesday.

Southern Nash Takes ECC Track Title

FARMVILLE—D.H. Conley's Bernard Hill won three events, but the best the Vikings could do against powerful Southern Nash was a second place finish in the Eastern Carolina Conference Track and Field Championships yesterday.

Conley added one more individual victory to its total to match Southern Nash's. But the Firebirds won two of the three relays and had more depth than the other schools to run away with the team title.

The Firebirds finished the meet with 139 points, while Conley was a distance second with 87. North Lenoir finished third with 79 points, while Greene Central was fourth with 69. Southwest Edgecombe finished fifth with 52, followed by C.B. Aycock in sixth with 50, Farmville Central, seventh with 37, North Pitt, eighth with 10, and Ayden-Grifton, ninth with four.

North Lenoir, Greene Central, Southwest and Farmville each had one individual winner, while Aycock had two. Southwest took the remaining relay.

Hill, who was selected as the outstanding track athlete of the meet, took first place in the long jump, the 440-yard dash and the 220-yard dash. Southern Nash's

Stanley Dunston was the only other dual winner, taking the mile and 880-yard runs.

Conley's other victory came in the 100-yard dash, where Curtis Joyner took first place. Other area winners included Timmy Williams of Farmville in the pole vault and Greene Central's M. Bynum took the triple jump.

The correct way to play certain card combinations should not be learned by rote. What might be proper in one case can be quite wrong with the same cards in some other case. Abstract probabilities are less reliable than clues obtained from the bidding.

Since South's spade rebid over the no trump response virtually guaranteed a six-card suit, North felt his hand merited one move toward game. South needed no further encouragement.

West led the king of hearts, then realizing there was no future in that suit, shifted to a diamond. Declarer won with dummy's king and ran the nine of trumps to the queen. A club shift was deadly.

The spade holding is a standard textbook problem. Where no information is available, the best percentage is to take the finesse. The chances are exactly equal that the jack will lose to the queen as it will drive out the ace. These cases cancel each other in frequency. But the finesse is superior when East holds both missing honors guarded with a low one—a more frequent occurrence than a singleton queen with West.

However, this play must on occasion be varied if specific information is available from the conduct of the adversaries. Declarer did not give the matter sufficient thought.

West had passed originally and did not enter the auction over one spade. He was marked with length in hearts and was known to hold the ace-king of that suit. He would quite likely have opened the bidding, or have over-called, if he held the ace of spades as well.

Declarer can afford to lose two trump tricks providing that West does not gain the lead in the process to shift to a club. Therefore, the safest play at trick three is the five of spades off dummy, putting up the king. As the cards lie, this will net an overtrick when both trump honors fall on the next round of the suit.

Assume that East started with the A-Q-8 of spades, or even all four missing trumps. He is entitled to make two trump tricks, but since he cannot attack clubs, declarer can simply draw trumps and eventually discard his losing club on the long diamond.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Frail Brezhnev Poses Curtailed Talks

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — New reports that Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev is frail and weak have raised the prospect that his impending summit meeting with President Carter may be curtailed.

At 72, Brezhnev was said to be mentally alert in his recent talks in Moscow with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. But his many physical ailments were evident, U.S. officials were told.

The assessment here is that Brezhnev cannot manage more than an hour's detailed discussion before tiring visibly. "If you tried to push him more than two hours, you'd be asking for trouble," said one U.S. official.

But the official, who asked not to be identified, said Brezh-nev's stamina varies from day to day.

One indication of Brezhnev's slipping strength is that the struggle over succession already has begun in the Kremlin. The situation is said to be similar to the periods around the deaths of Lenin and Stalin.

The main purpose of the Carter-Brezhnev summit is to sign a U.S.-Soviet treaty limiting long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

At the same time, Carter may announce a decision to extend trade benefits to the Soviet Union. And the two leaders could formally agree to ban interference with each other's satellites and other surveillance systems.

Carter also would like to hold detailed discussions with Brezhnev about reducing NATO and Warsaw Bloc foot soldiers, tanks and guns in central Europe and on a number of global issues, including the unsettled Middle East.

But if Brezhnev's health curtails the summit, what could be accomplished would be similarly limited.

Since 1974, the Soviet leader has had ups and downs of health, sometimes disappearing from view for six weeks or more, but returning with bounce and verve.

His ailments include some deafness and apparent jaw and breathing troubles. The time and place of the summit, as well as the agenda, have not been resolved. There has been some discussion with the Soviets, but the real negotiations on a site await completion of the treaty.

Education Bd. Votes Control

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education decided Thursday that it wants to keep control of the state's community college system. And the legislator who proposed a bill to take away control said he was shocked by the move.

The board unanimously voted for a resolution opposing legislation before the General Assembly that would set up a separate board for the 57-campus system.

The bill is sponsored by Sen. William Mills, D-Onslow, and supported by the boards of trustees of community colleges around the state.

Mills said he was shocked by the board's action.

"I thought we had the support of the governor and the chairman of the board," he said.

Mills said he met with Gov. Jim Hunt Thursday about the bill and said Hunt denied having anything to do with the board's vote.

But Mills said he doubted that the board would take such action without the governor's approval.

The board took a similar stand in 1977. But Dr. David Bruton, the chairman of the board, said at a recent public hearing that he favored a separate community college board.

In an interview after the meeting, Bruton said that he still favored a separate board but that he had decided to vote with the majority. He said both sides had valid arguments.

In other action, the board approved the appointment of two new community college presidents. Mrs. Neill McLeod was named president of Martin Community College in Williamston, and Wilmon H. Droze was named president of Piedmont Community College in Morganton. Mrs. McLeod is the first woman president of a community college in the state.

Dealers Cool To Gasless Weekend

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Some gasoline dealers in the country plan to close the weekend of May 17 to protest the government's gasoline-pricing policy.

But most North Carolina dealers say they don't plan to join them.

The dealers hope their gasless weekend will force the government to loosen controls on the mark-up they are allowed to make on gasoline prices.

But Max Pogram of Greensboro, central North Carolina president of the state Service Station Owners Association, said North Carolina stations "definitely will not" participate in a gasless weekend.

"We had a board meeting Sunday, and it wasn't even discussed. We had heard rumors about California, but there's nothing going on in North Carolina," Pogram said.

Most service-station operators in the state are satisfied with their profits, he said.

Associations in Arizona, California, Connecticut, Illinois, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Nevada and Washington support the gasless weekend, according to association officials.

The mark-up that dealers are allowed to charge cannot exceed the amount it was in May 1973, before the Arab oil embargo, plus three cents.

The gas station operators who plan the closings admit that the action will be an inconvenience to the public, but they say they hope drivers will fill their gasoline tanks beforehand.

"It wasn't our intention to hurt the public, but we don't know what else we can do," said Don Skilling, a spokesman for the California Service Station Association, which represents 2,000 of the state's 14,000 dealers.

Church Program Here Saturday

The Ebenezer Seventh Day Adventist Church is having a special program on Saturday, May 5. The church is located at 111 Raleigh Avenue.

Also, Sunday services have been announced, with the Sabbath School at 9:30 a.m. and divine worship service at 11 a.m.

The pastor, Willie Taylor, invites the public to attend and to worship with the congregation.

BUILDING FUND

Mill Chapel FWB Church will hold a special service to raise donations for the building fund Sunday, May 6, at 3 p.m. The Rev. Jessie Bryant will be the guest speaker.

The junior choir will assist in the services. The public is invited to attend.

$2,750 Damage In Three Accidents

An estimated $2,750 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:43 p.m. collision on Dickinson Avenue, near the Clark Street intersection.

A car driven by Lois Tripp Stepps of 1509 Allen St. collided with a parked car owned by Mary Coward Stocks of Winterville, forcing the Stocks car into a parked car owned by Livia Sheppard of Walstonburg.

Police, who charged Ms. Stepps with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $400 to the Stepps car, $1,000 to the Stocks vehicle and $100 to the Sheppard car.

Susan Woolard Ranson of Winterville, was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident, following investigation of a 5:05 p.m. mishap on Hooker Road, 78 feet South of the Sylvan Drive intersection.

The Ranson car, officers reported, collided with a vehicle driven by Irene West McDowell of 114 Fox Run Cir., causing an estimated $250 damage to the McDowell car and $600 damage to the Ranson vehicle.

Cars driven by Debora Renee Smith of Fayetteville, and Karen Jean Mills of Route 3, Greenville, collided about 5:14 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 1056 feet West of the Charles Street intersection, resulting in damage estimated at $100 to the Smith car and $300 to the Mills vehicle.

Dr. Nenno On Radio Program Volunteers Will Sponsor Studies

The mental health of college students will be the subject of weekly radio segments during May on "What's On Your Mind," aired each Monday at 12:55 p. m. on WOOW radio.

Dr. Robert P. Nenno, psychiatrist at the Pitt Co. Mental Health Center, will address questions concerning student mental health problems. Questions to be considered for future programs may be sent to "What's On Your Mind," Pitt Co. Mental Health Center, 306 Stantonsburg Road, Greenville.

The Juvenile Court Volunteers met at the home of Mrs. Brenda H. Teel, coordinator, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

A tutorial program involving the basics of mathematics and reading will be sponsored and instructed by the volunteers at South Greenville Recreation Center. The initial meeting for the tutorial services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. There is no fee for participation in the program.

'Only Solution' For Atlanta Prison: Shut It Down

By GREG MACARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — After nine slayings in 16 months at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, a federal task force concluded that the only real solution would be to shut down the 77-year-old, fortress-like prison.

Twelve months—and two killings later, federal prison officials have set 1985 as the "target date" for closing the maximum security facility but have "no solid plans" for hitting the target, according to Mike Aun, a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Prisons in Washington. "We've been trying to close Atlanta for years, but we have had to continually set back the date because of overcrowding," Aun said. "We can't make any firm plans until that situation eases."

The inmate population at federal prisons around the country has declined in recent years, but the number of those assigned to maximum security facilities continues to strain the system.

So, despite the series killings inside the walls of the 28-acre complex in the last 2½ years, the "Big A" is likely to remain in business for a while.

The first in the series of slayings took place about 6 a.m. on Nov. 26, 1976, when someone set 33-year-old inmate Ronald Bell on fire after dousing him with liquid paint thinner as he slept in his cell in C Cell House. Bell, who died four days later, was killed in a dispute over drugs, the FBI said.

Last Saturday, Harold Stansfield, 34, serving a 14-year prison term for distributing narcotics, was found stabbed to death at the bottom of a staircase in D Cell House. His death also was related to "some kind of drug deal," FBI Agent Bill McGrath said Thursday.

Of the nine slayings that occurred between Bell's and Stansfield's deaths, two were attributed to homosexual quarrels, two others to personal grudges, another to drugs and four to "contract killings," including the July 26, 1977, fatal stabbing of reputed underworld figure Vincent C. Papa.

Papa was believed to have planned the theft of $70 million worth of drugs from the New York Police Department, which had confiscated the drugs earlier in the so-called "French Connection" case.

By the time the ninth prisoner was found dead on April 10, 1978, U.S. Senate hearings on conditions at the prison had been held and a special federal task force was dispatched to take a first-hand look at conditions inside the prison.

During the Senate hearing, conducted last fall by U.S. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a convicted loan shark testified that drugs were easily available at the Atlanta prison and killings could be arranged for as little as $500.

When the special task force issued a list of 28 recommendations, its final suggestion was that the prison "be closed as soon as adequate and modern facilities are authorized and constructed."

But Aun said such a facility is not planned, and prison officials can only hope that the maximum security population shrinks to the point where Atlanta prisoners can be reassigned to other facilities around the country.

Meanwhile, officials at the prison say they have done much to implement the 27 other recommendations contained in the task force report.

The population has been reduced from more than 2,300 in 1977 to about 1,500. New locks are replacing old locks, some of which have been in place since the prison was built in 1902.

Metal detectors have been installed, new guards hired, inmates restricted in their movements and training programs instituted. In addition, the prison has adopted a "unit management" system intended to provide "closer supervision and bring inmates closer to services," according to William Noonan, public information officer at the penitentiary.

But Ralph Goldberg, an Atlanta attorney who represents some of the inmates, contends that the changes have done little to increase security while increasing "petty harassment" of inmates.

Prison sources say drugs are still available, homosexual rape is commonplace and inmates still fashion weapons out of everything from bed springs to tooth brushes.

Noonan argues that the improvements have been significant, and that the "only way to provide 100 percent security is to lock everybody up in their cells 24 hours a day."

Al Bronstein, director of the American Civil Liberties Union's National Prison Project, says the prison is just too old and too big and "the only answer is to close it."

He contends that the federal prison population could be reduced significantly by releasing persons convicted of non-violent crimes into community-based facilities. That would allow the transfer of maximum security prisoners to a few modern prisons and the closing of out-dated facilities such as the one in Atlanta, he said.

Aun says 70 percent of the 96,000 persons in the federal corrections system already are in some sort of community-based or alternative prison program.

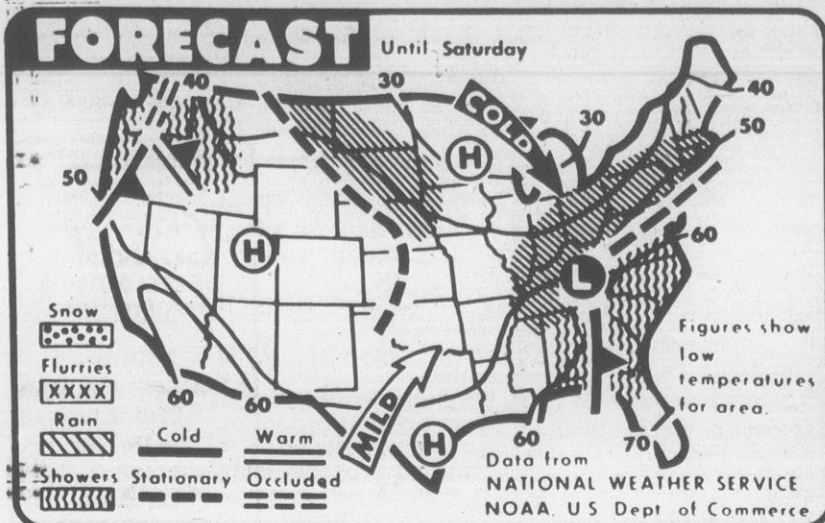

"You have to ask yourself how many more the system can absorb. We've already got most of them in halfway houses, on probation or parole or in alternative programs," he said.

"And part of this whole thing, to be frank, is punitive and hopefully deterrent," he said. "If someone is convicted of cheating the government out of $2 million in income tax, that's a non-violent property crime."

"But are you going to tell the public that some poor guy who sticks up a bank with a gun and gets $5,000 should do three to five years while the guy who steals millions gets probation?"

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning for most of the East. Showers are expected for the Northeast and rain from the South to central Plains. Milder weather is forecast for southern areas and colder temperatures in the northern half. (AP Laser-photo Map)

High pressure now well off the Carolina coast is supplying ample moisture to North Carolina that will be turned into showers and thundershowers over the state for the next few days. A cold front stretching from New England to Texas with a low pressure area over Arkansas will be moving eastward and cause the shower activity for the next couple days for North Carolina.

The showers and thundershowers may be heavy at times for the mountains and a flash flood watch could be possible for the North Carolina mountains later today.

Scattered showers developed over the mountains and spread east during the night. Only Greensboro and Raleigh-Durham reported measurable precipitation. Raleigh-Durham received almost an inch of rain. Fog developed over western sections of the state this morning.

Cloudy skies held temperatures down a bit over western sections of the state Friday afternoon. Highs were mostly in the 70s with some low 80s in the east where partly cloudy skies prevailed. Highs of 80 degrees topped the list at Fayetteville, Raleigh-Durham, Rocky Mount and Wilson.

Showers and thundershowers will spread eastward from the mountains tonight and taper off from the west on Saturday. Temperatures will be on the warm side today with highs in the low to mid 80s today except some 70s for the mountains. Humidities will be on the high side also. Lows tonight will be in the 60s with 50s for the mountains. Saturday will be a bit cooler with highs ranging from upper 50s to mid 60s for the northwest mountains to around 80 for the south coast.

Suspicious Of Teachers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Teacher prejudice may be affecting the school performance of black students, a preliminary report being prepared for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school board states.

Black parents, the report says, feel many teachers "do not feel comfortable with or know how to relate to black children and consequently do not teach black children well."

"It appears that the gap between the average achievement rates of black and white students increases with the time spent in school," the report continued.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Community Relations Committee is preparing the report, which grew out of a series of meetings between parents and school personnel, school survey forms and follow-up research.

The report also said that parents of black children are greatly concerned about the disparity in achievement and that some teachers, both black and white, do not expect children from low-income homes to learn and consequently give them little attention.

Jack Bullard, head of the committee, said he considered the major aspect of the report a recommendation that junior high and senior high students be provided instruction at their own levels in their regular classes.

"We hasten to suggest that we are not advocating slow, average and accelerated sections of regular junior and senior high courses. We are suggesting courses that would on one end provide for the development of reading and math skills ordinarily associated with elementary schools and at the other end provide for the development of skills ordinarily associated for college, professional or business training," the report said.

Revival Series To Begin On Monday

The Rev. W. B. Moore will conduct revival services at Mount Calvary FWB Church Monday through Friday of next week. Services will begin each night at 7:30 p. m. with a devotional service.

Rev. Moore is a graduate of Fayetteville State and N. C. Central Universities, and is a candidate for a Master of Divinity degree from Shaw University, Raleigh. He has been pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church here and is now pastor of Tenth Memorial Baptist Church in Philadelphia, Pa.

Various pastors and their choirs will render services each night:

- Monday, the Rev. C. Gardner of Selvia Chapel
 - Tuesday, the Rev. Luther Brown of York Memorial
 - Wednesday, Cornerstone
 - Thursday, the Rev. E. B. Williams, Philippi Church of Christ, Greenville, and
 - Friday, the Rev. J. W. Williams, Mt. Calvary
- The pastor, Bishop W. L. Jones, invites the public.
