Israeli Government Issues Strong Protest

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government sent the Carter administration a strong protest against its overtures to the Palestine Liberation Organization as the Israeli-Egyptian talks on Palestinian autonomy resumed.

A bomb Sunday near the Jerusalem City Hall injured two municipal gardeners, both Arabs. In Beirut, the Marxist Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine said it set off the bomb and claimed it injured "several Israelis."

Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet at its weekly meeting Sunday ordered Ambassador Ephraim Evron to tell the U.S. government of Israel's objections to the subtle U.S. feelers that have gone out to the PLO. President Carter has invited Evron to meet with him soon to discuss the latest Israeli-U.S. dispute.

Apparently trying to attract Palestinian support to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, the Carter administration seems to be signaling that it would recognize the PLO if Yasser Arafat's organization abandoned its declared goal of the destruction of the Jewish state and publicly recognized Israel's right to exist. The administration also seems to hope it can soften Israel's opposition to the PLO, which has been designated by the Arabs as the sole representative of the Palestinian people.

In a bid to keep the tussle private, the Cabinet refused to release the contents of its message to Washington. Briefing reporters, Cabinet Secretary Arieh Noar would say only that Evron's assignment "concerned diplomatic activities between Israel and the United States."

Despite Israeli objections, the United States has been trying to amend U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 to include a call for a Palestinian homeland and recognition of the Palestinians' "legitimate rights."

He was less reticent about reviewing Israel's policy toward the PLO.

Observers believe PLO recognition of such an amended resolution would be considered by the United States as acceptance with Israel, he said.

Chairman Says Carter Can Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Democratic National Committee said today that President Carter has a good chance for re-election, but his Republican counterpart predicted that 1980 will bring a "whale of a turn-around" in Washington.

"I think the American people will demand a rationing plan as a standby for the president," White said.

In a joint interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show, Democrat John White said it is too early to judge Carter's re-election chances from the polls. But GOP chairman Bill Brock said campaign funding and support will be based on polls, especially those taken early next year.

Brock said the Democrats "can't pass an energy program because they don't have the leadership ... They can't get their act together."

Brock noted that the Democrats hold a majority in Congress in addition to the presidency. Citing energy and inflation problems, he said, "I think we're going to see a whale of a turn-around next year."

Brock hedged on the prospects of a candidacy for former President Gerald Ford, but said, "I think anybody who wrote him out of the race is crazy."

White argued, "I think it's too early to judge this Congress."

White took what has become a standard tack on the possibility that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will seek the Democratic nomination.

He said members of Congress visiting their home districts during the current month-long recess may conclude, for example, that the nation needs an energy program. Aspects of Carter's energy plan, including his desire for standby gasoline rationing authority, have stalled on Capitol Hill.

"He'll have to decide for himself," White said. He noted Kennedy has voiced support for Carter's re-election and added, "I have to believe him."

Pitt Hospital Budget Okayed

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Commissioners this morning approved the $30,071,000 budget of Pitt County Memorial Hospital for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

to serve in community positions of responsibility.

County Commission Chairman Bob Martin expressed appreciation that the commissioners were included in the preliminary planning sessions for the hospital budget, and thus were able to give it speedy approval.

The resignation of Judy Donnelly from the Council on the Status of Women was accepted. It was pointed out that there are two members of the Council who have never attended. County Manager Reginald Gray was asked to contact them and find if they plan to begin attending. If not, they will be removed from the Council, the Commissioners indicated.

Beth Hutzler, who is now interning at Pitt Co. Memorial as part of her work toward her master's degree in hospital and health administration at Medical College of Virginia was introduced by Hospital Director Jack Richardson.

Charles E. Mayo Jr. was appointed to the Pitt Community College Board of Trustees.

Richardson reported that verbal approval for the hospital bed tower has been received and that, if all goes according to plans, bids should be received Tuesday, Sept. 11.

Raymond Reddrick was appointed to the Pitt Community College Board of Trustees.

Taff Office Equipment Company, as the only bidder, was awarded a contract for $3,584.66 for office supplies for the county for the coming year.

Various County Commissioners said they would contact members of the Pitt County Planning Board now up for reappointment to see if these persons — Lawrence Davenport, Rob E. Jones Jr., Claudie G. McLawhorn, J. P. Sumrell, and Hilton L. Tetterton wish to be reappointed. All are eligible for reappointment and have been active members of the board, it was pointed out.

A report was given of the work and plans of the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women by Jean Darden, chairperson. Mrs. Darden told of an information program on ERA given in May and of a seminar given June 28 on financial responsibilities for single and recently widowed women. She told of a program that soon is to be begun in Pitt County, one of three in the state, to establish a Displaced Homemakers Center. It is to be funded initially, she said, by the State Council on the Status of Women. Also planned, she said, are a workshop on "Women, Alcohol and Drug Abuse," a seminar on "Women and the Law," and preliminaries for the establishment of a listing of women and their qualifications

A data processing policies committee was established, composed of Reginald Gray, chairman; Jack Richardson, Jimmie Hardee, Bill Speight, Charles Gaskins, Warren McRoy, and Gene Windhorn.

Oil Movement Slowed Down

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — After finding no oil from a Mexican spill off the south Texas coast, government scientists have retreated to their maps and computers.

A report was given by Louisa Cox of the Mid East Commission on a meeting held by the Transportation Study Commission. It is the committee's feeling, she said, that transportation services in Pitt County are "fragmented and that funding is often competitive among agencies." The Commissioners complied with her request that five guidelines for the committee be adopted as county policy on transportation services.

"We went looking for it and didn't find it where we thought it would be," said Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, commander of the effort to defend the U.S. coast from the slick.

But reconnaissance flights on Sunday showed the oil had apparently slowed, perhaps due to calm winds, Madson said. The oil was spotted near Mexican beaches 8 miles south of the mouth of the Rio Grande River.

The oil began pouring into the Gulf on June 3, when a Bay of Campeche well blew out. Projections had shown the northern edge of the oil might hit waters off the Texas coast Sunday.

Government Near End Of Case Against Former Army Doctor

By NAOMI KAUFMAN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The government appears to be near the end of its case against Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald as the triple-murder trial begins its fourth week today.

ers carried a candle and chanted "Acid is groovy. Kill the pigs."

MacDonald, 35, is charged with stabbing and bludgeoning to death his pregnant wife, Colette, 26, and daughters Kimberly, 5, and Kristen, 2, while stationed at Fort Bragg in February 1970.

A number of technical witnesses testified last week, telling of blood-type analyses performed on items taken from the MacDonald house. The evidence showed MacDonald's blood, with the exception of one spot on his pajama top, was found only in the kitchen, bathroom and hallway. He has said he was attacked in the living room.

He says four intruders killed his family and injured him.

The blood analyses also showed that the blood found on the pajama top was Colette's type, that a bloody footprint leading from Kristen's bedroom matched Colette's type and that blood matching Kimberly's type was found in the master

The government maintains that MacDonald, now an emergency-room physician in California, fabricated the story, possibly basing it on the Manson family cult killings. The word "pig" was found smeared in blood on the headboard in the master bedroom, and MacDonald says one of the intrudbedroom. Each of the victims was found in her respective bedroom.

However, the government so far has just set the scene. It has yet to explain its theories about what happened at the MacDonald home.

That may change this week, as testimony is expected from an FBI agent who says he has analyzed holes in the pajama top and bloody impressions on sheets and other items. The defense, led by San Francisco attorney Edward Segal, is expected to vigorously challenge that testimony.

The government also may call several of MacDonald's former girlfriends to the stand. Prosecutor James Blackburn declined to say over the weekend whether the women would be called.

The Army dropped charges against MacDonald after a hearing in 1970. However, a federal grand jury indicted him in 1975. Numerous pre-trial appeals were heard before the current trial got under way.

U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree ruled last week that the government may introduce testimony about MacDonald's extramarital affairs.

The government also has not introduced testimony on articles in an Esquire magazine found in the house on the Manson slayings. It is not known who will present that testimony or when.

Galifianakis And Wife Were The Last To Know

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The wife of former North Carolina Congressman Nick Galifianakis says she and her husband probably were the last to find out that a federal judge had dismissed perjury charges against Galifianakis.

urday when an emergency call came in for the former 4th District congressman.

Louise Galifianakis, in a telephone interview from her Durham home Sunday, said she and Galifianakis were about to moor her brother's boat at a marina on Lake Kerr late Sat-

"Since we were away for the weekend, I thought something had happened to one of the children," Mrs. Galifianakis said. "We were very anxious."

Peter Galifianakis said he started trying to reach his brother with the good news Friday night after he learned that U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey had dismissed the charges.

Jerome P. Weber, a crop and soil science professor, has continued his research on the ability of carbon to neutralize spilled PCB and similar toxic substances.

But the call was from Galifianakis' brother, Pete, with the news the family had been waiting for. Perjury charges against the 50-year-old Democrat had been dropped.

Galifianakis was charged last month with lying under oath when he denied taking a $10,000 campaign contribution from Korean businessman Tongsun Park in 1972.

Community Stunned By Four Deaths

BRIDGETON, N.C. (AP) — The residents of this small Craven County community say they are still stunned by the deaths of four of the town's young people who were stricken with hepatitis last month.

"Their deaths hurt because we were all so close," said Sandra Hoyle, owner of Hoyle's Grocery. "Everybody who lived in this area knew everybody else. It's sad because they were so young and had so much to do."

Park had implicated Galifianakis along with former Reps. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., and Otto Passman, D-La. Hanna pleaded guilty to a conspiracy charge and Passman was acquitted of bribery charges.

The EPA has tentatively approved eight county landfills as PCB burial sites, and the commissioners in those counties are expected to consider this week the state's request to use the sites for PCB disposal.

They (the needles) are still very high on our list of sources for the hepatitis. It is one of the most common ways of doing so (transmitting hepatitis)," he said.

"We were probably the last to know (about the dismissal)," Mrs. Galifianakis said. "There was no radio on the boat, and Peter had tried calling us from telephone booths and gas stations."

Weber said he had no hope that state and federal officials would implement his plan to clean up PCB by churning carbon into the contaminated road-sides.

Stories published in the New Bern Sun-Journal disturbed the parents of one dead youth so badly that they called the newspaper July 29 and demanded that the situation be clarified.

"We were kind of numb," she said. "It's a very great feeling of relief, but not one of celebration. We're not used to it yet."

But he said he was convinced that carbon would be used eventually to clean up PCB as it has been used for years to neutralize a variety of poisons accidentally poured on cropland or sprayed in greenhouses.

Investigators called in from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta believe the disease may have been spread by shared drugs and dirty needles at a party. But they say they still are puzzled by some aspects of the case.

She said Galifianakis was considering making a public statement from his Durham office on Monday.

"Although it (the carbon-PCB research) has been no financial value to me and a very big headache, it has been a very valuable experience for us here in learning how non-ionic, non-charged herbicides work in soil," Weber said.

However, relatives and friends of the victims haven't accepted investigators' drug theory.

Mrs. Galifianakis said the entire family should rest easier after the dismissal of the charges.

The first to die was Craig Gaskins Jr., 19, on July 15. Within two weeks, John C. Davis, 18, Bobby M. Cates, 21, and Kimberly Fulcher, 18, also died from what medical investigators say was a virulent strain of hepatitis B.

According to a friend of Miss Fulcher's, she told her parents prior to entering Craven County Hospital that "I've never used a needle."

"It's something you couldn't possibly comprehend unless you lived through it," she said. "It has created enormous tension and hardship on the family, and the kids have suffered through it."

The Galifianakis have been married for 17 years and have three children — Stephanie, 25, by Galifianakis' previous marriage, Katie, 15, and Jon Mark, 12.

Mrs. Galifianakis said the family has not discussed the possibility of a continuance of the case. The Justice Department has until Sept. 3 to file an appeal.

Anniversary Of First Nuclear Attack

By DEBORAH WOOD

Americans recalled the grim memory of the first nuclear bomb attack with protests and arrests as relatives of victims paused in silence in Hiroshima, Japan, today — the 34th anniversary of the city's destruction during World War II.

cluding 24 Koreans, were added to a scroll on the cenotaph in Peace Park, built as a memorial to the disaster. The scroll lists 95,685 known victims.

The western Japanese seaport city was virtually wiped out. Another 36,000 persons were killed in an attack on Nagasaki three days later, and thousands more died in the following months from the effects of radiation.

Many of the U.S. protests were aimed at ending commercial, peacetime uses of nuclear power, but in Hiroshima delegates from 22 nations marked the anniversary with a call to outlaw all nuclear arms.

The 1979 World Conference Against Hydrogen and Atomic Bombs opened Sunday, and the 12,000 delegates called for a total ban on nuclear arms and relief measures for an estimated 400,000 survivors of the 1945 bombings.

Then Mayor Takeshi Araki told the crowd, "We are faced with the urgent need to solve the problems of atomic-bomb victims and those exposed to atomic radiation as an issue of international proportions."

Most of the U.S. demonstrations on Sunday were peaceful. But more than 200 persons were arrested at the Indian Point nuclear facility in Buchanan, N.Y., 40 miles north of New York City.

There were also demonstrations in California, New Hampshire, Kentucky, Iowa, Nebraska, New Jersey, Virginia, Ohio, and Colorado.

Woman Finds No Problems In Job

France To Sell

PARIS (UPI) — France has agreed to sell $5 billion worth of military equipment to Arab countries in the next five years, according to a Paris-based magazine on Arab affairs.

The weekly news magazine Al Watan Al Arabi said the arms contract was signed July 15 by French Defense Minister Yvon Bourges and his Saudi Arabian counterpart, Prince Ibn Abdel Aziz.

Under the contract, France will sell tanks, military airplanes and anti-aircraft weapons to Iraq, Saudi Arabia and various Persian Gulf states. The magazine also reported that Saudi Arabia is interested in purchasing Mirage 2000 jet fighters as well as participating financially with Iraq in the development of the Mirage 4000.

The magazine said Saudia Arabia will receive about $2 million worth of equipment under the contract. The magazine said the contract indicates Saudi Arabia's decision to diversify its military contracts and not rely totally on the United States.

By KEN PLUMMER
Goldsboro News-Argus
GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Air Force pilots pulling up behind the big KC-135 jet air refueling tanker for the past six months have been surprised to hear a soft feminine voice coming at them over the radio.

After all, they thought, it is a man's world 26,000 feet above the earth, streaking along at 400 miles per hour to hook up to a relatively small refueling boom ominously close to another aircraft traveling at the same speed.

But Airman 1st Class Tina Skrzyplec of Chicago is getting along very well in that world, and she is just as surprised as anyone else that she is in it.

The 20-year-old aerial boom operator with the 911th Air Refueling Squadron at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base is one of only nine women in the Air Force who are doing that job.

And she is one of a slightly larger group of women who are in any kind of air crew at all.

Ms. Skrzyplec spent a semester at Loyola University after graduating from high school and then decided to join some branch of the military "for travel and education." Travel she got.

"The Air Force just suited me best but I had no idea I'd ever be flying when I enlisted," she said. "I scored well in the tests and flight physical and they offered me boom operator."

"I had never heard of anything like this before and thought it was kind of crazy they could refuel airplanes in the air," she said. "A former boom operator at Lackland Air Force Base told me this was the best job in the enlisted field."

"He was right," Ms. Skrzyplec added. "Now I can't think of anything I'd rather do. It's highly exciting and I sure am traveling. I've already been all over the United States and to England, Greece and Spain."

Ms. Skrzyplec, from a family of 10 with six brothers and one sister, has been in the Air Force for 15 months and refueling planes in the air since November. One of her brothers is also an air crew member with the Air Force at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

Her aircraft commander, Capt. Oscar "Buck" McNew of Berea, Ky., is well pleased with her performance.

"For her level of experience, she is better than most young boom operators, particularly at the celestial navigation sightings which most of them have trouble with," McNew said. "She's extremely conscientious and I'm pleased to have her on my crew."

The co-pilot, 1st Lt. Bill Baxley of Atlanta and the navigator, Capt. Drew Armentrout of South Bend, Ind., concur, and the four of them work well together in an exacting and highly technical flying operation.

"Most of all, I enjoy the flying," Ms. Skrzyplec said. "And when you're part of a super crew like this, what more can you ask?"

What is a typical workday? One day, her crew took off on an air-refueling mission in a KC-135 that weighed 255,000 pounds, including 145,000 pounds of fuel.

It lifted off the Seymour Johnson runway after an 8,000 foot takeoff roll and flew down over Augusta, Ga., and up nearly to Cleveland, Ohio, and back to Seymour at speeds over 400 mph and at altitudes of up to 37,000 feet, in slightly under four hours.

With the weather all over the East Coast and much of the Midwest stormy and threatening, Ms. Skrzyplec refueled a B-52 stratofortress jet bomber from the 51st Bomb Squadron at Seymour Johnson on a track which began above Greensboro and ended up over Georgia. The huge bomber loomed into view through the window of the KC-135 boom pod and Ms. Skrzyplec carefully guided it into the boom. After the boom was guided into the receptacle on top of the bomber, 75,000 pounds of jet fuel, about 15,000 gallons, was off-loaded in about 12 minutes.

"The first time I ever refueled one of those things, I was scared to death," she said. "It really is big down there just a few feet away from the boom pod."

Alert duty is a part of her job which she also makes the best of, although it is not widely considered a pleasant task.

Crews from the 68th Bomb Wing at Seymour Johnson pull a lot of alert. "We're on alert seven days at a time, with 3½ days of rest after that and then back to regular flying," she said.

"We must stay in the alert area or at designated areas, but you get to know people a lot better and you have movies, games and our own swimming pool. It's like a hotel. Good friends, good food and a swimming pool," she said.

Aerial refueling is an operation that is vital to America's global air superiority. The nation's military planes need a way to stay in the air, limiting the time of their missions only to the endurance of their crews.

This is guaranteed by the air-refueling operation with the KC-135s, a military version of the Boeing 707 that can carry more than 30,000 gallons of jet fuel more than 5,000 miles to keep other planes up and sometimes to bring them back safely.

It flies at up to 600 mph with a ceiling above 50,000 feet.

Ms. Skrzyplec's duties are not over when the air refueling is done. In fact, the celestial navigation sightings through a modern-day version of the old sextant is a difficult job.

Looking into the instrument which is mounted into the cabin roof of the aircraft, she must take fixes by centering a cross-hair and bubble in the sextant and then putting the sun, moon or some star in the cross-hairs for about two minutes.

The bubble and cross-hairs represent the horizon and the idea is to determine the position of the sun in relation to the horizon.

This type of navigation has been refined and must be used in such areas as over water where no set navigational aids are available.

Taking those sightings in the aircraft which often may be jostled about by winds and other weather conditions is not all that simple.

The aerial refueling mission is exacting and demanding.

So far, Ms. Skrzyplec has air refueled B-52s, the F-111 fighter-bomber, F-105, F-15 and A-7 fighters, the A-10, a new anti-tank aircraft, the EC-135 and C-135, other modified versions of the civilian Boeing 707.

"I haven't refueled a C-5 yet," she said. The C-5 Galaxy, as big as a football field, is a real challenge for boom operators.

"They say you can't see anything else when it's behind the boom pod," she said.

"I think things have gone very well," Ms. Skrzyplec said. "The only thing is that many of the receivers make comments over the air when they hear a woman's voice. 'Repeat that,' they say."

"And so far, I haven't had any real hairy moments or emergencies and sudden break-aways from us to the receiver."

Is she up for a career? "I don't know, but this sure beats being stuck to a desk job," she said.

How To Win?

MOSCOW (AP) — Criticized for not being comradely, Soviet business executives are studying Dale Carnegie's book "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

Censored of the American author's "immodest self-advertisement," a translation has been published serially in the journal Trade Production Economy and Organization.

In an introductory editorial, managing editor V. Bykov advised Soviet executives:

"No matter how energetic and intelligent a business executive may be in pursuit of his goal, unless he knows how to manage people he will leave in his wake a series of mutilated human lives, enmity towards himself and his business, and heart attacks and crises causing irreparable damage."

As the Soviet economy grows in size and complexity, management problems "loom larger and larger," Bykov continued. Executives must study up on the "difficult art" of diplomacy in human relations.

"Quite frankly, there have been periods in our development when we have tended to overlook the nuances of business ethics and psychology in our enthusiasm for above-plan tons, cubic meters or kilowatt hours," he said.

you please help us to alert your readers to the availability of craft and hobby books for their blind friends or relatives?

The Self-Help Series was written and designed by the blind for the blind, and it is a confidence-building program. These materials are produced at a much higher price than they are sold for.

We would like them mentioned as a resource for the blind or visually impaired, of which the elderly are the fastest-growing segment of the legally blind population.

A mention in your column would make it possible to reach many who would otherwise not know about these materials. Thank you for your consideration. KEVIN LYNCH, THE GUILD FOR THE BLIND, 180 N. MICHIGAN AVE., SUITE 1720, CHICAGO, ILL.

Here's hoping that any of my readers who have visually handicapped friends will pass this information along.

Among the manuals available are ones on macrame, sewing and latch hooking, all available in braille, large print or cassettes. There are others to help the blind care for indoor plants, bake bread and cook a variety of recipes.

While the guild is headquartered in Chicago, it is a national organization and will supply information on the materials available to anyone, anywhere. Just write to the guild at the address given above for further information.

For Chicago-area residents, the guild offers a course in braille transcribing to sighted volunteers. If you live elsewhere and would like to become a volunteer braille transcriber, check with your local association for the blind. This type of instruction is offered in many areas.

In the past, some local associations for the blind have requested my permission to reproduce one or more of my instruction leaflets in braille. I am always happy to give this permission and will also send complimentary copies of any leaflet if I receive the request on the letterhead of such an organization.

I think that many of us who are blessed with sight do not realize that beautiful handiwork can be done by those who can no longer see. When we think of the great pleasure gained through creative crafts, just imagine how much more this must mean to those living in a sightless world.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

Mainly Want Equitable Rates

Gov. Hunt at a news conference Thursday called for Carolina Power & Light to take over the Virginia Electric & Power territory in North Carolina.

The governor, who has previously been critical of VEPCO's operations in North Carolina, cited the higher cost of electricity for VEPCO customers in this state.

For an all-electric home using 1,000 kilowatt hours a month these costs were given as examples:

VEPCO: $54.12 in summer and $51.07 in winter.
 Duke: $38.48 in summer and winter
 CP&L: $41.08 in summer and $39.52 in winter.

It is clear that residential customers are paying considerably more in North Carolina for VEPCO service than for Duke or CP & L.

We can assume that these higher rates are making economic development more difficult in the North Carolina VEPCO area. Certainly they are burdening residential users with an unnecessary cost.

The problems of switching such a broad area would be monumental. Both companies likely would have to be in agreement, and the approval of regulatory agencies would be necessary.

It would have to be ascertained that CP&L had the generating capacity to serve the new area, and avoid potential brown-outs at high usage times.

The decisions made in this matter vitally affect our area. Greenville Utilities purchases power wholesale from VEPCO, and follows the VEPCO rate schedule. Many customers in north Pitt and Martin Counties are served on a retail basis by VEPCO.

What we want, what the VEPCO power users of Northeastern North Carolina want — and should have — is equitable rates, as compared with other sections of the state.

The governor is to be commended for proposing a clear-cut course of action to achieve that aim. If VEPCO has an alternative for bringing rates in line with other utilities in North Carolina, then it should be immediately implemented.

Responsibility Rests On Congress

It is regrettable that Congress has recessed without acting on a standby gasoline rationing plan.

No one relishes rationing, but the time may come when it is far better than standing in gas lines.

Congress should get on with this matter when it returns to Washington. If not, we will know where to place the blame when gas runs short again.

Inflation Hits Nursery

The opening of the school year and the tight money situation are working hardships on many parents throughout the country.

My friend Block was in despair when I saw him the other day.

"When Roger was born," Block said, "we immediately took out an insurance policy for his education. Now because of inflation and the high cost of schooling, we've used it all up, and Roger still has six months to go."

"College is that expensive?" I asked.

"What do you mean, college?" Block said. "Roger goes to nursery school."

"Nursery school, huh?"

"Twenty-five hundred dollars a year, not counting the yearbook or the prom," Block said. "I guess our big mistake was sending Roger to pre-nursery school. You start a kid at 3 in school, and then you have no money left for his serious education when he becomes 5. If I had to do it all over again, I would probably let him stay in his sandbox, but Alice was adamant about his getting a good, solid background."

"Couldn't you borrow some money from the bank to let Roger finish out nursery school?"

"Well, we did borrow a thousand dollars at the beginning of the summer."

"What happened to it?"

"We used it to send Roger to day camp."

"At least the money wasn't wasted," I said. "Aren't there any government grants for kids who want to finish out nursery school?"

"I looked into it. Most of the grants available are in graduate work for children who are either in the fifth grade or above. The particular nursery school that Roger goes to could have gotten a large grant from the government if it was willing to do research in germ warfare. But the headmistress said she wouldn't allow her children to do any research at the school that couldn't be published later."

"I guess scholarships are out?" I said.

"You don't understand," Block said. "It just isn't the tuition that kills you in nursery school. It's the school bus, finger paints, clay, and chocolate milk that really mounts up the cost. You have to add another $1,500 for that."

"It's like a yacht," I said. "It isn't the initial cost but the upkeep that counts."

"Exactly. I went to Yale for what it's costing me to send Roger through nursery school. But when I tell him this, it doesn't seem to faze him at all. Kids take everything for granted these days."

"You haven't suggested to Roger that he could wait on tables to earn part of the tuition himself?"

"Alice is against it. She says nursery school should be a happy time for a child, and a kid shouldn't have to worry about working just because his father hadn't made adequate plans for his education."

"You do seem to be in a spot," I admitted. "But I guess the day Roger graduates from nursery school, you'll realize all the sacrifice and agony were worthwhile."

"I probably would, but Roger has already indicated he wants to go to first grade."

Coupons A Way Of Life

By LOUISE COOK
 Associated Press Writer

Coupon clipping has become a way of life for millions of Americans trying to cut grocery bills.

They no longer are satisfied with a dime here and a nickel there. They concentrate on trying to turn the small change into big savings.

There are coupon newsletters to help clippers keep up with manufacturers' promotions and coupon clubs whose members swap cents-off offers. Bargain-hunting shoppers watch for double and triple coupon offers when a 20-cent coupon can mean a saving of 40 or even 60 cents.

Almost 80 percent of all families save coupons, according to Nielsen reports. The A.C. Nielsen Co. says an estimated 73 billion manufacturers' coupons were distributed in 1978, up 17 percent from 1977. About one coupon in 20 was redeemed, the company says.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that 55 percent of all manufacturers' coupons appear in newspapers. Magazines account for 15 percent and Sunday supplements for 17 percent, the USDA says. The rest of the coupons are included in direct-mail promotions or are packed with a product.

(Note: The figures on manufacturers' coupons do not include the offers made by local supermarkets and other retailers.)

The double and triple coupon trend started several years ago in the Midwest as retailers sought to lure customers' from competitors. It died out after a brief period, but has been revived recently in the New York metropolitan area and in parts of New England.

Some supermarket operators dislike the premium promotions. They say that as soon as one store in a region starts offering double or triple value on coupons, the others follow suit. Whatever competitive edge results from the initial offer, disappears quickly.

Road Design Value Proven

By BILL NOBLITT

Raleigh — Does it really do any good to put those widened shoulders on North Carolina's rural roads?

That was the question asked by members of the General Assembly when a study of that topic was directed to be made by the Department of Transportation.

The results are dramatic. Overall, rural two-lane highways with paved shoulders produced a better safety record. But it was also determined that it cost less to maintain the roads generally since paved shoulders kept the sides of roads from tearing up and breaking off as quickly.

Putting material in place to keep road edges from dropping off is costing about $11 million a year. Paved shoulders reduce cost of that work by 75 percent.

But the most pressing question is safety, and the analysis proves that roadway design and construction plays an important part in safety of travelers.

with paved shoulders, and 1,280 miles of paved shoulders on four-lane roads.

So, if such roadwork can be proven to save lives, dollars and hurt, and at the same time sharply reduce maintenance costs, why do so many North Carolina roads remain narrow?

The estimated cost of providing paved shoulders four feet in width on roads which need them is $80.2 million.

In his comments to legislators, Transportation Sec. Tom Bradshaw summed it up this way: "In developing our highway improvement program (we) consider many different types of needs paving unpaved roads, strengthening of existing roadway pavements, replacement of structurally deficient bridges, widening or relocation of heavily traveled rural and urban roads, safety improvements at high accident locations, and construction of new urban and rural freeways.

"The paved shoulder needs are considered within the context of our overall highway needs...."

Looking For Managers

By STAN BENJAMIN
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's such an elementary principle of good management that you wonder how the Carter administration overlooked it the first time out: Where the boss is weak, the deputy should be strong.

If one is best at bright ideas, the other should be tops at carrying them out.

The production whiz needs the sales booster.

Mr. or Ms. Inside needs Ms. or Mr. Outside.

The Carter administration overlooked that principle, at least where energy management was concerned, and for two years it suffered the consequences in legislative failures on Capitol Hill and a managerial mess in the new Department of Energy.

Carter's mid-term Cabinet shake-up offers an intriguing opportunity to dust off the principle of management balance

ESSENCE OF KNOWLEDGE

A very wealthy and learned man, who over a lifetime had collected one of the most extensive libraries in the country on philosophy, said recently: "I have surveyed most of the philosophical learning which has been accumulated over the past three centuries, and my study is filled with books and manuscripts on various subjects, yet at this moment I can recollect nothing in them upon which I can rest my soul, save one passage from sacred Scripture which constantly recurs to my mind. And it is this:

"The grace of God that bringeth salvation has appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world; looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God in our savior Jesus Christ."

Social Security Paid Twice?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
 AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Social Security is complex, beneficial and costly, among other things. And among the other things, according to Bill Gowan, it might also be unfair, inflationary and thieving.

Gowan's complaint isn't of the usual sort, although it's not uncommon. He recognizes that nearly everyone has a word of praise or a gripe about the system, but it didn't matter much until a few weeks ago.

It was then that he joined Goodyear Tire & Rubber as a regional office executive. At the time, he had already paid more than $900 in Social Security and Medicare withholding taxes through his previous employer.

Soon, he thought, he would complete his obligation for the year, which for 1979 amounts to $1,403.77, or 6.13 percent of the first $22,000 earned. But to his financial shock, that wasn't to be so.

Instead, he found that Goodyear would have to ignore the $900 already paid into the fund and begin all over again. It would continue to deduct 6.13 percent of his paycheck for the rest of the year.

As a result, Gowan will by the end of the year have overpaid his obligation to Social Security by about $700. He couldn't believe it.

"Already I have deductions for federal, state and city income taxes," he moaned. "Now I have to pay Social Security twice." His finances, he said, were strained by the additional payments.

The company could do little to help, since it is obligated to see that employees pay their full amount into the system. To begin from scratch is apparently the only way, or the best way, to be certain.

Gowan will receive an income tax rebate for payments over $1,403.77, but it probably won't be received until next April or May. In effect, he will have lent out his money interest free for many months.

Were he able to put the $700 in a passbook savings account at 5.5 percent interest for, say, six months, Gowan would be richer by $19.25.

But that's not the extent of his loss: His rebate, when he gets it, will be in cheaper dollars. At 10 percent inflation for six months, for example, he'd lose another $35, or a total of $54.25.

At least he'll get something back. The extra payments made by the companies, which by law must match his weekly deductions, are kept by Social Security. They make no attempt to return the money. None.

"This is the way it was in the original law," one Social Security spokeswoman "explained." She added: "It's just a cost of doing business."

There is a way for the employee to fix matters on his own, even if the Internal Revenue Service might not like it. He can simply adjust his exemptions and therefore the amount withheld from each paycheck.

That in effect tosses the problem back to the government, but it does little to resolve the underlying difficulties. In any event create some bookkeeping problems between IRS and Social Security.

Plans For $2 Million Island Have Not Been Revealed

BEAUFORT, S.C. (AP) — Atlanta businessman Ted Turner has not revealed his plans for St. Phillips Island, a 4,600-acre barrier island near Beaufort he has purchased for $2 million.

But the possibility that he may want to develop the island as a resort, as the previous owner had tried to do, is causing environmentalists some concern.

O. Stanley Smith, a Columbia businessman and developer, announced the sale of his island last week.

For six years he had been stymied by environmental groups who argued successfully to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Coast Guard that the undeveloped barrier island should be preserved.

The Beaufort Chamber of Commerce was enthusiastic about Smith's plans. But several national environmental groups were alarmed about the despoilation of one of the last pristine barrier islands in the Southeast.

Barrier islands protect shallow embayments and tidal marshlands from harsher ocean conditions, allowing natural food cycles to continue.

Key in blocking Smith's planned $15 million development were the efforts of the Washington-based Environmental Defense Fund.

Langdon Warner, a scientist with the EDF, says the group will try to work out an arrangement with Turner.

The Nature Conservancy could compensate Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves and Atlanta Bucks, for leaving the island undeveloped, Warner suggested.

Warner, who has fought development of St. Phillips Island for four years, said, "There are a number of things Turner could do in using the island as a summer home and keep it in its wild state."

"He is known to be sympathetic in these issues."

In fact, Turner is a member of the Nature Conservancy. But he also has a reputation for being unpredictable. After the deal with Smith was completed in Atlanta, Turner left for Europe before saying whether he intends to develop the island or keep it as a private playground.

Warner said there is speculation that Turner plans are limited to building a house for himself and a caretaker.

"That's fine with us. But a request for a bridge permit to the Coast Guard hasn't been withdrawn and that worries us somewhat," Warner added.

Part of Smith's development plans included making the island accessible to motorists, and he asked the Coast Guard for a permit to build a bridge from St. Phillips Island to adjacent St. Helena Island.

The EDF is prepared to file a suit if the Coast Guard allows the mile-long causeway and bridge to be built, Warner says. Controversy over the island first cropped up in 1972, when Smith bought the island and commissioned a North Carolina firm to draw plans for 1,200 single-family dwellings, a golf course and two marinas.

Then he applied for the bridge permit.

Smith began looking for a buyer after the Coast Guard said in an environmental impact statement in 1974 that development would have a "critical" impact on the island and surrounding marshes.

The Coast Guard also said development of the island could result in disaster, since it has a low elevation and is prone to flooding during severe storms.

The Nature Conservancy offered to buy St. Phillips and preserve it. But for undisclosed reasons, the sale was not made.

Smith's attorney, Robert Young of Columbia, declined to talk discuss the sale of the island to Turner. He said details of the sale may be known later.

The environmentalists are as eager as anyone to learn Turner's plans.

"We're hoping that Turner has good plans for the island," says Warner. "But if he doesn't, we're prepared to jump in quickly."

Check Claim

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Ashe and Watauga county officials say they are checking into claims by a Central Prison inmate that he knows where several bodies are buried, even though they say they doubt they will find any bodies.

Authorities say Larry Duke Hopkins, 24, made the claims. Hopkins is serving four life sentences plus 10 years for armed robbery, car thefts, arson and the slaying of his sister.

Hopkins wrote letters last week to Ashe County Sheriff Bobby Waddell and Watauga County Sheriff Ward Carroll saying he could tell them where up to seven bodies are buried.

Waddell said he doubts the story but that he has begun an investigation. Waddell, two investigators from Carroll's office and an agent of the State Bureau of Investigation interviewed Hopkins in Central Prison Thursday.

Carroll said investigators asked Hopkins how many bodies were buried.

"Maybe seven or something like that...three bodies in Ashe and four in Watauga," investigators said Hopkins told them.

Store managers also note that the extra savings comes out of the retailer's budget; manufacturers reimburse the supermarkets only for the face value of the coupons, plus handling charges. "In the long term, shoppers may pay for that flurry of couponing in some other area," said a spokesman for a Massachusetts-based chain.

Getting the most out of coupons takes time and energy.

Start by checking newspaper and magazine advertisements and store shelves for coupon and refund offers. Clip and file all coupons, according to category and expiration date.

Plan your shopping around the coupons. Suppose, for example, you find a newspaper coupon offering 20 cents off on a 79-cent roll of paper towels — this week only. It makes sense to buy the towels now, even if you won't need them for several weeks.

It does not make sense, however, to buy a product you will never use just because you happen to have a coupon for it.

Try to combine manufacturers' coupons with local specials. Suppose, your local store offers a free head of lettuce with every purchase of two bottles of a particular type of salad dressing. Assuming you like and would ordinarily use the salad dressing being featured, check your coupon files. You may be able to get not only a free lettuce, but also a refund on the salad dressing.

Fight Again For Rights

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Blacks should stop talking about what they accomplished in the 1960s and start fighting again for their civil rights, Soul City developer Floyd McKissick said Sunday in a sermon at a Durham church.

McKissick said in a letter read to the congregation at Union Baptist Church that he had been called by God to do his work through the ministry. His sermon was an initial effort to become an ordained Baptist minister. During his sermon, McKissick said blacks must find a way to get into the system and change it. He said when people talk about the United States becoming more conservative, "they're saying black folks have accomplished enough...they don't call you niggers any more. They call you culturally deprived and under-achievers." He said blacks must set realistic goals and work toward them. "No man can defeat us if we are together," he said.

McKissick also told the congregation that "we cannot afford the luxury of hating any man, no matter how mean he is. Senator (Jesse) Helms (R-N.C.) is made in the image of God, just like all men."

McKissick has accused Helms of a personal vendetta against him and Soul City by trying to cut off further federal loans to the new community.

The board of the New Community Development Corp., a HUD agency, voted on June 28 to phase out Soul City.

As a result of recent rains and warm weather, pastures in many areas of the state are in excellent condition. Thus, there is only a minimal need for supplemental feeding of beef cattle. Producers should, however, be giving consideration to the quality and quantity of feeds they are storing for feeding next winter.

Forage quality is an important aspect of a sound beef nutrition program. Both maturity at harvest and harvest management influence the quality of feed available for winter feeding. Digestible nutrients and crude protein per pound of hay dry matter are known to decrease with advanced maturity of hays. When harvesting silage it is important that the forage have sufficient moisture to ensile properly, but excess moisture (greater than 70%) results in reduced TDN per pound of dry matter and excess nutrient run-off from the silo. Minimizing these losses by good management results in higher quality forages for winter feeding.

Harvesting management may also influence the quality of forage stored. Assuming that a forage crop is harvested at the correct moisture level and stage of maturity its quality may still vary considerably. Several items should be stressed when storing forages. Some of these are listed below. Hays: (1) Minimize the amount of time that hay is in the field. Excess drying and/or rain will decrease the TDN, protein and vitamin A content of forages. (2) Hay should be conditioned to facilitate rapid drying. (3) Manage raking and baling to minimize leaf shatter and field losses. (4) Bale at about 18 to 20 percent moisture to ensure safe storage. Silages: (1) Corn and sorghum silages should be harvested at about 35 to 40 percent dry matter. (2) Chop silages finely and pack well in silos. (3) Fill silos rapidly. (4) Coordinate the size of storage facilities with rate of feeding to prevent spoilage during feeding.

Before formulating a feeding program with farm grown forages, it is very important to obtain representative samples of the forage and have them analyzed for nutrient content. A producer can adequately balance rations only if he knows the dry matter, TDN, crude protein, and phosphorous content of his forages.

When a farmer approaches the winter feeding period, the quantity of forage available should be sufficient to maintain a desired level of production by his beef cattle. Normally, an 1100 lb lactating cow will require 20 to 25 lbs. of hay per day depending upon quality. Alternatively, she would need about 45 to 50 lbs of corn silage. Stockers weighing 450 lbs would need about 15 lbs of hay depending on quality, of about 30 to 35 lbs of corn silage. Energy and/or protein supplements may be needed with these forages depending on forage quality and intake. Producers should store sufficient forages to meet these needs for the duration of an average wintering period.

Transportation Changes Affect Rural Americans

By BILL HUMPHRIES
NCSU Agricultural Information
RALEIGH — Changes are occurring in the transportation industries which will have far-reaching effects upon rural America, says a North Carolina State University economist specializing in agricultural marketing and transportation.

The economist, Dr. Marc A. Johnson, said the situation is "in a state of flux" and there is much uncertainty regarding future rates and quality and quantity of services offered by freight carriers such as railroads and trucks.

Major issues currently being discussed, he said, include reduced regulation of freight rates, abandonment of unprofitable lines, end to end rail mergers, uniformity of truck sizes and weight limits from state to state, and relaxation of restrictions on truck backhauling.

Congress last year directed the administration to establish a rural transportation advisory task force to assess the transport needs of agriculture, determine the adequacy of the existing transportation network in meeting those needs, and make recommendations for a national agricultural transportation policy. The task force last month held 11 public hearings, including one in Raleigh, to receive testimony on the subject.

Economist Johnson said his view was that the nation should "be somewhat bold" in dealing with the issues involved. "Rather than fight change, I think we should go ahead and allow changes to occur that will encourage flexibility in the use of transportation facilities and equipment," he noted. "We should let the agricultural marketing system and the transportation system change together."

Among the end to end railroad mergers being considered across the country, Johnson said, is one involving the Seaboard Coast Line and the "Chessie" system (Chesapeake and Ohio, and Baltimore and Ohio).

He said merger of this type permit extremely long hauls and enables railroads to capitalize on their inherent advantage. Such mergers, Johnson noted, promote more efficient use of equipment, reduce costs, and potentially could relieve some rail car shortages.

The U. S. Department of Transportation is encouraging the merger movement to increase efficiency of operations and improve the financial strength of rail systems which have been ailing.

"The intent of reduced rate regulation for railroads would be to allow the market to determine rate levels and to allow rates to respond quickly to competitive conditions. Currently, it takes months to get rate changes approved," Johnson stated.

"Untying the hands of the railroads in rate-setting would enable them to capture traffic that they can afford to haul at a lower cost than their competitors, such as trucks and barges," he added.

The NCSU economist said there has been a severe national rail car shortage for the past 20 months. To combat this, it is being proposed that railroads be permitted to set rental charges for their cars on other companies' lines.

A company experiencing a car shortage could then raise its rental charge as an incentive for the cars to be returned rather than being allowed to sit idle.

Johnson said some shippers oppose reduced regulation of rail service and rates because there would be more uncertainty than under regulated conditions. He said many large grain companies and other shippers prefer quoted rates that they can count on for a long period of time.

While abandonment of rail service could jeopardize the future of the rural communities affected, Johnson said it's unrealistic to expect rail companies to be financially responsible for risky operations, as they have been since 1920.

"New legislation doesn't encourage abandonment or reduction of service to small communities, but it's a way of getting the financial risk of the ailing railroad industry and allowing local residents to see if they want to continue rail services under state plans financed with state and local money and matching federal funds," the economist said.

As for issues affecting the trucking industry, Johnson said one of the most important is the effort to achieve uniformity among the states in regulation of truck size, weight limits and so on. This was emphasized during the strike by independent truckers earlier this summer.

"A single standard would permit truckers to adjust their hauls and efficiently use their equipment for shortest routes and uniform loads," he said. "The difficulty is that the highway systems and bridges of some states were not built to handle the higher weight limits now being proposed."

Also, he said that secondary roads typically are not built to accommodate very heavy trucks.

While the need for highway improvements is increasing, the revenues available for this purpose are declining.

To increase fuel efficiency and truck utilization, Congress is considering laws to liberalize provisions on "backhauling." Under one measure, for example, up to 50 percent of the tonnage handled by cooperatives' trucks could consist of non-members' products.

This would permit roughly 100 percent backhauls. Currently, the limit on non-members' tonnage is 15 percent.

Since one person's backhaul is another person's fronthaul, provisions permitting increased backhauling would throw some trucks out of business, according to Johnson.

"If we have designed a trucking capacity based on irrational rules, the industry will be made stronger in the long run by adjusting the rules to make them more sound economically and enable the industry to reach a new and higher level of stability," Johnson declared.

HARTFORD (AP) — The Hartford-born civil rights activist freed from a North Carolina jail two weeks ago is already back at work as an investigator for a church-sponsored racial justice commission.

James Earl Grant Jr., who spent four years in jail before having his 25-year sentence commuted by North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt, says there is plenty to do in the area of racial justice.

"So much more change is needed here that it isn't funny. We've only scratched the surface," said the 41-year-old Grant, one of the Charlotte 3.

Freed two weeks ago on parole, Grant now works as an investigator for the United Church of Christ's Commission on Racial Justice in Raleigh, N.C. His case was cited by the Nobel Peace Prize-winning Amnesty International as an example of repression in the United States.

Grant said overt racism still exists in North Carolina, but added that authorities would probably not attempt to "railroad" anyone to jail for political activism, as he says he was in 1972.

"Our activism didn't stop when those gates shut behind us," Grant said, referring to his work in organizing a prisoners' union at the North Carolina State Prison.

Grant says he isn't bitter about the time he spent in jail but he says he and two North Carolina men, T.J. Reddy and Charles Parker, were framed on arson charges because of their efforts to organize Charlotte's black community in the late 1960s.

"You can't expect folks to pat you on the back when you are trying to take their power away and give it to someone else," said the soft-spoken black man.

Grant was interviewed recently by The Hartford Courant in Raleigh.

The three men were convicted in 1972 of arson charges that stemmed from a 1968 fire that destroyed a barn and killed 15 horses at the Lazy B Stables near Charlotte.

The whites-only policy at the stables had drawn protests from Grant, who went to North Carolina in 1967 as a VISTA volunteer after receiving a doctorate in chemistry from Pennsylvania State University.

Convictions for the three were obtained on the basis of testimony from two prosecution witnesses who, it was revealed two years after the trial, had been paid $4,000 by the federal government in another case. The two had criminal records and additional charges against them were pending.

Last month, Hunt commuted Grant's sentence and Reddy's 20-year term to time served and they were released on parole a few days later. Parker was released on parole earlier this year after serving part of his 10-year sentence.

"North Carolina has had its image dragged through the mud because of our case," he said. "I feel the establishment would be leery about messing with folks the way they did with us."

Egypt announced the reopening of the Suez Canal to international shipping in 1975. The canal had been closed by the Arab-Israeli war of June 1967.

Carter May Be Referee Between Two Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter may find himself acting as a referee between two federal agencies with conflicting ideas about whether nature should take its course along part of the Cape Hatteras National Seashore.

On one side is the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which wants to spend $75 million to stabilize Oregon Inlet, about 20 miles south of Nags Head. The inlet keeps filling with sand that the Atlantic Ocean pushes landward each year.

The corps, backed by the North Carolina congressional delegation and Gov. Jim Hunt, believes the project could stabilize the inlet and save the 2.4-mile long Herbert B. Bonner Bridge, which spans the inlet. The corps also believes the project would allow expansion of the area's fishing industry, now limited by the sand-clogged inlet. But leading coastal scientists and environmentalists view the corps project as one that would probably aggravate erosion in the Cape Hatteras National Seashore.

"It sounds like a disaster to me," said Bill Painter, a coastal specialist who works for the Sierra Club. "That project could destroy Cape Hatteras."

The project would feature two giant jetties, built like walls into the open Atlantic. The jetties would block the flow of sand that has been moving from the ocean into the mouth of the inlet.

But National Park Service officials believe the jetties may block the normal flow of sand to their property at Cape Hatteras and may try to block the proposed project.

William J. Whalen, the park service director, said he expects the fight over Oregon Inlet to be waged at "the departmental level" with Cecil J. Andrus, secretary of the interior, and Clifford L. Alexander Jr., secretary of the Army, doing most of the fighting.

Whalen said the Park Service hasn't taken sides yet, but he indicated the agency will oppose the Corps' plans.

"We can give them a hell of a run on it," he said, since the corps will have to work on Park Service land to build the jetties.

"Frankly, we're skeptical and we're concerned, not only about the primary impact (of the project) but also the secondary impacts."

Whalen and the others in the Park Service have questioned whether the corps project would damage the Cape Hatteras park, which, by law, the Park Service is required to operate as a wilderness area.

The Park Service expects to announce a formal position on the matter after Labor Day.

Pitt Receives State Funds

RALEIGH — Pitt County has received $42,000 toward aid for health and social services departments from the North Carolina Department of Human Resources.

Approximately $3 million will be mailed out across the state in the first quarterly installment for special state aid to counties in the administration of the health and social services departments for the 1979-80 fiscal year.

"We are indeed pleased that the legislature appropriated this direct state grant-in-aid money in addition to other state funds appropriated for use in administering local health and social services programs," said Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, Secretary of Human Resources. "We have all been concerned with the rising financial burden being placed on county governments in providing human services. Hopefully, the funds will relieve some of that burden."

The funds, allocated to each county based on population, are not to be used to match other state funds.

Feeder Pig Sales Reported

A total of 11,654 feeder pigs were sold on 13 state graded sales during the week of July 30, according to the Market News Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Prices were steady to $3 higher for 40-80 pound pigs. US 1-2 pigs weighing 40-50 pounds averaged $45.35 per 100 pounds with No. 3's, $40.75; 50-60 pound 1-2's averaged $42.88, No. 3's, $36.68; 60-70 pound 1-2's, $40.27, No. 3's, $36.09; 70-80 pound 1-2's $38.51 per 100 pounds, No. 3's, $37.26.

THE "DREAM HOUSE" SYNDROME

There are two species of househunter—the pragmatist and the idealist. Beware of going to extremes at either end of the financial spectrum.

You can be too practical. For instance, assuming that a home in need of repair can be fixed at an overall price savings and find out that the final cost greatly exceeds the estimate...Buying a home in a neighborhood whose value is going downhill because "it's a bargain"...Buying a home with fewer rooms than you really need. You may end up with an unsuitable, uncomfortable home with a lower resale potential.

On the other hand, the idealist should beware of the all-too-frequent "dream house" syndrome. Sure, it's tempting to set out in quest of the absolutely perfect home, but it's better to balance your dreams with your pocketbook. Even if you can define the perfect home (which is doubtful), you probably couldn't afford it. Be prepared to compromise.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices opened lower today, continuing the losses of the previous two sessions as a survey of purchasing managers indicated more inflation problems.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.67 at 842.49 after the first half hour of trading. Losers outnumbered gainers by a narrow margin in New York Stock Exchange trading.

The survey by the National Association of Purchasing Management reported that 85 percent of its members reported paying higher prices in July, up from 79 percent in June and the highest rate in more than five years.

Among active stocks in early trading were International Business Machines, down 1/4 at 68 3/4 and Exxon, down 1/4 at 54 1/4.

On Friday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 1.79 to 846.16, trimming its gain for the week to 6.40 points.

Declines outnumbered advances by a small margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 28.16 million shares against 37.72 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost .02 to 59.33.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .17 at 198.99.

Cheap Home Cool And Warm

DALTON, Minn. (AP) — Paul Hansel is something of a tinkerer, so when the energy crunch came he used some pipe, aluminum, wood and a fan to fashion a dirt-cheap system to keep him cool in summer and warm in winter.

The principle of his contraption is simple: no matter how hot or cold the wind blows above ground, the temperature remains a steady 55-60 degrees below.

Run the air through the ground and into your house, Hansel reasoned, and you'll be cooler in summer and warmer in winter — and save money.

Even in 90-degree heat, when the air makes its way through 500 feet of pipe Hansel laid 8 feet under the surface, it comes up a cool 62 degrees.

"All I know is it's just super comfortable in here," the 47-year-old farm equipment salesman said Sunday from his home on the flatlands of western Minnesota.

Hansel figures his Earth-Air Re-entry System does the work of a large air conditioner. But he's more interested in cold-weather benefits — a projected 25 percent savings in heating costs.

"My thought is that it's nice to be cool in the summertime, but it really doesn't cost you anything to sweat," Hansel said. "But if I can save some money on my heating bills in the winter, that's what I'd really like."

From there, the air goes through a furnace filter and screen to keep out birds and rodents. Then it goes into four pipes, each 6 inches in diameter, that fan out underground for the cooling before leading back to the vents in the house.

As the cooled air becomes warmer again inside the house, it rises and exits through the chimney. In winter, the temperature of the soil underground still will be about 60 degrees, so Hansel can use that to warm outside air no matter how cold it is.

"That's the beauty of it," he said. "When it's 30 below, the air will be the same. It's an earth furnace."

Professional engineers might pick apart his system, Hansel says.

"And then," he adds slyly, "they could go outside and sweat while I stay in and keep cool."

The program will begin with demonstrations on bicycle safety rules and regulations, presented by David Farr and Darwin Powell of the Bethel Police Department.

Johnny Evans and Bobby Sutton of Sutton Service Center in Greenville will demonstrate how to make minor repairs and adjustments on bicycles. Bike activities and games will begin at 10:30 a.m., with prizes awarded to those participants who demonstrate good bike skills and safety regulations.

Young people ages 6-19 are encouraged to join the activities and bring bicycles. For more information, contact the 4-H office, 758-1196.

Bicycle Rodeo Is Planned

The Pitt County 4-H Clubs will sponsor a bicycle rodeo at Bethel Elementary School Thursday, August 16, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

The regular meeting of the Greenville Housing Authority will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Authority's 1103 Broad Street central offices.

Commissioners will consider routine reports concerning finance and occupancy, and status reports on the various projects in development.

The U.S. Census Bureau says that in 1978 about 11 percent of the nation's 76 million households were headed by a woman, with no husband present.

The Project Review Committee of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency will meet Thursday, August 23, 7 p.m., in the Willis Building, First and Reade Streets, Greenville.

Agenda items will include the discussion of the East Carolina School of Medicine Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention and Services grant. The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Association Saved Money

PINEHURST — Electricities of North Carolina, which represents municipal electric systems in opposing rate increases by the private power companies, saved those municipal utilities $23 million in the past fiscal year, the association reported at its 13th annual meeting here.

Electricities executive director Ralph Shaw said that the results marked the second 12-month period in which the voluntary, non-profit association had achieved municipal power cost savings in excess of $20 million. The 1977 savings totaled $26 million, he said.

Donald C. Lambeth, president, reported that in the five-year period beginning July 1, 1974, municipal electric systems saved $80 million through continuing opposition to rate increases by the private companies.

Lambeth added that the five-year savings is more than 30 times the association's costs during the same period.

The featured speaker at the two-day session was William S. Lee, president of Duke Power Co., who urged the municipal officials to speak out in support of nuclear power. Lee contended that nuclear is not the only answer to the energy crisis but he said it is an indispensable part of the answer.

78° IS COOL. Kroger Sav-on

For every degree cooler than 78° your air conditioner uses about 5% more electricity. And in the summer, when the most electricity is used, that can make a big difference.

So please, set your home air conditioner at 78° or higher, or no more than 15° cooler than the temperature outside (whichever is the higher setting.) You can also take these two important energy management steps. First, restrict your weekday use of major appliances during the "peak load" hours of 10 A.M. to 10 P.M. Second, don't overwork your water heater. Use the dishwasher and washing machine only for full loads, and wash clothes in cool water instead of hot.

By following these tips, you'll be keeping your electric bills down, and helping us all make it through the summer without power shortages.

Mays Joins Baseball Elite In Hall

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer
COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — It has been nearly six years since Willie Mays stopped thrilling baseball fans with wondrous displays on the field. Now he's captivating them off the field.

Mays was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame Sunday, along with Hack Wilson and Warren Giles. For the "Say Hey Kid," it was a special occasion, as memorable to him as his spectacular catches, great throws and clutch home runs were to the people who watched him play. Legions of those fans turned out Sunday under a scorching sun to cheer for Mays. Every time his name was mentioned, they yelled "Willie!" When he was introduced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, they rose as one and saluted the newest member of the sport's most elite society.

"I love baseball, it's a great game," said Mays. "Now I know the 22 years I played in those 22 major league seasons, Mays accomplished marvelous things with his bat. A 20-time All Star, he belted more than 40 home runs six times, knocked in at least 100 runs six times and had a lifetime batting average of .302.

For his career, Mays wound up third to Henry Aaron and Babe Ruth in home runs (660); third in total bases (6,066); fourth in at-bats (10,881), runs scored (2,062) and games played (2,992); seventh in hits (3,263) and RBI (1,903); eighth in slugging percentage (.557), and 10th in walks (1,464). Even with all those hitting achievements, Mays may best be remembered for his fielding. He holds the major league record for putouts by an outfielder with 7,095. He made the basket catch a part of his routine, and the fans loved it. He also made the phenomenal catch an every-day part of his repertoire, climbing fences, diving, jumping and, in one case, outrunning a Vic Wertz drive to dead center field in the Polo Grounds in the 1954 World Series. That catch, his back to home plate, the ball falling from directly overhead into Mays' glove, is his most famous.

"It was simple," he said. "When the ball went up, I felt I should catch it. When I made catches that looked great, that's what I was supposed to do."

Willie said he was disappointed the Giants hadn't sent along his uniform for him to donate to the hall, as the Mets had.

"I played more than 18 years with one club," he said, rambling through his days of baseball, beginning at age 10. "You would think you deserve a uniform to present to the Hall of Fame."

Wilson, who set the National League marks for home runs (57) and RBI (190) in 1930, was represented by his son, Robert. Kuhn called Wilson "a perfect character for the Chicago of the 'Roaring Twenties.'" The hard-drinking outfielder, who had a lifetime .307 batting average, died in 1948.

Giles, who like Wilson was elected to the Hall by the veterans' committee, of which he was a member until his death at 82 last February, served as NL president from 1951-69. He was vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds for 15 years and put in half a century as a baseball executive.

"He was a true giver," said his son, Bill, an executive with the Philadelphia Phillies, who accepted the honor. "He said to me just before he died: 'Imagine what a mess the world would be in without sports, and particularly without baseball.'"

Grand Slam Homer Puts Bucs In Lead

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The Pirates carried John Milner off the field after his pinch-hit, ninth-inning grand slam carried the Pirates into first place in the National League's East Division.

The questions are: What was Milner, a left-handed batter, doing up at the plate against Philadelphia left-hander Tug McGraw? And why was he pinch-hitting for Steve Nicosia, a right-hander batter who had gone 4-for-4 including a home run?

"If I told you, they (the Phillies) would know, too," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner after Milner's dramatic blast into the second tier of seats at Three Rivers Stadium carried Pittsburgh to a 12-8 triumph in the opener of a double-header.

And the Phillies, who lost their sixth straight when Pittsburgh took the rain-delayed nightcap 5-2, found themselves eight games off the pace and just one-half game ahead of fifth-place St. Louis.

The Montreal Expos fell out of first place by losing to the New York Mets 4-2 before winning 7-3 in the nightcap of their double-header. Meanwhile, the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, then lost 5-4; the Cincinnati Reds thrashed the San Diego Padres 9-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers ripped the San Francisco Giants 8-1 and the Houston Astros trimmed the Atlanta Braves 3-2.

Mets 4-3, Expos 2-7

Duffy Dyer and Ellis Valentine drove in two runs each and Rusty Staub hit his first home run since returning to the Expos as Montreal salvaged the nightcap and stayed within one-half game and .003 of Pittsburgh.

The Mets won the opener as Jose Cardenal's first homer of the season snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh and Willie Montanez' RBI double added insurance.

Moye Out Of Field

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Greenville's Mike Moye missed by one stroke in making the cut in the Insurance Youth Classic in Ann Arbor Sunday.

Moye had a 79 on Sunday to go with his opening round 83 for a 162 total. The 161 cut line was the highest in the 11-year history of the tournament. Andrew Magee is the leader at the halfway point, carding a one-over-par 145. Moye is expected to remain in Ann Arbor for the remainder of the tournament, which sees the 66 qualifiers join with 23 pros for play. Moye is expected to caddy for one of the pros.

Waltrip And His Car Shake Off Woes, Drive To Talladega Win

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Press Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — When the race started, Darrell Waltrip said, his car was a little sluggish and he was light-headed from the flu, "but fortunately, the car and I came together at the right time and everything went great."

So great, in fact, that Waltrip finished 61 seconds, almost a full lap, ahead of David Pearson to win Sunday's Talladega 500 NASCAR Grand National stockcar race and pocket $37,425.

Waltrip's Oldsmobile averaged 161.229 miles per hour in beating Pearson, who came out of semi-retirement and, also in an Olds, was the only driver in the same lap with Waltrip at the end.

Waltrip had fought the flu since Tuesday, and by Friday was in bed sick, cutting down on his practice time. "I hadn't had much time on the track to sort the car out," he said, "and it was a little off when we started the race."

Sports In Brief

TENNIS
NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (AP) — Harold Solomon overtook Jose Higuera in a dramatic third-set tiebreaker to win the $175,000 clay court tennis championship. Solomon won 5-7, 6-4, 7-6. He won the tiebreaker 7-5.

AUTO RACING
TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, driving an Oldsmobile, averaged 161.229 mph and held off David Pearson to win the $231,000 Talladega 500 stock car race. Waltrip won first prize of $37,425.

Lopez Gains European Title

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — While Nancy Lopez was winning her seventh golf tournament of the year, husband Tim Melton was moving furniture into their new home in Cincinnati.

from the tee in all kinds of weather. Asked why her driving had improved so much since last year she laughed and said: "Being married."

The last day was not an easy one for Lopez. She started the final round seven strokes ahead of Joyce Kazmierski but had her lead cut to two at one point before finally finishing four strokes in front.

Kazmierski was second at 286 and Pat Bradley was third at 289. Three of the long holes carried rather generous par-5, and on the first three days Lopez cracked par easily on those holes. Sunday, after making two birdies on the first three holes and going 17-under for the tournament, she suddenly lost her touch and had five bogeys between the Nos. 5 and 12.

"A good way for both of us to spend Sunday," said the 22-year-old black-haired superstar from New Mexico as she collected a check for $16,500 dollars for winning the European Open women's championship for the second straight year.

Lopez has won seven of the 15 tournaments she has entered this season and finished second in four others. "It will all come to an end sooner or later," she said. "I don't want to make golf my job for the whole of my life. When the right time comes I will just stay at home and have a family. But don't ask me when that will be, I have no idea."

A crowd of 6,000 had come to see her win and it looked for a spell as if the impossible might happen and she might let the title slip away.

But at the 409-yard 16th she made a glorious eagle-3 — a 260-yard drive from the tee, a perfect 7-iron to the green and a 20-foot putt. That settled it.

She outdrove all her rivals

Graham Tops Crenshaw in PGA Playoff

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — David Graham, leading by two, was confident going to the 18th tee of the 61st PGA Championship. Ben Crenshaw, on the other hand, was depressed once again, having finished second in three of his last five tournaments and facing yet another runner-up placing. Graham, who started Sunday's final round four strokes behind third-day leader Rex Caldwell, had fired seven birdies during the first 17 holes to go 10-under par and take a two-stroke lead over Crenshaw, who was waiting by the 18th green.

Graham said afterward that he had never lost a tournament with a two-stroke lead and one hole to play. "I was really in control of what I was doing," said the 33-year-old Australian, who had never won a major tournament. "I was in control of my game, my emotions. I felt very comfortable out there. I knew the situation I was in. I thought I had control of it."

He quickly lost control, hitting what he called his worst shot of the week from the 18th tee. "When I started my backswing, I really woke up to what was happening," said Graham. "I hit a dreadful shot. I had no idea where the ball finished up."

Crenshaw. "I was down," said Graham. "I never experienced anything like that before. Every chance I had to win a tournament with one hole to play, I won. I never double-bogeyed a hole to go into a playoff."

Meanwhile, Crenshaw said, "I really didn't think I was going to get into the playoffs. But then I realized I had a chance to win."

On the first two holes of sudden death, Crenshaw applied the pressure. But Graham, despite bad shots with woods and irons, survived by making putts of 25 and 10 feet to stay in the race for the $60,000 first prize.

Tournament Offered Plenty Of Electricity

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Tension was like electric currents stabbing silently through the air. One could almost feel the nerves of the contestants jumping like snapped guitar strings.

There was this reed-thin Australian named David Graham, who had played 17 holes of almost effortless golf, standing over a 4½-foot putt that could earn him the PGA championship and its attendant riches.

Watching from the gallery packed around the final green was Ben Crenshaw, already stricken with a runner-up complex, realizing that chances were remote that Graham would miss the easy assignment for a double bogey and throw the tournament into a playoff.

"It was like I was coming out of a trance," Graham said later. "I was telling myself, 'My God, what's going on here?'"

Graham spun the putt past the lip of the cup — double bogey — and he must have imagined that he had blown it.

On the two first playoff holes, he had to sink pressure putts of 25 and 10 feet to stay alive after Crenshaw nursed the ball within inches of the cup. Then, like a prisoner freed from chains, the Australian uncorked a magnificent 4-iron shot and then rolled in an eight-foot birdie putt for the victory on the third extra hole.

So golf is a game for a lazy fat man, huh? A leisurely mile-an-hour walk through the countryside with a kid carrying the 40-pound bag?

That's what the severest critics say of pleasant old Scottish game that has endured the centuries. True, there is a lack of physical contact, but no major sport takes a greater toll of a player's nerves.

It's the only ball game that when you hit it, somebody doesn't hit it back, or, as in the case of football and baseball, the ball isn't jostled between competing teams.

In golf, all you have to do is stroke a ball measuring 1.68 inches in diameter into a six-inch cup.

Simple, eh? Ted Williams and Sam Snead, old fishing buddies, have been arguing the point for years.

"It's much tougher," says Williams, the baseball Hall of Famer, "to hit a ball coming at you at 100 mph than to hit a ball standing still."

"Yeah," counters Snead, "but if you slice the ball it's a foul. Me? I have to play it."

Struggling

Woody Peete

Friday, as most may know by now, was Jim Kyle's final day with "The Daily Reflector." He has taken a job with the news department of his hometown paper, "The Fayetteville Observer."

During the past two years, Jim had been a great asset to our sports department. His coverage of the county high school sports programs added a great deal to our coverage.

In addition, Jim was a wit about the office, and was a good friend. He will be missed by us, not only in the sports department, but on the golf course as well. There are not too many people in Greenville that I can beat, as some people know.

Nevertheless, we wish Jim the best of luck in his new position, and Godspeed.

Jim's replacement will be Rick Scoppe, who will join our staff on August 20. Rick comes to us from the Jacksonville "Daily News," where he has served on the news staff for the past three months.

A recent graduate of the University of North Carolina, Rick is a native of Newport. He also served as a correspondent with the Durham papers while a student and wrote sports for "The Daily Tar Heel."

While it has already been suggested that Rick will need a transfusion to rid him of that tainted "Blue" blood, we will do our best to get a tinge of purple into him before long.

In deference to the many Carolina fans out there, however, we'll let him keep a little of that blue stuff. I've managed to keep a little of the Deacon in me, so I guess he can have tar on a part of one of his heels.

We look forward to having Rick join our staff as a sports writer.

He will be coming in at an interesting time.

Already the high school teams of the area are on the practice fields, nearing the completion of their first week of mandatory "conditioning" drills. Most will be putting on pads shortly after midweek, with scrimmages a little over a week away for them.

East Carolina University's players will be reporting in during the latter part of the week, and will be practicing next Monday.

It won't be long. Less than four weeks now, and the air will again be filled with footballs. All of our local high school teams, except for two, will open on August 31, and the Pirates play their first game in September 1.

Bosox Take Batting Practice--In The Game

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The Boston Red Sox took some extra batting practice Sunday. Wasn't it nice of the Milwaukee Brewers to supply the pitchers?

"I haven't had many pitches like that recently," said Fred Lynn, who hit two home runs as the Red Sox recorded 37 hits in a 7-2, 19-5 double-header sweep of the Brewers.

Lary Sorenson was one of seven Milwaukee pitchers battered by the Red Sox, who set an American League single-game, high of 27 hits for the season in the nightcap.

In other AL games, New York edged Baltimore 3-2; Kansas City stopped Detroit 3-2; Chicago tripped Toronto 5-4; Cleveland beat Texas 6-2 in the opener of a double-header before losing the second game 14-3; California outscored Minnesota 11-7 in the opener of their twinbill, then dropped a 7-1 decision in the nightcap, and Oakland defeated Seattle 9-8.

The Red Sox moved within 6½ games of the front-running Orioles in the AL East race.

Yankees 3, Orioles 2
Graig Nettles' two-run homer in the fourth helped New York beat Baltimore as Tommy John won his 15th game. John, 15-6, surrendered consecutive homers in the third to Ken Singleton and Eddie Murray, but otherwise was tough.

Royals 3, Tigers 2
Dennis Leonard and two relievers combined on a six-hitter and Darrell Porter hit a bases-empty homer in the sixth as Kansas City beat Detroit.

White Sox 5, Blue Jays 4
Jorge Orta and Chet Lemon each hit two-run homers, backing the combined nine-hit pitching of Ken Kravec and three relievers and leading Chicago over Toronto.

Kravec pitched six innings, scattering five hits, walking three and striking out two. Randy Scarbery, Guy Hoffman and Ed Farmer pitched the final three innings, with Farmer earning his sixth save.

Indians 6-3, Rangers 2-14
Cliff Johnson hit a three-run homer and Len Barker and Sid Monge teamed up to scatter nine hits as Cleveland beat Texas in the first game of their double-header.

Danny Darwin fired a four-hitter and Richie Zisk drove in four runs with a homer and a double to lead Texas over Cleveland in the second game.

Angels 11-1, Twins 7-7
Dan Ford drove in four runs as California rallied from a five-run deficit to defeat Minnesota in the first game of their twinbill.

Pete Redfern struck out a career-high 10 batters and Mike Marshall earned his 22nd save in Minnesota's second-game victory.

A's 9, Mariners 8
Dave Revering and Tony Armas each hit two homers and knocked in all the Oakland runs as the A's beat Seattle.

Nyad Ends Swim Try

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Diana Nyad, thwarted by a paralyzing Portuguese man-of-war sting in her bid to swim from the Bahamas to Florida, says she'll try the marathon swim again this month.

"I swam 12 hours and 42 minutes and today I'm barely sore," she said Sunday. "Swimming that long wasn't a big deal ... I'd like to try it again in late August."

No one ever has completed the 60-mile swim. But Ms. Nyad said she was performing a "textbook swim" before the man-of-war put a painful halt to her try for the record books.

Doesn't Like The Call

The expression shows on the face of New York Yankees' second baseman Willie Randolph that he doesn't like the call of umpire Don Denkingers safe call as Randolph made a late tag on Doug DeCinces of the Baltimore Orioles during the third inning at Yankee Stadium Sunday. DeCinces hit to left field and Lou Piniella made the throw to second. (AP Laserphoto)

Atlanta Coach Happy With What He Saw

ATLANTA (AP) — New England's rookie Coach Ron Erhardt wanted to take a good look at a number of players, and he was happy with both the quantity and the quality of what he saw.

"We saw lots of people, lots of offense and lots of defense," Erhardt said after the Patriots trounced the Atlanta Falcons 37-14 in their National Football League preseason opener Saturday.

"We got a pretty good look at an awful lot of folks and I was very happy with the way everybody responded," Erhardt said.

"Anytime you score 37 points the first time out, you've got to be pleased," added Erhardt, who assumed his position on April 6 after Chuck Fairbanks defected to the University of Colorado.

As for Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett, he said he saw a bit too much New England offense and not nearly enough Atlanta defense.

"I thought we played very well in some spots," Bennett said, "and just the reverse at other times."

New England got a pair of touchdowns from running back Sam Cunningham, including one on a pass from Matt Cavanaugh, who also passed for another touchdown. The Patriots picked up their other scores on a 1-yard run by Andy Johnson, a 34-yard scamper by Prentice McCray and a 27-year field goal by John Smith.

The Falcons scored on a 2-yard run by rookie William Andrews and on a 22-yard scoring pass from quarterback Mike Moroski to Dennis Pearson.

The loss prompted Bennett, whose 1978 squad surprised everyone by making the playoffs as a wildcard selection, to warn against expecting too much from this year's edition.

"I think the people of Atlanta are ready to go to the Super Bowl," Bennett said, "and I'm ready to go to the Super Bowl, but that doesn't mean our team is ready to go."

Bennett reiterated that he felt all along it would take the Falcons three to five years to make the playoffs. "Last year we got in as a wild card, but I think we did get a little ahead of ourselves," he said. "We were pretty lucky last year."

Bennett was able to laugh at three occasions when the Falcons had 12 men on the field. "I noticed one time when New England punted they had nine on the field," Bennett said. "I'd rather have 12 than nine."

Saturday's Cryptquip — TRUE HAPPINESS WILL STEM FIRST FROM WITHIN OUR HEARTS.
Today's Cryptquip clue: F equals I

Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K1092 ♦Q1052 ♦1062 ♦J5
Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What action do you take?
A.—If you passed, you were probably frightened as a child. If you responded one no trump, you need to bring your game up to date. Bid one heart. It is both cheaper than one no trump and has the merit of allowing partner to speak again at the one-level. He might, for example, have a four-card spade suit which he would not be able to show over one no trump. By bidding the lower four-card major, you assure locating a 4-4 major fit if one exists.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦104 ♦Q105 ♦A93 ♦AJ963
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—Don't make the mistake of bidding two clubs, which would be a Stayman inquiry for the major suits, or jumping to three clubs. The latter shows an unbalanced hand, with possible slam ambitions. That is not the case: simple arithmetic should tell you that game is the limit of the hand. So bid three no trump—the contract that should be easiest to fulfill.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AJ963 ♦Q105 ♦A93 ♦104
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—This time your five-card suit is a major, and if partner has a fit, it might be easier to make ten tricks in the major than nine at no trump—especially if one of the side suits isn't adequately stopped. Jump to three spades. If partner shows support, be content with four spades; if he bids three no trump, accept his decision.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AQ9 ♦AK532 ♦AK64 ♦Q
The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Partner does not have much high-card strength, but he does have plenty of trumps and a distributional hand. That might be all you need for slam. Bid six hearts. There is no scientific way to explore with this type of hand.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQ4 ♦AK2 ♦AQJ5 ♦1064
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
A.—Overall one no trump. True, you have 19 points, but

Tobacco Not Paying Bills

MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) — The sale of cigarettes is not paying the bills the way it once did for the Liggett Group, but one needs only to examine the diversity of its investments to understand why.

One reason could be that fewer dollars are being expended on promotion of cigarettes with the Liggett Group branching out further into the promotion and sale of pet food products and soft drinks.

"Although cigarette sales continued to decline, if it had not been for the charge for consolidation, operating income from cigarettes would have been substantially higher because of lower promotional expenditures," President Raymond J. Mulligan said as Liggett Group issued its financial report for the second quarter of the year.

Mulligan said sales for the three months ending June 30 totaled $276 million as compared with $258 million in the same period last year. Net earnings amounted to $7.3 million, or 83 cents per share of common stock. This compared with $23.8 million, or $2.58 per common share, in the second quarter of 1978.

In the report, which showed second-quarter earnings for 1979 included an after-tax charge of $3.6 million, equal to 43 cents per share, Mulligan described the progress of some of Liggett's other products.

"Sales and operating income from our pet foods product group continued to make substantial gains because of the growth of our new dry dog food products," said Mulligan.

"Sales and operating income from soft drinks, now a major new product group at Liggett, continued to make substantial increases because of the addition of the Atlantic Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. on March 29, 1979, and increases from our Fresno-Pepsi franchise."

South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Even though you have a reasonable five-card suit, your hand is balanced. Therefore, three no trump is a far more descriptive rebid than three spades. Partner's jump in no trump has guaranteed stoppers in the unbid suits, and since you have so much in the black suits, you can expect partner to have most of his strength in the reds.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K10764 ♦QJ10 ♦5 ♦AQ74
The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass 5 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Partner is not interested in aces. If he needed to know about your club ace, he could have used Blackwood or initiated a cue-bidding sequence. The only explanation for partner's leap over game is that he has bad trumps, and wants you to make the final decision. Since your spade holding is much better than he could expect, you must accept the invitation by going on to slam.

Worth $35,000 On Pay Scale

NEW YORK (UPI) — The work done by a housewife with two preschool-age children would bring in $35,000 a year if she were paid prevailing wages for her work, says Evelyn Kaye in a magazine article. The author used the following hourly rates for the salary estimate in Parents magazine: house care, $3, day care, $4, on-call care, $3, driving, $5 and managerial work, $4.

Tobacco Group Disappointed

Members of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee have expressed their "extreme concern and disappointment" over present market prices.

Meeting in Raleigh Friday, the advisory committee, which represents all flue-cured areas of the state, expressed the belief that prices now being paid do not reflect either tobacco quality or the high cost of production.

Committee members said growers have gone to great effort and expense to produce the kind of tobacco the buying companies had said they wanted. Many growers now feel "let down" by prices being paid, they said.

Farm Bureau President John Sledge said growers had earlier expressed optimism that prices would pick up as the season progressed. "Unfortunately, even after better upstake tobacco has reached the market, prices have not responded accordingly," he noted.

Sledge said that growers have a tremendous long-range investment in their operations, especially for mechanization, which is essential if they are to be in a position to meet both domestic and export requirements of the future.

Sledge stated that for the long-range good of the industry, prices should reflect leaf quality as well as the efforts and commitment of growers.

Expenditure Notice Filed

Notice has been filed by Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital of intent to incur a capital expenditure for the acquisition of a mobile gamma scintillation camera to be located within the hospital.

The project is scheduled to begin operation in October. Estimated cost is to be $125,000.

The proposal, as required by law, was submitted to the Certificate of Need Section of the Division of Facility Services, N. C. Dept. of Human Resources. The planning agencies that review it will seek to determine whether the project is needed, if it can be adequately staffed and operated, whether it is economically feasible within prevailing rate structures, and if it proposes specific cost-containment features.

Queen Victoria ascended the throne in 1832.

State Park Day Proclaimed

The third Saturday in June, 1980 has been proclaimed "North Carolina State Park Day" by Governor James B. Hunt Jr.

The Beaufort County Agricultural Extension Service and the Beaufort County Beautification Committee, with the approval of the N. C. State Parks Commission, initiated the idea by having the first publicly endorsed State Park Day at Goose Creek State Park in June.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 14-year-old girl and have put down on paper what my friends (boys, too) think are some good "Do's and Don'ts for Parents." If you think they are worth printing, a lot of teenagers will thank you.

LOYAL FAN

DEAR FAN: Your "Do's and Don'ts for Parents" are well worth the space in my column. Here they are:

Don't ever search your kid's room while he is at school, work, etc.

Don't choose their friends for them.

Don't read their diary or personal letters, etc.

Don't give your child's things to another child without checking with the owner first.

If you're divorced, don't ask your child why they love the other parent, or try to talk him out of loving the other one.

Don't ever tell your kid that if he's not satisfied with the situation at home he can pack his bags and go.

If your child is adopted, don't tell him that, if he doesn't behave, you will send him back.

Don't always make them bring a "tag-along" (younger brother or sister) wherever they go.

Don't embarrass them by putting them down in public or in front of friends.

Don't keep telling them how hard things were when you were a kid.

Don't call them names. That really hurts a kid.

Don't yell at a smaller kid, or hit him because he dropped, spilled or broke something. Nine times out of 10 it was an accident and he's already sorry for doing it.

If you are having an argument, let your kid talk, too. DO tell them you are sorry, or that you make a mistake once in a while. (Nobody's perfect. Not even parents.)

DO hug your kid and tell him in words that you love him.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FERTILE MYRTLE IN PITTSFIELD, MASS.": You are very wise to take no chances. According to the Guinness Book of Records, the oldest woman to give birth was Ruth A. Kistler of Glendale, Calif. She had a baby girl in October 1956 when she was 57 years and 129 days old.

But records can be broken. So, to all sexually active menopausal mamas, the word from here is, "Tenga cuidado," in Spanish, "Sei vorsichtig" in German, "Ostotozhno" in Russian and "Be careful" in English!

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Rejection Not Final Supporters Suggest

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Supporters of Gov. Jim Hunt's suggestion that Virginia Electric and Power Co. get out of North Carolina say they don't take the company's public rejection as final.

And Hunt aides are confident that the governor, with his strong rebuke of the unpopular Virginia-based utility, has benefited politically — particularly in northeastern North Carolina but indirectly in other parts of the state too.

Following on the heels of a state Utilities Commission finding that Veeco overcharged for service to its customers in 22 counties of northeastern North Carolina, Hunt said last week that Carolina Power & Light Co. ought to buy out Veeco's state operations. He revealed that he had privately urged CP&L to do so.

John A. Williams, Hunt's administrative assistant and the one who made the private suggestion to CP&L President Sherwood Smith, says the strongly worded rejection of the proposal by Veeco Chairman T. Justin Moore Jr. was expected.

"I don't think the door is closed. I don't think you could expect any other remark from Veeco," Williams said.

Williams and other administration sources said both sides are understandably reluctant to express a public interest in the exchange to protect their bargaining positions.

"Nobody's going to come out and say, 'Oh, yes, I want to buy it,'" Williams said. "Hell, you don't even trade cars that way."

While disavowing political motive, Williams and other Hunt aides acknowledge the political advantages are apparent. "It's got to help him politically," said Williams. "What's a greater thing to do? We think this is really good for all three — the consumer, Veeco and CP&L. And Jim Hunt, too."

Veeco's North Carolina spokesman Nick Parham said the utility considered a takeover by CP&L "ridiculous" and challenged the contention of Hunt that the economic development of that region of the state has suffered because of Veeco's rates.

Veeco has been unpopular in the northeastern counties for years because of its higher rates for residential customers — as much as 33 percent higher than CP&L and 47 percent higher than Duke, according to the Utilities Commission. As a result, Hunt's position is viewed as highly popular there.

"We've been several decades at least with rates that are not comparable with the rest of the state," said Joe Parker, publisher of the Ahsokie News-Herald who led a drive that netted 45,000 signatures on a petition asking for relief from Veeco. "It's been a big issue here for a long time."

Opposition to Veeco has been unusual among consumer protests, as its main organizers have been local chambers of commerce — groups usually protective of established businesses, such as utilities. With his proposal, Hunt has made his support secure among those groups, Parker says — and probably mollified any lingering opposition from the northeast's constant complaint about the neglect of its highways.

"I think the people are going to say, 100 percent, we're behind Gov. Hunt," said state Sen. Melvin Daniels, a Democrat from Elizabeth City.

But Hunt, an unannounced candidate for re-election next year, could benefit outside the region too, his aides believe. Hunt considers the reorganization of the Utilities Commission — one of his 1976 campaign promises — and establishment of the consumer-advocate commission staff, to be one of his administration's chief accomplishments.

"The record they have compiled is the best answer I know to those people who criticized our proposal to reform the commission and create the public staff during the 1976 campaign and the 1977 General Assembly," Hunt boasted last week.

Hunt was careful to praise the management of CP&L and Duke while criticizing Veeco's. Since he is certain to use his utilities record in next year's campaign, Veeco will be a handy example of his initiative against a utility — without angering established North Carolina utility officials.

Said one Hunt loyalist privately, "We wouldn't mind running against Veeco next year."

Horne Named A Director

PINEHURST — Charles Horne Jr., director of Greenville Utilities, was elected to a two-year term on the board of directors of ElectriCities of North Carolina here Friday.

Horne was one of five elected by the general membership to new two-year memberships on the board, joining Drexel Mayor Kenneth Harris, Louisburg Mayor V. A. Peoples, Freemont Councilman Devone Jones, and Statesville Utilities Director Clyde Bagwell.

Rocky Mount Mayor Fred Turnage was elected president of the association of municipal electric systems during the two-day annual meeting.

Other officers elected were: Gastonia Councilman John Bridgeman, first vice president; Elizabeth City Mayor John H. Bell Jr., second vice president; and Wilson City Manager T. Bruce Boyette, secretary-treasurer.

Some 66 of North Carolina's 72 municipalities that own and operate their own electric distribution systems are members of ElectriCities.

Low Price Has Double Effect

"A continuation of low market prices for hogs will have the double effect of putting many producers out of business and raising pork prices to the consumer," declared John Sledge, president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation.

The farm leader also emphasized that at the present time, pork is one of today's best food buys and is in abundant supply.

"With our double digit inflation, we believe that consumers have an ideal opportunity to enjoy one of our state's most plentiful food products at relatively low prices," said Sledge. "It should provide an ideal time to stock up the freezer and enjoy pork at summer cook-outs."

ON TOP OF IT ALL

We're getting up in the world.

Higher and higher. With our new Tall Tower.

Soon we'll be at 2,000 feet, the highest point in eastern Carolina.

And starting in October our Tall Tower will be sending out a television signal farther than ever before. Over 100 miles in every direction from its site in Grifton, stretching from Raleigh to the ocean, and from Virginia to Wilmington.

Reaching better than 20 per cent more homes and people than at present.

But more important, reaching them with a brighter, more colorful, distortion-free picture.

That's because of two notable factors: one, the spectacular height of our Tall Tower, and two, a revolutionary new feature of the antenna at the top.

Something called circular polarization.

It has a capability to send out a television signal in a spiral pattern rather than a straight line,

Which means it virtually bends picture waves around buildings and also penetrates homes more easily.

TV sets with "rabbit ears" will pick us up clearer than ever before.

And people in the Outer Banks will for the first time get a consistently strong picture from this area.

To you, our giant new transmitting tower means greatly improved television reception and viewing.

To us, it's a symbol and reminder of our commitment not only to constantly upgrade our service to you, but also to stay on top of your needs for news and entertainment.

All in all, we're going to make things look better for you.
