Blue Mold Strikes Pitt Tobacco

Pitt County farmers are hoping for warm weather to stop the destructive process from blue mold, a fungus that thrives in the cool, moist climate experienced throughout North Carolina this summer.

"If the next two weeks are like the last two weeks, in all likelihood, many farmers will suffer significant damages from blue mold in their tobacco," said Gaylon Ambrose, assistant agricultural extension agent with the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

Ambrose noted that many farmers have experienced growth of the fungus in their fields following the heavy rain of June 11 and a succession of cool days and nights.

Blue mold, which reproduces by producing large numbers of tiny spores, usually is transferred from plant to plant by the spores traveling through the air.

According to a pamphlet from the Agricultural Extension Service, blue mold is favored by cool temperatures (50-60 degrees Fahrenheit) and thrives on cool nights, followed by rain, fog or heavy dews. Either lower or higher temperatures (below 45 degrees and above 70 degrees) at night slow down the attack.

Ambrose pointed out that tobacco farmers throughout the state are experiencing problems with the fungus, with the Agricultural Extension Service trying to aid farmers with the problem.

Furney A. Todd, professor of plant pathology and Philip Morris Extension Specialist, has addressed the issue in a memorandum to extension agents, noting that blue mold is "causing damage on a good many farms in practically all counties."

Todd notes that "in general, a field spraying is not recommended." However, some farmers may wish to spray with streptomycin (streptomycin sulfate), with one pound of the substance added to 100 gallons of water, applied at the rate of 20 to 30 gallons per acre to halt upward movement of the fungus.

Ambrose stated that if farmers wish to attempt using the spray, they must be careful to get good spray coverage of the total plant in order to obtain any results.

However, the spray is just a preventive measure, with no cures offered for the disease. Many farmers are hoping that warm weather will arrive in time to halt the upward movement of the fungus.

Most farmers in Pitt County who suffer with the fungus' effects, have damage only in the four bottom leaves of the plant, leaves which bring low money on the market. However, some farmers have watched the fungus spread into the "money leaves" of the plant.

Norman Sutton of Stokes, who's seeing the fungus on the four bottom leaves of his crop, says that this is the first time he's encountered this problem.

"We were planning to harvest those four bottom leaves, but we're leaving the yellow leaves in the fields now," said Sutton, who's in the process of harvesting. "I noticed it about a couple of weeks ago. I'm just hoping for the best."

C. B. Faulkner of Ayden is one farmer who's really been hit by the spread of the fungus. He describes his situation this way:

"It's worse in some fields than others. In some fields, one third of the plants are infected, and in others, half of the crop is hurt. What hasn't already gone, the mold has gotten. I first noticed after that heavy rain two weeks ago."

What will happen to farmers who suffer significant losses due to blue mold? According to Miss Betty Lou Jones of the Pitt County Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, the government is going to stand by its contracts with farmers in assuring them their dollar guarantee from the crops.

"We've been flooded with calls on this problem, and we just don't have the personnel to take care of the situation," the office representative noted. "We're taking things as we can, and we're assuring the farmer we're behind him."

Miss Jones pointed out that it is too early in the tobacco season to tell if most farmers' crops are damaged to the point where they will not receive the dollar guarantee set by the Crop Insurance Corporation on the warehouse floor.

"We're going out and advising farmers to go on as best they can and call us if more damage is received," Miss Jones said. "The crops are insured right up to the point when they reach the warehouse floor."

Miss Jones pointed out that a fungus such as blue mold may clear up as soon as the weather warms up, with the problem taken care of in itself. However, if the weather doesn't warm up, Miss Jones said that farmers can report additional damage.

"Depending on what the adjuster feels when he goes through all of a farmer's crop, we tell the insured person what we've found, and sometimes suggest that they contact their extension agent on the matter," she said. "We've told some farmers to wait a week, then see how things are and call us."

Right now, farmers are working against two problems in the county—blue mold and water damage. Miss Jones pointed out that no county farmers have reported chemical damages experienced in some areas of North Carolina.

Ambrose said that some farmers have tried to cure leaves with blue mold, and received mixed results.

"What we need is warm weather right now, with low humidity," said Ambrose. "When blue mold moves up the plant, economic losses increase."

OPEC Ministers See Five-Cent Increase

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Qatar's oil minister said today the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries probably would approve a crude oil base price of less than $20, but allow members to add allowances for different qualities of oil, up to about the $20 level.

The price of $20 for a 42-gallon barrel would add as much as 5 cents a gallon to U.S. gasoline and heating oil prices, analysts said.

Abdul Aziz Khalifa al-Thani told reporters of the probable decision during a lunch break of the 13-member cartel's pricing meeting here. Final details including the exact amount of the base price are to be worked out in an afternoon meeting, he said.

The decision would be an apparent victory for Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest and most moderate member. The Saudis had adamantly resisted attempts to boost the base price to $20 or more.

The decision outlined by Al Thani would in effect unify OPEC prices. Saudi Arabia would be expected to charge the base price while other members who make better quality oil would be allowed to tack on traditional premiums, bringing their prices to about $20 a barrel.

OPEC had wanted to set a unified price at this meeting to avoid the leapfrogging surcharges this spring that drove OPEC oil prices up to an average $17.50 a barrel despite the base price of $14.55.

Earlier, OPEC sources had said the cartel probably would reach a compromise base price of $20 a barrel, with all 13 members charging that price.

That deal apparently fell through when Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani held out for a lower price. His determination may have been spurred by pressure from United States officials who reportedly were urging him to hold the line.

Announcement of a decision was expected today at the end of a two-day OPEC pricing meeting, but there are rumors another meeting might be held

Shah Denies Murder Try

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — Police and top security officials today denied reports from Tehran that an assassination attempt was made against Iran's exiled Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi at the Cuernavaca home where he and his family are living.

The head of Tehran's revolutionary court claimed that Iranian guerrillas attacked and slightly injured the shah, but "the jackal ran away this time."

"It is totally false. The reports circulating are just not true," said Capt. Miguel Mengochea Lopez, director of the judiciary police in Cuernavaca, 50 miles south of the Mexican capital.

Robert F. Armao, the shah's chief of staff, said in a telephone interview in New York that reports of an attack were "absolutely false." Armao made his comments before departing for Cuernavaca.

"There have been no attempts on his life or the lives of any members of his family whatsoever. Security remains constant. He's in excellent health," Armao said. He and the shah conversed by telephone at 9:35 a.m. EDT, he said, and "there are absolutely no problems."

Other security sources in Mexico, including one involved in guarding the shah, also denied the report, but asked that their names not be used.

A Mexico City newspaper, Diario de Mexico, reported a helicopter attack on the shah's retreat Tuesday night. No injury to the shah was mentioned. Other Mexican newspapers did not carry the report.

Armao, asked about the report of a helicopter attack, said there was no truth to the story and that on Monday afternoon a personal friend of the shah arrived for a visit via helicopter. He declined to identify the visitor.

Iranian revolutionary court head Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, who announced a reward earlier this month for the assassination of the exiled shah, said the deposed Iranian monarch was attacked as he rode in his car near his Mexican resort compound. Khalkhali said the car in which the shah was riding was destroyed.

NIGHTCLUBS OPEN ALL NIGHT?

These night clubs around here are staying open all night. You'd think that the parents of these children would be concerned about them. I think that the people of Greenville and Pitt County should try to do something about this.

Hotline talked to Danny Dilda and Warren Hopkins, Pitt County Alcohol Law Enforcement officers.

According to North Carolina law, establishments with ABC permits must stop selling alcoholic beverages at 2 a. m. during the May through October and at 1 a. m. during November through April. (Actually the dividing dates are the last Sunday in April and the last Sunday in October, they said.)

The law further states, they said, that by 30 minutes later, 1:30 a. m. or 2:30 a. m., depending on the time of year, all containers for these beverages must be cleared away from tables and counters.

Clubs do not usually have reason to stay open long after beverage-selling hours are over. If anyone knows of one that is staying open much longer, Dilda and Hopkins said they'd like to hear about it. The N. C. Alcohol Law Enforcement Office is located at 300 W. First St., Greenville; phone, 758-8379.

HAIRDRYER FEEDBACK

A reader has called to say that one can find out about whether his or her hairdryer is asbestos-lined and therefore possibly unsafe by calling the Consumer Product Safety Hotline, 1-800-638-8326. Hotline has been aware of this number, but hesitated to give it because it's usually hard to get through — often busy for long periods of time. The reader said this was not the case when she called and that she talked to "a real person" who gave her the very information she needed. She advised that one write down his or her model number before calling to save time, since the Consumer Product Safety person will need to know this number.

Israelis Claim Five Syrians Shot Down In Air Over Lebanon

By The Associated Press
Israeli and Syrian warplanes battled in the sky over southern Lebanon today for the first time in five years and the Israelis claimed they downed five Syrian MiG-21s.

The Syrians acknowledged four of their planes were "hit" and claimed two Israeli planes were shot down. A Syrian military communique issued in Damascus, the Syrian capital, indicated the four Syrian planes were downed, saying "all remaining Syrian planes involved in the air battle returned safely to bases."

The Syrian announcement claimed to have prevented the Israelis from "shelling civilian targets in the Damour area south of Beirut."

The Israeli military command steadfastly maintained all Israeli jets returned safely from the raid against Palestinian guerrilla strongholds.

Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization claimed in a communique that its guerrillas brought down two Israeli jets with shoulder-fired Sam-7 STRELA heat-seeking missiles.

It was not immediately clear if these were the same planes the Syrians said were shot down.

A wealthy rancher called The Associated Press in Beirut with a report matching the PLO's, saying one of the two Israeli jets went down just inside his property near Kfar Beirut, 35 miles southeast of the Lebanese capital and 18 miles north of the Israeli frontier.

He said three pilots bailed out the two planes.

The Israeli army spokesman's office said the dogfight occurred during an Israeli air force raid against Palestinian concentrations in southern Lebanon at about 11 a.m. The Palestinian targets were not identified, but presumably they included heavy artillery pieces that have been shelling northern Israeli towns.

"During the operation they were intercepted by Syrian planes," the command spokesman said. "Five Syrian planes were shot down. The Israeli air force continued the mission. All our planes returned safely to base."

The PLO communique said one target of the Israeli attacks was the Ein El-Hilweh refugee camp on the southern fringe of Sidon. The camp houses 21,000 Palestinian refugees.

The guerrillas reported the Israeli aircraft lasted 45 minutes and left "heavy damage, casualties and several fires."

Israel Radio said the downed Syrian planes were Soviet-built MiG-21s and that the dogfight was near the Lebanese port city of Sidon, 35 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border.

It was the first aerial clash between Israeli and Syrian jets since 1974. On April 19 of that year the Israelis shot down two Syrian MiGs and the Syrians downed two Israeli jets in a dogfight. On April 29, 1974, Israeli aircraft shot down four Syrian MiGs.

Town Meeting By Carter-San

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
SHIMODA, Japan (AP) — Taking a holiday from summitry, President Carter held a "town meeting" today that developed into a seminar on child-rearing, the family and race relations.

Questions put to Carter by ultra-polite Japanese gathered in a steamy junior high school gymnasium dealt largely with everyday human concerns — a far cry from the tough queries about energy, inflation and foreign policy that have marked similar sessions back home.

The visiting president did manage to touch on the two issues that will dominate the seven-nation Tokyo economic summit that begins Thursday: energy and the plight of Indochinese refugees.

Energy was a primary topic today in pre-summit discussions as Carter returned to Tokyo. Carter administration officials took sharp exception to French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's pointed criticism of U.S. energy policy and Carter was understood to be angry and disturbed.

The French president said in a Newsweek magazine interview that the United States had failed to start reducing energy consumption, comments that a U.S. official, requesting not to be identified by name, called "accusatory and somewhat confrontational."

At the outset of the hour-long meeting in Shimoda, Carter called once again for the industrial democracies to reduce oil imports, achieve greater con-

Condemned Man Given Stay

By THOMAS SLAUGHTER
Associated Press Writer
STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Temporarily saved from the electric chair, inmates Charles W. Proffitt and Robert A. Sullivan return to normal Death Row routines as their attorneys begin complicated and time-consuming legal appeals to spare their lives.

Sullivan, 31, and Proffitt, 33, were to have been executed beginning at 7 a.m. today at the Florida State Prison near Starke. But separate federal judges granted stays of execution — on Monday for Sullivan and on Tuesday for Proffitt.

The death warrants that ordered the executions don't expire until 12:01 a.m. Friday. However, there was no indication from Attorney General Jim Smith that he would ask a federal judge to overturn the stays and allow the executions before the death warrants expire.

Last month, Smith used Gov. Bob Graham's personal jet to fly to federal courts in different cities, fighting stays that had halted the execution of John A. Spenkelink. On May 25, Spenkelink became the first person in the country executed against his will since 1967.

Smith said Tuesday, "I don't anticipate that we would make the extraordinary efforts we did with Spenkelink in either of these cases."

U.S. District Judge Jose Gonzalez of Fort Lauderdale issued Sullivan's stay Monday, but it was not until about 2 p.m. Tuesday — less than 17 hours before Proffitt was to have been strapped into the electric chair — that U.S. District Judge William Terrell Hodges in Jacksonville granted Proffitt's stay.

Couple Speaks Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

CHOCOWINITY — Teresa Jane Elks and Benjamin William Marsh were united in marriage in a candlelight double ring ceremony Saturday at Memorial Free Will Baptist Church here. The Rev. Ward M. Woolard of Washington officiated at the 3 p.m. ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frederick Elks of Chocowinity and Mr. and Mrs. John Satchwell Marsh of Bath.

Miss Robbie Mayo of Grimesland, cousin of the bride, served as pianist. She played a selection of nuptial music, and sang "Always and Forever." Dennis Modlin, guitarist, sang "The Wedding Song," and "With This Ring I Thee Wed."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal length gown of ivory organza over ivory peau de soie, designed with an open scalloped neckline with stand-up collar, outlined with chantilly lace. Clusters of pearls extended over the empire bodice and encircled the waist. The long fitted sheer sleeves with lace appliques featured covered button closures at the wrist. Matching lace panels extended down the front of the gown and edged the hemline of the skirt and attached chapel train. The bride wore a full length veil attached to a Camelot cap, covered with lace appliques. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies, white daisies, white carnations and baby's breath, tied with ivory streamers.

Holy Communion was served the couple while they were kneeling at the prayer bench. They lighted the unity candle together during the ceremony.

Mrs. Angelia Whichard of Greenville, aunt of the bride, served as matron of honor. Miss Dawn Henderson of Bath served as maid of honor. They selected green and white checked gingham Victorian-style gowns, featuring empire waists, long full sleeves of white batiste and white embossed batiste apronedged in lace. They wore headpieces of yellow daisies, white daisies, pom poms and baby's breath in half circles and carried nosegays of yellow daisies, pom poms and baby's breath.

Miss Connie McRoy, Miss Ava Whitley, both cousins of the bride, and Miss Lysa Moore, all of Chocowinity, served as bridesmaids. Their gowns were styled identically to the honor attendants' in yellow gingham. They wore flower headpieces of white and yellow daisies and carried nosegays of white daisies with yellow streamers. Miss Marsha Gail Smith of Chocowinity served as flower girl. She carried a white wicker basket with yellow and white daisy petals and wore a white and yellow daisy headpiece.

Loren Robert Elks, brother of the bride, and Kenny Whichard of Greenville, cousin of the bride, served as pages. Miss Pamela Swanner of Plymouth, and Miss Kimberly Whichard of Greenville, cousin of the bride, served at the guest register.

The father of the bridegroom served as his son's best man. Ushers were Glen Wilkins Marsh and John Satchwell Marsh Jr., brothers of the bridegroom, Heber Latham Jr. and James E. Henderson Jr.

Mrs. Linda Swanner of Bath, cousin of the bride, served as mistress of ceremonies. Miss Helen Posey of Greenville was the bride's assistant. Miss Donna Pough presided at the rice tray.

The bride's mother wore a floor length gown of salmon organza in floral shades with a matching cape and pink cybidium orchid. The bridegroom's mother selected a formal length aqua gown with a white cybidium orchid. Grandmothers were remembered with white carnation corsages.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception after the ceremony at the Lemon Tree Inn, Chocowinity. White lace covered the wedding tables, centered with a floral arrangement of yellow and white daisies, white snapdragons, mums and baby's breath, flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra. Mrs. Marion Swanner, aunt of the bride, served cake, with Mrs. Joanne Ellington, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch. Other hostesses were Mrs. Jane McRoy, aunt of the bride, Mrs.

Annie Ree McRoy and Miss Patsy McRoy. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Robin R. Moore Sr. of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Thad Tankard Jr. of Bath.

The bride is a graduate of Chocowinity High School, and attended St. Andrews Presbyterian College. She presently attends Beaufort County Technical Institute. The bridegroom is a graduate of Bath High School and attended Chowan College. He is presently engaged in farming. The couple will reside in Bayview after a wedding trip.

The bride is the granddaughter of Kenneth Paul Whichard Sr. of Greenville and Robert Guy Elks of Chocowinity. The bridegroom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Ellington of Bath and Mrs. Vonnie Satchwell Marsh of Bath.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner Friday night at the Washington Holiday Inn. The bridal couple presented gifts to their attendants at this time.

MRS. BENJAMIN WILLIAM MARSH

Lupton-Byrd Vows Spoken

BURLINGTON — Brenda Faye Byrd and Joseph Williams Lupton Jr., both of Fayetteville, were married Sunday in a 3 p.m. ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Byrd of Burlington. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Lupton Sr. of Roanoke Rapids, formerly of Greenville. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Lupton of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moye of Winterville.

Dr. Thomas Baine Anderson performed the nuptial rites. Music was presented by the bride as soloist and the bridegroom as organist and pianist.

The bride wore a mauve floor length knit gown with a jacket. Crocheted lace in mauve trimmed the dress bodice and jacket. She wore a spray of baby's breath in her hair and a corsage of mixed flowers.

The bride's sister, Lynette Byrd, and the bridegroom's brother, Billy Lupton, served as ushers. The bridegroom's sister, Bettie Claire Lupton, handed out programs and presided at the guest register.

The bride received her bachelor of music degree from UNC-G and is enrolled in graduate school there. She is choir director at Hope Mills United Methodist Church and a private voice and piano instructor. The bridegroom received his B. M. degree from UNC-G and is choral director, Stedman Junior High School, Stedman.

The couple will live in Fayetteville.

The bridegroom's parents entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner in the Candlelight Room of the Holiday Inn, Burlington. The wedding luncheon was held at the Alamance Country Club, Burlington, given by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moye, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Lupton, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Lupton Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ray Lupton, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Davis H. Woolum, grandparents, uncles and aunts of the bridegroom.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the John Knox Room of the Presbyterian Church following the ceremony.

Cooking Is Fun

SLIM BROWNIES

Adapted from an old-time recipe and not overly sweet.

1/4 cup butter
1 1/2 squares (1 1/2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1 large egg
1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts

In the top of a double boiler over hot water melt together butter and chocolate. Remove from heat and water. Add vanilla, sugar, flour and egg and beat until blended. Spread evenly and thinly in two 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pans. Sprinkle with nuts. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until firm — about 12 minutes. Cool a minute or two, then cut in 2-inch squares. Cool completely and remove. Makes 32.

City Budget Holds Tax Rate

The City Council Monday approved a $9,556,357 budget which maintains the tax rate at 70 cent per $100 valuation.

The budget, which was out of balance when proposed by the city manager and would have called for a tax increase, was balanced through revised revenue estimates and expenditure decreases.

Mayor Percy Cox said he was confident with the budget and City Manager Ed Wyatt described it as "tight as a tick."

It appears on the surface that the budget is a tight one. It provides for no basic increases in number of personnel and freezes positions in some departments.

The budget provides general salary increases of 5 percent for city employees. That, of course, is a close increase in view of the rapid inflation rate, but it does provide some relief for city employees.

It has to be clear that the city won't long be able to hold the line on new employees. As the city grows additional police, fire and public works personnel will be required if the basic needs of our citizens are to be met. The administration will also have to watch carefully its employee salary ranges if the city is to keep able personnel in all depart departments.

But all-in-all we think the budget has been held as closely as possible this year. We are particularly pleased that the tax rate was held to the rate of the present year. Tax payers clearly don't want tax increases and holding the line is important in this year of raging inflation.

Summer Of Conservation Is Ahead

Virginia Electric & Power Co. has two of its three nuclear reactors out of service now, and the result may be close power reserves this summer.

The No. 1 unit of Surry cannot be restarted until earthquake stress tests analysis are completed. Surry No. 2 is out for generator repairs.

VEPCO serves the Greenville Utilities area and much of north eastern North Carolina. The loss of the two plants leaves the firm with very little power reserves for peak days. In addition, more fossil fuel will be used which will run up the fuel charge which customers pay each month.

It means a summer of conservation and careful usage of electricity during peak times for VEPCO and Greenville Utilities customers.

Building Revives Memory

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Overlooking the river in Yadkin County is Richmond Hill, for 30 years home of a controversial chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court and site of his famed law school.

The brick building, now being restored with state and federal assistance, may in a year or so be reopened as a house museum. It should revive memories of Richard Mumford Pearson who claimed to have taught more than 1,000 law students during his long career.

Born on June 28, 1805, near Cooleme, the son of Richmond Pearson, a Revolutionary War veteran, the boy attended school in Washington and Statesville, then was graduated with honors from the University of North Carolina in 1823.

After studying law at Williamsboro under Judge Leonard Henderson, the young man opened law practice in Salisbury, then moved to Mocksville. He represented Rowan County in the House of Commons for four years. In 1835 he was unsuccessful Whig candidate for Congress. In the late 1840s he moved to Richmond Hill and built his "Logtown" law school in the woods around his home.

In 1837, Pearson was elected judge of the Superior Court. Then, in 1848, he was (Continued on page 7)

Rough Stuff For TV

WASHINGTON — I happened to be watching the news the other night with Huntsinger, a great wine connoisseur. It was the usual stuff — war in Nicaragua, Vietnam refugees pouring into Hong Kong, congressional gasoline shortage hearings, locust plagues in the Midwest, prices going up. None of it seemed to faze Huntsinger as we looked at the screen. Then suddenly, there was a news story from Teheran. The film showed the Intercontinental Hotel, and said the Ayatollah Khomeini had ordered all the wine and liquor in the cellar destroyed. Huntsinger jumped out of his chair. "What the hell are they doing?" "It looks to me as if they are breaking bottles in the street," I said. He got as close to the screen as he could and said, "Oh well, they're only breaking Chardonnay 1975. It's a good everyday wine but hardly a provocative one." One of the revolutionaries was shown smashing what looked to be a bottle of Beaujolais. Huntsinger encored, "I wouldn't be caught dead drinking that. It's for peasants." Another bearded soldier broke the top off a white Burgundy. "Did you see what I saw?" Huntsinger shouted. "That was a Chassagne Montrachet 1977! What kind of savages are they?" "It looks like they're playing hard ball," I told him. A soldier took his rifle butt and slammed it into a case of Bordeaux. He said, "I don't believe it. Do you know what he's destroying? A case of Mouton Rothschild 1949, one of the greatest vintages of the century. How can they let children watch this on television?" "It's a tough world, and you can't censor winesmashing just because it turns your stomach."

Dr. Carl Adams, faculty member of East Carolina Teachers College, last night was installed as president of the Greenville Rotary Club, succeeding Dr. John L. Winstead, chief surgeon of Pitt General Hospital.

S.G. Wilkerson succeeds R.V. Keel as vice president and John Proctor is the new secretary treasurer, succeeding Waylan Sermons, Haywood Dail, former club president presided over the meeting and installed the roster of executive officers.

Annual reports were made by the following committee chairmen: Dr. N.T. Ennett, crippled children; S.G. Wilkerson, attendance; Sam White, classification; Marshall Brikley, membership; James Hawes, Rotary information; Collier Cobb, vocational guidance. Waylan Sermons gave the report of the secretary.

Hundreds of Pitt County farmers are busy this week putting in tobacco, the crop this year being unusually early. The crop, in general, is considered good in most sections, although some areas report fair. Farmers are anxious for an earlier market opening, dates for which will be set at the meeting this weekend of the United States Tobacco Association to be held in White Sulphur Springs. — Stuart Morgan

Purpose Of Sentence

By Bill Noblitt
(Second of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — There are four steps in a criminal justice system:

1. Defining what is a crime;
2. Establishing a police force to enforce the law;
3. Providing a trial system;
4. Imposing sentences appropriate to the offenses.

"What we do not seem to understand is the purpose of sentences," Supreme Court Justice J. Phil Carlton has concluded.

"We do not seem to know why or when or how to sentence, and we do not know who should not be imprisoned and who should and for how long," Carlton feels.

As secretary of the Department of Crime Control Appeals Court and now the Supreme Court, Carlton conducted a series of public hearings on crime across North Carolina.

He found people unhappy and dissatisfied with the sentencing of criminals, and the "Crime Control Agenda" which he authored, Carlton explored that matter at length.

Difficult

The subject is difficult and perplexing, raising "some of the most difficult questions that the moral intelligence has ever confronted," Carlton reports.

There has been the trend to hope for rehabilitation of criminals, and sentences handed down in the belief that prison could somehow trigger reform and return to society a new man. Accordingly, judges were allowed great latitude in fixing sentences hopefully long enough to "cure" the criminal, and the success or failure of that "cure was judged by a parole commission.

"The rehabilitation or treatment theory for punishment seems, perhaps, perfect, except that it hasn't worked. Rehabilitation has failed to satisfy the only criteria of success — reduced recidivism and crime rates," Carlton concludes. The repeat offender statistics demonstrate that fact.

Carlton says prison needs to continue vocational and educational programs for inmates, but that "rehabilitation is not the purpose for which one is sent to prison; it is for another purpose — that of being punished for his criminal act..."

Is deterrence the primary objective of sentencing? Carlton thinks not since crime continues to rise among both repeaters and first offenders...although deterrence is one objective.

"To favor recognition of that purpose is not to support a social policy of vengeance, but simply to acknowledge the fact that willful lawbreakers should receive sentences proportionate to the severity of their offenses," Carlton finds.

The next step is to establish sentence lengths based on punishment as the major purpose. "We believe that punishment should be punishment before it is anything else. If it does deter other potential criminals or rehabilitate the convicted, then that should be greeted as a pleasant surprise.

"But the first business, without being bloodthirsty about it, is to keep society's contract with itself and punish a crime as it promised it would," Carlton says.

Punish Society has sometimes been unwilling to admit that a prison sentence is for punishment, but a "more realistic mood of the present...accepts the proposition that a principal — indeed, the principal — purpose of imprisonment is punishment.

"We believe that punishment should be punishment before it is anything else. If it does deter other potential criminals or rehabilitate the convicted, then that should be greeted as a pleasant surprise.

"But the first business, without being bloodthirsty about it, is to keep society's contract with itself and punish a crime as it promised it would," Carlton says.

Letter To A Senator

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The senator from Pennsylvania couldn't help but be impressed. The letter from the president of the United States closed, "Please help me. Sincerely, Jimmy Carter."

The letter was dated simply, "Tuesday Morning," and it began:

"Dear Friend, I want to take a moment from the hectic pace of the Oval Office to bring you up-to-date on the progress of our administration and to ask you to become a contributor to the Democratic Party."

It was in the second half of the first sentence — the part about the Democratic Party — that caused Sen. Richard S. Schweiker to realize something was wrong. The letter went on for three pages.

It was easy to see why the pace is so hectic. The president talked about bringing peace to the Middle East, about cutting unemployment and getting control of "runaway government," cutting spending, reducing waste and facing up to inflation."

"We are working for the good of all," said Carter.

He also had wonderful things to say about the Democratic Party and concluded that "frankly, any person who's lucky enough to be president and smart enough to be a Democrat knows that his success, my success, is based on our long party history of great national and international purpose."

Pretty impressive stuff, even to a Republican like Schweiker. So the senator sent this brief reply:

"Dear Mr. President: I appreciate your taking a moment from the hectic pace of the Oval Office to bring me up-to-date on the progress of your administration and to ask that I become a contributor to the President's Club of the Democratic Party.

"I hope you will understand that I feel I must respectfully decline your kind invitation because of a prior commitment. Many months ago I announced that I would work for the election of Ronald Reagan as our next president."

The alphabetized world of Washington faces a serious problem.

The federal government has a Department of Energy, which most people refer to as DOE.

There's a strong chance Congress soon will create a Department of Education. Two DOE's?

Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-Ill., an opponent of creating a separate Education department, suggested the solution to the alphabet problem was to call it the Department of Public Education or DOPE.

Strength For Today

CHRIST THE EMANCIPATOR
Jesus Christ has been recognized as one of the greatest of all emancipators. Yet the freedom which Christ confers is entirely an inner matter. He did not advocate or work for any new form of free government. He did not even formulate a philosophy of freedom. What he did was to bring God in touch with the human heart so that people could be free of their sins, disavow their selfish purposes, and commit themselves to the will of God. We of this supposedly enlightened generation are just as much in bondage as men and women have been in any previous age. Anxiety, hate, fear, lust, jealousy, avarice, and every hateful demon that has ever possessed human soul possesses the souls of men today.

The message of the Christian gospel is that we can be free when we accept that offer of new power which God has made in and through Jesus Christ. And this emancipation has nothing to do with our outward circumstances.

Automobile Has Become Dictator

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — We have often called it the love affair with the car, but now that gasoline shortages are here we see that it might be an addiction too. "I'll pay any price," has become a typical comment.

But maybe it's neither, even though comments and surveys suggest that spending of the size associated with the automobile can only be the consequence of addiction or the generosity of a loving nature.

Whatever, the numbers are awesome. Census Bureau figures showed five years ago that more than 80 percent of households owned one car or more, and that a third of families had at least two.

Last year, says The Hertz Corp., Americans spent $248.1 billion to operate more than 100 million cars 1.067 trillion miles. Fuel, insurance, interest, and maintenance costs all rose, some sharply.

About the only thing that declined, the rental and leasing company's annual study showed, was the per-car mileage, which fell to 9,577 miles from 9,649 miles a year earlier. A result of economy? Maybe not; a person can drive but one of those cars at a time.

These higher costs, said Hertz, cost Americans 22.8 cents a mile, or more than $2,000 a car. And if you toss in the cost of driving trucks, it adds, the figure equals one-quarter of the nation's personal income.

The American affair with the car might be neither addiction nor love, but necessity, although "necessity" might need redefinition.

The survey said 823 billion of those 1.067 trillion miles were for "non-pleasure" reasons — 171 billion for business travel and the rest for commuting, shopping, education, medicine or religion.

How much of this can be eliminated? The survey wasn't designed to answer such questions, but obviously some can. In some urban centers, for example, public transportation is adequate if not luxurious.

However, much of country has been designed around the automobile. The family of the 1930s could easily do without the car, because most urban business and cultural activity was concentrated.

Since then we have developed suburbia and exurbia, out there beyond the end of the commuter line. Shopping malls, theaters, and sports arenas are dispersed along major highways rather than jammed into towns. A church risks attendance if it has no parking lot. The doctor no longer makes house calls.

All considered, the car is neither lover nor addiction, but dictator instead. It dispersed our cultural, educational, religious and business institutions. In short, it created a way of life.

What Americans are faced with now, is not simply to cut back on the incredible numbers rolled up by their cars, but whether or not to give up their way of life.

And, while many have deserted their cars for the commuter train or traded down to smaller cars or taken to walking instead of driving short distances, they aren't likely to easily forsake that lifestyle. For many, it seems, the answer is "any price."

Advise Immunize

Since April of this year eight confirmed cases of paralytic polio have been reported in the United States and Canada, Pitt Co. Health Director Robert F. Ehinger, M. D., has said.

All of these cases occurred, he said, in religious communities whose beliefs discourage routine immunization. All eight cases have been in unimmunized persons.

Health officials, Dr. Ehinger said, are concerned about this rapid transmission of polio. While immunizing agents have been available for more than 20 years, a significant section of the American public have not availed themselves of this painless, readily available immunization against this devastating disease.

"This," Dr. Ehinger said, "seems an appropriate time for everyone to review their immunization status and secure adequate immunization without delay if one has not already done so."

The recommended immunization schedule against polio follows:

TRIVALENT ORAL POLIO VACCINE — Infants and children through age 18 — three doses with the first two doses at least six weeks apart and the third dose eight to 12 months later. A fourth dose is usually recommended on entering school.

— Adults — routine immunization is not normally recommended, since most adults are already immune. However, a susceptible adult at increased risk of exposure to polio infection by virtue of travel to an area where polio is common should complete primary immunization.

INJECTABLE KILLED VACCINE (SALK VACCINE) — This type vaccine is not commonly used at this time, since the oral vaccine is believed superior by most authorities. However, this vaccine is available if, for some reason, oral vaccine cannot be used.

Charge For Program

The Pitt County Community Health Department has announced that, beginning Aug. 1, individuals requesting family planning services will be charged a fee based on a sliding scale determined by family size and income.

However, all persons eligible for third-party reimbursement, such as Medicaid or Title XX programs, in addition to teenagers (19 and under), will not be required to pay for services offered.

Due to regulations set by the federal Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, family planning programs are required to charge fees in order to be in compliance with federal health service funding regulations.

At the present time, federal, state and local funds are providing for existing services in family planning clinics. To expand the services and maintain the present level of health care, a fee must be collected from patients to cover costs of services expansion.

Anyone wishing more information is encouraged to contact the Family Planning Clinic, Pitt Co. Community Health Dept., 752-4141.

Awarded Certificate

Elijah Haddock has been awarded a Certificate of Merit for outstanding achievement in community relations for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Service.

The award, which was presented to Haddock at a meeting held in the Regional Office in Atlanta, was presented by Millard Killam, Assistant Regional Administrator. Also present for the event was Paula Kermon, Officer-in-Charge of the Greenville Field Office.

Haddock was cited "for outstanding dedication and performance of duties related to recipient inquiries and civil rights activities, and for establishing excellent liaison with associated agencies and community leaders, thereby contributing materially to the effectiveness of the Food and Nutrition Service Programs in the Southeast Region."

Haddock is a native of Greene County and has been employed with the Federal Government for 22 years, and with the Food and Nutrition Service for the past 13 years.

The Republic of Texas adopted a constitution in 1836.

Faked Her Law Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — To the outside world, Mariana Bercovits Greenstein looked like the successful young law school student.

She went to classes at Georgetown University Law Center, bought the casebooks and took notes during her courses.

She even landed a coveted summer job at a prestigious law firm here.

But a few days before last month's commencement ceremonies at the law school, her life as a successful student began unraveling, according to The Washington Post.

In today's editions, the newspaper reports that Ms. Greenstein never was admitted to the law school and never paid tuition. In addition, she did not take examinations and received no credit for coursework.

And further, the Post says, the 25-year-old woman never completed her undergraduate studies at Bernard M. Baruch College of the City University of New York.

"It was a mistake," Ms. Greenstein told the newspaper. "I knew it was a mistake. I just did not know how to emerge out of it."

"I wanted to be an attorney," she said. "I still do. It was a personal mistake. I didn't hurt anyone but myself."

Spanish Morocco gained independence in 1956.

In a statement, David McCarthy, Georgetown's dean, said the school conducted an investigation of the situation and notified bar officials here.

"Thereafter, with the full cooperation of Ms. Greenstein, all pending applications for employment have been withdrawn and appropriate notifications to others have been made," according to the statement.

Ms. Greenstein said her way of life "snowballed" after she had "an administrative problem" at Baruch College. She declined to disclose the problem.

"It will be over the day I graduate from law school with a diploma," she asserted.

Consumer Group Asks Inflation Action

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A diverse coalition of 70 consumer, labor and senior citizen groups is calling on President Carter and Congress to take immediate steps to end what it calls the "silent tax" — inflation.

The coalition — Consumers Opposed to Inflation in the Necessities — includes the AFL-CIO, the Consumer Federation of America, the National Council of Senior Citizens and the National Women's Political Caucus.

It is urging Carter and Capitol Hill to take steps the coalition says could cut the annual inflation rate by 3 percentage points over the next 18 months.

The group's news conference today followed by less than 24 hours the government's announcement that consumer prices rose a dramatic 1.1 percent in May, the fourth straight month that saw prices up at least a full 1 percent.

COIN argues that inflation, like a tax, reduces a family's buying power. Last year's 9 percent inflation rate, for example, reduced what each consumer's dollar bought by 9 cents.

Of most concern to COIN are rising prices for food, housing, fuel and medical care, items that constitute about two-thirds of the average family's spending.

Food and fuel prices have been the most troublesome this year. Although food prices rose only a moderate 0.7 percent in May, each of the five preceding months registered gains of at least 1 percent.

Gasoline prices rose 5 percent in May, "bringing the increase so far this year to an annual rate of 55.1 percent," the Labor Department said in releasing the May price report. Fuel oil prices, up significantly for the fourth consecutive month, rose 5.3 percent.

Overall, prices have been rising at an annual rate of 13.4 percent, about double the Carter administration's target.

time is right for their proposals.

"They are going into an election year," Gar Alperovitz, the organization's economics adviser, said of the public officials to whom the appeal is being aimed. "They have to get the message that they can't keep doing what they are doing because it isn't working."

Proposals in the "short-term agenda" COIN proposed to break the upward price spiral include:

—Reversal of the president's action to decontrol domestic crude oil prices.

—Congressional passage of a ceiling on hospital cost increases.

—"Exploration of fast-hitting, anti-inflationary rebates or subsidies in the food sector."

—The establishment of reserve requirements for mortgage loans that would lower mortgage interest rates.

Several of the measures have been considered, with little success, in Congress.

The rising fuel costs — and the possibility of more when the oil-producing cartel OPEC raises prices — led Barry Bosworth, director of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, to warn, "You can't look for any significant moderation in inflation in the next few months."

Bosworth also admitted to the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that "I would say that the fight against inflation has not gone well."

That's precisely the point COIN intended to make at its gathering.

It was, in essence, a call to action for Americans to prod the government and "to expose inflationary business practices."

elected to the state Supreme Court, where he would serve the remainder of his life, becoming chief justice after 10 years.

An opponent of nullification in the 1830s and of succession in 1861, Pearson was nevertheless a strong supporter of Governor Vance in the vigorous prosecution of the war and in upholding the rights of the state against Confederate intrusions in civil affairs.

Reconstruction and its violent partisanship led the chief justice in 1868 to inject himself into party politics. Fearing a resumption of the Civil War, he endorsed General U.S. Grant for the presidency, and in doing so he lost the support of many Conservatives who had earlier in the year joined the Republicans in renominating him for the chief justiceship.

Though he did not agree with all of Governor Holden's actions, he refused to use his judicial powers to prevent Holden from suspending the writ of habeas corpus for citizens in Alamance and Caswell counties.

Pearson presided over the impeachment trial of Holden in an unbiased manner, but his reputation had been permanently stained in the eyes of many Conservatives (later to resume the name of Democrats). His last years were clouded with controversy.

His health deteriorating, the chief justice left Richmond Hill by buggy on Jan. 5, 1878, for Winston, where he was to board a train for Raleigh. Along the way he suffered a stroke and died shortly after reaching Winston.

Great confusion ensued. First, it was announced that his body would be returned to Richmond Hill for burial. Then it was reported that burial would be at Statesville.

The state Supreme Court convened and sent an urgent request for the remains to be brought to Raleigh to lie in state in the Capitol for a day, and a delegation of lawyers was sent off to deliver the request to his widow and son.

When they got to University Station, however, they learned that Pearson's remains had been shipped off to Statesville. Nevertheless, on Jan. 8 news was received at Raleigh that the peripetetic corpse was now on its way to the capital city by train.

State officials rushed to get themselves and the Capitol dressed for the arrival of the body. From the train station a long procession wound up Cabarrus and Fayetteville streets to the Capitol where the remains were placed on a raised dias in the rotunda. The coffin was covered with a black pall and was decorated with white satin ribbons.

Throughout that evening and the following day, mourners passed by to pay their last respects. On Jan. 10, services were held in Christ Episcopal Church.

Then, as the Raleigh Observer noted, "all that is left of the departed jurist was left to repose in its native element" — not at his beloved Richmond Hill, but rather in the capital city's Oakwood Cemetery. Perhaps this decision not to bury him at his famed residence was prophetic, for the Pearson family quickly left the banks of the Yadkin.

Now, after several decades of neglect, Richmond Hill is being restored in memory of an outstanding lawyer and teachers whose indiscreet entry into partisan politics robbed him of a more favorable image in history.

when it's poured into the gutter."

"I can't look," Huntsinger said, his hands over his eyes. "No one has ever done that to a bottle of Romanee Conti since Prohibition. Sacre bleu!"

"Don't look now, Huntsinger, but they're throwing hand grenades into the Haut Brion '55."

Huntsinger beat his fists against the screen. "Stop," he yelled. "You're destroying the nobility of France."

"It's no use, Huntsinger. The Ayatollah is so ignorant he probably drinks Sauterne with Steak Diane."

"What the hell is the CIA doing, letting them dump a million dollars' worth of liquid gold into a sewer?"

"It's too late," I told him. "There goes the last of Iran's Sherry supply. There's no way the Intercontinental Hotel Restaurant will get three stars now."

Huntsinger said, "Good. After what they've done it doesn't deserve a mention in the Guide Michelin at all."

More Senators Guerrillas Reported Seek Revisions Advancing In Battle

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A growing number of senators are proposing substantive changes in the SALT II pact with the Soviet Union, any one of which might serve to kill the treaty if adopted.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee reportedly was set to announce his conditional opposition to the treaty at a news conference today.

The Washington Post in today's editions quoted informed sources as saying Baker will announce he is opposed to the pact in its present form and will spell out some specific recommendations for changes in it.

Baker could be a key figure in the Senate's eventual ratification or rejection of SALT II. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, told reporters Tuesday he believes the Soviet Union must be made to understand that the Senate is likely to adopt some amendments, reservations or understandings.

Church hinted that ways are being sought to change the treaty just enough to improve chances for ratification but not enough to cause the Soviets to reject the amended treaty out of hand.

He said he believes it would be a "grave mistake" for the Senate to doom the treaty by adding a "killer amendment" unacceptable to the Soviets.

"It would be preferable for the Senate to kill it outright rather than face a renegotiation which Soviet leaders have said would be unacceptable to them," Church said.

Meanwhile, proposals to amend the pact were made by senators with strikingly different points of view.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista guerrillas were reported advancing northward from the Costa Rican border, attacking towns south of Managua and locked in "ferocious fighting" in the capital in their war to oust President Anastasio Somoza.

Sources linked to the rebels claimed Tuesday they had broken through national guard lines that had blocked their advance northward from the Costa Rican frontier.

The sources said the guerrillas were striking toward La Virgen, six miles south of Rivas where they hoped to set up their provisional government. Rivas is 16 miles north of the border, and La Virgen is the site of a national guard compound and infantry training school.

But a spokesman for the guard, Somoza's army and police force, said reports of the Sandinista advance in the south were "totally false." He said Somoza's troops "made a slight tactical pullback to avoid charges that the national guard was threatening the Costa Rican border." He claimed the guard was holding the Sandinistas approximately four miles north of the border and was inflicting heavy casualties with mortars, artillery and air attacks.

Informed sources said the rebels attacked several small towns between the Sandinista-held cities of Diriamba, 28 miles south of Managua, and Masaya, 20 miles southeast of Managua. They speculated that the Sandinistas were trying to establish a front south of Managua stretching across the isthmus between Lake Nicaragua and the Pacific and cutting off the guardsmen battling on the southern front.

But the guard spokesman said the attacks south of Managua were "only diversionary attacks and have no real significance."

He claimed that all Sandinista positions in eastern Managua, where the rebels have held half a dozen slum barrios for more than two weeks, "will be cleaned out within 72 hours."

The guard claimed early Tuesday that it had driven the rebels from the Belo Horizonte slum, but late Tuesday refugees streaming from the area said the rebels were still entrenched and confident they could defend their positions.

Members of Congress belonging to Somoza's Liberal Party met late Tuesday in the Intercontinental Hotel amid speculation they were discussing a successor should Somoza heed the calls for his resignation from the Organization of American States and the United States.

Somoza, his Cabinet and top legislative leaders met Tuesday morning and called a special legislative session for Thursday afternoon. But Somoza's private secretary denied categorically that the president would resign or that the session was being called to discuss a successor.

Over 800 Towed Back To Sea

By HARI MANIAM
Associated Press Writer

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The Malaysian navy towed 826 more boat people back to sea today while almost twice that number arrived in Hong Kong harbor on 12 leaky boats.

The 826, mainly ethnic Chinese from Vietnam, were towed into the South China Sea Tuesday aboard eight boats. They were the latest flotillas from Malaysia's get-tough policy on refugees.

The government said it would maintain its strict enforcement policy and announced it has begun buying additional boats on which to expel the Vietnamese.

Malaysian Home Affairs Minister Ghazali suggested the problem of Indochinese refugees could be solved by establishing a large processing center for the fleeing boat people in the United States or another Western nation.

Ghazali told a news conference Tuesday night that if Western countries did not follow his suggestion Malaysia and Indonesia might establish their own refugee center on an Indonesian island. There are about 76,000 Vietnamese refugees in Malaysia and 34,000 in Indonesia.

Earlier this month, Malaysia announced a strict policy of blocking new arrivals of refugees and forcing those boat people who do make it to shore back out to sea. Since the policy began, officials said 77 boats carrying more than 14,457 refugees have been pushed back into international waters.

In Hong Kong, a government spokesman said 12 rickety boats arrived in groups Tuesday carrying 1,579 refugees. They were taken to a ramshackle government dockyard already packed with 10,000 boat people.

The British colony has nearly 57,000 refugees in its makeshift camps and the spokesman said at the current rate of arrivals, there will be more than 200,000 refugees by the end of the year.

Ten Named To Panel

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt named 10 persons, including a new chairman, to the state Annual Testing Commission Tuesday.

Edwin L. West Jr., superintendent of the High Point public school, was named to replace Durham County school superintendent Frank Yeager.

Yeager told Hunt he was resigning the post earlier this year in protest of the General Assembly's enactment of legislation dropping most state regulations — and the requirement that state tests be administered — in private schools.

Yeager has also criticized Hunt for not opposing the legislation before its passage, and has hired attorneys to prepare legal action against the new law. Hunt would only say he was pleased with the past commission's work.

The 1977 General Assembly enacted legislation establishing the annual tests as well as the minimum competency test. A separate commission oversees the competency test program.

The new members include: Harold Deal, Charlotte; Kate Harden, Boone; Charles Stewart, Carrboro; Annette Swette, Rowland; Brenda Sykes, Burlington; Helen M. Wheeler, Fayetteville; Kenneth Whitehurst, New Bern.

All except Deal are teachers in their respective schools. Those reappointed included Jane Norwood of Advance, Joan Hemby of Wilson, and Robert Stolz of Cullowhee.

The testing program covers students in grades 1, 2, 3, 6, and 9.

Shale Oil Could Last For Years

DENVER (AP) — Tucked beneath the peaks and buttes of western Colorado lies enough oil to keep the United States gazzling along at its current gas-guzzling rate for another 500 years.

That's not new. The Indians knew all about "the rock that burns" and the Navy has been sitting on a major untapped reserve of shale oil in the area for half a century, waiting for the fuel's time to come.

What's new is that shale oil production may be almost commercially feasible, thanks to OPEC oil ministers and their $20-a-barrel price tags.

Almost is the key word, says Bob Cookston, mining manager for Tosco Development Corp. The costs of extracting oil sandwiched into shale — a rock made of compacted clay, mud or silt — are staggering.

"Technically, it's feasible now," he said, "but economically, it's marginal." Another five years, though, and shale oil-gasoline could well be available at the corner service station.

And the federal government is trying to make that a reality.

On Tuesday the House approved a measure to provide a multibillion dollar package of federal subsidies to get the nation's infant synthetic fuels industry off the ground. The vote was 368-25.

The bill, which still needs Senate action, would authorize the government to pay up to $3 billion in price supports for fuel made from shale, coal, shale or other substances.

Tosco is the country's second-largest independent oil producer, one of about six oil firms involved in shale oil research. Along with Atlantic-Richfield as part of Colony Development Corp., Tosco has developed the first complete set of plans for a commercial plant.

For a plant that could produce 50,000 barrels a day, construction costs are estimated at up to $1.25 billion. Current technology might allow the shale oil to be mined, crushed, extracted and made ready for refining for maybe $7.50 a barrel.

But Cookston estimated that interest costs on a billion-dollar loan would at least double that price. Add to that a fair return for investors, he said, and "you're looking at a $20 barrel."

Union Oil is expected to begin soon producing shale oil on an experimental basis in Colorado at $23 a barrel, including a $3-a-barrel federal tax credit.

July 11-19 Fall Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's Skylab watchers now predict the big space station will fall to Earth between July 11 and July 19.

That was the latest from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Tuesday in its daily report on the Skylab death watch. The prediction represented a narrowing of the Monday forecast, which said there was a 95 percent probability the end would come between July 11 and July 21.

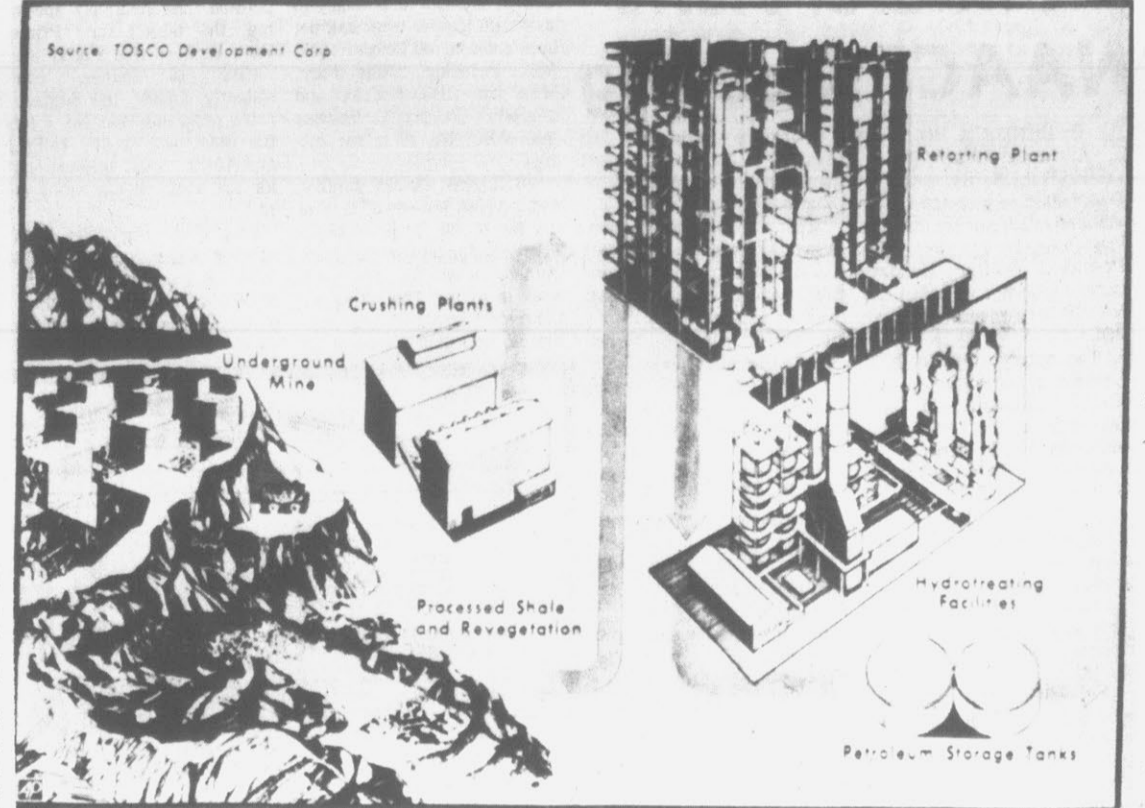

The new prediction said there is a 50 percent probability Skylab will come crashing down by July 15.

Although about 500 pieces weighing a total of about 40,000 pounds are expected to survive re-entry heat and hit the Earth, NASA says the chances are extremely slim that they will cause injury or damage.

Suing For Back Pay

MIAMI (AP) — A 23-year-old California woman, who claims she was unjustly fired as a flight attendant in a dispute over her weight, is suing National Airlines for $1 million and back pay.

Ingrid Fee was taken off flight status April 30 when she weighed 143 pounds, 9 pounds over the airline's 134 limit. She was given until June 11 to trim down to within 5 pounds of the limit. She says she made the requirement but was fired anyway.

THERE'S OIL IN THEM THAR HILLS — Geologists estimate that the oil in the oil shale of western Colorado could supply the country for 500 years. One proposed method is to mine and crush the rock, heat it to extract the oil, then refine it. Costs of a plant to produce 50,000 barrels a day are estimated at $1.25 billion. (AP Laserphoto Drawing)

Violence Likely To Increase

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — A sociologist at Appalachian State University says middle-class people are likely to commit more acts of violence if the truckers' strike and gasoline shortages continue much longer.

Dr. Jane Rienrth, a specialist in criminology, said Tuesday that a combination of long lines at the fuel pump and skyrocketing prices may initiate major changes in American habits.

"The frustrations that we are experiencing do not necessarily mean that people will commit more crimes. They might drink a lot more, or we could see more suicides — we really don't know, but the longer these frustrations continue, the greater their effect will be," said Ms. Rienrth.

She said shortages have the greatest effect on the middle-class because it is their lifestyles that are being altered. Ms. Rienrth added that people in low-income groups will also suffer because they have been unable to afford cars or gasoline throughout their lives. She said the rich "really don't care how much gasoline costs."

Ms. Rienrth said that even though instances of violence and crimes resulting from recent shortages have been isolated, new cultural changes may evolve that have not been seen since the Great Depression.

"The only people who can identify with these conditions in this country are those who lived through the depression. But people don't remember events of the past. History tends to become very gray, and it takes a long time for cultural values to change," she said.

She blames society's emphasis on "achievement and success" for the problems brought on by the truckers' strike and gas shortages. Ms. Rienrth added that one redeeming feature of the situation may be that people will become more self-sufficient, such as growing a vegetable garden to replace those they would normally purchase at a grocery store.

CBS, ABC Tie In Nielsens

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a week heavy with reruns, and that fact may have given a boost to the premiere episode of "Prime Time Sunday," NBC's new entry in the news-magazine field.

Indeed, the reception for "Prime Time Sunday" — ranked 25th among 65 programs checked by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

during the week ending June 24 — would be encouraging to NBC under any circumstances. The rating for the NBC News production's first show was 15.5, more than five points better than the average for "Weekend," NBC's entry last season.

Other programs being broadcast for the first time — only 16 shows during the week had not been seen in full before — did well, including "Julie Farr, M.D." on ABC, No. 15, and "Carter Country," likewise from ABC, No. 22 in the ratings.

But it was an old standby, and a repeat episode at that, at the top of the heap — ABC's "Three's Company" the most-watched show for the sixth week in a row. The rating for "Three's Company" was 24.6. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, nearly a quarter saw at least part of the program.

NBC has been quite definite about its commitment to "Prime Time Sunday," which features Tom Snyder, host of the network's late night "Tomorrow" show. "Weekend" suffered in comparison to the competition, and relatively speaking, the takeoff for "Prime Time Sunday" was a good one.

CBS' "60 Minutes," consistently among the highest-rated programs, was No. 5 for the week, with a 21.9 rating, and ABC's "20-20" finished 41st for the week, with a rating of 12.7.

Despite the bright sign from "Prime Time Sunday," NBC failed to place a program in Nielsen's Top 10. CBS listed six of the week's 10 highest-rated shows, ABC had the other four, and the two tied for first in the networks' ratings race. The average rating for CBS and ABC was 14.9, with NBC last at 12.9. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.9 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to each of the frontrunning networks.

NBC's top-rated show was a movie, "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," on which the CBS situation comedy is based. The movie was tied for 18th in the ratings with CBS' "Dukes of Hazzard."

Here are the week's top-rated programs:

"Three's Company," with a rating of 24.6 representing 18.3 million homes, ABC; "The Jeffersons," 22.7 or 16.9 million, CBS; "Alice," CBS, and "Taxi," ABC, both 22.1 or 16.5 million; "60 Minutes," 21.9 or 16.3 million, CBS; "Mork and Mindy," 21, or 15.6 million, ABC; "Barnaby Jones," 20.9 or 15.5 million, and "All in the Family," 19.9 or 14.8 million, both CBS, and "M-A-S-H" and "One Day at a Time," both CBS, and "Happy Days," ABC, all 19.5 or 14.5 million.

Mondale Visits NAACP Meeting

By DENISE M. HOLT
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Dissatisfaction with the Carter administration was set aside, at least temporarily, when Vice President Walter Mondale came to town and called the NAACP the strength of the nation.

"The history of strength in America is the history of the NAACP," Mondale said Tuesday night at the 70th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"If anyone doubts the strength of the NAACP, let him come here tonight and see this major turnout," he said, drawing an instant standing ovation from the crowd. Some 3,500 delegates are attending the convention.

The NAACP has devoted a good deal of time to answering speculation that it is outdated and no longer responsive to the present-day civil rights struggle. In the past, black leaders have criticized Carter for not doing enough for the minority group which helped assure his election in 1976.

Mondale's 40-minute remarks were often interrupted by scattered applause and cries of "Amen."

He told the audience that "no president has ever worked harder on domestic problems than President Carter."

"This administration is committed to bringing minorities into the mainstream of American business and professional life," he said, adding that Carter "wholly supported the policy of affirmative action" and "has appointed more blacks and other minorities to office than any other administration in history."

"I'm not here to say we've done enough," Mondale said. "But we'll see to it and I know you'll see we see to it."

Earlier, the NAACP awarded the Spingarn Medal, its highest award, to Rosa Parks, heralded as the mother of the civil rights movement.

The award is given annually for the highest achievement of a black American.

On Dec. 1, 1955, Mrs. Parks refused to surrender her seat on a Montgomery, Ala., bus to a white male passenger. She was jailed, but her courage inspired a year-long boycott against public transportation by blacks in Montgomery that set the stage for the civil rights movement of the 1960s.

"From this day forward, I will continue to carry the torch for freedom," Mrs. Parks told the convention, "and we will strive to pass it on to those who come after us and march on for full freedom for all people."

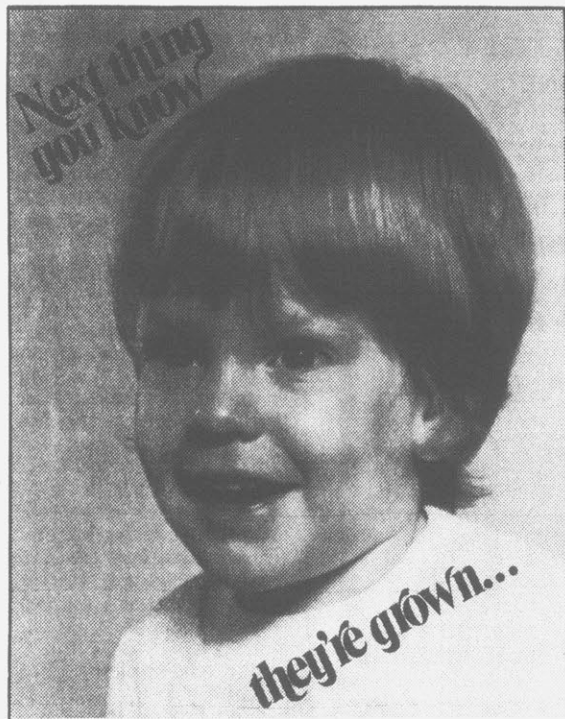

Rock-A-Thon Scheduled

There will be a "Rock-a-Thon" at Emmanuel Holiness Church, Gardenia St., Saturday from 8 a. m. to 12 p. m.

Everyone is welcome. Also, a weekend revival will be held at the church with Evelyn Bullock as the guest speaker and the Amazing Grace Trio from Robersonville as the special singers. The revival is underway from this past Sunday through next Sunday. The church members invite the public.

27 Injured

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines DC-8 jet carrying 151 Japanese tourists from Hong Kong to Chitose, in northern Japan, ran into violent air turbulence over western Japan, and 27 persons were cut and bruised when they were thrown from their seats, police reported.

Edwards Has Post In Rotary

I. J. (Jack) Edwards Jr. of Greenville has been elected Governor of Rotary Club District 773, which includes 44 clubs in the southeastern section of North Carolina. There are four Rotary Districts in the state.

JACK EDWARDS

Edwards was elected during the 70th annual Rotary International Convention in Rome, and will assume his duties July 1, following District Governor Everett Peterson of Clinton. Edwards is the second Greenville District Governor in the 59-year history of the club. The late Howard McGinnis was Governor in 1950-51.

Edwards' duties consist of making official visits to the 44 clubs in the District, staging the annual District Conference to be held in Greenville next April, and the handling of the administration of the District, which includes 1,925 Rotarians.

Edwards is a member of the Board of Directors of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, the Downtown Greenville Association, Planters National Bank, and the North State Savings and Loan Corporation.

Sailors Confined

NORTH CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Some 8,000 sailors at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center have been restricted to base and barred from a nearby entertainment "strip" following two nights of clashes between seamen and authorities.

But some shop owners on the strip, which was pelted with rocks by angry sailors charging "rip-off," say they would fight any long-term "off-limits" order.

The base was reported quiet early today. But Tuesday night, uniformed security personnel, many equipped with riot gear, were summoned to disband some 400 sailors milling about the grounds a half hour before a 9 p.m. curfew. The crowd broke up without incident.

The base commander, Capt. R.D. Colvin, said he was hoping to lift base restrictions today. "We're going to make a very serious effort to reward the 8,000 (who didn't participate in disturbances) for their good behavior," he said.

In all, 32 sailors were arrested and eight suffered minor injuries in the clashes Sunday and Monday night. Four policemen also were injured slightly and the mayor of North Chicago estimated more than $6,000 in damage was done to city vehicles.

Sylvia Moore Named To Post

Miss Sylvia A. Moore, who recently graduated from American University in Washington, D.C., is presently employed as an assistant director of Housing and Community Development in Washington, D.C. Moore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore, Rt. 6.

FOUR-NIGHT REVIVAL WINTERVILLE — Four nights of revival services are being held at the Soul Saving Station here, ending Friday, June 29. Elder McNail of Roberstonville will be the guest speaker. Ella Prayer, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Ready For Skylab Fall

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — If pieces of the 85-ton Skylab space station should fall into Cumberland County next month, local authorities say they are prepared to deal with casualties and property damage.

Instructions mailed to local civil preparedness offices from the state Crime Control and Public Safety's Division of Civil Preparedness call for all county units to be on a 24-hour duty shift beginning 12 hours before the massive satellite falls from its weakening orbit.

If part of Skylab were to fall in Cumberland or any other county, civil preparedness coordinators have been told to:

—Report the time and location of impact to the N.C. State Emergency Operations Center.

—With each impact report, include the description of the debris, the number and extent of injuries caused; the type of property damage; and whether fire resulted, and;

—Protect the debris from souvenir seekers, and protect the impact site by roping it off and stationing law enforcement officials in its vicinity.

The government's sky-watchers Tuesday predicted that Skylab's fall to earth will occur between July 11 and July 19, with a 50 percent chance it will occur by July 15.

National Aeronautics and Space Agency officials believe about 500 pieces can be expected to survive the heat of re-entry to the earth's atmosphere.

William C. Finch, coordinator for the Fayetteville-Cumberland County Civil Preparedness Agency, says that the odds of any part of the man-made satellite reaching earth within North Carolina's boundaries "are highly remote."

Parts of Skylab will fall for about 20 minutes, showering an area about 100 miles wide and about 4,000 miles long. Less than two pieces are likely to fall within any 100-mile section, according to a NASA spokesman.

In order to lessen the possibilities of any casualties or damages, Johnson Space Center controllers in Houston hope to guide the craft away from populated areas by using any surplus rocket power the ship may have.

A 10,000-pound Soviet satellite fell to earth in northern Canada on Jan. 24, 1978. One piece, which fortunately landed in a barren spot, has been described as "the size of a five-gallon barrel."

Army Cooks Win Top Prizes

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Army cooking appears to have come a long way since spuds and more spuds. Just ask three cooks from Fort Bragg.

In competition with chefs from some of the country's finest hotels and restaurants, the three and nine other Army chefs walked away with the grand prize, plus 39 ribbons, in the 9th National Culinary Arts Salon and Exhibition. The Army Culinary Arts Team competed in the competition in Chicago last month.

It was the second straight year an Army team has captured the grand prize.

Those from Fort Bragg were Staff Sgt. Lewis Tate, Sgt. 1st Class Nick Marino and Spec. 5 Robert Clemens.

"The professional chefs there were shocked that we — a group of 'just Army cooks' — did as well as we did," said Marino, 32, whose prepared cornish game hens picked up a first-place ribbon.

"They were drawing conclusions from a stereotype that just doesn't exist anymore."

Tate, 32, who has 15 years of mess-hall cookery behind him, agreed. "The Army is placing a lot more emphasis on food now," he said. "It's like they realize the troops don't move anywhere without the chow."

Marino has never received any formal training in cooking. Tate and Clemens both have been exposed only to 8-week Army courses. And, in real life, they really do cook for troops — Marino for the Headquarters and Headquarters Co. of the XVIII Airborne Corps, Tate and Clemens for units of the 82nd Airborne Division.

In Chicago, the three individually prepared a variety of cold buffet dishes and desserts to accompany the grand prize entry, a 20-item Thanksgiving meal prepared by six other Army chefs.

Both Tate and Clemens took first-place awards with their decorated cakes. Marino won first-place ribbons for the game hens, two cocoa paintings and a food-color painting. In all, the trio picked up 12 individual awards.

Clemens' "Mother Goose" cake, decorated with more than 20 icing fairy tale figures, won 39 out of a possible 40 points, the highest score achieved in the competition.

Judges spent more than three hours deciding a winner in the grand prize competition, with the contest eventually narrowing between the entries of the Army and the Holiday Inn of Toronto, Marino said.

"The judges said it was close, but that the eye appeal we created with our entries clinched it."

Galantine of goose, sirloin of beef, trout, candelabras in sugar — would the enlisted man have recognized the Army's gastronomic display in Chicago as his own mess hall meal?

"We got asked that a lot," Marino said. "The truth is that the kind of food we presented also gets served on special occasions in our own mess halls — the cornish game hens, the French pastries, for example."

"But the people asking that question miss the point. The cook that takes the same kind of pride in what he does will prepare even a hamburger of the same quality and standards."

Stravation Eliminated

KUNMING, China (AP) — China's top economic planner says China "now is free from dying of starvation," but there still isn't enough to feed its 900 million people, a Health, Education and Welfare delegation reported today.

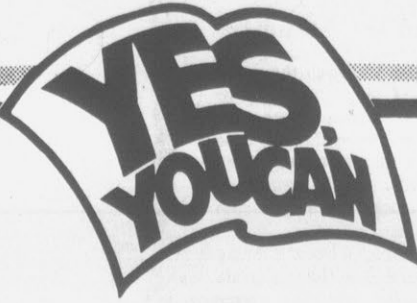

The delegation said Vice Premier Li Xiannian (Li Hsiennien) told HEW Secretary Joseph Califano on Sunday that "the quantity of food still is such that if calamity occurred, we would have to import grain from other countries...That is unsatisfactory. With 900 million you can't afford to rely on imports."

Li added, "We are confident we can improve our agriculture. It takes time, though, but we can guarantee that nobody will die of starvation."

BENEFICIAL?
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A researcher at the University of Pittsburgh says people who drink one or two alcoholic beverages daily appear to suffer fewer incidences of heart disease than either teetotalers or heavy drinkers.

Sale ends Saturday, June 30th. We reserve the right to limit quantities.

Food Shortages Spreading

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer
Growing fears of food shortages spread from the East to the Plains as California farmers, unable to get the trucks to haul crops to market, plowed fresh produce into the ground and some Midwestern meatpackers sent their workers home.

And the scattered violence that has punctuated the truckers' shutdown erupted again today with reports of three highway shootings in Illinois and truck firebombings in Indiana and New York. Near Woodbridge, N.J., about 25 independent truckers snarled traffic on Routes 35 and 9 this morning en route to a major food distribution warehouse. The trucks were halted before arriving at their destination, police said.

While drivers ended their protests in some areas and tightened their economic stranglehold in others, an Energy Department official said the Carter administration could require an increase in diesel fuel production if refineries don't boost supplies.

The truckers seek lower diesel fuel prices, higher speed limits and an end to weight regulations that vary from state to state.

The violence of the strike continued, and one trucker spokesman warned that the weekend violence in Levittown, Pa., sparked by the gasoline shortage and the truckers protest, was only the beginning.

"This country is heading for an emergency," said William Hill, chairman of the Independent Truckers Unity Committee.

"We're going to have rioting in the streets as far as I can see."

But in North Carolina, Gov. Jim Hunt, speaking from the back of a big rig, persuaded drivers blocking a fuel terminal complex to disband.

"You are in the strongest position with regards to how people and public leaders feel about you," Hunt told drivers picketing the complex housing Shell, Exxon and Sunoco terminals in Greensboro.

"If people start running out of gas, losing jobs and cannot get food, they will start blaming somebody. And I think you know who that will be," Hunt said.

The gates of the Georgia Port Authority were cleared of pickets when a judge ordered protesters not to interfere with traffic.

Meanwhile, Fort Wayne, Ind., supermarkets reported shortages of chickens, and supplies of watermelons, peaches and other produce dwindled in other Indiana cities. Panic buying — as much as $300 worth of groceries at a time — was reported in Carnegie, Pa.

Mozley Named To ECU Faculty

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Paul D. Mozley, a specialist in psychosomatic obstetrics and gynecology, has been appointed professor and director of psychosomatic OB/GYN at the East Carolina University School of Medicine. Formerly the director of psychiatric services at Medical Center Hospitals, Norfolk, Va., Mozley is one of few physicians in the country to be board certified in both psychiatry and obstetrics and gynecology. He currently serves as president of the American Society of Psychosomatic Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Mozley has held a number of faculty appointments at the Eastern Virginia Medical School, Norfolk, including professor and acting chairman of the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences and associate professor of OBYN. He was also attending obstetric-gynecologist at Medical Center Hospitals.

Mozley received his undergraduate degree from the University of Alabama and did postgraduate work at the University of Alabama Graduate School, the University of Georgia and the Medical College of Alabama, where he also received his M.D. Degree. He completed his residency

Charged In Wreck

William Cary Brent III of 200 South Elm St. was charged by Greenville Police with driving under the influence early this morning following investigation of a 1:24 a.m. collision on 14th Street, 120 feet East of the Railroad Street intersection.

Investigators reported the Brent car collided with a parked vehicle owned by Barbara Jean Smith of 1207A South Pitt St., causing an estimated $2,500 damage to the Brent car and $1,000 damage to the Smith auto.

Officers reported Brent and a passenger in his car were injured in the mishap.

Coffee Prices Jump 25-Cents

NEW YORK (AP) — The wholesale price of ground coffee has jumped by 25 cents a pound, the third quarter-a-pound jump in the past eight weeks, reflecting worries that a frost in Brazil and civil unrest in Nicaragua and Uganda will cut the world's supplies of green coffee beans.

Increases were announced Tuesday by Procter & Gamble, whose Folgers division is the nation's second-largest coffee roaster, and by MJB Co., a regional producer based in San Francisco. Each company raised the wholesale price of a pound of ground coffee from $2.73 to $3.08.

In addition, Procter & Gamble raised the price of a 13-ounce can of Folgers Flaked coffee from $2.33 to $2.58.

General Foods, maker of Maxwell House coffee and the nation's largest roaster, and Hills Brothers, the third-largest roaster, did not immediately follow the other producers' actions.

MJB spokesman Stan Murray had a succinct explanation for the wholesale increase: "The cost of green coffee has gone up." At Procter & Gamble, spokeswoman Marjorie Bradford said "the increase in green coffee prices" has driven up Folgers wholesale prices.

The wholesale price increases may be passed on to consumers. But supermarkets often sell coffee at or even below wholesale prices as a way of attracting business.

Brown Is New Aide

ECU News Bureau
Ron Brown, a native of Selma and a former Veterans Administration representative and Vietnam veteran, has been named Assistant Director of Admissions at East Carolina University.

He will work primarily as a counselor to prospective freshmen.

A 1965 graduate of Selma High School, Brown received his BA from ECU in 1974 and the MS degree in 1979. While completing his master's study, he worked as a Veterans Administration campus representative assisting ECU students enrolled under the GI Bill.

He served with the U.S. Army Security Agency from 1965 to 1969 and completed two tours of duty in Vietnam.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Arlen O. Brown of Selma, Brown is married to the former Jacqueline Stancill of Kinston. His wife is a Community Development Specialist with the ECU of Medicine.

Youth Is Charged

A 17-year-old Greenville youth has been charged by Police with a series of seven break-ins, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

Cannon said James Wilbert McPhaul Jr. of 1300 Clark St. was arrested Monday on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a June 16 break-in at the Giant Step Motorcycle Shop here, and charged with break-ins at Agnes Fullilove School on December 5, 1978, at Sadie Sautler School on January 8, and at Eaton's Shell Station on June 7.

The chief noted that McPhaul was charged this morning with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with incidents at Fullilove School on January 11, at Sadie Sautler on January 17, and at Sadie Sautler again on April 11.

Bond for the youth, according to the chief, was set at $500 in each of the cases.

Coors Brewery Plant Again Before Board

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) — The Rockingham County Planning Commission scheduled a special meeting tonight to face again the controversial request by the Adolph Coors Co. to rezone farmland here for a brewery.

Earlier this month, the planners voted 6-1 to delay making a recommendation to the county board of supervisors after defeating a motion to recommend approval of the rezoning.

The rezoning request has come under fire from religious groups but has received support from some area business leaders.

The planners said at their June 5 meeting they could not make a recommendation on the rezoning because of insufficient information on the availability of ground water and labor.

The planners met the following week with the board of supervisors at the supervisors' request to discuss exactly what information the planning commission was seeking.

The planners were given a packet of additional information concerning ground water and labor supplies.

However, one commission member, Ronald McPherson, accused the supervisors of withholding that information earlier. "Why wasn't this information brought to us before June 5?" McPherson said.

At their June 5 meeting, the planners also asked the board to send them to Golden, Colo.

Terrell Is Speaker

ECU News Bureau
Current use of school reading textbooks was the topic of a featured address given by Dr. Patricia Terrell of the East Carolina University School of Education at the recent 39th annual Summer Reading Conference at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Purpose of the conference was to provide information, concepts and experiences for reading teachers who wish to become more effective in classroom or special reading situations.

Dr. Terrell's presentation focused on a modern view of traditional reading materials, with a "back to basics" approach.

She discussed current readers' treatment of sex, cultural, socioeconomic and individual differences, and noted selected stories which are intended to encourage a student's self-awareness and develop appropriate behavior.

In addition, she cited various literary and printing styles and gave examples of classic children's literature as illustrations that reading is "preparation for life."

"Even though the appearance of the basal reader has changed, the intent is still the same," she concluded.

Dr. Terrell is an assistant professor in the ECU Department of Elementary Education.

Local People At Workshop

Key personnel in Greenville's Comprehensive Community Energy Management Program (CCEMP) will be making presentations at a CCEMP workshop underway today through Friday in Washington, D.C.

Reese Helms, manager of the local program, will speak on "Participation in CCEMP: Who and How," explaining how the local organizational structure encourages community involvement in the preparation of a community energy action plan.

CCEMP coordinator Linda Hix will make a presentation on "Community Attitudes Toward the Energy Situation and Their Effect on CCEMP."

Others from the local program who will attend include Kenneth Butler of Kenneth Butler and Associates, and Daniel Koenigshofer of Integrated Energy Systems, consultants in the development of the project.

The workshop is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy and Argonne National Laboratory to share information about activities and experiences in each of the 17 CCEMP communities across the nation. The communities are participating in a pilot study of energy planning at the local level.

Farmers' Losses In Millions

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Like farmers, city dwellers depend on trucks to haul produce from fields to supermarkets. With trucks now parked, farmers face million-dollar losses and consumers are looking at higher prices.

"We're moving headlong into a disaster-type situation," said Jack King of the California Farm Bureau Federation. He said Tuesday that losses have already been "in the millions" for California's $10.4 billion agriculture industry, which supplies 40 percent of the nation's fruits and vegetables.

And Karl Kristerson of the 1,650-acre Major Farms of the Salinas Valley said that while lettuce was selling on California markets for less than the cost of production, Eastern consumers could be paying more than $1 a head by the end of the week.

King said the situation will have reached crisis proportions if the strike by the nation's independent truckers — who carry much of the farm produce to market — continues for another week.

Growers in other states also are becoming increasingly worried.

"Our situation is nearly desperate," said Mer Edmondson, fruit sales manager for Snow-kist Growers in Yakima, Wash., where despite the use of rail lines, one grower said, the shipment of cherries has become a "day to day matter."

Sporadic shortages of meat and some fresh produce began appearing from the Midwest to the East Coast as meat packing plants closed and farmers were forced to watch their crops rot in the fields.

There has been panic buying at Pennsylvania supermarkets as consumers seek to stock up.

ECU Gets HEW Grant

ECU News Bureau
A grant of $6,371 has been awarded the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions by the U.S. Office of Rehabilitation Services, a division of HEW.

The funds will be used to continue support for ECU's master's degree program in rehabilitation counseling.

Federal support of the ECU program was begun in 1967 and has been continuous since then, with the objective of producing rehabilitation counselors for agencies in North Carolina and other states.

According to Dr. Sheldon Downes, program director, about 60 percent of ECU's rehabilitation counseling graduates now work for North Carolina rehabilitation agencies.

Watch Pounds and Inches Disappear!

Rexall PERMATHENE-12

Once-A-Day Continuous-Action Capsule Reducing Plan* — Gradually

TRIMS AWAY FAT

Yes, it's true — NOW lose pound, after pound, after pound depending on how overweight you are

- without crash diets
- without torturous exercise
- just read and follow important Permathene low calorie reducing plan booklet in every package

Continuous Action Attacks the Major Cause of Overweight—Overeating—The Major Cause of Fat Build-Up

Thanks to PERMATHENE-12's "miss-no-meals" eating program, not only do you eat better than ever before, but this once-a-day continuous action time-release capsule reducing plan actually helps your body Turn Food Into Burned Up Energy Instead Of Into Fat!

Here's what happens:

- Gnawing hunger pangs are suppressed, so it takes less food to satisfy you, meaning you restrict your calorie intake. And, the food you do eat turns into burned up energy instead of fat.
- Gentle diuretic action helps eliminate excess water and bloat.
- And, even though you may lose pound after pound, inch after inch, with the reduced calorie eating program in every package, you never need to miss a meal... never deny yourself sensible snacks or desserts... never for a moment starve yourself one iota!
- Remember... you must lose weight starting the very first day... see results the very first week... results you can measure on your scale and in the smaller trimmer size of your clothing... or money back.

*Not a crash diet — but the most satisfying fully balanced reduced calorie eating program you've ever seen. Read and follow label directions carefully.

OATHS ADMINISTERED...Alcock of Court Sandra Gaskins (L) administers the oaths of office to Pitt Board of Elections members Cliff Everett Jr., Nelson Crisp and Myra Cain (R). Oath Given To Elections Board

Oaths of office were administered to the three members of the Pitt County Board of Elections during swearing in ceremonies at the courthouse Tuesday.
Clerk of Court Sandra Gaskins administered the oaths to incumbent board members Cliff Everett Jr. and Myra Cain and new appointee Nelson Crisp.
Everett, an attorney, and Mrs. Cain, a professor of English at East Carolina University, were reappointed to new terms on the elections board while Mrs. Crisp, also an attorney, was recently named to her first term.
Both Everett and Mrs. Cain are Democrats and Mrs. Crisp is a Republican. The GOP member succeeds David Duffus Jr. who served one term. The three members were appointed by the State Board of Elections to serve two-year tenures, expiring in June of 1981.
During the board's organizational meeting following the courthouse activities, Everett was elected chairman and Mrs. Cain was elected secretary. Everett, who served as chairman the past two years, begins his third board term, while Mrs. Cain begins her second term.
Margaret Register, who has been associated with the Board of Elections since 1973, was renamed to serve as supervisor of elections.

Carter Holds Town Meeting

Commodore Matthew Perry came here with his gunboats 125 years ago and opened Japan to trade with the United States.
Some 5,000 to 10,000 Japanese lined the curbs as Carter, wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy traveled about the city. The turnout was smaller than expected, perhaps because of intermittent rain and the presence of 5,500 police.
In the gymnasium where Carter spoke, about 70 of the 500 people on hand were plainclothes police officers.
Still, the Carters seemed to get closer to the Japanese people here than in sprawling Tokyo. They popped their heads through the open roof of the presidential limousine and waved to onlookers who wagged small Japanese and American flags.
The free-wheeling Yankee tradition of a "town meeting" was unprecedented in Japan, and the traditionally formal, polite Japanese seemed uncertain how to react, and careful not to embarrass their guest.
Before Carter arrived at the school a White House advance man asked for a show of hands from those who planned to question the president.
When only a single hand went up, he said, "I am begging you" to volunteer. The courteous Japanese responded affirmatively.

Only two of the questions put to Carter were provocative, and mildly so at that.
One woman said she understood "formal segregation" still exists in the United States and asked if Carter would marry a black woman "without any reservation."
After pointing to 25 years of progress in breaking down racial barriers at home, Carter said: "I have never been in love with any other woman except my wife, but I would hope that in the true spirit of equality and in an absence of racial prejudice, that I would not let the color of a woman's skin interfere with my love for her if I felt that way. And marriage, of course, would be part of that relationship if the circumstances should permit."
The president then turned toward his wife, in a front-row seat, and added: "It is a hypothetical question, Rosalynn, and I have no intention to leave you for another woman."
A tangerine farmer tried to raise some sparks by claiming his livelihood was threatened by imports of American citrus products.

at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday.
Manning
Mrs. Linda Braxton Manning, 23, died Tuesday in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Funeral services will be held Thursday, 3:30 p.m., in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Bobby Thomas, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.
Mrs. Manning, a native of Pitt County, lived in the Winterville and Ayden communities. For the past year, she had made her home in Greenville. She had worked as a seamstress at North State Garments in Farmville and at Prep Shirt in Greenville.
She is survived by her husband, Randal D. (Randy) Manning, two sons, Randal Ray and Christopher Dale Manning, both of the home; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood (Buck) Braxton of Rt. 1, Winterville; three brothers, Elwood Ray Braxton Jr. of Winterville, Johnny M. and Bobby J. Braxton, both of Rt. 1, Winterville; a sister, Miss Betty Jean Braxton of Rt. 1, Winterville; and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Braxton of Greenville and Mrs. Pearl Grimsley of Farmville.
The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday and at other times will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood (Buck) Braxton, Rt. 1, Winterville at Nobles Crossroads.

OPEC...

Thursday. Today's afternoon session was expected to end at 3 p.m. EDT.
In Tokyo, U. S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said that if OPEC raises the base price to $20 a barrel, the United States will have an oil bill of $65 billion to $70 billion next year. The price increase, which he said would be a 50 percent increase from 1977, would mean "greater difficulty in controlling inflation," he said.
The official base price of OPEC oil has been $14.55 a barrel since March 1. But the average price has risen to $17 a barrel because of surcharges added on by all members of the cartel except Saudi Arabia because of the shortage of supply due to the reduction in Iranian production.
The surcharges threw world oil markets into turmoil. They also worried some OPEC members because they indicated a break in the pricing unity that has generally kept their foreign customers from playing off the members of the cartel against each other.
The oil ministers during the first day of their meeting Tuesday approved in principle the addition of $800 million to the OPEC fund for the aid of underdeveloped countries, the chief sufferers from the cartel's price increases. The proposal now goes to their finance ministers.
The addition would raise the fund's balance to more than $1 billion. It is used to soften the impact of OPEC's higher prices on the poorer nations.
In Tokyo, President Carter was reported preparing to ask the other six industrial countries at the Tokyo summit meeting to join the United States in setting targets to limit oil imports through 1980.

THANK YOU
The families of the late Raymond Willard Scott wish to thank Dr. Best & Staff, Veterans & retirees, Mr. Louis Fleming & employees of Union Service Station, the entire church family of St. Peter Missionary Baptist Church and their many neighboring friends for every act of help and kindness shown toward them during the illness and death of their loved one. May God bestow a special blessing upon each of you.

Alou Keys Houston Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It was the eighth inning and the Houston Astros needed a pinch hitter.

They needed Denny Walling's hot bat. But Walling, pinch hitting at better than a .500 clip, was their starting right fielder. And he had already hit a three-run homer earlier in the eighth.

Still, Houston was still one run down. So Manager Bill Virdon sent Jesus Alou — and his .053 batting average — to the plate.

And Alou responded with a two-run double that carried the Astros to a 6-5 victory over Cincinnati Tuesday night, widening Houston's National League West lead over the Reds to 6½ games.

In the rest of the NL, San Francisco shaded Atlanta 6-5, Philadelphia defeated Chicago 5-3, Pittsburgh beat New York 2-1 to stay within six games of Montreal and San Diego beat Los Angeles 5-1.

With Cincinnati leading 5-1 in the eighth, a single Cesar Ceno and a walk to Jose Cruz started the Reds' downfall. Paul Moskau got the next two outs before Walling hit his third homer of the season.

With two men on in the first inning, Moskau had fanned Walling. "I got too anxious in the first," Walling recalled. "Moskau got three high fastballs up in my eyes and I struck out. When I came to the plate in the eighth with two men on, he did the same thing, only this time I was expecting it. I got on top of one and it went out."

George Foster drove in four of Cincinnati's runs with his 18th and 19th homers of the season.

Expos 5, Cards 3
"I'll take it. In the boxscore, it'll look like a rocket. Whatever it takes to win is good enough for me," Grimsley said after the sixth-inning single off the end of his bat gave the Expos their 12th victory in the last 16 games.

Singles by Tony Perez and Gary Carter and Jerry White's grounder put runners at second and third. After Larry Parrish was walked intentionally, Tommy Hutton's grounder scored Perez to make it 2-2 before Grimsley got his two-run hit off pitcher John Denny's glove.

Giants 6, Braves 5
Darrell Evans was ready to take the night off while Heity

Cruz started for the Giants. But in the bottom of the ninth, with the game tied, Evans got the call, batted for Cruz and slammed a Gene Garber pitch over the right field wall for his sixth homer.

It was San Francisco's first hit in seven innings — except for the one Bill Madlock got in with his fist.

Phillies 5, Cubs 3
Singles by Greg Gross, Bake McBride and Pete Rose accounted for one Philadelphia run in the sixth inning, then Mike Schmidt drove in three with his 21st homer of the season to beat the Cubs.

Bob Boone added a homer for the Phillies in the ninth inning. Jerry Martin hit a homer for Chicago.

Pirates 2, Mets 1
Bert Blyleven and Grant Jackson teamed to four-hit the Mets while Bill Robinson, celebrating his 36th birthday, hit a tie-breaking homer off Tom Hausman in the seventh inning and turned in a game-saving catch for Pittsburgh an inning later.

With two away and a runner on second in the eighth, Robinson raced back to the wall in left-center field and, with a last-gasp stretch, hauled in Joel Youngblood's drive.

Padres 5, Dodgers 1
Fernando Gonzalez's three-run homer off Los Angeles' Don Sutton in a four-run fourth inning enabled the Padres to halt their four-game losing streak and hand the Dodgers their 16th loss in the last 23 games.

Scott's Play For Kansas City Turning Boston Faces Red

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The way George Scott is playing these days for the Kansas City Royals, the faces at Boston could soon be as red as their sox.

"He is really one heck of a dedicated ballplayer," says third baseman George Brett of the newest Royal.

The Red Sox traded away their longtime slugger earlier this month, but might well be embarrassed by that decision the way the pumped-up Scott is hitting for the Royals.

Hardly showing his age — which is 35 — Scott continued to look like a million Tuesday night with an RBI single in the 10th inning that provided the Royals with a 7-6 triumph over the Oakland A's. The base hit raised his batting average to .417 since he came to Kansas City.

Strangely, none of Scott's 20 hits for Kansas City has been a home run — but the Royals' slugger isn't worried too much about that.

In other American League games, the Detroit Tigers defeated Boston 6-4; the Minnesota Twins nipped the Milwaukee Brewers 8-7; the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the Cleveland Indians 4-3; the New York Yankees routed the Toronto Blue Jays 11-2; the Texas Rangers stopped the California Angels 2-1 and the Seattle Mariners edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Brett doubled leading off the Kansas City 10th against Jim Todd, 2-4, and went to third on a single by Amos Otis before scoring on Scott's single through a drawn-in infield. Al Hrabosky, 5-3, was the winner in relief.

After Larry Murray's RBI single made it 6-4 in favor of Oakland in the ninth, the Royals scored two times in their half of the inning to send the game into extra innings. Pete LaCock hit an RBI single and Steve Braun followed with a single that scored Scott with the tying run.

Yanks Acquire Bobby Murcer

TORONTO (AP) — Bobby Murcer left New York disgruntled and disillusioned following the 1974 baseball season, but that has all changed now that the Yankees have reacquired him.

The 33-year-old Murcer had the unique experience Tuesday of taking batting practice for an afternoon game in Chicago only to wind up playing a night game in Toronto.

Murcer was in his Chicago uniform and scheduled to start for the Cubs against the Philadelphia Phillies. But a few minutes before gametime, the Cubs swapped him to the Yankees for minor league pitcher Paul Semall and an undisclosed amount of cash.

"I feel like a new man," Murcer said. "I've never been so happy in all my life."

It wasn't easy, but Murcer made it across the border, arriving in the Yankees' clubhouse 15 minutes before their game against the Blue Jays. He dressed hurriedly, played right field and delivered two singles in four at-bats — he also walked twice — as the Yankees crushed the Blue Jays 11-2.

Murcer was in the third year of a five-year $1.6 million contract in Chicago and Bob Kennedy, the Cubs' general manager, called the trade "a financial windfall for us."

Babe Ruth Tournament

The 14-15-year-old Greenville Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament begins today at Guy Smith Stadium with a doubleheader. Fourth-seeded Aaction Movers take on fifth-seeded Pepsi-Cola at 6 p.m. and third-seeded Coca-Cola faces sixth-seeded Wachovia Bank at the conclusion of the first game.

The tournament will run through next Monday night and have a double elimination format. Planters Bank and Home Builders, which finished first and second in the regular season, drew first-round byes.

Tigers 6, Red Sox 4

Champ Summers drove in three runs with a homer and an eighth-inning, bases-loaded single as Detroit defeated Boston. Detroit's Jack Morris, 5-4, went the distance for the victory, scattering seven hits and striking out four. Boston reliever Bill Campbell, 2-3, took the loss.

Twins 8, Brewers 7

Ron Jackson scored from first base on a single and Ben Oglivie's throwing error in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift Minnesota over Milwaukee.

Jackson walked with two outs against loser Jerry Augustine, 3-3. Jose Morales followed with a single and Jackson scored when Oglivie's throw from left field skipped past the cutoff man into the infield.

Mike Marshall, 9-6, picked up the victory in relief.

Orioles 3, Indians 2

Rich Dauer looped a two-run double into the right field corner, keying a three-run fourth inning as Baltimore defeated Cleveland. It was the 17th victory in 19 games for Baltimore, the American League East leaders and the ninth consecutive loss for the Indians.

Dauer's hit came after Len Barker, 0-1, issued three oneout walks. The ball fell safely when right fielder Bobby Bonds appeared to shy away from the wall just outside the foul line.

Yankees 11, Blue Jays 2

Jim Spencer's two-run homer capped a five-run first inning that powered New York over Toronto. Spencer's sixth home run of the season followed a two-run single by Graig Nettles.

Fred Stanley, who took over at second base in the fourth inning after Willie Randolph was hit by a pitch on the left hip, also drove in two runs for the Yankees with a suicide squeeze bunt and a single.

Rangers 2, Angels 1

Rookie Billy Sample hit a bases-empty homer in the bottom of the eighth inning to snap a 1-1 tie and give Texas its victory over California. The Rangers had taken a 1-0 lead in the second inning on Johnny Grubb's sacrifice fly before the Angels came back to tie it on Jim Anderson's homer in the third.

Mariners 3, White Sox 2

Tom Paciorek's pinch-hit sacrifice fly capped a two-run eighth inning that paced Seattle over Chicago. The Mariners had tied the game 2-2 earlier in the eighth when they strung together three straight singles, the third a run-scoring bloop hit by Dan Meyer off Chicago reliever Steve Trout, 1-3.

Seattle reliever Byron McLaughlin, 4-2, who took over for starter Floyd Bannister to begin the sixth, won the game with ninth-inning relief from Shane Rawley, who collected his ninth save.

Big Value 23, Pepsi-Cola 0

Big Value Drugs clinched the championship of the Tar Heel League with a devastating 23-0 victory over Pepsi-Cola yesterday.

BVD scored one in the first, six in the second, six in the third, five in the fourth, four in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Steve Wall got the initial run when he doubled, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a fielder's choice by Kevin Lang.

Wall had three hits, along with teammate Les Turner, who also hit a homerun. Sterling Edwards, Lang and Matthew Saied had two hits each. Saied was the winning pitcher, hurling a one-hitter, while Lee Cox was the loser.

Lions 11, Union Carbide 1

The Lions romped past Union Carbide by an 11-1 margin in a North State Little League game yesterday.

The Lions scored three in the first, two in the second, two in the fourth and four in the fifth.

Mike Taylor, Patrick Rand and Tony Taylor all singled to get things started for the Lions in the first. Mike Taylor scored on Rand's hit. Rand came in on Kevin Pace's sacrifice fly and Tony Taylor tallied on a wild pitch.

Tony Taylor was the winning pitcher, holding UC to just two hits. He and Mike Taylor were both 3-4 at the plate, while Rand was 2-3.

Senior Babe Ruth

Robersonville 6, Bill Clifton 3

Bill Clifton scored all three of its runs in the first inning, but was held scoreless the rest of the way while Robersonville engineered a 6-3 victory.

Robersonville got its first run in the fifth and then added two in the fifth, two in the sixth and one more in the seventh.

The two sixth-inning runs actually provided the victory for Robersonville. They came when Matthews led off with a walk, moved around on a pair of passed balls and scored on an error. Whitfield then singled, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Wallace's double.

Whitfield had two hits to pace Robersonville, while Barry Tyson had three and Reggie Selby two for Clifton. Roberson was the winning pitcher and Todd Galloway the loser.

Kiwanis 6, Farmville 2

FARMVILLE — Kiwanis defeated Farmville 6-2 last night in another Senior Babe Ruth contest. Worthington was the winning pitcher.

Babe Ruth

Planter's Bank 5, Pepsi-Cola 3

Pepsi-Cola got off to a 3-0 lead in the first inning, but Planter's came back to take a 5-3 victory in a Babe Ruth game last night.

Frank Norris helped Pepsi get that lead with a two-two run homer, but Planter's scored two in the second, two in the third and one in the fourth.

In the third, Gordon Douglas walked, moved to third on passed balls and was sacrificed home by Mont Carter. Crowell Pope then singled and scored on a base hit by Keith Phillips.

No player in the game had more than one hit. Mike Pollard was the winning pitcher and Allen Dickens the loser.

Prep League

Auto Specialty 8, Jeannette Cox 2

Auto Specialty defeated Jeannette Cox 8-2 last night in a make-up Prep League baseball game.

Michael Smith scored the first AS run in the first inning when he reached on an error, moved to third on a passed ball and came across on Walter Perkins' sacrifice.

Auto Specialty put the game away in the third with three runs. Will Hestor led off with a walk, stole second and scored on Michael Smith's single. David Jester walked and Smith scored on a passed ball. Smith came in on Michael Kinley's single.

Nathan Green had two hits for AS, while Mike Laboni had two for Cox. AS scored single runs in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh, while both Cox runs were in the fourth.

Kinley was the winning pitcher and Eric Woodworth was the loser.

Everybody Has Gimmick Now

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Some people may recall when the chief attraction at a major league baseball game was the game itself. There was raw drama in a Babe Ruth home run and tingling excitement when Ty Cobb charged into second base, spikes flying. Joe DiMaggio's grace and power, Willie Mays' flair for the spectacular and Sandy Koufax's 90 mph speed were appeal enough for the fans.

No more. Today you've got to have exploding scoreboards, sexy cheer leaders, guys in chicken suits, bat days, helmet days — and days when the Yankees' George Steinbrenner changes managers. Is sports' age of gimmickry and press agency. Innovative Bill Veeck was largely the pioneer with his fireworks, midget batters and horse lotteries at Cleveland and Chicago. At Oakland, Charles O. Finley responded with his mule mascot, his bearded athletes, flashy uniforms, white shoes and orange baseballs. The game's hierarchy took a dim view of such shenanigans.

Now everybody's doing it. Broadcasters Howard Cosell and Keith Jackson almost swallowed their Adam's apples when the Houston Astros sent out their "Blonde Angel," Sue Laws, in skin-hugging white satin, to lead a songfest at Monday night's network game in the Astrodome.

The San Diego Padres are still going daffy over their talented "Chicken," a vaudeville act worth the price of admission in itself. It's not exactly new stuff.

Early in this century, an imaginative entrepreneur named Cash 'n Carry Pyle was mesmerizing the public with his carnival promotions in Madison Square Garden and P. T. Barnum was proving "a sucker is born every minute."

They were geniuses in their art — Pyle, Barnum, Veeck and Finley — but all have their match in a young man now beating the drums for the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Strikers soccer team.

His name is Andy "Satch" Furman. He is 29, Brooklyn-born and educated, sports information director at Brooklyn's St. Francis College and Tulsa's Oral Roberts University before joining the Strikers earlier this year.

The Oral Roberts basketball team had a high jumper named Lamont Reid. Furman dubbed him "Apollo 8." When ORU played a visiting Bulgarian team, Furman offered to let all persons of Bulgarian ancestry in free. Five thousand people with accents responded.

The privilege was accorded Indian Chiefs if they appeared with feather headdress for a game against The Oklahoma City Chiefs. One questionable Sitting Bull showed.

When a Strikers' star lost his sandals running on the beach, Furman offered two free tickets to anyone finding the footwear. He has sponsored "Grandma Night" (grandmas accompanied by a kid free) and "Gold Fish Night" (kids under 12 get certificates for gold fishes).

When the Strikers hit a four-game losing streak, a hypnotist was brought in to impart motivation. "Furman," a boss once said, "has an extreme dislike for empty seats."

Putt-Putt

The Top Ten defeated the King Putters and the Aces and Ace Machines tied last night in Putt-Putt action. The tie will be broken next Tuesday night.

The Top Ten (4-1) were led by Danny Woods with a 62 and Johnny Carrow and Junior Knox with 63's. Art Grapel had a 67 and was low for the King Putters (10-5).

Danny Harris fired a 59 to pace the Aces (3-1) and Carl White led the Ace Machines (2-2) with a 62.

Some Counties Not Interested In Loans

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Several county administrators have said they have no interest in receiving loans from the state to help them pay their current Medicaid expenses.

Three of the 13 counties which have said they are unable to meet their Medicaid payments have not submitted their 1978-79 social service department budgets to the state.

Letters notifying officials in 13 counties that their Medicaid bills will be picked up by the state were mailed Friday.

Sampson, Stanly and Watauga counties have yet to submit their budgets for approval. Burke County has been given until the beginning of next month to submit its budget. The administrators have said the loans would have to be repaid eventually, and the difficulty is that the money is not available either to make the Medicaid payments or repay the loan.

Some of the administrators have said they are required by state law to submit a balanced budget, and that taking the state offer would violate that provision.

Jim Burns, assistant director of public affairs for the state Department of Human Resources, said his department must approve the loan after a formal request is submitted by the county. He said the local unit must certify the request, admitting that there are no funds available from alternative sources to pay the Medicaid costs, and that the loan must be approved by the local governing unit.

The loans must be repaid within two years. No interest will be charged.

The problem resulted in a change in the Medicaid payment system enacted by the General Assembly last year. The change reduced the amount the state pays for nursing home care and raised the allowance for rest home care. The change was designed to induce persons to choose rest homes over the nursing homes.

The change, in essence, forced the counties to pay more nursing home costs for Medicaid patients.

Those counties which have said they are unable to pay include Alamance, Alexander, Anson, Buncombe, Caswell, Burke, Jones, Martin, Pender, Polk, Sampson, Stanly and Washington.

Hunt, Drivers In Agreement

By SHARON BOND
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Oil companies at a huge fuel terminal tried to resume normal deliveries to gas stations throughout the Piedmont today, after a visit by Gov. Jim Hunt on Tuesday prompted striking independent truckers to reduce the size of their picket lines.

The drivers agreed to largely disband the picket lines, leaving only token protestors, after the governor promised to create a task force to help find solutions to their grievances.

being issued on CB radios to drivers headed for the Greensboro terminal to pick up fuel loads.

The striking drivers blocked most shipments from the oil-tank yard Monday, causing spot shortages of gasoline at stations in the nearby surrounding area.

Tuesday, the picketing continued but the rigs were not actually blocking passage in or out of any of the terminals in the complex. However, only a fraction of the usual business was done.

A few fuel carriers passed through the picket early Tuesday, accompanied by state Highway Patrol escorts.

A patrol spokesman said there had been no reports of violence in the terminal area Tuesday.

The depot is a concentration of oil company terminals and is a source of gasoline for most service stations in the Piedmont and portions of Virginia.

Hunt warned the drivers that if they did not leave the terminal and allow movement of vital fuel shipments to resume, they would lose his sympathy and that of the public.

"You are in the strongest position with regard to how people and public leaders feel about you," Hunt told the drivers. "You are at your peak. If people start running out of gas, losing jobs, and cannot get food, they will start blaming somebody. And I think you know who that will be."

The governor never threatened the group directly with National Guard intervention, but told them the terminal would be doing business Wednesday.

"We are going to haul gas tomorrow (Wednesday) — one way or another. We will do whatever we have to do to make sure the gas moves," he said.

Hunt also promised the drivers he would meet as many of their demands as allowed by state law, and that he would intervene with federal officials also.

The drivers, led by George Weyer of Greensboro, head of the Independent Owner-Operators Union, gave Hunt a list of complaints and demands, most dealing with costs and regulation of their movement throughout the country.

"I'm going to ask President Carter to help, and I believe he will," Hunt told the approximately 50 drivers listening him speak from the back of a tractor rig.

Hunt's efforts at first did not appear to be successful after his closed door meeting with seven of the drivers, representatives selected by the group. When rank-and-file members first heard of Hunt's plans for a task force and his plea for an end to the picketing, the majority voted to continue the pickets.

But then Hunt came out to the truckers, climbed up on the back of a tractor rig and talked to them for nearly an hour.

"I really mean this, and you are going to have to trust me to a certain extent," he said. "We need the kind of approach that we have taken many times in the past. That is for the governor to appoint a special blue-ribbon task force to work with the group that needs help."

The governor was interrupted several times by drivers, both men and women, asking what they were supposed to do in the meantime.

"What are we supposed to do today, tomorrow and next week," one wanted to know.

"We have heard promises before," another called out.

Hunt told the group there was no way he could "wave a magic wand" and get everything done. And he pressed them for acceptance of his plan.

"Let's get started, dammit. We ought to have started long ago," he said.

The drivers then took a second vote, and a majority agreed to disband the picket line, leaving one truck per gate in a silent vigil.

The first successful long-distance demonstration of television took place between New York and Washington.

Vibrations Are Being Studied

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A professor at Duke University's school of engineering is studying the effects of machine vibrations on the human body, and believes the study could lead to safer machinery to protect workers' health.

Devendra Garg said the studies first looked into the effects of vibrations on the body after astronauts in the 1960s complained of vibrations so great that they could not read spacecraft instruments. Studies later showed that the astronauts' eyeballs had been affected by resonance, or sympathetic vibration, a reaction to low-frequency impulses of energy moving through the craft.

Garg said he has been working to identify resonance frequencies that affect the head or various internal organs.

He said he is also trying to help industries develop better working tools and design better artificial limbs that will "feel" more natural, since their resonance frequencies closely resemble those of flesh and bone.

In experiments, Garg said low-frequency vibrations were most often felt when subjects were sitting down.

"We can't directly extrapolate resonance experienced in one position to another," Garg said. "It's a very complex problem."

Garg had subjects stand on a small platform attached to a hydraulic shake table. An accelerometer mounted on the platform recorded the strength of vibrations created by the table. A second accelerometer mounted on the subject's head measured vibrations sent through the body.

Subjects were provided with switches near their right hands to interrupt the experiment if they ever felt uncomfortable, Garg said.

He said the body is able to handle most resonances, but evidence exists that the body's protection mechanisms can be overridden. Raynaud's syndrome, a nerve disorder, has been linked by French investigators with the operation of vibrating machine tools.

Garg said several types of jobs, such as chain-saws, pneumatic, jackhammer and polishing operations can be associated with psychological damage due to resonance.

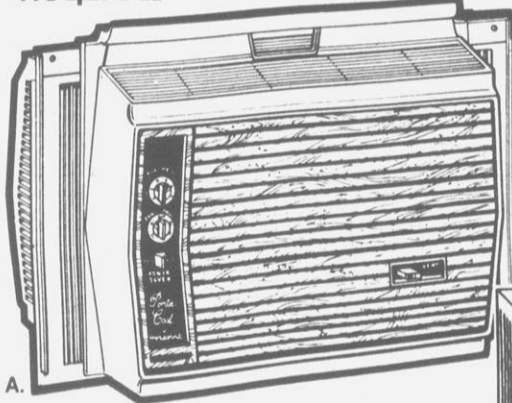

Garg said he plans to study workers' posture, as well as the tools they use to provide better bio-engineering data for better tool design.

Jailed Over TV

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — Virgil Hardeman, who was blind, went to jail rather than pay the tax. Afton Lee's television set was confiscated and sold at auction after he refused to pay. Both men were angry over Washington County's $15 annual television tax that has brought better television reception and resentment of county government to the 27,000 residents of this isolated southwestern corner of Utah.

The county installed equipment to boost the strength of the television signal brought some 300 miles from Salt Lake City. The reception is better, but a local resident has filed suit contending the county's $15 annual television tax is unconstitutional.

Walter T. Mann said he is trying to press a class-action suit to nullify the 23-year-old county tax.

"The county is creating a debt out of thin air," he said. "It's never been voted on; there's no contract with the people, and we're going to put a stop to it," he said Monday.

Mann isn't the only one who has objected to the tax.

Hardeman "told them to stuff it," said his daughter, Sue Russell. She said her father, who died in 1970, couldn't watch television but "didn't think it (the tax) was right" and spent four weekends in jail.

Under pressure from Mann and other irate citizens, the Washington County Commission revised its television ordinance Monday to remove criminal sanctions, including jail terms and criminal fines, said Commissioner Lyman Gubler.

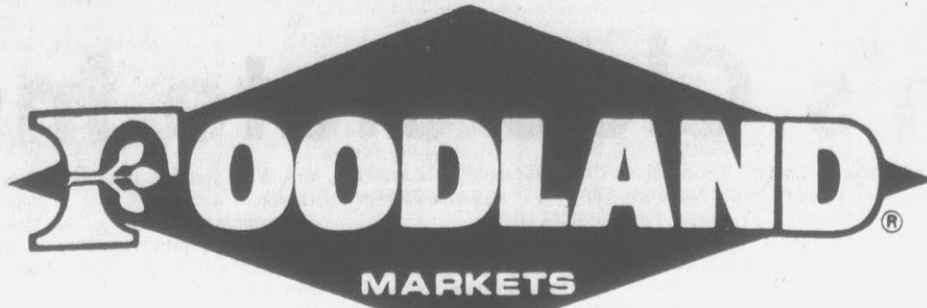

The county sends each residence an annual bill for $15, Gubler said. If the resident doesn't have a television, he can sign an affidavit and be exempt from the levy.

Women's Club State Institute Here

The North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs State Summer Institute was held here yesterday at the Holiday Inn.

State and junior officers, state department and division chairmen, junior department and division chairmen, headquarters staff and special guests began arriving Monday evening in preparation for the session.

This year, for the first time, the workshops were divided into two sessions. The western session was held in Hickory Friday and the second one here. Chairman and co-chairman were Mrs. Ernest Holt and Mrs. Joseph Gray respectively.

The purpose of the two-fold workshop was to have complete statewide coverage for district presidents, district junior directors, district department and division chairmen to implement the goals of the NCFWC-GF.

Registration started at 8:30 a.m. and workshops, scheduled from 9:30-11, were: Conservation Department, "Keep North Carolina Beautiful," with division chairmen conducting sessions on Energy, Environment and Beautification; Education Department, "TV Parent Participation Workshop," with sessions on Community Education, Leadership and Scholarships; Home Life, "Teenage Pregnancy" included sessions on Health, Family Living and Consumer's Concern; International Affairs, "International Family" including aid, policy and hospitality.

Workshops from 11-12:30 were: Public Affairs, "Safety," including crime reduction, citizenship; the Arts, "Art's for the Handicapped" with sessions on creative arts, visual and performing arts.

Mrs. Frank Moffett of Charlotte, president, introduced the following during the luncheon: Mrs. John V. Sutton, first vice president and president-elect, Greensboro; Mrs. Orin Whitner, second vice president, Lenoir; Mrs. F. J. Beasley III, third vice president, Concord; Mrs. J. W. Winning, recording secretary, Pfafftown; Mrs. R. W. Hoffman, corresponding secretary, Elizabeth City; and Mrs. W. C. Hatcher, treasurer, Kinston.

Recognition was given to honorary state presidents Mrs. Harold Odenwald, Mrs. V. Herman Creech and Mrs. James Johnson.

Special entertainment was provided by Tommy Stocks, who was first runner-up in the girl vocalist competition at the State Arts Festival held at Salem College. She was sponsored by the Greenville Woman's Club.

The keynote luncheon speaker was Dr. Jon Tingelstad, of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, whose topic was "Citizen Responsibility to Public Education."

Personal greetings were extended to the women by Dr.

Tingelstad, who said, "Having lived here for three years, makes me a citizen of the community and I extend my greetings." He gave his four reasons why he chose to practice in Greenville.

Dr. Tingelstad discussed his personal involvement in education and its system — as a father and pediatrician. He told of the responsibilities of the Board of Education members and said the board is a policy-making group.

Participating in a CIP workshop were Mrs. Lark Newsom, Mrs. David Glenn and Dr. Thomas Hobgood.

House Gives Okay To Bills On Synthetic Fuels, Excess Profits

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House members can head home for the Fourth of July congressional recess able to face energy-anxious constituents with two major energy bills under their belts.

The House approved late Tuesday a measure to provide a multibillion dollar package of federal subsidies to get the nation's infant synthetic fuels industry off the ground. The vote was 368-25.

It will be followed by action Thursday on a toughened version of President Carter's "windfall profits" tax on oil companies. The House Rules Committee paved the way for that vote Tuesday.

"It's important for all of us to go home for the July Fourth recess with something done on this tax," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

He cited rising public anger over gasoline lines and high fuel prices.

Supporters of the synthetic fuels bill voiced a similar sentiment, saying action on the legislation will show the American people Congress is moving to solve the energy problem.

"This is not going to stop gas lines but it will show Americans the nation is moving ahead," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas. "We are going to declare our energy independence."

To Speak

At Meeting

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Eleanor Shumaker will speak at the June 28 meeting of the Pitt-Beaufort Conservative Union scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the old courthouse in Washington.

The subject of Mrs. Shumaker's talk will be the tax funding of abortions.

The speaker is chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of Citizens Against Tax Funded Abortions and a member of the board of directors of the Pitt-Beaufort Conservative Union.

The conservative union is a bipartisan organization supporting the principles of free enterprise, limited government, and individual liberty, and is affiliated on the national level with the American Conservative Union, the nations largest conservative organization.

Council To Hold Meet

The Eastern Carolina Safety Council of North Carolina will meet June 28 at the Goldsboro Country Club.

Sponsored by the North Carolina Industrial Commission, the council, organized in 1937, holds quarterly meetings and workshops on such topics as accident prevention, occupational health, and workmen's compensation.

The program for tomorrow's session is scheduled to include a presentation by Harold Megrely, director of the Industrial Commission's statewide safety department, on arm, hand and finger injury cases.

Club To Visit Here

The Washington Toastmasters Club will be guests of the Greenville Toastmasters Club at a meeting here June 27 at the Western Steer Restaurant.

Dinner is scheduled at 6:30 p.m. with the meeting set to begin at 7:30.

Members of the Greenville club traveled to Kinston for a joint meeting with the Kinston Toastmasters Club last week.

The Toastmasters Club offers training and experience in various forms of communication, especially speaking before groups, and leadership. Persons over 18 years of age are eligible for membership, and guests are welcome at club meetings.

The Greenville club regularly meets on the second and fourth Wednesday nights of each month at the Western Steer.

Individuals wishing further information may call Pat Flanagan or Charlotte Flanagan at 756-7192.

It's a super cool offer. The Little Skotch® Jug and recipe booklet. A 70-ounce, insulated cooler that serves hot or cold. With "Screw-On" lid and "Snap-Lock" cap that prevents spills and leakage. Perfect for picnics and poolside! You get lots of thirst quenching, cold drink ideas and other on-the-go picnic recipes, too. All designed to fit in your Little Skotch Jug.

To get your Dixie Crystals Thirst Aid Kit, just fill out and mail the coupon below. Or look for coupons on specially marked, 5-lb bags in your favorite store. The Little Skotch Jug regularly retails for $4.98. You can get it free with 8 Homemade Goodness proof-of-purchase seals from Dixie Crystals 5 lb. bags, plus $1 (to cover postage and handling). Or with $2.99 plus the Homemade Goodness proof-of-purchase seals from 2 of our 5 lb. bags. Either way, it's a real cool deal.

You can even try a little Thirst Aid now. Make up a refreshing batch of homemade lemonade with fresh strawberries. You'll need: 6 Med. Lemons (Juiced) • 2 Cups Dixie Crystals Granulated Sugar • 2 Qts. Water • 1/2 Cup Sliced Fresh Strawberries. Completely dissolve sugar in lemon juice and water. Chill, add strawberries and pour into container and watch your gang break out in sunny smiles.

And don't forget to take advantage of Dixie Crystals Thirst Aid Kit offer. Send for your Little Skotch Jug and recipe booklet today. You'll be ready to beat the heat all summer.

Sharks Seldom Attack

By The Associated Press
With beach season underway, swimmers might as well know the truth.

Sharks, including the great white, frequent North Carolina waters. But they're not much to worry about, experts say. In the past 50 years, only two fatal shark attacks have been confirmed off North Carolina beaches.

Sharks rank with rats, snakes and spiders as the most feared species on earth.

But as for a rogue shark hanging around munching on people, according to Frank J. Schwartz of the Institute of Marine Sciences in Morehead City, "There's never been a rogue shark anywhere in the world."

In North Carolina waters, far more attacks have been attributed to bluefish or barracuda than to sharks.

About 35 species of shark inhabit the state's waters. Most of the sharks found have measured six or seven feet at most, and most have been three to four feet long.

In a book entitled "Sharks of North Carolina and Adjacent Waters," Schwartz wrote, "One is less likely to be attacked by a shark in the ocean than having a serious accident at home or in a car."

In 1935, Jere Fountain was attacked while swimming in Brown's Inlet in Onslow County. In 1957, Rupert Wade was swimming well off Atlantic Beach when he was attacked. Both men subsequently died of their wounds.

In 1975, Dave Perry of Jacksonville was out scuba diving when he came face to face with a tiger shark. He said the shark headed toward him, then veered away and vanished.

And says Jim Daw, a New Bern fisherman, he sees sharks all the time from the back of his boat. "They just run away."

Used Sewer In Robbery

LECCO, Italy (AP) — Bandits using skin diving equipment made their way through a sewer into the underground safe deposit box room of a bank in this north Italian town and fled with cash and jewels worth millions of dollars, police reported Monday.

According to police the bandits used the sewage system to reach the thick safe room wall which they perforated with pneumatic drills. Then the bandits emptied all the safe deposit boxes and made off with their contents.

There was no official estimate of the amount taken, but police put the haul in the billions of lire, or millions of dollars.

Police said the bandits left behind a number of pneumatic drills, blow torches and even skin diving equipment they had used to make their way into the bank through a channel carrying off the sewage.

Police reported a night watchman passing near the bank late Sunday warned them he had noticed a heavy burning smell coming from a sewage street outlet. This led to the discovery of the robbery.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Hospital or Home Delivery?

With the cost of being in the hospital going up every day, wouldn't it be cheaper if pregnant women were to give birth to their children at home? Mothers who have had one or two children know all about it and could be delivered by a doctor, or even a midwife, and save all that money.

— Mrs. S.T., Nev.
Dear Mrs. T.:
There are two aspects to your letter which must be separated and viewed independently. The cost of hospitalization is certainly a massive problem that confronts everyone today. For those who are not protected by some form of insurance, Medicare or Medicaid, a major illness can be catastrophic to the family's financial resources. And yet, this situation is not the only determining factor in the choice of home delivery.

A great many hospitals are trying a program of home deliveries. There is no universal agreement about the total safety of this social development. Some doctors believe that there are many psychological advantages to home delivery. They also believe that the complications of infections after delivery are reduced by this choice. Other doctors insist that it is impossible to anticipate the complications that can arise, even among women who have given birth before without complications. Although the percentages of complications are small, there still is a possibility that an unpredicted one can occur. It is undeniable that a hospital is the ideal place to handle such complications.

Do you think that karate is a dangerous sport for a 15-year-old boy? My son is so involved with this that it is beginning to interfere with his school work.

— Mrs. E.E., Wis.
Dear Mrs. E.:
Karate is but one of the many variations of the martial arts. Those who are highly trained know the damage that a single blow can cause if used without proper restraint. Teachers of karate instill in their students a fearsome respect for the techniques they are learning. Some young people who become overenthusiastic have been known to suffer from, and to have inflicted on others, severe damage to the liver, spleen and other parts of the body.

Supervised karate can be an excellent exercise and can teach students discipline. However, when this sport or any other sport becomes so all-consuming that it dominates scholastic achievement, it must be curtailed or limited, for better balance.

Seek Hypertension Foes

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A study of high blood pressure among blacks has recommended a 20-year national program against the problem involving black professional groups, churches and community organizations.

The Black Health Providers Task Force was to present its recommendations today at a White House symposium on high blood pressure, or hypertension, in blacks. This health problem is estimated to be two-thirds more prevalent among blacks than whites and is a major factor in blacks having a death rate from strokes three times that of whites, the study said.

The recommendations, developed during an 18-month study by black health professional societies and others, call for community screening to identify those with undiagnosed hypertension and wide-scale education programs. One goal of the program is to reduce by 50 percent each five years the numbers of blacks with critically high blood pressures, which puts them at greater risk of such complications as stroke, heart disease and kidney failure.

Another goal is to identify more people with hidden hypertension and increase the numbers of those who successfully control the disease through medications, diet and weight watch-

The cochairman of the task force, Dr. Donald Ware of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, told a briefing Monday preliminary work already has begun on the program, which will focus on cooperative efforts of voluntary, professional and service organizations.

Class Holds 40th Reunion

The Winterville Class of 1939 held its 40th reunion Saturday at the Western Steer Steak House. Ethel Mills greeted guests and presented each with a name scroll.

Graydon Jackson, class president, gave the welcome and recognized special guests, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Conley, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Cain, Mr. and Mrs. Sellers Dickerson, all of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Manning of Williamston, Mrs. Bessie Mobley of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manning of Wilmington. The Rev. Nathan Hanchey gave the invocation and Myrtle Hanchey presented gifts to various members.

Tribute was paid by the Rev. Howard James to deceased faculty and class members — James Mobley, Edith Grey Allen, Herbert H. Forrest, Joseph Leonard Hobgood, G. W. Peede Jr., Edward W. Smith, and Marvin D. Worthington. The class song was sung.

Attending, in addition to those already mentioned, were James and Mary Alice Patty, Mitchell and Marjorie Avery, Marie Flanagan, Charlotte Ruth Worthington, Mattie Frances Langley, Roscoe and Edith Barnhill, Mrs. Howard (Margaret) James, Ervin and Ethel Mills, Powell Speight, Harry and Pollie Avery, V. T. and Helen Corey, Ralph and Margaret Crawford, James and Deloris Little, Myrtle Nobles, Dow Waters, R. H. and Betty Ellis McLawhorn, Mrs. Graydon (Esther) Jackson, Brooks and Marguerite Cox, R. L. and Bernice Peden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Broadwell, Lucille Cox, Don and Gretchen Kirk, Reid McLawhorn, Mildred Peede, Dallas and Jenny Whitford, Virgale and Marjorie Mason, Rebecca Stafford, Julia Mae Lilly, and Nancy Manning.

Mt. Olive Graduate

Ms. Janice Williams, daughter of Mrs. Alice Ann Williams of Ayden, recently completed two years at Mount Olive Christian College majoring in Business Administration.

She plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in the fall where she will continue her study in Business Administration. She was a 1977 graduate of Ayden Grifton High School.

Group Went On A Tour

The Chicod Friendship Club went on a sightseeing tour of Wilmington Saturday. Club members visited the USS North Carolina, Orton Plantation and Chandler's Wharf, as well as the many shops in the Cotton Exchange.

Men and women of all ages make up the Friendship Club, which offers a chance for interested persons to come together for fellowship. Interested persons should get in contact with Alice Keene, 752-6106, for more information on the Club.

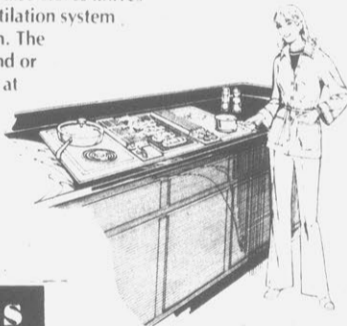

Retirees Held Picnic

Although rain kept club members from eating, a buffet luncheon was set up in the breakfast room. Mack Rogerson of Bethel offered the invocation, followed by lunch. Members attending from Bethel were Mack and Lorraine Rogerson, Josie Mae Andrews, and Anne W. Scribner, with Greenville members, Mayo J. Rogers, Gwen Stancill, Virginia J. Spencer and Annie Turner.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST - Warm to mild weather is expected in the forecast period, Wednesday until Thursday morning, for most of the nation. Showers are forecast for northern New England. (AP Laserphoto)

The Nation's Weather
By The Associated Press
Tornadoes, hail and strong winds hit the nation's midsection, causing some damage. More rain was in store today for the area as well as the southeastern coasts.

Storms sent large hail into parts of the Nebraska panhandle, and northeastern Iowa. Strong winds - with some damage - hit parts of Iowa and Minnesota, and tornadoes were reported late Tuesday in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Thundershowers were expected to spread today across the south Atlantic Coast and the eastern half of the Gulf Coast. Widely scattered showers or thundershowers were forecast from the lower Great Lakes into the mid-Mississippi Valley and across the western half of the Gulf Coast into parts of central Texas.

Mild temperatures were predicted along most of the Atlantic Coast, over the Tennessee Valley and across parts of the lower Mississippi Valley. It was expected to be hot or seasonably warm elsewhere.

Libel Protection Narrowed

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court, in decisions news media representatives and newsmakers say could seriously hamper the flow of information to the public, has narrowed the protections against libel lawsuits.

In separate libel rulings Tuesday, the court said: -Criminal defendants, even when convicted, are not necessarily "public figures" who have to meet a higher standard of proof to win a libel suit.

-Members of Congress may be sued for libel for statements made in press releases, newsletters to constituents and conversations with government agencies. Also, persons whose work receives taxpayer support are not necessarily "public figures" under libel law.

The first ruling clears the way for a man who claims he was wrongly identified as a Soviet spy to bring to trial his libel suit against an author.

The second clears the way for trial in an $8 million libel suit against Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who bestowed a satirical "Golden Fleece" award for a study into why "rats, monkeys and humans clench their jaws."

"I'm extremely disappointed in both decisions," said Washington lawyer Richard Schmidt Jr., who had asked the court, on behalf of the American Newspaper Editors Association and the National Newspaper Association, to reach opposite conclusions.

Schmidt referred to the first decision as "a body blow...far worse in its practical effect than Herbert vs. Lando."

In its "Herbert" decision, the court ruled April 18 that public figures who sue for libel may inquire into a reporter's or editor's "state of mind" while working on the allegedly libelous report.

"Today's ruling could lead to tremendous expense for the press to defend itself against harassing libel lawsuits. It will create havoc for the press," Schmidt said.

The Washington-based Reporters' Committee for Freedom of the Press said Tuesday's decisions "will encourage harassing libel suits and will discourage publishing news about public events." House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said he was "troubled" by the Proxmire decision. "Public criticism of governmental expenditures is a legislative act protected by the Constitution...it is important for the members of Congress to feel free in communicating with their constituents," O'Neill said.

Nuclear Fuel Flow Restricted

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) - A week after the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said Charleston was being considered as a port of entry for spent nuclear fuel from abroad, the City Council has passed an ordinance severely restricting or prohibiting movement of the fuel through the historic community.

The council voted 5-4 for the ordinance Tuesday night following an overflow, three-hour public hearing. One member abstained.

The ordinance bars transportation of high-level radioactive material on city streets and requires 48-hour notice and a police escort for other nuclear shipments.

Exempt would be radioactive material for medical research or military or national defense purposes.

Mayor Joseph P. Riley, who voted for the ordinance, said it is "an indication to federal authorities that this city does not propose to handle alone the entire nuclear waste disposal system of the United States. If and when it can be shown that there is proper regulation of nuclear material ... and that the burden is being shared by our entire nation, we may be properly asked to modify our ordinance."

Councilman Henry Grimball, who opposed the ordinance, said the risks to the city from nuclear shipments were minimal. "It's an attempt to disrupt the nuclear industry. ... Nuclear energy is one of our biggest and best alternative sources of energy, if you look beyond the safety factor."

The NRC announcement said the spent fuel would be unloaded at Charleston for shipment and storage at the federal Savannah River plant near Aiken, S.C. Foreign nations supplied with American fuel for experimental reactors must return it.

At present, port facilities at Norfolk, Va., are used.

Will Take Refugees

CAYENNE, French Guiana (AP) - The village of Ouanaury, on the northeast coast of this French possession in South America, says it is ready to take in about 50 Vietnamese refugees.

"We're underpopulated," said the 71-year-old mayor of the village, Lionel Oloue. "If they are workers, they will be welcome in our community."

Ouanaury has a population of 121. French Guiana accepted 500 Vietnamese refugees in 1977.

Sounds of Love Arouse Her Ire

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been living in an apartment for the last eight years and have gotten used to the noises that occur. However, I have recently encountered a noise I don't know how to deal with. It's most annoying since it usually occurs late at night or early in the morning. If you haven't guessed by now, it's my upstairs neighbors' squeaky bed!

A pair of newlyweds recently rented the apartment above me. Their bedroom is directly above mine and it's extremely difficult for me to fall asleep at night or sleep late in the morning.

I have only a nodding acquaintance with the girl, so it's not as though we can sit down for some friendly girl talk. Meanwhile, I'm losing sleep. My name is Kathy and I live in Atlanta, but sign me...

BLEARY-EYED AND ENVIOUS

DEAR BLEARY-EYED: Catch the girl when she's alone and give it to her straight: "My bedroom is directly under yours. Your bed squeaks. It keeps me awake. Will you please do something about it?"

If you are unable to deliver this message in person—write!

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter became engaged last December. Sarah is 25 and David is 29.

Sarah lives at home and David lives 30 miles from here. He drives over every night to be with Sarah, which is fine, but he shows up regularly just in time for supper. I invite him to have dinner with us every Sunday, but he's here every other night, too.

Abby, he is a successful businessman (accountant), has good manners, and we like him, but I am fed up with his free-loading. Not once has he offered to take my husband and me out for a meal.

I've asked Sarah to say something to him about this, but she's afraid she might hurt his feelings.

I hate to be rude, but I am up to here with having him for supper every night of the week.

Who should tell him? Or am I wrong for feeling imposed upon? Please help me.

FED UP IN BROOKLYN

DEAR FED UP: Since you feel "imposed upon," tell your daughter that it is her responsibility to find a gentle, loving way to inform her fiancé that enough is enough. Also that a gentlemanly reciprocal invitation is long overdue.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 43 and my husband, Pete, is 45. Two years ago I had an affair with Pete's nephew. He's 29. He's not a real nephew since Pete and I are living common-law. Since then the nephew met another girl and he's living with her now, so it's all over between us.

In the meantime Pete heard about me and his nephew, so I confessed. Just to get even with me, Pete had an affair with a night nurse. When he told me about it I got mad and had an affair with a cop who had been after me for a long time. Pete had to get even again, so he went to a bar and picked up a girl. Then, for spite, I started in with the cop again.

Now, it's a contest to get even with each other and we can't seem to stop. How can I put an end to all this?

TOO TIRED TO GARDEN

DEAR TIRED: Tell Pete that he is the winner, and declare a moratorium.

DEAR ABBY: AMY'S POP asked what you thought the chances were for a happy marriage between Amy and Jerry, her fiancé, a regular sports nut. Jerry ate, drank, slept, talked, read and lived sports, but Amy didn't share his enthusiasm. AMY'S POP said he tried to tell her that guys who lived for sports made poor husbands and worse fathers, but she wasn't buying it. You told Dad to back off.

Well, my husband is a sports nut. He watches sports on TV every chance he gets. When we were first married, I'd watch, too, to keep him company, but I was bored and complained a lot. Finally, I realized how lucky I was that my guy was home with me—not out drinking and running around with the guys like a lot of other husbands. I confess that when my man isn't watching TV he tends to get underfoot, so I welcome the weekends to sew, clean house, read or write letters. If Amy keeps busy she won't mind it a bit.

DISAGREES WITH AMY'S POP

DEAR DISAGREES: My mail has been running about 90 percent with me and 10 percent with AMY'S POP.

Ingenious Idea Ruins Just One Night Instead Of Four Of Them

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Who says imagination is absent from network television? NBC, through vigorous exercise of fancy, has managed to transmute four failed pilots into the Wednesday Movie of the Week.

Think about it. Rather than having four separate awfuls ruining four separate nights, somebody at NBC was clever enough to bunch them together, thereby ruining only one night.

Now, this mixed batch may not look like a movie to you and me, but it is. Says so right there in the listings. It's called "The Generation Gap," so named because each of the pilots has at least one teen-ager and one adult.

It's as good a name as any for a movie that was born in the throwaway pile. Better than "Four Bad Pilots."

Each is filled with standard, generally unfunny sitcom gags and routines, though the basic storylines are a little different.

The first is "Home Again," about a tough-minded bachelor cop (Darren McGavin) who hates teen-agers. In the world of TV sitcoms, of course, such a man is soon to be visited by a teen-ager. He is.

The teen-ager is McGavin's long-lost son, though McGavin never knew he had a son to lose. The boy, who shows up in McGavin's little town as a backpacking hippie, was born of McGavin's old girlfriend, who has recently died.

There are plenty of "Oh, how am I gonna explain this?" jokes, each entirely predictable, and the un-TV-like problem of illegitimacy is cleaned by McGavin's explaining that he never knew the boy's mother was pregnant. He would have married her had he known. Of course.

Actually, that's the best of the lot. McGavin and the kid (Michael Horton) and Dick Sargent, who plays a priest on the show, are pretty good. The story and the jokes are not.

If I didn't know that TV shows cost a lot of money, I'd suggest that "But, Mother..." was made specifically for a summertime throwaway movie. This is odious.

A former madame has problems with her would-be actress daughter, and vice-versa. The show opens with Mom calling for her daughter. "I'm in here, Mother," responds the girl from the bathroom. "Yes, I know," says Mom. "You've just broken the Guinness world record for staying in the john." Yuk-yuk.

Then there's "Starting Fresh," about a mother who goes back to college and ... right, gets involved in generational problems with her daughter, who attends the same college. The rest you can guess. The fourth part of this movie was unavailable for preview. It is "The Paul Williams Show," with Williams as host of a kid's show.

The Russians are coming! Judged by their success in other sports, they will soon be a threat in world bridge competition. At a recent tournament in Tallinn, which was attended by many of the best players from Eastern Europe, Russia dominated both the team and pair events. If this hand is indicative of the ability of the Russians, watch out world.

While North had a good hand, he was a trifle optimistic in driving to a slam over partner's jump to four hearts. As the cards lie, a spade lead, or a diamond lead and a red-suit return, would have led to the contract's defeat.

West was reluctant to open anything that might help declarer, so he got off to the safe lead of a trump.

Even looking at all the hands, it is not easy to see how declarer avoided the loss of a diamond trick and a spade, but watch what happened.

Declarer won the trump in hand, cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club. Dummy was re-entered with the queen of trumps and another club was ruffed—had the king dropped, declarer would have been home.

Unfortunately, the monarch did not, so it seemed that declarer would now have to rely on the spade finesse. But declarer found a better move—he led the queen of diamonds from his hand.

East was in a quandary. If he won the ace of diamonds, he would be end played. A diamond return would allow declarer to discard a spade, while giving declarer an extra entry to dummy to ruff a club and set up the queen for a second spade discard.

Exiting with a black suit would be equally disastrous. So East allowed the queen of diamonds to win.

Now declarer simply led a spade to the queen. East won the king and returned the ace of diamonds. Declarer ruffed and ran the ten of spades, and when that held, the slam was secure.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-27

GSS BEPHEKEYH BWHAPXPIWH IW-
VGKIEYD VWAPXSEYH XGDW

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — TINTED OP ART PRINT CONFUSED APT FOCUS.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: X equals C

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is your day to think in terms of what you need to do to obtain the goodwill of associates and the approval of the public at large in your ventures and undertakings. Give full credit where due.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have every opportunity now to show your finest capabilities to bigwigs who can help you to commercialize on them. Get out to amusements but with congenials only.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve conditions at home and have the rapport there that you wish. Entertain worthwhile individuals and get the backing you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on whatever has to do with communicating with others and travel for good purposes. Visit with persons who can be of help to you. Show you are wide awake, generous with all.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A new project may be in the offing, so be on the alert for it, or look into one yourself and add to income soon. Have a frank discussion with a prominent person on how to become more affluent yourself.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make confidential plans that will bring about an uptrend in all of your affairs in the near future. Confide only in bigwigs who can help you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrate on your most important goals and know how best to attain them. Avoid one who does not understand or appreciate you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle those affairs concerning friends that will bring you mutual benefits early and well. Get out to important group affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you get into civic work you gain prestige, also in business circles. More application to career work will bring in greater benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans early for a trip you want to take and count the cost well. Use caution in a new condition that suddenly arises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your responsibilities well and know how best to handle them. Show more affection for loved ones and get good response.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get those ideas working early that will help you to communicate better with others. Finish any contracts you have pending and get good results. Be more open-minded with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Organize mutual enterprises with others and handle them intelligently. Don't permit others to undermine you in any way.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will comprehend early the needs of the public and will want to please them. An inventive mind here that needs a good education to make the best use of it. Some musical talent here also.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Different Vacation: Trade Your Home

By FRED FERGUSON
United Press International
 No one has counted them but the best bet is that there are nearly 4,500 families who have listed their homes this year in the Vacation Exchange Club's catalogs.

Although it is too late to be listed this year, you can still arrange an exchange. You can receive the directories without listing for $12 — the way many families start — and contact those with whom you would like to make an exchange.

You trade your home and all the good things it offers — that old adage about the grass is greener — for one with similar or comparable amenities just about anywhere in the U.S., Europe, Canada, Mexico, the Caribbean, some locations in Latin America, even down under in Australia and New Zealand.

It is, as many families say they have found, an inexpensive way to vacation since actual costs tend to be limited to travel and the sightseeing or eating out while on vacation.

Couples often also exchange cars, thus limiting sightseeing costs. And they sometimes exchange maids.

There are listings for just about every type of home: beach cottages, ski chalets, city apartments, motor homes, suburban colonials, cottages, mansions, ranches, farm houses, castles, recreational vehicles.

Wilson and Annie Murray White of Myrtle Beach, S.C., wrote the exchange club to tell of their exchange last summer with Dr. and Mrs. Harold Gebhardt of Oldenburg, West Germany. The Gebhardts met the Whites on their arrival, stayed three days to help them get settled, and the White's daughter helped the Gebhardts get acquainted at Myrtle Beach. The Whites returned home a few days early to show the Gebhardts around. There were parties with the Gebhardts' neighbors when the Whites left Germany and several parties for the Gebhardts in the U.S.

"We will always remember this exchange vacation as one of the highlights of our lives," the Whites wrote.

The listings tell a lot. For example, one indicates a vacation home which sleeps eight in four bedrooms with two baths in Lake Tahoe with availability of a ski area, boating, fishing, casinos, golf and "serenity" plus appliances, two fire places and a large outdoor deck.

Shown by abbreviations are such details as the home's location and distance to the nearest city, the time it is offered for exchange, the areas of the world in which the family desires to make an exchange and such amenities as air conditioning, central heating and baby sitter and public transportation availability.

A subscription to list in either the directory published in February or the supplement in April is $15, $5 additional to have a photo of your home printed.

The listings include those of David Ostroff's Vacation Exchange Club in New York, the Home Interchange of London, Hawaii's Aloha Exchange, Shalom Israhouse in Tel Aviv, Holiday Home Exchange of Australia and Holiday Service of West Germany.

There is no tabulation of how many exchanges take place. Contacts and arrangements are between those who list in the catalogs or subscribe to them (or borrow them from subscribers). However, the growth in listings is a pretty good indication a lot of families do exchange homes for a week or two or more.

Ostroff, a New York City school principal, started his listings in 1960 when he sent brochures to schools and garnered 100 listings of homes for exchange. Now, the U.S. listings alone make up a third of the two directories.

Mrs. Dierdre Stanforth has exchanged her New York City 10-room brownstone many times. The exchanges have taken the Stanforths to an English cottage, to Canada, the Gulf Coast and the Rockies. But their most exotic exchanges were for a castle in Ireland. They did that three years in a row. This year they are considering offers from Hawaii and London.

"After a couple of letters, you start to understand whether you have a rapport with these people and you can judge very quickly whether their home and your home will be compatible — whether you're exchanging equal value, so to speak," Mrs. Stanforth's husband said. He said they have enjoyed all their exchanges.

Ostroff says he is impressed by the number of families who subscribe one year and list their homes the next having completed their first successful exchange.

"When I started," says Ostroff, "I was thinking mostly of school teachers who had plenty of time for vacation and very little money in pocket. Now it seems to appeal more to people better heeled than school teachers."

But he says exchanges still have particular appeal to those of limited means — young couples, young professionals, still a great many educators and an ever growing number of retired couples.

"A retired professor in his 80s from Austria exchanged with a couple in California who were worried that he spoke little English," said Mary DeBardo, manager of the club. "But their neighbors got to know him and he became so liked they wound up holding a party for him. They called it the Peterfest — his name is Peter."

"The thing that comes out of these exchanges is the number of friends that develop over the years. People come back and exchange with the same family more than once."

Exchange participants interviewed said they invariably received inquiries in response to their listings but the directory urges participants to initiate such exchange correspondence as a means of more rapidly getting the kind of exchange they want.

It gives detailed information on how to do this, including sample invitation letters for use in preparing a letter telling about your home and community and your family.

There also is a page of suggestions from Judy and Francis Furton, retired teachers from Detroit, whom moved to Guadalajara, Mexico, in 1972 and have participated in 40 exchanges to date in this country and abroad from England and Greece to Jamaica and Hawaii.

They provide information such as what to include in an invitation letter, how to have copies printed and mailed, how to prepare a notebook for the other family.

Prosecutors Impatient For Hearing

By DAVID EGNER
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Prosecutors impatient to begin a preliminary hearing for Roger Dale Stafford—the man accused in the worst mass murder in Oklahoma history—say they may ask a judge to order a hearing to be held in the next few weeks.

"We're going to insist he (Stafford attorney Garvin Isaacs) get ready pretty soon," to defend Stafford in the murders of six employees found shot to death in an Oklahoma City steakhouse last July 16, said Jim McKinney, Oklahoma County first assistant district attorney.

Isaacs, who recently won an innocent verdict in a nationally publicized trial for the late Gene Leroy Hart on charges of murdering three Girl Scouts, became Stafford's attorney Tuesday. Isaacs replaced Gary Dean and Tony Jack Lyons of Pryor, who resigned from the case when they said Stafford's relatives could not pay them enough money.

Contacted by telephone at the University of Houston, where he is lecturing at the National College of Criminal Defense Lawyers, Isaacs said he has "no idea" of when he could be ready for a preliminary hearing.

The Oklahoma City lawyer said when he completes his lecturing at the end of this week, he will return to Oklahoma City to begin familiarizing himself with the Stafford case.

"I just don't have any comments about any of the facts," in the case until learning more about the case, Isaacs said. Stafford, a 27-year-old Alabama drifter, is charged with murdering Terri M. Horst, 15, one of the six steakhouse workers whose bullet-riddled bodies were found stacked in the meat locker of a Sirlain Stockade steakhouse in south Oklahoma City after a $1,500 robbery.

Though Stafford is charged with only one of the deaths, McKinney said authorities believe Stafford and his late brother, Harold, 29, were responsible for all six killings. Harold Stafford died in a Tulsa motorcycle accident six days after the steakhouse bloodbath.

"It would serve no useful purpose" to charge Stafford with five additional murder counts, McKinney said. He said prosecutors will be allowed to introduce evidence about all six murders into court proceedings against Stafford.

McKinney said if Stafford is found innocent of the Horst murder, prosecutors could not bring him to trial on any of the other killings.

Stafford's preliminary hearing will be held to determine if he must stand trial on the Horst murder charge.

In addition to the steakhouse murders, Stafford is the prime suspect in the killings of three members of a San Antonio, Texas family near Purcell on June 22, 1978, said Kay Huff, Cleveland County District Attorney.

"I don't really see anything but confusion" resulting from filing charges against Stafford before the steakhouse murder case is resolved, Mrs. Huff said.

Mrs. Huff said she might decide to file charges against Stafford after receiving a new report this week on the Purcell killings from the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, but she doubts she will file.

In addition, Stafford is considered the only suspect in the killing of a McDonald's restaurant employee, 19-year-old Jimmy Berry, in Muscle Shoals, Ala., in 1974, said Muscle Shoals Police Chief Ronald Gene Bowling.

"If we could come up with the gun (used in the killing) we could charge him," Bowling said.

Stafford was once considered a suspect in the Nov. 22 murders of four Burger Chef employees in Speedway, Ind., but police there no longer believe he was involved in the deaths.

If the steakhouse murder case comes to trial, "we're going to demand the death penalty," McKinney said. "I think any jury at all, if they believe in the death penalty, if they find him guilty, would, in my opinion, without any question of any kind, assess the death penalty."

McKinney said he hopes the Stafford preliminary hearing will be held in the next few weeks, and would like the trial to come no later than early November.

"We're ready for jury trial right now," McKinney said.

Asked how the entry of Isaacs would affect the case, McKinney gave a sarcastic reply: "There might be a lot of benefit dinners or ice cream socials to raise something for poor old Roger."

The prosecutor referred to fund raising events held by supporters of Hart to raise money for Hart's defense. Isaacs, 34, characterized himself as "a little rough around the edges" and "a country bumpkin lawyer" when he addressed jurors in the Hart trial. But he impressed observers as shrewd and aggressive.

The former Oklahoma County assistant district attorney and first assistant public defender used Hart's preliminary hearing to discover all he could about the prosecution's case. The month-long preliminary was one of the longest in state history.

During Hart's murder trial, Isaacs hired a psychologist to help him question and select jurors. The colorful attorney's courtroom outbursts resulted in his censure and reprimand by the judge in the case.

Hart died of a heart attack not long after his acquittal. "It's premature to make any kind of decision" on what strategy to pursue at Stafford's preliminary or trial, Isaacs said.

"I like trials, that's the business I'm in," Isaacs said, refusing to give a specific reason for taking on the Stafford case. "I don't think publicity has anything to do with it, a lawyer's business is representing people, that's your duty."

One of the key prosecution witnesses against Stafford will be his estranged wife, Verna, 26. Police have kept Mrs. Stafford at secret locations, where they have talked with her extensively, since bringing her here from Chicago March 8.

Officers allege that Mrs. Stafford has connected her husband and his late brother to the steakhouse murders and the Purcell killings.

Police said Mrs. Stafford has told them she was the getaway car driver in the steakhouse massacre and was present at the scene of the killings of the San Antonio family of Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38, his wife Linda, 31, and son Richard, 12, near Purcell. The Lorenz family was driving to North Dakota to attend a funeral at the time of the murders.

Mrs. Stafford has told police she did not participate in the killings. She has not been charged with any crimes. Prosecutors refuse to say if she will eventually face any charges.

Prosecutors have other important witnesses besides Mrs. Stafford and have physical evidence linking Stafford to the steakhouse murders, McKinney said, but he refused to be specific.

In addition to Miss Horst, the other steakhouse murder victims were: Anthony Tew, 17; David Salsman, 15; David Lindsey, 17; Isaac Freeman, 56; and Louis Zacarias, 43, all of the Oklahoma City area.

The execution-style murder of the six steakhouse workers sparked the most massive murder probe in Oklahoma history.

Last September, ballistics tests on newly-discovered guns showed that a gun used in the Lorenz triple-murder and a gun stolen from Lorenz were also used in the steakhouse killings. Responding to the link, Oklahoma City police and the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation formed a joint task force to work fulltime on solving the nine murders.

"We've spent close to a half million dollars and we've used every innovative technique available in this investigation," Oklahoma City Police Chief Tom Heggy said when he announced March 10 that Stafford would be charged in the steakhouse murders.

A nationwide manhunt for Stafford followed, climaxed three nights later when authorities—acting on a tip from a relative—arrested Stafford at a Chicago YMCA. "You should have seen the look on his face—he was very startled," said Robert McConnel, a YMCA Security guard who helped arrest the unarmed Stafford. The mass murder suspect offered no resistance.

After his arrest and before a lawyer began representing him, Stafford spent many hours talking with Oklahoma City police detectives, Chief Heggy said. The chief said parts of the talks were helpful to officers, but he declined to reveal what Stafford was telling detectives.

McKinney refused to say if any of Stafford's remarks will be used as evidence in court proceedings.

Stafford pleaded innocent to the Horst murder charge at his arraignment March 17.

He was sent to Eastern State Hospital at Vinita, where he underwent 26 days of mental and physical examinations, before doctors ruled he was sane and able to stand trial.

How Congressmen Voted On Roll Calls

By Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 14 through June 20.

HOUSE
PANAMA — By a vote of 220 for and 200 against, the House headed off efforts by conservatives to scuttle the Panama Canal treaties. The vote adopted an amendment requiring Panama to pay only $9.3 million to cover U.S. costs in turning over the Canal Zone, rather than the $2.3 billion required under a separate, Republican-sponsored amendment. The vote came during debate on a bill (HR 111) implementing the Canal treaties. The bill was headed for final passage and the Senate.

Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., the sponsor, said that if the House adopted the GOP amendment rather than his amendment the U.S. "would look indecisive and unable to carry out the will of its leaders."

Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., an opponent, said the U.S. should seek more money from Panama to offset the high costs to U.S. taxpayers involved in turning over the canal to Panama.

Most members voting "nay" were trying to thwart implementation of the Panama Canal treaties.

Reps. Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W. G. Hefner, D-8, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L. H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, and James Martin, R-9, voted "nay."

EVACUATION PLANS — The House rejected, 147 for and 235 against, an amendment stipulating that before a utility can be federally licensed to operate a new nuclear power plant, the state in which the plant is situated must have an emergency evacuation plan as a safeguard against catastrophe. Presently, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission requires only an evacuation plan for the plant site. The amendment was proposed to HR 4388, a fiscal 1980 appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., a supporter, said: "In the wake of Three Mile Island, it is no longer possible for any ardent advocate of nuclear power to suggest that the worst could not happen."

Rep. John Wyder, R-N.Y., an opponent, said "this amendment is probably the opening salvo on a campaign whose ultimate purpose is nothing more nor less than to bring nuclear energy and power in our nation to a standstill."

Members voting "yea" want statewide evacuation plans to be mandated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Neal voted "yea."
 Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

UTILITY RATES — The House rejected, 136 for and 271 against, an amendment to provide public financial reimbursement to "intervenor" who represent the consumer viewpoint before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). The amendment sought to provide $550,000 for that purpose. It was attached to HR 4388, a fiscal 1980 appropriations bill later passed without money for intervenors.

The FERC is the former Federal Power Commission. It sets rates and otherwise regulates interstate commerce in natural gas, pipeline oil and hydroelectric power, directly influencing the utility bills of most Americans.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the sponsor, said his amendment is necessary to balance the clout of the "high-priced lawyers" whom utility companies send before the commission.

Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., an opponent, said "no one wants to prevent anyone from appearing before the FERC" and that the agency has a public information office which any citizen or intervenor can use at no cost.

Members voting "nay" were opposed to federal funding of intervenors before the federal utility commission.

Hones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE

PEACE CORPS — The Senate rejected, 32 for and 62 against, an amendment to remove the Peace Corps from the jurisdiction of the federal volunteer agency Action. The amendment, offered to a bill (S 239) concerning volunteer programs, would have made the Peace Corps an independent agency. The House has voted to place the Peace Corps under State Department control.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., sponsor of the amendment, said: "It is imperative that the (Peace Corps) be insulated from the political and social pressures that seem chronic to the Action agency."

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, an opponent, said the Senate should support the Carter Administration's plan to give the Peace Corps more autonomy within Action. He warned of any "unfortunate perception abroad that it was another arm of American foreign policy...."

Senators voting "yea" favored removing the Peace Corps from Action.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."
 Sen. Robert Morgan, D, voted "nay."

TVA — The Senate rejected, 33 for and 58 against, an amendment to enlarge the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) board of directors from three to five members and require that at least two directors live in a state receiving TVA power. The amendment was proposed to a bill (S 436) increasing TVA borrowing authority. The bill was passed and sent to the House.

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., the sponsor, said the people of the TVA region must have "an active and responsible voice in those decisions that will decide the future growth and development of the valley."

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., said the amendment would "create a radical change in the way the TVA does business, and thus should be subjected to more congressional study than it had so far received."

Senators voting "yea" wanted to enlarge the TVA board of directors.

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

VETERANS' AID — By a vote of 40 for and 52 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to block cuts of $35-$42 million in veterans dental care, travel reimbursement, and over the counter drug benefits. The Senate earlier had restored part of a larger cutback proposed by the Carter Administration to make more money available for staffing VA hospitals.

The vote came during debate on a bill (S 1039) extending veterans' health care programs. The House had approved a similar bill earlier.

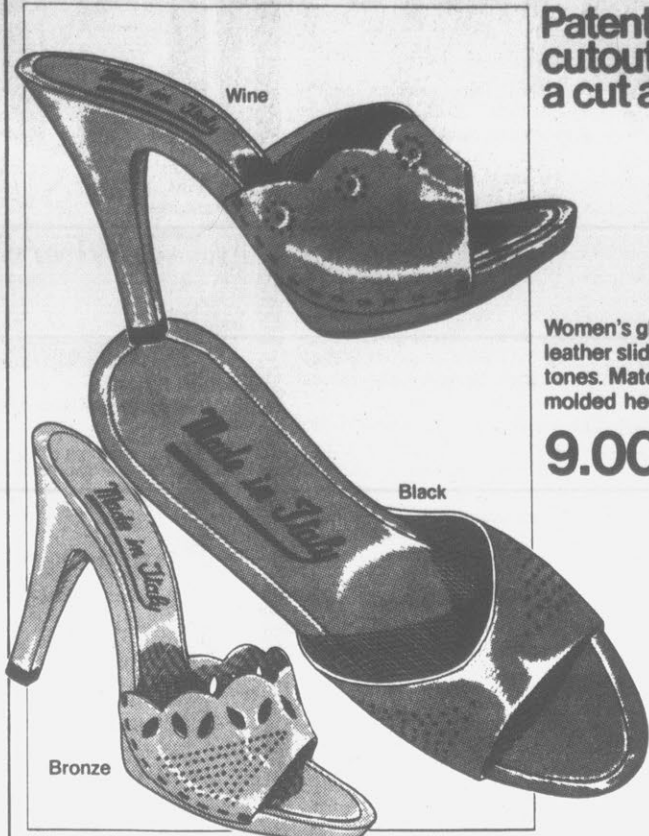

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., sponsor of the amendment, said: "The burden of these cuts will fall basically on the needy...."

Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., an opponent, said: "The small savings that will result are going to come by pruning benefits to non-needy veterans who can very well pay the small additional cost."

Senators voting "yea" favored retaining the veterans' benefits at current levels.

Helms voted "yea."
 Morgan voted "nay."

Volunteering Still Part Of Lifestyle

By SHARON RUTENBERG
CHICAGO (UPI) — Volunteering does not have to be a sacrifice, says an expert on what has been a vital part of the American way of life.

It can be the answer to boyhood fantasies of becoming a fireman or ambulance driver, a stepping stone back to the working world, a way to help decide whether to have children or a road to politics.

Susan Ellis, 31, a spokesperson for United Way of America and co-author of the book, The People: A History of Americans as Volunteers, says one of every four Americans is a volunteer.

Unfortunately, the volunteer stereotype of a white middle-class woman has not changed, said Ms. Ellis, president of a Philadelphia-based training and consulting firm for volunteers.

"It's just so unfair," she said in an interview. "Sure, there are white middle-class women who volunteer, but they're far from alone in this."

"Historically, volunteers have had impact. In a very real sense, the American Revolution was a group of volunteers."

A modern-day example is Hiram Danderveen, 81, who recently received an award for never missing a day in Chicago's record 1978-79 winter delivering government-funded meals to homebound senior citizens.

"God has given me two good legs," Danderveen said. "There are other people who have a talent for this or that. This is one thing that I can do... I feel that I should do it."

In 1974, U.S. Census Bureau statistics showed 60 percent of volunteers also have salaried jobs, Ms. Ellis said. Recent studies support that figure.

"Some have even gone higher because so many women have returned to the work force since 1974," she said. "Many women who are holding jobs now, having put children into after-school care or baby-sitters, are becoming active again in PTAs in the evenings."

"In a way, it's a chance for them to stay involved in their children's education, despite the fact they're not able to stay home during the day."

Volunteering is not dying because of the current emphasis on working, she said.

"I feel the more tied down you are to a job, the more you need volunteering for all the other social and exploratory reasons. At certain times in peoples' lives they need certain things that salaried work may not be able to give them."

The freedom to select a schedule is needed by retired persons who winter in Florida and homemakers who are raising children and are "on call," she said.

"I think volunteering is utilized by many homemakers as that stepping stone."

"First, it involves them with adults in a community. If you're home with your kids, you're involved with a lot of kids and not necessarily with adults. It also gives you contacts, people to meet, and leads into jobs later."

Women pondering whether to return to work can use volunteering as a transition, she said.

"It's a way of preparing women to re-enter the work force... a way to make contacts in a community, career exploration, whether you like the career you want to get into, a way to freshen up skills that you might have had earlier but have lost in the process."

Look Out, Col., Here's Popeye

By WOODY BAIRD
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Southern fried chicken just isn't the same since Cajun-fried caught on, and now the hot Louisiana upstart has even made it to the Yankee capital itself, New York City.

The Cajun chicken, powdered with red pepper and other hot (but secret) stuff, is the creation of Al Copeland, president of Popeyes Famous Fried Chicken.

For years, Copeland made a living selling doughnuts but spent his free time elbow-deep in flour and cayenne pepper, searching for the perfect recipe.

He ate a lot of chicken — much of it too hot or not hot enough.

But the experiments paid off. Popeyes expects to do $125 million in business this year, employing about 2,000 people in 172 stores, including two which opened this month at Times Square in New York and the Loop in Chicago.

Copeland's recipe, drawing from the flavor of spicy Cajun fare, also has set off a small revolution in the fast-food industry.

"All the big companies — Kentucky, Church's — they've all come up with their own version of spicy chicken, but it's pretty hard to duplicate," Copeland said.

Critics said the peppery chicken wouldn't sell outside New Orleans, because people in other parts of the country wouldn't go for such highly seasoned food.

But it spread throughout the South and then into the West and the North.

"The rumors were that it was a local chain. Then they said we were a regional chain and now they're a little concerned that we're a national chain," he said.

Copeland opened his first store, called Chicken On The Run, only seven years ago. In the next three years, the company plans to sell 800 franchises.

"We expect to open 30 more stores in the next 45 days," said Bill Copeland, Al's brother and the company's senior vice president. "We believe that New York itself should probably hold 100 stores."

In its advertising, Popeyes plays heavily on the New Orleans origin, showing marching jazz bands, Mardi Gras crowds and French Quarter gardens.

Only three percent of the company stock is owned by someone outside the Copeland family, and that is held by Russell Jones, Copeland's first employee at the first fried chicken store. Jones now has the Popeyes franchise in Baton Rouge.

Al Copeland holds 78 percent of the Popeyes stock and said he doesn't expect to sell any. He said most of the stock held by other members of his family was given as gifts.

Last year, Popeyes did $80 million worth of business, but the first store took a while to catch on.

Copeland didn't think the name, Chicken On The Run, was bright enough and was looking for a better one. He came up with Popeyes after seeing the movie the French Connection, about a cop with the unlikely nickname of Popeye.

Picking that name caused some problems in the early going, however, because it was the same as the name of the spinach-eating comic strip character, and King Features Inc. held rights to it. Now Copeland has a contract with King Features and uses the cartoon characters as well as the name in his promotions.

The second store was built 13 months after the first one opened, but in the following 24 months, Copeland opened 24 more.

"When I first opened the first store I had a desire to build a chain," Copeland said. "But I have to be honest to say I didn't think it would be this big this fast."

"The growth has been phenomenal. We're now the third largest fried chicken operation in the country and we've done that in seven years. Most of the other competitors have been in the business 15, 20 or 25 years."

Like the other big chains, Popeyes must be cooked to company specifications with the company's secret formula. The home office supplies management help, employee training, quality control — and, of course, the famous Popeyes name, which is growing more and more famous.

It has even suffered the ultimate plague of success: copycat competitors who hawk pepper-hot chicken from red-roofed stores that look strangely like Popeyes.

Suspended Still Go To School

By ED STATTMANN
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A student caught using alcohol or drugs in Indiana schools no longer can count on the "reward" of being sent home. Suspensions nowadays may take place inside the school.

"In-school suspension programs range from intensive tutoring and counseling programs to confinement in an unconverted mop closet," says Jon Bailey, a lawyer and legal consultant with the Indiana Department of Public Instruction.

At Wawasee High School in Syracuse, for example, students may be isolated for 10 days or more from their peers.

Bailey mentions the mop closet in a paper on in-school suspensions, but admits it's only a report he has heard and he can't pinpoint the school involved.

His article advises school officials in-school suspensions may legally be considered punishments equal to conventional suspensions — so they ought to be imposed following due process of law.

Isolating children in school for more than five days, he said in an interview, may amount legally to expulsion, requiring even more attention to proper legal procedures. Some educators have tried to make in-school suspensions especially unpleasant to deter further misbehavior, he said.

"Where such efforts include forced confinement to a darkened or locked room," Bailey wrote, "repeated intensive interrogation about other disciplinary infractions or elimination of lunch and restroom privileges, the potential legal problems are too numerous to list."

Bailey urged administrators to "avoid conditions that are more punitive than educational."

use in-school suspension usually for no more than a day, said Kenneth M. Smartz, assistant superintendent for secondary education.

Suspensions out of school are used less frequently than they used to be, he adds. The in-school discipline sends students to a guidance learning center — GLC for short.

Near South Bend, Wawasee High extensively uses what officials call In-School Supervision.

The program, completing its first year, has been extended for two more years. The state has granted the school funds to run the program and report on it.

"We no longer suspend students out of school except in very rare occasions," usually involving emotional or physical problems, said Wawasee Vice Principal Donn Kesler. An example is a boy who took a pill on the bus to school and arrived incoherent.

No suspension is for less than a day at Wawasee. There is an automatic 10-day term for drug or alcohol offenses, but the program supervisor, Mike Jones, may lengthen or shorten anybody's term.

Offenses that can get a student sent to ISS also include smoking, truancy, fighting, vandalism or attitude.

"We don't have the inner-city problems, but we do have drugs," Kesler said. "We have alcohol. The kids come from middle-class families. Money's no problem."

While isolated, students in the program are kept from talking to each other. They eat and take laboratory periods at a different time than other students in the school and are kept out of school activities day or night. For gym, they write reports.

Only Kesler, Principal Henry L. Smith and Dean of Students Dan Grabowicz may send students to ISS. Teachers may recommend but not order it.

There Is No Energy Problem Affecting Hell

By RICHARD H. GROWLDB
UPI National Reporter
HELL, Mich. (UPI) — Hell hath no noticeable energy crisis.

"I don't see where the energy shortage is affecting Hell. We don't even have a gas station," said Virgil McCall, owner of the Dam Site Inn, one of Hell's three places of business. McCall hoisted his can of Miller beer, toasting Hell's fortune. Jim Meyers, on the next bar stool, set down his Pabst, and said the grocery next door once had a gas pump. "Didn't work," he said. Tim Hurley, drinking Busch, said, "The trouble was that everybody would fill up their tank and then go inside and tell the grocer they had put in only $2 worth. It was Hell."

Laughter broke along the bar. Outside a late spring rain slicked county road D-32 and goose pimpled the surfaces of the local fishing spots from Blind Lake to Silver Lake. Hell is a weekend resort for Detroit, 44 miles to the southeast, and the residents of Hell figured rain and not a gasoline shortage was keeping business away.

In the souvenir shop — a "Stolen From Hell, Michigan" bath towel is $4.50 and cheaper are tennis ball like "Snowballs From Hell" — Al Culp glanced through the window at the rain and the almost empty parking lot. He turned and tweaked the nose of the 5-foot-high stuffed devil seated by the door. "This is the worst season we've ever had. No one on the road. No one in the camp ground. I guess a lot of people decided to stay home and save gasoline. They may have to walk anywhere, even to Hell."

Two automobiles pulled in off D-32. Two families entered. "Well, I suppose it's not any gas shortage. Just the confounded rain of Hell," Culp said. A third and a fourth and still another car approached. Culp's wife, Thelma, became busy at the cash register. "Hell's looking up," he said. "But not me. Had open heart surgery and Thelma and I are moving permanently to Florida, to Babon below Orlando. It's better there than Hell for health."

Hell is for the healthy. Been here 19 years. I'm 65 now. We're selling out at the end of the season and getting out of Hell. Wanna buy the shop?" His wife smiled. "This morning the slows were due to the rain, the weather, not any gasoline shortage. People enjoy coming to Hell and they don't discuss hellish subjects like gasoline."

"The trouble with gasoline is not any shortage. The service stations at Pinckney, three miles up the road, are open. The trouble with gas is the price. Up 22 cents a gallon in the last week," she said. In the Dam Site Inn, a few farmers drank coffee and talked of crops and the price of new machinery and market margins and put much sugar in their cups to make the talk sweeter. They talked of fret and they did not discuss gasoline. At their table they said they had no shortage. At the bar, McCall tried to see an energy crisis dimension in Hell. "Well, we have had our first energy freak. Fellow over the road put in solar heat. Hell's got solar heat" Meyers, Hurley and Roy Harvey grinned and drank to that. "As a matter of fact, a gasoline shortage may be good for Hell," McCall said. "People in Detroit may be too scared to go up north. They know a tank of gas will get you here and back to Detroit. Hell may not be the wilderness wonderland but, by gosh, the crappie get up to a foot long."

"Like your darned pancakes," said Meyers. McCall indicated he wanted the subject pursued no further. Meyers pursued. "Those pancakes you cooked here this morning, Virge, they were like frisbees. Everybody who ordered pancakes thought they got hamburgers or something," Meyers said. McCall drank and wiped his lips. "I didn't know you aren't supposed to deep fry pancakes," he said. Much laughter. "Trouble with you, Virge, is that you drink Miller's, Drink Pabst and you'd never do that," Meyers said. "No, sir," said Hurley. "I got a car that gets 32 miles a gallon and a dumptruck that gets six miles a gallon on a good day. Maybe the truck should drink beer. Busch."

Harvey said the conversation was deteriorating into a discussion of rival beers. He said the town topic seemed to be either that or the glories of the Detroit Tigers or the damnation of the New York Yankees. "That, or fishing, that's what we talk about. Nobody ever mentions an energy crisis," he said. "Why in Hell should we?" said McCall. All laughed.

Keeping Watch On Prime Rate

Courtesy Of INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.
Since interest rates exert so much influence over stock prices, we constantly monitor their direction and level. We have just experienced our first drop in the prime rate in over two years. It remains to be seen whether or not this is the first decrease that will lead to much lower interest rates or if we are merely reaching a plateau. The prime interest rate level closely correlates with the price level of the stock market most of the time. The peak in the prime rate in 1974 came approximately three months ahead of the upturn in stock prices in that year. An earlier dip in the prime rate came in late 1973 which proved premature both for a peak in interest rates and for a bottom in the stock market. If we look further, we find that present stock yields compare favorably with yields in 1974. At the market low in 1974, the dividend yield on Standard and Poor's 400 Industrials stood at 5.5 percent. Although the Dow Jones Industrials currently are 270 points above the 1974 low, the current yield on the Standard and Poor 400 Industrials is 5.25 percent. This indicates that stock dividends have risen significantly in the five and one half years since the 1974 market bottom. On simply a yield basis, stocks are now almost as attractive as at the market low of the decade in 1974.

Longley Keeping Vow Of Year's Quiet

NOW SHUNS POLITICS — James B. Longley, the nation's only independent governor when he turned his back on near certain re-election, went into a self-imposed exile from Maine politics on leaving office. (UPI Photo)

By DENNIS O. BROWN
AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — James B. Longley's vowed year of silence is still half gone but his presence is still felt.

Longley was the nation's only independent governor when he turned his back on near certain re-election last year and went into a self-imposed exile from Maine politics on leaving office in January.

The dapper, silver-haired Longley, stepping outside the partisan mainstream, captured the people's imagination and the governor's office in 1974. For the next four years, he dominated Maine politics.

But when he left office, he promised to say nothing about the present administration of Democratic Gov. Joseph E. Brennan for one year. To date he has made no public comment.

The years of the Longley administration have left a mark on state government. It is primarily a legacy of fiscal conservatism and tax cutting which Longley preached and rode to a narrow victory in a three-way race years before California had found Howard Jarvis and the taxpayers' revolt.

Democrats claim there also is a legacy of neglect of state buildings and vehicles and say Longley saved money by ignoring sensible upkeep. "He left us with state buildings which are dilapidated and vehicles that are falling apart at the seams," said House Speaker John L. Martin, a Democrat.

Republican leaders say Longley's influence is most clearly seen in the executive branch where Brennan, a liberal Democrat has introduced a budget allowing even less growth in state spending than Longley proposed.

"His influence has remained much more clearly in the executive branch," Senate Majority Leader Bennett D. Katz said. "Longley's style has had zero influence on the present chief executive, but expressions of Longley philosophy are still very visible."

Longley is a wealthy insurance man, but denies he is a millionaire as commonly reported. He rose from life in a tenement to head the exclusive "Million Dollar Round Table" — an international clan of insurance men who have sold at least $1 billion of insurance annually.

One remarkable Longley feat was to weather four years of politics and publicity and still walk away from it as a jealous private person. He preferred his home in Lewiston to the governor's mansion, worked himself as much as 20 hours a day and obstinately balked at socializing with any except family and friends.

Longley said he tried working with lawmakers and only decided to put the gloves on and come out swinging after attempts at co-operation failed.

"I made a decision to fight rather than sell out or cop out on the people of Maine. I decided I would rather be respected by the Legislature than make friends," Longley once said.

He lashed out at anyone standing in his way. Lawmakers, reporters, editorial writers, state employee union officials and bureaucrats were some of those who frequently fell victim to heated attacks. It seemed the more he attacked, the more popular he became.

By the end of his term, his public support was found to surpass 75 percent by surprised political pollsters studying Maine's electorate.

Many insiders at the Statehouse laughed at Longley's rambling speeches and called him "El-Whacko." But when Longley fixed his fierce blue eyes on a crowd and let loose with an impassioned speech, people got his message.

When asked before leaving office, Longley candidly admitted he was not certain he would be able to stay home.

"I really need to get back to my business and back to my family — but I don't know, I could run again if I was needed," Longley said. "I might run again. It's possible, I might but I don't know."

Solar Heat Is Bargain Priced

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — For a small price, Creighton Green got a bargain on a brand new, solar-heated home.

The government, interested in demonstrating solar energy, paid nearly half the $82,500 price tag. Green and his wife, interested in a new house, are paying the balance.

In return, they will have to allow the structure to be monitored for the next two years. "It is going to serve as a small urban research lab," said Stephen George, executive director of the city's Urban Redevelopment Authority.

The URA provided $40,000 in federal funds for construction. Technical assistance came from Carnegie-Mellon University's Advanced Building Studies program, whose graduate students began designing the house's solar system nearly two years ago.

The students and their professor, Volker Hartkopf, will use computers to monitor the structure's hourly energy flow while Green and his wife, Addie, are living there.

Green expressed interest in the three-story corner house in the city's Oakland section about two months ago, although he didn't know then that it was solar-heated. Within two weeks, he was chosen from a list of potential buyers, and agreed to buy the seven-room house for $42,500.

"I'm an engineer by nature, so I can understand the profits derived by having a solar home," said Green, a 30-year-old salesman for WIIC-TV in Pittsburgh.

The solar equipment's cost, estimated at up to $15,000, eventually will be offset by savings in heating costs, Hartkopf said. But the payoff will not come for at least 10 years based on current rates, he added.

Hartkopf, who heads the school's building program, said the structure — which is supplemented with a conventional electric heat back-up system — integrates active heating, or direct input of energy, with passive heating, design features like windows which should help cut energy needs.

The house, sided with brown and blue cedar planks, was intentionally built in a low-income neighborhood. "Here in Pittsburgh, we've got to begin to address low and moderate-income families who are hardest hit by rising energy costs," George said. "We've got to make solar energy work for them, too."

Ocean Currents May Help Energy Crush

By JOSEPH A. REAVES
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — To ease the energy crunch, just sink a bunch of giant propellers in the Atlantic Ocean and tap free power from fast-moving ocean currents.

That's Bill Mouton's idea. And even he admits it sounds crazy.

But the federal government is interested enough to spend $230,000 on the design for a working model 36 feet in diameter.

"That would be large enough not to be a tinker toy," says Mouton, a Tulane University professor. "Then we can see if we need to make any modifications in our design."

For the real thing, Mouton wants to mount two sets of blades inside an aluminum hull 82 percent the size of the Superdome. The hull would be funnel-shaped, forcing water into a unit submerged in a fast moving current.

The water will activate the blades which will be mounted close together with a series of wheels between them. The rotating blades will turn the wheels which will power generators. The resulting energy will be sent ashore via submarine cables.

"It's really all Victorian Age engineering," Mouton says. "There's nothing Space Age about it. The whole thing could have been done 100 years ago, but no one put a pencil to the idea."

Still, Mouton and his partner — aeronautics engineer David Thompson of Chester, Pa. — came up with enough original ideas to apply for a half dozen patents. Then, to finance more work, they sold the patents to Walter Hadjuk, a New Jersey computer parts manufacturer, who put up $750,000 for the preliminary design and testing.

The biggest boost came in 1977 with a Pasadena, Calif., firm, Aerovironment Inc., joining the project. Aerovironment is headed by Dr. Paul MacCready, the man who made headlines last year when his "Gossamer Condor" became the first manpowered aircraft.

"The whole idea sounds kooky, but we're getting the best people in the field with proven records," Mouton says. "We got the best propeller people. We got the best plastics people."

Each unit will be 560 feet in diameter and 360 feet long. When anchored in the Atlantic Ocean 20 miles east of Miami, where the Gulf Stream moves at its swiftest, each unit will produce the equivalent of an 83-megawatt power station.

"One of these things would be able to handle the power for a city of 60,000 people," Mouton said. "We're extracting 400 watts per square foot. That's the equivalent of four 100-watt lightbulbs per square foot."

Unfortunately, the Gulf Stream does not move at a constant speed. During summer months, the current zips by at 5.5 mph. In the winter, it slows to 3.5 mph.

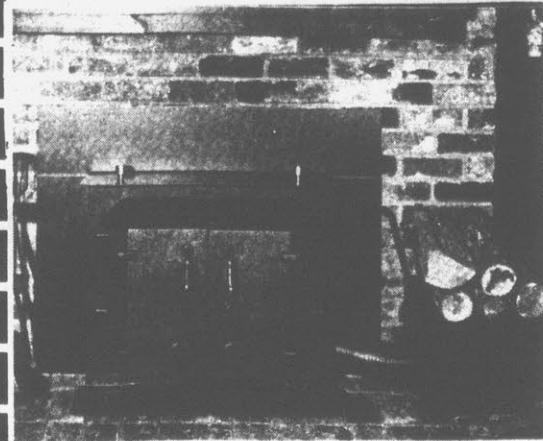

Still, Mouton said a group of 242 units could produce 10,000 megawatts of electricity — half of what experts predict will be needed to power the entire state of Florida in the year 2000.

WE WON'T
ON THE GROUND

Kroger Sav-On refuses to play games. We sell only what we sell is graded "choice" by the U.S.D.A. The word that Kroger meat men have always used is "choice"! All Kroger lamb is a real can lamb, not an import from foreign lands. It has never been frozen. Light, young lamb with a fat-cover; delicately flavored and tender. It's a "Lamb Sale" in town - be sure you always does!

SERVING YOU COMES FIRST IN THE KROGER SAV-ON GARDEN

In the Kroger Sav-On garden most of our fresh fruits and vegetables are in bulk displays as opposed to pre-packaged, as many stores have. You can choose one green pepper or 5, one lemon or a dozen, and YOU pick and choose the one you want. Then take your choice to the "Gardener" for weighing and pricing. Your Kroger Sav-On "Gardeners" will be pleased to answer your questions about any of the hundreds of fresh fruits and vegetables we have here for you.
