Govm't Is Watching Food Industry 'Put On Notice'

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief inflation adviser says he hopes the food industry will "look again" to make sure it is giving consumers a fair shake on food prices now that it knows the government is looking over its shoulders.

Alfred Kahn made the statement after Carter summoned 16 food industry representatives, including top executives of major supermarket chains, to the White House Monday to demonstrate his concern over rising retail prices.

Carter told the group he was "particularly disturbed" that supermarket prices have been going up when farm prices have been coming down. "We are very concerned about this trend," he emphasized during the meeting, which lasted more than an hour.

But a supermarket spokesman, Robert O. Aders of the Food Marketing Institute, said Carter was told he had been given faulty data on food prices. Aders also said the food representatives stressed that they were not gouging the consumer.

"I'm sure we convinced the president there has been no profiteering at all," Aders, who is president of the institute, told reporters after the meeting.

He didn't deny that retail prices might still be increasing while farm prices are declining, but said this reflects the normal food industry time lag and that the trends even out over time.

Aders also said any real relief from rising food prices depends on controlling inflation, as the cost of food goes up along with everything else. "It all depends on the general inflation rate," he said.

Aders, the group's spokesman, said several supermarket executives told Carter they were not increasing their overall profit margin at consumers' expense. But he said he didn't know whether this was true of the entire industry.

About 30 retail food firms have been named by the administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability as probably not complying with the government's voluntary price guidelines. However, none of these firms was represented at the meeting.

Supermarket chains that were represented included the Kroger Co., Pathmark, Albertson's, Safeway, Jewel, A&P, Winn-Dixie and Super Valu. Representatives of the meat industry also attended.

Kahn told reporters Carter voiced skepticism over the assertion that the government's food-price figures were wrong. The data, Carter said, showed that while farm prices declined at an annual rate of 17 percent in the last three months, retail prices increased at an 8 percent annual rate.

"We've been particularly disturbed recently because the price of the food to the farmers has been going down substantially and the price of food to the consumers at the retail outlets has still been going up quite rapidly," Carter said.

Uncounted Flood Toll

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP)

— Unofficial press estimates of the death toll in the Machu River dam disaster ranged from 10,000 to 25,000 today as more monsoon rains hampered relief efforts and the search for bodies.

The Hindustan Times said its estimate of 25,000 victims was based on the populations of Morvi and the nearby villages of Lilapur and Adepur, all hard hit when the swollen river flooded over one dam and broke through another one below it late Saturday in the northwestern state of Gujarat.

The United News of India said the toll could go as high as 10,000, and state officials said at least 1,000 drowned in and around Morvi.

The worst previous dam disaster on record occurred in 1962 at Belluno, Italy, where 2,300 died.

Flights bringing food and rescue workers were canceled Monday because of the weather. Buses were dispatched to Morvi with relief supplies and they were to evacuate survivors. But their progress was slowed by washed out roads.

Morvi is near the center of Gujarat state, about 300 miles northwest of Bombay. A city of 60,000 people, it was once the capital of a maharajah's realm and was a prosperous community on the banks of the Machu.

Saturday night, after more than 20 inches of rain in 24 hours, the flooded river burst an 80-foot-high earth dam four miles above the city. A wall of water 18 feet high crashed over the sleeping town, burying much of it in mud.

"I rushed into my house only to find that the water-wall was following me," an engineering student, Harjivanbhai Patel, told the United News of India. "I hastily collected my family and climbed to the roof. The water in no time had filled up to the ceiling level."

The flood waters ran off quickly, leaving thousands of shattered buildings and mud up to the second floor of some buildings. Not a single utility pole was left standing, and communications and electric power were knocked out.

Fighting Rages In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian militiamen and Syrian troops fought through the night in downtown Beirut after a day of battling between the Christians and the Lebanese army.

There were no casualty reports for the night fighting, but three killed and eight wounded were reported in the early clashes.

Civilian fighting in parts of the divided city was curtailed during most of Monday and Tuesday morning. The banking area was deserted, and militiamen were piling sandbags in nearby positions.

Fighting extended to the Beirut port quarter, where hundreds of workers fled. The commander of Syrian forces, Col. Sami al-Khatib, called on President Elias Sarkis and Premier Salim el Hoss for help in containing the situation.

Fighting broke out between the Lebanese army and militiamen of the Christian Phalange Party Monday when Phalangists tried to take over an army checkpoint at an intersection on the dividing line between the city's Moslem and Christian sectors.

Curious Allured By Gold

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The gold strike at Lighthouse Court, a housing complex owned by Kent and Jim Pepper, has stalled, but that hasn't stopped the curious.

Last Wednesday, while construction crews were cleaning an old well shaft on the property when they came across some gold nuggets.

That started a miniature gold rush that has unearthed more than 2 pounds of nuggets.

But on Monday, the strike appeared to have been played out — for the moment at least.

"They found nothing," said Hank Sierke, who helps in the administration of the housing complex. "I hope this thing is over soon. This place has been overrun with people."

The brothers bought the land in 1977, and have begun renovating houses on it. Since the nuggets were found on Wednesday, workers have dug a 18-foot deep, 4-by-4 hole in the backyard of one of the houses. Using a piece of screening and a kitchen colander, they have been sifting the sand much like 19th-century prospectors.

On Sunday, eight more nuggets appeared in their prospecting tools.

Big Demand For Crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — American consumers probably will not benefit from recent bumper grain crops because of a high foreign demand for the major grains, the Agriculture Department says.

Demand for the crops has been so great that the nation's stockpile of grain could be reduced by nearly 20 percent by next summer, the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Monday.

The likely result will be higher farm prices and no relief in many grocery costs for consumers, the department said.

But farmers, faced with greater grain supplies and relatively high incomes, also are expected to produce more pork and poultry for 1980 and beef for 1982, it said.

Farm prices account for less than 40 percent of the cost of food to consumers, government economists say.

The latest, revised analysis comes after crop forecasters predicted Friday that farmers were growing record corn, soybean, rice and peanut crops and the second-largest wheat crop ever.

Oil Patches Near Shore

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP)

— Thick, gooey patches of oil have begun washing ashore on sections of Padre Island, and scientist say more muck from the world's largest oil spill may hit today.

But authorities said Monday the oil does not appear to threaten sections of the beach that draw millions of dollars in tourists' money, and that it will be relatively easy to clean up.

Last week, balls of tar began washing up on the beaches, but they were quickly sucked up by Coast Guard vacuum cleaners.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration computers predicted Monday night that coastal winds would increase this afternoon, driving more offshore patches onto the beaches just north of Baffin Bay, about 30 miles south of Corpus Christi.

Coast Guard cleanup crews were sent to the area.

"It will be pretty easy to clean up," said Roger Meacham of the Environmental Protection Agency. "The sand there is hard and the oil won't sink in as easily. The impact at this point is expected to be negligible."

He added that "extremely light concentrations of oil particles have been detected by NOAA scientists in Laguna Madre," an environmentally sensitive area separated from the Gulf by Padre Island. But Meacham said the levels of oil found so far would have little effect.

Meacham also said scattered oil patches have washed aground on the Mexican shore south of Brownsville.

Role For Leslie In United Way

G. Henry (Harry) Leslie, plant manager of the Greenville Manufacturing Facility of Burroughs Wellcome Company, has accepted a second year as Industry Division

Chairman of the Pitt County United Way campaign for 1979-80.

East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Thomas Brewer, 1979 United Way Campaign Chairman, expressed his appreciation for Leslie's decision to head the industry division campaign this year.

"Harry Leslie did an outstanding job last year as our industry division chairman," said Brewer. "We are proud that he is serving in the same capacity this year."

Leslie, a native of Guelph, Ontario, Canada, received his degree from the University of Toronto with honors in 1941. He was the recipient of the Frank R. Lorrman medal for outstanding work in organic chemistry while at the University.

Leslie began his career with Burroughs Wellcome in

Foes Of Rizzo Criticize Suit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two of the city's mayoral candidates have joined outgoing Mayor Frank Rizzo in criticizing an unprecedented federal police-brutality suit — but each has a different reason.

The Justice Department filed suit Monday alleging that Rizzo and 19 other top city officials condoned widespread police brutality which was "arbitrary, unreasonable or shocking to the conscience," especially in contacts with blacks and Hispanics.

The lawsuit could result in severe cuts in federal aid to the city.

Rizzo, who leaves office in January, told a news conference Monday that the suit was politically motivated — attempting to appeal to minority voters who once supported President Carter.

Rizzo, a policeman for 28 years and police commissioner for four years before becoming mayor, described the Carter administration as "a group of people which are desperate and trying to regroup."

Republican mayoral candidate David W. Marston, a former U.S. Attorney, said the suit lumped "the vast majority of law-abiding police officers ... with those who are guilty, and I believe that is wrong."

And William J. Green, the Democratic candidate for mayor, said he would have preferred that the action would have been delayed to give the next mayor a chance to institute changes in the department.

Ayden Board Petitioned For Power System Vote

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — Glenn Bowen came before the Ayden Town Board of Commissioners Monday to present a petition calling for the town to hold a referendum on the question on whether the town should continue to operate its own electrical system or sell to a private concern.

According to Bowen, some 500 citizens signed the petition, believing that Ayden citizens are being overcharged for their electrical services because of the town's "poor management."

Mayor Ross Persinger accepted the petition, and instructed Town Clerk Ralph Ford to verify the signatures with the town's voter registration books.

The board adopted an ordinance to extend the corporate limits of Ayden, so as to annex the area known as "The Pines." The ordinance has set the annexation to become effective as of Dec. 31, 1979.

A resolution was also adopted to set a public hearing for Monday, September 10, on the proposed annexation of North Hills Estate. Public hearings were also set for the same meeting to amend a zoning ordinance to allow outdoor advertising with a permitted use permit in a M-1 (Industrial) Zone and also to have the area between East Second and East Third Streets rezoned from B-2 Commercial to RA-8 Residential.

A resolution was also adopted to allow the sale of electric bond and water bond anticipation notes in the amount of $462,000. Town Manager Don Russell, Mayor Persinger and Commissioner Dr. Elliott Dixon were to attend a meeting in New York City Tuesday to obtain ratings on the bonds from Moody's and Standard and Poor's agencies.

An ordinance was adopted to set "no parking" zones on West Third Street from N. C. 11 to Verna Avenue in order to allow the Department of Transportation to install left turn lanes in front of Harris Shopping Center. Town Manager Russell explained that the DOT required the "no parking" limit to be set before drawing the designated lanes.

The personnel, salary plan and position classification plan was adopted, with a section indicating that the word "his" referred to in the ordinance would include both male and female employees.

The board approved the reappointment of Dave Bosse to the Ayden Planning Board, with Billy Bonar appointed to serve in Lathan Dennis' place. The men will serve year terms.

The board accepted the audit report of the Ayden Housing Authority, with Mayor Persinger praising the good work of Director Jerry Cox. A resolution was also adopted to be submitted with the discretionary operating subsidy fund application from the Ayden Housing Authority.

In other business, the board voted to keep the election filing fees at $10 for potential candidates and readvertise for bids on town-owned vehicles, a 1973 Ford and a 1975 Plymouth, since only one unsealed bid was presented.

Utilities Director Mike Finney reported that a feasibility study on the possibility of selling the Ayden Electrical System would cost the town from $8-10,000, according to two engineering firms. Finney explained that it would cost only $2,500-3,000 to do a study based on figures from a study conducted by L. E. Wooten Company. However, if an engineering company were to use those figures, the study would reflect that appraisals were made on figures and would not be a fresh study.

The Plan

THE THOROUGHFARE PLAN... being proposed and worked on by the N. C. Department of Transportation for the Town of Farmville is shown. The plan would, over the next 20 years, call for a wide loop around the southern end of town to hook up with the proposed U. S. 264 Bypass that will run north of town; extend Fields Street to join the southern loop east of town; extend Perry Street to join the southern loop both east and southwest; connect Fields Street with 258 in town; extend Pitt Street to the old U. S. 264 east of Marlboro; and extend Mandarin Drive to join 264 west of Marlboro.

Farmville Urged Limit Peak-Time Electricity

FARMVILLE — The summer heat is proving costly to the Farmville Utilities Department and will prove costly to customers if efforts are not maintained to avoid peak-time use of electricity, Utilities Director J. A. Wooten said.

The new high occurred between 5 and 6:30 p. m. in the afternoon of Thursday, Aug. 2. Carolina Power and Light, which supplies Farmville's electricity, announced that its system hit a new power use peak the previous day for its total operations. The previous high since last summer was 9,175 KW only eight days earlier, Wooten said.

The power demand increase in those eight days upped the town's power costs for the year by nearly $50,000, he pointed out. The Utilities Department has been conducting a persistent information campaign to ask customers to avoid peak hours (from 1 to 7 p. m.) usage as much as possible.

Police Check 2 Accidents

An estimated $2,550 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 1:36 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Monroe Streets involving vehicles driven by Charles Moore of Route 1, Fountain and Randy L. Bright of Route 1, Robersonville.

Damage from the mishap was set at $600 to the Moore car and $1,200 to the Bright vehicle.

Cars driven by Joseph Ray Harper of Rocky Mount and Dorris Lobell Weigand of Greenville, collided about 1:58 p.m. at the intersection of Charles Street and Greenville Boulevard, resulting in an estimated $250 damage to the Harper car and $500 damage to the Weigand vehicle.

Havana Is Gripped By 'Summit Fever'

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Summit fever is gripping Havana as Fidel Castro's government prepares to play host to what may turn into the largest assembly of chiefs of state and government heads ever held.

American bloc. It includes such pro-Soviet governments as Cuba and Ethiopia and such pro-Western ones as Nigeria and Singapore.

With less than a month to go before the start of the Sixth Non-Aligned Summit Conference on Sept. 3, Havana is plastered with posters hailing the event and slashing at the movement's major targets: imperialism, apartheid, Zionism, racial discrimination and foreign military bases.

Cuban officials hope for a record-breaking turnout of 55 to 60 chiefs of state or government heads. The largest number of summit-rank delegates to a previous non-aligned summit was 53, in Algiers, Algeria, six years ago.

Short Of Needs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Summer recruiting results, usually the most productive of the year, add up to bad news for Army officials struggling to maintain an all-volunteer force.

A new accounting shows that the Army reached only 80.6 percent of its goal in July, with 18,018 enlistments. Things improved a little in early August, but Army recruiting still ran nearly 12 percent below expectations.

These figures came on top of the Pentagon's release Monday of a report that disclosed the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force all fell short in the April-June quarter. Together, they enrolled only 85 percent of their composite goal of nearly 100,000 volunteers.

It was the third consecutive three-month period in which all the services reported a recruiting deficit. This never has happened since the draft ended in January 1973.

Only two weeks ago, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said, "I believe that the all-volunteer force is continuing to work adequately."

Farmville Mart Tobacco Quality Said Improved

FARMVILLE — Quality of tobacco offered on yesterday's Farmville Tobacco Market improved considerably, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

The inclusion of more leaf grades and fewer primings and nondescript grades was responsible for a sharp average gain. Grade for grade, prices changed very little. Marketing of better quality tobacco is responsible for the gradual daily increase in average, Williams said.

Volume of nondescript grades this season has been unusually small. Stabilization receipts are down.

The market sold 794,063 pounds for $1,175,229 for an average of $148 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 7,177,902 pounds for $9,629,709, for an average of $134.16 per hundred.

District Judge Appointed

Gov. Jim Hunt yesterday appointed James E. Ragan III of Bayboro as District Court Judge for the Third Judicial District, which includes the counties of Pitt, Craven, Pamlico and Carteret.

Ragan was named to fill a seat created by the 1979 General Assembly, and will serve a term ending November 30, 1980.

The 38-year-old attorney is president of the Third Judicial District Bar Association and a member of the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers and the N.C. State Bar.

Ragan will join Chief District Judge Charles H. Whedbee and E. Burt Aycock Jr. of Greenville, Herbert O. Phillips III of Morehead City, Norris C. Reed Jr. of New Bern and Robert D. Wheeler of Grifton, on the District Court bench in the four counties.

Arrested Near 170 Klansmen

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Nearly 170 Ku Klux Klansmen arrested here Sunday for parading without a permit face hearings in Municipal Court on Sept. 5.

The 167 adults charged under the city ordinance are from 64 cities in seven states. If they fail to appear for the hearing they would forfeit the $500 bond each had to post before being released from jail on Sunday.

Ten juveniles also were charged Sunday for parading without a permit, but their cases will be disposed of in Juvenile Court.

The arrests came at the end of the Klan's "White Power" march from Selma to Montgomery. The three-day, 50-mile march retraced the route taken in 1965 during the historic voting rights march led by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The Klan marchers, however, didn't make it as far as the 1965 marchers. Some 300 law enforcement officers met the marching Klansmen at the Montgomery city limits Sunday and arrested them.

Prior to Sunday's confrontation, Montgomery police arrested 23 adult Klansmen and one juvenile on weapons violations near the Klan campsite outside the Montgomery city limits.

Some 125 firearms were confiscated in those arrests as well as numerous knives, clubs and gas canisters.

Those charged with weapons violations will be tried in Circuit Court although no date has been set for their appearance. They are free under $1,000 bonds each.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

PLAID IS A PLUS... in this versatile needlepoint tote.

Seldom is a truly new stitch or technique developed in hand needlecrafts. Usually a "new" stitch is simply a rediscovery of an ancient one. That's not the case with "Chottie's Plaid," developed just in the last five years by clever Chottie Alderson of Running Springs, Calif.

While it is true that plaids have been worked on needlepoint canvas in the past, it was a laborious technique with constant changing of colors. With Chottie's ingenious method, though, you work with only one color on any given row at one time.

Recently introduced quick-point plastic canvas and acrylic yarns are used to make this versatile tote bag. With the plastic canvas, the finishing techniques are ever so easy, no blocking is needed and you do not have to add extra stiffening to give the bag its shape.

The instruction leaflet gives you fully illustrated directions for working the plaid stitch and making and assembling the bag. It also includes a monogram chart.

To obtain the directions for making the plaid tote, send your request for Leaflet No. 7922 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-7922 by sending check or money order for $12.00 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains six-mesh plastic canvas, acrylic yarns, needle and the full instruction leaflet. Shipping charges are included in the price. Lining fabric is not included. Please specify your choice of brown/rust plaid, blue/green plaid or black/red plaid.

When I first obtained a diagram of Chottie Alderson's plaid stitch four years ago, I was so intrigued that I sat down and called her long distance to ask how she happened to develop it. "By mistake," she laughed, "isn't that the way all stitches happen?"

It seems that she had something different in mind, but as she experimented with her yarn and canvas, the beginnings of the plaid developed she followed through.

I'll warn you that this stitch is a "sleep-rober," though! Once you have worked the horizontal lines and start on the vertical ones, you just have to keep working "just one more row" as you see the plaid begin to develop.

The possibilities for using this stitch are endless. In fact, it is so adaptable and fascinating that when I first learned it, my impatient husband visualized a house full of needlepoint plaid. The only thing that saved him was the fact that I don't have time for all the projects I want to make!

It makes a stunning border and is striking as the background for a simple preworked design. Just as an example, one friend used a pastel plaid as a background for a hobby horse design and mounted it as the seat in a child's colonial rocker.

Another friend used large mesh plastic canvas and acrylic yarns for fringed plaid place mats. You can start and end each row by leaving loose ends of the yarn hanging free and you automatically have a fringe in the colors of the plaid.

Pillows, belts, cushions, rugs, eyeglass cases — you name it and it can probably be done in plaid needlepoint.

While the tote bag featured with today's column is worked on plastic canvas, the plaid stitch, of course, works just as well on traditional needlepoint canvas. It can be done with any weight or type of yarn, as long as the yarn is suitable for the size canvas being used.

The plaid shown on the tote bag is worked in four colors. Once you learn the simple stitch, however, you can use an endless number of color variations. I have worked a piece with as many as 14 colors and as few as two. The two-color version creates a stunning hounds-tooth pattern. When you learn this stitch, I'm sure you'll be as happy as I that Chottie made a mistake!

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The government is just full of catchy phrases.

The latest one you're going to hear a lot about was offered by an administration official as a solution to the energy crisis. He said Americans must learn to "maximize personal discomfort."

How are we going to "maximize personal discomfort," you ask? By lowering temperature settings, forming car pools and riding buses.

How do you like that? For years, I've been "maximizing my personal discomfort" via a car pool. I just didn't know what you called it.

Ironically, the first car pool had nothing to do with conservation or with the shortage of gas. Shared rides were invented by Thelma Flagstop, an Indiana housewife, who in 1933 volunteered to pick up four youngsters to take them to a birthday party. She made arrangements for another mother to pick them up.

Despite the fact that two of the children lived within two doors of the party, the idea caught on like wildfire. Children didn't want to walk anymore. They liked the idea of climbing into a car and going bye-bye, playing with the windows, and jumping up and down on the seats.

The rest is history. In 1978, there were six billion, 973,235 car pools in the United States — all manned by mothers. You may remember the blizzard of '79 in Chicago where there were only two cars on the road: a snow plow and a mother carrying five little girls to baton lessons.

Car-pooling may soon become a new way of life in this country. It would be selfish of me not to share my expertise with those soon to embark on the car pool experience.

1. The chili rule. No chili will be eaten off the dashboard before 10:30 a.m.

2. Riders must know where they live. If not, they must have directions pinned to their sweater.

3. Occupancy by more than eight in the back seat is not permitted.

4. If a passenger announces, "I don't feel so good," take him seriously. I always familiarize my passengers with the nausea drill on the first day so they may go directly to the nearest exits with precision.

Follow these rules and you will not only minimize joy, but your level of frustration will polarize. I wouldn't have said it quite that way... but the government would.

Monitoring System Program Kitchen Shower Given Members Held Friday

A program on the Pitt County Court Monitoring Program was given at the meeting of the Greenville BPW Club held Thursday evening.

Given by the Legislation Committee, Mary Daugherty, chairman, told of the program. She said a team of trained volunteers will monitor the courts of Pitt County for a specified period of time, to recognize and document possible inadequacies, recommend remedies and promote improved understanding of the system of justice by the general public.

Jodi Thompson shared highlights of the BPW National Convention held in Boston.

Silent prayer was held in memory of Bert Tyson, twice president of the local club and a former state president of BPW. The meeting was conducted by President Estella Dunbar.

Miss Roxanne Brohawn, bride-elect of Aug. 18, was entertained with a kitchen shower Friday night at the home of Sybil Morris.

Hostesses included Mrs. Sybil Morris, Mrs. Lib Morris and Mrs. Dot Morris, aunts of the bride. Other hostesses were Rudy Morris and Kelly Morris, cousins of the bride.

The mother of the honoree and mother of the bridegroom-elect were presented corsages of white daisies and baby's breath.

The refreshment table was decorated with a beige lace cloth with a centerpiece of white and yellow daisies.

The gift table featured a centerpiece of red roses, baby's breath and lighted tapers.

PINEBARK STEW
My homestyle version of the famous Carolina outdoor dish.

2 strips bacon, diced (1/2 inch)
Medium onion, diced (1/4 inch)
1 cup boiling water
1 cup diced (1/2-inch) pared potato
1-pound can tomatoes, undrained and partly crushed
1-3rd cup ketchup
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon curry powder
1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 pound skinless fish fillets such as sole (thawed if frozen)

In a medium saucepan cook bacon, stirring often, until crisp. Add onion and cook until wilted; add water and potato; cover and let bubble gently until potato is tender — about 20 minutes. Add remaining ingredients except fish; cover and simmer, stirring several times, for about 20 minutes. Cut fish into 2-inch lengths and add; cover and simmer just until fish is cooked through — about 5 minutes. Serve in wide soup plates with soup spoons. Makes 3 main-dish servings.

Fashion
Unbeatable Foot Comfort by Dexter®

These ladies' shoes are similar in construction to moccasins handsewn by native American Indians long before Columbus landed. Only a heel and sole have been added. As many as 60 hand stitches go into the forepart of each shoe which is then hand-lasted, giving the shoe a flexibility not possible in machine-sewn shoes. And when you wear them, you'll find they mold to your foot — like the original Indian moccasins — giving an individuality of comfort your feet never felt before. 'Eagle' burnt orange or russet 3-eye tie, 'Squaw' burnt russet kiltie. $30 each.

Bikeway Routing Questionable

The Recreation and Parks Commission has approved a new bikeway concept. The plan involves using signs already on hand from a previous bike route venture to mark a recreation "loop" route on existing streets. The plan would provide no construction and would serve only to alert motorists and bikers that the routes were used by cycling. The idea is a good one, but some of the routing is questionable. The route would make use of Elm, Fifth and

First Streets, for instance. All of these are heavily traveled by vehicular traffic, and at rush hours all the signs in the world would not reduce the hazard for bicyclists, who are sorely equipped for a collision with an auto.

We have to wonder if selected residential streets wouldn't better serve the needs of bicycles. There are many such streets which are not heavily travelled by autos and consequently they might be far safer for the person on a bicycle.

Downtown Fire Always Is Hazardous

A major downtown fire is always dangerous to life and property. When such a fire develops in a theater there is even more potential for danger. Fortunately the fire in the Pitt Theater Sunday night resulted in no injuries, apparently due to the good handling by the situation by the management and the fact that patrons exited properly.

The fire was also contained in the theater building, with some outstanding work by local and area fire departments.

Speedy Trials Problems

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Only a few scattered incidents have so far come to public attention, but the signals are strong that all is not working smoothly with North Carolina's Speedy Trials Law.

During this interim period, the state must meet a 120-day limit between the beginning of the judicial process and trial. Beginning in October, 1979, that time span must be cut to 90 days.

Failing to meet the deadline, the law provides one penalty—and that penalty is levied against the state: the case may be dismissed. Several cases have been dropped. Charlotte Judge Frank Snapp says of two trials he cancelled: "I have to dismiss ... if (the law) is supposed to mean anything ... the prosecutor had made no effort to place these items on a court calendar."

Catawba County Superior Court Judge Lacy H. Thornburg says the burden is on the state. "Personally, I feel the act is unwise."

Beginning

Is this only the beginning? A Duke University student in the Institute of Policy Sciences and Public Affairs has just completed an evaluation of the Speedy Trial Law in North Carolina, and comes to some disturbing conclusions.

"As a result of the mounting pressure of caseload and time restrictions, the court may find itself forced either to dismiss charges in substantial numbers of cases or to impose the elements of judicial discretion embodied within the speedy trial law such as dismissal without prejudice and continuances based on the (ends of justice) clause," says Andrew S. Lasine.

"Massive dismissals would undoubtedly create a public outcry, and justifiably so, that could not be tolerated. Such action could not in any conceivable fashion serve the ends of justice. It could only further undermine the public's confidence in the criminal justice system," Lasine concluded.

On the other hand, expanded judicial discretion to continue cases or extend the law's time limit merely condones and continues the "undesirable facets of the status quo," Lasine feels.

BILL NOBLITT

The student took an overview of court caseloads to determine that there is little problem in district courts which already essentially comply with even the 90-day limit.

Delay in Superior Court, Lasine found, "exists in significant proportions and threatens the ability of the criminal justice system to embody and express through its judgments community standards of proper social conduct."

Purposes

Speedy trials, Lasine reminds in his report, serve several purposes — chief among those: to clear the good name of a person charged with a crime; to satisfy the public's demand for punishment of a criminal; to bring before the court fresh evidence and witnesses in pursuit of justice; and to deter the would-be criminal.

Delay of trial, on the other hand, serves the interests of not only the defendant, but of the prosecuting attorney as well, Lasine feels.

The defendant remains on the street without suffering punishment, wears down witnesses by delay, and frustrates the court till charges are either reduced or dropped.

The district attorney, through delay, secures guilty pleas and voids the time and manpower needed for fullscale trial.

Thus, Lasine concludes, delay serves both the state and the defense. But delay can now mean dismissal of charges, Lasine warns, and of the Speedy Trial Law he says: "its potential for misuse by criminal defendants has yet to be realized."

Rhodesia: Easy Does It

WASHINGTON — Since early spring, Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher had been giving more signals than a Baltimore coach on the third-base line, so it was not much of a surprise when she laid the hit-and-run on Zimbabwe-Rhodesia in last week's Commonwealth Conference. Suddenly the game has lived up.

During her campaign as leader of the Conservatives, Mrs. Thatcher was all for lifting sanctions against Rhodesia right away. Once in office she began to backpedal. She quieted down. She grew less positive by the day. By the time she got to Lusaka on August 4, views that once were black and white had turned to a dulcet gray. The lady would cut a deal. It is a deal worth thinking about.

Let us consider. The government that now sits uneasily in Salisbury, headed by Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, is the product of two developments: the constitution of last fall, and the elections of last spring. Under the constitution, the white minority for 10 years is assured a blocking vote of 28 seats in the 100-member parliament; during this transitional period, whites also may control the army, police, courts and civil service. Under the April elections, 65 percent of the eligible voters — a phenomonal turnout for a largely illiterate electorate in a time of civil war — freely chose the Muzorewa government. Guerrilla forces boycotted the election and indeed sought to disrupt the election by terrorism.

This is Mrs. Thatcher's deal: She would call an all-parties conference, specifically including the terrorist chieftains, Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo. At the conference a new constitution would be drafted that would reduce the influence and power of the white minority. New elections would be scheduled, both to ratify the proposed constitutional changes and to choose a new parliament. Meanwhile, the Muzorewa government would continue in de facto power. After these steps had been taken, Britain would treat the U.N. sanctions against Rhodesia as no longer operative. Zimbabwe's African neighbors would recognize the outcome. And everybody would live happily ever after.

That is as may be. There is room to turn around here. Such shrewd operatives as Tanzania's Julius Nyerere pointedly emphasized at the Lusaka conference that they were not asking political genocide for the whites. When Tanzania became independent in 1960, 21 of the 71 seats in its new parliament were reserved for Asians and whites — 30 percent of the seats for 1 percent of the population. When Kenya became independent the same year, 30 percent of the seats were set aside for 4 percent of the population. When Zambia became independent in 1962, 15 seats went to 3.5 million blacks, 15 seats to 84,000 whites.

Against those precedents, the present arrangement in Salisbury seems none too bad — 28 percent of the seats for 4 percent of the population — but given sufficient prospective benefits, that percentage ought to be negotiable. A more rapid phasing-in of black control of military and civilian offices could be

THE INSIDE REPORT

It's The Same Old Jordan

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — For all the talk about Hamilton Jordan mending his reclusive ways now that he has become President Carter's chief of staff, a recent call from one of the most influential Democratic figures in Congress went unanswered.

The call was from Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma, a key member of the House Ways and Means Committee and leader of an informal, bipartisan coalition of House moderates and conservatives. Jones had served as an aide to President Lyndon B. Johnson over a decade ago. So, reading about Jordan's new duties, Jones placed a call to him; his intention was to urge Jordan to draw on Jones' former experience and current activity in any way that might be helpful.

A Jordan secretary took the call, and the rest was silence. Naturally enough, Jones felt he had done his duty and did not place the call again. Although Jordan previously had excused his failure to return congressional telephone calls on grounds that was not among his duties, his snub of Jones gives credence to the common explanation in the past: indifference and incompetence.

Gov. Flim-Flam

Political managers of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. have passed this word to worried economic conservatives about their man's sharp leftward move: don't worry about it; it's strictly political camouflage that "costs nothing."

Behind the scenes, important advocates of "supply-side" economics geared to massive tax reduction have come to look at Democrat Brown as their best hope for president now that Republican Rep. Jack Kemp clearly is not running. But they have been unnerved by Brown's tightening alliance with the new left in the persons of Tom Hayden and Jane Fonda. Consequently, one East Coast tax-cut crusader paid a recent visit to California to warn that Brown was in danger of alienating his conservative support.

The answer from Brown's operatives was that the Hayden-Fonda connection was strictly eyewash to appease the left while the governor actually moved right. They stressed there was "no cost" on key economic questions in naming leftwingers to relatively innocuous positions.

Carter On Cox

Unreported in President Carter's refusal to put famed Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston is the fact that Carter reached his decision only after long inner turmoil. Carter's decision to bar the 67-year-old Cox on grounds of age almost went the other way.

That tends to undercut the political case made against Carter in the Cox affair. Critics of Carter say the president blocked Cox's nomination out of desire to enjoy a little political revenge against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Cox's sponsor for the appeals court.

The Justice Department declined to propose Cox for the judicial post because it always follows the recommendations of the American Bar Assn. committee on federal judgeships, which automatically ruled out Cox on age. Only a positive decision by Carter to override the bar association committee could have salvaged Cox, and Carter finally decided against it.

Running For VEEP

Conservative Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina recently sent a political agent to Norfolk, Va., as a prelude to a possible run for the Republican vice presidential nomination.

The agent was checking out one of the nation's largest religious radio networks (featuring the Rev. Pat Robertson, son of the late Sen. A. Willis Robertson of Virginia). Helms intends to broadcast over the Norfolk-based network to get exposure for the 1980 bid.

Helms also has ordered an historical study made for him of the office of the vice president, outlining its meager powers and responsibilities from the days of the Founding Fathers.

Running for a vice presidential nomination is the most difficult political operation in this country. Despite (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Plan For Pets

(The Raleigh Times)

Estate planning, in this death-aware era, is no longer something to dread and put off. But there are contingencies to provide for that hadn't even occurred to some of us.

For the last word in this sort of prudence, we commend to you the Wake SPCA Newsletter's advice to members who live alone with their pets — a sort of "How To Avoid Probate" for pet-lovers.

When a single owner dies, they note, pets may get short shrift. A grieving dog, after all, can't go stay with relatives or have a son or daughter come in to stay. A pet, in fact, can't even feed itself.

So the SPCA has devised a legally binding letter form for the pet-owner to fill out and have notarized, empowering it to enter the home and take the pets to its Garner shelter.

There, the Society will do its best to find each bereaved animal a new home. Failing that, the SPCA will see that it follows its master or mistress out of this world in a painless fashion. Where the attachment has been long and affectionate and the animal is old, that may not be the worst fate in the world.

The SPCA letter plan is open only to members, since there is expense involved for the Society. But the idea is generally applicable.

If you're elderly and single, it would be thoughtful of you to call the SPCA to take care of your animal if you should die and to authorize an SPCA donation from your estate.

Don't just put it in your will. As the SPCA warns, "by the time your will is probated, the animals will be long gone."

Living Standards Threatened

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Viewed as a piece of machinery, the United States once hummed while other nations sputtered. Into the factory went raw materials, and out came finished goods greatly enhanced in value.

The United States, it was said, had put it all together: the raw materials; the ability to raise capital; hard, smart workers, and innovative management. It was "productive." It was efficient.

There was an attitude too, that with luck and perseverance a person had the chance to raise his living standard. While it didn't always work out that way, it happened enough to create the generalization.

By getting it all together, Americans achieved the highest material standard of living in history. It was the reward for being productive, for turning out enormous amounts of goods at the lowest price.

Since more goods could be produced at no greater cost, or at a decreasing cost, the prices of those goods could be lowered and still leave a profit for manufacturer, middleman and retailer.

Now the Joint Economic Committee of Congress warns Americans that, unless they put it all back together again, their living standards may fall in the 1980s, a consequence of a decline in productivity growth.

The statistics give warning: In the 15 years to 1965, productivity grew at an annual rate of 2.6 percent. From 1965 to 1973 the increase was at a 2 percent rate. And from 1973 to 1978, only 1 percent a year.

It didn't stop there. Last year the rate of increase fell to about 0.4 percent, and in the first half of this year it actually declined by 3.3 percent. It now costs more, not less, to turn out goods and services.

What happened to make "it" come apart? Many reasons. The major disagreement is how to weight the separate reasons, and how to deal with them through legislation and leadership. But they are well known.

—Capital investment has been lagging.

—Inflation is cited as both cause and effect.

—Decline in money spent on research and development.

—The United States now produces more services than goods, and productivity in-

Peace Remote In Erin

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Northern Ireland marked the 10th anniversary today of the British Army's intervention in the province's Protestant-Catholic warfare with new threats of violence from the guerrilla armies and no hopes of peace.

The Ulster Defense Association, biggest of the province's Protestant para-military organizations, warned it will take up its guns again if British troops do not eliminate the Roman Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army.

The outlawed IRA's Provisional wing, fighting to unite Ulster (Northern Ireland) with the neighboring Irish Republic, declared Sunday to the cheers of 10,000 Catholic marchers in Belfast: "We'll fight to the death ... to end the 800 years of British oppression."

The province's one million Protestants, who outnumber the Catholics 2 to 1, are just as determined to remain British because in a united Ireland the Catholics would outnumber them more than 3 to 1.

The sectarian hostility is rooted in centuries of political and religious rivalry and bigotry that was intensified when the partition of Ireland in 1922 left nationalist ambitions for a unified Ireland unfulfilled and at the same time put a sizable Catholic population in Northern Ireland under Protestant domination. The present crisis began shaping up in the mid-1960s and exploded in 1969.

Nearly 2,000 men, women and children have been killed in Ulster and more than 21,200 have been wounded since Aug. 14, 1969, when British reinforcements arrived in Belfast after hard street fighting in Londonderry. Another 150 persons have been slain in the Irish Republic and mainland Britain in spillover terrorism.

WHY BEAUTY?
Many people do not appreciate the place that beauty occupies in life, and do not realize how truly this beauty reveals the love of God.

There is probably no reason why the natural world should be the beautiful place it is, except that God wants to make us happy by our contemplation of it. This beauty has also been the inspiration for those gifted individuals who can create beauty.

For example, in architecture God has revealed through men — particularly through the Greeks — a sense of proportion which gives beauty to buildings, monuments, memorials. Art and music are also reflections of this divine quality we call beauty.

The poet John Keats summed it up when he said, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." There is nothing in the created world which is uglier save as man has made it so. God looked upon His creation and said, "It is very good."

THREE REPORTED INJURED — Members of the Winterville Rescue Squad give emergency care to three persons injured in an accident near McGowan's Crossroads last night. According to Trooper D. R. Taylor, a car driven by Harold Roger Buck of 108 Foxberry Circle, Greenville, was slowing to prepare for a left turn when a car driven by Randy Leon Joyner of Rt. 2, Greenville pulled out on the left side of the Buck vehicle in preparation for passing. Taylor said the Buck vehicle turned left into the path of the Joyner car. Buck, as well as two passengers in the Joyner vehicle, were reported injured and transported to Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital. The injured passengers were identified as Graydon Jackson of Rt. 2, Winterville and Leon Joyner, father of the Joyner vehicle driver, of Rt. 2, Greenville. bargained. What benefits are in prospect? Peace, after years of bloody war. An end to the sanctions that have drained the economy of one of Africa's most prosperous lands. Recognition within the community of nations. A not-intolerable way of life for the whites who remain, following the example of Kenya. Against that rosy prospect, bleak realities intervene. The white minority, led by former Prime Minister Ian Smith, went the last mile in accepting the present constitution; it is far from certain that the whites could be pulled even half a mile more. More to the point, it is unlikely that the terrorist leaders, Mugabe and Nkomo, would agree to any peaceful solution. Both guerrillas have scorned elections. Mugabe has issued an assassinations list headed by the name of the "traitor" Muzorewa.

The covert role of the Soviet Union, supplier of arms, has to be taken into account. Mugabe and Nkomo both envision Marxist dictatorships in the communist pattern of neighboring Mozambique. Mugabe's idea is for the existing Rhodesian army to surrender unconditionally to him. Nkomo has less bluster but he has many reservations.

Mrs. Thatcher has called a razzle-dazzle play. Good for her! But after listening to 12 years of Rhodesian "solutions," a decent skepticism ought to be reserved.

towns. More than 90,000 buildings have been destroyed or damaged. Some 72,000 people have emigrated to flee "the Troubles." Many on both sides fear that the death and destruction of the past decade has been just a "warm up" for all-out civil war.

"The more the terrorism continues ... the more so-called moderate elements will be sucked in to take up positions alongside the hardliners on both sides," warned James Molyneux, leader of the Protestant Unionist Party.

"The situation has not substantially improved," said Maj. Gen. James Glover, commander of the 13,500 British troops in the province. "Although in some ways the level of violence may have gone down numerically, there's little doubt that the effectiveness of the terrorist attacks has increased."

Britain has pinned its hopes on some kind of political solution based on power-sharing. But Gerry Fitt, who heads the Catholic-based Social Democratic and Labor Party, laments that any hope of getting the Protestant majority to share political power with the minority is "dead."

Charge Duo In 6 Deaths

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two men have been accused of murder in the deaths of six persons — five of them children — who were forced into deep water from a boat loaded with Haitian refugees being smuggled into the United States, authorities say. "The captain had a shotgun and ordered everyone overboard," Marie Ange Toussaint, 27, one of 11 survivors, said Monday. "He took my purse which had $1,000 and pushed us over the side" about a quarter-mile from shore.

James K. Knowles, 18, of Tarpon Bay, the Bahamas, and Jeffrey Robert Hastings, 29, of Hypoluxo, Fla., each was charged with six counts of first-degree murder. The men are being held in lieu of bond — $90,000 for Knowles and $60,000 for Hastings. South Palm Beach police officer Kurt Halbin said he shined his car's spotlight on the boat at 5:39 a.m. "I heard a lot of screaming," Halbin said. "I turned my spotlight on and it hit right on them and someone started kicking people off."

Retired Air Force Master Sgt. Gary Moore is now back on Uncle Sam's payroll — like Turner himself — as a "double-dipper," getting CIA pay and a military pension. He is clearly qualified for his new job, but so was the woman he displaced.

When Turner decided to make room for old pal Moore, he told the woman he could not guarantee her another job in the CIA but gave her authority to hunt for one on her own. She managed to line one up, but her friends in the agency are bitter about her treatment.

SALT'S EMK Angle

Some Republican politicians are shading their opposition to the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) because they think defeat of the treaty would be a killing political blow to Jimmy Carter, making Sen. Edward Kennedy the assured Democratic presidential nominee next year.

These Republicans hope President Carter will agree to a major boost in defense spending to make a pro-treaty vote possible. If there were no Kennedy factor, they would probably vote against the treaty even with higher defense spending.

The assumption that Kennedy would be so much harder for the Republicans to beat next year than Carter is not universally shared. The Republicans who do hold it, however, are convinced that keeping Carter just healthy enough to get him the nomination would guarantee putting a Republican in the White House in January 1981.

Jimmy Green Confirms He'll Seek Re-Election

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has put in writing what he's been telling supporters lately — that he plans to run for re-election next year and will not run for governor.

Green, in a letter addressed to members of the Jimmy Green Cabinet, his campaign committee, confirmed that he would seek re-election. Supporters of Green have said for several weeks that Green had decided not to challenge Gov. Jim Hunt in 1980, and Green himself has said he was leaning toward running for re-election.

In the letter, Green cited the expense of a race for governor as the chief reason. Gov. Jim Hunt is an unannounced candidate for re-election.

"To wage a successful campaign for governor would probably cost several million dollars and I of course do not possess that amount of personal resources nor would I attempt to burden our good friends and supporters by even suggesting that they try to raise such an astronomical amount of money," Green said.

Green said it was the consensus of cabinet members that he should run for re-election and added, "In my political judgment this is a correct decision."

Legion Officers At Workshop

RALEIGH — Pitt County American Legion Post Number 39 commander Marshall Helms, vice-commander James Langley and adjutant Ernest Avery attended a leadership workshop at Department Headquarters in Raleigh, Saturday to kick off the 1979-1980 membership campaign.

More than 152 Legionnaires attended the seven-hour training session.

Department membership chairman Leon Whitehurst told those attending the session that, "Membership is the key. The American Legion exists for the benefit of the veteran, his widow, and his orphan. But without membership, you don't have the programs."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell in fairly active trading today giving up a portion of their gains in recent days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which rose nearly 17 points in the past two sessions, fell 3.67 to 871.59 by noon today.

Overall losing issues outnumbered gainers by a tiny fraction, in a tally of all trades on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts attributed today's decline mostly to profit-taking sales following gains in the last five out of six sessions.

Some also suggested that traders may be wary about rising interest rates as the Federal Reserve's policy-making committee holds its monthly meeting today. The committee's decisions are not announced but a tightening of credit, in an effort to slow inflation and support the dollar, has been widely forecast.

Trading volume remained active at 18.43 million shares by midday. That was down from heavy trading of 20.06 million in the previous session.

MGIC Investment, after a delayed opening, fell 4 to 32. The company said earlier that mergers talks with an unnamed financial service company had ended without agreement.

Among casino stocks, Bally fell 1 to 38 1/2 and Caesars World lost 3/4 to 24 1/2. Del Webb rose 1/4 to 16 1/2 and Playboy gained 1/4 to 17 1/2.

Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., down 1/4 at 9 1/2, was the most active issue at midday. A 525,000-share block traded at 9 1/2.

The NYSE composite index fell .18 to 61.00. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .17 to 203.37.

VEPCO Appeals Refund Order

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Virginia Electric and Power Co. has appealed an order by the North Carolina Utilities Commission requiring the utility to refund $1.6 million to North Carolina customers.

The order also requires Vepco to readjust its fuel-adjustment rate for North Carolina.

In a two-page statement released Monday, Vepco said it was appealing because the commission's order was "in excess of the authority of the Commission and is unsupported by competent, material and substantial evidence."

The utility also said the commission itself approved the rates in effect since June 28 and they cannot be changed unless Vepco is given "a chance to be heard in a proper proceeding."

Pregnant or nursing mothers may call 756-4197 for more information.

Big Payment In Smuggling

SWAN QUARTER, N.C. (AP) — Five men convicted of possessing and distributing 14 tons of marijuana agreed to make payments totaling $575,000 in fines and property and received suspended terms in Hyde County Superior Court Monday.

The sentences and payments to the state, the county sheriff's office and the county school system were part of a plea bargain approved by Hyde Superior Court Judge James R. Strickland of Jacksonville.

The defendants agreed to pay $5,000 fines each and give the state all equipment and vehicles and the 19-acre property where the marijuana was stored. In return, the state agreed to drop some of the charges.

The highest costs were levied against Nunzio James Lombardo, 55, a 25-year civilian employee of the Buffalo, N.Y. Police Department, and his 30-year-old son, Dennis.

Both pleaded guilty to actual distribution and received five-year suspended sentences. They also agreed to pay $145,000 to the Hyde County school system.

The other three defendants pleaded guilty to possession with intent to distribute and also received five-year suspended sentences.

Patrick M. Trapper, of Bladell, N.Y., agreed to pay $70,000, of which $20,000 will go to the county sheriff's office; $30,000 to the State Bureau of Investigation and the rest to the school system.

Clark William Oldenbrook, 21, and Vincent Serge Lorusso, 27, both of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., agreed to pay $62,500 each to the school system.

The five were arrested on Jan. 14 in a wooded area near Scranton. Authorities seized marijuana worth an estimated $20 million and $145,000 in cash.

College Title Lack Quorum, Postpone Meet For Thirteen

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Thirteen of North Carolina's 37 technical institutes have added the word "college" to their names, and others may soon follow.

Trustees of 11 schools have acted under a new law passed by the General Assembly this year, which allows the schools to change their names from technical institutes to technical colleges.

Two additional technical institutes have become community colleges. Pitt Community College in Greenville was transformed into a community college by a special act of the Legislature this year. Beaufort Community College in Washington was authorized by the Advisory Commission on June 15 to offer college transfer programs and assume community college status.

The law allowing name changes was passed after technical institute officials said the designation of technical colleges would enhance the image of the school, make it easier for students to transfer credits and enable the schools to get more federal grants.

Moose To Hold 'Family Day'

Greenville Moose Lodge No. 885 will celebrate its annual "Family Day," Wednesday, August 15, from 12 noon to 7 p. m. at the Moose Lodge.

The pool will be open from 12 noon to 7 p. m., with games such as the egg toss, three-legged race, and sack races beginning at 4 p. m. Hot dogs and soft drinks will be served at 6 p. m. The events are open only to Moose members and their families.

The regular August meeting of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission was postponed last night for lack of a quorum.

Officials hoped to reschedule the meeting for later this week.

Only two members of the commission, Chairman Billy Laughinghouse, and member Roscoe Norfleet were present last night.

Laughinghouse said it was the first time in his more than a dozen years as a member of the commission that a meeting has been called off for lack of a quorum.

Telethon Raises Over $34,000

NEW BERN — According to Zoot Saunders and Richard Taylor, general chairmen of the Second Annual Cystic Fibrosis Telethon, a total of $34,089 was raised in cash and pledges during the August 10-11 telethon on WCTI-TV.

The telethon was sponsored by the New Bern Jaycees, Jaycettes and WCTI-TV.

"Because of the very low expenses involved, the contributors to the telethon could be confident that nearly all the money raised would go directly into the different cystic fibrosis programs," said Saunders.

"This was possible because WCTI-TV donated all the air time and the time of all the technical personnel (with) the only cost for telephones, postage and printing."

Lou Brock Joins 3,000-Hit Club

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — At a time when Lou Brock's attention had begun to fade, a fastball from Dennis Lamp under the chin served to awaken the aging superstar.

The message Lamp delivered to the 40-year-old St. Louis Cardinals outfielder spurred him to his 3,000th career hit in the fourth inning against the Chicago Cubs Monday night.

One curveball later, Brock blasted a rocket off the fingertips of the tall right-hander and scurried to first base as the ball rolled into foul territory toward third and pandemonium swept Busch Stadium.

Earlier, needing two hits, Brock stirred a throng of 44,457 to a near frenzy of anticipation by blooming a single off Lamp to left field in the first inning.

A rising crescendo of the familiar chant "Lou, Lou, Lou" filled the air as Brock opened the Cards' fourth by looking at a called strike and falling behind 0-2, foul-tipping a second pitch.

Cautiously, Lamp wasted a pitch to the outside of the plate before selecting his next delivery. Brock accepted the knock-down, arose slowly and connected squarely with a drive which caused Lamp to leave the game with severe bruises.

"I had to go after him," Lamp said following the contest which Brock left at the start of the fifth, following a series of standing ovations and a 16-minute ceremony at first base.

"I think he'd rather have me go after him tough than have me lay one in there," Lamp said. "It was a curve ball. Maybe not where I wanted it, but a good pitch. His 3,000th? I'm not ashamed to have given it up."

Brock's historic hit established him as the second St. Louis player and only the 14th in major league history to reach the lofty milestone. And, by fate, it came against the club that traded him away in 1964.

"I waited 19 years for this. It couldn't have come at a much better time, inasmuch as it was against the team that I started with," he said.

"I think the only thing that really distracted me was the fastball under the chin. It sort of jolted me back to reality. It was close. After that, it made me realize that I wasn't concentrating as I'd have to."

Brock's 3,000th hit climaxed an uphill climb to a target of 100 for a season he announced early would be his last.

"Any time you can orchestrate your own exodus, I think you owe it to yourself," Brock said. "Thankfully, that's the way it's happened."

Brock said Al Kaline, who reached the 3,000 plateau in 1974, planted the seed of ambition which would later bear fruition.

"He said, 'You've got a chance,'" Brock recalled. "He was right. The last couple of years have been tough. I always wanted to go out in a blaze of glory. Right now, it looks like I'm going to take advantage of the opportunity."

Pete Rose was the most recent addition to the 3,000 club, joining the ranks last year. Before that, there were Kaline and the late Roberto Clemente, who reached it in 1972 in his final game.

Pirates At Practice

East Carolina's Pirates run through a dummy offensive drill during practice yesterday. It was the first practice session for the Pirates, as Pat Dye begins his sixth season with the Bucs. Light drills continue through Wednesday, and the Pirates put on pads for the first time on Thursday. They open the season September 1 against Western Carolina.

Dye Satisfied As Pirates Open Drills For Fall Football Season

East Carolina University's Pirates got the jump on everyone else in the state yesterday as the Bucs opened fall football practice.

Close to 150 candidates, including scholarship and walkons turned out for the opening drills Monday morning, when three-day conditioning practice got underway. Drills were held again just before noon and in the late afternoon, and the same schedule will continue today and Wednesday.

Thursday, the Pirates will don pads for the first time and switch to morning and afternoon drills.

"We want to get our entire offense, defense and kicking game installed during the first three days of practice when we're on the field without pads," Dye said.

Pair Take Putt Win

Danny Woods and Bobby Ippock teamed up to win the Greenville City Best Ball Championship by knocking 48 strokes off par for a 72-hole score of 96 last night at the Putt Putt Golf Course.

Woods and Ippock were tied at 48 with Junior Knox and Buddy Luper after the second round before shooting a 23 and a 25 over the last two rounds to win by six strokes. Knox and Luper finished second at 102.

Third place went to Johnny Carrow and Carl White who shot 103.

Monday emphasized kickoffs, kickoff returns, field goals and conversions. While things didn't go letter perfect, Dye seemed satisfied with the first day's work.

What can be more dramatic in a baseball game than a two-out home run in the top of the ninth?

One in the bottom of the ninth.

Both Kansas City and Milwaukee provided those late theatrics Monday night, with the Brewers getting the last laugh on pinch-hitter Ben Oglivie's homer.

"Once he (Kansas City pitcher Dan Quisenberry) got behind, I knew if I got a good cut I'd have a good chance to hit it out," Oglivie said after giving the Brewers a 5-4 victory with his shot over the right-field fence at Milwaukee's County Stadium.

Coincidentally, Oglivie's dramatic homer came not long after Amos Otis provided the same kind of late lighting for the Royals in the top of the inning.

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago defeated Baltimore 7-0; Boston edged Minnesota 6-5; New York defeated Texas 3-2; Detroit trimmed California 5-3; Cleveland blanked Seattle 6-0 and Toronto beat Oakland 4-2.

Tough To Be Leader In Hartford Open

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The one place you don't want to be as the final round of the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open begins is in the lead.

That's the assessment of two veteran golfers who, oddly enough, are in second place, one stroke behind the leaders.

"This is the hardest course on the tour to lead," said Jerry McGee, who is at 11-under-par 202 after three rounds at the Wethersfield Country Club.

The problem, according to McGee and J.C. Snead, is the length of the par 71 course — 6,534 yards — which is the shortest on the PGA tour.

"If your putter isn't hot, you're in trouble. You're going to get overhauled," said McGee, who won the Kemper Open two months ago.

Agreeing with McGee Monday after three rounds of the $300,000 tourney was Snead, who shared second place with him.

"Anybody can shoot a 62 or 63 and blow everybody out," said Snead, who had led the rain-delayed tournament for nearly three days.

"You just better have the lead coming into the last hole and hold it," said the 37-year-old Snead.

Even the leaders, George Cadle and Jack Renner, were unimpressed by their front-running position going into today's final 18 holes. They both shot 66s Monday for 12-under-par 201.

"Right now, all I want to do is go out early, hit some good shots and see what happens," said the 23-year-old Renner, whose best finish was third place at the Tournament of Champions. "If I'm leading on the last hole, I'll start to think about it (winning)."

Cadle, who's still looking for his first tour victory, was philosophical about leading a tournament going into the final day. "There are a lot of guys bunched in there, so it's anybody's ball game."

Cadle was the first round leader, shooting a tournament record 62. But he soared to a 73 in the second round, which was delayed 25 hours by a violent storm.

Yet on Monday, Cadle played "a real solid round. I hit every green and had only 31 putts, which is good for me."

Renner's putting moved him into contention. He sank four of 20 feet or more in Monday's round, including one on the 18th hole to tie Cadle.

But he maintained he isn't playing well tee-to-green. "I've probably made a few more putts than the rest of the guys and that's why I'm where I'm at," he said.

Tied in fifth spot at 10-under-par after 54 holes were Jim Dent and Joe Inman. One stroke behind them at 204 were Peter Osterhuis, John Fought and Mike Brannan.

Monday's round was marked by 21 over-par rounds, with the lowest, 65, coming from Dent, and the highest, 76, from Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller.

Brock singled in the first inning off Cubs right-hander Dennis Lamp for his 2,999th career hit, and his milestone hit came in the fourth on a 2-2 pitch from Lamp.

The Pirates completed their four-game series at Philadelphia Monday night, winning 9-1 and taking three of the crucial games. The loss left the Phils, the defending division champions, eight games back. The Montreal Expos, who also lost Monday, are 2½ back.

"The situation was the same last year," said Tekulve, who pitched the last two innings of the series-ender. "Remember about this time last year, we played two big series with the Phillies, and they beat us good. Houston, the West Division leader, meanwhile, was helping Pittsburgh open up the East with a 4-1 victory over the Expos behind the pitching prowess of big J.R. Richard.

The hit struck Lamp on the right hand, bounded back toward the third base line, and Brock was on easily. Lamp left the game with a severely bruised hand.

It was Garry Templeton's sacrifice fly in the ninth, however, that gave the Cards their victory. An RBI double by Larry Bittner and a sacrifice fly by Mike Vail had tied it 2-2 in the Cubs seventh.

Brock's first single came after Templeton had singled and sent the fleet leadoff hitter to third. Templeton then scored on a grounder by Keith Hernandez.

Richard collected his fifth consecutive victory with a five-hitter, striking out seven. At one point, Richard, 12-11, retired 19 straight Montreal batters.

Jeff Leonard scored three runs and drove in a fourth with two singles and a double for Houston, which now leads Cincinnati by 4½ games in the NL West.

Terry Puhl singled home one run and Art Howe's double scored another in the fourth, and Houston added two more runs in the fifth on RBI hits by

Connie Hawkins Is New York Legend

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
He is, quite frankly, a legend, pure and simple.

In the teeming playgrounds of New York City, where basketball is treated as something of a religion, Connie Hawkins remains the high priest of the sport.

fringes of organized basketball. Then came the American Basketball League and the Pittsburgh Renos, a pretty long jump shot away from the NBA, which had barred him for life.

Blackballed is a harsh term but that's exactly what had happened to Connie Hawkins.

There are two things you can do in that situation — accept it or fight it. Eventually, Hawkins decided to fight.

They still talk about him in hushed tones and wonder just how good he might have been. In the summer leagues in Harlem where players outdo one another with acrobatic dunk shots and moves that border on magic, they still remember the Hawk and how basketball squandered his talent.

Connie Hawkins was 27 years old when he got to the National Basketball Association in 1969 — a rather advanced age for a rookie. A decade passed from the time he was the best high school basketball player in New York until he was allowed in the NBA. The years in between were spent in a limbo created by the rulers of the game who decided that Connie Hawkins shouldn't be allowed in to play their sport.

Meet Hawkins today and you are impressed by what an articulate man he is. But in 1960, he was a semi-literate teenager, caught in the web of the college basketball fixing scandal, implicated by innuendo and painted with the broad brush that kept him out of the game he was so good at.

He had been plucked out of the University of Iowa by the Manhattan district attorney, brought home to answer questions about some men who tinkered with point spreads.

"I knew the people they were asking about," he said. "But that's all. We had talked basketball. I talked basketball with a lot of people."

He was accused of being an intermediary, of introducing players to gamblers. "It was a lie," he said.

Hawkins was victimized because he couldn't defend himself. He was not exactly sophisticated in those days. "Sophisticated?" he laughed. "Hell no, I wasn't sophisticated. I was 17 and I was damned scared."

The investigators questioned him for two weeks. His story was checked and rechecked and finally he was permitted to return to Iowa. When he got there, Iowa wasn't interested anymore. He had been implicated. The fact that he was cleared meant nothing. Iowa couldn't take a chance, and neither could anybody else.

antitrust suit. The law in America, however, sometimes moves with painful deliberation and Hawkins began to believe that the suit would stretch beyond his productive basketball years. "There were times," he said, "when I thought it would never be resolved."

But in 1969 an out-of-court settlement was reached. Hawkins walked away with a hefty cash award and the right to play, at last, with the big boys in the NBA.

"The money didn't matter," he said. "It was nice, sure, but I was so glad to have a chance to play."

Hawkins had an abbreviated seven-year career, playing in Phoenix, Los Angeles and Atlanta. He averaged 16.5 points per game and played in four All-Star games. It was a taste of what might have been.

Today, Hawkins is retired, living in Pittsburgh. There is no bitterness in him over what went before. "I try to accept things for what they are," he said. "When I was younger, I didn't have the wisdom of maturity."

Last weekend, the NBA Players Association launched a "Give Something Back," program of clinics and exhibitions designed to thank fans for their support of the game.

Hawkins was at the top of the guest list.

It was an ironic reversal for the man who had to sue his way into the league.

the irony of it was that Connie Hawkins was clean. He had been cleared of any involvement. But the implication was there and it was enough to freeze him out of the game.

For four years, Hawkins played with the Harlem Globetrotters, barnstorming with them, playing on the

Robert Conrad Proud Of His Centennial Role

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It didn't figure to be one of life's fun moments — meeting with Robert Conrad one hour after he's learned that the Television Academy has passed him over in its Emmy nominations.

He figured to score for his role in "Centennial," and probably should have. Not only did he not get nominated, "Centennial" itself didn't get nominated for anything but best make-up or something like that. Mr. Macho will be grumpy. He'll want to knock some batteries around. Maybe he'll be so mad he won't show up.

No, there he is, tanned and tough looking. Well, maybe he'll just cuss a lot, and snarl.

He does much snarling and cussing, but not about the Emmy disappointments. He's mad because he thinks Meadowlark Lemon tried to cheat him in one of those TV athletic contests between show business people.

He tells of his profane reaction to the bad call, and how the cameras kept rolling, and how his man was finally credited with the victory. Confrontation occupies his thinking.

He tells of his meatiest role, the part of Pasquinel in "Centennial," and how "I took that role from a couple of well-known actors, I TOOK that role."

This reminds him of coaching the Montclair Junior High School football team to a perfect 9-0 record last season. "We had 17 boys and beat a team with 800 boys. We had to do it twice. We whipped their butt," he says.

After doing "Centennial," and then "The Duke," both opportunities to portray characters that aren't one-dimensional supermen, how does he feel about doing "A Man Called Sloane" for NBC this fall? Isn't that a throwback to his days as James West of the "Wild, Wild West"? Isn't he taking a step backward?

This reminds him of a confrontation he had with a magazine critic who denigrated his French Canadian accent in "Centennial," and of calling the critic on the phone and talking about "realigning" his face.

I wonder about this tough-guy image, why Conrad works so hard at nourishing it, but my curiosity isn't strong enough to accept his open invitation to step into the ring with him at the local boxing barn.

But I ask, "The thing about understanding manhood is when you can be honest with yourself about what you really are," he says. "I know there's an exterior about me that's very physical, but I also know there's a very sensitive part in me."

That sensitive part emerges, he says, when he gets the chance to play a divorced husband in an upcoming ABC movie, "Breaking Up is Hard To Do," which deals with the agonies on the male side of divorce.

Yes. About the Emmys... "I only have a heartfelt feel-

Estrada To Miss None

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Erik Estrada, critically injured in an accident during filming of NBC's "CHIPS" television series, will appear in every episode of the program this fall, said executive producer Cy Chermak.

"Erik will be in every episode we make," Chermak said Monday. "We wouldn't make any without him, but we will film them when he's ready to work."

Estrada, 30, was in stable condition Monday at UCLA Medical Center. The actor, who was boosted to teen-idol status when the program debuted two years ago, broke his sternum, three ribs and his right wrist when his police motorcycle crashed during filming last week.

"We're going to create a situation in which Erik's character (Frank "Ponch" Poncherello) has an accident," Chermak said. "As Erik recuperates, the character ... will recuperate on the screen," said Chermak. "When Erik is well enough we will film him in the hospital."

But, said Chermak, Estrada's accident will not be televised. "There were some early reports that we were going to use the footage of his accident on television. We're not going to do that," he said. "We're going to create a fictional, dramatized version of an accident using a stand-in."

Rallying To Jane Fonda

JANE FONDA

MOSCOW (AP) — Jane Fonda's name is "like a curse to Hollywood bosses" because of her politics, says the Soviet youth newspaper, but in Russian eyes she's a "symbol of American freedom fighters" like the radical black activist Angela Davis.

"The name of Jane Fonda is today on all the blacklists of America," journalist V. Krivchin wrote in Komsomolskaya Pravda. "The Pentagon, CIA, FBI, all are vigilantly watching her. ... She is like Joan of Arc, and they are threatening her with the same fate."

The long, detailed article gave the impression that Miss Fonda is unable to make movies and noted she "was deprived of the Oscar award" for her performance in "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" which was shown on Soviet television in July.

Nothing was said about her current box office hit "The China Syndrome" or the Academy Awards she won for "Klute" and "Coming Home."

Mel Brooks Is Sued Over Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernard Pomerance, author of the hit Broadway play "The Elephant Man" is suing Mel Brooks for the comedian's use of the title in a new movie.

In the complaint filed Monday in U.S. District Court here, Pomerance claimed Brooks' use of the title creates confusion in the public mind, misappropriates the reputation and good will of the play's author and producers, and dilutes the property rights of the award-winning stage drama.

Both the Pomerance play and the Brooks movie are based on the real-life story of a Victorian freak, John Merrick.

Dear Abby

She Yearns For Busted Romance

By Abigail Van Buren 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc. DEAR ABBY: I am 64 years old. I have always been a fairly attractive woman, and have had my opportunities to marry, but I never did because I was embarrassed over having such a small bosom.

DEAR CONSIDERING: My medical consultants inform me that when women in their 60s have that kind of surgery, most of them regret having waited so long. If you decide to go ahead with it, consult a Board Certified plastic surgeon.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this. It's an open letter to my brother: Dear Brother: Tomorrow will be 10 years since I took Mama into my home. You were all for sending her to a state institution, but I couldn't do that.

You tell me I'm getting paid pretty good because I get Mama's Social Security check every month. Do you really think $292.90 is "good pay" for taking care of a total invalid 24 hours a day? And when her check runs out, I use mine ($192), and before the 3rd of the month rolls around, it's all gone. Mine and Mama's.

DEAR ABBY: I would really appreciate it if you and your lovely wife would stay with Mama for just one night; change her diaper, bathe her and turn her every few hours so I could get one full night's sleep.

Terrorized By A Rapist

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - A pistol-brandishing rapist described by one SBI agent as "sick, real sick" has terrorized an area of Guilford and Forsyth counties, authorities said Monday.

Residents of the area were described by officers as "scared to death" after at least six assaults on women in two weeks.

According to officers, the rapist is a white man in his mid-20s, about 6 feet tall, weighing 170 pounds, and dressed Wednesday night, when the last two rapes occurred, in dark clothing and a ski mask.

Guilford County officers said an elderly woman was hospitalized after she apparently suffered a heart attack when she was assaulted Wednesday night by a man who threatened her and her husband with a pistol. Officers said the woman's husband was bound and forced to witness the attack.

The rapist stole the couple's car, officers said, then apparently switched to his own car and drove to another residence across the county line in the same community.

There, officers said, the man cut a screen to gain entrance into the home of a couple in their 30s. Pointing a pistol, the intruder tied up the husband and a child and left them in the room to witness the attack on the woman. The woman was hospitalized and remained under the care of a psychiatrist Monday.

The four earlier rapes were "in the same area" and "have followed a definite pattern," according to officers. On at least two occasions, the man reportedly broke into the homes of women while they were asleep. "It appeared that this man doesn't care whether a woman is with her husband and family or not," said an SBI agent.

Preparing Suit Against Insurers Cogeneration By Industry Suggested

Against Insurers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, moving toward a possible lawsuit against the insurance industry, has asked officials of the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility for more information on surcharges to be added Dec. 1 to state auto liability insurance policies.

In a letter mailed Monday, Edmisten says the way representatives of the facility respond to questions will determine what, if any, legal action might be taken.

The letter was sent to Thomas S. Carpenter of Charlotte, chairman of the facility's board of governors.

The facility is a pool through which insurance companies share the liability insurance losses of drivers regarded as poor risks. The facility covers approximately one-fourth of the state's drivers.

Edmisten says if he does not get satisfactory answers to the questions raised in his letter, then he will seek an interpretation from Wake Superior Court or an injunction to keep the new charges from going into effect.

The facility's board voted June 25 to impose an 18.6 percent surcharge on drivers insured through the facility and a 1.1 percent surcharge on all drivers.

The reinsurance facility has said the charges would continue for 12 months to recover a $31.4 million loss during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

Gov. Jim Hunt has asked Edmisten to take steps to block the surcharges, saying there is no legal basis for imposing them.

Spokesmen for the reinsurance facility say the increases are permitted under 1977 and 1979 laws allowing them to recoup past losses.

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Adopting an old idea, the Tennessee Valley Authority says its industrial customers can save money, and energy, through a process called cogeneration.

The process isn't new, Paul H. Shoun, chairman of TVA's cogeneration task force, said Monday. He told a reporter in an interview that cogeneration accounts for 19 percent of the electricity generated in western Europe and in the late 1920s, the United States cogenerated more than 25 percent of its power.

TVA defines cogeneration as turning out electrical or mechanical power and useful thermal energy from the same primary heat source, or the use of waste heat to generate such power while using fuel more efficiently.

Shoun said TVA is encouraging industrial customers which use steam boilers to enlarge the boilers' capacities and generate more electricity. An industry could use this power itself to reduce its consumption or sell it to the government utility. TVA or local power distributors could make similar arrangements with university campuses, apartment complexes or shopping centers, he said.

A participant faces a sizeable initial investment to retool its boilers but the additional power would mean savings, or revenue, Shoun said.

"The front-end money is millions of dollars. But the power is of tremendous value," he said.

The utility, in a report assessing cogeneration's potential, said some industries complain costs and environmental compliance requirements keep them from participating. And the agency said some customers feel purchasing power from TVA is more desirable than constructing and operating a cogeneration facility.

TVA said it is considering some changes in power program financing to meet some of these objections.

"If we're going to keep the lights on, we have to get serious about our energy problem and cogeneration is a viable resource which should be exploited," Shoun told the Chattanooga Engineers Club in a presentation.

Six firms are now cogenerating with TVA. Shoun identified them as Bowater Inc., at Calhoun; Cities Service, Copperhill; Dupont, Nashville; W.R. Grace Co., Memphis; North American Rayon, Elizabethton; American Enka, Lowland, Tenn.

TVA said their combined output is about 120 megawatts, or 4 percent of the TVA system's generating capacity of 28,925 megawatts. TVA estimates, however, that the program could be expanded to increase total capacity by 1,865 megawatts during the next 20 years.

This could reduce fuel requirements for electricity production by 2 percent and supply 4 percent of the TVA region's annual power needs, officials calculate.

TVA is also encouraging that industries substitute coal, wood waste or similar fuels for the oil now used in industrial boilers.

The utility has 2.5 million customers in Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Know Thy Plants - Or, Don't Do Any Stealing

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Know thy plants — or at least don't get caught transporting other peoples' at 1 o'clock in the morning.

That was the lesson learned Monday in District Court when two women were sentenced to 10 to 30 days in Cabarrus County jail after Judge Adam C. Grant Jr. found them guilty of plant theft.

Hazeline Brown Romano of Concord and her niece, 17-year-old Barbara Ann Carpenter of Locust, each pleaded not guilty to two counts of misdemeanor larceny.

The unauthorized collecting of other people's vegetation occurred Aug. 6 when two Concord plant lovers discovered ferns, Spider, Walking Iris and "Panda," missing from their usual places on the porch.

Mrs. Leon Meeks and her neighbor Ruth Wilson both testified that they identified their missing plants at the Concord Police Station after Detective David Taylor found greenery fitting the description at Ms. Romano's home, where he observed approximately 17 plants.

Some of the plants had been reprinted in different containers, but "I know my plants when I see them," Mrs. Meeks confidently told the court.

Other neighbors, Edith and William Bundy, told the court they were awakened by the slamming of a car door around 1 a.m. Monday, and called the police to check on a car that had stopped near their hedges at the front of their home. When officers arrived on the scene, they said Romano and Carpenter told them they were having car trouble. Bundy directed the officers' attention to a number of plants he said the women had thrown under his hedge when they saw the police car.

During testimony, Ms. Romano said she had taken the plants out of the car and set them under the bushes to "keep them cooler" so they wouldn't die while she and her niece went for help.

The officers repaired a car-uretor and sent the women on their way, but not before asking them about the plants in the back seat of the car. The officers were informed the women were transporting the plants to Ms. Romano's sister's home to be tended while she was on vacation.

"It seems awfully odd to be transporting plants at 1:30 in the morning," noted Assistant District Attorney Wayne Nixon.

"Well," Ms. Romano responded, "if I take a notion to do something..."

Set New Rules For Shellfish

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — State fisheries officials are adopting new rules aimed at increasing the production of oysters and clams after a state shellfish program was widely abused.

But officials shifted from strict, immediate enforcement of the new rules to a softer, longer-term approach when faced with an angry reaction from those who use the program.

Under the program, waterways can be rented for $1 an acre. The state Division of Marine Fisheries has established a new policy requiring leaseholders to produce commercial quantities of clams or oysters from their leased real estate and to keep the area marked.

The crackdown came, according to officials, because inspectors said leaseholders were not marketing the required amounts of shellfish under the program.

For some leasors, according to the inspectors, the program was a chance to control portions of waterways adjacent to property they owned. For others, the program was a way to speculate in shellfishing grounds.

The division began strict enforcement of the policy recently in an effort to increase production on marginal wetlands.

But when inspectors tried to terminate 318 leases for failure to comply with the regulations, leaseholders complained that the Marine Fisheries Division had ignored violations in the past.

State officials are now considering the leases individually.

Division director Cornell E. Purvis said in an interview that in the past, the program had not been closely monitored because of insufficient personnel and because it was a low priority.

As a result, the division will help leaseholders bring the plots into compliance, Purvis said. Lease terminations are not likely for at least a year.

Some people, Purvis said, had voluntarily turned in the leases rather than invest the time and money needed to produce commercial quantities of shellfish.

Croom Family Reunion Slated

KINSTON — The Croom Family will hold its annual reunion at the Croom Meeting House on Sunday, August 29, with a program to begin at 11:15 a.m.

The Croom Meeting House was built by Lot Croom in 1823, is owned by the Croom family and contains its original furnishings. The Meeting House is located on Highway 55, about eight miles south of Kinston at Sandy Bottom.

Jesse Croom is in charge of the event, the 49th annual reunion. Those attending are asked to bring a picnic or covered dish dinner, to be spread at 12:30.
