

Carter Ends Farmers' Diesel Priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has ordered an end to the federal rule that gave farmers priority in obtaining diesel fuel, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced today.

"The president has asked me to announce today that he has agreed with recommendation to terminate the Department of Energy's temporary diesel fuel priority program rather than wait until its July 31 expiration date," Bergland said.

The president's action followed his promise Thursday to make more diesel available to striking independent truckers, who have complained of fuel shortages.

Carter imposed the priority program, known as Rule 9, in May to insure that farmers would be able to get spring plowing and planting accomplished. Farm groups and Bergland had wanted the rule extended beyond its July 31 expiration.

But Carter's staff recommended suspending the rule immediately to ease shortages for truckers and help mollify the strikers.

Carter coupled his promise to get the truckers more fuel with a vow to do "whatever is necessary" to protect truckers who want to return to work.

In his statement, Bergland said spring planting is virtually completed and "it is essential now that we turn our efforts from planting to the total agricultural system, including midseason field work, harvest, processing and transportation of agricultural products."

"We have become increasingly concerned in the past several days about the actual and potential disruption of the processing and movement of farm products to U.S. and overseas markets," he continued.

"It does farmers no good to plant and harvest a crop, or to hatch baby chicks, if there is no fuel to move the grain to an airport elevator or to process adult chicks and move the meat to market," Bergland said. "Today's decision will make more fuel available for those needs."

Leaders of the striking independent truckers welcomed the announcement that they again will have equal claim to diesel fuel.

William J. Hill, chairman of the Independent Truckers Unity Coalition, which claims to speak for a majority of the nation's self-employed truckers, called the action "a step in the right direction."

But the coalition has called for a rule giving truckers first claim on the diesel supply and Hill said that remained the group's position. "We have to be assured we're going to have enough fuel to operate our equipment," he said.

2 Reactors Out During Peak Need

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. says it will face the peak summer power demand with only one of its three nuclear power reactors because of a Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff decision.

The NRC staff has rescinded its earlier decision and has told the utility it cannot restart the No. 1 unit at its Surry power station until it completes analyses of earthquake stress tests.

Vepco Executive Vice President William Berry told the State Corporation Commission of the NRC's decision during a hearing Thursday on Vepco's fuel cost recovery charges.

Berry said the utility had planned to restart the unit early next month, but was informed Wednesday the NRC staff had changed its mind.

The NRC staff wants Vepco to complete the analysis and make any needed repairs before putting the reactor back in operation.

That decision apparently was prompted by Vepco telling the NRC staff Tuesday its consulting engineer, Stone & Webster Engineering Corp., had found that some minor modifications were needed before restarting Surry No. 1.

Surry No. 1 was shut down in March after the NRC learned the design of the unit, along with several others across the country, was based on faulty computer data regarding the ability of pipes carrying coolant to the reactor to withstand the stress of a severe earthquake.

Surry No. 2 was taken out of service in February for steam generator repairs.

LeRoux Filling Mid-East Post

WASHINGTON N.C. — Daneel L. LeRoux of Greenville, has been named director of the Mid-East Commission, replacing Bruce Beasley III, who was asked to resign the position about two months ago.

LeRoux, director of planning for the 57 community colleges and technical institutes under the Department of Community Colleges since June 1978, will begin his duties with the Mid-East Commission in July.

The Mid-East Commission is a planning and development agency for planning region "Q" — including Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford Counties — and serves as a clearing house for projects which receive state and federal funding, in an effort to prevent duplication of effort in the region.

Leaf Sale Dates?

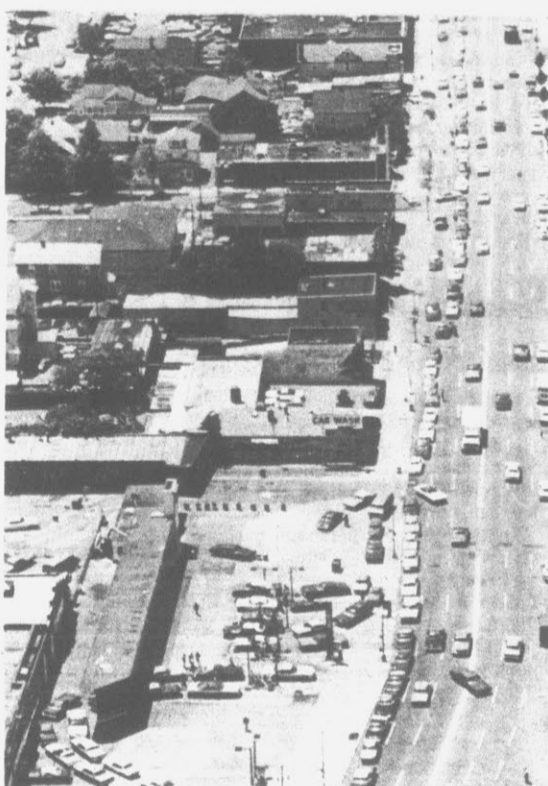

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — July 24 is the date that has been recommended by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee for the beginning of tobacco sales on the Eastern Belt and the Middle Belt markets.

The committee has also recommended July 18 as the opening date of sales for the South Carolina-North Carolina Tobacco (Border) Belt — the belt covering markets with the traditional earliest opening date in North Carolina.

E. Dick Lewis of Mullins, S.C., a committee member, said reports show that farmers in the border belt of the two Carolinas will have 38 percent of the flue-cured leaf ready for sale by that date.

If the recommendation is approved by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture as is expected, the start of tobacco sales in the two Carolinas would coincide with the Georgia-Florida opening date for the first time in a decade.

It was noted that despite the appearance of blue mold and the loss of about 3,000 acres of tobacco through use of a contaminated fertilizer, this year's flue-cured crop is expected to be one of the best in recent history.

'Alternate' Day

Long Gasoline Lines Await The Weekend

By The Associated Press

Fuel blockades, rationing and predictions of widespread gasoline station closings threw a wrench into the driving plans of Americans hoping to get away for the first weekend of summer.

"This will be the worst weekend ever," said Wayne Konitshek, president of the Connecticut Gasoline Retailers Association, whose forebodings were echoed throughout the South and Midwest.

It was already bad Thursday in southeast Florida, where mile-long gas lines clogged roads. National Guardsmen hauled fuel blockaded by independent truckers and rationing was ordered in Dade, Broward and Sarasota counties.

And it could be still worse on the July Fourth weekend, with a group representing the nation's 60,000 gas retailers threatening to shut down pumps starting July 1 unless Washington lets them boost prices.

The American Automobile Association said a survey of 6,286 service stations across the country showed only 42 percent planned to open this Saturday and only 31 percent on Sunday.

"I wouldn't advise anyone to plan a trip for this weekend unless they have enough gasoline in their tank when they start off," said Mary Vedder, general manager of the AAA in Albany, N.Y.

Minnesota Gov. Al Quie also urged motorists to stay home this weekend following a twoday truckers' blockade of oil refineries that led to the first long gasoline lines in the state.

In Omaha, Neb., also hit by fuel blockades, Mayor Al Veys apparently triggered panic buying Thursday with a remark a day earlier that "all stations will be out of gas tomorrow morning."

Hijack Odyssey Ended

MCGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP) — An anti-communist Serb who hijacked an American Airlines jet with 135 persons aboard earlier this week was returned to the United States today on the same Boeing 707 that he forced to fly him to Ireland.

Nikola Kavaja was led off the plane in handcuffs shortly after his arrival here on a flight from Shannon, Ireland, where he arrived on Thursday and was ordered deported early today.

Kavaja was not allowed to talk to reporters as he was taken to be arraigned on an arrest warrant issued because he failed to appear for sentencing Thursday for the 1975 bombing of the home of Yugoslavia's consul in Chicago.

Jeremy Thorpe Cleared Of Murder Conspiracy

LONDON (AP) — Jeremy Thorpe, former leader of Britain's Liberal Party, and three co-defendants were acquitted today of all charges in their murder conspiracy trial.

Thorpe, 50, and the three other defendants all pleaded innocent to charges they conspired to murder male model Norman Scott, 39, who alleged he had a homosexual relationship with the Liberal politician in the early 1960s.

Thorpe alone was also charged with incitement to murder, but the jury acquitted him on this charge as well.

The jury of nine men and three women delivered its verdict after 52 hours of deliberations.

The trial began May 8 and the jury was sent out Wednesday morning with this advice from Judge Sir Joseph Cantley: "Take your time. We will wait for you."

Thorpe, who denies he and Scott were lovers, had been accused of inciting David Holmes, one of his co-defendants, to kill Scott. The other co-defendants were John Le Mesurier and George Deakin. Each charge carried a maximum 10-year prison term.

All day Wednesday and again on Thursday Thorpe and the other defendants waited anxiously. So did his wife, Marian, a former concert pianist who once was married to a cousin of the Queen Elizabeth II, and his mother. Both women were in court every day.

Under British law, a jury does not have to return a unanimous verdict, but can bring in majority decisions of 10-2 or 11-1 if the judge so orders.

Trucker Plaints

BURLINGTON NOTE
By The Associated Press

Here is a look at the main issues in the independent truckers' protest.

FUEL: Independent truckers primary complaints have been the scarcity of diesel fuel and the high price they pay for it when they find it. They want lower prices and have called on the Energy Department to give them a higher priority, demanding 100 percent allocation to meet their needs. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger says his department is working on a plan to cut off the special preference farmers have for diesel fuel.

PRICES: Independent truckers say they need at least a 10 percent surcharge on freight to help them cover their increased costs, especially fuel prices. The Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized a 6 percent surcharge.

DEREGULATION: President Carter on Thursday proposed legislation that would deregulate the trucking industry. Large carriers oppose the legislation because they have benefited from the protection of the regulations. The Teamsters Union also opposes it because its members drive for the large carriers. The independent truckers appear split on the issue. The Independent Truckers Association, headed by Michael Parkhurst, supports many of the reforms. But other independent truckers agree with Teamsters claims that the legislation could lead to lower freight rates and lower profits.

SPEED LIMIT: Independent truckers want the national speed limit ads increased to 65 mph so runs can be completed faster.

Truckers' Strike Impact Spreading

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

The effects of the independent truckers' strike is apparently spreading to other industries in North Carolina after causing a crisis situation in the produce and vegetable industry.

Officials in Sampson County said today over 7,500 migrant workers had been laid off in Sampson County alone.

Farmers returned to their fields today hoping to salvage a portion of their cucumber crops. They were hopeful of getting $3 a bushel for super selects, which during the peak of growing season generally go for $5.50 to $6 a bushel.

Chuch Martin, director of market news for the Faison Fruit and Vegetable Exchange, said only 25 percent of the trucks normally servicing the market were running Thursday.

Sampson County agricultural officials said today the farmers would lose 50 percent of the cucumber crop if they don't move the produce by Monday.

Worth Gurkin, county agricultural extension agent, said the farmers fear the migrant workers will leave the area altogether.

The cucumber crop has been the hardest hit, but the peak harvesting period for peppers and other produce is approaching, and farmers stand to lose even more if they can get truckers to haul their goods.

The head of Broyhill Furniture Industries in Lenoir said today the strike was "getting to be serious for that industry."

Paul Broyhill said his company was having problems with inbound and outbound shipments. "It's affecting our shipping and production," Broyhill said.

Meanwhile three oil companies in Charlotte said today they will not ship any diesel fuel out of the Paw Creek Fuel Storage facility for 24 hours.

The action by Gulf, Shell and Union 76 depots follows a blockade at the Paw Creek facility in Charlotte Thursday night. That facility provides gas and diesel fuel for Mecklenburg County and parts of South Carolina.

Eight other drivers for Service Distributors Corp. said they decided not to ship diesel fuel from the Hess Terminal at the complex.

And Paw Creek drivers for Amoco said they wouldn't not make any runs because of violence on the highways.

This holdup of shipments by the oil company office does not affect gasoline shipments.

Three independent truckers were placed under arrest by Mecklenburg County police Thursday night after they parked their rigs in front of the Paw Creek facility.

Police warned others in the blockade they would also be arrested if they refused to move their rigs from in front of the facility.

Truckers in North Carolina who refused to join their colleagues on strike for lower diesel fuel prices and higher speed limits received words of support and a promise of protection from Gov. Jim Hunt Thursday.

Hunt mobilized the state Highway Patrol after he said he would "take whatever steps are necessary to guarantee safe passage for any truckers who want to haul their loads." He said he would provide a patrol escort for a convoy of 10 or more trucks that requested assistance during the strike.

OAS Seeks Consensus On Nicaragua Demand

By GEORGE GEDDA

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Organization of American States is trying to decide whether there is a consensus in support of a surprise U.S. call for an end to the Somoza dynasty in Nicaragua.

A seven-nation working group was named Thursday night to try to work out a resolution acceptable to a two-thirds majority of the 27-nation regional organization. The delegates were working from a draft resolution presented by the United States.

OAS foreign ministers met for four hours Thursday and it was apparent sentiment against President Anastasio Somoza was running high.

Another meeting was scheduled today. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance opened the deliberations Thursday with a call for the "replacement of the present government with a transitional government of national reconciliation."

The five-nation Andean Pact said no solution is possible without the "definitive exclusion of the Somoza regime."

Panama disclosed it was recognizing a five-member government council announced last weekend by the Sandinista guerrilla movement. Earlier, at Panama's request, film footage was shown to the delegates of the murder Wednesday of ABC newsmen Bill Stewart at the hands of a Nicaraguan national guardsmen.

Other countries said the OAS should pursue a hands-off policy and allow the Sandinistas to achieve an outright military victory.

Asked whether he thought there was a two-thirds consensus for a resolution calling on Somoza to step down, a U.S. official, who asked not to be named, said, "It depends on how it's worded."

It was clear the spreading opposition to Somoza's rule in Nicaragua has led to a marked deterioration in his hemispheric support.

Equally clear, however, was the determination of some member states to abide by one of the organization's most hallowed principles: non-intervention.

Mexico, for example, has been in the vanguard of anti-Somoza sentiment in the hemisphere. But Mexican Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda, reflecting his country's historical concerns about U.S. intentions, delivered an emotional appeal against any OAS intervention in Nicaragua.

The Carter administration has never felt comfortable about the long U.S. friendship with the Somoza regime. Vance's speech amounted to U.S. abandonment of a government which, in 1961, lent its territory to help the United States launch the Bay of Pigs invasion.

A HOTLINE TRIBUTE

TREES SAVED

A tribute is in order to ECU Chancellor Brewer, the administrators and whatever faculty members had input this week in the revision of a parking lot plan to save 17 trees. These trees are valuable both for their beauty and for the energy-saving canopy they provide the Jenkins Building and the West Cafeteria on the west end of the campus. We understand this lot will be paved very soon and will hold 60 car spaces, as was previously planned, but that minor changes such as driveway narrowings brought about the keeping of many of these lovely and useful trees. The new alternative plan apparently was done hastily, as bids were to be let Wednesday, but was done well. B. B.

Killed The Times?

LONDON (AP) — The 600 members of the printer union at the center of the dispute which has silenced The Times and Sunday Times of London for seven months have decided to look for new jobs, saying the prestigious newspapers will never again appear on newstands.

"We have come to the conclusion there is obviously no way in which The Times can resume publication," said Joe Wade, secretary-general of the National Graphical Association, after an all-day meeting of his union.

On hearing the news, Times Newspapers chief executive M.G. "Duke" Hussey said the management remained willing to negotiate.

The 194-year-old Times, its sister Sunday paper and three related publications, ceased publishing Nov. 30 in a showdown with the print unions on overmanning, wildcat strikes and, most importantly, the introduction of computerized technology that would cost hundreds of printers' jobs.

Adult Education Committee Met

The Adult Basic Education Advisory Committee for Pitt Technical Institute held its first meeting Monday. Patrick Thomas, Farmville City manager, was elected chairperson for the year.

Major objectives for the committee include the maintenance and improvement of the Adult Basic Education program in the Greenville-Pitt County area and to provide PTI with advice and assistance on matters pertaining to the program.

Ola Porter, assistant dean for the Continuing Education Division, and James Brown, director of the General Adult Education program, were present. Porter outlined the purposes of the committee and gave an overview of the local ABE annual plan.

Committee members will work closely with Mary C. Outerbridge, ABE coordinator, to help ensure that the course offerings are relevant to needs of both the community and the students. Committee members are as follows: Mrs. Josephine Reaves, Ayden; Bryant Tripp, Pactolus; Richard Johnson, Bethel; A. D. McArthur, Farmville; Mrs. Argie Cannon, Winterville; Mrs. Virginia Carlton, Mrs. Acolia Simon-Thomas, Mrs. Lottie Bizzell, Ms. Margaret Wirth, Mrs. Faye Brewington, Robert Bowman and Ms. Dorlas Cayton of Greenville.

Anyone in the community who would like to work on a subcommittee or be a volunteer worker within this group, should contact one of the committee members or call 756-3130, Extension 266.

Hunting Man For Assault, Burglary

Chief Glenn Cannon this morning said officers are looking for a man in connection with a burglary case in which a 20-year-old woman was assaulted in her 1504B Dickinson Ave. apartment about 11:05 p.m. yesterday.

Cannon said Mary Darlene Harrell told investigators that she was struck from behind as she started to leave her dwelling through a rear door.

The chief, who said Miss Harrell fell to the floor and appeared to be unconscious, noted that the attacker left the apartment, then returned and started searching

Police List 2 Accidents

An estimated $4,750 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police here yesterday.

Investigators reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:24 a.m. collision on a drive beside the Family Practice Center at Pitt Memorial Hospital involving a car driven by Annette Vick Mayo of Falkland and parked cars owned by Audrey Jones Perry of Winterville and Willis McDonald Crawford of Bell Arthur.

Officers reported the Mayo car ran off the roadway and collided with the two parked cars, pushing them 31 feet down an embankment.

Damage was estimated at $750 to the Mayo car, $700 to the Crawford vehicle and $1,200 to the Perry car.

Police reported Mrs. Mayo was injured in the mishap.

A 4:43 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 50 feet West of the Monroe Street intersection, involved cars driven by Beulah Hudson Hardee of Route 2, Greenville, and Judith Highsmith Budacz of 226 Windsor Rd.

Officers, who charged Mrs. Budacz with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $600 to the Hardee car and $1,500 to the Budacz vehicle.

Pitt Cucumber Growers Not Yet Seeing Major Difficulty

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer

For the moment, Pitt County cucumber growers seem to be faring well with getting their produce to market, but many are operating on a day-to-day basis in shipping their crops to Northern pickling plants.

"As far as cucumbers are concerned, many persons have their cucumbers under contract and have some sort of arrangement to get them to market," said Sam Uzzell, assistant agricultural extension agent with the Pitt County extension office. "Hopefully, things will work out soon."

A spokeswoman for the Cullifer Cucumber Company of Bethel said that all produce received at the plant was shipped within the state, and had had no problems with getting items to market.

Maggie Payne co-supervisor of Lutz and Schramm, a cucumber-buying agency in Ayden, said that things had been "very fortunate" for the organization, since local cucumbers are put directly in brine tanks to preserve them.

"Our only pressure point will probably be if we can't get enough salt for our tanks from outside sources," said Payne. "Knock on wood, our supplies will keep on coming in."

Payne said that her organization is under contract to buy cucumbers from contracted farmers, with some cucumbers bought from outside sources.

"We have a legal obligation to our contracted farmers," she noted. "Our superiors in New Orleans, La. have told us that if we have the manpower and time, as well as space, to take on uncontracted cucumbers of specified size, that we may go ahead. However, if that practice interferes with our normal customers, we must refuse them."

"Right now, we're just playing it by ear," Payne continued. "If outside people call to see if we can take their cucumbers, then we'll see what we can do. We're on a day-to-day basis right now."

John Pinner, a local cucumber farmer who is in operation with his father-in-law, Elmo Dupree, has his cucumbers contracted to Harper and Bateman of Maryland. He, along with several Pitt County farmers, is anxious over getting their produce safely to Northern markets.

"Right now, we're okay, the company is sending me trucks until they are stopped," said Pinner Thursday. "We've shipped about 50 percent of our crop so far, and as of yet, we've had no problems."

Pitt Transportation Company of Farmville is hauling some cucumbers for local growers to Detroit, and report that no problems have been encountered so far.

Dr. Hardy Installed As Officer Of Ass'n

KILL DEVIL HILLS — Dr. Ira Hardy of Greenville, was installed as second vice-president of the Seaboard Medical Association of Virginia and North Carolina, at the group's annual meeting here last weekend.

A New Bern physician, Dr. John Cotton Tayloe, was installed as the group's president. Tayloe's father served as president of the medical group in 1940.

Youth Services Slated Sunday

Youth services will be held at Rock Spring F. W. B. Church Sunday, June 24, 11 a.m., with Elder James Smith, the No. 2 Choir and the No. 2 ushers in charge of services.

The Deacons of the church will celebrate their tenth anniversary Sunday, 3 p.m., with Elder Bullock and Crisp Chapel Male Chorus in charge of services. The public is invited to attend, according to Bishop W. L. Phillips, pastor.

GUEST MINISTER

The Rev. George T. Cromwell of Fayetteville will be guest minister at Cornerstone Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m. He is pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, Proctorville. The W. B. Moore Mens' Choir will present the music.

Running Again

State Representative Sam D. Bundy of Farmville has announced that he plans to be a candidate in the 1980 primary.

He will be seeking to succeed himself in the 1981 session of the General Assembly. Bundy is now serving his fifth term and will be seeking a sixth. His official announcement, he said, will be made in January, 1980.

Bundy, a Farmville native, is a retired high school principal.

Budget Offered

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board of Aldermen have been presented a tentative budget for fiscal year 1979-80, totaling $1,205,854. The budget was presented May 28, and will have its final approval Friday, June 29.

Town officials do not expect to increase the present tax rate of 70 cents per $100 valuation for the proposed budget.

A breakdown of budget items are as follows: general fund, $288,910; debt services, $64,317; electric, $674,727; water, $67,900; sewer, $89,000; revenue sharing, $21,000.

Persian Gulf Policy Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — As part of a high-level review of its overall policy in the Persian Gulf region, the Carter administration is considering an increased military capability to help protect the area's oil fields, administration sources say.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Secretary of Defense Harold Brown attended the initial meeting of the formal review Thursday at the White House.

Another meeting was scheduled today.

One source said no policy decisions were made at the Thursday session, chaired by Vance, and added that the final outcome of the review might not go beyond ordering more studies of the situation.

Meanwhile, at the Pentagon, outgoing Army chief of staff Gen. Bernard Rogers told reporters the Army was making plans for a "unilateral corps" of up to 110,000 mobile American troops, capable of moving quickly into trouble spots around the world.

Pentagon sources have said one contingency the troops might deal with is a threat to oil fields in the Persian Gulf region. Other sources said the Pentagon plans for a contingency force were far from winning final approval.

Men's Day To Be Observed

Mount Olive Missionary Baptist Church of Ayden will celebrate its annual Men's Day program, Sunday, June 24, at 11 a.m.

The Rev. F. R. Peterson, pastor, invites the public to attend the service, featuring John W. Maye Jr. of Greenville as speaker.

Maye, a 1969 graduate of C. M. Eppes High School, holds a bachelor of science degree in political science from A & T State University, Greensboro. He has earned master's degrees in counselor education and educational administration from East Carolina University.

Maye, presently employed as an alcohol and drug educator for the Pitt County and Greenville City Schools, is a member of several professional, social and religious organizations.

PREACHING SUNDAY

Elder Ernest Jones will preach at St. Matthew F.W.B. Church Sunday at 11:00 a.m. Music will be provided by choir no. 2. The public is invited to attend.

Judge Cites Low Regard

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The average citizen, according to a state appeals court judge, has less regard for the judicial branch of government than for the executive and legislative branches. He said the judicial branch of government has fallen behind the other two branches in terms of respect.

Judge Harry C. Martin told an audience at the North Carolina Bar Association's annual meeting Thursday that there were several keys to the disfavor the judicial system has fallen into.

"People are tired of being called as jurors and waiting a week at the courthouse without serving on a case; victims of crime and witnesses must come to court time and time again when cases are continued and not tried.

"Criminals are often provided free housing, food and medical care while victims of crime are left to shift for themselves after many times being violently assaulted and grievously injured," Martin said.

He said the legal system would be "much better off with the appellate courts devoting their energies and time to worthwhile questions presented on appeal rather than being occupied with frivolous, meritless appeals which occupy so much of the court's time."

The Pitt County Epilepsy Association will meet Thursday, June 28, 7:30 p.m. in the Willis Building, Greenville, not Thursday, June 21, as stated in Thursday's edition of "The Daily Reflector."

Only One TB Center In 1981

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina will be left with only one center for the treatment of tuberculosis after 1980, it was learned by an Asheville newspaper Thursday.

A 50-bed, in-patient unit for tuberculosis patients will be phased out by April of next year. The facility was to be located at Western Carolina Hospital in Black Mountain.

The Asheville Citizen learned of the closing from a memorandum dated June 11, from Dr. Roy Berry of Raleigh, head of the Tuberculosis Control Branch at the Division of Health Services, to Jack C. Ellison, administrative director of the WNC Specialty Hospital.

The memo was obtained through a disgruntled employee at the hospital, who said the phase out contradicted promises made by state Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow.

The McCain unit will serve as the state's lone TB treatment center.

WOMEN'S DAY SERVICES
BLACK JACK — Burney Chapel F. W. B. Church will celebrate its annual Women's Day services Sunday, June 24, 11 a.m., with Mrs. Willie Hawkins as guest speaker.

The Rev. James H. Wilkes, pastor, and the congregation will close out quarterly meeting services at St. Monica Missionary Baptist Church, Grimesland, Sunday, 3 p.m. The public is invited to attend these services.

He Considers Handicap As An Inconvenience

By Parker Herring
DURHAM — Medical student John Ross-Duggan had everything going for him. Bright, handsome, from an affluent family, he was a third-year medical student at Duke University and planned to become an orthopedic surgeon.

He was an avid tennis player. He was national champion in the hobie-cat 16-foot sailing class. He was looking forward to competing in the world sailing championship in Mexico in September, 1978.

The native Californian surfed, skied and played on the Duke volleyball team. He stayed in shape and could bench press 250 pounds. He also like fine cars that traveled fast.

On a warm summer night in June, 1978, after completing the national board examinations, Ross-Duggan and a woman friend were driving to Chapel Hill. His new car hit a bridge abutment on Cole Mill Road near the intersection of Interstate 85.

The car was cut in half, the back half spinning off into oncoming traffic. The front part remained tucked under the bridge.

A Duke surgeon, on his way to Duke Hospital, stopped at the scene of the accident to render assistance. Ross-

Duggan appeared dead, his head pinned under the jagged roof of the car.

Injuries sustained in the accident left him with all but a few of the muscles in his arms and shoulders paralyzed. The woman who was with him in the accident escaped with less severe injuries.

"I remember waking up on the third or fourth day after the accident and looking up at the ceiling," Ross-Duggan said. "I heard the humming of the respirators and people walking around and thought to myself, 'The hell with this. I'm going to go back to sleep. This is a really bad dream.'"

When he woke again later, he was still in the same place, the neurologic intensive care unit at Duke Medical Center. His neck was immobilized by a halo, a steel ring brace around his head held in place by steel screws secured in his skull.

"I remember wondering what my arm was doing because the halo kept me from looking down," Ross-Duggan said. "I was so weak I couldn't even scratch my nose. I had to ask the nurses to do it for me."

He stayed on the unit for ten days.

"I was still in the NICU when I first realized that I couldn't move. I think it was about seven to ten days after the accident," he said. "There was severe pain. The halo device constricted my breathing because it was bound to my chest. Everything is fuzzy now."

He later was transferred to the Durham Rehabilitation Unit where he stayed from late July until December. Last January, he returned to the medical center to complete the clinical rotations required to get his medical degree.

"The nursing, physical and occupational therapy staffs gave me excellent care," noted Ross-Duggan. "They've all got to be saints. You have no conception of how frustrating it is to work with someone in my position. Full rehabilitation is achieved usually in patients that are tremendously motivated and only after working hard for about 12 months."

Ross-Duggan said he set a goal for himself to rehabilitate in six months and managed to work up to his potential in about five and a half.

"By far the therapy and the dedication to rehabilitate represent the hardest work I've ever had to do," he said. "A major part of my motivation to rehabilitate was to return to medical school and continue my career."

His first clinical rotation after the accident was in outpatient psychiatry. Since then, he has done clinical rotations in neuroradiology, neurosurgery and neurology.

"None of the patients I've come in contact with have ever hinted that they were uncomfortable because I was in a wheelchair," Ross-Duggan noted. "They look right past the wheelchair and accept my help and counsel."

Ross-Duggan said a lot of things have to come together for a spinal cord injury patient to be rehabilitated to fullest potential.

"You have to have a lot of support from your family and friends," he said. "And having faith helps. I became a Christian on the NSU (neurosurgical unit.) It helps to have a future, a goal to strive for. That goal for me was coming back to finish medical school."

He is able to write more clearly than before with the aid of a splint that fits over his wrist and hand. He also drives his own van, specially equipped with hand controls and a motorized wheelchair lift.

An apartment on Duke's west campus was adapted for his use. The bath and kitchen were remodeled to accommodate wheelchair passage, the light switches and thermostat were lowered, and a special number-coded lock was installed on the front door. An electric bed allows him to sit up so he can get out of bed into a wheelchair unassisted.

"With the scant muscles I have left, I can completely dress myself, blow dry my hair and catheterize myself," he said. "I'm now rehabilitated to the point that I can support my own body weight to get through an eight to ten hour day in a wheelchair."

He has learned how to resume one of his favorite sports, weight lifting. He can now curl about 70 pounds.

Dr. Frank Clippinger, director of the rehabilitation unit, was one of several Duke doctors who worked with Ross-Duggan after the accident.

"Experience will help him develop even more," Clippinger said. "Time and mileage are going to continue to make him better."

He said the outlook for spinal cord injury patients has improved in recent years.

"Twenty-five years ago a person who broke his neck could expect to live about three or four years," he said. "And a paraplegic could expect to live for eight to 10 years. Now longevity is about normal for both."

Clippinger said Duke's rehabilitation program pushes for early progress and also stresses a positive attitude for the patients.

"We don't like to give patients a lot of time to lie there and get depressed," he said. "Ironically, the woman who was in the accident with Ross-Duggan was already interested in developing adaptive devices for paralyzed patients. A biomedical engineer, she hopes to get a medical degree so she can actively participate in rehabilitative care."

"The field of rehabilitative medicine is in dire need of motivated individuals who also have an interest in doing research," Ross-Duggan said. "Every year 10,000 people in this country become paralyzed. The nation is slowly adapting to the needs of the handicapped, but is far from accepting it."

Pennsylvania Dutch Famous For Cookery

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer
 One balmy summer day about three decades ago, the Pennsylvania Dutch housewives of Kutztown whipped up a batch of pigs' feet, pepper cabbage and shoo-fly pie, then threw a party. Before long, more than 200,000 visitors were showing up for dinner each year at Kutztown or at spreads in the Pennsylvania communities of Hershey and Lancaster.

Food is the keystone of most festivals and some of the most unusual fare in America is served at these Pennsylvania Dutch outings which run from July until the first frost.

Usually the visitor gets into the spirit of things listening to folk tales in dialect common to the Amish and their neighbors, inspecting hex signs and playing spin-the-bottle. He is then ushered to a table laden with dishes for which the area is famous.

First come the traditional seven sweets and seven sours, including corn relish, spiced cantaloupe jam and hard-boiled eggs pickled in beet juice.

Then follows the main meal, a many-splendored thing featuring such specialties as oatmeal scrapple, hot onion pie, and Schnitz and Gnepp — which consists of dried apples and raised dumplings.

Anyone still able to manipulate a fork is offered a gooey assortment of desserts headed up by shoo-fly pie, a mixture of brown sugar, spices and molasses among other things.

Housewives take their cooking seriously in this bountiful land peopled by descendants of Protestant religious sects who began coming over from Germany in the 17th century. The word Dutch has nothing to do with Holland but is a corruption of Deutsch, which means "German."

The area is famed for its farmers' markets which offer lush vegetables, fruits, preserves, pickles, hams, sausages, cheese and butter.

This is the land of rich, homemade noodles, and pies of every variety including corn pie, a robust main dish that is really not pie. Here is the recipe.

- 8 slices bacon, halved
 - 2 cups dried bread crumbs
 - 1 green pepper, diced
 - 2 cups fresh tomatoes, chopped
 - 3 cups raw corn kernels cut off the cob
 - 1 cup boiled ham, diced
 - 1/2 cup beef bouillon
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1 teaspoon sugar
- Place 4 slices bacon in bottom of shallow, 2-quart casserole. Top with half of bread crumbs. Add in layers green pepper, tomatoes, corn and ham which have been seasoned with salt, pepper and sugar. Sprinkle remaining bread crumbs over top and cover with remaining bacon. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven 30 minutes. Pour bouillon over pie. Cook another 30 minutes till top is lightly browned. Serves 6.

Sometimes, Father Doesn't Know Best

By Abigail Van Buren
 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: At 82, father is becoming increasingly frail and forgetful. He has substantial means and has lived alone with a housekeeper since Mother died five years ago. I am his only child (a daughter) with a family of my own. I've invited him to live with me but he's reluctant to give up the home he's lived in for so many years.

Now the problem: Some former friends who wronged Dad in business years ago have suddenly started to visit him regularly. They've introduced him to a young member of their family and he has become quite infatuated with her. The dollar signs in her eyes are obvious to me, but not to Dad.

I don't want to deprive my father of any real happiness in his last years, but neither do I want him to fall prey to these opportunists I do not trust. What, if anything, should I do?
 CONCERNED IN CALIF.

DEAR CONCERNED: How much your father should be protected "for his own good" and whether he's competent to make his own decisions are proper questions to discuss with his lawyer and physician. In the meantime, spend as much time with your father as possible but resist the temptation to bad-mouth his new friends.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you will put this letter in your own words and tell my husband that he needs help. He won't listen to me.

He is 60 pounds overweight and, to make matters worse, a diabetic. He has a wonderful family who loves him very much. Whenever one of us reminds him that he needs to lose weight, he says, "So if I die, you will be left well-off."

Please, please, help us to help him. He is a dear and wonderful person. I want him around to see his grandchildren grow up, and he won't be around if he doesn't take better care of himself.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: An obese person knows he needs to lose weight, and being constantly reminded of it will only make him feel guilty — which will make him feel rotten, which will cause him to eat to feel better.

If he chooses to dig his own grave with his fork, no one can stop him. But if he really wants to help himself, let him write to me and I'll tell him what to do.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful diamond ring which was given to me by my mother-in-law when I became engaged. It was given to her by her mother-in-law, so I consider it a priceless heirloom.

When the time comes, I will offer the ring to my son for his bride — and that poses a problem because I have twin sons!

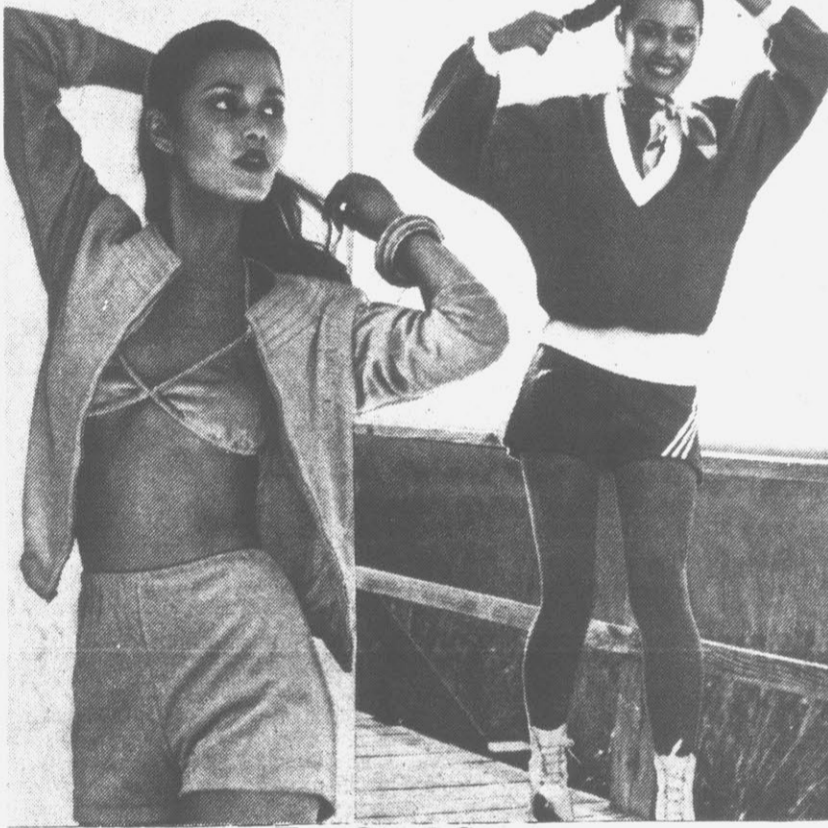

How should it be decided twin which gets the ring? Should it go to the first-born twin? Or should they draw straws for it?

They are only 17 now, so I have time to make that decision, but I would appreciate your suggestions.
 MOTHER OF TWINS

DEAR MOTHER: The son who becomes engaged first should inherit the ring. And if the twins should announce a double engagement, let them draw straws.

Understanding, Up To A Point

Truckers' in some areas are blockading food and fuel terminals in an effort to dramatize their plight of being caught in a rapidly rising fuel cost situation.

Anyone paying the bill for gassing up the family car can sympathize.

Nevertheless the truckers' actions are causing great hardship for other segments of our society. Perishables are rotting in the fields and many retailers are left without some products to sell. The products, in turn, are not available to the consumer.

How much better it would be to sit down at a conference table and work the problems out. It is obvious the truckers can't do their job without an adequate compensation and adequate fuel supplies, but at the same time the violent ways of recent days are not the answer.

Ever Since Colonial Carolina Times

An age-old process has begun in Pitt County — that of harvesting tobacco.

It's been going on since Colonial times, and right up to the mid-twentieth century the work changed little. It involved farm hands breaking the leaves off by hand and placing them in a mule-drawn "truck" for transportation to the loopers.

Now it's done mostly with mechanical harvesters and usually taken to bulk barns. It's more efficient, but the result is the same — the finest flue cured leaf in the world.

THIS AFTERNOON

Highway Planning

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There are already strong indications that more North Carolinians will be spending their summer holidays playing, touring and enjoying their own Variety Vacationland than in the past.

Some resort areas in the state report that Tar Heel license plates are more in evidence this year than in the past, while visitors from other states appear somewhat fewer.

Gov. Jim Hunt took note of this situation when he spoke recently to the annual meeting of the Better Transportation for North Carolina association. "Will more and more of our own people vacation at home, and fewer and fewer people from other states visit North Carolina during the tourist season in the years to come?"

"This could have profound implications for our highway planning as well as our plans for promoting and developing the tourist business," Gov. Hunt suggested to membership of the organization of businessmen concerned with roadbuilding and other aspects of transportation in the state.

Study Set

The tourism question is on the agenda for consideration by a special study commission which the governor will name to study the state's transportation picture and report back with recommendations in 1981.

Running through the various problems which now face the state's transportation system because of inflation, energy shortages, and changing lifestyles, Gov. Hunt proposed that the many years in which North Carolina has prided herself on being "the Good Roads State" should now be replaced by a reputation as the "Good Transportation State."

The study commission will conduct public hearings and talk with local governmental officials in reviewing all aspects of the transportation situation: urban and rural buses, rail, carpooling, air transportation, the changing size and use of private vehicles, etc.

The end product, Hunt says, will be "a lasting contribution not just to the transportation system, but to our total effort to build a better life for this and future generations of North Carolinians."

For transportation, he reminded, is an integral part of building a balanced economy, especially as emphasis is placed on growth in small town and rural sections.

BILL NOBLITT

Other topics to be probed include whether the State Highway Patrol should continue to be funded with highway funds (about a penny of the state gasoline tax), and whether there is "something practical we can do that we aren't doing to save more lives and fuel through enforcement of the 55 mile-an-hour speed limit," Hunt said.

Money

Then there is the matter of money to pay for continued building and maintaining of roads and the other transportation initiatives.

Hunt stopped short of endorsing a higher gasoline tax in the state, but admitted that future gas tax revenues are uncertain because cars are getting better gas mileage, people are driving less, and even further change is expected in the future.

The study group will have to look at this tax problem, Hunt said, but "must keep in mind that the consumer is hit just as hard by inflation as our transportation program is — particularly at the gas pump."

But the top consideration, Gov. Hunt cautioned is that "We simply cannot permit a weakening of our transportation program to threaten our balanced growth policy, which produces jobs for our people where they want to live and work."

"Sorry about the tie-up... but now that I have your attention, good buddies..."

Teddy In The Mirror

WASHINGTON — Teddy Kennedy looked into the mirror as he was shaving and said, "I have no intention of running for President of the United States."

He shook his head. "I have no intention of opposing President Carter for the nomination in 1980."

It still didn't sound right. "I have no intention of opposing President Carter if he is the nominee for President in 1980, and I believe he will be."

It needed a little bit more work.

"I stand by my previous statement that I am not a candidate for the Presidency. I have full confidence in President Carter and will support him at the appropriate time."

He was still shaving the left side of his face. "I have only one ambition in life and that is to serve the people of Massachusetts."

He almost cut himself on that one.

"I have not given my blessing to any Draft Kennedy movement in the country. At the same time I cannot stop people from doing these things on their own."

He was now shaving under his chin. He paused, then looked in the mirror. "The Democrats already have a presidential candidate for 1980, and his name is Jimmy Carter."

He thought about that for a moment and rejected it. Then he said, "I don't know how many times I must answer the question, but I will try once more. There is no conceivable way I would enter the presidential race as long as Mr. Carter is in it."

He started shaving the right side of his face.

Pact's Senate Threat

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate does not customarily reject treaties outright — but it has been known to amend them to oblivion. And that is the administration's real problem in the campaign for SALT II.

If President Carter and his allies can guide the pact to the point of final approval without major changes — which would require new negotiations with the Soviet Union — they've probably won.

But getting it there is going to be difficult. Some of the people Carter most needs on his side, including Senate Republican Leader Howard H.

THE GALLUP POLL

Congress' Rating Lower

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Jimmy Carter's popularity rating has declined to a new low point, with 29 percent expressing approval of his performance in office.

His latest approval score, recorded in a survey completed prior to the SALT II conference in Vienna represents a decline of 17 percentage points in less than three months' time.

The president's current rating is lower than that recorded for five of his seven immediate predecessors. Only the ratings of Presidents Nixon and Truman reached a lower point.

Carter's current approval rating, however, is 10 points higher than the 19 percent approval rating given Congress — 10 points lower than the congressional rating in September 1978.

The president has been under mounting criticism for his conduct of domestic affairs and in turn has been highly critical of the Congress for refusing to enact his energy legislation and for opposing his efforts to deal with inflation.

Here is the question asked to measure the president's popularity:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Carter is handling his job as president?"

The national results and by party:

Approval Of President
	Approve	Disapprove	No opinion
NATIONAL	29%	56%	15%
Democrats	36	49	15
Republicans	20	68	12
Independents	26	58	16

President Carter's current rating is higher than the low points recorded for Nixon (24 percent) and Truman (23 percent), but lower than those recorded for Ford (37 percent), Kennedy (56 percent), Eisenhower (48 percent) and Roosevelt (54 percent).

Here is the question asked during the last five years to measure the popularity of Congress:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Congress is handling its job?"

Here are the latest results — nationally and by political affiliation:

Approval Of Congress
	Approve	Disapprove	No opinion
NATIONAL	19%	61%	20%
Democrats	20	61	19
Republicans	17	67	16
Independents	21	61	18

Following is the trend since April 1974 when the current measurement was started:

Trend In Approval Of Congress
LATEST	19%
Sept. 1978	29
June 1977	34
May 1977	40
March 1977	36
Jan. 1976	28
July 1975	29
April 1975	38
Feb.-March 1975	32
Aug. 1974	48
April 1974	30

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,512 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period June 1-4.

Strength For Today

FULL TIME, OR PART TIME?

We sometimes hear some people referred to as full-time religious workers while others referred to as part-time workers.

If by full-time and part-time in this context we mean professionals who are carrying out certain organized programs related to religion, then the designation is quite normal and carries no unfortunate connotations. But a great many people are part-time religious workers in the sense that they only work at the project of serving God when it meets their convenience, when it does not interfere with their pleasure, and does not restrain their avarice.

A person who works only part time as his or her religion might just as well stop working at it at all and give time and energy to something more profitable.

All people cannot be professional religious workers — nor should they be. But everyone should recognize that unless religion works all of the time it really does not work any of the time.

Bragging Begins In 3rd Year

By GAIL MICHAELS

Bragging is an affliction which strikes some time in the third year.

It's highly contagious, the period of incubation is anywhere from one hour to two months, and there is no known cure.

The duration of the disease varies. Some people recover during their elementary school years. Others suffer their entire lives.

The major symptom is the sudden assumption of an unwarranted air of superiority followed by an earth-shattering announcement along the lines of, "I'm bigger than you."

Now, parents can hold bragging in check to a certain extent, but they are no more responsible for its onset than they are for a case of chicken pox. Only a child raised in isolation can escape contagion.

But as ubiquitous and as potentially dangerous as this disease is, its initial development is highly amusing.

Meg began developing symptoms soon after she came into contact with an adorable but slightly prissy five year old beauty who wears high-heeled sandals. Meg was consumed with awe.

It didn't matter that the heels on Meg's sandals were exactly the same height as those of her friend's; when her friend said, "You are still too young to wear high heels like mine," Meg swallowed it whole.

Pretty soon, Meg was trying to brag, too. But since she doesn't have a brother or sister to practice on, she was woefully clumsy.

Her first venture was a comment on her new jungle gym.

"It's bigger than yours," she told another little friend.

"I don't think so," this friend said.

Meg was bewildered. She hadn't expected opposition. She thought for a moment, and said, "Well, maybe it's smaller."

Her next venture was hardly more successful. She was playing with yet a third friend when she suddenly said, "My mother is the most beautifullest lady in the whole world."

"No, she's not," her friend said vehemently. "My mother is."

"She's not either. My mother is."

"No, she's not!"

I must admit that the argument had bolstered my ego up to this point, but then Meg screwed up her nose and said, "Well, what do you think she looks like then? A witch?"

"Um-huh."

"But she doesn't have a hat."

"Not all witches wear hats, silly."

I waited for Meg to defend me. She paused. "Yeah," she said. "I guess you're right." I hate to admit it, but if she doesn't get better at this, she's going to destroy my confidence.

Speaker On Sunday

Ronald Rice, president of the Pitt County Association of Retarded Citizens, will be guest on "Mental Health Matters" Sunday at 1:06 p.m. on WNCT radio. According to Rice, ARC is a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving the general well-being of all mentally retarded children and adults.

Rice will discuss the organization's work to inform the public about our special population. A monthly newsletter, educational materials, and monthly meetings are sources of public education, he states.

Pitt County ARC has lent support to day care facilities at Grifton, WAG, Farmville FCDC, Greenville ADAP, and for REAP as well as Special Olympics and other special programs for the retarded. Rice will also discuss the association's search for a site for a group home and the relationship of ARC to Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Baker Jr., are saying the treaty will have to be amended in order to gain the two-thirds vote required to approve ratification. Not even the most ardent critics of the treaty Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev signed in Vienna will confess to being against arms limitation in principle. But to a senator, they say they will oppose any pact that does not safeguard American security, and argue that SALT II does not meet that standard. President Carter, of course, insists that it does. Indeed, he argues that SALT II would make a positive contribution to U.S. security. But security, in the age of nuclear standoff, is in the eye of the beholder. When senators like Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., behold SALT, they see appeasement. Carter told Congress Monday night the treaty "will become the most exhaustively discussed

... of our time, perhaps of all time." The president said administration experts will discuss every detail, and he will personally "explain it throughout our nation, to every American who will listen." The opposition will be doing the same thing. Because of its timing, the treaty debate will rapidly become blended with the politics of 1980, for the Senate will be considering it late into the fall, and it is not impossible that the final votes will come early in 1980, as the campaign for the White House begins in earnest. So the president has political as well as diplomatic prestige at stake. Unless he can get the Senate to approve the treaty without significant change, he enters the campaign with a dent in his image.

By the time all the words are uttered and it comes time to vote, a good many people are likely to be thoroughly confused. The SALT treaty is long, complex, and contested on point after point. What one side calls a contribution to peace and American well being, the other side calls a sellout — and on the same set of facts. It's enough to make an administration lobbyist yearn for the simpler days of the Panama Canal treaties, when the issue was as clear and simple as it was emotional. The canal deal was yes or no, give up the waterway to Panama or refuse to yield it. The Senate said yes. The arms accord is a collection of maybes, despite the fact that, as Carter noted, it puts equal ceilings on the strategic arsenals of both sides.

Pitt Board Held Meet

The Pitt County Area Mental Health Board met Wednesday at 4 p. m. at the Center.

Dr. Stephen K. Creech, Area Director, reported on minority utilization, energy conservation and program update. Ray Rogers reported on mental retardation; Dr. Malene Irons on children; William McDonald on alcohol and drug abuse; John Mewborn on adult services; and Robert Martin on personnel and finance.

A program report on apartment living was given by Ms. Ester Davis of the N. C. Association for the Emotionally Troubled.

Area Board appointments and election of officers were also included on the agenda.

Advices Apply Before July 1

Larry Harrison, state revenue officer, urges taxpayers who are liable for state privilege licenses to apply before July 1.

According to Harrison, timely applications for licenses, together with the correct remittance, should be mailed to the North Carolina Department of Revenue, P. O. Box 25000, Raleigh, N. C. 27640, or submitted to the local North Carolina Department of Revenue office.

Harrison advises that the penalty for failure to comply for each delinquent month, or fraction thereof, will be five percent after July 2.

Teddy went into the bedroom, put on his shirt and tie and his jacket and then looked at his watch. He had another two minutes before one of his aides would pick him up.

He went back into the bathroom and took a final look into the mirror. He smiled and said, "On the other hand..."

Growing Share Favor Women In Priesthood

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Although the tactics have turned more diplomatic, the drive for admission of women to the Roman Catholic priesthood is gathering force, with a rising share of American Catholics favoring it.
While those doing so still are a minority, a new Gallup poll finds that they now amount to 40 percent, a figure that has risen steadily and swiftly from 36 percent in 1977 and 29 percent in 1974.
At the same time, nuns and other groups of church women have joined in new, widely inclusive coalitions to press for official re-examination of the issue.
As part of a "Second Argument Project," a petition bearing 13,000 signatures was presented to U.S. Catholic bishops at their spring meeting in Chicago, urging them to seek such reconsideration.
It asked them to seek "withdrawal of the second argument" set forth in the 1977 declaration by the Vatican's congregation of doctrine that women cannot be ordained because they lack "natural resemblance" to Christ.
"This argument demeans all women and priests by claiming that male physical sexuality is the fundamentally important element in the priestly representation of the church," the petition says.
Its signatories were gathered by a newly formed Women of the Church Coalition, made up of 13 women's and social justice groups, and presented to Bishop Michael F. McAuliffe of Jef-erson City, Mo., head of a bishops' committee on women.

Another coalition of eight national sisters organizations, called Sisters Uniting, urged continued dialogue on the issue, saying they question the "theological reasoning" of the Vatican declaration.
Meanwhile, the new Gallup poll, commissioned by Preists for Equality and the Quixote Center in Mt. Ranier, Md., found that while support for women priests is growing among Catholics, "strong opposition" has declined from 47 percent in 1974 to 36 percent in 1979.

It also found the proportion favoring such ordinations have topped the half-way mark in several categories.
On the other hand, a recent reader survey by U.S. Catholic, a magazine published by the Claretian Fathers in Chicago, found a majority already favored women's ordination — 57 percent.
The 1977 Vatican declaration has been challenged by numerous church scholars, including the noted German theologian Karl Rahner who says its "argumentation is inadequate."
It is "not a definitive ruling, but may be revised in principle," he says. It was issued despite a finding shortly beforehand by the Vatican's Pontifical Biblical Commission that there were no Scriptural obstacles to ordination of women.
Some Vatican experts say the basic case against such ordinations actually is not Scripture or theology, but practicality — that it would hamper unity efforts with Eastern Orthodox, which strongly opposes women priests, and that it would have a negative impact in Third World areas of male-dominated cultures.

Introduce New Worship Book

Our Redeemer Lutheran Church will be introducing the new "Lutheran Book of Worship" to the congregation this summer with a series of three music workshops on June 24, July 29, and August 26, all Sundays.
A period of instruction and performance of the new liturgies will be followed by a dessert fellowship. The present Service Book has been in use since 1958, with the new "Book of Worship" a product of the Joint Inter-Lutheran Commission on Worship. The new worship book will eventually be used by over six million Lutherans in North America, representing three major Lutheran Church bodies. The pastor, R. Graham Nahouse, invites the public to attend these workshops.

There is a drama to surgery unequalled by almost anything else. This really is life and death, and sometimes the balance is incredibly slight.
The operating room team is highly trained, the surgeon is supremely skilled. His hands are a marvel to watch, his technique flawless. Yet no one knows better than he that, in this critical moment, there is a much higher authority involved.
Before he entered the room he paused for a moment, in silent prayer. He asked for God's guidance, as he always does. His patient is now in two sets of hands; one human, one divine.
Have you ever stopped to think how many people who do important things are regular churchgoers? They have realized, long since, the need to go beyond themselves.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — POLITICAL CLOWN WILL TRY ANY PARTY.
Today's Cryptiquip cine: Y equals N
The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

clubs, and claimed the balance.

East observed that the lead of the ace of clubs and another would have allowed him to ruff for a one-trick set. West retorted vehemently that this was the talk of a result merchant. "Every expert will tell you that the indiscriminate lead of an unsupported ace against a suit contract is a bridge crime."

West was correct in every respect. The key is the word "indiscriminate" in the advice he quoted. On this hand, however, the rationale for leading the ace of clubs was overwhelming.

For his jump to three no trump, North was likely to hold length and strength in clubs. South's bidding marked him with at least five clubs. By simple arithmetic, therefore, it can be deduced that East has no more than one club, if any. If he also has a trump, he will be able to ruff the second round of clubs.

This just proves that an ounce of imagination is worth a pound of maxims.

Servile adherence to the broad principles of bridge as laid down by the authorities will enable the average player to get by with a reasonable degree of success. But to become a master, individual cases must be dealt with in their own special light.

East elected to open with his shorter major so that he could bid both suits without reversing. After a vigorous auction with three of the four players bidding their distributional values to the hilt, North had to make a decision over five hearts. Since his heart values were not substantial, he elected to pass to see what South would do. When South bid on, North corrected to his partner's first-bid suit. West's double was out of pique, though he might have reached the same conclusion with sound reasoning.

West was quite certain that declarer was void of hearts, so he elected to lead a spade. When the king of diamonds appeared on the first lead of the suit from dummy, the hand was over. Declarer drew trumps, conceded a trick to the ace of

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to wind up physical activities that require your attention and then plan a more efficient course of action to follow for the future. Secrets come to light later in the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good time to contact an expert who can show you how to become more productive in your career. Improve your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Attend to monetary matters you have been procrastinating about and you will soon feel more safe and secure.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Tap your subconscious mind for novel ideas that can be made to work profitably for you. Establish more harmony at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of new duties now so you will have more free time in the days ahead. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Seek new friends who will cooperate with you in whatever your plans may be. Don't permit an outsider to take advantage of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle those outside tasks and be efficient at them. Being very active today and keep boredom away. Express happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Talk over your personal goals with close friends and they will help you attain them. Be less critical of others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more aware of your responsibilities and handle them more efficiently. Discuss the future with family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to understand what others expect of you and then carry through wisely. Control your temper at all times.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Schedule your time and activities well so you can accomplish more. Sidestep one who is detrimental to your progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Think over what needs to be done to make the future happier for yourself. Take time to engage in favorite hobby.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The morning is fine for going after personal goals, but be sure to finish one project before you take on another.

IF YOUR CHILD IS HORN TODAY... he or she will do well in such fields as publicity, writing and sales. Be sure to find ways to make your progeny complete whatever has been started and then there can be real success during lifetime. Sports are a good outlet here.

Police Reluctant To Carry Intruder

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte police were a bit reluctant to haul in an intruder at Earl Oxendine's drug store Wednesday morning, even after firefighters and policemen took three hours to pull the man out of a vent.

Oxendine told the police they should let Brian Peters, 24, stay inside the vent. The police almost obliged.

When they finally pulled Peters out, he was so dirty and greasy from being stuck inside the narrow airways that policemen didn't want the upholstery inside their cruisers to get dirty either.

Park Bldg. Needs Help

GRIFTON — Help with furnishing the new Grifton Town Park Building is still needed, according to Recreation Commission chairman Janet Haseley.

Worktables, chairs, stools, card tables, drapes, shelves and any item of furniture can be used. Monetary donations would also aid in paying for some of the necessary fixtures.

The Grifton Jaycees have been working all last week and over the weekend to close in the end of the building, hang grids for the ceiling, and install ceiling tiles. They also installed the sink unit and hooked up the water cooler.

Several businesses and families have donated needed items for the building, but more help is needed. Donations made to the Town of Grifton Recreation Account and are tax-deductible. For more information, contact Mrs. Haseley, 524-4356.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly today, adding to Thursday's moderate gains.

Advances led declines by an 8-5 margin in the mid-day count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 3.81 Thursday, rose 1.21 to 844.85 by noontime today.

Analysts said the $2.6 billion decline in the money supply reported by the Federal Reserve late Thursday helped keep the rally going.

The drop eased fears, provoked by a record $6.9 billion increase the week before, that the Fed might soon tighten credit further.

Meanwhile, Wall Streeters were cautiously awaiting next Tuesday's meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to set pricing and production policies.

Bally Manufacturing, which holds a dominant position in the slot-machine market, fell 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 after a 2 1/2-point drop Thursday. New Jersey authorities ruled that casinos in Atlantic City may not purchase more than half their slot machines from any single producer.

Chrysler Corp. was delayed in opening. The company and Volkswagenwerk denied reports that Volkswagen planned a 15-a-share offer for Chrysler.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose 19 to 58.10. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value in dex was up 27 at 200.10.

Slain Woman A Former Pitt Resident

Lyra Rosamond McCanness, 26, who was murdered in Transylvania County in the mountains of North Carolina Sunday, June 3, was a former resident of Pitt County.

According to Detective Jim Stroup of the Transylvania County Sheriff Department, Miss McCanness and a female companion, Mrs. Rebecca Ferguson Coleman, were setting up camp at White Waterfalls Scenic Overlook Area in Jackson County when both allegedly were shot by a Transylvania County resident identified as Ronald Felix Brewer, 35. Mrs. Coleman, who survives, told officers she and Miss McCanness had stopped Sunday evening at a trailer home occupied by Brewer and asked directions to a camping area. He had suggested the White Waterfalls area and apparently followed them there. Detective Stroup said Brewer apparently pushed the women's car over a precipice into a ravine and took them back to his home in his vehicle. He and his brother, identified as Harry Allen Brewer, 43, who lived in an adjacently located trailer, both are charged with first degree rape — Ronald with two counts, Harry with one.

Mrs. Coleman had 19 entrance and exit gunshot wounds in her body, but remained conscious. Miss McCanness died at the trailer. She had two wounds in the back, Stroup said.

Mrs. Coleman told officers that Monday morning she talked Ronald Brewer into taking her to the Transylvania Community Hospital in Brevard, but his vehicle ran out of gas on the way. He apparently went to a nearby house and told the residents that someone had been shot. These people called the Sheriff Department.

Deputies found Mrs. Coleman in the car and Brewer was arrested. They then went to the Brewer home, found Miss McCanness's body, and arrested Harry Brewer at his home. Stroup said both women were residents of Asheville. Miss McCanness was a former East Carolina University student and a former resident of Grimesland.

Stroup said Ronald Brewer is in Henderson County Jail without bond. His probable cause hearing is set for July 6. According to Detective Stroup, he probably will face additional charges, including kidnapping. Harry Brewer has been sent to Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh for observation, Stroup indicated.

L.A. Led By Yeager

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tom Lasorda was having lunch...and it came to him while passing the pasta.

"I had a feeling about putting Steve Yeager back behind home plate," said the manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

So Lasorda made up the lineup card Thursday night, writing in the name of his troubled catcher. And the decision looked like solid gold after Yeager blasted a three-run homer to help the slump-ridden Dodgers beat the Atlanta Braves 6-4.

"You always feel better when you contribute," said Yeager, who went into the game batting a horrendous .151. "I know things have been bad for us so far, but it's just a matter of some of the guys on this team turning their seasons around."

Yeager is one of the keys, of course. A longtime first-stringer who helped the Dodgers win two straight National League pennants, he has been generally ineffective so far this year and has missed a lot of action.

Before the game, Lasorda had a heart-to-heart talk with Yeager.

"I told him I didn't think he was putting all his ability to good use," said Lasorda.

Lasorda also got a good night out of Reggie Smith, another problem-plagued member of the Dodgers, currently struggling in fourth place in the NL West, six games under .500. Smith walloped a two-run homer and stole two bases.

"Reggie Smith just played hard," said Lasorda. "He knew he had to do the job. He reached back for that something extra tonight."

The game was the only one played in the National League Thursday night. In the American, the New York Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 3-1; the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Minnesota Twins 3-2; the Oakland A's outscored the Kansas City Royals 10-7; the Boston Red Sox edged the Detroit Tigers 3-2; the Chicago White Sox whipped the Seattle Mariners 9-5 and the Texas Rangers posted a 3-2 decision over the California Angels in 11 innings.

Dodger right-hander Don Sutton snapped a personal three-game losing streak with the help of the long-ball support from Yeager and Smith and four relief pitchers in the ninth.

Yeager belted his homer, his fifth of the year, off Atlanta starter Mickey Mahler in the fourth inning following a double by Ron Cey and a walk to Joe Ferguson. Smith's seventh homer of the season came after reliever Adrian Devine had walked Bill Russell in the fifth inning.

Sutton, 7-7, had lost his previous three starts but built his career record against the Braves to 31-11.

"I was flat-out lucky tonight," said Sutton. "I gave up four runs and wound up on the trainer's table in the ninth inning, and still won the game. Baseball sure is a crazy game."

Yankees 3, Blue Jays 1
Luis Tiant and two relievers scattered eight hits, leading New York over Toronto. The veteran right-hander worked into the eighth inning before surrendering a two-out double by Rico Carty. Jim Kaat came out of the bullpen to retire John Mayberry, then Ron Davis pitched the ninth and earned his second save.

The Yankees picked up all the runs they needed with two in the third against Dave Lemaczkyk. Al Woods dropped Jerry Narron's leadoff liner to left for an error, opening the door for an eventual RBI grounder by Fred Stanley and Bobby Brown's run-scoring single.

Brewers 3, Twins 2
Paul Molitor's bunt single with two out in the seventh inning scored Robin Yount from third base with the go-ahead run, leading Milwaukee over Minnesota.

Mike Caldwell pitched a five-hitter for the Brewers, who have won five straight games and seven of their last eight.

"Bunting is one of my tools — it's in my repertoire and I've got to use it," said Molitor. "I just knew if I made a good bunt there, we'd be ahead, 3-2."

A's 10, Royals 7
Tony Armas collected three hits, including a home run and a double, to lead Oakland over Kansas City. Winner Steve McCatty was forced to leave the game in the eighth inning, when the Royals scored four runs — two on George Brett's eighth home run of the season.

Bob Lacey relieved McCatty and in turn was followed in the ninth by Dave Heaverlo, who recorded his fifth save.

"I feel good enough to go out and get drunk," said Heaverlo. "I'd lost seven straight decisions and my last save came in April."

Red Sox 3, Tigers 2
Fred Lynn drove in Jerry Remy with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning, leading Boston over Detroit behind the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Eckersley.

Remy led off the Boston eighth with a single, stole second when he was apparently picked off first, took third on an infield out and scored on Lynn's line drive to deep right.

White Sox 9, Mariners 5
Lamar Johnson drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Milt May hit a solo homer to pace Chicago over Seattle, snapping the Mariners' four-game winning streak. Johnson's fourth homer of the year came with a man on and capped a five-run first inning against loser Joe Decker. Johnson also singled in a run in the third after Alan Bannister had doubled. May hit his third homer leading off the fourth, helping Francisco Barrios to his seventh victory.

Rangers 3, Angels 2
Jim Sundberg blooped a two-out single in the 11th inning to score Richie Zisk from third base and lead Texas past California.

Sparky Lyle, 4-6, pitched two shutout innings of relief for the victory.

NBA Gives Trial To 3-Pointer

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Is the 3-point goal a gimmick whose only purpose is to capture the fans' fancy or is it a sound refinement in the way the game of basketball is played?

The National Basketball Association hopes to find out next season, when it will give the controversial rule a one-year trial run.

The NBA's Board of Governors voted to adopt the 3-point goal on an experimental basis at the opening session of its annual summer meetings Thursday following a debate that Commissioner Larry O'Brien described as spirited.

"It was the NBA traditionalists debating those who have experienced the 3-point goal, particularly in the American Basketball Association," said O'Brien. "It finally passed by a very close vote, so close that one straw could have turned it the other way."

A two-thirds majority was needed for acceptance and one source pegged the vote at 15-7. The only reason it passed was because of the stipulation that this was a one-year experiment and that another two-thirds vote will be needed next year for it to be retained.

Under the rule, which is similar to that used by the ABA, 3 points will be awarded for any shot made from beyond a designated perimeter of the floor ranging from 22 feet to 23 feet, 9 inches.

Proponents of the rule claim it will give the trailing team a chance to catch up quicker, thus adding excitement to the game, and also that it will open up the middle and reduce contact around the basket. Those opposed contend that a basket is a basket and distance should not enter into the equation.

In another major move, the governors voted to go back to two-man refereeing teams after trying a three-referee system for one year. Although the NBA coaches and general managers and the league's Rules and Competitions Committee all voted in favor of keeping the extra official, the owners turned it down, primarily for financial reasons. "The board felt it did not have enough evidence that there had been satisfactory improvement in the officiating to warrant the expense of the extra referee," said O'Brien, who estimated the cost at $600,000.

Norm Drucker, the league's supervisor of officials and a former referee, said the NBA employed 38 officials last year. This number will be reduced to 26 or 27 for next season.

In other actions: —A proposal to legalize zone defenses was allowed to die in committee.

—A rule was passed requiring that all fines levied by the commissioner be paid by the person fined and not by the team.

—The NBA pledged its assistance to the U.S. Olympic Committee for 1980 and a report was heard from the expansion committee, which is currently holding hearings to determine which two cities will be added to the league for the 1980-81 season.

The governors also formally approved the sale of the Houston Rockets to George Maloof, but delayed confirmation of Jerry Buss as the new owner of the Los Angeles Lakers pending receipt of additional financial data.

Hunter Gains Irish Degree

SEATTLE (AP) — Al Hunter, a Seattle Seahawks' running back who was kicked off the Notre Dame football team following a dormitory incident three years ago, finally has graduated from the South Bend, Ind., school with a degree in economics.

Hunter, a two-year professional who wasn't allowed to complete his final season of college eligibility, refuses to discuss the dormitory incident, though.

"Any feelings I have are deep and personal," he said. Hunter, a 5-foot-11, 195-pounder from Greenville, N.C., was especially determined to obtain his degree.

"I'm very happy about it," he said. "When football is over, I'll like having my sheekins. It'll give me something to work on, either then or even while

Williamston Knocks Pitt Out Of First

WILLIAMSTON — After being knocked out of first place on Wednesday night, Williamston turned the tables and knocked Pitt County out of the lead last night in American Legion baseball, taking a 7-4 win.

The victory moved Williamston back on top by a half-game, with a 7-2 record. Pitt County and Rocky Mount are now tied for second with 6-2 marks.

Pitt County grabbed the initial lead, scoring a run in the top of the first. Mark Shank led off with a double and he came in when Will Barrett followed with a single.

But Williamston came right back to score three runs in the bottom of the first to move ahead for good. Hank Edwards singled and Randy Ellis brought him in with a triple. Trent Ange singled in Ellis, then stole up. He scored on Eldred McQueen's sacrifice.

In the second, Williamston upped the lead to 4-1. Grady Pinner singled and was sacrificed up.

He stole third and scored on an error on the play.

In the top of the third, Pitt County came back to score twice and cut the lead to 4-3. Skip Topping walked and Mark Douglas singled. Will Sanderson reached on an error, allowing both runners to score.

Williamston countered those runs with two of its own in the bottom of the inning. Ange opened with a double and scored when Joe Holley doubled. McQueen singled to score Holley.

Pitt County's final run came in the seventh. Douglas tripled and after Sanderson walked, Junior Neal singled to score the run.

Williamston got one more in the eighth. Wade Brabble got a hit and was sacrificed up. Marty Evans singled him to third and he scored on Doug Bowen's sacrifice fly.

Douglas led the Pitt hitting with three, while Neal had two. Edwards, Ellis, Ange, Holley and Brabble each had two hits for Williamston.

Pitt County returns home tonight to entertain Edenton, while Williamston travels to Goldsboro.

Snow Hill Tops Wayne By 11-6

SNOW HILL — After shaking off some early inning problems, Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team rolled to an 11-6 win over Wayne County last night.

Snow Hill is now 5-4 on the year, while Wayne County is 3-6.

Wayne County jumped away to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning. Joe Strouse reached on an error and stole second. Ron Page walked as did Terry Coates and Ron Pennington, forcing in Strouse. Craig Browne reached on a fielder's choice that was errored, scoring Rage. Mike Murrell then singled to score both Coates and Pennington.

Snow Hill came up with one on a freak play in the bottom of the first. Al Murray struck out on a passed ball and reached first. The throw down to right field, and Murray kept going. The relay went home, and then was overthrown at third base, and Murray kept coming, completing his circle of the bases for the run.

In the third, Wayne County added a fifth run. Pennington and Browne both reached on errors, and Murrell singled in Pennington.

In the fourth, Wayne ran its lead to 6-1 with another run. Ralph Mills walked and Strouse, seeking to sacrifice, reached on an error. Page walked and Pennington walked, forcing in Mills.

Snow Hill then came to life in the bottom of the fourth with four runs. Philip Gordon singled as did Alan Moore. Jeff Scott doubled in Gordon, and Kevin Korpi singled to score both Moore and Scott. Korpi moved up on the throw home, then took third on a passed ball. He scored on Robin Bowen's sacrifice fly. That cut the lead to 6-5.

In the fourth, Snow Hill added two more for the lead. Murray doubled and scored on a triple by Gordon. Korpi singled to score Gordon.

Snow Hill added three more in the sixth and one in the eighth for its 11 run total.

Gordon, Moore and Scott each had three hits, while Korpi and Murray had two each for Snow Hill. Murrell had two for Wayne County.

Snow Hill travels to Wilson on Saturday for its next game.

Foyt On Pocono Pole

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer
MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — "Somebody said I was sandbagging," grumbled A.J. Foyt after winning the pole position for Sunday's Music 500. "How do you sandbag 1-100th of a second?"

Foyt admits to being talented, but not talented enough to shave his qualifying run to within that minuscule fraction of a second of Danny Ongais' speed, posted earlier, in Thursday's opening round of time trials for the $375,000 event.

The 44-year-old Foyt averaged 182.334 miles an hour on his five-mile qualification effort while Ongais averaged 182.315 mph. Ongais had the fastest lap of the trials, 182.852 mph, but his first lap was considerably slower and pulled his average down.

"Sometimes it takes a lap to really get into it," Ongais offered. "As to the faster lap, we achieved a speed close to that only once before (in practice)." The speeds were well off the 1973 track record of 191.367 mph.

"My fastest laps in practice were about 179 and I was trying awful hard then," Foyt insisted. "We lowered the gear (ratio) before qualifying. I figured I'd have to really pick it up in (turns) one and two. I just gritted my teeth and hoped. I was just as surprised as the crew at how fast I went."

Despite driving on the edge of control for both laps, they were remarkably identical. Both laps times were 49.36 seconds, uncommonly consistent for such a flat-out run.

Billy Vukovich is second to Foyt in the U.S. Auto Club championship division's season point standings.

Foyt's run did not visibly distress the stony Ongais, or apparently surprise him.

"A.J. is capable of that whenever he goes," Ongais noted.

Johnny Parsons made it a front row of all former pole-position starters here. However, it was several decisive miles an hour down to Parsons' 179.104 mph run.

Newton Has Lead, But Watson Close Behind

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
OAKVILLE, Ont. (AP) — Jack Newton, with a record-setting 64, had the first-round lead in the $350,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament, but it was Tom Watson the other pros were watching.

"When Watson's in the field," observed Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, "you just say, 'Oh, hell, I'm playing for second again.' What a great player he is."

And even though he trailed Newton by two shots after the first 18 holes of this national championship, Watson, too, broke the old course record on the 7,050-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club layout.

Three others — Zoeller, slump-ridden Johnny Miller and two-time Canadian champion Lee Trevino — matched the old standard of 67.

"The course is in perfect condition. The weather was perfect," said Trevino, who chipped in for birdie on the final hole to gain his share of third place.

much advantage as we'd liked to have."

In addition to the five men who broke or tied the old record, Bob Murphy, Terry Diehl, Bob Lunn and D.A. Weibring were a single shot off at 68.

Recently-crowned U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, however, could do no better than a 72. Defending title-holder Bruce Lietzke shot par 71. And Gary Player, whose strong last round brought him a share of second in last week's American national championship, closed double bogey-double bogey for a fat 80.

North State Champs

The Lions captured the North State Little League championship for the fourth time over the last five years this season. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Tommy Moye, Michael Duncan,

Lions 9,
Jaycees 5

The North State Little League champ Lions gained a 9-5 victory over the Jaycees yesterday.

The Lions are now 12-2 in league play, while the Jaycees slumped to 6-8.

The Lions pushed over five in the first inning to take the lead for good. Mike Taylor walked and Patrick Rand singled. Tony Taylor then hit a two-run homer. Ralph Harper singled and Steven Garrett walked. Tom Moye singled in both runners.

In the second, the Lions added two more. Rand hit a solo homer to start it off. Calvin Pace reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. William Ward singled him in.

The Lions added two more in the fourth, getting one. Kenneth Butler reached on a two-base error and scored when Jordy Smith reached on an error.

The Jaycees scored in the fourth, getting one. Kenneth Butler reached on a two-base error and scored when Jordy Smith reached on an error.

The Jaycees added one in the fifth and three more in the sixth.

Rand and Tony Taylor led the Lion hitting with three each, while Carl Willie had two of the four Jaycee hits.

First Federal 12, Pepsi-Cola 7

First Federal stayed right in the race for the Tar Heel Little League title with a 12-7 win over Pepsi-Cola yesterday.

First Federal, 9-5, is the only team left with a chance to catch league-leading Big Value Drugs. Pepsi is now 6-8.

First Federal pushed over one in the second inning. Brian Joyner reached on a fielder's choice and Mark Holloman walked. Two wild pitches brought Joyner around.

In the third, First Federal added five more, boosting its lead to 6-0. Derek Dickens hit a two-run homer in that frame.

Pepsi came back with three in the top of the fourth. Paul Kelly singled and Clay Young walked. Fletcher Phillips also walked, loading the bases. A passed ball let Kelly score and Clark Stallings singled in Young. Phillips scored on a wild pitch.

First Federal came back with three in the bottom of the fourth to sew it up. Tyrone Barrett walked as did Ervin Best. Rickey Outlaw reached on an error, scoring Barrett. Dickens singled to load the bases, and Rodney Harris reached on an error, scoring Best. Holloman reached on a fielder's choice, bringing in Outlaw.

First Federal added three more in the fifth, while Pepsi got four in their half of the fifth.

Joey Hallow led the Pepsi hitting with two, while Dickens had two to pace First Federal.

Prep League

Dr. Pepper 8,
Cox Realty 3

Dr. Pepper rolled to an 8-3 win over Cox Realty in the Prep League last night.

Cox scored first, getting a run in the top of the first. Ted Stanley singled and stole both second and third. He scored on Mike Iaboni's single.

Dr. Pepper came up with one in the fourth. James Smith singled and stole second. Marvin Barrett singled to score him.

Dr. Pepper then added five more in the fifth. Calvin Bradley walked and stole second. Tony Daniels singled him in and also stole second. Jeff Anthony walked, but was put out at second when Andre Wooten reached on a fielder's choice. Ken Waters walked, loading the bases, and Marc Gatlin singled in both Daniels and Wooten. Waters scored on Smith's sacrifice fly and a wild pitch let Gatlin in.

Dr. Pepper added two more in the sixth, while Cox also scored two in the sixth. Gatlin and Barrett each had two hits for Dr. Pepper, while no one had more than one for Cox.

Babe Ruth

Coca-Cola 8,
Wachovia Bank 2

Coca-Cola picked up an 8-2 victory over Wachovia Bank last night in the Babe Ruth League.

Wachovia scored a run in the top of the first for a brief lead. Ed Grazier walked and stole second. He moved to third on an error on the play, and scored on Sammy Hodges' single.

Coke came back with one in the bottom of the first. Marshall Rand singled and Paul MacMillan reached on an error. Both moved up on a passed ball and Jeff Porter grounded out, scoring Rand.

After Wachovia moved back out with one in the fourth, Coke scored three in the fifth to lead for good. Rand led off with a walk and MacMillan reached on an error. Porter singled in Rand and Randy Warren doubled in both MacMillan and Porter.

Coke added four more in the sixth, including two on a homer by Mitch Brann. Roderick Harrell and Hodges each had two hits for Wachovia, while Brann and Tom Shirley had two each for Coke.

Senior Babe Ruth

Univ. Kiwanis 13,
Farmville 7

University Kiwanis rolled up a 13-7 win over Farmville in the Senior Babe Ruth League last night.

Farmville scored first, getting a pair in the first. Tim Garing singled and Allen Corbett reached on an error. A passed ball scored Garing and moved Corbett to third. He scored when Jeff Joyner reached on an error.

The Kiwanis got their first run in the second. That came on a leadoff homer by Kenny Barnes.

Farmville came back with two in the bottom of the second to up its lead to 4-1, but Kiwanis scored four in the top of the third to take a 5-4 lead. After adding two in the fourth, the Kiwanis got four in the fifth, providing the winning runs.

H.L. Austin led off the fifth with a single and he scored on Mike Mills' hit. Bobby Hopkins singled, and Mac Stokes' triple scored both runners. Barnes singled in Stokes with the 11th Kiwanis run.

They added two more in the sixth, while Farmville added three in the sixth.

Stokes and Barnes led the Kiwanis hitting with three, and Austin added two. Garing had three to lead Farmville.

In other action, Winterville won by forfeit over North Pitt, and Robersonville took a double-header from Ayden-Grifton, but scores were not available.

Parsons drew his position in 1976 after time trials were washed out. Ongais had the pole here a year ago in his rookie appearance at the 2.5-mile triangular Pocono International Raceway.

Behind Foyt and Ongais, the speeds for the rest of Thursday's 22 qualifiers dropped off rapidly. An exception was Janet Guthrie, who qualified fourth, the best of her career, and only missed the front row by three-hundredths of a second.

"I'm not looking back at that," Watson said after putting his way to a 5-under-par 66 Thursday. "That's over. That's history. I'm looking ahead to the rest of this week, to trying to shoot a good score every round. I'm ready to play."

And Watson, the game's outstanding performer over the last 2½ years, appeared to have it back in gear again after missing the cut last week in the U.S. Open.

Holmes Puts His Version Of Heavyweight Title On The Line

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Holmes, the unbeaten heavyweight champion, and Roberto Duran and Carlos Palomino, two sluggers whose ability is greater than their size, fight tonight in Madison Square Garden.

Mike Weaver will be there, too.

The 26-year-old Weaver, who doesn't like the nickname "Hercules" and is hurt by being referred to a "tuneup," will fight Holmes for the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship in a bout network television wouldn't buy and which seemingly all boxing writers and the smart-money boys consider no contest.

"It don't bother me what the experts say," said Weaver about his $50,000 shot at glory. "What do they know about boxing?"

"One to seven," said Holmes when asked for a prediction. "I can't say which is closer because he might go in seven seconds."

"I got to fight somebody," said the 29-year-old unbeaten champion, who already is signed to defend against Earnie Shavers on Sept. 14 in a fight to be televised by ABC. "I've been working 11 years to get where I am."

Holmes is fighting for a percentage and it is in the pocket-book that many observers think he will take a beating.

"As long as I keep fighting and winning, the money will come," said Holmes.

Another man who could take a beating in the pocketbook, and knows it, is promoter Don King.

It's almost like they designed a checking plan just for me.

If all of us were in the same financial boat, a single checking plan might do nicely for everyone.

But, of course, we're not. That's why Planters offers so many different kinds of checking accounts.

Some people like the idea of writing unlimited checks but don't like the idea of paying for them. So Planters came up with several ways to avoid monthly service charges. One is to maintain a $200 minimum or $500 average balance in checking. Another is simply to keep $200 in savings.

Other people only write a few checks a month, say two or three. For them, Planters designed Budget Checking, with a simple per check charge and no worries about minimum or average balances.

Nobody likes the idea of overdrafts. So Planters also offers Check Credit, overdraft protection that lets you write a check for more than you have in the bank and know it's covered.

Finally, for anyone who likes the idea of earning interest on all their money, there's Saver's Checking. With checks covered automatically by transfers from savings to checking.

Planters National Bank. We make a lot of different checking plans that make a lot of sense.

A PRACTICAL APPROACH TO MONEY.

Lemon Given AL Nod For All-Stars

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Lemon will put on his New York Yankees uniform once more when he manages the American League in the All-Star Game against the National League at Seattle July 17.

being named AL manager, Lemon said. "I feel that it's an honor to be the manager of the All-Star Game. Always when I was playing I looked forward to playing in it...I was a coach twice and an honorary captain once."

Lemon was named manager of the Yankees at midseason in 1978, taking over for Billy Martin, leading the team to a World Series victory and was named AL Manager of the Year. He was replaced as manager last Monday by Martin.

"Bob wanted to be the All-Star manager and he certainly earned the honor," said AL President Lee MacPhail. "It seems to me that Bob is the perfect choice. He has been active in the league and has seen all the teams this year, and he knows all the league talent thoroughly."

"Together, we hope to select the best possible club to oppose Tommy Lasorda and the Nationals..."

A member of baseball's Hall of Fame, Lemon was a 20-game winner for the Cleveland Indians seven times, pitched in four All-Star games and two World Series as an Indian. It will not be the first time that a manager has been called from the sidelines to handle an All-Star team. The last was Dick Williams, who piloted the 1974 American league team after resigning as Oakland manager following the 1973 World Series. But by then, he had been signed by the California Angels.

In the very first All-Star Game at Comiskey Park in Chicago, in 1933, John McGraw managed the National League team although he had been replaced as New York Giants manager by Bill Terry during the 1932 season.

The American League team was managed by Philadelphia's Connie Mack, even though Joe McCarthy's Yankees had won the pennant the previous year.

Neither Johnny Keane of the 1964 World Champion St. Louis Cardinals nor Yogi Berra of the Yankees was managing the same club at the start of the 1965 season. Keane was replaced by Gene Mauch, who had managed the Philadelphia Phillies to a tie for second place in 1964, and Berra by Al Lopez, who had piloted the Chicago White Sox to a second place finish in the American League.

In 1963, Ralph Houk's Yankees won the AL title, but Houk was named general manager of the team and Lopez again managed the AL All-Stars in 1964.

Coetzee Says Win Would Be Great

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — Gerrie Coetzee, the unbeaten South African heavyweight, says a victory against Leon Spinks Sunday in Monte Carlo would be great and would make him one in a bunch of South African fighters who have reached a world title final.

"The following fight against Tate would be much more important as it would give me a chance to become the first ever South African to win the world heavyweight title," Coetzee said Thursday after training in this Italian Riviera resort.

decide whether it will be Spinks or Coetzee who will face American boxer John Tate in a planned World Boxing Association heavyweight title bout later in the year should present champion Muhammad Ali go through with his retirement.

The methodical, 24-year-old Coetzee said he only occasionally thinks of Tate these days, with Spinks as the immediate and more dangerous target.

The 25-year-old Spinks, a former world champion whose record includes a win on points against Ali, is considered as the favorite.

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the last couple of years, Hollywood has discovered a well-spring of inspiration in the Vietnam War, issuing forth a series of movies and TV dramas examining the special pains and horrors of that conflict.

Plenty of angst in these, but no heroes. Vietnam, with its divided passions and uncertain purpose, wasn't the sort of war that Hollywood could embrace. It was a war that America lost. So, we got films about alienation ("Coming Home"), grisly retribution ("The Deerhunter"), inglorious loss of life (TV's "Friendly Fire").

Now NBC is working on a new chapter to the nightmare, called "When Hell Was in Session," to be aired this fall. But this story is a little different from the others. It has a hero.

He is Commander Jeremiah A. Denton Jr. You might remember him. He was the first man off the plane when the first group of American POWs arrived in the Philippines in 1973.

Denton was shot down over North Vietnam in 1965. For the next eight years, he was alternately tortured and isolated by his captors, spending more than four years in solitary confinement.

The prison camp became Denton's own personal battleground. He waged a quiet war with his captors, refusing to break.

His moment of triumph came in May 1966. His captors, thinking Denton would cooperate to spare himself further anguish, staged a phony television press conference in which Denton was to have denounced the U.S. war effort.

Denton appeared to be cooperating, but by blinking his eyelids, he spelled the word "TORTURE" in Morse code.

BLAMES SELF — Federal Judge Hubert L. Will blames himself for the hijacking of an American Airlines jetliner en route from New York to Chicago because he set the alleged hijacker, Nikola Kavaja, free Wednesday. Will said he "anguished over what might have happened because I let him out on bond...many people might have been killed." (AP Laserphoto)

"I was seeking to obviate the possibility that they dub words into my mouth that I didn't say and dishonor me back in the States," he remembers. "I'd already made up my mind that I was going to defy them, but I never thought there was one chance in a million that that would get back to the States." It did. Navy intelligence saw the interview and picked up the message. It was the first confirmation that POWs were being tortured.

It was a quiet triumph, and bespoke a strength of character under pressure that defines heroism in any war, on any side. Denton, now a retired admiral, seems embarrassed by the suggestion.

"I don't believe you can categorize human beings as good or bad, heroic or cowardly," he says in a quiet Southern drawl. "There is good and bad, heroic and cowardly in every individual. Certain circumstances, certain acts of will on the part of individuals elicits good or evil from them."

Hal Holbrook will portray Denton, Eva Marie Saint plays his wife, Jane, who, with other POW wives, became active in drawing attention to the plight of American war prisoners.

Dr. Gene D. Lanier, chairman of the Department of Library Science, ECU, gave the introductions. Frank K. Cylke, director of the Division of the Blind and Physically Handicapped at the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., gave the keynote address.

Greenville panelists took part in an afternoon discussion on special services. They included Dr. Carol Veitch, Joe Stines, Ann Davis, Susan Lanier, and Ralph Scott. Alumni Association President Jane Alligood summarized the session.

Heads Science, Math School

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Charles R. Eilber, a Wisconsin educator, was named Thursday director of the North Carolina School and Science and Mathematics. The announcement was made at the school's board of trustees meeting in Durham. Eilber, selected after a seven-month search and review of over 250 candidates, will assume his duties starting July 1. His annual salary will be $37,000. He is presently the coordinator of a program designed for children with yet-untapped scholastic potential in Middleton, Wis.

He was formerly the head of an arts academy in Michigan, which was a private school for students in creative and performing arts.

The trustees, in announcing the appointment, also kicked off a statewide fund-raising campaign they hope will bring in at least $3.3 million to match the appropriation by the General Assembly when the school was legislated into existence in 1977.

The board chose a Durham firm, Kersting, Holding and Street Inc., to help plan and organize the drive. The company will receive $2,500 a month for at least six months to get the campaign going.

Business executives and civic leaders from across the state have been organized to aid in the drive.

Plan Tribute To John Gorham

John Gorham, Farmville, a pioneer member of Moyes Chapel F.W.B. Church, will be honored by his conference, friends, fellow church members and family 3 p.m. Sunday at the Moyes Chapel F.W.B. Church.

Gorham, 82, has been a member of the church since its founding 68 years ago and has served as clerk, deacon and Sunday school superintendent. He is a native of the Farmville area where he attended school and was later a farmer. Now retired, Gorham has nine children, 29 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren. The public is invited to attend.

EASTERN STAR MEETING

All members of Bright Star Chapter No. 313 are requested to be present Saturday, June 23, at 2 p.m., at the hall.

Gertrude McCoy, Worthy Matron

Church Awards Scholarships

Three scholarships were recently awarded by the Philippi Church of Christ to three members who will be attending college or a technical school this fall. They were awarded on the basis of an essay, "What My Church Means To Me."

First place winner was Michele Wilson, granddaughter of Mrs. Farille Randolph; second place winner was Jo Ann Atkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jolly Atkinson; and third place winner was Sandra Davis, daughter of Mrs. Dallas Davis.

Judges were Rev. B. B. Yelder, Dr. Lucy Jones, and Mrs. Milmer Williams.

Garrett To Be Speaker Tripp Leaving Pitt UF Role

D. D. Garrett of Greenville will be the featured speaker Sunday, June 24, at the Morning Star Church of Christ Disciple of Christ Church, Rocky Mount.

Garrett, who received his bachelor of science degree in business administration from North Carolina Central University, is owner and manager of D. D. Garrett Insurance Agency of Greenville.

Garrett is a member of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, the North Carolina Real Estate Association and the National Society of Public Accountants.

He is active as a member of York Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church, where he has been a trustee for the past 25 years, and member of the Star of Zion Usher Board. At Conference On Careers Sherril Renee Waters, a rising sophomore at D.H. Conley High School, attended a two-day Conference on Engineering Careers for Women at North Carolina State University's School of Engineering last week.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Waters of Winterville, Sherril was one of 150 high school students to be selected for participation in the program aimed at exploring the many opportunities open to women in the engineering profession.

She was chosen to attend the program on the basis of her interest in science and mathematics. During her stay on the NCSU campus, she attended sample classes and laboratories and toured major facilities in the engineering school.
