Pitt Voters Decide Two Issues Friday

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Registered Pitt County voters will make decisions on two important issues when they visit the polls Friday in special referendum balloting.

Voters will decide whether Pitt will become the seventh county in North Carolina to approve countywide liquor-by-the-drink sales in social establishments and restaurants.

In voting across the state since the General Assembly authorized mixed beverage referendums, six counties and three municipalities have approved the issue, while three counties and one town have voted down mixed drink legalization.

If liquor-by-the-drink is authorized in the county tomorrow, restaurants meeting criteria involving food sales will be able to apply for mixed drink permits but will lose their brown bagging authorizations.

Brown bagging practices will no longer be allowed in county eating establishments and restaurants that do not choose to apply for mixed drink permit will still lose their brown bagging permits.

Private clubs and social establishments meeting certain criteria will be able to retain brown bagging privileges as well as apply for mixed drink permits.

The school bond ballot that will be issued tomorrow to voters asks for a yes or no vote on the approval of the bond order "authorizing not exceeding $9 million school bonds...for the purpose of providing funds, with any other available funds, for erecting additional school buildings and other school plant facilities, remodeling, enlarging and reconstruction of existing school buildings and other school plant facilities and acquiring any necessary land and equipment therefor, in order to provide additional school facilities in the Pitt County Administrative Unit and the Greenville City Administrative Unit...and authorizing the levy of taxes in an amount sufficient to pay the principal of and interest on said bonds."

Margaret Register, supervisor of the Pitt Board of Elections, said that the county's 24 polling sites will open at 6:30 a.m. tomorrow and remain open until 7:30 p.m.

She said that in anticipation of a good turnout, assistants will be on hand to help "so we hope everyone will get out and vote."

Miss Register said that there are 29,700 citizens registered to vote in the county, including some 2,000 new registrations since April.

Persons with questions regarding precinct locations or other election information should contact Miss Register at 758-4683.

N.C. Assembly Votes $10 Billion Budget

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly enacted the $10 billion biennial state budget Wednesday when House and Senate conferees compromised over a disputed early retirement provision for teachers and state employees.

Resolution of the budget logjam cleared the way for adjournment of the 1979 General Assembly, possibly late today or Friday.

With the compromise worked out, the Senate voted 41-0 to concur in budget changes and the House, after more than an hour's debate, voted 72-31 to go along and enact the budget.

The agreement among legislative budget leaders modified the so-called rule of 85 for early retirement and added a 3 percent increase in retirement benefits. Both provisions are to take effect on July 1, 1980, but are subject to review by the General Assembly when it convenes in June, 1980.

"We're giving tentative approval to the concept," said Rep. Ed Holmes, D-Chatham, House appropriations chairman. "It's subject to the joint appropriations committees taking a good look at it next year."

"In effect, we're delaying any action on it for one year, with the strong recommendation we adopt both of these," he added.

The provisions were included in the budget document, but without money provided to pay the estimated $14.5 million annual cost.

If the rule of 85 and the benefits increase are to be provided, the legislature must find a way to finance the programs next year, either from general tax money or from contributions to the retirement system itself.

Dispute over the retirement provision arose when the House rejected the 85 rule, while the Senate voted to include it in the budget. It was proposed by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, who presides over the Senate, and included in the budget by Senate appropriations leaders.

The 85 rule originally would have allowed a state worker or teacher, if 55 or older, to retire at full benefits when the sum of his age and state experience equals 85. The panel modified that to include only persons who are 60 or older.

Currently, a teacher or state worker must have 30 years of service or be 65 years old to retire at unreduced benefits.

The original 85 rule would have allowed early retirement at full benefits for 22,000 workers. Holmes said the modification reduced that number to 10,000.

The boost in retirement benefits was proposed to satisfy complaints of some House committee members, who said they preferred to improve benefits rather than to extend retirement benefits to younger workers.

But Rep. Jo Graham Foster, D-Mecklenburg, a

Charlotte school administrator, bitterly opposed the compromise in a long, emotional speech on the House floor, saying it remained unfair to workers with 30 years of experience.

The benefits would be raised by adjusting the formula used for computing a retiree's allowance. Legislative staff analyst Sam Byrd said the benefits boost would cost $12 million a year to finance, and that the modified early retirement rule would cost another $2.5 million a year.

AT BANQUET ...honoring the Brody family for their $1.5 million gift to the East Carolina University School of Medicine, Chancellor Thomas Brewer, Leo

Brody, and Chancellor Emeritus Leo Jenkins, with citation naming Brody an honorary alumni of the School of Medicine.

Honored For ECU Gift

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"Each one of you here is very dear," to East Carolina University, Chancellor Thomas Brewer told some 300 persons who attended a banquet here last night honoring the Brody Family of Greenville and Kinston, for their gift of $1.5 million to the School of Medicine.

The $1.5 million gift, to be used for faculty professorships and to provide scholarships and assistance in the recruitment and retention of minority and disadvantaged students, was announced yesterday. Earlier in the day, the university's Board of Trustees named the medical school's new $26 million medical education building the Brody Medical Science Building, in recognition of the Brody's support for the medical school.

Brewer, who termed the Brody gift, "a great benchmark," in the history of the university and the School of Medicine, said the donation represents more than money; it represents, "their expression of trust in East Carolina University," and a commitment to the healing arts.

Pledging, "faithful stewardship," of the funds, Brewer said, "we place the Brody name on the medical science building with pride and gratitude."

The chancellor noted that the Brody Medical Science Building will stand as, "a symbol to us that we are all our brother's keeper," and as a symbol of the university's commitment to Eastern North Carolina to, "minister to the sick and well, black and white, rich and poor."

Dr. Leo Jenkins, who retired as chancellor of ECU a year ago, told the gathering that he has, "very fond memories of the Brody family," and noted that the brothers, "shared many problems," with him during the struggle to establish a four-year school of medicine at the university.

"The people of this region have been enriched," by the Brody's since, "Leo Brody, the roaming brother in the family," moved to Kinston in 1928, according to Jenkins, who added it is not surprising that the family is, "sharing in the emergence of one of the nation's great medical centers."

"Don't kid yourselves," Jenkins emphasized. "This is going to be one of the great medical centers of the world."

Jenkins related how the Brody's assisted in the expansion of Ficklen Stadium and have, "always shared with the university a sense of commitment, support and encouragement." He added that the latest gift, "will help millions enjoy a life of health and happiness."

Dr. Edwin Monroe, vice-chancellor for Health Affairs at ECU, who will become the medical school's associate dean for external affairs on July 1, said, "Leo and Sammy Brody," and other members of the family, "thank you for what you've meant to East Carolina University and to me personally."

Saying the Brody's, "are very modest men," who, "would have vetoed this evening," if they had had a choice," said Leo Brody called him during one of the first crucial legislative sessions, to, "encourage us and offer his help."

Not knowing him at the time, Monroe said he suggested that Brody contact his local legislators. A few days later, Monroe said Brody called back and told him had, "talked to the governor, the lieutenant governor, the speaker of the house, and a dozen legislators I had no contact with."

Later, in 1972, Monroe said, when the first class of 20 students was enrolled in the one-year medical education program at ECU, "these men came forward and said we

TRAFFIC TIE-UPS

I don't know if anything can be done, but something ought to be done about the tying-up of traffic by trains passing through Greenville. With the shortage of gasoline there must be hundreds of gallons of gasoline wasted every week while waiting for a freight train to go by. There's traffic tied-up at every crossing. J.R.

Hotline talked to Chief Edward G. Cannon of the Greenville Police Department.

According to Cannon, section 20-31 of a Greenville City Ordinance states that "It shall be unlawful for any engine or any other officer or employee of a railroad to permit any train to stop across a street for a longer time than 10 minutes." He added that the state also has an ordinance which sets 35 m.p.h. as the maximum speed a train can pass through a city.

Concerning trains stopping in Greenville longer than the maximum period specified by the local ordinance, Cannon said, "It is almost impossible to enforce it because you have to take everything else involved into consideration." He added that "due to the fuel shortage, persons have taken to shipping more freight by train."

"We have worked on this and even met with officials of the railroad," added Cannon. But, he added that the trains must run despite the tying-up of traffic. "It's going to take time for a freight train with 100 cars to pass through this city."

As a result, Cannon said the public would have to give the railroads time. "I know it's aggravating — I get annoyed at times," he admitted.

However, if persons observe trains stopping within the city limits for what they consider to be unusually long periods, they may call the Greenville Police Department at 752-3342 from 8 to 5 p.m., M-F. Such complaints will be investigated, to the police chief said.

Pitt County Farmers Market Prepares For Opening On Saturday

If all goes well, the Pitt County Farmers Market should open Saturday, June 9, at the old county fairgrounds.

According to Sam Uzzell, assistant agricultural extension agent with the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, the market will be in operation on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 12 noon, and on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9-11 a.m.

Producers to be present Saturday should have a supply of greens, collards, cabbage, and perhaps some string beans and snap beans, as well as a few more items.

"We're interested in getting more producers to participate," said Uzzell. "We will be having a bigger market when the other crops start coming in."

Producers who participate will have to pay a $10 charter membership to the market association. Also, producers will have to pay a $2.50 daily charge when participating at the market.

Uzzell explained that the $10 fee will allow the organization to pay for needed tools, as well as to "fix the place up a little bit." The Association also felt that the fee would discourage transient producers from selling at the market on a one-time only basis.

The $2.50 daily charge will help pay for the rent, with the 50 cents going back into the association funds.

Interested persons should call Uzzell at the Extension office, 758-1196, for more information on the market.

Rose Exercises

Approximately 400 seniors will receive high school diplomas at the graduation exercise for Rose High Friday, June 8.

The ceremony will begin at 8 p.m. at Ficklen Stadium. In the event of rain, the graduation ceremony will be held in Minges Coliseum.

The 1979 class is the 75th graduating class in Greenville.

RULING FOR EQUALITY

Can't Fault Him In Fault-Finding

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've stolen all my life. I started taking small things from my friends. I've stolen money from my mother's purse and also my father's pocket. I've even shoplifted just to get away with something. I've never been caught. I guess I've been lucky, or maybe I'm just good at it.

I'm also a terrible liar. I make up things just to get people to listen to me. I don't have any friends, and I'd like at least one. I work hard to impress people but always end up making a fool of myself.

I'd like to be a good person but I don't have the will power to do what's right. Dishonesty seems to come more natural to me. I need help before I end up in jail. So, Dear Abby, what can you do for a 15-year-old failure? I can't talk to my parents.

A NO-GOOD GUY

DEAR GUY: A guy who knows his faults as well as you know yours is no "failure" in my book.

You are fair enough to blame only yourself for your weakness, smart enough to know that you lie to attract attention, and sufficiently honest to admit you want friends and a clear conscience.

If you have a school counselor, make tracks for that office. If not, tell your parents you have some personal problems you would like to talk over with someone at the mental health clinic. Once you get the help you need, I'll bet on you.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "Under certain circumstances, a child CAN be darker than its darkest parent."

Abby, since there are only two parents involved, you should have used "darker" instead of "darkest." Just thought you should know.

ENGLISH BUFF

DEAR BUFF: I knew. But "darkest" somehow sounds better to my ear. Just as "put your best foot forward" should be "put your better foot forward" if one wants to be absolutely correct. However, I'll opt for putting one's best foot forward—whether I'm referring to a person or a centipede.

DEAR ABBY: I called a young lady I know and invited her to attend a sailing regatta with me on the 4th of July. It's one of the nicest affairs of the season and entails the races in the afternoon, followed by dinner and dancing at the yacht club.

Instead of saying yes or no, she asked me to call her around the 25th of June and she'd tell me then.

Abby, if she turns me down, I'll have to ask somebody else, and by then all the best girls will have been asked. Why do you think she's waiting, and what should I do?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: She could be waiting to see if she gets a better offer. Call her and tell her if she can't give you a definite "yes" now, you'd like to call somebody else. (That should take the wind out of her sails.)

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Warranties And The Consumer

"It is always to your advantage to shop wisely for goods and services and this includes comparing written warranties." It has become much easier for consumers to do this because of a federal regulation which went into effect January 1, 1977. The regulation states that products costing more than $15 shall have their warranties available for inspection prior to their sale. Also, all products that cost more than $10 must have their warranties labeled as either "full" or "limited". It will help to familiarize yourself with these terms so you can make the best purchases available.

What Exactly Is A Warranty?

A warranty is a written statement used by a manufacturer or a seller to assure you that he will stand behind his product. It generally means that he will repair or replace defective parts within a specified period of time.

Although there is no difference between a warranty and a guarantee, there is a big difference between the types you can get.

What Types Of Warranties Are Available?

"Full Warranty" — Under the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act, a defective product manufactured after July 4, 1975, with a warranty labeled "full" must be fixed within a reasonable amount of time and without charge to the customer for parts or labor. Furthermore, the law states that the warrantor cannot impose any unreasonable conditions on a consumer for getting something fixed under warranty unless the condition is approved by the Federal Trade Commission. For example, it is considered unreasonable for a consumer to be required to pay for shipment of a piano or similar bulky object to the factory for repairs. The merchant can, however, require that the customer notify the warrantor in the case of a defect before starting plans to sue. Finally, the customer must be offered a refund or replacement if a reasonable number of attempts to repair the product fails. (It has not been decided yet what should be considered "reasonable"! If you have a complaint, contact the store

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

"What in heaven's name is that hanging over your dirty clothes hamper?" asked Mother. "It looks like a basketball hoop made out of a bent coat hanger."

"It's a basketball hoop made out of a bent coat hanger," I said.

"It looks terrible."

"That's easy for you to say," I said. "You don't have to run through dirty underwear in your bare feet or find the laundry before you can do it. When the boys improve on their hook shots I'll have it made."

"What's this?" she scowled.

"You mean that bar in the door you just cracked your head on? It's an exercise bar so the boys can build up their muscles."

"And this ironing board," she persisted. "Don't you ever get tired of falling over it? Want me to take it down?"

"What for?" I asked. "We're not moving."

The trouble with Mother is she has forgotten what it is like to live in a house furnished in "Contemporary Children." I used to fight it, too. At one time I was so naive I thought only edible things belonged in the refrigerator, bicycles without wheels should be discarded and if you had eight people to dinner, all the glasses had to match.

Engagement Announced

MISS PHYLLIS ANN BARRETT, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barrett of Winterville, who announce her engagement to Angelo House, son of Mr. Wille House of Simpson, and the late Mrs. Mahalta House. The wedding will take place June 30.

I went crazy trying to keep an antiseptic house in a wet-shoestring world. Then one day I was doing cafeteria duty with a mother of six children, who said a curious thing. "I wonder how my kids will remember me? Will they remember me as a mother who never had rings around the bathtub or will they remember the popcorn we ate in the living room?"

"Will they remember how many committees I chaired, or will they remember the fresh doughnuts in the kitchen after school?"

"Will they remember how cleverly I coordinated the blue in the sofa with the pillow cushions or will they remember I hung the outline of their hand in the living room like it was an original Renoir?"

"It's funny," she said, "I came from a large family and I can't even remember what color my bedroom was or if there was mud in the hallway or fingerprints around the light switches. All I can remember is the laughter, the love and a crazy basketball hoop my mother made out of a bent coat hanger and put over the clothes hamper."

I don't know how my kids will remember me. Only that the other day I knocked on the bathroom door and said, "It's your mother," and a voice said, "Mother who?"

Two Good Reasons For Voting

Tomorrow Pitt County voters have the opportunity to decide two issues with a visit to the polling places.

The voters will be determining the fate of a $9 million school bond issue and liquor-by-the-drink in the county.

The issues are, of course, not related and it is happenstance that they are being decided on the same day.

There has been much debate on both issues, particularly on the question of whether mixed drink sales will be allowed in Pitt County.

Many opinions have been offered in public debate, through this newspaper's public forum column and in other ways. This is as it should be in a democracy.

At this point, however, about all that can be said, has been . . . and in a democratic way our citizens will go to the polls tomorrow to make a final decision.

It is our purpose today to urge every eligible citizen to cast ballots on both issues tomorrow. Voting is a great privilege of a democracy. It is one that is not available throughout the world. We should exercise that privilege with pride.

Airport Improvements An Area Need

The county commissioners and the Greenville city council accepted a $182,000 Federal Aviation Administration grant for Pitt-Greenville Airport improvements. To go with it will be $22,800 in state funds and $11,400 each from the city and county.

The funds represent a continuation of a $698,000 federal grant.

The funds are being used for runway and other improvements at the airport. The improvements are important to the general economy of our area.

THIS AFTERNOON Fulltime Assembly Seen

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Almost without notice the North Carolina General Assembly has moved well along the path toward a fulltime, professional legislative body.

"This is the most dramatic and politically significant event we have seen in a generation in this state," says one student of legislative matters who is a member of the staff of the General Assembly.

Evidence

The 1979 session has brought into clear focus the profound changes. "Nothing — I mean absolutely nothing — went through this General Assembly without the word from the hierarchy", a disgruntled legislator commented. Even Gov. Jim Hunt decried the way this General Assembly bowed to the wishes of the rich and powerful banks, savings and loans, utilities, and insurance industry. It is common to say the lobbyists controlled things. That begs the issue. The powerful dollars and people who run the industries who hire the lobbyists run things . . . the lobbyists are mere errand boys.

Two critical factors have hastened the drift toward a fulltime assembly: growing size of state bureaucracy, budget, and the complexity of law; and the Constitutional amendment allowing a governor to run for a second term.

BILL NOBLITT

How far along is this process which has been warned of in the past, but always seen as something which threatened in the distant future?

Those in the know concede it is past the point of no return.

Why were these powerful institutions given so much while, in the words of Gov. Hunt, the people got so little?

Many observant Tar Heels will mourn the prospect that the end of a "citizens assembly" is in sight, but it has long been the popular notion that the lawyer, the teacher, the farmer, the shopkeeper would take only a couple of months off every two years to go to Raleigh in the name of service and citizenship to represent his friends and neighbors in the General Assembly.

The most obvious reason comes from another legislator himself worried over the end of a citizen assembly: "Legislators have gotten so concerned over winning their offices term after term that they are afraid to say No to powerful and rich people."

Any number of ambitious political comers were pushed out of the running by the second-term law, and in the process have discovered that hardworking, savvy legislators become recognized experts and leaders, and as such can exercise considerable power — perhaps as much, even, as the governor.

A brief review of recent legislative events will serve to illustrate the drift toward a professional assembly:

Sessions are now routinely every year instead of every two years, and invariably lengthier. Once only committee chairmen had secretaries; now all legislators do.

Staff

Fulltime professional legislative staff grows, with a staff of lawyers added to fiscal analysts, and now bill drafters hired despite the fact that the Attorney General's office is required by law to provide that service for the Legislature.

A new office building will be built to house the overflowing Legislative Bureau. Even a tunnel connecting the State House and the new building remains a possibility. Parking spaces for legislators and staff once were contained under the State House, then on one side of the encircling street, now both sides of the encircling street.

Pay raises and increased living allowances are boosted with regulatory. And,

Legislators are having themselves appointed to numerous study commissions, state boards and commissions, and advisory groups dealing directly with state agencies which brings them to Raleigh (with expense money) regularly even when not in session.

"Look! It's finally cooling off and descending! Pray for a soft landing."

Comments From Readers

To the editor:

"The Real Story About Drinking In South Carolina — Per person consumption in South Carolina rose 12.8 percent in four years after adoption of liquor-by-the-drink." This is the title and first sentence of an ad against mixed beverages in your paper, dated June 5, 1979.

The article quotes statistics showing S. C. went from 1.87 to 2.11 gallons per person between 1973 and 1977; a 12.8 percent increase. N. C. went from 1.53 to 1.57, a 2.6 percent increase. These figures were taken from charts in DISCUS, a report of the Distilled Spirits Council of the U. S.

However, the figures quoted for South Carolina in DISCUS had two asterisks by them. Footnotes reveal South Carolina figures are based on "Tax Collections," while N. C. figures are based on "actual wholesale and retail sales."

In a letter dated May 15, 1979, written by the publication manager of DISCUS are the two following statements:

"This past year it came to the attention of the DISCUS staff that the data based used for South Carolina was inexact, since it omitted shipments from suppliers directly to military bases in South Carolina."

"Such data has been of considerable interest to North Carolina communities engaged in debate of liquor-by-the-drink referendums. DISCUS has provided per capita consumption figures on the same data base for both South Carolina and North Carolina to individuals who contacted DISCUS."

This is the attachment:

South Carolina	Year	North Carolina
2.11	1973	1.53
2.14	1977	1.57

Thus, by using the same base in N. C. and S. C., we find that S. C. had had a 1.4 percent increase in per capita consumption, instead of 12.8 percent. During the same period, N. C. had a 2.6 percent increase.

"The Real Story" in S. C., in the four years after adoption of liquor-by-the-drink, is that they have had a smaller increase than N. C. has had during the same four years with brown bagging.

Ray D. Minges

To the editor:

I would like to say a few things about liquor by the drink. First, when we consider cost, LBD will not increase the amount of liquor consumed. A single drink at a bar can cost as much as a whole bottle at ABC, but contains a fraction of the liquor.

Second, when an alcoholic needs a drink, he will get it — by the bottle or by the drink — any way he or she can. Alcoholics by addiction could have turned to any other street drug. Alcohol is a legal drug. "Born alcoholics" suffer a chemical imbalance early in life which causes them to crave alcohol. Still others may be allergic to alcohol.

Third, the light-, social-, and even non-drinkers should at least have the freedom to decide to drink or not to drink if they so desire, when out for the evening, without having to consume a whole bottle, as usually happens with our present brown-bagging laws.

For these reasons, I am in favor of liquor by the drink.

To the editor:

Blacks in the Farmville Community are upset and disappointed because the Pitt County Board of Education did not see fit to include H. B. Sugg School in the upcoming June 8 Bond referendum. Blacks feel that H. B. Sugg School is an adequate facility that should be maintained to standard with money resulting from the proposed bond referendum.

It is felt among blacks in the Farmville area that during the past few years, H. B. Sugg School has been neglected by the county administration concerning maintaining the facility as other county schools have been maintained. The only major project done during the past few years was to install a fence around the property.

THE GALLUP POLL Most Want Explanation

By George Gallup
PRINCETON, N.J. — The U.S. public would like President Carter to appear on nationwide TV to settle their doubts on the energy crisis.

Few other issues in the entire 44-year history of the Gallup Poll have created such doubt and confusion in the minds of the public.

A representative national sample of citizens shows 74 percent saying it would be a good idea for the president to appear on nationwide television to explain the energy crisis to the American people and what should be done about it.

Following is a summary of the key questions the erican people would like the president to answer, based on in-depth interviews:

1. Is there really a gasoline shortage? Is there now enough oil in the U.S. to satisfy our energy needs?
2. Why have gasoline prices risen so fast?
3. Why hasn't the country started gasoline rationing?
4. Are the oil companies making abnormal profits in the present situation?
5. Are the oil companies drilling enough new wells now to meet the oil needs of the nation for the next few years?
6. Is the government really interested in developing solar energy? Why hasn't it done more?

7. Since we have vast coal resources, why isn't more being done to use this source of energy?

8. Should environmental requirements be relaxed in order to make it less expensive for public utilities to use coal?

9. Why isn't more being done to encourage use of mass transit systems in order to save gasoline?

10. What is your own personal view as to the best way the average U.S. citizen can reduce gasoline consumption?

Here is the survey question: "It has been suggested that President Carter appear on nationwide television and talk about the energy crisis with the American people — whether or not there is one, and what

40 Years Ago Today

June 7, 1939
The State Highway and Public Works Commission today undertook the Tenth Street widening project from Evans to N.C. Highway 264. The project was approved recently, and city officials have expressed the opinion that improvement would greatly relieve traffic congestion in that section of the city.

It was also announced to City Hall today that work on surfacing Summitt and Jarvis Streets will begin tomorrow. Preliminary conditions have been completed for the laying of a cheaper type of surface than concrete.

A venerable disease clinic will be opened in Ayden Town Hall, the Pitt County Health Department said today.

Such clinics are already in operation in Greenville, Farmville and Bethel. Last month, 1,584 persons were treated at the Greenville clinic, 217 at Bethel and 250 in Farmville for a total of 2,051 persons having received treatment.

Strength For Today

LIFE GROWS OUT OF DEATH

"Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it dies it bringeth forth much fruit."

In much of life death must take place before life begins. For example, out of the death of brave men have come the liberties which we so often take for granted today. Out of the death of Christ came human salvation.

When we lay this pattern down over our lives, when we try to make it work in our daily living, we see the significance of the Biblical statement that unless a grain of wheat dies in the earth it can bring forth no harvest.

For at the basis of all religious living lies the reality of death. It is never until we surrender our own will that we can do the will of God. We have to die unto self before we can live unto God, before we can serve our loved ones and our fellow men the way we should.

Taking Up Cause Of Investor

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Convinced that the individual investor is getting a bad deal because of adverse politics, the National Association of Investment Clubs has decided to represent him.

Several factors, including a decline in its own membership, motivate the NAIC, which until now has spoken mainly for clubs. But the primary one is the feeling that politicians are ignoring investor needs.

One of its first goals will be the promotion of legislation to allow a 20 percent tax credit on the first $2,000 of new investments in stocks, meaning $400 less in taxes for an individual and $800 per couple.

Tom O'Hara, chairman, and a former director of the New York Stock Exchange, believes such a ruling would help reattract an estimated 10 million "lost" investors.

By his estimates, the investor population has fallen to 23 million, compared with a high of at least 33 million a decade ago. The decline has badly hurt the nation's economy but it is correctable, he feels.

If this legislation reattracted those 10 million, O'Hara said, it would mean at least $20 billion of new capital to spur industry, lessen inflation, produce tax revenues and create jobs — 250,000 of them.

Comparable legislation has been passed in France and Sweden. In each case, funds must be "new" — savings rather than transfers from other investments — and must remain invested for a minimum of five years.

If these countries changed direction, O'Hara reasons, the United States can also. "For 10 or 12 years our tax policy has deemphasized ownership of securities," he complained. An injustice, he said.

"Dividends and investments still pay the highest tax rate," he said. "We reduced the tax on earned income, but not on dividends. And dividends still are the only income taxed twice."

Perhaps even more irritating is the general attitude toward business, he said. In his view, politicians have gone off in their own direction, their ears deaf to the complaints of individual savers and investors.

And companies, too. As the investment climate deteriorated, he notes, the shares of many companies have fallen below book value. Sound though they be, they are prone to being acquired — often by foreigners.

(The association provides a free kit of information by mail on request to NAIC, 1515 East Eleven Mile Road, Royal Oak, Mich. 48068. Club membership is $25 plus $4 for each member. Individuals pay $15. Members receive an investment manual and a monthly magazine. Clubs also receive a $25,000 fidelity bond.)

a first grader who comes home from school with a "wet head" because it's so hot in his room. And yet he's supposed to concentrate on Page 319 of his Holt School Mathematics book, while the sweat drips.

My experience in education also includes eight months in a private school. While there, one of the things of which I was made aware was the presence of an adequate physical plant. If we are to keep our students in our public schools, we MUST provide them with adequate facilities. A "Yes" vote on the school bond referendum is one step toward an increased preference for our public schools.

Let's create an environment conducive to learning. Let's invest our dollars in our future — our children. Please vote YES for our children June 8.

Anna Thomas
President

Greenville City, Pitt, Martin, Beaufort Counties

To the editor:

The only thing wrong with Rebecca Buffaloe's article on the school situation (Sun., June 3) is that it was buried on an inside page and it was not detailed enough.

I don't mean the article she wrote that was on the front page. That was very well done and appropriate in that it listed what each school is slated to receive if the school bond issue passes.

I mean the even better article she wrote which appeared on Page B-9, "Ayden Middle School is Top Priority Among Pitt School Needs." What was especially good about this article is that it detailed just how Ayden Middle School is in poor condition. We have all heard that the schools need renovations, but little has been said until now of the exact things that need replacing or renovating, itemizing how and where deficiencies exist in each building.

I congratulate Miss Buffaloe on taking the initiative to go out to one of the schools and see and document first-hand the shocking conditions there. I wish someone had done the same thing for each of the schools in both the city and the county, because each has a number of very real deficiencies.

It's hard for the voters to realize the need, however. Just a word or phrase saying "School X needs Y dollars to build four classrooms or to renovate a heating plant" doesn't carry the urgency or impact that Rebecca's Page B-9 article on Sunday did.

I know some deplorable conditions exist in other schools besides Ayden, because I heard people from other school districts describe them to the Pitt Co. Board of Education over several years.

Please vote YES on Friday's school bond referendum; the money is needed to correct real deficiencies, not for frills.

Janet Haseley

To the editor:

There have been several different sets of statistics given for and against liquor-by-the-drink. As a result, many have been confused to say the least. If "The Daily Reflector" was truly seeking to print the truth, they themselves would make a thorough study and print the findings to the public. At this point in the battle, "The Daily Reflector" is appearing to be biased in its opinion and is leading many undecided astray to vote yes by printing untrue statistics. There is freedom of the press, but this does not give freedom to propagate lies.

Is there a moral issue involved? Proponents have argued no. But, is it moral to legalize murder? Is it moral to legalize child abuse? Is it moral to increase the tax burden on good people just to clean up the effects of the drinking driver? No, we are not voting to do away with liquor, but there is a moral issue involved. If a man has one drink and leaves a bar, his reactions are already hindered. The results are a question of morality.

A man will vote yes for three reasons. First, he is not well informed, which by the way is a result of unfair coverage by the press. Second, he is selfish, and is only concerned for himself. He wants to drink in "class," or have his one social drink. Third, he has no moral conscience.

Please sir, do not help spread the number one social disease in our nation by being biased or untrue in your coverage of this important issue.

Randy Sawyer

To the editor:

A sad observation about the upcoming "Liquor-by-the-Drink" vote is that both groups arguing for and against the issue are basing their arguments on pragmatism; i. e., the end justifies the means. Neither side questions the impropriety of majority tyranny through the ballot box. Neither side is advocating the concept of individual freedom and its corollary concept, individual responsibility.

As long as people do not violate the rights of others, they should be free to do as they please. They should be able to reap the benefits or to suffer the consequences of their actions.

Altogether too many elections are centered on a desire by some people to force others to behave in a manner deemed desirable by the first group; to regulate, manipulate, and confiscate. If people are willing to use government in attempting to coerce others into behaving in a particular way, they have no proper complaint when others initiate coercion against them.

Until the concept of liberty is reestablished in this country, we can only expect more and more of the present trend toward the collectivist quagmire which makes the socialist, fascist and communist countries indistinguishable relative to their subjugation of human rights.

To the editor:

May I congratulate you on your Common Sense approach to the Mixed Drink policy in your editorial June 4.

I am a native of Pitt County and a senior citizen. During my life I have lived as a civilian for long periods of time in four other states — New York, California, Florida, and Illinois. I have also spent a lot of time in the states of Maine, Wisconsin and the State of Washington. All of these states have liquor by the drink and, from my observation, there was far more control of alcohol than in my native state. Here there is very little control and I am now going back to the days when "moonshine" was plentiful and from what I hear there is still some available.

I am somewhat nauseated when I read some of the letters in the papers from people and the excuse they give for not wanting liquor by the drink. I have heard some people say that they will vote against it for the reason that they can drink more with the way the law is at this time. And this means "brown bagging" and liquor not by the drink, but by the pint, fifth and jug. The latter three are what we have and in my estimation this is truly hypocrisy.

The Christian belief is that overindulgence in anything is a sin, be it eating, drinking or playing. Some of these people should stop and think of these three things.

Sad to say ours is a church run state, such as the country of Ireland and the way Spain once was, if it is not now, no matter what type of religion it is. And, according to our constitution, this is not right. Let us hope that common sense will prevail, hypocrisy will end, and we can have better control. The way the N. C. laws are, there is no way that there would be a bar on every corner as some people believe.

Planning an educational budget involves many serious hours of research, the study of future growth, present needs and their changing status. Before voting for or against the upcoming bond issue, one should ask himself what the possible purchase of Rose High School by ECU will mean in the next few years. Will the money allocated for the auditorium be thrown away as an unnecessary waste if Rose High is purchased by ECU? Will this mean more bond money being appropriated at another date for another auditorium on a new high school campus? Are there any safeguards provided in the present bond referendum to withhold money for this purpose until the status of Rose High School is decided?

After considering these factors, please vote!

As an educator, I have taught on the primary, elementary, and high school levels. I have taught in four different administrative units, both county and city. I've seen all kinds of educational facilities. Having taught in both Greenville City and Pitt County school systems, I've witnessed the conditions which exist in our schools first-hand. And yes, I'm concerned.

Have you ever had to use the hall as a classroom for teaching reading while student traffic was in progress on both sides? Many teachers have. Have you ever taught reading to high school students in a room half the size of what it should be, with not even one window to see the outside? Or in a room that serves as the central storage area for the school's reading program, through which teachers must pass to get their necessary supplies? Or in a room that houses the "dark room" for high school photography students? I have.

And besides being an educator, I'm a parent — the parent of

Sees Politics In PCB Advice

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The designer of the proposed in-place treatment of PCB-laden soil said a federal recommendation that the soil be buried was based on politics.

Dr. Jerome B. Weber, a professor of crop science at N.C. State University in Raleigh, said his in-place treatment using activated charcoal to neutralize the toxic PCB was nearly 100 percent effective.

But, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency scientists in Atlanta told the state Monday that the charcoal method of treatment would absorb only 50 percent of the substance.

"They (EPA) are afraid of setting a bad precedent by allowing the carbon treatment. There may be someone who, in the future, wants to do the same thing when it isn't applicable."

"They'd ask the EPA, 'Why did you let North Carolina do it if we can't,'" Weber said.

But David R. Hopkins, special assistant to Atlanta's EPA chief, John C. White, said Wednesday that EPA's recommendation had "nothing to do with politics."

Hopkins said EPA tests disagreed with Weber's findings and that the charcoal treatment did not eliminate a health hazard to animals and humans.

The EPA has approved a dump site in Warren County and Gov. Jim Hunt said Tuesday he was leaning toward digging up the contaminated soil and transporting it to a dump site.

Warren County officials have been strongly opposed to plans to dump the contaminated soil in their county.

The state now has several options for cleaning up the 210 miles of contaminated roadsides. They include dumping it at the Warren County site, or it could be dumped at several sites, all requiring EPA approval, in each of the 14 counties involved.

Marijuana Penalty Unchanged

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill reducing the penalties for possession of between one and four ounces of marijuana was killed in the Senate Wednesday after having been tentatively approved by that same body the day before.

The bill failed to gain approval initially on a 20-22 vote, and opponents applied a parliamentary maneuver known as the "clinch" that virtually assures it cannot be brought up again for reconsideration this session.

And later in Thursday's Senate session, two senators who were not on the floor when the vote was taken were allowed to cast their votes after the fact, making the final vote 20-24 against the bill.

The measure had already passed the House after being amended several times to reduce the amount of marijuana involved from a pound to four ounces.

The bill would have reduced the penalty for possession of from one to four ounces of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor.

Under current law, possession of any amount over one ounce is a felony, punishable by a $5,000 fine and a five-year jail term.

The only misdemeanor possession law on the books is for amounts under one ounce and carries a penalty of a $100 fine and 30 days in jail.

District attorneys across the state had asked for the legislation, saying they are unable to get juries to convict persons of felonies for possession of small amounts of marijuana.

Opponents made speech after speech Wednesday claiming that approving the measure would be the same as legislating approval for the use of pot.

"If we're going to vote for this bill, we ought to just suspend the rules and vote to legalize marijuana," said Sen. William Redman, R-Iredell. "That's what we're getting close to doing."

Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, said the use of marijuana could lead to prostitution, robbery, murder and suicide.

"This bill is for the pushers in North Carolina," Harris said. "If you had seen what I've seen on the embalming table — children who were victims of dope — you would feel the way I feel."

Harris is a mortician. Sen. Cecil Hill, D-Transylvania, said opponents were missing the point of the bill.

"The point is to get more convictions," he said. "It's not to promote consumption but to get people in jail that violate the law."

Hill has said repeatedly he is against the use of marijuana, but was for the bill.

The bill the Senate killed would have set up an increasing scale of misdemeanor penalties for possession of amounts of two, three and four ounces.

The penalty for possession of two to three ounces would have increased to a $500 fine and six months in jail. For possession of three to four ounces, the penalty would have been a $1,000 fine and one year in jail, and the penalty for possession of three to four ounces would have been a $2,000 fine and two years in jail.

No Money Available For Housing At Fort Bragg

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A housing shortage for low-ranking enlisted personnel at Fort Bragg has forced military leaders to ask for federal housing assistance.

But, officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Defense Department say there is no federal money available to solve the problem.

A delegation from Fort Bragg and the Fayetteville area told federal officials in Washington Tuesday that about 1,000 families of lower-ranking enlisted personnel at the Army base live in unsuitable housing units.

The problem, they said, affects married soldiers with less than two years service. Army regulation bars those soldiers from applying for adequate on-post housing. But, their pay is so low that many of them cannot afford suitable housing for their families in the civilian community.

Maj. Gen. Ray Ochs, Fort Bragg's deputy commander, said that of 3,000 such families at Fort Bragg, about 1,000 now live in housing considered inadequate by the Army. Another 350 of such personnel have been separated from their families because they cannot afford to house them locally, Ochs said.

Ochs said the housing problem creates poor morale among the enlisted personnel. He said military officials agree the situation affects re-enlistment.

Ochs said that he thought the meeting with Washington officials was a "step in the right direction." He said that while officials there could promise no money for housing construction, they did promise to visit the base to inspect conditions.

"I don't think anyone can really understand the problem well unless they come down here and see it for themselves," Ochs said.

Ochs and Fort Bragg housing officials were accompanied to the meeting by several members of the Fayetteville Homebuilders Association. The building group recently has begun working with the military to secure federal aid for private contractors interested in constructing new military housing.

Murry Duggans, president of the association, said the DOD officials told him the government, too, is interested in private construction of such housing. The HUD official, however, warned the group that finding federal money for such projects will be difficult in the face of widespread budget-cutting and might only come through new legislation.

Among alternatives discussed briefly at Tuesday's meeting was a military-oriented government rent subsidy program. Under such a program, a private firm would give military families priority in renting its housing. The families would pay a percentage of their total income to rent, usually 20 to 25 percent, and HUD would pay the rest.

HUD now finances about 40,000 such units nationwide. Duggans said the HUD representative agreed to look into the possibility of setting aside some such housing solely for military without going through the legislative process.

A Do-Or-Die Shrimp Year

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — The past two disastrous shrimp harvests for North Carolina fishermen have forced them to view 1979 as a do-or-die affair.

Shrimp catches were off by more than 50 percent last year, forcing 80 of the state's fishermen and fish-house owners to seek federal disaster loans. The loans, totaling $2.1 million, are due this year. Without a plentiful harvest, many fishermen face foreclosure.

"They really need a good year, especially if they've survived the bad years," said fisherman Harold Newell of Wilmington.

Newell is one of those who didn't survive. His shrimp catches dropped 60 percent, but the payments on his boat did not. He was forced to sell it at a loss after last summer.

But, so far this year signs are improving for the fishermen. According to Marine Fisheries figures, state fishermen to date have landed 139,000 pounds of shrimp. The corresponding total for 1978 was a mere 12,869 pounds. But the 1976 figure was 407,000 pounds for the months of April and May.

Summer catches last year totaled just 1.5 million pounds, less than half of the 3.1 million pounds netted in 1977.

Marine Fisheries biologist Dennis Spitsbergen said heavy spring rains could hurt this year's crop. He said the rains have dropped the salinity level to between four and eight parts per 1,000 parts of water. He said young shrimp need 13 to 17 parts per 1,000 to reach sanctuary areas.

And, as if that isn't enough to plague the fishermen, operating costs have skyrocketed this year. The cost of diesel fuel has risen from 45 cents per gallon last year to about 60 cents this year. Fishermen say the cost of equipment, ice and maintenance has nearly doubled since the bumper crop of 1976.

manager first. If the complaint is not settled at that level, write to the manufacturer. If you still are dissatisfied, contact the Attorney General's office, Consumer Protection Division. They will try to settle the problem, but they may advise you to take the matter to a General District Court for settlement.

"Limited Warranty" — All warranties that offer anything less than the above stated requirements must be designated as "limited." For example, if you bought a product with a warranty that covered parts, but not labor, the warranty would be labeled "limited." And should the product ever need servicing, you would be responsible for all labor costs. In some instances, this could be quite expensive. Therefore, you should always check the terms of a "limited" warranty before you buy. But remember it is usually best to buy a product with a full warranty whenever possible.

What Is An Implied Warranty?

An implied warranty is an unwritten warranty that is "implied" by state law. Every product carries certain implied warranties whether or not it has a written warranty. There are several types of implied warranties but the most common is that of "merchantability." Generally, all this means is that the product is fit for the regular purposes for which it is intended. For example, a reclining chair should recline and a toaster should toast. If it doesn't, you have a legitimate complaint and the seller should repair the product. You should be aware, however, that a seller can avoid the implied warranty if the product is "sold as is" or labeled "no warranty."

What Does "No Warranty" Or "Sold As Is" Mean?

If you buy a product and "no warranty" or "sold as is" stamped on the contract, then you are agreeing to buy the product with no warranty protection, either written or implied. This means that the seller has no responsibility to repair or replace defective parts or to return your money if it should malfunction. Therefore, an implied warranty is much better than "no warranty" or sold as is.

May Require 2 Added Courses

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — By 1983, North Carolina high school students will likely be required to pass more courses than required now for graduation.

A committee of the State Board of Education acted Wednesday to recommend that members of this fall's freshman class have 18 credits rather than the present 16 before they can receive high school diplomas.

The committee recommends that one of the additional courses be math. The other could be selected by the student, the board said.

And, while the board is requiring stiffer requirements for the end of school, it may also have to tighten up the testing program in the beginning years.

The state's testing of first and second graders this year were a waste of effort because the tests were too easy, according to J. Frank Yeager, chairman of Annual Testing Commission.

That news came after the policy committee voted to increase graduation requirements, a move prompted by the state's competency testing program.

Under the new regulations, the 18 credits begin accumulating in the ninth grade, where one unit of physical education will also be required, rather than requiring PE somewhere along the four year period.

Though most of the state's 145 school systems already require 18 course units, the majority of educators attending a May 4 hearing opposed raising the units.

The educators complained that the additional units would upset school organization. In most school systems, for example, ninth graders do not attend the same schools as senior high students.

want to help," and gave a $100,000 grant to support the development of the program. "Truly, these men are pioneers in their unselfish desire to help. We are honored by you," Monroe emphasized.

Dr. William Laupus, dean of the medical school who became the first Brody Brothers professor because of the 1972 grant, said, "we worked in a kind of glass bowl structure...with a lot of sidewalk superintendants," as the four-year school of medicine developed at the university, and pointed out the needs of the school, "cannot be met with state funding," alone.

"I salute you," he said to the Brodys, and, "thank you for the faith and trust you have shown in East Carolina University and its School of Medicine."

Leo Brody of Kinston, speaking for the family, said he has, "watched Eastern North Carolina grow for 50 years," and seen the poor roads, the insufficient medical care and other problems in the east, which he described as, "a sleeping giant...the birthplace of North Carolina."

Knowing that improvements had to be made, Brody said he heard, "Leo (Jenkins) speak," and thought at the time that Jenkins, "was a bit silly."

"I soon found he made much sense," Brody emphasized. "Our family is happy and honored to do our small part in helping East Carolina University attain greatness," Brody continued.

In recognition of the gift to the school, Brewer presented each of the Brodys, including Leo, Sammy, Morris, Jake, and others, a rendering of the Brody Medical Science Building. He also presented Leo and Sammy Brody a citation designating them as honorary alumni of the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

—The state constitution, which requires the state to ensure educational opportunities for all children.

—The equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution, because the laws exempt private school students from taking the state competency test while public school students are required to pass the test to get a diploma.

—Federal education laws, because the new laws allow private schools to develop their own achievement tests while public schools must use a standard test.

Challenge School Laws

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Recent laws exempting private schools from state regulation will be challenged by several North Carolina education groups.

The groups have hired a Chapel Hill attorney to challenge the legality of the recent laws.

J. Frank Yeager, the superintendent of Durham County Schools, heads the effort. He said the firm will do legal research to see whether there is a violation of constitutional rights and laws in the deregulation of the private schools.

The Legislature last month passed two bills that exempted private schools from most forms of state regulation.

Yeager said the law firm would also look into whether the laws violate:

—The state constitution, which requires the state to ensure educational opportunities for all children.

—The equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution, because the laws exempt private school students from taking the state competency test while public school students are required to pass the test to get a diploma.

—Federal education laws, because the new laws allow private schools to develop their own achievement tests while public schools must use a standard test.

Charles Sherrod, vice-president of the East Carolina University Student Government Association became a member of the ECU Board of Trustees yesterday, then lost his seat on the board as trustees declared Brett Melvin as president-elect of the SGA.

Sherrod took the oath of office as a trustee at the opening of the session. The board, in an executive session to review election rules violation charges against Melvin, later declared Melvin the president-elect.

As SGA president, Melvin will become a member of the Board of Trustees.

In other action, the board found that the rights of Ricky Lowe, treasurer elect of the SGA, had been violated in hearings on charges that he violated election rules, and dismissed the charges against him.

In other action yesterday, trustees adopted resolutions commending Dr. Robert Holt and Dr. Edwin Monroe for their service to the University.

Holt, vice-chancellor for administration and planning, will return to the Philosophy Department as a full professor July 1.

The resolution said that, "during his 24 years with the university, Dr. Holt has made outstanding contributions in five major positions," including director of religious activities, registrar and dean of admissions, dean of instruction, vice chancellor and dean, and as vice-chancellor for administration and planning.

"The university will remain forever indebted and grateful for his superb contributions during a period when East Carolina experienced the greatest growth in its history," the resolution noted.

Monroe, vice-chancellor for health affairs, will become the medical school's associate dean for external affairs, July 1.

The trustees resolution, which expressed, "sincere appreciation" to Monroe for, "his superb leadership given to the Division of Health Affairs," said, "in serving as the first Dean of the School of Allied Health and Social Professions, he helped establish one of the nation's foremost programs."

As vice-chancellor for health affairs, the resolution said, Monroe's, "superior insight, planning and leadership skills were crucial in the establishment of the School of Medicine," and the growth and success of the School of Nursing.

Monroe, in his last appearance before the board as vice-chancellor, told the trustees that the growth of the medical school and other health manpower programs at ECU represents, "unprecedented development from one institution," in so short a time.

He pointed out that the rapid growth has resulted in overcrowded facilities, especially in the areas of nursing and allied health, a problem he suggested that trustees will be forced to deal with in the not-too-distant future.

Monroe also said that there is, "no way growth is going to stop," in the area around the Brody Medical Science Building-Pitt County Memorial Hospital complex, suggesting that trustees might consider purchasing additional land in the area for future expansion, before property become unavailable.

The vice-chancellor added, "All of my efforts have been directed toward institutional needs of the university," and not limited to medical or health program development. He said that health affairs programs have, "not been in competition with academic units." According to Monroe, funds appropriated by the General Assembly for development of the medical school would not have been spent in other academic areas at East Carolina.

Expressing, "to the board, my gratitude, and to the university, my appreciation," Monroe concluded by saying his father, "taught me how to function in disaster and finish with style. I hope that's the way you see this."

Action was taken by the City Council on Tuesday night on a budget amendment, street paving bids and a grant resolution involving airport improvements.

The Council approved an amendment to the Community Development budget to take care of expenditures incurred during the year.

A bid in the amount of $95,811.28 submitted by L. A. Reynolds Co. was accepted for the paving of several local streets under the 1979 CD paving program. One of the streets scheduled under the program is a segment of Evans Street from E. Fifth Street to Tenth Street.

Barrus Construction Co. submitted a bid of $99,767.90 for the paving project. A resolution accepting a grant from the Federal Aviation Administration for the airport development aid program here was adopted.

The county earlier accepted the grant, which will fund a runway improvement project at the airport. The acceptance by the city and county of the FAA grant allows the contractor on the site to continue the runway project without interruption.

CITIZENS OF PITT COUNTY

As members of the Pitt County Board of Education, we expend annually nearly $17,000,000 for the operation of the Pitt County Schools. In addition, as a corporate body, we hold title to $30,000,000 in fixed assets.

Individually, we farm, practice medicine and law, and serve the general public as businessmen. We make every effort to expend your funds with the same care and concern with which we manage our own.

The $9,000,000 Bond Issue to be voted on Friday, June 8, will make available funds to be used NOW in meeting many of the critical building needs which exist in the County School System. With inflation growing at a rate of approximately 10-12% annually, we cannot afford to wait. The County will be required to pay less than 6% interest over the next 20 years. Every year we delay the building program, our buying power diminishes greatly.

NO LIQUOR BY THE DRINK NO

TO DRINK OR NOT TO DRINK? THAT IS NOT THE QUESTION!

The June 8th referendum is not a battle between "Wet's and Dry's." The question to be resolved on June 8th is how YOU want liquor to be sold in Pitt County. YOU must decide if you want to ADD the Liquor-by-the-drink to our present state control (ABC) system. It's as simple as that and has nothing to do with whether or not you drink! The increased cost and social problems greatly outweigh any social or economic benefits.

EXAMINE THE ARGUMENTS FOR LIQUOR-BY-THE-DRINK

1. Will Mixed Drinks Increase Consumption?

ANSWER: Distillers Industry Institute OFFICIAL RECORDS For State of Virginia CONSUMPTION

	1969	7,743,300
One Million Gallons	1976	8,685,812

The more sale outlets the greater the consumption.

2. Will Mixed Drinks Add To The Problems Associated With Alcohol Abuse?

ANSWER: When consumption INCREASES, the problems related to alcohol abuse also increase. It's a fact! — the sad truth is that L-B-D will bring an increase in traffic deaths and injuries; more wife and child abuse and other violent crimes.

Today 29% of all Wilson County homes are effected by alcohol or drug relatedness.

3. Will Mixed Drinks Lead To More Drunken Driving and Public Drunkenness?

ANSWER: — IN STATE OF VIRGINIA arrests doubled in six years after voting for L-B-D.
— IN STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA arrests in 1977 were up 1,363 (S.C. has mini-bottle system).
— YES, drunken driving and public drunkenness will increase.

4. Will Mixed Drinks Increase County Tax Revenues?

ANSWER: YES. BUT the increase in alcohol related costs will far exceed the additional tax collected. States with L-B-D pay out 5 to 10 times their liquor tax revenue for related costs of policing, jailing, rehabilitating, prosecution and welfare. THE BOOTLEGGERS WILL HAVE A HEYDAY.

5. Will Mixed Drinks Provide For Better Control?

ANSWER: Who's kidding who? De-control is more like it. Bartenders, waiters & waitresses are paid to sell, not limit sales. Don't expect any control from a bartender pouring your favorite brand(?) from an open bottle. Though the new law expands outlets, it makes no provision to expand the ABC enforcement staff.

6. Will Mixed Drinks Eliminate "Brown Bagging"?

ANSWER: Only in restaurants... The new law permits "Brown Bagging" to continue at "social establishments" which include most of the discos, lounges and joints that operate "private clubs" in Wilson County.

Farm Leader Tries Work Out A Food For Oil Libyan Trade

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An American farm leader is trying to work out an apparently unprecedented deal to buy oil from the militant Arab state of Libya in return for wheat, corn and farm machinery.

Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, is conducting quiet negotiations with Libyan officials in an effort to ease the farmers' shortage of diesel fuel. More than 3 million American farmers are members of the federation.

If the talks succeed, farm cooperatives will import the high quality, expensive Libyan crude and sell their agricultural products to the oil-rich nation.

"What we would like to do is to develop a contract for continuing supplies," Grant said.

State Department officials said they did not think there would be any objections to the arrangement Grant is trying to work out.

"The only restriction we have is military-related sales," said one official, who asked not to be identified.

In fact, he said, "with the balance of payments deficit, we want to encourage deals."

Last year, the United States ran up a deficit of about $3.3 billion in trade with Libya, mostly because of rising oil prices.

Imports cost $3.7 billion while exports, including some food, were worth about $425 million.

Last month, the State Department, concerned about an expansion of Libya's military capability, recommended cancellation of a proposed sale of Boeing 747 jetliners to that country.

Libya is one of the most radical of the Arab states. Led by Moammar Khadafy, it is a bitter foe of Israel and Egypt.

Libya is reported to have financed terrorist raids against Israel, fought a brief border war with Egypt in July 1977 and has led Arab "rejectionists" in condemning Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for signing a peace treaty with Israel.

In deliberations of the oil cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Libya is one of the most hawkish, and Libyan oil is among the most expensive — and highest quality — in the world.

In other energy-related developments:

—The House Ways and Means Committee begins working today on President Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax on oil revenues expected to flow to the oil companies with the lifting of price controls on U.S.-produced crude oil.

Democrats on the committee informally agreed Wednesday to tighten Carter's proposal, although they did not decide how they would do that.

—Coal could be burned more widely in industry if companies used natural gas as a clean, supplemental fuel, George H. Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association, said Wednesday.

Lawrence said if 1 trillion cubic feet of natural gas were burned annually by 1985, factories and power plants could use annually about 190 million tons of coal that would otherwise be prohibited by clean air regulations.

Treatment Avoided By Dental Phobics

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — She recommends the techniques if you fear a trip to the dentist's office, a faculty member at Meharry Dental School has advice for you: tell the dentist you're afraid.

Dr. Joy Wigfall said some patients, referred to as dental phobics, were so terrified they couldn't carry on a conversation when even thinking about going to the dentist.

She recommends the techniques to others sitting in a dentist's chair, incidentally.

She said Meharry Dental School planned to offer, in a new building not yet complete, sessions for true dental phobics and for others afraid of the dentist.

A dental phobic, she said, is a victim of advanced fear. "It's totally irrational and it produces in the person a totally irrational response." But, she said, "there really aren't many of those. There are lots of people who have mild, moderate fear, but the true dental phobic doesn't come along too often."

Dr. Wigfall has worked with dental students since 1972 and spends some of her time training the students in ways to deal with patients. She says there are people who avoid dental treatment because of their fears.

Two Posed As Lawmen

"You have to understand that many patients come to the dentist in fear. If a dentist can understand what that person is going through and talk to them about that fear, then maybe that person will start coming back regularly."

A nervous patient is locked in a vicious cycle involving tension, anxiety, pain and pain perception, she said. "So you've got to try to break some part of the cycle."

She advises students to first gather the patient's dental history. This should include the patient's perception of dentistry and an overview of his or her past experiences with dentists, she said.

The dentist may then begin developing the patient's trust. The approach may vary with different persons, but she suggests an arrangement in which the patient can stop the dentist upon feeling too much pain.

"Usually you find if you give people some control over it, they can stand much more," Dr. Wigfall said.

She understands a shaken patient's plight from first-hand experience. "I used to scream and yell. I was an awful patient."

But a patient dentist helped her cope. And Dr. Wigfall, mother of one child, said she had eventually overcome her fears by using relaxation and breathing techniques she had learned through the Lamaze method of natural childbirth.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Two men posing as law officers robbed a New Jersey truck driver on Interstate 85 north of Durham Wednesday night, according to authorities.

Detective R.D. Seagroves of the Durham County Sheriff's Department identified the truck driver as Fred Shipke of Haskell, N.J.

Shipke told sheriff's deputies that he was driving his tractor-trailer rig north on I-85 near Granville County when a late model Chevrolet with a blue light on the dash pulled him over. Two men dressed in brown uniforms similar to uniforms worn by Durham County deputies got out and told him they wanted to check his freight. Shipke said he thought he was being pulled for a traffic violation.

While the two men talked to him, Shipke said, one got behind him and grabbed him and the other hit him in the stomach, knocking him groggy. Shipke said he did not see a gun.

Seagroves said Shipke told authorities he was then dragged about 75 feet into the woods and robbed of $275.

The only description Shipke was able to provide was that they were white and dressed in brown uniforms. Seagroves said Shipke got the first three letters — KPP — of the North Carolina license tag on the car.

Offered Ancient Palace, But Pope Took Old Room

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — They offered him the palace of the ancient kings of Poland, but Pope John Paul II preferred his old room in the archbishop's house on the Street of the Franciscans, the house with so many memories for him.

Here as Karol Wojtyla he lived in a cellar during World War II, studying in an underground seminary, while Nazi storm troopers walked the streets of Krakow looking for able-bodied young men to send off to the slave labor camps.

Here in the ornate episcopal dining room, Adam Sapieha, the austere old archbishop who later ordained him, entertained the German generals on the same wretched rations allotted to the Polish people while Wojtyla and the other seminarians hid nervously belowstairs.

the nom de plume of Andrzej Jawien.

His real name was Karol Wojtyla, and his deep resonant voice, now heard around the world from the balcony on St. Peter's Square, first found an audience in Krakow's Rhapsodic Theater, an avant garde group of actors who played satirical dramas in private homes and apartments in the early days of the war and kept on playing till the Stalin era.

The future pope was born in the market town of Wadowice, 25 miles away, and came to Krakow at the age of 18 to attend the famous university, only to see it closed down less than two years later when the Nazis summoned the faculty members to a meeting and sent them off to concentration camps.

Church Songfest Slated Sunday

A songfest will be held at Reedy Branch Church Sunday at 7:30 p. m.

According to the pastor, the Rev. Willis Wilson, there will be two children's choirs — one with children through the third grade, known as "the Lord's Army," and another with children from fourth grade and up, known as "The Believers."

A mixed quartet composed of college-aged church members also will sing, as will several quintets, duets, and soloists. The grand finale will be the combining of all these groups in the singing of familiar hymns.

The public is invited, Rev. Wilson said.

BENEFIT DINNER

Chicken, fish, and chattering dinners will be sold from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Friday, June 8 at 1400 Ward Street at $2 per plate. The dinners are to benefit Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church. The sale is sponsored by Ladies Delight, OES. For delivery, call 758-8649.

Here he returned to live in 1962 as the 76th archbishop of Krakow, in a direct line from the martyred St. Stanislaw he had now come home to venerate on the 900th anniversary of his death.

In this house he lived as a cardinal after June 1967 and had his greatest triumph over the Communist government in the confrontation over the building of a church in Nowa Huta, the high-rise workers' suburb built around the Lenin Steel Works a trolley ride away.

"We are yours" proclaimed the signs atop the blocks of socialist-architecture apartments when the pope's helicopter landed in a drizzle Wednesday, but in fact he was theirs.

Krakow was his city. These were his people.

False Report

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — An Edgecombe County man who said Saturday that he had been beaten and his car burned because he crossed a picket line was charged Wednesday with filing a false report.

William Earl Edmondson, 23, of Red Oak, was arrested about noon Wednesday and charged with unlawful burning with intent to defraud an insurance company and with filing a false police report. He was held under $500 bond Wednesday afternoon.

Edmondson had told police that three men forced his car off a road and assaulted him and burned his car.

He said the men threatened to kill him if he did not quit working at Seaboard Foods Inc., the scene of a nine-week-old Teamsters union strike.

But when deputies questioned Edmondson about the incident, they found discrepancies in his statements. When they asked him to take a lie-detector test he admitted the hoax.

IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE!

According to the General Accounting Office, North Carolina led all other states in the nation last year - 1978 - in cases of Driving Under the Influence. The GAO also noted that there were 1509 traffic fatalities in North Carolina last year, and that alcohol was involved in slightly more than 50 percent of the fatalities!

Obviously our current system isn't working.

Educating drivers to the danger of drinking and driving plays a big part, and it's something that the N.C. Department of Transportation is doing...as well as the courts and the morgues.

But given the premise that alcohol is with us, and that drivers in this state haven't established an enviable record in being able to drive and drink, isn't it time for a change?

Anniversary Of Senator's Death

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — June 6 marks the 163rd anniversary of the death of Benjamin Hawkins, one of North Carolina's first two United States senators.

Hawkins is better known, however, for his long tenure as an Indian agent whose humane administration led Marquis Childs to call him "an anomaly among such officers, being both honest and able."

The son of Philemon and Delia Martin Hawkins, Benjamin was born Aug. 15, 1754, in what was then Granville, now Warren, County. When he was 10, his portion of the county became Bute, and in the county seat Charles Pettigrew, later Episcopal bishop, established a school attended by young men like Benjamin Hawkins and Nathaniel Macon. As befitted the son of a prominent planter, Benjamin later was sent off to Princeton University, where, in his senior year in 1776, he helped the president's wife escape the British. He did not graduate.

Being fluent in French, Benjamin was for a time an interpreter in General Washington's forces. In 1778 and 1784 he served single terms in the House of Commons; and in 1780 he was appointed by the Legislature to procure arms and supplies to help defend the state from the British.

As a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1781-84 and again in 1786-87, Hawkins served, his biographer says, "faithfully and creditably but without outstanding distinction."

He became increasingly conservative, and he complained of the "humiliating and precarious means for support" of the delegation. Every day, he said, he lost money in the Continental Congress. In 1787 he declined re-election and returned to Warren County.

In 1789 Hawkins was elected to the convention that ratified the Constitution of the United States; he was then elected to the U.S. Senate, along with Samuel Johnston.

In the Senate, Hawkins voted more conservatively than the leaders of the state legislature had anticipated, and a strain developed between him and the body that elected him. He wore his Federalist label inconspicuously.

Back in 1785, Hawkins had been appointed a commissioner to help negotiate a treaty with the Creek and Cherokee Indians. This creditable work led President Washington in 1796 to name him principal agent for Indian affairs south of the Ohio River, and he held this office until his death.

As principal agent, he had jurisdiction over the Creeks, Cherokees, Chickasaws and Choctaws.

On horseback and with a pack train carrying supplies and equipment, Hawkins set out to introduce to the southern Indians the benefits of "civilization," including improved methods of farming.

His other tasks involved keeping peace among the Indians and between them and the whites, running boundaries between them, preventing encroachment upon Indian lands by whites, and promoting self-sufficiency among the natives.

The agent urged the Indians to substitute the "plow and hoe for weapons of the trail and chase." He introduced metal farming implements, fruit trees, strawberries, cotton and sheep.

For several years, Hawkins moved from one Indian village to another, but about 1801 he build a house on agency lands on the Flint River in Georgia. There he developed a large plantation, worked by horses and many black slaves.

Soon he was able to boast, "We are clothing and feeding ourselves. The tin ware we use; the hats, shoes and boots, and the saddle I ride on, are made in the Agency ... My family of eighty persons are all clothed in homespun."

To the Indians, Hawkins became a great friend, and they called him "beloved man of the four nations."

Whites, envious of lands set aside for the Indians, thought less of him. In their eyes he

The students and places where they took part in programs are:

— Moyewood Day Care Center — Jessie Short, Betty Jo Williams, Robin Edwards, Cathy Tyson, Cathy Waller, Angela Dixon, Wilbert Dixon, and Roberta Barnes.

— Lovin' & Learnin' — Ruthie Smith, Willie Mae Jenkins, Eddie Grimes, and Donald Perry.

— St. Paul's Pre-School — Mary Blount and Jeanette Valentine; and

Authorized To Act On Property

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The board of trustees of the North Carolina Methodist Conference has been authorized to sell, lease, develop or otherwise utilize its 62 acres of campus property in Raleigh.

Two and a half hours of discussion preceded the decision.

The final agreements for any sale or lease must be approved by the trustees, the bishop, district superintendents and the conference's Division of Health and Welfare.

According to Louise Peterson of Fayetteville, at least three parties have shown an interest in the land. But she said the trustees will proceed slowly with any action on the property.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a broad advance today as it attempted to stretch its rally into a fourth day. Trading was heavy.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead by 2.42 points at 837.92. Gainers led losers by 3-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

New York Stock Exchange volume rose to 20.2 million shares in the first hour of trading from 17.37 million at noon Wednesday.

The Labor Department said producer prices rose just .4 percent last month as beef prices declined. But producer prices at the intermediate level rose 1 percent in May, while prices at the crude level gained .8 percent.

Oil, gas and petroleum industry service issues have recorded sharp gains lately as rising energy prices and rising sales have created profit gains and new opportunities.

Among energy stocks, Continental Oil was up 3/4 at 36 3/4. Great Basins Petroleum, which is considering selling its assets or merging with another company, gained 3/4 to 12 1/2 in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. Among oilfield service issues, Big Three was up 2 1/2 to 40 1/2.

Bucyrus Erie, the world's largest maker of excavating equipment, was up 3/4 at 21 1/2. McDonnell-Douglas led the NYSE most-active and was unchanged at 21 after recording sharp losses a day earlier. Its DC-10 jetliners remained grounded by federal order.

U.S. Steel was unchanged at 22 1/4. Several senators said they expect President Carter to extend quotas on specialty steel

Martial Law Declared In Nicaragua's Unrest

ROADBLOCK. — A Nicaraguan National Guardsman stands by a captured front end loader used by Sandinista guerrillas as a roadblock. The MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza declared martial law and began calling up army reserves to combat Sandinista guerrillas holding Leon, Nicaragua's second-largest city, and battling the national guard in five other cities.

A tank-led column of Somoza's troops failed to break through guerrilla lines Wednesday to relieve the embattled garrison at Leon, 54 miles northwest of the capital city of Managua.

The troops fled back to the capital, and the guerrillas sent out a commandeered earth mover that cut a big trench across the Leon-Managua highway.

An estimated 400 guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front, many of them teen-agers, were reported in control of Leon, a city of 205,000. There have been no confirmed reports of casualties in four days of fighting there.

The Sandinistas gave a group of reporters a tour of the city. The guerrillas appeared to control all of the city except the national guard garrison and the area in its vicinity.

Many of the guerrillas were armed with automatic rifles. They were distributing milk from commandeered trucks and food rations from supply stations they set up.

"The townspeople were like proud spectators watching their sons at a baseball park," said one reporter.

Reports from the northern city of Matagalpa, scene of heavy fighting during the Sandinista uprising last fall, said guerrillas dynamited a bridge at the edge of town and after a day of heavy fighting claimed to have driven the national guard garrison back into its headquarters.

A Red Cross spokesman in Masaya, 35 miles south of Managua, said heavy fighting was continuing there, and the rebels appeared to have control of all of the city except for two government command posts.

Fighting also was reported in the southern cities of Jinotepe, Diriamba and Chichigalpa.

The national guard, Somoza's army, claimed it was fighting "an international brigade of communist mercenaries" from neighboring Costa Rica. Somoza claimed the guerrillas were armed and trained by Panama. Both Panama and Costa Rica denied his allegations, and Panama and Mexico warned of retaliation if Somoza carried out threats to invade Costa Rica.

Somoza declared a state of siege, a form of martial law, on Wednesday, suspending civil law and placing the Central American nation under the direct control of the national guard. He also imposed an 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. curfew and put the only opposition newspaper under censorship.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Harvard University, usually considered a heavyweight in college academic circles, has been soundly trounced by tiny Davidson College in the finals of the College Bowl.

Davidson, located in the tiny North Carolina community of Davidson, near Charlotte, had advanced with mighty Harvard to Wednesday night's championship round by winning five previous question-and-answer competitions.

Art Fleming, former television game show host, asked the questions in the contest, staged this year at the Fontainebleau Hotel at Miami Beach.

Big Fourth Powers Expos By Braves

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
The Montreal Expos gave the Atlanta fans a run for their money — in fact, 11 runs in the fourth inning.

Perez, one of three Expos to get two hits in the big inning. "He (Atlanta pitcher Phil Niekro) started getting behind and had to come in with his fastball."

lighted. "It's the second time we really exploded on them," he said. "I enjoyed every minute of it."

But Montreal Manager Dick Williams was compassionate. "I'm sure they were not happy," Williams said of Atlanta. "That sort of thing is really discouraging to a team. I know because I've been on the losing end of 21-7 and 21-2 scores in my managing career."

In other National League games Wednesday, the New York Mets defeated Cincinnati 5-3, the Chicago Cubs blanks San Diego 3-0, Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles 5-4, Houston nipped Philadelphia 4-3 and St. Louis nipped San Francisco 6-5.

Montreal trailed 2-0 when Perez led off the fourth with a single against Niekro, 6-9. Before the inning was over, the Expos had collected nine hits, and two walks, the Braves had committed three errors and a wild pitch, and every player in the Montreal lineup had scored at least once.

Montreal scored nine runs in the inning before Atlanta could get an out. It was the most runs scored before an out in a major league game since March 24, 1953, when the Brooklyn Dodgers scored 12 in a game against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Astros 4, Phillies 3
A three-run pinch-hit homer by Denny Walling in the seventh inning knotted the score and Jose Cruz chased home the winning run with a groundout as Houston edged Philadelphia.

Cards 6, Giants 5
Garry Templeton's third hit of the game, an RBI single in the eighth inning, gave St. Louis its victory over San Francisco as the Cards ran their winning streak to seven.

George Hendrick and Mike Tyson hit home runs for the Cards while Jack Clark belted two homers and Larry Herndon added another for the Giants, who have lost 10 of their last 11 games.

Pirates 5, Dodgers 4
Bill Robinson's second home run of the game, a two-run smash, capped an eighth-inning rally that lifted Pittsburgh over Los Angeles. The Dodgers had a 4-1 lead going into the bottom of the eighth with the help of home runs by Reggie Smith, Steve Garvey and Dave Lopes off Pirate starter Ed Whitson.

After Steve Nicosia singled and pinch-hitter Manny Sanguillen reached on an error, Omar Moreno beat out an infield hit to load the bases. Nicosia scored on a grounder and Sanguillen came home on a sacrifice fly before Robinson, who hit a solo homer in the fourth, blasted his two-run shot into the left field seats.

Cubs 3, Padres 0
Rick Reuschel and Bruce Suter combined for a four-hit and Dave Kingman continued cago over San Diego.

Kingman tripled home Ted

Sumore in the first inning as Randy Jones, 5-4, absorbed the loss. The blast by Kingman, who is 9-for-20 with four homers and nine RBI in his last five games, hit a towering drive to left field that just missed being a homer. He scored on Jerry Martin's double.

Bill Buckner singled home the Cubs' final run in the seventh.

Mets 5, Reds 3
Frank Taveras drove in three runs and Joel Youngblood and Doug Flynn each had run-scoring doubles as New York defeated Cincinnati.

Flynn and Youngblood, both ex-Reds, drove in the tying and go-ahead runs and Taveras' single plated two more in a four-run seventh inning. Dale Murray, 3-5, another ex-Red, got credit for the victory after working one inning in relief of starter Jesse Orosco.

George Foster hit his 11th home run of the season in the eighth for Cincinnati.

Longhorns Are Ousted, 6-4

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Is a free-swinging slugfest tough on a baseball coach?

Just ask Fullerton State's Augie Garrido.

"That was a 12 Rolaid game," Garrido said after his team outlasted Arkansas 13-10 Wednesday night in the College World Series.

The 27-hit game, highlighted by five home runs, was a pitchers' nightmare. Arkansas took a 2-0 lead, Fullerton went on top 8-2, Arkansas made it 8-6, Fullerton pulled out to an 11-6 advantage and the Razorbacks cut to 11-10 before the Titans finally put it away.

The offensive fireworks followed a well-played game in which Pepperdine eliminated top-rated Texas 6-4. That set up a showdown tonight between conference rivals Fullerton, 58-14, and Pepperdine, 53-17, with the winner to meet Arkansas, 49-14, for the national title Friday night.

Texas, a 9-4 loser to Arkansas Tuesday night, finishes the year 53-8.

Dan Hanggie and Mike Garcia swung the big bats for Fullerton. Hanggie belted a grand slam in the Titans' seven-run second inning and Garcia tagged a three-run shot in the seventh.

Hanggie, who is Fullerton's No. 2 RBI man on the year with 67, has been a key player in the series because the Titans' top slugger, Tim Wallach, is batting only .235. Hanggie is hitting .375 and has driven in six runs.

"The ball I hit for the grand slam was a high slider," Hanggie said. "As for my defensive and offensive play in the series, I feel very confident. I haven't felt tight at any time."

"We can win this whole thing."

Arkansas, which tied a series record by hitting three home runs, was hurt by two plays on the basepaths. Kevin McReynolds was thrown out at home in the fourth inning when he tried to score from first on Mike Martin's double and Jeff Ash was nailed in the sixth when he tried to go from first to third on a single to left.

McReynolds, Johnny Ray and John Hennell homered for Arkansas. McReynolds, a freshman, also slapped two singles, raising his series average to .714.

Tonight's game matches teams that split four contests during the regular season. Fullerton, rated third nationally, won the Southern California Baseball Association title and eighth-rate Pepperdine was runner-up.

Both teams lost their opening games of the series, but have bounced back to win three straight. First round losers have won the series on five other occasions.

Garry Humpston stroked a two-run, tie-breaking double down the left field line in the eighth inning to lift Pepperdine past Texas. Humpston, who was 1-for-9 in the series when he stepped to the plate, connected off reliever Keith Walker and made a loser of Texas ace Jerry Don Gleaton, who suffered his first setback in 14 decisions.

Scoring Mixup Could Cost Rookie Honors

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Could a one-lap scoring mixup cost Dale Earnhardt "Rookie of the Year" honors this season in Grand National stock car racing and a cash windfall of more than $40,000?

It certainly could. In fact, just such a possible mixup has already cost Earnhardt the lead in the crowded rookie points battle with Joe Millikan and Terry Labonte. Millikan finished eighth in last week's Texas 400 and Earnhardt, who crashed while running second near the end of the race, was 12th.

Millikan received three bonus points for his top 10 finish and moved ahead of Earnhardt, 193 points to 192. Labonte has 168. Here is what happened: Earnhardt was running eight seconds behind eventual winner Darrell Waltrip with 45 miles to go.

"A wheel started vibrating, so I made a pit stop to get it tightened. But the air wrench went bad. We had to come in and tighten it again," Earnhardt explained. "I went back out, the tire blew and threw me into the wall."

"We thought we were running a lap down to Darrell at the time."

Timing and scoring officials announced the first lap under caution as a result of Earnhardt's crash was 193, meaning the leader was on 192 when it happened. Earnhardt should have been on 191, having completed 190.

Officials later said the first lap of caution was 190. Then the official race report posted the next day said it was 194.

"We thought we had completed at least 190," Earnhardt said.

But he was officially scored with only 189 laps. Normally the discrepancy wouldn't mean much, but in this case it meant the difference between 10th place and 12th. A 10th-place finish would have given Earnhardt an extra bonus point and left him tied with Millikan.

It seems like a minor thing until one considers that the past three years the rookie title has been decided in the last race of the season, by two or three points.

"Yeah I know that," acknowledged Earnhardt while preparing for today's opening of Riverside International Raceway for practice for a 400-kilometer stock car race Sunday. "And it's gonna be even tighter this year. We've gotta have those top 10 finishes, and we'll probably be needing top five finishes every week before it's over."

However, officials said no one on Earnhardt's team had yet asked for a recheck of official scorecards, to which they are entitled.

Earnhardt said he was more concerned about this weekend's racing here.

Earnhardt finished 21st, one of his worst showings of the season, in the season opener at the Riverside road course, the only non-oval track on which Grand National racing is conducted.

"We've got the car set up already," he said Wednesday. "We're ready to go as soon as the track opens. That should give me time to polish up my act a little on this track."

Sonics Omitted From NBA Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — No members of the NBA champion Seattle SuperSonics made the league's 1978-79 all-league teams, and some familiar names like Julius Erving and David Thompson also were missing. But the 10 players named as all-stars Wednesday aren't a bad lot to have on your side.

The first team is paced by National Basketball Association Most Valuable Player Moses Malone of the Houston Rockets. Joining Malone on the squad are guard George Gervin, San Antonio's point machine; guard Paul Westphal of Phoenix, and forwards Marques Johnson of Milwaukee and Elvin Hayes of Washington.

The 6-foot-11 Malone, basketball's best rebounder at 17.6 per game and the No. 5 scorer in the league with 24.8 points a game, collected the most points in the voting of 66 media members from the 22 NBA cities. Malone had 120 points, followed by Gervin with 114, Johnson with 99, Hayes with 98 and Westphal with 90.

Gervin poured in 29.8 points a contest to lead the NBA in scoring for the second consecutive year. He combines with Westphal, a 24 point per game scorer, to form the all-league backcourt for the second straight season.

Johnson was third in league scoring with a 25.6 average while Hayes averaged 21.8 points and was sixth in the league in rebounding and blocked shots.

Named to the second team were forwards Bobby Dandridge of Washington and Walter Davis of Phoenix, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles and guards Lloyd Free of San Diego and Phil Ford of Kansas City.

Williamston In 17-3 Win Romp

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's American Legion baseball team roared to a 17-3 victory over Washington last night.

The victory was the second for the Williamston nine against no losses.

Williamston got the scoring going in the second inning, scoring twice. Eldred McQueen singled and moved up on a pair of infield outs. He scored on Anthony Latham's triple. Randy Ellis followed with a single, scoring Latham.

Williamston then put it away with three in the third. Glenn Cargile reached on an error, and Doug Bowen singled. McQueen doubled in both runners, then scored when Hank Edwards singled.

Williamston went on to score three in the fifth and broke it open with nine in the eighth. Washington scored single runs in the fourth, fifth and eighth innings.

Knox Wins In Putting

Junior Knox, with a 19-under-par effort, edged Allen Elder, Larry Paul and Gordon Clark by one stroke to win the Rainbow Classic at Putt-Putt last night.

Elder claimed second and Clark, third, in a sudden death to finished the 54-hole event.

Knox is now the leader for Player of the Year honors.

Latham and Ellis both had four hits to pace the Williamston attack which included 18 hits. Latham had a double, two tripled and accounted for five runs batted in.

McQueen added three hits, while Vann Parker, Bowen and Joseph Holley each had two.

Williamston will play host to Pitt County in its next game, set for Monday.

Spencer's Pinch Hit Wins For Yanks

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

With all those big names and big mouths on the New York Yankees, Jim Spencer hardly gets a chance to get a word in edgewise — to say nothing of a game-winning hit.

But he could boast Wednesday night, all right.

"It's a great feeling," said Spencer after his RBI pinch single in the ninth provided the Yankees with a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins. "I did my job. That's what I was up there for...it was as satisfying as it can get."

Even more satisfying to Spencer was the fact that his winning hit came off Mike Marshall, the Minnesota relief ace who has appeared in 31 of his team's 52 games so far.

"Last year," Spencer pointed out, "I got a game-winning hit off Marshall — it was a pop double — and after the game (Minnesota Manager) Gene Mauch said that as far as he was concerned, Marshall got me out. Well, he didn't get me out tonight."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the California Angels 5-

4; the Cleveland Indians stopped the Oakland A's 6-4; the Baltimore Orioles blanked the Kansas City Royals 3-0; the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Texas Rangers 4-3; the Seattle Mariners beat the Detroit Tigers 4-3 and the Chicago White Sox outscored the Boston Red Sox 8-5.

Ron Guidry, 6-4, who surrendered the tying run on Bob Randall's RBI single in the top of the ninth, earned the victory for the Yankees after limiting the Twins to five hits. Jerry Koonsman, 7-4, was the loser, suffering his fourth straight defeat.

Blue Jays 5, Angels 4
Dan Ainge tripled home Alfredo Griffin in the ninth and scored on a slow roller by Roy Howell to lead Toronto over California and give Jesse Jefferson his first victory since August 8, 1978.

With one out in the ninth, Griffin bunted for a single off Angel reliever Dave LaRoche, and Ainge followed with a triple before scoring on Howell's grounder.

Indians 6, A's 4
Duane Kuiper broke a 4-4 tie with a run-scoring triple off Oakland reliever Dave Heaverlo in the eighth inning, pacing Cleveland past Oakland. Gary Alexander opened the eighth with the Indians' fourth infield hit of the game and was sacrificed to second by Jim Norris. Alexander went to third when Ted Cox grounded out and scored on Kuiper's triple to right-center field off Heaverlo.

Orioles 3, Royals 0
Dennis Martinez allowed four hits, struck out nine and notched his eighth consecutive victory while pitching Baltimore past Kansas City. Lee May's RBI double off Paul Splittorff, 8-5, scored the first Baltimore run. Dave Skaggs' single made it 2-0 in the fifth, and Gary Roenicke rapped his 11th home run in the sixth.

Martinez, 8-2, retired the first 10 Kansas City batters before George Brett singled in the fourth, and then set down seven more in a row prior to Willie Wilson's two-out single in the sixth.

Brewers 4, Rangers 3
Gorman Thomas belted his 13th home run of the year and Sixto Lezcano singled home the winning run in the fifth inning, leading Milwaukee over Texas. Thomas' two-run shot temporarily tied the game 2-2 in the Brewer second. The Rangers later took a 3-2 lead before Milwaukee came back with two runs in the fifth, the last one on Lezcano's RBI single.

Texas scored all its runs off winner Larry Sorensen, 8-5, on home runs.

Mariners 4, Tigers 3
Willie Horton hit his 300th career home run and Larry Cox drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the sixth as Seattle beat Detroit.

Horton jumped on the first pitch Detroit starter Jack Morris, 3-2, threw him and drove a two-run shot well into the left-field bleachers to bring Seattle back from an early 3-0 deficit. Ruppert Jones added a bases-empty shot in the Seattle fifth to tie the game before Cox delivered his game-winning sacrifice fly.

White Sox 8, Red Sox 5
Lamar Johnson, Milt May and Eric Soderholm homered to lead Chicago over Boston. Johnson hit a solo homer in the sixth off the light tower in left at Fenway Park. May lined a two-run shot just inside the right-field foul pole in the sixth for his first homer and Soderholm belted his sixth homer with the bases empty in the seventh.

After being staked to an 8-1 lead, Chicago starter Francisco Barrios, 5-3, was shelled in the seventh when Boston scored four unearned runs after a throwing error by the veteran pitcher. The Red Sox collected 14 hits, including five doubles, but left 11 runners on base.

Television Again Experimenting With Wiring Players In LPGA

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

MASON, Ohio (AP) — National television is experimenting again with equipping Ladies Professional Golf Association players with live microphones while they play.

Don Ohlmeyer, executive producer for sports for NBC-TV, says his network may mike as many as three players for the final two rounds of the Saturday and Sunday from the LPGA Championship tournament.

"It brings the viewer closer to the game. He can hear what the player says to her caddy about club selection, what the player's reaction is to a shot," said Ohlmeyer.

Nancy Lopez, the defending LPGA champion, was to give the experiment a test run in her first round today for the $150,000 major event at the Nicklaus Golf Center.

"But even if Nancy does not like the idea personally, we may proceed with it with other players," said Ohlmeyer.

The biggest opposition to the experiment — pushed by LPGA Commissioner Ray Volpe — may come from the players themselves.

Jan Stephenson has been the only player to carry a live microphone in her skirt pocket in LPGA tour history. After running the test in the 1977 Women's International, Stephenson said she would never do it again.

"It ruined my concentration," she said.

The bubbly, unflappable Lopez, the game's No. 1 money winner, isn't sure she will like the idea either.

"It's fine with me," she said before teeing off today, "but I think they'll find our women, the more talkative ones, might not have much to say"

Durham Bid Is Vetoed

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — The city of Durham has lost its last bid to serve as host to the 1980 U. S. Olympic track and field trials.

In action announced Wednesday, the men's and women's Amateur Athletic Union subcommittees rejected an appeal submitted on behalf of the city.

Durham's Dr. Leroy Walker, the 1976 U. S. Olympic track coach, had appealed the Feb. 24 decision to award the trials for the third consecutive time to Eugene, Ore.

Walker appealed to the AAU Athletic Board on April 8 in Chicago, contending that certain procedural rules had been violated in the first vote which went in Eugene's favor by a vote of 15-14.

The protest by Walker led to a mail poll of AAU subcommittee members on whether to reconsider the original vote, and the appeal was rejected by both men's and women's groups.

To the editor:

How come you put the Greenville city Little League baseball games in your sports calendar when you don't put the Winterville Little League baseball games in your paper?

The reason I want to know this is because I play baseball in Winterville and I read your sports calendar but never see our games.

Carson Dean
105 Lamont Rd.

Those games listed in the Sports Calendar each day, and the weekly list run on Sunday are compiled from schedules given to "The Daily Reflector" by the various schools, leagues and recreation departments involved, and are always subject to change. The reason nothing from Winterville has been run is that no schedules have been turned in to us to use in the calendar by the League.

The same may hold true for reports of many games in Little Leagues and the like both in Greenville and elsewhere in the county. Many times, games are not reported to us for use.

These reports must also reach us by our deadline, which is 9:30 a.m. each Monday through Saturday, for games played the day before. Saturday afternoon and evening games should be reported between 7 and 11 p.m. Saturday nights, or if they end too late, before 9:30 a.m. on Monday morning.

The Optimists rolled to an 18-1 victory over Union Carbide yesterday in the North State Little League.

Gary Scott tossed a three-hitter at Union Carbide for the victory which upped the Optimist record to 5-4. Union Carbide is now 3-6.

The Optimists got all they needed in the first inning, scoring three times. Kelly Barnhill reached on an error and stole second. Gary Scott singled and Brett Dye walked to load the bases. Jason Boyd was hit by a pitch, forcing in Barnhill, and Steve Jaboni walked to score Scott. George Jaboni also walked, and that brought in Dye for a 3-0 lead.

had two of the three Union Carbide hits.

Exchange 7,
Big Value Drugs 3

The Exchange rolled to a 7-3 victory over Big Value Drugs yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League, handing the leaders their second loss in nine starts.

The Exchange improved its record to 5-4, winning its fifth in a row.

Big Value scored first, getting a run in the second. That came on a home run by Les Turner. The other two came in the third.

The Exchange got its parade started in the fourth, picking up two runs. Steve Childers reached on an error and Joe Hobgood was safe on a fielder's choice. Billy Michel singled in Childers, and Jim Hall hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Hobgood.

Four more crossed in the fifth, giving the Exchange all it needed to win. Childers reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Hobgood walked, and Michel singled in Childers again. Hall reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Hobgood, and Josh Hickman also was safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Michel. Hall scored on a passed ball.

The other run came in the sixth.

Michel led the Exchange hitting, getting all four of the team's hits off losing pitcher Turner. Michel got the win, also allowing four hits, with no one getting more than one for Big Value.

The Optimists added four in the second, four more in the third, and seven in the fourth inning.

The lone Union Carbide run came in the fifth. Frederick Hurt singled, moved up on an out and scored on an error.

Scott and Doyle Kirkland led the Optimists hitting with two each, while Devin Gatlin

Eagles Set Promotions

KINSTON — The Kinston Eagles will entertain all "Little Leaguers" this Sunday during "Little League Night" at Granger Stadium in Kinston. Kinston manager Duane Larson and his players will conduct a clinic for the youngsters starting at 3 p.m. Youngsters will be divided into groups according to positions and all phases of the game will be discussed. Following the clinic, starting at 6:30 p.m. Kinston will meet the Alexandria (Va.) Mariners. "Although this is labeled 'Little League Night,'" owner Ray Kuhlman said, "all youngsters, 12 and under, involved in any type of organized baseball program are more than welcome to attend. Also, this isn't limited only to the immediate Kinston area. We'll be happy to include all teams in uniform, no matter how far they come." All youngsters in uniforms, along with two coaches per team, will be admitted free to the clinic and game. Two other special nights are planned for the current seven game home stand of the Eagles. Monday night will be Family Night, with the entire family admitted for $3. or two punches on season tickets. Wednesday will be Ladies Night, with all ladies admitted for 50 cents. On these two specials, a rainout would push them back one night, to Tuesday for Family Night, while Thursday would be the rain date for Ladies Night.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL RECRUITING

this season comes down to one point: will anybody be able to compete with Kentucky for the next four years? The Wildcats snatched up nearly all the blue-chippers in sight and their success over the next four years will help determine whether there is any real point in following the recruiting game. A total of four players considered to be in the top 50 of their high school class signed with the Wildcats. The biggest, in size anyway, is 7-1 Sam Bowie from Lebanon, Penn. He is considered one of the top two high school centers by many observers along with 7-3 Ralph Sampson, who recently announced his intentions to play at Virginia next season.

Coach Joe Hall also signed 6-7 forward Charles Hurt, 6-7 forward Derrick Hord and 6-3 guard Dirk Minniefield. All were considered top prospects. In addition, the Wildcats picked up 6-9 Tom Heitz. Hall said his incoming freshman class has the potential to be as good as the one he won the national championship with in 1976. "We're pleased. They're a good group and we know it's one of the better recruiting groups in the country."

That is certainly an understatement since no other school got more than two of the top 50.

A number of other schools did get two, however, including UCLA, UNC, N. C. State, Notre Dame and Nevada-Las Vegas.

The single most-recruited player this year would have to be Sampson, who narrowed his choices to Virginia, Kentucky, Virginia Tech and North Carolina before announcing for the Cavaliers last week. He was the last of the highly-recruited players to sign this season.

Whether or not Sampson can turn the Cavaliers into an instant NCAA championship contender remains to be seen. But Terry Holland better not wait too long to get things rolling because his prize recruit may not stay in Charlottesville more than a couple of years.

The Tar Heels would no doubt have benefitted greatly had Sampson chosen Carmichael Auditorium as his home arena. Dean Smith hasn't had a dominating big man for many years. But UNC did fairly well with its two signees, 6-9 James Worthy of Gastonia and 6-1 Jimmy Braddock of Chattanooga, Tenn. Both are considered to be in the national top 20.

N. C. State also had a successful recruiting year with three top-notch prospects, 6-11 Thurl Bailey of Bladensburg, Md., 6-0 Sidney Lowe of highly regarded DeMatha High in Hyattsville, Md. and DeMatha teammate 6-0 Dereck Whittenburg. The Wolfpack rounded out its signees with another guard, 6-2 Phil Weber of Long Island, N.Y.

Duke signed four players, including 6-7 guard Tom Emma from Manhasset, N.Y. All four are excellent shooters, as are Clemson's top signees, 6-8 Fred Gilliam of Piedmont, S.C. and 6-3 Mitchell Wiggins from Truett-McConnell Junior College. Wiggins starred for North Lenoir High School two years ago and will have three years of eligibility with the Tigers.

Wake Forest inked a 6-9 forward and a 6-2 guard, while Maryland picked up a forward and a guard also.

Other top recruits nationally included 6-8 Clark Kellogg (Ohio State), 6-11 Steve Stipanovich (Missouri), 6-0 Isiah Thomas (Indiana) and 6-7 Dominique Wilkins from Washington (Georgia).

Oppose Step On Medicaid

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A recent announcement that the state's multimillion-dollar Medicaid program will be turned over to a single company has prompted several state physicians to ask the governor to reconsider the move. The request came one day after the state Department of Human Resources announced the awarding of a $1.8 million Medicaid fraud and abuse monitoring contract to Electronic Data Systems Federal Corporation.

The Texas-based firm already holds a $20.8 million contract to process the estimated 10,000 Medicaid claims filed each day by state health care officials.

During a private meeting with Gov. Jim Hunt Wednesday, representatives of the N.C. Medical Society and the N.C. Medical Peer Review Foundation said there were dangers to having one firm handle the total administration of the Medicaid program.

"We just feel that there is an opportunity for the company to skimp on the (fraud and abuse) review in order to reduce corporate costs," said state Medical Society president Dr. J. Benjamin Warren.

But a spokesman for the governor said that little can be done to change the contract because it has already been signed.

Medicaid provides health care to certain groups of poor people. The federal program is financed by state, federal and local money.

The state is expected to pay out more than $930 million in Medicaid during the next two years, up from the current $365 million, according to department officials.

Board Members Are Sworn In

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Three new members of the state Board of Agriculture have been sworn in with Appeals Court Judge Frank M. Parker administering the oath of office in ceremonies Wednesday.

The new members are John H. Canady of Richlands, representing general farming; John A. Guglielmi of North Wilkesboro, representing poultry; and state Sen. James D. Speed of Franklin, representing marketing and general farming.

Test Study?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A committee of the state Board of Education recommended Wednesday that the University of North Carolina conduct a study on the difficulty of the high school competency test.

The board's Education Policy Committee also said UNC should be asked to study the cultural bias of the test and study whether remedial efforts are working.

The committee recommended approval of a $67,900 contract with the school for the study.

The study, if approved by the state board, will begin next week and run through Jan. 7, 1980.

It will consist of four major parts including:

- An assessment of whether the test is culturally biased. UNC is expected to conduct this study.
- A study of whether the competency test is difficult enough or too difficult. The test will be reviewed by three groups representing registered voters, high school teachers and school administrators. UNC-Greensboro will probably conduct this study.
- A study of which remedial programs have been most effective in improving student performance on the test. This study will probably be conducted by N.C. Central University and N.C. State University.
- A study of whether the test is appropriate for educably mentally retarded and students with learning disabilities.

School Bond Issue! Yes or No?

During the past week the local paper has been full of information about the School Bond Referendum. I sincerely hope that each and everyone who plans to vote Friday has been reading them. I have and I will vote YES.

There have been articles giving the viewpoints of both the Pitt County Board of Education and the Greenville City Board of Education. The articles go into great detail and are very explicit as to what monies are needed and how the bonds will be spent. Admittedly, I disagree in some minor aspects with designations as how these funds will be spent, but, the overall needs far outweigh any minor personal objections.

Remember, we elect our School Boards. We ask them to develop our educational facilities and programs so that the children of our community can obtain a quality education! We all desire that all of the children get a good basic education to prepare them for college or technical school on graduation from high school. Now school officials are saying:

"While this money will not do everything that we need, it will help take care of these priority items," said Superintendent Glenn Cox. "Its an all or nothing-at-all situation."

"The Pitt County Commissioners have said that the needs of the City and County will not be met, unless the bond referendum passes," said Alford. "It would not be advisable to levy taxes as time goes on, inflation will eat up these funds."

Poor facilities and crowded conditions do not lead to quality education. In fact, when they continue to exist and progressively increase, they lead to moral breakdown and poor education. Procrastination, delay, and inflation will only increase the cost. Don't you think it is time that we all work together? After all, this is to improve the chances for our kids to become the community leaders of the future that will be absolutely necessary for the progressive growth of the community.

Please read and review the articles in the papers and cast your vote for you child's future!

Support your School Board! Support the proper development of your community! Support the educational growth of our children and grandchildren.

By all means make your own decision and go to the polls and vote that decision. I will vote yes.

Sincerely,
Ray D. Minges

Writer Plans Search For The Bonhomme Richard

THE BONHOMME RICHARD — This is the ship sailed by the famed John Paul Jones. Clive Cussler plans to look for the wreck of the Bonhomme Richard this month. (AP Laserphoto)

By KEVIN McKEAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — What do you do with a million dollars you made writing a popular novel about salvaging the Titanic?

If you're Clive Cussler, you sink a big hunk of it into real-life ocean salvage — in particular, the finding of John Paul Jones' ship, the Bonhomme Richard.

Cussler, whose "Raise the Titanic!" was a bestseller three years ago, is leading an expedition off the coast of England this month looking for the wreck of the Revolutionary War hero's ship.

The Bonhomme Richard was lost 200 years ago this September after dealing the British Navy an embarrassing defeat.

Jones captured the British frigate Serapis in the first naval battle of the fledgling United States. It was during this scrap he is supposed to have said, "I have not yet begun to fight."

But his ship was mortally wounded. It drifted 36 hours and sank off Flamborough Head, 180 miles north of London, with Jones and the crew escaping on the Serapis and other vessels.

Now, Cussler and seven others are seeking the Bonhomme Richard's watery grave. They're using sophisticated sonar, a metal detector, precision navigation equipment, research on the battle and even the guidance of psychics.

It's the second year the 47-year-old author has gone after the ship — at a cost of $140,000 so far. An initial search last summer turned up no trace.

"But we've done a lot of homework in research this year," Cussler said in an interview in New York before leaving for England.

The exact position of the battle isn't known, he said. But Jones jettisoned his cannon the morning after the battle in an effort to keep the ship afloat. British divers and fishermen have spotted the cannon in the area.

With the position of the cannon, Cussler sought out tide data for the days in question. The British Admiralty has kept tide records since 1720. This, plus a wind estimate, "narrowed" the search to a 9-by-17-mile rectangle of North Sea.

It's a patch of water so famed for bad weather and ripping tides that divers can work only in June.

"With our equipment and good weather, we can eliminate 15 square miles a day. I'd like to see 20 days of working weather, but if it's nasty we may get only 10," Cussler said.

The timbers of the hull, decks and masts would have rotted away. But the searchers hope to spot the ship's distinctive ballast mound. Built as a merchantman, the Bonhomme Richard needed 70 tons of pig-iron, cannon balls and stone to weigh it down.

As for the psychics, Cussler consulted a few "because I wanted to open every door — but we're not holding our breath."

Any artifacts recovered from the ship would go to British, U.S. and French museums: "When there's no treasure involved, you can be very magnanimous," Cussler said.

But even if the search fails, Cussler plans to continue the ocean salvage business next summer.

His mission then will be to find the Confederate submarine Hunley, which sank after becoming the first sub ever to sink another ship in battle. Both searches are bankrolled by a foundation Cussler set up to support marine archeology.

The foundation is named the National Underwater Marine Agency Inc., a title drawn from Cussler's half-dozen sea adventure books.

But the author insists his search for the Bonhomme Richard is firmly grounded in reality. "Nothing has ever come easy for me," says Cussler, a tanned, powerfully-built resident of a Denver suburb, amateur diver and former advertiser.

ing man. "Titanic," when it clicked, was my fourth book. People say congratulations, you're an overnight success. Overnight, year — 11 years."

Cussler said he now likes to mix writing with projects — of which the Bonhomme Richard is the latest.

"I've always wanted to do something like this. The success of the books has at least given me the opportunity," he said.

Compromise On Rates Reached By Assembly

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The question of how rates will be set on auto and casualty insurance was finally settled Wednesday when the House and Senate approved a compromise on a bill that will extend the controversial 1977 insurance law.

That law stripped the state insurance commissioner's office of prior-approval power over rate hikes, allowing companies to operate under the file-and-use system.

Since the law was enacted, the controversy over whether the insurance commissioner would get his power back has plagued all legislative insurance deliberations.

But what forced the 1979 insurance bill into a conference committee was not the basic question of how rates will be set but how much they would be allowed to increase each year under the file-and-use system.

The Senate approved an insurance rate-setting bill that included a permanent 6 percent ceiling on annual rate increases for automobile liability and collision insurance.

The House amended the bill to extend the permanent 6 percent cap to homeowners' and worker's compensation insurance.

That meant the cap applied to all four lines of so-called essential insurance.

But the Senate refused to concur in the extension, and the bill was sent to a conference committee.

The compromise that was approved Wednesday by both chambers would place a 6 percent ceiling on automobile liability and collision and homeowners' insurance, but lift that ceiling on worker's compensation after one year.

The question of how insurance rates are set proved to be a bitter struggle in the 1977 legislature. The 1979 legislature was forced to take up the question because the 1977 law expires in July.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has opposed the 1977 law, saying it has cost the state's insurance consumers nearly $200 million in rate hikes that he would not have approved had he had the power.

Mini Bottle Study

Remember the great mini bottle debate. Supporters of legislation to license restaurants, lounges and other qualified establishments in South Carolina to sell liquor in bottles containing two ounces or less depicted it as a temperance measure. Opponents argued just the opposite.

That was a half dozen years ago. A "State conducted study" showed the first five years of the mini bottle provides persuasive proof that proponents were right. Liquor consumption has decreased and state revenues from liquor sales have increased since the mini bottle system was instituted in March 1973.

The reports on state study note that liquor consumption in South Carolina steadily rose during the years preceding enactment of the mini bottle law, but beginning in 1974 per capita consumption began to edge downward.

There has been a corresponding decline in arrests for driving under the influence and public drunkenness, but officials of the state alcohol and drug abuse commission say that law enforcement and education programs to combat alcoholism may deserve most of the credit for that.

The state collected $21.5 million in liquor taxes in 1972, the last full year that brown bagging was permitted in South Carolina. Liquor taxes brought in $29.5 million in 1977.

The brown bagging system was a disaster. Under that system, those who wanted to drink in public brown bagged minimum half-pints in establishments having brown bagging permits.

The mini bottle system encourages moderation for two reasons. One, the cost of mini bottles is sufficiently high to discourage heavy drinking; and two, the mini bottle permits drinkers to have a drink without buying a large bottle and succumbing to the temptation to drink it all.

The mini bottle has indeed proven an ingenious way of promoting temperance and a more responsible and realistic method for regulating the sale of hard liquor.

Those who supported the mini bottle law on the ground that it was a temperance measure have been vindicated.

Refunds To Motorists Is Possible

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If Tuesday's ruling by the N.C. Court of Appeals is allowed to stand, millions of dollars in automobile insurance rate increases will be refunded to the state's motorists.

The court supported Insurance Commissioner John R. Ingram's rejection of two automobile rate increases last year. The industry put into effect a 6 percent hike April 1, 1978, and an additional 5.6 percent increase Dec. 1, despite rejections by Ingram.

Under a 1977 law that allows companies to put reject increases into effect pending court appeals, companies must refund the extra premiums they collect, plus interest, if the appeal is lost.

But Bernard H. Parker, chairman of the N.C. Rate Board of Governors said Wednesday the board will probably appeal the decision to the N.C. Supreme Court.

The central finding in the appeals court's ruling was that Ingram was correct in rejecting the requested increases because the rate bureau had supported its requests with un-audited data.

The court supported Ingram's conclusion that "un-audited data is not a credible basis for justifying a proposed rate change," although the bureau had argued that Ingram's written notice setting hearings on the filing should have specified that the un-audited data was inadequate.

The court reversed Ingram's rejection of rates for $25-deductible collision insurance. Ingram ruled the rates were excessive, but the court said that finding was not justified by the evidence.

Ingram's order found that the $25 deductible collision premiums were 150 percent that of $50 deductible coverage, a more popular category, and concluded the rates were excessive.

Pensioner Was Locked In Car Trunk 56 Hours

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — For 56 hours, Dorothy Hudson was a trembling voice in a car-trunk coffin, calling out to a world that passed her by.

Giggling children mimicked the anguished cries of the 60-year-old woman locked in the trunk of her 1963 sedan by robbers. Other passersby ignored her weakening shouts, she said.

Finally, she heard a startled "Who's that?" "Please, I'm locked in the trunk," she responded. "Call police." And at long last Ms. Hudson was freed, dazed and dehydrated.

The 91-pound pensioner told authorities her ordeal began last Wednesday when she stopped her car at a downtown intersection and two young men walked up to ask for directions to the nearest gas station.

One of the men slid into the car on the driver's side and the other got in the passenger side, squeezing her in the middle of the front seat, she said.

One smelled of liquor, and he held his hand inside his jacket as if he had a gun, she said. They forced her into the trunk, then crisscrossed the city, stopping and starting.

"Just shut up, and don't make a sound, or we'll kill you," Ms. Hudson said she was told. They drove through the city for eight hours, she said, and she could hear them talking.

"Are you comfortable, Dorothy?" they taunted her. "Is it getting too hot back there? Is this all the money you have, Dorothy? A lousy 17 bucks?"

The robbers parked the car in the underground garage of an apartment house, and warned her they would kill her if she made any noise.

For hours she tried to pry open the trunk with a tire iron, she told officials. Her screams for help became whispers, she said, drawing taunts from youngsters and the cold shoulder from adults.

It was late Friday when a passing man finally called back to her. Firefighters summoned to the scene pried open the trunk, peered in and saw the huddled form of the frightened woman.

Ms. Hudson was treated at a hospital for dehydration and released. Meanwhile, police are searching for the two robbery suspects.

Closed At Night For The Turtles

SWANSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Hammocks Beach State Park, an island at Bogue Inlet, will be closed at night for short periods during June, July and August to protect loggerhead turtles that come up on the beach to nest.

The state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development announced the action, noting that the big sea turtles have been placed on the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service's list of threatened wildlife.

Claude Crews, park superintendent, said the island is one of the major nesting areas for loggerheads on the North Carolina coast. He said day use of the island will continue but the park will be closed at night June 8-10, July 6-8 and Aug. 7-9.

In August of 1974, when the recession was half over, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board observed that the economy was not in recession.

The difficulty in pinpointing recession lies in the fact that economic indicators do not have consistency. For instance, personal income and employment dropped in the last recession, but income rose and employment was flat in the 1969-70 recession.

Money supply fell in the 1973-75 recession but rose in the previous one. Housing starts were down sharply in 1973-75 but soared in the 1969-70 recession.

The next NBER meeting to discuss the economy is scheduled for July.

They Decide If Recession

Courtesy Of INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

With all the economic talk centering around recession these days, you might wonder who and what determines a recession.

The national Bureau of Economic Research officially determines the tops and bottoms of business cycles. A group of NBER economists meets every six months to study economic statistics.

If they decide we are in recession, that fact is related to various government agencies and published in Business Conditions Digest some months later. Or, the NBER can make an announcement of its findings on its own.

The NBER considers a variety of economic statistics, including personal income, employment, factory output, retail sales, money supply, housing starts and corporate profits.

A decline in any one statistic is not that significant; the depth and duration of decline, and how widespread the decline is throughout the economy are major considerations.

Unfortunately, recessions do not arrive with a formal announcement — they are difficult to detect even after several quarters. For instance, the last recession began officially in November 1973 and ran through March 1975.

In January of 1974, when the recession was three months old, the President's Council of Economic Advisers stated that the economy was still expan-

The court said expert witnesses testified that premiums were based upon accident experiences within a category and that a number of deductible categories allowed the consumer to pay lower premiums by absorbing a portion of the loss for himself.

Offer Document Of Spiritual Growth

On Sunday, the Feast of Pentecost, St. Timothy's Episcopal Church held a spiritual groundbreaking in the parish hall of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, allowing an opportunity for St. Timothy's people to meet and construct a "Document of Purpose," an expression of mutual understanding of the mission and ministry of St. Timothy's as a Christian community.

According to St. Timothy's Building Council, the creation of the document was the first step in the process of setting goals — defining the community, dreaming for the future and working toward the actual design and construction of church buildings on the property owned by St. Timothy's near Cherry Oaks.

The next steps will be a comprehensive study of the functions and needs of the parish in terms of worship, education, mission and social life, as well as a thorough financial analysis of the budget and resources of St. Timothy's Church.

Afterwards, a building program proposal will be drawn, and a search for an architect and plans for building design and construction will be advanced.

St. Timothy's Church, a parochial mission of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, provides traditional Anglican worship, promotes and provides Christian education and provides community service.

St. Timothy's will send a delegate, Helen Rountree, to a special convention of the Diocese of East Carolina meeting at Christ Church, New Bern, on Saturday which will elect a bishop coadjutor. Tommy Tucker will serve as alternate delegate.

An Important Message For Drinkers And Non-Drinkers Alike...

LET'S KEEP PITT COUNTY OUT OF THE TRAP OF LIQUOR BY THE DRINK

Fiction: Liquor By The Drink will provide much better control.

FACT: Who's kidding whom? De-Control is more accurate! Bartenders and bar maids are paid to SELL, not to limit sales. Who's going to enforce the law? The State ABC Board has NO enforcement agency...There are NO additional funds available for local enforcement officers...it will be every man for himself! DON'T GET CAUGHT IN THE TRAP!

Fiction: Liquor By The Drink will eliminate "Brown Bagging".

FACT: ONLY in restaurants... "brown bagging", as well as LBD, will both be permitted in "social establishments" which include discos, lounges, clubs, and topless joints that already exist in Pitt County along with those that will come into existence if the flood-gate of LBD is opened! DON'T GET CAUGHT IN THE TRAP!

Fiction: The high price drink will encourage moderation and reduce consumption.

FACT: Sounds reasonable...but it's NOT TRUE! For instance...look at the stats concerning Mecklenburg Co. 6 months before LBD compared to the first 6 months after LBD was voted in:
1. Liquor sales (prior LBD) $12,395,500.15
Liquor sales (after LBD) $14,808,634.07 up 19%
2. DUI's (prior LBD) 520
DUI's (after LBD) 636 up 22%
3. Alcohol-related Accidents (prior LBD) 106
Alcohol-related Accidents (after LBD) 124 UP 16%

Fiction: Liquor By The Drink won't result in an increase in alcohol related problems.

FACT: When consumption increases, so do the problems related to alcohol. Alcoholism begins with the first drink. It is the number one social problem in America. "The states that sell liquor by both package and drink have an alcoholism rate 40% higher than those which sell only by package." (American Business Men's Research Foundation) LBD will bring more highway fatalities and other violent crimes.

Fiction: Liquor By The Drink will attract big conventions and stimulate the economy.

FACT: Maybe so...but big conventions will also bring the prostitutes, more "X" rated movies, porno shops and all the vices that flourish in convention areas! LBD will attract the undesirable elements that know where a fast buck can be made. It's a proven fact that it will end up costing the tax payers of Pitt Co. $4 for every $1 raised in liquor tax!

Fiction: Liquor By The Drink will increase Pitt Co. Tax Revenues.

FACT: According to the ABC report: for the first 6 months of 1978, the liquor crowd made a profit of $1,541,522.36 in Pitt County alone! Pitt Co. received only $32,779.66 for the entire year of 1978 from liquor revenue. The Walter B. Jones ARC has a budget for 1979 of $1,500,000.00. National statistics report that liquor is a 4 to 1 losing proposition!

Possible Adjournment Tonight For State's General Assembly

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The 1979 General Assembly will adjourn late tonight if the House has its way, or on Friday if the Senate prevails.

Both chambers have an adjournment resolution pending that sets the end of the session for today at 6 p.m. But at the close of business in the Senate Thursday, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, president of the Senate, said it looked like it would be noon Friday before their work would be finished.

"I don't think we can adjourn tomorrow (Thursday) and finish the work of the session," he told the Senate. "We are in good shape, but I don't believe we can possibly adjourn unless you are in the mood to stay into the late hours of the night, and I don't think that would be wise."

Neither chamber took action on its adjournment resolution. But Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, tried to amend the resolution to call for a Friday adjournment.

House members who heard about the change quickly protested, and the Senate postponed action on the whole question.

"That Craig," said Rep. Horton Rountree, D-Pitt, speaker pro tempore of the House. "He tried to postpone adjournment until Friday and didn't even tell us about it."

House Speaker Carl Stewart,

D-Gaston, told House members late Wednesday he didn't know when they would finish.

In other legislative action:

Wildlife
The General Assembly enacted a massive bill rewriting most state game laws. Enactment came as the House and Senate agreed to a conference committee's recommendation for a compromise.

The Senate voted 28-16 to accept the conference report, and the House voted 82-8.

The compromise was essentially the same version passed by the House and rejected by the Senate earlier. It keeps most regulatory authority with the General Assembly, although the Senate originally wanted to turn over most authority to the Wildlife Resources Commission.

The most controversial section dealt with permitting the commercial trapping of foxes. The final version leaves it up to future sessions of the General Assembly to enact local legislation permitting trapping.

Busing
A House judiciary committee killed a Republican resolution that would have called on Congress to stop forced busing of public school students.

The House Judiciary II Committee agreed on a voice vote to give the resolution an unfavorable report. It was before the committee the second time since the sponsor, Rep. Mary Pegg, R-Forsyth, was not present when it was killed the first time last week.

Fair Employment
The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would enable North Carolina to handle claims of discrimination in employment instead of having them settled by the federal government.

Under the bill, federal agencies that would be involved in settling discrimination charges would defer to the North Carolina Human Relations Council.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, said he would not press for passage in the Senate because there were some technical problems with the bill and question about the makeup of the Human Relations Council. House ensures the bill may be considered by the Senate during the short legislative term next year.

A Personal Viewpoint Facts and Reality About Mixed Drinks in Pitt County

Pitt County was voted wet! It has ABC (liquor) stores. It also has brown bagging. Anyone of legal age (21), who has the money, can buy all the liquor he wants at a remarkably cheaper price than he can by buying mixed drinks.

Technically, it will increase the legal outlets at which liquor can be sold, but at the same time it is reducing the number of outlets at which it can be consumed. If mixed drinks are voted in, it will eliminate "brown bagging", greatly reducing the outlets for legal drinking. The only exception to this is social clubs which can have a permit for mixed beverages and also allow its memberships to have their own liquor lockers which they can utilize for "brown bagging". However, a member's own liquor cannot be kept at the bar where mixed beverages are prepared and sold. The employees of the social club cannot handle the member's liquor except when a private function is being held for a private group under a "special occasion permit". Therefore, to say that "more liquor will be drunk in more places" is quite inconsistent with the facts. Even conceding the fact that there will be those who come into a lounge bar in a restaurant for a social drink and do not dine, I cannot believe that, with the comparative cost of mixed drinks and brown bagging, more liquor will be consumed.

For a restaurant to qualify for a mixed beverage permit, it must engage primarily in preparing and serving meals. At least 51% of its gross receipts must be from the sale of meals. Mixed drinks may be served only during the hours that the dining area is open and food services of the kitchen are available. The law will not "open the way for all sorts of bars, honky-tonks, clubs and joints to appear in Pitt County."

Social drinking is a fact of life. I would estimate that a major percentage of alcohol consumed in Pitt County is consumed at cocktail parties and social events. Social drinkers, also, usually brown bag. Remember our present laws prohibit the transportation of liquor with the seal broken within that part of the vehicle accessible to the driver. Therefore, to be legal, now, those who brown bag must either finish the bottle, leave what's left at the restaurant, or lock it up in the trunk of the vehicle. Which is easiest?

$10.00 tax a gallon for each gallon of liquor sold to an outlet having a mixed beverage license! What will it mean to Pitt County? First $1.00 per gallon will be applied to the State Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program. The summation of all the $1's throughout the state in those areas selling mixed beverages will be a tremendous boost for this program. Our local Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center will share in these proceeds.

$9.00 per gallon will go to the County Government. How they use it will depend on their judgement as to where it is needed most. I honestly do not feel that mixed beverages will increase our present alcohol-related programs. If the County Commissioners feel we need to use these "windfall" taxes to help alleviate the alcohol-related programs, I will trust their judgement.

It is my belief that the only tax burden that will develop is on those that participate and utilize the mixed beverage program. This will come about through the cost of the mixed drink. In fact, if this "windfall" tax should turn out to be as much as $200,000.00 to $300,000.00 as some predict, it is possible it can delay future raises in our county tax.

There are some of you who have religious or moral beliefs which prevent you from considering mixed beverages or even alcohol in any way. You should go to the polls and vote your beliefs.

To those who have no strong feeling either for or against, I say read all the data you see in the ads and pamphlets and make your decision using your judgement.

I do not utilize liquor, even at social gatherings. On the average I may have about 6 Bloody Mary's during the course of any 12 month period. Yet, I feel that mixed beverages will help in the control of alcohol as far as law enforcement is concerned; it will decrease the number of people arrested for drunken driving as has been shown by the report from Charlotte where the Charlotte Police Department show a monthly decrease in arrests for drunken driving, comparing December, January and February of 1977-78 to December, January and February of 1978-79; it will, in my opinion, reduce the consumption of alcohol at restaurants by the social drinker due to the comparative cost of mixed beverages and brown bagging; and I do believe that it will supply tax monies that can be readily utilized by the County Government.

Therefore, I will vote for the Mixed Beverage Bill. The MOST important thing is that you vote!

Sincerely,
Ray D. Minges, M.D.

SRO For Close-Up Of A Falling Skylab

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — David Turosak is so certain a piece of the Skylab space station will fall next to his Richmond home that he's selling tickets to anyone who wants to come and watch.

The $5 tickets pay for a chair from which to observe the action and all the beer you can drink. Spectators have to bring their own sunglasses, though. Turosak says "the color will be intense."

Turosak, 23, dreamed Skylab will come flaming down to earth on July 3 and that a piece of it "the size of a Volkswagen" will fall next door to his Grove Avenue home.

Scientists expect the Skylab, in orbit since 1973, to fall between June 27 and July 21, with a 50-50 chance it will come down July 9.

Turosak says he isn't frightened, even though the 500 or so pieces of the plummeting Skylab are expected to include 10 weighing about 1,000 pounds and a couple weighing 4,000 pounds or more.

"I think it should be a happy occasion, and everybody should drink beer and, well, learn something about science — what went wrong, you know," he says.

Literally Sitting On A Pot Of Gold

CHARLESTON (AP) — For almost four years, the U.S. government has been literally sitting on a pot of gold.

But the federal watch over 118 bars of gold bullion, discovered aboard a cargo jet at Charleston Air Force Base in December 1975, has not been without its rewards for the shipment's owners.

When found on the Overseas National Airways DC-8, the bullion was valued at $50,000. Now it's worth $973,000.

The government, however, is no closer to turning the gold over to its owners than it was in December 1975.

Wistar Stuckey, an official in the U.S. Attorney's office in Columbia, said the government position is that the gold is owned by two Swiss banks.

The banks had intended to ship the gold to an undisclosed destination in Saudi Arabia.

The golden cargo, was supposed to have been unloaded before the jet reached Charleston. The craft had landed at Charleston on a Military Air Transport Service charter flight from Frankfurt, West Germany.

Stuckey said the gold has been deposited in a bank until the ownership question is resolved.

A maintenance man at the Air Force base is seeking a finder's fee for discovering it. The workman has not been identified.

expected a federal suit to be filed to settle the question, and if the ruling is the gold belongs to the United States, a finder's fee would be granted.

The bidding:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♠
2 ♥ 2 ♦ 3 ♥ Pass
4 ♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

The arithmetic of trick-taking is very simple. Eleven tricks are better than ten only when they don't result in nine. Consider this hand.

The bidding was orthodox enough, although many players would have opened the South hand rather than pass. The jack of hearts is the key card, since it solidifies the suit and gives South a sound rebid. South had a little something in reserve when he bid only two hearts over East's interference, but he did not want to crowd the bidding by jumping to three hearts.

West led a low spade and declarer wisely went up with dummy's ace—he could not afford to have East win the trick and shift to a club through the queen. Declarer drew trumps in three rounds and then started on the diamond suit. Had that suit divided 3-3, declarer would have obtained three discards and ended up making eleven tricks. Unfortunately, the diamond suit split true to the odds—missing six cards in a suit, the most likely division of the outstanding cards is 4-2. As a result, declarer was able to obtain only one discard, for he had no entry back to dummy to use the long diamond he could establish by ruffing.

At the cost of a possible overtrick, the contract could have been virtually assured if declarer took his tricks in the right order. The first order of business must be to test the trump suit, and declarer can do so by cashing two honors in his own hand. If trumps break 4-1, declarer must draw trumps and rely on an even diamond split.

However, when the 3-2 trump division is established, declarer can guarantee the contract if diamonds are no worse than 4-2. Declarer abandons trumps, leaving one outstanding, and cashes the king and ace of diamonds. When both defenders follow, declarer ruffs a diamond with a high trump if necessary.

Now declarer can re-enter dummy with a trump to cash the diamonds. In this way declarer makes five trump tricks, one spade and four diamonds, for a total of ten tricks.

Good Story Line Was Not Enough

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Last Giraffe," tonight on CBS, sounds like it can't miss — two young people fall in love, get married and save some endangered giraffes. I mean, how can you mess up a story like that?

Turn in, and see.

The story itself is fine — dramatic and touching, in the general style of "Born Free." But the production is so superficial and the acting so inane you get the feeling you're watching "Love Boat Sails to Africa."

Susan Anspach plays Betty Bruce, a divorcee who gets a camera and goes to Kenya "to work." She keeps saying this, that she's there "to work," but you never quite know what she's supposed to be doing. Just taking pictures of all the pretty animals, I guess.

She goes on a tour of a game reserve, where she witnesses the killing of a giraffe by a poacher. She is outraged, and takes a special interest in the endangered Rothschild giraffe species.

Fortunately, she snapped a picture of the poacher in the act of the killing, making possible a prosecution. Unfortunately, she was duped into handing her film over to the poacher's boss, villainous Ian Fielding.

Miss Anspach isn't given the brightest lines ever written, but she might have helped by not bringing her Susanne Sommers imitation to Africa. It's impossible to take her character seriously when every line is delivered in a sing-song, little girly-wirly manner.

Anyway, she meets local tour guide Jock Leslie-Melville (Simon Ward), and they fall in love. This gives her the opportunity to remind us: "I'm too happy ... I didn't come to Africa to have fun, I came here to work."

After a day in the jungle, he proposes marriage. Finally she tells us: "I came here to do photos, do a book, do something important with my life."

The giraffes and the countryside are great, but the drama is sappy. The danger to the giraffes seems kind of flimsy — some sort of development project, or something. And why does it take a weepy American divorcee to save the animals? Kenya cares, I think.

If you don't mind the humans, you might enjoy this. Or, you could go to the zoo.
