

Economic Indicator Data Awaited Today

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government statistical indicator designed to forecast trends in the nation's economy has been weakening in recent months, supporting the contention that a recession has begun.

Preliminary data suggests that the Composite Index of Leading Indicators fell about 0.5 percent in July, according to government and private economists who asked that their names not be used.

The Commerce Department was releasing the July figures today.

The index dropped 0.1 percent in June after a rise of 0.3 percent in May and a decline of 2.1 percent in the strike-depressed month of April.

The statistics measure changes in employment, orders, contracts, inventories, prices and money supply. They have been weak all year, falling 0.2 percent in the first quarter and declining 1.7 percent in the second quarter.

Those quarterly declines were the first in the index since the first three months of 1975, when the nation was coming out of the last recession.

The Carter administration only recently admitted that the economy probably began falling during the second quarter of this year into what would be its seventh recession since World War II.

Carter economists say more than 1 million people may lose their jobs before the end of the year. The total output of the nation's economy, forecasters say, could decline more than 1 percent from the fourth quarter of 1978 to the final quarter of 1979.

Meanwhile, there was mixed news Tuesday on the nation's foreign trade balance. According to Commerce Department figures:

—The overall U.S. trade deficit decreased to $1.1 billion in July, from $1.9 billion in June.

—But the nation paid a record $4.8 billion to import foreign oil and petroleum products, exceeding the previous high of $4.6 billion in March 1977.

U.S. exports rose to a record $15.7 billion in July, up 4.2 percent from the previous high of $15 billion in June. That increase more, than offset the higher oil import costs stemming from price boosts adopted July 1 by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Overall imports, meanwhile, fell from the record

$16.9 billion in June to $16.7 billion last month. Among the import categories showing declines were food and live animals, chemicals and related products, ores and lumber, and passenger cars.

The volume of imported oil increased 1.8 percent in July to 245.9 million barrels, but the total price rose 13 percent, from $4.3 billion in June to $4.8 billion in July.

The U.S. trade deficit for the first seven months this year totaled $12.9 billion, compared with $20.1 billion for the same period last year.

The Carter administration hopes to hold the trade deficit to a maximum of $24 billion this year, about $4.5 billion below last year's level.

Lightning

LIGHTNING DAMAGES HOME — Heavy damage was reported Tuesday afternoon to a Rt. 2 Greenville home when fire resulted after the home was apparently struck by lightning. According to fire officials, the owner of the home was identified as Joe Brown. Firemen arriving on the scene said much of the attic of the home was involved with fire. Heavy fire and smoke damage resulted. Wires in the home were torn from the interiors of the walls. Switch and receptacle plates were shattered throughout the home (see right photo), and electrical wiring was splintered like small bits of wood. Wood trim on the brick home was blown about 50 yards into the front yard. Firemen from Eastern Pines and Winterville responded to the 4:28 p.m. alarm shortly after a thunderstorm moved through Pitt County. One person in the home escaped injury, and there were no injuries reported. Estimated loss to the home was about $40,000. (Reflector Photos by Tommy Forrest)

Warn Irish Of Revenge

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher made a surprise trip to Northern Ireland today to talk with security chiefs and about the Irish Republican Army's new bombing campaign and the threat of a Protestant backlash.

Mrs. Thatcher made her first visit to the embattled province as prime minister as both her cabinet and that of the Irish Republic met to tighten security in the wake of the IRA slaying Monday of Lord Mountbatten, three companions on a boating trip and 18 British soldiers.

Meanwhile, a Protestant guerrilla organization pledged revenge on the IRA, and a few hours later a Roman Catholic was killed on his Belfast doorstep.

As forces of the Irish Republic and Britain hunted for the IRA bombers who blew up Britain's famed soldier-statesman and two truckloads of troops two days ago, the outlawed Ulster Freedom Fighters declared in a statement delivered to local newspapers: "In view of the latest wave of Irish Republican Army attacks, we will resume hostilities against known IRA men."

Tuesday evening Patrick John Hardy, whose brother was killed during riots in Belfast four years ago, was shot and killed by two men who escaped on a motorcycle. Six of the man's 10 children were inside the house.

Hardy was the 24th person killed in Ireland this week as a result of the 10-year-old war in Northern Ireland.

Northern Ireland's biggest legal paramilitary Protestant organization also threatened to take up arms. The Ulster Defense Association, said it would be "compelled to take the law into its own hands" unless British forces rounded up more IRA men.

The UDA demanded the dismissal of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's cabinet minister for the province, Humphrey Atkins, because he has been on a vacation in Tunisia this month, the traditional time for sectarian rallies and militant speeches in Northern Ireland.

Militant Protestants have long complained that the British government is "soft" on the IRA to get Catholic support for a power-sharing political solution which the Protestants reject.

Atkins visited Northern Ireland Tuesday, then reported to Mrs. Thatcher and other key members of her Cabinet in London. Official sources said army and police commanders in Northern Ireland were instructed to seek ways of tightening security, but there were no plans to increase the 13,500 British troops stationed in the province.

In Britain, Scotland Yard chiefs also were trying to persuade government leaders and other likely targets for the IRA to accept bodyguards.

The Irish Cabinet was to meet in special session today to discuss the situation. But Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch did not advance his scheduled return Thursday from a vacation in Portugal.

Child Killed In 2-Car Collision

AYDEN — A two-year-old Route 1, Ayden girl was killed in a two-vehicle collision 3.7 miles West of here yesterday about 3:20 p.m., the North Carolina Highway Patrol reported today.

Trooper John Brinkley said Tonya Evette Carmon died when thrown through a window in the car driven by her mother, Delois Jean Carmon, after the vehicle collided with a car driven by Claud Bright III of Kinston.

The Highway Patrolman said the Carmon vehicle rounded a curve and skidded sideways into the path of the oncoming Bright vehicle. The Carmon car, Brinkley reported, overturned after the two autos collided.

Four occupants of the Carmon vehicle were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries received in the crash.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the Carmon's 1969 mobile vehicle and $3,500 to the Bright auto.

Mrs. Carmon was charged with exceeding a safe speed and improper equipment following investigation of the fatal collision.

SIX-DAY VISIT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II will visit Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Des Moines, Chicago and Washington on his six-day visit to the United States in October, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops confirmed today.

Dansey Joins Council Race

W. E. (Bill) Dansey, who served as a member of the City Council from 1971 until 1973, has filed as a candidate for one of the six Council seats in the October elections here.

In filing, Dansey pointed out, "I decided to seek a Council seat since I feel my past experience as a councilman and my long time involvement in civic affairs would be an asset to the city."

The candidate added, "A lot of our city codes need improvement in light of Greenville's growth and the nation's energy problem. I would also like the opportunity to work on improving the zoning ordinances."

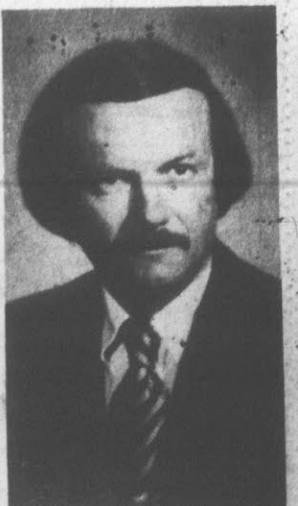

Dansey, who ran unsuccessfully for mayor in 1973, graduated from East Carolina University with an accounting degree and has been involved in local, state and national politics. He is president of WEDCO Enterprises, which has been in the development business since 1967.

As a councilman, Dansey served as the Council's representative on the city Recreation Commission and was involved in moves to upgrade recreation facilities, to make possible the west side recreation facility at the old Eppes High School, and to construct the municipal swimming pool.

He was honored in 1973 as the recipient of the Greenville Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award and he also received the local and state Freedom Guard Award and

Tax Take Dips

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County during July amounted to $264,661, according to Mark Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

The July figures compared with $271,103 recorded in June and $283,948 in May.

Net collections in July, June and May in several neighboring counties included: Beaufort, $113,245, $113,920, $115,288; Edgecombe, $109,333, $128,107, $124,904; Craven, $181,617, $188,551, $197,361;

Greene, $13,926, $12,605, $13,055; Lenoir, $181,554, $187,271, $188,759; Martin, $55,061, $60,161, $58,836; Wayne, $254,443, $258,616, $244,716; and Wilson, $205,008, $210,712, $218,472.

Net collections in the 99 participating counties during July amounted to $16,412,975, Lynch reported, compared with $16,372,434 in June and $16,629,964 in May.

FROM DAYTIME elegance to swank nights on the town, these shoes will keep you looking smart without straining your budget, says The Footwear Council. Clockwise from left: Perfed clog has stacked Western heel; classic moc has neat tassel and mid-high heel; pump with sweetheart throat line; the low-cut, high-heeled Mary-Jane is perfect suit shoe; for an opulent mood, satin sandal is gathered with a rhinestone; open-toed pump is edged in metallic piping; kiltie moc on rubberized sole and heel; casual ballet-style flat. ## Pumps Starring In The Shoe Wardrobe For Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — Women's fashions have grown up — and dressed up — for fall, and the savvy woman will own at least one shaped suit with wider shoulders, along with a slimmer, shorter skirt and narrower trousers.

There's new fashion afoot, too, says the Footwear Council, which points out that the discerning shopper can purchase a wealth of shoe styles without exceeding her budget.

Now is the time, it advises, to build a shoe wardrobe in sueded and satins, metallics and leather-like synthetics, to fit fashion's many moods.

For fall, the Council says, daytime elegance means closed-up pumps, the No. 1 item to complement the season's fitted suit or soignée dress.

Last year's slouchy oversized boots have been pared down; shoe-boots, Western clogs and ankle-strapped shoes and sandals are polished and sleek, whether teamed with textured hose — matching the shoe color, of course — or shorter, tapered pants.

Shimmering evenings will be reflected in dressings of shiny metallics and satins or interpreted in plushy suedes as women step out in sleek sandals or "pumps hither" open-toed pumps.

Vamps will be flowered, appliqued or curved for extra dash.

Mid-high heels and closed-up shoes in solid moccasins or spectator pumps set off the clean tailoring of fall ready-to-wear, while the preppy look is a winner with tweed skirts and beefy sweaters or lean-look trousers.

For striding around town without breaking the bank, nothing beats the stitched Western clog with stacked heel, the Council notes.

The Footwear Council offers these tips for keeping your best foot forward:

—Look for cone-shaped heels or Western styles — stacked heels.

—T-straps, ankle-straps and scalloped or sweetheart throats make alluring evening wear.

—Pumps are back — with pizzazz. Look for multicolored overlays, asymmetrical toplines and flower appliques. These sleek styles are the perfect foil for shaped suits and slim, fluid dresses.

—Color makes news with a pow! Choose from a palette of scrumptious hues, from cherry red and lavender to the new neutrals of pewter gray and cassis. Sexy mules come in candy colors.

—The flat or low-heeled oxford, or leather sole is a great casual alternative. Look for preppy saddle shoes or tasseled moccasins.

Bruce Can't Recall Another Bruce

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I was introduced to a man whose first name is Bruce. It was easy for me to remember because that's my first name, too.

Since meeting him I've run into him several times, and each time he has forgotten my name. I find this a little weird. If there is a hidden psychological explanation for his not remembering my name, what is it?

BRUCE

DEAR BRUCE: I suspect he doesn't want to be identified with you.

DEAR ABBY: About Beverly, the beautiful, meticulously groomed wife who arises at 3:45 every morning, spends two hours dressing and leaves at 6 a.m. for a 15-minute drive to her job which begins at 8 a.m.

You seem to have overlooked a piece of key information. Just where is Beverly between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m.? Many of us will not be able to sleep until we know. Also, what kind of shape is she in when she arrives at her job? Still sleek and perfectly groomed? Or perhaps with a few spangles missing here and there? Office clerks who start out for work two hours early every day are usually a pretty shifty bunch!

If you would like to put a gumshoe on this lady, many of us readers would be glad to chip in.

ARTHUR RYE, BLOOMINGTON, IND.

DEAR ARTHUR: Where Beverly goes for two hours before work every morning is anybody's guess. She could be doing anything from attending yoga class to meeting a lover who works the night shift.

I wondered, too. But since her husband apparently isn't curious, I say, "Never wise up a chump."

DEAR ABBY: I am in desperate need of your help. I am a 15-year-old boy, clean-cut and religious, but I am a child molester.

Every time I baby sit, or am alone with a child from a year old to 8 years old, I just can't control myself.

I know I have a problem. Please tell me where I can go for help before I do something really terrible. I am almost at that point now.

I can't talk to my parents about this.

DESPERATE IN UTAH

DEAR DESPERATE: You say you are religious. Could you talk to your clergyman about this? If not, please call your local mental health clinic and tell them you urgently need an appointment — that Abby told you to call.

I commend you for intelligently recognizing the seriousness of your problem, and courageously seeking help. Please write again and let me know how you are. I care.

Couple Marries In Recent Ceremony

Katherine Renae Fredericks and Melvin B. Bridgers Jr. were married Monday, Aug. 20, by Magistrate Elmore Hodges at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fredericks Jr. of Greenville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Briley of Bethel.

Attendants for the couple were the bride's parents, Stephen Fredericks III, brother of the bride, served as ring bearer.

The bride wore a floor length pink gown. The sleeves were trimmed in lace. She carried a colonial nosegay of daisies and baby's breath tied with white streamers.

After the ceremony, a bridal dinner was held at the Three Steers. A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Bethel. The couple presented a long-stemmed red rose to each mother.

The bride attended School No. Seven, Yonkers, N. Y. and Greenville City Schools. The bridegroom attended school in Bethel and North Pitt High School. They plan to live in Greenville and will enter Pitt Community College this fall.

They plan a wedding trip to New York at a later date.

Still Some Doubt Over Innocence In Holdups

By GWEN FLORIO
Associated Press Writer
DOVER, Del. (AP) — There is still some doubt as to whether Ronald Clouser actually committed the "Gentleman Bandit" holdups in which the Rev. Bernard T. Pagano was charged, Delaware officials say.

Clouser pleaded guilty Thursday to three of the northern Delaware holdups committed earlier this year by a mild-mannered, well-dressed bandit. In a plea-bargaining arrangement, the state agreed not to press any further charges against Clouser in connection with the series of robberies. Charges against Pagano, a Roman Catholic priest, were dropped.

State Police Cpl. Al Ament said Tuesday in an interview that police were continuing their investigation to determine if Clouser, of Brookhaven, Pa., really committed the crimes.

"There still is some doubt as to whether Clouser committed the robberies," Ament said. "We have got to clear our records and our minds to the possibility that still exists." Pagano's attorneys, Carl Schnee and Dennis Spivack, said that Clouser had admitted to details of the crimes, such as sequences of certain actions, that had not been published and that only the bandit could have known.

In addition, Spivack said, a small revolver similar to the one that witnesses said the bandit pointed at them was confiscated by Pennsylvania police after Clouser pleaded guilty to three armed robberies in that state. But Ament said that state police detectives have yet to hear much of the testimony Clouser gave his attorneys and Wilmington Superior Court Judge Andrew Christie about the robberies.

Pagano still faces a charge of attempted robbery in Pennsylvania, and Assistant District Attorney Robert D'Orio said that charge will stand until an investigation into the robbery is completed.

Both Clouser and Pagano took lie-detector tests in connection with the Delaware robberies. But results of the tests — which cannot be used as evidence in court — indicated that Pagano committed the holdups and Clouser did not, authorities said.

"This thing is making us all work twice as hard," Ament said. "We're all working toward a goal of clearing this up."

HEW Looks At Complaints

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two Health, Education and Welfare officials conducted a preliminary investigation of the Greensboro school system Tuesday in response to formal complaints of racial discrimination by both blacks and whites.

The preliminary probe was a fact-finding mission, according to Raines Carroll, the principal investigator, to determine if a full investigation is needed.

The two HEW officials toured the city's four senior high schools and two elementary alternative schools.

Carroll would not specify what they were looking for in their determination of the need for a full investigation.

Their visit resulted from two complaints filed against the Greensboro Public Schools with HEW's regional office in Atlanta.

White parents filed one complaint alleging that students at the formerly all-black Dudley Senior High School are being discriminated against because Dudley's facilities are not maintained to the level of the other schools.

The second complaint was filed by a black couple, who charged that Greensboro's two alternative elementary schools, Erwin Open and Price Traditional, are improperly exempted from the system's racial balance policy.

Actor Needs Heavy Security

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — Actor Robert Redford required such heavy security at the Midwestern Governors Conference that Gov. Joseph Teasdale of Missouri jokingly questioned whether he (Teasdale) was being given adequate security.

Redford, here to talk to the governors about environmental issues, was ushered in to a news conference Tuesday by five Missouri Highway Patrolmen. The governor entered seconds later with no police escort.

Teasdale turned to newsmen at the rear of the chamber and quipped: "I've been attacked by five people while they were guarding him."

Ordered Brake Racist Groups

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy's Atlantic Fleet commander has ordered his ship captains to take aggressive action to "eliminate the activities of racist organizations" on board ships.

However, the orders by Adm. Harry D. Train II, made public Tuesday, do not contradict earlier statements that Ku Klux Klan membership is legal, the Navy says.

Navy officials said that no federal or military law prohibits KKK membership. The Navy confirmed that card-carrying Klan members are aboard the Concord, a Norfolk-based supply vessel that sailed last month for the Mediterranean.

In the first of two messages to commanding officers, dated July 10, Train called for "aggressive command-level actions to identify and eliminate the activities of racist organizations which are disruptive to our readiness."

Train's message said, "overt or covert behavior which advocates the superiority of one race or ethnic group over another is disruptive to good order and discipline and will not be tolerated."

Navy officials pointed to a second message, dated Aug. 3, as proof that its stands on racist activity and KKK membership were not contradictory.

"The operative word is 'behavior,'" Train said, in trying to determine what can be tolerated.

The admiral said he is not concerned with individual beliefs or legal activities that take place off ships and out of uniform.

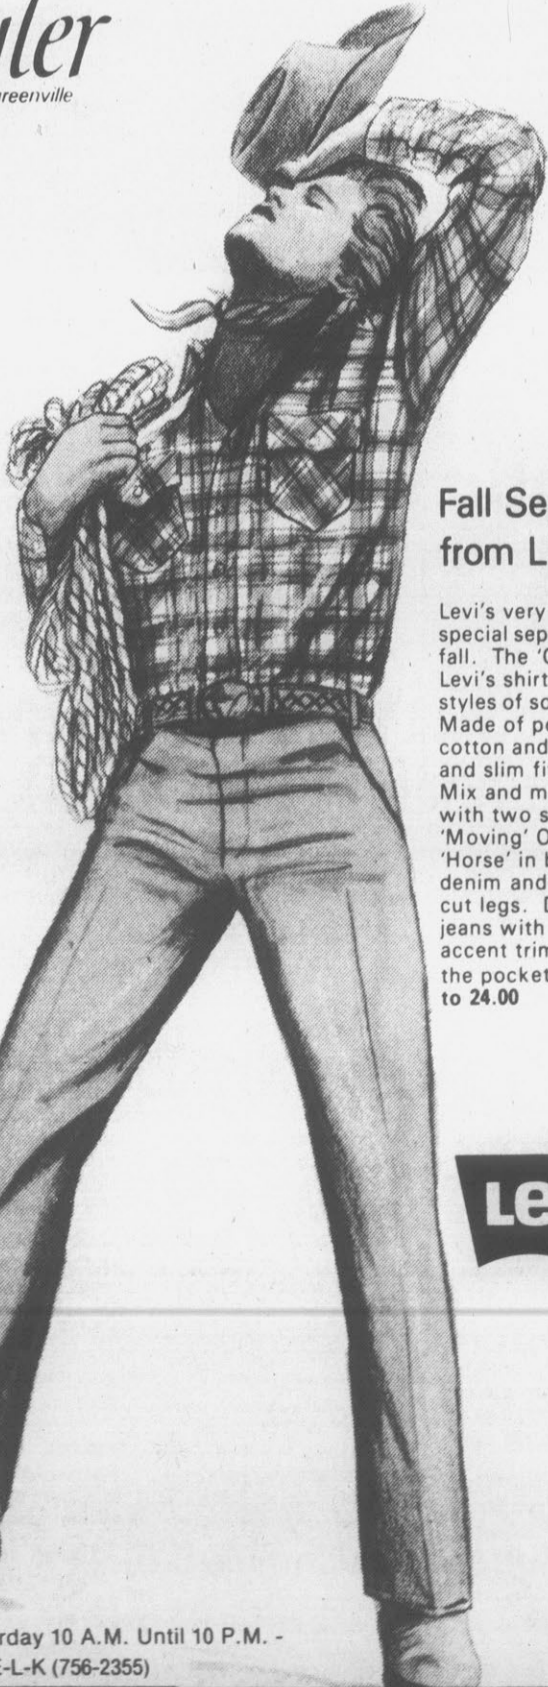

But "when there is public advocacy of racial or ethnic intolerance in our units, proselytization for membership in segregated organizations or the distribution of inflammatory material, such behavior is contrary to good order and discipline," he said.

In October 1972, a riot at sea aboard the Pacific Fleet-based carrier USS Kitty Hawk resulted in courts martial for 19 black crewmen. Forty-six persons were injured in the incident.

Two months later, the USS Constellation put back into port at San Diego to "beach" 130 disgruntled crewmen after racially inspired incidents at sea.

Only two Atlantic Fleet ships, the Concord and an unidentified Charleston, S.C., ship, are known to have KKK members or sympathizers aboard, the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot reported today.

Gasohol Age Coming To Pitt?

Pitt County may soon be in the gasohol age and the first to benefit may be our farmers. A meeting is set for Thursday night at 8 o'clock for farmers and businessmen to discuss the production of gasohol. Since so many farm products and byproducts can be used to produce alcohol, the project seems a natural for our farm area. It is possible that ethanol can be made from feed grain which can then be used to feed hogs. Unusable watermelons, sweet potatoes and other produce may go into the gasohol making process. It would be a mistake to see this as a waste of farm products, or a diversion of foods from human consumption. What we are talking about is making the most efficient use of farm products and byproducts. We will, in fact, be making use of byproducts which currently have little value. That, after all, is how we will overcome our energy problems — by making far more efficient use of what we have.

Irish terrorists were quick to take credit — if that is the word — for the carnage. It makes us wonder how minds can become so twisted as to kill a 79-year-old non-combatant, or how they could possibly feel such a savage act would gain them any support in the civilized world.

Such Savagery Should Damage Cause

Earl Mountbatten, British World War II military commander was killed, along with others, in a boat explosion in an Irish Republic bay. The explosion also killed Mountbatten's grandson and injured members of his family.

rejection and the public mood is causing local officials to hesitate even offering bond proposals to the voters. Plans are still alive for an effort next year to win legislative — and then public — approval of a statewide $650 million school construction bond issue to relieve this local pressure. # Bond Votes Fare Poorly

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Political leaders in North Carolina were at first quick to reject the notion that citizens in this state would be much affected by Proposition 13 fever. Local property taxes, generally, are much lower here than in those states in which taxpayers revolted. Besides, the General Assembly and the governor came up with a tax-cutting formula which was supposed to provide some relief, thereby placating the potentially irate. But the politicians might have misread the intensity of the public mood. Reevaluation is spurring taxpayer unrest in several Tar Heel counties as that process which determines the tax base on which you pay property taxes comes up with doubled and tripled real estate values in many instances. Meanwhile, another gauge of public mood reveals continued citizen unrest. State Treasurer Harlan

Boyles reports that local bond issues have hit upon hard times. Rejected. So far this year, voters have rejected better than two-thirds of the bonds proposed by their local governments. Only 29.7 percent have been approved to date, compared with an approval rate of 72.2 percent last year and 67.7 percent in 1977. Bond issues have been rejected in five of the eight counties where elections were held, and of a total of $37.7 million in bonds proposed, only $11.2 million has been approved. A two-week period in June amply illustrates the nature of the unrest among North Carolinians: Pitt County turned down a $9 million school bond issue; Cumberland County rejected a $15 million school bond; and Madison County said No to a $2.5 million proposal. School bonds are historically among the more popular ones in this state, but voter rejection and the public mood is causing local officials to hesitate even offering bond proposals to the voters. Plans are still alive for an effort next year to win legislative — and then public — approval of a statewide $650 million school construction bond issue to relieve this local pressure. Meanwhile, local governmental officials show little hesitancy to back off on issuing bonds to finance building projects providing constituents will agree.

By BILL NOBLITT
A $40 million vote to finance projects at Guilford Technical Institute will likely be held November 6. Columbus County has tentatively set a November 6 election date on a bond issue ranging somewhere between $6 million and $16 million, covering several projects. Others. A civic center financed with bonds totaling $3.8 million is up for election November 6 in Catawba County. Bertie County officials are talking about a $4.25 million water bond question to be decided September 18. A combined school and county government bond vote totaling $20.4 million is set for November 6 in Orange County, and in Lee County, the school board has asked county commissioners to call a $7.7 million bond vote for renovations to Lee County High School. In Gaston County, public hearings on a $30.6 million bond vote ($20 million for schools, $7.9 million for Gaston College) has been held. New Hanover taxpayers will vote September 4 on a $20 million bond issue for a county water system.

Energy Savers United

Every time you pick up the newspapers you read of some newfangled thing that is going to save us from the oil crisis. One day it's methane made from garbage, the next day it's hot springs underneath Montana — then it's ocean waves that can be tamed, and then there are, of course, energy-producing windmills. I can't keep up with all of it, but Carbuclie can and does. A month ago he told me, "Did you hear they have a new synthetic fuel that can save a million barrels of oil a day?" "No," I said. "What is it?" "After-shave lotion. Some professor at MIT discovered that after-shave lotion contains alcohol. He devised a method of taking the perfume out of it through a cracking process, and what's left can be burned in a car." "Great," I said. "When will they start making it?" "Right now the price is too high. A pint of Faberge after-shave will cost you $25, but if the OPEC countries keep raising their rates the price will soon be competitive." A few days later he came back. "Well, it's all over for the Arabs. A geologist in Colorado has just developed a method of squeezing oil out of asphalt roads. He was able to get one quart of crude out of a mile of asphalt. He figures with all the asphalt roads in America we should be self-sufficient by 1989, and we can tell Iran to go to hell." "I knew they'd come up with something. Wait a minute! If they dig up all the asphalt roads in the United States there will be nothing for the cars to drive on." "Exactly! That's where the big conservation savings will come. He's just applied for a grant from the Department of Energy." "To continue his research?" "No, for bail money. They arrested him for digging up a stretch of U.S. Highway 70." "I didn't hear from Carbuclie for a week. Then he called me excitedly on the phone." "There is a man in New Jersey who has perfected a system to make coal out of gold. One ton of gold will give you one ton of soft-burning coal." "Great! How does it work?" "Once you get the gold you put it in a blast furnace of 1,500 degrees. This produces a gas, which you siphon off. The residue at the bottom of the furnace hardens and looks just like coal. You scrape it up and shape it in pellets. A ton of it can get you through the winter. The beauty is that coal made from gold doesn't pollute the air." "It sounds like the answer," I said. A few days later the phone rang again. Carbuclie said, "You been watching television?" (Continued on page 5)

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, said today that the maternal and infant welfare clinic held in the offices of the Pitt County health department yesterday was largely attended. The number of maternal patients was 44 and the number of babies was 16, making a total of 60 patients. Since many of the patients come from the county and are unable to provide their own transportation, the health department finds it necessary to call for volunteer motor corps help.

To the editor: As the 1979-80 school year begins, I would like to take the opportunity to remind everyone of the importance of education. There is a saying written on the old area phone books that goes: "More powerful than the shattering of an atom is the penetration of the human mind that ideas are born, grow and finally burst forth, through communications, to the betterment of our world." I would steal this quote to write that education is that penetration. I urge everyone to support the educational system. Let us ALL strive to make this penetration a day-long activity which begins at home, goes to school, and ends back at home—a continuous cycle that should not be broken. # Few Takers In Discount Plan

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In the past few years dozens of American companies have begun offering to sell shares of their stock at a discount. But to date they have had few takers. The discount is a further refinement of a type of program that has gained wide popularity in recent years — the dividend reinvestment plan. Under these voluntary plans, which are now offered by more than 1,000 companies, stockholders can elect to have their dividends automatically invested in additional shares rather than receiving them in cash. According to the Wall Street firm of Salomon Brothers, 132 of these companies issue new stock to provide these shares, rather than having a broker or other agent buy them in the open market. And of those 132, no less than 77 offer the new shares at a discount — typically 5 percent — from current market value. Some make similar offers on their preferred stock or bonds, and a few even allow the discount on additional cash purchases of shares, up to limits generally ranging from $3,000 to $5,000 per month. Salomon Brothers' Robert S. Salomon Jr. estimates that companies will raise $2 billion worth of capital through such plans this year, accounting for about 25 percent of the total raised during the year through sales of new stock. "Nevertheless," Salomon said in a recent report on the subject, "shareholder participation in these plans is still modest, which is surprising since these highly specialized plans are offering stock at a discount. "Currently, about 85 percent of all eligible shareholders do not participate in those plans where discounts are provided." These shareholders, Salomon noted, are not responding despite the fact that they are being offered "something for nothing" — an increased return on their money, with little or no ap-

A Tide Against Bailout

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't bet on a government bailout for Chrysler Corp. just yet. There's strong sentiment, in and out of government, against aid for the ailing automaker. There is strong sentiment against the direct aid Chrysler wanted, and even indirect assistance may be a problem. The outcome won't become clear until Congress, which has been on vacation, returns next week to take a closer look at the corporation's plea for federal rescue. Chrysler has asked for $1 billion in cash aid from the government through tax credits. The Carter administration already has said no to that, but adds it may consider loan guarantees. However, of 71 unsolicited letters received by the Treasury Department from the public about Chrysler as of last week, all but one were opposed to help for the automaker, it was learned. Officials were said to be astounded at the lopsided margin. At stake, of course, are some or all of the corporation's 124,000 jobs. The government naturally doesn't want to see a major employer go out of business, especially with a recession at hand and unemployment certain to rise anyway. Tens of thousands of workers already have been laid off in the auto industry because of lagging sales. But even more important to some is the fundamental question of whether the government of a nation committed to free enterprise should prop up a failing company with taxpayer funds, no matter how large it is. Great Britain did this for years and ended up with a large number of industries on the public dole, so many that it threatened to bankrupt the entire country. The new government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is now frantically trying to rid itself of as many of these as it can. On the issue of aid to Chrysler, many liberals, conservatives and moderates find themselves on the same side, opposing a bail-out. Normally, that might be enough to put an end to hopes by Chrysler for aid. However, lawmakers and union and business leaders from the states where Chrysler has plants are demanding help. The head of the United Auto Workers union, Donald Fraser, has gone so far as to advocate federal investment in Chrysler to keep it afloat. While the government has turned down Chrysler's bid for $1 billion in cash aid, it has said it might consider loan guarantees of up to $750 million, meaning the government would pledge taxpayer backing in the event of default by Chrysler on commercial loans from banks and the like. President Carter said last week the administration is proceeding "very cautiously" on Chrysler. He said he wants a solution where there is "a heavy dependence on the free enterprise system." Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said government loan guarantees should depend on Chrysler's own success in developing a plan "to assure continued viability" of its operations. Not lost among policy-makers here is the fact that a major reason for Chrysler's difficulties is that the automaker was slow to convert production from large gas-guzzling automobiles to

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Absent Coat And Tie

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Alonzo McDonald, Hamilton Jordan's highly regarded new deputy chief of staff in the White House, showed from the start that he is an important new voice there by suggesting privately that President Carter's voyage down the Mississippi was not an unqualified public relations triumph. The president's politicking aboard the Delta Queen has received rave reviews from the senior staffers who conceived the journey. But filling in for the absent Jordan at a staff meeting, newcomer McDonald offered a dissent. Instead of Carter in jogging tugs and sports shirts day after day on television, McDonald proposed a different image for the chief executive: appearing on TV dressed in coat and tie, thoughtfully considering problems.

"Did Hamilton tell you to say that?" cracked one staffer. Jordan's allergy to coats and ties, though under control since becoming chief of staff, is legendary. "No," McDonald replied, "it was my own idea." The fact that McDonald, a corporate management expert who at 51 is 17 years Jordan's senior, will be speaking up on his own is the best sign for hope at the reorganized White House. Connally's Doldrums. Another sign of John B. Connally's summer doldrums was a meeting of Chicago area Republican county chairmen who resolved to stay off his presidential bandwagon after having seemed firmly seated there a few weeks ago. That is bad news for the Connally camp, which has been counting Illinois at the top of its northern list. But some county chairmen captivated by Connally a few months ago have been soured on him by recent visits. "I'm afraid Connally is just a mean, cantankerous s.o.b.," one chairman told us. Since such Illinois Republican leaders were looking at Connally originally as an alternative to front-running Ronald Reagan, they are now seeking a new choice. Some are interested in the slowly accelerating campaign of George Bush, but many others are eyeing an old, familiar figure: Gerald R. Ford. Carter Woos Labor. President Carter has plans to invite 1,000 labor leaders and their chief aides to an unprecedented Labor Day party on the South Lawn of the White House. The president's effort to ingratiate himself with the grantees of union labor, starting with ailing AFL-CIO President George Meany, has a long way to go. In particular, he faces an uphill fight to reproduce his 1976 backing from the politically active United Auto Workers (UAW). On his swing down the Mississippi, Carter was greeted by many labor leaders, including the UAW's Iowa chief, Chuck Gifford. But Gifford and other union leaders made clear that their willingness to take part in the reception of Carter in Iowa (which begins delegate selection for the Democratic National Convention only five months from now) was no endorsement. In fact, Gifford and other labor leaders strongly lean toward Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. Watson's Climb. Jack Watson, President Carter's link to governors and mayors, is getting increased clout in the slowly-unfolding reorganization of the White House staff promised by Carter at the Camp David domestic summit. A buttoned down Atlanta lawyer who never made it into Carter's down-home inner circle, Watson has gotten high marks lately even from his old enemy: Hamilton Jordan, the new White House chief of staff. Jordan steamrollered Watson's effort to take control of personnel in the fledgling administration shortly after the 1976 election. Now Jordan tells intimates that despite Carter's prone position in the polls, Democratic mayors and governors continue to give him strong support because of Watson. Other White House staffers say that if Carter's congressional liaison staff had spent as much time and effort courting Congress as Watson has spent on the governors and mayors, the president would not be in his

WORTH A MILLION? Some time ago a man died and word went about town, "He was worth a million." To whom? Not to his family, for the money he gave them led them to every conceivable vice and brought most of them to early death. Not to his community, for the example he set for others was uniformly bad. The man was a millionaire all right, for he owned a million dollars in stocks, property and cash. But he was not worth a million dollars. There's a vast difference between being a millionaire and being worth a million dollars. Sometimes, but not often, we find individuals who own a million dollars and are worth a million dollars. More often we find individuals who own nothing, but are worth millions. The next time we look over our bank statements, we might ask ourselves how much we are worth. Elisha Douglass

MacDonald Case To Jury Today

By NAOMI KAUFMAN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The jury that has heard the triple-murder case against Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald starts its deliberations today.

The seven men and five women are faced with volumes of testimony taken from 62 witnesses and with mountains of physical evidence. But, in lengthy final arguments to the jury Tuesday, each side brought out the aspects on which it wants the jury to focus.

The government's case hinges on circumstantial physical evidence. The defense calls it "deductions and inferences from an improperly processed crime scene."

Assistant U.S. Attorney James Blackburn held a crude club in his right hand and MacDonald's hole-ridden pajama top in his left Tuesday. "Perhaps," he said, "the most telling things are these two."

Said defense attorney Bernard Segal, "You have never heard me say that what we demanded was a perfect investigation. What we asked for is competency."

Segal has long sought to show the Army and the FBI bungled their investigation. He said the government presented very little evidence that it didn't have in 1970, when the Army dropped its charges against the former Green Beret. MacDonald, 35, of Huntington Beach, Calif., is charged with bludgeoning and stabbing to death his pregnant wife, Collette, 26, and daughters Kimberly, 5, and Kristen, 2, while stationed at Fort Bragg in 1970. He was indicted by a federal grand jury in 1975 and faces life in prison if convicted.

The government says he based his story about four drug-crazed intruders killing his family and injuring him on articles he read on the Manson family cult killings and possibly on seeing three robed and candle-carrying figures outside that night.

Segal called experiments made on the top "sheer fakery."

"On every basis you can think of it's a fake," he said. Answered Blackburn, "They went to great lengths to discredit the pajama top (evidence) and well they should. Do you know why? Because it's mighty, mighty damaging."

Said Justice Department attorney Brian Murtagh, "Things don't lie. They tell a story."

Segal said the story is incomplete because of the type of investigation. "I do not believe you heard anything beyond a reasonable doubt," he said.

"His crime is that he wasn't hurt enough, he didn't die," Segal said of MacDonald.

A One-Man Crime Spree

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A man described by police as "a one-man crime wave" left nine victims behind as he ran off into the darkness in southwest Charlotte early Tuesday.

The suspect allegedly robbed a restaurant at gunpoint, terrorized residents of an apartment building, kidnapped a woman and commandeered a car.

Police say they think the spree went something like this: About midnight, the man walked up to a Burger King, carrying a chrome-plated steel pistol. He went to a rear door and forced an employee who was cleaning up to go inside the building.

Once inside, he ordered the manager to open the safe and forced him and two employees to lie on the floor. Then he stuffed $801 into a bank bag and fled through the back door.

The man ran about 400 yards to an apartment complex where a woman and two men were moving into an apartment. The suspect rushed up, waving his pistol, and ordered all three inside. After telling them to remain calm and lie on the floor, he took the money out of the bank bag, put it in his pants pockets and ran out of the apartment.

From there, he ran about five miles to a home where Janice Clemens Boulware and her daughter were locking up the back of a U-Haul trailer. He asked for the keys to their car, took the keys and walked to the car.

Another resident of the house, Yvette Michelle Boulware, pulled up in her car and started to get out. The man asked her to get back in, made her drive him to a spot about five miles away, got out and ran away.

Police described the suspect as black, 19 or 20 years old and wearing a gold and brown T-shirt and light brown pants.

small economy models, despite warnings and despite strong competition from abroad. It gambled and lost. Its losses in the second quarter of this year were an astronomical $207 million.

In an interview with the Wall Street Journal last week, Miller said of Chrysler that "it's quite possible they could put together a program in which they wouldn't need government assistance," perhaps signaling that the administration now wants even to discourage loan guarantees.

Former Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, an out-spoken economic conservative who is a consultant to Booz, Allen & Hamilton Inc., a management consulting firm that is helping Chrysler management draw up a survival plan, opposes government help as both unwise and unnecessary.

"It's obvious that Chrysler was guilty of inefficiency or mismanagement in the past. Now it should have to pay the price, and taxpayers shouldn't have to," Simon said in an interview.

Although he's not directly involved in developing the Chrysler plan, Simon said he is confident Chrysler can be profitable again, although overall operations might have to be trimmed. He also said government regulations that have added to Chrysler's woes maybe should "be eased or rescinded."

But he said even if the government were faced with a choice of Chrysler going completely out of business without government aid, he still would oppose it.

The government "most absolutely should not provide assistance," he said.

"There's a guy on the Today show who runs his car on Tabasco sauce. He says he mixes three gallons of Tabasco with one gallon of no-lead, and a tank of fuel lasts him a month."

"Tabasco does have a kick to it," I admitted.

"You bet your sweet life it does. He told Tom Brokaw all the oil companies know about it, but won't use it because they're afraid it will cut into their profits."

Yesterday Carbuncle called again. "The energy crisis is over. A 14-year-old boy scout in Pasadena rubbed two sticks together and managed to get a fire out of it. The National Academy of Science duplicated the experiment and it works. This country has enough sticks to light every home in the United States for 2,000 years."

"Yeh, but what do you burn after the fire gets started?" I asked.

Carbuncle replied, "Furniture. It's cheaper now than heating oil."

Bush Beats The Bushes

A forthcoming announcement will claim for Republican presidential candidate George Bush support from 534 Iowa Republicans. They include two members of Gov. Robert Ray's cabinet and 24 state legislators (more than one out of every four Republicans in the legislature).

What is impressive about this lineup of Bush supporters for the January precinct caucuses in Iowa is its variety. Bush will claim the backing of the Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsberry, who was a Ronald Reagan delegate in 1976, and the State Treasurer Morris Baringer, who backed then President Ford.

Nevertheless, Ronald Reagan runs ahead of the field in Iowa. Also doing surprisingly well in conservative areas of the state is Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois. As for John B. Connally and Sen. Howard Baker, there is no visible sign of serious activity.

Help Send A Student To ECU

(Introducing Pirate Checking)

Let's face it. For years, Planters has offered a variety of tee shirts, frisbees and other trinkets to entice East Carolina students to bank with us.

Now, there's a better way to student banking. We call it "Pirate Checking."

With "Pirate Checking" ECU students still receive no-service-charge checking with no required minimum balance (because we know students don't have a lot of money, just a lot of potential). You also get an introductory order of Pirate checks plus free travelers cheques, cashiers checks, money orders and notary service.

But, there's something more important.

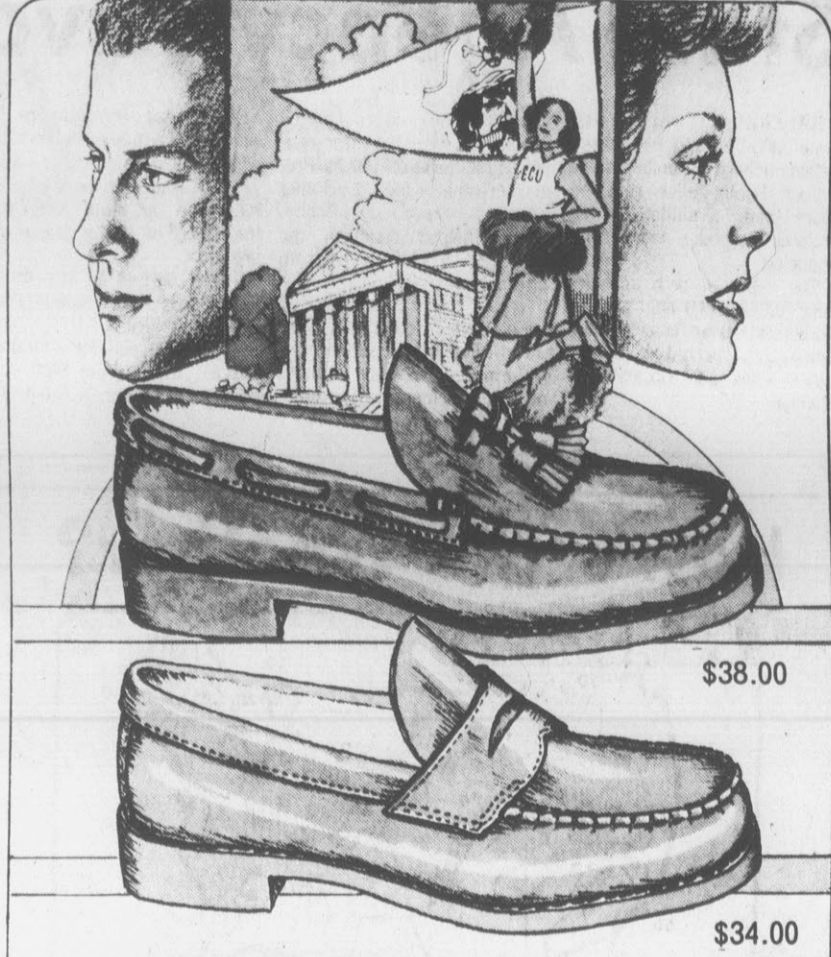

For every Pirate Checking account opened, we'll give $1.00 to ECU for unrestricted use as scholarship funds.

We've got four offices in Pitt County to serve you, including the only bank in Carolina East Mall. At Planters National Bank we offer a practical approach to student banking.

State Agency Favors Are Disclaimed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state AFL-CIO and two corporations headed by union leader Wilbur Hobby have received more than $1 million in job training contracts from state agencies.

The heads of both agencies received financial help and endorsements from labor in 1976 campaigns, according to today's News and Observer of Raleigh.

Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks has awarded three contracts totaling $175,146 to Precision Graphics Inc., a printing company owned by Hobby. Brooks helped establish the firm in 1975 when he was an attorney.

Five other contracts were awarded by the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development to the state

AFL-CIO and organizations in which Hobby has an interest.

The five were:

- Two contracts for a total of $76,000 to the state AFL-CIO, the union of which Hobby is president.
- One contract for $129,429 to Hobby's printing company, Precision Graphics.
- Two contracts for a total of $663,501 to Carolina Skill Advancement Center, a non-profit corporation created in September 1977. Hobby is president of the corporation.

Hobby approached the state and asked for the contracts, according to officials in the Labor and Natural Resources Departments. The contracts were awarded at the discretion of the departments and not by competitive bidding.

The contracts were funded by the federal government under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, which provides funds to train the hard-core unemployed.

Howard N. Lee, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources, and Brooks said the contracts were not political payoffs.

Brooks said in an interview last week that he had never discussed with Hobby the three contracts awarded by the Labor Department to Precision Graphics. Brooks said all the details were handled by subordinates in the Labor Department.

Brooks signed the three contracts, but said "I have not been personally involved with those."

Hobby said he could not remember whether he discussed the application process with Brooks.

"If I had the opportunity, I probably mentioned it," he said. "I didn't meet with him to do it. I think that I reported to him some of the progress that we've made on them," Hobby added.

Lee said Monday that he knew from talking with Hobby that the union leader wanted a CETA contract, but said he was unaware a contract had been awarded. The department contracts were signed by various Lee subordinates.

Lee said Hobby was "a close friend," but he said, "I have no intention of using the CETA program or my position here to do special favors for anyone."

Reminded Heed Parking Rules

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon today urged area motorists to observe local parking regulations.

Pointing out that East Carolina University students have returned to campus for classes and Greenville City Schools have opened for another year, Cannon said parking has become, "quite a problem."

He urged drivers, "not to park illegally," including marked no parking zones, on the wrong side of the street, too close to intersections or fire hydrants, or blocking driveways.

Cannon warned that illegally parked vehicles will be ticketed and the city's towing law enforced.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Areas of showers are expected in the forecast period until Thursday morning, in the West, Gulf coast, Ohio and Tennessee valleys, Great Lakes and Northeast. Cooler weather is forecast for the central regions but most areas are expected to be warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Warm, moist air continued to move into North Carolina from the south today, setting the stage for more afternoon and evening thundershowers. These were expected especially in the eastern part of the state.

Winds will become more westerly Thursday and temperatures will be slightly warmer, but there should be only a few widely scattered thundershowers across the state.

Temperatures were expected to be generally in the 80s today and possibly hover a little closer to 90 Thursday. Fayetteville had one of the warmest readings Tuesday with 92 degrees.

Thunderstorms developed rapidly across eastern sections of the state Tuesday, and showers and thunderstorms also formed across the state's northern portion, continuing well into the night.

Rainfall was varied, averaging for the most part less than a tenth of an inch. However, New Bern reported nearly an inch.

Looking toward the Labor Day weekend, the prospect is for continued summertime weather — partly cloudy and warm with scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers.

peratures will be slightly warmer, but there should be only a few widely scattered thundershowers across the state.

Temperatures were expected to be generally in the 80s today and possibly hover a little closer to 90 Thursday. Fayetteville had one of the warmest readings Tuesday with 92 degrees.

Sugg School Opening Readied

FARMVILLE — The school year for H. B. Sugg students in grades four through five will begin Tuesday, September 4. Orientation will be held on this day for former students and new students. Children will be informed of their class schedules, fees and other activities. The hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., with September 5 as the first full day.

Kindergarten students are not to report on school Tuesday, September 4, because of the staggered kindergarten orientation days on September 5, 6 and 7. For more information, contact the school, 753-3823.

Doubt Value Of Dated Packages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Graduate and professional schools should place less reliance on testing and more on such things as interviews, recommendations and non-academic experiences, says a Howard University professor.

A report released Tuesday by Sylvia T. Johnson suggests blacks and others from minority groups can suffer unjustly if test results are the sole criteria for admission. "There is no argument against the logic that blacks and whites who seek to master the same professional discipline must each develop the same body of skills and understandings," she said. But test results alone are not an accurate projection of blacks' abilities to master those skills, she said.

Miller Hoping For Opposition

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller says he hopes he has some opposition in 1982 when he makes a bid for a third term as head of the union.

Miller announced Tuesday that he would run again and said he wants broader authority to discipline district union officials.

Miller, 56, who had a stroke and heart attack a year ago, made his remarks at news conferences at the 10th annual Institute on Mine Safety, Health and Research at Virginia Tech.

Russians Told Godunov Baited By Gold, Whiskey

Series Of Five Auto Accidents

An estimated $8,800 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a three vehicle collision on Memorial Drive near the Trade Street intersection, about 5 p.m. involving vehicles driven by Edward Bernard Williams of 103 Emma Pl., Michael Andrew Jones of Williamston, and Linda Nobles Bowen of Williamston.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the Williams car, and $4,000 to the Jones vehicle. No damage resulted to the Bowen car, officers noted.

A 5:10 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Arlington Boulevard involved cars driven by Charles Douglas Newton of Rocky Mount, and Maureen Buckley of 1509 East Fifth St.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Buckley with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $800 to the Newton car and $500 to the Buckley vehicle.

Cars driven by Billy G. Savage of 609 Wyatt St., and Augusta Hopkins of 1107 Colonial Ave. collided about 6:11 p.m. on Fifth Street near the Roosevelt Street intersection resulting in an estimated $200 damage to the Savage car and $400 damage to the Hopkins vehicle.

A 5 p.m. collision at the intersection of Chestnut Street and Pennsylvania Avenue involved cars driven by Seth Alonza Sparrow of Route 2, Belhaven and William Vincent Ratliff of 107 South Summit St., investigators reported.

Officers, charging Sparrow with failing to yield the right of way, set damage at $150 to the Sparrow car and $350 to the Ratliff vehicle.

Cars driven by Judith Read Clark of Route 1, Winterville and Phyllis Jean Coley of Bridgeport, Conn., collided about 1:15 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 500 feet from the Kirkland Drive intersection, causing an estimated $100 damage to the Clark car and $300 damage to the Coley car, police reported.

Her office is located in the firm, at 210 South Washington St.

Japan's Pricing Again Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is investigating whether Japanese-made microwave ovens are being sold in the United States at a cheaper price than in Japan.

Trade agreements prohibit such "dumping" of foreign-made items. But the Treasury Department said Tuesday that officials were investigating whether Japan was selling the ovens at less than fair value, and if so, whether that was hurting U.S. manufacturers.

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. "provocateurs" baited Bolshoi Ballet defector Alexander Godunov with promises of "mountains of gold and a sea of whiskey" and then started "dirty slanderous rumors" to make him leave his wife, the newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta reported today.

It was the first Soviet account of why the Bolshoi's 29-year-old star left a touring troupe in New York a week ago and obtained asylum in the United States.

Literaturnaya Gazeta, a weekly that is the official mouthpiece on literary and cultural matters, did not say that the dancer defected. Instead it said he "disappeared" last Wednesday without saying a word about his plans to his wife, ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova.

A dispatch by the paper's New York correspondent, Iona Andronov, gave this version of the "bandit operation" that took Godunov away from his wife and the Bolshoi:

"The 'huge success' that the 150-member Bolshoi troupe scored at the start of its New York engagement on Aug. 1 forced U.S. 'provocateurs...in desperation to undertake an impudent political sabotage.' They focused their efforts on Godunov, trying to make him leave the Bolshoi and stay in the United States.

"He was literally under siege everywhere by a whole team of instigators who promised him mountains of gold and a sea of whiskey.

"That bait probably was not sufficient. And then these trappers of men's souls decided to strike at his psyche, planting in the American press dirty slanderous rumors about his wife in order to persuade the husband to leave her and to break him spiritually.

"Unfortunately, the main plan worked and on Aug. 23,

52 Tons To Back Carter

52 Tons for Carter
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Rodolfo Leon earns $2.50 for every ton of watermelons he stacks, and he moved 52 tons to pay for a newspaper ad supporting President Carter.

"I just for one second do not believe this man is guilty of what he is accused of being — the most incompetent bungler of the century," Leon said Tuesday.

Leon, 24, has previously limited his political involvement to speeches at City Council meetings, where his microphone sometimes goes dead when Republican Mayor Lewis Murphy becomes irritated.

The nation's problems, Leon said in the ad in the Nogaes Herald, are not Carter's fault but can be traced to his predecessors and the Congress, which he says is "unprecedented in its corruptibility."

"Instead of dis-electing a president, we should instead look towards chipping away at the congressional manure pile that is stinking in Washington," the ad said.

Leon also has formed the Just Judgment on Jimmy Carter Committee, which has only one member at present, Leon himself. He hopes the committee will grow enough to battle Carter critics and the news media, which he said is trying to drive Carter out of office.

"Ever since Nixon was rightfully ousted with the help of the press, the media of the U.S. has had a carnivorous appetite for presidents who do not meet their standards," the ad said.

Godunov disappeared without saying a word to his ballerina wife, Ludmilla Vlasova.

The correspondent said Godunov is being "kept under guard in a secret place" and that his only statement to the press so far were the words: "I am in a state of complete shock and horror."

On Tuesday, the Soviet news agency Tass made the first official mention of Godunov since his defection and said the circumstances of disappearance were "not yet clear."

Literaturnaya Gazeta also published an interview today with Miss Vlasova, who returned home Tuesday after a 74-hour U.S.-Soviet standoff at Kennedy Airport.

In the interview she was quoted as saying: "After the sudden disappearance of my husband, I immediately felt that I was in danger. Everywhere I walked, an automobile with unknown people in it followed me.

"That is why I decided to return home immediately on the next Aeroflot flight, though I was very worried about my husband."

When U.S. officials grounded the plane and police surrounded it, "it was absolutely clear to me that they were plotting against something awful," the ballerina reportedly said.

Attempts by Western reporters to interview Miss Vlasova continued to be unsuccessful.

Charge A 4th Army Recruiter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another Army recruiter faces charges that he helped prospective volunteers with their entrance examinations.

The Army filed charges Tuesday against Sgt. Major Ernest R. Richardson of Lakewood, Fla., the fourth recruiter charged so far in the Charlotte, N.C., recruiting district. Officials say he faces a possible court martial trial with penalties ranging from confinement to a bad conduct discharge. In all, 26 other recruiters in the district have been relieved of duties. Eight have been offered non-judicial, or less than court martial, punishment.

Minority Recruiting Is Producing Good Results

By C.G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — "I couldn't watch," DeWayne Davidson said. "I turned my head."

Davidson, a high school junior from Mesa, Ariz., was afraid the ingenious vehicle he had created with his partner, Robert Boswell of Chicago, would fall and the egg inside would break when it fell to the bottom of a three-story elevator shaft.

He and Boswell, a junior at Dunbar Vocational High School, formed one of five teams — all made up of high school juniors — asked to create packaging for the egg-drop test one day this summer at the Illinois Institute of Technology. And they won.

The test is part of IIT's "early identification program" to recruit more minority students and women, especially the disadvantaged, into engineering, where women and minorities long have been under-represented.

Each summer since 1974 up to 150 high school students, largely from Chicago's inner-city schools, have given up their vacations for an intensive seven-week introduction to engineering.

The students in the egg-drop group were concluding their stint in mechanical engineering under Prof. Serop Kalpakjian. Before the actual test of their inventions, each team had to make an oral and visual presentation to the class and be subjected to questioning about design rationale, materials and costs.

They were scored on the accuracy of the fall and whether the egg inside the package broke. Only one did.

The vehicle created by Davidson and Boswell was highly sophisticated. It consisted of a clear red plastic tetrahedron mounted on stainless steel rods, inside which rested a perfect white chicken egg in a Styrofoam container in a bed of cotton balls.

Surrounding the tetrahedron were clear plastic flaps mounted horizontally along the bases of the triangle to break the fall and angled in such a way as to make it spin during its descent.

The tetrahedron, with Davidson not looking, landed just off center with the egg still in perfect condition.

Davidson, who is white, and Boswell, who is black, were awarded "Payday" candy bars for their prize.

A team of two black women suspended an egg in a crochet basket with springs inside a Styrofoam dome on a flat base with suction cups on the bottom. They, too, had a near-perfect landing and an intact egg.

IIT professors visit some 90 Chicago area high schools to talk with blacks, Hispanics and women who might be interested in engineering and who are smart enough to get a college degree in that field. Recruiters also visit college fairs around the country.

Dr. Thomas L. Martin Jr., IIT president and chairman of the committee on minority engineering for the National Academy of Engineering, says the committee's goal is to increase the number of minorities in engineering by 1,000 percent over the next decade.

At present, less than 5 percent of American engineers come from minorities. The percentage of minorities entering engineering schools as freshmen is now up to just over eight.

"Once these kids learn some one cares and that they can do the work, they breeze through," Martin said of the IIT participants.

That is obvious to visitors. In one classroom, students who haven't finished high school may be working under Dr. Henry Messenger on complicated computer problems ordinarily assigned college students.

Students in Dr. Lois Graham's solar engineering laboratory may be putting finishing touches on solar collectors covered with kitchen foil over which they will have a weenie-roast on the last day of that class. Or they may be creating finely calibrated sundials.

Carl Johnson, director of minority student affairs at IIT, said about 85 percent of high school students who participate in the program go on to college, and about 67 percent choose engineering.

"There are not a lot of role models for these students," he said, pointing out that there are few blacks, Hispanics and other minorities in engineering whom they can emulate.

The program begins in the spring, when about 300 students are on campus for three Saturdays for an introduction to engineering. This summer's 120 students are mostly the top students from the spring group.

Thomas said in an interview that most students "are really astounded that such things are going on and that such things are within their grasp."

Most inner-city schools do not stress college preparatory courses so students are not encouraged to take the math and science they need.

After participating in the IIT program, he said, they "track themselves" into additional math and science courses. IIT also has Saturday tutorial classes during the school year to provide further math instruction for about 200 students.

Dr. Graham says "the first myth our program exploded" was that there were no capable minority kids. She pointed out that there are differences in the quality of city schools and some do have superior academic programs while others stress athletics.

She said that during the program the students learn how to prepare resumes and how to conduct themselves during an interview.

The students also are taken on tours of such places as Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago and to a variety of industries so they can see engineers at work.

Messenger said he does not go easy on the students. The tasks he assigns them, he said, are "exactly as they are done in practice."

Kalpakjian also said, "I do the same thing with these kids that I do with the regular college kids."

The fact that high school students from inner-city schools are able to do so well on such sophisticated assignments, he said, indicates that the schools are better than they often are said to be.

Charge Unusual Action By Museum Director

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Roy Hobin, director of the North Carolina Museum of Life and Science, gave employees museum artifacts and indulged in other unusual behavior, according to the museum's board of directors.

The artifacts, including a World War I German machine gun, antique rifles, an Alaskan brown bear skin and an oak work bench, were given to employees in March, according to board chairman Roy Teer.

A member of the board's executive committee conducted an informal inventory after the committee learned of his action and discovered other items were missing and still others were hidden.

Museum employees also reported that Hobin:

—Ordered traps to be set on museum property to catch rabbits and squirrels to feed to the museum's cougar.

—Shot an airgun at birds on museum property.

—Jeopardized the life of a museum animal.

—Cut down a tree that provided shade for the museum's cougar.

—Cut down honeysuckle that had been planted to cover a chain-link fence and provide a natural barrier.

None of the artifacts that were given to employees has been returned to the museum.

"There's been no effort to get them back," said Teer. "Some have been resold by the employees, which concerned us. But there was not a lot we could do about it."

Neither Hobin nor Teer could place a value on the items. The directors have ordered Hobin not to dispose of any other artifacts without their approval.

Hobin's action was "an error in judgement," Teer said.

Employees reported the gifts to the directors at the board's July meeting.

One employee said, "Five of us were called to a staff meeting in the primate room where some artifacts are stored. Hobin told us that, 'they'll take inventory soon and they'll take whatever they want.' We assumed he was talking about the directors. He told us that one of the board members wanted to take some of the artifacts and donate to another museum in his name.

"He told us to take whatever we wanted but not to be greedy. He said that because our salaries were low, this was one way of compensating us," the employee said.

Other employees gave similar accounts of the meeting.

Teer said the board's executive committee met with Hobin after it learned the artifacts had been given away. According to board minutes, "Hobin gave the artifacts to employees thinking they were junk."

Labor Day A Costly Holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says it will cost $1.75 million in lost interest, but Social Security recipients won't have their September checks delayed because of Labor Day.

Labor Day comes next Monday, the day the checks are due for delivery. So to keep them from being late, they will be mailed in time for receipt Friday, three days early. A Social Security official says the early mailing of $9 billion in checks will cost $1.75 million in lost interest.

as a later entry to the board.

Declarer won the opening lead in his hand and cashed the king of spades to see if anything startling developed. When both defenders followed with a low trump, declarer led a low heart to dummy's nine. East won the ace and switched to a club.

Declarer rose with the king, entered dummy by overtaking the ten of hearts with the jack to try the spade finesse. When this succeeded, declarer drew the last trump, cashed the king of hearts and got back to dummy by ruffing a diamond with dummy's last trump. His losing club was sluffed on dummy's high heart, and the contract was made.

Note that the contract will fail if declarer ruffs a diamond early. East will hold up his ace of hearts until the third round of the suit is played, and declarer will have no entry to dummy to enjoy the thirteenth heart.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deal opening leaders!" ## CORRECTION

On Page 8 of today's Sears circular, the 19101 washer is shown with 2 water levels and only has one. It does have 2 pre-set water temperature combinations.

The 29831 washer has 4 water levels shown in teardrop...it is incorrect. It does say 3 water levels in body copy...this is the correct information.

The 69401 refrigerator art work is incorrect. The icemaker is optional and the price is not included in the sale price.

With 24 points in aces and kings, and added "body" in the form of two tens, South might have upgraded his hand and opened three no trump. That he felt guilty about his actual action was amply demonstrated by the subsequent auction. After North elicited the information that his side had a 4-4 fit and bid game in spades, South not only bid again, he leaped to slam.

An examination of the combined holding makes it obvious that slam is not a good undertaking. First, there is the inevitable heart loser. Then declarer has to avoid losing a trump trick, which is considerably less than a 50-50 proposition because of possible 4-1 or 5-0 splits. Finally, there is the less serious matter of disposing of the odd club.

It is perhaps a trifle hypocritical to carp about South's bidding, for he timed his plays perfectly to fulfill his perilous contract. He refrained from ruffing the opening lead, because a diamond ruff would be needed

Pitt Soil And Water Conservation District

July 1, 1978 — June 30, 1979

PITT SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT has again fulfilled our motto, "CONSERVATION — DEVELOPMENT — AND SELF-GOVERNMENT."

CONSERVATION. Pitt District gives top priority to providing assistance to Farmers, Units of Government, Home Owners, and other Land Users who need help to install conservation practices and make wise land use decisions. Requests continued high during the year for assistance in helping individuals solve resource related problems. Our Staff also worked with County and Town Agencies to review site development plans. These services ensure that our natural resources are protected as the growth of Pitt County continues.

DEVELOPMENT. Pitt District has sponsored Small Watershed Projects for much of the land within Pitt County. We are proud to report that construction started this year on both Chicod Creek and Swift Creek Watersheds and that an environmental re-appraisal of Little Contentnea Creek Watershed is being made. Our goal is to continue the construction of Chicod Creek and Swift Creek Watershed Projects and to continue providing the technical assistance needed in applying necessary conservation measures to the land. Continued economic growth and quality of life for residents in Pitt County depend upon adequate drainage and erosion protection for our land.

SELF-GOVERNMENT. Pitt District is an independent Unit of State Government responsible to the citizens in the District, and it has the specific responsibility of conserving natural resources. The District's boundaries coincide with the boundaries of Pitt County.

Pitt District is governed by a five-member Board of Supervisors who serve without pay. Currently serving as members are Robert G. Little, Grimesland, Chairman; F. Curtis Martin, Bethel; Ralph C. Tucker, Greenville; Moses W. Moye, Farmville; and A. D. Hicks, Grifton. These Supervisors have the responsibility of coordinating all soil conservation activities within the District. They serve as a link between the people of Pitt County and the State, Federal, County, and Private Agencies working with resource conservation programs.

Pitt District's Board of Supervisors are very active in County, Regional, and State Conservation Organizations. These Organizations reflect the functions of the District and are very beneficial to the District's progress. Some of the activities they have been involved with this year are:

- Robert G. Little — Chairman, Northeastern Area V Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors
- Secretary-Treasurer, Pitt County Drainage District No. 9
- Vice-Chairman, Watershed Committee, N. C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts
- F. Curtis Martin — Representative of Pitt District, Pitt County Sedimentation and Erosion Control Commission
- Ralph C. Tucker — Representative of Pitt District, Mid-East RC&D Council
- President, N. C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts
- All Supervisors — Hosts, Annual Meeting of Northeastern Area V Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors held on November 14, Moose Lodge, Greenville

Pitt District's Board of Supervisors meet in regular session on the first Monday in each Month at 1:30 P.M. at their office to initiate and carry out a diversified and well-balanced Conservation Program to meet the wide range of community needs in Pitt County. All residents of Pitt County are welcome to attend these meetings.

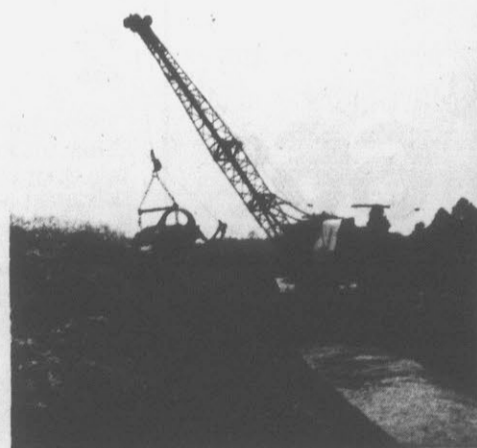

Pitt District office is located in Room 213, Federal Building, 225 Evans Street, Greenville, N.C. (depicted above).

Office personnel are: Mrs. Ruth H. Smith, District Office Manager; Albert Coffey, SCS District Conservationist; Timothy Garrett, SCS Soil Conservationist; Claude Long, SCS Soil Conservation Technician; Lonnie Faulkner, District Soil Conservation Technician; and Dalton Vincent, District Soil Conservation Technician. Pitt District offers and provides free, valuable conservation services to the people of Pitt County, and the Staff may be contacted regarding the services available through the District.

As Pitt County grows, the Soil Survey continues to provide the information useful to Developers, Farmers, and Land Users. It is available for distribution in the District office.

Pitt County Small Watersheds

Construction began on the Chicod and Swift Creek Watersheds during the year. The purposes of the Watershed Projects are flood prevention and agricultural water management.

Construction work along streams is conducted from one side only. Trees on the undisturbed side provide shade needed by fish.

Flooding continues to be a problem for Pitt County residents. Watershed Projects reduce the impact of flooding.

2450 Acres of Cropland were improved by proper combination of Drainage, Conservation Cropping Systems, and Crop Residue Management. Shown is Soil Conservationist Tim Garrett examining Crop Residue.

No-Till Planting is one method of preventing erosion from wind and water. District Technician Lonnie Faulkner is shown checking the growth of soybeans which were planted in small grain stubble.

An evaluation was made of the 63-acre Critical Area Seeding on four Pitt County High School grounds during the year. Funded through the Mid-East RC&D Project, the seeding was found to be in good condition.

Failing Grade For Absenteeism Upheld

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A federal judge has refused to order the Virginia Beach School Board to promote a 10th grader who failed because of too many absences and to bar enforcement of the board's attendance policy.

U.S. District Judge John A. MacKenzie rejected lawyer Peter G. Decker's request for the temporary injunctions Tuesday and his argument that the attendance policy is unconstitutional.

on its face. "If there is any constitutional illegality, it is in its application," MacKenzie said. He said the case hinges on a factual dispute that will require proof the attendance policy was applied unevenly among pupils. His action means that a full hearing will be conducted on the merits of the case.

Billie Sue Hendricks, 16, a student at Kempville High School, was not promoted to 11th grade because of excessive absences, even though she passed her courses.

The School Board's policy says students who miss more than 15 class periods in a semester course or more than 30 class periods in a year-long course, will be denied credit for the courses, "unless extenuating circumstances are established."

Of 86 requests throughout the system for waivers because of extenuating circumstances, 68 were granted. At Kempville, about 25 requests were granted.

School records show Miss Hendricks missed as many as 39 class periods in some courses, 12 because of vacation trips taken with her parents.

Decker said in a suit filed Aug. 10 against the School Board, School Superintendent E. E. Brickell and Principal J. W. French, Miss Hendricks' constitutional rights were violated. He asked for $1 million in damages.

Jack E. Greer, attorney for the defendants, argued the attendance policy is reasonable and beneficial.

Greer said the only effect on Miss Hendricks is that she will not be in an 11th-grade classroom.

He said she would have to repeat only one of the courses — a required English class — she took last year. Her other courses all were electives.

She still could graduate with her class by taking extra classes and attending summer school, Greer said.

Greer said the administration believes there is a rational relationship between attendance and academic achievement.

"Not by any stretch of the imagination is it (the policy) unconstitutional," he said.

He said the state legislature gives school boards the authority to establish school rules and that the court would be overstepping its bounds if it issued injunctions against the School Board.

After MacKenzie denied the temporary injunctions, Decker asked that Miss Hendricks be allowed to officially enter the 11th grade, pending a full hearing.

He said it would do her "irreparable harm" to sit in a 10th-grade classroom with students who were a year behind her.

MacKenzie refused, saying it would do greater harm to have rules "twisted to suit Miss Hendricks."

Decker said Miss Hendricks will be in school "somewhere" when the school year opens Tuesday.

New Rise In Milk Prices

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The cost of milk will go up by at least 4 cents per gallon by Oct. 1 because of a new farm price increased approved Tuesday by the North Carolina Milk Commission.

And another increase may loom in sight before the year's end. The two major groups representing North Carolina's dairy industry told the commission that Tuesday's increases would still not enable dairymen to keep pace with inflation.

The commission will consider the request for still another increase on Oct. 9.

The commission, responding to rising economic indicators are used to compute the farmer's selling prices, said beginning Oct. 1, dairymen could ask for an extra 20 cents — or $13.53 — for every 100 pounds of Class 1 milk sold to processors.

Class 1 milk is the milk used for drinking.

The increase, along with one in July, means that milk prices will increase 2 cents a gallon in September and 2 cents in October, according to Geoffrey A. Benson, an economist at North Carolina State University.

In July, the commission told farmers that beginning Sept. 1, they could charge $13.33 per 100 pounds, an increase of 20 cents over the $13.13 rate now in effect.

Each increase results in an additional 1.7 cents per gallon of milk, Benson said. But because retailers often pass on their other costs, prices are expected to increase by 4 cents a gallon by October.

J. Clifton Harper of Winston-Salem, the only commission member to vote against the hearing on Oct. 9, said, "I realize this has been called for by responsible people who are in a bind, but there's a heck of a lot of other people in a bind that are buying the milk."

Ninety, And Still Checking

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Carl Smith, 90, who considers himself Green County's unofficial rain recorder, says he occasionally gets calls from attorneys, barroom bettors and others asking about his records.

"I've had lawyers call me because they needed information on road conditions on particular days," said Smith, who started keeping rainfall records as a hobby in the 1930s after he quit work as an English teacher.

Smith, who also keeps busy as a writer, checks his backyard rain gauge three times a day. While he considers his records to be accurate, he concedes they are pretty local.

"What I record might not be of any consequence to someone on the other side of the road because of the patchy rain that occurs, especially around here," he said.

Big Fee Set To Hear Califano

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a reported $10,000, Joseph Califano Jr., will wax philosophical for you.

A New York booking agent is lining up speaking engagements for the former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, fired by President Carter last month. A source close to Califano said his asking price was $10,000.

And Califano, in a telephone interview Tuesday from his vacation home in Wellesley, Mass., said, "that's in the ball park." Califano said the American Dental Association, the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Association and two colleges already have booked him. It could not be learned if they were paying the full fee.

Selling Ashes Of Chicago Fire

By PAULINE JELINEK
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Never mind bingo. And no Ash Wednesday jokes, please.

St. Michael's Church is planning to help finance a $2.5 million church renovation project by selling heaps of ashes parishioners say are left over from the Great Chicago Fire of 1871.

"It's really being sold as a collectible," said the Rev. Donald F. Miller, pastor of the church in the Near North Side Old Town neighborhood. "There is nothing holy about this at all."

Not that the sale is a wholly economic venture. The ashes have been packaged in apothecary jars and carry a printed message Miller likes to think is somewhat spiritual.

"The discovery of these ashes," it says, "is a reminder of the spirit and drive with which the people of Chicago rebuilt their city and their church."

History books say there wasn't much left of Chicago after the fire. And a history of the church shows it had only pillars and some interior walls standing after the fire died out.

But many German artisans were among the congregation, Miller said, adding that, "You didn't call in a big construction firm then." So the parishioners used the surviving foundation and reconstructed the present church right on top of the ashes, which were shoveled into tunnels in the old basement.

Within two years and two days, he said, parishioners had rededicated the new church, one of Chicago's largest, with a clock tower said to be the tallest in the city.

In the last 20 years, the neighborhood has changed, and much of the German Catholic community has dispersed, Miller said. Lack of money has caused officials to neglect substantial leaks and creaks in the old structure.

Negotiations are under way to sell adjacent property the church once used for a high school, elementary school and clergy quarters. The sale is expected to net about 75 percent of the money needed for the renovation, Miller said.

A friend to whom he recently gave some of the ashes joined with some other businessmen to devise the promotion.

Miller said the men hope there are enough ashes and enough buyers to come up with the remaining one-fourth of the renovation money. He says the charge for each bottle of ashes — $18.71, naturally — may net that goal.

Still Remember 'Bug Invasion'

By JIM BOARDMAN
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It still smells like dead fish at Devon Breitenbeker's mountain farmhouse, where members of his family spent six weeks fighting a mysterious invasion of billions of black bugs.

And Lisa Breitenbeker, 18, says experts tell them the pesty but harmless insects may be back in even larger numbers next summer, like a black tide inching down the mountainside to her home 50 miles north of Salt Lake City.

Early on the morning of July 7, the bugs began swarming around and through the Breitenbeker's home in what appeared to be an isolated phenomenon.

It was several days before the bugs were identified as bristletails, a half-inch-long relative of the silverfish. And it was six weeks before they were wiped out.

"At first you didn't want to go out of the house," Miss Breitenbeker said Sunday in a telephone interview. "It was really scary and you really felt helpless."

"Me and Mom were fighting like crazy to keep them out of the house. They were so small they could crawl through any little crack or surface," she said.

Several days after the bugs appeared, Box Elder County launched an aerial insecticide attack on the black horde. The next day, and for a month thereafter, teams sprayed up and down the mountainside.

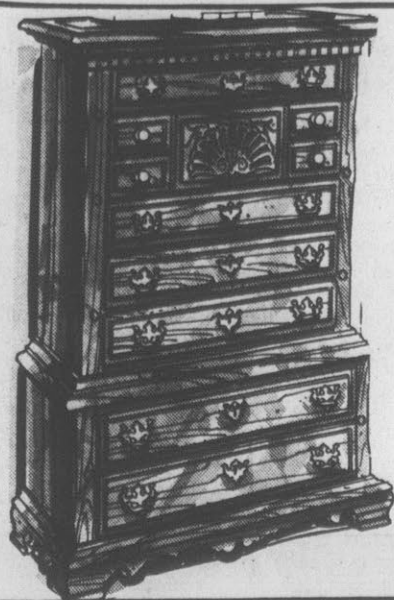

But, Miss Breitenbeker said, "There were so many on the mountain that they kept coming."

Each morning, she said, family members would "sweep up piles and piles" of the bugs. "During the night they'd move in and we'd have tons more the next morning," she said.

"There for awhile they really smelled bad. It kind of smells like dead fish," she said.

TWOSOME CROSSES CANADA — Dave Halsey and Peter Souchuk, both Chicago-area natives, are pictured in their canoe during their two-year, off-and-on again expedition across Canada. Halsey, 22, and Souchuk, 25, were such tenderfeet they wore their snowshoes backwards for 100 miles and caused a sensation when they strode into an Indian village at the beginning of their 4,800-mile trek. More Than 6,500 Teachers Are Out

By BARRY HANSON
 Associated Press Writer
 More than 6,500 striking school teachers disrupted classes in seven states today, but some walkouts were resolved as other districts struggled to reach agreements before classes begin next week.
 In Oklahoma City, where a strike of more than 1,000 teachers entered its sixth day, high school students out of class blocked traffic Tuesday and hurled rocks at passing buses.
 All 85 schools in the Jefferson Parish district in suburban New Orleans remained open Tuesday, despite a strike by more than 2,000 teachers over wages in a two-year contract. School officials say the four-day-old walkout is losing steam, but union leaders say fewer teachers are showing up for classes.
 More than 1,800 teachers were off the job in six Michigan districts with a total of some 60,000 students. Meanwhile, 100 teachers in Cassopolis, Mich., reached a tentative agreement on a new contract late Tuesday night. The teachers had failed to show up for orientation Tuesday.
 Word that the Detroit Federation of Teachers, which represents 12,000 teachers, had agreed to a tentative contract "fell apart" when union officials found a "snag in the contract language," said union spokeswoman Yvonne Johnson. School is scheduled to begin Sept. 6.

Tar Heel Introduced 'Hollywood Trick'

By Dr. H. G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Variations of the scene were made famous by silent motion pictures: Tied to a railroad as the train approaches, the hero or heroine is rescued at the last second.

A Hollywood trick? Not at all. The idea was introduced by a North Carolinian. In 1899, Munsey's Magazine wrote, "The sudden death of Mr. Augustin Daly has created a vacancy in the managerial field in New York which will, in all probability, never be filled." A year earlier, Metropolitan Magazine had called Daly "America's foremost play producer."

In North Carolina, the name of Augustin Daly is memorialized only by a single highway historical marker in the town of Plymouth where he was born July 20, 1838.

His parents, Dennis and Elizabeth Duffey Daly, had settled in Plymouth that year and acquired the Armistead property, consisting of a lumber business, warehouse and wharf. When the boy was only 3 years old, his father died of fever at Ocracoke.

After settling her husband's estate about 1846, Elizabeth Daly moved with her two sons to Norfolk, Va. In 1851, however, they moved to New York. Young Augustin attended school, held odd jobs, and frequented the performances of several dramatic societies.

As a teen-ager, he took roles in several plays, but his interest seemed to be more specifically in writing. By 1859 he was drama critic for the Sunday Courier for which he wrote a series signed "Le Pelerin." Before long he was writing reviews and articles for four other New York newspapers. He also began adapting European dramas to the American stage. His first success came in 1862 — a free adaptation of Moshenthal's "Deborah" under the new title "Lean the Forsaken" with Kate Bateman in the title role. He also wrote the dramatization of Charles Reade's "Giffith Gaunt."

Daly's first major original drama, "Under the Gaslight," was performed in 1866. It was in this play that he used the tied-to-the-rails innovation. Later, in "After Dark," Boucicault imitated the mechanical device, but Daly enforced his claim to the invention through the courts. By 1869, Daly was successful enough to take over the Fifth Avenue Theatre at Madison Square. In its first season, 23 plays were staged, including "Frou Frou," which ran for 100 nights.

In that same year, he married Mary Duff, daughter of John A. Duff, proprietor of New York's Olympic Theatre.

Daly opened a new Fifth Avenue Theatre at 28th Street, but he gave it up because of financial reverses in 1877. Surprisingly, however, only two years passed before he opened Daly's Theatre at Broadway and 30th Street. Acquiring other property in the vicinity, Augustin Daly developed an entire theatrical complex which attracted both students and leading actors and actresses. Among his favorites was Ada Rehan, the noted Shakespearean actress.

Called "America's first cosmopolitan dramatist-manager," Daly demonstrated a new degree of professionalism in writing, directing and managing. By 1888, the New York World said, "His is among the most familiar names of all American playwrights." But his name became familiar also in Europe, and in London he built Daly's Theatre, a fashionable showplace which opened in 1893. Metropolitan Magazine said in 1898: "Mr. Daly, advancing step by step, has gradually, through his own peculiar methods, founded a school of acting whose exponents have won an international reputation for the American drama." By then the Plymouth native had written, adapted, and staged 70 productions of his own, staged more than 40 plays by other authors, prepared and staged 22 comedies, and revived 15 Shakespearean comedies and tragedies. Daly died in Paris on June 7, 1899, and his body was sent back to New York where St. Patrick's Cathedral was filled for his funeral. Within a year his theatrical complex in New York was dismantled and his London properties sold. His distinguished library and collection of decorative arts were sold at auction. After all debts had been paid, his estate was valued at $184,000 — a large amount in 1900.

Debt Buildup Is Encouraged

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP. A number of articles have been written recently concerning the build-up of debt, particularly in the consumer sector. Most of these stories, however, have centered around the consumer's ability to repay that debt; few have addressed the relationship between overall debt levels and the state of the economy. A recent Wall Street Journal did.

Despite the current high level of interest rates, consumer credit rose at an annual rate of 16 percent in the June quarter and corporate borrowing was up 20 percent.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices slipped in the early going today after posting fractional losses in the previous session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks declined .60 to 884.04 in the first half hour of trading.

Losing issues outnumbered gainers by a tiny margin in the early tally of trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Commerce Department announced shortly after the market opened that the index of leading indicators — designed to forecast economic trends — declined .04 percent in July, offering further evidence of a slowdown in the economy. It was the third decline in the index in four months.

Interest rate worries also have weighed on the market in recent sessions, analysts say. On Tuesday many banks increased their prime lending rate to a record 12 1/4 percent and that was expected to continue spreading through the industry today.

Among actively traded stocks in the early going, Great Western Financial rose 1/4 to 26 3/4; Boeing fell 1/2 to 45 1/4; Dow Chemical slipped 1/4 to 30 1/4 and J.P. Stevens rose 1/4 to 14 1/4.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average slipped .77 to 884.04.

Declining issues outnumbered gainers by a slim 7-6 margin on the NYSE. Big Board volume came to 29.43 million shares against 32.05 million in the previous session. It was the slowest trading day since Aug. 6 when 27.19 million shares traded.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index declined .06 to 62.16.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .95 at 216.45.

Fear Over A Stranger

WENTWORTH, N. C. (AP) — Kelly Gallaher, a 22-year-old college student from Pine Bluff, Ark., had no idea what selling Bibles door to door could lead to.

All he wanted was to raise some tuition money so he could return to Hendrix College in Conway, Ark., to complete his senior year.

But his appearance in North Carolina's Rockingham County spurred hundreds of calls to the county sheriff's office. A spokesman said the calls concerned "a suspicious man driving a white Ford Pinto with Arkansas plates."

Rumors flew that the stranger might be the rapist still at large who has been victimizing women in neighboring Guilford and Forsyth counties.

Gallaher was cleared by county law enforcement authorities, but due to the fear the rapist has instilled in residents of Rockingham County, the Bible salesman has found doors closed to him.

Gallaher, who has been residing in Stuart, Va., just across the state line, said, "I know of at least one instance where I was ringing the door bell and the mother was huddled in the basement with her children, frightened."

The sheriff's department asked Gallaher to move on, although acknowledging it could not legally keep him out of the county.

Less Desirable Tobacco Grades Affect Average

FARMVILLE — Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade, reported that the marketing of large quantities of less desirable grades of tobacco Tuesday was responsible for a drop in average co ared with Monday's sale.

Williams said that leaf grades continue to account for most of sales, while the top price continues at $1.55 per pound.

The volume of green grades of tips continue to increase, he pointed out. Williams added that, grade for grade, prices have been steady for the past several weeks.

The market sold 343,195 pounds Tuesday for $500,819, an average of $1.45.93 per hundred pounds. To date, Farmville warehouses have sold 12,300,916 pounds for $17,133,085, an average of $1.39.28 per hundred pounds.

Revival Series Begins Tonight

Revival services will begin Wednesday, August 29, at the Greenville Church of God, 7:30 p.m., with the Rev. Millard Maynard of Pembroke as evangelist. Special singing will be featured each evening. The Rev. E. L. Newton, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Church Preschool Program Organized

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Havens has been named director of the preschool program at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, it was announced today.

As director, Mrs. Havens will assume the responsibility of heading the Jarvis Weekday School, a nursery school program, and Mother's Day Out, a church-sponsored babysitting service operated on Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

In addition to the three-day program for four-year-olds, and the two-day three-year-old class, Jarvis will offer a one-day program for two-year-olds this year, Mrs. Havens said.

A Tarboro native, Mrs. Havens received a BA degree in elementary education and sociology from Meredith College. Her teaching experience includes positions in Virginia Beach, Va., Dunn, and Tarboro.

Both the Mother's Day Out and Weekday School programs will open September 5.

The nursery school program runs five days a week from 9 a.m. until 12 noon from September through May, while the Mother's Day Out program operates from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. from September through May, for children 4 months through five years of age.

Reservations for the baby sitting service can be made by calling Mrs. Havens on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:15 a.m. until 11:15 a.m. at 752-1902.

Televising A Salute To Elvis

CHARLOTTE — "The Love of Elvis — The Legend Lives On" is a celebration of the King of Rock and Roll to be aired beginning at 9 p.m. Thursday, August 30 over WRET-TV, Channel 36, Charlotte.

Guests on the program will include Jack Lemmon, Peter Sellers and Sally Field talking about personal memories of Elvis.

Also featured in the 60-minute special will be performances by Kiss, Earth Wind / Fire, and The Village People.

Borg Relaxed At U.S. Open

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bjorn Borg says he's relaxed and not feeling any special pressure as he bids for his first U.S. Open championship. Defending champion Jimmy Connors, Borg's arch rival, hopes to change that over the next two weeks.

Borg, who frequently has to fight for his life in early matches of major tournaments, breezed past former NCAA champion Matt Mitchell 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 in a first-round match Tuesday at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

Connors, seeded second behind Borg, also won in straight sets, defeating Anand Amritraj of India 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Among the women, top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd opened her quest for a fifth straight title with a 6-0, 6-0 romp over West Germany's Iris Riedel.

Crowds of 10,677 and 7,463 attended the initial day and night sessions of the $563,600 Open, which carries first prizes of $39,000 to the men's and women's singles champions who will be crowned Sept. 9.

Of the 12 seeded players to see action Tuesday, 10 came away with first-round victories. The only exception in the men's draw was Adriano Panatta of Italy, who lost to Kevin Curren, a South African who won the NCAA singles title this spring playing for the University of Texas, 6-3, 7-5, 7-6.

Last year's Cinderella star, Pam Shriver, was upset by little-known Julie Harrington 6-4, 6-1.

The 14th-seeded Shriver, who became the youngest finalist in Open history when she reached the women's singles final at the age of 16 last year, has been bothered by tendonitis in her right shoulder all summer and showed little of her usual effective net game. The 6-footer's serve, which normally sets up the rest of her game, also deserted her, and when the match was over she was visibly shaken as she walked off the court, Coach Don Candy's arm around her shuddering shoulders.

In other opening day matches on the men's side, fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis easily beat Mark Edmondson of Australia 6-3, 6-2, 7-5; No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina defeated Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-1, 6-2, 7-6; No. 8 Victor Pecci of Paraguay outlasted Andy Kohlberg 3-6, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, and No. 10 Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina beat Bruce Nichols 6-1, 6-0, 6-4.

In other women's matches, No. 4 Virginia Wade of Britain beat Paula Smith 6-3, 6-3; No. 6 Dianne Fromholtz of Australia topped countrywomen Dianne Evers 6-3, 6-2; No. 7 Wendy Turnbull of Australia outlasted Marie Pinterova of Hungary 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; No. 8 Kerry Reid of Australia defeated Rosie Casals 6-1, 6-2; No. 9 Billie Jean King downed Zenda Liess 6-3, 7-5; No. 11 Kathy Jordan beat Betty Ann Stuart 6-4, 6-0, and No. 15 Ann Kiyomura topped Beth Norton 6-4, 6-1.

ECU Names Captains

East Carolina University's Pirates didn't let a little thing like an afternoon thunderstorm deter their practice yesterday.

After only a brief delay, the Pirates hit the field for their usual Tuesday afternoon workout.

Coach Pat Dye named game captains for the first contest, Saturday's opener against Western Carolina. Fullback Theodore Sutton and tight end Billy Ray Washington will serve as the offensive captains, while punter Rodney Allen, tackle Vance Tingler, and back Ruffin McNeill will serve on the defense.

The opener will be played in Ficklen Stadium starting at 7 p.m.

Fearless Tigers Beat Angels

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The managers of the California Angels and Detroit Tigers are both talking tough, as befits their identical 71-61 records. There's just one small difference — the Angels lead the American League West by 1 1/2 games while the Tigers are fifth in the AL East, 15 games from the top.

"I think we're the best club in our division and I think we will win it. I think we have a better ballclub than either Kansas City or Minnesota," Jim Fregosi of the slumping Angels said Tuesday night following his team's sixth loss in seven games, a 12-2 drubbing at the hands of Sparky Anderson's streaking Tigers.

"I'll tell you what — I'm not afraid of Boston or Baltimore or any of them now if we can play like this," said Anderson, whose team has won four in a row and 12 of its last 15 games.

In other AL contests, the Milwaukee Brewers outslugged the Kansas City Royals 11-6, the Texas Rangers shelled the New York Yankees 10-2, the Chicago White Sox downed the Boston Red Sox 7-3 and the Oakland A's beat the Toronto Blue Jays 6-3. The Baltimore-Minnesota and Seattle-Cleveland games were rained out.

Jerry Morales drove in three Detroit runs with a double and single while Champ Summers, Alan Trammell and Jason Thompson homered for the Tigers. Despite the setback, the Angels remained 1 1/2 games ahead of Minnesota and Kansas City in the West Division. The Tigers broke the game open with a six-run third inning.

Brewers 11, Royals 6
Gorman Thomas, Sixto Lezcano and Don Money drove in two runs apiece as Milwaukee snapped the Royals' five-game winning streak. The Brewers, winning for the 14th time in 17 outings, moved past Boston into sole possession of second place in the AL East, 6 1/2 games behind Baltimore.

Rangers 10, Yankees 2
Al Oliver hit a homer, double and two singles and Willie Montanez rapped a tie-breaking single and a three-run homer as the victory-starved Rangers snapped a five-game losing streak and won for only the sixth time in 26 games.

White Sox 7, Red Sox 3
Ross Baumgarten pitched seven strong innings and Chicago profited from four Boston errors in dumping the Red Sox back into third place.

A's 6, Blue Jays 3
Jim Essian's three-run homer gave Oakland a 3-1 lead in the fifth inning. However, Toronto tied it in the bottom of the fifth on Alfredo Griffin's inside-the-park homer and the A's took the lead for good an inning later on an RBI single by Rob Picciolo, who had four hits. Picciolo doubled a run home in the eighth and scored on Rickey Henderson's single.

Rick Langford scattered seven hits and struck out 10 in hurling his seventh consecutive complete game.

Southern Cal No. 1, But Must Guard Against Overconfidence

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Southern California has been picked in most quarters as the preseason choice for college football's national championship and one of Coach John Robinson's major problems will be guarding against overconfidence.

If the Trojans hear too much about how good they are, they might start believing it.

"Everybody's vulnerable to flattery," says Robinson. "If somebody said to me, 'Hey, you look like Robert Redford,' the next thing you know I'd be looking in the mirror admiring my nose."

"We have to be careful not to start thinking we're so good we can't lose."

That being the case, it might be a good idea to keep the players far removed from USC's own press guide. From reading Robinson's comments, one might get the idea the Trojans are indeed a super team.

For example:
On tailback Charles White: "Charlie's the best football player in America and he's the most durable player I've ever coached. I think he could play a doubleheader."

On quarterback Paul McDonald: "Paul is an excellent passer with the ability to scramble and watch downfield at the same time so he can change his mind quickly if a play breaks down. He's also very confident, very brave, an outstanding leader and one of the coolest people I've ever seen."

On offensive tackle Anthony Munoz: "Munoz has to be the leading Outland Trophy candidate in the country. He's potentially the finest lineman I've ever been around, and that includes the great players with the Oakland Raiders. In fact, he's one of the great football players I've ever seen at any position."

On inside linebacker Dennis Johnson: "Dennis is one of the premier players in the country. He's got excellent size and speed and great range and he defends the pass as well as any linebacker I've ever seen."

On fullback Marcus Allen: "Marcus isn't built like a normal fullback but he's simply too good an athlete and too competitive to sit on the bench. He gives us the same kind of skills Lynn Cain had."

On backup fullback Paul DiLulo: "He's got the kinds of talents Mose Tatupu had."

On wide receiver Danny Garcia: "He reminds me a lot of former USC stars Randy Simmrin and Johnny McKay."

On wide receiver Kevin Williams: "Kevin is one of the most dramatic big-play receivers in the country, in the class of NFL receivers like Cliff Branch and Mel Gray."

On tight end James Hunter: "You know, every starting tight end from USC in the last 12 years has gone on to play in the NFL and Jim will be no exception. He'll be among the very best from here."

On center Chris Foote:

"Chris is one of the quickest, most athletic centers I've ever been around and I think he's one of the best in the country."

On punter David Pryor: "He seems to thrive on pressure and he can really kick for distance, but what I like most is his quickness in getting the ball away. He might be the quickest we've had in years."

'Skins Face New League

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
ROBERSONVILLE — Last year Roanoke finished second in the Eastern Plains Conference to Hunt, "a 4-A team in a 2-A league," according to Redskins Coach Nolan Respess.

This season, despite moving to the Northeastern Conference following the disbanding of the Eastern Plains Conference, the Redskins again appear to be in a league tailored for larger schools.

"We're still a 2-A team; we're smaller than most of the schools in the conference and with schools like Ahoskie in it, we're going to have a tough time," Respess said.

"It's going to be rough this year, no ifs, ands or buts about it. If I told you we were going to win the conference I'd flat be lying to you. But I don't want to discourage our fans either. I'd say if we can keep in the middle of the race early in the season, we'll be all right."

The Redskins open their season with three nonconference opponents — Belhaven, Ayden-Grifton and Gaston — and Respess feels these three games may be the key to his team's season.

"To have a successful season, first of all, we'll need to win all three of our nonconference games we have early in the season," Respess said.

"If we can do this, we'll have some confidence going into our conference schedule," which begins September 28 at home against Ahoskie.

"I think we're going to knock off some people, or at least scare some people a lot."

Helping Respess frighten opponents will be senior quarterback Glenn Cargile, a four-year starter for Roanoke. "He is a college prospect," Respess said of the two-time all-conference signal caller.

Respess said he had some reservations about Cargile's speed, but speed isn't a problem on the team generally, especially with senior running back Tony Whitfield in the backfield. Whitfield runs the 40 in 4.7 seconds and, according to Respess, is "just a great athlete."

Filling the other halfback slot in the Redskins' wishbone attack is sophomore Anthony Spruill. Junior Jesse Everett and freshman Calvin Andrews will play fullback for the Redskins.

Up front for Roanoke at tackles are senior Terry Cotten (5'9", 145) and junior Darryl Land (6'0", 175), who runs the 40 in 4.7 seconds "I wouldn't trade either one of them for anyone around the league," Respess said.

Wiley Keel (5'10", 180) and Russell Cobin (5'11", 205) will play guard for Respess. Cobin, who will also play middle guard, is the strongest player on the team, Respess said.

Junior Mutt Smith will line up at center, backed up by sophomore Tim Brown. Sophomore Calvin Howell leads the reserves on the offensive line.

"We're looking for speed and quickness in our offensive line, not size," Respess said, explaining the size of some of his linemen.

At split end Roanoke starts Anthony Lathan, who Respess said is "probably the best athlete on the team." Lathan, a senior, also plays defensive back and does the punting for the Redskins.

Defensively, Roanoke, 7-2-1 last year, 5-1 in the conference, will be led by linebackers Maurice Chance (5'11", 165), a defensive end a year ago, and Larry Griffin (5'10", 175).

Mutt Smith and senior Steve Wallace (6'0", 175) will play defensive end, while at tackle four players are still fighting it out. They are Wiley Keel, Donnie Wallace, Warren Matthews and Steve Matthewson.

In the secondary, an area in which Respess feels his team is strong, Donnell Sheppard and Robert Smith will be at the corners, while Lathan and Jeffrey Gainer will line up at safeties.

"We've got some gifted people at the skill positions," Respess said. "The big surprise, though, so far is the team's enthusiasm. They've been willing to change positions, to do what needs to be done without griping."

"I think that in the long run this'll help us, because I know it's going to take more than a few players to compete in this league. I feel like we'll have 20 to 25 players who will play for us," he added.

The Redskins open the season this Friday at Belhaven.

Red-Letter Day For Cincinnati As Reds Take Over First In East

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The last time the Houston Astros were not first in the National League West, it was the Memorial Day weekend.

So today is a Red-letter day for Cincinnati.

After a long uphill climb, the Reds finally moved ahead of Houston Tuesday night with a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies while the Astros were losing a 7-6 decision at Montreal.

"We're starting to come together now," said Reds Manager John McNamara after watching his team win its seventh straight game and 17th in the last 22. "We got very good pitching and three home runs."

The pitching came from rookie Frank Pastore and Tom Hume and the home runs from Joe Morgan, Ray Knight and Dan Driessen.

After Garry Maddox put the Phillies in front 1-0 with his 12th home run of the season in the second inning, Cincinnati tied the game on Morgan's homer opening the fourth. Knight homered leading off the fifth to put the Reds in front again, 2-1, and Cincinnati scored three more times in the sixth on Driessen's homer.

Pastore gave up only five hits in 7-2/3 innings while striking out three and walking one. The rookie pitcher held the Phillies to three hits over the first seven innings but left after giving up singles to Bake McBride and Larry Bowa in the eighth.

Loser Steve Carlton, 13-11, struck out seven in six innings.

Expos 7, Astros 6
Warren Cromartie drove in four runs, including one with a bases-loaded walk in the ninth, to lead Montreal over Houston. Larry Parrish opened the Expos ninth with a single off reliever Pete Ladd and moved to second on a wild pitch.

Pirates 4, Dodgers 1
John Candelaria pitched a four-hitter and Willie Stargell hit a two-run homer to lead Pittsburgh over Los Angeles. Candelaria, 12-8, struck out three and allowed no walks. He lost his bid for his first shutout of the season when Davey Lopes hit his 26th homer of the season in the sixth inning.

Cubs 3, Padres 1
Jerry Martin had an RBI single and Tim Blackwell doubled home a run and Rick Reuschel gained his 16th victory as Chicago beat San Diego.

Reuschel, 16-7, allowed five hits and struck out eight before needing ninth-inning relief help from Bruce Sutter, who picked up his 34th save of the year.

The victory was the seventh straight for Reuschel.

Cardinals 2, Giants 1
George Hendrick's leadoff home run and a run-scoring infield single by Garry Templeton in the seventh inning lifted St. Louis over San Francisco. The home run by Hendrick was his 12th of the season and broke a scoreless tie.

Braves 6, Mets 4
Right-hander Phil Niekro drove in two runs and gained his 17th victory as Atlanta defeated New York. Niekro, 17-17, knocked in runs with a fourth-inning sacrifice fly and his second single of the game in the sixth. Niekro pitched seven innings gave up nine hits, no walks and struck out three.

Danielson Out For Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — When the Detroit Lions play their National Football League season opener Saturday in Tampa Bay, Gary Danielson won't be there. Instead, he'll be in his room at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, wishing he was on the field.

"One hit, and things go from being as good as they can be to as bad as they can be in a matter of seconds," Danielson said as he sat in his hospital bed.

The Lions' 27-year-old starting quarterback was in his fourth season when his career suddenly changed. He was injured on a first-down play late in the third period of the Lions' exhibition game against the Baltimore Colts last Friday night.

Doctors successfully performed surgery on Danielson's right knee Saturday morning, and Tuesday Danielson was talking about it.

"They were depending on me. I was throwing as good as I could. Our offense was good. It was a perfect time to win a championship for this town — and I was at the center of it. Now, it's all ended."

Rogers—Tech To Benefit From ACC

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Pepper Rodgers believes Georgia Tech has much to gain from admission to the Atlantic Coast Conference, particularly in the area of publicity and player recognition.

He cites as an example the case of sophomore quarterback Mike Kelley, an All-ACC pre-season selection. Rodgers is not trying to push Kelley for All-America, saying that is the job of the writers, but he feels increased media coverage will enhance Kelley's chances in the next three seasons.

"That's up to the writers," he said Tuesday when asked if he would endorse Kelley, who he said was "the best young quarterback I've ever had."

The Tech coach told ACC writers that entrance into the conference would help the Yellow Jackets in their identity crisis.

"It certainly would help in the area of publicity," he explained. "We're surrounded by professional sports and I think that has hurt."

He believes Tech's independent status in this city robbed it of out-of-town support. This, he said, deprived all-time leading rusher Eddie Lee Ivery of All-America status following a season in which he gained 1,562 yards and a career in which he totaled 3,517 yards.

"Eddie Lee should have been All-America. He deserved it. I've seen players who didn't but made it anyway because of publicity."

The topic of membership in the ACC was limited by no means to Rodgers. Tech players also thought it would be beneficial, especially when the Yellow Jackets gain complete membership in football. This season Tech plays only Duke, and ACC team they have battled in uninterrupted fashion since 1933.

In 1980 the Yellow Jackets make their first visit as members to other ACC schools. After playing Duke at Grant Field Nov. 3 of this season, Tech travels to Chapel Hill to play North Carolina Oct. 4, 1980, and to Durham to meet Duke four weeks later.

"It's important to be in a conference," said center Tom Daniel, the team captain. "Unless you have a great schedule and win it's tough to get recognition or a ranking unless you're a member of a conference."

What Daniel didn't mention was that conferences offer both strong and weak teams while an independent schedule must be strong enough to enable the team to draw well and gain recognition without many traditional rivalries.

Tech plays a strong schedule that includes Alabama, Florida, Notre Dame, Tennessee, Auburn and Georgia. Such a schedule takes its toll, however.

"With the schedule we've got we have to win a few games early to get into the top 20," said linebacker Henry Johnson, the team's leading tackler last season.

A small bit of recognition already has come Tech's way through the naming of Kelley and defensive end Marvin Dyett, another sophomore, to the preseason All-ACC team.

Kelley said he was pleased to be honored, but felt he would have three years in which to prove himself to everyone. He said he feels no additional pressure, however.

"I get a lot of help here, and it was really smooth last year with Eddie Lee. All I did was hand the ball to him," Kelley explained.

A year ago he threw for 1,479 yards and seven touchdowns.

Much of that yardage, he said, was out of respect for Ivery's talents.

He said he was surprised because of his outstanding high school record, but believes many shied away because he is not a running quarterback.

That, however, did nothing to dim the enthusiasm of Rodgers. "He's got a big league arm and a big league head," Rodgers said of his prize pupil.

Putt Putt Top Player

Bobby Ipock, who won four tournaments in August, became Player of the Year at the Putt-Putt Golf Course for 1979.

During the summer, Ipock won seven tournaments, finished second twice and third five times. Players are awarded points for first, second and third, the amount varying on the importance of the tournament.

Last year's Player of the Year, Junior Knox, finished second with 28 points, four behind Ipock. Knox won four tournaments, finished second three times, and third three times. Carl White finished third with 21 points, Johnny Carrow was fourth with 20, and Jock Squires was fifth with 19.

Potatoes Not Smaller, 'But Maine Farmers Are'

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI National Reporter
OAKFIELD, Maine (UPI) — The Aroostook County farmhouse front room is the kitchen and the Crandall family steps in over the eroded red linoleum for lunch.

A well-populated sticky length of browned fly paper hangs above the scrubbed table where Kenneth (Junior) Crandall, 44, takes the first chair. "What's for lunch?" the farmer said.

"Surprise," said his wife Carolyn. "Potatoes." "Ah, my glory and my curse," Junior said.

Maine produces timber, paper pulp, vacations, lobster and summer fog but potatoes is the nation's usual answer when the question is Maine in a game of word association.

"In Maine, the potato is still king. But a smaller king," farmer Crandall said.

His son, Kenneth III, a 5-foot-5 likeness of his 5-foot-10 father, lopes into the room, nods at mother at the stove, falls onto a chair opposite his father. They toyed with calling him "Junior Junior" and even "The Third" but settled on "Kenneth" because no one but grandmother calls grandfather "Kenneth" anymore and the 10-year-old is unlikely to be confused by that.

"I got 50 acres of potatoes. Oh, I got 100 acres in all. Cut stove wood and a little pulp now and then.

"But the money crop is potatoes. What money there is in them. Which ain't much," Junior said.

"Not much," his wife said. Junior fingered the salt shaker. "Last year was a total loss. Cost $7 a barrel to raise the potatoes. And sold them for an average of $5 a barrel."

Silence except for Mrs. Crandall busy among the pots.

The porch door is opened and closed without a slam. No son this time. In across the linoleum come daughters Elizabeth Anne, 18, and Lisa Lynn, 16, the former named for an English queen and the second for a newer tradition in English name-giving. They kiss parents and sit.

"We used to have dairy cows before Dad retired," said Junior. "Got rid of the cows five years ago."

"Three years ago," said his wife.

"Kind of easy now. September's busy," said Junior. "That's when we harvest the potatoes. About Sept. 20."

"Between the 18th and 20th of every September," his wife said.

Junior: "Yes, they let out school for three weeks."

Wife: "We rely on the kids more than on the grownups."

Junior: "The kids and women. Used to be all men. Didn't see no women in the fields 35 years ago."

Wife: "Thirty."

The final child, the eldest, Bruce, 19, was at the door rubbing his boots on the porch mat. He works at the local starch factory and tracks white powder about. He sat at the foot of the table, opposite his mother.

On the table were sliced cucumber in vinegar sauce, a plate of ham and bologna, bread and potato salad.

"We eat 100 pounds of potatoes a week," Mrs. Crandall said. "Long live the king."

Junior serves himself potatoes before reaching for the meat or cucumbers. "We average about 5,500 or 6,000 barrels a year. About 165 pounds of potatoes in a barrel. Crops down the past few years. Don't know what's the woe."

The sounds of summer lunch. Junior: "Now we're down to 100 to 125 barrels an acre. Used to be 150."

Wife: "Ah, 200."

They talked of that grand year, 1974. The crop was so good and the price, too, and all debts were paid off. Then dryer summers, smaller crops, lower prices. The talk ran into silence after 1977 and 1978 were mentioned. Mrs. Crandall likes a more cheerful table.

She talked of the glory of new potatoes being cooked and then hashed with "butter that doesn't taste half so good on lobster." Her husband thought it over and decided hash is beautiful but baked is best.

But his mind went back to potatoes in the bank. "Brokers and middlemen get most of the money. I raise my potatoes, hold them — I got a potato house that holds 12,000 pounds — and then sell through a broker."

"So the broker takes his cut. The buyer takes his cut. The storekeeper takes his. And the housewife pays $1.25 for 10 pounds."

Junior eats more potatoes. "We just can't go much longer raising at $7 a barrel and selling at $5. That's what making some farmers retire, some go to work driving trucks for the state highway department and some going to work in the pulp mills."

"We'll keep going," his wife said. "That is, if we have a couple more 1974's."

His wife went to the counter for more potatoes. "Well, at least I can say I never have had to eat an Idaho potato."

"I did. Once," her husband said. No smiling. Grandfather Kenneth Crandall and his wife enter. Grandmother sat and said, "Potatoes are not my favorite food."

Silence. Grandfather Crandall, like his daughter-in-law, enjoys a bowl of jollity at mealtime. He talked of yesteryear's potato farming. "Everything was by horse, then. Weren't no energy shortage unless somebody fell asleep," he said.

He talked of how they all picked potatoes in the snow, of trout and salmon, of how there used to be three groceries in town and three starch factories "before the young decided to go to the big city." That led to thought of the future of the Crandall potato farm. The eyes turned toward Bruce.

The teen-ager looked up from his ham and potato salad. "Did I ever think about being a potato farmer? Yes, sir. Last year. For about 10 seconds."

Old Flimflam 'Took' Another

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — It's one of the oldest tricks in the con artist's book, but it still finds takers and it still works. It worked on an embarrassed Beulah Francis, 69, of Kannapolis last week. "I think I was kind of hypnotized," Mrs. Francis said Tuesday. "I'm trying to live it down."

She was conned out of $10,000 by two flimflammers who swindled her into putting up her money in exchange for what she believed was a share of $43,000 discovered in an envelope in a nearby telephone booth.

The con is known as "The Pigeon Drop" and is a classic among flimflams. Mrs. Francis told Kannapolis police she was approached by two women in the parking lot of Zayre's department store about 10 a.m. Aug. 22.

According to Kannapolis Police Sgt. Larry Heintz, this is what followed:

Mrs. Francis was giving one of the women directions when the second woman walked up and asked for directions to the Internal Revenue Service's district office. The second woman said she had just found about $43,000 in an envelope in a nearby phone booth.

The woman said she worked for a Zayre's lawyer. After disappearing into the department store, the woman returned and said her boss had checked a computer and the cash had not been reported stolen.

She told Mrs. Francis her boss had suggested the three women split the money. The two women then told Mrs. Francis they would divide the money three ways if she would put up $10,000 of her own money to show her good faith.

Heintz said Mrs. Francis went to her bank and withdrew two $5,000 savings certificates. Then she went to a second bank where she exchanged the certificates for a certified check.

The check was cashed at a third bank. Heintz said Mrs. Francis was accompanied to the three banks by one of the con artists, who was supposedly putting up $4,000 in "good faith money." When they returned to Zayre's parking lot, the first woman and Mrs. Francis gave their money to the second woman.

The second woman then took the envelope and Mrs. Francis' money inside the store. Moments later, the woman who claimed she worked for the department store lawyer told Mrs. Francis her boss wanted to talk to her.

Mrs. Francis, however, was unable to find anyone in the store who knew anything about the lawyer. And when the two women were nowhere to be found, she realized she had been conned. Heintz said Tuesday chances of recovering the $10,000 were slim.

Heintz described Mrs. Francis as "embarrassed as well as hurt" about falling victim to the con artists. "She looked at it (the $10,000) as an investment," Heintz said. "In a roundabout way, she was investing the good faith money to obtain one-third of the $43,000."

Grants For Research

WINSTON-SALEM — Three grants, totaling $250,613 have been awarded to the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University by the American Cancer Society.

The funds will permit the continuation of work being done in the medical school's Cancer Research Center, one of 45 in the nation.

Dr. Arthur H. Hale, assistant professor of microbiology and immunology, was awarded a $100,613 grant to support his work on how cancer cells can resist detection by the body's natural defenses, while $100,000 was awarded to Dr. Donald L. Evans, assistant professor of microbiology and immunology, to investigate the role of fetal antigens in helping a cancer cell escape detection in the body.

The third grant, for $40,000, will enable the center to bring outstanding cancer researchers to the Bowman Gray School of Medicine for an exchange of information about cancer developments.

GROUNDS FOR TRIAL
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Municipal Court judge has ruled there is sufficient evidence to try Synanon founder Charles Dederich on three counts of conspiracy in connection with a rattlesnake attack on an attorney last October.

Cultists, Town Reach A Truce

UNEASY TRUCE — Sign outside a Limestone, W. Va. church remains, but members of the Hare Krishna community and area residents appear to have finally carved out an uneasy truce. (UPI Photo)

By CHUCK DEBEVEC
LIMESTONE, W.Va. (UPI) — Even now, a sign posted outside a local church proclaims "God wants spiritual fruit, not religious nuts."

But members of the Hare Krishnas' New Vrindaban community and residents of West Virginia's Northern Panhandle appear to have finally carved out an uneasy truce.

Until recent months, the commune was subject to frequent harassment by neighbors who regarded them with scorn, resentment and fear.

There have been at least two shooting incidents since Keith Ham, a Columbia University student from New York who changed his name to Kirtanananda Swami, started New Vrindaban (pronounced Vrindah'ban) in 1968.

Kuladri Das, president of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness-at the commune, says sect members resorted to guns in self defense.

"They were shooting at us every night," Kuladri said. "We received no help from the sheriff's department. We have a few guns but no automatic weapons, no military weapons.

They (detractors) make it sound like we have an arsenal."

Although he says Hare Krishnas are a non-violent people, Kuladri says their religion does not preclude the use of weapons to protect their temple from defilement and for self defense.

With law enforcement agencies, residents and the Krishnas agreeing that their relations are greatly improved, members of the commune are more concerned with the completion of that temple.

In nearly 11 years, the commune has grown in size to a 1,500-acre farm. It presently houses about 250 members, almost entirely American converts. But only 60 percent of them are permanent residents, according to its founder.

The temple already appears an extraordinary edifice. It has an elaborate facade of gold leaf, marble and stained glass. The Krishnas plan to complete it by Labor Day and to celebrate the occasion with a turnout of thousands.

The temple is but a start. The commune has a 10-year plan including a sewage system, already approved by government officials, a new solar-heated school, a cultural center and library, and up to seven more temples.

The Krishnas talk of incorporating New Vrindaban into a city — an example, they say, that their religion works.

"Those who didn't like us here have moved away," said Kirtanananda Swami, 42.

"We are always talking with the people," said Kuladri. "We get along very well with the other congregations. We are always at their churches and teach in their Sunday schools."

Although the Krishnas say he is openly antagonistic toward them, Marshall County Sheriff Robert Lightner, agrees.

"We don't really have that many problems with them," he said. Their feelings about him, he said, were because his department has tagged some of the Krishnas trucks, tractors and heavy equipment for lack of registration numerous times.

"They feel we pick on them," Lightner said. "But I expect them to obey the laws like anybody else."

What appears to bother Lightner, and many other residents, is the fact that the Krishnas keep to themselves. He said he worries that thousands of them could come into the county and influence local elections. He said he feels the secretary of state, the state's chief election officer, should investigate the matter.

"We know what is going on in the county, when there is a death or a new person," he said. "But as far as the Krishnas are concerned, we don't know these things."

Mrs. Ivan Lilley, whose home is on a hill across from a billboard designating the area as Hare Krishna Ridge, said she and her husband owned a small farm that they sold to a party from New York. The farm ended up in the hands of the Krishnas.

"Of course we'd rather they never came here," she said. "But you can't run away from them. They don't bother us."

John Holcomb, who works in Moundsville, the community closest to the commune of any size, said he had lived in the area for almost three years before he even realized the Krishnas were there.

"People seem to think they are hard workers," Holcomb said. "They don't cause any trouble. They're not like the Moonies. They seem happy and don't seem as pushy. They are very open."

Rev. John D. Hardman, pastor at Calvary United Methodist Church in Moundsville, says in his church, which he calls a microcosm of the community, "there are those who consider them a menace and as a threat. They just don't want a 'heathen religion' in our midst."

Personally, he finds them "intriguing." He and some of the other clergymen have taken Sunday school groups out to visit the commune and have had Krishna members speak at their classes.

"I find them to be friendly, very cordial. I've gone there alone, with my family and with a group," he said.

But, he said, there are people who are "scared to death" of the Krishnas and would not let their children visit the Krishnas. The area ministerial association, he noted, has shied away from taking a stand for or against the Krishnas.

His colleague, Rev. Sam Staring of Simpson United Methodist Church, said memories of the death of a college professor who contracted hepatitis while visiting the commune linger.

"I'm always afraid some group that's out drinking will go out and kill a Krishna," he said.

But he believes the Krishnas are good for the community because they have brought some of the outside world to this relatively isolated area.

Kirtanananda said the commune is one of 108 Krishna centers with approximately 30,000 members around the world. There is a 22-member governing board which meets in India each year to study the scriptures and discuss the status of their communities. The Krishna's founder, Swami Prabhupada, died in November 1977.

"We don't have much contact with the other communities," Kirtanananda said. "I do some traveling and teaching, but each community is more or less separate."

He likened the relationship to that of a congregational church which is more or less autonomous from any ruling body.

Critics are suspicious of the amount of money being poured into the temple. They scoff that persons supposedly dedicated to an aesthetic existence are accumulating large land holding and building so opulent an edifice.

The Krishnas answer that the cost is minimized by the fact that they buy only raw materials and do the work themselves. Kirtanananda estimated the cost at $300,000, and noted that compared with what he termed an average church.

And, he said, "Oh, the banks love us. We have no trouble getting money from the banks. We're their best customers. We pay our bills."

One recent incident, which stirred a cloud of controversy over New Vrindaban, appears to have turned out to be what the Krishnas said it was, a custody dispute between the parents over a 7-year-old boy.

Devin Wheeler was reported to have disappeared from the commune but turned up in Mexico City July 16 with his father, Howard Wheeler. The FBI, which had been called into the case by the Justice Department, said it had determined that Devin was not suffering any abuse.

The situation started in 1977 when Devin's mother, Sharon Wheeler, tried to regain custody of him. The Wheelers had been members of the commune, but Mrs. Wheeler had become disenchanted with the lifestyle and left for California in 1976.

She returned to the settlement to take Devin but said the Krishnas forced her to leave without the child. She returned again this spring but Devin was gone. That was when the FBI was called in to investigate a possible kidnaping.

When Howard and Devin Wheeler appeared at the legal attaché's office in Mexico City, FBI agent Dick Jones said that "at this time we are terminating our investigation."

"The Wheelers are attempting to work out a custody situation between the father and mother," he said.

"It's strictly a custody matter," the Swami said. "If it was two Catholics nobody would have said a thing. But because it's us ..."

CHANGING MAKEUP

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — About 25 percent of the 1,000 voting delegates to the United Methodist Church's quadrennial governing conference in 1980 will be women and 12 percent will be minority people, both record highs, a survey by the church communications office finds.

Invented Solar Curing Barn A Bit Too Early

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Joe Fowler is a man who believes he's invented the tobacco-curing barn of the future — it's just that his timing was a little off.

"We were just three years too early," said Fowler, who was forced to close his factory last fall.

"We found that we had to sell our barns at the same price as other barns because the farmers didn't believe they would work," he said.

But Fowler has not given up. He has 25 orders to retrofit units that can be used to convert most tobacco barns to his newer model and is planning to reopen his factory this fall. He also has a patent pending on a liquid petroleum gas engine designed to save energy in curing barns.

Fowler's barn draws most of its energy from the sun, and he says it will reduce farmers' fuel expenses by at least 30 percent.

Name To Appear In Who's Who

Annius C. Smith of Greenville has been selected to appear in the Marquis Edition of "Who's Who in the South and Southwest."

The selection to appear in the edition is based on a person's contributions to society, community activities, religious activities, fraternal affiliations, affiliations with youth activities, and contributions to educational programs.

Smith is presently employed with Pitt County Schools at A. G. Cox School, Winterville, and part time with Farmville Recreation Department. He is a bachelor and resides in Greenville.

Will Speak At Church Service

SNOW HILL — Bishop L. N. Forbes of East Orange, N. J., will speak at the Washington Branch FWB Church here Monday, Sept. 3, at 7:30 p.m.

The White Oak Grove Combined Choirs of Pikeville will present music. The service will be sponsored by the Women's Home Mission of the church and the public is invited to attend.

Small Reward For Big Savings

DENVER (UPI) — G. Marvin Mock, who works for the Colorado Department of Social Services, has offered suggestions that have saved the state more than a quarter million dollars over the years.

As a reward for his work, Mock, a 17-year state employee, has received $195 and three certificates.

But he is not dismayed.

"I don't believe in getting awards for doing your job," said the 53-year-old supervisor of the data processing unit for Social Services. "The only reason I put in the last two is because my boss insisted that I put them in."

In 1971, Mock made a suggestion dealing with the shipment of boxed documents which has saved taxpayers $212,500. Two months ago he offered another suggestion which will save the department $58,000 a year and his most recent suggestion is expected to result in annual savings of $14,000.

Mock's first suggestion should have gotten him a bonus equal to 10 percent of the annual savings, $2,500, but the Legislature did not fund the program that year.

Unprepared For A Nielsen Visit

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It occurred to me the other day, while watching a rerun of "F Troop," that our household would be caught totally unprepared by a visit from A.C. Nielsen Co.

Being chosen as a Nielsen family is a serious responsibility, and carries awesome power. The flip of a Nielsen-family dial bears on the television life of a nation.

My wife, working on the month's budget in the other room, said, in so many words, that she wasn't very concerned. I told her once again the story about how my Pop used to keep a snow shovel in our garage, even though it never snowed on our part of the Gulf Coast. When I asked him why, he said, "You can never be too prepared for anything in this life, son." Sure enough, it snowed that very winter, and I was the only kid on the block whose father had thought to get his kid a snow shovel.

Yes, we had to be prepared for Nielsen.

My first idea was born of a fear of embarrassment. What if a Nielsen fellow showed up at the front door right now, and caught me watching "F Troop"? Maybe, if Nielsen were to choose us as a ratings family, we should turn our dial to PBS and leave it there.

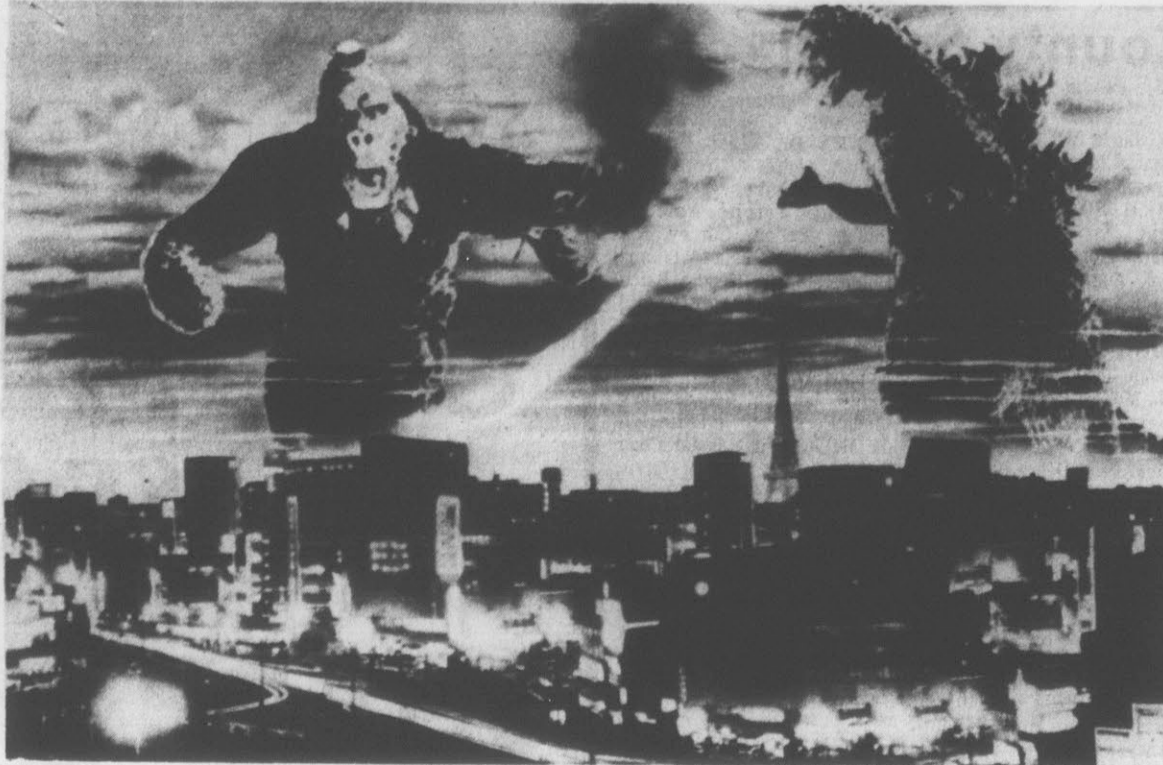

No, that wouldn't do. For one thing, while much of public television is very good, even compelling, some of it is, well ... dull. I watch "Masterpiece Theater" and "Nova," but two episodes of "Yoga For Health" or "Wall Street Week" would drive me to radio.

Then I thought of a less selfish plan. People are always complaining that the good shows never last on network TV, apparently because none of the Nielsen families have good taste. Well, that could be fixed. I could make sure that our dial was always tuned to shows like "Paper Chase" and "The Eddie Capra Mysteries" and "Life-line," if they were ever repeated.

But no, those shows were already axed, and tuning them in would be wasting our important vote.

Finally, after considering and discarding several other plans, I came upon it: We'd just ignore the Nielsen ratings box, and do what we always do, switch from channel to channel.

I'm not sure how the Nielsen people would compute such behavior in their ratings, but I imagine they'd give a little credit to every show that appeared on our screen. If every Nielsen family did this, every show would be top-rated; nothing would ever get canceled, no one would complain, people would be happier, and life would be generally improved.

Determined To Visit Ireland

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The recent bloodshed in Ireland in which 18 British soldiers died has made Pope John Paul II more determined than ever to visit the war-torn country next month, Vatican sources say.

Monsignor Eamonn Marron of the Irish College confirmed there will be "no major changes" in plans for the three-day trip beginning Sept. 29. A Vatican prelate, who asked not to be identified, said, "It was to be a journey for peace and love, and if anything, that objective is more keenly felt now."

After the trip to Ireland, John Paul is scheduled to proceed to the United States for a five-day visit during which he will address the U.N. General Assembly in New York.

Sally Rand In Hospital

GLENDORA, Calif. (AP) — Exotic dancer Sally Rand, suffering from chronic lung and heart disorders, remained in critical condition today at a suburban Los Angeles hospital, officials said.

"The patient is in congestive heart failure with cardiogenic shock," a hospital spokesman said. "Her prognosis is guarded."

Miss Rand's son, Sean, said his mother was admitted to Foothill Presbyterian Hospital Thursday and was transferred to the intensive care unit when her condition worsened.

Miss Rand, 75, achieved fame at the 1933 Chicago World's Fair and has made her living dancing in the nude with long white ostrich plumes ever since.

The fan dance, tame by today's standards, was considered outrageously immoral in the 1930s. She was arrested four times in one day by Chicago police.

But the act became part of the American culture in later years and Miss Rand sometimes performed — while clothed — at church and school benefits.

On Dec. 6, 1917, 1,500 persons died when an ammunition ship collided with a vessel in Halifax Harbor.

Charge Trespass By John Rideout

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Last December, a jury acquitted John Rideout on a charge of raping his wife while they lived together. Now, following a reconciliation and another break-up, police say he has been cited on a trespass charge for allegedly breaking into his ex-wife's home.

Marion County sheriff's deputies said Greta Hibbard, who resumed her maiden name after the divorce, contacted deputies Monday morning complaining that Rideout forced his way through the front door.

Police said Tuesday that Rideout was issued the citation at a restaurant where he works. If convicted on the criminal trespass charge, he could be punished by up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Arlo Invited Viet Family

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"A family of 10 Vietnamese refugees is coming to live with us," says Arlo Guthrie, unexpectedly, in the middle of an interview about his musical career.

ARLO GUTHRIE

"It's a father, seven sons and two grandsons, 6 and 15. He has a wife still in Vietnam and two sons in prison there."

Guthrie was inspired to do this after seeing two television specials about the Vietnamese, one of them about boat people.

"It broke my heart," he says. "I called up my congressman and he put me in touch with the U.S. Catholic Conference, the closest agency for this to our house."

"I called them and they told me to write them a letter. I said, 'No. I'm going on the road. I've got to talk to somebody today.' So in one day we got the ball rolling. The papers showed up and we sent them in."

"It is really simple if anybody wants to do it. It could be a disaster. It doesn't matter. It is already a disaster for those guys."

Guthrie's wife, Jackie, says, "We have two houses. We can organize a nice living trip up there. We'll plant huge gardens next year. I'd like, if this works out and they go on their way, to do it again." Jobs in construction have been lined up for several of the men.

The Guthries and their four children, Abraham, Annie, Kathy and Sara Lee, whose ages range from 9 to 5 months, live on a farm in the Berkshire Mountains.

Guthrie is enthusiastic about Americans' taking in Vietnamese refugees. He says, "I see it as healing a lot of wounds. I think if we open our hearts to these people, the Vietnam War could become a dead issue, and I would love to see it be a dead issue."

"America has already taken in more of these people than any other country in the world and I'm proud of that. I don't know any other way of getting over that feeling of defeat. I don't mean in military terms so much as in cultural terms."

"It is good from the purely spiritual standpoint, too. For all the people who profess some sort of religious conviction, Jesus makes it real clear that most of the time he is hungry and doesn't have a place to sleep or clothes. So I think it is a wonderful opportunity for us to live something rather than just talk about it. I think it is much more of a benefit to us than it is to them."

As for his career, Guthrie has a new LP on Warner Brothers, "Outlasting the Blues," which is the last line of "Wedding Son" on the album. The new single out is "Prologue."

The Guthries were in New York, leaving the children with a neighbor, for him to give an early evening concert in Central Park. First, they headed for lunch to their favorite Indian restaurant, the Shah Jahan.

After they met at the Troubadour in Los Angeles, where she worked, Mrs. Guthrie recalls, "The first place he took me was an Indian restaurant and I could eat three bites." Now he eats the hottest dishes and she eats the near-hot and cooks Indian food at home sometimes.

Guthrie cut his first two albums in New York, his next 11 in Los Angeles and the new one in a studio near Stockbridge, Mass., which is convenient to his home and the homes of Shennandoah, the band which both travels and records with him.

His most popular albums have been "Alice's Restaurant," the first one, "Hobo's Lullabye," which included the hit single, "City of New Orleans," which was written by Steve Goodman. He says, "'Amigo' is my favorite album. It was the least popular. I thought technically it was exquisite and emotionally very satisfying. The album that most people like who buy my albums is 'Washington County.' That seems to be the favorite of everyone, but they haven't heard 'Amigo.'"

"Amigo" was the last on Reprise; since then the label has been Warner Brothers.

Guthrie is 32 now and does not yet know whether he has inherited his father's Huntington's Disease. Woody Guthrie died of it in 1967.

"Thirty-five is an average age for getting it," Guthrie says. "It doesn't usually cross my mind in the usual course of events, except when I'm feeling sick and can't identify it."

Some of Woody Guthrie's songs are now folk-music classics, so one asks Arlo Guthrie if his music is folk music. He says, "That's an apt description of what I do. It's also an apt description of what everybody else does. As Big Joe Williams said, 'I never heard a horse sing.'"

Guthrie tours about nine months a year, with his band, in a bus. He got tired from a routine of taking planes, renting cars and finding no places open to eat. He finds the bus, with bunks and a refrigerator, much more convenient.

At home, he doesn't listen to the radio. "When I come home, my ears have had it. I don't want to hear anything but birds and wind. The radio goes on when I leave."

His style of writing hasn't changed much, Guthrie says. "It has freed up a bit, you know. It's a little more relaxed, probably because I'm not 18 any more."

As for when he writes, Guthrie says, "I think I repress it when I'm touring and let it seep out when I'm not. If I think of something on the road, I just try and save it."

"I could write talking songs as frequently as I did at first but I like guitar-playing songs, too. We could do a whole show of just talking songs and never play an ounce of music."

His best-known talking song, "Alice's Restaurant," from 1967 became a movie by the same name in 1970, starring Arlo Guthrie. He says, "I hadn't performed 'Alice' in 10 years. I did it last Thanksgiving, on the 10th anniversary of not doing it any more. For the next 10 years, if I have to sing it at all it'll be the week of Thanksgiving. If somebody really wants to hear it, they have to find out where we are and get themselves to there."

Shoplifter's Plight Drew Cash Gifts

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - When she was arrested for shoplifting groceries last month, 91-year-old Mattie Schultz was destitute, hungry and alone.

Since then, contributions from across the United States have ballooned to more than $25,000, and Mrs. Schultz, whose overnight jail term drew national attention, says she now has plenty to eat but is "tired of life."

She said a lot of food has been donated since her night in jail for trying to steal $15 worth of sausages, ham and butter from a supermarket on July 24.

Most of the donated money has been put in a special fund by a five-man committee. Bob Pugh, a member of the panel set up to administer the contributions, said the committee decided not to give Mrs. Schultz the $25,000 in a lump sum but to seek a court order establishing a guardianship for her.

Pugh, 73, is president of the local chapter of the Texas Senior Citizens Association, which received some of the contributions on Mrs. Schultz's behalf.

He explained she was conned out of her life savings of $5,000 in 1973 and that "if she had all the money right away she'd be easy prey for every Tom, Dick and Harry."

Pugh said money "came from all over America" after a magistrate's decision to place the woman in jail was criticized. The charges were dropped, and the mayor ordered an investigation of the confinement.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Pugh. "It proves America still has a heart."

The elderly widow was released two weeks ago from a hospital where she was treated for heart and stomach ailments. But she said she doesn't feel any better.

"I'm just tired. I'm wore completely out," said Mrs. Schultz, who worked as a hotel maid to help support herself and her husband after he suffered a stroke. Her husband was an invalid for 21 years before his death 18 years ago Sunday.

Mrs. Schultz said news of the donations cheered her up.

"I thank all of them, and God bless them all," she said.

But she added, "I'm tired of life. I've got nobody. I don't know nobody. I've lived here 56 years and I don't know a dozen people."

Contract On Police Dog

HUTTONSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) - Gus, a 7-year-old Rotweiler, is an undercover police agent with a price on his head. When he worked in Baltimore, the price was reported to be $10,000.

He nearly died last month, the victim of an apparent poisoning attempt. But thanks to some skilled doctors, Gus is back on the job, seeking out illegal marijuana and explosive devices as head of the Huttonsville Correctional Center's K-9 corps, a group of highly trained dogs used by police agencies to sniff out narcotics and other illegal substances.

Gus came to Huttonsville two years ago from Baltimore, where he worked for the police department.

"He's been in trouble ever since he left Baltimore," said Lt. Ed Shaffer, the head of the Huttonsville K-9 Corps. "He'd had a contract out on him in Baltimore." He said Gus once located some narcotics in Baltimore that "belonged to the wrong people."

Hit Jackpot On Borrowed $100

RENO, Nev. (AP) - Lorraine Eleanor Wray borrowed $100 from a friend to try her luck in Reno.

Two hours and $40 after she arrived at Harold's Club, she won $85,731 - the largest jackpot currently available on a dollar progressive at the casino.

"I've been trying for so long," said the Albany, Calif., woman after her Saturday win. On three previous trips, "I'd stop playing a machine and an hour later it would hit."

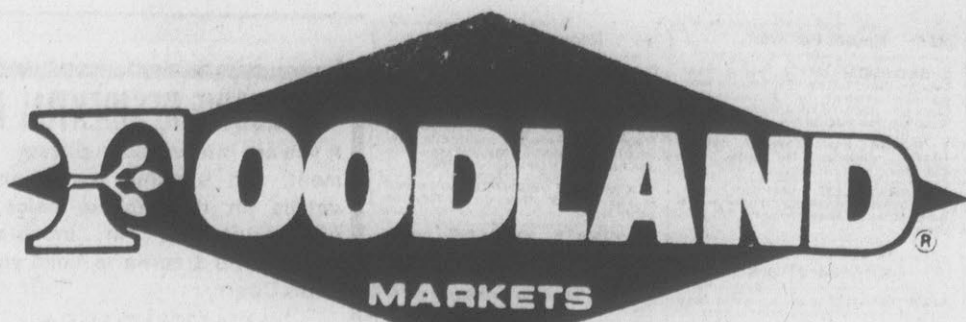

"I'd been down to rock bottom," she said. "Now, I can pay off the loans on my house and my car. This has given me a whole new lease on life."

Curbed Police Shootings Seen Starting 'At Top'

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Fyfe is a powerfully built man standing well over 6 feet tall. He drinks beer and smokes cigars and spins out endless tales of the violence and pathos and yes, the humor, of enforcing the law for 16 years in New York City.

Not long ago, Fyfe traded his .38-caliber Police Special and lieutenant's badge for a Ph.D. Along the way, he studied police brutality and how to curb it.

His conclusions may hold lessons for many cities troubled by mounting complaints that police officers shoot, maim and sometimes kill citizens in unnecessary displays of force.

Fyfe found that a policy change at the top, made clear to officers at all levels and strictly enforced, can "drastically reduce" the frequency of police shootings at citizens.

That sort of policy change is what the Justice Department hopes to accomplish with its unprecedented federal court suit against the Philadelphia police department. After Houston police made policy changes, Justice Department officials decided it was unnecessary to file suit there, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said recently.

Police critics in Houston and elsewhere argue that a restrictive policy alone cannot wipe out use of unnecessary force by police. Fyfe agrees that the policy must be accompanied by a high-level commitment to punish violators. Minor penalties, frequently imposed, may be more effective than harsh punishment used more reluctantly, he observed.

A change to a definite policy — with a commitment — occurred in New York in 1972. That's when Patrick V. Murphy was police commissioner and imposed a policy that:

—Reminded officer "to preserve and protect life wherever possible."
—Instructed them to employ "only the minimum amount of force" necessary to accomplish a mission.
—Prohibited officers from firing a gun "where lives of innocent persons may be endangered."

—Prohibited firing at a moving vehicle.
—Stated that officers carry guns "for personal protection against persons feloniously attacking an officer or another at close range."

Before then, officers had been guided only by a vague law allowing shooting to defend life or to apprehend an escaping suspect charged with a serious crime. That is the tradition in American policing.

The practice of shooting at fleeing felons has produced much of the current controversy, particularly when the suspect turns out to have been innocent.

The Murphy policy also required officers to file lengthy written reports every time a gun was fired and appointed high-level police officials to a Firearms Discharge Review Board to judge the propriety of each shooting.

The policy, with only minor changes, remains in effect today.

Examining the records, Fyfe found that 831 officers were involved in 630 shooting incidents in 1971. The figures rose in 1972 to 1,051 officers and 803 incidents, though there was a sharp drop toward the end of the year after the new policy was imposed.

But in 1973, Fyfe reported, the numbers dropped to 777 officers involved in 574 incidents. The incidents continued to fall, so that by 1978, only 491 officers were engaged in 372 shootings, and almost half of these involved shots fired accidentally and those fired to kill stray animals.

Fyfe said the type of incidents that declined most were the shootings at fleeing felons.

New York police, of course, still face periodic allegations of unwarranted shootings at citizens.

The Justice Department announced Monday that it had ordered an investigation into the police shooting last week of 26-year-old Luis Baez. Twenty-four shots were fired, and 16 hit Baez.

Police say Baez attacked them with scissors, but witnesses say the shots were not provoked. Baez had a history of mental illness.

Nevertheless, such controversies arise less often in New York than in Philadelphia, for example, and other, much smaller cities.

In addition, Fyfe said the statistics rebut the argument that weapons restrictions leave officers vulnerable to armed criminals.

Fyfe found that the number of officers injured or killed in the line of duty also declined sharply following the policy change, dropping from a weekly mean of 4.4 to 2.5.

The review board, he said, has readily punished those who shoot in violation of the policy, though the penalties usually have been no more severe than loss of five days' pay.

Fyfe watched the review process and concluded that board members were fair, but "the perception the police officer has is that they're a bunch of hatchet men."

Fyfe said he once suggested to a review board member that the proceedings be videotaped and shown to officers to demonstrate the fairness. He said the board member demurred, saying: "Let them think we're hatchet men. Let them worry about shooting their guns."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Osteopaths and Chiropractors

Two of my friends go to an osteopath for treatment. Another one goes to a chiropractor. What is the difference between the two? — Mr. M.U., Ga.
Dear Mr. U.:

Many people confuse the two, although they are entirely different. The only similarity might be that both are involved in the manipulation of the bones and the joints of the body. And here the similarity ends.

A doctor of osteopathy is one who has completed a full four-year course in this approach to medical and surgical treatment. Although he does not have an M.D. degree, he does have a D.O. degree which entitles him to treat patients with drugs and, when qualified, to perform surgery.

Doctors of osteopathy undergo rigorous training and can become specialists in a number of fields. Many have attained recognition and positions in universities and hospitals and are respected members of the medical community. In many states of the union they are subjected to the same licensing procedures as are medical doctors.

Hospitals of osteopathy exist in many cities. Here, a full range of medical and surgical procedures are performed, in addition to the manipulative techniques for the bones of the body.

A chiropractor uses the title of "Doctor of Chiropractic" although this "doctorate" does not have the same significance as the D.O. or the M.D. The chiropractor uses manipulative procedures on the spine and the bones of the body, but is not permitted to prescribe drugs nor to perform surgery.

Many patients ask about the value of chiropractic manipulation. I have always felt that when chiropractors respect their limitations they can make a real contribution to their patients. When, however, a chiropractor assumes the role of an all-encompassing diagnostician, there is the potential danger that some basic underlying disease may be overlooked. As a matter of fact, knowing one's accomplishment and knowing one's limitation in any field of medicine is the greatest guarantee of safety to patients.

***
In a fit of temper I slapped my teen-age daughter. Her ear began to bleed. Could I have injured her ear permanently? I am miserable about this. — Mrs. D.D., N.D.
Dear Mrs. D.:

I am certain that your daughter was examined by a doctor and that you now know the extent of her injury. The chances are great that the only residue of this experience will be your daughter's hurt feelings and your own personal guilt. Both of these can be repaired by a mutually respectful talk.

Many times a slap over the ear will cause a "blast" effect to the eardrum, and injure it. Sometimes, the drum may be perforated and with it comes an immediate loss of hearing. Almost always, the injury to the drum is temporary and the hearing returns to normal. Many simple devices are used by the ear specialist to encourage the rapid healing of the drum.

ADVERTISED
ITEM POLICY

Each of these advertised items is required to be readily available for sale at or below the advertised price in each A&P Store, except as specifically noted in this ad.

PRICES EFFECTIVE THRU SAT., SEPT. 1 AT A&P IN GREENVILLE

Where do you go for the freshest fruits and vegetables? To the farm of course. So A&P brings The Farm to you.

Somewhere in the world, it's harvest time. And that's exactly where A&P's eagle-eyed produce buyers are right now—gathering the pick of the crop and getting it rushed to The Farm in your nearby A&P store.

Their demanding standards and their ability to buy in large quantities means you get exceptional value whenever you buy produce at A&P.

So come take a fresh look at The Farm at A&P and get to know the Farm Manager. He's so proud of his fine fruits and vegetables, you'd think he grew them all himself! And he'll help you find exactly what you need to be equally proud when you serve it to your family.
