

Unemployment Rate Slightly Advances

By EILEEN ALT POWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The nation's unemployment rate rose slightly in July to 5.7 percent, making a full year in which the jobless rate has been below 6 percent, the government said today.

The Labor Department said the number of persons without jobs — 5,848,000 — was little changed from June but there were signs of possible future deterioration in the job market.

The unemployment rate in June had been 5.6 percent, the lowest in nearly five years.

Since last August, the jobless rate has been slightly below 6 percent.

Unemployment is expected to increase markedly toward the end of this year and into 1980 as the nation slides into an economic recession, according to Carter administration forecasts. As many as 8 million persons may be without jobs by mid-1980, internal White House documents predict.

The reason is the business slowdown that began in the second quarter this year and could continue into early 1980.

Although the unemployment rate increased only slightly in July and total employment rose by 456,000 in a catch-up from considerably slower growth in March and April, there were signs of weakness in the figures.

Jack Bregger, chief of the Labor Department's Division of Employment and Unemployment Analysis, noted that "the male unemployment rate advanced a couple of tenths (of a percent) and there was an increase in the number of persons who lost their last job."

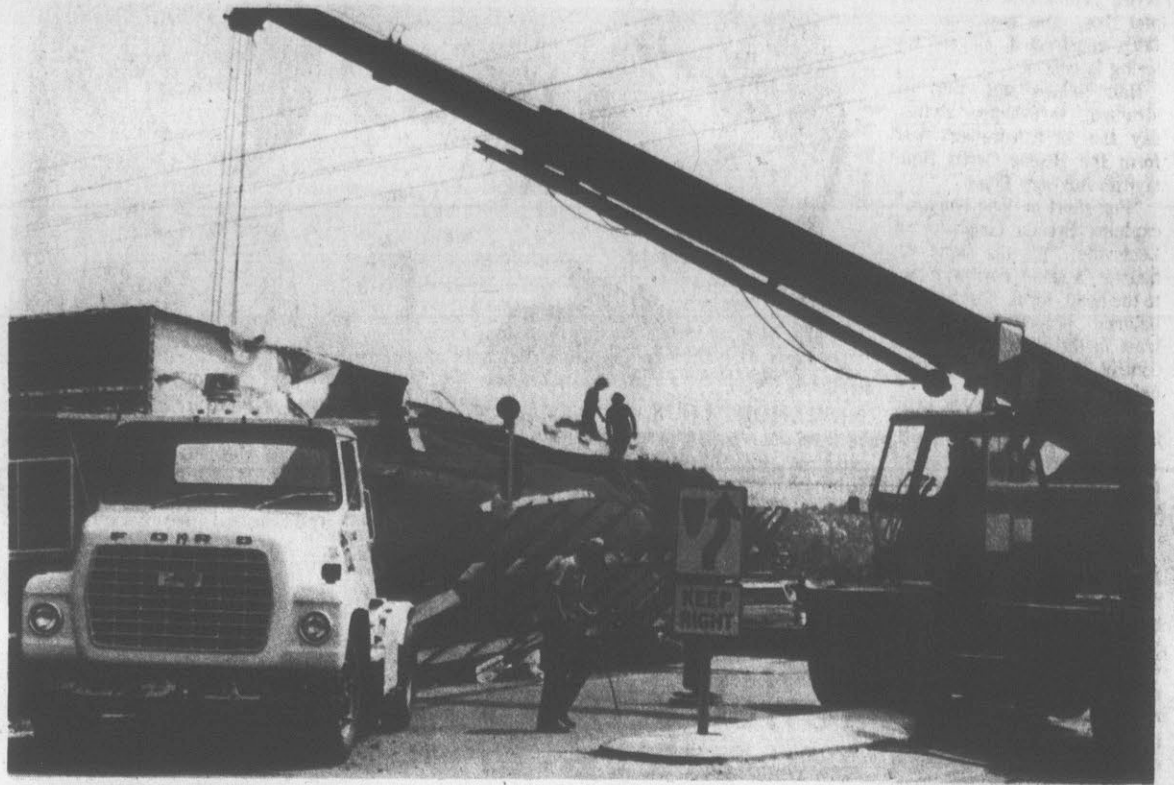

The lost jobs category, which Bregger described as "the most cyclically sensitive," increased by 174,000 persons to 2.5 million in July.

The unemployment rate for men rose to 4.1 percent in July from 3.9 percent in the previous month. At the same time, the rate for women declined from 5.8 percent to June to 5.5 percent in July.

The rate for women reflected the fact that "the entire July increase in employment took place among adult women, as both white and black women posted strong gains," the Labor Department said.

The rise in the unemployment rate in July was foreshadowed by recent economic developments.

MOBILE HOME OVERTURNS... No injuries were involved and damage was relatively light to this 14 by 70 foot half of a 28 by 70 foot mobile home unit that overturned just north of Greenville on N.C. 11 shortly before noon on Thursday. J. T. Williams, owner of Azalea Mobile Homes, explained that the driver of the cab transporting the unit, Alton Baldree, was traveling north and had stopped to allow traffic to clear, then had cut left to enter the paved road at Staton House Fire Station. Williams said that obviously the rise in the crossover of the four-laned N.C. 11 caused the chassis and trailer to begin rocking and that it became off balance. The speed of travel at the time was estimated at about 10 miles per hour. The mobile unit toppled onto the grass of Staton House Fire Station and did not create a traffic hazard. The crane used to raise the unit is a 25-ton hydraulic crane. Williams said he estimates damage at about $2,500, and noted that the light damage was due primarily to the new construction requirements for mobile homes that involves a gluing process plus steel bands spaced every 32 inches. CP&L To Closely Study Hunt's VEPCO Proposal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Officials of Carolina Power and Light Co. plan to "study very carefully" Gov. Jim Hunt's proposal that they purchase the Virginia Electric and Power Co. holdings in North Carolina.

But that could become a moot point unless Vepco is forced to sell because company officials, citing an investment of more than $200 million in North Carolina, say they have no desire to divest themselves of that portion of their electric system serving the northeastern corner of the state.

Any change in that attitude would not necessarily mean CP&L would step in and takeover, however.

"Of course, CP&L's responsibility to customers in its existing service area is the company's paramount responsibility," President Sherwood Smith said Thursday. "The matter is very complex, and there are many economic reasons why rates for utility service may vary from one area to another."

Hunt suggested that Vepco sell its holdings to Raleigh-based CP&L after praising the N.C. Utilities Commission order demanding a $1.6 million refund to customers in the Tar Heel state for excessive charges.

Hunt said Vepco management had not "performed well" in providing service to customers in portions of 22 of the state's 100 counties. He revealed he had as early as last September made through an aide the purchase proposal to CP&L. Hunt said the utility "appeared to be receptive."

Speaking in response to Hunt's statement Thursday that Vepco should sell its holdings because it is retarding economic development, Board Chairman T. Justin Moore Jr., said the Richmond-based utility is "vitaly interested in the welfare of its North Carolina customers..."

Hunt, who also praised the Utilities Commission for ordering Vepco to return an additional $4.1 million annually to customers in the Tar Heel state, said Vepco's rates are 50 percent higher than those of CP&L or the Charlotte-based Duke Power Co. Those companies serve most of the remainder of the state.

Moore, saying Vepco disagreed with the commission order, also took issue with Hunt's charge that the utility has become a stumbling block to industrial development in the northeast.

"Industrial development in the area we serve has grown faster than in the state as a whole," said Moore. "Vepco has been instrumental in this growth."

Smith said CP&L's consideration of the proposal would be based on the determination of "what would be in the best interests of all customers involved."

Commitment?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three members of the Senate Armed Services Committee are demanding that President Carter spell out exactly what increases in defense spending he would be willing to make to secure ratification of the SALT II treaty.

But several other senators, all previous advocates of arms control, scheduled a news conference today to call on the president to resist appeals for escalated defense spending as a price tag for SALT II.

"A reckless expansion in military spending, far beyond our genuine needs, would put at immediate risk the economic health of our nation and the morale of our people," said Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, in a speech to the Senate.

"The idea that we can spend our way into invulnerability simply doesn't hold up in the light of day," Culver said. Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger endorsed the effort of Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.; Henry Jackson, D-Wash.; and John Tower, R-Texas, to wrest a commitment on specific defense increases from the White House.

The three senators insisted Carter go far beyond any generalized promise to do what is necessary to keep America strong militarily.

They asked Carter to specify how much he intends to budget for defense over the next five years and to indicate what percentage would be allocated for missiles, aircraft, tanks, ships and ammunition.

Folks Tended To Be Skeptical

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Lionel Kunst concedes a $600 return on $4,683 isn't the best of investments, but when your advertising to find a new president folks tend to be a little skeptical.

Kunst, who paid for a full-page ad in Tuesday's Kansas City Times asking for contributions to finance a talent hunt for the next president, received 55 letters Thursday containing $500. Another $100 came in Wednesday.

"I've had experience in politics," he said. "I know there is always just a small minority of doers and givers. You can't tell me, that out of 220 million people, we can't find someone better."

The "someone" includes all of the candidates, announced or otherwise, who are pointing toward the 1980 White House.

UNSAFE GRATE

I was riding my bike and, at the intersection of Tenth and Elm Street, ran into a storm sewer grate. The space between the bars was just wide enough for my bike tire to drop into it. I've heard the city is trying to get all these fixed. To whom should I report this one? R. W.

Report it to Dr. Jim Hix, chairman of the Greenville Citizens' Bikeway Committee. Dr. Hix said this committee is compiling a list to identify as many of these grates of which the bars run parallel to the curb as is possible. He said that, since last fall, approximately 300 such grates in Greenville have been "strapped" with perpendicular weldings that make them safe for bicycles to run across. He added that about 15 grates on city streets immediately adjacent to Tenth Street and the Bypass will be fixed in the near future.

"If anyone is aware of any of these parallel-running grates that have not been strapped, please call me at 756-2970 after 5 p. m.," he said. He said that, once it is completed, the list of unstrapped grates will be sent to the city manager's office.

John Murphy, D-N.Y., a longtime friend and supporter of exiled Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, charged that the Sandinista rebels who ousted Somoza last month were executing thousands of his national guard troops and their families. On Thursday, Associated Press reporter Gordon Mott was given a guided tour of a prison near

Managua where about 3,200 national guardsmen are held. Here is his report:

TIPITAPA, Nicaragua (AP) — National guardsmen and civilians held at the Modelo Prison here say they are being well treated by their Sandinista jailers, but they complain of overcrowding, inadequate food and failing sanitation.

Reporters were given a guided tour of the jail on Thursday, one day after Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., a longtime friend of exiled Nicaraguan strongman Anastasio Somoza, charged at a Washington news conference that the Sandinistas were executing thousands of guardsmen and their families here.

None of the prisoners interviewed by reporters said they knew of the alleged executions.

Built to hold 800 inmates, Modelo is now crammed with about 3,200 men. Most are guardsmen who surrendered to the Sandinistas after Somoza fled into exile July 18.

Many prisoners claim they are civilians but the Sandinistas say all the prisoners were in some way connected with the Somoza government.

"We are like dogs here," said one captive guardsman. "They are not torturing us physically, but they are torturing us spiritually and morally by keeping us hungry. They are killing our spirit."

But most prisoners had few complaints about their jailers.

"We are being well-treated," said one man. "Some of the guards threaten us verbally, but for the most part they are good people."

Ulrich Bedert, chief of the International Red Cross relief effort in Nicaragua, acknowledged that conditions were very bad at this jail and the others around the country where a total of 4,500 national guardsmen are held.

"It is a matter of the Sandinistas being disorganized and not a case of bad intentions," he said. "We understand the situation and are trying to help even though it really isn't our function to feed prisoners in this kind of situation."

The Red Cross is supplying all the food to the prison. Inmates get one meal a day of rice, beans, one egg, sugar and milk. They complain of constant hunger, claim the portions are too small and say they sometimes have to wait up to 30 hours between meals.

Recess Delays Action On Standby Gas-Rationing

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

House and Senate negotiators are trying to fashion a compromise standby gasoline-rationing plan, but President Carter will have to wait until after Labor Day to get it.

The president and Democratic congressional leaders had hoped to have the bill on the president's desk by Thursday night — before the start of the congressional August recess.

But that was not to be. "We had to weigh symbolism against practicality," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., one of the Senate conferees of the bill.

He said he hoped a final version acceptable to the House, the Senate and Carter could be enacted "by early September."

Both Senate leaders and the White House denounced the standby rationing bill passed by the House late Wednesday. The Senate rejected the House version by voice vote Thursday.

While giving Carter basic authority to ration gasoline during a grave emergency, the measure was also saddled with numerous weakening amendments and restrictions on the president.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd called the House-passed bill "ludicrous."

And presidential spokesman Jody Powell said the bill was unacceptable to Carter as written. He expressed hope the objectionable parts — which he described as "ill-advised, unenforceable amendments" — could be smoothed out in the conference committee.

Among the House-added provisions the White House would like to see scrapped are:

— A Republican-backed amendment weakening the president's 78-degree thermostat program.

— Restrictions that prohibit rationing from being imposed unless there is a 20 percent or larger fuel shortage for a 30-day period.

— Amendments establishing a national 1 percent set-aside of diesel fuel for farmers and home-heating oil for coldweather areas of the country.

None of these provisions is contained in the Senate-passed legislation.

The bill sent to the Senate by the House "has been riddled with loopholes," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee.

"It has all the appearance of a rationing plan but it's really not a rationing plan that makes any rational sense," Jackson said.

But House Democratic Whip John Brademas said senators shouldn't be so quick to find fault with the House bill. He noted that the House had completely rejected the president's original rationing plan last May 10 by a wide margin.

The House passed its amendment-laden version of the rationing bill by a 263-159 vote late Wednesday.

And although the Senate planned to continue working today before beginning its recess, the House adjourned at 6 p.m. Thursday until after Labor Day.

Thus Congress failed to pass before its August recess any pieces of the new energy plan the president unveiled July 15.

Runaway Oil May Hit Beaches By Next Week

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) —

Government scientists preparing for a long and costly battle against a huge Mexican oil slick predict that the runaway crude will enter U.S. waters on Sunday and may hit beaches in South Texas next week.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration official John Robinson said Thursday, "We expect to be here a long time."

It has taken about two months for the oil from a blown-out well in the Bay of Campeche to approach U.S. waters. The latest flights over the spill area showed the oil, which has already spewed globs of tar onto several Mexican beaches, to be about 40 to 50 miles south of Brownsville.

The leading edge of the slick is expected to drift within 10 to 15 miles of the Texas coast this weekend. About 150 scientists, engineers and Coast Guardsmen are on the scene to fight the spill.

None of the officials at a Thursday news conference would estimate how much the effort is costing.

Robinson said the oil nearest the United States probably came out of the well shortly after the June 3 blowout. The scientist said oil may keep flowing north two months after the well is capped.

Capt. Jose Orozco of the Mexican navy said Thursday that the well may not be capped until Sept. 16.

At the request of the Mexican government, the Coast Guard is sending personnel and equipment to the well site to help contain and collect the spewing crude, a Coast Guard official in Washington said.

Orozco said the flow of oil from the well is now 20,000 barrels a day — reduced from an original flow of 50,000 barrels daily. In the two months since the blowout, millions of gallons have flowed into the Gulf of Mexico — making it the worst oil spill in history.

Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, head of the combined U.S. effort, said he will soon decide when to implement the extensive oil containment gear that has been mobilized.

New Fall Look For Hair Is Both Neat And Controlled

CHICAGO (AP) — On the eve of the '80s, fashion takes its cue from structured, body-hugging styles reminiscent of the '40s and '50s. The key word for fall's constructed, elegant tailoring is control.

Hair follows suit, with restrained, well-shaped styling, say the 12 hairdressers who form the Helene Curtis Hair-stylists Advisory Board.

"For short or long lengths," explains Brenda Longhofer of Louisville, "it's the same silhouette: a small, narrow, close-to-the-head form. To achieve balance, proportion and contrast in the style, you have to control the movement of the hair."

According to the advisory board, "control" starts with well-conditioned, well-groomed hair. Grooming is especially crucial for longer lengths, says Rocco Altobelli of Minneapolis. "Long, straight well-cared-for hair is its own fashion statement. If it looks shiny and healthy, it's a style in itself."

Board members agree that very, very short locks are the newest, strongest fashion statement in hair. Super-short styles have two advantages over longer lengths: "They're easiest to care for, and always look neatly styled."

Fall's short hair is close-cropped at sides and back, partial-permed at the forehead for fluff and movement; wisps trail down the nape of the neck to curl over a collar. To complete the saucy "retro" style, cover exposed ears with flashy rhinestones, add red lips, dramatic eye makeup, a wide-shouldered, wide-cinched dress and high, thin heels, board members suggest.

Just a few years ago, a big, all-over curly perm was the rage. No longer, says Rosalie Cantrell of Seattle. "Today, there's less volume, and less curl. Perms are growing out into looser, subdued waves, instead of tight, bouncy curls."

New perms are designed to show contrast: "We control the look of the style with a partial perm at the crown, sides or ends — only where it's needed — to contrast with sections of straight hair," she says.

Cut-and-blow-dry styling has been replaced by hairdressing.

"Pincurl waving, twists and rolls, all give hair a 'finished,' controlled look," says Fred Moore of Dallas. "Neat, head-hugging styling is smooth and sleek — nothing wild, frizzy or unkempt."

Hairdressing includes pulled-back or upswept styles, from chic, simple chignons to soft French twists or '40s-style rolls.

To keep them in place, says Jerry Gordon of Chicago, "hair is dressed up with accessories and costuming. Hats, flowers, baubles in crayon colors, all help hair keep its shape. If you have long, straight hair, perk it up and anchor it with a little beret or tiny pillbox hat cocked over an eye."

Even classic pageboys get into the act with smooth, pulled-back lines that bring hair close to the head. A new classic for medium-length hair: Pincurl waves that echo retro styling with a soft, elegant rhythm.

There are a multitude of styling possibilities for controlling all hair types and lengths, board members point out. Long hair looks new in a simple ponytail at the crown, balanced with thick, over-the-eyebrow bangs, while short hair is clean-cut, uncluttered and "fitted" to the head.

NEW SHORT LOOK in hair for fall can be just as versatile as long hair. Start with a good haircut like this one by Michael Marks, Helene Curtis Hair-stylists Advisory Board member from Elkins Park, Pa. The wash-and-wear "basic" look at left is casual, but always looks well-groomed. Two ways to add fluffy curl, right: Use a curling iron with a small barrel, or go "all the way" with a professional perm. Center, the short cut goes disco; a trendy, fashion look a la "Grease" is simply slicked back with styling gel and combed into place for instant glitz.

Jewelry Is Show And Tell

NEW YORK (AP) — What is your favorite jewelry saying about you?

The jewelry you choose and how you wear it telegraphs all sorts of personal information about you, says psychologist Florence Rhyn Serlin, consultant to the Jewelry Industry Council.

"Unconsciously we frequently use jewelry to create a mood or give ourselves an emotional lift," she says. "How often have you heard a friend say 'I always feel so good when I wear these earrings,' or 'This is my happy pin'?"

Jewelry, she points out, is like icing on a cake — it lends a special touch of elegance to the appearance.

"Time was when the well-dressed young lady would no more think of forgetting to wear her button earrings and pearl necklace than she would of forgetting to wear her gloves," Dr. Serlin says.

"Today's woman going on a job interview usually selects her classic gold jewelry — tasteful and dignified — to convey to her prospective employer that she is tasteful, dignified and proper — an ideal candidate for the prestigious position she seeks."

The psychologist maintains that the kind of person who favors lots of chains and beads and multiple jangly bracelets is saying: "Look, world! Here I am. Pay attention to me!" Another woman might wear one unique eye-catching piece of jewelry to accomplish the same ends.

Initial pins, ident bracelets and "little nothing" necklaces are all part of the ego picture in jewelry, she explains. Jewelry is often used to define a personality, from the name pin to the initial karat gold stick pins that say "I'm somebody."

In addition to showing status, calling attention to certain physical attractions such as slim wrists, nice ankles or graceful neck, and establishing identity, jewelry can help you create a mood you wish to attain, says the psychologist.

"If you're in a light, flirtatious mood," she points out, "you may fasten a big butterfly pin to your sleeve or shoulder, as contrasted to wearing a simple gold chain when you want to look more formal."

"If her earrings are a woman's most important jewelry accessory, you will usually find she wants to accent her ears, particularly if they are small and shell-like," Dr. Serlin notes. "Or it could be she wants to highlight a new hairdo."

"Wearing many rings is one way of calling attention to pretty hands — notice how you shy away from wearing rings when your manicure is peeling or you have a hangnail?"

Finally, a new piece of jewelry can help to create a new you, adds Dr. Serlin.

"Suppose for too long you've always been 'Old Faithful Fran,' dependable, sober... and dull. Get yourself a novelty pin — it could be a brushed gold stylized pussycat with real emerald eyes and a pink tourmaline nose. You'll find friends eyeing it and you, with a new interest."

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — First there was track lighting. Now a housewares manufacturer is offering a track system for hanging kitchen pots and pans or other housewares.

The anodized brushed aluminum track is available in 18 and 30-inch sizes with three and five basic hooks each in black and copper color with brown decorator nuts and end caps. Extra hooks, pegs and snap ring holders are available. Addon hangers include various sizes of hooks, pegs and snap ring holders — the latter are safety hooks for utensils without hanging holes.

The same company is also introducing a machine washable plastic holder to stemware upside down to minimize the build up of dust and dirt in the bowls. Each 11-by-4½-inch unit in smoke brown plastic holds three to four glasses and has end stops to prevent the glasses from falling out. Each has two keyhole mounting slots.

X-Rated Jokes Not For Office

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office with both men and women. When a co-worker says, "I heard a cute joke last night, but it's a little dirty. Do you want to hear it?" I say, "Sure," because I don't want to be known as a goody two-shoes.

Well, the joke is always dirtier than I thought it would be, and I'm embarrassed.

The women as well as the men in this office tell some pretty raunchy jokes, but I can't suddenly tell them I hate that kind of language. So how do I get my point across without sounding holier than thou?

OFFENDED IN CASA GRANDE, ARIZ.

DEAR OFFENDED: When you're asked if you want to hear a cute joke, be honest and say, "Not if it's X-rated."

DEAR ABBY: I believe in helping foreigners by sending them aid in disasters such as earthquakes, floods and famine, but when I see them overrunning our country by the hundreds of thousands, crowding us and taking jobs that should go to Americans, I object!

We feed, clothe and educate them when many of our own go without. Those bleeding-heart liberals are going to ruin this country if they don't get tough and shut down immigration until we can take care of our own. Charity begins at home! I welcome your response.

AMERICA FIRST!

DEAR AMERICA FIRST: Unless you are a direct descendant of the American Indian, you would not be here if your forebears hadn't sought refuge from another country. It would take more space than I am allowed in this column to explain why we must accept these homeless victims of war and oppression.

An American poet and essayist, Emma Lazarus (1845-1887), said it eloquently in her poem, "The New Colossus." It appears on the Statue of Liberty and reads, in part:

"Give me your tired poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!"

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a terrific guy. He has a driver's license but doesn't own a car.

I have to pick him up at his place whenever we go anywhere. It didn't bother me at first, but it does since he told me the reason he doesn't have a car isn't because he can't afford one; he just doesn't want the headache of owning one.

He lives within walking distance of his job, so he walks to work and back, but when he wants to go somewhere, guess who takes him.

The problem is that I'm kind of old-fashioned. I think a guy should pick up the girl — most of the time anyway.

Should I forget my values and keep providing transportation? Or should I tell him how I feel? Sign me...

RELUCTANT DRIVER

DEAR RELUCTANT: Tell him how you feel before your resentment goes into overdrive.

CONSUMERS ENJOY RECEIVING MAIL

NEW YORK (AP) — American consumers apparently enjoy reading advertising mail about products and services, the latest figures from the Mail Preference Service of the direct Mail-Marketing Assn. show.

When given the choice between having their names removed from; or added to, mailing lists, more people preferred to be added for more mail than to have their names taken off.

The service, begun eight years ago, permits consumers to write to the association to indicate their preference, which is then communicated to some 2,000 member companies.

In the May compilations, 10,361 persons opted for having their names added to some 24 categories of lists for consumer products and service information. Only 3,784 wanted their names removed from lists.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Some lucky people are taking lessons this summer at La Varenne, the prestigious cooking school in Paris directed by knowledgeable Mrs. Anne Willan. Other culinary students will be going later because the bilingual courses at La Varenne are given through each full academic year.

For the school's students, as well as for those of us who do not have the opportunity to study at La Varenne, there's an excellent booklet of the school's basic recipes. We tried the one for crepes and are happy, with Mrs. Willan's permission, to pass it along to you.

I chose the crepe recipe because these thin French pancakes have become so great an American favorite. I thought you might enjoy trying your hand at "the real thing." You can, of course, use these crepes to suit your own fancy.

LA VARENNE CREPES

- 1 cup flour
- 1-3rd teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 3 large eggs
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or oil
- 1-3rd cup clarified butter or oil (for frying)
- 6 to 7-inch-diameter crepe pan

Sift the flour into a bowl, make a well in the center and add the salt and half the milk. Gradually whisk in the flour to make a smooth batter. Whisk in the eggs. NOTE: do not beat the batter too much or it will become elastic and the finished crepes will be tough. Stir in the melted butter or oil with half the remaining milk, cover and let the batter stand 1 to 2 hours. It will thicken slightly as the grains of starch in the flour expand. The batter can be kept up to 24 hours in the refrigerator.

Just before using: stir in enough of the remaining milk to make a batter the consistency of thin cream. Brush or rub the crepe pan with butter or oil and heat until very hot (a drop of batter will sizzle at once). Add 2 to 3 tablespoons batter to the hot pan, turning it quickly so the bottom is evenly coated. Cook over fairly high heat until browned, then toss the crepe or turn with a spatula. Cook for 10 seconds to brown the other side and turn out onto a plate. Continue cooking the remaining crepes in the same way, greasing the pan only when the crepes start to stick.

As the crepes are cooked, pile them one on the top of the other to keep the bottom ones moist and warm. Crepes can be made ahead, layered with wax paper and stored in a plastic bag. They can be kept in the refrigerator for up to 3 days or for 2 to 3 months in the freeze. Makes 18.

Personnel Changes In Troop A

Several Highway Patrol personnel changes have been announced by Capt. Carl Gilchrist, Patrol Troop "A" commander.

The changes, effective August 1, include the lateral transfer of two sergeants, and the promotion of three troopers to the rank of sergeant and their transfer.

Capt. Gilchrist said the transfers include the lateral transfer of Sgt. C. S. Harrison from Greenville, to the Highway Patrol Training Center in Raleigh, and the lateral transfer of Sgt. J. R. Deans from Elizabeth City to Goldsboro.

The promotions, according to the officer, include: Trooper S. M. Compton of Lexington to the rank of sergeant and his transfer to Greenville, replacing Harrison; Trooper J. P. Whitehurst of Snow Hill to the rank of sergeant and his transfer to Windsor; and Trooper W. C. Hinson of Fayetteville to the rank of sergeant and his transfer to Elizabeth City.

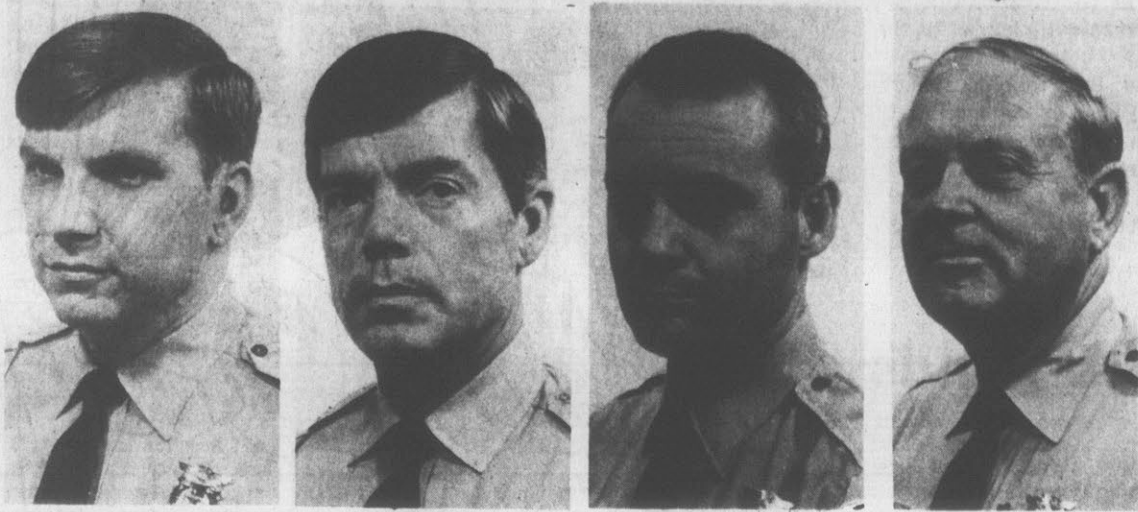

A Burlington native, Harrison joined the Highway Patrol in 1962 after serving with the Burlington Fire Department for two years. He was stationed in Clayton for more than 11 years before moving to Greenville as a sergeant in 1974.

The sergeant is a graduate of the Traffic Police Institute at Northwestern University.

Sgt. Compton, a Kannapolis native, joined the Patrol almost 10 months ago after working with Cannon Mills. He was stationed in Morganton for 2½ years, then in Lexington, before his transfer to Greenville.

He is married to the former Joyce Thomas of China Grove, and has two children.

Sgt. Whitehurst, a Pitt County native, is a veteran of 22 years with the Highway Patrol. He was first stationed in Martin County for six months, then transferred to Snow Hill.

He is married to the former Joan Parker of Greene County and has three daughters.

Sgt. Hinson, a Wilmington native, served four years in the U.S. Marine Corps and a year with the Fayetteville Police Department before joining the Highway Patrol in 1967.

He was stationed at Morehead City for six years, and for the past 5½ years has been stationed at Fayetteville.

Floods Follow Storms For Southern Indiana

By NANCY SHULINS
Associated Press Writer
GRIFFIN, Ind. (AP) — Rains that have set parts of southern Indiana awash for two weeks pushed the Wabash River beyond its banks and over thousands of acres of prime farmland, dealing storm-weary residents another blow.

Leo Austin, civil defense director in Posey County, estimated Thursday that before the river recedes, area farmers could lose 25,000 acres of corn and soybeans worth $8 million.

Hundreds of volunteers had come to the area to fill sandbags and man bulldozers in an effort to hold back the raging river.

"Those people put up one hell of a fight," Austin said. "It was one of the finest community efforts you'll ever see."

"But the Wabash is just too big." On Thursday, the Wabash broke through a series of earthen levees.

But despite the levees giving way, Griffin, a farming community of about 200 residents, was protected by a newer levee, said National Guard Adjutant Gen. Alfred Ahner.

Flooding was forecast to continue through Monday. The river, which separates Indiana and Illinois, was expected to crest near Griffin late Sunday at 4.5 feet above flood stage.

The situation was better on the Illinois side of the Wabash, where authorities said there had been scattered flooding in low-lying areas, but no evacuations and no flooding of farmland. Mount Carmel, Ill., which is located along the river, has a relatively new levee and farmers had constructed levees of their own as well, officials said.

The flooding was the latest in a series of disasters triggered by heavy rains and violent storms that have drenched the southern part of Indiana for two weeks.

And while Thursday brought a reprieve for most area residents, the National Weather Service said wet weather was to return tonight or Saturday.

Ralph Hocker of the National Weather Service attributed the abnormally heavy rains to a steady series of storms that have stalled along the Wabash and Ohio rivers.

The flooding swept over 10,000 acres containing what some local farmers described as southern Indiana's finest crop in years and came a week after record floods from Ohio River tributaries caused an estimated $35 million in crop damage.

Pilot Manual Possible Factor

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — A DC-10 manual instructing pilots to slow down if they lose an engine contributed to the May 25 Chicago crash that killed 273 people, says a spokesman for the Airline Pilots Association.

Testifying at a National Transportation Safety Board hearing, Dale Leppard said Thursday that slowing down the American Airlines plane left it without enough velocity to stay in the air.

The hearings on the crash at O'Hare International Airport enter their fifth day today.

Leppard said when the engine fell off during takeoff, pilot Walter Lux followed instructions and immediately reduced speed, which prevented the plane from pulling out of a stall.

The price of gasoline will average nearly a dollar a gallon, but travelers will find supplies plentiful this weekend throughout North Carolina as stations across the state begin receiving their August allocations.

"There is ample gasoline in this area," said Helen Ray of the Carteret County Chamber of Commerce. "No problems — the only problem we hear down here is the price. I think we're still under a dollar."

Distributors reported that August allocations will be 5 to 10 percent higher than those in July.

A spokesman for Pearsall Oil Co. in Rocky Mount said the company has been told to expect 75 percent of the allocation of last August. He said the July allocation was 70 percent of the 1978 figure.

The Asheville Chamber of Commerce said 40 percent of the stations in that area plan to be open most of the weekend. Earlier this summer gasoline was plentiful in that area, but it suffered losses of up to 40 percent in tourism because out-of-state drivers would not chance a trip in view of the uncertainty of gas in other areas.

In Boone the situation was much the same. A chamber of commerce spokesman there said all stations would be open Saturday and Sunday with "plenty of gas here."

The same holds true for resorts in the eastern part of the state, particularly those on the Outer Banks. Spokesmen for the Southport-Oak Island and Outer Banks chambers of com-

Nab Suspect In Deputy's Death

LEWISTON, N.C. (AP) — After an all-night search by upwards of 200 persons, a fugitive was flushed out of a wooded area near Lewiston early today and arrested in the slaying of a Bertie County deputy sheriff.

Sheriff E.H. Daniels said that Theodore Avery, 24, of Lewiston, would be charged with murder in the killing of Deputy Sheriff Calvin Donald Cherry, 25, of Windsor.

Daniels said that Avery was arrested in a house trailer where he had fled after the searchers, led by bloodhounds, chased him out of the wooded area.

According to Daniels, between 150 and 200 persons, including deputies, Windsor police, state highway patrolmen and others launched a search for Avery following the shooting of Cherry around 9:30 p.m. at the home of Avery's sister, Shirley Avery.

Cherry and other officers had gone to the house seeking to arrest Avery who had escaped around 2 p.m. Tuesday from the Bertie County Jail along with Steven Hall, 21, of Cole-rain.

Daniels said officers searched Shirley Avery's house and found Avery in the bathroom.

Avery and Hall made their getaway, Daniels said, after they overpowered the jailer and locked him in a cell, took a gun from a cabinet and fled in the jailer's pickup truck. About 20 minutes elapsed before the jailer could summon assistance.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Prices on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday were steady, according to Louis Williams, Sales Supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Grade for grade, prices have changed very little from those of last year. Offerings consisted of more primings than on the previous day. Lug grades are appearing in larger volume, he said. Several sheets of leaf grades were sold.

Volume of cutter grades were about the same as on Wednesday. Top price paid for several sheets of cutters and a few sheets of leaf grades was $1.55 a pound. Stabilization receipts were about half of those of Wednesday.

The market has sold 727,013 pounds for $947,344, for an average of $1.30.31 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 3,786,026 pounds for $4,805,236, for an average of $1.26'92.

'Operation Overcharge' Helps

Joseph M. Parker, secretary of Operation Overcharge, said he feels the organization created a climate for the N. C. Utilities Commission to roll back Virginia Electric and Power charges. Operation Overcharge was organized to fight for lower electric rates in the VEPCO area and 45,000 residents in 22 VEPCO counties of North Carolina signed petitions asking Gov. Hunt to help in obtaining rate reductions. The recent order does not apply to wholesale VEPCO customers such as Greenville Utilities, but Parker says the organization intends "to do something about that." We couldn't be happier that that consumer organization is at work. It is an example of what can be accomplished when concerned people band together to take effective action. Operation Overcharge should remain active and do all it can to bring reasonable electric rates to our area.

Data Helpful In Obtaining More Funds

A Greenville population figure of 34,539 has been accepted by the N. C. Department of Administration, Division of State Budget. The population figure, which will be a little less when prorated to July 1, 1978, will be used to compute shared revenues. The increased population figures could be helpful to the city in obtaining Powell Bill (street) and other state funds.

THIS AFTERNOON

Enjoy State Travel Pay

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — High on the list of priorities set each time the North Carolina General Assembly meets is another boost in state reimbursement to employees for their travel expenses. The recently adjourned session came through with two major increases: Per diem was increased from $37 to $31. Personal vehicle mileage payments were raised from 15 cents per mile to 19 cents per mile. And despite repeated pleas from top-echelon state officials that use of those funds be trimmed — not only to save tax dollars but to save fuel during the present crisis — travel at state expense is a jealously guarded perquisite of office to many state employees. Just in recent weeks top educators spent several days at the coast; the Board of Transportation met at two out-of-Raleigh locations, requiring a host of bureaucrats to hit the road; social workers invaded Raleigh, and a mental health seminar drew several hundred; and the Department of Labor held its annual barbecue-bash at a Raleigh lakeside retreat. No Count That just scratches the surface. It is impossible to get a firm grip on the dollars or time being spent by state employees traveling. There is no clearinghouse for information — and the reason for that is because any public report of the total manhours and dollars involved would create a furor. Of all the actions taken by Gov. Jim Hunt during his term in office which directly affect state employees, the one which has caused more grumbling and bureaucratic maneuvering to escape is the suggestion that travel be restricted. The public and legislators complain about the situation from time to time, and a senior budget analyst on the legislative staff has taken a close look. "We have never been able to pull that information together. It is buried everywhere — special grants, federal grants, personnel budgets. One agency even changed the name of a program to keep it from showing up on the records." Much of the travel is done under the heading of "training". This activity goes by many names: retreats, seminars, workshops, in-service, or just plain training. The pecking order generally requires that high-level bureaucrats participate in retreats and seminars; ordinary folks get training. Head to the Blue Ridge Mountains. And while the training sessions themselves are hard enough to identify, it is impossible to determine how many gatherings are purely social — or mostly social — under the guise of conducting some business. Or, how many brief business sessions are scheduled simply to get everybody together for a social event. Strangely enough, one of the more popular gathering places is a Ramada Inn at Apex which holds the distinction of being just far enough from Raleigh to allow state employees from the Capital City to qualify for "out-of-town" travel expenses. The meeting place is 10 miles out of town. The subterfuge surrounding state employee travel is carried right on down to the printed programs invariably used at sessions. There is usually a late-afternoon "sensitivity" session, or "consciousness arousing" gathering, or "awareness" program — all of which are covers for a cocktail party.

BILL NOBLITT

State agency budgets never provide an overview of the training activities, and the money is pulled from various categories to set up a program. The employees use their state travel money and per diem to cover their participation. All Over Sessions are held all across the state, at resorts and roadside motels alike, from Nags

CANDIDATE'S YEAR

Uphill Struggle By Crane

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Phillip Crane, the Republican mallorider candidate for president, celebrated his first anniversary on the campaign trail Thursday encouraged that people are finally beginning to recognize his name. And Crane, while admitting he has a long uphill battle ahead of him, says he's perfectly happy with his current position, poised behind the front-runners and — as he says — "the second choice" candidate of conservative Republicans now committed to other candidates. The Republican representative from Illinois has raised more money than any other candidate — $2.5 million, according to Federal Election Commission reports. But his method of fund raising — direct mail solicitation — is the most costly method and he now is trying to reduce a deficit that at one time was $1.6 million. The deficit is down to $700,000, and the conservative Republican, a square-jawed son of Middle America, predicts it will be gone before Jan. 1 — the date he becomes eligible for matching federal campaign funds. He already has qualified for $1.6 million in matching funds and hopes to hit the $4 million mark by January. Crane said in an interview that he stands a good chance of staying in the race into the convention if he can stay among the front-runners in the early primaries. And he said he was satisfied with his state organizations, adding, "I think in Iowa, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Florida we've out-organized every other candidate." Crane is widely perceived as a young version of Ronald Reagan, the former movie star who battled President Ford for the GOP nomination in 1976 and who is considered a front-runner for 1980. And

Crane admits there is little difference between his position and Reagan's on issues dear to conservative Republicans. The Illinois Republican has the boyish good looks of the late John F. Kennedy. He is fast with answers, as befits a former college teacher, and the replies ring with professorial authority. He uses no prepared text and no notes in his speeches but invariably manages to hit the major points outlined in the press release distributed before his speech. He has a tendency to load his speeches with a multitude of facts and figures. But he still can stir up an audience. Crane's speech to the International Platform Association convention in Washington Wednesday was a case in point. He followed Jeanne Dixon, the popular predictor of future events, to the stand and the audience obviously was lukewarm at best. But halfway through his speech, the reaction visibly turned. He drew prolonged applause when he stated his opposition to big government, saying the "government does nothing well." And the reaction continued to swell to the standing ovation he received at the end. In an earlier one-on-one interview, Crane appeared stiff at first. But he relaxed once the first few questions were past, leaning back in his chair and lighting a cigarette. His speech is missing the "uhs" and other hesitations that afflict most people, and his sentences are direct. The 48-year-old Crane, chairman of the American Conservative Union, believes his chances for the nomination hinge on how well Reagan and John Connally of Texas, a Democrat-turned-Republican, do in early primaries. Crane says that in Oklahoma, Reagan people told him, "Phil, you always were our second choice. If anything happens to Reagan, you can count on our support." "In the Rockies," he continued, "you find a lot of Reagan support but there's also Crane support, again it's second choice." "I just came back from Texas and a lot of people who were willing to help me were John Connally people. They said, 'You've got to understand, Phil, we're all for Big John but you're our second choice. So if anything happens to him...'" "So we're in a position where we can fall heir to a lot of support, depending on Connally's fortunes or Reagan's fortunes... As the fortunes of those who are perceived right now to be front-runners may fade, and we're convinced that will

APATHWAY
If we stand on the bank of a placid lake at night when the moon is halfway up the heavens directly opposite us, it appears that there is a pathway of moonlight leading from our very feet up to the moon itself. In analogical fashion, there is a straight pathway of light from every sincere believer to the throne of God. We open the Bible, and behold this path in all its dazzling splendor. We attend church, and in the quiet of worship there begins to form before our eyes that pathway to our maker. Religion sometimes appears as a code of laws, or a collection of creeds. Perhaps it is pious custom, or keeping our church dues paid, or giving support to good causes. In actuality it is much more than any or all of these things. It is a pathway of light extending from where we stand to the great, inscrutable power who loves us and watches over us. Elisba Douglass

To the editor:
From Ecclesiastes 11:5 comes this admonition: As you do not know how the spirit comes to the bones in the womb of a woman with child, so you do not know the work of GOD who makes everything. Rather than destroy that life conceived and growing in the womb, let us teach our children the value of love, of moral strengths, of chastity, of truth, of the value of life, of the meaning of life shared with a mate, of the ways of having desired children and how to avoid the unwanted conception, of the beauty of a child, or the mystery of a child, of the presence of GOD in a child and of our own immortality. Let us not emphasize that abortion on demand is anything but a totally negative approach to the unwanted conception. The choice of life is of GOD, not man. Jack Kootz, M. D.

Desert Nights Special

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
SONORA DESERT, Ariz. (AP) — The last act of the setting desert sun is to gild the needles of the saguaro cactus, giving it a halo, as of a giant martyr, arms upraised in thanks that day is done. "If you lived in the desert, you would be grateful for night-fall, too," Martha Ames said. Martha Ames is head of Special Events at the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, near Tucson. One event she put on recently was special indeed: a night walk in the desert. "It's an experiment," she said. "If it works, we'll make it a regular part of our schedule." "People are reluctant to go out in the desert at night, afraid of snakes and things. That's a shame. At night, the desert is an entirely different place. It comes alive. If you want to know the desert, you must witness it at night." Night fell. The dry air turned cool suddenly as if a switch had been thrown. The 50 or so who had gathered, some carrying flashlights, split into a half-dozen groups. A museum specialist shepherded each group to tell of the magic that night time works on the desert's creatures, great and small.

When you discover, for instance, that cactus flowers are pollinated not by bees, but by bats, you begin to sense the wonder of the night. The moon made its appearance, an orange ball rising above the black veil of the Tucson mountains. Flashlights became excess baggage in the moonlight. Now the cactus glowed silver. "We wanted a full moon for two reasons," Ms. Ames said. "First of all, the light. We don't want anybody backing into a cactus or tripping over something. Besides, in the full of the moon the large animals are more active. That means the small animals, the prey, tend to stay hidden. So snakes becomes less active, too. Since

40 Years Ago Today

August 3, 1939
J.M. Broughton, Raleigh lawyer, who is regarded on all sides as an almost certain candidate for governor in next year's primary, today cited to the 36th Annual Farm and Home Week convention at State College, the "growing power and importance of women as voters." "Whether men may all like it or not, women are today a power in our political life," he said. "In the last general election in North Carolina, for instance, 46 percent of the votes were cast by women. Since votes are the life blood of political success, many politicians who earlier scoffed have remained to pray." Entrance of women into the political arena has "elevated democracy," which "emancipated women," he said. "Essentially women are liberal and progressive in their political thinking. They will be found in the main on the side of humanity and morality," he added. — Stuart Morgan

Crisis Of Credibility Arises

By GAIL MICHAELS
I've noticed that since I started writing this column, I've experienced a crisis in credibility. Of course, there are some people who do believe what I write. They're the ones who won't let their children eat at my house. But the majority of my readers think that I lie. I rarely get a compliment that isn't prefaced with the words, "But then you make most of it up." There are even readers who call to check up on the facts. Several months ago I wrote a column about Phillip's cousin, who upon seeing my spaghetti remarked, "Our plant's been looking for a new adhesive." The day after that column came out, someone called his wife and said, "Johnny didn't really say that, did he?" His wife, who is one of the few who never question anything I write was surprised that anyone else would. "Of course he did," she said. But most of the people who question my veracity do so on the basis of my columns about Meg. Meg's preschool teacher even says that I malign Meg. Well, I don't know how Meg acts when she's not around me, but I do know that when she's with me, she thrives on embarrassing me. And I have witnesses. Just ask the checkers at the A & P in Greenville about the night we got almost to the checkout counter, and Meg wet on a week's supply of groceries. Or the waitress to whom Meg explained her own version of the facts of life. I have to admit that it's not only Meg who does this to me. There must be some aura about the adult me that invites kids to make me blush. I was barely past puberty when my preschool cousin detected it. She promptly raised the skirt on a mannequin and shouted across the department store, "Hey Gail, this lady don't have no panties on!" Even Meg's friends embarrass me. I took Meg and another little girl to a park not too long ago, and almost the first thing the other child did was walk up to a stranger, punch him in the stomach with her finger, and say, "What's your name, fat man?" It seemed futile to protest that she wasn't mine. A recent incident at the YMCA almost convinced me that I was not alone. I was sitting in the lobby reading a book when everyone around me began to laugh. The laughter grew louder and louder, and pretty soon the lady at the desk sooted to another of the employees. "Hey, Tom, did you see that little girl streak through here just now?" She's sitting on the porch stark naked." I laughed a little myself as I continued to read, even though I pitied the poor mother who would have to retrieve that kid. It sounded like something Meg would do, but Meg still had 10 minutes of swimming class left. The lady at the desk spoke up again. "Does anyone know whose child she is?" I thought I might be able to help so I looked up. And gulped. I now have 30 more witnesses to the truth of my columns. ♣

Outraged Citizens Hunt Clues Two-Year-Old Awarded

By CHRISTOPHER CORBETT
Associated Press Writer
BURLINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Outraged by the abduction-slaying of a 12-year-old bicyclist, more than 1,000 residents of this small town, including children and grandmothers, are braving sweltering heat to search for the missing bicycle and other clues.

Volunteers, whose ranks have been swelling since the search began Wednesday, are trudging over rough, hilly terrain searching for clues in the slaying of Katherine Ebersold. Her partly burned body was found Saturday in a wooded area less than a mile from her home. Police said she had been bound and stabbed repeatedly in the chest, neck and abdomen before a flammable liquid was poured over the body and ignited.

"It doesn't matter whose child it is, it's a child," said Gertrude Zurles, a gray-haired grandmother of five. "We're all a family."

She walked, stick in hand, along the shoulder of Vineyard Road looking for some trace of the Ebersold girl's killer.

Temperatures were in the upper 90s in this western Connecticut community of 5,500 as volunteers from tiny children clutching a parent's hand to the elderly fanned out across a 30-square-mile area.

Joseph F. Crowley, public information officer for the state police, said the search would continue today and Saturday. "Maybe more people will be out there. They'll still be looking."

"It's our community, we want to keep it safe," said Hugh Martin. He was holding his 3-year-old daughter, Olivia, on his knee as he rested near the state police command post at dusk Thursday.

The slender, blond-haired Miss Ebersold was last seen riding her yellow 10-speed bicycle away from the Burlington recreation center the night before her body was discovered.

A knife police suspect is the murder weapon was found earlier in the week. Laboratory tests that would confirm it as the murder weapon are not complete.

Authorities, stumped in their search for clues, asked townspeople to assist them. The local volunteer fire department, housed in a 19-century brick building on the edge of the green in the center of town, organized the search.

"The entire town is completely, 100 percent involved in assisting the police," said John

McLeod, state trooper. "I've never seen anything like it and most of the investigators haven't."

Fire Chief Richard Kellert said the number of volunteer searchers had been increasing for the past two days.

"I don't know how many I got out there. They're pouring in right now," said the cigar-smoking fire chief who was supervising the search.

McLeod said the wooded, swampy terrain was "difficult at best."

there isn't much to eat, they stay in their lairs." Comforting Martha Ames is a native of Virginia, about as far removed from desert dust as you can get. She is a geologist and archeologist and came to Tucson to work in a lab, dating tree rings.

"When I saw the desert," she said, "it captivated me. I wanted to learn everything about it. I began hanging around the museum, first as a visitor then as a volunteer."

"It was 10 years ago, when I was a student, though, that I got the idea for a night walk."

"My ecology class went on a night toad watch. I was utterly fascinated. The activity at the pond was as different as, well, as different as night and day. So is the desert."

Quite. Even if no profound secrets of nature reveal themselves, a walk in the desert by moonlight is its own reward. Only a snake might disagree.

"Did the chauffeurs race in uniform?"

"Always," Mr. Ustinov said, "but the one liberty they were able to wear sneakers. It wasn't that I didn't have a chauffeur alone that was so humiliating, it was also that my father wouldn't run in the fathers' race. Father was a former German diplomat and he wore a monocle. He felt it was beneath his dignity to race the 100-yard dash, and he also had a fear of losing his monocle. So while the other boys at school had their mothers, fathers, and chauffeurs to cheer on, all my marbles were on my mother, and she turned out to be a lousy sprinter."

"What was wrong?" "Her start was very bad, and she preferred to go off from a standing position, while all the other mothers crouched. Time and time again I told my mother she would never get a good start from a standing position, but she was very stubborn and wouldn't listen. Naturally, Mother always came in last and since she was the only one I had in the competitions I had to apologize for her bad form to the other boys — a most terrible experience."

"To make matters worse the boys at Mr. Gibb's knew my father was German and, to be unkind, they said I lost the First World War. There were only a few who were pleasant, and they said that their fathers had told them that whenever they overran a German trench they found the sanitary conditions immaculate as compared to those of the French. But since I had a French mother, even this was not consoling."

"So Olympics may mean something to other people," Mr. Ustinov said, "but all they do for me is remind me of my mother puffing down the 100-yard track, suffering from bad acceleration and trying so desperately to make up to me for the fact her husband wouldn't run and we didn't have a chauffeur."

Mr. Ustinov wiped a tear from his eye. "Maybe she was a lousy sprinter — but she was my mother."

happen, then we're in the position to fall heir to a lot of support that at the present time has to be viewed as committed to other candidates."

The early primaries probably will tell Crane's story. And he thinks Reagan is the man to beat in New Hampshire, Florida and Iowa. "I think what's going to happen with at least nine candidates in the race is we'll begin to see also-rans at once," he said. "We can't afford to be in the also-ran category. We have to be near the top."

Crane — who took his strategy from another early runner, Jimmy Carter — is encouraged by a CBS-New York Times poll showing that 12 percent of the population recognizes his name. He notes that Carter at the same time in the 1976 race had about 1 percent of the Democratic vote.

The Crane campaign already has survived two setbacks. He reorganized his staff in May after disagreements on how to run the campaign. And he apparently has weathered a series of unflattering stories in the Manchester, N.H., newspaper owned by Reagan supporter William Loeb.

Although Crane was first incensed at the stories claiming he drank heavily, made off-color remarks and was committed to "bedding down 100 women," he now thinks Loeb may have helped him in New Hampshire.

"He raised my name identification factor by about 50 percent," Crane said. "And while he did increase my negatives up there, he increased my positives at a faster rate. We've got a significant sympathy reaction up there because he has done that to enough people for a long enough time that it has created a lot of bad feelings."

Crane doesn't see himself as facing a decision soon on whether to stop or go ahead. "I think we're strong enough in the early states that we can demonstrate credibility and that, in turn, will give us enough momentum that even if we cannot win the nomination, I don't think anyone can go into the convention with a clear majority."

"If that happens, you're talking about a brokered convention and we'll be in there brokering."

Thefts Are Charged Two

Greenville Police yesterday arrested two local men on charges connected with the alleged theft of tape players and hubcaps from cars on two dealer lots here.

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the two as Steven Devorne Maye, 18 of 2110 North Village Dr., and George Ralph Howard, 16 of 406 Roundtree Dr.

Cannon said Maye was charged with breaking and entering an auto, larceny of a tape player and two counts of larceny of hubcaps, as well as with carrying a concealed weapon.

Howard, the chief reported, was charged with breaking and entering an auto, larceny of a tape player and larceny of hubcaps.

Cannon said the merchandise was allegedly taken from cars parked at C and J Used Cars at 1605 Dickinson Ave. and at Tarheel Toyota at 109 Trade St.

The thefts allegedly occurred around 3 a.m. yesterday. Cannon noted that the pair was jailed after officers stopped the car in which the two were traveling on Memorial Drive and saw hubcaps in the rear of the vehicle.

'Satisfied' By Trip To Africa

NEW YORK (AP) — Black activist leader Rev. Jesse Jackson has returned to the United States after a two-week trip to South Africa, where he said he was able to "heighten the human rights consciousness."

Speaking at a brief news conference Thursday at Kennedy International Airport, Jackson said he urged people in that racially torn country to try to "keep a sense of liberalism alive."

Jackson called the trip "extremely successful" and said he was able to get a "real sense of the culture."

In a country that has effectively shut out its critics for 30 years, Jackson aroused emotional responses from South African leaders as well as the country's young militants. Thousands of blacks packed a Soweto ghetto church on one occasion to hear him speak.

the two fields. But this prospect, they add, depends on both sides freeing themselves from "sterile conflicts and protective armor" that have crippled past relationships.

A report issued at the close last week of a 12-day World Conference on Faith, Science and the Future traced a history between the two fields of initial harmony, then battle, mutual misassumptions and finally a 20th century "uneasy truce."

The report on relationships of science and faith was drawn up by a section headed by Lutheran theologian Philip Hefner of Chicago and physicist D. Enilo Ajakaiye of Nigeria.

It was one of 10 sectional reports on various issues, including technology, political power, energy shortages, urban life, population problems, genetic manipulation, hunger, economics, social ethics, nature and God.

OUR DOCTRINAL STANDARDS—Our first and final rule for all doctrine, faith and practice is God's Holy Word, the Bible. We believe the Bible is the written Word of God, without error in the original manuscripts, and of infallible and divine authority in all matters of faith and practice. Therefore, all of our teaching and preaching is from the Bible.

OUR CHURCH'S VISION—All of our teaching and preaching is centered in the Bible. We believe God's Word provides the answers to today's situation, just as it did 2000 years ago. Just as man breaking God's laws disrupts the ecological balance, so man breaking God's spiritual laws upsets man's relationship with other men and God. Submission to God's Word, the Bible, is the key to resolving these problems.

surely part of our glory, is also part of our tragedy," one report says. "As we peer into the future we catch a glimpse of much that fills us with fear and dread, but we perceive also that the future is God's."

"Both science and faith share a deep sense of the mystery that underlies them both, a mystery rooted in the nature of man and the realities of God," the report says.

Vacation Bible School Slated

Vacation Bible School will be held at Immanuel Baptist Church 1101 S. Elm St., beginning Monday, August 6 and continuing through Friday, August 10.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 12 noon daily for children for children ages four through the sixth grade. Bible stories, singing, games, crafts, and outside play are some of the planned activities.

Junior and senior high school students will meet Monday through Thursday from 7-10 p.m. nightly. The public is invited to attend and students are encouraged to bring their own Bibles.

In fact, it notes that scientific advances, especially in molecular biology and modern physics and chemistry "provide consonance to the Christian perspectives enshrined in the Bible."

"Science has arrived at mysteries which can only be dealt with, if at all, by theologians." At the same time, the report adds, "Christian theology is confronted with basic challenges to its traditional formulations, posed by new understandings from science."

Yet religious values give "the work of science and technology a basis, a meaning and direction..." representatives of the two fields say.

"Since the Christian hope is directed toward the perfection of the whole creation, science and technology are incorporated into responsibility for the continuation of life and keeping the future open."

Concerning methods by which both fields attain their conclusions, the report notes that science, like religion, necessitates involvement in a community to verify its premises.

SMITH W. BAGLEY meets the press after being acquitted of manipulating Washington Group stock prices and defrauding shareholders. (AP Laserphoto)

Bagley Planning Fight 'System'

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Reynolds tobacco heir Smith Bagley said Thursday he has launched a fight against the judicial system that brought him to trial for stock manipulation charges in connection with his management of the Washington Group, a now-defunct food and textile conglomerate.

Bagley and four co-defendants were acquitted of those charges Wednesday afternoon in federal court in Richmond, Va.

In a news conference Thursday, Bagley, the grandson of the late R.J. Reynolds, founder of the world's largest tobacco company, said the judicial system had serious faults.

"The fact that this case could come to trial and that we could be subjected to the incredible financial and emotional burden of the past several months reflects a serious fault in our judicial system," he said. Co-defendants James Gilley and Shirley Grubb also made statements.

Bagley, 44, a Washington socialite and friend of President Carter, said the news conference was his first step in "fixing the system" because it brought his case before the press.

He would not say exactly what action he plans to take against the government, but he said that "too often, the rich and famous serve as a delicious target for hungry prosecutors."

"The danger in our system as I see it is in the almost total discretion of the prosecutor to obtain indictments for anyone and for any reason," he said.

Bagley charged that the grand jury system "has become a rubber stamp for any over-eager prosecutor with political and monetary motives."

Bagley and the four co-defendants were charged with conspiring to manipulate the stock of the Washington Group to inflate the price of its stock artificially.

Bagley and some of the other also had been accused of misapplying bank funds as part of the conspiracy and of defrauding members of the pension fund of the conglomerate that was based in Winston-Salem.

Bagley could have received a total of 30 years in prison if he had been convicted of all charges.

Bagley said the judicial system was flawed because the review system has been subjected to intimidation, especially by national columnists; federal prosecuting authorities had conflicts of interest and coercive tactics were used to break a witness or force him to change his story or lie.

Kennedy Offers His Hand-Gun Control Legislation

Price Of Most Flue-Cured Leaf Continued Steady On Thursday

By The Associated Press
The price of most flue-cured tobacco held steady Thursday as the second week of auctions ended.

Variations in grade averages of Eastern North Carolina tobacco were small in most cases with gains and losses about equal, according to the Federal-State Market News Service.

Top price by companies held at $155 per hundred. Volume was moderate to heavy and the ratio of cutters and lugs increased with less primings and nondescript.

Gross sales Thursday on the Eastern Belt totaled 6,032,354 pounds for $7,826,073 at an average price of $129.72 per hundred pounds, up $2.17 from Wednesday.

Season totals for the Eastern Belt as of Thursday were 46,109,387 for $58,076,896 for an average price of $125.95 per hundred pounds.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Co-operative Stabilization Corp. received 11.1 percent of sales

Wednesday with the season percentage at 11.2.

On the South Carolina and Border North Carolina markets, grade prices held firm. Most of the grades remained at Wednesday's level. Other offerings ranged $1 to $3 with a few more gains than losses taking place.

A 7 percent increase in good tobacco with 8 percent decrease in fair and low improved the quality of offerings. Approximate percentages by groups were: leaf (B) 22 percent; cutters (C) 22; lugs (X) 39; primings (P) 8; and nondescript 8 percent. Volume remained light.

Thursday's gross sales on the Border Belt were 5,093,438 for $7,014,219 and an average price of $137.71, up $2.18 from Wednesday.

Season totals on the Border Belt as of Thursday were 55,126,7702 for $73,093,901 at an average price of $132.59 per hundred pounds.

Volume going under loan amounted to 13.4 percent of sales Wednesday and 11.1 percent for the season.

Demand for Middle Belt tobacco strengthened Thursday. Practically all heavy volume grades were up from $1 to $4 per hundred pounds over previous levels. Lugs showed more advances than any day this week.

The composition of marketings reflected increases in primings and cutters and declines in the volume of leaf and lugs offered for sale. Good and fair quality lugs and primings made up the bulk of sales. Several points reported light to moderate volume.

Gross sales Thursday on the Old and Middle Belt totaled 954,017 pounds for $1,197,113 and an average of $125.48, up $3.40 from Wednesday.

Season gross sales as of Thursday on the Middle Belt totaled 7,631,230 for $9,283,756 and an average price of $121.65.

Stabilization Corporation receipts amounted to 8.6 percent of gross pounds Wednesday and 5.1 percent to date.

Leaf Prices Inch Upward

Price average on the Greenville Tobacco Market continued to inch upward Thursday as local warehouses completed the second week of the 1979 season.

The market averaged $131.82 per hundred pounds yesterday as 890,614 pounds sold for $1,174,015, according to J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Tobacco Board of Trade here.

Bryan said that top practical price paid was $1.47 per pound and an increased percentage of good quality leaf brought as much as $1.55 per pound.

Offerings consisted of lugs, primings and less non descript tobacco than on the previous day's sale, as well as a few cutters and leaf grades.

Stabilization receipts accounted for 18.3 percent of total sales.

For the season, the market has sold 6,218,841 pounds for $7,907,714, an average of $127.16 per hundred pounds.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy today introduced gun-control legislation that would outlaw the cheap handguns most often used in crimes and tighten restrictions on the sale of other weapons.

The Massachusetts Democrat, whose brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was assassinated with a pistol in 1968, is sponsoring the bill at the request of gun-control forces who accused President Carter of renegeing on a campaign promise to champion their cause.

The proposal immediately drew praise from gun-control advocates but the wrath of the gun lobby. The Gun Owner of America called it an "outrageous effort to disarm the American people."

The new bill would: —Ban the manufacture, importing and all trading in "Saturday night specials," cheap, easily concealed handguns. A 1968 law passed after the slayings of Robert Kennedy and civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., bans importation of these guns but allows assembly in this country of foreign produced parts. —Establish a definition of "Saturday night specials" based on how easily such weapons can be concealed and on their potential for crime rather than sporting use.

—Require police departments to verify the eligibility of handgun purchasers. Federal law already prohibits purchases by criminals, the insane and certain other people and requires buyers to fill out identification forms, but does not require that the information be verified.

—Require that all handgun transfers, whether the original purchase or later sales, take place through licensed dealers. While someone owning a handgun now would be free to keep it, its disposal would be regulated.

—Prohibit pawnbrokers from dealing in handguns and tighten the licensing requirements for other dealers.

—Require manufacturers to keep track of the distribution of the handguns they make. This is similar to requirements imposed on automobile manufacturers and other industries that must keep records in case recalls are required. The gun records would be intended largely to aid in tracing weapons used in crimes.

—Require immediate reporting of the loss or theft of a handgun and prohibit most weapons from being loaned or rented.

—Provide mandatory imprisonment for anyone who uses or carries a gun in the commission of a federal felony.

Pete Shields, chairman of Handgun Control Inc., the leading anti-gun group, said Kennedy "knows handgun tragedy" and called the bill "a breakthrough in the national campaign to combat handgun crime and violence."

Shields said his group turned to Kennedy when Carter failed to propose an administration bill. The president will be asked, however, to support the Kennedy measure, Shields said.

Carter said during the 1976 campaign that he favored handgun registration, a ban on the sale of cheap handguns and "reasonable licensing provisions."

Questioning Added Charges

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — When Danny Parton led authorities last month to the gravesites of two women he said he killed and told them six more were buried in the mountains of McDowell County they began digging — in more ways than one.

Authorities charged Parton with the slayings of Cathy Mosely and Mary Kathryn Carnes Dye, whose bodies were found in the search, but received no further help after he consulted a lawyer. They continued their search for more bodies, but in the interim conducted many interviews and filed additional charges against Parton.

Now Parton stands accused of two counts of murder, two counts of rape, one count of conspiracy to commit rape and one count of kidnapping.

The rape charges resulted from interviews conducted by Lt. Jackie Turner of the McDowell County Sheriff's Department and other investigators. Turner declined to release the names of the victims.

Turner said Parton has been charged with the rape of a 15-year-old Kings Mountain girl and conspiracy to rape a 20-year-old Gastonia woman.

Kay Wright of Kings Mountain, who went to visit Parton in jail earlier in the week only to be detained herself, has been charged with conspiracy to commit rape in connection with the rape attempt on the Gastonia woman.

That rape attempt allegedly occurred in February. Turner said he believed it took place while Ms. Mosely, who lived with Parton in his McDowell County home, was staying with her relatives.

Turner said the alleged rape of the teen-ager June 7 also took place at Parton's house in the North Cove community.

The body of Ms. Mosely was found in one of two graves police say Parton pinpointed for them last month. Ms. Dye's body was found in a second gravesite in the area.

Marchers Urge May Try Selling Lettuce Boycott Gas By Liter

NILES, Calif. (AP) — Chanting "Boycott Lettuce," 45 United Farm Workers members and supporters trudged into this tiny central California town during a 140-mile march to the embattled Salinas Valley lettuce fields.

Led by union president Cesar Chavez, the marchers started out Tuesday with a rally in San Francisco and have been joined by supporters for short distances along the route.

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — A Standard Oil of Indiana Co. subsidiary says it may sell gasoline by the liter nationwide if experimental sales in the Muskegon area are a success.

Amoco spokesman Owen Wavrinek said Thursday seven Muskegon-area stations were chosen for the tests since "we feel it's a typical Midwestern market."

Beautification Group Meets

Chuck Clodfeller, assistant director in charge of recycling and industrial relations at the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, reported on the recycling services offered by the Center at the Thursday meeting of the Beautification, Clean-Up, and Litter Control Committee of the City of Greenville.

According to Clodfeller, the Center is currently collecting and recycling cardboard boxes, newsprint, computer cards and computer print out paper. He noted that it was helpful for boxes to be broken down and cards to be packed in boxes for easy collection.

The Center is making plans to recycle aluminum cans, bi-metal cans, glass, cloth, and plastic in the near future, Clodfeller stated. According to the director, the Center is interested in offering the community a central location for all kinds of recycling. He suggested that community groups planning to do a clean-up campaign call him for possible transportation of the collected litter.

Douglas Jackson of the Greenville Police Department reported on litter problems encountered on some business property after operation hours. He noted that a city ordinance states that owners are responsible for cleaning up their property. Solutions are being sought to the problem by the Police Department and the businesses.

Dennis Tripp, Chief Building Inspector, noted that his department has been responsible for cleaning away many abandoned and unsightly automobiles and has had numerous private businesses clean neglected privately-owned lots. He explained that the department first tries to contact the owner about the problem, then sends a registered letter. If there is no answer after two weeks, the city has the property cleaned, and charges the cost to the owner.

The committee also held discussions on responsibilities of litter clean-up along roads maintained by the State Department of Transportation.

The committee will meet Thursday, Sept. 6, 12 noon at the Greenville City Hall. A representative of the Brewers' Association will discuss the "pitch-in" campaign.

Jeffrey MacDonald Embittered By Accusations

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Jeffrey R. MacDonald is bitter. The trauma of being accused of the murders of his wife and two daughters and being brought to trial after a nine-year battle with the U.S. Justice Department has also made him "Older, sadder, wiser, more cynical, more tired."

Looking back, MacDonald told The Fayetteville Times in a recent interview, all that was to be expected. What was not to be expected, he said, was that government prosecutors would "set out to prove a case...whether or not the facts supported the charges."

As a result, MacDonald said, he has come away disillusioned and angry. And, he said, he has learned to expect anything and plan on nothing.

If the Jeffrey MacDonald story has a morale, he said, it is "Anything can happen to anybody."

MacDonald is on trial in U.S. District Court, charged with the Feb. 17, 1970, murders of his wife Colette, 26, and daughters, Kimberly, 5, and Kristen, 2, at their Fort Bragg home.

He said the murders, and an assault on himself, were committed by at least four intruders, a woman, chanted, "Acid is groovy. Kill the pigs."

Jurors To Visit Home Where Family Killed

By NAAMI KAUFMAN Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jurors hearing the triple-murder case against Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald were to visit today the Fort Bragg house where the family was killed.

The red-brick, multi-family house at 544 Castle Drive in an officers' housing area on the sprawling base has been sealed since the slayings 9½ years ago.

The 35-year-old Huntington Beach, Calif., emergency medicine specialist was a Green Beret doctor then. He says four intruders stabbed and bludgeoned his wife Colette, 26, and daughters Kimberly, 5, and Kristen, 2.

MacDonald says one of the intruders, a woman, chanted, "Acid is groovy. Kill the pigs."

The word "pig" was found scrawled in blood on the headboard of the MacDonalds' bed.

The case is being heard in federal court in Raleigh. The base is near Fayetteville, about 1½ hours to the southeast.

In testimony presented Thursday, chemists who tested bloody items found in the house said they failed to find any blood matching MacDonald's type in the living room, where MacDonald says he was first attacked. He suffered 14 stab wounds.

Blood is typed into four general groups. Each of the MacDonalds had a different blood type. The chemists cautioned, however, that the blood found did not necessarily belong to the MacDonalds.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Check Out Cause of Rapid Heartbeat

Sometimes, after I have a few beers, especially at the ballpark, my heart begins to pound like a triphammer. I begin to sweat and my friends say I get pale. This lasts for about half an hour; then it stops as quickly as it started. When it's over I forget about it. Is there any way to prevent this? — Mr. R.J.Y., Utah.

Dear Mr. Y.: You give a pretty accurate description of what is known as "paroxysmal tachycardia." This means a sudden attack of short-lived, but terrifying, rapid heartbeat.

Normally, the regularity of the heartbeat is controlled by a remarkable network of nerves within the heart muscle itself. Sometimes, this fuse-like arrangement is disturbed. The heartbeat becomes more rapid and produces the symptoms you describe.

Excess tobacco, alcohol, some drugs or fatigue can set up disturbance, even among people who have perfectly normal hearts.

Particularly, it would give you a great deal of assurance if you were to know, once and for all, that there is no really intrinsic heart disease.

Your doctor may recommend that you make slight pressure on the eyeballs, to stop such an attack. Similar gentle pressure over the side of the neck can help return the heartbeat to normal.

Whenever I put my hands in very cold water, or when I touch frozen foods, I break out in hives all over my body. I've been told that this is an allergy, but it's hard to believe. — Miss D.U., Ala.

My reaction, too, is that you are allergic to cold. Physical allergies are known to exist. Reaction to heat, cold and humidity have been well established.

Testimony on blood samples introduced Thursday also showed: —Blood matching Colette's type was found in all three bedrooms.

—Blood matching Kristen's, Colette's and Kimberly's blood types were found in Kristen's room. Colette's blood type and Kimberly's were found in Kimberly's room. The children's bodies were found in their respective beds.

—A blood stain on a carpet in the master bedroom matched Kimberly's blood type. Both girls' bodies were found lying in bed in their respective rooms.

—Blood found in a bathroom and in the kitchen matched MacDonald's type.

Army charges against MacDonald were dropped in 1970. He was indicted by a federal grand jury in 1975, and pre-trial appeals took several years. The trial is in its third week.

Relishes A Role As Moonshiner

DENTON, N.C. (AP) — He is one of about five North Carolinians with a permit to make moonshine for experimental purposes.

When the oil crunch began, Loflin decided to do his part to help the country by making fuel out of sugar-bearing plants.

Loflin, wearing a felt hat, tennis shoes with no socks and bib overalls, says he enjoys looking the part of the typical moonshiner made famous in the movie "Thunder Road."

But he insists he is serious about developing an alternative fuel to gasoline. He said he would like to find a way to produce 150-proof white lightning by using little or no sugar, the most expensive ingredient.

So, when he starts his old still — with the government's blessing — he turns out 80- to 90-proof white lightning. But Loflin isn't drinking the concoction — he's putting it in the tank of his pickup truck.

Some Will Have A Longer Walk

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Many children will have to walk slightly longer distances to catch their school buses next fall under an energy-saving plan tentatively approved Wednesday by the state Board of Education.

Under the plan, bus stops could be no closer than two-tenths of a mile apart. Officials say this would mean some students no longer would be picked up in front of their homes.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower today in a session marked by several takeover developments. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.79 at 846.16.

Losers held a 6-5 lead over gainers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Memorex climbed 3 1/2 to 34. On Thursday, the company said it was holding merger discussions with Amdahl Corp.

On the downside, Maryland Cup fell 4 to 25 after the company said its merger talks with Kraft Inc. had been broken off. In the economic news, the government reported that the unemployment rate edged up to 5.7 percent in July from 5.6 percent the month before.

Analysts said the news was better than had been generally expected. But they added that a broad range of economic uncertainties, including inflation, high interest rates and a developing business slowdown, kept investors in a cautious mood.

Southern Co. was the most active Big Board issue, unchanged at 13. A 100,000-share block traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index was off .10 at 59.25. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .09 to 199.07.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 12.58 million shares at noontime, down from 16.38 million at the same point Thursday.

Begin Is Out Of Hospital

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin returned home today after a minor stroke and 15 days in Hadassah Hospital.

"I feel well," the government leader told reporters. "I suppose I will need more rest, but I feel I will be able to return to my daily work in about a week."

Begin will be 66 on Aug. 13. His doctors said a clot blocked a small artery in Begin's brain, causing dizziness and partial loss of vision. They said his peripheral vision may be permanently impaired.

Begin spoke in a slightly weak and raspy voice, but he walked unaided, smiled often and appeared in good spirits. He appeared to have lost weight.

"The doctors told me I should consider myself a lucky man that the artery was small," he said. "Were it a larger one, perhaps it would have been a serious situation."

Dr. Sylvan Lavie, who headed the prime minister's medical team, said the blood clot did not affect his mind, and he was expected to carry on his duties without impairment.

Nixon Drops Application

NEW YORK (AP) — Residents of an exclusive building who did not want former President Richard Nixon to move in have gotten their wish.

Nixon, amid the dissent and dismay of at least half the people in the resident-owned building, has withdrawn his application to purchase the $750,000 nine-room duplex apartment. Nixon had planned to move into the building with his wife, Pat, in the fall.

Residents of the 16-story building received a letter Thursday from the building management, saying the current owner of the apartment would try to sell it to someone else.

Jane Maynard, one of the residents, had taken a poll earlier in the week and said that half of the 34 residents were opposed to Nixon's moving into the building because of potential problems with security.

"I have no ax to grind politically or morally, but he is very controversial," she said. "There is an enormous number of people who hate him, and I think it would change the ambiance of the building if he lived here. There would be news people and curiosity seekers around, potential bomb scares and a great number of Secret Service men around."

Child Support Reciprocal Pact

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An agreement calling for reciprocal enforcement of child support laws has been reached by North Carolina and West German officials.

Under the agreement, signed Wednesday by Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, the rights of North Carolina children to support payments can be enforced in German courts and vice versa.

The agreement resulted from the concern of West German officials about American servicemen who return to the U.S. and fail to support children they fathered in Germany.

Associate Attorney General Henry H. Burgwyn who is assigned to the child support program of the state Department of Human Resources said he expects the caseload under the agreement to be substantial.

OIL TRUCK WRECKS — A potentially hazardous situation was avoided Thursday after an oil truck owned by Quality Oil Co. of Greenville overturned on US 264 west of Washington and dumped only a portion of its diesel fuel load. Highway Patrolman K. M. Sutton said that the 12:50 p.m. accident occurred when the oil truck, operated by Timothy Duane Tetterton of Rt. 1, Bethel, was apparently bumped from behind by a tractor-trailer driven by Billy Lynn Faulkner of Maury, as the Quality Oil vehicle was making a left turn onto State Road 1410. Trooper Sutton, who charged Faulkner with following too closely, set damages to the oil truck at $11,000 and $1,000 to the Faulkner vehicle, owned by FCX Inc. Neither driver was injured in the mishap. A spokesman for Quality Oil Co. said that some 257 gallons of diesel fuel escaped from the truck but was contained in a roadside ditch and pumped back into the vehicle. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Runaway Home Stafford Told Finally Located To Stand Trial

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — James McEachern's runaway bungalow has been found, but his problems may only be starting. McEachern reported his two-bedroom house missing last week. He said he bought it in 1978 and planned to move it out of town.

Police spokesman Tom Nolan said Thursday a man identified as Jerry Campbell called and said he thought he had the house. Nolan said the original owner reported re-selling the house after warning McEachern he had taken too long to move it.

The house is now on skids at a north Tulsa location waiting to be lowered onto a foundation. Nolan said: "Campbell said he hasn't moved in yet, so that leaves two families waiting to move into the same house."

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Roger Dale Stafford, charged with murdering six Oklahoma City Steakhouse workers during a robbery last year, has been ordered to stand trial.

In testimony Thursday, Stafford's estranged wife said her 27-year-old husband and his late brother murdered four teen-agers and two adults at a Sirloin Stockade steakhouse July 16, 1978.

Thurman Munson Dies In Plane Crash

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It was a rare day off for Thurman Munson, one of those special private times he could spend with his family in the midst of a long and exhausting baseball season.

So the New York Yankee star came back to Ohio to see his wife and three children and to spend a relaxing afternoon Thursday flying his private jet.

burns on his face, neck and forearms.

Aviation Administration at the Akron-Canton airport said of the tragedy: "There is an embankment at the end of the runway, and he (Munson) was at least 40 feet low there."

Ironically, Munson had found a passionate and pleasing hobby in flying, labeling it his "love."

"I have a new love to make things seem what more pleasant for me this year (1978): Airplanes," he said in a recent autobiography with Marty Appel, who works in the baseball commissioner's office.

"I studied for my pilot's license and received it during the winter," Munson went on in "Thurman Munson: An Autobiography." "Now ... it's possible for me to fly from New York to Canton and I frequently go home even during home stands."

But if Munson displayed gentility and genuine compassion as a family man, this was not his generally accepted image in the press. Munson was a tough, hard-nosed player often given to fighting moods.

Even he once admitted during his stormy, if successful, career with the Yankees: "I'm a little too belligerent. I cuss and swear at people. I yell at umpires and maybe I'm a little too tough at home sometimes. I don't sign as many autographs as I should and I haven't always been very good with the writers."

He carried on the fine tradition of Yankee catchers established by Bill Dickey, Yogi Berra and Elston Howard — winning the Rookie of the Year title in 1970, batting over .300 five times in eight years and driving in more than 100 runs in three seasons, 1975-1977.

Then it happened, the plane plunging into the ground, flames lighting up the airfield — and Munson dead.

"I saw an aircraft totally involved in flames," said Jeff Kashburn, a sheriff's deputy who rushed to the scene at the Canton-Akron airport. "I tried, but couldn't come closer than 30 feet because of the intensity of the flames. The body was burned beyond recognition."

Officials said the 32-year-old Yankee captain and team leader was killed at 4:02 p.m. EDT while practicing take-offs and landings in his Cessna Citation, a twin-engine jet.

Two other men aboard the plane, David Hall, 32, and Jerry D. Anderson, 31, were injured, but neither was seriously hurt.

A spokesman at Children's Hospital in Akron said Hall, Munson's flight instructor from Canton, was in fair condition with burns on his hands. Anderson, of Canton, a close friend of the 11-year Yankee catcher, was in fair condition at Canton Timken Mercy Hospital with

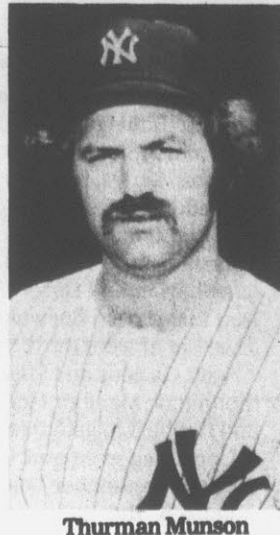

"He was flying home on an off-day, which he does," said Yankee publicist Mickey Morabito of Munson. "Thurman is a very good family man, he loves to be with his family. It's one of the reasons he got the plane, to get home and spend some more time with them. Unfortunately, that's what he was doing, going home to be with the family, and it's a tragedy."

Watson's New Swing Helps Him To Stroke Lead In PGA Tourney

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Tom Watson says a golfer's swing is a fleeting thing. The golfer gets in the groove one day, and slips out the next.

"You can't repeat the swing forever, and it does change," said Watson, who says he's found a new swing for the 61st PGA Championship, the last major tournament of the year. "Sometimes it can change when you take some time off.

You've got to grab it; and hold on to it as long as you can."

Watson, who said he changed his swing Tuesday, shot a 33-33-66 over the 7,014-yard, par 70 Oakland Hills Country Club course Thursday to take a 1-stroke lead into today's second round.

"When you're playing well, it's exciting," he said. "When you're playing badly and fighting it, it's drudgery. It's exciting now."

Watson, winner of four tournaments and $387,386 thus far this year, leads by a stroke over Rex Caldwell, who disqualified himself for a faulty scorecard in last year's championship. He is 2 strokes in front of Ron Streck, who had not seen the course before playing it Wednesday, and Jay Haas, whose only tour victory in three years was in San Diego last year.

Fifteen players broke par 70 over the demanding course, which has not succumbed in a four-day major tournament that includes four U.S. Opens and the 1972 PGA Championship.

Among those with a 69 are Lou Graham, Gibby Gilbert, Jim Masserio, Hubie Green, Don January, Jerry Pate, Graham Marsh, Bruce Lietzke, David Graham, Ben Crenshaw and Arbie McNickle.

Frank Conner, who had an ace on the 225-yard, par 3 No. 9, was among the 11 players who had par 70 over the majestic course that played long because of rain in recent days, although a warming sun began to dry out the rolling landscape.

Among the other par shooters were Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, Lee Trevino, Lee Elder, Howard Twitty, Bill Rogers, Dave Stockton and Larry Nelson.

Gary Player, who won the PGA title here in 1972, had a 73, the same as old pro Sam Snead, who birdied the tough No. 18, a 459-yard par 4 that yielded only 11 birdies, 59 pars, 67 bogeys, 12 double bogeys and one triple bogey.

Defending champion John Mahaffey shot a 2-over 72.

Jack Nicklaus, a four-time PGA champion who was considered the favorite here by many of the players, also shot 73, saying that the Oakland Hills course "was a piece of cake and I never got to the icing."

Arnold Palmer, who will turn 50 next month, came home with a 41-40-81, among the high scores in the field of 150.

The toughest hole on the course was the 440-yard, par 4 No. 8 that yielded only six birdies while taking 80 bogeys and five double bogeys. There were 59 pars on the hole.

Expos Outlast Delays, Cubs To Extend Lead

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer
It took six hours and 48 minutes for the Montreal Expos and Chicago Cubs to play a baseball game Thursday. It seemed a lot longer to some of the participants.

"Is that all we played, nine innings?" asked Expos manager Dick Williams after first-place Montreal extended its National League East Division lead to two games by surviving three rain delays and beating the Cubs 6-4. "We tried to end it a couple of times."

Once was in the first inning, when thunder boomed and lightning flashed.

"I had one heck of a day today," said Expos outfielder Warren Cromartie. "I didn't sleep well last night, I got to the ball park at 11 o'clock, I got everything scared out of me by lightning and I took an 0-for."

Cromartie, 0-for-4, paced in left field in the top of the first. The first rain delay lasted 75 minutes. The second was 38 minutes and the third lasted two hours. "He doesn't like thunder and lightning," Williams said of Cromartie, who was upset enough to commit a fielding error in the first inning. "I guess none of us do, but he doesn't like it more than the rest of us."

Montreal got two RBI from Larry Parrish, who knocked in Andre Dawson with a double in the fifth and had a run-scoring single in the sixth.

In other NL games, St. Louis rallied to nip Pittsburgh 5-4; the Phillies and Mets split a pair, Philadelphia taking the opener 7-4 and the Mets winning the second game 2-1, and Atlanta beat San Diego 7-2.

Cardinals 5, Pirates 4
A four-run St. Louis eighth inning robbed Jim Rooker of his 100th career victory. Keith Hernandez climaxed the comeback with a two-out single that scored Dane Iorg with the winning run.

Rooker, 99-105 lifetime, held a 4-1 lead entering the eighth but Ken Reitz led off with a double and a Rennie Stennett error followed.

Grant Jackson relieved and surrendered consecutive RBI singles to Mike Tyson and Iorg. Tyson scored on a fielder's choice prior to Hernandez' hit. "The Pirates have beaten us so many times in the ninth inning, that it was nice for us to shut the door on them," said Hernandez.

Phillies 7-1, Mets 4-2
The Phils took the opener as Greg Luzinski drove in three runs and hit his 14th homer and Ron Reed, 8-6, hurled 52-3 innings of two-hit relief.

Mike Schmidt hit a major-league leading 37th home run in the nightcap but the combination of Pete Falcone, 3-6, and Neil Allen allowed just four other Philadelphia hits.

Braves 7, Padres 2
Tony Brizzolara, 6-6, threw an eight-hitter, Pepe Frias had a two-run triple and Gary Matthews knocked in two runs with a pair of singles for Atlanta.

"The last three games I haven't pitched too well and so it was about time I had a good one," said Brizzolara, a rookie.

Bonnett Grabs Talladega Pole

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's Neil Bonnett drove a Mercury 193,600 miles per hour Thursday to stake out the top pole position in qualifying for Sunday's $231,000 Talladega 500 race.

Qualifying continues today. Bonnett of Hueytown, Ala., edged out David Pearson for the top position. Pearson, substituting for injured rookie Dale Earnhardt, was second in an Oldsmobile at 192,731 mph.

"I think it's great that David Pearson is starting on the front row alongside me. There's no doubt David has more fans than I ever thought of having and I'm just tickled we'll have a chance to race up there at the front," said Bonnett.

Pearson has not driven in a NASCAR Winston Cup race since the Rebel 500 at Darlington in April when his car owners replaced him with Bonnett.

"David and myself don't have any grudges," said Bonnett, "and I'm sure there's a whole bunch of folks who'll be pulling for him to out run me Sunday."

As for Bonnett, Pearson said: "I'd like to beat him."

Tighe Scott claimed the third starting position with a qualifying speed of 192,390.

Talladega's all-time leading money winner Buddy Baker posted the fourth fastest speed in an Oldsmobile at 191,812 mph.

Three-time NASCAR champion Cale Yarborough, will start in fifth place in an Olds. He recorded a qualifying speed of 191,693 mph during the first day of time trials.

Rounding out the top ten positions were Bobby Allison, Grant Adcock, Darrell Waltrip, Frank Warren, and Bruce Hill. Also qualifying was Kyle Petty, son of racing king Richard Petty. He came in 18th in a Dodge with a speed of 186,297.

Houston, Seattle Claim Wins

By The Associated Press
It'll be just like old times tonight in Miami for Larry Csonka. At least he hopes so. "I'm looking forward to it," says Csonka, who is reappearing at his old stomping grounds as the Miami Dolphins host the New Orleans Saints in a National Football League exhibition game. "This is an important time for me. I think I'm getting more and more effective every day."

A Dolphins' spokesman said that some 45,000 fans are expected at the Orange Bowl, and that Csonka's presence has meant an additional 5,000 or 10,000 spectators.

"We didn't bring him in just to be a third-and-one runner," said Dolphins Coach Don Shula, who signed his one-time star fullback as a free agent this past spring after Csonka was released by the New York Giants at age 32.

Csonka's rushing figure of 311 yards in 1978 paled by comparison with his prime at Miami, where he had three straight 1,000-yard seasons that carried the Dolphins to three consecutive Super Bowls beginning in 1971.

Csonka left the Dolphins to sign a hefty contract in the World Football League, but was soon back in the NFL, playing for the Giants, when the WFL folded.

Realistically, the Dolphins don't expect Csonka to return to his old-time form, but he is expected to add balance to an offense built around Bob Griese's passing and Delvin Williams' breakout running. It will be remembered that Greise was in the same backfield with Csonka on those championship Dolphin teams of the early 1970s.

In the only other NFL exhibition game tonight, the Philadelphia Eagles will visit the Baltimore Colts.

In two games played Thursday night, the Houston Oilers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 9-7 and the Seattle Seahawks whipped the Minnesota Vikings 12-9 in overtime.

Mark Barber scored on a 33-yard pass play and Toni Fritsch kicked a 29-yard field goal with 10:32 left in the game to rally the Oilers past the Cardinals in the preseason opener for both teams.

Efren Herrera booted a 21-yard field goal with 4:29 gone in overtime to give the Seahawks their victory over Minnesota. Jim Zorn, the Seahawks' exciting fourth-year quarterback, who directed Seattle to a 9-0 lead in its first two possessions, came off the bench to ignite his team's overtime field goal drive.

In off-the-field activity, veteran center Jim Clack reached an undisclosed settlement with the New York Giants and took part in his first training camp workout. He had boycotted camp for two weeks before finally ending his holdout.

Steve Bartkowski, the Atlanta Falcons' injury-prone quarterback, worked out Thursday with no apparent discomfort to the ankle he had injured in Wednesday's practice.

Lopez Streak Gives Her Lead

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Nancy Lopez used her special brand of power golf to collect seven birdies and take the lead after the first round of the European Women's Golf Championship.

Defending champion on the tree-lined Sunningdale Course, Lopez missed from six feet for an eagle at the second hole Thursday, but still managed to turn 3-under on the par 36-38-74 course.

Kessinger Quits Post

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Less than 24 hours after he said he didn't know how to stop his team's slide, Don Kessinger resigned in his first season as player-manager of the Chicago White Sox.

The job held until Thursday by the former All-Star shortstop was turned over to Tony LaRussa, a fringe major-league infielder who appeared in just 132 games with four teams over six seasons.

She matched that performance on the back nine for a 6-under-par 68 and a 1-stroke lead in the $100,000 tournament that has attracted most of America's top women golfers.

The 22-year-old New Mexican's only trouble came on the par-4 17th when she drove into knee-high rough, scrambled the ball onto the green in 3 but missed the putt, settling for a bogey 5.

She said that rolling in five- and six-foot putts, missed in recent weeks, had made all the difference.

LaRussa had been managing the White Sox' top farm club, the Iowa Oaks of the American Association, and was to be at the helm when Chicago opened a three-game series tonight in Toronto.

"I think the Sox fans would love for me to say I have a miracle with me that I brought from Iowa but I know that's not going to be the case. I think sometimes a change of faces is helpful," said LaRussa, a more fiery personality than Kessinger.

Lying second at 69 was Joyce Kazmierski of Williston, Fla., who has grabbed lots of British press coverage for her belief in astrology and numerology.

She's not yet won a tournament in her 11-year career and is ranked just 26th on this season's U.S. money list, but was feeling good after her good round.

"I knew before I teed off I'd be confident and positive. I believe the moon is a major influence in a woman's life and whatever happens is 51 percent what you do and 49 percent to do with the planets," she said.

White Sox President Bill Veeck said Kessinger, in his 15th major-league season, shocked him during lunch Thursday by suggesting the resignation.

"I just wanted to sit down with him for a good heart-to-heart talk and share my feelings," said Kessinger. "When he sort of agreed a change would be a good move, I had no alternative."

"I asked a question and said I'm willing to do this if it would be best. And the consensus of opinion was that it wasn't a bad idea."

Another American, Mardell Wilkins of San Pedro, Calif., was third at 70 after a sparkling back nine of 31.

U.S. Open champion Jerilyn Britz of Luverne, Minn., and Alison Sheard of South Africa shared fourth on 71.

Meanwhile, the British Broadcasting Corp. threatened to cancel television coverage of the tournament because of product advertisements on sun visors worn by six women stars. The publicly financed BBC is entirely non-commercial.

Kessinger, 37, also was removed from the team's player roster and planned to go home to Memphis, Tenn., and ponder his future. He said he has no desire to manage any more but did not rule out returning as a player with another team.

"I just said to him that I felt maybe a change could help," Kessinger said. "Bill agreed that a change might help us at this time. I don't really blame myself for what's happened, nor do I think Bill Veeck blames me for what's happened."

"It was his decision," said Veeck, who added, "I've been associated with a great many people but never with a man of more class or integrity."

South African Sally Little, one of the players involved, said: "They can't stop us wearing them. We're under contract. Everything we wear has some sort of emblem on it."

Organizers said they would politely ask the players to change visors on the televised holes.

The White Sox are in fifth place in the American League West with a 46-60 record. They have dropped their last seven games, their longest losing streak of the season.

After their latest loss, a 9-1 rout Wednesday night by the New York Yankees, Kessinger said, "I wish I had the answer. If I did we'd do something about it. I don't have the answer."

A men's double elimination softball tournament will be held tomorrow at Evans Park.

A total of 12 teams will participate, nine from the Greenville Recreation Department's Church League and three from the Industrial League. First and second place trophies will be presented.

The event is sponsored by the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville with all proceeds going to the Falcon Children's home, an orphanage supported by the Pentecostal Holiness denomination in Falcon.

Veeck said Kessinger apparently felt "it required some kind of a shock to shake some of the athletes from the lethargy into which they apparently had fallen."

"I hope to bring some enthusiasm and I'm going to kind of challenge my players to see if they can do some positive things," said LaRussa, who has never managed in the majors.

In Kessinger, the White Sox had the only player-manager in the majors. In the 34-year-old LaRussa, they have the youngest.

In 1978, he was manager of Chicago's Class AA team at Knoxville and later joined the parent club as a first-base coach.

Watson Showing Why He Is One Of Season's Biggest Bargains

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Boston may not win any American League championship in a season that seems to belong to the Baltimore Orioles, but some sort of executive of the year citation seems due Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan.

It was Sullivan who convinced the Houston Astros to trade Bob Watson for two minor league pitchers and cash June 13, and Watson showed again Thursday night why he was one of the biggest bargains in years.

Watson, 33, and Dwight Evans both clubbed a pair of homers and knocked in three runs apiece, while Butch Hobson added a bases empty shot off Milwaukee's battered pitching as the Red Sox thrashed the slumping Brewers 10-1.

Mike Torrez, 12-6, fired a six-hitter for the second place Red Sox, who pulled to within seven games of idle Baltimore in the AL East after having lost 3½ games in the race in the previous seven days. The third place Brewers fell 10 games back with their fourth consecutive defeat.

Watson, twice a National League All-Star with a .297 batting average for 10-plus seasons with the Astros, has hit .351 with 10 homers and 30 runs batted in since joining the Red Sox just before the trading deadline.

"Boy, did Watson hit a couple of shots tonight," marveled Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer. "He always could hit. He can hit it out of an apple orchard."

Watson said he had asked to be traded because he didn't think the Astros would be contenders and he wanted to play for a contender before his career ended. He had veto power over any trade involving himself, and told Astros' management he would play for one of eight teams — the Red Sox, Texas, California, Kansas City, Philadelphia, the Chicago Cubs, Cincinnati or San Diego.

The Red Sox broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the second inning. After Watson and Hobson led off with homers, Evans doubled and Stan Papi singled to chase loser Bill Travers, 9-5. Evans scored on a double play grounder by Rick Burleson.

"Their pitchers made some mistakes tonight," Watson said. "They tried to use the scouting reports and pitch me a certain way, but they didn't get them where they wanted."

A hit batsman and Evans' 16th homer off Paul Mitchell made it 6-1 in the sixth, and Watson hit his second homer of the night after a walk in the seventh. Evans hit his second homer of the game in the eighth, and Larry Wolfe drew a bases loaded walk in the Boston ninth to round out the scoring.

Someday, An Electric Car Will Be Practical

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Electric-powered vehicles may be commercially acceptable in five years, but consumers should wait until the problems are worked out, a Tennessee Valley Authority official says.

The vehicles are not suitable for all driving needs, are expensive to maintain and cost about twice as much as conventional internal combustion vehicles, J. Hampton Barnett said in an interview Thursday. But he said purchasing and maintenance costs would decrease if electric cars are mass produced and people are trained to repair them.

He said the cars offer two major advantages — they don't use petroleum and they don't pollute.

Barnett, TVA's program manager of transportation research and development, is supervising the government utility's testing of the vehicles.

He said improvements are needed for the battery systems used to power the vehicles and the safety features, but he said he expects this will be done as testing progresses.

"We sense that it is around the corner and that the electric vehicle will be a viable means of transportation," he said. "Let's face it. This is a petroleum-saving measure to move away from petroleum use to a more abundant form of energy, which is electricity."

Barnett isn't suggesting that the public buy electric cars now. He said testing and research should be left up to government agencies, manufacturers and utilities now involved in development.

He said government agencies and companies which operate fleets in centralized areas can provide ideal testing conditions. The U.S. Postal Service is already testing 350 electric vehicles, he said.

TVA is providing manpower to test the cars and vans, gather information and design data collecting systems in cooperation with the Department of Energy, Department of Transportation and the Electric Power Research Institute, an organization funded by utilities.

The Energy Department is providing vehicles to TVA for testing and the Transportation Department is checking to see the vehicles meet federal standards. The research institute and TVA are splitting costs in a $1.5 million, two-year program with the institute developing and providing cars for two-year TVA examinations.

The utility already owns and is testing six vans, bought at more than $7,000 apiece from Jet Industries Inc., of Austin, Texas. Barnett said he expects deliveries of more vehicles this month and next from the institute and Energy Department. These include vehicles that can travel 35 to 50 miles before they must be recharged, which requires up to eight hours and can be done from a standard 110-volt wall outlet.

The cars are powered by batteries and the driver controls speed by pressing a pedal connected to an electronic controller that regulates power flow to the motor.

Barnett said his program is also evaluating concepts of hybrid vehicles which would have gasoline or kerosene-powered engines to be used interchangeably with the electric motor.

Strike Hits Big Airline

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — More than 1,000 World Airways pilots, flight attendants and mechanics went on strike early today after working without a contract for 13 months.

World's senior vice president Brian Cooke said an unknown number of workers began picketing World Airways headquarters in Oakland at midnight Thursday.

World is the nation's largest charter flight company.

"At this point, we have no idea what the impact of the strike will be," Cooke said. "We plan to operate flights Friday, but I don't know which departures will be affected."

Union negotiators could not be reached for comment.

The Civil Aeronautics Board had said in the event of a strike, other domestic and foreign airlines will be allowed to pick up stranded World Airways passengers.

The CAB also said cargo from World's all-cargo flights can be carried in available space on other charter flights.

Teamsters Local 2707 had threatened to strike at midnight Thursday unless an agreement was reached on a new contract. Airline employees had been working without a contract since July 1 of last year.

Earlier this week, union members rejected management's last offer by a 9-1 margin.

The union is seeking increased pay and single rooms for flight attendants when they are away from home.

Two weeks ago, World began daily airlifts of Vietnamese refugees from Malaysia to the United States using four DC-10 jets.

Wallace Admits Old Mistakes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says he was wrong to oppose racial integration while he was governor.

"I was for segregation. I was raised that way and I believed that way. I thought it was the best thing for both whites and blacks. But I was wrong," Wallace told a history class at the University of Alabama in Birmingham on Thursday.

Wallace, a Montgomery-based administrator for the university, said: "I was a little brash then. I should have known that some of the things I said would seem racist."

You may not believe it, but I never intended that," he added.

New Justice In N.C. Is Sworn

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Judge J. Phil Carlton donned his state Supreme Court robe Thursday, completing his 11-year rise to the state's highest court.

The former appeals court judge was sworn in by Chief Justice Joseph Branch during a ceremony in the court chambers.

Branch repeated the official vows to gain his seat on Wednesday. He was named to the position by Gov. Jim Hunt, following the July 31 retirement of Susie Sharp. Carlton fills the vacancy created by Miss Sharp's retirement and Branch's appointment to replace her as chief justice.

The 41-year-old Carlton has been a friend of Hunt's since they were students at North Carolina State University. Carlton was student body president at the school a year before Hunt was elected to the position.

Branch praised Carlton as a hard worker. And he said Carlton would be "a welcome addition to this court. We all look forward to working with you."

Carlton became a district court judge at the age of 30 and later was appointed chief judge of district.

He headed the Governor's Crime Commission and was appointed by Hunt in 1977 as secretary of the new Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

J. PHIL CARLTON

Hunt appointed Carlton to the Court of Appeals, the state's second highest court, last November. Seven months later, Hunt announced he was appointing Carlton to the Supreme Court.

There had been speculation Hunt planned to appoint Carlton as chief justice, breaking with the tradition that has seen the court's most senior member gain the top position.
