looking back at you. The creature took up residence in an Onslow County (N.C.) pond about two weeks ago. (AP Laser-photo)

Onslow Eyes Big 'Gator

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The folks in Onslow County say they wouldn't mind the nine-foot-long alligator if he stayed in his pond.

But now that's he taken to coming on land, they're worried about their children and their pets.

The alligator appeared recently in a pond that is located about 10 miles east of Jacksonville.

"It's sort of a strange neighbor to come calling on you," one woman who lives near the pond said. "We wouldn't mind if he'd just stay in the water. But now he's coming up on land. Now that's something else."

The alligator is an endangered species, and state wildlife officials frown on the idea of anyone taking shots at the alligator.

"They're hoping the alligator will move by itself," one man who lives nearby said. "If it doesn't, I guess the wildlife people will have to come here and move it. I'm afraid for it to be back there (in the pond) because some kids may go near it."

"If it could stay back there and be protected, it wouldn't bother me, but I don't think there's enough food back there," one woman said. "We used to have a whole bunch of bullfrogs back there but I notice you don't hear them much any more."

Some county residents say the alligator ate two dogs that disappeared recently.

Jimmy Burns, a state wildlife officer, said the reptile may have come out of nearby swamps during the mating season and could go back after the season ends soon.

"We don't even like to move 'gators unless they are causing a problem for someone," Burns said.

Pitt's Pupil Testing Results Show Growth At Every Level

By REBECCA BUFFALO

"I feel very good," said John McKnight, Pitt County Schools' Director of Testing and Research concerning the recent results from the California Achievement Tests. "Every level has shown growth. I think the students are taking things more seriously."

The tests, designed to meter academic achievement, were given to all North Carolina first, second, third, sixth and ninth grade students. However, Pitt County educators decided to apply the tests to all students, grades 1-9.

"We use test scores to evaluate programs, to see if the program is successful and to identify skill weaknesses countywide," said McKnight. "The scores can be used in an attempt to be accountable to the public."

"The tests help teachers know the strengths and weaknesses of individual students," he added. "We also use the test results, along with lots of other information, in placement of students in such programs as Title One and Gifted and Talented."

READING RESULTS

First graders in Pitt County schools placed in the first grade, eighth month reading level on their California Achievement Tests give n this April. Students placed one month ahead of children on the national level, and were on the same level in the state.

According to McKnight, county black and white children do better than the state ethnic averages in reading by 1-3 months. Children with parents having less than a high school education are doing better in the county than the state average. Children with parents having education beyond high school perform above the state average, according to McKnight.

County second graders placed on the third grade level in reading, three months ahead of the national level and two months ahead of the state average. McKnight pointed out that county black and white children performed above the state ethnic averages in reading.

Achievement at both the educational and income level for county children equaled the state average, according to McKnight.

Pitt County third graders placed third grade, seventh month, on their reading scores, compared with the national average of third grade, seventh month and the state average of third grade, fourth month. Pitt County black students achieved one month ahead the state average for blacks in

Pitt-Greenville Airport Development Supported

RALEIGH — A 20-year plan for airport development throughout the state, approved last week by the N.C. Aeronautics Council, recommends the continued development of the Pitt-Greenville airport along with eight others in Northeastern North Carolina, and the construction of three additional flight facilities.

The North Carolina Airport System Plan, which provides guidelines for developing airports and associated facilities, recommends that Pitt-Greenville, "continue to be developed, improved, and protected as required to accommodate the service demands of the area."

The plan, also urged the continued development of

School Bd. Studies Curriculum Shifts

By JERRY RAYNOR

By virtue of regulations put into effect on June 7, the State Board of Education has placed grades nine through 12 in high school, and upped state graduation requirements from 16 to 18 units.

The Greenville City School Board, at its informational meeting Monday night, held a lengthy discussion on the ramifications this new ruling will have, with particular reference to the ninth grade.

Among factors mentioned were those of having to change from seven to six classes at Aycock for the ninth grade, going from the present 46 minute class period to classes of 50 minutes each in order to meet the 150 hour per subject graduation requirement set for a subject credit.

The change, board members concurred, will affect many aspects of curriculum, choices of electives, physical education requirements, attendance and examination policies, and other phases of school planning.

Superintendent Glenn Cox also announced that along with this new ruling, the State Department of Education has announced a policy allowing high school student to enroll in technical institutes or com-

Governors Given Power For Gasoline Allocation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, faced with federal rules that contribute to long gasoline lines in urban areas, is granting governors new authority to shift up to 5 percent of their state's gasoline supplies from the country to the city.

That would be in addition to the 5 percent "set aside" they already control.

Carter made the new offer Monday after being told federal allocation rules "put the gasoline where the cars are not."

The common reaction of several governors queried was that they would have to wait until they see specifics of the plan before commenting on how it might work in their states.

Carter planned to work today on details of a "bold and forceful program" to cut the nation's thirst for imported oil.

He will explain the general outline of the program in a broadcast speech to the nation Thursday at 9 p.m. EDT — his third energy speech since taking office.

The program is expected to include a revived standby gasoline rationing plan, federal incentives for producing synthetic fuels, mandatory thermostat controls for non-residential buildings and a fleshed-out version of an "energy security fund" he proposed in his last energy speech.

There also could be some replays of earlier proposals such as the ill-fated tax on automobiles that get poor mileage, which was part of a package Carter sent to Congress in 1977. Referring to that package Monday, White House press secretary Jody Powell said: "If those proposals had been accepted, we would be in much better shape than we are now."

This time Carter is taking special pains to clear his proposals in advance with key members of Congress and their staffs. Powell said two task forces are being set up to include administration and White House officials and representatives of Congress. One deals with energy and the other to the closely related topic of inflation.

Carter said Monday he is convinced Congress, which so far has rejected all administration proposals aimed specifically at curbing oil use, is now ready to act because of current fuel shortages, the threat of a home heating oil "crisis" next winter and the shock of this year's 60 percent price increase by oil exporting countries.

"I want a bold and forceful program that... will be highly acceptable and that we can move without delay," Carter told a group of energy advisers at the start of a White House meeting Monday.

Just before that meeting began, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger told Carter, in a murmured exchange picked up by tape recorder microphones, that federal gasoline allocation rules are hurting urban areas by continuing to ship gasoline to the country despite reductions in long distance driving.

Work Is Underway On Long-Delayed Housing Complex For Elderly

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Work is finally underway on the long-delayed mid-rise housing complex for the elderly between E. Third and E. Fourth Streets, the executive director of the Housing Authority noted Monday night.

Joe Laney pointed out that the bond sale for the 60-unit development was closed on June 13 and the contractor moved onto the site the next day.

Laney said that clearing and grading work has progressed and the firm that will handle the pile driving has arrived on site. A test pile will be driven late this week or early next week, he added.

According to the official, the general contracting firm of R. N. Rouse & Co. of Goldsboro has prepared a detailed work schedule for the project, calling for a 12-month completion date with favorable weather and 13 months in the event of lost time due to bad weather.

A pre-construction conference was held Monday, Laney mentioned.

The five-story mid-rise will face Third Street on a 1.5 acre site beside the St. Paul Episcopal Church property. Each floor of the complex will contain 12 apartment units of 502 square feet of living space each.

Laney informed the commissioners that Jimmy

Brewer, who owns property adjoining the project site, had expressed an interest in the Authority conveying to him some ten feet along the width of the tract on the south property line. Brewer had indicated the additional 1,390 feet would allow him an extra driveway for his Fourth Street duplex.

The executive director reported that Brewer agreed, in return, to convey to the Authority some 50 feet or 3,250 square feet on the rear of the project boundary.

Laney said that the exchange was equitable for both parties, providing Brewer with a needed driveway section and allowing the Authority to increase the size of the

DONATIONS NEEDED

Nine young athletes from Pitt County have qualified for the national Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Track and Field Age Group competitions in Omaha, Nebr.

"We'll go," Coach Clem Williams said, "if we can get together enough money. We've made plans to go all in one van, which is the least expensive way we can figure. The cost should be about between $1,200 and $1,300."

Williams has asked Hotline to appeal for donations for the trip. Checks may be made out to the Coastal Carolina Track Club, which is an affiliate track club of the AAU. The AAU and the Coastal Carolina group are non-profit organizations and donations are, therefore, tax-deductible, he said. Williams said he needs to let AAU officials know by Saturday whether the Pitt County group, who have among them two defending national champions, will be attending. So he asked that those who wish to donate do so as quickly as possible. For further information, or to let the group know donation is on the way, one may call either Clem Williams at 825-9431 or Tommy Jamieson at 756-4396. Donations may be mailed to Box 701, Bethel, N.C. 27812.

The competition is to be held in Omaha July 27-29.

Preparing List Of Orphans Among Boat People

By HARI S. MANIAM
Associated Press Writer

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The U.N. refugee office is preparing a list of orphans among the 76,000 Vietnamese refugees in Malaysian camps to assist in their adoption by foreigners, refugee officials reported today.

The list will give the histories of the young Vietnamese and Vietnamese-Chinese and other details about them, the officials said.

They reported inquiries have been received from would-be American parents and others but could not say how many there had been. There was no report of any adoptions.

There are an estimated 2,000 to 3,000 orphans under the age of 18 among the refugees in Malaysia. The officials said 1,843 of them — 1,506 males and 337 females — are among the 42,000 boat people in the camp on Bidong Island, off the northeast coast.

In addition to children whose parents died in Vietnam or on the voyage to Malaysia, the orphans include some whose parents stayed in Vietnam and sent their children away with others. The officials indicated these might not be available for adoption because the authorities fear the parents might turn up later and make trouble for those who took their children.

Meanwhile, refugee officials said, the orphans are being cared for by the other refugees with whom they escaped from Vietnam. But they said there are no reports of any of them being taken to the United States or other countries when families that have been looking after them are accepted for resettlement.

The Malaysian government announced that three more boats with a total of 1,056 refugees aboard were intercepted as they tried to land on the northeast coast Monday and were towed out to sea. This brought the number of boat people known to have been expelled from Malaysia this year to 57,513 and the number since June 18, when the government hardened its policy, to 15,513.

Batts-McCombs Vows Are Solemnized Sunday

The Memorial Baptist Church of Greenville was the scene of the Sunday wedding ceremony uniting Miss Carol Jean McCombs and Randy Ellis Batts of Greenville. The Rev. E.T. Vinson and Dr. Will Wallace performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sterling McCombs of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Batts of Rt. 1, Greenville.

A 19-branch candelabra flanked the altar with two nine-branch candelabra filled with white daisies, ferns and leather leaf. A kneeling bench was used to complement the unity candle setting, accented with ferns and leather leaf. Aisles were marked with eucalyptus, mixed greenery and white lace markers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white lustre glo over white peau de soie designed with a modified Queen Anne neckline outlined in sculptured floral Venice lace beaded with pearls. The blouson bodice was styled with short caplet sleeves overlaid in floral lace. Matching beaded lace appliques accented the waistline, from which fell the flared skirt extending into a chapel length train. The skirt and train were edged in scalloped silk Venice lace. The bride wore an imported braid garden hat with the brim encircled in a double layer of silk organza and the crown overlaid in re-embroidered alencon lace, beaded with pearls. The back of the hat was enhanced by a florette of organza, centered with a white silk rose, from which fell the floor length veil of illusion, accented with scattered alencon lace appliques. She carried a cascade bouquet of blue delphinium, lavender and white pom poms, purple statice and baby's breath, tied with white lace ribbon. She wore a hairpiece to match her bouquet.

MRS. RANDY ELLIS BATTS

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Lindy Williams, sister of the bride, Mrs. Delores Bunting, Mrs. Joanne Baker, all of Greenville, Mrs. Claudette Mansour, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Beth Hulsey of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Anne Bryant of Snow Hill, and Miss Christi Crough of Winston-Salem, niece of the bridegroom. They were dressed the same as the bride.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Sam Mansour of Raleigh, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Rusty Sherrod of Raleigh, Rob Whitley, Billy West, Bill Clayton, and John Williams, both brother-in-laws of the bride, all of Greenville.

Joseph H. Godwin, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. Steve Reel, soloist, sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride's mother chose a formal length gown of buttercup silesta with high choker collar, blouson bodice and flared skirt. She wore a pale green cymbidium corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a seaspray floor length gown of imported crepe and a white orchid corsage. The grandmothers, Mrs. Pearl McCombs, Mrs. Katie Modlin and Mrs. Geneva Webb, were remembered with orchid corsages.

The reception was held following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. Kim Hodges presided at the guest register. Dr. and Mrs. Wilkins Winn greeted guests. Mrs. Kenneth Raper and Mrs. Leonard Hignite served cake, with Miss Ginger Flye and Miss Linn Winbourne pouring punch. Tristin Jones and Stephanie Daniels, and Craig and Alesia Forlines assisted in serving. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnson. Mrs. Katherine Vincent directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip to Nags Head, the couple will reside in Greenville. The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and East Carolina University. She is employed by Greene County Schools. The bridegroom, a graduate of Rose High School, is the owner of the Black Jack Convenient Store. The bridegroom's family entertained with an after rehearsal dinner at the Three Steers Restaurant. A bridesmaids' luncheon was given at the Colonial Inn Saturday by Mrs. Steve Bryant, Mrs. Billy Dail, Mrs. Joseph Joseph, and Mrs. Tommy Bunting.

Couple Weds Sunday Afternoon

BELL ARTHUR — Victoria Lynn Strickland of Bell Arthur and Albert Reginald Edwards of Grimesland were united in marriage Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Bell Arthur United Methodist Church. The Rev. Berry O. Barbour of Gatesville, assisted by the Rev. Randy Wall, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Strickland of Bell Arthur. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert I. Edwards of Rt. 1, Grimesland.

A program of nuptial music was presented by D. J. Rasberry, pianist. Donna Rasberry, soloist, sang, "If," "The Wedding Song," and "The Wedding Prayer". The couple signified their unity by lighting a unity candle.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a white silk organza gown with empire waist and long bishop sleeves. The bodice was accented with a mandarin neckline, bib front and wide bands of Venice lace. The full skirt with built-in train featured a wide flounce, with lace bands. The bride wore a silk illusion fingertip veil attached to a Juliet cap of matching lace and carried a cloud of baby's breath with daisies and miniature carnations.

Maid of honor was Susan Gurganus of Biloxi, Miss., cousin of the bride. She selected a formal length light blue qiana dress and carried a white chrysanthemum with greenery and streamers. Bridesmaids were Donna Gurganus of Biloxi, Miss., and Daphne Strickland of Boone, cousins of the bride. They chose floor length light blue qiana dresses and carried white chrysanthemums with greenery and streamers.

The bride's mother wore a formal length pink qiana gown and a white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor length blue silk and chiffon gown and a white carnation corsage. The bride's grandmother chose a floor length light yellow qiana gown and a white carnation corsage.

Joe Wingate of La Grange, nephew of the bridegroom, served as best man. Phil Strickland of Bell Arthur, brother of the bride, and Terry Hamilton of Grimesland, served as ushers.

Miss Marie Gay of Bell Arthur presided at the guest register and Mrs. Geneva Lewis served as wedding director.

The reception was held following the ceremony at the bride's home. Mrs. Rosa Gurganus, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Ann Critcher, sister of the bridegroom, assisted in serving refreshments.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is presently attending East Carolina University. The bridegroom, a graduate of Grimesland High School, and is engaged in farming.

The bride's parents entertained with a rehearsal party at the home of Mrs. Ruth Gurganus, grandmother of the bride Saturday. The bridal couple presented their attendants gifts at this time.

MRS. THOMAS MICHAEL RONMAN

Miss Sudor, Mr. Ronman Marry

Deborah Joan Sudor and Thomas Michael Ronman were married Saturday at 11:00 a.m. in the home of the bride's parents in Ayden.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Victor M. Wilson on the lawn.

The bride's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Sudor of Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Z. Ronman of Chapel Hill.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Marcy Sudor of Greensboro was honor attendant.

The bridegroom's father served as best man.

The bride wore a formal length gown of ivory angel knit over ivory taffeta designed with a portrait neckline edged in piping and featuring a rolled tie bow at center front. The gathered empire bodice was styled with long full bishop sleeves with a flared ruffle at the cuffs with a miniature tie bow motif. The waistline was enhanced by a crushed self-fabric cummerbund from which fell the full gathered skirt. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, miniature red carnations, blue pom poms, apricot pom poms and baby's breath.

The honor attendant wore a fern green summer sheer gown. The town was of fashion length with a wide gathered sash. It featured a deep V-neckline and elbow tip sleeves which were set off from the shoulders. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore a beige street length dress with a mid-arm full sleeve. There was a muted floral print at the hemline and the same print rounded the neckline. She wore a lavender cymbidium orchid.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a daytime length dress with short sleeves. The dress was of pale blue cloud silk accented with white. She wore a green cymbidium orchid.

Following the ceremony, guests were invited into the dining room where the couple cut the wedding cake. The centerpiece was designed with an array of summer flowers and lighted tapers. Flower arrangements were placed throughout the house using the same color scheme. A buffet luncheon was served with Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stroud assisting.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans, La., the couple plans to live in Chapel Hill. The bridegroom, who attended Wingate College and Elon College, is now a coordinator for the Durham Exchange Club Sheltered Workshop. The bride, a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, is a teacher of home economics at Northwood High School in Pittsboro.

A dinner party honoring the bride couple was given by the bride's parents at the King and Queen Restaurant, Greenville, Friday. Out-of-town wedding guests were entertained.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I never reflect on the glorious Fourth of July that I don't remember our family reunions.

The entire clan would gather on the bank of some obscure Ohio river to play ball, eat, and gossip (not necessarily in that order).

Our family reunions were discontinued years ago when we could no longer keep track of who was speaking to whom...and why.

Keeping track of family sins was a year-round job and was not taken lightly. Our oracle was my grandmother, who we consulted every other minute to find out who was "in favor" and who wasn't.

There was no such thing as a family misdemeanor...all offenses were mortal sins, punishable by "death by ignoring." Some of the more popular rules of misconduct that were noted at the reunion were:

Entered into a mixed marriage. He was a Democrat.

Was heard to say last year that Grandma's fried chicken was "pale."

Never sent a card at Christmas.

Never acted "right" since she dyed her hair.

Went back after Bill's funeral and reclaimed her pot of flowers.

Never returned the piepan she borrowed 15 years ago.

Stole pictures of "mother" out of her album when she thought no one was looking.

Was tipsy at Georganne's wedding. (That took in 35 people alone.)

Got a new car and was "biggy."

Named her baby after a husband Grandma had divorced.

Visited for eight hours and didn't get so much as an apple or a drink of lemonade served.

The list was never discarded.

Each year, a few more names and crimes were added until it got to the point where if you said hello to your own mother, you'd get it from Grandma.

The older I get, the more I think back on those Fourth of Julys by the river when we went swimming and the mud squished between our toes and the crowds moved under the disturbed muddy water to a new hiding place...the Haines family beat the Hudgels at softball 136-92...and we spit seeds at one another while the watermelon ran down our elbows.

But it had to end. After all, when someone accused Grandma of simonizing her car with lard to save money...what else could she do.

Cooking Is Fun

PATIO SUPPER

Broiled Pork Chops
Sweet and Sour Cabbage
Green Beans Rolls
Summer Fruit Iced Tea
SWEET-SOUR CABBAGE
Our tasters found this deliciously savory.

1 thin slice bacon, diced
1 medium-sized red onion, sliced thin (1 cup)
1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
4 cups shredded red cabbage (about 1/2 pound)

1 cup chopped cored apple
1/2 cup apple juice or apple cider

3 tablespoons red wine vinegar

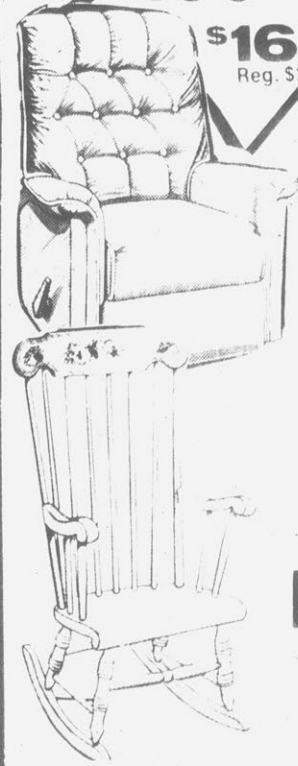

1/2 teaspoon salt
Few grains of pepper
1 bay leaf

Put bacon, onion and garlic into a large, heavy saucepan.

Cover and cook 10 minutes over moderate heat until onion is tender. Add remaining ingredients and toss to mix well.

Cover and cook 15 to 20 minutes over moderately low heat until cabbage is tender, checking often and adding a little water if pan seems too dry or if moisture consistency is preferred. Makes 4 servings. From "The ABC's of Diabetic Cooking and Dining," by Jane Helzel, R.D. and Elizabeth Lansing (Dell-Ivy).

An Art In Our Good Tobacco

Some 2,000 tobacco growers and those interested in the tobacco industry gathered in Raleigh last weekend to boost their product in a "Pride in Tobacco" campaign.

They had a rallying point in HEW Sec. Joseph A. Califano, Jr., whose vigorous campaign against tobacco is now well known.

Carroll Thompson, executive vice president of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. took note of Sec. Califano's stance on tobacco.

"The continued success of the tobacco industry depends upon presenting a united front to the Califanos of this world," he said.

Gov. Jim Hunt pointed to the economic impact of tobacco on North Carolina. This is expected to be the second billion dollar crop this year.

At the same time Hunt cited the excellent quality of the leaf turned out by North Carolina tobacco farmers.

"This excellence is the result of a combination of climate, science and a cultural heritage that passes the art of growing tobacco from generation to generation."

There's no doubt that producing a world renowned tobacco has become an art in North Carolina, just as some areas of the world are known for the fine wines they produce.

There is every reason to have pride in the outstanding product we produce, and we should defend it in every way we can.

As Of Now, Can Retire With Dignity

It appears official now that Muhammad Ali will retire from boxing as heavy weight champion, as recognized by the World Boxing Association.

He announced that he has sent in the letter.

If he sticks with it he will be wise. Ali has accomplished things in boxing no one else has and he has become one of the most exciting sports figures ever.

He can retire now with dignity. Another fight might change that.

THIS AFTERNOON

Assembly And People

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — After meeting for 108 sessions, taking a close look at 2,480 legislative proposals, and passing 1,077 new laws and 84 joint resolutions, the question remains: What did the North Carolina General Assembly do for the citizens of the state?

Careful review of the business shows little which will have immediate effect, but there were some laws which will change your daily activities a little.

In 1981, for example, those first-of-the-year lines to get new license plates for cars and trucks will end. A staggered registration system will be put into practice by which those new plates (or stickers) will be issued according to the last digit on the registration certificate. Registration will be conducted in nine months (March, April, May, July, August, September, October, November, or December).

Your driving license will change, then, too. A truck driver will get a Class A license; a bus driver a Class B license; and an automobile or light-truck driver a Class C license. Motorcycles will continue to need special qualification.

And beginning this year, if you are convicted of driving drunk, you must attend traffic school.

The stage was set for one major change when the Legislature put on the ballot for the 1980 general election a proposed amendment to the State Constitution: All judges must be lawyers. There are now eight district court judges who are not lawyers.

The major impact of that decision, if it passes the election, would be to end the running debate over merit selection of judges. Part of the impetus behind the effort to have merit selection rather than election has been to get better qualified people. If candidates have to be lawyers, then many proponents of merit selection consider that qualification enough. Also, changes are in the works to have Superior Court judges run on a district basis rather than statewide, since a major complaint has been that voters must choose blindly in those races in which the candidates aren't known.

At your local bank or savings and loan institution, some changes have taken place...but you as a consumer aren't likely to notice. Interest rate ceilings have been raised or effectively removed. But those rates will continue to be controlled by supply and demand of money, and aren't likely to escalate much. The moneylenders say the change will open up money supplies to them so there will be more to lend in North Carolina.

BILL NOBLITT

At your local bingo parlor, there are changes. Those local laws allowing promoters to run high stake games have been struck, and bingo is legal statewide only in games sponsored for charity with limits on payoffs and frequency.

Pupils

At the local schoolhouse, teachers will have one less pupil per class, but the law still allows deviations to make up for population patterns. The impact will not be very noticeable. Money to expand the Community Schools program statewide was made available.

Mothers and children born without benefit of proper nutrition, medical care and followup health attention are the target of expanded state efforts to reduce the risk of future mental, emotional, and physical problems. And for the first time there will be state money ($6.9 million) to help provide daycare programs for working mothers.

If you live on the outskirts of town and have been fighting annexation, you probably have lost. The Legislature put down every effort to change present liberal laws allowing municipalities to annex rather easily growing suburban areas in which the town can provide adequate public services.

Getting To Know You

SCRABBLE, VA. — The American Society of Newspaper Editors last year commissioned a study of newspaper readers. The purpose, to put it painfully, was to determine why newspaper readership is declining or barely holding its own. What are we doing that turns you off? What can we do to regain your affection?

The study, just completed, was undertaken by professional pollsters in 12 different daily newspaper markets. Some of the findings are enough to make an old-timer gulp. One of the principal conclusions is that many of us in the newspaper business have been trying earnestly to give you the kind of product you seem not really to want. We have been trying our hardest to be objective, dispassionate, impersonal and unbiased, we have been living up to the credo of Sergeant Friday: Just the facts, ma'am.

Well, says the study, "There is strong evidence that the impersonal nature of most newspapers, their remoteness from ordinary people, is an important factor in declining readership. Many comments suggest that readers feel little emotional attachment and less loyalty to newspapers whose editors and reporters are strangers to them."

In an age of TV celebrities and glamorous anchormen, the people have come to expect personal relationships with those who bring them news and commentary. They expect "a much more personalized journalism than tradition has permitted." They ask, "How can I believe you if I don't even know who you are?"

Let me do what I can to make amends. I am me, James Jackson Kilpatrick Jr., born in Oklahoma City, Nov. 1, 1920. My father, who died some years ago, was a timberman; my mother, who still lives in Oklahoma City at 85, is a gentlewoman who early in my childhood detected the writer's spark and breathed upon it.

We were moderately well-to-do through the 1920s. I remember a Hupmobile and then a Nash sedan as big as a covered wagon, and after that a series of Studebakers. In the summers we used to drive all the way to Brainerd, Minn., for a vacation on a lake. The roads were terrible, but my father — a great godlike figure with shaggy eyebrows and a formidable mustache — drove the Nash as if he were Poseidon driving a chariot drawn by dolphins.

It was a good childhood. A precocious little fellow, I went to a preschool kindergarten the autumn I was 4. I learned to read by the phonics method, so successfully that I was a committed bookworm at 6. Thereafter I read insatiably; I still do. My first published poem was in a magazine called Child's Life. I may have been 7 at the time. It was the year of Lindbergh's flight to Paris.

My father dealt in fence posts, railway ties and bridge flooring. Came the Depression and the bottom dropped out of his business. The stresses of that experience, plus some personal tensions I couldn't comprehend at the

Gas On Their Minds

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress also spend hours in long lines waiting for the chance to buy high-priced gasoline and they don't like it any better than the folks back home.

So, Rep. William Dickinson, R-Ala., was understandably annoyed when, after a futile quest for gasoline, selling for 93 cents a gallon, he read that storage tanks in the Washington suburbs were so full that some gasoline was being shipped to New Jersey.

"I left home at 6 o'clock in the morning to get gasoline," he told the House. "I passed 10 stations, at least. Each one had a line of cars from three to five blocks long. I was unable to get my gasoline ..."

"Now I read in this morning's paper what I have been told by a friend this past weekend who had a tanker truck, that there is no storage capacity in the area because all storage is full of gasoline. ... We are diverting gasoline to New Jersey."

Dickinson added that "let me say I do not mind New Jersey getting extra gas if they need it, but not at my expense."

At that point, Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., rose to the defense of his state:

"We need it. We have the most beautiful resort areas in the United States and the gentleman is welcome to drive up to New Jersey and we will try to get the gentleman some. The gentleman may have to pay a little more than 93 cents."

"I appreciate the offer," replied Dickinson. "And if we could run on hot air I'm sure we could do well in New Jersey."

"I am sure that is how the gentleman got in this morning," retorted Thompson.

Each horror story seemed to inspire another.

Rep. Dan Daniel, D-Va., reminded the House that in 1973

ADVERTISING DRIVE

Alaskans Ask 'New Day'

By ROXINNE ERVASTI
Associated Press Writer
JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska is hoping a $60,000 advertising campaign this gasoline-dry Fourth of July holiday week will win support for federal legislation to permit development of its natural resources.

The campaign in eight states asks Americans to declare a "New Independence Day."

The ads advance the state's position on Alaska lands legislation now pending in Congress. They ask Americans to support legislation the ads say will assure energy independence for America, while protecting the Alaskan environment and granting Alaskans "the rights inherent in U.S. statehood."

The campaign is part of a $2.3 million state-funded effort waged throughout the continental United States over the past four months.

The Alaska Legislature, which opposes restrictive federal land legislation, granted the money to match what it called a "massive war chest" by environmental groups.

This week's ad campaign "is especially timely with the new OPEC price increases and the shortages of national fuel supplies over the Independence Day holiday," said Robert Clarke, director of Gov. Jay Hammond's Office of Telecommunications.

"Up here, we may be concerned about land conveyance, access, fish and game management and self-determination, but these concerns don't mean much to the people outside," Clarke said. "Energy is their issue, and our ads attempt to relate our concerns to theirs."

Alaskans use the word "outside" to refer to the other states.

The ads were placed in newspapers in New York City, where much of the national media is located, and in Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Hawaii, Wyoming, Arkansas and Kentucky — the home states of members of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, most of whom are now at home for the July Fourth recess.

Headlined "Alaska Wants America to Declare a New Independence Day," they say the state has been given title to only 21 million of the 164 million acres promised in the 1959 Statehood Act.

To the editor:

In response to the complaint about "night clubs" in the Wednesday, June 27, Hotline column:

I am a concerned parent, also. However, night clubs do not allow children on premises and they do not stay open all night. Has the person complaining been in a club himself? Why not let the adults of Greenville and Pitt County choose for themselves? Certainly children should not be exposed to alcoholic beverages. However, for those who wish to go to a night club, they should have a place to go and those who don't can STAY HOME.

Strength For Today

God's object in giving us life appears to be His extension to us of an opportunity to grow. We start as mere cells, we grow into persons. We begin with no purpose in life except to eat and sleep; we end by managing projects and enterprises. Our religious faith tells us that in the world beyond we will be associated with God Himself in the extension and management of great enterprises.

It is a dreadful thing when one grows in only one aspect of life. Some people grow physically and even spiritually without growing mentally to any considerable extent. Still others lack growth in the physical or moral dimension. But perhaps those most to be pitied are those who have grown physically and mentally but not spiritually.

One of the many marvelous things about Jesus was that he grew "in wisdom, in stature, in favor with God and man." In this fully-rounded growth pattern he is the ideal of all of us who wish to reach our ultimate potential.

Questioning Is Now The Style

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — With economic certitude gone, maybe for a long time, questioning has become the style of economic commentary. The White House questions, economists question, and so do Wall Street analysts.

Those with answers are, in fact, questioned. How can they be so sure? Where do they obtain their information? Is their data reliable? If you've got a solution, the feeling is, then you must be a crackpot.

The problem for many people involved with the economy is that their jobs or reputations depend on forecasting. And so they forecast, but in effect they ask questions, as Albert T. Sommers has just done.

Sommers is the well regarded economist of the Conference Board, an organization so often confused with government agencies that it must constantly emphasize its private, educational, non-profit nature.

Today the board announced results of its economic forum, which synthesizes the views of 15 economists and business leaders. The synthesis: "A very mild recession, followed by a mild recovery."

Said Sommers, "we have found no basis for expecting a prolonged and deep recession even approaching the experience of 1973-1975," the deepest setback since the Great Depression of the '30s.

Are the gentlemen sure? No. "We are uneasy with our relatively comfortable consensus," said Sommers. Then he gave the reasons why, reasons that might just as easily be posed as questions.

The uneasiness, he said, is because of:

— "The presence of the uncertain near-term data at our disposal."

— "The strained and unfamiliar domestic and international monetary situation that confronts us."

— "The subdued but nevertheless visible evidence of lost resilience and wavering trends in certain important markets."

— "And, perhaps most importantly of all, the enormous uncertainties affecting the future of energy prices."

Uncertainty plagues economists. They wish they knew; they must appear to know; but they do not know.

They gather strength from the consensus of their colleagues, which is that we will indeed be in recession, and probably are in it right now. But then, they ask, will the recession cure the ills?

Nobody can say, and so they ask questions. Will the recession be to no avail? Will we emerge from it still with inflation and high interest rates? Will it be punishment without absolution from sin?

If economists deserve compassion, what emotion do we reserve for the stock analyst? They cannot retreat to the past, as can economists. Stocks are all future. That's where money is made.

Uncertainty is devastating to Wall Street.

Any stock forecaster worth a paycheck must therefore take a stand, the more Napoleonic the better. He must not show his chewed fingertips.

time, led to divorce. My mother went to work in a bookstore. I held down summer jobs as a copyboy at the Oklahoma City Times. Then I went off to the University of Missouri and worked my way through the journalism school.

Early in 1941 I accumulated enough credits for a B.J. degree. I am numbered among the "day people" who function best in the early morning, run down by afternoon and go yawning to bed by 10 o'clock. Therefore I wanted to work on an afternoon newspaper. The Richmond (Va.) News Leader took me on as a general reporter.

Chronic bronchial asthma put me 4-F in the draft. Every branch of the service turned me down. I couldn't even give blood to the Red Cross. So I served out the war as a brigade leader in the local fire guard and a volunteer in the air watch. Meanwhile I was covering every local beat on the paper — business news, state and federal courts, City Hall, police, fire, politics, the Virginia General Assembly.

After eight years as a reporter, they moved me into editorial writing. In 1949 Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, another godlike figure, named me his successor as editor. For the next 17 years I wrote thousands of words every week of solid conservative gospel. In 1964 I began writing this nationally syndicated column. Fifteen years later, here I am — married, three sons, three grandchildren, two dogs, a mortgaged home in the mountains 80 miles from Washington, a lawn full of crab grass and a garden full of rabbits. It's nice to get acquainted.

"the average retail price for a gallon of regular gas in Virginia was 38.9 cents. That same gallon of gas on May 15, 1979, cost 82.9 cents ...

"I long for the good old days when the oil companies, domestic oil companies, ripped me off less than half the price the federal government is ripping me off today."

And, finally, Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., reported that "overtaken with guilt by the fact I had been driving my car to work, when I could have as easily taken public transportation, I decided I would do my little bit as a citizen and ride the Metro rather than drive my car."

Reading the morning paper on the subway, Studds discovered that so many other people had decided to switch from their cars to public transportation that "Metro yesterday begged people not to use the subway during rush hours."

They also point out that Alaska's natives have received title to only 7 million of the 44 million acres they were promised under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971.

The ads say the United States faces a "new kind of foreign domination" that Alaska can alleviate. "Alaska has the potential to help eliminate the lines at America's gas stations. We have known energy reserves, or the potential to heat — and cool — the homes and industries of America until well into the next century."

In addition to the land promised but not delivered, the ads take aim at the environmentalist-backed Alaska lands bill introduced by Reps. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., and John Anderson, R-Ill.

That bill, passed by the House in May, would place almost a third of Alaska, 128 million acres, in national parks and forests, wildlife refuges, and wild and scenic river areas. It would designate 67 million of those acres as wilderness, the strictest land-use classification. Virtually all development would be prohibited.

Included in this category would be the National Arctic Wildlife Range, which the oil industry says could contain as much oil as the 10 billion barrels of recoverable crude found at nearby Prudhoe Bay, the nation's richest single oil find.

Also criticized are

President Carter's withdrawal of 56 million acres of federal land in the state for 17 national monuments, and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus' withdrawal of 57 million acres for wilderness study. The withdrawals mean that oil, gas and mineral exploration is prohibited in these areas.

Carter's action brought immediate protests throughout Alaska; he was burned in effigy in Fairbanks. When he stopped in Anchorage in June en route to a Tokyo summit meeting, a group of political and business leaders who had banded together under the name Commonwealth North told him the state's energy riches should not be locked up.

Pressure To Sell Their Land

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Members of a Greensboro family are not commenting, but state officials apparently are still trying to persuade them to part with land they own in Anson County which the Adolph Coors Co. is considering for a brewery.

Members of the McAlister family, who own about 1,600 acres adjacent to the main site on which Coors already holds options, attended a meeting last week at the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh.

It was reported that among those present with Gov. Jim Hunt were Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N. C., and state Secretary of Commerce Lauch Faircloth.

Wins Stipend, Tuition Waiver

Diane Rae Dancy of Greenville has been awarded a $15,000 stipend and tuition waiver for graduate study at North Dakota State University at Fargo, N.D.

Ms. Dancy will be working toward a doctoral degree in agronomy and the stipend has been awarded for research into questions of germination and dormancy of wild oats, a major weed which interferes with crop production in certain western states.

Ms. Dancy completed three years of study at East Carolina University and holds a bachelor of science degree in crop science from North Carolina State University. Her outstanding work at N. C. State was reported in a research paper which she presented at the Annual Meeting of the Southern Weed Society of America in January. The paper dealt with the influence of herbicides during the establishment of coastal bermuda grass.

In addition to her academic work at State, Ms. Dancy worked as a newscaster for WKNC radio and was an avid beekeeper.

DIANE DANCY

A 1971 graduate of J. H. Rose High School, Ms. Dancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Dancy of Greenville. She was elected to the national honor society in agriculture, Gamma Sigma Delta, in 1979.

Sell 25 Offices Of TransSouth

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-five offices of TransSouth Financial Corp., which is the NCNB Corp.'s consumer finance subsidiary, have been sold, according to NCNB.

The TransSouth offices, which are all in North Carolina, were sold to subsidiaries of Beneficial Corp. Beneficial Corp. is a diversified financial services holding company.

Thomas I. Storrs, chairman of NCNB Corp., said in a statement released Monday that the sale price, which is in excess of $40 million, is based on the accounts of the 25 offices as of the opening of business Monday.

Tobacco Companies Giving Feds 'Internal' Papers

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tobacco companies are giving the government internal documents that may show federal officials how the firms have kept sales high despite health warnings and advertising restrictions.

Arthur Adelberg, an attorney for the Federal Trade Commission, said Monday that companies started delivering documents recently after a legal fight that began in 1976, when the FTC subpoenaed them.

Adelberg said the FTC hopes the companies' market research documents will answer such questions as:

—Does the industry information show cigarette ads appeal to people under 18? The industry has maintained that cigarette ads are designed to hold their share of the market and not to convert new smokers. However, many youths take up smoking.

—What impact does the government-required health warning have? Packs must now say, "Warning: the surgeon general has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health." The FTC has asked Congress to require sterner health warnings, such as, "Danger! Tests prove cigarettes can kill you."

—Are the companies trying to subvert the health warnings? "We'd like to know if they are trying to make it look healthy by showing young people and scenic outdoor environments," Adelberg said.

The studies on human behavior are expected to deal with a point made by Surgeon General Julius Richmond in his report on smoking issued last January:

"Because of the research over the past 15 years, much is now known about the health dangers of smoking. But research into reasons why the habit is so widespread and difficult to break is still in its infancy. Little is known for certain and questions far outnumber answers," Richmond said.

The six major cigarette manufacturers and 20 advertising agencies argued that turning over the large number of documents involved would be an unreasonable burden. However, U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker upheld the FTC subpoenas early this year.

In the latest announcement of a document surrender, Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. said Monday it will turn over nearly seven tons of internal documents to the FTC Thursday. Wilson W. Wyatt Jr., an official of the Louisville, Ky.-based firm, said it took 24,000 man-hours and $800,000 to gather the vanload of materials.

Ernest Pepples, vice president and general counsel of Brown & Williamson, said, "The requirements of complying with this FTC subpoena are a good case in point as to excessive government interference into private business."

Brown & Williamson manufactures Kool, Viceroy, Raleigh and other brands.

"Each of us (tobacco companies) has a massive cloud hanging over us, and it will be there until the FTC decides what it is going to do and we can go back to just making cigarettes," Pepples said.

Adelberg said the FTC has not decided yet what action will be taken based on all the cigarette data. The options include an industry regulation on cigarette ads, pursuing false advertising cases against selected companies, asking Congress for legislation and publishing a report of findings, he said.

The subpoenaed materials go back to 1964, the date of the first surgeon general's report on health hazards of smoking. The subpoenas call for all "marketing, advertising or consumer surveys, experiments or other research" on the benefits and dangers of smoking, why people take up the habit and difficulties in stopping smoking.

The industry has tripled its spending for cigarette advertising since 1964 despite a ban on broadcast advertising that took effect in 1971. While there have been numerous studies connecting smoking to health problems, the industry has maintained that the case against cigarettes has not been scientifically proven.

Other cigarette makers issued subpoenas are: American Brands Inc.; Liggett Group Inc.; Lorillard, a division of Loew's Theatres Inc.; Philip Morris Inc.; and R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc.

The ad agencies are: Leo Burnett Co.; Post-Keyes-Gardner Inc.; Ted Bates & Co.; Wells, Rich, Greene Inc.; Young & Rubicam Inc.; De Garmo Inc.; Kenyon & Eckhardt Inc.; Foote, Cone & Belding Communications Inc.; Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborne Inc.; Grey Advertising Inc.; F. William Free & Co.; LKP International Ltd.; Needham, Harper & Steers Advertising Inc.; Norman, Craig & Kummel, Inc.; N.W. Ayer & Son Inc.; J. Walter Thompson Co.; William Esty Co.; SSC&B Inc.; Cunningham & Walsh Inc.; and Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample Inc.

Looking Into 1980 Chance

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Jim Hunt Exploratory Committee has been formed to determine just what the governor's chances are for winning re-election in 1980.

But Hunt's press secretary Gary Pearce said formation of the committee was not to be interpreted as re-election announcement.

"It's to see what the support is and to see if he should run," Pearce said Monday.

Formal announcement of the formation of the committee was expected to come this morning at a news conference on the downtown Fayetteville Street Mall in Raleigh.

One of the leaders of the group, that will also raise money toward a 1980 campaign, is former Democratic Party Chairman Betty McCain of Wilson. Other leaders were expected to be announced at the news conference.

The committee will serve as an outlet for supporters who are anxious to begin working for Hunt now, before he makes an official campaign announcement, Pearce said.

According to Pearce, there are a lot of such people out there, "straining at the bit to go."

Hunt is expected to announce his intentions for 1980 early this fall. Joe Pell, a political aide to the governor, said the announcement would probably come in late September.

Although no formal announcement has been made, there is little doubt that Hunt intends to run for re-election. He will be the first North Carolina governor able to seek a second consecutive term. A change in state law by the 1977 General Assembly allows incumbent governors and lieutenant governors to seek re-election.

Big Acreage In Soybeans

North Carolina farmers planted a record high acreage of soybeans in 1979. Corn acreage is also showing an increase from a year earlier, while flue-cured tobacco acreage is down. These findings were based on a survey of North Carolina farmers conducted around the first of June by the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Here are the estimates of different crops around the state: soybeans, 1,900,000 acres, up 17 percent from last year; corn, 1,850,000 acres, five percent more than last year; flue cured tobacco, 345,000 acres, down 12 percent from 1978; burley tobacco, 8,500 acres, down two percent.

Peanuts, 168,000 acres, down one percent from 1978; cotton, 50,000 acres, up 11 percent from last year; sorghum, 120,000 acres, down 4 percent from 1978; sweet potatoes, 40,000 acres, up five percent from 1978; hay, 355,000 acres, down one percent; wheat, 205,000 acres, up 14 percent; oats, 90,000 acres, down five percent; barley, 62,000 acres, up five percent; rye, 20,000 acres, same as 1978 planted acreage.

Stock And Market Reports

Poultry

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina F.O.B. dock broiler market was sharply lower, supplies adequate, demand moderate, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 49.03 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today was 1,924,000, including Wednesday's estimate.

Hens

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was lower with trading light. Supply burdensome, demand light. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm, Monday and Tuesday slaughter, too few to report.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today amid investor anticipation of President Carter's energy address later this week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was up .52 to 834.56 at noon.

But declining issues held a thin edge over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said traders seemed to be holding back in anticipation of President Carter's scheduled address to the nation Thursday night on the energy crisis.

Carter has said he will announce a "bold and forceful program" to deal with the nation's shortage of oil. Administration officials hinted that the program might include an increased emphasis on the development of synthetic fuels, possible gas rationing and a tax on large, gas-guzzling automobiles.

Caesars World led the active list at noon, falling 1 1/4 to 26 1/4. The firm predicted a fourth-quarter loss because of delays in the opening of its casino in Atlantic City, N.J.

The NYSE's composite index of its more than 1,500 common stocks was unchanged at 57.86 at noon. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .21 to 199.20.

Noon volume on the Big Board was 14 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared with 13.71 million shares in the same period Monday.

Among other issues, Deere Co. was up 1/8 to 39 1/4. Colgate Palmolive was unchanged at 16. Exxon lost 1/2 to 53 1/2 and Bristol Meyers held steady at 31 1/4.

project tract at no cost. The extra 50 feet, he added, could be used by residents of the complex for gardens or it could be landscaped.

Brewer has given his permission for the Authority to proceed with the matter and Laney said that the approval of the bond buyer would be needed to effect the exchange at the time of project completion. Commissioners authorized Laney to approach the bond buyer regarding the exchange proposal.

In another matter regarding the mid-rise project, commissioners assigned Laney as the contracting officer to serve as the appointed representative between the contractor and the Authority.

All but three of the 642 housing units operated by the Authority were occupied at the end of the month, according to Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, who noted that one of the vacancies was filled Monday.

Mrs. Streeter said that rent averages in the six project areas included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $68.96; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $79.87; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $79.86; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $71.18; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $61.31; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $88.01, for an overall average of $75.25.

munity colleges and receive both high school and technical credits for courses taken. This will be limited to five percent of the total student body.

Mrs. Rosalind Britt, guidance counselor, pointed out that in effect Rose High students already are required to have 18 units for graduation — 4 carried over from the ninth grade, plus 14 earned at Rose.

Rose principal Howard Hurt said he will champion the inclusion of a strong physical education program, with equal emphasis on health training in conjunction with actual physical activities.

Members School board members Miles Frost and Terry Shank stressed the importance of devising a curriculum that will provide students with a full scope of opportunities to take courses in art, music, journalism and other cultural programs.

Donovan Phillips said he wants to be assured that students have civic courses, including one on self-discipline.

Cox told board members that because of the late date in the State Board of Education ruling, he felt certain the board would agree to not making changes in the planned program for ninth graders for school year 1979-80. If the change-over had to be made prior to the school year 1980-81, Cox said, it would create problems since incoming ninth graders had already registered for courses — and teachers had been contracted for teaching based on registration.

Cox added that if Greenville is granted the one-year grace period, there will be no undue problems in phasing students into required and elective courses, working these into the program as the upcoming ninth graders progress into higher three grades.

Cox and his staff will have in readiness for the July 16 action meeting an outline of possible action for the board to consider in all factors that will be involved — including a suggested requirement that seniors be required to take a certain number of courses regardless of credits acquired in grades nine through 11.

In the field of teacher needs for the forthcoming school year, Cox presented a vacancy list of 35 positions covering needs at elementary, middle, junior and high school levels. The school board will be reviewing applications at an early date to make a decision on hiring teachers to fill these vacancies.

This list includes one health educator. Cox noted that the state will be funding eight health educators statewide for the coming school year, and that he has made application and is developing a project with the hope that Greenville will be one of the eight school systems to be assigned such a teacher.

He also noted that three-fourths of the funds for the salary of a teacher to work with suspended students has been authorized and that he is seeking a funding source for the remaining one-fourth of the salary for this position.

Beginning in the fall of this year, teachers and staff personnel of the central office will begin a correspondence/visitation effort for recruitment of teachers from universities, mostly in North Carolina, with a few Virginia schools on the list.

Recruitment members will be assigned to four teams, to be in contact with schools as follows:

— Team I — East Carolina University, Elizabeth City State, Fayetteville State, Pembroke State, UNC-Wilmington, and Norfolk State.

— Team II — A & T State, N.C. Central, N.C. School of the Arts, Winston-Salem State, UNC-Greensboro, Bennett College, and Guilford.

— Team III — Appalachian State, UNC-Asheville, Western Carolina, Barber-Scotia College, and Livingstone College.

— Team IV — N.C. State University, UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Charlotte, Johnson C. Smith, St. Augustine's College, and Shaw University.

In a brief budget review, Cox noted that the $2,407,330 approved for the current expense category and $95,978.35 approved for capital outlay budget will mean the schools will be operating on a very tight budget.

Physical Education Strongly Endorsed

In an appearance before the City School Board at its informational meeting Monday night, Dr. Edgar Hooks personally endorsed the concept of a strong physical education program in the city schools and offered the assistance of his department at East Carolina University in whatever way needed in formulating plans for such a program in the city schools.

Dr. Hooks is a professor and chairman of the ECU Dept. of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety. Speaking briefly on the functions of physical education within a school curriculum, Dr. Hooks said "some aspect of healthful living should be in every school program."

"Greenville," he added, "should not settle for a minimum requirement. We not only need a physical program for the handicapped and physically gifted, but one for the needs of all boys and girls."

"We hope that you will let us at ECU work with you in planning a model physical education program that will begin with the kindergarten grades and continue through the 12th grades, and on into university days," he said.

He presented a paper to board members in which the philosophy of physical education and health programs are encompassed. One of the concepts of the paper deals with what Dr. Hooks terms "a reasonable balance in those activities commonly grouped as team and individual sports, aquatics, gymnastics, self-testing activities, dance, and rhythms."

King Likes Chris Best

By WINSOR DOBBIN
AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King shrugged off the disappointment of losing to Tracy Austin to analyze the chances of the four Wimbledon semifinalists.

Billie Jean believes two-time champion Chris Evert Lloyd is the most psyched-up of the four.

Lloyd plays Evonne Goolagong Cawley in one of Wednesday's semifinals. Defending champion Martina Navratilova meets the 16-year-old Austin, a Rolling Hills, Calif., schoolgirl, in the other.

"I think Chris is the toughest mentally of those who have come through," said King, a six-time Wimbledon champion. "The semifinalists are of two distinct types. Chris and Tracy sustain their drive inwardly."

"Martina is physically the strongest — she is a brute — but emotionally she is up and down."

"Evonne really cares and her game suits these courts."

But Billie Jean, still hoping to win a record 20th Wimbledon title in the doubles, would not be drawn on making a forecast, on either the singles or her own chances in the mixed and women's doubles.

Austin took more than two hours to beat Billie Jean 6-4, 6-7, 6-2.

"That was one of the best wins of my life," said Tracy, who trailed 0-2 in the final set. "I told myself to fight harder than ever."

Austin's semifinal opponent, Navratilova, took nine successive games against Australian Dianne Fromholtz to win 2-6, 6-3, 6-0 after losing the first set in just 20 minutes.

Lloyd outlasted Australian Wendy Turnbull 6-3, 6-4 after a 1½-hour baseline battle. "I have never lost to her and I found she couldn't hurt me," said Chris afterwards. "I think I am ready to play Evonne now. I haven't played her for 18 months, but I don't think her game has changed that much."

Lloyd, beaten by Navratilova in a dramatic final last year, feels she is better prepared mentally this time. "This year I am tournament tough — I wasn't last year. Having played Eastbourne (a recent Wimbledon "warmup" tournament) and won there. I believe I can do it here."

Cawley, who won the title in 1971, had a straightforward quarterfinal victory when she beat Britain's Virginia Wade — the 1977 champion — 6-4, 6-0 on the center court.

The Australian was very happy with her performance. "I felt fine. I was in good touch and feeling confident. When I am moving well that is when I am playing well."

Turnbull, well beaten by Lloyd, fancies Cawley's chances. "I think Evonne could be the danger," she said. "I know she would like to win. She has the kind of game to beat Chrissie and I think she could beat everybody."

Phillies Celebrate Homecoming With Win

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
The Phillies were so happy to be back home in Philadelphia that they provided the fans and themselves with two surprises — a complete game and a victory.

"I guess it's home cooking," said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark.

The 6-2 victory over the New York Mets Monday night opened a 14-game Phillies home stand. And it was the first time in 12 games that Ozark has not had to call upon his bullpen.

"I just happened to pitch three good games against them," he said. "I have no hard feelings against the Mets because they traded me."

New York jumped on Espinosa for its two runs in the opening inning as Joel Youngblood walked and Rich Hebner followed with his fifth home run of the season.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 4
Tim Foli singled home Omar Moreno, who had doubled, to snap a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning and give Pittsburgh its victory over St. Louis. The Pirates jumped out to a 4-0 lead before St. Louis rallied to knot the score in the sixth on Tony Scott's two-run double and George Hendrick's two-run single.

Expos 5, Cubs 0
Steve Rogers hurled his fifth shutout and eighth complete game of the season as Montreal blanked Chicago. Rogers scattered eight hits and was helped by two double plays.

The Expos had 11 hits, including two each by Andre Dawson, Tony Perez and Ellis Valentine, whose check-swing single with the bases loaded drove in the final two runs of the game in the seventh.

Dodgers 6, Padres 3
Steve Yeager slammed two home runs — including a game-winning three-run blast in the 12th inning — and drove in five runs as the Dodgers snapped a six-game losing streak by beating San Diego.

Martina Advances

Defending champ Martina Navratilova dashes across court at Wimbledon Monday to collect a shot by Australia's Dianne Fromholtz during quarterfinal women's action. Miss Navratilova went on to win 2-6, 6-3, 6-0 and advance to the semifinals to face Tracy Austin. (AP Laserphoto)

Snow Hill In Series Sweep

WILSON — Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team wrapped up its best-of-three Area I playoff series with Wilson in two games last night by taking an 8-6 victory in 11 innings.

The victory puts Snow Hill into the semi finals against Pitt County, the top-seeded team in the tournament. Snow Hill, which tied for second during the season, was seeded fourth by drawing.

Snow Hill got off to a 6-2 lead in the game, but Wilson tied it up with four runs in the bottom of the ninth. Snow Hill then won the game in the 11th after Wilson loaded the bases in the 10th with one away and came away scoreless.

Billy McLawhorn scored the game's first run in the top of the first. He doubled and came home on an error.

Three Snow Hill runs came across in the fourth. Al Murray singled and stole second; he scored on Walt Tyndall's single. Tyndall moved to second on the throw home and came in on Jeff Scott's single. Robin Bowen got a base hit and Ken Johnson reached on an error to plate Scott.

Wilson scored two runs in the bottom of the frame, but Snow Hill added a run in the sixth by Johnson and another in the seventh by Tyndall.

In the bottom of the ninth, David Lawhon doubled for Wilson with one out and Greg Dail was hit by a pitch. Mack Smith walked, and after Collin Beaman came in to relieve Johnson on the mound for Snow Hill, Robert Wells reached on an error to score Lawhon and Dail. Ricky Matthews hit a fielder's choice and Smith was thrown out, but Jeff Lucas tripled to plate Wells and Matthews and send the game into extra innings.

In the bottom of the tenth, Wilson got a triple with one out and Snow Hill walked the next two batters to load the bases. Kevin Korpi came in to pitch and got the next two out.

Murray singled in the 11th for Snow Hill and Philip Gordon was hit by a pitch. Tyndall moved the runners up with an infield out and Moore reached on an error to score Murray. Scott singled in Gordon.

'Babycakes' New Tennis Darling

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — "Little Miss Babycakes," as Billie Jean King dubbed her, is the new darling of Wimbledon.

If 16-year-old Tracy Austin, with her pigtails, her mincing steps, ice-cool poise and radar shots, doesn't win the ladies' crown in these venerable tennis championships, the sedate British are apt to lose their reserve and start pulling ivy off the clubhouse walls.

They might even dump all the strawberries in the Thames.

She has won everybody's hearts — this slip of a lass who is absolutely imperturbable under pressure and now is ready to challenge a trio of seasoned champions for the game's biggest prize.

She is far from being as physically powerful as the defending titleholder, Martina Navratilova, whom Billie Jean described as "a brute." She is neither as graceful nor as naturally talented as Yvonne Goolagong Cawley, the young mother from Australia's Outback. But she has shown that she is as mentally tough and as grooved in her shotmaking as the phenomenal Chris Evert Lloyd.

And from no less authority than Ms. King, the "old lady" of the courts and an 18-year veteran of the international circuit, comes the statement that tennis championships are not won by strength and playing skill alone but by mental toughness.

"In that respect, I put Tracy in a class with Chrissie," said the rugged 35-year-old campaigner who has won virtually everything many times over. "You have to sustain concentration. You can't cut corners. You must drive internally."

Billie Jean had this further etched indelibly in her memory after Tracy beat her in a classic quarter-final match on Wimbledon's center court Monday 6-4, 6-7, 6-2.

It was a match Wimbledon watchers will talk about for

Rookies Have Great Season

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It's an unwritten rule in NASCAR racing: rookies don't challenge the established stars of the big-money Grand National circuit.

Nobody told Dale Earnhardt, Joe Millikan and Terry Labonte. At least one of them has been in the top 10 of every race this year and sometimes all three have made it.

"I guess we got here in the right year," Labonte said. "Some of the guys who've been up there a long time are getting old — or at least I think of them as old — and the time was right for younger drivers to move up."

Labonte, at 23, is the youngest of the three top rookie contenders. Earnhardt, son of a race driver, is 28. Millikan, a Richard Petty protege, is 29.

All three are looking for the Firecracker 400 Wednesday to give them a lift in the Rookie-of-the-Year competition, but it is isn't out of reason to think one might win.

They all drive Oldsmobiles, the hot car of the year with its slope nose, on the 31-degree-banked Daytona International Speedway.

Labonte starts from 10th place. He qualified at 190.457 mph. Earnhardt starts 21st off a 187.966, and Millikan 24th off 186.940.

Buddy Baker put his Olds on the pole at 193.196, and the other front-row starter, Neil Bonnett did 192.596 in a Mercury.

The biggest surprise is that three rookies got competitive rides in the same year. "Any other year, any one of us could have been rookie of the year with no trouble," Labonte said.

"The rides just came open at the same time," added Millikan. "I've been approached by a couple guys in the last two years but I turned them down because the cars weren't fast enough. I'm not about to ride around in 10th or 11th at best."

"Joe and I were lucky to be noticed when we drove in sportsman races. I heard the owners of this car were looking around and I started making inquiries. Then they came to me. I felt ready two years ago but couldn't get a good car."

In the current rookie standings, Earnhardt has 211 points, Millikan 208 and Labonte 179. But the final standing is based on the 15 best finishes among the 31 races of the year.

"Labonte has been doing real well in the last few races," Earnhardt said. "We have to watch out for him."

The Independence Day program begins tonight at midnight with the Paul Revue 250 for high-powered sports cars.

Pitt Legion Gains Sweep With 13-6 Victory Over Washington

WASHINGTON — Pitt County's American Legion baseball team spotted Washington a 4-2 lead, then stormed back to gain a 13-6 victory last night, ending their back-to-back twice in the bottom of the third. Keith Modlin walked and Batchelor reached on an error moving Modlin to third. Modlin then scored on a sacrifice fly by Drew Roberson. Don Burbage singled, scoring Batchelor.

Pitt added a third run in the top of the fourth. Topping walked and moved up on a sacrifice. Dixon then singled in Topping.

It stayed 4-3 until the seventh, when Pitt broke it open.

Mark Shank singled and stole second. Ben Wilson was safe on a fielder's choice that got no one. Topping then walked, loading the bases. Curtis Spencer cracked a double, scoring both Shank and Wilson, and Mark Douglas got another double, scoring Topping and Spencer. Will Sanderson followed with another double, driving in Douglas. Mike Campbell got a single, bringing in Sanderson, as Pitt moved into a 9-4 lead.

Pitt added another in the eighth. Barrett singled and moved up when Topping's grounder was thrown away. Spencer reached on a fielder's choice that scored Barrett.

Washington added another in the bottom of the eighth. It came on a homer over the left field fence by Vic Walls.

Pitt added three more in the ninth: Sanderson reached on a fielder's choice and Campbell walked. Shank singled, loading the bases. Barrett walked, scoring Sanderson, and Wilson hit a sacrifice fly to bring in Campbell. Topping singled in Shank, ending the Pitt scoring.

Washington got one more in the bottom of the ninth. Batchelor singled and Ed Stowe reached on an error. Pete Lee singled in Batchelor, and that was it.

Shank, Barrett, Topping and Dixon each had two hits to pace Pitt, while Prater, Batchelor and Greg Sullivan picked up two each for Washington.

The next series, with Snow Hill, will also be a best-of-three.

with the winner meeting the survivor of the Goldsboro-Rocky Mount series in a best-of-five for the right to represent the area in the next round of the state playoffs.

Goldsboro Is Series Winner

GOLDSBORO — Upstart Goldsboro completed a surprising sweep of second-seeded Williamston last night, 3-1, to take the best-of-three series in two games.

Goldsboro won the first game, 11-4, at Williamston.

Williamston was unable to get anything going in the game, getting only five hits, and helped by just one Goldsboro error.

The lone Williamston run came in the second inning. Trent Ange singled and scored when Hank Edwards doubled.

That 1-0 lead nearly held out, and only mistakes by Williamston brought on the loss.

In the bottom of the eighth, Goldsboro struck for the three winning runs. Joe Strouse led off with a single. A pickoff attempt was errored, and it allowed Strouse to race all the way to third. Cooke walked and stole second. Jones then reached on a second error, allowing both Strouse and Cook to score. Jones ended up on third on the play. Another pickoff attempt was misplayed, and that let Jones come in with the final run.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

Goldsboro will now face Rocky Mount in a best-of-three series with the survivor meeting the winner of the Pitt County-Snow Hill series for the area title.

Little League

Lions 8, Jaycees 6

Regular season champion Lions gained an 8-6 victory over the Jaycees yesterday, claiming the North State playoff title also.

The Lions now meet First Federal in the best-of-three series for the City Championship, starting Thursday.

The Lions pushed over two runs in the first to take the initial lead. Mike Taylor reached on an error and Tony Taylor singled. An error on the play moved both up, and another misplay let Mike Taylor score. William Ward hit a sacrifice fly to score Tony Taylor.

The Lions added a third run in the second, before the Jaycees got their first in the bottom of the third.

Tommy Roche walked and moved up on a wild pitch. He advanced on an out and scored when Kenneth Butler singled Roche in.

The Lions came back with four in the top of the fourth to sew it up. Steven Garrett led off with a hit and Mike Taylor singled. Patrick Rand walked, and Tony Taylor singled in Garrett. Ward reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Mike Taylor. A wild pitch let Rand in, and Tony Taylor scored on a passed ball.

The Lions added another in the sixth on a homer by Rand. The Jaycees got three in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Both Taylors had three hits, along with Garrett to lead the Lion hitting, while Ward added two. No one had more than one for the Jaycees.

First Federal 16, Wellcome 6

First Federal, which finished in second place in the Tar Heel Little League, captured the league's post-season playoff yesterday with a 16-6 win over the fourth place Wellcome team.

First Federal takes on the Lions in the City Championship, set to begin its best-of-three run on Thursday.

Wellcome scored first, getting a run in the first inning. Terry Warren reached on an error and Lark Wetherington doubled. Cedric Hines sacrificed Warren in.

Wellcome added two more in the second for a 3-0 lead.

But in the fourth, First Federal rallied for seven runs to take the lead for good. Chris Meeks led off with a single and Keith Gaskins walked. Tyrone Barrett cracked a home run, tying the score at 3-3.

Ervin Best walked, and Ricky Outlaw reached on an error. Brian Joyner singled, scoring Best, and an error let both Outlaw and Joyner score. Derek Dickens reached on another error, and moved up on a passed ball. He took third on an out and scored when Meeks singled.

First Federal added seven more in the fifth, and got two more in the sixth. Wellcome picked up three more in the fourth.

Joyner led the First Federal hitting with three, while Barrett, Best and Meeks each had two. Warren and Hines had two each for Wellcome.

Americans Off To Fiery Start In Pam-American Games

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — An unexpectedly fiery and colorful American squad blitzed the competition and set the stage for a rout Monday in only the first day of activity in the VIII Pan-American Games.

American swimmers swept all seven gold medals up for grabs Monday and were solid favorites to do the same thing in today's six aquatic categories. Records were rewritten in every event.

The potent United States men's and women's basketball teams slaughtered their opponents, and controversial men's Coach Bobby Knight even managed an international competition rarity — being ejected from the game, even though his team was leading by 35 points at the time.

The U.S. medal haul of 20, including 10 golds, easily outdistanced everyone, with the Canadians, hopeful of beating the Cubans for second place overall in the Games, next with 11 medals. Only two, however, were golds.

The Cubans had a slow start, in fourth place with only one gold, but their strongest sports are yet to commence play.

Sixteen-year-old Tracy Caulkins led the swimmers with two gold medals Monday, and goes for her third — in an attempt to garner five overall here — today in the 100-meter breaststroke.

The sensation from Nashville, Tenn., ripped off four seconds from the record she had set in morning heat races in the 200-meter individual medley, and then teamed with the 400-meter medley relay squad that knocked an incredible nine seconds off the previous Games record.

Other individual U.S. gold medal winners Monday in swimming were Ambrose "Rowdy" Gaines, Winter Park, Fla., in the 200-meter freestyle; Steve Lundquist, Jonesboro, Ga., in the 100-meter breaststroke; and Bob Jackson, San Jose, Calif., in the 100-meter backstroke.

J.A.'s In Victory

J.A.'s Uniforms won its fourth straight softball tournament this past weekend by defeating Bill's Barbecue of Wilson 12-8 in the finals of the Greenville Recreation Department Invitational tournament.

Sunnyside Eggs finished third and Silkscreen was fourth. J.A. pitcher Grant Jarman was named the most valuable player.

Gaines tried for another gold today with the 400-meter freestyle relay team. Linda Jezek, Los Altos, Calif., and Cynthia Woodhead, Riverside, decades — the new and the old, the kid and the matron, the clash of eras.

On one side, the fetching schoolgirl from Rolling Hills Estates, Calif., no more braces on her teeth, no fluffy dress with bows hanging around her knees, but a young lady in full command of herself and the situation.

On the other side, the bouncing, ball-banging, always aggressive six-time Wimbledon champion, rated the fiercest as well as the wildest performer the women's sport has ever known.

Could the kid stand up to such pressure? The crowd roared in the drama that an answer to the question might hold. It was hard to take sides. But the crowd loved the result.

Tracy looked out of her element on the center court. She could have been playing hooky from Rolling Hills High, where she goes into the 11th grade next year.

She is vest-pocket edition of Chris Evert Lloyd and Sweden's Bjorn Borg. She is imperturbable. Her thin face never changes expression. Whether a point is won or lost, her reaction is always the same — a quick pivot and mincing steps to her next position.

On the court, her shoulders are always stooped and she constantly looks at the ground, concentration emanating like electric sparks. She wore a white dress, yellow-and-blue trimmed, and socks with yellow tassels. She kept fondling a gold locket with 16 diamonds — a gift from a friend.

Billie Jean was Billie Jean — leaping and jumping and yelling at herself, looking at the sky, making invisible signs and touching her heart as if near a heart attack.

"That made me kind of mad," Tracy said. "I got distracted. She does some weird things ... That's her way of getting psyched up."

Calif., of the victorious 400-meter relay team, were also back in action today.

One of the biggest upsets Monday was newcomer Denise Christensen's defeat of veteran Janet Ely Thorburn, of Dallas, in the three-meter diving. Miss Christensen, of Tucson, Ariz., is in her first international competition.

Michele Beaulieu, Millbrae, Calif., collected a gold in the solo synchronized swimming.

The rest of the American Golds — out of a total of 16 awarded in all competitions Monday — went to roller skater Ken Sutton, Muskegon, Mich., in the 500-meter speed event, and the U.S. teams in the 100-kilometer cycling and air rifle.

The American basketball squads, based on their first round performances, looked like sure gold medalists too.

The women, led by Denise Curry's 27 points, stomped a Puerto Rico squad, 124-69, that they had feared.

The men looked generally awesome in their 136-88 crushing of the Virgin Islands — and so did their coach.

Knight was tossed out with his fourth technical foul of the sloppy game, in which 71 personal fouls were whistled, when he charged onto the court to criticize an official and then stayed there arguing.

"He (the official) took away a charging foul — he did," Knight insisted. "They called it first then changed the call."

Although the women do not play again until Friday, against a tough Canada team, the men will have to reorganize themselves quickly for a stern test tonight against the aggressive Cuban five, probably their strongest opposition in the round robin tourney.

Despite Woes, John Is Winner

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Tommy John has been taking his lumps these days — not from American League opponents but from his own teammates on the New York Yankees.

On Saturday he was shagging flies in the outfield when one of the balls hit him on the right forearm. On Monday night, before he was scheduled to pitch against the Boston Red Sox, he was taping a television interview while the Yankees were taking infield practice when he was struck under the right ear by an errant throw.

"I was talking," said John, "and the next thing I knew I was on the ground. My head was going around and around."

John got up, was given some medication and then took the mound as if nothing had happened. He limited the rugged Red Sox to five hits and became the American League's first 12-game winner with a 7-2 triumph.

In other AL action the Texas Rangers blanked the Baltimore Orioles 2-0, the California Angels topped the Oakland A's 8-3, the Minnesota Twins beat the Seattle Mariners 7-0 and the Cleveland Indians defeated the Detroit Tigers 8-4 in 11 innings.

Jim Spencer's home run in the fifth inning snapped a 1-1 tie. Jackson homered in the sixth and the Yankees broke the game open with four runs in the seventh on an RBI triple by Willie Randolph, a squeeze bunt by Bobby Murcer and a two-run single by Lou Piniella.

Rangers 2, Orioles 0
Baltimore, which had won 22 of its previous 25 games, began a 12-game road trip by being blanked at Texas. The Rangers' Steve Comer, 8-6, scattered seven hits, struck out two and walked three.

Texas got both its runs in the third inning when Richie Zisk doubled, Johnny Grubb walked and Jim Sundberg doubled them both home.

Angels 8, A's 3
Don Baylor hit his fifth home run in five days, singled twice, scored twice and drove in three runs as California topped Oakland. Baylor leads the major leagues with 69 runs batted in.

Baylor singled to drive in one run and scored another as the Angels scored five times against Oakland's Mike Morgan, 0-2, in the third inning. He hit his 17th home run of the season off Mike Norris in the sixth.

Twins 7, Mariners 0
Darrell Jackson and Mike Marshall combined on a six-hit and Glenn Adams had three hits and drove in two runs as Minnesota won its fourth in a row. The Twins broke the game open with five runs in the third inning capped by Butch Wynegar's two-run double.

Indians 8, Tigers 4
Jim Norris snapped a 4-4 tie with a bases-loaded triple in the 11th inning and came home on a sacrifice fly by Mike Hargrove as Cleveland defeated Detroit.

Ty Cobb had a 40-game hitting streak for the Detroit Tigers in 1911 and a 35-game string in 1917.

OFF TO RALEIGH — Members of the Pitt County Farm Bureau headed to Raleigh Friday to join approximately 2,000 tobacco growers from across North Carolina in a "Pride in Tobacco" rally at Dorton Arena. The purpose of the rally was to promote an awareness of the importance of tobacco and to show support of

Tobacco Co. Eyes Future

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — As long as Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. can sell cigarettes profitably, the company will continue to operate, according to the president of The Liggett Group.

"We're still talking about a $250 million to $300 million business," Raymond Mulligan said Monday of the tobacco company.

Mulligan denied any upcoming closing of the financially-troubled tobacco company this year despite the fact that 86 persons, including three vice presidents, were fired last week. The firings spurred speculation that The Liggett Group was preparing to close the tobacco operation.

"The only thing I can say is, we've got to get that company operating as efficiently as possible," Mulligan said in a telephone interview from his New Jersey home.

The corporation is moving its headquarters from Durham to Montvale, N.J., this summer. A move to sell the tobacco company to Dole Food Co. of Kenilworth failed last month.

Mulligan said L&M has had a "continual record of decline" in the past 30 years. He said, however, that overstaffing was the major problem.

"We're looking at years down the line," he said in answer to a question on whether L&M would close this year. "The company can operate...for a considerable period of time."

The firings last week involved people in research and development jobs. The three vice presidents who were fired are William B. Currin, vice president and general manager; John Hemingway, vice president of business planning and development; and Jack A. Rick, executive vice president of sales and marketing.

Stuck In Tub

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Janet Hansmann couldn't have thrown the baby out with the bath water if she wanted to. Her 15-month-old son Johnny got three fingers caught in the tub drain.

She called in firemen, but they couldn't help. So they called an ambulance, and took Johnny — and the bathtub — to the hospital.

The doctors couldn't help so they called in a plumber, who removed the drain plug from Johnny's fingers in the hospital maintenance department.

Johnny spent the night in the hospital with swollen fingers. His parents took the tub back home and called in another plumber to reinstall it and assess the damage.

Appointed New Superintendent

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Cleveland Hammonds, superintendent of the Inkster, Mich., school system, was named the new superintendent of Durham city schools Monday.

Hammonds, 43, will assume his new post on Aug. 1. He replaces Dr. Ben Brooks, whose contract was not renewed by the city school board.

Hammonds is the first black superintendent of a public-school system in North Carolina. He will be paid a salary of $43,419 a year.

He was given a four-year contract.

Two Men Are Charged With Cruelty To Deer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Two Charlotte men have been charged with cruelty to animals in the death of a deer police say was shot and beaten and its antlers torn off.

But the men say the animal was injured and they were trying to put it out of its misery.

Craig Hewell, 18, and Michael Dellinger, 23, both of Charlotte, have each been charged. Hewell says the incident was misunderstood. Officials say they are investigating possible hunting violations, also.

An autopsy showed the deer, a white-tailed male common to the woodlands of North Carolina, died of a rifle wound. Police say it was shot and beaten with a tire jack and its antlers torn off.

Hewell said, though, "I didn't touch the deer. We were just trying to put it out of its misery."

Dellinger could not be reached for comment.

According to Hewell, he and Dellinger drove Saturday to the Uwharrie National Forest about 60 miles east of Charlotte, to go fishing. He rounded a curve and struck the deer, which had bounded out into the road from a wooded area.

"The deer fell into the ditch kicking," Hewell said. "The guy with me (Dellinger) shot it with his rifle to put it out of its misery."

"We thought it was dead...we figured we'd take it home for the meat," he said.

They put the deer in the trunk of the car and headed home. "We thought sure the deer was dead, but then it started kicking back there in the trunk," Hewell said. "Mike was going to shoot it again, but he couldn't because his gun was broken. We were going to put it out of its misery, you know."

"It kept kicking and kicking back there. What could we do?" Mike took out his knife and tried to cut its throat and put it out of its misery that way. But it kept kicking," he said.

Hewell said they pulled into a parking lot when they got back to Charlotte to try to find another knife after the first one broke.

The police drove up, and the men gave them permission to search the car. Police say the deer had been shot and apparently beaten with the type of jack used to change tires. Hewell said Monday he "guessed" a jack was used at some point.

According to an autopsy done Sunday afternoon, the deer died of a rifle wound that fractured its vertebrae and right shoulder blade. There were also several skin lacerations and bruises, not in themselves fatal, according to veterinarian Dr. William Beck, and the animal's antlers had been torn off.

Their Terror Was Real, But Mass Murders Didn't Occur

LAKE ELSINORE, Calif. (AP) — It began with gunfire in the night and the piercing shout: "Don't shoot him in the head!" Peggy Hunter grabbed her 12-year-old daughter, and they fled for their lives.

For two weeks, authorities said, they ran through the forest, living off berries and roots, covering themselves with dirt when they slept, keeping a step ahead of the men they were sure had killed 10 of their fellow campers, including Mrs. Hunter's husband and son.

The terror was real, the murders never happened. The feared pursuers with dogs were search crews sent out to look for the mother and girl, believed to have been kidnapped.

And what about the shots and blood-curdling cry? Merely the killing of a raccoon so it could be tested for rabies, Riverside County sheriff's deputies said Monday.

Sunday morning, the pair emerged from the Cleveland National Forest, dressed in tatters, exhausted and hungry. They headed home to recover from an ordeal authorities related this way:

On June 16, a camper at a Seventh-day Adventist youth camp was bitten by a raccoon, and camp officials shot the animal.

Mrs. Hunter, 34, and her daughter, Jennifer, were awakened by the shot. They also heard someone say: "Don't shoot him in the head" and the sound of fireworks being set off in the area.

It sounded like mass murder, the woman and her daughter thought.

Mrs. Hunter bit a hole in the rear of the tent, and she and Jennifer, both clad only in nightgowns, fled into the forest about 40 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, search teams in mountain garb combed the area, fearing the mother and daughter had been kidnapped, perhaps by a rowdy motorcycle gang that had been bothering other campers.

But to Mrs. Hunter, the rescuers were pursuers and she wasn't about to stop unless she saw a police uniform. Riverside County Deputy Ralph Woodworth explained Monday.

"She thought they were searching for the last survivors of this mass-murder. She thought that only she and her daughter had survived," Woodworth said.

After several days of hiding, Mrs. Hunter began to hallucinate, he said, and would run away whenever she or her daughter saw someone.

Jennifer "tried to keep her mother rational," Woodworth said. "She kept quoting things from the Bible."

The mother and child were nearly naked when a passing motorist picked them up Sunday. They went home, suffering mental and physical fatigue and weight loss, but otherwise in good condition, authorities said. The family was not available for comment.

Nixon Expected To Visit Shah

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A U.S. Embassy source says former President Nixon is expected to visit Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi this week at the heavily guarded Mexican villa his former ally is occupying.

"It is true that we think he is coming, but we don't know when," the source said Monday night. "We are ready to help out in any way we can with logistics or whatever, but so far there have been no official requests for any kind of assistance."

"In all likelihood, given what we know, we can expect Nixon to visit the shah later this week," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

"We don't know when he is going to come, if indeed, he is going to come at all," he added.

Nixon's aide in San Clemente, Calif., Col. Jack Brennan, was not available for comment. In Washington, State Department spokesman Thomas Reston said he knew nothing about a trip to Mexico by the former president.

It was reported in Mexico City that Nixon had planned to come on a Western Airlines flight from California, but the airline cancelled all flights to Mexico because of labor trouble here.

The deposed Iranian monarch and his family are living in a palatial, rented villa in Cuernavaca, 45 miles south of Mexico City.

He arrived June 10 from the Bahamas after getting a 90-day tourist visa with the help of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the foreign policy chief of the Nixon administration.

Policy Adopted By Winterville

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville town board of aldermen met Monday for the regular monthly meeting, after meeting Friday for the adoption of the yearly budget, totaling $1,241,854.

The board adopted a new personnel policy for town employees, concerning such items as holidays, vacations and sick leave time.

In action on the town's Community Block Grant, the board accepted four bids for rehabilitation, with amended contracts on two of the items. Demolition bids and appraisals were also accepted.

The board adopted a professional conflict of interest policy for those professional persons hired by the town to render services, such as attorneys and auditors.

After fire and rescue reports were given and accepted, the board approved the financing by the developer on the 15-lot Warren-Gardner subdivision.

Revival Series Is Underway

WINTERVILLE — Evangelist Mrs. Lessie Harrington Blunt of Silver Springs, Fla., is conducting revival services this week, July 2-6, at Christ Cares United Church of Christ, North Railroad St., in the old Mount Shiloh Church building.

Different singing groups will accompany Mrs. Blunt, with services nightly at 7:30 p.m. Evangelist Mrs. Shirley Sheppard, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Extra Fuel For N.C. Farmers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Monday that farmers who anticipate shortages of middle-distillate fuel for farming this summer can apply to the state for additional fuel.

Graham said the Energy Division of the state Department of Commerce is administering the program, known as the set-aside program.

"Agricultural producers should keep a close eye on the amount of fuel they have for any given month and if they anticipate shortages, they should apply for the additional fuel needed," Graham said.

Five percent of the gasoline and 4 percent of the diesel fuel, kerosene and No. 2 fuel oil that enter the state each month are put in the state set-aside program for emergency use.

reading, with county white children scoring two to three months better than the state average. Low income ($5,000 or less) families had children placing one month above state averages in reading.

Although the state did not test fourth and fifth grades, Pitt County children placed fourth grade, three months, and fifth grade, fourth months, respectively, compared the national levels of fourth grade, seventh month, and fifth grade, four months on the reading tests.

County sixth graders placed sixth grade, one month, compared to the state average of sixth grade, fifth month, and sixth grade, seventh month on the national level for reading. Black county children performed two to three months below state figures in reading, with white children performing above state ethnic averages in reading.

County students tested in the seventh grade placed at sixth grade, ninth month, compared to the national average of seventh grade, seventh month. Eighth grade students posted an average of eighth grade, with the national average, eighth grade, seventh month.

Pitt County students in the ninth grade placed eighth grade, fifth month in reading, compared to the state average of ninth grade, second month, and the national average of ninth grade, seventh month. Black county students placed two months behind the state averages in reading, with white children behind two months in the state ethnic averages.

MATH RESULTS

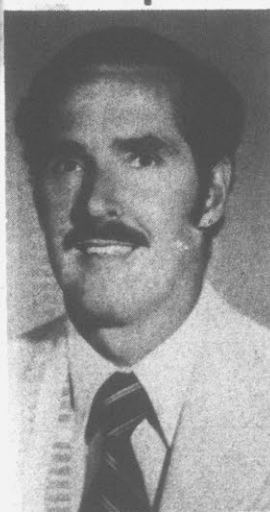

Pitt County first graders placed second grade, third month, in the mathematics section, compared to the state average of second grade, third month, and the national average of first grade, seventh month.

County second graders placed third grade, third month in mathematics, one month lower than the state average and six months better than the national norm.

County third graders placed third grade, seventh month, just the same as the national average in mathematics, but one month lower than the state figure. County black children scored one month below state ethnic averages in math, with white children performing two to three months better than state ethnic averages. Children from middle and upper income families performed above the state average, according to McKnight.

Fourth grade students in Pitt County scored fourth grade, sixth month on the mathematics section, compared to the national norm of fourth grade, seventh month. Fifth graders in the county fared one month behind the national level of fifth grade, seventh month.

Missionary Will Speak

REV. JERRY BARRON

The Rev. Jerry Barron, missionary to Guadalajara, Mexico, will be the guest speaker for "Missions Day" Sunday, July 8, at Temple Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville.

The Rev. Barron, a California native, is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tenn. The Rev. Barron will be accompanied by two Mexican nationals who will be sharing their testimonies in the service.

Missions Day services will begin at 10 a.m. Sunday with a slide presentation. The Rev. Barron will speak at the 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. services.

The Rev. Richard Kennedy, pastor, and the people of Temple Church invite the public to attend. The church is located near Sunshine Garden Center on State Road 1708.

County sixth graders placed sixth grade, fifth month, as opposed to the state average of sixth grade, eighth month, and the national average of sixth grade, seventh month. County blacks performed two to three months below the state ethnic average in math, with whites scoring above the state averages.

County seventh graders scored seventh grade, fourth month in mathematics, compared to the national average of seventh grade, seventh month. Eighth graders in Pitt County fared eighth grade, one month, as opposed to the national average of eighth grade, seventh month.

On the ninth grade level, county students placed eighth grade, seventh month, five months behind the state average of ninth grade, two months and ten months behind the national averages. County black students placed three months behind their peers in mathematics, with white students equal to the state ethnic averages.

"With our new promotion-retention policy, students are no longer shuffled from grade to grade," noted McKnight. "Teachers are more demanding of their students."

"If a person believes that reading is the key to learning all other subjects, then around the fourth grade, reading is taught as a separate subject," said McKnight. "If kids haven't grasped the reading skills by then, individual weaknesses begin to show up."

Recession

EDEN, N. C. (AP) — Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N. C., says he believes the recent increase in oil prices probably will throw this country into a recession.

He adds, however, that North Carolina seems to be doing well economically and could escape the recession entirely.

Preyer toured the Anaconda Wire and Cable plant Monday and made his prediction in remarks to employees. He said the oil price increase could have a "devastating effect" on the country.

"The two main problems facing the country are energy and inflation, and the two are inter-related," Preyer said.

"If things break in the right way," he said, "inflation might be brought down to about 8 percent by the end of the year. There would be a mild recession and we'd begin to see foreign investment come in."

He said if things "break badly, we'll be in for some hard times. We'll have a deep recession with inflation."

Preyer said an oil-induced recession could bring on the worst, causing a severe recession, unemployment and high inflation.

President Carter also has said a recession is "much more likely" in the U. S. as a result of the oil price increase announced by the OPEC countries last week.

Honors Go To Local Civitans

ATLANTA, Ga. — The Civitan Club of Greenville, and its 1977-1978 president, Richard A. Stephenson, were honored yesterday at the annual convention of Civitan International here.

The Greenville club was named an "Honor Club", and Stephenson was named a "Distinguished President."

The designation of honor club is the highest self-judged achievement award offered by Civitan International to its member-clubs, which total more than 1,100 in eight nations.

Honor club presidents are recognized for their leadership with the distinguished president award.

In achieving honor club status, the Greenville club was judged to meet the highest standards established by Civitan International on the basis of its achievements in the areas of community service, knowledge of community issues and opportunities, excellence of club management, and club fellowship.

Stephenson is a professor in the Department of Geography at East Carolina University.

Plan TV Outlet In Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A group of businessmen has filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission to construct and operate a television station in Fayetteville.

The group said it hopes to have FCC approval of the station within the next six months. The station would broadcast on cablevision and on UHF channel 40.

Robert Warren, president and general manager of Fayetteville Television Inc., said, "If no one else files, then we've got it. There is still a slim chance that another group may come in. But as of right now, we don't know of any competition."

Alton Warren Planning Step Down On Dec. 5

Alton Warren, the city's chief building official since 1974, has submitted his resignation to City Manager Ed Wyatt, effective Dec. 5.

Wyatt confirmed today that Warren, who has served on the city staff for 12 and a half years, delivered his resignation to the city manager's office on Friday.

"Mr. Warren has expressed an interest in providing for continuity with a new chief building official and the date of his resignation will provide ample time for a new administrator to become familiar with Greenville's Inspections Department," Wyatt commented.

The city manager added, "On behalf of the city of Greenville, we greatly appreciate Mr. Warren's 12 and a half years of service and especially his assistance to the citizens of Greenville in times of emergencies, such as the Meadowbrook flooding."

Wyatt also commended Warren for helping "greatly to upgrade sub-standard housing in Greenville through an aggressive code enforcement program."

Warren, in his letter of resignation, offered his help in finding a successor to the building official's post.

Warren, who began his association with the city on Nov. 2, 1967, was appointed acting city inspector by the City Council on Feb. 21 of 1974. On Sept. 8 of 1974 Warren was reclassified to a permanent position as chief inspector and the post was later designated as chief building official.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Daytime delays in various activities you have in mind can be annoying, but in reality they give you additional time to perfect and work a better course of action. Maintain a cheerful manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find a better way of handling your daily chores. Steer clear of useless chatter that could slow you down. Be right on your toes.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An associate could give you trouble because of disagreeing with you on a matter, so keep silent at this time for best results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't hurry at any work you have to do today, otherwise you could easily get it all botched up. Show more generosity to others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be careful in the handling of financial matters early in the day. A good time to engage in creative activities.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't start a new project. Handle regular routines early in the day so you will have time for social activities later.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Go to the right sources for the information you need. Find a better way to put your finest ideas across to others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you apply yourself seriously to the tasks at hand, you can easily get rid of money worries and be happier.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listening to what to what some of your dynamic associates have to say is wise now, and you get ahead faster. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make a good impression on higher-ups now by being more precise where your work is concerned. Sidestep an opponent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are now able to realize an ambition you have had a long while. Use your intuition and make real progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to handle obligations for which you have had little in recent days. Avoid a tendency to be extravagant.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have new ideas that activate you and should be put in operation quickly. Make sure your activities are well-organized.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will one with a serious nature, who will make plans and then carry through with them intelligently. There's much ability here at investigating and coming up with the true facts. Teach to be more understanding of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Finishing and mountaineering seem to have one thing in common—you do it "because it's there." That is reason enough to climb Everest, but it does not justify an unnecessary finesse.

After an orthodox auction,
South became declarer at a contract of four spades. West led the king of hearts and East discouraged by playing the deuce. West shifted to the ten of clubs and declarer "automatically" finessed the jack—which blew the contract, although an obscure line might have prevailed.

East covered with the queen and declarer won the king. After drawing three rounds of trumps, declarer tried to strip clubs from his hand and dummy. But East had to gain the lead with the nine of clubs, and his diamond shift guaranteed two tricks in that suit for the defenders—down one.

Observe the difference if declarer resists the allure of the club finesse, and allows West to hold the ten of clubs—declarer should realize that it is important to keep East off lead. Best defense is to simply continue clubs. Declarer wins in hand, draws trumps ending in dummy, and ruffs a heart. Now he crosses to the ace of clubs, leaving this position:

♦ 9

♥ A 9
♦ K 10 6

♦ Q 10
♦ A Q 2

All declarer has to do is lead the queen of hearts from dummy and discard a diamond from his hand. West wins the ace, but he is end played. A diamond would be into declarer's ace-queen, while a heart would allow declarer to ruff in dummy and discard the queen of diamonds from his hand.
Either way, declarer will lose two heart tricks and a club.

Looking For Carson's Heir Apparent

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
Johnny Carson's impending abdication of his late-night freedom has surfaced an entire population of heirs apparent.
Anyone who has ever cracked a joke has been mentioned as Carson's replacement on
"Tonight."

Bill Cosby, Robert Klein, Martin Mull, Tom Snyder,
James Schlesinger, the peanut man at Dodger Stadium — all in the running. Nothing against any of these fellows (especially the peanut man), but I'm betting on one David Letterman. a gap-toothed comic from Indiana.

I'd never heard of the guy until last week, when he hosted a "Tonight" show during one of Carson's many absences. He seemed right, somehow, already broken-in.
Most "Tonight" guest hosts, including some of the best comics in the business, collapse after the monologue. That's because they are comics, not talk show hosts.

Letterman was funny and relaxed during the opening bit, and he carried that composure to the desk with him. He's bright and quick; his humor is subtle, but not invisible. His personality is Midwest pleasant.

He is, like Carson, a natural.
Though his resume is rather thin — some guest shots, some comedy writing, some failed pilots — NBC signed Letterman to a two-year exclusive contract a couple of weeks ago, and this week (Wednesday through Friday) he's back on "Tonight." It seems a good time to talk to this guy.

He shows up late, wearing a Hawaiian shirt. He orders a mineral water. He says he jogs.
I didn't say he was perfect.
Since it isn't exactly good form for a young, relatively unknown comedian to talk with a reporter about the business of taking over Johnny Carson's job, Letterman treads softly.

"It would make me really sad if he were to leave the show," he says of Carson. "The only disappointing thing about hosting the show is that Carson isn't there. I would really miss him if he left. There would suddenly be a void. You hate to see him go, and if he does, you realize there's no way you could replace him. It's not even something you consider."

Okay. But surely something is afoot.
"Yeah. I get the feeling that something is happening. I sleep a lot less. I wake up in the mornings worried. I'm worried
now. I know something is happening. I'm just not certain where it's going to end."

Letterman is a fan of Carson's, and, it seems, a student.
Letterman on Carson:

"He's the best, he's the definitive personality for that vehicle. He's very smart, but what I think is more important than anything else is the personality. You like the guy, he's not gonna steer you wrong.

"Carson's your hip friend, who you really like. You kind of wait to see how he goes, then you say, 'Yup, that's right.'"
An astute appraisal. I'd suggest it fits Letterman, as well.
You like the guy.

Walkout In Dog-Killing

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Napa
police officers staged a "blue flu" walkout when the alleged killer of their lone and beloved police dog was freed without bond.

Vem, the 3½-year-old, four-legged pride of the department was stabbed in the line of duty Saturday after attempting to drag a vandalism suspect from an apartment closet. Vem died Sunday.

Harry Reese, 21, of Napa, was arrested and charged with several counts of assault and attempted murder of a policeman. He was not charged with Vem's death, though officers said they saw the slaying.

Held on $10,000 bail over the weekend, Reese was released on his own recognizance Monday by a Napa County Municipal Court judge.

Almost immediately after Reese walked out the door, 11
Napa policemen walked off the job.

"We all became violently ill and unable to work," said Officer Vince DeGuilio upon hearing of Reese's release.

He would not say when or if officers would come back to work. The six officers due in at midnight Monday did not come to work, officials reported.

DeGuilio said a special memorial service was planned for the German Shepherd-huskie mixed breed.

Sheriff Bill Allen said Mon-pending the outcome of a trial.

'Never Meant' To Sign Away Rights

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sher-

meant to sign away her prop-

"everybody did it."

Mrs. Steiger, 42, testified on

Don't Label Lively Boy Hyperactive

Our 4-year-old boy can't sit still a minute. In nursery school they think he is a hyperactive child. They say he has no attention span and they can't keep him quiet for than a few minutes. I've heard that there is some kind of diet for such children. Can you tell me what it is? — Mrs. S.A., Okla. Dear Mrs. A.:

An active child is far too often labeled "hyperactive" by people whose own tolerance for activity is low. I say this specifically so that you or his teacher will not stamp your son as being a hyperactive, or hyperkinetic, child without very elaborate neurological and behavioral studies by professionals who specialize in this type of disorder.

There are a great many children with enormous amounts of energy who may present management problems that are social rather than medical. It takes a great deal of skill on the part of parents and teachers to cope with these children and to channel their activity into a productive direction.

Since "hyperactivity" is such a vague term, you must pursue the excellent tests that are now available to be certain that a significant problem does exist. This should be done before embarking on any of the diets that have been suggested for truly hyperactive children.

The diet for hyperactive children that you refer to is known as the Feingold diet. Basically, it aims at eliminating artificial colors and flavors from the diet. These are particularly high in some desserts, breakfast cereals, soft drinks, cough drops and candy. There is not universal acceptance of this diet as helpful for hyperkinesis. There are a number of drugs that are used for the condition when the diagnosis of hyperkinesis is definitely established.

Parents must remember that the rambunctious, vigorous child who is "full of beans" is not necessarily a hyperkinetic (hyperactive) child. The diagnosis must be made only after careful scientific study by specialists.

I have heard that there are some eye-examining machines that are more accurate for fitting glasses than a human examiner. Is this so? — Mr. T.K.N., Fla. Dear Mr. N.:

There are now three or four brilliantly designed machines that can do eye refraction. After the examination is complete the machine prints out a standard eye prescription which is then taken to an optician for glasses.

The data that have been accumulated show that the instruments are remarkably accurate. Yet, there are disadvantages. Examination by the eye doctor or the optometrist must not be side-tracked. For such an examination is vital to pick up early eye conditions that demand careful and immediate treatment. Eventually, these automatic refractors will be used by the doctor and the optometrist to give you the advantage of machine accuracy and human evaluation.

Class Of 1946 Reunion Is Held

The Greenville High School Class of 1946 held its 33rd class reunion Saturday night at the Greenville Country Club.

Following an opening welcome by President Billy Mac Batchelor, a brief memorial was conducted by Lindy Corey in memory of the deceased members of the class. The invocation was given by the Rev. William S. Ryan.

Special recognition was given to former members of the faculty and school administration who were guests. These included principals O.E. Dowd and Vester Mulholland, and faculty members Bo Farley, Laura Bell, Evelyn Moyer, Christine Tripp and Edwin L. Clark.

Ella Viola McGowan, class secretary, called the roll and each member made brief remarks about their families and their vocations since graduating from GHS.

Yearbooks from the class were used in a photographic slide presentation of each member. Many members contributed photos, newspaper clippings, and other memorabilia for a "memory table."

Attending out-of-town members included the following: Rodney Roberts, Boone; Robert A. Clark and Cleveland Gilbert, Cary; Dr. Ed

Williams, Durham; Ralph Parkerson, Rocky Mount; Billy Harrington, Raleigh; Catherine Spearman McKim, Wilmington; James Ward, Greensboro; Joe Lupton, Roanoke Rapids; Mary Owens Hill, Smithfield; Arthur Hardee Moore, Washington; James C. Glenn, Washington; Florence Tucker Holland, Ayden; Alice Rowe Thomas, Robersonville; Ruth Taylor Braswell, Asheboro; Lois Brandt Hudson, Baton Rouge, La.; James Corey, Gaithersburg, Md.; The Rev. William Ryan, Baltimore, Md.; James Futrell, Ashton, Md.; Elizabeth Carter Furr, Hopewell, Va.; Roy Batchelor, Savannah, Ga.; Billy Mac Batchelor, Northbrook, Ill.; Dot Ormand Grier, Spartanburg, S.C.

Attending from Greenville were the following: Lindy Corey, Ella Viola McGowan, Julian White, Dick Flye, Dora Hathaway Tyson, Dave Perkins, Della Perry Dayson, J.T. Williams, Betsy Parkerson West, Jean Hilton Messner, Martha Whitehurst Mills, Billy Weston, Ione Bradsher Maxwell, Kay Van Nortwick Whitchard, James E. Sutton, Jack Whitchard, John Howard, and John Taft.

The class held previous reunions in 1956 and 1966 and plans to meet again in 1986 to celebrate its 40th year.

Appointed To Rainbow Post

Gigi Mosley of Greenville has been appointed Grand Representative to a national International Order of the Rainbow for Girls assembly in Oklahoma.

The appointment was made during the 42nd Grand Assembly of the Order in Raleigh recently. Miss Mosley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mosley, is a Past Worthy Advisor of the Greenville Assembly No. 67 of Rainbow Girls.

Another member of the Greenville Assembly, Miss Paige Levey, served as Grand Recorder for the Grand Assembly meetings and as Installing Recorder for the installation ceremonies for the 1979-80 Grand Officers.

Other members of the Greenville Assembly who took part in the proceedings were Connie Briley, who served as Grand Page; Rose Jackson, who presented the scrapbook; and Miss Kim Harrell, who was a member of the Grand Choir.

Three Greenville Assembly members and one advisory board member received the Grand Cross of Color, the highest service award conferred by the Order. They were Connie Briley, Rose Jackson, Lori King, and Terry Strickland, the last the advisory board member.

Other Greenville Assembly members who attended were Pam Hawkins and Phyllis Jones. Accompanying the girls were Dr. Betty Levey, Mother Advisor, and Mrs. Peter P. Ashton of the Advisory Board.

About 1,300 girls from throughout North Carolina attended the Grand Assembly.

NEW ORDERS UP

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a sharp drop the month before, new orders for manufactured goods increased 3 percent in May to $145.2 billion, the Commerce Department reports.

District Activity Day For 4-H Clubs

ELIZABETH CITY — Some 534 4-H members, parents and leaders from 15 counties gathered recently for the Northwestern District 4-H Activity Day.

District winners were selected in more than 30 activities ranging from archery, cooking and sewing, to crop production, public speaking, talent and soil, water and wildlife conservation.

Winners selected here will compete for state honors during North Carolina 4-H Congress July 23-27 at North Carolina State University.

Counties involved were Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Hertford, Hyde, Martin, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrell, and Washington. Twenty-five 4-H members and adults attended from Pitt County.

4-H'ers competed in various categories. Blue ribbon winners included: Cynthia Lilley, Beef Char-Grill; Tim Johnson, Archery; Jeff Johnson, Electric; Becky Liles, Egg Cookery; and Craven Mitchell, Automotive Skill Driving.

In the talent division, blue ribbon winners were: Amy Tyson, Ventriloquist act; Danny Dupree, Piano solo; and the Disco Kids, including Regina, Ionya, and Tamu Carter, Loretta House, and LaSonja Austin.

Looking To St. Jude In Lost Causes

By ED LION

CHICAGO (UPI) — The devout came to the plain-looking church in a grimy working class neighborhood.

They pray and accept a priest's blessing. Then they proceed in a line to the priest and kiss the encased splinter of a saint's bone reputed to be 2,000 years old.

For a half century, thousands have flocked to Our Lady of Guadalupe Church — site of the National Shrine of St. Jude — to pay homage to the "patron saint of hopeless cases" and be blessed by a relic of his leg bone.

Not even the Claretian priest who leads the prayers at the shrine knows exactly how the cousin and early disciple of Jesus Christ became a symbol of unending hope for believers. But his powers are incontestable, worshippers say.

"A few years ago my husband was in critical condition with a heart attack," Andrea Mendoza said. "Within three days he received the last rites twice. When they gave him the rites I prayed to St. Jude to help him. And he recovered and is fine now. I know St. Jude helped him."

The shrine is operated by Claretian fathers, an order dedicated to inner city and mission work.

A statue of a bearded St. Jude, club in hand to commemorate his martyrdom by a mob, adorns the colorful shrine, set in a corner of the roomy, otherwise plain-looking church in the shadows of south Chicago's steelworks.

Under the altar are thousands of letters sent by the hopeful, asking the saint to intercede and help them solve problems. Rows of votive candles are lighted in an alcove adjoining the altar.

"We're not a Lourdes," said Rev. Patrick Shannon, prayer director of the shrine. "I don't know of any cases when a miraculous healing occurred after a visit."

"But people write us all the time from all over the country and even overseas and say St. Jude has helped them with problems of all kinds."

"It's all types of things that you can encounter in life. We'll get letters from people with cancer, with alcohol problems or out of a job or children running away from home."

Shannon said some people travel to Chicago especially to pray at the Shrine.

"A few years ago I got a call from Louisville and later about 40 sick people, some paraplegics in wheelchairs, came here to pray," he said. "And once two wealthy ladies from New York flew here for a day to pray for their children. One had a child with an alcohol problem and the other's child ran away."

Once, Shannon said, he saw a "dignified lady" at the shrine and "I noticed she had bodyguards." She turned out to be the mother of the president of the Philippines who was visiting Chicago.

Each year five novenas — nine-day prayer sessions — are held at the shrine.

Letters from people who say they were helped by St. Jude are read and a relic from St. Jude's leg bone is presented for veneration.

St. Jude Thaddeus was one of Christ's apostles and is said to have worked many miracles and converted people into followers of Christ. He was said to have cured King Abgar of Edessa of leprosy by bringing him a cloth upon which an image of Christ was pressed.

According to legend, Jude was martyred by a crowd which bludgeoned him to death during a missionary journey to Persia.

Over the years, he came to be venerated as a man able to remain untarnished in his faith in the midst of adversity. It is not known exactly how he became regarded as a "Patron Saint of Hopeless Cases," Shannon said.

The shrine was set up by a Claretian father, the late Rev. James Tort, who led a South Chicago congregation in 1929. Tort was trying to build a church at the time but faced difficulty because his congregation was beset by joblessness in the steel mills, a portent of the Depression to come.

Tort was devoted to St. Jude. He prayed to him for help in building a church and promised if it was completed, he would erect a shrine in the saint's honor.

He succeeded, the shrine was built and within a few years it was recognized by the Vatican.
