

Pres. Carter Flies To Vienna Summit

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter headed for Vienna today, saying he is approaching his first summit with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev "with hope but without false expectations."

At a departure ceremony on the White House south lawn, the president said his main goal at the summit and the "unchanging duty of every president" is to avoid nuclear war while maintaining U.S. security.

Carter left with modest goals for the summit, where the two leaders will sign a treaty to limit U.S. and Soviet strategic nuclear weapons. He said the treaty "gives us enhanced national security and increased hope for a peaceful future."

At the departure ceremony, Vice President Walter F. Mondale told Carter: "The best wishes of the American people go with you today on this most crucial of all missions."

"I'll certainly do the best I can," the president said before he, his wife and daughter boarded a helicopter for Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland. Their plane took off at 8:26 a.m. EDT on the eight-hour, 15-minute flight to the Austrian capital.

While conceding that no summit can end the "sharp competition" between the two superpowers, Carter said he will try to "broaden our communications with the Soviet leadership" as well as make clear U.S. views "so that there can be no dangerous misunderstandings as we pursue our separate courses."

"I go to Vienna with the confidence which can only come from representing the greatest, the strongest and the most free society in the world," Carter declared.

Although surprises cannot be ruled out, the principal purpose of the summit remains the signing of SALT II.

But aides say Carter will be looking beyond Vienna with the hope of promoting a continuing U.S.-Soviet dialogue aimed at smoothing "the peaks and valleys" in relations between the superpowers.

In addition, the U.S. president can be expected to attempt a firsthand appraisal of Konstantin Chernenko, the politburo official some see as

More Americans Leaving Managua Fighting Scene

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista guerrillas battled President Anastasio Somoza's troops in Managua for the seventh day today, looting was widespread, and the U.S. Embassy planned to fly out more Americans.

Somoza's planes rocketed and strafed Managua's slums, trying to smash the guerrillas in the strongholds they have barricaded since Friday night. National guardsmen raked the barrios with submachine guns in an operation called "reconnaissance by fire."

"We shoot into all the trees on an unsecured block with .50-caliber machine guns," said a lieutenant in the guard, Somoza's combined army and police force. "Sometimes people with guns jump down and run away. Sometimes they fall out dead."

Managuans sleeping on their floors because of the fighting said guerrillas told them Sandinista commander Eden Pastora was leading an "international brigade" north from the Costa Rican border. Somoza claimed last weekend his forces crushed an invasion there last week and drove the survivors back across the frontier.

SECURED? TO BE DEMOLISHED?
I am complaining about the old hospital (more recently Social Services) building on Johnston Street, Greenville. There was an attempted rape in this neighborhood recently and vagrants have been seen coming out of this building early in the morning. I think the building should be better secured and observed and that it should be torn down as soon as is humanly possible.

In Leon, the second largest city in Nicaragua, national guard sources said the garrison was under heavy attack by the guerrillas. Leon has been in rebel hands, except for the garrison, since the beginning of the month.

Unexpected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp, unexpected rise in oil imports this week could mean no "generalized shortage" at gasoline stations this summer, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today.

Somoza conceded in a broadcast Wednesday night that his capital had been "shut down" by the fighting and a general strike called by the Sandinistas June 4 as part of their two-week-old "final offensive." Somoza spoke of the "shame people had to suffer in having to take what is not theirs," and said the national guard would soon begin distributing food in barrios cleared of guerrillas.

But that good news could be jeopardized by a troublesome, unexplained drop in refinery capacity, Schlesinger told a news conference.

Mayor Says Needs Were Shelved In Efforts To Put Budget Into Balance

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
A public hearing was held Wednesday night on the proposed city and Greenville Utilities budget for 1979-80 totaling some $41,651,121.

Mayor Percy Cox told the hearing gathering that the recommended financial package represented a "tight budget" and he said the City Council, city manager and department heads probably worked harder on this budget than any the city has had.

Cox pointed out that the 1979-80 budget package was presented "out of balance" in the amount of some $137,271 and he reported that several nights had been spent by the city officials in an attempt to trim the unbalanced figure.

According to the mayor, City Manager Ed Wyatt had to eliminate a number of needed positions requested by department heads because "he just did not have the money to fund these positions."

Among the 18 positions were police, fire and rescue personnel additions. Cox said that in trying to bring the budget closer to balance, several positions, including the volunteer service coordinator and a custodian in the Inspections Department not presently filled will be eliminated in an effort to save funds, he said.

By using the personnel salary savings and other means, the city has come up with some $53,000 that can be trimmed from the out of balance figure, he reported, leaving the budget proposal still $83,733 out of balance.

Council member Mildred McGrath reported that as of July 1, state funding will be available for all schools with part of the designated money going for a volunteer services coordinator. She said she hoped the present volunteer coordinator here would apply for the post, which would be under a school division.

Wyatt discussed the highlights of the proposed budget, which calls for overall Greenville general government appropriations of $8,823,567. He mentioned that the proposed general fund total of $7,408,410 is only 3.61 percent above the 1978-79 appropriation.

The city manager reported that the new budget was prepared with essential items in mind and few capital outlay items.

According to Wyatt, the greatest portion of the city budget is related to personnel with some $5,000,000 involved in continued personnel allocations. He explained that the full cost of continuing six firemen and three rescue officer positions, which were funded one-half of the present fiscal year with Anti-Recession funds, is included in the 1979-80 budget proposal at a figure of $89,239.

Wyatt emphasized that work on the new proposal has been on a "base budget basis." He expressed appreciation to Mrs. Gail Meeks, assistant to the city manager, for her work on the budget. Wyatt said that Mrs. Meeks serves for all practical purposes as the city's budget officer.

South Begins See Gasoline Lines Forming

By The Associated Press
Panic-buying and the nationwide protest by independent truckers brought new rounds of California-style gasoline lines to the South and East Coast today.

In Maryland, droves of motorists were topping off their gas tanks in anticipation of an emergency order by Gov. Harry Hughes to deal with the shortages. Morning rush-hour traffic in the Baltimore area was snarled by commuters caught in slow lanes, suddenly transformed into gas lines.

Gasoline also was reported in short supply in Washington, D.C., and its Maryland and Virginia suburbs.

Gas lines formed in Washington at 5 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday. Dealers report the vast majority of the area's 1,500 stations were open only two to four hours a day and not at all on Sundays.

"I can pump 1,861 gallons a day. As soon as that is used up, I close," said Charles Dickinson, owner of a Texaco station in northeast Washington. "I used to be open from 5 to 5, but for the last two months I've been closing early."

Dickinson said he opened Wednesday at 5 a.m. and closed 5 1/2 hours later. One metropolitan 24-hour station, with 12 self-service islands, ran dry for the first time in 10 years Wednesday.

In Tennessee, independent truckers protesting the high cost of diesel fuel picketed distributing terminals, putting a squeeze on fuel supplies in Nashville and Chattanooga. Gov. Lamar Alexander prepared to ask for court injunctions to halt the picketing.

Later, protesting truckers agreed to allow trucks through the pickets as long as they were not carrying diesel fuel.

The week-old truckers protest also reduced the flow of gasoline in Alabama, and on Wednesday officials in Birmingham began rationing supplies for city police and fire vehicles.

J. Phil Carlton Is Named Judge

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt today announced the appointment of J. Phil Carlton, a member of the state Court of Appeals since January, to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Carlton, 41, fills a vacancy created by the recent appointment of Joseph Branch to succeed the retiring Susie Sharp as chief justice. Branch will become chief justice in August.

"Judge Carlton brings to the Supreme Court legal experience, administrative ability and a deep knowledge of what is involved in fighting crime," Hunt said in announcing the appointment during a news conference.

Carlton was appointed by Hunt to be the first commissioner of the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Hunt announced last November the appointment of Carlton to the state Court of Appeals, effective in January.

There had been widespread speculation that Carlton was being groomed as the successor to Miss Sharp as chief justice.

A former District Court judge from Pinetops in Edgecombe County, Carlton served for two years as head of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, which oversees the Highway Patrol, civil preparedness and national guard.

Hunt and Carlton are close friends, having attended North Carolina State University together.

Plan Center For Study Of Southern Culture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nobody is talking about stuffing the South with formaldehyde, mounting it and charging people 50 cents for a look at a disappearing way of life.

But an agent of Washington is in Oxford, Miss., today announcing that $300,000 in government money is to be spent to help create the Center for the Study of Southern Culture at the University of Mississippi.

The agent is Joseph Duffey, the West Virginia-born former Congregationalist preacher who runs the National Endowment for the Humanities.

And the Center for the Study of Southern Culture will be a place where students can earn a degree by studying the languages, anthropology, history, literature, religion, folkways, folklore or folksongs of the South.

From William Faulkner to Elvis Presley. From okra to grits. From Scarlett O'Hara to Pogo. From Frederick Douglass to George Wallace. This will be the first place in America which will grant college degrees in regional studies. In charge is William Ferris Jr., 37, who has a Ph.D. from Penn and used to teach folklore at Jackson State College, a predominantly black school, and at Yale.

His roots are antebellum. His father raises soybeans outside Vicksburg, Miss. Not that Ferris thinks the South is about to lose its character.

"The melting pot theory has been pretty much shown not to have happened," he said in a telephone interview. "Things will certainly change in the South, but homogenization is no more a reality here than anywhere else."

At the University of Mississippi, the Center for Afro-American Studies is directed by Cleveland Donald, the second black to graduate from Ole Miss. Ferris' students will draw on Donald's resources, too.

One project of the Center for the Study of Southern Culture will be an oral history based on interviews of those who were around on Oct. 1, 1962, when James Meredith became the first black to enroll at the university.

Wooten Director Of Summer Band Classes

Johnny A. Wooten of the Greenville City Music Department has been appointed director of the summer band program at J. H. Rose High School, beginning Monday, June 18, 8 a.m.

The summer studies program will include students from grades 5-9. The elementary program will consist of continued programs encountered in the elementary band program recommended by the instructor.

A special program will also be offered to rising seventh graders who will attend the Middle School next year. A beginning program will also be offered to seventh graders who wish to play the saxophone. Band director Wooten notes that there are no saxophone players coming into the middle school system and special consideration will be given to seventh graders who wish to learn the instrument.

The eighth and ninth grade programs will consist of studies in the junior high program.

Classes will be held from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Rose High, with a tuition fee of $15 required of all students enrolling in the summer program.

Students unable to meet for these classes may also request private lessons, which will include one lesson per week and weekly assignments.

Band Director Wooten recommends that each student should enroll in the summer programs for increased skills and performance accuracy. Registration for the program will begin at 8 a.m. Monday at Rose High School.

Chocowinity Grad Wins Scholarship

Chocowinity. Deans hopes to enroll at either East Carolina University or North Carolina State University to work toward a degree in agricultural engineering.

The soil fertility scholarship was established this year as a pilot program in the Tideland federation of the State FFA, which includes Hyde, Beaufort and Pitt Counties. Open to all senior members of the organization, the scholarship programs aims to encourage practice in soil fertility.

Judging and selection for the award was done within the FFA, which also administers a number of other award programs for sponsoring firms.

Deans was selected on the basis of related projects on soil fertility, his activities in the FFA, school and community, and his general scholarship record.

Deans' award was made during the annual meeting of the state FFA. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Deans Jr. of

Couple Lose Fight Over Transfusion

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Jehovah's Witness couple Wednesday lost their legal battle to block blood transfusions to their prematurely born baby.

The baby, born three months prematurely, has a 60 percent chance for survival, said doctors at Duke University Medical Center where the baby was born. An original court order on the decision, issued Monday, gave legal custody of the infant to the Durham County Department of Social Services. The judge's order Wednesday continued that custody until the child is removed from the critical list.

"God doesn't allow the eating of blood," said the baby's mother after District Court Judge William Pearson refused to lift the order.

The infant is the son of a Zebulon couple whose names neither the court nor the hospital would release. But the parents did not attempt to avoid reporters outside the courtroom.

"I expected the decision and basically wanted to make a statement about our religious beliefs," said the father, who acknowledged that Jehovah's Witnesses do not believe in transfusions.

Dr. Steven Gross, who has treated the baby since his birth June 7, said Wednesday the infant could be on the critical list for three months.

Doctors began administering the transfusions to the baby over the objections of the parents. This is legal in North Carolina when at least two doctors agree that such a procedure is necessary to preserve life.

But the baby's mother still does not agree with the concept. "How can doctors be so interested in saving one life when they terminate so many lives up to eight months," she said without further elaboration.

Correction

A public hearing on the proposed 1979-1980 Pitt County budget will be held Friday morning at 10 a.m. in the Pitt County Court House.

An article published in the "Daily Reflector" yesterday regarding the proposed $23 million budget incorrectly reported the public hearing would be today.

Legally A Motorcycle

North Carolina Highway Patrol Troop A commander, Capt. Carl Gilchrist said today that a number of drivers are operating illegally by thinking they are operating a motorized bicycle when actually the vehicle is legally a motorcycle.

Gilchrist said if the vehicle is designed to travel over 20 miles per hour, then it is a motorcycle, and must be licensed and insured. The driver must have a valid operators license and must wear a helmet, the officer emphasizes, when the vehicle is operating on the streets or highways.

Motorized bicycles — two-wheeled vehicles designed to run less than 20 miles per hour — can be operated on streets and highways by persons 16 years old or older. However drivers do not have to be licensed and no helmet is required.

Gilchrist suggested that persons not sure in which category their vehicle should be placed, should contact any State Highway Patrol office or trooper.

Arrest Man On Burglary Count

Greenville Police this morning arrested Joseph Christopher Pittman, 18 of Rocky Mount, on first degree burglary charges following investigation of a 4:50 a.m. incident at 211 East Second St.

Capt. A. G. Whitaker said Pittman allegedly entered the dwelling through a window and took a pocketbook, containing $3 from the home.

Ms. Jane Ward told officers she awoke, saw a man in her dwelling, and called police.

Investigators took Ward into custody a short time later at the intersection of Fourth and Greene Streets.

Orton's Scroll Garden Was Shawl-Inspired

By FRANK O'BRIEN
WILMINGTON — It began with a lady's shawl, inspiring a leading landscape architect to turn a dilemma into a delight.

The "it" is the Scroll

Garden, a formal design of geometric flower beds among flowering shapes of clipped evergreens, at Orton Plantation Gardens, itself one of America's oldest plantation showplaces. Orton is on N. C.

Highway 133 between Wilmington and Southport and overlooks the Cape Fear River.

How to design a formal garden in an unbalanced situation including irregular terrain was the dilemma faced many years ago by Robert Swan Sturtevant of Groton, Mass., a landscape architect of national reputation.

During one of his planning sessions with Orton's owners, the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Laurence Sprunt, Sturtevant was intrigued by the paisley design in the shawl worn by Mrs. Sprunt. Inspiration came suddenly, and he chose the paisley design as the basic style for the Scroll Garden.

His decision delighted the Sprunts, recalls Kenneth M. Sprunt, a son who is manager and co-owner today and who remembers his parents telling the story of the Scroll Garden. In the years since, legions of visitors to Orton see the Scroll Garden as an expression of picturesque beauty, illustrating the charm of a formal garden amid splendid serenity.

The color is brilliant throughout the summer, with a variety of flowering annuals in geometric beds spaced among podocarpus and other hedges, some in varying sizes and heights to insure more than a two-dimensional pattern. For winter and spring, the flower beds are re-set with pansies for continued color.

An English horticultural journalist and photographer, A. G. L. Hellyer, once described the Scroll Garden as "a parterre in the French manner, moderately elaborate in design." Hellyer also wrote that one of the "special qualities" of the Scroll Garden is its two belvederes which jut into it at opposite ends. These are wooden structures with latticed sides about waist-high, and built upon a foundation of tall columns. The belvederes provide a commanding view of the Scroll Garden and also offer a panoramic sweep toward the Cape Fear River which takes in a little lagoon near the parterre, along with

Dear Abby

Son Wants Ballet; Mom Is Uptight

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our only child has been ice skating since he was 6. He's had lessons, has won medals, and we're very proud of him. He is now 12 and wants to take ballet lessons.

I have mixed feelings about this, Abby. I am proud to have my son excel in athletics, but I just don't feel the same way about ballet. I have the feeling that ballet is for sissies, or the gay boys, and I want our son to be all man.

Should I let him take ballet? Or do you think if he does have any effeminate tendencies it would tip the scales in favor of his going the gay route?

UPTIGHT MOM

DEAR MOM: Let him take ballet if that's what he wants, and don't worry about tipping the scales in favor of his going the gay route. If that's not his natural direction, he won't take it. Originally, ballet was danced exclusively by men, you know. And some male ballet dancers are among the world's finest athletes.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear friend who is getting married in a church. My husband says we should not go to the wedding or send a gift because this couple has been living in sin for a year and a half.

She is still my friend and I think we should go regardless. What is your opinion?

SAN ANTONIO ROSE

DEAR ROSE: Attend the wedding, give a gift, and let your husband stay home if he wants to. If this couple is to be judged for their "sins," let the Lord do it.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when people have trouble seeing they go to a doctor and get glasses, but if they are hard of hearing they refuse to get their hearing tested?

My mother asked us to repeat everything we said, but if we suggested that she might be slightly deaf, she angrily insisted that there was nothing wrong with her hearing! This is how we solved the problem: When mother was present, we spoke in normal tones, refusing to shout or repeat anything. Consequently she was left out of all the conversations. When she complained, we reminded her in tones that she could hear that we saw no reason to repeat or yell since we believed her when she said there was nothing wrong with her hearing.

After a while, mother decided that perhaps she could have her hearing tested. We took her to an audiologist and, sure enough, she had a 40 percent hearing loss in one ear and 60 in the other! Now she wears a hearing aid and no longer has a problem. And neither have we.

US IN DENVER

DEAR US: Thanks for a good suggestion on handling folks who turn a deaf ear to suggestions that they get their hearing checked.

DEAR ABBY: How could you define a good friend?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: "To know someone here or there with whom you can feel there is understanding in spite of distances or thoughts unexpressed...that can make of this earth a garden." (GOETHE)

This is an open letter to everyone who has produced or defended violence on television. You don't remember me, do you? I'm the viewer who used to sit in front of a TV set and when a gun was fired, I nearly jumped out of my chair. When I saw someone being beaten, instinctively I flinched and felt the pain. Or when I saw blood, I turned my head away and my stomach felt funny.

I know. I don't seem like the same person you remembered. I'm not.

You have desensitized me. During a single evening, I once saw 12 people shot to death, two people tortured (one a child), one dumped in a swimming pool, two cars explode with people in them, a rape, and a man who crawled three blocks with a knife in his stomach.

And you know something? I didn't feel shock or horror. I didn't feel excitement or repugnance. I didn't feel pity or sadness. I didn't even feel anger.

The truth is, I didn't feel. And I hate you for it. Through repeated assault of one violent act after another you have taken from me something which I valued... something that contributed to my compassion and caring... the instinct to feel.

You told me violence was necessary because it is "real." Throwing up is "real," but I don't want to see it in color.

You told me the six o'clock news was just as violent. But you forgot to mention the six o'clock news has conscience. Whenever violence is reported it is declared wrong and shocking and carries a price tag.

Please know that I will survive the violence that emanates from the tube because I know what I have lost and somehow I will find my way back to what I know I should be and feel.

But reflect if you will on the children of our times... those infants with a 21-inch screen as a night light, who could adjust an aerial at age four, and who consider TV their babysitter, mother, father, first date, good friend, teacher, and constant dinner companion.

They have never known shock. They have never felt pain for another human being. They have never cried for a victim. They have never felt anger for injustice.

Do you dare take that away from them?

Personified American Ideals

An American legend is dead. John Wayne, the Superman of the film world, died this week following a long bout with cancer. If he was tough in his roles on the screen, he was equally tough in the greatest fight of his life — that was to stay alive through a series of operations for cancer. And he made it to age 72. Wayne grew in stature through the years. He was a good actor in his young days, and he became a great one as the years rolled by. Even after health problems began to develop, he took on major film roles and became a giant of Hollywood. Interestingly the Wayne legend grew most during the era of the Vietnam war. His patriotic and usually conservative views at that time would have seemed to put him at odds with prevailing public opinion. And yet, at this very time, he was reaching his peak as an actor, winning an academy award in 1970 for his work in "True Grit." Through his acting ability, and his willingness to speak out on issues, John Wayne gave a lot to his countrymen.

Real Deluge For The Greenville Area

Pitt County was hit by a deluge of rain Monday — something the farmers didn't welcome, considering the heavy rainfalls of the Spring. The immediate effect was heavy flooding of some streets in Greenville, leaking buildings, and some cars caught in flood waters. Cooler weather for the rest of the week may alleviate damage to the crops . . . but all-in-all it was some rain.

Teacher Test Exceptions

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Several procedures are being set up by the State Board of Education to take care of special cases in which classroom teachers haven't been able to take the National Teachers Examinations; or can't pass the test. A special exception is being implemented in scores on the mathematics competency portion because a requirement for higher scores would virtually eliminate black teachers of math. All of this activity is related to action by the State Board of Education to re-install the National Teachers Examination as a requirement to teacher certification in North Carolina. That action is expected to become effective in July of this year. For a number of years the state has not had a requirement that prospective teachers pass the exam, as a court challenge was proceeding. Now that the court has held that the exam is a legitimate certification step, it is being phased back in. Five Years Over a period of five years, the passing score will be progressively increased on both the specialty section, and the composite score which covers a wide range of interests and knowledge. The scores are based on a validation study conducted by the Educational Testing Service in 1976 under contract by the State Board of Education during the court activities. A special note on the score recommendations is related to the field of mathematics: "Mathematics teaching area score reduced from 610 to 520 based on supply and demand." The separate scores recommended by Teacher Examinations Committee would result in the elimination of 85 percent of black females, 99 percent of black males, 48 percent of white females and 41 percent of white males.

"The composite score of 1049 will eliminate 42 percent black females, 50 percent black males, five percent white females, and four percent white males."

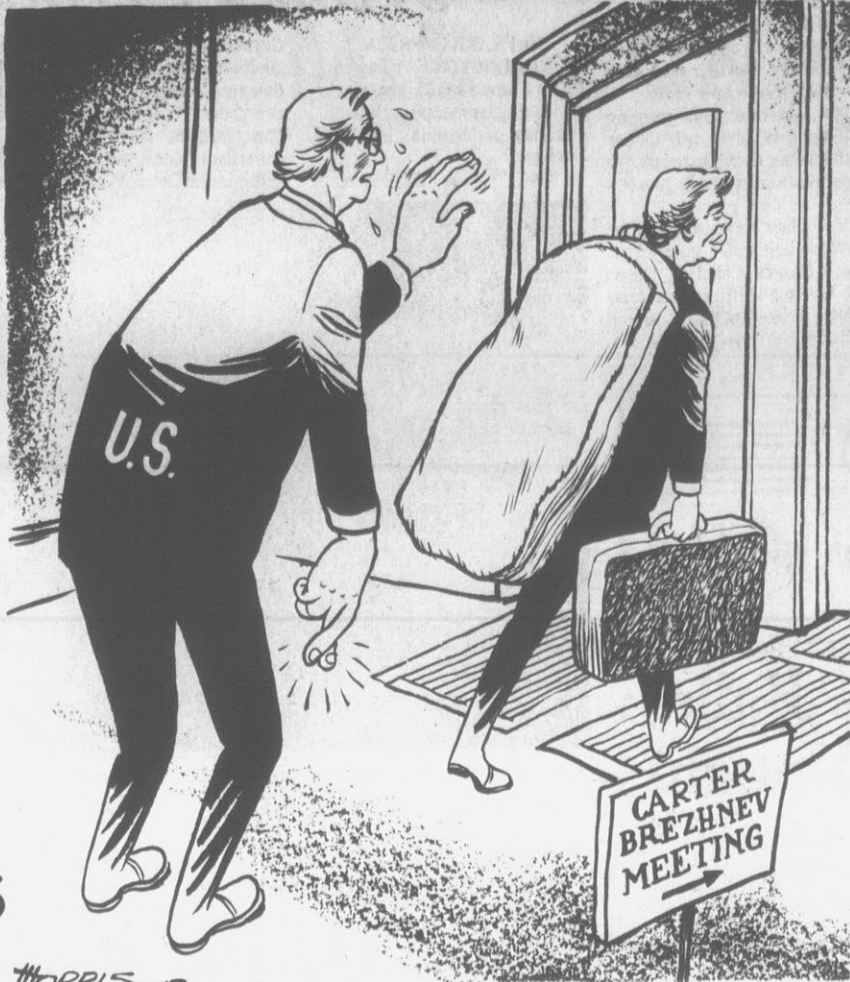

BILL NOBLITT

The next problem, having reduced the score to assure a supply of black math teachers, which the board faces is how to certify those teachers already in the classrooms who got there during the period when the National Teacher Exam was not required, or who cannot pass that test in the future. Procedures are being set up for converting probationary certificates to regular teaching certificates. The way that will work is for the teacher to receive a two-year probationary certificate if all other requirements for employment as a teacher can be satisfied. On The Job If the teacher demonstrates "that degree of knowledge of subject matter and the principles and methods of education necessary to teach in the public schools..." then the local superintendent can ask the State Board of Education to bypass the exam requirement and issue a regular certificate. Finally, the test will become effective this summer, at a time when local school boards are in the process of hiring new teachers. Some of those may come from other states, and some even in this state may not have yet taken the National Teacher Examination. In such cases, an interim certificate good for four months will be issued providing the applicant did not know that passing the test was required, and has not been able to schedule a time to take the test.

Vienna Roads Differ

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When Leonid Brezhnev ascends the summit in Vienna, Austria, he will also be starting toward the end of the road as a world leader. His career as boss of the Soviet Union is nearing a close. It is time to begin writing his political epitaph. In it, Brezhnev, a proud man, wants credit for slowing down the nuclear arms race. Jimmy Carter approaches the summit in a very different way. He, too, is determined to put constraints on the long-range bombers and intercontinental missiles that make life on this planet hazardous to the health of Americans, Russians and everyone else. But Carter has a lot more at stake than does the 72-year-old Brezhnev. Unlike the Soviet leader, who already is witnessing a power struggle over his succession, Carter is a political leader who hopes to have a future. That future, most specifically a second term in the White House, could hinge in part on the treaty he and Brezhnev will sign on Monday in a Viennese palace. Their place in history will be affected by the treaty and how thoroughly they set the stage for serious negotiations over another, and more comprehensive, weapons control agreement. For Brezhnev, hobbled by old age and several physical ailments, the signing represents the end of a mission. For Carter, there is a very difficult and uncertain fight ahead with the Senate over ratification. (Continued on page 5)

Our Leader's Decision

President Carter's difficulties with the nature and provenance of the Rhodesian Constitution cannot be taken seriously. De facto power in Rhodesia had been exercised by a white minority since the territory, which comprised native tribes without any sense of nationhood, was settled by white colonialists in the 19th century. The whole Rhodesian Idea, planted by Henry Kissinger at his historic encounter with Ian Smith in 1975 was to evolve toward a biracial society which would secure the rights of the minority. The white Rhodesian formula, which holds out certain guarantees to the minority, does so for a specified period of 10 years, after which the constitution can be changed by the will of the majority. Meanwhile the chief executive is black, and 78 percent of the legislative assembly; and the assembly includes members of more than one political party. In all of Africa there is only one state that approaches the standards of democratic integrity and minority rights written into the constitution. No, what Carter worries about is the reaction within Africa to a lifting of the sanctions. His decision is governed by his concern for "world opinion." When the Saudis, in retaliation against the aid given to Israel during the 1973 war, announced a freeze on exports, resulting in acute shortages over a painful period of several months, public opinion polls, taken before and after the boycott, revealed that there had been no change whatever in U.S. backing for Israel. The figure stood resolute, at 70 percent approval. It was a fine hour for the United States, during which we advised the Arab countries that our foreign policy was not for sale. There might be circumstances, Secretary of State Kissinger candidly announced, in which the United States would be forced to use military power to get oil. But none in which we would justify betraying an ally for commercial advantage. But the arguments now being used, for instance by Andrew Young, have to do with our fear of — Nigeria! Years ago, Professor John Roche was asked, was he not frightened by Senator McCarthy? He replied, on reflection that his fear of McCarthyism ranked 24th in his hierarchy of fears, just ahead of his fear of college presidents, and behind his fear of being eaten alive by piranhas. We are afraid of losing Nigerian oil patronage! And afraid of incurring the displeasure of the states that harbor the so-called Patriotic Front, Africa, and Botswana, plus those other African states which cavil at Bishop Muzorewa, having for years tolerated Idi Amin; continuing to this day to tolerate the Emperor Bokassa, and the presence of Cuban troops. If President Carter fears African displeasure for the offense of recognizing a biracial de facto government in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, then we have for a president a man who is entirely too frightened to serve the best interests of his country or of the world. Premier Daladier declared last night tonight in a worldwide Bastille Day broadcast that the French Army was invincible against any attack. The French premier and national defense minister, who earlier in the day watched 30,000 of France's finest troops parade under the Champs Elysees with British guardsmen in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the French revolution said, "Any menace, an effort at domination will find us resolved to defend French liberties and to join our efforts with those of all people determined to safeguard their liberties. — Stuart Morgan

THE INSIDE REPORT

Sabotaging Nuke Policy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The undermining of President Carter's cautious nuclear power policy by anti-nuke officials in his own administration has taken on a dimension of subtle sabotage, partially answering the question of the day: what is the matter with Jimmy Carter's presidency? At least on nuclear power, the answer may lie less with the president than with his chief aides. These aides, passionately opposed to nuclear power, reject Carter's conclusion that the nuclear option is essential to closing the nation's gaping energy deficit. Consequently, they have repeatedly undercut the president, occasionally in ways that he could have known nothing about. The leading instance of sabotage is tied into the president's long effort to terminate the Clinch River breeder reactor project. Carter has promised congressional backers of the project to support a $1.5 billion three-year research program for breeder reactors in return for finally junking Clinch River. That pledge was conveyed by letter April 24 to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, pinning down a personal commitment last year to Republican Sen. James McClure of Idaho. Therefore, Carter doubtless would have been surprised had he been in the White House Roosevelt Room May 8. Included at the meeting to draft nuclear policy were two officials belonging to the high priesthood which regards itself as prime protector of society against nuclear and environmental pressures from the hard outside world: Augustus Speth, member of the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ), and Jessica Tuchman Mathews, soon-to-depart member of the National Security Council staff. Speth and Mrs. Mathews startled others present by belittling Carter's commitment to major research on breeder reactors. That may be what Carter had said he was going to do, Speth said, but Gus Speth had not had a chance to review terms of Carter's proposal to spend $1.5 billion to learn how to build a better breeder reactor. Indeed, Speth continued, the research program was more in the nature of a "political deal" with McClure and other supporters of the Clinch River project, not hard and fast administration "policy." When we asked Speth about this, he said: "My memory is that at no point did I imply any such thing"; he claimed full support for Carter's breeder reactor proposals. On May 18, at a briefing session in the East Wing theater of the White House for legislative assistants of congressmen opposed to Clinch River, Speth went further. He linked the accident at the Three Mile Island commercial power reactor (not a breeder type) to a new argument against fast breeder reactors on grounds of "safety." To several others present, some from the Department of Energy, this sounded like arant nonsense. But as the most outspoken member of CEQ, Speth packs clout with impressionable young legislative assistants. His warning that fast breeder reactors might never be safe enough to get licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission undermined Carter's careful campaign to prevent irrational fears over Three Mile Island from blocking his prudent nuclear power program. Speth is not alone in using the White House itself as a base of political operations against policies of his boss, Jimmy Carter. Another offender is Frank Press, the president's science adviser. Dr. Press is another member of the high priesthood protecting society, his roots deep into the anti-nuke lobby. Press three months ago meddled in the controversy over appointment of tough-minded Donald Kerr, an assistant secretary of energy, to head the Los Alamos (N.M.) nuclear laboratory. Press telephoned president

Other Editors Say What Are Chances?

(The Laurinburg Exchange)
A report out of the University of North Carolina Health Education Center says North Carolina has seen an increase of 18 percent in the number of physicians practicing in the state over the past 15 years. It says 38 recent graduates of medical colleges who are now enrolled in family practice residencies over the state plan to enter family practice in North Carolina. This information was included in a general disclosure about how well the state is "overcoming shortages of physicians in rural areas." Dr. J. Benjamin Warren, president of the North Carolina Medical Society, says efforts in North Carolina over recent years to encourage more doctors to practice here and to encourage more doctors into general practice is paying dividends. "We have outdistanced the rest of the country in improving the supply of physicians. It's going to get better next year, and the next," Warren declared. The question is: which lucky communities will attract the 38 family doctors now near ready? And which communities will attract those additional family physicians Dr. Warren implies will be coming on in 1980 and 1981? Because Scotland County has enjoyed better-than-average success in attracting industrial and commercial concerns, and good luck in luring a number of needed professional people here, one would expect we have an excellent chance of bringing at least one of these 38 new doctors to Laurinburg. Those in position to work toward this end in behalf of the community certainly realize how short Scotland County is of general practitioners, as they know of this reported increase in supply. We join many others who wish them well in efforts to shore up Scotland's small contingent of family physicians.

predictable, but the impact on personal paychecks, savings, insurance and planning is fairly well known. A missing ingredient is the degree of impact. As inflation slows, the paycheck is likely to catch up with prices. If it practically disappears, which would be around 2 percent or so, then paychecks in all probability will begin to grow in real terms. That would be a huge change from recent experience. In the 12 months through March, for example, straight-time wages rose 7.8 percent, but consumer prices jumped 10.2 percent, resulting in loss of buying power. Reflecting an understanding of how inflation corrodes liquid assets, would-be savers have been investing in more inflation-resistant items, including land, houses, diamonds, art, and gold bars. Why not? Does it pay to leave money in the bank at 5 percent to 6 percent interest and pay out more than 13 percent to inflation? Or is it better to invest in a house that appreciated by at least the inflation rate? Those questions have led to hard decisions by millions. They chose the latter, and the U.S. savings rate dropped to less than 5 percent of takehome pay, around the lowest rate for any major industrial nation. The return on savings has now been raised, U.S. Savings Bonds pay 6.5 percent rather than 6. Passbook savings at thrift institutions have been raised to 5.5 percent, and at commercial banks to 5.25 percent. As the rate of inflation falls nearer to these numbers, the percentage of takehome pay that goes into savings is almost certain to rise. So long as double-digit inflation persists, long-term life insurance is a questionable, or at least controversial, buy. At 10 percent, for example, the face value of a policy is cut in half within 8 years. As stability returns, however, it becomes more possible to calculate the risk-reward ratio. True, so long as any inflation exists, face values decline. But sometimes premiums do to — as in the past two years. Not just in insurance but in all areas of finance, stability makes planning easier, and that could mean a significant change in American plans regarding jobs, pensions, big-ticket purchases, debt, savings.

Strength For Today

APRAYER
The following prayer is posted over the door of an assembly room in a small denominational college in Virginia. It is so eloquent and moving that it deserves to be quoted in full, and needs no comment. "Let me do my work each day, and if the darkened hours of despair overcome me, may I not forget the strength that comforted me in the desolation of other times, May I still remember the bright hours that found me walking over the silent hills of my early childhood, when I promised my early God to have courage amid the tempests of the changing years. May I not forget that poverty and riches are of the spirit. Let me not follow the clamor of the world, but walk calmly in my path. Give me a few friends who will love me for what I am, and keep ever burning before my vagrant steps the light of hope. And though age and infirmity overtake me, and I come not within sight of the castle of my dreams, teach me still to be thankful for life. Elisha Douglass

Over the weekend, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said the treaty was saved from certain defeat by Carter's decision to proceed full-speed with the MX mobile missile system. The MX, allowable under the rules of the new SALT II treaty, has nevertheless been criticized by some liberals as overly expensive and contrary to the spirit of arms control.

If the treaty is defeated, or weighted down with substantive amendments, Brezhnev will take heat from some Red generals and Kremlin hardliners. For nearly seven years, he had to overcome their resistance to striking compromises with the Americans.

If, after all that, the treaty is snagged in the Senate, Brezhnev's critics will fault his strategy and try to force a tougher line of bargaining in the future.

Carter flies to Vienna with much more on his mind.

His first week in office, Carter publicly declared his goal was the eventual elimination of all atomic weapons. And he started off by proposing to the Russians a drastic and mutual cutback in arms.

The Kremlin turned Carter down. He settled for more modest reductions, a little more than Presidents Nixon and Ford had pursued.

While the treaty was in the final stages of negotiations, Carter did not say much in public on the subject.

But now that there is a treaty, he again is beating the drums hard for arms control, making the treaty's fate and his own inseparable.

That much said, let us focus on the effect of Carter's decision on South Africa. It will be devastating. Nothing Carter could have done would more effectively have undermined the position of the racial progressives in South Africa. And not without reason. If at any time in the future the South Africans were to extend to the black population the freedom now enjoyed by the blacks in Rhodesia, something of a miracle would have been accomplished.

By adhering to the kind of democratic abstractionism that rejects, even as a constitutional waystation, the present arrangements in Rhodesia, while finding nothing to cavil at in the racism and tribalism practiced in the despot countries of Africa, Carter has sent out a signal to the whites in South Africa that nothing is to be gained by giving ground. If Rhodesian biracialism falls, under the pressure of the barbarian-ideologies we appear to favor, one cannot reasonably expect that any evolution in South Africa toward biracialism will be set back a generation.

For this reason, Mr. Carter should be overruled. There are ways to accomplish this, and Congress, whose opposition to the president is a matter of record, should assert itself. Mrs. Thatcher has not distinguished herself in the first act of this diplomatic melodrama. Her government had preemptive rights in respect of Rhodesia. It was, after all, at the bidding of Great Britain that the United Nations declared Rhodesia an illegitimate state. But Mrs. Thatcher clearly did not wish to accept the burden of recognizing the Muzorewa government in advance of the Commonwealth meeting in August. Whether Zimbabwe-Rhodesia can hold out until then is, ironically, in the hands of a) Congress; and b) South Africa.

David Saxon of the University of California (which shares control of Los Alamos) with this veiled warning: Kerr's appointment would not serve the interests of the Carter administration.

Yet, it was well known to Press that Kerr was the choice of Energy Secretary James Schlesinger. It was also well known to Press that Jimmy Carter has total confidence in Schlesinger's judgment.

Such guerrilla warfare against Carter is not new in this administration. As early as December 1977, Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief domestic policy aide, was forced to contradict in writing a speech by Speth that called for a nuclear power moratorium until the question of radioactive waste disposal had been settled.

Answering a complaint from the American Nuclear Energy Council, Eizenstat wrote that the U.S. "will have to rely upon nuclear power to provide an increasing share of electrical energy." He said flatly that Carter "does not support a moratorium on nuclear power."

Speth, who failed to get that message almost two years ago, is still embarked on a Speth policy not only in conflict with a Carter policy but conducted from White House chambers almost adjacent to Jimmy Carter's Oval Office. That helps explain some of the contradictions and ambiguities in Carter's struggle to prepare the nation for a new and dangerously difficult energy era.

Two Men Killed In Bizarre Accident

WILSON — Two men died Tuesday when one was hit by motorcycles and the other, one of the motorcycle drivers, collided with a truck.

According to state Highway Patrol Trooper J. H. Parks, motorcyclist Donnie Ray Ballance of Rt. 4, Wilson, and pedestrian James Earl Whitley, 29, of Stantonsburg, died following collisions on rural paved road 1503, about two miles east of Wilson.

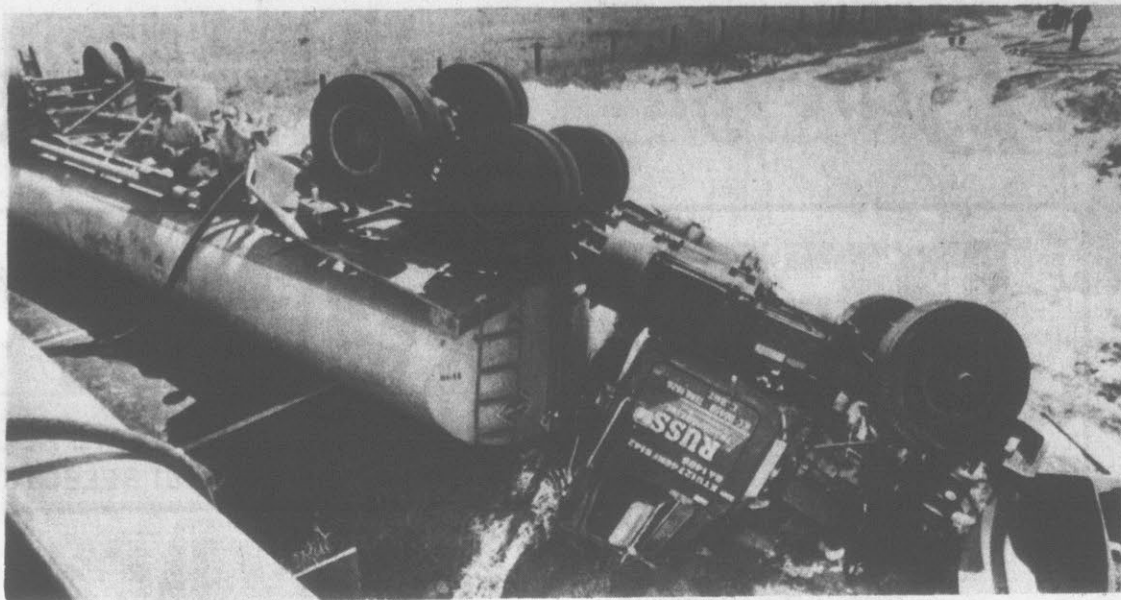

Parks said that Ballance and William C. Ballance, Rt. 4, Wilson, were operating motorcycles when the one driven by Donnie Ballance hit Whitley who was standing in the middle of the road.

The officer said after the motorcycle hit the man, it then collided head-on with a pick-up truck operated by Steven Harris of Wilson. After impact, Parks said the truck went down a ditchbank, carrying the motorcycle with the truck, and caught on fire.

Parks added that the other motorcycle, operated by William Ballance, ran over Whitley, who had fallen to the side of the road. The motorcycle then skidded to a stop.

Parks reported that the truck and the motorcycle operated by Donnie Ballance were destroyed, and $200 worth of damages were incurred to William Ballance's motorcycle. Parks also charged William Ballance with reckless driving.

ACCIDENT CAUSES CHEMICAL SPILL — Workmen pump the chemical lactol from an overturned tanker near Siler City Wednesday after 4,200 gallons of the highly flammable chemical was spilled, closing U.S. 421 for nearly four hours. The truck driver, Hubert W. Eason of Wilmington, N.C., was being treated for injuries at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. (AP Laserphoto)

Large Backlog Facing Court

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than 1,000 cases are scheduled for North Carolina's U.S. Eastern District Court with only one full-time judge to handle them.

"Our need is really an imperative one," said John R. Whitty, the Eastern District court clerk in Raleigh. "In all fairness, we're hurting worse than the other districts. ... One judge cannot carry this district. I don't give a darn how good he is."

The district handles federal cases in 44 counties in the eastern portion of the state.

Whitty thought there would be a new judge by May to help with the workload. But 3½ months after Rocky Mount lawyer Charles B. Winberry Jr. was nominated for a new judgeship, he is still unconfirmed by the U.S. Senate.

The district is operating with only one full-time judge because of the retirement Friday of Judge John D. Larkins Jr. The counsel to the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee, which will consider Winberry's nomination, said Wednesday no date had been set for a confirmation hearing.

The counsel said that the committee was considering nominees for 152 new judgeships and 30 to 40 replacement judges.

The state's other two districts have two judges each, and, like the Eastern District, they have been allocated a third judge.

In 1978, the Eastern District averaged 606 cases per judge, the seventh highest caseload per judge in the country. The Middle District averaged 433 and the Western District 424, according to a 1978 U.S. court report.

Driver Charged In Collision

Greenville Police yesterday charged Catherine Holoman Costanza of 3000 Golden Rd. with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of a 5:48 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Arlington Boulevard and Evans Street.

Investigators reported the Costanza car collided with a truck driven by Ralph Edwin Williams of Winterville, resulting in an estimated $500 damage to the car and no damage to the truck.

Grifton Bd. Okays Bids

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board of Commissioners met Tuesday to approve low bids from Bob Gaddy for $5,350 for two heat pumps for the Town Office and the Police Department, and another low bid of $375 from Morris Electric for wiring.

The board voted to name Ervin Gray to the Grifton Industrial Board to replace Ron Anderson. A report on the Board's progress followed the appointment.

The board accepted the specifications on the new well system for the town, except for the changing of pipes to cast iron or ductile material.

The board adjourned to meet again June 18, for work toward the $130,000 water bond issue for Grifton.

Smuggling Guilty Plea

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The president of North Carolina's largest cigarette wholesale company has pleaded guilty in federal court to conspiring to smuggle cigarettes from North Carolina to Pennsylvania.

Edward Lee Bryan was one of 10 persons indicted by a federal grand jury last week on charges of participating in a $7.5 million smuggling ring. He pleaded guilty Wednesday to a single count of conspiracy as part of an agreement with federal prosecutors.

A plea bargain calls for Bryan, president of Southern Wholesale Co. of Goldsboro, N.C., to testify in the trials of others indicted.

U.S. District Court Judge John Fullam deferred sentencing Bryan, who face a maximum penalty of up to five years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

The members of the alleged smuggling ring were charged with illegally having purchased more than four million cartons of unstamped cigarettes in North Carolina since 1972. The defendants then allegedly imprinted counterfeit tax stamps on the cigarettes and sold them in Pennsylvania without paying state taxes.

NCSU Facing Housing Pinch

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A record enrollment of 19,000 students for the fall semester has prompted officials of North Carolina State University to appeal to Raleigh residents for student housing.

The school has only 6,000 beds available for on-campus living, said Charles Oglesby, director of residence life at NCSU.

"Right now we have a waiting list of 1,500 people, which is far more than last year," Oglesby said. "The increased enrollment is certainly a factor, and the higher cost of living off campus has contributed to the increased demand for university housing."

Dorm space is assigned by lottery to upperclassmen, with about 2,100 rooms reserved for freshmen on a first-come, first served basis.

"Students, especially freshmen, have a certain panic when they come here and find there is no on-campus housing

The plantation's manor house, Orton Mansion, overlooks the Scroll Garden, which is set just beyond the front yard. Orton House is a two-story, columned residence in Greek Revival architecture and is situated in the center of the varoius gardens.

Although the Scroll Garden is a major focal point of floral display, it is only one of several gardens within the famed 250-year-old plantation. And each has its special design and function. They include the Sun Garden and the White Circle Garden, which features "Spring Star" by the Italian sculptor, F. Andreini. In addition, bordered walkways link the lawns and grounds with numerous islands of azaleas which are at their brilliant peak in spring.

The gardens and floral displays are designed so there is some color in bloom winter through summer, but when flowers are minimal, Orton's natural setting is impressive. There is a magnificence in Orton's massive live oaks and magnolias, its towering pines, its manicured lawns, and its slate-colored lagoons.

The mansion at Orton is a private residence, but the gardens and grounds are open daily from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. year-round, and visitors are always welcome.

U.S. Told Pay For Sioux Lands

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A century ago, Gen. George Custer paid with his life for the government's policy of uprooting the Sioux Indians from land in the Black Hills of South Dakota. A century later, a federal court says Uncle Sam should pay the Indians for the land.

The U.S. Court of Claims ruled 5-2 Wednesday that the Sioux are entitled to $17.5 million for their land and 5 percent interest dating back to the seizure 102 years ago.

The court said the total settlement could reach $132.5 million. Sioux attorney Arthur Lazarus Jr. estimated it would amount to $105 million, distributed among 60,000 Indians. The method of distribution has yet to be formulated.

The Justice Department, which hasn't decided whether to appeal, said the highest previous court award to American Indians totaled $54 million, in 1978. However, Congress awarded $962.5 million to native Americans of Alaska in 1971.

The majority opinion talks not only of the financial settlement, but of the nation's history as whites moved westward and took over Indian lands. The Sioux fought back fiercely, as Custer discovered at the battle of Little Big Horn, Mont., on June 25, 1876.

It was the government that gave the Black Hills to the Sioux in an 1868 treaty, but the land was taken away after an army expedition led by then-Lt.

Col. Custer found gold on the reservation.

The court said prospectors, miners and settlers pressured President Ulysses S. Grant into ordering the army to keep hands off the whites entering the Black Hills.

"The government apparently believed that the Sioux' needs for the rations the government had been supplying them would prevent the Indians from making trouble," the court said. As Custer found out, the government underestimated the Sioux.

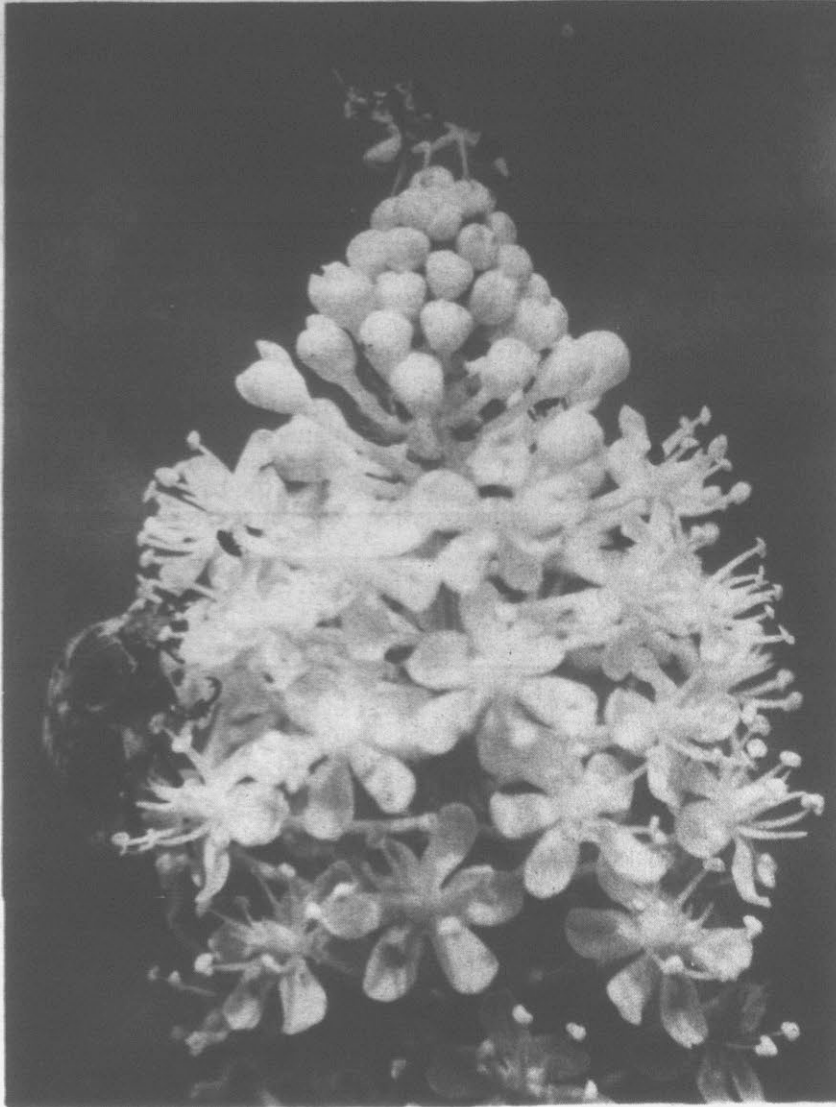

Shortly after Custer's defeat, Congress enacted a law that ordered a cutoff of the reservations' food supply unless the Black Hills portion was ceded to the United States.

The tribal chiefs gave in, but couldn't win approval from their followers. So, on Feb. 28, 1877, Congress passed a law stripping the Black Hills from the then-huge reservation.

Today, the ancestors of those Sioux Indians live on the much-smaller reservation called Pine Ridge.

That includes the village of Wounded Knee, site of a massacre of Indians in 1890 and a modern Indian uprising by militants in 1973. In 1975, two FBI agents were killed on the reservation as they tried to serve arrest warrants.

Elijah Whirlwind Horse, president of the Oglala Sioux Tribe at Pine Ridge, said his tribal council feels "that the sacred Black Hills are not for sale. We are saddened that the Black Hills has been put into an award situation," he added, and expressed concern that the money would go to the Washington lawyers who argued the case.

JAMES INSECTS PLAY — An amusing hide-and-seek game was carried out by these two insects balanced on their playground of a flypoison flower. The oddly-shaped insect poised on top of the flower waited motionless at her perch until the clumsy Japanese beetle (on the left in the photo) clambered up the flower cluster. When he finally clutched his way up beside her, she took one look at his bristly, hairy legs, indignantly twitched her tiny head, and flew away, leaving the beetle looking forlorn at being deserted after all his valiant efforts. (Reflector Photo By Jerry Raynor)

Survey Eyes U.S. Future

Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte, has announced that information on birth expectations of American women will be collected during next week from a sample of households in this area.

These households are part of the sample of 76,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households. The questions that will be asked are in addition to those usually asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Results of this monthly survey provide a continuing measure of economic conditions in the Nation. The April survey indicated that of the 102.1 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 96.2 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 5.8 percent; it has been in the 5.7 to 5.9 percent range for the past nine months.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals. The interviewer in this area will be Janet Conway of Greenville.

Assail Deal On Medicaid

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than 50 persons in the medical profession have written Gov. Jim Hunt to criticize a state contract that gives administration of the state's Medicaid program to a single firm.

Last week, the Department of Human Resources announced it had awarded a four-year, $1.8 million Medicaid fraud-and-abuse monitoring contract to Electronic Data Systems Federal Corporation.

The Texas-based firm already holds a four-year, $20.8 million contract to process Medicaid bills for 400,000 North Carolinians annually.

Both contracts become effective July 1. Government spokesman said little can be done to void either agreement.

Most of the telegrams and mailgrams received by the governor's office this week came from physicians who represented 35 of the state's 79 county medical societies.

They asked Hunt to scrap the EDS-F contract and renew the state's current fraud-monitoring agreement with the N.C. Peer Review Foundation. The Raleigh-based, non-profit foundation was created by the N.C. Medical Society in 1973 to monitor the state's expanding Medicaid program.

The doctors and dentists argued that a single firm should not be responsible both for processing claims and monitoring the validity of those claims.

Strike Briefly Closed Down $3 Billion Project

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A strike by technicians closed down the $3 billion State Water Project for half a day, but supervisors had it back in operation virtually before the water was missed.

The 450-mile network of aqueducts, pumps and electrical generating plants serves half of the state's 22 million residents and irrigates as much as 700,000 acres of prime farm land.

But local reservoir supplies and alternate sources of water turned out to be adequate when 310 state technicians walked out at 11 a.m. Wednesday in a dispute over money. Some areas, like Los Angeles, are served by many projects.

The state attorney general's office, acting at the request of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., said it would seek an injunction today against the strike by the State Employees Trade Council.

Power from other utilities — and cool weather that kept demand down in high-use areas — made up for the loss of four hydroelectric plants. The facilities are used mostly to run water pumps and to provide back-up power in times of peak consumption.

There were no reports of cities without drinking water, but part of Bakersfield in the San Joaquin Valley switched its source to the Kern River, and parts of San Gabriel and San Bernardino, north and east of Los Angeles, switched to wells.

Project officials reported late Wednesday that they had most of the system back on line. They said strikers "tinkered with" some computers and devices, but there was no sabotage.

The assistant director of the Department of Water Resources, Charles Shoemaker, said the system should be in condition to make all deliveries today as required.

The project collects water from Northern California and distributes part of it to San Joaquin Valley farmland and the rest over the Tehachapi Mountains to Los Angeles and suburbs.

The workers, who have not had a pay increase since July 1977, have rejected Brown's offer of a 10.5 percent raise for the fiscal year beginning next month and are demanding 20 percent.

Woman's Body Found In River

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An autopsy will be conducted today for a woman found floating in the New River Wednesday afternoon.

The body was discovered by a Jacksonville taxi driver near Old Bridge Street in Jacksonville about 5 p.m.

Onslow County Sheriff Billy Woodward said the woman apparently was a transient. He said she had been seen recently in the downtown area.

Deputies described the woman as in her mid to late 30s, about five feet, eight inches tall, 170 to 180 pounds with brown shoulder-length hair. She was wearing a blue dress.

Authorities said there was no visible signs of foul play in the woman's death.

THE LONG WAIT — Five-year-old Ben Andrews, the son of Tina and Bob Andrews, of Tallahassee, tries to be patient during the pre-race instructions, which take about 20 minutes. Ben has heard these words before, in two previous races. (AP Laserphoto)

ON THE STARTING LINE — Ben's mother, Tina Andrews, supports his bike on the starting line, since both of his feet must be on the pedals when the race starts. The legs of his pants must be taped to prevent them getting caught in the chain. Helmet and elbow coverings are also required. (AP Laserphoto)

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The latest sports craze among youngsters in Tallahassee is bicycle motocross — or motorcross without the motors.

The youngsters, divided into age groups ranging from 5 and under to 14 and over, race their bicycles on a quarter-mile dirt track at one of Tallahassee's city parks.

The races began in March and have continued on a monthly basis since then.

They were organized by a group of parents who volunteered to set up and maintain the course under sponsorship of the city parks department. The parents have organized into a group known as Tallahassee BMX.

About 100 youngsters have participated each month in the Sunday afternoon races. They are required to wear elbow pads and helmets for safety.

Riders are scored on the basis of their performance in three consecutive races.

THE HARDEST PART — The racing is not so difficult. Ben Andrews, 5, came in second in a field of four in the 5 and under division. But after struggling for quite awhile to remove his helmet, Ben sought help from his parents. (AP Laserphoto)

Curt Stralow got caught in the same turn. Officials (far right) are stationed throughout the course to make sure rules are obeyed. (AP Laserphoto)

Claim Bombs And Stabbing

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A group of self-described Jewish vigilantes who said they mailed bombs to suspected Nazi sympathizers last week have claimed responsibility for stabbing a 70-year-old man they thought was a Nazi war criminal.

"This is only the beginning," a man who identified himself as a member of Jewish Executioners With Silence (JEWS) warned in a telephone call to a radio station after Wednesday's stabbing.

The caller said the attack on Vladislav Civzels, 70, of the Bronx, was intended for Boleslav Maikovskis, who was convicted of war crimes in Latvia, a Soviet satellite country on the Baltic Sea.

It was the second attempt to kill Maikovskis, who came here in 1951 and later was convicted in absentia by a Latvian court and condemned to death for the slaughter of Jewish children.

"I'd like to take responsibility for the stabbing," a caller, who also said he was from JEWS, told the New York Daily News.

"We are also responsible for the letter bombs last week," he said.

A caller told The Associated Press last week that bombs had been sent to former Nazis and Nazi sympathizers in several U.S. cities. The bombs were later found and dismantled without injury.

That man had identified himself as a member of the International Committee Against Nazism. A New York-based group by the same name disavowed any part in the scheme.

The new name discrepancy was not explained by the man, who also called the AP.

Among those who received bombs last week was Tscherrim Soobzokov, a former Nazi SS officer living in Paterson, N.J. He was cleared by a federal grand jury last month of war crimes.

Bombs also went to the National Socialist White People's Party in Cicero, Ill., and Gary Rex "Gerhard" Lauck, head of the overseas branch of the German Nazi Party in Lincoln, Neb.

Bombs sent to Matt Kohel, head of the National Socialist White People's Party in Arlington, Va., and Frank Collins, head of the National Socialist Party in America, in Chicago, were found in post offices.

Southern Baptists Set Goal For End-Of-Century

Billy Recalls Wayne Jest

HOUSTON (AP) — The late western movie hero John Wayne, who could hold his liquor, once made evangelist Billy Graham look a little sloppy about it, Graham related Wednesday.

Saying that in Wayne's death a "great part of America died," Graham related that he once was standing on some steps beneath Wayne, who laughed so hard about something he spilled champagne on Graham, then remarked:

"Preacher, everybody's going to think you have been drinking."

Graham told the story at a news conference held in conjunction with the Southern Baptist convention. He also called Pope John Paul II triumphant Polish tour "highly significant, not only religiously and morally but politically."

"He is probably the most able pope of this century," Graham said.

He voiced support for the SALT II agreement between the United States and Russia, but said it does not go far enough by moving toward total nuclear disarmament. "It ought to go all the way," he said. Noting that the world spends $400 billion annually for arms, he added:

"Think what that much money could do to feed a hungry world."

On Honors List For Semester

MURFREESBORO — Timothy Blair Barnes of Greenville is among the 105 students named to the Honors List for the Spring Semester at Chowan College.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The banners waved. The music soared. The multinational garb glistened in the floodlights at Houston's Astrodome and thousands of Southern Baptists resounded their determination to present Christ to all humanity by the century's end.

"Bold Mission Thrust" is the name of the endeavor and a giant rally was staged Wednesday night to boost ardor for the cause. Evangelist Billy Graham termed it a "magnificent obsession" to unleash truth in a benighted world.

"Let us get on with this obsession with a new dedication and fervor that we had never known before," he told about 48,000 overflowing the big sports arena. About 3,000 of them stood in corridors or outside.

Record Score

By The Associated Press
Davidson College scored a record-setting score, handing defeat to Harvard University in the national College Bowl championships.

The victory brings $5,000 in scholarships and an expense-paid trip for the four-student team to meet the British champions June 28 in Manchester, England.

About 200 colleges and universities competed during 1978-79 for the College Bowl championship.

Sophomore Tim Newcombe of Asheville started the march to victory last week when he answered the Harvard question, "Who was shot dead in Deadwood?" The answer was Wild Bill Hickok.

The Davidson team includes captain Tom Ruby, a senior from Alliance, Ohio; Ed Trumbull, sophomore, Hamilton, N.Y.; James Gilbert, senior, Lynchburg, Va.; Newcombe and alternate Sharon Gravett, sophomore, Greensboro.

"God is not calling us tonight to a playground or a sports arena—he is calling us to a battleground," Graham said.

The spectacular rally, beamed by satellite to television outlets and to simultaneous rallies in a dozen other cities, featured a procession of 144 flags of states and foreign nations where Southern Baptists carry on mission work.

"All hail the power of Jesus' name," sang an 8,000-voice choir.

At one point, 1,100 newly appointed missionaries, some dressed in the regalia of the areas where they will serve, were commissioned by the denomination's outgoing president, the Rev. Jimmy Allen of San Antonio.

"No matter what it costs, this worldwide mission thrust must be our priority," said the Rev. Baker James Cauthen of Richmond, Va., retiring head of the denomination's mission board.

The affair came on the second night of the annual convention of the 13.2 million-member denomination, the nation's largest Protestant body. It already has about 3,000 foreign missionaries serving in 94 countries, a corps increased by additions to it Wednesday night.

Some of the new ones, however, were for domestic posts.

With the 3-day convention ending late today, a conservative coalition that boosted the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis into the denominational presidency abandoned efforts for further actions to crack down on so-called "liberal" teachings about the Bible.

Rogers said he favored an inquiry "if fair and balanced" into seminary teaching, but such a possibility was shelved for the present to give seminaries and denominational agencies a chance to take any necessary corrective steps voluntarily.

"I don't want any witchhunt" Rogers said. "We already have processes for removing anyone that ought to be removed."

The conservative coalition also dropped plans to back a hand-picked slate for trustee posts of denominational institutions and agencies. Nominations made by a committee of Allen's outgoing administration were approved without contest.

Also, a coalition-backed resolution demanding that the seminary professors subscribe to biblical "inerrancy" and other specified beliefs, such as a "personal devil and literal hell," was withdrawn in a mood of conciliation.

Biblical "inerrancy," a position held by the conservative group, means that each specific word of the Bible was divinely inspired, not just its ideas.

The convention also turned down a proposal to bar ordained women from missionary service.

The convention approved an $83 million budget for worldwide missions in 1979-80 and adopted several resolutions, including:

—Endorsed the SALT II agreement between the U.S. and Russia to limit nuclear missiles but called it only a first step toward "future greater strides in multilateral nuclear arms reduction."

—Voice support for public schools despite sharp criticisms of them.

—Turned down a proposal that would have favored a constitutional amendment to upset the 1973 Supreme Court decision allowing abortion.

—Declared further nuclear power plants should be built

"only when the safety of their operation and waste disposal can be assured."

—Condemned child abuse as "one of the serious moral issues of our times."

—Urged Congress to appropriate funds for overseas development to combat hunger in impoverished regions.

Annual State Truck Rodeo This Weekend

WILSON — Rodeo fleet champions will compete in the 40th Annual State Truck Rodeo on Friday and Saturday, June 15 and 16 at Parkwood Mall in Wilson.

J. T. Outlaw, executive vice president of the N. C. Motor Carriers Association, Inc. says the state trucking industry will present the "Pro-Tournament of Skill-Driving" in the interest of safety on Tarheel highways.

The Rodeo is designed to determine, through a series of stiff competitive events, the contestant's knowledge of safety, courtesy, efficiency and first aid and his skill in handling the type of vehicle used in his particular class of competition.

The top driver in each of six classes will receive a bronze trophy and an opportunity to take part in the ATA National Truck Rodeo in Phoenix, Arizona August 22-25.

Sunset Commission Wants Public Views Voiced

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's sunset commission was formed in 1977 as the standard-bearer of the movement away from big government, in an attempt to eliminate unnecessary duplication of regulation in the North Carolina administration.

But sometimes executive director Paul Jordan feels the commission isn't just the leader in the battle, but the lone hold-out.

"We trying to develop an awareness and trying to bring people out," he said in an interview. "What we need are people to come out and say what they want these commissions to do. But that type of effort takes a consumer movement."

The Governmental Evaluation Commission, better known as the sunset commission, is largely associated in the public mind with eliminating unnecessary duplication by abolishing certain state regulatory agencies.

It has a 2-1 record so far. It succeeded in getting the General Assembly to abolish the boards of Watchmaking and Repair and Water Well Contractors. It didn't do so well with the Board of Public Libraries.

The commission has evaluated 17 of the 100 boards on its list, and when it came to some of the others, it's taken a different approach. Instead of abolishing the state's four boards covering contractors, it's trying to give the boards the tools to do an effective job of regulating the fields.

The commission recommended and the General Assembly approved a change in the law covering the boards so public members sit on each board. And it gave the boards the right to go to court to stop a contractor they find failing to meet state standards.

"I believe very strongly in having one or two public members on these boards," said Jordan. "At least that provides an avenue for somebody to blow the whistle if the boards aren't doing the job they should."

Jordan said the commission works on the premise that "the state has no business regulating free enterprise unless there's a serious harm" that could result from lack of regulation.

So each of the commissions is evaluated to see if it protects a necessary public interest, and whether regulation to protect that interest outweighs its cost to the free enterprise system.

"Anytime you limit access to a profession, the consumer is going to pay for it," Jordan said. He said the regulatory boards, in one way or another, limit such access.

The commission also looks into any duplication of the functions of various agencies. Jordan said the Public Librarians' Certification Board fitted that category. But he said the board also allowed rural areas of the state to have a voice in the library system, so while the commission recommended its abolition, it didn't fight for it.

The commission started with a list of 100 boards, which means it has 83 more to go. But even as the commission reviews existing boards, the General Assembly is creating new ones that will eventually come under its scrutiny.

"In Virginia, the legislature placed a moratorium on the number of licensing boards it created," Jordan said. "Eventually, this General Assembly is going to have to take a serious look at that idea."

The commission is also getting set to take a look at "many laws that no one has looked at for 50 years," Jordan said. And it's gearing up to look at boards that may be more controversial, such as the state's health boards, the state bar, the regulation of the state's public accountants.

Jordan said certain boards exist that operate and spend money "virtually out of the state's control" and that boards exist where "up to two years ago, there has never been a state audit" of their budgets.

Jordan is optimistic that he and the commission won't be fighting a lone battle forever. "There are changing views on regulation," he said. "There's a strong national sentiment to deregulate in areas where it would make prices more competitive."

His First Love Is Typewriters

By CHARLES C. HILL
Associated Press Writer
VERNON, Conn. (AP) — Judd Caplovich says his friends consider him "strange and eccentric" — no wonder. Amid the collected clutter of cherry pitters, pianos, pump and pipe organs at his home can be found his first love — 525 old typewriters.

Caplovich collects typewriters, antique or otherwise, like some people collect matches, comic books or string; scrounging through flea markets, traveling across country — even taking out a second mortgage on his house to finance his hobby.

Typewriters line metal shelves in his bedroom and dining room. Hundreds remain in cardboard boxes that fill two other rooms. Still more are scattered about his living room and hallways.

"That's a Thomas Edison," he said, pointing to an ancient machine. "I was offered more than $1,000 for that one."

The 31-year-old bachelor believes he has more old typewriters than any other private collector in the world. But he admits his weakness for all things mechanical has caused him to branch out a bit.

"I collect the unusual and mechanical," Caplovich says. "Any cast-iron mechanical household implement from the 1800s, I collect."

Among his possessions: five pianos, cherry pitters, peach peelers, a never-used pendulum butter churn made in 1885, 2,000 stereoscope cards, 11,000 phonograph comedy and opera records, pencil sharpeners, staplers, cash registers, a pipe organ and a pump organ.

Typewriters are his specialty.

He bought his first at age 12, an 1892 Blickensderfer Number 5 for $3.50. He still has it.

About 90 percent of his typewriters were made before 1910. He now has 270 different kinds, including the first models that Royal and Underwood produced.

"I'm picking up the rarer ones now," he said. "I turn down a lot because I've got duplicates."

Caplovich passed the collection-point of no return in 1977 when he took out a second mortgage on his house to buy 365 typewriters from L.D. Brodsky of Farmington, Mo., for $18,500. That year he also took a cross-country trip, stopping at flea markets and antique stores along the way.

The computer analyst says his hobby has earned him a double-take or two from friends, especially when he tells them:

"I don't use a typewriter in my work. When I was in school I was rated at 12 words a minute without mistakes. I can't type. I really can't type."

Hunt Claims Goals Met

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday that his administration had finally accomplished all he promised during his campaign for the office.

The governor said he proposed, and the legislature approved, a program that "holds down the cost of government and even gives the taxpayers some of their money back, but one that also means growth and progress for our future."

"But I am proudest of the fact that ... we have now done all those things that we said we would do during my campaign for governor in 1976: utility reform, stronger reading instruction and strong testing programs in the schools, stronger economic development, speedy trials and more certain sentences for crime," Hunt said.

However, he complained that the 1979 General Assembly approved an inflationary pay raise for teachers and state employees and catered to special-interest groups.

The governor said the $78 million reduction in state income taxes, attacked by some as being insignificant because it will mean a reduction of only $10 to $50 a year for taxpayers, was a step in the right direction.

"I think it is significant that, in time of inflation and growing government, North Carolina was able to cut $78 million out of the costs of state government and give it back to the people," he said.

Summer Jobs Are Tax Exempt

GREENSBORO — As the summer employment season approaches, the Internal Revenue Service advises full-time students seeking summer jobs that they may not need to have Federal income taxes withheld from their wages.

Those students who had no income tax liability in 1978 and do not expect to earn more than $3,300 in 1979 qualify for exemption from withholding of Federal income tax from their wages, the IRS said.

Students may claim exemption from withholding by obtaining a copy of Form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate," from their nearest IRS office and filing it with their employers, IRS advises.

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed a broad loss today with the market's pre-eminent glamor issue — International Business Machines — leading the retreat.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.16 at 838.01.

Losers held a 5-2 lead over gainers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

IBM shares, which fell 2 3/4 Wednesday, dropped another 2 1/2 to 74 1/2 today. Turnover of more than 200,000 shares by late morning, after a delayed opening, put the stock at the top of the active list.

The company said Wednesday afternoon that it had seen indications of a possible shift among its customers to increased leasing, rather than buying, of IBM office equipment.

That shift would be likely to reduce the size of quarterly earnings gains in the near term, an IBM executive said, although it would not change what he described as strong long-term growth prospects.

Given their position as the No. 1 holding of investing institutions, IBM shares are often described as a "bellwether" stock that can influence the over-all trend of the market.

Brokers said investors were also holding back awaiting the Federal Reserve's weekly report on the money supply late today.

There were some projections that the data would show a large increase, dimming chances for any early easing of credit by the central bank.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .35 to 57.60, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was off 1.36 at 194.59.

Volume on the Big Board came to 15.10 million shares at noontime, down from 17.24 million at the same point Thursday.

Budget Hearing...

was recommended as a means of looking into the development of the dual policies.

In addition, Mrs. Dunn said the League suggested or recommended: consideration of the addition of another staff person to assist in the responsibilities of the police attorney, staff attorney, and personnel officer; a review of the amount of funds allocated for the payment of membership in professional organizations for individual employees; provision of an ice-maker for the Public Works Division; and provision of a water fountain at a playground which currently does not have one.

Mrs. Dunn said in her remarks that, "The proposed 1979-80 budget certainly reflects the conscientious effort of the staff of the city."

Mrs. Ann Frost of the Shepard Memorial Library board of trustees said that the board recommended the "barest of budget figures" but she added that the library is aware of and respects the tight budget situation the city is in.

Jim Turcotte, manager of the Pitt-Greenville Airport, cited the major investment at the airport and requested the Council give serious consideration to the operating budget of the airport. He said that apart from city and county funds, the only other source of revenue for the facility comes from fuel sales and he mentioned that the airport has also been caught up in the fuel crunch.

Saying that "someone has to look after the airport," Turcotte contended that the level of service offered by the facility "can't be matched this side of Raleigh."

Charles Horne, director of Greenville Utilities, briefly explained the key elements of the GUC budget, which totals some $33,247,700. He reported that the proposed budget figures for the four funds within the utilities operation include: electric, $27,430,000; water, $1,597,500; sewer, $1,223,600; and gas, $2,996,600.

Horne reported that the electric fund reflects no increase other than what is dictated by the supplier. He said that a 7.4 percent increase from Vepco is forthcoming, according to notification from the supplying agency.

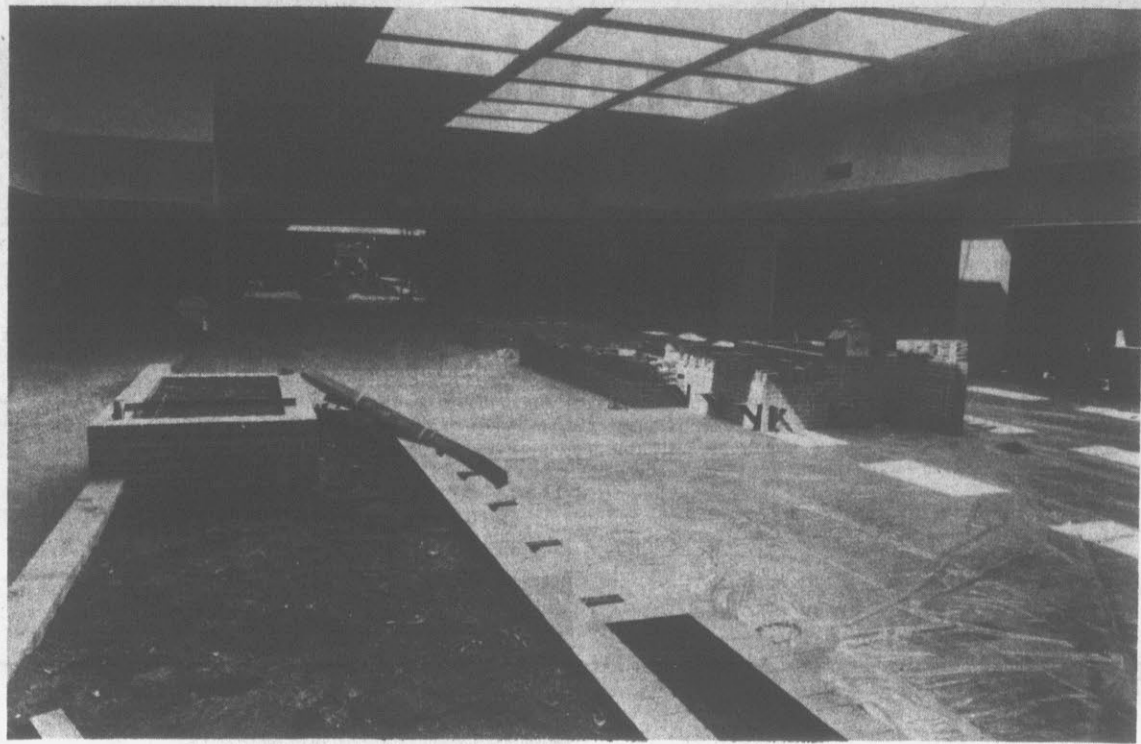

Mrs. Dunn said that the League offered several observations and suggestions for considerations: the establishment of the same longevity and salary-fringe benefits policy through a joint committee; a re-evaluation of the present formula used in figuring the Utilities Commission turnover to the city from the electric utility; and

Continued study and review of the water, sewer and gas utilities "to determine when and if monies from these could be turned over to the city."

Horne said that both water and sewer are classified as non-profit-making propositions since the return is only two to three percent. He added that the possibility of a turnover from the gas utility is being looked at "very closely."

Margaret Wirth, past president of the League here, offered several observations regarding the Utilities budget and questioned Horne on several matters regarding personnel, vehicles and programs.

Mrs. Wirth said that the 1979-80 budget package is the "nicest budget I've ever seen them (GUC) present."

MALL CONSTRUCTION — Work continues on the new Carolina East Mall as workmen construct the interior shops and lay the brick walkways. The mall plans to have two major department stores, Belk-Tyler and Sears. Also in the mall will be 40 stores ready for the grand opening. Total stores will number 64 when the mall is completed. The interior and exterior design will have planters filled with trees and flowering plants. The planters within the mall are accented by the architectural design of skylights and three-dimensional store fronts, uncommon to most mall. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

No Shortage In Inventory

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina officials, forced to take inventory on the school's stored radioactive materials, said it has all been accounted for.

The State Bureau of Investigation asked for an accounting after it received a report that some radium had been stolen from the school.

Dayne Brown, the state's chief radiation officer, said Tuesday no evidence has been found to indicate anything has been stolen. But he could offer no guarantee every cask of radium has been located.

"The major ones are and it appears all of them eventually will be, but I'd hate for someone to turn up with something that says UNC-Chapel Hill on it," he said.

Don Wilhoit, university health and safety officer, said he does not believe it will happen. But Wilhoit and the university does not have complete documentation on the receipt, transfer and disposal of radioactive materials.

Brown said UNC could have its license modified, suspended or revoked should it fail to improve its accounting and control procedures.

Advise Coastal Caution

MIAMI (AP) — Small-boat owners from South Carolina to Key West were advised to stay in port today as the Atlantic hurricane season's first tropical depression approached the western Bahamas off Southeast Florida.

The National Hurricane Center issued the advice at 6 a.m. EDT, when the depression's center was about 160 miles south-southeast of Miami.

Highest winds were estimated at 35 mph north and northeast of the center, said forecaster John Hope.

Forecasters predicted heavy rain over the central Bahamas today as the depression moved north-northeastward over the islands at about 10 mph. They said the heaviest rainfall was east of the depression's center.

The depression had not strengthened since its center moved off the northern coast of Cuba late Wednesday and reached open seas, said Hope. He said it was not expected to strengthen significantly today.

Flooding from the disturbance caused at least 32 deaths in Jamaica, and police there said more were missing and feared dead. Damage was estimated at more than $15 million and the rains left hundreds homeless.

There were no immediate reports of damage or deaths in Cuba. If the sustained winds of the depression reach 39 mph, it would become Tropical Storm Ana. Only if sustained winds reach 74 mph would the storm become a hurricane.

Ms. Avery has served as vice-president, president-elect, and program chairman of the state organization. She has also served as treasurer of Region X of the state organization.

Rainy days aren't the only days worth saving for.

These days it makes just as much sense, maybe more, to save for a sunny day. That exotic vacation in sun country. A new car or boat that makes you feel like a million.

Here's a practical approach to saving that can guarantee the money's there when you need it. Instead of keeping all your savings tied up in accounts with rigid maturity dates, keep part of it in a regular savings account at Planters. We can even help you set up an automatic savings plan that transfers a set amount from your checking account to your savings account every month.

That way your money's earning a big 5% daily interest, from day of deposit to day of withdrawal which yields 5.13%. But more important, you'll know it's there when you need it. Anytime, rain or shine.

A PRACTICAL APPROACH TO MONEY.

Jim Norris Bad News For Mike Norris

By HERSCHEL NISSENON
AP Sports Writer

Not only aren't Mike Norris and Jim Norris related, it probably would be best not to invite them to the same party for a while.

They were in the same ballpark Wednesday night, which proved to be bad news for Mike Norris. The 24-year-old Oakland right-hander was six outs away from a no-hitter and had a 4-0 lead when Cleveland pinch-hitter Jim Norris broke up his gem with a leadoff triple in the eighth.

Before the inning was over, the Indians had exploded for six runs, highlighted by Andre Thornton's three-run homer, and beat the A's 6-4.

"That's my job," said Jim Norris. "I have to lead off an inning and get on base. The fact that it breaks up a no-hitter and we go on and win makes it even better."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Chicago White Sox 8-7 in 10 innings, the Boston Red Sox whipped the Kansas City Royals 11-3, the Minnesota Twins edged the New York Yankees 8-7, the California Angels crushed Toronto 10-2 in the second game of a double-header after the Blue Jays took the opener 9-8, the Milwaukee Brewers shaded the Texas Rangers 5-4 and the Detroit Tigers trimmed the Seattle Mariners 7-3.

Mike Norris was gone by the time the game ended but Oakland Manager Jim Marshall said he "didn't expect such a great performance" because Norris hadn't started since May 18. "He went further than I thought he would, but his adrenaline was flowing on no hits for at least two innings."

Orioles 8, White Sox 7

Billy Smith's 10th-inning double scored Doug DeCinces, who walked with two out. Home runs by Ralph Garr and Chet Lemon gave the White Sox a 5-0 lead and Lemon's two-run double snapped a 5-5 tie in the sixth.

Baltimore tied it 5-5 with the help of home runs by John Lowenstein and Eddie Murray. The Orioles made it 7-7 with an unearned run in the eighth and Rick Dempsey's solo homer in the ninth.

Red Sox 11, Royals 3

Larry Wolfe hit two solo home runs, Dwight Evans added another and rookie Gary Allenson walloped his first major league grand slam to power Boston's 18-hit attack. Wolfe, who had only three previous career homers, hit his first leading off the third inning and added another following Evans' solo shot in the fourth. Allen-son's grand slam highlighted a five-run ninth. The Red Sox took the lead for good on Jim Rice's two-run single in the third inning.

Twins 8, Yankees 7

Rookie Dave Edwards slammed a tie-breaking two-run homer in the seventh inning as Minnesota rallied from a 6-2 deficit on home runs by New York's Willie Randolph, Chris Chambliss and Jim Spencer. Edwards' blast, his first of the year, came off Ray Burris, who relieved starter Jim Beattie in the fifth.

Blue Jays 9-2, Angels 8-10

Willie Aikens belted his first career grand slam to power the Angels' victory in the nightcap. Rick Cerone doubled home the winning run in the eighth inning of the opener after the Blue Jays blew a 7-0 lead. California's Brian Downing, who drove in four runs in the opener, added three more in the nightcap as the Angels scored six runs in the third inning before a man was retired. They rallied for seven runs in the seventh inning of the opener to erase an 8-1 deficit.

Brewers 5, Rangers 4

Sal Bando crashed a tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning as Milwaukee beat old nemesis Ferguson Jenkins. It was Milwaukee's first victory over Jenkins since Aug. 14, 1974, although he still holds a 10-3 lifetime record against the Brewers.

Tigers 7, Mariners 3

Ron LeFlore's bases-loaded triple keyed a five-run Detroit uprising in the fourth inning. Champ Summers drove in two Detroit runs with a single and a homer. It was the Tigers' second triumph in as many games under acting Manager Dick Tracewski, the team's third base coach. Sparky Anderson will take over Thursday night replacing Les Moss, who was fired on Tuesday.

Joe Niekro Emerging From Phil's Shadow As He Posts 10th Victory

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

He used to be the other Niekro, but not anymore.

Joe Niekro is emerging from the shadow of his older brother, Phil, and at 34 seems to be approaching the prime of his pitching life.

Niekro posted his ninth consecutive victory and became the first 10-game winner in the National League Wednesday night as the Houston Astros edged the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3.

"I'm just being consistent, throwing strikes not only with the knuckler but with my other pitches — the slider and the fast ball," said Niekro, who has lost just twice. "It feels good to be on a first-place club, a team that as been scoring early for me and playing great behind me."

The Astros lead the National League West with a 37-27 record. The latest they have ever been in first place is June 24.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 9-8, the Cincinnati Reds beat the New York Mets 4-1, the San Diego Padres edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2, the Montreal Expos topped the Atlanta Braves 4-1 and the Chicago Cubs trimmed the San Francisco Giants 3-2 in 10 innings.

Joe Niekro is 10-2 with a 2.43 earned run average. His 40-year-old brother, Phil, is 7-9 with a 4.51 ERA for the Atlanta Braves.

Dodgers 9, Cards 8
Dave Lopes slugged his 18th home run, singled and drove in three runs as Los Angeles knocked St. Louis out of first place in the NL East. The Cards trail Montreal by one-half game.

Reds 9, Mets 4-1

Rick Sutcliffe, 7-4, got the victory. It was his sixth in eight decisions since moving into the starting rotation in early May and he is 6-0 at Dodger Stadium.

The Cards threatened with a seven-run rally in the ninth inning, including a grand slam home run by Tony Scott and a two-run single by Garry Templeton, but Dodgers reliever Terry Forster struck out Lou Brock to preserve the victory.

Mets 4, Reds 3

Mike LaCoss, 8-0, limited the Mets to one hit in five innings before leaving the game because of a sore elbow. Tom Hume worked the last four innings and also allowed just one hit.

"It all stems from confidence," said LaCoss, who was 4-8 with the Reds last year after coming up from the minors. "Last year I didn't feel I could go out and dominate a game. This year I feel I can."

Junior Kennedy had a two-run single for the Reds and Vic Correll and George Foster had RBI singles.

Cubs 3, Giants 2

Steve Dillard's bases-loaded infield single in the 10th inning drove in the winning run for the Cubs and took the glitter away from the return of San Francisco starter John Montefusco, who came off the disabled list and pitched five strong innings, leaving the game with a 2-1 lead.

The Cubs tied the score in the eighth on three straight singles off reliever Gary Lavelle, then won it in the 10th against Randy Moffitt, 1-5.

Padres 3, Pirates 2

Fernando Gonzalez smacked a two-run homer and Bob Ojwinko combined with Rollie Fingers on a seven-hitter as the Padres edged the Pirates. Gonzalez also had three singles, the first time a San Diego player has had four hits in a game this season.

Expos 4, Braves 1

Steve Rogers, 6-3, scattered six hits as Montreal beat the Braves, who contributed to their own downfall with four errors. Rogers, who had pitched three shutouts in his previous seven starts, blanked the Braves until the ninth.

Trevino Has Solution To Long Tour

Jim Kyle

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Lee Trevino insists the men's professional golf tour, stretched over a current 45 weeks annually, is too long. And the 39-year-old veteran, part of the U.S. Open field that teed off today at Inverness Club, has his own solution.

"The only way is to split the tour into East and West Coast. Have 25 tournaments for each, with everybody having to play in 20 of them, with $200,000 purses.

"That way television would be competitive. There's nothing wrong with showing two tournaments at once. Tennis and football do it. Then you'd bring the top players from tours together.

er. The World Series of Golf would mean something.

"A player would play 20 tournaments on the West Coast in 1980 and then play 20 on the East Coast in 1981. The only time we'd all come together would be the majors," Trevino said.

Trevino, the 1968 and 1971 Open champion, contends his idea would work better than the major-minor tour concept currently under study by PGA Commissioner Deane Beaman.

"Toledo, Detroit, Seattle, Portland, Denver, Chicago, Las Vegas want tournaments," Trevino said. "There's are tremendous cities that want to be part of the tour.

"I've talked with Mr. Beaman about it. He says, 'That would make my job easier with sponsors.'"

This tournament is Trevino's 17th start in 1979. "And I'll wind up playing 25 or 26 tournaments. I'm almost 40 and have a bad back. The problem is that the tour is too long."

Trevino sees other benefits to his abbreviated tour proposal.

"We wouldn't conflict with football. And they're trying to get a World Tour going. This would relieve the players in the fall, when it's winter here and summer in Australia," he said.

Trevino also pondered the question: Who are the top five candidates to win the U.S.

Open, the first of four annual major tournaments.

He stood beside his locker and thought.

"The guys who hit the ball high, Jack (Nicklaus) will play well. Tom Watson (the 5-1 favorite). Johnny Miller hits it high. But I don't know how he's playing. I don't know if Andy Bean hits the ball high enough. Hubert Green — don't underestimate him on these greens. And the defending champion (Andy North) doesn't hit it too low."

What about a gent named Trevino?

"I never pick myself," said the winner of more than $1.8 million in his career. "I just came over to see my friends. Jack and I played a couple of cancer exhibitions here in '74 and '75."

Female Team Handball Players Sought

DR. WAYNE EDWARDS, the director of intramural sports at East Carolina University, has been named as the South Regional Coordinator for team handball for the 1979 National Sports Festival to be held in Colorado Springs, Colorado in July.

He will be in charge of picking and training a women's team handball team to represent the region in the Festival games as a prelude to the Olympic Games and is currently trying to seek out potential players for a tryout camp at ECU next Thursday.

A number of girls have been invited to the camp, but Edwards said any others who are interested are urged to attend. Another camp will be held on June 23 at Texas A&M to help fill out the 15-member squad.

Although not generally known in the United States, team handball (not related to regular handball) is the second most popular sport in Europe behind soccer and has been part of the Summer Olympics since 1972.

It is played on an indoor court similar in size to a basketball court. There are seven players on each team and the object is to get a ball, slightly larger than a softball, into a soccer-type goal.

Many of the same skills of volleyball and basketball are utilized in team handball, so players in those sports often develop into good team handball players. Edwards is seeking such athletes for the camp.

Interested girls, 17 or older are asked to contact Edwards, either at Memorial Gymnasium at ECU or at 757-6443 during the day or 756-5450 in the evening.

Candidates will be responsible for their own expenses for the camps, but those selected for the South squad will have their expenses paid to a Colorado training camp and the Sports Festival.

Edwards, who became interested in team handball while serving in the military in Europe, is enthusiastic about the sport and said this is an excellent opportunity for girls to become involved in an olympic sport.

PITT COUNTY'S AMERICAN Legion baseball team continues in its winning ways. Since the regular season began, the Post 39 team is undefeated in four games.

Last year was a banner season for Pitt as the team ran away with the conference crown, but this year's team was not expected to fare as well. So far, Post 39 is exceeding expectations.

Of course, the team has yet to play two of the toughest opponents on the schedule, Snow Hill and Rocky Mount. Pitt County will take on those two teams in its next two outings after tonight's game with Wilson. Post 39 will host Snow Hill on Saturday night and host Rocky Mount Monday night.

The Kiwanis, already out of the race for the North State Little League pennant, handed league-leading Lions a 10-8 defeat yesterday.

The Kiwanis pushed over five runs in the first inning. Jason Galloway led off with a single and Scott Davis walked. Ryan Clark singled, loading the bases. The Lions came back to score four in the bottom of the inning, all on a grand-slam homer by Rand, but fell short.

each had two hits for the Kiwanis, while Rand and Tony Taylor each had two for the Lions.

Pepsi-Cola 19, Moose 11

Pepsi-Cola outslugged the Moose, 19-11, yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League.

Pepsi is now 6-5 in the league, while the Moose are 1-10.

The Moose pushed over two in the first inning for the initial lead. Charlie Littleton was hit by a pitch and moved up on a passed ball. He took third on an out and scored when Daryl Perkins reached on a fielder's choice. Perkins stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Kevin Baker's single.

Pepsi came back with four in the bottom of the inning. Paul Sullivan walked and moved up on a passed ball. Clark Stallings singled, and a wild pitch scored Sullivan. Joey Hallow walked and stole second. Lee Cox singled, driving in both runners. Cox stole second and moved on home on two passed balls.

The Moose came back with four in the top of the second, but Pepsi scored three in the bottom of the frame. The Moose got one in the third, but Pepsi scored twice. Pepsi then added two in the fourth for an 11-7 lead. The Moose came back with three in the top of the fifth to cut the lead to one.

But in the bottom of the fifth, Pepsi scored eight times to put it out of reach. Stallings singled and Hallow walked. Kendall Phillips singled, scoring Stallings. Cox singled in Hallow and a passed ball scored Phillips. William Mitchum walked as did Fletcher Phillips, and a double steal let Mitchum score. Bobby Sullivan walked, and another double steal scored Phillips. Stallings walked, and Hallow singled, scoring Sullivan. Stallings stole home with the final run.

The other Moose run came in the sixth.

Perkins led the Moose hitting with two, while Stallings, Hallow, Phillips and Cox each had two for Pepsi.

Bosox, Royals Make A Trade

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two hours before game time, Red Sox first baseman George "Boomer" Scott and Kansas City outfielder Tom Poquette swapped uniforms after another trade that brought Bob Watson from the Houston Astros to Boston.

The Red Sox clinched Wednesday night's deal before wrapping up a three-game series in Kansas City with a whopping 11-3 victory.

"It's the best thing," said Scott, who had issued a play-me-or-trade-me edict when he was benched last month by Manager Don Zimmer after going hitless in 25 at-bats. "Things got to the point where I really wanted to leave."

"I'm going to a great club, and I think I'll fit in right away...I thank the Red Sox for sending me to a contender and to a place where I'm going to play. It could have been Oakland or Cleveland, you know."

Since May 25, Scott had one hit and three walks in four pinch hitting appearances. The slick-fielding, 35-year-old first baseman was hitting .224 with four home runs and 23 RBI in 45 games.

Poquette, 27, was hitting .192 in 21 games this year. His best season was his first full campaign with Kansas City, in 1976, when he hit .302. He batted .292 in 1977 but the lefthanded hitter fell to .216 last year in 80 games.

Watson will join the club today in Chicago, and Zimmer said he may play him at first and rest Carl Yastrzemski Saturday and Sunday against White Sox left-handers Ken Kravec and Rich Wortham.

The 'Parking Lot Bomb' May Be Back In After NBA Coaches' Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Look out for Downtown Freddie Brown. Keep an eye on Rick Barry and Rudy Tomjanovich. Whooooee — there goes Brian Winters and Kevin Grevey. Hold on, here comes Louie Dampier.

The bomb from the arena parking lot may be back.

The National Basketball Association general managers and coaches voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to adopt the three-point field goal.

of the old American Basketball Association and rewards baskets made from distances of 22 feet or more.

The recommendation, passed 15-7 by general managers and 15-5 by coaches, will be considered by the NBA Rules and Competition Committee next Wednesday. The 11-member committee will then pass the proposal, along with its opinion, to the league owners the next day at their annual meeting at Amelia Island, Fla.

The owners will have the last say on the rules change, but spokesmen for the general managers and the coaches believe their heavy vote in favor will carry much weight.

"We feel we are the most knowledgeable about the game," said Jack Ramsay of the Portland Trail Blazers, president of the coaches association. "Our opinions are not given lightly. It is our hope that our recommendations will be accepted."

Ramsay said the coaches were persuaded to approve the three-point field goal by the former ABA members who "said it took some of the physical contact out of the basket area. Basketball is not a tug of war where physical strength is dominating. It is a game of finesse."

"I'm still not pleased with the premise where distance is rewarded but if it takes away the pushing and shoving, it's good for the game."

Researches OK Alcohol Fuel

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The same type of liquor still that kept lawmen running after bootleggers for decades could keep America's cars running without gasoline, according to a team of researchers.

The researchers, who work for a consumer-oriented magazine, say ethyl alcohol produced in homemade stills can power the average automobile at a cost of about 43 cents a gallon. All that's needed to convert a gasoline-guzzling car to an alcohol imbibing mobile are a few carburetor adjustments that could be made by the average backyard mechanic for about $25, the researchers say.

They'd point out little things to us that made the system better."

The current issue of The Mother Earth News has step-by-step instructions for building a still, and there are plans to sell more detailed instructions on still-making and for converting gasoline powered cars to alcohol. But the magazine's editors emphasize in their current publication that persons have to get permits from the ATF bureau to make a still.

Magazine officials scheduled a news conference in Hendersonville today to talk about their alcohol-fuel system.

An official of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau, which chases the few bootleggers still making moonshine, was to attend the news conference and listen to researchers tell people how to build a still. But an official of the magazine said the ATF had been most helpful during the development of the alcohol-fuel system.

"We contacted them originally and they've been in on it all along," Bill Cyrulik, head of the magazine's planning division said in an interview. "There were a few times when a 1970 pickup truck and converted it to alcohol and the truck gets about 20 miles to the gallon.

Although the Environmental Protection Agency has not run any tests on the system, Cyrulik said the magazine's researchers have tested it according to EPA standards and found the alcohol-burning system to be cleaner and more fuel-efficient than conventional gasoline engines.

"We invite the EPA to make their tests," he said.

Cyrulik said the magazine launched a six-month study of the alcohol system because of the soaring cost of gasoline and the likelihood of shortages of gas in the future.

"With this, if there is a gas shortage, people can make their own fuel. Even if there's no shortage, they won't have to pay a dollar a gallon for gas," Cyrulik said.

"We're not saying this could end this country's dependence on (oil) immediately but we're saying maybe there's light at the end of the tunnel," he said.

Seek Recover PCB Expenses

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state will try to recover some of the expenses incurred by the state in clearing roadsides of toxic PCB-laced oil by filing a civil suit against the company involved.

Gov. Jim Hunt has asked the state attorney general's office to file a civil suit against Robert E. "Buck" Ward, president of Ward Transformer Co.

Ward was found not guilty Tuesday in Halifax Superior Court of charges that he was an accessory before the fact and conspirator in the dumping of PCB transformer oil by three New York men along 10.7 miles of Halifax County roads last summer.

Gary Pearce, Hunt's press secretary, said the clean-up will cost several million dollars and will be an expense to state taxpayers.

Robert J. Burns, and his sons, Timothy and Randall, of Jamestown, N.Y., have pleaded guilty to dumping the oil and are awaiting sentencing. They testified at Ward's trial.

Two jurors said after the trial they believed charges were filed against Ward because, as president of a large company, he had money the state might try to get to help pay for costs of treating the chemical spills.

Prosecutors in Ward's trial attempted to prove that Ward not only knew of the illegal dumpings by the New York men but also agreed, encouraged and commanded the dumpings.

Hunt said the state had made no decision on what to do with the soil on which the chemical was dumped, but is considering several options, including disposal in local landfills.

Halifax was selected from more than a dozen counties with PCB spills because it was the only county in which citizens would testify they had seen the Burnses dumping in daylight, said Assistant District Attorney Donald W. Stephens.

More Investors Seek A Tax-Free Income

INNERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

More and more investors are seeking high and/or tax free income these days. This is clearly illustrated in the large amounts of money taken out of mutual savings banks in April. The net outflow of savings in that month was $1.1 billion, 31 percent higher than the record set in August 1974. And it is obvious that money is not being put into the stock market.

There are a number of investment arenas where the return can be as much as double what is offered on a passbook account. One of these is a money market fund, a no-load mutual fund which invests shareholder funds in short term, fixed income investments such as Treasury bills or commercial paper.

The median average maturity of money market funds was recently measured at 41 days, and yields are in the 9.5 percent to 10 percent range. Dividends are received from day of purchase to day of redemption. Some of these funds permit check writing against the investment, offer relatively low initial investments, and the investment may be redeemed at any time without penalty.

Two types of investments offer tax sheltered income. Investors can buy tax exempt bonds directly, but there are also professionally managed bond funds.

A mutual municipal bond fund invests shareholder money in a diversified portfolio of tax exempt bonds. The interest rates on the bonds held determine what the shareholder return will be, and the composition of the portfolio will change from time to time.

A municipal unit investment trust is also a tax-exempt bond fund, but the portfolio is fixed. As bonds mature, the proceeds are returned to shareholders. When the portfolio is reduced to a smaller size through maturing bonds, it can be liquidated and paid out to holders.

The benefit in a money market fund is a relatively high yield, but that yield will drop in a period of declining interest rates. Municipal mutual funds have underperformed the unit trusts in the last year or so because of rising interest rates. Unit trusts usually have a higher yield than municipal mutual funds because there is no management fee.

Individual circumstances will determine whether money market funds, municipal mutual funds or unit trusts are for you.

They offer no real inflation protection, but they do offer relative safety and high yields.

Shah Sees Self-Destruction

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (AP) —Iran no longer has a government and is destroying itself, says Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, speaking out at his first full-scale news conference since leaving his homeland for an uncertain exile five months ago.

"My heart is bleeding. My country is destroying itself," the deposed ruler told reporters Wednesday beside a pool in the garden of the palatial villa he has rented. His wife, Empress Farah, attended the news conference with him but said nothing.

Revival Series Begins Monday

WAYNE DAY
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Friday will be John Wayne Day in the state, the result of a proclamation by Gov. Jim Hunt. Hunt made the announcement Wednesday.

"I left my country to avoid the spilling of more blood, but since I left there we've had a bloodbath," he said, referring to the execution of some 250 of his supporters by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's militant Islamic regime.

Revival Series Begins Monday

PACTOLUS — There will be a week's revival Monday through Friday of next week at Pactolus Holy Church on the Rock.

The speaker will be Eldress Eva Mae Wilson Smith of Newark, N. J. A different choir will sing each night. The pastor, Eldress Rosebud Prayer, invites the public.

"I don't believe there is a government in Iran because the bloodbath and the fighting between brothers cannot be stopped," he said. "My country is destroying itself."

Some of Khomeini's leading associates have called on their supporters to assassinate the shah because the governments that have given him refuge so far have refused to extradite him to Iran. But "I do not fear being assassinated," he declared.

"I am a religious man. I believe in providence. All depends on that," said the 59-year-old Moslem, lifting his hands.

The shah said it was "too early" to say whether he would seek permanent asylum in Mexico, the fourth nation he has visited since leaving Iran. He arrived Sunday from the Bahamas.

Asked if he planned to go to the United States, he replied: "This depends if one is welcome or not." He refused to say whether he had been refused admittance by the U.S. government, once of his closest allies.

Wearing a navy blue guayabera, the traditional Mexican shirt, trimmed with white embroidery, the shah answered questions for about 15 minutes. While he has chatted briefly with reporters at other stops in his five months of exile, this was his first full-fledged news conference.

He invited the reporters in after one of his bodyguards pushed aside a television news-woman seeking an interview at an exclusive restaurant Tuesday night.

"The shah was embarrassed by the attitude of his bod-guards," said the newswoman, Graciela Leal.

He said he came to Mexico because "it is a country with a long tradition of hospitality." He denied reports that former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Chase Manhattan

Three Attend Ass'n Meeting

ATLANTA, GA. — Three members of the East Carolina University physical therapy department, Gloria Sanders, Dennis Davis and George Hamilton, chairman, are among the 4,000 members of the American Physical Therapy Association who are meeting this week for the Association's 55th annual conference.

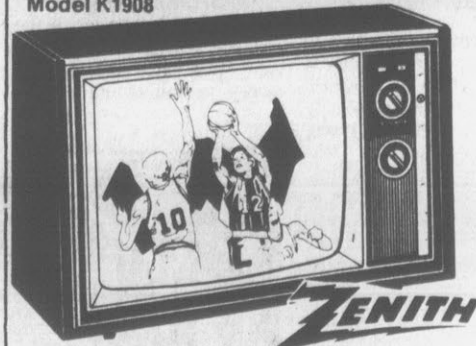

Bank President David Rockefeller helped him obtain his 90-day tourist visa.

"I asked the Mexican government directly for my visa," he said. "It was a personal act." Kissinger said on Monday that he interceded with the Mexican government on behalf of the shah because the U.S. government was doing nothing to help its former ally.

Uncertain Iranians Investing In Persian Carpets

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's Persian carpet market — where things seemed up in the air just a few months ago — has emerged still prosperous from the Islamic revolution.

Its well-heeled foreign customers have been replaced by Iranians seeking a discreet way to get cash out of the country.

So the carpet business, a blend of hallowed national tradition and costly traps for glib buyers, still runs on sweet tea and vociferous bargaining in a string of tiny shops on traffic-choked Ferdowsi Street. Not that the revolution has not left its mark.

Photographs of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the nation's Moslem revolutionary leader, are plastered over the plate-glass windows of the shops. Portraits of the Imam Ali, a 7th century Moslem patriarch, gaze down inside the shops on piles of neatly folded carpets.

When Khomeini returned to Iran on Jan. 31 from his Paris exile, carpet dealers loaned him several of their most valuable specimens for his reception rooms. Khomeini was pleased. Now, with the Islamic revolution a strong backer of private enterprise, most dealers feel they have little to fear from Khomeini's administration.

Shopowners proudly recite to visitors the names of Americans, Britons, Frenchmen and Germans "who always used to buy from me," but add with a sigh that most of them have left. The big spenders now are well-to-do Iranians leaving their homeland who hope to take some of their money out in the form of carpets.

Iranian regulations now limit each departing traveler to the equivalent of about $285 in Iranian currency, and foreign money in Iran is difficult to get. But customs men often ignore a carpet or two under a traveler's arm.

The Iranian customers have driven up prices, providing a continued living to the merchants. A 6-by-8 foot Qom silk carpet that sold for $1,500 before the revolution plunged to $1,000 in the chaos of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's overthrow.

But now it is up to $2,000, and the values of some carpets are rising by 10 percent every six months.

In addition, half the 50-odd Ferdowsi Street stores have closed down since the revolution. Dealers say some owners had planned to move anyway because of traffic congestion and others have emigrated abroad. This means more business for the stores that remain.

Dealers readily admit that buyers have traditionally been at the salesmen's mercy when it comes to judging the quality and durability of a carpet. Some customers hire freelance "carpet appraisers" to accompany them to stores, unaware that many of these receive kickbacks once a sale is made.

The new Iranian buyers are more discriminating than most foreigners, however. In recent months, Iranian customers have been pressing for higher-quality carpets, including more intricate designs and the best vegetable-based dyes in place of chemical dyes now commonly used.

flowers and animals. Carpet merchants appear confident that a steady stream of departing Iranians will keep their business alive, at least until foreign tourism revives. They say many Iranians are slowly closing up homes and businesses, and will be leaving over the next one to two years. "Don't worry about Iran's Persian carpet merchants," grinned David Semekh, a prominent Ferdowsi Street wholesaler and retailer. "We're doing all right."

CARPET MARKET FLYING HIGH — Merchants on Tehran's famed Ferdowsi Street wait for customers. For awhile, they were hard hit by the absence of foreigners; but the carpet market has emerged from the Islamic revolution still properous. Now, however, the well-heeled foreigners have been replaced by Iranians seeking a way to get cash or valuables out of the country. (AP Laser-photo)

Specialists Fill Medical Needs

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly 20 percent of all Americans get most of their medical care from a gynecologist, cardiologist or other specialist rather than from a general practitioner, a new study shows.

The report, described as the largest ever on how doctors spend their time, is the latest in a continuing debate over whether medical schools are turning out enough physicians for personal care.

The study, published in today's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine, concludes that this trend may bring an early end to a shortage of family doctors — possibly by the mid 1980s.

Dr. David Rogers, one of six authors of the report, said it proves there is a "hidden system" of medical care in the United States that will make up for projected shortages of so-called "primary care" physicians — doctors who treat the headache, sore throat, upset stomach and other minor ailments.

Rogers is president of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, which co-sponsored the report.

A recent National Academy of Sciences report projected shortages of primary care physicians well into the 1990s, and critics of medical schools today say there are too many specialists.

As a result, federal guidelines require an increasing proportion of medical school graduates to spend their first year of residency in general care areas. Next year, the proportion will be 50 percent.

However, the new report, based on records of the daily activities of 10,000 doctors, predicts the general-care shortage will end shortly after 1985.

Wool will be collected Wednesday, June 20, from 7 a.m. to 12 noon, at Douglas Hassell Warehouse, 800 Hackney Ave., Washington.

According to Michael Regans, associate agricultural extension agent, the wool market has shown a slight improvement again this year. The marketing charge will be four cents per pound. Producers should be advised to file their receipts with their local ASCS office as soon after the sale as possible.

Continuity In TV Programming Appears New Goal

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — If this is "The Waltons," it must be Thursday. If this is "Little House on the Prairie," it must be Monday.

That's how CBS and NBC want the viewer to feel, just like in the old days before the networks began to play 52-pickup with their schedules — and before ABC was the dominant network in prime time ratings. ABC will continue to take a bolder approach and scramble its schedule.

The move toward continuity is one of the few new trends revealed in the networks' announcements of their fall schedules.

As for the content of new shows in the fall 1979-1980 television season, it is what former CBS Television president Bob Wussler characterized when pressed as "more of the same."

From Buck Rogers, most recently of movie fame, to Trapper John, once of "M-A-S-H," from Benson (late of "Soap") to an updated Frankenstein sitcom, almost every one of the 20 new shows that the three networks announced with such fanfare, and will promote at great expense, owes a debt to the past. In scheduling, however, ABC has taken an aggressive position, moving some of its top shows out of place — shifting "Mork & Mindy" to Sunday night and breaking "Laverne & Shirley" off from "Happy Days" and moving it into Thursday night.

CBS, on the other hand, is aiming for program stability. All but one of its old favorites will return in their familiar time slots — the exception is "The Jeffersons," moving to Sunday night.

Robert A. Daly, president, CBS Entertainment, explained his network's stay-put position.

"We have received a tremendous amount of mail from viewers complaining about shows being changed around," Daly said. He brought up the CBS Thursday lineup of "The Waltons," "Hawaii Five-0" and "Barnaby Jones" and pointed to "the success we had this past year leaving Thursday intact, even though the shows were not young."

CBS has left Monday, Thursday and Friday intact in the upcoming season and has made only minimal changes on Sunday. NBC also has attempted to maintain the status quo by shifting only two of its returning shows, "Diff'rent Strokes" and "Hello, Larry."

Daly said he thought "more and more people are confused" by program switches and that ABC was taking a risk in tampering with its successful lineup. With "Laverne & Shirley" gone from Tuesday night, CBS will try to make inroads with a kid-oriented show called "We're Cruisin'."

NBC Entertainment president Mike Weinblatt agrees that ABC "has taken a big gamble, breaking up its schedule. It's daring. It could work but it's a very high risk."

He admitted that NBC had done its share of bait-and-switch programming in recent years, but said he believed the network now was back to trying "to keep stability and build continuity of viewing — a philosophy we have not been most consistent in following recently."

As he pointed out, aside from moving two shows, returning programs such as "Little House on the Prairie," "CHiPs" and "Quincy" would be back at their old stamping grounds. NBC also surprised the industry by introducing into hour-long new shows for fall — no new half-hour sitcoms.

"It's not that we had no good half-hours," Weinblatt said, adding that NBC was ordering several half-hours for later scheduling.

But the NBC brass has backed off from its admittedly too fast pace of introducing new shows last February, many of them not ready for airing.

"Now we looked at each time period," Weinblatt said, "and tried to take a slower, step by step pace, analyzing very carefully, as a surer way to get an audience."

"We particularly examined 8 o'clock on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, where we are up against very strong half-hour or hour comedy — 'Happy Days,' 'Eight Is Enough' and 'Laverne & Shirley.' We felt we had to go a different route or we'd be stuck, sitting there with 20 shares (shows attracting only 20 percent of viewers) or lower. That's why we've gone in for adventure and light adventure as most likely to work against this competition."

That means "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo" on Tuesday and "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century" on Thursday. On Wednesday NBC believes it has a real winner — not a theoretical one — in "Real People."

"Diff'rent Strokes" and "Hello, Larry" were moved from Friday to Wednesday because NBC believes "Strokes" is a contender for Top 10 in the Nielsens. Friday, a low viewing night, could hurt its chances.

Philosophy aside, half-hour comedies are the building blocks of television — CBS's Daly calls them "the heart of successful network comedy" and has added three new ones to the CBS schedule. By next winter, NBC will follow suit.

Winters Tapes Baseball Fun
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jonathan Winters taped a satirical treatment of the national pastime for Home Box Office titled "Jonathan Winters' Salute to Baseball" to be pay telecast to home viewers. Winters characterizes a small town baseball game with the comedian playing the team's manager, pitcher, home run slugger, sports announcer and the team's oldest groupie, Maude Frickert. Says Winters, "I try to do with comedy what Tennessee Williams does with drama — hold a mirror up to life."
