95¢ Tax Rate Retained

Pitt Budget Is Approved

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners, at an 8:30 a.m. session today, gave final approval to a $23.4 million budget for the coming fiscal year and held the line on a tax rate increase by setting the same 95 cents per $100 valuation rate in effect this year.

Following the adoption of the budget, County Manager Reginald Gray said, "this budget is tight, I tell you...tight."
The various departments and agencies funded by the county had requested funds totalling some $25.46 million, which would have required a tax rate of $1.264 to fund.

Following a review of the various requests, Gray recommended expenditures totalling $23.07 million and a tax rate of $1.032 originally.
At the time he presented his recommendations to the board, in early June, Gray said, "in preparing the recommended budget for your consideration...I have done so very conservatively, and I consider it a basic necessity budget. What I have recommended," he continued, "will please no one, and is a budget with absolutely no frills."
Gray also described the proposed list of expenditures for the coming year, "a budget that is not in keeping with what has been our goal and ambition for the citizens of the county in the past." But he explained, "our revenue for fiscal year 1978-1979 has not exceeded what was anticipated as it has in the past," and said assessed valuation of property in the county — the tax base from which budgets are financed — was projected to increase only six per cent.

Commissioners came close to approving the budget Monday. Through budget cuts, unexpected increases in revenue, a slight increase in valuation over what had been expected, and the correction of an error in projections, the board then was considering a 97 cents tax rate.
However, commissioners postponed final action until this morning, instructing Gray to review the budget again in an effort to trim one or two cents from the proposed 97 cent rate.

This morning, Gray told the board that, by increasing the drawdown of ABC Board funds from $350,000 to $385,000, increasing projected revenues slightly in several areas, cutting $20,000 from a proposed $75,000 expenditure for equipment for a cafeteria in the new county office building, and cutting several other proposed budgets slightly, the 95 cents tax rate could be maintained.
Approving Gray's suggestions, the board then adopted the budget.
As approved, the budget represents relatively little change from the present level of spending...and no new programs.

The largest change is reflected in the area of salaries for county employees. Commissioners included in the budget a seven percent pay hike for all workers.
The seven percent cost-of-living pay increase is also one of the two major changes made by commissioners in Gray's original recommendations for the coming year.
Gray had suggested a five percent increase in pay for county workers. However, he told commissioners the salary recommendations were based on what he had expected the General Assembly to do for State employees.
"As you are aware," he told the board later, "the Legislature has done more for State employees, and I would like to see the board do the same for county employees."
The second major change in Gray's recommendations was in the area of appropriations for school capital outlay.
Initially the county manager had recommended only $102,000 in capital outlay funds for the county administrative unit and $45,978 for the Greenville city unit, hoping that a $9 million bond issue for school renovation and construction — which was ultimately rejected by voters on June 8 — would be approved.

Test Results Are Improved

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Results of the state's achievement testing program show that North Carolina school children are doing better in math and reading than they did last year.
Results of tests given 470,000 first, second, third, sixth and ninth graders in March and April showed improvement in all areas.
The state's 89,000 first graders, 92,000 second graders and 90,000 third graders are reading better and computing math better than their peers nationally. And 86,000 sixth graders are one month above the national average in math and two months below in reading.
In addition, the state's 96,000 ninth graders registered the least improvement, testing five months below the national average in reading and math even though their scores registered a two-month gain over last year.
Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, was pleased by the test results and said they showed progress from last year grade-by-grade and region-by-region.

"The results show a tremendous growth in our comparison with national norms," Phillips said. "We feel very good about what is obviously happening. The programs we've been working with, kindergarten, primary reading, smaller classes — all of the things that have been a part of the last 10 years — are beginning to bear some fruit."
The test results, however, still showed a wide gap between the achievement of white and black students even though Phillips claimed there had been considerable progress in narrowing the gap.
For example, black third graders were six months behind their white peers last year and seven months behind this year. Black sixth graders were one year and eight months behind last year and the gap remained the same this year. And black ninth graders were two years and seven months behind last year compared with two years and five months this year.

Fuel Trucks Rolling; Guard May Head Home

By The Associated Press
Fuel-carrying tankers rolled past striking independent truck drivers and armed National Guardsmen at oil depots near Charlotte and Greensboro today as state officials weighed a decision on when to send guardsmen home.
Twenty-five of the more than 400 guardsmen at each site were sent home Thursday evening, and officials said a decision was expected later today, perhaps by midday, on withdrawing the remaining troops.
A total of 921 guardsmen were called out Wednesday night by Gov. Jim Hunt to ensure safe delivery of gasoline and diesel fuels from the large petroleum terminals where striking drivers set up picket lines.
Linda Irwin, spokeswoman for the state Crime Control and Public Safety Department, said tanker trucks were hauling fuel uninterrupted at the terminals today.
"Everything is moving very smoothly," she said. "We're in a constant state of re-evaluation."
Ms. Irwin said department secretary Herbert Hyde and guard Gen. W.E. Ingram would make a recommendation to Hunt today on whether to keep the guardsmen on duty.
The guardsmen vastly outnumbered strikers at both terminals, and some of the young guardsmen complained about being called out.

"You want to know what I think of us being here," said one enlisted guardsman, who asked not to be identified. "I think it's ridiculous. Absolutely ridiculous."
Striking independent truckers have been picketing at the terminals all week. Some drivers halted fuel deliveries out of either fear or intimidation. Fuel at the Greensboro terminal was slowed to a trickle early in the week but resumed near-normal service Wednesday.
A court order was served early Thursday afternoon on pickets who had centered their efforts at a combined entrance to Gulf and Union Oil Co. depots at the sprawling Colonial Pipeline terminal on U.S. 421 near Greensboro which supplies most of the fuel needs of the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem area.
The order signed by Superior Court Judge Robert W. Collier barred the truckers "from obstructing or interfering with entrance onto the premises" of Gulf and Union Oil. By late afternoon, pickets had withdrawn from the Gulf-Union entrance, but remained at gates to 12 other oil company terminals.
A Hunt administration spokesman said the 50 guardsmen were withdrawn because fuel shipments flowed smoothly from both the Greensboro and Charlotte terminals Thursday.

Hunt held a press conference Thursday to explain why he called out the National Guard a short time after he had conferred with the strikers at Greensboro.
Hunt also said he was rejecting a suggestion by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green that he call a special session of the Legislature to enact a tax incentive to encourage truckers to resume normal hauling of vegetables now being harvested in eastern North Carolina.
Hunt told reporters that a more militant group of truckers took command from those whose intent it was to keep the strike peaceful. He said the Highway Patrol had received "very reliable information" that picketing would be stepped up, and violence begun.
"That new leadership made the new plan to bring in more people and really shut things down," Hunt said. "If we had not acted, in my opinion, we would have had a very ugly situation there today."
Many of the guardsmen had been on active duty before Gov. Hunt's callout, and some said they were sympathetic with the truckers' cause.
"I don't know if I could shoot at a trucker or not," said one guardsman from Rocky Mount who asked not to be identified, and who himself is a truck driver.
"It's a good thing this thing (a rifle) isn't loaded."
Guardsmen were armed with 45-caliber pistols and M-16 rifles tipped with bayonets.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now look for Skylab on Friday the 13th.
That's the latest in a daily change of expert predictions about when the 77.5 ton spacecraft is expected to make its fiery plunge to earth.
Skylab, says the North American Defense Command, will fall between July 10 and July 18 and there is a 50 percent chance the date will be the 13th.
On Thursday, the dying space laboratory was in a near circular orbit, 147 miles by 159 miles.
The distance is decreasing by 1.1 miles a day and the final plunge will begin when Skylab hits the thickening atmosphere, 65 miles above earth.

Carter Begins Korean Visit

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Carter arrived in South Korea this evening to spend the night with U.S. troops 10 miles from the demilitarized zone.
The president left Tokyo today at the end of an economic summit of the seven major industrial democracies.
After landing in Seoul, Carter was to head by helicopter to Camp Casey, where American GIs block one route that North Korean troops would presumably take in any invasion of the South.
An elaborate welcome prepared by the Korean government awaited the president, including flag-decorated streets and a four-story poster of Carter and South Korean President Park Chung-hee.
A ticker tape parade was planned for Saturday and officials said they expected tens of thousands of citizens to turn out.
Though most South Koreans seemed pleased with prospect of the visit, anti-government dissident groups have issued statements saying it should have been canceled to protest the government's suppression of human rights.
Two issues promise to dominate Carter's visit to Korea: his now-frozen pullout of U.S. troops and the Korean government's suppression of political opposition.

The Carter administration pledged initially to pull out America's 31,000 troops from South Korea, but has halted the withdrawal because U.S. intelligence estimates showed that North Korea had more military strength than previously supposed.
Administration officials, who asked not to be identified, said Carter would discuss security matters with President Park but that the American president was not expected to make any announcement about future troop withdrawals during his visit.
However, South Korean officials said they were confident that Carter will tell Park privately that he has decided to cancel the scheduled troop withdrawals.
The officials also said Carter would stress to Park the administration's commitment to human rights, but would try not to interfere in the internal politics of Park's authoritarian regime.
Carter had hoped to dramatize his human rights position by meeting with some political opponents of Park. As one administration official put it several days ago, Carter "will have an opportunity to meet with a cross section of South Korea political life and...this will give him an opportunity to

GASOLINE ADVISORY

I understand there's a national hotline for advisories on the availability of gasoline in specific cities and stretches of interstate. What is it? L. W.

Daryl Daughtry, sales director for the Holiday Inn motel here, said he believes the new Holiday Inn Inc.-run National Travelers Gasoline Advisory is the only gasoline availability analysis covering the entire United States.

He said the program is being run through the "Holidex" computer-controlled network which links the local Holiday Inn with the more than 17,000 computer terminals in other Holiday Inn hotels and sales offices throughout the world. Each inn is to report daily on gas availability at service stations within a five-mile radius, providing such information as whether gas is available on weekdays, after 6 p. m. and on weekends, and whether quantities are limited. He said weekly NTGA reports on interstate and city fuel availability are being distributed weekly to state travel offices and the media.

The toll-free number to call to obtain this information is 1-800-238-8000.

$20 Million Suit Filed By Prof.

A lawsuit has been filed on behalf of a Greenville man seeking some $20 million in actual and punitive damages from several asbestos-related companies, alleging that the plaintiff contacted a serious illness as a result of negligence on the part of the firms.
A nine-page complaint filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in New Bern listed the plaintiff as Dr. Harvey J. Hewett Jr., a 39-year-old business professor at ECU.
The suit, which listed ten companies as defendants, alleges that Hewett developed an illness diagnosed as mesothelioma while he was serving in the Navy as an officer in charge of refitting submarines.
According to the complaint, signed by Greenville attorney Tom Taft and a representative of a South Carolina law firm, Ronald Motley, the plaintiff worked with and was exposed to asbestos and asbestos-related materials manufactured and marketed by the defendant companies.

The complaint alleges that the companies failed to advise the plaintiff of the damaging characteristics of asbestos materials and that they failed to advise Hewett as to potential hazards and what protective measures should be taken.
Hewett alleges in the complaint that his ability to earn an income has been impaired by his illness. The lawsuit charges that the illness was a direct result of negligence on the part of the companies named.
The complaint listed a Naval service period of from 1963 to 1965 for Hewett.
Taft could not be reached this morning for comment on the lawsuit.

END OF A DREAM? — The government said it is cutting its ties with Soul City, putting an end to civil rights activist Floyd McKissick's dream of a "new town" in rural North Carolina. Despite Signs Of The Future, Soul City Loses Federal Help

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
SOUL CITY, N.C. (AP) —

The signs of a bright new future are all over Soul City. There is the sign marking the expansion of the housing development, and the sign showing where the townhouses are to be built. There is the sign marking the site of the half-constructed firehouse. There are even street signs for streets that aren't there yet.

But the future is destined never to arrive at Soul City. Floyd McKissick's dream of a new community ended Thursday when the federal government announced that it is pulling out of the city in Warren County.

Officials from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development said only 124 people live in 33 houses in Soul City, where McKissick planned to build a city of 50,000. HUD estimated its loss in seven years at about $28 million, plus $65,000 for a consultant's study saying Soul City would never be "economically viable."

The government will pay off $10 million worth of guaranteed bonds and seek to negotiate the takeover of the land owned by the Soul City Co. with McKissick, according to Bill Wise, HUD's assistant secretary for urban affairs. It then plans to sell the land for an estimated $800,000.

If a settlement can't be negotiated, the government will foreclose, Wise said. Officials said those living in Soul City will be free to remain.

Lewis Myers, vice president for marketing for Soul City, said three HUD representatives arrived at Soul City Thursday morning to deliver the official news that HUD was cutting its ties to the community.

"We have nothing to say because we don't know what to say," Myers said. "We don't know what it means."

Business went on pretty much as usual Thursday at Soul City. Construction continued at the firehouse, and visitors continued to arrive at the information center to see the exhibits and the film depicting Soul City as a model combination of urban advantages in a rural setting.

Children and adults, many from the surrounding area, splashed in the pool at the Magnolia-Ernest Recreation Complex, named after McKissick's parents.

But pool manager Kathy Wright threw back her head and groaned when told of HUD's decision to pull out. Miss Wright, who moved to Soul City from Battle Creek, Mich. a month ago, is living in a rented trailer near the recreation complex.

She said she plans to stay in North Carolina. "I really love it here," she said. "This is the only public pool in a 50-mile area. People from three counties and from Virginia come to use it. Orphanages come on some days and the Boy Scouts come. I have designated times when each one can come."

"It's like the city out here in the country," Miss Wright said. "People here are very friendly."

Miss Wright, like others at Soul City, wondered what would become of the pool.

Gary Williams and Larry Peace of Henderson, who were leaving the pool Thursday evening, asked how much longer it would be there. Peace said this was the first time he had come to the pool, but Williams said he used it regularly.

They wondered anxiously whether the foreclosure or sale of the land would mean the end of a pool for them in the summer.

Voyette Perkins-Hunter, one of Soul City's homeowners, said she planned to stay in the area regardless of what happened to the community.

"I'm very happy here and I'm going to support Soul City and its projects no matter what happens," she said.

"I never had the chance to own property and a home and Soul City has given me that opportunity," said Mrs. Perkins-Hunter, who moved to Soul City from California five years ago.

She said she and her son "have lived all over the world and we're comfortable here." Her son, she said, "goes to the pool every day. They have programs all the time for the children at the center, there are picnic areas and the school bus comes practically to the door."

McKissick said last month that Soul City faltered because of a lack of support from North Carolina's congressional delegation. He was particularly critical of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., and Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C.

Wise told reporters, "The lesson is it is very tough to develop a new community from scratch and particularly in a rural, isolated area."

William White, a HUD official, said he did not know if McKissick would go to court to fight the decision.

Summit Leads To OK Of Oil Import Quotas

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — President

Carter, claiming the economic summit "equaled our highest expectations," announced today the seven participants agreed to set specific individual oil import quotas through 1985.

Speaking to reporters, Carter said the United States would freeze its imports at the current level of 8.5 million barrels a day.

The U.S. president said individual quotas for European nations would be fixed at the next meeting of the European Economic Community in Dublin next fall.

Carter prepared to fly to South Korea for a state visit shortly after the summit concluded.

He said Japan and Canada have agreed to limit their oil imports but did not disclose the figures involved.

Later, joining the other summit participants at a joint news conference, Carter said "we deplore the decision" of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise prices by a further 21.5 percent.

Carter said OPEC's action Thursday raising the average price to $20.90 a barrel would "lead to worldwide inflation, less growth, more unemployment and endanger the stability of the economic system of the world."

At his earlier meeting with reporters, the president said the summit's most difficult problem was persuading some of the European nations to opt for individual national import ceilings for 1979 and 1980 and through 1985.

Just a half hour before the two-day summit ended, Carter said, one unidentified participant proposed to amend the communiqué to adopt a collective quota for Western Europe rather than individual, country-by-country ceilings.

"I think the results of the economic summit were superb," Carter declared. "They equaled our highest expectations."

Earlier, Carter had decried the "extraordinary increases" imposed by OPEC and had predicted the summit leaders would "act aggressively" to restrain petroleum imports.

The objective was to reduce oil imports by 2 million barrels a day, the estimated gap between supply and demand.

Talking to reporters as the last day of the summit began, Carter cited a 60 percent increase in oil prices since December and declared, "There is no one on earth who will fail to suffer from these extraordinary increases."

Farmers Vow Slow Down

FAISON, N.C. (AP) — Angered by a drop in prices caused by the truckers' strike, Sampson County farmers have vowed they will get higher prices for their produce or slow down operations of the Faison produce market.

More than 100 farmers attended a rally at a tobacco warehouse in Clinton Thursday night and voted to stage the protest this afternoon unless there was a rise in prices.

Sampson County is one of the top cucumber-producing areas in the nation, and thousands of tons of cucumbers have been dumped because farmers and brokers were unable to ship them.

Dozens of farmers shouted "feed it to the hogs" during the Thursday night meeting and said they would be on hand at the market today to alert other growers about the protest.

"If you'll settle down and pull together, you can get the price you want," said Ben Robinson of Rocky Mount. "Decide what you want for a grade and take it through the sale. If you don't get what you want, get back in line and take it through again."

Farmers sell produce by the truckload, driving their trucks through a line for auctioning to brokers. Robinson said farmers could clog the market by refusing to sell at unsatisfactory prices and repeatedly going through the line.

The farmers voted to slow afternoon auction sales by driving through the auction lines with only one crate of produce on each truck.

In Raleigh, state agriculture officials said the 21-day strike by independent truckers has brought lower prices and crop surpluses, despite indications the strike was winding down.

When the strike began, said market officials, North Carolina farmers had unusually large stocks of cucumbers, Irish potatoes and bell peppers so that prices probably would have dropped anyway.

However, since 3rd gra-

Ambassador To Leave Sunday

Greenville's Community Ambassador, Patricia Bath, will be leaving Sunday for Salavaux, Switzerland to represent Greenville in a "homestay" with a Swiss family.

Patricia has received the key to the city of Greenville prior to her departure which she will present to a town official of Salavaux.

The family Patricia will be staying with consists of a father, who is the Peugeot dealer in the area, a mother, two daughters, one 15 years old and the other aged 20. The older daughter is currently attending Princeton University in the U.S.

Swiss family from local merchants.

Burroughs Wellcome and Proctor & Gamble are sending items from their companies. Carolina Leaf Tobacco is sending tobacco grown in North Carolina.

Patricia, an accomplished violinist, will also be sharing a gift of music with the Swiss family. She plans to provide classical music as well as traditional country fiddling for the host family.

Persons wishing to contact Patricia for speaking engagements following her trip may do so by calling 756-0379.

The village of Salavaux is located near Berne, on a lake in the French speaking part of Switzerland. While living with the family, Patricia is expected to become a "member of the family" by helping with chores and participating in the normal daily activities of a Swiss family.

She is especially looking forward to the three-day hiking trip the family has planned. Patricia will be carrying gifts to the

Bloodmobile Makes Visit

Blood Chairman Ott Alford urges area citizens to participate in the Monday, July 2 bloodmobile visit to East Carolina University. The Pitt County chapter of the American National Red Cross hopes to meet its quota of 200 pints from the Tuesday ECU visit.

The visit will be open to ECU students and staff, as well as the general public.

"The first week in July, and in fact, all of July, is a slow period with collection and yet a very demanding period with regard to need," said Alford.

Oil Spill Is Clearing Up

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — Slimy globs of oil that were threatening the summer vacation season on North Carolina's Outer Banks began to disperse Thursday, thanks to strong winds and sunny skies.

A Coast Guard spokesman in Norfolk said most of the oil should be cleaned up by Friday or early Saturday.

The latest oil spill to strike the area washed ashore early Wednesday, covering about 30 miles of beach from Coquina Beach near Oregon Inlet to Duck. Coast Guard officials said oil from the size of raisins to half-dollars covered a 50-foot-wide strip of the beach.

By Wednesday night, strong sea winds evaporated much of the oil, leaving small globs on the shore.

"We really don't know where the oil is coming from," Chief Petty Officer C.E. Kern, a Coast Guard public affairs officer, said.

"It's possible some ship at sea cleaned its bilges, but we don't know for sure. Oil can travel a very long way on the ocean."

Officials have speculated that the latest spill may be part of an oil spill which struck the Outer Banks earlier in the month.

The Coast Guard's oceanographic office estimated that the oil spill drifted in from the northeast. The office said such a slick could move as much as 20 miles a day, and might have come from international waters off the Delaware coast.

Cleanup operations have cost $130,000 so far, according to a Coast Guard spokesman, and may reach $250,000 by the time all the oil is removed.

The cleanup is being worked by two private firms out of Norfolk, as well as the Coast Guard. The crews were manned mostly by teenagers.

Resort operators were cautious Wednesday about estimates for an expected flood of tourists. Many vacationers left the area because of the spill, and other potential tourists cancelled reservations.

McKissick Hasn't Given Up Dream

SOUL CITY, N.C. (AP) — Floyd McKissick, the former civil-rights leader and developer of the Soul City, said today he has not given up on the "new city" project.

McKissick said he was caught by surprise Thursday when the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development announced it was withdrawing support for the project and would pay off $10 million worth of guaranteed bonds and seek to negotiate a takeover of land.

"I want to emphasize that the Soul City project is not in default," McKissick said in a prepared statement. "It has not been foreclosed and we do not anticipate a foreclosure in the foreseeable future."

He said he had not had an opportunity to discuss HUD's decision either with HUD officials or partners in the Soul City project.

"We will be studying with our attorneys the documents left with us by HUD," he said. "We will be organizing our support for the next round as we continue to hold high the hopes and aspirations of black people in this country."

McKissick, who was head of the Congress of Racial Equality during the days of the civil-rights movement, lives at Soul City and heads the Soul City Co.

He had said it was his dream to develop a model biracial city of 50,000 in Warren County.

McKissick said representatives of a California consulting firm visited Soul City for two days before recommending that HUD abandon it.

"Our company has a contract with the United States government which we have honored through very difficult times," he said. "It is unfortunate that the government seeks to renege on its contractual commitments because political sentiments have changed since the law was originally passed in the '60s."

Couple Marries On Saturday

MRS. WESLEY RUFUS BANKS

Nancy Jewel Ensor and Wesley Rufus Banks were united in marriage at 11 a.m. Saturday at the home of the bride's parents in Greenville. The double ring ceremony, held outside, was officiated by the Rev. Irby Jackson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Ensor, and the bridegroom is the son of Reuben W. Banks of Arapahoe.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown, fashioned by her mother, of white peau de soie overlaid with white alencon lace. The modified princess style featured long tapered sleeves with double rows of scalloped lace at the wrists and a full length chapel train of matching alencon lace attached to the back with a bow of peau de soie. She wore her grandmother's sapphire pendant and carried her mother's prayer book featuring a lavender orchid with white miniature carnations, daisies and satin streamers.

The bride's mother wore a street length dress of beige and floral printed batiste with a matching linen jacket. She wore a pink carnation corsage. The bride's grandmother was also remembered with a white corsage.

The matron of honor was Linda Wilkerson, sister of bride. She wore a formal length gown of maize silesta designed with an open V-neckline, deep Bertha collar, split from the elbow to the gathered shoulders which were topped by miniature tie bows. The wrap styled gown was enhanced by a spiral effect of tiers in the skirt that featured a tie sash at the side accented by a silk maize rose. She wore an imported maize braid garden hat encircled with maize illusion with long streamers and centered in back by a double florette of illusion. She carried a colonial bouquet of mixed white and yellow daisies accented with purple statice, gypsophylla, garden greenery tied with satin streamers.

Flower girl was Susan Wallace. She wore a formal length gown of maize organza over maize taffeta designed with a portrait neckline edged in ruffled organza with a gathered Bertha collar edged in miniature chantilly lace. The waistline of the empire bodice was encircled with white satin ribbon with a bow and streamers at center back. The sleeveless ruffled flounce at the hemline, with an overskirt edged in the miniature chantilly lace was tied at the front sides with miniature white satin bows. She carried a wicker basket of petals tied with yellow and white satin ribbons.

Best man was Steven Banks, son of bridegroom. Jim Ensor, brother of bride, was usher. Sam Wilkerson, nephew of bride, was ring bearer.

Credit Counselor Is Speaker

Greenville Credit Women-International met at First Federal Tuesday for a meeting and covered-dish dinner. Pearl Hartsell was hostess.

Mrs. Doris Hendrick, credit counselor of Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Wake County, Raleigh, presented the program entitled "Consumer Credit Counseling Services."

She stated, "As credit grantors, you have been demonstrating part of your social responsibility through support and cooperation in the development of a network of non-profit community based agencies: Consumer Credit Counseling Services. Through your foresight, as well as that of business and social service leaders, many persons are better equipped to handle their personal finances in a realistic manner."

President Martha Mills announced the annual picnic will be July 24 at the First Free Will Baptist Church with Doris Price and Carol Hardee as hostesses. She appointed Inda Wingate, Audrey Norris, Louise Stox and Lillie Darden to serve on the committee for the annual Bosses' Night Oct. 16.

Ms. Hardee, Ms. Wingate and Clara Seago were named to the nominating committee. The annual fall board will be held at the Ramada Inn Nov. 10-11. Ms. Hardee will be chairman of planning. Barbara Manning will be chairman of the Dixie Council President's Project "Roads to Success" and Ms. Wingate will serve as chairman of the State President's Project "As a Supervisor, Are You Considered an Angel or a Devil?" Ms. Darden was appointed to serve as treasurer for the remainder of the year and Mildred Porter will serve on the board of directors.

A report on the state conference was given by Ms. Hartsell. Guests for the evening were Lucille Sublett of Raleigh and Joyce Eastwood of Latares Jewelers. Virginia McKoy will be attendance chairman for July.

TITLED AMERICANS
NEW YORK (AP) — Titles are more important than money to many young women seeking employment in offices, according to the head of a secretarial agency here.

Few of his applicants wish to be secretaries, says Arnold Castor, president of Hamilton Systems Inc. He has found that although his business advertises only "secretarial" positions, a surprising number of applicants are prepared to reject $15,000 secretarial jobs for those as "administrative assistants" paying $2,000 less.

Other preferred titles are "executive secretary" or "account coordinator," says Castor, who adds that "males are satisfied to be called secretaries these days and they often have excellent skills."

Home Losing Ground As Place For Having Meals

CHICAGO (AP) — There may be no place like home, but fewer people each year are eating their holiday and anniversary meals there.

Recent surveys indicate nearly half of all American family meals are consumed outside the home, according to some restaurant-industry observers.

"Restaurants have taken over an important social role in the United States," says Manfred Steinfeld, chairman of Shelby Williams Industries, which makes chairs for restaurants and other public places.

The major factor in the shift is "the cost-of-living squeeze, which has reduced the size of today's houses and apartments, virtually eliminating space for entertaining and sending almost half the nation's wives and mothers off to work," Steinfeld explained.

In his view, the days when grandma had everyone over for Thanksgiving, Christmas and birthday or anniversary dinners are virtually over.

Steinfeld sees them as part of vanishing Americana along with the big parlors and dining

Join Them For A Happy Vacation

DEAR ABBY: My daughter (an only child) and I have a beautiful relationship even though she is 37 and I am 67. She is happily married. She and her husband invite me to be with them very often and we always have a wonderful time. I lost my husband six months ago, Abby, but when he was alive we saw a lot of "the kids."

Well, the kids are planning a vacation and want me to go with them. We enjoy the same things and always have a great time together. Some of my friends have told me it is not "healthy" to be with my kids so much. They say I shouldn't go on a vacation with them, that they asked me just to be nice. My kids say if I don't go with them they won't have as much fun.

I have other interests and friends, and do not feel as though I am clinging to my children. Perhaps I need another point of view.

MRS. R.

DEAR MRS. R.: If you feel that their invitations are sincere, and their enjoyment of your company is real, pay no attention to the suggestions from friends. Join the kids and have a good time!

DEAR ABBY: If people are "entitled" to clean air, devoid of cigarette smoke, why aren't they entitled to clean air, free from the scents of perfumes, colognes, after-shaves, etc., which also can make people sick?

I am allergic to scents. They give me a migraine headache. My nasal passages become irritated and swollen, and I have difficulty breathing.

It is torture for me to be helped by a heavily perfumed salesperson. Or to stand in line with perfumed people, get trapped in an elevator with them, sit next to them in a waiting room or theater or wherever people gather. Room sprays of all kinds are a disaster to me!

In writing this I hope scent-users will become aware of how offensive they are and will be satisfied with a daily bath and an unscented deodorant.

ALLERGIC

DEAR ALLERGIC: Thanks for a letter about scents that makes sense.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound silly, but it is a big problem with me.

My boyfriend, 25, started to shave the hair off his chest about a year ago, then he began shaving his arms. I asked him why he did this and he said he didn't like the looks of all that hair. (I never thought he was particularly hairy.)

Now he turns up with all the hair shaved off his lower extremities! This really bothers me, Abby. Nobody sees his legs so why does he need to shave them?

Now he claims that body hair is "unclean."

How can I convince him that body hair isn't dirty, and that he should stop all this silly shaving?

IN LOVE WITH A HAIRLESS GUY

DEAR IN LOVE: Your boyfriend's problems could be more than skin deep. But as long as he doesn't consider his obsession with body hair a problem, it's no problem. If you do, I'm afraid that's your problem.

DEAR ABBY: I'm expecting my first child in four months. All the beauty of pregnancy and motherhood are slowly being destroyed by the horror stories of other women.

Ladies I hardly know have told me how the doctor had to break the baby's arm for delivery, cords choking babies during delivery, etc. And as though that weren't enough, I've been hearing how "dangerous" hospitals are. (Unclean, mistakes made in the lab and pharmacy.) It's all so frightening.

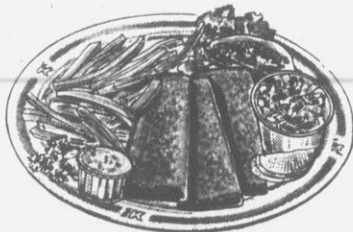

These stories are entirely unsolicited and very unnerving. Abby, how can I stop these horror stories.

FIRST TIMER

DEAR FIRST: You can't stop them from being started, but you can stop them from being finished by saying "Thanks, but I'd rather not hear it."

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Green Has A Terrible Idea

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has called for a special session of the State Legislature to provide for a rebate of the 9.25 cents per gallon diesel fuel tax to truckers.

The lieutenant governor thinks this will get the trucks moving again and save North Carolina produce farmers from seeing their crops rot in the fields.

Green's concern for the farmer is well placed but his approach to the problem is far less than well-thought-out.

Just about everything is wrong with the tax rebate plan, including the strong possibility that it wouldn't accomplish its purpose.

Some knowledgeable people say it could affect the state's ability to issue bonds for road construction. It clearly violates the principal that trucks should pay a proportionate cost of highway construction and maintenance.

If such a tax rebate were to be approved, it would set a terrible precedent for future and presently unknown situations.

The special session and tax rebate drew wide opposition from state officials, including State Treasurer Harlan Boyles and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham, as well as Pitt County's House Majority Leader H. Horton Rountree.

Gov. Hunt turned down the suggestion Thursday. And well should he. There are a number of ways to meet trucker's complaints about their price squeeze, but rebating the fuel tax is the worst approach we can envision. We hope this idea quickly goes away.

Hunt Shows He Means Business

Calling out the National Guard in times of strife is a serious step, since it indicates that civilian authorities are no longer able to handle the situation.

Nevertheless it is better to call on the Guard too quickly, than to wait until the situation has deteriorated.

Gov. Hunt moved rapidly to call up military police units to move gasoline in the Piedmont and West.

Some may argue that is too much force. To us, however, it is a signal that the governor means business in protecting the movement of goods.

"Hey! You turkeys down there in Tokyo! From our summit to your summit!"

THIS AFTERNOON

Scores Down, Costs Up

RALEIGH — With only a rare exception, entering freshmen at North Carolina's public universities continue to show a decline in scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

And for the first time, the average score among freshmen entering North Carolina State University at Raleigh fell below the 1,000 mark, leaving Chapel Hill alone among the 16 campuses where scores are above 1,000.

At one time, Chapel Hill, State, and the University of North Carolina at Greensboro all registered above 1,000. The Greensboro school fell below in 1972.

Overall, scores continued to slide at 12 of the 16 schools. Slight gains were recorded at Elizabeth City State University, North Carolina A & T, North Carolina Central, School of the Arts, and the university at Charlotte.

The Scholastic Aptitude Test consists of a verbal and a math section.

Averages

Here are the averages for the campuses, ranked in descending order: Chapel Hill (1,063), N.C. State (997), UNC Greensboro (952), School of Arts (932), UNC Charlotte (927), Appalachian (887), East Carolina (872), Asheville (867), Wilmington (851), Pembroke State (813), Western Carolina (810), Central (707), A & T (690), Winston-Salem State (644), Elizabeth City (590), and Fayetteville (588).

The recently published Statistical Abstract of Higher Education in North Carolina contains additional information regarding the public and private colleges and universities in the state.

Chapel Hill, for example, makes a strong sweep of the top students from high schools as they enter college. Students ranked in the top fifth of their classes make up 86 percent of the entering freshmen. No other campus even comes close. At Greensboro, 64 percent are in the top fifth, and just under half at Charlotte and State.

The cost of a college education continued its upward climb at most campuses of the university system, and at the private colleges and universities. Cost remained steady at most community colleges.

Costs at community colleges average $136 for in-state students, and $613 for out-of-state.

Private junior colleges charge an average of $1,725, while private four-year schools average $2,311.

Duke University is highest at $3,978, followed by Davidson, Salem, Queens, and Wake Forest & all over $3,000.

Wingate, which as a junior college consistently held the line on costs and expressed pride in maintaining the lowest charges averaging $1,160, become a senior college in September, 1977. Costs have risen to $1,490 at Wingate, but it now claims title as the least expensive four-year college.

Added to the required fees and tuition would be room and board while attending college. Charges at public and private schools are similar, running roughly from $1,000 to $1,500 per school year.

The Mustard Crisis

WASHINGTON — When it comes to the gas crisis, I regretfully have to admit that the media is part of the problem. A few weeks ago, Washington newspapers headlined on Friday that gas would be in short supply over the weekend. It was picked up by the radio and TV stations. Damned if everyone didn't pour out of their houses in panic, and drive helter skelter to the nearest pump to fill up their tanks. Sure enough, the newspapers were right! There was a serious gas shortage on the weekend.

As I waited in line at my favorite station I couldn't help thinking of how people react to panic. Then I thought of my father and his friend, Nat.

Nat had a grocery store around the corner from our apartment in Forest Hills on Queens Boulevard. My father stopped in every night during the dark days of World War II.

One evening as he was buying some milk and bagels, Nat whispered to him, "Mr. Buchwald, you heard about the mustard shortage?"

"There's going to be a mustard shortage?" my father said. "How do you know?"

"We've just been notified by Gulden's that our allotment has been cut by 20 percent. I won't be able to supply you with it as I have in the past."

The fact of the matter was that no one in the family ate mustard, I didn't like it, and neither did my three sisters. My father, as far as I could remember, never touched the stuff.

But struck with fear he said to Nat, "I've been a customer of yours for a long time, Nat. How many jars can you give me?"

Nat told him, "I can let you have 12 from my present shipment, but you can't tell anyone."

My father carried the heavy package home and unloaded the mustard in the closet. He happened to mention to a neighbor on the same floor what Nat had told him, and within a week it seemed everyone in Forest Hills had heard that there would be a mustard crisis in the United States, the likes of which the country had never seen.

The food closet in the apartment was jammed, and pretty soon the mustard took over space in the dish closet, and even the broom closet.

My sisters protested that there was no way they could eat all the mustard, even if the war lasted another ten years.

But Pop told them Nat knew more than they did.

Once the mustard crisis died down, Nat tipped off my father that Washington was going to cut back Oatmeal production by 50 percent. Pop immediately bought every box of oatmeal in the store.

Another time it was tapioca, and then it was canned Argentinian corned beef. By some coincidence whatever wasn't moving in Nat's store, suddenly was going to be in short supply.

I guess Nat's greatest triumph came the day he put a sign in his window saying: "Only Two Cans of Rhubarb to a Customer." There was a run on canned rhubarb in Forest Hills that old-timers remember to this day.

In fairness to Nat, he always took care of his old customers first, and my father managed to wangle two cases of rhubarb out of him, without anybody in the ROME (AP) — They came into the courtyard like the sudden shaft of noontime sun breaking over the ancient buildings: two old men in frayed jackets bringing joy and warmth to an outdoor trattoria.

The one with the war decoration in his lapel helped his older comrade adjust the straps of a battered accordion before opening his piccolo case. For 20 minutes they played arias from Verdi and Puccini, Neapolitan love songs, "Arrivaderci Roma" and "Three Coins in the Fountain" for a pair of American lovers, moving from table to table to accept a request or a donation.

Atlanta Promise Kept

By JON BIXBY

Associated Press Writer ATLANTA (AP) — The first link of Atlanta's long-awaited rapid transit system — the first in the South — goes into service Saturday, fulfilling a promise that many felt would never be kept.

Gas-conscious commuters on the city's East Side are expected to flock to the 6.7-mile rapid rail line that for 25 cents will carry the rider from suburban Decatur and Avondale Estates to state offices and Georgia State University downtown.

The "East line," as it is known, is just part of a planned 52.9-mile system, scheduled for completion in 1989, that will link Hartsfield International Airport and other outlying areas with the downtown business district.

"It's a modest beginning but it's a start," says Alan F. Kiepper, who has piloted the project through political squalls for seven years — since long before the current gas crisis turned Americans' thinking to mass transit.

Rail commuter systems drew little interest for decades as auto travel grew, but both San Francisco and Washington have opened downtown rail lines in the past decade, and such lines are being developed in Buffalo, N.Y., Miami, and Baltimore.

In Atlanta, citizens were openly skeptical when the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority announced plans in the early '70s for a high-speed rail system deep beneath the heart of the capital city.

Construction delays and skyrocketing costs heightened that skepticism.

MARTA officials originally said the entire system could be completed by 1980 at a cost of $1.3 billion. It is now scheduled to be completed in 1989 at an estimated cost of $3.2 billion.

But the streamlined silver and black MARTA test trains zipping along at speeds up to 70 miles per hour along the graceful elevated arch of the East line have quieted many of the skeptics.

And Kiepper, MARTA's general manager, has taken steps to assure that Saturday's opening will be incident free. Scheduled for last Christmas, the opening was delayed for six months to work bugs out of the rail cars that arrived from France behind schedule.

And to steer clear of problems encountered by San Francisco's BART system, MARTA abandoned plans for a fully-automated line, choosing instead a semi-automated one, controlled in part by operators.

"Full automation depends on high technology, and if there are problems, you're really in trouble. Computers do go down," Kiepper said in a recent interview.

Otherwise, the east line represents the latest in rapid transit technology.

The air-conditioned cars, with upholstered seats and full carpeting, can be controlled by a central computer once in motion. Station platforms are scanned by remote-controlled cameras, and MARTA workers in a centralized communications center can control everything from the turnstiles to restroom doorlocks.

The smooth, 12-minute ride over the treetops of East Atlanta will be a surprise to resident Yankees accustomed to the old, spine-rattling subways of some Northern cities.

The earth-tone interior of the cars is whisper quiet as the trains streak along welded track laid across rubber-like shock absorbers.

The initial 13.7-mile phase of the MARTA rail system will be completed with the opening of the 4.7-mile "West line" in December and a stubby north-south anchor line, a portion of which burrows through the hard bedrock of Peachtree Street, will be ready in 1981.

To accommodate downtown merchants and hotel operators fearful of having the main artery peeled open, MARTA has been digging a pair of 2,700 foot tunnels (Continued on page 8)

Strength For Today

THE MASTER'S METHODS

There is very little in the teachings of Jesus which is not in the Old Testament. Of course, Jesus did introduce some new concepts and expressed the older teachings in such a way that they took on new significance. But the greatest contribution which Jesus made to humanity was the gift of himself. He was and remains greater than anything he ever said or did.

Always he reminded people of the things they already knew. The commandment to love God with all the heart, soul, strength, and mind was re-ited by every Jew every day of his mature life. To that Jesus added another commandment — to love one's neighbor. As he went about the countryside of Palestine, he was not a radiant figure telling people things they had never heard before. He was a simple, God-like man expressing familiar truths in vivid, compelling language, teaching people more about the divine will and raising their eyes to heaven that they might know whence is the source of all truth.

To the editor:

The SALT II treaty is not common sense. SALT II is not in the best interests of the United States. According to the Preamble of the Constitution, one of the six major purposes of the federal government is to "provide for the common defence." I submit that if we compromise our national defenses in the name of world peace and security, we shall have neither peace nor security.

The Declaration of Independence states that a government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed. The Kremlin governs by coercion — not consent. Russia's government is illegitimate and oppressive. When we negotiate with a government which does not rule by consent of the governed, the resulting agreement will not be worth the paper it is written on. A new treaty with the Soviet Union will only advance the self-interest of that nation.

The President clearly violated his oath of office (to uphold the Constitution) when he signed a SALT II agreement without the advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senate. To ignore Article II, Section 2, of the Constitution with such impunity is a crime worthy of impeachment.

I marvel at how willingly people can be led to commit national suicide. Are we going to "accept by faith" this flagrant disregard for the Constitution by many of our government leaders? Are we finally reduced to a nation of sheep? Is America no longer the home of the brave? Are we willing to vote for Senators and Representatives who will embark on a policy of rebuilding our nuclear and conventional forces to a position of strength and preparedness? The answers to all these questions reside with we, the people.

No Talent For Cooking Arts

By GAIL MICHAELS

I've heard it said that cooking is an art. I agree. It's an art for which I have no talent.

Frankly, I am bored by everything connected with cooking except eating. I'd rather clean a bathtub than plan a menu. I'd rather hold my nose and sweep under my bed than go to the grocery store. I'd even subject myself to two hours of "The Bad News Bears" show if I could get out of preparing a meal.

It was bad enough when my weekly menus featured the "same old things": country-style steak, baked chicken, Hardee's, pork chops, McDonald's, turkey a la Morton's, and an occasional substitution of tuna noodle surprise as an inflation fighter.

But as inflation got worse, so did the menus. After Meg was born, the menu degenerated to baked chicken, fried chicken, beans and franks, smothered chicken, tuna noodle surprise, chicken a la King, and leftovers. The only red meat we ever saw was in the hot dogs. And when I started buying the less-expensive chicken dogs, Phillip almost went home to his mother.

Pretty soon though, even chicken looked like a luxury. When Phillip started back to school, we became extremely reluctant semi-vegetarians.

If I had disliked planning menus when all I had to do was to pour soup over something and pop it in the oven, I abhor it now that I have to chop vegetables, grate cheese, soak lentils, and serve every left-over until it is eaten out of desperation.

And the only reward I ever get is a groan from Phillip and the inevitable "Yuk!" from Meg.

I find myself losing my sense of humor. It's not easy to cook just enough pepper steak for three people, especially without any steak. What is even worse is having to serve it four days in a row.

And it's even harder to make scrambled eggs look like a pork chop, to convince a 3-year-old that Superman got his strength from eating lentil soup, or to pass-off creamed tuna as seafood newburg.

Meg, of course, thinks that steak is exclusively a product of her grandmother's freezer, so she can't long for the good old days. But Phillip and I can.

Several weeks ago, Phillip poked at a clump of mashed potatoes and chopped beef and said, "Do you know what I'd really like for Father's Day? A big, thick, juicy, tender sirloin steak."

"I asked you what you wanted for Father's Day, not what you wanted if you inherited a supermarket. So quit drooling and eat your supper."

"Or how about a standing rib roast with roasted new potatoes and a good red wine?"

I pushed my plate away. "I don't appreciate this at all. Meg and I have suffered just as much as you have, if not more."

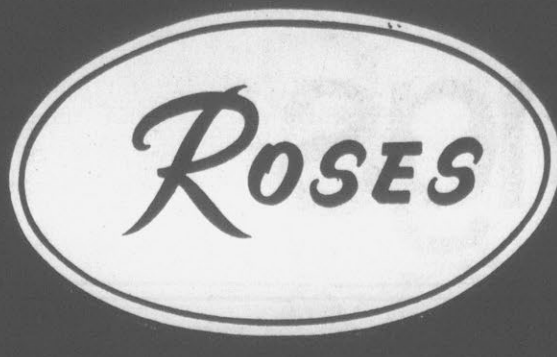

"All right. All right. Then how about a hot and juicy cheeseburger at Wendy's?"

By the time he finished his sentence, Meg and I were waiting for him in the car.

Singular Qualities For So. Baptists

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

America's largest Protestant denomination, the Southern Baptist Convention, has some singular qualities and they came into view in fascinating array at its recent meet in Houston.

The incongruities, the grandeur, the suspicions and graciousness tumbled forth in mingled profusion, with the process starting out in one direction and winding up in another.

That curious, seesaw mixture of thrust and parry, backing and hauling, is part of the unusual nature of this vast, loose-knit body of 13.2 million Christians holding them together in teeming vigor.

Although retaining the "Southern" designation, they've stretched across the land in all 50 states, with missions in 90 foreign countries, and a myriad diversity of tastes and cultural bents.

They're people of "differing viewpoints whose freedom of expressing themselves has always been a hallmark," notes the Rev. Russell H. Dilday Jr., president of Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth.

But whatever the frictions or tangles, the Baptists display a fervent faith and passion to evangelize the world for Christ. They backed that dedication with budgets, praise and "Amen's," despite the peripheral upheavals.

Ironically, on the surface, however, the convention began with rolling thunder directed at seminaries and charges of lax teaching about the Bible, but ended with a salute to them for good work.

Strangely, too, the meeting of 16,000 "messengers" started with the triumph of an extraordinary political-style campaign for the denominational presidency by a strictly conservative coalition.

SUNDAY SPEAKER

The Rev. Farney Moore, Associate Pastor of Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church, will render evening services at Bethel Chapel F. W. B. Church, Bethel, Sunday, July 1, 7 p.m. The Senior Choir and the W. B. Moore Male Chorus will render the music. The Rev. Clifton Gardner, pastor, invites the public to attend.

town finding out about it. While the rest of the family thought Pop had been taken for a ride, he refused to hear one bad thing about his grocer. Years later when we were kidding him, he said indignantly, "Don't make fun of Nat, he gave us mustard during the war."

hour, caught the spirit of enjoyment, of affection that each brought to his music, which really wasn't very good and at times was pitiful. Dignity lifted them above the ranks of street beggars.

There was even applause for a brisk tarantella, and when one table invited them to share its wine, the older man's face broke into a slow smile that rearranged the wrinkles of eight decades of sadness.

Only coins were passed, no folding lire. They could hardly have taken in $2 at that cobblestone concert, but they seemed content with their calling. When they left the sunshine passed from the square.

It was one of the sudden joys of Rome.

Rome is full of such surprises: a fountain splashing up from a stone pineapple, a shop that sells only wine and brandy made by monks in monasteries, the huge stone sandaled foot of an otherwise missing centurion, an oasis of palm trees on a red slate rooftop, an ancient clock worked by water, a jewel of a baroque church at the end of an alley redolent with the smell of rotting garbage.

Rome, the Eternal City, often the infernal city: raucous, passionate, impulsive, basic, bawdy, pious, infectious in its laughter and its tears, restless beneath its rich mantle of history — its love of life comes always a surprise.

Menace lurks here too, but it always seems far away, long ago, like moonlight on the empty court of the Coliseum.

Your guide may point out where Aldo Moro was found slain in a car near the old Jewish ghetto or where just last month a sleeping student from Somali was drenched with gasoline and set afire on the steps of a classic baroque church.

The pope at his window on Sunday prayed for that poor Somali and the murderers who would do such a thing, but the pilgrims in the square held up their rosaries to be blessed and the communist mayor complained about the traffic jams and the litter of soda cans and sandwich wrappers that follows in the wake of the new popular occupant of the Chair of Peter.

Violence and crime somehow don't seem real in the city of Caligula and Nero, the Medici and Mussolini; they are part of the historical package. The rate and the graffiti belong to another city, another civilization; not bella Roma.

beneath the city at a cost of $42.5 million.

In all, 4 1/2 miles of the system's $1.04 billion first phase will be underground, the remainder at ground level or elevated on modernistic concrete supports.

The federal government, through the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, will provide about $800 million of the first-phase cost. The remaining $243 million comes from the 1 percent MARTA sales tax levied in Atlanta and in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Douglas Campion of the mass transportation administration says the assured local funding source will be an advantage for MARTA in competing against other new subway systems for future federal funds.

He said the mass transportation administration is "terribly excited" about the Atlanta line since it is the first rapid transit system built completely under federal environmental, zoning and relocation procedures. "It's our baby," he said.

Kiepper said he is "ebullient" about the opening and believes the MARTA system will give Atlanta a "tremendous economic advantage over its competitors — Dallas, New Orleans and Birmingham — who are not doing anything creative in public transportation."

"Businesses deciding whether to expand are looking to communities with rapid transit systems," so their employees can get to work quickly and inexpensively, he said.

The MARTA system, once completed, will help relieve crowded freeways in serving a metropolitan population of 1.8 million, Kiepper said.

"Atlanta developed on the assumption there would be an unfettered use of automobiles," he said. "We know that's got to change. "Automobiles will continue to be primary mode of transportation. What we are trying to develop is an alternative so that people will not be entirely chained to their cars."

Our American heritage has its roots deep in our homes and hearts.
 To understand it we must behold the light of hope it kindles in the hearts of enslaved men.
 To honor it we must revere the institutions and beliefs upon which it is founded.
 To preserve it we must exercise faithfully its privileges and opportunities.
 To perpetuate it we must keep its vision bright before the eyes of our children.
 To enshrine it we must thank, worship, serve and love the divine Author of Liberty.

Inflation To Exceed 10%

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation, fanned by OPEC oil price increases, will exceed 10 percent this year, presidential adviser Alfred Kahn is predicting.

Petroleum costs are rising fastest, but food could go up more than 11 percent in 1979, the Carter administration says.

Kahn's inflation assessment Thursday, the gloomiest yet by the administration, is brought home by a private economist's estimate that the average family's bill for gasoline and motor oil will increase at least $230 a year because of OPEC price boosts.

Albert H. Cox Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics, also said home heating oil costs for the average family will rise more than $90 a year.

While the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries raised oil prices Thursday from a base of $14.55 per barrel to between $18 and $23.50 per barrel, the Agriculture Department was estimating food prices this year will zoom between 10.2 percent and 11.2 percent.

Department forecasters said they were forced to revise previous estimates upward because of uncertainties throughout the economy — from rising grain prices to fuel shortages and costs — which affect the transportation and processing of food.

Kahn's chief deputy, Barry Bosworth testified on Capitol Hill that OPEC risks causing a recession by its latest move. He added that the United States is heading for bankruptcy unless it can cut its appetite for foreign oil.

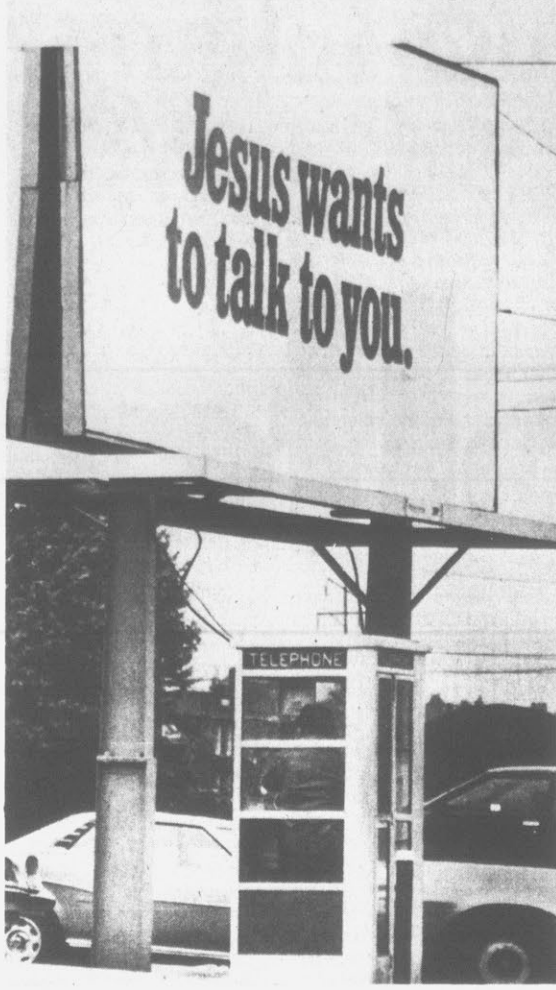

In a preliminary analysis, administration officials said the OPEC price rise will add one point to the nation's inflation rate this year and another point in 1980.

They said the number of Americans unemployed will increase by 800,000 through 1980 because of OPEC price increases.

Economic growth, as measured by the Gross National Product, will be two percentage points below what it would have been without the world oil price rises, administration forecasters said.

"The OPEC increases raise the real specter of double-digit inflation for the rest of this year," Kahn told the House Government Operations subcommittee.

The annual inflation rate is currently 13.4 percent, the compounded average of the first five months of the year. Kahn's prediction is that actual inflation will exceed 10 percent in the 12 months ending Dec. 31, Bosworth, who plans to leave the Council on Wage and Price Stability soon, said the inflation situation is "rapidly worsening."

Four Killed As Tornadoes Rake Iowa Plains; Town Evacuated

By MIKE HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
MANSON, Iowa (AP) — Tornadoes that raked the Iowa Plains wiped out neighborhoods and forced evacuation of a small town where two tanks holding a toxic chemical ruptured. Four persons were killed and about 70 others injured, authorities said.

About 40 twisters spotted Thursday night uprooted trees, knocked out power and telephone lines and ripped through homes and businesses in six communities in northern and central Iowa, officials said.

The National Guard was called out to help the two hardest hit towns, Manson and Algona, which had been preparing to start a week-long celebration of its 125th anniversary Saturday.

Tornadoes also were reported Thursday in Minnesota, North Dakota, Colorado and Arkansas. Some damage was reported in those states but no deaths or serious injuries.

Four people were killed and about two dozen injured in Manson, officials said. Some 24 businesses and 100 homes were reported destroyed or heavily damaged.

Police Officer John Ewing said no homes were left in the area from downtown to the southeast edge of town. "It's just gone, clear out to the edge of town," Ewing said. "The houses are gone."

Harold Ricklefs, of rural Fort Dodge, rushed to Manson and had to dig his mother out of the rubble that was left of her kitchen.

"It's a mess, I'll tell you,"

Ricklefs said as he surveyed damage in the farming town of 1,900 people. "It just flattened houses. The streets are all blocked."

In Algona, 40 miles to the north, twisters heavily damaged a shopping center and a 100-square-block area. Ten persons were hospitalized with injuries and 35 others were treated and released, officials said.

Also hit by a twister was Renwick, 30 miles northeast of Manson. Some 420 residents were evacuated when two tanks holding anhydrous ammonia — a fertilizer — ruptured and released toxic fumes.

One tank later sealed itself and a second 26,000-gallon tank was sealed. The residents began returning home early today, the highway patrol reported.

Lt. Gov. Terry Branstad, National Guard, State Patrol and Disaster Services officials were to visit the area today. A spokesman said Gov. Robert Ray may be called back from Romania where he is on a tour with the National Governor's Association.

Police in Webster City, 30 miles east of Manson, reported that several farms were destroyed in a tornado path 10 miles long just northeast of the city.

Hotline For Epilepsy Info

WINSTON-SALEM — The nation's first toll-free telephone information service designed to inform the public and medical professionals about epilepsy will begin at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine here Monday, July 2.

The toll-free number for the statewide service is 1-800-642-0500. Hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays. Calls received during after-hours will be recorded and returned the next working day.

Developed by members of the medical school's Comprehensive Epilepsy Program, the new "Epilepsy Information Service" is directed by Dr. William T. McLean Jr., associate professor of neurology.

Associate Director Patricia A. Gibson explained that epilepsy is a central nervous system disorder characterized by seizures or convulsions which result from a storm of uncontrolled electrical discharges in the brain. In North Carolina, about 54,000 persons have epilepsy, she said.

There seems to be a tendency, she said, for many persons not to reveal their condition and thus not be open to asking questions. "The Epilepsy Information Service will give these people much needed information in privacy and at a convenient time," she said. "This can be especially important to the individual at the onset of his disease or that of a loved one."

One Dead In Shooting Spree

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — A bizarre series of crimes ended late Wednesday night with the suspect in the case hospitalized and under armed guard.

Rocky Mount police charged Chico Sylver with murder in the shooting death of the Rev. William K. Washington, 48, late Wednesday night.

Capt. C.M. Ramsey quoted family members as saying a man walked into the Washington home and asked for William Washington, son of the victim. The younger Washington and Sylver dated that same woman from Whitakers, police said.

When the elder Washington ordered Sylver from his home, and while his wife and son went to call police, Sylver shot the man three or four times, according to police.

One hour later, they said a man entered the home of Leroy Battle, father of the woman both men were dating. Police said the man ordered everyone out of the house except a young woman, who was apparently raped and beaten.

Family members said the man left after the assault, but later returned with a shotgun. Adrine Battle was shot in the arm; her father then shot the man in the face with another shotgun.

The Nash County Sheriff's office also charged Sylver with two counts of first-degree burglary, first-degree rape, assault with intent to kill and inflicting serious bodily injury.

Edmisten Hits Cut In Funds

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten criticized the recent session of the legislature for cutting appropriations he requested to help fight crime.

Edmisten based his criticism on statistics he released Thursday. The figures indicated that serious crimes in North Carolina during 1978 increased by 3.76 percent over 1977 reports. The state increase compares with a 1 percent increase nationwide and a 4 percent climb in the South.

"There are neither easy answers nor simple solutions to this recent crisis in serious crime," Edmisten said. "Those who would have you believe there are simple solutions are deceiving you."

Edmisten said legislators who approve harsher laws and later cut appropriations to law enforcement are misleading the public. "Politicians who make tough law and order speeches and then do nothing of substance are deceiving you," he said.

The report said violent crimes, including murder, rape, robbery and assault increased by 2.73 percent. Rapes themselves climbed by over 9 percent.

Property crimes, such as burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft increased as a group by 3.88 percent. Motor vehicle thefts alone rose 6.44 percent.

Nearly $77 million in property was reported stolen in the state during the whole year. More than $27 million was recovered. The number of bank robberies dropped from 52 in 1977 to 42 in 1978, but 62 banks have already been robbed this year.

Four police officers have been killed in the line of duty in the state this year, compared with one in 1978. Seven officers were killed in 1977.

Edmisten noted that the legislature slashed his budget requests for the State Bureau of Investigation. He said that when crime rates are low, law enforcement budget needs get a low priority.

"However, inflation makes the cost of crime prevention rise just like the energy crisis makes the cost of gasoline rise at the pump," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, faced with a report that Libya had threatened to cut off its oil exports.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 2 points at mid-morning, was off 2.08 at 840.96 by noon.

Gainers held a slight edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues after leading by a broad margin earlier.

Col. Moammar Khadafy of Libya was quoted by a Paris-based Arabic weekly publication as saying he plans to shut off oil exports for at least two years.

Libya, one of the most militant members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, accounts for about 10 percent of the oil imported by the United States.

Confirmation of the story was not immediately available. "If he's serious, this is a real shocker," said one broker.

Stocks of companies such as Occidental Petroleum and Charter Co. which have direct links with Libyan oil were halted in trading because of order imbalances. Occidental led the active list, down 1/4 at 23 1/4. Amerada Hess tumbled 3/4 to 42.

Sambo's Restaurants fell 3/4 to 6 1/2 in trading that included a 192,600-share block at 6 1/2. The company said Thursday it expects to post a loss for the second quarter and probably for the full year as well.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .09 to 58.24. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index added .06 to 200.83.

Budget...

 As approved this morning, the Greenville city school unit will receive $95,987 in capital outlay funds, while the county schools will receive $475,318, including $262,396 in "pay-back" to the county for special funds appropriated for the city system for 1975-1976 when the need for major renovations and repairs to buildings created an emergency situation.

The budget for the coming year also includes $458,000 for the Department of Social Services' Medicaid budget — a 41 percent increase over the $324,381 budget this year.

The Medicaid increase resulted from action by the 1978 General Assembly, which commissioners have no control over and are required to fund.

Also included in the coming fiscal year's budget is $18,990 added this morning to fund the purchase of liability insurance for all county employees and officials.

Through reimbursements in various departments, the actual cost to the county for the insurance, which provides $300,000 for each incident and costs $30 per employee, will be only $14,220.

Following the adoption of the budget, Gray and members of the board praised county department and agency heads for their cooperation in preparing the list of expenditures and enabling commissioners to maintain the tax rate at 95 cents per $100 valuation.

Guard...

 Some of the weapons were loaded, but ammunition was available to be distributed, authorities said.

While the number of pickets decreased and the presence of guardsmen grew, Hunt was busy drawing up plans to meet the needs of the truckers. He authorized the state Department of Transportation to issue special permits relaxing weight, height and length limitations on trucks.

The move extended the maximum legal weight for trucks from 80,000 pounds to 94,500 pounds in some instances. The limit for truck length was extended from 55 feet to 60 feet.

Hunt rejected a plan by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green to call the legislature back to Raleigh for a special session to deal specifically with the truckers' demands, and to enact special legislation which would have temporarily suspended state diesel fuel taxes for some truckers.

Despite the maneuvers, truckers still used their CBs to urge other drivers not to enter the fuel terminal at Greensboro.

"I've been out here for four days, but I'll stay as long as it takes," said Mike Drum, a trucker from Greensboro as he sat on a lawn chair near the Gulf Oil facility.

Seven striking drivers were arrested Wednesday at the Paw Creek Fuel Storage Facility near Charlotte. Dubbing themselves "The Paw Creek Seven," the men were arrested for attempting to block diesel-carrying tankers with their bodies.

There were several reports of objects thrown at trucks, trucks being shot at, and in one instance nails being strewn about Interstate 85 on both sides of the North Carolina-South Carolina border Wednesday night.

Agricultural officials said hauling produce to market remained a major problem, especially for shipments of Irish potatoes, harvested in the northeastern corner of the state.

MARRIED MEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Of the 50 million married men in the United States, the largest concentration — 32 percent — lives in the South, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

The council says, "The North Central region follows with 27 percent of the husbands. Next is the Northeast with 22 percent and last is the West with 18 percent."

Libyan Leader Urges Cut-Off Exports

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy was quoted as saying in an interview published today he plans to shut off his country's oil exports for at least two years and is urging other Arab oil producers to do the same.

"We shall stop producing oil — except what we need for our own domestic consumption — for two years, perhaps three or four," Khadafy was quoted as saying. "The more we store the oil in our ground, the better it will be for us."

The interview was conducted by the Damascus correspondent of the Paris-based Arabic weekly Al-Mustaqbal last Monday, before the latest meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

There was no immediate confirmation today from the Libyan government or other sources that such a shutdown had been ordered.

Khadafy was in the Syrian capital last weekend for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad about strengthening the Arab opposition to the U.S.-sponsored Egyptian-Israeli peace process.

Libya produces about 2 million barrels of oil a day and virtually all of it is exported. It is the source for about 10 percent of the oil imported by the United States, and a sudden cut-off in Libyan exports could throw the American oil market into chaos.

Pirates Get Madlock

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Twotime National League batting champion Bill Madlock won't arrive in Pittsburgh until Sunday. But the six-player trade involving the former San Francisco Giant already has a couple of Pirates looking over their shoulders.

Manager Chuck Tanner said Thursday he would alternate Madlock with third baseman Phil Garner and second baseman Rennie Stennett.

"It will depend on who is going good or who isn't going good," Tanner said following the deal, which also sent pitcher Ed Whitson to the Giants.

Madlock, 28, began this season with the highest career batting average of any active player in the league, .325, although his average so far this season stands at .261.

"We have three big-leaguers, all regulars, to play two positions," said Stennett, batting .235. "I'll go along with the program. Eventually, though, something will happen. Anybody who has been around baseball knows something will happen," he said, declining to elaborate.

Garner, hitting .292, had this to say:

"Madlock is an established hitter, and he will help us. But I don't know how I'm going to feel if I stop hitting and find myself on the bench."

The trade also brought to Pittsburgh relief pitcher Dave Roberts and former major league infielder Lenny Randle. Roberts will join the Pirates this weekend, and Randle will be assigned to the minors.

Meanwhile, Pittsburgh sent the Giants two minor league pitchers, Al Holland and Fred Breining.

"We're giving up a good pitcher in Ed Whitson and two good young prospects," said Pirate General Manager Pete Peterson. "But to get something good, you have to give something good."

Madlock said he was not disappointed with leaving San Francisco, where he had some angry words with team officials.

"I don't worry about what his problems were out there," said Tanner. "I just want to get him here and see what he can do for us."

Madlock, who won batting titles in 1975 and 1976 with the Cubs, isn't expected to arrive until Sunday due to a death in his family. When he arrives, the Pirates will send utility man Matt Alexander to the minors.

Meanwhile, Whitson said he was surprised.

"Everyone thought Rennie was going to be traded," said Whitson, 2-3 with Pittsburgh in 19 appearances.

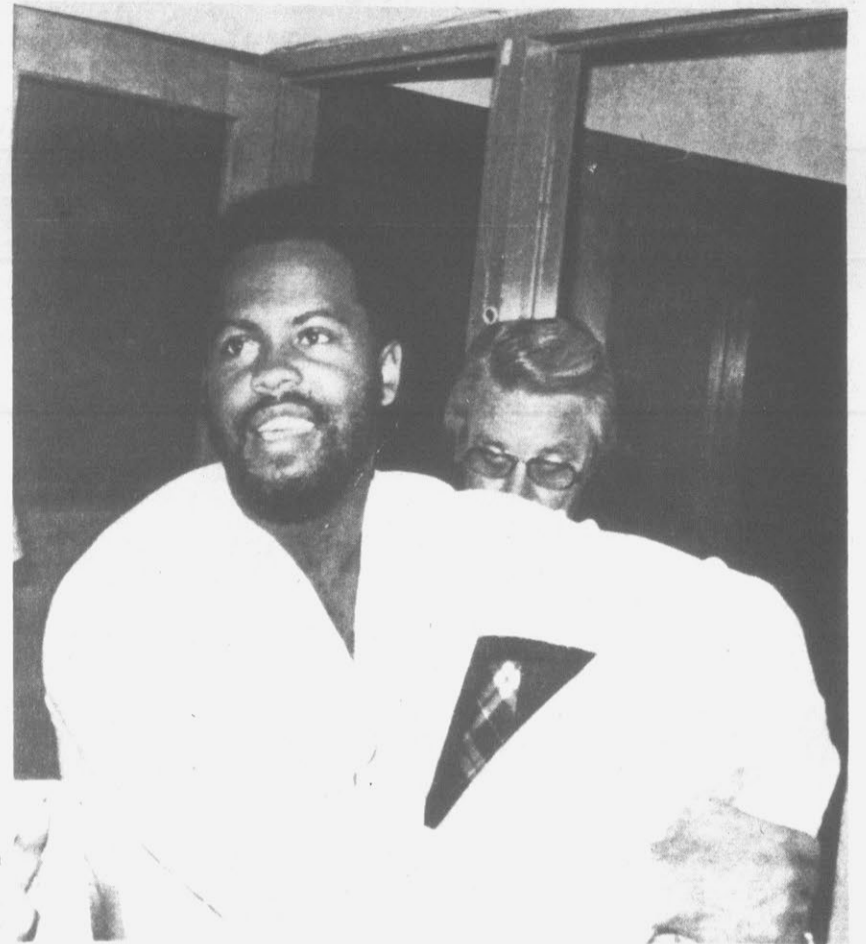

"I'm not unhappy about it. I'm leaving a contending ballclub but they're a contender out there."

Roberts, a 10-year veteran who was 0-2 with the Giants with a 2.57 ERA, once spent four years in the Pirates minor league system.

Randle will join Portland in the Class AAA Pacific Coast League. He was released by the New York Mets in the spring and signed by the Giants for their Phoenix farm club.

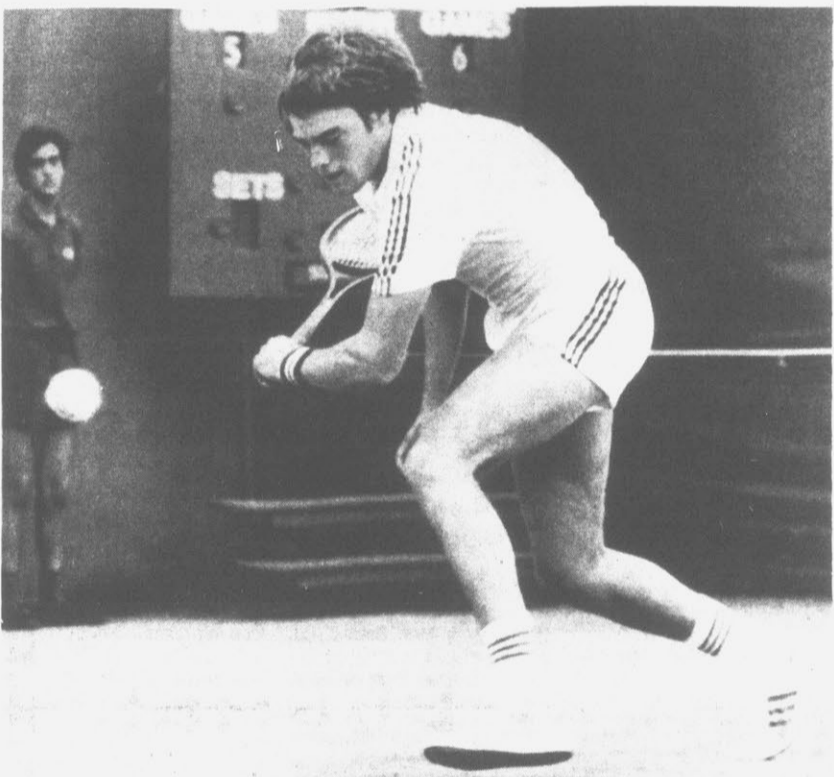

The left-handed Holland will leave the Pirates' Class AAA farm team for Phoenix. Holland was 4-6 at Portland.

Breining, a right-hander, was 4-3 in nine games with the Pirates' Class AA Buffalo, N.Y., team. He goes to the Giants' Shreveport Class AA team.

By WINSOR DOBBIN
AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Three-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg faced dual threats to his title today, one in the form of hard-serving American Hank Pfister and the other a thigh injury.

Borg rested Thursday and he and his coach were clearly worried about continuing his campaign today.

Referee Fred Hoyles ruled out any chance for a day's grace.

"If he is scheduled to play he must. There are no dispensations or favors for champions," he said.

The cool Swede apparently strained the leg during a tough five-setter against Indian No. 1 Vijay Amritraj Wednesday. He was under treatment Thursday, but also found time to practice at Queen's Club.

Seven seeds have lost in the first two rounds. The two losing seeds Thursday were No. 6 Guillermo Vilas and No. 12 Manuel Orantes.

Tim Wilkinson, a fresh-faced 19-year-old from Shelby, N.C., beat Vilas 5-7, 6-2, 6-1, 7-6 to earn a third-round match against Tom Okker.

Little-known Frenchman Gilles Moretton conquered Orantes 7-6, 3-6, 7-6, 3-6, 6-1.

Vilas, who has won every major tournament except Wimbledon, was bitterly disappointed at his loss to the agile Wilkinson.

old Marty Riessen but went on to win 6-7, 6-3, 7-6, 6-0.

Connors, who has been elusive all week, once again refused to meet reporters.

Eighth-seeded Paraguayan Victor Pecci gave another impressive performance in beating veteran Australian Phil Dent 6-4, 7-6, 6-3.

In the women's singles, top seeds Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd had a day off, but fourth-seeded Tracy Austin opened her bid, dropping the first set before coming back to beat South African Brigitte Cuypers 4-6, 6-1, 6-2. Austin had had a first-round bye.

In contrast to the men, only two of the women's seeds failed to come through the second round.

Britain's Sue Barker was beaten in the first round, while U.S. teen-ager Pam Shriver withdrew with a shoulder injury.

Austin, who hasn't played for a week because of a groin muscle injury, was happy with her form against Cuypers.

"That was just the sort of match I needed," said the 16-year-old schoolgirl from Rolling Hills, Calif. "I just need a couple more matches to get my concentration back."

Austin has won 20 of her last 21 singles matches.

Banner Year For Club

East Carolina University's educational foundation, the Pirate Club, closes out its fiscal year tomorrow and it was the best year in the history of ECU athletics, according to Club Director Gus Andrews.

The Pirate Club raises scholarship money for student-athletes at ECU through contributions from friends, alumni and businesses, Andrews said, and contributions this year will top the half-million dollar mark.

While money has been received from 12 different states, Greenville and Pitt County "have always provided the solid foundation which we are building upon," Andrews noted.

"New memberships have risen tremendously, particularly in newly organized chapters throughout North Carolina. This year's membership will exceed 3,000, an increase of more than 700 new contributors."

In addition to scholarship gifts, many of the Pirate Club members are helping contribute the more than $2000,000 per year that goes for the recent Ficklen Stadium expansion project. Club members are also responsible for purchasing 85 percent of all the tickets sold in football and basketball.

Andrews said season football ticket sales for Pirate Club members are booming this season and warned local members not to wait too long to make their orders. He asked that members who plan to purchase season tickets do so as soon as possible to insure a seat in Ficklen Stadium this fall.

Third-seeded Jimmy Connors lost the first set of his second-round match against 37-year-

Foli Has Another Scrape With His Former Teammates

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Tim Foli is a scrapper from way back. Now with the Pittsburgh Pirates, the journeyman shortstop has had two stints with the New York Mets. And he has had run-ins.

During his first go-round with the Mets, in 1970 and 1971, he was involved in two different fights with his teammates. One was with Coach Joe Pignatano in spring training and another in the dugout with Ed Kranepool — two very unlikely sparring mates.

After several years with Montreal and a brief outing in San Francisco, Foli returned to the Mets in 1978. After a very quiet season, he was traded to Pittsburgh for Frank Taveras last April.

Thursday night, Foli picked on Mets catcher John Stearns, but this time it was during the heat of competition, not in anger.

With the Pirates trailing 2-1 in the bottom of the sixth, Foli doubled. Bill Robinson, who had homered in the fourth, singled in the direction of right fielder Joel Youngblood.

Youngblood threw the ball home on one hop, and Foli came crashing into Stearns. Stearns held onto the ball for the out, then grabbed Foli by the legs.

The two rolled around, and both benches emptied toward the plate. No punches were thrown, and order was restored quickly.

"If I had to do it again, I would do the same thing," Foli said. "There was no malice. I wasn't trying to hurt anybody."

In the next inning, Stearns slammed a solo homer, his fifth of the year, to give New York a 3-1 lead, and the Mets hung on to beat Pittsburgh 3-2. The Mets won three of five in their home-and-home series with Pittsburgh.

Reliever Neil Allen, 2-5, got the victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston edged San Francisco 6-5, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 2-1 and San Diego got by Atlanta 6-5.

Astros 6, Giants 5

The Astros won their ninth game in 11 when they rallied for four runs in the fourth inning, sparked by Alan Ashby's leadoff homer.

The Giants took a 4-0 lead off winning right-hander Rick Williams, 3-3, in the first, when Willie McCovey smacked a three-run homer.

But Houston scored two runs in the third off Ed Halicki, on Craig Reynolds RBI grounder and Enos Cabell's run-scoring double.

Ashby led off the fourth with his second home run of the season, and three more runs scored on a throwing error by right fielder Jack Clark, Reynold's RBI single and a basesloaded walk to Dennis Walling by losing reliever John Curtis, 3-4.

Reds 2, Dodgers 1

Cincinnati sent the Dodgers to defeat for the third straight time and sixth time in seven games on the strength of firstinning RBI hits by Joe Morgan and George Foster.

Reds right-handers Tom Hume and Doug Bair limited the Dodgers to six hits.

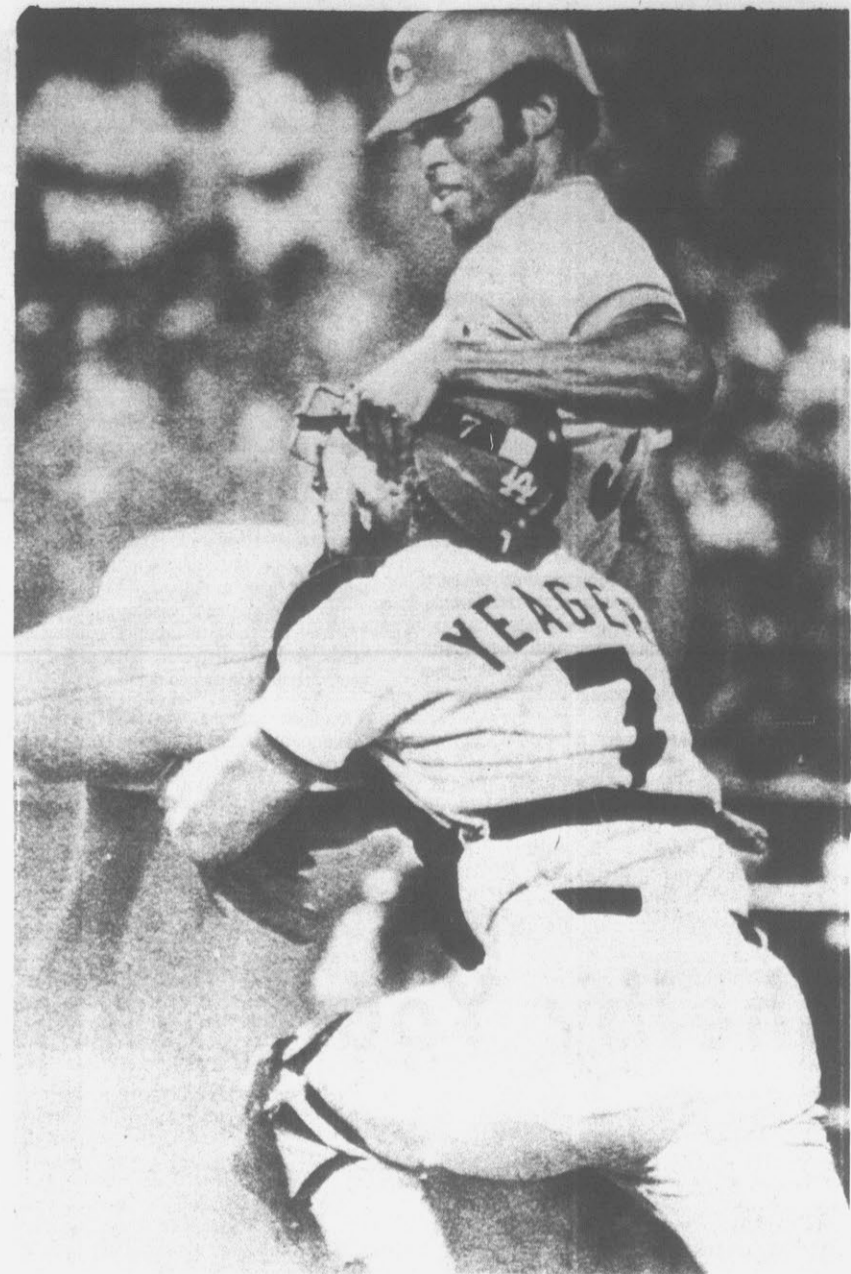

Los Angeles scored its first earned run in 24 innings in the sixth when Reggie Smith doubled and later scored on Ron Cey's sacrifice fly.

Hume, 6-5, was the winner and Burt Hooton, 7-5, who went the distance scattering 10 hits, was the loser.

Padres 6, Braves 5

Jerry Turner doubled twice and drove in two runs, and John D'Acquisto, 4-5, went 7-3 innings in relief to beat Atlanta.

San Diego scored four runs after two were out in the fifth. Paul Dade doubled, Danny Briggs singled, and Turner doubled home two runs. Gene Tenace then singled home Turner, kayoing rookie right-hander Tony Brizzolara, 2-3.

Rangers Win Wild Contest

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It was another of those knock-down, drag-out battles between the Texas Rangers and California Angels.

The pitchers were knocking down the batters and the batters were dragging themselves back up and hitting the ball.

After plenty of hits by the batters and some near-misses by the pitchers, the Rangers wound up on the long end of a wild 14-4 decision Thursday night in the game between two of the American League West leaders.

The Rangers bolted to a 12-0 lead in the first two innings, belting 16 hits off three hapless California pitchers. That apparently got the Angels angry, for in the third inning the Rangers' Pat Putnam was hit by a Steve Eddy pitch.

The next inning, California's Dan Ford was brushed back by Ranger starter Ferguson Jenkins.

In other American League games, the Kansas City Royals edged the Oakland A's 7-6; the Cleveland Indians beat the Baltimore Orioles 6-3; the New York Yankees stopped the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3 in 10 innings; the Detroit Tigers whipped the Boston Red Sox 6-3; the Chicago White Sox beat the Seattle Mariners 2-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers topped the Minnesota Twins 6-5 in 10 innings.

Billy Sample knocked in four runs for the Rangers while Bump Wills and Dave Roberts smashed four hits apiece. Jenkins gave up only five hits to the slumping Angels, who lost their seventh straight game.

Royals 7, A's 6

Al Cowens' RBI single capped a two-run ninth, leading Kansas City over Oakland. Jamie Quirk led off the inning with a single off Dave Heaverlo and went to second on Willie Wilson's sacrifice bunt.

After George Brett was walked intentionally, Amos Otis singled home the tying run and sent Brett to third before Cowens delivered the game-winning hit. Al Hrabosky was the winner in relief.

Indians 6, Orioles 3

Ron Hassey drove in three runs and Rick Wise and Sid Monge combined on a five-hitter as Cleveland beat Baltimore and ended a 10-game losing streak. Hassey singled home a run during a two-run second inning and had a two-run double in the fourth, doubling his 1979 RBI total for 14 previous games.

Wise allowed all five Oriole hits, including Lee May's 12th homer, before needing Monge's last-out relief help.

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 3

Jim Spencer doubled home the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning and scored on an error by losing pitcher Mark Lemongello as New York defeated Toronto.

Lou Piniella singled with one out in the Yankee 10th and Spencer, who had entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning, drilled a pitch from Lemongello, 1-8, off the center field fence to break a 3-3 tie. Graig Nettles then grounded to second, but Lemongello, covering first base, let Dan Ainge's throw get past him for an error, allowing Spencer to score.

Tigers 6, Red Sox 3

Champ Summers drove in three runs with his third homer in as many games as Detroit defeated Boston. Tiger starter Jack Billingham scattered seven hits in seven innings to pick up the victory with relief help from Aurelio Lopez. Boston starter Steve Renko took the defeat.

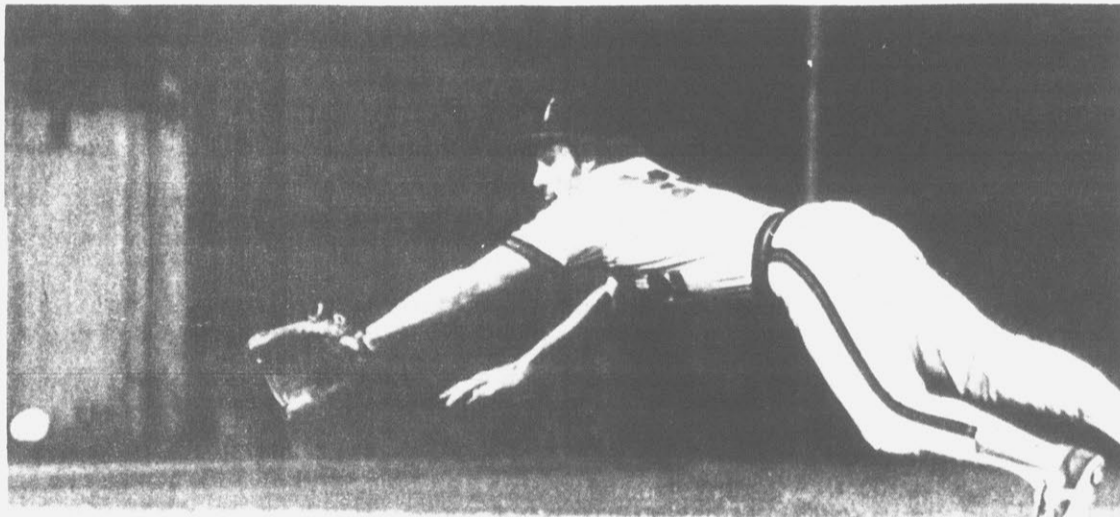

White Sox 2, Mariners 1

Ross Baumgarten and Steve Trout scattered nine hits to lead Chicago over Seattle. Trout came on in the ninth with Seattle leading 2-0 and two runners aboard and nobody out. The reliever gave up a bunt single to Dan Meyer to load the bases, but then pitched out of the jam as Seattle scored its only run on a double-play ball.

Jorge Orta's RBI single in the first inning gave the White Sox a 1-0 lead and they built it to 2-0 on Chet Lemon's run-scoring single in the top of the ninth.

Brewers 6, Twins 5

Ben Oglivie's tie-breaking home run in the 10th inning powered Milwaukee over Minnesota. Oglivie's blast came off Mike Marshall, 9-7, with two out and overshadowed a comeback rally by the Twins, who had tied the game with two runs in the ninth. Bill Castro picked up the victory in relief.

Out Of Reach

California Angels third baseman Cazney Lansford dives for a ground ball off the bat of Nelson Norman of the Texas Rangers in the fourth inning at Arlington Stadium Thursday night. Norman slid into second with a double and Texas won 14-4. (AP Laserphoto)

Old Pro Teaches Young Pro

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — A chance encounter with an old pro got Barbara Barrow's golf game pointed in the right direction.

"Last week I ran into a teacher who worked with me and changed my alignment. Now I'm hitting the ball straight," Barrow beamed.

The burly 24-year-old had reason to smile. She combined her straight and long drives with nimble putting Thursday for a 3-under-par 69 and a share of the first round lead in a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at the Dearborn Country Club course.

The 72-hole event runs through Sunday.

Debbie Austin used booming tee shots to fire six birdies, four on the back nine, to tie Barrow. Five golfers, including defending champion Sandra Post, were tied for second with 2-under-par 70s.

The standings were clogged even more at 71, with a 10-player standoff.

Barrow headed directly to the practice tee after the round, her lowest on the tour. She practiced hours, using the new stance she learned in Chicago last week from Dee Dee Owens, a teaching professional.

"I usually draw the ball and now I'm lining up better and hitting it straight — but I don't have it down just yet," said the former national collegiate champion, a resident of Chula Vista, Calif.

"Putting is still the strongest part of my game," said Barrow, who holed putts of 10, 30 and 35 feet on her second nine.

"It feels kind of different to be in the lead. This is the first time (in nearly two years on the tour)," she said. "I'm trying not to think about it."

For Austin, it was a day of challenging a course that caused her to play erratically last year.

A severe overnight thunderstorm left behind soft, wet greens and that "helped a whole lot," said Austin. "The greens here are usually hard."

"This course demands excellent iron play and I'm a straight hitter," Austin said. "Now, it's just a matter of putting. I had 29 putts today, which wasn't bad, and I was swinging the club well."

Post attributed her steady play to a week off. "Everyone deserves a time out," she said.

Vilas 'Lost Control' in Wimbledon Defeat

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Guillermo Vilas, his strong Latin features reflecting strain and his coal-black hair hanging in wet strands to his shoulders, could not disguise his disappointment.

"I lost control of myself," he said, trying to find some logical explanation for his surprising second-round loss to 19-year-old Tim Wilkison of Shelby, N.C., in the Wimbledon tennis championships.

The handsome, sensitive Argentine — poet, playwright, an artist with a tightly strung racket — appeared to be a broken man.

Two years ago, Vilas was king of all he surveyed, champion of both the U.S. and French opens and winner of 50 matches in a row. At age 25, his potential seemed limitless.

But today he is on the sidelines again — one of seven seeded players who have gone down in two rounds of competition. Ex-champion Arthur Ashe is gone. So is Vitas Gerulaitis, semifinalist the last two years, as well as Manuel Orantes, Corrado Barazzutti, Jose Higueras and Wojtek Fibak, all big names on the international scene.

"This is a nice tournament but it can be improved," Vilas said. "There is no place to practice. You sit around the bar. You walk around. You wait and wait. Then you are called. You walk out cold."

"No two courts at Wimbledon have the same conditions. The early rounds are murderous. Some day maybe I practice four weeks and win. I am not dead yet."

He wender. Vilas is a superb athlete who handles a racket the way a musician might a violin. But he is a brooder. Most of his poems deal with death.

It is tragic to see such a marvelous talent go to waste.

But he is not alone. Absent from the field this year is perhaps the finest all-around shotmaker the game has produced — Ilie Nastase.

He could make a racket's strings sing. They call him Nasty and Ilie the Terrible.

First he became a firebrand, then a repulsive villain, finally a clown. His skill deteriorated.

After losing in the first round at Rome and Paris, he skipped Wimbledon, excusing himself with an injury. It's a wound that will never heal.

No one knows what happened to fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis, one of the world's best. The antithesis of Vilas, Gerulaitis probably never brooded in his life. He is big with Rolls Royces, the jet set and the discos.

Ashe, seeded seventh, has made his mark and at 35 must be applauded for sticking in there. He is having a good year, despite his first-round elimination here by a little known Austrian player.

And Fibak? Well, who knows? Maybe he just had one of those days.

Meanwhile, Bjorn Borg, the susceptible Swede, turns up with another injury — they pop up often — and there was some question whether he would be at full strength for those two fiery Yanks, Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe.

Walker On Team

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — All-Big-Ten center Joe Barry Carroll and his Purdue teammate Brian Walker will be among the basketball stars competing for the United States in the Spartakiade games in Moscow next month.

Purdue's Lee Rose, who coached the Boilermakers to a three-way tie for the Big Ten crown last season, will skipper the U.S. men's basketball team, the Amateur Athletic Union announced, Thursday.

Besides the 7-foot-1 Carroll and Walker, a guard, the U.S. team will include Iona standout Jeff Ruland, who will share the pivot with Carroll.

The multi-sport Spartakiade event, scheduled for July 21 to Aug. 5, is being billed by the Soviets as a dress rehearsal for the 1980 Olympics.

The only high school player on the team is Russell Cross of Chicago's Manley High.

The rest of the men's team, selected by the Amateur Basketball Association of the USA, is:

John Bates, West Virginia Wesleyan; Jim Johnstone, Wake Forest; Chad Kinch, North Carolina-Charlotte; Jeff Lamp, Virginia; David Lawrence, McNeese State; Andrew Toney, Southwestern Louisiana, and Gary Winton, West Point.

The assistant coach will be Tom Bennett of Mesa Community College in Arizona, the manager will be Jack Thurnblad of Carlton College in Minnesota while Purdue trainer Dennis Miller will be handling those duties for the men's team.

The women's team, also announced Thursday, is:

Kathy Anderson, Central Missouri State; Denise Curry, UCLA; Elinor Griffin, Louisiana Tech; Tina Gunn, Brigham Young; Tara Heiss, Maryland; Ann Meyers, UCLA; Cindy Noble, Tennessee; Jackie Swaim, Texas; Jan Trombly, Old Dominion; Angela Turner, Louisiana Tech; Heidi Woodard, Biola; Lynette Woodard, Kansas.

The women's coach is Carole Baumgarten of Drake. The assistant coach is Phyllis Holmes of Greenville College. The manager Lea Plarski of St. Louis Community College and the trainer Karen Miller of Cal Poly-Pomona.

The AAU also announced that Elizabeth Cryer Kent and Mary Ann Welsh, both of Philadelphia, will represent the United States in Spartakiade rowing events. Their coach will be Nathaniel Case of Yale.

Pitt Downs Williamston

with Rocky Mount for second place. Snow Hill could make it a three-way tie with a victory tonight.

"That was as good a ballgame as you'd ever want to see," Pitt County coach Gary Overton said. "It was a well-played game by both ballclubs."

"Williams did real well. He got himself out of a couple of jams that really helped. We got the hits at the right time, but it could easily have been (Williamston)."

Williamston coach John Hardison said it was a tough ballgame to lose. He also praised Williams' mound work and said Greenville has "a fine team."

Williamston's 9-5 record is the team's best ever during the regular season. Hardison noted, and he said his team is looking forward to the playoffs. "We feel like it's wide open and a lot of it will be like tonight's game—decided by one run."

Pitt County got on the scoreboard early, with a run in the bottom of the first. Shank led off with a double and moved to third on a disputed balk call. He was singled in by Ben Wilson.

Williams, who got excellent defensive help all night, was aided in the second when Trent Ange was thrown out at the plate on a double steal attempt. With Ange on third, teammate Eldred McQueen took off for second. Pitt catcher Curtis Spencer threw to shortstop Mark Douglas, who fired the ball back in time to get Ange coming home.

Williamston broke the scoring ice in the top of the fourth as leadoff batter Joseph Holley walked, stole second and scored fourth as leadoff batter Joseph Holley walked, stole second and scored on Toby Holliday's bloop single with two away. Holliday was caught stealing to end the frame.

Pitt County had the bases loaded in the bottom of the inning on three straight walks with just one out, but was unable to push any runners across.

The local team added its second run in the next inning, however, when Will Barrett led off the frame with a home run over the left field fence. Barrett got behind a 2-0 pitch that cleared the fence near the Harrington Field scoreboard at treestand level.

Williamston countered with a run in the top of the sixth that tied the game at 2-2. Randy Ellis led off with a triple that was just out of Shank's reach in center field. After Holley hit a hard shot back to the box that landed in Williams' glove, Glenn Cargile got a single to plate Ellis. He went to second on an error and made third when Toby Holliday got a base hit and then stole, but Williams struck out a batter for the final out.

Williamston had three men on in the seventh, but the inning ended when Evans, going to third on Holley's infield hit, overslid and was thrown out by Douglas.

Ellis was the only batter in the game with more than one hit, he went 2-4.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Our good friend from Holland, Herman Filarski, reports this hand, which is of interest from both a declarer play and defensive point of view.

Once South could rebid spades, North decided that he needed no more. He checked on aces and kings and wisely subsided in a small slam when he learned that two kings were missing.

West made his natural lead of the king of hearts, and declarer saw that the hand would present no problem if trumps broke 3-2. But to guard against a possible 4-1 division, declarer decided to score as many trump tricks as possible. He won the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart, crossed to the queen of spades and ruffed another heart. Then he entered dummy with the king of trumps noting East's failure to follow suit, and ruffed another heart, thereby setting up a long heart in dummy. Declarer cashed the ace of spades, sluffing a club from the table, which created a most unusual situation. After seven tricks at a slam contract, a defender was left with the only trump in the game!

Declarer entered dummy with the king of diamonds and led the jack of hearts, discarding a club from his hand. West ruffed with the master trump, and declarer claimed the balance.

Declarer played the hand skillfully, but he received an assist from West. That defender was in too much of a hurry to ruff with his master trump. He should have discarded on the heart and then waited to ruff the third round of diamonds. Now he can exit with a club.

Declarer must win the ace of clubs in dummy, but he is marooned on the board. For lack of an entry to his hand, the ace of diamonds will wither on the vine, and East will take the last trick with a high club for down one.

Blind Or Disabled Children Can Qualify For Extra Income

Blind or disabled children can qualify for supplemental security income (SSI) payments no matter how young they are, Gary Epling, acting Social Security District Manager in Greenville, said recently. SSI is a Federal program that makes monthly cash payments to aged, disabled or blind people who do not own much in the way of property or other assets and who don't have much income.

Although an adult's own income and assets are considered when deciding eligibility, the income and assets of a parent are considered when deciding the eligibility of child under 18 or under 21 if in school.

To be considered disabled for SSI, a person must have a physical or mental impairment which has lasted, or is expected to last 12 months or more or which will result in death. For a person 18 or over, the condition must prevent him or her from engaging in substantial gainful work. For a child under 18, the impairment must be comparable in severity to one that would prevent an adult from engaging in substantial gainful work.

Blindness is defined as central visual acuity of 20/200 or less in the better eye with the use of a corrective lens or reduction of the visual field to 20 degrees or less.

Anyone who knows of a disabled or blind child who may qualify for SSI checks should suggest that the person responsible for the child get in touch with the Greenville social security office. The people there will explain the SSI program and help complete an application.

The Greenville Social Security office is located at 103 Plaza Dr. and the telephone number is 756-2368.

Project Begun

Early this year a special project was begun in the Eastern Dept. of Human Resources Region to expand day care services available to families.

The project has three employees whose principal jobs are to work with local elected officials, agency employees, and private agencies and groups to expand available care.

The 33-county area has an estimated 37,000 children under five years old who are eligible for subsidized care. Currently, only 1,800 are being serviced, according to Dr. Sarah Morrow, DHR Secretary. Sixteen of these counties have no certified day care centers or family day care homes. Six counties have no day care centers of any kind, although four have Headstart programs.

The goal of the day care expansion project is to make this service as available to citizens of Eastern N. C. as it is to those of the rest of the state. The work of this project, located in Greenville, combined with the state appropriation for day care passed by the recent General Assembly will help make this a reality, Dr. Morrow said.

The staff consists of Bee Mayo, Donna Hood and Betty Brown. The office is located at 2020 W. Greenville Blvd.; phone, 756-8450.

THE LATE BILLY HARRIS. . . was honored Wednesday by the State of North Carolina for his volunteer service to this community. The award was presented to his widow, Mrs. Faye Harris (right) by Dr. Sarah Morrow (center). Also pictured is Mrs. Harris' mother, Mrs. Lois Mills.

Billy Harris Is Honored For Services

During her official visit to Greenville Wednesday, N. C. Secretary of Human Resources Dr. Sarah Morrow paid posthumous honor to REAL Crisis Intervention Center Director William E. "Billy" Harris.

A certificate of appreciation was presented to Harris' widow, Mrs. Faye Harris, during a specially arranged ceremony at the Pitt Co. Mental Health Center.

The award was given "in grateful appreciation for contributions as a volunteer to improve the quality of life for North Carolinians." In praise of Billy Harris, Dr. Morrow said, "We have recently been made aware of the tremendous contribution, both of himself and his time, your husband made as a volunteer in Pitt County. Most human service programs today cannot hope to render the services needed without the assistance of volunteers. We are appreciative of the work done by all our volunteers in helping us attain our goals, but we are especially appreciative of those like Billy Harris. His service as director of REAL Crisis Intervention Center, was certainly a great service to his community and state. His passing has left a void, but his gift of himself and his time have inspired others to do more and better. We would like to thank you, because we know that without your support, he would not have been able to do the great job he did."

Mary L. Smith, REAL Director, and Mrs. Lois Mills, Mrs. Harris's mother, accompanied Mrs. Harris to the center for the presentation.

Following the award ceremony, Dr. Morrow toured the center and met with personnel for an informal sharing session. Visiting from Raleigh with her were Tom Gilmore, Deputy Secretary, DHR; Ben Aiken, Director of the Division of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services; Linda Miller and Lucy Bodie. George Adams, Eastern Regional Director of the Division of Mental Health and Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services, also was present.

"Mental Health Matters" on WNCN radio Sunday at 1:06 p.m. will feature an interview with Mrs. Harris.

Helping Hand Club To Meet

The Helping Hand Club will meet at 5 p.m. Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Dupree, 1/4 mile west of Falkland Highway 222. Refreshments will be served. All members are urged to attend. Carrie Hardy, president, also invites the public to attend.

Actress Julie Christie was born in Chuker, India.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be conscientious in the handling of home affairs and be kind to kin. A new project requires that you study every detail of it carefully.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle correspondence early and then get into other duties that are important to your welfare. Clear up any errors in your work, and be on the safe side. Avoid exaggerations.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrate on practical affairs and know how to increase present abundance. Listen to what a successful acquaintance has to suggest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) New interests may require more time before they become workable and practical so be patient. Hunches are good only in the morning. Later use your most mature judgment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep promises and show you are a reliable person. You can solve some limiting situation with a loved one. Show that you are thoughtful but not a pushover.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do what is expected of you by associates and see to it they are not disappointed. Handle that task that is hardly to your liking but will bring you needed goodwill.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have the ability to solve problems of all kinds, no matter how intricate they may be. Teach early that courses must be completed otherwise your progeny could go off on tangents that will mar the success here.

Oil Profits Tax Watered Down

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The "windfall profits" tax, weakened on the House floor, is headed to the Senate where influential oil-state lawmakers are expected to try to reduce its bite on oil companies even more.

The House watered down the tax Thursday, agreeing with arguments that U.S. oil production could best be increased by leaving oil companies a bigger share of the profits from the decontrol of domestic oil prices.

"The telling argument was energy production," declared Rep. W. Henson Moore, R-La., one of the sponsors of the amendment to weaken the tax bite on oil companies.

The House Ways and Means Committee and the Democratic leadership had favored a tax that would have reclaimed about $44 billion of the oil companies' decontrol-related revenues between 1980 and 1984.

Moore argued that by cutting the tax by about $6 billion over that five-year period, U.S. oil production would be increased by 800,000 barrels a day, compared to 350,000 new barrels a day expected under the committee's tax.

"Congressmen can go home now for July Fourth and tell their constituents, 'I voted for a tax that will keep you from being ripped off, but it will get you more energy,'" Moore said after the vote.

The Moore substitute is still tougher than the tax President Carter originally proposed and then challenged Congress to toughen.

The Senate Finance Committee, the bill's next stop, is slated to consider the tax next month.

The panel, chaired by oil industry ally Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., is expected to recommend a tax lower than the House measure. But in a letter read to the House during Thursday's debate, Long expressed concern that the Senate might toughen the House bill.

"There is nothing in the history of the Senate to demonstrate that it is less subject to over-reacting to the frustration and emotion of the moment than is the House of Representatives," Long said.

In other energy developments Thursday:

—The Carter administration's chief inflation fighter, Alfred Kahn, said that "as a private citizen" he suspects gasoline retailers are engaging in price gouging. He also said the administration "ought to consider (gasoline) rationing."

—Two major fuel suppliers said consumers should hope for a mild winter because home heating oil prices will be approaching $1 a gallon.

—The Energy Department is considering spending $50 million on radio, television, newspaper and magazine ads to encourage American households to conserve energy.

The House passed the Moore substitute on a 236-183 vote, with 90 Democrats — many from oil-producing states — joining 146 Republicans. Ten Republicans sided with 173 Democrats in opposing the amendment.

The vote was a stinging defeat for Democratic leaders, who had urged approval of the tougher levy.

Solicitation Request Okayed

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of a request by the Echoes of Calvary to conduct a merchant solicitation in order to raise money for the church choir from July 1 through Aug. 4.

Wyatt said the request was submitted by John R. Moore.

Somoza Denies He'll Quit As Guerrillas Pull Back In Managua

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista rebels gave up the Managua slums after two weeks of fighting but said they were withdrawing to regroup for more combat. President Anastasio Somoza failed to muster a quorum for a session of Congress and met with the new U.S. ambassador, Lawrence Pezzullo, amid reports the envoy asked him to resign. The New York Times reported Somoza told U.S. officials he would step down if his national guard and ruling Liberal Nationalist Party were given a role in a transitional government. U.S. Embassy political officer Jack Martin called the report "pure speculation," and Somoza's private secretary, Max Kelly, called it "absolutely false."

Somoza told the Colombian newspaper La Republica: "If the Congress asks me to resign, I will dissolve it."
Only 28 of the 70 congressmen showed up for the session Somoza called Thursday, eight short of a quorum.

"We're going to Masaya," one of the guerrillas shouted to reporters as he and hundreds of others streamed out of the slums on foot and in captured national guard trucks toward the rebel-held city 20 miles south of Managua. They were armed with automatic assault rifles, rocket grenades and heavy machine guns.
The national guard claimed control of Managua today for the first time in nearly three weeks, and a top Somoza aide said dislodging the guerrillas had freed troops and planes to push the rebels from the strip they have been holding along the Costa Rican border. "You're going to see something surprising tomorrow, and after that comes Masaya," the aide said.

A guerrilla source said the Sandinistas pulled out of Managua because of heavy guard fire and because they were running low on food and ammunition. The guard, Somoza's army and police force, had been hitting the eastern barrios from the air and with heavy rocket and mortar attacks.

Tourist Trade Dropping As Gas Supplies Tight In 35 States

By PETER MACKLER
Associated Press Writer
A Rhode Island supplier said sales for traditional clamcakes at the shore were off and a Maine town offered tourists free gasoline, as the spreading fuel crunch clouded travel plans for the weekend and July Fourth holiday.
A spot check by the Associated Press showed that weekend gasoline supplies were tight in 35 states, with the biggest pinch in the heavily populated cities in the East.

Seventy percent of West Virginia's gas stations were expected to be closed Saturday and 95 percent Sunday. In Portland, Ore., 93 percent were expected to be closed Sunday.
The situation has "stabilized at disaster," said the Automobile Club of New York, where gas lines stretched up to 2½ miles this week and prices ranged up to $1.60 a gallon.
The Automobile Association of America said the average gas price across the nation was 94.3 cents a gallon — and OPEC adopted a new pricing system that will add four cents to that in the months ahead.

In Orange, Calif., a dealer who has been having trouble getting adequate allocations said he will begin selling fuel for $5 a gallon Monday. Tony Grasso said he's aiming at drivers who hate lines.
In Miami, the gas crunch was blamed for the suicide of 60-year-old James Rogers, who ran a newspaper-delivery service. Rogers' wife said he was "extremely despondent over not being able to get gas to deliver his newspapers" because of rationing.
With end-of-month shortages, fuel blockades by striking truckers and threats of a shutdown July 1 by service station owners complicating the gas picture, officials took these steps:
—Pennsylvania and Rhode Island officials agreed to release part of their states' emergency "set-aside" supplies of gas for July to stations that stay open over the weekend.

—New York City Mayor Edward Koch ordered a crackdown on drivers who violate "odd-even" rationing regulations. He also directed police to visit every gas station in the city today to inform operators of state rules mandating weekend openings for some outlets.
—"We want to get credibility back so that when a motorist gets up in the morning, the first thing he thinks of is coffee, not gasoline," Koch said.
—Vermont set up a telephone "GasLine" to provide up-to-date information on gasoline supplies in the state.
—The seaside tourist spot of Trenton, Maine, persuaded both local station operators to give $5 worth of gas to anyone who stays in town and shops this weekend. "Not many vacationers have made it up our way lately," said Whitney Austin, president of Trenton's Chamber of Commerce, which will pay for the gas.

Davidson Bowl Team Is Ousted

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — For not knowing the Roman Emperor who rebuilt the Pantheon in Rome and the Pantheon in Athens, Davidson College's College Bowl kids were eliminated from competition Thursday night.
Davidson's team was defeated by Cambridge University's Sydney Sussex College on the brain teaser in a match recorded in a television studio in Manchester. Davidson lost the match by a 215-210 score.
Davidson gained the right to compete in the Anglo-American final after it defeated Harvard in the finals of American competition in Miami earlier this month. Sydney Sussex gained its spot in the same manner, winning on a televised match called "University Challenge."

The competitions, described as "intellectual athletics" by founder Don Reid of Harrison, N.Y., will be offered to U.S. television for screening in mid-July, along with recordings of the College Bowl preliminaries.
The Davidson team was captained by Tom Ruby, a 22-year-old history major from Alliance, Ohio. He was joined by English major Tim Newcomb of Asheville, French major Ed Trumbull of Hamilton, N.Y., and James Gilbert of Lynchburg, Va., another history major.
Sydney Sussex was manned by two history students, and English major and a medical student.
Reid said he hoped colleges from at least ten countries will join in the competition next year.
Hadrian was the Roman Emperor who performed the rebuilding tasks.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delegation of Lumbee Indians who carried their protests over the appointment of a white man as chancellor of Pembroke State University to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, went away empty handed Thursday.
After the Lumbees conferred for two hours with Acting Commissioner of Education Mary Berry, they said they were told HEW does not regard the appointment of Dr. Paul Givens to the chancellor post as a discriminatory act.
"They told us that they were not presently taking the position that (the appointment) was discrimination, but they took the whole question under advisement," said John R. Jones, a Pembroke trustee who is vice-chairman of the Lumbee Regional Development Association.
Givens was recommended to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors by Dr. William C. Friday, president of the UNC system, to succeed Dr. English Jones, a Lumbee whose retirement becomes effective Saturday.
Prior to the Givens appointment, the Pembroke trustees recommended four persons for the post. They included Givens as well as two Lumbees — Dr. James Chavis and Dr. Joseph Oxendine.

The appointment brought protests of racial discrimination from many Lumbees. Originally, Pembroke was an all-Indian school. However, they now make up about 23 percent of the student body.
Others who conferred with Berry included Bruce Jones, executive director of the N.C. Commission on Indian Affairs; Lonnie Revels of Greensboro vice-chairman of the commission and a member of the Pembroke trustees; and Helen Sherbeck, a Lumbee from Pembroke who now lives in Washington.

Presented Report

Harry Cain, psychologist at the Farnville Satellite of the Pitt Co. Mental Health Center, recently presented a case report at the Southeast Regional Conference of the American Assn. of Psychiatric Services for Children in Wilmington.
Using the structural family therapy model, Cain demonstrated how symptoms changed as family structure changed.
Cain also participated in a training program in marital and family therapy developed by the Eastern Region. Cain, Ben Webb, consultation and educational professional, and Vince Brannon, Wilmington family therapist, made a presentation which included the development of the program, training program and supervision.
Cain has met requirements for clinical membership in American Association for Marital and Family Therapy.

Center Was Group Host

The Pitt County Mental Health Center was host recently to a group from the Greenville Pre-Release and Aftercare Center.
Sharing information about center services and programs were Dr. Sam Williams, Ms. Jackie Ravers, Ingrid Civils, Deborah Coucette, and Nancy Middleton.
Ann Bennett and Matt Brewington, training coordinators for the PRAC, accompanied the group.
