The Greenville Tobacco

Market opened today on a much brighter note than last week's initial Border Belt sales activity and while growers and tobacco industry personnel were not jumping for joy, they seemed to be generally pleased with the early results.

With area tobacco people hoping that disappointing prices paid on early Border Belt sales would not influence local auctions, today's sales generated perhaps more genuine interest than any market activity in recent years.

Gov. Jim Hunt rolled up his sleeves and helped kick off first sales here after telling tobacco buyers on hand that he was "looking for a good price out of you."

Sales began promptly at 9 a.m. and with Hunt leading the way, the first row of tobacco sold quickly with a general range of from $118 to $135 per hundred pounds and some offerings selling for $143 to $146 per hundred pounds.

The first row, which consisted primarily of P and X grades of primings, had only one or two piles that went to the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., which operates the loan program.

While tobacco officials stopped short of predicting a possible opening day average for Greenville, one industry observer told an interviewer that it would be hard to duplicate or top last year's record opening day when the market posted a $119.56 average.

Harvey H. Dixon Sr., who said that his son-in-law had 3,800 pounds among the first offerings sold, noted that the first primings "did as well as they could, according to the way it was graded."

Dixon, whose farm is located on the Pacolus Highway between Greenville and Washington, pointed out that his son-in-law's tobacco was graded at 95 cents per pound and a "lot of it brought 20 cents, some up to 40 cents, above the grade."

Asked if he was satisfied with the early prices, Dixon said that, "I guess we'll have to be satisfied."

As sales progressed over into the fifth and sixth rows, prices appeared to stabilize in the $119 to $138 range, all above the established support price.

John Cyrus, who, as chief of the Tobacco Affairs Section of the N.C. Department of Agriculture, is a regular opening day visitor to Greenville, said that early results here were "not bad for opening day" and better than the first sales days on the Border Belt.

Cyrus pointed out that companies "have started buying from the beginning" here where they waited until the fourth or fifth Border Belt sales day to "settle down."

Mentioning that today's offerings consisted primarily of primings "just above the bottom four leaves" of the stalk, Cyrus said, prices initially, here were about in line with what the Border Belt is now getting." The NCDA official added that Border results were just about what had been expected early on opening day there but the disappointment stemmed from the fact that the low prices continued on into the second and third days and failed to improve.

Cyrus explained that the Eight Arrested, Tons Of Marijuana Seized Here

Eight persons were arrested and some 8,500 pounds of marijuana — with a street value estimated at $3,187,500 — confiscated during a raid on a mobile home on U.S. 264 near the Oakdale Subdivision yesterday morning.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, only one of the eight persons arrested by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation, the federal Drug Enforcement Administration and Greenville Police Department officers was a Pitt County resident.

He identified her as Louise Johnston Whitehurst, 40 of Winterville. Others arrested included James Robert Bohanon, 42 of Campbellsville, Ky., Armond Modesto Abreau, 35 of Miami, Eddie Perez, 38 of West Miami, Manuel Antonio Garcia, 29 of Miami, Lourdes Reyes, 32 of Las Vegas, Nev., Ernesto Reyes Jr., 35 of Las Vegas, and Daniel Lee Guinand of Homestead, Fla.

Ms. Whitehurst, Bohanon, Abreau, Perez, and Garcia, were charged with conspiracy and possession of marijuana with intent to sell, in connection with the case, while Lourdes and Ernesto Reyes and Guinand were charged with conspiracy in connection with the incident.

Bond for Ms. Whitehurst, the Reyes, and Guinand was set at $50,000 each, while the bond for the other defendants was set at $100,000 each.

Cannon said yesterday's raid resulted from a joint SBI-DEA-Greenville Police Department investigation, which began some time ago.

Members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department assisted in processing the scene for fingerprints and other evidence following the arrests, officials noted.

The chief said officers raided the site as bales of marijuana were being carried from a rental truck into the trailer.

Cannon said the mobile home was owned by D. H. Ross, and located about 200 feet from Ross's home. In addition to searching the trailer, motel rooms where the defendants had been staying, and several cars, investigators searched the Ross dwelling.

Ross, according to Cannon, is the brother-in-law of Ms. Whitehurst and a Police Department sergeant.

Cannon explained that Ross was on duty at the time of the raid, but did not participate, and emphasized that no drugs were found in the Ross home.

When asked if Ross has been suspended pending completion of the investigation, the chief responded, "no," although he acknowledged that the officer was not on duty today.

In addition to the marijuana confiscated by officers, valued at some $200 a pound wholesale, investigators confiscated an estimated $100,000 in cash found in one of the rental cars used by the defendants.

Cannon said the exact amount of money was not known, because investigators were processing the stacks of bills for latent fingerprints before counting it.

Constitution Is Voted In Palau

NEW YORK (AP) — Voters in the U.S.-administered islands of Palau have approved a constitution that would sharply restrict nuclear weapons and U.S. military bases in the Pacific islands.

With most of the votes in the July 9 referendum counted, 4,062 voted for the constitution, 353 voted against and 83 ballots were voided, the government-sponsored Micronesian News Service reported Monday.

Palau is part of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, more than 2,000 islands that were seized from Japan in World War II and are now administered under a United Nations trusteeship.

HOW CAN I HELP THE BOAT PEOPLE?

What agency is handling the placement of the Boat People in this area? I don't know how much I can do financially by myself, but I do want to do whatever is within my means to help some of these people. Perhaps if you can provide this answer to me, other individuals, businesses and industries, churches, and other organizations in the Greenville area will take part, too. J. C.

The Catholic Center in Raleigh became active in refugee resettlement in 1975 shortly after the fall of South Vietnam and has remained so. Thus, it has acted as a channel to this time and is now vigorously recruiting sponsors for boat people.

Most of the people who've come in so far, 195, have been families, Sister Maria Rhoads said. Unaccompanied children may be coming in in future months, she said, but not so far.

Commitment is needed to become a sponsor, she said. These people are, for the most part, highly motivated and often well-educated people, she said, but they do not speak English. They need jobs — manual ones until they can acquire a command of the language — houses, everything that is needed in a house, placement in school for their children, language classes, and, if possible, association with speakers of Vietnamese and other Indochinese languages.

For more information about sponsorship, one may contact the Catholic Center, 300 Cardinal Gibbons Drive, Raleigh, N. C. 27606; phone, 821-0350. William Canovatchel is the Director of Refugee Resettlement.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee is using its examination of the SALT II treaty to assess the military balance between the United States and the Soviet Union.

And the committee is working with the perspective of men who regard the possibility of nuclear war as real as detente.

After a full day before the committee Monday, Defense Secretary Harold Brown was recalled for further questioning.

The setting is the same high-ceilinged Senate caucus room where the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has heard testimony on SALT II for the past two weeks.

But while members of the Foreign Relations committee asked about the negotiating process and the effect of the treaty on U.S.-Soviet relations, the senators on the Armed Services panel were more concerned with comparisons of weapons and strategies.

The Foreign Relations Committee, which is continuing its hearings today in closed session to hear CIA Director Stansfield Turner, has primary jurisdiction for the treaty.

But the views of the Armed Services committee on the military issues will weigh heavily with the Senate when floor debate begins in the fall.

Brown was pressed by several senators on the provision of the treaty which allows the Soviets to have 308 giant SS-18 missiles, which are twice as large as any in the U.S. arsenal.

Repeatedly, he replied that the Soviets would have those big missiles "with or without SALT."

The secretary also said that he would not trade the MX missile, which the United States will begin deploying in 1986, for the SS-18. "We think the MX is every bit as good or better than the SS-18," he said.

One of the most encouraging moments for treaty supporters came in a brief comment by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who said his concerns about U.S. ability to detect Soviet cheating have been "somewhat overcome" by administration witnesses at secret sessions of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

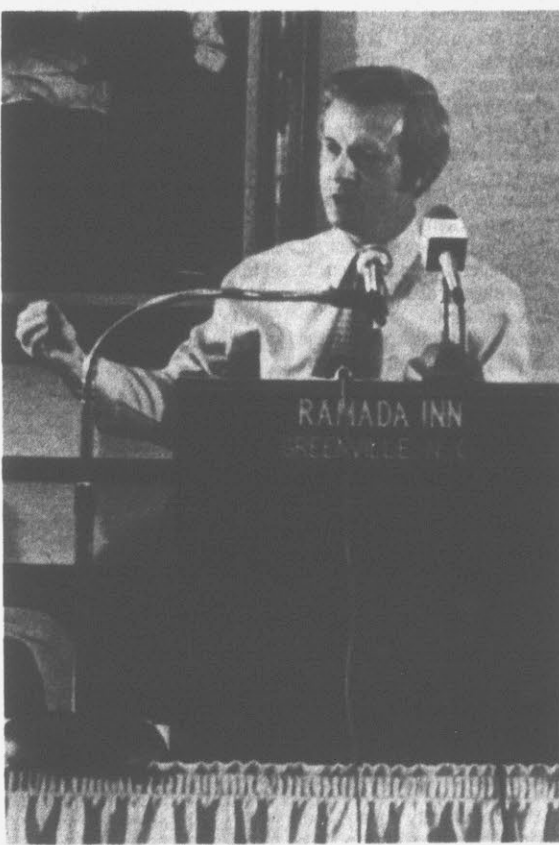

Verification is a crucial issue which could sway many votes in the Senate, where a two-thirds majority will be required for approval of the agreement.

If the administration can convince Goldwater, still regarded as an almost certain vote against the pact, that the treaty is verifiable, it should be able to convince senators less inclined to oppose it.

Sens. John Culver, D-Iowa, and Gary Hart, D-Colo., the two strongest SALT supporters on the armed services committee, emphasized in their questioning of Brown that the United States would be better off with the treaty than without it.

Asked if a Soviet strike could wipe out U.S. land-based intercontinental missiles, Brown said the Soviets "could not be confident that our missiles would still be in their silos."

President Urges Congress Act On Energy Program

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, moving to mend fences with a Congress confounded by recent upheavals in his administration, appealed to his party's congressional leaders today for help in preserving legislation he considers "absolutely essential" to his energy program.

Faced with the possible loss of tax revenues needed to finance his $142 billion energy blueprint, the president met with Democratic leaders at a White House breakfast and made his case for the legislation.

House Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana said the meeting, also attended by White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan, focused on House and Senate timetables for action on energy legislation.

Brademas quoted Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, as promising Congress would send Carter by Oct. 1 an energy bill he would be "proud to sign."

Later, Carter planned to meet with many of the people he appointed to high-level jobs in Cabinet departments and independent agencies.

On Monday, he assured about 300 White House staff members that if they are competent, hard working and loyal, they have nothing to fear from the controversial "report cards" being filled out by their bosses.

Turning his attention to energy, Carter was asking top Capitol Hill Democrats for help in warding off amendments that could significantly cut revenues from the "windfall profits" tax he envisions as the primary source of financing for his massive energy program.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Monday the president feels the "legislation is absolutely essential."

Powell said the measure's full tax revenues are necessary if the goals Carter outlined July 15 are to be met. He said Carter is concerned about proposed amendments that would:

—Exempt independent producers from the tax, a move White House officials said would cost $35.8 billion in the first 10 years of the tax.

—Exempt newly discovered oil, paring another $25.2 billion in revenue from the proposed levy, officials said.

The officials said a total of about $55 billion would be lost if Congress passed both amendments. If left as is the tax is expected to reap $142 billion in its first decade.

The bill to create an excise tax on oil industry profits has already been approved in the House and is now before the Senate Finance Committee, which hopes to complete work on it by the Aug. 4 congressional recess.

Carter may broach the energy legislation when he holds a nationally broadcast news conference from the East Room of the White House at 9 p.m. EDT Wednesday. The news conference, to be carried by ABC, CBS, NBC and Associated Press Radio, will be his first here since May 29 and only his second on prime-time television.

Powell said the president scheduled the session in the evening to "provide an opportunity for people who do not live on the Eastern Seaboard to watch it."

N.C. YDC Installation Banquet On Saturday

RALEIGH — John C. White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will speak at the Young Democrats of North Carolina annual installation banquet here Saturday at the Scott Pavilion, State Fairgrounds.

"As chairman of the National Democratic Party, Chairman White will be able to give us the latest appraisal of the political scene in the light of the summer energy crisis and President Carter's reorganization of his administration," says state Young Democrats President Wayne Hurder of Raleigh. "We are very pleased and excited that he found time from the demands of Washington to speak at our installation banquet."

lege campuses, as well as increasing membership from 4,000 to 5,000.

"We want to prepare to play our role in the election of Democrats in 1980, as well as doing a better job of speaking out for young people on the issues of concern to us," says Hurder.

White, the featured speaker, has been chairman of the Democratic National Committee for two years. He came to Washington with the Carter Administration as deputy secretary of agriculture. He had previously served 25 years as commissioner of agriculture in Texas.

Congressional First District officers to be installed are Lee Walton of Greenville and Henri Johnson of New Bern.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is throwing the 7th Fleet into an international effort to save thousands of Vietnamese boat people adrift off the coastlines of Southeast Asia.

The expanded air and sea search by the U.S. Navy comes as other nations bolster the attempt to save the refugees, jammed in boats tossing in the South China Sea.

Long-range patrol planes "are flying daily missions in the South China Sea to locate and seek help for refugees in distress," Lt. Cmdr. Gordon Peterson said Monday night.

promised $190 million to the relief effort.

And in Singapore, an Italian navy task force took on fuel Monday for a mission in search of the boat people. In Malaysia, the West German Embassy said two West German commercial ships picked up 371 Vietnamese refugees.

A French hospital ship which already has rescued several hundred refugees is in Singapore preparing for another mercy mission.

In another development Monday, it was reported that the United States plans to send a delegation to Vietnam within weeks to assist in the resettlement of the refugees.

Sparing Post Office A Stay Of Execution

NEW GENEVA, Pa. (AP) — Susan Foyles can use her Green Stamps for the things she really wants now that a plan to close the New Geneva post office has been scuttled — at least temporarily.

She had been saving the stamps to get a home mailbox because she no longer would have been able to pick up her mail at the post office.

"I'm very happy," said Mrs. Foyles. "This makes things a lot easier."

The Postal Rate Commission decided Monday to spare the post office in this southwestern Pennsylvania village of 300 and in 11 other small towns across the nation, saying the Postal Service hadn't adequately studied the impact on affected communities.

Residents say it was like a stay of execution.

"The post office is the only thing we have left in New Geneva," said Betty Clay. "We used to have a little store and a gas station but they both closed. I'd hate to lose the post office."

Townfolk were told they'd get mail in boxes clustered at central locations. But the locked, indoor post office boxes meant more.

"We would have no identity without the post office," an unidentified citizen wrote in a letter to the commission. "We would have no other public building left in town."

The General Accounting Office, Congress' research office, says $490 million a year could be saved by closing 12,000 small post offices. Postal service officials say reversals like those announced Monday threaten its efforts to economize.

The other communities affected Monday were: Prairie, Ala.; Southfield, Mass.; Filer, Miss.; Balsam Grove, N.C.; Reed, Okla.; Clune, Pa.; La Jose, Pa.; McElhattan, Pa.; Sugar Run, Pa.; Keyapaha, S.D.; and Normanna, Texas.

Talmadge To Be 'Penalized'

A reception for White will be held at the Scott Pavilion at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. He will hold a press conference at the Hilton Inn in Raleigh at 4 p.m.

Banquet tickets are $12.50 each. They are available from State Democratic Headquarters, Young Democrats of North Carolina or can be purchased at the door.

Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. will install the new Young Democrats officers at the banquet. New state officers are Hurder, a public relations official with Cotton, Inc. in Raleigh; Vice-President, Wayne McDevitt of Marshall, a regional director for the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development; National Committeewoman LeAnn Nease of Carrboro, a vocational rehabilitation counselor; Secretary, Gary Bartlett of Goldsboro, a masonry contractor; and Glen Peterson of Wilmington, a law student at UNC-Chapel Hill. In addition, 22 congressional district officers will be installed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee will recommend some disciplinary action against Sen. Herman E. Talmadge for financial misconduct, according to sources familiar with the panel's deliberations.

But the six members of the committee are sharply divided over what penalty to recommend that the full Senate adopt against the Georgia Democrat, said the sources, who asked not to be identified.

Among the possible actions in order of increasing severity are reprimand, censure or expulsion. Only expulsion would result in automatic tangible action; the other two would be verbal sanctions.

But the committee also could urge that Senate Democrats strip the 23-year Senate veteran of his seniority or remove him as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and as second-ranking member of the Senate Finance Committee.

The exodus of refugees from Vietnam is estimated to be about 60,000 people a month.

In Washington, President Carter has promised to resettle 168,000 Indochinese refugees a year. But in Southeast Asia, temporary camps hold more than 300,000 men, women and children, and their numbers are growing.

The Pentagon's latest instructions to the 7th Fleet broaden the Navy's role in helping the refugees. Officials said four additional ships are being assigned to the South China Sea, "where they will be available for providing assistance and transport to refugees."

House Number Project Soon

Local residents who wish to have their house numbers painted on curbs in front of their homes still have a few days to request the free service, a project spokesman pointed out.

Kevin Sayers, who is handling the telephone requests at city hall, said that response to the "Number Your House" project has been slow so far and residents have until Friday, July 27 to get their names on the numbering list.

ject and Mayor Percy Cox recently declared July 30 through Aug. 4 as "Number Your House Week" in Greenville.

The mayor noted, "If just one life or residence in Greenville is saved because of the emphasis we're placing on the importance of correct, visible house numbering during the next three weeks, then this campaign will be a success."

"This town is made up mostly of retired people, and the security of the mail and of their Social Security checks is important to them," said Patricia Hazlett, acting postmaster of the Clune post office.

Residents of Clune and New Geneva signed petitions and contacted congressmen to protest the possible closings, arguing the buildings serve as community meeting places. Personal appeals also were filed.

"The only buildings in town are the fire department, a community action center and the post office — that's it," said Mrs. Hazlett.

Health Systems Meeting Slated

The monthly meeting of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency (ECHSA) will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

The agenda items will include but not be limited to: 1) Preliminary report of the nominating committee regarding corporate officers, executive committee members and governing body members, replacements. 2) Action on changes in ECHSA travel policy. 3) Discussion of ECHSA annual meeting slated for September. 4) Project Review Action.

The public is invited to attend.

Eardley met informally with at least three members of the committee before leaving on a European vacation.

The committee is to receive Eardley's formal written report and recommendations later this week, and likely will take votes culminating in a 14-month-long investigation into Talmadge's financial affairs.

The committee has cited Talmadge for five specific alleged violations of Senate rules, including conversion of campaign contributions to his personal use and claiming up to $50,000 in Senate expense funds to which he was not entitled.

Agenda Set For Planning Session

Schmidt, Haig, Kissinger Meet

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — It isn't known what they discussed, but it was certainly a five-star gathering when former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and former NATO commander Alexander Haig met here with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

They met with Haig, former supreme commander of NATO forces in Europe, industrialist David Packard and Bechtel President George Shultz, the newspaper said. DEAR PAT: I have been needlepointing for a couple of years and dearly love it and find it so soothing! I have just two problems with it, however. First, I spend so much time needlepointing that my housework really suffers and I do have some guilt feelings about this.

I know you can't do anything about that, but perhaps you can tell me why my stitches look a little uneven, no matter how hard I try. A piece will look all right as I am working it, but when it is finished, I can see little random ridges.

Other people don't seem to notice this, as I get many compliments on my work, but it does bother me. Can you help? SALLY H., CAMDEN, S.C.

Both of your problems are quite common, Sally. The "itch to stitch" can be a lot stronger than an urge to wash windows or polish silver!

While I am not really advocating dirty houses, I'd like to share with you a philosophy of one of my favorite needlepoint designers, Chottie Alderson of Running Springs, California. Chottie says, "A clean house is the sign of a misspent life." Maybe that will help ease your guilt feelings.

There are many possible causes for the random ridges you describe. One of the most common causes is the use of too long a strand of yarn. Every time you pull the yarn through a canvas hole, it "wears" a little, becoming slightly thinner with each stitch. The finer your canvas, the more stitches you will take for each inch.

With a 10-mesh canvas, you are making 10 stitches per inch; with a 14-mesh canvas, you are taking 14 stitches per inch. It is impossible, therefore, to tell you exactly how long to cut your strands. This is something you will have to determine by experimenting.

Most people, when doing basketweave or diagonal tent stitch, will secure beginning and ending strands by running them under diagonal rows of stitches. This seems the natural way to do it. This can, however, cause ridges. So do run these ends under stitches straight along the horizontal or vertical.

Working on a frame, using the "stab stitch" technique, usually means more even stitching. Stab stitching means that you take the needle down with one motion and bring it up in a separate motion. Most people do surface stitching, bringing the needle into one hole and out of another in one motion.

And, of course, whatever method you use, your goal should be a smooth and even tension. Pulling the yarn through in jerky motions will result in very uneven stitches.

Your yarn or canvas may be at fault. If the yarn has thick and thin spots, the work is bound to show it. Even with perfectly smooth yarn you can have this problem if you let the yarn twist too much. Often you can give the needle a little counter-clockwise twist after every few stitches to prevent this twisting, or just drop the needle, hold your work up and let the yarn untwist itself.

If the canvas itself is irregular, none of these tips will help much. A very loosely woven canvas with light sizing or stiffening will have too much "give" and will pull out of shape quite readily.

Finally, if all else fails, try a little steam. Even if your piece needs no blocking, hold it over the spout of a tea kettle or electric percolator and let the steam lightly penetrate the yarn. This often fluffs it up enough to hide the little imperfections.

Whole vegetables or specially sized vegetables usually cost more than cut styles. Fancy-cut vegetables are more expensive than other cut styles, while dices, short cuts and vegetable pieces are the least expensive.

Black walnut kernels will come out in much larger pieces if the nuts are soaked in boiling water for 40 minutes before they're cracked.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The other morning I opened the paper to see President Carter's daughter, Amy, trailing behind him at an airport in Tokyo yawning and carrying her violin case.

The President and Mrs. Carter unknowingly are resurrecting a trend in this country that has been dormant for more than a decade. It's called taking the children with you.

Throughout the world at state dinners, high-level hellos at the airport, and motorcades, I have seen Amy trudging along carrying her books, stuffed animals and games.

Not only is the President putting the baby sitter vote in jeopardy, he is creating disharmony among U.S. children who have to stay home with a minimum wage baby sitter, $200 worth of steaks in the freezer and $5,000 worth of toys.

My son said to me the other day, "You never take us anywhere."

"Where would you like to go?"

"I'd like to get out more and meet people like Brezhnev or the Japanese Ambassador to the United States... or maybe just to see a Chinese opera."

"People don't take their children with them anymore."

"Then why does the president do it?"

"Maybe he can't get a sitter. Besides, you'd be bored."

"No I wouldn't. I'd take my skateboard along or my drum set... I'd keep busy. I know some kids whose parents even take them out for dinner once in awhile. I can't remember when you last took me out to dinner."

Dear Abby

Letter Fans A Camp Fire

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A 12-year-old girl signed CAMP HATER wrote that she was being "forced" to go to summer camp for two months. She said she went last year and "hated it." Also that her parents kept telling her how "lucky" she was that they could afford to send her, but she felt as though they just wanted to get rid of her for two months.

She asked you what to do, and you told her to get over her negative attitude and go. Then you added the meaningless cliché: "Most people have about as good a time as they make up their minds to have."

I disagree totally with your answer, Abby. When I was a boy, my parents made me go to summer camp. I hated it at first, although later I learned to like it.

The mistake my parents made was in sending me too young. I was only 8 when I was sent away for two whole months. If they had waited until I was 10, I would have loved it. Please print this.

ME IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR ME: My mail is running overwhelmingly against me and in favor of the CAMP HATER. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am an old camp counselor, so I believe CAMP HATER when she said she thought her parents were trying to get rid of her for two months. That's the feeling a lot of my camp-haters had; after meeting their parents, I had to agree with the kids.

Sending kids to camp for two months as first-year campers is unwise. They should be sent to a camp closer to home for a week to see how they get along.

GRANDMA IN AHAHEIM

DEAR ABBY: Are you and your twin sister competitive?

CURIOUS IN CANADA

DEAR CURIOUS: Certainly. Everyone who pursues a career would like to be No. 1.

I think Avis deserves a pat on the back for trying harder, but I'd rather be Hertz.

DEAR ABBY: One of our co-workers (I'll call her Pam) recently moved into a new home. Two other co-workers (I'll them Mary and Donna) who are Pam's best friends decided to surprise her with a housewarming gift from "The Office Gang."

Without consulting anyone in the office, Mary and Donna bought an expensive lamp, signed all the co-workers' names on the card, the collected from everyone in the office to pay for it!

I kicked in my share because I didn't want to start anything. But I was so mad I could have bitten a nail in half. I appreciated Mary and Donna wanting to surprise Pam, but not at my expense.

Did I do the right thing? I certainly don't feel any better.

MAD IN GREENWOOD

DEAR MAD: No. I think you should have told Mary and Donna that because you weren't consulted beforehand, and gave no one permission to sign your name on the card, you owed nobody anything. And, furthermore, if and when you decide to warm Pam's house, you'll do it your way.

A Rallying Point And A Doer

Former Mayor S. Eugene West quite possibly did more than any other individual to change the face of Greenville, and improve the living conditions of its people.

The people benefited and the corporate body of Greenville benefited from his labors.

No one man could do it alone. That we know. There were many willing hands and hearts and minds who shared in the revitalization process. But he was the rallying point, the mover, the dreamer, the doer who saw the needs and the way.

Under his leadership Greenville erased a great slum area and replaced it with a park and space for business development.

Public housing was brought to Greenville and the families displaced from substandard living conditions were provided with a sense of personal worth, comfort and security.

The former mayor was also a force in Greenville Industries, Inc. — an organization that over the years significantly broadened the growth and quality of industry coming to Greenville. It resulted in new jobs, new wealth and the groundwork for growth which we see about us today.

It wasn't easy. Gene West's dreams were not shared by all.

The Statesville native came to Greenville in 1947, and one can but marvel at the way he took Greenville to his heart and the way Greenville's people took him to theirs. He was their mayor for seven terms as well as playing an active role in church, business social circles.

Gene West no longer will be seen walking down a Greenville street, pausing to speak or waive to acquaintances. But if you look around you, the marks of his presence remain for all to see.

Moonshiner Could Become A Savior

The traditional moonshiner was hunted by revenuers, frequently held in esteem by his customers, and reviled by those who didn't indulge.

The making of illegal liquor seemed to go into decline as its cost neared that of illegal liquor, and young people turned to other drugs.

The moonshiner may soon come back, however, and in a legal way. He, in fact, may be looked on as some sort of national hero.

His salvation could be the nation's insatiable need for auto fuel. A new word has been coined for it — gasohol. We are coming up with a mixture of gasoline and alcohol, which seems to burn efficiently in internal combustion engines.

The alcohol part of it is the same stuff, generally speaking, that the moonshiners used to run through their stills for human consumption.

The alcohol for cars has to be distilled and the logical place to turn for those who can distill it is those with experience — the moonshiners.

Now if we can only convince them to own up to their calling...

COULD BE START OF A VERY UNFUNNY GAME!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK Nationalization Plan?

WASHINGTON — Mr. Carter's slam-bang energy program rests upon this primary assumption, that our present level of dependency upon foreign oil endangers our national security and imperils our economic survival. The assumption is sound enough, but Congress will want to do some long, cool, thinking about the specific measures Mr. Carter proposes to meet the peril.

Mind you, these particular recommendations, or others very much like them, may be the best that can be devised. The president's ideas ought not to be condemned out of hand. All the same, his program is filled with contradictions and implications that merit reflection.

For starters: The most pressing need is for a dramatic increase in the domestic production of petroleum. In a word, the president wants the oil companies to produce more oil. Very well. He begins by denying them the capital by which more oil might be produced. This is the direct, immediate consequence of his nearly confiscatory tax upon "windfall profits." Instead of permitting the private sector to do its job, Mr. Carter would transfer the money to the federal treasury in the thought that government can do the job better. If ever a doubtful proposition were advanced, this is it.

Mr. Carter thus proposes to create an Energy Security Corporation. Over the next 10 years this independent federal corporation would receive $88 billion that otherwise would have remained with the companies. The money would go for the development of oil from shale, from coal and from unconventional sources.

The president has other ideas that would require the pervasive involvement of government in the production, conservation and allocation of energy. He is urging new incentives for development of marginal resources; he would impose sweeping new regulations upon the utilities; he would appropriate $2.4 billion annually to assist low-income families in meeting higher costs of gasoline and home heating; he would invest $16.5 billion over the 10-year period in mass transit.

There is much more, including the presidential decree imposing minimum and maximum temperatures in all public buildings, but these proposals alone will indicate the magnitude of the federal involvement Mr. Carter is asking. He is urging the virtual nationaliza-

Mecca Of The Elixirs

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

ROME (AP) — Near Piazza Navona, where the tourists always go to see three of Rome's loveliest fountains, stands a remarkable liquor store that the tourists have been slow in discovering.

But the natives know all about the marvelous medicinal elixirs of Ai Monasteri, as the shop on Corso Rinascimento is called.

Ai Monasteri — literally, at the monasteries — deals only in wines, brandies, liqueurs, etc., distilled, brewed, bottled, barreled, whatever, by the good monks and holy friars in their monastery wine cellars, often from the fruits of their own vineyards.

A browse about the shelves indicates at a glance how busy and versatile these men of God have been at reaping the harvest of the Master's vineyard.

There is Rhum Fantassa, fantastic rum, from the Carmelites; Sambuca liqueur from the Cistercian monks at Certosa, a cloistered order whose members have taken the vow of silence; Gin Dry Vallombrosa from an ancient abbey in the Alban Hills; Liqueur Sambucaffe del Paradiso, literally the coffee-flavored liquor of paradise, heaven-sent from the cellars of a Benedictine monastery outside Florence. The shop also offers a large selection of medicinal brandies and soothingly alcoholic elixirs that take the curse out of ordinary, everyday drinking.

Who could resist one for the road if the drink offered was Liqueur del Pellegrino, the liquor of pilgrims?

Closest drinkers would no doubt feel less guilty sipping alone on Elixir dell'Ermita, the drink of hermits.

Elixir de Miele, a potent potion distilled from honey, has a picture on the label of a dozen

To the editor:

The firing of HEW Secretary Joseph Califano, although hailed by many, including North Carolinians, is an affront to the American people.

Secretary Califano, by virtue of his appointment to HEW, analyzed almost every major and critical social issue which confronted America from abortion to welfare reform. By the very nature of his job, Califano was mired in controversy.

Califano was dismissed Wednesday for political insubordination, rather than for ineffective or improper leadership. Califano initiated an anti-smoking campaign to responsibly inform the American citizenry of the hazards of tobacco smoking on our health. Califano instituted a campaign at HEW on the problem of alcohol and alcohol abuse such that we Americans may consciously know and sensibly decide upon the person, social, emotional and spiritual consequences of use of this beverage. Califano implemented the Carter National Health Insurance Plan, which was publicly denounced by key social groups and political organizations that opted to support the package put forth by Sen. Edward Kennedy, whom Carter trails in every public opinion survey for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency in 1980. Califano indicated almost two years ago on "Face the Nation" that the most severe problem in America is race relations. And Califano encouraged efforts, although under federal court decree by Judge Pratt, to require drastic changes in the desegregation plans and policies of universities in several states for which North Carolina is presently involved in litigation.

To further insult the situation, the President replaces the assertive, dynamic, controversial Califano with the apparently passive, timid, agreeable Patricia Roberts Harris. For this writer, the message is simply that the President and his staff could not control the leadership of Joe Califano at HEW, but that they fully intend to control the efforts of Patricia Harris there.

Refreshing Summer Reading

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Not knowing what next will test their sanity, along with shortages, prices, confidence crises, administrative chaos, and things hurtling out of the sky, perhaps Americans deserve a break.

One break is to read some of the more refreshing summer reading to be offered in awhile, the three-to-five-year outlook for industrial companies, and their stocks, issued by Value Line Investment Survey.

There will be a recession, says Value Line, but only a mild one. A temporary rise in unemployment, perhaps to more than 7 percent by the end of the year, will be corrected well before the 1980 elections.

And inflation will persist, maybe even through the 1980s. "Any social phenomenon that has taken 30 years to weave itself into the very fabric of the economy is going to be around a while."

But the summary is quite optimistic: The economy is going to get a few things straightened out, says Value Line. There'll be a big investment in industrial renewal, in productivity, in brand-new industries.

The stock market will provide opportunities, outstanding ones. The survey maintains that returns for the 900 stocks in its industrial composite might even amount to 20 percent to 30 percent a year.

So, you say, why should we listen to Value Line? No denying, anyone should retain a healthy level of mulishness. Forecasters, we know, never give money-back guarantees, and not even apologies in some cases.

Value Line, however, has something to lose if its seemingly far-off predictions are too far off base. A reputation, for example, that took more than four decades to establish, during which it made little money.

It is now, after a long struggle, the largest investment advisory firm. It is profitable. It is the life of Arnold Bernhard, now in his upper 70s and careful that his monument will not be marred by graffiti.

Value Line furthermore has an historical perspective. It studies the performance of economies not just for months and years, but sometimes for centuries. recently it displayed world prices since 1300 A.D.

Value Line believes that after years of consuming we are entering "investment-excited growth years," years in which big investments will be made in plant, equipment, inventory and buildings.

"Enhanced investment activity through the year 2000 will all for a revamping of the industrial and transportation base — which will beef up productivity," which will, "in time help stamp out inflation."

It continues: "So will development of new industries, including synthetic energies, a digital communications network to replace part of the outmoded AT&T analog system, computer-controlled home appliances and power systems, innovative heating and cooling systems, and perhaps a space-age auto engine."

Yes, but how will it be financed? With a modest improvement in profitability, from 4.9 percent after taxes in 1978 to 5.2 percent in the next three to five years, says Value Line, it should be possible.

THIS AFTERNOON

Will It End With Yawns?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Poet T.S. Elliot once suggested that the world would end "not with a bang...but a whimper."

Echoes of that haunting phrase rane through a comment which North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt made while talking about his visit with President Jimmy Carter at the Domestic Summit preceding the President's address to the nation the other day.

Previous efforts to rally Americans around the solutions to our present crisis, Hunt suggested, "have been greeted by a yawn...and a snicker."

The real dilemma, Gov. Hunt feels, is "what is happening in the land...in the hearts and minds of the people?"

It was clear from listening to President Carter's remarks that he has heard the message carried to him on the mountain at Camp David by Hunt and others: the energy crisis is only a symptom of a more terrible disease which plagues us, and needs healing.

Sick

Hunt sums it up this way: "There is a kind of malaise that exists in our society...we sense that we have almost lost control over our destiny...that strong sense of purpose, that we are in charge and can do it, is missing...events continuously buffet the people and make them question themselves and their country."

July, 1979, might well mark the historic time when the nation embraced a "new Declaration of Independence," Gov. Hunt suggested; a declaration of independence from foreign interests controlling basic resources essential to life and welfare.

Does President Carter recognize that in questions of energy and the economy it is largely federal government inaction and over-regulation which underlies the crisis?

Gov. Hunt believes that he

THE INSIDE REPORT

Brezhnev's Meat Locker

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev has ordered drastic cuts in consumption of meat throughout the Soviet Union for a highly unusual but highly practical reason: to assure enough to satisfy foreign visitors during the 1980 Olympics.

The Brezhnev order was discovered by Western intelligence agents at last month's Vienna summit conference between Brezhnev and President Carter. It is by no means the first time that Soviet leaders have issued secret orders depriving their own people so that the Soviet Union could enhance its prestige with foreigners. The Potemkin Village is an old Russian scheme.

But in the present instance, the always meat-shy Soviet citizenry are being forced to give up a great deal so that visitors from abroad next year can get all the meat they want. The 1979 grain crop, much of which is used to fatten cattle, is far below expectations and far below needs. That by itself has depleted meat supplies.

The Kremlin's order for nationwide storage of meats threatens to cut off supplies to a large percentage of consumers, particularly in cities in the Western part of the country. But no consumer riots are expected from well-policed Soviet citizens.

A footnote: Western intelligence sources also learned at the Vienna summit that the ailing Brezhnev underwent a crash health rehabilitation program for nine days to prepare him for the meeting with Carter.

CHILDLIKE SPIRIT

The Bible speaks a great deal about the childlike spirit, but there is a great difference between a childlike spirit and childishness.

The childlike spirit is the spirit of humility and trust. Childishness is something which appears in adults who have never grown up. The childlike spirit is full of loveliness; childishness is both ridiculous and revolting.

The child believes in many things which he cannot see. To him, life is a series of golden gates, and they are all open. The child's mind is full of fancy; but in this fancy there is often more truth than in the more grandiose schemes of adults.

We can see why Jesus placed such great emphasis on the childlike spirit. Humility is directed toward the father whose love is above everything the world can give. Willing to believe means believing in many things which cannot be seen, and having a mind full of inquiry and an eagerness to acquire new truth. This is the childlike spirit at its best.

Khomeini Bans Music For Iran

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is not the first to suppress music that fell out of tune with political thought. Even Plato shared the Iranian religious leader's concern that music dulls the spirit.

"Like opium, music also stupefies persons, listening to it and makes their brains inactive and frivolous," the Shiite Moslem leader said Monday, ordering a ban on music broadcasts on Iran's radio and television stations, according to the official PARS news agency.

"Music is something that everybody is attracted to naturally, but it takes them out of reality to a futile and lowly livelihood," Khomeini said.

Iran's national radio and television plans to stop broadcasting music this week at the beginning of Ramadan, the Moslem holy month.

In ancient Greece, Plato was prepared to permit the lyre and the harp in the city, and a shepherd's pipe in the country, but he said: "When a man allows music to play on him and to pour into his soul... he begins to melt and waste, until he has wasted away his spirit and cut out the sinews of his soul; and he becomes a feeble warrior."

Khomeini's was the most sweeping attack on music since China tried to root out Western music in the Cultural Revolution of the 1960s.

Western music reflected "the nasty, rotten life and decadent sentiments of the bourgeoisie," the radicals said. But the music is back — speakers in a Peking park recently were blaring such light music as "The Skater's Waltz" and young Chinese walk around singing "Do Re Mi" from "The Sound of Music."

Hitler banned "depraved art," including jazz, swing and modern classicists such as Igor Stravinsky and Paul Hindemith.

But Hitler loved Richard Wagner and, for that reason, an unofficial but firm ban on Wagner persists on Israeli radio, television and concert stages. When Zubin Mehta, director of the Israel Philharmonic, scheduled a Wagner overture for a 1975 concert, musicians refused to play it, the concert hall received bomb threats and the ushers threatened to strike.

Soviet authorities have tried to enlist music in their revolution, with definite, if ill-informed musical tastes. Many musicians have left the country rather than conform.

Lenin noted that an artist "takes it as his right to create freely, according to his ideal," but added, "We must not drop our hands and allow chaos to ferment as it chooses. We must try consciously to guide this development and mold and determine the results."

In Russia today, rock is officially OK, as evidenced by Elton John's recent successful tour, but the Kremlin remains wary of disco.

Church's Bitter SALT
One reason Sen. Frank Church is taking a surprisingly skeptical line on the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) are warnings by prominent Democratic politicians in Idaho that his bid for a fifth term will be seriously endangered if he becomes an all-out advocate of ratification.

That poses a problem for Church in his new role as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Will he follow his natural, life-long inclinations and push for Senate ratification of SALT II, or will he play ball with defense-oriented senators trying to amend the treaty?

Politicians suspect Church's tough talk is just talk and that he will end up plugging the treaty, which causes his Idaho supporters to cringe. Even without SALT, conservative Republican Rep. Steven Symms is running even with Church in the polls.

Victim Said Bystander

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Authorities believe a 16-year-old Wilkes County girl shot to death Sunday may have been an innocent bystander with one of two men wounded in the attack the actual target of gunfire.

Wilkes County Sheriff Kyle Gentry said he believes Henry Minton, a friend who aided the dead girl, Robin Darlene Griffin, and her boyfriend, may have been the intended victim. They were getting out of a car at the time of the attack.

Gentry also said he has suspects in both the slaying of Miss Griffin and 17-year-old Mark Anthony Vance. Vance, of the Austin community near Elkin, was shot to death when one or more persons sprayed his mobile home with gunfire early Monday.

The sheriff did not say if he thought the shootings could be related, but said he had definite suspects in both cases. He would not predict when arrests could be expected, but said police are now involved in a thorough investigation of both cases.

Gentry reconstructed the Griffin shooting by saying the victim was out on a date with Gary Perry when their car stalled. Perry called Minton who towed them to his garage, where the attack occurred.

He did not say why police believe Minton, who suffered only slight injuries, was the target. Perry was in serious condition last night at Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Gentry said someone called out to Vance as he was sleeping before ridding the trailer with gunfire early Monday. He said more than one weapon apparently was used in the killing.

tion of energy. His program, taken as a whole, would leave few significant decisions to be made by the private sector.

True, the proposed Energy Security Corporation would set up some plants that were entirely government-owned and operated, and some that were government-owned but privately operated. This may be a distinction without a difference. Ultimate control still would lie in a public agency, and because public funds are involved it could hardly be otherwise.

We have been in the shallow waters of socialism for Mr. Carter's program gets us down toward the deep end.

Other worrisome contradictions appear likely. A key part of the package is a three-member Energy Mobilization Board. Its task is to cut through the jungle of red tape that now slows the building of new energy facilities — pipelines, for example, and shale oil production plants. The board could override all local, state and federal laws that serve to delay "critical" projects.

But the board could not possibly expedite such projects without running roughshod over environmentalists — and environmentalists are among Mr. Carter's most vocal constituents. The president cannot dig his pipelines and stall them too.

Late-Night Airing For 'Irreverent' TV Show

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight, ABC airs the funniest show it has made for prime time all year. Unfortunately, the show is not airing in prime time.

"The TV Show" has been banished to the nether reaches of late-night. Its crime: Offending big business.

"The TV Show" was made by Rob Reiner and others in the irreverent style of "Saturday Night Live." ABC, looking for such a show, bought it, worked closely with the creators and scheduled it for airing in the prime time hours of July 3.

"But then, all of a sudden, they said no," says Harry Shearer, who helped write and produce "The TV Show," and does some fine bits on it. "It's astonishing, because they've been trying to come up with a 'Saturday Night Live' kind of thing."

"The TV Show" is a TV parody, set in a guy's living room. We watch with him as he switches through the various offerings on the tube — commercials, religious shows, telethons, etc.

What got the network censor hot was a phony commercial on the show, a take-off on those subdued, "Big Business Is Your Friend" spots you're always seeing. Two kids are playing catch when the ball gets away and lands in a vat of gooey chemical gunk.

One of the kids falls in, retrieves the ball, and dashes happily away. Here, the responsible-looking Procter and Gamble comes on the screen and says:

"Worried about little Billy? Don't be. The symptoms of chemical poisoning sometimes don't show up for 15 or 20 years. In the meantime, little Billy can live a happy and productive life, thanks, in part, to advancements made by Procter and Gamble... after all, we always say, 'It's the quality of life that counts, not the quantity.'"

That, said ABC, must go. "That was our biggest fight of all," says Shearer. "After a knock-down, drag-out brawl, he (the network's Standards and Practices executive) finally tells us, 'ABC has a responsibility to big business, a responsibility not to undermine America's faith in big business.'"

A network spokesman expanded on that: "What it comes down to is the responsibility we have to the many audiences that make up the entire audience of television viewers. And there is also a responsibility to our affiliates, who have a direct responsibility to their communities."

Reiner and Shearer refused to cut that segment and other "objectionable" bits that comprised 10 minutes of the show. ABC refused to air it intact.

"The compromise," says Shearer, "was late-night."

I recommend this little compromise if you happen to be awake at 11:30 tonight. This is not a beddy-bye show, its jokes and jabs better suited for an alert audience. But, alas, big business must be considered.

"I'd rather have it aired in prime time, mainly because this type of thing hasn't aired yet in prime time," Shearer says. "But I don't think it's being thrown away, really. It's out there. My agent will see it. That's all I care about."

plump friars beaming down benignly from a monastery balcony while the busy bee doth his thing for the benefit of the order.

For centuries now the Franciscans at Viterbo, 30 miles north of Rome, have been concocting a pine-scented palliative that carries a delightful monastery health warning on the label: "Liquora Amaro che TI Sana," the bitter drink that makes you well.

Dom Perignon, the father of champagne whose statue looks out over the vineyards, may not have put the fizz into the world's most festive beverage, but he created an industry as well as a taste sensation by inventing a way of tying down the corks with string and keeping the bubbly blessing from exploding.

This little epistle on the Lord's little old wine makers cannot end without a reverent bow in the direction of Father Juan Ugarte, the Spanish Jesuit who planted the Western Hemisphere's first vineyards in Mexico, and the Franciscan Padre Junipero Serra, whose friars built 21 missions between San Diego and Sonoma, most with vineyards, to launch the California wine industry.

For those who might be shocked at these pleasant gardening activities and cellar recreations of the good friars, Al Monasteri also features a full line of skin lotions, hair restorers, shampoos, digestive nostrums and dentifrices concocted by the same contemplative cellar masters.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly today, struggling off continuing concerns over the outlook for the dollar and interest rates.

Gainers took a 7-5 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial rose 1.62 to 827.13 by noon.

Gold prices rose to above $306 an ounce in London today and the dollar remained on the defensive in foreign-exchange markets.

Analysts noted some disappointment over that trend, which came despite increase in the Federal Reserve's discount rate late last week to a record 10 percent.

Along with that increase in the charge the Fed sets on loans to its member commercial banks, open-market money rates have been rising again of late.

"Everything but the proverbial kitchen sink is being thrown at the market these days, and while stock prices are bending they are not breaking," observed Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co.

Xerox rose ¼ to 60½. The company posted second quarter profits of $1.90 a share, up from $1.59 in the comparable period last year.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index added .14 to 57.91. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .21 at 195.49.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 12.81 million shares at noon, up from 10.79 million at the same point Monday.

N.C. Ports In Most Successful Year

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The state ports at Wilmington and Morehead City experienced their most successful year ever during the past fiscal year and are moving toward self sufficiency, Gov. Jim Hunt said today.

Defending a controversial decision to move a container crane from Morehead City to Wilmington, Hunt told the State Ports Authority that net profits from the ports have skyrocketed since he took office in 1976.

The governor's remarks were prepared for delivery at a luncheon meeting of the SPA.

He said the net profit for the two ports for the fiscal year that ended July 1 was $563,214 — up by 220 percent over the previous year recorded in 1967.

The net profit for the port at Wilmington was a record $776,272, and the port at Morehead City had a deficit of $202,295, a reduction of two-thirds from that of the previous year.

Tobacco Market...

excessive rain during the eastern growing season caused some sand to be washed up on lower leaves and while they were not the bottom lugs, the sand did result in primings being graded with a sand designation in a few instances. It was noted that P4F S and grades were observed with $107 per hundred pounds tags, although they were few in number.

"The trend is good," he said, observing that an early key was that the warehouse was not having to buy as much tobacco as Border Belt warehousemen purchased.

"As we get into the season during the next few days, I feel that prices will stabilize and be generally above price support," Cyrus added.

Fred Bond, general manager of the Stabilization Corporation, said that after getting a quick look at early prices here, "It appears to be a rather good opening."

Bond pointed out that Stabilization apparently had received only a few piles of the opening offerings and he said that very little of the down stalk leaf appeared to be on the warehouse floor.

Farmers have been urged to leave the bottom leaves in the field and with the oversupply situation of Stabilization regarding down stalk tobacco, Bond said that the lack of those leaves on the market is "what we have been waiting for."

Bond joined the other industrial officials in expressing disappointment at the Border Belt's early results but he pointed to an increase in prices on Border markets now and a subsequent drop in the amount of leaf going to Stabilization.

Prices at another local warehouse with an early sale were in the same general range as quotes at the facility visited by Hunt. Tags were observed in the $119 to $138 per hundred pounds range.

Hunt, speaking to the large gathering at a local warehouse prior to opening sales, said that "tobacco is still king in North Carolina," in spite of what has been said to the contrary.

The governor, who mingled with the crowd and remained at the warehouse well into the sale, urged the buyers to help bring in "one billion dollars to the economy" of North Carolina.

A large contingent of participants in the Extension

Hunt also said tonnage of cargo in Wilmington reached an all-time high last month and that tonnage at both ports for June was up by 34 percent over that of 1977.

"Few organizations within state government have made such significant progress since the beginning of our administration as have the North Carolina stateports," Hunt said.

A decision by the state to move the lone container crane at Morehead City to Wilmington several weeks ago sparked a storm of protest in Morehead City and Carteret County.

Hunt said he knew the decision would not be popular with some but "operation of the state ports is a business, a business with the goal of benefiting all North Carolinians."

"The decision made by the authority was a good business decision that's already paying dividends," he said. "Politically, the easier decision would have been to leave the crane. But it's not a political decision, nor should it be one."

Hunt said the SPA is developing special marketing programs to persuade more industries to make their shipments through the two state ports. He said the state leads to South in exports.

He said the SPA had depended on a $150,000-a-year supplement from the General Assembly to help meeting operating costs for the past quarter century but that the full amount was not needed the past two years.

under the reading, to say something to the owners.

"We've got to quit being so negative," said Hunt. "We've got to help each other out."

Questions at the talk ranged from tax credit for use of wood stoves to the government's stance on farmers' priority on the use of fuel for fall harvest.

On the subject of tax relief for use of wood as an alternate energy source, Hunt said that North Carolina has one of the best set of tax laws concerning relief for those who choose wood for energy.

"We now have groups that can pelletize wood, make it more convenient to use," noted Hunt. "I strongly urge North Carolinians to use it."

Number one, we own it (wood), and farmers can use it as another crop."

Hunt gained a round of applause for his statement on the shake-up in the White House Cabinet, noting that Tar Heels would not miss former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano.

"We want good people in there (Cabinet)," said the governor. "We're interested in what is going to be done."

One question dealt with removing the tax from gasoline, with Hunt pointing out that the gasoline tax was still needed for highway improvements, such as those in eastern North Carolina.

Governor Hunt called for the relaxation of pollution rules following a question on the easement of producing unleaded gasoline, asking the question, "Is the damage to the environment equal to the damage to our economy?"

"I consider myself a strong conservationist," said Hunt, pointing out that his father, a farmer in Wilson County, had been a soil conservationist.

"But for a period of a few years, we'll have to tolerate a little more pollution. The laws are a little too strict."

However, Gov. Hunt noted that caution must be exercised in the easement of rules, and called for the use of "horse sense" in the rules' relaxation.

Governor Hunt also stated that Americans will have depend on nuclear energy for another 30 or so years until alternate sources can be found.

Senator Vernon White asked Gov. Hunt about the farmers' plight in obtaining sufficient fuel for harvesting fall crops, noting that the recent truckers' strike, the farmers' priority on fuel had been moved.

"When the priority was moved, it wasn't given to the truckers," said Hunt. "With our state set-aside program, we should be all right. However, if anyone suffers, I'll do what I can to get the priority restored. It's most important to get those crops out of the fields."

Charles Schwidde, chairman of the chamber's Greenville Utilities Commission, presented Gov. Hunt with the Chamber's energy proposals, with Hunt praising the efforts.

"I strongly commend the Chamber and I challenge every business and private citizen to try to conform to the rules," said Hunt. "I'm proud of you, for it's typical of Greenville and eastern North Carolina to do these things. I'm going to take these recommendations and pass them along."

Looking For Ransom Cash

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — FBI agents continue to hunt a $217,000 ransom as four abduction suspects are held in lieu of $250,000 bail each.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William Braniff asked for the high bail during a court hearing Monday because "there still is $217,000 out there and no one other than these defendants knows its location."

The four suspects, Guillermo Jesus Caceres, 22, Angel Humberto Cedano, 23, Salvatore Lacognata, 23, and Gaetano Alessandrello, 23, all of Paterson, N.J., allegedly demanded $300,000 for the release of Joan Dedrick. She was abducted from her West Milford home Friday.

Three of the men were arrested Sunday. Alessandrello was taken into custody early Monday.

William Dedrick, husband of the 46-year-old victim and executive vice president of the Franklin Bank in Paterson, got the $217,000 ransom from the bank, Braniff said.

The suspects were charged with affecting commerce by extortion and taking bank money by intimidation.

FBI spokesman Michael McDonnell explained the four could not be charged with kidnapping on a federal level because the woman never crossed a state line.

The extortion charge carries a maximum 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. The other charge carries a minimum sentence of 10 years, Hunt said.

Local charges of kidnapping and extortion were pending, he said.

Mrs. Dedrick was released unharmed early Sunday in Teaneck after the ransom was left in Fort Lee, authorities said.

Sees No Govm't Chrysler Role

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp.'s president says a United Auto Workers suggestion that the federal government take a partial ownership interest in the company is "not in the cards."

Chrysler President Lee A. Iacocca made the comment prior to a speech Monday night.

Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers union, said before the opening of national contract talks with Chrysler last week the federal government should take an "equity interest" in Chrysler as a way of providing it with needed new capital.

Vice President Will Take Over

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egyptian Vice President Hosny Muabarak will be sitting in for the chief of state when the Moslem holy month of Ramadan starts this week.

President Anwar Sadat, a devoted Moslem, will be vacationing throughout Ramadan as he does every year, his government announced today.

Ramadan, during which faithful Moslems fast from dawn to dusk, starts Wednesday.

Advise Care In Roof Repairs

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Like mountain climbers, homeowners should prepare for a safe ascent when climbing onto the roof for repairs, warns a manufacturer of shingles.

Always wear clothing that provides ample protection and comfort. It can be windy on the roof. Rubber-soled shoes should always be worn; they help you keep your footing. It's also advisable to wear knee pads, work gloves, heavy pants, safety glasses and a hat to block the sun.

Finally, Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. advises, pay attention to the weather reports. Never attempt roof repairs when rain is forecast. A wet roof could be responsible for a fall.

Prayer Retreat Numbers Grow

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A "dramatic growth" in the ministry of houses of prayer is reported by Patricia Crewell, editor of the current House of Prayer Directory. She says it lists nearly twice more houses than a year ago.

Both Roman Catholic dioceses and religious orders are expanding their prayer retreat centers in keeping with "renewed interest in prayer directory lists."

The centers, living, maintain policies of hospitality for those seeking periods of refreshment and spiritual growth.

Going To Be Out

For A Brief Moment Joe Niekro Was Ahead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Joe Niekro has been knocking under to Phil Niekro all these years.

But Monday night, he was a fingertip ahead of his older and more illustrious brother — if only for an hour or so. Enjoying his finest major league season, Joe Niekro won his 14th game for the Houston Astros Monday night with a 3-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals.

That was the highest victory total for a pitcher in the major leagues so far this year — until brother Phil also won his 14th a little while later, stopping the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-0 in the second game of a two-night doubleheader.

The lesser known of the Niekro knuckleballers scattered six hits, walked only one and recorded six strikeouts, while improving his record to a sparkling 14-5.

Phil Niekro, now 14-11, tossed a two-hitter in his duel against Pittsburgh's Jim Rooker. A run-scoring single by Bob Horner in the first inning and a two-run double by Bruce Benedict in the fourth staked Niekro to a 3-0 lead, all the runs the Atlanta right-hander needed.

The Pirates won the opener 7-1 as Tim Lincecum drove in four runs and Bert Blyleven hurled a four-hitter.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs beat the Cincinnati Reds 9-8 in 18 innings in the completion of a suspended game, then came back to win the regularly-scheduled game 2-1; the San Diego Padres edged the Philadelphia Phillies 6-5; the Montreal Expos stopped the San Francisco Giants 8-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the New York Mets 3-1.

Cubs 9-2, Reds 8-1
Dave Kingman's two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth led Chicago over Cincinnati in the regularly scheduled game after the Cubs beat the Reds earlier in the completion of a suspended contest.

FOOTBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — A challenge to the authority of Commissioner Pete Rozelle to discipline National Football League players for conduct detrimental to professional football was rejected by an arbitrator. James Searce denied a grievance claim by the NFL Players Association that challenged the commissioner's action requiring Randy Crowder and Don Reese to contribute $5,000 apiece to a drug rehabilitation program in Florida.

The two players pleaded no contest to unlawful possession, sale and delivery of a controlled substance in Florida in 1977. As a condition for their returning to the NFL, Rozelle required them to make the contribution to a program of their choice in Florida.

Steve Ontiveros' RBI single provided the Cubs with their victory in the completion of the first game, which was suspended on May 10.

Padres 6, Phillies 5
Dave Winfield, who hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to tie the game, stroked an RBI single in the ninth to give San Diego its victory over Philadelphia. In the San Diego ninth, Gene Richards singled off loser Ron Reed and took second on shortstop Bud Harrelson's throwing error before Winfield drilled the single.

Expos 8, Giants 3
Dan Schatzeder fired a five-hitter and Andre Dawson and Tony Perez belted successive homers in a six-run, second-inning, carrying Montreal over San Francisco.

Mike Sadek drove in all the Giants' runs with a he belted a three-run homer in the sixth.

Dodgers 3, Mets 1
Jerry Reuss, 3-8 scattered seven hits as Los Angeles beat New York.

New York center fielder Lee Mazzilli was injured after a collision with right fielder Dan Norman in the sixth as the two chased Davey Lopes' drive to deep right center, which wound up as an inside-the-park homer. Mazzilli suffered injuries to his mouth and rib area.

Legion Gets First Win

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

The rain which caused a two-day delay in last night's American Legion playoff game helped Pitt County take a 6-3 victory over Johnston County, Pitt's first win in the best-of-seven eastern semifinal event.

Pitt County scored four runs in the first inning and two of the team's three hits in the frame, including a three-run double by Mike Williams, were aided by the wet playing conditions. Will Barrett was the first batter to reach base in the inning on a ground ball that died in the wet infield grass and Williams got a bases-loaded double when the Johnston County left fielder slipped trying to flag down his fly ball.

The victory cut Johnston County's lead in the series to 3-1. It will continue tonight at 7:30 in Smithfield.

"We played a good ballgame," Pitt coach Gary Overton said. "We did a fine job in all areas of the game—we played the ball we are capable of, the type of game that has gotten us this far."

Overton admitted that Pitt County is at a distinct disadvantage, but said the team has a definite chance of winning the series. "With our pitching—and playing good defense—we have a good shot at coming back. We're not out of it yet."

One factor that could count the local team out, however, is the weather. The series must end by Friday night, and if rain delays cause it to end before a team wins four games, the team with the most wins advances. If the series is tied, the winner is determined from the number of runs scored.

Ben Wilson pitched the entire game for Pitt County last night and raised his record to 6-1. He gave up six hits and just two earned runs, Jimmy Mitchell was the loser, giving the distance for Johnston County. He held Pitt to just five hits while suffering his first loss in nine decisions. Both pitchers had trouble finding the strike zone as Mitchell walked 10 batters and Wilson nine.

Pitt County got off to a blazing start, scoring four runs in the first inning. Barrett started things off with one away when he chopped a ball towards the mound that the Johnston County catcher couldn't get to in time. When he did get to it, he threw it away, sending Barrett to third.

Barrett scored when Ben Wilson got a base hit to right, and after another out, Curtis Spencer and Mark Douglas waited out walks to load the bases. That brought up Williams, who hit a fly ball to left. The Johnston County left fielder slipped just before he reached the ball and all three runners came home with Williams reaching second for a 4-0 lead.

Johnston County got on the scoreboard with a run in the second. Leadoff batter Roger Hudson walked and was sacrificed to second by David Bass. He scored on a hit up the middle by Greg Gibson.

Pitt added a run in the third as Spencer walked, went to second on a wild pitch and was pushed across when Williams was hit by a pitch and Will Sanderson and Mike Campbell walked.

The final Pitt County run scored in the fourth. Barrett led off with a walk and stole second. He went to third on an error and scored when Douglas reached on an error.

Johnston County got a run from Roger Hudson in the sixth and another run from Stanley Adams in the ninth to round out its scoring.

Gibson was 3-4 in the game for JC, while Barrett was 2-4 for Pitt.

ECU Offensive Line Seeks Additional Depth

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina offensive line coach Dick Kupec's primary worry this fall when practice starts is to find some depth for the line.

"We've got an experienced, good first unit. We had a lot of progress in the spring, and I think we executed against our own defense as well as any line we've had since I've been at East Carolina," Kupec said. "Our starters are mature and they've been around a long time."

But behind them, things are not nearly as bright. Kupec feels that unless the Pirates find some depth quickly, or stay extraordinarily healthy during the season, there could be problems.

Jeff Hagans (Sr., 6-1, 235) returns to the center position, while Wayne Inman (Jr., 6-4, 235) and Mitchell Johnston (Sr., 6-4, 235) return to the guard posts.

Matt Mulholland (Sr., 6-0, 242) is back at one tackle post, while Joe Godette (Sr., 6-2, 215) will be back at tackle after a year at tight end. Godette has been at every line position except center for the Pirates since entering as a freshman.

"John Maness (Sr., 5-11, 215) will provide a good backup for Hagans," Kupec said. "He played some last year, and will be able to do a good job for us this year. But if we get an injury, we could be in bad trouble. Right now, I can't say we have a solid number three center."

The guard situation is the most critical, Kupec feels. "Wayne and Mitchell are the only guards we have with any experience. Our number three right now is Oscar Tyson (Fr., 6-0, 230) who red-shirted last year. He looks like the leading candidate. I just hope we can find a fourth one so Oscar won't have to play both sides. Right now, that fourth position is a question mark."

There is just one backup so far at tackle, Tootie Robbins (Jr., 6-5, 267). "We were hoping to bring him along in the spring toward being a starter, but he was injured. He's had injury problems all along and that has hampered his progress. But he's our number three right now."

Kupec said several others could work up to the number four spot. They include Mindell Tyson (Fr., 6-4, 270), Mike Jordan (So., 6-3, 263) or Ernest Bayne (Fr., 6-3, 225).

At tight end, Charlie Mann (So., 6-0, 205) appeared to have a slight lead over Perry Allred (Sr., 6-2, 245) for the backup spot. Both have seen some action.

"We had a good spring overall, but it was frustrating too because of the injuries to people we wanted to look at," Kupec said. "It slowed the progress of our backup people."

As far as the incoming freshmen are concerned, Kupec isn't calling any names. "I don't want to put anyone on the spot. We have three or four good candidates coming in that we want to take a hard look at, plus another look at some of the people who didn't get a full, long look in the spring. I'm just hopeful that some of them will come along and provide the depth we need."

"While we have a good first unit, getting someone hurt and having to go with someone of less ability could throw us off in our timing, and that could hurt."

But if the reserves do come along, the Pirate line could be potent, perhaps more potent than ever before.

Pirates Pull Triple Play

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Though their nine-game winning streak came to a halt, the Pittsburgh Pirates pulled off their first triple play since 1971.

It occurred in the second inning of Monday night's 8-0 loss to the Atlanta Braves in the second game of a doubleheader.

With Atlanta's Pepe Frias at second base and Bruce Benedict at first base, winning pitcher Phil Niekro faked a bunt and hit a sharp bouncer to third baseman Bill Madlock near the bag.

"I knew it was gonna be a triple play," said the 40-year-old Niekro. "Madlock had already caught it when I left the box."

Madlock stepped on third and threw to second baseman Phil Garner for the out at second. Garner's strong throw to first baseman Willie Stargell beat the 40-year-old Niekro to first by a step.

It was Pittsburgh's first triple play since July 9, 1971, when third baseman Richie Hebner, second baseman Dave Cash and first baseman Bob Robertson managed the feat against Atlanta.

Another Silver For U.S. Team

MOSCOW (AP) — Another silver medal for the United States in the Soviet Spartacade — and it might have been two golds.

"She beat me out of the starting blocks, that's all," said 22-year-old Karen Hawkin of St. Louis who finished second to Russia's Ludmila Kondratyeva.

Hawkin was the second American medalist of the meet. Houston McTear of Santa Monica, Calif., lifted the silver in the men's 100-meter Monday.

Californian Bart Williams was inches ahead of Russia's Vasily Arkhipenko in the 400-meter hurdles when Williams pulled a muscle. He limped out and Arkhipenko went on to win.

"I felt it at the sixth hurdle," Williams said, "but I wanted to keep going. By the seventh hurdle the others were passing me and I knew I had to give up."

Williams remained crumpled over a hurdle before being helped off the track in tears.

Jimmy Carnes, the U.S. track coach from Gainesville, Fla., said he had been worried all week that someone was going to pull a muscle. Carnes complained that the Russians were allowing athletes to warm up and then holding them for up to 30 minutes before competition.

"In the States we never hold anyone that long," Carnes said. "Why should anyone want to have athletes warming up for an event, and then hold them for 30 minutes?"

Carnes said the meet is begin held under International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF) rules, but, "procedures vary a little from one country to another."

He said: "We are going to write to the Russians and to the IAAF to try to get this changed for the Olympic games in Moscow next year."

Hawkin, a student at Texas Southern, clocked her personal best time of 11.32, but Kondratyeva won in 11.19.

"It helps my confidence to finish second on the track where the Olympics are going to take place," Hawkin said. "But I wanted to win, and I should have won."

Rollins Places

Jackie Rollins placed second in junior girls tricks and fourth in slalom this past weekend at the N. C. Water Ski Championships in Angier. Her name was inadvertently omitted from a story in yesterday's edition of "The Daily Reflector."

Super Subs Help Clubs

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Pat Kelly and Dave Garcia know their roles usually aren't starring ones, but they were both leading men Monday night.

"If I had my way, I'd be playing," said Kelly, one of Baltimore's super subs, whose pinch grand slam with two out in the eighth inning gave the Orioles a 7-4 triumph over the Oakland A's. "We've excelled because we haven't accepted that role. We still have get-up-and-go in us."

Meanwhile, Garcia took over as Cleveland's interim manager, replacing the fired Jeff Torborg, and the Indians rallied for four runs in the sixth inning on Bobby Bonds' two-run homer and Duane Kuiper's two-run single to beat Milwaukee 5-4 and end the Brewers' club record-tying 10-game winning streak.

"I was a little reluctant to take it because I like coaching third base," Garcia said. "I don't care whether I last one day, one week or whatever. I'll make the decisions to the best of my ability. Should they name a new manager, I hope he would show consideration about hiring me back as third base coach. I'm kind of an organization man."

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels trounced the Boston Red Sox 9-2, the Minnesota Twins nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 7-6, the Kansas City Royals edged the Texas Rangers 5-4, the New York Yankees trimmed the Seattle Mariners 6-2 and the Chicago White Sox thumped the Detroit Tigers 11-3.

Twins 7, Blue Jays 6
Bombo Rivera tripled with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning and scored on a wild pitch by reliever Mark Lemongello to give Minnesota its fifth straight victory. Designated hitter Danny Gooden slammed a two-run homer to tie the game 6-6 in the sixth inning.

Frank White homered for the Royals, who scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth on a walk, sacrifice and Willie Wilson's double.

Yankees 6, Mariners 2
Chris Chambliss drove in two runs with his 100th career homer and a sacrifice fly and Jim Spencer slammed a two-run homer while Ed Figueroa went five innings for his first triumph since May 9.

White Sox 11, Tigers 3
Mike Squires had three singles and a double, driving in two runs and scoring two, while Jorge Orta and Rusty Torres homered for Chicago.

Royals 5, Rangers 4
George Brett, who hit three home runs Sunday night, hammered a double and two RBI singles as Kansas City handed the slumping Rangers their sixth loss in seven games.

What is the best way to handle a blister when it forms after a burn? — Mrs. T.S., Del.

Dear Mrs. S.:

The skin covering of a blister is excellent protection against infection and is best left alone for safety reasons. If the blister is large and filled with fluid, gently wash the edges and apply a mild antiseptic. With the sterilized tip of a needle, carefully puncture the blister at its outer edge. Gently press the fluid out and cover the blister with a sterile bandage or sterile gauze. In this way, the protective skin covering remains intact and prevents infection of the blister.

VALDOSTA (AP) — Prices for flue-cured tobacco remained low on the Georgia-Florida belt markets, Douglas and Valdosta had not reported, Kirkland said.

VALDOSTA (AP) — Prices for flue-cured tobacco remained low on the Georgia-Florida belt Monday, and although most grade prices were up $5 to $10 per hundredweight, many bids were rejected by growers markets, Douglas and Valdosta had not reported, Kirkland said.

"There probably was another 800,000 or 900,000 pounds of tobacco sold," he said.

Top grades were bringing $156

“It ain’t no big jump,” said Roy Pearce of Pearce’s Tobacco Warehouse in Valdosta. “There is some foreign buying, but not what we hoped for and needed. The biggest improvement is in the middle and top grades. The very low end to tobacco (leaves closest to the ground) isn’t improving, if it’s even as strong.”

"There still are areas where there was a good bit of rejection of prices by growers," said Darrell Kirkland of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's tobacco market news service. "We had some indication that it was somewhat down from last week."

Foreign buyers began bidding on Monday, and there was more buying by American tobacco companies and less warehouse buying, he said.

Incomplete reports showed 2,745,680 pounds of tobacco were sold in Georgia on Monday at an average of $131.65, for a sale worth $3,614,801; bringing the season total to 8,187,180 pounds at an average of $129.13 for $1,048,116.

Florida totals were 1,971,352 pounds at an average of $124.12 for $1,329,810 and 1,931,638 pounds at an average of $120.49 for $2,327,502 for the season.

Total type 14 sales reported Monday were 3,817,032 pounds at an average of $129.54 for $4,944,611; bringing season totals to 10,118,818 pounds at an average of $125.86 for $12,735,618.

Martial Arts Fan Held For Stabbing Of Child

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation has taken a two-foot-long machete and a lethal martial-arts weapon from the home of a man charged with the stabbing death of a 4-year-old Sanford girl.

According to a search warrant filed in the Lee County Clerk of Court's office, the machete and a nunchaku, a weapon made from two wooden handles connected by a chain, were among items seized Saturday at the home of Robert Henry McDowell.

McDowell, 28, has been charged with first-degree murder in the July 15 death of Carol Ann Hinson and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill the child's aunt, 13-year-old Patsy Mason.

The girls were attacked some time before 1 a.m. in the bedroom they shared at their grandparents' home in Sanford.

McDowell, who was on parole from Sanford Advancement Center on a second-degree murder charge, was arrested early Saturday morning, police said. He was denied bond on the murder charge during his initial appearance in District Court Monday and allowed $25,000 bond on the assault charge.

According to the search warrant, law-enforcement officers searched McDowell's house Saturday, seizing weapons, several items of bloody clothes, a flashlight and a 10-speed bicycle.

A report filed by SBI agent John Walker said Miss Mason, who has remained at Duke University Medical Center since the attack, was shown a photographic lineup of 14 men last Friday. She identified McDowell as her assailant, Walker said.

The agent wrote that Patsy described a machete and said her assailant was carrying a flashlight and "a chain on a

Burke Officials Name Auditing Committee

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — After receiving complaints that some vacant properties were given higher revaluation assessments than some containing improvements the Burke County Commissioners have appointed a special auditing committee.

The committee will hear complaints from county residents who have been boisterous and at times violent in their protest against revaluations which in some cases jumped 200 to 300 percent.

At one point last month one demonstrator reached through a crowd of taxpayers and with a pair of scissors cut off the tie of a commissioner. More recently officials have been the target of threats, insults, eggs and rocks.

Part of the problem in the county, say some officials, is the lack of a 1 percent local sales tax. As the only county in the state without such a levy, Burke relies more heavily on property taxes to meet its expenditures.

But opponents of the revaluation believe some of the figures are far out of line.

"There's just no uniformity in the thing," said John W. Ervin Jr., nephew of former Sen. Sam W. Ervin Jr., an attorney acting as a spokesman for tax protestors.

Some of the dissatisfaction resulted from the use of computers in revaluing properties. But County Manager Ken Thompson said every parcel in the county was revalued by a professional appraiser, not by a computer.

Thompson acknowledged the CLAYTON, N.C. (AP) — To Hue and his family risked everything to reach the United States and what they hope will be a better life.

They paid a high price to board a small vessel for a journey through the South China Sea. Then they lived for nine months in filth in a crowded refugee camp.

The final part of the journey — a 33-hour flight from Malaysia to Raleigh-Durham Airport — left the Vietnamese bookkeeper bewildered but elated. His first statement was typical of those made by many refugees entering the U.S.

"I have no idea exactly where I am. I just know I'm very, very happy to be in America, the land of freedom," said Hue, 49, speaking through an interpreter Sunday at the home of George E. Hauser, where his family is temporarily housed.

For Hue the journey is almost over. His family makes one more trip. They move today to the Wilmington area where sponsors will help them start a new life.

Hue said he and his family of nine decided to leave Vietnam after the communists seized most of their possessions and threatened to put them in a work commune. They left last November after paying about $5,000 in gold for the privilege.

"We were afraid of our children's future as well as our own," he said while alternating between spaghetti and watermelon at a backyard buffet Sunday afternoon.

Pleading Guilty To Smuggling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three men have pleaded guilty to charges filed in connection with the smuggling of contraband cigarettes into Pennsylvania.

Charles Nelson Snipes, 38; William Seymour, 46, both of Goldsboro, N.C., pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to wire fraud and Robert Breggar, 32, of Exton pleaded guilty to wire fraud and conspiracy.

The pleas were entered Monday as part of an agreement with the U.S. Justice Department. Under the agreement, related charges stemming from the smuggling operation were dropped against the trio. They will be sentenced Sept. 18.

They and seven others were named in an indictment handed up in May, charging that the defendants since March 1972 transported more than four million cartons of unstamped cigarettes from the Southern Wholesale Sales Co. of Goldsboro to warehouses in Philadelphia.

Trials for five of the defendants are to start Sept. 17. They are Frederick McCurry, 71; Walter Rosenbaum, 67; Herbert Breggar, 54; Dominic Corvino, 51, all of Philadelphia; and Irving Breggar, 59, of Broomall.

Another defendant, Edward Lee Bryan, 31, president of Southern Wholesale, has pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy and is cooperating with authorities.

The 10th person named in the indictment, Ollie Ray Davis, 56, Raleigh, N.C., committed suicide a week after the indictment was released, according to Lou Pichini, a federal Strike Force attorney from Philadelphia.

The indictment alleges that McCurry made weekly payments of $1,000 to unidentified "high officials" of the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue, who kept him informed "of confidential state cigarette smuggling investigations and joint state-federal cigarette investigations."

Neither federal prosecutors nor the FBI will identify the "high officials," but indicated the information will surface at the trial.

Clerk Killed In Store Robbery

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say a convenience-store clerk was shot and killed just before 1 a.m. today in Jacksonville.

The victim was identified as Raymond G. LaCourse Jr., 22, of Jacksonville.

Onslow County Sheriff Billy Woodward said a customer at the Fast Fare on Western Boulevard found LaCourse lying behind the counter and called the sheriff's department. Woodward said two bullets apparently were fired but only one bullet hit LaCourse. He was shot in the back with a .45-caliber weapon, Woodward said.

No money was taken from the cash register, according to Woodward. He said no arrests have been made in the shooting.

Authorities said the dead man's father was shot and killed in a convenience-store robbery in 1968.

Plan To Celebrate Outside Of Russia

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Greek shipping millionairess Christina Onassis and her Russian husband are preparing to celebrate their first wedding anniversary where they have spent much of their married life — outside the Soviet Union.

Since her marriage last Aug. 1 to Sergei Kauzov, a 38-year-old former bureaucrat, Miss Onassis has spent more time in the West than in Moscow.

The couple have been living in Paris, St. Moritz and Athens since early January. She paid a brief visit to Moscow in July and told friends she did not expect to return before autumn.

According to one report, the Kauzovs have made a Swiss chalet their permanent home. However, they retain a spacious, seven-room Moscow apartment on Bezbozhny Pereulok, or Godless Alley, and can come and go as he likes since he has a special multiple-entry visa.

Friends of the late Aristotle Onassis' only surviving child are close-mouthed about her life. At 28 she appears to have found the privacy and "peace and quiet" she sought after all the newspaper attention paid to her parents' divorce because of her father's affair with opera star Maria Callas, his marriage to Jackie Kennedy, her own two previous marriages and her feud with her stepmother.

On Aug. 1, the marriage will have lasted five months longer than Miss Onassis' first, at the age of 20, to a Los Angeles real estate operator 27 years older than she was. Her second marriage, to a wealthy Greek only six years older than she, lasted 14 months.

She met Kauzov, who had a wife and daughter, in 1976 when he represented a Soviet shipping organization in Paris and followed him to Moscow in June 1978, after he quit his $235-a-week job with the tanker division of the Soviet freight company.

The marriage of one of the world's richest women to an obscure Soviet citizen caused a sensation in the West. But his mother told The Associated Press:

"For people who understand what love is, everything should be clear. Only for people who do not understand love should there be any questions."

New Delay For Hearing Sought

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A new attorney for the man charged in Oklahoma's six "steakhouse murders" says he will file an appeal this week seeking a 30-day delay of his client's preliminary hearing.

Roger Dale Stafford, a 27-year-old Alabama drifter, is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of six employees at a Sirofin Stockade steakhouse on July 16, 1978.

"I need the time to properly prepare and defend my client," J. Malone Brewer said Monday after he became Stafford's fourth attorney. Brewer said he "will be prepared to go" for a scheduled Aug. 1 preliminary hearing if he loses his appeal.

Pageant Did Not Deliver, Says Beauty

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss Orient USA says pageant promoters are cheating her out of $1,500, a three-week vacation in the Far East, a screen test in the Philippines and a root beer promotion contract.

Leilani Kyono O'Melia, 24, of Howell Township, says she will appear at the 1979 final of the relatively obscure pageant Friday night in Long Beach, Calif., to claim her prizes or close the pageant down.

"I've been very patient for a year. I've acted like a lady. I've had a lot of class about it," the reigning Miss Orient said Monday. "But I want to make sure all these young ladies know they're going to be ripped off."

The president of the pageant, Remedios Cabacungan of Toms River, insists that Miss O'Melia eventually will receive all that was promised her.

"Generally speaking, we do not have the money. She should know we are just starting," Mrs. Cabacungan said. "This girl is giving me so many headaches."

Nevertheless, Mrs. Cabacungan, who founded the pageant for young American women of Oriental ancestry two years ago, says she will crown her third Miss Orient USA this week from among 23 contestants who have paid $50 each to compete aboard the Queen Mary.

Miss O'Melia, a woman of Japanese and Irish descent who works for the Monmouth County government, says she paid a $100 entry fee and sold $300 worth of advertisements and tickets to enter last year's pageant, held at a Boardwalk motel here.

As winner, she says she so far has received several trophies, $500 worth of clothes and a rhinestone crown — "and I have to give the crown to the next queen."

In late June, another beauty queen, Debbie Shook, the former Miss North Carolina, walked to center stage during the preliminary rounds of the competition to find her successor, kicked her crown and castigated pageant sponsors for allegedly failing to provide a promised scholarship and a $5,500 wardrobe.

Report Theft Of $600,000

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City Transit Authority officials say $600,000 in $10 bills was stolen from their headquarters in what may have been an inside job.

Sylvester J. Dobosz, assistant director of revenue, said there "probably" was inside help in the weekend theft.

The money was stored in a guarded second-floor room.

Merit Changes Smoking.

'Enriched Flavor'™ cigarette sparks whole new taste era in low tar smoking.

Not too long ago, smokers believed that if a cigarette had less tar, it had less taste too. Low tar cigarettes simply didn't taste very good.

Then along came MERIT and a whole new taste idea called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And in three short years, smoking changed:

1. No other new cigarette in the last 20 years has attracted so many smokers as quickly as MERIT!
2. MERIT has swept past over 50 other brands in record time.
3. MERIT is continuing to attract high tar smokers—the most taste-conscious smokers of all!

It's clear: MERIT taste is changing attitudes toward low tar smoking.
