Israeli Jets Again Hit Inside Lebanon

By MICHAEL PRECKER
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli jets struck into Lebanon for the second straight day today, bombing a Palestinian camp at the southern Lebanese village of Reihah, an Israeli military spokesman said.

Government officials said five of the dead were from one family, including a 1 1/2-month-old baby boy. A taxi driver who was in the area said the Israeli jets "hit a house where more than 100 persons were gathered for a wedding party." He said about 30 of the crowd were wounded, "and three or four of them died minutes later."

An Israeli communique said the raiders' targets were bases used for training guerrillas for raids in Israel. But Popular Front spokesman Bassam Abu Sharif claimed only civilian areas in the eastern part of the camp were attacked. A report from Beirut said four planes attacked the camp while two others patrolled nearby to ward off Syrian planes, no Syrian attack was reported, and the Israeli communique said all about casualties there.

Israel retaliated with four days of air, sea and artillery attacks in which about 60 Palestinian and Lebanese were reported killed before U.N. peacekeeping forces arranged a cease-fire. Israeli gunboats shelled Nahr El-Bared last month after guerrillas landed on the northern Israeli coast April 22 and raided the town of Nahariya. Four Israelis and two of the three guerrillas died in the raid.

In northern Lebanon, rescue workers dug two more bodies out of the rubble at Nahr ElBared refugee camp today, bringing to six the death toll from Sunday's Israeli air raid on the camp, provincial Lebanese authorities said.

Today's attack came after local news reports said Prime Minister Menachem Begin, in a speech later today, would urge the Lebanese government to negotiate a peace treaty and would propose that Arab oil states take in more Palestinian refugees, local news reports said.

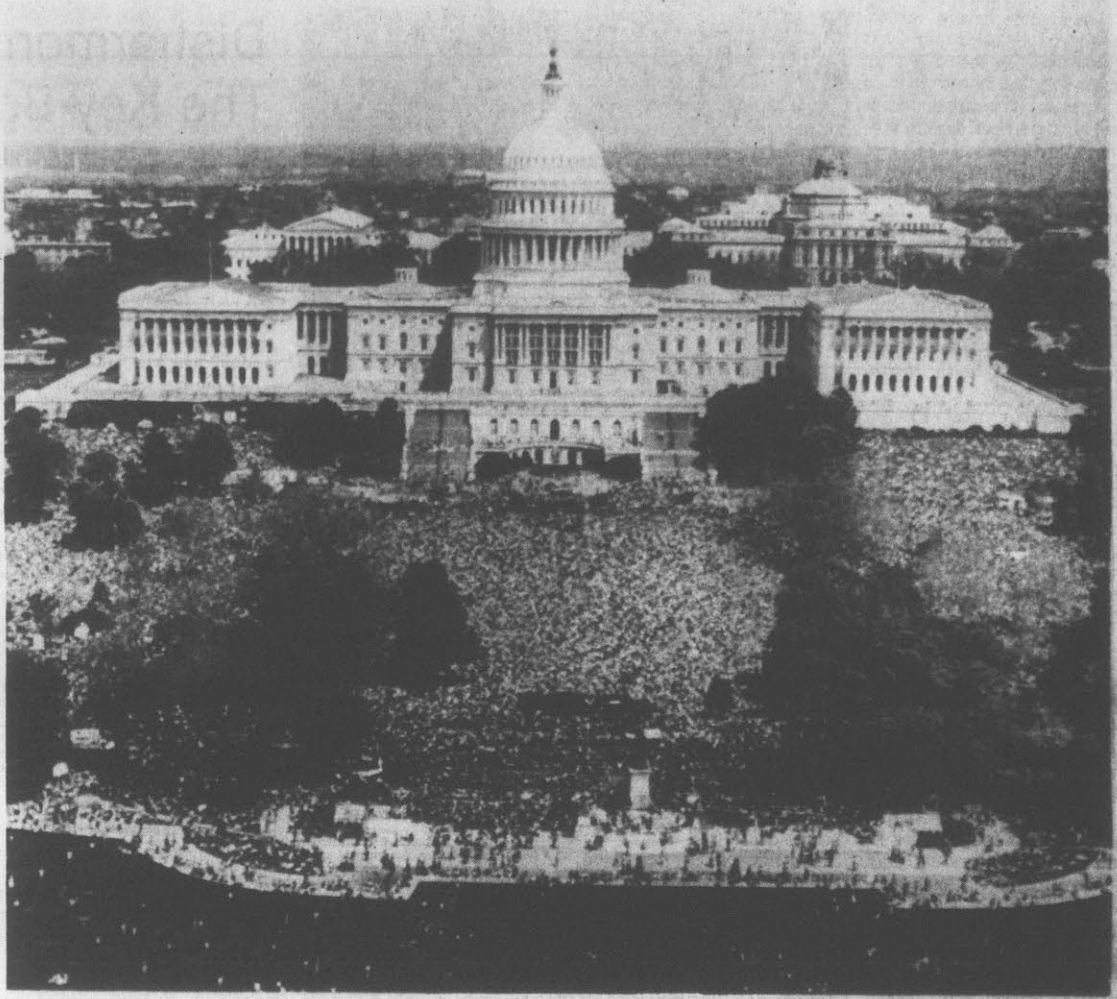

The 15-minute Israeli bombardment-rocket attack Sunday hit a stronghold of Dr. George Habash's Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. A Popular Front spokesman said 25 persons were wounded.

Industrial Park Study Gets Sum

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners met this morning for a routine session. Commissioners were told by Reese Hart, director of the Development Commission that 20 per cent of the new plants and 14 per cent of the new jobs located East of Interstate 95 in the past year, were in Pitt County. Hart also told commissioners that a $30,000 grant to conduct an industrial park feasibility study in the Ayden-Grifton area has been approved. The board approved a proclamation designating this week as Hospital Week in Greenville as part of the May 6-12 National Hospital Week program, and approved, subject to the approval of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority, granting the Greenville Utilities Commission a 100-foot right-of-way across a portion of the airport property for construction of a power transmission line.

the Agricultural Extension Service reported that a curb market will begin operations at the old fairground at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Airport Road in Greenville on June 1. The board was also told that solid waste container sites at Stokes and at Grimesland would open late this week or early next week.

Veteran Activists Stir Anti-Nuclear Power Rally

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Buoyed by the largest anti-nuclear rally in U.S. history, nuclear power critics say the questions they raise have become a national issue that could play a key roll in deciding whether President Carter is re-elected. While previous nuclear protests have been local and aimed at single plants, the demonstration Sunday at the foot of the Capitol took direct aim at the White House a mile away.

"Has Jimmy Carter deceived you?" shouted consumer activist Ralph Nader. The crowd roared back, "Yes." Pediatrician and former antiwar activist Benjamin Spock proclaimed, "Today the antinuclear power movement has gone national." Police estimated at least 70,000 persons marched under clear sunny skies from the Ellipse near the White House to the Capitol steps. Protest leaders put the number at more than 100,000. Despite the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant March 28, Carter has called for continued development of atomic power, although ordering a review of safety procedures. The president avoided the protesters, using other-than-normal routes when he left the White House briefly twice during the day. The rally took on a distinct political atmosphere as speaker after speaker lashed out against the continued development of nuclear power and particularly at Carter and his energy secretary, James R. Schlesinger, a strong advocate of nuclear power. "If the president does not replace James Schlesinger, then he himself will be replaced in 1980 and that is a fact," declared actress Jane Fonda, a star in the anti-nuclear movie "The China Syndrome." California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., made no effort to dissuade speculation he might challenge Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination and said he expects the issue to be fully debated in the 1980 race.

Califano Expresses A Hope For Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano said Sunday he hopes a negotiated settlement can be reached with the University of North Carolina in its dispute with the government over desegregation. Appearing on ABC's Issues and Answers, Califano said he hopes North Carolina follows through with a commitment to spend $40 million to upgrade its traditionally black universities. "The problem in North Carolina is a dual system of education, 96 percent of the blacks in the black colleges, 94 percent white in the white colleges," Califano said. He said the state's last two major appropriations for new facilities in the University of North Carolina system were $82 million for new veterinary and medical schools at predominantly white institutions. Califano's figures on enrollment in black and white colleges in North Carolina did not agree with those cited by UNC President William C. Friday in a recent address before the university's Board of Governors. Friday said 30 percent of all blacks in colleges in the state are enrolled in white schools. He said blacks make up 6.7 percent of enrollment in the state's traditionally white schools, while whites make up 10.2 percent of enrollment in the state's predominantly black schools. Califano said negotiation is preferable to going to court.

"I hope we can reach a settlement in North Carolina. We will lose a generation of college students that will not have a desegregated education while lawyers argue back and forth in courts across the country," Califano said. The university will go to court in Raleigh on Friday to ask U.S. District Court Judge Franklin T. Dupree to end nine years of confusion by the United States government. Dupree will consider arguments by lawyers for UNC — his alma mater — and by lawyers representing HEW. Dupree already has granted a temporary order blocking HEW from its enforcement efforts, a cutoff of millions of dollars in federal funds for the UNC system.

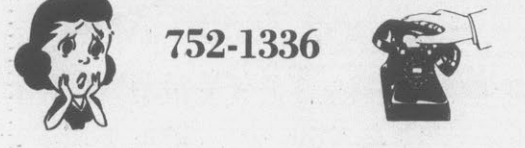

"It already is an issue. It was an issue in my campaign for governor. I don't think it's going to go away," Brown told reporters. He called on Carter to "give up his idea of streamlining the licensing process of nuclear reactors." The president is proposing legislation to shorten the time to get approval to build and license a nuclear plant. Gathering across the street from the White House, the protesters chanted, "No more Harrisburgs, no more nukes" as they began the march up Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol. The protest rivaled some of the largest Washington has seen in the past decade, including those against the Vietnam war, for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment and for and against abortion. Donald Ross, 35, a public activist lawyer and organizer of the march, said the protest marked "the politicization" of the nuclear movement.

Brothers Drown

CONETOE — Three- and six-year-old brothers apparently drowned in a pool near their home here Sunday afternoon. The children, Carlton Wade Faulkner Jr., six, and Leslie Allen Faulkner, three, were discovered missing about 4 p.m. Sunday, according to the Edgecombe County Sheriff Department. Sheriff Department officers and volunteers searched for the boys until discovery of the bodies was made in the pool about 6:30 p.m., a spokesman for the Sheriff Department indicated. The boys were the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Wade Faulkner, who reportedly had lived in the Greenville area before moving to Conetoe about three months ago.

IN JULY
Due to a couple of persuasive phone calls to Billy Rose's office in Raleigh, the signals at the railroad crossing on Fourteenth Street will go up in July, rather than much later as was reported in the Hotline column. I think this is a terrific improvement. Private citizens did it. Everything can be verified through Rose's office.

Thank you very much. Hotline has confirmed that construction on the crossing signals at the Fourteenth Street crossing will, indeed, begin much earlier than was previously announced. It was verified with State Highway Administrator Billy Rose that construction of the signals at this crossing should be completed by the end of July, provided that there are no unforeseen problems. Rose said the decision to move the construction date forward was made due to "the accidents that have occurred during the past year and the potential for accidents" at this crossing. "Based on the discussion we had with the railroad officials, they indicated that if we could authorize the signals' installation now, they would begin installing the signals mid-July," Rose said. "We have authorized and funded the project and the railroad has been authorized to proceed."

IMPLICATED?
CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Avianca's general manager in Venezuela is under arrest in connection with a record $34.8 million drug seizure at Simon Bolivar International Airport, police say.

More Vandalism

FARMVILLE — Vandals have struck again in Farmville, this time at the A. C. Monk tobacco storage facility on W. Horne Ave. The vandalism, discovered Sunday and reported to police at 4:40 p. m., included the damaging of 35 hogsheads, two forklifts, posts and walls and a fire door inside the building, plus the tearing down of 22 piles of hogsheads. Also damaged was a North State Motor Lines tractor-trailer truck parked adjacent to the building at the corner of Fields Street and Horne Avenue. A door was dented in several places and a brick, found on the seat of the truck, apparently had been thrown through a window. Damage to the truck was estimated at $350. Tires valued at between $17,000 and $18,000 were damaged by vandals at Farmville Implement Company during a recent weekend.

Suspect Arson

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP) — Fire heavily damaged Martin Community Action Center near the downtown area today, and authorities said arsonists apparently were responsible for the blaze. Fire Chief Tommy Price said the fire began in a hallway in the center of the building. No one was hurt and there was no immediate estimate of damage. A policeman spotted the blaze about 2:30 a.m., but flames had broken through the roof of the one-story building by the time firefighters arrived. The fire was the fourth in recent weeks at establishments in Williamston. The State Bureau of Investigation is looking into a blaze at a sheet-metal firm last week.

See World Oil Production Peaking In 1993

NEW YORK (AP) — World oil production is likely to peak "before the end of 1993" as the petroleum industry begins to run out of places to look for new supplies, but no substitute for crude oil is in sight, two U.S. Geological Survey researchers say. "Relatively few unexplored or lightly explored areas remain," said mathematician David H. Root and economist Emil D. Attanasi in a report prepared for delivery today to a conference of the Society of Plastics Engineers in New Orleans. "The dramatic decline in the discovery rate together with increasing annual production signal the coming of a time when the stock of oil in known fields will be inadequate to maintain the production rate," they said. Their study assumes a rising world standard of living will put increasing pressure on oil supplies despite the ready availability of coal and other energy sources. "Crude oil has maintained its important role as a primary energy source despite being higher priced than coal (when compared on the basis of energy output) because of its desirable physical properties," Root and Attanasi said. "Even five years after the (Arab) embargo and sharp price increases, no substitute has been found and none is anticipated," they said, adding: "As long as crude oil is an economically superior fuel, any country that shifts to an inferior fuel will put itself at a competitive disadvantage. Consequently, attempts to shift to alternate fuels by individual countries will likely encounter internal resistance." The U.S. oil industry is expected to spend about $24 billion on petroleum exploration, development and production this year, up 14.4 percent from 1978's spending and up 31 percent from 1977, according to a recent survey by the trade magazine Oil and Gas Journal. "The fact that explorationists have accepted the higher costs of moving into physically hostile areas" such as the North Sea and offshore Alaska, "is evidence that the world's petroleum industry is in difficulty," according to Root and Attanasi. "Offshore drilling is far more costly than onshore drilling, and the industry would only move into offshore areas, as it has done, if its onshore prospects were substantially inferior to its offshore prospects," they said. "The main problem in exploration, the researchers said, is that 'Je oil is found in large quantities in only a few places'."

Pat's Pointers

You'll have many an enchanted evening in this glamorous crocheted shawl, quickly and easily worked in an open-work stitch with diamonds and zigzag stripes done in popcorn stitch. For a touch of nostalgia, the shawl is edged with a flirty ruffle. It's made from cotton yarn.

To obtain directions for crocheting this glamour shawl, send your request for Leaflet No. PC-658 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-658 by sending check or money order for $11.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Kit contains the instruction leaflet and "Knit-Cro-Shen" yarn in your choice of black, white or ecru. Please include your name and full street address when ordering kit.

DEAR READERS: Have you ever tried your hand at working "woven plaid" crochet? It's a really fascinating technique for which you will find many uses. Best of all, it's easy enough so even the beginner can get excellent results.

First, you work in a mesh pattern, stripping it in a set color sequence as you go. This may sound complicated, but step-by-step directions will follow later in the column.

After the mesh pattern is finished, you thread a large-eyed tapestry needle with double stands of yarn and weave the yarn in and out of the spaces of the mesh, following the same color sequence which was used for the crocheted stripes.

Look in your box or drawer of leftover yarns and select four colors of the same weight yarn. Then, with a suitably sized crochet hook—such as a size C for sports worsted yarn, a size G for knitting worsted weight yarn or a size J for bulky yarn—make a chain of 36 stitches with one color. Call this Color A.

Make a double crochet in the sixth chain from the hook, then (chain 1, skip one stitch and double crochet in the next stitch). Repeat the steps between parentheses over and over across the row. Chain 4 at the end of this row and at the end of every row which follows.

For Row 2, skip the first double crochet, then (double crochet in next double crochet, chain 1). Repeat the steps within the parentheses across the row and end the row with a double crochet in the third chain of the turning chain. From this point on, just repeat the steps of Row 2 for every row. The first four rows are to be worked with Color A. Then, work two rows with Color B, three rows with Color C, one row with color D, three rows with color C. Repeat these 13 rows two or three times more.

RUFFLED SHAWL. is worked in an open-work stitch with diamonds and zigzag stripes done in popcorn stitch.

You will now have a piece of open-work crochet with horizontal stripes. At this point, cut two strands of Color A about 6 inches longer than the measurement from the top to the bottom of your piece.

Weave these strands in by passing under one row and over the next. Continue to weave over and under from top to bottom. If you are making something such as an afghan or place mat, just leave the loose ends hanging at either end for the start of a fringe. If you are making a plaid garment, you will, of course, have to work in and hide all loose

At Least Nine Die In Traffic

By The Associated Press
The state Highway Patrol says nine persons died in traffic accidents during the week-end.

That brings the state's highway death toll for the year to 469, compared with 470 during the same period last year.

The patrol said Thomas Lee White, 23, of Winston-Salem was killed Sunday when he was struck by a car that had been hit from behind by another vehicle. White was a pedestrian on U.S. 52 eight miles north of Lexington in Davidson County.

Perry Wayne Patton, 11, of Henderson was killed Sunday on a rural road in Vance County 1/2 mile east of Henderson when he ran into the road in front of a car that was passing another illegally parked in the road.

Emo Sipes Williams, 55, of Rt. 5 Mooresville, was killed in a wreck in Greensboro Saturday night. The patrol said she swerved her car to avoid hitting a parked vehicle, lost control and hit a tree.

Thomas Lee Richie, 34, of Augusta, Ga., was killed when his car ran off Interstate 40 25 miles north of Waynesville.

Donna Marie Condrey, 12, of Rt. 2, Salisbury, was killed Friday evening when she stepped into the path of a car on a rural road in Rowan County.

Billy Randall Narron, 16, of Rt. 1 Middlesex was killed early Saturday in a wreck on a rural road nine miles west of Kenly in Johnston County. The patrol said Narron was riding a motorcycle without lights which was struck by another vehicle.

Reginald Gene Stowe, 24, of Rt. 1, Selma was killed on N.C. 96 a mile north of Selma. The patrol said he was lying in the road when he was struck by a hit-and-run vehicle early Saturday.

Killed in a head-on collision early Saturday was Terry W. Nelson, 18, of Jacksonville. The wreck occurred on N.C. 24 ten miles west of Morehead City.

Disharmony From The Key-Bored

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing a Dear Abby letter, but I must speak out in defense of PIANO LESSON HATER, to whom you said, "I've had thousands of people tell me they were sorry they quit piano, but not one ever said he was GLAD he quit."

Well, now you can retract your statement! My mother was a piano teacher who made me practice an hour every day from the time I was 8 until I was 15. (I'm a boy.) I never was very good and I hated that kind of music. I finally talked her into letting me quit piano and take guitar lessons. I rented a guitar and worked at every odd job I could get to pay for my own lessons and nobody had to nag me to practice, either. (I loved country-and-western and ballads, and still do.)

I suppose I should thank my Mom for having exposed me to music in the first place, but when a kid reaches a certain age, he should be allowed to select his own instrument and his own kind of music. What do you think?

HATED PIANO—LOVES GUITAR

DEAR HATED: I think my answer was out of tune with one times. At least it certainly struck a sour note with most of my readers. Read on for more dishords.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't encourage parents to force music lessons on their children.

My wife and I decided that our son should take piano lessons when he was 9. He liked it at first, then lost interest, but we forced him to take lessons and practice an hour a day for three years.

Finally he persuaded us to let him quit piano and take clarinet. Then he quit clarinet and took trumpet. Then he quit trumpet to take guitar. After he quit guitar he took up drums!

The boy had absolutely no talent. It was a waste of our money and his time. In my opinion, forcing music lessons on children is a form of child abuse!

LONG-SUFFERING DAD

DEAR ABBY: I had piano lessons shoved down my throat for three miserable years. Practicing was punishment and recitals were torture. When I quit, even my teacher celebrated. She often told me she felt guilty taking my parents' money.

NO REGRETS IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR ABBY: This is an open letter to parents who are forcing their children to take piano lessons (or violin, trumpet, clarinet, etc.). STOP!

If you want your children to learn about good music, take them to concerts when they're small. Even if they don't pay close attention, they'll absorb something each time.

At Christmastime take them to a local ballet company's "Nutcracker." They'll love it. Expose them to opera by getting "Live From The Met" on your radio every Saturday afternoon. Even if they're doing something else, the background music will become more and more familiar each time they hear it.

And lastly, give them access to a good record player and fine classical records.

I spent five precious years (from 8 to 13) hating piano lessons, dreading recitals and feeling guilty about the hard-earned money spent on lessons for me. My love for classical music came from listening to records at a friend's house.

The parent who forces a child to learn an instrument should examine his own desires, and perhaps take lessons himself. You're never too old to learn.

SHARON IN ORONO, MAINE

DEAR ABBY: You said recently that studies on love-making revealed that the average American couple spent from 10 to 16 per minutes per act.

My husband related this information to his boss who commented, "Not me. I spend one minute on the act, and 29 minutes apologizing."

EVIE IN BELLEVUE, WASH.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Hospital Week Is Proclaimed

May 6-12 has been proclaimed by Mayor Percy Cox as Hospital Week in Greenville in conjunction with the designation of National Hospital Week.

Cox said that Greenville "joins the nation in paying tribute to the dedicated people who serve in the hospital of this community who provide skilled and compassionate health care to our citizens."

In his proclamation, the mayor urged area citizens "to take cognizance of this event and to participate fittingly in its observance."

The theme for National Hospital Week is "The Voluntary Effort—It's Working for You."

For 38 Years, Served A Volunteer 4-H Role

By JIMMY TART
Extension 4-H Youth Editor
SPIVEY'S CORNER — Someone said that a 4-H leader has a glorious twinkle in her eyes.

The twinkle supposedly comes from working with kids, helping, sharing and watching them grow and develop.

If that's true, no one has a larger twinkle than Mrs. Florrie M. Jackson of Rt. 1, Dunn, who has served as a volunteer 4-H leader for 38 years.

"There's nothing more fulfilling than to see a child get his first blue ribbon," Mrs. Jackson says. "It gives you just as much pleasure as seeing him win national honors."

Mrs. Jackson should know, for 12 of her 4-H'ers, including her six children, have been tapped into the State 4-H Honor Club. Membership in the some 1,200 member organization is a reward for outstanding service to 4-H work, a distinction that is reserved for less than one-half of one percent of the state's 4-H members each year.

Many of her 4-H'ers, including children and grandchildren, have won national and state honors for their project work.

Her club has been named the Outstanding Club in the county several times, and has received two safety awards from the North Carolina Rural Safety Council, according to Louise C. Deekens, Sampson County 4-H agent with the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. The club's safety booth at the Four County Fair in Dunn won first place for three years.

Mrs. Jackson was a 4-H member in 1915-17. She lived in Bladen County, about two miles west of White Lake, and had poultry and cooking projects. She went to camp in White Lake with Sampson County 4-H members.

"When my oldest son, James Wright, became eligible for 4-H at the age of ten, I wanted him to join," she said. "The 4-H Club was meeting in Mingo School during school hours and I volunteered to help out. We had 75-85 members."

"Then about 20 years ago, the club was taken out of the school and about 35 youngsters started meeting in homes here in the Mingo community. The junior club would meet once a month and the senior club would meet about twice a month," she noted.

"Mrs. Margie Warren of Roseboro served as a volunteer leader with me for 12 years."

Mrs. Jackson's oldest son, Bobby, won state honors in the 4-H Cotton Project in 1947. Then James Wright followed, winning the state soil conservation project in 1948. Her other children, Marjorie, Jackie, Gene and Blake, all won state honors. Marjorie and Blake won national honors and scholarships in food preservation and safety respectively.

Two other Mingo 4-H Club members have won national 4-H awards, and at least six others have received state honors, including grandchildren Glenn and Karen Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson has accompanied Sampson County 4-H'ers to camp three years, participated in a 4-H leader forum in Washington, D. C. and attended 4-H State Congress in Raleigh.

Mrs. Jackson, whose hobbies include watching softball games, growing roses, making ceramics and crocheting, enjoys making things for others' saying, "In giving something I've made, I'm giving myself."

Mrs. Jackson is a charter member of the Just-A-Mere Garden Club and has been active in the Home Demonstration (Extension Homemakers) Club for 50 years. Other activities include serving as a Sunday School teacher and treasurer at Mt. Elam Baptist Church and being past matron of Eastern Star.

Cost-Focus In Hospital Week

A nationwide campaign to contain care costs will be the focus of activities at Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital this week as PCMH observes National Hospital Week.

The campaign is called Voluntary Effort to Contain Health Care Costs. PCMH joins 6,400 hospitals around the country calling attention to this VE (Voluntary Effort).

VE, established in late 1977, is a coalition of hospitals, physicians, health insurers, health industry suppliers and representatives from government, business and consumer groups. The aim of this coalition is to provide leadership for an all-out assault on rising health care costs, PCMH Director Jack W. Richardson said. The national goal of VE, he said, is to reduce the rate of increase in health care expenditures by four percent during 1978 and 1979. VE is working, he said. Savings to the American people during 1978 was more than $1.3 billion.

VE has always been a theme at PCMH, Richardson said. He gave as an example the establishment in May, 1973 of the Ambulatory Medical-Surgical Unit. This unit, he said, has served the needs of more than 6,000 patients who need minor surgery or diagnostic procedures and do not need to stay in the hospital overnight. A patient's bill for a stay in the AMSU is about 25 percent less than if he had to stay overnight, Richardson said.

In recognition of Hospital Week, employees will be guests at a reception in the hospital cafeteria Wednesday, May 9, to pledge their support to VE, Richardson said.

Charge Driver In Accident

Esther Christine Johnson of Simpson was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign and driving under the influence, following investigation of a 1:45 a.m. collision today at the intersection of Pitt and Howell Streets.

Police reported the Johnson car collided with a vehicle driven by Johnnie James McKinney of Route 9, Greenville, causing an estimated $600 damage to the McKinney car and $400 damage to the Johnson vehicle.

Public Meeting

FARMVILLE — The Department of Transportation will hold a public meeting on the proposed construction of a connector between U.S. 264 and the proposed U.S. 264 freeway East of here, Tuesday.

The hearing on the 3.4 miles long project is scheduled from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. in the Colonial Room at the East Federal Savings and Loan building at the intersection of East Church and South Contentnea Streets.

Humane Society Reviews Plans

The Pitt Co. Humane Society discussed activities for Be Kind To Animals Week, May 6-12, during its monthly meeting held Saturday.

Exhibition posters were presented by Evelyn Beasley and plans to prepare and set up additional posters were accepted by members, Debbie Dail and Emily Farnham.

Membership Chairman Ralph Cottam discussed a membership drive scheduled for Saturday at Pitt Plaza. All members are invited to participate. Contacts may be made through Elizabeth Savage, president, or Ralph Cottam.

Mobile Park's Operator Slain

CAROLINA BEACH, N.C. (AP) — The operator of a mobile home park near Carolina Beach was fatally shot Saturday night after he apparently surprised burglars in the act of breaking into the office, according to investigating officers.

Deputies identified the victim as Russell Flolo, 43, and said he was dead when found by his father-in-law, Deacon Jones, owner of the mobile park. The body was found shortly after residents of the park heard shots.

Officers said Flolo had gone to the office about 9:20 p.m. and heard someone at a rear door of the office. They said Flolo apparently started to run but was shot in the back.

Officers said there have been no arrests in the incident.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Sunday Afternoon

Joyce Darlene McRoy and Redding Neil Elks were united in marriage Sunday in Trinity Free Will Baptist Church at 3:00 p.m. The Rev. Van Dale Hudson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby G. McRoy of Rt. 3, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Redding Bryant Elks of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white silkened organza over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a semi-empire waistline and high colonial neckline with seed pearls and re-embroidered alencon lace over English net, with long fitted sleeves ending with pearls and re-embroidered alencon lace over English net at the cuff. The A-line skirt fell into a cathedral length train bordered with re-embroidered alencon lace. A formal white mantilla of imported white silkened illusion was chosen by the bride. Her cathedral length mantilla was bordered with bridal pearls and re-embroidered alencon lace that fell from a Camelot cap of re-embroidered alencon lace and pearls. The bride's bouquet was a cloud of baby's breath accented with daisies and pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Tommy Cooke of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom was matron of honor. She wore a formal length sleeveless gown of blue organza over blue taffeta designed with an open neckline with double berth collar. The waistline of the empire bodice was styled with an inset band from which fell the full shirred tiered skirt. Her imported blue braid garden hat complemented her gown, with the blue ribbon of satin and a cluster of pink daisies at the bow. Her nosegay was of pink carnations, baby's breath and daisies.

Bridesmaids were Jo Lynne Hardee, Mrs. Jerry Jefferson, both cousins of the bride Windy Carrico, Darlene Hines and Debbie Evans, all of Greenville. Junior bridesmaids were Sharon Kay Wiggins, Becky Hardee, both cousins of the bride, and Lori Powell, all of Greenville. The bridesmaids wore dresses and hats identical to the honor attendants.

Heather Powell was flower girl. She wore a formal sleeveless gown of blue organza over blue taffeta designed with an open neckline with double berth collar, had an empire bodice styled with a satin ribbon at waist and tied with a bow. She carried a white wicker basket of pink carnations and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Bobby Joe McRoy, brothers of the bride, William Alvah Hardee Jr., uncle of the bride, George W. Darden III, uncle of the bridegroom, Gordon Sutton, Larry Baldree, all of Greenville, Tommy Cooke, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Robin Little, both of Winterville. William Adam McRoy, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a pink formal length sleeveless gown of chiffon with embroidered seeded pearls. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue gown featuring a V-neckline with long chiffon sleeves. Both wore corsages of pink sweetheart roses.

The grandmothers were all remembered with pink miniature carnation corsages. Nuptial music was presented by organist Mrs. Eloise Jackson and soloist Randy Sawyer. Vocal selections included "Whither Thou Goest," "More," "If," and "The Wedding Prayer."

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Peggy Paige. Mrs. George W. Darden III, aunt of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register.

A reception was given by the bride's parents in the church fellowship hall. The bride's table held two, three-stemmed candelabras decorated in pink and white, accented with springerli fern. The five-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Johnnie Wiggins and Mrs. Buster Hardee, aunts of the bride, after the bridal couple cut the first slice. Punch was served by Mrs. Herbert Powell and Mrs. Bobby Hardee, aunt of the bride. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Doug McRoy, Mrs. Wayne Elks, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Leroy Bibbs, aunt of the bride. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Worth Hardee and good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Corbett, aunt and uncle of the bride. Rice bags were distributed by George W. Darden IV, nephew of the bridegroom, and William Scott Hardee, nephew of the bride.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Rt. 1, Grimesland. The bride graduated from D. H. Conley High School and attended East Carolina University. She is currently employed with McRoy Insurance Agency. The bridegroom graduated from J. H. Rose High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute. He is currently employed with the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's parents at Three Steers Restaurant.

A bridesmaid luncheon was given by the matron of honor Saturday. The bride presented gifts to her attendants at this time.

Open House Tyson-Howell Vows Solemnized Sunday Set For Wednesday

STOKES — Open house will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stanfield Wednesday afternoon and evening, according to Mrs. Sue B. May, home economics extension agent.

The public is invited to visit between 2:30-4:30 and 7:30-9:30 p.m. to see the house's unique features. The house was designed to take advantage of the sun, using it as passive solar heat.

Michelle Arrowood, professional designer, worked with the builder from the beginning to the completed stage of the house. She specified all interior finishes and designed several space-saving features. She will be present during the open house.

"This is another educational opportunity being arranged by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service and we hope many people will take advantage of the opportunity to visit the Stanfield's home," said Mrs. May.

To reach the Stanfield home from Greenville, follow Memorial Drive north toward Bethel, turning right on N. C. 903, the Stokes exit. Travel through Stokes, continuing four miles east toward Bear Grass. The wood-sided house, situated on pilings, is located on the left side of the road. For information call 758-1196.

Members Hear Program By Dr. Congelton

At the May meeting of Beta Alpha Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, Dr. Joseph Congelton presented a program on 19th century Pitt County with a focus on Greenville.

He illustrated his remarks by showing slides of copies of newspaper articles and pictures of the era. Dr. Congelton is professor of education at ECU. The chapter celebrated the 50th anniversary of the founding of the society by remembering the purposes of the society. Mrs. Jessie McDonald directed the celebration assisted by Mrs. Edith Worthington, Mrs. Evelyn Blue and Miss Ruby Edens. Birthday cake was served to members.

ECU students Lynn Scarborough, a junior special education major, and Brenda Little, a junior English major, were presented $200 grants in aid by Mrs. Betty Ann Quinn, professional affairs chairperson. The funds are presented to worthy teacher education candidates.

Mrs. Frances Gwynn, who is retiring at the end of the current school year, was honored by Mrs. Phoebe Owens' reading of an original poem in tribute and Mrs. Jo Ann Leith's presentation of a Revere bowl from the Denna Kay Howell and Timothy Lee Tyson were united in marriage Sunday at 3:00 p.m. in the First Christian Church here. Dr. Will Wallace officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John William Ervin of Greenville and Mr. William Bryant Howell of Grimesland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Tyson of Greenville.

The church altar was decorated with two spiral candelabras twined with greenery and a crescent of white gladioli, pom poms and greenery. The church windows held white potted mums. The honor pews were marked with white satin bows and pink flowers.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white silkened organza designed with a colonial neckline. The empire bodice featured a sheer V-yoke, trimmed in floral Venise lace accented with pink rosettes. A ruffle enhanced the yoke and extended over the shoulders to form the sleeves. Wide pink ribbon encircled the waist. The A-line skirt featured a chapel length train and both were accented with floral Venise lace and appliques of pink rosettes. The hemline of the gown was accented with floral Venise lace. The bride chose a fingertip veil of silk illusion attached by a bow of silk illusion to a picture hat of white silkened organza to complement her gown. The hat featured floral Venise lace with pink rosettes and seeded pearls. Her bouquet was of pink roses, miniature white carnations and pom poms and baby's breath with pink and white streamers.

Brenda Foley of Greenville

was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of pink lustre glo designed with an open neckline and featuring a berth collar finished in lettuce edging. There was a similar edging on the short sleeves. The gathered empire bodice was centered by a pink silk rose. The full flared skirt fell from shirred stitching at the waistline. She wore a pink ruffled brimmed hat of imported braid encircled with pink illusion and featured an illusion rosette at center back. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations, white baby's breath with white streamers.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Pate of Goldsboro, Kim Harman of Ernul, both cousins of the bride, and Mrs. Ed Jones of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. Honorary bridesmaid was Karen Harman of Ernul, cousin of the bride. They wore gowns and hats similar to the maid of honor. They carried nosegays of white carnations and pink baby's breath tied with pink streamers.

Kathy Harman of Ernul, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress in shades of pink. She wore a pink silk rose in her hair and carried a basket of pink and white flowers tied with white streamers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Rodney Tyson of Stantonsburg, brother of the bridegroom, John Clark of Greenville, and Milton Morris of Farmville. Charles Tyson of Greenville, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of pink floral polyester knit and a double pink carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of blue polyester knit with a coat to match. She wore a double white carnation corsage.

The grandmothers were remembered with corsages of white carnations.

A program of nuptial music was provided by organist Tom Hawley.

A reception was held in the church parlor. The music of Tom Hawley was heard and the table was decorated with a centerpiece of pink and white carnations, flanked by white candles. Mrs. Keith Flory and Mrs. Helen Mahlum, great-aunts of the bride, served refreshments. Jerri Tripp of Greenville presided at the guest register.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bridal couple will reside in Greenville. The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and is employed with Silkscreens Unlimited, Inc.

The bridegroom graduated from North Pitt High School and is a self-employed musician. Mrs. Basil Harman of New Bern and Mrs. Keith Flory of Dayton, Ohio, entertained the bride-elect at a miscellaneous shower Thursday evening.

The Changes Won't Be Easy

Great Britain has suddenly pulled back from the sinking into a sea of socialism, with the victory of the Conservative Party in Thursday's elections.

The victory means that the energetic party leader Margaret Thatcher will become the first woman prime minister for, only England, but all Europe.

Not only did the Conservatives win, but they won by a surprisingly larger majority than had been expected. Prime Minister James Callaghan presented his resignation to the queen following the election which swept his Labor government from office.

England's economic problems have steadily mounted in recent years, as government became more and more involved in business. The election is evidence that the voters have concluded it was time to try another approach.

There is no doubt that Mrs. Thatcher will give the nation that new approach, since party lines have a stronger delineation in England than they do in our country.

It can be expected that the new prime minister will turn to free enterprise in order to restore a robustness to the British economy.

England has badly needed to come to grips with its economic problems. Making the necessary changes is not going to be easy even for Mrs. Thatcher, but the election has made clear that the political climate is now right for change.

Location Is Clearly Up To UNC Board

A federal appeals court has properly concurred in a judge's decision which would allow the establishment of a veterinary school at N. C. State.

The court said ample studies had been done to show the location of the school would have little racial impact.

Without question it is North Carolina's moral obligation to encourage minority enrollment in the veterinary program. The decision, however, on where the program can best be located clearly should rest with the UNC Board of Governors, rather than with the courts.

THIS AFTERNOON

A Bad State For Retirees

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Legislative leaders are intent on getting North Carolina off a military retirement blacklist which may be hurting the state.

This is one of four states which collect an inheritance tax on benefits paid to the survivors of a retired military person who dies.

And while the tax produces less than a quarter of a million each year, it could easily be keeping many times that much money from being generated through other tax channels such as sales taxes, income taxes, etc.

Actually, military retirees are "big business" in North Carolina because of the major installations (Ft. Bragg, Camp Lejeune, Elizabeth City, Goldsboro) at which career people sink roots then retire to stay. A recent survey shows 34,605 military service retirees living here with annual retirement pay of more than $254 million. Another 1,554 individuals were receiving nearly $4 million from the survivor benefit program.

Sophisticated
The time is long gone, says State Senator John Henley, when the military gave a retiring person little more than mustering out pay and a fare thee well.

"They're sophisticated, now. They have seminars and guidance counselors to help the people make the best decisions about where to retire, and how to enjoy that. "One of the things is help in analyzing cost-of-living factors in various states, and that is where the inheritance tax in North Carolina hurts. The retirees are told to avoid us," Henley said.

The tax results from a federal law which has permitted military personnel to buy into a survivor's benefit program even after retirement. Previously, the benefit was paid only when death occurred while on active duty.

The state Revenue Department held the benefit is taxable inheritance income. Henley and State Senator Henson Barnes have introduced legislation to end that tax by exempting military benefits paid survivors.

The two chairmen of the Joint Finance Committee agree that relief should be granted. They are "anxious to do this. The committee has given the proposal favorable attention, and final action will come when a final tax package is drawn up", says State Senator Marshall Rauch. State Rep. John Gamble agrees.

BILL NOBLITT

Military retirees are not the only ones of concern to legislators this year. Two other state tax laws which hamper ability to attract individuals here for retirement living are under fire.

Others, Too
The general inheritance tax law has been a burden, particularly due to inflated values of small businesses and farms. A major proposal is being worked on to provide relief, and to guarantee that the law is clear on the rights of the surviving spouse to title to property jointly owned.

Federal regulations, and an earlier change in state law, would have vested total ownership in the deceased spouse unless the survivor could prove active contributions to the purchase. This would obviously work against may wives who assume they own half the property, but lack records to prove this.

The intangibles tax levied against all bank accounts and other wealth such as stocks, bonds, and insurance has also come under fire as a detriment to retirees. A proposal by State Rep. Clyde Auman, to end the tax entirely ran into opposition from local governments which collect about $35 million yearly in local property taxes from the intangibles tax. But a compromise proposal to remove the tax from checking accounts appears headed for passage.

Problem With Profits

WASHINGTON — Handleman came rushing into the office of Wheeler Generous, chairman and chief executive of the Seven Sisters Oil Co.

"Good news," Handleman cried, "our profits for the first quarter of the year have gone up 110 percent."

"Oh, my God," Wheeler said. "How did it happen?" "It beats me. We just kept charging more and more for our products and people kept paying the price. We could have a record year. I thought you'd be happy, sir."

"You bloody fool, Handleman. Don't you see the implications of this? The President will say we're making a windfall profit on the gas shortage. Congress will demand that we divest ourselves of our retail outlets, and the whole country will say we're gouging them. Every Tom, Dick and Mary in the consumer movement will be after our scalps. Isn't there some way we can knock the profit picture down before the public finds out about it?"

"I don't think so, sir. The money just keeps pouring in. Brinks is complaining they don't even have a place to store it. If we start fudging our profits the SEC will be on our backs. We have to go with the figures."

"I was afraid of that," Wheeler said. "Where are we holding the stockholders' meeting?"

"In New York City, sir. It's the most convenient for everybody."

"We don't want it to be convenient. We have to announce these profits as quietly as possible. What about holding it in Harrisburg? No one will want to go there."

ART BUCHWALD

"I get your thinking, sir. We'll meet in one of our gas stations near Three Mile Island. That should keep attendance down and hopefully the press will stay away."

"Let's schedule it for seven o'clock on Sunday morning, when Walter Cronkite is asleep"

"Good idea. The news could get lost, especially if the Ayatollah Khomeini decides to shoot 100 more people that day."

"Now let's start working on my statement. I think I should say that I do not consider the first quarter profits excessive, considering that we intend to pour back most of our profits into new equipment after we pay the stockholders a reasonable extra dividend."

"What kind of new equipment?" Handleman asked, as he took notes.

"I'll say we're developing new meters for our gas pumps so they can accommodate a dollar a gallon and more at our stations. These new meters will be a boon to all our customers since gas station attendants will no longer have to add up our surcharges by hand."

Handleman wrote it down. "Why don't we start giving Tupperware away again if people buy 10 gallons of premium or more?"

Other Editors Say A Bit Of Irony

(Gastonia Gazette)

It is kind of a weird thing about that group known as the North Carolina League of Municipalities. It is financed entirely by tax funds from state taxpayers but it doesn't want the taxpayers to know what is going on.

The city councils of the state have to kick in a "fee" for belonging to the League. That means that people in Gastonia and Mt. Holly and Belmont, along with all the other cities and towns that belong to the League, are paying the freight for the League's operation.

At the same time, however, the League's lobbyists are busy hustling legislators for more secrecy in government. It is obvious that it espouses the theory that what the people don't know won't hurt them.

Courts across the state have seen the weaknesses in the Open Meetings Law that allowed elected public bodies effectively to have secret meetings by not having to notify the public about special meetings.

Now, the League's lobbyists are working for amendments that call for more secrecy in public transactions over real estate dealings and an amendment that would stipulate that public bodies do not have to notify citizens of non-scheduled meetings.

One of the easiest things for a public official to do is to move for an executive session. Behind closed doors, there is no accounting to the public. It's like they say in the song, "No-body knows... what goes on... behind closed doors..."

Especially the public. It is wry irony that the people who pay for the existence of the League of Municipalities now find that the League is working against them.

THE GALLUP POLL

Confidence-Balance Shift

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — The U.S. public today expresses greater confidence in newspapers than in television, in contrast to 1973 when the public expressed about equal confidence in the two media.

In the latest survey 51 percent say they have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of confidence in newspapers, while 38 percent express a comparable degree of confidence in television.

Six years ago, in 1973, 39 percent indicated a high degree of confidence in newspapers and 37 percent in television.

Of particular significance in terms of future trends are two groups — persons with a college background and young adults.

The survey shows a far larger proportion of the college group expressing a high level of confidence in newspapers (50 percent) than in television (30 percent).

Among young adults (18 to 29 years old), 57 percent indicate a high level of confidence in newspapers, but far fewer, 38 percent, give television a comparable vote of confidence.

Newspapers and television were among 10 key U.S. institutions tested in a recent nationwide Gallup survey. Organized religion tops the list, with 65 percent saying they have a great deal or quite a lot of confidence in this institution.

with the trend revealing relatively little change in public confidence since 1973.

Next are banks and banking with a comparable rating of 60 percent, followed by the military (54 percent), the public schools (53 percent) and then newspapers (51 percent).

Following in rank order are the U.S. Supreme Court (45 percent), television (38 percent), and organized labor (36 percent).

Next comes Congress with a rating of 34 percent, representing a decline of eight points from the 1973 survey.

At the bottom is "big business," with only 32 percent currently saying they have a great deal or quite a lot of confidence in this institution.

Following is the question asked in the latest survey and in three previous surveys:

"I am going to tell you a list of institutions in erican society. Would you tell me how much confidence you, yourself, have in each one — a great deal, quite a lot, some, or very little?"

Following are the results, ranked in terms of the percentages saying they have a great deal or quite a lot of confidence in each institution.

Strength For Today

SO BE THANKFUL

Young William Wordsworth, who was to become one of England's greatest poets, was one day walking across a moor in a very discouraged mood. He was brooding over his uncertain future and how little assurance he had of being able to make a living from his poetry.

Then he met an old man, and found out that even though he was very aged and infirm, he was able to make a living by catching leeches — still used by physicians at that time. The old man was alone in the world and had no one to care for him. Yet he was happy and cheerful.

To understand the uplifting effect this experience had on Wordsworth, one must read his poem "Resolution and Independence". Young Wordsworth was suddenly conscious of how much he had to be thankful for in comparison with the old man — youth, vigor, education and opportunity.

And the same thing could be said for most of us, if we would look about us and assess our opportunities.

Turn About Is Fair

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP)

"Turn about's fair play," my college landlady up in Boston always said, as she flipped off the Red Sox game on the TV set in the dining room and tuned in Cardinal Cushing saying the rosary.

I suspect she thought the diocesan communications center was equipped with two-way vision and His Eminence would know she was among the missing if she failed to catch the program. Or maybe she figured the Red Sox needed all the help they could get.

Anyhow Mrs. Neary, a skilled moderator at our boarding house dinner table, was a great one for giving equal time to the alternate side of any subject or "the other handle on the teacup," as she always called it. I had never heard the expression before or since, nor have I ever encountered a double-handled teacup, but in deference to her memory it is time once again to let the readers have a say in writing this column.

Turn about, indeed, is fair play, and a recent little essay I wrote on Irish relatives evoked in one reader some vengeful visions of foul play entertained by her Irish relatives against Protestant King William of Orange.

"It reminded me," wrote E. Irene Holland of New London, Conn. "of a curse my great aunt taught me over 70 years ago: 'Here's to King William across the Boyne waters, with a knife in his heart and a fork in his liver. May he never die and nobody kill him, till he goes to Hell and the Devil do mill him!' — Bet he is sorry he picked on the Irish. He must still be burning."

A column on the golden age of semi-pro baseball raised the dust of a hundred vanished diamonds across the land. A number of readers wrote in their reminiscences of the House of David, the Lancaster Red Rose and other great touring teams of that by-gone era. Jim Russell of Boulder Creek, Calif., recalled a team called "the Pittsburgh Hoboes" — they played the game in ragged tramp costumes and arrived at the field by climbing over the fence.

"My Dad had the advantage over me. He was able to go out and see local baseball, and good baseball too, all his life. A sunny Saturday afternoon at the ball park was a joy forever, especially after a hard week's work. It's sad, but it is no longer part of the scene. Was TV, or the automobile the death of hometown ball? Or was it Little League?"

"My compliments on great piece: tender and low-key."

And my compliments and my thanks to all the readers who write in and get me off the hook one more time. For days when the ship of imagination is foundering on the shoal of procrastination, one — Tina Moneoy of Atlanta — even suggested "an Armada cocktail: Spanish sherry on the rocks with a liberal infusion of Irish Mist."

Basic Foods Are Rediscovered

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the kitchens of the great food companies, where they dwell on technology and convenience, they are contemplating an anomaly, that the foods of the future might be those of the past.

Take pasta, which begins with grain and water. Every civilization has developed some form of it from local grains. It's been going on for more than 5,000 years. And now pasta is being rediscovered.

So are the basic ethnic foods of the Mexicans and Orientals. All have basic grain-based carbohydrates. They utilize meat, but they aren't dependent on it. They aren't, as the technologists say, meat-intensive.

They are relatively inexpensive too, which adds to their appeal. Pasta, for example, costs much less than beef, a fact well known to shoppers. Every time beef prices go up, pasta consumption does too.

The people at the Pillsbury Company, whose future depends on how you visualize your future, were musing about the changes a few days ago.

"When you go from a primitive society to an advanced society you get more meat consumption," said Malcom McNiven, vice president, marketing services. And sugar and fats too. Evolution seems to progress that way.

"But now," McNiven observed, "the trend has tipped." He brought out his charts; in developed nations, they showed, sugar and fat usage were high but falling.

Grains, chicken, fish, vegetables were rising.

In the less developed countries the situation was the opposite. The charts showed sugar and fat consumption, though low, were growing. People were moving more heavily into meat and away from pasta.

"Most developed countries might be becoming more like the less developed," said McNiven. They are turning back to basics, although they are seeking the basics in more convenient, easily prepared form.

This, of course, presents a challenge to the food concerns.

This is the turf of Dave Ehlin, vice president, business development. Quickly he seeks to dispel the notion that food companies dictate what the public eats.

The opposite, he says; the public gets what it wants.

"You can't sell the consumer what he doesn't want," he declares. He and McNiven recall how consumers rejected fabricated foods, sometimes called analogs. "You don't see soyburgers today," McNiven states.

In fact, they said, no research being done today at their company supports analogs, even though — while not trying to jam them down throats — some companies spent millions promoting the substitutes.

The future, they said, belongs to the consumer; the companies that supply him with food must react to consumer tastes. "We're spending more time bringing convenience and naturalness together," said Ehlin.

Honorary Degree For Rev. Bailey

FAYETTEVILLE — The Rev. James H. Bailey, minister of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church of Greenville, was presented an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Methodist College during commencement exercises held here Sunday.

Citing Bailey's "outstanding service to his church, his community and his fellow man," Dr. Richard W. Pearce, president of Methodist College, bestowed upon the Rev. Bailey the distinction of being a man who "sought real solutions to real problems with commitment to the Christian ethic."

Pearce said Bailey distinguished himself in Methodist circles with his efforts in the establishment of the Methodist Retirement Home in Lumberton and his service as a trustee of Methodist College. He is a former Staley Lecturer and district director of youth work. He is chairman of the Regional Commission on Higher Education for North Carolina and is chairman of the Board of Managers of Duke Divinity School and the N. C. Pastors School. An evangelist for the International Ashram Movement, he is the recipient, also, of the President's Medallion of Louisburg College. He is the author of "The Miracles of Jesus for Today," published by Abington Press of Nashville, Tenn., and is now working on "The Parables of Jesus for Today," also to be published by Abington. A graduate of Woford College and Duke University, Bailey has done graduate work at Syracuse University, Southern Lutheran Seminary and Yale Divinity School. He has served pastorates in Fort Mill, S. C., Saluda, Elm City, Wilson, Weldon and Lumberton.

Bailey is married to the former Helen Hill of Charlotte and they have four children, Marian, Herb, Kitsey and Scott.

'Respect For Law' Week

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed May 7-14 as "Respect for Law Week" and asked "all citizens of Greenville to join with the Optimists in carrying the message of respect for law to other citizens, and by example, exercise responsible citizenship."

Cox pointed out that "crime and its effect upon the lives and property of our citizens continue undiminished, despite efforts by government, citizens' organizations and many individuals."

According to the mayor, "the problems of crime touch and affect all segments of our society undermining and eroding the moral and economic strength of our communities and their citizens."

Cox pointed to a "reluctance on the part of many citizens to involve themselves in actions to insure the protection, rights and well being of their fellow citizens."

Optimist clubs and their members, he said, "continue to sponsor and support programs aimed at combatting crime and disrespect for law through year-round efforts."

Pitt Farmers Are Featured

Pitt County farmers, Robert and Eric Pierce, father and son of Farmville, are featured in the May 2 edition of "Southeast Farm Press."

The article, which begins on page one of the agriculture publication, tells of the Pierces' methods of controlling production costs during the raising of tobacco.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The leader of the North Carolina Council of Churches said Sunday he will ask legislators to delay action on a bill to liberalize the state's divorce law.

The Rev. Collins Kilburn, director of the council, said he had contacted several legislators and religious leaders after receiving an angry telephone call Sunday morning from Bishop Thomas A. Fraser of the 40,000-member Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina.

The bill's floor leader in the House said Sunday the bill might fail if opponents were not given more time for debate.

The bill, which would reduce the required waiting period for a divorce from 12 months to six months, is scheduled for a final vote in the House Monday night. If approved, it will become law.

Rep. H. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, the bill's floor manager, said he was among the lawmakers Kilburn called.

"Very little strong opposition has been voiced," Helms said. "I think that if church people really got out and worked on it, I feel sure they could have some impact on the third reading."

He said he had suggested that Kilburn call the bill's sponsor, Sen. James H. Edwards, D-Caldwell, and request that the bill be sent back to a judiciary committee or delayed for "a period of a few days."

He said since the legislation had only a 20-vote majority in the House, members possibly could be swayed.

The House gave the bill tentative approval Friday by a 54-36 vote. It was passed by the Senate last month.

Fraser said in a telephone interview Sunday night that he had first learned about the bill from news reports Saturday night.

"I called Collins (Kilburn) this morning and I told him that I was terribly surprised to read about this six-month period for divorce and I asked him what he had done about it," Fraser said.

"I told him I was utterly opposed to a six-month separation. I told him it was bad for the state, bad for the family and bad for the children," he said.

Fraser said the legislation would give North Carolina a bad image. "It will give the appearance that this is a state of quick divorce and easy remarriage," he said.

Uncle Sam A Big Provider

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 2.1 million Americans are listed on the federal government's payroll, but that number may be deceptive, according to a new survey.

The survey by the weekly magazine, the National Journal, found that for each government employee, as many as four more people may be earning a living indirectly from the federal government. That would include those who work for Uncle Sam through contractors, local governments or agencies or as consultants.

With a civilian workforce of about 100 million, one American in 10 may be earning a living from the government, according to the survey released Saturday.

Population Gain Poses Dangers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rapid growth of the world's population threatens many of the earth's biological systems, a new report says.

Because of that, a global policy to stabilize the world's population is essential to avoid the collapse of those systems, said the Worldwatch Institute report. "The lack of a population policy is a national luxury that the world can ill-afford," said Lester Brown, institute president. The world population is an estimated 4.2 billion and growing at a rate of 70 million annually, said the study released Saturday.

"An excellent thought. We could give a cup and saucer away with each purchase until people have a complete set. Also we might hand out a free poster of Seattle Slew to anyone having a tuneup and oil change."

Handleman said, "You're a genius, W.G. Those announcements will take people's minds off the profit business."

"I'll save the best for last. I'll tell the stockholders and whatever press shows up that, because our first quarter has shown a slight improvement over 1978, we intend to double our grants to Public Television in order to bring the American people the best British Broadcasting Corp. shows that money can buy."

"You're all heart, W.G."

"All right," Wheeler said.

"Get the speechwriters to work. Let's play this up as not a good year or a bad year, but one where we're managing to survive, which is all any oil company is trying to do in these inflationary times. And, Handleman, tell the sales department to cool it. If we have a second quarter like the first one I'll wind up being subpoenaed by a Congressional Energy Committee which will want to know what the hell is going on."

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF © 1979 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠K107 ♥1095 ♠AK9 ♠AJ87 Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What action do you take?

A.—With only three cards in each major suit, you really don't want to make a takeout double. We suggest you overcall one no trump despite the fact that, in high cards, you have only 15 points. Your excellent intermediates make your hand worth more than many 16-pointers we have seen.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠Q952 ♥J75 ♠A2 ♠Q853 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass 1 ♠ Dble. 1 NT Pass 2 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You have a fairly good hand opposite a partner who made a takeout double, and you should not allow your opponents to buy the hand this cheaply—especially since partner might also have a reasonable hand and simply have passed in case you wished to double two diamonds. Once you doubled one no trump to bid again, so don't disappoint him—bid two spades.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AK9872 ♥A10 ♠A2 ♠A102 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—If partner has the king and queen of clubs, you should have an excellent play for grand slam because partner can set up your spade suit for whatever discards he may need. The way to elicit this information is the Grand Slam Force. Jump to five no trump. That asks partner to bid a grand slam if he has two of the three top trump honors. Obviously clubs is the agreed suit—partner has done nothing to suggest that he has one honor, let alone two, in either of your suits.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠62 ♥AKQ ♠AKQJ ♠K1075 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have to find some way to show your strong hand. A jump shift to three clubs is acceptable, but we dislike jump shifting on weak suits, for if partner raised, we wouldn't be quite sure what to do. A jump to three no trump is more descriptive of both the strength and shape of your hand.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AJ94 ♥AQ83 ♠AQJ2 ♠A What is your opening bid?
A.—This is not the hand where you want to open the suit below the singleton—in this case, one spade. You have a very powerful hand, and you want to make it as easy as possible for partner to respond freely. An opening bid of one diamond may induce partner to show a major suit on a sub-minimum hand, which should be all you need to make a game.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AKJ105 ♥K943 ♠74 ♠Q5 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass INT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Don't let the honors lull you into rebidding your spade suit—you must make your natural rebid of two hearts. If you bear in mind that partner could easily have one spade and five or six hearts, you will see that a rebid in spades is the height of folly.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠K10643 ♥K9 ♠K4 ♠AQ52 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass 2 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has shown an unbalanced hand with what could be a marked aversion to no trump. To persist in no trump despite this is a vote of no confidence in partner. All you can do for the moment is take a preference to three hearts.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AKJ4 ♥93 ♠64 ♠K10975 Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—You intend taking at least two bids on this hand, so there is no point in distorting your distribution—bid your longer suit first. Two clubs is the correct response, not one spade. If partner rebids in a red suit, you can complete the description of your hand by bidding two spades. Note that you are still at the two-level; had you bid spades first, you would now have to bid three clubs, and your hand isn't quite good enough for that action.

By MARIA PALLAIS Associated Press Writers
NEW YORK (AP) — Hailed as the "star of the insomniacs," Johnny Carson kept more than 1,500 people awake while being toasted and roasted by show business personalities who honored him as the Friars Club "Entertainer of the Year."
Carson, who wants to leave the popular "Tonight Show" after 17 years as host, was entertained, congratulated, hugged and teased Sunday night by Bob Hope, Lucille Ball, Dick Cavett, and Kirk Douglas as well as his boss, NBC President Fred Silverman.

Silverman, plagued by NBC's low primetime ratings and the possibility of losing the host of one of his network's biggest money makers, was introduced by Hope as the "only man in America who knows what it feels like to rearrange the deck chairs on the Titanic."
"I got down off the chair and put the rope in the closet when I heard him on the show last Wednesday," Silverman quipped, referring to Carson's decision to stay with the late night talk show at least until the end of the year.

After "17 years of great monologue," the possibility of the retirement of "the busiest John in America" — as Bob Hope put it — was the evening's underlying theme, one that provided most of the jokes.
Through it all, Carson, accompanied by his wife, Joanna, was the perfect comic's audience, responding to each of the one-liners with a big laugh.
He spoke less than anyone, winding up the evening with a round of thanks to all his colleagues and only a few quips.
Carson did not elaborate on his retirement plans, which Miss Ball said "scared the hell out of me."

Heavy Mailing To John Wayne

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor John Wayne, who has volunteered to take part in an experimental cancer treatment program, is still receiving hundreds of messages offering prayers, best wishes and, in a few cases, cancer remedies, hospital officials say.
The 71-year-old Wayne was hospitalized at UCLA Medical Center after the discovery last week of more cancer during surgery to remove an intestinal blockage.
"He had a comfortable night and slept most of the evening and night," nursing supervisor Joyce Farish said Sunday.
On Saturday, Wayne was paid a surprise visit by President Carter, who reported Wayne "was in good spirits ... and made several jokes and thanked everybody for loving him so much."
Meanwhile, said hospital spokeswoman Melissa Wolfson, the love continues to pour in with letters and telephone calls from France, Great Britain, Canada and all parts of the United States.
"They want to leave a message or they have remedies they want him to take," said Mrs. Wolfson. "A lot of people just wish him well and tell him what great fans they are."

Cancerous cells were found during the surgery last week, said hospital administrator Bernard Strohm.
"The tissue removed certainly did have cancer throughout it," Strohm said. The actor's cancerous stomach and lymph nodes were removed Jan. 12 and he lost a lung to the disease 15 years ago.
Hospital officials have declined to discuss Wayne's chances of survival or how far the cancer may have spread.
Strohm said a physician would meet with reporters early this week to discuss Wayne's case. Confronted with the new occurrence of cancer, Wayne volunteered for the experimental research project, Strohm said.
The hospital administrator said he did not know the exact nature of the experimental program, but said it would be part of Wayne's overall treatment.
In more than 50 years of acting, Wayne has earned a reputation as a rough-and-tumble hero of war movies and Westerns. In the 1976 film "The Shootist," Wayne portrayed a gunfighter dying of cancer with one last gun battle to fight.

Every Night A Hit Show

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — On paper, ABC looks nothing less than invincible. Its fall schedule is a fortress, with every new show surrounded by a protective wall of ratings hits.
"This is the first time I can remember any network putting all of its new properties on a schedule with the kind of leads-in we're providing," says James Duffy, president of ABC TV.
What Duffy is saying is that ABC will begin almost every night of the week with a hit show, thereby force-feeding audiences a sample of the network's new shows, giving them a better chance to succeed. It is a device best employed, of course, from a position of strength.
The ABC lineup:
SUNDAY begins with the biggest new hit of the past year, "Mork and Mindy," shifted to a new time to combat CBS' traditional strength on this night.
MONDAY night is pretty safe for ABC, at least during the football season when a certain number of viewers are going to watch ABC's "Monday Night Football" no matter what the other networks are airing. When football is gone, though, ABC is weak, with a new cop show ("240 Robert") and "Family" taking over the night.
TUESDAY was the night that brought ABC to prominence, with its adolescent hit "Happy Days" and that show's adolescent spinoff, "Laverne and Shirley."

The dynamic duo has been broken, with "Happy Days" being expected to carry audiences into a new program called "Hart in San Francisco." "Happy Days" is one of those ABC hits that may be replaced.
WEDNESDAY should be a strong night for ABC, assuming that "Eight is Enough" continues to be a family powerhouse and that viewers are still taken by "Charlie's Angels." But if viewers have memorized the Angels' cleavage, if jiggle has run its course as a TV art form, then Wednesday would fall apart for ABC.
THURSDAY begins with "Laverne and Shirley," moved from Tuesday in the hope that it is strong enough on its own to lead viewers into a new program, "Benson," which is followed by "Barney Miller," "Soap" and the newsmagazine, "20-20."
FRIDAY offers "Fantasy Island" without its lookalike friend, "Love Boat." Whether it can stand on its own remains to be seen. ABC assumes it will, "Fantasy Island" is followed by the "Friday Night Movie."
SATURDAY could be big trouble for ABC. Its leadoff show is "The Ropers," a mindless, one-joke spinoff that drew big ratings when it was at the tail-end of ABC's blockbuster night, Tuesday. It is followed by another spinoff that became a hit by association, "Angie," then "Love Boat" and "Hart to Hart," a new show.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: In the midst of other duties, consider what your desired relations with others are, and if necessary make plans to have greater accord in the days ahead. Maintain a cheerful manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to be more helpful to associates and you also will benefit. You can now make a fine impression on higher-ups.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Analyze those duties ahead of you today and know how to handle them well. Take no risks where money is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get in touch with congenials early in the day and plan recreations with them for the days ahead. Think constructively.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to economize more now if you want to gain your most cherished aims. Don't neglect to pay pressing bills.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have good ideas that will help you have happier relations with your friends, so put them to work. Be logical.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day for handling an important financial affair in a most wise way. A monetary expert can give you excellent advice now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Know what you want to accomplish today and take definite steps in the right direction. Show courtesy to co-workers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day for investigating whatever is puzzling to you and getting the right answers. Let your intuition guide you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan to have more abundance in the future. After your duties are done, enjoy a group meeting with congenials.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to handle civic affairs and improve your standing in your community. Serve those who are less fortunate than you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have good ideas that will help you advance, so put them in operation quickly. Your hunches are accurate at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do something to please your mate more and get good response. Be sure to keep any promises made to associates.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will know how to find the right solution to problems of others, so direct the education along lines of the law, the theater, or in teaching for best results. There is a fine balance of a keen mind and physical prowess in this chart.

Gas Rationing Coupons Ready For Time Of Need

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gas rationing or no, your government is ready. Well, almost. The coupons that may someday keep the country mobile are buried under two feet of concrete. They await the day, if that day ever comes, when America must ladle out its gasoline — so much and no more — to every driver. There are enough coupons, 4.8 billion of them, to get rationing off to a good start if Congress approves a standby program being proposed by President Carter. But the bureaucratic machinery is not in place. Arthur Harriman, program analyst with the Department of Energy, says there would have to be "pre-implementation tests" to have a plan ready. There would have to be an accountability system. And decisions on distribution would have to be made. "Under a crash program we could do the pre-implementation work in six months and when the plan is at a readiness state we could be off and running in 45 to 60 days," Harriman said. "We're talking about eight months total." It took four months and most of the capacity of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving to produce the coupons during the 1973-1974 oil crisis. They were stored in a number of places until brought together at the army storage depot near Pueblo, Colo., in 1975. The coupons, wrapped like grocery store oranges, were placed in earth-covered, concrete "ammunition igloos" built in World War II. The "Pueblo Depot Activity," as the place is called, is humidity controlled by nature, receiving annual rainfall of less than 11 inches a year. The coupons, one-third the size of dollar bills, are printed 16 to the sheet and packaged in 100-sheet lots. A portrait of George Washington, identical to the one on a dollar bill, is on each coupon. "The idea was that the man on the street could see if he had a genuine one by folding the coupon and a dollar bill next to each other to see if the portraits matched," says Harry Clements, acting director of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Officials have taken a lot of flak for that idea. It was discovered early that mounting the coupon on a piece of paper cut to the size of a dollar bill allowed the coupon to be exchanged for coins in a dollar bill changer. "It wasn't an oversight in the sense that some people think it was," Clements says. "The coupons are really more valuable as coupons than as change." The coupons were left unnumbered and that, too, has brought criticism. "It would have required an overprinting process anyway, a separate step in production, Clements says. "And there was a question on whether there was any point in numbering a coupon used only one time."

Supporters Meet On School Bond Efforts

By REBECCA BUFFALOEO
Reflector Staff Writer
Members of the Countywide Steering Committee for Passage of the June 8 School Bond Referendum met Monday to discuss plans for promotion of the issue and to hear developments toward voter registration before the Wednesday, May 9 deadline. According to committee member Margaret Wirth, the League of Women Voters has contacted guidance counselors within city and county schools who are able to register school personnel. She also noted the work of Margaret Register and the Pitt County Board of Elections toward getting the voters registered.

A fact sheet will be available for distribution toward May 21, so that area advisory committees and civic organizations will be able to disseminate the information. Committee co-chairmen Dr. Jon Tingelstad and Jim Black have been scheduled to appear on "Carolina Today" and "Almanac" May 22 and 23 to discuss the bond issue. Mrs. Naomi Edwards, committee treasurer, reported that a total of $350 had been received so far toward the campaign budget. Members also discussed the financial significance of the bond issue, noting the statement of the Local Government Commission that a minimum levy of ten cents per $100 valuation would be needed to retire the bond. "This would mean that a person who paid taxes on a $50,000 home would have an increase of $50 in his taxes if the bond referendum passes," said Jim Black. Members also pointed out the significance of improving the schools, a factor in the attraction of new industries to Pitt County. When new industries consider a possible plant site, officials consider the quality of the available educational programs, according to Reese Hart of the county Industrial Development Commission. Also, when a new industry moves into the county, the ad valorem tax base is enlarged, allowing the county government to continue and expand services without increasing the tax levy. Diversification of jobs also occurs with new industrial development. Members also discussed tentative speaking engagements and continued emphasis on securing funds before the next meeting, scheduled for Monday, May 14.

Members heard from Dr. Ken Rollins, presently employed by the Pitt County Schools, information concerning media presentation of the $9 million bond issue.

Mother Of Year Award

According to Rollins, approximately $2,700 will be needed to finance radio, television and newspaper advertisements, as well as cover the expenses for brochure printing. Rollins noted that individual groups within the county communities may wish to run separate advertisements in the local papers, or that businesses may opt to run an endorsement statement in the regular advertisements.

The Pitt County Mother of the Year Award was presented to Mrs. Viola Boyd Sunday night at the Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church.

Solicitation Requests OK'd

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of four requests for solicitation permits in Greenville. Wyatt said the requests were submitted by: the Future Business Leaders of America of Rose High School for permission to conduct a bake sale on Evans Mall and at Pitt Plaza on May 19;

Joyner Library of East Carolina University for permission to conduct a merchant solicitation during June, July and August to obtain favors from local merchants for hospitality bags to be distributed to participants of the Symposium on Technology and Services in Academic Libraries; The Chi Rho youth group of First Christian Church to conduct a bake sale on Evans Mall on May 5; and by the North Carolina Joint Council to conduct a merchant solicitation from May 4-16.

Hold Children For Break-In

FARMVILLE — Two juveniles, aged seven and 10, were found by Farmville Police inside Sam D. Bundy School here Sunday morning.

The two were turned over to juvenile authorities after being also charged with the April 22 break-in at the same school. Officers said entrance was gained through a classroom window and that several other windows inside the school were broken, total damage, about $75. Taken during the Sunday break-in were 61 pennies and $5.70 in silver and two toy cars, Police Chief Ron Cooper said.

House Trailer Fire Kills Two

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two persons died Sunday when fire destroyed a house trailer in the Princeville community in Edgecombe County. Authorities said the bodies of Maggie Ray Hales, 53, and Willie Gray Hales, 38, were found inside the trailer after the fire was extinguished. The blaze was reported at 3:38 a.m. at the Forest Haven Trailer Park.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sustained another broad setback today amid expectations of higher interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, which fell 10.05 to a seven-week low on Friday, slumped another 6.76 to 840.78 by noon.

Declines outnumbered advances by a 7-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Recent expansion of the money supply has led the Federal Reserve to tighten credit, and brokers said more moves in that direction were likely.

In particular, there was talk that the Fed might soon raise its discount rate — the rate it charges on loans to its member commercial banks.

Rising interest rates are considered a negative influence on stock prices because they increase the attractiveness of interest-bearing securities, such as shares of money-market funds, which compete with stocks for investors' money.

Fairchild Camera was the only gainer on the active list, rising 1 1/4 to 55 1/2. Gould Inc. raised the price of its offer for 2.5 million Fairchild shares from $54 to $57 each.

The NYSE's composite index lost .63 to 56.13. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped 3.12 to 179.43.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.45 million shares at noon, up from 13.06 million at the same point Friday.

Plan Erect Bank Center

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Planters Bank announced plans Sunday to build a $2.5 million administration center and office plaza in Rocky Mount.

James B. Powers, president and chairman of the bank, said ground will be broken June 6 for the administration center, full-service bank and office park. It will be located near Nash General Hospital.

He said the bank will lease its chief executive's office near downtown Rocky Mount but will locate its computer operations at the new, 40,000-square-foot facility.

The office plaza, to be located behind the administrative center and bank, will feature 16 building sites.

"The construction of this new $2.5-million bank facility is a testimonial to our optimistic outlook for both the future of Rocky Mount and Planters Bank," Powers said.

Planters has 35 offices in 22 North Carolina communities.

Violent Boy Held In Jail

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A 12-year-old Robeson County boy has been jailed without bond in connection with the shooting and stabbing of a 76-year-old woman, who remained in critical condition today, authorities said.

Florence Barden of Rt. 1, Orum, was being treated at Southeastern General Hospital in Lumberton after being shot six times and stabbed at her home Friday evening, officers said.

The sheriff's office said the boy, whose name was withheld because he is a juvenile, was charged with assault with intent to kill and attempted armed robbery.

Deputy Garth Locklear said Mrs. Barden was conscious and alert when deputies and an ambulance arrived at her house at 7 p. m. Friday. She described the shooting and the stabbing, the deputy said.

Locklear said she related that the boy, a neighbor, had come to her home and was talking with her when he began shooting. She said the boy had never given her any problems before, the deputy said.

Officers later obtained a search warrant and found a .22 caliber pistol and a small pocketknife at the boy's grandparents' home where he lived.

"The judge allowed him to be placed in jail because of the seriousness of the crime," Locklear said.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman
 Farmers intend to plant eight percent more soybeans and eight percent more corn in 1979, based on the April planting intentions report.

This is the time of year for farmers to scrape together all the information possible and try to make an intelligent decision concerning cropping alternatives for 1979. Even though planting intentions have been reported, there are numerous factors that could alter those intentions before planting time.

So, let's examine the situation and discuss what farmers may want to consider before making the final decision.

Weather conditions in the past two years have reduced corn yields relatively more than soybean yields, leading some farmers to believe that weather-related risks could be higher for corn than soybeans. Corn also requires more operating capital than soybeans; therefore, corn is a greater financial risk in a period when many farmers are experiencing cash flow problems.

The corn-soybean price relationship has been favorable to soybeans in the last two years. More important, the 1979 supply and demand situation indicates that soybean prices will remain strong while relatively large stocks of corn will keep corn prices close to the level.

Farming is a risky business at best. Weather, disease, and insects are only a few of the factors over which farmers have little control. Therefore, it is essential that farm managers obtain all the information available to use in business decisions and reduce the risks attributed to the lack of relevant information.

One of the most important and accessible pieces of information relevant to numerous farm decisions is the cost of producing farm products. Every farm manager can and should know what it costs him to produce a bushel of corn, soybeans, or any other enterprise. This information would allow farmers to better project the costs and subsequently the net returns from alternate enterprises.

It is also important for farmers to understand different cost concepts and which costs are pertinent to the decisions at hand. The corn-soybean decision in a given year should be based on expected returns above variable or out of pocket costs.

What the farmer needs to know is which crop will produce the greatest net returns to those fixed resources available for use on either crop.

Stockpiles Of Gasoline Shrink

By The Associated Press
 Gasoline stockpiles are shrinking in many parts of the nation, especially when hit by the demands of weekend motorists, but the tightest supplies are in California where drivers lined up before dawn today in some areas.

In Ingewood, Calif., lines wrapped around the block from each of four pumps at one station for two hours before it opened at 7 a. m.

One 22-year-old Ingewood driver left a nightclub at 3 a. m. Monday and went straight to a gas station, where he parked and waited until it opened six hours later.

Elsewhere around the nation, however, some stations relaxed slightly now that they have received this month's allocations of fuel. Many of them had closed early and imposed dollar sale limits a week ago, when weekend traffic coincided with the bottom of April's supplies.

In Albany, N.Y., a local newspaper checked 110 stations Sunday and found 78 closed and 32 open.

Jim Benton, executive director of the Gasoline Retailers Association of Northeastern New York said he was surprised at the findings.

"I figured we would have 50 to 60 per cent closed Sunday in our area," he said.

One California driver, whose Volkswagen ran dry just as he rolled into a three-block-long line outside a gas station open near Dodger Stadium Sunday spent two hours pushing his car as the line inched toward the gas pump.

"As bad as it was, I was just grateful to have gas," he said. "A lot of lines I saw earlier in the day were twice as long."

Despite the shortages in California, tourist attractions like Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm — built around tourists who arrive in cars — reported business at normal levels.

Smoking Vote On Tuesday

MIAMI (AP) — Dade County voters may send a smoke signal to the nation on Tuesday — they're voting in a referendum on whether to sharply restrict smoking in offices, schools, hospitals and enclosed public areas.

If the referendum succeeds, "people all over the country will take heart and attempt it," Peter Georgiades, general counsel for Action on Smoking and Health in Washington, D.C., said Sunday.

The proposed ordinance would banish smokers to designated areas in almost all enclosed places in the county except homes, factories, tobacco shops, bars, pool halls, betting parlors, hotel rooms and boxing and wrestling arenas.

Smoking areas in lobbies and waiting areas would have to be partitioned and restaurants would be required to set aside half their available seats for nonsmokers.

Ms. Wilson was honored with a "Regional Summary Enterprise" Award. She will accept the award during the ninth annual APB meeting in New Orleans in early June.

Baker Crashes

Stock car driver Buddy Baker (28) throws a cloud of dust and car parts as he comes to a halt in the bottom of turn number one at Talladega

Raceway yesterday. Cars driven by Dick Brooks (1) and Dale Earnhardt bank into Baker. The wreck involved 18 vehicles, but no drivers were injured. (AP Laserphoto)

Allison Survives To Win Talladega

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — "Nowadays I really do watch out early in the race because there's so much going on. I don't know if I'm overly careful, or just in the right place all the time," Bobby Allison said after surviving three crashes en route to victory in Sunday's Talladega 500 stock car race. "I know you don't win a race until you go the last mile."

That strategy has now brought Allison three checkered flags this season — the most for any driver through 10 races on the Grand National circuit — and a solid second place in the season point standings behind Darrell Waltrip.

Waltrip finished four miles back in second Sunday, followed by darkhorse Buddy Arrington in the best finish of his career.

Allison steered through the middle of a brutal 20-car crash on the fourth lap of the $280,000 race that knocked out most of the frontrunners and inflicted minor leg injuries on Cale Yarborough.

"I was about right in the middle when it happened," Allison recalled. "There were four or five wrecking in front of me, and four or five wrecking behind me. I guess the Good Lord just drove the car through. I had a nice wide channel down the middle."

grass going backwards about as fast as they were going forward."

Allison and Neil Bonnett were about the only contenders to escape unscathed. They had a spirited fight for the lead until Bonnett retired 100 miles from the finish.

"About the middle of the race, a car lost a tire up in Turn 1 and I drove right over it. It bent up the floor but didn't hurt the car's performance," Allison said. "And near the end, Connie Saylor and Kevin Housby hit the wall right in front of me, but I was able to avoid it."

Earlier this season, Allison won the Carolina 500 when he evaded a 10-car crash on the ninth lap. He took the checkered flag at North Wilkesboro just as a wheel broke off his car.

"I really had no inkling Neil would blow when he did. It's too bad. If he'd stayed in we would have had one of those whodunit deals at the finish," Allison said.

Waltrip was Allison's closest challenger, and he was nearly a lap down. Two laps from the finish, even Waltrip faded, slowing down with a bad tire.

Richard Petty was three laps down in fourth, followed by rookie Joe Millikan. Waltrip, Petty and Millikan were among those who suffered damage in the 20-car pileup.

Allison said he was surprised no one was hurt in the big crash.

"It was a bad one. I saw one driver (Yarborough) being loaded on a stretcher, but nobody was running around very fast, so I didn't figure it was too serious," Allison said.

Yarborough said he thought his legs had been cut off. He had climbed out of his car after the wreck, when another car hit him and pinned him between the two wrecks.

"I thought it was all over," Yarborough said. "When I got pinned in, if it had been metal to metal contact, it would have been all over. It probably would have cut my legs off. But I was pinned against a tire."

Dr. J.L. Hardwick of the infield hospital staff said, "Cale's legs were numb and we thought maybe they were paralyzed. As time went by, though, he began to get some feeling back. He's all right now."

The wreck was apparently triggered by a blown tire on Buddy Baker's car.

"All of a sudden my car took off for the wall ... it's an awful feeling when the steering wheel don't mean nothing," he said.

Allison, who averaged 154.770 mph, collected $33,750.

Pirates Capture Finale

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Raymie Styons cracked a three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the tenth inning yesterday to give East Carolina's baseball team a 5-4 victory over South Carolina, ending the Pirate season as it began.

Some 43 games earlier, back on March 3, the Pirates opened the 1979 campaign with a 4-3 victory over the Gamecocks in Columbia, S. C. That was also a 10-inning affair, with the winning run scored by a Pirate home run.

"Isn't that ironic?" coach Monte Little asked after the game. "That is amazing."

The contest also marked the close of Little's coaching career at East Carolina. The three-year head coach announced his resignation Saturday night to return to school and pursue a Ph.D. degree.

"It's a difficult thing to leave baseball," he said. "I'll be gone for a year. Whether I get back into college coaching or not, I'm going to dedicate myself to young men and athletics. That's my life. That's all I know."

Styons said he was thinking of his coach's retirement when he stepped into the batter's box in the tenth inning yesterday with two men out and two on and his team behind 4-2. "I was thinking

I'd like to be able to keep things alive and pull this one out since it was the last game of the season and coach Little's last game."

Bob Neff had started off the frame by reaching on an error, but he was thrown out at second when Billy Best hit a fielder's choice for the Pirates. After a strikeout, Macon Moye singled up the middle to give the team runners on first and second.

That brought up Styons, who let the count get to 2-2 before he found a pitch he liked, a curve ball. The game was over as soon as the ball left his bat. It cleared the left field fence at treetop level. "The guys wanted to win it for the coach," Styons said.

It was a "well-played ballgame," according to Little, and closed the Pirate season with a 25-19 record. The Gamecocks, hoping to sweep this weekend's two-game series with the Bucs and cop a host site in the NCAA playoffs, are now 31-12. They finished 2-2 against ECU.

Sophomore reliever Bobby Patterson picked up the victory by pitching to just two batters. He replaced Rick Ramey, who had also hurled just a third-inning. Mickey Britt started the game on the mound for the Bucs and pitched 9 1/2 frames, giving up all four runs. He struck out 10 batters and allowed seven hits along the way. Patterson's record is 6-2.

The Gamecocks used a pair of pitchers. Starter Bret Baynham went 8 1/2 innings, while Jeff Twitty, the loser, hurled just one frame. His record is now 5-2, both losses at the hands of the Pirates.

Both teams scored in the first inning. With two away in the top of the frame, John Marquardt smashed the first of a pair of solo homers for the Gamecocks, poking a 2-0 pitch over the fence in left near the scoreboard.

The Pirates put two runs across in the bottom of the frame. Neff led off with a single to right, stole second and moved to third on a throwing error by the catcher. He scored on Billy Best's infield out. With two away, Moye doubled to left and Styons followed up with a triple to center field that made it 2-1.

The Gamecocks scored the final run of regulation play in the fourth when Marquardt led off with a home run to left, slapping the first pitch over the scoreboard, giving him homers in his first two times at bat.

Only three runners, two from East Carolina, reached scoring position for the next five innings. The Bucs blew a chance to win it in the ninth when Max Raynor singled, followed by Rick Derechallo's double and a walk to Jerry Carraway with two out. The next batter hit a fielder's choice, forcing Carraway, to end the frame.

Jim Curl led off the top of the tenth with a base hit for the Gamecocks, but was thrown out at second on Paul Hollins' fielder's choice. Ronnie Crapps walked and Little brought in Ramey.

He allowed Mark Boatwright to lace a single up the middle that scored Curl before forcing Robbie Vollmer to line out to right.

Little then put Patterson on the mound. He gave up a single to Greg Jonson that scored Crapps and struck out the final Gamecock batter to end the frame.

Moye set a new school record in the game. His 3-5 performance gave him 55 hits for the season, a new high for the Pirates. Styons was 2-5 for the Bucs and knocked in four of the five runs. Marquardt and Jonson were both 2-5 for the Gamecocks.

South Carolina coach June Raines, who was hit in the head by a line drive during batting practice before Saturday night's game, returned for yesterday's contest and was in the dugout, although he didn't work a coach's box.

Pressure Off Jockey

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ron Franklin, the kid who didn't get Spectacular Bid beat after all, says the pressure is off him now that he's a Kentucky Derby winner and the next stop in the Triple Crown quest is right in his own backyard.

Bud Delp, the trainer of Spectacular Bid, also knows Pimlico well, having been one of the leading trainers on the Maryland circuit for many years. Both Delp, 46, and the 19-year-old who has been riding for little more than a year, made their Derby debuts Saturday.

Baird Named New Pirate Baseball Coach

East Carolina Athletic Director Bill Cain today appointed Hal Baird as the school's new head baseball coach, succeeding Monte Little, who resigned Saturday to return to graduate school.

Baird, 29, has served three seasons under Little as associate coach for the Pirates, working primarily with the pitching staff. The Pirate pitchers have annually ranked among the nation's best and will finish among the top 10 staffs in the final NCAA statistics in 1979 as well.

He is a six-year veteran of pro baseball and for two years was listed on a 40-man spring training roster. He spent his time with the Cleveland and Kansas City organizations before joining the Pirate staff in 1977.

"Hal is an excellent young coach and will mean a lot to our program," said Cain. "He has been a part of East Carolina baseball for a long time, both as a player and a coach. I feel fortunate that we have a man of his calibre to lead our baseball program for the future."

Melvin Wins Twice

RICHMOND, Va. — Otis Melvin of East Carolina won two events to highlight the Richmond Invitational track and field meet Sunday afternoon.

The Pirate sprinter captured the 100 meters in :10.79 and the 200 in :21.33 to become the only double winner of the meet.

Teammate Darryl McCoy claimed first place in the long jump at 24-9/4, while Marvin Rankins won the high hurdles in :14.22 with Valentino Robinson third at :14.47.

Russell Parker of ECU took third in the high jump at 6-10, while teammate Bill Miller finished fourth in the 1,500 meters at 3:49.

Suns Get First Win Overs Sonics

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Seattle felt it just had an off day, while Phoenix thought it had finally put things together.

The outcome, however, was indisputable: Phoenix had pulled out a 113-103 victory Sunday before a sellout crowd of 12,660 at Veterans Memorial Coliseum. The victory cut Seattle's lead in the best-of-seven, NBA Western Conference championship series to 2-1, with Game 4 slated for Tuesday night in Phoenix.

"We just had much better defensive aggressiveness," explained Suns Coach John MacLeod, whose club has won all six playoff games it's played at home this year.

"There was an improvement in defense, and we had some good fast break opportunities. I think we could be more aggressive, although I thought our effort was good."

In the first game of the series, the SuperSonics out-rebounded the Suns 56-45 and coasted to a 108-93 victory. In Game 2, the Suns offense improved, but Seattle took a 59-38 edge in rebounding and a 103-96 victory.

Sunday, Phoenix sliced Seattle's rebounding margin to 52-46. At the same time, the Suns won the battle on the offensive boards 24-19.

"You can only give them one shot," said Lenny Wilkins, whose SuperSonics are the defending conference champions. "You can't allow a team two or three shots, and that hurt us."

At the same time, Wilkins doesn't think the victory was due to so much to what the Suns did but what the SuperSonics didn't do.

"They did a better job because we allowed it," said Wilkins. "We played very poorly as a team. I thought at times we were too much in a hurry ...we threw the ball away (31 turnovers) ...we took hurried shots."

MacLeod attributed Seattle's turnover problems to pressure by the Suns, while Wilkins maintained the Suns were able to get into their running game because "one team played badly."

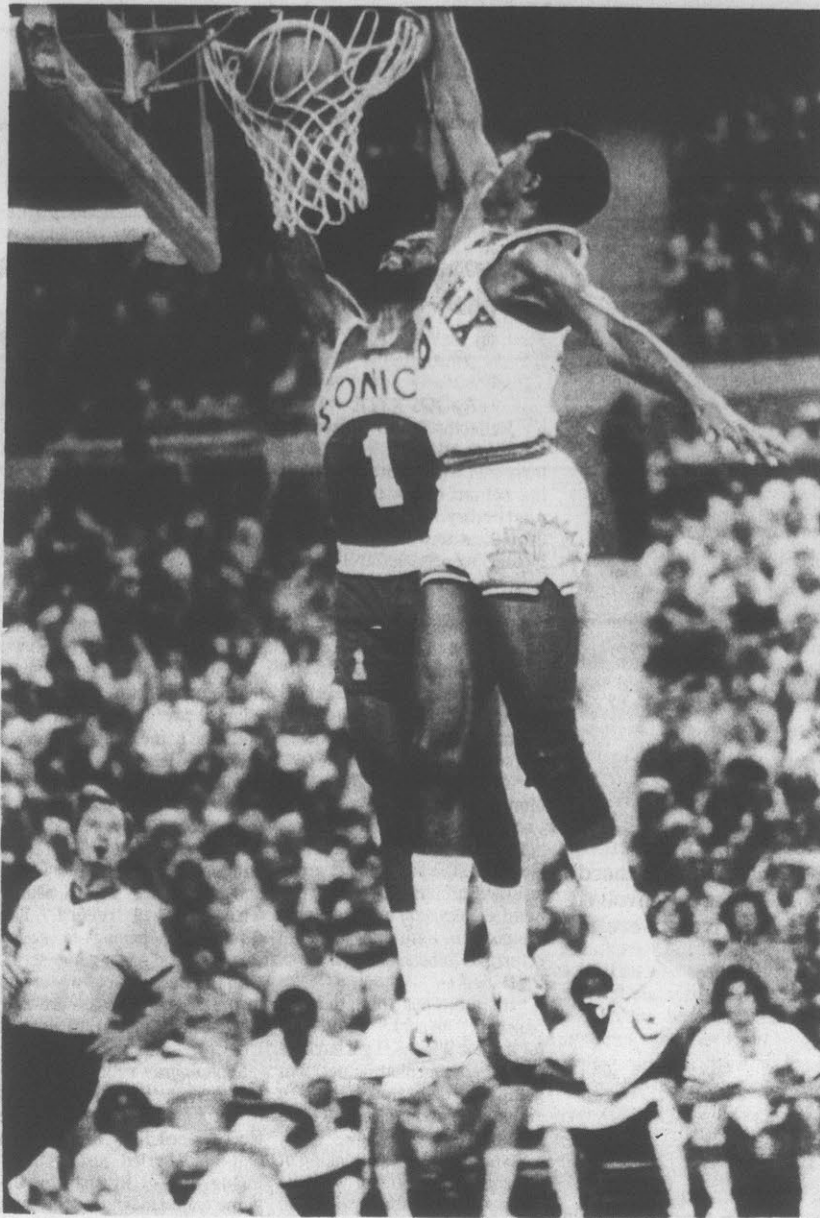

Gus Williams led all scorers with 35 points, including 24 in the opening half, while forward John Johnson added 17 and guard Dennis Johnson had 15 in the losing effort.

Seattle led 61-60 at halftime, and the lead changed hands nine times in the third period.

But the Suns started a scoring spurt with 1:47 left in the third quarter that put them up 82-75 at the buzzer and saw them outscore Seattle 1:4 at the start of the final quarter to take a 17-point lead, 94-77, with 8:40 to go in the game.

Seattle never got closer than 10 from then on.

The Suns got 25 points from guard Paul Westphal, while forward Walter Davis added 2 and forward Len "Truck" Robinson 21.

Slump Rubs Off

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt came to Los Angeles with a batting slump that might have rubbed off on the Dodgers. He left with five home runs and nine runs batted in for the series while Los Angeles went scoreless 21 consecutive innings.

Schmidt was 0-for-17 until the ninth inning of Thursday night's series-opening contest. Then, after striking out three times against Rick Sutcliffe, he blasted one of the rookie's pitches for a homer.

"I was thinking then it might be a stepping stone," said Schmidt, who couldn't have been more correct. He hit one more Friday night, two on Saturday and another Sunday in the Phillies' 4-0 triumph.

"I hope this streak doesn't end," said Schmidt, "but I'm realistic enough to know I'm not a .300 hitter."

But Schmidt, with a .255 lifetime batting average in six full National League seasons, is a long-ball hitter. His homer Sunday was his ninth of the season and the 199th of his career.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, seem to have picked up where Schmidt's slump left off. They got six hits Sunday, as Nino Espinosa threw his second shutout of the season, and suffered their sixth loss in seven games.

The defeat also was their sixth in seven games against the Phillies.

Philadelphia pitching easily outdid the Dodgers' staff in the last two games of the series. The Phillies roughed up Los Angeles for 11 runs Saturday night and the four Sunday.

Doug Rau, 0-4, was the victim of Schmidt's two-run shot.

Expos 7, Padres 5

Gary Carter's fifth-inning grand slam capped a five-run Montreal burst against Gaylord Perry and carried the Expos past the Padres.

The Expos led 7-0 before Bill Lee, 4-0, gave up five seventhinning runs.

Mets 5, Giants 4

Doug Flynn's run-scoring single with two out in the eighth inning capped a four-run rally and lifted the Mets over the Giants. San Francisco, which had a four-game winning streak snapped, built a 4-1 lead before New York came back.

Cubs 14, Braves 13

Tim Lincecum's windblown triple and Scot Thompson's pinch single gave the Cubs the extra point in their runfest.

"Fourteen runs and you still have to struggle like the devil to win," exclaimed Cubs Manager Herman Franks.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 2

Ted Simmons' sixth-inning homer snapped a 1-1 tie and helped St. Louis beat Pittsburgh.

Reds 17-2, Astros 5-8

Cincinnati's Champ Summers, unimpressed by the imposing figure of 6-foot-8 Houston pitcher J.R. Richard, drove in five runs to help the Reds paste the Astros in the opener. Summers added a three-run homer in a perfect 4-for-4 first game at the plate.

Enos Cabell and pitcher Frank Ricceilli drove in three runs each to pace the Astros in the nightcap.

Cubans Gracious Losers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The first Cuban track athletes to run in the United States in 18 years were not in top form and did not win an event at the UCLA Invitational meet. But they were extremely gracious losers.

"I wanted to come to the United States and have the experience," said Alberto Juantorena, the famed "Cuban Horse" who won two gold medals in the 1976 Olympics. "I think it is good for relations between the two countries."

Juantorena finished third Sunday in the 400 meters behind winner Willie Smith and runnerup Herman Frazier. Afterward, he congratulated and hugged Smith, who called the victory "the biggest win of my life."

For the second time in a month, University of Maryland sophomore Renaldo Nehemiah rewrote the world record in the 110-meter hurdles. Last month, he clocked a 13.16 and cut that down to 13.00 on Sunday.

Another of Cuba's five-man, three-woman contingent, Alejandro Casanas, was second at 13.23, and Dedy Cooper third at 13.72. Greg Foster, former American record holder at 13.22, fell on the fourth hurdle and did not finish.

Casanas, was not upset.

"This was a very tough competition and I am not really disappointed in the result because it is too early in the season," said Casanas.

"Nehemiah is No.1, but in my opinion, the one with the most opportunity to run faster is Foster. Foster is four inches taller. When he wants to beat Nehemiah," continued Casanas, "I think he will do it."

Levi Can Relax Now

HOUSTON (AP)—Wayne Levi, suddenly possessed of the first individual title of his brief pro golf career, has a plan for the rest of the PGA tour season.

"I'm gonna relax and take it easy for the rest of the year," the physically and emotionally exhausted Levi said Sunday after scoring a 2-stroke victory in the 36-hole windup of the Houston Open golf tournament.

"Oh, I'm going to play, but I'm not going to worry about it," said Levi, a 26-year-old who is finishing his second full year of tour activity.

In other words, his season is made.

The victory, built on a course-record 9-under-par 63 for the first 18 holes of the two-round Sunday windup, gained for him: his first invitation to the Masters, in 1980; a spot in the Tournament of Champions; the sure knowledge he'll be exempt from qualifying for the 1980 season; and, with $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000, gave him a very respectable $117,034 in earnings for the season.

As for the rest of the year, Levi first mentioned his plans for a 10-day cruise he and wife Judy have for this fall.

Levi, a native of upstate New York now living in Tampa, Fla., made his first bid for prominence when he combined with Bob Mann for a victory in the National Team Championship late last year.

He's threatened several times on the tour this season, including a tie for second in the San Diego Open. But this was his first individual victory, and he won it with authority.

He pulled into 3-stroke command with the 63 in the morning round, which left only three golfers—rookie Mike Brannan, Sammy Rachels and Orville Moody—with any real chance of catching him over the final 18, which he finished at par 71.

In addition to the course record 63, he also had the lowest 54-hole total of the year on the tour, 197, and set a course record with his 268 total, 16 shots under par.

"When I shot the 63, that's the best I ever putted," he said. "But after shooting a round like that, you know you can't come back with another one. In the afternoon I just wanted to get the ball close to the hole, maybe make a couple, just get it in."

Martinez Settles Down For Two-Hit Shutout

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

It began on anything but an auspicious note. Dennis Martinez's first six pitches were balls, and Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver sent pitching coach Ray Miller to the mound.

"I told Dennis to start throwing the ball and stop aiming it," Miller said.

Martinez, a 23-year-old right-hander in his third season with the Orioles, apparently took the advice to heart. He pitched no-hit ball until California's Don Baylor singled on a 1-2 pitch to lead off the seventh and wound up with a two-hit, 6-0 shutout over the Angels. "Baylor hit a pretty good pitch. It was a slider, low and away," Martinez said, adding that he didn't even know he had a no-hitter going until the previous inning.

Martinez said he thought a hard grounder by Dan Ford right at second baseman Kiko Garcia might have been ruled a hit in the fourth. Instead, Garcia was given an error, but Martinez hadn't noticed.

"I looked at the scoreboard in the sixth and said, 'Hey, they don't have any hits. I've got to try and get it. Why not?'" Martinez, 3-2 after three consecutive wins, didn't give up another hit until Rod Carew singled with two out in the ninth. He struck out three and walked two.

Elsewhere in the American League, Ron Guidry, in his new relief role, pitched the New York Yankees to a 6-5 victory over Oakland, Seattle got by Boston 3-2, Milwaukee blanked Toronto 4-0, Cleveland nipped Kansas City 5-4, Minnesota out-gunned Detroit 9-6 and the Chicago White Sox shut out Texas 3-0.

Martinez also avenged the hit by Baylor. He struck out Baylor to end the game, his 115th and last pitch being clocked at 90 mph.

Eddie Murray's two-run homer and Gary Roenicke's solo blast provided all the runs Martinez needed.

Yanks 6, A's 5
Guidry, the Cy Young winner who volunteered to go to the bullpen to replace the injured Rich Gossage, came into a 5-5 ballgame with one out in the seventh and a runner on third.

He struck out Oakland's Miguel Dilone, who was caught looking at a slider on the outside corner, and retired Larry Murray on a pop.

Mariners 3, Red Sox 2
Designated hitter Willie Horton ripped four singles and drove in two runs, including the tie-breaker in the ninth inning, to help Seattle salvage the final game of their series with Boston.

Leon Roberts also doubled home a run in the ninth as the Mariners overcame a 2-1 Red Sox lead. Fred Lynn's 11th homer of the season scored two runs in the bottom of the eighth.

Mike Parrott and John Montague, 3-0, combined on a six-hitter for Seattle.

Brewers 4, Blue Jays 0
Milwaukee right-hander Larry Sorensen blanked Toronto on four hits, walking one and striking out two. Sixto Lezcano had a pair of run-scoring singles, and Robin Yount hit his third homer of the year, a solo shot in the second inning.

Indians 5, Royals 4
Cleveland rallied for all its runs in the ninth inning, capped when reliever Steve Mingori issued a bases-loaded walk to Rick Manning. The Indians' Mike Paxton, 2-1, tossed a five-hitter.

Royals starter Steve Busby had a six-hit shutout through 8-3 innings, when Manning started the rally with a single.

Twins 9, Tigers 6
Roy Smalley slammed a three-run homer in the eighth to power Minnesota and reliever Mike Marshall to victory over the Tigers. Marshall, 6-1, worked the final 12-3 innings.

Butch Wynegar also homered for the Twins and drove in another run with a single.
White Sox 3, Rangers 0

blanked the Rangers on three singles, striking out five and walking none. The only hit past the infield allowed by Kravec was John Ellis' liner to left center in the second.

Wayne Nordhagen doubled in a run and then scored on a misplayed fly ball to left fielder Billy Sample in the White Sox's sixth. The White Sox got their third run in the eighth when Mike Squires' infield single scored Chet Lemon, who had four hits in the game.

LSU Cager Al Green Drafted By Chargers

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Al Green is the wrong kind of guard for the National Football League, but the San Diego Chargers drafted him anyway because of his 9.3 speed in the 100-yard dash and his ability to jump 39 inches straight up.

Green hasn't played football since he was in a playground league for 12-year-olds in New York City, but he's off to San Diego today to take a shot at catching on in the NFL.

Shortly after his season of football 12 years ago, Green became a basketball star — first one of the nation's most hotly recruited high schoolers, then a junior college standout, a member of the North Carolina State team, and finally an all-Southeastern Conference guard at Louisiana State University.

"Football is like walking around the corner. I don't know what will be waiting for me," Green said after becoming the 21st player taken in the 10th round of the NFL draft.

He first came to the attention of NFL scouts when he took part in five track meets at North Carolina State, then went out and won the Atlantic Coast Conference 100-yard dash championship with a clocking of 9.3.

Chargers Coach Don Coryell said he lived up to the old drafting cliché about picking the best athlete available.

"Green's a fantastic athlete," Coryell said. "A scout clocked him at 4.3 in the 40. One of our scouts said he wanted to play football."

LSU basketball Coach Dale Brown — a multi-sport man himself in his youth — said he decides Green can play in the NFL, if he decides to bypass the National Basketball Association.

"I think he could be an outstanding defensive safety," Brown said. "He has strength, quickness, determination and character — all the attributes."

"I was at Utah State the year before Cornell Green left. They're very similar."

Cornell Green went on to become an all-pro defensive back despite his not having played college football.

Al Green is off to San Diego today to take part in a threeday rookie camp with the Chargers.

"It's a new world," he said. "These guys are playing for money. They'll have so much more experience — tricks that they know, I won't."

He said the camp is a no-contact session designed to check reflexes, measure speed and gauge physical and mental ability to play in the NFL.

"I'm definitely scared," he said.

 Today's Cryptquip clue: J equals R
 The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Pitt Crop Reports Will Be Required

According to Stacy Evans of the Pitt County ASCS office, all farm operators are to report the planted acreage for all crops on all farms in the county.
 Report dates for different crops vary because of the many planting dates. However, most farmers should be able to make their report for all crops at one time.
 As of this year, farm operators will report only the total acreages planted for each crop on the farm. Farm maps will be used to identify what is planted on each field.
 When reports are filed, farmers will be asked to report any farms that the owners, operators and producers have an interest in Pitt or any other county. Names and addresses of producers who share in the crop must also be cited. Other requirements deal with reporting the sled row pattern, row width and sled row width in tobacco crops and the names of those who share in each crop on the farm and how each share participates in set-aside program or has peanuts planted.
 The final date to report the planted acreages on tobacco will be June 1, with peanuts, June 14, and feed-grain, July 15.
 With peanut certification, Evans notes that a report on seed use must be included with the planted acreage of peanuts. The report will note the amount of seed peanuts purchased, from whom they were bought, and the date of purchase. If the peanuts are purchased from another farmer, the ASCS office will also need the farmer's numbers.
 Reports will be used for spot checks to see if the amount of seed purchased agrees with the acreage planted.
 Evans reminds farmers to remember the information on seed peanut purchase bills so it can be included in the peanut report. Failure to file the report could result in a penalty of 25.2 cents per pound on the pounds of peanuts required to plant the reported acreage.

Pool Exercise Impact Differs

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Hydrocalisthenics is a complicated term for performing calisthenics in water. Exercise in the pool "develops long, tight muscles," says Frank Elm, who has coached top AAU and Olympic swimmers.
 "Water denies gravity, its buoyancy removes the stress and strain associated with land exercise," adds George Haines, former Olympic swim coach and consultant to Phillips Petroleum, sponsor of AAU senior swimming.
 "The body's joints and nerves aren't forced together. Instead, movement through the water acts like a massage, relaxing the pressures," Haines aid.

Makeup Mirror A 'Zoom Lens'

BOSTON (UPI) — A new lighted makeup mirror works like a camera's zoom lens, magnifying or reducing images with the turn of a dial. The flexible mirrored surface is a polyester also used for recording tapes, insulating films and fabrics. The manufacturer says the polyester will not break or shatter as glass does. Indirect lighting from a standard 40 watt appliance bulb behind the mirror provides bright but glare-free illumination.

Most Doubt Carter Doing A Good Job; Congress Poorer

By EVANS WITT
 Associated Press Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans don't think President Carter is doing a good job handling the nation's energy problems, but they give Congress even lower marks for its work in the area, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.
 The public, deeply concerned about energy matters, sees claims of energy shortages as a hoax while remaining deeply worried about the availability of power in the future.
 In the poll taken April 30 and May 1, 14 percent rated Carter's efforts on energy matters excellent or good.
 But only 10 percent gave Congress similar ratings for its work on energy.
 For Carter, the remainder of his energy ratings worked out this way: 35 percent, only fair; 46 percent, poor; and 5 percent, not sure.
 These figures are all but unchanged since March, despite Carter's major televised energy speech on April 5 that included the announcement of lifting price controls on domestic oil and the request for a "windfall profits" tax on oil companies.
 Asked about Congress, 39 percent rated its energy work only fair and 44 percent said it was poor. Seven percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide were not sure.

 Carter's overall job rating slipped slightly in this latest survey, putting him back at the lowest levels of his administration.
 Twenty-six percent rated his work good or excellent versus 20 percent who said it has been poor. Fifty-two percent said his work has been only fair and 2 percent were not sure.
 These figures almost precisely equal his rating in August last year, the previous low point for him. The August readings were taken prior to the triumph in Israeli-Egyptian peace negotiations at Camp David.
 Behind these negative judgments were not sure.

Refuse Endorse Health Project

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Medical Society has refused to endorse a plan that would increase the primary health-care responsibility of local health departments.
 Ending its 125th annual meeting over the weekend, the society's House of Delegates voted to take no action on a 23-page report of the Governor's Primary Care Task Force.
 The delegates also approved a resolution asking doctors to limit their rate increases voluntarily. Earlier, a recommendation by the society's cost-containment committee that doctors limit increases to 2 percent this year was dropped.
 "It's hard to figure 2 percent," said Dr. D.E. Ward Jr. of Lumberton, outgoing president of the organization. "It's a nebulous figure."
 Strong objections were raised during the four-day meeting to a portion of the report that called for more use by local health departments of physicians' assistants and nurse practitioners in providing health care to those who may not have access to a private doctor.
 "If we approve this report, we are approving socialized medicine," said Dr. Albert N. Corpening of Wake County. "It is care that is second rate because it is carried out by physicians' assistants and nurse practitioners."
 The report, prepared by a 20-member task force, was hailed by Gov. Jim Hunt last March as a beginning of closer cooperation on health care between the public and private sectors.
 Hugh H. Tison, head of the state Division of Health Services, said Saturday, "It does not come as a surprise to me as I know there is considerable concern about government interference in health professions. I don't see the 'filing' of the report as not being a commitment to be cooperative."
 During the annual session, Dr. J. Benjamin Warren of New Bern was installed as the society's president.

No Favorite Son Plans

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, D-N.C., says he has no plans to run in the North Carolina presidential primary next year as a favorite-son candidate.
 "The idea doesn't appeal to me," Helms said Sunday after addressing graduates of John Wesley College at the First Wesleyan Church in High Point.
 "I want to hear what the candidates say and where they stand," Helms said. "I'm no more considering running than growing a beard."
 There had been speculation that Helms might run in the North Carolina presidential primary in the hope of controlling the North Carolina delegation to the Republican National Convention during the first three roll calls.
 Helms told John Wesley graduates he plans to continue his battle in Congress in behalf of legalizing prayer in the public schools. Helms has introduced an amendment that would limit the jurisdiction of the U.S. Supreme Court to rule on school prayers. The Senate attached the Helms amendment to a bill that is given little chance of passage.
 "I intend to pursue this matter until both houses confront the question," Helms told the graduates. "Congress has the constitutional authority to limit the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in this matter and other matters."

Cars Collided At Intersection

Greenville Police Saturday night charged Debra Lynn Gooder of Stahlstown Pa., with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11 p.m. mishap on Greene Street, 1,000 feet North of the First Street intersection.
 Officers reported the Gooder car collided with a vehicle driven by Benjamin Barnett Tetterton III of Route 1, Bethel, causing an estimated $2,000 damage to the Tetterton car and $1,500 damage to the Gooder vehicle.
 Raymond Edward Warren of Farmville, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, following investigation of a 3:25 p.m. collision Sunday at the intersection of Hooker Road and Arlington Boulevard.
 Greenville Police reported the Warren car collided with an auto driven by William Earl Moseley of Winterville, resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the Moseley car and $600 damage to the Warren auto.

Soybean Growers Face Long Range Challenges

NEW LONDON — Efficient crop production and increased profits per acre are the long-range challenges facing soybean growers and researchers, according to Thurman Burleson, a soybean grower from New London and president of the North Carolina Soybean Producers Association.

"Farmers raise soybeans for a profit," Burleson said. "In the past, we've been able to simply plant more acres or doublecrop to increase acreage. There's a limit to these expansion methods, so we must place increased emphasis on other ways to increase yields and lower production costs. The place to start is in development of better soybean varieties and cultural practices."

Soybean production in the U.S. has more than doubled in the past 12 years, largely because of the strong worldwide demand, according to Burleson. More than 63 million acres of soybeans were harvested last year, compared to slightly over 35 million acres in 1965.

"It's not a question of producing too many soybeans," Burleson said, "but of being able to supply the increasing world demand for protein in the next five to ten years and beyond."

"Sixty percent of the increased yields in soybeans can be attributed to new varieties developed through basic research," Burleson said. "So can many of the cultural practices that we use as proven methods of increasing profits for soybeans, like narrower rows and better weed and pest control practices."

To unlock the soybean yield barrier, research needs to tackle several basic questions, according to Burleson.

"We need to develop soybean varieties that are better adapted to low moisture and water stress conditions and find out why the soybean plant blooms heavily but aborts up to 75 percent of the blossoms, even under optimum conditions," he said.

Reagan And Dole Coming

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Kansas Sen. Robert Dole — both unofficial candidates for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination — are scheduled to attend the North Carolina GOP state convention later this month.

State Republican Chairman Jack Lee said Reagan and Dole will appear on separate days at the Republican State Convention in Raleigh May 18 and 19.

Reagan is scheduled to speak at a $100-a-plate GOP fundraising reception and dinner Friday night, May 18. Dole will be the featured speaker at the convention luncheon the following day.

Reagan narrowly lost the 1976 GOP presidential nomination, and Dole, whose wife Elizabeth is from Salisbury, was the Republican vice-presidential nominee on the ticket with former President Gerald Ford.

The GOP convention will get under way Saturday morning at the Raleigh Civic Center. Other speakers will include Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., former Gov. James Holshouser and 10th District GOP Rep. James Brodyhill.

Lee will seek re-election to a second term as party chairman and is opposed by former state representative Gilbert Lee Boger of Mocksville.

Sentiment Grows For Larger Gasoline Tax Boost

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Amid all the legislative talk about how to cut taxes, there is growing sentiment that an even larger increase in the state tax on gasoline is nearly inevitable — if not this year, then soon.

Legislation that would gradually increase the gasoline tax over several years has won wide support in legislative committees. And while Gov. Jim Hunt and some other top political leaders are resisting the move this year, legislative observers believe they are only trying to postpone the political fallout until after the 1980 elections.

Legislation now in the House Finance Committee would link the state tax to the price of gasoline, replacing the current rate fixed at 9 cents a gallon.

The problem, supporters of the tax change say, is this: Gasoline tax money is used to expand and maintain the 77,000 miles of state-kept highways in North Carolina. With the tax fixed per gallon, the amount the state collects can only rise as gasoline consumption rises.

The state thus loses the benefits of inflation, which have driven up nearly all other tax revenues. And with gasoline prices climbing and the trend toward smaller, more efficient automobiles, state leaders can only assume that gas consumption — and the tax money — will decline in the future.

Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, is the sponsor of the legislation that would remove the 9 cents-a-gallon tax structure and replace it with a tax fixed at 18½ percent of the national established wholesale price of gasoline, a figure revised every six months.

Although it is without the blessing of the Hunt administration, the bill won a strong show of support in the House

Finance Committee last week. Only when they realized supporters were serious did opponents ask for and receive a week's delay in the committee vote.

The panel may vote on the bill this week, and committee chairman Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, a vigorous supporter of the change, thinks it may pass.

"I think it's a bill that's going to have to come, if people are going to keep up the roads as they seem to want them," Gamble says.

The only way North Carolina can afford to keep the roads now, he says, is by use of the $300 million in road bonds approved in a 1976 referendum. The money runs out after five years, and with the current growth in gas tax revenues running at about one-half the inflation rate, Gamble says a highway fund deficit is likely by 1981.

Legislative staff analysts figure the bill would have the effect of driving up the tax on gasoline by one-half to one cent per gallon each year, to a maximum of 16 cents in 10 years. It could mean to the state — and cost consumers — as much as $95 million in 1981 and $350 million a year by 1989.

"Somewhere down the road," Barker says, "this legislature is going to either have to face up to unsafe roads and bridges or to do what this bill would do."

There are alternatives, though. The state could shift some general tax revenues to road upkeep or to run the Highway Patrol.

But most observers believe Hunt would like the change and will support it in his second term, if he seeks and wins reelection in 1980. "He can do the arithmetic," says Gamble.

But Hunt is bound to oppose it now, he feels, because of his no-new-taxes pledge during his 1976 campaign. "I'll be opposed to anything that raises taxes," Hunt said when asked about the legislation last week.

But Hunt added that he planned to recommend a "blue ribbon commission" be named to study the problem and report its decision to the 1981 General Assembly.

Such opposition from Hunt, and also from House Speaker Carl Stewart, to action on the bill this year likely means it won't get far even if the House committee approves it.

Most legislators are quick to remember the political trouble they got into the last time the gas tax was raised during the Bob Scott administration. And if the measure gets to the floor, they'll be reminded that its effect would be to more than wipe out the $40 million or so worth of income-tax cuts they are talking about providing this year.

But Barker, Gamble and other supporters of the bill believe that at the least, they are laying the groundwork this year for the tax change.

"He knows and I know," you're dead politically. This bill Barker said, referring to the governor, "that anytime you get tagged with higher taxes may very well retire me from the General Assembly. But I'm not after the states he is."

How's The Weather?

FORECAST Until Tuesday

Figures show low temperatures for area.

Data from NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE NOAA US Dept. of Commerce

WEATHER FORECAST — Sunny, mild weather is expected in the period until Tuesday morning for most of the country. Colder weather is forecast from the northern Rockies to the Dakotas. Rain is due in the Southeast and for the northern Pacific coast. (AP Laser-photo)

Wednesday. High temperatures today were expected to range mostly in the 70s in the mountains and along the immediate coast, and around 80 elsewhere. Tuesday may be just a little warmer, with highs in the low and mid 80s except in the mountains where the range will be in the 70s.

Bill Aimed At 'Prize' Offers In Promotion

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — It was good news and bad news for the Raleigh couple when the impressive-looking "Phone-A-Gram" arrived telling them they had won a free prize.

The good news was that their prize would come from a list that included a 1979 Ford Fairmont, a color television, a Las Vegas vacation and $1,000 in cash.

So they drove about 65 miles to Merfield Acres of Kerr Lake, took a two-hour tour and underwent a few minutes of unsuccessful hard sell.

Then came the bad news: They would have to pay for their transportation and meals in order to use the promotion coupon, which was good only for three nights' lodging.

The fine print on the "Phone-A-Gram" said the odds of winning the vacation were 85 out of 100; the chances of winning the movie camera were 15 out of 100.

State Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten believes the statement was misleading and has taken steps to alter or stop Merfield Acres' promotion and other similar contests.

Last week, officials in Edmisten's Consumer Protection Division wrote to the firm handling the promotion and suggested that it change its methods.

Meanwhile, a state House committee is about to consider legislation prepared by state Department of Justice attorneys that would outlaw promotions of the Merfield variety.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Robert H. Hobgood, D-Franklin, would ban "the use of language that has a tendency to lead a reasonable person to believe he has won a contest or anything of value."

John R. B. Matthis of the Consumer Protection Division is familiar with the Merfield promotion since he was among its winners.

"We wrote...Merfield a letter this week expressing our objections to the method they're using and asked them to clean it up," he said. "Of course, the Hobgood bill will stop that sort of thing."

Merfield Acres is a development corporation headed by David S. Wilson of Clarksville. The promotion is handled by Direct Mail Specialists Inc. of Gautier, Miss.

Matthis said the department's letter was sent to the mailing firm.

James Frieden, the Direct Mail Specialists executive who received the state's letter, would not comment on what action the firm will take.

"I have not received a communication so I'm not prepared to comment," he said. "We have always had amicable relations with the state of North Carolina...and we intend to do everything to maintain that relationship."

Ratification Ended Walkout

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Employees of Fairchild Industries Inc. ended a five-day strike Saturday when they ratified a new three-year contract.

At a meeting in Greensboro headquarters of Teamsters Local 391, the workers voted to accept the company's offer.

According to a spokesman for Fairchild, the contract provides raises of 50 to 60 cents an hour in the first year and cost-of-living raises in the second and third years.

Busy Week In Assembly

By SAM D. BUNDY
N.C. House of Representatives

A busy week. On Tuesday night I spoke to the annual Bosses' Night Banquet of the Tar Heel Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. Afternoon sessions are now lasting until 4:30 and 5:00 p. m. Friday's session started at 9:30 a. m. and lasted about five hours. Bills are still being introduced and the number is now 2173, which includes both House and Senate bills. It looks more and more like the adjournment date will be June 1, or even later.

For the first time the House passed legislation by a three-fifths vote which would not permit anyone to run for a judgeship unless he or she is a licensed attorney. If passed by the Senate, the people of the State would vote on it as a Constitutional Amendment in November of 1980. Another bill was passed by the House permitting any Technical Institute to change its name to Technical College if voted so by the Board of Trustees of the particular institution and approved by the Board of County Commissioners. If passed by the Senate, I predict that all of them will eventually make the change.

See you next week.

TRIM GRASS & WEEDS
fast and easy with a spinning nylon line...

the graswip
from the Village Blacksmith

- CUTS
- TRIMS
- EDGES
- MOWS
- SAFE TO USE!

Unique triangular-shaped nylon line cuts
grass easier, faster...and the cord lasts longer.
Just slip new cord on and it's ready to use.
no dumsy spools to clog with grass and dirt.
Cuts grass and weeds fast - but won't cut fingers or toes!
