Hunt Calls For Guard

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said today he called out the National Guard to protect fuel deliveries Wednesday night after receiving information that a more militant element among striking truck drivers planned to stop fuel deliveries in North Carolina.

Hunt said leaders of picketing strikers had agreed on Tuesday to reduce their picket lines were thrown out of leadership by striking truckers Wednesday before he called out the Guard. But Hunt told a news conference that the moderate leadership among striking truckers was replaced.

"That new leadership made the new plans to bring in more people and really shut things down," Hunt said.

"If we had not acted, in our opinion, we would have had a very ugly situation there today," Hunt said.

Hunt said the guardsmen are armed with automatic pistols and M16 rifles. National Guard Gen. W.E. Ingram, appearing at a news conference with Hunt, said weapons are not loaded but that ammunition is available for the guard troops.

Ingram said guardsmen would shoot only if they are shot at.

Hunt also said he had authorized the state

Department of Transportation to issue permits allowing oversized trucks to travel in North Carolina. The move raises the state's maximum limit on truck lengths from 55 feet to 60 feet, under a special permit. It raises the maximum weight limit on trucks from 80,000 pounds to 94,500 pounds.

Hunt said the longer trailer lengths have been one of the major demands of striking truckers.

City Asked To Give Look At Annexation

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission went on record last night as favoring City Council consideration of four possible outlying areas for annexation.

Bobby Roberson, the city's planning director, informed the board that last July the Council requested that a feasibility study be done on possible areas for annexation.

Roberson said the four areas that have been studied involve the Red Oak-Oakdale section, the Oakgrove Estates area behind Greenfield Terrace, the Mumford Road area out to NC 33, and the Brook Valley-Cherry Oaks areas.

According to the planning director, all four general areas meet statutory requirements regarding annexation, including contiguous land stipulations, and the four areas are recommended for Council consideration. Roberson said that generally, water is available for the four areas but sewer service is not.

Charles Horne, director of Greenville Utilities, noted that a portion of the approved bond issue is to accommodate the normal expansion of the city and GUC hopes to be within a 12 month time frame in looking at sewer service for the potential annexation areas. He added that the dollars are available but GUC will not move with sewer service until the areas are ready for annexation.

Mayor Percy Cox pointed out that the Council has instructed City Manager Ed Wyatt to keep an on-going annexation program under study in a move to help increase the city's tax base. Cox said that calls he has received from residents in the areas under consideration have been favorable in regard to annexation.

Commissioner Wes Hankins indicated his support for the annexation moves, particularly the area on US 264, adding that he feels the city has to grow and that growth should be through annexation.

J. T. Manning, a member of the joint board, termed the annexation proposals "good planning."

Roberson said the annexation report will be on file with his office.

In other business on the joint agenda, commissioners voted to recommend that the Council approve the request of David Evans Sr. for rezoning 31 acres on the west side of 14th Street Extension, across from Windy Ridge, from RA-20 to R-6.

It was explained that Evans and four Brook Valley property owners who have land abutting the Evans tract had reached an agreement involving a 50-foot strip on the rear of the Evans property that will be reserved as a buffer section.

The Brook Valley property owners had objected to the rezoning proposal at last month's meeting.

The board also voted to recommend that the request of J. T. Williams for rezoning 4.69 acres in Azalea Gardens Mobile Home Park, located just east of Brook Valley on State Road 1726, be approved. Williams, it was noted, is seeking to rezone the property from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to R-6-Mobile Home.

Staff planner Skip Browder said that the rezoning action would serve to round out the rear portion of the mobile home park property.

The request of J. H. Blount Jr. and F. L. Blount III for rezoning Section II of Pinewood Forest from RA-20 to R-15 was endorsed by the planning board. The property involves roughly 46 acres south of Lyncdale Subdivision and east of Section I of Pinewood Forest.

An agenda item involving consideration of a petition by the Blounts for annexation of Section II of Pinewood Forest was removed at the request of the developer and will be placed on the agenda of the July meeting.

The planning board endorsed a petition by the city for the annexation of rights-of-way along NC 33, adjacent to Rivergate Shopping Center. City Engineer Ron Sewell reported that the state has asked that the right-of-way sections be annexed in order for improvements to be made to the road section, including the provision of a left turn into the shopping center.

Commissioners voted to approve a request by Eugene Brown, a member of the Industrial Park sign committee, that County Road 1528 and County Road 1579 be named Belvoir Road and Staton Boulevard, respectively. The name designations have been requested in order that signs can be put up identifying the roads.

Actually 1528 is an extension of what is generally known as the Belvoir Road, while 1579 runs parallel to Industrial Boulevard.

Other action taken by the joint board included:

— Approval of the preliminary plat for the Savage property located on the south side of US 264 Business on the southeast corner of the proposed Arlington Boulevard-US 264 intersection (four lots are involved);

— Approval of the final plat of Section I of Tucker Farms, located north of US 264 Bypass and east of Laughinghouse Drive, with the stipulation that requirements involving easements and a surety bond agreement be met;

— Approval of the final plat of United Industrial Park, Section II, located north of State Road 1579 (Staton Boulevard) between NC 11 and the Greenville Boulevard northeast bypass.

A request for consideration of the preliminary plat of S & S Mobile Home Court, located northwest of the airport on the Belvoir Highway, was withdrawn by the developer.

Commissioners also approved the use of metal signs in lieu of cardboard signs for placement on property that is being considered for rezoning. The signs are used as a means of notifying property owners in a particular area that rezoning is under consideration.

The city planning board voted to recommend that the Council deny a request by the Boys' Club of Pitt County for rezoning 7.03 acres on the west side of Greenville Boulevard adjacent to University Condominiums from R-20 (residential) to O-6 and Institutional and R-6

OPEC Ministers Okay $18 To $23 Oil Hike

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries today raised the base price of its crude oil to a range of $18 to $23.50 a barrel.

The 13-nation oil cartel set its new base price at $18, up from $14.55. It also said members could add surcharges of as much as $2 a barrel as market conditions permit, but set the maximum price of a barrel of OPEC oil, including allowances for quality, at $23.50 a barrel.

Experts calculate that the rise in OPEC prices probably will add about 4 cents a gallon to prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States.

It is the biggest boost in OPEC prices in five years.

The decision leaves OPEC with a two-tiered price structure, much like the one the cartel had in the first half of 1977.

Saudi Arabia, which had held out for a low price, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates will be the only countries actually charging $18 a barrel. Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told a news conference.

The agreement was worked out late Wednesday night, prolonging the meeting into a third day, after moderate and radical members "narrowed the gap gradually until they got where they are," said Cyrus Ebrahimpzadeh of the Iranian delegation.

Libya, Iran and Iraq had demanded that the price of OPEC's benchmark crude oil, Arabian light, be raised to between $23 to $27 a barrel from $14.55. Under the new system, the price rises to only $18, but that amounts to a 24 percent hike.

The 10 other nations will be able to add surcharges to the benchmark price to bring it to as much as $20. As always, additional surcharges could be tacked on to take into account differences in the quality of their oils.

The increases in the base price are the largest since 1974, when prices quadrupled during the Arab oil embargo. Analysts estimate that retail prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States rise a penny per gallon for each 5 per cent rise in the base price of crude oil. But because the surcharges in the past three months have raised the average price of OPEC oil to $17, experts say the rise at the gas pump and on heating bills will work out to about 4 cents a gallon.

The new price structure would be effective July 1. Sources said the ministers would meet again in Geneva in late September to consider changes.

U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said on Wednesday that if OPEC raised its base price to $20 a barrel, the U.S. bill for imported oil next year would be $65 billion to $70 billion. The U.S. Treasury Department estimated earlier this year that the United States, although it was the second largest producer of oil in the world in 1978, would spend more than $50 billion on imported oil this year, compared with $42 billion in 1978 and $5 billion in 1972.

Carter Doubles U.S. Limit On Refugees

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — President Carter announced today the United States will admit 14,000 Indochinese refugees a month — as he and other economic summit participants called for an urgent United Nations conference on the problem.

The action on refugees was the first concrete result of the seven-nation meeting that was pictured as moving toward a compromise on its No. 1 agenda item, energy.

American officials, who asked not to be identified, estimated the additional influx of refugees would cost an added $150 million a year, compared with current outlays of $250 million.

In addition to the U.S. action, the other summit participants not only called for a U.N. conference on refugees, but also pledged to set aside more money for relief and resettlement efforts and admit more refugees.

"This is basically what we sought," one U.S. official said.

Carter said in a statement, "We can and will work together to find homes and jobs for Indochinese refugees."

U.S. sources said the U.N. meeting would be convened in Geneva during the third week in July.

They said they hoped that the increased number of refugees could reach the United States by next month.

The exact timing is uncertain, but Carter said he was making a one-year commitment.

U.S. sources said an administration emissary met with Vietnamese representatives in New York City at Carter's direction before the president flew to Tokyo last weekend.

They said they hoped Vietnam would participate in the conference.

Most of today's summit talks focused on energy, with the aim of restraining oil imports by the seven nations represented here — the United States, Japan, France, Britain, Germany, Canada and Italy.

SIMULATED FALL OF SKYLAB — In keeping with today's news, Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center Director Don Hayes planned an unusual disaster drill — the fall of a chunk of "Skylab." Hayes said the "victims" were inside the Activities Building at the time of the crash, which, in theory, demolished the center of the roof. He said there were five simulated deaths and eight simulated injuries. Members of the Greenville Fire Department and Rescue Squad provided simulated emergency medical treatment. Hayes said the training was to meet requirements of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. He said the center holds drills twice a year. Patients and staff members of the ARC were among the drill participants. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

BUYER OF RAGS?

I advise a Little League team, the Red Sox. We are seeking a good money-raising project and I thought about rag recycling — collecting old rags and selling them to some company that buys them. Can you tell me who buys them? James Best Hotline called the Tarheel Recycling Inc. of Williamston, which has, in the past, bought rags. A spokesman for the company said that Tarheel no longer buys rags and she knows of no company that does. She did, however, give us the name of a company in a city about 100 miles away which used to buy rags. You took this reference and said you'd check it out. Transportation might be a problem, though, you say, even if this company does still purchase rags. Therefore, you have asked Hotline to have any reader who knows of a rag buyer call you at 756-2390.

Governor Turns Down Green's Request For Legislature Recall

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Gov. Jim Hunt this morning rejected a proposal by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green that he call a special session of the General Assembly to enact legislation that would give truckers a rebate on diesel fuel taxes for those carrying perishable farm commodities to market.

Green proposed the special legislative session yesterday, suggesting that a moratorium on the 9.25 cents per gallon diesel fuel tax would encourage striking independent truckers to go back to work.

Hunt, in rejecting the plan, said there is no evidence that the suspension of the sales tax on diesel fuel would result in increased movement of trucks in the state.

Pitt County Rep. Horton Rountree, House Majority Leader, also opposes the plan.

Rountree said to call a moratorium of 30 days on diesel fuel tax, "would affect the issuance of highway bonds," and not guarantee improved service by independent truckers.

"I think he (Green) should have checked with the governor and speaker of the House ... before he proposed a special session of the legislature."

Rountree noted that it would cost $18,000 to $20,000 per day to call the General Assembly into session.

"I think he (Green) called a news conference and got this out before they had the facts."

"I know something needs to be done," Rountree emphasized, but added, "I think possibly the governor can do some things by executive order. He ought to try that first before he calls the General Assembly into session."

The legislator theorized, "If we reduced our taxes for 30 days, every trucker within 500 miles would be flying down here just to fill up."

Rountree said his opposition to the special legislative session is, "in good company," noting that the proposal is opposed by state treasurer Harlan Boyles, agriculture commissioner Jim Graham, and the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association, as well as the governor.

Face The Music Key-Bored Kids

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: LONG-SUFFERING DAD, critical of parents who force their children to take music lessons, said: "I think forcing music lessons on a child is a form of child abuse!"

You let that go by without comment, Abby. For the record, I'm among those who resisted music lessons, preferring football, basketball, baseball—anything to an hour's daily practice. But my mother forced me to continue taking piano lessons and to practice an hour a day.

After about 10 years I got pretty good at it, and have enjoyed playing the piano for much of my life. I also learned a great deal about discipline, poise under pressure at recitals, as well as the joy of music.

If forcing music lessons on a child is "child abuse," what would you say to forcing a child to learn English, history, math and science? Most youngsters would prefer to run free to "do their own thing" rather than something that demands concentration, discipline and a commitment of time and effort.

Sign this, "Forced to Learn and Glad of It" ... or ...
BOB L. IN BLACK BUTTE

DEAR BOB: My mail ran about 50-to-1 against "forcing music lessons on kids." Now hear this:

DEAR ABBY: I read with special interest the letters on forcing children to study music; I was part of that scene for many years.

I taught piano for over 50 years. When I first started I charged 50 cents a lesson, and those days that was a lot of money to most people.

Some of my beginners hated piano from the start and wanted to quit, but their parents wouldn't hear of it, so they'd come for lessons week after week without having looked at their music books. What a waste of time! Theirs and mine.

A few of my students were so hopeless I threatened to quit giving them lessons, then their parents would beg me to keep them, and of course I did—partly because I needed the $2 a month and partly because I reasoned that what little they learned would be better than total ignorance.

There are some parents who use a musical education as a form of discipline. They are convinced that it builds a child's character to do something he hates!

FORMER PIANO TEACHER (now 84)

DEAR TEACHER: Most kids are forced to do two things they "hate" every day: 1) get up in the morning; 2) go to sleep at night.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

When I am reincarnated, I want to come back in this world as a mother who doesn't drive.

I have noted with some bitterness that mothers who do not drive have time to paint sunsets, knit scarves, bake bread and write symphonies.

Not only that, they are fully dressed by nine in the morning, have a deep bronze tan by May 20 and somehow seem taller.

Fill the area of our pools does something to a woman. It makes her a little more. For example, she stands in a chair and her feet are my legs at the ankles. She is taller women. I remember my first foot exercise in an aerobics position and how as there until I stand steering wheel when a handsome man approached me and said, "You look like you could use a drink. What'll it be?"

I handed him my Shell card and said, "Fill it up with regular." He laughed and steered me toward the kitchen where the bar was set up.

"Lock the door," I said mechanically, "and keep your feet on the floor."

He looked around nervously. "Listen," he said, "I just remembered I have some unfinished business to attend to."

The Greenville Jaycettes have announced their second annual football season kick-off charity ball scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 4.

'Boogie Down' For Charity Is Announced

The dance, to be held at the Greenville Moose Lodge, will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

"Sunny Skies," who specialize in top 40, disco and beach music, will be the featured group.

Tickets are available from members or by contacting Donna Tripp, 758-6226, or Debbie Callow, 752-0189, project chairpersons, after 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tickets are $12 per couple. All proceeds will be used to aid the environmentally, physically and/or mentally handicapped persons in Pitt County.

Would you excuse me, please?" "Didn't you go before you left home?" I snapped.

If Ralph Nader doesn't recall me soon, it may be too late.

Warm, Dry Days Are Needed

Blue mold to the uninitiated might sound like something from outer space, but to the Pitt County tobacco farmer it is a pesky fungus which is affecting the crop this season.

The fungus spread this year is due to the cool moist weather which we have seen this spring and summer.

The best cure for blue mold would be several days of warm, dry weather.

"If the next two weeks are like the last two weeks, in all likelihood, many farmers will suffer significant damages from blue mold in their tobacco, Assistant Farm Agent Gaylon Ambrose said.

There is apparently little effective treatment for the fungus, and the farm agents don't even know how extensive the damage is right now. In many cases the fungus has affected only the bottom four leaves, the ones that don't bring in much money. The concern is if blue mold spreads up the stalk to the best tobacco leaves.

Tobacco farmers have been beset by a variety of problems this year, including blue mold. Still the possibilities are there for a good quality crop, and some warm dry days would sure help a lot.

No Re-Runs Of Skylab Are Desired

One of the spectacular shows of the skies these days is the demise of Skylab, the U. S. launched space station.

The satellite is gradually coming back to earth and it has been visible for several nights in our area.

Alas, while some have seen it, clouds have interfered on several evenings, including Sunday night when Skylab was closest.

In a few weeks Skylab will fall to an unknown spot on earth. While we would have liked to have gotten a better view of it, nobody is asking for a re-run.

THIS AFTERNOON

Face Increased Costs

RALEIGH — Budget officers and county commissioners across North Carolina are wrestling with a major money dilemma: cutting or containing other programs to raise the money for increased welfare costs.

In county after county, say Raleigh sources, the effort to hold the line in face of taxpayer resistance to higher property taxes must involve reductions in some programs to satisfy the state-mandated increases.

The two major welfare program increases which are tossing county finances into a dither are Medicaid and the payment hike for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

In a last-ditch effort to get a reduction in the county outlay, some 150 county officials from 50 counties met in Raleigh in the closing days of the General Assembly session but were told by legislative leaders and by Gov. Jim Hunt it was too late to make any changes.

This obviously leaves counties facing severe budget problems, and creates a major issue for consideration in the 1980 General Assembly next June.

Can't Pay

State changes in the Medicaid formula have already pressed several counties to the wall. At least 18 counties have said they can't pay the increases required in their 1978-79 budgets, increases which took place after the present fiscal year budgets were adopted last year.

In response, the state's Department of Human Resources has made the unprecedented offer to lend money to help cover the costs. Most of the counties, however, are simply saying they can't and won't produce the added funds.

That budding confrontation is only a glimmer of what lies ahead. The new state budget calls for county governments to additional $4.9 million the first year of the biennium, and $8.2 million the second year as local share of Medicaid payments. Counties already contribute $27.7 million to that runaway health care program. Added to that will be another $5.3 million next year from counties to cover the raise provided welfare recipients in the new budget.

The growing conflict between state and local officials over sharply escalating Medicaid costs adds fuel to predictions over the past several years that this program has the potential to bankrupt government. So far, state officials have failed to produce any solution to controlling the costs.

A number of legislative efforts have taken aim at the Medicaid dilemma only to withdraw in frustration. It is clear that only strong control over health care costs generally would have any impact on the spiral.

Medicaid provides health services for welfare recipients and for middle income families facing sudden large medical costs.

The bulk of the money is spent for long-term care for the elderly, with nursing homes and intermediate care facilities representing the most rapidly growing segment of the program.

Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow puts the matter into perspective:

BILL NOBLITT

The figures are revealing: in 1970, Medicaid cost a total of $98 million in federal, state, and local money. In 1974, the total passed $200 million. In 1978 the total passed $300 million. In 1980, the total will be nearly $500 million.

For Warmer Relations

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Soviet relations, on the cool side since World War II, will warm up appreciably if the Senate ratifies the new strategic arms treaty.

But good relations will depend on Soviet conciliation in three other areas as well — easing the plight of dissidents, reducing non-nuclear weapons, and cooperating in Africa and the Middle East.

It was hard to detect much headway on these three fronts at President Carter's summit meeting in Vienna with Leonid Brezhnev.

But U.S. officials haven't given up hope.

Negotiations to curb U.S. and Soviet arms sales to some areas of the world may resume soon. And the Russians may oppose but not veto U.N. peacekeepers to monitor the Egyptian-Israeli treaty.

SALT II provides a solid basis for trust. The two superpowers have joined in a common effort to slow down the nuclear weapons race, although they are not about to end it.

Carter and Soviet leader Brezhnev are tied together by a common goal — gaining support for SALT II at home. Carter must win the votes for ratification in the Senate. Brezhnev has to retain support for the agreement with the Soviet military and other hard-liners.

The treaty is recognition that survival depends on some cooperation between the two superpowers. The Cold War has probably passed permanently into history.

But in other respects, U.S. and Soviet interests are in collision in much of the world.

As the two nations compete for advantage, their relationship is bound to suffer, even if the treaty wriggles through the Senate unscathed.

In western humanist tradition, the United States supports freedom of expression in the Soviet Union. It wants to enhance the rights of Jews and other minorities, particularly the right to emigrate.

The Soviets consider this interference in their internal affairs. But to gain support for the treaty, and to try to win trading privileges, they apparently are willing to put up with a certain measure of it.

Jewish emigration is up, and some important dissenters have been freed. But many others remain in jail.

And SALT II does not end the arms race, nuclear or conventional. The Vienna summit gave no apparent boost to stalled talks on banning underground nuclear weapons tests or on reducing NATO and Warsaw Bloc forces in Central Europe.

In Africa, Cuban surrogates are busy promoting Soviet interests. In the Middle East, the Russians are lined up with the Arabs who reject the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The Carter administration's hope, of course, is that the SALT II treaty will encourage the Soviets to modify, or at least soft-pedal, some of their more irritating policies.

Recent history suggests any change will be minimal.

Strength For Today

LOVE OF COUNTRY

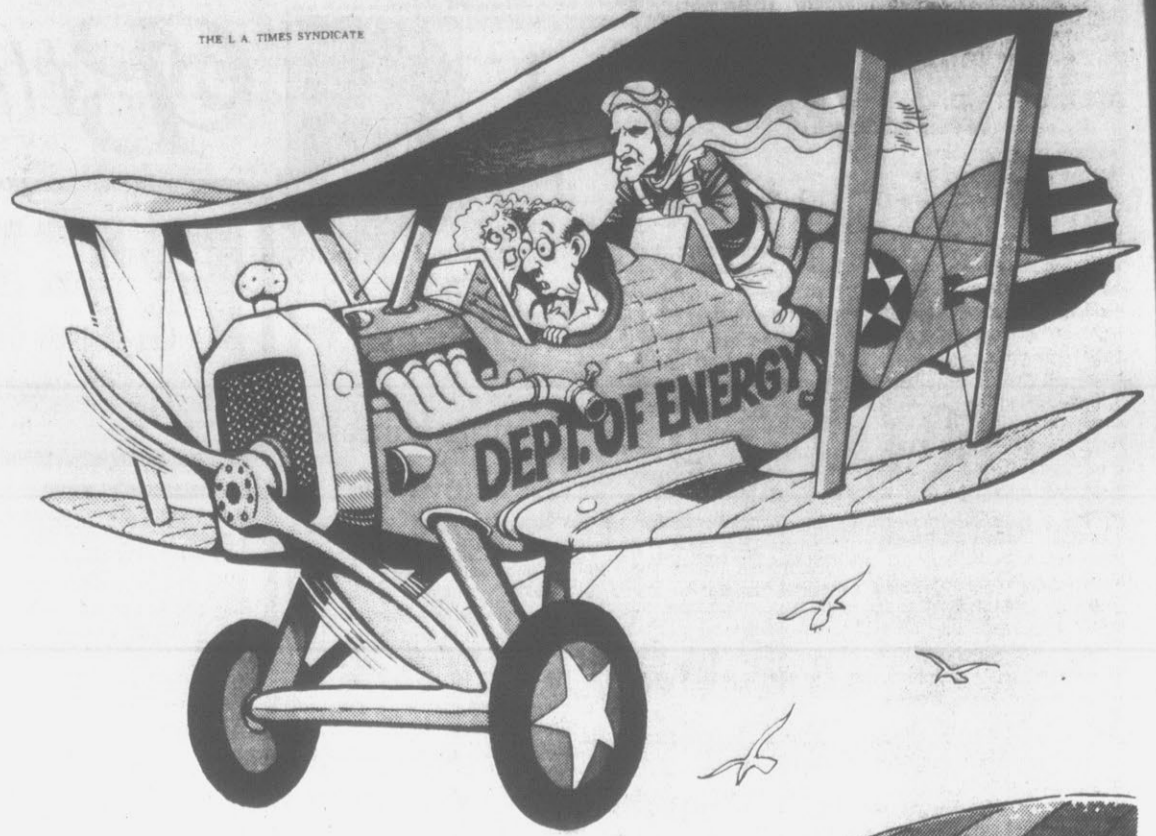

Love of country is usually not considered to be as much of a virtue as it was in past generations. Sometimes it is looked upon as a narrow provincialism, or as a pretext for ignoring or discriminating against the outsider.

Of course patriotism, like any other virtue, can be misused. But there is no inherent conflict between an honest, sincere love of country and a sympathy and understanding for people of other nations. A man does not despise womanhood in general because he loves on woman above all others and takes her to himself for better or worse. Parents do not despise children because they love their own children above all others.

If a person does not love his or her own family, it is quite likely that the person can love no one outside the family. So it is with patriotism. Despite all the talk of emancipated internationalism, the person who does not love his own country probably has very little love for anyone beside himself.

Gerry Would Understand

WASHINGTON — Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts signed the Declaration of Independence, helped to draft the Constitution, served in Congress, functioned as ambassador to France and wound up his career as vice president under Madison. And what's he remembered for today? Because he gave his name to "gerrymandering," that's what.

The word goes back to 1812, when Gerry, as governor, signed a bill creating state senatorial districts that favored the dominant Democrats. One of the northeastern districts was shaped like a salamander. It was an easy linguistic slide from salamander to gerrymandering, and from that day to this the fun and games have continued. Given an opportunity to create legislative districts, a political party will play party politics every time.

Forgive the historical note. Governor Gerry would have understood exactly what the Republican Party is up to now. The Republicans have created a special political action committee, known as GOPAC, with but one purpose in mind. This is to elect more Republicans to state legislatures in 1980. Following next year's decennial census, lines must be redrawn for congressional districts. The GOP wants a larger hand in drawing them.

For the Republican Party, this is merely a matter of life or death. At present the Democrats control both houses in 31 state legislatures, the Republicans in only 11; in seven states political control is divided. (Nebraska has a unicameral body.) The 31 Democratic states elect almost three-fourths of the members of the House of Representatives. Unless the Republicans can reduce this overwhelming advantage, they stand to lose from 23 to 26 seats in the House as districts are reconstituted after 1980.

The reverse of the proposition also is true. If the Republicans could make significant gains in the state legislatures — if they could elect even 90 candidates in precisely the right places — their own judicious gerrymandering thereafter would produce a potential Republican gain of 20 to 22 seats in the House. This sport is known as political hardball; it is all men play in the major leagues.

To be sure, the rules are not as easygoing as they were in Governor Gerry's day. By Supreme Court decree, legislative districts are supposed to be compact, contiguous and as nearly equal as possible in population. Even so, it is child's play for state legislators to juggle counties, cities and townships for political advantage.

All told, the 49 state legislatures (excluding Nebraska) have 7,513 seats. The Republicans gained 332 seats last November and now hold roughly 2,735 against the Democrats 4,768. The remaining seats are held by independents or by third-party incumbents. The Republicans have no realistic hope of approaching even half of the total number of seats. Their hope is that by pouring money and effort into 800 state legislative districts, they might win another 300 seats in 1980. This would make a world of difference in the reapportionment battles that lie ahead.

In an astounding exhibition of solidarity, all 18 Republican governors are part of the GOPAC venture. Pierre S. du Pont of Delaware is chairman. As its executive director, the committee luckily wooed J.E.B. Carney away from the Republican National Committee. At 29, Carney exemplifies the new breed of young professionals in politics; he cut his baby teeth in Virginia's seventh district and served as an advance man for Bob Dole in the presidential campaign of 1976.

The GOPAC goal is to raise $1 million for the 1980 effort. By federal standards that's chickenfeed, but in terms of state legislative races the individual grants could make a large difference. In the nature of things, most of the big contributions next year will go into the presidential, senatorial and congressional campaigns, but young Carney has a most appealing pitch to people who understand politics: The shape of (Continued on page 5)

Hand It To The Italians

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent ROME (AP) — When it comes to expressing themselves in any situation, you've got to hand it to the Italians. If you don't, they'll hand it to you in sign language you may never forget.

To the editor:

The East Carolina University campus and the adjacent residential areas have a charm and beauty recognized by residents and visitors alike. Making a significant contribution to this pleasant atmosphere are the many large and graceful oaks, elms and other trees along the streets and among the buildings.

Hopefully, those in decision-making positions at the University have vision and sensitivity and will realize the folly of removing a large number of trees to park cars. Of course, it would be convenient and efficient to blacktop large areas of the campus, but it would also be aesthetically unappealing and environmentally disastrous. And certainly, based on the events of the past few weeks, one could predict an increase in car pooling and walking, both lessening the need for expansion of parking facilities.

Surely we can learn to utilize the resources of our environment while still providing a future for generations yet to come.

Chamber Invades Paper, TV Field

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A weekly newspaper that unabashedly advocates the business viewpoint and a prime-time television news and interview show are expected to be launched soon by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

The moves are part of an aggressive attitude taken in the past few years by the Chamber, which feels that in other years the business view hasn't been expressed forcefully or designed to reach a broad audience.

Planned also are $2.5 million of studios at the Chamber's Washington headquarters, where among other things, business people may learn how to testify before Congress and respond to media interviews.

Some people felt the Chamber was too strongly identified with big business, which many independent business people will tell you is as much an enemy as big government or big unions.

Since 1975, when Richard Leshner became chief operating officer, the image has changed. Membership, 52,000 in 1975, is now more than 80,000. A recent Chamber article proclaimed "Small Business Keeps America Working."

The Chamber has also become decidedly outspoken and controversial on political and social issues. Its lobbying efforts have become forceful and, more important, says Leshner, more credible.

Leshner, a former professor and assistant administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Agency, immediately gave the Chamber the impact that in years gone by it sometimes sought, but sometimes also feared. He and his aides formed

The National Chamber Litigation Center, a public interest law group that entered more than 30 court cases on behalf of business in its first two years of existence.

At nearly the same time, they began The National Chamber Alliance for Politics, a political action committee that claims to have "scored victories" in 60 percent of the 1978 races for House and Senate seats.

Simultaneously, the National Chamber Foundation has been researching key issues, such as health care costs. While non-political, restricted by charter, the foundation can feed its findings to Chamber activists.

The new communications effort is being headed by Carl Grant.

Grant's ambitious plans call for publication beginning next month of the weekly newspaper "Washington Report," which he predicts will have a circulation of 1.5 million within five years.

By September, he and his staff expect to have signed up scores of independent television stations for a midday Sunday show "It's Your Business," designed on the lines of network news interview shows.

The Chamber already has TV and radio shows, including "What's The Issue," currently on 400 radio stations. It publishes a magazine, "Nation's Business," circulation 1.2 million. And Leshner's weekly column, "Voice of Business," goes to 700 outlets.

But, says Grant, 35, the effort will expand. The Chamber, he said, wants to be known as the business advocate. "We intend to be the foremost commentator on business issues."

Graham To Run Again

whistles, a pair of Italian taxi drivers caught in a rush-hour fender bender can convey their emotions in a series of flamboyant gestures that, without a blow being struck, add up to a twoman riot with enough hand signals left over to tell the police and bystanders where to go and how to get there.

If civilization as we know it suddenly went silent, the Italians could still sing bel canto below the collar button and never miss a note or a nuance.

Italian body language, spoken mainly with the arms, hands and fingers, is responsible for a rich and ever growing literature.

When barbarian hordes besieged the gates of Rome, Caesar's legions rebuked them with the ribald salute of affixing the apex of thumb to the tip of the nose and tooting an imaginary trumpet. Like the "digitus impudens," known in the vulgate as the finger, this wordless oneliner is still with us in impolite conversation.

Ted Williams, according to sports writer Red Smith, was once tossed out of a game up in Boston after fans booed him for striking out with the bases loaded "for including everyone from home plate to the right field foul line in a classic Roman gesture reminiscent of a man with a particularly pesky mosquito in the crook of his elbow."

That gesture also enjoys common modern usage.

Other silent signs of the times and mores in Italy might not be so well known around the world.

When an Italian joins all his fingertips together, as if holding an imaginary pinch of salt, it means these are the facts he is giving you, this is the gist of his argument, and you can take it without a pinch of salt.

If he delivers the gesture with two handfuls of the same, all fingertips together like a priest elevating a host, it means you can believe him on his mother's eyes and his daughter's honor.

The worst that can be said of an Italian by another Italian without anyone saying anything is to raise the pinky and pointer finger to form a pair of horns. This means your wife is playing around and why not, being married to a creep like you?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says he "ain't perfect, but he ain't done yet," and so he plans to run for re-election next year.

"At this time I have no other plans except to seek re-election as agriculture commissioner of the state of North Carolina," Graham said during an interview Wednesday.

"I'm as hungry for it as when I first ran," he said.

Graham, 58, is now in his fourth term, nearing the end of 16 years in the office. He says most people think he's been agriculture commissioner much longer.

"Some people think I've been here a long, long time. But it's not long enough," he said.

Graham is a native North Carolinian, born in Cleveland in Rowan County. He earned a bachelors degree from North Carolina State University and began his career as an agriculture teacher in Iredell County. He held various agriculture-related posts before he was elected commissioner in 1964.

He has become a familiar figure to North Carolinians with his straw hat, cigar and booming voice. People got used to him as a rather large man, he says, and when he lost 57 pounds in the last year most thought he was sick. But he said he just decided to lose some weight.

So far no one has announced plans to run against Graham. Rep. Ron Taylor, D-Bladen, had expressed interest in the office, but said recently he would not challenge Graham in 1980.

things in the big House on Capitol Hill depends first upon the shape of things in statehouses back home.

If Republican contributors don't want to be Brown-mandered in California, or Careymandered in New York or Grahamandered in Florida, they'd better dig for GOPAC — for the Democrats, who long ago learned that to live by the ward is to die by the ward, surely will mount a vigorous statehouse effort of their own.

Green Calls For Special Session

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, urging Gov. Jim Hunt to call a special session of the General Assembly to help striking independent truckers, has told state senators to be in Raleigh on Friday. Green proposed on Wednesday a temporary lifting of the state's 9 1/4 cents per gallon tax on diesel fuel sold to truck drivers, and said Hunt should call the session by the end of the week to enact the measure. Hunt's deputy press secretary Stephanie Bass said Hunt was considering the move and would make a decision today. Green pressed on with plans for a one-day session on Friday despite opposition expressed to the tax suspension by a truckers group. Tom Outlaw, executive vice president of the N.C. Motor Carriers Association, an organization of trucking lines, said his group saw no need for the move. And Outlaw said dropping the state tax could encourage truckers in bordering states to buy fuel in North Carolina, potentially depleting the state's diesel supplies. Green called for the emergency session Wednesday morning, but didn't await Hunt's reply before calling

Contest Winner

Miss Ann Hamm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Allegood of Goldsboro, was crowned Miss North Carolina Hemisphere 1979-80 Saturday at the Dutch Inn, Benson. She was awarded a trophy for best swimsuit, a plaque for the most outstanding interview and first runner-up in modeling. She will compete in the National Hemisphere Pageant, Cherry Hill, N.J. Miss Hamm is a 1979 graduate of Eastern Wayne Senior High School and is employed at Brooks Fashions, Berkeley Mall. Miss Teresa Jo Flowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Flowers of Four Oaks, was awarded a trophy as first runner-up in the state pageant. She was awarded trophies for best model, most photogenic and prettiest smile. She will also be competing in the national modeling competition at Cherry Hill, N.J.

Celebrates Anniversary

AYDEN — The Floral Club of Zion Chapel FWB Church will celebrate its 50th anniversary Sunday at 8 p.m. according to Mrs. Leolia S. Dixon, president. The Turnage Gospel Chorus will present a special musical program with Mrs. Retha J. Williams of the church as featured speaker. The Little Creek FWB Church Floral Club will be guests of honor. Bishop S. Jones, pastor, invites the public to attend.

state senators and telling them to be present Friday morning. "I was told there would be a session Friday at 9 a.m. unless I hear to the contrary," said Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston. Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, said he received similar instructions from Green, who presides over the Senate. Ballenger said he planned to be there, and understood other senators would also. Green told reporters his proposal for a 30 to 60 day lifting of the diesel tax would encourage truckers to resume hauling fresh vegetables to markets. Dropping the tax for 30 days would cost the state an estimated $2.7 million in anticipated revenues.

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles said later Wednesday that the proposal would violate the 1977 act that authorized the state to issue highway road bonds. He said the act stated that fuel taxes "shall not be repealed, diminished or applied to any purpose other than highway fund purposes."

The General Assembly adjourned earlier this month after a five-month meeting, to convene again next June. North Carolina's governor may call the Legislature into a special session by executive order. The Legislature could also call itself into session by agreement of three-fifths of the House and Senate members. House Speaker Carl Stewart could not be reached for comment. Green criticized the failure by Carter and other national leaders to take steps to deal with the strike. "Certainly the president could have and should have taken necessary actions," Green said in a written statement. "But he has dropped the ball." Green said the tax should be lifted immediately in order to encourage truckers to aid North Carolina farmers whose crops are threatened with ruin unless they can be moved to markets. He said the strike is costing eastern North Carolina farmers $1 million a day, and said immediate action could save most of the state's pepper crop. Much of the state's cucumber crop has already been lost because of idle trucks. Green said he commended Hunt for what he called "limited actions" in dealing with the strike. "Unfortunately, even with the perceptible lessening of tension in the state, I believe dramatic action is still called for," he said. Gov. Hunt acted late Wednesday by activating National Guard troops to fuel depots in Greensboro and Charlotte to help supply fuel to areas stricken by gasoline shortages. A spokesman said Hunt was reacting to provide protection at the terminals. He said lifting the diesel tax "would certainly be a boon to truckers," and would encourage federal action.

Canoe Race Scheduled

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will hold its annual Fourth of July Canoe Race on Wednesday, July 4, beginning at 10:30 a.m. All entrants must provide their own canoe and have Coast Guard approved lifejackets. Canoes must be manned by two people. No sails, motors, or kayaks will be allowed. The race will begin at the Falkland Wildlife Boat Landing and continue to Town Common. All interested persons are to call the department (752-4137, ext. 262) to register their team no later than July 3. Six trophies will be awarded — two for first, two for second, and two for third places.

QEI Gets New Tax

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — The Canadian government imposed an in-transit tax on the Cunard Line of $3 for each of the 1,750 passengers aboard the Queen Elizabeth 2 when the ship stopped in Halifax during a cruise from New York. "If you want tourism, you don't discourage it this way," said the skipper of the liner, Capt. Douglas Ridley, before he sailed for Bermuda Monday afternoon. Ray Beck, the Halifax port manager, also was unhappy. "It was an order from Ottawa. We had nothing to do with it — no control over it," he said.

Quarterly Meeting

Quarterly meeting will be held this weekend at Union Grove F. W. B. Church, Farmville. Friday night, a quarterly conference will be held at 7:30 p.m. Bishop Stephen Jones and the choir and ushers from Haddocks Chapel Church will be in charge of Holy Communion services Saturday, 7:30 p.m. Sunday School will be held at 9:30 a.m., with the 11 a.m. service conducted by Elder H. L. Hill, pastor. Following dinner at 2 p.m., Elder Jasper Tyson and the choir and ushers from Allen's Chapel will conduct the 3 p.m. services. The public is invited to attend these services.

In a prepared text issued Wednesday night, Green said it was not his intention to waive the state tax, but instead to allow truckers to purchase diesel fuel at the regular price which includes state taxes. The driver would then apply to the state for a refund for the money he paid in state taxes. Green said the refund money would come out of the state's

General Fund. The lieutenant governor also said the order would apply to those trucks carrying "perishable, edible commodities out of North Carolina." Green said his proposal would replace lost highway fund revenues with money from General Fund revenues, which are provided through general state taxes.

Dr. Brewer Appointed To Term On N.C. Humanities Committee

Thomas B. Brewer was recently appointed to a three-year term on the North Carolina Humanities Committee.

The North Carolina Humanities Committee was created in 1972 to apply the resources of the humanities — history, literature, philosophy, etc. — to the everyday concerns of citizens in our state.

Utilizing federal monies made available by the National Endowment for the Humanities and gifts from private sources in North Carolina, the committee assisted 450 projects with approximately two million dollars in grants.

More than 250,000 Carolinians have participated personally in NCHC funded programs and thousands more have witnessed radio and television presentations. Programs have been presented in 98 of the state's 100 counties.

Brewer, chancellor of East Carolina University, came to Greenville in 1978 from Texas Christian University where he served as vice chancellor and dean.

Holding a Ph.D. in history from the University of Pennsylvania, he is recognized as a scholar of American economic history.

In announcing the appointment, NCHC Chairman Jean

Eason cited Brewer's leadership in developing programs which extend the liberal arts beyond campus.

"We are delighted to have Thomas Brewer's experience and his keen insight into the relationships between universities and the general public. He will help us and he'll keep us on target," said Eason.

NCHC consists of 22 citizens,

Approve Addition

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Department of Human Resources has approved the proposed construction of a 166 bed addition to Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the conversion of 20 existing beds to an intensive care unit.

The certificate of need for the project, to be built with state funds as part of the East Carolina University Medical School program, was approved by the department's Division of Facility Services' Certificate of Need Section Monday.

Federal approval for the project must come before construction of the project.

Two Cars Collide

Cars driven by Mildred Best Latham of 407 1/2 South Elm St., and John Pratt Sherman of 208 North Ash St. collided about 5:25 p.m. yesterday on Elm Street, 100 feet North of the Fifth Street intersection, Greenville Police officers reported today.

Investigators estimated damage from the collision at $90 to the Latham car and $750 to the Sherman vehicle.

Larceny Arrest

Greenville Police yesterday arrested Gary Lynn Stallings, 18 of Route 2, Grifton, on larceny charges in connection with the alleged theft of a number of locks, paper holders and towel bars from a construction site here.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Stallings allegedly took $92.50 worth of material from a construction site at Courtney Square on Arlington Boulevard between 5 p.m. and 6 o'clock yesterday.

He was taken into custody shortly after the alleged theft, the chief noted.

Give Free Inspection

The Mobile Crime Watch and the Greenville Police Department's Crime Prevention Bureau will sponsor a courtesy pre-vacation motor vehicle inspection Saturday from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on Red Banks Road behind the Ramada Inn.

The safety inspection will include such things as battery cables, water hoses, windshield wipers, lights, tires, jack and lug wrench, and emergency repair and first aid kits.

In addition to the mechanical inspection of the car, a radar speed check will be made and compared with the speedometer of the vehicle.

Seek 1-Day Consumer Strike

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers are being urged to strike for one day this fall to protest the government's failure to dampen inflation, which has skyrocketed to an annual rate of 13.4 percent.

"Unless consumers stand up in an organized manner...they will never be able to deal with the deteriorating and fast crumbling economy, consumer advocate Ralph Nader told a coalition of 70 consumer, labor, religious and senior citizen groups here Wednesday.

The coalition — Consumers Opposed to Inflation in the Necessities — launched what its leaders hope will be a series of teach-ins reminiscent of the grassroots protest of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The group, calling itself COIN, unveiled a 100-page anti-inflation program, highlighted by immediate calls to reimpose oil price controls, place a clamp on health care costs, subsidize consumers' food bills and lower mortgage rates.

All but the health-care proposal came under strong criticism from Alfred Kahn, the Carter administration's chief inflation fighter, who participated in one of the many sessions during the day-long teach-in.

While applauding many of the coalition's long-term proposals — including efforts to expand and diversify the nation's energy supply and to deregulate the trucking industry — Kahn said controlling oil prices is "pre-tending" about its real cost.

Such a move back to energy price controls, he said, would discourage conservation and intensify demand for the fast-diminishing product. And that, he said, would only feed inflation.

Similarly, Kahn said subsidizing food and cutting mortgage rates would increase demand and cause prices to rise even more if the supply of foodstuffs and housing can't be increased fast enough.

COIN is focusing its campaign on the acute impact inflation has on necessities — energy, food, housing and health care. Those areas comprise two-thirds of an average family's budget and have increased at more than double the rate of all other goods and services this year.

Economist Gar Alperovitz, a COIN organizer, said food has risen by 17.1 percent; shelter by 14.1 percent; and electricity, heating oil and gasoline by 37.1.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm, sunny weather is expected in the forecast period, Thursday until Friday morning, for most of the nation. Cool weather is expected for the Dakotas and Minnesota. Areas of showers are forecast from the Midwest to the upper Great Lakes and into the Ohio Valley. Showers are forecast for central and northern Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Tornadoes and hail were reported on the Plains, as stormy weather lay ahead for several other areas of the nation.

A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect early today for southeastern Nebraska and central Kansas. Showers or thundershowers were scattered over Missouri, Florida and the northern Plains, and from southern Michigan into northern New England.

Showers and thundershowers also fell across the central Plains with hail reported in southeastern Nebraska. Tornadoes were reported in extreme northeastern Colorado and near the Nebraska panhandle.

Thundershowers were forecast from the mid-Mississippi Valley through the Ohio Valley to the lower Great Lakes. Scattered thundershowers were predicted along the Gulf of Mexico and Carolina coasts.

Skies were generally clear from the Pacific Coast to the Continental Divide, across the Gulf Coast states and over the mid- and south Atlantic Coast states.

It was expected to be mild through the Carolinas, the North Atlantic Coast states and over the lower Great Lakes region. Elsewhere, seasonably warm or hot temperatures were forecast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 44 degrees at Sault Ste. Marie, Minn., to 97 degrees at Blythe, Calif.

Half-Pricing Of Gas Okayed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A new pricing system for gasoline to be placed in effect soon will lead some North Carolina motorists to believe that the high prices of gasoline have finally come down. But the new prices on the pump will be the result of a major change.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Wednesday that an emergency regulation will be implemented July 1 to allow half-pricing of gasoline, diesel fuel and kerosene at the retail level. Graham was scheduled to announce the new plan at a press conference today.

Graham said the new regulation will allow him to put the new plan into effect.

Gasoline and oil pumps are regulated by the consumer standards division of the state Department of Agriculture. The new system has been designed for stations whose pumps register no more than 99.9 cents per gallon for gasoline.

It means that when a driver sees he is being charged 65 cents for a gallon of gasoline, he is actually paying $1.30 per gallon.

Many gasoline prices in the state are nearing the $1 per gallon mark, and many of the pumps in the state would have to be replaced without the pricing system.

In Raleigh last week, a service station raised its prices to 101.9 cents per gallon. Those prices were soon reduced to 99.9 by Tuesday.

Marion F. Erwin, president of Erwin Oil Co., distributor for the station, said he told the station owner to cut the price because he had "overstepped some of the bounds" of the lease and maintenance agreement with the increase.

A few lines at gasoline pumps appeared in the Greensboro area, and within a 50-mile radius of the city. But Max Pegrum, newly-elected president of the North Carolina Service Station Association, said the lines began to disappear Wednesday as stations began receiving gasoline shipments.

Vote No On Union

SENECA, S.C. (AP) — Employees at Duke Power Co.'s Oconee Nuclear Station have voted to reject union representation by two labor organizations, a company spokeswoman said Wednesday.

It was the third time workers at the plant voted against representation by either the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union or the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, spokeswoman Angie Howard said.

Ms. Howard said all 350 workers affected by the election cast ballots Tuesday and Wednesday. She said 219 workers voted against representation by either group, 127 voted for representation by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, and four voted for the Electrical Workers union.

AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced moderately today in the first trading since the oil-exporting countries set their new pricing plans. Gainers led losers by close to a 2-1 margin in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.38 to 843.90 by noon. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, concluding its meeting in Geneva, set a base price of $18 a barrel, with allowances for prices of up to $23.50 for some of the top grades of oil from African countries. That compares with the former base of $14.55, and recent average prices of $17 to $18. Analysts said there was some relief among investors that the forces of moderation within OPEC, led by Saudi Arabia, held firm against pressure from more militant members for even larger increases. But they also noted a bit of disappointment that the Saudis made no decision to increase production. Stepped up production would tend to ease the current tightness in world oil markets. Energy issues on the active list included Occidental Petroleum, up 3/4 at 24 1/2; Exxon, up 7/8 at 53 1/2; Atlantic Richfield, (residential). Etsil Gordon, a member of the board of directors of the Boys Club, informed the commissioners that the entire tract would not be used for the club. She added that the organization is presently looking at another site on which to locate a new facility. It was pointed out that the property is some 200 feet deep and involves some 375 feet of frontage on Greenville Boulevard. Approximately one and a half acres was requested for Office and Institutional designation, with the remainder of the property requested for R-6.

E. E. Howell said that he did not agree with the Office and Institutional segment, adding that it represented spot zoning and was not compatible with other zoning in the area. Hankins said that he objected to the Office and Institutional rezoning and he said that he would only go along with residential designation for the property. Hankins' motion to deny the request or recommend that all of the property be rezoned to R-6 did not gain a second. Ms. Gordon said that the petitioners would like for the planning board to consider the request as presented and either vote on it as proposed or deny it.

Hankins offered the motion that the overall request be recommended for denial by the City Council. Commissioners tabled for further study action on the preliminary plat of Brooklea Subdivision, property of H. A. I. Sugg, located on the proposed Brownlea Drive just north of Kingsbrook Road. Dr. Sugg, it was noted, intends to use some three and a half acres for the development of a personal residence and he proposed that Kingsbrook Road be ended at his property. Commissioners discussed whether Kingsbrook should be ended with a cul-de-sac arrangement or continued through the housing development. Brownlea Drive is already shown on the Thoroughfare Plan as a through street, it was mentioned. Sugg said that he did not

Borg Survives Scare

By WINSOR DOBBIN
AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — American schoolgirl Tracy Austin launched her bid to become one of Wimbledon's youngest title holders when she met South African Brigitte Cuypers today in the second round of the prestigious tennis championships.

Lottie Dod won Wimbledon in 1887 at the age of 15.
Austin is 16, and is seeded No. 4.

The Rolling Hills, Calif., high school student had to quit last week's Eastbourne tournament with a groin injury but a first-round bye has given her a whole week to recover from that injury, and she felt confident today.
Meanwhile, Bjorn Borg, bidding for a fourth straight men's singles title, was given a fright by Indian No. 1 Vijay Amritraj before winning 2-6, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, 6-2 in the second round Wednesday.

"I thought I would probably lose," said Borg, who at one stage trailed two sets to one and 1-3.
"When we got to 3-1 in the fourth it was vital for him," said Borg. "But he got a little nervous when he realized how important it was."
"I thought that I had been down like that before, and I get more relaxed when I see a match might be slipping away from me."
Relaxed or not, Borg moved into top gear to come back and take the fourth set tiebreaker 7-

2. The final set was much smoother sailing.
"When I get relaxed I take a few more chances," said the 23-year-old champion. "I tried to hit winners on service return and mostly I made those shots. I feel I am a better player when I am down a break than when I am level or in front."
Borg, who says this is the toughest draw he has ever had at Wimbledon, has a day to ease a slight leg strain before he meets American Hank Pfister in the third round Friday.

Second-seeded American John McEnroe also had a bumpy ride into the third round. The aggressive 20-year-old New Yorker dropped the first set to Britain's Buster Mottram, but went on to win 6-7, 6-2, 7-6, 6-2.
Only one seed fell in the men's singles. American John Sadri downed Spaniard Jose Higuera 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5. Sadri is ranked just 35th in the United States, but the 12th-seeded Higuera plays very little on grass. He was the fifth of the 16 men's seeds to be toppled.
In the women's singles all the top seeds advanced, but 16-year-old American Pam Shriver had to withdraw with a shoulder injury that has troubled her for two weeks.
Defending champion Martina Navratilova was in impressive form against 18-year-old Briton Jo Durie, winning 6-4, 6-1, while Chris Evert Lloyd breezed by fellow American Andrea Whitmore, 6-1, 6-2.

Wimbledon Finals To Be Shown Live

An AP Sports Analysis
By CHRISTY BARBEE
AP Sports Writer

Devotees of Daffy Duck, Buford and The Galloping Ghost and The Jetsons may suffer a little, but it's all in the name of television history and one man's belief in the sanctity of Wimbledon.
NBC will defy the Saturday late-sleeping habits of tennis fans and the cartoon-viewing regimen of millions when it telecasts live coverage of the men's tennis final at Wimbledon July 7 at 9 a.m. EDT.

It will be the first time Wimbledon action will be seen in America as it happens. Because of the time difference between continents, diehards for years have had to hide out from radios and early afternoon newspapers in order to avoid learning the results from Wimbledon before the afternoon telecast.

NBC will provide 10½ hours of coverage, starting with the telecast this Saturday from 5 to 6:30 p.m. EDT. Highlights of 15 minutes will be telecast each week day next week at 11:30 p.m. EDT. Viewers in the Pacific and Mountain zones should check local listing for possible time differences.

The live final is a real gamble. "I really have no feeling yet for whether this will be a huge success or a miserable failure," says Jeff Mason, the network's vice president for European productions and the enthusiastic producer for Wimbledon.

"But we feel that's the way the event should be treated. This is Wimbledon, one of the most prestigious sporting events in the world, a class act."

And, he says, Wimbledon is the single event for which he could see troubled NBC do battle to its last breath should another network loosen its 11-year hold on it.

"I think the guy at home really likes class acts." He acknowledges, though, that were he to be in the States on July 7 he might well sleep until 10 a.m., figuring that he might not miss too much in the first outrageously early hour.

"But I hope there aren't too many of those types around," he says, "and I hope they'll make an exception in this case."

The probability for dismal ratings would seem high. Add to the unusual hour the fact that tennis telecasts generally draw small audiences, smaller than those for golf.

But Wimbledon, which started last Monday, does boast some eye-opening attractions this year. The rivalries that could come to the fore are more interesting than they've been in recent years. And NBC has assembled a fine team for the coverage.

Bud Collins and Donald Dell are the best, and really the only experienced tennis commentators on TV. Billie Jean King, who is playing singles and doubles here and vying for a record 20th Wimbledon title (singles and doubles included), will provide commentary on the women's action. And Dick Enberg, doing Wimbledon for the first time, will provide continuity.

John McEnroe, the 20-year-old American left-hander, has a real shot at the final, which would prevent a third consecutive Bjorn Borg-Jimmy Connors show.

And Borg could achieve a mark not reached since 1913. He could win a fourth consecutive Wimbledon crown, becoming the first man since New Zealand's Tony Wilding to do so.

Connors gave organizers a big scare. He nearly passed up the hallowed event to be with his pregnant wife in the States, but doctors said she probably would not deliver until later in July.

His chances seem slimmer than ever, given his inconsistent play so far this year. Borg's domination at Wimbledon and McEnroe's constantly growing prowess.

Victor Pecci, the tall dark man with the diamond earring, will be a big story. From relative obscurity, he stunned the field at the French championships early this month, beating Connors and three other top players before bowing to Borg in the final. He made it to the final weekend before last at a London grass court event, then yielded to McEnroe.

The story in the women's draw will be whether Chris Evert Lloyd, a two-time Wimbledon winner but a listless loser the last two years, can stir herself to challenge Martina Navratilova. She beat Martina last week at Eastbourne, a traditional Wimbledon grass warm-up.

Navratilova, having been reunited with her mother for the first time since the player's defection from Czechoslovakia four years ago, is more than ever a natural as the leading lady of the Wimbledon drama.

A renewed Evonne Goolagong Cawley, who made it to the semis against Navratilova last year before limping out on a severely damaged heel, has an excellent shot at the final.

CART-USAC Dispute Continues Unsettled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The dispute between the U.S. Auto Club and Championship Auto Racing Teams will apparently go unresolved through 1979, with each organization conducting its own races.

Pat Patrick, president of CART, said Wednesday his organization had rejected USAC's latest offer and planned to conduct its own races for the balance of the season.

On Sunday, USAC President Dick King said he didn't expect further talks concerning the split that has left his organization without most of the sport's top drivers.

Patrick announced CART's decision in a statement from his office in Jackson, Mich. He said the decision was reached after a meeting Tuesday of CART's board of directors.

The feud, which led to the formation of CART last year when USAC's board rejected demands from the car owners who formed the group, has been a bitter one. In April, 19 entries from six CART teams for the Indianapolis 500 were rejected by USAC, which sanctions and conducts the race. However, they were restored after practice began under court order.

Ray Smartis, general manager of the Ontario, Calif., Motor Speedway, which hosts a USAC-sanctioned 500-mile race in September, acted as mediator in the latest effort to end the stalemate.

He met with CART and USAC officials this month in an effort to have drivers like veterans A.J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford, and Al and Bobby Unser competing in the Sept. 2 race along with Danny Ongais, Tom Sneva and Indy 500 winner Rick Mears.

However, this now appears unlikely since Foyt is aligned with USAC while the others are driving for CART.

A proposal by CART earlier this month called for an "immediate truce," incorporating remaining 1979 races into one schedule with representatives from both sides officiating the races.

"This proposal was rejected by USAC, and we have found the conditions for future negotiations subsequently set by USAC to be unacceptable," said Patrick.

Patrick said his organization's next race will be the Norton Twin Indy race at the Michigan International Speedway, Sunday, July 15. He said the race would be nationally televised by NBC.

USAC's plan called for a 14-man Indy Car Commission with the authority to enact rules, approve television rights, sponsor contracts and race scheduling, approve purses and utilize or integrate officials from the two organizations.

However, the plan established USAC as the sanctioning organization for Indy car races and the commission would act within its framework.

Blalock Sees High Scores

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Jane Blalock, looking for her fifth Ladies Professional Golf Association title this year, says the winning score will not be low in this week's tourney.

"The ball doesn't zip off the ground like it did here last year," Blalock said of the 6,411-yard Dearborn Country Club layout. "Last year, I reached the par 5s in two. Now I'm hitting the ball longer but it takes me three (shots) to get there."

The tour's 20th event of the season, the 72-hole Lady Stroh's Open, opened today at the par-72 course built in 1925 by Henry Ford. The winner will take home $22,500 of the $150,000 purse.

Last year's event, won in a three-way playoff by Sandra Post, provided the long fairway rolls typical of August. By moving the tourney up six weeks, Blalock said, the sponsors have handed the players a different course.

Blalock called the rough "lush" this time around and said mental errors could thin the field quickly. Tour veteran Kathy Whitworth agreed.
"You have to think your way around this course," said Whitworth, who is counting on her putter to come through for this event.

Whitworth tied-for second behind Nancy Lopez in Hershey, Pa., last week by putting "horribly."

"Right now I feel a lot better about my game than I have in a long time. The attitude is there," Whitworth said.

Snow Hill In Win

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team slipped past Rocky Mount yesterday for a 2-1 victory.

Snow Hill scored a run in the first and one in the third, while Rocky Mount's run came in the fourth.

Ken Johnson went the distance on the mound for Snow Hill and scored the winning run in the third.

In the first, Jimbo Fulghum walked and Al Murray singled for Snow Hill. Philip Gordon tripled to push both runners in, but Fulghum was called out on appeal for missing third base.

Johnson led off the third with a triple for Snow Hill and scored on a single by Fulghum.

Snow Hill is now 8-5 on the year and closes out the regular season Friday night at Pitt County.

Palmer Returns To Hurl Victory

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

As if things weren't bad enough for the rest of the American League East, Jim Palmer is alive and well in Baltimore once again. "It looks like the master's back. Jim Palmer is a master and he pitched a masterpiece."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver crowed after his ace righthander, recently sidelined for 20 days with tendinitis in his pitching arm, baffled Cleveland with a four-hitter to give the Orioles a 3-1 victory.

"My arm still has a little pain," said Palmer, "but it felt a lot better than it did the last time I pitched."

The triumph kept Boston from cutting into Baltimore's four-game division lead. The Red Sox defeated Detroit 3-1.

"We did everything right," said Palmer, after his fivestrikeout, two-walk performance enabled the Orioles to chalk up their 18th victory in the last 20 games. "I even got away with walking two batters in one inning."

The only thing he didn't get away with was feeding a fastball to Toby Harrah leading off the ninth inning. Harrah sent it over the fence for his ninth home run of the season. Still, Palmer, 7-3, a 20-game winner eight of the previous nine seasons, wound up with his first victory since May 29 and first complete game since April 19.

Red Sox 3, Tigers 1
Boston outwaited Pat Underwood, who hurled 7-1 innings of three-hit, eight-strikeout ball, and a 43-minute rain delay in the pivotal ninth inning to beat the Tigers.

Champ Summers' homer for Detroit in the seventh inning and Rick Burleson's sacrifice fly in the eighth sent the teams into the ninth tied 1-1.

Royals 10, A's 3
Pete LaCock and Al Cowens each drove in three runs apiece as the Royals battered Oakland for their fifth straight victory. Fred Patek had a two-run single in a four-run fourth inning and Cowens doubled for two runs in a four-run seventh.

Rangers 4, Angels 2
Oscar Gamble drove in three Ranger runs, two of them with a third-inning homer, while Steve Comer and Jim Kern teamed for a four-hitter to saddle California with its fifth loss in six games.

Brewers 9, Twins 8
Ben Oglivie's 13th and 14th homers of the year, both with the bases empty, and Gorman Thomas' 18th, a two-run shot, helped Milwaukee beat the Twins.

Mike Caldwell was staked to a 9-0 lead but needed relief help. Minnesota got three runs in the sixth inning, two on Willie Norwood's single, three more in the seventh, two on Roy Smalley's double, and two in the ninth on Glenn Adams' homer.

Mariners 4, White Sox 3
After Bill Stein tripled with one out in the bottom of the ninth, Chicago's Ken Kravec walked Bobby Valentine and Leon Roberts on purpose to load the bases. But he also walked Ruppert Jones to force in Seattle's winning run.

MONDAY'S NBA DRAFT was not the most prolific in the league's history in terms of sheer talent, but it did provide a showcase for East Carolina University's growing basketball program.

Two Pirate guards, Oliver Mack and George Maynor, both went high in the draft. Mack, a 6-3 senior last season, was taken by Los Angeles in the second round, the 25th player drafted. Maynor, a 6-1 junior, was grabbed by Chicago in the fourth of the 10 rounds.

New Pirate basketball coach Dave Odom hasn't coached either player, but has seen both of them play and knows their abilities. "I think Oliver certainly has an excellent chance to play in the league," he said yesterday.

He questioned, however, whether Mack would be able to play for the Lakers. "I don't know if it was that good a chance for Mack," he said of the Los Angeles pick. "They picked three guards in the first three rounds, Earvin Johnson (the number one pick in the draft who led Michigan State to the NCAA Championship as a sophomore last year), Ollie and Walter Daniels from Georgia. That tells you right away that they are looking for a guard."

But whether Mack will be able to fill the Lakers' needs remains to be seen. "Johnson will have a no-cut contract and (current Laker) Norm Nixon has a no-cut contract. Ron Boone and Lou Hudson probably have no-cut contracts, too," Odom said.

"The competition is going to be heated, but the Lakers might decide to trade (Mack) if he doesn't make it."

One of the biggest keys to a successful pro career is to get with the right team, Odom said. "Magic" Johnson certainly couldn't beat out Phil Ford at Kansas City. And Rod Griffin is definitely pro material, but he got with the wrong team. Only time will tell if that's the case for Oliver."

MAYNOR, WHO WAS drafted under the NBA's junior eligible rule, "is definitely going to come back" to East Carolina for his senior season next year, Odom said.

Maynor's case is similar to Larry Bird's situation last year. Both he and Bird sat out a season and thus were eligible to be drafted with their original senior class despite the fact that they had a year of college eligibility left.

Like the Boston Celtics, who drafted Bird last season, the Chicago Bulls keep exclusive rights to sign Maynor even if he returns to school. If they don't sign him by next year's draft, his name goes back in the pot to be drafted again.

"From Maynor's standpoint, it is probably not advisable for him to sign pro now," Odom said. "Only about the first 12 to 15 players drafted will get no-cut contracts. If he signed, he would get no money. The only way he would get paid is if he made the team. I think he would not be smart to sign now."

Maynor stands a much better chance of signing a lucrative contract if he returns to school and has a good senior season, Odom said. "If he has a good senior year, he'll go much higher in the draft and have a better chance for a good contract."

A good senior season might also enable Maynor to negotiate a good contract with the Bulls before next season's draft, a la Larry Bird. "But there aren't many Larry Birds," Odom noted.

OVERALL, THE DRAFT was a good one, Odom said. Although many experts called it a "lean year," some teams made picks that could prove very beneficial.

"Chicago helped themselves with David Greenwood (UCLA) and Bill Cartwright (San Francisco) with the Knicks gives them two centers. They won't want to keep both of them so a trade there could affect the league."

Sidney Moncrief (Arkansas), who was picked by Milwaukee could prove an immediate benefit to the Bucks, Odom said.

The world champion Seattle SuperSonics also made some excellent choices with Vinnie Johnson (Baylor) and James Bailey (Rutgers) both in the first round.

Softball Tournaments

The Winterville Jaycees will host their third annual softball tournament at A. G. Cox School July 6-8.

The double elimination event is open to all interested teams. For more information, contact Eddie Vincent at 756-3271 or Randy Avery at 756-9832.

Proceeds will be used for community development projects.

A Class C softball tournament will be held at the Packhouse Field in LaGrange July 14-15.

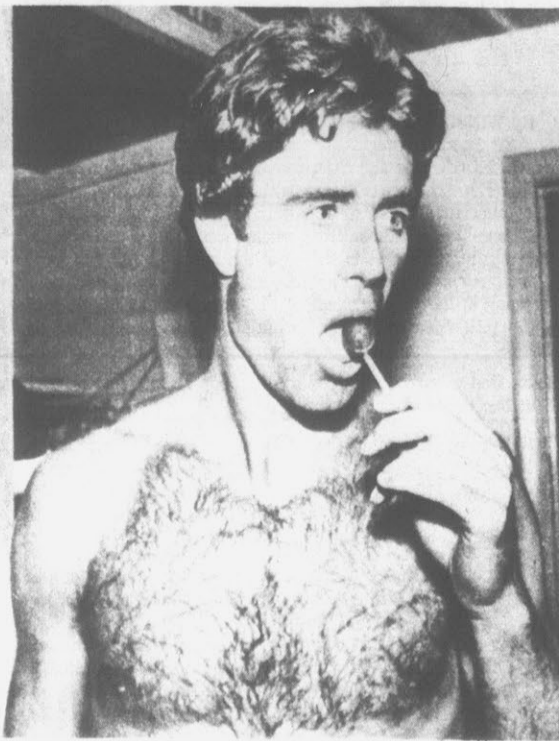

Interested teams are invited to participate. Entry fee is $45 and the drawing for pairings will be held July 10.

The first 16 teams to sign up will compete in the double elimination event. For more information, contact Linwood Sparrow at 522-0964.

Rookie Card Catcher Almost Retired Mitt

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Rookie catcher Terry Kennedy was getting ready to retire his mitt after only two games with the St. Louis Cardinals.

But then, with two out in the eighth inning, Montreal's Duffy Dyer lined a 1-2 pitch over first baseman Keith Hernandez's head, and Cards right-hander Silvio Martinez had lost his no-hitter.

Martinez wound up with the third one-hitter of his two-year major league career. The Cardinals had a big 5-0 win over the Expos and Kennedy will hold onto the glove for a while.

"I was saying, 'Gosh, I just got called up here. And he (Martinez) is going to throw a no-no to me.'"

"I'd have never used that glove again if he'd done it," Kennedy said. "It was exciting. I was fired up. I thought we had it after the seventh."

Martinez, 6-2, came into Wednesday night's game with a 2.38 earned run average and one complete game, a seventh, 4-2 victory over the New York Mets on June 22.

In his first year in the majors, the 23-year-old native of the Dominican Republic pitched one-hitters against the New York Mets, three days after joining the Cards, and Pittsburgh. But he hasn't thrown a no-hitter since May 26 of last year while he was with Springfield.

Cubs 11, Phils 4
Dave Kingman, Jerry Martin and pitcher Mike Krukow each slugged homers for Chicago in what deteriorated into a bean-ball contest between Krukow and Philadelphia pitcher Kevin Saucier, both of whom were ejected. Saucier started the exchange by bouncing a pitch off Steve Ontiveros after relieving in the fifth inning. In the top of the seventh, Krukow hit Garry Maddox with a pitch.

Krukow then led off the bottom of the seventh at the plate, and Saucier hit Krukow in the left shoulder with his first pitch. After reaching first, Krukow hollered at Saucier, and Saucier charged toward him. Both benches emptied, and after things settled down the pitchers were ejected.

Mets 12, Pirates 9
Willie Montanez and Steve Henderson hit consecutive home runs as New York rallied for five runs in the ninth inning in a game enlivened by five lead changes in the last three innings.

An unearned run in the seventh gave the Mets a 4-3 lead, but Ed Ott sent the Pirates back ahead with a two-run homer in the bottom of the inning.

The Mets came back with three runs in the top of the eighth as Pittsburgh committed two more errors, but Tim Lincecum's two-run double keyed a four-run explosion in the bottom of the eighth for Pittsburgh.

Giants 6, Astros 3
Willie McCovey's RBI single broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning, when San Francisco scored three runs, and the Giants spoiled the return to action of no-hit pitcher Ken Forsch, on the disabled list since May 17.

Forsch, who threw the season's only no-hitter April 7 against Atlanta, took a three-hitter into the eighth.

Enos Cabell homered in the fourth for the Astros, who lost for only the second time in 10 games.

Reds 9, Dodgers 1
Rick Auerbach and Johnny Bench each had three RBI, and Reds right-hander Fred Norman, 4-7, threw a six-hitter to beat the Dodgers.

Joe Morgan ignited the Reds' four-run fifth inning with a home run, his fourth, and Bench capped Cincinnati's three-run sixth with a two-run single.

Padres 2-2, Braves 1-5
San Diego rallied for two runs in the ninth inning of the opener, winning the game when

Babe Ruth

Auction Movers 2, Pepsi-Cola 1

Auction Movers scored two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning last night to defeat Pepsi-Cola 2-1 in the opening game of the Babe Ruth League tournament.

The victory puts Auction in the winner's bracket against top-seeded Planter's Bank on Friday.

Mike Holloman scored for Pepsi in the first inning on a walk, an out by Terry Smith, a strike from Billy Brown and an out by Bill Thomas.

The lead held up until the bottom of the final frame when both are out, Bill Thomas walked and Scott Brown doubled him home. Auction won with the winning run on a base hit by Chris Brown and Donnie Brown.

Auction was the winning pitcher, making a two-hitter, while both of those who were on the losing side were the loser.

Coca-Cola 6, Wachovia 2

Coca-Cola scored four runs in the first two innings and then held off Wachovia Bank for a 6-2 victory in the other first-round Babe Ruth tournament game yesterday.

The win puts Coke into the winner's bracket against second-seeded Home Builders Friday night.

Coke scored one run in the first and then added three in the second. Steve Holloman led off the second with a walk and Jimmy Jones got a base on balls. Louis Fletcher singled in Holloman, but Jones was thrown out on the bases.

Mitch Brown singled in Fletcher and Randy Warren walked. Brown was thrown out, but Warren scored on Paul MacMillan's single.

Coke added single runs in the fourth and seventh, while Wachovia scored in the fifth and seventh.

Jeff Porter and MacMillan had three hits each for Coke, while Troy Hudson had a pair for Wachovia. Marshall Rand was the winning pitcher and Mike Tucker the loser.

Little League

Exchange 13, Moose 7

Exchange defeated Moose 13-7 yesterday behind three Billy Michel home runs in the final game of the regular season for the Tar Heel Little League.

Exchange took a 3-0 lead early in the game, but Moose came back in the third for a 4-3 lead. Exchange regained the lead in the fourth with five runs and added four more in the fifth. Moose scored two in the fourth and one more in the sixth.

Steve Childers led off the key fourth inning with a walk for Exchange and Dale Hudson reached on a base on balls. Chris Coble got on via a fielder's choice and Robert Joyner doubled in Childers and Hudson. Coble came in on a balk and Michel homered to plate Joyner.

Michel was 3-4, Dale Hudson 2-2 and Joyner 2-3 for Exchange. Daryl Perkins was 2-3 for Moose, including a home run. Rob Deyton also homered for Moose and Monte Atkinson had a home run for Exchange, in addition to Michel's trio.

Tim Clark was the winning pitcher and Greg Jones the loser.

Optimists 9, Kiwanis 7

A pair of runs in the top of the sixth allowed the Optimists to defeat Kiwanis 9-7 in the finale of the North State Little League's regular season.

Kelly Barnhill got things started in the key frame with a base hit and a steal. Gary Scott walked and both runners scored on a double by Terrence Cherry.

Kiwanis had taken the lead with a pair of runs in the first, while the Optimists scored one in the second and four in the third. Kiwanis added three in the bottom of the third, but the Optimists scored two in the fourth. Kiwanis tied the game with two in the fifth before Barnhill and Scott broke the tie in the sixth and final frame.

Scott was 3-3 and Barnhill 3-4 to pace the Optimist hitting. Anthony Coward was 2-3, Robert Ehrmann was 3-4 for Kiwanis and William Smith was 2-4. Doyle Kirkland was the winning pitcher and Val Alston the loser.

North State Leaders

Tony Taylor and Patrick Rand of the top-seeded Lions stand at the top of the North State Little League batting list with averages of .538 and .500 respectively.

Gary Scott of the Optimists is also .500, while the Jaycees' Ken Butler is at .87 and Dwight Smith of Union Carbide is at .49.

Jordy Smith of the Jaycees is sixth at .426, followed by Kiwanis' Robert Evans at .366, Union Carbide's Steve Rhodes at .364 and the Jaycees' Evan Hause at .359. William Smith of Kiwanis rounds out the top ten at .349.

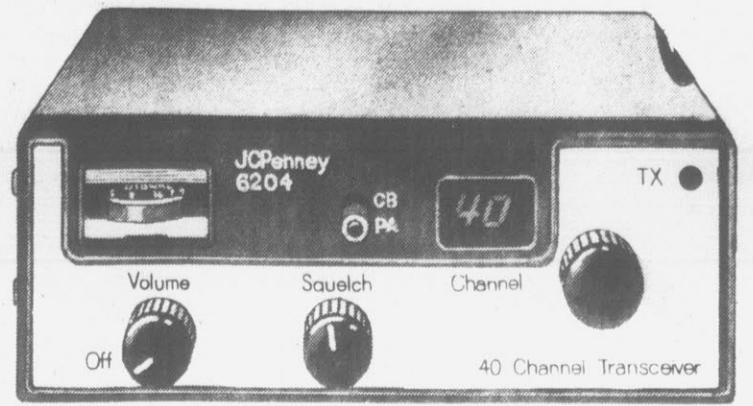

Pitt County Junior Babe Ruth

Winterville 14, Grifton 4

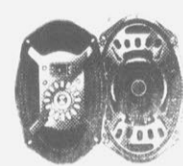

WINTERVILLE — Winterville defeated Grifton 14-4 in a five-inning game last night that closed out the regular season for both teams.

Winterville finished at 7-5, while Grifton was 8-4. Ronald Daniels was the winning pitcher.

Youth Movement At Wimbledon

McEnroe

McEnroe is the new youth movement in tennis. The 22-year-old player is the most exciting and powerful force in the sport. He is a natural leader and a natural winner. He is a natural champion and a natural champion.

McEnroe is the new youth movement in tennis. He is a natural leader and a natural winner. He is a natural champion and a natural champion. He is a natural champion and a natural champion.

Although a crusty dame of 102, she is presiding this week and next over the most interesting youth movement in all of sports. In almost every other spectator pastime, recognized champions are showing signs of brittleness and rust.

Not tennis. Not at Wimbledon.

During this dedicated fortnight attention is focused on a pair of kids who are not yet over growing pains — John Patrick McEnroe, Jr., of Douglaston, N. Y., just turned 20, a fiery lefthander who is perhaps the most skilled player in the game, and Tracy Ann Austin of Rolling Hills Estates, Calif., sweet 16, an intense, unshakable tyke with a mind of steel.

They represent the new order. This may or may not be their year at Wimbledon. But what tennis expert dares say it couldn't be? If not this year, almost certainly the next.

They are the harbingers of the 1980s. Watch them well. They may well dominate the men's and women's ranks for the next decade.

Except in women's golf, where 22-year-old Nancy Lopez is threatening to take charge, no other major sport presents such a young and fresh facade.

In boxing, Muhammad Ali is fat and retired. The man with the best credentials for succeeding him is Larry Holmes, approaching 30 and virtually unknown. The only youth in contention, Leon Spinks, 25, was ignominiously destroyed in the first round last week-end in South Africa. Olympian John Tate, 24, is a raw rookie.

The two-time world baseball champions, the New York Yankees, are aging and ailing. Of the front liners, only two — Willie Randolph and Bucky Dent — are under 30.

Only tennis is offering a "new look."

McEnroe and Austin burst upon the Wimbledon scene simultaneously two years ago. McEnroe was just a junior then, with no thought of getting into the tournament proper. He became a sensation when he smashed into the semifinals, youngest male ever to do so. Tracy looked frail and lost when she came onto center court in her doll dress but spectators quickly recognized her as a poised 14-year-old with the head and basic skills of an adult.

Since then, both have matured immeasurably. McEnroe has won the Grand Prix Masters and the WCT finals in Dallas, beating both Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors. Tracy has scored significant victories over both Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova, her chief rivals.

These kids have all the ingredients. Now we can only wait and see.

Shipper Says Replace Crane Quickly

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The head of a major container shipping line said Wednesday that the State Ports Authority should move quickly to replace the container crane that it relocated from the Morehead City port to Wilmington. John Arwood, president and founder of the independent Trans Freight Lines Inc., said in an interview here that an active campaign is underway to urge the Ports Authority to consider placement of another container crane at the Morehead port. Arwood reported that his shipping firm would expand its regularly scheduled shipping service to include port calls every two weeks at Morehead City, beginning in July. Arwood noted that the Morehead call is part of an expanded South Atlantic schedule and he added that formerly Morehead was served by his firm every 28 days as part of a North Atlantic schedule. The official said that the decision by the Ports Authority in November to move the Morehead crane has had "nothing but adverse" effects and came at a time when Trans Freight Lines (TFL) was negotiating with the Authority "in good faith" to call at Morehead. Arwood said that the crane decision came as a surprise to his shipping firm which he said learned of the relocation proposal "on our own."

According to Arwood, representatives of TFL attended the Authority's January meeting in Chapel Hill and made an appeal to the board not to move the crane. He said that TFL had little time to prepare arguments but did point out the economic disadvantages to his firm in not having the facility. Arwood said that the Ports Authority apparently reached its decision in good faith and "what we need to do and the citizens of eastern North Carolina need to do now is to convince them (Authority) that there is a need to look at new circumstances."

The North Carolina native emphasized that the gantry crane now available at Morehead is physically unable to handle the container traffic. He said that use of the gantry is costing his firm substantially and resulting in costly in-port delays. Arwood said that TFL had already negotiated with major in-state shippers in good faith to provide container service at Morehead. He added that his firm considers North Carolina to be a "very viable port and not only will we support it but we will stay there and try to get the Ports Authority to reverse its decision."

Citing the Authority's argument that the container crane at Morehead was costing too much to operate, Arwood said that TFL alone was paying in excess of $100,000 in crane rental in the "early stages" of service. He said that the Ports Authority could offset its crane costs from just one carrier.

He contended that the Ports Authority has indicated that around 6,000 container moves a year would be necessary to justify the crane at Morehead and TFL has projections of from 8,000 to 9,000 container moves a year at the port.

Gov. Jim Hunt has indicated he would lend support to the crane argument, Arwood reported, if it can be shown that 6,000 containers can be moved at the port in a year.

The shipping official asserted that the argument for a crane at Morehead should be made with economics, not with emotion.

Arwood said that not having a container crane at Morehead was on the "deficit side of the ledger" as far as his firm's outlook for service to the port.

Morehead City is the only port called upon by TFL ships that does not offer container crane service, he said, mentioning that one crane is considered a bare minimum.

The new TFL service call at Morehead will provide business and industry with direct access to the European ports of Bremerhaven, Bristol, LeHavre and Rotterdam, it was explained, with additional service to major cities throughout the Continent, United Kingdom and Scandinavia. TFL handles Procter & Gamble's European shipment of Pampers disposal diapers out of the Greenville facility, he added.

Tobacco is now being packaged in cartons for containerized shipping, Arwood said, as the industry changes from the longtime use of hogsheads as the sole method of packaging for shipping. Hogsheads packaging in not suitable for containers since they are designed to stand only one high and result in wasted container space; he said. Paper, wood and textiles are also major shipping commodities.

Arwood said that fuel problems so far have not held up cargo shipments but he added that the shortage and high costs of fuel supplies are "equally adverse to shippers."

Arwood said that the three-year old TFL is an independent, non-conference carrier with home offices in New Jersey.

A Burlington native, Arwood is a graduate of North Carolina State University.

Tankers Pull Away Without Incident

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Two tanker trucks carrying No. 2 fuel oil pulled away from the Hess terminal without incident at 7:17 a.m. today as six pickets and about 40 National Guardsmen stood by idly and watched.

One of the trucks was driven by Larry Gould of Florence, S.C., who talked with a couple of the striking truck drivers before he drove away.

Gould told the drivers he was sympathetic with their actions but "I've been out of work for over six months. I got three kids . . . I got no way to pay my bills."

The pickets wished Gould a safe trip as his rig lurched away from the terminal.

The guardsmen arrived at the big oil terminal outside Charlotte during the night in response to orders from Gov. Jim Hunt. The governor said they were needed for the protection on non-striking truck drivers and to ensure the flow of gasoline to filling stations. Other guardsmen were sent to the terminal outside Greensboro.

Earlier, Joey Bennett, a striking driver from Kings Mountain, told National Guard officials that his pickets would merely walk in front of the Hess terminal and would not make any attempt to impede the coming and going of trucks.

"Let the conscience of the drivers be our weapon," Bennett told the other pickets.

Decision Is Near

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has been heard to say lately that his plans for re-election in 1980 hinge on whether his wife Carolyn will give approval.

Apparently, his wife is close to making a decision, but has not indicated which way she is leaning.

There is little doubt that Hunt will seek re-election, based on his insistence in 1977 for a constitutional amendment that would allow North Carolina's governor to seek a second term in office. But when asked at his press conference Wednesday whether he had made progress in convincing his wife to let him run again, he said he wasn't quite sure.

"The first half of the week I was making good progress," he said. "The second half, I don't know." The Hunts spent last week at the beach, and Hunt appeared at the press conference with a tan.

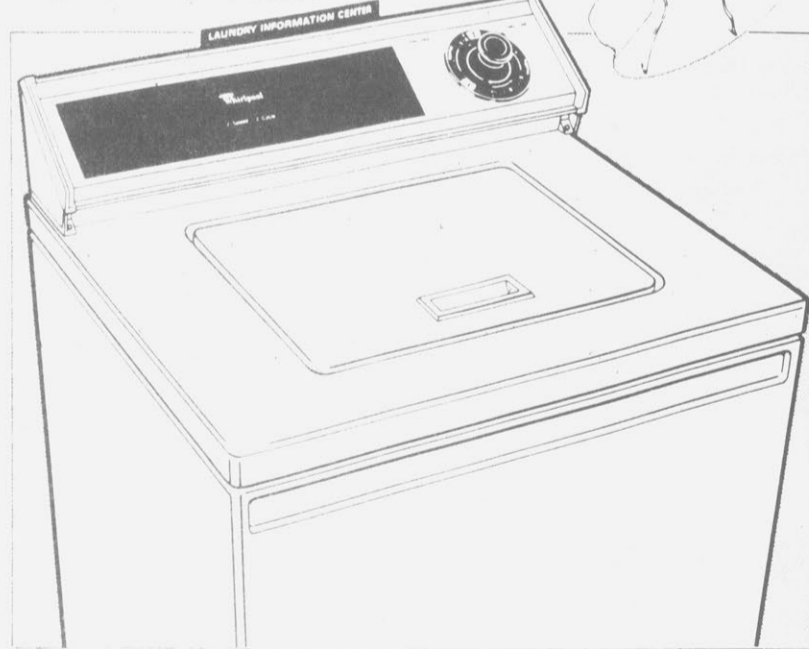

"We did reach a little clearer understanding. We've not reached a final decision, but we're a little closer."

At recent public appearances, Hunt has baited audiences by saying the occasion would be a good time to announce for re-election, only to decline the chance.

Human Resources Priorities Listed

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Children, the elderly, and abusers of alcohol and other drugs are to be the beneficiaries of the emphasis of the Department of Human Resources during this administration.
Dr. Sarah Morrow held a press luncheon at the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center here yesterday to discuss Human Resources priorities in relation to action taken during the 1979 General Assembly.

Children

"New Generation" legislation, according to Dr. Morrow, establishes a state policy "to afford each new generation of children greater opportunities and to burden it with fewer disabilities than the preceding generations had." It affirms as state policy the promotion of programs and practices which support and strengthen the family unit.

The legislature appropriated $2.3 million in 1979-80 and $3.39 million in 1980-81 to expand programs for mothers and babies, especially ones with a high risk of developmental disabilities, whether mental or physical.

Some $1,458,000 was appropriated for each year of the biennium for use by counties to identify high risk babies soon after birth and following them till they're school age. "There is a much greater chance of overcoming or minimizing handicapping conditions when they're discovered and dealt with in infancy," Dr. Morrow said. "Up till this time, we've lost track of many children from the time they're taken home from the hospital soon after birth till they start to school. By then, damage is often irreparable."

This tracking is done only with parental consent, she said. It's expected that as many as 28,000 N. C. children will be involved.

The Crippled Children's program will be expanded, she said, to provide services to about 25,000 children. There are 106 Crippled Children's Clinics throughout the state. Increased funds should keep the program from having to limit itself to life-threatening emergencies, she said, as was the case last year.

The immunization law was strengthened, to provide checks to see that every child is vaccinated. For the first time, immunizations will be required for admission to day care facilities. Day care services will be expanded statewide, she said. She pointed out that there are 13 counties in the East that have no certified day care facilities at all.

The Aging

For the aging, Dr. Morrow said emphasis will be on seeing that services are provided to enable elderly persons to continue to live in their own homes as long as possible. This will involve homemaker and home health services, she said, and some delivered and congregate meals.

Alcohol and Other Drug-Abusers

The Division of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Programs' duties have been expanded to include "Substance Abuse," Dr. Morrow said. The director of this division, Ben Aiken, accompanied her here yesterday and was involved in the press conference which was held at one of the state's three alcohol rehabilitation units, WBJ.

The legislature decreed that $1 from the sale of each gallon of mixed drinks in the state will be used for Area Mental Health programs to aid in the development of more alcohol services.

Another major bill which Dr. Morrow's Department has sponsored requires first offenders convicted of driving under the influence to attend a locally administered alcohol and drug traffic school. There were more than 71,600 DUI arrests in North Carolina in 1978, Dr. Morrow pointed out. Development of these schools will be the responsibility of local Area Mental Health centers and will be entirely financed by fees collected from DUI offenders.

Medicaid

The Medicaid program, Dr. Morrow said, continues to represent the largest and fastest-growing portion of the DHR budget. The General Assembly appropriated more than $57.5 million in state funds for the biennium to support increases in the Medicaid program. Most of these increases were due to inflation of costs of existing services. Coverage was expanded to include disabled adult children and disabled minor children, she said.

Dr. Morrow heard a report from Don Hayes, director of the WBJ ARC, and Medical Director Dr. P. S. Prasad about the work of the center. Women's and teenagers' services have been expanded, he said, to fill a growing need. Between 26 and 28 referrals are being made each month from Cherry Hospital, which has eliminated its alcoholic rehabilitation unit. Much training of medical and other health professionals is going on a tracking system to find out how successful rehabilitation is in individual cases is underway. A 10-day program for repeaters and special situations has been instituted, in addition to the regular 28-day program.

8.903% Wachovia Six-Month Savings Certificates. They could be your safest, short-term hedge against inflation.

If you have $10,000 or more to invest and you're concerned about getting the highest return on your savings dollar, here's a tip.

Look into Wachovia Six-Month Money Market Savings Certificates.

Based on the average discount rate of the most recent Six-Month U. S. Treasury Bills*, they consistently offer some of the highest yields available. Both the interest rate and your deposit are guaranteed by Wachovia with the additional protection of F.D.I.C. insurance on deposits up to $40,000. And since the term is only six months, a very good case could be made for them as one of the safest, short-term inflation hedges available.

Want to know more? Have a talk with any Wachovia Personal Banker. But act now. The rate quoted above is effective only through July 4, 1979.

*Effective yield on Treasury Bills is higher than the discount rate. Payable at maturity only. $10,000 minimum to open.

Ask your Personal Banker about Wachovia Six-Month Savings Certificates.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of time deposits and prohibit the compounding of interest during the term of deposit.

COMMUNITY WATCH — Julius Carr and Eugene Rouse of the Public Works sign department erect a community watch sign at an entrance to Brentwood Subdivision as the subdivision's community watch chairman Jim Hix, and Brentwood's neighborhood club president Jim Westbrook look on. The Brentwood program, the first community watch organization in the city, is sponsored by the Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit and allows rapid communication between the police and residents of the area. The neighborhood club, composed of 81 families, paid for the signs and the Public Works Department erected them yesterday. Under the program, the subdivision is divided into nine blocks including nine families per block. Hicks, as chairman, directs the program through nine block chairmen. He said the program keeps the line of communication open between police and the residents and encourages neighbors to look out for one another. Police crime prevention officer Douglas Jackson described the community watch program as, "neighbors being neighbors." (Reflector Staff Photo)

Coors Brewery Nixed By One Board, But Another May Okay It

By ESTES THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) — The Rockingham County Planning Commission has voted against the establishment of a Coors brewery in the Shenandoah Valley county, but it's a recommendation that could be ignored.

Floyd, commission chairman. "We've had more information on this case than we've had on any other."

are free to ignore the advisory recommendation of the planners.

The rezoning question could come before the supervisors as early as their next meeting July 9. The supervisors have final authority in the matter and it would increase county taxes and the need for services, possibly endanger water supplies and bring as many as 6,000 people and their families into the county. Proponents argue the brewery would add more jobs to the county's economy and enable young people born and raised here to stay in the area. Coors owns a natural spring in the Elkton area and holds options on about 2,000 acres of land.

Second Oil Spill Hits Outer Banks; Tourist Business Hurt

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — Another oil spill on North Carolina's Outer Banks has caused many hasty departures from resort areas in what has already been a slow summer for the coastal section.

The oil, ranging from raisin-size globs to those the size of half-dollars, washed up on a four-mile stretch of beach between Oregon Inlet and Whalebone Junction. State and federal authorities flew over the affected areas Wednesday afternoon to assess the damage.

Workers could be seen below still cleaning up the mess from the oil spill which hit the beach on June 15.

Meanwhile, resort owners have watched tourists check out, and listened while potential visitors cancelled reservations. "Everybody's getting mad," said Julie Szazama, desk clerk of the Holiday Inn at Kill Devil Hills. "We've had a real bad summer all around. It has been cloudy and cold. It's not even like summer."

Sazama said half the guests in the 108-room motel checked out by noon Wednesday.

Already hampered by gasoline shortages, Judy Waits, manager of Sam and Omie's restaurant at Nags Head said the spill could further damage the area's economy.

"If they don't get it cleaned up it will have a big effect on us," she said in reference to the upcoming July 4 holiday.

Coast Guard officials believe the newest spill is actually a recurrence of the previous spill. They speculate that a ship at sea emptied its bilges and the oil came ashore as a result of tidal movement.

"We have samples of the last spill and this is the same stuff," said Chief L.J. Drozdowski of the Oregon Inlet Coast Guard station.

Drozdowski said the affected areas include a 50-foot wide strip from Duck south to Coquina Beach near Oregon Inlet.

Duke Asks 4% Hike

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. re-emphasized its need for a 4 percent rate increase to the state Utilities Commission Wednesday, saying the company needs a higher rate of investment to attract investors.

The commission's public staff, which represents consumers at commission hearings, has said Duke is only entitled to half the increase it has requested, or $16.2 million per year.

Duke's previous rate increase was approved in August and allowed a 13.9 percent return on equity. In the application filed March 1, Duke argued that the proposed increase would give the company a "reasonable opportunity to earn the return" on common equity that the commission had previously designated as a reasonable rate.

The hearing, which began Tuesday, should conclude late next week. The commission is expected to rule on the request in either September or October.

Duke officials were expected to end their testimony today, and public staff attorneys were scheduled to begin testifying after that.

Duke serves 1.2 million customers in the Piedmont sections of the Carolinas.

In 1925, Ibn Saud, founder of Saudi Arabia, was proclaimed king of the Jezaz and Jejd.

Fires Erupt In Southern Cal.

By BRIAN BLAND
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
Brush fires and temperatures up to 120 degrees made an inferno of parts of Southern California, where officials warned today's air would be the smoggiest of the year.

Authorities activated a stand-by emergency plan for the Los Angeles area that requires oil refiners to cut emissions and some businesses and government agencies to cut employee driving by 65 percent.

Fires in Riverside, San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties — including two believed deliberately set — blackened more than 6,000 acres Wednesday and destroyed several dwellings. The outside of a firework factory was scorched but there were no explosions.

Four firefighters were injured in one fire Wednesday, including two who suffered heat exhaustion battling the blaze in near 100-degree weather. Six farm animals were killed in another fire.

The mercury topped 100 degrees in many parts of the Los Angeles area and even climbed as high to 120 degrees in the desert resort of Palm Springs, 100 miles to the east.

But more summer misery was in store, as officials said an inversion layer — a stagnant mass of hot air trapped below a mass of cold air — would produce the smoggiest day of the year.

"You can safely say that this (today) will be the highest smog level recorded so far this year," said Jeff Schenkel of the Air Quality Management District.

The agency predicted first-stage alerts in 20 areas, mostly in the western part of the Los Angeles basin, and more-serious second-stage alerts in eight areas from the central to the eastern part of the basin.

Under a first-stage alert, residents are advised to restrict their physical activity and drive only when necessary.

When a second-stage alert is predicted, some 2,750 businesses and government agencies in a four-county area are required to implement pollution-reducing plans, including the use of car pools to reduce employee driving.

Refiners must reduce certain emissions by 20 percent and power companies are asked to substitute natural gas for dirtier fuels and make efforts to get energy from outside sources.

Prince Charles and Prince Philip have conservative tastes in their choice of footwear, says the royal bootmaker. They prefer traditional brogues and round toecaps — at about $400 a pair.

Nazi Germany completed the occupation of Czechoslovakia in 1939.

Duke May Be Decried On Waste Decision

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. may have an extended wait to find out if it will be permitted to ship spent nuclear fuel through the Charlotte area.

The hearings, which were presided over by the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, were scheduled to end Friday.

But the board said the hearings could be extended because of questions surrounding the possibility of shipments of spent fuel to Duke's Catawba plant on Lake Wylie south of Charlotte. Already at issue in the hearings is Duke's proposed shipments of fuel from the Oconee nuclear plant in South Carolina to the McGuire plant north of Charlotte.

The licensing board ruled last week that Duke's plans to ship from Oconee to McGuire should possibly include the question of shipments to the Catawba plant.

Staff attorneys for the NRC have argued favorably for the Oconee-to-McGuire shipments, but admitted Wednesday that they were not ready to proceed with questions concerning possible shipments to the Catawba facility.

Staff attorney James Tourtelotte said the staff would have to come back after Friday to address the other issues because they were prepared to argue only the McGuire shipments.

But Anthony Roisman, an attorney representing an environmental group opposed to the shipments, said NRC attorneys may be wrong in assuming that the hearings will last beyond Friday.

"The board may tell the (NRC attorneys) Friday afternoon, 'This is it. You gambled and lost,'" Roisman said.

Mixed Reaction To Prime Time Sunday

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "If I don't make it in this structure," Tom Snyder recently said of "Prime Time," his news magazine venture. "I will go away."
From the Nielsen ratings company comes news that may be received with mixed emotions — Snyder, NBC's journalist-entertainer, will stay. At least for awhile.
Snyder's NBC show (now called "Prime Time Sunday" because of copyright problems) made its debut last Sunday and drew ratings numbers stunningly superior to those of its predecessor, "Weekend."

Of 65 prime-time network shows rated by Neilsen for the week ending last Sunday, "Prime Time Sunday" finished 25th, with a 29 percent share of the audience. If that doesn't sound like unqualified success, consider the showing of "Weekend":

Of the 114 prime-time programs in the September-April season, "Weekend" finished an inglorious No. 110 with a 17 percent share of the audience. Among the shows that were rated higher were the forgettable "Apple Pie" (ABC) and "American Girls" (CBS).
"60 Minutes," the CBS news magazine that begged imitation by becoming a big revenue earner, finished eighth over the course of the season, with an average 41 percent share of the audience.

True, the debut success of "Prime Time" is subject to qualification — it was far behind "60 Minutes," which rated No. 5, and many viewers may have tuned in out of curiosity. But it was an improvement, and has the advantage of gathering steam this summer while the other networks are playing reruns.

The debut show drew heavily on style rather than substance, relying on Snyder-as-personality and studio gimmicks for its "look." Perhaps assuming that we're all fascinated by this wonderful toy, television, the "bumpers" — the few seconds leading into commercials — were all dedicated to the sight and sound of a young woman counting down the seconds to the break.

"Five, four, three, two, one..." Then, presto! We're into a commercial. Zowie, wow, ain't that magic! It's one of those self-conscious stunts you'd have thought television got out of its system two decades ago.

The first segment seemed a little like "Tomorrow Visits Prime Time," with Snyder and his guests sitting around being clamorous, as they do on Snyder's late-night "Tomorrow" show. Through live hookups, Snyder was able to give us an argument between Sir Freddie Laker, he of the DC-10 sky-trains, James Dunne, of the Airline Passengers Association, and Langhorne Bond, of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Laker disagreed with Dunne, Dunne disagreed with Laker and Bond, Bond disagreed with Dunne, and it was all very boisterous.

NEW YORK VISITORS
NEW YORK (AP) — Overseas-visitor traffic to New York City rose sharply in 1978, according to the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau.

It says more than 2 million overseas visitors came to the city in 1978 — double the number a decade earlier.

Calls For Truckers' Return

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer
As Vice President Walter Mondale asked independent truckers to "get the country moving again," striking drivers vowed to stop Alabama fuel deliveries and North Carolina's governor alerted the National Guard to protect fuel terminals from further blockades.
Truckers in Iowa and Tennessee began returning to work Wednesday as Maine drivers camped out at a National Guard Army in Augusta to await Gov. Joseph Brennan's return from a meeting in Canada.

There were renewed incidents of violence, with firebombs and sniper shootings aimed at trucks on the road.

Food stocks generally remained adequate at supermarkets in the Midwest and East, but grocers predicted higher prices and shortages within days. Some meat and poultry wholesalers in New York closed early due to reduced supplies.

Independent drivers have been on strike for three weeks in protest of high diesel fuel prices, the 55 mph speed limit and weight limits that vary from state to state.

Mondale, warning that the strike would soon disrupt the nation's economy, promised safe passage for drivers who wanted to return to work.

"The action by some truckers is putting jobs in jeopardy and threatening food shortages and the economy in general at a moment when we can least afford it," he said.

Presidential assistant Jack Watson said the federal government was working with state officials to arrange "safe corridors of movement on major arteries." However, he said, the use of federal troops would be "an absolutely last resort."

While a lack of trucks has forced some farmers to plow rotting crops back into the ground, targets in the often-violent shutdown primarily have been fuel terminals.

"Much of the truckers' peaceful leadership has been repudiated and threats of violence to life and property have increased at petroleum terminals in Greensboro and Charlotte," he said. "They are threatening the safety and welfare of the people of North Carolina, which it is my sworn duty to protect."

Bob Perry, one of seven drivers arrested earlier in the day for allegedly blocking a truck leaving the Charlotte terminal, called Hunt's action "totally irresponsible."

Asked if he thought the presence of guardsmen could lead to violence, he said, "That's what I'm afraid of. Anytime you get this large a group doing something like this to try to keep from starving, it's more or less like pouring gasoline on the fire."

The Independent Truckers Association of Alabama voted Wednesday to resume picketing at gasoline and diesel fuel terminals.

"We're intending to stop all diesel and gasoline deliveries in Alabama except for emergency use," said ITAA President David Hammonds. Word of the pledge touched off panic gasoline buying in Huntsville, where lines had dwindled since the weekend.

In other developments Wednesday:

—Many moving and storage firms have told customers to expect major delays for long hauls because of the shortage of trucks and fuel, spokesmen reported. Others are storing goods in warehouses and refusing to take new orders until mid-July.

—Shots were fired at a convoy of cattle trucks moving through Missouri, killing one cow. The incident boosted to 32 the number of such shootings reported there since the strike began.

—Shipments picked up at Getty Oil Co.'s refinery in Delaware City, Del., as truckers withdrew picket lines. Meanwhile, two trucks were fired on in Delaware and three parked trucks were hit by gunfire in neighboring Maryland.

—Two trucks in Gary, Ind., were firebombed, and the driver of a truck carrying beer on Staten Island in New York escaped harm when a firebomb was hurled into his cab from a passing van. —Texas Gov. Bill Clements said he was outraged at reports of sniping on truckers and promised to call out the National Guard if necessary to protect drivers.

—U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said his department would supply information on the location and designation of farm goods to state highway officials. The information will be broadcast over citizens' band radios to truckers still trying to operate.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Usually there is no precaution you can take to avoid the extreme perils created by the shoals of distribution. But on those occasions when you fail to avoid misfortune by the exercise of due care, complaints of hard luck will fall upon deaf ears.

North had a difficult bid to make after West overcalled two spades. One solution was to simply bid three no trump in the hope that partner held a spade stopper. Fortunately, North realized that this might not be the case, so he used the Stayman Convention by cue-bidding the enemy's suit to check on a 4-4 heart fit. When South bravely complied on his jack high, an accurate auction came to an end.

West led the king of spades, and in response to East's beginning of an echo, continued with the queen and ace. It was obvious to everyone that East was out of spades, so declarer ruffed high—even if trumps were

4-1, he would still be safe. If a defender showed out on the second round of trumps, declarer would simply abandon trumps and run winners until a defender ruffed, and he would then make the rest of the tricks.

But the best-laid plans can go awry. West failed to follow to the first trump lead, and East now had two sure trump tricks, which resulted in a one-trick set.

While the 5-0 trump break was an usual occurrence, there was a rubber waiting to be chalked up and it was not the time to get careless. Declarer should have ruffed the third spade with dummy's low trump. Now when East overruffs, declarer can draw the rest of the trumps and claim his contract. If East refuses to over-ruff, declarer can, once the trump break is established, simply draw four rounds of trumps and cash minor-suit winners from his hand until East decides to ruff, which will be the third, and last, trick for the defense.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. SAVE ENERGY BY DEGREES.

If you're using an air conditioner to cool your home, keep your thermostat set at 78 degrees or higher. You'll help save energy. Another big way to help this summer is to put Hot Watch 95 into action. How? On weekdays when it goes over 95 degrees, be careful not to overcool your home. Make sure the inside temperature is no more than 15 degrees cooler than the outside temperature. This way, you can help keep down the huge demand for electricity on hot summer weekdays. That will reduce the need to plan as many new power plants — which, in turn, will help keep your future electric costs under control. Which is the whole idea behind Hot Watch 95.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-28

WSLQJULL WNAU QSJUA WNSA WNA

Yesterday's Cryptquip — ALL POISONOUS PESTICIDES DEMAND OUR METICULOUS CARE.

Today's Cryptquip clue: Q equals T
The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although there will be some delays in working out the specifics of an important plan, you are able to arrive at some new agreements with backers in order to make a satisfactory plan for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Pay attention to the small details of projects whether at home or in business. Take care of a long-time health problem. Be careful in driving.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your appearance and improve it by proper treatment, better style. Accept a social invitation so long as it won't be too expensive.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Once your business affairs are handled, set a course at home that will last for a long time. Make needed improvements and add charm, color.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Analyze accurately conditions around you and improve them, stick to facts and figures for best results. Keep promises you have made and gain the goodwill of those concerned.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to get down to practical affairs now so that you have more security in the future. Cut down on expenses and build a reserve quickly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve health and be more dynamic. If you go out socially, steer clear of one who is depressing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle small tasks that have accumulated early and you have time for more important things later on. You may not agree with advice an expert gives you, but follow it and get good results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure your personal aims are right or you could get into trouble. Stay within your budget where recreation is concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get at those civic duties awaiting your attention efficiently. Be sure to pay bills and keep your credit good. Avoid a gossip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new project may take more time than you now think to get it working properly. Avoid a new new contact who could prove to be boring, waste your time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle responsibilities conscientiously and get good results. Try to please a loved one by some thoughtful act. Be happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take time to please associates even though it means disrupting own duties and gain goodwill. Plan time for necessary civic duty. Relax and restore energies.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to whittle impossible projects to a fine, particular and practical level and make them work like a charm. Do not be too forceful otherwise your child may develop a martyr complex.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
