Bert Lance Arraigned Today

ATLANTA (AP) — Former federal budget director Bert Lance, calling accusations against him "totally ridiculous," pleaded innocent today to federal charges of conspiracy and misuse of funds at two Georgia banks. Lance and three co-defendants were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Allen L. Chancey Jr. on the morning following their indictment by a federal grand jury after nearly two years of investigation into Lance's banking practices.

Co-defendants Thomas M. Mitchell of Dalton, Ga.; Richard T. Carr of Ringgold, Ga., and H. Jackson Mullins of Calhoun, Ga., also entered innocent pleas.

The four were then taken by U.S. marshals to be fingerprinted and photographed in the basement of the federal courthouse.

Lance and his attorneys arrived several minutes before the brief proceeding began and shook hands with the team of prosecutors who guided the grand jury probe.

"Mr. Lance, it's nice to meet you," said Edwin J. Tomko, the Justice Department attorney who has been in charge of the investigation.

William Gaffney, another member of the prosecution team, told the magistrate that the trial likely would last at least eight weeks. Chancey assigned the case to U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moye. The trial date was not immediately set.

Leaving the courtroom, Lance again declined to address the specifics of the indictment, but said, "I find it to be totally ridiculous. I am not going to comment until I read the indictment."

As reporters pressed around him, clogging the sidewalks and spilling out into the downtown street, Lance repeatedly said, "I'll be careful. I don't want any of you to get run over. I want this same crowd around when I'm found innocent."

Lance spoke to onlookers as he fought his way down the street and told reporters "Have a good day."

"I know that I am innocent," Lance said in a statement Wednesday after he and three northwest Georgia businessmen were indicted by a federal grand jury.

"I have an infinite faith in the fairness of the American people, and I know that no jury will find me guilty of the charges directed against me," Lance said.

The indictment, which makes no mention of Carter, concerns Lance's banking practices before he resigned the presidency of the National Bank of Georgia to serve eight months in the Carter administration in 1977.

Planning Bd. Approves

Old Hospital Plans OK'd

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A request by Pitt County for rezoning the old hospital site off NC 43 in order for the facilities to be used for county offices received the endorsement of the Greenville Planning Commission last night.

The commission will recommend to the City Council that the 34.15-acre site on the south side of NC 43 be rezoned from Health Care to an Office and Institutional usage designation.

Charlie Holliday, who presented the county proposal, said that the county feels that the old hospital facility no longer qualifies as a health care center and a zoning designation of Office and Institutional would make the proposed use more compatible.

In addition to use of the facilities for county offices, Holliday explained, the county hopes to contract for cafeteria operations at the facility and the Medical School has a three-year lease on the A-Wing section of the building.

County Manager Reginald Gray explained that the county had initially hoped to concentrate offices in the downtown area but there is no room for expansion at the present courthouse facilities and parking is a major problem. He said the old hospital site now owned by the county will be accessible for all citizens.

Gray pointed out that some 300 to 350 employees would be located at the facility and with limited food facilities in that area, a problem would exist in getting employees back to work on a one-hour lunch break. The cafeteria is being considered as a way of helping the county be more efficient in its operations, he added.

Commissioner Clarence Tugwell said that he did not serve on the committee that established the medical zoning designations for the area but he said that he feels that a large amount of medical arts zoning was included to be in a holding pattern that will probably never be needed.

Planning director Bobby Roberson reported that Commissioner Wes Hankins, who was unable to attend last night's meeting, had expressed an objection to the rezoning proposal based on the study that went into the health care district.

Joe Hayes of 204 Adams Boulevard said that he felt the board should consider the county request in a favorable light. He said that the request represented good planning on the county's behalf.

Mayor Percy Cox also said that he felt the county was making an appropriate request.

According to Holliday, the County Commissioners considered the matter at their April 23 meeting.

In other business on the city agenda, commissioners voted to recommend to the City Council that the request of Henry-Stirling-Casey for rezoning approximately two acres at the southeast corner of Greenville Boulevard and 14th Street be denied. The petitioners sought rezoning from the R-9 residential designation to Office and Institutional.

Attorney Ed Harper, representing the Henry and Stalling petitioners, said that the request for rezoning was aimed at bringing the tract of land into the use category already established by adjoining property. He contended that the area has Several citizens who said they live near the area proposed for rezoning objected to the proposal and Joe Distefano of Templeton Drive pointed to the "domino effect" that could result if the property is rezoned.

Distefano said that residents are "constantly

Firemen Charge Abuse By Assistant Chief Of Rescue Tony Brannon

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Some 45 Greenville firemen have signed a document charging Assistant Chief of Rescue Tony Brannon with conduct unbecoming a member of the department, and saying that unless Chief Jenness Allen is given full and complete authority over both fire and rescue operations, "a total separation between Fire and Rescue be carried out."

The letter, dated May 9, and addressed to Chief Allen, resulted in a grievance hearing Tuesday, attended by Allen, Brannon, City Manager Ed Wyatt, and the city's staff attorney and personnel manager Judy Kornegay.

The firefighters letter said in part, "We feel the situation as it now exists between the Fire and Rescue Divisions is intolerable. We the firefighters have taken the printed abuse through the newspapers long enough. Following your request we have not responded to the abuse through the same media during this period."

"However," the letter continued, "we feel the professional integrity of the Fire Dept. has been abused and has suffered long enough. The proverbial straw that broke the camel's back was the last write up in the Daily Reflector April 29, 1979. We feel we can no longer tolerate such unprofessional actions for it has downgraded the whole Department long enough."

The letter, which requested a meeting between representatives of the firefighters and the city manager, requested that, "Chief Allen have full and complete authority over both Fire and Rescue Divisions," and said if that condition "cannot be executed, a total separation between Fire and Rescue be carried out, with Rescue having their own building."

The letter also requested that, "Chief Brannon apologize to the Firefighters through the same news media he used to slander them and disciplinary action be taken according to the city's personnel policy."

Seemingly, "the straw that broke the camel's back," and prompted the misconduct charge by firefighters was a two-paragraph section in a lengthy article dealing with a North Carolina League of Municipalities study recommending that fire and rescue operations in Greenville be fully integrated.

Road Needs For Pitt Given At DOT Hearing

Representatives from the City of Greenville presented a variety of resolutions and plans concerning highway improvements in Greenville and Pitt County yesterday afternoon to the North Carolina Department of Transportation at a highway improvement public hearing in Morehead City.

Representing the city were Charles Vincent, Mayor Pro-Tem; Ed Wyatt, City Manager; Ron Sewell, City Engineer; Bobby Roberson, City Planner; and County Attorney, W. W. Speight, representing the County Commissioners.

Vincent presented a resolution from the City Council encouraging ten DOT to consider plans for a western link in the 264 by-pass around Greenville. Other priorities presented included suggested improvements to 14th, Evans Street, Arlington Boulevard and Dickenson Avenue.

Consideration of underpasses and overpasses for the railroads in Greenville area was also asked by Vincent.

Sewell pointed out various statistics relating to the need of the western loop. Wyatt commented on the fact that the Greenville area is a base for industrial growth and serves as a regional-w region-wide

Roberson added that 43 percent of all patients in Pitt County Memorial Hospital are from out of Pitt County, and in addition to this, the development of Carolina East Mall will increase the need for traffic improvements. Roberson pointed out that the mall will need approximately 80,000 population to justify its business.

He also added that the City of Greenville would like to take a part in the design of highway improvements for this area.

Charles Burnette, chairman of the transportation committee for the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, presented a resolution requesting the DOT to consider prompt purchase of land around the proposed western loop.

A resolution approving the city's thoroughfare plan was

Branch Chief Justice

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt followed tradition today, appointing North Carolina Supreme Court Justice Joseph Branch to chief justice of the high court.

Branch will succeed Chief Justice Susie Sharp when she retires from the court August 1.

Hunt's appointment follows the court tradition of elevating the next justice ranking in seniority to head the Supreme Court upon retirement of the chief justice.

"Justice Branch is a man of integrity and principle, with broad leadership experience in legal and legislative affairs," Hunt said in announcing the appointment. "No one is better qualified to be chief justice."

Branch, 63, is a native of Enfield and has served on the Supreme Court since 1966, when he was appointed by Gov. Dan Moore. Moore is also a Supreme Court justice now.

Branch must run for reelection next year if he is to complete the final two years of Miss Sharpe's term as chief justice. Branch told reporters today he planned to run.

N.C. Budget Wheels Turn

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joint legislative committees approved the bulk of the proposed two-year state budget Wednesday after turning back efforts to eliminate state payment of elective abortions for poor women.

The House and Senate appropriations committees were on the verge of concluding their five-month review of the proposed budget, reserving action only on a provision on retirement benefits that left the two panels split.

The split continued today when the House side of the panel adjourned and walked out after unsuccessful attempts to amend the provision to increase the benefits.

House members called for adjournment, but were voted down. Then they insisted that House and Senate members vote separately on adjournment. The House members left the meeting after voting to adjourn.

The Senate side of the panel, however, remained and proceeded to approve the retirement provision as written.

Today's action means the Senate is completely through with its work on the two-year budget, and Senate appropriations leaders said they would send the budget bill to the Senate floor, despite the fact that the retirement question has not been resolved in the House.

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said it was the first time in 15 years he could remember such a split.

"The monkey is on their back now," he said. "If they want to spend about $35,000 a day playing this game, then let them."

It was unclear the House appropriations members would proceed with the budget.

In Wednesday's action, the committees voted 52-33 to kill a proposal by Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, to cut in half the $1 million a year appropriation for state-paid abortions, limiting them only to poor women who were victims of rape or incest, who are minors or who are mentally incompetent.

Sen. Walter Cockerham, R-Guilford, made a motion to eliminate all abortion funding. But Rep. Ed Holmes, D-Chatham, committee chairman, ruled him out of order.

"We have a moral issue here," Campbell said. "The federal government has eliminated, through political pressure, federal funding for abortions except in cases of rape or other special cases. I think it's a question of whether we want to be more liberal in North Carolina than the federal government."

The bulk of the biennial budget was unchanged from the version recommended by Gov. Jim Hunt early this year. The budget committees trimmed only small amounts from the operating budget of state agencies and were largely left to deal with a $230 million budget for supplemental requests.

It includes money for a small income-tax cut already approved by finance committees. It includes a pay raise package for teachers and state employees that involves a 5 percent across-the-board pay raise and 2 percent addition in fringe benefits, as recommended by Hunt. To it, legislators added a $200 one-time cash bonus.

Although that bonus has been opposed by Hunt, it went unquestioned before the full committees.

It also includes a 5 percent pay raise for legislators beginning in 1981, and a $40 million appropriation to upgrade the five predominantly black campuses of the University of North Carolina system.

The retirement provision was recommended by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and caused a split between the committees, with Senate members favoring it and House members opposing it.

YARD SALES WENT WELL

Both the yard sales written up in one of last week's Hotline columns were "tremendous successes."

The sale to benefit Lester Dobbs received amazing response, according to his mother, who said the outpouring of concern from people in Lester's hometown has been inspiring to him and to his family. She reports that the family is greatly heartened about the hopes for his recovery because he has recently moved his toes. Dobbs was paralyzed from the neck down in a wreck in San Angelo, Tex., where he now lives.

The sale held at Rose High School for the benefit of "Hack" and Denise Hackney was also a great success, according to Tony Banks and her husband, Ellis, who took part in it. Money made from it will go to pay x-ray bills sustained when the Hackneys were in the hospital in Florida following an automobile accident there. Mrs. Banks reports that Hack, now in a Greensboro hospital, has recently had an operation to relieve pressure on his brain and seems to be showing some response to his surroundings. He has been in a coma since the accident.

AYDEN — Negotiations are under way for a satellite sewing center of the Blue Bell, Inc., Lady Wrangler Manufacturing Division, to locate in the former USI building "and property on Highway 11 south of Ayden.

According to Blue Bell, Inc. officials located in the Wilson division headquarters, hiring should begin in mid-June, with plans to employ 100-125 persons by Christmas, and possibly end up with 200 employees within the next two years.

"We did a labor survey in the Ayden area about two or three weeks ago, with an impressive number of possible employees available," noted division personnel manager Rick Riddle.

"We expect a very good labor force with sewing experience, so we hope that training time will be short."

The Lady Wrangler division, which produces female Wrangler brand apparel, has satellite sewing centers in Ahsokie, Windsor, LaGrange, Wilson and Bethel. Bruce Beasley, chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission, pointed out that Blue Bell, Inc. was already "a good corporate citizen" with its performance through the Bethel plant.

"They're a very good company, with fringe benefits, and a real concern for their employees," he noted. "They went looking for a good community with a good attitude."

Beasley pointed out that the company officials found a strong labor base in the Ayden area, with an "excellent" choice in the former USI building.

Beasley praised the quick actions of the Ayden town officials for their quick movement in working with the division in locating a suitable site. He termed the situation "a good marriage between the plant and the community."

Ayden Town Manager Don Russell expressed the town officials' excitement over the division's decision in locating in the 30,000 square foot building formerly occupied by the USI plant.

"We're extremely pleased that this has happened," Russell stated. "They're a good, large company."

"We met with the plant officials Wednesday night and we found all the company officers to be extremely cooperative," Russell continued. "We're looking forward to having them here, and we're pleased the building won't sit empty."

Blue Bell, Inc. headquartered in Greensboro, has over 100 manufacturing locations in America and abroad, with sales totaling $872 million in 1978.

DEAR ABBY: Women recently set up a howl because hurricanes were being named after them. Considering the destructive nature of hurricanes, they had a legitimate beef. To satisfy the women, weathermen started calling hurricanes "himacones" and even named some after men. Last year there was a beaut off the coast of Mexico which was called John.

Well, John happens to be my name, and it has already been badly abused.

John was perfectly respectable name until women started using it to refer to the toilet. Then streetwalkers began calling their customers "johns."

Also, when a woman wants to break off a relationship with her boyfriend, she writes him a "Dear John" letter even though his name might be Harry.

I object.

Sometimes the defenders can foil declarer's attempt to set up a side suit by playing a forcing game, threatening to make declarer lose control of the hand. That is when dummy's trump holding can provide an effective counter.

There are differing schools of thought on how to treat a black two-suiter of limited strength. South obviously believed in bidding spades first, regardless of the strength of his hand. When North raised, South decided that his partner's club holding could be the key to game, so he made a trial bid. With a queen in the key suit and a concealed five-card suit of his own, North decided to accept.

West led the ace of diamonds, forcing declarer to ruff. Since he would have to give up two trump tricks, declarer could not afford to play ace and another trump. Besides, he had more important work to do before drawing trumps.

At trick two, declarer led a low club to dummy's queen and East's ace. East continued with a high diamond, forcing declarer down to three trumps. To keep trump control, declarer now made the fine play of a low spade from his hand!

West won the queen of spades and continued with a third round of diamonds. Declarer gladly accepted the ruff—given the opportunity, it was his intention to ruff that diamond anyway. (As the cards lay, no other return would have done declarer any harm.) Now declarer cashed the ace of spades, leaving the master trump outstanding.

The rest was easy. Declarer simply started to run the hearts. East could ruff whenever he felt like expending his high trump, but that would be the last trick for the defense. Declarer could always get back to dummy with a club ruff to run the rest of the hearts.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? DEAR JOHN: Object if you will, but Johns have also been honored over the years. We've had popes named John, kings named John, and four presidents named John. And don't forget the Johnny-come-latelys. Objection overruled!

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm too sentimental, overly sensitive, or just plain petty, but I have to get this off my chest! For all the years before my daughter was married, on Mother's Day she'd remember me with a lovely card to which she'd add a sweet personal message. Now that she's married, she still sends me Mother's Day cards, but they are always "TO GRANDMA, from Little Julie, Jack and Jim."

Now, Abby, I adore my grandchildren, but I am not their mother! Although my daughter buys, signs, and sends those cards "to Grandma," they are not an adequate substitute for a Mother's Day card from her. It would mean so much if she would scribble a little message, saying, "Mom, I love you. Have a nice day . . ." or something like that.

I hope you publish my letter because my daughter never misses your column. There! I feel better already. Thanks, Abby.

ME IN SUFFOLK, VA.

DEAR ME: Mission accomplished.

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old son has had his own apartment for nearly a year. His girlfriend recently moved in. She is 21. We aren't very happy about it, but at least they told us themselves rather than let us hear it from friends.

The girl's parents also live in this city. We have never met them and have no idea how they feel about their daughter living with a fellow without marriage.

Should we make any effort to meet the girl's parents? I have heard that if a couple marries and the parents haven't met, the groom's parents should make the first move to meet the parents of the girl. Is this correct? And does it apply to live-ins, too?

We have a married daughter. When we invite her and her husband to dinner, should we include our son and his live-in friend just as though they were married, too?

Please help us, Abby. This living-together business for young people is something we are totally uninformed about. Thank you.

RESPECTABLE PEOPLE

DEAR RESPECTABLE: When you invite your son to dinner, invite his girlfriend, too.

Make no overtures to the girl's parents until (and unless) your son suggests it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 14-month-old nephew whose feet turn outward when he walks. So severely, in fact, that the child walks sideways. My sister knows it and keeps talking about asking her pediatrician to put the child in corrective shoes. But that's as far as it goes.

I've mentioned this to her several times. I don't want to bring it up again for fear she'll think I'm putting my nose where it doesn't belong.

Please don't say that if my sister wants her child to grow up with turned-out feet, it's her business, because it isn't my sister who will have to stumble through life on deformed feet. I see her pediatrician quite often. Would it be unethical of me to say something to him about it?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: You may not have all the facts, but on the chance that your sister is either unable or unwilling to deal with this problem, mention it to the doctor.

Service League Ends 41st Year Wednesday

The Greenville Service League held its annual business meeting and luncheon Wednesday at the Greenville Country Club.

Highlights of the meeting, which ended the league's 41st year of service to the community, were the installation of new officers, presentations of the Ormond Service Cup and the President's Tray and the annual report given by Mrs. John Whichard, league president.

Officers installed to serve the next two years are: Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, recording secretary; Mrs. Van C. Fleming III, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Norwin Pierce, treasurer. Continuing in office next year are Mrs. Whichard, president, Mrs. Robert VanVeld, first vice president, and Mrs. Frank Layne, second vice president.

The Ormond Service Cup, which is given to a member who has displayed interest in a variety of activities, willingness to work and usefulness in the community, was presented to Mrs. Donald Patrick by Mrs. M. T. Simpson.

The President's Tray is given for outstanding and conscientious service as a league and board member. The award was presented to Mrs. Herbert Carter by Mrs. W. R. Guice.

Mrs. Whichard summarized activities and achievements of the membership for the previous year and recognized committee chairmen. Hospital equipment purchased by the league for Pitt County Memorial Hospital totaled $45,746.11, with another $8,879.50 having been pledged for a fetal heart monitor.

One-hundred seventeen members have given 10,213 hours of volunteer service and 45 members contributed 100 hours or more during the year including:

Mrs. Donald Bailey; Mrs. Charles Brown; Mrs. J. Bryan Brown; Mrs. Clay Burnette; Mrs. Joseph Calder; Mrs.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It's not the first time it's happened and it won't be the last.

An elderly woman went shopping with her sister in one of those city-sized shopping centers. They became separated from one another and she was lost for three days before finding her way out.

Lucky she was a strong woman. A weaker one would have panicked and they would have found her unconscious body thrown over a waist-high glass map that looks like a pigeon relief station with her fingers pointing to "YOU ARE HERE!"

It's going to get worse before it gets better. Every day shopping centers get larger and larger, with each one vying for the "biggest in the world" status. After awhile, when someone is missing the standard procedure will be to "check all the hospitals, morgues and the shopping centers."

There's a shopping center near me that has reached three-exit proportions and is in the process of applying for statehood. There are glass elevators, sub-lower-upper-and midupper levels, skating rinks, malls, special corridors and parking for several thousand cars. (Unfortunately, the cars were parked the day the building was completed and haven't moved since.)

I went there once with Mother, who jumped out of the car and said, "Meet you in the shoe store." I never saw her again.

I have to admit, I have always found my way out of shopping centers but never at the same door in which I entered... or the same age. I am never fully prepared for the next Shopping Center Game, which is "FIND YOUR CAR!"

I have a theory about cars parked in a shopping center parking lot. Unknown to the shoppers, the shopping center revolves slowly... perhaps an inch an hour... so slowly that you cannot see the difference with the naked eye. However, when you come out after five or six hours your car is never in the same place in which you parked it.

All I know is shopping centers can't get too big for my mother. She loves 'em. The bigger, the better. Recently, she saw a maze of shops and lights and trees and concrete and yelled, "Stop the car! What do they call this shopping center?"
"Los Angeles, Mother."

Passenger Trains See Revival

Amtrak, the near-moribund government backed rail passenger system, is enjoying a sudden revival due to the gas shortage.

It is reported that trains are nearly full these days, and Amtrak is turning passengers away in Southern California.

The same thing happened in the last crisis, of course, and when gas supplies became adequate the rail passenger traffic once again dropped off. Amtrak can't afford to purchase expensive equipment for times of gas shortages only to have it stand idle at other times.

It is well to note, however, that we have a very expandable passenger transportation system in this nation that will undoubtedly be used as gas becomes more expensive and less available.

The rail system criss-crosses the nation. In recent years it has been used largely for freight but it once carried millions of passengers. By increasing the rolling equipment the rails can be used again for extensive passenger service — and that may soon occur.

Not So Old, But A Distinctive Style

The Pitt County Courthouse is one of those which has recently been added to the National Register of Historic Places.

The building is not particularly old by most standards, but it is an example of a distinct type of architecture which should be preserved.

THIS AFTERNOON

Goals For 'Real World'

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Commerce Secretary Lauch Faircloth was never one to mince words nor obscure his thoughts.

He came through in blunt fashion recently when talking with presidents of the North Carolina Community College System at a Gastonia convention.

"If I were running a community college I would get those pocketbook painting and knot-tying ads and slim-a-ramas out of the newspaper. It is bad public relations. Half the people in the community have to go to a dictionary to find out what you are doing," Faircloth said.

"Selling" college programs because people "buy" them isn't what it is all about. The object ought to be to sell young people on doing a day's work, making money, producing, and learning to live a good life.

Leftovers
Instead, the community colleges and technical institutes often get only the leftovers from the educational process rather than aggressively recruiting top students in the high schools, Faircloth finds.

Not entirely negative, Faircloth praised what has been done for the poor and middle class — more than anything that has happened before in this state. "Because you have given them a job they've been able to send the children to school. I mean literally to the grammar schools with lunch money.

"They've got a car that will run. They've got a house that has screens. It's got a bathroom, it's decent to live in. I have seen how much this has meant to the individual. He's better. He can weld. He can get off that potato digger or following a mule. He's making some money. His wife's got a job," Faircloth said.

But the state's chief promoter of industrial and economic development zeroes in on problems. "I think that the way your courses are now established and perpetuated need to be examined. I know the philosophy of the community colleges is an open door. And I think it should remain that way. I think the tuition should remain minimal.

"But I think you need to make sure that you don't wind up with a revolving door where they are in and out, in and out, and take one course and another course and about all they wind up is confused," Faircloth said.

Keeping a course only because it attracts students is not the answer. There were 313 people trained in ornamental horticulture last year and only 118 in tool and die making. Also, 166 Wildlife Management people were trained, but the state hired only four.

Retrain
In recent years the textile industry has put some 40,000 people back into the labor market through automation, and changing auto design has made mechanicking more difficult and complex than ever. People need to be trained, and the community colleges are the place where that can happen, Faircloth said.

He continued to suggest some progressive changes for consideration:

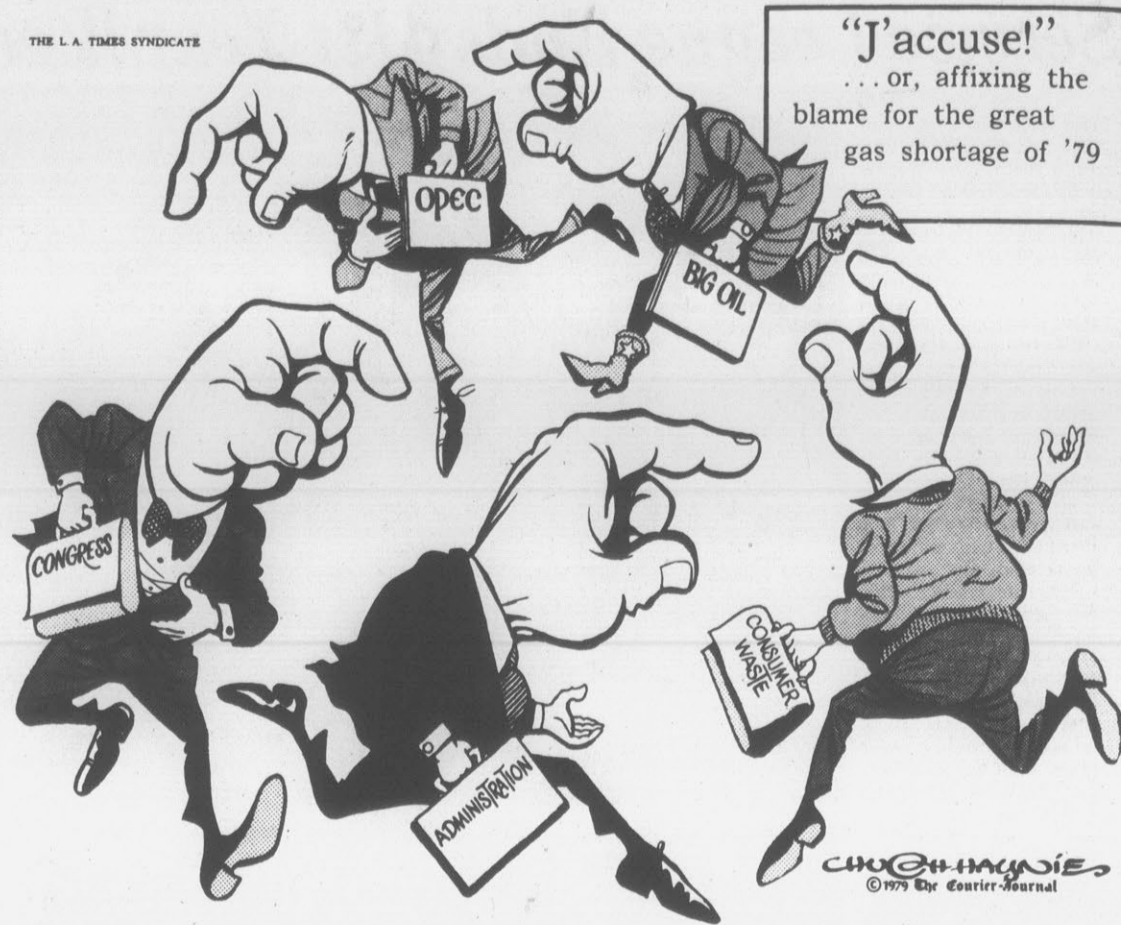

Offer students a way to make a living and feed a family and make that mean more, he said.

Apprenticeship programs ought to go to the third and fourth years, with certain campuses specializing to avoid overlapping that would be unproductive.

Finally, he suggested a low profile for the argument over whether to call some of the schools colleges or technical institutes. "I don't think that ... makes one particle of difference. the less said about it the better off you are. If I changed my name I wouldn't even announce it ... I'd use up the old stationery and keep going."

Leaders, No Followers

WASHINGTON — An exclusive little society known as Former Members of Congress held its annual get-together last week on Capitol Hill. About 150 lively old geezers and one lovely old doll showed up. Sitting on the front row was a venerable Kentuckian, John Marshall Robson, Jr. At the Friday morning session he said a mouthful.

The talk had been of failing leadership — at the White House, on Capitol Hill, within the two-party system. A panel of speakers reminisced lovingly of Lyndon Johnson and sighed fondly for Sam Rayburn. Why, it was asked rhetorically, are we so lacking in political leaders today? Mr. Robson leaped to his feet. In purest Kentucky accents he gave a sagacious answer. "We got enough leaders," said the sage of Louisville. "Trouble is, they ain't got enough followers."

If you want a nice, succinct explanation for the troubles of Jimmy Carter — some of the troubles of Jimmy Carter — the Robson analysis will do until something better comes along. Mr. Carter has now been president for two years and four months. In this period he has sent the Congress an energy program a tax program, a labor program, a consumer program, an election program, and a fuel conservation program — and the Congress has made hash of them all. Trouble is, Our Leader ain't got enough followers.

The president, to be sure, is not alone. The administration's majority leader in the Senate is Robert C. Byrd; its chief lieutenant in the House is Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill. They ain't got enough followers either. Mr. Byrd has 59 nominal Democrats within his command; he can no more command them than he can command 59 wild horses. Mr. O'Neill has the same problem, but he has 276 of them.

In a sense, there is nothing new in this. The legendary Mr. Dooley used to complain that "th' Dimmycratic party ain't no speakin' terms with itself." Speaker Thomas B. Reed, a Republican, nearly 90 years ago characterized the opposition party as a "hopeless assortment of discordant differences, as incapable of positive action as it is capable of infinite clamor." But even when allowance has been made for history, something different is going on today. The disconcerting thing is, nobody's in charge of the store.

The lovely old doll at last week's gathering was Edna Kelly of New York. She ventured one explanation: The congressional reforms of 1972 destroyed the traditional reins of leadership and put nothing in their place. When rebellious young Turks scrapped the rule of seniority and vitiated the powers of committee chairmen, it was a great day for reform but a FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — It was right and fitting that I should drop into Barbara Fritchie's house the first chance I got.

After all these years an apology was due for snickering at the feisty old dowager who alone in Frederick town waved her country's flag when Stonewall Jackson rode by with his rebel horde.

Looking back on that outrage now, from the vantage point of the very window where Dame Fritchie rescued the flag shot from its staff by the Confederate rifleman, the whole record of ridicule and irreverent laughter was probably Sister Miriam's fault.

Our eighth grade nun really identified with the Barbara Fritchie of the John Greenleaf Whittier poem. Her voice throbbed with emotion and the wattles in her throat over her

THE INSIDE REPORT

Hardball In Washington

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Just as Sen. Charles (Mac) Mathias of Maryland was about to engage business lobbyists May 8 by voting out the bill they most holy oppose, he pulled back the curtain to permit a glimpse of the hardball still being played backstage in Washington in this post-Watergate age of reform.

In casting his vote, Mathias disclosed that a business Political Action Committee (PAC) had threatened to withhold contributions for his reelection campaign next year unless he voted against the bill in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Mathias refused then and still refuses to disclose the name, but it happened to be the PAC of Bristol-Myers Co., the famous pharmaceutical firm. The PACs, part of the elaborate new paraphernalia of financing politics, have been widely used by lobbyists playing hardball with legislators. What was different in this instance was that the Bristol-Myers man played the game with too much zeal and too little finesse, and that Mathias, by blowing the whistle, did not play the game at all.

The incident also casts light on the feisty, aggressive attitude of lobbyists in a Capitol Hill climate where neither the president nor the congressional leaders exercise much influence. "There is a kind of mood around about everybody getting a scalp," one business lobbyist told us, "and I think that Bristol-Myers was after Mac's."

Specifically at issue was "Illinois Brick," beyond the ken of the general public but at the top of the agenda for both the business community and the Judiciary Committee's expansive new chairman, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. Kennedy has been pushing the bill to overturn a 1977 Supreme Court decision involving Illinois Brick Co. Applicable to thousands of companies, the bill would permit parties who are not direct purchasers to collect damages from an antitrust violator.

Besides involving billions in potential antitrust penalties, the bill also is a test case of whether chairman Kennedy can convert the committee, a fortress of reaction for 23 years under now retired James O. Eastland, into a battering ram of reform.

The committee's key vote was Mathias, a liberal Republican viewed by the business lobbyists as worse than any Kennedy Democrat. Oil industry lobbyists took the lead in 1977 when Mathias was maneuvered out of the senior Republican position on the Judiciary Committee, giving way to conservative Sen. Strom Thurmond.

Illinois Brick was in the air when William Greif, Washington-based vice president for governmental affairs of Bristol-Myers, recently conversed with one of Mathias' closest political supporters: Earl Brown, who owns a Bethesda, Md., advertising agency. As Mathias later reported it to the Judiciary Committee: "You tell Mathias if he doesn't vote my way on Illinois Brick, he won't get any of my PAC money."

Nobody this side of television docu-dramas actually talks that way, suggesting that Mathias was exercising senatorial license. But Brown did get the unmistakable impression that Greif was threatening grief for Mathias from corporate business interests in his 1980 reelection effort.

"Hell, Sen. Mathias is not the kind of candidate we support," Greif told us, adding that his vote on Illinois Brick

Strength For Today

PERSONAL INSURANCE
Most of us carry insurance policies which protect us against fires and accidents, but fewer people, perhaps, have insurance which protects them against other, more personal disasters which can be even more damaging.

These insurance policies are being made, or unmade, every day by the habits we establish, the kind of life we lead, by the thoughts which fill our minds, by the human relationships we enter into. There is something essentially eternal and irrevocable in everything we do. We are building up for ourselves either a secure future or an insecure one.

If our minds swell on the unwholesome, on hatred and resentment, we run grave risk of frustration, unhappiness, and perhaps even disaster for our fondest plans and most valued human relationships.

Many a person stands today in the midst of an unhappy life and faces a bleak future because he has not taken steps to insure himself from personal disaster.

To the editor:

People of Pitt County! Guess what? Mayor Cox and the Chamber of Commerce Board again exclude us from having a say so in the present Bilateral dispute among the fire department and rescue squad. My house can be sitting next to the city limits, and you'll let it burn to the ground while I wait for the county people to rally together and come to help. You will let the Rescue Squad, within their boundaries, come a little further.

I personally prefer a man who has expertise in rescue and a World Champion than one who must divide his time between fire and rescue. I think the firemen are showing a bona fide effort in trying to better themselves, and I'm sure all citizens recognize and respect them for it. But! Let's go back to what is equitable. What I read today is a prima facie. The rescue squad is just like any of the rest of us poor taxpayers — they want a say in their operation, and the ability to stay World Champions. Mayor Cox, why make a mountain out of a mole hill, what good is a $9 million School Bond Referendum if the children can't get there alive if they need help?

This report is not written in malice, but to appeal for Pitt County citizens. Rise up and help the Rescue Squad or you may find yourself sitting across the boundary dying while waiting for City Hall to act.

Janette Moody

To the editor:

It is with great concern that I write to express my opposition to the proposed merger of the Greenville Rescue Squad and the Greenville Fire Department. In my experience with the Rescue Squad, I have been impressed with their high degree of proficiency and sincere desire to constantly evaluate and improve the care given by that unit. I feel it would be folly to reward this group of men and women who have distinguished themselves and our community with the loss of the squad as it currently exists.

Having witnessed the high degree of ability and pride among Greenville Rescue Squad members, I am secure in knowing that, should an emergency arise in my home, I would receive skilled care by trained personnel.

I support a referendum which would place this decision in the hands of the voters. I urge persons who have had experiences with our Rescue Squad and feelings concerning this issue to speak out.

Confrontation Style Is Gone

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A hush has fallen on Wall Street, where earlier this decade the defenders of private securities markets clashed with government regulators over the modernization of trading.

Confrontations are rare now; the dialogue is calmer, the interfaces less angry. Musclexing is hardly part of the scene. And so even is the level of discussion that many people assume the issues have died.

They haven't. What has happened is the presence of William "Mil" Batten, 69, who became chairman of the New York Stock Exchange in 1976, succeeding James Needham, a tough, sometimes combative chief executive.

Though assertive, as executives are, Batten's style is low key. "I don't think much is accomplished by confrontation," he said the other day. "We can get more done if we avoid it than if we seek it out."

It's Batten's management style. "I'm result-oriented," he said. The way to achieve goals is to have each group understand the other. If screaming would do it, if it would achieve goals, I'd be for it.

He is a reasonable man. "The objectives of the SEC (Securities and Exchange Commission) and people in this business are the same," he said. "We want a market in the public interest. We want integrity."

Although you can find an argument on almost any subject in this notoriously opinionated community, many people feel the Batten style is right for the times.

Under Needham, himself a former SEC commissioner, the hard-in-fighting probably was required, since stock exchanges at the time assumed they were fighting for their lives. Few SEC opinions were left unchallenged.

But now the law is written.

Under a 1975 act of Congress, the various exchanges are committed to linking their facilities into a central marketplace. Congress didn't specify the form, but it stated the goal.

As head of the biggest exchange of all, Batten's role is to maintain a constructive dialogue with other exchanges, with the SEC and with his own membership, and somehow to balance it all with the public good.

To date, as he sees it, the linkage is evolving smoothly and "in accordance with the act," although he concedes some disagreement with the SEC on the rate of progress — on the timing of advances.

bad day for the House. What we are witnessing repeatedly on the Hill is the disarray that results when form is emptied of substance. We cling to the two-party form, but the form is hollow. The Democratic leadership has responsibility, but it has no authority. When the speaker speaks, nobody listens. The president cries, "Forward!" and his troops advance to the rear.

A study by Congressional quarterly found that the average House Democrat supported his president last year only 60 percent of the time. On key issues the defections were often massive. On the consumer protection bill, for example, 101 Democrats turned the president down. Mr. Carter won little more support from an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress in 1978 than Republican Richard Nixon received in 1970.

Last year was bad for the president; this year is worse. In May alone, the Senate handed him at least four lopsided defeats, and in every instance 35 or 40 Democrats led the rout. The House is providing a picture of nearly total insurrection... the president's plan for standby gasoline rationing was shot down in flames with 106 Democrats joining the Republican attack; on the Panama Canal issue, Speaker O'Neill staved off disaster by two votes only. The speaker has everything it takes to make a formidable leader — everything, that is, but obedient, dutiful followers.

Well, we muddle along. Unlike the British parliamentary system, in which a government can be brought down and new elections ordered on a lost vote of confidence, our constitutional system of fixed congressional terms makes party discipline impossible. Doubtless Americans would have it no other way. We are not geared to blind party loyalty; we prize our independence. But in Washington these days the political parade has neither head nor tail; every member of the band is playing a different Sousa march. It's a dazzling show, but it ain't no way to run a government.

Mulligan Col. ...

wimple got red when she reached the line: "Shoot if you must this old gray head, But spare your country's flag."

We used to call her Barbara Fritchie behind her back. The trouble began at the point in the poem when the nobler nature stirred within the general's soul and with a blush of shame he issued the order: "Who touches a hair on yon gray head

"Dies like a dog! March on!" he said.

Right there Charlie Schroder, the class cutup, let out a blood curdling yelp, like a dog that had just been shot.

Stunned by his impudence and our volley of laughter, Sister Miriam ordered us to write out the entire poem three times for homework.

So, here in the old house, I make public amends to Whittier's hardy heroine.

Recent research shows that Gen. Jackson wasn't having a good week when he camped out on the Frederick fairgrounds. The day he crossed into Maryland, someone stole "Little Sorrel," his favorite steed. Admirers gave him a gigantic gray mare that reared up, tossed him in a ditch and rolled over on him as he tried to mount.

A staff officer named Sanders, who rode at Jackson's side, wrote years later that he never saw Barbara Fritchie or anyone else poke a head or a flag out any window. He recalled that the Confederate band played "Maryland, My Maryland" through the streets, hoping to rally some recruits to the Rebel cause but none came forward.

Oh well, history always has its debunkers.

Whittier, who never met Barbara Fritchie, heard the story in a letter from a neighbor, Emma Southworth, who wrote that "the city wore churchyard respect" when Jackson rode though, except for that one flag flying from that second-story window on Patrick Street.

Barbara's exact words when the shooting started, according to Emma, were: "Fire at this old head then, boys, for it is not more venerable than your flag."

"The man who makes no mistakes does not usually make anything." — E.J. Phelps.

Ruffin Will Be Council Speaker

Ben S. Ruffin, special assistant to Gov. James B. Hunt, will be guest speaker at the North Carolina Joint Council on Health and Citizenship. He will deliver the Keynote Address at a 5 p.m. public program on Sunday, May 27, at York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church.

The program will climax activities associated with the council's project "Campaign '79 For

BEN S. RUFFIN

Freedom and Justice." The program will also include presentation of contestants competing for the title "Miss Freedom and Justice—1979," and the crowning of the queen.

Dr. Andrew A. Best, council president, will preside. Music will be provided by The Andrew A. Best Chorale and The Good Hope Male Chorus.

Preliminary activities include a talent show to be held at Sadie Sautler School at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 26.

Fund raising associated with the project will benefit scholarship. The public is invited to attend both events.

would make no difference. But records of Bristol-Myers' contributions show that like most PACs, its endorsements are not always discriminating; beneficiaries have included such doyens of the left as former Rep. Bella Abzug of New York and Rep. Andrew Maguire of New Jersey.

Greif also told us it was Brown who asked him for a Bristol-Myers PAC contribution to Mathias. "That is absolutely untrue," Brown responded to us. Actually, the Bristol-Myers PAC is not exactly Fort Knox. Its high contribution in 1978 was $900 for Thurmond (and a mere $100 for Ms. Abzug). But a number of business PACs linked together can generate real money, and that is what bothers Mathias advisers on the eve of a possible Republican primary challenge.

Despite his protestations of innocence, Greif's name is now linked by his lobbyist colleagues to choice four-letter words for having been clumsy. But the harsher curses are reserved for Mac Mathias whose vote provided the 9-to-8 margin by which a significantly watered-down version (suggested by Mathias) of Kennedy's Illinois Brick bill passed the committee.

That raises the question of why business lobbyists so adamantly resist compromises that would give senators a chance to cast a vote for the individual consumer without persecuting business. The lobbyists in this case insisted on a full loaf, as a precedent-setting spanking for Teddy Kennedy's new chairmanship. With the cash-filled sealed envelope now forbidden, such toughness is based on legal contributions by the PACs — provided, of course, they are used with a bit of finesse.

SINGSPIRATION
The Laymen's League Fellowship Central Conference of the Original FWB is having a Singspiration on Saturday, May 26, at Rose Hill FWB Church in Winterville.

The services will begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be several singing groups present. The pastor, Rev. N. D. Beamon, invites the public to attend.

Charities Are Feeling The Inflation Pinch

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Inflation is putting the squeeze on American generosity.

Officials of major charities say they face a three-pronged problem: It is harder to raise money, costs are going up and appeals for help are increasing. "It's really rough," said Martin K. McAnally, senior vice president of the United Way of Greater St. Louis. "We have been hit more and more for emergency situations related to things like being able to pay gas and electric bills. "The volunteer agencies are no longer able to keep up with requests for that kind of help. We just don't have the money." McAnally said the chapter has raised $21.3 million for 1979 — about 7 percent more than it did last year. "But it's not even coming close in terms of increased service requests," he said.

The picture varies from area to area and charity to charity. An Associated Press spot check showed, for example, that in Tucson, Ariz., where the economy is booming, charities are in good shape. And the hardest-hit associations appear to be local, social service groups rather than organizations with national affiliations.

On a general basis, Fred Schnaue, director of public relations for the American Association of Fund-Raising Council Inc., said: "Charities are having a tough time."

Schnaue said, however, that "overall giving has risen." From 1977 to 1978, he said, contributions to charities increased 9.4 percent, a little more than the rate of inflation.

Individuals gave $32.8 billion to charity last year, 82.9 percent of the total and 11.4 percent more than in 1977.

The biggest chunk of the money — 45.6 percent — went to churches and religious groups, Schnaue said. Educational organizations got 14 percent, causes related to health and hospitals received 13.8 percent and the remaining money went to social welfare, the arts, civic groups, etc.

Schnaue said he could not predict what will happen in the coming year, but added: "Obviously, the other components of the economy ... hurt giving to some degree."

William Schweinler, executive director of the Kansas division of the American Cancer Society, said his group normally can expect a year-to-year increase in contributions of 7 percent to 12 percent. "But we are working hard now just to keep even with last year." A similar story came from Dan Henroid, director of the Easter Seals chapter in St. Louis. "We have seen kind of a flat maintenance if not a slight erosion" in contributions, he said. At the same time, Henroid said, the chapter is getting "more and more of a call for our kind of assistance not from people who are poor, but from middle-class people who have never had to ask for help before."

Dick Compton, communications director of the United Way in Columbus, Ohio, said 1978 contributions totaled over $9.6 million, up 11.6 percent from the year before. "We're keeping up with inflation," he said. "But the agencies receiving the money are finding that it doesn't buy as much as it used to."

Carl Smith, executive director of the Arkansas Heart Association, said 1979 contributions are running about the same as 1978's. But door-to-door solicitations are down and Smith said the association is sponsoring more and more special events to raise money.

There are some exceptions to the trend. Ray F. Carmichael, director of development and public affairs for the Jimmy Fund of the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, said the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, 1978 was the best ever. So far this year, he said, the fund is "about $127,000 ahead of a year ago." Carmichael had no specific explanation for the group's success, but said: "It is clear we would not be seeing inflation or other economic factors having a negative effect on the Jimmy Fund."

Charities in Tucson, where several electronics plants have opened recently, reported no problems with fund-raising. The Tucson United Way collected $2.6 million last year, reaching its goal for the first time in several years. "Employment is up, the Tucson economy is expanding and many organizations are going ahead with programs they were forced to postpone for years when our economy was so flat," said Timothy Creedon, vice president of the Valley National Bank and fund-raiser for Junior Achievement.

'State Of Siege' Is Ordered By El Salvador Chief

By EDUARDO VASQUEZ BECKER
Associated Press Writer
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Carlos Humberto Romero imposed a state of siege to crush protests against El Salvador's military regime after leftist guerrillas assassinated his education minister. The state of siege, a modified form of martial law, is to last 30 days and empowers the Defense Ministry to make arrests without charge, searches without warrants, restrict movement, establish a curfew, censor the press, open mail and tap telephones. Education Minister Carlos Antonio Herrera Rebollo and his driver were killed by automatic weapons fire as they drove to the Education Ministry Wednesday morning.

The Farabundo Marti Popular Liberation Forces, believed the biggest of three leftist guerrilla groups operating in El Salvador, claimed responsibility.

The same group kidnapped and killed Foreign Minister Mauricio Borjonovo in 1977 when the government refused to release 37 political prisoners.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Kenneth Brown said of the latest assassination:

"Such violence is no answer to any of the problems facing that country. We note that the government of El Salvador has demonstrated a willingness to engage in a dialogue with opposition groups.

"The spiral of violence must be brought to an end and concrete efforts undertaken to promote...an end to violence and to human rights abuse."

Meanwhile, the opposition Christian Democratic Party rejected a government offer to begin a national dialogue among students, workers, politicians and clergy, saying that as long as there was government repression, such a forum would be "fruitless." The president proposed the forum last week in a televised speech.

The Christian Democrats said the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, the coalition of peasants, workers and students spearheading the latest protests, should be included in any dialogue, an idea the government rejects because the Bloc is not officially approved.

On May 4, militants of the Bloc seized El Salvador's cathedral and the French and Costa Rican Embassies, and later took the Venezuelan Embassy and several churches. The siege at the Costa Rican Embassy ended peacefully May 9, but the Bloc still occupies the churches and the Venezuelan Embassy and is holding the ambassador and five other hostages in the French Embassy.

Police shot and killed 14 men, women and children outside the Venezuelan Embassy Tuesday evening as they and scores of other marchers were trying to take food to Bloc members in- dor and seven other hostages militants inside had refused safe conduct out of the country.

Joe Clark Boning Up On Governing Canada

Associated Press Writer
TORONTO (AP) — Prime Minister-elect Joe Clark settled into the solitude of a mountain lodge today for a crash course on governing Canada and some major decisions on just how far his unstable minority government can go in trying to swing the country to the right.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, whose 11-year-old Liberal government was toppled by Clark's Progressive Conservatives in Tuesday's national election, spent the day after his defeat privately in Ottawa as Clark held his first post-election news conference and indicated he will not compromise on key Conservative programs despite his precarious political position.

The Conservatives won 136 seats in the 282-seat House of Commons, six short of a majority, and the Liberals 114. To govern as a minority, the Conservatives must depend on the Liberals and minor parties not combining against them. Historically such a tense minority-government situation lasts no more than a year or two.

At Wednesday's news conference in Edmonton, Alberta, Clark said he hopes "all opposition parties will want to give the Progressive Conservatives a fair chance to govern."

The actual transition of power will probably come next week, when the 59-year-old Trudeau is expected to tender his resignation to Canada's Governor-General, Ed Schreyer, who will then call Clark and ask him to form a government. The 39-year-old career politician will be this nation's youngest prime minister.

After the news conference, Clark and his top staff traveled to Jasper National Park in western Alberta for four days of quiet preparation.

Clark has said he will introduce a budget when Parliament reconvenes in early fall that will include many of the tax breaks for homeowners and businesses that he promised during his campaign.

Trying To Save Old Lighthouse

By The Associated Press
The U.S. Coast Guard and the National Parks Service are trying to come up with a plan to save the Cape Lookout lighthouse after all.

The park service recently said it wouldn't take any action to save the lighthouse, but it now says it is reconsidering its decision. The service is seeking funds from the Coast Guard to save the structure.

The 120-year-old Outer Banks landmark is threatened by erosion along Bardens Inlet. It has been estimated that the lighthouse will topple into the sound in the early 1980s.

Erosion-control costs have been estimated at $2.95 million to $5.4 million.

Rep. William Whalen, director of the park service, recently told Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., that his agency will support erosion-control measures if it can get funds from the Coast Guard.

The parks service manages the Cape Lookout National Seashore, but the Coast Guard is the owner of the lighthouse.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the request will be considered but that funds were limited and he didn't know if the money would be available.

Gov. Jim Hunt said last week he supports efforts to save the lighthouse. But he said he did not support allocating new funds, just re-allocating money already in the parks service budget.

Meanwhile, a Carteret County group trying to save the lighthouse said it has a cheaper plan.

J.L. "Tony" Seamon of the Committee to Save the Cape, said the committee will ask Hunt to order area National Guard units to put down sandbags — low seawalls lying perpendicular to the beach — to slow erosion.

Seamon said the cost of building the seawall would be less than $200,000 and could be even lower if other military units offered their help.

He said the sandbag wall would be preferable to building stone structures because the sandbags could be slit and the sand let out if the idea didn't work.

Ready To Train Court-Watchers

The Pitt County Court Monitoring Program will begin its summer training for summer volunteer court watchers Thursday, May 24, from 8-10 p.m. in the District Court Room of the county courthouse.

The summer court monitoring will be preparatory experience for volunteers who will be participating in the CMP's three-month period of gathering data about the justice system.

There will be another training session in August-September for CMP volunteers who will be in court observing during the fall.

Attorney Dallas McPherson will conduct the Thursday session.

The Rev. Franklin Brinson, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Guest Singers In Sunday Program

"Heaven Bound" of Kinston will be the guest singing group for the gospel sing program Sunday, May 27, 7:30 p.m., at Kings Crossroad F. W. B. Church near Fountain. The service will be sponsored by the church youth organizations.

The Rev. Franklin Brinson, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Sentence 2 Men To Die

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Two Columbus County men have been sentenced to die in the state's gas chamber following convictions for the slayings of a Fairmont grocer and a customer.

John Wesley Oliver, 28, and George Moore Jr., 20, were sentenced Wednesday in Robeson County Superior Court by Judge Donald L. Smith.

Smith told the court that the jury had given Oliver two death sentences. He informed Moore that he had been sentenced to death and to life in prison.

The men became the ninth and 10th persons sentenced to die under the state's death-penalty law. Two of the 10 are women.

Oliver and Moore were convicted Monday for the Dec. 12, 1978, slaying of Allen Watts, the 49-year-old operator of a convenience store in Fairmont, during an armed robbery, and Dayton C. Hodge, 52, who was killed while he was pumping gas at the store.

The murder convictions will be appealed automatically to the state Supreme Court.

Attorneys for the two renewed their motions for dismissal of the charges under the new 120-day speedy-trial law after sentences were passed. The motions were denied.

Enrolling For Music Camp

Enrollment is now underway for young musicians in the Greenville area who wish to attend the East Carolina University sponsored String Camp.

This year, Dr. Paul Topper is the camp's director. He will be assisted by faculty members E. Gregory Nagode, associate director, Rosemary Fischer, Dr. Daniel Mellado, and other faculty teachers in the strings area.

Registration begins at 8:15 a.m. on June 11 in Room B-105 at A. J. Fltecher Music Center on campus. Enrollment fee for the camp, which lasts through Friday, June 22, is $75 with no partial enrollments accepted.

Students in kindergarten through grade nine are eligible to enroll. Classes and activities for each age and level of achievement will be programmed, with individual instruction emphasized.

As the camp will be limited to 50 students, early application is advisable. Those planning to enroll are to make a $20 deposit by May 30. Checks are to be made to: String Camp, East Carolina University.

For further details, interested persons can call 757-6851 or 757-6331.

trying to maintain stability in the East Wood section. He said that people living in that section are depressed and every time a request is made for Office and Institutional zoning, he feels they are losing part of the residential nature of the section.

Harper said that Stallings' tract is located on the rear of the property under consideration and he might have a piece of property that he can not use. He pointed to several neighboring tracts that are being used for purposes other than residential.

Harper said that Office and Institutional zoning was better than Neighborhood Commercial but Commissioner Sis East asked Harper if O and I was better than R-9.

Commissioner chairman E. E. Howell said that he did not think it was right for property owners to have to fight a battle to keep their areas residential in nature. He said that he did not see why residential areas can't stay residential.

Commissioners unanimously approved the naming of the road referred to as Nursing Home Road, located between NC 43 and Stantonsburg Road, as Moyer Boulevard in recognition of the contributions made by the Moyer family in that area to the city and county, particularly in the health care field when proplemented.

Other city items considered included:
— Approval of the revised final plat of Woods Subdivision located west of Hooker Road and south of Green Mill Run;
— Approval by a three to one margin of a preliminary plat of Ridgewood Apartments located at the western end of Ridge Place and constituting a portion of Woods Subdivision (Commissioners Tugwell, William Gibbs and Lyman Ormond voted in favor of approval, while Mrs. East voted against the motion);

— Approval of the preliminary plat of John's Court Subdivision located between the Seaboard Coastline Railroad and McClellan Street;

— Approval of the preliminary plat of Greenville Manor, located north of the Putt Putt course and east of River Bluff Road, subject to the dedication and acceptance of the road prior to submission of the final plat; and — Approval of the preliminary and final plats of Section I of Twin Oaks, located on the west side of Greenville Boulevard between 14th Street and Golden Road.

The Joint City-County Planning Commission voted to table a request by David Evans Sr. for rezoning 31 acres on the west side of 14th Street Extension across from Windy Ridge from RA-20 to R-6.

The decision to table the matter was made after developer Bill Clark recommended that consideration be given to the creation of a R-9 condominium zone in order to address the needs of condominium development in the area. Clark said that condominiums will be turned to in the near future to meet housing needs.

Roberson agreed that the city needs zoning classifications that allow condominium development. He said that the matter will be discussed at a planning board meeting set for June 20.

Commissioners voted to recommend to the Council that the Subdivision Ordinance be amended to include a section on the "Guarantee of Completion of Improvements-alternate methods."

The section points out that, "The City of Greenville allows subdividers to use the following methods to guarantee completion of improvements, when seeking final subdivision approval: 1) A performance bond; 2) A certified check; 3) An irrevocable letter of credit; 4) An escrow deposit; 5) A second deed of trust."

It adds that, "The performance bond, certified check, irrevocable letter of credit, escrow deposit or second deed of trust shall be furnished to the city...on certain prescribed forms as contained in the Manual of Standard Design and Practice for the city."

Other business on the joint agenda included:
— Recommended approval of a request by Donnie Dixon for rezoning 18 acres on the east side of State Road 1204 some 1,400 feet south of its intersection with NC 43 from RA-20 to R-6;

— Scheduling of a workshop for June 20 at 7 p.m. to consider the proposed Subdivision Ordinance;

— Approval of the final plat of Section II of the Professional Center, located north of State Road 1200 and west of Arlington Boulevard extended, subject to bond requirements being met;

— Approval of the final plat of United Industrial Park, located north of State Road 1579 and 3,100 feet east of the Seaboard Coastline Railroad, subject to bond requirements being met;

— Approval of the final plat of Shenandoah, located north

Firemen Charge...

The paragraphs read: "Brannon said rescue officers offered an EMT (Emergency Medical Technician) class to the firemen a year ago," but said no one signed up."

The article continued: "When the city said we'll give you a five per cent pay raise," according to Brannon, "28 of them enrolled."

Brannon acknowledged today that the article was wrong when it reported, no one signed up to take the class offered by rescue officers. He said actually, six or seven firemen signed up for the training, although all but one name was marked off the list, which had been posted on a Fire Department bulletin board, so the class was not taught.

Brannon said too, that he did not intend to say that all firemen who took the EMT course as part of a Fire-Medic apprenticeship program which started in January, did so because city officials indicated that EMT-trained firemen would receive a five per cent pay hike.

Although some firefighters had indicated that the pay hike was a factor, others said they took the course to better themselves professionally, Brannon said.

"I'd say it was misunderstood," the rescue official said of the comments.

At Tuesday's hearing, Wyatt said the, "administrative review," of, "allegations by fire personnel," was being held in an effort to get specific information as to the allegations, and, "effect any possible action that may have to be taken."

Explaining it was not the purpose of the review session to pressure Brannon, "to make a retraction," Wyatt said, "I think it would be a wonderful gesture on your part."

"This caused a very, very inflammatory situation," Wyatt said, suggesting that Brannon would be doing a public service to, "take the edge off of it..."

He added that any action by Brannon would, "have a bearing on what the disposition of this matter is."

However, Wyatt emphasized, "I want to make it quite clear," that Brannon was not being asked to put a retraction, "or modification," in the newspaper.

Wyatt said this morning that he has scheduled a meeting this afternoon with Chief Allen and Assistant Chief Brannon to discuss general organizational problems within the department.

"It is sincerely hoped by me," Wyatt said, "that the personnel within the department will work together."

"I certainly believe that reasonable people with different points of view can work together for the best interest of the citizens of Greenville," Wyatt continued.

"In spite of the situation raised relative to Chief Brannon," according to the city manager, "since a meeting a number of months ago to discuss mutual department problems, there has been, generally speaking, cooperation in spite of major questions that are presently under review."

The city council has scheduled a special session for June 5, to take action on a request to separate the fire and rescue operations.

Studies of the fire and rescue service in Greenville by the North Carolina League of Municipalities and by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce both recommend the services remain together.

— Recommended approval of an amendment to a section of the Zoning Ordinance to include "Accessory buildings or use" as a special use in the Health Care District.

Roberson said that Pitt Memorial Hospital requested that the Health Care District be amended. A letter from Ralph Hall, director of the physical plant at the hospital, indicated that in order to make available safe landing facilities for emergency helicopters at the hospital, the construction of a permanent heliport is proposed.

Hall said in his letter that the hospital feels the heliport construction for emergency medical services would be considered as an accessory to the hospital.

Israeli Planes Again Raid In Lebanon

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes blasted guerrilla strongholds in Lebanon for the second straight day today then buzzed Yasser Arafat's Beirut headquarters following cross-border shelling that left two Israelis wounded and a PLO bombing that killed two Israeli women and a baby.

Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization said the Israeli jets bombed and rocketed guerrilla positions at Reihan mountain, 40 miles southeast of Beirut, and "maintained a thundering umbrella over all towns and villages in south Lebanon, crashing the sound barrier and causing panic-spreading sonic booms."

Shortly after the mid-morning raids, the Israeli warplanes buzzed the southern fringe of Beirut that houses Arafat's headquarters.

The PLO also said the Israelis pounded the Palestinian stronghold of Aichiyeh today with heavy artillery and rockets, "causing heavy damage and considerable casualties." Aichiyeh is a hilltop village near the Reihan mountain from which guerrillas rockets hit northern Israeli settlements.

The Tel Aviv command said two Israelis were wounded by Palestinian shelling of northern towns early today and that the Israelis fired back. It said shortly afterward that Israeli jets attacked "terrorist concentrations" in Lebanon starting at 10 a.m. and that all the planes returned safely. It gave no details of the raids.

A team of AP reporters and photographers, threading their way between huge bomb craters at Damour, narrowly escaped a delayed action explosion that injured a reporter and a cameraman from the PLO-controlled Wafa news agency.

"We were walking up this hill and I was just staring straight ahead into the darkness when there was this flash right ahead of us," said AP photographer Derek Ives. "I could feel the concussion against my chest. Another six seconds and we would have been right on top of it."

The Israeli planes returned to their bases after about an hour. The strikes followed a bomb blast in Petah Tikva, six miles northeast of Tel Aviv, that the PLO claimed responsibility for.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met in London today with visiting Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Neither Vance nor Begin commented on the 90-minute meeting. After the talks Vance flew to Alexandria, Egypt for a meeting with President Anwar Sadat.

Vance's talks were expected to focus on the U.S.-mediated Israeli-Egyptian talks on Palestinian autonomy set to open Friday in the southern Israeli city of Beersheba. Vance, Begin and Sadat are to take part in weekend ceremonies marking the return of El Arish.

Israel and Egypt have staked out headline negotiating stands for the autonomy talks, which are expected to lead to self-rule for the 1.1 million Palestinians of the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Would Install PCB Signs

MCGEE'S CROSSROADS, N.C. (AP) — If a Johnston County man has his way, signs bearing the message, "PCB Cleanup — Hunt's Folly," will soon be placed across Eastern North Carolina.

T. Mitchell Langdon began his sign campaign last week. He said he thought the state had enough time to do something about the PCBs dumped along the roadside near his front yard last summer.

So last weekend, he erected two 4-by-8 wooden signs along two highways near his home. Flanked by a skull and crossbones, the sign bore his PCB message to Gov. Jim Hunt.

On Monday, state Transportation Department officials asked Langdon to move the sign on N.C. 50 because it was in the state's right of way. Langdon moved the sign, but it was still visible Wednesday from the highway.

Langdon said Wednesday he hopes to convince other Eastern North Carolina residents to put up signs to show their dissatisfaction with the way the state has handled the PCB cleanup.

Toxic PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyl, were dumped along 210 miles of state roadsides last summer.

"We've got 100 more signs on the way," said Langdon, 27. "They'll be going up all over Eastern North Carolina in the next 30 days. I have a lot of help on this."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed today in a quiet, drifting session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 7.97 Wednesday, edged up .09 to 837.49 by noon-time today.

Declines outnumbered advances by a 4-3 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Earlier in the week signs of a slowing economy sent the market higher, with investors apparently going on the theory that reduced business activity might bring with it lower inflation and interest rates. But as the evidence of a possible slowdown accumulated Wednesday, traders seemed to have some second thoughts about those hopes. When automakers posted an aggregate 25 percent drop in sales for the 10-day period in mid-May, the auto issues and other blue chips sold off. The auto group steadied today. Ford Motor lost 3/4 to 41 1/2 and General Motors was down 1/2 at 58 1/2, but American Motors was unchanged at 6 1/2 and Chrysler rose 1/4 to 8 1/2.

Schering-Plough led the active list, off 1/4 at 29 1/2. A 222,700-share block traded at that price. The NYSE's composite index dropped .09 to 56.29. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .60 at 182.70.

Volume on the Big Board came to 10.61 million shares at noon, down from 15.34 million at the same point Wednesday.

Arrest Suspect In Break-In

Phillip Silas Burnworth, 23 of Kinston was arrested before dawn today on charges of breaking, entering and larceny, in connection with the break-in of a coin operated machine at Williams' Texaco service station at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street. Cannon said an estimated $10 was removed from a coin operated drink machine at the station.

He added that officers are continuing their search for a second man seen running from the scene of the break-in.

Man Jailed In Robbery

Ricky Leggett, 28 of Route 2, Robersonville, was jailed under a $2,500 bond last night by Greenville Police on robbery charges following investigation of an incident at Newby's Sub Shop at 205 East Fifth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said employees of the firm reported to police at 10 p.m. that a robbery had occurred at the store and that they had the alleged robber in custody.

Investigators, Cannon explained, reported that Leggett allegedly entered the food establishment, ordered several sandwiches, then, with his hand in his pocket, allegedly threatened the cashier and took $339 from the cash register.

The clerk and another employee stopped Leggett as he was about to leave the building and took the cash from him and called the police.

AT JOHN PIERCE FELLOWSHIP — Corey Stokes, president of the Pierce Fellowship Club stands on a table at Camp Contentment on the banks of the Contentnea Creek between Ayden and Grifton as he presided over the annual gathering of Democratic men yesterday. Among officials attending yesterday's gathering was North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham, State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, State ABC Board chairman Marvin Speight, and North Carolina Court of Appeals Judge Robert Martin. Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray was elected president of the fellowship club for the coming year, while Walter Dail of Winterville was named vice-president. Charles McLawhorn was elected secretary-treasurer and Kirby Smith chosen assistant secretary-treasurer. Following the election, Gray said, "I don't know of anything that could honor me more."

Some Damage Due To Thunderstorms

Heavy thunderstorms struck the Greenville-Pitt County area Wednesday afternoon and early Thursday morning, with 1.10 inches of rainfall received Wednesday and 1.55 inches Thursday.

According to Malcolm Green of the Greenville Utilities Commission, a direct stroke of lightning struck a utility pole outside of Winterville Wednesday afternoon, affecting a transmission circuit servicing Winterville, Ayden and areas in southern Pitt County. He estimated that customers were back on line in approximately 30 minutes.

A thunderstorm early Thursday morning spelled trouble for the area around Frog Level as a number of utility poles were directly struck by lightning. Fire department members were called to put out fire on the poles. However, Green noted that servicemen were able to keep the situation under control.

Temperatures in mid to high 70's, with lows in the 60's, have prevailed this week. According to the GUC Water Department, the river level has dropped from the Tuesday reading of 13.3 feet on the national scale to 11.2 feet Thursday.

Man Dies As Car Ran Off Highway

ROBERSONVILLE — James McGinnis, 24, of Straw Plains, Tennessee, was killed in an early Wednesday evening accident three miles east of Robersonville.

According to the investigating officer, Trooper Robert H. Wright, McGinnis died in the one-car accident when a 1973 Opel, driven by the victim's wife, Deborah McGinnis, 23, ran off the road on a curve and crashed into a tree off the right-hand side of the highway. Time of the accident was at approximately 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. McGinnis and the couple's two-year old daughter, Allison Lea, were transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital. A spokesman at Pitt Memorial this morning reported Mrs. McGinnis in stable condition, but could not provide information on the condition of the child since she is a minor.

Trooper Wright said that no charges are being placed in the accident.

Investigating Break-In Here

Chief Glenn Cannon this morning said officers are continuing their investigation of a break-in reported at Garner-Wynne-Manning wholesale company on Memorial Drive, yesterday. The chief said thieves, sometime Tuesday night, entered the Garner-Wynne-Manning building and took 50 instant print cameras.

 presented by Howard Dawkins, a member of the Chamber's Thoroughfare Planning Task Force. Representing East Carolina University was Dick Blake, who presented a request calling for a pedestrian overpass at the intersection of Tenth Street and College Hill Drive. He projected an estimated cost of $250,000 for the overpass.

Speight presented a resolution calling for the prompt planning and implementation of the western loop. Other priorities listed by Speight included the widening of N.C. 43 and making N.C.11-U.S. 13 four lanes from Highway 903 to Bethel.

Garland Does Well In Tribe Return

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The song says it's a long, long way from May to September, but it was the other way around and even longer between complete games for sore-shouldered Wayne Garland — from September (1977) to May (1979).

The 28-year-old right-hander, who made only six appearances last season before undergoing surgery for a torn rotator cuff in his shoulder, allowed four singles Wednesday night for his first complete game since 1977 as the Cleveland Indians nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 4-3...and two of the Toronto runs were unearned.

In other American League action, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Boston Red Sox 5-2 on Pat Kelly's three-run pinch homer in the 10th inning, the Texas Rangers whipped the Minnesota Twins 7-2 behind Al Oliver's three home runs, the Milwaukee Brewers shaded the California Angels 1-0, the Detroit Tigers edged the New York Yankees 4-3 and the Chicago White Sox beat the Oakland A's 6-1. Kansas City and Seattle were not scheduled.

Garland, 24, was a 20-game winner for Baltimore in 1976 and then signed a lucrative free agent contract with the Indians. But he dipped to a 13-19 record in 1977 and it appeared as though his career might be over last year.

Orioles 5, Red Sox 2
Kelly's first home run of the season ruined a complete-game effort by Bob Stanley and came after Billy Smith's one-out infield hit and an error by third baseman Butch Hobson. Eddie Murray also homered for the Orioles, who won for the 24th time in the last 30 games.

his mustache and changed his uniform number from 21 to 32, held the Red Sox to eight hits over the first nine innings.

Rangers 7, Twins 2
Oliver smashed a two-run homer in the first inning and solo shots in the fifth and eighth as Texas hammered a club record five homers and Ferguson Jenkins allowed six hits. Pat Putnam and Mike Jorgensen also homered, with Oliver and Putnam slamming two-run shots in the first inning.

Brewers 1, Angels 0
Paul Molitor scored the game's only run on Don Aase's bases-loaded wild pitch with two out in the seventh inning and Billy Travers hurled a six-hitter for his second consecutive shutout. Molitor and Sal Bando singled with two out and Gorman Thomas walked. Aase's 1-2 pitch to pinch hitter Charlie Moore bounced in the dirt and was deflected about 10 feet down the third base line by catcher Jim Anderson, who then slipped trying to retrieve the ball.

Tigers 4, Yankees 3
Jim Kaat nicked Steve Kemp on the arm with a 1-2 pitch with two out in the bottom of the ninth to force home the winning run. The Tigers loaded the bases with one out against Ken Clay on two walks around a single by Mark Wagner before Kaat got Lou Whitaker to ground into a force at the plate.

White Sox 6, A's 1
Chet Lemon's tie-breaking three-run homer climaxed a four-run fifth inning that carried Ken Kravec to his fourth straight victory.

LaCoss, Reds Whip Giants, Blue By 5-0

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Mike LaCoss said Manager John McNamara waved his magic wand again — but the wands Dave Collins & Co. had something to do with it, too.

LaCoss, unbeaten this year, chalked up his fifth victory by three-hitting San Francisco Wednesday night while Collins, Johnny Bench and Ray Knight were hitting home runs off Vida Blue in Cincinnati's 5-0 white-washing of the Giants.

It washed away the bad taste of the Reds' 12-2 loss 24 hours earlier and widened their National League West lead to 2½ games over the Giants.

In the rest of the NL it was Atlanta 6, Houston 5; St. Louis 3, Philadelphia 1; Los Angeles 4, San Diego 2, and Montreal 3, Pittsburgh 0. Chicago at New York was rained out.

"We haven't lost a game I've started yet," said LaCoss, a 23-year-old right-hander. "It seems like Mac waves a magic wand when I pitch."

"Like tonight, he puts Dave Collins in left field and he hits a home run (his first as a National Leaguer). He's just a super manager."

LaCoss' first start this year came against the Giants after the Reds had lost their first three games. It was a disaster for him — four hits and five runs allowed in two-thirds of an inning, although none of them were earned because of an error he committed. Still, the Reds won that one 7-6 and haven't lost with him on the mound.

Blue, who has lost three in a row, has been getting shelled of late. Last year he allowed 12 home runs in 258 innings. This year he's given up a dozen in only 80.

Braves 6, Astros 5
Jerry Royster's two-run single highlighted Atlanta's five-run eighth inning that enabled Tony Brizzolara to chalk up his first major league victory. Brizzolara allowed seven hits in eight innings but was virtually untouchable after Houston's four-run first.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 1

The St. Louis Cardinals literally stole their game from Philadelphia. Three stolen bases off Phils pitcher Dick Ruthven were followed by three run-scoring hits. In the third, Ken Oberkfell singled, stole second and came in on Gary Templeton's single. Templeton then stole second and came home on Keith Hernandez's single. The Cardinals made it 3-0 in the fourth when Tony Scott singled, stole second and came home on Ken Reitz's double.

Dodgers 4, Padres 2

Burt Hooton checked San Diego on six hits and Steve Garvey doubled home two runs in the Dodgers' victory. Los Angeles shelled Randy Jones and three relievers for 14 hits, four by Dusty Baker.

The Dodgers wiped out the Padres' 2-1 lead in the fifth when Gary Thomasson and Bill Russell singled, Garvey doubled them both home, then Garvey scored on Baker's single.

Expos 3, Pirates 0

Steve Rogers scattered eight hits and Tony Perez and Warren Cromartie knocked in runs to help the Expos beat Pittsburgh and win for the fifth time in six games. Rodney Scott's bunt single preceded Perez's triple off loser John Candelaria in the fourth inning and Montreal added two runs, one on Cromartie's single, in the eighth off Kent Tekulve.

Five big golf tournaments were scheduled for the state of Ohio in 1979, including the U.S. Open and the U.S. Amateur.

In 1957, Lew Burdette, Milwaukee Brave right-hander, defeated the New York Yankees three times in World Series play.

Rain Again Hits Games

Rain forced the postponement of all area sports activity yesterday.

The first round State Softball Playoff game between New Bern and Greene Central was washed out after one batter came to the plate. It has been rescheduled for 3:30 today at Greene Central.

In addition, the two Greenville Little League games were rained out and postponed until Sunday. The Moose will meet the Exchange at 2 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium, with the Kiwanis taking on the Optimists at 4 p.m.

All recreation softball games were postponed until later in the season.

Matney Out Of Tourney

CHAPEL HILL — Rose High School's Fred Matney, winner of the Northeastern Sectional, was eliminated in the first round of the State High School Tennis Tournament yesterday.

Matney was defeated by Robbie Lowe of Myers Park in Charlotte, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, to knock him out of the competition. The tournament was to be completed today.

Luck Follows King As Heels Take Lead

By SKIP FOREMAN
Associated Press Writer
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Kevin King has had his share of bad luck the past two years, but in Wednesday's opening round of the NCAA Golf Championship, King had luck on his side.

The University of North Carolina senior carded a course-record 5-under-par 67 on the Bermuda Run Golf Course to give the Tar Heels to the team lead after the first round of play. He also put himself in the lead for individual honors.

Trailing King was Lennie Clements of San Diego State with a 69. King's teammate, John McGough, was in third place with a round of 70. Texas Christian's Kevin Harrison, finishing in near-darkness, shot a 71.

"I played probably the best I've played in two years," King said. "I struck it real well. I didn't miss a shot on the front side."

But it was the back nine which provided King with the most trouble, starting with the 15th hole. He sliced his tee shot on the par four, 416-yard hole been two sand traps and behind a tree. He scrambled to get his second shot to the green, and two-putted to save par.

At the par-three 16, King pulled his drive into a trap to the left of the green. He blasted out of the trap but had to two putt. At 17, in attempting to cut a dogleg right, King's shot bounced off a stack of lumber placed out of bounds and kicked into the right rough near the fairway, behind another tree.

His second shot crossed the fairway and landed in a trap in front of the green. He blasted out of the trap to within 30 feet of the hole. He holed out the putt to gain back the lost stroke.

To finish the round, King eagled the par-four 18th hole when he converted a 142-yard, eight-iron shot from the right side of the fairway.

King, a native of Winston-Salem, said UNC now has an excellent chance of winning the team title, based on Wednesday's performance. Along with King's and McGough's rounds, the Tar Heels were aided by a 74 from Phil Bland and a 75 by Joey Sadowski. Frank Fuhrer shot a 76 but his score was not included in the final team total.

Clements, also a North Carolina native from Cherry Point, said he was really pleased with the layout of the Bermuda Run course.

"It's made for my game because it's really a driver's course," Clements said.

Clements has been in North Carolina for the past three weeks, having competed in the North and South Amateur Championships at Pinehurst.

Following UNC in the team race Wednesday was the University of Houston with a 294 total. Georgia and Georgia Southern were tied for third at 297, along with Brigham Young and Southern California. New Mexico and Fresno State were tied at 298.

Defending champion Oklahoma State, one of the last teams to tee off Wednesday, finished back in the pack at 299.

Wednesday's round got under way a half hour late due to dense fog, and it ended with light rain falling on the course. Today's round was to begin under the threat of rain.

Bullets Are No Fat Cats

Jim Kyle

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets, with a chance to become the first repeat champions of the National Basketball Association in 10 years, may not be the fat cats they're depicted as.

When the Bullets struggled to beat Atlanta 4-3 and then had to overcome a 3-1 deficit before prevailing over San Antonio, some observers figured they had lost the desire which carried them to the top last year.

But veteran forwards Bobby Dandridge and Elvin Hayes say a second championship would be even more satisfying than the first.

"We have more reason to win than Seattle," Dandridge said as the two finalists of last season prepared for tonight's contest in Capital Centre, the Bullets leading 1-0 in the best-of-seven series.

"Two championship rings would be icing on the cake for Wes (center Wes Unseld), Elvin and myself," Dandridge said. "And we have some young players who realize that a lot of great players in the league never even get to play for the championship."

"I learned a long time ago to forget my personal goals," said Hayes, who finished third in the voting for the NBA's most valuable player. "The championship ring means more to me. I want a second one. The first one was good, and I want more."

Seattle, meantime, is encountering the same kind of doubt that Washington faced last season — even though the Super-

Sonics extended the Bullets to seven games a year ago and finished behind them this year with the second-best regular season record.

Coach Lenny Wilkens was a bit bemused by a question at a practice session this week which seemed to suggest the SuperSonics were still not for real.

"We don't have to prove anything," Wilkens said. "That was started last year by people trying to understand why THEY didn't make it. Well, we're here again...and they're still watching."

The Bullets won Sunday's opener 99-97 when reserve guard Larry Wright sank two free throws after being fouled as time expired. With Wright scoring 26 points, Washington substitutes outscored Seattle's 32-8.

The SuperSonics, although tired from a transcontinental trip that couldn't be made until early Saturday — after they found out who their opponent would be — were alert enough to convert 20 Washington turnovers into 23 points.

But Seattle was clobbered 55-41 in rebounds, and sank only 11 of 23 free throws. Gus Williams, who led the SuperSonics with 32 points, was 4-for-11 from the line.

"We didn't press as much as we normally do," Wilkens said. "But now that we're rested, you'll see it more often."

AREA HIGH SCHOOL basketball fans might remember Bryant Wiggins, who signed a grant-in-aid recently to attend East Carolina University. A Rolesville native, Wiggins was a member of the 1977 Wake Forest-Rolesville team that defeated North Pitt in the championship game of the state 3-A tournament.

A senior that year, Wiggins scored six points against the Panthers in a 48-42 Cougar victory, including the basket that put his team ahead to stay. He spent a season at Massanutten Military Academy in Virginia (where Sonny Randle coached football after leaving ECU) and was out of school last year.

In addition to the 6-1 Wiggins, new Pirate coach Dave Odom has signed 6-4 guard Tony Byles, 6-1 guard Raymond Tyson and 6-8 forward Michael Gibson. Also, former Pirate Herb Gray, who quit the team last year, announced he would return to play next season under Odom. He is a 6-8 forward.

NEW YORK YANKEE pitcher Tommy John seems to be taking over this year where teammate Ron Guidry left off last season. John recorded his ninth straight victory Sunday in his first season with the Yanks. The former Dodger signed a six-year free agent contract with the New York club last year.

Guidry, last season's runaway American League Cy Young winner, got off to a 13-0 start a year ago and finished the season with a 25-3 record. With less than a quarter of the season gone, John would win 37 or 38 games at his current pace.

Guidry, on the other hand, has had a rougher time this season. He is currently 4-3 and hit a career low Monday when he gave up 13 hits in a 3-1 loss to Detroit. He also volunteered for bullpen service when ace reliever Goose Gossage was injured in a clubhouse brawl with Cliff Johnson.

BOSTON CELTICS GENERAL Manager Red Auerbach has been quoted as saying the NBA needs to move from a 24-second shot clock to a 20-second clock to generate more of a run-and-gun atmosphere.

"I want more action. I want teams to get a rebound, throw it out, boom, boom. I want a breaking type of game."

That may be what Auerbach wants, but the fans appear to want something different. Attendance and television ratings indicate college basketball is much more popular than the NBA. With no shot clock, the colleges depend on team play and strategy, rather than the NBA's one-on-one style.

Ayden's Edwards Is Seeking World Title

By Monica Sutherland

Demetrius (De) Edwards, a 25-year old native of Ayden, has just returned from Lake Tahoe, Nevada, where he knocked out the Italian champion Jeff Checci in the second round of the light-heavyweight karate match. The event was held in the Sahara Tahoe Hotel on the shores of Lake Tahoe on the Nevada-California border.

With this victory, Edwards is now a contender for the World Light-Heavyweight Championship Title.

Ranked number one in light-heavyweight range by both the World Karate Association and the Professional Karate Association, Edwards was a favorite of the Lake Tahoe audiences attending the fight.

"De is a natural fighter," says Bill McDonald, coach/manager of Edwards. "But for all his strength and fighting ability, he is really just a big teddy bear."

Edwards' record is now an impressive 22-1-1 with the loss falling early in his career. Nine of his wins were by knockouts. Weighing in at 180 pounds with a 5 foot ten inches height, Edwards is nicknamed "Oak Tree" because of his solid, rugged physique.

McDonald, a resident of Greenville, began working with Edwards about three and a half years ago. Now Edwards has a black belt in karate and has fought in point competition as well as full-contact events such as the Lake Tahoe fight.

In full-contact karate, opponents use safety equipment on their hands and feet to prevent serious injuries. The Lake Tahoe match, which will be televised nationally on NBC Sports in June, featured six major fights, all ending in a knockout.

"As a fighter, De is remarkable," commented McDonald. "He has both the speed of a good point fighter and the strength necessary for full contact fighting."

"When De first came to me, I saw the potential of a good fighter, but I don't believe either of us expected this much so soon." McDonald has also trained other outstanding karate competitors, both in point and full-contact. Tony Lopez, a former world karate champion, was trained by McDonald.

Edwards gained his black belt in two years of intensive training. Now he devotes all his time to training, something he can afford to do with his fight earnings.

Edwards is up at 7 a.m. and runs six miles everyday before breakfast. The rest of the day is spent stretching, resting and working out in a series of ten two-minute rounds. The workouts include punching, kicking the bag, and jumping rope.

Three days a week Edwards spars with McDonald building up in rounds prior to scheduled fights. Five days before a fight, after weeks of continuing training, Edwards rests and builds up energy for the fight.

For Edwards, his success in karate has brought on many new opportunities. A graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School where he was an all-state wrestler, Edwards had never been away from eastern North Carolina until his karate career got underway. Now he has traveled all over the U.S. and hopes to visit Europe soon.

"I love to travel," Edwards comments. "That's one of the best things about fighting, a chance to see new places and meet lots of people." His schedule has taken him to New York, Atlanta, Los Angeles, Chicago and several other large American cities where championship karate is growing in popularity.

When Edwards first started training in championship karate, or "kick-boxing" as it is sometimes referred to, he never thought of it as a career. Now he hopes to also box professionally. He has already boxed one professional fight as a heavyweight, knocking out his opponent in the first round.

"He's really unbelievable," says McDonald. "De makes friends wherever we go. Everybody loves him and pulls for him at the fights, even if they have just met him."

Plan Could Change Tour

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — A plan to drastically alter the shape of the PGA Tour, in effect splitting it into major and minor divisions, is being considered and could go into effect in two years.

A feasibility study for the two-tour concept is being conducted and, "if the final determination is reached this year, it's possible to implement it by 1981," PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman said.

His statement Wednesday confirmed an Associated Press report of the proposed changes that were presented in a closed door meeting of the players more than three weeks ago.

On another matter, Beman said a brief tour for seniors, players over 50 years old, will be held next year. A maximum of six such tournaments will be held, but that number, Beman said "is very ambitious. I think it will be more like three to five events."

He had said earlier that the tour office was "very much aware" that Arnold Palmer — the greatest drawing card golf has produced — will be eligible for the seniors tour next year.

The go-ahead to conduct a formal study of the split-tour plan was given at a meeting of the tour's policy board. Under the plan, which was proposed by the touring players, a major tour of less than 35 events would be held with minimum purses of $300,000.

Competing on this tour — which compares with the 44-event schedule now held — would be the tour's top 100 players.

The next 150 players, off a money-winning list, would compete in a series of tournaments carrying a value of $100,000 to $150,000. The plans call for "about the same number" of events on this tour as the major circuit, Beman said.

The major and minor tournaments could be conducted simultaneously in different cities. "The advantages would be we would play in 60 cities instead of the current 45."

Questions Still Left About Indy's Format

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Off-track distractions continued to hold the spotlight today as the cars qualified for Sunday's Indianapolis 500 got their last pre-race opportunity to use the 1/2-mile Speedway oval.

The unanswered question as the day dawned was whether 11 non-qualified entries would get a chance to add their cars to the traditional 33-car field in a special trial session.

Those entries, bumped from the lineup by faster cars during the final day of qualifying last weekend, were offered the unprecedented chance Tuesday in a special ruling by the U.S. Auto Club.

A roadblock, however, was a stipulation that all 33 entries already in the field would have to approve the move in writing. A.J. Foyt, Indy's only four-time winner, appeared to be the major hurdle.

Foyt was in Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, watching two of his horses race at Churchill Downs, but a member of his racing team said he was against the idea.

By late Wednesday night, 26 of the 33 entries in the field had approved the special session and the scramble continued into the morning to get signatures from the others, including Foyt.

The qualified cars were to take to the track for two hours today for their final opportunity to test fuel mileage and tune up their chassis and engines.

The move to allow the bumped cars to requalify intensified the battle between USAC and the dissident Championship Auto Racing Teams. Although representatives from the two warring groups were meeting nearby in an apparent peace move initiated by veteran driver Roger McCluskey, CART President Pat Patrick took a slap at USAC.

Patrick said USAC, which sanctions Indianapolis and other championship races, should have taken sole responsibility to order the extra qualifying, rather than passing the decision along to the entire starting field.

At the same time, however, Patrick announced that all 19 CART entries in the race had agreed to the USAC proposal. "Due to the unfortunate circumstances surrounding qualifying, we have polled our CART membership, and we sincerely believe that every car unfairly removed from the field should have an equal opportunity to qualify," he said.

Veteran driver Al Loquasto was disgusted with what he felt was a lack of effort on the part of USAC to get the signatures.

"Pat Patrick heard about this situation, got on his airplane, flew here and had all the CART signatures in a half hour," Loquasto said. "Meanwhile, USAC sent me, Jerry Karl and John Martin — and none of us are even USAC members — to get all the signatures."

"CART has 19 entries in the field and USAC's got 14. Seven USAC entries signed, and me, Jerry and John were the ones that signed them. USAC signed nobody. What does that tell you about USAC?"

Following nearly two hours of talks among drivers, owners, sponsors, mechanics and others from the racing community, McCluskey, whose car owner had not signed the waiver form, still sounded an optimistic note for at least an eventual settlement of the differences between the two racing groups.

Four Selected For N.C. Hall

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Four outstanding athletes have been voted into the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame this year, raising the Hall's members to a total of 72.

Chosen for induction into the Hall by the organization's board of directors were:

—Billy Ray Barnes, former all-pro football star and Wake Forest University football-baseball standout.

—Jack King, state and world champion trap and skeet shooter. He is still competing.

—Ronnie Shavlik, former All-America basketball center and multiple record-setter at North Carolina State University 24 years ago.

—Ernie Shore, former major league baseball pitcher who more than 60 years ago pitched one of the few perfect games in big-league history.

The four new members will be inducted during the latter part of the year at a banquet tentatively scheduled to be held in Raleigh. The site and date will be announced within the next few weeks by Hall President Willis Murphrey.

Barnes, 44-year-old native of Lándis, currently resides in the Atlanta suburb of Lilburn, where he is a building contractor. He was an All-America selection at Wake Forest in football in 1956 and all-Atlantic Coast Conference in baseball in 1955 and 1956.

He was a first-round draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles and played five years for them. He later was an assistant coach for the New Orleans Saints and the Atlanta Falcons.

King, 70, was born in Henry County, Va., but has resided for the last 66 years in Greensboro, where he is retired from a contracting business. He has a total of 51 state trap and skeet shooting championships, and captured the World Senior Skeet Championship in 1973.

Shavlik, 45, a native of Denver, Colo., was an All-America basketball performer at N. C. State in 1955 and 1956. The 6-8 former Wolfpack pivotman holds seven team records, including 35 rebounds in a single game and 19 free throws made in a single game.

Shore, now 88, was born in East Bend and has resided in Winston-Salem since ending his pro baseball career. He won 63 and lost 42 games during his seven years in the majors, and hurled 10 shutout victories while compiling a 2.45 earned-run average.

Shore's most notable performance with the Boston Red Sox came on June 23, 1917, when he retired 27 batters in a 4-0 victory over Washington for one of the few perfect, no-hit games in major league history.

Bonnett Puts Car On Pole

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Neil Bonnett provided a variation on a theme Wednesday when he grabbed the pole position for Sunday's $363,000 World 600 stock car race.

Bonnett's triumph, which came on an average speed of 160.125 mph over four laps on the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway, marked the 13th time in the past 14 races at Charlotte that the Wood brothers' team put a car on the pole.

But the variation came in that it was Bonnett — and not David Pearson — behind the wheel of the Woods' Mercury.

Pearson split from the team earlier this year and Bonnett, a 32-year-old Hueytown, Ala., resident who had two career wins going into the season, was picked as Pearson's replacement.

So far, Bonnett has given the Wood brothers a strong run in the Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala., earlier this month, a win in the Mason-Dixon 500 at Dover, Del., last Sunday and now the $15,000 pole award for Sunday's race.

"The car is capable of winning every time it goes out," Bonnett declared after his qualifying laps. Because it was Bonnett's first shot at Charlotte as the Woods' pilot, and because of the Pearson Woods string of pole wins, Bonnett was the subject of much discussion before qualifying began.

brothers and the team's skill with the Mercury.

"The boys ain't quit working since we been here," he said. "What's amazing to me is that we've made probably 20 changes on the car and not a one of them in the wrong direction."

Fifteen spots in the 40-car field were filled Wednesday, with the remainder up for grabs today and Friday.

Richard Petty took the other front-row spot for Sunday's race with an average speed of 159.825 mph. After Petty came Darrell Waltrip, Benny Parsons, Cale Yarborough and Donnie Allison.

"There's no animosity between the two of us," Bonnett said. "I'd just like to think I could halfway pull off what he's done."

Ingemar Johansson was disqualified in the finals of the 1952 Olympic heavyweight competition for an inept effort, but seven years later he won the world heavyweight title.

ANNIVERSARY

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to wind up whatever projects that have not been completed and to study new means by which you will be able to put your ideas and viewpoints across to others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Keep busy at unfinished tasks and clear the slate for a new week. Evening is fine for visiting congenials and having a good time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to have added income in the future and take initial steps now. Make sure to keep your side of an agreement.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Tap your subconscious mind for ideas that can help you get ahead. Come to a better understanding with loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A different approach at private matters can see them vastly improved now. Study every phase of them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are able to gain a personal aim with relative ease at this time. Handle correspondence with clarity of purpose.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are capable of handling an annoying civic affair very well. Take no risks with your reputation at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Some far-away interests are still on your mind, so attend to them quickly and well. Your intuitive faculties are working accurately now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Use a sensible way of taking care of your responsibilities. Try to be helpful to those who are less fortunate than yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A long talk with associates can help clear up misunderstandings and make operations better in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't jeopardize your reputation by some unwise act today. Take the right health treatments you need. Act more sensibly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend to civic affairs in the most intelligent way and improve your position in the community. Don't lose your temper with anyone.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use tact today since you could run into delays. Meditate and you establish more harmony. Don't be too trustful of others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young persons who has many talents and will likely jump from one thing to another without finishing anything, so teach to finish whatever has been started and success will follow.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Police Check 3 Collisions

An estimated 2,600 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 9:27 a.m. mishap on Memorial Drive, 1,200 feet South of the Glenwood Drive intersection, involving trucks driven by Curtis Allen Creel of Kinston and Phillip Jensen Broadhurst of 105 Crown Point Rd.

Police, who charged Broadhurst with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage from the collision at $700 to the Creel vehicle and $500 to the Broadhurst truck.

A 12:06 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road involved a car driven by William Albert Gay of Pikeville, and a truck operated by Henry Alexander Andrews Jr. of Route 2, Greenville, according to police.

Investigators, who charged Gay with failing to stop for a red light, set damage at $400 to the car and $700 to the truck driven by Andrews.

Cam Wesley Abshire of Roanoke Rapids, was charged with having improper brakes following investigation of a 1:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Seventh and Cotanche Streets.

Police reported Abshire was driving a bus owned by East Carolina University that collided with a car operated by Helen Holloman McCoy of Route 1, Fountain, resulting in an estimated $300 damage to the car. No damage resulted to the bus.

How's The Weather?

FORECAST Until Friday

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast until early Friday predicts rain from New York to Maine, and for the Rocky Mountain states from Nevada to Montana. Showers are due for parts of Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Two cold fronts were expected to merge over western North Carolina today, giving the state the prospect of showers and thunderstorms through the day.

The rains will begin tapering off from the west tonight and the weather will take a turn to windy and much cooler over the state Friday. There also could be a few lingering showers on Friday.

Before daybreak this morning, a line of very heavy thunderstorms moved across the southern coastal area, ranging from 25 miles north of Wilmington southward to the Myrtle Beach area.

Low pressure was expected to develop along the front that was forming over the southern mountains, and as the low pressure moves northeastward the front will be moving toward the coast.

Small craft advisories went into effect this morning along the coast and in the sounds where southwest winds of 15 to 25 knots were forecast for today and tonight. The winds are expected to shift to the northwest 15 to 25 knots Friday.

High temperatures Wednesday warmed up to the 80s east of the mountains while holding to the upper 60s and 70s in the mountains. Wilmington was one of the warmest spots with a high of 89 degrees.

The warm temperatures helped fuel some rather intense thunderstorm activity over eastern sections of the state during the late afternoon and evening hours, prompting severe thunderstorm warnings for several northeastern counties. Small hail was reported with many of these storms.

High temperatures today were expected to range from the 60s in the mountains to the mid 80s on the south coast, but highs Friday will be some cooler, ranging from the 50s in the mountains to the low and mid 70s on the coast.

Low temperatures tonight will dip to the 40s in the mountains and range to the mid 60s along the coast. By Saturday morning, low readings may drop to the 30s in some mountain areas. Saturday and Sunday are expected to be partly cloudy but there will be a chance of showers on Monday, Memorial Day. Daytime temperatures will warm slowly through the weekend.

Utilities Allowed To Pass Along Building Costs

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Utility companies will soon be allowed to raise their rates to customers to reflect the cost of constructing new plants, following the defeat Wednesday of legislation to repeal a 1977 law.

The defeat means the law will take effect as scheduled July 1 and allow electric and other utility companies to pass along to consumers costs of building new facilities while they are still under construction.

Two bills, one to repeal the law passed by the 1977 General Assembly and another to delay it for two more years, were killed on overwhelming voice votes in the House Public Utilities Committee.

Electric and other utilities strongly backed the construction-work-in-progress law, called CWIP, and opposed the bills to repeal it. Rep. Thomas Rhodes, D-New Hanover, sponsored the repealing legislation.

Hugh Wells, director of the public staff of the state Utilities Commission, said the CWIP provision may lead to significantly higher electric bills in the short run. But he said his staff will seek to minimize the effects.

"It's going to make some difference. The power companies wouldn't want it if it didn't," Wells said. "How much? That's nebulous. It's our job to make sure it's not much, and we'll do it."

The effort to repeal the CWIP provision had attracted the public support of Gov. Jim Hunt. But committee members said they had not been contacted by the governor about the proposal.

Hunt's legislative lobbyist, Jack Stevens, said he had not lobbied on behalf of repeal. "I did no work on that," Stevens said after the vote. "He didn't tell me to do any work on it."

Utility companies cannot now recover their investment for construction of new plants — such as billion-dollar nuclear generating stations — until those plants are completed and go into operation. With the new provision, utility companies may include those costs in their rate base filed to justify rate increases with the Utilities Commission.

Opponents have said the provision unfairly makes consumers assume the risks of building new plants and reduces the risk for stockholders. Proponents have argued that it will reduce financing costs by having consumers pay for the plants as they are built and may reduce the long-term cost of electricity.

In other legislative action Wednesday:

Vepco Rates
Action on a bill that would place a ceiling on utility rates that could be charged by small utility companies was delayed in the Senate Public Utilities

Committee. The bill was introduced by Sen. Melvin Daniels, D-Pasquotank, and would have the effect of limiting rates charged by Virginia Electric Power Co. in 22 northeastern North Carolina counties.

It would fix rates for a public utility that serves no more than 30 counties in North Carolina at 5 percent above the average of rates charged by the major utility companies serving the state.

The bill was sent to a subcommittee of the Senate utilities panel for further study.

Tear Gas
Legislation making it legal for citizens to carry small canisters of tear gas for self-protection was approved by the Senate. The measure now goes back to the House for concurrence in amendments.

Debts
The Senate Finance Committee approved and sent the full Senate a bill limiting the state commissioner of insurance's authority to write regulations covering debt-collection agencies. The measure was sought by collection agencies and opposed by the commissioner.

State insurance officials say they need the power to issue regulations controlling letters sent out to debtors and other practices of the agencies.

Wrongful Death
By a 27-21 vote, the Senate killed a House-passed bill that would change the law covering distribution of money from judgments following wrongful-death cases.

Under the bill, juries would have been allowed to assign payments resulting from wrongful deaths, such as automobile accidents when someone is at fault, if the victim left no will and had more than one relative surviving.

The action continues present law, which calls for equal distribution of the money.

A Children's Day Camp Program will be sponsored June 11 to July 6 by the Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety of ECU. The program will be offered on both a half day basis and a whole day basis, and fees will be $25 a week and $35 a week respectively. social well-being.

Participants will be required to have completed kindergarten and to be not more than 12 years old before September 1. Each participant will have two options: A whole day camp will operate from 9 a.m. for those who prefer a whole day program, and a half day program will operate for either mornings or afternoon options in different weeks. However, participants will not be able to switch programs during a weekly session. The day camp program will end each day.

For additional information concerning applications, call the departmental office at 757-6280.

A Day Camp For Children

FALKLAND — Falkland area residents are urged to attend a public meeting on possible extension of water service into the area Friday, May 25, at 8 p. m. in the Falkland Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall.

The meeting is about petitioning the Bell Arthur Water Corporation to extend lines from Bruce throughout the Falkland area and on to the Edgecombe County lines. The Falkland Town Council is supporting and promoting the effort.

Everyone who may need public water in the future should take advantage of this opportunity to find out about the possibility of tapping on at a nominal cost soon, the Council announced.

Water Meeting Slated Friday

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and East Carolina University announce a swim program for older adults each Friday from 1 to 2 p.m. at ECU, Memorial Pool.

The program will start Friday, May 25, and continue through August 3. There is no charge for pool use, changing area or showers.

For additional information call Greenville Senior Citizen Center, Lesley Ball, 752-4137, extension 246.

Gas May Be Shot But Resorts Are Hopeful

By MARK POTTS
Associated Press Writer
Gas may be in short supply in some places — and nearly 20 cents a gallon more expensive than last year — but many of the nation's resort owners say they expect business to be pretty good this Memorial Day weekend.

That assessment came Wednesday as President Carter worried the nation would avoid dealing with its fuel problems "unless there is such a severe crisis with shortages that the American people are shocked." The President continued to accuse Congress of "excessive timidity" in dealing with energy issues as House Democrats renounced his plans to lift oil price controls, plans that could make Americans pay an additional $12.2 billion for petroleum products within three years, according to a congressional study.

Resorts and amusement parks are keeping a wary, but optimistic eye toward business as the Memorial Day weekend approaches. "What we have to base it on is the similar gas situation in 1974," said Dave Kaplan, a spokesman for Six Flags Over

Georgia, a large amusement park near Atlanta. "In 1974, Six Flags Over Georgia had a record-breaking year."

However, a Long Island, N.Y., resort town ran out of gas this week when its only service station ran out of its May allotment. The station was to get an emergency supply today, but in the meantime, Point Lookout residents had to drive six miles or more for gas.

Some New York service station officials predicted as few as 10 percent of the metropolitan area stations would be open this weekend. For those too worried to try driving, the Long Island Rail Road said it would offer round-trip tickets for the price of one-way fares.

In California, where the gas squeeze has hit hardest, attractions like Disneyland which are close to major cities report no trouble, though business is down at more out-of-the-way places.

Las Vegas officials aren't worried that reservations for Memorial Day are down about 30 percent. Many of their visitors arrive by airplane — last weekend business picked up at the last minute.

Memorial Day weekend motorists will pay about 18.5 cents a gallon more than last year for the fuel they can find, a survey shows.

In Long Island, the price of a gallon of unleaded regular has jumped to 89.9 cents since last May, a 22.2-cent increase, according to the industry's Lundberg Letter. Houston drivers are paying 15.3 cents more for gas, 79.6 cents per gallon, it said.

Prices would continue to rise under President Carter's plan to lift price controls from domestically produced oil, says a Congressional Budget Office study. Lifting controls will cost the average American household another $135 a year by 1982 for such products as home heating oil and gasoline, it says.

Carter does not need congressional approval to lift price controls, and House Democrats on Wednesday refused to listen to a compromise and continued to stress their opposition to the proposal.

Amendment Is Up To Voters

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina voters will decide a proposed constitutional amendment next year that, if ratified, will allow only attorneys to be state judges.

The referendum was established after the Senate reversed itself Wednesday, reviving and voting final approval to the constitutional proposal after defeating it on Tuesday.

Sen. Robert Davis, D-Rowan, an opponent of the amendment on Tuesday, asked the Senate to reconsider that vote and the measure was revived by a 35-14 vote. It then won tentative and final approval on 34-16 and 32-16 votes.

Constitutional changes require a three-fifths majority — 30 in the 50-member Senate — and the measure had failed by one vote on Tuesday. Two other senators joined Davis in switching their votes, and the measure picked up additional support from senators absent on the first vote.

The amendment was sponsored by Rep. Mary Seymour, D-Guilford, and had already been approved by the House. It would allow only attorneys to be eligible for appointment or election to district, superior or appellate level state judgeships. Currently there are eight laymen among the 127 district court judges. All Superior Court, Court of Appeals and Supreme Court judges and justices are lawyers.

The measure won the strong support of Gov. Jim Hunt's legislative lobbyists. They saw the bill as an alternative to an earlier amendment that was given up because of lack of support, which would have ended the popular election of judges and set up committees to nominate them based on merit.

In addition to Davis, Sens. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, and James Speed, D-Franklin, switched and voted for the measure Wednesday, while two others who had not voted originally, Sens. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, and Conrad Duncan, D-Rockingham, joined the majority. One, Sen. Walter Cokerham, R-Guilford, switched from "yes" to "no."

To Speak At Workshop

F. Kurt Cylke, director of the Library of Congress Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, will be keynote speaker at a June 19 workshop co-sponsored by East Carolina University's Library Science Alumni Association and Lenoir Community College.

The workshop, scheduled for the LCC Student Union Building, Kingston, is designed for librarians and other interested personnel.

This year's topic, "Library Services for the Handicapped," will be discussed in sessions directed by the following:

Bonnie Peele, director of the N. C. Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Betty Floars, Eastern N. C. School for the Deaf; Dr. Carol Veitch, assistant professor of library science at ECU; Joe Stines, children's librarian at ECU's Joyner Library.

Persons interested in attending the workshop may write Prof. Emily Boyce, ECU Department of Library Science, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C. for further information.

Recreation

Program Ready

GRIFTON — The Town of Grifton Summer Recreation Program will begin June 18 and run for eight weeks through August 10, according to Mrs. Janet Haseley, Recreation Commission chairman.

Activities will include daily crafts opportunities, sports, games, music and dramatics, offered from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each weekday. All activities will be held at the Town Park on St. David St.

Children from ages four and up are eligible, with no top age limit on participation. They may bring lunches or go home, with informal sessions planned throughout each day. For more information, persons may contact Mrs. Haseley, 524-4356.

Stella Stevens Now Director

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Actress Stella Stevens hopes to make her debut as a producer and director with a documentary that she says will be a tribute to women.

Miss Stevens, who has played in about 20 movies, has been at Appalachian State University this week with a crew of seven filming the 90-minute documentary.

She said the film will be titled "The American Heroine" and will be a "tribute to women — not a glorification but a tribute."

"Heroins are everywhere, and most of them don't have any idea they're heroins," Miss Stevens said. "Women are not used to having any acclaim or tribute paid to them."

crew, mostly students at the University of Texas-Arlington, arrived in Boone last weekend and have shot segments on a dozen women.

One subject, filmed Tuesday morning, was Catherine Smith, who retired in 1966 from the Appalachian State faculty. She had been an art teacher.

Miss Stevens ended the segment on Miss Smith by asking her about the fact that she had never married.

"No, I'd still be washing dishes if I had," Miss Smith said.

"As it is, I've been around the world a couple of times and I've seen everything I wanted to see...I'm never lonely."

Miss Stevens, 40, said she is financing the documentary with her own money and doesn't know exactly how much it will cost. She said she hopes it will become a television series.

"I've never wanted to be an older career actress," she said. "I've played blondes, I've played redheads and I've played brunettes, and that's all the kinds of women there are."

"I'd hope some to be known as a good or great director," she said.

70th Birthday For The Duke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wayne, the cancer-stricken hero of 200 movies, will celebrate his 72nd birthday Saturday with a gold medal from Congress and the prayers of countless fans.

Wayne is in stable condition after a May 2 operation that revealed cancer in his intestine. He was reported gaining strength and has been taking short walks down hospital corridors.

Plans for the birthday were not available Wednesday, but hospital spokesman Al Hicks said Wayne will get at least one birthday cake.

And the House approved a bill authorizing a congressional gold medal — one of 84 ever minted — to honor the actor.

Might Appeal Marvin Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The attorney for actor Lee Marvin says he will seek reconsideration of a $104,000 award to Michelle Triola Marvin. And David Kagon said he might even appeal the landmark decision.

Kagon said Wednesday his threat to appeal was spurred by a request from Miss Marvin's attorney that Marvin pay some $500,000 in fees stemming from the case.

He said the actor was willing to accept the ruling if "that was the end of the matter. Unfortunately, the plaintiff has seen fit to take further action."

Last month, a judge rejected Miss Marvin's contention that she had an implied contract to share her lover's assets, but awarded her $104,000 for "rehabilitative purposes."

Hog Show, Sale June 7

KINSTON — The silver anniversary North Carolina Market Hog Show and Sale will be held Thursday, June 7, in the Lenoir County Livestock Arena here.

Entries will be weighed and penned beginning at 7:30 a.m., with sales beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The show is open to North Carolina produced barrows and gilts between the weights of 200-240 pounds and not more than 195 days of age. Purebred and crossbred hogs will be judged in the following classes: hoof carcass, individuals, and pens of three market hogs.

Each family, firm or farm will be allowed to enter a maximum of three animals per breed maintained in the individual class. Crossbreeds are counted as a breed for this purpose. Participants must enter one animal of each breed in the hoof carcass class that they enter in the open show and two entries in the hoof carcass class per breed maintained.

Each farm, firm or family will be limited to two entries in the pen of three class regardless of the number of breeds maintained.

All animals must be sold at auction for immediate slaughter following the show.

VOLVO ANNOUNCES A BIG NEW CONVENIENCE FEATURE. US.
Thoughtful people looking for quality, safety and comfort in a car can now come to the same logical conclusion: our new Volvo showroom.
There you can choose a Volvo sedan or station wagon to fill your every need at a price that will fit almost any budget.
For above-average quality on an average budget you can drive away in a Volvo 242 two-door sedan, or the four-door 244.
Or add a little more performance and pizzazz and tear out in our new 242GT. For those who like to take as much as possible with them, there's our nimble 245 station wagon.
And for the truly luxury minded, you can pick from our sumptuous Volvo 264 sedan, 265 station wagon or our sleekly styled Bertone 262 coupe.
Since you're already in the area, drop by. After all, if you've put off buying a Volvo because the selection was limited or the dealer was too far away, you've lost your last excuses.
