Soviet Troops In Cuba

By QUANE KENYON
Associated Press Writer

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — U.S. intelligence sources have confirmed the existence in Cuba of Soviet combat troops — possibly some 2,300 to 3,000 men, says Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Sen. Frank Church.

Church Thursday called on President Carter to insist on immediate withdrawal of the brigade of ground-combat troops.

"The United States cannot permit the island to become a Russian military base, 90 miles from our shores, nor can we allow Cuba to be used as a springboard for Russian military intervention in the Western hemisphere," Church said.

Church, an Idaho Democrat, said he and other members of the committee heard reports several weeks ago of a Soviet troop buildup in Cuba. He said members of the committee agreed to say nothing until the reports were confirmed.

Church said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance called him Thursday to confirm the buildup. He said "American intelligence units" confirmed existence of the Soviets, but he said he could not disclose the type of operation involved.

Church said he was advised by Vance that the Soviet Embassy in Washington has been asked for a full explanation. Asked why the Russians were placing troops in Cuba, Church said: "That's one of the questions we have asked the Soviet Embassy."

Russia has had military advisers in Cuba under agreements reached shortly after the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. But Church said they are there for training and communications.

This is the first time Russia has placed combat-type troops in Cuba, he said, adding, "...our concern for deployment of Russian combat troops in this hemisphere should be apparent."

Attempting To Replace A Missing Vertebrae

By GEORGE GEVALT
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 33-year old woman who has lain motionless for five weeks since removal of a football-size tumor and a portion of her spine today is undergoing unique surgery doctors hope will offer her a chance to walk again.

Doctors performing the operation, a medical first, are replacing missing vertebrae in Jesse Thomas' lower spine with a metal prosthesis to protect her spinal cord until a bone transplant can be performed.

Mrs. Thomas, paralyzed since May, has been immobilized in a special stretcher since June, when in another medical first surgeons at University Hospital here removed a rare bone tumor the size of a football and four vertebrae from her lower spine, said Dr. Charles C. Edwards, chief of orthopedic surgery.

Surgeons planned to begin the five-hour operation, Edwards said, by placing two steel rods on the back of Mrs. Thomas's spine to keep the spinal column from twisting. They are then implanting the prosthesis designed to protect the spinal cord, part of the body's vital nerve center, and to serve as a temporary spine, he said.

Edwards, who engineered the prosthesis and the tools to implant the device, said the procedure "was developed to enhance and speed recovery to a good quality of life."

The alternative, he said, would be for Mrs. Thomas to remain immobilized for the rest of her life. The prognosis on such cases is not good, he said, because of skin, pulmonary and psychological problems.

Giant Hurricane David Aiming At Gulf, For Now

By STEPHEN C. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Despite its fury and monster size, Hurricane David is not its own master. It's blown by often erratic winds high above the Atlantic Ocean.

Today, the hurricane was on a track that would take it well south of Florida and into the Gulf of Mexico. Forecasters predicted it would stay on that path for at least 24 hours.

But weather patterns already were changing and forecaster Gil Clark of the National Hurricane Center in Miami said he was far from certain what the huge storm would do later.

"Things can change so much that you can't really say now," Clark said. "The feeling is now there are a lot of changes going on in the United States weather patterns. We can't say it's going into the Gulf."

David, whose huge size and 150 mph winds rank it among the most dangerous storms of the century, leveled the Caribbean island of Dominica Thursday and was headed for the Dominican Republic and neighboring Haiti today.

Clark said David is almost ranked a No. 5 — the strongest category of hurricanes. In this century, only two hurricanes that hit the United States have been stronger.

One was Camille, which slammed into Mississippi and Louisiana in 1969, killing 256 persons and causing $1.4 billion in damages. The other was a 1935 Labor Day hurricane that devastated the Florida Keys.

Forecasting a path for David is difficult. Clark said David's course right now is so straight "you could put a ruler down on the positions it's going along." That course eventually would take it into the Gulf of Mexico, where it would threaten Mexico, Texas or Louisiana.

But hurricanes like David are blown by winds known as steering currents that are 10,000 to 30,000 feet above the Atlantic Ocean. Such steering currents can become erratic as they near the populated U.S. coast.

The current David now rides follows along the wall of high pressure air, called the Bermuda High, which straddles the ocean from east to west during the summer. Once David reaches the western edge of that wall, the path is harder to predict and the steering currents weaken.

Closing In

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Saturn's brilliant rings cast a deep shadow that creates a band of almost perpetual night near the center of the great yellow planet, space scientists say.

"We don't see this anywhere else in the solar system," Gary Hunt of University College in London said.

Pioneer 11, gathering speed for its dash past Saturn on Saturday, may reveal "what is actually going on in the transition between the area in the shadow and the area that's in sunlight," he told a news conference Thursday.

Officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center pronounced the robot spaceship in good health. The 568-pound ship was still more than a million miles from Saturn's banded clouds Thursday and was racing along at more than 23,000 mph. The speed will climb to some 70,000 mph as the Pioneer, tugged by Saturn's immense gravity, flies within 13,000 miles of the surface.

Already its pictures are better than the best that can be taken from Earth of the dense clouds that are the only surface Saturn seems to have.

Andy Ingersoll of the California Institute of Technology said it's hard to predict what Pioneer may find in the shadow of the rings — thin, flat sheets of particles that stretch 48,000 miles from the planet.

Encouraged By Interest Over Gasohol Plan

Over 100 people from eastern North Carolina attended a Thursday meeting at the Pitt County Farm Bureau Building concerning the possible production of gasohol on various farm sites and the formation of Farm Fuels, Inc.

The organization would receive and distribute alcohol products, and maintain a farm unit that would produce ethanol as well as methane gas drawn from the manure of hogs housed at the farm site.

"The best way I know how to describe last night's meeting is fantastic, unbelievable," said George King, one of the meeting's coordinators. "We had people from Elizabeth City, Washington, Pantego, New Bern, Rose Hill, Greene County as well as our own from Pitt County."

"To be honest, we (King and J. C. Galloway) think this is going to go over very well," King continued. "Following our presentation last night, I believe we have an ample supply of interested persons to draw from."

Members on last night's agenda included representatives of Pitt Community College, who will be working with the new corporation in training farm operators how to maintain distillery operations. Also present were Bill Humbert of Washington, D. C., a U. S. Department of Energy representative and Chuck Webster of South Carolina, representing the Governor's energy program.

King noted that production of ethyl alcohol, or ethanol, from corn, would leave a substance known as DDG, or dried distillery grain. This grain, he remarked, would be a high protein food capable of feeding livestock.

Also, with the on-farm site, not only would ethanol be produced from corn used to feed the some 2,500 hogs housed on the site, methane gas processed from raw hog manure would power a methane generator, as well as the distillery operation itself.

King acknowledges the fact that some of the ethanol produced on various farms would have to be reprocessed before used, but the Farm Fuels Inc. hopes to have a reprocessing plant at the collection site to do the needed work.

"We're looking forward to the many possibilities offered by Farm Fuels Inc.," said King. "A greater power than us has put this together, because we couldn't have done it by ourselves."

TODAY'S CLOUDS — Friday's special satellite cloud picture recorded at 9:00 a.m. EDT shows the well-defined, round eye and bright spiral clouds of Hurricane David about 70 miles from the south coast of Hispaniola. The National Hurricane Center placed David's maximum winds at 150 mph in its 6:00 a.m. advisory. (AP Laserphoto)

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

WONDERFUL RESPONSE!

The Pitt Co. Department of Social Services reports "wonderful response" to the Hotline appeal published yesterday to provide spending money for a child in a group home. One Greenville citizen who asked not to be identified has agreed to send $20 a month for the child as long as she is in group care. Interest was also expressed in having the child visit, if possible. A number of other people called to offer clothes and also to say they'd provide money intermittently as they could afford it. These names will be kept for reference, the social worker said, as will the names of those who expressed interest in providing foster care.

State Auditor Critical Of CETA Accounting

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources and Community Development has come under fire in a state audit for its administration of federal funds.

The report, completed in July and covering the period 1976-78, uncovered $572,158 in irregularities in the spending of CETA funds by a job-training center in Washington County.

The department is headed by Secretary Howard N. Lee. "We pointed out serious difficulties at the Roper organization and posed some unanswered questions to Mr. Lee as to the way that contracts are handled," Stan Wesner, director of the state auditor's CETA division, said in an interview Thursday.

"It's a serious matter pointing up weaknesses at NRCD and DCE — the people who issue the contracts," he said. DCE, the Division of Community Employment, is a part of the Natural Resources Department.

The irregularities involve almost half of the $1.2 million the department has given the Eastern North Carolina Opportunities Industrialization Center at Roper, near Plymouth.

The non-profit center was set up to train unemployed and underemployed people in a four-county area around Roper.

A copy of the report was sent to Lee Aug. 3, but he said Thursday he had not seen it yet. Under office procedures, it went to subordinates for analysis, he said.

Lee described himself as "very much on top of" the situation at Roper.

"I have not actually read the report myself," Lee said, adding that he could not respond to its contents.

Among the irregularities listed by the auditors are: "Expense vouchers submitted by the executive director were inaccurate and unreliable and included excessive expenditures for travel."

"CETA money was used to pay staff members who were no longer on the job."

"The Roper center

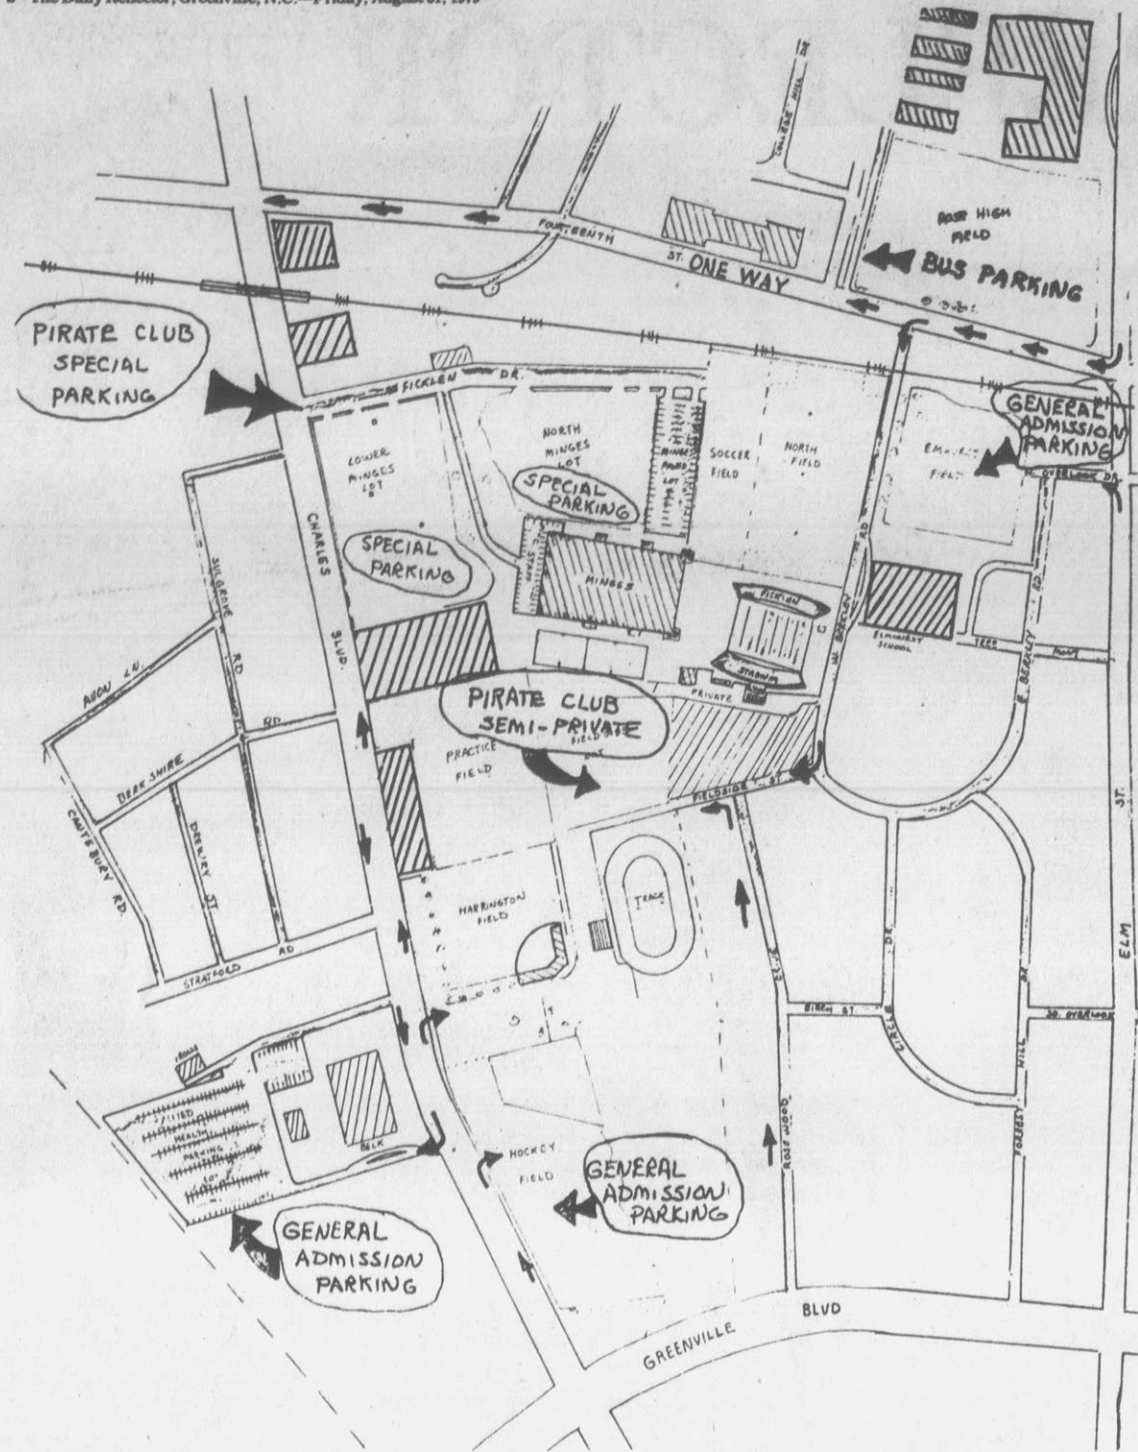

"maintained numerous bank accounts which were reconciled sporadically, if at all, and on occasion sizeable unexplained differences were left without apparent investigation."

"The Roper Center received nine advance payments of $12,000 each before the program ever submitted any documentation showing how it was spending CETA money."

"The center paid $27,000 in fringe benefits to employees that were not eligible for such payments under the contract. —Administrative costs, which amounted to 23 percent of the program, were excessive. One billing period showed 17 administrative and staff members for 15 participants.

"The contractor operated programs with an inadequate administrative and financial management system and failed to exercise sound management techniques necessary to effectively control and account for CETA funds."

Routing, Parking Changes At Football Stadium Announced

Two major changes, in traffic routing and parking, will face fans attending East Carolina University home football games this year, according to Greenville Police Chief E. G. Cannon.

The chief said that beginning with tomorrow night's game, 14th Street, in the past closed to through traffic, will be made one-way and opened to West-bound traffic headed from Elm Street to Ficklen Stadium and Charles Street.

The other major change, according to Cannon, involves parking near Minges Coliseum. In the past, where general admission parking has been allowed in lots off Ficklen Drive, between Charles Street and the coliseum, only special parking will be allowed.

General admission parking areas this year will include the Belk building parking lot and the hockey field off Charles Street, near the Greenville Boulevard intersection, as well as fields off West Berkeley Road.

Cannon emphasized that any cars parked in no parking zones will be towed at the owner's expense, explaining that vehicles parked in restricted areas hamper the flow of traffic and create hazardous conditions for other motorists.

The chief cautioned motorists to drive carefully and observe all traffic rules. He said drivers should be alert and avoid "tailgating" in the heavy traffic.

Most accidents in heavy traffic, according to Cannon, are rear-end collisions caused by drivers following the car ahead too closely.

The police official said all motorists should be courteous and not force the right of way. Instead, he suggested, drivers should yield to other motorists.

ARREST FUGITIVE
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The FBI said today it arrested Jackie Leon Rogers, 34, of Drexel, N.C. on a charge of unlawful interstate flight from Virginia last night. He had been wanted since June 11.

Alerted To Look Out For Rabies

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Gaston County dog wardens, veterinarians and health directors have been alerted to watch for the spread of rabies from South Carolina.

"We think we might see a case within our county," said Charles Rhine, sanitarian supervisor for the Gaston County Health Department. "A lot of our people go to South Carolina to hunt, and it's not impossible that they would bring it back with them, or that it may just spread to North Carolina."

"We in the health department want people to have their dogs and cats vaccinated before anything like this happens," Rhine said Thursday that he had received a letter from South Carolina alerting North Carolina health officials to a possible spread of rabies cases.

Orientation At School Tuesday

GRIMESLAND — Raymond Reddick, principal of G. R. Whitfield School, has announced that orientation day for students in grades one through eight will be held Tuesday, September 4, from 8:30-11:30 a.m. All students who were enrolled at Whitfield last year should report to the gymnasium at 8:30 and sit in designated areas.

All new students should report to the front lobby of the school to be registered. No lunch will be served Tuesday. Kindergarten students should report September 5 or September 6. Letters to parents of kindergarten children have been mailed giving the date their children should report to Whitfield.

New students may register prior to Orientation Day at the school from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily.

Commissioners Meet Tuesday

Pitt County Commissioners will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Pitt County Court House.

The regular session will be held September 4, rather than on Monday, because of the Labor Day holiday September 3.

Included on the agenda is the receiving of bids for printing the tax abstracts and for the demolition of the old hospital building on Johnston Street, the consideration of appointments to various agencies and boards, consideration of the final plats for Section I of Dawson Acres subdivision in Bethel Township and for Section III of Pleasant Ridge subdivision in Grifton Township.

Other items include the consideration of the disposal of Pitt-Greenville Airport property adjacent to the old fairgrounds, a request from Seaboard Container Service for an adjustment in the payment per pull of solid waste containers, consideration of a "no wake" ordinance on the Tar River near Grimesland, consideration of a request by Dr. Earl Trevathan and Charles Alford Forbes for preservation of Sheppard Mill Pond.

Heads Festival Golf Tournament Plans

William B. Glenn, chairman of the board for the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, Inc., announced today that Howard N. Wilson of Greenville will serve as chairman of the Tobacco Festival Golf Tournament.

The golf tournament, which will be held Sunday, Nov. 11, 10 a.m., at several golf courses throughout Pitt County, is the second annual Tobacco Festival Golf Tournament. The tournament will be open to agribusiness leaders and golf enthusiasts.

Wilson is a retired sales manager for International Minerals and Chemical Corporation and account executive for the Ortho division of the California Chemical Company.

He is a graduate of the University of Georgia with a BSAE degree and the University of Baltimore with a degree in executive management.

He is a member of Memorial Baptist Church, where he has served as chairman of the board of deacons, Superintendent of Sunday School, director of adult training union and teaches the Men's Fellowship Bible Class.

Wilson has been involved in many community activities including the following: Pirate Club, First Vice President of the Exchange Club in Greenville, vice chairman of the Service Corps of Retired Executives Chapter No. 426, Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, Society of Agricultural Engineers, Toastmasters Club of Greenville, and Brook Valley Country Club. He is a Mason and a member of Sudan Temple Shrine. Wilson also serves as director of the Second Annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival.

For further information, contact Wilson at 756-5515, or the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival office, 752-4101.

Dogs 'At Large'

Since the new school year has begun, there's been trouble with dogs running at large in Greenville, according to Alton E. Warren, who heads the City Inspections Department which administers the animal control program of the city.

Warren said he would like to remind newcomers to Greenville that Greenville has a 24-hour leash law. There is a $15 fine for violation, he said. Tags, license and rabies vaccination tags must be worn by dogs at all times, he said. There is a $5 fine for owning a dog not wearing a current city tag and a $5 fine for owning a dog not wearing a current rabies tag. There are laws pertaining to the control of barking dogs and also vicious animals.

The Animal Control Division would appreciate all residents of Greenville's help in enforcement of the ordinance. For help in all matters concerning animal control, one may call 752-4137, Ext. 247; or if there is no answer, 752-4137, Ext. 221.

'Collard' Week Is Proclaimed

Governor James B. Hunt has declared September 3-9 as "Collard Week in North Carolina" in observance of the celebration of the Fifth Annual Ayden Collard Festival.

Hunt, who is listed in the proclamation as a "collard-lover at heart," noted that "the combination of collards and cornbread is a gastronomic delight enjoyed by any true Southerner."

The Collard Festival will begin Monday with rides and a week-long softball tournament. The Collard Queen pageant will be held Thursday, with a talent show Friday.

The main day of the Festival, Saturday, September 8, will feature a parade, arts and crafts displays, pet shows, karate demonstrations, skateboard and horseshoe pitching contests, as well as the famous collard eating contest. The record for the most collards consumed in 30 minutes was set two years ago with a record of six pounds.

Sunday, a horse show, sponsored by the Pitt County 4-H Horse Club, will be held, as well as different running events. A gospel program will be presented Sunday, 2 p.m., at the Ayden Grammar School.

For more information about the festival, persons should contact Willis Manning, P. O. Box 186, Ayden, or call 746-3385 or 746-4323.

To Fill Five Board Seats

Jerry W. Powell, chairman of the board of directors of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, has appointed a five-member committee for five vacant positions on the chamber's 15-member elective Board of Directors.

The areas that the Board of Directors will be nominated from are as follows: service, professional, retail, manufacturing and agribusiness.

Malcolm Howard has been named chairman of the nominating committee. Other members are Jeannette Cox, Ray Rogers, Melvin Moore and Jack Edwards.

The committee has scheduled a meeting for Wednesday, September 5, at 12 noon at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Any member of the chamber is welcome to attend the meeting, for the purpose of suggesting nominees. Chamber members who choose to attend should call the chamber office, 752-4101, for meal reservations for the meeting.

Savings And Loan Offices Opened

North State Savings and Loan Corp. officially opened for business Monday at the corner of First and Washington Streets.

Mayor Percy Cox was on hand to take part in ribbon cutting ceremonies for the new corporation, Pitt County's first stock-owned savings and loan.

Two years ago the state legislature authorized the establishment of stock corporations. North State was formed by 16 incorporators and 240 stock holders.

William D. Reagan Jr. is president of the new corporation. Reagan, a native of High Point, received his B.S. and M.A. degrees from East Carolina University.

Local staff members for North State include Vicki Karpick, loan officer; Lee Masten, savings officer; Bonita Edwards, accounting and financial officer; and Coni Weaver, public relations and marketing.

Members of the board of directors include I. J. Edwards Jr., chairman, Leslie Garner, J. T. Snowden Jr., Ferrell L. Blount III, A. B. Whitley, Morris Brody, Les Fuchs, Ed Davenport, Bob Whitehurst, J. C. Whitehurst, Max Ray Joyner, Dr. Charles Broome, W. G. Blount, J. Carlton Taylor, and Reagan.

Tom Taft is the firm's attorney and one of the incorporators.

UNC-CH Alumni Meet Sept. 11

Rollie Tillman, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill vice chancellor, and a representative of the school Athletic Association will be featured guests at the September 11 UNC-CH Alumni chapter meeting.

Dinner will begin at 7 p.m. at Western Sizzling Steak House, Greenville. Reservations may be made by contacting Dan Warren, 228 Greenville Blvd., Greenville. Cost is $5.50 per person. Checks may be made payable to the UNC Alumni Chapter.

MISS EMILY MILDRED WILLIAMS, . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Williams of New Bern, who announce her engagement to Heyward William Brewer, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brewer of Enfield. The wedding will take place Sept. 22.

Novelist Peeks Behind Scenes

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Every time California resident Gwen Davis was in Washington a few years back, some history-making event was taking place, so she thinks it was inevitable that her latest novel should be set in the nation's capital.

"I went there several times in connection with research I was doing on another book, and to visit friends, and every time something cataclysmic was going on," says the author of "Ladies in Waiting," a behind-the-scenes look at Washington during post-Watergate years.

She happened to be there, she recalls, for the resignation of Agnew; for the Saturday Night Massacre; for the initiation of impeachment proceedings against Nixon, for the Cox hearings.

"It was as if I were the catalyst for change in Washington," she says. "It got to where when I would arrive friends would say, 'My God, what's going to happen now?'"

"Once, when I went back to my secluded home in Beverly Hills, a house was being built next door, and who moved in but John Dean! So it seemed as though for whatever curious reason, I was supposed to write a Washington novel, perhaps because of my distance, since everyone in Washington was too involved."

Though she concedes some people may see themselves in her book, which involves an Oriental tycoon under investigation for illegal lobbying, Miss Davis says the characters are "based on perceptions of people over a long period; they're a composite."

The writer, whose previous books include such best sellers as "The Pretenders," still feels "America is the hope of the world," in spite of the lust for power, the maneuvering, the corruption that she deals with in the book.

"With all the errors we make, with all the ignominious mistakes made in government,

Live-In Bride Is Gift-Miffed

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How about equal time to respond to that narrow-minded prude in Alaska who wrote, "Couples who have been living together neither need nor deserve wedding gifts"? She further stated that the purpose of wedding gifts is to set the couple up in housekeeping, and couples who are already keeping house already have a toaster, dishes, pots and pans, etc.

Well, I have been living with my boyfriend for two years, and we still have no definite plans to marry.

One day, if I marry, I would like to have all new appliances, a complete set of nice dishes, matched silverware and glasses, etc. In the meantime, we're using my mother's old pots and pans, secondhand dishes, and whatever else we could scrape together. We did not go out and buy new things to set ourselves up in housekeeping.

And as for not "deserving" wedding gifts because we've been living together, that's a laugh. If relatives and friends gave wedding gifts only to bona fide virgins, the jewelry and housewares merchants would starve to death during the month of June!

MAD IN MANHATTAN

DEAR MAD: Other live-ins wrote to protest the cold letter for my Alaska. But a reader in Shaker Heights took me to task for my lukewarm reply.

DEAR ABBY: So you think the parents of the kids who live together are so "thrilled" when the live-in lovers finally "make it legal," that they gladly kick in with the wedding gifts.

No way, Abigail! When our daughter, who is living on a very generous trust fund from her grandparents, finally married her freeloading, live-in lover, all we gave them was our best wishes.

Had she married a more decent man, we would have gladly given her a beautiful gift.

NO GIFTS IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY: This is for the 34-year-old married woman who quit college after her freshman year, regretted dropping out, but thought she was to old to go back to earn a degree:

You're never too old! I started college at 37 and graduated the same year my oldest daughter graduated from high school. Three years later I took up skiing. Two years after that I started taking piano lessons.

I've been teaching physical education in high school for the last six years and love it!

There are still many other things I would like to do before I settle down in a rocking chair with a pair of knitting needles.

J. IN GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

DEAR J.: Congratulations. In no way do I mean to minimize your accomplishments, but I'll wager there are many readers out there who have returned to college, taken up a sport and begun music lessons much later than you. Readers?

Miss Davis gets up at 4:30 a.m., she reports, exercises, sits "quietly, trying to collect myself," does yoga and has breakfast with her children before sending them to school and starting to write.

"Because of the summoning up and concentration of energy that has gone before, the time I put into writing up till lunch-time is as powerful and productive as 14 and 16 hours used to be," she says.

Cook Chinese During The Summertime

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

You can tuck the recently published "Chinese Cooking the Easy Way" by Dee Wang (Elsevier-Nelson) into your beach bag and read it while you're lolling on the sand. Or you can read it while you're relaxing in a sling chair in the backyard. This kind of "course" is perfect for warm weather because the book has many recipes you can try without turning on the oven. Range-top dishes appear in wonderful variety in Chinese cuisine. Dee Wang has been interested in cooking all her life. In China, where she was born and grew up. During the long years she has lived in the United States — first in New Mexico, then in Colorado, and now in New Jersey.

As she says, "My father had an extraordinary interest in cooking and eating and loved to experiment. He set up his own little kitchen in our large home in Shanghai and perfected recipes he then turned over to our household chefs. There, at his side, I learned the fundamentals of Chinese cooking."

Now she is a teacher at the China Institute in New York City. Mrs. Wang's pupils benefit from her experience, just as readers can from her book. She is an extremely well-organized person who likes to take advantage of modern equipment. For example, she is devoted to the food processor and in her book she constantly recommends using it.

Marinate, recipe follows
2 medium onions, chopped medium-fine (about 1 cup)
2 medium mushrooms, coarsely chopped (about 1/2 cup)
8-ounce can water chestnuts, drained and chopped medium-fine
1/4 cup clear, fat-free chicken broth and 2 tablespoons soy sauce blended with 1 tablespoon, cornstarch
3/4 cup frozen tiny green peas, thawed and drained

A head of iceberg lettuce, cored
Mix the beef with the Marinade.

In a wok heat 2 tablespoons of the oil; add onions and cook until they are translucent; add mushrooms and water chestnuts, stirring until hot through; remove and reserve.

Wipe the wok clean. Add remaining oil and heat until very hot; add beef mixture; stir-fry until meat turns brown. Add broth mixture and cook, stirring, until thickened. Add reserved onion mixture and the peas; mix well and heat.

Turn the beef mixture into a serving dish. Have the lettuce on another dish. Each person spoons some of the hot beef mixture into the center of a lettuce leaf and wraps it for finger food.

Marinate: Blend together 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1/4 cup soy sauce, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 teaspoon white pepper, and 1/2 teaspoon sugar.

Campus 'City' Is Alive Again

A good size city has come alive once again, virtually in the center of Greenville. A record number of students has come to the campus of East Carolina University to begin the 72nd year of the school. It promises to be a good year. The medical school is entering its third year as a full four-year institution. New leadership is on the campus. Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer announced at the faculty convocation Monday that there are 120 new faculty members on campus. There are also new vice chancellors for institutional advancement and planning, student life and academic affairs. "This is an exciting university, vibrant and alive," Chancellor Brewer told the convocation. "We know we have many challenges." The resumption of academic life brings marked changes to Greenville and Pitt County. The entire area comes alive, economically and spiritually, as students and faculty return to our community. It is a positive thing and we welcome all those connected with East Carolina University to the community.

Fitting Place For The Old Ironclad

It appears that any plans to raise the famous Civil War ironclad, Monitor, are ended now because the warship is in such poor condition. The experts fear it would crumble if any attempts were made to move it.

Even if it were possible, raising the ship would be extremely expensive. It may be fitting that the Monitor remain at the ocean bottom. Scientific divers can study its remains as they are. The Monitor's career is ended, just as the war which could have split our nation.

THIS AFTERNOON

Joint Public Safety Role

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There has been considerable argument back and forth about whether joint police-fire operations can do an effective job in North Carolina towns. In the midst of this controversy, the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill has taken an exhaustive look at the Public Safety programs at work in four communities and found them efficient, cost-effective, and a workable alternative to continued growth in budgets and personnel engaged in these critical municipal services. The problems and the opposition which have plagued joint agency movements to date, the authors of the study concluded, arise from people within the affected agencies whose comfort or security appear threatened by the new approach. In Durham for example, where several studies of the system have produced sharply conflicting conclusions, the city's public safety director commented bluntly that the only major problem has been opposition to it by some senior police and fire of-

icials. Chapel Hill
In Chapel Hill, firefighters are labeled the major stumbling block. Firemen were put on eight-hour shifts and the work week changed from two and one-half days to five and one-half days. This cut into moonlighting opportunities, changed lifestyles, and upset the firemen to the point they threatened to stop all work except putting out fires. In Morganton, on the other hand, the firemen were the most enthusiastic in support, and both police and fire officers saw the joint operation as a way to perform more interesting and exciting work, get higher pay, and advance more rapidly. Winston-Salem earlier this year conducted a study in the face of growing criticism of the public safety system, and concluded it is cost-effective but needs modification in the management structure. Ronald G. Lynch and Vivian Lord, authors of the Institute of Government study published in the current issue of "Popular Government" magazine, concluded that "The public and fire and police employees should know that public safety is not an untried adventure in North Carolina cities and in other communities throughout the country."

BILL NOBLITT

The researchers suggest that city officials should gather all available data and move carefully toward a decision as to whether the program would work in a given community. Public Safety, they caution, is no panacea, but is a strong alternative "if government is to become more effective and productive.... public officials must be willing to examine new approaches and to accept the challenges that innovations bring." The Cost
The review shows that consolidation will not produce dramatic and immediate cost savings, but rather provide expanded service for little more cost. Over the long run, costs can be held down better by joint operations than by separate and competing bureaucracies. Perhaps the most compelling argument for a joint police-fire operation is statistical data presented in the report on utilization of time by police and fire officers. More than 50 percent of police calls are services to individuals rather than crime control, and firemen spend less than five percent of their time responding to fire calls. Morganton City Manager Douglas O. Bean carried the analysis even further. In that city only 1.4 percent of the firemen's time was answering calls; nearly half of those were false alarms, rescue, or standby, and 98 percent of all calls could be handled by a single pumper. In the light of such data, it is easy to conclude that a pair of public safety officers trained in police work, firefighting, and first aid, and equipped to handle any eventualities can handle a number of problems with little difficulty.

Recruit Ordeal Eased

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — From now on, Army recruits won't have to endure "skinhead" haircuts and will be treated "with the same respect and dignity accorded to all soldiers." That's an order from the Army's Training and Doctrine Command to all recruit reception stations and basic training centers. Although the Army didn't say so, the new policy undoubtedly is intended to avoid "turning off" potential volunteers the Army badly needs because it is failing to meet its recruiting goals. "Recipients and trainees are soldiers...from the moment they take the oath of enlistment," the order said. "Recipients and trainees will be treated as soldiers and as adult individuals, with the same respect and dignity accorded to all soldiers." In a message circulated through the Army, it was said the underlying philosophy is to "train soldiers by building on their strengths and by shoring up their weaknesses...not to tear them down and build them up again." The command specifically ruled out the "shock" tactics used in the past on recruits as they reported to reception stations to enter the Army. "This includes such practices as making recipients stand at a brace, run on and off buses with luggage and other forms of harassment," the order said. Among the reforms likely to rate high with recruits is a new

Eagle One Will Listen

MARTHA'S VINEYARD — President Carter has promised he would take one day a week and go out and talk to the "people." In this way he can find out what Americans are "really thinking." Then he can return to Washington and make presidential policy based on what he has heard. I thought this was hyperbole until the other day when a bunch of us were sitting on the Hackney porch, rocking back and forth, drinking iced tea and peering out at the Vineyard sound.

Suddenly two secret servicemen appeared and started to look under our chairs. Then they crawled under the porch. After that they went into the kitchen and searched around. Finally one said to the other, "It looks clean to me." He got on his walky-talky and said, "Sparrow Two, this is Sparrow Seven. We found a home in Vineyard Haven with fine God-fearing Americans who have hopes and fears and dreams, though they now suffer from a malaise. Tell Eagle One it's safe for him to come." In less than 10 minutes a cavalcade of cars came tearing down the road. A sandy-haired man with a big grin on his face stepped out of a bullet-proof Cadillac. He was accompanied by a lady and a little blonde-haired girl.

RUSSIA

Both houses of Supreme Soviet Russia's Parliament today adopted a new and tighter conscription law which War Commissar Marshal Voroshiloff declared would show Russia's enemies that "we shall not be caught unawares." The bill extends some terms of service, lowers conscription ages for high school graduates and provides for war-time mobilization of women trained in medicine and communication techniques. Among today's speakers in support of the measure were three women who declared they were ready to give their lives for the "Soviet Fatherland and for Stalin." — Stuart Morgan

To the editor:
The total result of the Andrew Young affair will likely jeopardize the delicate oil situation that already troubles our nation. For all the controversy that Ambassador Young created, he was a most able representative to the United Nations and was amazingly competent in maintaining an American image which assisted oil-rich Third World countries — Nigeria, for example — in supplying America with oil at prices lower than many of these nations would have liked to establish and at rates lower than those set forth by OPEC. America is over the barrel! At our prodigious domestic rate of oil usage and with our commitment to Israel that we will guarantee her oil as a condition to the Israel-Egypt peace accord of Camp David, America must continue to purchase oil from OPEC. With the resignation of Andy Young from the UN, the most effective American voice in calming Nigerian and Venezuelan impulses to hike their cost of petroleum is lost. Moreover, tensions which naturally exist between Third World countries and the U.S. will escalate. America needs oil; Third World countries have an abundance of oil. The fear, from the Third World perspective, will be that America will attempt to take the oil from a militaristic, economic, psychological strategy. Andy Young's presence at the UN relieved much of this fear. Whether or not Andrew Young was diplomatically proper in meeting with the PLO representative to the UN at the home of the Ambassador to Kuwait in defiance of American tradition to recognize the PLO is not the issue. At issue is how best will America be able to meet her oil needs and commitment, without risking a military confrontation with the Soviet Union, in light of the present rate of inflation and without an articulate tactician at the UN. John W. WASHINGTON TODAY

Case Of Economic Blues

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — That crisis of confidence President Carter diagnosed six weeks ago may really be a case of the economic blues. And if that's the ailment, Carter is going to have a hard time changing the mood in time to shore up his own standing for the 1980 presidential campaign. In his July 15 report to the nation, Carter said a "crisis of confidence" was eroding the national will. He said the way to begin changing it was for the government and the people to confront and solve the nation's energy problem. Carter's assessment seems to have stemmed in large measure from the findings of his pollster, Patrick H. Caddell, who reported widespread pessimism among Americans about their own futures and about their ability to change things. The Caddell surveys, like those of other opinion analysts, found the average American thinks things are getting worse and doubts that the average person really has any influence on the government. But an analysis by the journal, Public Opinion, published by The American Enterprise Institute, suggests that the mood may not be as down as some of the statistics. "Despite this long, gray line of numbers...there are many other findings that suggest the idea of a 'crisis' is badly overblown," the journal says. "Social scientists have long pointed out, for example, that at the same time that Americans are expressing a sour note about the country, they usually feel much more buoyant about their private lives." According to Public Opinion, the level of American confidence in the leaders of the nation's government and institutions declined markedly in the late 1960s, during the Vietnam War, and has remained in a valley since the early 1970s. Confidence levels began to climb in 1972, but plunged again because of Watergate, the oil embargo and worsening inflation. The polls reflected another upward turn with Carter's election and the end of an economic recession, but turned downward again in 1978, as the president's own ratings began to sag. In his own assessment, Carter said the decline in public confidence had its roots in the assassinations and war of the 1960s, in Watergate, in a decade of inflation, and in the energy woes that began with the Arab oil embargo of 1973.

"Conveniently, all of those root causes predated his own entry into office, a theme that is sure to be repeated on the campaign trail," the Public Opinion account says. But it suggests that the ups and downs of national confidence may have more to do with the economy than with past problems and crises. Since 1973, according to that analysis, confidence levels in the polls have closely paralleled economic trends. With the economy moving into recession now, that does not bode well for Carter's effort to rekindle public — and voter — confidence.

Strength For Today

"Ye were once darkness." Thus did St. Paul write to the Christian believers in Ephesus. What pictures of former vice and revelry these words of Paul must have called up in the minds of many of the Ephesian converts! Not only had these men and women walked in darkness, they were darkness. The agonies and impenetrable despair which attends sin had become a part of their natures. But now they had become light in the Lord. God, who in the beginning had said, "Let there be

Being Sick Is Now Fun For Kids

By GAIL MICHAELS
Remember when the pediatrician stopped giving lollipops after every visit? They said that they did it in the interests of good health, but I doubt it. It's just that the medicine they prescribe tastes better than the sucker. Modern technology has made being a sick kid fun. When I see how our culture reinforces illness, I have to believe that my grandmother had the right idea. Every time one of her kids got sick, she soaked it to him with a dose of castor oil. No child in her house even mentioned illness until toys were melting in his grip and partial paralysis had set in. But nowadays kids stay out of school with a headache. I know a little boy who coughed once on his parents' anniversary, and they called up and cancelled the babysitter. Just how much we are at the mercy of our children's ill health came home to me last Saturday when Meg awoke with a 102 degree temperature. We rushed her to the pediatrician, who prescribed a cherry-flavored antibiotic. While Phillip had the prescription filled, I bought six new toys for Meg to play with while she was confined to bed. Our benevolence didn't stop there. I tucked Meg in and read to her while Phillip rushed to the grocery store and picked up a few sickroom necessities: soup, Coke, Tootsie Rolls, watermelon and a tremendous gingerbread cookie. On Sunday, Meg was feeling much better. But she still had a slight fever, so Phillip and I spent the entire day entertaining her in order to keep her quiet. No living being has received that much of my attention since I stood on the sofa with a plunger one entire afternoon waiting to ambush the mouse who inhabits our coat closet. On Monday, Meg's temperature was normal, and I breathed a sigh of relief. "No fever, sweetie! You can go to play-group!" "No-o-o," she moaned. "My throat's still too sore." Now if I had been braver, I would have called her bluff, but the very slight possibility that she was telling the truth conjured up a vision of the mothers of four kids with strep forming a vigilante group. I let Meg stay home. And I regretted it. By noon I had read 15 books. Nine of them four times apiece. I had given a bald doll a wash and set. I had put together six puzzles at one time. I had picked chocolate out of the shag carpet, had untied a chair that had been tied to Meg's bedroom door with a slip knot while I was on the phone, and had performed a dozen other duties too trivial to recount. I was exhausted. It took all my remaining energy to pull a sheet over Meg and mumble, "Nap time." "I want another story." "No more stories. Mommy's vocal chords are frayed." "You're not being kind to me." I made a superhuman effort to keep my voice down. "Sick little girls need naps, and you're going to take one right now, this very minute." "Why are you yelling at me? You need to be patient." "If I weren't patient, I'd be spanking you. Now shut your eyes and be quiet." "I think you're mean!" she wailed. "I'm sick, and you should feel sorry for me!" I wonder if the drugstores still sell castor oil. I want to be better prepared for the next illness.

Observing Holiday

Labor Day, Monday, September 3, will be observed as a regular holiday by the Sanitation Division of the Public Works Department in Greenville. All trash and garbage service will run one day late through Wednesday and will resume regularly scheduled service on Thursday.

Citizens are also reminded that GREAT (Greenville Area Transit) will observe Labor Day as a holiday. There will be no bus service on Monday, but regular service will resume on Tuesday. For any emergency street or storm sewer damage or other problems connected with streets, persons are asked to contact the Police Department and they in turn will notify the proper public works official.

The Cemetery Division will also be closed Monday. However, the gates will be opened in the early morning and locked at sundown. Anyone needing information or having questions concerning the cemeteries should call their morticians who will in turn notify the proper public works official.

Chancellor Had Few Disappointments

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Looking back on his seven years as chancellor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. Ferebee Taylor can remember few disappointments.

One disappointment he shares with many students, faculty and alumni — the dream of having a national championship basketball team.

"I have wanted to see Dean Smith win a national championship," Taylor said. "But I'm optimistic that will happen while he's still head basketball coach here."

Taylor submitted his resignation last week, citing health reasons. The resignation will become effective Jan. 31, 1980, or as soon as a successor can be chosen.

Taylor said his doctor advised him that the pressures of his office might place too great a strain on his recovery from a June 7 heart attack.

The chancellor said of all the projects he has begun as head of the university, the most meaningful is the new central library to be built next to the Carolina Union.

"Nearest and dearest to my heart is the new central library," he said. "It is my fervent hope and expectation that it will be under construction while I am still in office."

Another proud accomplishment, Taylor said, is the university's progress in making the faculty and student body more representative of the general population.

When the chancellor leaves his office, he will not be leaving the Chapel Hill campus. Taylor will teach corporate law in the UNC School of Law next fall.

Taylor said he is fond of the school and has always tried to serve it.

"I do love this place," he said. "No matter how clumsy my efforts have been, I have tried my best to move it forward."

Holiday For Post Office

The Greenville Post Office and the ECU station will close in observance of Labor Day, Monday, September 3. The following services will be provided:

- No deliveries will be made by rural or city carriers.
- No window service will be provided.

- Mail will be delivered to post office boxes.
- Special delivery mail will be delivered within the city.

- A special 3 p.m. holiday collection will be made from all collection boxes that have any specified time indicated on the side of the box. This collection will be dispatched at 5:30 p.m.
- The self service postal unit located in the lobby of the Main Post Office will supply customers with most postal supplies, and also permit them to mail parcels.

rule sparing them from having their hair clipped almost to their scalps when they arrive at training bases.

"Haircut standards in Army training centers will be the Army standards," the order said. "Trainees will be allowed to wear mustaches in accordance with current Army regulations."

Years ago, the Army relaxed its restrictions on hair length and style for everybody except recruits, and that has caused considerable grumbling among trainees ever since.

The new order also requires drill sergeants to stop demeaning recruits by addressing them as "trainee." Instead, the training command ruled, new enlistees "will be addressed as soldier, private or by last name."

The reforms were based on recommendations made by a committee representing Army training center commanders.

won't tie up his dog?"

Eagle One turned to his aide. "There you are. If I hadn't left Washington I would never have known about the stray dog problem."

Elizabeth Hackney, age 15, said, "I can't stand my brother. He's a spoiled brat and gets to do anything he wants to, while I have to do everything I'm told. Why should I believe in a country that permits brothers to make the quality of life for sisters so miserable?"

The sandy-haired man said to his aide, "Why hasn't anyone briefed me on this problem before?"

"Washington has lost touch," the aide said.

Brustein said, "I'll tell you what has made me lose faith in the American dream. I like blue fishing. Every time I think I have one on the line it turns out to be seaweed or an old shoe. I haven't caught a fish in weeks, so why should I vote in the 1980 elections?"

Eagle One grinned and got up to leave. "I can't tell you how helpful you've all been in speaking out in this forthright manner. I will now return to Washington a wiser and more humble leader, aware of my mistakes and willing to try once again to make a better world for all of you. I can only be a good President if I know what the people expect of me, and you can only have your faith restored in our government by telling me what you want me to do. God bless you one and all."

He got back in his car with his wife and daughter. The TV men packed their gear and the reporters got on the press bus to rush back to the airport.

As the cavalcade disappeared into the sunset Williams hit himself on the head with his hand. "Damn it! I forgot to tell him my septic tank doesn't work."

Churchmen Want New 'Impassioned Crusade'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer
Leaders of the world's various religions want an impassioned crusade, like those that abolished slavery or ended the Vietnam War, to rise up in tidal force against the nuclear arms race.
They see such a movement as imperative to save civilized life and build global human brotherhood.

"We are at a turning point in history," says Roman Catholic Archbishop Angelo Fernandes of New Delhi, India, president of the World Conference on Religion and Peace.
"The signs of the headlong race towards destruction and death are there for all to see. There is urgent need to act... The challenge of our time is for the unification of mankind."
That cause, he adds, demands mustering of the "entire human and spiritual" resources of mankind.
Such rallying calls for combined religious effort marked the opening this week of the conference's 10-day assembly at Princeton Theological Seminary in New Jersey, bringing together 350 leaders of 10 major world religions.
It's the first time that the 10-year-old conference has met in the United States, following prior assemblies in 1970 in Japan and 1974 in Belgium.
Also for the first time, religious leaders from communist China — nine Christians, Buddhists and Moslems — are participating, along with those from 45 other countries and all continents.
Termining presence of the Chinese religious leaders "an event of historic importance," Nikkyo Niwano, head of Japan's Buddhist lay movement, Rissho Kosei-kai, an an honorary conference chairman, said: "It is not possible to discuss 'the true world' at an international conference without representation from China, with its one billion people."

Besides Christians, Buddhists and Moslems, delegates also include Hindus, Confucianists, Jains, Jews, Shintoists, Sikhs and Zoroastrians.
The Rev. Dana McLean Greeley of Boston, a Unitarian-Universalist leader and conference co-chairman, urged a massive religious groundswell, greater than the U.S. movement in the 1960's against the Vietnam War, to stop the arms buildup.
The Rev. Homer Jack of New York, secretary-general of the conference and also a Unitarian-Universalist, called for a "new Abolitionism" against the "obscenity which is called the nuclear arms race."
He said the conference should "launch a great new movement, a worldwide moral and religious crusade which will say 'no' to nuclear war and 'no' to the nuclear arms race as the old Abolitionists launched a crusade to say 'no' to slavery."
Declared Archbishop Fernandes: "The military budgets of the two super powers are a scandal and those of even developing countries a shame... "Alongside the fabulous sums wasted on destructive purposes, the sum total of economic cooperation for humanitarian goals appears a mere flea-bite, a piece of sham, a brazen mockery of the poor of the world... The total picture is shocking."

NIGHT and DAY
In mills and factories across the country, they never stop working. By night as well as by day, the wheels of commerce grind out the goods we need as a nation.
It's a twenty-four hour job, this business of production, and it's a vital job — to you, your family, your town, our whole country. Like most vital jobs, it can't be stopped.
Faith is a vital job, too. It isn't simply something that God gives you, free of charge, on Christmas and at Easter. You have to work for real faith. You have to earn it. You have to keep at it.
Fortunately, to help you gain and sustain this vital faith, you have the Church to guide you. Start attending every Sunday and there absorb the wonders of God's teachings.

OUR DOCTRINAL STANDARDS—Our first and final rule for all doctrine, faith and practice is God's Holy Word, the Bible. We believe the Bible is the written Word of God, without error in the original manuscripts, and of infallible and divine authority in all matters of faith and practice. Therefore, all of our teaching and preaching is from the Bible.
OUR CHURCH'S VISION—All of our teaching and preaching is centered in the Bible. We believe God's Word provides the answers to today's situation, just as it did 2000 years ago. Just as man breaking God's laws disrupts the ecological balance, so man breaking God's spiritual laws upsets man's relationship with other men and God. Submission to God's Word, the Bible, is the key to resolving these problems.

The Greenville Chapter of the FULL GOSPEL BUSINESS MEN'S FELLOWSHIP is happy to invite you and your friends TO HEAR
EARL WILLIAMS
Monday, Sept. 3, 1979
6:45 p.m. Supper
7:30 p.m. Meeting
AMERICAN LEGION BLDG.
St. Andrews Drive
Greenville, North Carolina
Our speaker this month is Earl Williams, an independent business man and president of Hy Speed Products Co., a manufacturing maintenance supply firm.
Earl says: "For thirty years I traveled throughout the United States representing the ways of the world and enjoying the best that Satan could offer. Then at the age of thirty, I was born again by the Grace of God. In January 1975 I was baptized in the Holy Spirit; and since that time, I have traveled the same territory enjoying the best that Jesus can offer."
Earl is married, and he and his wife, Lynda have three children. For the past two years he has served as President of the Wilmington Chapter of the FGBMFI and is presently serving as a Field Representative for the FGBMFI.
The Lord Jesus has prospered Earl Williams spiritually, physically and materially. Earl says that Jesus will do the same for anyone who will believe.
Earl is really excited and enthusiastic about what Jesus is doing today. Invite a friend and come and hear his testimony about what Jesus is doing in his life.
The precious, sweet spirit of Jesus lives in this man—just as He can and will live in any and all of us who will let Him into our lives. Come join us and let's all lift Jesus higher that others may be drawn to Him. (John 12:32)

First Legal Stills Fired Up In Cleveland County

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — The first legal stills in Cleveland County are getting underway as their owners experiment with turning out alcohol to power automobiles and farm equipment.

The stills are licensed by the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) Division of the U.S. Treasury Department.

John Caveny Jr. and his wife, Beth, of Kings Mountain want to run their lawnmower, garden tractor and at least one car on gasohol and eventually pure ethyl alcohol. They plan to make the fuel from peach peelings and table scraps, among other things.

Wilbur Cabiness and his son Douglas of the Double Springs community near Lattimore are already experimenting with their licensed "steamer." Their still is based on the classic mountain still.

Cabiness has already tried gasohol in his pickup truck. It worked fine, he said. In the first run, the alcohol was 170 proof, but now it averages 130 to 140 proof.

An old-time moonshiner would feel right at home in the Cabiness barn, with its fuel oil-powered boiler and 55-gallon Kentucky liquor barrels. And Douglas Cabiness said he learned a lot from the old-timers.

His questions about how to make a still were answered by "a friend." And the system he ended up with is "amazingly efficient," said Cabiness, who has a degree in chemistry from Wake Forest University and worked as an organic chemist at R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. He is a member of the Cleveland County School Board.

"We'll have to do some fooling around with the mash to see what's economical," he said. "So far, we've used sugar, corn and wheat bran. Barley and corn will probably be the two primary grains."

Cabiness, who along with his father is associated with Cleveland Dairy, also sees a tremendous potential for dairy, livestock and hog farmers from the byproducts of alcohol production. This will "probably be an efficient way to produce fuel and use the waste as feed," he said.

Suggestions for gasohol mixtures vary. "We used 80-20 in the pickup," said Cabiness.

The still can produce eight to 10 gallons of alcohol an hour. Currently, it costs about $2.40 per gallon to produce.

"We hope to get it down to 60 or 70 cents," said Cabiness.

Restrictions on production include keeping the still locked and maintaining a log of how the alcohol is used, its proof and other matters.

For the Cavenys, the regulations were even more complicated.

"We have to be bonded," Caveny said, "and we are subject to inspection." The couple posted a $600 bond with the Treasury Department, which allows them to make 30 gallons of alcohol in any two-week period.

Along with that, the Cavenys have to keep a record of how much alcohol they produce, and register with the N.C. Department of Revenue, Gasoline Tax Division.

"If we put it (gasohol or pure alcohol) in the car and drive it on a state road, we're liable for fuel taxes," said Caveny. To do this, a $2,500 bond would be required. Tax on pure alcohol would be 10 cents per gallon and on gasohol, at a 90 percent gasoline mix, 1 cent per gallon.

But Caveny, who has a chemistry degree from Western Carolina University and is now associated with Caveny Fabrics, Inc. in Kings Mountain, isn't quite ready for that yet. Right now, he's experimenting with his still and different mixtures. His still would not be recognized by an old moonshiner.

It is a four-by-eight foot piece of plywood with a black cloth stretched over it. Eventually, the cloth will be replaced by glass or fiberglass. Over the cloth are two sheets of plastic.

Caveny's still takes his concern for energy one step further by using solar heat instead of actually cooking the mash.

"If we pay for oil or natural gas to heat and boil it, we're defeating the purpose," Caveny said.

The mash mixture runs into the top of the system through a small, perforated pipe. It feeds into the black cloth, which acts as a wick to carry the solution down. As the liquid evaporates in the heat, alcohol condenses on the plastic and falls into a drain pipe. Caveny expects to process two gallons of mash per hour, which would yield about a quart of alcohol.

The mash can include "virtually anything." Grapes, peaches, potatoes, "any vegetable" and "anything starchy," Caveny said. "We have a pretty good-sized garden," he added. In the winter, "we can use table scraps."

Their 1962 blue Buick Special, which has been sitting in the garage for five or six years, is set aside "specifically for this purpose," said Caveny. It was his wife's first auto, and was retired with 170,000 miles on it. The crankshaft is broken and it needs a new engine. Once he takes care of that, Caveny wants to try gasohol in it. It doesn't take many engine adjustments for a car to be able to use gasohol, Caveny said, but to use pure alcohol, a lot of carburetor work is necessary.

Series Of 5 Traffic Accidents Yesterday

An estimated $3,850 damage resulted from a series of five traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 3:49 p.m. collision of vehicles driven by Elvy Kittrell Forrest Jr. of Route 8, Greenville and Vance Anderson Warren of 117 Lord Ashley Dr. on Greenville Boulevard, 500 feet West of the Charles Street intersection.

Police, who charged Warren with following too close, estimated damage to the Forrest truck at $50 and damage to the Warren car at $1,200.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 7:46 p.m. collision at the intersection of Charles Street and Red Banks Road.

Drivers involved were identified as Robert Dunn Whitley of 1211 Kingsbrook Rd., and Joseph Wayne Hall of 2600 Dunn St. Investigators who charged Hall with failing to stop for a red light.

An estimated $800 damage resulted to a car driven by Julia Ann Talbutt of 307F Eastbrook

Dr. in a 1:16 p.m. mishap on Eastbrook Drive, 900 feet East of the Greenville Boulevard intersection.

Officers said the Talbutt vehicle and an East Carolina University bus driven by Cam Wesley Abshire of 303D Azalea Gardens collided. No damage resulted to the bus.

Cars driven by Pamila M. Randolph of 1413A West Fifth St. and David Barton Bland of Route 1, Greenville, collided about 5:24 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets, resulting in an estimated $400 damage to the Randolph car and $200 damage to the Bland auto.

Police reported that a 4:21 p.m. mishap on Arlington Boulevard, 275 feet South of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, involved a car driven by Thelma Dickens Banks of Route 1, Greenville, and a truck operated by Cleveland Randolph Bullock of Route 2, Rocky Mount.

Investigators, who charged Bullock with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, set damage to the Banks car at $450 and reported no damage resulted to the truck.

Farmville Leaf Mart Demand Remains Good

FARMVILLE — Demand for all types of quality tobacco remained good on the Farmville Tobacco Market Thursday, according to Louis Williams, Sales supervisor.

Demand for other grades appeared to be some weaker, with $1.55 a pound remaining as the top price paid for all grades of quality tobacco. Stabilization receipts were up from past days.

Thursday ended the sixth week since the Eastern Belt opened, noted Williams, with estimations that 55 percent of this year's crop has already been sold. Prices have been relatively steady all six weeks.

The Farmville market sold 655,222 pounds for $964,785, an average of $147.25 Thursday. To date, the market has sold 13,629,219 for $19,095,761, an average of $140.11 per 100 pounds.

Irish Hunt More IRA Guerrillas

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish security forces fanned out along the border with the Irish Republic today hunting two IRA guerrillas they believe detonated the bomb that killed Earl Mountbatten, official sources said.

They said Irish security chiefs believe four guerrillas were involved in the explosion aboard the 79-year-old soldier-statesman's fishing boat Monday, and two men already charged with murder planted the bomb and drove off, leaving it to be detonated by remote control by the other pair.

However, a government spokesman said, "The position is still very fluid. The investigation is continuing despite the charges brought yesterday."

Two alleged members of the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing were charged Thursday with Mountbatten's murder, and a police source said at the time he believed at least six IRA men were involved.

The police were rounding up known IRA activists all over the country. At least 100 men were reported pulled in Thursday. Most of them were questioned and released, sources said, but some were held for further interrogation.

Meanwhile, John Taylor, a Protestant politician in Northern Ireland and one of Britain's representatives in the European Parliament, asserted that Protestant guerrilla groups should stage attacks in the Irish Republic if they felt compelled to avenge the killing of Mountbatten and three others aboard his fishing boat as it set out into Donegal Bay, on the northwest coast.

Roman Catholic leaders in Northern Ireland accused Taylor of incitement to hatred, a criminal offense, and Northern Ireland's director of public prosecutions was studying his statement.

The two men charged with Mountbatten's murder, Francis McGill and Thomas McMahon, were stopped at a roadblock in western Ireland several hours before the bomb ripped apart Mountbatten's boat. McGill was "shaking like a leaf" and gave a false name and address, the arresting officer said, and both men were taken to a police station and held.

McGill, 24, and McMahon, 31, reported to be a time-bomb expert, were charged at a five-minute hearing in West Dublin Thursday and then returned to jail under heavy guard. They were ordered held without bail until Oct. 2 on a charge of "murdering Lord Louis Mountbatten contrary to public law," and were not required to plead innocent or guilty. Neither one said anything in the courtroom.

The two men face life imprisonment, not death, if convicted. Ireland retains the death penalty for murders of policemen, soldiers, heads of state and ambassadors, as well as for murder "committed in furtherance of the activities of an illegal organization."

The IRA is an illegal organization in the Irish Republic as well as in Britain and in Northern Ireland, but it appeared that the prosecutor felt he might have difficulty proving McGill and McMahon were members. After their arrest, they were charged initially with belonging to "an illegal organization, but that charge was dropped on Thursday.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch returned to Dublin Thursday from a vacation in Portugal and accepted an invitation to meet with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher after Mountbatten's funeral in London Wednesday. She was expected to press him for stronger security measures and closer co-operation with the British government to curb the IRA, which for 10 years has been waging a guerrilla war

SCENE OF ROUNDUP — Greenville Police officers, firefighters and Public Works Department employees spent most of this morning tending to some 200 hogs that were on this truck which overturned at West End Circle about 8:50 a.m. The driver of the vehicle, from Rose Hill, told officers the vehicle overturned when a car pulled in front of him, he hit his brakes to avoid striking the car, and the load of hogs shifted. The driver received minor injuries in the mishap. Public works employees set up a holding pen for the animals while they awaited another truck to arrive to move them. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Found Gems In Fire Rubble

ABBEVILLE, S.C. (AP) — A persistent jeweler was told the U.S. Postal Service lost two diamonds he'd mailed found the $1,000 stones in the ashes on the floor of a burned-out mail truck.

Charles Murphy said, "It was just pure luck I got my diamonds back." He called the time it took to search the "best four hours of my life."

He mailed the quarter-karat diamonds Aug. 7 from Abbeville to a firm in Atlanta to be mounted. "I did not insure them. I just mailed them first class," he said.

He reasoned that insured packages are more tempting to thieves.

His wife put them in the post office mail drop just before a mail truck was due, so he figured they were on it when he learned the truck had collided with a car a few miles away and partly burned.

He waited for the diamonds to be delivered or returned. Other items in the truck got to their destinations or back to the senders.

And he told postal inspectors what was in the package, realizing if the box burned there would be no way to determine the diamonds' owner.

On Aug. 22 his wife went to Mauldin, where the salvageable, burned mail had been taken. She sifted through the debris and found some watches she'd mailed separately at the same time but no diamonds.

Tuesday Murphy himself and went through the ashes. Still no diamonds.

He said he had almost given up when he decided to look at the truck itself, stored in a garage at Anderson. He was under the impression everything salvageable had been removed and therefore was surprised to find the body "ankle deep in rubble."

Within 30 minutes he had his diamonds.

Scott Confirms Political Hope

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Bob Scott told the Alamance County Young Democrats Thursday that, "I am definitely considering the possibility of getting back into state politics."

Scott told the dinner gathering that he is writing letters to people throughout the state asking them, "What do you think about the possibility of my candidacy?"

But Scott added, "I don't feel there is any need to be in a hurry about making a decision."

2 Chrysler Execs Take Pay Cut: $1 Per Year

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The two top executives of struggling Chrysler Corp. are taking pay cuts to $1 a year to show confidence that they can make the company profitable again.

Chairman John J. Riccardo and President Lee A. Iacocca, who earn $360,000 a year each, said Thursday their $1-a-year salaries would continue until September 1981 unless Chrysler becomes profitable before then.

However, each man will continue to receive thousands of dollars in previously earned bonuses, and Iacocca will receive an annual pension earned while he was with Ford.

They get all the forfeited money back in two years only if the price of Chrysler common stock does not fall from its average for this month, expected to be about $8.

They will get more if the price goes up and less if it falls.

"This is something they wanted very much to do to show their faith that this company can be turned around," said a spokesman who requested anonymity.

Chrysler is seeking $1 billion in government aid to tide it over to 1981, when it says it should make money again.

The company has laid off 25,800 employees in the United States, more than one-fourth of its hourly work force. It is preparing layoffs of white-collar employees and has frozen white-collar salaries.

The company lost $207 million in the second quarter, bringing its losses for 18 months to more than $460 million.

Chrysler is preparing proposed legislation for review by Treasury Secretary G. William Mibler. The spokesman said the salary cut was "not part of the plan to be submitted to Treasury."

President Carter suggested earlier this month that the automaker could save "tens of millions of dollars" if executives and others at the top of the corporation would forego salary increases, fringe benefits and bonuses.

Chrysler's statement said the two executives' pay cuts are "part of a general corporate salary reduction program to be announced shortly." It did not elaborate.

The proportion of forfeited salary to be repaid will be based on the ratio of the average price for Chrysler stock in August 1981 to the average price this month.

Help Send A Student To ECU

(Introducing Pirate Checking)

Let's face it. For years, Planters has offered a variety of tee shirts, frisbees and other trinkets to entice East Carolina students to bank with us.

Now, there's a better way to student banking. We call it "Pirate Checking."

With "Pirate Checking" ECU students still receive no-service-charge checking with no required minimum balance (because we know students don't have a lot of money, just a lot of potential). You also get an introductory order of Pirate checks plus free travelers cheques, cashiers checks, money orders and notary service.

But, there's something more important. For every Pirate Checking account opened, we'll give $1.00 to ECU for unrestricted use as scholarship funds. We've got four offices in Pitt County to serve you, including the only bank in Carolina East Mall. At Planters National Bank we offer a practical approach to student banking.

Experts Claim Synthetic Fuels Goal Unrealistic

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Half a loaf probably is the best President Carter can hope for in his ambitious synthetic fuel program.

Energy industry leaders who have devoted years to attempts to make pipeline grade gas and oil from coal say the president's proposal for four million barrels of synthetic fuel a day within 10 years may be too high, but half that is possible. The president's appeal is stirring enthusiasm in industry.

It also is arousing fear that Washington will set the goals much too high to be realized and insist on creating a big, cumbersome, bureaucratic operation that will bog down the whole program in mismanagement, confusion and corruption.

Spokesmen for those companies that have been most active in synthesizing oil and gas say President Carter's idea of producing the equivalent of four million barrels of synthetic oil a day by 1990 is unrealistic.

But even before the president's speech on July 15, a study prepared for the Wall Street firm, Bache Halsey Stuart Shields, Inc., predicted about 500,000 barrels of synthetic fuel would be turned out daily by 1985.

Two weeks later, the prestigious Committee for Economic Development, made up of top business leaders, called for "a number of new government financing options coupled with the removal of certain regulatory and environmental barriers to make it possible for the private sector to build approximately 10 first-of-a-kind plants to demonstrate the feasibility of converting coal and oil and shale into synthetic gas."

The CED then went on to make its big pitch by saying "this would be more efficient and effective than creating a huge, permanent, government-subsidized fuels industry."

The committee said "the government should take only those risks that are too large for private industry to assume alone."

But government and the private sector already have built such demonstration plants. What is needed is early plants to produce commercial quantities of synthetic fuel.

UPI asked several industry experts who have worked in synthetic fuel for years what they believe is possible.

Eric Reichl of Conoco, Inc., a huge oil and coal company based at Stamford, Conn., said he believes a goal of two million barrels of oil a day from coal by 1990 is technologically and economically feasible and environmentally acceptable.

Reichl said the program should be started now and should develop both oil and gas from coal on a big scale. He believes the present satisfactory natural gas situation in the United States may not last more than five more years.

"Anyway, you have to make gas as a byproduct of synthetic oil from coal by most processes," he said. "I think the wisest course would be a program to produce half gas, half oil."

Reichl does not believe any synthetic fuel program that can be achieved in the next dozen years will raise really serious environmental problems although he concedes that the release of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere must be monitored carefully.

He says it is nonsense for ecologists to say the CO₂ emission cannot be forecast accurately. But he conceded it will be impossible to allay completely the fears of some ecologists.

Reichl said processes that have been known for 50 years and have been improved gradually, yield up to two barrels of oil from a ton of coal.

The Sasol process used at the world's biggest synthetic oil plant in South Africa is applicable to all American western coals. But metallurgical western coal is too valuable to be converted into oil, he said. "If we started working on a big scale now, we undoubtedly could develop processes suitable to all our coals."

Economics, transportation logistics and bureaucratic and regulatory barriers are far greater obstacles to the development of oil and gas from coal than ecological problems, Reichl said. And these are the considerations that will dictate the size of a plant at any one location. He said 60,000 barrels a day seemed a reasonable size.

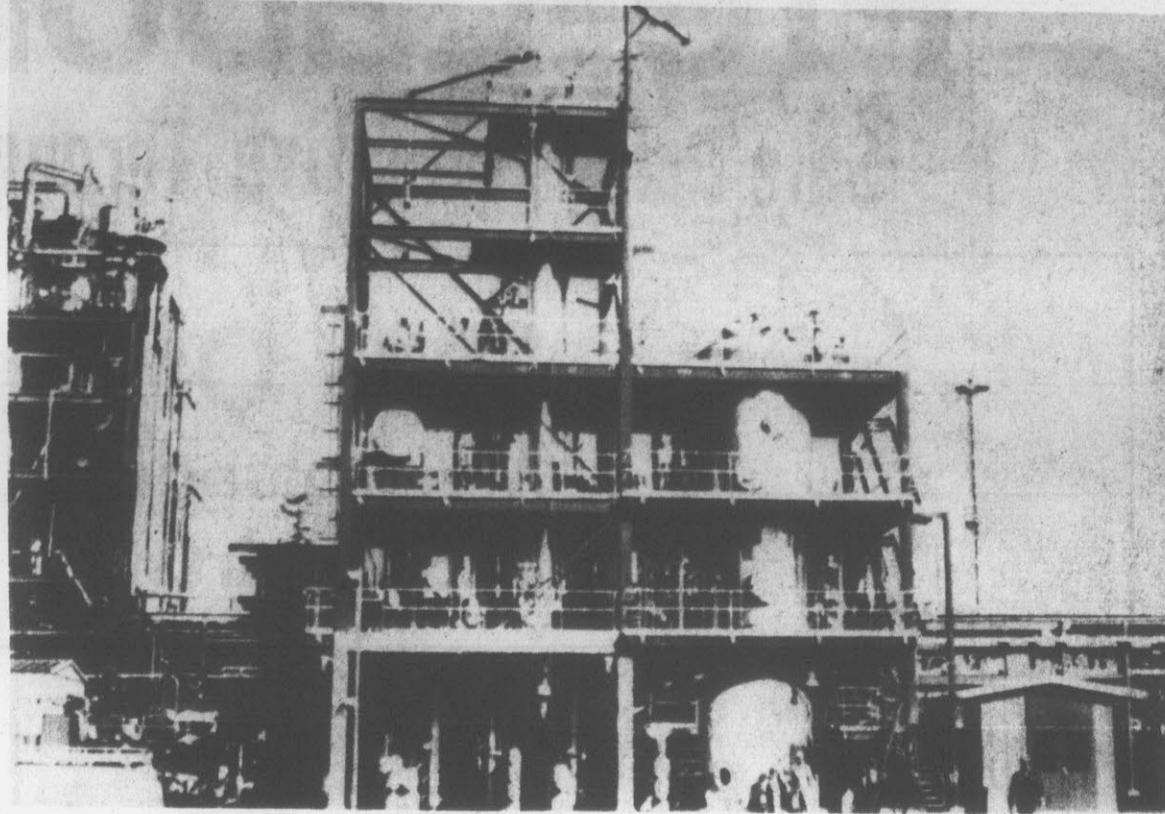

James Mullowney of Fluor Corp. of Los Angeles, the engineering and construction firm involved in building the big Sasol units 2 and 3 in South Africa, was less sanguine than Reichl about a two million-barrel goal a day by 1990, but said output "much higher than one million barrels a day certainly is possible." He also said the program should include gas in case there is another natural gas crunch.

"The cost of synthetic oil from coal will be high," Mullowney said. "I can't say how high, but that shouldn't frighten us too much since we already have seen natural crude oil sell as high as $35 a barrel in the spot markets."

He said better catalysts and other refinements have raised the oil yield from coal compared with the crude process that fueled Hitler's Wehrmacht in World War II. He also pointed out that the processes yield valuable by-products just as oil refining does — alcohols, aldehydes, ketones and other useful intermediate chemicals.

He says the present technology is already suitable for virtually all American coals.

Mullowney was reluctant to comment about carbon dioxide

Life On A Dredgeboat Is Dull, But Good Eating

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The noon meal on the dredge Cherokee recently included steak in gravy, rice, black-eyed peas, green beans, macaroni and cheese, freshly-baked biscuits and chocolate ice cream.

Well, a man has to have something to look forward to if he's going to stay aboard a ship where the minimum work week is 56 hours and he only gets home once or twice a month.

"We eat pretty good," said Superintendent Julian Weston. The dredge spends $1,300 a week to feed its crew four meals during a 24-hour day.

The pay is good, too, starting at $5.85 an hour for a the 56-hour week — with lots of overtime.

And ships like the Cherokee, which is owned by the Merritt Dredging Co. of Charleston, S.C., even have janitors to make up the crewmen's beds, according to Capt. Billy Floyd.

But work aboard the dredge is still long and lonely. Despite the amenities aboard, the men prefer being near a town, where they can go when their work shift is through for the day, Floyd said.

Dredgeboaters call towns "the hill" he said. "If you get a dredgeboater where he can't get to the hill, he's not going to stay."

Still, most of the men aboard the Cherokee have been there for several years, Floyd and Weston said. Many of those, and in fact almost half the dredge workers in the region, come from the Brunswick County community of Shallotte, according to Bob Doetsch, a dredge inspector for the Corps of Engineers.

The Corps oversees about $6 million worth of dredging a year throughout North Carolina to deepen waterways and harbors that get filled up with silt.

The Cherokee is now deepening the Intracoastal Waterway at Snow's Cut near Carolina

Beach. The ship moves about 10,000 yards of silt a day with a cutter that digs up dirt and mud to be sucked up by an 18-inch pipe. The suction is powered by a 1,600-horsepower engine that pumps the dredge material onto a beach or into a diked area.

Most of the time, the work is routine and monotonous.

"If a man's not working, it could get boring, I guess," Weston said.

When there's nothing to do, the men sometimes engage in 24-hour card games to pass the time, Floyd said.

Tryon Newspaper Is Still Smallest

TRYON, N.C. (AP) — The Tryon Daily Bulletin has expanded 200 percent since it was founded in 1928, but it is still the world's smallest daily.

In its founding year, it appeared on 5 by 8½ inch paper. It has expanded to 8½ by 11 inches, comic book size.

"As far as we know, it's still the smallest daily paper, even at this size, and we'll continue to say it is until somebody corrects us," said editor Seth Vining Jr. The paper is listed as such in Ripley's Believe It or Not.

In content, the Bulletin is like most small-town papers. It's filled with marriages, job promotions, gospel sings and the like.

"Anything that happens to anybody in this area, we're interested in," said Vining, who inherited the job of reporter-editor-manager of the paper from his father when he retired four years ago. "We don't do any long articles because the paper is just not geared to them."

Founder Seth Vining, 80, started in Tryon as a printer in the early 1920s. He started the Bulletin after an argument with his employer at another county paper.

The Bulletin started out tiny in size because the press Vining bought could only print that size paper. New presses arrived, but the Vinings decided small was the way to stay.

The newspaper is a six-person operation with the younger Vining editing all the copy as well as writing some. His wife, Bos, does the bookkeeping. There are also a typesetter, a receptionist and two people to sell ads and handle production.

Vining, a former Polk County commissioner and chairman of the Tryon School board, steers clear of controversy.

"My editorials are few and far between," he said. "People fuss about my lack of editorials, but it's so hard to separate between the news and the personalities in such a small town."

Polk County residents buy 3-

100 copies of the tiny paper each day. Polk County has a population of 11,735, but Tryon itself has only about 2,000 residents.

Home Week Observance

"Buying Today Secures Tomorrow" will be the theme of North Carolina Home Week to be observed September 22-30.

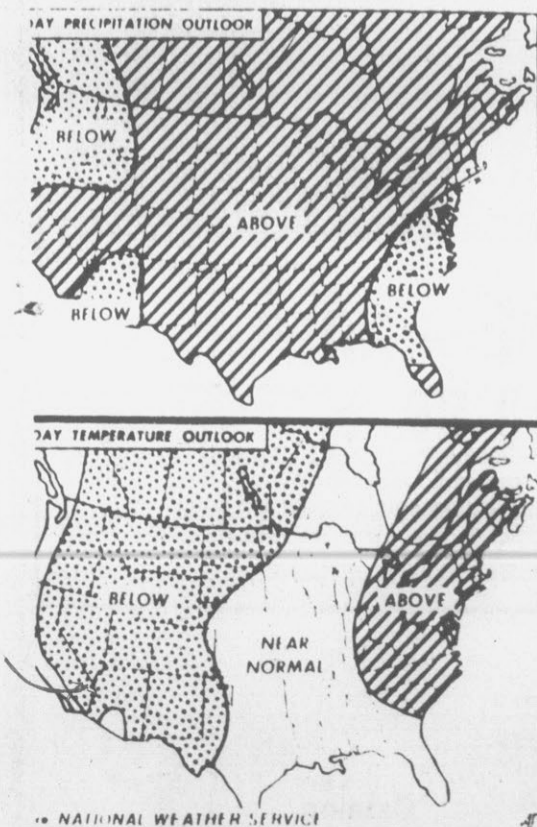

The observance, part of a national effort to call attention to the importance of home building to the country's economic health, is sponsored by the North Carolina Home Builders Association.

To help celebrate the week, many local Home Builders Associations will sponsor a "Parade of Homes" with a variety of new homes in all price ranges to display to the public.

"This is the one week in the year when we salute the home builders for their enormous contributions," said Sherrill Faw of North Wilkesboro, president of the North Carolina Home Builders Association.

Mark Tipton of Greenville serves as one of the regional vice presidents of the Association.

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil and gas stocks were generally higher in slow pre-holiday stock trading today as the broader market posted modest gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.97 at 885.67 at midday.

Gaining issues outnumber losers by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume was 11.71 million shares down from 12.53 million at midday in the previous session.

Tenneco rose 1 to 39 in active trading after a delayed opening. The widely diversified company with oil and gas operations said it knew of no reason for the activity.

Phillips Petroleum rose 3/4 to 41 1/2; Gulf gained 1/4 to 31 1/4, also in active trading. Among other energy issues, Mobil gained 3/4 to 43 1/4 and Kerr McGee rose 1 1/2 to 57 1/2. Exxon, however, was off 3/4 to 56 1/2.

The U.S. Geological Survey announced Thursday that its studies of a reef about 100 miles off the Atlantic Ocean and Gulf of Mexico indicate there may be significant quantities of oil there. But the location makes exploration very difficult. The White House on Thursday also proposed lifting prices on hard to obtain natural gas extracted from so-called "tight sand."

Among other issues, McMillan fell 3/4 to 20 1/2 in active trading and Mattel lost 3/4 to 9 1/2. An agreement for Mattel to acquire McMillan was announced Thursday.

The NYSE composite of all listed common stocks rose .11 to 62.31. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 1.77 to 216.92.

Murder Charged To 3 Residents Of Greene

SNOW HILL — The wife of a missing Maury man and two other Greene County residents have been charged with first degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in connection with the death of Melvin Bryan Pate, 35, Sheriff Early Whaley said this morning.

Charged in connection with the death are Pate's 34-year-old wife Lucille Jones Pate, James Harper Schawab, 51 of Maury, and Ronald Walker Entzminger, 18 of Route 4, Snow Hill, Whaley said.

According to the Sheriff, Mrs. Pate reported her husband missing on April 20. The lawman said Mrs. Pate said her husband had not been seen since about 6:30 p.m. April 18.

Whaley said sheriff's department officers, investigating the case since April, located Pate's body in a wooded area a mile West of Hookerton, about 3 p.m. Wednesday. He said Pate had apparently been shot to death.

He said the three were charged in connection with the death following a crime scene investigation by the State Bureau of Investigation and Greene County officers.

Whaley said Mrs. Pate, Schawab and Entzminger are being held in the Greene County jail without privilege of bond pending court action in the case.

Duke Power Co. Will Sell Bonds

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Company will sell $150 million of first and refunding mortgage bonds to repay short-term debt incurred to finance the utility's construction program and to refund maturing long-term debt.

The 30-year bonds will be sold to a group of underwriters through competitive bidding. They will be resold to the general public about Oct. 2, according to a registration statement filed Thursday with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Nomination To The Negotiator

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
 Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter today nominated Donald F. McHenry to replace Andrew Young as the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

McHenry had been Young's deputy there. His nomination, announced here while Carter is on vacation, is considered likely to help overcome the president's political problems with black leaders upset over Young's departure. McHenry, like Young, is black. The appointment is subject to Senate approval.

The new nominee, 42, joined the State Department in 1963.

McHenry, deputy chief of the United States, United Nations delegation, guided the airport negotiations over Soviet ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova.

Unlike the outgoing ambassador, McHenry is not identified with the civil rights movement.

Young resigned Aug. 15 amid a furor created by his meeting with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization. He has remained in the post until a successor could be named.

In contrast to the free-wheeling style of Young, He told Tarboro police the incident began when he went to visit his estranged wife. An acquaintance of hers stepped in front of him, pulled out a pistol and fired at him.

The man, Jimmy May, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and damage to personal property.

McHenry is regarded by colleagues as a master of reticent diplomacy, always ready to deflect questions and politely decline those that he might consider sensitive.

Best known in U.N. circles as an expert in African affairs, McHenry was the chief U.S. diplomat at the Kennedy Airport negotiations last weekend with Soviet officials regarding Miss Vlasova, a Bolshoi ballet soloist whose husband had defected to this country.

Saved By Seat Of His Pants

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Joseph Ronald Anderson of Tarboro was saved by the seat of his pants. To be more exact, it was the metal Security card in his back pocket.

Anderson said the card stopped a .38-caliber bullet fired at him Thursday morning. The bullet tore through the seat of his pants but lodged in his wallet.

He told Tarboro police the incident began when he went to visit his estranged wife. An acquaintance of hers stepped in front of him, pulled out a pistol and fired at him.

The man, Jimmy May, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and damage to personal property.

Pirates Face Western Aerial Attack

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

At his weekly press conference on Wednesday, East Carolina University football coach Pat Dye was asked if he'd heard much talk about N.C. State, Duke and Wake Forest among his players.

Dye chuckled and shook his head. "I haven't heard a player mention any of them," he said. "They'd be foolish to do so. I really don't think our players thought that far ahead last year until the fans and media started it.

"Anyone who saw the game (against Western Carolina) last year...well, it wouldn't take an Einstein to see that we could have gotten beat," Dye added.

The Pirates just managed to squeeze by the fiery Catamounts, taking a 14-6 win that wasn't over the final seconds.

"They came mighty close to winning last year, but we had some big plays to pull it out. Western always plays well and hard against East Carolina. They are always well prepared."

The Catamounts, naturally, are the opening opponent this season for the Pirates. It will take place Saturday at 7 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

The Catamounts finished the year 6-5 last year, losing their first three, then winning six in a row before bowing the last two, and missing claiming their first Southern Conference championship.

"They haven't changed much on offense," assistant coach Bobby Wallace said of the Cats. "They are primarily a passing team. They run sprint draws and sweeps. They believe in their passing game, however, and they make it good."

One of the primary reasons for the success of the passing game is quarterback Mike Pusey, who hit 147 of 331 passes for 2,046 yards last year. He tossed 14 touchdown passes.

"Not only is he good, but his backup, Kent Briggs, is good too," Wallace added. "They are both good passers, but don't run much unless they have to scramble."

Western reported earlier this week that flanker Gerald Harp will miss the game due to an injury, but Wallace warns that there are plenty of other quality receivers around.

"Jeff Dean and Dwayne Morgan, the wideouts, are both exceptional. And their fullback, Sidney Cunningham is a great blocker. Robert Brown, their tailback, is a tough runner. His backup, Leonard Williams, has great potential and outstanding speed, too."

In the offensive line, there are five good men, but their depth is questionable. "They're not real big, but are scrappy," Wallace said.

"The key is going to be getting to their quarterback, or at least making him throw quickly," he added.

Defensively, the Catamounts may be at their best.

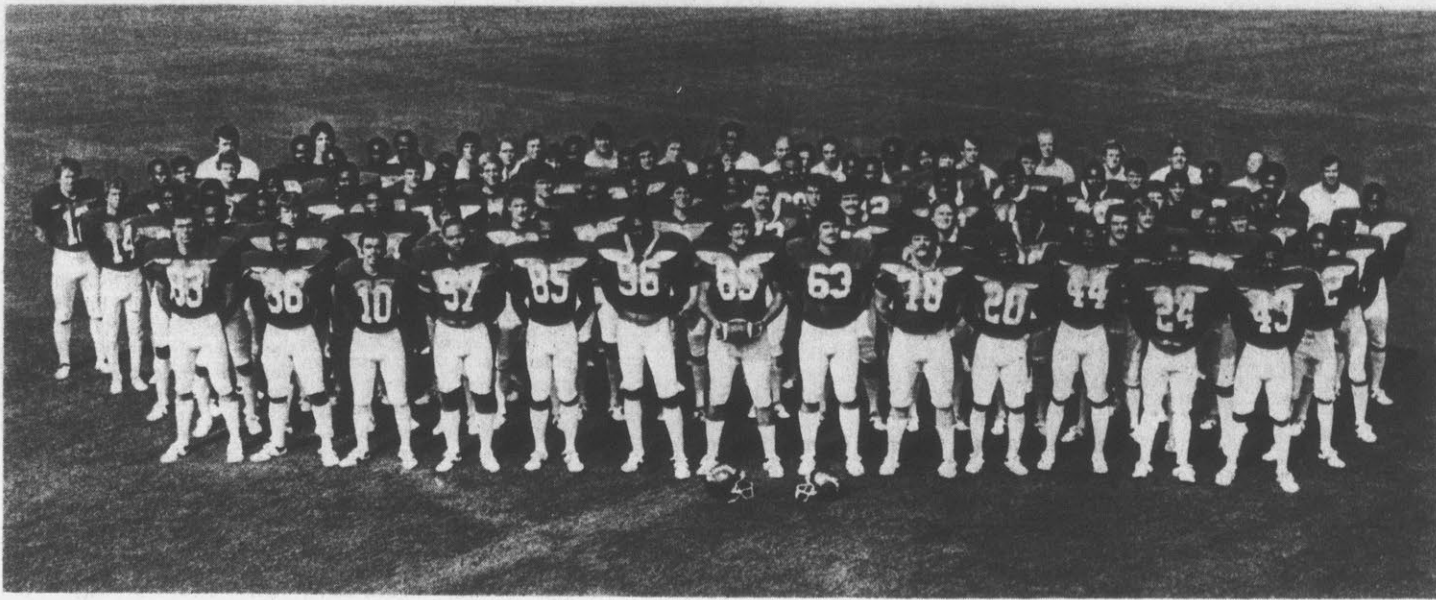

According to assistant coach Ken Hutcherson, the Catamounts return ten starters, plus ten more who saw plenty of action last season. "Nearly all of the 20 started at one time or another during the year," he added.

The Western defense returns three all-conference players, George Alston at end, strong see some action in the game.

"We want to play our young people if at all possible," Dye said. "But how much is going to be a question. We certainly don't want to throw a lot of them in there and possibly draw back a nub."

"Western Carolina will be a better team than it was last year. You can't be hurt much when you have 20 people coming back just on defense."

East Carolina Pirates

East Carolina University's defending champions from the Independence Bowl, open the 1979 football season Saturday night in Ficklen Stadium against Western Carolina. The Pirates come off a 9-3 year, and will be seeking to win a mythical state championship this year, since the Bucs play all of the other six Division I-A teams in the state. The Saturday contest is the only home game for the month of September for East Carolina. (Reflector Photo)

'Must Win' Game For Utah

By The Associated Press

Talk about your win-or-lose situations!

Utah Coach Wayne Howard, who is in his third season as coach of the Utes, leads his squad against Long Beach State in one of 11 matchups involving teams from Division I-A on the opening day of the college football season Saturday. Howard coached at Long Beach for five seasons — three as head coach — before taking over at Utah.

"We can't lose to Long Beach," he said. "We'd commit suicide if we did."

Howard was named the Western Athletic Conference coach of the year in 1978 after leading the Utes from a 3-8 record the year before to 8-3 last season.

Louisiana, McNeese State at Tulsa, Southern Illinois at West Texas State and Wichita State at New Mexico State.

Allison Brothers On Darlington Front Row

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Brothers Bobby and Donnie Allison of Hueytown, Ala., won the front two starting positions Thursday for Labor Day's Southern 500 by setting new qualifying records at Darlington International Speedway.

The 42-year-old Bobby grabbed the coveted pole position by touring the 1.336-mile layout at 154.881 mph in his Hodgson-Moore Ford Thunderbird.

The 39-year-old Donnie, driving a Chevrolet, was clocked at 154.506 mph.

The brothers repeated their qualifying performances at the Carolina 500 in March at Rockingham, N.C., when they started 1-2 in that race.

Darrell Waltrip, current leader in NASCAR's point standings and the most successful driver so far this year with seven victories, was third fastest in the opening qualifying runs. The Franklin, Tenn., driver turned in 154.365 mph in a Chevrolet.

Richard Petty, winningest driver in stock car racing history and a six-time national champion, was fourth at 154.307 mph in a Chevrolet.

Rounding out the top 12 starting slots for the 30th annual Southern 500, the nation's oldest stock car classic, were: David Pearson, 154.008; Bill Elliott, 153.998; Harry Gant, 153.527; Dick Brooks, 152.982; Neil Bonnett, 152.963; Buddy Baker, 152.550; Cale Yarborough, 152.385; and Joe Millikan, 152.376.

Twelve more drivers will qualify Friday. The field of 40 will be filled out Saturday in a final day of qualifying.

Other games Saturday involving WAC teams include Arizona hosting Colorado State, New Mexico entertaining Louisiana Tech of Southland Conference and Texas-El Paso at independent North Texas State.

The only afternoon game Saturday involving a Division I-A team has Eastern Michigan at Division II Northern Michigan. At night, it will be Western Carolina at East Carolina, Drake at Indiana State, Northeast Louisiana at Southwestern Wichita State is one of 26 I-A schools starting the campaign with a new coach. Many of those coaches, however, have been in charge of football programs at other schools prior to their present stops.

Defending champion Alabama and 1978 runnerup Southern Cal get underway Sept. 8. The Crimson Tide, No. 2 in this year's AP preseason poll behind Southern Cal, takes on Georgia Tech in a nationally televised night game. The Trojans face Texas Tech in Lubbock, also under the lights.

Cubs Take Opener

Rose High School's junior varsity opened its season yesterday with a 20-14 come-from-behind win over Kinston.

Rose scored first with David Sherrord going 64 yards on the second play from scrimmage in the game. A two-point extra point try failed.

The Baby Vikings took the lead in the second period, returning a fumble 65 yards for the score, and then adding a two-point conversion for an 8-6 lead. In the third period, Kinston scored again, making it 14-6.

The Rampant Cubs came back on a five-yard run by Jerome Cox, and a two-point conversion by Barry Smith to tie it up in the final quarter, 14-14.

Then, with about a minute left in the game, Smith hit Chris McLawhorn over the middle for a ten-yard scoring pass that won the game for the Cubs.

Wayne Joyner, Cornelius Moore and Cromer Haigler were cited for their defensive play in the game.

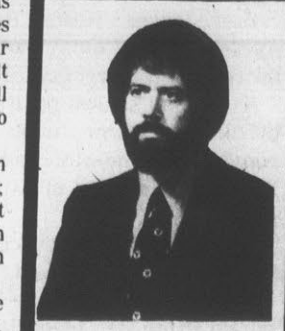

Rose plays at Washington next Thursday.

Lions, Bucs Open NFL Year

Woody Pele

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
They finished last season with identical 9-7 records, a slim one game behind the American Conference champion Denver Broncos. Now the Seattle Seahawks and San Diego Chargers have playoff ambitions of their own and they'll test them out on each other Sunday as the National Football League's 60th season gets underway. Actually, the earliest-ever

NFL season starts Saturday night when the Detroit Lions visit the Tampa Bay Bucs. In Sunday's other games, Atlanta visits New Orleans, Dallas is at St. Louis, Green Bay plays at Chicago, the New York Giants are at Philadelphia, San Francisco travels to Minnesota, Houston plays at Washington, Los Angeles hosts Oakland, Baltimore plays at Kansas City, Cincinnati visits Denver, Cleveland goes against the Jets in New York and Buffalo hosts Miami.

The opening weekend concludes Monday night with Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh playing at New England.

Four coaches will be making their debuts, with Tom Flores at Oakland, Ray Perkins with the Giants, Bill Walsh in San Francisco and Ron Erhardt in New England. Two others, Homer Rice with Cincinnati and Don Coryell at San Diego, will be starting their first full years on the job.

Coryell has Charger followers excited. The club won seven of its last eight games last season after he took over in the fifth week. Now with newcomers like running back Mike Thomas and All-Pro cornerback Willie Buchanan added to the cast along with tight end Kellen Winslow, a No. 1 draft choice, the club seems improved.

Quarterback Dan Fouts threw 24 touchdown passes last year when San Diego led the NFL in passing with 210.9 yards per game. Much of the air attack was targeted at wide receiver John Jefferson, who caught 56 passes for 1,001 yards last year.

Seattle has a high-powered offense, too, with quarterback Jim Zorn directing an attack that generated 55 points in the final preseason game against San Francisco. Wide receiver Steve Largent led the American Conference with 71 catches last season. Veteran Carl Eller, obtained from Minnesota, adds experience to the defensive line.

Detroit, which turned a dismal 1-6 start into a nearly respectable 7-9 first year for Monte Clark, faces a major problem at quarterback with the loss of Gary Danielson, who was hurt in the final preseason game.

The Lions will use Joe Reed and Scott Hunter to fill in and you can expect running backs Dexter Bussey and Horace King to carry much of the offensive load behind a line anchored by tackle Keith Dorney, a No. 1 draft choice.

The Selmon brothers, Lee Roy up front and Dewey at linebacker, are key men in the Tampa Bay defense that was fourth best in the NFL last year.

Doug Williams is back at quarterback for the Bucs with Rickey Bell and Johnny Davis the starting running backs.

Minnesota and Los Angeles are both shooting for record seventh straight division titles — the Vikings in the National Conference Central and the Rams in the NFC West.

The Vikes' task seems more difficult because of the retirement of quarterback Fran Tarkenton, one of the NFL's all-time greats at the position. Tommy Kramer succeeds Tarkenton, and Dennis Swilley replaces center Mick Tinglehoff, who also retired. Steve Niehaus, acquired from Seattle for Eller, plays next to defensive end Jim Marshall, starting a remarkable 20th NFL season.

Rebuilding San Francisco welcomes back running back Wilbur Jackson, who missed last season with a torn-up knee, and introduces ex-Philadelphia running back Mike Hogan, who'll probably replace O.J. Simpson in the opener. Simpson, the NFL's No. 2 all-time rusher behind Jim Brown with 10,776 yards, missed the pre-season because of a sore knee and the tragic drowning of his 23-month-old daughter.

The Rams promise a more wide-open offense built around quarterback Pat Haden. Running back John Cappelletti is out for the season but Los Angeles is still deep at the position with Lawrence McCutcheon and Elvis Peacock, both coming off injuries last year, and Cullen Bryant.

Dusting The Plate

Toronto Blue Jays' second baseman Dan Ainge slides into home plate in a cloud of dust to score the Jays' first run Thursday in the third inning.

Seattle Mariner catcher Larry Cox dropped the throw to the plate, allowing Ainge to score. Seattle won the American League game at Toronto's Exhibition Stadium, 8-2. (AP Laserphoto)

Kansas City Vaults Into First Past Faltering California Nine

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Kansas City's George Brett knows when he sees something good — like himself and the rest of the front-running Royals.

"If I was a betting man, I'd put my money on myself," Brett said Thursday night after the Royals overtook the fading California Angels in the American League West, grabbing a one-half game lead, the first time they've been in first place since June 28.

"They've blown a 10½-game lead," Brett said. "I think they've been looking over their shoulder."

While the Angels were losing 7-1 in Cleveland, the Royals were rolling to an 8-3 victory over the comeback club of a year ago, the New York Yankees.

"I think there were doubts in our minds, but we weren't going to throw in the towel," Brett said. "The Yankees did it last year. We can do it, too."

In the rest of the American League, Baltimore beat Minnesota 5-4, Texas blanked Boston 6-0, Detroit edged Oakland 8-7, Seattle defeated Toronto 8-2 and, in 12 innings, Milwaukee beat Chicago 4-3.

Darrell Porter was Kansas City's big gun with a three-run homer in the first inning off Luis Tiant, who gave up six runs in three innings before being removed.

Frank White had three hits and two RBI and Pete LaCock added a triple and a single.

Indians 7, Angels 1
Nolan Ryan, ripped for five runs in five innings, said: "Our pitching has to quit getting us into a hole early in the game. It makes it tough on our hitters to have to try to keep coming back."

Len Barker pitched a six-hitter and Ron Hassey drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the first inning to lead the Indians to their eighth victory in the last eight games.

Orioles 5, Twins 4
Baltimore's Mike Flanagan, an unhappy 19-game winner a year ago, chalked up No. 19 earlier this year, compliments of two-run singles by Rich Dauer and Ken Singleton in the seventh inning.

Dauer's hit off the Twins' Jerry Koosman came after Lee May's walk and Gary Roenicke's ground-rule double. Singleton's two-out hit came off reliever Mike Marshall, making his 78th appearance of the season. Don Stanhouse picked up his 16th save for the Orioles.

Rangers 6, Red Sox 0
"I'm always a little anxious about pitching against their lineup in this ballpark," Doc Medich of Texas said after two-hitting the Red Sox in cozy Fenway Park, "but you've got to pitch them and go with your strength."

Going against Boston in Fenway is "like pitching in a shower stall, where you reach out and touch all four walls," he added.

The Rangers pounded Red Sox ace Dennis Eckersley for 10 hits, including Al Oliver's 12th homer.

Boston Manager Don Zimmer, the victim of the Yankees' comeback a year ago, figures its the Red Sox' turn. "I've seen a lot of miracles happen in baseball, and that's what we've got to hope for now."

Tigers 8, A's 7

Jerry Morales hit two home runs, driving in three runs, to pace Detroit past the A's. He had a two-run shot in the fifth and put the Tigers ahead to stay with his 13th homer in the eighth.

The game-winner came later in the inning when Jason Thompson tripled and Lynn Jones singled.

Mariners 8, Blue Jays 2

Mario Mendoza drove in three runs with a triple and single and Mike Parrott got his 13th victory of the year, a single-season Seattle record, as the Mariners beat Toronto.

Mendoza tripled home two runs in a three-run fifth inning and added an RBI single in a four-run sixth.

Brewers 4, White Sox 3

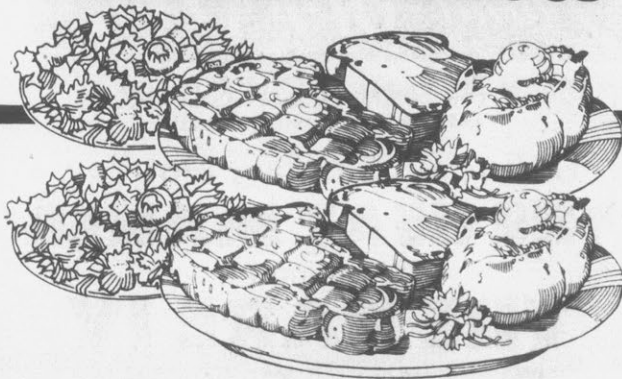

Sixto Lezcano, who homered in the second inning, drew a bases-loaded walk from Guy Hoffman in the 12th for Milwaukee's winning run.

Paul Molitor led off with a single and two outs later Gorman Thomas was given an intentional walk. But Ben Oglivie and Lezcano also walked to give the Brewers their 15th victory in the last 19 games.

Trevino Leads Canadian Open

WOODBIDGE, Ont. (AP) — Lee Trevino says there isn't an easy hole at the National Golf Club.

"You can't relax at any time," said Trevino, who registered birdies on the last four holes for a four-under-par 67 Thursday and the first-round lead in the $100,000 Canadian PGA Championship.

More than 140 competitors started the 72-hole tournament in sunny weather but only five broke par on the 6,975-yard course, politely called tough and long by a number of the players but tagged as evil by some members of the private club.

Entering today's second round, with $20,000 as the prize for the winner, Trevino took a two-stroke lead over Jim Nefford and Bob Rose of Canada and Peter Townsend of England.

Alone at 70, three strokes off the pace, was Tony Jacklin of England, followed by another Canadian, Paul Kennedy.

Tom Watson, leading money winner on the Professional Golfers' Association tour, Dave Barr of Canada and Francisco Cerda of Chile had 72s. Among those at 2-over-par 73 were defending champion Lanny Wadkins and Bob Charles of New Zealand.

The tournament, originally a closed event for members of the Canadian PGA, became an international competition in 1978.

For most of the Canadian club pros and a number of invited professionals, it was generally a disastrous day.

McEnroe Downs Nastase Despite Noise

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was chaos on center court, bizarre midnight madness more befitting an international soccer match than a tennis tournament.

The players, John McEnroe and Ili Nastase, were standing at opposite ends of the court, hands on hips. Umpire Frank Hammond had just penalized Nastase a game for delaying play, but the boisterous crowd of 10,549 that came to the U.S. Open Thursday night refused to accept that decision.

They booed. They whistled. They clapped. They stomped their feet.

"It may not have been the wildest thing I've ever seen, but it sure was in the top ten," said McEnroe.

Finally, in an effort to get play resumed, tournament referee Mike Blanchard instructed Nastase to serve. At that point McEnroe led 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 3-1, but not according to the crowd. They roared "2-1, 2-1, 2-1," demanding that the penalty assessed against Nastase be reversed.

"I thought if play could resume, the crowd would quiet down," said Blanchard, explaining why he ordered Nastase to serve despite the roar of the crowd.

Nastase refused.

"He (Hammond) kept telling me, 'Play with the noise, play with the noise,'" Nastase said. "I said, 'I won't play with that noise. Take the point, take the game, take the match.'"

And that's what Hammond did.

"Game, set and match Mr. McEnroe," he bellowed into the microphone.

The crowd continued to roar. The players stood and stared in disbelief.

"It was obvious the match wasn't going to be over," said McEnroe. "They would have lynched him (Hammond)."

Instead, they replaced him. Billy Talbert, the tournament director, instructed Hammond to leave the chair. The stocky umpire clambered down and was replaced by Blanchard.

Somewhere in the confusion, Hammond's announcement that the match was over was reversed. Play eventually resumed, after a delay of some 15 minutes, and the third-seeded McEnroe soon wrapped up a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory.

In today's featured action, defending champion Jimmy Connors, the No. 2 seed, plays Vijay Amritraj of India in an afternoon match while No. 5 Roscoe Tanner takes on Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia. In another night match, 16-year-old Tracy Austin, the No. 3 women's seed, meets 14-year-old Andrea Jaeger.

The highlight of Thursday's afternoon program came when 14-year-old Kathy Horvath became the youngest player ever to compete in the main draw of the Open.

Only five days after her 14th birthday, she put up a stiff fight for one set against sixth-seeded Dianne Fromholtz of Australia before bowing 7-6, 6-2.

Horvath is 21-2 months younger than Jaeger, who plays today, and eight months younger than Austin was when she played here two years ago.

None of the top players encountered any difficulty in their matches Thursday.

Bjorn Borg, the four-time Wimbledon champion and No. 1 men's seed, clobbered David Carter of Australia 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis romped past Ferdi Taygan 6-2, 6-2, 6-3; No. 5 Tanner trounced John Marks of Australia 6-4, 6-2, 6-0; No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina whipped Ramiro Benavides of Bolivia 6-1, 6-1, 6-0; No. 8 Victor Pecci of Paraguay topped Andres Gomez of Ecuador 6-2, 6-2, 6-4; No. 10 Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina beat Mel Purcell 6-2, 7-6, 6-4; No. 11 Brian Gottfried downed Van Wittsky 6-4, 6-2, 6-4; No. 12 Wojtek Fibak of Poland defeated Bob Carmichael of Australia 7-6, 7-5, 6-2; No. 13 Gene Mayer trounced Mike Shore 6-1, 6-4, 6-0, and No. 16 John Alexander of Australia beat Howard Schoenfeld 6-1, 7-5, 7-6.

In women's play, top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd, seeking her fifth straight Open title, breezed past Joanne Russell 6-0, 6-2 and will next face Renee Richards, a 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 victor over Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa.

In other matches, No. 2 Martina Navratilova, the Wimbledon queen, beat Alycia Moulton 6-4, 6-0; No. 3 Tracy Austin clobbered Ivanna Madruga of Argentina 6-3, 6-1; No. 4 Virginia Wade of Britain coasted past Janet Newberry 6-3, 6-2; No. 5 Evonne Goolagong Cawley outlasted Kay McDaniel 6-7, 6-4, 6-4; No. 8 Kerry Reid of Australia beat Ann Hobbs of Britain 6-4,

6-0; No. 9 Billie Jean King defeated Chris O'Neil of Australia 7-6, 6-2; No. 12 Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia topped Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-3; No. 13 Sue Barker of Britain bowed to 17-year-old Barbara Potter 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, and

No. 16 Betty Stove of the Netherlands lost to Kelly Henry 7-6, 4-1, retiring in the second set when she said she felt sick.

Her Time Will Come

Flushing Meadows, N.Y. Thursday. Horvath, 14, was the youngest player ever to compete in the main draw of the U.S. Open. She lost, however, to the sixth-seeded Fromholtz, 7-6, 6-2. (AP Laserphoto)

Ex-Deacon Strange Grabs B.C. Open Lead

By MIKE HENDRICKS
Associated Press Writer
ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Curtis Strange, a former NCAA champion making the adjustment to the PGA tour in his third year as a pro, held a 1-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $275,000 B.C. Open golf tournament.

Already assured of an exemption from having to qualify for next year's tour events because his 1979 performances have guaranteed him a spot in the top 60 on the PGA money list, Strange is going after his first professional championship.

"It's been a satisfying year, more so than the last two years. I haven't been playing maybe as well as other people expected me to," said Strange, a resident of Kingsmill, Va. "I'm playing consistently in the top 25 of most of the tournaments I've entered."

Strange's biggest challenger from Thursday's first round was Allan Tapie, a golfer struggling to stay on the tour who surprised himself with his solid performance that left him behind Strange by only a stroke.

Strange set the pace Thursday with a quick start that saw him collect six birdies on seven holes in the first half of the 6,915-yard Enjoe Golf Club course.

He finished the round with a 7-under-par 64.

The 72-hole tournament, which ends Sunday, carries a first-place prize of $49,500.

Gil Morgan, the winner of the 1977 B.C. Open, was tied with husky Larry Webb, 2 strokes behind Strange going into the second round.

Frank Conner birdied the last four holes to lead a group of six golfers tied at 3 strokes behind the leaders. Defending champion Tom Kite finished 8 strokes behind the leader.

"I'm extremely happy with the way I played the first 13 holes. I'm putting extremely well," Strange said.

Tapie said he has been playing an arduous golf schedule and was tired when he teed off. The Irvine, Calif., golfer said he did not expect to do well Thursday.

"I didn't make any mistakes that cost me. Other than that I didn't feel I was playing that good, but it turned out to be a pretty good round," Tapie said.

Webb, a 263-pounder from Aurora, Colo., put his weight behind his drives to propel himself into a contending position.

"I was just hitting it off the earth, and that's got to help," Webb said.

Morgan, an optometrist from Wewoka, Okla., said he is entering the time of year when he plays his best golf.

"This time of year is good for me. I always play better in the late summer and fall," Morgan said after his 5-under-par performance.

Mears Fastest In Qualifying

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Winds were expected to be a big factor in today's final qualifying and again in Sunday's California 500 auto race, but the big names and their fast times were still familiar.

Rick Mears, the Indianapolis 500 winner from Bakersfield, Calif.; Al Unser, Bobby Unser, multiple winners of big races, and Mario Andretti command the most attention at the Ontario Motor Speedway.

Mears set a lap record of 203.046 mph in the first day of qualifying, but didn't necessarily win the pole position because this qualifying is under the European multistar system differing from that generally used in the United States.

So the drivers got another chance at bettering their speeds in runs today to determine the grid of the $300,000 race.

The next fastest laps were turned by Al Unser, 201.844;

Bobby Unser, 201.378; and Andretti, 200.396.

Under the European system, groups of up to eight cars go on the track for 20 minutes, with each of their laps of the 2 1/2-mile oval timed, with the fastest counting as the drivers' qualifying time. They did the same today so it was possible for a driver to improve his time.

Al Unser, winner here the past two years, was in a group when breezes were light, but he was in a brand new car, a Chaparral-Cosworth owned by Texan Jim Hall.

Five cars that had running time were disqualified because their rear wings were more than the allowable 32 inches above the tubs or bottoms of the vehicles. All could try again today and other cars that didn't try on Thursday were expected to be on the line. The first group starts the 20-minute qualifying run at 1 p.m. PDT.

First run times over 190 mph came from Tom Sneva, 197.624; Danny Ongais, 196.773; Tom Bagley, 196.773; Steve Krisiloff, 195.797; Johnny Parsons, 195.746; Johnny Rutherford, 193.803; Lee Kunzman, 193.278; Dick Ferguson, 193.054; Spike Gelhausen, 192.156; and Pancho Carter, 190.074.

Wally Dallenbach did 192.757 and Gordon Johncock, 191.820, but they were two of the disqualified. Others were Vern Schuppan, Tim Richmond and Tom Franz.

Giants Hold Meeting, Find It Didn't Hurt

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) The San Francisco Giants held a pregame meeting and it certainly didn't hurt.

"Maybe we're back on the right track. We've got to start playing baseball and stop worrying about other things," said Manager Joe Altobelli.

That was the theme of the meeting held Thursday before the Giants went out and played the game well, beating the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2. In the only other National League contest, the Cubs topped the Dodgers 4-1.

Willie McCovey's tie-breaking pinch-hit single in the seventh inning and Ed Whitson's fourth-inning home run, along with a big break which gave them their first two runs, helped the Giants forget — at least temporarily — some recent troubles.

Whitson made his record 6-8 with his best game since joining the Giants two months ago. The Giants tied the score in the fourth when a seemingly perfect throw to the plate by Gary Templeton hit sliding baserunner Mike Ivie on an ankle and resulted in two runs.

Those "other things" alluded to by Altobelli included a clubhouse fight involving Whitson, fines handed out to Whitson and three others for breaking a rule against drinking on team flights and some feuding with local baseball writers.

The Giants had lost 11 of 13 games before Thursday and Altobelli reminded the players, "Baseball is baseball. Other things are other things."

The Cardinals held a mini-meeting on the mound just before Pete Vuckovich, 12-9, pitched to McCovey, batting for Joe Strain with two out and runners at first and second.

"I just wanted to see how he felt, and he said he was feeling great," said Boyer. "I couldn't see going to any other pitcher, the way Pete was throwing."

But Vuckovich, who allowed only six hits in the tough loss, made the first pitch to McCovey too good, admitting, "I missed by six inches."

Where did he intend to throw the fastball which McCovey lined into right field?

"That's none of your business," he replied.

"It was a fastball that got the inside part of the plate," said McCovey. "It's one of the few inside pitches I've seen in the past month."

Cubs 4, Dodgers 1
Larry Blittner tripled in two first-inning runs and three Cubs pitchers combined on a six-hitter. Dennis Lamp, who got his 10th victory in 17 decisions, Dick Tidrow and Bruce Sutter, who picked up his 35th save, did the hurling.

Intrigued By Opportunity In Sunday News

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Wallace says he was reluctant at first to give up his assignment in Washington as House correspondent for NBC News, but there was something about "Prime Time Sunday" that aroused his interest.

they'll still be making up the show. In that sense, it's like a good newspaper, constantly re-making the front page."

"What intrigued me was the opportunity to spend more time on a story, for reporting, digging, more interviews, better writing," Wallace says, "the chance to give 10 minutes to a story rather than a minute and a half."

Wallace was recruited, with Jack Perkins, as one of the program's two roving correspondents. And in the two months since the mid-summer premiere of "Prime Time Sunday," his generally hard-edge reporting has been one of the show's strong points.

"It hasn't all been smooth," he says, "but I feel I've worked out a lot of the kinks, and I think the show has, too."

"We came into this with no bag of stories, so to speak, and I must say, we're tired. But we all feel it's been worth it."

Indeed, NBC scheduled the first edition of "Prime Time Sunday," with Tom Snyder, host of the network's late-night "Tomorrow" program, as anchor, for the evening of June 24. That was primarily to give the newsmagazine a running start into the 1979-80 season.

"Prime Time Sunday" has stumbled a bit in the ratings so far, but enters the new television year with the support of NBC's president, Fred Silverman.

"Surely, we'd all like to be better in the ratings," Wallace says, "but there's hardly a great despondency here."

The comparison with CBS' super-successful "60 Minutes" — Chris Wallace's father, Mike Wallace, has been a "60 Minutes" correspondent from the start — was inevitable. Indeed, the contrast probably contributed to the demise of "Weekend," the predecessor of "Prime Time Sunday."

NBC, at the outset, emphasized "Prime Time Sunday" would be different — portions of the new program would be live.

"It's been an evolving thing, we're constantly developing the program," Wallace says, "and the exciting thing about the live format is the opportunity it gives for change."

"I'll be on location, working on a story. I'll call Paul Friedman, the producer, three or four hours before air time, and

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♦ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Five of ♠.

Bridge is the name of the game, but every now and then you would swear it was ping-pong as you watch a contract being tossed from side to side.

Of North's three bids, only one was correct — his one spade opening. Thereafter he did nothing proper until he spread the dummy very neatly on the table after the opening lead. North should have passed his partner's one no trump response. South, who had something in reserve, could not be faulted for bidding again when North persisted. Words fail us in commenting on North's decision to go on to game.

West elected to open the five of hearts — not our choice. Since the opponents were obviously stretching, a lead from the shorter but more solid club holding would have been safer. Dummy followed with the six, and East made the first mistake of the play. "Third hand high, partner," he muttered, as he played the jack. Since South surely had one of the top heart honors, putting the jack under the ace just gave away a heart trick. East should have "finessed" by playing the eight. The Rule of Eleven makes it clear that declarer has only one card higher than the five, so the eight should drive out the honor.

Declarer now proceeded to nullify the advantage he had gained by East's play to the first trick. He naturally went to work on the spade suit, hoping to develop three winners before the defenders beat him in the diamond suit. Unfortunately, he led the nine. This was covered by the king, and the 5-1 break meant that declarer could now collect only two spade tricks. The proper play for South at trick two was the two and not the nine — since a trick had to be lost, there was no need to squander the nine. Although declarer came to three heart tricks with the help of a finesse of the ten, his total was only eight tricks.

Note what a difference the play of the low spade at trick two would have made. Declarer would have scored three spade tricks, three hearts and three clubs for an undeserved game.

Ackroyd Won't Sign Contract

NEW YORK — Dan Ackroyd is telling friends he may not be "Live from New York," this fall, says The New York Daily News.

In today's editions, the News reported Ackroyd — who plays Jimmy Carter, Papa Conehead and a number of other characters as one of the stars of NBC's "Saturday Night Live" — has joined colleague John Belushi in refusing to sign a contract for the show's fifth season, which begins Oct. 13, the paper said. Both are working in Chicago in a film based on their hit musical team, the Blues Brothers.

"They've both had a lot of offers and have nothing planned beyond the movie, which should wind up sometime in November," a spokeswoman for their manager told the News.

Heart Failure Kills Sally Rand

GLENDORA, Calif. (AP) — Sally Rand, whose peekaboo fan dancing scandalized and delighted audiences for more than 45 years, died today of heart failure. She was 75.

Miss Rand died at Foothill Presbyterian Hospital in Glendora, where she had been kept alive since suffering cardiac arrest late Wednesday, said hospital spokeswoman Jane Tessitor.

The cause of death was congestive heart failure, the spokeswoman said.

The petite, blonde-haired dancer and her ostrich plumes were the hit of the 1933 Chicago World's Fair — and just about everywhere else. Until last year, when ill health forced her to curtail her appearances, she was still waving the fluffy white fans up to 40 weeks a year.

"People ask me, 'What the hell are you doing it for?'" she told The Associated Press. "Well, it's a lot better than doing needlepoint in the patio."

Born Helen Gould Beck on April 3, 1904, she started performing at age 14 and worked her way from Missouri to Hollywood in the 1920s. Then, director Cecil B. De Mille cast her in "The King of Kings" as Sally Rand, a name he lifted from a Rand-McNally atlas.

While Miss Rand settled in this Los Angeles suburb, she never made it big in the movies. So she came up with the ideal of dancing in the nude with ostrich plumes to set her apart from other striptease acts.

She first performed her dance in a Chicago speakeasy in 1932, when she coined the phrase "the Rand is quicker than the eye." But it was at the Midway in the World's Fair that she really made a splash.

She took her fan dance all over the country, sometimes varying things a bit with an almost-as-famous routine using a bubble five feet in diameter.

The act periodically got her hauled into court for indecent exposure. The last time that happened was in Omaha, Neb., in 1964, when she was old enough to have been most strippers' grandmother.

But age was never a hangup for Miss Rand, who discussed her face lifts and hair dye jobs with equal candor. "I felt proud at the age of 60 to be arrested for being naked in public," she said of the Omaha incident.

Miss Rand is survived by her adopted son, Sean, 31, his wife and two grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were pending, the hospital spokeswoman said.

Two TV Stations Sharing Tall Tower

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Television Inc., WITN-TV, has agreed to sell one-half interest in its new 2,000-foot tower to East Carolina Tower Inc., an affiliated corporation of Roy H. Park Broadcasting Inc., according to a joint announcement made Thursday by W.R. Roberson Jr., chairman of North Carolina Television, and Roy H. Park, president of Roy H. Park Broadcasting Inc.

The new tower, located at Grifton, is nearing completion and will accommodate both WITN-TV and WNCN-TV transmitting antennas as well as WITN-FM and WNCN-FM. Both of the eastern North Carolina television stations will utilize a new type of television signal transmission called circular polarization that will provide clearer, distortion-free signals to a larger segment of the households in the area.

With both stations transmitting from the same location, the need for adjustment of antennas at the home will be eliminated, according to the announcement.

"We believe that this move best serves the people in our area in making available to our audiences the finest television reception attainable today," Roberson said. "We enter this arrangement with the firm desire to serve the public interest as responsible broadcasters."

Park said, "I have joined Bill Roberson in this joint venture because it makes financial sense for us to share such an expensive structure and because we are convinced that

Carter Spending Labor Day Holiday In Hometown

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter is home for a long Labor Day weekend after a 15-hour road trip that combined politics, pleas for energy conservation and a call for unity between blacks and Jews.

"I feel good, a little sleepy," the president said late Thursday after a grueling day in muggy Atlanta and rainy Tampa, Fla., where he capped his visit with a helicopter ride through streaks of lightning.

Friends and neighbors arranged a "welcome home" picnic for 500 people tonight in Carter's honor.

Unity was the theme Thursday for the president, an undeclared candidate for re-election plagued by low standings in the polls and defections within his Democratic Party to a draft-Kennedy movement.

Dressed in an academic robe, Carter invoked that theme at Emory University in Atlanta with a sober appeal to blacks and Jews to weather the storm over the resignation of United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young.

"We must not permit diversity to degenerate into division," Carter said.

At a town meeting on energy a few hours later in Tampa, he sounded the same theme. By facing the energy crisis together, Carter said, "We can have a better life, a happier life... Our nation can be unified more, families can be closer."

The underlying political theme was unity too — unity behind candidate Carter.

He reached out repeatedly to shake hands at airports. In Tampa, neither the pouring rain nor the thunder and lightning could stop him.

Wearing a gray rain slicker and at one point donning a red fireman's hat to keep dry, the president continued the style he favored during his Mississippi River cruise last week and greeted crowds from one end of a restraining rope to the other. His wife, Rosalynn, did the same.

The Florida stop, particularly, was rife with political undercurrents since Democrats there plan a straw poll on presidential candidates in November.

It also holds one of the nation's first primaries and is the scene of an effort to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the Democratic nomination.

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., predicted a "three-ring circus" at the state convention in November unless Kennedy withdraws unequivocally.

In Atlanta, to an outdoor audience that included Coretta Scott King, wife of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., the president called on blacks and Jews to set aside their differences in the interest of national unity.

"Black Americans and Jewish Americans have worked side by side for generations," he said. "Both groups have suffered too much pain, too much persecution, too much bigotry to compound that suffering in any way."

Warning that other nations are in danger of being torn apart by ethnic, political and religious divisions, Carter implored: "We must seek resolution of differences, and we must stand with each other to prevent all these quarrels of the world from being imported into our own national life."

Young, who was scheduled to appear with Carter at Emory but was called back to the United Nations, resigned Aug. 15 after he violated U.S. policy by meeting with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Saying Young's work has "helped millions of poor and oppressed people throughout the world," the president drew applause when he added: "He speaks from the heart. He speaks out of a deep commitment. He speaks out of religious conscience. And he speaks with a preacher's eloquence."

At the town meeting in Tampa, where an excited crowd of 2,000 applauded and cheered repeatedly, Carter beckoned Americans to stop placing blame for the energy crisis and instead to "see what we can do in the future."

The hour-long session was interrupted briefly by two protesters from the Revolutionary Communist Party as well as a filibuster-like appeal from a man trying to market a solar energy house.

Carter again urged the nation to conserve energy and Congress to pass his energy program, including an excise tax on the extra revenues oil companies receive as a result of removal of price controls on domestic crude oil.

Conservation, he said, "is the cheapest and easiest and most pleasant way to be a patriotic American I can think of and I hope everyone here will help me."

Withhold Approval Of Relaxed Air Standards

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal environmental officials are withholding approval of plans the state adopted in June to relax air-pollution standards at 44 coal-burning power plants. Under the state plan, the standards would be eased for three years.

An Environmental Protection Agency official in Atlanta said Thursday the EPA wants the state to support its case for relaxed standards with more information on how much more pollution would be put into North Carolina's air.

"We don't believe we have all the information we need to make a decision," said Walt Bishop, EPA program coordinator for North Carolina.

EPA enforcement officer Floyd Ledbetter said Thursday that he didn't think the power companies documented their need to increase pollution levels.

"Personally, I feel like North Carolina backed down to the power companies," Ledbetter said.

The N.C. Environmental Management Commission decided June 14 to allow Carolina Power & Light Co. and Duke

Power Co. to increase pollution levels by 2½ times.

The changes permit the power companies to pump 114,000 additional tons of coal ash into the air each year.

The power companies had argued that they could be subject to millions of dollars in fines because of a federal law that took effect July 1.

Under the new law, the plants would have to meet the state's clean-air standards consistently rather than complying with tests they conducted themselves under the most favorable conditions.

The staff of the state's environmental management division opposed the relaxation of standards at first. Last week, former state enforcement officer Kirt Cox said state officials gave in to pressure from the utilities and forced the staff to back away from its position.

Gov. Jim Hunt Thursday denied the charges, saying they "were totally without foundation."

Bin Collapse Spills Grain

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — Fifty thousand bushels of newly harvested wheat spilled across part of downtown Newton Thursday when a concrete grain storage bin collapsed.

It was the third collapse in nine years for the Midstate Mills flour mill, and construction engineers from Michigan will visit the site to try to find out why it happened. No injuries were reported.

A company official estimated it will cost at least $1 million to repair the bin.

"It was just a freak accident," said Norris Harwell, mill office manager. "The walls apparently just crumbled and the grain fell out. I've never heard of anything like this happening in a grain elevator."

Investigators from the Food and Drug Administration will supervise efforts to salvage the spilled grain and help decide how to use it. Harwell said it could be used for feed for poultry and livestock.

But much of the spilled grain could have been destroyed by a heavy rain Thursday night. After the last collapse, rain ruined more than 30 percent of 250,000 bushels of spilled wheat, corn and oats.

In 1970, 32 grain storage bins toppled in a chain reaction at the mill. Two other bins fell that December.

Some mill officials think structural defects in the steel-reinforced bin might have caused Thursday's collapse. The middle of the 100-foot tall bin had been patched about a month ago.

Moments before the collapse, two workers were surveying the bin for leaks. One, who asked that his name not be used, said he saw the bin leaking at the base.

Hough Bros., Inc., the Michigan firm that built the bins, is sending its engineers to investigate the collapse.

Midstate makes biscuit and cake flour sold under seven brand names in the Carolinas, Georgia and Virginia.

Light Bulb Sale Request Okay

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of a request by the Greenville Jaycees for permission to conduct the annual light bulb sale throughout the city from Sept. 17-30.

Wyatt said the Jaycees' request was submitted by Bill Morris of Greenville.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 1, 1979

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Start the new month right by thinking out advanced ways by which you can have more security in the future. You can now engineer conditions to your benefit. Be more optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may find it difficult to get going early in the day but all will be fine as the day progresses. Show others you have wisdom.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are now able to get ahead via new channels, so don't waste valuable time. Spending more time at home today is wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can now come to a far better understanding with both debtors and creditors so that you can breathe easier. Use tact.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine day for gaining more cooperation with neighbors and making real progress. Think along logical and practical lines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find a better method for advancing in your line of endeavor. Be sure to control your temper at all times today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can derive much enjoyment from today's recreations. Rendering a particular favor to the one you love leads to happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have to give more thought and time to home affairs if everything is to work out smoothly there. Be careful of outsiders.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Maneuver conditions around you so that they are more to your liking. Try to please your close friends and relatives.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to handle monetary matters well now and build up your assets. Family members need more attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are able to gain personal aims with relative ease now. Joining congenials in favorite hobby is fine later in the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take time today to concentrate on making your future brighter. State your true aims to mate and come to a better understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do whatever will give you more rapport with good friends and get right results. Strive for increased happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will do very well in matters of finance, business and property, so be sure to give good training in ethics, good manners and religion to balance the materialism in this chart. Teach to use diplomacy in dealing with others.

CRYPTOQUIP

IGHK WVII GH OWRZQ V IGHKUP
WURFY GP SZROQSGRFYI

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — DOCTORS CALL OUR WE WARTS AND WENS "SMALL TUMORS."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Readers Ask About Stroke

Q: What is a stroke?
A: Many patients can make a complete and permanent recovery. Even victims of very severe strokes can now be rehabilitated and function as productive, happy people. Rehabilitation today is begun almost immediately after the onset of the stroke. Elaborate techniques have been established for the psychological and physical revitalization of these courageous patients. Rehabilitative programs incorporate the physician, the psychologist, the speech therapist, the physiotherapist, the nursing staff and the family.

Q: What causes a stroke?
A: A clot, or thrombus, may clog a blood vessel going to the brain or in the brain, thus obstructing the normal flow of blood. A blood vessel may break (brain hemorrhage) and similarly hinder the normal functioning of the affected area of the brain. Sudden closure of a blood vessel due to narrowing of an artery by arteriosclerosis is another cause.

Q: Do all strokes cause the same symptoms?
A: No. Symptoms vary extensively, depending on the exact area of the brain deprived of the nutrition of blood and oxygen. The human brain is divided into many tiny segments, each of which controls a different function of the body. A blood deficit in one area of the brain may produce a paralysis of the arm, the leg or the face. A blood deficit in another area may cause an impairment of speech or the inability to use words (aphasia).

Q: Can strokes be prevented?
A: Some conditions like high blood pressure, when actively treated, can prevent many strokes. The elimination of tobacco, a cause of spasm of the blood vessels (another cause of stroke), can also prevent strokes.

Q: Is it possible to recover from a stroke?
A: Some conditions like high blood pressure, when actively treated, can prevent many strokes. The elimination of tobacco, a cause of spasm of the blood vessels (another cause of stroke), can also prevent strokes.

U.S. GOVERNMENT DESIRES TO LEASE OFFICE SPACE

Approximately 8,000 square feet of office space at one location in the Greenville area, generally bounded on the south by the Norfolk Southern Railroad and the Greenville city limits; on the east by the Pitt County line; extending north to the town of Falkland. Preferably should be in the area served by the local telephone company central office from which the 758 telephone exchange originates. Space must be capable of accepting 26 telephone lines.

Occupancy not later than January 2, 1979, for a period of 12 months.

Listings will be received until September 10, 1979.

Call (704) 371-6163 or write the Bureau of the Census, 230 South Tryon Street, Suite 915, Charlotte, N.C. 28202.

This is an inquiry as to the availability of space and should not be construed as a request for bids.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pitt County will open sealed bids on Monday, September 10, 1979, at 3:00 P.M. in the County Manager's office at the Pitt County Courthouse for the following items:

All vehicles may be inspected from 8:00 A.M. - 5:00 P.M., Monday-Friday, at the County Garage on 264 By-pass. Each item will be sold to the highest bidder in their present condition with no stated or implied warranty or promise of performance.

All bids should be on the appropriate bid form which may be obtained at the County Manager's office or by contacting Don Davenport at 752-2934. The completed bid forms should be mailed to:

Pitt County Manager
Automobile Sealed Bids
P.O. Box A
Greenville, N.C. 27834

All bids must be sealed and in possession of the County Manager prior to 3:00 P.M., September 10, 1979. The Pitt County Board of Commissioners reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures

After more than 31 years writing this column, Irving "Doc" Desfor has now decided to give it up and take it easy for a while. I am his replacement and, frankly, a little nervous. His is a pretty tough act to follow.

The magicians call him "the photographer." He is both.

Doc served with the Theater Wing War Service during and after World War II, putting on his photo-magic shows at hospitals and USO's. He was so dedicated that he was performing when his daughter, Barbara, was born.

When the Theater Wing disbanded, Doc continued with the Volunteer Service Photographers, working with disabled vets, senior citizens and prisons; teaching photography, raising funds, promoting the group and amusing many with his photo magic.

He's delighted people all over the world with his show. The audiences have ranged all the way from a neighborhood child's birthday party to professional photo groups and business organizations.

Doc also enjoyed writing this column and the many friends it brought him. I, personally, will miss him and hope that he will come back to us all occasionally as a guest columnist.

Should any of you care to drop him a line, his address is Irving Desfor, 13913 B. Royal Palm Court, Delray Beach, Fla. 33445.

Now, who am I to be so presumptuous as to take over this column from Doc? I'm director of photography for the Associated Press, based in New York. That's a sort of glorified name for a chief photographer with additional duties.

I've been writing, taking pictures and editing photos professionally since 1948, first with the Pacific Stars and Stripes in Asia and later for the AP. In between, I spent a few years as picture editor of the Washington (D.C.) Star.

My current job keeps me busy not only worrying about the quality of photos taken by AP photographers around the world, but also with upcoming technologies in equipment and materials which will concern these photographers (and you) in coming years. Amid all the paperwork I still manage to get out and shoot pictures, too.

Where does one start a series of columns like this? Until such time as I become more acquainted with you, the reader, and your desires, I'll start at the beginning: the three most common mistakes I see being made by the average amateur photographer.

Operating a camera is a lot like driving a car. Unless you do it day after day so that it becomes natural, you just can't expect to become proficient.

The new automatic, electronic cameras, like the automatic shift in a car, make things easier for the beginner but won't help you a bit if you make these mistakes.

The first mistake, and by far the most prevalent yet easiest to resolve, is the way that most people press the shutter button.

Watch some time when Aunt Mary gets the family together for a group shot, has everyone smile and say "cheese," and then literally punches the shutter button, moving the whole camera at the moment of exposure. The result is, nine times out of 10, a fuzzy picture. Everything is fuzzy in both the foreground and background.

Learn to squeeze the shutter button gently and lovingly. It should almost surprise you when the shutter trips.

Most common mistake No. 2: most of you just don't get close enough to your subject. Let's watch Aunt Mary again as she shoots Joan and her husband in the backyard. She's shooting from 10 or 15 feet away. The result? Two people head to toe and then some, plus maybe an automobile, back porch, trees, garbage can and whatever, all competing for the eye's attention in the photo.

Move in close. Study the two-column photos in your newspaper. Keep the heads of your subjects large enough to be easily recognizable in that format. I find three feet a comfortable working distance when shooting people pictures. Try it yourself.

Mistake No.3 will take a little more getting used to.

Remember that a photograph is only two dimensional. There is no real depth. When setting up your pictures always check the background as well as your subject. Failure to do so can result in what appears to be tree branches growing out of the ears of your subject or a light bulb sprouting from the top of his head!

PHOTO MAGICIAN AT WORK: What came first, the chicken or the egg? Irving "Doc" Desfor, after more than 31 years writing this column retires from that chore this week but will no doubt continue to delight many with his photo-magic show as he is doing here demonstrating the chicken-egg controversy during one of his shows.
