Flow Of Soviet Arms For Cuba

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Intelligence Agency has predicted a "steady flow" of new Soviet weapons to Cuba, aimed at increasing the firepower and mobility of Fidel Castro's forces.

In a heavily censored version of a report to Congress, DIA experts said, "The weapons could be used equally well in any arena."

The Pentagon's intelligence agency estimated that Russia has given Cuba more than $1.6 billion in free military aid since 1960.

"The state of readiness of the Cuban army continues to improve," the DIA said. "This is because of increased combat experience in Africa, intensified training at home and delivery of new weapons systems."

The report, given behind closed doors to a House subcommittee last April and released recently, said Russia may send Cuba bigger assault guns, mobile surface-to-surface missiles, interceptor versions of the advanced MiG-23 jet fighter, larger troop transport helicopters and additional oceangoing naval combat vessels.

The censored version of the report made only indirect references to Soviet military personnel in Cuba and said nothing about the Russian ground combat brigade there whose presence was recently confirmed by the Carter administration.

It said that Cuba's military, economic and political ties with the Soviet Union are "closer than ever" and that deliveries of Russian military equipment "greatly increased" in dollar value last year.

"Traditionally, Cuba has had to settle for older systems while other Moscow client states received more recent production," said DIA analyst Martin J. Scheina.

"Of late, however, in line with the professionalization of the military, Cuba has been taking delivery on systems comparable to those received by Moscow's other allied states."

In addition to Cuba's extensive involvement in Africa, DIA specialists reported "a noticeable increase in Cuban support of Latin American insurgents."

The report linked what it described as a "resurgence" of Cuban activity in Latin America particularly to the then-raging battle by Sandinista rebels to overthrow the Somoza regime in Nicaragua.

But it also spoke of close Cuban relations with Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley and of ties with Guyana.

Gary R. McClellan, a Latin American analyst for DIA, said there was evidence of Cuban "contacts in practically all of the (Caribbean) islands, either officially with the governments themselves or with the more leftist-leaning radical or Communist-oriented individuals, parties or movements."

In speaking of a Foxtrot-class diesel-powered submarine supplied by Russia earlier this year, Scheina said this sub "is an ideal vehicle for the clandestine movement of a small number of men and their equipment."

Opts Out

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska has become the first state to make a wholesale withdrawal from the Social Security program with a vote by state workers to get out of the system Jan. 1.

State workers voted to trade their participation in the federal plan for a 6 percent pay cut to fund a replacement program set up by the State Division of Retirement and Benefits. Under the new plan, the state will match worker contributions.

State officials say they won't be able to duplicate Social Security benefits, and that the 14,451 workers affected instead will choose to be covered by one or two of the five benefit programs to be offered.

But despite the warnings, state workers voted 3,357 to 2,475 to withdraw, according to election results tabulated Monday.

"I think this signals to the federal government that there is a concern about taxation, and I wouldn't be surprised if this begins to happen nationwide," said Commissioner of Administration Bill Hudson.

Spurred On By Kennedy

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats trying to drum up support to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as the party's 1980 presidential nominee are riding a wave of encouragement brought on by events of the past few days.

"The phone is ringing off the hook," said State Sen. Sharon Pollard of Massachusetts, a leader of the draft movement in Kennedy's home state.

"As the indications become more clear that Sen. Kennedy is thinking seriously of making a bid, more and more people are calling," she said. "It's a social phenomenon we've never seen before and we'll never see again."

The latest of the "indications" came in a Kennedy interview published in today's editions of The Boston Globe.

"I have not ruled out the possibility of a candidacy," Kennedy told the Globe. "I have no time frame; I have no date and I have no further comments or statements about a date."

In another development Monday, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts told reporters: "I don't think that he (Kennedy) could be denied the Democratic nomination if he were to run."

There's never been any question about the support for Kennedy in Massachusetts. But 3,200 miles away in Vancouver, Wash., Jim Carty, the Clark County prosecutor, has operated largely as a one-man draft movement and grasps encouragement where he can find it.

Carty tells how at a county fair last month he put out Kennedy campaign material — buttons, brochures and bumper stickers left over from Robert F. Kennedy's 1968 presidential bid.

"They were all gone in less than two hours and weren't well displayed at all," Carty said Monday.

More important, he says, is the sudden change in the response to his frequent letters to Kennedy urging the senator to run.

"In the past, I've always gotten back the standard response you see and hear about," he said. "The one I got back today (Monday) about the response at the fair surprised me."

"It offered me 'many thanks' and 'appreciation' and said, 'I want to thank you for warm words of encouragement and support.' I think he's moving in the right direction."

And in Oregon, Bill Garrett, head of the "Ready for Teddy" committee said he has had so many telephone calls in the past couple of days he "can't keep up."

"It's really been overwhelming," said Garrett. "The response is explosive."

There are Kennedy committees in at least 19 states, some tiny like Carty's and others highly organized like the one headed by Dudley W. Dudley in New Hampshire.

Leasing Agreement On Parking Space Okayed

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The execution of a lease arrangement to provide additional parking for a prospective Evans Street restaurant was authorized Monday night by the Redevelopment Commission.

The month-to-month arrangement will be negotiated with David Nye of Wrightsville Beach, who indicated plans to lease the facility at the corner of Evans and Eighth Streets, formerly housing Blimpie's restaurant.

Nye, according to the commission's executive director, Joe Laney, expressed an interest in opening the facility as a restaurant but parking area is needed. Laney said that Nye, who operates the Bridge Tender Restaurant at Wrightsville Beach, reported that he plans to put some $150,000 into the building in the way of renovations but his plans are contingent upon adequate parking.

Laney told the commissioners that he made it clear to Nye that if the commission decided to lease a portion of property it owns adjacent to the north side of the facility, it would have to be on a month-to-month basis. The commission hopes to market the property and a long-range lease for parking could hinder a possible sale.

The executive director said that he did not think it would be feasible to sell a portion of the commission tract for parking. In the event a buyer is lined up for the disposal parcel, the parking lease would have to be terminated, it was mentioned.

Nye indicated that he would need from 15 to 30 parking spaces on the Redevelopment tract. Laney said that Nye had inquired initially about purchasing the tract for parking purposes but he has agreed now to the lease arrangement.

In other business, Southside project manager and real estate officer Faye Brewington reported that one acquisition took place in the West Greenville area since the last meeting and two demolitions were completed in the South Evans project area.

The completion of two parcel redevelopment efforts took place, she said, involving the Taft Furniture Co. property at the corner of Evans and Sixth Streets, and property owned by the Evans Co. at 608 Howell Street.

Set Kickoff

The Pitt County United Way will kick off the 1979-80 campaign drive with a breakfast Thursday, September 20, 7:30 a.m., at the Ramada Inn, Greenville.

According to Robert S. Griffin, Pitt UW President, a highlight of the breakfast will be the showing of the 30 minute public service film on the United Way produced by East Carolina University.

Yeager Heading Campaign Unit

Donald Yeager, manager of the J. C. Penney's store, Pitt Plaza, has been named as Pitt Plaza division chairman for the 1979 United Way campaign in Pitt County.

Yeager, who attended East Tennessee State University, Johnson City, Tenn., has been associated with J. C. Penney for the past 19 years.

He served in the U. S. Army from 1960-62. He and his wife, Margaret, have two children and reside in Greenville. Yeager is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

"Don's an excellent leader, and I'm pleased we'll have him on our team this year as Pitt Plaza division chairman," said ECU Chancellor Thomas Brewer, 1979 campaign chairman.

Adopt Ayden Policy: No Sale For Utilities

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board of Commissioners gave its approval to a document Monday, which stated that the town will take no action to sell the Ayden Utilities.

The approval of the document was given in response to a petition signed by some 350 Ayden residents, asking that the town check into the possibilities of selling the utilities.

Mayor Ross Persinger

noted that of the some 580 signatures on the petition, only some 350 actually lived in the Ayden town limits. He then instructed Town Manager Don Russell to read the following document, then approved by the board:

"In 1977 the Board authorized that a study be made of its Electric system to determine the feasibility of changing power suppliers. The findings of this report concluded that a change of power supply from an unregulated utility to a regulated utility will provide substantial savings to both the Town and its electric customers.

"Based on this report, the town engaged in negotiations with Carolina Power & Light Co. (CP&L), a regulated utility, for the purchase of wholesale electric power. In September of 1978, letters of intent to supply wholesale electric power to the Town were exchanged between the President of CP&L and the Mayor of the Town.

"On January 9, 1979, a bond referendum in the amount of $1,565,000 was overwhelmingly passed by the registered voters of the Town of Ayden to finance the necessary changeover.

"On August 21, 1979, bids were opened in Raleigh for the sale of $1,565,000 Electric System Bonds. The low bid was submitted by Interstate Securities of Charlotte, N.C., in an amount of 5.8452 percent.

"Based on the above, it is the opinion of the Board of Commissioners that the decision to change power suppliers was and still is in the best interest of the Town and its electric customers. Therefore, no action will be taken to sell this townowned utility."

Following a public hearing on the matter, the board adopted an ordinance to annex North Hills II, effective September 30, 1979. The board also approved the rezoning of property owned by the Community Baptist Church of Ayden from B-2 to RA-8, located between East

Second and East Third Streets. The board also amended the zoning ordinance to allow outdoor advertising in the General Manufacturing District.

A resolution of intent was adopted by the board to close a street in North Hills subdivision, with a public hearing set for October 8. A public hearing was also set for the possible rezoning of James Ward's Gulf station on W. Lee Street from RA-8 to B-2 com-

CARS MUST STOP!

School's open! The buses are running. My son rides one. Yesterday the bus stopped on Greenville Boulevard — lights blinking and stop sign out — to drop off students. Three cars passed that sign. We are new to your state, but your driver's manual says, "on undivided highway (Page 68), all cars must stop." Let's hope we can all remember — for the children's safety and our peace of mind! S. L.

Well put. You supplied the source and wrote the item for us. Law enforcement officers confirm that all traffic must stop for stopped school buses on undivided highways and that motorists seen breaking this law will be cited. According to Sgt. R. B. Miller of the N. C. Highway Patrol, violation of this law will result in five driver's license points against a person and four insurance points.

Energy's New "Manager"

The Department of Energy has 20,000 employees, a $10 billion budget, and a new leader, Energy Secretary Charles Duncan. One of Duncan's toughest jobs will be to make the country's newest Cabinet department more efficient. The Energy Department was created two years ago, when various government energy agencies and parts of the Department of Interior were combined. Since then, critics have often complained about the department's poor organization and management. Duncan, whose first job was digging ditches for a natural gas pipeline, considers himself "a manager." He spent three years as president of Coca-Cola, before moving to Washington to become deputy secretary of defense in 1977.

DO YOU KNOW — Whom did Duncan replace as secretary of energy?

Fund-Use For Papal Visit Stirs Debate

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's proposed use of $150,000 in public money to build facilities for an outdoor Mass to be celebrated by Pope John Paul II has provoked a controversy over the separation of church and state.

"Is it appropriate to spend public tax dollars, public tax money for a religious service on the Boston Common?" said

Dr. Kenneth Claus, a United Church of Christ minister.

"It's split the Protestant community," said one Protestant leader who did not want to be identified. "It's left Protestants seething."

Boston, a heavily Roman Catholic city, is the first stop on the pope's visit to the United States. The planned outdoor Mass on the Boston Common on Oct. 1, the pope's first public event in this country, is expected to draw 500,000 people.

Focus of the controversy is the city's proposed payment for the construction of two huge platforms for the altar and the 300-member choir group that will participate in the Mass. The platforms, along with facilities at the Mass for the news media, are expected to cost $150,000, city officials said. The total city budget for the pope's visit, including police overtime, is $700,000.

On Monday, two Protestant ministers, the Civil Liberties

Union of Massachusetts and birth control and abortion advocate William Baird, objected to the expenditures during a City Council hearing on the proposed papal budget.

Claus said he supported money for "security," but was disturbed about spending public money for the platforms that will be part of the Mass.

"This is not a public event," he said, noting that under Roman Catholic law, non-Catholics cannot receive communion during Mass.

Monsignor John Grant, editor of The Pilot, the Catholic newspaper for the Boston Archdiocese, said "I thought a lot about that (city expenditures) myself. I can see the concern about it, but I feel the city — under the purpose of a public celebration, — has to be aware of costs in so many directions that the line is a very difficult one to define and separate."

Grant compared the pope's visit with that of Queen Elizabeth during the bicentennial. He noted she is head of state and head of the Anglican church and was present at a service at Boston's Old North Church. Grant said he recalled no issue was made concerning city expenditures at the time of her visit.

"It's a toughie, it's a close call," said Lawrence DiCara, a member of the council, which is dominated by Roman Catholics. "I think it's a public safety question first, a religious question second."

"He deserves security and all of the dignity that is afforded a head of state," said Claus. "My problem simply goes to public support of religious services."

Helms Bid Is Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected Monday efforts by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to offer amendments to the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1979.

One of the amendments would have restricted the application of the federal premium subsidy to the first 50 percent of a farmer's average yield.

Helms contended that the amendment would have permitted the federal government to offer affordable insurance protection against catastrophic crop losses without jeopardizing the private sector's ability to remain competitive at higher coverage levels. But the amendment was defeated by a 47-43 vote.

The second amendment would have provided for a phase-out of the disaster payments for wheat, feed grains, upland cotton and rice. Disaster payments would have been offered after the 1980 crop year only in those counties where federal crop insurance was not generally available. The Senate defeated that proposal by a 58-33 margin.

"By refusing to accept my amendment and by approving (the original bill), the Senate has evidenced a callous disregard for this country's number one enemy — inflation — and has perpetuated a tendency on the part of the federal government to put the private sector out of business," Helms said.

The original measure was adopted, 64-27.

Electric Service Rules Adopted In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board of Aldermen passed a resolution Monday concerning new rules for providing electrical services to Winterville customers.

As of Monday, September 10, electrical contractors will be responsible for furnishing and installing meter bases for new customers in Winterville. The town had previously furnished the meter bases, with the contractors responsible for installation.

Meter bases must meet National Electrical Code standards and be approved by Underwriters Laboratory. In addition, no service will be provided to houses or buildings unless the electrical contractor provides a service connection in line with National Electrical Code standards, or specifications set by Utility Supervisor H. L. Joyner.

The board set the election date in Winterville for Nov. 6, with voter registration to be held until Oct. 8, 5 p.m., with registration at either the Pitt County Board of Elections or the Winterville

Big Bill For Tree-Cutter

WALDWICK, N.J. (AP) — A veteran carpenter is only now feeling the real fury of Tropical Storm David as residents of this community glare at his chain saw's darkest hour.

Alan McAllister says he thought removing the 80-foot oak tree in Neddie Sabile's front yard on Monday would be like downing any one of about 100 trees he has felled in his 10-year career.

It wasn't. The stately oak crashed through two 4,000-volt electrical lines and a telephone line, and ripped down a telephone pole holding two electrical transformers on Highland Avenue.

"The tree didn't behave in the fashion I thought it would," McAllister said.

Immediately, 20 homes that had been without power for almost 16 hours after the storm last Thursday were blacked out again.

Many neighbors, angrily watching their freezers defrost a second time in less than a week, said McAllister should be forced to pay for damages and repairs.

"Those transformers are worth a lot of money," McAllister said. "I'm sort of anticipating a big bill. I've already retained counsel."

Set Conference On Family Life

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market average continues high because of the continuation of desirable quality tobaccos being sold here, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Demand is strong on all types of quality grades, he said. Prices as a whole remain steady. Yesterday's sale consisted of more primings, lugs and nondescript grades than on any day for some time. Stabilization receipts accounted for 1.91 percent of gross sales.

The market sold 673,437 pounds for $1,004,213, for an average of $149.12 per hundred pounds. To date the market has sold 16,049,477 pounds for $22,715,395, for a season's average of $141.53.

Town Hall. Filing may be done from 12 noon September 14, to 12 noon Nov. 5, with a fee of $5. Aldermen seats now held by E. C. Hines and Danny Martin will be up for election.

Bid for street paving were opened September 7, with only two bids received. Readvertisement for bids will be held, with those bids to be opened 12 noon, September 18.

The board approved for a 21 inch piece of tile to be replaced by a 36 inch piece on Cooper Street to help eliminate back up from storms.

The Fair Housing Ordinance was tabled until the next meeting. The town is now in the process of making preparations to apply for funds from the Community Block Grant Program of 1980.

The board agreed to purchase a half page advertisement for the D. H. Conley High School annual.

Child Arsonist

MILLVILLE, N.J. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy with a "fascination" for flames will undergo a psychological examination in the aftermath of a fire he admits setting in a two-family frame house, police said.

No one was injured in the Sunday evening blaze, which took an hour to extinguish, but a storage room was destroyed and several other rooms were extensively damaged, police said.

"I talked with the boy for a while and he seems like he's fascinated with fires and what they do," said Patrolman Paul McIsaac. "He seems to be amazed with flames. I'm contacting the state Division of Youth and Family Services to get him tested before he gets too old to have this condition corrected."

The youth led five other children, ages ranging from 2 to 6, into the unlocked storage room where he allegedly poured an unidentified flammable liquid onto the floor and lit a match, police said.

No charges were filed against the children because of their ages.

Representatives of major employers in the Greenville-Pitt County area are invited to attend a workshop in Greenville, September 20, to discuss transportation alternatives for their workers.

The 1:30 p.m. session at the Willis Building at the intersection of First and Reade Streets, is being sponsored by the Greenville Energy Program in cooperation with the Public Transportation Division of the N.C. Department of Transportation.

The prime topic for the program will be a ridesharing program. Roger Pratt, rideshare program coordinator for the N.C. DOT will present information about ways of establishing and encouraging different types of ridesharing programs and discuss insurance premiums, legal requirements and other aspects of a ridesharing program.

In addition to Pratt, representatives of several area businesses will give brief summaries of the experiences they have encountered in considering or starting ridesharing programs.

Linda Hix, coordinator for the Greenville Energy Program, noted that ridesharing can help employees reduce the cost of their daily trips to and from work, as well as reduce air pollution, reduce traffic congestion, and conserve energy supplies.

Additional information about the ridesharing workshop may be had by calling Ms. Hicks at 752-7166, extension 254.

Seeks Refund On A Ransom

By ROBERT LIPSCOMB WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., wants Congress to reimburse his hometown, Frederick, Md., for ransom money paid to a Confederate general during the Civil War, but so far no one is taking him seriously.

Although the Civil War ended 114 years ago, the ransom isn't ancient history. In Frederick. The $200,000 ransom Gen. Jubal A. Early took was so staggering a sum that the city needed 85 years to pay off the debts incurred.

Each year since his election in 1961, Mathias has introduced legislation to reimburse Frederick, with interest — but so far has found no success.

David Selden — a legislative assistant to Rep. Beverly Byron, D-Md., who represents Frederick — said other members of Congress see the measure as frivolous.

"They say, 'Gee, this is something from the Civil War, that's history.' I think a lot of people overlook that ... the financial effect on the taxpayers of the city of Frederick has been quite recent," Selden said.

Selden said Rep. Goodloe Byron, who represented the district until his sudden death last fall, used to introduce the measure in the House every year, even though his successor, Mrs. Byron, declined to do so this year.

"It got to the point where the bill wasn't going anywhere," said Selden. "If it's not going to move, why introduce it?"

The story began in July, 1864 when Early marched his army out of Virginia's Shenandoah Valley through Frederick en route to Washington.

He intended to divert some of the pressure on Gen. Robert E. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia by forcing Union Gen. U.S. Grant to send relief troops to the capital.

At Frederick he threatened to burn the town down — unless officials came up with $200,000 in ransom.

Frederick officials, caught defenseless, decided to meet the Early's demand. Even though city tax revenues were only $7,000 for the year 1864, they managed to borrow money from five local banks to meet the price.

The loans weren't fully repaid until 1951. Mathias claims Early might have been able to pillage Washington had not he held Frederick hostage for a day.

As it was, with the delay, troops were hastily thrown together to stall Early until Grant could send help to the capital. At Silver Springs, now a close-in Washington suburb, Early burned Postmaster General Montgomery Blair's home.

But his thrust at Washington amounted to little more than an exchange of fire at Fort Stevens just inside the District of Columbia border, and he quickly retreated back to Virginia with his hard cash ransom.

No one is sure what $200,000 in 1864 dollars works out to in 1979 dollars — so city officials, the Treasury Department and Mathias' staff are reluctant to guess how much money the city would get if the bill passes. Most estimates put the settlement at several million dollars.

Mathias' bill is currently hung up in the Senate Judiciary Committee. No hearings have been held and none are scheduled.

While Frederick isn't likely to get the ransom money, current city fathers, like their predecessors, can console themselves by looking around at their historic city, founded in 1746.

Many houses and buildings from the late 1700s and the early 1800s still stand as a vital part not only of the draw for tourists, but of Frederick's life.

And that $200,000 the city fathers paid Jubal Early in July of 1864 is a big reason those buildings are there because he wasn't pulling their legs.

If they had any doubts, Early erased them with another foray out of Virginia later the same month Frederick officials paid him off.

He marched his troops into Chambersburg in south central Pennsylvania and gave the city fathers the same choice he'd given Frederick.

Pay up or I'll burn your town down, he said.

We can't pay, they replied. He burned their town.

REFUGEES RESCUED

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The U.S. 7th Fleet combat stores ship White Plains arrived at Subic Naval Base today with 121 Vietnamese refugees rescued from three disabled boats in the South China Sea during the past few days.

An estimated $2,600 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, investigators reported, resulted from a 9:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth Street and College Hill Drive involving cars driven by Rick Devine Mobley of Winterville, Wesley Baker Correll Jr. of Route 3, Hendersonville, and Bruce B. Mosier of 77 Oakwood Acres.

Officers, who charged Mobley with failing to stop for a stop light, estimated damage at $900 to the Mobley car, $250 to the Correll vehicle and $350 to the Mosier auto.

Cars driven by Linda M. Vaughan of Route 1, Greenville and Edward Keith Brewer of 402 Martinsboro Rd. collided about 8:15 a.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 150 feet East of the Arlington Boulevard intersection, resulting in $100 damage to the Vaughan car and $500 to the Brewer auto.

An estimated $250 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in an 11:10 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Arlington Boulevard, police reported.

Drivers involved in the mishap were identified as Carl Merton Daughtry of Rocky Mount, and Barbara Johnson Moseley of 3009 Briarcliff Dr.

Parents Will Follow Abby's Decision

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I helped one of my tenants cheat the electric company by installing a special outlet wired ahead of the meter so she could use electricity free. I did it because I felt the electric company had treated her unfairly by cutting off her service before giving her enough of a chance to pay the money she owed them, then charging her an unjust amount to turn it back on.

She's a poor widow on Social Security. I'm charging her about half the rent someone else would be willing to pay.

This lady got away with about $150 worth of electricity before deciding she was even with them, then she asked me to restore her meter to its original state, which I did. Now she's paying for her electricity like everybody else.

Her health has been failing lately, and she told me she wants to make things right with the Lord before she dies. I feel sorry for her and hate to spoil her chances for getting into heaven. Also, I don't want to make my own chances any worse, which aren't too good to start with.

Abby, which one of us will be held accountable for the stolen electricity come judgment day? And how can we both make things right with the Lord?

OMIT THE TOWN IN IOWA

DEAR OMIT: Come judgment day, you BOTH will be held accountable for the stolen electricity. And to make things right with the Lord, first you'd better make things right with the electric company!

DEAR ABBY: We have two children, an 11-year-old daughter and a 9-year-old son.

They both do well in school and have always been complimented on their behavior. My husband and I are very proud of them and feel we have made a lot of right decisions in their upbringing, and one being that they don't get in their upbringing, one being that they don't get something or do something just because the kid next door does.

My husband and I disagree when it comes to our daughter getting her ears pierced. She's the only one among our friends, relatives and neighbors, many of whom are much younger than she, who hasn't had her ears pierced.

My husband refuses to let her. He thinks it's a silly idea for one so young, and that the only reason she wants her ears pierced is because everyone else has had it done—which isn't good enough. It's such a small thing she wants, and if ever a little girl deserves something she wants so desperately, she does.

We can't agree on this, Abby. We want what's best for our daughter and will abide by your decision.

MASS. MOM

DEAR MOM: The word from here is a piercing yes!

DEAR ABBY: We have a family problem. Our mother, an intelligent woman in all other respects, is married to a man who does not work. He lives off her money. (Our father left her very well off.)

Our mother's husband has made all her children (grown) feel unwelcome in their home. Nothing we can say will make mother see the light. She is so in love with this man she thinks he can do no wrong. Meanwhile, he lives the life of a retired gentleman with mother caring for him as if he were royalty.

We do not feel that it's fair that we should be made to feel unwelcome in our mother's home—especially since it was provided for her by our father.

How do you suggest we cope with this?

JUST PLAIN ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: Philosophically. Ask the Lord to grant you the serenity to accept the things you cannot change, the courage to change the things you can. And the wisdom to know the difference.

DEAR ABBY: As a neuro-psychiatrist, I have had many married bisexual male patients. Most of them were vigorous, successful men in high-paying positions with intelligent, good-looking wives. In every case there also were healthy, well-adjusted children. There was a close rapport between these patients and their families for years until circumstances forced the skeletons out of the closet.

In every case the wife preferred to continue in the marriage. Not one man I ever treated was willing to give up his homosexuality—but he didn't want to give up his wife either. Such individuals seek help only when they get arrested, lose a lover or are exposed for some reason.

DESPERATE WIFE may have wanted only your confirmation of her wish to keep her husband; you let her down.

L.A. PHYSICIAN

DEAR PHYSICIAN: Possibly. But the fact, that the husband had an affair in his own home tells me that perhaps he WANTED to get caught and end the closet capers.

DEAR ABBY: We are having a disagreement at our house and you are elected to settle it. One of our family feels that when walking our puppy we should get dressed and not go out in our night clothes. The puppy isn't house-trained yet and has to go out often.

The person who thinks the dog-walker should be fully dressed never walks the dog, so I don't see why he has any say in the matter.

We live in the suburbs where hardly anyone walks by who would really care if he sees a 12-year-old girl in her bathrobe.

DECENT IN HER BATHROBE

DEAR DECENT: Bathrobes are for indoors. Better slip into some outdoor clothes when walking the dog.

DEAR ABBY: You were dead wrong when you advised that woman not to mention the fact that a ring was missing from her jewelry box after a visitor had taken a nap in her

Mayva popped into my utility room the other morning and said, "So, you've switched to the new laundry detergent ALL NEW SCUM FIGHTER?"

"No, it's the one I've been using for 20 years. It's just had sparkle added to the second rinse."

"I thought they added sparkle last year."

"No, last year it was Improved with the bleach built in and before that they added an Advanced Formula so I could see the difference."

"Wasn't that the year my detergent was called Revolutionary Clean?"

"No, yours was Power Boosted to eliminate the odor. Remember? People were fainting a lot."

"I remember, but I liked it better when it was Reborn."

"That was the year mine was Streamlined, but then the ecologists screamed and they came out with a low sudser calling it Purposed."

"Remember the year HMQ was added?" smiled Mayva.

"I certainly do. Incidentally, what was HMQ?"

"I don't know, but their advertising campaign had a fuzzy monster coming out of the washer and grabbing the clothes right off your back."

"You've used your detergent a long time too, haven't you?"

"Yep," said Mayva. "I've stuck with it through Renovated, Futurized, Upgraded and Reinforced to fight grease."

"Me too," I said. "I've hung in there through Newly-Developed, Renewed, Revised and Enriched."

"I was going to buy mine when it was All Modern, but before I could buy a box, it had changed to Advanced."

"You've got to move fast or you miss a step," I said, opening the dryer.

"Was yours ever All-Purpose?"

"Oh, sure, at one time my laundry detergent was so powerful it could clean without water and would take the liver spots off your hands."

"I wonder where they go from here," asked Mayva. "I mean, where do you go after Better! Better! All New! and Ultimate Perfection?"

"Funny you should say that. I just got a new box of my detergent in the cupboard. It reads, 'The Original Scum Fighter!'"

"We've been had," said Mayva.

"I know."

Cooking Pizza Wellington

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

With the price of beef fillet out of sight at present, Beef Wellington — once a favorite party offering — is served infrequently. Now some ingenious cooks are offering Pizza Wellington, thrifter and mighty good.

We came on Pizza Wellington through Judy Rosof, who got the recipe from a friend who doesn't remember where she found it. Both cooks changed some of the ingredients in the original recipe to suit their own needs.

This Judy Rosof is a wiz. Before she married she taught school; since then she's put her energy and enjoyment to work in other directions. She runs her household in a happy and orderly way; makes silver jewelry; works on community projects and has a schedule for entertaining.

Recently she had a family gathering — 35 relatives came to dinner. Every other weekend she gives a luncheon or dinner for a small group of friends. Her 10-year-old son is an invaluable help in the kitchen, but at the moment her young daughter is more interested in eating than in cooking and serving. Her husband's occasional pastime is making desserts luscious enough to serve to company.

Back to Pizza Wellington. At our house we served it with a tossed green salad enlivened with marinated artichoke hearts. For dessert, fruit sherbet and vanilla ice cream topped with liqueur. The lagniappe: those good bought champagne wafers called gaufrettes.

The Worst Wasn't Realized

Many people are not old enough to recall when Puerto Rican nationalists attempted to attack President Truman in the Blair House, or opened fire on Congress.

The attempt on Truman took place in 1950 and the shooting in the House of Representatives in 1954.

The events were recalled last week when clemency was announced for the three Puerto Ricans who remained in jail.

It was described as "a significant humanitarian gesture" by the White House.

Rep. L. H. Fountain of North Carolina, who had just left his seat which was hit by a bullet when the attack occurred, commented "I'm surprised they kept them in that long."

At the time of the attacks, it was easy to believe that there would be more violence on the part of Puerto Rican nationalists. A situation could be envisioned in Puerto Rico similar to that which exists today in North Ireland.

The worst never materialized, however, and the two events, sensational as they were became nearly forgotten through the years.

It does not seem improper to us now that the three should be released from jail. It is, as the White House maintains, the humanitarian thing to do.

Variation Of An Old Carnival Game?

Far be it from us to determine how the 200 new MX mobile missiles should be deployed.

President Carter has decided on the "racetrack" plan. Each missile could be moved along a course and placed in anyone of 23 shelters.

In theory, the enemy wouldn't know which one to hit in the event of attack.

Maybe it will work, but it sounds like a variation of the old carnival shell game to us.

Balanced Growth History

BY BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Putting into proper perspective the ongoing argument over whether North Carolina has a workable Balanced Growth Policy or not requires a backward glance at history, and some conclusions of fact based not upon political rhetoric or bureaucratic jargon, but upon what happens in the real world.

Gov. Jim Hunt is not the first governor to embrace Balanced Growth as a keystone to economic development; especially, industrial expansion. He is, however, the first to attempt to put the concept down on paper as a publicly approved course to follow.

From the late Luther Hodges on down, governors of North Carolina have espoused better jobs in small towns and rural areas. The notion was refined by former Gov. Bob Scott and took the popular slogan of "jobs where the people live."

Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser inherited from Scott the exhaustive spadework of a combined governmental-Research Triangle Institute study committee which labored mightily to produce volumes of data and proposals on the subject.

Dispersal

A variety of alternate suggestions on achieving job dispersal away from cluttering urban areas and into the countryside were put forth, and a "policy" was expected to follow. None was forthcoming.

Holshouser hit the sticking place when he came face to face with the reality that in order for state government to effectively control where economic growth (specifically industrial expansion) occurred would require rigid, powerful, centralized decisions about the investment of government funds, and the imposition from his office of both incentives and disincentives (land zonings, restrictions, higher taxes, road-building decisions, etc.).

Gov. Hunt resurrected the Balanced Growth notion, and kept in charge of it two key individuals who had already been deeply involved in the production of previous materials: Joe Grimsley, now Hunt's secretary of administration; and Arnold Zogry, Grimsley's chief planner and think-tank leader.

Previous documentation went into Hunt's Balanced Growth Policy Act which finally won legislative approval after a much-publicized round of public hearings across the state in which it was determined to nobody's surprise that Tar Heels want dispersed growth and jobs where they like to live and have family roots.

BILL NOBLITT

The Balanced Growth Act does contain, as critics charge, considerable verbiage with little meaning as it spells out the theoretical and philosophical concepts of "reaching a higher standard of living throughout North Carolina by maintaining a balance of people, jobs, public services and the environment, supported by the growing network of small and large cities in the State...."

Goals

And the law establishes officially that the state wants to "bring more and better jobs to where people live; to provide adequate services equitably for all of the State's people at an efficient cost; and to maintain the State's natural environmental heritage while accommodating urban and agricultural growth."

How to do all of this? The mechanism is established in the new law: a council dominated by local city and county governmental officials is established to monitor the process, designation of Growth Centers (at least one per county) is spelled out, and a process set up to direct federal, state, and local efforts a and money toward preparing a community to seek and win growth.

A key ingredient which is regularly injected into the formula is the desire of the community to prepare for and support development.

None Of It Bodes Well

WASHINGTON — "By in directions," said the sagacious Polonius, we "find directions out." In Moscow these days, we are finding out a good deal, and none of it bodes well for the future of Soviet-American relations.

The bland acts of censorship imposed by the Kremlin upon the Second Moscow International Book Fair have to be viewed as part of an endless pattern of communist probing at the will of the West. Relatively insignificant in themselves, the decisions to ban this particular book, or to deny this particular visa, are neither impulsive nor mindless. They all fit together.

To put things in perspective, let us go back to August 1975, when the Soviet Union led all others in signing what became known as the "Helsinki Accords." Here the representatives of 35 nations "solemnly adopted" a set of principles and declarations covering everything from major military maneuvers to promotion of the tourist industry. The most important provisions dealt with human rights and personal freedoms.

The ink was not dry on Leonid Brezhnev's signature before the Soviet Union began violating its pledge to deal "in a positive and humanitarian spirit with the applications of persons who wish to be reunited with members of their family." Tell that to the Soviet Jews! Violations of the Helsinki promises have continued from that day to this.

Book fairs are big events in Europe — much bigger than they are here. Last year 73 American publishers sent exhibits to the First Moscow International. Some censorship occurred, but the offenses seemed not egregious. This year 251 American publishers agreed to participate. Among them was Random House, headed by its president, Robert Bernstein. At the last moment his visa was canceled, in patent recrimination for his public attempt to telephone the dissident physicist, Andrei Sakharov.

While the Bernstein incident was being argued, Soviet officials went placidly about the business of banning books. George Orwell's "Animal Farm" could not be exhibited. Collections of editorial cartoons were forbidden. None of the works of Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn would be allowed. Books dealing with Germany and China fell under the Soviet hammer.

At the most recent count, 44 titles had been outlawed altogether or set aside for the censor's scrutiny.

Boris I. Stukalin, chairman of the State Publishing Committee, explained with morbid simplicity that the Soviet Union has laws forbidding certain books. Obviously such books cannot be allowed. "It is not correct to say that this is a violation of freedom of speech. It is the highest affirmation of freedom of speech, since freedom to propagandize fascism is the kind of freedom that all honest people in our country and in other countries must oppose."

INSIDE REPORT

Bypassing Rob't Strauss

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Outgoing United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young's condemnation of Israel's "wrong and unacceptable" military operations in Lebanon was not cleared with Robert Strauss, President Carter's special Middle East emissary, or with Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser.

Strauss was informed of Young's Aug. 29 speech to the U.N. security council "only hours" before it was made. Although completely opposed to Israel's indiscriminate bombing and shelling of southern Lebanon, Strauss was furious on two counts: first, at not being consulted; and second, because he felt his peace mission would be further undermined by Young's harsh language.

Strauss complained to both the president and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and was assured the bypass had been "accidental." As for Brzezinski and the national security council, no official word about Young's U.N. speech was ever received from the State Department.

Carter's Guantanamo "No"

Even before taking office, President Carter vetoed an amphibious landing exercise at the U.S. Guantanamo naval base in Cuba. The veto was a prelude to his effort toward full recognition of Fidel Castro's Cuba, now shattered in the wake of that Soviet brigade in Cuba.

For three months elements of the U.S. 2nd fleet had been planning an "opposed" landing operation at "Gitmo," followed by routine practice firing of 155-millimeter guns, as part of a Caribbean-wide exercise. A top-side NaVy admiral informed the commander of the 2nd fleet that there would be no amphibious landing and no practice firing at "Gitmo."

Nothing was put in writing. The cancellation was a political damage-limiting operation by shrewd Navy officers who knew that although President-elect Carter could not legally left a finger against the planned exercise, going ahead with it would create major dangers for the Navy after inauguration.

Carter's turn-the-other-cheek efforts to entice Castro into full friendship with the U.S. have failed all along the line, topped by discovery of the Soviet brigade in Cuba. But "Gitmo" exercises are still out of bounds.

Moynihan For President

New York leaders of the draft-Kennedy movement have passed word to Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan that he is their choice to oppose President Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy won't run.

That ought to buttress the likelihood of Moynihan running as a favorite son is New York's presidential primary if Kennedy bows out. Gov. Hugh Carey has the same intention, but Moynihan's higher ratings with both rank-and-file Democrats and party leaders favor him over the governor.

What is surprising is support from the committed liberals in the draft-Kennedy movement, most of whom vigorously opposed Moynihan for the Senate nomination in 1976. One reason: Moynihan's inflexible support for Israel, which has supplanted questions of ideological purity among many liberal Democrats.

Stennis For SALT

The importance of Sen. John Stennis, venerable chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, to the SALT camp continued when he effectively killed hearings that might have generated opposition against the arms limitation treaty.

The hearings had been scheduled for Sept. 10 by the

To the editor:

We understand that rules are meant to be followed; but to every rule there is an exception.

On Wednesday, Sept. 5, the day that Greenville received the heavy rains from Hurricane David, our roommate picked us from our classes at East Carolina University. On our way home we noticed a situation that disturbed and angered us. On Maple Street, between the Fifth and 10th blocks, there were three Greenville Police cars and three tow trucks. The policemen were standing in the pouring rain writing tickets, while the trucks towed the cars away. We know there are "no parking" signs on the street, but students had been informed to remove their cars from the parking area at the bottom of College Hill Drive due to flooding. And, as everyone well knows, there are already not enough parking spaces on the campus for students.

It seems that the Greenville Police Department could have taken into consideration the bad weather and the unavailable parking spaces. We wonder if any thought was given whatsoever to the people who would walk out into the downpour to discover their cars missing. Since many of these people commute, transportation as well as money would be necessary to retrieve their impounded cars to return home.

We were lucky enough to have a ride to and from campus; whereas others were not so fortunate. Sometimes laws take advantage of people who are less fortunate. This is one time we believe that Greenville Police Department took advantage of a situation that could not be helped.

TAKING RELIGION OUT OF THE CLOSET

The Chinese word for Presbyterian sounds very much like the Chinese word for mothball. Many years ago, before the Communist takeover in China, when young missionaries attempted to preach to Chinese audiences in the native language before they had learned it thoroughly, they often amused their hearers by referring to the Presbyterian church as the mothball church.

Mothballs are used to put in garments which we want to store away and forget about. The religion of many people is a mothball religion. They get it out each Sunday, put it on, go to church in it, then come home, wrap it up, and put it away again in mothballs.

As for life in general — well, here we intend to have a good time, indulge ourselves, hate our enemies, and seek to get ahead regardless of others. And all the time our religion is wrapped in mothballs in the closet.

Dr. Samuel Johnson once remarked that a life which will bear the inspection of both men and God is the only certificate of true religion.

Housing Industry Fears Grow

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With the purchase, financing and operating costs of its product continuing to rise, the housing industry is growing more worried about its future than the sales charts might indicate.

Those charts still show houses selling at a pretty good clip, although down from the pace of last spring. But with prices, mortgage and heating costs rising to startling levels, the future is cloudy.

So the industry is counterattacking, with its main efforts falling into the categories of propaganda, legislation and service.

In the first of these (remember, "propaganda" merely means the dissemination of information and ideas favorable to a certain position) is a recent statement by Joseph T. Benedict, a top financial executive.

American home buyers, said Benedict, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, pay less to borrow than do blue chip companies. That is, he said, mortgage rates are lower than prime rates.

The statement is correct. The prime lending rate is at least 12.5 percent. While some 12 percent home mortgage rates exist, the national average in August was 11.02 percent for new homes and 11.14 for used.

One reason for this is the existence of state and federal regulations that artificially restrain mortgage rates.

Corporate lending rates are market rates, unrestrained by social legislation.

The National Association of Realtors is also doing its utmost. It's new executive vice president, Jack Carlson, recently said that now is the best time to buy because prices will continue to soar.

"By all means buy now," said Carlson. "It makes particularly good sense to invest in real estate during period of inflation. It's a matter of watching your capital grow or erode."

Carlson, an economist in several presidential administrations and formerly chief economist of the National Chamber of Commerce, expects price increases of 8 percent to 14 percent in the next year.

The same message is being circulated by Robert Levenstein, president of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., which describes itself as the country's leading multinational housing producer.

He maintains that "Over the years a new home has provided a steady, and greater appreciation than certificates of deposit, savings accounts, stocks, bond or the majority of other forms of investment."

Meanwhile, the industry is attempting to deliver better service.

That problem of heating-cooling costs remains, however. Lenders and real estate agents have plenty of advice to offer, the most common and practical being to insulate, insulate, insulate.

dinistas in Nicaragua, or stirring up trouble in Afghanistan, or jamming broadcasts in Europe, or banning books in Moscow, the purpose never changes. The purpose is always a testing, always a probing, always a baiting. The Kremlin never tires of the deadly game of discovering where the West will resist, and to what extent.

Alexander Hoffman, chairman of the industry-wide Association of American Publishers, told a press conference last week that "future American participation has to be considered carefully." The head of the International Publishers Association, Per Sjogren, criticized the Soviet Union for banning South Korea and for denying visas to 14 Israeli publishers. "These are things we cannot take lightly," he said. Such fierce reactions, he may be certain, will leave Comrade Stukalin deeply distressed.

Hunt Wants 1980 Pay Raise For Employees

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt says he wants state workers to get a "fair" pay raise in 1980, and although the governor didn't propose a specific figure, his announcement encouraged state employees.

The leaders of the state's two largest employees' organizations said Monday they were encouraged by Hunt's remarks, which came at the annual convention of the N.C. State Employees Association in Winston-Salem.

"I'm encouraged and I know our delegation was encouraged to hear the governor's recognition of the double-digit increase we're facing in the cost of living," said Emmett W. Burden, executive director of the NCSEA.

Arch Laney, executive director of the N.C. State Government Employees Association, said he liked what he heard in the governor's speech.

"It appears the governor has put this as the first order of priority for the short session," Laney said, referring to the mini session of the General Assembly scheduled to convene June 5 next year.

Hunt told the convention he would like to see the employees get a raise as close to the increased cost of living as possible.

So far during 1979, the cost of living is rising at an annual rate of 12 percent.

After Hunt's speech, in which he announced cutbacks in quarterly allotments to state agencies beginning Oct. 1 to ensure there is enough money next year for a fair raise, NCSEA delegates unanimously approved a resolution calling for an across-the-board 15 percent pay raise. A raise in that amount would cost the state $300 million.

This year state workers got a 5 percent across-the-board pay raise and a one time $200 pay bonus. Hunt remained a staunch supporter of President Carter's wage and price guidelines, a position that angered many state workers.

I think he (Hunt) recognized that the action of last year's legislature was probably as much as could be done but that it was far from enough to keep the purchasing power of state employees in the ball park," Burden said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to provide $1.6 billion in aid to pay heating bills has been introduced in the Senate to help "men, women and children who are in danger of either freezing, starving or both," a sponsor says.

No. 2 was Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., opposing a move to kill additional aid for Indochinese refugees.

Followers of the long debates on the Panama Canal might recognize No. 3 as Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., a determined opponent of the Panama Canal treaties.

No. 4 was Bauman again, this time in an exchange with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass. Bauman delights in using the House rules to upset the timetables of the Democratic majority.

No. 5 is the sort of mountain imagery for which Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., is known. In this case, Byrd was urging senators not to support moves to halt debate on the SALT II treaty until Soviet troops are removed from Cuba.

No. 6 — Every day the Senate has been in session for the past 12 years, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has spoken in favor of approval of the Genocide treaty.

Armed Services Subcommittee on Procurement headed by Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia. Intelligence officials from both the Pentagon and the CIA were to testify on the level of Soviet military procurement. That would inevitably have led to unfavorable comparison with U.S. procurement, fueling opposition to SALT II.

But Stennis, who has helped pro-SALT White House moves in the past, approached Byrd last week and argued that it would create "confusion" for the Armed Services Committee to carry on two SALT-connected hearings: Stennis asked indefinite postponement (in effect, at least until after the Armed Services Committee makes its report on SALT II to the Senate). Byrd acceded to the chairman's wishes.

Dole And SALT
The conscious leftward drift by Sen. Robert Dole in his long-shot quest for the Republican presidential nomination was brought up short when, under pressure from influential party figures, he cancelled a pro-SALT appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Sept. 5.

The avowed reason for the cancellation was to protest Soviet troops in Cuba. But Dole could have shifted his testimony to Sept. 14 if he wished, and he decided against that. The real reason for the change was angry reaction of old friends who had seen his prepared testimony.

They told Dole the testimony was so loaded in favor of the treaty that it would be bound to generate anti-Dole criticism from influential Republicans. The implication was clear: delivering that testimony might deprive him of support not only for his quixotic presidential drive but, more seriously, for his Senate re-election campaign in Kansas next year.

SENATE VOTES TO DAM THE SNAIL DARTER — Two preserved specimens of the snail darter, a male (top), and female (bottom), lie on hand of zoologist David Etnier in Knoxville. On Monday the U.S. Senate, following the lead of the lower house, voted to grant the $115 million Tellico Dam an exception from the Endangered Species Act, and any other law that might prohibit its completion. Party Marks Anniversary Approximately 150 faculty and administrative staff members gathered in Mendenhall Student Center at East Carolina University Thursday at a wine and cheese party to celebrate the sixth anniversary of the Calcutta Mathematical Society's Overseas Editorial Office at ECU.

Directed by Dr. Lokenath Debnath of the mathematics and physics faculties, the office sponsors quarterly publication of the "CMS Bulletin" which was begun in India in 1966, and the "International Journal of Mathematics and Mathematical Sciences," begun in 1977.

Assisting are editors and reviewers from universities in the U.S., Canada, the U.S.S.R., Asia and Europe. The CMS has reciprocity membership and exchange agreements with the American Mathematical Society and several European professional societies.

Debnath noted that libraries at a number of research institutions are among current subscribers to the two CMS publications. They include California Institute of

Books And Articles By The Faculty

Members of the East Carolina University faculty are the authors of several current books and articles in professional publications.

Dr. Joy Roberts of the philosophy faculty has an article, "Activities and Performances Considered as Objects and Events" in the current issue of "Philosophical Studies." "Lucius Verus and the Hospitality of Herodes Atticus" is the title of an article in a recent issue of "Athenaeum" by Dr. Anthony Papalas of the history faculty.

Six members of the mathematics faculty are collaborators on a new methods textbook — "Hands-On Mathematics," published by Contemporary Publishing Co., Raleigh. The book is designed for use in two ECU teaching methods courses as well as for reference by classroom teachers who wish sources of new material for math instruction.

The six authors are Stella Daugherty, Frances Dudley, Grace Foster, Katharine Hodgkin, Nan Manning and Katye Sowell.

Dr. William Still of the history faculty has been notified that his new book, "American Sea Power in the Old World: The U.S. Navy in European and Near Eastern Waters, 1865-1917," has been accepted for publication by Greenwood Press. The book is the first in a series of three covering U.S. Naval operations during the past century.

River tidal flows are analyzed in two recent articles by Dr. Lokenath Debnath of the ECU mathematics faculty. "Nonlinear Mathematical Model of the Propagation of Tides in Interlocking Channels" appear in "Computers and Fluids;" and "Study of Nonlinear Wave Propagation in Tidal Rivers" is included in the German journal "Acta Mechanica."

Press On Hand For Freshman

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Reporters and photographers descended on Brown University to witness the start of orientation activities for a special freshman — John F. Kennedy Jr.

Breaking the family tradition of attending Harvard University, Kennedy arrived at Brown on Monday and spent most of the day doing the same as his 1,305 classmates — standing on line and waiting.

Gently protesting that he "hated" being followed by the press, the son of the late president shrugged off questions on whether his uncle, Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, would enter the Democratic presidential race next year.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Chanting slogans of hate and vengeance, 800 leftists marched behind the coffin of a 16-year-old slain with six other teen-agers in an ambush. More political violence was expected as Central America prepared for independence celebrations Saturday.

Leftists said they would confront the troops in towns around the capital and try to disarm them. The right-wing military government, trying to keep a low profile since the overthrow of its Nicaraguan allies in the Somoza dictatorship next door, said the army would not be provoked into violent reaction. But Information Minister Rafael Flores Lima said the armed forces would control any outbreaks that threatened to get out of hand.

Redevelopment

Three relocations took place in South Evans, one in Southside and one in the Central Business District. Mrs. Brewington said, while five options were obtained on property in South Evans and two options obtained on parcels in the West Greenville area.

Staff rehabilitation officer Ed Cobb reported that four rehabilitation projects were completed since the August meeting, all in the West Greenville area. Cobb said the residential rehabilitations took place at 1598 W. Sixth Street, 413 Nash Street, 506 Ford Street, and 614 Hudson Street.

The rehabilitation officer said that four 312 loan applications were submitted to the Greensboro office of Housing and Urban Development and two have been approved. HUD has requested additional information on the other two, he added.

Cobb mentioned that although complaints are occasionally received regarding rehabilitation projects, it is very seldom that the staff receives a compliment on a job well done. He said that Mrs. P. B. Joyner, whose home at 1407 underwent rehabilitation, wrote a letter to the staff, which involves not only the Redevelopment Commission but the city's Inspection Department personnel, saying she was "very pleased" with the work of the contractors.

Mrs. Joyner said in her letter that she had "no complaints" for the rehabilitation services rendered and she cited the contractor and his employees for being "courteous and polite at all times." The contractor, she said, "worked very hard and did a very fine job."

Since the rehabilitation effort began, approximately 60 residential rehabilitation contracts have been completed, primarily in the West Greenville area. The rehabilitation loans and grants have totaled some $300,000.

Commissioners approved a proposal submitted by the CPA firm of Lloyd Moody for an audit of the Redevelopment Commission. Moody submitted proposals of $2,200 for the Redevelopment audit and $2,570 for the Housing Authority audit, while the CPA firm of John C. Proctor & Co. offered audit proposals of $2,080 for the Redevelopment Commission and $2,740 for the Housing Authority.

Commissioners noted that the proposals submitted by Moody were approved because of the low overall total for both the Redevelopment and Housing agencies.

who were wounded with them were members of the student wing of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, El Salvador's largest organization of leftist activists. The Revolutionary Bloc blamed the ambush on government plainclothesmen, but President Carlos Humberto Romero denied any of his forces were involved and lamented the deaths. Rightist hit squads also have made frequent attacks on leftists and suspected leftists, but no one claimed responsibility for the ambush.

Four policemen also were killed during the weekend, three when they responded to a false accident call southeast of San Salvador and the fourth in a town 40 miles to the north-east.

The young people were on their way to a recreation area 80 miles east of San Salvador.

Candidacy Is Not Ruled Out, Asserts Kennedy

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says the way President Carter deals with the faltering U.S. economy may be the determining factor in his decision about whether to run against him.

In an interview published in today's editions of the Boston Globe, Kennedy said another major factor in his decision will be "the American people's perception of how things are and whether things are going to get better."

"I have not ruled out the possibility of a candidacy," Kennedy said in the interview. "I have no time frame, I have no date and I have no further comments or statements about a date."

He said his decision will be based in part on Carter's "own ability to deal with the economy." Asked if he expected Carter to be the Democratic Party candidate, a position he has repeated previously, Kennedy said:

"That question can best be answered by his own ability to deal with the economy."

Kennedy said he, Carter and Mrs. Carter lunched at the president's invitation Friday in the White House.

"I indicated to the president that I wanted to work closely with the administration over the next few months on energy and the economy. But that's all I'll say about the lunch."

He and Carter have "some areas of disagreement," said Kennedy, without elaborating on details.

He denied a report in the Atlanta Constitution and Journal Sunday that he asked Carter not to seek re-election.

"That's wrong," Kennedy said. "He denied it. I denied it. It didn't happen."

Kennedy said his attitude about a possible candidacy changed during the summer congressional recess.

"Over the latter part of July and in August, I had a good deal of time to reflect both on the direction of the country and how we as a society are coming to grips with the issues that face our people," Kennedy told the Globe.

"These issues are intensifying, and that's why I'm not excluding the possibility of a candidacy."

"I've been approached by people in the Democratic Party, by political leaders and by ordinary working people urging me to reconsider the possibility of a candidacy."

"My position at this time is that I have not ruled out the possibility of a candidacy. That's basically my current thinking."

Readability

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — The North Carolina General Assembly decreed June 4 that life insurance policies must be on a level easily readable by college students by 1981.

So a group of Integon Life Insurance actuaries ran tests recently to find out how other kinds of reading material rate.

The testing was done through the Flesch readability test, which counts the number of words in a sentence and the number of syllables per word. That's what the policies will be tested by.

Life insurance policies must have a 40 Flesch rating, or college level, by 1981. By 1982, it must be 50, about an 11th grade level.

A column by Winston-Salem Journal writer Roy Thompson scored 100, a fourth grader can read it.

A murder trial article scored 56. However, a sample of one document tallied a poor 20-30 — college graduate level.

The offender was the state law requiring the Flesch test scores.

Jaycees Facing All-Male Status Showdown Battle

By GIL BROYLES
Associated Press Writer
TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The national leader of the Jaycees says challenges to the organization's all-male membership rule have had a "positive" result and put the group in the "national limelight."

But others feel the court suits around the nation have split the young men's group into factions and say the time has come to open membership to women.

The battle has been boiling for years, and soon some of the suits may come to resolution. But J. Terry Bechtol, president of the Tulsa-based group, doesn't see that as the end of it.

The Jaycees are ready to "fight to our last dime" to uphold rules against women, says Bechtol, who is on leave as a vice president of a motivational seminar firm and will be on the road 340 days this year as the Jaycee's major spokesman against a change in rules.

Bechtol joined the Jaycees 10 years ago and found that "the further up the Jaycee ladder I went, the more money I made." He campaigned for the Jaycee presidency in 46 states last year, and with his red, white and blue vocabulary, was known as the "miracle candidate."

"I was the man who wasn't supposed to get elected," said Bechtol, who moved into the "Jaycee White House" here in June.

"I think it's the most positive thing that's happened to us in 10 years because it's brought us into the national limelight," he said of the battle. "We had an opportunity to state our stand. It was not always a popular one. ... But people started spelling our name right. ... Some of the great things we've been doing for years now have been brought to national attention."

The Jaycees include 385,000 men ages 18 through 35 in 9,000 chapters around the country, many in small towns, who raise money for charities and perform service functions. Membership is up more than 5,000 since May 1, officials said.

Members attending the 1978 annual convention voted against allowing women in the Jaycees. That ended a three-year program in which women were provisionally allowed to join local chapters in a few states.

When some chapters refused to oust women, the Jaycees board of directors began revoking charters in January 1979.

That has escalated into the court battles involving the national organization and chapters in Alaska, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Washington, D.C., and Philadelphia. Decisions in most of those court cases are expected during October, Bechtol said.

To Linda Berge, a member of the Alaska Jaycees and one of the plaintiffs in the suit, the issue is a simple one — women are being discriminated against. "Everything they do is for the whole community, not just half of it," she said of the Jaycees.

And says Penny May, executive assistant to the Alaska Jaycees: "The Alaska Jaycees are 100 percent behind having women. ... We passed a resolution in our May 1979 annual meeting to that effect."

Bernie Garostigue, president of Anchorage's Gold Rush Jaycees, said he thinks the Jaycees will admit women. "Some of the older Jaycees don't want it to happen, so there probably won't be enough votes for the next couple of years. But it's coming," he said.

A Massachusetts Jaycees official, who asked that his name not be used, said he sees four factions within the Jaycees.

"We have chapters that are all male and want to maintain their autonomy and there are chapters which we call open that have both men and women." The other two factions fall between those two, he said.

"Some don't mind women as long as they aren't in their group and others want women only under certain conditions."

Bechtol, 34, of Pensacola, Fla., says there are principles at stake in the dispute, which he said cost the Jaycees more than $300,000 this year.

"They lost by a 6-to-1 majority and we voted to remain male," Bechtol said. "The principle involved here is majority rule. They can call it chauvinism. We call it democracy. We voted. That should have been it. The principle is: What's more important? Admitting women or allowing the right of majority rule?"

Bechtol said there is an organization "for women who want to be part of the Jaycee action," called the Jayceettes.

Investigating Food Programs

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Officials with the U.S. Department of Agriculture have begun an investigation of two summer food programs for children of low-income families in Winston-Salem.

That investigation could take as long as 30 days, according to Paul Culbreth, head of USDA's Office of Investigations in Raleigh. Culbreth said the department is examining the records of the Midwest Piedmont Area Development Organization and Citizens Neighborhood Council.

Officials say the investigation is being made to determine whether the two agencies submitted correct information on the number of children they fed.

The head of Midwest Piedmont, John Duncan, said Monday he was not aware of the investigation. He said USDA investigators had not asked for his records nor been in touch with his office.

"I don't know what they are doing," he said.

Duncan said Midwest has had summer food programs for the past two summers and audits for this summer are not complete. He said he knew of no problems with last year's program.

The director of Citizens Neighborhood Council was not immediately available for comment.

USDA investigators are also looking at records of a summer food program sponsored by the Thomasville First Baptist Church. That program is managed by a corporation headed by Dr. Roy Moore of A&T State University.

The federal food programs provide as many as three meals a day in areas where at least 33 percent of the children come from low-income families.

Prepare Guidelines On What Student Expected To Learn

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's first detailed guide to what students should learn in each grade has been completed and will be in all the schools by the beginning of next month.

The 280-page guide is called the Competency Goals and Performance Indicators and took two years to complete.

The guide was developed to help teachers and school administrators develop instructional programs and to help parents understand what educators are trying to teach, according to George A. Kahdy, assistant state superintendent of public instruction.

But the contents of the guide are intended only as recommendations so schools may choose to use just portions.

"We put down what we thought would be good competency indicators," Kahdy said.

The guide was developed after consultations with 1,500 North Carolina educators and review of literature from other states. It has been used experimentally in 67 school districts during the past school year, Kahdy said.

The guide is a follow-up to the "Course of Study for Elementary and Secondary Schools," adopted by the state Board of Education two years ago. That guide outlines courses that should be taught in the schools.

"We decided that this (the course of study) was good but too general," Kahdy said. "We decided we could provide local units with more specific recommendations."

Although the new guide is more specific, Kahdy said it should not stifle teacher creativity or lead to a mechanical curriculum. Nor is it intended as a device to measure teacher competence, he said.

"We are not trying to standardize curriculums," he said. "But we are saying schools have a responsibility for teaching the whole child."

Kahdy said the next step would be to develop a parents' version so parents can look at it and know what the schools are trying to teach their children.

The new guide says 11th graders should be able to take 20 sentences and "correct inappropriate usage of pronouns, verbs, agreement of subject and verb, and antecedent reference."

A fourth grader should be able to determine how much change should be received from a dollar after a purchase totaling 40 cents, 55 cents or 80 cents.

Church Theft

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating the theft of a portable organ from New Hope Baptist Church located on Rt. 6, Greenville, north of Belvoir.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that New Hope pastor, the Rev. Nile Stine, told officers that the organ was discovered missing around 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

The organ, which weighed 300 to 400 pounds, the sheriff said, was valued at $1,000.

The pastor lives approximately 50 feet from the church, according to Sheriff Tyson, but he reported hearing no disturbance at the facility during the night.

Sheriff Tyson said the church was unlocked at the time of the incident.

Strauss Eyes PLO Review

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — U.S. Mideast negotiator Robert Strauss arrived from Egypt today for consultations with Prime Minister Menachem Begin on the outlook for the Palestinian autonomy negotiations, with all sides agreeing they want to move ahead.

The American ambassador told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport that he had had "most constructive and worthwhile" talks with Sadat and repeated a comment he made in Egypt in which he characterized the so far slow pace of negotiations as "shifting into second gear."

The chief of the Israeli autonomy negotiators, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, indicated Israel also wanted to speed up the pace. "We have no intention to wait for the last day of the eight months remaining in our negotiations," Burg said.

Strauss told reporters in Cairo Monday after two days of talks with Sadat and Egypt's chief negotiator, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, "I am terribly encouraged and hope to find the same feeling in Israel."

Strauss said both Sadat and Khalil felt that by the time he returns to the Mideast in November "so much will have been either announced or already done that the picture that takes place will be one of success."

U.S. officials traveling with Strauss indicated that in the next few weeks the Egyptians and Israelis would begin debating their basic differences instead of arguing about agenda and procedure.

"We will move into second gear," Strauss said.
One U.S. official said the optimism in Cairo stemmed from a pervasive enthusiasm and a shedding of doubt by lower echelon officials rather than from any secret agreement.

"People who had doubts about the peace process before don't seem to have them now," he said.

Strauss said the Egyptian leaders believe that success in implementing other provisions of the peace treaty ahead of schedule "will give credibility to the peace process that will move these autonomy talks forward. The world didn't expect the parties to perform but the process is ahead of schedule and this is obviously something they place great significance in."

Strauss said that because of the steady Israeli withdrawal from Sinai, Arab critics can no longer claim that Israel will renege on its commitments or that Egypt is unable to deliver on its promises.

See Detroit Going Too

DETROIT (AP) — If Chrysler Corp. were to collapse, it could take the city of Detroit along with it, a new federal report concludes.

The report, compiled by the Department of Transportation, shows the loss of the No. 3 automaker would destroy the Motor City's economic base for years to come, the Detroit Free Press reported from Washington in today's editions.

The study also says the collapse of Chrysler would double Detroit's unemployment rate, heighten racial tensions and perhaps force some Chrysler part suppliers into bankruptcy, the newspaper reported.

The loss of Chrysler would have a greater impact on Detroit than the two-year recession that began with the Arab oil embargo of 1973, the transportation department study concludes.

Detroit did not recover from that recession until mid-1977, the study says, while predicting that a total Chrysler shutdown would have longer-lasting effects because the loss of jobs would be immediate rather than gradual.

Pressures On Baha'i People

By The Associated Press

The lives, property and holy places of hundreds of thousands of followers of the Baha'i religion in Iran are in peril because "they are under pressure to recant their faith" by Shiite Moslem zealots who support Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Baha'i officials report.

They said the Baha'i was excluded from the new draft constitution of Khomeini's Islamic Republic, even though it is the largest non-Moslem religious minority in the country.

The officials said mobs destroyed the home of the religion's founder, which was a shrine, and that 79 houses, some offices, and cemeteries owned by the religion were confiscated, burned or demolished in recent months despite Khomeini's promises of protection.

Mary Hardy, deputy secretary of the Baha'i center in London, said Baha'i followers in Iran reported by telephone that the Most Holy House of the Bab in the southern city of Shiraz was attacked Sunday and partially destroyed.

She said demolition of the shrine and two adjacent holy sites continued Monday with the apparent approval of the head of the government's department for religious endowments in Shiraz, who accompanied a crowd of onlookers.

The shrine was decreed a place of pilgrimage by Baha'ullah, a Persian nobleman who founded the sect in Iran in the mid-19th century. The Baha'i has membership among more than 1,600 ethnic groups in most countries of the world. Its followers believe in the unity of all religions, universal education, world peace and the equality of men and women. They are forbidden to take political positions.

Fantasy Land Falcons Pull Out Another Victory In Final Period

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons always seem to find a way.

Last year, the Falcons won six games in the last two minutes enroute to their first appearance in the National Football League playoffs.

This season is only two games old and Atlanta has pulled two games out on plays manufactured in fantasy land.

In the opener against New Orleans the game went into overtime tied at 34. Then a center snap sailed over the Saints' punter's head. The punter tried to pass the ball. It was intercepted for a six-yard touchdown.

Monday night, the Falcons played the Philadelphia Eagles on the NFL's weekly national television game. They showed their supernatural powers again. Atlanta trailed 10-7 in the final period. Tom Priddy more intercepted a pass, returned 20-yards to the Eagles' 17.

The Falcons had a third down from the Eagles' 13-yard line. Quarterback Steve Bartkowski went back to pass and the play he had called was soundly defended by the Eagles.

That didn't stop the Falcons. They scored a touchdown on the play that stood up for a 14-10 triumph and a 2-0 record. The Eagles slipped to 1-1 after opening with a 23-17 decision over the New York Giants.

"The winning touchdown was an ad lib play," said Bartkowski, the fifth-year Falcons' quarterback. Bartkowski gave all the credit to Wally Francis who caught the ball in the end zone.

"Francis has a tremendous knack to work himself open. He saw the outside blocked and worked his way inside," Bartkowski explained.

"Quite frankly I didn't think the play would work," said the Falcons' quarterback who completed 10 of 16 passes for 123 yards. "We tried the same play earlier on the other side and Philadelphia had it covered extremely well."

"Actually it didn't work the second time, because they had the flat covered so well. Fortunately Wally found an opening. And there was no safety there. And besides, Alfred Jenkins ran a tremendous pattern and ended up setting a pick just like in basketball to help Francis get open."

Earlier, the Eagles had taken a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on a 35-yard field goal by rookie Tony Franklin. After Bartkowski scored on a second period quarterback sneak, Philadelphia regained the lead on a three-yard pass action run by quarterback Ron Jaworski to lead 10-7 at halftime.

The third period was scoreless, although the Eagles disdained a chip shot field goal with a fourth and one at the Atlanta seven to try for a first down on fourth down and one. They didn't make it.

That decision came back to haunt Eagles' coach Dick Vermeil as his team reached the Atlanta 38 in the final seconds. If they had taken the earlier field goal, Franklin, a thunderfoot kicker might have won it with a field goal.

Atlanta coach Leeman Bennett said his team went into the game with the idea of establishing the running game. He said they accomplished their goal. He expressed pride in the offensive line, which opened the way to 145 net yards rushing. Rookie William Andrews, who gained 167 yards last week, added 121 against the Eagles. And he was a blocking back at Auburn last year.

Vermeil said he went for that fourth and one because his cuts in the press box said the Eagles needed only two feet.

"I had confidence we could make two feet," Vermeil said. "If we went for the field goal, we would have gone up 13-7, and they still could have made a touchdown and beat us 14-13. I didn't think this was the turning point."

Vermeil said the key play was Pridemore's interception. "I was disappointed in our running game," said Vermeil, noting that his team gained only 57 yards on the ground. "We were not physical enough and they blocked our people. My observation is that we got beat by a better team."

Southern California, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas held onto the top four places in The Associated Press' first regular-season college football poll today while Stanford, Texas A&M and Arizona State were casualties of the year's first upsets.

Southern Cal, a 21-7 winner over Texas Tech in its opening game, received 47 first-place votes and 1,222 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters.

However, second-ranked Alabama closed the gap from the preseason poll. The Crimson Tide, which opened by thrashing Georgia Tech 30-6, received 14 first-place ballots and 1,172 points. The margin of difference in the preseason poll was 1,242-1,141.

Neither Oklahoma nor Texas has played yet. The Sooners received two first-place votes and 1,068 points while the other No. 1 ballot went to Texas, which accumulated 962 points.

Penn State, fifth in the preseason poll, also was idle and slipped to seventh place behind Purdue and Michigan, which posted impressive triumphs. Purdue trounced Wisconsin 41-20 and climbed from sixth to fifth with 931 points while Michigan swamped Northwestern 42-7 and jumped from seventh to sixth with 898 points.

Then came Penn State with 823 points, idle Nebraska with 742 and idle Notre Dame with 644. Michigan State defeated Illinois 33-16 and held onto 10th place with 594 points.

The Second Ten consists of Missouri, Georgia, Houston, Washington, Ohio State, Pitt, Arkansas, Florida State, North Carolina State and Southern Methodist.

The preseason Second Ten was Georgia, Missouri, Stanford, Texas A&M, Washington, Houston, Pitt, Arizona State, Florida State and Arkansas. However, Stanford was beaten by Tulane 33-10, Texas A&M lost to Brigham Young 18-17 and Arizona State was upset by California 17-9.

Vikings Field Veteran Teams

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — The D. H. Conley volleyball team returns six seniors this season while the Vikings' cross-country team has five runners back from last year as the two sports head into their fall schedule.

Volleyball
Coach Norma Respass' Vikings won the conference crown a year ago and Respass looks for her team to challenge once again for the title.

"We have most of our starters back, but we're not real deep," Respass said. "I'd say we're made up of half veterans and half new players."

Returning for the Vikings are Pam Manning, Glenda Green, Lexanne Keeter and Tilda Garish, all of whom started a year ago.

Also returning from last year's title winning team are Joanne Franke and Lori Garish, both of whom will start for the first time this year.

Tammy Streeter and Sheri Waters may also start for the Vikings.

"The players we have back are looking real good. We're already practicing some game plays, which we don't usually get to until midseason," Respass said.

"We're having to drill more, though, because we do have five freshmen and one sophomore out this year."

Respass said she feels Ayden-Griffon and North Pitt will challenge for the league crown, adding that Greene Central should also be strong.

"We're looking forward to a good year. We're going to try to be on top," Respass said.

Cross-Country
Viking Coach Chuck Dunn returns five starters from last year's cross-country team, but still believes his team is going to be "basically young and inexperienced."

We haven't really got down to it yet, but we're hoping to develop and hit our peak sometime near the end of the season."

Returning for D.H. Conley are Michael Joyner, Glenn Branch, Lawrence Green, Melvin Baker and Dennis Carney.

The cross-country conference is again this year made up of two teams, Conley and Southern Nash. Last year, Nash beat Conley for the championship.

Godette On Sidelines

East Carolina's Pirates suffered one disabling injury in Saturday night's 34-20 defeat at the hands of N.C. State University.

Joe Godette, who suffered a knee injury in the early minutes of the second half, will be out for an indefinite period, but at least four weeks.

John Morris, at first believed out for several weeks with an injury to a kneecap, was able to practice yesterday, and is not expected to miss any games. Anthony Collins and Theodore Sutton, both shaken up in the game, are also not expected to miss any time.

Vern Davenport gained two honors for his play in the game. Davenport's block on the touchdown run of Leander Green was judged the "Hit of the Week," and also the "Play of the Week."

Green was judged the top back for his play in the game, while Matt Mulholland was named the top offensive lineman. Willie Holley, and John Morris and Noah Clark received back and lineman honors on the defensive team. Bill Lamm topped the specialty teams.

Knight Sentence Is Upheld In Puerto Rico

By L.RUBEN SANCHEZ
Associated Press Writer
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Bobby Knight, the embattled basketball coach at Indiana University, faces six months in jail and a fine of $500 if he ever sets foot in this U.S. Commonwealth, but he says he probably never will.

Knight was convicted in absentia on Aug. 22 of assaulting a police officer during the Pan American Games. On Monday, District Judge Rurico Rivera formally set sentence, the maximum allowable for the misdemeanor offense.

Although he was not available for comment Monday, Knight said at a news conference Sunday in Bloomington, Ind., that he had no intention of ever going back to Puerto Rico, where he coached the U.S. men's basketball team to the Pan Am Games title last July.

After setting sentence, Judge Rivera issued an arrest order. Carlos Romero Barcelo, governor of Puerto Rico, said he would not consider extradition for a misdemeanor, however, and Indiana Gov. Otis R. Brown added he "would not be willing to allow Bobby Knight to be extradited."

After his conviction in August, Knight was given two weeks to show up in court to appeal if he wanted. Since Knight did not show up, the judge set sentence.

Knight was charged with assault after an incident during a practice session. It started when the Brazilian women's team arrived eight minutes early for practice while the U.S. men's team still was on the court. Knight asked that the women's team be told to leave until its assigned time.

Policeman Jose Silva said Knight swore at him and hit him during the argument. Knight said at the Sunday news conference that he accidentally brushed Silva with his finger tips when the policeman poked him in the eye while shouting and waving his arms during the argument.

Knight did acknowledge, however, that while he was still in San Juan he said the "Puerto Rican team was a heck of a lot easier to beat than their court system. That infuriated a lot of people, but I was not trying to infuriate anybody."

"Then, when the silver medal was presented, I said, 'I'll clap for that; they should get second place. They've been a second-class operation all week.' What I said, I meant with some degree of humor. But for the most part it was not accepted this way."

After the U.S. team's victory, Knight's players hoisted him on their shoulders as the coach thrust a triumphant fist in the air.

Reynolds Changes

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. says it will terminate its sponsorship of sports-car racing and increase its support of five other motorsports sponsorships. The decision to terminate was purely a business one, officials said.

Reynolds announced Monday an increase from $35,000 to $210,000 in support of the NASCAR Winston-Cup drivers' point fund and said its AMA motorcycle racing point fund was being increased from $100,000 to $125,000 next season.

Similar increases will come in each of Reynolds drag-racing sponsorships.

Reynolds will award bonuses to second- and third-place finishers in the point standings at participating NASCAR tracks for the first time in the Winston Racing Series. In addition to the $1,000 bonus for first-place finishers, $500 will go to second-place drivers and $250 to those who finish third.

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Mauch Unhappy After Splitting Pair Against Kansas City Nine

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

It will happen every so often: a player or manager will sit and stew after a game, say "I don't have anything to say," then vent his frustrations for five minutes or so.

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch did it Monday night, after his Twins spent six hours, 52 minutes splitting a two-night double-header with the Kansas City Royals and staying in third place — 6½ games behind the American League West-leading California Angels.

"I don't have anything to say," his speech began, "except that we played all night for California."

"We have to win every game the rest of the season. You're darn right we had to win two.

But to that we have to play a lot better than we did in the first game. We played all night for the Angels. That's exactly what they want to happen."

Like the man said, nothing to say.

The Twins lost the 4½-hour, 14-inning opener 6-5 when Hal McRae blasted a Mike Marshall pitch over the fence. They salvaged the nightcap 5-2 with the help of Roy Smalley's two-run homer in a four-run Minnesota sixth.

The nightcap left the Royals second, four games behind California — exactly where they started the evening — leaving Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog to offer these comments:

"We're definitely in a situation where we need help. We needed help from Milwaukee this weekend. The Angels are hot."

Meanwhile on Monday's abbreviated schedule, the Boston Red Sox cooled off the Orioles 3-2, snapping Baltimore's seven-game winning streak, but Carl Yastrzemski went 0-for-4 and remained one hit away from the 3,000 plateau. In the other game — the National League was idle — the Seattle Mariners beat the Texas Rangers, 5-2.

Smalley's homer wiped out a 2-1 lead the Royals had built on consecutive fourth-inning homers by George Brett and Darrell Porter.

"I hate double-headers, anyway," offered Smalley. "You hardly ever win double-headers. This was our ninth double-header. That's 18 ball games that you figure to go .500."

That's what they did Monday night.

Red Sox 3, Orioles 2

Jim Rice drove in two runs and Bob Stanley pitched eight innings of four-hit ball to help Boston beat Baltimore. But the Fenway Park crowd of 30,618 — which sent the Red Sox' total attendance past the 4-million mark this season — missed seeing Yastrzemski become the first American Leaguer to amass 3,000 hits and 400 homers.

"The fans here tonight wanted to see it and I wanted to get it," said Yastrzemski. "I want to get it over with."

Mariners 5, Rangers 2

Fifth-inning home runs by Willie Horton and Leon Roberts — the first Seattle hits — carried the Mariners past the Rangers. The homers were the 34th and 35th given up this season by Texas right-hander Ferguson Jenkins.

It Ain't Easy

Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox reacts Monday night after failing to make a hit in four at bats against the Baltimore Orioles. Yaz is one hit away from being the first man in the American League to have 400 and 3,000 hits. (AP Laser-photo)

Weight Training Has Its Costs

LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — New weight training techniques have made high school athletes bigger, stronger and faster than they were 10 years ago, but they may be paying a price for their extra muscles, some medical experts and coaches say.

High blood pressure, joint and skeletal problems and obesity are some of the risks athletes face if they are not careful with weight training, according to several sports medicine experts.

"The big problem, on a long-term basis, is not the bulk they're getting, but what they're doing to the rest of their bodies," said K.C. Roberts, a vascular physiologist with the Human Performance Laboratory at Urban Medical Hospital in Marietta, Ga.

"It's a whole problem with the cardiovascular and skeletal systems. You just don't bulk up that fast and expect the whole cardiovascular system to keep up with that."

Weight training is beneficial if done properly, Roberts and other sports medicine experts said. But on the high school level, youngsters often don't have the proper supervision, some coaches are not properly trained in weight lifting techniques and competition can lead to abuses.

"Competition makes us do things we probably don't want our own kids to do. We all know that a guy carrying around 240 pounds is carrying around more than he should," said Virgil "Bud" Wills, coach at Cook High School in Adel, Ga.

"It's something most coaches don't talk about, but it's a fact. I think if everyone stayed away from bulk weight, athletics would be better," said Wills, who was head football coach at Moultrie High for 17 years before going to Cook last year.

U.S. Girls In Cage Finals

By BOB GREEN
AP Sports Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Their women's basketball team has assured the United States of at least matching its best-ever performance in the World University Games.

The American girls scored a 68-62 semifinal victory over Canada late Monday night and now go against Cuba, a 64-63 winner over Bulgaria, in the gold medal game tonight. The United States beat Cuba 105-74 earlier in these multiple-sport games and is favored for the gold.

Even if they lose, and that's not expected, that's all the Americans would need to match their previous high medal count of 43, set in 1977 in Bulgaria, the only other time the United States sent a full delegation to the biennial festival that has attracted college-age athletes from 95 countries.

The Americans now have a gold-total count of 15-42, but any hope they may have had of breaking the defending champion Russians' dominance has all but disappeared. The Soviets won three of the six events on Monday's rain-shortened program and now have a gold-total count of 29-63. Romania is third at 11-23.

The victories by the women's basketball team and the water polo team, 4-3 over Romania in the final round-robin bracket, were about the only two bright spots on an otherwise gloomy, rainy day.

And the basketball victory was a near thing. The Americans had to come back from a 40-31 halftime deficit.

"Thank heaven for second halves," sighed U.S. Coach

Fran Garmon. "That's been our salvation."

Carol Blazejowski helped, too. She scored 15 of her game-high 19 points in the second half, including a couple of critical free throws with seconds remaining.

The American men's basketball team plays host Mexico in a semifinal game tonight.

The track and field program was highlighted by the spectacular performance of Italy's Pietro Mennea as a heavy, steady afternoon rain that forced the postponement of two scheduled finals.

Mennea, who called himself "the best 200-meter athlete in the world," ran that distance in 19.96 seconds, the fourth fastest time in history, in a preliminary heat and said he hopes to break the world record of 19.83 in the semis or finals.

Roslyn Bryant, with a silver in the women's 400-meters, won the United States' only medal of the day.

Russians won two of the track and field golds. Andrei Prokofiev won the men's 110-meter hurdles in 13.50 and Maria Koulthounova took the women's 400 in a Games record 50.35.

The other winners were Lucyna Langer, Poland, 12.62 in the women's 100-meter hurdles, and Wolfgang Schmidt, East Germany, in the discus. His winning throw of 199 feet, 5 inches in a pounding rain was 34 feet behind his own world record.

Vladimir Aleinik led a one-two Russian finish in the men's platform diving, the final event in that sport. The United States failed to gain a medal in diving.

Pair Named As Top Defenders

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina strong safety Ricky Barden and Clemson tackle Jim Stuckey contributed to the Tar Heels and Tigers 1979 season opener shutout victories.

As a result, they have been named defensive players of the week by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Barden, a 5-9, 178-pound senior from Norfolk, Va., keyed a North Carolina secondary that effectively shut down South Carolina's passing game. The Gamecocks were limited to just nine of 26 for 99 yards, in a 28-0 win.

Barden also set up the Tar Heels first touchdown with a 28-yard interception return to the South Carolina 40 and came up with a big play that halted South Carolina's deepest penetration of the game.

The Gamecocks, trailing just 14-0 at the time, had driven to the Tar Heel 32. There, on third-and-eight, Barden shot into the Gamecock backfield to sack USC quarterback Garry Harper for an eight-yard loss and force a fourth-down punt.

Barden also had five tackles and a recovered fumble in helping North Carolina post its first shutout in 16 games. He edged out North Carolina State's Woodrow Wilson and Wake Forest's Mark Lancaster for the award.

Stuckey started right with nine tackles in Clemson's 21-0 win over Furman. Seven of those stops were unassisted with three resulting in negative yardage for the Paladins. With Stuckey's play a major factor, Clemson held Furman to just 82 yards rushing on 41 carries.

Parents Of Hospitalized Children Have Lodging

FAMILY FACILITY — Andrea Ludkiewicz, manager of the Ronald McDonald House, takes her son and the family pet for a stroll outside the facility where for $5 a night families with children in special medical therapy can sleep in one of 12 bedrooms and share cooking facilities in one of two kitchens. (UPI Photo)

By DEBORAH FRAZIER
DENVER (UPI) — At the Ronald McDonald House, the trauma and expense of having a child hospitalized for cancer or another severe medical problem is eased because the home that hamburgers helped buy is more than a place to stay.

For $5 a night, families with children in cancer therapy, under treatment at the local burn center or involved in any other medical vigil can sleep in one of 12 bedrooms and share cooking facilities in one of two kitchens.

The converted duplex is supported by the Rocky Mountain McDonald's Owners Association as an economical alternative to $40-a-night hotel rooms. An added benefit is the opportunity of meeting and living with other parents in similar situations.

The Denver house is owned by a non-profit corporation. Others are springing up across the country, although not as fast as the national fast-food chain sells hamburgers.

The first was established in Philadelphia in 1974 through the combined efforts of the Philadelphia Eagles football team, local McDonald's dealers and a course of chemotherapy is commonly prescribed, with the child hospitalized for most of the treatment.

Because cancer treatment equipment is expensive, medical facilities are centrally located. This means long journeys or weeks in a motel for parents who want to stay with the child through the painful and frightening process.

Illinois franchise holders helped fund the second home in Chicago two years ago. The Denver home opened in January and parent who wanted to help families of cancer victims.

Most of the lodgers are parents of cancer or leukemia victims. After cancer is diagnosed in a child, a six-week

Visitors are asked to smoke only in designated areas.

Mrs. Ludkiewicz, who lives with her medical student husband and two children in a separate section of the home, said conflicts have been surprisingly rare in a house shared by up to 20 strangers.

Communal living is not for everyone, she added, but most families find the help they receive from other parents more than offsets the disadvantages of shared bathrooms.

"Cost aside, they like coming here after 13 hours in the hospital. Families can talk about the treatments and hash out their feelings with other parents going through the same experience," she said.

Beyond informal group counseling, the living situation provides proof that children survive chemotherapy and improve, she said, and parents overcome the emotional stress involved.

For the children, she said, the benefits include peers who do not laugh when hair falls out because of chemotherapy, who understand the nausea that often follows treatments and whose healthy laughter is a sign of hope.

"The parents feel nothing as bad has ever happened to anyone. They come here and find people who have gone through it and children who are whole and well after the treatments," Mrs. Ludkiewicz said.

Rollaway beds are provided at the home for other family members such as well children and grandparents who stay for a few days. Phone booths in nooks of the house offer privacy ary this year. A dozen others are planned for other cities that have special medical centers for children.

Denver's house is a few blocks from Children's Hospital, a mecca for cancer treatment for youngsters throughout the Southwest. The 120 families who have stayed at the house so far came from a 12-state area.

House manager Andrea Ludkiewicz welcomes parents and explains visitors are expected to share housekeeping duties. The chores range from plant watering to vacuuming, making their own beds.

"It is a godsend. It is not only affordable, but it provides emotional support and serenity," said Mrs. Hansen. "You know you are not alone. And coming here is like being with family."

Beyond the economic considerations, she said the assurances provided by other parents whose children are farther along in the treatment was "beyond value."

"It's better than seeing a psychiatrist. You pay him to care. Here the help continues and continues. You wonder how people go through something like this and can still show they care," he said.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Several national and New York City organizations are trying to stop a Winston-Salem Christian religious broadcasting group from buying one of the city's Jewish-oriented radio stations.

Salem Media Corp. is trying to buy WEVD-AM.

The sale of the station would result in the denial of programming in the Yiddish language, according to the "Coalition to Save WEVD." The coalition says the sale would end broadcasting on Jewish subjects to thousands of listeners in the New York area.

The Forward Association Inc. of New York, the owner of WEVD-AM and WEVD-FM and publisher of the Jewish Daily Forward, a Yiddish-language newspaper, announced in June that it planned to sell the AM station to Salem Media for $1.175 million.

In July, the Forward Association filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission to allow it to assign the AM frequency to Salem Media.

A Salem Media spokesman said Monday the company was waiting for the FCC to rule on the petition but feels confident the FCC will approve the transfer.

Seek Return Cyclamates
CHICAGO (AP) — The principal domestic manufacturer of cyclamates has sued the federal government in an effort to get the artificial sweetener back on the market.

Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago has lost $42 million since 1969 as a result of a ban imposed by the Food and Drug Administration, a company spokesman said.

The U.S. District Court suit filed Monday charges that the FDA has known since 1975 that cyclamates are safe to use.

Abbott said it asked the court to act because the FDA had not moved on a petition the company filed in 1973 seeking to put the product back on the market for use as a "table sweetener and in dietetic foods and beverages."

The 1973 petition said cyclamates had "no cancer-producing or other adverse effects."

The company said in a statement Monday that "all reviews by groups of international experts including health agencies of many scientifically sophisticated western countries have found cyclamates to be safe for use," and Abbott's studies support those findings.

However, the FDA said on Oct. 4, 1976 that cyclamates were too dangerous to allow back on the market.

Marxist President Of Angola Is Dead
ROME (AP) — Agostinho Neto, the Marxist president of the oil-rich African nation of Angola, died in Moscow following surgery, African diplomatic sources in Rome reported today. But the Angolan Embassy in Moscow denied Neto was dead and there was no independent confirmation from any other source.

Neto, who led his party to power after 13 years of colonial war against Portugal's former right-wing regime and through a bloody three-way civil war in 1975-6, has made several trips to Moscow for treatment of rumored cancer.

The sources in Rome said official announcement of the death was withheld pending meetings of authorities in the Angolan capital of Luanda.

The sources, who refused to be named, declined to elaborate.

The Central Committee of Neto's Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola released a statement in the African capital earlier in the day describing the president's health as "worrying."

Resign Over Suspension

WADESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-five of Anson County Hospital's 200 employees, including its only pharmacist and the director of nursing, resigned Monday, protesting a 60-day suspension of hospital administrator Hollis Taylor.

The resignations also included seven of the hospital's 28 registered nurses, three of four lab technicians and the only Social Services worker.

"My opinion is that when these people follow through (with their resignations), they will be damn hard to replace," personnel director John Clark said. Clark himself said he would resign.

Several other employees said Monday they will quit when they find other jobs. Most resignations are effective in 30 to 60 days.

Those who resigned said they decided this weekend to act following a unanimous vote by the hospital board last week to suspend Taylor for 60 days with pay.

The trustees said they were trying to settle a four-month controversy between four of the county's eight doctors and the hospital administration by suspending Taylor, who has been unavailable for comment.

The doctors, Fred Burney, Floyd Deen, Abdul-hakim Niazi and Gultekin Ertugrul, all threatened to take their practices out of the county if Taylor wasn't removed. The doctors contend they weren't allowed enough voice in hospital affairs.

Burney, Deen and Niazi resigned from the hospital staff Sept. 1.

Taking Tobacco Claims To Washington For Aid

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A group of North Carolina tobacco farmers facing major financial losses from herbicide contamination of their crops and weather-related problems plans to take its case to Washington Wednesday.

The farmers will be accompanied by state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram and possibly by state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham. They plan to meet with members of the state's Congressional delegation and possibly U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

The purpose of the trip is to help farmers receive federal financial aid for crop losses and other setbacks caused by a herbicide-contaminated fertilizer manufactured and sold by Smith-Douglass Co. Growers have also suffered crop losses due to the weather.

Smith-Douglass is in the process of settling claims with farmers whose tobacco was damaged by the herbicide.

Many farmers say they have lost 25 to 35 percent in terms of a shortage to carry to market. Growers seeking relief from the federal government are from Wake, Lee, Moore, Johnston, Sampson and Harnett counties.

The farmers who will travel to Washington were selected from a cross-section of Eastern North Carolina growers affected by the problems.

Following a banner year last year, tobacco growers have been beset by blue mold and weather-related problems this year, in addition to the fertilizer contamination.

Blue mold is a disease caused by extensive cool and damp weather during the growing season. Excessive rains followed the outbreak of the blue mold and killed the top leaves in many tobacco fields. These leaves usually bring the best price on the auction-house floor.

Developing A Sky Giant

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Soviet Union is developing a huge new military transport plane to succeed the Antonov-22 series, several of which are known to have crashed, a noted Swiss aviation publication reported today.

It said the new Antonov-40 aircraft, whose construction details are still unknown, could turn out to be bigger and better than the American C-5A "Galaxy," which, with a 100-ton payload, is the biggest aircraft in the world.

A review of the Soviet military transport air force published by the "International Defense Review" claimed two Antonov-22 planes are known to have crashed into the Atlantic and one in India, and probably more inside the Soviet Union.

Without giving sources, dates, or further details the review said "it can be assumed with a high degree of certainty that there have been between six and 10 further crashes" in Soviet territory.

It said the crashes "indicate fatigue problems with the airframe, while the very short time between overhauls of the engines indicates that (they)... perform unsatisfactorily."

Widely read in Western defense ministries and North Atlantic Treaty Organization offices, the International Defense Review is published by Interavia SA, the Geneva-based Swiss publishers of highly specialized aviation magazines.

The review said the Soviets halted production of the Antonov-22, which has four turbo-prop engines, a payload of 80 tons and maximum takeoff weight of 250 tons, in 1974 after about 85 of the planes had been built.

SUMMER GRADUATE

MACOMB, ILL. — Leroy Terrell Hawkins of Greenville received his master's degree in sociology from Western Illinois University during summer commencement exercises.

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is concluding delicate negotiations with organized labor and business this week on a revised voluntary anti-inflation program the government hopes both sides will support — backing the current program has badly lacked.

Labor leaders have led the opposition to the program President Carter announced in October on the grounds that its 7 percent wage guideline penalizes workers whose wages are being eroded by a 13 percent inflation rate.

But administration officials are cautiously optimistic that they can reach an understanding with labor on the revised voluntary wage-price guidelines, due out by week's end.

Administration sources say the new guidelines, to take effect as Carter's program starts its second year next month, will be tightened for prices and relaxed for wages. The sources asked not to be named.

The administration has acknowledged that the current program has failed to slow the rapid rise in consumer prices, mainly for food, housing and energy. In fact, the annual inflation rate is higher now than when Carter unveiled his voluntary program.

The pay guideline, however, has helped curb large wage settlements by giving employers a reason for holding firm at 7 percent a year, administration officials say.

That is why labor leaders have opposed Carter's voluntary program and called instead for mandatory controls, which they believe would result in more equitable sacrifices by corporations, stockholders and wage earners in the fight against inflation.

Carter remains opposed to mandatory controls, and administration economists say a voluntary program can work only if it enjoys the backing of both business and labor.

With that goal in mind and at the suggestion of the Labor Department, administration officials have been meeting quietly with labor and business leaders all summer to see if the three parties can forge a "social compact" for fighting inflation.

The term "social compact" refers to a British anti-inflation experiment under which government, business and labor — recognizing their mutual interest in controlling inflation — entered into an agreement that limited wage and price increases.

Officials have been reluctant to detail the status of the discussions but have indicated the talks are going well and may produce a breakthrough agreement.

One government bargainer, who asked to remain anonymous, said he felt encouraged that the government, labor and business could become allies in the fight against inflation. But he cautioned that "it is very difficult to reach a consensus among these three groups."

Closed Hearings Said Apparently 'In Order'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court said Monday a Superior Court judge's order closing pretrial hearings in a Rutherford County murder case appeared to be in order.

"It seems to me it falls right under the (U.S.) Supreme Court ruling, and of course, we'd hold under that," Justice Joseph Branch said.

Branch said he had not received any written information or records on the Rutherford County case and was basing his opinion on newspaper accounts.

When contacted for comment on the closed hearings Saturday, Branch said he knew of only one state law that allows a court hearing to be closed. That law permits judges to exclude the public from trials when the victim of an alleged rape or an attempted rape is testifying.

Superior Court Judge Donald Smith of Raleigh last week ordered pretrial motions in the case of James William Hutchins of Rutherford County held in closed sessions. Those hearings were held in Hendersonville.

Smith told The Associated Press Friday he ordered the closed sessions after being told another Superior Court judge, Robert D. Lewis of Asheville, had issued an order of secrecy for all proceedings in the case.

Hutchins is charged with murder in the shooting deaths May 31 of a state highway patrolman and two Rutherford County deputies.

"Judge Lewis is a fine judge," Branch said Monday. "I don't think he'd be off base."

Court observers say this case appears to be the first in North Carolina in which the public has been excluded from pretrial proceedings on the basis of a July ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court.

In that ruling, the U.S. court upheld closed pretrial hearings in a New York case involving the killing of a former police officer.

Branch said he did not know whether Lewis' order would carry to the trial itself. He said he would oppose a move to close the trial "unless there was some very compelling reason."

"I would think his ruling, as I read it, would just refer to the pretrial," Branch said. "Our constitution says trials shall be open. Unless there's some compelling reason, we don't usually close them."

Four Charged In Gun Slaying

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Four Rocky Mount area teen-agers have been charged in connection with the death of an Edgecombe County man who was shot through the window of his mobile home.

Edgecombe County authorities said Ricky Lee Stallings, 17, has been charged with murder in the Saturday night shooting death of George Lee Andrews, 56.

Stallings was arraigned in Edgecombe District Court Monday and a probable cause hearing was set for Sept. 20. He was being held without bond in the Edgecombe County Jail, authorities said. An arraignment for the other three was scheduled for Wednesday.

Investigators said Andrews was found about 10:30 p.m. Saturday night with several bullet wounds in his chest. Capt. Thomas Moore said bullet holes in the living-area window and curtains indicated the fatal shots were fired from outside the trailer.

Moore said Andrews' wife Brenda was not at home at the time of the shooting. Andrews was named as a witness to a trespass charge against Stallings, he said. Stallings was charged with trespass after allegedly being involved in a fight at a pinball center.

David Jeffrey Austin, 16, was charged with being an accomplice in the shooting; Sharon Louise Austin, 18, and Charles Allen Pierce, 17, were charged with being accessories.

Moore said Austin was charged with being an accomplice because officers think he was with Stallings during the shootings. Miss Austin and Pierce were listed as accessories because authorities think they had prior knowledge of the shootings, he said.

Moore said Pierce is the victim's step-son and was living with him. The Austins are brother and sister.

Speaking of Your Health...

Explaining Tubal Pregnancy

Is there any explanation why a young, healthy person like myself should have a tubal pregnancy? — Mrs. E.T.T., Neb.

Dear Mrs. T.: Normally, the female egg (ovum) passes through the Fallopian tube and, when fertilized by the male sperm, implants itself into the inner wall of the uterus (womb). Sometimes, the fertilized egg implants itself in the Fallopian tube where it continues to grow. With modern methods of diagnosis, a tubal pregnancy is recognized early, before complications can occur.

These tubal pregnancies are called "ectopic pregnancies." They occur once in about every 400 or 500 cases. There are a number of suspected reasons why this unusual problem occurs. Previous inflammation of the tubes is probably the most common reason. Tumors of the ovary may compress the tube and be responsible for blockage of it. An anatomical defect, or "kinking," of the tube is another possible cause.

The symptoms of ectopic pregnancy vary considerably. Usually, the problem is detected before six weeks. Early detection and early surgery insure the safety of the patient. There probably is no better reason to be under the supervision of a doctor from the very moment pregnancy is suspected.

Successful are operations to correct this condition? Will it help him breathe better? — Mr. G.N., Vt.

Dear Mr. N.: There are few more gratifying operations than the submucous resection of the nasal septum, the technical term for straightening the crooked dividing wall between the nostrils. When cases are carefully selected, the operation can give distinctly better air space to noses that have for years been blocked.

Underlying allergies, sinus infections and swelling of the turbinate bones in the nose are often the reason why some patients who have been operated on continue to complain of the inability to breathe freely through the nose.

The nasal septum is a wall of cartilage and bone that separates one side of the nose from the other. It rarely, if ever, is completely straight, even among those people who have not suffered a nasal injury.

Not all fractures of the nose are accompanied by a deflection of the septum. Frequently, the injury to the outer bones of the nose calls attention to a deviated septum that might already have been present.

The operation to correct this condition is a safe and uncomplicated one.

MYSTERY BLOBS — Holding a picture in one hand, Sibyl Christian of Frisco, Texas, gestures to indicate the size of one of the mysterious purple blobs found on her front lawn on August 11, as her husband, M.B. Christian, listens. The blobs, resembling plum pudding, had defied analysis by space scientists at NASA headquarters near Houston. NASA scientists say they haven't ruled out the possibility that the blobs might be from outer space. (AP Laserphoto)

Very Depressing Story And Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Can You Hear The Laughter?" tonight on CBS is a very depressing two hours, which, I suppose, could be taken as an indication that the movie works. It is the story of Freddie Prinze.

This biobrama of a street charmer's fast ride through a short life doesn't brim with uplifting moments. It didn't figure to. But it could have been more than it is — a fairly standard "too much, too soon" yarn featuring a pretty good Freddy Prinze impersonation.

Prinze is shown as a kinetic poor kid with enough charisma and talent to become a star, but not enough character to stay alive. Maybe that's all there was to Freddie Prinze. I didn't know him, and Peter S. Greenbert, who wrote the story and produced the movie, did.

But the movie leaves you hungry for more. We already know that Freddie Prinze "couldn't handle the success," and all of that. If we wanted a black reminder, we could have dug out old newspaper clippings.

Prinze was a kid who grew up in our living rooms. We saw him on Johnny Carson's show as a teen-ager with promise, then again guest-hosting in Carson's very chair, a young man who'd made it. We saw him sweet-smiling and smooth as the star of his own series, "Chico and the Man."

And then he put a bullet through his brain, and we wondered why. This movie tells us that Freddie Prinze self-destructed because of the pressures of success. His wife left him and his manager sued him and fans called him Chico instead of Freddie.

It doesn't seem enough. Prinze's pal, David Brenner, also grew up poor in a tough neighborhood, also made it big, but he didn't put a hole in his head. Why did Prinze turn to dope and a gun?

We see a kid doing crazy things, but no wherefor that go beyond the obvious. Example: There is a scene in which Prinze's childhood sweetheart, Rosie, catches Freddie kissing a singer at the nightclub where Freddie's hoping to be discovered.

She storms out of the joint and refuses to see Freddie, who promptly goes home and tries to kill himself, not a healthy response to the breakup of a teenage romance. We see that something was wrong with Freddie Prinze before success had a chance to be his undoing. But we don't see what.

Answers might have come from Freddie's mother, who is missing from the movie (also missing from Prinze's will), or from Freddie's psychiatrist, who is also missing from the movie. The doctor was reportedly with Prinze the night Freddy self-destructed.

Such probings might have seemed exploitive. But what is a TV movie about a star's tragic death if not exploitive?

There is no understanding without insight, and understanding is what separates first-rate biography from exploitation. "Can You Hear The Laughter?" is two hours of someone telling us, "Freddie Prinze couldn't handle life." We already knew that.

GOREN BRIDGE

♦ J 7 4
♣ A 9 3

The bidding:
East South West North
1 ♥ 1 ♣ Pass 4 ♦
Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♥.

When a crafty attack encounters an ingenious defense, something worth writing about is bound to occur.

South's vulnerable one spade overall was a bit sketchy, but we don't blame him for wanting to get in the master suit as cheaply as possible. North's jump to four spades was also proper—a jump to three spades would not be forcing, and the only other action that he might have considered would have been a jump to three clubs. Tactically that would be a mistake, for you don't tell the opponents more about your hand than you have to.

West led the queen of hearts and East overtook with the king to shift to the seven of clubs. It required no association with the ESP society to conclude that East had a singleton club. It was also apparent that only a club ruff could defeat the contract, since the opening bid suggested that East had both the missing spade honors.

How was West going to get the lead to return a club? Obviously, East was banking on his partner having the jack of hearts as an entry card, and he would underlead the ace of hearts after winning a trump.

Could this plan be thwarted? Could the enemy's lines of communication be disrupted?

After some study, declarer found a solution. It depended only on East having been dealt the queen of diamonds. Declarer won the club in dummy, cashed the ace and king of diamonds, and then led the ten of spades. East covered with the queen and declarer won the ace. Declarer next led the jack of diamonds, discarding dummy's remaining heart. East won the trick with the queen, but he had no way to reach his partner for a club ruff.

Declarer was lucky, you say? Perhaps. But it was his skill that gave Lady Luck a chance to produce, and it would have been unsporting of her not to respond.

Fellow Dancers Shun Ludmilla

MOSCOW (AP) — Bolshoi ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova, who left her defector husband in New York last month, is being shunned by her fellow dancers and regrets her decision to come home, according to Bolshoi insiders.

Former friends and fellow dancers will not talk to the 36-year-old dancer because they think she "sold her soul" to Soviet officials in exchange for better roles, Bolshoi sources say.

Miss Vlasova was the center of a Soviet-U.S. confrontation when her plane was grounded for three days in New York by U.S. authorities until they determined she was returning to Russia by choice.
