ROOF COLLAPSED — Nearly all of the roof of the 17,000-seat Kemper Arena in downtown Kansas City collapsed Monday night during a severe thunderstorm that dumped three inches of rain on the area in less than an hour, and was accompanied by 70 mph winds. The arena, site of the 1976 Republican National Convention, was not in use at the time of the collapse. (AP Laserphoto)

Four Indicted On Embezzling Counts

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A Pitt County Grand Jury yesterday indicted four persons, including Dr. Andrew A. Best, a Greenville physician and member of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees, on charges of conspiracy and embezzlement of about $100,000 from the Eastern Tar River Credit Union.

A member of the black-operated credit union's board of directors, Best was charged with embezzlement and conspiracy in four cases and conspiracy in another.

Ruth Marie Staton of 105 Ford St., was charged in the indictments with 24 counts of embezzlement, 9 counts of conspiracy and one count of falsifying records. She served as a credit union clerk from 1969 or 1970, until March 1977, and is an instructor at Rose High School.

The indictments also charged Marvin Stephenson of Route 3, Greenville, a farmer and store operator, with three counts of embezzlement and conspiracy, and Willie Taft of 509 Church St., an employee of Fieldcrest Mills, with two counts of embezzlement and conspiracy.

The charges stemmed from an investigation conducted by the Special Investigations Division of the North Carolina Department of Justice, which began in March 1977.

Agents of the State Bureau of Investigation arrested Best, Stephenson and Mrs. Staton after the indictments were returned by the grand jury. Spokesmen said shortly before noon today that SBI agents were still searching for Taft.

The indictments allege that Mrs. Staton, acting alone or in conjunction with one or more of the other defendants embezzled over $99,000 from the credit union between April 1973 and March 1977.

Best, the indictments allege, was involved in incidents from April 1973 until November 1976, involving some $24,000, while Stephenson was allegedly involved in incidents between November 1973 and January 1977, involving some $18,250.

Taft, according to the indictments, was allegedly involved in incidents in December 1976 and March 1977 involving some $10,050.

The grand jury indictments indicated that withdrawals were made from private credit union savings accounts without the knowledge or consent of the owners, and converted to their own use by the defendants.

The indictments indicated that the largest sums taken included $25,000 from the account of Walter D. Carter on January 30, 1974, $23,000 from the account of Rufus Boyd Jr. and Annie T. Boyd May 17 and 18, 1974 (as well as $10,000 on December 28, 1976, $3,900 on August 26, 1975, and $3,577 on November 9, 1976 from the same account), and $7,000 from the account of the Greenville chapter of Delta Sigma Theta sorority on April 3, 1974.

Bond for the defendants was set at $25,000 each.

Religious Freedom Is Demanded By John Paul

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II demanded today that Poland's Communist government recognize the rights and beliefs of Christians although their view of the world is "diametrically opposed" to Marxism. It was the most powerful political statement the pontiff has made in the four days he has been in his homeland.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a closed meeting of Poland's Roman Catholic bishops, the pope described religious freedom as a fundamental human right and declared that guarantees of religious freedom in Poland's constitution and other documents are meaningful only if they consider "the real needs of the church."

The pope asserted the church's readiness to enter into a dialogue with the government for normalization of church-state relations.

He said "authentic dialogue must respect the convictions of believers, insure all the rights of citizens and also the normal conditions for the activity of the church as a religious community to which the vast majority of Poles belong.

"We are aware that this dialogue cannot be easy because it takes place between two concepts of the world which are diametrically opposed, but it must be possible and effective if the good of individuals and the nation demands it."

The text of the speech was released to journalists early today but was withdrawn soon after without explanation. A Vatican spokesman said later that the pope wanted bishops to hear it first before the speech was made public.

Before meeting with the bishops the pope celebrated an open-air Mass for thousands of Polish nuns and said that even "the biggest enemy of the church" could not help but appreciate their dedication.

Poles began gathering at dawn on the hillside below the country's most revered shrine and by the time the Mass began, the crowd had swelled to several hundred thousand.

The pontiff, beginning the fourth day of his return to his communist homeland, looked at the rows of black-gowned nuns and told them their calling was an "exceptional treasure" for the Roman Catholic Church.

He recalled a visit he had once made to a home for sick children in his home town of Wadowice and said even "the biggest enemy of the church would never forget the dedication of the nuns."

School Health Proposal Outlined At Bd. Session

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposal for a School Health Plan for the Greenville City Schools that would utilize personnel and services of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, the ECU School of Nursing, and the Pitt County Health Dept., was outlined at the informational meeting of the Greenville Board of Education Monday night.

Dr. James Markello of the School of Medicine presented proposed guidelines for such a plan, emphasizing that services being offered would not be a substitute for any current program in the school, but would complement and expand current programs.

Basic objectives established for the proposed program are:

— Visual screening at two levels— for kindergartners, and for students in the first, second and third grades.

— Assembling information to determine needs for health programs in the future, to assess data gathered; and — To provide opportunities for practical application in the education of students in teaching, nursing and medical careers.

In the visual screening for kindergarten students, each child would be re-screened (in addition to the regular screening now carried out). The reason for this, Dr. Markello said, is because children at this age are often confused about what is being done and expected of them in a first screening, and that a second screening at a later date would insure an additional chance to discover any acuity or visual disorders.

Visual screening of first, second and third graders would be carried out only when classroom teachers referred students to a screening team.

A second area of screening recommended would be a general health screening program for seventh grade students in the Middle School.

Bottle Bill Is Killed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The so-called bottle bill, controversial legislation that would place a mandatory nickel deposit on most drink containers in an attempt to control litter, was killed today in a House committee.

A House judiciary committee voted by voice to defeat a motion made by supporters who wanted the bill sent to the full House without a recommendation. Their proposal would have set up a statewide referendum in 1980 which, if approved by the voters, would have made the bottle bill law.

The panel then voted by voice to kill the bill. Supporters' only hope was then to take a minority report to the full House, but Diamond said he would not attempt such a maneuver and would leave the bill dead until 1981.

"Industry is just too strong," said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Dave Diamond, D-Surry, following the vote.

Housing Panel Plans Closing Of Bond Sale

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A tentative date for the closing of the bond sale for the proposed 60-unit mid-rise housing development for the elderly here was approved by the Housing Authority.

Joe Laney, the Authority's executive director, reported Monday night that with the project appearing to be in "good shape at this point," a tentative closing date has been scheduled for June 13.

According to Laney, the first mortgage revenue bond sale for financing the Section Eight project would be closed at the meeting, as well as the construction loan for the project.

Laney said that if final correspondence with the Department of Housing and Urban Development continues favorably, the bond sale and construction loan closings "for all practical purposes will put us into construction."

A 15-month construction schedule has been agreed upon with the project contractor, he pointed out, but it is anticipated that the development will be completed in 12 to 13 months.

Laney said that construction would hopefully start almost immediately following the closing actions.

Commissioners were invited to be on hand on June 13 for the closings.

In other business on a short agenda, Sallye Streeter, the Authority's director of tenant affairs, reported that all of the 642 units operated by the agency were occupied during May.

Mrs. Streeter said that rent averages for the six housing developments included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $69.60; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $75.80; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $81.29; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $69.50; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $63.53; and NC 22-6

Trustees Of Pitt Tech Formally Accept New Facility At Meeting

The Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees accepted the new shop/classroom facility at PTI during a regular business session Monday.

Acceptance was given by the Board, following recommendations given by the Board's building committee and George Shoe, architect. Final inspection of the building was completed in early May. The facility houses the carpentry, heating, refrigeration, and air conditioning; electrical installation and maintenance; auto mechanics; human services; commercial art and graphics; early childhood; educational associate and teacher assistant programs.

The Board approved the following Personnel Committee recommendations: reappointment and appointment of faculty and staff for the coming school year; authority for the Personnel Committee to act on personnel recommendations from President Fulford during the summer; and adoption of the Institute's holiday schedule for 1979-80. Mrs. Kay Whichard, committee chairman, presented the report.

The board approved the addition of a farm equipment mechanics curricula to the present slate following the recommendation by Corey Stokes, Program Committee chairman. Stokes noted the need of farm equipment businesses and farmers for qualified farm equipment mechanics.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A conference committee on the state budget planned to try again today to reach a compromise acceptable to both the House and Senate on a disputed early retirement provision.

The conferees met for two hours Monday in a closed-door session without breaking the logjam that is holding up final approval of the $10 billion, biennial state budget.

The main budget bill has already cleared the House and Senate and was sent to a conference committee to resolve differences over the retirement provision for teachers and state workers, which the Senate has approved and the House has rejected.

Rep. Ed Holmes, D-Chatham, House appropriations chairman, said the conference committee failed to reach a compromise on the retirement provision Monday, but would meet again today.

Legislators hope to adjourn on Thursday but must first enact the full budget. Only after it is enacted can the full

House and Senate take up an additional $13-million special package, which includes many pork-barrel appropriations for legislators' home districts.

A subcommittee of the House and Senate appropriations committees recommended the package to the full appropriations panels Monday.

Among the items included were $715,000 for a marine fisheries project to relocate oysters from polluted coastal waters and $700,000 to combat beach erosion.

As much as $3.5 million may be available for beach erosion projects, however. The subcommittee approved a measure authorizing the spending of as much as $2.8 million from other state sources, if available.

The money is to come from extra collections from new fees levied in unrelated legislation by this year's General Assembly session. But Frank Justice, head of the legislature's fiscal research staff, said there is no way of predicting how much might be available for the coastal project.

New Member At Authority Meet

Dr. Patricia G. Rice, who was appointed recently by the City Council to a five-year term on the Housing Authority, attended her first regular meeting Monday night.

Dr. Rice, a professor in the Department of Housing and Management, School of Home Economics at East Carolina University, succeeds Dr. Charles Price, who completed ten years on the Authority.

A Wilson native, the new commissioner received her B.S. and M.S. degrees in housing and management from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and earned her Ph.D. in housing and interior design from Florida State University at Tallahassee. She joined the ECU faculty in 1966 and was appointed

Speight Reminds Liquor Availability Not 'Issue'

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
 The chairman of the State ABC Board said Pitt County residents should realize that in voting Friday in the special referendum on mixed beverage sales, they are not deciding whether liquor will be available in the county. Marvin Speight of Farmville pointed out in an interview that the sale of alcoholic beverages has been legal for years in Pitt County and "will be here regardless of the mixed beverage vote."

Speight said that the issue involves whether sales will be made by the drink or by the bottle. He added, "We are not voting it in or out." The board chairman explained that if liquor-by-the-drink is approved, brown bagging of alcoholic beverages is out in restaurants, country clubs and other private membership organizations, considered "social establishments," could have both mixed drink and brown bagging permits. "Any restaurant now that has a brown bagging permit," Speight said, "will have a mixed beverage permit or nothing. They will not hold both permits."

According to Speight, "beer joints and...clubs where they stamp your hand when you go in...would not qualify" for a mixed beverage permit. State mixed beverage regulations stipulate that, "A social establishment is a private facility organized operated by a person, association or corporation solely for a social, and recreational, patriotic or fraternal purpose. Use of the facility may not be open to the general public but must be limited to members of the social establishment and their guests."

Speight added that membership fees or dues, as opposed to admission fees, would be charged by the social establishment. "We do not intend and the law does not allow us to license a bar on every corner," the spokesman asserted, noting that although mixed drink opponents say that every bar will be licensed, "that will not be the case if it (mixed drink sales) is voted in." Speight explained that "strict records" would be required by restaurants on food sales and mixed drink sales in order to meet the requirement that at least 51 percent of the facility's revenue must be from the sale of food in order to retain a permit.

If the issue passes, businesses would apply to the State ABC Board for a permit, Speight said, and the board would send local opinion forms to the Sheriff's Department, police chief or local ABC officer for input regarding the applicant. An applicant for a mixed drink permit would pay a $500 fee which would not be refunded in the event the permit is denied, it was explained. Renewal would be on a yearly basis at $250 per year. Currently, applicants pay $200 for a brown bagging permit and apply for renewal at a $100 fee each year.

"If it passes, restaurants already having brown bagging permits could have mixed beverages...within 20 days or so," the official said. All prospective mixed drink permit holders would get instructions regarding the regulations and compliance guidelines, Speight said, and seminars would be held by ABC personnel "to explain the rules."

Speight predicted that if liquor-by-the-drink sales are authorized, the first 30 days of operations in Pitt County would see increased liquor sales due to the "filling up of the pipelines." He said that sales would taper off after the initial early sales, according to experience in other areas. One outlet, probably an ABC warehouse, would be designated to handle sales to permit holders. In addition to the price of the liquor, he added, a per gallon tax of $10 would be charged.

Nine of the $10 charged per gallon would be received by the county, Speight explained, for "splitting up as the county sees fit." The remaining dollar would go to the state for alcoholic research programs. According to Speight, few problems have arisen in other counties of North Carolina where mixed drink sales have been approved. He said that only one permit revocation, occurring in Wilmington just before Christmas, has taken place.

Martin Board Again Faces Hospital Issue

WILLIAMSTON — The issue of the two hospitals in Martin County was once more the center of attention at a meeting of the Martin County Commissioners. In its June meeting Monday night, a motion was passed by a margin of three to two to relieve Martin County and the Martin County Hospital Board, Inc. of relations with the Robersonville Community Hospital.

 Stokes, Max R. Joyner and Joseph Taft of Greenville to serve as a Nominating Committee for the 1979-80 board officers. The committee will report its recommendation at the September meeting.

In other actions, the Board adopted the Finance Committee's recommendations regarding the proposed county budget for 1979-80. The county budget requests include $340,647 for current operating expenses and $94,299 for capital outlay funds. For 1979-80, the square footage of the facilities will be increased by approximately 25 per cent, due to the completion of the new shop/classroom building.

Everett informed the board that the Board of Commissioners of Pitt County had approved PTI's request for funds to complete the unfinished wings of the new shop/classroom facility, and he expressed appreciation for the Commissioners' support.

President Fulford told board members that Nancy Akel, formerly Nancy Newborn, board secretary, had recently married and had resigned her position. The trustees adopted a resolution expressing the Board's appreciation and gratitude for her five years of service to the Institute and to the Board of Trustees.

Hardison contends that supporters will still work for a return of the hospital to Robersonville control with county funding provided.

A spokesman for the Robersonville Hospital supporters, Donnie M. Hardison, mentioned that because of the action, a possibility exists that a boycott would be carried out against Williamston merchants and businesses by Robersonville area residents.

Requirement for $8,333 in local matching funds.

The Community Schools Programs visualizes the use of local agencies and volunteer helpers to supplement the programs that would be established under this plan.

In the only action taken at the informational meeting, board members approved the waiver of the physical education requirement for a student who has failed that course three times. The student also must attend summer school to complete an additional credit course in order to meet the 14 units requirement for graduation.

Commenting on the early Monday vandalism at Rose High, Cox said that "purely as a speculative figure, I would say that the damage will amount to at least $10,000 to $12,000."

An SBI man has been called in to assist in the investigation, and Cox said he feels that the insurance carried by the school system to cover vandalism would cover a large percentage of the losses involved.

Dr. Rice resigned from chairperson's duties in 1978 with plans to write and this summer is completing writing an independent study course for the UNC-Chapel Hill Extension Department to be offered through the 16-universities system.

In 1970, Dr. Rice initiated the B.S. program in housing and management and now approximately 100 majors are offered in the program. The M.S. program in housing and management was activated in 1976.

A faculty senator from 1969 to 1971, Dr. Rice has served as a member and chairperson of the Faculty Affairs, Personnel and Curriculum Committees.

Dr. Rice and her husband, Ronald E. Rice Sr., have three children.

 Dr. Markello indicated that a screening program for children in this pre-adolescent age group would include screening tests on growth, vision, hearing, tuberculosis, blood pressure, urine and anemia tests.

In all these plans, students, teachers, parents and staff persons on the already established health programs in the schools would be involved.

The first step planned is a letter to parents informing them of the plan, and providing a permission form for their child to be screened.

At the seventh grade level, students themselves would fill out a general health and health attitude form that would be used as part of a data gathering process.

A record would be kept on each child. In instances where correctional or follow-up services might be indicated, the parents of a child needing additional service would be informed, and recommendations given of any general health needs or problems detected.

A third area within the proposed plan would be the establishment of a "Hot Line" program to complement existing services in the community and schools for handling emergency needs in the case of injuries or sudden illness while a child is at school.

This plan, Dr. Markello stressed, would be set up "in a proper manner" consistent with school regulations and other criteria.

In all these programs, action to be taken would not at any time circumvent established channels of health care — i.e., the use of a regular family physician or the utilization of current school programs and facilities.

Ms. Carol Cox of the ECU School of Nursing explained that programs now in use in Pitt County Schools had worked well. These, she said, had primarily been in the lower grades, but that they had been expanded to higher grades at Chicod Elementary with good results.

Responding to a concern expressed by board member Ms. Terry Shank, Ms. Cox assured that the health programs would not result in excessive burdens on school nurses as the criteria for establishing any program involved the use of trained medical personnel and also students from the medical and nursing schools.

Board member Dr. Jon Tinglestad noted that "many people believe that medical school personnel do nothing but teach, but that is far from true. The point I'm trying to make is that medical school clinical faculty have medical duties they perform like any other physician. They can do more."

"Nothing in this proposal is about to do anything new or different, it's simply a service that can be provided for the city schools and at the same time provide training to medical and nursing students."

After hearing the proposal by Dr. Markello, board members agreed to review the information and to consider action on the proposal at a later date. For informational purposes, Superintendent Glenn Cox informed board members of suggested budget cuts he has discussed with County Manager Reginald Gray.

These suggested cuts, Cox said, were difficult to arrive at but that it was necessary that Gray have some guideline to areas that would be less critical than others.

Reductions in the current expense portion of the proposed budget total $61,239. Principal items reflected in this are $11,720 for one teaching position; $4,251 for instructional supplies; $21,468 for the salary of an assistant principal at Aycock; and $10,000 on funds for electrical services.

Other cuts recommended in the current expense part of the budget include ones for supplementary textbooks, library books, and social security, retirement, hospitalization and unemployment funds allocations for the recommended reduction of a the teaching and assistant principal positions.

In the capital outlay budget, recommended cuts amount to $32,000. Represented in these recommendations are $5,000 for fencing and $5,000 for drainage at the Middle School; $5,000 for paving at Third Street; and $10,000 for an activity bus.

In all these recommended cuts, it was emphasized that individually these recommendations do not represent a complete deletion of requests within a certain category, but only a reduction of original amounts requested.

These recommended cuts are all applicable to local (county allocated) funds. Even with these cuts, Cox pointed out that the overall budget requests for both the current expense and capital outlay funds reflect a considerable increase over the amounts budgeted by the County Commissioners for the current school year.

Board members gave Cox authorization to get to work immediately on outlining recommendations for a Community Schools program which Cox is required to present to state officials on June 12.

This is the program, strongly advocated by Governor Hunt, that would open public schools to community programs. For the Greenville City Schools, funding from state sources is $25,000, with a

Varied Actions Taken By Winterville Board

WINTERVILLE — The Town of Winterville has purchased town tags for 1980, which will be stickers to be placed on the license plates, Winterville Town Aldermen learned Monday.

The Town Board approved the land sale of tract number two, located off Jones St., to Reynolds Maye, for $40,000. Re-advertisement will be held for bids on Tract number one. In similar action, the board approved the Parks subdivision, which will include the above tracts.

Approval was given for the $5,400 purchase price and appraisal for the lot of Mrs. Jenny Brock, 539 Myrtle St., under the Community Development Block Grant.

Action on the approval of the Brookshire Subdivision was tabled for 30 days for work to be completed on drainage and street width within the subdivision.

A number of citizens from Drexel Lane came before the board to ask for help with the drainage problems in the area. The board promised to look into the matter.

Jim Black came before the board to ask that Bethanna Court be paved. He was told that the street was fourth on the list for paving.

McDavid and Associates of Farmville, an engineering firm, was approved for work to be done on data and maps for town use.

The town ordinances are in the process of being recoded and should be ready for public instruction by the end of June. Town board members learned.

A public hearing will be held Monday, June 11, 7 p.m., at the town hall concerning the upcoming budget.

Prices Of Meat Plus Gas Shortage Could Add Years To Your Life Span

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

There is a bright side to the high price of meat and the gasoline shortage:

The changes in your lifestyle — eating less meat and driving less — might add years to your life.

First, consider the gasoline shortage that short-circuits tempers and shrinks the number of miles you can drive:

—Driving less puts you on your feet or your bicycle more. In other words, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries may accomplish what experts in preventive medicine have been trying for decades to do — get both the old and young to walk more to improve their health and build health reserves. The experts also promote pedal pushing.

—Walkers oxygenate more than car riders — getting more fresh air as they stride from here to there. They exercise arms and legs as well as lungs. They strengthen their hearts and improve circulation. Bikers build the big leg muscles that make circulation more efficient.

—Walkers and bikers not only save gasoline and money, but may even boost their mental health. They see things that get them away from their problems — birds, flowers, other people, little kids, an assortment of dogs and cats. Sometimes, when walking or biking in rain, they even see a rainbow. Relaxing, restful stuff.

—Comfortable shoes and clothes are all one needs to walk or bike. (Add a head protector if you bike.) If the walk is to get groceries or anything, take along a waterproof shopping bag and perhaps a thin plastic raincoat for yourself. Walking at night? Take a flashlight if all the route isn't well lighted.

—If you want to keep track of how much good you're doing yourself by just walking, buy a pedometer. It's fun to learn once more how far a mile is, how long it takes you to step one off — how many you can clock before caving in.

—A general rule for those who want to get started walking or biking for good health: walk or bike instead of using the car for short errands.

As for the high cost of meat: —Growing numbers of health authorities, including those who testified before the U.S. Senate Select Committee on Nutrition, claim we eat too much meat, much too much, for our health's sake.

—To get some idea of the overconsumption of meat, hear this: 3-to-4 ounces is considered an ample portion.

—Among arguments calling for radical changes in the high meat-eating diet popular in the United States, plainest talk is in "The Alternative Diet Book." This was supported in development by grants from the National Health Institute's Division of Research Resources, the National Heart and Lung Institute, and the Oregon Heart Association.

The diet calls for sharply reduced consumption of meat and includes dozens of recipes and menus. It can help you to come smiling through assaults on the budget at the butcher counter. How about a baked bean sandwich or a vegetable-cottage cheese special instead of ham on rye or a hot dog?

"The Alternative Diet Book" by Dr. William E. Connor (University of Iowa Press, Iowa City, Iowa, $3.95) notes that diseases linked to overconsumption include atherosclerosis and coronary heart disease, stroke, hypertension, obesity, diabetes mellitus and gall-stones. Factors associated with these diseases include: excessive intake of cholesterol, saturated fat, calories, sugar and salt, and an insufficient intake of complex carbohydrates and fiber.

When the book came out in 1976, an announcement from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare Department's National Institute of Health said it may help you live healthier. And Connor said: "Lesser quantities of animal foods in the diet and greater use of vegetable food products, such as cereals, legumes, fruits and vegetables, all of which are completely free of cholesterol, will lower blood cholesterol levels."

In other words, the claim is that less meat, at any price, can stretch your life as well as your bankroll.

A key aim of "The Alternative Diet" is to get away from meat as a main course.

It takes some adjustment. So health experts who constructed the federally supported clinical research center, University of Iowa, suggesting weaning the family from a high meat intake in three stages:

—Phase 1: Avoid foods high in cholesterol and saturated fat. "Delete egg yolk, butterfat, lard, organ meat, skin of poultry and fish and visible fat on meat."

—Phase 2: Start a gradual transition from 16 ounces of meat a day to no more than 6-to-8 ounces.

—Phase 3: "Meat, fish and poultry used as condiments — not as main dishes."

In the third phase, according to the plan, meat would be used only in smaller quantities to spice up vegetable-rice-cereal-legume based dishes "such as it has been doing in Oriental, Indian and Mediterranean cookery for some time." The total of meat, fish and poultry used per person for this purpose would average only 3 to 4 ounces a day and "fish and poultry should be stressed instead of meat because of their lower saturated fat content."

The argument for the low-meat diet goes like this:

—Dietary factors from food of animal origin, such as eggs, meat and high fat dairy products, when eaten in large quantities, such as in the United States, cause elevated blood cholesterol levels due to their high cholesterol and saturated fat content.

—Worldwide studies supervised by the World Health Organization have invariably claimed to find a relationship between the type of diet consumed and blood cholesterol levels and thus to the frequency of coronary heart attacks among various population groups in countries throughout the world.

—Animal experiments dating back to 1912, especially in monkeys, have been cited as showing that dietary cholesterol and fat are the only nutrients which induce high blood cholesterol levels and atherosclerosis.

—Human experiments have been cited to show blood cholesterol levels are elevated by dietary cholesterol and saturated fats.

—Certain changes in dietary habits would lower the blood cholesterol and, it is claimed, could greatly reduce the number of people who acquire atherosclerosis and who ultimately die from coronary heart disease.

How would using less meat affect use of energy? That argument goes like this: Using less meat would mean using more direct food crop products. The current diet of people in the United States contains large quantities of indirect food crop products — not only meat from grain-fed animals but highly refined foods and processed foods. These are not only expensive but producing them requires more energy and natural resources than the production of crops.

Direct food crops, it is argued, thus: 1. use less energy; 2. best utilizes natural resources; 3. are lower in cost to the consumer; and 4. have a high nutritive value.

President Thomas Jefferson, the book points out, was an early advocate of a low-meat diet.

In a letter written March 21, 1819, Jefferson said:

"...I have lived temperately, eating little animal food, and that not as an aliment, so much as a condiment for the vegetables which constitutes my principal diet."

We have two cars in our garage, a color TV set, and door chimes that play "How Dry I Am."

My winter coat has a label in it (Fruit of the Loom), our sugar bowl matches the cream pitcher and we subscribe to two newspapers.

I mention these facts only to impress you. For amidst all this class and affluence, we could not mail a box of cookies to our daughter at college because: (a) we had no box; (b) no string or twine; (c) no brown wrapping paper, and (d) no pencil or pen with which to address it.

Installed As State President

GREENSBORO — Mrs. Angeline Haddock Venters was installed as president of North Carolina Credit Women International yesterday.

The 38th annual conference was held Sunday and Monday at the Holiday Inn-Four Seasons. Mrs. Venters is the second member of the Greenville club to hold office of state president during the club's 30 years of organization.

Guest speakers for the two-day session included William Henderson, president of International Consumer Credit Association, St. Louis, Mo., Ms. Meredith Fernstrom, director of consumer affairs, Rutherfordton, and John M. Grogan, Phoenix, Ariz.

State sponsors named by Mrs. Venters for the next year are: Mrs. Joanne White; Morris Brody; Dan Gregory; Roscoe King; Jesse Laughinghouse; Michael O'Callaghan; Andy Warren, all of Greenville; Buddy Prather; Burlington; Bill Schultz, Kannapolis; and G. M. Casper, Thomasville.

Mrs. Venters served as president of the Greenville Credit Women in 1973 and was named "Outstanding Credit Woman of the Year" for two consecutive years. She has served as treasurer, secretary and vice president of the state association.

She is employed by the Small Business Administration and lives in Ayden with her husband, Wilson, and son, Todd. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Haddock, Greenville.

Mrs. Venters' project for the year is "As a Supervisor, are you considered an Angel or a Devil?"

Appointed officers announced by Mrs. Venters include Carol Hardee, parliamentarian, Mary Roberson, chaplain, Linda Westbrook, personal scrapbook, Greenville, Gail Ottinger, state yearbook, Kinston, Marlon O'Connor, historian, High Point and Doris Hendrick, corresponding secretary, Raleigh.

Mrs. Mavis Smith and Mrs. Clifton Toler, first with a .620 percent game; Mrs. Harold Forbes and Mrs. Eloise Owens, second; Mrs. David Stevens and Mrs. William McConnell, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. F. C. Metz and Mrs. Effie Williams with Claude Goodman and Dave Proctor.

Randeen Dees and Steve Callihan were first place winners with a .809 percent game Saturday afternoon at First Federal. Other winners were Rose Cox and Lewis Newsome and Eloise Owens and Suzanne Cunningham, who tied for second.

Marriage Announced

Minister and Mrs. William E. Smith of Greenville announce the marriage of their daughter, Carolyn Jean, to William Terry Crumpler, son of Ms. Cecelia Cook of East Orange, N. J., on May 30.

The twine was quite another story. It was shocking to me to discover if I had an inclination to hang myself or if I was bleeding and needed a simple tourniquet. I would have to resort to a red hair ribbon in the back of the medicine cabinet, a dog collar, a garden hose, a belt, a gym shoe string, a drawstring from a pair of bathing trunks or a length of dental floss.

The quest for brown wrapping paper was a drill in futility. Other than gluing brown grocery bags end to end there was no hope in sight of finding brown wrapping paper.

I have saved the Big Pencil Search for last, possibly because it is the most incongruous. "I do not understand it," said my husband, "that a literate family of five who function in an educational atmosphere are forced to communicate by etching telephone messages in the grease on the exhaust fan. Surely, somewhere in this house, there must be a pencil or a pen."

We found two typewriters, a label maker, a yellow crayon, an eyebrow pencil, a chapstick, a piece of tailor's chalk and a rusty nail, but not one pencil or pen did we find.

Finally, we sat around the kitchen table exhausted. "Let's forget the cookies," I said, starting to nibble on one.

"I know when we are beaten," said my husband, passing the plate around to the boys.

As we sat there nibbling, I said, "We should write her and explain what happened to the cookies."

An hour later, we had unearth-

Keep Reminding 'Hummingbird'

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A woman in our office is freaking us out with her humming. When she concentrates she hums one low monotonous note. This can go on continuously for as long as two hours or more without a break.

When I call her attention to the maddening distraction, she quits for a while, then resumes humming again until I could scream.

Others have told her, too. Nothing helps. Her humming has got me so crazy I sometimes can hear it when it's not there. She's a nice person otherwise, and she's old enough to be my mother, so I don't want to be rude or rough. Please help me and my co-workers.

GOING BANANAS

DEAR GOING: She has undoubtedly developed the humming habit over the years and now hums unconsciously. But habits are learned and can be unlearned, so the moment the hummingbird starts her song, remind her that she's distracting you. And keep reminding her.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with eight children. The oldest is 21 and the youngest is 10. My husband was killed a year ago and it hit me awfully hard.

Here is my problem. I'm in love. I am 40 and the kid I'm in love with is 21. (He's a friend of one of my children.) We didn't intend to get serious—it just happened, and now we have this love affair going. He moved into my house about a month ago.

I loved my husband very much, but he is gone and I need someone to love. Do you think there is any future in this love affair?

IN LOVE IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR IN: I could be wrong, but I can't see much of a future for you and your young lover. Not so much because of the vast age difference, but because of the emotional state you were in when the affair took root. Of course you need someone to love—we all do. But for your sake and his, I think the kid should move out of your house and you should move toward men your own age.

DEAR ABBY: I've been thinking about the letter from L. IN DENTON, TEXAS who couldn't figure out how come his wife knew how to make love so well if she was a virgin when she was married.

Well, I, too, was a virgin when I married but my husband wasn't, and with all his previous experience, he didn't know peanuts compared to what I taught him!

I didn't learn it anywhere. I just followed my natural instincts and did whatever I felt was right. It seemed to come naturally.

I was blessed with parents who always showed affection for each other and never hid the fact that making love was a normal, healthy part of married life, so when I married it never occurred to me to hold back my sexual feelings. I just expressed them.

The 'Stroke Belt' Is Changed

For some years the Carolinas have been known as the "stroke belt." The reasons for the high incidence of strokes in this area was never quite clear. It was often blamed on too much fatback and other high cholesterol foods. Now, however, Carolina Becker, assistant professor of epidemiology at the School of Public Health, says there has been a sharp drop in strokes in the Carolinas area which puts us close to the nation's average. The only explanations are better diets, improved medical care and better detection and treatment of high blood pressure. We may not fully understand the dramatic drop in stroke deaths, but in an area where most families were touched by the heartbreak of stroke, the decline in the disease is welcome.

RALEIGH — "Bang the Gavel Longly" — A Tar Heel Production, directed by and starring Jim Hunt as The Governor; also starring Carl Stewart as The Speaker, Jimmy Green as The Lieutenant Governor, Ken Royall, Harold Hardison, Ed Holmes, Marshall Rauch, and John Gamble as Powerful Committeemen, and a cast of Thousands. Produced by Tar Heel Taxpayers at a cost of Millions and Millions. As this drama opens, the 1979 session of the General Assembly is preparing to convene amidst widespread political posturing by the key actors that they can relieve a plague of public fears and anxieties centering around not having enough money to buy important things, and the daily ordeal of seeing what little money there is being eroded by inflation. It would, our heroes promise, take only a short while to:

Governmental Spending; Produce Efficiency in Government; End Crime, Balance Growth; Educate the Kids; and otherwise provide the populace with that which they were clamoring for — which wasn't really much of anything but to be left alone. A thousand new laws and five months later, the people had not gotten what they had asked for, nor what they had been promised. Which is not to say that nobody got what they asked for and wanted. The banks and the state employees and the teachers and the university system and the utilities companies did quite nicely. As the drama unfolds, we find the three lead characters all struggling mightily to become Number One Hero so that election to the governor's office can be won in a future year. That takes big chunks of money and big blocs of voters who will stick together. The committeemen and their followers were also wrapped up in either staying in office or winning some other in a future year, so they largely went along with the program. The strangest twists of all in the plot, however, involved the directing star. He is in control of the script, staging, budget, casting, payroll and all of the production. With that much power, it's hard to understand his to change the tableau? Well, he did, Hunt insists; but it still came out that way. "The lobbyists have done extremely well. I'm not sure the people have done as well," he comments on the end results. For those viewers who have become accustomed to seeing all problems neatly defined, conflicts resolved, and solutions successfully implemented all within the hour-long framework of modern television dramas, this production of "Bang the Gavel Longly" is certain not to satisfy. As the drama ends, hardly any problems have been defined, few personalities have been clearly identified, more conflicts have been created than resolved, and one must search hard to find even a glimmer of a solution. Knowing the ways of producers and directors, however, it is safe to assume that thus the stage has been set for "Bang, Two" a sequel which will likely be forthcoming within another year.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Saving Carter With Coal

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A daring scenario to save Jimmy Carter's presidency is being sketched by high officials in his administration who glumly concede chances are he would never accept it. This scenario for survival would have President Carter go on nationwide prime-time television in the very near future and say, in effect: This country can ill afford dependency on Persian Gulf oil, subject to OPEC's constantly rising prices and the politics of Arab sheikhs. The only real alternative is coal, but that requires radical relaxation of the environmental standards. Therefore, tonight I am suspending the Clean Air Act for four months and asking Congress to suspend it for a full five years. Even if Congress went along, the proposal would enter a thicket of state environmental regulations. No details for this hazardous journey have been worked out. But the dramatic impact is undeniable. Carter could declare that by unleashing this nation's potential as the Saudi Arabia of coal, he had struck a blow for U.S. freedom, both economic and diplomatic. Over those five years, coal would yield the equivalent of millions of barrels of oil. The American people at long last would be making a practical sacrifice with a concrete payoff. Instead of being begged to limit trips to the supermarket to no avail, they would be asked to endure more air pollution in order to enjoy great benefits. If frosting be needed for this rich cake, the president might accompany it with a cabinet reshuffle, putting new faces in charge of economic and energy policy. A new-look Economic Policy Group is, therefore, part of the scenario.

This scenario, or one quite similar, is regarded as essential to the president's survival by knowledgeable cabinet members, presidential advisers and well-wishers outside the administration. Nor is there much room for variation, coal is the only answer, and that means environmental relaxation. Yet, pessimism pervades among them that the president will act this way at all, much less in time. The reasons help explain Carter's present fix. The heart of the problem is Jimmy Carter himself, the fact he is so many persons at once. While by instinct a conservative and by education an engineer who can appreciate the coal-environmental-energy equation, he is also a populist — and an environmentalist. Air pollution would be too high a price for Carter the environmentalist to pay. The president's aides agree, partly because they — perhaps alone in all the world — simply do not see the need for drastic action. "There is a sense of lethargy, not energy" at the White House, reveals one insider who sees

JUST FOR US
Jesus Christ is all of God we can understand and use. Undoubtedly there are truths about God which we could not comprehend if they were explained to us, and which we therefore could not see or implement. But in the fullness of His wisdom, God sent us Jesus Christ — that being in whose nature there was all of God we can understand and use for our salvation. For slightly more than thirty years Christ bore the mantle of flesh as he did. He was a

School Bond Issue — "No"
Proposition "13" — Your vote against the School Bond is a vote against high taxes. A "No" vote is a vote for responsible government.
1. We believe the consolidation of County and City Schools will be forthcoming soon. It doesn't make sense to have a bond issue until we know our consolidation needs.
2. Stadium or athletic field for Rose High is certainly unnecessary. Why spend all that money for a stadium primarily for five football games each year? There should be no reason to stop using the ECU stadium for Rose High games.
3. The birth rate continues to decrease, which spell less students in years to come. Most of all, we need more realistic and better management of our tax dollars and not more money. Any bond issue is inflationary. Get out and vote!
William A. Wright

And what happens to brown-bagging? It has been eliminated in other states by the vote. Why not here?
Smart business! Hooking the "drink" to or on the coattails of the school bonds. That will assure passage, and don't forget it!
So... here's the chance for a lot of people to get on the "sucker" list: Listen to the soothsayers, and vote "Yes" next Friday.
Remember... it's your neck and YOUR MONEY!

This is in reply to a recent Hotline column concerning the cost of prescriptions written by brand name versus generic name. By law, if a physician writes for a brand name drug product, it must be dispensed. If a prescription is generically written, the pharmacist has the option to dispense a therapeutically equivalent product that may or may not be cheaper. In the case described, if the patient received the same drug out of the same bottle, he would not have needed a corrected prescription and the price should have been the same. What in fact probably occurred was that he received a cheaper generic form of the drug made by a different manufacturer. Generic companies for the most part are not involved in the research and development of new drug entities and can afford to sell their drug products at a cheaper cost. However, the cheapest drug is not always the best choice when considering the health and welfare of the patient.

To the editor:
Does anyone realize from where the money is coming to support the school bond? No one tells, but our taxes will go up! That would be fine if it would solve the problems, but as pointed out in Mrs. Harrison's letter, the problems are moral, not monetary. I agree that they are spiritual.
I read Billy Graham's statement in his "Decision" newspaper that "our Judeo-Christian heritage is persistent in its demand for Biblical intolerance of moral and social evil. Too often tolerance has included compromise of conviction, a yielding to expediency on primary matters. In moral issues, permissiveness and self-indulgence have often made us morally soft and devoid of conviction." I agree and feel that by voting for more money and ignoring moral issues, we are becoming soft as sponges. Even the Duke of Wellington, who defeated Napoleon at Waterloo said, "Educate men without religion and you make them but clever devils!" That is just what is happening now, folks. Parents who care do teach morals at home, but what protection is there for them when they become victims? In fact, it is usually the victim who is punished doubly.
Money built a new cafeteria at G. R. Whitfield, and the children still eat between 11 and 1:30. If money can build new buildings to replace "fire traps," why bother to paint them before demolishing them? This actually happened at Whitfield recently! Why use money to build a lot of buildings to accommodate a few handicapped children? Strange enough, all buildings do have a first floor, and arrangements could be made for all handicapped children to use this level.
Let's not waste any more money, but most of all, let's not waste our children's lives by giving only good things and neglecting the finer and higher things.

To the editor:
There's gonna be a lotta Pitt County voters "maddern' a wet hen" next Saturday, June 9 — that is: if the referendum on liquor by the drink passes on the vote Friday, June 8. In addition to being a racket, not to mention the effect it will have on our youngsters and others, if this referendum passes, it will hit the voters right where it will hurt the most — right in the old pocketbook. Socko!
Since South Carolina legalized mixed drinks per capita consumption has increased by 12.9 percent. The North Carolina Highway Patrol reports a 22 percent increase in arrests for drunken driving in December, 1978, compared to December, 1977, when liquor by the drink was not legal in Charlotte (Mecklenburg County). Check the record.
So... while the voters sleep, and Rome burns — try this on the old piano:
Someone seems so sure that the referendum will pass that all wines of the 18-20 percent proof have already disappeared from grocers' shelves. It will be unlawful for the grocer to sell this type of wine after the referendum passes next Friday. All that will be left for the grocer to sell is the 12-13 percent wines, which are little more than colored water. Even Geritol has about 20 percent. This is true in other states, why not here? Does the Legislature have a hand in this?
The good wines will then be transferred to the shelves of the ABC stores — and zingo, UP goes the price about 25 to 50 percent.

To the editor:
I have been a resident of Greenville for 20 years. I know of no community I have shared in that has the qualities that make for the "good life" more than this city. Perhaps that quality which most appeals to me is the emphasis on education available from kindergarten through the university. I am totally committed to the Bond Issue for the Greenville-Pitt County school systems for the following reasons:
1. I have studied the proposals and have had "on site" observation. They are all desperately needed.
2. To wait for several years will add considerably to the cost.
3. The administrations and faculties have done a commendable job through these years of great transition. They deserve adequate facilities in which to work.
My children have completed their schooling in Greenville. Perhaps logic would say that I should not want to spend the extra dollars per year in taxes for the bonds, however I know that all of us are the winners in quality education in our communities.

What are you really getting when you buy a product "as is?"
The Federal Trade Commission says many people are confused by the term, particularly when it comes to used cars.
In most states, the FTC says, if you buy a car marked "as is," the dealer is not legally responsible for any repairs needed later on. And later on can come as quickly as five minutes after you drive away.
"Most consumers either don't realize they've purchased their car "as is" or they can't understand what the term means," the FTC said. The agency said a survey showed more than one out of three consumers thought that even if a car was purchased "as is," the dealer still would have to pay for at least some of the repairs if the car broke down within 25 days.

Other people believed "as is" meant "as equipped," without additional accessories. Some said the term implied that the dealer would not do any more reconditioning. And some thought an "as is" car came with the defects they had been told about; they thought that hidden defects would be covered by the dealer.
"Unless a consumer is assertive and persistent," the FTC said, "he or she will generally not receive any detailed warranty coverage information until after the decision to buy has been made."
It is easy to overlook the warranty — or lack of one — when you have to sign several papers at once. The terms of the sale may be described in confusing legal terms.
The warranty clause might read like this, according to the FTC:
"Merchant X hereby expressly disclaims all warranties either expressed or implied, including any implied warranties of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, and neither assumes nor authorizes any other person to assume for (it) liability in connection with the sale of this vehicle."
The translation would read like this: "We won't make any repairs after the car leaves the lot."
Do not take a dealer's word about a warranty. Get the promise in writing. A court will look only at the written contract.
Once you have signed the papers for an "as is" car, you can't change your mind. You have greater flexibility when it comes to some other types of purchases, however.
An FTC regulation called the "cooling-off" rule gives you three days to change your mind about things costing $25 or more which you buy from door-to-door salespeople.
To cancel a sale, sign and date one copy of the cancellation form and mail or hand deliver it to the address on your contract. You can do this at any time up until midnight of the third business day after the contract date. You may want to send the letter "certified, return receipt requested," from your local post office. There is a small fee, but your proof of the mailing date could be important.
If, for some reason, you were not given cancellation forms, write your own letter. And notify the FTC of the lack by writing to the Consumer Protection Bureau of the Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C., 20580.

$78 Million Tax Cut Package Hits Assembly Snag

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Enactment of a $78-million tax-cut package hit a snag Monday night when the House amended the bill, which meant it had to be returned to the Senate for concurrence.

The measure, which includes a $44.5-million income-tax cut that will benefit most state taxpayers by $10 to $49, gained final House approval on a 109-0 vote.

But the House amended a provision dealing with a $10 administrative fee for persons put on probation instead of an active prison sentence.

The amendment approved by the House makes it clear the $10 fee is up to the discretion of the sentencing judge and not an automatic condition of probation.

The House turned back an amendment that would have eliminated the provision calling for the fee. Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Wake, who has opposed the fee during two days of floor debate on the tax-cut package, offered the amendment to strike the fee, but it was tabled.

The tax-cut package won easy approval in the Senate last week, and received tentative approval in the House on the same 109-0 vote Friday. It includes 49 different tax-adjustment proposals, including some offered by Gov. Jim Hunt.

However, it does not contain the one-time rebate proposed by the governor early in the session.

Beginning next year, most state taxpayers would see their income taxes drop by $10 to $49 due to a 10 percent increase in personal exemptions and the standard deduction next year.

In addition, the exemption for dependents will rise from $600 to $700 next year and to $800 in 1981.

The measure was expected to be back before the Senate for approval Tuesday.

Other legislative action:
Collection Agencies
A bill that would write into law the rules and regulations governing the licensing of collection agencies was approved by the House and returned to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.

Brown Lung
A bill that would allow victims of byssinosis, or brown lung disease, to file for worker's compensation claims regardless of when they contracted the disease won final approval in the House and was sent to the Senate.

Now only persons who contracted brown lung after 1963 can consider it an occupational disease for the purposes of worker's compensation claims.

Drugs
The House approved and sent the Senate a bill that would allow pharmacists to substitute generic drugs, those that have the same medical value but are often cheaper, for brand-name drugs.

The substitution would be allowed unless a physician specifically said otherwise.

Juvenile Code
A massive rewrite of state laws dealing with juveniles gained tentative approval in the Senate and was expected to be up for final consideration today. The bill is part of Gov. Jim Hunt's crime-control package.

Marijuana
A House-passed bill that would allow the use of the active ingredient in marijuana in the treatment of cancer patients was enacted by final approval in the Senate.

The bill allows the use of THC, the active ingredient in marijuana, to be prescribed by doctors in such cases.

Action on a bill that would reduce the penalties for possession of four ounces or less of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor was postponed until today. It has already passed the House.

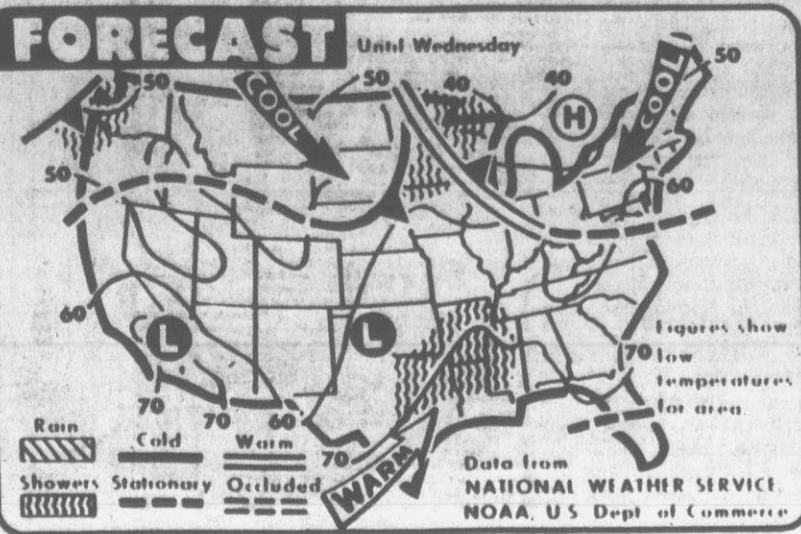

Unions
A bill aimed at limiting union activity among public employees gained unanimous approval in the Senate Manufacturing and Labor Committee after an amendment recommended by a subcommittee was added.

The legislation was drafted by former state Sen. Lawrence Davis, who represents the city of Winston-Salem, where city police have voted to affiliate with the Teamsters union.

As amended, the bill no longer contains a section preventing public employees from joining a union that engages in collective bargaining. But it still would prohibit strikes by public employees and prevent law-enforcement officers from joining a union that also represents private business employees in the same area.

Whales
A resolution urging an international moratorium be placed on the killing of whales was adopted by the Senate. It had already been adopted by the House.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today until early Wednesday predicts showers for the Pacific coast from northern Oregon through Washington. Showers are also forecast for much of Minnesota and adjacent parts of Wisconsin and Iowa. Showers are also indicated for eastern Texas, northern Louisiana and most of Arkansas and Mississippi. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Weak high pressure that was building across North Carolina today will control the weather across the state through most of Wednesday.

Partly cloudy skies were forecast in the west and along the north coast today and Wednesday. Skies were expected to be mostly sunny across the rest of the state.

There is a chance of showers across the mountains Wednesday as a warm front moves north across the gulf coast states toward the North Carolina mountains.

Temperatures were expected to range in the 80s today and again Wednesday. Exceptions will be some readings in the 70s across the mountains today and Wednesday and along the north coast today.

Lows tonight will be in the 60s except for the mountains where readings will be in the 50s.

The extended forecast for the latter part of the week calls for scattered showers and thunderstorms with little change in temperatures.

The showers and thunderstorms that occurred across the Piedmont and Coastal Plain Sunday night moved offshore Monday afternoon. The cloudiness decreased across western sections but skies remained cloudy in the east.

Afternoon temperatures generally were in the 70s. The range was from 69 at Rocky Mount and Wilson to 81 at Wilmington and Hickory.

Gov't Employee Union Ban Is Killed In House

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A House judiciary panel today killed a bill that would have prohibited public employees from joining certain unions and from striking.

By a vote of 10-6 the House Constitutional Amendments Committee voted to give the bill an unfavorable report after turning back efforts to send it to the House floor with a favorable recommendation and to delay action until the next committee meeting.

The Constitutional Amendments Committee has been functioning as judiciary committee for the last month.

The committee's action means the bill is for all practical purposes dead for this session, although a Senate panel approved the Senate's companion bill and sent it to the full Senate Monday night.

Since the House committee gave the bill an unfavorable report, the House would not be able to consider any action on the Senate version.

The bill's House sponsor, Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, said he would not attempt to get it to the House floor by moving it out through a minority report, a parliamentary maneuver that is seldom successful.

Although defeat of the bill represents a victory for state labor leaders, AFL-CIO President Wilbur Hobby declined comment on the committee's action.

Supporters of the bill, which was introduced in the Senate by Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., D-Wake, said it is necessary to prohibit public employees from cutting off vital services to the public through strikes.

The bill was introduced two weeks ago, and labor leaders managed to get delays on action on it by calling for a public hearing, which was held last week.

The legislation was drafted by former Sen. Lawrence Davis of Winston-Salem, whose law firm represents that city in litigation stemming from recent union organization of several city departments.

Top Finalists In Nat'l Contest

Five members of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Membership Sales Team have been listed as top finalists in the National Chamber of Commerce Membership Contest.

According to Jeannette Cox, Membership Committee Chairman, three women have been listed in the top 14 Best Female Salespersons in the Under 100,000 Population Category; and two local men have been listed in the Top Twenty Best Male Salespersons in the Under 100,000 Population Category. They are as follows: Anne Dufus, Peggy Christopher, and Mavis Butts; Ray Rogers and Gerold Gay.

These salespersons will continue working with membership sales through Dec. 31 to help the Chamber recruit 200 new members.

the aides there as "worn-down" and "desensitized."

Moreover, these aides stubbornly insist that Carter's principal peril lies within the Democratic party and, consequently, requires that liberal constituency groups be handled with care. Yet, all evidence is that these groups are lost to him now. In Democratic congressional cloakrooms, Carter is savaged not by conservatives and moderates, but by liberals.

This is what up-and-coming Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma tried to tell the president in a half-hour private meeting May 25. Having shared the agony of one Democratic president a decade ago as an aide to Lyndon B. Johnson, Jones told Carter he is committed to the success of presidents — especially this one.

While Carter is denigrated by liberals, Jimmy Jones honestly believes he can be an excellent president — if Carter puts his faith in his own policies and in moderate conservative supporters such as Jones. The starting point, in Jones' opinion, is for the president to truly embrace oil decontrol and the accompanying excess-profits tax as originally proposed.

But Carter the populist collides here with Carter the conservative. He originally turned down recommendations from three cabinet members — James Schlesinger (Energy), Michael Blumenthal (Treasury) and Cyrus Vance (State) for a dramatic, immediate decontrol, opting instead for a gradual plan. Then, taunted by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter virtually invited Congress to undo his own plan.

In Tuesday's news conference, Carter followed Jones' advice by unequivocally endorsing his own decontrol without even baiting oil companies. That firmness encouraged those who believe the president must quickly take a daring course, flying in the face of environmentalists, "desensitized" aides and congressional liberals. To authors of this scenario, the alternative is continued political deterioration.

Licensing Requirement For Day Care Is Killed

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Senate killed legislation Monday that would have dropped state licensing requirements for church-run day care centers, after Gov. Jim Hunt began an intensive lobbying effort against the measure.

The Senate voted 26-18 to thwart a parliamentary maneuver by supporters of the bill, leaving the measure dead until 1981. Supporters had attempted to place the measure before the Senate for debate by presenting a minority report, which would have overcome a Senate committee's rejection of the bill last week.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, would have dropped the requirement that church-supported day care centers obtain a license, but still require that they meet minimum health and safety standards.

About 20 day-care centers run by fundamentalist Protestant churches have refused to submit to licensing and are fighting the state requirement in court.

Supporters of the deregulation bill, led by the Rev. Kent Kelly of Southern Pines, won legislation earlier this year that dropped most regulations covering church-run schools.

Hunt administration officials went to work against the day-care bill, urging senators to oppose the measure. Administration Secretary Joseph Grimsley wrote a letter to all senators saying, "If we pass this bill, you are going to weaken the protection for children that the 1971 General Assembly said was urgently needed."

Hunt issued a strongly worded statement himself, saying it "should be defeated for the good of our young children."

Kelly, in an interview, called Grimsley's letter "absolute lies." And Kelly charged that Hunt had reneged on a promise to him that he would not oppose the bill.

"He went completely back on his word," Kelly said. "He told us as long as we weren't trying to lower the standards, he would remain neutral and control the bureaucrats' opposition."

Methodists Urged Renew Commitment

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Methodists were challenged Monday to patch their divisions and renew a commitment to both evangelism and social activism.

They were urged to stand up for their convictions rather than becoming "restricted" by the church's wealth.

The remarks came in Bishop Robert M. Blackburn's "State of the Church" address at the opening session of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church. The conference continues through Thursday. About 1,400 delegates are expected to attend.

Issues on which debate is expected — resolutions opposing the death penalty and supporting public schools and the issue of what to do with some church property in Raleigh — are scheduled to reach the floor Wednesday.

In an address one delegate claimed "had something for everybody and made no one mad," Blackburn said "the divisiveness among our people is one of the most destructive forces we have ever faced." "Local churches split into warring camps over labor versus management, over racial inclusiveness, over charismatic," he said. "To maintain one's convictions at the same time that one respects the stance of another is one of the hardest tasks before us. Some even fear to study different points of view, for fear that their own convictions will be shaken. Yet, study we must."

Blackburn said Methodists should stop bickering among themselves, particularly over the issue of evangelism vs. activism.

Methodists, he said, should realize that evangelism and activism "are one and the same, the two halves of the whole gospel."

The Real Story About DRINKING In South Carolina

Per person consumption in South Carolina rose 12.8 percent in four years after adoption of liquor-by-the-drink.*

The real facts speak for themselves! South Carolina's experience shows conclusively that liquor-by-the-drink — even completely without brown-bagging — brings drastically increased consumption.

SOUTH CAROLINA FIGURES ARE REVEALING

Official Distilled Spirits Council of the U.S. Inc. Figures:

	1973	1977	UP since 1973
N.C.	1.53	1.57	2.6%
S.C.	1.87	2.11	12.8%
U.S.A.	1.94	2.00	3.1%

In the six full years since adopting liquor-by-the-drink in 1973, per capita consumption has increased at a rate of over four times the national increase and almost five times the increase in North Carolina — without liquor-by-the-drink. These are revealing statistics . . . something to really THINK ABOUT!

In addition, the South Carolina per person consumption in 1977 — with liquor-by-the-drink — was 34.4% greater (2.11 gallons to 1.57 gallons) than the per person consumption in North Carolina — without liquor-by-the-drink!

THE MORAL OF THIS STORY —

South Carolina, like all other states which have gone to liquor-by-the-drink, has experienced a tremendous increase in the consumption of alcohol.

Wildlife Preserve Destroyed

PAKUBA, Uganda (AP) — Once one of Africa's great wildlife preserves, Kabalega Falls National Park in northwest Uganda, seems virtually empty of animals, its herds of elephants, buffalo and hippopotamus destroyed by Idi Amin's troops.

In a three-day trek across the rolling plains of the former Murchison Falls National Park, a reporter saw one giraffe, one buffalo and several clusters of gazelles.

Less than a decade ago, zoologists estimated that the 1,500-square-mile park contained 30,000 buffalo, 14,000 elephants, 13,000 hippopotamuses, 600 crocodiles and at least a dozen rare white rhinoceroses transported into the area to save them from poachers.

The park includes a spectacular waterfall where the Victoria Nile thunders through a rocky gap 20 feet wide and plunges 127 feet into a pool. Both the falls and the park were named after Sir Roderick Murchison, president of Britain's Royal Geographic Society in 1864 when a European explorer discovered the falls.

Amin changed the names after his coup in 1971. As his turbulent, murderous rule unfolded, the number of foreign visitors to Uganda dropped from 80,000 a year to nearly none and the $17.5-million-a-year tourist industry collapsed.

Villagers living in the park said Amin's soldiers began invading Kabalega, the country's best wildlife preserve, to kill elephants and sell the ivory tusks across the border in Zaire.

After Amin lost Kampala, the capital, to an invasion force of Tanzanians and Ugandan exiles on April 11, thousands of his troops fled through the park.

"They came in convoys of big trucks," said Pastor Lolili, a 25-year-old school teacher. "They shot the animals with machine guns, loaded the trucks with the carcasses and drove to the West Nile."

The soldiers wanted the meat to feed themselves and their families in West Nile, where food is chronically scarce.

The troops also sacked the two tourist lodges in the park, at Pakuba and Paraa. An official in the nearby town of Pakwach said a convoy of 20 trucks went to the lodges at the end of April and took away every movable item of value.

The furniture is gone. Floors are covered with broken glass. Doors have been splintered and the electrical wiring ripped from walls.

The shooting could have driven some of the animals into hiding, and they should emerge later. But it will probably be many years before the park is again a place where visitors can observe African wildlife at close quarters.

One resident commented: "The lodges can be fixed up in a matter of weeks, and it will take a few years to restore the economy of Uganda. But it will be decades before the animals are back as they once were. to be among the longest lasting legacies of Idi Amin."

Memorial Service Held For Slain Law Officers

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — Three slain law officers gave their lives to protect their communities, Gov. Jim Hunt said at a memorial service for the three Monday.

Hunt joined local officials and hundreds of Rutherford County residents at the memorial service for state Trooper R.L. "Pete" Peterson and sheriff's deputies Capt. Roy Huskey and Sgt. Owen Messersmith.

The deputies were shot Thursday while answering a domestic disturbance call, and Peterson was shot a short time later. James William Hutchins, 50, has been charged with three counts of first-degree murder.

Hunt spoke briefly during a memorial service held on the lawn of the Rutherford County Courthouse, telling a crowd of more than 500 people, including 150 uniformed law officers, that liberty and freedom exist because of officers like the three slain men.

Other dignitaries attending the service included state Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety Herbert Hyde, Rutherford County's five commissioners, the mayor of Rutherford and a number of other local officials.

Funeral services for the slain men were held Sunday afternoon.

Hunt told the crowd that he wanted to be at the service as governor to speak for all the people of North Carolina.

"We should be aware of how much we are in the debt of these men and of these families. We should not let these men have died in vain," Hunt said. "My heart goes out to the families. We should work harder to make the world a safer place," he said.

Hyde said he came to "pay tribute to three brave men." He said he was speaking for Sheriff Damon Huskey, whose brother was slain with him.

"My head will not understand and my heart cannot at this moment be full of Christian charity," Hyde said.

After the solemn, 30-minute ceremony, Dr. H.R. Rogers, a doctor at the Rutherford County Hospital, played taps on a bugle.

Hunt spoke with members of the families of the three slain men following the service.

Four Men Arraigned On 117 Counts In N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Four men whom authorities are trying to link to last month's four Bedford Hills killings have been arraigned on 117 counts of robbery, burglary, assault and possession of weapons, all charges unrelated to the murders.

The four include Jimmy Lee Allen, 40, of Plainfield, N.J., who was arrested with a gun police said was used in the Westchester County killings. The other men who were arraigned Monday before Justice Franklin W. Morton in state Supreme Court in Brooklyn on the other charges were Jeffrey Davis, 25, also of Plainfield; Junious Gray, 40, and Levi Moore, 29, of Brooklyn.

All but Moore were held in $100,000 bail. He was detained on $50,000 bail.

Assistant District Attorney Michael A. Gentile, who had asked for $250,000 bail for each defendant, said Allen was taken into custody with a .32-caliber pistol equipped with a silencer. The gun later was shown by "microscopic tests" to have been used in Bedford Hills, according to Gentile.

No one has yet been charged for the four Bedford Hills deaths on May 10. But the four men, who were arrested after the alleged robbery of 50 birthday party guests in Brooklyn, are said to be key suspects.

Gentile confirmed that all four men had extensive police records.

Gray has a police record in New York, New Jersey and Savannah, Ga., dating back to 1964 for grand larceny, according to Gentile.

He also was wanted by federal officials for escaping while being transferred from a prison in New Jersey to Savannah, Gentile said.

Allen, who had an arrest record dating back to 1972 for burglary, assault and attempted rape, was arrested in April 1972 in connection with a burglary at the New Jersey estate of U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

At the time, Allen also was charged in connection with 20 other burglary attempts in wealthy Somerset Hills, N.J.

Moore has a criminal record dating back to 1971 for possession of weapons and stolen property offenses, according to Gentile.

Parcel Bombs Sent To Nazi Leaders In U.S.

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Five powerful parcel bombs — all capable of killing or maiming — have been sent to Nazi leaders in four states. And a telephone caller says more are on the way today.

But, unlike the first group, today's bombs "are going to go off," the anonymous caller told The Associated Press on Monday.

The caller, claiming to represent the International Committee Against Nazism, said he revealed where the bombs were located because "this is only a warning. The second time they're going to go off. There'll be more tomorrow."

When asked for more information, the caller said Monday: "We'll call you tomorrow with new places." He hung up when asked if he would call before the new bombs exploded.

Monday's caller said bombs had been mailed to Nazi leaders in Chicago; Cicero, Ill.; Arlington, Va., and Lincoln, Neb. On Saturday, a person claiming to be from the same group told the AP in a telephone call that a bomb had been sent to Paterson, N.J.

Authorities in each of those communities later confirmed the existence of the potentially lethal packages.

An FBI spokesman in Newark, N.J., said the agency was looking into the incidents — talking to persons who received the parcels and trying to determine who else might get them. He declined to divulge additional details of the investigation.

Each parcel contained similar explosives and detonators, and, in at least three cases, bombs were accompanied by a similarly worded message ending with "Heil Hitler and White Power."

The caller Saturday said a bomb would go to Tscherm Soobzokov, a former Nazi SS officer, in Paterson. Soobzokov received a cigar box-size package containing explosives at his home Friday. The device was detonated by Army experts.

Soobzokov was cleared by a federal grand jury last month of war crime charges dating back to World War II.

Bombs also were sent to Matt Kohel, commanding officer of the National Socialist White People's Party, at the group's national headquarters in Arlington, Va.; the party's Midwest office in Cicero; Frank Collin, head of the National Socialist Party of America in Chicago, and to Gary Rex "Gerhard" Lauck, 26, head of the overseas branch of the German Nazi Party and a member of the American Nazi Party in Lincoln, Neb.

The bombs to Kohel and Collin were intercepted at post office branches. The bomb to Cicero was defused by a party member, and the one sent to Lauck was disarmed at a police pistol range.

Larry Cole, Lincoln fire department inspector, said the guerrilla-type bomb sent to Lauck was capable of killing anyone within a 5-to-10-foot range. Cole described the triggering mechanism as a pressure-release type, designed to explode when the box was opened.

Arrest Youth In Break-In Try

FARMVILLE — A local youth was charged last night with attempted breaking and entering at a local furniture store.

Police Chief Ron Cooper said Tommy Moore, 17, of Farmville was charged with attempted breaking and entering at J. B. Davis Furniture Store here last night at 10:30 p.m. His bond was set at $500.

Airline Merger Plan Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's official. Southern Airways and North Central Airlines can merge into Republic Airlines.

President Carter gave final approval to the merger Monday. It had been authorized earlier by the Civil Aeronautics Board, but Carter had the final say because some international routes were involved.

The new carrier will be based in Minneapolis and will rank 13th in size among the 19 U.S. airlines.

Eighth Graduation At Ayden-Grifton

Ayden-Grifton High School will mark its eighth annual commencement exercises Friday, June 8, 8 p.m., at the school athletic field. Approximately 173 students are scheduled to receive diplomas.

The Ayden-Grifton High School Band will begin the activities with the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance," directed by Ron Payne.

The chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Katherine Burke, will sing "Times of Your Life" and "No Man Is An Island." A trio from the chorus will present "The Way We Were."

Two members of the senior class, Jeffrey Fussell and Tricia Tenpenny, have been selected to serve as featured speakers.

Jeffrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Fussell of Ayden, will address the question, "Where Are We Going?" He is a Morehead Scholar nominee, a Governor's School nominee, a Pitt County Math Award nominee, and has been selected to be in the 1979 edition of "American Outstanding Names and Faces." He was also a participant in the 1978 East Carolina University Math Contest.

The recipient of a Johnston Scholarship at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Jeffrey is active in the National Honor Society, and the Science, French and Chess Clubs. He plans to pursue an undergraduate degree in biology, then possibly, medical school.

Tricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Tenpenny of Ayden, will deliver the speech, "Where We've Been." A National Merit Finalist, Tricia was a Governor's School nominee, and the recipient of the county award for outstanding achievement in instrumental music. She was a nominee for the National Honor Society Scholarship and the County Science Award.

Now serving in the Eastern District All-State Band, Tricia has been named in the 1979 editions of "Who's Who in Music" and "Who's Who Among American High School Students." She is a member of the National Honor Society, the band, and the Math and French Clubs. She is presently publicity chairman of the Science Club and secretary-treasurer of the senior class. She will enter Duke University in the fall to work toward a degree in physics.

Following the speakers, awards will be presented by William C. Wiggins, principal.

AYDEN-GRIFTON SPEAKERS — Tricia Tenpenny and Jeffrey Fussell have been selected as senior speakers for the eighth annual commencement exercises at Ayden-Grifton Friday evening.

Mrs. Dot Dail, chairperson of the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council, Amy Carson, Alan Tenpenny, and Frederick S. Parks, assistant principal, will award diplomas. Peggy Jones, Vickie Cannon, Susan Howes, Michael McLawhorn, Billy Whitehurst, Danny Manning, Bill Burke, Janipat Worthington, and Dale Butler will serve as marshals. Danielle Elks, Ken Langston, West Paul and Susan Riggs will all serve as chief marshals.

Cousteau Is Given Okay

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Undersea explorer Jacques Cousteau may be able to film the U.S.S. Monitor after all.

The Monitor Technical Advisory Committee decided Monday to recommend approval of Cousteau's proposal to film the wreck of the Civil War ironclad.

Last week, the committee expressed reservations about the plan, and two members said that the committee should have editorial control over any broadcast about the ship.

According to the proposal recommended Monday, Cousteau plans to begin a three- or four-day visit to the Monitor site Thursday.

The National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration must now approve Cousteau's request because the wreck lies in a federally protected marine sanctuary. A NOAA committee will act on the request today. Cousteau plans to include a segment about the Monitor, which sank off Cape Hatteras in a storm more than 100 years ago, in a television broadcast on historic shipwrecks. Larry E. Tise, director of the N.C. Division of Archives and History, polled the seven committee members by telephone Monday and said they all approved.

Scott Slaps At Federal Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — If federal officials don't like the job he's doing as co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, "they can take this job and cram it," former North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott says.

A Senate report on extending the commission's life leveled some criticism at Scott, and some commission staff members say Scott spends too much time in North Carolina.

But, said Scott, "I don't need this job. If they think I'm not doing my job, they should just tell me. They can take this job and cram it." Scott has said he'll resign the $52,500-a-year post later this year to return to his dairy farm in Alamance County. There's also been speculation that he'll seek another term as governor, and Scott has said he's considering it.

The report said, in part, "There is no question that the federal co-chairman should be a visible spokesman for the commission throughout the region. However, even more important are his responsibilities in Washington."

The Senate report was "not intended as a rebuke, but as an encouragement," said Philip Cummings, chief counsel for the panel.

Cummings said some staff members feel Scott travels too much on matters with limited relationship to the commission. "Scott's running for governor. He's never here," one official said.

Scott said he does extensive traveling and that most of his speeches are in North Carolina because, "That's where all my invitations come from; I seldom turn down any invitations."

Calling himself "Mr. Outside" and saying that it's part of his job to accept speaking engagements, Scott said, "I'm supposed to come up here and keep my mouth shut?"

School Bond Referendum Endorsed by County Commissioners

OFFICE OF THE PITT COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA
JUNE 5, 1979

RESOLUTION ENDORSING THE NINE MILLION DOLLAR SCHOOL BOND ISSUE TO BE VOTED ON JUNE 8, 1979.

UPON MOTION by Charles P. Gaskins and seconded by Ed N. Warren, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners unanimously adopted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners has determined that the conditions of the school plan facilities in the County and City are in need of repair, remodeling, and additions made thereto to insure the safety of the school children attending schools in Pitt County, and

WHEREAS, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners has recognized the need for capital outlay funds for schools in the Pitt County and Greenville School District for several years, and

WHEREAS, the needs for capital outlay funds to provide the facilities necessary for the education of the school children in Pitt County and Greenville cannot be met on a current appropriation and tax levy basis, and

WHEREAS, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners has requested the Pitt County and Greenville School Boards to call for a School Bond Referendum Vote on the Nine Million Dollar School Bond Issue, and

WHEREAS, the funds required to meet the current needs of the two school systems cannot be supplied by levying taxes in the amount necessary to meet the immediate needs as this would place a too heavy burden on tax payers of Pitt County.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners that the citizens of Pitt County be urged and encouraged to support the Nine Million Dollar School Bond Issue to be voted on June 8, 1979.

NEW YORK (AP) — Advancing energy issues led the stock market higher today.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead by 2.77 at 824.67. Advances led declines by better than 2-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues as volume in the first two hours picked up to 15.29 million shares from 9.36 million at noon Monday.

Standard Oil of Ohio gained 2 to 5 1/2%. It said it plans to acquire Webb Resources and Newco Exploration, Denver-based oil and gas firms.

Tesoro Petroleum led the NYSE most-actives, rising 7/8 to 13 3/4, while Gulf rose 1/4 to 25 1/2. Charter was up 1/4 at 20 1/2. It said it is reducing its share of the Bahamian refinery it acquired last month from 65 percent to 50 percent. Standard Oil of California, which gained 1 to 4 1/2%, will raise its stake in the plant from 35 percent to 50 percent.

Sterling Drug was off 1/8 at 19 1/2. It has been under pressure despite an announcement that a new heart drug would undergo widespread testing at 16 medical centers.

"People have gotten cranked up about the drug a little bit prematurely before it was tested adequately," said Blyth, Eastman Dillon analyst Ronald M. Nordmann. Nordmann cited reports of an adverse allergic reaction to the drug, Amrinone, by one patient in California.

Class A shares of Resorts International rose 1 to 4 1/2% on the American Stock Exchange despite a report that its average daily Atlantic City, N.J., gambling winnings last month were 7.2 percent below those for April.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index gained .36 to 56.49; the Amex market value index rose .85 to 189.63.

Arrested On Rape Count

An 18-year-old man has been arrested by Pitt County deputies and charged with the rape early Monday of a Rt. 1, Bethel woman.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies arrested William Clay Everette of Rt. 1, Box 423, Bethel at 1:30 p.m. Monday and charged him with the assault of the 64-year-old woman.

According to the sheriff, the assault victim told officers that someone knocked on her door early Monday morning and when she went to the door a man forced his way into her house. She reported that she was assaulted twice.

Sheriff Tyson said the incident was reported at 2:35 a.m. Monday.

Everette was placed under $50,000 bond, the sheriff reported, with a hearing scheduled for June 13 in District Court here.

Top Church Of England Prelate Plans Retire

LONDON (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury, Donald Coggan, will retire in January, the Church of England announced today.

The archbishop, spiritual head of the Church of England and the worldwide Anglican Communion with about 65 million members, will be 70 in October.

He offered his resignation to Queen Elizabeth II and it was accepted. The queen, as "defender of the faith," is temporal head of the church.

The archbishop, just back from a 14-day tour of East European countries where he preached to packed congregations, plans to retire Jan. 26, 1980.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office announced simultaneously that Coggan is to be made a life peer when his resignation takes effect, entitling him to sit in the House of Lords.

A Church of England statement said: "This is his personal decision. He is in his 70th year and his predecessor (Michael Ramsey) retired at the same age."

Coggan surprisingly did not reveal his decision at a morning news conference called to discuss his trip to Eastern Europe.

The announcement came at noon in a statement from the Church of England information office, which said the archbishop was making no comment about the reasons for his departure.

When the biblical scholar was chosen archbishop of Canterbury on May 14, 1974, he was dubbed the "caretaker archbishop" because of his age.

He is known to want a younger man to step into his shoes.

Sight Plane Wreckage

SHOOTING CREEK, N.C. (AP) — Searchers have located what is believed to be the wreckage of a missing light plane carrying a North Carolina physician and his wife on a rugged mountain range near here.

Lt. Wayne Martin of the Georgia Civil Air Patrol said in Toccoa, Ga., that the wreckage was spotted by CAP air searchers late Monday near the peak of a 5,500 mountain just north of the Georgia border.

He said adverse weather and the rugged terrain had delayed efforts to get to the crash site by helicopter. He said it was not known whether there were any survivors of the crash.

Martin said authorities are "almost positive" that the wreckage is that of a Cessna 182 that was reported missing last week on a flight from Birmingham, Ala., to Sugar Valley, N.C.

On board the missing aircraft were Dr. William Giles of Yadkinville, N.C., and his wife, Nancy, authorities said.

The couple had left Birmingham on Thursday for the flight to the Sugar Valley.

Suspect OD Was 'Prank'

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Hospitalized since March 20 because of an overdose of drugs, Craig L. Sharpless appears to be the victim of a prank turned sour.

The Jacksonville football standout was to attend North Carolina in the fall as one of its prized recruits.

Instead, he is battling a drug overdose and pneumonia.

Sharpless, 19, apparently unknowingly took Phencyclidine, also known as PCP or angel dust, a powerful drug used to tranquilize animals.

The circumstances surrounding the incident, which occurred while Sharpless was attending a party March 17, remain cloudy. Sharpless has refused to talk with anyone about the party, except to indicate that he did not knowingly take the PCP.

John Warlick, an attorney and close friend of the youth, said Monday, "The only thing he's ever told me was that he went to a party and somebody put something in his drink."

"I don't think he thinks anybody was intentionally trying to hurt him, but they did," said Warlick, who added that he didn't think Sharpless was involved in any kind of drug use.

Dr. Takey Crist, another friend, said, "There's been talk around town that the kids in his neighborhood were real jealous of his success and that somebody might have slipped him something."

Crist said he thought it was possible that Sharpless was given some PCP-laced marijuana at the party.

Nab Juvenile For Vandalism

FARMVILLE — Some time prior to 7:35 a. m. Mar. 10, the side and headlight area of a Farmville Police car was spray painted bright red.

Repainting the blue-and-white to cover the red embellishment cost the town $200.

Yesterday a 15-year-old juvenile was arrested in connection with this incident. Hearing is set for June 28, Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper said.

Country Singer, Musician Slain

STEBENVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Charges may be filed today in connection with the death of a country and western musician whose nude body was found Friday in a strip-mined area near Smithfield.

The victim was identified by Jefferson County sheriff's deputies as Buddy Neal, 29, of Manning, S.C. He and his traveling companion, Jeannie Neal, 29, also of Manning, were shot early Friday following a performance in an area tavern.

Jeannie Neal is recuperating at a Steubenville hospital from a gunshot wound in the head. She was found Friday morning by coal haulers who took her to the hospital.

She was allowed to leave the hospital briefly later in the day to guide deputies to the scene of the shooting and to Neal's body. Deputies say robbery is believed to be the motive in the incident.

Kenneth Royall Is Hospitalized

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, was admitted to the Rex Hospital emergency room today after complaining of chest pains, according to the nursing office at the Legislative Building.

A hospital spokesman confirmed Royall was in the emergency room, but no report on his condition was immediately available.

The nursing office said the senator had not suffered an attack but was complaining of pains throughout his chest about 9:30 this morning, and his color was poor.

Horner Satisfied With Case Decision

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Horner said he was happy but the strain in his baby face told another story.

The 21-year-old blond bomber repeated over and over that he had won and was happy about Monday's ruling by an arbitrator denying his request for free agency but telling the Atlanta Braves to pay him about $146,000 for 1979.

Horner's eyes, however, gave him away as he discussed the six turbulent months of anticipation in the pending arbitration case.

Finally, he put it all into perspective when asked how he really felt about the decision.

"I'm happy, relieved, upset and miserable all at once," said last year's National League Rookie of the Year.

"I don't know, I'll just pick up the pieces and go from here. You don't plan on this (arbitration) happening. You hope it doesn't happen but if the cards fell exactly the same way, I wouldn't change a thing. I'd do it 100 times the same way," he said.

Although both sides were claiming victory, it appears that the Braves were the big winners.

Atlanta lost some money, but retained their No. 1 draft choice of a year ago who belted 23 home runs, drove in 63 runs and batted .266 in only 89 games.

Arbitrator Raymond Goetz' decision was disclosed in a draft opinion distributed to Major League Baseball Player Relations Committee and to the Major League Players Association, which had argued the merits of the case before Goetz, a University of Kansas law professor, last month.

The draft decision is preliminary but there is no appeal from it.

Ironically, baseball's free agent draft of high school players and college players will be held today. It was in that draft that Horner was plucked from Arizona State a year ago.

Problems arose when it came time to sign Horner for 1979 when the Braves negotiated on the basis of his $21,000 rookie salary. Horner and his agent, Bucky Woy, argued that his 1979 salary should include all of his 1978 compensation, including signing and other bonuses, which totaled about $181,000.

Under major league rules, a player's compensation can only be cut 20 percent and Woy argued that Horner had to be offered at least $146,000 for 1979. The Braves refused, claiming bonuses were a one-time payment and offered Horner $100,000 for 1979.

Horner held out and claimed he should be declared a free agent because the club had not offered a valid contract by a deadline date.

Goetz' decision is important because of the effect it will have on negotiations with top amateurs drafted this week.

"It's going to be tough on those kids signing out of college and high school," said Horner. "But I really don't know what's going to happen. I just felt like I did what I had to do. I'd never do anything to make a grandstand play."

John Mullen, the Braves' general manager, also did not know what affect it would have on signing players from the draft.

"I think all the major league clubs will be scratching their heads wondering what effect it will have. I'm surprised at the ruling. In effect, I would say that any player who signs a major league contract will just get a salary. There would be no point in giving a bonus anymore," he said.

"Obviously it's going to cost baseball money. I'm sure the decision is going to shake up a lot of people in the game," said Mullen.

Woy, too, agreed it would have an effect on this week's amateur draft.

He called the decision "a hollow victory," but added that it would change the way teams handed out bonuses. "There will be a lot of teams looking at signing bonuses differently than they did in the past," Woy said from his Dallas office.

He said Horner could "easily have gotten $1.2 million to $1.5 million for three years" if he had been declared a free agent. "There was no tampering, but we got phone calls from half a dozen people who were in a position to know," Woy said. "If we had been declared a free agent, I would guess that at least two dozen ball clubs would have been in the bidding."

Horner said he was just glad "the thing is over with. What we were fighting for was upheld. We fought for what we thought was right and that's exactly what the arbitrator ruled."

He said he would live with the decision and "go from there."

"I'm here and that's the way it is. I just have to let it be over with and play baseball," said Horner.

He said living out of a suitcase in a rented apartment, rented car and rented furniture has had its effects on him and his recent bride, Chris.

"She's been a little upset with living out of a suitcase since the spring. But, she too, is relieved now," said Horner.

Manager Bobby Cox couldn't have agreed more.

"I'm glad it's all over with. Now we don't have to worry about it anymore and we can get our minds back to playing baseball," he said.

First Federal banged out 12 hits on route to an easy victory over Pepsi.

The winners scored four runs in the first inning. Ervin Best doubled and Tyrone Barrett walked. Ricky Outlaw got a two-base hit and Rodney Harris reached on an error. He scored on Mark Holloman's fielder's choice.

Derek Dickens hit a two-run homer in the second as First Federal scored five more runs. They added one in the third and one more in the fourth. Both Pepsi runs came in the fifth.

Best, Outlaw and Harris all had two hits for FF.

Jaycees 9, Lions 5

The Jaycees exploded for six runs in the third inning to lead the Lions their first defeat of the season.

Tyrone Daniels led off the frame with a walk, Maury Harris was hit by a pitch, David Lee, Kenneth Butler and Evan Hause all got bases on balls before Jody Smith singled. Smith scored when Rocky Ziehr, Daniels and Bruce Koonce walked.

The Lions scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the frame, while both teams scored three runs in the fourth.

Harris and Smith were the pitchers for the Jaycees, while William Ward and Tom Moye pitched for the Lions. Smith and Tony Taylor each had two hits.

Problem Solved

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn sees a leveling off of problems involving female reporters in baseball clubhouses.

"There no longer are any serious problems," said Kuhn Monday night after addressing The Associated Press Sports Editors convention. "The players and the other writers are beginning to adjust."

Kuhn told a dinner gathering of some 240 editors and representatives from 170 newspapers that 22 of baseball's 26 teams now allow female reporters into the dressing room.

"We have made a tremendous amount of progress," said Kuhn. "At first we thought it was unfair to the players to have the women come in. We litigated it and lost. It hasn't come easy. There have been rough spots."

Kuhn also said that baseball has the best media relations in the world of sports.

"We take pride in our media relations," he said. "The press is important to us. We want the press to do a good job. I don't mean to say there are no problems, but look at the access we provide in pregame and postgame periods.

"Night games are a problem for morning newspapers and there is a conflict between the broadcast and print media," said Kuhn. "But we are trying to provide the best possible working conditions."

FARMVILLE SENIOR SPEAKERS — Susan Lawrence, left, and Jill Cutler will serve as senior speakers at Farmville Central High School's commencement exercises Friday, 8 p.m., in the school gymnasium.

Approximately 200 senior students from Farmville Central High School will receive their diplomas during commencement exercises Friday, June 8, 8 p.m., in the school gymnasium.

The Rev. Alfred W. Dixon will offer the invocation, followed by Senior Class President Miss Donita Williams with the welcoming remarks. Miss Williams will introduce the two senior speakers, Jill Cutler and Susan Lawrence.

Jill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Cutler of Farmville, and Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Lawrence of Falkland, will both address "Make Each Tomorrow Better Today."

Jill, who has served as state vice president of the Distributive Education Clubs of America, is chapter president at Farmville Central. She is a member of the National Honor Society and the Keywanettes. Active as business manager of the school yearbook and member of the Farmville Central cheerleading squad, Jill serves as a youth representative of the Farmville Mental Health Board. She plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Greensboro next fall with a possible degree in public/human relations.

Susan, who serves as president of the Keywanettes, is the 1979 editor of the school yearbook. She is active in the National Honor Society and dramatics at the school. She plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill for a mathematics degree.

Senior class president Williams will present the class gift with Russ Cotton, principal, presenting the awards. Following the presentation, diplomas will be awarded by Mrs. Charles H. Carr and Warner S. Rackley, members of the Farmville Area Advisory Council. The Rev. Dixon will close the program with the benediction.

Catherine Lois Beamon, Kimber Leigh Cotton, Cathy Estelle Dixon, David Lee Dunn, Margaret Ann Dwyer, Joni Jo Erwin, Lee Ann Fortenberry, Diania Wyn Gordon, Terry Lee Johnson, Robert Emmett Jones III, Shirley Louise McArthur, David Earl Newton, Bess Llewellyn Patton, Debbie Prescott, Janice Susan Tugwell, Beverly Elaine Tyson, Melinda Denise Williams and William Edward Wooten II will serve as marshals. Transportation Project Aired

The Eastern Carolina Vocational Center Inc. is soliciting comments from bus and taxi operators concerning the proposed transportation project for the elderly and handicapped.

In the project, the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, Inc. would provide transportation to the elderly and handicapped residents of Pitt and Martin Counties, including Greenville, Winterville, Bethel, Ayden, Grifton, Fountain, Faulkland, Robersonville, Williamston, Stokes and Everett.

Four vans, each having a 15 passenger capacity, and two mini-buses, each having a 25 passenger capacity, would be purchased to replace vehicles having over 125,000 miles.

Total cost of the project is estimated at $74,850. A request for 80 percent of the cost, $59,514, would be made to the U.S. Department of Transportation. Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, Inc. would be responsible for financing the remaining 20 percent, $14,878.

The purchase and use of the vehicles and equipment is subject to the terms of the financial assistance between the N.C. Department of Transportation and the U.S. Department of Transportation and between the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, Inc. and the N.C. Department of Transportation.

The project would be carried out in conformance with current transportation planning efforts in Pitt and Martin Counties. It would be included in a Transportation Development Program and would also be reviewed by the A-95 Clearinghouse.

Written comments on the proposed project should be submitted within 30 days of this notice to: Director of Public Transportation, N.C. Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 25201, Raleigh, N.C., 27611.

Judge Fines Jerry Paul

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former Durham attorney Jerry Paul was fined $50 and court costs Monday after a judge convicted him of taking a client's money, but failing to do the work.

Paul, who now lives in New York City, gained prominence during his defense in 1975 of Joan Little. Ms. Little was acquitted of killing a jailer in Beaufort County after she testified that he sexually assaulted her.

Wake County District Court Judge Stafford G. Bullock found Paul guilty of a misdemeanor of obtaining money by promise.

Paul said he would appeal the verdict.

The charges against Paul arose in January after Caledonia Prison inmate Fred P. Mabery of Jamaica, N.Y., told prosecutors that Paul took $1,500 from him in legal fees.

Mabery said Paul had agreed to represent him in an appeal of a kidnapping conviction, for which he is serving a life sentence.

Paul admitted accepting the money. But he said it was for work he did on the appeal, although one was never filed. Paul said he told Mabery he would not file the appeal until he was paid a fee of $1,500.

Shortly after charges were brought against him, Paul gave $900 back to Mabery, according to evidence presented Monday.

Paul said, "I told him exactly what I was going to do. I view this thing as harassment."

A second charge, a felony of obtaining money by false pretenses, was dismissed by Bullock.

Paul said he is teaching in an urban studies program at the City College of New York.

Assembly Session Moving To Close

BY REP. SAM D. BUNDY
We came here on Jan. 10 and now five months, 2,500 bills and $10 billion later it looks like the General Assembly will adjourn around June 7.

The Senate has passed both the "appropriations Package Bill" and the "Finance Package Bill." The House has passed the "Appropriations Package Bill" and by the time you read this it will have passed the "Finance Package Bill." The Appropriations Bill calls for a budget of $5 billion for 1979-80 and $5.1 billion for 1980-81. This, of course, includes both the General Fund and the Highway fund and takes in tax income, federal monies, fees, tuition and the like. The Finance Bill calls for a tax reduction of $78 million over the 1979-81 biennium mainly in raising income and inheritance tax exemptions. The House made two attempts to break the "Appropriations Package" and failed in both attempts. An amendment to delete state tax funds for elective abortions failed by a 72-42 vote, while an amendment to remove the monies for the Math and Science High School failed by a 71-30 vote.

The other main item of the week was the passing by the House of the "presumptive or fair-sentencing bill," which has been pushed vigorously by Gov. Hunt. One more column for this session next week.

Cub Scout Day Camp Scheduled

The Pitt District will hold a Cub Scout Day Camp at Wahl-Coates School on E. Fifth Street June 11-15. The sessions will run from 8:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. each day.

All Cub Scouts are welcome to attend the camp.

Persons seeking more information should contact Mrs. Sandra Harshberger at 758-4261.

George Dickel Tennessee sippin' whisky. Smooth as moonbeams.

"Tastin' is believin'."

—Merle Beatty, Store Owner, 1871

"I remember we were tryin' to tell this city feller that George Dickel's whisky tastes smooth 'cause it's made with clear, sweet springwater.

"And it's mellowed good and proper 'cause Ol' George gives his sour mash extra time to get into the flavor.

"Well, I could see this city feller wasn't much impressed with our jawin', so I stopped talkin' and started pourin'.

"One sip was all it took. Said he'd never tasted a finer Tennessee Sour Mash. Didn't surprise us none. 'Cause when it comes to George Dickel's whisky, tastin' is believin'."

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — ASPIRING YOUNG POETS GENERALLY STUDY ODES.
Today's Cryptiquip clue: Z equals F

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Kenny Rogers Wins Three Awards

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kenny Rogers, gambling to the hilt, was dealt three aces Monday night but wasn't present to cash in.

Rogers, whose huge hit this year was "The Gambler," was chosen male vocalist of the year and won two other awards at the nationally televised 13th annual Music City News Cover Awards show. But he could not be present to collect because he was performing in Las Vegas, Nev.

"If I'd have known I'd have won three awards, I'd have canceled and been there in person," Rogers said by special hookup to the awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House.

Rogers also won single of the year for "The Gambler" and shared duet of the year honors with Dottie West.

Barbara Mandrell was selected female artist of the year. An award Loretta Lynn had won for 12 straight years. Afterwards, Miss Mandrell said winning the award that Miss Lynn had dominated made it extra meaningful.

"This lovely lady is my friend and much more special to me than just someone I admire," she said.

Miss Lynn was equally gracious.

Other winners were: Roy Clark, top musician; the Osborne Brothers, bluegrass group of the year; Eddie Rabbitt, songwriter of the year; Jerry Clower, top comedy act; "PBS' Live from the Grand Ole Opry," top television show; Rex Allen Jr., most promising male vocalist.

Also, the Oak Ridge Boys' band, band of the year; Janie Fricke, most promising female vocalist, and Connie Smith, gospel act of the year.

Winners were selected by 150,000 readers of the Music City News, a monthly Nashville country music publication.

The show was the second of three major country music awards shows this year. The Academy of Country Music in Los Angeles made its presentations in May. The Country Music Association has its show in October.

The Trendies Come Out As Longevity Sets In

LOS ANGELES (AP) — I try to keep up with trends, honest I do. I read as much as I can about Studio 54 and I always thumb through "People" while waiting to pay for groceries.

Trends come and go so fast, it's not easy to be trendy. It occurs to me that there is one trend with longevity — hating television.

Now here's a trend that lasts. It's an intellectual badge, and it's totally accessible. Anyone can do it. All you have to do is say, "I don't own a TV. My life's too exciting."

Consider this fellow I know. I'll call him Tom (in case he's learned to read). Now, Tom wouldn't strike you as being trendy or with-it at first encounter. He's sort of sloppy, and I think his IQ is about double his belt size.

But have a beer with Tom and, after he's told you how fulfilled his life has been since discovering sideways jogging, he'll tell you how stupid television is. "Waste of time," he'll say. "Course, I don't have a TV myself ... my life's too exciting."

Tom's not alone. I've discovered there are lots of people who, like Tom, wouldn't strike you as being hip if it weren't for the TV-hate trend. And they have variations.

There's, "Oh, I have a TV, but I don't watch it." That's popular. Better, and perhaps even more popular, is another variation used when there is a trendy show on TV:

"I don't usually watch TV, but I put aside my 'Mapping Your Interpersonal Psychic Directions' for a whole week so I could watch 'Roots.'"

If you want to be trendy, never do what I did at a party last week.

Some of the trendies were talking about the transition of a hit socio-musical from London to L.A. They were standing around in nifty disco shoes (the kind with clear heels), discussing whether the message would be lost, and such. I felt left out.

"Did you ever see that 'Brady Bunch' when one of the kids develops an allergy to the beloved Brady dog, Tiger?" I asked.

A pretty lady with green eyebrows just looked at me, silently, then turned away.

"It was really kind of cute," I continued. "See, nobody wanted to get rid of Tiger, so they all tried to get rid of the allergy by giving Tiger a bath." She didn't even look at me this time.

"But none of them knew the others were trying the same thing, so Tiger ended up getting five baths, and..."

I was interrupted by my friend, Tom, who'd brought me to the party. "What are you talking about?"

"Brady Bunch" reruns," I said, a little embarrassed. Trying to be kind, he said, "I don't think these people watch much TV."

Oh, I stared at the floor. I wished I hadn't worn my brown penny loafers. Or at least, that I'd taken the pennies out. But I'd learned a valuable lesson: It's hip to hate TV.

By the way, the Bradys found out — just in time — that Tiger's flea powder was causing the allergy. He didn't go to the pound.

Lying is a gentle art in the exercise of which certain fundamental principles must be observed. One is to avoid telling useless lies. Another is to tell only those that have a reasonable chance of being accepted as the truth.

Promiscuous falsecarding often defeats its own purpose. On defense, it is easy to deceive partner rather than declarer, and thereby fail to obtain his cooperation. The most effective falsecards are those that will succeed even if partner is misled. West's swindle on today's hand was ingenious. It required quick thinking and took in declarer, to whom we extend our sympathies as an innocent victim of a well-laid plot.

North-South reached a contract of three no trump in quick time on normal bidding. Against this, West made his natural lead of his fourth-best diamond. Declarer could count seven tricks in top cards, and the most natural suit to attack to develop two extra tricks was spades.

Declarer won the opening lead in dummy and led a low spade to his ace. West could see that the suit was going to produce four tricks for the declarer; therefore, he immediately dropped the king under the ace!

This play did not sacrifice a trick since West still had the suit stopped. However, declarer could see no future in the spade suit. He now had eight tricks, and the club suit offered excellent prospects for developing a ninth — either a successful finesse or a 3-3 break would see declarer through.

Who could blame declarer for abandoning spades in favor of clubs? East won the queen of clubs and returned a diamond, and declarer's last stopper there was cleared. When the clubs failed to break, declarer had no way of coming to nine tricks without the spades. But West still had a spade entry, which enabled him to run the diamonds to defeat the contract.

AGREEMENT THIS SUMMER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps says she expects a trade agreement with China to be signed "Perhaps this summer", and then be approved by Congress.

EPA Refuses Permit N.C. To Treat Toxic PCBs In Place

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Citing the risk of uncontrollable human exposure, the Environmental Protection Agency refused Monday to allow North Carolina to leave toxic PCBs along highways and treat them in place.

But the agency said the state could bury the contaminated dirt at a site in Warren County.

However, Hunt administration officials said they may ignore EPA's rejection of the in-place treatment plan.

About 15,000 gallons of PCB-laced oil was dumped alongside of 210 miles of roads in 14 eastern counties last summer, contaminating an estimated 50,000 tons of soil.

Since that time, state officials have been looking for a way to either treat or dispose of the dirt. They have said treating the wastes in place with charcoal would be far less expensive than digging up the dirt and disposing it in a federally approved site.

EPA's rejection apparently isn't binding on the state. Agency officials have said they have the power to order removal or treatment of the dirt only by the persons who dumped the chemical.

"I suppose we could ignore it," said Gary Pearce, Gov. Jim Hunt's press secretary, of the rejection. "But obviously we're going to take their advice under serious consideration."

Herbert L. Hyde, secretary of crime control and public safety, said a decision by the state on what to do is several days away. "I can't tell you what we're going to do," he said.

EPA administrator Douglas Costle, in rejecting the in-place treatment plan in a letter to Hunt, said, "Our concern was not that there would be an imminent threat to humans if PCB's were mixed and contained in-place as proposed by the state, but rather that this method could result in an unknown and uncontrollable human exposure."

In approving the Warren County disposal site, EPA waived three requirements that apply to previously approved disposal sites for the chemical.

However, a number of Warren County residents and officials have said that they do not want the chemical stored in their county.

PCBs, polychlorinated biphenyls, have been linked to cancer in laboratory animals and to nervous system damage in humans. Five men, two of them from Raleigh and three from New York state, have been charged in connection with the dumpings.

The counties where PCBs were dumped are Alamance, Chatham, Edgecombe, Franklin, Granville, Halifax, Harnett, Johnston, Lee, Nash, Wake, Person, Warren and Wilson.

VEPCO Rate Boost Delayed

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A $64.1-million rate increase requested by Virginia Electric & Power Co. has been postponed at least two months by the State Corporation Commission.

The SCC said it took the action Monday because of delays Vepco has encountered in opening its second unit at its North Anna nuclear power station in Louisa County.

Vepco sought the increase to cover $46 million in expenses it expects to have when it begins to operate the North Anna unit and $18 million in revenue the utility says it is authorized to receive but hasn't been able to.

summer or early fall.

A second rate request, submitted last Wednesday, would increase electricity rates by 9 percent. Vepco is seeking the additional $62 million to cover the expenses it expects to incur in replacing nuclear power with higher-priced coal and oil-fired generation.

The SCC has set a hearing for June 19 on that request.

S&L Planning For Conversion

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Directors and officers of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Raleigh have taken steps to buy more than 13 percent of the association's stock if members approve its conversion from mutual to stock ownership.

In a proxy statement mailed to members last week, First Federal said it would hold a meeting June 29 for a vote by members.

If the conversion is approved, First Federal will sell shares in the association and ownership will be transferred to shareholders from depositors and borrowers.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Revival services are under way at New Hope Holiness Church, 403 Brown St., this week, with the Rev. A. Williams in charge of services. Services are to be held nightly at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Pitt County Mixed Beverage Committee

GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA 27834

514 E. 14th STREET

P.O. DRAWER 6085

June 1, 1979

Dear Fellow Citizens:

We are working FOR approval of the mixed beverage referendum on June 8, and we'd like to tell you why!

It will provide more regulation of the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages in our community. Only those restaurants which are primarily in the business of selling food will qualify for a mixed beverage license. (Grills, snack bars, lunch counters, fast food outlets and similar establishments are not considered restaurants under mixed beverage regulations and would not be able to obtain a mixed beverage license.)

Presently there are 47 facilities in Pitt County which have a brown-bagging permit. We have determined that if the referendum passes, 23 of these will qualify for a license. Within two years an additional 8 may be added, bringing the total number of establishments where mixed beverages can be sold to 31-- an actual decrease in the number of outlets for consumption!

Greenville and Pitt County are progressive. We have consistently sought to broaden our economic base, and passage of the June 8 referendum will have a positive effect on our economy. It will provide more employment opportunities in food service establishments and related businesses, generating economic growth throughout our area.

Tax revenues will be increased. Nine dollars of each $10 additional tax on the sale of liquor to establishments licensed to sell mixed beverages will remain in Pitt County. It is estimated that an additional $350,000 will be generated annually for local government, thus easing to some extent the tax burden on our citizens and possibly delaying an increase in property taxes.

Further, for those who enjoy a mixed beverage with dinner, being able to purchase one in a restaurant is infinitely better than having to "bring your own bottle" in a brown bag.

Finally, if I did not strongly feel that passage of this referendum would be a true asset to our community, I would not be personally involved and committed to its approval.

I urge you to go to the polls on June 8, take a friend with you, and vote FOR mixed beverages.

Louis Clark
