

Suspects U.S. Policies Cause Scarcity

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal policy decisions contributed to the West Coast gasoline shortage and may soon trigger a more severe, nationwide gas crunch, a Federal Trade Commission official is contending.

Alfred F. Dougherty, director of the FTC's bureau of competition, said Energy Department actions seem to be making the shortages worse instead of easing them.

In a letter to Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., Dougherty said:

"We are seriously concerned that DOE regulations and informal directives to the oil companies may be partially responsible for the present shortages."

Rosenthal, chairman of a House Government Operations subcommittee looking into West Coast fuel shortages, said allegations by the FTC official, if accurate, "constitute a shocking indictment of DOE policies and practices."

Energy Department spokesman Jim Bishop said the agency would withhold comment until it had obtained a copy of Dougherty's letter.

Dougherty said the FTC is beginning a full-fledged investigation into whether the three-month loss of oil from Iran is the real cause of the shortage or whether oil companies are "using it as an excuse" to cut supplies to their dealers.

He said the FTC is concerned because U.S. refineries have cut back gasoline production far in excess of the reduction of crude oil imports to the United States during the turmoil in Iran earlier this year.

"If this cutback in the production of refined products was not justified by a scarcity of crude oil or other legitimate business reasons, the current gasoline shortage may be contrived," Dougherty said.

He noted that the inquiry is far from complete, but said it appears federal energy policy decisions made the cutbacks from refineries even more severe, leading to the long gas station lines now in California.

As an example, he said, price regulations promulgated by the department "may have contributed to the failure of West Coast refiners to undertake investments that would allow them to process more Alaskan crude oil into gasoline."

An even more serious action, the official said, was a decision last week by energy officials to meet with the nation's 34 largest refiners to urge them to reduce production of gasoline and to begin making more heating oil for next winter.

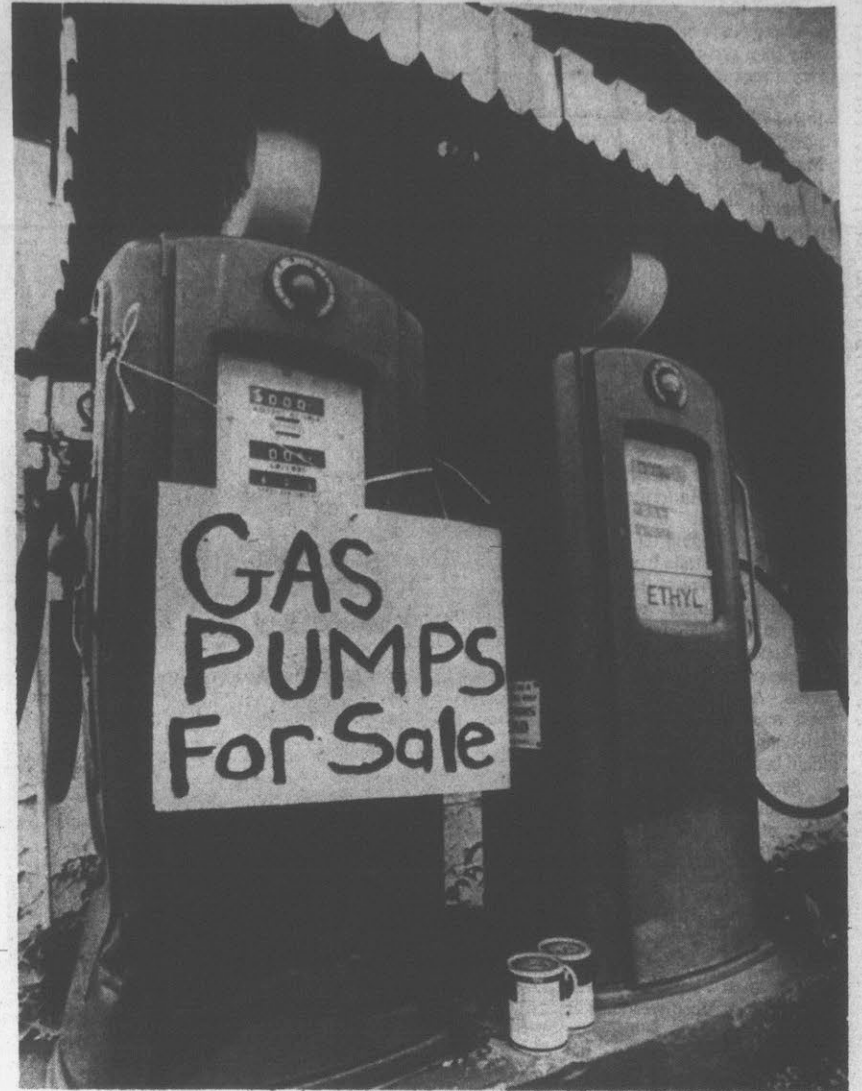

"DOE should be aware of the likelihood of exacerbating the California shortage, and even of possibly severe, nationwide gasoline shortages," Dougherty said.

The House energy and power subcommittee was beginning two days of hearings today on the whole issue of crude oil pricing.

A prime topic will be the president's decision to lift price controls from crude oil beginning June 1.

Meanwhile, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill says he doubts Congress can meet President Carter's challenge to come up with a gasoline rationing plan of its own within 90 days.

"Right now, the votes aren't there for any type of plan," said O'Neill as he declined an invitation to meet with Senate leaders to see if a new standby rationing proposal could be drafted.

NO MORE WAITING IN LINES — Worried about running out of gas, and waiting in long lines for your turn at the pumps? Here is the solution to the problem: your very own gas pumps. Put them in your front yard and park by them, and always be the first in line. Just imagine neighbors, green with envy. Alas, the gas does not come with the pumps, so maybe this is just a status symbol of the times. These pumps were found at a Huntsville, Ala. grocery store that is selling out... going out of business, so that everything goes; even to the gas pumps. (AP Laserphoto)

Tar Heels Told Use Less Gas

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State energy director Brian Flattery says North Carolina motorists can expect long lines at service stations unless drivers begin practicing conservation measures soon.

Flattery praised state service-station operators Tuesday, saying that self-restraint on the part of the operators has allowed the state to avoid severe gasoline shortages.

"The media hasn't panicked the public like what has happened in California," he said. "We just don't have that here."

Flattery said the "gasless weekend" that dealers in some other states will be observing this weekend will not occur in North Carolina.

"We work closely with the service-station association. We were very much against weekend closings, and so were they," he said.

"Not only is it a stupid idea, the government will eventually order weekend openings. We've worked closely and tried to help in anyway we can. It would be an absolute assault on ordinary people."

Flattery said the state is receiving less gasoline than at the same last year and is selling less gas as a result. He said North Carolina has a more severe shortage of gasoline than California does but that service-station operators in this state have been able to cope with cutbacks in their allotments by slowly cutting back on operating hours.

In a survey of service stations in the Carolinas, the Carolina Motor Club found that almost 70 percent of the 150 stations surveyed are closed for business on Sunday. The club also said it found a small percentage of stations still operating 24 hours a day.

Quentin Anderson, spokesman for the motor club, said stations are limiting their hours in order to ensure their supply through the end of May.

"We haven't had to tow any member because of a lack of supply of gasoline," he said. "California just hasn't happened here."

The club reported in a survey conducted Wednesday through Friday last week showed that the average price of regular gasoline in North Carolina was 79.4 cents per gallon. South Carolina's average price was 79.2 cents.

Gasoline prices have risen about 1.3 cents per gallon since the last survey on April 26, the report said.

Senate Signals Carter To End Rhodesia Bans

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A lopsided Senate vote declaring that Rhodesia's recent elections were fair and open is increasing pressure on President Carter to lift trade sanctions and give the new regime de facto recognition.

The Senate made its judgment Tuesday in a 75-19 roll call on a resolution urging Carter to lift the sanctions within 10 days of the installation of a government headed by black Methodist Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the prime minister-designate.

Supporter's of Rhodesia's "internal settlement" regime hailed the vote as a clear victory despite its non-binding nature. They said it sends Carter an unmistakable signal.

Others called the action premature and said it is a "step backward" which will anger the nations of Black Africa.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Africa, said he believes no House action is likely until Carter decides whether Rhodesia has met conditions set by last year's Case-Javits amendment.

That amendment requires Carter to determine whether Rhodesia has installed a government chosen by free and fair elections open to all political and population groups.

Carter has promised to act by June 15, about two weeks after the scheduled transfer of power in Rhodesia.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., sponsor of the resolution urging Carter to lift sanctions, said the fact that 75 percent of the Senate voted for it proves it is more than symbolic.

"It is a signal, but it is also a threat because, frankly, if the new government is not recognized by the end of June, we are going to vote again and mandate it," he said.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., sponsored a move to lift sanctions immediately but said he was delighted with the eventual outcome.

Hospital Bd. Talks Problem Over Certification Of Need

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Plans for the new nursing tower for Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital were displayed at the meeting of the Hospital Board of Trustees last night and certificate of need difficulties were discussed.

A local Health Systems Agency review of the proposed project will be held Thursday, May 24, at 7 p. m. at the Willis Building here. Trustees and other interested persons are urged to attend.

Then the full HSA review will be held Wednesday, June 13, at 7:30 p. m. at the Ramada Inn here. If both of these are approving, the State Office of Health Planning will then review the project.

If all goes well, "there is potential" for the bids on the project to go out in August or September, Hospital Director Jack Richardson said.

Dr. William Bost, Chief of Staff, said the hospital is filling up every day now. Tuesday, he said, 344 beds were full. "Anyone who comes in tonight will have to go into intensive care, because six beds there are all that are open," he said.

Dr. William Laupus, ECU Medical School Dean, said Dr. Bost's comments point up the need for the bed tower that has long been due Pitt Countians who have had to give over space in their county hospital to patients brought in by the specialties offered and the teaching situation in the hospital because of its affiliation with the medical school. Eastern North Carolina continues to be, he said, an area of underservice medically. He said growth in full-scale cancer management and in heart catheterization done locally, plus the closing the tuberculosis sanatorium in this area all add to the need in a time when HEW seems to be trying to put a "total embargo" on the addition of hospital beds for the next five years.

Letters have been received, he said, from hospitals of counties that neighbor Pitt stating their agreement with Pitt's contention of need for additional beds at Pitt Memorial.

The addition of the bed tower, he said, would bring the total number of beds, including rehab and neonatal

Restraining Order On HEW Until Monday

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree has formally extended until Monday a temporary restraining order barring a cutoff of federal funds to the University of North Carolina.

Dupree said Friday he was extending the order while he studied arguments made by lawyers for UNC and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. However, he did not say at the time how long it would remain in effect.

Attorneys for UNC and the state have filed suit against the federal government in an attempt to prevent a cutoff of funds to the 16-campus university system. HEW began steps to curtail part of the $89 million a year UNC receives from Washington after rejecting a desegregation plan proposed by UNC Board of Governors.

Dupree said he would rule as soon as possible on the UNC suit and a request by lawyers for the federal government to transfer the case to federal district court in Washington.

Meanwhile, Rep. John R. Gamble Jr., D-Lincoln, has mounted a campaign against the university's request for a $40 million appropriation to make improvements on UNC's five mostly black campuses.

The $40-million expenditure was suggested by UNC officials during their negotiations with HEW on the desegregation issue. Even though the UNC plan was rejected, university officials are still seeking the $40 million, which President William Friday said would be evidence of the state's good-faith efforts.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

FIRE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Smith of Chapman Street, Winterville, was partially destroyed by fire this past weekend.

The Pitt Co. Social Services Department has asked Hotline to make an appeal on behalf of the Smiths, who provide licensed foster care to a number of Pitt County children.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will try to repair their home, but it will take time and building materials such as paint, paneling, flooring and the like, Social Services Foster Care Worker Mrs. Linda Shoffner said. For now, the family is living with Smith's mother, also on Chapman Street, until they can move into an apartment in Ayden, where they will live until their home is repaired.

All of the Smiths' and the children's clothes were destroyed by the fire and smoke and water, as was part of their furniture. Needed items include beds for the children, living room furniture, dressers, linens and curtains.

Sizes are as follows: Smith — pants 30 long, 32 waist; 15 or medium shirt, size 10 shoes; Mrs. Smith — 20 and a half dress, seven and a half-B shoes; 44 blouse, extra large in other articles; Brenda — nine junior in dresses and pants, 32 blouse, 10-medium shoes; Ann — size 5 junior dresses; 16 girls' pants, 14 girl's blouses or small; seven and one-half-B shoes; Fred — 14 boys' shirts and pants, seven shoe; Jerry — Size seven boys' shirts and pants, size 10 and one-half shoes children's shoes; Donnie and Tony both wear size 10 shirts and pants and two and one-half-D shoes.

Persons interested in helping this family may take donations to 515 Chapman St., Winterville, or call Mrs. Smith, 756-1356, or Mrs. Shoffner at the Social Services Dept., 758-2167, between 8 and 5 p. m., Monday through Friday, or 756-3189 after 5 p. m.

Another Fire, This One Minor, Set In Williamston

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
WILLIAMSTON — Damage was minimal and no injuries were sustained in an early Tuesday afternoon fire in a third floor classroom of the Williamston Junior High School building on Smithwick Street.

Tommy Price, Williamston Fire Chief, said the Williamston Fire Department responded to the blaze at 12:27 p.m. School was in session, "but there was only one class in session on the third floor at the time," Price commented. "Students in that class and in the rest of the school evacuated the building in an orderly manner."

The classroom in which the fire occurred was unoccupied at the time.

"Damage is light," Price reported, "I'd say it will amount to a about $1,000 or a little more." Price added that arson is suspected in this fire and that "the local SBI agent and the Williamston police are investigating evidence found at the scene."

Assistant Superintendent of Martin County Schools Comer Griffin has informed that the fire "did not cause any substantial structural damage and therefore there will be no interruptions in classes. We will be able to operate with no problems."

Griffin said the fire began in a storage room adjacent to the classroom "which was used for storing books and papers."

"I feel it was most fortunate that in recent renovations a false ceiling of fireproof materials had been installed. That, plus the plaster walls, forced the fire into the adjoining classroom and kept it from getting into the overhead original ceiling which has old wood."

One of six structures at the site, the building in which the fire occurred was formerly the Williamston High School building and was constructed in 1928.

The Tuesday fire is the sixth to take place in Williamston since March 16, with arson suspected in at least three of the incidents.

Earlier, fires caused extensive losses at the Williamston Packing Company, at Holiday Inn, at White's Heating and Sheet Metal Works, and at the old community building. The most recent fire before yesterday's school fire was in the Martin County Agriculture Extension Office building and was the only one of the first five fires not resulting in significant damage and property loss.

More Americans Dress Formally For Weddings

By JOHN MOODY
UPI Men's Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Times may change. Styles may change. But June will always be wedding month.

And getting married — no matter if it's your first or 14th time — is an event to remember.

That's why more Americans are dressing formally for weddings than ever before. And why men are going into hock to buy a rock for their chosen one.

"It's never been out of fashion to have the wedding party in formal attire," says Mark Valente Jr., chairman of the American Formalwear Association. "But now it's become a new sort of status, even for second weddings."

"I think everybody when he or she gets married wants to think that the marriage will last. And formal dress — since it's out of the ordinary — is a way of celebrating the special event."

That may explain why 1.25 million American couples getting hitched for the first time last year did it in formalwear.

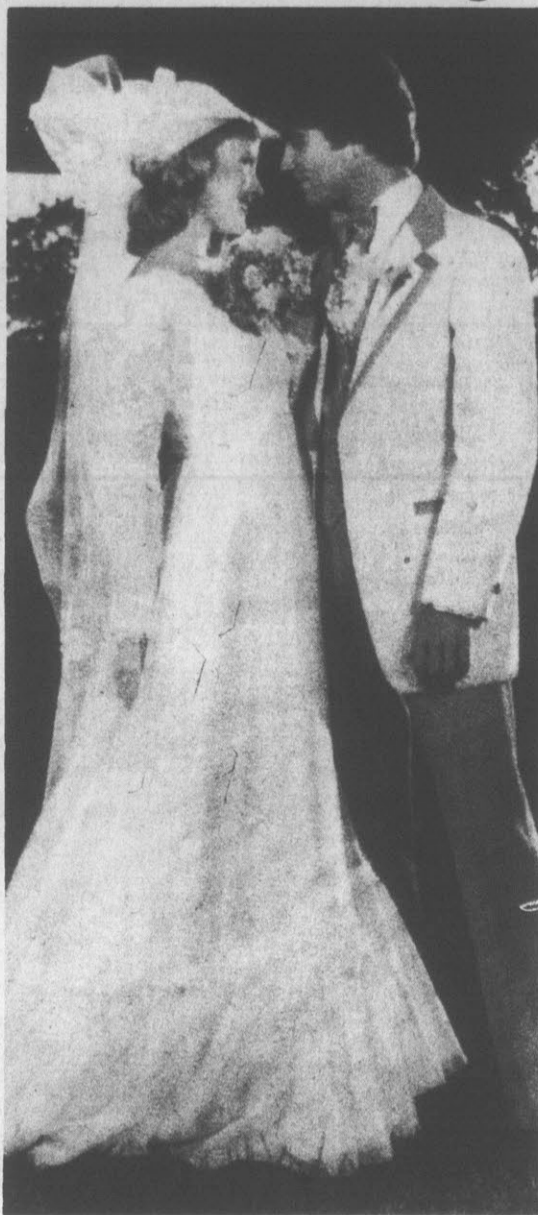

Even repeat brides and grooms are finding the urge to don trains and tails irresistible. About one in five of the 600,000 second-time marriages each year in the United States are now conducted with at least one of the principals in formal dress. And that often means best men, ushers, and bride's attendants are also bedecked in their best.

"Second marriages used to be very quiet, because there was a sort of stigma attached to them. But no more. People are very open and up front about it and they want to have a good time. For many people, that includes having the wedding party in formal wear."

The most popular formal outfit for summer weddings is the white tuxedo, with white shirt and black or white tie, the association says. In the fall, which after June and August is the most popular time of year for weddings, blacks, greys and dark blues are seen most often. But Valente, who runs a chain of formalwear stores in Michigan, is quick to point out that tuxedos can be found in every color.

"If a young couple comes in and says they want to dress up the groom and ushers in purple, we have purple tuxedos. Now, that may not be very popular with the parents, but we have them."

Most men asked to take part in a wedding rent the appropriate color style tux and pay for it themselves. But Valente says lots of men find it easier and cheaper to purchase what used to be called a "monkey suit." "With the average cost of renting a tux about $40, if you attend a wedding and two or three formal parties, you're saving money by buying your own tuxedo," he says. Next to how the groom looks, the thing newly married women like to show off most is an engagement ring. And though the cost of diamonds is out of sight these days, love still conquers all — even empty bankbooks. De Beers, the world's largest diamond marketer, estimates that 76 percent of all first time brides last year got diamond engagement rings, while just over 50 percent of repeat brides took their vows wearing carats.

FASHION EXPERTS... say white or cream colored tuxedos are the most popular style for bridegrooms in the summer. June is still the preferred month for weddings and more Americans are dressing formally for weddings than ever before. (UPI Telephoto)

De Beers asked bridegrooms why they spent an average $496 for a diamond ring that, nationwide, averages one-third carat in size. Half of the men who responded gave the traditional response — that they felt "a girl should have a diamond ring" when she gets married. The other half gave an even more time-honored answer: "She told me she wanted one."

Orient Solution Impressed Reader

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have read many letters in your column from the family of the bride resenting bitterly the family of the groom paying off their social obligations by inviting all their shirt-tail relatives, friends, neighbors and business acquaintances to a wedding paid for by the bride's parents. I recently returned from the Orient where I attended a wedding, and was informed of their solution to the wedding-guest problem. Each family invites as many guests as they wish and each family PAYS for its own guests. Clever?

WORLD TRAVELER

DEAR TRAVELER: Very!

DEAR ABBY: I was adopted as an infant. All my life I have wanted to know my natural mother. About two years ago I began my search. Fortunately, my adoptive parents willingly gave me what little information they had. With that, plus what I gathered from various other sources, I located my mother in Iowa. I was so thrilled and excited that I couldn't wait to phone her! I didn't realize what a shock it would be for her to hear from the child she had given away 32 years before.

After a brief conversation she suggested that I write to her, so I wrote immediately, telling her all about myself, my life, and how I was ready to fly to Iowa to meet her as soon as she gave the word.

A week later I received this reply — no date, so salutation and no signature:

"You now have a life that adoption made possible so count your blessings. I don't understand how you could believe that contacting me would not make trouble. I have had guilt and shame all my days — and now this whole mess has been reopened. Count your blessings. No need for further communication!"

Abby, I can understand her shame, guilt, suffering and sorrow. The entire episode involving me is like an open wound that has been festering for 32 years. Obviously she has never learned to deal with those feelings. But what about MY feelings?

Abby, my mother wasn't an innocent teenager who "got caught." She was a 27-year-old Navy nurse in World War II. I want to know who my natural father was, and all about the relationship between him and my mother. I can find out only through her.

I don't want to disrupt anybody's life. I just want the facts that I feel I have a right to know. Am I asking too much?

I am not a bored, neurotic housewife. I've been happily married for 14 years and have an 11-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son. I'm active in volunteer work and have returned to college, so I'm no kook out to make trouble.

Your advice and the opinions of others who have been through this would be deeply appreciated.

MRS. G. IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR MRS. G.: I understand your feelings and appreciate your "right" to know your natural parents, but they, too, have rights. And one of those rights is the right to

Crises Pinch Pocketbooks

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

The oil and beef crises are hitting Americans in the pocketbook — literally.

A market research executive says the oil crisis is having "enormous impact on the cost of vinyls," including those widely used by American handbag manufacturers.

"Leather is going up very fast, too," says Edward S. Levy, executive director of the National Handbag Association.

"Leather is a by-product of the beef industry, so when beef prices rise, so do leather prices. Leather is an international commodity. There is a shortage of leather the world over.

"Since the vinyls we use to make handbags use petrochemicals, if those prices go up, ours do, too."

Levy said supply and demand will also help determine how much price tags increase on fall handbags.

This and the sporting look were newsmakers at the handbag industry's semiannual show in New York City for fashion accessories reporters and editors.

Among new designs for active sportswomen were a yellow and black nylon backpack and a quilted poplin bag with detachable shoulder strap that is big enough to hold a tennis racquet.

Other style trends: fabrics such as velvets and wools; surface interest — punched suedes, embossed or woven leathers; and lots of snakeskin, inexpensive now by comparison with leather.

Important fall colors are berry hues, taupes, browns, black and bright red, high fashion fuschias, French blues and magenta.

Many bags have detachable shoulder straps, converting daytime styles for dressier occasions.

Some consumers appear ready — or perhaps, resigned — to the projected price increases.

Women questioned in the first segment of a three-part survey for the handbag industry said they do not consider up to $50 an unreasonable price to pay for a purse these days.

In an interview, marketing consultant Marshall Dickman discussed the preliminary results of the study. It is part of an industry-wide recovery program funded by a grant from the Department of Commerce.

Dickman, who heads his own advertising and market consulting firm, said the research involved a total of 30 consumers and 20 store buyers in Atlanta, Dallas, Los Angeles and New York.

The researchers found women perceive imported handbags as better in quality, design and workmanship than American-made bags, and leather as superior to vinyl and fabrics.

The women said handbags were an impulse purchase, although industry statistics suggest they may also be popular as gifts. Forty-five percent of all sales are made during two three-month periods that include big gift-giving holidays: Christmas, Easter and Mother's Day.

Dickman said a woman who buys three or more handbags a year is considered a big customer.

He said she is most likely to be a suburbanite, 25-45 years of age, living in the Northeast in a household with a total income over $15,000. She is also most likely to hold an outside job and have some college education.

Such women may buy more than 50 percent of all handbags sold, Dickman said, but they may represent only about 15 percent of the population.

Panelists said they bought handbags for varying reasons: to accessorize a particular outfit, to keep up with current fashions — or just because they were bored with their current handbags.

They prefer leather to vinyl be left alone if they so choose. (Many girls gave up their babies for adoption only because they were assured their identities would never be revealed.) Many natural parents would be thrilled to reunite with their children, but we cannot assume that ALL are.

I fully approve of searching for one's natural parents, but I think a go-between should make the contact and the reunion should be effected only if all parties want it.

U.S. 301 Still Has A Future

Recently we took a trip down U. S. 301 between Rocky Mount and Wilson, and needless to say, the highway has changed.

For many years U.S. 301 was one of the principal highway arteries of the east coast, carrying traffic from the northeast to Florida and back.

When the interstate highway system was announced and I-95 was designated to parallel U.S. 301 it was quickly apparent that the days of U.S. 301 preeminence were numbered.

The Wilson-Rocky Mount stretch remained in use a long time, however. I-95 was built to the north and to the south; still traffic diverted to 301 north of Rocky Mount and back to I-95 south of Wilson.

This year that came to an end. The link with I-95 was dedicated and opened, and now most of the

I-95 traffic stays on that route.

Thus U. S. 301, while it has adequate traffic, is a far cry from the old days. Motels along the route had few cars out front, and obviously some businesses have suffered due to the sharp drop-off in traffic.

The stretch of U.S. 301 should be reason for optimism, however. It is still a fine highway by most standards in North Carolina, a divided dual lane with some overpasses. It is anchored by two major growth centers in Rocky Mount and Wilson and is framed by freeways in I-95, U.S. 64 and U.S. 264.

U.S. 301 between Wilson and Rocky Mount should be ripe for industrial and other development. Losing the heavy traffic might be the blessing in disguise.

Emergency Aid Lessons Proved Value

Learning something about emergency aid can save a life.

Julie Miller of Greenville, who had just graduated from ECU illustrated that last weekend.

Using knowledge she had gained in a ECU first aid class she revived a five-year-old child found floating in the water.

Quick action by Ms. Miller may have saved the child's life. It wouldn't have been possible without the prior training she had received.

More Militant Posture

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Practical politics as much as anything else are dictating an increasingly militant stance by the leadership of the North Carolina Association of Educators.

Torn between a public image of the organization as a "Professional organization" or a "teachers' union", several recent developments have served to sharpen the dilemma. The organization, to draw members, must prove its effectiveness.

One of the most critical problems is declining membership in the voluntary organization which insiders say is being prompted by three events:

—Declining school enrollment means a loss of classroom teacher jobs. This accounts to some extent for NCAE pressure to reduce classroom size, thereby keeping more teachers for fewer students; and for efforts to require certification changes for classroom aides which would result in their active membership in the teacher organization.

Split

—A widening split between classroom teachers and public school administrators has caused formation of a separate association for the administrators, some of them leaving the NCAE. A current pay schedule fight between teachers and administrators in the General Assembly is aggravating that schism, and NCAE leaders claim that the divisive issue was deliberately created to serve that purpose.

—The National Association of Educators has been clearly identified as union-oriented and is growing militant. One major national goal is creation of a separate Department of Education so that decision-making can be centralized at the highest level and thereby more vulnerable to union pressures and tactics. Many Tar Heel teachers are distressed at this direction, and even more upset because national membership is automatically included when paying dues to the North Carolina unit. There have been several attempts of late to change NCAE bylaws to allow local membership, without a national contribution.

A demonstration and street march to the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh several weeks ago created a special problem for the NCAE. The rally was to boost support for a higher pay raise than proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt. A meeting adjourned into the march to the mansion where the governor's staff set out ice cream and other refreshments on the lawn. Leaders stood at the gate and turned back marchers who expressed a wish to take part in the refreshments. When the governor appeared to talk with them, there were rude shouts and remarks.

Later, NCAE leaders claimed the demonstration was not part of the plan and was not conducted by that unit.

Political

Hunt aides wonder, though, how to separate what the NCAE is sponsoring and what it isn't. The governor stood firm on his pay plan, and also is standing firm on the political threats voiced at the confrontation. The teachers threatened to turn against him politically. Privately, Hunt advisors suggest "let them. They don't have that much muscle anymore anyway, and if they keep this up they will find the public and possible future candidates openly opposed to the Association."

Meanwhile, another attempt to enlarge membership is underway on North Carolina military bases. Federal school teachers typically are paid according to prevailing schedules at nearby communities, and that means the federal teachers benefit from NCAE legislative lobbying.

A recent letter to teachers at Fort Bragg reminds them that federal policy allows "collective bargaining rights" and says the NCAE "can and will bargain for Fort Bragg teachers if the majority so desires."

The Big Crunch Of '79

WASHINGTON — Someday it will be known as the "Gas Crunch of '79." It all started when the Ayatollah Khomeini said, "I'm sick and tired of French food. I want to go home to Qum."

Word was passed in Iran, and much to the surprise of the CIA, there were millions of Iranians in the streets shouting "Down with the Shah." The oil fields were shut down and one of the major sources of fuel in the Western world was shut off.

This called for a meeting of the other oil-producing states who said, "Thanks be to God, the Iranians are not pumping any oil. We owe it to ourselves to raise our prices at this time because you never know when another shah will fall again."

When the news reached the oil company executives at the Petroleum Club, they all said "OPEC has done a terrible thing by raising its oil prices, therefore we owe it to ourselves and our stockholders to raise our prices as well. We may not see a windfall like this again for a long time."

President Carter then went on the air and said that, because of the expected gasoline shortages brought about by a lack of conservation, he was decontrolling the price of oil in order to discourage Americans from wasting it. He promised that any excessive profits the oil companies made from decontrol would go to poor people.

The oil companies reacted strongly to this proposal, saying they would rather take the windfall profits and look for more oil which they were certain they could find if the price was right.

Sen. Kennedy said President Carter had bowed to pressure from the oil companies for decontrols.

President Carter replied,

"Baloney."

Strangely enough, this did not resolve the situation.

By this time the media played its usual helpful role in contributing to the crisis. TV stations all over the country sent out mobile crews to film gas stations that were closed on Sundays.

ART BUCHWALD

The public was suddenly thrown into a panic and everybody got in their cars and drove to the nearest pump to fill up their tanks. People who used to be happy with a quarter or half a tank of gas weren't satisfied until they had a full one. So there was twice as much gas in everyone's tank than before the panic.

The price of fuel did not deter people from buying it. The higher it got the more desperate car owners became to find it.

Husbands came home at night and berated their wives if they didn't find a full tank in their cars. Unleaded gas sold at a premium because Detroit had forgotten to tell Houston how many new cars with catalytic converters would be on the road.

Gas station owners discovered that their previous monthly allotments would not last for more than three weeks. Long lines formed at stations and while people waited anxiously to get to the pumps, they burned up more gasoline than the entire Iranian shutdown had cut off.

The Department of Energy was not asleep. It set up a hotline that consumers could call when they thought they were being gouged. Twenty-two gas stations were caught and severely punished.

In the meantime, the DOE announced that the major oil companies had overcharged their customers an estimated $1.7 billion. The DOE said there was nothing criminal about this, but it would be

Wiser Policy Maker

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaigning for president, John B. Connally is blaming runaway politics for the woes of inflation. He ought to know.

After all, Connally was the chief economic spokesman for a Republican administration that did as much as any to tune economic policy to the political season.

Richard M. Nixon tried to step on the gas and the brakes at the same time in order to check both unemployment and inflation in advance of the 1972 presidential campaign. As secretary of the treasury, Connally, then a Democrat, was both a draftsman and a salesman for the Nixon economic program.

He doesn't say much about those days now. But the economic platform he offers as a candidate doesn't sound much like the one he helped Nixon shape.

The most dramatic of Nixon's economic moves was the wage and price freeze he imposed on Aug. 15, 1971. Connally was one of the economic advisers who urged him to do it; indeed, Nixon later called his treasury secretary "the architect of the new economic policy." After the 90-day freeze came mandatory wage and price controls, which remained in effect through the 1972 election and were lifted early in 1973.

When Connally left the Cabinet, seven years ago today, government spending and money supply policies were expansionary, and unemployment was in check. Wage and price controls were firmly in place, and inflation was in check.

Those are the kind of numbers any president welcomes in the springtime of his re-election campaign year. It didn't last — while controls held the inflation rate to 3.4 percent, they ended early in 1973 and prices spurred upward. A year after controls came off, the inflation rate was 8.8 percent, double what it had been in the 12 months before the freeze.

The evidence is circumstantial, but the economic policies of 1971 and 1972 did fit nicely with the needs of a campaigning president.

Connally now says there has

Two hours after the contract was made, work got underway yesterday afternoon on an extension of the county-owned building on the corner of Greene and Third Streets. The extension is designed to relieve the congested situation at the county farm agent's offices.

The contract was made at a special meeting of the Board of Commissioners to L.M. Ernest Company for the general construction of the building. Excluding heating, lighting and plumbing, the cost will be approximately 1,600.

The extension will be a single large room erected at the rear of the present building. The addition will extend back to the Proctor property and will extend about 45 feet along that line. One side of the extension from the present building measures 13 feet from the kitchen side and 54 feet from the other corner.

It will be used as a work room and will also be available for committee meetings.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Gov. Brown Strikes Again

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The appearance of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. before the nation's independent oil drillers typified the unique political style he will use in his campaign against President Carter: horrendously incompetent advance preparations compensated for by a brilliant personal performance.

It was the governor's idea to appear in Reno, Nev., at the annual convention of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA) — the rough-and-ready small oil men scarcely expected to be Jerry-for-President boosters. IPAA executive vice president Lloyd Unsell accepted Brown's offer, giving him the May 8 luncheon spot.

The weeks passed, however, without Brown confirming the date even after being prodded. Unsell, his patience exhausted, tapped Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger as Brown's substitute and sent the governor a telegram disinviting him from the meeting.

"You have gotten our attention," top Brown aide Gray Davis telephoned Unsell in IPAA's Washington office, reiterating Brown's desire to address the oil men. Unsell agreed, reserving a new time for Brown to speak May 8.

"They were really very cold," reported one onlooker connected with neither the governor nor the IPAA, "but Brown won them over." What makes this all the more remarkable is that Brown, who usually takes the precise opposite of any Carter position, has been saying that the president waited too late to decontrol oil prices and that decontrol during a supply shortage is unwise.

In Reno, however, Brown gave the impression he favors decontrol without precisely endorsing it. What's more, in private conversations with the oil men, he criticized Carter's excess-profits oil tax as a tax on oil production that will undermine future supply. Given a choice, there is no doubt that the independent oil men would prefer Jerry Brown over Jimmy Carter by a wide margin.

Saudi Trouble

One week after Saudi Arabia's shocking ouster of the CIA station chief in Jeddah, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance threw a new verbal punch at the oil-rich Arab state which angered White House foreign policy aides.

The White House was reeling from the impact of the unprecedented ouster of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) station chief when Vance told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that "clear and sharp differences" were developing between the U.S. and Saudi Arabia. Taken together, these developments have brought the two old allies to their lowest state ever.

The Saudi government had nothing personally against the CIA's station chief, but a lot against the administration. For one thing, CIA headquarters here infuriated the Saudis by ordering its local operatives to count the number of minority Shiite

Other Editors Say Invented Loophole

(Hickory Daily Record)

"If the law supposes that, the law is an ass - an idiot." — Mr. Bumble, in Charles Dickens' novel, Oliver Twist.

Chief District Court Judge Livingston Vernon has made the law look like an ass by freeing two persons a police officer observed and charged with passing a stopped school bus that was discharging children.

There was no question the violations occurred. Hickory Patrolman Michael Bentley had been assigned to the Oakwood School area to curb this very thing, and he caught five drivers doing it.

But after the evidence was in on the first case, Judge Vernon was moved by a defense attorney's inventive argument that the arresting officer's testimony didn't show the front and back of the school bus was marked with the words "School Bus" in eight-inch letters as called for in the law. He ruled the defendant not guilty.

And in the second case Judge Vernon ruled not guilty again because the officer offered only his opinion that the words "School Bus" were more than eight inches in height. Vernon wasn't sufficiently impressed that the officer testified it was a stopped school bus with red lights flashing and stop flag out that he observed the defendant drive past.

To call Judge Vernon's findings in these cases technical, which is the way he labeled them, is to trivialize the importance of technical aspects of the law. What he did was invent a loophole in a law that was intended to protect school children. And because he is the chief district judge for Catawba, Burk and Caldwell counties, the district's other four lower court judges may feel they have to go along with his contrivance.

Credit Cards Expanded Debts

By FLOYD NORRIS

AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Those plastic credit cards in your pocket have done more this year than simply make it easier to buy things. They have played a major role — in keeping the economy out of a recession.

At the beginning of the year, many economists thought a recession would have developed by now. A key reason was that consumer debt, already at record levels, was considered unlikely to keep expanding. But it has. And that has kept the economy growing faster than many economists expected, thereby at least postponing the recession.

Inflation, and fears it will continue, are playing a role in the expansion of consumer debt. Consumers are buying now on the theory that prices will be higher next month.

"They are turning their worthless paper money into durable assets," said Michael K. Evans of Chase Econometrics, one of the economists who had expected consumer spending to slow.

But another reason for the decline is that, despite higher interest rates charged to businesses, credit is not harder to get for consumers. Nor, in many cases, is it more expensive.

Much consumer borrowing is through credit cards, on which the interest rate has long been 12 percent to 18 percent, mostly the higher figure. The prime rate charged to corporate borrowers has risen from 7 3/4 percent to 11 3/4 percent since the beginning of 1978, but consumers are paying the same rate they always were.

What is more, credit is easier to get now than it was during the last tight money spell. Many more banks allow consumers to automatically get loans by overdrawing their checking accounts. They might have given loans in the past, but now the consumer doesn't even have to face the trauma of walking into the bank to fill out an application.

Unfortunately, most economists see a continuing boom in the economy as a bad thing, arguing that it will eventually lead to a more serious recession. The Carter administration is hoping for a "soft landing," in which the economy slows but does not mean recession.

THOUGHTS FASHION

Nathaniel Hawthorne, in his moving story, "The Great Stone Face", tells how Ernest, who lived in the valley which lay below a great mountain profile, gazed continuously on a great stone face which nature had carved high in the rocks.

There was a legend in the valley that someday a man would appear who resembled the stone features, and this fact would indicate that he was a person of great distinction.

One evening, as Ernest was speaking to his neighbors about the deep things of God, someone suddenly called attention to a resemblance between Ernest's face and the face on the mountain. The legend had been fulfilled. A simple man, living a helpful life among his fellows, conscious of no greatness but looking for it in others, was revealed as a person of great distinction.

Hawthorne's story shows us that as a person thinks within his heart, so he is.

Hackett (Macmillan). The book is a scenario for a Soviet attack on the West in 1985.

Moslems with ties to revolutionary Iran.

The overriding problem stems from U.S. pressure on the Saudis to get in line behind the U.S. and the new Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. Saudi officials feel that because of the grave split on this issue between their country and the U.S., Washington is conducting an undercover campaign depicting a disintegrating Saudi royal family.

Against that backdrop, when Vance was asked about U.S.-Saudi relations, he plunged in—making matters worse, not smoothing over the differences. White House aides were flabbergasted. They tried to explain Vance's criticism as the lawyer-like reaction of a good attorney analyzing a worsening case. Privately, however, they were furious that Vance would pour more oil on the inflamed U.S.-Saudi connection.

The Saudi decision ordering the CIA agent out of the country was the first time ever that a CIA man has been ousted from any country. That reveals the sorry state of relations between the U.S. and its chief foreign oil supplier.

Maggie And Ronnie
However cool British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's relationship with President Carter may be, she is on excellent terms with one American politician: front-running Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan.

When Reagan visited London last autumn, then prime minister James Callaghan did not have time to see him. That provided a shared experience for Reagan with Thatcher, who was given a similar cold shoulder by Carter when she visited Washington during the summer of 1977.

Reagan and Thatcher did get together for a long chat and hit it off splendidly, finding they agreed on most foreign and domestic questions.

A footnote: Thatcher, who takes the Soviet menace far more seriously than Callaghan, showed her thinking by recommending that Reagan read "The Third World War" by Gen. Sir John

This made many Americans mad, and they decided that the oil companies had created the crisis to make more money. They all drove onto the highways, rolled down their windows and shouted "We're damn mad and we're not going to take it any more."

been too much politics in U.S. economic decision making for the past 50 years. "All too often the formulation of economic policy has been guided less by the requirements of re-election," he said.

He told the Economic Club of Detroit one of the rules is that controls are bound to fail. "Whether voluntary or mandatory, direct controls over wages and prices will not succeed because they only treat symptoms," Connally said. "They do not go to the causes." "We must face the reality that the cause of runaway inflation is runaway politics," he said in Detroit, criticizing the deficit spending he had praised when Nixon proposed what was then a record peacetime deficit in 1972.

'Holiday Aura' For Public Execution

By Dr. H. G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — The date of the news story was May 16, 1879:

"The ancient town of Hillsboro has to-day worn quite a holiday appearance, and judging from the tremendous crowd . . . everybody from the section . . . all around and about with all their 'sisters and their cousins and their aunts' were in the village to-day."

Then, as if to explain his rather light-hearted reference to the occasion, the correspondent for the Raleigh News added:

"A public execution is a scene which the morbid curiosity of at least two-thirds of modern humanity will not willingly miss, and hence an immense crowd was in Hillsboro to-day, composed of men, women and children from every point of the compass."

This was no ordinary execution. It was, in fact, the public hanging of three Orange County citizens — two of them white, one black. Justice was colorblind in this case.

Henry F. Andrews was the 30-year-old, 150-pound, 5-5 son of a prominent farmer and deputy sheriff of Orange County. Mused the reporter, Andrews might have become "a man worthy of his estimable father but he preferred the society of disolute young men and abandoned women."

Camera Caught Pie-Throwers

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan State professor apparently failed to see the humor in the situation when a pair of pranksters connected with a pair of pies during a lecture.

Accounting instructor John Gardner, hit with two pies Friday, is determined to bring the culprits to justice.

Gardner is confident he can find out who threw the pies. The lecture, he explained, was on closed-circuit television, and the culprits were caught on camera.

Henry Alphonso Davis, 30 years old, 130 pounds, and 5-4, also came from prominent parentage. He was said to have been a "tolerably clever young man, though he was inclined to be a little wild." He had once been assistant clerk at the National Hotel in Raleigh.

The black man was Lewis Carlton, 35, nearly six feet tall, and 180 pounds. A well-digger by trade, he had been involved in several crimes, and it had been predicted "that he would end his earthly career on the gallows, but no one ever supposed he would be duped there by two white men."

The crimes for which the three men paid their lives were burglary and assault.

Beginning in the fall of 1877, a series of inexplicable burglaries were committed at and around the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Among the homes broken into were those of Mrs. Cornelia Phillips Spencer and the Rev. G. W.

Church Marking Woman's Day

The Reid's Chapel Missionary Baptist Church of Fountain will observe its 12th annual Women's Day on Sunday, May 20, at 11 a.m. The speaker for the occasion will be Grace L. Horne of Fountain.

Ms. Horne, a native of Pitt County and former English teacher at Farmville Central High School, is a graduate of H. B. Sugg High School. She received her bachelor of arts degree from St. Augustine's College in Raleigh where she graduated Magna Cum Laude. She has done further studies at Harvard University, Meridith College and East Carolina University. She is presently pursuing her masters of arts degree and her two-year college certificate at ECU.

Ms. Horne is a member of Reid's Chapel Church where she is a Sunday School teacher. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Horne of Fountain. The Rev. Walter Adkins, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Purefoy.

On the night of June 15, 1878, Mrs. M. L. Hendon was attacked in her bedroom and seriously wounded by an ax. Her cries were heard by neighbors, but the attackers escaped. Virtual hysteria swept the town and campus. Several women who had arrived to register for the summer normal school were frightened away.

The leader, he said, was Henry Davis who enlisted Andrews, Carlton, and finally Atwater to form a group of "daring highwaymen of the Dick Turpin and Tom King stripe." They took solemn oaths of loyalty and confidence.

Atwater's testimony and the circumstantial evidence were persuasive, and in October 1878 the men were tried before Judge John Kerr and convicted of first degree burglary and assault on Mrs. Hendon. The execution of the death sentences was delayed by appeals until May 16, 1879.

For reasons satisfactory to themselves the county commissioners decreed that the execution would be a public affair, and a rude gallows was erected in the grove of trees known as the town common.

At 12:30, Sheriff Hughes led the prisoners from their cells to a horse-drawn hack. A military escort of Orange Guards, under command of Col. Bennehan Cameron, marched with the carriage. Slowly the procession passed some 8,000 spectators.

On the scaffold 10 feet above the ground, each man professed his innocence — Carlton by a speech lasting an hour; David and Andrews by written statements read by the sheriff.

Andrews charged that Albert Atwater had "sworn our lives away to save his own."

The gruesome ceremony was accompanied by a frightening thunderstorm which made the scene "wild and at times terrible."

Finally, "the arms of the prisoners were pinioned and the hangman's cap drawn over their heads and faces." The trap was sprung.

Suddenly there was great consternation, for the ropes for Davis and Carlton were too long and their feet touched the ground. Described the reporter: "They were raised, the ropes re-tied, and again they were dangled in the air; this time to die, and by that horrible death, strangulation."

Fifteen minutes later, all three were pronounced dead. The minister prayed, the spectators sang a hymn, and the bodies were turned over to the families who took them away.

Entries in the court dockets were closed out — all except one. Carlton was to have faced

Gardeners Hoe Away Worry

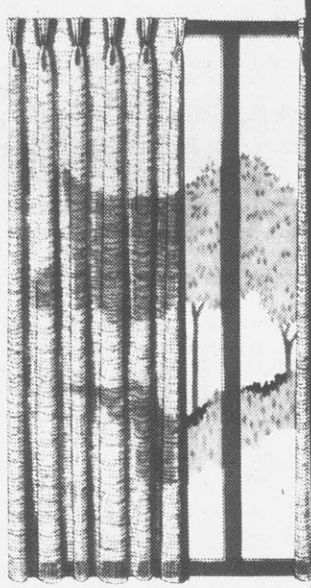

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A dose of old-fashioned gardening is one of the best medicines you can take if you caught cabin fever during the past winter, advises Robin Powers, a psychological counselor in the University of Iowa Counseling Service.
 Dr. Powers rates as its top attraction the potential of gardening to be an emotional safety valve.
 "But it also can make you better nourished, more physically fit, richer and even smarter as you learn how to outwit gardeners' enemies, from drought to potato bugs," she says.
 She sees the following emotional pluses in getting a garden plot into shape, sowing seeds, warring on weeds and finally harvesting your very own tomatoes, peas and beans, picked at their peak of ripeness and freshness.
 —The more your job keeps you cooped up indoors, the more likely you are to need the elbow room of an outdoor interest such as gardening. If you work in an office or factory amidst clicking typewriters or noisy machinery, an hour or two in the solitude and quiet of your garden plot should renew your ability to cope again with close quarters and work pressure.
 —You get a chance to slow down and work at your own pace as your own boss in a garden. This, too, helps you unwind.
 —There's no substitute for the healing and comfort of getting back to the rhythms of nature. The seasons have real meaning as you plant and cultivate and harvest food instead of opening cans and packages the year around.
 —Pulling up carrots or beets or whatever you've grown from seed for use on your own table gives the feeling of accomplishment which we all crave. On many jobs today, you never get to see any "flesh-and-blood" results from your 9 to 5 routine. This sense of achievement will also keep you from feeling guilty about wasting your leisure time.
 —You tend to get overly introspective and addicted to worry when housebound in winter. Gardening will get you outside yourself by giving you something to look forward to. Then your worries will have shrunk when you get back to them.

CONSIDERS BANKRUPTCY — Jacquelyn Hornickel, 21, of Milwaukee, says she may declare bankruptcy because she cannot be reimbursed by Florida for her $9,000 in medical bills after an attack in March which left her with double vision, a broken jaw and psychiatric problems. She cannot receive help from Wisconsin's victim compensation law because the attack was in Florida. She was vacationing with her boy friend when two hitchhikers beat them with a tire iron. The boyfriend was killed in the attack. (AP Laserphoto)

Green Replaces Silver Lining

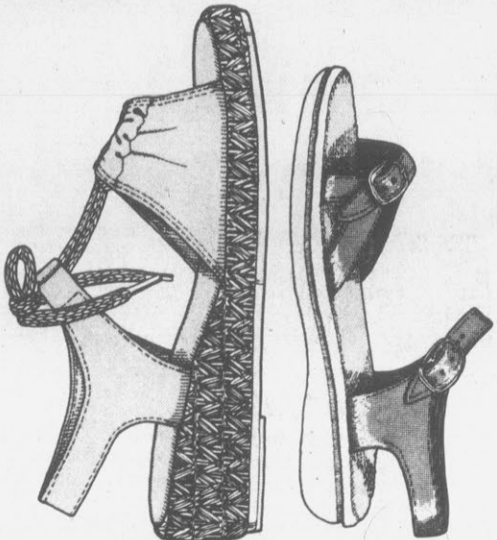

FAIRLAND, Ind. (AP) — The recycled money is treated with a fire-proof material. When glue is added, it can be sprayed onto walls and into attics, he explained. Richard C. Dunagan, owner of Aerolite Foam Co. of Fairland, says his firm is a distributor for a new kind of insulation made from shredded American currency that has been taken out of circulation. Dunagan said the average home would require about 65 bags, or a total of about $1.3 million. "The color is good, if you like green," Dunagan said.

Reminds He Was First To Support

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green said Tuesday he wanted to thank Gov. Jim Hunt and House Speaker Carl Stewart for reassessing their opposition to a larger pay raise for teachers and state employees.

In a carefully worded, printed statement, Green issued a pointed reminder that he was the first among the three officials to back a larger pay raise.

"I am delighted that the governor and speaker have decided to reassess their previously unalterable stand against a reasonable and fair increase for our state employees and teachers," the statement said.

Green noted that in 1975, when he was House speaker, the state provided no pay raise to teachers and government workers because of the recession.

"We assured them that when revenues permitted, we would make it up to them," he said. "I submit that monies are available and now is the time to grant these employees an equitable increase."

Hunt originally proposed a 5 percent pay raise with an additional 2 percent in new fringe benefits, saying that was the maximum allowable under the president's voluntary wage guidelines. Groups representing teachers and state workers have sought a full 7 percent pay raise plus the benefits, and Green recently said he supported that request.

Stewart later visited White House wage and price control officials and said a larger increase could be provided without violating the voluntary guidelines issued by President Carter. Hunt then said he would take a second look at the guidelines, and legislative budget leaders now say they expect some type of increase in the amount of pay raise.

In his statement Green also said, "Certainly they could not possibly be opposed to a fair increase while recommending a 26 percent increase for a Canadian to fill an office that could have very ably been filled by a North Carolinian."

That was a reference to Larry Blake, the state Board of Education's selection for president of the community college system. Blake, president of Fraser Valley College in British Columbia, was selected for the post over former Gov. Bob Scott and others.

Hunt has recommended an increase in the position's salary when Blake takes the job.

Cat Survives 14,000 Volts

HAMILTON, Ontario (AP) — A six-month-old cat, singed while causing a downtown power blackout last week, has been treated to an elegant dinner, courtesy of an 80-year-old Halifax widow.

Annie MacIntosh wrote a letter to Sam, the cat, after reading of its ordeal in her local newspaper. Sam, a female, had managed to stagger back to her home at the Hamilton Detoxification Center after knocking out the power when she became entangled in wiring near a hydro substation. She was blasted with 14,000 volts of electricity.

"Dear Sam," the letter read. "I'm sending you a reward for your bravery. I hope you're not hurt after your awful ordeal."

Center director Bob Mellway said Sam had dinner Monday on the dollar Mrs. MacIntosh sent for the treat.

The cat is "coming along very well," Mellway said.

Panel To Probe Rig's Collapse

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A marine court of inquiry will be convened here to investigate the collapse of an oil-drilling rig last week in which eight crewmen were believed killed, the Coast Guard has announced. No date has been set.

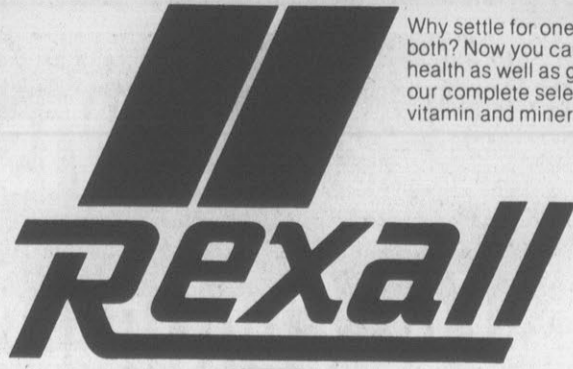

The body of Eddie J. Fredericks, 25, was recovered from the sunken rig Sunday afternoon, but the Coast Guard has given up its search for seven other men, missing since Thursday night and presumed dead. Thirty-four crewmen were on the rig when it sunk; 26 were rescued.

"At this point, we've run out of clues," said Coast Guard Lt. Gabe Kinney on Monday. "We've nothing to base a search on."

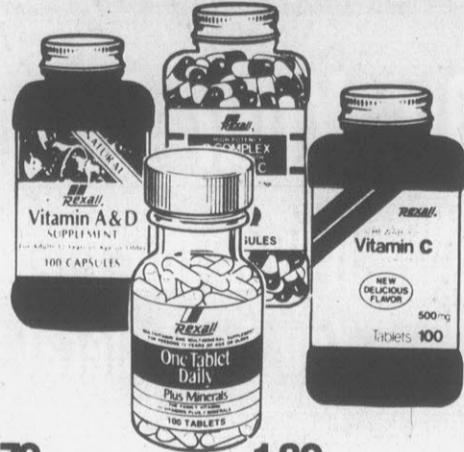

Sale ends Saturday, May 19th. We reserve the right to limit quantities.

WEST END SHOPPING CENTER, GREENVILLE

MON. thru SAT., 9:30 A.M. to 9:30 P.M.

Formal Opening Thursday For Carolina Office Equipment Co.

Carolina Office Equipment Co. (COECO) announced that the grand opening of the firm's new Greenville facility will be held Thursday.

Ribbon cutting ceremonies at 11 a.m. will mark the opening of the new 10,000 square foot building, located at the corner of Pitt and Green Streets across from Jarvis Memorial Church.

The opening of the store represents COECO's fourth expansion move since the company first began Greenville operations in 1947, it was pointed out.

The Greenville store, COECO reported, features three basic departments: office supplies, office furniture and design, and office machines and service.

According to the firm, the office supply department offers a new "scant type layout" for easy access to such items as pen and pencils, bookkeeping supplies, filing supplies, office machine supplies' drafting, school needs, paper goods and other items.

The furniture department, which has been expanded, features model offices with both contemporary and traditional furnishings. A budget furniture section is also included with a line of less expensive office furniture, it was mentioned.

The commercial interior and space planning department works in conjunction with the furniture department, COECO said, and offers the services of an interior designer who is on hand at all times.

The office machine department, besides having the regular line of typewriters and calculators, features new electronic age technologies such as minicomputers, word processing, bond copiers and other items, the firm reported. COECO also has an in-house service department with personnel trained to service and maintain equipment sold by the firm.

RANDY SMITH Manager

A new inventory control system tied into the company's computer is designed to help the firm maintain products in stock to meet customer needs, it was added. All bookkeeping functions of COECO such as accounts receivable, accounts payable, payroll, inventory control and price book are maintained on the computer.

Randy Smith is vice president and manager of COECO of Greenville, the firm said. Smith, who graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a degree in business administration, transferred from the Rocky Mount store to Greenville some three years ago.

Assisting Smith will be James E. Cobb, a 39-year veteran of the company, while Mrs. Estelle Sutton, who has been with the firm since 1961, will handle bookkeeping duties. Other personnel include: Lorrain Jeannette and Kathy Waters, inside sales; Pat McKeithan, who is in charge of customer service, as well as inside sales; George Boyd and Andy Martin, outside sales; Ben Ray, Ben Ricks, and Reggie Curran, machine sales and service supplies; Marita Crumm, space planning and design department; and Tony Godley, Abdel Rasulullatt, and Mike Briley, shipping and deliveries.

COECO, which also operates stores in Wilson, Tarboro and Rocky Mount, has been at three previous locations on Evans Street here since the 1947 opening.

Over 100 employees work with the firm, which has been in operation in eastern North Carolina since 1921.

The new store here, COECO reported, meets all new environmental regulations for minimum use of energy.

Helms To Ask Funding's End

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., says he will ask the Senate to cut off federal funds to Soul City.

Helms said Tuesday that he would try to halt the funds through an amendment to the budget of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"Enough is enough," he said. "Or in this case, enough is too much."

Soul City is a "new town" development supported by HUD in Warren County. It has a population of 124 and is headed by former civil-rights leader Floyd B. McKissick.

On Monday, Sen. Robert B. Morgan, D-N.C., said he would oppose further funding of Soul City as long as McKissick was managing the project.

McKissick has declined to comment on the statements. Since Soul City was announced 10 years ago, the federal government has invested $16 million in grants and $10 million in loan guarantees.

Helms said he would try to amend an HUD appropriations bill "to forbid any further waste of the taxpayers' money on Soul City."

The amendment would end federal funds of any sort for the project unless the Senate specifically approves them, Helms said.

"I think it can be done," Helms said. "I think there will be some problems from a parliamentary standpoint, but I think I have found a way around it."

He said he would propose the amendment in a few weeks, as soon as the HUD bill is reported out of the appropriations committee. He said the Senate Banking Committee reviews the HUD budget and passes it along to the appropriations committee.

Helms is not a member of the Senate Banking Committee, but Morgan is. In his statement Monday, Morgan said it was time to take a look at the whole new communities program.

Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., whose district includes Soul City, wrote the HUD secretary Monday asking for an explanation of questions raised about McKissick's development in articles published in Sunday's editions of the News and Observer of Raleigh. The articles said Soul City had achieved less than 10 percent of the population, housing and job goals it had agreed to meet during the five-year period ending Dec. 31, 1978.

On Monday, Sen. Robert B. Morgan, D-N.C., said he would oppose further funding of Soul City as long as McKissick was managing the project.

McKissick has declined to comment on the statements. Since Soul City was announced 10 years ago, the federal government has invested $16 million in grants and $10 million in loan guarantees.

Helms said he would try to amend an HUD appropriations bill "to forbid any further waste of the taxpayers' money on Soul City."

VOTER EDUCATION

The fourth precinct of Greenville will conduct a voter's education class Thursday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Agnes Fullilove School on Chestnut Street. All interested persons are invited.

Relaxing Mixed Drink Rules Killed Second Time

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill that would have allowed the sale of mixed drinks in convention centers and coliseums was brought back to life briefly by the state House Tuesday before it was killed a second time — by an even larger margin.

The Senate-passed bill, which won tentative approval in the House last week, was killed Monday night when the House failed to approve it, 52-58, on final reading.

But opponents failed to get a parliamentary device known as the "clincher" approved, meaning the bill could be reconsidered.

Rep. Casper Holroyd, D-Wake, who voted against the bill Monday night, called for reconsideration Tuesday, saying he had an amendment he felt would make it acceptable to those who felt it was too liberal.

Despite adoption of the amendment, which would have prohibited application of the bill to state-owned buildings, the House killed the measure again — this time by a 51-66 vote. And this time the "clincher" was applied, assuring the bill will not be reconsidered by the legislature this session.

Opponents said the bill represented a liberalization of the state's local-option liquor-by-the-drink laws enacted last June.

The bill would have allowed the sale of mixed drinks in convention centers, coliseums and auditoriums in areas where liquor by the drink had been approved. It would have limited the sale to conventions and banquets in those facilities and their participants only.

In other legislative action Tuesday:

Legislative Seats
The House turned back a measure that would have required candidates filing for a primary legislative elections to designate the seat to which they were seeking nomination, affecting House and Senate districts where there is more than one legislative seat.

The House failed to approve the measure on a 38-73 vote with opponents saying it was self-serving legislation that would benefit incumbents and shut out minorities.

Juvenile Code
The House unanimously approved and sent the Senate a massive juvenile-code revision bill that is part of Gov. Jim Hunt's crime-control package.

The 107-page bill would make a multitude of small changes in the law, designed to protect the juvenile and to protect the public from the juvenile delinquent.

Ski Injuries
A bill limiting liability of ski-resort operators to suits for personal injuries was approved by the Senate and sent to the House.

It requires that injured persons notify the resort in writing within 12 days of their skiing accident, and it states a legal assumption of risk on the part of skiers, saying the resort is not liable for injury due to the inherent hazards of downhill skiing.

Community Colleges
A bill that would set up a separate board to govern the state's community-college system was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee and sent to the full Senate.

It would remove community colleges and technical institutes from the jurisdiction of the state Board of Education, establishing a 17-member board.

National Guard
A legislative tax panel changed its mind Tuesday and voted to include in the tax-relief package a bill that would allow state personal income-tax exclusion for up to $1,500 of National Guard pay.

The bill is seen as a way to encourage membership in the guard, which is now at 90 percent of its capacity. The committee deleted the bill from the package last week.

Discount
The 3 percent discount the state provides merchants on the payment of sales taxes would be repealed under a bill introduced by Sen. Katherine Sebo, D-Guilford.

Mrs. Sebo said her bill would provide more than $17 million that could be used to give an additional salary increase to teachers and state employees.

And she said the tax change would also provide close to $6 million for local governments' use.

Teachers
A bill that would change the tenure system for public-school teachers was delayed in the House Education Committee until next session. Under the bill, contracts for tenured teachers would be subject to review for renewal or non-renewal every five years.

The measure has been opposed by state organizations representing teachers.

Drinks
A bill that would allow townships with ABC stores to hold mixed-drink referendums was approved by the Senate ABC

Committee and sent to the full Senate.

The bill primarily effects two Moore County townships, including Pinehurst. Townships are currently excluded from the mixed-drink law that allows referendums in cities and counties.

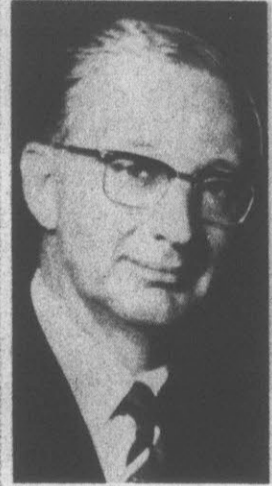

The bill was opposed by Christian Action League President William Wallace, along with another one that would allow beer and wine to be sold on state-supported university and community-college campuses.

The committee postponed a vote on that measure.

A bill that would appropriate $3.5 million over the next two years for development of a statewide beach-protection program was introduced in the Senate.

Sen. Ben Schwartz, D-New Hanover, said the appropriations was introduced as an alternative to a bill that would permit the towns of Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach, upon ratification of the voters, to levy an additional 1 percent sales tax to fund beach-erosion control projects.

That bill has already been approved by the House and is now before the Senate.

RECALLED — U.S. Ambassador to Chile, George Landau, has been called home for consultations in Washington as the Chilean press admonished Washington not to react with political or diplomatic pressure to Chile's refusal to extradite three military officers implicated in the Orlando Letelier assassination case. Landau, above, is expected to talk with members of congress and other U.S. government officials. (AP Laserphoto)

Tax Giveaways

NEW YORK (AP) — Not only is it impossible to get something for nothing in New York City, it's impossible to give away something for nothing, as the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has learned.

The company forked over $135,979.60 after the city's Finance Department demanded that they pay city taxes on cigarettes they distributed free here as part of a promotional campaign for Camel Lights.

David Durk, assistant commissioner for enforcement, said Tuesday that the cigarette packages being distributed carried a sentence that said: "All applicable state taxes have been paid by the manufacturer."

However, Durk, a 15-year veteran of the police force and a witness in the Knapp Commission's investigation on policy corruption in Mayor John Lindsay's administration, said the city tax of eight cents a pack had not been paid.

"I called down to North Carolina and told them in a creditable manner that city taxes will be paid," said Durk, who is currently specializing in cigarette bootlegging.

More than 150,000 cartons of the cigarettes had been slated for free distribution in the city, Durk said.

City Counts 2 Collisions

An estimated $5,050 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 7:39 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fourth and Ash Streets, involving cars driven by Angela Phillips Seagle of 1303B East Second St., and Earl Klutz Fisher Jr., of 2806 Crockett Dr.

Police, who charged Mrs. Seagle with failing to stop for a stop sign, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Seagle car and $2,000 to the Fisher vehicle.

Don Clay Golden of 1304 East First St. was charged with careless and reckless driving following investigation of a 10:20 p.m. mishap on Fifth Street, 110 feet East of the Biltmore Street intersection.

Investigators said the Golden car collided with two trees, then skidded sideways along the street, resulting in an estimated $1,500 damage to the car and $50 damage to the pavement.

Coast Guard Trial Under Way

By J. LEE CARRIER
Associated Press Writer
YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) — In the first court martial in history of a Coast Guard captain for the deaths of his crewmen, the defense has led off by requesting a new Coast Guard investigation of the accident.

CWO Donald K. Robinson, whose court martial resumed today, is accused of negligence and manslaughter in connection with the collision of his cutter Cuyahoga and a 525-foot freighter near the mouth of the Potomac River in the Chesapeake Bay last Oct. 20.

Eleven of the 29 crewmen and officer candidates died when the 52-year-old training ship sank immediately after the collision with the Argentine collier Santa Cruz II.

Specifically, Robinson is charged with involuntary manslaughter, negligently hazarding his ship and negligently damaging military property.

In the first day of the court martial Tuesday, defense attorney Jerome Flanagan of Boston requested a new Article 32 hearing, the equivalent of a military grand jury probe.

Flanagan contended that Capt. Edward Daniels, who handled the first hearing, was predisposed to place charges, refused to allow the defense adequate time to prepare its case and failed to provide the defense with key information.

Daniels, a special assistant to the Coast Guard's general counsel, testified he was named investigating officer March 9, held one hearing March 22 and submitted his report to Coast Guard Commandant Adm. John Hayes March 26.

"I relied mainly on the transcript of the Marine Safety Board inquiry. I was satisfied in my own mind about the charges," Daniels said.

The information that Flanagan said was denied to the defense included the conclusions of the three Coast Guard officers taking part in the safety board investigation. Those findings have not been made public yet, but Flanagan said he learned that they placed part of the blame for the accident on the freighter's pilot and on the Coast Guard itself for poor staffing of the cutter and poor training of her crew.

Flanagan said those officers also concluded that Robinson was charged with only negligently hazarding a vessel.

"These conclusions clearly are favorable to the defendant," Flanagan said, and would have proved beneficial to Robinson during the first Article 32 hearing. Judge Appelbaum refused to admit the conclusions to back up Flanagan's request for a new hearing, ruling they were not relevant to the motion before the court. Nothing was said about entering them as evidence during the trial itself.

The judge took under advisement another defense motion that the Coast Guard be required to build a full-scale mock-up of the Cuyahoga's bridge.

The ship itself, raised Oct. 30, was resunk earlier this year to become part of an artificial fishing reef off the Virginia coast. "It seems incredible to me that Coast Guard would deliberately destroy the biggest piece of evidence in this case before charges were brought against Mr. Robinson," Flanagan said.

Cmdr. J.F. Meade, prosecuting attorney, argued that the defense should have to provide the mock-up since the government can provide a demonstration model only under exceptional circumstances.

But Flanagan said, "This is the first time in history the Coast Guard has tried a captain of a ship for manslaughter and I submit this is an exceptional circumstance."

The defense has still not said whether it will request or waive its right to a trial by a jury of Coast Guard officers.

Robinson faces a possible six years in military prison, a dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay and benefits.

Only two other captains of Coast Guard ships have faced general court martials. Both were accused of negligence in accidentally grounding their ships and both were reprimanded and moved lower on the active duty promotion list.

Power Pinch For Islands

BUXTON, N.C. (AP) — Residents of Hatteras and Ocracoke islands may be facing rotating blackouts this summer if demand for power exceeds the delivery capacity of Cape Hatteras Electric Membership Corp., EMC officials have warned.

An EMC spokesman said the company has set up diesel generators at Buxton and Ocracoke to supplement power transmitted to the two Outer Banks islands by a cable across Oregon Inlet.

EMC has asked residents and visitors on the islands to abide by strict power-conservation guidelines.

The utility is proceeding with plans to place a second transmission line across the Herbert C. Bonner Bridge over Oregon Inlet to serve the two islands. Peak demand last summer came close to the capacity of the 13-year-old, 34,500-volt cable.

Zane Gray, manager of EMC, said it will be six to eight months before the additional line can be completed.

The second cable is only a temporary measure to alleviate power problems on the Outer Banks. EMC is trying to overcome the objections of environmentalists and get federal approval for installation of a 115,000-volt line that would be strung across steel and concrete pylons in Oregon Inlet.

"We've got to do something before the summer of 1980 or we're going to have real problems," Gray said.

Resignation Due 'Friction'

WINDSOR, N.C. (AP) — The chairman of the Bertie County Board of Elections has resigned because of what he called interference in the board's operation by the county manager.

Martin W. Britt said Tuesday he stepped down from the three-member board because of friction with county officials.

He said the main reason for his resignation was a new policy calling for a county employee from another office to work in the elections office when the supervisor was out. Previously, the chairman ran the office.

County Manager John Whitehurst said the board of commissioners had suggested the policy to the elections board, which agreed.

Senate Attempts Break Insurance Bill Deadlock

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Senate has attempted to break a House deadlock over insurance rate-setting methods, sending it legislation that would extend a two-year-old law permitting small yearly increases in rates for automobile policies.

Charles Vickery, D-Orange, deleted a sunset provision that would have caused a 6 percent annual limit on auto rate increases to expire in 1981. The Senate version now keeps indefinitely the limit on auto premium increases, which insurance companies may implement while appealing rejection of the rate hike by the commissioner. Before the 1977 legislation, the commissioner could delay rate hikes for years by refusing to approve them.

"I believe with this amendment," Vickery said, "the people of North Carolina will be protected from inordinate increases in auto insurance rates."

The vote came a day after Senate opponents had won a delay by sending the bill to the Senate Finance Committee on grounds it could effect state taxation. But Finance Chairman Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, said he didn't want the bill in his committee, and the Senate agreed to take it up immediately.

The Senate went along with the amendment on a 42-7 vote, and opponents in return dropped their efforts to further change the bill.

The House Insurance Committee has been unable to approve any of its rate-setting revision proposals after debating them all session. Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, Senate insurance chairman and floor leader for the bill, said she pressed for action Tuesday in hopes of prompting the House committee to act.

Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, an ally of Ingram, told the House Tuesday that he intended to invoke a little-used rule to recall his bill from the House Insurance Committee and force a full House vote on Friday. Messer said he would attempt the move if the committee is unable to act before then. His bill would partially restore the commissioner's prior approval power. It would allow the industry to increase rates by 6 percent or less each year without the commissioner's approval but allow the commissioner to block larger increases.

Diversion Of $500,000 Denied By Billy Carter

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Carter has denied a published accusation that he diverted $500,000 in loans to his family's peanut warehouse to his brother's 1976 presidential campaign. The Atlanta Journal reported Tuesday.

The accusation was contained in a copyright article written for The Nation magazine by free-lance journalist Peter Peckarsky of Washington, D.C. The article is to appear in the May 19 issue of the magazine, a spokesman for The Nation said.

The Journal said the Peckarsky article alleges that Billy Carter took $500,000 from the peanut warehouse account at the Atlanta-based National Bank of Georgia and deposited it in his personal NBG account "in the month before the decisive April 27, 1976, Pennsylvania Democratic primary."

Peckarsky article quotes an anonymous source "close to the Justice Department investigation now in progress" as saying the money left Billy Carter's personal account before the primary, reappeared in the account in May and June 1976 and then was transferred back to the warehouse account.

A federal grand jury in Atlanta currently is looking into allegations that money loaned to the Carter warehouse in Plains, Ga., by the National Bank of Georgia when the bank was headed by Bert Lance was diverted to Carter's 1976 presidential campaign. Lance served as federal budget director under Carter but has since resigned.

A special counsel, Paul Curran, was appointed earlier this year by U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell to head the inquiry. The president has denied the allegations.

The Journal said Peckarsky's article said money from the NBG loans to the warehouse was passed by Billy Carter to his brother's campaign organization. The article reportedly says the organization used the money to buy media time.

The Journal said Billy Carter, reached Monday in Americus, Ga., called the Peckarsky article "a bunch of bull," and repeated his earlier comment that he never transferred money from the warehouse account to his personal account at NBG.

Ingram has attacked the current law and the Senate proposal to extend it, saying it has permitted excessive rate increases. The 6 percent limit does not apply to policies other than automobile coverage.

Judge For National Auditions At ECU

Nara Snornieks of Raleigh is to be the judge for the National Piano Playing Auditions to be held today through Saturday at the A. J. Fletcher Music Center on the East Carolina University campus.

Latvian born Mrs. Snornieks and her husband, Arvids Snornieks, taught music in New Bern from 1950 to 1967 before moving to Raleigh.

Mrs. Snornieks has long been active with the N. C. Federation of Music Clubs and in numerous other music and civic organizations. She received the M.M. degree from City Conservatory in Riga, Latvia and had advanced studies at UNC, Chapel Hill.

Several scholarships have been given in her name to St. Andrews College Summer Music Camp and to the Western District of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Mrs. Karen Hause, local National Guild of Piano Teachers chairman, has announced that students of the following teachers will be competing in the auditions — Annemarie Lalik, Jane Rose, Frances Cain, Ann Attmore, Lynn Cox, Gallene Ragan, and Karen Hause.

Clean Up Or Face A Fine

BOLINGBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Village officials, warning residents to clean up or pay up, have begun issuing citations and warnings to village residents with messy yards and homes.

So far, there have been four citations and 50 warnings — and a report of a request for another warning.

Marianne Kozlik, the village's ordinance supervisor who heads the crackdown, said Tuesday the four tickets were given to residents who had violated local housing ordinances since last year.

She said those who clean up their property within the village-imposed deadline will not be fined. But the four who already have received tickets will have to pay the fine and clean up their property, she said.

And one woman reportedly called Mrs. Kozlik asking that a warning ticket be written on her property. She said her husband has been slow in removing a shed knocked over during a storm earlier this year and thought a warning ticket might give him the incentive to get it done.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle was elected president of France in 1959.

Surgery Only Confirms Way They Feel

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — As a little girl, Joan always had a quick answer for anyone asking what she wanted to be when she grew up — a boy.

Now, at 45, Joan is getting her wish after a lifetime struggle between the way she felt and the way she looked.

With the help of doctors in Washington University's transsexual research project, Joan has taken male hormones for several months and looks forward to surgery making her a legal man. Her voice is high-pitched but not distinctively feminine, and she shows the beginnings of a goatee and sideburns.

The decision by Joan and scores of others to change their sex is not one made lightly.

She leaves behind an 11-year-old daughter who must adjust to having two fathers and no mother. And at her age, Joan knows it will not be easy to start life again.

Cut off from both her past and future, Joan feels she cannot allow her real name or photograph to be used in accounts of her experience. Yet her decision to become physically the way she has always felt emotionally has left her feeling free and happy.

"I got so I didn't care whether I woke up or not," she said in an interview, recalling early years of her marriage. "The new day and the sunshine didn't mean anything to me because I was living such a lie."

Now that she is in the process of a divorce and living on her own as a man, "the depression has miraculously lifted. I'm lonely because I live alone, but it's a free-spirit feeling, without depression all the time. I don't have to mince any words. I can act as a free person."

More than 90 patients have come to Dr. Paul M. Packman since Washington University began the research project four years ago. The project has had a low profile despite being a major Midwestern center for sexual reassignment.

Accurate statistics on transsexualism are hard to come by, Packman said, with estimates ranging from 1 in 100,000 Americans to 1 in 20,000.

Patients switching from male to female outnumber persons moving in the opposite direction by about 3 to 1. But Packman, a psychiatrist who makes the initial evaluation of the patients, said the number of each sex wishing to have the reassignment surgery probably is the same.

The male-to-female surgery is merely more visible, he said, perhaps because of highly publicized cases such as Renee Richards and Christine Jorgensen.

Packman sees so many patients who cross-dress in both directions that he makes it a point to ask them what sex they were born.

"I saw a patient once who worked in construction for several years and no one knew she was female," he said. "She had a medium muscular build, and she did nothing to present a feminine image."

Dr. Harry Benjamin, a pioneer researcher into transsexual behavior, devised this explanation to differentiate among homosexuals, transvestites and transsexuals:

— Homosexuality is a sexual problem, the desire to have intercourse with the same sex.

— Transvestism is a social problem, the desire to dress in society as the opposite sex.

— Transsexualism is a gender problem, the desire to live and function as the opposite sex.

Packman said transsexuals who have not had reassignment surgery view intercourse with someone who is the opposite biological sex as the equivalent of a homosexual affair.

Transsexual men, he said, "often have sex with homosexual males, because that's the best they can do, given their anatomy. But in any sexual encounter, they visualize and fantasize intercourse with females as a homosexual act."

"Transsexual men don't want to switch sex just so they can have intercourse with guys. It's the totality of being female that they're after."

Packman has diagnosed transsexuals of both sexes, all social classes and all ages, ranging from 12 to 58. In all cases, he said, they have felt since early childhood they belong to the opposite sex.

"They feel and think they are really in the wrong body. There has been some bizarre mistake of nature. One patient who believes in reincarnation said to me, 'The karma got messed up, and I got into the wrong body.'"

The onset of puberty is a devastating experience for transsexuals, he said, because development of adult sexual characteristics is an all too graphic reminder of their biological destiny. Self-mutilation and even suicide often occur.

For women, Packman said, "breast growth is just a disaster. It's the physical aspect of being feminine they hoped would never happen, but they can't avoid it. It's there every time they take off their shirt."

"They try to hide it by wearing floppy clothing. They may try to bind their breasts with bandages or walk stoop-shouldered."

In her small apartment, filled with baseball and bowling trophies she won as a woman, Joan discussed her new life. Husky, dressed in a white shirt and blue jeans, she passed as a male easily.

She works at home now on private typing jobs at 100 words a minute. She would rather be outdoors, working at some type of delivery job, but her in-between sexual status hampers her job-seeking efforts.

"I couldn't go out in the working world when I started on hormones as a man, and I couldn't really do it as a woman either," she said. "You try to be honest, but you have to find jobs that allow you to be kind of a neuter."

Active in sports and church work, Joan dated rarely until she met the man who was to become her husband.

"I couldn't say it was the way I feel toward women," she said of her relationship with her husband, "but it was not altogether platonic. Both of us were so stupid we were kind of floundering around, experimenting together."

Her daughter was born after a difficult pregnancy and labor. She hoped motherhood would end her sexual dilemma.

"When I was nursing Ellen, that was the closest I ever felt to being female."

But the feeling didn't last and her depression became worse. Physical tests persuaded her to seek medical help and she finally went to see Packman.

At Washington University patients are diagnosed as transsexual by Packman and another psychiatrist in independent evaluations. Then hormone treatment begins. Surgery is performed only after patients have been on hormones and functioning in their new roles for a full year.

"Time is very, very important," Packman said. "This isn't something you can just rush into. That's not true elsewhere. When the time is up, we don't call them to say, 'OK, you can go to the surgeon now.' They must initiate the contact for surgery."

"At this stage of the medical art, we don't have any other treatment to offer. We have no hormone therapy or psychotherapy to convince them to accept the sex they were born with. It probably would be better if we could change their mind to conform with their body — but we can't."

Male-to-female surgery involves one operation, but female-to-male patients must undergo a mastectomy, a hysterectomy and three operations for penis construction.

The procedures are costly, although comparable to the costs for other major illnesses. Packman said his department helps patients who may be having trouble obtaining insurance approval.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, May 16, 1979—15
The patients he sees have had their feelings for years and may have been given the runaround by other doctors, but Packman emphasized the need to move slowly.

How Tar Heel Senators And Congressmen Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 3 through May 9.

HOUSE
REVENUE SHARING — By a vote of 190 for and 195 against, the House refused to restore $2.3 billion in fiscal 1980 budget authority for general revenue sharing. If upheld in later House and Senate action, this vote signals the end of revenue sharing, which has sent billions of few-strings-attached dollars to state and local governments since it was begun in 1972. The vote came during debate on a budget resolution (H Con Res 107), which was headed for final passage.

Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., a supporter of the move to restore the money, said "we must not let our desire to balance the federal budget obscure the importance of general revenue sharing..."

Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., an opponent, said that "if we are going to control the federal budget, there ought to be no sacred cows."

Members voting "nay" supported the House Budget Committee's decision to kill general revenue sharing.

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Richardson Preyer, D-6, James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, W. C. Hefner, D-8, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "nay."

Rep. Charles Rose, D-7, did not vote.

BUDGET CUTS — The House rejected, 198 for and 218 against, a GOP amendment providing for a less expensive budget than the Democratic-controlled House Budget Committee had recommended. The rejected amendment targeted a fiscal 1980 deficit of $18.7 billion (25 percent below the committee target) and a 1980 tax cut of $15 billion. It was offered to a resolution (H Con Res 107) setting the fiscal 1980 budget blueprint to which authorization and appropriation bills are expected to conform.

Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, a sponsor, said that with the Treasury facing annual interest on the national debt of $55 billion, "unless we start pulling back and restraining that cash outlay...the day will come when the budget will be made up entirely of uncontrollables." Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., an opponent, said: "I see people on the Republican side laughing. Maybe it is funny. Maybe it is great fun to cut these programs for those who can afford least to be cut. Is that what we are prepared to do?"

Members voting "yea" favored the budget cuts. Fountain, Neal, Hefner, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea." Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, and Gudger voted "nay."

FOOD STAMPS — The House rejected, 147 for and 276 against, an amendment to cut about $650 million from the $7 billion fiscal 1980 authority for the Food Stamp program. The vote came on H Con Res 107 (see above votes), which sets a non-binding ceiling to which later spending bills are expected to conform.

Rep. Thomas Coleman, R-Mo., the sponsor, said: "If only half of the waste and error in food stamp management and administration was eliminated there would be a cost savings in the neighborhood of at least $650 million."

Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., an opponent, said that debate on the overall budget blueprint "is not the time or place to be attempting to do the work of the standing committees of this House."

Members voting "nay" opposed the cut in Food Stamp budget authority.

Fountain, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE

BEWARE OF BOOZE — The Senate rejected, 21 for and 68 against, an attempt to table language to require a health warning to be printed on bottles of alcoholic beverages containing more than 24 per cent alcohol by volume. This vote kept the language alive. The warning would read: "Caution: Consumption of alcoholic beverages may be hazardous to your health, may be habit-forming, and may cause serious birth defects when consumed during pregnancy." The vote came during debate on S 440, a bill funding federal alcohol-control programs that was passed and sent to the House.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., a supporter of the motion to kill the language, said: "Obviously, just a warning on the label has not proven effective on other products" such as cigarettes.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., sponsor of the warning, said "the people of our nation deserve to be warned of the addictive nature of alcohol and the risks to health and life created by excessive drinking."

Senators voting "yea" were opposed to requiring a warning label on bottles containing strong alcoholic beverages. Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and

Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

GAS RATIONING — By a vote of 58 for and 39 against, the Senate adopted a resolution (S Res 120) giving President Carter standby authority to ration gasoline nationwide if he determines there is a fuel-shortage emergency. Congress must consent to any rationing order. Vehicles in states which historically have had the highest volume of gasoline sales per registered vehicle would fare best under the Administration proposal.

Sen Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., a supporter, said "we have to be prepared in the event a national emergency hits this country."

Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., an opponent, said senators should not be "rubberstamping a plan which, if it is ever put into effect, will be a monumental failure, a scheme that is entirely unworkable."

Senators voting "yea" wanted the President to have standby authority to ration gasoline. Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

Devote The Month To Blood Pressure

May has been declared National High Blood Pressure Month, with educational efforts being made by the National Institutes of Health High Blood Pressure Education Program to inform the public as to the danger of "the silent killer," as high blood pressure (hypertension) is often known.

Although heart disease is the number one killer in eastern North Carolina, many persons overlook the fact that high blood pressure is a factor in causing heart problems.

According to statistics compiled by the National Institutes of Health High Blood Pressure Education Program, of those who have the ailment, only about 29 percent successfully control it. Another 29 percent are unaware that they have the disease, with 19 percent under treatment but not having full control over the matter. An additional 23 percent do not treat the disease at all after diagnosis.

"We must convince and help people with high blood pressure to follow the treatment prescribed by their physicians," said Graham W. Ward, coordinator of the national program. "Too many people take their pills for a while and then quit after a few months. They are in danger of dying prematurely or suffering disability or illness. We know that if people are under treatment for high blood pressure, they can live healthy lives."

Health officials point out that prolonged high blood pressure can do permanent damage to various organs of the body, such as the kidneys and heart. Treatment reduces the chance of damage.

Many national and local organizations are working in May to emphasize the importance of effective treatment and realization of high blood pressure patients. Persons who do have high blood pressure are urged to follow their doctors' advice. Those who suspect the ailment, should contact their local physician or county health department for a blood pressure check.

WAR ON RATS
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Farmers killed 1,927 rats Monday in an eastern district of Kedah state where rodents have eaten more than 380 acres of rice, state officials say.

Russia Eyed Annexation Of Hawaii

LIHUE, Hawaii (UPI) — But for a slight error of judgment by a German agent for czarist Russia, Americans today might be paying their Waikiki hotel bills in rubles.

Historian Catherine Stauder says new research shows that Dr. Georg Anton Schaffer, as an agent for the Russian American Co., attempted to annex the islands for St. Petersburg in 1816, and built four fortifications in Hawaii. But he bet on the wrong Hawaiian king.

Records of the Alaska-based company made available by Soviet historians show that a boatload of dried taro and preserved pork probably thwarted the ambitions of Schaffer who declared: "No power in the world has more right to these islands than Russia."

Barvaria-born Schaffer — or Egor Antonovich Scheffer as he was known in Russia — made a mistake that affected Russia's future in the Pacific. He bet that Kauai's frustrated King Kaumuali'i could successfully overthrow the regime of King Kamehameha.

On July 1, 1816, Schaffer induced Kaumuali'i to sign a treaty that would "place himself, with all the people under his sway, under the protection of the Russian emperor, Czar Alexander I."

In addition, Schaffer promised arms, ships and men to help overthrow Kamehameha's government. In return, Kaumuali'i promised the Russians half of the island of Oahu — when they conquered it, the sandalwood concession on Oahu and Kauai, and permission for the Russian American Co. to establish factories and plantations on all his islands.

Schaffer's empire-building ambitions collapsed when three things happened:

Alexander Andreievitch Baranoff, chief manager for the Russian American Co. in Alaska, divorced himself and the company from Schaffer's announced plans.

The ships, arms and men Schaffer promised Kaumuali'i for his war never arrived.

The British and Americans who feared Russian expansion into the Hawaiian Islands ganged up on the doctor and undermined his position with Kaumuali'i.

Eventually Czar Alexander said thanks but no thanks to Kaumuali'i's appeal for Russian protection and sent him instead a gold tasseled sword and a beautifully embossed letter and made the king a member of the order of St. Anne.

The director of the Kauai museum, Robert Gahrn said none of the presents has ever been found.

The adventure ended when the Hawaiians took down the Russian flag at Ft. Elizabeth, which Schaffer and his men built on Kauai, and threw Schaffer and his Russian and Aleut hunters off the garden island in May, 1817.

The stubborn German doctor sailed his ship, the Kodiak, around Kauai to Hanalei where he had built two forts and made his last stand in Hawaii.

After a day-long battle with Kaumuali'i's forces, the Russians and Aleuts were forced to flee in the badly leaking Kodiak to Honolulu.

Russian Capt. Otto von Kotzebue's report to St. Petersburg in October 1817 said three Aleuts were killed in the Hanalei battle. Historian Richard Pierce's account said two Aleut hunters died in the fight.

Ms. Stauder said it is still not clear whether Schaffer was carrying out secret Russian instructions to establish a Hawaiian colony or whether he had embarked on a do-it-yourself empire-building venture.

Schaffer was hidden aboard the American brig Panther and taken to Canton where he eventually made his way back to St. Petersburg. There he vainly sought an audience with the emperor, again urging that a Russian expedition be sent to Hawaii to regain their lost foothold.

The Russian-American Co. gave Schaffer some encouragement, but when it was learned that the emperor wanted no part of the scheme, it was quickly dropped in May 1819.

Schaffer finally realized his dreams in Brazil, where he was granted a large estate by the government and died in 1836 as Count von Frankenthal.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed a slight loss today amid continuing energy worries. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slid .95 to 824.93 in the first half hour. Losers took a 6-5 lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts said the market's mood continued to be dominated by concern over gasoline supply problems and expectations of further increases in world oil prices. Venezuela today raised its oil price 60 cents a barrel by means of an increase in its petroleum surcharge. The market made a bid to rally Tuesday, but it failed to attract much support. Brokers said that showing left traders in no hurry to buy today. Early volume leaders included General Motors, off 1/8 at 57 3/4; Amerada Hess, down 1/2 at 33 1/2, and Citicorp, unchanged at 23 1/2. On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average, up about 5 points at its mid-day peak, closed with a .86 gain at 825.88. Advances barely nosed out declines in the over-all tally on the NYSE. Big Board volume came to 26.19 million shares against 22.45 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .04 to 55.26. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .12 at 176.05.

Host Cancer Soc. Session

The Bowman Gray School of Medicine is the host for the annual meeting of the North Carolina Division, American Cancer Society, Thursday (May 17). The division's Board of Directors and approximately 200 volunteer workers from over the state were expected to attend. The meeting included a luncheon at 12:30 p.m., followed by the general session. Dr. Charles L. Spurr, professor of medicine and director of the Oncology Research Center at Bowman Gray, spoke on "Cancer Research" at the general session. The general session was followed by tours of the cancer facilities at the medical center. Nine members of the Bowman Gray faculty who are actively involved in cancer research participated in the program.

units, at Pitt Memorial to 569, still less than the 600 that were estimated five or six years ago to be needed here. Board chairman Harry Leslie said the executive committee had decided to hold a meeting in September in conjunction with the executive board of the medical staff to study and begin implementation of the hospital's long term plan. He read a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Patricia White for care she received in the emergency room recently.

Finance Committee Chairman Norfleet Sugg reported that net income for the hospital during April, 1979, was $68,022, up from $49,506 in April, 1978. Net income for the fiscal year (from Oct. 1-Apr. 30) so far, he said, is $1,303,420, when $784,802 was budgeted—over a half million dollars over budget.

He praised Hospital Finance Officer Warren McRoy for his superb money management, saying some $28,000 has been earned in interest this year. "All our funds are working funds, thanks to Mr. McRoy," Sugg commented.

Ephraim Smith of the Rehabilitation Committee commented that the regional rehab center has shown marked improvement in its financial situation since the "coming on board" of Dr. Donald Weir, medical director. He commented on the great benefit, much of which cannot be measured, on the lives of Eastern North Carolinians who use the services of the rehab center. Prior to the beginning of the meeting, the trustees saw a slide presentation about the team approach to rehabilitation used to help rehab patients return to useful lives. Dr. Weir made the presentation.

Asst. Administrator Rick Gilstrap reported on the clinical experience programs that have been carried out in the hospital in the last two years. He gave each of the trustees a list of 55 such programs. Dr. Harry McLean was approved for promotion from consulting to active staff privileges.

Approved for full active staff membership were Dr. Lane E. Jennings, family practice; Dr. Irvin S. Johnsrude, radiology; Dr. Randolph Williams, orthopedics, Dr. Charles G. Rob, surgery; Dr. Eurigia Land, internal medicine; Dr. Allen F. Bowyer, internal medicine; and Dr. Thomas Burkart, internal medicine.

Approval for provisional staff membership was given to Dr. Robert F. Ehinger for consulting privileges in preventive medicine and pediatrics; Dr. Raymond S. Garrison in family practice dentistry; Dr. Paul D. Mozley in obstetrics and gynecology; Dr. Sudesh Kataria in pediatrics; Dr. W. Allen Ayres in obstetrics and gynecology; and Dr. Edward O. Janosko in surgery.

Budgetary Needs Eyed In Public Works Dept.

This is the third in a series of articles prepared by the city government, concerning the proposed 1979-80 budget.

The City of Greenville's Public Works Department has seven divisions — Administrative, Street Maintenance, Sanitation, Garage, Signs and Paint, Cemetery and Transit, and employs 143 city funded personnel. The 1979-80 budget for the department requests the addition of four personnel at a first year cost of $30,632 based on staggered employment dates. These positions include an Assistant Director of Public Works and three laborers. The proposed budget which the City Manager will present to the City Council prior to June 1 does not recommend the approval of the additional personnel.

Other personnel recommended in the proposed budget include eight positions at an estimated cost of $60,000 which were not funded during the current fiscal year because of capital equipment needs. Positions which are not included in the proposed budget include six Anti-Recession positions which were terminated in December, 1978, and 12 personnel employed under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) which will terminate September 30, 1979.

Operation costs in the Public Works Department have been held to a projected minimum to meet the burden of inflation. The Sanitation Division experienced high vehicle maintenance costs during the present fiscal year, and funds are proposed in the 1979-80 budget to rebuild the engines and replace hydraulic cylinders on several refuse trucks.

Major capital outlay items requested in the budget include the following: replacement of a container refuse truck ($34,500), residential refuse truck ($25,000), pickup truck for the Sanitation Division ($5,100), dump truck ($11,300), and Street Maintenance vehicle ($5,400). The City Manager's tentative budget proposal recommends approval of the container truck and residential refuse truck which need to be replaced on a continuous basis. Additionally, his recommendation provides funds to purchase used vehicles rather than new ones for the requested vehicles in Signs and Paint and Street Maintenance Divisions, or as an alternative, utilizing old Police vehicles. The department has also requested that $28,000 be set aside for two fiscal years in a capital projects fund to purchase additional land for a cemetery.

The Public Works Department's proposed budget includes $73,621 as the city's share of the Urban Transportation Administration Capital Grant. The grant, if approved, would provide capital funds to replace and add transit buses, shop and garage equipment, a 10-passenger van with lift, a service vehicle, spare parts for transit vehicles, radio communications system, bus stop benches, construction of a transit garage and bus shelters. The proposed budget includes receipt of an Urban Mass Transportation Administration Operating Grant totaling $39,263. The total requested budget by the Public Works Department including grants totals $2,858,077. Of this expenditure, $683,163 will be reimbursed to the city as grant revenues. The City Manager's tentative recommended budget for this department including grant expenditures totals $2,750,568.

The 1979-80 budget will also include an appropriation of $50,593 for one interest payment on the bond principal of the $1.9 million bond issue to construct the new Public Works facility. STREET RESURFACING
 The proposed 1979-80 city budget includes a joint request from the Engineering and Public Works Departments for an appropriation of $75,000 to continue the city's street resurfacing program. During the current fiscal year, $50,000 was appropriated to resurface three miles of city streets. The city has approximately 120 miles under its street maintenance system, and the appropriation requested represents the minimum amount needed to keep the streets in satisfactory condition. The appropriation requested does not specify priorities for which street are

Safe Is Safe; It's Stuck Shut

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The safe is safe at Capitol Savings & Loan Association. The company couldn't even get it open Monday. The vault's time-locks worked, but the door stuck shut. "It was just a hassle," said William Van Hoesen, the association's secretary-treasurer. "The things are milled so fine that I've seen 'em hung up on a paper clip." The Savings and Loan had to scurry over to a local bank and cash a check to handle business, Van Hoesen said, before a repairman from the Detroit firm that made the safe arrived and pried the door open — with a screwdriver.

No Violation In School Bus Use

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — No laws were violated when county school buses were used to transport voting-age students to the polls earlier this month, the Halifax County Elections Board ruled Tuesday. The students were taken to the polls in activity buses to vote in a school bond referendum May 1.

Demo Convention

The Pitt County Democratic Convention will be held Saturday at 12 noon in the District Courtroom of the Pitt Courthouse here. Betty Speir, chairman of the Pitt Democratic Executive Committee, said that Dr. Thomas Brewer, chancellor of East Carolina University, will be the speaker for the convention. Mrs. Speir said that in addition to Brewer's remarks, all Democratic office holders will be recognized. New officers for the county executive committee will be elected on Saturday, she said, as well as five members of the state executive committee. She urged precinct groups to sit together to facilitate voting counts, which will be done by precincts.

ENGINEERING AND PLANNING

The City's Planning and Engineering Departments provide support services to man city departments. The rapid growth of Greenville is evidenced by the demands placed on these departments. Immediate needs include the development of a land development plan, revision of Zoning and Subdivision Regulations, updating of the city's maps, and updating the topographic and planimetric maps. The Planning and Engineering Departments have submitted a joint request in their 1979-80 budget to update the city maps at an estimated cost of $50,000. The Engineering Department has also submitted a request to revise and update the city's planimetric, topographic and zoning maps, at a cost of approximately $40,000. Although the appropriation is needed, it has been deleted from the City Manager's tentative budget proposal.

The Planning Department's proposed budget requests the addition of a planner. This position is needed to keep up with the demands placed upon the department for current land development, subdivision, and zoning regulations and to staff numerous city boards, commissions and committees. This position was deleted from the City Manager's tentative budget proposal. AIRPORT
 The Pitt County-City of Greenville Airport Authority, which is funded jointly by the city and the county, has submitted its 1979-80 budget to the city. The proposed budget totals $277,000. An appropriation of $22,000 for operating expenses and $50,000 for capital improvements from the City has been requested. Last year, the Council appropriated $18,500 for airport operations. The next article in the series dealing with the city's proposed budget will include information about recreation and cultural programs.

Going Through The Motions

San Diego Padres' pitcher Gaylor Perry goes through his mound ritual of flipping the ball around for a good grip, clearing the sweat from his face and finally serving up the pitch against the Reds in Cincinnati Tuesday night.

Although several Reds' batters complained that Perry was doctoring the ball, the umpire gave him a clean bill. San Diego won the game, 2-1, in the ninth inning, but Perry wasn't around to collect the win. (AP Laserphoto)

Dusty Was Late, But Not Late Enough For The Atlanta Braves

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Don't tell the Atlanta Braves about the gasoline shortage. For them, the lines at the pumps aren't long enough. Los Angeles outfielder Dusty Baker missed the Dodgers' team plane to Atlanta because he couldn't get gasoline. But it didn't take him long to find fuel, and he was able to catch a commercial flight an hour later arriving in plenty of time to make the game Tuesday night. Once there, he provided the power that gave the Dodgers their eighth straight victory, slamming a leadoff home run in the 10th inning as Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 5-4. There was no question about Baker's blast, a 400-foot shot to left-center off Adrian Devine. In other National League games, the New York Mets blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0, the Chicago Cubs beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-1, the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Montreal Expos 1-0, the San Diego Padres trimmed the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants defeated the Houston Astros 8-1.

Mets 3, Pirates 0
Craig Swan scattered six hits, beating the Pirates with ninth-inning relief help from Skip Lockwood. Joel Youngblood supported Swan with a two-run homer in the fourth.

"I noticed in the first couple of years I was with the Mets that good pitching would take the team out of any bad slumps," said Swan. "With Tom Seaver, Jon Matlack and Jerry Koosman, the team maybe wouldn't play as well as it could, but they would stop the other teams and win 1-0 or 2-1."

Cubs 7, Phils 1
Former Phillie Barry Foote, obtained by the Cubs in a pre-season trade for Ted Sizemore, slugged the first grand slam home run of his career as Chicago beat Philadelphia. "It's a good feeling," said Foote, "not a vindictive type of feeling but just a good feeling. It's nice to do it against your former teammates, but it's even better because they are in first place and they gave the Cubs so much trouble last year."

Rampants Whip Bertie, 6-1, As Winstead Hurls One-Hit Effort

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Lindsey Winstead tossed a nifty one-hitter at Bertie Senior High School last night for the Rose High Rampants, as Rose picked up a 6-1 victory to keep its fading title hopes alive in Division I play.

The Rampants climbed to 8-5 in the league, and still have an outside chance of catching second place Wilson Hunt, 9-3. However, Hunt would have to lose both of its remaining games, today and tomorrow, while Rose would have to beat Northern Nash on Thursday to knot it up. If that happens, a playoff game would be held, probably Saturday to determine the number two entrant in the playoffs.

Winstead, who boosted his record to 7-2 with the win, held Bertie hitless until the fifth inning, when Tim Mizelle reached on a bloop single behind first base. He later came around to score the lone run of the night for the Falcons. Winstead struck out four and walked four in going the distance.

"My curve was working real well," Winstead said afterwards. "Usually my fast ball is the one that I get the strikes with, but tonight it was the curve ball." Coach Ronald Vincent had praise for the whole team. "I've very pleased with the way we played tonight. Winstead did a fine job on the mound and he kept them off balance all night. Douglas had a good game at shortstop, and Jeff Wilson played an excellent first base."

Rose started its scoring in the bottom of the first inning. Mark Shank put the Rampants ahead by tagging the first pitch by the Falcons over the fence in left for a home run.

Another run came over in the second. Mike Williams reached on a hit up the middle and moved up on a passed ball. Mike Campbell reached on a bunt single that moved Williams to third. Joey Mattheis grounded to short, scoring Williams on the play.

Bertie threatened in the first inning when Steve Hoggard reached on a two-base error and moved to third on another, only to die there. Two walks and a sacrifice put men on second and third in the third, but again to no avail.

Finally, in the fifth, Bertie got its only run. With one out, Mizelle hit a soft popup behind first base that second baseman Mike Campbell couldn't quite get to, as it fell just beyond his reach as he dove for it. Mizelle was then sacrificed out, and Joseph Holley was intentionally walked. Holley was then caught off base, and during the rundown, Mizelle was able to make it on to third, and then continue home with the run, cutting the Rose lead to 2-1.

No other Falcon reached second base.

Rose came roaring back with four runs in the fifth inning to put the game away. Mark Douglas led off with a walk and Will Barrett was hit by a pitch. Skip Topping singled off the pitcher's glove, loading the bases. With one out, Campbell walked, forcing in Douglas. Robert Morehead then singled to right, scoring Barrett. Courtsey runner Charles Daise also scored when the relay was thrown away. A passed ball moved Campbell to third, and another scored him with the final run of the night.

No one for the Rampants had more than one hit.

Rose will wind up the regular season on Thursday, traveling to Northern Nash for a 4 p.m. game.

Rams Defeat Ayden-Grifton

SNOW HILL — Greene Central got a no-hit shutout from Joe Harper last night as the Eastern Carolina Conference champs shut down Ayden-Grifton, 6-0.

Harper struck out six and walked five along the way.

The Rams, who boosted their record to 14-1 in conference play and to 16-6 overall, have already clinched the league title.

Three Greene Central runners crossed the plate in the second inning. Walt Tyndall walked and stole second, scoring when Chip Hardy reached on an error. Cohen Cox doubled in Hardy, and Cox scored on Harper's single.

A fourth run scored in the third. Donald Shaw walked and stole second. He scored when Tyndall singled.

The other two came in the fifth. Greg Holmes walked and scored on a home run by Shaw.

Tyndall led the Ram hitting with two.

Greene Central closes out the regular season today playing host to North Pitt. They then will face the Northeastern Conference champions in the first round of the 3-A State Playoffs.

North Pitt In Shutout Win

BETHEL — North Pitt High School rolled to a 6-0 victory over Southwest Edgecombe in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game yesterday.

Bob Hemingway chalked up the victory for the Panthers, allowing only two hits in the shutout.

North Pitt got all it needed in the first inning, scoring three times. Carl Knight walked and Ron House singled. Tim Corey reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Knight. Hemingway then helped his own cause with a two-run single.

It stayed that way until the fifth when the Panthers added three more. House walked and Victor Evans reached on an error. Greg Briley walked and William Beacham singled. Two came in on the hit, and the other came in when the ball was misplayed.

North Pitt is now 9-6 in league play and winds up the season today at Greene Central.

John Claims Eighth Victory

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Things have suddenly turned sour for Mike Marshall. But Tommy John's pitching is as sweet as ever.

Marshall, the Minnesota Twins' relief ace, has been beaten twice by his former Texas teammates in two games. On Tuesday night he took the mound in the eighth inning and threw gasoline on a Rangers rally, yielding a run-scoring double by Jim Sundberg and a two-run single by John Ellis as Texas beat the Twins 9-8.

John, meanwhile, continues to work his magic for the New York Yankees. He has won eight games and has yet to lose one. He twirled a seven-hitter against Detroit Tuesday night and rode Chris Chambliss' two home runs to an 11-3 romp over the Tigers.

In the rest of the American League, Boston edged Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, Cleveland beat Toronto 5-3, the Chicago White Sox shaded Oakland 2-1, California nosed out Milwaukee 2-1 and, in a two-night double-header, Kansas City defeated Seattle 7-4 in the opener before Seattle won the second game 6-2.

Minnesota's Mike Bacsik went into the eighth inning leading 8-4 thanks to Ron Jackson's two-run double that broke a sixth-inning tie and solo home runs by John Castino and Roy Smalley in the seventh.

But Johnny Grubb, who had hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning, led off the eighth with a single and, two outs later, Richie Zisk doubled him home. Then Zisk scored on Pat Putnam's single. When Mike Jorgensen walked, Marshall took over.

Yankees 11, Tigers 3

John, who finished with five strikeouts and one walk to match his personal high of eight straight victories, had a three-hit shutout going until the eighth inning when the Tigers scored their runs on a walk to Lance Parrish and singles by Aurelio Rodriguez, Ron LeFlore and Lou Whitaker.

LeFlore, who opened game with single but was caught stealing, singled again with two out in sixth, then drove in Detroit's first run with an infield hit and stole second before Whitaker's two-run single.

Red Sox 3, Orioles 2
Dwight Evans walked, stole second and raced home on Jerry Remy's single to left in the 10th inning to propel Boston past the Orioles.

Evans just did beat the throw to the plate. "I had to go up the line to wait for the throw," said Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey. "Just as he hit me the ball came and went under me."

Indians 5, Blue Jays 3
Shortstop Alfredo Griffin of Toronto threw away Duane Kuiper's bases-loaded grounder in the eighth inning, allowing two runs to score as Cleveland beat the Blue Jays.

Jerry Garvin walked Andre Thornton, threw Ron Pruitt's bunt to second too late trying for a force play, then walked Toby Harrah to load the bases before Griffin tossed Kuiper's potential double-play grounder past second. Tom Veryzer also grounded to Griffin, driving in the inning's final run.

White Sox 2, A's 1
Ninth-inning singles by Eric Soderholm, Lamar Johnson and Junior Moore off luckless John Henry Johnson gave rookie Ross Baumgarten and the Chicago White Sox their victory over Oakland.

Angels 2, Brewers 1
Ben Oglivie homered for Milwaukee in the fifth inning, but Bobby Grich hit an RBI double for the Angels in the seventh, then Don Baylor beat the Brewers when he led off the bottom of the ninth with a homer off Mike Caldwell.

Royals 7-2, Mariners 4-6
Clint Hurdle broke a tie with a fifth-inning homer and Darrell Porter hit a three-run blast in the sixth to power Kansas City to its opening-game victory over Seattle. In the nightcap the Mariners came back with four runs in the eighth, the tie-breaker on Ruppert Jones' single and two more on Willie Horton's homer.

Aycock In 4-1 Win

WASHINGTON — E.B. Aycock Junior High School added another victory to its list with a 4-1 win over Washington yesterday.

Jeff Porter got the victory on the mound for the Jaguars.

Mont Carter led the Aycock hitting with two, while Prater had two, including a home run for Washington.

The Aycock team is now 12-1 and closes out the season on Friday, playing host to Wilson Fike.

Youth Ball

Prep League

Dr Pepper 11, Auto Specialty 4

Dr Pepper scored seven runs in the sixth inning to break a 4-4 tie and defeat Auto Specialty 11-4 yesterday.

Butch Haskins started things off in the key frame when he walked with one away and stole second. Marvin Barrette tripled him home. West and Daryl Pettis walked and Calvin Bradley doubled. James Smith, Marc Gatlin, Kenny Waters and Tony Daniels all got singles.

Bradley and Waters both had two hits for Dr Pepper, while Michael Smith had a pair for Auto Specialty.

Little League

Pepsi 12, Exchange 10

Pepsi-Cola scored 10 runs in the first two innings and then added a pair in the fifth to nip Exchange 12-10 in a Tar Heel Little League game yesterday.

The winning runs came when Clay Young reached on an error and Joey Hallow got a walk in the fifth. They both scored on a single by Fletcher Phillips.

No Pepsi batters had more than one hit, while Joe Hobgood and Billy Michel each had two for Exchange.

Lions 3, Optimists 0

The Lions raised their North State Little League record to 3-0 yesterday, blanking the Optimists 4-0.

William Ward pitched a two-hitter for the winners, while the Lions' Patrick Rand was the leading batter in the game, going 2-3 at the plate.

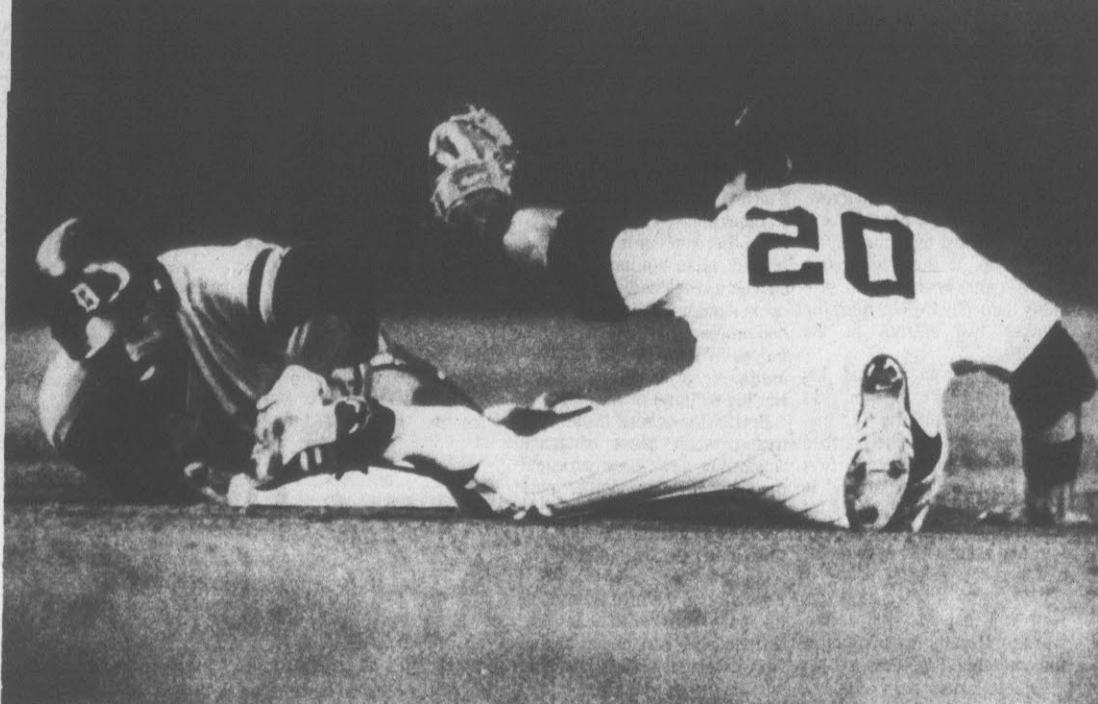

Tommy Taylor scored for the Lions in the first when he singled and came in on Rand's base hit. Rand homered in the second and Ward also scored in that inning after getting a base on balls. Tom Moyce scored the team's final run in the fourth.

Southern Pitt Little League

WINTERVILLE — Chicago rolled over Sunshine Gardner Center 8-2 last night in a Southern Pitt Little League baseball game.

Steve Mills pitched the winning 14 strikeouts along the way. Cox was the leading hitter in the game with a pair of triples for Sunshine.

Athletic Directors Count Out Shot Clock For ACC Basketball

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Dean Smith can still use his four corners, Clemson's Bill Foster his "Tiger pause" and the other ACC basketball coaches their occasional delay attacks next season.

That was the verdict of conference athletic directors Tuesday. They voted down, 5-3, a proposal that the league require a team to shoot within 30 seconds or give up the ball.

No breakdown was available on how the eight members of the Atlantic Coast Conference voted. Willis Casey, North Carolina State athletic director and chairman of the ADs committee, said he opposed the idea because "we have a pretty good game now. Why change it?"

The 30-second shot clock had been favored by six of the coaches earlier in the spring meeting. Commissioner Robert James, asked if it were unusual for ADs to oppose a coaches' proposal, said it had been more frequent for the ADs to say yes.

Though the idea was rejected, Casey and James indicated it may be brought before the league at its July meeting, after member schools' athletic officials discuss it further.

Three conferences have tried a 30-second clock experimentally, as the ACC coaches suggested, but dropped it after a year. The discussion between the coaches and ADs lasted 3½ hours in a closed meeting. Only Casey was available for comment afterward.

Earlier, Dean Smith, chairman of the coaches' committee, in revealing the coaches' vote, said he proposed the change. Discussion of a shot clock is fairly recent in the ACC, and a conference official indicated that may have been one reason for its rejection. Marvin "Skeeter" Francis noted a lot of input — pro and con — is normally required before a major change is made.

Except for the addition of Georgia Tech as the eighth member of the league, everything else about basketball will remain the same in 1979-80.

The post-season tournament will revert to the format used before South Carolina withdrew: two afternoon and two night games on opening day, then semifinals on Friday night and a Saturday night championship.

An apparently dramatic proposal to change the tournament format — a proposal not outlined by Casey or James — was put on the back burner. Both declined to comment, saying to do so would lead to premature speculation or pressure.

The jump ball rule in effect last winter for the first time will continue. It calls for teams to alternate possession in jump ball situations after a tip-off starts the game.

Three referees will continue to be used and the conference will continue to use officials from another conference during the tournament.

Tech will compete for the championship of every sport except football next year. And James indicated football schedule problems that had appeared might keep the Engineers from meeting the required number of teams to be eligible for the title, may be solved by the 1982 season.

League rules require six games with ACC teams, but James noted sometimes designated games against non-conference opponents are permitted to be counted. This fall, for instance, he noted, Wake Forest and Virginia games against Virginia Tech will be

Conley Rallies

HOLLYWOOD — D. H. Conley exploded for 10 runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to break a scoreless tie and defeat Farmville Central 10-0 in a softball game yesterday.

Lexanne Keeter was the winning pitcher, while Tammy Streeter, Gail Cates, Pam Manning and Joanne Franke each had two hits for Conley. Lori Garriss had a home run for the winners. The Valkyries closed out their season with the victory, finishing with a 12-6 record.

league contests.

He said Tech is close to getting five games against ACC teams by re-arranging its 1982 and 1983 seasons and a substitute game may be allowed.

In other business during the league's spring meeting, the directors decided: —A post season baseball tournament will be played at North Carolina State next spring after being dropped this season. As in previous years, first round elimination games will be at the fields of the top four teams, then a double elimination tournament will be played over a three-day period.

—The indoor track meet will be at the Greensboro Coliseum next Febary.

—Women's basketball tournament will be in Maryland next year, then in successive years at Clemson, North Carolina, Duke, Wake Forest, Georgia Tech, Virginia and N.C. State.

Squaws Defeated

TARBORO — Tarboro High School's softball team defeated Roanoke yesterday 13-5, to even the Squaws' record at 7-7 for the year.

Boyd was the winning pitcher in the game, while Janice Davenport and Jones each had two hits for Tarboro. Denise Albritton and Nancy Roberson each had a pair for Roanoke.

The Squaws play again tomorrow at Plymouth.

Kyle Petty's Plans Delayed

HARRISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Kyle Petty's plans to run in the World 600 on May 27 were set back Tuesday when he crashed his Dodge Magnum into a retaining wall at the Charlotte Motor Speedway while on a practice run.

The race would be Petty's first major stock-car race. Petty, the 18-year old son of six-time NASCAR Grand National champion Richard Petty, escaped injury in the crash, but the car he was scheduled to drive in the race was damaged.

He was on the 23rd practice lap when the car wobbled off the fourth turn on the 1.5-mile quad-oval and ultimately crashed into the front-stretch wall 150 yards before he got to the start-finish line.

Strike Settled, Umps Set To Return

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball umpires are expected to return to work this weekend under terms of an agreement that The Associated Press learned was reached between their union and the two leagues Tuesday.

Details of the agreement ending the dispute that has kept the regular umpires on the sidelines since spring training were presented to a joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago today. The settlement was expected to be announced officially Thursday.

Both sides have been pressing for an end to the work stoppage and meeting almost daily for the last week. It was a marathon bargaining session that started Monday afternoon and lasted into the early morning hours of Tuesday that apparently signaled the breakthrough of the final issues.

Both the National and American Leagues denied that any final settlement had been reached but confirmed that talks were making progress. "We still have a way to go," said American League President Lee MacPhail. I would prefer not to discuss the issues.

But MacPhail agreed that the atmosphere between the two sides has improved considerably. "We're a lot closer than when we started," he said. "We were uneasy apart then. Obviously, we've been trying to get it closed out and it's been a good faith effort on both sides. I'm hopeful, certainly more positive about this than I've been until now."

Richie Phillips, attorney for the umpires, said, "We are on the threshold of reaching a comprehensive agreement between the umpires and major league baseball which should satisfy all parties and insure labor peace for at least three years and beyond."

Terms of the settlement were unavailable although it was understood that as part of it, the leagues had agreed to employ an extra crew of umpires, allowing each of its officiating units to have some time off during the regular season.

The umpires also had been seeking improvements in salaries that range from $17,000 to $40,000, and increases in their $53 per diem expense allowances.

Technically, the umpires were not involved in a strike. Such an action is barred under terms of their collective bargaining agreement that lasts until 1982. But the effect of their work stoppage was the same, forcing baseball to use minor league and sandlot umpires as replacements.

At the start of the season, players and managers were instructed to go easy in arguments with the replacement umpires, but tempers have grown shorter in the last two weeks with ejections and arguments growing.

There were bench-clearing incidents in Atlanta and Minnesota last week and 17 players, managers and coaches were ejected in one night. Players on two clubs, the Kansas City Royals and Cincinnati Reds, made formal requests of the leagues and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to get the regular umpires back on the job.

Tarboro Tops Roanoke Nine

TARBORO — Tarboro scored three runs in the first three innings and held off Roanoke to nip the Redskins 4-2 in a Northeastern Conference baseball game yesterday.

The Vikings scored their first run in the first inning. Tracy Parrisher walked, Keith Parrisher got a single and walks to Tim Crisp and Andy Kinlaw pushed Tracy Parrisher across.

In the third, Lyn Lewis walked for Tarboro and Kinlaw was hit by a pitch. Keith Batts singled in Lewis and Timmy White got a base hit to score Kinlaw.

Both Roanoke runs came in the fourth, while Tarboro added another run in the fifth. Anthony Latham was 2-4 for Roanoke.

The Vikings are now 13-6 overall and 8-5 in the conference. They will host Plymouth tomorrow.

Lady Rams Win Again

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's girls' softball team wound up regular season play yesterday with a 10-0 victory over Ayden-Grifton.

Greene Central, which ended up 19-1 overall and 16-0 in the Eastern Carolina Conference, will face the winner of the Division II 4-A Conference in the first round of the state playoffs next week. The date and site have yet to be decided.

Greene Central pushed over a run in the first, then added three each in the second, third and sixth innings. All three of those in the sixth came on home runs. Sharon Suggs hit a two-run homer and Lisa Speight hit a solo shot.

Lynn Shackelford hurled the shutout victory for the Lady Rams.

Melody Ham led the Greene Central hitting with three, including a triple, while Suggs, Sarah Taylor, Gail Jones and Shackelford each had two, one of Shackelford's a triple. No one had more than one for Ayden-Grifton.

Day Care Center Run By Parents; No Govm't Aid

By JUDI HASSON
CONVENT STATION, N.J. (UPI) — It was time to start at the beginning of the alphabet for the children at Bridge to Learning, a day care run by parents without benefit of state or federal aid.

In one corner of a large, gaily decorated room that was once a chapel, children were making an apple cobbler with the help of their teacher. In another, African masks were tacked to a wall.

On a bulletin board, the theme of the children's ancestors was explored with a world map and markers drawn from every name to their "roots."

It was time to devote a week to studying the letter "A" and 32 children aged 2 to 6 were exploring every possibility.

Nearly five years ago, a group of parents incorporated themselves into a non-profit corporation to run Bridge to Learning as a day care center and kindergarten for their children.

The facility originally was started as a demonstration school for Bridge to Reading, a technique for teaching children that uses the theme of a letter of the alphabet each week.

But the educational systems firm that founded the school pulled out, leaving parents without a day care facility and the prospect of paying hefty tuition at some centers or joining the ranks on waiting lists at others.

Today, Bridge to Learning is owned and operated solely by parents who run the school on a yearly budget of $65,000 from tuition payments and fund-raising activities. They receive no state or federal aid. Tuition is $170 per month and Bridge to Learning is open 50 hours each week all year.

Parents are encouraged to take an active interest in what their child is doing. Arthur Pearson, chairman of the board of trustees of the school, said policies are set by the board of parents. "Our primary objective is to provide good loving child care," he says.

Once a year, there is a work day for parents to clean and repair the school. Parents built the kitchen, bathroom facilities, painted the building and built the facilities for an outdoor playground. Pearson says the children take pride in the involvement of their parents in the school.

Director Jean Schmidlein says the center provides more than just a place for parents to drop off their kids for the day. Many day care facilities provide only custodial care with teachers "winging" the curriculum and youngsters standing in line for activities in groups of 20 or more, according to Miss Schmidlein.

Bridge to Learning has a defined structure for learning and a teacher to student ratio of one to seven.

A recent four-year government study of day care centers showed that more than 5 million children under 13 are being cared for by someone other than a parent for 30 hours a week. The study said the best learning takes place when children are gathered into small groups of less than 18. In the center here, children are placed by age in learning and activity groups of 6 to 8.

Each day, activities are set up designed to foster creativity and "self-directed time," according to Miss Schmidlein. Kids use a workbench with hammers and nails, paints and easels, play dough and paper collages. Teachers write stories with children based on themes such as feelings like "angry" and "happy," or actions like "spanking." And they take field trips to the grocery store, the tennis courts or the nearby Greek amphitheater.

Recently, the school, which serves a hot lunch in addition to mid morning and afternoon snacks of fresh fruit, raisins and other healthy foods, conducted a "nutrition week" stressing good eating habits in the children's daily activities. The staff followed this up with a special parent's night to help parents carry out good dietary practices in the home. "It's unfortunate there aren't more places like this. There's a nice relationship between parents and the school," says Miss Schmidlein.

Rain-Making In Spain Studied

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Will the rain in Spain fall mainly on the plain?

Scientists are undertaking a two-year study into the feasibility of rain-making, officially called "precipitation enhancement."

The study, in the Duero River basin, is centered on the city of Valladolid, northwest of Madrid.

Scientists from the Spanish government and the World Meteorological Organization, a United Nations' agency, will seek to determine "when and under what conditions precipitation enhancement can be achieved artificially in a given region."

The study will utilize sophisticated research equipment, including specially equipped aircraft, weather radar, upper-air sounding devices and satellites.

The experts will assess whether the cloud systems passing over the Duero basin are suitable for "seeding." If so, carefully designed experiments of "seeding" will begin in 1981 and probably continue for five years, according to the scientists.

Cities Apply Brakes To Converting To The Condo

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer
BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Converting rental apartments to condominiums — one of real estate's hottest trends — is an even more heated issue in a number of cities where the rush to buy apartments has displaced tenants and depleted the rental market.

Brookline, an affluent Boston suburb of 58,000, is the latest community to put the brakes on conversions, placing a ban on evictions of renters living in apartment houses converted to condominiums.

The move, coming after 15 percent of the town's rental units were "condoed," has been challenged by a group of property owners and prospective buyers who say the law is unconstitutional.

Brookline joins a number of other municipalities that have tried in various ways to slow down condominium conversions. They include:

—New York, which requires approval of 35 percent of a building's tenants before apartments can be sold.

—Washington, where conversions are allowed only in buildings where rent exceeds a certain level.

—Palo Alto, Calif., which ties condominium conversion to the vacancy rate of rental units.

—Santa Monica, Calif., where conversions require official approval.

In Chicago, where Mayor Jane Byrne listed a review of condominium laws as a top priority in her new administration, an attempt to place a temporary moratorium on conversions was thrown out in court.

"Dozens of local governments have placed restrictions on the conversion process in one form or the other," said James Dowden, head of the Community Associations Institute, a Washington clearinghouse for condominiums and homeowners associations.

"It's an emotional issue because you're faced with moving people — families have to buy or move," he said. "It tends to cause a quick response from political leaders."

"Every community with multi-family housing is going to face the same question in the next decade."

Brookline, a tree-lined community of expensive homes, brownstones and scattered high rises, has debated the pros and cons of condominiums since 1970, the year rent control was instituted to stabilize high rents and a low vacancy rate.

Landlords responded by turning their properties into condominiums. By this January, 1,532 of the town's 14,000 rental units had been converted — more than 500 of them in the last half of 1978.

Nationally, some 100,000 apartment units were converted last year, according to a recent study by Citicorp Realty. The figure, nearly double that of 1977, is expected to jump to 130,000 this year.

Condominium owners own full title to their apartments, owning their unit in the same way homeowners hold title to their houses. Common facilities in a condominium building, such as hallways and adjacent grounds, are held jointly by all condominium owners.

Apartment-convertibles are popular among those seeking an investment and a bulwark against inflation. But the conversions also represent a threat to renters who face eviction if they are unable or unwilling to buy.

"Rent control in Brookline was a result of a housing shortage," said Roger Lipson, director of the town's rent control board. "All condominium conversions do is exacerbate the problem. You can't simply sweep tenants under the carpet. The problem is if you kick people out where are they going to go?"

The Brookline law, passed last week at the annual town meeting, was introduced by state Rep. John Businger, a Democrat whose two earlier attempts to get an eviction ban were defeated by narrow margins.

Supporters had already won a temporary moratorium which would have expired June 15 if the vote had not supported the ban last week.

Businger, himself a tenant in a recently converted building, said he became concerned with the issue last year after receiving calls from older tenants threatened with eviction.

"It was obvious it was becoming an epidemic," he said. "Condominiums are fine as long as you are talking about new buildings or vacant apartments. Otherwise to me it's just a subtle form of urban renewal that changes people instead of buildings."

Brookline's landlords, who say the law violates their property rights, complain reports of evictions are greatly exaggerated. They point to brisk sales and an improved tax base as proof that condominiums are popular in the town.

"Of all the conversions, only 35 certificates of eviction have been issued," said Gerald Fineberg, a real estate man who heads Citizens for a Better Brookline.

"We offer all tenants preferred prices and generally when word gets around that we are converting, we have more tenants who want to buy than those who complain."

Fineberg said landlords have also formed a committee to help relocate tenants, a service he said was not offered by the rent control board.

Others, like Roger Stern of the Brookline Landowners Association, say condominiums are the only way landlords can make a living under rent control, which he said has kept rents 15 to 20 percent under the going market rate.

"It's all a very emotional issue," he said. "But the rational part of it is that for people with a few dollars, condominiums are a good deal."

condominium sales, placing a ban on evictions of renters living in apartment houses converted to condominiums. (AP Laserphoto)

Recycling Big Energy-Saver

NEW YORK (AP) — The extensive Recycling Targets program the U.S. Department of Energy launched recently with the nation's major industries will have a major impact on energy conservation in the country, believes M.J. Mighdoll, executive vice president of the National Association of Recycling Industries.

The program will not only save energy, he points out, but will also aid in expanding recovery rates for waste materials and in increasing industrial markets for their utilization.

"The use of recycled materials in manufacturing saves large quantities of energy," Mighdoll explains, "and it was in awareness of this that Congress approved the Recycling Targets provision in the National Energy Act last year."

This directs the Energy Department to work closely with industries in the metals, paper, textiles and rubber fields to establish targets for increasing their use of recyclables each year over the next 10 years as an energy conservation measure.

The department is now monitoring the program with 240 companies, Mighdoll says, including 94 metal companies, 73 paper companies, 45 textile firms and 28 rubber organizations. Each of these companies consumes a minimum of 1 trillion BTUs a year — an energy factor equivalent to 8 million gallons of gasoline in every case.

Each company must report the following to the Energy Department: the volume of recovered materials now used at each manufacturing location; plans for increased usage of recycled materials in each of the next 10 years; and, beginning in 1980, the progress made in achieving increases in recovered materials' utilization to reach the targets to be established by the department.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and other government sources, the use of recycled materials in manufacturing results in such energy savings as the following: 96 percent in aluminum; 87 percent in copper; 63 percent in lead and zinc; 70 percent in paper.

Similar large quantities of energy are also saved through the use of recycled iron and steel.

"The Recycling Targets legislation, which was proposed by Congressman Edward R. Madigan (R-Ill.) and supported by NARI, will have a demonstrable impact in increasing recovery rates for energy-saving waste materials," Mighdoll says.

"Coupled with demands by American consumers for increased amounts of recycled materials in the packaging and products that they buy, this action will also help expand industrial markets for recyclables, which are, at present, severely limited."

The Famous Aircraft Are Restored

By JOHN RUTHERFORD
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Chance Vought Corsair F4U shot down more Japanese aircraft during World War II than any other American plane. After the war, one of them ended up at a school for naval mechanics in Memphis, Tenn.

That Corsair was acquired by the Smithsonian Institution and shipped to Suitland, Md., outside Washington, where it was stored until the television series "Black Sheep Squadron" renewed public interest in it. Now the Corsair is being restored to its original World War II condition by technicians at the Smithsonian's Silver Hill complex. Once restored, it will go on display at the National Air and Space Museum in Washington.

Since the mid-1950s, Silver Hill has served as a preservation, restoration and storage facility for hundreds of American and foreign airplanes and spacecraft. Thirty-two workers have nearly 200 historic airplanes on hand to choose from.

Most of the military aircraft were saved after World War II by Gen. H.H. "Hap" Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces. Other military and general aviation aircraft were either donated or obtained in exchanges with other museums.

"We strip them down, give them a complete overhaul and restore them to their original operating condition," said Mike Lyons, a museum technician who is restoring the Corsair. "They would start if we didn't put preservative instead of oil in them to prevent rust and corrosion."

Rich Horigan, a museum specialist, spent more than two years restoring the Albatros D.Va., a World War I German fighter plane similar to one flown by Baron Manfred von Richthofen, the famous "Red Baron."

"Whatever they used, we used," he said. "We tried to scrounge around for original parts. If we couldn't find them, we made a duplicate and marked it as such."

"Everything is original in the Albatros except the outer covering." Old manuals, photographs and films are used in the restoration. If none is available, the technicians take apart the airplanes and figure out how they worked.

Horigan, working from four old photographs, is restoring a 1921 Bellanca CF, the only remaining model of an early single-engine cabin airplane.

Silver Hill tries to restore four airplanes a year. Most of them require eight months' to two years' work, although the NC-4 flying boat, the first airplane to cross the Atlantic, took seven years.

One of Silver Hill's most famous airplanes is not on display at this time. Covering the length of a back storage hangar, the B-29's dusty fuselage is in two parts, and its wings and engines are stacked against a wall.

On one side of the cockpit is the faint print of the "Enola Gay" and on the other side is stenciled "First Atomic Bomb Hiroshima — Aug. 6, 1945" and the names of Col. P.W. Tibbets and his eight crew members.

Walter J. Boyne, chief of Silver Hill, said the hangar containing the "Enola Gay" will be opened to tours this September. Among the other unrestored aircraft in the hangar are the German Arado 234, World War II's first operational jet bomber.

The Albatros is one of four restored aircraft ready for shipment to the Air and Space Museum. The others are a 1911 single-engine French Bleriot, the type which was first flown across the English Channel; a 1943 Piasecki Model PV-2, an early helicopter, and a 1911 Curtiss Pusher, an early general aviation aircraft.

Among the 70 aircraft on display at Silver Hill are the Langley Aerodrome A, an early attempt at a man-carrying aircraft; the Messerschmitt Me-262, a World War II German jet fighter, and the Piper PA-12 Super Cruiser "City of Washington," which flew around the world in 1947.

Unease Over Charitable Foundations

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's 26,000 private charitable foundations have over 100,000 trustees but 34 percent of the groups have no women trustees and only two foundation trustees are Hispanic Americans.

Statistics like that bother an increasing number of Americans who feel the $35 billion Americans donate each year to charities may not be going to meet the real needs of people.

"There is a lot of unease with philanthropy today," according to Tim Saasta, assistant director of the National Committee for Responsive Philanthropy, "but nobody knows how to focus that unease."

The committee, a little over two years old, was formed by groups inside and outside the charitable establishment. It includes organizations such as the Gray Panthers, the National Council of La Raza, the National Center for Urban Ethnic Affairs and the Southern Cooperative Development Fund which have had difficulty plugging into established funding channels.

In an interview, Saasta said there is concern that established charities are unresponsive, have become increasingly conservative in providing funds, are closed to groups promoting social change and unaccountable to the public.

The committee hopes to bring about some changes in the charitable establishment — particularly foundations and the nation's best-known charitable organization, the United Way organizations.

Foundations provide about $2 billion in philanthropic giving each year. Corporations give about $1.6 billion, individuals $29.5 billion and bequests about $2.12 billion. About $1.28 billion goes to United Way campaigns.

The committee grew out of the so-called "Donee Group," made up of organizations which receive charitable funds. It was formed in 1975 to advise the Commission on Private Philanthropy and Public Needs, which was studying the philanthropic situation in the United States.

The Donee Group felt the commission's final report continued to support the status quo and focused on narrow tax questions rather than "profound reform."

"If philanthropy is going to be what it over and over again says it is — a third force, an alternative to government funding — then the public has a right to question what philanthropy is doing," Saasta said.

"Ultimately that — being an alternative — is the only justification for philanthropy and the enormous tax benefits it receives," he said. "Because of those tax benefits, philanthropy must be seen as an accountable public trust."

But Saasta said statistics show that the charitable establishment is not particularly responsive to social innovation, such as dealing with minority group issues.

"There is next to no support from philanthropy for groups that are addressing emerging social issues," Saasta said.

He said studies found only 0.2 percent of foundation money goes to projects to improve the status of women and only 0.8 percent to Spanish-heritage groups.

Saasta said that making boards of trustees more representative by including more women, blacks and other minorities would be an "important first step" toward accountability.

Yearly public meetings and annual reports also would add to their accountability, he said, and have the side benefit of reducing irrelevant funding requests "because people would have a better idea of the kinds of projects the foundation does fund."

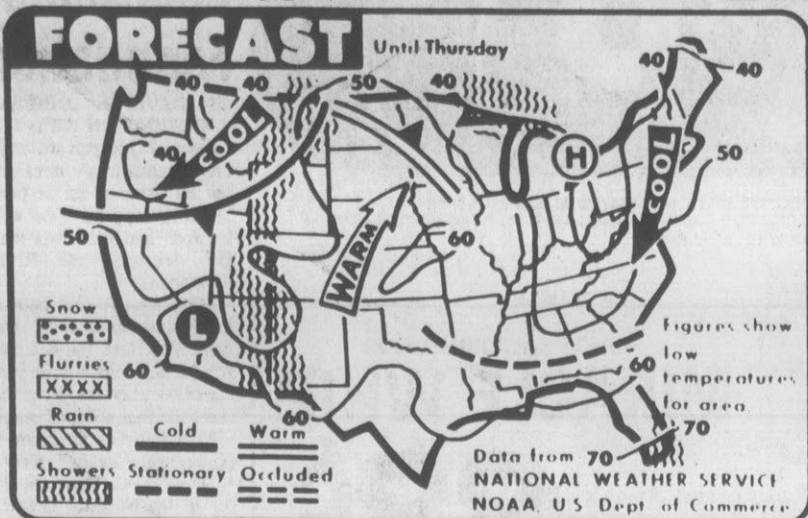

The committee also would like to see less of what Saasta calls the United Ways' "monopoly" in corporate charity drives and an increase in the kinds of organizations that receive funds.

"We would like to see, for example, federations of change-oriented groups that could also raise money in corporations at the same time United Way has its campaign," he said. "Studies have shown that employees would like to have a choice and that the amount of funds raised increase rather than decrease."

AMITY TALKS

TOKYO (AP) — Japan and the Soviet Union today began their first talks aimed at improving relations between the countries.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected in the forecast period until Thursday noon for most of the country. Cool weather is due for the Northwest and Northeast. A band of showers is forecast from the Southwest to the northern Plains. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
High pressure is in command over North Carolina and fair weather is in store for the next couple of days and probably on into the weekend.
High temperatures today were expected to range in the 70s, with some 60s in the higher mountains. Similar highs are predicted for Thursday and Friday but warmer readings are forecast for Saturday and Sunday.

Some cloudiness persisted over the coastal counties and the Outer Banks through the day Tuesday while sunny skies prevailed elsewhere in the state. Temperatures reached the upper 70s and low 80s in the western counties but ranged only in the lower 70s along the coast.

The high for the day at Cape Hatteras was only 69, while in Asheville the high was 80 degrees. Hickory had a high of 81. Temperatures fell during the night and by this morning the lows generally were in the 50s. Lows Thursday morning are expected to be in the 40s and 50s.

Offer Seminar On Convicting Rapists

WILLIAMSTON — A seminar on "How to Convict a Rapist" will be presented from 9 to 4:30 p.m., May 23-24 by Martin Community College and the Martin County Council on The Status of Women.

Seminar leader will be Dr. Joy S. Eymann, founder and director of a Rape Crisis, Education and Research Center and Sexual-Assault Treatment Center in Northeast Alabama.

The seminar will instruct participants as to how to help solve rape cases and prepare such cases for court. As a result, the program will be most relevant to law enforcement personnel, social service personnel, nurses, counselors, etc. However, the public is invited to attend.
Dr. Eymann received a Ph.D.

in Education Administration from Pacific States University, Los Angeles, Calif., and two masters' degrees — one in criminology/corrections from Florida State University and another in education from the University of Florida.

She is currently chairman of the Department of Criminal Justice at Pacific States University and a criminal justice consultant.

The seminar will be held in the auditorium of the Learning Resources Building, and participants are encouraged to bring their own note taking material.

Persons attending all sessions of the seminar will receive a certificate of completion. A $5 fee is required for admission into the program.

TV Report On Ayden Service

RALEIGH — Electrical service to the Town of Ayden will be the subject of a special news story to be broadcast at 6 p.m. on WRAL-TV, Channel 5, Raleigh on Friday, May 18.

The news story will cover the situation in Ayden, which cannot get electricity directly from a power company at present, but must buy its electricity from Greenville, several miles away.

U.S. Doctors Affirm Russian Exile Sane Despite Diagnosis

By C.G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Three American psychiatrists have decided that Pyotr Grigorievich Grigorenko, the Soviet general exiled after he became one of the Soviet Union's leading dissidents, is perfectly sane despite what Soviet doctors said about him.

The American doctors reported Tuesday, at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, that they had reached their conclusion after examining the former general and military theorist at Harvard University and in New York City.

The psychiatrists are Dr. Alan A. Stone of Harvard, president-elect of the APA, Dr. Walter Reich of Washington, D.C., and Dr. Lawrence C. Kolb of Albany, N.Y., professor emeritus at Columbia University.

Speaking at a special session at the APA meeting, Stone said the Grigorenko case confirms some of the accusations that psychiatry is sometimes used as a tool of political repression in the Soviet Union.

He emphasized, however, that not all psychiatrists cooperate with the Soviet secret police, citing one psychiatric commission at Tashkent which disagreed with the diagnosis of psychiatrists at the Serbsky Institute of Forensic Psychiatry in Moscow.

According to the doctors, Grigorenko had asked for the examinations and given permission for the results to be publicized. The psychiatrists were aided by an interpreter, a Soviet immigrant who is a resident in psychiatry at Columbia, and they said their findings were backed up by other specialists and by psychological tests.

Stone said Andrei Snezhnevsky, considered the Soviet Union's leading psychiatrist, was advised that the Americans had found no evidence of mental illness. Stone said he responded that the Americans were unfamiliar with some aspects of Soviet life and that there are as many forms of paranoia as there are persons suffering from it.

According to the doctors, in his homeland the general had been deemed to suffer from chronic paranoia which at times reached psychotic proportions, and had twice been placed in prison mental hospitals for the criminally insane.

The doctors said Grigorenko was stripped of his army commission and lost his status as a delegate to the Communist Party after calling for democratization of party rules. He also lost his army pension and was reduced, at age 58, to working as a porter and longshoreman.

In late 1977, he came to the United States on a six-month visa to get a prostate operation and visit a stepson living in New York.

In March 1978, while he was in the United States, the Soviet Union revoked his citizenship. He sought, and obtained, political asylum from immigration officials in New York.

The American doctors said they questioned Grigorenko about his motivations to criticize the Soviet Union, and he responded: "During my life, in my faithful service to communism, I caused a lot of damage to my people, and I wanted, at least in my remaining days, to repair it." Born in the Ukraine in 1907 and brought up in the Orthodox religion, he told them: "I always considered the inner impulse to serve as a vocation inspired — instilled in my soul — by God."

Air Force Is Fighting Off Bird Plague

By ED LION
CHICAGO (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force is waging a running dogfight with an airborne adversary that damages hundreds of military aircraft a year and can pose a danger to the lives of low-flying pilots — birds.

"This is really a potentially dangerous problem," said Northern Illinois University bird expert William E. Southern who has been enlisted in the Air Force battle against birds.

"A birdstrike can do a host of damage, ranging from causing minor dents in the fuselage to possibly gaping holes, engine fires and even plane downings," he said. "Remember, you're taking a plane going several hundred miles an hour and at that speed even a small bird can do great damage."

"For instance, a hummingbird — one tenth of an ounce — can penetrate a windshield. And a gull could obliterate it and end up in the pilot's lap. It's comparable to a car hitting a brick wall."

Southern said the Air Force registers about 1,000 birdstrikes a year. Between 350 and 400 of these collisions cause damage — averaging $32,000 per plane — that puts the craft out of commission for repairs. Several Air Force planes have even been downed by birds, sometimes costing lives, he said.

Southern is conducting a two-year, computer study into birdstrikes. The study involves plotting the risk of gull-Air Force plane collisions in different areas of the nation in various months of the year.

"Generally for most areas," he said, "it's potentially most dangerous during the spring and fall migration periods."

Southern said the study "could help in planning mission schedules or help in advising planners in deciding between high altitude and low altitude missions because collisions occur at lower altitudes where the birds are. It could help cut the risk."

Southern said gulls are probably the No. 1 birdstrike culprit because many airports are located near water and landfill areas, their regular roosts. He said the study could possibly be extended to other species in the future.

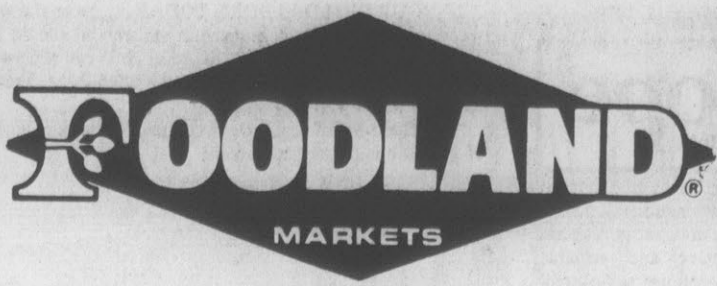

The Air Force has formed a special Florida-based team called BASH, standing for Bird Aircraft Strike Hazard group, to study and combat the problem, Southern said. Warning sounds and flashing lights on planes and on-board anti-bird radar systems have been suggested to cut down on birdstrikes, but none is currently feasible.

Efforts also have been aimed at making air base conditions less hospitable for birds by cutting grass to suitable lengths and scaring them off.

Civilian aircraft are plagued by the birdstrike problem, he said. New York's Kennedy Airport, site of two bird-caused accidents in five years, has a special patrol to scare birds from runways located near water, a wildlife refuge and a vacant landfill.

Southern said federal authorities have recommended keeping airports away from landfills and designing airport architecture in such a way to discourage birds from roosting there.

"There have been deaths involving civilian aviation, but I don't know of major birdstrike crashes that caused many deaths," Southern said. "There have been near catastrophes and my feeling is that it's just a matter of time."

More Rustling As Prices Rise

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — As the price of hamburger goes up, so does the number of rustled cattle, according to a state official, who says 540 cattle have been reported missing since last June.

Les Graham, head of the brands enforcement division of the state livestock department, said about 300 cattle have been recovered. He said the rustling problem has spread out of state and officials in Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas have banded together to investigate some of the thefts.

British regiments evacuated Boston in 1776.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 5 ♦ Pass
6 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♣.

This hand rates high among our favorites. It appeals to us because it combines good technique on the part of declarer while capitalizing on human frailty. We like everything about the auction except the final bid. South would have been wiser to bid six no trump—but then we would have had no story to tell!

Declarer won the opening spade lead with the ace and cashed the king of trumps. The 5-0 trump break came as a rude shock. Declarer abandoned trumps to cash his three top hearts, discarding a spade from dummy. Next came three rounds of diamonds, and another spade was sluffed from the table. Declarer now knew twelve of East's cards—he had started with at least one spade, three cards in each red suit and five clubs. If his thirteenth card was a diamond, declarer had a legitimate way to make his slam. He could simply discard from dummy on the fourth diamond while East followed suit, then exit with a spade. East, down to nothing but trumps, would be forced to ruff and lead a trump, and declarer would be able to make the rest.

However, this line would fail if East's thirteenth card was in a major suit. East would be able to ruff the diamond and exit safely, enabling the defenders to collect a spade trick in the fullness of time. Since it cost nothing to lead a diamond now in the hope of finding the magic distribution, declarer placed the jack of diamonds on the table.

When West followed, declarer's only remaining chance was to hope that East would be overly impressed with his trump holding. He ruffed the diamond with dummy's queen of trumps. East chose to hoard his trumps, and discarded his spade. Declarer led a spade from dummy and East was forced to ruff. His trump return ran to dummy's nine, and a trump back allowed declarer to finesse the ten and make his contract.

Notice that East could have defeated the contract by undertruffing on the fourth diamond. Now declarer must lose a spade trick and a trump. Would you have found that defense?

The Peacock 'Unretired'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Step right up, ladies and gents, there's a sale going on. Offered: brighter days for a third-ranked TV network. Chief sales agents: a formerly unemployed bird, name of Peacock, and one whizbang salesman, name of Silverman.

Customers in this gaudy medicine show are the NBC affiliates, in town this week for a dose of the Silverman tonic, absolute-guaranteed to cure their miseries. And all for the price of a little allegiance. The affiliates, whose fortunes ride on the ratings success of NBC, want to be assured that something will go right for the network in the next season. NBC wants to be assured that the affiliates will remain affiliated. Thus, the show.

It began Monday in Burbank, at NBC Studio 4. The star of the show was NBC's peacock, recently unretired. He was everywhere — on banners, on lapel buttons, and most conspicuously, in the filmed promos for the fall schedule.

"This convention is important, the most important this network has ever held with its affiliated stations," said Robert Mulholland, NBC's executive in charge of making affiliates happy.

That's why the famous bird is back after four years of forced retirement. He is a sign of happier times for NBC, times when the stately old network wasn't

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A number of problems can appear before you today that require a quick solution. Look at them objectively and do not do what is rash and impulsive but what is constructive and sensible. Misunderstandings can occur unless you use self-control.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you really understand what friends mean when you talk to them today. Being forceful with them could lead to trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take care you do not irk a higher-up and lose favor with this person. Analyze credit followed and improve it in some way. Don't take risks where health is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to run out to new outlets, but take it easy for best results. Be sure of what you are doing. Use good judgment since your hunches are not good now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't renege on a debt you have to pay. Mate may be annoyed with you, but he or she is under pressure of some sort.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to a better understanding with others and forget mundane duties that can be postponed for a while. Take time to handle a civic matter and derive benefits from it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able to handle routine work efficiently now, so get an early start. Have more harmony with associates by being cooperative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Set up appointments early with friends for the recreation you want to have later. Get into work that will bring you fine benefits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle fundamental matters efficiently and get the results you want. Find the right way to make conditions at home better. Invite a dear friend to dinner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The right day to go after the information you may need to better your position in life. Make visits you have in mind, but use diplomacy in dealing with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can easily gain the goodwill of a bigwig who can help you to advance more quickly in your career today. Improve property by making needed repairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are busy and need to get things done, but don't be too short and sharp with others. Take a little time to be with friends or you may lose them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can delve into whatever has been puzzling in the past and come up with the right answers at this time. Confer with a trusted adviser. Get boring chores out of the way.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand whatever is modern in nature and should be sent to up-to-date schools so that your child can progress quickly in whatever happens to be the talent here. Teach to listen to the views of others.

Seek Talented Nine-Year-Olds

CHAPEL HILL — Two nine-year old North Carolina boys could find themselves starring in a new television series on CBS.

Norman Lear, producer of "All In The Family," and Alex Haley, author of "Roots," are joining forces to produce a two-hour original TV movie that will serve as a pilot for a new series. A search is being conducted in several states for two nine-year old boys, one white and one black, to play leading roles in the series.

Casting will be done by Reuben Cannon and Associates of California. Reuben Cannon will be in Chapel Hill May 25-27 to interview youngsters who have been screened in advance.

Screening will be done by William Hardy, UNC-CH professor of radio, television and motion pictures, and the staff of the Carolina Regional Theater. The entire talent search operation has been arranged by the Theatre Arts Section of the state Department of Cultural Resources.

Hardy said that parents of interested boys should contact him to arrange for interviews. Interviews will be conducted through May 20 in Swain Hall on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Interviews may be arranged

RING LARDNER Jr. has concluded that about one in three of this century's writers has had problems with alcohol, including himself. "Creation is often very frustrating," he said, "and people often seek some sort of respite from that frustration." he told a news conference announcing a book of short stories about alcoholism and its effects. Caine Signed For 'The Island'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Michael Caine signed with Richard Zanuck and David Brown to star in "The Island," based on the novel by Peter Benchley whose "Jaws" became the biggest box-office hit in Universal Pictures history.

"The Island" marks the fourth picture based on Benchley's work. The others, in addition to "Jaws" were "Jaws 2" and "The Deep."

Caine will portray a journalist on the track of a mysterious story.

MUSIC AWARD
NEW YORK (UPI) — Sergiu Commissiona, Romanian-born music director of the Baltimore Symphony, has been awarded Columbia University's 1979 Ditson Conductor's Award for his contribution to the advancement of American music.

Women's Place—Home Owners

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Two federal laws passed in 1975 are giving new meaning to the old cliché, "Woman's place is in the home."

In the four years since the Equal Credit Opportunity and Fair Housing acts were passed, thousands of women have taken advantage of them to buy their own homes and condominiums, says Donald Hovde, president of the Chicago-based National Association of Realtors. Women bought 8 percent of all single family homes sold last year, Hovde said in an interview.

He estimated one-third of all condominium sales the same year were to single women, either by themselves or in joint ownership with another woman. The Madison, Wis., realtor said the term "single women" includes divorcees and widows as well as the unmarried.

Forty-five percent of all home sales these days are to two-income families, Hovde said. The wives' earnings are vital, he added, because of rising prices.

"I remember as a young salesman 10 years ago a wife's income wouldn't even be considered by thrift institutions and banks on a joint application for a mortgage."

"Now a mortgage lender cannot ask a woman any financial information regarding her spouse or former spouse. "He can only deal with the gross income you currently have in absolute dollars, how long you have worked at your job, what debts you have outstanding and the number and age of your dependents."

"A lender used to have to give an affidavit that she was not going to bear children," Hovde added.

That is now illegal.

So is asking a woman loan applicant if she is taking birth control pills, and if her income includes child support, alimony or separate maintenance payments.

This opens up new possibilities for the woman who would like to own her home.

Each woman must decide for herself, of course, whether or not she wants the responsibilities, whether she can afford it and whether now is the time to buy.

Prices are high, supplies tight and money expensive. Historically, home ownership has been one of the best hedges against inflation and prices have increased steadily. But some observers question whether the boom can continue.

Hovde thinks now is a good time.

"Once a woman is plugged into the system, if real estate values go up, hers will, too," he said. "Her monthly payment stays the same but the value of the property increases, which increases her equity, which increases her investment. She should then be able to sell and buy elsewhere if she wishes."

If you have decided home-ownership is for you, how do you determine what you can afford?

The first step is serious budgeting, deciding just how much money you have available for housing, after other musts. It is a very personal decision — some women may be willing to pare clothing, entertainment and travel budgets to afford more for shelter; others might find it too restrictive.

Libraries are good sources of information. They have a wealth of material in books and magazines.

Hovde suggested asking mortgage experts at banks and savings and loan associations.

And you might check with your lawyer or accountant.

"The best place to go," Hovde said, "is to a lender to see what the lender is willing to do. It's a kind of negotiated process in which you find out your priorities."

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

The 25th International Air Rally has received philatelic tribute from the Island of Jersey in the Channel Islands group.

The aerial event is sponsored by the Channel Islands Aero Club, which held its first rally in 1954.

There are five new stamps in the commemorative set. Depicted are various aircraft which have participated in the 25 rallies. The 6-pence shows the single-wing Mew Gull, the 8-pence shows the Chipmunk, the 10½-pence shows the Turbulent, the 11-pence shows the Tiger Moth, and the 13-pence shows the Harvard.

Each stamp bears the inscription "International Air Rally — 25th Anniversary" and the Queen's silhouette in the upper right corner.

The annual air rally is now a premier event in the European flying calendar and attracts competitors from France, Germany, the Benelux and Scandinavian countries, Great Britain, Ireland, plus entrants from Australia and the U.S.

Oklahoma will be going all-out to celebrate the centennial of Will Rogers' birth this year. A U.S. commemorative stamp will be issued in November as part of the Performing Arts Series. But ardent philatelists in that state will further honor Rogers at the Oklahoma City Stamp Club's 6th Annual OKPEX '79 on May 4, 5 and 6. Joining in the event will be the United Postal Stationery Society which will be holding its annual national convention at OKPEX '79. One of the highlights will be a special competition for the Will Rogers Centennial Award to be pre-mented to the "Best Exhibit of Will Rogers Material." For further information you may write directly to "OKPEX Exhibition Chairman, P.O. Box 26944, Oklahoma City, Okla., 73126."

The first stamped pictorial envelope to be produced by the British Post Office in almost 90 years (and only the fourth in its history) has been released to the public. It was issued to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the opening of the National Postal Museum in London.

The envelope bears a printed 9-pence stamp of the type used on the current stamped letter-card. The design is similar to that used on the 1953 Coronation airmeter, incorporating the floral emblems of the four home countries above a royal cipher.

Although the British Post Office has issued many special pictorial airmeters, starting in 1953 with the Coronation issue, the National Postal Museum souvenir envelope is the first stamped pictorial "envelope" issued since July, 1890. It was put on sale to honor the jubilee of penny postage.

Smuggling Guilty Plea Good Values In Stock Market

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A former U.S. serviceman pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court Tuesday to a heroin-smuggling conspiracy charge.

The plea ended the trial after testimony by one witness.

James W. Smedley, 56, was sentenced by Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. to eight years in prison.

Jack B. Crawley Jr., an assistant U.S. attorney prosecuting the case, said Smedley would be eligible for parole immediately.

Smedley was one of 12 persons indicted in 1976 in connection with a drug-smuggling ring based in Thailand and Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro. The leader of the operation, Leslie "Ike" Atkinson of Goldsboro, is serving sentences totaling 56 to 64 years on smuggling charges.

According to the indictment, Smedley ran the Thailand operation of the drug-smuggling ring until May 1975.

Later in 1976, Smedley was tried and convicted on a similar charge in Thailand. He served 28 months in a Thai prison before he was freed while appealing the conviction. He won the appeal, and last year he was brought to the United States to face trial on the 1976 indictment.

"I had no intention of ever becoming involved with drugs," Smedley told Dupree before the sentencing. "I became involved unintentionally."

With everyone except the Administration predicting a recession for later this year, you might consider the stock market the last place you would want your money to be. Good values are available in the stock market today, however, and if you wait on the sidelines for the market to turn, you might miss that turn.

Given the fact that individual needs and circumstances dictate investment posture, there are some general guidelines to remember in investing for recession. A recent national magazine article pointed out that history is our guide. Stock prices usually decline in advance of recession, and turn upward in advance of recovery. Interest rates normally peak after the onset of recession and usually decline beyond the initial recovery phase.

Real estate investments have typically done well in recession periods. The average price of new homes has risen in 14 of the last 15 years, declining in the 1969-70 recession. This may be one way to weather a recession, but it does tie up your money for a long time.

Many investors are concerned about getting the highest available yield. Since it is virtually impossible to pinpoint the absolute peak in interest rates, bonds with high yields can be purchased when you believe interest rates are approaching a peak, thus locking in high yields for the long term. Then, when interest rates decline, capital appreciation becomes likely.

A relatively new investment offering a high yield is a money market fund. This mutual fund invests your money in Treasury bills and other short term investments. Overnight liquidity and high yields are the main features.

All stocks do not necessarily decline in a recession. Some defensive groups generally outperform the market in poor business cycles. These include food, utility, household products, and tobacco companies. Some of the best performing groups in the 1974-75 recession included entertainment stocks, broadcasters, food chains and telephone companies.

There are other areas which appear to offer good opportunities for profitable investing in a recessionary environment. Energy related stocks are an obvious choice, and companies involved in increasing productivity (telecommunications, data processing), cosmetics, drugs, and banking are other areas to select from.

Many stocks have been sold off to the point where they appear to have little downside risk, and they operate in areas which should permit sales and earnings to grow in a recession (for example, food). Careful selection as always is necessary, and a cash reserve for future purchases is recommended.

Stamp Notes: Israel has announced a special stamp to honor the signing of the peace treaty with Egypt...The Republic of China (Taiwan), which has been issuing some beautiful stamps, has just released a new one in tribute to "Youth Day," featuring a portrait of Lu Hao-tung, a martyr of the Chinese people who died in 1895 as a follower of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founding father of the Republic of China.

Topical collectors — those who specialize in topical subjects on stamps — will be interested in a new handbook published by the American Topical Association. It reviews over 100 topics shown on some 6,000 stamps issued by various countries during the past year. The stamps are arranged alphabetically by topics and within each topic. Some of the topics listed are: Americana, art, bridges, Christmas, coins, fish, flowers, horses, medicine, music, Olympics, Queen Elizabeth II Jubilee, railroads, Scouts, space, sports, women, etc.

The cost is $4 and it may be purchased directly from: American Topical Association, 3308 N. 50th St., Milwaukee, Wis., 53216.

Drop Charges Kudzu Alliance

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Trespassing charges against two members of the Kudzu Alliance were dropped due to a technicality Tuesday in Wake County District Court.

Larry L. Kehrer and Julie Kaimi were arrested May 9 at an anti-nuclear protest at Carolina Power and Light Co.'s offices in Raleigh.

But arrest warrants drawn against them failed to include a designation such as "Inc." or "Corp." after the letters CP&L to establish that CP&L is a corporation.

Judge George R. Greene dismissed the cases but said, "But CP&L will be ready for you next time."

The two were among 19 arrested after staging a day-long sit-in at CP&L's main office. Kudzu opposes the company's Shearon Harris nuclear plant under construction in Wake County. Trials of the other 17 defendants are scheduled through Friday.

Refuses Order Reinstatement

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has refused to order the reinstatement of former Saratoga Police Chief Gregory A. Umbaugh, pending trial of a lawsuit over his dismissal.

Judge Frank Brown of Tarboro Monday denied Umbaugh's request for a preliminary injunction blocking his dismissal.

Umbaugh, who was hired last September and dismissed in February after a series of confrontations with town officials, is seeking reinstatement and $100,000 in damages.

EYES HAVE IT

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Your eyes are as individual as your fingerprints, says the American Optometric Association. Bertillon, the fingerprint expert, once suggested that eye patterns be used in personal identification, since no two irises ever have the same pattern.
