WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have reached agreement on key provisions of a strategic nuclear weapons treaty to be signed at a summit meeting next month, according to administration sources.

With that goal met, U.S. and Soviet negotiators are expected to decide by the end of the week exactly when and where President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev will hold their long-delayed meeting to sign the arms limitation treaty and possibly conclude other U.S.-Soviet agreements.

The breakthrough was reported late Monday after Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin returned to the State Department for his second session of the day with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

It lasted only 11 minutes, and followed a report by Vance to Carter at the White House on the windup of bargaining over the final terms, said the sources who asked not to be identified.

The two sides have been wrestling for several weeks with details surrounding the testing of missiles with multiple warheads and definition of new missile systems. Final agreement appeared imminent several times during that final stage of talks.

The treaty, to run through 1985 if ratified by the Senate, will place ceilings on the total number of U.S. and Soviet strategic weapons, principally their long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Carter, already campaigning hard for Senate ratification, said in a recent speech, the only alternative to the treaty is "a dark nightmare of unrestrained arms competition."

He assured critics that despite the loss of two major U.S. monitoring stations in Iran, verification of Soviet compliance will be possible from the day the treaty is signed.

Standby Gas-Rationing Plan Setback In Senate

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unexpected setback for the Carter administration, the Senate Energy Committee reversed itself today and turned down the president's plan for standby gasoline rationing.

The panel turned it down on a 12-6 vote despite last-minute changes made by the administration designed to pick up votes.

There had been predictions that the vote would be close.

"We're in a tight fight, a very tight fight," said chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of the Senate Energy Committee.

His panel was taking up the modified measure to give the president standby authority to order rationing at a hastily called meeting today.

A Senate floor vote was planned later in the day if the committee approved the plan. "I would assume we'll get it out of committee. But on the floor, the vote could be very close. There's going to be quite a debate," Jackson said.

And Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House energy and power subcommittee, said he anticipates the plan will face considerable resistance in the House if it passes the Senate.

"It will be difficult," Dingell said.

Both Jackson and Dingell said they endorsed the changes made by Carter, which they claimed improved the overall plan.

Faced with likely rejection of the original plan in Congress this week, the president sent on Monday an amendment to the plan that would expand the amount of gasoline some states could get.

The modified version would give more gasoline to states like those in the West where driving distances are large and where more gasoline has been used in the past.

Carter's original plan would have allocated rationing coupons based solely on the number of registered cars in a household. Under the modification, the amount would be based half on the number of vehicles in a family and half on the amount of gasoline historically used in each state. The modified formula also would allow households to get ration rights for no more than three vehicles.

Re-Elect Sutton Housing Chairman

By TOM BAINES

James E. Sutton, who is one of five charter members of the Housing Authority, was re-elected to another term as chairman of the Authority last night.

Sutton was again the choice of the board members to continue as chairman, while Woody Crumpler was elected to serve as vice chairman. Both of the commissioners will serve one-year tenures.

Crumpler succeeds Dr. Charles Price, who served during the past year as vice chairman. Price has completed two five-year terms as a member of the Authority and will be leaving when a new commissioner is appointed.

Joe Laney, who serves as executive director of the Authority, was named by the board to serve again as secretary-treasurer.

Sutton was first named to the Authority in May of 1961 by Mayor S. Eugene West and he completed the maximum of two consecutive five-year terms before leaving in May of 1971. After a year's absence, he was reappointed to a new five-year term in May of 1972 and he began his fourth five-year period in May of 1977.

Sutton has served as chairman during a major portion of his tenure on the board and he was vice chairman during his first term.

Laney reported during the regular business meeting following the elections that the situation has improved regarding the proposed 60-unit housing mid-rise for the elderly. He said that the Authority has received a commitment from the bond buyer to purchase bonds for the project, which is proposed for construction on a site off

E. Third Street. According to Laney, the buyer made a commitment conditional upon the Authority's prompt selection of a construction lender, preparation of construction documents and trust indenture paperwork, and other documents.

The executive director said that the bond underwriter has recommended that the Authority choose Planter's National Bank as the construction lender since PNB already has submitted similar documents to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for a project in Rocky Mount.

North Carolina National Bank, Laney noted, indicated that it would be interested in serving as trustee for the Authority here in the project.

The executive director said that the general contractor

Appropriation

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon appropriated $11,276 to complete construction of additional classroom space at Pitt Technical Institute.

PTI board chairman Clifton Everett told commissioners that the additional appropriation for the school, coupled with $12,539 already on hand, would allow completion of 2,320 square feet of space in two wings of a new classroom facility at the school which originally had not been scheduled for completion at this time.

Everett noted that if the work is accomplished at this time, it can be done for $10.26 cents per square foot. Any delay, he suggested, would result in higher costs to finish the project.

In other business yesterday, the board re-designated Commissioner Ed Warren as the board's representative on the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority, and approved a petition to add Cheshire Drive in Brook Valley to the State highway system.

Offer Priorities On Thoroughfares

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The staffs of the city's Planning and Engineering Departments have forwarded to the City Council its recommendations for five priority projects under the Greenville Thoroughfare Plan.

City Engineer Ron Sewell reported the five priority selections during a public meeting Monday at city hall, conducted by engineering and planning staff members to give the general public a chance to express priority preferences for the plan.

Bobby Roberson, the city's planning director, explained that the Council had the task of establishing a list of Thoroughfare Plan priorities for submission to the Department of Transportation. Roberson said the Council was asking the public to rate the local projects as to pri-

ty. Sewell said that the planning and engineering staffs agreed on the five priority projects, although not necessarily in the order of ranking. He said the recommended projects included:

- US 264 and the proposed western bypass improvements;
- Evans Street improvements from Tenth Street to Greenville Boulevard (Sewell indicated that the corridor is already deficient and is expected to be 40 percent deficient by the year 2000);
- Arlington Boulevard from Hooker Road to NC 43 north;
- 14th Street from Greenville Boulevard to Farmville Boulevard; and
- Dickinson Avenue improvements.

In addition, at the suggestion of members of the Planning and Zoning Commission, the improvement of NC 33 from Greenville Boulevard east to the area near Pinewood Cemetery and also improvements to 14th Street Extension were added to the priority list for consideration.

Edith Webber, representing the League of Women Voters here, pointed to the loss of trees along the local thoroughfares and said there has been no effort to replace them. She said that trees that arch streets help to reduce heat by some ten percent in summer and are pleasant to walk along or ride a bike on.

Ms. Webber urged the city not to put all of its resources into "speeding motor traffic" along the thoroughfares. She urged the city to save the trees, spread traffic on

Martin Commissioners Rescind Decision For 2 Separate Hospitals

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners on Monday rescinded their earlier decision to grant separate status to the county's two hospitals, and will make another decision within the next two weeks.

At a special meeting held in mid-April, Commissioners at that time approved a motion to grant separate status to Martin General Hospital and to the Robersonville Community Hospital, with the latter authorized to form its own board of directors. Financial support was indicated for both hospitals.

In the rescinding motion, action taken at its regular Monday meeting yesterday, commissioners agreed to give the matter extensive study and to meet in ten days or two weeks to consider a new decision.

Prior to voting to rescind their earlier vote, commissioners heard delegations from both hospitals, including Raleigh attorney Ed Hollowell, representing the Robersonville contingent.

In other action, commissioners approved, subject to specifications check, the low bid of $7,600 by Ernest Leggett to put a bathroom in and renovate a building between Williamston and Jamesville to be used as a community building.

A report provided commissioners shows that to date 95.13 percent of taxes due have been collected; and $2,000 was approved in funding the Senior Citizens Division for May and June.

A request to add a road off the Prison Camp Road to the state system was received and will be passed to the Dept. of Transportation for their consideration.

Winterville Board Awards 13 Contracts For Rehabilitation

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board of Aldermen voted Monday to require either a $75 deposit or letter of credit from a previous utility company toward electrical services for Winterville homeowners.

The board awarded 13 contracts toward rehabilitation of houses involved in the HUD Community Block Grant, with contracts totaling $6,654.46. Contractors Jasper Warren, Gary Nobles and Frank Pollard were assigned the contracts.

A request was accepted to release certain outside territories to the Bell Arthur water system, with the understanding that if the land in question was ever to be annexed to the town, the land would be released.

L. D. Hunnings, a representative from the Swift Creek Watershed Project, gave a progress report to the board, noting that Winterville's share in the project was assessed at $20,440, on a total of 553 acres.

The Mid East Regional Authority gave a report on the tenant analysis of the new Winterville Apartments. According to the report, a total of 64 persons occupy the 30 units, with an average monthly rent of $67.73.

The board approved an amendment to Article Five, Section II, of the town ordinances to include antique stove dealers and similar businesses to operate with a conditional use permit in an Agricultural-Residential district.

A request from Mrs. Frank Branch of Forbes Dr. toward using part of an adjoining town lot for a storage building was denied. A petition was accepted from Jack Weathersby for curbing and guttering in front of his house on E. Main St.

Resignations were accepted from Sam McLawhorn, Alfred McLawhorn and Hoyt Hammond from the Winterville Planning-Zoning Board.

The board tabled the drainage situation in the Brookshire subdivision for further study. The board also released a list of taxes from 1975-78.

The board went on record, stating that no Little League games should be played at A. G. Cox School after 7 p.m. on any Wednesday.

A public hearing was set for 7 p.m., May 14, to discuss the use of general revenue funds for fiscal year 1979-80. A tax lien sale for 1978 real estate taxes was set for June 11, 12 noon, in front of the Municipal Building.

Poll Indicated Most People Not Pleased By Profit Data

By EVANS WITT

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans are not pleased with recent reports of record corporate profits, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

The inflation-weary public says business profits are too high and that it is company executives and large shareholders — rather than the public or most employees — who benefit most from higher corporate earnings.

Despite these negative views, Americans are split on whether the government should impose controls on those profits.

In recent weeks, corporation after corporation has announced higher profits in the first quarter of this year: Exxon, up 37 percent over last year's first quarter. Atlantic Richfield, up 61 percent; Du Pont, up 48 percent; Union Carbide, up 58 percent; Chase Manhattan, up 78 percent.

The AP-NBC News poll taken April 30 and May 1 found 68 percent of the public saying business profits are too high. Twenty-two percent said they are about right and 5 percent said profits are too low.

Five percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone are not sure.

Part of the negative reaction to business profits comes from the public perception of who benefits from such earnings.

Thirty-seven percent said top-level executives reap the benefits of big profits, while 33 percent said the money flows to large shareholders of the corporations. Sixteen percent said the corporations themselves get most of the benefits.

Only 5 percent said the public benefits from business profits and 2 percent said the profits go to the companies' employees.

One percent said all categories benefit and 6 percent are not sure.

Although the public is weary of constantly rising prices, it is not sure government controls on business profits would do much for the nation's economic troubles.

Forty-nine percent favor mandatory controls on profits, but 41 percent are opposed. Ten percent are not sure.

As one might expect, those who say business profits are too high are most likely to favor controls on such earnings. Those who said profits are too large favored controls by a 58-33 margin.

On the other side, those who said profits are about right opposed controls by a 63-29 margin and the small group which said profits are too low opposed controls by a 51-31 edge.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way simply because of sample errors. That is, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of interviews with all American adults would vary from these results by more than three percentage points.

Of course, the results could vary from other polls because of differences in the wording of questions, timing of interviews or the method of interviewing.

Money Taken

Greenville Police late this morning were pressing their search for the person who allegedly took some $3,500 in cash and $6,400 in checks from a truck parked at Bailey's Convent Mart at 514 Watauga Ave. about 8:45 a.m. today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said D. W. Bailey told investigators the cash and checks were contained in a brown bank bag under the seat of his truck. A second bag, containing some $900, was not disturbed, he reported.

Cannon said the bag and its contents were taken from the vehicle while Bailey was inside the store for a few minutes.

The theft was discovered, Cannon said, when Bailey went to the bank to make a deposit about 9 a.m.

Offer New Sweetener

WASHINGTON (AP) — Makers of a new artificial sweetener once approved by the Food and Drug Administration will have to wait at least a few more months before marketing the substance, FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy has ruled.

Aspartame, considered a possible sweetener substitute for saccharin, which the FDA is trying to ban, was approved for sale by the agency five years ago.

However, Dr. John Olney of Washington University raised safety objections, and the manufacturers, G.D. Searle & Co., held it back.

There were also questions raised later about Searle's safety research on the substance, but the company has since had the research verified by independent scientists.

But Kennedy said in a letter released Monday that despite the satisfactory resolution of questions regarding research data, "it is my judgment that, given the passage of over three years...and the imminence of a hearing to resolve the safety concerns...the stay should remain in effect until after the hearing and any subsequent proceedings have been completed."

John Robson, executive vice president of Searle, said in a telephone interview from his Skokie, Ill., office that the company is encouraged by Kennedy's acceptance of the scientific data and is optimistic remaining questions will be resolved in the company's favor.

Quitting Post In Labor Dept.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Taylor McMillan, deputy commissioner of labor, announced Monday that he will resign from the post.

McMillan, who had worked in the No. 2 spot in the Labor Department since January 1977, said in a prepared statement that he resigned "because of my differences with the commissioner on management, the legislative process and matters of law and policy."

A long-time friend of Labor Commissioner John Brooks, McMillan had previously said his resignation would be effective May 14. "I now find it appropriate to make it effective today (Monday)," he said in the release.

The Parkton native is a former counsel for the Administrative Office of the Courts and a former staff member of the Institute of Government.

Can Replant Young Teeth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Youngsters are rough on teeth. They lose them to football, skateboards, bicycles, fist fights and an assortment of tumbles and spills — but the loss need not always be permanent.

Most parents don't realize that an uprooted but unbroken tooth can be cleaned up and put back in its socket where, with a dentist's help, it will often take hold and enjoy "an extended second life," says a New Jersey dentist.

And saving that original equipment is better and cheaper than replacing it with a false tooth, said Dr. Noah Chivian of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center.

Replanting teeth is a fairly simple procedure that's been around for decades and although it's most effective with children, Chivian said, it works with adults as well.

Recent studies found that more than 20 percent of replanted teeth successfully reattached themselves and lasted five years or more, Chivian told a California Dental Association conference that ended Monday.

With improving procedures and quick action by patients, Chivian said the rate comes close to 50 percent, and some replants will last a lifetime: the informal record is 47 years.

Grads Advised A Global View

BUIES CREEK, N.C. (AP) — A former United Nations Security Council president told graduates of Campbell College Monday that they must concentrate on their role in the world.

Dr. Charles Malik told the graduates at commencement exercises that the problem for today's youth is the "problem of your intellectual, ideological, moral and spiritual meaning to the rest of the world."

He said problems such as inflation, energy shortages, justice and human rights can all be solved. He said the current shortages of gasoline and other fuels "may turn out to be a great blessing in disguise."

Readers Need Abby's Address

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for years and I really enjoy it, but I do believe you have lost your marbles.

You ask your readers to write and let you know if they see DEAR ABBY T-shirts, nightgowns, or any other item for sale bearing your name, saying it's being done without your permission, and that unless you put a stop to it you will lose your copyrighted name. You ask us to let you know the name and address of any store carrying such items, but you don't give us YOUR address! Sure, we can send it to the newspaper (like I'm doing) but it takes more time and we can't be sure the letter will ever reach you. So please, Abby, will you print your address? Thank you.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Move over. Now we're BOTH frustrated. YOU didn't give me YOUR address! MY address is: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. But all mail addressed to me in care of your newspaper will reach me.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I'm sure many other women my age would like to know the answer to, so please check with your medical experts and print your answer: I am 48 and have not had a period in a year. Can I still get pregnant?

NO JOKING MATTER

DEAR JOKE: Even though your chances for getting pregnant are slim, I advise you to take precautions on every conceivable occasion!

DEAR ABBY: My mother just finished reciting the same speech she recites every year just before Mother's Day. It begins, "Now please don't throw your money away on a gift for me... I don't need anything."

Abby, I know my mother doesn't NEED anything, but I enjoy giving her presents, and it takes the pleasure out of it for me when she takes this attitude. I wish you'd tell mothers that children of all ages enjoy giving gifts on Mother's Day, so please accept them graciously.

SOMEBODY'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Don't blame your mother. Her attitude is typical of most mothers. They don't want their children to deny themselves anything in order to buy a gift.

I know. When I was a child I recall vividly my own beloved mother (now gone 34 years) saying, "Please don't buy me any presents. I have everything I need." So instead of buying a gift I gave her something money couldn't buy. I wrote a poem or a letter telling her how much I appreciated her. Years later I realized how much they must have meant to her, because after she died I found them tucked away among her souvenirs—all neatly bound together with a ribbon. She had saved every one of them!

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Whenever a group of women get together, they always discuss at what age a husband is capable of dressing himself.

I stopped dressing my husband two years ago when it became clear he had a wind dress wish. He simply did not care that a striped tie and a plaid shirt were incompatible or that trousers worn to the ankle were to be slipped on only in the event of a flood on the way to the rowboat.

We had words over it and I said, "From here on in, you are on your own."

This year, I am going one step farther by severing the marital discord entirely and letting him do his own packing for vacation. It's risky but he has to assume the responsibility sometime.

Last year, just before vacation, I checked over his suitcase and he had proved once again his preparedness for any occasion.

He had clothes to parachute behind enemy lines dressed as a mercenary.

He had clothes to commandeer a torpedo boat through a squall.

He had clothes to barter for mules and guides in a Colombian jungle and clothes to celebrate Halloween behind the Iron Curtain.

He had clothes for snorkeling, disco-ing, safair-ing, high teas and low ceilings, clothes for lounging and clothes to leave behind as tips.

He also packed eight pairs of shoes, a tripod and coats for all seasons. There wasn't a porter in the world who could have put an inch of space between that suitcase and the floor. I was not about to travel with the luggage of an anvil salesman.

Naturally, I brought some reason to the contents, taking care to stuff the shoes neatly with underwear, put the necessary items into plastic bags, and layer the suitcase with cardboard to guard against wrinkles. It would be his last brush with systematic packing.

Yesterday he told me his packing was complete. I opened the closet door. There was nothing left in it except a red vest and bow tie left over from high school.

Survival Know-How Paid Off

Fifteen year old Jeffrey Garner was knocked from his boat in the Newport River and was the object of an intensive search for several days.

Stories such as that are not rare in this area with so much coastal waters. Often they have a tragic conclusion. Not so in this case.

The youth made his way to shore, built fires and was eventually rescued and found to be in good physical condition.

Obviously this young man knew something about survival. He related that he kicked off his hip boots after he fell in the water. Physically he was in condition for the 20 minute swim to shore. . . And he said he always carries waterproof matches to be ready for emergencies.

Young Garner said he was never too concerned about himself since he has much experience in camping and boating. He was concerned about his parents who, of course, couldn't be certain about his safety during the time he was missing.

All of us who want to boat or hike in remote areas can take a lesson from Jeffrey Garner. Anyone who loves the outdoors should be prepared for emergencies. There should be training in survival available for everyone who enjoys water and wilderness activities. . . and all should maintain physical fitness sufficient to cope with stressful situations.

Young Jeffrey Garner was prepared when an emergency arose. All of us can be.

Voter Registration Deadline At Hand

Alternative Home Loans

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Supreme Court Echoes

40 Years Ago Today

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Continued booming interest in home construction and consumer buying despite the ravages of inflation prompt several prominent economists to predict that alternative ways to finance homes will soon be available in North Carolina.

The standard mortgage, widely in use today, creates problems for both the banks and loan firms which put up money for homes, and for borrowers.

Monthly payments on a standard mortgage remain constant throughout the life of the loan. And that often means payments too high for the couple just getting started in life.

For the loan institutions, the standard mortgage means interest payments are frozen at the rate at the time of the loan. That often means a higher risk, which means a potential loss of income in future years and a higher initial interest rate than might otherwise be required.

Changes What to do? Some changes have already been authorized for federally chartered savings and loan institutions. North Carolina regulatory officials are now looking at alternatives for statechartered firms in this state, including the banks as well as savings and loans.

"Within the year, the prospective home buyer in North Carolina will probably have a number of alternative mortgage designs to choose from in financing a home," says M.L. Walden, an economist at N.C. State University, and one of several experts who were called upon to explore the mortgage dilemma in the current issue of "Tar Heel Economist" published by the Agricultural Extension Service at N.C. State.

Walden contributed a detailed analysis of the proposed alternative mortgage plans in the publication. A colleague, Douglas B. Diamond, Jr., wrote a companion piece detailing what is happening in the mortgage loan marketplace, and what that means to the homeowner.

Inflation has meant sharply higher interest rates which has meant "a doubling in monthly interest payable on a home, on top of the tremendous increase in the price of the house itself," Diamond reports. Yet buyers expect the value of the home to rise at least at the rate of inflation, and buyers anticipate large benefits on state and federal income taxes as a result of home ownership and mortgage payments — sufficient to make buying a home still a commendable course.

BILL NOBLITT

But the catch, says Diamond, is that "the higher payments due on mortgages are here and now, while the high value of the home itself will not become available to the homeowner until he sells the home."

"Meanwhile the homeowner's budget may be severely pinched to meet his or her monthly payment."

Escalating The only real solution, Diamond concludes is a modified mortgage design making interest and principal payments smaller at the beginning of the mortgage, but growing with inflation along with the family income and value of the property. A caution: "For those who sold their homes within five or 10 years, the principal on the mortgage might be larger than it was initially," Diamond says. But the new methods would still allow more people to "get into that tax-favored hedge against inflation, homeownership."

Walden defines the three most popular alternatives: a graduated payment mortgage, a variable rate mortgage, and the reverse annuity mortgage.

Graduated payment begins with lower monthly payments, rising gradually then leveling off at a constant amount. Later payments would be higher because income and property values would have increased.

Variable rates mean interest can be adjusted to reflect changing economic conditions during the term of the mortgage. The reverse annuity is designed for elderly persons who own their homes. A loan would provide monthly income, and would be repaid from eventual sale of the property upon the death of the owner, or his moving away.

WASHINGTON — The marble temple that houses the Supreme Court of the United States is peculiarly a place of echoes. Literally and figuratively, they are always there, but they seldom are heard so vividly as they were heard last month when the Court ruled on the Dalia case.

The merits of the case were as close as the division within the Court — five to four. Back in 1973 FBI agents began to work on a case involving Lawrence Dalia and others. The FBI suspected they were engaged in a conspiracy to steal goods shipped in interstate commerce. To get evidence, the government first obtained a warrant authorizing wiretaps of telephones, but when the wiretaps proved inconclusive, the FBI went back to a federal judge.

This time the government obtained a warrant authorizing the bugging of Dalia's office. Specifically, the warrant authorized the interception for no more than 20 days of oral communications in a precisely described room in a building in Linden, N.J.

Pursuant to that warrant, three FBI agents pried open a window of the building about midnight on April 5. They spent three hours inside the building and planted their bug. The bug worked. The agents got evidence that led them to a stolen tractor-trailer containing $250,000 in fabric. On that evidence the conspirators were convicted. They appealed on the contention that the breaking and entering violated their Fourth Amendment rights, and hence that the vital evidence should have been ruled inadmissible.

The Supreme Court, speaking through Mr. Justice Powell, upheld the convictions. The five-man majority concluded that the Crime Control Act of 1968, while it did not authorize such entries upon private property for purposes of surveillance, did not forbid them, either. In the majority's view, authorization was implicit. How else could bugs be installed? It would be unreasonable, once a judge determined that a warrant should issue, to insist that a warrant spell out the procedures by which surreptitious entry should be achieved.

Mr. Justice Stevens, leading the four dissenters, complained that Powell's opinion "converts silence into thunder." He could not believe that Congress had authorized "burglary by stealthy legislative history." He wanted to insist upon an unambiguous statement by Congress "that this sort of police conduct may be authorized by a court."

We heard echoes — echoes of a famous 5-4 decision by the Court more than 50 years ago. In June 1928, speaking through Mr. Chief Justice Taft, the Court decided the case of Roy Olmstead. This was one of the biggest bootlegging cases of the Prohibition Era, involving Olmstead and dozens of conspirators who waged a massive rum-running operation out of Seattle. They were convicted on evidence from telephone wiretaps. A majority of the Court affirmed.

The loudest dissent came from Mr. Justice Holmes. He was then 87 years old, and he was too old to mince words. He termed wiretapping "a dirty business." The government, he said ought not to use evidence that could be obtained only by a criminal act. He thought it a lesser evil "that some criminals should escape than that government should play an ignoble part."

Mr. Justice Brandeis raised his powerful voice in protest. He foresaw that the techniques of espionage "are not likely to stop with wiretapping." Police would devise other means for obtaining evidence of crime. It was immaterial that such intrusions might be in aid of law enforcement. "Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the government's purposes are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evilminded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, wellmeaning, but without understanding."

May 8th, 1939 J.H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, will deliver the principal Confederate Memorial Day address in the Greenville High School auditorium 11:15 tomorrow.

Glee Club members and the Greenville High School Band will provide music for the program and will later participate in a parade with Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

The parade will move from the high school to the courthouse during the final phase of the program.

Following the program on the courthouse lawn, paying tribute to the Confederate dead, members of the George R. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, sponsors of the program, will place wreaths at the front of the Confederate monument on the courthouse lawn.

The Teco Echo student publication of E.C.T.C. took first honors in its class at the state newspapers' contest sponsored by the North Carolina Press Association. The award was made at the spring meeting of the press convention held last weekend in Greensboro. The local paper was judged to be the best in its bracket, competing with such schools as Wake Forest, Davidson, Greensboro College, and Lenoir-Rhyne, to mention a few.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Political Shot By Helms

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The first political shot from home across the bow of President Carter's otherwise applauded Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty will soon be followed by a second, louder shot from the same unlikely source: conservative Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

In a stinging departure from his colleagues on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Helms' expected minority report criticizing new U.S. aid to finance the treaty will warn Carter on two fronts: that his Mideast peace course risks dangerous overarming of Israel and Egypt, and that it virtually invites the Soviet Union to exploit anti-U.S. reactions among such once-solid American friends as Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

What makes this rebuke to Carter politically important is its source. Up to now, criticism of Carter's Mideast plans has centered among the Arab states that feel betrayed by the treaty. Helms' break carries a loud warning to both Carter and Israel that the pervasive pro-Israeli position of American politicians may be bending under the weight of taxpayer fury at inflationary government spending and America's long-range stake in its major oil suppliers.

Similar warnings have recently been conveyed to the Israelis by some highly-placed politicians, including Senate majority leader Robert Byrd. Byrd told the Israeli finance minister that new Israeli settlements on the Arab West Bank could hurt Israel's U.S. aid package. One Democratic congressional leader went further in private. He warned that with each new Israeli settlement on the West Bank, Congress might consider reducing U.S. aid.

No such punitive action is remotely in prospect today. But the fact that Helms became an immediate lobbying target of Israel's chief allies here shows that his criticism has a sharp and worrisome cutting edge.

Helms' first critique of Carter and Israel came in a Senate speech on March 27, which received little attention in the press. Yet, it was an extraordinarily blunt blast. It criticized Carter's failure to go on nationwide television and "call for a suspension of economic and military aid to Israel" until Israel agrees to terminate settlements and negotiates a "comprehensive agreement."

That brought a quick response to Helms' top foreign policy aide, John Carbaugh, from Morris J. Amitay, executive director of the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), the highly influential pro-Israeli lobbying organization here. In an April 3 "Dear John" letter, Amitay defended the Egyptian-Israeli agreement as a treaty "that can stand on its own, whether or not a larger settlement is achieved" on the West Bank or elsewhere.

Amitay disputed Helms' worry about overall Arab

To the editor:

Emily Post in 1922 stated, "Training a child is exactly like training a puppy; a little heedless inattention and it is out of hand immediately."

Sometimes what I see makes me ask this question, "Are manners really important any more?" I can honestly reply, "Of course, they are." It is up to parents to pass on the best to their children, for by teaching our child what we consider worthwhile manners, we give him a start toward being an attractive, acceptable, considerate member of society.

We are aware that etiquette applies to everyone, old or young, and the best way to teach etiquette to children is by patient instruction, consistency, firmness and example. Indeed, children are people — and parents and teachers will do well to remember it. As parents, let us lead our youngsters to believe that our experience, our education and our attitudes are worth emulating, and respect will follow of its own accord.

Living in our affluent and permissive society, those of us who come in contact with youngsters daily direly see a need for politeness or courtesy or just plain good manners. Have we lost those intangibles that money, power, degrees and prestige can't buy?

Unlike Other Disaster Losses

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For income tax purposes, residents near Three Mile Island might have been better off had they been hit by a hurricane or a flood. Then they might have had casualty loss tax deductions.

But what does a family or business do about nuclear accident losses? The Internal Revenue Service code doesn't say. It recognizes losses from storm, fire and shipwreck. It says nothing about nuclear mishaps.

"Our tax code has not yet entered the Buck Rogers era in which we live," said Neil Glenn, who as vice chairman of the big accounting firm, Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., has studied the code.

The only tax concession granted residents near Harrisburg, Pa., was a delay until May 15 in filing their returns. Glenn suggests they are entitled to more than that. He thinks the code should be updated.

Glenn, who heads the firm's tax practice, maintains there are four issues that residents of Harrisburg and nearby towns need resolved. So far, nobody has come up with any final answers to these questions:

—Are those residents who fled their homes entitled to tax benefits, such as itemized deductions for additional living expenses incurred in the evacuation?

—If these residents are reimbursed, does that constitute taxable income?

—Will residents be entitled to casualty loss deductions for any radiation damage to their personal and real property?

—Can they deduct the losses, if any, in the market value of their homes?

While the answers might be academic to many, they are very real to thousands of Pennsylvanians. And, of course, the questions have the potential of being very practical for you and millions of others.

A casualty, says Glenn, is defined in part as the complete or partial ruin of property by an identifiable event of a sudden, unexpected or unusual nature. Such as a dam breaking or a tornado striking.

As for a nuclear accident, "we just don't have a precedent," said Glenn. He says "a lot of experts are scratching their heads about the future of nuclear power. I want to see headscratching at the IRS."

Scratching his own head, Glenn outlined some possible steps to aid individuals and businesses who either have been or may yet be affected by such an accident.

First, he said, Congress or the Treasury Department could redefine "casualty" to include losses resulting from a nuclear accident.

Next, President Carter could declare the Three Mile Island vicinity a disaster area, thus allowing more liberal rules for claiming casualty loss deductions.

Third, since we are uncertain of the effects on people, livestock and property of low-level radiation leaks, provisions could be made for future discovery of losses.

SURVEYING MAJOR AND MINOR VICES

One of the strictest disciplinarians among 18th century sea captains was Bartholomew Roberts. He never indulged in liquor; gambling was forbidden on his ship; women were never allowed on board; and he enforced a rest period on the Sabbath.

But Captain Roberts was a pirate. He captured more than 400 vessels before dying in battle with a British warship. He was, therefore, a robber and murderer on a very large scale.

We are sometimes inclined to judge other people, and even ourselves, by minor virtues and vices. We sometimes ignore the more central indications of character. Had Captain Roberts lived to retire on shore, he would probably have been accepted as a very moral man.

People may be deceived for a while by appearances, but not for long. And we do not deceive God at all. True goodness begins at the center with love of God and radiates outward toward love of mankind.

Steering Committee For School Bonds Organized

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A joint county-city steering committee to inform the public on aspects of the upcoming Pitt County school bond issue has been formed and will be active in the coming weeks.

The committee is co-chaired by Dr. Jon Tingelstad and Jim Black, members of the Greenville City and Pitt County Boards of Education, respectively, and consists of six county members and four city members.

At the monthly information meeting of the Greenville Board of Education Monday night, Dr. Tingelstad outlined action planned by the commission. The four named to the committee from Greenville are Dr. Donald Ensley, Rev. William Hadden, Richard Miller, and Ms. Margaret Worth.

Tingelstad said action has been divided into three major areas — (1) voter registration, now in the wind-up stage of action since Wednesday, May 9 is the final registration date; (2) funding, budget and calendar elements; and (3) preparation of a fact sheet.

In the second area, emphasis will be placed on informing the public on funding needed to budget facilities and programs and dates targeted for long range and short range plans.

The third area involves the preparation of a fact sheet that will encompass all aspects of the county and city systems, and to have this information available to interested persons at some central point where any question can be answered quickly.

Tingelstad noted that the principals and PTA presidents of each school would be part of the informational team to help the commission in publicizing the need of bond money. In addition, city school board members expressed a willingness to appear before church, civic or other groups, and to make radio and television appearances.

Dr. Tingelstad praised the joint work of Superintendents Glenn Cox and Ott Alford in providing advance information and giving extra hours in assisting the committee.

Cox, school board attorney Phillip Dixon, and board members Mrs. Lena Brown and Donovan Phillips each gave reports on their attendance at the 29th Annual National School Board Association meeting held in Miami Beach April 21-24.

Dixon said that one of the major developments nationally is the stress being placed on providing for handicapped children in the schools. This, he commented, will call for expenditures to meet federal and state provisions to provide facilities for the handicapped which in turn will significantly affect school budgets.

Dixon pointed out that in the field of suits for malpractice in education, the local systems are fortunate in not having had to deal with this situation to any great extent. Many school boards, Dixon added, also have to face the problem of dealing with several languages. One school district, an extreme case, has 34 different languages used in the district.

Donovan Phillips also touched on the handicapped issue, saying "these people are our new minority, and we're going to have to make expenditures to meet their needs." Phillips said considerable stress was placed too on dealing with the news media, and that multicultural approaches to education was another of major topics at the meeting.

In her comments, Mrs. Lena Brown said that in the clinics and seminars she attended, an important issue raised was that of including principals and teachers as part of the policy making team along with school board members. How to identify students who suffer child abuse, and how the schools can deal with it was another issue Mrs. Brown said was discussed in depth.

A report by Fraegar Sanders, Jr., Director of Compensatory Programs for the city schools, reveals that Title I grants for 1979-80 are projected at a little more than half a million dollars.

There is also an unused grant balance of $61,000 and a projected carry-over of $30,000, which will give a total of over $600,000 for Title I programs in the coming school year.

Basically, these funds will provide for a director, a reading coordinator and a secretary as the administrative staff.

Within the schools, these funds will make possible the placement of 22 and one-half reading resource teachers, and 21 and one-half teachers' aides.

Director of Secondary Education Mrs. Kay Whitehurst and Vocational Education director Don McLane presented to the board the annual report of Vocational Education Planning Activities and Annual Application for State/Federal Funding for the program.

This document is to be reviewed by the board and will be considered at the regular action meeting of the board later in May.

Charles Ross, Director of Education, reported on the status of the accreditation bid by elementary schools with the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.

Ross said all concerned were delighted that the report of the reviewing team reflected only one deficiency, a minor one dealing with two classes having 33 children each, one more than is permissible by association standards even though the number falls within state standards. Ross added he had been informed that the review team will be recommending accreditation for each school. Confirmation should be received by October.

A review by Mrs. Ann Harrison, Coordinator of Programs for Exceptional Children and Pupil Personnel Services dealt with the possibility of setting up an in-school suspension program. The city schools now uses an out-of-school suspension program, and several board members voiced concern over safety and legal angles that could eventuate in the event a suspended student was hurt or got in trouble while suspended from school.

Mrs. Harrison cited figures showing that the rate of expulsions and suspensions have decreased dramatically in the past few years and said that serious consideration was being given to an in-school suspension program in an effort to further reduce the numbers suspended from school.

Trip Reservations For Club By May 17

Ninety-five persons attended the Thursday meeting of the Town and Country Senior Citizens at the St. Paul's Episcopal Church Fellowship Hall.

According to Mrs. Sarah Ashton, club president, reservations for the trip to Manteo in June must be made by the May 17 meeting. Members also planned to attend the Hoxie Brothers Circus in Winterville Monday.

Members learned that Mrs. Thelma Lanier is in the University Nursing Home, with Mrs. Nannie Combs and Mrs. Suzanne Switzer as patients in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Ruby Parkerson gave a report, with Lawrence Brewster performing a selection of songs on the piano.

Members on the luncheon committee were as follows: Eula Andrews, Ann Fornes, Ruby Parkerson, Louise Ward, Louise Tucker, Sallie Reagan, Lillian McDaniel, Francis Dixon, Mamie Roper, Fannie Gilbert, Pearl McCombs and Mildred Smithwick.

The Rev. Adrian Brown opened the meeting with a prayer, with the Rev. Henry Lofquist in charge of closing the meeting.

The next meeting will be a covered dish luncheon.

The continuing problem with raw sewage in the Skewarkee Gut area was again a topic of discussion as a delegation of residents adjacent to the Gut outfall appeared and asked that speedier action be taken to improve the outfall. The delegation was told that the Division of Environmental Management in Raleigh is studying the problem and that action will be taken as soon as possible to remedy the situation.

In another case in which a delegation appeared, town commissioners listened to a request not to close a turn point on U.S. 17 near Holiday Inn. The request will be passed to the State

Accepting Candidates

The Judicial Nominating Committee is now accepting candidates for the office of Special Superior Court Judge for the State of North Carolina. On July 1, there will be eight vacancies in the office of Special Superior Court Judge.

Gov. Hunt will fill these vacancies from nominations submitted by the four divisional panels of the Judicial Nominating Committee. Nominees must be residents of North Carolina.

The Judicial Nominating Committee was created by Gov. Hunt by Executive Order No. 12 in July, 1977 to provide for non-partisan selection of Superior Court Judges. In December, 1978, Gov. Hunt extended the life of the committee by executive order for an additional year. This committee seeks out and nominates to the Governor the best-qualified persons to hold judicial office.

Citizens are invited to recommend to the committee candidates for this position by writing to the Executive Secretary, Judicial Nominating Committee, Office of the Governor, Raleigh, N. C. 27611. The deadline is Monday, May 21.

May Sue Exempting Of Private Schools

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Durham County School Superintendent Frank Yeager says he may file a lawsuit in an attempt to change a law that exempts the state's nearly 300 non-public schools from state control.

"I am currently in discussion with lawyers who do constitutional work about the possibility of trying to rectify this problem through a lawsuit that would be brought under the equal protection of the law clause in our Constitution," Yeager said Monday.

"I believe all of us who are interested in fairness must be concerned when the public sector has an unequal standard imposed upon our students," he added.

Yeager said he may consider asking the county school board to be a plaintiff in a suit.

Under the new law, non-public schools are not required to administer the state's minimum-competency test that, beginning with the class of 1980, students in the public schools must pass to receive a high school diploma.

However, non-public schools must choose a national standardized test to substitute for the state examination. Yeager said he believes the General Assembly's action is unfair to public school students.

"I have been one of the biggest supporters of the testing program, both annual and competency testing," he said. Yeager is chairman of the state's Annual Testing Commission.

"I believe that if the programs are uniformly applied, they will raise the achievement and increase the worth of a high school diploma in North Carolina," he said.

"However, when a student can fail the competency test in the public sector and be able to go to a private or church school for one year for the 12th grade and avoid the state standardized competency test, it is grossly unfair to students who do not have that option," Yeager added.

He also criticized Gov. Jim Hunt for not speaking out against the law "when it could have done some good."

Hunt said in his weekly news conference last week that he would have vetoed the legislation if he had had the power. North Carolina is the only state that does not grant its governor veto power over legislation.

The meeting will center around the theme, "Help Yourself to Better Health," with Dr. William J. A. DeMaria, medical director for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, as keynote speaker.

Jack A. Richardson, director of Pitt Memorial Hospital, and Dr. Charles P. Nicholson Jr. of Morehead City, a general surgery specialist, will also be on hand to answer questions.

The meeting will focus on preventive medicine, with an emphasis on today's lifestyle and its effect on personal health, health care expenses, and the health care system.

The meeting, one of seven such programs to be held throughout the state, is open to the public.

Fuel Strain

ATLANTA (AP) — Bountiful crops this spring have put a strain on the supply of diesel fuel for farmers, and state officials fear the situation may get worse.

State Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin said Monday he sent a telegram to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger urging that diesel allocations for agriculture be given serious consideration.

"I'm asking them to bring diesel fuel under an allocation system as we have now with gasoline," said Irvin. "I am urging them to look into the situation before it gets chaotic."

Farmers use diesel-run machinery to plant and harvest crops.

The commissioner said telephone calls to his office indicated spot shortages of diesel fuel throughout the state, and a survey of oil companies suggested the situation could become more serious.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fate of nuclear power "hangs in doubt," says the chairman of a House energy subcommittee after a tour of the disabled Three Mile Island power plant in Pennsylvania.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., made that assessment Monday after he and 14 other House members toured the site of the nation's most serious nuclear reactor accident.

"You get inside one of these things and you realize how enormously complex and complicated they are," Udall said. "Maybe the technology is so complex it's beyond the ability of even well-intentioned people to control."

Udall said his subcommittee will hold at least four months of hearings on nuclear issues raised by the March 28 accident at the central Pennsylvania power plant. By next fall, he said, the full House Interior Committee — which has jurisdiction over most nuclear issues — will begin voting on legislation affecting the fate of nuclear energy.

During Monday's tour, the congressmen were told by a control room supervisor that federal inspectors should have known about a hydrogen explosion in the damaged reactor two days before it was formally reported to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Jim Floyd told the congressmen NRC inspectors were in the control room when the explosion occurred on the first day of the accident, March 28.

Metropolitan Edison, which runs the power plant, did not officially notify the NRC of the explosion — the first sure sign that nuclear fuel inside the reactor had been damaged — until March 30.

Victor Gilinsky, a commission member on the tour, insisted that commission officials knew nothing about the explosion until March 30.

He said this was the first time he'd heard that plant operators knew about the explosion when it happened and also the first time he'd heard that NRC inspectors may have been present as witnesses. "It will be (the subject of) meticulous review," he said.

Had the commission known about the hydrogen explosion as early as March 28 "we would have taken a much more serious view of the accident," Gilinsky said.

Floyd, who recounted the events of that first day for the visiting legislators, said the hydrogen explosion, which occurred about 10 hours after the accident began, showed up clearly on a control room instrument which recorded pressure in the reactor vessel.

He told the congressmen this happened in full view of plant operators and of several NRC inspectors in the control room.

"We assumed they knew what we were doing," Floyd said.

Company officials have said the significance of the explosion or "pressure spike" was not understood until much later.

"There was a monstrous amount of data available and the significance of the spike was not fully understood at the time," Herman Dieckamp, president of General Public Utilities Corp., told the visiting congressmen. General Public Utilities is the parent firm of Metropolitan Edison.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., disagreed. "That defies plausibility," he said. "There is no doubt in my mind that they knew about it at the time it happened and covered it up."

In related developments Monday:

—Federal officials said technicians will start work in three weeks to clean up an estimated 600,000 gallons of radioactive water spilled during the Three Mile Island incident.

—President Carter told nuclear energy foes an immediate shutdown of the nation's nuclear power plants is "out of the question." He commented during a meeting with the coordinators of Sunday's anti-nuclear demonstration here.

—Professor Glen Schoessow of the University of Florida said a table-top model of a nuclear reactor built by nuclear engineering students will be brought to Washington May 22-24 to show House energy research and production subcommittee members what happens in accidents such as the one at the Three Mile Island.

—Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said in congressional testimony plans for protecting the public during nuclear accidents "have no credibility" and provide only "an illusion of protection."

—The Oregon House approved a moratorium on nuclear power plant construction that would ban construction of new nuclear power plants in Oregon until ground is broken somewhere in the country for a permanent storage facility for high-level radioactive waste. The bill was sent to the Senate where it is expected to have trouble getting out of committee.

Resolution Honoring The Family Is 'Sidetracked'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Senate sidetracked a resolution honoring the family as "the basic moral unit of our society," voting Monday night to send the bill to another committee.

The resolution is sponsored by Sen. Anne Bagnol, R-For-syth, who introduced it in response to Gov. Jim Hunt's so-called new generation bill, a measure setting up a commission to coordinate health services for children.

Mrs. Bagnol had attacked Hunt's bill as "socialistic" and sponsored her measure, which includes a "child's declaration of rights."

Included in the resolution is a provision saying North Carolina would "reject all federal child care-child development programs."

Several legislators said that provision could cost the state federal funds that finance programs for children.

"I cannot believe we want to say we want to reject all child-care development money," said Sen. Jim Edwards, D-Caldwell.

The Senate voted 35-12 to send the bill to the Appropriations Committee because of that potential cost.

Included in the resolution's declaration of rights is a provision saying children should "have sex education taught by parents, churches or others who believe in the Ten Commandments."

Another of the rights listed is

"to attend schools where moral standards are taught and discipline is enforced and to be taught from textbooks which do not offend the parents' religious or moral values."

Mrs. Bagnol fought the move to send her bill to the committee.

"If you want to kill this resolution you have that power," she told the Senate, "but I'd like to see it have a public funeral."

In other legislative action:

Another resolution was adopted when the House voted to go along with Senate changes in a measure asking Congress to reimburse the states for any federally mandated programs that cost the states money.

The House voted 77-22 to give tentative approval to a measure that would allow mixed-drink referendums in townships. The bill would primarily effect Pinehurst, which is a township and thus excluded from the present liquor-by-the-drink law.

Defer Decision

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials agreed Monday to allow the federal Environmental Protection Agency to delay a decision on whether to amend EPA regulations to consider in-plant treatment of PCBs along 210 miles of North Carolina roadsides.

EPA had set Monday as the deadline for issuing a decision. The decision may be delayed for up to 10 days, state officials said.

John White, EPA regional administrator in Atlanta, made the request by phone last weekend to Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety Herbert L. Hyde. Gov. Jim Hunt and Hyde agreed to the delay.

White said EPA is aware of the need for a prompt resolution of the problem but said additional time was necessary to review the situation.

Hyde said he was expecting a decision Monday and regretted that EPA asked for the extension.

"However, we have agreed to honor EPA's request because we want to cooperate with them in any way we can," he said.

Several environmental organizations have asked Hunt to remove PCB-contaminated soil from the roadsides. They contend that treating the soil in place will pose a threat to health and cause a depreciation of property values.

Repairs House, Wrecked Again

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The way Robert Fine sees it, all of his efforts to fix up his small, white frame home were wasted.

After taking a week off from his job with Guilford County to give the house a new paint job and new furnishings, the structure now stands condemned after being struck by a car late Saturday night.

"We only got started," said Mrs. Fine. "We had put so much work into it lately. Folks that was going by was saying it looked like a little doll house."

The little house was unfit for dolls, humans and even the Fines' cat Sunday. It was marked "Unsafe — Do Not Enter" by the city housing inspector.

The crash moved the house almost four feet off its foundation. The impact of the crash caused the refrigerator door to fly open, strewn food all over the kitchen. The house was left teetering, and authorities warned that it might collapse.

The driver of the car, identified by authorities as Bettie Brower Noble, 48, of Greensboro, died in the accident. Ac-ording to police, Ms. Noble lost control of the car, and it ran off the left side of the street. Four passengers in the car were injured.

In the aftermath of the accident, the Fines and Robert Fines' grandfather, 80-year-old J.L. Campbell, stood in the front yard of what used to be their home and shook their heads in disbelief.

"We can't even get in there to get out stuff," Fine said. "All we have is the clothes on our backs. A lot of our stuff, most of it probably, is okay, but we can't go in."

The Fines are also concerned because they don't know if Ms. Noble carried automobile insurance or whether the insurance she had was enough. Any attempt to collect damages will be complicated. Campbell said the house, which was built for $1,500 in 1937, isn't covered by insurance.

Only one of the passengers involved in the wreck was seriously injured. Clyde Enzlow, 62, suffered a broken leg. He was listed in stable condition in a Greensboro hospital.

Jefferson-Pilot Earnings Rose

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Consolidated earnings from operations of Jefferson-Pilot Corp. for the first quarter of 1979 showed a gain of 17.3 percent or 14 cents per share, Jefferson President W. Roger Soles announced Monday.

Soles called the gain "an excellent result" and said the rate of gain is substantially ahead of the corporation's average growth rate in per-share earnings over the past five years.

Following the annual meeting of shareholders, Jefferson-Pilot directors declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share, an increase of 15.4 percent or 4 cents per share over the previous quarterly rate.

The dividend will be payable on June 1 to shareholders of record at the close of business on May 18.

Probe Underway Of Williamston Fire

UNDER INVESTIGATION ...Agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and local law enforcement officers are investigating a fire May 4 which reduced the White's Heating and Sheet Metal Co. to this pile of rubble, a fire yesterday which damaged the Martin County Community Action Center, and two other blazes that have caused heavy damage over the past two months. WILLIAMSTON — Local and state officers are investigating an early-morning fire here yesterday that caused an estimated $75,000 damage to the Martin County Community Action Center, as well as three other blazes that have caused heavy damage over the past two months.

Chief of Police Willie Rogers said officers discovered the fire in the Community Action Center — the old Martin County Health Department building — at 2:25 a.m.

"All indications are that it was arson," Rogers said, explaining that there was evidence of a break-in and an office had been ransacked.

Although the fire was confined mainly to a hallway and one office, heavy water and smoke damage resulted to the rest of the structure, the chief explained. Rogers said the fire apparently started in a hallway storage room.

Rogers said agents of the State Bureau of Investigation are assisting local officers in the investigation of yesterday's fire and fires on March 16, April 13 and May 4.

An estimated $200,000 damage resulted from the March 14 fire at the Williamston Meat Curing and Processing Co. on McCasky Road, while the April 13 fire at the Holiday Inn at the intersection of U.S. 64 and U.S. 17 also caused an estimated $200,000 damage.

White's Heating and Sheet Metal Co. on Smithwick Street — three block from the Community Action Center at the intersection of Ray and Harrell Streets — was destroyed by fire last Friday. The three-story turn-of-the-century building housing the heating and sheet metal firm was valued at $75,000, while the contents were valued at $100,000.

He reported that he is still interested in building the housing mid-rise and would poll his sub-contractors in order to arrive at a firm contract figure for the Authority. The key aspect of the project now is arriving at a figure with the contractor that is "in the money," Laney added.

He said the Authority has received word from HUD authorizing the subsidizing of 50 units of existing housing under the Section Eight program here. Laney noted that HUD sent an annual contributions contract for the Authority's approval, calling for some $97,128 on an annual basis.

Under the program, rather than construction of new housing units, current owners would be encouraged to apply for assistance to bring existing rental property up to standards. Owners would then be able to charge a fair market rent for their property.

Tenants would have to meet income eligibility requirements but the owner would have the right to choose tenants who meet the requirements.

Commissioners adopted a resolution authorizing the chairman and secretary to execute the annual contributions contract with HUD for the 50 units. Laney added that the subsidy involvement would be broken down according to number of bedrooms in the existing units. Authorized would be 20 one-bedroom units, 20 two-bedroom units, seven three-bedroom units, and three four-bedroom units.

In other business last night, the tenant occupancy report submitted by Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, indicated that all but three units operated by the Authority were filled in April.

Rent averages included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $69.60; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $75.33; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $81.18; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $71.30; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $62.17; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $72.13, for an overall average of $73.55.

parallel streets, and include tree planting on all widening projects.

Sidney Skinner suggested that the city widen Chestnut Street to take traffic pressure off Dickinson Avenue. Skinner said that the residents on Chestnut want the corridor widened.

Mrs. Sidney Skinner said that some relief is needed in the Chestnut Street area and she said that it will be very expensive to fund improvements on Dickinson Avenue in view of the businesses located on the street as well as the necessary widening of the underpass at Fieldcrest Mills.

Mrs. Skinner recalled that D.O.T. said 12 years ago that Dickinson Avenue contained bottlenecks. She said, "It still does."

Dr. Pat Daugherty, also a League of Women Voters representative, said that the League would be inclined to favor one-way pairs in order to offer the least amount of disruption to business.

In response to be a question regarding Chestnut Street possibilities, Sewell said that the corridor would have to be three lanes and some trees would have to be removed. He said that the volume of traffic on the street would necessitate three lanes.

Sewell said that the staff is also recommending that several other corridor projects be given consideration, including Brownlea Drive from 14th Street to Tenth; First Street from Warren to Greenville Boulevard; Red Banks Road-Sedgefield Drive from Arlington Boulevard to Memorial Drive; Pitt-Green Street improvements; and 14th Street improvements from Greenville Boulevard to State Road 1725-26.

Mayor Percy Cox told the small gathering yesterday that the Council would adopt a priority list on Thursday night. He said the city needs to look not only at what the future corridor needs are, but also what situation the city is in now in regard to its thoroughfares.

Share Alarm

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — The coordinator of Gov. Jim Hunt's highway safety program says he shares the alarm of Florida officials over a court ruling which held that radar measurement of a vehicle's speed is not reliable enough for court evidence.

The ruling was handed down Monday in a Dade County court in Miami by Judge Alfred Nesbitt, who said other judges are not bound by law to consider his ruling.

Nesbitt earlier viewed a television program which appeared to show radar units clocking a tree at 86 mph and a house at 28 mph. Experts testified that errors in clocking can be caused by telephone paging devices, two-way radios or people whistling into citizens band radio microphones.

Col. Edwin Guy, a former Highway Patrol commander, said today he foresees a number North Carolina speeders trying to beat a speeding ticket as a result of the Florida ruling.

But radar is a very accurate instrument if the person using it is thoroughly trained, said Guy. He said North Carolina troopers are trained in the use of radar and are not allowed to use it until they have been on duty anywhere from six months to a year.

"He happened to be throwing where I happened to be swinging," said Pittsburgh's Bill Robinson. And when that happens at Atlanta Stadium, nicknamed the Launching Pad because of the way baseballs take off, the numbers on the scoreboard usually change.

Robinson made contact with a Mickey Mahler delivery in the sixth inning Monday night. The result was "one of the hardest balls I've ever hit," said Robinson, a solo shot that snapped a 2-2 tie and helped the Pirates to a 4-2 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

The victory raised Pittsburgh's record to 10-14 and enabled them to climb out of last place in the National League East.

Atlanta's loss was its fifth in a row.

In other NL games, the New York Mets, 9-15, dropped to last place by losing to the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2. The Philadelphia Phillies outscored the San Diego Padres 11-6.

Dodgers 5, Mets 2
Bill Russell and Reggie Smith

drove in two runs each as the Dodgers scored four runs in the fifth inning, their biggest in three weeks. The victory snapped a three-game losing streak and was only the second in the last eight games for Los Angeles.

Burt Hooton, 3-2, earned his third straight victory, with relief help from Bob Welch in the ninth inning. It was Welch's first relief appearance of the season.

Steve Garvey homered for Los Angeles and Ed Kranepool for New York.

Phillies 11, Padres 6
Bake McBride drove in four runs, three of them on a bases-loaded triple in the seventh inning, as Philadelphia won its fourth in a row and climbed one-half game ahead of second-place Montreal in the National League East.

Steve Carlton, 3-4, worked six innings, giving up one run on five hits while striking out six. The win snapped a personal three-game losing streak for Carlton and made him the winningest left-hander in Phillies history with 133 victories.

Jones Is Hit

The Seattle Mariners are just driving the New York Yankees batty.

"A lot of guys much smarter than me have tried to figure this out," says Bob Lemon. "There's really no reason for it."

The Yankee manager is as perplexed as anyone about the Mariners' success against the two-time world champions. It happened again Monday night, when Seattle beat the Yankees for the fourth time this year without a defeat and for the 13th time in 25 tries in the three years they've been in the American League.

"It's amazing," said Seattle's Dan Meyer, who knocked in a club-record seven runs in the 12-4 rout. "I wish I could explain it. If I could explain it, we'd do it against everyone else."

Last in the American League West, the Mariners have a 6-19 record against the rest of the league. But they obviously haven't been playing the rest of the league the way they've been playing the Yankees — a team they beat three straight times out on the West Coast recently with late-inning lighting.

They didn't wait too long this time to put the game away, breaking a tie on Meyer's grand slam in the fifth inning. They scored four more times in the eighth when Meyer collected his seventh RBI on a bases-loaded walk to break the club record of six set by Leon Roberts.

"That was the first grand slam of my life — I never even hit one in Little League," said Meyer, who more than doubled his season's RBI output with his big night.

In other AL games, the Boston Red Sox beat the California Angels 9-4; the Kansas City Royals outscored the Texas Rangers 10-6; the Oakland A's stopped the Baltimore Orioles

5-3; the Detroit Tigers edged the Chicago White Sox 5-4 and the Minnesota Twins turned back the Toronto Blue Jays 6-1.

Meyer, who came into the contest with a .219 batting average, two homers and six RBI in 22 games, rapped a run-scoring single and sacrifice fly off Luis Tiant in the first and third innings and then slammed his grand slam off loser Paul Mirabella.

The Mariners' 14-hit attack included six doubles plus Meyer's grand slam and a solo homer by Roberts in the ninth.

Red Sox 9, Angels 4
A six-run first inning, keyed by Butch Hobson's three-run double, triggered Boston over California. Jim Rice hit a homer and a triple as winner Mike Torrez scattered seven hits, including a pair of sixth-inning homers by Joe Rudi and Brian Downing.

California ace Nolan Ryan lasted only two-thirds of an inning.

"You've got to get to Ryan quick if you're going to get him at all," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "We did."

Torrez walked five and struck out seven.

"I didn't think about going nine innings," said Torrez, "but the complete game feels good."

Royals 10, Rangers 6
Amos Otis singled in a run and scored another to key Kansas City's five-run rally in the sixth, leading the Royals past Texas. The outburst erased a 6-2 Texas lead, and Al Cowens' two-run homer in the eighth off Sparky Lyle, the fifth Texas pitcher, highlighted a three-run burst to finish off the Rangers.

Kansas City's sixth-inning rally gave the victory to Ed Rodriguez, who came in for Dennis Leonard in the fifth.

A's 5, Orioles 3
Wayne Gross scored on a late throw by Baltimore first baseman Eddie Murray to break a seventh-inning tie and then Derek Bryant singled home another Oakland run to give the A's their victory over the Orioles.

The loss ended a six-game winning streak for the Orioles, and their only two losses in the last 17 games have been to Oakland.

Winner Rick Langford allowed run-scoring doubles by Murray and Gary Roenicke in the first and an RBI double by Al Thumby in the second. He was headed for more trouble in the third before Roenicke grounded into a triple play, the first of the major league season.

Tigers 5, White Sox 4
RBI singles by Jason Thompson and Lance Parrish in the eighth inning sparked Detroit over Chicago. Rusty Staub was hit by a pitch to open the inning and Steve Kemp singled. Thompson then tied the score at 4-4 with his single to right, knocking rookie starter Steve Trout out of the game.

"You've greeted reliever Mike Proly with a single to left for the winning run."

Twins 6, Blue Jays 1
Butch Wynegar hit his third home run in three days and collected three hits to back the seven-hit pitching of Dave Goltz as Minnesota defeated Toronto.

The Twins have won eight of their last nine games and now lead the American League West division by 31-2 games. Goltz struck out six and walked two in posting his second complete game of the season.

"The first few innings I wasn't really sharp," said Goltz. "But overall I had good control of the fastball."

Spurs, Bullets Move To Texas

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — George Gervin and the San Antonio Spurs aren't conceding the defending champion Washington Bullets anything, especially now that the National Basketball Association Eastern finals are moving to Texas.

"Look, don't worry about us — we're tough," said Gervin. "We'll show them and everybody else who says we can't win in the playoffs. When we play our game, we can do anything we want."

The Spurs now get an opportunity to display their playoff talents before their hometown fans. With the best-of-seven series tied at one each, Game 3 will be played Wednesday night and Game 4 is set for Friday night, both in San Antonio.

The Spurs played their game in the series opener here last Friday night and blew the Bullets out of the Capital Centre, 118-97. The Bullets came back on Sunday and crunched the Spurs 115-95 behind the play of Wes Unseld, who had 26 points and 22 rebounds, and Kevin Grevey, who rediscovered his shooting eye in the third quarter to score 12 of his 18 points.

Gervin and James Silas combined for 62 points Friday night but produced only 36 points, 11 in the second half, on Sunday and played terrible transition defense.

"They got the fast-break opportunities when we started to miss," said Spurs Coach Doug Moe. "We weren't getting back. Guys were standing around. We didn't do a good job of keeping pressure on them. When their fast breaks worked, we weren't as tough in a set defense."

"I'm supposed to be the first guard back on transition and I wasn't getting there," said Silas. "Maybe I was trying to think of too many things at one time. We played the same defense that we did against Philadelphia (in the semifinal series) but Grevey is a lot better shooter than (76er rookie guard) Maurice Cheeks. You can't give the Bullets that many easy baskets."

Gervin, the two-time NBA scoring champion who isn't noted for his defense, suggested the Spurs might have been outsmarted as well as outplayed.

"All of us might have been concentrating on shooting and rebounding too much," he said. "Grevey and Bobby Dandridge were leaving early (on the fast break) and we just didn't pick them up."

Washington Coach Dick Motta wasn't too happy with his team's performance, especially in the first half when San Antonio jumped off an 8-0 start and led throughout the first 24 minutes.

"We didn't play well in the first half and I didn't think we'd be able to salvage it," said Motta, who let his team know his displeasure at the midpoint break. When asked about the second-half surge, Motta snapped: "It's about time."

"The Spurs swarmed us on defense and if you can't beat that, it's really sad," he continued. "It's like their press at the end. All you have to do is make some basketball plays to beat it."

Foyt Refutes Charges

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt, denounced as a conspirator in a plot to keep his top rivals out of the Indianapolis 500, figures he has no need for Championship Auto Racing Teams and "they sure don't need me."

The four-time Indy 500 winner was an original director of CART when the dissident group of car owners and drivers broke with the U.S. Auto Club late last year. But he soon returned to the established sanctioning body, satisfied that a number of USAC rule changes were steps in the right direction.

Like it or not, Foyt is still considered the biggest name in auto racing. And his defection back to USAC did not sit well with many CART people, who claimed he was responsible for engineering the original exclusion of the Indy entries by six other CART directors.

"They can't back up any of their statements," said Foyt, who has entered four cars in his bid for a record 22nd straight Indy start. "They all blame this thing on me, but I didn't have a vote (in USAC's decision)."

Foyt laughed off the CART contention that he wanted Unser, Johnny Rutherford, Gordon Johncock and Wally Dallenbach out of the race in order to make it easier for him to win his fifth 500.

"Yeah," he sneered sarcastically, "that's why I've beaten them so much more than they've beaten me, because I'm so scared of them."

N.Y. Hopes Guidry Will Spur Bullpen

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
As he did with so many things, Casey Stengel had a quaint way to describe the performances of less than satisfactory players.

You'd mention an employee's name and ask Casey why the man wasn't playing or why he'd been dispatched elsewhere. Stengel would crinkle his nose, eyebrows and forehead at you and supply the most logical answer. "I seen what he done," the old man would say.

Well, that's sort of the situation with the New York Yankee bullpen and explains why Ron Guidry, baseball's best pitcher last season, has volunteered to become a reliever. Quite frankly, lately the Yankee firemen have turned into arsonists. Since Rich Gossage began his six-week course on how to take a shower without breaking your thumb, the bullpen of the world champions has been a disaster area. Ken Clay's earned run average is 4.11 for six games. Paul Mirabella has a 4.97 ERA for eight games and Dick Tidrow is at 6.57 for nine appearances. Clearly, drastic action was needed and no one knew that better than Guidry, who won the Cy Young Award with a 25-3 record last year.

How drastic is it for a starting pitcher to become a reliever? Well, how drastic would it be for Roger Staubach to go up to Tom Landry one day and suggest that instead of playing quarterback, he'd like to try, oh, say, wide receiver? And how drastic would it be for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to decide that things were getting dull under the basket and maybe he ought to be a backcourtman instead of a center?

Understand those kind of switches and you can begin to appreciate what Guidry is trying to do. He shrugs off the magnitude of the sacrifice he is making for the good of the team but there are Yankees who think he is nuts for taking the chance that he might hurt his valuable left arm by overworking it as a reliever.

Guidry's explanation is simple. He sees a need on his team and he is going to do what he can to plug it. If Reggie Jackson's thumb were in a cast, Guidry couldn't do much about replacing the loss of power. Pitching is his business, and starting or relieving makes little difference to him, although it might make plenty of difference to his team.

That is the stuff heroes are made of and if somehow this move turns the Yankees around, Guidry will once again emerge as the man who made the difference.

Who's Faster, Suns Or Sonics?

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — With both teams insisting they can outrun the other, tonight's National Basketball Association Western Conference playoff game between Seattle and Phoenix should show whose fast break is really faster.

"Do they really think they can run better than we can?" asked Seattle's jet-propelled guard Gus Williams, who takes offense at any suggestion that the Phoenix Suns can outdo the SuperSonics.

"I think we can run with anybody," said Williams. "We have the guys to get the boards and the guys to run the break."

Seattle lost to Phoenix 113-103 here Sunday but takes a 2-1 lead into the fourth game of the best-of-seven series tonight.

"The faster the pace the better we like it," responded Phoenix guard Paul Westphal. "We're at our best when the play is spread over the full court."

Williams led all shooters in the third game with 35 points, but it wasn't enough to hold back the combined efforts of Westphal and teammates Walter Davis and Truck Robinson. Westphal paced the Suns with 25 points.

The Suns' first victory came without much help from star center Alvan Adams, sidelined after spraining his ankle in the first quarter. Rookie Joel Kramer, who effectively took over Adams' chores Sunday, will be asked to do it again tonight. Adams is expected to be out of action for the fourth game.

Besides scoring 11 points, Kramer held Sonics center Jack Sikma to seven points in the last three quarters.

The Sonics have clearly been masters of the backboards, but even that superiority faded when they decided to run against the Suns.

"There were times when our guards were taking off, and we allowed their guards to slip in and help on the boards," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We allowed them two and three shots and that hurt us."

As for the Suns, they feel their best basketball is yet to come in the series.

"We can still do some things we haven't done yet," said Suns Coach John MacLeod. "When we start reacting to their double team, it's really going to loosen things up."

He said the Sonics have been double-teaming Westphal and Davis. "That means we have a man open, and it's a matter of spotting the open man and getting the good shot."

Brian Dye pitched a two-hitter yesterday as Aaction Movers defeated Planters Bank 5-1 in a Babe Ruth baseball game.

The Movers scored four of their five runs in the second inning. With one away in that frame, Mitchell Wingate singled and moved to second on Mark Harris' sacrifice. Bryan Brannon plated him with a base hit and Jessie Atkinson reached on an error.

Rudy Stalls singled to load things up and walks to Bill Owens and Dye, along with an error on Keith Stocks' batted ball, cleared the bases.

Little League

Union Carbide and Big Value Drugs took victories yesterday in the opening games of the 1979 Little League season.

UC defeated the Jaycees 7-4 with four runs in the sixth inning. Mike Garris led off the frame by being hit by a pitch and Maury Harris got a base on balls. David Lee singled to load things up and Rocky Zhier walked, forcing in Garris. Harris, Lee and Zhier all scored on a double by Jordy Smith.

A five-run fourth inning, highlighted by Sterling Edwards' three-run homer, gave Big Value a 6-2 victory over First Federal.

Kevin Lang started things off with a double and Mike Herrin singled him home. Les Turner singled and Mike Gavigan reached on an error and Eric Jarman reached on a First Federal misplay. Edwards' homer knocked in Gavigan and Jarman.

Nicklaus Has Dominated Golf For Generation

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Quick, after eliminating Muhammad Ali, whom would you pick as "Athlete of the Decade" for the 1970s?

Rod Carew, baseball's computerized siege gun? Football's great O.J. Simpson? Hockey's Bobby Orr? Skyscraper Kareem Abdul-Jabbar or watchfob Bill Shoemaker, tennis' Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert?

Try again. It's Jack Nicklaus, not only the golfer of the decade but also of the generation, without too much argument perhaps the greatest ever.

When Big Jack made a strong run at Muhammad Ali a year ago in the inaugural "Athlete of the Decade" balloting conducted by the American Cancer Society, it was inevitable that the honor could not escape him for long.

It didn't. In the second poll of the nation's editors, sports writers and broadcasters, Nicklaus was an overwhelming winner over a cordon of the most illustrious champions in sports. He will be honored at a New York dinner June 7.

Nicklaus' record of 17 major championships — five Masters, three U.S. and three British Opens, four PGA's and two U.S. Amateur crowns — is an achievement that defies the imagination. That's eight more than won by 43-year-old Gary Player, 10 more than 49-year-old Arnold Palmer's seven — his closest active pursuers.

The game is filled with lean, keen and hungry tigers — so grooved it appears they came off an assembly line — but the shadow of the Golden Bear hovers over them every time they tee up a ball. They look over their shoulders apprehensively. Nicklaus, at age 38, remains the man to beat.

No one in sports — not even Ali — has so dominated or been a finer credit to his particular profession. As Muhammad Ali mesmerized the world with his fighting skills, bombast and charm, Nicklaus has woven a gentlemanly grace into his tapestry of silver trophies and gold bouillon. In deportment and relations with the public and press, he has set a mold that other super stars would do well to emulate.

Nicklaus is unique in that he virtually has had two careers. Nicklaus, a links prodigy, was winning tournaments at 13, beating the best men players in Ohio at 16. He won the U.S. Amateur at 19 and as a rookie pro of 22 beat Arnold Palmer in a playoff for the U.S. Open title, changing the course of bigtime golf.

He was a bulbous boy of 220 pounds, wide of girth, with thick hips and legs, and a crew-cut hairstyle that accented his round German face. Derided because he posed a threat to the idolized Palmer, he became edgy and resentful.

In the late 1960s, he seemed to become bored. His game suffered. "Jack has burned himself out," critics said. Sam Snead and Frank Beard were among those who predicted he was through.

As the decade of the 1970s emerged, so did a new Jack Nicklaus — a trim, handsome athlete of 180 pounds, more confident, more patient, more amenable. His game flowered. The decade brought him eight of his majors and some of his finest golf.

Jack Nicklaus

West Coast Bay Area Is Shaken

By PETE JACOBS
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tall buildings trembled, but there were no serious injuries or damage when the second moderate earthquake in 10 days shook northern California.

"It was pretty scary. The whole foundation of the house shook badly," said Carmen Irizarry of East San Jose after Monday night's tremors struck at 10:11 p.m. PDT.

The earthquake was measured at 4.8 on the Richter scale by the University of California Seismographic Center at Berkeley, and at 4.9 by the National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo. Several aftershocks, including one of 2.6, following the main temblor. Officials said they believed it was the strongest quake in the San Francisco Bay area since 1970 when one registering 4.9 was centered near Danville, about 15 miles east of Oakland.

The epicenter was placed along the Calaveras Fault system, five miles west of Mt. Hamilton and 10 miles east of San Jose, a city of 600,000, about 60 miles southeast of San Francisco.

In East San Jose, Larry Zarella said the refrigerator fell over in his kitchen, and in nearby Los Gatos, Ron Vielicka said the quake set his dogs howling and growling.

"My dogs went bananas beginning about two hours before it hit, and other dogs began barking, which I've never heard before," Vielicka said.

"I was watching the walls kind of weave and wave," said Capt. Zack Snyder of the state Dept. of Forestry office in Morgan Hill, also near the epicenter.

For others, the quake produced a rolling feeling in buildings from San Francisco Bay area more than 100 miles south to the Monterey Peninsula.

"Lots of burglar alarms went off, too," said a dispatcher at the Santa Clara County Communications Center.

Although the area was hit by a quake of 4.3 magnitude April 27, it was "pure coincidence," according to Dr. Robert Uhrhammer of the UC seismograph center, who termed both tremors minor.

"I have not received any reports of injuries and I would not expect any from a quake of this magnitude," Uhrhammer said.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of a number means a tenfold increase in the magnitude.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 7.9. The quake and subsequent fires killed 700 persons and caused $400 million damage.

Statesville Record & Landmark

TAYLORSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — As they've done day after day for decades, people living along Alexander Railroad's tracks wave as the train hauling freight between Taylorsville and Statesville passes by. Many of them, young and old alike, have never in their lives ridden a train.

But that situation is changing, thanks to a collaboration between the railroad company and the Old North State Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society.

Dead for 33 years, Alexander Railroad's passenger service rolled back to life last fall with a weekend of special "just for fun" excursions. The trips were repeated in April, and more are scheduled for July 4, Sept. 1-3 and Oct. 20-21.

Gene Cannon, the railroad's track supervisor, is the man by whom it could not have been done. When he joined the company about a year ago, he suggested to Sam Zachary, railroad president, that the Taylorsville depot might be a good place to house a couple of old rail cars that old North State wanted to preserve.

"It wasn't until after they got here," Cannon recalls, "that we decided to utilize them in any way whatsoever." But Cannon, who admits to a lifelong fascination with trains, quickly found himself putting in long hours, on a "strictly volunteer" basis, to restore the cars. He soon had them looking so good it seemed a shame not to use them.

He's whipped three cars into shape — the "Taylorsville," the "Hiddente" and the "Stony Point." In addition, the excursions boast a caboose, the "Tallulah Falls." Some 1,000 hours have gone into their restoration, and local glass, electrical and furniture companies have either donated materials or supplied them at a discount. Old North State foots the bill for supplies, but the work itself has been a labor of love.

The "Taylorsville," a former B&O coach built in 1947, has its own running water and air conditioning, plus reclining seats which can be swiveled around to face the direction of travel.

The "Hiddente" was first a parlor car, then a baggage-passenger coach, then an Army hospital car. It went into retirement as a rail museum but was subsequently severely vandalized.

To look at it now, you'd never know the 46-year-old "Hiddente" had seen hard times. Furnished with comfortable sofas, loveseats and easy chairs, it is completely carpeted, and elegant ceiling lights run the length of its interior. Passengers in April were treated to a live piano performance. The "Stony Point" posed Cannon's biggest challenge. The 65-year-old former railway post office was filthy and shabby by but, Cannon says, "She's turning out to be a right fashionable old gal." Cannon is still working to renovate the sleeping quarters, kitchen and bathrooms.

The caboose is 85 years old and represents, Cannon says, "the only remaining piece of rolling stock" from the Tallulah Falls Railroad, which "went under in the early 50s." The all-wood structure, he points out, "is not built for high-speed railroads," but is perfectly at home with the slower pace of the Alexander Railroad.

Cannon has worked for a number of rail companies, including the Piedmont and Northern, the Seaboard Coastline, the Yancey and the Maryland and Delaware. He considered several times taking responsibility for the old coaches but never found just the right time and place until coming to Taylorsville.

For all excursions, Old North State supplies conductors wearing spiffy brass-buttoned uniforms. Because motorists aren't watching for the train on weekends and holidays (the freight line runs Monday through Friday), railway intersections are guarded by flagmen. Alexander Railroad provides its own locomotive.

"Depending on the response," Cannon says, "the excursions have potential for expansion."

Reservations are required for all excursions. The 40-mile round-trip journeys are between Taylorsville and West Statesville. On Saturdays and holidays, trains leave the Taylorsville depot at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Sunday excursions depart at 1:30 p.m. only. Reservations may be made by writing to Old North State Chapter, National Railway Historical Society, 5800 Louisburg Road, Raleigh, N.C. 27604; or P.O. Box 734, Taylorsville, N.C. 28681.

Carolina Tel Rate Cut Ruled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission Monday ordered Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. to reduce its rates.

The action will reduce the utility's annual revenue by $6.7 million and will reduce monthly rates to customers by 40 cents to 45 cents a month.

The commission, in making the order, told Carolina Telephone to make refunds to its customers, effective June 1. The company will credit the refunds to its customers' accounts. The refund amounts to $18.96 per customer and will total about $8.4 million.

The refunds affect bills collected April 3, 1978 through June 1 of this year.

'Real' Seniors Looking Ahead To Graduation

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — John and Pat McNiff are like any other college seniors. They love college life. And they are looking forward to graduation but are apprehensive at the same time.

The only difference between the McNiffs and any other graduating college student is their ages — John is 58 and Pat is 56.

The McNiffs are older than many of the professors at the University of North Carolina, but age hasn't stopped them from making the most of their years in college.

"It's been a ball," Mrs. McNiff said. "I even learned how to drink beer again."

"How do we feel about graduating? Scared to death?" Her husband agreed. "Ask any senior. I want to get out, and I don't want to get out."

The couple, who will graduate on May 13, started to college four years ago at Coastal Carolina College in Jacksonville, where McNiff was stationed with the Marine Corps. Their son, Thomas, started one year later at UNC in Chapel Hill.

"When we brought Thomas up his freshman year, I fell in love with this place," Mrs. McNiff said.

The McNiffs decided to make the switch to UNC, with the help of McNiff's GI bill and Mrs. McNiff's state grant.

The family has made history at UNC, being the first family of three to be enrolled in the university at the same time.

The McNiffs live in a mobile home in Hillsborough. They don't see their son on campus, but they do get to see him when he comes to visit.

The McNiffs have taken classes together since they started to college, mainly because they just have one car.

"She had to have statistics to make up a high school deficiency, so I took it with her," McNiff said. "That one almost killed me."

The McNiffs are majoring in political science with special emphasis on Latin American studies. They credit their interest in politics to Professor Gil Joseph, who speaks highly of them.

"I enjoyed having them in class because they weren't afraid to speak up, and they usually had a different perspective on the issues," he said.

Joseph said the McNiffs have been accepted to work with the Peace Corps in South America. But their plans have changed since they applied for the job. Mrs. McNiff will stay in North Carolina and care for her ailing mother, while her husband goes with his oldest son to Lake Tahoe to look for work and a place to settle.

June Opinion On Rhodesia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will decide by the middle of next month whether to accept the recent elections in Rhodesia and lift economic sanctions against that country, his secretary of state says.

A group of senators received assurances Monday from Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance that Carter would act by then.

But Sen. Jesse Helms refused to rule out a move by Congress to force the president to lift the sanctions before that time.

The North Carolina Republican, a leading advocate of a swift end to the sanctions, did indicate after meeting with Vance that he would not push for a vote this week on the issue.

"I want to give the secretary time to think about what we talked about," he said.

The president has until 10 days after the installation of a freely elected government in Rhodesia to determine whether conditions have been met for removing sanctions.

The government of Bishop Abel Muzorewa, who will be Rhodesia's first black prime minister, is scheduled to be installed late this month.

Some Carter advisers are known to have urged the president not to accept the elections promoted by Ian Smith's government. They say few if any black-led African nations will recognize the new government.

Jane Wins Her Point On FBI

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda says she didn't want the $1 million. She just wanted the FBI to admit it spied on her for 4½ years and a promise to play by the rules in the future.

And on Monday, Miss Fonda announced she got what she went after — the admission and a promise to adhere to new Justice Department guidelines in future investigations.

In return, 1978's Oscar winner for "Best Actress" agreed not to press her financial claim filed by the American Civil Liberties Union in federal court.

"It's not what we were going after," she said Monday of the $1 million. "We were trying to illustrate a principle..."

Rescue Load Of Refugees

PATTAYA, Thailand (AP) — The U.S. frigate Robert E. Peary sailed into this coastal resort early today with 448 Vietnamese refugees rescued from the South China Sea three days ago.

United Nations and American Embassy officials boarded the ship, anchored offshore, to begin questioning the refugees.

All who want to go to the United States will be admitted there since they were picked up by an American ship. The fate of the others was not known since the Thai government has not indicated whether it will let any of them land.

William Mathis, the skipper of the 4,000-ton frigate, told reporters the Peary spotted the refugees' 55-foot boat drifting about 80 miles off the Malaysian coast. He said both the boat's engines were broken down and the refugees were running out of water and food.

The frigate, on a routine run between Singapore and Pattaya, took the refugees aboard and tried to tow the boat, but it sank, he said.

Most of the refugees are ethnic Chinese from Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon. They said they sailed May 1 from the port of Rach Gia, 137 miles southwest of Saigon, after bribing officials and taking advantage of the fourth anniversary celebration of the Communist victory in South Vietnam to cover their escape.

Thailand already is giving temporary asylum to some 200,000 Indochinese refugees, and the government recently announced it would take a tough line toward future arrivals.

Drop Appeal On Imported Leaf

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has withdrawn its appeal over taxes on imported Turkish leaf tobacco that the company has in storage, the Forsyth County tax supervisor said Monday.

The decision means Reynolds will be paying about $3 million in back taxes for the years 1976-78 to the city of Winston-Salem and to Forsyth County. It will also be assessed for taxes on the tobacco this year.

Reynolds had protested the county's decision to seek taxes on the tobacco, which was valued at $92 million in 1976, about $140 million in 1977 and $153 million in 1978.

In a letter dated May 4 to Harvey Pardue, the tax supervisor, a Reynolds officer said the company wanted to formally withdraw its appeal. James W. McGrath, Reynolds' assistant secretary for taxation, did not give a reason for the company's decision.

This Is The Season Of Network Confidence Over Programming

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This is the time of year when executives at every network beam with confidence over their network's chances in the coming fall television season.

It's kind of fun trying to figure out which network executive really believes all the good things he's saying about his fall schedule. This year, I believe Robert Daly, president of CBS Entertainment.

CBS, the top network for so many years before ABC's recent rise, was gaining on ABC in the second half of the current season and has drawn up a strong schedule for the fall. The network left its three strongest nights intact — Monday, Thursday and Friday — and hopes to build an audience for its weaker shows during the summer.

SUNDAY should be a very interesting night. ABC is using "Mork and Mindy," but CBS has the popular "60 Minutes." After that will come "Archie Bunker's Place" in the place of "All in the Family." This will feature only Carroll O'Connor of the "All in the Family" cast, but if it carries the clout of the original show, it will give the night to CBS because it is followed by "One Day at a Time" and "Alice," strong hits both, and a new show, "Trapper John, M.D."

MONDAY is a very strong night for CBS, with "M-A-S-H," the best and brightest sitcom on TV, in the middle of the lineup. Beginning the night is "White Shadow," a sleeper that could gain strength this summer and may be a hit by fall. "M-A-S-H" follows, then "WKRP in Cincinnati" and "Lou Grant."

TUESDAY is the night that may shape the ABC-CBS race next season. Hoping that kids have tired of the Fonz and the rest of the "Happy Days" gang, CBS is offering another teeny show called "We're Cruisin'," a kind of "American

WEDNESDAY doesn't look as bright for CBS. The network is stacking two new sitcoms at the

Ballet Tryouts Are For All

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Choreographer Maurice Bejart decided to conduct his ballet tryouts in a gymnasium instead of the prestigious Colon Theater.

He made the decision after he discovered theater officials wanted to limit the auditions to students from his school.

Dozens of Argentine ballet hopefuls had lined up outside the theater for the Sunday tryouts, all dreaming of a scholarship at Bejart's school in Brussels.

"If all these people cannot enter, I suspended the tryouts," said Bejart before stalking from the theater.

top of the evening, then following with "Wednesday Night Movies." "Working Stiffs" and "The Last Resort" may be wonderful, but they're going up against ABC's popular "Eight is Enough" and "Charlie's Angels."

THURSDAY has been a strong night for CBS, though "Mork and Mindy" cut into the family audience usually drawn to "The Waltons." With "Mork" gone, ABC is relying on "Laverne and Shirley," and viewers may come back to Waltons' Mountain.

FRIDAY night also looks good for CBS, with "The Incredible Hulk" there for the kids to begin the evening, followed by "The Dukes of Hazard," a midseason replacement that held its own, and "Dallas," a soap-opera with huge adult appeal.

SATURDAY is a tossup. CBS is going after the kids with "The Bad News Bears" starting the evening, followed by a new comedy, "Struck by Light-

Sinatra Plugging For Curb On Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra, who has had his share of run-ins with reporters, is appealing to 2,000 of the nation's political and business leaders for help in "reining in the runaway press."

"If you do this, I will enlist in your army any old day," Ol' Blue Eyes wrote at the conclusion of a two-page letter.

A spokesman said the letter was mailed along with a reprint of a 30-page magazine article critical of the press.

"He's practicing democracy, the principle of speaking up," said Lee Solters, a spokesman for Sinatra in Los Angeles. "He has as much right to speak up as anybody."

Solters said Sinatra sent his letter and a copy of the article to President Carter, members of Congress, governors, business leaders, heads of the country's college journalism departments and editors, publishers and news columnists.

"He's mailing it to anyone who would have any kind of interest in what that pamphlet has to say," Solters said.

COMPOSER SUCCUMBS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Composer Milton Ager, whose songs included "Ain't She Sweet" and "Hard Hearted Hannah," died Sunday after a long illness. He was 85. Ager's "Happy Days Are Here Again" became Franklin Delano Roosevelt's campaign song during his first term campaign.

The reprinted article, "The Powers of the Press: A Problem for Our Democracy," was written by Washington lawyer Max M. Kampelman, a former aide to the late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. Kampelman's ar-

Judge May Hear Jagger Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge who says he's "strictly a Lawrence Welk man" may hear divorce case testimony from rock star Mick Jagger.

The Rolling Stones' lead singer and actress Bianca Jagger are battling here over where her divorce suit will be heard. Mrs. Jagger, who plans to live in Los Angeles with their daughter, Jade, is seeking half of Jagger's estimated $25 million fortune. She has filed in both London and Los Angeles, but seeks trial here. Jagger favors a trial in England.

Jagger recently described himself as "a wandering minstrel," and said, "In the course of my career as a musician it is necessary for me to visit many countries." Jagger's lawyer said his client is a resident of the island of Mustique, West Indies.

Traffic Radar Is Ruled Poor Evidence

MIAMI (AP) — A Dade County judge has ruled that radar measurement of traffic speed isn't reliable enough for court evidence, and Dale Smith Jr., who manufactures radar detection equipment, says he couldn't be happier, even if he loses business.

State Attorney Janet Reno said she would decide today whether to appeal Monday's decision by Judge Alfred Nesbitt. If the decision is upheld, it could have an impact beyond Dade County and the 80 accused speeders directly involved.

Smith, who founded the Ohio firm that manufactures radar detection devices known as Fuzzbusters, attended the hearing and said he helped pay fees and expenses for defense witnesses. He said he didn't care if the blow to radar cut his company's sales.

"I don't think we'll sell many Fuzzbusters in Dade County," said Smith. "I don't think this is going to affect our business in the rest of the country, but I don't care if it does."

Smith said that when a driver with a radar detector is caught in a speed trap, he knows he hasn't violated the law but "runs into a stone wall" of false evidence.

"I just got teed off," he said. "Judge Nesbitt offered a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, and that's why I'm here."

Attorneys on both sides of the case said the impact of Nesbitt's ruling may not be confined to the Miami area, where 5,000 speeding cases were held up during the hearing.

"Very likely the ramifications will be felt elsewhere in Florida and the nation," said Public Defender Bennett Brummer. "I think it would be difficult for other judges not to follow his decision."

Nesbitt said other judges are not bound by law to consider his ruling, and radar has been declared acceptable in eight states.

Unless the ruling is upheld by a higher court, its legal scope is limited to 80 accused speeders who asked that radar evidence be suppressed, or who asked to join the case. If appealed all the way to the Florida Supreme Court, and upheld there, all judges in the state would have to follow the ruling.

The issue arose when Nesbitt viewed a television broadcast which appeared to show radar units clocking a tree at 86 mph and a house at 28 mph. Experts testified that errors in clocking can be caused by telephone paging devices, two-way radios or people whistling into citizens band radio microphones.

Prosecutors did not dispute contentions that both equipment and police training might be improved, but argued that radar serves the public good as a law-enforcement tool.

RADAR MAN — Dale Smith Jr. was overjoyed on Monday upon hearing that a Dade County judge in Florida ruled that radar was unacceptable as evidence to him in speeding cases. This was despite the fact that Smith was one of the pioneers in developing radar detection devices. (AP Laserphoto)

Church Leaders Block Revision Of Divorce Laws

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina church leaders waited until the final hour but still managed to stop legislation Monday night that would cut in half the year-long separation period now required to obtain a divorce in the state.

An interdenominational lobbying effort begun over the weekend as the legislation neared enactment prompted the House to send the bill back to committee.

The bill, which would cut the waiting period for a divorce to six months, had cleared the Senate without organized opposition and won tentative House approval Friday on a 54-36 vote. But the interest of church leaders was aroused over the weekend, and 16 religious leaders representing the N.C. Council of Churches and many large denominations wrote a letter to House members asking that they kill the bill or give them time to present a case against it.

Faced with the eleventh-hour opposition, the bill's floor leader, Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, asked that it be sent back to the House Constitutional Amendments Committee. The panel has served as a judiciary committee late in the session and first passed the divorce bill.

Helms said he believed the House would have killed the bill if it had voted in the evening session but did not concede defeat for the measure.

"I really think sending it back to committee saved it from a defeat it didn't deserve," Helms said. "I think it will probably enhance its chances for passage if we take it down there and then bring it back to the floor."

Leading the opposition was Bishop Thomas A. Fraser of the Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina, who was in the Legislative Building Monday night speaking with House members and urging them to oppose the bill.

Fraser said he did not learn of the bill until over the weekend. "The truth of the matter is we're a little bit late at the switch," Fraser said.

But Fraser said he would still like to have a chance to argue against the change before a legislative committee.

Supporters of the bill have contended that six months is long enough for a couple to determine if they are certain they want a divorce, and that there is little chance for reconciliation if they have been apart that long.

Fraser said reconciliation was not the question, however, and that the shorter period could be detrimental to the family as an institution and to those involved in divorce cases, including the children.

"I don't think this is an ightened legislation," Fraser said in an interview. "Once you've signed those papers and are waiting for a final decree, you need time to reflect on your marriage, for wounds to heal, to explain things to your children and to plan for the future."

Committee Chairman Rep. Dave DeRamus, D-Forsyth, was reluctant to accept the bill before his committee again and told the House there had been no objections raised when the panel first considered it.

"If anyone was interested in it, it looks like they'd have said so earlier," DeRamus said.

The letter to House members was signed by Fraser and other church leaders representing the Baptist, Lutheran, Roman Catholic, United Church of Christ, United Methodist and Disciples of Christ churches, as well as the N.C. Council of Churches.

The late opposition to the bill prompted a flurry of debate among legislators prior to the evening session, including a brief confrontation between Fraser and Edwards. "I just listened to him," Fraser said. "He is irate."

Meanwhile in the Senate, another divorce bill was postponed. The bill would allow uncontested divorce cases to be handled by superior court clerks rather than by judges, a move supporters said would save thousands of hours of court time. Action was postponed until Tuesday.

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP) — Nearly 200 students at Scotland High School were tested Monday for tuberculosis after school officials learned that a student had contracted the disease.

Scotland County School Superintendent Johnny Presson said the county health department notified the school last week that a senior was diagnosed as having pulmonary tuberculosis cavity.

Lucille Bridgman, county health director, said the particular case is not considered to be highly contagious. But she recommended the testing as a precautionary measure.

The student, a female from Laurinburg whose name has not been released, is currently under observation at a state hospital.

Presson said notices were sent to parents of the school's 2,100 students informing them of the testing. Only students coming into direct contact with the afflicted student were encouraged to be tested, he said.

But testing was available for other students with their parents' permission, according to Presson.

Results of Monday's testing are expected to be known by Wednesday or Thursday, according to P.W. Sullivan, principal of the school.

"If there are students who have a positive reaction to the TB test, we will follow up with X-rays," Presson said.

State law requires all school employees to have a tuberculin test prior to employment and annual tests.

Sullivan said teachers at Scotland High School received their annual TB screening last Friday.
